'Las Posadas'

Christmas tradition dates from 16th Century Mexico

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "In the name of heaven, let us into the inn. My beloved wife can walk no further."
"You can't come in, keep going. I will not open the door; you might be thieves."
For nine days at Christmas time, this dialogue between Joseph and Mary and the innkeeper is re-created with song and prayer in the traditional Mexican custom of "Las Posadas," which dates back to 16th Century Mexico.

Usually celebrated in neighborhood homes, this year Las Posadas is being held nightly through Christmas Eve at 7 p.m. at the Guadalupe Center in Twin Falls. On Christmas Eve, the celebration will climax with pinata games for the children, Las Posadas at 11 p.m. and "misa de gala" or a midnight mass following.

Carrying candles and statues of the holy couple on a frame of wood and straw, groups of participants knock on the door of the "inn," usually a neighbor's home, to ask for entry.
"En nombre del cielo, os pido posada," sings the group, depicting the pleading of Joseph for lodging.
The surly innkeeper orders them off. "Aqui no es meson; sigan adelante," another group inside sings.

But eventually the "innkeeper" relents and allows the outside group inside. Together the people pray and enjoy refreshments and fellowship.
A door leading into the chapel serves as the door to the inn. Two groups on either side of the door sing a 12-verse dialogue that softens the heart of the innkeeper.
Once inside, participants carry the statue of Mary and Joseph to the altar in a processional, two of them holding lighted lanterns. Led by Father Juan Garatea, the people "pray the Rosary," which recalls the 15 events or "mysteries" in the life of Christ. They finish up with Christmas songs — Spanish words set to universally-known tunes. Over refreshments, families meet and share Christmas greetings.

The nine days of the "posada," which means "inn" in Spanish, represents Mary's nine months of pregnancy.
Mrs. Irma Salinas, one of the celebration's organizers, admits "it's hard" for some persons to attend all nine days. Yet the custom is "very important. The people make sacrifices to be there," she said.

Because participants found it hard to accommodate large groups of people in residents' homes, the celebration was moved to the Guadalupe Center. This year, more people than ever before have become involved with the holiday, she said.

Because a large part of the event is devoted to prayer, Salinas calls it "spiritual," gathering to prepare the people's hearts "to receive Jesus on the 24th when he is born" at midnight.

Reagan fills more posts in Cabinet

By CLAY F. RICHARDS
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President-elect Ronald Reagan picked four more top members of his administration Monday.

The group included the first black and first woman for Cabinet-level posts.
The appointment of former Gov. Jim Edwards as energy secretary, black lawyer Samuel Pierce as housing secretary, controversial conservative James Watt as interior secretary and professor Jeane Kirkpatrick as U.N. ambassador proved no surprise — all had been predicted in recent weeks.

In addition, Reagan told reporters in California that his choice for agriculture secretary was John R. Block, 45, the Illinois secretary of agriculture, who owns a 3,000-acre hog farm. Logistics prevented coordination of his appointment with the other announcement, Reagan said.

Reagan said his nearly-completed Cabinet is "of great quality and should inspire confidence in the people in almost every field as to what we're trying to do."

His daughter, Maureen, however, was one of the early critics: She said the selections didn't pay enough attention to women.

"We never went out and said we must have one of this and one of that," Reagan said when asked about his daughter's remark. "There has been quite a mix. In many instances people have chosen not to be in the Cabinet."

Reagan said the persons who have agreed to serve on his Cabinet have made sacrifices.
"Almost all of those people had to take an almost definite step down from their private lives to take a government job," he said. "Some of them took more than one step down — a great big step — (they) jumped off the bridge."

The four new appointments and the selection of Block leaves only the cabinet level post of special trade ambassador and the secretary of education open.

They could be filled as early as today, said transition spokesman James Brady, who also cautioned that lengthy security clearance checks could hold them up.
The four new nominees appeared at a joint news conference with two others announced last week — retired Gen. Alexander Haig as secretary of state and New Jersey contractor Raymond Donovan as secretary of labor.

Haig told reporters that he expects a full Senate examination into the role he played during Watergate, the wrangling of reporters and the

Watt pledges use of 'common sense'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — James Watt, nominated by President-elect Ronald Reagan to be interior secretary, said Monday he would take a "common sense" approach to managing federal lands, balancing development and conservation.
Watt's nomination has drawn strong opposition from environmentalists, consumer groups and Indians for his past activities.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce, however, came quickly to his defense.
"Current problems cry out for a natural resources policy that balances our environmental objectives with our desperate economic and energy needs," said Richard Breaull, chamber vice president for program and development.

Jim Watt is a proponent of such a policy, Breaull said. "In the opinion of the U.S. Chamber he is an excellent choice for secretary of interior."

Watt, 42, is president and chief legal officer of the Mountain States Legal Foundation in Denver, a nonprofit group that has battled Interior Department policies. He also belongs to the Sagebrush Rebellion, formed to battle federal land policies.

Watt, in a press conference at which he and three other nominees were presented, said the Interior Department has taken an extremist position in the past, and that "special interests" supporting either development or conservation must be balanced.

"The art of managing that department will require some common sense approaches," he said.

Watt refused to answer most substantive questions. Like his fellow nominees, he said he wanted to save his answers for his Senate confirmation hearings.

However, he did say that the Interior Department would follow a "good neighbor policy" with states and private interests in the use of federal lands.

He said that the Sagebrush Rebellion and other such groups had sprung up because the federal government was following a policy that ignored the good that could come of land use other than pure conservation.

Watt, however, has drawn the ire of consumer and environment groups. A Wilderness Society spokesman last week called the nomination a "disaster."

Agriculture post to Block

States News Service

WASHINGTON — Illinois Agriculture Secretary John R. Block confirmed late Monday that he has been asked by President-elect Ronald Reagan to serve as U.S. Secretary of Agriculture.

Block declined to discuss his nomination in detail, other than to say he will accept, pending its official announcement in a special news conference today.

Block's nomination is to be announced at 2 p.m. in the ballroom of Washington's Mayflower Hotel, according to Robin Gray, assistant press secretary to the president-elect's transition team.

"I'm excited about the prospects of serving the president and the country, and I look forward to serving the agricultural community as a whole," Block said.

Block said late Monday that he was going jogging on the National Mall at the base of the Washington Monument and would be staying out the rest of the evening to avoid press calls until today's announcement.

Peavey vote challenge resumes today

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

HAILEY — The second and possibly final round of testimony in the challenge of state Sen. John Peavey's election takes place today.

The session beginning here at 9 a.m. in the Blaine County Judicial Building was continued by the challengers from last Tuesday in order to investigate further voters they believe were not residents of Blaine County.

Testimony on both sides is expected to center on voters the challengers suspect of being non-residents. The deposition hearing will continue Wednesday, if necessary.

Despite being advised against continuing the election contest by their lawyer, Robert Robson of Boise, and by Steven Bolter, a Hailey lawyer who is also a challenger, the challengers plan to complete their case and deliver it to the state Senate.

"Of those I talked to, the preponderance felt we should go ahead," Hay McBride of Rupert, spokesman for the challengers, said. "We still feel there were sufficient non-resident voters to change the course of the election."
Peavey, a Carey Democrat, defeated Maurice Ellsworth, a Carey Republican, by 54 votes in the Nov. 4 election in Legislative District 21.

Last week challengers presented testimony concerning four precincts in Blaine County where they alleged voting irregularities occurred. They named 14 voters and turned over to Peavey a list of 139 others they said they suspected of being non-residents.

At least half have been identified by Ketchum Postmaster John McDonald as currently receiving mail through post office boxes or general delivery. McDonald identified several others as residents and at least two others have appeared since their names were published to state their residency.

McBride said a post office address does not necessarily indicate residency to the challengers but gives some evidence of it.

The challenger said he hopes the case can be finished today and said he understands it is the last opportunity to tender testimony and documents into the record before it goes to the Senate.
Representing Peavey is lawyer Edward Benoit of Twin Falls.

The challenge must be sealed and filed Dec. 29 to Secretary of State Pale Conarras, who then delivers it to the Senate. The Senate convenes Jan. 12, 1981, and must take up the issue the next day.

Small banks cut prime rate

By United Press International

Wells Fargo Bank, the nation's 11th largest, said it would cut its prime-lending rate to 20 1/2 percent effective today.

The move is the first major indication interest rates may finally be on the decline.
The new rate is a full percentage point under the record 21 1/2 percent prime currently posted at most of the nation's major banks. The prime is available to top-rated corporate customers.

Over the past few days, several smaller banks have slashed their prime rates even further. But the rate reduction by Wells Fargo is the first by a major banking institution.

Idaho Legislature to receive amendment draft, package of bills

Sagebrush Rebellion proponents prepare for victory

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

BOISE — Although the Sagebrush Rebellion has yet to succeed, its proponents in Idaho are preparing for victory.
A proposed constitutional amendment and a package of bills will be proposed to the 1981 Legislature to govern the management and sale of federal lands when and if they are transferred by Congress to the state.

The measures are being drafted by a group of Sagebrush Rebellion Inc. staff members, state legislators, livestock producers and others, according to the organization's director Vernon Ravenscroft.
The key item is the constitutional amendment.

First of three parts

The rest will be supporting legislation," Ravenscroft said. Proponents are seeking only U.S. Bureau of Land Management lands, he said.

The goal of the amendment to the Idaho Constitution is to establish authority and guidelines for deciding which lands should remain in public ownership and which are best suited for private ownership, he said.

The decision would be in the hands of the five-member State Land Board and the Legislature, but whether the Legislature would only review decisions or would be required to act is being determined, he said.

Revenue from the sale of lands would not be directly disposed of but would be placed in an as-yet-undetermined type of endowment fund, Ravenscroft said.

The charge of opponents of the Sagebrush Rebellion that public lands will be sold off if transferred to the states is a "bunch of baloney," he said.

"We felt the most sincere way was to put up or shut up with a constitutional amendment. If they oppose this, they will be against growth, production and the private ownership of anything."
The amendment doesn't say you can't sell, but you'd better be dang careful how, when and where you do it."

The major provisions of the amendment, which must receive two-thirds approval from both houses of the Legislature followed by majority approval of the voters, are as follows:

- Differentiates between current state endowment lands and future land acquisitions or grants, reaffirming the restrictions on the sale of endowment lands.
- Limits the amount of land an individual can receive in a lifetime to 320 acres.
- Allows certain lands, such as watersheds and recreational sites, to be withheld from sale.
- Clarifies and expands the state's ability to exchange lands for public management goals.

The measure would allow the Land Board to set aside certain lands in permanent or semi-permanent public use and to put other lands up for competitive sale, Ravenscroft said.

U.S. disputes Iranian claim hostages housed in hotels

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department said Monday it believes some American hostages in Iran are being held in prisons rather than luxury hotels as in Iranian reports, and some are suffering from serious medical problems.

The assessment came as Iran again threatened to put some of the 52 hostages on trial "as a last resort" following the assertion by Secretary of State Edmund Muskie that Iran's latest demand for $24 billion is unreasonable.

Spokesman Jody Powell said the United States has not responded officially to the Iranian request, but that when it comes it will not be inconsistent with what Secretary Muskie and I have said.

There is reason to be concerned about the health and treatment of several of the hostages, Tratrner said. He was responding, indirectly, to Iranian parliamentary spokesman

Behzad Nabavi who said that the American hostages are living well "in good hotels with all facilities."

"are serious enough to give us concern" but left open the possibility that some of the hostages may have been moved to hotels.

Long sea tour over for ships

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — Nearly 7,000 sailors aboard the aircraft carrier Eisenhower and two cruisers ended a record sea tour in the Indian Ocean Monday in the arms of their sweethearts, friends and families.

The cruisers Virginia and South Carolina steamed into Norfolk shortly after 9:30 a.m. The Eisenhower followed about 45 minutes later.

It was a cold day for the group that was sailing in 70-degree temperatures just a few days ago, but several thousand wives, children, relatives and friends with balloons and kisses helped the fleet weather the 30 degrees.

Many in the crowd had been standing on the windswept pier since shortly after sunrise.

The well-wishers included outgoing Navy Secretary Edward Hidalgo, who flew to the Eisenhower when it was about 15 miles out the Chesapeake Bay.

In brief remarks to about 1,000 sailors on the "Ike," Hidalgo said he was proud of their record-breaking 8-month tour, and he wanted them to know "how proud the Navy is, your country is, and indeed, the whole world is of what you've done."

Workers may cost own jobs

Investment probe in works

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A key Senate Republican said Monday he plans a probe of investment practices of pension fund assets after a study showed they may cause unemployment for some workers who contribute to the plans.

Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., slated to become chairman of a Senate Finance subcommittee with jurisdiction over pensions when the 97th Congress convenes, said he will hold hearings on how the funds are invested.

"The workers in our part of the country who participate in pension plans could receive substantial long-term benefits, including greater job security, if more of their pension funds were directed to local investment," said Chafee.

The report by an independent research group for the Northeast-Northwest Congressional Coalition, said there are about 500,000 pension plans in the United States with assets valued at $350 billion. The coalition is a bipartisan organization of 213 congressmen from 18 northern states.

The Labor Department estimates such pension funds could grow to $3 trillion by 1995.

"In effect, workers may be assisting in their own future unemployment and loss of pension rights," said the report, adding that pension fund assets are worth 27 percent of the gross national product and are the greatest single source of investment capital in the nation.

Rep. Robert Edgar, D-Pa., coalition co-chairman with Chafee, said pension plans should seek a high rate of return, but that the nation "can no longer tolerate a pattern of pension investments that diverts capital from areas of high unemployment."

Sagebrush

The constitutional amendment does not define those lands. Rather, the decision would be made "on the spot, acre by acre" because each parcel is different, he said.

"Those decisions ought to be made by state people, granting that the Yellowstone-Parks, the Grand Canyons and the national forests are already set aside for national purposes."

Ravenscroft disputed whether the public lands are better protected by the federal government.

He said the Sagebrush Rebellion stands for giving the states the same rights over "residual" public lands as they have over fish and wildlife and water resources.

"Who would dare propose we federalize water resources," he asked.

Opponents have given up service to some provisions of the proposed amendment, he said.

A 1937 law prohibits the sale of forests, watersheds or recreational land owned by the state, but only the forest reservation has been adhered to, he said.

"Opponents of the rebellion have never seen fit to bring a suit against the land board because they were not adequately living up to it," he said.

He said the constitution does not allow the state to manage lands for public and multiple use, but the proposed amendment will contain that provision for lands acquired by the state in the future.

Overall, the state does not have a perfect record of managing public lands but has been profitable, successful and judicious in what lands it has kept, he argued.

Of the 3.6 million-acre grant originally received in endowment lands, the state has built a $171 million school endowment fund and still owns 2.5 million, or 70 percent, of those acres, he said.

"Just speaking for myself, the land resource has got to be managed so it winds up in the highest, best and most productive use. If that is for watershed or recreation or multiple use, there are strong arguments for keeping it in public ownership. Personally, that's where I want to see most of it."

But if the land is needed for urban expansion, agricultural production, industrial and commercial interests, it ought to be private, he said.

Next: An alternative proposal being drafted would guarantee that 90 percent of transferred lands would stay in public ownership.

Final respects for Kosygin

ALEXANDER HAIG
...in Marshall mold

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State-designate Alexander Haig said Monday nothing he did as Richard Nixon's chief of staff in the closing days of the Watergate scandal should bear his confirmation before the Senate.

In his first news conference since being named by president-elect Ronald Reagan last week, Haig said he is preparing for vigorous questioning by the Senate.

He said he has hired prominent lawyer Joseph Califano, a former secretary of health, education and welfare, to help him review his records in preparation for the hearings. Haig said he did not want to discuss his specific views on foreign policy prior to the Senate hearings, but he said Americans should rally behind the Carter administration's efforts to get Iran to release the American hostages.

"I am generally inclined always to support the president and the secretary of state on questions of this kind," Haig told reporters when asked if he agreed with the administration's rejection of Iran's demand that $24 billion be deposited in an Algerian bank in exchange for release of the hostages.

"It behooves all of us to rally behind those gentlemen. I intend to do so," Haig said.

Haig refused to outline how the Reagan administration would deal with the hostage situation, emphasizing that President Carter and Secretary of State Edmund Muskie have responsibility for the nation's foreign policy until Jan. 20.

On other matters, Haig said his model would be George Marshall, another former general who became secretary of state during peace time. Noting Marshall's contributions to peace as secretary of state, Haig said, "I would hope, in the legacy of General George Marshall, that I can make somewhat of a similar contribution."

Asked if he still had ambitions to run for president, Haig said: "That's not too unlike asking the question when did you stop beating your wife. Not too many analysts would suggest that the post World War II secretary of state is a stepping stone to the presidency."

"I am not pursuing the office of secretary of state with any other objective in mind but to recognize this country is facing a very desperate and very urgent situation."

"Let me set the record straight on this subject," Haig said when asked about his role in Watergate, wiretaps on journalists and the bombing of Cambodia while he was at the White House. "I have appeared before several grand juries, Senate investigating committees and a court of law on these subjects and nothing indicated any culpability on my part."

He said he would have no comments on specific questions dealing with Watergate and the other matters until the Senate hearings.

MOSCOW — Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev and other top leaders of thousands of ordinary Russians Monday in paying their last respects to former Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

Kosygin, who died Thursday at the age of 76 after a long illness, lay in state Monday in Moscow's Central Army Building, a venerable mint-green structure near a large park. A full state funeral is expected today in Red Square.

Floral wreaths surrounded the platform where he lay. At its foot lay red cushions to which Kosygin's six Orders of Lenin and other medals had been pinned. Kosygin had accumulated them through 40 years in government, 16 of them as his head.

Cabinet

bombing of Cambodia while he was Richard Nixon's chief of staff.

But he noted that during several grand jury, congressional and other investigations "nothing indicated any culpability on my part."

Newly named by Reagan and subject to confirmation by the Senate were:

• Edwards, 53, the former governor of South Carolina as secretary of energy. A dentist, he is the first Southerner chosen by Reagan to join the Cabinet.

• Pierce, 58, a former judge, as secretary of housing and urban development. The New York lawyer is the first black selected by Reagan for the Cabinet.

• Wall, 42, a Colorado attorney, to be secretary of the interior.

• Mrs. Kirkpatrick, 53, a Georgetown University professor, to be ambassador to the United Nations. She is the first woman selected by Reagan for a Cabinet-level post.

Reagan did not appear at the news conference, but remained in California as the new appointees were named in Washington at a hotel next door to his transition team's headquarters.

The major controversy among the four new appointees has been stirred by the conservative Wall, who has advocated opening public lands in the West for oil and mineral exploration.

Wall called for a "common sense" approach balancing environmental and development needs.

"We cannot afford to lock up or utilize our basic resources for one specific purpose," he said. "We must have multiuse."

The major problem Reagan has had in filling his Cabinet was selecting a secretary of education to preside over a department the president-elect has said he will abolish as soon as is practical.

Reagan reportedly now favors Ed Aguirre, chief superintendent of schools in Santa Clara County, California, for the post. Aguirre, U.S. commissioner of education under Gerald Ford, would add a Hispanic to the Cabinet.

Barbara Thompson, superintendent of public education in Wisconsin, is still in the running.

Reagan should make most of this economic opportunity

By CLAYTON FRITCHEY
of Newsday

WASHINGTON — What is Ronald Reagan — or any new president — to do when he gets conflicting advice from the economic experts on how to handle inflation, unemployment, interest rates, taxes and the budget?

Few of our presidents have known, or cared, much about economics. It didn't seem to matter, however, until the Great Depression suddenly made the U.S. economy the supreme concern of the federal government. That led to the creation of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, along with the rapid development of the Budget Bureau as a powerful White House adjunct to the Chief Executive's control over the country's economy.

The president, of course, is also exposed to the influence of the Treasury secretary and the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, plus the House and Senate budget committees and Congress' Joint Economic Committee. Wall Street and the banking community have their input, too, as do the acknowledged high priests of economic theory.

They are all now focusing on Washington in the hope of advising a new administration headed by a president-elect who obviously is eager to stabilize the economy, but who has no more sophistication in that field than many of his predecessors. It wouldn't be so difficult for Reagan if there were a consensus among the advisers he apparently is listening to, but they appear to be just as much at odds with each other as the key advisers in previous administrations.

For a brief period after World War II there was something resembling a consensus when the disciples of Maynard Keynes were prominent in the government, but that era is over. Today even the most prestigious contemporary economists seldom see eye to eye, so on whose wisdom can the incoming president rely?

A few days ago U.S. News and World Report had the novel idea of simultaneously interviewing all four of the American economists who have won Nobel prizes for their work. The result was broad disagreement.

Nobel Laureate Milton Friedman was still insisting that "if you control growth of the money supply, you control inflation," although recent experience in Britain and the United States would seem to question that. Laureate Lawrence Klein favored an "incomes policy," using the tax system to "restrain increases in wages and prices." Laureate Paul Samuelson was against wage-price controls, even though he conceded

"they work well in the short run." The fourth Laureate, Kenneth Arrow, felt that "the long-run loss of output due to unemployment is basically a more serious issue for the economy than inflation." In contrast to some of Reagan's closest advisers, he doubted that budget deficits had much of an effect on inflation.

While some Reagan advisers support the Federal Reserve Board's light money policy, which has driven interest rates above 20 percent, Prof. Klein thinks the Fed has "overreacted and lost control." His view is shared by businessmen like Russell Rockwell, head of the Rockwell Equipment Co., who complains that the current interest rates are "putting us out of business." Rockwell says, "I don't think the Federal Reserve knows what it's doing. It's like a 2-year-old kid squeezing the kitten to death, and he doesn't realize he's doing it."

The most daring advice Reagan has received comes from Rep. David Stockman, the newly appointed budget director, and Rep. Jack Kemp, the chairman of the House Republican Conference. Kemp is co-author (with Sen. William Roth) of the controversial proposal to cut taxes by 30 percent.

Kemp and Stockman want Reagan to declare a national economic emergency soon after inauguration. They think "he should tell the Congress and the nation that the economic, financial, budget, energy and regulatory conditions he inherited are far worse than anyone had imagined. He should request that Congress organize quickly and clear the deck for fast action." Like Franklin Roosevelt's "100 days."

The time is politically favorable for innovative economic thinking and the introduction of experiments like the

Kemp-Roth tax reduction, even though many Republicans conservatives look upon it as radical, and others see it as opening the way for a renewal of wage-price controls.

Reagan has little to lose by gambling, for the alternative is to keep on muddling along with the kind of conventional, discredited economic policies that brought down President Carter, and left the nation with a legacy of high inflation, high unemployment, record interest rates and recession.

Inflationary expectations are so rampant now that only some dramatic action by the incoming president can extinguish them. Many Americans are hoping Reagan will make the most of the opportunity.

Reagan's torch: economy

Ronald Reagan's fortunes, at least in the early going, will rest largely on his economic game plan.

Having ridden into office on a landslide, really a mandate to do something about the recessionary conditions gripping the nation, the Reagan administration will be under immediate pressure to come to grips with inflation, unemployment, high interest rates, and taxes.

It was not surprising, therefore, to hear a proposal last week tantamount to Reagan declaring a state of economic emergency; a rallying cry to Congress and the country to make the economy the No. 1 priority early on in his administration.

Such a plan, however, has drawn immediate and expected fire from outgoing Carter cabinet members, notably G. William Miller, Treasury Secretary, who chides that such a declaration would be all show and no go. Others say it would be dangerous to apply such pressures to the economy.

On one hand, Reagan aides are creating a bit of theatre with such remarks that the new president faces an "economic Dunkirk" upon taking office.

On the other, Miller and Co. are soft-shoeing the issue as they pack their bags.

The state of the economy is the No. 1 issue in the nation, let there be no doubt about that.

The state of the presidency and the Congress also is such that extraordinary approaches are called for — business as usual for both institutions will not get the job done, as both President Carter and the 96th Congress just proved beyond a reasonable doubt.

Reagan must set the tone early upon taking office and a "state of economic priority" (rather than "emergency") should be stamped indelibly upon his administration. He can start Jan. 20 by stealing some inaugural thunder from the late John F. Kennedy — by exhorting the nation to pass his own new torch.

He must work relentlessly during the early days to get the Congress moving and the only way to do that may be a declaration of import and meaning. There are risks, of course, the greatest being to go overboard and further fuel the factors of economic uncertainty.

Miller and Charles Schultze, the outgoing chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, are right about one thing. Reagan's people will find no magical economic answers waiting in the wings. And acting too quickly may be just as bad as being indecisive.

But the economic situation is not unlike a stubborn animal that has to be struck with a two-by-four to get its attention. This rollercoaster we're riding can't continue without doing long-term damage to the economy; neither the presidency nor the Congress can lollygag around and pin their hopes on stuffed-shirt, worn out courses of action.

Reagan was elected largely by frustrated American voters who want to be delivered from economic discontent. They believed the Republican, and not the Democrat, had the moxie to do the job.

When Reagan gets going, it has got to be tough.

Article on kids put Asian culture out of focus

Editor, Times-News:
It is surprising, astonishing, and at the same time sad how absolute we Americans of the USA consider our culture to be!

We even go as far as to label things, customs, traditions, etc., of another culture as a sign of poverty, backwardness and ignorance if they don't fit in to what is considered "standard American middle class civilized living."

The case in point appeared in the Times-News Dec. 18, in an article about a Burley family adopting four Korean children. The article contrasted the children's former way of life in an orphanage to their present American upper middle class surroundings in the Bray family who went through a long, long process to adopt the children and did a very beautiful thing in doing so.

However, the fallacy lies in the perspective from which the reporter chose to write her story. The article said, "(They) were whisked away last June from an orphanage where they slept on floor pads and were fed small servings of rice and fish... they had never ridden in a car or slept in a bed." But now they have "two trees, a customized van and beds with fluffy pillows." Other things were also compared in the same manner.

This article puts cultural facts way out of focus and takes them out of context. For example, practically all people in India, Korea, China and Japan (in part) sleep on floor mats, not because they're poor, as suggested in the article, but because that is a part of their culture. In the East, people also cook, eat and sit on the floor whereas in the West all this is done in a different way.

As for the Christmas tree, it is totally foreign to their culture! Of course the four girls haven't seen one! It's as if the whole world had to have this typical Germanic tradition which, by the way, is even foreign to the neighboring Mexican culture.

It's also not surprising that they haven't ridden in an automobile which seems to be, as reflected in the article, appalling and a definite sign of poverty and backwardness. One must remember that in more than half of the world and for about two-thirds of the world population, such things are more than normal! The exception is the USA and the rest of the Western countries which have 1) another culture and 2) so much in material goods that they are forced into consuming and can't do it fast enough. Contrary to our material abundance, we in the Western countries can find no peace of mind which is actually the base of true happiness.

The other two-thirds of the world population are culturally very different from us in the Western countries. And they haven't so many material things. However, their peace of mind and true spirituality should and must be an example to us if we want to find the only important secret which they have known for time immemorial as White Knives.

Considering the question from a spiritual and cultural point of view (most Eastern cultures are thousands of years old!) we are the so-called "poverty stricken," not them! We should judge therefore not necessarily from a materialistic point of view as in the article, but we should try to acquire cultural understanding which can only be done by recognizing that our own culture is very relative and pertains only to us.

Alexander Haig: His compassion makes writer sick

Chicago Sun-Times

Looking at someone like Alexander Haig — with his TV, dignified, confident, military-governmental manner — it's easy to overlook the fact that he is a man of a tender, compassionate nature.

A man who is sensitive to the pain of his fellow man. This sensitive side of him came out during an interview in which he recalled his Watergate days in the White House, when he was Richard Nixon's chief of staff.

Haig, a former Army general, said: "Nothing of the battlefield was as tough as this. Nor did I ever see more human tragedy."

See what I mean about his compassion and sensitivity? Many people, especially those of an unyielding nature, think of the Nixon-Watergate crew as a bunch of arrogant, ruthless, power-loving bullies who had contempt for the law, basic decency and anyone who wasn't part of their political team.

Instead of thinking about the great human tragedy that befell the Nixon crew, as Haig does, the less sensitive will dwell on how they writhed, bullied, lied, destroyed and concealed evidence, and how finally enough of them loudly squealed on one another to bring most of the sordid facts to light.

Instead of being as compassionate as Haig, and remembering the shattered political careers, thwarted ambitions and even the time spent in prison, these unyielding people look at it this way: The most tragic part of the affair was that people of such dubious character ever reached positions of great power in the first place. And their shattered careers and prisons terms were fully deserved for highly placed sneaks who tried to subvert the democratic process.

The less compassionate might also point out that most of the Watergate figures are doing quite well now. One of them works in the same building that I do. He is a well-paid executive and appears prosperous and fit. Several others have written profitable books about themselves and each other. At least one makes a good living telling people how Christ changed him from a vile political backstabber into a halcyon

Christian. (Yes, say cynics, Christ and trauma brought on by hearing the prison-gate slam shut.)

Some people might find it hard to share Haig's belief that what the Nixon White House crew went through was as "tough" or of greater "human tragedy" than the things that happen to people on the battlefield.

But that just shows how amazingly sensitive and compassionate he is. Most people would find it hard to accept that the suffering of Haldean and Ehrlichman and Colson and even Nixon was as "tough" or of greater "human tragedy" than the things that happen to people on the battlefield.

They might point out that among the tragic things that happen to people on the battlefield is that they get killed, usually at an early age. Or they are maimed, with arms and legs blown off, eyes blinded, bodies scarred and twisted. Sometimes their minds are destroyed.

Cynics might say that as agonizing as being pursued by Woodward and Bernstein might be, it still beats being up to your hips in muddy water in a Vietnam jungle with shrapnel whizzing by your ears. Or spending weeks, months, years or the rest of your life in a VA hospital, wondering if anybody remembers you, or what is left of you. Or being shipped home in a box and being kept over by your mother or widow, who try to understand what a kid of 19 or 20 or 21 had died for.

True, the cynic will say, being thrown out of the White House with a trayed honor is not pleasant. And doing time in a federal prison must have been hell for men who were accustomed to the gleeful satisfaction of striking terror in the souls of those on their enemies' list.

On the other hand, not many of the kids who were killed or maimed in Vietnam got to write best-sellers about their experiences. And they never lived to any grand juries.

Haig is a man with so much compassion that he even had some left over for himself. He told that same interviewer:

Haig's suffering, although few would dispute that walking closer to Richard Nixon can't be a barrel of laughs.

They might remember that when Nixon got to the White House, Haig was an obscure Army colonel who had very little battlefield experience, but would have had a chest full of medals if they gave decorations for valor in the pursuit of political clout and influential friends.

And unkind people might also remember how Henry Kissinger brought Haig to the White House as an aide, and how Kissinger's influence quickly made Haig a one-star, then a two-star general. His suffering later included being leaptfrogged by the White House over many other senior generals into the job of vice chief of staff of the Army — which meant he went from being a colonel to a four-star general in four years. Some Army officers would say that was the kind of suffering they could learn to live with.

And his suffering deepened when he returned to the White House as Nixon's chief of staff, which meant that when Nixon went into his blue funk and of suffering they could learn to live with.

with paintings, Haig was virtually running the country.

Now Haig has been nominated for the job of secretary of State, which probably makes him the envy of the others who suffered at Nixon's side.

There will have to be congressional hearings before Haig's appointment is confirmed. And some senators are sure to ask him unpleasant questions about his days as White House chief of staff — questions about the many FBI wiretaps he ordered on the phones of governmental officials, journalists and others. And about how he advised Nixon to lie. And about suspicions that he obstructed the Watergate investigation.

But I hope that when they grill Haig, they will remember that he is a real softie at heart — a man who saw more human tragedy in the slitherings of Haldean, Ehrlichman and Nixon than he ever saw out where the bullets, shrapnel and bombs were flying.

They should also remember the compassion for the suffering he endured by walking at Nixon's side. And if I think about Haig's suffering

Owners spirit 727 jet across country

ISLIP, N.Y. (UPI) — A jetliner reported stolen in California over the weekend and flown to New York actually was taken by its owners.

Federal investigators said Monday they failed to pay a repair bill before moving the aircraft. Tiger Air Service, Inc., the firm that refurbished the Boeing 727 jet at Hollywood-Burbank Airport, had reported it stolen. But Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Robert Fulton said an investigation revealed that it had been taken by the plane's owner before the bill was paid.

Fulton said the amount of the bill for the repair job has not been ascertained, but authorities in California gave estimates ranging from $50,000 to more than $1 million.

Charles Sterns, service manager for AirResearch, another refurbishing firm at Long Island-MacArthur, where the aircraft landed Sunday, said the aircraft is registered to the Constance Leasing Co., a charter service owned by Kutayba Alghannim, a wealthy Arab who is a native of Kuwait.

Flight of Boeing jet followed erratic route to East Coast

Sterns said the gray-colored jet with blue stripes was flown to Long Island by Francis Rosasco, chief pilot for Alghannim.

He said Rosasco, a business acquaintance, phoned him Saturday from California, said he was picking up the plane and flying it to Long Island, and asked Sterns if he could leave it at the AirResearch facility "for a few days."

According to Sterns, the plane arrived at Long Island-MacArthur late Sunday afternoon, and Rosasco, along with two or three other unidentified men, left it there and took a 45-minute helicopter flight to John F. Kennedy International Airport. Rosasco then boarded a regular commercial flight to London. Sterns said. He said he received a phone call from Rosasco in London early Monday, and Rosasco told him a news report he heard there that the plane was stolen was erroneous.

Sterns said a report that Alghannim had flown to London with Rosasco was denied by Rosasco.

According to Sterns, Rosasco filed a flight plan to Long Island-MacArthur before leaving California, but Fulton said the FAA had no knowledge of this. FAA inspectors boarded the plane to check out the registration and to determine if it had been certified as airworthy before it departed from California. Burbank Police Sgt. David Brazieroff said the matter of the alleged non-payment of the refurbishing bill was referred to the local District Attorney's office to determine if theft of services or other charges should be filed against Rosasco and Constance Leasing.

Judge delays Abscam trial for week

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge, apparently suffering from the flu, has recessed Rep. Richard Kelly's Abscam trial for a week.

Chief U.S. District Judge William Bryant dismissed the jury until next Monday at the trial of Kelly, R-Fla., and defendants Eugene Thomas of Longwood, Fla., and Stanley Wenzel of Smithtown, N.Y. Bryant had planned to resume the trial Monday with testimony by J.P. Maher, Kelly's former district aide, who was called as a defense witness last week.

Americans spend more, save less

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the second month in a row, Americans spent money faster than they earned it.

They did so by relying more heavily on their savings, the government said Monday.

The Commerce Department said the personal income of Americans rose 1.1 percent or $2.9 billion percent in November, to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1.9 trillion.

But taxes also increased in November, so spendable income rose only 1 percent or $18.8 billion last month to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1.9 trillion.

That didn't slow consumer spending, which outpaced disposable personal income for the second consecutive month, rising 1.2 percent or $21.6 billion in November to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1.9 trillion.

In October, consumers increased spending by a revised 1.7 percent or $29.2 billion, well ahead of the 1 percent increase of $19.5 billion in after-tax income.

To fill the gap between disposable personal income and consumer spending last month, Americans dipped into their savings to maintain their standard of living. Consumers saved $104.2 billion in November, down 2.6 percent from the previous month.

As a result, Americans saved only 5.5 percent of their after-tax income, compared to a 5.7 percent rate in October.

The Commerce Department noted that its personal income report reflects a comprehensive revision of government statistics on income and products as far back as 1968.

Consequently, numbers such as the personal savings rate, which in previous reports have been running below 5 percent all year, have been revised upwards.

Courtenay Slater, the Commerce Department's chief economist, said even slight revisions in government figures on personal income and spending can have a major impact on the savings rate because it is the net difference between earnings and spending.

Politico aids Lone Ranger

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — A nostalgic Baltimore politician, who believes good should prevail over evil, said Monday he will ask his legislative colleagues to come to the defense of TV star Clayton Moore, the Lone Ranger.

Raymond Dypski, a gravely-voiced state delegate best known in Maryland for his successful effort to establish a commission to study discrimination against fat people, now wants the General Assembly to formally recognize Moore as the real Lone Ranger.

The aging Moore is currently embroiled in a legal dispute over whether he may continue to wear the mask that in 186 television episodes from 1949 to 1956 made the Lone Ranger a household name.

"This country's losing all its morals. It doesn't have anybody to look up to. It seems like everybody's out to make a buck," said Dypski, 57, whose resolution would put the state's lawmakers on record in the Lone Ranger dispute.

"Whereas, Clayton Moore, also known as Kemo Sabe, has portrayed the Lone Ranger for 31 years," the Dypski resolution begins.

"Whereas, Clayton Moore as the Lone Ranger played the masked hero who would use simple frontier justice to right wrongs in the Old West and who would leap on his famous fiery white stallion with the speed of light and gallop away with his trusted companion, Tonto, shouting, 'Heigh-ho, Silver,'" it continued.

Dypski said, "This country lacks heroes," adding that "all you see is sex, violence, drugs and alcohol anymore. You don't see anything about the good guys anymore."

Dypski said he watched with dismay a televised Thanksgiving parade in which someone other than Moore played the Lone Ranger. "They put him on a horse and it looked like he was scared to death to mount the horse," he said.

"Clayton Moore never drank or smoke," Dypski added. "The Lone Ranger, they always looked at him as the guy who wore the white hat. He arrested 7,000 people — outlaws — and never killed any of them but one."

Wit, author Connelly dies at 90

NEW YORK (UPI) — Marc Connelly kept his colleagues laughing at the famed Round Table at the Algonquin Hotel years ago almost as much as he kept audiences in awe with his revealing treatment of the Bible story in his Pulitzer Prize winning play "Green Pastures."

The famed wit and playwright died Sunday at the age of 90. Funeral services will be today at the Frank Campbell Funeral Home in Manhattan.

Connelly, who wrote a number of hit Broadway plays in collaboration with George S. Kaufman, won the Pulitzer for "Green Pastures" in 1930.

The play, based on the book "O' Man Adam an' His Chinitan," retold the stories of the Old Testament in the words of Southern blacks. Produced with an all-black cast, it was an immediate hit that was revived periodically for two decades.

"Green Pastures," which also was made into a movie, was reprinted in college English textbooks well into the 1960's. A new era of black consciousness reduced its popularity.

Admirers of the play said it transcended its period dialect and stereotypes to present a timeless portrait of the relationship between the divinity and the common man.

Connelly was born Dec. 13, 1890, in McKeesport, Pa., the son of an actor-hotel owner who died when his son was 12.

Going to work to help support his mother, Connelly became a reporter and later a humor writer for the Pittsburgh Gazette Times.

Connelly moved to New York when a skit he helped write for a local theater group was sent to Broadway. He became theater reporter for the Morning Telegraph and met Kaufman, who held a similar job at the Times.

The two collaborated on a series of comedies, including "Merton of the Movies," "Beggars on Horseback," and "The Ladies." They were working on another play when Kaufman died in 1921.

Connelly's career never again reached the heights it achieved in the 1920's. Like many of his fellow Round Table members, he wrote movie scripts, including "Captains Courageous." He taught at Yale Drama School, acted, and wrote travel articles.

Connelly turned 90 on Dec. 13 and was honored at City Hall with a ceremony commemorating his contributions to American theater.

Crash kills toll dodgers

CARMI, Ill. (UPI) — One man died and another was seriously injured in an apparent attempt to avoid paying a 35-cent bridge toll, police said Monday.

State police said the car passed through a bridge toll booth west of Carmi at a high rate of speed and missed a sharp turn into a detour near some construction work Sunday.

The auto traveled about 150 feet on some girders, then plunged about 30 feet to the ground below. Jeffrey Griffin, 24, Carmi, died in the wreck. Randall Ashby, 32, Carmi, was in serious condition Monday at Deaconess Hospital in Evansville, Ind.

Zoo's polar bears need purer water

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Baltimore Zoo must provide purer water for its three 25-year-old polar bears or put the animals to death, the zoo director said Monday.

The zoo is under a federal directive to give the three bears purer water in the pool of their exhibit because standards for sea animals are stricter than those for humans.

Mississippi fugitive faces multiple charges

SELMER, Tenn. (UPI) — A fugitive from a Mississippi prison where he was serving a 50-year term was charged Monday with kidnapping, armed robbery and assault in connection with the abduction of eight people over a five-day period.

James Earl Holland, a trusty who escaped from Parchman Prison last Wednesday, was captured without resistance Sunday by the Tennessee Highway Patrol.

McNairy County Sheriff James Opal Gray said no bond was set for Holland and more charges may be placed when officials complete an investigation. There was also no indication when Holland would be returned to Mississippi.

None of the hostages, who were abducted in four separate incidents, was hurt.

Holland, armed with a .357-magnum pistol, took his last two hostages on Friday. Pamela Ann Para, 18, and Lynn Keith Carmichael, both of Corinth, Miss., were forced to drive Holland through portions of six and perhaps seven states, police said. Miss Para finally managed to slip a note to a service station attendant outside Jackson, Tenn., saying that she and her companion were being held hostage. The attendant called the highway patrol and prowl cars were ordered to follow the fugitive's vehicle.

After 60 miles, Holland ordered Miss Para to pull the car over on the side of the road. Holland held the pistol to Carmichael's throat, but agreed to surrender if troopers would guarantee his safety. They then drove to a parking lot in Oakland, Tenn., where Holland took the bullets out of the pistol, pushed the gun out a car window and surrendered.

Authorities said Holland forced his hostages to drive through portions of Kentucky, Mississippi, Illinois, Indiana, Missouri and perhaps Alabama before reaching Tennessee. Details of Holland's odyssey were not revealed, but Gray said the man abducted two people in Alcorn County, Miss., and then made several stops in McNairy County, Miss. Missouri authorities said Holland held an elderly couple hostage in their Booneville, Miss., home for a time on Friday.

Holland also took two hostages, the wife of a prison guard and her son, soon after escaping from prison. They were found unhurt in Lee County, Miss., where Holland abandoned a stolen truck when it ran out of gas.

The fugitive's 50-year prison term in Mississippi was imposed for armed robbery and kidnapping.

Officer slain in scuffle

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (UPI) — A police officer was shot and killed Monday during a scuffle with a passenger who was snuggled on a PATH commuter train, authorities said.

The Port Authority of New York-New Jersey officer, identified as William Perry, 32, of Roselle, was pronounced dead of a gunshot wound in the neck at 12:41 p.m., minutes after he arrived at the Jersey City Medical Center.

He was the second officer to be killed in the line of duty since the P.A. force was organized in 1927.

Perry, who joined the P.A. police in February 1977, was wearing civilian clothing and a bulletproof vest when he was shot.

P.A. spokesman Mark Marchese said Perry was returning from a court appearance in Harrison in connection with a narcotics arrest when the incident occurred about 12:10 p.m.

WHY DO YOU PAY MORE IN TAXES THAN YOU HAVE TO?

Most taxpayers can substantially reduce their taxes and at the same time increase their net worth. Two very desirable objectives. Yet, most taxpayers are unaware of this opportunity to significantly reduce their taxes. And if they are aware, they aren't familiar with the opportunities approved by the Internal Revenue Service to benefit themselves.

If your taxable income is over $45,000, and you want to do something about your 1980 tax liability, now is the time. In so doing, you can be sure of three things:

1. Personal attention to your needs.

What's what

Voicing terrible truths doesn't always work out

Oliver Wendell Holmes once asked, "Why can't somebody give us a list of things that everybody thinks and nobody says, and another list of things that everybody says and nobody thinks?" Sounds simple enough. But it's not. Try it. No trick to dreaming up things people say but don't mean. Nor things people mean but don't say. What's hard is actually voicing such matters out loud. Terrible truths when told make you sound like somebody you don't want to be, a monster of cynicism.

Some provinces in Malaya are so infested with rats that the locals now require a prospective bridegroom to bring in 50 such rodents as bounty before said fellow can be granted a marriage license.

AVOCADOS

Q. How do avocados grow?
A. On little trees. Or maybe not so little. Some reach 50 feet and put out as many as 3,000 pears.

Youngsters who collect marbles take a small pride in the fact that some of the nation's foremost citizens have done likewise: George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and John Quincy Adams, to name three.

Q. What's the fastest that passenger elevators can travel?
A. About 19 miles per hour is the limit. To go faster, they'd have to accelerate so quickly that people would complain. Mechanically, they could go faster, certainly.

Not one person in 1,000 can describe that sort of dog correctly known as an Alsatian, but everybody can do so, if you just call it a German Shepherd.

VOICES

When radio and TV announcers hear their voices on tape they invariably recognize same. People not so professionally experienced do not, however. Of at least, most do not. Two out of three ordinary souls say, "Is that me? Is that me?" Or words to that effect. They are not in love with the sound of their own voices. They do not know what their voices sound like, in fact.

Neither dandelions nor crabgrass are native to North America. Who do you suppose brought them over? And why?

Maori men and women for generations thought red lips repulsive, so they dyed, or tattooed their lips blue. It's still evident among the elderly, I'm told.

Dow soars as prime pared

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
United Press International

NEW YORK — The Dow Jones industrial average soared 21.59 points in active trading Monday.

It leaped after Wells Fargo Bank, the nation's 11th largest, cut its prime rate to 20% percent from 21 percent and sparked a late rally.

The Dow average, a 7-point winner Friday and a 20.6-point gainer overall last week, finished at 968.79 after the San Francisco bank added fuel to the argument that interest rates have peaked after hitting record levels last week.

The prevailing prime rate is 21 1/2 percent, reached Friday.

The small Southwest Bank of St.

Louis lowered its prime to 20 percent early in the day. Last Friday, First Valley Bank of Lompoc, Calif., cut its prime rate to 16 percent and Michigan National Corp. went to 18 percent.

Most of the market's gain came in the final hour after Wells Fargo acted.

The New York Stock Exchange index rose 1.08 to 79.94 and the price of a share increased 52 cents. Advances receded 1,211-443 and the price of the 2013 issues traded at 4 p.m. EST. That's the largest number of issues ever traded in one day.

News of the prime rate declines helped the bond market rally for the third consecutive day. Commodities markets, which suffered huge losses more than a week ago, were mixed.

The Federal Reserve set the stage for the rally late Friday when it reported the nation's money supply fell $1.9 billion in the latest statistical week. That took pressure off the Fed to tighten credit.

Big Bond volume totaled 51,950,000 shares, compared with 50,770,000 traded Friday.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 4 p.m. totaled 58,842,500 shares, compared with 54,438,100 traded Friday.

The American Stock Exchange index rose 5.81 to 353.29 and the price of a share increased 22 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ index of OTC issues gained 1.89 to 199.79.

General Motors, which led Friday's rally with a 3 1/2-point gain, was the second most active NYSE-listed issue, up 2 1/4 to 47 in trading that included a block of 100,000 shares.

Several analysts think the stock is undervalued and GM will come out of the current slump in better shape than any other domestic carmaker.

Blue-chip Sears, Roebuck, which has taken a drubbing this year both in sales and in the stock market, was the most active NYSE-listed issue, up 7/8 to 15 1/2, with the help of a block of 101,500 shares at 15 1/2.

Sony Corp. was the third most active NYSE-listed issue, up 1 1/4 to a block of 200,000 shares at 15 1/4.

American Telephone & Telegraph, which last week posted a record billion annual profit, gained 7/8 to 49 1/2.

in heavy trading.

Commonwealth Edison added 1/4 to 18 1/2 in trading that included blocks of 100,000 shares at 18 1/2 and 100,000 shares at 19. Commonwealth reported fiscal year earnings of $2.88 a share, up from $2.82 a year ago.

Filmways Inc. added 3/4 to 6 1/2. Norman Lear, Jerry Perenchio and Bud Yorkin have agreed to buy the 9 percent of Filmways stock owned by Samuel Z. Arkoff and members of his immediate family.

Data Terminal Systems gained 2 1/2 to 18 after a delayed opening. The company said it could not locate the activity in its stock.

Zapata, which gained 11 points last week, added 1 1/2 to 20 1/2. The company has declared a 100 percent stock dividend and raised its cash payout.

Some gold-mining issues showed some strength when bullion prices rose on international exchanges.

Comstock Resources rose 3/4 to 60 1/2. Homestake Mining 1/4 to 75 1/2 and ASA Ltd. 1/4 to 67 1/2.

On the Amex, advances topped declines 405-229 among the 869 issues traded at 4 p.m. Volume at that time totaled 5,690,000 shares, compared with 5,560,000 traded Thursday.

Gulf Oil of Canada was the most active Amex issue, up 1/4 to 20 1/2. Houston Oil & Minerals followed, up 1/4 to 54 1/2. Wang Laboratories class B stock was third, up 1/4 to 37 1/2.

Manor Care gained 1 1/4 to 21 after the company reported its second quarter net rose to 65 cents a share from 39 cents a year ago.

Dear Abby

Sex truth is consequence

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: How does a boy know when he is old enough to get a girl pregnant?

CURIOUS CORPUS CHRISTI
DEAR CURIOUS: Yours is a very intelligent question, and you deserve credit for asking.

Any boy who is old enough to complete the act of sexual intercourse is old enough to get a girl pregnant. So until you are ready to become a parent, play it safe. Either don't have sex, or use contraception. For more information, call your local Planned Parenthood. They will give you the facts.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem that concerns a close relative with whom I must spend a great deal of time.

This woman is an incurable gossip who never has a good word to say about anybody. I listen quietly and offer an occasional "Is that so," or, "Oh, really?" But all the while I feel terribly uncomfortable hearing all that gossip, some of which I know isn't even true.

I can't tell her off because I was taught to respect my elders. Is there a solution to this problem, or must I just learn to live with it?

UNCOMFORTABLE
DEAR UNCOMFORTABLE: None is required to listen to tiresome gossip from "close relatives," "elders" or anyone else. When she launches into one of her malicious tales, simply tell her you aren't interested in other people's business. And make your tone respectful, firm and final.

DEAR ABBY: The invitations you described to a "non-dinner" to benefit Goodwill Industries prompts me to write. The Cumberland County unit of the American Cancer Society sent a similar invitation last February. It read:

PHANTOM DINNER DANCE
The most delightful benefit you will attend,

For you don't have to come, it's money you send.

No cookies to bake, no silver to lend. No rummage to dig up, bundle and send.

You don't have to worry about what to wear.

No driving or parking to give you a care. If you have beverages that sit on the shelf.

Don't bother to dress, just sip them yourself.

Without usual hurry, have dinner for all.

You and your family have answered the call.

Place... Home Sweet Home. Time... Anytime that suits you. RSVP... All proceeds will be used for cancer research.

DEAR MONEY-STAYED HOME
DEAR SENT: Like you, many prefer to stay home and send their money to support a worthy cause. It makes sense—a lot of dollars, too!

Some crops can remain in ground

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (UPI)—Some home garden crops can stay in the ground all winter or be harvested for use even when snow covers the earth, says Theodore Torrey, a vegetable breeder and home gardener.

Frost and freezing seem to improve the taste and make brussels sprouts and kale milder and sweeter, Torrey says. But be sure to cook the frost-touched or frozen ones immediately or leave them in the cold until you're ready to prepare them. They tend to get soft and lose flavor if held at room temperature before cooking.

Mature beets, carrots, Jerusalem artichokes, leeks, parsnips, root parsley, fall and winter radishes and salsify can be left in the ground all winter, he says, if you cover them with a thick mulch of straw, hay, leaves or similar material about the time you expect the ground to freeze.

The mulch should be four to six inches deep, he says, to keep the roots from freezing and to permit easy digging during the cold months.

Create focal point

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (UPI)—Most people position furniture in a room, then figure out what to hang on the walls.

Decorating consultant Mary Ann Willis thinks the procedure should be reversed.

Every room should have a focal point around which furniture is arranged, Ms. Willis says. If you don't have a ready-made one — such as a fireplace or a dramatic window — you can create one on a wall, preferably the longest wall in the room.

That focal point could be tall bookshelves to hold books and objects or a large painting, a pair or series of compatible framed prints or a grouping of art and decorative accessories with low bookshelves below them.

Ex-employee of Beans Inc., says

Deposition claims misrepresentation OKs bill changes

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A former employee of Beans Inc. says the Filer warehouse misrepresented the quality of beans sold to customers and shipped beans it did not own.

In a deposition filed in 5th District Court, the employee also said that she believes a July 1979 fire which destroyed the warehouse was set deliberately.

Sharon Moreland, who worked at Beans Inc. from June 1978 to March 1979, also is quoted in the deposition as saying she was frightened because she had been receiving anonymous phone calls prior to and after the warehouse fire. Also, she said, her home was ransacked after the fire.

Moreland was married to Glen Johnston, who eventually managed the warehouse, at the time she worked at the Filer warehouse. In the deposition, Moreland claims pressure at work was a contributing factor in their divorce.

Moreland said she developed a daily bean inventory system as part of her duties as a secretary at the warehouse. She said her inventory conflicted with other bean counts kept by the bean firm.

"... I would get upset when the trucks would pull in and according to my records we didn't have the beans," Moreland's deposition reads. She added shipments of beans frequently followed "... a big scramble, scraping for beans and the beans then put on the trucks — weren't what was supposed to be on there."

Moreland's deposition, taken April 26, is one of a series filed in court in connection with a lawsuit against Beans Inc., Commodity Marketing Corp., of Salinas, Calif., the parent company of the Filer firm, and CMC President James R. Woods.

The lawsuit is being waged by the National Farmers Organization and about 70 former customers of the bean company who want payment for beans stored in the warehouse. The defendants are accused of selling beans they did not own. No trial date has been set in the case.

Moreland said she quit her job at the bean company as a result of the alleged irregularities.

"Well, I mean it was almost impossible to do your job," she told the court. "Well, I worked from facts and figures and they didn't like things done like that."

Moreland said she believed the fire was the work of arson, but acknowledged she could offer no proof.

Hospital OKs bill changes

TWIN FALLS — Major changes in Magic Valley Memorial Hospital's billing procedures were approved Monday by the hospital board.

The board voted to limit the number of insurance companies billed directly by the hospital for outpatient services and to reduce the credit time allowed for payment of these services.

The changes will not go into effect until sometime in February, said MVMH controller Scott Richardson. The measures were taken to reduce the high amount of accounts receivable, or money owed the hospital. According to Richardson, about $17,000 is owed the hospital for outpatient services, about 20 percent of the total money owed. Outpatient services include walk-in X-rays and lab tests and emergency room care.

The board also voted to "write-off" or turn over to a collection agency, about $300,000 in accounts now past due in excess of 90 days. The hospital expects to get back only a fraction of that amount.

Presently the hospital bills the insurance company of insured patients for both in and outpatient services. Under new procedures for outpatients, the hospital will bill only Medicare, Medicaid, Blue Cross and Workman's Compensation; outpatients with other insurance will be provided with instruction sheets and required to bill companies themselves.

The board reiterated the hospital's policy of trying to collect payments before patients leave the hospital.

The board also voted to change outpatient credit time, set last April. Presently all patient services accounts that are self-paid or non-insured are written off if they are in excess of 90 days and are 180 days old (from discharge day) and no payment has been received in two months.

Under new procedures, outpatient accounts will be turned over for collection if the hospital receives a rejection from one of the four insurance companies and the account has aged 90 days without a final payment made. Self-paid accounts will be written off when the account has aged 60 days.

No changes in inpatient billing will be made. Richardson said "I'm sure there will be some resentment that we are not billing the insurance companies."

However, the hospital often lacks specific patient data to effectively bill insurance companies, Richardson said. But the hospital has contracts with Medicaid, Medicare and Blue Cross and is legally required to bill Workman's Compensation.

Of the $17,000 owed the hospital for outpatient services, 50 percent is more than 60 days past due. The average account is $39. The hospital has 13,700 outstanding patient accounts which "needs a staff of 10 to 15 people" to handle and "we have four," he said.

Opt for open-ended repurchase accounts

Twin Falls switches investment plan to gain more interest

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — About $1.4 million in city money is harnessing roughly 18 percent interest through a new investment plan.

City Finance Director Bruce Williams, speaking to the Twin Falls City Council at its Monday work session, said $1.4 million in cash-flow funds last week was transferred from certificates of deposit to open-ended repurchase accounts at two banks.

The 30-day certificates of deposit paid 14.5 percent interest. Williams said the repurchase accounts' fluctuating rate was 18 percent at one bank and 17 percent at another on Monday.

The new accounts, at Bank of Idaho and Idaho First National Bank, are called "open-ended" because the city can demand its money at any time without penalty, said Williams, who told the council he used such accounts in his previous post as a city budget director in Montana.

He said "repurchase account" is financial terminology for investments involving the purchase of federal treasury notes. Banks are using money in the city's new accounts to purchase such notes, Williams said.

Among drawbacks to certificates of deposit are penalties for early withdrawal of funds and the fact that certificates are insured for $100,000. Williams said the city's investments usually are in amounts above $100,000.

Williams said "chances of the bank defaulting are very remote," but full insurance is a good idea nonetheless.

Williams explained the account swap is part of a larger investment plan he has suggested the city council consider.

The finance director has proposed a plan whereby the city's four checking accounts, which yield no interest, would be replaced with an open-ended repurchase account at one bank. Cash from the interest-bearing repurchase account would then be transferred to a checking account on an as-needed basis.

Selection of an institution to handle the account would be based on banks' bids indicating how much interest they would pay, Williams said.

He noted Idaho's public depository law states a municipality ordinarily will divide its funds among the community's banks, with proportions determined by the banks' assets.

But that statute applies only to time deposits and "demand" accounts, said Williams, who observed a repurchase account "is an animal all its own." Repurchase accounts clearly are safe, legitimate public investments, he said.

The statute, apparently intended to foster fair distribution of wealth while reducing conflicts of interest between public officials and individual banks, tends "to prohibit a wise investment program," Williams said.

A better investment program over the past 10 years might have given the city of Twin Falls an extra $600,000 to $700,000 in interest, he said.

Williams said use of open-ended repurchase accounts created some problems in Helena, Mont., and he would expect the same in Twin Falls if the city goes ahead with the plan. Problems include the fact that having to bid for the city's banking business typically pulls smaller financial institutions out of the running, he said.

Williams is scheduled to further discuss his investment concept with the city council Jan. 5. If council members approve of the basic investment plan, details to be settled will include whether to enter fixed-interest agreements or those with rates fluctuating with the pulse of the economy.

Guns reported stolen

HAILEY — Nine guns worth about $7,500 were reported stolen Saturday from a Blaine County residence.

Pat Ryan, who lives in the Clarendon area near Deer Creek, told the Blaine County Sheriff's department someone entered his unoccupied home Friday or Saturday by breaking a glass door.

Most of the stolen guns are collector's items Ryan stored in a display cabinet, Deputy Sheriff Gene Ramsey said. Four have gold inlay and four have never been fired. Ramsey said no other items were reported taken in the burglary.

Money missing from store

RUPERT — The Mitidoka County Sheriff's department reported the theft of $14,065.98 from the Cenex Corp. office here Saturday night.

The money was reportedly left in a filing cabinet after the store closed Saturday evening, and was missing Sunday morning when the store opened. There was no report of a forced entry, and sheriff's deputies report they have no suspect at this time.

United Way at 91% of goal

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County United Way campaign is $12,000 short of its goal.

As of Dec. 19, the campaign reported $127,709 in pledges representing 91 percent of the $140,000 goal.

Of the individual categories in the campaign, only the banks have reached 100 percent.

Large commercial is at 99 percent of its goal; medical, 90 percent; special gifts, 83 percent; education, 84 percent; professional, 83 percent; small commercial, 75 percent; rural 51 percent; and government, 36 percent.

Judge suspends sentence

BURLEY — A five-year sentence on a manslaughter charge was suspended for Harold Farris Randell, 63, of Burley.

Placed on a three-year probation by 5th District Court Judge George Granata Friday, Randell was convicted of voluntary manslaughter for the death of Herman Masz, 27, of Rupert, who was killed in a shooting at the Handell home in Burley Sept. 8.

In other court action, Jerry Brent Hansen, 21, no address listed, was given a withheld sentence of two years for manufacturing a controlled substance, marijuana. Hansen was fined $150 and ordered to attend the substance abuse program.

The court revoked probation for Nicolas Lopez Prieto, 31, for probation violation. Prieto's original sentence of five years was reinstated with six months credit for time spent at the Cottonwood facility. He was convicted of first-degree burglary and recently brought back from California on a bench warrant.

The court also heard a motion to reconsider the sentence of Dickie Earl Gee of Oakley. Post conviction relief was denied. Gee is currently serving a 20-year sentence on a rape conviction.

'Santa' found abandoned

TWIN FALLS — Santa Claus, his sleigh and two reindeer were taken into custody by Twin Falls police over the weekend.

The man in red, his companions and vehicle were found in the area of the Lynwood Mall, apparently abandoned, according to police.

Police Chief Tim Qualls said the sleigh is three to four feet high and the Santa and deer are proportionately sized. All are plastic.

"We've got them in storage," Qualls said. "We hope somebody claims them by Christmas."

Man injured in skiing accident

SUN VALLEY (UPI) — A 32-year-old Hailey man suffered a severe head injury Monday afternoon in a skiing accident at Sun Valley, hospital officials said.

Jake Vierling received emergency treatment at Moritz Community Hospital and was transferred to St. Alphonsus Hospital in Boise, said a nursing supervisor at the Sun Valley institution.

Vierling was admitted to the Boise hospital about 4 p.m. and admitted to the intensive care unit, where he was listed in critical condition.

Sun Valley and Ketchum police said they had no details about the accident.

Garden City schedules another recall

GARDEN CITY (UPI) — Garden City voters go to the polls Tuesday in a second recall election, casting ballots to decide whether acting mayor Joe Shuter remains in office.

Last week voters ousted Mayor Pat Westerfield and Shuter, as president of the city council, became acting mayor.

Shuter, 55, a truck driver, faces the same political opposition that helped recall Westerfield.

Lenard Claiborne, head of the Citizens for Honest Government, organized the recall petitions against both officials.

Claiborne contends Shuter is incompetent and has not acted in the community's best interests. He also said Shuter will be unable to conduct city business now that he "doesn't have the mayor telling him what to do."

Woman dies in accident

TWIN FALLS — One woman was killed and another admitted to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital as the result of weekend traffic accidents.

Leta Mae Nelson, 26, of Kuna, was pronounced dead at the scene of a one-vehicle accident late Saturday night about 20 miles east of Jerome, according to the Idaho State Patrol.

Police said the westbound vehicle Nelson was driving veered off the right side of Interstate 84, returned to the freeway and then slid onto the median strip, where it overturned and halted at the edge of an eastbound lane.

Nelson's passenger, Richard A. Bender, 38, of Kuna, was briefly held for observation at St. Benedict's Hospital in Jerome and released.

Police said Nelson apparently overslept when her vehicle initially strayed from the pavement. The accident occurred at approximately 11:15 p.m.

A Twin Falls woman was in fair condition at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Monday evening with injuries suffered in an accident two miles south of Rogerson around midnight Sunday.

She was taken to the hospital, 33, 1801 Buena Vista St., was thrown from a vehicle driven by Albert H. McDade of Twin Falls.

The vehicle was northbound on Highway 93, veered off the right shoulder, went up an embankment and overturned, ejecting Rembold, police said. McDade, treated for injuries at the hospital and released, was not ejected, according to police.

McDade, 25, 838 Rose St. N., was cited for allegedly driving under the influence of intoxicating

Minidoka P & Z backs rezoning

By KARY MILLER

RUPERT — The Minidoka County Planning and Zoning Committee will recommend the county commissioners approve rezoning of 40 acres from agricultural to commercial use.

month for the sale of eight acres of this property to Idaho Power.

"It seems to me at this point that it would be very unfair to Mr. Knudson for the planning and zoning committee and commissioners to turn around and deny this rezoning," Bywater said.

The land is situated at 600 West and 300 South roads in Minidoka County. The results of last Thursday's hearing before the Planning and Zoning committee were announced Monday morning.

William Parsons, representative for the residents of homes facing the property, was the second speaker. He pointed out the Idaho Power special use permit already has the homeowners' approval. "As to the request that the remainder of the property be zoned 'general commercial,' we need to see the proposal of Knudson rather than be told they want 'general commercial'."

Another public hearing has been set for 2 p.m. on Jan. 12 before the Minidoka County Commissioners. The county commissioners will make the final decision following this hearing.

Parsons pointed out the need to protect these people from traffic congestion, any possible water problems, night traffic, or unsightly buildings.

Meeting chairman Ron Kiehe, stated "I think that to state what all those lots would be used for is impossible. Each of those lots will have to have permits and will then be discussed."

Steve Bywater, representing applicant Hobert Knudson of Boise, was the first speaker Thursday. Bywater had argued that 300 feet of the land bordering the highway is already zoned commercial and that Knudson assumed the rest of the property was already zoned the same. Based on that assumption, Bywater said Knudson negotiated this

One homeowner commented that "there are a few commercial businesses in the area already and we need to know if we are going to be surrounded by businesses that are not compatible with our residences."

Coeur d'Alene mail crimes may be linked

COEUR D'ALENE (UPI) — Police said Monday they had not ruled out the possibility that three recent crimes involving the U.S. Postal Service in the Coeur d'Alene area may have been linked.

The federal county and city authorities continued to probe Thursday's hijacking of a mail truck and a post office break-in — as well as the attempted strong-armed robbery of a 45-year-old mail carrier on a Coeur d'Alene Friday.

mail truck near Worley and hauled off with $50,000 in cash.

Coeur d'Alene police said the description of one of the truck's robbers was similar to a description given by mail carrier Luane Huellmann, who told officers she was attacked late Friday afternoon.

The carrier said she was removing mail from a box about 5:20 p.m. when a white male in his 20s approached her and demanded the mail. She refused, police said, and the man hit her in the face with his fist.

Ms. Huellmann said she kicked her attacker and jumped into her mail truck. The man fled on foot and she drove away and called police.

The would-be thief was described as 5 feet 8 inches tall, 140 pounds, wearing a black hat, dark jacket and dark pants.

Police said someone broke into several post office boxes at the Coeur d'Alene post office Thursday night — several hours before the truck was hijacked.

Cyprus begins mobilization of personnel

CHALLIS (UPI) — Cyprus Mines Corp. announced Monday mobilization of mine development personnel and equipment at its Thompson Creek molybdenum project near Challis with final approval of the Environmental Impact Statement.

M.M. McGee, general manager, said the Forest Service has authorized start of mine development and field work related to start within the next few days.

"The start of mine development culminates 16 months of liaison between Cyprus Thompson Creek, United States Forest Service, Bureau of Management and a number of other state and federal agencies," he said.

in the spring.

He said when in production the 25,000-ton-per-day molybdenum mine will employ about 550 people. At full operation the project will have local payroll in excess of $9 million annually.

The mine, one of the largest projects in Idaho, has been budgeted in excess of $300-million.

McGee said the mine will produce about 50 tons of molybdenum concentrate per day.

The general manager said in the very near future a major construction contract will be awarded the construction contract.

Molybdenum is used in special high temperature applications, such as missile nozzles, jet engines and high speed drills. World consumption of the mineral is currently about 200 million pounds per year. A level which is expected to grow to 250-million pounds by 1985 or 1986. Presently, 67 percent of the world's production comes from the United States with an additional 19 percent from Canada.

The fire protection district committee held a public hearing Monday and there was no opposition to the city's request. The proposal was taken to the county commissioners who were meeting at the time and they signed the order to annex the city into the district, effective immediately.

McGee said mine development will start as equipment and manpower are brought to the site with housing and plant construction scheduled to start

Moreland said she and her former husband did not communicate with each other about the company. But she said her husband appeared to be under pressure and had told her at one point that he feared for his life.

"It was obvious that he was under some kind of terrible pressure or something," she said. "I think Glen knew too much and that's why I think he possibly still is in danger."

She added she received anonymous phone calls when she was alone in the house, although she said the calls were not threatening. Moreland added she always received the calls when she was alone at home, although she did not have a consistent working schedule at the time.

Moreland added her house was ransacked in August or September 1979. She said drawers containing papers were turned inside out, although she was uncertain whether anything was removed. She said none of the papers involved Beans Inc.

In other positions related to the case, an officer of Commodity Marketing Corp. and business associate of Woods, discounted inventories showing Beans was in debt to the company.

Martin Taylor, who supervised the Beans Inc. operation from Salinas, disputed a former employee's claim that the warehouse was short some 26,000 hundredweight of beans prior to the fire. In a separate deposition, former employee Ken Kroeker had said he conducted an inventory in May 1979.

Taylor said Kroeker's count was "way off."

"I've had 10 years experience in the bean business. Mr. Kroeker has six months in it. I wouldn't be anything he figured he came up with. I wouldn't believe," he said.

Taylor said he believed thefts may have been responsible for shortages which occurred at the warehouse in April or May of 1978.

Chargers win, make playoffs

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — It was fitting that kicker Rolf Benirschke, who nearly died of intestinal disease last year, earned the San Diego Chargers to their second straight AFC West championship.

Before his surgery for Crohn's Disease, which left him on a critical list, Benirschke kicked a club-record four field goals against Seattle last season.

In the Chargers' 26-17 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers Monday night, the 4-year pro from UC Cal-Davis equaled that record and provided two extra points as well.

"I was named honorary captain," said Benirschke following the victory. "Before the game they asked (me) because it's the year anniversary of my illness. Before the game I remember what it was like to be hardly able to walk."

Benirschke said the mood in the Chargers' dressing room lacked the exuberance of last year's when the Chargers beat Denver in the final Monday night game to win their first AFC crown in 10 years.

"It's interesting," the 6-foot-1, 165-pound kicker said. "Although jubilant in here, it's nothing like last year. We all know that this is only the first step and the playoffs are what's important to us now. We'll be ready."

The Chargers, who finished their season with an 11-5 record, won the right to host all conference playoff games and will play either Houston or Buffalo in their first playoff game Jan. 30-31.

Benirschke, who nearly died last year from an intestinal ailment, but made a dramatic comeback, kicked field goals of 33, 26, 26 and 33 yards.

The defending champion Steelers managed a 16-yard touchdown pass from Terry Bradshaw to Ben Cunningham on the last play of the game.

a 2-yard TD run by Sidney Thornton in the third period and a 22-yard field goal by Matt Bahr in the second period.

They finished their disappointing season with a 9-7 record — the first time in nine years they failed to make the playoffs. The Steelers won four of the last six Super Bowls, including the last two.

Muncie, who rushed for 115 yards in 26 carries, put the game out of reach when he swept the left side for a 10-yard touchdown to give San Diego a 26-10 lead with 3:22 to play. Earlier in the fourth period, San Diego made the score 19-10 with 3:33 to go in the third quarter on Benirschke's fourth field goal, a 33-yarder.

Fouts, who completed 21-of-36 passes for 326 yards, engineered the Chargers' first touchdown with 3:38 gone in the third quarter with a 1-yard sneak, capping an eight-play, 82-yard drive.

The Steelers made it 16-10 at 8:14 of the third period on Thornton's barrelling two-yard TD run. The key play was 35-yard pass from Bradshaw to Theo bell which gave the Steelers a first down on the 1.

The game ended on Bradshaw's TD pass to Cunningham with no time left. Bahr kicked the extra point. The Chargers took a 9-3 halftime lead on a pair of 26-yard field goals and a 33-yarder by Benirschke. The Steelers countered with a 32-yard field goal by Bahr.

Two of the San Diego field goals came after the Chargers moved inside the Steelers' 10-yard line but were denied touchdowns by a stingy Pittsburgh defense.

Fouts completed 9-of-19 passes for 131 yards in the half and Bradshaw connected on 5-of-9 passes for 71 yards. San Diego held a 226-101 edge in total yards in the half, gaining 55 yards rushing to Pittsburgh's 36.

Playoff sites set

NEW YORK (UPI) — Here are the sites for the NFL playoffs: San Diego earned the final playoff spot Monday night, defeating Pittsburgh 26-17.

The Chargers clinched the AFC West title over Oakland on the basis of best net points within the division. The Patriots are eliminated from the playoffs and Houston plays at Oakland in the AFC wild-card game next Sunday. The Chargers host the home field because of a better conference record.

San Diego won the right to host all conference playoff games and will play either Houston or Buffalo on Jan. 30 or Jan. 31, depending on the result of the wild-card game Sunday.

Cleveland clinched the AFC Central Division title Sunday, breaking a tie with Houston on the basis of a better conference record.

Buffalo clinched the AFC East title with a victory in San Francisco but the Bills definitely will not host a conference semifinal playoff game. Buffalo will play away on Jan. 30 or Jan. 31 because of NFL tie-breaker procedures.

In the NFC, Philadelphia lost to Dallas but clinched the East title anyway on the basis of best net points in division games. The Cowboys needed to win by at least 25 points to gain their fifth straight division crown. Dallas will play host to Los Angeles Sunday in the NFC wild-card playoff game.

Last week, Minnesota clinched the Central Division and Atlanta the Western Division champion.

If Los Angeles beats Dallas, the Rams travel to Philadelphia and Atlanta plays host to Minnesota in the NFC semifinals. If Dallas defeats Los Angeles, the Falcons are home against the Cowboys and the Vikings travel to Philadelphia.

League rules stipulate no wild-card club may play a team from its own division until the conference title game.

Getting ready

Plane troubles slow Irish

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The Notre Dame football team, delayed more than seven hours by a tire blowout and a brake malfunction on its chartered jet, arrived Monday night to a jazz welcome for its Sugar Bowl encounter with top-ranked Georgia.

"We're happy to be here after the long delay," said Coach Dan Devine, the first passenger off the plane. "We're going to have to get ourselves oriented after coming in so late."

The eighth-ranked Irish had been due in New Orleans at 10 a.m. but did not arrive until 5:35 p.m. The United Air Lines "Streich" DC-9 the chartered jet was a tire on landing at South Bend, Ind., to pick up the team. The tire was changed, but mechanics discovered it caused brake damage which required repair before the plane could fly.

Sugar Bowl executive director Mickey Holmes said the delay forced cancellation of team parties in the French Quarter. "They were going to put the show on for them and since they couldn't drink they were going to put Coke in hurricane glasses so they'd have one of the traditional souvenirs of a tourist in New Orleans," Holmes said.

Holmes said an unplanned Monday night workout was added to the team's schedule because a put Coke in hurricane glasses so they'd have one of the traditional souvenirs of a tourist in New Orleans," Holmes said.

Devine predicted the Irish would be emotionally high for the game because of the impact the Sugar Bowl will have in deciding the national collegiate champion. He said the fact that it will be his last game as Notre Dame's head coach should not be a factor.

"I think that we're going to play with great emotion, not so much that it's my last game. But Georgia is 11-0 and I don't know what more you could want."

A Georgia win would virtually assure the Bulldogs of the national championship as the "only undefeated and untied major college in the country. But a Georgia loss could throw the championship picture into chaos.

"This game means a lot to a lot of people," said All-America center John Scully, who also downplayed the emotional impact of Devine's departure.

"It's my last game too so I kind of share his feelings," Scully said. "It's not that I want to win for Dan Devine," said junior linebacker Bob Crabie, the team's other All-America selection. "This is the seniors' last game—and I know what it means to the senior class."

Crabie said Georgia freshman sensation Hershel Walker's running did not scare the Irish.

"He's a great running back," Crabie said. "But if we get a lot of people around the ball, I think we'll stop him."

Huskies drill for Michigan

COSTA MESA, Calif. (UPI) — Coach Don James sent his Pacific-10 champion University of Washington through a tough, two-hour workout Monday at Orange Coast College.

It was Washington's eighth workout of the 16 allowed for the Rose Bowl in Pasadena where the Huskies meet the Big 10 champion Wolverines.

James plans an eleven tougher workout for the Huskies today with both James Carter and Paul Skansi expected to participate.

Carter, a 6-foot-2, 249-pound offensive guard, was one of the Huskies' key linemen this season. "Skansi, who has ben out with a chest injury, will be ready to practice tomorrow," James added.

Skansi, a 5-11, 190-pound flanker, is Washington's No. 2 pass receiver although serving as Allen's backup. He has caught 33 passes for 419 yards and four touchdowns this season.

Quarterback Tom Flick threw an almost equal number of passes to wide receivers Aaron Williams, Ron Blacken and Anthony Allen and tight end Dave Bayle as the Huskies worked on the Orange Coast practice field rather than in the main football stadium. The Huskies' home field in Seattle is covered with artificial turf. We did this because the footing is better here," said James. "We will continue to use this field. We had a little problem getting used to the grass field. We have had to get new shoes for everybody to use on grass. The new shoes have caused a few blisters but nothing serious."

For Randy VanDiver, a 6-5, 280-pound offensive tackle, it will be his third appearance in the 100,000-plus seat Rose Bowl. A prep star at nearby Anaheim High School, VanDiver first played in the Rose Bowl in 1977 as a member of the South All-Stars in the annual North-South Shrine game. He returned to Pasadena in 1978 as a reserve lineman when the Huskies upset Michigan, 27-20.

"This is like a homecoming for me," VanDiver said. "The reason I went to Washington rather than USC or UCLA is because I was born in Anaheim and lived there all my life. I wanted to explore another part of the country."

VanDiver was named to UPI's All-Coast and All-Pac-10 second teams and was on the honorable mention list for the All-American squad.

"I am concentrating on the Rose Bowl game now," he said. "But after that I will play in the East-West Shrine game in Palo Alto, Calif., and wait for the pro draft."

The Michigan Wolverines are slated to arrive in Southern California Christmas Day.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Here are the sites for the NFL playoffs:

San Diego earned the final playoff spot Monday night, defeating Pittsburgh 26-17.

The Chargers clinched the AFC West title over Oakland on the basis of best net points within the division. The Patriots are eliminated from the playoffs and Houston plays at Oakland in the AFC wild-card game next Sunday. The Chargers host the home field because of a better conference record.

San Diego won the right to host all conference playoff games and will play either Houston or Buffalo on Jan. 30 or Jan. 31, depending on the result of the wild-card game Sunday.

Cleveland clinched the AFC Central Division title Sunday, breaking a tie with Houston on the basis of a better conference record.

Buffalo clinched the AFC East title with a victory in San Francisco but the Bills definitely will not host a conference semifinal playoff game. Buffalo will play away on Jan. 30 or Jan. 31 because of NFL tie-breaker procedures.

In the NFC, Philadelphia lost to Dallas but clinched the East title anyway on the basis of best net points in division games. The Cowboys needed to win by at least 25 points to gain their fifth straight division crown. Dallas will play host to Los Angeles Sunday in the NFC wild-card playoff game.

Last week, Minnesota clinched the Central Division and Atlanta the Western Division champion.

If Los Angeles beats Dallas, the Rams travel to Philadelphia and Atlanta plays host to Minnesota in the NFC semifinals. If Dallas defeats Los Angeles, the Falcons are home against the Cowboys and the Vikings travel to Philadelphia.

League rules stipulate no wild-card club may play a team from its own division until the conference title game.

Lowlights, dark nights and bizarre sights of football, 1980, as culled from the Dead Season Scrolls:

THE COLLEGES

—Northern Arizona's junior varsity football team was disbanded due to a chicken pox epidemic.

—Chase Humble and Dollitt were members of the Colorado team that gave up 82 points to Oklahoma.

—Syracuse's new domed stadium, designed to protect fans from the outside elements, developed a malfunction in the ventilation system on opening day. Spectators soaked in the humid 80-plus degree heat.

—An Oregon State football player was arrested during a game for a drunken disturbance in the stands. He was not in uniform.

—Mars Hill defeated Gardner-Webb, 4-0.

—No Pac-10 (or Pac-5) player was named to the Academic All-America team.

—Texas Christian public address announcer Bob Barry was fired for giving a score at an "inappropriate time." By revealing that Texas had lost to SMU, officials said, Barry spurred TCU's opponent, Baylor, on to victory because Baylor was vying for the conference title with Texas.

—One of Iowa's games was delayed for 10 minutes when a Hawkeye cheerleader knocked himself cold trying to execute a flip.

—The Air Force-Washington game was designated as a Western Athletic Conference game.

meaning the Huskies technically finished first in two conferences.

THE HIGH SCHOOLS

—After receiving an inspirational message from alumnus Ronald Reagan, Dixon (Ill.) High went out and lost 42-0 to Sterling High.

THE PROS

—Two women barbers in Arvada, Colo., were fired because they wouldn't wear Broncos T-shirts to work.

—The Jets' Richard Todd was penalized once for holding. Todd is a quarterback.

—When Ohio State drum major Dwight Hudson was told turned pro — and became the featured twirler for the Los Angeles Rams.

—A holdco cost Green Bay's Ezra Johnson $1,000. That was what he was fined for eating it on the bench during an exhibition game. "I was hungry," he explained.

—Running back Scott Langlaw, cut by Dallas, claimed the Cowboys' refusal to give him a number to other clubs "because they didn't want anyone in the club division to get me." A Dallas spokesman said the club didn't know what Langlaw was talking about.

—A New Orleans judge recommended that a felony charge of possession of $100 of stolen goods against a youth be reduced to a misdemeanor since the goods in question were tickets to Saints' games.

Shoshone ends losing skid

SHOSHONE — Shoshone overcame bad passing and Shannon Carroway but 16 points as the Indians defeated Valley 53-33 to end a two game losing streak Monday night.

Valley applied the pressure early in the game with a full court press, but the tactic didn't quite work. Although the Indians were penalized with 31 turnovers, 20 of them had passes. Coach Ed Sandy's group overcame the problem to pick up the victory.

"We're still not playing as good as we were before the two losses," Sandy said about the team's only setbacks of the season earlier in the month. "The girls got down on themselves. We just played too many games in a row. It was time for a break (Christmas) anyway."

After taking a 22-17 halftime lead, the Indians put up a scare on the Indians. Valley outscored the Indians 10-6 and cut its deficit to 28-27. But the experienced group in the Shoshone backcourt came through to give the Indians their 10th win of the season. Valley falls to 7-4.

Valley savored part of the evening with a win in the junior varsity contest.

Valley opens up the second half of its season Jan. 6 at Gooding.

Loughery quits as Nets' coach

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — New Jersey Nets Coach Kevin Loughery, one of the most aggressive coaches in the NBA, resigned his position Monday night and will be replaced by assistant Bob MacKinnon.

The announcement was made by a Nets spokesman who said Loughery called the president of the club, Joe Taub, with his decision. The spokesman said that an assistant coach will be named at a later date.

The Nets are in last place in the Atlantic Division with a 12-23 record.

Loughery, 40, took over the Nets' coaching job in 1973 while the team was still in the American Basketball Association. In three seasons, the Nets won two ABA titles before the team entered the NBA at the start of the 1976-77 season. Since then, the Nets have accumulated a paltry 129-234 record, but managed to reach the playoffs with a 37-45 mark in 1978-79.

Loughery, resigned with two years remaining on his contract and general manager Charles Theokas cited a number of differences with ownership that perhaps led to Loughery's resignation.

Patera signs new pact with Seahawks

SEATTLE (UPI) — The Seattle Seahawks Monday announced that head coach Jack Patera has agreed to a new five-year contract with the National Football League club. Dollar amounts were not disclosed at a news conference called by Managing General Partner Herman Sarkowsky and General Manager John Thompson. "We are on the right track toward our long-range goals and are happy that Jack has agreed to be an on-going part of that progress," Thompson said. "His patience, ability to communicate with players and staff and understanding of the needs of a young team have been the force behind this team's development."

Waller is 'other player' in Sutter deal

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals Monday identified third baseman Ty Waller as the "player to be named later" in the deal for reliever Bruce Sutter. The Cardinals obtained Sutter from Chicago at the winter meetings earlier this month, sending third baseman Ken Reitz and outfielder Leon Durham to the Cubs. Waller, 23, was the fourth player involved in the deal. He batted .262 at Springfield last season and had one hit in 12 times at bat in a late-season stint with the parent club. With Reitz and Waller both dispatched to Chicago, Ken Oberkell will be moved to third base with Tommy Herr taking over at second.

Jabbar wins NBA's weekly honors

NEW YORK (UPI) — Los Angeles' Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who became the fifth man in NBA history to reach the 25,000-point plateau Sunday night, has earned NBA Player of the Week honors, it was announced Monday. Abdul-Jabbar, a five-time league MVP, scored 42 points Sunday night in the Lakers' 135-122 victory over the San Antonio Spurs to run his career point total to 25,004. In three games last week, he collected 108 points on .672 shooting from the field and .880 percent from the foul line. He also averaged 11 rebounds and 4 blocked shots per game. Only Walt Chamberlain, Oscar Robertson, Jerry West and John Havlicek scored more than 25,000 points in their NBA careers.

Vandals, WSU to renew grid rivalry

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI) — Washington State University and the University of Idaho will renew their annual football rivalry beginning with the 1982 season. The two teams, with campuses eight miles and one border apart, have been knocking heads since 1894. In the past two seasons, the schools have not met on the gridiron, however. WSU added Idaho for the Sept. 11, 1982 opener when Texas-El Paso asked to be released from its commitment to the Cougars.

Wyoming coach to be given deadline

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — University of Wyoming sports information director Kevin McKinney Monday confirmed football coach Pat Dye will be given a deadline by university officials to announce whether he will remain at Wyoming or take the top post at Auburn University. "I will probably be tomorrow (Tuesday)," McKinney said of the university ultimatum. "It will come from the athletic director's (Bob Hitch) office. The university has got to know what's going on." Dye, who compiled a 6-5 record in his first year at Wyoming, has been mentioned as a leading candidate for the Auburn job. He has denied that he has been offered the job, but said he has not asked Auburn to remove his name from consideration. Dye was a successful head coach at East Carolina University in North Carolina before coming to Wyoming last year. Before that he was an assistant coach at Alabama.

Louis will receive heart pacemaker

HOUSTON (UPI) — Surgeons at Methodist Hospital will install a pacemaker on the heart of former heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis today, a source close to Louis has told UPI. Officials at Methodist said they could not confirm or deny the report. They confirmed only that Louis had been admitted to the hospital Dec. 14 for a checkup. "He was admitted to the hospital. He is a 'no information' patient. His wife said I could release that he had come in for a checkup," a Methodist spokesman said. Louis, 66, has had several checkups at Methodist in recent years. In 1977, Dr. Michael DeBakey performed an arterial graft to correct an aneurysm.

DePaul AD resigns over change

CHICAGO (UPI) — Rev. Robert Gielow Monday resigned as athletic director at DePaul University Monday, saying he could not accept the appointment of a special assistant for men's basketball. Gielow, who first became athletic director in 1978, said the appointment of university comptroller Vince Battaglia as special assistant to the president in charge of men's basketball "raises serious questions about the university's values and commitment to all sports." The appointment amounted to a demotion for Gielow, taking men's basketball out of his jurisdiction.

Vermiel would like to play Dallas for NFC title

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Philadelphia Coach Dick Vermeil Monday savored the Eagles' first division title in 20 years but looked ahead to the possibility of facing the Dallas Cowboys one more time for the NFC championship. Although he went to Texas Stadium looking for a win, Vermeil was satisfied enough with the Eagles' 35-27 loss Sunday to the Cowboys. "The eight-point margin was well within the 25-point spread Philadelphia needed to win the NFC East under the NFL's tiebreaking system. "We (finished with the same record last year but they (the Cowboys) won the tiebreaker and they considered themselves the champions," Vermeil said at his weekly luncheon. "Speaking for the Eagles, we consider ourselves the champions this year."

"A lot of guys want to frown on it (the first-place, 12-4 tie) but we consider ourselves division champs and I'm sure Dallas does too."

Sunday's game enabled Dallas, which meets the Los Angeles Rams next week in the NFC wild card game, to gain a split of the season series with the Eagles. Vermeil said he won't count out another meeting with the Cowboys on the road to the Super Bowl.

"Dallas is a great football team, and I'd like to play them again here for the division title," he said. "Their players showed class yesterday, coming over after the game and congratulating me. I appreciate and respect that."

"I don't know if we're good enough to beat them. I know we've beaten them once and yesterday they beat us. I'd like to have another opportunity. And if they beat us, I'll be the first guy to walk over and say 'super game' to Tom Landry."

Vermeil said the division title topped a list of four pre-season goals. The others — all achieved — were beating Dallas at home, defeating Washington on the road and winning 12 games.

Down 21-0 at halftime, the Eagles began the second half with seven starters, including all-pro Wilbert Montgomery, Harold Carmichael and Bill Berkey, on the sidelines with injuries.

But the Philadelphia reserves rallied the team. Lou Grammon capped the Eagles' first drive of the second half with a one-yard touchdown run.

Free agent Rodney Parker, who caught a 30-yard scoring pass, and second-year man Scott Fitzkee filled in admirably at wide receiver for Carmichael and Charlie Smith.

The coach also said he was very happy for nine players — Carmichael, Bergey, Smith, Stan Walters, Guy Morris, Jerry Siseomer, John Bunting, Logan and Frank LeMaster — who remained from the chronic losing teams that preceded his arrival in Philadelphia in 1976.

"For me it was great to walk around the locker room and call those people champions," he said. "They were here when people were calling them losers and bums and throwing bottles at them. To call them champions was the greatest satisfaction I've ever had as a coach."

The Eagles will play in the NFC semifinals against either Los Angeles or Minnesota on Jan. 3 or 4 at Veterans Stadium.

Chicago brass blames players for 7-9 season

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (UPI) — The Chicago Bears' brass says the players — not the front office or the coaching staff — were responsible for the team's 7-9 record this year and some of them will be leaving as a result.

However, General Manager Jim Pinks would not name names during the final news conference of a disappointing season. Instead, he said fans will find out which players were dogging it by watching who is traded and who is cut.

The Bears, preseason favorites in the NFC Central Division, finished two games behind Minnesota and Detroit.

"This was one of the most bizarre seasons I've been involved in as a coach — exciting, disappointing and frustrating," Coach Neil Armstrong said. "I fell going into the season we were mentally and physically prepared. We started out wrong (losing the opener at Green Bay 12-6 in overtime on a fluke play.) We weren't ready to play. It's hard to put the finger on any one thing but we never did get the momentum going."

"In '80, we weren't play good enough," Pinks said. "Some guys did not play up to their capabilities and in time you will know who they are. Some of these are starters."

"We all know if we don't win, that sooner or later, we're all gone," said Pinks, referring to himself as well as the coaches. "I don't apologize for the six years I've been here. I would have liked to have a better record and be in the playoffs. However, I do see this team as being much better than it is."

"I don't think we had the consistency you have to have to be a playoff team. This was because of some poor performances. The players are the ones who win championships. I know our coaching staff has borne the brunt of an awful lot of criticism for our record. But that 7-9 record should not be laid at their doorstep," Pinks said.

Armstrong, who finished his third year coaching the Bears, has two years left on his contract. Last year Chicago was 10-4 and made the playoffs as a wild card team. In 1978 the Bears were 7-9.

"We have to find the formula to win the close games," said Armstrong, whose team lost six times this year by a touchdown or less. "Offensively, we should be more effective next season. Vince (Evans) threw well. We have to make other clubs believe we can throw. But, there were some guys that if we had run more than we passed, perhaps we could have done better."

Armstrong added he was pleased with his assistants, who are all under contract for next year. "I don't know what their plans are. I think we have a good staff and they've done a good job."

Phillips says team more confident for playoffs

HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston Oilers Coach Earl Phillips Monday said his team is a bit more confident of the playoffs this season.

"I'm as confident as we were last year, a little bit more than the year before," he said. "I mean, we're a little better football team now."

Tailback Earl Campbell finished the 16-game season with 1,934 yards, second only to O.J. Simpson's 2,003 yards in 1973, and Phillips surprisingly expressed no emotion over the narrowly missed record.

"No, I hadn't reflected on it. I doubt I will. It means a whole lot more to him (Campbell) than it does to me. He's the one that went after the record. We weren't interested in the record," he said.

He added, "If we'd been ahead in the game he wouldn't have played the Vikings Sunday, as in most of their games this year, the Oilers came from behind and hung on."

Nevertheless, the Oilers running game was one improved area Phillips cited over the 1978 and 1979 seasons which each won two playoff games before being defeated by Pittsburgh in the AFC Championship game. This Oilers team plays in the AFC wild card game Sunday.

"I believe we're a better running football team. I believe, percent-age-wise, our passing game is the best it's been. We've moved the football more on the ground. I think we're a little better short yardage and goal-line team. An inside-the-20 team."

"I think we're a better defensive football team than a year ago," he said. "The Oilers failed to win their division despite compiling a record equal to tight end Cleveland, 11-5. A victory over either Kansas City, Seattle or the New York Jets would have made Houston champion."

Phillips blamed the failures on better competition.

"The fans thought four teams were going to dominate, but they didn't. All year nine teams were in the playoff picture. Obviously, there were five teams better than they were last year," he said.

The biggest surprise to him was AFC East champion Buffalo.

"I thought (head coach) Chuck Knox did an outstanding job of getting his team on the winning track. I didn't think he had enough athletes."

Oakland's return to the AFC West top spot did not catch him off guard, he said, because, "Normally you expect them to be in the playoffs. They were good for years."

A reporter said, "Cleveland's (tight end) Ozzie Newsome sends word, 'The road to the Super Bowl goes through Cleveland.'"

"Not yet it doesn't," Phillips replied.

The same reporter then said Cleveland Coach Sam Rutigliano "wanted you to know you were knocking on the wrong door."

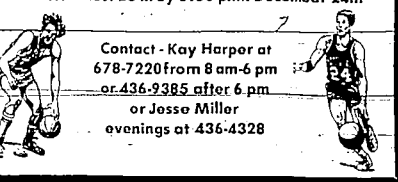

Phillips laughed and said, "Well, check his sense of humor later."

Patriots sign Erhardt to new contract

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Ron Erhardt, coach of the New England Patriots the past two seasons, signed a new contract Monday night.

"It's only fair that we hire Ron prior to a game he has no control over," said Patriots owner Billy Sullivan, referring to Monday night's game between the San Diego Chargers and Pittsburgh Steelers that will determine if the Patriots become a wild card in the NFL playoffs.

If the Steelers win, the Patriots will advance to the playoffs.

"He's been a tireless worker and has done all he has been able to do," Sullivan said about Erhardt. "There's a thin line between making the playoffs and not making them."

LA police arrest shooting suspects

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Two men and a young woman were arrested Monday on charges of robbing a coffee shop and shooting nine customers and employees execution-style, killing three of them.

Police Chief Daryl Gates said the woman, Cateha Stewart, 19, was a former employee of the Bob's Big Boy restaurant in West Los Angeles, scene of the robbery and shooting, Dec. 14. The other suspects were Franklin Freeman, 22, and Rickie Sanders, 25.

All three were arrested in Los Angeles' Venice area and several weapons also were seized by police serving four search warrants.

Both men had police records, Gates said, "and one of those records is extensive — real bad time." He said the woman did not have a record.

Gates said all three suspects would be charged with first-degree murder in the cold-blooded shootings.

Witnesses told police two black men forced their way into the restaurant about 2 a.m. as employees were preparing to close. After taking the receipts and robbing nine employees and two customers, the assailants herded them into a walk-in refrigerator and opened fire.

Detectives called the restaurant shootings "senseless executions." None of the victims resisted the robbers, who were armed with sawed-off shotguns and a revolver.

Gates said he could not explain why the men opened fire on no apparent reason except to say, "Criminals are more violent today and are more willing to take the lives of their victims."

Killed instantly were David Burrell

20, a customer, and Dita Agtani, 21, waitress. Ahmad Mashuk, another employee, died a few hours later.

The restaurant killings followed the next morning by the unrelated shooting death of a woman supermarket manager in Pacific Palisades, sent a chill through Los Angeles, where more than 1,000 people have been slain this year, 300 more than last year.

Gates said police were investigating the possibility that the suspects in the Big Boy killings may be linked to other crimes in the Los Angeles area

Tanner released from LDS hospital

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — President N. Eldon Tanner, first counselor in the first presidency of the Mormon Church, was released from Salt Lake City's LDS Hospital in good condition Monday after a two week stay for prostate surgery.

The 83-year-old Tanner was admitted to the hospital Dec. 9, for what doctors described as "adjustment of medication." While Tanner was in the hospital, however, doctors decided to perform surgery to remove part of the church elder's prostate gland.

A church spokesman said Tanner has been suffering from Parkinson's disease.

The spokesman said Tanner was "in much better than satisfactory condition" when released from the hospital Monday.

Pioneer expands air service

SHERIDAN, Wyo. (UPI) — Pioneer Airlines will begin providing five daily round-trip flights from Denver to Sheridan on Jan. 15, Pioneer chairman Bob Calloway said.

Calloway said four of the flights would have an intermediate stop in Gillette, and said Pioneer may also consider an intermediate stop in Cheyenne if it proves economically viable.

Sheridan is presently served by Big Sky Airlines and U.S. Air.

"We believe there's plenty of room in the market for both of us," Calloway said last week at a meeting of the Sheridan Air Transportation Task Force. "We find that frequency of service is what people want."

U.S. Air provides seven daily flight to Denver.

Calloway said Pioneer would use Beech 390 aircraft, which holds 15 passengers and has a cruising speed of 250 mph.

Calloway said the airline hoped to switch to Metroliner Three aircraft, which hold 19 passengers, by October.

Rob Offenhardt, a spokesman for U.S. Air at the meeting said his airline had found the Denver-Sheridan market to be an "extremely profitable route."

When members of the task force questioned the commuter airline's ability to deliver baggage on time with the passengers because of their plane's limited carrying capacity, Offenhardt said, "We will work with each other on flights to get baggage moved."

Calloway said Pioneer now has seven planes that fly 7,100 miles daily. He said the airline had a 99 percent rate of flight completions and a 92 percent rate of being on time.
