

Help in a hurry

Glenns Ferry Ambulance Service earns that reputation

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

GLENN'S FERRY — The Glenns Ferry Ambulance Service doesn't claim any records for the height of its emergency medical technicians.

Half of the 10-person staff are women and ambulance chief George "Kip" Drewrey is 5 feet, 8 inches tall.

But when accident or illness strikes in the vast expanses of southeastern Elmore County, the all-volunteer service holds a reputation for amassing help in a hurry.

A call went out last week for one EMT to assist an elderly resident taken ill. Four crew members converged on the spot in less than five minutes.

The Glenns Ferry service fields about 130 emergency calls a year, ranging from accident victims in the Snake River Canyon to heart patients in need of immediate care. In addition the EMTs take on more mundane functions like removing stitches, measuring blood pressures and checking anxious patients.

Drewrey said his staff would gladly give up the business, and hopes to do so when — or if — the town is able to hire a doctor and open a long-awaited emergency medical clinic. (See related story.)

A local doctor could help stabilize some types of injuries, he said. He or she also could provide improved health maintenance care. Some patients who really should see a doctor dread the drive too much to leave, he said.

The director believes acquiring a town doctor also would help improve the ambulances' record on heart attack saves. Of 15 heart attack calls so far this year, two died at the scene and another five died en route to the hospital in Mountain Home.

Only once was an attendant able to reverse a serious attack through the use of cardio-pulmonary resuscitation.

When the heart stops, so does the flow of oxygen-rich blood, Drewrey noted. Time is not on the side of victims or would-be rescuers, although the ambulance routinely delivers patients to the hospital within 55 minutes after the call is placed.

Jack Imler, a member of the team, said he first encountered the Glenns Ferry service when his first wife suffered a massive heart attack.

Ambulance attendants kept her alive en route to the hospital, Imler said, but doctors later said no

Northwest rivers fall, floods ease

SEATTLE (UPI) — Hundreds of Washington and Oregon residents returned to their homes Sunday and began surveying the damage from floods caused by heavy rains and melting snow.

Although rivers throughout the Northwest were receding slowly from two days of destruction, flood warnings remained in effect Sunday for the Skagit, Snohomish and Chehalis rivers in western Washington and for the Yakima and Naches Rivers in the eastern part of the state.

The swollen rivers had swept away at least two dozen homes in Washington, seriously damaged dozens more and forced hundreds of residents to flee for safety. Two weather-related deaths were reported in Oregon.

In Oregon, hardest hit areas were in Tillamook and Hood River counties. All Idaho rivers except for the St. Joe River in the Idaho Panhandle had receded below flood stage Sunday.

The National Weather Service said small storm fronts would continue to move through the Northwest early this week, but the rain would not be enough to cause more flooding.

Cooler temperatures were also expected, reducing the snowmelt that came with record highs last week and helped trigger the floods.

In Darrington, Wash., the raging Sauk River, fed by melting snow from Glacier Peak, destroyed at least 10 homes and cabins.

"The river was just outrageously high," said Assistant Fire Chief Jerry Booker. "It was full of trees and debris, and when it hit those homes it just demolished them."

Booker said the summer home of a Seattle doctor floated away, leaving just the upstairs sitting 200 yards from the foundation.

"Believe it or not, the upstairs windows are still intact," Booker said. "It's just sitting in the middle of the road. The doctor doesn't even know it."

Another estimated 40 houses, most of them summer homes, were badly damaged. Three bridges were washed out and mudslides knocked out the town's water supply twice, Booker said.

Other towns suffering heavy damage included the tiny western Washington communities of Index and Sullan, both in Snohomish County where at least 14 houses were reported swept away.

The Skykomish River washed out one of two major streets and carved a new route through Index. The town's water pipeline was damaged and 144 residents had to get by on two 50-gallon drums of emergency water of until repairs were completed Sunday.

Index residents were also trying to break apart the logjam that re-routed the Skykomish River through town.

Residents of Ebby Island along the Snohomish River were urged to evacuate because of fears of breaks in the levee protecting the low-lying farmland area.

Nearby, the Snoqualmie River flooded a new $1 million housing project built by King County. Residents, many of whom had just moved in, waded about salvaging items and some questioned why the county chose such a vulnerable site.

U.S. opens book on Iran dealings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — State Department officials said Sunday they consider the hostage negotiations with Iran to be still active, despite recent setbacks.

"They also revealed for the first time some details of past American proposals," the officials said.

The officials talked to newsmen as a team of Algerian officials remained in Washington, bringing details of their meetings with Iranian officials and the American hostages and discussing possible future negotiations.

The U.S. officials said that the Iranians have accepted the principle of the American claim settlement proposal, but apparently raised their demands in the last set of exchanges in order to win the maximum amount of money.

In their last response, the Iranians insist that the United States pay $24 billion in deposit before the hostages are returned. That demand has been described as unreasonable by the U.S. government.

One State Department official said, "We're operating on the premise that it's better to keep the exchange alive."

The officials gave newsmen the set of secret documents which have provided the basis for the negotiations which began Nov. 11 when Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher went to Algiers to hand them over to the designated intermediaries.

The State Department, which had tried to keep the hostage negotiations secret, released the documents Sunday after Iran's Prime Minister Muhammad Ali Rajai released a partial text of the earlier American responses, leaving out the details of how the United States would put them into effect.

The U.S. officials said, "The Iranians have been giving attention to their basic points, but they haven't given any real attention to implementing them within our system."

Doctor's loss leaves citizens irate

GLENN'S FERRY — Glenns Ferry residents don't have a very high opinion of the Idaho Health Facilities Review Board.

At least 300 city residents view the board as the grinch who stole Christmas — after the event was planned and paid for. Even relinquishes its grip and approves the community's plan for a new health clinic, many believe it will be too late to reactivate the party.

The clinic was scheduled to open Oct. 1. A federal grant had been secured. A bundle of paperwork at state and federal levels had been completed.

By coincidence, Oct. 1 was also the day a new Idaho law went into effect, requiring that health providers submit plans for review and obtain a certificate of need before expanding or offering new health services.

City officials made more than a half dozen trips to Boise. They filed a long application, then were told a short form might speed up consideration. Ultimately, they learned they must wait until Jan. 28, 1981, because no "imminent safety hazard" existed to shorten the review process.

Connie McCarroll, a former Air Force doctor who resigned her commission to serve as the town's only doctor, waited 2½ months before finances forced her to accept a position in Ohio.

She outraged 300 residents jammed City Hall Dec. 11 to protest the review board's 44 decision to delay certification. Mayor Dayle Messerly was still seeking help Christmas Eve to gain earlier consideration, but he conceded the town would probably have to advertise for another doctor.

"I am deeply disappointed in the way they handled our application," Messerly said.

He said the delay involves more than losing the town's first — and only — choice for a doctor. "They've put a freeze on us," he added. "We can't work on the building or anything."

Messerly said he was working through Gov. John Evans' office to obtain an earlier hearing if possible.

Frederick Bringham, the health facilities board staff member who recommended the Glenns Ferry application be processed through normal channels, said Wednesday he doubts the date can be moved very far, if at all.

The law requiring certificates of need is clear, Bringham said. "Time lines are specified" to protect the state's residents from unneeded and costly medical programs.

Messerly countered that delays created by Bringham and his staff set back the city's application.

At one point, a meeting was postponed without notice, he said. At another, Bringham indicated everything was fine although a letter dated more than a week earlier recommended the board deny early consideration.

By week's end, the city had not heard anything new regarding its request for an earlier date. Glenns Ferry Clerk Eddie Bostic said the city has turned to its attorney to look for a new route through the legal maze.

Chief justice says danger of prison bloodshed grows

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chief Justice Warren Burger, warning the nation faces a growing threat of bloodshed in its prisons, called Sunday for a new focus of attention on the problems of prisoners.

"Our criminal justice system is in need of fundamental change," Burger wrote in his year-end summary of problems, needs and accomplishments of the judiciary.

He said the potential for deadly prison brawls has not diminished since last February's riot at the New Mexico State Penitentiary and vowed to press the issue of criminal justice reform in 1981.

In his report, the chief justice also discussed the problems of the federal courts, including their burgeoning case load, and some problems of citizens, such as being called repeatedly for jury duty only to sit and wait.

Noting that nearly half the states have overcrowded prisons, Burger vowed to work to correct the imbalance between the elaborate and often expensive trial process and "19th century penal institutions."

He discussed several remedies, including greater reliance on probation to ease overcrowding, mediation procedures for inmate complaints, and better cooperation among courts, probation agencies and businesses to create job opportunities for offenders.

He said programs requiring offenders to do uncompensated work for public or charitable agencies as a condition of probation show promise. Burger also commented on these topics:

"The high court's caseload. 'The Congress must begin to examine ways to relieve the Supreme Court of its overwhelming burden of cases.' He proposed Congress study 'profound structural changes' to relieve the court, including a new National Court of Appeals, an intermediate tribunal between the circuit courts of appeals and the Supreme Court.

"Jury duty—He urged jury duty be made less demanding by shortening its duration and allowing prospective jurors to phone in each day rather than appearing in court only to be sent home."

TIME

MAN OF THE YEAR

Reagan 1980 'man of year'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Time Magazine has chosen President-elect Ronald Reagan as its 1980 man of the year.

Time said it picked Reagan in part "for having risen so smoothly and gracefully to the most powerful and visible position in the world."

The announcement was made in the Sunday edition of the Washington Star, which is owned by Time.

"However vague and simplified Reagan's idea of freedom may be, it touches a central chord in American thought, a chord that will sound when people start to fear that the future is over, as they did during the Carter administration," the magazine said.

"On Jan. 20, Reagan and the idea he embodies will both emerge from their respective seclusions with a real opportunity to change the direction and tone of the nation."

The magazine said it also chose Reagan "because he stands at the end of 1980 looking ahead, while the year behind him smolders in pyres."

Some kin bitter at film showing

By United Press International

Mary Needham says she was both happy and sad in seeing a film showing a Christmas message from her son, Air Force Capt. Paul Needham.

He is one of the 52 Americans still held hostage in Iran.

"I'm glad we did see Paul ... But this is a person talking who should be home with his children and family and he is not," the Bellevue, Neb., woman said of her 30-year-old son.

"We can detect that he still has his spirit and in no way has he given up. He is telling us the whole world that it is about time this thing is settled."

Iranian television Saturday released a second film of the hostages, this one showing 11 of the captives sending Christmas greetings to their friends and family and the American public. Reaction from "hostage families ranged from relief to an outpouring of bitterness at what most considered a propaganda ploy by the Iranian government.

Ann Elissa Moeller, wife of Marine Staff Sgt. Michael Moeller, 29, whose parents live in Loup City, Neb., said she took no comfort at seeing her husband on the film.

"It's very depressing, upsetting and irritating ... propaganda," said Mrs. Moeller, who added that the films are "trying to make the Iranians look good."

Perhaps the most outspoken was Barbara Rosen, Brooklyn, N.Y., wife of Hostage Barry Rosen. She held a news conference after the first film was released, describing it as "propaganda" and condemning the Iranians.

Algerians, U.S. officials confer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Algerian diplomatic intermediaries met with President Carter at Camp David Sunday.

They went there after receiving talks at the State Department on a U.S. response to Iran's demands for releasing the 52 American hostages.

There were no indications of a breakthrough in reaching an agreement to winning release of the hostages before Carter leaves office Jan. 20.

State Department spokesman John Traftner said the meeting was arranged on U.S. initiative to give Carter an opportunity to express the appreciation of the American people for the Algerians' work.

It also provided the president with a first-hand report on the hostages. Traftner said, since the Algerians saw all 52 hostages before they left Iran last week.

The Algerians spent about two hours at the presidential retreat before returning to Washington.

The Algerian delegation included Seghir Mostephi, chairman of the Algerian Central Bank; Algeria's ambassador to the United States, Redha Malek; the Algerian ambassador to Iran, Abdel Karim Gheraieb; and Mohammad Ber-Hosseini, an Algerian foreign ministry diplomat.

Upon his return from the meeting with Carter, Malek met with families of the hostages at the Algerian ambassador's residence in Washington, a State Department official said. He said the meeting was to deliver to the families letters and pictures from the hostages that he brought with him from Iran.

California area shakes

MONO LAKE, Calif. (UPI) — A series of small earthquakes rumbled through the Mono Lake area Sunday.

The strongest, located 35 miles to the northeast in Nevada, was measured at 4.7 on the Richter scale.

Seismologists at Caltech in Pasadena recorded at least 18 smaller earth shocks before the larger quake struck at 1:58 p.m. MST and several aftershocks of a small magnitude in the range of the foreshocks at 2.5.

The larger earthquake struck a remote, uninhabited area ... The Mammoth County sheriff's office said no damage was reported and there was nothing to be shaken but jackrabbits.

The U.S. Geological Survey recorded the earthquake at 4.8 on the Richter Scale.

Monday briefing

Death sentence sought

PEKING (UPI) — China's prosecutors Monday demanded the death sentence for Mab Tse-lung's widow, Jung Qing, in a rapid conclusion of the trial of the Gang of Four and co-defendants on charges of treason during the Cultural Revolution.

Legal sources said all the defendants will be found guilty, and that the court was considering only the severity of sentence — either execution by firing squad or long prison terms.

The central panel of 25 judges was expected to deliberate several days before delivering a sentence.

Death toll falls short

By United Press International

The nation's traffic death count climbed past the 400 mark Sunday, still far short of projections, in the final full day of the long Christmas holiday weekend.

The National Safety Council had estimated as many as 750 people could be killed in traffic accidents during the 102-hour weekend, which began at 6 p.m. local time Wednesday.

A United Press International count late Sunday showed at least 417 persons had been reported killed in traffic accidents.

Rebel attack blunted

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Government troops took control of six guerrilla-occupied towns in northern El Salvador, repulsing a new rebel offensive against the U.S.-backed junta, military spokesmen said Sunday.

Army troops backed by five helicopter gunships recaptured six towns in the northern province of Chalatenango, which had been held by leftist guerrillas since late Saturday, army officials said.

Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Monday, Dec. 29, the 364th day of 1980 with two to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening star is Mars.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Capricorn.

Andrew Johnson, 17th president of the United States, was born Dec. 29, 1806.

On this date in history:

In 1848, gas lights were installed at the White House for the first time.

In 1851, the first Young Men's Christian Association chapter opened in Boston.

In 1972, an L-1011 jumbo jetliner crashed near Miami, Fla., killing 99 people. Seventy-seven survived.

In 1975, eleven were killed and 75 hurt when a bomb exploded at LaGuardia Airport in New York City.

A thought for the day: Irish poet, wit and dramatist Oscar Wilde said, "There is only one thing in the world worse than being talked about, and that is not being talked about."

amount of care would have helped. Damage to the heart muscle was just too extensive.

"I've never met people who gave so much effort to everything ... and got so little in return."

Attendees have the small-town advantage of knowing most of the patients as their friends and neighbors, said Trish Imler, one of five women on the crew. Members transported one woman to the hospital so many times they all knew her as "Grandma."

Not all of the rescued are grateful. A man who missed the Sailor Creek creek west of Glens Ferry was returned 200 feet to the canyonside with a broken pelvis, a broken hip and a concussion. He declined to pay his ambulance bill, noting that he had not called an ambulance.

"He may not have called for help, but he was sure boltering when I got there," Mrs. Imler said.

Drewrey said women on the crew pull their own weight, even when the tasks include carrying large patients up and down stairways. One woman is a part-time policeman and former tavern bouncer. Three are housewives. And the fifth works in a hardware store.

Residents of a farming community are used to strenuous exercise, he said. During training, members practice lifting heavy loads with their legs, building muscles while they learn to properly handle ill and injured persons.

The rigorous EMT course — over 100 hours of training followed by four hours of examination — restricts participation somewhat, Drewrey said. A registered nurse who joined the crew could act only as an observer until she took EMT training.

Drewrey said he has worked hard to keep membership in the city-county service from becoming a social club, as it is in many remote areas.

Lions Club members acquired the city's first ambulance, a Cadillac, from the Mountain Home Air Force base more than 30 years ago. The service has evolved since then. The latest ambulance is a modular box-type, complete with oxygen and the latest in bandage preparations.

The community's concern about health care is enhanced by a high percentage of retired people, Drewrey said. Five of the city's 1,500 residents are over 90; a sizable number are retired from military careers. The latter receive free health care at the Mountain Home Air Base, if they can get there.

Maintaining staff over holidays is a matter of dedication, Drewrey said. Until this year, he and Trish Imler had worked every Christmas for the past six years.

Christmas usually brings a half dozen or more emergency calls, Drewrey said. Elderly residents who find themselves alone during the holidays "work themselves up until something happens," he explained.

This Christmas was lighter than most. Only two ambulance runs were required.

By next Christmas, the Glens Ferry EMTs — and all of the community's residents — hope to have emergency medical assistance closer to home when it is needed.

Today's weather

Sounds like more of the same for another day

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert and Gooding-Jerome areas:

Mostly fair through Tuesday except patches of valley fog. Winds generally light. Overnight lows upper 20s to upper 30s. Highs both days middle 40s to middle 50s.

Camas-Prune, Haxley and Upper Wood River Valley:

Mostly fair through Tuesday except patches of valley fog. Overnight lows in the 20s. Highs both days in the 40s.

Northern Nevada and Utah:

Utah areas below 5,000 feet will have some smog through Tuesday with areas of dense fog nights and mornings. Higher elevations will have generally clear mild weather. Lows near 30. Highs near 40.

Nevada will be fair through Tuesday with mid days. Highs 60s to low 60s. Lows 20s.

Synopsis:

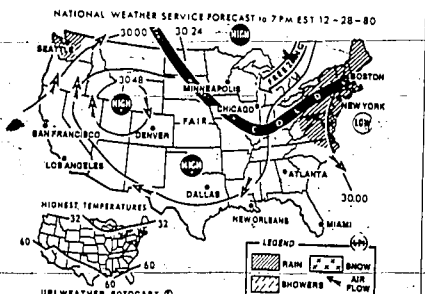

A ridge of high pressure continues to dominate the weather over Western Idaho.

A drier, cooler air mass spread into most of the Pacific Northwest Sunday following a weak weather disturbance that crossed Idaho Saturday.

Mostly sunny skies were reported throughout the state Sunday with few 20 to low 40s and fog or fog in the southern parts of Idaho.

Low temperatures Sunday morning ranged mostly from the middle 20s to the middle 30s. The temperatures range from 25 and the grees at both Malad and Soda Springs to 35 degrees in Lewiston. Other low readings around the state included 33 in Boise and Burley and 31 at Gooding, Idaho Falls and Pocatello.

Afternoon temperatures were exceptionally mild for late December. Many readings climbed into the 40s and 50s throughout the state.

Highest temperature reading in Idaho Sunday was 53 at Malad and Twin Falls.

The long range forecast through Friday in Southern-Idaho calls for continued above-normal temperatures with little chance of showers. Highs will be in the upper 40s to low 50s. Lows will be mostly in the 30s in the west and upper 20s to low 30s in the east.

Elsewhere in the nation Sunday, the warmest temperature was 62 degrees at Nogales, Ariz., and the coldest was 12 below zero at Glens Falls, N.Y.

No ransom to 'barbarians' for hostages, Reagan says

LOS-ANGELES (UPI) — President-elect Ronald Reagan, escalating his rhetoric on the Iran hostage crisis, said Sunday he would not pay a ransom for the 52 Americans and "barbarians" held by their captors as "barbarians."

"I don't think you pay ransom for people that have been kidnapped by barbarians," Reagan said.

Reagan, speaking with reporters as he left services at the Bel-Air Presbyterian Church, also said he opposed making a $3 billion down payment to Iran to secure release of the hostages.

An Iranian demand the United States deposit $24 billion in an Algerian bank was rejected last week by Secretary of State Edmund Muskie. On Saturday, Iran proposed a U.S. payment of $9 billion, with the balance of the monetary claims being arbitrated.

Aside from church, Reagan's only other outing Sunday was a scheduled dinner with friends at Trader Vic's restaurant in Beverly Hills.

Reagan, who has largely refrained from comment on the hostage problem, spoke out sharply against the Iranians last Wednesday, describing them as "criminals and kidnapers."

Outside the church Sunday, Reagan said he was not trying to send a message to the Iranians with his grim-faced Christmas Eve message.

"But if they got a message out of it that they shouldn't be waiting for me, I'd be very happy," he said.

In a broadcast interview Sunday, Reagan's top aide Edwin Meese stressed the Iranians can expect no "better deal" from Reagan than from President Carter.

"It's very important that they understand that there is absolutely no reason to wait until after the inauguration of President-elect Reagan to send the hostages back," he said on CBS' "Face the Nation."

Reagan said he had watched the television Christmas messages from the hostages, but he was at a loss for a reaction to the greetings.

"Well, what can you say?" he said. "I think every one of us are praying they'll be home and I think we'll just have to do something to bring that about."

But when asked if he had a plan of action ready to implement when the hostages are released, he said, "No, I'm not going to say anything like that."

Kissinger says accords will succeed

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said Sunday the Middle East peace process launched at Camp David "can and will" lead to a settlement and that President-elect Ronald Reagan will pursue it "with conviction, energy and strength."

He said the time probably has come for the inclusion of Jordan in the 19-month-old negotiations among Israel, Egypt and the United States on Palestinian autonomy in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and the Gaza strip. But he said he did not favor Palestinian participation at this stage.

Kissinger, who pioneered shuttle diplomacy for Middle East peace between 1974 and 1976 when he was secretary of state for President Nixon, spoke to reporters on arriving for a six-day visit, the first leg of a Middle East tour that will take him also to Israel, Saudi Arabia, Oman and Morocco.

Algerians meet with president

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter, still in pain from a fractured collarbone incurred while cross-country skiing, interrupted his Camp David vacation Sunday to meet with Algerian diplomats involved in negotiations to free the American hostages in Iran.

Carter, who sustained the injury in a skiing accident Saturday, welcomed the Algerians to the presidential retreat at Camp David, where he is spending some of his final days in office.

The president wore a "figure eight" harness to restrict movement of his shoulder, but aides — citing the meeting with the Algerian diplomats as evidence — said it was not seriously impairing his movement or interfering with his duties.

"He's still pretty uncomfortable," said White House press officer Kate King, "but obviously with this meeting, he's not out of commission."

The Algerians were invited to Camp David after concluding a second round of talks with Secretary of State Edmund Muskie and other U.S. officials at the State Department.

Under discussion was the official U.S. response to the latest Iranian conditions set for release of the hostages — a sought after goal that could continue to elude Carter's grasp through the final days of his presidency.

Carter had been at Camp David for only a day when he broke his left collarbone while cross-country skiing on a trail behind historic Aspen Lodge Saturday afternoon. The Carters had flown to Camp David after spending Christmas at their home in Plains, Ga.

Quakes hint at possible new eruption

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — Small volcanic earthquakes rumbled underneath Mount St. Helens at a stepped-up pace Sunday for the second straight day.

The activity prompted scientists to warn of the possibility of another eruption.

Aerial observers said there was new growth on the lava dome that had formed inside the gaping crater of the volatile volcano after its last eruption that began Oct. 16 and continued sporadically for three days.

Seismologists at the University of Washington reported earthquakes ranging as high as about 2.0 on the Richter scale were shaking the Cascade mountain at a rate of about three per hour.

"We don't know for sure, but it may be a precursor to an eruption," said A.B. Adams, a spokesman for the university's Geophysics Department. "It's similar to what we've had before other eruptions."

Chris Newhall, a hazards analysis coordinator for the U.S. Geological Survey, said a new lobe has formed on the southeast side of the lava dome inside the crater.

The lobe is about one-quarter to one-third the size of the existing lava dome, which measures about 100 to 200 meters in diameter and 40 meters in height, Newhall said.

"Since the growth on the lava dome is 'certainly connected' to the increased seismic activity, but added 'in what way we're not sure.'"

Asked if the events of the past few days signaled another eruption, Newhall said, "That's one possibility. Another possibility is that we're simply seeing new growth on the dome, period."

Jumper rescued

RITTMAN, Ohio (UPI) — A would-be jumper who spent at least five hours perched atop a 300-foot telephone tower in 15-degree weather was rescued by a Coast Guard helicopter Sunday.

He was hospitalized for frostbite. Daniel Copley, 20, of Rittman, reached the top of the tower about 9 p.m. Saturday and threatened to jump. After talking to police, a counselor from the Wayne-Holmes Mental Health Center, a pastor and relatives, Copley decided not to jump, and said he was too cold to climb down the tower.

Two rewarding ways to earn interest on checking funds at First Security

Advantage NOW

There are two ways to have this account without cost. One is to keep a $1,000 minimum checking balance. The other is to keep a minimum of $2,000 in a statement savings or passbook account. Just be sure you maintain one of the minimum balances to avoid a charge of $5 for that month's service.

Your Advantage NOW provides you WITHOUT CHARGE these ten special benefits:

- 5 1/4% interest on your funds.*
- VISA credit card, with no annual fee.
- VISA Banking Card (the plastic card that works like a check).
- Check Protection Plus (our check guarantee card).
- Free personalized and numbered checks.
- Automatic transfer from savings for overdraft coverage (optional).
- 24-hour access to HandiBank, our automated teller.
- Special Timeway loan discount.
- Check safe-keeping (optional).
- Combined statement including savings, checking and credit accounts.

Interest-on-Checking NOW

This account can also be yours without cost, when you maintain a minimum balance of $500 in your checking account. If your account falls below this minimum during any month, there will be a $5 fee for that month's service. Should you choose our optional check storage service, that charge would drop to $4 a month.

Here's what an Interest-on-Checking NOW account provides:

- 5 1/4% interest on checking funds.*
- Free VISA Banking Card and/or HandiBank Card.
- Check Protection Plus.
- 24-Hour access to HandiBank, our automated teller.

*Federal regulations do not permit payment of interest on checking funds until Jan. 1, 1981.

If you presently have a First Security checking account...

Your checking account number will remain the same, whether you choose Advantage NOW or Interest-on-Checking NOW. And our expertise in providing checking service and paying interest over many years will facilitate our offering this service with no confusion or disturbance of your checking account.

Now's the time to take this opportunity to get more from your money, while you enjoy the best in time-tested checking service. No one knows more about checking accounts than First Security, and no one has paid more interest on bank accounts over the years to the people who live here in the Intermountain West.

To make your checking dollars earn interest for you in 1981, come in now to your nearest First Security office and get the best combination account in the Intermountain West.

Questioning Kissinger's trip

We have to seriously question the propriety and timing of Henry Kissinger making a trip to visit five heads of state in the Middle East.

Not that Kissinger, former Secretary of State under Richard Nixon, doesn't know his way around or isn't known in that region of the world. On the contrary, Kissinger probably knows more than anybody else about what makes the Mideast tick.

Although the trip is being labeled as "unofficial," it has the blessings of both president-elect Ronald Reagan and his secretary of state-designate, retired Gen. Alexander Haig. Kissinger's visits, however, could only add to the uncertainty with which those heads of state view the United States and its role in the Middle East.

His travel and high level talks (he'll meet with heads of state) could the Reagan's hands and undermine Haig before they even take office (assuming Haig wins Senate confirmation).

Who will Kissinger be speaking for? Who will his hosts — Egypt, Israel, Saudi Arabia, Morocco and Oman — believe he is speaking for? And how will he be perceived by the other nations who have direct interests in that part of the world?

Such a mission is fraught with foreign policy peril, especially when this trip comes at a time of transition in the United States.

The fact is Kissinger has absolutely no authority and as a private citizen is not empowered to enter any negotiations with a foreign government. Even using him as a carrier of information and possible deals is outside the bounds of diplomacy.

It was admitted by a spokesman, however, that Kissinger will explore chances of breaking the stalemate in the Egyptian-Israeli peace talks and of broadening the Camp David initiatives to other countries. That, to us, spells foreign policy in the making, official or unofficial.

It is apparent Reagan wants to take office Jan. 20 well prepared for the tasks ahead and for that he should be applauded. He will be facing a number of foreign and domestic problems that will need immediate attention.

But he may be stepping too quickly by sanctioning a trip by Kissinger into an explosive part of the globe.

Legislating field toilets

WILDER — I'm not what you could call the number 1 fan of the Legal Aid people.

It has seemed to me that these government lawyers often involve themselves in problems of doubtful merit.

However, I am willing to lend my support to a proposal which has been drafted by Legal Aid and which will be presented to the upcoming Idaho State Legislature. This bill would require reasonable field toilet facilities for farm laborers.

As a row-crop farmer, I have been faced with this problem over three decades. During most of that time I have provided passable facilities. As my farming interests have varied over the years, I have occasionally allowed my toilets to fall into disrepair or to vanish.

This is unfair to the employees who provide the vital services necessary to tending and harvesting the crops. A farm laborer, the same as anyone else, is entitled to the convenience, privacy, and dignity of an adequate place in which to answer the call of nature.

At one time I purchased a couple of portable chemical toilets. I sold one after I determined that the other was sufficient. Also, the remaining relief facility was stolen due to its non-portable nature. That problem could easily be avoided by locking a wheel when not in use.

The proposal itself is fairly written. Exceptions are made for operations working less than eight employees. If the crew works for less than four hours, no facility is required regardless of the number of employees. It may be necessary after hearings are held.

The burden for furnishing the service is on the employer, who can be fined for non-compliance. As a matter of practical application, however, it would soon become the norm to refuse to hire a large crew unless the crew leader owned toilet facilities. Similar laws have worked well in other states.

Adequate toilet facilities are now required in other outdoor trades such as construction sites. Agriculture has been exempted from these as well as many other labor laws.

But I believe it would be short-sighted to wait until federal law forces us to take action, as some of my agricultural friends advise. It seems only fair that toilet facilities be provided for our valuable workers as well as for any other. I am hopeful that the legislature will adopt the bill after examining it, for needed improvements.

Everyone needs to know how to spell R-E-L-I-E-F.

Watt very poor choice

The nomination of James Watt as Secretary of the Interior ranks, at this point at least, as one of the poorest choices any president has ever made. It is a bad omen for the future of the west.

With the energy boom in the Rocky Mountain states, there is no question but what we will see large-scale development and continued fast population growth in many areas.

We need a guardian of the public lands who would help see that the development does not destroy some of the elements that make the West what it is.

For example, the environmental concern about the Alaska pipeline resulted in modifications of that project to limit the impact on wildlife, on streams and on land.

James Watt, however, represents a "development at any cost" approach. For the past few years he has been president of the Mountain States Legal Foundation. The MSLF has gone to court on behalf of oil, mining and other industrial interests to challenge policies designed to protect the West's wildlife, the quality of its air and water.

Watt has represented interests that fought regulation of western strip mining, that fought requirements for scrubbers on coal-fired power plants. He has been an advocate for interests assailing policies designed to protect and maintain the western lifestyle.

Even worse, the MSLF has been an advocate of a policy of massive disposal of the public lands. In its spring 1980 newsletter the MSLF said, very clearly, that most public land should be sold or given away. It defined the goal of the "sagebrush rebellion" as to transfer the public lands not reserved for national parks, defense installations or other national purposes to private ownership.

The man chosen by Ronald Reagan to act as a guardian over the public lands, and the multiple interests of the people in managing those lands, is a cheerleader for interests that want the lands sold off.

Westeners should be alert to the danger. We are faced with an administration that appears to be ready to help fleece us out of our public lands. With the loss of the public lands we would lose much of the freedom we now enjoy. The freedom to roam over more than 600 million acres of public land without running into fences-and-no-trespassing signs.

People voted for Ronald Reagan in hopes of better economic conditions. They didn't vote to lose the public land.

The "sagebrush rebellion" has been a clever public relations maneuver. Its leaders have said that they wanted to remove the land from "federal control." But the people, you and I, are the owners of the public land. The real goal is to remove the land from public ownership — to transfer our land to other owners.

In 1970 the Public Land Law Review Commission submitted its report. The commission included former Idaho Sen. Len Jordan. It was headed by former Rep. Wayne Aspinall. The commission concluded that most of the public land should remain in public ownership, under federal management, to be managed for the interests of all the people of the United States. This policy was approved by Congress in 1976 with passage of the Federal Land Management and Policy Act.

With the western energy boom, some of the oil and other energy interests decided that policy was a mistake. They wanted to repeal the policy of keeping the land in public ownership. So they hit on the gimmick of pushing for a transfer of the land to the states. Interests that want the land sold have more influence in western legislatures than they have had in Congress.

The scheme has worked remarkably well. Watt and others have sold the land grab to gullible reporters as a "state's rights" movement. Now, the interests promoting the land grab have succeeded in having their man picked to head the Department of Interior.

Reagan might have chosen Rep. Manual Lujan of New Mexico, a man with some feeling for all of the interests who use the public lands. He has succeeded in having former Sen. Clifford Hansen of Wyoming. Instead, he chose a lobbyist and advocate for corporate interests that are promoting the land grab.

The loss of the public lands would be a tragedy for the people of the West and of the United States. We are in for some hard times.

Letters

Letter response

Editor, Times-News:

We are writing this letter to respond to Alice Lee's letter dated Dec. 26, 1980, to correct some misleading information:

1. We have staff meetings as always, but do not present anti-union information at these meetings.

2. We have not attempted to prevent our employees from attending union meetings. When employees have asked us questions, we have explained to them their rights under the law.

3. We have not recommended that employees resign from the union and have not provided "cards" for this purpose.

4. We do not spy on union meetings and have left the question of attending them up to the individual employees.

5. We have not refused to recognize the union and we have in fact met and bargained with them in good faith, as required by law.

6. Alice Lee has referred to a proposal made by us on Dec. 9. This proposal was rejected by the union without giving the employees an opportunity to consider its merits.

7. It is our belief that the proposal that had been accepted by both parties in previous negotiations.

8. We do not know what the union means by "non-negotiated items" that were not contained in our document.

9. We did not instruct the union representatives regarding what they should do with our proposal. This is an internal union matter. We asked the union representatives how long they would need to present the proposal to their membership. Their response was that they were not going to present our proposal to their membership.

10. In her letter, Alice Lee said that we told the union that we would put off our offer effect "Dec. 21 at midnight as the deadline, stating that the agreement would be implemented at that time with or without approval of the general law." Our proposal was made in keeping with all state and federal laws, and we do not know what she is referring to in her "general law" statement.

11. The meeting we held Dec. 12 with our employees was to read our offer to them. We did this because the union had told us that they would not take the proposal to their membership. We think our employees have a right to know what proposals are being made.

12. Alice Lee's letter states that the reason for unionization was to "provide and improve the best possible patient care." We do not find these subjects treated in the proposals the union has made. In fact, when we terminated employees for patient abuse the union filed charges with the National Labor Relations Board and tried to get the terminated employees reinstated. The National Labor Relations Board in every case ruled in favor of management and dismissed the charges finding that they had no merit.

Alice Lee's letter was so generally misleading that we felt prompted to set the record straight and let the public know that we are meeting our obligations to our employees.

Cry of future?

Editor, Times-News:

And cousin Arvin.

So you Minnesota people have finally heard of our Sagebrush Rebellion? Now you feel that all public lands should be sold to private parties for the purpose of making profits?

You suggest that since the District of Columbia has more public lands per square mile than any place in the U.S. you should have first right on the Lincoln memorial?

You say because you have filed first on this monument you should be the first to have this for profit making schemes?

And cousin Hilding has filed on Arlington Cemetery?

He proposes multiple use for this graveyard of our war heroes?

He suggests that the stone headstones could be uprooted much as sagebrush with two tractors dragging chains?

Plant it in corn and use the eternal flame for heat for his greenhouse? Ah, come on. We here in the West just want to steal a few million acres of forest and sagebrush, what right do you have wanting the rest of it?

"Got Bless Minnesota" may be the cry of the future.

Picking Cabinet team — and then living with it

WASHINGTON — 'Tis the season for organization charts, straight lines connecting tidy boxes which purport to demonstrate who will be related to whom just how in Reagan's White House.

Remarkably, such charts are printed in newspapers that would be embarrassed to print astrological tables. But a new administration is crafted. A new show, however well-crafted, it will pinch until it takes the shape of the fool.

Reagan has surrounded himself with many high-achievers from the private sector. As one Washington veteran says, many of these people probably think they are "leaving the world of commerce to do something elevated." The veteran Washingtonian says that word with the cutest curl on his lip, knowing as he does how little a Cabinet officer's formal power amounts to when not combined with a kind of cunning that is not often found in corporate life.

Government, even — perhaps especially — a mega-government such as this one, is a very personal business. And Reagan has just raised to the glory of his Cabinet a number of folks whom he simply does not know.

Sooner or later, every President seeks a solution to this problem: He has a number of people of approximately the same formal rank, some of whom he wants to see often, others he does not. A president can not know in advance who will fall into which category. Lyndon Johnson solved the problem, in part, with his "Tuesday lunch." No one could claim a "right" to come to lunch. Reagan will devise his solution when he gets to know his problem, meaning his colleagues.

Regarding one unfilled position — press secretary — Reagan's people show signs of distress. First they floated, or leaked the elephantine transition empire leaks at the seams, perhaps because it has so many seams) the thought that there should be perhaps four press secretaries. Then Ed Geese — looking even more than usual like a cherub who fell, astonished, from a Rubens canvas — said: Golly where did that idea come from? It came from the Reagan people's idea that press secretaries have become too "prominent."

In a sense, they have. John Kennedy, with his eye-for-ways-to-focus attention on the White House, encouraged the centralization of information, of briefings, and other services that helped attract and institutionalize a large White House press corps. It might be nice — for presidents, for the institutional balance of the executive branch, and especially for the suffering capives in the White House press room — were press secretaries more frequently to say: "There's no news here today — try the departments."

But in a more important sense, the office of press secretary is not prominent enough. To be effective — the press secretary must speak with the authority that can only come from the access to the president and the policy-making process. Jody Powell could do this, but only because he had a kind of personal relationship with the president that the country can not count on in every administration. Therefore, something should be done to institutionalize the press secretary's status. At the least, he should be a member of the national security council and the domestic council.

Often in any policymaking process, this question must be asked by policymakers: "How are we going to explain this?" This is not just part of the process of showing what the Declaration of Independence calls "a decent" — decent, not strength — "respect for the opinions of mankind." And it is not just elementary political prudence.

Another reason for institutionalizing the instant asking of the question: "How are we going to explain this?" is that until you are clear in your own mind about your reasons for doing what you are doing, you can not be clear about what you are doing. Especially in government, the nature of an act, and often its consequences, are contingent on the rationale for the act.

Perhaps the press secretary should even be raised to Cabinet rank. That could be compensated for — after Jeanne Kirkpatrick's term, of course — by stripping Cabinet rank from the ambassador to the United Nations.

Reagan's people are undoubtedly glad that the U.N. ambassador has that rank. Their nominee, Kirkpatrick, has made, and not the least of her many virtues is that she has "no illusions about that mischievous illusion-factory, the United Nations.

Security chief says Haig 'qualified' for State job

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski said Sunday that Alexander Haig "is qualified" to be secretary of state, despite questions about his actions during the Nixon administration.

Appearing on NBC's "Meet the Press," Brzezinski was asked if Haig, who served as White House chief of staff during the final days of the Watergate scandal, is qualified for the top diplomatic post. "He is," Brzezinski replied.

President Carter's top foreign policy aide also said Iran's latest demands for release of the American hostages are "excessive (and) unrealistic," and that ending the Soviet grain embargo would be "a curious act of weakness."

Brzezinski, asked about the controversy over President-elect Ronald Reagan's selection of Haig, a retired Army general and former NATO commander, for the cabinet post, said: "As you know, there still a great deal of ...in this country about a particular chapter in our recent history, with which the general is associated. It is perfectly legitimate for questions to be raised.

"Your question to me was, 'Is he qualified?' As I look at him, and as I look at some other candidates — or for that matter at some predecessors — I feel he is qualified."

Some Democrats in Congress have suggested Haig's confirmation hearings be used to clear up questions about his role in President Gerald Ford's decision to pardon Richard Nixon and his part in the use of wiretaps to plug news leaks.

On the hostage negotiations, Brzezinski said, "I think there is a tendency on the part of the Iranians to try to extract a solution which is excessive and which is unrealistic."

He refused to speculate whether the hostages might be freed before Reagan takes office, and refused to rule out any possible U.S. steps to pressure Iran to free the 52 Americans.

As for Reagan's campaign pledge to lift the grain embargo imposed in retaliation for the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan,

Sun Belt aid proposals under fire

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Proposals for federal aid to the Sun Belt at the expense of the industrial Northeast and Midwest were sharply criticized Sunday by administration officials and boosters for the slighted regions.

The controversy, sparked by the draft report of the President Commission's for a National Agenda for the Eighties, centers on a proposed "long-range reorientation of federal urban policy."

To achieve that reorientation, the commission proposes assisting workers who move from jobs in distressed cities of the Northeast and Midwest to the economically booming cities of the South and Southwest.

The report said the dramatic economic and population shift from the Frost Belt to the Sun Belt "should not be viewed as a national problem, because past disparities are being lessened in favor of the chronologically disadvantaged regions and their residents."

Among the most vocal critics of the commission's proposals are Housing and Urban Development Department officials, who accused the panel of "misleading statements" and "setting up straw men."

The draft report, said Assistant HUD Secretary Robert Embry and Assistant Secretary for Urban Policy Marshall Kaplan, "regrettably distorts the thrust of the national urban policy."

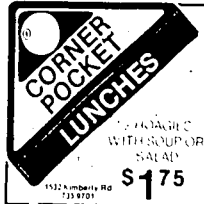

They said the report extols "the virtues of sprawl" and presents only two stark choices to urban America: sprawl or high-density development. The Northeast-Midwest Institute, a private group, added that "for the nearly 50 years since Franklin D. Roosevelt first declared that Southern poverty was a problem of national importance requiring concerted federal attention, a very long list of federal policies has encouraged the development of non-central city areas and the entire Sun Belt region."

Holiday fire toll nears 70

By United Press International

The trappings of a chilly but gala holiday season — trees, wood-burning stoves and brightly wrapped gifts — were blamed Sunday for many of the fires across the nation that killed at least 68 people, most of them children, since Christmas Eve.

Iowa led the nation with nine fire deaths. South Carolina reported eight, followed by New York and Ohio with seven and Massachusetts six. Texas, Indiana and Rhode Island each reported four fire deaths, and Connecticut, Illinois, Louisiana, Maine, Michigan and Pennsylvania two each. One fire death each was reported in Arkansas, Alabama, Colorado, Kentucky, Missouri, Oklahoma and West Virginia.

Nine people were killed Saturday in a fire that burned through a 100-year-old, two-story rooming house in Dickinson, Texas. Among the dead were the owner, Cloris Yvonne Booth, 59, an amputee, and Elias Guy Roche Sr., 57, of San Antonio. The other two victims, believed to be a newlywed couple, were burned beyond recognition.

Authorities said Sunday the blaze started in the laundry room and spread quickly throughout the house.

In Cincinnati, Maggie Daniels, 87, burned to death in her apartment after apparently leaning over a gas stove that ignited her clothing.

Little Rock, Ark., district Fire Chief Charles Burke, 55, collapsed and died late Saturday after helping other firemen battle a suspected arson fire in a vacant house.

Study claims states erect rights guards

WASHINGTON (UPI) — States that have not approved the Equal Rights Amendment are "neither callous nor insensitive" to women's rights and have taken legal steps to protect those rights, according to a report issued by the American Family Institute.

The report said the 15 states that have not ratified the ERA have enacted laws of their own to prevent discrimination against women in credit, employment and housing.

The National Organization for Women, however, rejected the findings as "an apples and oranges comparison."

The study, conducted by Washington attorney Antonio Greenman, looked at laws and court decisions in the unratified states and found that the states "have been neither callous nor insensitive to women's rights."

"More importantly," the study said, "gains have been won without the loss of rights which for years have protected not only women in their roles as wives and mothers, but also the integrity of the family itself."

The constitutional amendment needs ratification by 38 states by June 30, 1982.

The report cited alleged erosion of women's rights to alimony and child support payments and child custody in states where the ERA is on the books and said these states "are prone to push the logic of the amendment to extremes."

Actor doing fine

TAOS, N.M. (UPI) — Actor Tab Hunter, recuperating from a mild heart attack he suffered on a skiing vacation, may leave Holy Cross Hospital by next weekend, doctors said Sunday.

Hunter, 49, listed in good condition was making satisfactory progress with no complications since being hospitalized Tuesday, the doctors said. The actor suffered the attack while skiing.

Big deadline approaching for Times

LONDON (UPI) — The Times of London is coming up to one of the biggest deadlines in its nearly two centuries of history.

Wednesday is the final day on which prospective purchasers can put in an offer to buy The Times and its related publications.

Unless a suitable buyer or buyers comes forward, the present owners — the Canadian-based Thomson Organization — will close the titles in March. Dismissal notices already have been sent to about 4,000 staff members.

Times owner Lord Thomson made it clear when announcing the sale in October that prospective buyers will have to provide credentials for upholding editorial standards as well as financial guarantees.

S.G. Warburg Ltd., the merchant bankers who have been handling the sale of Times publications, have maintained absolute discretion about the number and identity of prospective purchasers.

But banking sources said there have been a surprisingly high number of offers in light of the fact the publications are heading for a $33 million loss in 1980 and have piled up losses totalling an estimated $163 million in the past 12 years.

Besides The Times itself, the company publishes The Sunday Times, The Times Educational Supplement, The Times Higher Educational Supplement and The Times Literary Supplement.

With their record of financial failure and union problems, their outright purchase is not the likeliest solution.

The potentially profitable Sunday Times, with a circulation of 1.4 million, and the supplements, could be sold separately.

The question for many Britons concerned about the decline of many of their institutions is whether the venerable and distinctive Times itself will survive.

The newspaper has a daily circulation of 280,000, small by the standards of Fleet Street, the London home of Britain's national press. But as the newspaper points out in its own publicity, the readership includes Britain's "Top People" in government, education, sciences and most other walks of life.

Its disappearance would leave a definite gap.

Life near target range unsettling

CROCHERON, Md. (UPI) — The snap and roar of two A-6 attack planes shook the marsh, disturbing wildlife and the few humans who live in shanties dotting the high ground.

Then, Kaa-boom! Kaa-boom! Four bombs explode and a wall of sound sweeps over the flatland.

The Navy has attacked again.

Life near Bloodsworth Island can be tough.

There is a hole inland near the center of Chesapeake Bay and four smaller islands that surround it are the only government target range on the East Coast.

Navy spokesman Lt. Cmdr. Tony Hilton says Bloodsworth is vital to the Navy, Air Force and Air National Guard. "There just aren't that many uninhabited islands that are available to use," he said.

Bloodsworth Island is the home of geese, deer and wildlife and several families lived there until the Navy bought it during World War II.

Since then, it has been the scene of countless air raids in a "battle" that will never end.

Some area residents say they never will get used to the practice missions even though the Navy posts notices telling when military operations will occur and refrains from such activity during the hunting season.

Night missions are held to a minimum and practice bombs are used whenever feasible. Hilton says no bombs heavier than 500 pounds are used.

"We've got excellent relations with the people out there," said Hilton. "As far as I know, they never complain."

Some area residents do not agree. "Sometimes they bomb and shoot all night, and you can hear it five miles up the road," said Paul Jones, a native of Crocheron, a village two miles north of Bloodsworth. "Those planes and bombers come right over top before they drop whatever it is they are going to drop."

"We're just lucky we aren't dead," said Jones.

Robert Hollock and his neighbors contend the vibrations from the bombing have cracked home foundations, chimneys and windows, scared chickens and geese and made humans nervous.

Legal Aid goes to bat for beds for vagrants

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Legal Aid Society claims Mayor Edward Koch and the city are in contempt of court for failing to provide the city's 30,000 homeless men with a clean place to sleep.

Stuart Cox, a spokesman for the student division of the Society, said Legal Aid would file a complaint today in State Supreme Court on behalf of six homeless men.

He said the mayor and the city are in violation of a preliminary injunction issued a year ago which ordered the city to provide beds and clean linen for the city's vagrants.

The city now houses more than 500 men a night at the Keener building on the grounds of the Manhattan State Psychiatric Hospital on Wards Island, and another 943 men in a facility in Chester, N.Y., where many men spend the winter.

But Cox said the Keener building is holding twice the number of men it was expected to accommodate, forcing many to sleep on the floor.

The city also gives out vouchers good for lodging in one of six Bowery lodging houses to more than 1,000 men a night. The city pays $2.80 per man to the facilities.

But Cox said the beds in the lodging houses are filthy, and at least half do not have sheets or blankets.

Cox said that more than 50 percent of the detainees are released mental patients. The number of homeless men is increasing, he said, because of increased conversion of single-room-occupancy buildings into higher class apartments.

Dear Abby

Riddance, in good way

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Every year, around the holidays, we receive through the mail personalized key chains with our license numbers on them, fancy soap, assorted greeting cards, and a variety of other gift items we do not order.

These things are supposedly sold to benefit disabled war veterans, the blind, poor Indian children or handicapped children. They may be from legitimate organizations, but there is a limit to how far we can go in our giving.

Just before Christmas, we received a box of three dozen Christmas cards with our names already printed on them. They were very nice, but we prefer to get our own cards. I might add that there is a minimum price on all these things, but you are urged to give as much as you can.

Abby, are we legally obligated to return things we didn't order? Why should we get our own cards at the expense of rewrapping and returning stuff we didn't send for? I'd feel guilty using these items, but it seems such a waste to throw them away. What should we do?

—THE JONESSES
DEAR JONESSES: You are not legally obligated to return anything you didn't order. Give everything to the Salvation Army, then send a postcard to the senders telling them how you have disposed of their merchandise, and request that your name be removed from their mailing list. Also, notify your local postmaster whenever you receive unsolicited merchandise.

DEAR ABBY: Our 9-year-old printed the following letter to Santa: "Dear Santa: All I want for Christmas is for my mommy to quit smoking because I love her and I don't want her to die yet. If you brought me some toys, please give them to some other little boy because all I want for Christmas is a mommy who doesn't cough anymore and doesn't get nervous when she can't find a cigarette. Thank you.—Tommy"
Tommy's mommy cried when she read that letter, but she's still smoking.

Sign me, TOMMY'S FATHER, or more appropriately

—DISGUSTED WITH MOMMY
DEAR DISGUSTED: Mommy is hooked. But she won't quit smoking until SHE'S ready. In the meantime, she needs understanding and encouragement, not contempt. Don't nag her.

DEAR ABBY: Loved your column about waitresses from all over, and what they earned. I'm a waitress, and here are some of my pet peeves:

1. Customers who whistle, snap their fingers, or yell, "Hey, girle," to get my attention.
2. Customers who come with children, then turn them loose to run all over the place.
3. After giving the customers their menus, when I return to take their orders, nobody is ready to order because they haven't even looked at the menu.
4. Customers who asked for substitutions when it says on the menu: "No substitutions, please."
5. Customers who complain about the high prices. We only serve the food, we don't set the prices.

—HAZEL AT THE HYATT.

Stoker winds up term much as he started

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Outgoing Twin Falls County Prosecutor Jeff Stoker is finishing his two-year term in pretty much the same way he started.

Two years ago, Stoker began work as the incoming prosecutor on the case of Kevin Terris, a former Filer resident charged with possession of stolen property.

Each month, Stoker won a negotiated conviction of Terris on a separate charge following a four-day trial. He is now preparing for sentencing hearings on the case.

In all, Stoker estimates he spent two months, or 5 percent of his time as prosecutor, preparing a case to convict Terris.

The amount of time spent on the case reflects how much preparation Stoker felt was needed to overcome several obstacles in the case, not to mention the high priority he attached to winning it.

Stoker continues to issue guard-published statements on the case, pending the sentencing hearing. But he said he considered the type of crime Terris was accused of as being comparable to methods employed by organized crime.

"It's the same kind of scheme that's used by auto theft rings and that's why we put so much time into it because we felt it was an important one."

In fact, he considers the conviction to have been one of the crowning achievements of his term, which ends Jan. 12, 1981.

Another prominent factor of the Terris case is it was one of just a handful of cases to reach the jury trial stage during Stoker's term. In all, Stoker argued three cases before a jury in two years as prosecutor, winning two and losing one.

Stoker defends the practice, saying Mrs. Bulcher would be misleading, Stoker contends, given that most criminal cases have been settled through plea bargaining in that time. Plea bargaining is a process whereby the defendant agrees to plead guilty to a lesser charge.

Stoker defends the practice, saying a defense attorney will opt for a jury trial only when he believes there is a good chance for acquittal. He added the judge retains a "tremendous" discretion over sentencing in such cases.

Midway through his term, Stoker instituted a revised plea bargaining policy calling for an end to plea bargaining. He charged down to misdemeanors. He said he was satisfied with the results.

"I feel that under our policy, we held a lot more to felonies than I felt had been done in the past," he said. "Basically, since I've been in office, I've felt our plea bargaining has been correct."

With Stoker's departure goes the part-time prosecutor system. Under a new Idaho law, all Twin Falls prosecutors must be full-time. The law went into effect after Stoker was elected and he chose to ignore it, retaining his private practice.

Stoker said he continues to have misgivings about the new approach, saying he may have run for reelection if he had been able to retain his private practice.

He adds he doubts most established attorneys would be willing to sacrifice their practices to serve as full-time prosecutors, meaning the county may not be able to get experienced lawyers for the post.

Stoker said his commitment to his private practice did not interfere with his duties as prosecutor.

"The demands of the prosecutor's office compelled me to be here. The office itself dictates the amount of time you have to put in," he said, adding he worked at his private practice in his off-hours.

"If you have a full-time prosecuting attorney, it's probably not going to affect the amount of hours he's putting in," he said.

Stoker said he regrets not being able to remain in office for another term, however.

"It's taken some time to start getting a feel for the office," he said. "You're still learning—after two years. You don't have as good a feel for it as you would with six or even four years."

But he said he has learned from the past two years to anticipate an influx of organized crime into the area.

"Organized crime likes to be involved in small states because we don't have the resources like California or New York," he said.

JEFF STOKER
wore of organized crime
"We're not that far behind other states' experiences."
The prospect of organized crime increasing its activities locally will require reorganization of local law enforcement agencies, including possibly consolidating the county sheriff and city police departments, he said.

"I think it's crazy to have so many agencies overlapping in their duties. There needs to be a serious look at consolidation," he said. "You need to have an organized police force which can have the best equipment available, the best people available and the resources to do the job."

Stoker added he believes the state must develop a criminal investigation staff that can assist local police departments when needed.

"We are not geared to deal with sophisticated crime. We have a good police force but you need the type of investigation staff that can go outside the city of Twin Falls."

Stoker acknowledged there may be some resistance to financing such an operation, but eventually it will be required, he said.

"It's not a question of whether we can afford it. At some point, we're going to have to afford it."

Obituaries

Marta Bulcher

KIMBERLY — Marta Bulcher, 85, of Kimberly, died Sunday morning in Magic Valley Memorial Hospital of natural causes.

Born Dec. 16, at Versailles, Ohio, she married Clarence Bulcher there Feb. 13, 1918. They moved to Idaho in 1926 and she has since resided here. She was a member of St. Edward's Catholic Church, the Kimberly Grange and was active in the Kimberly Senior Citizens organization.

Surviving are two sons, Louis Bulcher of Kimberly and Harold Bulcher of Jerome; seven daughters, Mrs. Bill (Donna) Patrick of Twin Falls, Mrs. Jack (Jeanette) Penz of Mt. (Dorothy) Myers of Las Vegas, Nev., and by a sister, Mrs. Len (Bessie) Lette of Versailles. There are 35 grandchildren and 20 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Bulcher was preceded in death by her husband, four brothers, two sisters and one granddaughter.

Rosary will be recited Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. Reynolds Funeral Chapel. Funeral mass will be celebrated at 11 a.m. Wednesday in St. Edward's Catholic Church with Father Perry Dodds officiating. Burial will be in the Twin Falls Cemetery.

Grace V. Cosgriff

TWIN FALLS — Grace V. Cosgriff, 60, died Friday in Magic Valley Memorial Hospital after a brief illness.

Born Jan. 29, 1920, in Boise, she moved to Twin Falls in 1940. On June 12, 1941, she married Melbome Cosgriff in Twin Falls. She and her husband established Cosgriff Neon Sign Co. in Reno, Eiko and Las Vegas, Nev. The name of the firm was later changed to Cosgriff Outdoor Advertising. Since the death of her husband in 1962, she has served as vice president of the company which is managed by her son.

She was a member of St. Edward's Catholic Church, the Blue Lakes Country Club, and a former member of Twentieth Century Club. She had been active in art in Magic Valley.

Surviving are her son, Charles Cosgriff of Boise; a sister, Stacy A. Ferrell of Boise, and two granddaughters.

Funeral mass will be celebrated at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in St. Edward's Catholic Church with Father Perry Dodds officiating. Burial will be in the Twin Falls Cemetery. Friends may call at Reynolds Funeral Chapel this evening and until noon Tuesday.

Nora Mae Webster

JEROME — Nora Mae Webster, 88, of Jerome, died Sunday morning at St. Benedict's Hospital.

Born Sept. 22, 1892, at Greenville,

Tenn., she attended schools there and was graduated from East Tennessee State at Johnson City, Tenn. She taught school in Tennessee until she moved to Idaho in 1921. She was a member of the Seventh Day Adventist Church, the Westfield Club, and was the last living charter member of the Jerome Grange.

Surviving are several nieces and nephews.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Hope Funeral Chapel with Pastor Lee Larson officiating. Burial will be in the Jerome Cemetery. Friends may call at the chapel today from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. and Tuesday until 1:30 p.m.

Memorials may be made to the Heart Association.

Berlin C. Faught

BURLEY — Berlin Clement Faught, 82, of Burley, died Friday in the Cassia Memorial Hospital of cancer.

He was born March 8, 1918, in Everton, Ark. He attended schools in Arkansas, moved to Idaho in 1936 and settled in Burley in 1940. They were later divorced.

He worked as a farmer, in construction and as a government trapper for several years. He had been in business in Burley for many years. He was an avid sportsman.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Herb (Marjorie) Smith of Soap Lake, Wash., Mrs. Corleis Nell of Utah; Miss Thelma, of Burley; and Mrs. Joanna McVey of Wichita, Kan., a sister, Mrs. Nelma Rappleye of Twin Falls; four brothers, Lowell G. Faught and Ralph E. Faught, both of Twin Falls; Walter Faught of Shoshone, and Lester Peter Faught of Ogden, Utah. There are 11 grandchildren and 6 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 1 p.m. Tuesday in St. Joseph's Payne Memorial Chapel. Burial will be in the Gem Memorial Gardens in Burley. Friends may call at the Payne Chapel today from 4 to 8 p.m. and prior to services on Tuesday.

Military simulator found

TWIN FALLS — Police in Twin Falls were still attempting Sunday to determine the source of a small military simulator found on Eastland Drive.

The device was at first believed to be an explosive.

Police Chief Tim Qualls said the white cylinder, with striker head intact and a fuse attached, was found Saturday morning by a jogger.

Printing on the cylinder indicated it was military and a live simulator

Officers said this would indicate it was not a dangerous explosive, but rather, as the name implies, a simulator, probably used in training to discharge smoke or other non-dangerous material.

It was being held at the police department pending further identification.

Officers said the jogger, Robert Deason of Twin Falls, said he found it in the 400 block on Eastland Drive.

Burley youth in critical condition

BURLEY — A Burley youth remained in critical condition Sunday after a single car roll-over in Cassia County Thursday.

Ollie Hale, 16, of Burley had not regained consciousness from injuries he suffered when the vehicle in which he was riding left Highway 30 several miles west of Burley and hit a cement bridge.

Idaho State Police reported the driver, Dean Harrell, 16, of Burley, failed to negotiate a curve while traveling at high speed. Harrell was released from Cassia Memorial Hospital Sunday. Another passenger, Renee Anderson, 16, of Burley, was still hospitalized but in good condition.

News of Record

DEATH BY DUCK

Q. What's the Chinese expression "death by duck" mean?

A. It's not a Chinese saying so much as a wisecrack flipped off by the people at the U. S. Embassy in China. And it refers to elderly American tourists who die of the "overers"—they over-exert after they over-eat while they're over-tired. The expression alludes to that Chinese dish Peking Duck.

Q. Was there a real Grizzly Adams?

A. Was indeed. James Capen Adams nicknamed Grizzly, a California mountain man, he trained some bears in 1857, and joined P. T. Barnum's circus. He was braver than he was kindly. I gather. Historical footnotes say he beat his bears severely. They finally got him, though. He died in 1860 from blood poisoning when one bear opened up an old scalp wound inflicted on him by an earlier bear.

Trade ban 'fails'

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union said Sunday the U.S.-led trade embargo imposed after the Russian invasion of Afghanistan one year ago has failed because the country found all it needed elsewhere in the West.

The Communist Party daily Pravda, in a review of foreign affairs in 1980, also accused the United States and other NATO countries of trying to destabilize Poland and warned the country will never be allowed to drift from communist rule.

The army newspaper Krasnaya Zvezda said in another article the United States had proposed a "sordid, provocative and extremely dangerous" plan for its NATO allies to cut all ties with the Soviet Union and East Germany if there is an intervention in Poland.

The American economic sanctions declared after the Christmas, 1979, Soviet invasion of Afghanistan limited U.S. grain shipments to 8 million tons and banned the sale of advanced technology to the Soviet Union.

"It is the industrialists and farmers in the U.S.A. and the countries that yielded to Washington's pressure that had to pay a substantial price for the embargo," Pravda said.

Soviets try water umbrella on oil fire.

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Soviet advisers developed the water umbrella plan and Soviet firefighters would attempt to carry out the risky method.

Under the plan, a watery umbrella would be created at the base of the well to force the flames to begin higher up — above the new water level instead of at the point the oil comes out of the ground.

The Polish press reported.

Bomb rips Antilles airport

POINTE-A-PITRE, Guadeloupe (UPI) — A terrorist bomb blast ripped through a waiting room at Le Raizet airport Sunday, hours before vacationing French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing and his family boarded a plane there.

A Chilean national sleeping on a chair 20 feet from a locker where the bomb was planted was critically injured. An airport worker was slightly injured.

No one immediately claimed responsibility for the blast.

The blast was the 15th terrorist attack in Guadeloupe since last year. The Caribbean island has been a hotbed of nationalist agitation with the elusive Armed Liberation Group warning two weeks ago it would attack any French resident who did not leave before the year's end.

Three hours after the 5 a.m. blast blew off the ceiling and shattered windows, Giscard inspected the area before boarding a small plane that took him and his family to the islands of St. Martin and St. Bart's, 150 miles to the north in the Caribbean's lesser Antilles.

Giscard condemned nationalist terrorist attacks Saturday at a meeting with local representatives. He said they were "isolated acts whose authors will sooner or later be tracked down."

Giscard said France will not abandon its Antilles possessions and pledged increased social and economic aid to the local populations.

Winds batter all of Spain on weekend

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Hurricane-force winds hit Spain during the weekend, cutting radio and television transmissions, halting trains and forcing helicopters carrying the royal family to land in a soccer field.

After a mild, sunny Christmas, stormy weather swept across Spain Saturday. The National Meteorological Institute said it would continue into today.

Spanish National Radio broadcast heavy snow warnings for much of northern Spain and the Spanish Pyrenees and said there would be heavy rain along the Mediterranean coast and in the Balearic Islands.

Weather stations reported hurricane-force wind from Alicante on the southeast coast to Leon in the northwest Saturday. They said gusts in Alicante measured up to 77.5 mph.

The high wind forced two helicopters carrying the royal family to a ski resort in the Pyrenees Saturday to land on the soccer pitch of the Alfarras Agrícola College in Lenda Province of northeastern Spain.

Authorities said King Juan Carlos, Queen Sofia, their three children and other members of their party continued on to Baqueira Beret Pyrenees by car.

Israel ready to grab firm

JERUSALEM (UPI) — The Israeli government will take control of the Palestine-owned East Jerusalem electric company this week unless the Supreme Court intervenes for the present owners, government officials said Sunday.

With 400 Palestinian workers, the electric company is the largest Arab employer in the occupied West Bank. Company officials are battling to keep the utility, which also provides power to West Bank Jewish settlements and army bases on its lines.

The Supreme Court is scheduled Tuesday to resume hearing the company's appeal against the Israeli attempt to take control of the Palestinian-owned and operated firm.

Negotiations for a compromise broke down this month and the deadline for stopping the takeover is this week. The government announced a year ago it intended to take control of the company's concession Jan. 1, 1981.

Teachers strike

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Thousands of striking teachers in the occupied West Bank defied the military government Sunday and stayed away from classrooms in a 10-day-old dispute over wages and teaching conditions, officials said.

West Bank military governor, Brig. Gen. Binyamin Ben-Eliezer, had issued orders forbidding the teachers to participate in the strike and threatening prosecution for those disobeying the directive, the military government officials said.

Cowboys gain revenge; ramble past Los Angeles 34-13

By DAVE BRADY
© 1980 The Washington Post

DALLAS — The Dallas Cowboys, humiliated by the Los Angeles Rams on national television two weeks ago, turned the tables Sunday in the NFC wild card playoff game, ridiculing the Rams' defense for 528 yards and a 34-13 victory.

Thus, Coach Ray Malavasi, who led his team to the Super Bowl a year ago, goes home and the Cowboys travel to Atlanta for an NFC semifinal game against the Falcons this Sunday.

Malavasi, who was awarded a new three-year contract last week, found that this was not the same

Cowboy team that lost 38-14 to the Rams after falling behind 38-0, either in its demeanor or in its strategy.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry, asked if the rout two weeks ago had given his team added incentive, said, "Did you ever hear of the Alamo? You don't forget things like that."

Tony Dorsett ran for 160 yards as the Cowboys gained 33 on the ground, Danny White passed for three touchdowns and James Jones made a mockery of the Rams' special teams.

The big strategic success for the Cowboys was a five-man defensive line, a tactic used by Dallas for the first time in years to help take the pressure off a secondary that had been burned by Vince Ferragamo's three touchdown passes in Anaheim Sunday, they had been playing scared until intercepting three Ferragamo passes and allowing him only one touchdown pass.

The Cowboys added reserve tackle Larry Bethea, removed the strong safety on the obvious passing downs, and positioned Randy White over Los Angeles center Rich Saul to get pressure on Ferragamo.

The Rams beat the defense for a touchdown in the second quarter on a 21-yard pass from Ferragamo, when right cornerback Aaron Mitchell fell down while covering Preston Dendard. That put the Rams ahead, 13-6. The Cowboys caught up by halftime, 13-all, and, in the second half, they outgained the Rams, 337 yards to 85, and outscored them, 21-0.

They scored those 21 points on their first three possessions of the half, with Danny White's passing accounting for all three.

White flipped a short pass to Dorsett who ran over Ram cornerback Rod Perry at the goal line to give Dallas a 20-13 lead at 9:11 of the third quarter.

Then Mitchell intercepted a pass to set up the next Dallas score. White, anticipating the Ram blitz, found Butch Johnson wide open over the middle on a 35-yard touchdown pass.

Defensive coordinator Ernie Stautner, who was responsible for the five-man rush by defensive linemen without the help of linebackers that allowed them to concentrate on aiding the defensive backs, said, "The Rams hadn't seen us use it before. The Eagles used it back in the late 1940s, and we used ours against the Redskins several years ago before the rules were changed, preventing us from keeping 12 men in our defensive huddle until just before the snap of the ball."

"We (the Cowboys defense) were embarrassed in Anaheim that Monday night game. I fell personally embarrassed. I want to thank the Los Angeles writers for what they said about us afterward. They thought the flex defense was dead. We played an extremely

Raider duo combines to hand Oilers another playoff loss

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Lester Hayes played probably the best game of his life and Jim Plunkett his headiest Sunday and that enabled the Oakland Raiders to defeat the Houston Oilers 27-7 in the AFC wild card playoff game.

Hayes was a terror on defense, sacking Oilers' quarterback Ken Stabler twice and picking off two passes. His first interception, at the goal line, stopped a Houston touchdown opportunity and his second scored one for the Raiders. That, switch of 14 points was more than enough to turn the game in Oakland's favor and send the Raiders on to the next round in the playoffs. The Oilers, who lost the last two AFC title games to Pittsburgh, went home prematurely again to wonder what went wrong.

Oakland limited the Oilers to only 375 yards in total offense, holding three-time NFL rushing champion Earl Campbell to 91 yards and sacking Stabler, an ex-Raider, seven times.

Plunkett completed only eight-of-22 passes for a modest 139 yards, but two of his throws went for touchdowns — a one-yard flip to reserve tight end Todd Christenson in the second quarter and a 44-yard pass to reserve running back Arthur Whittington in the fourth period.

"Jim did a real good job," said Raiders' Coach Tom Flores. "He stayed with the game plan. He threw some excellent long passes and took advantage of isolating the Houston linebackers."

"But the play that really turned the play for us was Hayes' interception in the end zone. That stopped them from taking the lead and it sparked us."

Hayes' interception came on Stabler's throw to the end zone. He reached high to grab the ball and then ran it out to one-yard line. The play came early in the third quarter with Oakland in front by only 10-7 and represented Houston's only second-half scoring threat until the final minute.

After the Raiders had increased their lead to 20-7 on Whittington's TD reception and Chris Bahr's second field goal, of 6:25 to go, Hayes picked off Stabler again, this time running 20 yards for the clinching touchdown.

"I don't guess there is anything as final as the final play of a losing game Houston Coach Bum Phillips said. "We were outplayed—and outcoached. They played as good as anyone I've seen in my 12 years of pro ball. We did not get a single thing established all day. We were just broken."

The Raider defense yielded only a one-yard smash to Campbell for Houston's lone score and that came early in the game. Despite all the sacks, Flores said his team did not play a blitzing game.

"We probably put-on more pressure than in any other game this year," he said. "We kept blitzing under control."

With the convincing victory. See AFC WILDCARD Page C2

DePaul's the best team in the country, says Ray Meyer

ROSEMONT, Ill. (UPI) — DePaul's expected rise to the No. 1 spot in the national rankings should probably convince most skeptics that the Blue Demons are presently the best team in the country.

However, DePaul Coach Ray Meyer isn't convinced that people know just how good his team is.

"I'm sure there'll still be some people who don't think our club is No. 1," Meyer said. "But I think we've proven some things not only to ourselves across the country but to ourselves as well. I'm proud of this team."

The second ranked Blue Demons, 9-0, trotted third ranked UCLA 33-77 in a nationally televised game Saturday afternoon. The win, DePaul's 46th in a row at home, coupled with top ranked Kentucky's loss to Notre Dame Saturday night, should lift DePaul to the top spot for the first time this season.

Meyer said he was not concerned that the top ranking or the emotional victory over UCLA would cause a letdown for his club, which faces Georgetown in the first round of the Cabrillo Classic tonight.

Agurrie, who scored a game-high 23 points in the DePaul victory, agreed. "I think we've proven that there is no way that this team will beat itself," Agurrie said. "If we lose any games from now on, it will be because somebody plays a super game and beats us."

DePaul's victory avenged the 77-71 upset loss to UCLA last March. Meyer labeled the victory as "one of the best" and cited his team's mental preparedness.

"When we went on to the floor at the start of the game, the guys were four feet off the ground and were remembering last year," Meyer said. "The crowd (DePaul's first sellout this year) was super. If we have that type of crowd all year, we probably won't lose."

Agurrie said the defeat last March was on his mind. "We were very prepared. Undoubtedly we took them for granted last year," Agurrie said.

Cummings, who added 19 points, said the second-ranked Blue Demons wanted to prove they deserved to be No. 1.

"We were psyched. We wanted to show them and everyone who was No. 1," Cummings said.

UCLA Coach Larry Brown, whose third-ranked team suffered its first loss after six victories, agreed his club got "rattled" late in the first half because of the crowd.

"We are a very young team and I think we got rattled there," Brown said. "Last year, we had everything going for us. The difference this year was they had the crowd and the emotion with them."

UCLA was still tied with DePaul at 20-all before the Bruins, who shot only 39 percent in the first half, hit a cold spell and went 6-06 without a field goal. DePaul, which hit 63 percent in the first half and 57 percent for the game, outscored the Bruins 19-3 in that span and wound up with a 47-29 lead at the half.

"We lost our posse. Some of the shots we normally hit weren't going in," said guard Rod Foster, who was held to one point in the first half but wound up leading the Bruins in scoring with 19.

Foster and teammate Cliff Puritt found the range early in the second half, slicing DePaul's advantage to 49-37 in the opening three minutes.

But DePaul, relying on a full court press, rebuilt the lead to 68-45 midway through the second half. The Bruins made one more run at DePaul, resulting off eight straight points, but a basket by Agurrie stopped the UCLA streak and the Blue Demons were never seriously challenged again.

"I know it sounds crazy but I thought we were still in it," said Brown, who added he was "very disappointed" with the officiating. Kenny Fields added 13 and Darren Daye 11 for UCLA, which made only one less field goal than DePaul but was outlaid 25-11 from the free throw line. Bernard Randolph came off the bench to score 14 while Teddy Grubbs added 12 for DePaul.

Pitt goes after title tonight

Against South Carolina in televised Gator Bowl

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Third ranked Pittsburgh will try to keep its national championship hopes alive and 18th ranked South Carolina will try to show it belongs in the big game when the two teams clash in the Gator Bowl tonight.

Kickoff for the nationally televised (ABC) game is 9 p.m. EST.

The Panthers (10-1), a preseason pick to be among the top three teams in the nation, have won their last six games — four of them on the road — by a combined score of 215-63 since losing to second ranked Florida State 36-22 in Tallahassee.

Leading the Pitt defense, ranked No. 1 nationally after surrendering only 265.5 yards per game, is defensive end Hugh Green, winner of the Lombardi, Maxwell and UPI College Player of the Year awards and runner-up for the Heisman Trophy. Outland Trophy winner Mark May anchors Pitt's offensive line.

South Carolina, whose 8-3 record matched the best in the school's history, depends heavily on Heisman Trophy winner George Rogers, who amassed 4,968 career rushing yards in four years.

Pitt Coach Jackie Sherrill, who is aiming for his first national championship since taking over four years ago from Johnny Majors, is counting on "media hype" resulting from the game's individual standouts and prime time television exposure to propel the Panthers to the pinnacle.

In order for Pitt to win the national title three things must happen: the Panthers have to defeat — the Gamecocks' convincingly; No. 6 Georgia (11-0) has to lose to Notre Dame (9-1) in the Sugar Bowl; and No. 2 Florida State (10-1) has to fall to Oklahoma (9-2).

Even then, certain imponderables such as a big Notre Dame upset of Georgia or a big Oklahoma upset of Florida State could throw a monkey wrench into the calculations.

"The possibilities exist for us to attain our goal," Sherrill said. "Our players know what's at stake, and they know what has to be done. They'll have a reason and a purpose to be playing on Monday night."

The game figures to be a classic matchup of a complicated passing offense (Pitt) versus a simple running offense (South Carolina).

While both teams boast strong defensive units, the Gamecocks' secondary may be questionable.

South Carolina's defense allowed averages of 128 yards rushing and 175 yards passing.

The secondary will be put to the test by Pitt quarterbacks Rick Trocano (78 of 144 for 1,246 yards, 10 TDs and 11 interceptions) and Dan Marino (109 of 211 for 1,313 yards, 10 TDs and 14 interceptions).

Freshman flanker Dwight Collins set a school record with 10 touchdown catches.

The loss of free safety Robert Perlotte, who underwent knee surgery after the Citadel game, has aggravated the Gamecocks' weakness against the pass, according to South Carolina Coach Jim Carlen.

"He's to our offense," said Carlen, adding that opponents had tripled their scoring during Perlotte's absence.

Thanks mainly to Rogers, who ran for 1,827 yards and 14 touchdowns this year, South Carolina won the invitation to the Gator Bowl — a game Carlen calls "the most important in the school's history."

"We've come a long way around here, a long way," said Gamecock quarterback Garry Harper. "Against Notre Dame last year (an 18-17 loss), we didn't know we had the better team. When we got ahead 17-3 at halftime, we were in hog heaven."

This year, the Gamecocks knew they had the better team practically every time they took the field. The losses were in Southern California, 23-17; Georgia, 13-10; and Clemson, 27-6.
