Kindergarten wins praise from teachers

Area officials call it 'valuable'

(Editor's Note: Will the Legislature cut kindergarten funding as one means to help balance the state budget? How valuable is kindergarten? This is the first of two parts on the subject.)

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — There is no doubt kindergarten is a valuable part of the educational process, school officials in the Magic Valley say.

That support comes in light of moves by state legislators to consider cutting funding for kindergarten, or reducing state support for it.

A survey of school superintendents in Magic Valley shows no regrets for the program, now in its sixth year in most districts. Superintendents say there are many benefits and districts would be unable to fund continued public kindergartens at the local level.

Whether or not the 1 percent initiative and other tight funding will force the state to drop the kindergarten programs or make cuts requiring some local support remains to be seen. Indications in Magic Valley are that any such proposal would draw heavy fire from all concerned interests.

Helen Werner of Boise, associate State Superintendent of Public Instruction, said there are no clear-cut indications as yet that kindergarten may fall victim to economic trimming.

However, the House Education Committee Thursday approved a bill for consideration that would cut in half the amount of state support for kindergarten programs in public schools.

"I know kindergartens are very popular with the schools and the parents and it would be difficult to cut out an entire program of this type," she said.

Right now she said 103 of the state's 115 school districts offer public kindergarten classes. One alternative to the total state funding or loss of the program would be for the districts to pass override levies to finance the added classes at the local level, she said.

"Our present law says it is up to the school districts to decide if they wish to include kindergarten and children are not required to attend if classes are available."

"This makes it difficult to get an exact cost on kindergarten education so we don't even know what the saving would be if we discontinue the program in Idaho," she said.

Werner said districts that now offer kindergarten have already conquered their major costs by providing classroom space. Of the 12 districts in the state that do not have kindergarten, most are very small one- or two-room schools or are crowded and cannot afford to build more classrooms.

Dr. James Sawin of Twin Falls, superintendent of the Magic Valley's largest school district, terms kindergarten a vital part of the overall educational program. "We have a strong program here and have seen some excellent results from it in the first- and second-grades. These children can go into reading, writing, spelling and computation with a good foundation for learning," he said.

Sawin said there are 545 children in kindergarten classes in the Twin Falls School District. They attend half-day classes with 10 teachers handling two classes each. Each of the five Twin Falls elementary schools has two kindergarten teachers, he said.

Minidoka County is one of the larger districts in the Magic Valley without kindergarten, and tiny Three Creek in Twin Falls County has only seven students in school, but two of them are in kindergarten class. The one teacher there now has a teacher's aide to help with the two kindergarten children.

Minidoka School District Superintendent Wayne Fagg said the problem there has been space. About the time the state adopted the kindergarten

Ed fund priorities to be set

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

BOISE — While other legislators are trying to reduce or eliminate kindergarten funding at least for one year, two committees will try to set their priorities for education this week.

What is probably the most important piece of legislation affecting farmers, a proposed water projects loan fund, is scheduled to be taken up by the House Resources and Conservation Committee.

After an apparently minor, temporary setback last week, the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee is chomping at the bit to start setting budgets.

This is the fourth week of the first session of the 46th Idaho Legislature. Monday, the House Revenue and Taxation Committee Monday will hear details of Rep. Morgan Munger's proposals to place a one-year moratorium on kindergarten funding and to without state funds from public health districts for one year.

At the same time, the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee will discuss whether to establish priorities for a dozen possible program cuts and reductions, according to Chairman John Barker, R-Boise.

Barker said the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee has asked the Legislature's two education committees to make priority lists to help JFAC set budgets.

The programs include state support of kindergartens, Lewis-Clark State College, handicapped education, public school administration, and duplicate higher education programs.

"I think we'll end up with some savings without destroying any particular programs and get us through this year," Barker predicted.

Rep. Vard Chaburn, R-Albion, chairman of the House Resources and Conservation Committee, said he planned to have the committee start work Tuesday on the Idaho Water Resources Board's water projects proposal.

It would allow the board to sell revenue bonds and make low-interest loans to irrigation districts, canal companies and others for repairing dams and canals and installing power generators.

"We'll go at it line by line, chew it

Byrd promises support to raise debt ceiling, but warns GOP must change voting patterns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd said Saturday he will support President Reagan's request to raise the national debt ceiling but predicted it would fail unless Republicans change their practice of voting against such increases.

The West Virginia Democrat also told his regular weekend news conference he had urged Reagan not to lift the grain embargo former President Jimmy Carter imposed on the Soviet Union after its invasion of Afghanistan.

Byrd said Senate Republicans, when in the minority, had "played politics" with the debt ceiling issue by voting against increases and criticizing Democrats for supporting them.

"The knife still hurts," he said. "Nevertheless, I intend to support a Republican president and the good faith and credit of the government."

But Byrd said he believed Reagan's requested $50 billion rise to bring the ceiling to $985 billion is more than is needed and could be cut between $13 billion to $18 billion.

"I'm a little puzzled about the necessity for extending the debt limit at this time," he said.

The minority leader said Reagan's request would be "in real trouble" unless "a vast majority" of Republicans go along with it.

When the debt limit was raised last year, he said, it won the support of only eight Republican senators — or 21 percent of those voting.

"This time the President is going to have to have the support of a majority of his own party in the Senate," Byrd said.

Byrd told reporters he wrote to Reagan two days ago to maintain the grain embargo but had not yet received a reply.

"I think the grain embargo is hurting the Soviets," he said. "It should not be lifted."

Byrd said lifting the grain embargo would be inconsistent with "the tough words" of Reagan and Secretary of State Alexander Haig on the Soviet Union.

"I don't find any fault with the tough position that they've taken," he said.

Little attempt to thaw out cooling relations

© 1981, The Baltimore Sun

WASHINGTON — As the outlines of President Reagan's foreign policy develop, one dominant theme already is clear: Resolute defiance of the Soviet Union.

"It should come as no surprise, of course. Reagan long ago stated his position: Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. put the word on notice during his five years as NATO commander and, later, as he wanted in private life to be called to power.

But the sharpness of the policy-line has startled even some strongly anti-Soviet American diplomats. As one puts it: "We have been temperate for so long that it takes a bit of getting used to."

It almost certainly will inspire many Democrats to accuse the administration of needlessly dangerous posturing. To Haig, however, it is a deeply felt response to Soviet advances in the Caribbean, Africa and in

Analysis

Southwest Asia and to the Soviet threat against Poland.

The secretary's first official word to the Russians went out, after he had been in office only three days. Without public announcement, he sent word to Andrei A. Gromyko, his Soviet counterpart, that Soviet intervention in Poland would seriously damage U.S.-Soviet relations.

Actually, that was only a reaffirmation of the position taken by members of NATO several weeks ago and was an endorsement of former President Carter's warning late last year.

At his news conference last Tuesday, however, Haig began to elaborate on the theme, accusing the Soviets of deliberately encouraging international terrorism.

State Department spokesman William J. Dyess developed the point. What the secretary had in mind, Dyess said, included Soviet activities not normally listed as terrorism, such as support for revolutions.

There was even a touch of reinforcing symbolism on Thursday. Anatoly F. Dobrynin, the Soviet ambassador, was denied his long-standing private access to the State Department and forced to use the main lobby when he presented a formal reply to Haig's message regarding Poland.

The reply was predictable. It restated Moscow's declared confidence that Poland would resolve its internal problems if unnamed outside provocateurs would leave it alone. Poland, in any event, demonstrated the difficulty the new administration might have in giving substance to its more militant policy.

Neither Haig nor Reagan has suggested that the United States and its allies would intervene directly if Soviet troops crush Poland. What an invasion clearly would do is cast Soviet-American relations into an enduring deep freeze.

How much colder that would be than the relations already in prospect is not apparent. But for the moment, the administration appears content to let the world read its position in the severest terms.

It also has underlined its calculated change of style. When Haig gave concern about terrorists priority over human rights last week, he indicated that the United States will show greater solicitude for its friends than it has in the past.

Dyess explained the difference. In the future, he said, the United States would demonstrate with friends about human rights violations more in private, less through public pronouncements. In fact, he suggested, diplomacy generally would be conducted more often through "private diplomatic channels."

Public school funding boost would cut other budgets 2.3%

BOISE (UPI) — Statistics prepared by the Legislative Fiscal Office say all state agencies would suffer a 2.3 percent budget cut if lawmakers increased funding to public schools and universities and reduced lost federal funds with state money.

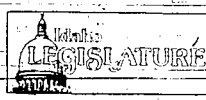

The figures were presented to the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee Friday, setting off a string of questions about how lawmakers could eliminate some programs so that those remaining wouldn't be hit with budget reductions.

The committee on Monday is scheduled to begin setting budgets for state agencies, and various plans are surfacing for some eliminating programs lawmakers say can be sacrificed because of low revenue.

None of the options presented to lawmakers Friday, however, included the possibility of eliminating programs.

In presenting the information, fiscal analyst Mark Falconer, urged lawmakers to use the statistics with caution.

"These figures are only for discussion purposes," Falconer said. "It is not a recommendation. I'd get assassinated up here if I made such a recommendation.

Falconer presented the legislators with four options to dole out the $422 million the state is expected to collect in fiscal year 1982. The options range from ordering a 9.6 percent across-the-board increase to all state agencies to enacting the 2.3 percent decrease to most agencies by hiking appropriations to schools, colleges, and replacing federal Revenue Sharing funds.

The options were:
 • If lawmakers approved a 14.4 percent increase for public schools, a 9.7 percent increase for universities and replaced the $8.5 million in federal Revenue Sharing funds lost in fiscal year 1982, all other agencies would experience the 2.3 percent cut. This option assumes state workers' salaries are frozen at current levels.
 • If lawmakers merely replaced the Revenue sharing money and approved roughly a 6.5 percent pay increase for state employees — excluding teachers — all other agencies would receive a 4.5 percent budget hike.

• If they only replaced the $8.5 million in Revenue Sharing and trust

• If they ordered a 9.6 percent uniform increase for all departments — including schools and universities — some agencies would receive more money than Gov. John Evans has recommended, Falconer said. If the budgets for those specific agencies were decreased to the level of the governor's recommendation, Falconer said legislators would have another $2.3 million to dole out to those agencies they believe need more than the governor has recommended.

The percentage amount of budget increase or decrease in all options is based on what is called the "fiscal year 1982 budget base." That base figure includes estimated expenses for the current fiscal year — but all one-time and capital-outlay costs are subtracted. It does not take inflation into account.

She said she would go home to relieve herself, avoided liquids, did not work a full day, and developed a urinary tract infection.

The proposed bill would be enforced by the state Department of Labor and Industrial Services and require an official to handle complaints from workers.

Rep. Dan Emery, R-Boise, objected to creating "another layer of government" and said the law should route enforcement through the courts.

"They can get a lawyer and take care of themselves," he said.

Rep. Lawrence Knigge, R-Elmer, said he doubted the department could get by without additional help.

Committee Chairman John Brooks, R-Gooding, said enough concerns had been raised to warrant referring the proposal to a subcommittee for changes before the committee takes it up again.

Bill would require toilets in field

BOISE — A proposed bill to require portable toilets for farm workers has moved into problems in the House Agricultural Affairs Committee Friday.

For three years, field laborers have asked us why there are no portable toilets in fields where they work," daughters and children work," attorney Joseph Zuker of Caldwell said.

Committee members generally supported the concept and said many farm and field worker crew leaders were providing facilities. Many said such a law would have been passed years ago.

But objections focused on the system of enforcement to be used and additional state staff that might be required.

Severance tax bill is prepared

BOISE (UPI) — Legislation establishing a severance tax on oil and natural gas development in Idaho is being drafted by a pair of eastern Idaho lawmakers.

An initial draft of the bill calls for a 2 percent well-head tax on oil and gas said Rep. Eugene Stucki, R-Paris, who is co-sponsoring the proposal with Rep. Robert Geddes, R-Preston.

Under the draft proposal, one-fourth of the revenue would go to the counties while the rest would be funneled into the state's general fund.

The measure would impose much less severance tax than legislation proposed by Gov. John Evans. The chief associate wants an extraction tax to apply to all minerals, including metals and coal.

Although Evans' proposal has not been forwarded to the House Revenue and Taxation Committee, it would be expected to impose a higher percentage of tax than the Stucki-Geddes bill.

Stucki said Friday he and Geddes still were ironing wrinkles out of their measure and didn't know when it could be sent to the tax committee.

Southeast Idaho counties have been affected by nearby petroleum development in Wyoming and Utah, and the counties would like to get some of the revenue if oil and gas were discovered within their boundaries, Stucki said.

Just as Evans has been urged by corporations to abandon his severance tax idea, Stucki said his proposal has received a lukewarm reception from oil companies.

"We've been working with the oil industry," he said. "They would like it to be a little less" than 2 percent.

But some of these folks with the oil companies would like to see what's in the books" before deciding whether to drill or how extensively to drill in Idaho, Stucki added.

He said he thought a severance tax would be needed to help the counties and the state and also because most other western states have such taxes.

Don Watkins, Evans press secretary, said Evans wanted a state severance tax to become law before significant oil and gas discoveries were made, so "thoroughly drawn and advised" legislation would not then result.

A spokesman for Evans said Friday the governor would not decide the merits of the Republican lawmakers' severance tax proposal until it might be sent to him by the Legislature.

Liquor sales on holidays is rejected

BOISE (UPI) — An official's request to allow state liquor stores to remain open on five additional legal holidays per year was scrapped without ceremony today by the House State Affairs Committee.

State Liquor Dispensary Superintendent Michael McAllister wanted to change the law to prohibit the sale of hard liquor only on Christmas, Thanksgiving and Memorial Day.

Current law bans such sales on all legal holidays.

McAllister argued state revenue could be boosted about $250,000 annually.

Meter mad

Legislators object to loss of free parking

BOISE (UPI) — Still reeling from Boise City's withdrawal of state legislators' parking privileges, several Idaho House members have lashed their lawmakers in City Hall and the news media.

Urged on by Boise Mayor Dick Eardley, the City Council early this month revoked the lawmakers' long-standing free parking allowance on streets around the Statehouse.

Subsequent efforts by legislators to retrieve the privilege and have the city "honor" tickets they received as a result of the action brought no change of stance from the council and a barrage of editorial criticism in Idaho newspapers.

The criticism sparked an effort from the lawmakers to shed their "deadbeat" image. This effort accelerated on the House floor Friday with some serious and some not-so-serious comment.

"Do they have a special force out on this," Rep. Linden Bateman, R-Idaho Falls, asked the House. "I'm getting more tickets than I ever have before."

"I think they're gunning for us."

Later, Rep. Jack Kenney, R-Boise, drew laughter

when he told Bateman with a straight face that Boise police merely were stepping up patrols to protect lawmakers from car thefts.

As the House prepared to break for lunch Friday, Rep. Gordon Hollifield, R-Jerome, rose to note that unused parking places now abounded around the Statehouse and in the Capitol Mall.

He said this indicated the city, which decided it wanted to quit giving the Legislature special treatment, wasn't making any more money despite the action.

Rep. Dan Kelly, R-Mountain Home, author of a bill to ban parking meters from within 150 feet of all public buildings in Idaho, noted a survey he conducted Friday morning showing only two available spaces in the state parking garage, where many of the lawmakers have been parking since the city order.

Hollifield and Kelly directly rapped the news media for distorting the parking issue against the legislators. Also, House Speaker Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls, drew a few cheers when, responding to a legislator's query on the parking hassle, he said the legislator shouldn't believe all he read or heard.

Area GOP women back right-to-work law

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Republican women have officially backed passage of a right-to-work law in Idaho — and have urged local legislators to vote for the measure.

The Twin Falls County Republican Women unanimously endorsed a letter this week calling on all Twin Falls legislators to vote for the passage of the bill, according to a news release from the Idaho Freedom to Work Committee.

The bill, which would prohibit contracts requiring a worker to join a union after being hired, was sponsored by Rep. John Brooks, R-Gooding.

Louise Koonz, president of the GOP group and co-chairman of the Idaho Freedom to Work Committee, said the bill was based on "a basic freedom that made this country great, the freedom of the individual. No one should be forced to join a labor union in order to keep a job."

Group to seek nuke storage limits

BOISE (UPI) — With the ultimate goal of keeping large amounts of low-level nuclear waste from being shipped into Idaho for storage, a state delegation will go to Seattle next week to work on a regional agreement.

An Idaho Office of Energy official coordinating the state's participation in the low-level nuclear waste compact talks said the main goal was to eventually shield the Northwest from commercial nuclear waste generated outside the region.

Idaho's delegation ideally will seek to ensure that any agreement would deter storage of low-level waste at possible commercial sites in the Gem State.

Congress passed a law last year directing the states to take charge of the disposal of commercial low-level radioactive waste, prompting regional conferences across the country.

Pat Costello, legal counsel for the Idaho Office of Energy, said Idaho Western states will take part in the Seattle talks. All might decide to enter into a compact, but Costello said it was more likely that an agreement would be made among four or five Northwest states.

Under the federal law, the regional exclusivity provision would not take effect until 1988, he said.

There are about 100 producers of low-level nuclear waste in Idaho, Costello said. Most of the radioactive material is shipped to a repository at Hanford, Wash.

"There's a sense of urgency in the conference," he said, because

Washington state voters passed an initiative banning out-of-state radioactive waste beginning July 1.

Only with a regional compact — ratified before July 1 by each state — could the ban be circumvented, he said.

The federal law and the compact negotiations address only low-level waste produced commercially, but Costello said in the long run — with compact agreements — in effect throughout the nation — it might be applied to federal waste. This would mean the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, a nuclear testing and waste-storage site west of Idaho Falls, might receive fewer shipments.

Costello will be accompanied to the conference next Friday and Saturday by officials from the University of Idaho and Idaho State University, which have research programs that generate low-level nuclear waste.

Also scheduled to attend are officials from the Radiation Control Bureau and about a half-dozen state legislators, including Reps. Vard Chaburn, R-Albion, James Golder, R-Boise, and Ralph Lacy, D-Pocatello.

Golder, who last year failed to convince the Idaho Legislature to pass a law restricting the shipment and storage of nuclear waste in Idaho, said he was "concerned" the state "might get stuck" with low-level waste as a result of the compact talks.

He said he was worried the process could lead to the construction of a commercial nuclear waste repository in Idaho.

Whistle blowing ends for H&W secretaries

BOISE (UPI) — Thirty Idaho Department of Health and Welfare secretaries, who have been on edge by the blowing of a whistle so their boss can test their efficiency, were calmed briefly Thursday.

The shrill whistle they have been hearing seven times a day since Monday was replaced just before quitting time by a more musical note — an anonymous singing telegram of Whistle While You Work.

The secretaries in the department's Division of Welfare thought it was great. They laughed and applauded and one of the secretaries, Angie Stelling, said: "It was just great."

Last Monday, Theo Murdock, the welfare division's new chief, instructed aides to "blow the whistle" at seven randomly picked times during the workday. At the sound of the whistle, the secretaries were directed to fill out a form to best describe their work at the moment.

Murdock said he ordered the whistle blowing to better determine how some of his employees spend their time "on the job" and to give him information on how to cut his 60-plus member staff by three secretaries to help reduce the department's budget by $110,000 as recommended by Gov. John Evans.

But the whistle blowing didn't set too well with the secretaries and word was leaked to the media.

To smooth over the hurt feelings, he directed an end to the whistles. Instead, six employees have been ordered to signal the secretaries with slips of paper marked with the time.

Milner man wins energy post

BOISE — A Milner area farmer, Mark Moorman, has been re-elected president of Energy for Idaho, Inc., a coalition studying solutions to the state's energy needs.

Also re-elected at the group's January board meeting were state Sen. John Peavey of Carey, treasurer; Mildred Howard of Kimberly, secretary; and Robert C. Kinghorn, president of the state AFL-CIO, vice president.

Three directors were named to an executive committee, which acts when the board is not in session. They are Peavey, George Anthony of Buhl and Harvey Herbert of Pocatello. Moorman and Kinghorn are non-voting committee members.

Shirley Boyce, executive director of the organization, said a technical information committee headed by Sidney F. Erwin of Bruneau expects to begin producing informational "white papers" on the energy situation by Feb. 15.

"Our first task," Boyce said, "is to identify the state's electrical needs" based on present and future projections of demand. He added the projections will be computed using various levels of conservation to provide a balanced approach to the problem.

Needs will also be broken down into agricultural, residential, commercial and industrial use, Boyce said.

Other topics which will be analyzed by the group include:

- Costs, benefits and liabilities of conservation in each of the above categories.
- Methods of power generation including hydroelectric, coal, nuclear, oil, gas, solar, wind, geothermal, biomass, solid waste and cogeneration. Costs, benefits, environmental impacts and legal ramifications for each will be included in the study.
- Electric delivery systems and public attitudes regarding power alternatives.

Boyce conceded the group has taken on a formidable task, but said members feel "definitive answers must be found and explained to the public before the energy crisis dooms state progress."

Democrats ready to name chief

BOISE (UPI) — A Caldwell man is expected to get the nod to become the new full-time executive director of the Idaho State Democratic Party.

The Idaho Statesman reported into Friday's edition that a Democratic search committee will meet in Boise Saturday and is expected to recommend Bob Jarboe, who twice ran unsuccessfully in Canyon County for the Legislature.

Five finalists for the position have been interviewed by the search committee.

According to the newspaper, two prominent Democrats said the committee would recommend Jarboe, who is executive director of the Western Idaho Training Co. in Caldwell.

The other four Democrats in the final five included Jim Ries, Moscow, a former legislator who has been circulation manager for the Lewiston Morning Tribune; Dottie Christensen, Nampa, a veteran party volunteer; and 1980 Canyon County coordinator for 1st District congressional candidate Glenn Nichols; Grant Hansen of Burley, a teacher in the migrant program at West Minico Junior High in Paul, and John Watts of Boise, a legal analyst for the Department of Health and Welfare.

Fifteen to 20 applications were received for the job that will pay a yearly salary ranging from $24,000 to $30,000.

Economic development plans funded

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Private Industry Council has authorized funding for three economic development projects around the state totaling $181,660.

Larry Trued, a personnel executive with EG&G Corp. of Idaho Falls and chairman of the council, said, "These projects are designed to help Idaho's business community train and hire people in the state's work force who are chronically unemployed."

The three projects include a $70,169 proposal by the Homebuilders Association of Southwest Idaho to provide training in basic building skills for the unemployed and low-income persons.

Another approved project was proposed by Commercial Planning Consultants. The applicant will receive $21,660 to train 43 employees for work in a wooden toy manufacturing plant in Orofino. The firm plans to purchase an existing plant in Lewis County and move it to Orofino.

The third proposal was made by Clearwater Economic Development Association. The council authorized $30,000 for the association to develop a prospectus to be sent to a targeted expanding industry that will provide a plan for business, including a market analysis, sales projections, investment requirements, operating cost analysis, break-even analysis and a feasibility analysis.

The council was created by the reauthorization of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act in early 1979.

Rogers to avoid awards shows

By United Press International

ABSENTEE WINNER

The American Music Awards were presented in Hollywood Friday night, but Kenny Rogers, a perennial big winner, was in Dallas to promote the Kenny Rogers Western Collection of clothing. "I didn't hear Rogers walking away — or rather staying away — with four awards, and he tells UPI he's never showing up for another music award ceremony again. Does he feel above it all, as Woody Allen did a couple years ago when he spurned the Academy Awards? Not at all. "I have to be away to win," he explained Saturday. "Every other time I went to them I didn't win a thing. I'm not going any more."

BUT WHO'S COUNTING?

Things are tough all around. Sir Richard Attenborough, actor-turned-director, wanted to gather a half-million people for a crowd scene — to put it mildly — in his upcoming movie "Gandhi" about Indian spiritual politician Mohandas Gandhi. So Attenborough took out ads on Indian radio, television, newspapers — he even issued handbills — seeking the extras for the scene of Gandhi's funeral in New Delhi. The director had eight cameras whirling, but the scene must have been a disappointment to him: Only 20,000 extras showed up.

GUERRILLA MY DREAMS

There has to be a name in this item, so we'll have to call her "Senorita X" or perhaps "Queen Kong." Whoever she is, though, she's been branded a counterrevolutionary in Nicaragua. It seems Senorita X, donning a gorilla mask, has been frightening the people of Granada by jumping out of the shadows to terrorize young men and women. She's even been known to scare taxi drivers by flashing the mask as she pays her fare. How is this counterrevolutionary? you may ask. The answer, according to the Granada division of the Sandinista Defense Committees, is simple: She scares only poor people.

TURN TO WORMS

are ugly and slimy. Still, as long as we have to worry about energy — and in some parts of the country we're facing drought — it looks as though the worm is the answer, no matter how unappetizing. But as Virginia Tech psychologist Scott Geller pointed out Saturday in Blacksburg, Va., "vermicomposting" may be worth a change in taste. He says a well-ventilated box full of dirt and worms — liberally fed with ordinary garbage — is a good way to turn trash into compost for your garden without a drain on electricity or water. It won't even chew up your silver.

INAUGURAL CON

How do you join the official presidential inaugural festivities without an invitation? Through pure bravado. And that's exactly how Randy Drosick and Jim Ritchie, students at West Virginia University in Morgantown, made the rounds at the galas for Ronald Reagan. They simply dressed in tuxedo and three-piece suit and posed as a German diplomat and his interpreter. Their first stop was the Pan Am Building in Washington. "We just walked into the building like we owned the place," Drosick recalls. There they managed to wangle tickets for yet another ball, and from there yet a third. The total cost — excluding food and gas to get to Washington — was $3, for parking.

WHAT GOES UP

It was a perfect setting for Saturday's wedding. Bride Wanda Fulkerson and groom Jerry Clark exchanged vows atop a snow-covered, 544-foot ski slope in Sellersburg, Ind., at sunrise. "From here you can actually see downtown Louisville — 18 miles," Clark said. There were 20 friends and relatives, the ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Ed Sears, and everybody was treated to champagne at the Ski Starlite lodge afterwards. The only trouble is, neither of the newweds knows how to ski, so they took an unorthodox route from the top of the slope to the lodge — the ski lift.

BEHIND THE NAME: Charles G. Dawes, vice president and Calvin Coolidge, wrote the song "All in the Game."

Freshmen drifting to right

WASHINGTON (UPI) — This year's college freshmen are drifting more toward politically conservative views than are upperclassmen, but they are liberal on many issues, particularly women's rights, said a report released Sunday.

"As far as political labeling is concerned, students continue to move from left to center," said UCLA Professor Alexander W. Astin, director of the 15th annual survey of American college freshmen. The survey was conducted by UCLA and the Washington-based American Council on Education.

Sixty percent of the freshman answering the survey classified themselves as being "middle of the road," politically, a new high. Those calling themselves "liberal to far left" declined almost three points, to 21.7 percent. Those calling themselves conservative rose slightly to 18.3 percent, the report said.

Ten years ago, more than a third of all freshmen described themselves as "liberal to far left."

"Political labels can be misleading, since the decline in students who call themselves liberals has been accompanied by both liberal and conservative trends in student views about specific issues," Astin said.

Most freshmen support women's rights for equal pay and advancement opportunities and a life outside the home, the survey said. Surveying 251,000 freshmen at 540 colleges and universities, the report found a greater percentage of college women planning careers in traditionally male fields.

Support for women's rights to equal pay for equal work was strong, with 93.3 percent of the class of 1984 backing it.

And the traditional belief that a married woman's activities should be confined to home and family lost ground, with only 26.6 percent agreeing, compared with almost half in 1970.

More than one-fourth of the women sampled — 27.2 percent — now plan a career in such traditionally male domains as business, engineering, law or medicine, a 400 percent increase since 1966, the report said.

These trends ... reflect the continuing influence of the women's movement on the attitudes and aspirations of our young people," Astin said.

The majority of freshmen, 73.8 percent, believe the federal government should do more to control pollution. Even more, 83 percent, believe the government should more diligently discourage energy consumption.

Titanic fan group seeks museum site

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — Priceless memorabilia from the ill-fated RMS Titanic is hidden away in safe deposit boxes.

But the Titanic Historical Society Inc. wants to display such artifacts as the life jacket tied on Mrs. John Jacob Astor by her husband before he drowned, sailing papers of Frederick Fleet, a lookout who saw the iceberg too late, and wood from lifeboats that saved 705 people.

The society was founded in 1963 as the Titanic Enthusiasts of America to perpetuate the history of the British luxury liner, deemed by engineers of its day to be "unsinkable."

The Titanic sank on its maiden voyage April 15, 1912, drowning 1,517 people.

Since the society was founded, members have tracked down postcards, menus, letters, pieces of cargo, rivets, a safety razor and countless other artifacts from the ship.

"This is the biggest collection in the world of actual original artifacts from the Titanic," said Louis O. Gorman, the society's treasurer, as he gently brushed dust from an original copy of the 1911 special edition of the British magazine "Shipbuilder," which holds data on the Titanic's construction.

"I think we have an obligation to future generations. I want this preserved. It's a real segment of history."

Negotiations are underway to house the collection in locations Gorman refused to disclose. But he said, "I would like a museum in a major seaport city — New York, Boston, Philadelphia."

Edward S. Kamuda, one of the five charter members and current secretary of the 2,000-member group, said the society includes 30 Honor Members. Titanic survivors who have given the group first-hand accounts about the sinking of the 46,328-ton, 882-foot ship 800 miles south of Newfoundland.

The (life)-boat that rescued me had many women and children, but was not filled to capacity — it could have taken a lot more," said Gershun Cohen, who was 19 when he left his home to seek his fortune and boarded the Titanic in Southampton, England, along with tycoons, artists, actors and emigrants.

"When we were at a safe distance ... we heard the first explosion. It may have been the boilers, I don't know. Then came the second explosion. Then the Titanic sank altogether," Cohen said in an issue of the society's magazine, "The Titanic Commutator."

The society also delves into the history of the Titanic's sister ships, HMS Olympic and HMS Britannic and has broadened its scope to include 19th and 20th-century North Atlantic liners, especially from the White Star and Cunard Lines.

Dave Hall, who proved people will pay $2 a gallon, stands in front of Wells Fargo truck.

Gas prices

Station charges $2 gallon as 'taste of future'

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — No one argued with Dave Hall's sign in the huge plate glass window at his Exxon station which read: "Highest Gasoline in Town."

The pump read $1.99 a gallon and Hall was pumping gas Thursday.

"There's four people out there now lined up, waiting to buy gas," he laughed. "You know what they're saying? Listen."

An attendant, also amused, interjected, "They're just shoving their shoulders and saying, 'I gotta have it.'"

Hall wasn't trying to turn a few quick bucks. He wanted to show how much Americans could pay for gas before long under decontrol, ordered only Wednesday by President Reagan.

"I'm just trying to prove that under decontrol, this could happen," said Hall. "It's very possible for it to happen. I want to send a message to the oil companies and to the president that this is what could happen. Things need to be done."

"If prices are going to be the controlling factor, the dealers cannot win. I cannot win any competitive battle that comes with the producers. This has to be pointed out. What they've done is wrong."

Most stations boosted the price per gallon by 3 or 4 cents, but Hall sent his skyward.

"We may as well get it up there now and let people see what they're going to be paying," Hall said.

"If you've got cancer and are going to die, wouldn't you just as soon leave now and be a pretty good looking corpse than to go down to nothing?"

Hall explained to his customers what he was doing and informed them that prices were much cheaper elsewhere. But they bought from him anyway.

Hall wanted to charge even more, but the computer on his pumps held certain mathematical limitations. Otherwise, he laughed, "I would have put it at $9.99 a gallon."

Planned Parenthood chief shocked by federal stand

NEW YORK (UPI) — Faye Wattleton, president of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, says she was shocked by a statement by the new secretary of Health and Human Services that questioned federal support of sex counseling and contraception.

"He is out of step with both the facts of life and the feelings of most Americans," she said of the newly appointed Richard Schweiker.

"As president of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America I am shocked by the statements made yesterday ... about provision of contraceptive services and sexuality information to teen-agers," she said in a prepared statement.

"I have requested a meeting with the secretary to go over our serious concerns about these and other issues."

Schweiker, in a meeting with reporters Thursday expressed the policy views that contrasted vividly with those of his predecessor Patricia

Roberts Harris. He made these points:

• His department should not promote sex education.

• Doctors treating poor, unmarried teen-agers under Medicaid should not be permitted to prescribe contraceptives.

The HSS Family Planning Office within his jurisdiction has a budget of $162 million for this fiscal year. An estimated $45 million of that goes to Planned Parenthood Federation of America for family planning services and counseling — sex education.

Schweiker said he believed sex education is primarily a responsibility of parents.

"I don't think it's the Fed's role to do it," he said, "and I don't think it's the state's role unless the local school agency does it with the express approval of the parent."

"What help does the Secretary plan to give to the children of our society who are having children themselves,"

Ms. Wattleton said.

"The Secretary seems to be saying that providing information and services is the problem. He is wrong. Such services are part of the solution."

"The provision of high quality contraceptive services is basic to combating the nation's teenage pregnancy crisis."

"Equally important to this effort is a provision of accurate information about sexuality and birth control to young Americans."

Ms. Wattleton said polls show 80 percent of Americans want information about sexuality taught in their schools.

"The Secretary of Health and Human Services has an obligation to listen to all Americans and service the needs of all Americans."

"We fear that Secretary Schweiker is listening to a narrow but strident group which seeks to impose its own moral and religious point of view on the rest of us."

New storm hits West, moves east

By United Press International

A whopping winter storm that spread up to a foot and a half of snow from Illinois to the Carolinas scurried to sea Saturday and a brand new storm dumped nearly a foot of snow on portions of Nebraska.

Another storm that unleashed mudslides and brought the first major snowfall to Southern California moved into Arizona.

The National Weather Service in Nebraska issued storm warnings for a "dangerous winter storm" Saturday and many of the warnings were expected to remain in effect through Sunday.

As the snow intensified, strong northerly winds in the western half of the state caused considerable blowing and drifting, which made travel hazardous.

A special weather statement said unofficial reports of snow depths ranged from 8 to 12 inches through the North Platte, Neb., valley from the Wyoming state line eastward to near Oshkosh in the Panhandle.

The storm that pushed over the midlands and the East Friday, closing schools and leaving at least three people dead, moved over the Atlantic early Saturday. But the National Weather Service warned areas hit by the storm that they may have just enough time to dig out. Another storm was on the way.

The latest threat was brooding in the Rockies, building slowly and pushing into the Mississippi Valley Saturday.

The U.S. Forest Service issued an avalanche warning for all of Colorado's mountains through Sunday.

Fifteen avalanches were reported Friday near Berthoud and Loveland Passes, 10 near Aspen, three near Gothic and three near Monarch Pass.

Snow was falling from northeastern Nevada and northern Utah through Montana and Wyoming to western North Dakota.

Lander, Wyo., got 6 inches of snow and Lewistown, Mont., got 3 inches, as did the valleys of southern Idaho.

To the south, a bitter storm system was brooding over the eastern slopes of the central Rockies.

Light snow and freezing drizzle spread over the high plains. But the storm was building.

A winter storm warning was posted for western Kansas and travel advisories were posted for parts of Idaho, Wyoming, Colorado and northern New Mexico.

Penthouse to fight Falwell censorship suit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Penthouse Publisher Bob Guccione said Saturday he would fight a federal court order obtained by Moral Majority founder Jerry Falwell banning distribution of the March issue of the magazine worldwide.

Falwell, saying he was shocked to find a 5,000-word interview with him in the issue, Falwell persuaded U.S. District Court Judge James C. Turk to issue a temporary restraining order prohibiting further distribution of the magazine pending a hearing Monday in Lynchburg, Va.

Guccione said he would appeal and added Falwell's efforts might be a waste of time because 6 million copies were already headed to newsstands.

Guccione termed the court order "unconstitutional prior censorship" and said his lawyers would battle Falwell in his efforts to permanently prevent publication of the interview in Penthouse's pages.

In the article under dispute, Falwell, criticized former President Jimmy Carter for granting a 1976 Playboy Magazine interview.

Falwell said freelance writers Andrew Duncan and Sashti Brata interviewed him last year after assuring him the material would not appear in "pornographic" magazine.

But a Penthouse spokesman said the writers told Falwell they planned to sell their story "wherever they could."

Leaders fear a second Cultural Revolution

PEKING (UPI) — China's leaders fear a "second Cultural Revolution" because of student and military unrest, labor strikes, a rash of bombings and the formation of secret anti-government cells, diplomatic sources said Thursday.

With the trial of the Gang of Four behind him, strongman Deng Xiaoping is launching a broad crackdown on dissent in a continuation of China's jerky "two-steps-forward, one-step-backward" march toward modernization, they said.

Authorities also are trying to defuse sustained domestic and international criticism of the Gang of Four trial, saying it heralded a new era of law and order and denying the proceedings were rigged.

Foreign critics said it was a "show" trial, but internal critics argued Mao Tse-tung's widow, Jiang Qing, and her fellow defendant, Zhang Chunqiao, were given suspended death sentences while robbers, murderers and rapists routinely are executed for "lesser" crimes.

Deng said recently China was more stable than at any time in the last 20 years, but sources said strident official media warnings, dissident leaflets and government and military sources all indicated unrest.

Authorities fear they may be facing a second "Cultural Revolution," a term the themselves have used, one source said.

During the 1966-76 revolution, Jiang and nine other recently sentenced defendants created economic and social chaos with widespread murder and persecution.

Sources said earlier this year there was a rash of factory strikes and other economic unrest in China's southern Guangdong province, bordering Hong Kong. In Shanghai, several thousand unemployed youths recently marched on the party headquarters demanding jobs. Unemployment totals at least 20 million and is getting worse.

China this week announced further cuts in military spending, which will increase unrest in forces already uneasy with the move away from Maoist teachings.

Diplomatic sources report student demonstrations during the last six months. A leaflet distributed in Peking said several thousand students in the central Hubei town of Kaifeng staged a march Jan. 12 after authorities refused to act in a rape case.

The government media carry dire warnings that the class struggle is continuing and newspapers around the country reported bombings and anti-government secret societies making weapons and explosives and encouraging criminals participating in everything from drug running to white slavery.

Gang of 4 trial only start of purge

PEKING (UPI) — China is following up the sentencing of the Gang of Four with trials of thousands of others, including Mao Tse-tung's nephew, who rose to prominence during the Cultural Revolution.

The nephew, Mao Yuan-xin, a high provincial party official during the chaotic decade from 1966 until his uncle's death in 1976, is expected to be the most prominent defendant in this second round of trials and reportedly will face charges of widespread persecution and other crimes.

Chinese authorities have given notice they intend to try thousands who gained power during the period of revolutionary fervor and allegedly took part in the murder and persecution of millions of Chinese.

Many former followers of the radical Gang of Four, led by Mao's widow Jiang Qing, still hold influential positions and the official media has said they will now be ruthlessly rooted out and made to pay for their crimes.

Young Mao, vice chairman of the revolutionary committee in northeast Liaoning Province during the latter part of the Cultural Revolution, currently is believed to be in prison.

Lech Walesa signs key agreement

Solidarity wins access to the media

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — The Solidarity labor union, proclaiming its "greatest success" yet, won a compromise agreement Saturday from the Polish government giving it access to the media and shortening the work week.

The meeting between union leader Lech Walesa and seven other Solidarity officials, and Prime Minister Jozef Pinskiwski and top ministers however, could not resolve the dispute over recognition of a Rural Solidarity farmers union.

Following the marathon bargaining session held amid the worst labor unrest since last summer, Solidarity leaders called a meeting for Sunday that was expected to cancel a one-hour national general strike threatened for Tuesday.

"It's the greatest success we have yet achieved," Walesa said. "We have never gone so far. Almost everything was settled."

The government said a general strike in a half dozen cities in the southwest province of Jelenia Gora was suspended Saturday with the arrival of government negotiators and Solidarity sent an official to the southern province of Bielsko-Biala in an attempt to halt a paralyzing five-day long general strike.

The government agreed in principle to the Solidarity demand for a five-day, 40-hour work week but this year, "taking Poland's economic situation into account," Solidarity agreed to a 42-hour week, with three free Saturdays a month, a joint-communique said after the Warsaw meeting.

The thorny issue of the government threatening to deduct pay from workers who honored the Solidarity call to boycott Saturday work in January was settled by agreeing those workers would have two fewer free Saturdays this year.

The joint communique said it was also agreed during the 12 1/2 hours of talks that Solidarity would issue national weekly publication and would have unfettered weekly television and radio programs.

France delivers new jet fighters to Iraq

By United Press International

In its 132nd day

French radio networks said Saturday four to six French-built Mirage F1 jet fighters had been delivered to Iraq on a well-guarded airfield at Nicosia on the Mediterranean island of Cyprus.

The reports said the planes might be the first of the 50 Mirages bought by Iraq last year, delivery of which was delayed because of the outbreak of the war between Iraq and Iran, now

French Defense and Foreign Ministry officials said they could neither confirm nor deny reports which said the Iraqi pilots had flown to Nicosia aboard a Jordanian jetliner. Jordan is supporting Iraq in the war with Iran.

An Iraqi military communique reported heavy fighting over the past 24 hours. Iranian President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr said, meanwhile, Iran did not expect any military help from the United States even though the hostages had been freed.

Commenting on a statement by U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig that no military equipment or spare parts even though already paid for, would be sent to Iran, Bani-Sadr said:

"The day that we decided to confront (Iraqi President Hussein) Saddam's mercenary army, we knew we would not be given that equip-

To counter Soviet threat

U.S. storing arms in Norway

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States is stockpiling war supplies in Norway to counter a Soviet buildup that has given the Russians a strategic edge on NATO's northern flank, according to Pentagon planners.

The new Soviet air and naval strength has made it unlikely the United States could win an initial clash in the region, they said, because the Russians are in position to strike deeply into North Atlantic resupply lines.

But with the necessary weaponry — ranging from fighter-bombers to tanks — in place, the allies would only have to fight on their own terms.

The United States and Norway signed an agreement Jan. 16 to permit "prestocking" for a 10,000-man Marine brigade, which would be part of the allied contingent sent to the area. No cost ceiling for the equipment has yet been set.

"The reason we're doing it in Norway is Soviet improvements have made it impossible to reinforce by sea" in case of war, a top Pentagon official said.

Norwegian Prime Minister Odvar Nordli, who resigned Friday for health reasons, had been under political attack for agreeing to the stockpiling of weapons in his country — the key to control of the North Atlantic.

In World War II, German submarines based along the Norwegian coast ravaged Allied shipping headed for Britain and the strategic Soviet port and military center of Murmansk on the Kola Peninsula.

It is along this peninsula, facing the Barents Sea, that the Soviet Union has concentrated:

• Ten divisions, based opposite Finland.

• Most of the northern fleet, including 70 cruisers and destroyers and 130 submarines.

• Most of the missile-carrying submarine fleet.

• About a dozen air bases at which the advanced Backfire bomber has been teamed up with older TU-16s and Bear bombers.

The new Soviet naval capability makes it unlikely that we could win a naval war in the Norwegian Sea at the outset of the conflict," he said.

Combine those naval forces with the Backfire and we're going to have quite a battle before we can reforce."

Previous American planning, which relied on aircraft carrier task forces to pin the Russians into the Barents Sea, became obsolete with the Soviet buildup.

The geography of the area is critical.

It takes capture northern Norway — a high Pentagon official said — "they would get bases 1,000 miles closer to their target — the Atlantic."

One source said, however, that because of the rough terrain and narrow area which would have to be crossed, planners think a brigade could hold off an attacker.

"We're not at all unhappy about fighting them in the north if we have to," he said.

Only one Norwegian brigade is on active duty facing the Russians in the border area at present. The nation's defense policy forbids the stationing of foreign troops or nuclear weapons on Norwegian soil in peacetime.

The Pentagon source said if an attack were launched, Norwegian forces would be reinforced with British and Dutch units before the U.S. Marines land, and a Canadian force would follow a week later.

The only other area in Europe where the United States has stockpiled war supplies is West Germany, which probably would face the center of a Soviet thrust against the West. No plans have been drawn up for prestocking the southern flank in Greece and in Turkey — the only other NATO country bordering the Soviet Union, Pentagon officials said.

The 10,000-man Marine brigade that would be sent into Norway is far bigger than the normal 3,000-man brigade. It would be supported by such frontline planes as the F-4 Phantom fighter-bomber and the British AV-8A Harrier vertical-takeoff-landing jet, officials said.

Norway, from its southern tip on the North Sea stretches more than 1,000 miles north alongside neighboring Sweden, then wraps around the northern border of Finland and down to the Soviet border on the Barents Sea.

Murmansk is less than 90 miles to the east of Kirkenes, a Norwegian border town.

Norway is immensely rugged with mountains and floods and would be very difficult for the Soviets to invade, even if they took a short cut west through Finland and neutral Sweden.

King meets with Spanish politicians to choose PM

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — King Juan Carlos met regional leaders Saturday in the search for a successor to Prime Minister Adolfo Suarez, who resigned abruptly Thursday.

A public opinion poll showed opposition Socialist leader Felipe Gonzalez was a popular choice to become premier.

As Juan Carlos sounded out Basque, Catalan and Andalusian leaders, rebels in Suarez's minority government party, the Democratic Center Union, indicated Saturday they would not support the party's official candidate in parliamentary vote of confidence.

The candidate, Deputy Prime Minister Leopoldo Calvo Sotelo, needs 176 of the 350 votes in Parliament. But the party holds only 186 seats and is expected to lose 40 of those if rebels break the party line.

The opposition Socialists and Communists, Spain's second and third parties, have said they will vote against Calvo Sotelo.

All parties appear to oppose new general elections.

Socialist Secretary General Felipe Gonzalez, whose party holds 121 seats in Parliament, told Juan Carlos Saturday he was willing to head a government — presumably in coalition with the Democratic Center Union.

"Political observers said Juan Carlos is not expected to consider Gonzalez' offer seriously — unless he failed to find a candidate capable of uniting the feuding Democratic Center Union and winning together 10 supporting votes.

However, a poll published in the newspaper Diario 16 Saturday indicated Gonzalez, 58, would be a popular choice for prime minister. Of 500 people polled in Madrid, more than 90 percent supported Gonzalez to succeed Suarez.

Next came conservative leader Manuel Fraga with 15 percent, while Calvo Sotelo polled only 7.8 percent.

The political crisis raised the possibility Juan Carlos might be forced to reschedule his Feb. 8-18 visit to the United States.

Ex-hostages charge clergy visits aided Iran

By United Press International

For some of the 52 Americans held hostage in Iran, visits from American clergymen were far from comforting. One accused the men of the cloth of giving comfort to the Iranians — not the hostages.

At least three former hostages returned with a grudge against clergymen who visited them. One called them "hypocrites" and accused them of betrayal. Another said they did the hostages "irreparable harm."

But another was kinder. He said the visiting clergy were kind to what was going on and naively believed what the Iranians told them.

"A lot of the clergy who went there couldn't see what was going on," William Gallegos, a Marine sergeant, told a news conference Wednesday at his family home in Pueblo, Colo.

"We tried to give them signals, but they didn't see."

But Charles Jones had a more sinister view.

Jones, the only black hostage held for the full 44 days, told the Detroit Free Press one visiting minister betrayed a hostage by passing a secret note to the militants.

Ex-hostages stir MIA memories

VICKSBURG, Miss. — Barbara White watched with other Americans while the nation welcomed home the hostages from Iran, but her thoughts were with a larger group that she regards as forgotten people — the 2,500 soldiers still missing in Vietnam.

"It's hard to watch the hostages release and not think of what could be our men coming home," she said Friday.

"We know that not all 2,500 are still alive, but we do not accept that all disappeared without a trace," said Mrs. White, whose brother, Air Force Capt. Larry James, was shot down over Cambodia eight years ago.

Mrs. White, of Vicksburg, is the state coordinator of the National League of Families of Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia.

"We heard about the hostages every day," she said. "If the media hadn't kept after that I don't think Carter would have been as diligent. It's difficult to get the media involved though, when the government won't give out any kind of information."

Mrs. White, a petite young woman said she and other families of MIA's were taking new hope since President Reagan's inauguration. "We hope he will meet with our board of directors and do something," she said. "We hope (Secretary of State) Alexander Haig, being a military man, will do something too."

Carter had not met with the group for three years, Mrs. White said.

"Life would send a message to our meetings and say he was very concerned and doing everything possible. Three or four months after our last meeting he asked for status changes for the MIA's (from missing in action to presumed dead)."

There are a good many of us who are determined we're going to get something done. If you keep hitting your head against a brick wall, you might make a tiny hole in it and eventually break through ... and that's better than not trying at all."

The note, which Jones said told of mistreatment of the hostages, was "to let America know what was actually going on."

"This man immediately turned the note over to the students, our captors. He caused a lot of problems," Jones said.

Jones also criticized other clergymen.

"Some of the people who came over, especially the clergy, were hypocrites because they came over to aid and comfort the hostages, but they ended up giving aid and comfort to the Iranians and actually making it worse for us," he said.

The Rev. Darrell Rupiper, a Roman Catholic priest who twice visited the hostages in Iran, said Wednesday Jones probably was talking about him when he mentioned the note.

Rupiper, of Omaha, Neb., said a note was handed him during an April visit to the hostages.

"I did not have a chance to read the note," he said. "As soon as the hostages were ushered out of the room, a student came up and said, 'Give me the note.' He must have seen (the hostage) give it to me."

Rupiper said he did not mention the incident because he feared it might cause apprehension for the parents of the hostage. He declined to say who gave him the note.

Detroit Auxiliary Bishop Thomas Gumbleton and the Rev. Nelson Thompson of Kansas City, who also visited the occupied U.S. Embassy, said they were unaware of any minister turning over secret notes to the Iranians.

Army Warrant Officer Joseph Hall charged the clergymen that visited the hostages last Easter "did us irreparable harm" and "misrepresented" the actual condition of the hostages and their complaints of torture.

"They did not convey the true experience, what we were going through, to the American public," the former hostage from Silver Springs, Md., said.

State's rights issue keys busing battle

By United Press International

Judge Richard Earl Lee says the issue to rural Louisiana's struggle against busing is one of states' rights — a noble cause he feels was tainted by the Civil War. He was led by his brother, Confederate Gen. Robert E. Lee.

To Judge Naiman Scott, a rock-ribbed Republican conservative appointed to the federal bench by Richard Nixon, the issue is one of supreme federal authority to provide equal protection under the law.

But all Michelle Laborde, Lynda McNeal and Ramona Carbo say they want is to be cheerleaders and stars of the Buckeye High School girls basketball team.

The three 13-year-old white girls from the rural piney woods of Louisiana and Lee — a direct descendant of the Confederate general — have embarked on one of the biggest integration fights since the Supreme Court outlawed racially segregated school systems in Brown vs. the Board of Education in 1954.

Lee and his followers claim the fight is against forced busing and the interference of federal courts into the home and family. Scott says the arguments rekindle memories of Little Rock, Birmingham and the other civil rights battles of the late 1950s and 1960s.

For 10 years, Scott has presided over a suit calling for more integration of the Rapides Parish (county) school system and — according to black lawyers pushing the case — he was far from being a fast-moving liberal in his decisions.

Last August, after rejecting a Justice Department mixing plan he said went too far, Scott issued his own plan that minimized busing, but offered racially balanced schooling for nearly 90.4 percent of all public school children in the district.

The problems at Buckeye began when the three girls learned they would have to leave the 600-student all-white Buckeye school in central Louisiana to attend Jones Street Jr. High, a predominantly black school about 15 miles from their homes near downtown Alexandria.

"This whole fight has more to do with cheerleading than anything else," he said, Buckeye Principal Charles Waltes said.

The girls' parents bowed to their wishes and asked neighbors living in the Buckeye attendance zone to assume custody so they could remain at the school. Waltes said the tactic was common among parents wanting their children to remain in neighborhood schools.

But Scott learned of the "sham" and ordered them to Jones Street.

Enter Judge Lee, the newest hot political property in the state who took custody of the girls himself and sent sheriff's deputies and state troopers to make sure they stayed at Buckeye.

Lee became an instant hero as signs and bumper stickers popped up throughout the parish reading: "God Bless Dick Lee," and "Dick Lee Will Make Us Free."

"The Ballad of Judge Lee" — a country-western ditty telling "he has set the people free" — shot to the top of local radio charts and "Judge Lee Needs You" T-shirts spread his legend.

Political speculators peg Lee as a potential candidate for Congress in a district that may become more conservative after this year's reapportionment. Ironically, Scott's son, Jack, a state representative heading the Legislature's redistricting committee, is considered another strong potential congressional candidate in the district.

The confrontation between state Judge and federal Judge came to a head two weeks ago in Scott's courtroom at a hearing on a $4,000 contempt fine against Lee for keeping the girls at Buckeye.

Scott diffused the standoff by lifting the fine — in exchange for Lee's promise to enroll the girls at Jones Street for the spring semester.

But Lee never said they would attend the school and the battle raged anew.

While waiting for the next legal chapter to be decided in the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals next month, the three girls enrolled at a makeshift school in a Baptist Church — a school staffed by only two teachers, with no basketball team and no cheerleading squad.

Lee and his supporters claim the only issue at hand was the state's sovereign authority in custody matters, but some felt the battle of the judges smacked of old-fashion racism.

At the Jan. 15 contempt hearing in Alexandria, the courthouse steps looked like a scene from sit-ins and Atlanta searches for more bodies civil rights demonstrations of the late 1960s.

On that Thursday — Martin Luther King's birthday — blacks linked arm-in-arm, singing civil rights anthems while members of the Ku Klux Klan, who left their white robes at home, distributed racist literature and state's rights paraded donkeys wearing signs identifying them as "Judge Scott's friend."

"There have been a million cases just like this," Scott said from the bench that day. "I am not starting anything new. The same thing happened at Little Rock and at the University of Mississippi. The same arguments were used."

"I'm going to deal with them with the same attitude."

Scott has said little about the case outside his courtroom, but after the January hearing he talked candidly about his duty to follow laws that mandate racial mixing in public schools and his fear that his desegregation plan will spark enough white flight backlash to cripple the public school system.

"It's an educated guess how far you can go without running everybody off," he said. "That's the problem I have — to prevent white flight. If I don't, the system would not be a viable one for either blacks or whites. I can't afford to let either of them flee."

He sympathizes with parents frustrated by federal orders that bus their children away from home, but he said the law is law and he will follow it.

"Freedom of choice — there is nothing more constitutional in the world. But it's been in the courts and the Supreme Court hasn't accepted it."

"I am not willing to wage war over a fight that has already been lost," Scott said.

Scott, however, said busing was nothing new for school children living in Rapides Parish — Louisiana's second largest parish.

"All of these kids were busing last year (while attending Buckeye), except one who transferred in, and they would be bused this year if they went to the school where they want to go," Scott said.

Last year, when Michelle Laborde was living with her parents and attending Buckeye, she caught a school bus at 6:30 a.m. every day and rode 23.3 miles to school — nearly an hour-long ride.

Had she gone to Jones Street as Scott ordered, Michelle could have slept a bit later in the morning, caught a bus at 7:10 a.m. and made the 18-mile trip in 40 minutes.

The issue for the girls was not distance or race — it was cheerleading and basketball, they said. Last summer they washed cars and baked cookies to raise money for blue and gold cheerleader outfits.

Michelle and Lynda McNeal — best friends through elementary school — were voted yearbook favorites in the seventh grade and Ramona Carbo, a shy brunette with braces sparkling on her teeth, was chosen for the Buckeye Pep Squad.

Ina Laborde, Michelle's mother, said the girls started their quests to remain at Buckeye in August with teary eyes and pleas for "mom" and "dad" to let them stay.

"Now I see a determination in them that wasn't there before," Mrs. Laborde said.

Vexing problems closer for Idaho as drillers probe for oil

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Each oil well drilled in Idaho brings the state closer to the day it will become an oil-producing state.

It also brings the day closer when the oil industry, state and federal agencies and conservationists will have to solve some vexing problems.

One exploratory drilling project is underway now, according to Will Pitman, state petroleum engineer. Several others will start soon and he gets more inquiries each day from oil industry people who are looking at Idaho, he said.

Most of the interest is in eastern Idaho, which covers a portion of the Overthrust Belt, the darling of the oil industry in recent years. The record of the Overthrust Belt during the last two decades was one of utter frustration followed by spectacular oil finds almost exclusively in a narrow corridor in southwest Wyoming and northeast Utah.

Despite more than 130 dry holes in Idaho, there is no doubt oil will be found in the state, said Doug Bean, executive director of the industry group, the Idaho Petroleum Council. Only about 20 of the wells in Idaho reached the 12,000 foot to 15,000 foot depths necessary to find oil in the Overthrust Belt, he said.

At this point, "every operator who drills a hole expects to be the first one to find oil or gas in Idaho," Bean said.

Chevron U.S.A. started drilling its first exploratory well in Idaho a little more than a month ago north of Montpelier in southeast Idaho. The company should know within three or four months if it has found oil, according to J.L. Christensen, public affairs area manager for Chevron in Salt Lake City.

Some other exploratory projects are scheduled to start almost immediately. According to Pitman, Cities Service Inc. is setting up a drilling rig at a site on the east side of Bear Lake, in the southeast corner of the state.

Outside of the Overthrust Belt, the Champlin Petroleum Co. is setting up a rig to begin drilling at a site about three miles southwest of Nampa, Pitman said.

Two other projects in eastern Idaho ran into trouble and have been delayed, but will soon be restarted. One of those, a Phillips Petroleum project northeast of Soda Springs, got down to 15,000 feet on a well planned for 17,000 feet when the casing around the drill collapsed. The company will try again from a site about five miles away from the original site, Pitman said.

As the wells go deeper, more controversy about oil and gas exploration bubbles to the surface.

Supron Energy Corp. blames the U.S. Forest Service for dragging its feet on an application for a road the company needed to take exploration equipment to its Black Mountain site in the Targhee National Forest. While the company waited for approval on the road, the lease nearly expired.

Supron is working with several Congressmen to try to get a new lease, according to a company spokesman.

At the same time Supron was fighting with the Forest Service about its road last summer, an environmental impact statement meant to clear the way for oil and gas leasing in a mountain range south of Pallasades Reservoir was released by the Forest Service. That area is also under study for potential inclusion in a wilderness system.

Idaho breeder proud of horse at inaugural

Burley implement dealer finds high-stepping hobby leads into 'show business'

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Ed Elliott was not in Ronald Reagan's inaugural parade Jan. 20, but one of his Tennessee Walking Horses made it.

Shortly after last November's election, the Sacramento Sheriff's posse got word it would ride in the inaugural parade. One posse member wanted a horse he could be proud of, so he called Elliott and bought one of his registered Tennessee Walking Horses, Mayor-of-Hoo-Do, Elliott said. The Mayor was middle flag horse in the posse at the inaugural parade, Elliott said.

"I couldn't have been prouder."

Elliott has only been in the horse business for about four years. The Burley implement dealer got into the horse business when he bought a few horses so he and his wife could ride at their ranch near Stanley.

"Apparently I got the most miserable horses in the country," he said, and was about ready to give up on horses when he tried a half-bred Tennessee Walker.

"As far as I'm concerned, if I was going to ride a horse for pleasure, there's only one breed," he said. They have a gentle temperament and a smoother ride than any other horse, he said.

Joe Hitt, a "quarter-horse cowboy" in Elliott's words, cares for Elliott's horses. Hitt, despite his preference for the quarter horse, said riding a walking horse is like "sitting down in a chair."

Once Elliott was sold on walking horses, he started breeding some of his own. He said he never intended to enter them in shows, but a few of his horses were obvious show prospects because they had been bred to famous walkers, he said. So he went into the "show business."

Last summer, two of his horses were the high point, two-year-olds on the West Coast show circuit, Elliott said.

The walking horse is known for its high stepping gait. The gait is an exaggerated version of their natural one, Elliott said. The high step is developed through training and special shoes and weights on the front feet.

Elliott's trainer is Frank White of Junction City, Ore. It was White who trained the horses and took them on the show circuit from Blackfoot through Oregon, Washington and into California last summer.

White told Elliott he had "opened a real can of worms" by sending his horses on the show circuit.

Elliott said, "People who had been years on the show circuit thought they knew where their horses stood until the newcomer came out of nowhere to start winning points, he said."

Elliott explains his success by saying, "I poked around and I listened to what people had to say. I guess I picked some of the right people to listen to."

Horse breeding is just a hobby, Elliott said. It will probably pay for itself, though he said he never stopped to figure it out.

He said he is sure he has the largest herd of Tennessee Walking Horses in the Northwest, but he isn't sure exactly how many that is. All are purebred, though. And they all have excellent papers, "if you know walking horses," he said.

Elliott is a director of the Western International Walking Horse Association, a major step for someone whose only training with horses came during a stint in a horse cavalry unit of the National Guard when he was in college.

Ed Elliott leads Sun Silver Streak, a rare 3-year-old pure gray Tennessee Walking Horse.

Potential 'food weapon' major worry.

Mexico aims for sufficiency in food

By SONJA HILLGREN
UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON — Mexican officials, facing rising imports of agricultural products from the United States, have set a goal of agricultural self-sufficiency in corn and beans by 1982 and in other basic foods by 1985.

American analysts believe Mexico will make progress in increasing agricultural production, but they foresee that Mexico will be forced to continue importing significant amounts of food.

Last year, when the embargo of grain to the Soviet Union reduced American farm exports, Carter administration officials were gratified by a sharp increase in Mexican imports of American crops.

Last fiscal year, Mexico, with new oil wealth, more than doubled its imports of American farm products, becoming a $2 billion market for the first time and the third-largest foreign market.

As former Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland stated it, "we have developed one of the fastest growing commercial relations between any two trading partners in history."

For the second year in a row, a bilateral agreement covers U.S. farm exports to Mexico. The United States has bilateral agreements with only two other nations, China and the Soviet Union.

While Americans have welcomed the trade heartily, the growth of imports of American products has been troublesome for Mexican leadership.

In an article in the January issue of "Foreign Agriculture," Agriculture Department economist John Link said, "The concern voiced most prominently by Mexican authorities is vulnerability to the use of food as a weapon, and, thus, reliance on the United States as the sole or major source of supply."

Mexican leaders also want to avoid the experience of major oil-exporting nations of increased dependence on agricultural imports along with increased consumption of nonessential items and overemphasis on industrial development.

The new policy to achieve agricultural self-sufficiency is known as Sistema Alimentario Mexicano or SAM and translates into Mexican food system.

It was unveiled last year as Mexican President Lopez Portillo appeared to lean toward protectionism by also announcing limits on petroleum production and a postponement of entry into the multilateral trade agreement.

Mexico also wants to improve the diet of about one-third of the population with inadequate nutrition and improve the economic welfare of farmers.

New car sales pushed

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Mayor Hank Woodall has proclaimed this week "New Car Dealer's Week."

The declaration came from Emmett Harrison, president of Thelsen Motors and president of the Twin Falls Auto Dealers Association.

Ten Twin Falls car dealers will celebrate the week with special promotions in an effort to promote car sales all across town.

Dick Dey, a former sales manager for Harrison and now head of his own dealership, Dick Dey Oldsmobile Buick, said dealers are hoping to create some interest in new cars at a time when interest is low.

Dealers are banding together to show the public that they can buy a car for less than they might expect, he said.

Many record yields

Idaho crop figures show '80 good year

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said Friday 1980 was an extremely good year for most crops.

Many produced record yields.

Cool, wet weather throughout late spring delayed planting, but timely rains allowed crops to develop well all summer, the service said.

The agency said the 1980 crop production index for 1980 was 141, up 12 points from 1979, but two points below the record index of 1978.

"High yields as well as a slight increase in harvested acres were the factors responsible for this increase in the index," the service said. "Of the major crops only potatoes showed a substantial decrease in production — 8 percent. This was due to a decrease in harvested acres as yield was actually up four hundredweight per acre."

The agency said preliminary total value of the 1980 crop, excluding sugarbeets, is up 22 percent from 1979.

The most notable increases in total value were in small grains, the service said. Winter wheat increased 49 percent; spring wheat, 17 percent; barley, 26 percent, and oats, 61 percent.

Austrian winter peas increased in value by 104 percent and potatoes increased 38 percent.

The total value of hops and onions also increased substantially, 75 percent and 108 percent respectively.

The reporting service said wheat was the 1980 crop with the highest value at $348 million, followed closely by potatoes with $345 million. Value of the hay crop at $277 million was third ranking among Idaho produced crops.

These three crops account for over two-thirds of the total value of Idaho crops, the service said.

McBride joins packer as marketing director

TWIN FALLS — Michael McBride, advertising director for the Times-News for more than two years, joins the Independent Meat Co. this week as marketing manager.

Patrick Florence, Independent Meat general manager, said McBride will bring more marketing experience to the company as it expands from serving a local to a regional market.

As marketing manager, McBride will perform a job that had been shared within the company, Florence said. This will give the company more flexibility, and firm control over the entire sales and distribution effort, he said.

McBride said his new job will give him expanded duties and authority. "I'll be involved in both short and long range marketing and planning," he said.

Independent Meat will be looking for new markets and at new products, he said. "I hope to be an integral part of that planning."

He said his experience at the Times-News has been "positive and rewarding." But the move to Independent Meat is a "great career opportunity," he said.

Engineering work cited

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI) — U.S. Department of Agriculture researcher Dr. Donald McCool, Pullman, has been named "Engineer of the Year" by the Inland Empire Chapter, American Society of Agricultural Engineers.

McCool, according to the Society, has originated important research techniques and equipment dealing with soil erosion and water quality.

He developed a rill meter, which is used extensively to obtain soil loss data rapidly and accurately from both cultivated and uncultivated areas.

McCool is also credited with a major breakthrough in soil erosion research. He headed the "Universal Soil Loss Equation" for use under Pacific Northwest conditions.

Method found to make alcohol from straw

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (UPI)—Scientists at Colorado State University say they have found a way to convert wheat straw to alcohol using the earth's natural hot water.

In addition, they are studying ways to use the technique to make alcohol from wood.

Chemical engineer Vince Murphy said the importance of the discovery is that alcohol can be made without using fossil fuel or food products. Alcohol in gasoline, he explained, is normally made from corn and requires large amounts of fossil fuel energy.

Murphy said another important point is that the CSU method might effectively allow geothermal energy to be "exported" beyond Rocky Mountain states and the Pacific Northwest, where most geothermal wells are located.

He said water from geothermal wells already has been used to make electricity and heat buildings, but the efficiency of conversion to electricity is low and space heating applications are limited to the immediate area of the wells.

"Now we may be able to make alcohol that can be sent to other areas of the country, thus exporting geothermal energy," Murphy said.

He said it was possible to make alcohol from straw or wood because the cellulose present is made of glucose, a sugar which may be fermented to alcohol in a process similar to beer brewing.

The major problem is that the cellulose core in straw and wood is surrounded by lignin, a material that acts like cement in the cell wall of plants. The first step in the CSU process is to separate lignin and cellulose by cooking straw or wood in a pressure vessel. The treated material is then put in contact with enzymes which convert the exposed cellulose to sugars.

If a geothermal well is to be used in the process, Murphy said, the water must be between 300-356 degrees Fahrenheit.

He said scientists in Idaho recently used the process to make a gallon of alcohol from a bale of wheat straw. Testing took place at the Department of Energy's Raft River geothermal research facility.

Cedar home kits in area markets

TWIN FALLS—Cedar homes will soon be available from local outlets in Twin Falls, Sun Valley and other southern Idaho communities.

Bill Pedersen of Missoula, Mont., area dealer for Justus Homes, is now negotiating for sub-dealers in Twin Falls and Sun Valley.

Pedersen said a number of Justus Cedar homes have been built in the Sun Valley area and he has been visiting the Wood-River Valley and the Magic Valley monthly to do business with local builders and realtors. Headquarters for Justus Homes is in Tacoma, Wash.

The homes include up to 78 percent energy saving because of the solid 4-inch thick exterior and interior walls made of red cedar from British Columbia, or the 6-inch-thick laminated cedar-and-pine-wall construction. Sections are fit together by tongue-and-groove timbers with the same method in dovetailed joints. This prevents any air passing through the walls or the joining sections.

In addition, insulation is also available to provide additional protection against heat and cold. Solar systems are available along with other special features.

Pedersen said the homes are purchased in kit form with the exterior, interior walls, cedar shake roof, windows and all other framework. The buyer then chooses his own cabinets, adds plumbing and wiring, carpets and other finishing touches.

They can be purchased from standard plans or custom designed. Churches, motels, business buildings, banks or mountain cabins are also available.

Pedersen says a small cabin or starter home can be purchased and completed for about $25,000 to $40,000. One such design covers from 650 to 850 square feet and features one bedroom with another loft bedroom and storage.

The kit on this home sells for $20,000 and if the buyer does his own work, as Pedersen says many do, the final cost can be cut by about 25 percent.

Depending on the quality of cabinets, fixtures and carpets selected by the customer, a finished home with two or more bedrooms can cost for about $55,000. There is a 1,700-square-foot home with a custom interior, finished for about $80,000. The shell kit for this sells for $35,000.

A 64-page color brochure showing many of the 300 designs and floor plans is available for $5 by writing Justus Cedar Homes, Bill Pedersen, Box 7603, Missoula, Mont., 59807.

New feed store in Wendell

WENDELL—A new animal feed and supply store is planned to open in Wendell April 1.

Joe Lemme of Jerome purchased a warehouse and adjacent lot on South Idaho Street from Marshall Warehouses Inc. The transaction was closed Wednesday.

"It (the new store) will be a hometown feed and supply store with veterinary supplies and Purina Feed," Lemme said. "The emphasis will be on animal health and nutritional products."

Lemme also said he has tentative plans to build another facility on the vacant lot.

The warehouse has been used as a bean and potato storage and sorting facility. Lemme plans to begin remodeling immediately.

Area cereal schools slated

TWIN FALLS—University of Idaho Cooperative Extension cereal production schools will be held in the Magic Valley this week.

Schools are scheduled for Wednesday in Gooding, at the Lincoln Inn, Thursday in Twin Falls, at the College of Southern Idaho Vo-tech Building, and Friday in Burley, at the Burley Inn.

Each session begins at 9 a.m.

One of the features of this year's schools will be a discussion of production of fuel on farms from oil seed crops. Charles L. Peterson, University of Idaho professor of agricultural engineering, will report on his research using safflower oil in diesel tractors.

Oil

The Forest Service has been taken to task by conservationists for the study. Conservationists have also taken the issue to court to block leasing in the area.

Fred Judd, minerals specialist in the Forest Service's Idaho Falls District, admitted the Forest Service can't seem to please either conservationists or the oil industry as it tries to balance the tradeoffs between protecting the environment and exploring for oil.

But according to a study scheduled for release next week by the U.S. General Accounting Office, federal agencies might not be doing as good a job balancing as they should.

Ned Smith, who directed the study for the GAO, stopped short of saying the federal government is interfering unnecessarily with oil and gas exploration and he was reluctant to go into much detail about the study since it has yet to be released. But, he said, "We feel there are delays because of federal actions."

At the state level, controversy is brewing over state oil and gas leasing policies. At a recent hearing on proposed rules prepared by the state Land Department, retired land department employee Art Zienold accused the agency of giving away leases in Idaho by proposing to charge only $1 per year per acre for leases on state land.

The proposed regulations are now being revised by the Land Department and will be presented to the Legislature for review in 1982.

One oil company executive contacted by the Times-News asked that his name not be used because "he would be drummed out of the corp," but he did not answer to this dispute is a compromise.

The state should "make its leases too expensive until it becomes a producing state," he said. Then they should get a little "hard nosed."

Expert says tax recommendations counter farmers' needs

By SONJA HILLGREN
United Press International

WASHINGTON — An agricultural tax expert who advises major farm organizations says he is in a "state of disbelief" over tax recommendations in a recent Agriculture Department report on the structure of farming.

Tad Davis, a Washington tax lawyer, said "many of the tax provisions which the report suggests are either too generous or unnecessary are the very provisions which farmers now say need to be expanded and made more useful."

Farmers deserve special tax treatment because of their risks, the unique role of land in agriculture and their low return on investment, he said.

He predicted Congress would consider legislation to reduce estate tax burdens on farms and advocated expanded use of investment tax credits by farmers.

In one of his last actions as agriculture secretary, Bob Bergland released a report that blamed existing tax and commodity policies for larger and larger farms.

Bergland's report, "A Time to Choose: Summary Report on the Structure of Agriculture," recommended that future tax, commodity and loan policies benefit small and medium-sized farmers, up to the size at which farms can make efficient use of labor and machinery.

Davis, who formerly was with the Internal Revenue Service, spoke on farm tax policy this past week at a food and agriculture policy conference sponsored by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Davis took issue with basic assumptions of Bergland's report, saying Americans have bought land, bidding up prices, as a hedge against inflation. Inflation and government spending, not tax laws, have pushed up land prices, he said.

"The conclusion that bigness is bad ignores the fact that the economics of farming and ranching today requires larger units in order to produce a decent living for those thousands of families who are operating those farms and ranches," Davis said.

He took issue with a conclusion that a special use valuation provision of the tax code — which permits estate tax valuation of farmland for its farm income potential rather than for its developed use — has not worked as intended. He said it has been a "tool" for preserving the family farm.

The Agriculture Department report said the special use valuation increases demand for land by keeping it off the market. The tax benefit reduces estate tax liability and allows the tax to convert land into cash to pay taxes, the report said.

Any shortcomings in the law, Davis said, should be blamed on an IRS interpretation that has denied many farm estates use of the provision.

In effect since 1976, the provision is restricted to family farms, Davis said.

"The specific targeting of this provision is intended to keep non-farmers who are motivated only by the estate tax benefits and not a desire to engage in farming from bidding up the price of land," he said.

As a candidate, President Reagan advocated elimination of estate taxes.

"I don't think Congress will go that far," Davis said. "I don't think it should."

He said the structure report's criticism of long-term capital gains treatment of farm assets, which also were deducted from income when acquired, is contrary to the interests of American farmers.

He said capital gains treatment, at 60 percent less than rates for ordinary income, gives farmers additional cash to finance operations or reduce debt.

"Recommendation that the provisions of benefit to farmers be repealed without a concurrent repeal of all the special provisions available to other agriculturists clearly seems to be a disservice to American agriculture," Davis said.

Farmers object strongly to eliminating the cash method of accounting, as recommended by the structure report, Davis said. It allows farmers to report income as it is received and deduct expenses as they are paid.

Eliminating that special accounting method "would not only be a far more complex tax treatment, making them more reliant upon professionals to advise them, but would also increase the tax burden on farm activities, particularly if they were not allowed to invest pre-tax profits in next year's production costs," Davis said.

Cash accounting is appropriate for a sector with many small operations, widely fluctuating income and low rates of return on capital, he said.

Potato school

Waste disposal rules needn't be feared

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

BURLEY — New federal regulations for the disposal of toxic wastes needn't trouble farmers, according to a University of Idaho entomologist.

Bob Stoltz, University of Idaho Cooperative Extension entomologist, said the regulations provide "cradle-to-grave type" control over the handling of toxic chemicals, including many commonly used in agriculture. Some of the chemicals covered by the stringent regulations that took effect recently include Temik, Thimet, 2,4-D and Dieldrin, he said.

Speaking at a Magic Valley "potato school" Wednesday, Stoltz said the regulations require a person to notify the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency in writing if he plans to treat, haul, generate or dispose of any of 440 chemicals considered toxic wastes.

This does not mean agriculture has been singled out, he said. Irrigation return flows, crop residue, manure and sewage are not controlled by the new regulations. In fact, Stoltz said, most farmers will be able to avoid coming under the regulations by exercising a little care and planning.

A farmer can dispose of 2.2 pounds per month of chemicals the EPA has designated "acutely hazardous," such as Temik and Dieldrin, in a sanitary landfill without notifying the EPA, he said. For chemicals the EPA has put on its "hazardous" list, such as 2,4-D, a farmer can dispose of 2,200 pounds per month in a sanitary landfill, Stoltz said.

"I seriously doubt any farmer is going to have that much to dispose of a month," he said.

The key to avoid running afoul of the new regulations for a farmer is simply to buy only the amount of a chemical he needs, Stoltz said.

Disposing of chemical containers can also be a problem, he said. Containers can be put in a landfill after they are triple rinsed, but disposing of the liquid used to rinse the containers can be a "Catch 22," Stoltz said.

A small amount of leftover 2,4-D could easily be rinsed out of a container, but the rinse water might then have to be mixed with hundreds of gallons of water before it would be diluted enough to dispose of, Stoltz said.

Violations of the toxic waste regulations can be punished with up to a $25,000 fine, Stoltz said.

Area dairy forums open

TWIN FALLS — Dairy specialists from throughout Idaho will be in the Magic Valley early this week for two winter dairy forums.

The first will be Monday at Price's Cafe in Burley. The second will be Tuesday at Jerome Implement in Jerome. Both meetings begin at 9:30 a.m.

Edward A. Fiez, University of Idaho Extension Dairy Specialist from Caldwell, will be the featured speaker at both forums. The topics he plans to discuss are "Understanding milk quality reports" and "Evaluation of milking equipment."

Other speakers will include R. James Parker, extension dairy specialist from Pocatello, and Dean E. Falk, extension dairy specialist from Twin Falls.

Shipments deplete onion inventories

BOISE (UPI) — Good prices led to a record movement of onions to market, leaving a depleted stock in Idaho and eastern Oregon, the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said.

"Shrinkage, waste and cullage appears to be normal," the agency said, "but storage ability is of concern due to high moisture at harvest in a few areas."

The service said onion stocks in Idaho and eastern Oregon Jan. 1 were estimated at 1,250,000 hundredweight, down 30 percent from last year's record stocks inventory.

'Ugly' varieties potential source of alcohol

BURLEY — Potato growers may soon start trying to grow disfigured potatoes with stains and hollow spots inside.

At least, according to University of Idaho Extension Potato Specialist Gary Kleinschmidt, it won't matter how ugly the potatoes are because they'll be used to produce alcohol.

Kleinschmidt spoke to about 100 farmers, extension personnel and potato industry representatives attending the final day of the Magic Valley potato school in Burley Thursday.

There are several ugly potato varieties that produce higher yields than Russet Burbanks, he said. No one would want to serve them for dinner, but that doesn't mean they can't be used to make alcohol to help fill hungry gas tanks.

"Some of these varieties don't look too good," Kleinschmidt said. "But in alcohol production we don't care about that."

In tests last summer at several Idaho research stations and across the country, several potato varieties were found that produce unsightly potatoes with yields double and more those of Russet Burbanks.

At the University of Idaho research center in Parma, researchers got yields of 940 sacks to the acre of a "very soggy" potato, Kleinschmidt said. Another variety produced 1,500 sacks to the acre, which could be converted into about 1,100 gallons of alcohol, he said.

"Potatoes for alcohol cost less to grow than the Russet Burbank that made Idaho famous," Kleinschmidt explained that since the quality of individual potatoes is unimportant, fertilizer costs can be reduced and some pesticide treatments can be ignored.

If Magic Valley yields of an alcohol potato could be brought up to about 1,200 sacks per acre, the out-of-pocket expense to grow them would be only about 75 cents a sack, Kleinschmidt said.

That's a level alcohol producers say they can live with, he said.

Even though the average farmer in the Magic Valley gets around 300 sacks to 400 sacks an acre, reaching 1,200 sacks is not out of the question. In the past, potato breeders would have thrown these ugly duckling potato varieties away, Kleinschmidt said. He couldn't say what they might find if they start looking for the highest yielding potato varieties.

Sheep, lamb numbers rise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sheep producers, who are trying to build up sagging production, saw U.S. sheep and lamb numbers rise this year for the second time since 1960, the Agriculture Department reported.

Based on a Jan. 1 survey, the department's Crop Reporting Board estimated sheep and lamb numbers at 12.9 million head, up 2 percent from a year ago.

The inventory value of the animals dropped 8 percent to $404 million. The average value per head was $69.90, $8.30 less than last year, which had been the highest value on record.

A 1980 lamb crop of 8.25 million head was 3 percent larger than last year. Breeding ewes, 1 year old and older, were up 2 percent and ewe lambs were up 1 percent.

The lambing rate was up last year to 97 lambs per 100 ewes 1 year old and older, compared to 95 last year and 92 two years ago.

Building sold

WENDELL — The Western Auto Store building in Wendell has been sold to a Twin Falls man who plans to lease the facility.

Max Casperson, former owner and manager of Farm and City in Twin Falls, purchased the Wendell building from Bruce Williams this month. A small-engine repair business in the rear of the building will continue.

"I think Wendell has a good future," Casperson said. "There's a growth feeling there. Not great, but it's stable."

California clears sheep vaccine

CALDWELL (UPI) — A vaccine effective against an organism which causes abortion in sheep has been given an experimental product permit for use in California.

The one-year permit was granted in mid-December after the California Woolgrowers Association petitioned the U.S. Department of Agriculture to allow it to be transported to and used in California because there was no other vaccine of its type on the market, said Dr. Donald Waldhalm, University of Idaho associate professor of veterinary science. He is one of the vaccine's developers.

This is the first time the vaccine has been approved for use outside Idaho, Waldhalm said.

The vaccine has been manufactured in Idaho and has been approved by the Idaho Department of Agriculture for sale in the state of Idaho," said Waldhalm, who is continuing development of the vaccine and studying the immune response with Richard F. Falk, extension professor and extension veterinarian, and research associate Walter DeLong.

Idaho's pea output soars

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's dry edible pea production in 1980 more than doubled the 1979 output, the state Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said.

The service said 1980 production was estimated at 1,449,000 hundredweight, compared to 704,000 cwt. in 1979.

An increase in acreage and a record yield of 2,300 pounds per acre are responsible for the increased production, the agency said.

The service also reported: Idaho Austrian winter pea production for 1980 was 406,000 cwt., up sharply from last year's production of 196,000. Yield was estimated at 1,400 pounds per acre and acreage increased 6,000 acres to 29,000 acres.

Lentil production in Idaho is estimated at 507,000 cwt., up 226,000 cwt. from 1979.

Montana's crop values increase

HELENA, Mont. (UPI) — The value of all crops harvested in Montana in 1980 was $921 million, 15 percent more than in 1979, according to the state Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

The agency said the increase was despite the drought that "nearly erased crop production in eastern counties."

The service attributes the increase to higher prices and increased production in western and central Montana counties, where rainfall was abnormally high last summer.

COST OF PRODUCTION

CONTRACT BEANS INC. feel the price of contract beans will need to be raised no less than 21.5% after adding up the cost of production in each of the following items: cost of water, irrigators, taxes, fertilizer, herbicides, pesticides, plowing, ground working, cultivating, planting, cutting, windrowing, combining, hauling, management costs, interest on investment, interest on production loan, seed, blight insurance, hail insurance, bean tax and organization dues. Adding up all the above costs, you will find 21.5% is very conservative. Anything less will lock you into a loss over last year.

EARLY SIGNING

CONTRACT BEANS INC. urges all companies whose growers sign early (peas setters) to be held at that price and not be allowed to have their contracts adjusted should the price come up later. Contracts are legal instruments and should be honored as such. We feel this practice is unfair, if not illegal.

PAYMENTS

If payments are unreasonably late this should serve as a red flag. If they are operating on your money, are they solvent? We recommend you shop around for a different Co. — there are 17 in this area. Most are good, reputable firms.

GERMINATION

More and more companies are offering a no germination contract.

COMMERCIAL VERSUS CONTRACT

The annual meeting was attended by 82 members. A survey was taken by a show of hands asking, "Who made more money per acre in commercial beans than in contract beans?" The commercial bean won by 80%.

Americans forfeit tax shelters

© Field Enterprises, Inc.

An estimated 50 million American taxpayers are now eligible to open Individual Retirement Accounts (IRA) — the best tax shelter ever designed for and available to U.S. individuals in any tax bracket.

Yet, as of a late-reporting date, less than 3 million IRAs had been opened.

Whether because of your apathy or ignorance, what this fundamentally means is that millions of you are voluntarily forfeiting tremendous tax benefits and the opportunity to build up hefty retirement income programs for your own welfare.

You are eligible to take advantage of IRAs if you are not covered by any other qualified retirement plan of your employer. All your contributions to your IRA are tax deductible, thus providing you with an immediate tax savings.

All your investments in your IRA grow free of current tax, thus allowing your investments to accumulate at an extremely favorable pace.

The assets in your plan can be distributed to your named beneficiary free of federal estate tax, and without going through probate.

And only when you ultimately start withdrawing money from your IRA will you pay taxes on totals you take out (probably at lower tax rates).

If you are eligible, you can contribute $1,500 a year or 15 percent of your salary, whichever is less. If you are working and your spouse is not, you can contribute up to $1,750. To get this extra deduction, you must split the contribution evenly between the accounts of husband and wife, with $875 being contributed to each account.

To get a tax deduction for 1980, you must set up and contribute to your IRA by the time you file your tax return — or usually April 15.

Those of you who have IRAs probably are investing your IRA money in savings institutions or commercial bank instruments, are approved for IRA investment by the Internal Revenue Service — and may pay you much higher, more attractive returns. (Today, you can get an average of more than 16 percent on money market funds.)

There are advantages to choosing money market funds as the medium for your IRA money. Among them:

- Most money market funds are part of a "family" of funds. The managers of money market funds also manage other mutual funds with different objectives — stock funds, bond funds, income funds. You easily can split your IRA contribution between any of the funds in the family. For instance, as Gary Strum, vice president of the New York-based Lord Abbott Cash Reserve Fund, points out, you might benefit by splitting between a money market fund and a stock fund. Or you might move all of your IRA money between the different funds at any time.

- If you find it tough to come up with $1,500 at one time, you can budget small regular investments to your money market fund IRA. By so doing, you do not lose the tax deductible savings.

- When you start withdrawing your IRA, money market funds can automatically make periodic retirement payments to you. While the payments are being made to you, the assets that remain in your fund continue to earn tax-free. Under the tax law, you are allowed to take money out of your IRA when you are 59½ years old; you must start taking your money out when you are over 70½ years old.

Your goal should be to avoid withdrawing your IRA funds in a single payment and bunching the tax on the distribution in one year. By withdrawing your IRA over many years, the money generally will be taxed in lower brackets.

- Since all IRAs offer the same tax benefits, your aim should be to select the most attractive investment for your account. You do not have to place this year's IRA with the same custodian you used last year; each year's IRA stands on its own. So, investigate the investment aspects before you contribute to each IRA.

If you're investigating bank certificates of deposit, for instance, check the interest rate offered, how long the certificate runs, the penalty if you terminate the certificate early. If you're considering money market funds, read the prospectus carefully, note what short-term investments the funds buy, the cost of management.

- A final tip: Fund your IRA early in the year so your money will be earning on a tax-free basis as soon as possible. It's a mistake to postpone acting until each year's deadline.

Louisiana-Pacific reports earnings

PORTLAND — Louisiana-Pacific Corp. reports 1980 earnings of $60 million on sales of $1.2 billion.

Harry A. Merlo, chairman and president, said sales for the forest products firm declined 8.2 percent from a record $1.3 billion in 1979. Net income was down 43.6 percent from a record $106.4 million in 1979. Earnings per share in 1980 were $2.02, down from a record $3.57 the previous year.

For the fourth quarter in 1980, sales of $303.4 million were off 5.4 percent from $320.7 million in 1979. Net income of $11.4 million was off 47.8 percent from $21.8 million the previous year. Earnings per share declined to 39 cents from 73 cents a year earlier.

Merlo said earnings reflect the pre-tax net benefit of last year's first out inventory reductions of $2.8 million in the fourth quarter and $23.8 million for the year.

Merlo said the near-term outlook for the forest products industry remains uncertain and depends on the level of mortgage rates. "We don't expect a significant rebound in building activity before the second half of 1981," he said.

Idaho Power outlines '81 construction plans

BOISE — Idaho Power Co. plans to spend $118.4 million for new facilities to help supply projected load growth this year.

James E. Bruce, president, said most of the 1981 construction budget is earmarked for transmission and distribution lines and substations.

More than $59.7 million will be spent for those facilities with about $22 million for transmission lines and substations and nearly $26.7 million going into distribution lines and substations.

Distribution lines linking customers with generating and high-voltage transmission lines are allocated more than $22 million.

Bruce said the company expects to spend about $47.7 million for new generating facilities.

Most of that will go to continue construction of two 250,000 kilowatt units at the coal-fired North Valley plant in Nevada. The first unit there is scheduled to go on line next fall with Idaho Power receiving 125,000 kilowatts of power. The second unit is scheduled to go on line in 1984 or 1985.

Idaho Power shares ownership of the plant with Sierra Pacific Power Co.

Almost $4 million of the production-plant expenditures is budgeted for continuing environmental studies, preliminary engineering and investigation of 10 proposed hydro generating facilities for which the utility has applied or will apply to regulatory agencies.

Among these are the Wiley and Dike dams on the Snake River and the Cascade and North Fork projects on the Payette River.

The 1981 budget includes over $16.3 million for continuing construction of a 500,000-volt transmission line, its 560 structures spanning some 80 miles between the Borah and Midpoint substations. Midpoint is located northeast of Jerome.

Bruce said the line is designed to increase the company's ability to transfer power between the west and east ends of its system. It will feature the first use of triple-bundled conductors, consisting of three conductors on each of the line's three phases — multiplying its load-carrying capabilities, he said.

Power firm executives' pay boosted

SEATTLE — (UPI) — The Washington Public Power Supply System, which is fighting huge cost overruns in the construction of five nuclear reactors, has quietly given sizable pay hikes to five top executives, it was reported Friday.

The Seattle Post-Intelligencer said in a copyrighted story that the pay raises ranged between $3,000 and $29,000 a year and pushed the salaries of all five men to a level higher than the pay of Washington Gov. John Spellman.

The supply system is the construction arm of Washington state's public utilities.

The pay increases were enacted three weeks ago by WPPSS managing director Bob Ferguson without any public announcement.

The five men receiving the salary hikes are considered key officials in Ferguson's drive to control schedules and improve the public image of the supply system's nuclear program, whose estimated budget on the five plants has gone from $4.1 billion to $17.3 billion.

All five were hired at $60,000 last fall with a promise from Ferguson that their pay would be adjusted when their responsibilities were fully defined.

School Bond Election

SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 413

$2.9 MILLION BOND ISSUE

VOTE:

TO ALL FILER CITIZENS:

For many months the Board of Trustees, administrators, architects, and teachers have been studying the building needs of the Filer School District. We have reached the decision to place a proposal for bond issue before the patrons of School District No. 413 to modernize and allow expanded curriculum and programs for the students of the Filer School District. This advertisement is an outline of what we feel is necessary to update and continue quality education in our system.

There are many reasons for asking this bond issue to be passed: safety for our children; fire danger; over crowded conditions; inadequate site, and to replace an outdated building are among a few.

The people of Filer have long been proud of the education of the children in our school system. In order to continue and improve the education and programs we would urge your support in this two-million-nine-hundred-thousand dollar bond proposal. It is our sincere belief that there is no greater investment than our children and the proposed facilities and improvements would be beneficial to their education.

Respectfully yours,

Amfac lists 1980 record

HONOLULU — Net income of Amfac, Inc., set a record in 1980.

For the year, net income was $76.1 million, up 35 percent from $56.37 million in 1979. That was the previous record.

Earnings per share for 1980 were $5.37, up from $4.21 the previous year. Revenues of $1.92 billion during 1980 also set a record. The 1979 figure was $1.68 billion.

Fourth quarter net income was $24.45 million, up 98 percent from the same period in 1979 when the net was $12.97 million. Earnings per share for the quarter were $1.71 compared with 97 cents the previous year. Revenues of $546.83 million were up from $456.83 million in 1979.

Smaller, energy saving homes in future for Americans

By DON DEBAT
© Chicago Sun-Times

LAS VEGAS — Soaring energy costs will force Americans to buy smaller, more efficient homes in the next five years, a new national housing survey predicts.

The survey of 743 builders in 30 major metropolitan areas indicates the housing industry soon may be producing homes that are vastly improved energy savers.

By 1985 new homes will be smaller and have more compact floor plans. Most will not have living and dining rooms, and the separate family room and den also appear headed for extinction, the survey predicts.

These rooms will be replaced by the "great room" and the country kitchen that will serve dual purposes.

"In the past families were investing a lot of money in living room furniture and spending most of their time in the family room," said builder William A. Hueppa, vice president and general manager of Manlin & Liebert Builders in St. Louis.

The great room will roll together uses of the living room and family room, so the homeowner will not have to pay to heat and cool an extra room that is little used, he said.

The country kitchen will combine the best of both the traditional kitchen and the formal dining room, Hueppa said.

Heating costs can be further trimmed by building the country kitchen on the south side of the house to take advantage of solar gain from windows during the winter.

The Dow Chemical Co.-sponsored survey, conducted by Opinion Research Corp. of Princeton, N.J., was released at the National Association of Home Builders annual convention here.

It also predicts new homes soon will have:

- Vastly improved roof and wall insulation, including use of insulated sheathing materials to replace fiberboard and plywood sheathing.

- Triple-glazed windows, insulated draperies, insulated steel doors and down-sized energy-efficient furnaces.

Like the gas-miser automobile, the new compact energy efficient home appears to be arriving just in time.

Experts say energy consumption in homes increased to 37 percent of total energy usage in America today from 32 percent in the early 1970s.

Subsidies for alcohol vehicles win support

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. National Alcohol-Fuels Commission has called for new federal subsidies to encourage automakers to begin mass-producing vehicles that will run on pure alcohol.

The 18-month-old commission, in its final report, recommended an escalating program of purchase guarantees that would put 50,000 such vehicles on the road by 1983 and 250,000 a year by 1987.

private sector has to be convinced this is not a federal boondoggle.

To make sure the new vehicles have something to burn, the commission recommended that coal-to-methanol plants be given priority for subsidies from the new U.S. Synthetic Fuels Corp.

Childress said he disagreed with those who say methanol, or wood alcohol, competes with ethanol, or grain alcohol, which farmers have touted as a market for their grain and as a domestic energy source. He also emphasized the need to develop a private alcohol fuel marketing network.

It also called for federal tax incentives to encourage conversion of gasoline and diesel vehicles to alcohol and persuade the operators of federal, state and private vehicle fleets to buy alcohol-burning vehicles.

"We do, in fact, have to develop pure alcohol vehicles for the nation," James Childress, the panel's executive director, said. "I think that the

The final report called on Congress to keep gasoline exempted from the 4-cent-per-gallon federal highway tax and to find other ways of replenishing the weakened Highway Trust Fund.

It also asked for the removal of barriers to alcohol fuel burning from the Clean Air Act and abolition of Internal Revenue Service tax rules that discourage alcohol production.

Childress said auto mileage standards, currently based on volumes of gasoline, should be based on energy content to make alcohol competitive.

GM previews small diesel powered car

NEW YORK (UPI) — General Motors Corp. Friday previewed a diesel-powered Chevrolet it said will be given a fuel economy rating of at least 40 miles per gallon in city driving and 55 mpg on the highway.

The car initially will be sold in spring on the east and west coasts — areas of high penetration by imported cars.

Chevrolet Division General Manager Robert D. Lund said he expects sales of 50,000 diesel Chevettes through the 1982 model year.

It will be equipped with a 1.8-liter, four-cylinder, 51-horsepower diesel engine built by the Japanese automaker Isuzu, which is 34.2 percent owned by GM.

Production is scheduled to begin in March at GM assembly plants in Wilmington, Del., and Lakeview, Ga.

GM also offers diesel engines in its full-sized cars, the only domestic auto company to do so.

Not guilty plea offered with poem

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — An unconventional millionaire anti-tax author turned to poetry in entering a not guilty plea before a U.S. magistrate to two counts of tax evasion.

William Green, 42, Mill Valley, Calif., who in a recent interview said he would continue to champion the cause of tax avoidance despite the charges against him, was indicted Jan. 13 by a federal grand jury for failing to pay some $60,000 in income taxes for 1973 and 1974.

After Green's attorney formally entered the not guilty plea Thursday, he asked U.S. Magistrate Steele Langford whether the defendant could avow to his innocence "in his own fashion."

The magistrate agreed.

Green, dressed in a black velvet suit, recited:

"From tax returns of Jimmy and Ronnie (the president?)
I learned some tricks to save a dol'
"But when I taught them to the average American resident,
"It was just too much for the IRS to 'swallow.'
"My cartoons and books were just a jokey...
"Judge, don't let them put me in the pokey.
"The government doesn't want my money,
"I'm here 'cause they think my book ain't funny."
The author of "Welcome to the Tax Revolt" and "Think Like a Tycoon" reported a loss of income for 1973 and 1974 of $90,727, which caused him to pay no taxes, the indictment said. However, it said, his actual income should have been $136,427, meaning he should have paid $60,140.83 in taxes.

Beta Sigma Phi dance to honor queens

TWIN FALLS — Four women have been named Valentine queens by the local chapters of Beta Sigma Phi sorority.

The queens will be honored at the organization's annual dance, to be held at 8:30 p.m. Saturday at the Twin Falls Elks Lodge.

The 1981 royalty and the chapters they represent are Rose Ward of Xi Alpha Tau chapter, Susan Harris of Sigma chapter, Julie Lee of Xi

Alpha Upsilon in Jerome and Joann Auger, Omicron.

Ward has belonged to the sorority for nine years and held every office. She currently is president of the City Council of Beta Sigma Phi. She has three grown sons and a daughter.

Harris joined the organization in 1976 in Caldwell. She served as council alternate and representative, second and first vice president before moving to Twin Falls in 1978.

Since joining Sigma chapter she has been first vice president and president. She is employed for United First Federal in Jerome and a member of Credit Women International.

Lee has served on many committees since joining the sorority in 1972 in Meridian. She has been corresponding secretary, vice president and secretary and currently is vice president of the Xi Alpha Upsilon in Jerome. She was chapter sweetheart in Meridian in 1977-78.

Active in the Dilettantes of Magic Valley, she is involved on the musical "Kismet" which will be performed in March. She has two children.

Auger serves as president of the Omicron chapter and has been treasurer of the group.

Married and the mother of two children, she and her husband, John Auger, have lived in Twin Falls the past three years.

Pineapple defies odds

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

HOLLISTER — The experts on plant production say you can't grow pineapples in a pot except in greenhouse conditions.

They also say even in greenhouse conditions potted pineapples will not produce fruit.

Oren and Frances Jones and their son, Loren, of Hollister ignore the experts and now they have a two-foot high pineapple plant in their living room with a beautiful golden ripe fruit. They are about to harvest what they think may well be Idaho's first pineapple crop.

"We are going to harvest the pineapple that everybody said we would never be able to grow," laughs Mrs. Jones.

She said a relative, Emma Henstock, visited Hawaii a few years ago and shipped home a crate of fresh pineapples.

"We got some of them and decided to plant the top we cut from one of the ripe fruit," she said. "I had read about doing this and Loren and I tried it with pineapples from the grocery store, but they always died."

She said much to their surprise the one brought directly from Hawaii took root and began growing. That was four years and one transplanting ago.

Since then, the couple has read a number of articles on pineapple plants and their habits, learning of the odds against harvesting any fruit.

"We thought we were lucky to get the plant to grow in Hollister and in a regular house plant pot. We were happy just having the unusual and attractive house plant," she said.

Last September, however, a bud appeared on the plant, followed by a red blossom with a center cluster of blue blossoms; then, came a tiny pineapple.

The couple took a week's vacation recently and when they returned the green pineapple had turned a beautiful golden brown, indicating harvest time.

"I don't think, I will be able to eat it. I have given it so much tender loving care and watched it grow and develop fruit. It would be hard to eat it," she said.

From their study about the plants, Mrs. Jones said she and her family have "learned" pineapples only produce one stock that bears fruit and when the fruit ripens the mother plant dies. However, it sends out small shoots that produce new plants.

There is another trick to producing fruit. An article she found in a magazine called for putting an apple in the pot with the plant and covering the plant and pot with plastic. Mrs. Jones and Loren used the apple but they couldn't find a large enough plastic bag so they eliminated that step.

The apple, which produces ethylene gas, helps develop the fruit and apparently it worked even without the plastic. Mrs. Jones' method of watering the plant is a good drink every Sunday morning.

Leaves on the old plant are turning yellow and the Hollister pineapple growers are watching for small shoots to appear. If they do, they plan to plant more. They may develop the only indoor pineapple grove in Idaho.

Window treatment saves heat

By STEVE LATHROP
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Too much heat goes out the window. That was the message Blaine County residents got from County Extension Home Economist Kate Spessard recently.

Addressing two groups at the Blaine County Courthouse, Spessard said, "25 to 30 percent of the heat used in homes goes out the windows. 5 percent of U.S. energy is being lost through windows and doors."

Spessard demonstrated various ways to save on utility bills by cutting these losses sharply. Focusing on what she called "window treatments," Spessard emphasized combining-decorator-touches with insulating value to produce an attractive decor which will not leak heat.

To illustrate the money-saving advantages of window treatments, Spessard cited the example of her friend, Melanie Wain, another extension home economist. "Melanie put a window treatment on every window in her house and the first month she did that she saved $12 on her utility bill."

Using models and samples, Spessard showed a variety of small modifications which when applied to draperies and window shades, resulted in heat savings. Spessard said applying velcro closures where curtains come together, and at the sides, would reduce heat loss 21 percent when curtains are drawn. Snaps or small hooks and eyes could be used the same way, she said.

Other tricks for turning curtains into insulators included using two layers of draperies instead of one; using unpleated drapery liners; making draperies out of thick fabrics and densely woven fabrics; applying plastic film to the outside of a drapery liner; and hanging draperies so the space between them and the window is as close as possible to three-quarter inch, the optimum for insulating value.

Spessard also said heat could be saved by adding a cornice at the top of draperies. A cornice is identical to an ordinary valance except it is closed at the top, preventing the chill from the window from setting up a "reverse chimney effect."

Roller shades can also be improved to offer good insulating value, Spessard said. They are most effective when combined with a wooden frame overlapping the edges of the shade, to prevent air leakage from the window recess. Spessard's presentation included handouts which detail methods of combining cloth, plastic, and other materials to make roller shades with high insulating values.

The most effective insulating method Spessard demonstrated uses removable panels of insulating materials such as plastic foam, molded plastic beads, or cardboard. Covered with cloth in attractive patterns, and sized to fit snugly into a window recess, these panels out-perform the wall insulation in many homes. During the day they can be removed from windows to permit a view and admit sunlight.

Costs vary for the window treatments Spessard demonstrated. Some home-crafted from available materials, cost nearly nothing. Others, purchased from decorators, are quite expensive.

Magic Valley students win leadership roles

TWIN FALLS — Several Magic Valley high school students were selected for leadership roles at a recent YMCA youth convention.

Other selections included Dale Merrill, Minico High School, associate justice of the supreme court; Kathy Elliott, Filer High School, assistant attorney general; Mike Woodhouse and Annette Critchfield, Oakley High School, appellant co-counsel; Kim Dockstadter and Mark Bush, Minico High School, respondent co-counsel; Heidi Helsey, Twin Falls High School, editorial press staff.

The convention, which concluded Saturday at the College of Southern Idaho, drew 104 delegates from six high schools.

Bill Bethke of Burley is among Oldtime Fiddlers gathering for the state convention

Oldtime Fiddlers state meet slated

TWIN FALLS — There will be music on the malls and much stomping of feet in Twin Falls Friday and Saturday.

The occasion is the Idaho Oldtime Fiddlers Association Annual convention scheduled for the Holiday Inn Feb. 6 and 7.

Fiddlers and their guests will register at the Holiday Inn from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Feb. 6.

Musicians from various parts of Idaho will play most of the day at the Holiday Inn lobby. The fiddlers also will play during the afternoon at the shopping malls.

Highlight of the convention will be a public performance at 7 p.m. Feb. 6 at the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium with champion-fiddlers from throughout Idaho.

Tickets will be $2.50 donation for adults and $1.25 for children. Tickets will be on sale at the door. Day's Monogram Shop will deliver four or more tickets in Twin Falls. Call 733-4338.

Archie Turner of Twin Falls and Mannie Shaw of Corral will serve as masters of ceremony.

Registration will continue Saturday for members who wish to attend the convention meetings only.

Saturday's schedule includes a board meeting at 9 a.m. at the Holiday Inn and a general membership meeting and election of officers at 1 p.m.

A banquet is planned for 7 p.m. at the Holiday Inn for all Oldtime Fiddlers and their guests.

Fiddlers will be attending from throughout the state, including Cammy Swenson of Twin Falls. She was erroneously pictured in Thursday's Times-News as playing for the Country Music Jamboree.

Help on taxes starts Monday

TWIN FALLS — Tax counseling for the elderly will be available beginning Monday here and in Jerome.

The Twin Falls service will be offered at the Senior Citizens Center, 309 Fourth Ave., Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The Jerome service will be offered at the Senior Citizens Center in Pioneer Hall, Tuesdays and Fridays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The service is operated by the American Association of Retired Persons/National Retired Teachers Association, to provide free tax assistance to people aged 60 and over who cannot afford a professional tax preparer.

Residents in other areas who have volunteered to assist taxpayers by appointment are: Burley, Preston Stocks, call 678-5315 for appointment; Buhl, Milo Davis, 543-4810; Norma Smurthwaite, 543-5034; and Ted Kokes, 543-6103.

These volunteers are participating in the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance program.

Gardening class starts Feb. 5 at Buhl

BUHL — Theresa Strolberg spoke at a recent meeting of the Buhl Women's Club on the values of gardening.

She has completed the "master gardener" program through the Twin Falls county agent's office and has fulfilled the required hours of service.

Vegetable gardening can enable of family of six to eat well, she said, and if properly managed, the food budget can be cut in half.

She will teach organic or biological gardening in the Buhl Community Adult Education program. The six-week class will begin at 7 p.m. Feb. 5 in the Buhl High School.

A trio, "The Last Generation," composed of Brenda and Glenda Clark and Lori Allen, sang, accompanied by LaVone Jones.

Symposium set April 1

TWIN FALLS — The second annual Snake River Symposium will be held April 1 at the College of Southern Idaho.

The symposium was launched last year with Dr. Laurence Peter, founder of the Peter Principle, as speaker. The event was successful and the committee, composed of representatives of communities throughout the Magic Valley, is planning to bring another equally interesting lecture, according to Miriam Breckenridge, publicity chairman.

She said in addition to a lecture by a nationally known person this year there also will be a discussion on the topic led by local people. The lecture will be in the morning at the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium.

In the afternoon all interested individuals will meet again at the auditorium to discuss the subject matter presented in the morning as well as related questions prompted by the lecture.

Officers of the symposium are Norma Lou Benoit, chairman; Margy Humphrey, vice chairman; Fran Frost and Barbara Allen, secretaries; Rosemary Carpenter, treasurer; Miriam Breckenridge, publicity; and Jean Cilek and Donanna McKinstry.

Anyone interested in assisting with the symposium should call Benoit at 733-0889.

Tickets will be sold in each community and different areas may wish to organize car pools for traveling to and from the April 1 event. Help will be needed to make these arrangements, Breckenridge said.

MR. AND MRS. MATHIAS SONNICHSEN

Hall-Sonnichsen

JEROME — Kelly DeLayne Hall and Mathias Robert Sonnichsen were united in marriage Jan. 3.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Layne Hall and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Phyllis Judd and Sonnichsen, both of Jerome.

Rev. Arthur T. Lewis performed the double-ring ceremony at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Jerome. Kim Lierman was organist and Shelly Batsch Stephens, soloist.

The bride wore a gown of ivory organza trimmed with chantilly lace. Ruffles edged the hemline and ended in an apron effect at the back. The high neck, bishop sleeves and bodice were edged with seed pearls. The attached chapel length train was formed by a cascade of ruffles. Her bouquet was a nosegay of gardenias and roses, a gift from the congregation at St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

Kathy Deck of Boise was maid of honor. Syndee Peterson of Cambridge, Lori Barnes of Lewiston and Patti Green of Wendover, Utah, all sorority sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids. Brandee Cole, cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid.

The candles were lighted by Lance Cole, cousin of the bride, and Scott Walters. Rachelle Block was flower girl. Levi Brown, nephew of the bridegroom, was ringbearer.

John Crozier was best man. Shers were Mark Sherak of Idaho Falls, John Nelsen, cousin of the bridegroom, and Clay Hall, brother of the bride.

Ella Mink was hostess at the reception held in the fellowship hall of the church, assisted by members of the LWML. Patty Brown, sister of the bridegroom, attended the guest book. Jeanne Kulin, aunt of the bride, Ruth Kulin of Seattle, cousin of the bride, Ruth Hegsted of Polson, Calif., great-aunt of the bride, and Wanda Kiser of The Netherlands, handled gifts.

The four-tiered cake was made by Pauline Walcott of Buhl, great-aunt of the bride, and served by Joann Nelsen, aunt of the bridegroom, and Shirley Shropshire, both of Jerome. Colleen Robinson of Boise, Lyn Hall of Portland, and Jeanne Kulin of Jerome, all aunts of the bride, poured.

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kulin and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hall, all of Jerome, grandparents of the bride, and Ella Buckles and Elsie Sonnichsen, both of Jerome, grandmothers of the bridegroom.

Following a trip to Salt Lake City, the couple lives in Moscow where she is a sophomore and he is a senior at the University of Idaho.

Ramsey-Buttram

HAILEY — Joy G. Ramsey and Kenneth R. Buttram were married on Jan. 17 by Mayor Emory Dietrich of Hailey.

The outdoor ceremony was performed atop Steele Mountain near Featherville with David and Nancy Jo Anderson as official witnesses.

The bridal party and some 30 family members and friends made the trip to the site on snowmobile. Snowmachine costumes were graced with corsages of white and blue silk flowers.

On their return off the mountain, a reception was held at the cabin of Mr. and Mrs. David Anderson, near Pine. The bride's table was centered with a five-tiered cake. The host and hostess served hors d'oeuvres. Later the entire party went to Paradise Inn for dinner.

The parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Elythel Greer of Boise.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID ANDERSEN

Peterson-Andersen

FILER — Jeanna Peterson and David Craig Andersen were united in marriage Sept. 10 in the Logan, Utah, LDS Temple.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd J. Peterson of Filer and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. DeVon Andersen of Murtaugh. Treanna Peterson, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Jayda Peterson, sister of the bride; Koreen Eggleston, Gena Fouts and Carol Fleenor.

Jack Andersen was best man for his brother. Groomsman were Ron Andersen, Lou Andersen, Casey Andersen, brothers of the bridegroom, and Dick Hurt.

At a reception held at the Filer First Ward LDS church Liz Briggs attended the guest book. Jill Andersen, Tami Blass and Marilyn Andersen handled gifts. The three-tiered cake was made by the bridegroom's mother.

The bridegroom's parents hosted a luncheon after the ceremony. Both the newlyweds are employed at Quick-Copy and Printing in Twin Falls.

Selecting and Arranging Furnishings

by Jo Ann Rose

WINTER WHITES

Winter's white world can come to seem monotonous in northern climes by the time February arrives... but only because snowbound citizens stop looking. Actually the range of color and contrast in any snowy scene is beautifully varied. That is one reason for the enduring popularity of whites in home furnishings. A room done in all white can have many "colors" - cream or ivory, off-white or antique white, glass or satin finishes, gray-white or blue-white, each shade subtly altered by variations in textures.

Any such room treatment is bound to be cool, restful and serene. And the possibilities for drama abound - in splashes of bright accent colors, for example, or in a vividly painted or papered wall.

The same rich variety can be found in other color themes. For example, look at the range of browns, beiges, sand, rust, wheat and natural tones. Greens or blues can also serve as your varied theme. Just be sure, when you do choose a dominant theme color, that is one you can really feel comfortable with.

And when you want variety, in color, texture and style, in home furnishing, be sure to look over our great collection... quality living room, dining-bedroom and occasional furniture at pleasing prices.

Dear Abby

Decorator is on the spot

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a female interior decorator in business for myself. About three months ago I made a contract to decorate a suite of offices for a very attractive unattached male.

While working on this job, I started dating my client, which was against my policy, but I was strongly attracted to him and enjoyed his company immensely, so I made an exception. I now find myself in a very precarious position.

My first contract with him is completed, and he has asked me to do another decorating job for him. (His summer place.) But he wants a 40 percent discount, instead of the 15 percent discount I customarily allow repeat customers, friends, etc.

I would like to continue dating this man as well as maintain a business relationship with him. How do I separate business from pleasure without jeopardizing one or the other?

—BUSINESSWOMAN
DEAR WOMAN: Having already mixed business with pleasure, you're on the spot. If you don't give him the 40 percent discount, you can kiss his friendship, as well as his future business, goodbye.

DEAR ABBY: I am 24 and have been married for seven years. We have three children. My husband is a responsible, hard-working man who works the swing shift all the time. (He likes it.) He also works weekends every chance he gets. If he's not working on weekends, he looks for spare jobs, and when he's not working, he's too tired for anything else.

We have no friends and he doesn't care to go anywhere. We are well-off financially because he has no hobbies, goes nowhere and saves his money. Abby, there must be more to life than this. I am lonely and bored. I'm not asking for an exciting or glamorous life, but I'd like to have some friends over occasionally, or go dancing once in a while. (He danced some before we were married.)

I love my family very much, but does married life have to be so dull? He used to be alive once. He's only 25. What should I do?

DEAR MISSING SOMETHING: You're missing in communication with your husband. You must have had something in common or you wouldn't have married each other. Let him know how you feel, and begin by inviting one couple to your home or out for dinner. It's usually up to the wife to make social contacts. Instead of bemoaning the dullness of your life, do something to liven it up. It's your move.

DEAR ABBY: What does one do when he sees a fellow employee robbing the company blind and getting away with it? The person doing the stealing is my supervisor.

Almost all my co-workers here are aware of what's going on, but they're too afraid of losing their jobs to do anything about it. It has been the topic of conversation among us for a long time, but frankly, Abby, we are stumped. Any suggestions from you or others who have had to handle a similar problem?

—BITTER
DEAR BITTER: The thief should be confronted by a solid front of all who know he's been "stealing the company blind." Either tell him face-to-face or write him a letter advising him that you are aware of his unethical practices, and warn him that if it isn't discontinued at once, the boss shall be informed. And if he doesn't straighten up, the boss SHOULD be informed.

(P.S. If anyone out there knows a better solution, I welcome it.)

(Do you have questions about sex, love, drugs and the pain of growing up? Get Abby's new booklet: "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know." Send $2 and a long, stamped (28-cent) self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.)

A thought for today

A thought for the day: Alexander Hamilton said in 1781, "Government implies the power of making laws. It is essential to the idea of a law, that it be attended with a sanction; or, in other words, a penalty or punishment for disobedience."

Somebody Needs You

"Somebody Needs You" is a public service column of The Times-News, designed to connect those in the community who need help with those in the community who can provide it. Requests are compiled by the Volunteer Coordinators Council of the Magic Valley.

Maitre d' Michael Florian is surrounded by gleaming brass, bleached oak and fine desserts in Sun Valley Lodge dining room

Elegant

Remodeled Sun Valley Lodge is a touch of old and new class

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY.—Elegant, sumptuous, intimate. More formal? Long-time guests of Sun Valley Lodge were at a loss for words during a book signing party for resident author Dorice Taylor. Apparently there is little to compare between the recently remodeled lodge dining room and the version opened by Averill Harriman in 1936.

Elaborate chandeliers imported from Yugoslavia light the two-level room, situated on the lodge's second floor overlooking a pool and the Bald Mountain ski runs.

Lighted, circular steps greet visitors descending to the main level. Rugs for the room were hand-loomed in London. Fabrics were imported from the Orient. Trays and table service are of real silver, china and Belgian crystal.

Sun Valley Co. owner Earl Holding selected the materials himself, right down to the kitchen tiles.

A jazz trio favored by Holding entertains guests between 7:30 and 9 p.m. A sophisticated stereo system provides subdued music before and after the live entertainers.

The six-month remodeling effort cost about $1 million, roughly two-thirds of what Union Pacific spent to build the entire 220-room lodge. Yet the opulence is in keeping with Sun Valley tradition, said Chuck Webb, Sun Valley Co. assistant general manager.

The lodge dining room was an institution for years, Webb said. Celebrities' names were announced as they emerged at the head of the stairs. Dinners started late because many guests refused to enter a less than full house.

Steve Hannagan, the resort's first publicist, insisted that elegance be built into the lodge, according to Taylor's book "Sun Valley." Hannagan had a flare for packaging fame during the period by turning a sand bar into Miami Beach.

"This is one city in which roughing it must be a luxury," Hannagan had said. "When you get to Sun Valley, your eyes should pop open."

The new owner tried to keep the same flavor while tailoring the room to 20th Century tastes, Webb said. Response among long-time guests has been overwhelmingly favorable, he added.

Union Pacific officials planned the kitchen so well that its design was left virtually untouched, he said, but equipment was in such disrepair the company was forced to remodel extensively or close the room for good.

The dining room reopened Dec. 23. It had been used in recent years only for special banquets catered from the lower floors.

Members of the Sun Valley Ski Club held several parties in the dining room during their annual gathering last week. Most who attended Taylor's autograph party seemed comfortable, yet unable to compare the old and the new.

"They are two entirely different concepts," said Otto Lang, former head of the ski school, who taught celebrities like the Shah of Iran to ski and directed ski shots for several movies set in Sun Valley.

"The other concept was more rustic and simpler in scale," Lang said. "This one is very elegant and sumptuous. Like everything, it's a matter of taste."

Lang added the new room fills a void that existed in the lodge since the room was closed several years back.

"I think it's exactly what Sun Valley needs," Taylor said.

The old dining hall had more of an informal, family feel to it, she agreed. But the new room adds life to parties "that might otherwise be quite dull."

Resort officials have tried to encourage an informal dress code, stating in publicity that ties are not mandatory but "gentlemen will feel un-dressed" without a sport coat or dinner jacket.

Reservations are advised for weekend dining or large groups.

Dinner prices range from $15 for New York steak and lamb chops to $36 for roast rack of lamb and chateaubriand. The dining room also offers $6.95 buffet breakfasts from 8:30 to 11 a.m. Monday through Saturday and from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sundays.

Webb, a native of Hazelton, said he believes the new dining room will prove popular with weekend visitors from the Magic Valley as well as with out-of-town guests staying in the lodge.

Building code appeals board to be mulled

TWIN FALLS.—Appointment of a Building Code Board of Appeals will come under City Council consideration Monday.

At a work session Jan. 26, the city attorney requested the council consider appointing a board of appeals to study and adjust conflicts arising over interpretations of the Building Code.

Council members will hold their regular meeting at 7 p.m. at Twin Falls City Hall. They will meet for a public work session at 4 p.m. at George K's, 1719 Kimberly Road.

Other matters before the council include formal acceptance of an investment agreement between the city and the Bank of Idaho. The council already has approved a proposal to consolidate accounts at five banks and place the money with the Bank of Idaho.

In other business, Monday, the council will consider a request for rezoning of property at 1140 Florence Ave. Joe Hackney has requested the property, north of Falls Professional Center and east of Weston's Lampighter Motel, be zoned for commercial use. Presently it is designated for residential use.

The Twin Falls Comprehensive Plan targets the land for future commercial use, and the city's proposed zoning ordinance would place the property in a commercial zone. Hackney's request has been unanimously approved by the Twin Falls City Planning and Zoning Commission.

Also on Monday's agenda is a request by David Cooper to extend approval of the Elizabeth Manor Townhouse final plan for another 12 months. Filing of the final plan has been withheld pending completion of work specified in a developer's agreement, according to city officials.

The developer has not completed the work because of high interest rates, they said, and consequently wants a 12-month extension. The project is at 1816 Elizabeth Blvd.

First Federal loan rates for homes eased; aids market

TWIN FALLS.—Twin Falls' largest mortgage lender has eased home loan restrictions it adopted only last November.

Real estate agents, who scored First Federal Savings and Loan Association when it tightened its rules in November, applauded the new move. One agent called it a "ray of hope."

What First Federal will do is allow people buying a home already financed by a First Federal mortgage to take over that mortgage at an interest rate of 12 percent or 1 percent above the old rate, whichever is greater.

In November the lender had decided the rate on all such "assumptions" would be brought up to within one-half percent of the current mortgage rate, which is now 15 percent.

The new policy applies only to owner-occupied single-family homes, said Jim Dadds, president of First Federal.

Without saying that the rule change last November was a mistake, Dadds said First Federal decided about two weeks ago it should try to stimulate home loans and make it easier for a person with a First Federal mortgage to sell his house.

So far, Dadds said, there has been no response, though.

"Realtors said we killed the market with what we did before," Dadds said.

"But now that we've changed, I don't see any action."

Real estate broker L. James Koutnik agreed that the market is so slow the move won't have much immediate impact.

Still, he said, "It's got to be beneficial."

Other real estate agents said the move is sure to help the housing market, but it will take one or two months.

First Federal "literally shut down" a portion of the housing market last November when it tightened its rules on assumptions, said real estate broker John Altman.

He gives First Federal credit for trying to hold its rates down last fall. They bit the bullet longer than anyone else," Altman said. But when circumstances forced them to change, they over-reacted, he said.

"What they did was not wrong. It was just overly protective," he said.

The new policy will begin to have an impact on the market in the next 30 to 60 days, he said, and comes at a time when the market is beginning to turn around. It's just one more "ray of hope," Altman said.

Real estate salesman Jack Cox said the new rule is "fair for everybody."

He only wishes the change had come sooner because First Federal has a "strong impact on the entire market." When they take themselves out of the market, they take buyers and sellers right with them," he said.

Turmoil over North Ridge Subdivision may be near end

By STEVE LATHROP
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY.—Two years of turmoil generated by the North Ridge Subdivision may soon end.

Members of the Hailey City Council and planning and zoning commission have indicated they are ready to conclude a battle which has spanned three lawsuits, an annexation, a de-annexation, and a recall election.

Reviewing a revised plan earlier this week for the previously proposed development—on Hailey's north border, city officials offered only minor objections.

Ketchum attorney Edward Lawson presented the new plan to the council Thursday. Lawson explained that he represents a group of California developers who plan to purchase the property but who wish to remain anonymous. He asked city officials to consider re-annexing North Ridge to Hailey. If they found his group's development plan adequate.

Called North Ridge Meadows, Lawson's plan calls for a subdivision of 204 lots, sharply down from earlier proposals. The lots would be of two sizes, including about 150 lots of 12,000 square feet and 54 lots of 1 acre. Gone from the Lawson plan was the proposed commercial zone which had sparked opposition to the earlier proposal of a Boise group headed by Jess Groves.

Comments offered by city officials at Thursday's meeting included: A suggestion that some of the steeps be straightened to facilitate snow removal; a request that the developer provide a connection with Hailey's street system at Third Avenue; to provide better fire protection; concern that the development would hasten the day that Hailey's northern sewerage collection lines will reach capacity; and concern that some ponds shown on the plat might present a safety hazard.

None of the city officials offered objections to the new plan as a whole. Robert Ward of the planning and zoning commission said, "My only complaint about the original North Ridge was the high density, and this is not high density."

Lawson told city officials that his group has entered into a contract with the previous developers to buy the North Ridge land if Hailey approves the new development plans. After the meeting Lawson said, "I don't really see any more difficulty. . . I think we're going to end up buying the property."

Lawson said that the terms of the agreement between his clients and the Grove developers contemplate that

Groves will agree to the dismissal of all the lawsuits generated by the previous subdivision efforts. These suits include: A suit by Blaine County prosecutor Keith Roark to overturn the previous annexation on the grounds that it violated the Idaho Open Meetings Act, and the Local Planning Act. A similar suit by the board of Blaine County commissioners and an action by Roark to prevent the issuance of building permits once the development plan is approved. All development plans at North Ridge hinge on annexation to Hailey, because the applicable Blaine County zoning would require much lower densities than the developers

The Groves group initially succeeded in having North Ridge annexed. A subsequent election changed the composition of city government, with anti-North Ridge candidates claiming a council majority.

North Ridge was de-annexed in an agreement between Groves and the council following the success of Roark's action to block building permits. Pro-North Ridge Hailey residents succeeded in forcing a recall election. Councilman Wordell Rainey, who opposed annexation, but in the balloting Rainey received a larger total than he had in the general election.

County awards bids for building project

TWIN FALLS.—Fenton Construction Co. and Ullman Construction Co. Inc., both of Twin Falls, emerged as the apparent low bidders Friday for a Twin Falls County building project.

Bid awards on a project to dismantle an existing county shop building and replace it with a metal structure will be announced Thursday, County Commissioner Marvin Hempelman said.

Fenton was the low bidder for the contract to dismantle the existing building. A second bid for $1,400 was submitted by D.A. Heider of Twin Falls.

Ullman submitted a low bid of $25,871 for the construction project.

Other bids for the metal-building construction project were: J.A. Clawson Construction Co. Inc. of Twin Falls, $34,650; H.O. Bowen Co. Inc. of Twin Falls, $28,237; Vern Schutte and Sons Frameless Steel Buildings of Twin Falls, $26,186; Steel Systems of Idaho Falls Inc., $38,466; and Perc Petersen and Sons Construction of Twin Falls, $27,179.

Gas prices begin deregulated climb today

1-3 cent hike seen in valley

TWIN FALLS.—The first major impact of oil deregulation will begin to reach the Magic Valley today.

Some dealers raised prices one to three cents a gallon after deregulation was announced Wednesday, but many others did not raise prices. The prevailing low price around Twin Falls Saturday was $1.23.9 for a gallon of regular—the same price most of those stations were charging at the beginning of the week.

Several dealers who did not raise prices in response to deregulation said they plan to start today. An assistant manager at Mr. Gas in Twin Falls said prices there will go up about four cents a gallon today. Another dealer said he'll raise his prices today because his costs have gone up six cents a gallon since deregulation was announced.

Howard Otter, who operates a Husky station in Twin Falls and is also a wholesale distributor for other stations, said he'll probably have to pass on increased costs from his supplier beginning Monday.

But he added that competition is keeping prices from climbing even faster. Harlan Fillmore, president of the Gem State Oil Co. in Twin Falls, said he increased his prices one cent per gallon in the wake of deregulation and he looks for a big increase sometime this week. "But there's always the guy down the street who's going to try to sell for a penny or two less," Fillmore said. Since gas supplies are relatively plentiful, other dealers have to match the low prices or sell less gas.

"I'm quite sure it's going to be a depressed market for awhile," Fillmore said.

Mel Pingle, operator of Ponderosa Conoco in Burley, said he has raised his prices three cents a gallon since deregulation, but he is still about three cents below what he needs for "a near possible living."

Rep. Hansen lists academy nominations

WASHINGTON — Eleven Magic Valley students have been nominated by Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, to compete for vacancies at the nation's service academies.

The 11 are among 27 nominated by Hansen who will compete for three positions at the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., and two vacancies at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y.

Hansen also named additional candidates for competition at the Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N.Y.

Local candidates are Mark Alan Summers of Gooding, who has been nominated for both naval and military academies; Kip A. Brower of Halley, nominated for naval, military and merchant marine academies; James Michael Stenger, Gregory Lawrence Balch, and Kris D. Oliver, all of Twin Falls and all nominated for naval and military academies; Michael Allen Gradwohl of Heyburn, naval; Madison Stuart Powell of Mountain Home, naval and military; Daniel Brian Shurf of Glenn Ferry, naval and military; Ken Alan Meininger of Rupert, naval and military; William A. Rice of Burley, naval and military; and Paul Wayne Whitecar of Rupert, naval, military and merchant marine.

Hansen said the nominations were based on individual academic records, ACT or SAT test scores, high school extra-curricular activities, physical condition, citizenship and personal recommendations.

Final appointments will be made by academy officials later this spring with classes to begin in the summer.

State School clinic helps to identify exact nature of a student's disability

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

GOODING — A new evaluation program for the blind, deaf or multi-handicapped may re-orient "mis-directed" education programs involving disabled students.

At least that's the hope of administrators at the State School for the Deaf and Blind in Gooding.

"Some public school people and parents have never seen a blind or deaf kid before and are overwhelmed by the disability," explained Director of Support Services Richard Fee. "They may refer the kid to us, requesting long-term placement here, when in reality the child is better off at home, attending a public school."

To help public schools throughout Idaho evaluate handicapped students and develop appropriate education programs, the state school initiated a Comprehensive Evaluation Clinic last week.

The goal of the program is to identify a child's specific problems and suggest methods of overcoming these handicaps interfering with the student's learning.

"It's a service we can provide because we already have all the specialists," Fee explained.

During trials of the new program, several evaluations revealed some surprises for local educators, according to clinic supervisor Henry Widmer.

For example, Widmer discussed a Hurley girl, Susan, who was evaluated at the Gooding state school last fall.

Now 12 years old, Susan had been struggling along for several years in a slow-learner program. Although she had a hearing disability, she rarely wore her hearing aid.

Finally in desperation, her school counselors referred her to the State School for long-range placement.

"I evaluated her for two days and it was discovered that she actually had only a mild-to-moderate hearing loss, but she was trying to function without a hearing aid," recalled clinic supervisor Henry Widmer.

"However, other problems had occurred over the years that complicated the situation," he continued.

"Her problem wasn't a lack of mental functioning, as the school officials believed, but one of not hearing well enough to follow her classes," Widmer said. "She was socially conscious of the hearing aid, a serious problem for most students in junior and senior high since it makes them stand out, and she refused to wear it."

Following Susan's evaluation in Gooding, Widmer met with Susan's special education counselors to explain his findings.

Gooding County zoning ordinance set, hearing March 3

By JANENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — Gooding County has completed its proposed zoning ordinance.

Planning and Zoning Commission Chairman Robert Bolte said the ordinance was finished at a commission meeting Wednesday night and delivered to the printer Thursday.

A public hearing is scheduled March 3 at the Gooding County Courthouse.

At that hearing, Gooding County citizens can tell the planning commission their views on the proposed ordinance and offer suggestions before the ordinance is adopted by the county commissioners.

In the proposed ordinance, the largest portion of Gooding County will be zoned agricultural. This was mandated in the county's comprehensive land-use plan, adopted in 1975, which calls for the protection of agricultural resources.

Included in the comprehensive plan are provisions for the protection of lakes and streams from residential encroachment.

Bolte said, "Gooding County has a limited amount of valuable agricultural land and the zoning ordinance is designed to protect it as much as possible."

Agricultural is the most restrictive zone. Land in this area can only be used for agricultural operations, including farming, feedlots, dairies and fish farms.

No parcel of land can be divided more than four times if it falls within an agricultural zone because more than four divisions constitute subdividing, Bolte said. The four-division stipulation is in agreement with existing subdivision ordinances and state regulations. Because of septic tank regulations, no single parcel of agricultural land can be smaller than one acre.

Bolte also said that no new subdivision can be constructed within a half mile of an agricultural zone.

Residential zones include the existing towns of Gooding, Hagerman, Wendell, and Bliss, and within designated areas of city impact. Before the proposed zoning ordinance was drawn up, state law required each community in the county to zone for an area of impact.

Bolte noted there is a small area around the Gooding golf course that is also zoned residential. While the course is outside Gooding's area of impact, there are a "number of homes," he said.

City impact areas are determined by city planning commissions and vary with each city. Gooding's impact area varies in width between one-half and one mile outside city limits. Wendell's impact area is a mile in each direction from city limits. The Hagerman impact area is a mile wide and two miles long, running north and south along the city limits, while Bliss' area of impact runs east and west in a similar fashion.

The impact zone is an area affected by city ordinances and businesses, and where the land use in turn affects city residents, Bolte said, and decisions concerning the impact areas are made jointly between city and county officials because the land lies outside city limits. The county has control over zoning and the land use issue, but the city has the right to help with the decisions and to veto actions of the county.

Existing subdivisions are also zoned residential in the proposed ordinance. Within subdivisions, individual parcels of land can't be smaller than one acre if septic tanks and drain fields are used. If a collective sewer system is used, smaller parcels are allowable.

Bolte said agricultural pursuits can be carried on within residential zones. "If a homeowner wants to raise a garden or run a few sheep, calves, or a horse or two, there are no restrictions," he said.

The cities have subdivision ordinances governing agricultural nuisances that must also be considered by landowners.

Bolte added there now are no restrictions on raising fish within residential areas.

However, operations termed commercial by the commission cannot be carried on within a residential zone or within one-half mile of a high-density residential zone. Commercial operations include feedlots with more than 500 cows and dairy operations of more than 100 cows.

Three areas in the county are zoned light industrial. The area around Tuttle which has a post manufacturing operation, and agricultural storage units, an area around Blincoe's Magic Valley Packing Co. near Gooding, and the area on the Snake River near Hagerman where fish processing is done. Hatcheries are zoned agricultural, while fish processing activities are considered industrial.

The Hagerman Valley Citizens' Alert Group questioned the commission about the possibility of zoning fish hatcheries commercial at the Wednesday meeting. The group is concerned about a hatchery proposed by Troutco Inc. on Billingsley Creek and had previously requested the area be zoned residential. The planning commission retained its original decision to zone hatcheries agricultural.

Program

Susan was placed in a learning disability program at the public school and counseling was started to reinforce a positive attitude about her hearing aid.

"We were really pleased with the results," Widmer said. "It was also a good opportunity for us to be of service to a small school district without the resources for proper evaluation."

However, not all students evaluated at the state school are referred back to public schools. In fact, more are kept for special education at the school.

"It all depends on how severe their handicaps are," Widmer said.

The Comprehensive Evaluation Clinic is divided into three stages.

A one-day screening is usually used on first-time referrals from school districts. The child, parents and school counselor can all stay overnight at the state school prior to the evaluation.

"The program is entirely free, and by the end of the day's evaluation we meet in a Child Evaluation Meeting, as required by federal law, and outline the findings," Widmer said.

"If placement here at the school is suggested, and the child qualifies by age and handicap, we'll start a 30-day interim placement program," Widmer explained. "During this time we do a very comprehensive evaluation, using all the data, to take a fresh look at the student to see if he may still be better served at a public school."

A third part of the new program involves education evaluation tests conducted by Widmer.

"This is to determine specific problem areas," Widmer said. "This can be done here at the state school or at a regional level at local school districts."

All three levels of evaluation include studies of education achievement, speech skills, audiological responses and a complete social history gathered from parents and school counselors.

Tests are conducted measuring intelligence, hearing, sight and motor reflexes.

Specialists at the school test the children using existing equipment. The evaluation techniques aren't new, but the organization of a complete program is, Widmer stressed.

"We have one student right now, a seven-year-old boy from Ripley, that's going through a three-week comprehensive evaluation," Widmer said.

"Even though his long-range placement is in the public school, his handicap requires more evaluation before we can suggest the best programs and assistance to help him benefit from the school," Widmer said.

"Because his school district doesn't have the resources to do this by themselves, we can provide them the expertise."

SHOSHONE — The first assistant prosecutor was hired in Lincoln County this week.

Former county prosecutor Jack Murphy will serve as Prosecutor Douglas Rose's assistant during 1981 for a salary of $11 per year.

"The reason I decided to use an assistant prosecutor is that there are times when I'm unavailable, like beginning Feb. 11, when I'll be at a prosecutors' conference for four days," Rose said Friday.

"There are other problems, such as when an emergency arises and I'm committed to some other duty such as something — from — my — private practice," Rose explained.

Having only one county attorney has created some confusion in past years, according to Rose.

"For example, just before I was elected, there was an auto theft that also involved some ski equipment," Rose said. "Jack was in Boise on a federal case. Since it was a felony, the city police needed information immediately to handle it so they had to call me."

Although Rose is Murphy's law partner, he was only serving as county treasurer at the time.

Murphy — agrees with Rose's assessment of the county's problem. According to Murphy, state law requires the prosecutor's office to render immediate advice in emergency arrest situations, a service never fully performed in Lincoln County.

"I've authorized Jack to do anything I do, but he won't really handle major decision-making, just emergency things that come up," Rose said. "Since Jack was the previous prosecutor, he's well qualified for the job."

Murphy will also be available for advising the Lincoln County Commissioners on legal actions or questions of procedure.

Rose said having an assistant prosecutor will also help police in handling civil complaints.

"We have a lot of domestic battles," Rose explained. "Say a wife and husband are in the midst of a divorce. The husband arrives at home drunk and an argument follows. Before the police can go in, they usually call for advice on their legal alternatives."

In addition to Murphy's $11 salary, he will be allowed to participate in the county's low-rate group insurance plan. However, Murphy will be required to pay for the policy himself.

Yellow is favorite

HOLYOKE, Mass. (UPI) — Sixty percent of the legal pads sold in the United States last year were canary-colored, according to the American Pad and Paper Co., one of the leading manufacturers of office supplies. The company says psychologists tell them a preference for the color yellow is often a sign of an orderly and consistent mind.

CSI victors in important region clash

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News sports writer

TWIN FALLS — "We've got to get a driver's license because we're in the driver's seat now."

Coach David Campbell and his College of Southern Idaho Golden Eagles, turning to a control game with 8:43 left, outlasted the tall and talented North Idaho Cardinals 72-64 to take the lead in the race for a regional playoff spot.

The Eagles, swooping inside on the delt shooting of Michael Ingram and George Scott and picking up some outside bombs from Frank Baines, never trailed in the contest. However, they won it at the foul line, hitting 18 of 27 while North Idaho was two-for-two at the stripe.

But a big difference probably was CSI's ability to get the ball inside consistently against the taller Cardinals. And in the first half, CSI picked up 10 points on follow shots although at the end North Idaho held a slight rebounding edge.

CSI's regional route now is more clearly defined. This victory, coupled with the one-point decision at Ricks, makes the Eagles 2-0 and the Eagles are favored to win at Treasure Valley Tuesday night.

"If we can win two from Treasure Valley and get past Ricks on the return game here, it will make the last game up there (North Idaho) history," Campbell said. "I think with the victory tonight we put ourselves in a pretty good position to get into regionals — maybe not the host designation — but a spot in the tournament."

"Listen," the coach said. "We will have to play extremely well to beat North Idaho up there and beating Ricks down here is no easy task. I'm not counting on a lot yet because a lot of things can happen in this regional thing. The one thing we have to hope for is that Ricks and North Idaho split home and home and we can win our next three regional games. I like our position right now but it is far from settled."

"I didn't realize the free throws were that lopsided," he said. "But I thought we were more effective in taking the ball inside and that's where the fouls occur. I felt North Idaho played more a perimeter game — and they shot the heck out of it from there — but you don't get many fouls shooting from 20."

The coach said CSI's ability to control the ball in a corners offense from 8:43 was the key factor. North Idaho, after falling behind by nine in the second half, hit a spurt that pulled it to within 48-47. CSI worked for its points as Ingram got inside for a crumple and Baines and Mark Owen hit free throws while North Idaho replied with a bucket from Gordon Dixon, who staged a spectacular outside shooting shot and wound up with 24 points.

With the score at 52-49, CSI worked the ball for 2:03 before shaking Baines loose for a crumple. From then on CSI nursed the lead upward slowly but surely and had a 10-point advantage going into the final 1:12.

"We had to go into the slow offense at that point," Campbell said. "They had hit a spurt and we couldn't stop them in the zone or stop them in the man. They've got a lot of good players. They're seven deep or maybe deeper. And that (Charles) Meriwether is a thoroughbred."

Coach Rolfe Williams summed up his feelings in the game with about 85 seconds remaining when Warren Shepherd got inside for a crumple and CSI was whistled for a blocking foul.

Yes, Williams yelled sarcastically, clapping his hands. "A foul, a foul."

Williams was particularly upset in the early going when his 6-11 center, Greg Wiltjer, picked up his third foul with about 11 minutes left. He didn't play in the rest of the half.

But despite the adversity, North Idaho showed the ability expected. Dixon's perimeter shooting was nearly flawless, particularly in the second half. The Cardinals ended up with a 36-33 rebounding edge.

In the early going it was Baines that shot CSI into the lead by hitting the first five points. From then on it was largely Ingram and Scott working the inside for a succession as finger pills and close-in buckets.

The Eagles burst into a 19-10 lead before Meriwether hit a slam dunk and Dixon followed with a long shot and then a fast break bucket. North Idaho closed to within three before Ingram, Scott and Owen took the Eagles back into a 27-20 advantage. In the closing 90 seconds, Dixon hit twice and Shepherd added another field goal that made it 30-28 at intermission.

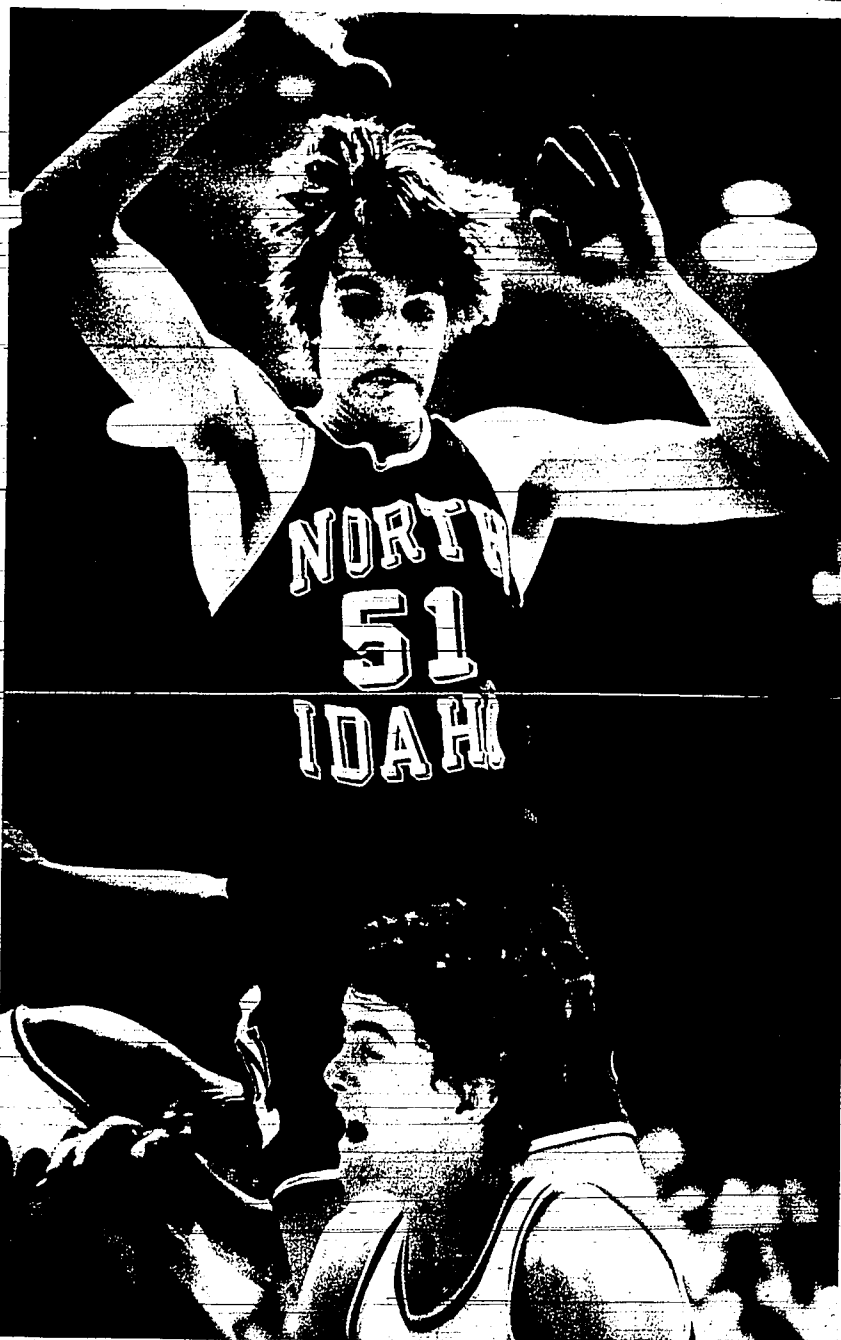

The teams traded field goals in the second half before CSI opened up a little breathing room. Ingram hit twice and Baines started warming up from side court to make it 40-32.

The Eagles held six to eight-point advantages until Ingram created that flurry at 48-40. Dixon replied with a jumper, Cal Kane hit a three-point play and Willie Taylor scored on a fast break to make it 48-47. After that CSI brought out the corners game.

Bees sneak past Twin Falls, 70-64

IDAHO FALLS — Wes Kiesel hit a three-point play to blunt a late Twin Falls rally and host the Bonneville Bees to a 70-64 victory Saturday night. Kiesel came up with the play after Twin Falls had sliced a nine-point deficit to 57-56. Kiesel got behind the Burin press for a close-in shot and added the free throw while the Bruins were whistled for a blocking foul. After that the Bruins couldn't get closer than four.

It was a consistent game in that Bonneville opened up a four-point lead at the end of the first quarter and that basically was the total game. Bonneville's biggest lead was nine points and Twin Falls never did get ahead. "We were just flat from last night," said Coach John Astorquia, referring to a victory over the Minico Spartans. "We just seemed to be a half step off tempo all night."

"Those three technicals didn't help," he said of violations called against Gary Krumm, Lars Hovey and Scott Beer. "But they were ridiculous calls. I couldn't fault the kids. The last one was the classic. Beer was reporting in; the horn sounded and he stepped on the floor. Instead of waving him in, (Bob) Martin hit him with a T-bone for now waving. We had a lot of ridiculous calls tonight."

"The whole difference in the game was, that little bit of being out of tempo. We shot darned good from the field and pretty well at the foul line. We got hurt on the offensive boards when we let them put the second shot back up but that was part of being that half-step out of sync."

"Overall I felt we played well enough to win. I know we shot well enough to win. It just wasn't our night to win," he said.

The Bruins ran some scoring relays at the Bees. Clay Meacham hit six in the first quarter and Hovey took over with 10 second-quarter points to keep it close. Hovey kept going in the third but the Bruin cause was hurt when he came down on the side of a player's foot and twisted his ankle. That came with 5:16 left in the game when he was at 19 points.

After Hovey left, Meacham started hitting again, getting eight points. Hovey came back to test the ankle and picked up two free throws late in the game. Astorquia said the senior would be physically fit for Tuesday night's home encounter against Burley.

Twin Falls' defense woes all came inside where the Bruins couldn't handle Kiesel or Mark Ovard. They combined for 29 points, a lot of them on follow shots. Meacham and Hovey split 20 for the Bruins.

Bonneville started stretching for the lead when Scott Widdison closed the third quarter with a bucket and Ovard started the fourth with another. Twin Falls' steadied momentarily on buckets by Hovey and Beer but then Ovard and Kiesel hit from the foul line. Sargent crested the Bonneville lead at 57-48.

Meacham, Joe Shelby and Bill Atkinson then pulled Twin Falls to within three and Meacham scored a crumple off a Beer steal. It was then Kiesel came up with his tide-turning three-point play.

Twin Falls sophomores won the opener 55-51.

Bruin girls overcome delay; defeat Burley

BURLEY — Burley High tried the slowdown on Twin Falls Saturday night, but the Bruins folted the plan with some timely steals for a 36-21 win in the Fourth District A-1 Girls Basketball Tournament.

The Bobcats got the early lead on the visiting Bruins and held a 7-3 margin after one period.

Coach Mac Mills kept his Bobcats in a three-point or four-pointers offense in an effort to keep the lead and look for the good shot. The Bruins countered with some one-on-one pressure defense and came up with 10 points in the second period for a 13-9 lead at halftime.

"Minico tried a little of the slowdown on us the other night, but it didn't work because we had the lead," Twin Falls skipper Kathy Anderson said. "Tonight they (Burley) held it for awhile but we got some steals and got ahead."

Lisa Krahn led the Bruins with 10 points while Cass Herbst was top on the boards with six. Krishna Carpenter led Burley with six points and Becky Ralphs notched five. Penny Pribble had seven rebounds for the Bobcats.

The Bruins are in a commanding position in the tourney. Minico faces Burley at Minico Monday night and the loser is ousted. The winner advances to play at Twin Falls Wednesday if the Bruins win 14.

Girls District Tournament

that one, they are on their way to state for the second straight season. If not, they will have a second chance to win since they've not lost yet in the double elimination event.

The Twin Falls junior varsity lost to Burley Saturday night and will play Monday at Minico.

Blanda inducted into Hall of Fame

NEW YORK (UPI) — George Blanda, who defied "Father Time" longer than any other man in the history of the National Football League, was voted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame Saturday together with two of the toughest Vince Lombardi's Green Bay Packers and a hero of the game's stone age.

A veteran of 26 seasons in the NFL when he retired at the age of 43 in 1976, Blanda and the three other new dlectees — center Jim Ringo and defensive end Willie Davis of Lombardi's Packers and quarterback Badger, former end with three NFL teams over eight seasons in the 1920s and 1930s — will be inducted into the shrine in Canton, Ohio, Aug. 1.

That is also the day of the annual AFC-FC Hall of Fame game that marks the beginning of each NFL season. This year's game pits the Cleveland Browns against the Atlanta Falcons.

A 12th-round draft choice from Kentucky, Blanda was a quarterback-kicker for the Chicago Bears, Houston Oilers and Oakland Raiders from 1949 through 1975. He threw more than 4,000 passes, was the league leader (with 2,002 points) and had the longest career in pro history and retired at the oldest age. He was, in fact, older than his coaches when he retired.

Network television audiences probably remember him best for a five-game string in 1970 during which his kicking or passing won four games and tied a fifth in the final seconds for the Raiders.

Ringo and Davis were typical stars of the great Lombardi teams which won the first two Super Bowls ever played.

Briefly in sports

Legion accepting coach applications

TWIN FALLS—The American Legion Post No. 7 in Twin Falls is now accepting applications for the baseball program for the summer of 1981.

Applications should include a resume of past baseball experience and other qualifications in regard to coaching a program of this type. All applications will be considered by the baseball committee of Post No. 7.

Mail applications to Jim O'Connor, 251 Taylor St., Twin Falls. O'Connor can be reached at home for more information at 733-5468. The 1981 season will begin early in June.

Wilson, Hale win state hoop shoot

CALDWELL—Kyle Wilson of Buhi and Stephanie Hale of Oakley each won the state Elks Club Hoop Shoot competition in Caldwell Saturday.

Wilson, competing in the 12-year-old division, hit 23 of 25 free throws to beat out several other youngsters his age for the top honor. Hale, competing in the 8-9 year old division, canned 12 free throws to also take top honors.

Both Wilson and Hale will go to Portland Feb. 20 to compete in the national shoot-off.

Others placing were Russon Hale, 10-years-old from Oakley hit 18 of 25 for second place. Gooding's Lisa Graves, 12-13, was also second in her age bracket. She hit 16 of 25.

Idaho softball commissioner honored

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (UPI) — Red Halpern, Idaho State Softball Commissioner since 1959, has been named to the National Softball Hall of Honor.

The hall of honor, located in the National Softball Hall of Fame and Museum in Oklahoma City, recognizes outstanding contributions to the game by non-players. Halpern's selection was announced last week.

The 56-year-old Halpern has been director of the Coeur D'Alene Recreation and Parks Department since 1954.

Chandler defends WBA bantam title

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Unbeaten Jeff Chandler, pursuing his opponent relentlessly for 10 rounds and then holding on at the end, successfully defended the WBA bantamweight crown Saturday with a unanimous 15-round decision over former champion Jorge Lujan.

Chandler, fighting before a partisan crowd in his hometown, carried the fight to Lujan in building an early lead on points before the Panamanian challenger rallied.

But Lujan's comeback left short. Judge Angel Luis Guzman scored the fight 146-142. Judge Samuel Contreras had it 146-142, and referee Roberto Ramirez scored it 146-142, all for Chandler.

There were no knockdowns in the fight.

Payton, Griese NFL's highest paid

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Chicago Bear running back Walter Payton was the highest-paid player in the NFL in 1980, drawing $475,000, while Miami Dolphins quarterback Bob Griese was second with $400,000, a published report says.

The Pittsburgh Press, in a copyright story in its Sunday editions, salary survey conducted by the NFL Management Council.

The Press said the salaries were determined by scrutinizing the survey, which divides salaries into positions and years of experience. The survey includes high and low salary figures plus the average and median salary in each category. Performance bonuses, pre-season and per diem are not included.

Raiders' move unlikely for a while

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — The attorney for the Oakland Coliseum Commission says that the Super Bowl champion Raiders will likely stay in Oakland through the 1981 season and possibly even longer.

"There are some 15 key legal issues involved in this case," said Coliseum attorney Edwin Healey Jr. "In fact, the case involves the stability of the NFL."

He predicted that the appeal would take three years, "so you don't have to go to law school to see that the Raiders will be playing in Oakland in 1981."

General manager Al Davis wants to shift the franchise to Los Angeles even though a majority of NFL owners oppose the move. Davis wants the courts to overturn the rule which grants the owners the right to block such a shift, and is suing the NFL.

Silver Tree duo set record; miss cash

TWIN FALLS — A record of sorts was set in Silver Tree's weekly roping competition Saturday but it didn't make any money.

Bruce Seal of Rupert and Ben Stevens of Gooding roped their first two head in 14:24, the fastest recorded at the arena, but then missed the pay window by missing their third steer.

Featured event

1. Jerry Kendall, Paul, and Val Christensen; 2. Lowell Black, Hammett, and Kendall; 3. Bill Bennett, Jerome, and Christensen; 4. Ron Kael, Twin Falls, and Turner; 5. Bob A. Robinson, Bliss, and Christensen; 6. Eric Kaset, Twin Falls, and Bob Tyler, Rupert.

Mandlikova, Navratilova hit finals

CHICAGO (UPI) — Top-seeded Martina Navratilova defeated third-seeded Wendy Turnbull in straight sets Saturday night to advance to the finals of the $200,000 Chicago Women's Tennis Championships.

Navratilova, the three-time defending champion, defeated Turnbull, 6-3, 7-5, in a match that lasted about 90 minutes. Navratilova will face second-seeded Hana Mandlikova, who defeated Barbara Potter, 6-4, 6-2, in the semifinal match Saturday afternoon.

Navratilova, seeking her second consecutive women's tour championship this year, was not as dominating as she had been in her previous three matches. But she was able to combine effective play at the net with a successful lob to eliminate Turnbull.

Fibak, Tanner to collide today

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Poland's Wojtek Fibak, riding the tide of his quarterfinal upset of Jimmy Connors, defeated 14th seeded Yannick Noah, 3-6, 6-3, 6-2, Saturday night to earn the finals of the $250,000 U.S. Pro Indoor Tennis Championships.

The eighth-seeded Fibak will meet seventh-seeded Roscoe Tanner, a 7-6, 3-6, 3-6, 6-4 winner over 17-year-old Thierry Tulasne of France in a semifinal match Saturday afternoon. First prize of $45,000 goes to Sunday's winner.

The 28-year-old Fibak, who downed the top-seeded Connors Friday night to break a streak of 20 consecutive winning matches by Connors, was in command against the speedy 6-foot-4 Noah of France after losing the last three games to drop the first set.

Utah, Chambers defeat BYU

Sunday, February 1, 1981 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho E-3

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Tom Chambers scored a game-high 22 points, including six of Utah's final 10, in leading the eighth-ranked Utes to a narrow 65-56 win over 16th-ranked Brigham Young Saturday night in a Western Athletic Conference game.

The win gave Utah, now 6-0 in the WAC, a two-game lead at the halfway mark in the league standings. Chambers hit a foul shot with 1:50 to go and followed with a slam dunk 20 seconds later, giving the Utes the lead for good.

LSU 92, Florida 75

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — The fourth-ranked Louisiana State Tigers grabbed a five-point halftime lead and went on to beat the Florida Gators 92-75 in a Southeastern Conference game Saturday.

The Gators tied the score at 53-53 after forward Tim Strawbridge went in for a layup and hit a foul shot with 16:14 left in the game. LSU then took the lead 55-53 with 15:40 left to go when guard Ethan Martin hit a 15-foot jump shot.

Wake Forest 83, Marquette 60

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI) — The inside-outside tandem of guard Frank Johnson and center Jim Johnstone scored 19 and 18 points respectively Saturday night to pace sixth-ranked Wake Forest to an 83-60 romp over Marquette.

Guard Mike Helms and forward Alvis Rogers added 13 points apiece for the Deacons, who upped their record to 15-2. Glenn Rivers scored 14 points to lead Marquette, 13-6, while Terrell Schlundt added 13 points and Lee Oliver scored 10.

Notre Dame 94, South Carolina 84

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Senior forward Kelly Tripucka scored 26 points and Notre Dame used hot shooting from the field to post a 94-84 victory Saturday night over South Carolina.

Tracy Jackson and John Paxson each added 20 points for the Irish, who improved their mark to 14-3 by winning their sixth straight game and 10th straight at home.

South Carolina, 12-8, was led by Zam Frederick's 34 points.

Tennessee 62, Alabama 58

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Sophomore forward Dale Ellis scored 17 points and Junior guard Gary Carter added 13 Saturday night to enable 15th-ranked Tennessee to post a 62-58 victory over Southeastern Conference rival Alabama.

Tennessee went ahead for good with a bucket by 6-foot-7 senior forward Howard Wood with 4:54 remaining to give the vols a 51-50 lead in a game that had been tied six times in the second half.

Missouri 66, Colorado 58

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — Sophomores Steve Stipanovich and Jon Sundvold combined for 37 points to give Missouri a 66-58 Big Eight victory Saturday night over Colorado.

Stipanovich scored 19 and Sundvold 18 to help Missouri run its record to 10-2 at home this season in beating Colorado for the eighth straight time in Columbia. The Tigers are 15-5 overall and 4-2 in the conference.

The game was tied four times in the second half, before JoJo Hunter hit a baseline jumper with 7:33 remaining to give Colorado a 52-51 lead. But Missouri ran off six straight points, getting two apiece from Marvin McCarty, Curtis Berry and Shawn Teague, to take the lead for good at 57-52.

Craig Austin scored 15 points and Joe Cooper 11 to pace Colorado, which fell to 12-6 overall and 2-4 in the Big Eight.

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI) —

Jon Cook has been plunging along this year waiting for something good to happen to him.

Saturday, it did, but he had a lot to do with it, shooting a six-under-par 66 at Cypress Point to grab the first round lead in the rain-delayed Bing Crosby National Pro-Am by a stroke.

"That's the most solid round I've shot this year," said the former All-America from Ohio State who six years ago won the California State Amateur title while playing at Cypress and Pebble Beach.

Cook, now 23 and in his second year on the PGA Tour, missed only two fairways and two greens while shooting 34-32 as a crowd of more than 25,000 poured over Cypress, Pebble and Spyglass Hill on a brilliant sunshine-filled day, the first of its kind on the Monterey Peninsula in more than a week.

Cook, who is rooming with Gary Hallberg at Bobby Clampett's home this week, had six birdies and no bogeys as players were allowed to lift, clean and place because of extremely wet and muddy conditions.

"I didn't realize we were playing winter rules until someone told me," said Cook, who broke in on the Tour last year by winning more than $43,000.

Like Clampett, the California Amateur champion last year, and Hallberg, Cook is looking for his first Tour victory.

One of four players only a shot behind Cook is Clampett. The others are Tom Watson, who is making his 1981 debut this week, Greg Powers and Ben Crenshaw. All those at 67 with the exception of Clampett, played Cypress Point, which is regarded as the easiest of the three Crosby courses.

As expected, most of the day's best scores were turned in at Cypress, also a seaside course, but not quite as long or demanding as Pebble. Gil Morgan and Jerry Pate shot 66s at Spyglass Hill, the third course used in the tournament, and Watson, making his 1981 debut this week, said as far as he was concerned those two were the leaders.

"Spyglass Hill has eaten my lunch too many times," said Watson, "and that's the course that worries me. A 69 under there these wet conditions is a very fine score. I hope I do as well."

Watson, Player of the Year the last four years, plays Spyglass Hill on Monday, the concluding day of this shortened tournament, which through the years has been plagued by weather but never has lost its appeal or glamour.

Tom Kille shot a 68 at Pebble to trail by two shots while Leonard Thompson, Jack Renner, Larry Ziegler, Doug Sanders and David Graham, winner last week of the Phoenix Open, were others who shot 69s. Thompson and Sanders, at Cypress, Graham, Spyglass, and Renner and Ziegler at Pebble.

Jack Nicklaus, who started out at Cypress, led a big group at 71 and considering the circumstances — he had a huge gallery in his wake because former president Gerald Ford was his amateur partner — he was satisfied.

Boise State 57, Nevada-Reno 55

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — Junior forward Eric Bailey drilled a 20-foot jump shot at time ran out, giving Boise State a 57-55 Big Sky Conference victory over Nevada-Reno Saturday night.

Bailey and senior center Larry McKinney each scored 18 points in bringing Boise State from behind and allowing the Broncos to win two games in a row for the first time all season.

Reno guard James "BB" Fontenot had given the Wolf Pack a 55-55 tie with the Broncos with 55 seconds left, but the Broncos were able to control the ball to set up Bailey's winning shot.

Wyoming 69, Air Force 45

LARAMIE, Wyo. (UPI) — Bill Garnett had 19 points and Charles Bradley added another 15 Saturday night to give the Wyoming Cowboys a runaway 69-45 victory over outmanned Air Force in Western Athletic Conference action.

The Cowboys started cold but quickly broke a 9-4 logjam by outscoring the Falcons 13-4 for nine minutes in the first half. Wyoming, which shot 52 percent from the field compared to 39 percent for the Falcons, came back in the second half to completely dominate the game.

San Jose State 82, Utah State 71

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Doug Murray scored 15 of his 19 points in the second half in leading San Jose State to an 82-71 win over Utah State Saturday night, keeping the Spartans' Pacific Coast Athletic Association record perfect at 6-0.

Sid Williams added 16 points for San Jose State; Chris McNeely 13 and Mike Mendez 12. Mendez scored 10 of his points in the second half, all on free throws as the Spartans outscored USU 30-15 on foul shots.

Hawaii 56, New Mexico 55

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Racky Sessler scored on a driving layup with 19 seconds remaining to give Hawaii a 56-55 victory over New Mexico Saturday in a Western Athletic Conference game.

The victory boosted Hawaii's overall record to 10-7 and pushed the Rainbows to 3-4 in the conference, a half game ahead of the Lobos; who are 8-9 and 3-5.

Hawaii, which was led by Tony Webster with 19 points, held a 29-26 margin at the half and built to a 12-point lead at 47-35 with 12 minutes left after the intermission.

Arizona State 84, Stanford 66

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Byron Scott scored 19 points and Lafayette Lever added 17 Saturday night to help Arizona State crush Stanford 84-66 in a Pacific Conference game.

Scott, a 6-foot-5 sophomore, scored 15 points in the second half when the Sun Devils turned a close game into a rout. Arizona State led 34-26 at the half but went ahead by 20 points midway in the second half.

UTEP 81, San Diego State 66

EL PASO, Texas (UPI) — Rochern Amie scored 24 points and grabbed 10 rebounds to lead the University of Texas-El Paso to an 81-66 Western Athletic Conference win over San Diego State Saturday night.

The UTEP Miners never trailed although San Diego State tied it up four times in the early stages of the game.

of the game. The 15-point spread at the final buzzer was the largest margin of the night.

Idaho State 61, Weber State 60

PUCAITELLO (UPI) — Byron Williams hit a 10-foot jumper with two seconds left to lead Idaho State to a 61-60 Big Sky basketball win over Weber State Saturday night.

The Bengals had trailed 60-57 with 45 seconds left after Wildcat center Steve Condie hit one of two free throws. Then Williams hit a 20-footer to cut the deficit to one, and Weber guard Richard Escandon was called for an offensive foul with 19 seconds left to set up Williams' final basket.

Montana State 71, Montana 82

BOZEMAN, Mont. (UPI) — Montana State's 74 percent shooting from the field in the second half enabled the Bobcats to beat Montana 71-54 Saturday night.

Montana State never trailed, leading by as much as 10 points during the first half and 19 in the second. Montana, which trailed by only five points at the end of the first half, shot just 30 percent from the field during the second half.

Four Bobcats scored in double figures with Bill Kreiger picking up 17, Harry Heineken and Doug Haskley each 16 and Jon MacIn 10. Reserve Mark Glassed led the Grizzlies with 15.

Montana's leading scorer, Craig Zanon, was held to just six points before fouling out with one minute left in the game.

Montana State moved to 6-1 in the Big Sky Conference. Montana dropped to 5-2. Montana State improved to 11-8 overall and the Grizzlies dropped to 12-7.

Idaho 72, Northern Arizona 61

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — Brian Kellerman scored 23 points Saturday night to lead the University of Idaho to a 72-61 Big Sky Conference win over Northern Arizona University and give the Vandals their 18th win in 21 games.

Idaho stood at 7-1 in the Big Sky after the win, while NAU slipped to 1-6 in conference play and 7-11 overall.

The game was never really in doubt as the Vandals grabbed an early lead and hung on for a 36-28 advantage at the intermission. In the second half, the Vandals led by as many as 17 points on three different occasions.

NAU outbounded the Vandals 32-27, but Idaho shot better from the field, completing 55 percent of its shots to NAU's 41 percent.

Arizona 73, California 71

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Robby Dosty and Ron Davis combined for 45 points Saturday night in lifting the Arizona Wildcats to a 73-71 Pacific-10 Conference win over the California Bears.

Arizona took a four-point lead, 71-67, with 36 seconds to go and held on for the win.

Dosty scored 23 points and Davis 22. The leading scorer for the Bears was Mark McManama with 22.

The Wildcats improved their league mark to 8-5 and overall record to 9-9, while the Bears dropped to 2-6 and 10-7.

Washington 81, Washington St. 70

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI) — Andre Griffin scored 25 points and teammate Bob Frank added 19 to power hot-shooting University of Washington to an 81-70 Pac-10 Conference win over cross-state rival Washington State Saturday.

The win boosted the Huskies to 4-5 in the Pac-10 and 10-8 overall, while WSU slipped to 2-7 in conference play and 9-9 overall.

The Huskies shot a blistering 60.4 percent from the field, while WSU managed to complete only 41 percent of its shots.

Former All-America leads Crosby

"I didn't realize we were playing winter rules until someone told me," said Cook, who broke in on the Tour last year by winning more than $43,000.

Like Clampett, the California Amateur champion last year, and Hallberg, Cook is looking for his first Tour victory.

One of four players only a shot behind Cook is Clampett. The others are Tom Watson, who is making his 1981 debut this week, Greg Powers and Ben Crenshaw. All those at 67 with the exception of Clampett, played Cypress Point, which is regarded as the easiest of the three Crosby courses.

As expected, most of the day's best scores were turned in at Cypress, also a seaside course, but not quite as long or demanding as Pebble. Gil Morgan and Jerry Pate shot 66s at Spyglass Hill, the third course used in the tournament, and Watson, making his 1981 debut this week, said as far as he was concerned those two were the leaders.

"Spyglass Hill has eaten my lunch too many times," said Watson, "and that's the course that worries me. A 69 under there these wet conditions is a very fine score. I hope I do as well."

Watson, Player of the Year the last four years, plays Spyglass Hill on Monday, the concluding day of this shortened tournament, which through the years has been plagued by weather but never has lost its appeal or glamour.

Tom Kille shot a 68 at Pebble to trail by two shots while Leonard Thompson, Jack Renner, Larry Ziegler, Doug Sanders and David Graham, winner last week of the Phoenix Open, were others who shot 69s. Thompson and Sanders, at Cypress, Graham, Spyglass, and Renner and Ziegler at Pebble.

Jack Nicklaus, who started out at Cypress, led a big group at 71 and considering the circumstances — he had a huge gallery in his wake because former president Gerald Ford was his amateur partner — he was satisfied.

Johnny Miller, who opened the year by winning the Tucson Open, was in a group at 70 along with Mike Reid, Mark Pfeil, Larry Nelson, Mike Morley, Hale Irwin, Bud Allin, Andy Ben and Jack Frazee.

Cook was a surprised as he could be at his score. Like Clampett, he credited the groundskeepers for getting Cypress in shape to be played. Cook was a rookie on the PGA Tour last year and won more than $43,000, which placed him 78th on the money list.

Watson hasn't played a competitive round of golf since mid-November. He started his year with a bogey but didn't make another one the rest of the round.

On the famed 16th water hole at Cypress, Tom almost had an ace with an iron-iron.

"I got so excited over that shot," he said, "I almost forgot what to do."

His drive over the water landed short of the hole and almost rolled in.

NFL's top 80 show skills in Pro Bowl today

HONOLULU (UPI) — Sam Rutigliano of the Cleveland Browns and Atlanta's Stan Bennett have dispensed with the 35 and 0s for today's Pro Bowl game.

The reason for that is simple, according to the men who will coach the best players from the NFL's two conferences.

"This is really an easy coaching assignment," said the AFC's Rutigliano. "What you do in a game like this is just let the players have an opportunity to express their skills."

Bennett, who will head the NFC squad, said, "The players are quick to pick it up. They are the best. With these guys, all you really have to do is roll the ball onto the field and let 'em play."

Eighty of the top players, chosen by coaches and players in the NFL, will participate in the 10th match-up between the two conferences.

Despite the week-long looseness, Bennett said during preparation the players' competitiveness showed through.

"It's a very low-key game when it comes to preparation, but it's not going to be so low key once it starts," he said.

"It's very definitely a game our players want to win. Pride is an amazing thing. The difference in money ($5,000 to each player on the winning team, $2,500 to each on the losing team) is a factor, but the will to win is even stronger."

Both coaches also look on the game as an educational experience.

"We have an opportunity to coach the very best players in the game — the prototype linemen, linebackers, backs," said Rutigliano. "It gives us an insight as to what we want to have on our own club to reach our ultimate goal, which, of course, is the Super Bowl."

"From a scouting standpoint, we get the chance to see first-hand why guys like Mike Haynes and Lester Hayes and 'JJ' (John Jefferson) are the best in the business at what they do."

Bennett agreed. "You have the chance to see the other athletes in your conference face-to-face in practice-type situations," he said. "A lot of times when you look at films you get a false impression of an athlete. But in a situation like this, you get to know him a little better and understand what makes him a great player. Then you use that in trying to teach some of your own people what it'll take for them to become all-stars someday, too."

As both coaches said, the NFL's cream of the crop will be on hand for the 2:03 p.m. (MST) kickoff at 50,000-seat Aloha Stadium.

San Diego and Los Angeles led the placement parade with eight players each.

The Chargers list five starters — receivers Jefferson and Kellen Winslow and defensive linemen Fred Dean, Gary Johnson and Louie Kelcher. Quarterback Dan Fouts, the man who triggered the Chargers' offense, and the third man in the receiver corps, Charlie Joiner, and guard Doug Wilkerson round out the San Diego group.

The Los Angeles starters include defense backs Nolan Cromwell and Pat Thomas and offensive linemen Rich Saul and Kent Hill.

In addition to the San Diego receiver corps which led the conference, the AFC roster includes Cleveland quarterback Brian Sipe, the leading passer, the top three rubbers in Earl Campbell of Houston, Joe Gibbs of Buffalo and Cleveland's Mike Pruitt and the league's top pass defender, Oakland's Lester Hayes.

For the NFC, the list includes the top four rushers in Walter Payton of Chicago, Otis Anderson of St. Louis, Billy Andrews of Atlanta and Billy Sims of Detroit. The Falcons' Steve Bartkowski will start at quarterback ahead of the conference's leading passer Ron Jaworski of Philadelphia.

Johnson lifts Oregon St. past USC

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI) — Center Steve Johnson scored 25 points and grabbed 12 rebounds Saturday to lead No. 1-ranked Oregon State to a 55-48 victory over Southern California.

Johnson, who fouled out with 40 seconds left, was 11-of-17 from the field as he continues his quest for the national field goal shooting record. He has a field goal shooting average of .773.

North Carolina 57, North Carolina State 54

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — North Carolina's Al Wood hit both ends of a one-and-one situation with five seconds to go Saturday, lifting the 11th-ranked Tar Heels to a 57-54 triumph over North Carolina State.

Wood, who led all scorers with 17 points, went to the free-throw line after North Carolina State's Scott Parzych missed a free throw that would have tied the game at 55-55. With everyone in a packed Reynolds Coliseum screaming, Wood hit both shots.

Virginia 68, Duke 47

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (UPI) — Jeff Lamp scored 20 points, 14 in the second half, and Lee Raker added 18 Saturday as second-ranked Virginia beat Duke 68-47 in an Atlantic Coast Conference contest.

The Cavaliers, 18-0 overall and 8-0 in the ACC, stretched their two-year victory streak to 23 straight, breaking the school's previous record of 22 consecutive triumphs set in 1914-16. The current streak is the longest of any major college team in the nation.

Kentucky 71, Georgia 68 (2ot)

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI) — Kentucky's Chuck Verderber hit two free throws with one second left in double overtime Saturday to give the fifth-ranked Wildcats a 71-68 come-from-behind Southeastern Conference win over the Georgia Bulldogs.

Jim Master, who had 16 points for the day, sank two free throws to give Kentucky a three-point lead at 68-66 with only 18 seconds left in the second overtime remaining.

Nebraska 57, Kansas 54

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Ray Collins sank two free throws with 16 seconds left Saturday to give Nebraska a 57-54 upset victory in a Big Eight Conference basketball game.

Andre Smith led the Huskers with 15 points. Jack Moore added 13 and Mike Williams had 10. Darnell Valentine and Art Houser scored 13 apiece for Kansas, and Tony Guy chipped in 12.

Louisville 92, Virginia Tech 70

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Louisville climbed over the .500 mark for the first time this season with a 92-70 win Saturday over Metro Conference foe Virginia Tech behind Jerry Eaves, who poured in a career-high 25 points.

The 64 junior guard got scoring support from substitute Scooter McCray, a 6-9 sophomore forward who tossed in 19. Derrick Smith with 12 and Scooter's brother Rodney McCray with 11.

Georgetown 69, Nevada-Las Vegas 68

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Eric Las and Mike Frater each hit a pair of free throws in the final three seconds Saturday to lift Georgetown to a 69-68 victory over the University of Nevada-Las Vegas.

After UNLV had taken a 66-65 lead with 42 seconds left on a 20-foot jumper by Larry Anderson, the Hoyas played for the final shot. Floyd missed a short baseline jumper, but Smith grabbed the rebound and drew a foul with three seconds left.

Illinois 79, Iowa 66

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — Guard Craig Tucker scored a game-high 20 points Saturday to lead the University of Illinois to a 79-66 victory over 12th-ranked Iowa.

Illinois and Iowa have 53 conference records and are 13-4 overall. Derek Harper was the second-leading scorer for the Illini with 17 points. He was followed by teammate Eddie Johnson with 14 and guard Harry Range with 12.
