Two SLC joggers die in ambush that leaves blacks fearful

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A sniper who gunned down two teen-aged joggers late Wednesday night apparently knew one or both of the victims and carefully planned the brutal ambush-slaying, Salt Lake City Police said.

Chief Bud Willoughby claimed the double shooting was not a random incident. "We don't want to give people the impression that we have a psychopath running around with a high-powered rifle, indiscriminately shooting joggers. We are almost sure that is not the case," Willoughby said.

Willoughby said both victims were blacks, while two female companions with the men were white. Leaders of Utah's black community are fearful that the ambush slayings may have been sparked by racism.

The black leaders said they may ask for a federal civil rights investigation into the incident.

Daniel Lamar Martin and Ted Fields were slain

by a gunman firing from a grassy mound while they and the two girls trotted across a street at a well-lighted intersection bordering a park at around 10 p.m. MDT. One victim was hit four times and the second by three bullets.

Fields was the son of a chaplain in the city police department. His father was the target of an arson attempt earlier this summer.

"Whoever shot them had to be a terrific marksman," said Lt. Robert Braman. "He was firing quickly from a dark field and would have had trouble seeing his sights. Even then, he picked out the two men and hit them repeatedly. This was carefully orchestrated."

One of the juvenile girls was hit in the arm by a bullet fragment during the spree of gunfire.

James Dooley, president of the Utah NAACP, said he has received a number of telephone calls from black parents who are "very upset" that the ambush was motivated by racism against the state's black population.

The parents of the victims were also "very fearful" that bigotry was behind the brutal attack, added State Black Affairs Office Director Linda Dupont-Johnson.

Northwest Pipeline Company offered a $25,000 reward for information leading to the arrest of the gunman. Willoughby said both 18-year-old victims were Northwest employees.

Police questioned a 37-year-old man in connection with the incident, but later released him. The man was charged earlier this summer with raping the wounded girl. Police initially believed he may have been trying to kill her.

Willoughby said the 10 detectives investigating the shooting "have a suspicion in mind, but we don't have him in custody."

Harry Lau heaves away a rock obstructing his small dredging operation demonstrating why the glut of recreational dredgers may not have materialized

Low yields cooled gold rush fever

'Only guys making money are selling dredges'

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

CUSTER — When Harry Lau looks for gold with his small dredge, he works harder than the machine.

Lau stands knee deep in the water, stooped over, throwing rocks that are too big for the dredge out of the way. Since the nozzle on his dredge is only three inches in diameter, that means Lau moves most of the rocks so the dredge can do its work.

After four or five hours of dredging his claim on the Yankee Fork of the Salmon River, he and his wife will spend that many more hours separating the gold from the sand and gravel picked up by the dredge.

Often, the Laus don't have dinner until 9 p.m. For their 10 hours of work or more they can get $30 to $100 of gold on a good day, Lau said. The money, only supplements their retirement income. They can't live on what they find, he said.

The long hours the Laus and other small-scale miners put in, the hard work and the uncertain return for the labor may be part of the reason the summer gold rush of 1980 never materialized.

In the last year, thousands of new mining claims and leases have been filed with state and federal officials in Idaho. Hundreds of new mining permits have been issued. But officials from the Idaho Department of Lands and the U.S. Forest Service say they haven't seen the number of miners combing Idaho's rivers and mountains in search of gold they expected to see.

The hordes of weekend miners who were expected to trip over each other in their rush to dredge and pan their way to riches never showed up. Most of the mining is being done by people who have been working on their claims for years, officials say.

Another factor that might have discouraged a gold rush is that most of the promising areas in the state are blanketed with mining claims. William Scribner, chief of the navigable waters division of the Idaho Department of Lands, said almost every unclaimed inch of Idaho's major rivers was snapped up this winter. Some would-be miners probably gave up their dreams of weekend riches when they couldn't find an unclaimed stretch of river, he said.

Lau only got his claim on the Yankee Fork by accident. When he first started dredge mining, he worked in some unclaimed streams. It was obvious why no one had claimed them, though, Lau said. He never found a thing.

Lau got his claim on the Yankee Fork about three years ago, when Forest Service surveyors uncovered a stretch of the river with no claims in an area they believed had been staked.

"The Laus didn't get discouraged during the months it took to find a claim on their own and they are willing to work long and hard because they get more out of mining than just money. They spend about seven months of the year living in a camper on their claim site. Lau said they move in before the snow is gone in the spring and they stay until it forces them out in the winter."

Billy denies errors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Billy Carter, trying to show he is not a "buffoon, a boob or a whacko," testified under oath Thursday that he never asked the president to do any favors for Libya, and said his friends in Tripoli never sought any.

He portrayed himself as a man caught in a whirlwind beyond his control, taking innocent steps that engulfed him in controversy and finally forced him to turn to vodka for solace.

Billy Carter — scheduled to return to the witness stand today — made these main points during his first day of testimony:

"I never asked my brother to do anything for the benefit of Libya. I also know that he would not do it even if I had been foolish enough to try. The Libyans have not asked me to ask anything of the president or any representative of the U.S. government."

"Libya agreed to give him a $500,000 loan with no strings attached and he has received $200,000, which he plans to pay off shortly with proceeds from the sale of Georgia land valued at $250,000."

"Directly contradicted two key points made by a Justice Department official who interviewed him in January and June and has said publicly Billy lied both times."

"Said of his first trip to Libya in 1978 that it initiated everything. "If I'd have known then what was going to happen, I wouldn't have gone, but hindsight ain't worth a damn. I've said that."

"He said American public opinion turned on him as a result of his decision to host a reception for a Libyan delegation and his income from speaking engagements dried up. "I was angry and bitter," he said, adding that he developed a drinking problem so severe that by February 1979 he "began each day with four ounces of vodka," he had to keep down food for 53 straight days and finally had to seek professional help.

Billy Carter also said: "I did not receive a tipoff" that the Justice Department knew early on that he had received $200,000 from Libya. He said he had read about the Justice Department investigation in the newspapers.

"The congratulatory note President Carter sent him after his first trip to Libya did not spur him to carry on the relationship. "I read that message [early] in a brotherly relief" as "my handling of a situation that potentially could have been embarrassing to the United States."

Navy drops remaining homosexual charges

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — The Navy dropped charges Thursday against four remaining women sailors accused of homosexuality aboard the USS Norton Sound, ending the highly publicized case that began with sex charges against 24 crewmembers.

Only eight women were actually charged with homosexuality — which is forbidden by the Navy — and ordered to appear before administrative discharge hearing boards. Two of the women were cleared of all the charges and two others were recommended for discharge.

Navy spokesman Petty Officer Bill Barkus said the ship's captain decided to drop the remaining charges after consulting with Navy prosecutors and reviewing the testimony taken during the four shipboard hearings.

Barkus said the Cmdr. J. E. Seibr had already met with each of the four remaining sailors — Norma Hohl, 20, of Bell, Mo.; Sharris Heusser, 25, of Pelican Rapids, Minn.; Louise Fitzmorris, 27, of Rumford, Maine; and Carol Brock, 23, of San Jose, Calif., and notified them of his decision.

Miss Brock said she was glad the hearings were over — and expressed confidence that she would have been exonerated. "I don't feel they would have kicked me out," she said.

A Navy lieutenant, who asked that his name not be used, told a reporter for radio station KPWB that Pacific Fleet commanders had determined there was not sufficient evidence against the women to continue the controversial hearings aboard the missile test ship.

He added that the Navy felt the large amount of adverse publicity surrounding the investigation and the hearings was damaging the morale of both enlisted personnel and officers.

Anderson

CBS says running mate chosen; he denies it

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — John Anderson denied reports Thursday night that he has selected a vice-presidential running mate.

Both CBS and the Washington Post reported Anderson had decided to offer the second spot on his independent presidential ticket to Patrick Lucey, former governor of Wisconsin.

But Anderson said the report "would be incorrect. There are a number of people under consideration and his name is among them. The matter is still under review. We have not made a final decision."

CBS quoted "sources inside the campaign" as saying Anderson plans to ask Lucey to be his running mate, possibly as early as this weekend.

And the Post reported in its Friday edition that campaign sources said the decision to make the offer to Lucey had been made "and all that remained" was the timing and the circumstances of formalizing it."

The Post said Anderson and his wife Kelle plan to meet in Wisconsin Friday with Lucey and his wife, and quoted Lucey as saying the decision on running was in his wife's hands.

Lucey, vacationing in Bailey Harbor, Wis., told UPI he had not yet been asked to serve on Anderson's ticket and "I'm not prepared to say whether I'll or will not accept."

Lucey, 62, was named ambassador to Mexico by President Carter, but quit in a policy dispute and later worked in Sen. Edward Kennedy's unsuccessful campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Earlier, in Des Moines, Iowa, Anderson said the delay in recruiting and announcing a Democratic running mate is due to his caution, not to refusals by prominent Democrats.

CBS reported Anderson preferred New York Gov. Hugh Carey, Boston Mayor Kevin White or Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., to Lucey, but none of the three men were interested. But Anderson denied there was a "list" of prospects.

Anderson had said earlier, "I am aware that to go around offering the vice presidency to people and then being rejected will give somebody a hey-day and it'll be me. So I've been very careful in the way I conduct my conversations and catch my inquiries."

Anderson, a Republican congressman from Illinois, is under pressure to select a running mate who can help him pick up enough support to improve his standings in the polls. He must achieve a 15 percent Senate vote to qualify for the League of Women Voters presidential debate.

He said his goal of building a "unity coalition" by Nov. 4 requires him to run with a Democrat, but said, "There is no list of the kind suggested."

In a calculated display of unity, Ted Kennedy met Carter on arrival in Boston

Kennedy meets at airport Carter gets warm greeting

By United Press International

Sen. Edward Kennedy gave President Carter a warm greeting Thursday and, in a move toward healing remaining wounds in the Democratic Party, said he was "determined" to help get Carter re-elected.

Kennedy, who apparently had read news accounts of his icy appearance on the podium of the national convention last week, greeted the president in Boston with a warmth calculated to dispel doubts about party unity displayed so far.

"I am confident he'll be successful in November and I am determined that he be re-elected as president," Kennedy said.

The two men shook hands several times, grasping each other's elbows and exchanging smiles.

"I tell you, all of those who have gathered here are ready and willing to put their shoulder to the wheel and make sure you're re-elected as president of the United States," said Kennedy.

Carter said his assistance would be a "major factor" in defeating Reagan, and said: "I'm deeply grateful for the words he just said... He's been very generous. The expression of support he's given me is very gratifying."

Kennedy, applauding, stood at the foot of the ramp to welcome the president as emerged from Air Force

One. After their exchange of remarks they together worked a long line of dignitaries on hand to greet the presidential party.

The senator had delayed a scheduled speech to the American Federation of Teachers in Detroit to meet the president.

At the teachers convention later in the day he repeated his support of the president's re-election and asked the federation also to back Carter. It had endorsed Kennedy during the primaries.

"We must support and work for Democratic candidates who are committed to Democratic principles. And together we must support and work for the re-election of President Carter," he declared.

Carter was in Boston to address the American Legion where he defended his military spending record as wise and prudent and warned it will do "no good to seek absolute superiority over the Soviet Union."

"The destructive power of the world's strategic arsenals is already adequate for total destruction. It does no good to increase that destructive power in search of a temporary edge or in pursuit of the illusion of absolute superiority," the president said.

His speech got a less enthusiastic response from the Legion convention than one given the day before by his Republican opponent Ronald Reagan. Reagan Wednesday called for major boosts in U.S. military spending. Reagan, at home in California for a few days, said on his arrival that he would be unable to give cost estimates for his proposed spending increases on weapons, veterans' benefits and military pay until he becomes president and has "all the information."

"We are, a number of us, discussing things of this kind and costing out some of those things. But I think you... can't finalize that until you actually are in a position to have all the information that only a president could have as to be able to set priorities," he told reporters.

In Peking—meanwhile, Chinese leaders made the unusual move of publicly rebuking Reagan's Taiwan policy and vice presidential candidate George Bush suggested the Chinese should steer clear of American presidential politics.

The sharp exchange was couched in almost apologetic diplomatic language, which did not disguise the differences in viewpoint.

Foreign Minister Huang Hua said any move by Reagan to block the China-American "friendly relationship... would be detrimental to the interests of the Chinese and the American peoples as well as the people of the world."

$500,000 in gems stolen

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI)—A bandit posing as a U.S. Customs safety inspector stole $500,000 worth of gems from a federal warehouse, it was disclosed Thursday.

Officers said the suspect got into the warehouse Tuesday afternoon by telling security guards he was supposed to make a "safety check" of the premises.

Once inside he pulled out a gun, motioned an accomplice inside and made the warehouse manager open a locker containing several precious stones being held in lieu of payment of duties.

Jury grants vet death wish

ALEXANDRIA, La. (UPI)—A jury Thursday sentenced a Vietnam veteran to death for killing a police officer; a sentence the defendant had requested, saying he could not control himself because of the effects of the defoliant Agent Orange.

Felde asked for the death penalty for killing Shreveport officer Glen Tompkins in October 1978 after a disturbance at a bar. He said he feared he would kill again if he was not sentenced to death.

Several psychiatrists testified during the trial that Felde was suffering from post-trauma psychosis common to many Vietnam veterans, and Felde claimed the problem was due to his exposure to Agent Orange, the name given to the chemical defoliant used by U.S. troops during the war in Indochina.

Oswald hearing delayed

FORT WORTH (UPI)—The legal decision on whether the grave purportedly containing the body of Lee Harvey Oswald can be opened must wait until early September, attorneys said Thursday.

A lawyer for Dallas County medical examiner Dr. Charles S. Petty filed a Plea of Privilege motion before District Judge James E. Wright, halting all other legal action involving the case until it can be heard.

The legal motion argues that Petty has a right to be sued in the county of his residence, Dallas, instead of Tarrant County. Wright scheduled a hearing for Sept. 3 on the motion by Petty's attorney, Jack Ayers.

Greece threatens U.S. bases

ATHENS, Greece (UPI)—The United States will be forced to close its bases in Greece unless the Greeks are readmitted to the military wing of NATO "within a reasonable period of time," a government source said Thursday.

The source said Foreign Minister Constantine Mitsotakis and Premier George Papandreu repeatedly have said publicly and in talks with American officials that the U.S. bases in Greece can operate only within NATO's framework.

Greece withdrew from NATO's military structure in the summer of 1974 because of Turkey's invasion of Cyprus.

Although NATO's military headquarters has drafted such a plan, Turkey has blocked the action, asking in exchange increased operational responsibility for the Aegean Sea dividing the two countries. Greece has opposed the plan.

Polish bosses agree to talk

WARSAW, Poland (UPI)—Communist officials apparently softened their hard-line position on Poland's crippling labor dispute by agreeing to meet a full joint strike committee representing 60 factories in Szczecin, reports from the Baltic Coast city said Thursday.

But in Warsaw police arrested more dissidents, who have been a major source of information on the crisis.

Authorities also braced for an expected strike Friday in the Polish capital, where rumors of the walkout touched off a wave of panic buying of foodstuffs and petrol Thursday, the eighth day of labor turmoil.

Police in Warsaw were in the midst of a major crackdown against dissidents.

Since Wednesday night at least 23 people have been arrested. In Washington, the State Department issued its first substantive statement on the situation in Poland, noting "with concern" the arrest of political dissidents, members of the Committee for Social Self-Defense, Poland's best-known dissident group.

rushes. Today's miners work in streams and on mountains between the old mining ghost towns dotting the hills.

The approximately 15 mining operations in the Yankee Fork drainage are almost exclusively full-time operations run by people who've been working their claims for years.

Crosby, who is working a claim on Jordan Creek a few miles upstream from the Yankee Fork, remembers a day when he let a weekend dredger work his claim.

"I let it to one of my favorite spels," Crosby said. "The miner worked and worked all day. 'I thought he probably did pretty well the way he was working.'" Crosby said.

But he saw the miner that night. "I asked him how he did. He said, 'I don't see how any of you can make a living at this,'" Crosby said, "I heard he went back home and tried to sell his dredge."

Finding gold is a matter of inches, Crosby said. He is doing well this year, but it hasn't always been that way. This is the eighth year he's been working his claim. In that time, he said he has learned "eight out of nine people won't make any money at this."

"The only ones making any money on this business are the people selling the dredges," said Herb Pollard, Idaho Fish and Game Department state fishery manager.

This year Crosby and his partner are getting several ounces of gold a week. And while most gold found in Idaho is nothing more than flecks like grains of sand, Crosby's claim yielded a sizeable gold nugget.

In addition to the claim he works with his partner, Crosby owns a separate claim he says is paying off.

The oldtimers used to wash portions of the hill down through their sluice boxes, he says of the claim. "The slide of the hill was so disturbed I figured there had to be something there."

He said he is reworking the old tailings with good success. He also thinks he has found the "pay streak" in the side of the hill the old miners were working.

"If I could stay on the pay streak, I could get an ounce a day," Crosby said, but so far it has proved elusive.

If the expected gold rush has not materialized, some of the problems that were expected to go with it have shown up anyway.

Becy Roemer, a U.S. Forest Service minerals technician who monitors activity along the Yankee Fork and its tributaries, said her biggest problems have been miners who get overzealous with their earth-moving equipment and a two miners with overlapping claims who were shooting at each other last spring.

Pollard said he isn't getting the number of complaints about weekend dredgers he had expected. And it appears that small dredges properly handled don't cause many problems, he said.

But there are some loopholes in the

Slight chance of showers near mountains

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert, Jerome-Gooding areas:

Increasing clouds and a slight chance of showers or thunder-showers, mainly over the mountains. Decreasing cloudiness Saturday. Highs upper 70s to low 80s. Overnight lows middle to upper 40s.

Camas Prairie, Halley, Wood River valleys:

Increasing clouds with a slight chance of showers or thunder-showers today. Decreasing cloudiness Saturday. Highs in the 70s both days. Overnight lows 30s to low 40s.

Northern Utah and Nevada:

Mostly sunny and warmer today. Highs in the 80s. Overnight lows in the 40s.

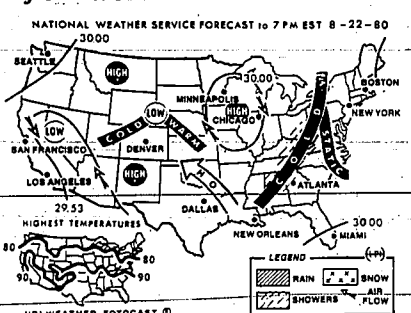

Synopsis:

Thursday was ideal for the Magic Valley but today may bring a change.

A major storm system developing in the Gulf of Alaska started moving southeastward toward Idaho, with increasing clouds expected in the southwestern section of the state sometime this morning.

Cooler temperatures and scattered showers will occur as a result of the storm system moving into the intermountain area.

On Thursday, Idaho was still under the influence of a high pressure system which produced generally clear skies and warm temperatures.

Most afternoon readings were slightly below normal but were in the upper 70s and 80s across the state. The warmest Idaho temperature was 82 at Gooding, while Fairfield and Boyll reported 81 degrees Thursday morning for the coolest. Most lows were in the 40s although 30-degree readings were common in the central mountains.

Elsewhere in the nation, the hot spot was Little Rock, Ark., with a temperature of 111 degrees while Gunnison, Colo., had the coolest reading, 28 degrees.

The Magic Valley haying outlook through Tuesday calls for dry with temperatures remaining below normal for fair curing conditions. Light morning dew. Pan evaporation is forecast at 1.0 inch today and 2.0 inch on Saturday. Winds will be less than 5 miles an hour this morning.

The extended forecast for southern Idaho, Sunday through Tuesday, calls for dry with below normal temperatures. Highs will range from 78 to 85 and lows in the 40s or low 50s.

Budget panel ignores tax cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a straight party-line vote, Senate budget writers Thursday ignored the work being done by their tax-writing colleagues and refused to make room for a tax cut in the fiscal 1981 budget.

The Senate Budget Committee voted down, 12-7, a proposal to assume it could still have a balanced budget by holding down spending — a notion rejected by economic experts and then to cut estimated revenues $20 billion.

That is the amount the government would lose during the fiscal year under a $39 billion tax cut bill approved by the Senate Finance Committee Thursday.

Amid shouting and protests from Republicans, the panel also voted 13-7 against a similar proposal that would make room for whatever tax cut the Finance Committee produced.

Democrats and Republicans lined up on opposite sides of the first vote, and Sen. Daniel Moynihan of New York, a Finance Committee member, makes the only affirmative Democratic vote on the second.

Next, the committee voted 11-6 to approve a $633 billion budget for the next fiscal year — up from the $613.6 billion balanced budget it approved two months ago.

The panel is redrafting its June budget to accommodate changes in the economy since the first bill was written.

On the tax cut vote, Republicans complained Democrats were being "unrealistic" and "dishonest."

"Even if we put it off until January, we're going to have some kind of tax cut," said Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M. "It's going to happen ... and we ought to make room for it."

Committee Chairman Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., said the important question is when and how a tax cut should be proposed and what form it should take.

"Every politician I know is for a tax cut. You ought to hear me talk about it," he said. "Everybody's trying to get political credit for Nov. 4 ... But we ought to look beyond Nov. 4 ..."

Hollings also criticized the $39 billion tax cut proposal on which the Finance Committee put its final stamp of approval, 19, Thursday.

"The signals coming out of the Finance Committee are exactly wrong," he said. "The name of the game is to defeat inflation and low productivity, and this doesn't do it."

Tax cut group passes $3 billion package

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Finance Committee Thursday confidently approved a $3 billion tax cut package for next year — ignoring a simultaneous Budget Committee action to preclude such a fiscal 1981 tax reduction.

In a strong showing of bipartisan support, the Finance Committee voted 13-1 to put its final stamp of approval on a package of individual and business tax cuts that would take effect Jan. 1, 1981.

Although the vote could go up, the committee staff estimated individual taxpayers would save an aggregate $22 billion in taxes on their 1981 returns under its plan, and businesses and private investors would save about $17 billion.

Exuberant over his Finance Committee's drafting of a major tax cut bill in less than a week of marathon work, Chairman Russell Long, D-La., said he hopes to see Congress pass the bill before the November election.

"I don't think those who oppose the bill will defeat it — at least in the Senate," Long said. "And I don't think the president can defeat it if he tries," he added, taking note of administration opposition to passage of a tax cut before next year.

House leaders and members of its tax-writing Ways and Means Committee remain adamantly against approving a tax bill this year.

Senate Budget Committee Chairman Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., made clear he is going to fight it all the way. "We can't go after inflation with that size of a tax cut," Hollings said. "I would be opposed to any (tax cut) right now."

Hollings said the true test will be over which bill is scheduled for floor debate first. "If the majority leader reports the Finance Committee's bill first, it will show he favors a tax cut," he said. "But if we pass ours first, without a taxcut, there will be no tax cut."

Preliminary staff estimates indicate people earning $5,000 to $10,000 a year would save about 30 percent in taxes under the proposal.

Staffers said the cut is designed to offset the estimated $2 billion increase in higher social security withholdings and inflation will have on that tax bracket in 1981 — a 30 percent reduction in the $7 billion the government would have collected from people in that bracket.

People in the highest bracket, — $200,000 a year plus — would save about 2.5 percent in taxes.

In between, people earning $10,000 to $15, would save about 12 to 13 percent, those earning $15,000 to $20,000 about 10 percent and the remaining upper brackets between 3 and 6 percent.

By 1985, the cost of the tax package would rise to at least $75 billion, committee staff director Bobby Shapiro said.

taxpayers, the finance panel approved a larger exemption for investment income.

By a 14-0 vote, it approved an increase in the capital gains exclusion on investment income that would allow individuals deriving income from stocks and other investments to exclude 70 percent of their unearned income from taxes. The remaining 30 percent would be included in gross income and taxed at the applicable income tax rate.

For the benefit of higher-income taxpayers, the finance panel approved a larger exemption for investment income.

By a 14-0 vote, it approved an increase in the capital gains exclusion on investment income that would allow individuals deriving income from stocks and other investments to exclude 70 percent of their unearned income from taxes. The remaining 30 percent would be included in gross income and taxed at the applicable income tax rate.

Loaded oil tanker hits wellhead, catches fire

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A tanker carrying more than 2.5 million gallons of oil and gasoline slammed into a drilling platform in the Gulf of Mexico and caught fire Thursday, sending flames 200 feet into the air.

The Coast Guard said it feared the 565-foot ship would explode, spilling its cargo into the gulf.

All 38 crew members from the tanker Texaco North Dakota got off safely, except for one man who suffered first and second-degree burns on his arms and right hand. He was airlifted to a New Orleans hospital. The rest of the crew was taken to Intracoastal City, La., on an offshore workboat.

Visibility at the time of the accident was 20 miles. About 18 feet of the rig was above the surface of the water and Chevron USA officials said it was lit up and had all required navigation aids.

More than five hours after the fire began, the Coast Guard said it was spreading.

"The intensity of the fire on the ship has increased. Flames are shooting up 150 to 200 feet," said Coast Guard spokesman Tom Pearson.

"The possibility of an explosion has increased since the cargo appears to have caught fire," he said.

The helicopter says the fire has gone from the bow to the stern. She is burning to the water line."

Three boats trying to fight the fire were forced away from the ship because of the danger. Three more were on scene and three more were en route, Texaco spokesman Larry Bingaman said.

A slight sheen of oil spilled from a three-foot gash in the bow of the ship above the water line, the U.S. Geological Survey said.

Bingaman said the tanker carried 2.1 million gallons of unblended gasoline, about 300,000 gallons of light tube oil and 150,000 gallons of industrial fuel oil. The 15,000 deadweight-ton tanker, registered in the United States, was en route from Eagle Point, N.J., to a Texaco refinery in Fort Arthur.

County pays bills this week but solvency is uncertain

DETROIT (UPI) — Wayne County Thursday scraped together enough money to meet this week's bills, including a 3,800-worker payroll, but next week's financial picture for the county encompassing the city of Detroit remains in doubt.

Officials of the nation's third largest county said earlier they would not know until the last minute whether they would have the $3.4 million needed by Friday to cover this week's expenses and avoid another "payless payday" for employees.

The cash flow crisis and financial brinkmanship are nothing new to county workers, who saw their paychecks delayed twice last fall after the county went broke.

There was about $2.1 million in county coffers Wednesday but enough regular revenues had come in from various sources by midday Thursday to assure the bills would be paid, county officials said.

"We made it. Thank God," said Richard Kelly, chairman of the county's board of auditors.

Kelly rejected the notion the county is playing fiscal games, saying he does not like to see workers go week-to-week not knowing whether their checks will be on time.

"It's something that we cannot anticipate," he said. "If we did have the monies available to avert a cash flow crisis, we're not in this particular situation."

But Kelly conceded the county's prospects for meeting its Aug. 29 bill, which includes paychecks for another 2,600 employees, remain uncertain.

"It would again be a day-to-day thing, looking at our cash, finding out whether we're going to meet that next payroll that next obligation," he said.

The county, which expects to end the year with a $20 million deficit, had hoped the state would allow it to issue $20 million in tax anticipation notes to help relieve the cash pinch.

But the Michigan Municipal Finance Commission, which would act on that request, is not scheduled to meet again until next Tuesday.

Even if the loan request is approved, some bond analysts question the county's ability to float the issues because of its financial predicament.

The commission has demanded the county, which has operated in the red for four years, produce a plan to eliminate its deficit before it tries to borrow any more money.

Strip mining bill nears vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite repeated delaying attempts by opponents, the Senate appeared close Thursday to accepting legislation that would weaken the federal strip mining law.

In a defeat for environmentalists, members voted 61-32 to cut off debate on the proposal by Democratic leader Robert Byrd. The West Virginia lawmaker is vying to tack his amendment onto a pressing language bill the House already has passed.

Opponents wanted to keep debate alive to try to convert others to their side.

Byrd's amendment would free states from federal strip mining reclamation regulations and permit individual states to implement their own rules. Environmentalists charge this would produce an uneven result, with some states doing better than others.

Opponents of Byrd's measure were led by Sen. Howard Metcherbaum, D-Ohio, and John Melcher, D-Mont. They attempted to thwart Byrd by tying up the Senate in a number of parliamentary maneuvers.

Clearly exasperated some of their colleagues, Byrd threatened to keep the Senate in session through the night, or until some compromise was reached with opponents.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., predicted Byrd's measure would undoubtedly pass and urged opponents to support it. "When you're going to get the hell beat out of you, you ought to lean back and enjoy it."

"I think," he said, "it's time the Senate acted like the Senate."

Metcherbaum argued, however, that his opposition and the amendments he was offering as illustrations were not "dilatory."

The Byrd amendment was identical to a proposal passed by the Senate last year. If passed as offered, the bill would go back to the House for final review.

It was designed to weaken the 1977 strip mine reclamation law that seeks to restore land at abandoned strip mines. Under the law, states must conform to a uniform series of federal rules.

Israel, PLO units trade artillery fire

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israeli and Palestinian gunners traded shellfire across the battered Lebanese border for the third day Tuesday and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said he has "serious differences" with President Carter over how to resume the stalled Middle East peace talks.

At the same time, Israeli officials were exchanging verbal salvos with the rest of the world over the Wednesday U.N. Security Council resolution unanimously censuring the Jewish state for declaring occupied Arab East Jerusalem part of its undivided, eternal capital.

Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir summoned U.S. Ambassador Samuel Lewis to express Israel's "disappointment" over the U.S. decision to abstain rather than vote Wednesday's resolution, which called upon countries with embassies in Jerusalem to move them to Tel Aviv.

A foreign ministry statement said Israel "categorically rejects the resolution," which it termed "unjust" and further "proof that the United Nations has become involved into an instrument in the hands of the Arab."

Egypt welcomed the resolution, saying it was proof Jerusalem "is Arab and should remain Arab."

There were no immediate reports of casualties from the third consecutive day of fighting in south Lebanon, where Israel and the renegade Christian gunmen led by Lebanese army deserter Maj. Saad Haddad shelled the market town of Nabatieh as Israeli jets flew reconnaissance missions over the area, Beirut Radio reported.

The shelling followed a Palestinian rocket attack on the northern Israeli settlements of Dafna, Shaar Yeshuv and Kfar Blum in the Galilee panhandle during the night — part of the latest cycle of violence sustained by each side retaliating for the other's attacks.

Somewhere between the Jerusalem controversy and the fighting in Lebanon, the Palestinian autonomy talks suspended by Sadat when Israel's Parliament passed its law formally annexing both halves of Jerusalem.

But a new element surfaced when the Israeli newspaper Maariv published an interview with Sadat, who said he and Carter differed over how to get the talks started again.

"That's correct. I have serious differences of opinion with Carter," Sadat was quoted as saying. "The American president wants the talks to continue, and he's trying to find a possible route to renew them. I also want the talks to continue, but how?"

Japan fears sub radiation leak

TOKYO (UPI) — Warning of possible radiation leaks, Japan Thursday advised ships to stay away from the East China Sea where fire engulfed a Soviet nuclear submarine, killing nine crewmen.

The disabled sub is about 97 miles east of the Pacific island of Okinawa.

An initial survey by Japanese planes at the scene revealed no radioactivity, but Japan's Maritime Safety Agency nevertheless issued a warning, which it called precautionary, advising ships to avoid the area due to the possibility of radiation leaks.

The blaze the ancient Echo-I type nuclear submarine killed nine crewmen.

The Soviet freighter Meridian evacuated 51 of the 100 crewmen by sunset after the crew had refused assistance from Japanese ships, apparently fearful of revealing military secrets to any boarding party.

Japanese experts who analyzed aerial photos of the vessel said the fire was apparently caused by a short-circuit in electrical wiring and that the ship's reactor was not involved.

Japan's Foreign Ministry, in a note relayed to Moscow through the Soviet Embassy in Tokyo, said

A rescue boat takes survivors off the crippled Soviet sub the accident caused "grave concern" and might have "exposed a radiologically leakage" in Japanese territorial waters.

The crippled sub was first spotted in the East China Sea by the British carrier Gait.

Its captain told a local television station "We saw a white signal flash. There was smoke flowing. Three (Soviet) officers boarded our ship and radioed a message to the Soviet Embassy in Tokyo."

He added "The ship was in no danger of sinking."

An intercepted radio message from the sub to the Soviet freighter disclosed "the casualties and said 'We can't tell you the name of our vessel. What we can say is that we have 100 men on board and we belong to the Vladivostok base.'"

'Spectacular' attack planned

PHUM PHNOM, Rebel-held Cambodia (UPI) — Cambodian rebels plan a "spectacular" display of their military might before the legitimacy of their jungle government is debated in the United Nations next month, guerrilla leaders said.

The guerrillas, anxious to prove their 60,000-man army can ward off Vietnam's 200,000-man occupation force, took three Western reporters this week into the bamboo and thatched headquarters of President Khieu Samphan's rebel regime.

"The greatest proof of our viability, our greatest victory," is the fact we're still here," said Foreign Minister Ieng Sary. "The Vietnamese thought they could finish us off within a month of their Dec. 25, 1975 invasion. We're still here and we're getting stronger and stronger."

"But our allies have advised us that we need something spectacular to influence international opinion," Ieng said. "We are planning something. It involves a major city but it is still a secret."

Khieu Samphan's guerrilla government currently holds the U.N. seat, but the Soviet Union has launched a diplomatic campaign for the chair to be turned over to the Vietnamese-installed Heng Samrin regime.

Khieu, 49, said his army had been broken up into 10-man groups armed with Chinese-made weapons, each operating independently and on its own initiative.

"Each unit has a goal of killing or wounding two Vietnamese a day," Khieu said.

Afghanistan warns Iran and Pakistan

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Afghanistan has warned neighboring Iran and Pakistan not to be so hospitable to the United States and China or it would take "a befitting action."

The warning came Wednesday amid reports from Western diplomats and travelers from Afghanistan that Moslem rebels have intensified fighting around Kabul and the Russians have sent a high-level Soviet delegation to the Afghan capital.

The government-controlled Radio Kabul issued a government declaration that "neighboring countries" they could be held guilty with the United States, China and Great Britain of training and arming Moslem insurgents that are bogging down 90,000 Soviet troops in the occupied nation.

The broadcast did not elaborate on what it considered "a befitting action," but the Soviet Union occupied Afghanistan on a claim the government "requested" assistance to quell U.S.-trained and armed insurgency.

Aside from the Soviet Union, the emboldened nation is bordered only by Pakistan and Iran, except for a finger of land that touches China, which is blocked by Soviet troops.

"We once again warn the neighboring countries that have put their territories at the disposal of the imperial forces of the world reaction under the leadership of the Americans and Chinese," the Soviet-run radio said in a broadcast monitored in the Indian capital.

"They along with their supporters are responsible for all the consequences that may follow such provocations deserving befitting response," it said.

The radio listed in detail the atrocities it claims the U.S.- and Chinese-trained guerrillas have inflicted, including arson, terror, murder, torture and destruction of property.

One diplomat who traveled recently from Afghanistan said, "The situation has perceptibly worsened."

A Soviet military delegation reportedly arrived in Kabul last week as Moslem rebels increased attacks in the northern province of Kunduz, in Herat near the Iranian border, in Gazi to the south of Kabul and in other strategic areas, the diplomats said.

The Soviet delegation reportedly is staying in the Afghan government guest house, and diplomats have erected large communications antennas.

Valley happenings

Symphony season starts Tuesday

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Symphony starts its 22nd season with the first rehearsal set for Tuesday night.

Rehearsals are held at 7:30 p.m. in the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts building's music room.

The group's first concert will be Nov. 2 and will feature the Romeros, a guitar quartet, as soloists. The Romeros often are called the "royal family" of the guitar and have performed throughout the world, according to Larry Curtis, symphony director.

Persons playing orchestral instruments and wishing to join the orchestra should call Curtis at CSI or 734-3389.

He said violin, viola, cello, string bass and bassoon players are needed.

CSI offers medical classes

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho will offer two classes in medical secretarial or medical assistant fields this year.

Medical transcription will begin at 7 p.m. Aug. 28 in Room 201 of the Shields Building. The medical terminology class will begin at 7 p.m. Aug. 28 in Room 106 of the same building.

Both classes may be taken for credit or for non-credit. For further information call Marvin Glasscock at 733-9554, Ext. 243 or Penny Rowe at Ext. 316.

Candystripers elect

TWIN FALLS — New officers have been elected by the Junior Volunteers (candystripers) of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

They are Florence Velasquez, president; Lois Christensen, vice president; Carma Hammon, secretary, and Denise Morris, treasurer.

Members will hold a car wash today to earn money for Candystriper uniforms.

Boys and girls more than 14 years old may call advisors DeAnna Vollmer, 734-5650, or Deann Messersmith, 733-9069, for more information.

Open Space Magazine sets theme

TWIN FALLS — Theme for the autumn edition of Open Space magazine will be "Power."

Residents are invited to submit prose, poetry, essays and any form of creative expression by Aug. 29. Send all typed submissions with name, address and phone number to Open Space, Box 91, Twin Falls.

Optimist Club ranks tops

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Optimist Club is ranked as the top club in the entire Pacific Northwest.

Local club members received several awards at the Pacific Northwest District convention last weekend in Boise. The most important, according to club officials, was in the Awards and Achievement category, wherein each club is ranked according to its service to the community. The Twin Falls club was declared highest in the entire district.

Other honors include Added Dimensions of Service, for increased community service; and Best of Year for sponsoring oratorical contests, physical fitness project and a Junior Optimist Club; Community Service Involvement, sponsoring a Youth Appreciation Week, Respect for Law project and entering the Community Awards project.

The club also received recognition for the Golden Circle Club and for winning the Community Project Award for the 1989 Jim Miles scholarship program and the bicycle safety rodeo and parade.

Members receiving highest individual honors were Pat Clayton, Gary Edgerton, Charles Hallett, Bill Kyle, Ron Manker and Walt Stowman. Ken Colner was honored as the top editor of a club bulletin in the district.

Dear Abby

Parents dislike 'sleep-over' dates

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: OUR 20-year-old daughter is living at home again after three unsuccessful attempts at apartment living.

She works, but pays no rent. She's been dating a young man for a short period of time and goes out with him once a week. She stays all night at his apartment, comes home in the morning, changes her clothes and goes to work.

This is upsetting my husband and me. We've told her so, but she says she is doing no wrong because she "loves" him. She also says she has to live her own life, and if we don't get off her back she will move out and we'll never see her again.

We are afraid that this direction she has taken will hurt her. Can he love her if he sees her only once a week, and then just for a sleep-over date? If this relationship doesn't lead to marriage, and she thinks she "loves" another one, and another one, and still another, what kind of person will she become?

Abby, it's so hard for us to accept this and be quiet, yet we don't want to lose our daughter. What should we do?

—UPSET PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: Tell her that as long as she lives under your roof, she'll have to abide by your rules, which do not include sleeping out. If she wants to move, you can't stop her, but I doubt if she will because she's not financially able to back it alone.

DEAR ABBY: Recently the director of the ballet company of which presidential candidate Ronald Reagan's son is a member felt compelled to issue a statement to the press that the younger Reagan and all the other male members of the troupe were "straight" and had "nice girlfriends." It is a sad commentary on our society's attitude toward human sexuality that such a statement was made at all.

Implicit in that announcement were the following erroneous assumptions: 1) That male participation in ballet requires lengthy justification lest it threaten our traditional view of masculinity and femininity; 2) that all male ballet dancers are suspect and therefore proof of their masculinity is required—i.e., having girlfriends; 3) that being gay is bad.

Do you have any additional observations on the above?

—R.K., IN NEW ORLEANS
DEAR R.K.: Right-out Readers? Write on.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the reader who was surprised and disgusted to receive an invitation to a "puduck wedding feast."

The bride and groom were no doubt members of the Society of Friends

(i.e. Quakers).

Among Quakers, the potluck wedding feast is traditional, and it would be bad for Quakers to serve a catered wedding dinner such as one finds at a mainline Protestant wedding.

Of course, it's also possible that these folks are just cheapskates—not Quakers.

—QUAKER IN MAINE

DEAR QUAKER: This Quaker tradition is news to me, as I'm sure it will be to my disgruntled correspondent plus a few million other readers.

Quakers who invite a non-quaker to a "puduck wedding feast" should explain that it's an old Quaker custom, lest the guest think this "friend" is a cheapskate.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply, write to Abby, Box 6970, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Health

Evidence against female hormone use

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Dear Dr. Lamb,

Several years ago my doctor prescribed Premarin for me during the menopause stage. I took this for quite awhile and then, since I wasn't having any menopause symptoms, I began to decrease the amount and eventually stopped taking medicine at all. During a recent physical examination, the doctor asked me if I was still taking the Premarin and when I said no, I was told quite emphatically that I should follow his instructions since on his examination he had noted my "color was bad."

Now I've recently read in the paper that a study reported in the New England Journal of Medicine conducted at Johns Hopkins University said that it was true that female hormones can cause cancer of the uterus. I know this has been controversial for some time, but as I read the report it sounds like there's now definite evidence that this is the case.

This has me terribly concerned and I really don't know what to do. I don't like to disobey my doctor but I really hesitate to take more Premarin.

Dear Reader,

You're certainly right about it being a controversial subject. There are benefits from using estrogen. It isn't the first medicine that we've used to help people that also has the capacity to cause harm. Digitalis is an important life-saving drug but if you take too much, it can cause serious cardiac irregularities and other problems. You can go down the list from there.

The important point is to make the right decision in each individual case. That's why you usually have to rely on your doctor's advice based on what he's found.

The study you have referred to is pretty well documented and it does settle some of the questions that you've raised. Apparently, altering the dosage or taking estrogen intermittently doesn't eliminate the increased risk of uterine cancer that it may cause. I think it's safe to say that there are still some unanswered questions such as the point that some investigators raised that using progesterone, the other female hormone, helps to negate the estrogen problem. That may need further study.

Let me stress again that women who have already had a hysterectomy shouldn't have any concern at all about the increased risk of female hormones and uterine cancer. You have to have a uterus before you can develop a cancer of it. You might be surprised how often that's been misunderstood in various news releases.

Now, I don't like to be in the position of disagreeing with a physician who's seen a patient but the current weight of evidence is that you shouldn't use female hormones in a woman with her uterus intact unless there is a definite indication for them.

To give you more information on the menopause, I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-12. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents in check or coin with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Since you're not having any difficulties anyway, I should think that in the midst of such a controversial discussion that you might just as well wait a while. If you start to have symptoms related to the menopause, then you could consider taking some form of estrogen.

Commemorate event by planting tree

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Forest Service is celebrating its 75th anniversary by asking Americans to plant trees to commemorate one another's birthdays or other special occasions.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture agency hopes its program will lead to 75 million plantings this year than last.

Forest Service geneticist Stan Krugman suggests getting the trees off to a good start by planting in an adequately drained spot in a hole wide enough to accommodate the roots without cramping. The roots should be spread evenly and covered with topsoil to the depth they were before transplanting, Krugman says.

He says trees with burlap-wrapped rootballs can be planted with the burlap, if you first loosen that material. It will decay and let the roots expand. But plastic wrapping should be removed to avoid strangling the roots.

Romance is dangerous in China

By RAYMOND WILKINSON
United Press International

SHANGHAI — Romance and sex in China are difficult and sometimes dangerous pastimes.

A young female factory worker, described by friends as pretty, bright and intelligent, recently was hauled off to detention after a non-too-discreet affair with a foreign teacher in the bustling seaport of Shanghai.

Embassy officials were met with official silence when they intervened, teaching colleagues shrug.

"Their crime was they did not conceal anything. The only surprise is that the authorities haven't yet deported the teacher."

In Peking a Sierra Leone student reportedly was beaten by police after having sexual relations with a local girl who subsequently disappeared.

He was relatively fortunate. He was released from police custody following the intervention of the wife of the president of Sierra Leone, then visiting China.

Clashes last year in Shanghai between African and Chinese students were sparked, in part because the Africans were dating Chinese girls. About 50 persons were injured.

Africans suffer the most among foreigners living in China, partly because of the difficulty in finding girlfriends. Many congregate discretely each evening at the Bamboo Bar in the Jing Jiang Hotel, limited to foreigners. It's a depressing hangout with twinkling Christmas tree lights all year round but where at least rock music is played freely.

"I didn't want to come to China. I was sent," a student from Zaïre said. "And all I want to do now is leave this place."

Given enough advance notice of a budding relationship between a foreigner and a local, Chinese authorities actively try to quash it.

Successfully concluded marriages have been rare.

Shanghai is widely regarded as China's trend-setting city in everything from ideology to sexual habits.

Optimism is harder for the Gary Cooper family

By ROBERT LEVEY
© The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — By now, the word "optimistic" has pretty much vanished from Gary Cooper's vocabulary.

Yes, he will say, he feels pretty good. And yes, it was good to get home last month to his wife and two kids in Manassas Park, Va.

But ask if he is optimistic about being home for long, and Cooper will reply: "Until something comes up — like I have every month."

For the last seven years, Cooper's life has been a series of hospital stays brought about by a hereditary intestinal disease called Gardner's Syndrome, which has been diagnosed in only 500 other Americans.

In those seven years, Cooper, a 36-year-old electronics engineer, has undergone 32 operations for Gardner's Syndrome and other illnesses. He has spent only six months at home; most of the time he is at the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond, 100 miles from Manassas Park. His latest release, on July 12, followed a two-week stay for blood tests.

Meanwhile, the prognosis for Cooper is not encouraging. The Gardner's Syndrome — precancerous growths that block Cooper's intestines — has been more or less arrested. But the disease and the many operations have created other problems.

Cooper has developed a blood disorder, leaving weakened arteries that could rupture and cause internal hemorrhaging.

He can be fed only intravenously because his body cannot absorb or eliminate foods with natural bulk, and must spend 13 hours every day attached to an IV machine.

The constant tension of hospitalization and worries about his family have left him with stomach ulcers.

He is so weak that doctors fear he could not overcome any infection, even a cold. Because his body is so weak, he can stay awake for no more than six hours at a time, and even then his stamina is limited.

"I might be able to walk around the house once," he says, "but that's about as far as I'd want to try."

The bottom line: "I don't expect Gary to live beyond the end of the year," says his wife, Carla, 33.

But, most devastating of all, Gary's disease is hereditary.

His father died of it, as did three cousins and an uncle. An aunt has had it. Earlier this year, the Coopers' daughter, Linda, 6, was found to have the disease, and her large intestine was removed. Meanwhile, Jimmy Cooper, 11, has been diagnosed as having a "very, very minute case" of Gardner's Syndrome.

These waves of misfortune have not washed over a wealthy family. Gary Cooper has not worked since 1976, and Carla Cooper earns only $6,200 a year, as manager of the Prince William Education Association Federal Credit (County) Union.

The family gets $800 a month in state disability benefits, but as Gary Cooper points out, "That isn't much when it costs $6,000 a month just to feed me with IVs, and when I'm facing maybe $100,000 in medical bills (that aren't covered by insurance)."

"To say that this family has been under an incredible strain would be a great understatement," said their minister, the Rev. Kenneth Ayers, associate pastor of Emmanuel Baptist Church in Manassas.

Ayers, members of his congregation and the Coopers' friends and neighbors have pulled together over the years to provide the beleaguered family with the sort of old-fashioned community support that many might have thought was extinct.

Said a friend of the Coopers, who has given time and helped raise money for them: "I've never seen a family need it more or a group of people care through better."

Donations to the Coopers have totaled more than $50,000 since 1976. Gifts have ranged from $1,000 in a Manassas Moose Club raised in a Christmas to $5,000 donated by local Century 21 real estate agents.

Meanwhile, a local news broadcast on the family last year brought in $28,000, and a similar story in a Manassas newspaper two years earlier produced $12,000.

But it has been the gifts of time and services from the Manassas Park community that have touched the Coopers most.

Every week, Gerry Robertson, a neighbor, delivers a trunkful of the glucose solution for Gary's intravenous feedings from Fairfax Hospital, where she works, to the Coopers' bungalow. "It saves us at least $10 a week in gas," says Gary Cooper.

Last spring, unannounced, six parishioners from Emmanuel Baptist came to the Coopers' home and repainted it from top to bottom.

That was just a few months after another crew had come to enclose the back porch.

There had been a still earlier crew four parishioners who turned up Cooper's car without her knowledge and at their expense, so she could be sure of getting home on Sunday nights from her husband's bedside in Richmond.

Asked why he gave his time and labor, one of the mechanics, who insisted on anonymity, replied: "It's like Mount Everest. It was there. The need was there."

Last winter, Nathan Posey, a Manassas plumber, was called in to fix some pipes at the Coopers'. "He never would send us a bill," Gary Cooper said.

Neither has Clarence Leggett, a Prince William County teacher and vice president of the credit union where Carla Cooper works.

One recent sweltering evening, his shirt sleeves pushed well back, Leggett was finishing some odd repairs in the Coopers' downstairs bathroom. "After what this family's been through," he said, "it's the least I can do."

Sull, says Carla Cooper, throughout her seven years of anguish, "the guiding spirit has been Ken."

Ken Ayers has a blond pompadour, a pair of piercing blue eyes — "and a belief in myself as an extension of God, a reminder to Carla that she isn't alone."

To Carla Cooper, Ayers has been older brother and frequent co-pilot on the Richmond-Manassas shuttle.

Both Carla Cooper and Ayers have lost track of the number of trips they have made to Gary Cooper's room in Richmond. But several were made in the middle of the night, after emergency calls from hospital personnel.

"Have I woken Ken up?" asks Carla Cooper, repeating a visitor's question. "I can't even remember how many times."

"I can't remember either," said Ayers, whose first wife died of cancer. "All the times are kind of woven together in a concert of sadness."

To Ayers, or any minister, dealing with impending death and family tragedy is part of the job. At first, he says, he saw the Cooper's situation as "routine."

But when Gary Cooper "hung on so tenaciously for so many years," and when he learned that the disease was hereditary, "I suddenly saw the seriousness of it."

His involvement has since become "as intense as anything I can ever remember in my ministry."

"There are different challenges for different members of the family," said Ayers. "I think I have intersected Gary at his point of hurt, at least a few times, and I think I've helped Carla cope."

"But I'm worried about the children. Jimmy is severely emotionally upset, and Linda is retarded (the retardation is not related to Gardner's Syndrome). And they both have the disease. So (Carla) might have to go through all this again — and again."

If so, Ayers expects the Emmanuel congregation will be there to help. The church has about 1,000 active members, and they mirror eastern Prince William County very well.

Most are in their 30s and 40s, most have families, most have lived in the area for at least five years and most hold solidly middle-class jobs — as military officers, builders, mailmen, computer technicians.

But according to several parishioners, the strongest thrust running through the congregation is a desire to help those in need who are active in the community.

Carla Cooper is certainly that. She is acting president of the Manassas Park school board and has held several church offices.

"I haven't gotten involved to look for favors," Carla Cooper said, "but I think our situation is well known around the community because I am."

The Coopers have had many hours to discuss their problems, and the one thing they would have done differently would have been to undergo genetic testing for the presence of Gardner's Syndrome.

"I always had a feeling I might get it and my children might, especially because of my dad," says Gary Cooper. "But I didn't have a checkup until I was 29."

Why not? "I just didn't get around to it," he said.

"Like all young couples, we thought it couldn't happen to us," his wife added.

Carla Cooper's emotional stability has ranged from good to invisible during the last seven years.

At one time, early in Gary's illness, "I would sneak out of church during the benediction just so no one would ask me how he was."

"(Now) I can live with the idea of Gary's death. I can talk with you about it."

"But I'm still not that stable. I don't think widowed mothers me as much as the thought of raising two children by myself."

To Ken Ayers, "We at the church have been able to keep them in our minds and our hearts. That's been our tangible way of saying 'We love you.'"

To Gary Cooper, "All I can figure is that God wouldn't have done this if there wasn't a reason."

"I'm hopeful of living a while, but I don't know how long. I won't make any guesses on that."

"I'm hopeful," he repeats, "but I'm not as hopeful as I used to be."

She uses horticulture to help the sick, elderly and retarded

By JOAN MOWER
United Press International

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Eleanor Pascualdes-Ash runs a gamut of cal-calls and whistles every day after she closes the doors to her job in a prison greenhouse.

Mrs. Pascualdes-Ash is a horticulturist and vocational instructor at Kirkland Correctional Institute, a medium-security prison in Columbia that houses more than 1,100 male prisoners.

Her working "uniform" of jeans, Mexican shirts and leather sandals is designed to put the prisoners at ease.

The 28-year-old South Carolinian is uniquely qualified to work with convicts. Several years ago, after earning a B.S. in horticulture from the University of Rhode Island, she took a master's degree in horticulture from Clemson University, one of the few American institutions to offer a program stressing horticulture's therapeutic aspects.

Dr. Tazel L. Senn, head of Clemson's horticulture department, defines hortitherapy as "the use of the arts and -skills- of horticulture to help people help themselves."

For centuries people have puttered in their gardens for relaxation and to take their minds off their problems.

Clemson, under Senn's stewardship, was among the first to offer a graduate degree and an undergraduate minor in hortitherapy. The program began in 1972.

At least eight other universities, including the University of Maryland, Kansas State and Michigan State universities, now have similar programs.

Clemson's graduate students are trained to use plants to help the sick, the elderly and the mentally retarded.

Their courses range from problems in small fruit production to floral design and the sociology of deviant behavior.

Although hortitherapy students are trained in psychology, Senn stressed they are "horticulturists first."

At Kirkland, some inmates get their sentences shortened for greenhouse and landscaping work. The program is so successful some inmates volunteer.

"This is a pretty good job — it's a better job than kitchen work," said Don Evans, 26, of Haleah, Fla.

Evans, serving 15 years for armed robbery, helped build Kirkland's greenhouse in 1976 — before he escaped. Now he's back at Kirkland as Mrs. Pascualdes-Ash's clerical assistant.

"There's personal motivation — working with plants," Evans said. An extra benefit are the vegetables that the prisoners grow for their own consumption, if they want.

John McCombs, a prisoner from Indiana, proudly pointed to a hanging green begonia basket he had watered and fertilized for months. The plants seemed to give McCombs and other inmates a sense of identity and appreciation for botany. The only bright spots in Kirkland's otherwise barren courtyard are flower beds ablaze with color. Groups of inmates play pick-up basketball there in 100-degree temperatures.

Mrs. Pascualdes-Ash also supervises the inmates' landscaping work, teaches floral designs and plans to teach landscaping design.

"We decorated the place up nice for Christmas," she said. "We made all kinds of wreaths." The prison greenhouse also provides plants for the administrative offices.

Mrs. Pascualdes-Ash's landscaping helpers include Don Corder, 35, a tattooed Floridian who operated his own landscaping business in West Palm Beach before he was arrested for dealing cocaine.

Other Clemson hortitherapy graduates have found jobs in medical centers, drug and alcohol abuse programs, nursing homes and hospitals for the mentally retarded.

The university's advanced program is not easy to get into. Senn said about five people a year are chosen from more than 120 applicants.

Once they graduate, Senn said, "We have no trouble placing the hortitherapy students, either those with a B.S. degree or a master's degree."

Clemson-trained hortitherapists with master's degrees could find jobs paying between $12,000 and $16,000, Senn said, while students with a minor in the field usually make between $10,000 and $12,500.

Ten rules on fighting inflation

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Steve Brobeck has something America is looking for in the 1960s — 10 rules telling how to fight inflation.

Brobeck, executive director of the Consumer Federation of America, drew up the rules and is preparing a pamphlet explaining his ideas and how to apply them.

The pamphlet will be printed in a month or two. Meanwhile, Brobeck outlined his material in a recent interview.

Some of the rules are just common sense. Others are drawn from Brobeck's background in consumer education and his work with CFA, the largest consumer advocacy group in the United States.

They are:
1. Budget your income
2. Shut the door on door-to-door salesmen
3. Shop with a list
4. Buy used
5. Compare prices
6. Rip up credit cards
7. Use less gasoline
8. Weatherize your home
9. Shop co-op
10. Complain dissatisfied

One of the hardest rules to follow is budgeting income, Brobeck said. "It takes some time and effort, but if you can come up with a workable budget, you'll be better off."

Door-to-door salesmen seem to prey most on lower- and middle-income people. They should be avoided for two reasons, Brobeck said. "Consumer prices tend to be higher and you're at a disadvantage shopping in your own home," he said. "You can walk out of a store and think a purchase over, but it's harder to get a persistent salesman out of your house."

Shopping with a list can save money because you are less likely to make extravagant or spur-of-the-moment purchases.

Buying used merchandise, especially from someone you are familiar with, can result in sizeable savings, Brobeck said. "By buying used you can take advantage of the tremendous depreciation," he said. "A car depreciates up to a third after the first year. A large appliance could depreciate up to one-half."

The biggest drawback in buying used goods is the lack of a warranty.

"You have to be a little more careful. Try to buy from an individual, from another member of the family or friends," he said. "You're more likely to get a decent product from someone you know."

"If you can't find what you want, look at community bulletin boards, the classified ads or even advertise yourself."

Daily recipe

By HELEN SWAINSTON Jerome

APPLE CAKE
Cream together:
2 eggs
2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon baking soda
Add:

1/2 cup water
2 cups flour
1 tablespoon cinnamon
Beat well. Then stir in:
4 cups diced apples
1/2 cup chopped nuts
Four into a 10x10-inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 50-60 minutes. Cool.

TOPPING
3 tablespoons butter
1 egg
1/2 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon rum extract
Melt butter in small skillet. Beat egg and combine with brown sugar. Add to butter and cook slowly over very low heat until thickened. Add rum extract. Cool and mix with one (4 1/2-ounce) carton of whipped topping. Refrigerate. Keeps well for several days.

Female equality raises questions

By PAUL GALLOWAY
© Chicago Sun-Times

In the last few years, with the continuing changes and issues that are part of the movement for female equality, I've seen a lot of men — including me — shake their heads and say, "It's a different world."

The recent ruling by a federal court that draft registration was unconstitutional because it excluded women was a real head-shaker.

The judges' finding was temporarily stayed while the nine men of the Supreme Court make the ultimate decision, but it has forced us to think about men and women and the military.

Conscription for military service has been chiefly, if not solely, a male concern and responsibility, because it was we men who were required to wear the uniform.

When you talk about the draft, you are really talking about war, and when you talk war, you're talking men. If you don't believe it, go to one of those big volumes of quotations by the great and learned figures of history.

I found plenty of stirring and troubling thoughts, from poets and philosophers to statesmen and generals, about war and patriotism, but none of them were made by women and none even mentioned women.

There was Thomas Paine, the Revolutionary War patriot, saying, "Those who expect to reap the blessings of freedom must, like men everywhere, undergo the fatigue of supporting it." Like men everywhere.

I'm for draft registration for men, and I'm for the draft in peacetime. I'm from that generation who grew up during World War II and accepted, without a second thought, the rightful obligation, we felt, to serve in the military.

The new reality of women's rights may mean that women have an obligation to serve, too. It is a male conceit that we view war as a province of masculinity.

TV star Valerie Harper hassled with extra pounds for she discovered weight lifting

Weight lifting has flex appeal

By PADDY CALISTRO
© The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — If you think lifting weights means looking like Arnold Schwarzenegger, you're not a dumbbell — just misinformed. Take the case of "Chapter Two" co-star Valerie Harper, whose old TV fans still call her Rhoda. She hassled with extra pounds and inches for years.

Then she discovered weight lifting. "I weighed 160 pounds when I first started on 'The Mary Tyler Moore Show,'" says the now 117-pound Harper. "I lost weight on Weight Watchers and then fluctuated between 118 and 140 during the 'Rhoda' show. I was constantly dieting but nothing would work. When I got the show in 'Chapter Two,' they told me I'd have to wear a bathing suit. I would have to show my legs on wide screen. Then I met Tony."

"Tony" is Tony Caccioti, the weightlifting and exercise guru Harper turned to when she needed to reshape her body. He taught the actress to lift weights properly and to combine aerobic exercises with the weight routine. "Three hours a day and six weeks later, Harper wore a bathing suit on camera."

While she was losing weight she and Caccioti fell in love. They've since set up housekeeping and their own film production company. "I felt gorgeous in that swimsuit," six-six Harper says, adding that now she works out about 30 minutes three times a week and runs three miles four times a week. "My body has definition, I'm stronger and I've got more energy."

"Ask just about any woman who's into weight lifting and she'll mention those three things: But definition does not mean exaggerated muscles on women. It can mean a gentle curve to the upper arm instead of saggy flab. It can mean breasts supported by well-developed pectoral muscles, making the chest rounder, firmer."

"What makes weight training so beneficial is that through proper movements you can increase or reduce any part of the body — it all depends on how you train," explains current Mr. Olympia title-holder Frank Zane. With his wife, Christine, Zane has written a book, "The Zane Way to a Beautiful Body," which outlines separate weight-training and exercise programs for men and women.

"Women have always been afraid to get involved in weightlifting because they think of it as a masculine endeavor," explains champion bodybuilder Lisa Lyons, who currently chairs the first national AAU women's committee on physique. "A woman's body has its own perfection. As she works out with weights, she will evolve in a feminine way." Lyons, at 5 feet 3, 105 pounds, sports a shapely 37-23-33 figure, yet can lift a 265-pound barbell off the ground. She admits that here is "a different reality than most women's. I'm in it for the competition. The average woman has not used her upper body at all. Therefore, results are immediately gratifying."

Lyons, Caccioti and the Zanes agree that for the beginner, weight-training "should" be coupled with stretching exercises and aerobics of some kind.

"Some people say that weightlifting is enough exercise to benefit the cardiovascular system," says Caccioti. "I agree when we're talking about heavy weights. But the average woman shouldn't begin with weights over 3 1/2 pounds, so she's not doing much for her cardiovascular system."

Caccioti contends that a set of light dumbbells, a set of barbells that can be weighted up to 60 pounds and a weight bench are all a woman needs to begin weight training at home. Lyons suggests dumbbells weighing from 2 1/2 to 5 pounds and barbells in the 12- to 15-pound range for beginners. These experts agree that weightlifting should be guided by an experienced trainer in the beginning.

Is the exercise spa or health club the answer—for the beginner in weight-training? These facilities usually have a complete set of dumbbells and barbells as well as weight-training machines and consultants who should be well trained in the use of weights and the machines. The weightlifters questioned caution that not all of these supervised exercise salons are safe. "The majority of people working in spas don't know what they're doing," says Frank Zane. "Most of them are P.E. or dance majors who learned everything from books, not practical experience." Adds Christine Zane, "Most of the instructors in those places are hired because they look good, not because they know about exercise techniques."

Lyons doesn't regard spas so critically. "Many of these spas are just fine; many are not," she says. "It's up to the person to research the place and make sure it meets her needs."

AMC President Paul Tippet unveils Renault 181, firm's new French connection

AMC shifts to 4-wheel-drive for its '81 domestic models

DETROIT (UPI) — American Motors Corp. shifted its emphasis on 1981 domestic models into four-wheel-drive Thursday.

The company is bidding to capitalize on the outdoors boom, captivate youthful consumers and revive its flagging fortunes.

Rounding out its new year previews, the automaker assumed the role of plucky pioneer by downplaying the front-wheel-drive trend — while conceding the economy must improve for its strategy to succeed.

Featured among the U.S.-made cars, trucks and Jeeps were two sportier, scaled-down versions of the four-wheel-drive Eagle.

Company officials hope the SX-4, a three-door liftback, and the Kam-mback model — base priced at $5,995 will boost Eagle sales 50 percent over the disappointing performance of the 1980 sedan and station wagon models.

"Four-wheel-drive is going to grab the adventure-oriented, the outdoors types, the car enthusiasts," said Tom Staudt, AMC's vice president in charge of marketing.

"These new models have schmaltz and pizzazz, get the juices flowing."

The mood, although still upbeat, differed somewhat from Wednesday's unveiling of AMC's newest import, the front-wheel-drive Renault 181.

The automaker is currently engaged in wide-ranging financial negotiations with Renault, its French partner, to improve its financial picture.

AMC is struggling under a meager 2.5 percent domestic market share, collapsed Jeep sales and an $84.9 million third-quarter loss that was the largest in the firm's history.

President W. Paul Tippet Jr. said the company's 1981 fuel economy averages will improve by 1 mile per gallon to 23 for passenger cars, and by 2 1/2 miles per gallon to 19 for Eagle and Jeep models.

Highlighted was the development of a six-cylinder engine made 90 pounds lighter than its predecessor by new aluminum components. Officials also said more four-cylinder engines will be produced than last year.

But AMC executives, exuding unbridled confidence the recession will end, said they believe consumers dislike energy-saving measures and will "shun carpools to buy their own wheels" if an upturn occurs.

"I think the mileage numbers game is beginning to wear thin on the public," Tippet said. "They just want to know the car is in the ballpark."

Tippet said AMC expects to sell some 100,000 four-wheel-drive vehicles in 1981 and 160,000-185,000 passenger car models.

The Renault 181, a U.S. version of a front-wheel-drive sedan-wagon model the giant French automaker introduced in Europe about two years ago, was shown to reporters Wednesday as "the first example of a truly cooperative effort between Renault and American Motors."

That partnership is aimed at U.S. production of a Renault car in 1982. Joint planning, design and marketing work for future AMC-Renault ventures currently is underway, company officials said.

More gas, less crude for nation

NEW YORK (UPI) — The American Petroleum Institute says U.S. crude oil imports plunged to a five-year low last week.

At the same time, domestic refineries cut output as petroleum inventories continued abnormally high.

The oil industry trade association said Wednesday gasoline stocks declined in the week ending Aug. 15, partly reflecting the normal pattern for the peak summer driving season, but also as a result of the lower production levels. They were, however, far above the year-ago level.

Industry analysts said the low import and refinery production figures reflected continued slack consumer demand for all oil products, resulting in surging petroleum inventories.

For the latest week, crude oil imports were 4.2 million barrels daily, down from 4.5 million the previous week and a sharp drop from the 6.6 million a year earlier, API said.

It said the figure was the lowest in roughly the past five years. Crude imports hit a low of 2.5 million barrels daily in mid-1975.

Inventories of crude declined slightly to 370.2 million barrels from 373.4 million the previous week but were sharply higher than last year's inventories at this time of 316.9 million barrels.

The nation's refineries operated at 69.9 percent capacity in the latest week, compared with 70.3 percent a week earlier and 88.5 percent at this time last year, API said.

Gasoline inventories for the week declined to 259.0 million barrels from 262.2 million a week earlier, but were sharply higher than year-ago inventories of 231.9 million barrels, API said.

It said gasoline production slipped to 6.2 million barrels daily from 6.3 million the preceding week and was well below last year's output at this time of 6.9 million.

Inventories of distillates, used primarily for home heating oil, showed typical seasonal increases, rising to 219.1 million barrels from 216.8 million the previous week. They were significantly higher than year-ago inventories of 182.8 million barrels.

AT&T seeks delay for restructuring

NEW YORK (UPI) — The federally mandated restructuring of American Telephone & Telegraph is "far too massive" to be completed by the March 1982 deadline, Chairman Charles L. Brown says.

Brown said Wednesday he hopes the Federal Communications Commission will extend its deadline for separation of AT&T's customer equipment business from its regulated telephone services "so that we can comply without disrupting anything."

"We have submitted to them our comments on their order. We think the restructuring is far too massive to do in that time," Brown said.

"I presume the FCC would not want to disrupt our operations, and I'm sure they would take clear account of this."

AT&T's board announced approval of a major restructuring of the Bell system designed to comply with the FCC order, as well as plans to buy the remaining public shares of four subsidiaries in anticipation of establishment of the separate equipment subsidiary.

It also authorized creation of a new wholly owned international subsidiary to consolidate all of Bell's overseas business, and consolidation of the pension funds of the various Bell companies to facilitate intercompany transfers.

The four subsidiaries in which the public minority shares will be bought up are Mountain States Telephone & Telegraph Co., New England Telephone & Telegraph Co., Pacific Northwest Telephone & Telegraph Co., and Pacific Telephone.

CHARLES L. BROWN — far too massive

Brown emphasized the AT&T board action Wednesday was "phase one," with the actual restructuring to come later in a deliberate and systematic manner.

"We are not rushing headlong into the future," he said. "The stakes are too high to permit that."

Brown said the company at this point was "setting the stage" for the restructuring. The distinction is an important one. "We are not, for example, recommending any change in the structure of the Bell telephone companies or Western Electric or Bell Laboratories at this time."

Robots in works

HORSHAM, Pa. (UPI) — Kulleck and Soffa Industries Inc. Thursday announced plans to form a subsidiary for the production of industrial robots.

The initial production will concentrate on "pick and place" robots capable of lifting five pounds, and placing items accurately — within one-thousandth of an inch — at a destination. The robots would be used for electronic assembly, testing, packaging and general manufacturing.

Magnavox signs navigation contract

MOSCOW (UPI) — Magnavox Co. has signed a contract to supply navigation equipment to the Soviet Union, the Tass news agency announced Thursday.

The contract was signed Wednesday in Leningrad by James Bell, a Magnavox representative, and the Soviet foreign trade association, Sudimport.

Tass quoted Bell as saying he signed the contract personally to demonstrate the firm's readiness to continue and expand its Soviet trade.

Tass said the navigation equipment produced by Magnavox would be installed on fishing vessels.

Factory orders volume surges 8.4% during July

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After five months of decline, new orders flowing to manufacturers of durable goods increased 8.4 percent in July.

That was their largest gain in a decade, the Commerce Department said Thursday.

The rebound in new factory orders the largest increase since an 11.1 percent jump in December, 1970 — gave fresh evidence that the nation is starting to pull out of the current recession, its seventh economic downturn since World War II.

The Commerce Department said new orders rose $5.6 billion or 8.4 percent to a seasonally adjusted $72.1 billion in July. It was the first increase in orders since January and followed steep declines in April, May and June — when the full force of recession slammed into the economy.

About a third of the increase in orders came in the automobile sector, the department said.

According to Commerce, orders coming into auto and other transportation equipment producers rose $3.2 billion or 25 percent in July to a seasonally adjusted $15.8 billion.

But the overall increase in durable goods — those products designed to last more than three years — was not totally the doing of the auto industry. Autos aside, the department said all other factory orders increased an encouraging 5.9 percent last month.

New orders for the primary metals industries, particularly for steel manufacturers, were up $1.7 billion or 18.5 percent to a seasonally adjusted $10.6 billion.

The only category to show a loss was the machinery industry, which saw orders drop a modest 0.6 percent or $100 million to $22.9 billion.

In another part of the report, Commerce said the dollar value of durable goods shipments showed its first increase in five months, rising $2.5 billion or 3.6 percent to $71.6 billion.

At the same time, the backlog of unfilled orders increased $500 million or 0.2 percent to $270.9 billion, ending two months of decline.

Import tax draws blast from Toyota

TOKYO (UPI) — A Toyota Motor executive warned Thursday that the U.S. decision to slap a 25 percent import tax on unassembled trucks would squeeze American consumers' pocketbooks and "the higher prices will accelerate inflation in the U.S."

The new tariff replaces the previous 5 percent and is part of a U.S. move to curb escalating Japanese auto imports.

"Toyota intends to take steps to overturn the reclassification tariff, especially since it does not satisfy legal requirements," Suzuki Yamamoto, president of Toyota Motor Sales, said.

"Through Toyota U.S.A. It will follow procedures outlined in the U.S. customs laws to enter a complaint with the U.S. Treasury Department and then file a lawsuit in the customs court," he added.

Yamamoto said the company hopes "the Japanese government will protest strongly this highly unreasonable action of the U.S. government by appealing to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade."

The company will also urge the government to use "diplomatic measures to have the tariff reduced."

Institutional buying surge spurs stocks to sharp gains

By FRANK W. SLUSSER

United Press International

NEW YORK — Stocks, carried along on an institutional buying stampede, scored a sharp and broad gain Thursday.

The Dow Jones industrial average, a 46-point winner Wednesday, started in the final 90 minutes to gain 9.75 points to 855.03.

Many institutions, which missed out on the beginning of the spring-summer rally, found stock prices attractive following the market's slide Tuesday and Wednesday.

The New York Stock Exchange index rose 1.80 to 237 and the price of a share declined 52 cents.

Big volume traded on 57,700,000 shares from 42,500,000 traded Wednesday.

Investors were encouraged the Senate Finance Committee, which agreed to a billion tax cut measure Wednesday.

Traders also were impressed by the government's report that July durable goods orders rose 8.4 percent, the first increase since they rose 5.5 percent in January.

Traders also were impressed by the government's report that July durable goods orders rose 8.4 percent, the first increase since they rose 5.5 percent in January.

Brokers said investors speculated they will get favorable news today when the government reports on consumer prices and the Federal Reserve releases its money supply figures.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 4 p.m. totaled 55,678,183 shares compared with 48,365,800 traded Wednesday.

The American Stock Exchange Index soared 6.43 to a record 331.69 and the price of a share rose 38 cents.

At 4 p.m., Phillips Petroleum, which recently reported disappointing second-quarter earnings, was the most active NYSE-listed issue, up 1/4 to 40 in trading that included blocks of 400,000 shares at 40 1/4 and 100,000 shares at 40 1/2.

Tesoro Petroleum, the second most active issue, rose 3/4 to 30 with a block of 125,000 shares at 30. Tesoro rejected a takeover offer from Diamond Shamrock, which has acquired 630,000 Tesoro shares.

Cities Service was the fourth most active issue, up 3/4 to 42 after a block of 150,000 shares at 38 1/4. Among the other oils and related issues, Ocean Drilling & Exploration rose 3/4 to 15 1/2, Schlumberger 1/2 to 10 3/4, International 3/4 to 5 1/4, Indiana Standard 1/4 to 6 3/4, Ohio Standard 1/4 to 5 and Superior Oil 1/2 to 17 1/2.

City Investing, which has been the object of a takeover for a long time, was the third most active issue, up 2 1/2 to 26 1/2.

Amex stocks

In the Amex, advances topped declines 454-172 among the 825 issues traded at 4 p.m.

Volume at that time totaled 8,780,000 shares, compared with 6,410,000 Wednesday.

Husky Oil, which announced results of two confirmation oil wells in Wyoming, was the most active Amex issue, up 1/4 to 16 1/4.

Houston Oil & Minerals followed, off 3/4 to 34 1/4.

Drilling & Exploration rose 3/4 to 15 1/2, Schlumberger 1/2 to 10 3/4, International 3/4 to 5 1/4, Indiana Standard 1/4 to 6 3/4, Ohio Standard 1/4 to 5 and Superior Oil 1/2 to 17 1/2.

City Investing, which has been the object of a takeover for a long time, was the third most active issue, up 2 1/2 to 26 1/2.

Ford defends its safety record on transmissions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Ford Motor Co. vice president said Thursday the automaker hit a "stone wall of silence" when it tried to cooperate with the government and answer allegations of a defect in its automatic transmissions.

Herbert Misch said the firm took "unprecedented steps" to determine if there was a reasonable basis for charges that transmissions on as many as 26 million Ford vehicles can jump from park to reverse.

Misch testified at a National Highway Traffic Safety Administration hearing into whether to make final a tentative conclusion that the transmissions can slip into reverse when the gear selector is left in park.

A final decision, which could lead to the largest recall in automotive history, is not expected for about three months.

Investigations produced "absolutely no evidence of a defect," he said, but the results "were presented to NHTSA and greeted with silence."

After Misch testified, former Transportation Secretary William Coleman, now representing Ford, used charts and diagrams to counter, point-by-point, the safety agency's technical analysis of the transmissions.

Earlier Thursday, the head of a consumer group that first alerted the government to the alleged "park-to-reverse" problem urged Ford to voluntarily recall all its vehicles with automatic transmissions.

"In the Center-for-Auto Safety's 10 years of experience as a consumer auto safety group, the center has never seen a safety defect as lethal as that in the 1966-79 Fords where automatic transmissions slip from park into reverse," Clarence Dillow, executive director of the Center for Auto Safety said.

Transmissions were redesigned in 1980 models.

Dillow's testimony opened the second day of hearings.

Interstate shooting victim shot five times

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

GOODING — A Little Rock, Ark., man remained in stable condition Thursday night in a Jerome hospital with five bullet wounds in the chest and arm.

Authorities investigating the Wednesday night shooting incident on Interstate 84 near Bliss identified the victim as Cecil Nelson, 43.

Nelson was in the critical care unit of St. Benedict's Hospital in Jerome, where Hospital Administrator Robert Campbell Jr. said he was being treated for three bullet wounds in the chest and two in the left arm. The caliber of the bullets causing the wounds was not released by investigating officers.

Officers also are only saying the shooting may have been caused by an argument.

Two suspects in the shooting were being returned from Boise by Gooding County officers Thursday night to face charges.

Ada County officials said Wayne W. Hatch, 49, of Gordon, Neb., and Cecil T. Redding, 41, of Wewoka, Okla., were arraigned there Thursday afternoon on charges of assault with intent to commit murder. Each was placed under $5,000 bond and held for Gooding authorities.

They will be scheduled to appear in 5th District Magistrate Court in Gooding to enter pleas in the shooting.

Idaho State Police who arrested the two about 14 miles east of Boise an hour after the shooting said Nelson was apparently traveling with two male companions. The three had picked up two hitchhikers in the Burley area and another in the Twin Falls area.

Officers said Nelson was apparently shot and forced from a vehicle about two miles east of Bliss about 6:30 p.m. Wednesday. The hitchhikers were let out unharmed at the same point.

Officers said the hitchhikers flagged down a truck driver who called for medical assistance and notified officers via citizen's band radio.

An all-points bulletin was issued by the Gooding County sheriff's office for two suspects traveling in a tan-colored van with Nebraska license plates.

State Troopers Larry Sterling and Larry McGill were patrolling between Mountain Home and Boise when they spotted a vehicle fitting the description and followed it about three miles before pulling it over. Sterling said he and McGill used their vehicle doors for shields and armed with shotguns, ordered the occupants to come out and lie on the ground. The driver complied but the passenger first refused, then later complied.

The two officers kept both suspects face down beside the road until three other state officers arrived to assist with the arrests. Officers said the arrest was just inside the Ada County line and the prisoners were taken to Boise for booking.

Gooding County Sheriff Robert Aja had been in Boise most of Thursday questioning the suspects and continuing the investigation.

Officers said a loaded .38 caliber pistol was found in the suspect's vehicle.

Aja was unavailable for comment Wednesday night and all day Thursday in Gooding.

Twin Falls awaits $950,000 in grants

When more runway funds will arrive still not known

TWIN FALLS — If federal and state grants materialize, the Twin Falls City-County Airport will have about $950,000 for runway extension in the coming year.

Airport advisory board members, meeting with city and county officials this week, reviewed the various requests and revenues anticipated in the 1980-81 budget and approved the proposed schedule.

City Manager Tom Courtney said the total budget proposal for the airport is $1.34 million, of which about $650,000 will be in federal and state grants and another $50,000 from city and county revenue as the local participation in the runway extension project.

"At this point we don't know if we will get any federal and state money, or if we do, how much we will get. We have to look at the budget and see how we can use it if we do get it," he added.

The remaining $341,000 in the budget will be used for airport maintenance and operation, Courtney said. Operation figure remains the same in spite of inflated costs of supplies, materials and labor because a number of priorities were changed.

"We look at some of the things we had proposed for this year and decided to divert some of the money from these special projects into the maintenance and operation part of the budget," Courtney said.

He said the project to extend the airport's main runway by 1,500 feet is an ongoing project with about another three years effort needed for completion.

"If we get the grants we have applied for, we should be able to get the fill work completed, including the fill needed to cover the old road east of the present runway boundary," Courtney said. "We may even get some base work started in the coming season, but it will be some time yet before we are ready for the final surfacing."

Twin Falls School Board reviews cutback in state funds next week

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls School Board will hold a special meeting on the 3-percent cutback in state funds, probably next week. Superintendent James Sawin said Thursday.

Sawin said a date has not been set but that the board "will discuss the issue prior to the deadline for certifying its property tax levy to the county Sept. 8. The board's regular meeting is Sept. 9."

The district lost $169,000 in a $75 million cutback of the appropriation to public schools because of a forecasted deficit in state revenue. Idaho law requires counties to levy additional property taxes to raise the amount for each school district.

"The amount of money has already been certified by the state Board of Education to the counties," Sawin said. "As I understand it, they are obligated to collect it under the law."

He said the only way the district has to deal with the issue is to consider amending its budget, which the board adopted in June for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

"We would have to amend the budget and deal with the issue under the property tax freeze we are under and have been under."

At the board's last meeting Aug. 5, State Rep. T.W. "Tom" Silvers, R-Twin Falls, asked the board to consider reducing its budget to compensate for the additional property taxes.

And Twin Falls County Commission Chairman Merl Leonard told the Times-News Wednesday he planned to make the same request to district officials to hold property taxes on an even level.

Silvers noted the district carried over $350,000 from last year and bid for a $100,000 contingency fund.

Sawin said the carry-over was treated as revenue to be used in the operation and regular expenditures of the district in 1980-81, including salaries.

"It's not out dangling by itself," he said. "The contingency fund has also been budgeted the last three years, but twice the district did not receive the revenue to fund it, Sawin said.

"No one can tell you whether we'll receive it," he said. "We won't know until June 1981."

He said the largest portion of the budget, 75 percent, is state revenue, but that is based on an educated guess of the number of students the district will have this year.

Asked about the school board's recent approval of spending $172,000 to build tennis courts and renovate a junior high school track, Sawin said the money did not come from the maintenance and operation part of the budget.

He said the sources were a student loan that raised $30,000, a $45,500 state grant and the plant facilities fund. Contributing to that fund were the sales of the old O'Leary Junior High and Washington Elementary schools and the 2-mill, 10-year plant facility levy approved by voters in 1978.

Also, on June 10 the board transferred $400,000 from the general fund to the plant facilities fund.

Sawin said the board will use the money from time to time for "depreciation purposes," improving buildings and replacing equipment. An example is remodeling to save energy.

He said the district had been unable to fund such expenditures previously because of budget restrictions. He said the district has $25 million worth of buildings plus equipment.

Through improvements and scheduled replacement of equipment, the district is trying to obtain the best benefit of the taxpayer dollar, he said.

For safety's sake

Idaho Department of Transportation employees Sid Goul of Pocatello and Steve Baker of Boise hang traffic signal lights Thursday at the Lincoln Elementary School crossing on Addison Avenue in Twin Falls. Adult crossing guards will operate the lights, which should be operating by Monday, the first day of school.

Demand for fresh vegetables exceeds farmers' market supply

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

HAILEY — The organizer of a Saturday farmers market in Hailey says the idea is catching on, but demand still exceeds the supply of vegetables.

Thao Bird appealed Thursday to Magic Valley farmers and gardeners to bring their excess tomatoes, corn, beans, fruit and other produce Saturday to the First Avenue curb in front of the Blaine County Courthouse.

The second weekly market Aug. 16 yielded lettuce, squash, carrots, raspberries and beans from the Wood River Valley, she said, as well as corn, potatoes, cucumbers, arpcots, peaches, squash, peppers, cabbage, tomatoes and muskmelon from Buhl, Jerome and Hagerman.

She plans to bring a card table this week for small gardeners who have just an armful of produce to sell. Participants at the table will be charged less than the $2 growers' fee, she said.

Bird said she became interested in farmers markets while living in Santa Fe, N.M., and later helped organize a market when she moved to Albuquerque, where she had a large garden.

"Here, I don't have a garden, but I'm awful hungry for fresh garden produce," the organizer said.

She offered several tips to producers who may be thinking about joining the market for the first time:

- Arrive early to set up. The market opens promptly at 8 a.m. and the market closes early is usually brisk.
- Use a vehicle tailgate or bring a stand. Attractive displays are a plus. Post your name and locale.
- Share a tailgate or a truck. Growers are charged $2 per tailgate, more for trucks.
- Keep produce off the ground and help clean up the area.

She also asked buyers and sellers alike to leave dogs at home and park vehicles not used in the market outside the area.

Persons with questions about the market can call Marsha Riemann, Hailey, at 788-2523 or Betty Capps, Richfield, at 487-2936 evenings or Lynda Pyrak, Carey, at 823-4590 or Yvette Short, Hailey, at 788-4489 during the mornings.

In addition to fresh produce, Saturday's market will feature a bake sale sponsored by the Bellevue Legion Auxiliary, Bird said.

She said she is trying to interest as many people as possible in forming an organization to continue the market in future years. Whether the Hailey location is maintained will depend on the wishes of participants, she said.

Bird estimated that the growing season will allow at least four more Saturday markets this year. She said the events will continue this year as long as vegetables are available.

Crazy Crow will harass dogs 'nevermore'

TWIN FALLS — Crazy Crow is the dog who harassed his pet.

But Crazy Crow had his staunch supporters, too.

One woman living on Quincy Street, said she hoped he would be spared.

"It is better than any dog catcher," she said.

She said she and her neighbors appreciated the help they had from Crazy Crow in chasing all of the free roaming dogs home and patrolled the streets to prevent their return.

Fish and Game officials said they believed the crow or raven might have been someone's pet. He was very tame and possibly was trained to keep dogs in their places.

The big black bird had become a familiar sight along the president streets and had made a number of human friends and more than a few canine enemies, police said.

Traffic accident injuries kill Lee

TWIN FALLS — Loyd A. Lee, 70, of Twin Falls, died Thursday morning of injuries sustained in a traffic accident early Tuesday.

Lee, a resident of Twin Falls the past three years, was driving from his home at Lazy J Mobile Home Court about 9 a.m. when his pickup truck collided with a two-ton truck on Pole Line Road.

Twin Falls sheriff's officers said the man had recently undergone heart surgery and at first it was feared he might have suffered a heart attack or blacked out before pulling from the driveway onto Pole Line Road.

He told officers he did not see the approaching truck. The eastbound truck on Pole Line Road was driven by Jerry Sparks, 38, of Twin Falls. He estimated his speed at about 40 miles per hour.

County Coroner Cloyce Edwards said Lee died of multiple internal injuries resulting from the traffic accident.

Lee was a former long-time resident of Richfield where he had been active in community and farm organization affairs.

FBI investigates Custer sheriff's office

BOISE (UPI) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation and the U.S. Justice Department are investigating alleged fraud in the Custer County Sheriff's Department, KBCI-TV reported Thursday.

The Boise television station, in a copyright story, said the FBI is investigating charges that Custer County deputies in the Stanley area have been involved in a scheme to defraud the U.S. Forest Service.

Custer County Sheriff Sid Teuscher Thursday night in a telephone interview with his Challis home confirmed KBCI's story, saying he was notified of the investigation just before the FBI began its probe "six or seven weeks ago."

The station said for the past two months FBI agents have been checking into allegations that the sheriff's office turned in fraudulent vouchers for law enforcement patrols within the Sawtooth National Forest.

One former deputy, Tom Sindon, told KBCI he filled out blank vouchers at the request of his supervisor, former deputy Carl Ellis. Both deputies have been suspended from their jobs, Teuscher said.

Sindon said Ellis allegedly told him to sign the vouchers and Ellis would complete them and turn them in to forest officials for payment. Sindon said he would receive federal paychecks, ranging from $300 to $900, at the end of each month.

"Ellis told me that when I received my checks, I was to take out $75 dollars for myself and turn the rest over to him and to tell no one," Sindon told KBCI.

He said he was not the only one of Custer County's deputies involved in the scheme.

"I'm well acquainted with one of the FBI agents and he called me and told me the story and told me he was coming in," Teuscher said Thursday night.

Doctors, nurses back care of elderly, poor

BOISE (UPI) — Representatives of Idaho's doctors and nurses told a special legislative committee on Medicaid today the state needs to continue to provide adequate health care to Idaho's elderly and poor.

The committee is searching for a solution to Idaho Medicaid's projected $20.6 million deficit for fiscal 1981.

Dr. M. Clayton Morgan, president of the Idaho Medical Association, said the state needs to develop a public policy for its Medicaid program, outlining how health care will be provided, how it will be paid for and by whom.

"The program is moving toward cost savings through one primary means — the limitation of access," Morgan said.

Morgan said Idaho's doctors were displeased with the amount of paperwork required by the government to take part in the program and with the "inappropriate level of reimbursement."

He said he received $840 from Medicaid for a patient visit compared to the $14 he usually charges.

"Private patients are assessed to make up for the loss," Morgan said.

Ruby Crosby, a registered nurse and certified nurse practitioner representing the Idaho Nurses Association, said the Medicaid program has failed to provide adequate health services to the elderly.

She also suggested several ways to cut Medicaid costs.

Iraqi wants Church's Israel views 'reformed'

Politicians feel Arab group meddling

BOISE (UPI) — The Secretary General of Arab People to American People said Thursday he does not think Sen. Frank Church should be re-elected, that Church should be "reformed" on his views supporting Israel.

"We are concerned with peace in the Middle East and therefore opposed to all American arms aid to both Israel and the Arab states," Dr. M.T. Mehdi of New York. "The huge amounts given in arms aid to Israel — and to the Arabs should be suspended and spent instead in America to create jobs and fight the recession."

"We've questioned Sen. Church's policy as head of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, not as the senator for Idaho," said Frank Maria, who represented the Antiochian Orthodox Christian Archdiocese of North America. "Sen. Church yields tremendous international power... he could do something for his country."

Mehdi said his group wants Church to oppose any military aid to Israel or the Arab countries, to advocate a general arms embargo and spend the $20 million being sent to Israel and the Arab states on programs in the United States.

Idaho for Church Committee Chairman Carl Burke said Thursday Mehdi's campaign to convince Church to oppose military aid to the Middle East is a "guise" to "influence Idaho opinion against" Church, Mehdi denies the charge.

Mehdi's organization has placed advertisements in papers throughout the Northwest, urging several senators and congressmen, including Church, to oppose military aid to Israel and the Arab countries.

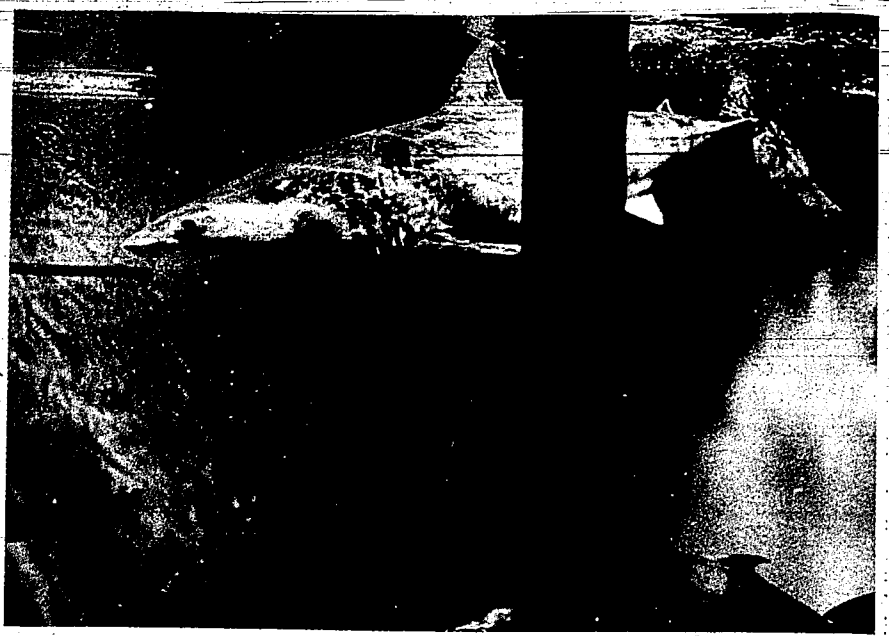

He said "politicians supporting are 'degrading' the American system — a system that provides for the separation of church and state, Mehdi said he was opposed to any country being governed by a religion, saying it is "ridiculous in the 20th century."

He said he was not campaigning to defeat Church, but said Church "should be reformed." He said if Rep. Steve Symms were elected to the Senate and he was pro-Israel, "we'd say the same thing to Symms."

Mehdi, who is an Iraqi in the process of gaining U.S. citizenship, said there is no similar organization in the Soviet Union urging that government to halt military aid to the Middle East. Iraq receives military aid from Russia.

He said although he was born in Iraq, he considers himself an American and is concerned with America's actions. He said if the United States withdraws its aid, those countries in the Middle East which are receiving aid from Russia will no longer be, and a peaceful solution to the Palestinian question will be reached.

"In his advertisements, Mehdi has opposed U.S. aid to Israel and Egypt," Burke said. "These countries are the most reliable allies of the United States in the Middle East, and together have been the recipients of American aid to offset the billions of dollars in Russian aid poured each year into the radical Arab states of Libya, Syria and Iraq, as well as South Yemen."

Smiling at visitors?

This seven-foot female Great White Shark, captured Tuesday north of San Francisco, was reported growing stronger early Thursday and a favorite with large crowds of people. The young female is being held in a special tank at the Steinhart Aquarium in San Francisco. If she lives, she would be the first such fish to survive captivity.

KBCI lawyers fight subpoena in court today

BOISE (UPI) — Attorneys for KBCI-TV today appear in 4th district court today to try and stop a subpoena requiring the station turn over all videotapes taken during the Idaho State Penitentiary riot July 23-24.

County Prosecuting Attorney Jim Harris has obtained the subpoena, which requires News Director Paul Riess to appear at the Idaho Attorney General's office Monday to testify and turn over the videotapes. "Whether original or copies, depicting the scenes and activities" during the prison riot.

Today's hearing, scheduled for 11 a.m. Friday at the Boise courtroom, will be to determine if the subpoena must be honored.

The subpoena has been issued in connection with a lawsuit filed by Riess, KBCI and station owner Eugene Television Inc. against Harris and the State of Idaho to protest a newsroom search, in which videotapes taken of rioting inmates were apprehended.

Harris ordered a search of the Boise television station's newsroom after the riot, obtaining copies of videotapes taken inside the inmate-held prison. That search sparked protests from the news media across the nation and calls for a national law prohibiting such searches.

Sagebrush Rebellion side heard by Kiwanis members

By DAVID MORRISSEY Times-Mirror writer

TWIN FALLS — Is the Sagebrush Rebellion just a little guerrilla war? Or will the land-anxious rebels successfully overcome the federal government's claim to Western acres?

According to Vern Ravenscroft, the future of Idaho and its neighboring states will be significantly affected by the answers to these questions.

If the Sagebrush Rebellion is successful, he said, Western states will gain increased prosperity at the same time they eliminate "many useless and unnecessary federal interventions into our life."

All of the challenges are also based on the premise that state governments can manage federal lands more profitably and more responsibly than can the federal government.

"Charges that the states are incapable of successfully managing the lands are not based on fact, he said."

The former state legislator said the first challenge is coming through the courts. Nevada has attempted to begin a lawsuit challenging the federal government's claim to unappropriated BLM lands within its state. Six other state legislatures, including Idaho's, have encouraged that action, although none has contributed funding for the suit. To date, however, Nevada's lawsuit has not yet been formally begun.

Loyd Alma Lee

TWIN FALLS — Loyd Alma Lee, 70, of Twin Falls, a long-time resident of Rivada, died Wednesday at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital as a result of injuries received in an automobile accident Tuesday.

He was born May 15, 1910, at Oakley, and was a life-long member of the LDS Church and served in various positions. He married Fay Bullock Sept. 25, 1933, at Twin Falls. The marriage was blessed in the Lincoln County LDS Church in 1936. He was active in community services at Richfield, was on the Lincoln County AISC board for several years, on the Lincoln County Draft Board for 13 years, and served on the Richfield School Board. He farmed at Richfield 37 years before retiring three years ago when he moved to Twin Falls.

He is survived by his wife of Twin Falls; a son, Loyd LeRoy Lee in the Army; a son, Fred Lee, a daughter, Mrs. Maryanne Sprouton of Jerome; seven grandchildren; a brother, Ross C. Lee of Jerome; and two sisters, Beulah Blumler of Eden and Zelma Corral of Gault, Calif. He was preceded in death by his parents, a sister, and a brother.

Services will be at 1 p.m. Saturday in the 8th ward LDS Church on Harrison Street at Twin Falls with Bishop Bradford Hansen officiating. Burial will be in the Oakley Cemetery. Friends may call at the Berglund Funeral Chapel at Shoshone from 4 to 9 p.m. today, and at the church until 1 p.m. Saturday.

Reed Bryant

BURLEY — Reed Bryant, 71, of Burley, died Thursday of a lingering illness at Cassia Memorial Hospital. Services are pending and will be announced by Payne Funeral Chapel.

Woodrow Reeves

TWIN FALLS — Woodrow W. Reeves, 68, of Twin Falls, died Wednesday at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital after a short illness.

He was born Nov. 12, 1913, at Green Forest, Ark., and married Margaret While July 25, 1937. He served in the Armed Forces during World War II.

Surviving are his wife of Twin Falls; a daughter, Carol Scoggins of Twin Falls; two stepdaughters, Sharon White of Portland and Barbara Smith of Boise; and two stepsons, Richard White of Tillamook, Ore., and John White of Portland.

Services will be at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at White Mortuary Chapel, with burial in Sunset Memorial Park.

Jerome resident guilty of tax fraud

BOISE — A Jerome man, Howard C. Johnson, 55, was convicted on tax charges Wednesday in U.S. District Court in Boise.

Johnson appeared before Judge Fred M. Taylor on charges of willful failure to file federal income tax returns for 1976 and 1977. Assistant U.S. Attorney Deborah Ball presented testimony indicating Johnson had received correspondence from the Ogden Service Center telling him that his returns were unacceptable as submitted.

Johnson was given the option to submit acceptable returns on which income tax could be figured and informed that failure to comply could result in criminal penalty. Maximum penalty for willful failure to file is one year in prison, $10,000 fine, or both, on each count. Judge Taylor scheduled sentencing for Sept. 29 in Boise.

The second thrust of Sagebrush Rebellion proponents is coming through Congress, Ravenscroft said. Legislation has been introduced by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, to transfer unappropriated BLM lands to Western States.

The third thrust is coming from "Sagebrush Rebellion Inc.," Ravenscroft said. His private lobbying firm, funded by individual and corporate donations is coordinating "grass-roots" efforts to challenge BLM policies at the federal level and through state legislative action.

Twin Falls gets tennis court grant

TWIN FALLS — After seeking a state grant to help build his new tennis court, Twin Falls High School for nearly two years, the school district finally gave up and decided to build them on its own.

And then the grant came through. Superintendent James Sawin said the Idaho Parks and Recreation Department notified the district last Friday of the $45,500 grant and authorization to proceed with construction.

With about $30,000 for the courts raised by a student fund-drive, the grant reduces the district's cost to about $15,000.

The Twin Falls School Board Aug. 5 approved the $172,000 project, which includes renovation of the track and field at Robert Stuart Junior High School. Construction of the courts cost $94,517 and the track, $77,883. The district money comes from the plant facilities fund.

Sawin said the district had applied for the parks and recreation grant for half the cost of the original bid of $91,000 for the tennis courts in 1978.

Sawin said building is proceeding because the district wants to take advantage of remaining good weather and have the courts and track completed by October.

The grant comes from federal funds, which are allocated to the state for distribution, but will not be received until after October, the beginning of the federal fiscal year, Sawin said.

Nurses course being offered

TWIN FALLS — A refresher course for nurses will be held in early September by the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

The curriculum will include self-study programs, with coaching from the hospital's Educational Services, and supervised clinical practice.

Course fee is $100, which includes materials.

Interested nurses should have either a valid license to practice nursing in Idaho or should write the State Board of Nursing for a special temporary license, which will be valid for the course's clinical work.

Those wishing to take the course should contact the MVMH Education Services Department by Sept. 1. Call 737-2007.

Espo substitute Hansen principal

TWIN FALLS — Barry Espo will substitute as principal of Hansen High School for Robert Sherman, who is ill.

Classes in the Hansen School District began Monday. High school seniors register at 10 a.m. and juniors at 1 p.m., both Thursday, and sophomores at 10 a.m. and freshmen at 1 p.m., both Friday.

Superintendent Garth Miller said a new social studies teacher has been hired to replace Shauna Robinson, who resigned recently to accept a position in the Twin Falls School District.

Mike Wozniak of Boise will teach high school and 8th-grade social studies. He holds a master's degree and has taught for about seven years.

For about 12 years, Miller said, he has worked for a pharmaceutical company in a job related to education.

Miller said the school board, which held its regular August meeting Monday night, discussed the 3-percent cutback in state funds, which was ordered by the governor and to be made up by additional local property taxes.

He said the board didn't feel it could reduce its budget to compensate for the state deficit, although voters approved a $12,000,000 levy this year.

"We felt the budget is about as low as we could live with," Miller said.

Murtaugh reports enrollment increase

TWIN FALLS — Murtaugh school enrollment is up "slightly" over last year, clerk Jennine Bennett reports.

Classes which began Monday, were filled with 123 students in kindergarten through sixth grade and 85 in grades seven through 12.

Bennett said the "district" usually loses a few students later in the fall.

Total enrollment of 911 is up slightly from last year and well above the 194 two years ago.

The breakdown is as follows: 24 in kindergarten, 18 in first grade, 18 in second, 16 in third, 16 in fourth, 15 in fifth, 21 in sixth, 18 in seventh, 15 in eighth, 11 in ninth, 14 in 10th, 11 in 11th and 14 in 12th.

Dorsett agrees to pact

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI) — Star running back Tony Dorsett and the Dallas Cowboys Thursday agreed to contract terms that will prevent the fourth year Heisman Trophy winner from walking out of camp.

Earlier in the week reports surfaced that Dorsett was dissatisfied with his contract and wanted to renegotiate.

A Cowboys spokesman said Gil Brandt, vice president in charge of personnel, met with Dorsett and his agent, Mike Trope of Los Angeles, and a decision was reached. Formal signing is expected this weekend in Dallas.

The spokesman termed the agreement "an extension" on Dorsett's current contract, which runs until the end of next season. The spokesman would not say how long the new contract runs or how much money is involved. He confirmed Dorsett was given a raise.

New reports have suggested that although Dorsett had a contract calling for several hundred thousand dollars per year, he only received $50,000 per year with the rest deferred into a retirement plan.

Dorsett threatened to walk out of camp if he was not given a raise.

The initial dispute between Dorsett and the Cowboys surfaced in an interview with Dorsett's attorney in Pittsburgh, Steve Sokol. Dorsett was a star halfback for Pitt where he won the Heisman Trophy.

Since turning professional Dorsett has earned Rookie of the Year honors and has collected more than 1,000 yards rushing in each of his four years with the Cowboys.

In a news conference earlier in the week, Cowboys coach Tom Landry said free safety Randy Hughes, plagued with a dislocated shoulder since a game last December, would wear a different shoulder harness against the Houston Oilers this Saturday but said it didn't work Hughes might be out for the year.

Landry said it was Hughes' decision to play but if his shoulder popped out again, surgery might be necessary that would take him out of action until next season.

Despite the harnesses, Hughes' shoulder already has popped out a couple of times in both practice and an exhibition game. Doctors say the shoulder cannot get any worse, so additional play could not compound the problem.

Although scheduled to play, if something should happen to prevent him from starting against the Oilers, Landry tagged backup free safety Dennis Thurman for the job.

Landry said he had not asked retired safety Cliff Harris to return to camp because of Hughes' injury, but indicated a decision on that would be made if Hughes was lost for the season.

Landry also said that Charlie Waters, who last week reigned a knee problem that kept him out all of last season, would not play against the Oilers. He indicated Waters would not return until the season opened Sept. 8 against Washington.

Landry said Benny Barnes, who has appeared for the Cowboys this season because of a foot injury, would start in place of Waters.

The coach also announced that left guard Herb Scott, who injured his right knee and last week would not play again until regulation play began. Scott will be replaced by rookie Kurt Peterson, a No. 4 pick from Missouri.

Players are to report to Harmon Park 15 minutes before the scheduled start of their match.

Tom Watson goes into a dance after sinking a birdie putt at the 17th hole on his way to a 65.

Watson leads in golf series

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Tom Watson shot a Sunday-par 65 Thursday and broke a first-place logjam with a pair of birdies on the back side to grab the first-round lead in the $400,000 World Series of Golf, being played at the Firestone Country Club.

Watson, looking for his seventh victory of the year, among them the British Open Championship, holds a 2-shot lead over Larry Nelson, Ben Crenshaw and Craig Stadler in the fight for the $100,000 first prize.

Jack Nicklaus, like Watson a former WSG winner, heads a group of four players another shot back at 2-under-68. Also at 68 is defending champion Lon Hinkle, Mike Reid and Hiel Irwin.

Nelson, who made the turn in 4-under-par 31 on the long and soggy 7,173-yard, par-70 Firestone course, held a 3-shot lead on the field early in the round.

Watson birdied the sixth, seventh and eighth holes to make the turn at 3-under-27, and Nelson bogeyed the 10th. Watson broke away from the field with birdies on the 14th and 17th.

"The course played relatively easy today," said Watson, who has already won $410,258 this year. "You could throw it right at the pin and not have to worry."

Watson, like nearly all the golfers, had trouble with mud on his ball because of the soggy conditions caused by numerous recent thunderstorms.

In fact, his only bogey of the day came on the third hole when a clump of mud, "half as big as the ball," caused him to hit his second shot to the right of the green, Watson said.

Watson and other players said that if conditions remained the same, the players should be allowed "to pick and clean" their balls — at least on certain holes where the mud was the worst.

Watson was paired in the final threesome of the day with Nicklaus and Lee Trevino. Trevino shot a 1-under-par 69 in a round that included an eagle 2 on the 370-yard 11th hole when he knocked his second shot, with a No. 9 iron, into the cup.

"I wish we could play together all the time," said Trevino, referring to his playing partners. "I think we bring the best out in each other. I loved it."

Watson and Nicklaus echoed Trevino's statement.

Crenshaw's 67 was the best he had every shot at Firestone and said, "It's a good position to be in. Any time you can shoot under par at Firestone, you've done okay. I haven't done that many times."

Nelson, despite the 31 on the front side, said he played better on the back side where he had a 36.

"I played not so good on the front and shot 4-under, and pretty good on the back and was 1-over," he said. "Golf is a hard game to understand."

Three other players matched Trevino's 1-under-69 score. They were Gary Player, Bob Gilder and Ray Floyd. Scott Simpson and two Japanese stars, Isao Aoki and Norio Suzuki, were at par 70.

The first round ended just in time, as another violent thunderstorm hit the already drenched course.

Royals owner serves notice

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ewing Kauffman is putting George Steinbrenner on notice.

"This time," promises the Kansas City Royals boss, "it'll be different."

Maybe you remember what happened last time, two years ago. It wound up with the Yankees winning the American League pennant by beating the Royals in the playoffs for the third straight time and with a gracious, smiling Kauffman making a special trip to the Yankees clubhouse to congratulate and wrap his arms around an elated Steinbrenner.

"I was smiling on the outside but crying on the inside," says Kansas City's Board Chairman and President, whose bustling, runaway Royals have made a joke of the western division race and figure to clinch it soon by one of the largest margins ever.

In the 1976 playoff between the Yankees and Royals, Chris Chambliss' leadoff homer in the ninth inning of the fifth game sank Kansas City; a year later, trailing 3-2 in the fifth, New York's hot bats reduced the Yankees' lead in the American League East to 1 1/2 games over Baltimore.

Bochte's single came off starter Gaylord Fister, who took the first time for the Yankees after winning his first start. The victory went to Dave Roberts, 23, the third of four pitchers, and Shane Rawley earned his 10th save. Rawley batted himself out of a bases-loaded, no out ninth inning jam by striking out Eric Soderholm and Aurelio Rodriguez and getting Dent on a line drive to center.

Seattle scored an insurance run in the seventh when Julio Cruz greeted Ron Guidry, making his first relief 1978, the Yankees eliminated the Royals, this time in four games.

"We'd love to play the Yankees again," Kauffman says. "We wanna show them and everyone else we have the best ball club in the league. But whether it's New York or Baltimore in the playoff, this time the Royals will win."

Kauffman spends anywhere from 12 to 14 hours a day overseeing operations at Marion Laboratories, Inc., which he founded 25 years ago in Kansas City and has built into one of the foremost pharmaceutical companies in the nation. People in that organization say nobody works harder than Kauffman does, but he still finds time to follow the Royals closely.

Unlike Steinbrenner, who takes such an active interest in the Yankees' day-to-day affairs and always makes his presence felt by such blunt communications as he issued to his manager, Dick Howser, and to several of his Yankees players the other day, Kauffman maintains a much lower profile with the Royals.

Orioles win, move closer as Yankees fall to Seattle

SEATTLE (UPI) — Bruce Bochte singled home the tie-breaking run in the fifth inning Thursday night, lifting the Seattle Mariners to a 6-4 triumph over New York that reduced the Yankees' lead in the American League East to 1 1/2 games over Baltimore.

Bochte's single came off starter Gaylord Fister, who took the first time for the Yankees after winning his first start. The victory went to Dave Roberts, 23, the third of four pitchers, and Shane Rawley earned his 10th save. Rawley batted himself out of a bases-loaded, no out ninth inning jam by striking out Eric Soderholm and Aurelio Rodriguez and getting Dent on a line drive to center.

Seattle scored an insurance run in the seventh when Julio Cruz greeted Ron Guidry, making his first relief appearance of the season, with a leadoff homer, his second.

The Yankees scored a run in the third on Reggie Jackson's RBI single and added another in the fourth on a double by Buckey Dent. New York led it 4-1 in the fifth on Dent's bases-loaded double.

In Anaheim, Rich Dauer went 4-0 in a 7-0 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers and Scott McGregor hurled a seven-incher for his 15th victory, leading the Baltimore Orioles to a 7-1 triumph over the California Angels.

McGregor, 15-6, struck out five and walked one in pacing the Orioles to their 20th victory in 24 games this month. It was his second six-hitter of the year against the Angels, who have lost three straight to the Orioles and six in a row overall.

Former Twin Falls star named CSI assistant

TWIN FALLS — Eric Hovey, part of the brightest moments in Twin Falls basketball history, is the new assistant basketball coach at College of Southern Idaho.

Hovey was top scorer on Twin Falls High's basketball team and only state champion team in 1976 and a member of the only CSI team to win nationals two years later.

He will assist Coach Dave Campbell, who is entering his first year as the Golden Eagle head coach.

"It is a great opportunity for me to become affiliated with one of the best programs and basketball schools in the country," Hovey said. "It is an honor to be considered worthy by men like Dr. (James L.) Taylor, Coach Campbell and (presidential assistant) Jerry Meyerhoefer."

Campbell said Hovey's duties would include coaching, scouting, recruiting and serving as dorm supervisor for the team.

"I had been three years since CSI had an assistant coach," Campbell pointed out. "But in the days when CSI was riding on top, it always had an assistant. There just are too many things for one man to do — to keep a program going on a national level."

He noted "We are fortunate to get an assistant like Hovey who is thoroughly conversant with the school and was here during the glory days of the basketball program. He knows what it was like and what has to be done to get the Golden Eagles back into the national limelight."

Hovey was a three-year letterman at CSI and an all-city star at Bruns. He played his freshman ball at Gonzaga University before transferring to CSI for his sophomore season. He played his last intercollegiate basketball at Denver University and, after sitting out of school a year, rejoined former CSI Coach Boyd Grant at Fresno State as a graduate assistant.

He was named to several high school all-American teams and lists being named to the U.S. Junior Pan-American basketball team in the summer of 1976 as one of his career highlights.

Hovey had been slated to be the assistant coach at College of Sequoias, Visalia, Calif., to head man Keith Hughes until accepting the CSI position.

"We know that Eric has been associated with excellent coaching throughout his playing career and last year with Coach Grant and Coach Hughes at Fresno State," Campbell said. "We feel he can be very effective in helping with our recruiting program."

Don Shula reported to be top choice

With Devine booted, line forms at Notre Dame

By DAVE KINDRED
© 1980 The Washington Post

With Dan Devine told to get out from under the Golden Dome, America's leading football factory is looking for a new coach to take over next season. Take a number, coach, and get in line. It is a long line, a very long line.

"The line reaches from Notre Dame, Indiana, to Notre Dame in Paris," said a coach who figures he's in line somewhere around the Azores. "Look first for Don Shula," he said. "Shula's a great coach, a stout Catholic, a Midwesterner and he has the Joe Robbie-Notre Dame connection for whatever that's worth." (Robbie, the Miami Dolphins owner, donates a lot of money to Notre Dame. Shula's coaching genius produces some of Robbie's money. So, would Robbie help Shula go to Notre Dame out of his love for the school? Or would the owner keep the coach at the Miami grindstone? No one knows.)

Any way, put Shula at the front of the line. After a decade dealing with high-priced prima donnas, he may be ready to reach football to players eager to learn. He could do it without financial pain, too. He owns a small piece of the Dolphins. And when you are the Notre Dame football coach, money is on the floor to be picked up. Dinets, speeches and commercials might bring in $100,000 a year over your salary.

If Shula doesn't want the job, this Irish Sweepstakes becomes a stampede. Lou Holtz of Arkansas, Joe Restie of Harvard, Tom Osborne of Nebraska, George Welsh of Navy, Hank Stram of Everywhere, including CBS — you see these molders of character running up the backs of fallen patriots to get a shot at the job that made Rockne a legend, turned Ara into a television star and left Dan Devine a nervous wreck.

Devine has been the wrong man in the wrong place for the last 10 years. Wonderfully successful at Arizona State and Missouri, fine schools where a fellow coach could forever without exposing himself to the risks of fame, Devine took a wrong turn one night and wound up in Green Bay, Wis., there to coach the Packers of Lombardi.

Phil Bengtson already had fallen there. So it seemed, for Devine, the right time to move to Green Bay. If a coach can help it, he won't succeed a legend. The rule of thumb is that it is much safer to succeed the man who succeeds the legend. With Bengtson going down in flames, here came Dan Devine to raise the Packers from the ashes and restore them to the glory of Lombardi.

Didn't come close. Went 4-8 his first year, then 10-4 before collapsing to 5-7-2 and 6-8. There came on Devine's face a haunted look: His eyes are small brown dots. They saw enemies. The people of Green Bay were bounding him, he said. He told the national media stories of abuse. He called in the police to watch his home.

And when the getting was good, Dan Devine got.

He got out Green Bay.

Astonishingly, Notre Dame hired him. Father Edmund Joyce, the university chancellor, and Athletic Director Ed Krause remembered Devine as a class guy who could draw Xs and Os with the best of them. The Green Bay experience had been beyond Devine's control, they decided. So when Ara Parseghian retired, they had Devine warmed up in the bullpen. They hired him four days after Ara quit.

And now, five years later, he is a lame-duck coach retiring after his three-season for "personal reasons." Devine's face has had multiple sclerosis for years and is said to be losing sight in one eye. That is a powerful reason to give up a kid's game, but it was less than a year ago that Devine stumped for the Arizona State job last year by Frank Kush's firing. He asked after the Michigan State job, too, and he wondered about Tulane and Arizona.

Even the day he announced his "retirement," Devine said he might get back into coaching "because the only bow I haven't won is the Super Bowl."

Does this sound like aman who is, quitting to stay at home?

"Don't believe that 'personal' bull," a big-time Midwestern coach said. "With Dan, it was a matter of time. Notre dame doesn't hire people, but they told him, 'This is your last year, so get out any way you want to; it's for the betterment of your career.'"

The irony is that while one winning season in four at Green Bay was good enough to get Devine hired at Notre Dame, five straight winning years and one national championship were not enough to make him secure in a job that Parseghian had restored to the glory of the Rockne and Leahy years.

Devine's '75 Irish teams went 8-3, 9-3, 11-1, 9-3 and 7-1-4. That's 44-14. Parseghian was 35-17-4 with three nation championships in 11 seasons.

"That '74 was a lousy year," a coach said. "The '83 was lousy, really, too. But Dan's biggest problem is — that he followed — Aa — Ara was charismatic, effervescent, outgoing and a damned good coach. Every thing you'd want in a Notre Dame coach, Ara was it."

MINNEOLA, N.Y. (UPI) - Former New York Knicks basketball player Luther "Lucky" Burden, arrested last month on a bank robbery charge, was re-arrested Thursday on charges of possession of cocaine.

McBride's 17th-inning triple gives Phils win

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) - Bake McBride tripled home Mike Schmidt with one out in the 17th inning Thursday to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 9-4 victory over the San Diego Padres.

Braves 6, Cubs 4 ATLANTA (UPI) - Dale Murphy drove in four runs, including three with a fourth-inning homer, and Phil Dwight earned his 25th career victory Thursday to lead the Atlanta Braves to a 6-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs for their fourth straight triumph.

Dodgers 5, Expos 4 MONTEAL (UPI) - Steve Garvey led off the 10th inning with his 22nd homer Thursday night to give the Los Angeles Dodgers a 5-4 victory over the Montreal Expos.

White Sox 5, Jays 3 CHICAGO (UPI) - Lamar Ho and Ed Farmer combined on a two-hitter Thursday to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 5-3 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Padres reached starter Bob Walk for three runs in the first on a two-run single by Mumphrey and a triple by Gene Tenace. A throwing error and Schmidt's first homer gave the Phils two runs in their inning.

Garvey's homer - his fourth hit of the game - came off Stan Lisen, 7-9, and gave Steve How his sixth victory in 11 decisions.

Rice's homer off starter Rick Langford, 13-10, gave the Red Sox a 1-0 lead. Boston scored four more runs in the fourth.

Morrison's two-run base-lead single highlighted a four-run inning in which the White Sox batted around and tagged Jesse Jefferson 4-11, with the loss.

Caldwell, Thompson at 65, tied for Michigan golf lead

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (UPI) - Rex Caldwell and Barney Thompson overcame a three-hour rain delay Thursday to finish at 65 holes and share the first-round lead in a $250,000 PGA tournament.

Caldwell, who finished third in this tournament last year, and Thompson held a one-shot lead on the par-72 course over David Eger of Jacksonville, Fla.

Tom Welskopf headed a group of five players at 4-under-par 68, while six golfers were three off the pace at 69.

The field will be cut to the low 70 scorers, plus ties, after Friday's second round, with competition concluding Sunday. The winner receives prize money of $45,000 and a new car.

NFL roundup Giants face stingy Colts in TD quest

The New York Giants are looking for their first touchdown of the National Football League exhibition season. Too bad their next opportunity comes tonight against a Baltimore Colts team that has displayed one of the strongest defenses in exhibition games.

Baltimore's success might be traced to his new system of calling defensive signals from the sideline instead of on-field calls. If stars were handed out to defensive coordinators, Coach Weber would merit several symbols of appreciation for his signals to the defensive huddles.

The Colts, 1-1 so far, limited Green Bay to a field goal in their 17-3 romp over the Packers. Joe Washington's 573 yards rushing against a Baltimore Colts team that has displayed one of the strongest defenses in exhibition games.

New York gained a 9-6 victory over Denver last weekend, but it took three field goals by Joe Daniels to accomplish the mission. The Giants' ground game is woefully weak compared to Baltimore. Mike Hogan leads the club with 35 yards rushing, in 12 attempts, and Billy Taylor has 31 on 17 carries.

Most of the remaining weekend action takes place in 12 night games Saturday. Atlanta is at San Diego, Cincinnati at Tampa Bay, Cleveland at Chicago, Green Bay at Buffalo, Houston at Dallas, Kansas City at St. Louis, Los Angeles at Denver, Minnesota at Miami, New Orleans at Detroit, New York Jets at Pittsburgh, Oakland at Washington and Seattle at San Francisco.

On Sunday afternoon, Philadelphia is in New England. The NFL East shows the best strength in the league with no club under .500. Dallas, Philadelphia and Washington have 20 records. The Redskins are the stingiest team in the NFL with a six-point yield.

If quarterback Mike Kruczek's enthusiasm rubs off on the rest of the "Skins, Washington could come with its best season in years. "I'm not the type to make outlandish statements, but I don't intend to be No. 2 all my football life," says outspoken Kruczek, who spent four years in Pittsburgh as Bradshaw's backup QB at Pittsburgh.

"The Redskins have a great shot at the Super Bowl, and wouldn't it be great for Washington to play the Steelers in that game?" Dallas wide receiver Drew Pearson, who was never drafted but hooked on as a free agent, has a shot at another goal. Pearson needs only 31 more regular season catches to top the club record set by the man's coach, Bob Hayes, caught as a Cowboy.

"It would be a tremendous milestone," says Pearson.

Rockford would have done it this way

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Deborah Engdahl says she got away from a drunken kidnapper by doing what she believes actor James Garner would have done if a similar situation occurred in a television episode of "The Rockford Files."

Tuesday, four hours after she said a friend were seized by a man who hitched a ride from them at the South Shore railroad station.

Neither Miss Engdahl nor her friend, Devitt Feeley, 16, also of Gary, were harmed.

During the ordeal, she said, Johnson was drinking heavily, slapping her and Feeley around and trying to force them to drink with him.

Dakotans fear child may be poison victim

BALTIC, S.D. (UPI) — More than 14 dogs have been poisoned in Baltic in the past year.

researchers say is neither arsenic nor rat poison. Now Foster said he will not let his new dog, or his children, out of his sight.

Investigators have not been even been able to determine the type of poison used in the mysterious dog deaths, and police say they have no suspects.

Residents have posted a $400 reward for evidence leading to the arrest of the poisoner.

A spokesman for the Minnehaha County sheriff's office said there is no pattern for the poisonings, and apparently no motive.

"A lot of people are really concerned about this," said Tom Dahn, whose dog was killed in March. "This kind of thing doesn't happen around here."

Jerry Foster watched his dog suffer convulsions for 20 minutes before it died of the mysterious poison, which

Some parents said the start of school next week will pose additional problems for them, because they will not be able to keep a close watch on their children.

Stuffing worth more than sofa
PHILLIPSBURG, Kan. (UPI) — A man browsing through items at an auction lifted the cushions of a used sofa.
He found the stuffing to be more valuable than the couch.
Vern McDermid said he had not planned to buy the sofa for the $2.50 asking price but wanted "just to see what shape the old thing was in."
As he lifted one cushion, he saw several $100 bills peeking at him from the corner. By the time McDermid finished pulling out the money, he was holding $1,493 in his hand.
According to auctioneer Henry Ehm, the sofa belonged to an elderly Phillipsburg resident who had just moved to a nursing home. McDermid deposited the money in the man's account, then notified his relatives of the discovery.
"It was one of those things that you think will never happen to you," said McDermid, who decided not to buy the sofa.

Love soars to heights; she accepts

AMHERST, Mass. (UPI) — Paul F. Rannenberg figured advertising was as good a way as any to get Mary D. Tillson to marry him.

This week Rannenberg hired a plane to pull an aerial banner reading: "M.D.T. ... Will You Marry Me?"

"He said he loved the girl very much and he seemed so sincere, I just couldn't refuse him," said Jerry Grant of Northeast Aerial Advertising. "It's certainly a unique way of proposing."

"I wanted to do something to show her how much I care for her, and that she would remember for a real long time. I knew this would do it," Rannenberg said.

At a designated time, Rannenberg took his girl friend to the top of Mt. Sugarloaf in nearby Sunderland and waited.

"We were just sitting on a patch of grass and she looked up and screamed," Rannenberg said. "After she got through screaming, she said 'Yes.'"

"I knew he was going to give me a ring at some point, but he had me completely fooled," Miss Tillson said later at an engagement party.

Hypnotist aids recall of licenses

BOSTON (UPI) — Officials say they used hypnosis to help Katherine Gray, 19, remember the license numbers and description of vehicles in a caravan of gypsies to whom she reportedly turned over her 4-month-old baby, Jolene.

Jolene has been placed in the custody of Ms. Gray's father, Bernard Gray of Pepperell, Mass. She was recovered from gypsies at a Middleton, Mass., trailer park, although the alleged "adoption" took place in Idaho.

Lewiston, Idaho, Deputy Sheriff Monte Spears said he called in a hypnotist to help Ms. Gray and Joseph Dwyer, 20, recall the details about the gypsy caravan that agreed to take their child last July 7.

Officials located the caravan after police issued an all-points bulletin. But Spears, in a telephone interview Wednesday, also said he is investigating possible child abuse or child abandonment charges against the couple.

"I'm still collecting testimony and I could file charges with the county prosecutor within a week," Spears said.

Although it looks dangerous, and rapids are encountered, the rafts travel only about four miles an hour. Passengers drifting down the river usually find the trip more fun than frantic.

Tasting the white water

An impromptu water fight helps eliminate any formalities between the rafters, and prepares them for the wet rapids ahead.

STANLEY — Six days floating the churning rapids and clear pools of the Salmon River's Middle Fork can turn a landubber into a river-running addict.

But those who want just a taste of white water may take a one-day trip on the main Salmon — an appetizer among the float-trip fare.

Dave's Float Trips is one of several companies that offer one-day float trips (see page 2). About 10 a.m. daily, Dave Stelling's would-be river rats gather just east of Sunbeam on U.S. 93 for an eight-mile trip down the main Salmon.

Dave, a stocky, bearded man with reddish hair fluffing out from his cap, busily hands out life jackets to the assorted passengers, who range from teens in tank tops to balding men with pot bellies peeking from under T-shirts.

A group of children from the Paul Wilkins Sports Camp in Ketchum listens intently to safety instructions. A lanky crewman, calling himself "Taul Paul," explains, "You can't swim against the current. No one can. Even Tarzan can't. So you float. What way? Feet first."

Two of Dave's four rafts on the trip are rowed by his crewmen; two are paddled by the passengers with a crewman as captain. Dave hops into a paddle boat; his group has both Californian tourists and Ketchum residents, including Ketchum Mayor Gerald Seiffert, wearing a cowboy hat, and determined to forget the city's sewer problems for the day.

Dave gives his crew a few instructions on paddling and pushes off. Almost immediately the boats hit a short rapid called "Piece of Cake," which introduces the group to the bounce and buffet of running rapids.

The kids' raft sets up a chorus of whoops and shrieks as the spray flies and the boats spin. "Forward hard," Dave booms to his paddling crew as the boat barrels over Piece of Cake. "Okay, take a break," he says as they reach a calm stretch and glide with the tug of the river.

The rafts float about two miles an hour, allowing passengers to take in the sun and passing scene: tall peaks and pines, patient fishermen and a goldseeking family pouring gravel in a small sluice. Dave points out landmarks, like the old stagecoach road winding alongside the river, and recites wildlife stories.

"See that gravel over there. That's like a down pillow for salmon," he says gesturing at a likely spawning spot. "They like to get to where they can't even move. But I haven't seen a salmon here this year," he adds sadly.

The boats make their first stop by a bridge, surrounding a lone fisherman who sits sulking while kids and adults proceed to scare off every nearby fish — unless the fish have become used to the strange human antics.

Like King Kong in red swim trunks, Dave scales the top girders of the bridge.

Subtle improvements make re-encounter special

(C) The Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD — You do wonder whether Da Vinci ever thought about reworking that self-satisfied smirk on the Mona Lisa's face, or whether George Gerbasi ever wished he'd picked another color for his rhapsody. The temptation to go back and get it absolutely right lingers like a cough, and never more strongly than with film makers, working as they do against publishing deadlines and monumental logistical matters. But the same deadlines and logistics make it impossible for the film maker to go back and touch up the editing.

Almost impossible. What Steven Spielberg has done with his "Close Encounters of the Third Kind" is I think unprecedented. I'm unaware of a film maker who has shot new material for a revised version of a film that had already been successfully released. It was the huge financial success of "Close Encoun-

Movies

Close Encounters of the Third Kind — The Special Edition

ters" which of course made the re-do possible. A second chance at a near miss, let alone a flop, would be a little harder to arrange. The new version of "Close Encounters of the Third Kind" — ingeniously over-titled "The Special Edition" — runs two hours and 12 minutes. It is better, surer, swifter and clearer than the original film which ran three minutes longer.

Most noticeably, Spielberg has dumped nearly all of the mistlelike sequence, in which Dreyfuss torse his house and lawn apart to construct in his living room the mountain he saw in his bloodshot mind's eye. Now he simply contemplates the things as a fall accomplish, and the scene works terrifically well. ("Will he look at the same formation on the newscast or won't he?")

The most important new material extends the ending beyond that incandescent contemplation of the "extraterrestrials." We go aboard that extraordinary mother ship, and it is all the Christmas-tree ornaments, organ consoles, skyscrapers and Times Square signs in the history of the world rolled together. It makes previous space ships look like training planes.

"If I noticed it before, I had forgotten," but for the extended sequence John Williams has selected the melody of "When You Wish Upon a Star" within the soaring symphonic sound; it is rather like finding a friendly and familiar face in the crowd and you grin instinctively. The melody is more explicit over the final credits and the song is beautifully appropriate to the film's sentimental warmth.

It will take a film analyst's A-B check of the two versions to detect all the changes, both additions and subtractions. Spielberg has made. I found memory playing tricks across the intervening months. Wasn't there a power-plant scene; did we see the ship in the desert? The melding of then and now, that is to say is completely seamless invisible mending at its most expert.

What matters is the new totality of effect, and Spielberg's re-encounter is extremely impressive. The immensity of the mother ship in relation to the Wyoming mountains and to the landing area is far clearer and accordingly more dramatic than one remembered it, and the arrival more majestic and awesome. The feeling from the first time that the great visual expectations had not been fully achieved is gone. It is the mystical experience Spielberg obviously intended it to be.

"Close Encounters" as a statement of hope and serenity at the prospect of extraterrestrial visitors is this time even more eloquent for being better defined. Making that attractive child, Gary Guddy, the symbol of benign visitations seems on second sight to be every bit as inspired and thrilling as it was the first time around.

The suggestiveness of the original, the midsection in which Dreyfuss' family is falling apart over his new obsession, including the mud-sculpting, is still the least successful aspect of the movie, shrill and not even entirely logical. (It's not as if he alone had seen the lights and felt the vibes.) In an unsatisfactory way, the damn-the-torpedoes damn-you feelings urgency works against the sense of the visitation as heavenly, tranquilizing Nirvana with a five-tone theme. Still, it is fast and strong, having gained momentum since the first version.

Raft

"Don't jump," chorus crewmen Randy, Fred and Taul Paul. "My wife left me," Dave wails. "Then my wife turned down."

"That's not so bad," the crew responds.

"Then the worst happened," Dave cries. "What was that, Dave?" his crew yells with relief. "My wife came back" and he jumps into the water.

Rising amid cheering, Dave and his crew guide kids (and a few adults) in jumping from a much lower section of the bridge into a deep pool. A few decline the thrill, most from Dave's own boat. "Oh, you got to jump or the river gods won't like it," he tells them. Little does he realize how right he is.

Then it's back on the river, leaving behind one disgruntled fisherman.

Rounding a bend, the rafts approach the rapids called Shotgun. "There's a hole here between two rocks," Dave booms. "Usually we go around, but let's go through it. You ready? LET'S DO IT." And whooping, he heads for the hole.

But late summer's dropping water level has made yesterday's piece of cake into today's Shot Down By Shotgun saga.

Passengers paddling furiously, the raft shoots downward toward the hole, spins and slips sideways against a rock. Water spills in, trapping the raft on the rock with literally tons of pressure.

Screaming with laughing panic, and losing paddles, dry clothes and dignity, the group tugs at the raft vainly. They are undeniably what rivermen call "stuck."

"What do we do now, Dave. Dave. Dave?"

At the first jolt, Dave, trying to steer from the rear of the boat, had been thrown off. He floats to shore and dashes back to assist his group. "Jump off," he yells, seeing the boat firmly pasted.

Lisa Baker of Ketchum obligingly falls off and bobs like a cork down the river. Seiffert, water to his neck but cowboy hat still atop his head, assists the rest with the plunge.

When one passenger jumps off and bobs to the surface, she finds herself held in place by the various forces of the swirling water.

"Go on," yells Gene Harrison of Huntington Beach, Calif., who was later delighted a "mellow" trip turned into a tale to tell his college buddies.

"I'm trying," she yells back, attempting to keep both head and feet up and feet forward. Going under again, she touches bottom, rises and finally starts downstream, feet first.

Little by little the group reaches shore, hearts pounding but all intact.

"Hey Dave," pants Sam Edger, a middle-aged Palo Alto resident on his first river trip. "Let's take the boat upstream and try that again."

"That wasn't too bad," Seiffert puffed. "I didn't even lose my hat."

Taul Paul, who clambers upstream and swims down to the raft, manages to "upstate" it by letting air out of a "blawart" or tube in the midsection.

The group piles back in, and the crew collects oars and hats in eddies downstream. "Everything on the river will get caught in eddies," Dave asserts. "People too!" wonders Karen Christensen of Ketchum, a veteran of several float trips.

The river gods appeased, the trip goes on. After a long, smooth stretch, the rafts land for lunch on the shore.

There, Dave the Captain becomes Dave the Cook. The passengers munch cheese and pineapple followed by hamburgers, while adventures are recounted and, like all good stories, magnified.

Dave has run rivers for six years and says he hasn't tasted a boat in five. Before that he was an accountant "until I took a river trip and I saw the light," he says. "I fell off, stayed down too long and came up a guide. If I stayed down any longer, I might have come up a mayor," he adds to Seiffert.

After lunch, it's only a brief float to the trip's end, punctuated by heated water fights between rafts.

As the boats head in, Dave's group threatens mutiny, looking ahead toward the continuing clear water. Maybe they stayed down a bit too long themselves.

Valley Artist Floyd Drown: Old West library

TRUDITARIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "The greatest thing I like about Western art is the colors," enthused Floyd Drown. "I get to paint the many colors the Indians used — in their beadwork," said Drown, who claims to be the only professional Western artist in southern Idaho. Drown, 36, takes pains to paint an accurate picture of the Old West. He's collected a library of old histories on the pioneer days but says it's difficult to sift through retold versions to the original truth. He used rare copies of the Lewis & Clark diaries to recover on canvas scenes from their expedition. "My paintings are accepted as accurate," he said as he stroked in the grass on a large painting he was readying Thursday for a national art show. The afternoon scene showed a group of Indian women breaking camp to follow the buffalo herd. "Dang good to be in them," he said, referring to the National Western Art Show scheduled this weekend in Ellensburg, Wash. "I make all the national art shows in the Northwest. It's an honor to be in them," he said. It's taken three years for him to work up to being a full-time artist. "An artist must be totally dedicated. You can't be a Sunday painter and make it," he said. He made his decision to go professional last year, after a career in sign painting. Now he's represented by 15 major art galleries in seven states. "I'm proud to have my works hanging next to Russell and Remington," he said. "They're such great Western artists. My goal is to someday be recognized as a major American artist." Among the galleries currently hanging his works are the Dancing Eagle Trading Post Gallery in Seattle, Wash.; Shellenberg Gallery in Livingston, Mont.; Curtis Gallery in Spokane, Wash. and the Thomas Gallery at Lake Tahoe. In the Magic Valley his works are at Canyonside Gallery in Twin Falls and the J. Norman Gallery in the Elkhorn Village in Ketchum/Sun Valley. Drown has a steady flow of commissions, within Idaho and from out-of-state. Some of his paintings are out of the country, he said. Drown will offer art lessons at The Homesteader, beginning the third week in September. "There was such a demand after the spring classes I'm going to offer a Tuesday and Saturday class," he said. The classes will run eight weeks with a possible eight-week extension. "If interest warrants," he'll teach the basics of oil

Area artist Floyd Drown considers himself the only professional Western artist in southern Idaho painting plus the techniques of Western art. "It takes a long time to learn to get the background and then, paint a horse on it, too!" he said. Drown paints in the Longhorn Studio in his home. His wife Chaddo, also an artist, specializes in Indian art's spiritual horses. "They're imagined, not real," he explained. The Drowns have two daughters, Holly, 10, and Julie, 8.

Liza and Dudley starring; Shirley on fast track

Q: A friend rtwears she recognized Liza Minnelli and Dudley Moore giggling as they rode up in the elevator of a Manhattan office building. Do you think they're involved in a romance? — S.B. of Bridgehampton, N.Y.

A: Liza and Dudley happen to be starring together in a movie, "Arthur," a contemporary comedy that is shooting on location in New York City. Matter of fact, my restaurant spy sat beside the pair at the Russian Tea Room recently, and they seemed to be having a great time. But as good friends, not lovers.

Q: What's Shirley MacLaine up to these days. Has she retired from movies? — N.T. of Tustin, Calif.

A: Shirley, 46, has too much energy to ever retire. In fact, her movie career is in the fast-track right now with two films ready to be released "A Change of Seasons" with Anthony Hopkins and Bo Derek, and "Loving Couples" with James Coburn and Sally Kellerman. She has been dividing her time between New York and Malibu, and I hear the current love of her life is a Russian movie director who is a French citizen. Remember her romance before this one was Andrew Peacock, the Australian minister for foreign affairs. It looks like the foreign affairs are now being managed by Shirley herself.

SHADES OF THE PAST: You may know that "The Elephant Man" is the 1979 Tony award-winning play about a grotesquely deformed person who was taken up by Victorian-London society and briefly became a celebrity. The movie version has now been filmed, and instead of color, it's in black and white. Advance word is that the grays and blacks dramatically enhance the bizarre makeup worn by John Hurt in the title role. The treatment also gives the movie cinematic kinship to the black-and-white British Dickens classics of the 1940s, "Great Expectations" and "Oliver Twist." Co-starring with Hurt are Angus Bancroft, John Gielgud and Wendy Hiller. The film premieres in New York on Sept. 26 and then opens across the country.

Q: Is Bo Derek really serious about playing a Jane in yet another movie version of "Tarzan"? — T.N. of Sarasota, Fla.

A: You bet she is. MGM wants her for "Tarzan, the Ape Man," and has even taken the trouble of going to court to clear the rights for the project. Big question is who will play the title role? Lee Canaito, a muscular actor who appeared in Sylvester Stallone's box office flop "Paradise Alley" is being tested for the part. As for Bo, she's all set to play a super sexy Jane.

Q: Aren't Fred Astaire and his new wife, jockey Robyn Smith, planning to retire from their respective careers to avoid embarrassing publicity about their age difference? — J.W. of Minneapolis.

A: No, neither has plans to retire. Following their extremely quiet honeymoon, Fred, 81, threw himself into a movie project for the fall — with no talk of dancing, unfortunately. His last outing was a TV movie, "The Man in the Santa Claus Suit," in which he played six different roles, again no dancing. For her part, Robyn, 35, says she just cannot keep away from the horses. She has been riding in Saratoga, N.Y., has lined up jockey assignments on the West Coast, and there are offers from European tracks.

HE'S NO ANGEL: Maybe you are expecting the Christmas angel when December rolls around, but devil. A film scheduled for Christmas release is "The Devil and Mr. Devlin," and the actor under the horns and pointed ears is none other than Bill Cosby, whose purpose is to tamper with the soul of Elliott Gould, a slum landlord. The film presumes slum landlords have souls. And what does Cosby's wife Camille think of it all. She says Bill "looks like the Devil."

Q: We hear Tatum O'Neal is already tired of making movies, and is trying to branch out to other areas of show business. What exactly does she have in mind? — M.R. of South Bend, Ind.

A: As far as I know, Tatum is content with her movie career guided in large part by her ever-watchful daddy, Ryan. Tatum has been offered a deal similar to one snapped up by actress, Faye Dunaway — to make TV commercials for consumption in Japan only. A big watchmaker is after the teenager and is prepared to spend a lot of money for her services.

Q: What's become of Dean Paul Maglin, the tennis player who co-starred with All MacGraw in the movie "Players"? He was so good looking that I felt certain a big career was in store. Why haven't we heard more about him? — R.P. of Indianapolis.

A: The son of singer Dean Martin, Dean Paul Martin, is regarded first as an actor and then as a skilled tennis player. His teaming with All MacGraw in "Players" was really type casting he as the young tennis-playing athlete; she as the understanding older woman he falls for — but I turned out to be a box-office flop. Although Dean Paul's career was dented some, he is still considered a prime candidate for stardom. On the personal side, Dean Paul is No. 1 with his longtime girlfriend, ice-skating Olympics star Dorothy Hamill, who just might skate down the aisle with him one of these days.

Q: I read a lot about Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan's current wife, Nancy, but not much about his ex-spouse, Jane Wyman. Is she still active as an actress? — G.S. of San Jose, Calif.

A: Yes indeed. Jane spent most of July in Hawaii working on a segment of TV's "Charlie's Angels," in which she plays a psychic. No word, however, on what Jane's character foresees in the November presidential balloting.

Q: How come we don't hear much about David Frost and his romantic life anymore? He used to have a new lady friend every other day. — L.M. of Albany, N.Y.

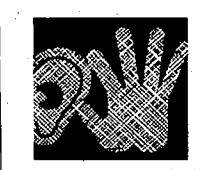

A: Frost in recent months has been true to his current lady love, actress Carol Lynley. He did bring Jackie Bisset to a recent Manhattan dinner party but told everyone there that he and Carol were "very much together."

Q: I keep hearing of instances whereby telephones, cameras, boom mics, make unintended appearances on movie screens, but I myself have yet to spot such a goof. Can you name any? — J.M. of West Orange, N.J.

A: Just take a good look at "Caddyshack," the new movie comedy. Toward the end of the film, watch carefully for the scene in which a red Rolls-Royce carrying Rodney Dangerfield and Chevy Chase pulls up to the entrance of the country club. Inadvertently, the camera frame has caught the shadow of an overhead mike silhouetted against the car door.

TWIN FALLS — "Gian-Carlo Menotti's The Drama of His Operas," a one-woman multi-media show, will be presented by the author, Sally Ahlstedt, Tuesday.

Her show will highlight the annual Northwest Opera Guild's fall luncheon, to be held at the Littlefield Inn at 12:30 p.m.

Ahlstedt will perform selected scenes from "The Medium," "The Consul," "The Saint of Bleeker Street" and "Amahl and the Night Visitors." Using slides and a taped narrative over orchestration, she performs several scenes as a dramatic artist.

Her Menotti production toured throughout Idaho last year, funded by grants from the University of Idaho.

Five win in Youth Show

TWIN FALLS — A recent Young Peoples Art Show produced five young winners, out of a display of 54 paintings.

The show was sponsored by Canyonside Gallery, and the entrants were students enrolled in the sketching and painting classes at the gallery.

By public voting, first award was presented to Jeff Sisk, 12, for his work in color entitled "The Old Fool and His Gold." Second award went to Jerod Babel, 8, for his acrylic canvas entitled "Trees," and third was a tie between Susie Kayman, 10, and between Susie Kayman, 10. Fourth award went to Tracy McCreary, 7.

Novelist gets gold medallion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Colorado novelist Louis L'Amour, who has written more than 70 westerns, will be honored with a gold medallion struck by the U.S. Bureau of the Mint.

Under legislation approved by the Senate Banking Committee, L'Amour, a resident of Durango, is noted mostly for his western novels. He also has written screenplays, television scripts and a collection of poetry.

More than 82 million copies of his books are in print, a publishing record for the Bantam Book Co.

The legislation approved by the committee Tuesday authorizes the Bureau of the Mint to strike a gold medal for presentation to L'Amour by President Carter.

The Courage to Change: From Insight to Self-Innovation by Edrita Fried Brunner-Mazel: $17.00 offers no instant transformations. But Dr. Fried's descriptions of treatment methods within dynamic psychotherapy — "an offshoot of psychoanalysis" — show it is possible to rebuild the psychic structure. Emphasis on active roles of therapists in treating "narcissistic inaccessibility, dependency and passivity," make this book valuable for professional laypersons with psychotherapeutic familiarity will find encouragement on every page.

The Clipper Ships by A.B.C. Whipple (Time-Life: $10.95). One of the loneliest victims of progress, the square rigger, is here memorialized through photo essays, anecdotes and majestic paintings of clippers under full sail. Included are watercolor sketches from a passenger's 1857 diary, a fascinating peek at shipboard life, yet a bitter-sweet tribute to faded days. The final chapter honors the Cutty Sark, sole survivor of the clipper era, "a grand ship that will last forever." Indeed, a toast to lift all seafarers.

Elvis Presley

Albums may be unique, but certainly not a 'gift'

By ROBERT HILBURN © The Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD — Excuse me if I can't take seriously the glowing line of RCA's ad for its new eight-record Elvis Presley "anniversary" album: "This unique collection is a special gift to his fans..."

Gift?

At a whopping $49.95 retail list price, the album looks to me more like a treat for RCA stockholders.

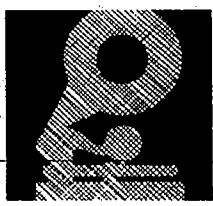

No question: Some of the material in the boxed set will delight Presley enthusiasts. Mostly, however, the package is the boldest step yet in the continued attempt to cash in on the popularity of rock's greatest star.

RCA and Presley's manager, Col. Tom Parker, began putting together Elvis collector items long before the singer's death three years ago this Saturday. The theory was that Presley loyalists were so eager for souvenirs that they'd gobble up virtually anything. And, it worked. For a while.

Volume one of the "Elvis, a Legendary Performer" series in 1975 showed that RCA and Parker could get away with simply repackaging old Presley hits like "Love Me Tender" and "Don't Be Cruel" as long as they included a few tempting treats, such as four previously unavailable live or studio versions of Presley favorites like "Are You Lonesome Tonight?"

Collectors responded by pushing the LP into the nation's top 50 sales charts, prompting RCA to release Volume Two in the series in 1976. It, too, went into the Top 50.

Presley fans, however, loaded up so heavily on Elvis albums after the singer's death that they became more choosy about repackages. As a result, neither Volume Three in the "Legendary" series nor two editions of a "Memories of Elvis" series cracked the Top 100 last year. It was time for more dramatic thinking. Voila: an irresistible offer for Presley collectors — a blockbuster album featuring 87 Elvis performances, 63 of which had never been released before. That meant nearly 4 and one half hours of mostly unheard Presley music.

Records Music

To make the deal even more tempting, RCA announced it was limiting the pressing on the album to 250,000 numbered copies. The implication was obvious. Given Presley's near-mythic popularity, these collector's items could be worth big bucks some day. Why not just buy one as an investment?

"Elvis Aron Presley" is supposed to celebrate the 25th anniversary of Presley's signing with RCA in November of 1955, but the timing of the release coincides with the rock star's Aug. 16, 1977, death.

Using skill in practical affairs helps Aquarians accomplish much today

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime finds you with considerable ingenuity to handle whatever problems that may come up. Deceptive influences are in effect as the evening approaches.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Engage in civic work you enjoy and accomplish a great deal. Take it easy tonight and restore lagging energies.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Find the right way to advance in your line of endeavor. A financial expert can give advice for a plan you have in mind.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be clever and you relieve tensions easily and then you can carry through with regular duties intelligently.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan how to gain more respect and prestige in the outside world. Show increased devotion to loved one.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Schedule your time and activities well so that you can accomplish more. Enjoy a fine social activity in the evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21) If you get your work done well and quickly, you can have more time later for the recreation you desire.

LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22) Find the best way to improve conditions at home and be more diplomatic with family members. Take health treatments.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make the changes now that will help you get ahead faster in your career. Be more supportive of family members.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Find a better way of handling finances and you can add to present assets. Strive to be more efficient.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get busy and gain your most cherished aims. An intuitive prompting could be erroneous now, so don't follow it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handle those practical affairs with skill and accomplish a great deal today. Take no risks in money matters.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Joining with friends and discussing mutual problems can be helpful in solving them. Handle communications wisely.

What's what

Amount of family debt theories keep changing

How much family debt is too much? Those money experts continue to juggle their theories in this matter as the ripple of the currency change. Now, one authority claims, you're in over your head if your installment payments, excluding your mortgage or rent, add up to more than 20 percent of your after-tax take-home pay. Maybe. But this is a tough one to figure. Certain necessities like food, electricity and however much gasoline don't allow a lot of room for cutback. If they take the whole scheme, there isn't any 20 percent left, what?

An Egyptian film critic in a Cairo daily recently reported: There is a new Arab star in the U.S.A. following in the footsteps of Omar Sharif. He is Tunisian and his name is Ali Magraw.

There are those who find it humorous that the city of Memphis prohibits the peddling of bologna on Sunday.

In building a railroad, remember, you need 3,000 crowsies for every mile of track.

TV SERIES?

Why nobody yet has made a television series out of the careers of Izzy and Moe I do not know. Neither stood taller than five-foot-seven nor weighed less than 225 pounds. But Isadore Einstein and Moe Smith, in their five years as prohibition agents, made 4,392 arrests with a conviction rate of 95 percent. Spanz doesn't permit a run down of all the wild and woolly stragglers they used to catch book-keepers, but they were uncharacteristically colorful beyond belief. In 1925 they were fired because they got so much personal publicity.

An international favorite

Fred Flintstone returns to prime time

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—England can no longer make its Olympian statement that "The sun never sets" but the cartoon giant, Hanna-Barbera, can and does make a similar boast:

"Somewhere in this world, every minute of every day, somebody is watching Fred Flintstone on television."

The caveman's international popularity is the reason why "The Flintstones" will be returning to prime time TV this fall with original stories and additional characters, 14 years after it was canceled.

"The Flintstones" also will return to Saturday morning TV as a new 90-minute format for kiddies. Additionally, there is a Flintstone feature film in the works for the stone age characters.

Revival of the series coincides with the 20th anniversary of television's most popular animated show.

The original 154 Flintstone episodes are seen in 80 countries in 52 different languages. At this moment they are running in 76 markets in the United States.

Two prime-time Flintstone specials, "Flintstone Christmas" and "The Flintstone Little Big League" — were international hits.

The half-hour shows have been syndicated in hundreds of American cities since 1968 when the series was canceled. Only the "I Love Lucy" record of "The Flintstones."

Eight years ago the characters were briefly revived for 25 new half-hour episodes titled "Pebbles and Bam-Bam" which became "The Flintstone Comedy Hour." Then, except for reruns, nothing much stirred among the rocks and boulders of Bedrock, home of the Flintstones, at least on the tube.

But the Flintstone characters have prospered in the Hanna-Barbera theme parks where Fred, Barney, Wilma and Betty are seen in three dimensions by actors wearing masks and costumes.

The Flintstones mingle with visitors at Cincinnati's King's Dominion, Richmond's Carowinds and the Marineland of the Pacific near Los Angeles. Rare is the tourist, foreign or domestic, who doesn't recognize Fred Flintstone.

Fred Silverman, NBC's grand satchem, seeking to shore up his network's miserable ratings, hopes the Flintstones will re-established their popularity with prime time viewers.

"The Flintstones," the first cartoon program to break into prime time, gathered high ratings two decades ago, a fact not lost on Silverman.

Jo Barbera, the Flintstones' creator and perpetrator, is overjoyed at future prospects for his brain children.

Barbera and partner Bill Hanna began their careers at MGM with the old "Tom and Jerry" chase cartoons which won Academy Awards right and left.

"What with the old cat and mouse game into 'The Flintstones' with the addition of the character of Cave Mouse who will carry on a running war with Dino, Flint's pet dinosaur."

"Working on Cave Mouse is Tex Avery, a legend in the cartoon business," Barbera said. "He did 'Bugs Bunny' and 'The Road Runner.' I think the country will fall in love with the mouse."

"We've also added some wacky new neighbors - Rockula and Frankenstein and their kids, Hideo and Arochi. What with Barney and Betty Rubble as their other neighbors, poor Fred and Wilma have their problems."

Barbera takes enormous pride in the fact that not even Mickey Mouse is as well known as the international TV. He has an explanation for the popularity and longevity

Strike hurting advertisers

Television advertising could fall victim to the actors' strike, even though the continuing walkout does not affect production of TV commercials.
 "If you're gonna charge big bucks for prime time you gotta have the big new shows to sell."
 The networks Wednesday postponed their Sept. 15 fall premiere week indefinitely because they haven't been able to produce their new and returning fall series. And the strike already has hit some national cooperative advertising campaigns.
 The Screen Actors Guild (SAG) and American Federation of Radio and Television Artists (AFTRA) have shut down all movie and prime-time TV dramatic production since July 21. The strike does not apply to TV commercial production, or soap opera tapings, game shows and news operations, among others.

 The advertising dollars in jeopardy are those already contracted or bidged by national and local advertisers for the fall season, to be spotted in and around the new 1980-81 prime-time programming. Advertisers and their agencies won't pay prime-time national and local rates if the programs are to be reruns and old movies, rather than a fresh fall lineup.
