

Food prices soar

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Drought and heat have sharply increased wholesale food prices, and as a result consumers soon will be paying more at supermarkets, the government reports today.

That much was clear from new wholesale price figures. What it means for inflation overall was less clear as economists came up with widely differing opinions. Lawrence G. Currie, of Chase Econometrics said the rise in retail food prices will be substantial. By the end of 1981, he said, supermarket prices will be 20 percent higher than they were this past June.

The Labor Department said its index of producer prices for finished goods ready for retailers rose 1.7 percent from June to July — a 20 percent annual rate of 22.2 percent. That was the biggest jump since a 2 percent monthly rise in November of 1974 during the last recession.

Most of the latest increase came from wholesale food prices, which rose 3.8 percent. Food prices at intermediate stages of production jumped 3.2 percent, and at the farm or crude products level, 3 percent.

Analysts said these rising food production prices began with a number of factors, including tight credit for farmers, and were made worse by this summer's drought and heat wave.

Poultry prices jumped 23.5 percent in July as millions of chickens died in the heat. Beef and veal rose 7.4 percent at wholesale, pork 13.7 percent.

Labor Department economist John Lapping said these prices will show up in supermarkets in about a month.

"Consumer food prices will rise," said Charles Schultz, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers. "But we still expect the overall rate of inflation in the Consumer Price Index to slow down in the months ahead."

The administration believes this will occur as recently falling home mortgage rates show up rising CPI and slow its rise more than food prices accelerate it.

Alan Greenspan, Schultz's counterpart in the last Republican administration, said the rate of inflation in the overall consumer prices is likely to slow to an annual rate of 5 percent or less in coming months but later will increase.

Parvovirus has 'Bear' feeling down in the dumps, while 'Feathers' (inset) should remain healthy because of a vaccination received from his vet

Parvovirus vaccine in short supply

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Veterinarians in Twin Falls say the demand for parvovirus vaccine still exceeds the supply. Veterinarians who are able to obtain the vaccine quickly run out, and the supply is sporadic at best.

Dog owners, the veterinarians suggest, should keep in touch with their veterinarians, because the suppliers send what they can when they can.

All veterinarians are advising dog owners to obtain vaccine-tions for their pets, especially if they are in contact with other dogs or are in areas frequented by other pets, because the disease is a deadly one and it is here to stay. Two vaccinations are required two to three weeks apart.

At least two Twin Falls veterinarians have treated several cases of parvovirus. To date there have been no known deaths from the virus, but veterinarians say since the disease is known to be in the area, some animals have probably died without coming to the attention of veterinarians. Some have probably become ill and died before the owner gets the animal to the veterinarian, the doctors say, pointing out the nature of parvovirus is that it moves quickly and in a deadly manner.

Dr. Howard Ronk said his hospital has three dogs in quarantine currently and is treating them for the disease.

Dr. Robert F. Beede of Ketchum has prepared a lengthy report on canine parvovirus giving dog owners information on symptoms to watch for and steps to take.

He said there are actually two diseases from the same virus. One was the highly contagious enteritis that appeared in dogs in 1976, characterized by severe vomiting and diarrhea. The second was the sudden and unexpected death of seemingly healthy puppies. Dr. Beede said research indicated both diseases were caused by canine parvovirus.

Silver Creek trout farmer vows continued fight

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — Buhl trout farmer Ken-Ellis has lost another round in his bid to build trout farms on Silver Creek.

But the fight is far from over. After hearing oral arguments by attorneys for Ellis last month, Idaho Department of Water Resources Director Stephen Allred said Friday he will maintain his decision against Ellis' request for permission to build his trout farms.

Ellis is seeking to utilize all Silver Creek water in excess of the state's 74-cubic-foot-per-second minimum stream flow for two trout farms near Carey in Blaine County.

"I was expecting to lose that decision," Ellis' attorney Robert Weaver said of Allred's announcement. "I've already asked for a rehearing, but at the same time we'll seek all appellate remedies."

Weaver said a lawsuit will be filed in Ada County District Court against Allred and the DWR to "appeal the error" in his decision.

Allred said his decision to refuse Ellis' appeal was based on "essentially three items." He said effluent from Ellis' proposed trout farms would interfere with the state's prior water right because of "significant degradation to water quality."

Allred also said testimony from concerned citizens and the Idaho Fish and Game Department indicated that fish hatchery operation on Silver Creek would be against the public interest.

The third point Allred made in his refusal of Ellis' appeal regarded whether or not there would be adequate water for Ellis' to profitably operate the proposed trout farms after the 74 cfs requirement was preserved.

"It is up to the applicant to show the feasibility of the proposal, and this has not been done," Allred said.

Allred said Ellis has until Sept. 3 to submit an argument on why a rehearing should be granted. If a rehearing is granted, new evidence will be permitted from all participants of the original Silver Creek hearing held in Shoshone last year.

According to Weaver, the rehearing request will be made on two points: the impact of effluent from Ellis' proposed trout farms was inadequately documented and that there is enough water exceeding the 74 cfs minimum stream flow to successfully operate the farms. As DWR director, Allred will decide whether or not to grant the rehearing.

"That decision will be made according to what information they (Ellis' attorneys) submit regarding what points need to be reheard and what new evidence is available, along with the response from the other parties involved in the original hearings," Allred said.

Allred said he expects legal action by Ellis against the DWR following his decision against Ellis' oral arguments.

However, Weaver didn't know when he would file the lawsuit.

Sonar says right shape

Searchers may have found the Titanic

ABILENE, Texas (UPI) — Oilman Jack Grimm said Friday scientists and filmmakers must race against time to confirm they have found the ocean liner S.S. Titanic.

The "unsinkable" luxury liner sank 88 years ago in a canyon 12,000 feet below the Atlantic's surface.

Grimm, chief financier of the project, said he received word in a ship-to-shore telephone conversation with filmmaker Mike Harris of Tampa, Fla. that all indications are good.

The poker-playing oilman, renowned for financing expeditions to locate the Loch Ness Monster and Bigfoot, said a sonar image that "fits the right length" indicates the Titanic may be submerged in a long, narrow, and deep canyon.

"We've finally narrowed it down to a canyon — a box canyon 20 miles long, 2 miles wide and 300 feet deep. And, apparently, there is a very strong sonar image in the canyon."

"And we have been surveying in that canyon for two days and they are now setting transponders (radio beacons buoyed that all on the ocean floor) near the target, so we'll know what we're doing when we're cutting these sonar paths back and forth across the sonar target," he said. "Now we have another problem. There's bad weather and we're down to two days' fuel supply left, so we have to leave there within two days."

The S.S. Titanic on her ill-fated maiden voyage in 1912

Grimm added the ship had fuel supplies for only three days remaining.

Asked if efforts were under way to send food and fuel to the research ship, Grimm said that possibility had been explored.

"But just due to the deteriorating weather conditions and all the other factors combined, we're going to try to complete the work within the next 72 hours."

Grimm said the sonar images had been reduced to about one-second images, "which is about a three-quarter of a mile image we're getting on the ocean floor now. It's a detailed image."

Using television cameras, a 38-member crew on board the 175-foot research vessel, the H.J.W. Fay, hoped to confirm on Saturday the wreck is the Titanic.

Grimm said the canyon apparently created problems for the sonar, which was unable to detect the entire image of whatever it is lying in the lily, 12,000-foot-deep, 350-mile-off-the-Newfoundland coast.

The sonar image is reported near latitude 41.48 North and longitude 50.14 West, the last recorded coordinates given by a Titanic crewman on April 15, 1912, when the ship struck an iceberg at 11:40 p.m.

More than 1,500 people were dead within three hours, when the 882-foot-long liner — on her maiden voyage — New York from Southampton, England — disappeared into the numbing North Atlantic water in modern maritime history's worst disaster. More than 700 people survived.

If the ship is located and confirmed to be the Titanic, plans are to return sometime next summer, when the weather is calm again, to descend to the ocean floor and photograph it.

Using remote-controlled "robots," the expeditioners also hope to retrieve ship artifacts, including a legendary treasure trove in Antwerp diamonds valued at $200 million.

Volcano 'burps' ash

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — Volcanic Mount St. Helens erupted "just like a burp" Friday, spewing ash 15,000 feet into the air, forcing evacuation of a forest fire crew and triggering the "ash alert" in the town of Cougar.

A heavy cloud cover obscured the summit at the time of the eruption and prevented scientists from seeing whether a lava dome created by an Aug. 7 eruption was still there or was blown away.

There were no immediate reports of ash fall, however, and officials said they did not expect any because the ash apparently dissipated into steam.

"It seems just like a burp that happened about 2:45 p.m.," Jim Brady of the Federal Emergency Management Agency said.

The National Weather Service said winds were blowing to the southeast, and emergency agencies said the state's ash-weary communities probably would be spared from the gray grit this time.

"We aren't expecting any ash to fall anywhere in any significant amounts," Allen Hendricks of the state Department of Emergency Services said. "If ash does fall, it wouldn't even be noticed by residents. It's that light." Lois Livingston at the Cougar Store — eight miles southwest of the volcano's crater — said a fire crew and residents of the possibility of ash.

But there were no evacuation warnings or advisories posted for the town, she said.

Brady said both the Forest Service and the U.S. Geological Survey had personnel in the area of the volcano, but nobody was in or near the mile-wide crater at the time of eruption.

"The fire crew was in a difficult position," Barbara Johnson of the Forest Service said. "They felt they were probably closer than they should be."

She said there were no known injuries.

Geologists said the ash column rose to a height of 15,000 feet, then became primarily steam, quickly dropping to about 9,600 feet.

The University of Washington seismic research center reported a low-level harmonic tremor beginning at about 2:38 p.m. and subsiding around 3 p.m. It coincided with the ash and steam eruption. Harmonic tremors indicate the movement of molten rock inside the volcano.

Democrats must deal with Anderson

Pipeline wins BLM approval

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — The Bureau of Land Management Friday issued rights-of-way for a five-state, 3,172-mile liquid hydrocarbon pipeline that will bring production from the petroleum-rich western states to the northeastern United States to west Texas for processing or relaying eastward.

Acting New Mexico BLM director Larry Woodard said the project's Environmental Impact Statement, required by federal law, had been completed. He said the rapid handling of a major pipeline "never undertaken."

Although it is unusual for a BLM office in one state to issue rights-of-way for federal land in other states, Woodard said the BLM was so impressed with the project that it handled the matter that they allowed it to issue all the rights-of-way for the project.

JOHN ANDERSON...stealing voters?

NEW YORK—Calling the 1980 election a historic choice between two men, between two parties, President Jimmy Carter was engaging in a wishful little fantasy of his own. Carter may prefer to run against just Republican Ronald Reagan, but for many voters there is a third choice this year—Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill.

The independent presidential candidate was never mentioned from the podium in Madison Square Garden—but he casts a long shadow across Carter's campaign trail, and over his chances for victory in November.

Anderson is already a major factor in the politics of 1980, and most Democratic leaders have been complaining for months that in a three-way race he will hurt Carter more than Reagan. As the Democratic convention played itself out, Anderson was politicking furiously here, exploiting Democratic disunity, coining disaffected liberals and winning new support. Why does a once-obscure Republican congressman from Illinois pose such a threat to an incumbent Democratic president's hopes for a second term?

"Because he's right on the issues," sighed Rep. Louis Stokes, a black Democratic representative from Cleveland. Stokes, who came to the convention as a Kennedy man, says he'll support Carter—but he likes and respects Anderson.

On the convention floor, waiting for Jimmy Carter to make his acceptance speech last night, many Democrats tried to explain the Anderson factor.

"Some liberals have a lot of problems with Jimmy Carter," said Rep. Robert Drinan, D-Mass. "I don't know if the number is 10,000 or 10 million—that's the key question of 1980. Anderson offers them an alternative."

"He has been able to capture the imagination of many liberal Democrats by taking strong clear positions on energy, the economy, civil liberties and civil rights," said former Sen. John Tunney of California.

"Anderson is a bright and able guy," said Colorado Gov. Richard Lamm. "He splits the national vote. Carter is so weak that people are looking for someone else. The know-nothing vote goes to Reagan. It won't make a difference in Colorado because Reagan will carry my state, but he could be the determining factor in states like Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York and New Jersey."

Gov. Brendan Byrne of New Jersey agreed that Anderson is a serious threat.

"He's got some ability and he's got David Garth," Byrne said, referring to Anderson's media consultant. "Garth took me from nowhere and got me elected in 1973 and 1977," Byrne said. "He could do the same for Anderson. He's a good campaign merchandiser."

Anderson was, in fact, merchandising himself to Kennedy supporters disappointed with the outcome of the convention.

"Thirteen black Kennedy delegates from New Jersey met with Anderson at his invitation in his suite in the Carlyle Hotel just hours before Carter addressed the convention."

"He told us that blacks gave Carter 95 percent of their vote and never got anything back for it," said Sharpe James, a Newark city councilman who led the delegates to the meeting with Anderson. "We asked him to put his proposals in writing and we'd look at them, but we also wanted to hear what Carter had to say about jobs."

Anderson may not have "sold" himself to James, not yet, but he picked up the support this week of at least one well-known liberal Democratic Party warhorse, Washington attorney Joseph Rauh, former president of the Americans for Democratic Action. And others were publicly flirting with him. Anderson met with Peter Flaherty, former mayor of Pittsburgh and the Democratic nominee for a U.S. Senate seat in Pennsylvania; with Rep. Christopher Dodd, the Democratic Senate candidate in Connecticut; and with New Jersey State Senator Matthew Feldman, former president of the state Senate.

"We'll be announcing some endorsements from members of Congress next week," Garth said.

Saturday briefing

Kansas braces for violence

INDEPENDENCE, Kan. (UPI) — Two days of street fighting between black and white youths had police in this rural Kansas community braced for additional violence Friday.

"We don't have anything that's a riot situation here," said Lee Byrnum, assistant police chief. "It appears to be in the blossoming stage now. This has been building for three days."

Authorities Friday intensified patrols in the city's central business district, where the fights have been the past several days.

Bynum said authorities do not know what touched off the confrontation between the groups of males, described as between 17 and 22 years of age.

Muskie nearly resigned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Edmund Muskie seriously considered resigning last week because he was not informed about a shift in American military policy, NBC nightly news reported Friday.

According to some of Muskie aides, the network said, "The secretary felt he was the victim of a power play by National Security Advisor Zbigniew Brzezinski or of White House mismanagement."

If Muskie did resign, he would be the second secretary of state to leave within three months, jeopardizing the president's chance for reappointment and reelection.

His only hope in his struggle with Brzezinski for control of American foreign policy, the report concluded, is "the implied threat... that he will quit the next time he is cut out of a major decision."

'No mom, I'm not dead'

DENVER (UPI) — Airman John L. Amrault had to rush out of his class at Lowry Air Force Base to telephone his parents and tell them from making preparations for his funeral.

On Wednesday night someone telephoned Amrault's parents to say their son had been injured in a truck accident at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

About 45 minutes later, the caller called back and said their son had died.

Peter Amrault called a local funeral home to make arrangements and placed an obituary notice in the local paper. His parents, stationed at Gunter Air Force Base in Montgomery, Ala.

Noyes, remembering other false death reports from Lackland, telephoned and learned John Amrault was alive. "I never want to go through that again," Peter Amrault said. "I hope they catch whoever that was that called us and hang him."

Bonnie is newest hurricane

MIAMI (UPI) — Bonnie became the season's second hurricane Friday, but it turned north on a course that would keep it far away from any land in the Western Hemisphere.

The National Weather Service reported late Friday night that the storm changing north in the mid-Atlantic had developed an eye and its sustained winds had built up to 65 mph.

Hurricane Bonnie was expected to increase in strength and continue its due-north course through Saturday, the center said.

Bonus for sailors rejected

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — The 6,000 Norfolk-based sailors who had been counting on $300 bonuses for a tough nine-month cruise, which sank 127 years ago about 90 miles south of the North Pole during a search for a missing explorer, has been found, a research group said Friday.

Expedition leader Dr. Joseph MacInnis said the Bredsdalene, one of several ships sent to find polar explorer Sir John Franklin, was found one mile off Beechey Island. He said there were no plans to raise it from its watery grave.

Franklin vanished in 1845 while trying to find the Northwest Passage, a quick northerly route from Europe to Asia. First traces of his winter quarters were found on Beechey Island in 1851 and in 1859 his skeleton was found on King William's Island.

Sunken ship found below ice

TORONTO (UPI) — The nearly-intact wreckage of the HMS Bredsdalene, which sank 127 years ago about 90 miles south of the North Pole during a search for a missing explorer, has been found, a research group said Friday.

Expedition leader Dr. Joseph MacInnis said the Bredsdalene, one of several ships sent to find polar explorer Sir John Franklin, was found one mile off Beechey Island. He said there were no plans to raise it from its watery grave.

Bani-Sadr helicopter crashes

An Iranian army helicopter carrying President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr for a tour of the Iraq border crashed but Bani-Sadr escaped injury, Tehran Radio reported late Friday.

The president was visiting areas Thursday night where there have been recent clashes between Iraqi and Iranian troops, and the helicopter, which was flying low, underwent technical problems, the pilot lost control and the craft hit the ground, the radio said.

Parvovirus

Dogs with parvoviral enteritis usually stop eating and act depressed 12 to 24 hours before they show other indications of disease. Vomiting usually occurs next, followed by diarrhea which may become bloody. Most dogs have a fever and often the blood count drops. The veterinarian said young dogs are most often severely affected, but death can occur in dogs of all ages.

Dr. Beede said there are over a billion infectious virions in a diarrheic stool. A susceptible dog can become infected by ingesting less than one-thousandth of a gram of infected fecal material. The virus can also be transmitted from place to place on the feet or hair of infected dogs or by contaminated cages, shoes or other objects.

He advises vaccinations for female dogs prior to breeding to protect puppies before birth and during the first few weeks of life. Pups can be vaccinated at six weeks of age if the mothers provide little or no maternal antibodies. Pups born to mothers that have recovered from infection do not respond to vaccine for 14 to 16 weeks, he said.

Dr. Beede added it appears the parvovirus is here-to stay and will take its place along with distemper and rabies as a continuing immunization for dogs.

Baker Institute's Research Laboratory for Disease of Dogs has researched the virus and was among the first to isolate and identify it. Dr. Beede said the institute is supported by voluntary contributions. Dog owners as well as those in the veterinary medical field and kennel owners may contribute to the beneficial work of the institute.

All dogs being entered in the Twin Falls County Fair dog show must have been vaccinated. Naomi Shouse, fair business manager, said Friday this may cut down the size of the show to some extent if dog owners are unable to obtain vaccinations by entry deadline.

The said some 4-H club leaders have objected to the ruling, but the fair board feels it would be better to have fewer dogs than to have some show at the fair that could be carrying the disease to others. Some 4-H club leaders have complained because of the added cost to the young exhibitors, but Shouse said these youngsters love their pets and if they plan to show them, they should protect them against the dangers of parvovirus.

Oswald family feuds

DALLAS (UPI) — The widow of Lee Harvey Oswald, wanting to spare her "more and more" distressed disoriented President John F. Kennedy's assassination, vowed Friday to battle Oswald's brother for the right to have the body dug up and examined.

Sources told UPI Marina Oswald Porter was resolute and firm in her intention to press the legal battle at Rose Hill Burial Park in Fort Worth, Texas, and rush it to Dallas for autopsy, based on permission granted by Mrs. Porter acting as next-of-kin.

But minutes before the close of business Thursday, Robert Oswald of Wichita Falls, Texas, obtained a temporary restraining order, pending a court hearing next Friday, from District Judge James Wright.

"The purpose of disinterment is solely for the publicity that they will individually receive and from the resulting financial gain," Oswald said in his suit. He said an autopsy of his brother's body would cause him "grave mental anguish."

Dallas attorney Jerry M. Pittman said the order was a disappointment, but conceded the authority of a widow's wishes was greater than that of a brother.

Pittman represents British attorney and author Michael Eddowes, who contends there is "powerful and persuasive evidence" Oswald was replaced by a Soviet agent during his three-year detour to Russia beginning in 1959.

Eddowes cites disparities between medical records and other official accounts of the young man who entered the Marine Corps at the age of 17 and the man arrested in Dallas hours after Kennedy was shot Nov. 23, 1963, and apparent FBI nervousness over Oswald being replaced by a Russian " sleeper agent."

"I wonder why Oswald's relatives — his mother and brother — don't grab at the slightest chance of having their son proved innocent for the benefit of themselves and their own children," Eddowes said Friday. "I haven't a clue why the restraining order was sought."

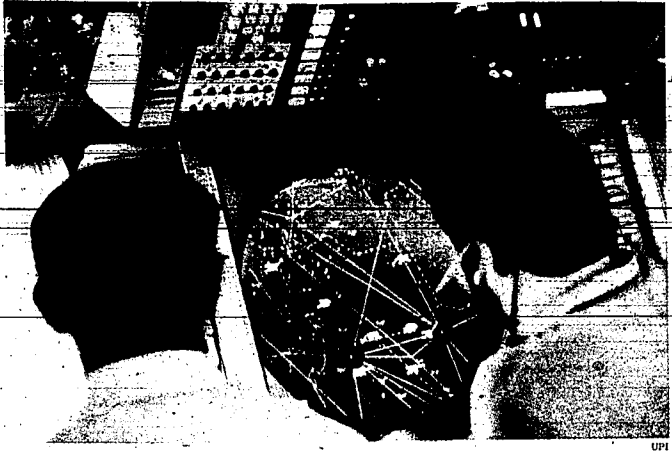

The suit pitted Oswald's brother against his widow for the first time. It asked $100,000 damages each from Mrs. Porter; Charles M. Petty, chief medical examiner for Dallas County; Dallas County Judge Gary Weber and Rose Hill Burial Park if the body were exhumed.

The suit pitted Oswald's brother against Marina Wednesday night, but she remained steadfast then — and now — in her belief the body should be examined and identified.

In a statement to UPI, Marina said she had no personal doubt about the body's identity.

"Through the years, more and more mystery surrounds the assassination," she said. "So if it is in my power to put to rest some speculation, I would rather face the task myself instead of putting the burden on my children in the future."

Dr. Clyde C. Snow, one of the medical experts on the autopsy team, said he could "not totally exclude" the possibility of an Oswald impostor. He said "disturbance" was in the public interest.

An investigation is looking into air traffic radar breakdowns and near-misses of planes. Lies on breakdown reports?

FAA blasted for radar faults

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Air traffic controllers charged Friday the Federal Aviation Administration does not truthfully report features in their radar air traffic control computers.

"The FAA not only plays down equipment failures as not being significant, they continually put off any efforts to expedite the replacement of the antiquated computerized equipment with state of the art equipment," Dominic V. Torchia, a regional vice-president for the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, said in a statement given to a House subcommittee Friday.

"As we have found so often in the past, the FAA was fully unprepared to cope with the tremendous increase in the amount of traffic and more importantly did not properly prepare nor purchase an adequate support system."

"Remember safety is not measured by the number of people that are killed, but by the reliability of a system and the number of people that system safely accommodates," he said in the statement.

The first witness before the committee, the head of the group representing specialists who work with the primary "narrow band" computers, said he was alarmed at the number of breakdowns and what he called the inaction of the FAA.

"Over the past few years, we have become increasingly anxious, angry and frustrated concerning computer and other systems outages," said Howard E. Johannsen, president of the Professional Airways Systems Specialists.

"Our anxiety stems from our knowledgeable recognition of the profound dangers to aviation of the present situation, dangers which are systematically concealed by the FAA," Johannsen told the congressional subcommittee on Government Activities and Transportation.

The two-day hearing was scheduled after reports of breakdowns in the computer at the Oakland Air Route Traffic Control Center at Fremont, Calif. Officials said between May 1 and July 20, the computer broke down 12 times, forcing air traffic controllers to revert to an outdated radar system.

The 1950s-era backup system, called "broad band," does not automatically provide data on the altitude, speed and direction of aircraft as the primary system does.

"The broad band system is about as reliable a backup system to narrow band as two tin cans are to a telephone," Johannsen said.

"Why must we as the most scientifically advanced nation in the world, wall and pray that the FAA will somehow, some way and somewhere find a solution to our problems?"

The chairman of the subcommittee, Rep. John Burton, D-Calif., said in an opening statement the problem of computer failure is creating danger in the nation's crowded air corridors.

"I say there is a problem, and possible disaster, because the primary computers are malfunctioning all over the country," Burton said. "Indeed, there are a few minutes during a breakdown when the planes are flying blind and the controllers are scrambling to re-identify flight patterns, speed and altitude, yet the FAA still refuses to admit a problem," Burton said.

Airline near-misses tied to bad radar

FREMONT, Calif. (UPI) — At least 12 "critical" near-misses occurred in the nation's crowded air corridors last year.

In every case, say Federal Aviation Administration investigators, mere "chance" reports increased the risk of an airplane collision.

And at the 20 regional air traffic control centers across the nation, computers designed to prevent planes from flying into each other broke down during 1979 a total of 861 times for a minute or longer.

In each instance, air traffic controllers were forced to revert to the 1950s-era radar system regarded by many in the business as inadequate.

FAA investigators in Washington, D.C., said no statistics were at hand to show how many of those "critical" incidents occurred during the computer outages.

Computers have failed 10 times in the last two months at the Oakland center, the latest a 10-minute breakdown early Wednesday.

But computer failures are not confined to the Oakland center and, in fact, are more frequent elsewhere among the FAA's 20 main Air Route Traffic Control Centers (ARTCC) that guide all aircraft not within 50 miles of an airport.

The most outages in 1979 — 68 — were reported at the New York, New York, ARTCC and the fewest were reported at Los Angeles, with 26 FAA computer analysis in Washington said.

The number of outages of 1 minute or longer reported at the other centers were: Seattle 62, Boston and Cleveland 49 each, Salt Lake City 48, Chicago 46, Minneapolis 47, Atlanta and Miami 46 each, Kansas City 45, Denver 44, Washington 41, Houston 39, Indianapolis 39, New York 37, Memphis, Tenn., 35, Oakland, Calif., and Albuquerque, N.M., 31 each, and Jacksonville, Fla., 30.

When the computers fail, controllers are forced to use a Korean War-era system that is less precise and provides less information than the primary system. Controllers say the problem is compounded because many in their ranks are relatively new to the field and are not familiar with the old system.

"The transition is the thing that's exceedingly difficult, especially if you're busy," one veteran controller told UPI. "It gets to be really chaotic. During that period of time, it's easy to misidentify or lose an airplane. It's tough."

In the worst cases, controllers have what they call a "deal," a situation when two planes come closer together than dictated by the FAA's standard separation procedure — 5 miles horizontally below 29,000 feet, and 1,000 feet vertically and 3 miles horizontally above 29,000 feet. Around airports, the requirements are stricter.

"In cases where a 'deal' leads to a near-collision, air traffic controllers or pilots are required to file reports to the FAA," he said.

"A near-miss is whatever a pilot or anyone else reporting it calls a near-miss," said Al Garvis, regional FAA spokesman in Los Angeles. "A near-miss could be anything. It's basically a judgment thing."

In California alone, there were 119 "near-midair collision incidents" reported filed with the FAA last year, 26 said to have been "critical" — "a situation where collision avoidance was due to chance rather than an act on the part of the pilots," according to the FAA definition.

The FAA said of the total 539 "near-midair collision incidents" reports filed for the nation in 1979, 128 were "critical" and 310 were "potential" — meaning the pilots were forced to take evasive action to avoid a collision.

At the Oakland center, which guides all U.S. traffic over northern California, Nevada and over the Pacific, halfway to Hawaii, controllers said during one computer outage July 11, they dealt with three near-misses in the same two-hour period.

Each was considered dangerous enough by the controllers to file official incident reports.

In one, controllers said, an Air California Boeing 737 came too close to three Air Force F106 jets flying in formation. In another, a controller ordered an Air Force F106 pilot to fire in the suburbs to miss hitting an ascending American Airlines Boeing 727.

Roger Johnston, the Oakland center's FAA spokesman, said each incident was investigated and none was found to be dangerous. Some controllers at the center did not agree.

$1 million stolen. Brinks guard drives off rich

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Brinks, Inc., guard stole an armored truck at San Francisco International Airport Friday and drove to a nearby hotel where he commandeered a car and sped away with more than $1 million, the FBI said.

FBI agents identified the alleged thief as George Bosque, 25, and a witness said he was seen in that 1975 Plymouth-Volant taken from an employee at the Hilton Airport Hotel a half mile away.

A Brinks spokesman said "in excess of $1 million" had been in the truck. An FBI spokesman would only say the thief got "a substantial sum of currency."

Agents said the money had arrived at the airport from Honolulu. They said it was Federal Reserve cash.

The getaway car was later recovered in a parking lot at the Serramonte shopping center north of the airport in Daly City.

Authorities said they put out an all-points bulletin for Bosque's 1971 Oldsmobile Cutlass with a California license of 535CMT.

Police said Bosque and the driver had arrived at the airport to make a routine cash transfer about 7 a.m. They said that while the driver was away from the truck, Bosque drove off.

"FBI agents said Bosque, armed with a pistol, accosted a hotel employee and took her car. The woman was unharmed."

Macy said Bosque had just seen traveling toward Millbrae, just west of the airport.

None of the loot was found in the Plymouth, which had been parked by the Serramonte.

"An FBI spokesman described the loot as 'good money, unfortunately.'"

Mob bosses sentenced to prison

FREEDHOLD, N.J. (UPI) — Five federal organized crime figures were sentenced Friday to prison terms ranging from 2 1/2 to 32 years by a judge who said he wanted to "put an end" to the activities of the Vito Genovese crime family in New Jersey.

Superior Court Judge Michael Imbriani said there was "no doubt in either his mind or the minds of the jurors that 'there is a secret criminal organization in New Jersey' engaged in extortion, loan-sharking and gambling that has 'ties to New York, Nevada and Florida.'"

The judge, noting all the defendants presented letters from their neighbors attesting to their good characters,

In urging the judge to impose maximum prison terms, deputy state attorney General Julian Wilsey told the judge, "These defendants represent a cancer in our society."

Imbriani said he decided on each sentence on the basis of deterrent effects and the need to protect the public by isolating the defendants.

"I have seen little or nothing to suggest these defendants could be rehabilitated," he said, noting that most of them have similar prior convictions dating as far back as the late 1940s.

The judge, noting all the defendants presented letters from their neighbors attesting to their good characters, said they "lived two lives, like Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

He said one was a normal life, the other "sinister, evil and corrupt."

Andrew Gerardo, 48, of Newark, described by prosecutors as the acting boss of the Genovese crime family in northern New Jersey, was sentenced to a prison term of 9 1/2 to 14 years and fined $4,000 for his conspiracy and gambling conviction.

Wilsey said Gerardo was the "acting heir" to 90-year-old crime boss Ruggiero, "Richie the Boot" Bolardo, who was severed from the trial because of his advanced age and poor health.

Wilsey said Gerardo insulates himself from the day-to-day activities of the syndicate but was in charge of its policy and overall operation.

James Vito Montemarano drew the stiffest sentence — 22 1/2 to 32 years in prison and a $100,000 fine — for his conviction on conspiracy, extortion and loan-sharking charges.

Couples switch babies

MOREHEAD, Ky. (UPI) — Blood tests Friday confirmed two couples' suspicions that their newborn babies had been switched in a hospital mix-up.

The babies, both born July 28 at St. Claire's Medical Center in Morehead, were assigned to the wrong parents and brought to the wrong homes Aug. 1.

On Aug. 8, one of the couples, who asked not to be identified, noticed that their child's hospital bracelet identified him as "Baby Boy Jackson," and the other couple, David and Peggy Jackson, noticed their baby was identified with the first couple's name.

The hospital ordered special blood tests performed at the Kentucky Medical Center in Lexington, and both families have waited since Monday for the results.

"The tests are conclusive," said a hospital administrator.

Jackson, 17, and his 16-year-old wife, of Owingsville, Ky., and the other couple met with hospital officials to hear the test results and exchange the babies, who look alike.

Oil tank fire injures 2

HONOLULU (UPI) — A 55,000-barrel gasoline storage tank on the Honolulu waterfront exploded and burned Friday, critically injuring two men and sending a dense cloud of black smoke over downtown Honolulu.

"There were gasoline fumes everywhere," said Clyde Sexton, away from the tank. "You could see it in the air. Then everything went boom and the flames shot up."

The blaze spread quickly to an adjacent Shell Oil Co. warehouse where the two men were injured, but was kept from spreading to about 10 other storage tanks in the area.

Twelve firefighters and a transfer team of the fire and the adjacent storage tanks for more than three hours as flames climbed 50 feet in the air and black smoke billowed over the harbor and downtown areas.

The nearby Nimitz Highway, the main route from Honolulu International Airport to downtown Honolulu, and Walkie, was closed by the blaze.

Chevron Oil Company's Tom Walter said the company's tank was half full of unleaded gasoline when the explosion and fire occurred.

A Chevron worker earlier reported a missing was later found aboard a 600-foot oil tanker ship, one of two that fled the Pier 30 area with Coast Guard help when the tank exploded in flames.

Two firefighters were hurt when they were taken to St. Francis Hospital, where they were later reported in satisfactory condition. A television cameraman was also treated.

"As soon as it happened, everything shook," said Mr. Sexton. "We just ran out. We didn't want to get hurt. One person stayed behind to report the fire, and then he ran."

The Coast Guard said a small amount of fuel spilled into the harbor when the tanker Cielo Droma quickly terminated a transfer operation when the explosion rocked the area. With Coast Guard help, the Cielo Droma and another tanker, the Santa Paula, fled the pier.

The two injured Shell Oil Co. employees were both reported in critical condition by a Queen's Medical Center spokesman.

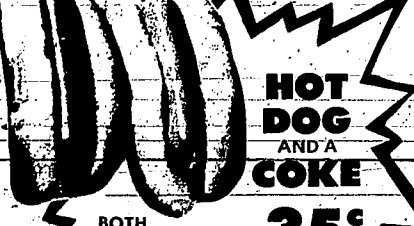

Several cars parked in the tank farm area were destroyed in the early minutes of the fire.

Hickam Air Force Base Fire Chief Frank Cox said the initial explosion blew the lid off the Chevron gasoline storage tank.

HUBERT WHO?

Anyone can make a slip of the lip. Even President Carter and Thursday, in New York, he did. Wrapping up the Democratic National Convention with a paeon to party heroes of the past subjected to the late Sen. Hubert Humphrey as "a big-hearted man who should have been president and would have been one of the greatest presidents of all time" — Hubert Horatio Hombrower? Then, red-faced — "er, Humphrey." C.S. Forester would have appreciated the plug.

HE'LL QUOTE YOU

Ed Koch, mayor of a city perennially flirting with bankruptcy, told New Yorkers to behave themselves during the Democratic National Convention, and the toll delegates to Littleton, Colo., didn't "Die" work? Says Kentucky delegate Maurice Clark Aloop, "The people here were wonderful ... If New York has problems, it's up to all the rest of us to help them, whatever it is." Since when? It takes a federal money, that should have Koch whistling all the way to Washington.

ICECREAMSCAM

State Sen. Lucas DeKoster argued against Iowa's new gift and bribery law from the outset — said all it would do is create excess paperwork — but since it passed he now feels he should live by its letter. — It requires lawmakers to report freebies — even the insignificant ones — so DeKoster did. He owned up to accepting two dishes of homemade ice cream and two glasses of cranberry juice. Says he, "It was all I got last month."

Former President Gerald Ford and wife Betty became grandparents early Friday when daughter Susan gave birth to a daughter of her own at Georgetown University Hospital in Washington. The baby — the Ford's first granddaughter — weighed in at 6 pounds, 3 ounces. Susan is the wife of former Secret Service agent Charles Vance. They've named their new daughter Tyne Mary.

RECORD BUSINESS

Mother Nature has been racking up records in Texas this summer as though she worked for the Guinness book — the longest stretch of 100-plus days since 1954, the hottest July ever, with an average high of 105.3 degrees, and record highs in Dallas, on June 28 and 27, of 113 degrees. Says Fort Worth meteorologist Kermit Kearny, "We've looked so many records this summer, what's newsworthy is when we don't break records" which, in itself, is something of a record.

He's the world's windmill king

By CHARLES HILLINGER © The Los Angeles Times

STOCKTON, Calif. — "I cut my teeth on these suckers," shouted Frank Medina over the raucous symphony of squawk, squeaking, spinning windmills.

Medina, 73, calls himself "King of the Windmills" and has 102 of them in his front yard to prove it. "I have been nuts about windmills since I was a kid. I love to hear them go around, I love to sit and watch them spin," said Medina.

"I started collecting them eight years ago. This is just the beginning. I hope to fill my 20 acres with at least 2,000 windmills before I die."

Medina's life hasn't always been filled with windmills.

"I've worked my butt off ballin' 'em for 68 years," he explained. "Now I'm takin' it easy watching windmills."

Median runs ads in rural papers throughout the Midwest looking for more windmills.

"It ain't a cheap hobby," he confided. "I've spent over $50,000 buying up the old windmills you see here. But it's worth it. It gives people something to talk about."

"People drive by my place out here in the country and can't believe their eyes. "Never again will they see anything like this."

Medina was once mentioned in "Ripley's Believe It or Not," but not for his windmills — for his teeth. The old hay baller has all of his own teeth, including his wisdom teeth, has never had a cavity and has never been to a dentist.

He attributes this marvel to "exercising my teeth by squeezing them together drinking a gallon of milk a day, chewing on bones and never smoking."

His oldest windmill is 106 years old. Most of the others are out of the 1920s and 1930s. Many are rigged with bullet holes. All are on stub towers.

"Farmers used to buy them on stub towers," said Medina. "The farmers would put on legs to whatever height they desired."

Some windmills are bent, rusted and beat up when he buys them. Some are in tip-top shape. None is newer than 40 years. Just about every windmill on his front lawn has a bird's nest.

"Most of the time I keep these suckers tied down so they don't spin. I untie them on special occasions. I don't want them to wear themselves out," said Medina.

Verrill Fell, 76, of Wellington, Nev., stopped by Medina's house during the interview to look over the collection. "Are ya usin' all the water you're pumpin'?" asked Fell with a quizzical look.

Clerk confuses robber; he flees

CERES, Calif. (UPI) — An armed robbery was thwarted by a market clerk who told a would-be holdup man that she couldn't open the cash register unless he bought something. Ceres police reported Friday.

Arnold Santos Garcia, 22, was arrested Thursday after attempting to rob the Whitmore Market.

Police investigators said Garcia, who also was charged with being an ex-felon possessing a weapon, entered the market and placed a paper bag in front of clerk Grace Lau. Thinking Garcia was returning merchandise,

Mrs. Lau picked up the bag and peeked inside.

Garcia then threatened Mrs. Lau with a knife and demanded money. But the clerk said she couldn't give Garcia any money until he bought something. She explained that she couldn't open the cash drawer without pushing a "sales" button.

The confused robber again demanded money and Mrs. Lau again repeated her understanding of how a cash register works.

A frustrated Garcia pulled two pennies from his pocket, tossed them on the counter and demanded change.

Again Mrs. Lau said Garcia had to purchase something before she could hit the proper button to open the cash drawer. Garcia then tried to buy a stick of gum, but Mrs. Lau informed him that gum costs 3 cents these days.

Police said Mrs. Lau suddenly remembered that one button on the cash register did work in situations like she faced. She reached over and pressed the audible burglar alarm. Garcia fled on foot and was later arrested after police recognized a description of the robbers getaway car.

Garcia is being held in lieu of $10,000 bail.

Pregnancy helps send cat to Hollywood

SAUK RAPIDS, Minn. (UPI) — Seymour the cat, a feline with a habit of being in the wrong place at the wrong time, is going to Hollywood.

And if Seymour is lucky, he'll be the mascot for a cat food.

Iris Johnson, Sauk Rapids entered two of her cats in a contest last winter sponsored by Meow Mix to find a new cat to appear on the company's television commercials.

Neither she nor her husband, Earl, thought much about it until a telephone call in July. Mrs. Johnson's cat was one of three nationwide finalists and she and her husband — and the cat — would be flown to Hollywood for a meow test.

There was only one problem. They had to find a substitute cat.

She had filled out the names of two female barn cats, Hazel and Febra.

"Hazel has kittens about as often as she can have them," Mrs. Johnson said. "And she's just had a litter. And Febra is about to pop with one herself."

So the Johnsons searched for a substitute, since the cat food firm said any cat would do.

They thought of Seymour, owned by the Johnsons' son and daughter-in-law, Diana and Ginger Johnson, Saratol.

The 8-year-old Seymour is all-white, with one of his front paws in a cast as a result of a confrontation with a trap that broke three toes. He also spent time in the fluff cycle of a clothes dryer. Mrs. Johnson said, and was not too happy about it.

But Mrs. Johnson noted he won't get pregnant and he's got a much louder meow, — especially when anyone approaches his broken toe.

Hirohito honors war dead

TOKYO, Japan (UPI) — Emperor Hirohito led Japan Friday in observing the anniversary of the end of World War II, saying his "heart still pains" from the wartime suffering. Temple bells tolled and sirens wailed at noon, marking the moment of Japan's capitulation 35 years ago. One minute of silent prayer for the 3.1 million war dead followed.

In a ceremony at Tokyo's Martial Arts (Budokan) Hall, Hirohito, accompanied by Empress Nagako, bowed before an altar festooned with thousands of white and yellow chrysanthemums.

"My heart still pains when I think of the great number of soldiers and people who perished in the war and of their families," the slender, bespectacled emperor, now 78, said.

Hirohito, Japan's longest reigning monarch, then called on his people to join him in prayer "for peace for the world and national development."

It was 35 years ago, on Aug. 15, 1945, that the emperor went on nationwide radio and, in a barely audible voice, told his country the war was over.

More than 6,000 people, representing the families of the war dead, and 1,000 officials attended this year's ceremony.

Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki expressed "heart-felt sympathy" to the families and said:

"It is our duty to learn a lesson from the war and devote ourselves to the establishment of world peace and the nation's further development."

This year's ceremony occurred against the backdrop of stepped-up Japanese defense spending to counter a buildup in Soviet military strength in the Far East.

The ceremony also coincided with the start of two weeks of war games on the northernmost island of Hokkaido.

Giant toads move north from Miami

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — A species of giant toad, once believed confined to the Miami area, has spread to Tampa, and a University of Florida zoology professor says the poisonous amphibians may move even farther north.

"Thirty years ago nobody thought they could survive north or west of Miami," Mark Wygoda, who is trying to determine how far north the toads will advance, said Friday. "But now, they are establishing in Tampa and are spreading into the Everglades."

Wygoda is doing his doctoral dissertation on what temperatures the big toads — known scientifically as Bufo marinus — prefer and how long they can live away from water.

"By knowing what temperatures they prefer and how fast they lose water through their skin by evaporation, I could predict how far they can live away from a lake or other water sources," Wygoda said.

The huge toads, sometimes reaching 4 inches in length, pose no threat to humans unless they are eaten. But they may be devastating the population of smaller native southern toads.

Wygoda said Bufo marinus, a native of Central and South America, has no known natural predators. The giant toad first found its way into Florida about 3 years ago while being shipped to animal dealers in Miami.

According to Wygoda, a crate containing the toads broke open on a runway at the Miami International Airport in the early 1950s. The toads made a dash for nearby canals, where their population proliferated.

In his experiments in Gainesville, Wygoda monitors the toads' body temperature during a 24-hour period in a 45-degree controlled environment.

"I force-feed the toad a radio-signal transmitter. I then place it in a sand-filled box that is 45 degrees (Fahrenheit) on one side, and then gradually get warmer on the other side reaching 100 degrees due to electrical heating tape placed close together that warms the sand," he said.

A regular AM-FM radio receives the transmitter signals. Every 15 minutes a tape recorder comes on and records beeping signals coming from the transmitter inside the toad.

"The warmer the toad's body temperature, the faster the beeping signal through the transmitter," he added.

Pipe puffing proclivity produces plenty pleasure

Question arises as to how long a pipe smoker can keep the tobacco in his pipe bowl glowing before it dies out. The 100, has been tested, and recorded. Pipe smokers from Iowa, Nebraska and Michigan got together recently in a slow-smoke competition. One Bob Ricker, Jr., of Clarfco, Iowa, managed to puff away for 92 minutes 34 seconds. Long time to keep a pipe burning.

But after troops popularized ski touring during World War I, rescuers moved so fast over the snow they left the dogs behind.

There's something in your skin that works a little bit like starch. A tough protein called collagen. Women's skin contains less of it than men's. And both women and men produce less of it as they age. The medicines say this is why older women have thinner skin than older men. And why they seem to show their years more readily. Their skin has less support than men's.

1980 Playmate of the Year

Playmate murdered

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The 1980 Playboy Playmate of the year, a budding movie star living a "Hollywood fairy tale," was killed by a shotgun blast triggered by her estranged husband.

The man then turned the gun on himself, police said Friday.

The nude bodies of Dorothy Stratten, 26, and Paul Snider, 29, were found on a bed late Thursday by friends. The shotgun lay between them.

Friends of the couple said he was distraught over her nude picture layout in the magazine. She said that brought her to the attention of movie producers.

Police said Miss Stratten had gone to Snider's home to discuss their separation. Miss Stratten was shot in the face with a 12-gauge shotgun. Snider then apparently turned the gun on himself.

She had small parts in "Americanah," and "Skateboard, U.S.A.," and had just completed her first feature role, in "They—All Laughed," which stars Audrey Hepburn.

"She was a beautiful and talented woman as a Playmate and with a film and television career of increasing importance," Playboy publisher Hugh Hefner said in a statement Friday.

Miss Stratten also had roles in the Canadian production "Autumn Born" and "Galaxina," a space comedy in which she played the most perfect rebel ever built.

The hazel-eyed blonde was discovered in her native Vancouver, British Columbia by Playboy photographers during the magazine's 15th anniversary talent hunt in 1973. She was flown to Los Angeles and won a Playmate of the Month spot the following year, then was voted Playmate of the Year. She received $200,000 in cash and prizes as Playmate of the Year.

"Dorothy had been living in what can best be described as a Hollywood fairy tale," the blurb with the Playmate of the Year layout said. "She's no stranger to feelings of disbelief."

Her career "has proceeded with the velocity of a whirlwind and she is one of the few emerging film goddesses of the new decade."

"The death of Dorothy Stratten comes as a shock to us all," Hefner said. "Her professional career was a bright one, but it is equally sad that the loss takes from us all a very special member of the Playboy family."

Playmate Dorothy Stratten was shotgunned by husband

Abscam trial

Jurors giggle over tapes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jurors in the Abscam bribery and conspiracy trial giggled Friday as they watched a videotape of a bungled attempt by a Philadelphia lawyer to impersonate a federal immigration official.

After the tape was shown, Ellis Cook testified he was "petrified" and thought he would be killed as he sat in a house in Washington, D.C., pretending to be Mario Noto, former deputy commissioner of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Noto resigned 11 days after the videotape was made, amid charges he improperly sought special immigration status for reputed New Orleans mobster Carlo Marcello.

In the FBI's Abscam, or "Arab Scam," investigation, undercover agents offered payments to politicians in return for influence on behalf of a fictitious Arab sheik from the United Arab Emirates.

On trial in the Abscam case in U.S. District Court are Rep. Michael Myers, D-Pa.; Camden, N.J., Mayor Angelo Errichetti; Philadelphia City Councilman Louis Johanson and his former law partner, Howard Criden. Criden and Johanson were law partners with Cook, who is testifying under immunity as a government witness.

A videotape showing Myers accepting a $50,000 payment on Aug. 22, 1979, was played earlier this week. Myers allegedly offered his influence to seek political asylum for the bogus sheik if he had to leave his country.

Shortly after the payment was made, the undercover agents told

Abscam trial move rejected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge Friday refused to move the Abscam trial of Rep. Richard Kelly to Florida and ordered the Republican lawmaker not to make public any government evidence he is given in advance.

Chief U.S. District Judge William Bryant set the case for trial Oct. 21, although Kelly's attorney protested that meant prosecution evidence will occupy the news until the November election.

Kelly was the only Republican among seven House members and one senator implicated in news leaks concerning an FBI bribery sting operation in which undercover agents posed as favor seekers for a wealthy Arab sheik.

The evidence Bryant ordered Kelly not to make public includes a videotape showing Kelly stuffing a $25,000 bribe in his pocket during a meeting with the agents — a purported payment for helping the sheik with immigration problems.

Kelly has repeatedly told reporters he accepted the money in order to continue his own private investigation of the "shady characters" he thought the undercover FBI agents to be. He said the videotape would help prove his point.

Criden and Johanson the sheik wanted confirmation that contact actually was made at the INS, Cook said.

He said Criden, Johanson and Errichetti failed to make contact with INS officials, so they convinced Cook to impersonate Noto.

On Sept. 19, 1979, Errichetti and Cook went to a Washington townhouse, Cook said. Before they arrived, undercover agent Anthony Ameroso was seen on the tape paying $50,000 in a briefcase and saying — into a microphone for future reference — that he was waiting for a man named Mario Noto.

Once the meeting began, Cook's cover was immediately in doubt when he identified himself as Mario Noto. Ameroso asked Cook for a business card. "I'm an administrator. I have no use for business cards," Cook said.

Melvin Weinberg, a con man turned informant who was working with Ameroso, then said to Cook, "We were expecting an older man."

"How old was he supposed to be? I'm 42," Cook answered nervously, setting off loud laughter in the courtroom.

Iran rescue raid cost $45 million

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The abortive attempt last April to rescue American hostages in Iran cost more than $45 million in addition to the lives of eight U.S. servicemen.

The money figures are contained in a little circulated report of a House appropriations subcommittee which held closed hearings held on the April 24th mission that ended in disaster in the Iranian desert 200 miles from Tehran.

Of the eight CH-53 helicopters and six C-130 aircraft that set out from the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Nimitz and from an airfield, reportedly in southern Egypt, only one chopper made it back to the carrier and five transports to the base.

Three Marines and 5 Air Force men were burned to death at the rendezvous during the first stage of the mission when a helicopter smashed into a heavily loaded C-130, setting it afire.

The mission was scrubbed, the other five helicopters abandoned on the ground and the crews flown out on transports. Earlier, a seventh helicopter had gone down in the desert with rotor troubles enroute to a refueling point but its crew was picked up. The eighth CH-53 on the mission had flown back to the Nimitz when its flight instruments failed in a sand storm.

Democrats win ratings war

NEW YORK (UPI) — This week's Democratic Convention television show from Madison Square Garden outdrew the Republican production from Detroit last month by 15 percent, according to estimates issued Friday.

Neither event ranked as a hit. NBC Research estimates that 115 million Americans watched all or part of the four-day Democratic convention, while 100 million watched the Republicans in July.

The final A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings figures on the national audience for the four-day Democratic National Convention won't be available until next week, but Nielsen says for the first three days of the convention, 54.3 percent of the viewing audience watched the politicking.

That compares with 50.7 percent for the Republicans. It also means almost half the television audience preferred to watch old movies, television series repeats and ballgames.

LOCAL CHURCH OPPOSED TO ALEIN INVASION

The overwhelming percentage of our population are against this huge influx of Cuban and Asian refugees. However, the greatest immediate danger is never mentioned by the Carter administration or the news media. Castro, call him what you will, is no fool. He has consistently, from Kennedy to Carter, out-maneuvered our leaders and State Department. Now he emptied his jails to send us criminals, prostitutes, mentally retarded and other undesirable scum. The news media say not to worry about it; we will check them all out and those who have criminal records will be sent back. KINDRED—WE DO NOT HAVE THEIR CRIMINAL RECORDS, ONLY CASTRO has them. And now, THE REAL DANGER: do you honestly believe that Castro would not take advantage of this situation and slip in a couple hundred communist trained saboteurs, perhaps several trained in Russia? It would not require many scattered at strategic points around the country to shut America down overnight. Without electricity nothing in America would move, no planes, no trucks, no cars. Your gas station could have loaded tanks, but without electricity it could not be pumped into your car. If we are being attacked we could not even fire a missile. These saboteurs might have orders to go a little further and contaminate our water supply. Man can live a long time without food but not without water. Think about it.

General takes full power

Korean president to resign

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — South Korea's first president will resign Friday and turn the office over to Gen. Chun Doo-hwan, reliable sources said Friday.

Chun is the military strongman who grabbed power in the wake of the assassination of President Park Chung-hee.

His bloody suppression of street demonstrations and crackdown on the opposition has put him on a collision course with Washington. He apparently will go through the political maneuvering of allowing South Korea's rubber-stamp electoral college to elect him to succeed President Choi Kyu-hahn, the sources said.

The process is expected to take about two weeks. A presidential spokesman said Choi will address the nation Saturday morning. The sources said he will announce his resignation at that time.

Chun, who in eight months has risen from obscure, low-ranking general to undisputed strongman, is consolidating his control at a time when South Korea appears headed for a confrontation over human rights with its major allies, the United States and Japan.

Both nations have protested the current trial of opposition leader Kim Dae-jung and 23 co-defendants on charges of sedition. The State Department has characterized the charges against Kim, who could receive the death penalty if convicted, as "infarcted."

Observers believe Chun wants to get Kim out of the way. Kim is one of South Korea's most popular politicians and a one-time presidential contender who nearly beat Park in the 1971 elections.

Chun, 49, began rising to prominence immediately after Park's assassination a year ago.

Zimbabwe reveals coup plot

SALISBURY, Zimbabwe (UPI) — Prime Minister Robert Mugabe's government Friday accused Peter Walls, the country's outgoing military commander, of plotting a coup last March to prevent Mugabe from coming to power.

The government's Parliament, Information Minister Nathan Shamuyarira said the government was considering prosecuting Walls, who he said had planned to seize power when the results of Zimbabwe's independence elections were announced.

"It was only the large size of the ZANU-PF victory and the explosion of popular support for the prime minister... that forced Peter Walls to abandon Operation Quartz' only three hours before it was to come into operation," Shamuyarira said.

He said the government is considering "appropriate legal action and/or administrative action that may be taken against Lt. Gen. Peter Walls.

Walls was the second prominent official to be accused of a serious crime since Mugabe came to power.

The government is currently embroiled in a scandal involving black Manpower Minister Edgwe Tekere, secretary general of Mugabe's party, who is accused of murdering a white farmer.

White Parliament Member Peter K. Van der Byl, calling the accusations against Walls "inflammatory, mendacious, misleading and frivolous," said the government was trying to divert attention from the Tekere affair.

As black legislators shouted "Treason, Treason," Shamuyarira said the government had confiscated the one surviving copy of what he said was Walls' plan to seize power in a March 4 coup and install a coalition of "defeated parties and puppet leaders."

He also accused "local military and intelligence personalities" of plotting to carry out a "coup" strike on independence Day, April 18.

Walls, who took leave July 23 pending retirement, is currently visiting neighboring white-ruled South Africa.

After the elections, he served at a place where he requested as chairman of a joint high command charged with merging the country's two guerrilla forces with the former Rhodesian security forces.

Walls himself sparked the latest controversy by telling the British Broadcasting Corporation in a televised interview earlier this week that he urged the British government to declare the elections null and void before the results were announced.

India riots, started by pig, spread

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — India's bloody religious rioting spread Friday to New Delhi.

Muslim mobs rampaged through a Hindu neighborhood, burning shops and battling with police to avenge the death of a Muslim killed in Moradabad earlier this week.

Religious rioting also erupted in three other cities where two people were killed, according to police.

At least 26 persons were injured in the capital as police fought to keep a mob of several hundred Muslims from burning a mosque in the Hindu neighborhood at the foot of the historic Grand Mosque, officials said.

Witnesses said the mob chanted "remember Moradabad" and waved black flags as they set fire to several shops owned by Hindus.

Police acted in using teargas and authorities imposed a curfew on the old section of the city where the rioting took place. By nightfall police said they had "the situation under control."

In the town of Rampur, 10 miles east of Moradabad, police fired on a stone-throwing Muslim mob, killing one person and injuring three others, news reports said.

Muslims also staged a protest march in Meerut, 20 miles west of Moradabad, and one policeman was stabbed to death, the reports said.

In Mhow, in the central Indian state of Madhya Pradesh, police fired on another unruly mob but there were no immediate reports of casualties, the Press Trust of India reported.

The latest outbreak of religious upheavals was triggered by bloody riots Wednesday and Thursday at Moradabad in India's most populous state of Uttar Pradesh, where as many as 105 persons were killed after police fired into crowds of angry Muslims.

The riot reportedly began when a pig, considered the incarnation of evil by Muslims, wandered into an open area where 50,000 Muslims had gathered to pray.

The worshippers suspected the pig had been driven into their midst by Hindus.

At least 88 persons were killed in the rioting and clashes that ensued, according to official accounts. The Press Trust reported a higher toll of 105 killed.

Among the casualties were 52 persons crushed to death in a stampede when police fired on the crowds.

The mob surged and overpowered police, grabbing their guns. Four constables were shot dead on the spot and seven are missing, officials said.

Iran to mull hostage release plea

By United Press International

The powerful speaker of Iran's parliament agreed Friday to consider a plea by six Western ambassadors for the release of the American hostages but said the "will of the people" will decide their ultimate fate.

Tehran Radio quoted parliament speaker Ayatollah Hashemi Rafsanjani as saying he has agreed to submit to parliament a letter he received Thursday from the ambassadors of Switzerland, Finland, Spain, Australia, New Zealand and Greece.

The letter appealed for the release of the 52 hostages, now in their 288th day of captivity.

According to the radio, Rafsanjani promised the envoys parliament will consider their plea when it begins its long-awaited debate on the fate of the hostages — a debate expected to start as soon as the Prime Minister, Mohammed Ali Rajai, has put together a government.

But Rafsanjani, who reiterated Iran's contention the hostages are spies, indicated the appeal would carry no special weight with the deputies, a majority of whom have said they favor putting the captives on trial for espionage.

"We express our anxiety concerning the continued detention of the U.S. hostages and ask for measures for their release, since their detention contradicts international regulations," the envoys' said in their letter.

Rafsanjani said he told the envoys "the hostage crisis was not a government affair. We abide by the will of the people and act according to their demands."

"The U.S. Embassy was an espionage den and the hostages were conspiring in Iran as spies," he said.

Sadat seeks summit

Wants Camp David renewal after fall election

By United Press International

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat Friday proposed a second Camp David summit with Israel and the United States after the U.S. presidential elections.

The move is designed to break the deadlock in the Palestinian autonomy talks.

Sadat's proposal was the centerpiece of a 34-page letter he sent to Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, his second exhaustive letter to Begin in two weeks.

It was hand-carried to Tel Aviv by a Foreign Ministry emissary and delivered to Israeli and American diplomats in Jerusalem and Cairo.

It arrived shortly after Israeli commandos launched land, sea and air attacks against Palestinian guerrillas along Lebanon's southern coast, killing three guerrillas before returning safely to base, the military command said.

Israeli officials said Begin would discuss the Sadat letter with his cabinet on Sunday. They said it meant that there appeared to be no chance of resuming the stalled autonomy talks until after the U.S. elections Nov. 4.

Sadat suspended the autonomy talks after the Israeli parliament passed a controversial law declaring all of Jerusalem as the eternal and undivided capital of the Jewish state.

An exchange of letters between Sadat and Begin followed but they failed to settle the dispute over Jerusalem whose status Begin declared was "non-negotiable."

"As we committed ourselves to continue our work until we end the dispute peacefully, I believe that the best course of action for us is to hold a summit conference in an attempt to stem these lingering differences before they jeopardize our mission," Sadat said.

ANWAR SADAT ...talks must continue

"On the other hand, it would be unfair and discourteous to impose this problem on our friend and full partner, President Carter, at this point in view of his other preoccupations which are obviously mpressing."

"You remember," Sadat told Begin, "that I described him at Camp David as the unknown soldier who dedicated himself to the cause of peace."

"The least we can do in recognition of his contribution is to appreciate his position and hold the summit when these preoccupations are over. I am sure that you share this view with me," Sadat said.

As in his first letter to Begin, Sadat — look sharp — issue with Israel's formal annexation of Arab East Jerusalem as part of its capital — decision that he suggested the Arab world that Saudi Arabia has called for a "Jihad" — a holy war — to capture the sacred city.

Saudi Arabia and Iraq also led diplomatic relations to pressure the 12 nations who have embassies in Jerusalem to transfer them to Tel Aviv, where most missions including the U.S. Embassy are based.

Under threat of losing diplomatic relations with the Arabs, two of those nations — Uruguay and Venezuela — agreed and announced they will move their missions. The Netherlands said it would decide its position next week.

Sadat cited Egypt's longstanding disputes with Israel on Jerusalem, on Israel's settlement policies and on the future of the autonomy talks and said only another summit like the 1978 Camp David talks could "uproot" these differences "before they get worse."

He reiterated Egypt's position that East Jerusalem must be included for negotiation in the autonomy talks, something Begin has flatly ruled out.

"Not a single country has recognized Israel's annexation of Arab Jerusalem... U.N. Security Council 242, which is the basis for all peace efforts, contains a total prohibition against the acquisition of territory by war. As East Jerusalem was seized (from Jordan) during the 1967 war, that provision applies to it," Sadat said.

Danger in Poland

Strikes threaten government

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Strikes by more than 50,000 workers brought transportation to a halt in the major Baltic port of Gdansk Friday and Polish leader Edward Gierk returned from the Soviet Union to deal with the growing demands for labor and political reform.

The walkout in Gdansk by shipyard workers and bus drivers capped six weeks of mass-pooling labor unrest and appeared to pose the most serious challenge to the authority of the state since worker riots in the same city led to the fall of Premier Wladyslaw Gomulka's government in 1970.

U.S. officials said they consider the political unrest in Poland to be very serious, perhaps the sternest test that the Warsaw government has yet had to face.

The officials said the dissatisfaction with the economic situation in Poland appears to be deep and pervasive and that the Danzig shipyard workers who originated the labor strike apparently represent a wide segment of the Polish population.

They also said there has been no sign of Soviet troop involvement in the situation yet, but that the unrest, if it spreads, could eventually trigger a Soviet military intervention.

There was little mention of the Gdansk strikes in Warsaw or other Polish cities, where the state-controlled press ignored the labor unrest.

Reports from Gdansk, 175 miles northwest of Warsaw, said between 50,000 and 60,000 workers were on strike, their ranks swelled when bus drivers joined shipyard workers in a sympathy strike that brought municipal transportation to a halt in the city of 500,000 people.

Talks briefly broke off between management officials and workers at the Lenin Ship-Building Works, where the Gdansk unrest began Thursday. The negotiations resumed later, but there was no sign of progress.

The strike committee at the huge shipyard demanded that Polish Premier Edward Babluch or an equally high-ranking official travel from Warsaw to meet with the workers and hear their demands for higher pay and labor reforms.

In Cracow, Cardinal Stefan Wyszyński addressed 150,000 religious pilgrims at a service marking the 60th anniversary of a major victory over Russian troops by Poland's army. Without directly referring to the unrest, the Polish primate told his audience to remember how Poles acted in 1920, when "freedom of life was endangered."

Disident sources said the Gdansk strikers were making political as well as labor demands.

Besides seeking an average 66¢ per month raise, the dockyard workers were demanding the replacement of their present union locals with freely-elected workers' committees, the sources said.

More serious for the authority of the state, the strikers were also reported to have raised a new demand for the dissolution of the Central Council of Trade Unions in Warsaw — a request that underscored growing resentment over the state's control of worker activities.

Vigilantes kill rapist

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — An angry mob shouting "we want the monster!" dragged an accused rapist from his village jail cell Friday and beat him to death with clubs, hoes and pickets, police said.

The battered body of the victim, 21-year-old Jorge da Moraes, was found mangled in a street near the Macae city morgue. He had been accused of raping at least seven women and was known locally as the "monster of Macae."

According to police, da Moraes may have been responsible for as many as 20 rapes over the past two years. He allegedly chose his victims by looking at their lips, telling police that "was what really attracts me to women."

Da Moraes had been in jail only a few days. He was arrested last Tuesday after he allegedly broke into the home of 18-year-old waitress Geiszi da Silva Miranda, kidnapped her at gunpoint and took her to a wooded area to rape her.

The residents of Macae, an oil town in eastern Rio de Janeiro state, mounted a manhunt and found da Moraes with the girl in the woods outside of town.

Legal mess stirring over Ketchum concert

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

HAILEY — A second outdoor concert southwest of Bellevue faces a possible legal challenge, but organizers say the show will go on.

Ketchum Concerts promoter Dave Simon said Friday that denial of a conditional use permit Tuesday to establish a permanent concert site on property owned by George Kyle will not affect plans for a concert featuring the Amazing Rhythm Aces.

However, Blaine County Prosecuting Attorney Keith Roark said Friday he will seek a court injunction if necessary to "enforce the county ordinance and prevent the concert." Kyle's 20-acre site, dubbed the Sun Valley Bowl, was the site of a July 5 concert featuring Tanya Tucker.

Headlining the scheduled Aug. 24 concert are the Amazing Rhythm Aces, Norton Buffalo, and Midnight Angel, along with local groups Yancey and Friends and the Zoo Review comedy team.

Advance tickets for the performance are on sale for $8.50 at Budget Tapes and Records outlets and at various Wood River Valley locations.

Simon said he and Kyle appeared before the Blaine County Planning and Zoning Commission Tuesday solely to seek approval of a permanent open air theater at the site, which is zoned unproductive agricultural A-10. "The question of this concert was not at issue," Simon said. "The only thing at issue was a permanent theater site."

"We were told when we asked about the first concert that we could have that one, and that we could have a second one if we were good boys and girls," he added. "We WERE good boys and girls."

Neighbors who attended the Tuesday meeting, however, gave a different view of the July 5 concert.

Ila Cloughton, who lives along the access road, said one concert-goer's car careened through her front fence. Henry Schutte, Eden, who farms 80 acres adjacent to Kyle's property, said he believes the parcel is too small, adding that vehicles had to be parked on his hayfield.

Schutte recommended that future concerts be held at the Rotarum recreation site west of Hailey, which has permanent power and toilet facilities.

Roark told the commission that Ketchum Concerts had contracted the Wood River Rural Fire District for fire protection during the concert, but that the $300 check the promoters wrote to cover the contract bounced.

Armed with 21 form letters and testimony by eight neighbors opposing future concerts, the commission cited five reasons for rejecting the promoters' request:

- The proposal is incompatible with standards of evaluation for conditional use permits.

- It is incompatible with present zoning of the property.
- The promoters give no indication they intend to provide facilities for health and welfare of a crowd of such magnitude.
- Access to the property is poor.
- The public is overwhelmingly opposed to such designation.

Simon said Friday the hearing was stacked against the promoters, and he intends to appeal the decision. He said he has hired the Ketchum law firm of Kneeland, Laggs, Koth, Schiller and Benjamin to represent his interests.

He accused two neighbors of transporting friends past the gates to watch the concert for free, adding, "Half of what those rednecks had to say borders on slander."

Simon said he had a written agreement with Schutte to trade land across the road for the hayfield used for vehicle parking. Schutte, however, said a third person involved in the trade has not given his final approval.

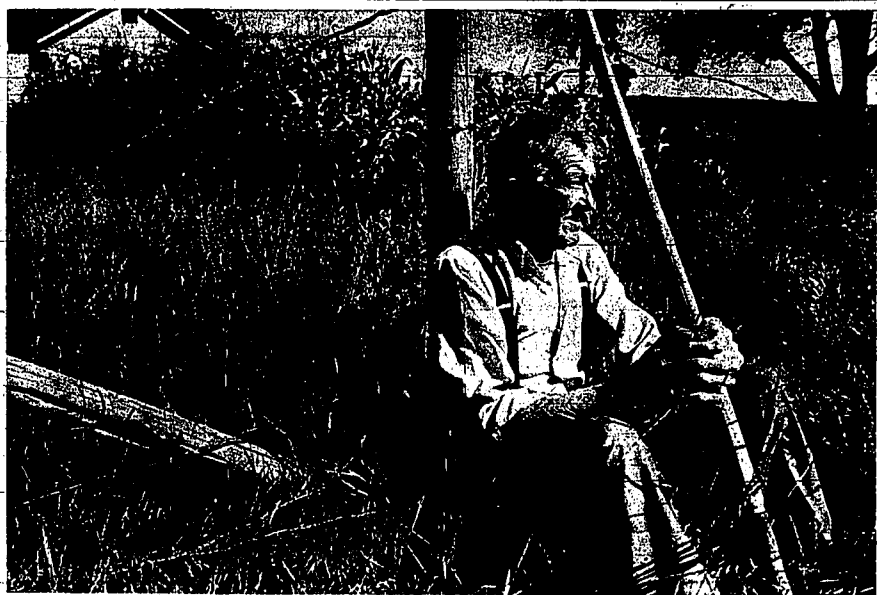

The concert promoter said he is working on contingency plans for use of the Rotarum site in case legal action by the county forces him to move the concert. "They can't force us to move without providing an alternative," he said.

Roark met briefly with attorneys hired by the promoters Friday afternoon but said after the session that he stands by his earlier statements.

Questions surface over agriculture policies in county

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Some members of the Twin Falls Planning and Zoning board are beginning to question the county's policy of allowing agricultural land divisions.

Board Member Dean Moore said at the close of the board's regular meeting Thursday that he can see more and more land divisions taking place and he wonders what the eventual outcome will be.

"Nearly every farm in Twin Falls County has at least one small corner or strip of land that is worthless for farming. The owners are looking at the land for its best value and more and more of them are asking us for variances and conditional uses so they can sell these parcels for housing," Moore said.

Moore said he isn't sure if this is good for the over-all county growth pattern.

"We made two decisions tonight that I feel are in conflict with our county land-use plan," Moore told other board members.

Corning Lanting, chairman of the county zoning board, said the land division requests granted on split votes Thursday night did not involve prime agricultural land, but rather unfarmable acreages.

County Administrator Ed Woods said the action is not in conflict with the land use plan. He said it follows a provision that was set up by authors of the plan who took into consideration the fact there are many scattered parcels that are not suitable for farming.

"Our comprehensive plan clearly provides for further division of land in agricultural zones, with public hearings," Woods said.

He said it was set up to allow some flexibility because of the variations in land and to make it possible for people to utilize the poor agricultural areas without removing prime farmland from production. He said the basic goal of the plan is to keep prime agricultural land in crop production and not let it be cut up for building lots. However, he said the committee working on the plan also realized people want to build homes in a rural setting. As a result, the plan allows owners to gain economic benefit from these small areas of rocky soil or areas out of reach of irrigation laterals. In this way the interests of the land owner and the home builder can both be served, Woods said.

Board member Annette Jenkins said when the tax notices are received on some of the homes in rural areas, it may come as a surprise to some of the home owners.

Earlier in the meeting the board approved by a 5 to 4 vote a conditional use for dividing a five-acre parcel in half. The request was by Ted and Arvela Tate on land two miles south of the Curry Crossing.

By a 5-to-2 vote, they approved a two-acre parcel for Mark Howard. This is located just south of Murtaugh Lake and has already been purchased by Howard.

Two other land division requests to cut property into less than the 20-acre minimum in agricultural zones were delayed because persons involved did not appear at the hearings or had asked for postponement.

Action by the zoning board goes to the county commissioners as a recommendation. If there are no appeals on the zoning recommendations in 10 days, the requests are granted. If there are appeals, the zoning board and public hearing must be held and the commissioners will make the final decision.

Several additional land division requests were approved for public hearing in later meetings of the zoning board.

In last month's zoning meeting, Woods recommended the zoning ordinance be changed to implement land division. He suggested the appointment of a small committee to investigate land division requests and make recommendations to the board. In most cases this would eliminate the time and effort now required in bringing these requests to public hearings. Woods said most of the cases would probably be handled by immediate action on recommendation by the committee. Several members of the board warned against such action saying the public appears to feel this would lessen the restrictions and weaken the county control. Woods said it would not be any less restrictive than the longer procedure but agreed it would require additional information to convince county residents.

Nuclear power groups meet

KETCHUM — Idahoans concerned with radioactive pollution of the Snake River Aquifer and continued development of nuclear power will meet here today.

The 8 a.m. meeting, scheduled for the Ketchum City Hall, will be to finalize plans for a Sept. 13 rally at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, (INEL) at Idaho Falls.

That rally, sponsored by the "Coalition for a Clean Aquifer," will be to indicate the concern among Idahoans about nuclear power development in Idaho, said George Anthony, of Filer, one supporter of the rally.

The September gathering will call for an end to the transportation of nuclear materials into Idaho, an end to the pollution of Idaho water, soil or air, with nuclear wastes, the conversion of INEL into a research facility for "safe" energy forms, and an increase in research and development of new, non-nuclear energy technologies, Anthony said.

Anthony, who now farms near Castleford, was previously a nuclear physicist employed at the Hanford Atomic Works in Washington state.

Among the groups supporting the September rally are Citizen Action for Consumer Protection in Gooding, the Groundwater Alliance in Ketchum, the Idaho Citizens Coalition in Boise, the Idahoans for Safe Energy in Moscow, the Nuclear Counterbalance in Pocatello, and the Snake River Alliance in Boise.

"The idea is to provide a suitable alternative technology rather than just being against nuclear power," Anthony said.

Look, there goes that crazy crow

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls police had to call in some experts Friday to help out in the town's latest crime wave.

They were getting reports from several angry residents in east Twin Falls about a "crazy crow" victimizing their dogs. The police said the suspect allegedly harassed family canines, then took flight without leaving a clue.

Officers said the description was vague, but it had to be the same fellow, described as tall, heavy-set, dark and noisy, and apt to strike at all hours.

The city's humane department tried to track down the suspect, but it was too fast for them to establish his whereabouts.

Next, Kit Christiansen of the Idaho Fish and Game Department was put on the flight path of the culprit.

Christiansen, armed to the teeth, reported a near-miss at nabbing the suspect following a call from a peeved Fillmore Street resident.

At latest report Friday, Crazy Crow was still at large and Twin Falls dogs were warned to stay in their dog houses and lock the doors.

Officers say the suspect seems to enjoy trespassing onto just about any canine's property, where he then sets up a pattern of teasing, dive bombing and sneering at his victim.

If caught, officers may charge him with trespassing, disturbing the peace, resisting arrest and undue harassment. Or they may execute him on the spot.

1980 Muscular Dystrophy show

Radio station, mall host telethon

TWIN FALLS — The 1980 Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon for Muscular Dystrophy will be hosted by the Blue Lakes Mall and KTLG radio.

KTLG will broadcast live from the mall, which will serve as the phone center headquarters for the Magic Valley, and will report on the telethon's progress and mall events.

The telethon will run from 8 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 31 to 5 p.m. Monday, Sept. 1. The mall will be open during these hours. Stores will have normal working hours.

Events planned for the 1980 telethon include a mall Rock-A-Thon, open to everyone with a rocking chair, who can "rock" for Muscular Dystrophy. Those wishing to participate may pick up their pledge sheets at the mall office.

Additionally, 21 hours of entertainment provided by local talent is being planned.

Jerry Hillman, Blue Lakes Mall promotion director, is lining up entertainment for the telethon. Groups or individuals interested in participating in the entertainment show may contact Mrs. Hillman at 733-8550 or Dan Muzzquiz at 734-1550.

Television will carry the statewide telethon, broadcast out of Nampa, on Channel 10.

Funds raised will help service the medical and equipment needs of the 126 people in Southern Idaho that have one of the 40 diseases covered by Muscular Dystrophy. Funds will also go to Muscular Dystrophy summer camps. This year, four youths from the Magic Valley will attend a Muscular Dystrophy camp.

Donations can be made at the mall in fishbowl provided. Telephone lines will be open to receive pledges by phone.

News briefs

Parks submits only bid

TWIN FALLS — Parks and Sons Intermountain Inc., the current sanitation contractor for Twin Falls, Friday submitted the lone bid to provide city services again.

The Parks bid was $306,813 to collect trash and garbage in the city's residential district for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

Only one bid was received for painting the city's water reservoirs. Grant Stuart bid $12,000 on the first alternative and $11,000 on the second.

Bids will be reviewed and presented to the Twin Falls City Council Monday night for action.

Jackpot getting fire truck

JACKPOT, Nev. — Arrival of the town's new $75,000 fire truck will be celebrated with a jackpot drawing and watermelon ball at noon Aug. 31 in the Blue Sky Recreational Park.

Fireman Richard Carson says the Big Mack-Diesel cab-over from Orlando, Fla., will be demonstrated.

It will supplement two other trucks operated by Jackpot's volunteer crew of 20 men and women.

GOP chairman asks debate

BOISE — Idaho Republican Party Chairman Dennis Olsen said this week he was interested in debating Wayne Fuller, chairman of Idaho's Democrats.

The response came after an Idaho Falls television station offered to arrange such a debate.

Fuller was in New York at the Democratic National Convention and could not be reached.

"The Democrats at their national convention, under the leadership of Edward Kennedy, in the name of economic justice, are endorsing the same liberal policies that have brought the nation to the brink of economic ruin with runaway inflation, high interest rates, ever-increasing taxes and joblessness," Olsen said.

"The Republicans, Olsen said, offer policies that will promote economic growth, create jobs, reduce the federal bureaucracy and strengthen national defense.

"With such a contrast" between the two parties, "I would welcome the opportunity to debate these issues," Olsen said.

Solar workshops this fall

BOISE — The Idaho Office of Energy will hold 10 workshops around the state in September.

At each workshop, participants will learn how solar energy can be applied to locally by building solar greenhouses attached to private homes and solar hot water heaters attached to small businesses.

The greenhouses will reduce heating requirements of the homes to which they are attached, said Angie Neitzel, a state Office of Energy official.

Veterans may lose benefits

TWIN FALLS — Some wives and husbands of veterans listed as "Missing-In-Action" or as "Prisoners of War," may soon lose their eligibility for education benefits.

The Veterans Administration announced this week that eligibility for the VA Survivors' and Dependents' Education program expires for this group on Dec. 24, 1980, or 10 years from the date the listing was made.

The program, which is open to children of POW/MIA's, provides tuition assistance for the spouses and children of veterans who died or suffered total and permanent disability resulting from their military service.

Heitzman given $24,794 judgment

TWIN FALLS — Donald E. Heitzman was awarded $24,794 in damages in a judgment given Thursday.

The judgment signed by 5th District Court Judge James M. Cunningham awarded Heitzman damages of $7,300, interest and $2,433 attorney fees in his civil suit against Willis Hasley, doing business as White Star Refrigerated Express and Carolina Casualty Co.

Heitzman alleged he entered a contract with Hasley in March 1979 in which Hasley was to lease a truck from him. The plaintiff charged the truck with falling to pay $7,300 in rental fees, and said he wrecked the truck, causing damages of $24,826. In addition, the plaintiff had asked $50,000 damages.

Thieves strike twice on Thursday

TWIN FALLS — Thieves took nearly $3,000 from two victims in Twin Falls Thursday night.

Twin Falls police received a report from Mr. Gas, a service station-store combination on Blue Lakes Boulevard North saying $2,000 had been taken from under the counter. Officers received the call at about 6:30 p.m. Thursday from Pat Grijalva, who told police he was distracted by a customer for a few minutes and left the cash register and front counter.

A short time later, he said he noticed the money bag missing from under the counter. It contained cash and checks, he told police.

Gary Oliver, 261 Addison Ave. W., told police someone broke into a storage shed on his property and removed a number of boxes containing household and personal items. He said the loss would run about $750 and included a microwave oven, stereo equipment and a number of smaller items. Oliver estimated the storage building was emptied sometime Sunday.

Tire firm officials plead innocence

JEROME — The president and foreman of a Jerome tire recapping firm pleaded not guilty Thursday to charges of conspiring to defraud the U.S. government.

Dan Lynn-Phlemann, 33, valued extradition and was transported Thursday from Salt Lake City to face charges that he raped and beat an Oregon girl July 21 at an interstate 84 rest stop.

Sheriff Elza Hall said the suspect lists previous addresses in Idaho, Kansas, Washington and Utah. Hall said he was raised near Shoshone, and has been employed as a farm worker in Twin Falls County.

Phlemann requested a preliminary hearing, and stated during the arraignment that he hopes to retain Twin Falls attorney Golden Bennett to defend him.

No date for the hearing has been set.

Rape suspect arraigned in Jerome

JEROME — A former Lincoln County man was arraigned Friday in Jerome County Magistrate Court on charges of rape and attempted murder.

Dan Lynn-Phlemann, 33, valued extradition and was transported Thursday from Salt Lake City to face charges that he raped and beat an Oregon girl July 21 at an interstate 84 rest stop.

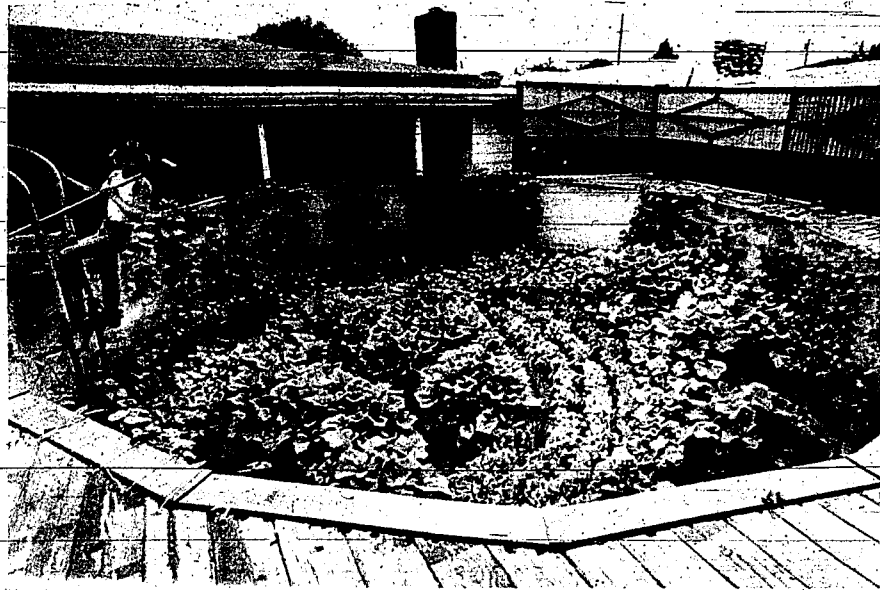

Sheriff Elza Hall said the suspect lists previous addresses in Idaho, Kansas, Washington and Utah. Hall said he was raised near Shoshone, and has been employed as a farm worker in Twin Falls County.

Phlemann requested a preliminary hearing, and stated during the arraignment that he hopes to retain Twin Falls attorney Golden Bennett to defend him.

No date for the hearing has been set.

Classes start in October

Head Start seeking students for 1980-81

MAGIC VALLEY — Head Start is recruiting children for the 1980-81 school year in Twin Falls, Buhl, Jerome and the Mini-Cassia area.

The free, pre-school classes begin the first part of October and Jennifer Scott, family services coordinator of the South Central Community Action Agency, said Head Start needs to be filling openings now.

In addition to classes, services available to Head Start children and their families include health, dental and social services and parent involvement.

If someone has a child or knows of a child who might be eligible, they should call 733-8551 in Twin Falls, or the local Community Action Agency in Jerome or Burley.

Low-income children who are 4 years old by Oct. 15, or children between the ages of 3 and 6, will be considered. Handicapped children are given top priority and 10 percent of the enrollment may be made up of children of families who do not qualify as low-income.

Shelley foe to contest ending case

BOISE (UPI) — The attorney for a Kootenai County sheriff's deputy who claims he was libeled by a Lewiston Tribune story in 1973 says he will contest the author's attempt to cancel court sanctions.

Jay Shelley, executive editor of the Tribune, broke a seven-year silence Tuesday by revealing the name of the confidential source he quoted in a story that questioned the conduct of Sheriff Elza Hall's widow, Gene Lee, narcotics bureau deputy director in 1973, was the confidential source. Lee died in 1975.

But William Tway, Caldero's attorney, said he would challenge Shelley's claim that Gene Lee, narcotics bureau deputy director in 1973, was the confidential source. Lee died in 1975.

Shelley said Tuesday he revealed the source's name as saying the conduct Shelley, who previously had refused court orders to name the source, said he no longer felt compelled to keep the secret since Lee was dead and his wife had no further objections.

The newsmen's attorney has asked 1st District Judge James Towles to call for an end to his order that a jury scheduled Sept. 9, 1979 hear the libel case says to be told there was no confidential source.

Tway said Thursday he would oppose Shelley's motion. "Because of the (Shelley's) contempt of court and the fact Gene Lee died, we still don't know that he made any of those statements at all, and we can't find out," Tway said.

Shelley's story questioned Caldero's professional conduct in shooting at a suspect during a narcotics raid at Coeur d'Alene in August 1972.

The story quoted an unnamed "news expert" as saying the justification for the shooting "didn't add up."

Lee's widow said Thursday she agreed — to the disclosure — after Shelley and his lawyer approached her last May.

"Each time I read something, I felt kind of guilty for Mr. Shelley," said Mrs. Lee. "No one ever believed him. They think he's making it up."

Church, Symms balloons found in Kansas fields

BONNERS FERRY (UPI) — Was it political hot air or just the winds of chance that bore the election year battle of Frank Church and Steve Symms at least 700 miles to a Kansas farming community?

Paul and Gertrude Weidner, of Bonners Ferry, Idaho, were in Bonners Ferry Friday with a collection of helium-filled political balloons — six endorsing Church and one endorsing Symms — which they said landed in their Kansas wheat field.

Weidner said he was tending to irrigation chores when he spied the balloons tied together in wheat stubble, "about an eighth of a mile away."

It launched from the southwestern-most point of Idaho, the balloons traveled at least 700 miles.

Five of the red, white and blue balloons of Frank Church were still inflated. The brown and white Symms balloon featuring his well-known apple was exploded and frayed. Three other balloons, which were unidentifiable.

Displaying the "taken 1000s in Bonners Ferry," Weidner explained the balloons were much larger when he discovered them.

JERRY HOLMAN

QUESTION...

My husband and I share a common-law marriage. When either of us die there will be any question about the right of the survivor to arrange a funeral and burial?

ANSWER...

If the decedent was being claimed by either, then the supposed common-law spouse, if could create this situation. Only a limited number of states recognize the validity of a common-law marriage the survivor of either of you has no right to arrange your burial. This right is vested in the decedent's next of kin.

In common-law states the body of a deceased person may be claimed by anyone having the statutory right. If the marriage is actually valid this would be the surviving common-law spouse. Since, however, there is no marriage of record in these states the validity of the marriage would have to be established through a judicial process if there were others seeking possession of the body.

Major leagues

Pirates grab division lead

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Dale Berra drove in two runs with a single and a homer and Mike Easter added a solo homer Friday night to lead Pittsburgh to a 7-3 victory over the Montreal Expos that gave the Pirates sole possession of first place in the National League East.

Phillies 8, Mets 0

NEW YORK (UPI) — Larry Christenson, making his first start since May 21, combined with Tug McGraw on a six-hitter and Lonnie Smith went 3-for-4 and knocked in a run Friday night to lead the Philadelphia Phillies to an 8-0 victory over the New York Mets.

Cubs 5, Cards 4

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Ivan DeJesus had three hits and scored three runs Friday night to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 5-4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Brewers 4, Indians 1

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Sixto Lezcano and Dick Davis hit back-to-back home runs to back the seven-hit pitching of Mike Caldwell Friday night to lead the Milwaukee Brewers to a 4-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Texas 6, Tigers 2

DETROIT (UPI) — Mickey Rivers knocked in two runs and Buddy Bell collected three hits Friday night to lead the Texas Rangers to a 6-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

followed with the third single of the inning to score Will. Zisk then singled home Oliver to cap the inning.

Angels 5, Twins 4

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Don Baylor hit his fourth home run of the year, a two-run shot in the eighth inning, Friday night to give the California Angels their 10th victory in the last 11 games, a 5-4 decision over the Minnesota Twins.

The triumph moved the Angels within one percentage point of the Twins for fourth place in the American League West.

Boston 8, Chicago 5

CHICAGO (UPI) — Rick Burleson and Carl Yastrzemski each had three hits and Dennis Eckersley allowed six hits in eight innings Friday night to lead the Boston Red Sox to an 8-5 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Royals 4, Jays 3

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — George Brett extended his hitting streak to 27 games with a three-run, inside-the-park homer in the first inning Friday night to lead the Kansas City Royals to a 4-3 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Willie Wilson opened the first against Jesse Jefferson, 4-10, with a bounce single over the head of third baseman Roy Howell and John Wathan walked. Brett then hit a looping liner to left that eluded the charging Bob Bailor on the wet turf and rolled to the wall as Brett circled the bases for his 14th homer. It was the sixth inside-the-park homer for Kansas City this season but only the first for Brett.

Walton compensation mitigated

NEW YORK (UPI) — NBA Commissioner Lawrence F. O'Brien Friday modified his award in the Bill Walton compensation case by returning to San Diego its own first-round pick in the 1982 college draft, together with $350,000.

Portland filed an objection to Taylor's report with the United States District Court, but prior to a court decision, Portland and San Diego both requested that, rather than pursuing further litigation, a new award be made by the commissioner.

Track amateurs don't run cheap

HAMBURG, West Germany (UPI) — U.S. and European track stars who drew huge crowds to meet on Europe received more than a third of the organizers' budgets for their appearances, a West German report said.

Saying "records cost more", Die Welt said that Moses slowed down a couple of passes before the finish line in a recent race in Berlin, implying that he had not been paid to set a new world best.

TheDie Welt newspaper alleged that U.S. 400-meter hurdler ace Edwin Moses is paid $5,000 for each race on the European circuit, in violation of International Amateur Athletic Federation rules.

The report said that British Olympic winners Sebastian Coe (1,500 meters) and Steve Ovett (800) were just as expensive, but sometimes run for less.

Eagles use turnovers to whip Jets 28-13

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Philadelphia capitalized on two early New York turnovers for Wilbert Montgomery's touchdown run and a scoring pass from Ron Jaworski to Harold Carmichael Friday night and the Eagles went on to a 28-13 victory over the Jets in an NFL exhibition game.

The Jets, 0-3, who suffered a total of three turnovers on the night, scored in the first quarter on a 13-yard pass from Richard Todd to Wesley Walker. They added another touchdown with eight seconds remaining on an 8-yard pass from third-string quarterback Craig Penrose to rookie tight end Sam Bowen.

Steelers strike early, coast past Falcons

ATLANTA (UPI) — Terry Bradshaw passed for 183 yards in the first half and Cliff Stoudt ran for 101 in the third quarter Friday night to lead the Pittsburgh Steelers to a 17-14 victory over the Atlanta Falcons.

The Falcons, 1-4-10 losers last week at Seattle, finally came to life midway through the final period. With third-string quarterback Mike Morsoki at the controls, they launched marches of 66 and 63 yards to pull within three points of the defending world champions.

Borg coasts into semi-finals

TORONTO (UPI) — Bjorn Borg, who felt almost like a 10 and played like a 20, overwhelmed 18th-ranked John Sadri in straight sets Friday to advance to the semi-finals of the $25,000 Canadian International Championships.

"I just hope I don't have too many of those (slumps). I made a lot of errors and she just wouldn't help me out."

Stowpitch 'doorslammer' tourney set

TWIN FALLS — Men's softball teams are invited to play in the 'Falls Doorslammer' tourney that will be held over Labor Day weekend at Harmon Park.

The tourney, the final softball event of the summer, has a final entry date of Aug. 23. The event is not sanctioned, so teams do not have to use only players from their official rosters.

Indians win rights to Cannon

NEW YORK (UPI) — The exclusive negotiating rights to baseball player Billy Cannon, Jr. have been awarded to the Cleveland Indians.

The Indians' name was selected in a drawing in the office of commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

The 19-year-old Cannon, who was graduated earlier this year from DePaul High School in Baton Rouge, La., was selected by the New York Yankees in the third round of the summer free-agent draft on June 4.

Allen loses $125,000 suit

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — A former Illinois University basketball player whose pro was broken by former Kansas City Kings guard Lucius Allen during a pro basketball tryout has been awarded $125,000 in damages.

A U.S. District Court jury deliberated slightly more than three hours late Thursday before awarding the damages to Richard Rhodes, 26, a former basketball player.

Rhodes filed suit against Allen, a collegiate star at UCLA, and the Kings for a Sept. 30, 1977 punching incident that Rhodes claimed ended his chance at an NBA career.

Rhodes, who was trying to make the Chicago Bulls' roster, charged Rhodes with the incident on the court in a King-Bulls exhibition game at the University of Illinois Exhibition Hall. Allen punched him at least twice and broke his jaw, ending his chances.

Simpson faces burglary charges

LITTLETON, Colo. (UPI) — Former Denver Nuggets guard Ralph Simpson has been ordered to appear in district court Aug. 18 to face charges of burglary, assault and criminal mischief.

Aurora police said that Simpson, who allegedly broke into his estranged wife's Aurora home on July 30, was suspected of bearing her to a cast-iron barbecue grill and causing more than $100 damage to the property.

Simpson, 30, was charged with first-degree burglary, second-degree assault and criminal mischief and faces mandatory sentencing for a violent crime. He appeared before Littleton District Court Judge Richard Greene earlier this week and was freed on a $3,000 recognition bond.

Spurs pick up George Johnson

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — General manager Bob Bass of the San Antonio Spurs said the signing Friday of center George Johnson will help remedy the team's problems with blocked shots and rebounding.

Johnson, a free agent who played out his contract last spring with the New Jersey Nets, was signed after "I believe apparent we have a definite problem at the center position, especially in blocked shots and rebounding," Bass said.

Vikings put Reaves on waivers

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — The Minnesota Vikings Thursday asked waivers on quarterback John Reaves, who just completed a program at a Minnesota alcohol treatment center.

The Vikings had urged Reaves to undergo treatment at the Hazelden Foundation near Woodbury, Minn. He underwent treatment there for a month and was scheduled to be released Friday.

Reaves, 29, said he learned two weeks ago that the Vikings did not want his services for the upcoming season and he asked to be put on waivers.

He said he would return to his home in Tampa, Fla. to wait and see if any other NFL team picks him up. He said he has been running two miles each day while at the center and "throwing every day."

The Vikings asked Reaves to undergo treatment after he was arrested in Florida for driving while intoxicated and later for an incident in a bar. The team paid for the treatment.

Army names athletic director

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UPI) — The U.S. Military Academy Friday named Carl F. Ulrich as its new athletic director, succeeding Maj. Gen. Raymond P. Murphy, who announced his retirement last April.

Terms of Ulrich's appointment have not yet been set. Ulrich, 49, is in his 31st year of service with the U.S. Army.

In accepting the post, Ulrich said, "The West Point athletic director position is one that appeals to me strongly, one that I feel I thoroughly understand, and one for which I feel able to provide outstanding leadership."

U.S. cagers just nip Chinese

PEKING (UPI) — A U.S. collegiate all-star basketball team had to stage a valiant fight Friday against the Shanghai team before winning a squeaker 79-75.

The scorer for the Americans was Phil Fries, who poured in 26 points. At halftime, the teams were tied 39-39. In the second half, the Chinese, led by Zhuang Jianming — the game's top scorer with 30 points — tightened their defense. The game was tied 41-41 and 69-69.

Friday's win was the second for the U.S. team, which earlier in the week beat a Chinese team in the southern Chinese city of Canton.

Blazers trade Dunn to Denver

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The Portland Trail Blazers Friday traded guard D. Dunn to the Denver Nuggets for "future considerations."

Dunn, a 6-4 defensive player out of Alabama, was drafted in the third round in 1977 and played three seasons with Portland, averaging 6.3 points per game and 3.2 rebounds.

Joe Louis to be honored

NEW YORK (UPI) — Muhammad Ali and many Hollywood entertainers will be present Oct. 19 at a dinner honoring former heavyweight champion Joe Louis.

The dinner, a presentation of Muhammad Ali Special Events, will take place in New York and is expected to be held at the Waldorf.

"We feel this night is long overdue," said an Ali spokesman. "Joe is an ill man and this is our way of helping him."

Stabler to start for Oilers

HOUSTON (UPI) — Ken Stabler starts his second straight exhibition game Sunday with approval from Houston Oilers Coach Bum Phillips to play more than two quarters against the New Orleans Saints.

Phillips said the Oilers are looking for a starting quarterback. Stabler is playing last season in 1977 and played three seasons with Portland, averaging 6.3 points per game and 3.2 rebounds.

Stabler played 1 1/4 quarters in the Oilers' exhibition opener, and Phillips said his quarterback "didn't want to come out often."

Stabler is 42-35 in a Monday night game which crushed the Saints' late-season drive toward a division championship.

"Stabler is a winner," Nolan said. "He has done a lot for Houston. He can pick up a quarterback's job and proceed the game. He always knows what he wants to do on the field. With a back like (Earl) Campbell to work with, he can do a lot more."

The game marks the return of recalcitrant running back Tony Galbreath, who missed most of training camp in a dispute over pay. Nolan said Galbreath might play.

History of transfer bids

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

David Carter of St. Louis, who invented two-way Stayman, decided to go one step further in taking advantage of the precise information given by an opening notrump bid and invented what is called the Texas convention.

In this convention the four-diamond response to a notrump opening shows hearts and opener must respond four hearts. Here is a typical hand for this response: S x x H K J 10 x x D - K x x c. Responder wants the hand to play in four hearts, but also wants his partner to play the hand so that the lead will come up to the notrump bidder. Similarly if responder has a long-spade suit, he replies "four hearts" as a transfer to spades.

David thought of this when
