Muskie says Israeli move doesn't settle Jerusalem status

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Edmund Muskie said in an interview Sunday Israel's annexation of East Jerusalem as part of its capital does not settle the status of the Holy City in the Palestinian autonomy talks with Egypt.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has balked at resuming the talks with Israel because its parliament passed legislation making predominantly Arab East Jerusalem part of its "indivisible eternal" capital.

Sadat said the sensitive Jerusalem issue is part of the Camp David negotiations and the United States has opposed any such unilateral actions.

Muskie, in a U.S. News and World Report interview published Sunday, said Jerusalem remains an issue in the autonomy talks despite the action by the Israeli Knesset.

"The actions now taken and being considered in Israel on Jerusalem

SECRETARY MUSKIE ... miffed at omission cannot finally settle the status of Jerusalem," Muskie told the magazine.

"At some point it will be discussed as an issue," he said. "If agreement eventually is reached concerning the status of Jerusalem, then presumably both the Israeli and Egyptian governments will support it notwithstanding any prior position either government may have taken."

Muskie said Egypt must not be discouraged by the Israeli action.

"At the same time, I make the point to the Egyptians that the issue of Jerusalem really is still there to be discussed, and they ought to bear that in mind in their reactions to such things," Muskie said.

Mideast peace negotiator Sol Linowitz is expected to return to the region this month to work with both sides toward a settlement. But Muskie said "the idea of using the State Department bureaucracy to build a plan and then take it over there and present it is the least effective way to exercise leadership."

Muskie, a former senator from Maine, succeeded Cyrus R. Vance as secretary of state last April. In accepting the job, Muskie told President Carter he would insist on being the primary spokesman on foreign policy. But he now indicates week he feels he was "bypassed" in an apparent major change in U.S. policy — the use of America's nuclear arsenal.

Published reports last week said the president had adopted a new nuclear arms policy of focusing on attacks on military targets in the Soviet Union — not its cities.

Muskie told reporters accompanying him from a trip to California that he was unaware of the apparent policy change until he read it in the New York Times and the Washington Post.

Muskie indicated he was not necessarily in opposition to a policy change. But he said such a change had important implications for overall foreign policy and that he should have been consulted.

The Defense Department said Secretary Harold Brown called Muskie, on vacation at his home in Maine, to explain that State Department representatives were involved in the policy discussions last year before Muskie succeeded Vance.

Muskie, however, has asked for a full Defense Department briefing on the policy.

Military spending increases under Demos, study claims

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Military spending has increased each year the Democrats have controlled the Pentagon.

That is in sharp contrast to a decline in real defense spending during the Nixon-Ford years, a liberal defense research group said Sunday.

In fiscal 1979, the military spent $117.7 billion, the report by the Center for Defense Information said. In fiscal 1981, it is estimated defense spending will amount to $157.5 billion.

"This amounts to an increase of $40 billion," retired U.S. Admiral Gene La Roque, director of the research center, said. "When you adjust for inflation, that comes to an increase of almost 7 percent per year, far higher than the 3 percent or 4 percent the public has been hearing about," he said.

In contrast, La Roque said, "real military spending actually declined in every one of the Nixon-Ford years."

La Roque's comments were made as the center released a report entitled "Military Overspending: A Real Present Danger." It criticizes both the Republican and Democratic defense postures.

La Roque said the calls for massive increases in military spending, expected to be a part of both major political parties' platforms are "wasteful, inflationary and will not increase the security of the United States."

He said "While it is customary for the federal government to spend more of the taxpayer's money in an election year to persuade the taxpayer to vote for an incumbent, the increased spending this year seems to be focused on the military."

He suggested "it stems from the lack of awareness on the part of the taxpayers of the very formidable strength of the United States and the position of military superiority of the United States and allied military forces over those of the Soviet Union and Warsaw Pact."

The report says plans for expanded Pentagon spending, which are not geared to the economic problems of the private sector "will disrupt the economy and ultimately weaken the military."

Management experts train top Chinese

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A team of U.S. management experts begins a four-month program next week to train China's government and industrial leaders to become successful managers of modern-day technology.

The program "will enhance the quality of life for a country with one-fourth of the world's population, and is designed to help expedite China's entry as a major industrial power and one of America's strongest trading partners," said Commerce Secretary Philip M. Klutznick.

The program will run from Aug. 18 through Dec. 19. It is the first time the Chinese government has established a program of such magnitude to develop the country's technology-industry management programs in a systematic way, the department said.

Officers search Cuban camp for weapons

FORT INDIANTOWN GAP, Pa. (UPI) — More than 700 federal and military police officers combed troubled Area 5 of Fort Indiantown Gap Sunday, searching for homemade weapons and the leaders of last week's uprising at the Cuban refugee center.

Doreen Christian, Army spokeswoman, said the search started at 6 a.m. She had no report on the results of the shake-down.

As many as 500 refugees, most of whom had been at the resettlement camp since mid-May, took part in disturbances last Tuesday.

About 1,250 refugees are housed in Area 5, focus of Tuesday's disturbance and Sunday's search.

Ms. Christian said 265 military police officers, about 300 paratroopers from the 82nd Airborne Division, 85 Federal Protection Service officers and five U.S. marshals conducted the search.

She said authorities were assisted by members of the Cuban Security Force, established after the disturbance by refugees angered by their countrymen's actions.

Carter says he won't release his delegates.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter said Sunday he will not release his delegates to the Democratic National Convention and has "no doubt" he will win renomination.

Carter made the statement as his supporters in New York prepared for a rules fight tonight which — if the president's forces win as expected — would almost insure him a victory over Sen. Edward Kennedy.

"There's no doubt in my mind that I will be the nominee," the president said in a taped interview broadcast on the CBS-TV "60 Minutes" program Sunday night.

He also graded himself, report-card fashion, on how he has handled domestic and foreign policy — giving himself an A only on energy accomplishments.

Asked if there is a chance he will release the delegates he won in the primary, Carter replied, "None at all. They are not my delegates. They are the people's delegates who are sending them."

He said his own supporters told him he could show off his strength by releasing the delegates if he first demonstrated his muscle by successfully passing a rule requiring those elected to support him to do just that.

"But Carter said he does not need his own strength because he has it. There is no doubt in my mind that if I release those delegates, they would still vote for me — 98 percent of them. They have signed a pledge to vote for me and they would not violate their word of honor."

SEN. TED KENNEDY ...he's confident

The president spent the weekend at his Camp David retreat in Maryland and does not plan to fly to the convention until Wednesday. "You put me on the spot ... this is a little bit embarrassing, because I'm not prejudiced," Carter told reporter Dan Rather when asked to grade himself on his performance in office. "I think a B-minus. Let's say a B-minus" on foreign policy, Carter said. He gave himself a B on domestic policy, but added that "the actual results may be a C" because of high unemployment in the nation's economy.

"I would say that on leadership, reasonably good — maybe a B. I don't want to be held on account of those scores. I'll see what the American people say in November," Carter said with a laugh.

He called it a "gross exaggeration" to say that Democrats feel his place at the head of the ticket in November could mean disaster for other members of his party running for election.

"You know, Democrats don't get petrified when poll results go up and down," Carter said.

Aides said Carter watched Sunday's television talk shows, which featured Robert Strauss, campaign chairman of the Carter-Mondale re-election committee, and John White, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

The president, who flew to Camp David Friday, plans to remain in seclusion at the mountainside retreat until Wednesday, when he travels to New York for a mid-day rally. The White House said he will stop off first in Newark, N.J., to pick up Gov. Brendan Byrne.

Carter will be accompanied by his wife Rosalynn and daughter Amy, and perhaps other relatives.

If Carter wins renomination, he plans to return to Camp David after the convention and begin work on his fall campaign.

Kennedy states conditions for Carter support

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy, working frantically to break President Carter's apparent lock on the Democratic presidential nomination, Sunday met delegates, plotted strategy and put a price on his support in the November elections.

And Kennedy publicly pledged — for the first time — to free his supporters if the Democratic National Convention adopts a proposed rule binding delegates to their candidate on the first ballot.

Kennedy, in a hectic round of public and private appearances, insisted that he still intends to win the presidential nomination — despite Carter's huge lead — but soured more conciliatory and willing to compromise than he has in the past several days.

But Kennedy made it clear that Carter, in order to win his support in the fall campaign against Ronald Reagan, will have to yield on the party platform and substantially embrace his economic policies.

A stream of party officials and delegates, those pledged to Carter as well as those who did not, streamed through his opulent quarters in mid-Manhattan's Waldorf Astoria during the day.

In other rooms, Richard Moe, the top strategist for Vice President Walter Mondale, conferred with Paul Kirk, his counterpart in the Kennedy camp. Other Kennedy and Carter aides sat in on the meeting, the content of which was not disclosed. The meeting was at the request of the Carter team. Twice during the afternoon — once in person — Kennedy issued statements on the rule fight, scheduled for tonight.

Appearance on CBS's "Face the Nation," Kennedy said the key is the "nature of the nominee's commitment to the fundamental principles of the party."

"It isn't only expressed in the platform," Kennedy said and added that he can tell the "difference between substance and cosmetics." "I want to make it clear that when I'm convinced that that is a matter of substance on it (the platform), there won't be any Democrat in this country that will work harder for the success of the nominee."

"But if I'm convinced that those are just cosmetic commitments, then I have real difficulty in indicating to the millions of Americans who supported my candidacy other than that those matters are cosmetic."

Kennedy said the best way to distinguish between the cosmetic and the substantive are "one, in your heart, and two, in your mind."

Starting with early morning mass at historic St. Patrick's Cathedral, Kennedy launched a whirlwind campaign that included meetings with labor delegates, blacks and Hispanics and took him throughout Manhattan.

A key element in his convention-campaign was attempting to persuade delegates in the largest states to side with him and reject a proposed rule that would bind the delegates on the first ballot — and assure Carter's nomination.

Although Kennedy said the outcome in today's crucial vote would go "50 votes one way or the other," there were indications that Kennedy's emphasis was moving more toward the platform fights later in the week.

League door open for 3-way debate

NEW YORK (UPI) — The League of Women Voters said Sunday independent presidential candidate John Anderson will be invited to join its debates this fall if public opinion polls indicate he could win 15 percent of the vote.

The league also announced it will hold presidential debates — probably in Baltimore, Portland, Ore., and Cleveland — this fall even if President Carter, the likely Democratic nominee, refuses to appear with Anderson and Republican Ronald Reagan at the same time.

The league also will hold a vice presidential debate, probably in Louisville, Ky.

Carter has said he will not participate in a three-way debate with Anderson even though the congressman has surged higher than 20 percent in some polls.

In Washington, Anderson issued a statement saying, "I feel confident that I will meet the criteria announced today by the league."

"When the debates are held next month I look forward eagerly to airing my views and debating the issues with the other presidential candidates," he said.

Ruth Hinerfeld, head of the league's education fund, said the group will make its final decision on Anderson in late August by looking at a half-dozen national polls.

She said the surveys done periodically by Louis Harris, George Gallup and Edmo Roper will be consulted and possibly those made by CBS and Anderson

New York Times, NBC and Time magazine as well.

If Anderson is above 15 percent in some polls and below in others, "We will really have to examine the numbers," she said. "The ultimate decision will be made by the (league) board. We recognize there may be some marginal problems."

As for Carter's opposition to a three-way debate, Mrs. Hinerfeld said, "We have no reservation on that score. We shall invite all the candidates at the same time. There is no ambiguity in our minds this is what we must do. Yes, we would go ahead (without Carter) if he is not by the time we near that figure."

Ma Hinerfeld said any independent candidate who makes a 15-percent or better showing in public opinion polls would be invited to attend, but Anderson is the only one who is anywhere near that figure.

Two polls released this weekend give him 13 percent to 14 percent of the vote in a projected three-way race with Republican nominee Ronald Reagan and Carter.

Anderson does not get the $29.4 million federal campaign fund that finances the Republican and Democratic nominees, and has as far raised about $5 million of the $15 million he said is needed to run a reasonable campaign.

Carter earlier this year said he would refuse to debate Anderson. But later he said he might be willing to debate Anderson if Reagan was not included in the same session.

Reagan has said he would welcome Anderson in the debates.

Carter gains in polls

By United Press International

New national polls released Sunday showed President Carter making significant gains but still well behind Republican Ronald Reagan in their expected battle for the White House.

The Gallup Poll reported Reagan leading with 45 percent voter support in a three-way race with Carter and independent candidate John Anderson. Carter received 31 percent and Anderson 14 percent among those who stated preference.

But that Carter showing was much better than a number of recent poll results for the president. The new ones indicated Carter got high marks on his nationally televised news conference Aug. 4 on the Billy Carter affair.

A CBS New York Times poll said a voter-sampling just before the news conference showed Carter 23 percentage points behind Reagan, but that deficit dropped to 20 points just afterward.

Louis Harris told the Washington Post he also polled immediately before and after the news conference and said his findings, expected to be released later this week, show Reagan with a lead of 19 points over Carter.

Again, that would be a dramatic 8-point surge for Carter when compared with a Harris poll taken just after the Republican National Convention in Detroit.

An NBC poll released Saturday showed Reagan with a fat margin of 25 percentage points over Carter, but noted 51 percent of the people questioned said they had not yet made up their minds.

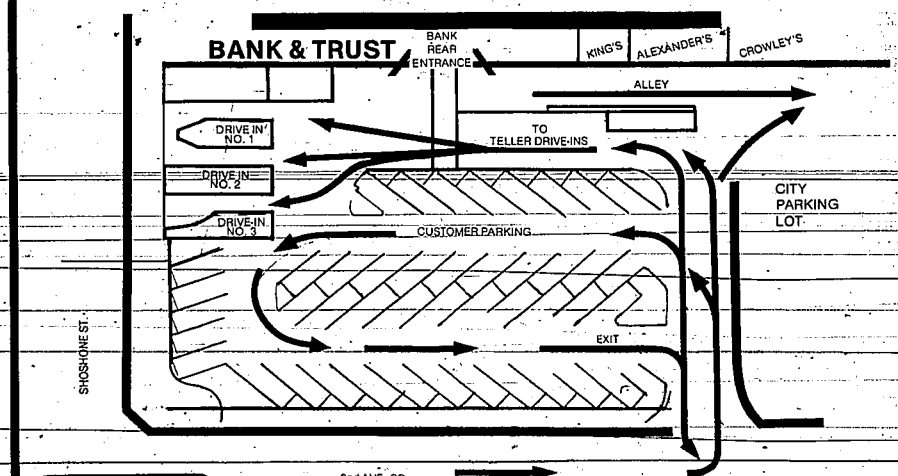

The NBC poll found Carter to be the preferred candidate for the nomination among rank-and-file Democrats, leading Kennedy 38 percent to 21 percent.

Young bidding for Carter help

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Andrew Young has urged the Southern Christian Leadership Conference to ignore the liberal endorsements of independent presidential candidate John Anderson and retain President Carter so black Americans can keep their access to government.

The former ambassador to the United Nations told delegates to the SCLC's national convention Saturday that Carter has appointed blacks to key administrative positions.

By contrast, he charged that Anderson has only one black on his Congressional staff.

Filer shows need for land law change

It was pure coincidence but a resignation in Filer has pointed up the need for a change in Idaho's land use law.

Following discovery of a legal provision which excludes her, Filer Planning and Zoning Commission Chairwoman Sue Strobel last week had to quit her post.

That came two days after a public hearing in Twin Falls on how to improve and refine the state law, including a proposed change in the provision affecting Strobel.

Spawmed by a suggestion from Gov. John Evans, the Division of Economic and Community Affairs is holding hearings and gathering opinion around the state on Idaho's Land Use Planning Act.

Tuesday, the Twin Falls hearing drew few people and even less comment.

Thursday in Filer, Strobel took herself off the local board after learning that a city ordinance, which is patterned after state law, requires a board member to have lived in the county for five years.

Mayor Eldon Ryals hated to lose an excellent chairwoman—in Strobel, who has lived in the county for four years. But council members did not want to redraft the ordinance.

The mayor asked Strobel to continue to serve as an adviser until she can perhaps be offered an appointment next year.

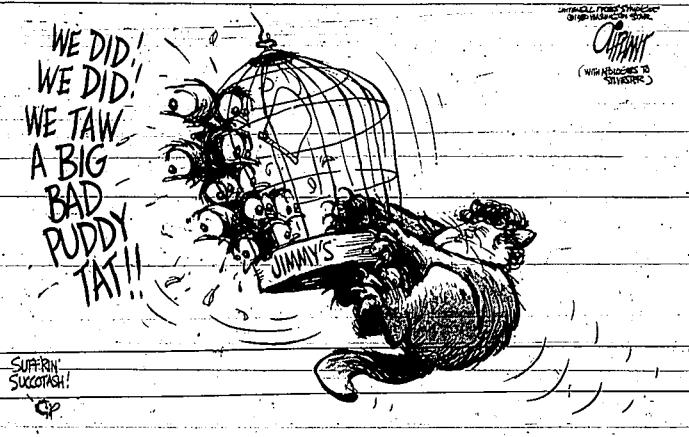

State law says county board members must have lived in the county for five years, and Filer may not have been able to change its ordinance in any case.

Reducing that extra long residency requirement is one of the suggested changes in state Land Use Planning Act of 1975 proposed by written comment from local leaders and groups.

Filer has provided a good example of why that is needed. Strobel, nor anyone else, should have to be a member of a founding family to serve on a local board.

Strobel said she understands the state law seeks to prevent a developer from bringing in employees who then go after board appointments for the benefit of the developer's projects. That seems to be borne out of paranoia and belief local officials and members of the public can easily be duped. Meanwhile, it does more harm than good by keeping qualified residents off the boards.

City officials could give added weight to an argument for changing the length of residency requirement by dashing off a letter to Economic and Community Affairs.

Letters

A refresher on letter policy

To Our Readers: From time to time it becomes necessary to reiterate the letters to the editor policy of the Times-News. That general policy is published as many times as possible under this heading to guide letter writers. Letters should not exceed 400 words in length and be legible (typewritten is best), a good guide to length is one and one-half typewritten pages, double spaced. The Times-News reserves the right to condense letters to meet the length requirement and to edit for style and spelling. All letters must contain a legible signature, address and telephone number for verification. Unsigned letters are automatically discarded. The Times-News also will reject those letters considered to be factually erroneous, in bad taste or, in the editor's judgment, containing potentially libelous statements. Since the Times-News is responsible for every letter published, letters are carefully scrutinized for the above criteria. Letters are published in the order that they are received, every attempt is made to publish all letters within the week they are received. Some other, more specific policies regarding letters are these: • Form letters and letters in verse are not published. • The Times-News will consider withholding the name of an author but only in circumstances where the revelation of the author's name would result in repercussions against him/her. Such occurrences are rare. • Thank-you letters are restricted to those of general interest to the community. Personal thank-you letters, political thank-you letters and those thanking long lists of individuals or businesses will not be published. • Although letters to the editor are encouraged, no one has unlimited access to this column. Address all letters to: The Editor, The Times-News, P.O. Box 548, Twin Falls, ID 83301. Letters also may be delivered in person to the Times-News office. No letters are taken over the telephone. #### America must be prepared

Editor, Times-News: I am taking this opportunity to answer Mrs. Thiebert's letter publicly since she was not interested in my opinion by telephone. I, too, Mrs. Thiebert, am proud of your sons to take stands against something they are not with in accordance. And I am proud of all our American sons for I am sure most of them are patriots and would defend our great country if we were attacked. But wouldn't that be a little late to train them? The enemy would not wait for Uncle Sam to train his sons before pursuing the attack. Not when our enemies train all their sons as soon as they finish their education. This is every son, regardless whether the parents are political figures, doctors, lawyers, farmers or just peasants — no deferments or exceptions. This I know as I have been there, and have seen it. What chance would your sons have against a trained army? Like I said on the phone, I am sorry for you but more sorry for your sons as they would be cut down like trees in a forest in case of war. Your sons and their families are the future America. One year out of their lifetime is a small price to pay for helping to assure the freedoms we all have enjoyed. If we are not prepared, we surely will fall like a rotten pear from the tree into the lap of Communism just as Mr. Khrushchev predicted. I believe as was taught and through my own experience that a slash in time saves nine. MATILDA MACHACEK Buhl

Equal justice

Editor, Times-News: I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America for which it stands, one nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all. We used to repeat this every day before school. It was a large part of our upbringing. In this day and age ahead of our children, crime is rampant, but our children are immune to punishment. While they are juveniles, they can "get away with anything" short of murder. Why should a child be locked up with his juvenile counterparts who walk the streets of our neighborhood free? #### Must preserve our freedoms

Editor, Times-News: This is in reply to the letter by Amy Stary. Thiebert's letter predicted the draft registration, saying she was proud they took the meaning of freedom seriously. Garbage! People who value their freedom should realize two things: 1. This country offers its citizens more freedom than any other country in the world. 2. Freedom does not come cheap, it has to be paid for. There are countries in this world that desire more than anything else to see our country collapse. In order for us to pass on to our children the priceless gift of freedom, we must be prepared to fight to preserve the country and what it stands for. It is time that we grew up as citizens and put our country and the liberty of our children above our own personal petty wants and needs. MARTIN H. GOLSON Twin Falls

Hello there, Three Creek!

The Three Creek phone directory may be one of the smallest in the world. It lists only about 20 names. But it represents a lot of effort and a lot of waiting.

Residents have been able to talk to each other since November last year, after the Rural Telephone Co. finished laying lines. Last Tuesday they were plugged into the Bell system and can now talk to those of us in the outside world.

Gone for most of the Three Creek people will be the trips of up to 50 miles from Murphy's Hot Springs to Rogerson to make and return phone calls. Four ranches still lack service.

Welcome, Three Creek, to the world of instant, mass communication.

What a ticket!

NEW YORK CITY — Well, we thought it would never come to the 1980 Democratic National Convention. The big question is: how do the Democrats top the suspense and thrills of the Republican Convention in Detroit? I believe I have a scenario that would do it. ***** We're into the third day of the convention in Madison Square Garden. Every Carter and Kennedy delegate has been interviewed four times. We have heard from every Democratic mayor and governor in the country. But what do we do on Wednesday night? Here is my plan. Teddy Kennedy appears on Walter Cronkite's show at 7:30. Walter says, "Senator, would you consider being President Carter's vice presidential candidate if it was offered to you?" "Teddy says, "I did not come here to be the vice president."

Ham Jordan says excitedly, "He sounds like he'll take it!" "Jody Foyel says, "It's the ticket we've always dreamed of. We can't pass up the opportunity. Kennedy has actually committed himself on the Cronkite show. He can't go back on it now."

Jody says, "I'll check it out." In the meantime, Dan Rather has discovered that Teddy's Secret Servicemen are ejecting all members of the Mondale family from the VIP boxes. He tells Walter that this confirms a deal has been struck between Carter and Kennedy.

"But if President Carter said he wanted you to be his V.P., would you take it?" "Only under certain conditions."

Ham calls up the Kennedy suite. "Who is representing your side? You're kidding!" Ham holds his hand over the mouthpiece. They say they want Henry Kissinger to act as their go-between. They're playing hard ball.

But behind the scenes there is still a lot of tough negotiating going on. Kissinger says that Teddy insists on using Camp David on weekends, and Carter can only fly in Air Force One when no one from the Kennedy family wants the plane.

"Can we do that legally?" President Carter says.

All the demands seem reasonable as far as the Carter people are concerned. But then Kissinger throws one more in. He says that he wants to be Secretary of State, Defense and Treasury — all at the same time. The Carter people decide it's too much to give and they call up Cronkite to tell him the deal is off. The Mondale family members are permitted to take their seats in the VIP section again, and one of the most exciting nights in American political history draws to a close.

"Can we do that legally?" President Carter says.

President Carter and his staff are watching all this in their headquarters suite.

President Carter says.

Bilingualism in education: do-gooders went too far

WASHINGTON — In the matter of bilingual education, the do-gooders 12 years ago set out to do good.

Supreme Court, Mr. Justice Douglas said it was not so simple a matter. Under California law, English is the basic language of instruction in all public schools; all pupils are required to master English, and no pupil can be graduated without such proficiency.

Without resolution. In a few other areas — the courts for example, and the voting booth — official bilingualism is the rule.

A sufficient time has elapsed to warrant a sober re-examination of a program that once seemed so wise and humane. The program may be taking us down paths we will live to regret.

Under these state-proposed standards," said Douglas, "there is no equality of treatment merely by providing students with the same facilities, textbooks, teachers and curriculum; for students who do not understand English are effectively foreclosed from any meaningful education."

Given that encouragement, a rush toward bilingual programs began. In the current fiscal year, $17 million is spread among the states; the request for fiscal '81, now in a House subcommittee, is for $12 million. Upward of 300,000 children are participating nationwide. Some 65 percent of them are from Spanish-speaking households; other large groups speak Asian tongues or native American — Indian — or Eskimo dialects.

Back in 1964, the Civil Rights Act prohibited discrimination on the basis of national origin in any program funded in part by federal funds. In 1980, the problem of the non-English speaking pupil was addressed specifically. The Elementary and Secondary School Act provided modest funds for bilingual education. In 1974, the Supreme Court weighed in with its unambiguous decree in Lau vs. Nichols:

But an uneasy ambiguity is in order that when the do-gooders set out to do good, there often is no stopping them before they do harm. The educational bureaucracy is like every other bureaucracy: it multiplies by cellular division. Programs expand to spend the money appropriated for them. To the extent that we encourage official bilingualism, we tend to dissolve that cultural adhesive. Pushed too far — pushed beyond the remedial point required by the court — such policies are bound to divide our people, to foster bloc and faction, and to raise linguistic barriers among us.

In times past millions of immigrants have managed to master English without elaborate forms of federal aid. They have kept their ethnic tradition in their homes and churches and shops, but in public matters they have accepted English as their first language — their second. It would be a grave error, as I see it, to let that wise system yield to a trendy and doubtful cause.

Carter says he won't release his delegates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter said Sunday he will not release delegates to the Democratic National Convention and "no doubt" he will win re-nomination.

Carter made the statement as his supporters in New York prepared for a rules fight tonight which — if the president's forces win as expected — would almost insure him a victory over Sen. Edward Kennedy.

"There's no doubt in my mind that I will be the nominee," the president said in a taped interview broadcast on the CBS-TV "60 Minutes" program Sunday night.

He also graded himself report-card fashion, on how he has handled domestic and foreign policy — giving himself an A only on energy accomplishments.

"Asked if there is a chance he will release the delegates he won in the primary, Carter replied, "None at all. They are not my delegates. They are the people's delegates who elected me."

He said his own supporters told him he could show off his strength by releasing the delegates if he first demonstrated his muscle by successfully resolving the rule-fighting delegates who elected to support him to do just that.

But Carter said he does not need to prove his strength because, "I'm going to win the election. If I release those delegates, they would still vote for me — 96 percent of them. They've signed a pledge to vote for me and they would not violate their word of honor."

The president spent the weekend at his Camp David retreat in Maryland and does not plan to fly to the convention until Wednesday.

"You put me on the spot ... this is a little bit embarrassing, because I'm highly prejudiced," Carter told reporter Dan Rather when asked to grade himself on his performance in office.

"I think a B-minus. Let's say a B-minus" on foreign policy, Carter said. He gave himself a B on domestic policy, but added that "the actual results may be a C because of high unemployment in the nation's economy."

"I would say that on leadership, reasonably good — maybe a B. I don't want to hold on account of those scores. I'll see what the American people say in November," Carter said with a laugh.

He called it a "gross exaggeration" to say that Democrats feel his place at the head of the ticket in November could mean disaster for other members of his party running for election.

"You know, Democrats don't get petrified when poll results go up and down," Carter said.

Aides said Carter watched Sunday's television talk shows, which featured Robert Strauss, campaign chairman of the Carter-Mondale re-election committee, and John White, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

The president, who flew to Camp David Friday, plans to remain in seclusion at the mountaintop retreat until Wednesday, when he travels to New York for a mid-day rally. The White House said he will stop off first in Newark, N.J. to pick up Gov. Brendan Byrne.

Carter will be accompanied by his wife Rosalynn and daughter Amy, and perhaps other relatives.

If Carter wins re-nomination, he plans to return to Camp David after the convention and begin work on his fall campaign.

Kennedy states conditions for Carter support

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy, working frantically to break President Carter's apparent lock on the Democratic presidential nomination, Sunday met delegates, plotted strategy and put a price on his support in the November elections.

And Kennedy publicly pledged — for the first time — to free his supporters if the Democratic National Convention adopts a proposed rule binding delegates to their candidate on the first ballot.

Kennedy, in a hectic round of public and private appearances, insisted that he still intends to win the presidential nomination despite Carter's huge lead — but sounded more conciliatory and willing to compromise than he has in the past several days.

But Kennedy made it clear that Carter, in order to win his support in the fall campaign against Ronald Reagan, will have to yield on the party platform and substantially embrace his economic policies.

A stream of party officials and delegates, those pledged to Carter as well as those pledged to him, streamed through his opulent quarters in mid-Manhattan's Waldorf Astoria during the day.

In other rooms, Richard Moe, the top strategist for Vice President Walter Mondale, conferred with Paul Kirk, his counterpart in the Kennedy camp. Other Kennedy and Carter aides sat in on the meeting, the content of which was not disclosed. The meeting was at the request of the Carter team.

Twice during the afternoon — once in person — Kennedy issued statements on the rule fight, scheduled for tonight.

Appearing on CBS's "Face the Nation," Kennedy said the key is the "nature of the nominee's commitment to the fundamental principles of the party."

"It isn't only expressed in the platform," Kennedy said and added that he can tell the "difference between substance and cosmetics."

"I want to make it clear that when I'm convinced that that's a matter of substance on it (the platform), there won't be any Democrat in this country that will work harder for the success of the nominee."

"But if I'm convinced that those are just cosmetic commitments, then I have real difficulty in indicating to the millions of Americans who supported my candidacy other than that those matters are cosmetic."

Kennedy said the best way to distinguish between the cosmetic and the substantive are "one, in your heart, and two, in your mind."

Starting with early morning mass at historic St. Patrick's Cathedral, Kennedy launched a whirlwind campaign that included meetings with labor delegates, blacks and Hispanics and took him throughout Manhattan.

A key element in his convention-eve campaign was attempting to persuade delegates in the largest states to side with him and reject a proposed rule that would bind the delegates on the first ballot — and assure Carter's nomination.

Although Kennedy said the outcome in today's crucial vote would bind the delegates on the other, there were indications that Kennedy's emphasis was moving more toward the platform fights later in the week.

League door open for 3-way debate

NEW YORK (UPI) — The League of Women Voters said Sunday its presidential candidate John Anderson will be invited to join its debates this fall if public opinion polls indicate he could win 15 percent of the vote.

The league also announced it will hold presidential debates — probably in Baltimore, Portland, Ore., and Cleveland — this fall even if President Carter, the only Democratic nominee, refuses to appear with Anderson and Republican Ronald Reagan at the same time.

The league also will hold a "vice presidential" debate, probably in Louisville.

New York Times, NBC and Time magazine as well.

Anderson is above 15 percent in some polls and below in others. "We will really have to examine the numbers," she said. "The ultimate decision would have to be made by the (league) board. We recognize there may be some marginal problems."

As for Carter's opposition to a three-way debate, Ms. Hinertfeld said, "We have no reservation on that score. We shall invite all the candidates at the same time. There is no ambiguity in our minds this is what we must do. Yes, we would go ahead (with Carter)."

Ms. Hinertfeld said any independent candidate who makes a 15 percent or better showing in public opinion polls would be invited to attend, but Anderson is the only one who is anywhere near that figure.

Two polls released this weekend give him 13 percent to 14 percent of the vote in a projected three-way race with Carter and nominee Ronald Reagan and Carter.

Anderson does not get the $20.4 million federal campaign fund that finances the Republican and Democratic nominees, and has so far raised about $5 million of the $15 million he said is needed to run a reasonable campaign.

Carter earlier this year said he would refuse to debate Anderson. But later he said he might be willing to debate Anderson if Reagan were not included in the same session.

Reagan has said he would welcome Anderson in the debates.

Carter has said he will not participate in a three-way debate with Anderson — even though the congressman has surged higher than 20 percent in some polls.

In a decision, Anderson issued a statement saying, "I feel confident that I will meet the criteria announced today by the league."

"When the debates are held next month I look forward eagerly to stating my views and debating the issues with the other presidential candidates," he said.

Ruth Hinertfeld, head of the league's education fund, said the group will make its final decision on Anderson in late August by looking at a half-dozen national polls.

She said the surveys done periodically by Louis Harris, George Gallup and Elmo Roper will be consulted and possibly those made by CBS and the

Carter gains in polls

By United Press International

New national polls released Sunday showed President Carter making significant gains but still well behind Republican Ronald Reagan in their expected battle for the White House.

The Gallup Poll reported Reagan leading with 45 percent voter support in a three-way race with Carter and independent candidate John Anderson. Carter received 31 percent and Anderson 14 percent among those who stated preference.

But that Carter showing was much better than a number of recent poll results for the president. The new ones indicated Carter got high marks on his nationally televised news conference Aug. 4 on the Billy Carter affair.

A CBS-New York Times poll said a voter sampling just before the news conference showed Carter 23 percentage points behind Reagan, but that deficit dropped to 20 points just afterward.

Louis Harris told the Washington Post he also polled immediately before and after the news conference, and said his findings, expected to be released later this week, show Reagan with a lead of 19 points over Carter.

Again, that would be a dramatic 8-point surge for Carter when compared with a Harris poll taken just after the Republican National Convention in Detroit.

An NBC poll released Saturday showed Reagan with a fat margin of 25 percentage points over Carter, but noted 51 percent of the people questioned said they had not yet made up their minds.

The NBC poll found Carter to be the preferred candidate for the nomination among rank-and-file Democrats, trailing Kennedy 30 percent to 21 percent.

Young bidding for Carter help

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Andrew Young has urged the Southern Christian Leadership Conference to ignore the liberal criticisms of independent presidential candidate John Anderson and rein President Carter so black Americans can keep their access to government.

The former ambassador to the United Nations and delegate to the SCLC's national convention Saturday said that Carter has appointed blacks to federal judgeships and given blacks a significant say in the administration of the federal budget.

By contrast, he charged that Anderson has only one black on his Congressional staff.

Chinatown residents would like to leave, poll shows

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — For 132 years Chinatown has been one of San Francisco's most colorful neighborhoods.

Now, the first survey ever taken of its residents showed 42 percent would like to get out.

The survey found the Chinese-American residents suffer from "an extremely high prevalence of psychophysiological disorders," 5 percent higher than the rate in the famous 1927 Midtown Manhattan survey that found a third of the New York residents suffered from such disorders.

"If Manhattan was crazy, Chinatown is just as crazy," said Chalisa Loo, a clinical psychologist who joined with historian Connie Young Yu in conducting what they said was the first survey among the residents of the neighborhood.

Nine bilingual researchers conducted the interviews among 108 residents, selected as representative of the age-sex ratio of the community.

While Ms. Loo said most residents felt they were in good health, she said a third suffer from psychophysiological or psychosomatic illnesses and a fourth of those suffer extensively.

She said 57 percent of the residents reported feeling depressed "many times" or "sometimes." But, she said, rather than turning to conventional psychologists for help, Chinatown residents "most frequently" go to "astrological fortune tellers."

"Many believe that individuals are influenced by the animal of the year in the Chinese zodiac in which they were born," she said. "With the help of divining or 'joss-sticks' and astrological-reference books, Chinese spiritual readers offer their customers advice in making decisions and solving problems."

Ms. Loo said in her report, which is to be formally presented at the American Psychological Association meeting in Toronto Sept. 1, that fewer than 8 percent of those surveyed spoke enthusiastically of their lives, compared to national surveys that showed half of the nation's residents described their lives as "very interesting, very enjoyable, very full, very rewarding or very hopeful."

Among the conditions Chinatown residents disliked most about their surroundings were overcrowding, dirt, crime and noise, with 90 percent claiming the conditions were having harmful personal effects on them.

She said 55 percent of those surveyed claimed they "had little or no choice" in housing and only half said they lived in clean, well-kept buildings. Three out of 10 said their heating was either "not too good" or "not good at all."

MULE NON GRATA
Pat Kins of New York's Holiday Inn is really sitting her reservations for this week. The Democratic Convention is back in town and she doesn't want a certain delegate showing up in her lobby again. In 1976, she looked up to find a live jackass waiting to be shown to its room. It was registered under the name of "Mr. Mule," and fellow delegates made a great show of insisting that their "colleague" be accommodated. Now hear this Democrats: It won't work twice.

It's being bruited about that a grass-roots campaign is under way to nominate Miss Piggy for the presidency this year, but the Muppet superwoman isn't interested. Says she — through her spokesman, Frank Oz — "Moi am terribly busy preparing for

He says he's a life-long Frank Sinatra fan and a real old-timer taught him how to handle the drums. His coach — Gene Krupa.

Richard Hayman is one of music's more energetic conductors, and last week in St. Louis he worked himself into such a frenzy he actually got airborne. At the high point of "Gonna Fly Now," from "Rocky," he did fly right off the podium, breaking his leg. Undeterred, he was back the next night and he's been going strong ever since. But how does it feel to conduct with a broken leg? Says Hayman, "Well, to tell you the truth, I'd rather use a baton."

CAN DANCER
Susan Regan got her big break last week in New York — sort of. The 19-year-old model landed her first professional assignment — working with Bert Parks of Miss America fame and Page Morton Black — in a series of Chock Full O' Nuts television commercials. That's the good news. The bad news is that none of the home folks in Harrisburg, Pa., will see her face. Everything but her legs will be hidden by an giant coffee can. And that, says Susan, is show business.

Petaluma pooch prevails

PETALUMA, Calif. (UPI) — Ed Thompson brought his canine career across the country to compete in an ugly dog contest.

However, a local mutt took top honors.

Thompson and his English Bulldog "Arabald von Champ" recently had won a similar contest in St. Petersburg, Fla., and hoped he could make it two in a row.

But it was local talent that took the top honor in Petaluma's "Ugliest

"Snuffy" won the mutt division and went on to take the overall championship by defeating "Arabald," the winner of the pedigree division.

The contest is held as part of the annual "Old Adobe Day" festival in Petaluma, north of San Francisco in Sonoma County.

'Fall in!' command opens class

RICHMOND (UPI) — An expected 132 ninth-graders will hear "Fall in!" early on the morning of Sept. 2 at what Richmond school officials said is the nation's first public-military academy.

Students in other Richmond public schools will be sitting in homerooms and wearing civilian clothes. But cadets at the new Franklin Military School will be wearing green uniforms and lining up in squads, platoons and companies, officials said.

"It will be strictly military," said William F. Cumbo Jr., the school's administrator and commandant. "The kids will wear uniforms all the time. They will present themselves as gentlemen and gentlewomen everywhere they are."

The program is voluntary so far. Students were asked to try the program for a one semester hitch. After that, they can go back to regular school if they want.

Cumbo said the school will offer a strict, but not harsh, military discipline and a basic academic program.

"Really, what we'll have is a mini-battalion — a cadet battalion. We'll have a headquarters company, Alpha Company and Bravo Company," he said.

Officials conceived the school as a combined middle and high school. But Cumbo expects it to develop into a full four-year high school in three or four school years.

The school was intended as a kind of escape valve, mainly for students in academic trouble who are average for their grade level and likely to be prime candidates for dropping out of school, officials said.

But Cumbo said students he's admitted to the cadet corps mostly have C averages and are at about the right grade level for their ages, 14 and 15.

Ceremony goes smoothly

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Steve Cooper's mother had her fingers crossed Saturday as her son's wedding ceremony began.

After all, he'd jumped off a bridge during the rehearsal.

Cooper, dashed away from his own wedding rehearsal party Friday at Bicentennial Park, ran to a nearby bridge, and jumped into the Scioto River.

He did it, despite a heart problem which has left him unemployed since February, to save a drowning woman. With help from a younger brother, Cooper pulled the woman from an apparent suicide attempt to safety.

"You can't let people drown," Cooper told friends who reminded him of doctors' orders not to overexert himself. "Besides, I swam real slow."

Saturday, as Cooper married Cindy Mason, 21, in the park, the only people on the Main Street bridge were some curious passers-by.

What's what

Mating time produces troubles for lobsters

Only one out of 25 female lobsters mates to produce little lobsters. Of so claim the lobster experts. The female lobster can only mate during one 48-hour period every two years, they say. And in that time, being none too wise, she drives away the smaller males who can mate in favor of the big males who can't. That's all I know about this inebriate matter, but it seems enough.

Among the more significant items in our Love and War man's files is the fact that a divorced woman is 10 times more likely to find a husband than is a never-married woman.

That flying toy we call a kite—named here after a hawk—is known in Germany as a dragon, in France as an insect and in Spain as a comet.

Moose graze underwater, too.

DOUBLE DEAL

Q. What's that bigamy deal in South America called the Two Wives?

A. Can only assume you refer to the Tawanki. That's the tribe wherein two couples join forces to create a two-wives, two-husbands, plus-combined-children family. They share everything, including intimacies, food and field work. Usually, they live in two dwellings, but only because they need that much space. Children, fathered by whichever, are legitimized by the household in which they're born. Not every member of the Tawanki is teamed up in such a manner, but most are. It's the accepted pattern there. It starts when two husbands agree to bring their wives to one of their huts for a horrendous overnight drinking bout.

RICE

Do you know how the rice got to this country? A ship's captain from Madagascar worked the damaged vessel into port at Charleston, S. C., in 1685. Colonists helped him fix it. Gratefully, he paid them in rice. With instructions on what to do with it.

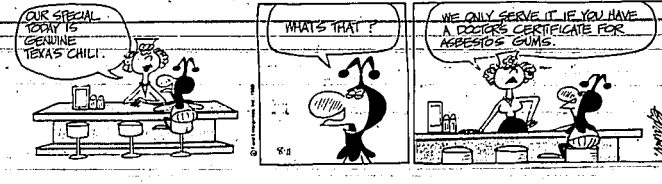

The whale, which has no neck, possesses the same number of vertebrae in that place where its neck should be—seven as does the giraffe, which indeed has a neck, as you may have noticed.

Some African termites excavate coal to build their mounds. So the natives thereabouts break pieces off those mounds to fuel long-burning fires.

Hua defends Mao's role in Cultural Revolution

PEKING (UPI) — Disagreement surfaced Sunday among China's top leaders over whether the late Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung made serious mistakes during the tumultuous Cultural Revolution.

Mao's handpicked successor, Chairman Hua Guofeng, attempted to draw the line in an interview published Sunday on how far the current administration's repudiation of the Cultural Revolution should go. "He was a human being and not a god and therefore fallible," Hua said about Mao in the interview with the Yugoslav newspaper Vjesnik, released by the official Chinese news agency Xinhua.

While admitting Mao was re-

CHAIRMAN MAO ... errors or not?

sponsible for some of the excesses and sufferings brought on by the 1966-76 political upheaval, Hua sought to cast much of the blame on the party and the extremist Gang of Four, whose members will be tried, probably next month.

Hua argued that Mao, who died in September, 1976, was a victim of deception by the Gang rather than the prime mover behind the Cultural Revolution in his later years.

The argument contrasted with the interpretation of some other Chinese leaders who intimated that Mao played a more active role — although the party's decision on Mao's record will be made later this year at the 12th national congress.

Party Secretary General Hu Yaobang, a close associate of powerful Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping, told Yugoslav journalists in June that Mao's "errors have been the cause of great misfortunes for the party and the Chinese people."

Hua, 58, who came to power reportedly after the dying Mao uttered to him, "With you in charge, I am at ease," noted that the party had made "grave, serious mistakes" during the Cultural Revolution.

"As chairman of the party, Comrade Mao Tse-tung of course bore responsibility for these mistakes," he said. Significantly he did not say Mao himself had made these mistakes, thus differing from other Chinese leaders like Deng and Hu.

He also made excuses for Mao, saying he was old and feeble and added, "It was very difficult for him to speak or to move" toward the end.

Hinting at some possible political changes in China, Hua also said, "We are considering ways of how to expand democracy and are taking numerous measures to reduce the excessive concentration of power in evidence now."

The party is now reassessing its own record, the most chaotic of which was the Cultural Revolution. The disagreement between Hua and other more pragmatic leaders apparently came out in these discussions.

Saudi prince talks tough

ABU DHABI (UPI) — Saudi Arabian Foreign Minister Prince Saud al Faisal said Sunday Arab nations should use "all weapons," and not just oil, in their struggle against Israel.

"There is much talk about the oil weapon, suggesting that it is the bomb or magic stick that will liberate (the occupied Arab) lands. This is not correct," Faisal told the newspaper Al Bayan.

"The conflict with Zionism is much greater to be fought with just one weapon," Faisal said. "The conflict necessitates the use of all weapons and potentials."

Iranian minister nets OK

By United Press International

Iran's Parliament Sunday accepted the nomination of Rajai as prime minister, opening the way for certain approval of the hard-line education minister in voting today.

Once the prime minister is chosen, Parliament can then begin its long-awaited debate on the fate of the 52 American hostages in their 21st day of captivity.

Tehran Radio, monitored by the BBC in London, said Parliament received a letter from President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr introducing Rajai as his choice for the job. After a long debate about the president's authority to nominate the prime minister, the house voted to accept the letter.

It was later announced that Parliament would vote today on Rajai's nomination, but the ballot was expected to be a formality capping a decisive victory for Iran's fundamentalist forces.

Rajai's nomination followed a prolonged power struggle in Iran and is viewed as a clear victory for the hard-line Islamic Republican Party, which proposed the education minister over Bani-Sadr's more moderate choices.

A "party man" who takes orders from Islamic Republican Party leader Ayatollah Mohammed Beheshti, Rajai is likely to define Iran's position on the fate of the hostages.

Elsewhere in Iran, there were more bloody clashes between revolutionary guards and "counterrevolutionaries" in the town of Naqadeh in the province of Azerbaijan and two army officers were wounded in the fighting, Tehran Radio said.

Earlier, three people were killed, including one Kurd, in a fierce battle at Naqadeh early Saturday between "counterrevolutionaries" and revolutionary guards, the radio said.

The official Pars News Agency said seven men were executed at dawn Sunday for promoting prostitution and drug trafficking. The executions took place in Qazvin, Borujerd and a third undisclosed location.

Another man was executed under orders by the Kermanshah revolution court for the execution of a girl or torture, murder, intimidation and "violating people's chastity," Tehran Radio said.

Revolutionary courts in Sistan and Baluchistan reportedly sentenced 10 men to death for murder in an armed attack against "members of a reconstruction crusade organization," the radio said.

Church ties spark man's death spree

BASSANO, Alberta (UPI) — A Canadian man who "resented" his wife's church affiliation killed her, their two teenage children and four church leaders in a bloody rampage that ended with his own suicide, authorities said.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police Capt. Fred Bickerstaff said Irvin Levin, 55, a maintenance man for a feed company, had often openly and fiercely argued with his wife, Philomena, 52, over her devotion to the Evangelical Free Church.

Over the years, it got to the stage that he resented the church," Bickerstaff said late Saturday once details of the case became known.

"There was a lot of anger, a lot of domestic problems that came with her association, and his disassociation with the church."

Ironically, Mrs. Levin met and married her husband in his native Surinam, the South American country where she had gone to serve as a missionary. They immigrated to Canada seven years ago.

A report of gunshot late Friday afternoon led police to the neighbor's motor home where they found Levin, a semi-automatic .22-caliber rifle beside him, dead on a bunk in what "appeared to be an obvious suicide."

Bickerstaff said he felt that "if this religious thing had got to him (Levin) so much, then he'd gone hunting" for other victims.

Police then widened their search and later Friday found Evangelical Free Church pastor Reg Tomkinson, 59, and his wife, Grace, 56, both from England, murdered in the basement of their home.

Dear Abby

Perfect mother always is next door

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
 © Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Can a mother sue a neighbor for alienating her son's affection? I'm serious.

A neighbor woman has all but adopted our 14-year-old son, Rick. She is the mother of Rick's best friend, Bob. According to Rick, she is the "nearest lady," he's ever known. She "understands" him, lends a sympathetic ear to all his troubles, and she's let him know that her home is his home. Rick has spent many nights there. He'd live there if we'd let him.

At home Rick has chores to do, which he does grudgingly, but I understand he's constantly asking what he can do to help at Bob's house. At home, Rick is criticized and restricted when necessary, but at Bob's he's treated like a guest. Naturally, Rick thinks Bob's mother is the "perfect" mother, and he keeps asking me why I can't be more like her.

I'm not jealous, Abby, but I wonder if Bob's mother realizes how hard she's making it for me. Or could she be deliberately competing with me to feed her own ego?

In the meantime, how do I cope with this?

-DISTURBED IN VIRGINIA
DEAR ABBY: Before making any accusations, examine your own attitudes honestly. Do you make time to listen to Rick's troubles? Are you overly critical and restrictive? Are Rick's friends as welcome in your home as Bob's friends are in his?

If Bob's mother scores higher than you, perhaps you should take a page out of her book. Meanwhile, your son isn't the only adolescent who thinks another mom is "better" than his own. He's reacting normally to the guest treatment. Don't lose any sleep over it.

DEAR ABBY: My fiance and I recently attended a wedding at a very nice hall. In fact, my fiance was the best man.

All eyes were on a young woman who came wearing a pair of silver stretch pants that were so tight, she looked like all she was wearing was a coat of silver paint! She also wore a tight-fitting sweater and a tight white belt. She attended the ceremony as well as the reception and wedding dinner. Believe me, she was the talk of everyone there. She would have been appropriately dressed for a disco, but certainly not a wedding! My fiance and I are being married soon, and we want to make sure nobody attends our wedding in that kind of a getup. My question: Would it be proper to have printed on our wedding invitations, "Ladies, no pants, please" or "Ladies, semi-formal dress required"?

-TAKING NO CHANCES
DEAR TAKING: No. The only acceptable mention on a wedding invitation concerning dress is "Formal attire," "Informal attire" or "Dress, optional."

DEAR ABBY: I am 73. My wife is 65. She is a lovely little woman and we've been happily married for five years. (We're both second-time-arounders.)

She has a 40-year-old married son whose wife left him last year, so he came to live with us. I thought it was only temporary, but he has moved everything he owns over to our house, and it looks like he is dug in here for good.

He is a freeloader who expects his mother to cook him three meals a day, keep up his clothes and clean his room. He eats like a horse, doesn't furnish any of the food, has a nice car and expects his mother to keep him in gas part of the time. He works steady but we never see a penny.

I don't want to hurt his mother by asking her son to leave, but I have had it with this bum mooching free room and board! We have a nice little house, which I own. It's comfortable for two, but three's a crowd. Any advice?

-CROWDED
DEAR CROWDED: Talk it over with your wife and decide together how much longer her son should be allowed to stay. Then SHE — not you — should give him the news.

The McAuley home cares for girls at odds with the law

The girls are ages 13 to 18

BUHL — Her blonde hair curling around her pretty, pouting face, Marcie leans on the heavy table in the McAuley Girls Home. She is 16 — going on 35.
She and Jody are planning the week's menu for the home's five residents.
"Sunday, let's have something special. Let's have Eggs Benedict," Jody, 15, says, chewing a toothpick. She is dressed in a plaid shirt, levis and workboots. Marcie wears a red tube top, shorts and sandals.
"Yeeuch, I hate eggs," Marcie says.
"We'll need orange juice," Jody tells Elizabeth, a McAuley home mother. "Or, we could just get oranges. Like, you know what I did in jail? You just take 'em and squeeze 'em."

Residents of the McAuley Home, a center for troubled girls, learn responsibility and decision-making by helping to maintain the home, explained Marilyn All, director.
The girls plan the menus, do the cooking and cleaning up and other tasks. "We don't view chores as a way to keep the home clean," All said. "One thing these girls need more than anything is a routine. They fight against it, but they need order in their lives."

Girls aged 13 to 18 are placed at the McAuley Home by the juvenile court system. They may have been arrested for shoplifting, drunkenness or using drugs.
Many have been abused or neglected by their parents. Most come from families disturbed by divorce or death. Sexual abuse by fathers and stepfathers is "a very common problem among the girls we see," All said. "These girls are survivors, or they wouldn't be here."

They stand in for attention. They are promiscuous to win love. They pepper their speech with swear words and are never without a cigarette pack. But their ways of acting tough make their malveat all the more obvious.

The McAuley home takes care of girls needing professional help who cannot be placed in foster homes and need a more restrictive environment like the reformatory at St. Anthony, All said.

An eight-bedroom building, the home resembles a college dorm more than a reformatory. Each girl has her own room upstairs; downstairs is a kitchen and dining room and a spacious living room. All says the girls are never "locked in."

All tries to gear programs to fit individual needs. Each girl meets with All for individual counseling and weekly group sessions are held with two professional counselors from Sawtooth Counseling in Twin Falls.

The girls are encouraged to stay in school. Otherwise they may take jobs or study for high school equivalency tests.
In summer, exercise classes and camping and fishing excursions are held. The home is supervised by a 15-man board of volunteer directors, and often the directors sponsor activities for the girls.

As Jody and Marcie finish the menu, Carmen bounces in announcing, "We got off early." A Chicano girl, who just turned 14, speaks with a lively Mexican inflection. "We worked so haaaard today. You should have seen me, man."

For two days now, Carmen has been staying up at 4 a.m. to hot beds with other farmworkers. A slightly built girl, she changes into a T-shirt cut off just below the middle of her chest, further adding to her boyish appearance.
Carmen says she'll stay at McAuley until she's 18, when the girls reach adult status. "They can't put me no where cause no one will take me. I don't like foster homes cause I'd disappear fast."

The home's program consists of four levels. The girls work up from level one, where they have few privileges, to level four where they have many. Completing chores and attending group sessions move a girl up, and her progress is posted.

Jody, however, is on "deep freeze," below even level 1. She ran away recently — again — and wound up spending two weeks in a Blackfoot jail. She is held responsible for the cost of All's trip there to retrieve her and spankily offers to paint the house, as she is not allowed to have a job. She refers frequently to "when I was in jail," with a jaunty pride.

Suddenly, Leslie, 15, bursts from a room where she'd been conferring with All and her caseworker. Screaming a series of obscenities, she barrels through the house, pounding walls, slamming doors and sobbing. She crashes out the front door, running in bare feet.

All emerges, laughing weakly. The outbursts are not uncommon; they reflect the deep-seated fears Leslie feels.

The McAuley building was originally built as housing for the Buhl Catholic School nuns. When the school closed in 1971, Sister Rosemary Boessen lived there alone and started taking in teenage girls who needed a place to stay. Eventually, she and a staff set up a non-profit corporation and made McAuley a licensed foster home. Up to seven girls can stay there.

Sister Rosemary has since retired and other directors have run the home. Marilyn All, a former Red Cross family and crisis counselor, took over in May. The house also has two house mothers who stay with the girls 24 hours a day on alternate weeks. All is presently reviewing the home's pending walls.

"Our new approach is that a person has to learn to function in a group before she goes out on her own," All said. For example, all the girls go with Elizabeth to pick up June, 17, who's taking high school equivalency classes at the College of Southern Idaho.

Marcie, Jody, and Carmen pile into the home's van. Marcie and Jody "check" out the young men they pass; Carmen sings song from the radio: "Don't you worry about a thing." Marcie suddenly groans as if in agony, "OHHHHHH, that guy's got such a body."

When they pull into CSI, the girls stare transfixed. For Jane is chatting with a dark-haired GUY on the lawn. As she clambers aboard, they demand the details. "Oh, I met him in a class. He's Iranian," she giggled. "I HATE Iranians!" Marcie retorts. Jane just laughs, pleased with herself.

Many of the girls who come to the home are sexually active at an early age, All says. Yet "they know the physical facts, they don't know the feelings," she noted. Visits from boys are severely restricted, but some of the girls are on birth control pills, as arranged by their caseworker.

"What I'm trying to do is teach responsibility," All said. "The girls have not learned to make good choices... It's like they (the boys in town) prey on McAuley girls."

Mine funds class about environment

BOISE — The Cyprus Mines Corp. has awarded Boise State University a $23,000 grant to develop an "Environmental Awareness Training Program."

The program will be given to employees working at the company's proposed Thompson Creek mine near Challis.

Cyprus, a division of Amoco Minerals, plans to open a large open pit molybdenum mine in the spring of 1981. When in full operations, about 550 employees will receive the initial training.

The number of employees working for the new mine may double the population of Challis.

Plane downed; none injured

landing would be available until after an investigation.

Twin Falls Sheriff's officers responded to a call at 2:15 p.m. Officers said a pilot, Jim Opie, who was flying in company with the downed plane, reported the aircraft had gone down but that there were no injuries.

Women hurt in accident improving

TWIN FALLS — Two women in their 80s were in fair condition in Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Sunday following a one-vehicle accident Friday.

The two were taken to the hospital by ambulance after the pickup truck in which they were riding left the highway and overturned on U.S. Highway 2 near Hollister. They were returning to Twin Falls from a fishing trip about 4 p.m. at the time of the accident, officers said.

Idaho State Police Trooper Thomas Rusebmann said the driver, Irene Sykora, 69, of Twin Falls, lost control of the northbound vehicle about two miles north of Hollister.

Rusebmann identified the passengers as Katie Metz, 83, of Reelon, Wash., and Marie Huetner, 85, of Twin Falls.

Rookie qb lifts Miami past Lions
 By Unified Press International

Miami Coach Don Shula hopes this first impression will be lasting.

Rookie quarterback David Woodley of Louisiana State ran for one touchdown... and directed another scoring drive Sunday to give the Dolphins a 17-7 victory over the Detroit Lions in the exhibition opener for both teams.

Woodley, who last year alternated with Steve Emswiler at LSU, clinched the victory in his first pro appearance by guiding the Dolphins on an eight-play, 51-yard drive. He finished it off himself by circling left and for a touchdown from six yards out with 3:46 left in the game.

Woodley gave Miami a 7-0 lead in seven, lost by directing a 70-yard scoring march, capped by a 1-yard burst by fellow rookie Steve Glavinio. Uwe Von Schamann added a 25-yard field goal in the third quarter to make it 10-0 before Detroit's Rick Kane scored from a yard out.

The game marked the NFL debut of 1980's top draft choice Billy Sims of Oklahoma, but the running back only managed 11 yards on three carries in a performance limited to the first half.

The Dolphins' two top quarterbacks, Bob Griese and Don Stock, are engaged in a battle for the starting role this fall, but Griese saw no action Sunday and Stock played only in the first quarter, completing 5-of-10 passes for 49 yards.

Bob Avellini threw a 23-yard touchdown pass to Willie McClendon in the third period and set up another score with an 86-yard heave to Greg Tait. The rally that Chicago fans saw a 21-9 victory over the New York Jets in the exhibition opener for both clubs.

Avellini's surprise flip to a wide-open McClendon on a third and inches situation, spoiled an impressive NFL debut for the Jets' Johnny "Lam" Jones, who had been selected overall in the NFL draft.

Jones, who entered the game in the second period, set up all nine New York points with a peeping 47-yard pass reception at the Bears' 2 and a twisting 32-yard run to the Chicago 6 on an end-around.

mainly of finding which suit to play.

Alan: "This is particularly true in defense against contract. You must take today's hand. West has a normal opening lead of his fourth-best heart. It is fourth of the better of two four-card suits. Not that he would open a weak suit bid by dummy in any event."

Oswald: "East's king forces South's ace. South enters dummy with a diamond, leads a spade to his ten and west is in with the queen. At this time West can find the correct lead by simple application of the H in the acronym A.R.C.H.S."

Alan: "He asks himself: 'How can I beat this hand?' He looks at the cards and knows of the South hand. He has shown the ace of hearts, the king of spades (He would lead the king of spades if he had without that king), and a four- or five-card diamond suit. He can't lead a heart because he has a king and a queen. He can't lead a spade because he has a king and a queen. He can't lead a diamond because he has a king and a queen. He can't lead a club because he has a king and a queen. He can't lead a heart because he has a king and a queen. He can't lead a spade because he has a king and a queen.
