

$50 billion

The black book details planned cuts for all but the military

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration has sent to Capitol Hill a "black book" proposing budget cuts of up to $50 billion.

It takes the Reagan budget ax to almost every activity in which the federal government is involved — except the military, UPI learned Friday.

Some programs, such as the Urban Development Action Grants for distressed inner city areas, would be eliminated. Others, such as the National Endowments for the Arts and Humanities, would be cut drastically.

Opponents to this change would make emotional appeals about the vulnerable people being excluded from benefits, such as the disabled, widows, mothers and dependent children," the document said in discussing proposed big cuts in disability insurance.

United Press International obtained access to the three-ring loose-leaf notebook prepared by the Office of Management and Budget and sent to selected members of Congress. It has become known as the "black book," both because it is bound in black and because of its contents.

Here is a list of some projected cuts:

- Medicaid: Costs, up 15 percent annually during the last five years, would be trimmed $1 billion in fiscal 1982.
- Disability Insurance: An estimated 584,000 persons who are not disabled are receiving insurance through errors. "Megacaps" would be put in place so benefits do not exceed workers' prior, after-tax income. "Tighter reciprocity" work tests would require workers to have been employed more recently than five years ago in order to get benefits.
- Social Security student aid: The program, which provides benefits to 800,000 students, would be terminated for a saving of $700 million.

- Minimum Social Security benefits: The minimum of $122 a month would be eliminated as "undesirable windfalls."
- Because Supplemental Security Income (SSI) would be increased by the amount Social Security benefits were reduced, eliminating the minimum benefit would not affect truly needy recipients," OMB said.
- Of the 3 million minimum beneficiaries, less than half would lose a single dollar if the minimum benefits were eliminated," it said.
- Unemployment insurance Extended Benefits: The national trigger activating 13 weeks of additional benefits would be eliminated, lowering the average monthly benefit from $145 to $85 and saving $1 billion in 1982.

Study group urges massive H&W cuts

BOISE (UPI) — A multitude of Health and Welfare Department programs would be chopped, employees eliminated and the Idaho State School and Hospital turned over to a private company if lawmakers adopt recommendations presented by the Citizens Advisory Volunteer Effort committee.

During a presentation to the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee Friday, the citizens' group — called CAVE — appointed by House Speaker Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls, recommended a plethora of actions to curtail the agency's spending.

CAVE committee Chairman Rep. Jack Kennevik, R-Boise, told the committee, "the bottom line is millions of dollars in savings."

Health and Welfare Director Milt Klein following the presentation endorsed some proposals, questioned others and said still others deserved further study before they were implemented.

"Some of these things are things we've been trying to do for a long time," Klein said. "We've even asked the Legislature for some of them, but the committee has recommended..."

"If you (lawmakers) cut the budget, these things will happen. But what has to happen first is that some of the responsibility put on the department has to be removed."

The group also urged lawmakers to lease out the Mampa facility for the mentally retarded for operation by a private company. That action would cut the institution's $1.6 million budget by about 35 percent, they said, while also providing additional yearly revenue of $432,000 from the lease.

Other proposals included:

- Merge the state's seven regional Health and Welfare offices with the seven local Public Health Districts for an annual saving of about $464,800.
- "Eliminate immediately" the position of Regional Health Program Manager in each of Health and Welfare's seven regional offices for a yearly savings of about $257,000.

- Cut 55 jobs in the agency's Boise-based departments for a spending reduction of $600,000 to $300,000 and cut headquarters personnel by another 10 percent for an estimated $1.25 million savings a year.
- Recruit volunteers to help the department reduce its 10 percent error rate in screening applications for food stamps and Aid to Dependent Children benefits. The federal government could eliminate about $2.7 in matching funds if the error rate is not reduced to 4 percent.
- Eliminate state regulations that impose requirements in excess of state law unless "compelling reasons" are presented to keep the more strict rules for Idaho.
- Amend state personnel regulations so that employees may be laid off.

To decide on budget cuts HEW panel asks for time

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

BOISE — With a long list of threatened programs facing them, Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee members say they need more time before making recommendations.

The committee was asked to take stands on such issues as kindergarten funding, the future of Lewis-Clark State College and welfare programs, and to inform the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee of those decisions.

Chairman Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, said he was to take those recommendations to JFAC Monday.

But, in a 2½-hour session Friday, his committee discussed only a few issues and made no move toward a decision.

"I hope you will tell the joint committee that we need several more days before we can make any informed decisions," Sen. Vernon Lannen, D-Pinehurst, told Barker.

After the meeting, Barker said he would try to take votes the first of the week.

"We just ran out of time. It was nobody's fault. It's easy to say we should have gone ahead, but we've worked as long as they have," he said of JFAC.

He said he will report that his committee is on the verge of making its recommendations.

Barker outlined a dozen proposals Friday to save costs in education, health and welfare that he plans to put before the committee.

Committee members seemed to agree that higher education and the public schools should be given about the same increase in funding and that local school property taxes should be equalized.

But Barker received criticism for his proposal that the committee agree to a one-year reduction in kindergarten funding on the condition property taxes are equalized.

Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, said the resulting $18 million statewide property tax increase should be phased in over a period of years to avoid refueling the "1-percent psychology."

Democratic committee members said the decision on what to do with their state funds should be left to local schools.

"This is an excuse to make the appropriation less than we would like," Sen. Norma Dobler, D-Moscow, commented.

Barker defended his proposal as "the art of compromise."

Report says states do poor job administering public lands

DENVER (UPI) — Western states do a poor job of managing their own public land and could be expected to do the same kind of job if the Sagebrush Rebellion succeeds, says a study by a non-profit group.

The study, by the Public Lands Institute, said state agencies responsible for managing public lands are badly understaffed. It also said the state lands generally are off-limits to citizens for recreational use.

"Some of the state land departments — Colorado is only one example — are so short-handed that the situation (takeover of federal lands) would be laughable, were it not really so bad," said Charles Callison, institute president.

The report, done by Michigan State University graduate student William C. Parke, surveyed land agencies and policies in 11 western states — Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Nevada, Idaho, Washington, Oregon and California.

Most of these states have been leaders in the Sagebrush Rebellion, a movement to gain state control of federal lands in the West.

Callison said the study was done to see how states could be expected to manage the federal lands if the movement succeeded.

Based on what the states do now to administer their own public lands, Callison said, it would be expected that the federal lands "would be grossly neglected, and public values would be sacrificed, which is already the case with state-owned lands."

Nearly all of the state land agencies are grossly understaffed and often are unable to adequately supervise the land, the report said. Two of the worst staffed agencies are Utah and Colorado, it said.

The Colorado Board of Land Commissioners, which manages 2.96 million acres, has a staff of 29. The Utah Division of State Lands has a staff of 47 to oversee 3.63 million acres.

Arizona's land agency, with 9.5 million acres to manage, has 97 employees and Montana has 65 staffers to supervise 5.1 million acres.

Montana's field appraisers are able to visit state-owned grazing land once in the term of a 10-year lease, while Colorado's appraisers manage to get around every five years, the report said.

"The New Mexico land commissioner, the study said, depends chiefly on the persons leasing the land to tell him how much grazing pressure the land can sustain."

Two states that have the largest land management staffs are Washington and Idaho. Washington's Department of Natural Resources has 1,100 employees and Idaho has 233 land management employees.

"Most state land departments are required by law to manage the trust lands for the highest possible monetary yield," the study said. "This, of course, is the basic reason why public use of the lands for recreation or other non-monetary purposes gets only secondary consideration if it is not ruled out altogether."

Arizona, Utah and Wyoming keep trust lands open for hunting and fishing, but Arizona and Wyoming don't allow other recreational uses, Washington has a multiple-use law allowing recreation and Montana has a multiple-use law that has never been used.

New Mexico, the study said, does not allow any recreational use on its lands. Lessees in Colorado, Montana and Arizona have the right to post and close lands, although Arizona says the land must stay open for hunting.

Invited to Washington, D.C. Monday Stivers to discuss state-federal relations with Reagan

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

BOISE — State Rep. T.W. Tom Stivers will take part in a meeting with President Ronald Reagan at the White House Monday to discuss federal-state relations.

Stivers will travel to Washington, D.C., in his capacity as chairman of the American Legislative Exchange Council for a two-hour meeting Monday afternoon between the president and representatives of national organizations.

"I am pleased and quite thrilled, of course," Stivers said Friday, after receiving a telephone call from the White House.

He said he will be the only Idahoan at the meeting of up to 40 people. He said the five issues to be discussed with Reagan are:

- Federal ownership of lands in the West and the impact on energy and state revenues.
- Federal government mandates in education and decentralization of the educational system.
- Decentralization of health, welfare and social services.
- Federal revenue sharing and block grants.

Enterprise zones and urban renewal.

"I've been working with President Reagan for 16 years," Stivers said.

He said he expects Reagan to take prompt action toward dealing with the issues following the meeting. "That's the way this guy works. On Thursday morning, he may push a button and, bang."

Stivers said he plans to take the following positions on the five issues of discussion:

- He said he has no problem supporting the Sagebrush Rebellion. "I think we can mollify the fears of people in the East" — that the states would sell the public lands to private interests. However, he called ridiculous the idea that some public lands should not be developed. He asserted the states can do a better job than the federal government in managing public lands because they are "closer to the people."

- He agrees with Reagan's campaign pledge to abolish the Department of Education and that it "puts control too far away from the classroom and parents." He said local control has to be restored.
- He believes social services should be decentralized in the nation and Idaho. "We're talking about getting rid of... welfare employees who are trying to control programs all over this state."

- Although he does not approve of federal revenue sharing, Stivers said it should be phased out over a few years. Otherwise cities and counties that have come to depend on the money would suffer. He said revenue sharing is a "scatter-gun approach" that has led to "massive waste" and that block grants for specific purposes should be used.
- The government should give tax incentives to businesses and industries to move into blighted urban areas that would be designated enterprise zones. Urban renewal has not helped generate new business, Stivers said.

Remaining Beatles to reunite

PLYMOUTH, Montserrat (UPI) — Police beefed up security on the tiny Caribbean island of Montserrat Friday for fear that "a deranged foreigner" would try to kill one of the three surviving Beatles reportedly reuniting to record a tribute to the late John Lennon. Thursday Jackson, manager of International Air Studios where the record supposedly will be cut, denied the reports.

But several reliable sources at the studio said the denial was for security reasons. They said the reunion might be staged as early as this month.

"George Harrison and Ringo Starr will definitely arrive here shortly," said one source at the studio, owned by the Beatles' former producer George Martin.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, announced Friday he is scheduled to appear Sunday on NBC's Meet the Press.

McClure, who chairs the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, will be interviewed on the subjects of energy and the economy. The program will air at 10:30 a.m. MST.

Penthouse sales skyrocket

ROANOKE, Va. (UPI) — The Rev. Jerry Falwell's campaign to keep Penthouse magazine off the newsstands will help make the March issue one of the all-time best sellers, sales officials said Friday.

"It's moving extremely well, particularly in the Middle America areas where the following is strong for Falwell," said Bob Castardi, newsstand sales director for Penthouse.

Castardi said the March issue, in which an interview with Falwell is featured between photographs of naked women and an article on pimps, will "certainly" be one of the top 10 best sellers in the history of the magazine.

"It's the first instance where we can pinpoint a boom in sales to a particular story in the magazine," Castardi said. "We'd like nothing more than to have every faithful follower of Mr. Falwell become a Penthouse subscriber."

MIAMI (UPI) — Three young blacks were found guilty Friday night of murdering three white motorists during last May's Liberty City riots. The decision sparked outraged cries of "white justice" and vows to retaliate. Lightsey's verdict was announced first and brought loud screams from his mother, who had to be carried out of the courtroom by a police officer. Lightsey looked at his mother and broke down crying, putting his head on the defense table as the rest of the verdicts were read. Moore grabbed his head and wept as his acquittal was read. The Capers brothers closed their eyes. Judge Mario Goderich set sentencing for March 17. Lightsey faces a maximum penalty of life in prison and the Capers brothers face up to 15 years in prison on each count. The four were accused of being part of the mob that dragged Benny Higdon, 21, Robert Owens and Charles Baraca; both 15, from their wrecked car last May 17 and beat them to death with fists, sticks and chunks of concrete. The attack came on the first night of the riots, shortly after an all-white jury in Tampa acquitted four white, former Dade County policemen of the beating murder of black insurance salesman Arthur McDuffie in Miami. The riots went on for three days, and 18 people were killed. Several hours after the verdict, however, police reported it was quiet in Miami's black neighborhoods. The state did not seek the death penalty against any of the defendants. But it plans to ask the death penalty for another suspect, Nathaniel Lane, 18, who is to be tried separately.

Defense rests in diet doc trial

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (UPI) — The defense rested Friday in the murder trial of James Harris, the accused killer of his former lover, Dr. Herman Tarnower.

Prosecutors were expected to begin their rebuttal next week with testimony from "other women" in the "Scarsdale Diet" author's life.

Lynne Tryloros, Tarnower's office assistant whose relationship with him allegedly led Mrs. Harris to kill the doctor in the laboratory, was expected to testify for the first time in the lengthy trial when the prosecution opened its case Monday.

Mrs. Tryloros' lawyer, Roger Sirin of Mamaroneck, said Friday his client decided to testify because she wanted "a forum to clear her name" of charges made about her by Mrs. Harris.

Defense attorney Joel Aronow, who began his presentation Dec. 23, called 58 witnesses and submitted more than 140 exhibits in his defense of Mrs. Harris. Friday was the 58th day of her trial.

Telephone loans would be increased from 2 to 5 percent and loans for power supply systems would be eliminated. Farmers Home Administration: Direct lending would be reduced by 25 percent across the board. Tennessee Valley Authority: The Phillips Bend, Yellow Creek and possibly Hartsville A2 nuclear plants would be deferred. Space Agency: Its funds would be cut by $629 million in 1982. The Venus orbiter radar and Gamma Ray missions would be deferred and the Numerical Aerodynamic Simulator and the Galileo mission to Jupiter would be cancelled. National Science Foundation: Major reductions in behavior, social and economic science research would save $241 million. Environmental Protection Agency: There would be no grants for new starts in waste treatment in 1982. Department of Housing and Urban Development: Urban Development Action Grants for inner cities would be eliminated to save $610 million in 1982.

Trade Adjustment Assistance: Persons whose unemployment is caused by imports would get benefits only after they exhausted regular unemployment insurance and the combined benefits would be limited to 73 weeks for a saving of $1 billion.

Food Stamps: They would be cut $1.5 billion in 1982 and participation lowered by 2 million to 3 million persons. Allowments to families with children would be reduced to take into consideration free school meals, benefits would be reduced 35 cents rather than 30 cents for every dollar earned and the cost of household income rather than net income "would improve low-income targeting."

Aid to Dependent Children: Changes would be made in the treatment of family income. Benefits also would be based on the income of step-parents and absent parents would not be able to collect income tax refunds unless their child support payments were current. Comprehensive Employment and Training Act: Subsidies would be eliminated for regular jobs in the public sector.

Strong opposition to this reduction can be expected from minority groups since virtually all public-sector employment participants are disadvantaged and almost half are minorities," OMB said.

Child Nutrition: The base subsidy of 18 cents a meal in school lunch and breakfast programs would be cut to 9 cents. Frozen snacks in the child care and summer meal programs would be eliminated at a saving of $5 million through 1985 and the meal subsidy for private schools would be eliminated.

National Endowments for the Arts and Humanities: Their budgets of $159 million and $151 million would be cut in half.

Corporation for Public Broadcasting: Its budget of $43 million could be cut by 25 percent.

Legislative action forces ADC cuts

MACK NEIBAUR
key Medicaid vote

BOISE (UPI) — Lawmakers refused to rescue the Aid to Dependent Children program from insolvency Friday.

Engelen said, noting that Health and Welfare Director Hill Klein must order cuts in the ADC benefits by Monday to keep the program solvent. "I have to sign the order to reduce benefits on Monday so they can go into effect March 1," Klein said following the committee vote. "At this point, I intend to do that."

at reasonable levels. The March 1 cut will reduce those benefits by about $40, he said, to 50 percent of the subsistence level — down from the current level of 58 percent.

"In my opinion, ADC is a higher priority than Medicaid," Klein said. "I will encourage legislators to take money out of Medicaid and give it to ADC. I can't do it alone, or I would. It needs legislative action."

The committee voted 11-9 to remove $3.8 million from the Water Pollution Control Account to fund the Medicaid program through June 30 with Rep. Mack Neibaur, R-Paul, changing his vote to swing the decision.

If the appropriations measure does not clear the full Legislature, however, Medicaid funds will run out on April 1.

In another 11-9 vote, the committee turned down the agency's request for additional ADC money from the Water Pollution fund.

In addition, the committee voted 16-4 to deny a request to boost payments to foster parents by 25 percent for the remainder of this fiscal year.

Protests to the appropriations generally focused on opposition to "raiding" the Water Pollution Control fund, which contains about $23 million earmarked for cities and counties to use in funding improvements to water and sewer plants.

Rep. William Lytle, R-Pinehurst, said money from that account already has been promised to cities and counties and any action to remove the funds would leave local governments in the lurch. In addition, he said, so much money already is earmarked for local governments that only $4 million is available for lawmakers to borrow.

"We already took about $1.4 million out yesterday for the Corrections Department and now we're talking about another $3.8 million for Medicaid," Lytle said. "That means we're already in the hole."

"What we're doing is funding an on-going program (Medicaid) out of a limited account," said Rep. Dan Emery, R-Boise. "I don't know where this is going to stop, but something has to give."

Briefly

2% hotel tax bill goes to floor

BOISE (UPI) — An Idaho Travel and Convention Industry Committee — to be funded through a statewide 2 percent hotel tax — would be created under a bill sent to the House floor today by the House Revenue and Taxation Committee.

The bill was given a "do pass" tag on a 9-6 vote after sponsors said it would revive Idaho's sagging tourism industry.

Barbara Gwartney of the Idaho Innkeepers Association said Idaho was far behind its Western sister states in tourism promotion, and the state's economy has suffered accordingly.

Rep. John Sessions, R-Driggs, bill sponsor, said revenue from the 2-cent-per-dollar hotel and motel tax would be funneled into a special account for distribution to the tourism committee and to non-profit organizations in six regions of Idaho.

Sun Valley-area resort operators protested against the bill, saying tacking the 2 percent state hotel tax onto the Sun Valley-Ketchum resort area's 5 percent hotel tax and Idaho's 3 percent sales tax would drive away business.

Thaw on 3-year-old 1% freeze is urged

BOISE — Representatives of Idaho's 44 county governments asked a key legislative subcommittee Friday to begin thawing the freeze on local government property tax revenues.

Bill Staker, Canyon County clerk, asked a subcommittee of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee to consider a proposal which he said would ultimately implement the 1 percent. He added his proposal would provide additional tax dollars to local taxing districts to deal with growth and inflation, while allowing districts taxing more than 1 percent time to reach that rate through rising property values.

Staker's proposal has the support of the Idaho Association of Counties.

The proposal did not take bill form and no formal committee action was taken. Committee Chairman Steve Antone, R-Rupert, recommended county officials meet with representatives of the state Department of Education to draft a joint proposal.

Tom Vopal, finance officer with the department, told the committee his department planned to review the proposal before taking a position on it. Easing the freeze on the amount of property tax revenues local governments can receive has been given a top priority by the Association of Idaho cities and IAC. This marks the third consecutive year cities and counties have been forced to operate with frozen general fund budgets.

Coupled with double-digit inflation, the freeze has led to cutbacks in the level of services provided by local governments as well as layoffs in the number of local government employees.

Local officials say some services may be threatened or eliminated altogether if the freeze is continued for another year.

"We're hearing all this talk about the state government (facing spending cutbacks) and they haven't had their budgets locked down for the past three years," said AIC executive director Marty Petersen, adding the spending power of the dollar has slipped roughly 30 percent in the past three years.

The 1980 Legislature provided for some additional dollars for local governments to compensate for additional costs due to growth. The Legislature provided for a maximum 4 percent increase in property tax revenues, providing taxing districts were taxing below 1 percent of market value.

That restriction narrowed the number of entities who were eligible to receive the funds. State Tax Commission Research Project Coordinator Alan Dornfest estimated the measure brought $1 million additional dollars to all Idaho taxing districts, roughly 1 percent of the $204 million in property taxes collected in 1980.

Staker said his proposal seeks to satisfy the demands of taxpayers for tax reduction while providing local government with enough money to retain viable programs. He said the measure would also:

- Prohibit taxing districts from setting levies that would result in "tax windfall" because of its position within a particular tax code area.

- Provide a formula for estimating growth factors that would be simple for legislators and local officials to understand and administrate.

While his proposal deals only with a theoretical maximum levy for counties, Staker said any measure implementing the 1 percent must be acceptable to the Legislature, State Tax Commission, AIC, IAC and school associations.

Staker said his proposal would establish a maximum county general fund levy of 26 of 1 percent. That figure is equal to the average of the general fund property tax levies charged by the 44 counties multiplied by 130 percent.

Staker said all but eight Idaho counties are taxing below that rate.

Taxing districts taxing below the maximum levies would be eligible for a full growth allowance. Taxing districts below the maximum levy but contained in a tax code area which levies above 1 percent would be entitled to 50 percent of the growth allowance.

Taxing districts over the 1 percent would not receive an allowance. But those districts would not be subject to a funding reduction as would be the case if the 1 percent, as drafter, were implemented.

In order to implement the program, the Legislature would have to repeal a section of the 1 percent which limits tax increase for growth to no more than 2 percent, Staker said.

One member of the subcommittee, Rep. Darwin Young, R-Blackfoot, said he supports the concept of growth allowances for local government. But he said he is exploring another proposal made by Pocatello City Manager Chuck Moss, which would call for the Legislature to project annual inflation rates.

Young said Staker's proposal "looks a little bit complicated to me and I've got another formula that looks simpler."

Oil, gas severance tax bill printed

BOISE (UPI) — A proposed 2 percent wellhead tax on oil and natural gas was whisked to printing today by the Idaho House Revenue and Taxation Committee.

The measure, rejected by the committee for "minor" amendments Thursday, was approved for introduction today on a voice vote.

Rep. Robert Geddes, R-Malad, co-sponsor of the bill, said the original version was changed to tighten up methods under which the state Tax Commission would enforce collection of the severance tax.

He said the updated bill included provisions to allow the commission to place a lien on a driller's property until the tax was paid and bring collection procedures into conformity with state income-tax-collection regulations.

Since no oil or natural gas has been discovered in Idaho, the bill — if passed by the Legislature and signed by the governor — would have no immediate effect.

Barlow's 65 mph bill is shelved

BOISE (UPI) — An Idaho legislator's plan to raise the state's highway speed limit to 65 mph has been shelved due to concerns about potential conflict with federal law.

A House committee chairman said Rep. Rusty Barlow, R-Pocatello, will submit another bill also designed to hike the standard, but the second proposal wouldn't take effect until the federal government changed its own speed law.

When the committee introduced Barlow's original measure last month, state Transportation Department officials warned the federal government would be required by its own laws to withhold federal highway funds.

The department also said raising the speed limit would increase wear on Idaho's highways.

Tax refund bill highlights Legislative action

BOISE (UPI) — A $22 million state income-tax refund bill was introduced today by the Idaho House Revenue and Taxation Committee.

Rep. Lyman Winchester, R-Kuna, told the panel the proposed 10 percent rebate from the state's estimated $220 million income tax collection for 1981 would stimulate the economy.

The committee's Democrats and one Republican opposed the measure, saying it would put the state's general fund in further jeopardy, adding to the current fiscal crunch caused by a revenue shortfall.

"We need to get the economy moving again," Winchester said, adding that his bill was "in keeping with a proposal by President Reagan to cut federal income taxes by 10 percent."

Rep. Harold Reid, D-Craigmont, noting the Legislature's $422.2 million state general fund revenue projection for fiscal year 1981 would require very tight budgeting, said addition of Winchester's measure would seriously impair the state's spending ability.

"You can argue that two ways," the Kuna Republican responded. He contended the $22 million added to the state's economy would generate tax revenue in other areas.

After Rep. Dwight Horsch, D-Aberdeen, said he believed the tax rebate would force the Legislature to slash public school funding, the committee sent the bill to printing on a split voice vote.

Later, one committee member who voted in favor of the bill's introduction said there was a possibility it could backfire in the manner described by Reid and Horsch.

"The principle is sound," said Rep. Joseph Walker, R-Moscow. But he said it was risky for the state to change its income tax without similar, prior action on the federal level.

"The House State Affairs Committee agreed to kill rather than cripple a bill designed to lump state government data-processing services under a new division of the state Administration Department.

— Idaho Panhandle inhabitants won't hear any state election results until the polls close throughout Idaho, a two-time-zone state, said a bill approved by the House State Affairs Committee.

Representatives passed 57-8 and sent to the Senate a bill designed to close an estimated $500,000 annual loophole in collection of liquor-licensing fees.

•The Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee approved spending about $400,000 to boost security at the Idaho State Penitentiary.

•A Senate committee shied away from deciding whether a long list of threatened state programs should get reduced funding.

•A half-dozen mothers of young children dropped off signature petitions to House lawmakers, urging them not to slash kindergarten funding.

Law would require drug poison label

BOISE — A mandatory drug-labeling bill that would aid treatment of poison victims was introduced Thursday by the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee.

Committee Chairman John Barker, R-Buhl, said the bill would require drugs to be labeled with a code that doctors and paramedics could report to regional poison control centers in cases of poisoning.

The centers — two are in Boise and Spokane — would then respond with the correct treatment within seconds compared to much longer times now, he said.

If passed, the law would not take effect until Jan. 1, 1983, and Barker said the committee would hear testimony on the bill.

Bill would end farm electrical inspection need

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. Dan Emery, R-Boise, swayed the House Agricultural Affairs Committee Friday to introduce his bill to exempt farms from state electrical inspections.

"We don't need electrical inspections on farms or ranches, including farm houses," Emery said. "This is just to cut the nuisance, cut big brother government."

QUESTION...

Can you give me a simple explanation of the attitude of the Catholic Church toward such customs following death as — autopsies — the presence of flowers at a funeral — the reason for consecrating a certain section of the cemetery?

ANSWER...

It would be presumptive of us to answer these questions ourselves. In search for answers, however, we found these and other church laws and attitudes detailed in a book, "What Every Family Should Know About Funerals" written by Father Gerard Breitenbach, C.S.S.R. The Church has no opposition to eulogies — flowers are a traditional expression of sympathy — cemetery property is consecrated because the body which has been the temple of the Holy Spirit during life should be laid to rest with reverence in a place hallowed by the blessing of the Church.

Remaining Beatles to reunite

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (UPI) — Police beefed up security on the tiny Caribbean island of Montserrat Friday for fear that a "deranged foreigner" would try to kill one of the three surviving Beatles reportedly reuniting to record a tribute to the late John Lennon. Thursley Jackson, manager of International Air Studios where the record supposedly will be cut, denied the reports. But several reliable sources at the studio said the denial was for security reasons. They said the reunion might be staged as early as this month. "George Harrison and Ringo Starr will definitely arrive here shortly," said one source at the studio, owned by the Beatles' former producer George Martin.

McClure to appear on TV

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, announced Friday he is scheduled to appear Sunday on NBC's Meet the Press. McClure, who chairman of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, will be interviewed on the subjects of energy and the economy. The program will air at 10:30 a.m. MST.

Penthouse sales skyrocket

ROANOKE, Va. (UPI) — The Rev. Jerry Falwell's campaign to keep Penthouse magazine off the newsstands will help make the March issue one of the all-time best sellers, a sales official said Friday. "It's moving extremely well, particularly in the Middle America areas where the following is strong for Falwell," said Bob Castardi, newsstand sales director for Penthouse. Castardi said the March issue, in which an interview with Falwell is featured between photographs of naked women and an article on pimps, will "certainly" be one of the top 10 best sellers in the history of the magazine.

Falwell's first instance where we can pinpoint a boom in sales to a particular story in the magazine," Castardi said. "We'd like nothing more than to have every faithful follower of Mr. Falwell become a Penthouse subscriber."

By United Press International
The occupied U.S. Embassy compound in Tehran, a central symbol in the 44-day hostages crisis, will be turned over to the families of those who died in the Islamic revolution and the war with Iraq, the official Pars news agency reported Friday. The transfer is to take place Wednesday, the second anniversary of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's rise to power and Pars said the 80-year-old revolutionary leader will make a speech to formalize it. The news agency said the transfer showed "the victory of blood over the sword."

Father held on kidnapping

METairie, La. (UPI) — Sheriff's deputies Friday arrested the father of a 17-month-old girl kidnapped three days ago and later released unharmed. They charged that he staged the abduction, possibly as a publicity stunt. Ron Hocum, who appeared on television after the abduction and tearfully begged for the safe return of his daughter, Lori Brook Hickam, was arrested at his home in a fashionable neighborhood near New Orleans. Jefferson Parish Sheriff Harry Leo said the girl's mother was not involved in the kidnapping.

Carter pardoned Yarrow

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted Friday to confirm President Reagan's nominations of Verne Or of California as Air Force secretary and Ray Barnhart of Texas as federal highway administrator. It also confirmed the nomination of Edward Schumaker of Connecticut as deputy attorney general to succeed Charles Rehnquist. All three nominations were approved by routine voice vote and without debate.

Reagan nominees approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jimmy Carter, in one of his last acts as president, granted folk singer Peter Yarrow of Peter, Paul and Mary a full pardon for a child-molesting conviction a decade ago. It was learned Friday. Yarrow was convicted in 1970 of "taking indecent liberties with a minor" in an incident involving a 14-year-old girl in 1963. "It was the most terrible mistake I have ever made," he said at the time. In asking for a pardon last October, Yarrow told the Justice Department that he soon would have to tell his children, now aged 8 and 9 1/2, about his conviction. "A presidential pardon would help my children to understand that society has forgiven their father. A pardon might offset the sense of shame that they will inevitably feel."

MIAMI (UPI) — Three young blacks were found guilty Friday night of murdering three white motorists during last May's Liberty City riots. The decision sparked outraged cries of "White justice" and vows to retaliate. A fourth defendant, Patrick Moore, 17, was acquitted of all murder charges. Samuel Lightsey, 25, was found guilty on three counts of second-degree murder. Lawrence Capers, 25, and his brother Leonard, 20, were convicted on three counts each of third-degree murder. After the verdicts were read, Leonard Capers shouted at prosecutor Robert Kaye, "I hope you die, I hope you die."

Outside the courtroom, about 25 blacks milled around, cursing. Leo Harris of the Citizens for Racial Justice screamed, "We're going to light back. Tell Janet Reno (the state's attorney in Dade County) she's going to burn in hell." Lightsey's verdict was announced first and brought loud screams from his mother, who had to be carried out of the courtroom by a police officer. Lightsey looked at his mother and broke down crying, putting his head on the defense table as the rest of the verdicts were read. Moore grabbed his head and wept as his acquittal was read. The Capers brothers closed their eyes. Judge Mario Gorderich set sentencing for March 17. Lightsey faces a maximum penalty of life in prison and the Capers brothers face up to 15 years in prison on each count. The four were accused of being part of the mob that dragged Benny Higdon, 21, Robert Owens and Charles Barreca, both 15, from their wrecked car last May 17 and beat them to death with fists, sticks and chunks of concrete. The attack came on the first night of the riots, shortly after an all-white jury in Tampa acquitted four white, former Dade County policemen of the beating murder of black insurance salesman Arthur McDuffie in Miami. The riots went on for three days, and 18 people were killed. Several hours after the verdict, however, police reported it was quiet in Miami's black neighborhoods. The state did not seek the death penalty against any of the defendants. But it plans to ask the death penalty for another suspect, Nathaniel Lee, 18, who is to be tried separately.

Defense rests in diet doc trial

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (UPI) — The defense rested Friday in the murder trial of Jean Harris, the accused killer of her former lover, Dr. Herman Tarnower. Prosecutors were expected to begin their rebuttal next week with testimony from the "other woman" in the "Scarsole Diet" author's life.

Lynne Tryforos, Tarnower's office assistant whose relationship with him allegedly led Mrs. Harris to kill the doctor in a jealous rage, was expected to testify for the first time in the lengthy trial when the prosecution opened its case Monday. Mrs. Tryforos' lawyer, Roger Sirlin of Mamaroneck, said Friday his client decided to testify because she wanted "a forum to clear her name" of charges made about her by Mrs. Harris. Defense attorney Joel Aurnou, who began his presentation Dec. 23, called 56 witnesses and submitted more than 150 exhibits in his defense of Mrs. Harris. Friday was the 58th day of her trial.

Budget

"Unemployment insurance recipients are supposed to be available for and seeking work at all times," OMB said. "However, state enforcement of this requirement is very uneven."
Trade Adjustment Assistance: Persons whose employment is caused by imports would be eligible only after they exhausted regular unemployment insurance and the combined benefits would be limited to 78 weeks for a saving of $1.1 billion.
Food Stamps: They would be cut $1.5 billion in 1982 and participation lowered by 2 million to 3 million persons. Allotments to families with children would be reduced to take into consideration free school meals. Benefits would be reduced 5 cents rather than 30 cents for every dollar earned and the use of gross household income rather than net income "would improve low-income targeting."
Aid to Dependent Children: Changes would be made in the treatment of family income. Benefits also would be based on the income of step-parents and absent parents would not be able to collect income tax refunds unless their child support payments were current.

Comprehensive Employment and Training Act: Subsidies would be eliminated for regular jobs in the public sector.
Strong opposition to (this) reduction can be expected from minority groups since virtually all public-sector employment participants are disadvantaged and almost half are minorities," OMB said.
Child Nutrition: The base subsidy of 192 cents a meal in school lunch and breakfast programs would be cut to 9 cents, frozen snacks in the child care and summer meal programs would be eliminated at a saving of $5 million through 1985 and the meal subsidy for private schools would be eliminated.
National Endowments for the Arts and Humanities: Their budgets of $159 million and $151 million would be cut in half.
Corporation for Public Broadcasting: Its budget of $43 million could be cut by 25 percent.
Rural Electrification Administration: Interest for electrification and telephone loans would be increased from 2 to 5 percent and loans for power supply systems would be eliminated.

Farmers Home Administration: Direct lending would be reduced by 25 percent across the board.
Tennessee Valley Authority: The Phipps Bend, Yellow Creek and possibly Hartsville A2 nuclear plants would be deferred.
Space Agency: Its funds would be cut by $629 million in 1982, the Venus orbiting radar and Gamma Ray missions would be deferred and the Numerical Aerodynamic Simulator and the Galileo mission to Jupiter would be canceled.
National Science Foundation: Major reductions in behavior, social and economic science research would save $241 million.
Environmental Protection Agency: There would be no grants for new starts in waste treatment in 1982.
Department of Housing and Urban Development: Urban Development Action Grants for inner cities would be eliminated to save $610 million in 1982.

"It's a political fact of life. I am finding it difficult to persuade my colleagues in the Senate and House; I can't get them to buy (equalization)." Barker also recommended the committee take the following stands on the basis of hearings it has conducted over the last four weeks:
• Junior college funding. Support a raise in tuition from $200 to $225 next school year and $250 the year after; support legislation diverting half the liquor surplus funds from area counties; and urge an enrollment freeze if funding is insufficient.
• Lewis-Clark State College. Support merger with the University of Idaho, elimination of upper division courses and retention of a four-year nursing program.
• College tuition. Urge the State Board of Education to raise out-of-state tuition and fees substantially.

• Enrollment. If the appropriation for colleges and universities is insufficient, in the state board's opinion, support a resolution to freeze enrollment and require a minimum grade for students to stay in school.
• Surplus. Allow universities to use carry-over funds to break the tendency to waste them to avoid giving them back to the state general fund.
• Duplication. Support legislation allowing the state board to consolidate and shift programs of higher education.
• Off-campus programs. Urge a freeze on new ones.
• Special programs. Allow the University of Idaho to combine the agricultural research program and the extension service budgets providing a means to share employees.
• Handicapped education. Place a one-year ceiling on funding.

• Medicaid. Push for replacement of $4 million in federal revenue sharing funds lost this year and $8.5 million next year.
• Welfare. Support the hiring of 25 to 35 new caseworkers on the condition that they be dropped if they do not reduce the eligibility error rate enough to cover the cost.
• Medicaid reform. Support five bills to encourage family support of nursing home patients and home care of the elderly.

Legislative action forces ADC cuts

MACK NEIBAUR
Key Medicaid vote

BOISE (UPI) — Lawmakers refused to rescue the Aid to Dependent Children program from insolvency Friday.

But it did grant the state's Medicaid system sufficient funds to reimburse nursing homes for the remainder of this fiscal year.

Sen. Dean Van Englen, R-Burley, urged the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee to adjust its agenda and consider the two critical funding questions, saying the Health and Welfare Department needed a quick legislative decision on the $3.8 million needed to fund Medicaid and $498,700 for the ADC program.

"I don't think we should leave these hanging over the weekend," Van Englen said, noting that Health and Welfare Director Bill Klein must order cuts in the ADC benefits by Monday to keep the program solvent.

"I have to sign the order to reduce benefits on Monday so they can go into effect March 1," Klein said following the committee vote. "At this point, I intend to do that."

Klein said he would continue to urge lawmakers, however, to allow the agency to remove money from the Medicaid budget to keep ADC benefits at reasonable levels. The March 1 cut will reduce those benefits by about $40, he said, to 50 percent of the subsistence level — down from the current level of 58 percent.

"In my opinion, ADC is a higher priority than Medicaid," Klein said. "I will encourage legislators to take money out of Medicaid and give it to ADC. I can't do it alone, or I would. It needs legislative action."

The committee voted 11-9 to remove $3.8 million from the Water Pollution Control Account to fund the Medicaid program through June 30 with Rep. Mack Neibaur, R-Paul, changing his vote to swing the decision.

"If the appropriations measure does not clear the full Legislature, however, Medicaid funds will run out on April 1.

On another 11-9 vote, the committee turned down the agency's request for additional ADC money from the Water Pollution fund.

In addition, the committee voted 16-4 to deny a request to boost payments to foster parents by 25 percent for the remainder of this fiscal year.

Protests to the appropriations generally focused on opposition to "trading" the Water Pollution Control fund, which contains about $23 million earmarked for cities and counties to use in funding improvements to water and sewer plants.

Rep. William Lytle, R-Pinehurst, said money from that account already has been promised to cities and counties and any action to remove the funds would leave local governments in the lurch. In addition, he said, so much money already is earmarked for local governments that only $4 million is available for lawmakers to borrow.

"We already look about $1.4 million out yesterday for the Corrections Department and now we're talking about another $3.8 million for Medicaid," Lytle said. "That means we're already in the hole."

"What we're doing is funding an on-going program (Medicaid) out of a limited account," said Rep. Dan Emery, R-Boise. "I don't know where this is going to stop, but something has to give."

Briefly

2% hotel tax bill goes to floor

BOISE (UPI) — An Idaho Travel and Convention Industry Committee — to be funded through a statewide 2 percent hotel tax — would be created under a bill sent to the House floor today by the House Revenue and Taxation Committee.

The bill was given a "do pass" tag on a 9-6 vote after sponsors said it would revive Idaho's sagging tourism industry.

Barbara Gwartney of the Idaho Innkeepers Association said Idaho was far behind its Western sister states in tourism promotion, and the state's economy has suffered accordingly.

Rep. John Sessions, R-Driggs, bill sponsor, said revenue from the 2 cents-per-dollar hotel and motel tax "would be funneled into a special account for distribution to the tourism committee and to non-profit organizations in six regions of Idaho."

Sun Valley-area resort operators protested against the bill, saying tacking the 2 percent state hotel tax onto the Sun Valley-Ketchum resort area's 5 percent sales tax would drive away business.

Oil, gas severance tax bill printed

BOISE (UPI) — A proposed 2 percent wellhead tax on oil and natural gas was whisked to printing today by the Idaho House Revenue and Taxation Committee.

The measure, rejected by the committee for minor amendments Thursday, was approved for introduction today on a voice vote.

Rep. Robert Geddes, R-Malad, co-sponsor of the bill, said the original version was changed to tighten up methods under which the state Tax Commission would enforce collection of the severance tax.

He said the updated bill included provisions to allow the commission to place a lien on a driller's property until the tax was paid, and bring collection procedures into conformity with state income-tax-collection regulations.

Since no oil or natural gas has been discovered in Idaho, the bill — if passed by the Legislature and signed by the governor — would have no immediate effect.

Barlow's 65 mph bill is shelved

BOISE (UPI) — An Idaho legislator's plan to raise the state's highway speed limit to 65 mph has been shelved due to concerns about potential conflict with federal law.

A House committee chairman said Rep. Rusty Barlow, R-Pocatello, will submit another bill also designed to hike the standard, but the second proposal wouldn't take effect until the federal government changed its own speed law.

When the committee introduced Barlow's original measure last month, state Transportation Department officials warned the federal government would be required by its own laws to withhold federal highway funds.

The department also said raising the speed limit would increase wear on Idaho's highways.

Thaw on 3-year-old 1% freeze is urged

BOISE — Representatives of Idaho's 44 county governments asked a key legislative subcommittee Friday to begin thawing the freeze on local government property tax revenues.

Bill Staker, Canyon County clerk, asked a subcommittee of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee to consider a proposal which he said would ultimately implement the 1 percent. He added his proposal would provide additional tax dollars to local taxing districts to deal with growth and inflation, while allowing districts taxing more than 1 percent time to reach that rate through rising property values.

Slaker's proposal has the support of the Idaho Association of Counties.

The proposal did not take bill form and no formal committee action was taken. Committee Chairman Steve Antone, R-Rupert, recommended county officials meet with representatives of the state Department of Education to draft a joint proposal.

Tom Vopat, finance officer with the department, told the committee his department planned to review the proposal before taking a position on it.

Easing the freeze on the amount of property tax revenues local governments can receive has been given a top priority by the Association of Idaho cities and IAC. This marks the third consecutive year cities and counties have been forced to operate with frozen general fund budgets.

Coupled with double-digit inflation, the freeze has led to cutbacks in the level of services provided by local governments as well as layoffs in the number of local government employees.

Local officials say some services may be threatened or eliminated altogether if the freeze is continued for another year.

"We're hearing all this talk about the freeze having a negative impact on our budgets and they haven't had their budgets locked down for the past three years," said AIC executive director Marty Peterson, adding the spending power of the dollar has slipped roughly 30 percent in the past three years.

The 1980 Legislature provided for some additional dollars for local governments to compensate for additional costs due to growth. The Legislature provided for a maximum 4 percent increase in property tax revenues, providing taxing districts were taxing below 1 percent of market value.

That restriction narrowed the number of entities who were eligible to receive the funds. State Tax Commission Research Project Coordinator Alan Dornfest estimated the measure brought $1 million additional dollars to all Idaho taxing districts, roughly 1 percent of the $94 million in property taxes collected in 1980.

Slaker said his proposal seeks to satisfy the demands of taxpayers for tax reduction while providing local government with enough money to retain viable programs. He said the measure would also:

- Prohibit taxing districts from setting levies that would result in a "tax windfall" because of its position within a particular tax code area.
- Provide a formula for estimating growth factors that would be simple for legislators and local officials to understand and administer.

While his proposal deals only with a theoretical maximum levy for counties, Staker said any measure implementing the 1 percent must be acceptable to the Legislature, State Tax Commission, AIC, IAC and school associations.

Slaker said his proposal would establish a maximum county general fund levy of .26-of-1 percent. That figure is equal to the average of the general fund property tax levies charged by the 44 counties multiplied by 130 percent.

Slaker said all but eight Idaho counties are taxing below that rate.

Taxing districts taxing below the maximum levies would be eligible for a full growth allowance. Taxing districts below the maximum levy but contained in a tax code area which levies above 1 percent would be entitled to .50 percent of the growth allowance.

Taxing districts over the 1 percent would not receive an allowance. But those districts would not be subject to a funding reduction as would be the case if the 1 percent, as drafted, were implemented.

In order to implement the program, the Legislature would have to repeal a section of the 1 percent which limits tax increase for growth to no more than 2 percent, Staker said.

One member of the subcommittee, Rep. Darwin Young, R-Blackfoot, said he supports the concept of growth allowances for local government. But he said he is exploring another proposal made by Pocatello City Manager Chuck Moss, which would call for the Legislature to project annual inflation rates.

Young said Staker's proposal "looks a little bit complicated to me and I've got another formula that looks simpler."

QUESTION...

Can you give me a simple explanation of the attitude of the Catholic Church toward such customs following death as — autopsies — the presence of flowers at a funeral — the reason for consecrating a certain section of the cemetery?

ANSWER...

It would be presumptive of us to answer these questions ourselves. In a search for answers, however, we found these and other church laws and attitudes detailed in a book, "What Every Family Should Know About Funerals" written by Father Gerard Breitenbeck, C.S.S.R. The Church has no opposition to autopsies — flowers are a traditional expression of sympathy — cemetery property is consecrated because the body which has been the temple of the Holy Spirit during life should be laid to rest with reverence in a place hallowed by the blessing of the Church.

Tax refund bill highlights Legislative action

BOISE (UPI) — A $22 million state income tax refund bill was introduced today by the Idaho House Revenue and Taxation Committee.

Rep. Lyman Winchester, R-Kuna, told the panel the proposed 10 percent rebate from the state's estimated $220 million income tax collection for 1980 would stimulate the economy.

The committee's Democrats and one Republican opposed the measure, saying it would put the state's general fund in further jeopardy, adding to the current fiscal crunch caused by a revenue shortfall.

"We need to get the economy moving again," Winchester said, adding that his bill was in keeping with a proposal by President Reagan to cut federal income taxes by 10 percent.

Rep. Harold Reid, D-Craigmont, noting the Legislature's $422.2 million state general fund revenue projection for fiscal year 1981 would require very tight budgeting, said addition of Winchester's measure would seriously impair the state's spending ability.

"You can argue that two ways," the Kuna Republican responded. He contended the $22 million added to the state's economy would generate tax revenue in other areas.

After Rep. Dwight Horsch, D-Aberdeen, said he believed the tax rebate would force the Legislature to slash public school funding, the committee sent the bill to printing on a split voice vote.

Later, one committee member who voted in favor of the bill's introduction said there was a possibility it could backfire in the manner described by Reid and Horsch.

"The principle is sound," said Rep. Joseph Walker, R-Moscow. But he said it was risky for the state to change its income tax without similar, prior action on the federal level.

In other action: "The House State Affairs Committee agreed to kill rather than cripple a bill designed to lump state government data-processing services under a new division of the state Administration Department.

"Idaho Panhandle inhabitants won't hear any state election results until the polls close throughout Idaho, a two-time zone state," said a bill approved by the House State Affairs Committee.

Representatives passed 57-8 and sent to the Senate a bill designed to close an estimated $500,000 annual loophole in collection of liquor-licensing fees.

The Joint Finance Appropriations Committee approved spending about $100,000 to boost security at the Idaho State Penitentiary.

A Senate committee shied away from deciding whether a long list of threatened state programs should get reduced funding.

A half-dozen mothers of young children dropped off signature petitions to House lawmakers, urging them not to slash kindergarten funding.

Law would require drug poison label

BOISE — A mandatory drug labeling bill that would add treatment of poison victims was introduced Thursday by the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee.

Committee Chairman John Barker, R-Boise, said the bill would require drugs to be labeled with a code that doctors and paramedics could report to regional poison control centers in cases of poisoning.

The centers — two are in Boise and Spokane — would then respond with the correct treatment within seconds compared to much longer times now, he said.

If passed, the law would not take effect until Jan. 1, 1983, and Barker said the committee would hear testimony on the bill.

Bill would end farm electrical inspection need

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. Dan Emery, R-Boise, swayed the House Agricultural Affairs Committee Friday to introduce his bill to exempt farms from state electrical inspections.

"We don't need electrical inspections on farms or ranches, including farm houses," Emery said. "This is just to cut the nuisance, cut big-brother government."

Emery complained that farmers shouldn't have to wait for electrical inspections during a construction project.

Social Security cost hikes may be cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cost-of-living increases are the major reason for the skyrocketing cost of Social Security, and there is general agreement in Congress that they must be trimmed, the chairman of the House panel dealing with the issue said Friday.

"There seems to be a consensus... some adjustment must be made," Rep. J. J. Pickle, D-Texas, said in an interview with UPI.

Pickle, whose Social Security subcommittee gets first crack at restoring the retirement system's integrity, said 80 percent of the $21 billion in increased Social Security payments this year went for cost-of-living raises.

He also pinpointed supporting Medicare through income tax revenues as the other leading solution for fixing the immediate Social Security funding problem.

Doing that would free billions of dollars for the retirement system, since Social Security and Medicare now are supported by the same payroll taxes.

"Those two (approaches) are the primary sources for adjustments to get us out of our immediate difficulties," said Pickle, whose panel will start hearings on the problem later this month.

Experts agree the major Social Security fund that pays retirement benefits will run dry next year unless changes are made. Next century, the system faces similar problems because of the shrinking ratio of workers paying into the system to those drawing benefits from it.

Pickle hopes to have a Social Security bill — which would deal with both the short- and long-term problems — through the House "reasonably early this year."

In an obvious warning to the Reagan administration not to lean too hard on Congress, he made it clear his panel will write the legislation. The House, under the Constitution, originates all money bills.

"It's not going to be written in the White House, it's not going to be written down on Pennsylvania Avenue and it's not going to be written by Mr. Dave Stockman (Reagan's budget director)," Pickle said.

In addition to holding down cost-of-living increases and changing the Medicare funding, Pickle said the limitation on how much a retired person may earn and still receive benefits may be changed.

He pointed to payments for students, the minimum benefit level and lump-sum death benefits as other possible areas for cuts. The Reagan administration has mentioned all of those changes.

Like all other major decision makers on the Social Security question, Pickle strongly opposes financing the retirement system with income tax revenues. Opponents say that would make it too easy to raise benefits.

Symms, McClure vote in favor

Senate approves increase in debt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan's first congressional request cleared its final hurdle Friday when the Senate approved his proposal to increase the national debt ceiling by nearly $50 billion to $285 billion.

The vote was passed 73-18, with all but a handful of Republicans supporting it. The House approved a similar measure Thursday 305-104.

The bill, which allows the government to continue borrowing money and pay its bills, went to the White House late Friday and aides said Reagan may sign it Saturday.

Both Idaho senators, James McClure and Steve Symms, voted in favor of raising the national debt ceiling primarily to show support for the Reagan administration. The two senators also agreed that increasing the debt was an inevitable action best done now rather than later.

In a repeat of Thursday's political maneuvering in the House, Senate Democrats withheld their votes until the last minute, forcing the Republicans to take the lead and pass the debt ceiling increase.

However, a few conservative Republicans refused to vote the party line, arguing an increase in the debt ceiling was not necessary as the government could be funded through immediate budget cuts and postponing planned purchases.

The Republicans set the stage for final passage by quashing a Democratic attempt to scale down the size of the proposed increase.

The Senate voted 52-41 to table a Democratic amendment that would increase the national debt ceiling by $28 billion, only about half the level requested by the president.

To expedite Senate action, several senators agreed to withdraw or withhold amendments that would have delayed final passage.

Had the Senate agreed to any of the amendments — which included broadening the Soviet grain embargo to a total trade embargo and boosting the national debt ceiling to $1 trillion — final passage would have been delayed until at least Feb. 17 when the House returns from its Washington-Lincoln birthday recess.

That, coincidentally, is the day Treasury Secretary Donald Regan predicted the government would run out of money if the debt ceiling were not raised.

President warns farmers embargo part of 'linkage'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan told American farm leaders Friday that foreign policy considerations — including Russian troops on the Polish border — will help him decide whether to sell grain to the Soviet Union.

Reagan told the farmers he hasn't decided whether to keep his campaign promise to lift the embargo imposed by Jimmy Carter on Jan. 4, 1980, in protest of the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Robert Delano, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation said.

"If the president needs this embargo for national security, agriculture should not be singled out," he said.

The president was not specific, but Delano said it is conceivable the embargo could be extended to other exports to the Soviet Union.

Frank Ray, president of the American Soybean Association, who attended the meeting, said later, "The feeling we got is that unless there are some concessions by the Soviets, that this administration is not going to lift the embargo unilaterally."

Meeting with reporters, the farm leaders said they are still against the embargo, but will be patient while Reagan makes his decision. They also hinted they might go along with the embargo if it were extended to include other exports to the Soviet Union.

Jim Billington, president of the National Association of Wheat Growers, said Reagan told the farmers the embargo will be influenced by Soviet actions in Poland and the rest of the world, and by U.S. relationships with allies.

Reagan said if the embargo is continued, he will develop policies to relieve the unfair burden on farmers,

Birthday party held for Reagan's 70th

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan celebrated his 70th birthday Friday, only the second president to reach that age in the White House.

President Dwight Eisenhower was the only other chief executive to be in office in his 70s.

Congressional leaders from both political parties joined first lady Nancy Reagan and staffers in the Oval Office for a morning celebration that included a spirited but often off-key rendition of "Happy Birthday to You."

Democratic House Speaker Thomas O'Neill presented Reagan with the official flag that flew over the Capitol during Reagan's inauguration, and House Democratic leader Jim Wright of Texas gave Reagan a gold tie clasp in the shape of a cowboy boot with spurs.

Only one candle adorned the four-tiered cake decorated with pictures of three elephants, the White House and the Capitol.

As Mrs. Reagan searched for a knife to cut the cake, Reagan quipped: "How can you bear to cut it? I think we ought to bronze it."

Staffers erected an easel comparing his schedule of four years ago — a day at his Santa Barbara ranch and dinner at Chasen's restaurant in Beverly Hills with friends — to Friday's full-day of meetings.

"Ask yourself, are you better off today than you were four years ago?" read one paper, spoofing Reagan's debate phrase about former President Carter's presidency. "You may not be, but the country is," said another paper.

USAF seeks more funding

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Air Force chief of staff said Friday he anticipates "robust" additions to defense spending that could include an outlay of $6.7 billion during the next two years for a new bomber.

Although Gen. Lew Allen indicated a bomber more advanced than the B-52 is needed, he said he does not think the Soviet Union outweighs the United States in the balance of strategic forces.

Still, he said, the United States "has clearly lost advantages in the strategic nuclear arena."

"The Soviets have an advantage in most areas of combat and in most scenarios of war," Allen said.

The Air Force chief appeared before a sparsely attended Senate Armed Services Committee, which is conducting hearings into the Carter administration's proposed $196.3 billion defense budget for fiscal 1982 and a supplemental money program of $6.3 billion for the current fiscal year.

The Reagan administration plans to increase both budgets by up to $32 billion, official sources said.

Atlanta boy's death leaves cops puzzled

ATLANTA (UPI) — Medical examiners said Friday they were puzzled by the apparently lack of physical resistance put up by a robust 14-year-old boy who became the 15th known victim of Atlanta's child killers.

Two other children are officially listed as missing.

The body of Lubie "Chuck" Geter, clad only in a pair of white briefs, was found late Thursday in a wooded, marshy area south of the city by a caretaker who was patrolling the area for illegal rabbit traps.

Dr. Robert Silvers, Fulton County's chief medical examiner, said the investigators believe Geter was suffocated or strangled, but he said he and the others were puzzled by the lack of apparent physical resistance on the part of Geter and the other victims.

Silvers described Geter as 5-7 and 130 pounds — "a big strapping fellow who could have put up a hell of a battle."

But he said there was no mark on the body other than some destruction inflicted by animals such as "possums and dogs."

Silvers said his best guess was that a choke-hold that would leave little physical evidence was used to render the young victims unconscious or perhaps kill them.

"It could have been a karate chop," he said, "but I would expect to find more tissue damage than we've seen."

Geter was first reported missing Jan. 3. Family members said he failed to return from a south Atlanta shopping center where he had gone to sell automobile air fresheners.

Strangulation and asphyxiation were listed as the causes of death in at least seven of the 15 known victims and the cause of death was undetermined in five other instances. One was shot and two died of stab wounds.

Of the 17 missing and dead, all were black, all were from relatively poor sections of the city and all but two were boys between the ages of 7 and 15.

Geter's body was found within five miles of where the remains of five other black children have been found since the first disappearance was reported in July, 1979.

Impeachment effort called 'meddling'

ALEXANDRIA, La. (UPI) — A Georgia congressman trying to impeach a federal judge for his desegregation orders and meddling in state affairs is himself indulging in dangerous "meddling," a Louisiana congressman charged Friday.

Rep. Willis Long, D-La., whose district includes the troubled Rapides Parish school district, said the impeachment resolution filed by Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga., damaged any chances of turning back U.S. District Judge Nauman Scott's controversial busing plan.

"Now the matter has taken on a whole new aspect," Long told the Alexandria Daily Town Talk. "Other avenues that could have been explored and had a real chance of success are now cut off while the Judiciary Committee is focused on impeachment."

Long said the Georgia congressman was guilty of raising people's hopes without being able to live up to them.

"There's no possibility of success," he said. "There isn't even a possibility of a next step."

McDonald said the full House of Representatives should review Scott's 10-year record on the federal bench. He also said there could be an impeachment trial before the Senate if necessary.

A march was scheduled in Alexandria Saturday by blacks in support of integration.

Radiation burns on man spark probe

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Nuclear Regulatory Commission officials said Friday they have turned up no new leads in their search for the radiation source which, last month, contaminated and burned an Oklahoma man.

NRC officials have refused to name the victim, but he has been identified through other sources as Douglas Croft, 38, of Henryetta.

Croft was in serious condition Friday in a Tulsa hospital's protective isolation ward, suffering from a heavy dose of radiation poisoning.

According to information from the NRC's Arlington, Texas, office, the radiation victim was hospitalized Jan. 23 with serious burns on his chest and left arm, which destroyed his left nipple and produced bleeding from the burns.

Clyde Wisner, an NRC spokesman, said authorities do not know for certain how Croft, who worked as a radiographer for oil companies in Oklahoma and New Mexico, was exposed.

Jews urged to arm due to rise of Klan, Nazis

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — With the slogan "For every Jew a 22," the Jewish Defense League of Philadelphia Friday called on all Jews to arm themselves in response to growing numbers of Ku Klux Klan and neo-Nazi groups across the country.

"The people who say a Holocaust can't happen here are blind," said Ed Ramov, executive director of the radical Jewish organization, which urges its members to prepare for an imminent attack.

"It's getting closer and closer all the time," Ramov said. "All we need is a further deterioration of economic conditions. See who gets blamed for that. It's usually the Jews."

The JDL announced it was starting a new firearms training class Sunday in a Philadelphia synagogue.

The .22-caliber weapon mentioned in the slogan is recommended to JDL members because it's easy to handle, Ramov said.

The new push for weapons is a reaction to reports that there are as many as 20 paramilitary training camps nationwide run by the Ku Klux Klan and various Nazi groups, Ramov said.

"The primary targets are obviously going to be Jews," he said.

The national JDL is planning to set up three commando training centers, where members will learn the basics of guerrilla warfare and counter-terrorist operations, Ramov said.

Anyone can join in the JDL's firearm classes, and past students ranged in age from 14 to 60.

Crosby gets a 'good girl' role

By United Press International

GOOD GUYS, BAD GUYS
Mary Crosby had a ball playing the role of Kristin Shepard in TV's popular nighttime soap opera, "Dallas." Kristin, of course, is the one who shot mean, old J.R. Ewing. But now, Miss Crosby — Bing's daughter — is heading for bigger and better things. Monday night, she'll appear as a glamorous reporter in the TV movie "Midnight Lace" on NBC. It's a whole new bag, she says. "The lady is very different from Kristin — definitely a victim, and she's also a good guy — two things Kristin Shepard never was."

TRAVEL IN POOH

The Ray Ulreich family of Oak Forest, Ill., had given up their dog, Shadow, for dead. Then came the phone call from Mary Lee Morris of Warren, Texas — 1,000 miles from home. Shadow somehow wound up on her doorstep about 10 days ago. How? Only Shadow knows. "The whole thing is incredible and unbelievable," says Mrs. Ulreich. "We gave her up as lost a long time ago. This is a happy time, but I plan to give her a good smacking. I'm going to tell her, 'Don't you ever do this again.'"

NO RETURN

Bobby Van Elten borrowed money to move from Orlando, Fla., to Washington. The government confirmed his appointment as an electrical engineer with the Architectural and Transportation Barriers Compliance Board. Then came the crusher: President Ronald Reagan's job freeze. "I live alone," says Van Elten, a 3-foot-4 dwarf who needs crutches to support crippled legs that have undergone four operations. "I can't go back. I'm at the point of no return." Karen Smith, who was to be his boss, says "Bobby is a classic hardship case." And the guys? They will appeal to the Office of Management and Budget on that basis. Meantime, Bobby waits and hopes.

ANNE'S DIARY

A furor is brewing in the Netherlands over Anne Frank's celebrated diary. The government plans to publish the first complete text, but some lawmakers oppose an unabridged version that paints a more intimate picture of the teen-age heroine's growth into womanhood. It seems Anne's father, Otto Frank, did a lot of editing, omitting perhaps as much as 60 percent of the diary.

Arthur Paape, director of Amsterdam's War Documentation Institute, says "the Anne that emerges from the original writings is not a different Anne — just a fuller Anne." But some lawmakers would rather leave out Anne's more personal comments, saying the father's wishes should be protected.

DOUBLE JEOPARDY

Judge James Smith says Frank Sinatra Jr. really should have been required to pay more toward the support of a 7-year-old girl. But Smith dismissed a paternity suit against Sinatra because the child's mother, Mary Walker, already received $22,500. Smith said a 1974 settlement of a similar paternity suit in Los Angeles County precluded litigation in California's Orange County. "The child got the short end of the stick," the judge says. Deputy District Attorney Robert Molko says he plans to appeal Smith's decision.

OOPS!

Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt is suing the city of Los Angeles, its police department, the SWAT team and several individual cops for a raid on his home last October. It seems two former Flynt employees told police Flynt was being held captive by two kidnapers. The cops burst in and oops! — it wasn't so. Flynt wants $1 million in general damages and $2 million in punitive damages.

Ella Grasso to be buried with honors

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Former Connecticut Gov. Ella Grasso will be buried with military honors Monday in the small mill town where she was born to Italian immigrant parents 61 years ago. Mrs. Grasso, who made political history in 1974 as the nation's first woman governor elected without succeeding her husband, died Thursday of cancer. The disease forced her to resign from office Dec. 31.

Gov. William O'Neill Friday asked state residents to set Monday aside as a day of mourning.

A funeral mass will be conducted by five Catholic bishops, priests from Mrs. Grasso's home parish in Windsor Locks and the Legislature's chaplains at Hartford's St. Joseph's Cathedral.

Mrs. Grasso's body will lie in state from 11 a.m. Sunday until 11 a.m. Monday in the Capitol, near the historic Hall of Flags where banners from more than two centuries of Connecticut history are on display.

Although expected, the death of the woman known to most Connecticut residents simply as "Ella" sent shockwaves through the Capitol where she had worked as a legislator, secretary of the state and governor. Mrs. Grasso had never lost an election in 27 years of public life.

Most legislative activities were canceled Friday as tributes continued to pour in.

Officer finds stroke victim by code work

ST. CLAIR SHORES, Mich. (UPI) — Patrolman Jimmy Zerilli is glad he didn't hang up on what he at first thought was a crank caller. So is the stroke victim whose life Zerilli saved in a 45-minute telephone drama.

Zerilli answered the phone at police headquarters around noon Thursday and heard a strange sound he couldn't make out. He nearly hung up, but his intuition prevailed.

"At first, I thought the guy was a nut" or "a drunk," Zerilli recalled Friday. "But the guy was so persistent in his shout, I figured something was wrong and didn't hang up."

After repeated attempts to get the caller's name failed, Zerilli asked the man to answer questions by tapping once for yes and twice for no.

Painstakingly dividing the city into sections, then streets and finally house numbers, Zerilli finally determined the address of the caller. He sent a fire department ambulance to the scene.

Meanwhile, Zerilli's partner, Sgt. James Bell, checked the address in a cross-index file — it was the home of Cuss Frederick, a city councilman.

Terrorists kidnap diplomat

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — More than 20 masked terrorists stormed the home of the top Jordanian diplomat in Beirut Friday, kidnaped him and his maid and killed two bodyguards in an hour-long battle.

Two separate pro-Syrian groups claimed responsibility for the abduction of Charge d'Affaires Hisban Mubhissen and one of the groups threatened to kill him unless Jordan handed over two Syrian pilots who defected from Syria last year.

In Amman, Jordan, a government spokesman strongly hinted that Syria was responsible for the abduction in a statement that said the identity of the attackers "is known to us and to the whole Arab world."

In the most serious incident of its kind in Beirut since the 1976 abduction and slaying of U.S. Ambassador Francis Meloy, between 20 and 40 gunmen staged a "highly professional" attack on Mubhissen's home in a sector of suburban Beirut controlled by Syrian peace-keeping forces.

The attackers surrounded Mubhissen's apartment building at 1:30 a.m., set up roadblocks on all streets leading into the area and then stormed the second-floor residence, spraying fire from their Soviet-made AK-47s in all directions, witnesses said.

At least one of the attackers was found dead in a car near the scene. Police said they believed the attackers also suffered several wounded in the gunbattle with Mubhissen's guards.

Mubhissen, 42, and his maid Leyla Khoury, 35, were dragged to a waiting car and spirited away. Police theorized that the terrorists mistook Miss Khoury for Mubhissen's wife.

The diplomat's family — his wife and an eight-month-old son — were in Amman.

Adding to the confusion were conflicting claims of responsibility by two terrorist groups — one well known but the other never heard of before.

Europe calmed over bomb

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Alexander Haig has moved to reassure European governments that the United States will not deploy a neutron weapon without first consulting its allies, the State Department said Friday.

Haig acted in response to worried queries from Western European officials about the statement by Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger at a news conference that the United States "very probably" would find the weapon a useful addition to the U.S. nuclear arsenal.

State Department officials showed reporters a copy of a cable marked "limited official use" in which Haig told U.S. diplomatic missions in Western Europe that "no decision on any deployment of the weapon would be made without consulting our European allies."

Weinberger's statement apparently referred only to production of the low-yield, high-radiation warheads, while Haig's telegram referred to the actual stationing of the weapons in Europe.

"Production of the bomb is a unilateral decision for the United States," a State Department official said. "Deployment is a multilateral decision which is to be taken in consultation with our allies."

The Haig telegram suggested that U.S. diplomats, in addition to the Weinberger statement, might point out that "it is normal for an incoming U.S. administration to review major decisions made by the preceding administration."

The telegram told the embassies, "No decision in this matter has been taken by the new administration."

Administration officials said Haig sent the telegram because of worries that a U.S.-European misunderstanding over the sensitive neutron bomb question would endanger the NATO agreement to move ahead with the still-controversial program for 572 modern, medium-range nuclear missiles — the so-called Theater Nuclear Force.

Weinberger's statement raised the possibility that some of those new missiles would be fitted with neutron warheads, which are designed to kill people with radiation while keeping physical destruction to a minimum.

Although the Haig telegram didn't directly contradict Weinberger's statement, it did clarify the matter and underline Haig's role as the administration's principal spokesman on foreign policy and national security issues.

Leftists fight in streets of Tehran

By United Press International

Thousands of Iranian leftists, defying a ban on demonstrations, fought bloody street battles with Revolutionary Guards in Tehran Friday.

Witnesses said at least 40 people were injured, some by gunfire.

They said the street demonstrations, involving some 6,000 persons, were called to protest political repression and high unemployment.

As the demonstrators gathered in Azadi square in Tehran's western outskirts for a rally, they were confronted by Revolutionary Guards who fired live rounds into the air and lobbed tear gas into the crowd.

That led to a brief but fierce battle in which Islamic militants attacked the demonstrators with knives and clubs, the witnesses said.

The rally was organized by the left-wing Fedayeen-Khalq, which participated in the revolution to oust the shah but which was later disowned by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and his militant clerics.

Tehran Radio reported the demonstration took place in defiance of a government ban but mentioned no violence except to blame the leftists for creating "tension."

In announcing Thursday that the rally had been banned, the radio warned that the Revolutionary Guards "would deal with the culprits in accordance with regulations governing wartime conditions."

Warsaw, Poland (UPI) — More than 200,000 workers in southern Poland ended a crippling 11-day strike Friday in the best mood toward their demands for the dismissal of four allegedly corrupt officials.

Pope John Paul II also intervened to end the dispute.

"This is a big victory for the entire nation," said Lech Walesa, leader of the independent Solidarity labor coalition.

The break in Poland's latest labor crisis came after an all-night negotiating session and the agreement of the government to dismiss the four local officials who were accused of corruption and abuse of power in the province of Bielsko-Biala, labor officials said.

Union sources said Polish-born Pope John Paul also intervened by sending Roman Catholic Church officials to mediate with the government.

Last month, Walesa traveled to the Vatican for a personal audience with the pope, who has publicly expressed his concern over the labor crisis in his homeland. It was the first time, however, that the church had directly intervened to resolve a labor dispute in Poland, which is more than 90 percent Catholic.

Terrorists kidnap diplomat

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — More than 20 masked terrorists stormed the home of the Jordanian diplomat in Beirut Friday, kidnaped him and his maid and killed two bodyguards in an hour-long battle.

Two separate pro-Syrian groups claimed responsibility for the abduction of Charge d'Affairs Hisham Muhelissen and one of the groups threatened to kill him unless Jordan handed over two Syrian pilots who defected from Syria last year.

In Amman, Jordan, a government spokesman strongly hinted that Syria was responsible for the abduction in a statement that said the identity of the attackers "is known to us and to the whole Arab world."

In the most serious incident of its kind in Beirut since the 1976 abduction and staying of U.S. Ambassador Francis Meloy, between 20 and 40 gunmen staged a highly professional attack on Muhelissen's home in a sector of suburban Beirut controlled by Syrian peace-keeping forces.

The attackers surrounded Muhelissen's apartment building at 1:30 a.m., set up roadblocks on all streets leading into the area and then stormed the second-floor residence, spraying fire from their Soviet-made AK-47s in all directions, witnesses said.

At least one of the attackers was found dead in a car near the scene. Police said they believed the attackers also suffered several wounded in the gunbattle with Muhelissen's guards.

Muhelissen, 42, and his maid Leyla Khoury, 35, were dragged to a waiting car and spirited away. Police theorized that the terrorists mistook Miss Khoury for Muhelissen's wife.

The diplomat's family — his wife and an eight-month-old son — were in Amman.

Adding to the confusion were conflicting claims of responsibility by two terrorist groups — one well known but the other never heard of before.

Leftists fight in streets of Tehran

By United Press International

Thousands of Iranian leftists, defying a ban on demonstrations, fought bloody street battles with Revolutionary Guards in Tehran Friday.

Witnesses said at least 40 people were injured, some by gunfire.

They said the street demonstrations involving some 3,000 persons were called to protest political repression and high unemployment.

As the demonstrators gathered in Azadi square in Tehran's western outskirts for a rally, they were confronted by Revolutionary Guards who fired live rounds into the air and lobbed tear gas into the crowd.

That led to a brief but fierce battle in which Islamic militants attacked the demonstrators with knives and clubs, the witnesses said.

The rally was organized by the left-wing Fedayeen-e-Khalq, which participated in the revolution to oust the shah but which was later disowned by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and his militant clerics.

Tehran Radio reported the demonstration took place in defiance of a government ban but made no mention of the violence except to blame the leftists for creating "tension."

In announcing Thursday that the rally had been banned, the radio warned that the Revolutionary Guards would deal with the culprits in accordance with regulations governing wartime conditions.

Polish party bows again, fires officials

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — More than 300,000 workers in southern Poland ended a crippling 11-day strike Friday after the government bowed to their demands for the dismissal of four allegedly corrupt officials.

Pope John Paul II also intervened to end the dispute.

"This is a big victory for the entire nation," said Lech Walesa, leader of the Independent Solidarity labor coalition.

The break in Poland's latest labor crisis came after an all-night negotiating session and the agreement of the government to dismiss the four local officials who were accused of corruption and abuse of power in the province of Bielsko-Biala, labor officials said.

Union sources said Polish-born Pope John Paul also intervened by sending Roman Catholic Church officials to mediate with the government.

Last month, Walesa traveled to the Vatican for a personal audience with the pope, who has publicly expressed his concern over the labor crisis in his homeland. It was the first time, however, that the church had directly intervened to resolve a labor dispute in Poland, which is more than 90 percent Catholic.

Europe calmed over bomb

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Alexander Haig has moved to reassure Western European governments that the United States will not deploy a neutron weapon without first consulting its allies, the State Department said Friday.

Haig acted in response to worried queries from Western European officials about the statement by Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger at a news conference that the United States "very probably" would find the weapon a useful addition to the U.S. nuclear arsenal.

State Department officials showed reporters a copy of a cable marked "limited official use" in which Haig told U.S. diplomatic missions in Western Europe that "no decision on any deployment of the weapon would be made without consulting our European allies."

Weinberger's statement apparently referred only to production of the low-yield, high-radiation warheads, while Haig's telegram referred to the actual stationing of the weapons in Europe.

"Production of the bomb is a unilateral decision by the United States," a State Department official said. "Deployment is a multilateral decision which is to be taken in consultation with our allies."

The Haig telegram suggested that U.S. diplomats, in dealing with questions about the Weinberger statement, might point out that "it is normal for an incoming U.S. administration to review major decisions made by the preceding administration."

The telegram told the embassies, "No decision in this matter has been taken by the new administration."

Administration officials said Haig sent the telegram because of worries that a U.S. European misunderstanding over the sensitive neutron bomb question would endanger the NATO agreement to move ahead with the still-controversial program for 572 modern, medium-range nuclear missiles — the so-called Theater Nuclear Force.

Weinberger's statement raised the possibility that some of those new missiles would be fitted with neutron warheads, which are designed to kill people with radiation while keeping physical destruction to a minimum.

Although the Haig telegram didn't directly contradict Weinberger's statement, it did clarify the matter and underline Haig's role as the administration's principal spokesman on foreign policy and national security issues.

Ketchum OKs post office

By STEVE LATHROP
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — In a quick reversal, Ketchum city officials approved plans for a new post office Friday.

Friday's action reversed a Wednesday decision of the Ketchum Planning Commission which had tabled similar plans. On Wednesday, planning-commission members objected that Ketchum architect James McLaughlin's plans to remodel the old Scott Ski Factory included too little landscaping, provided no space for snow storage, and needed a covered pedestrian walkway.

Friday's meeting, scheduled on an emergency basis by Mayor Gerald Seiffert, gave McLaughlin a chance to re-present his plans to a joint session of the planning commission and the City Council. Also present Friday was Sun Valley businessman Dick Heckmann, who heads a group of investors which owns the Scott Building, and which wants to lease it to the post office.

McLaughlin convinced city officials a covered walkway would be impractical because of an adjoining parking area. McLaughlin said cars would run into the cover's supports.

Ketchum postmaster John McDonald promised to take responsibility for snow removal. McDonald said the post office would haul snow off the premises if necessary.

Negotiating with city officials, McLaughlin, Heckmann, and McDonald agreed to landscape the site with 10 trees and to pave an alley behind the building. They also agreed all sidewalks paving would be composed of exposed aggregate type to improve the building's appearance.

After the negotiations, the planning commission, which performs a formal design review of all building projects in Ketchum, awarded the project 66 percent of the possible design points. Projects must receive a minimum of 60 percent before passage.

McDonald said after the meeting that the new post office, to be located at the intersection of First Avenue and Sun Valley Road, would open for business in May or June.

Jim Westerman shown here on Canyon Springs Road says he hasn't any lingering fear from his experience but now is more cautious of avalanche areas

A lesson he will always remember

Student experiences avalanche's 'fluid force'

TWIN FALLS — The sweeping power of tumbling snow is like the fluid force of a waterfall, says the young survivor of an avalanche.

Twin Falls High School junior Tim Westerman was skiing north of Ketchum last Saturday morning when a mass of snow 20 feet wide and 150 feet long carried him into the north fork of the Big Wood River. Westerman was entirely under snow briefly before retrieval by his companion, Mexican exchange student Antonio Mijares Gomez.

"You have a sensation of being in a liquid state and having no control," Westerman said. "I suppose it's like going over a waterfall, if you can imagine that."

The youth emerged from the near-tragedy without even the frostbite he was anticipating.

Westerman was a mile north of the Sawtooth National Recreation Area Headquarters when his weight triggered the avalanche on an 84 percent slope, according to Ken Britton of the U.S. Forest Service. The temperature was in the low to mid-20s.

"We would call it a 'soft-slab' avalanche," Britton said. "The snow was pretty darn unstable. It was a matter of new snow not bonding to an old, crusted layer beneath." Other avalanches occurred in the region last week, he said.

Westerman said he was "mostly interested in avoiding a tree that was in the way" as snow swept him about 100 feet and into the river. Panic and the question of survival disappeared when snow fell away from his face, he said.

"I wasn't too preoccupied with my experience at the time," he said. "I was more interested in getting out of the snow, getting warm clothes and getting my skis."

Westerman said he was freed within minutes as Gomez, who scarcely lays eyes on snow in Mexico, used his hands as a shovel. Westerman's arm movement was constrained by the ski poles still strapped to his wrists.

"The more you strain against the snow, the tighter packed it gets," he said, "and the water in the river weighed it down." He left the avalanche scene minus his skis; stocking cap, glasses and a pole.

Westerman, who took up cross-country skiing three years ago, and Gomez were among about 20 students touring as a party. Two students in the immediate vicinity arrived in the avalanche area — just as Westerman was climbing out of the river.

He said Saturday's experience hasn't altered his interest in skiing.

"It's taught me to be aware of steep slopes without any trees to stop the snow," he said, noting he had little previous knowledge about avalanches. A ski rental attendant warned students avalanche conditions existed, he said.

"They say experience is the greatest teacher," Westerman mused. "I might remember this forever."

Two men arrested after robbery, rape incident

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls police arrested two men Friday in connection with the beating, rape and robbery of an elderly woman Thursday.

At 4:55 p.m. Thursday, police said they were told of an injured woman at 119 Sidney St., according to Twin Falls Police Chief Tim Qualls. Investigation revealed the 78-year-old woman was severely beaten, raped and robbed between midnight and 1 a.m. Thursday, Qualls said.

A relative who visited the victim's home Thursday afternoon notified police upon finding the woman under bedcovers and with a mattress on top of her, the police chief said. The victim was taken to Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital. Qualls said the house had been ransacked and goods stolen.

At 9:56 a.m. Friday, police arrested David L. Rossi, 27, on charges of rape, robbery and assault with intent to commit murder. Bartlett B. Livingston, 18, was arrested on a charge of robbery, Qualls said.

Rossi, for whom police have a Twin Falls address of 587 Gardner Ave. and in Nevada address, was held in jail under $20,000 bond. Livingston, of 226 Lois St., Twin Falls, was held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Bellevue sets zoning hearing

BELLEVUE — Bellevue officials have scheduled for Feb. 24 at 7:30 p.m. a public hearing on proposed floating zoning for trailer homes.

To be held at City Hall, the hearing will allow comment prior to the Bellevue council's proposed enactment of a floating zone ordinance. The ordinance would allow the council to create MH (mobile home) zones anywhere within the unplatted portion of Bellevue. The unplatted portion of Bellevue is approximately equal in size to the presently platted portion, according to Mayor Claude Ballard.

The proposed floating zone ordinance would treat each application for a mobile home park or a mobile home subdivision as a separate rezoning application.

Rezoning are legislative acts of the council. Floating zones differ sharply from standard zones, which maps areas in advance and prescribes various permitted uses. Under standard zoning, mobile home park or mobile home subdivision applications would be handled administratively, not legislatively. Such applications could be accepted by the council only in areas previously zoned for mobile homes.

In a recent interview, Ballard said the floating zones offered advantages because courts are reluctant to interfere with legislative acts. Administrative acts, by contrast, are subject to judicial review.

Commissioners award two bids for MVMH

TWIN FALLS — Two bids were awarded Thursday by Twin Falls County Commissioners in connection with construction of the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital expansion.

Commissioner Merl Leonard said Darrell Heider, the county's solid waste director, submitted a high bid of $1,401 for removal of a storage building at the rear of the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital property. Only one other bid, $1,100 was received.

Heider will remove and salvage the building used for storage of county equipment and materials.

A second bid of $25,871 was accepted from Ullman Construction Co. of Twin Falls to build a new storage building for county equipment. Leonard said equipment used for solid waste disposal at areas such as Rogerson and Roseworth, and some supplies and materials, are stored in the building.

Leonard said most of the funds for replacing the storage facility will come from the hospital construction funds since it is necessary to move the existing building because of hospital expansion.

CSI student dies of viral meningitis

SALT LAKE CITY — A College of Southern Idaho student died Friday at LDS Hospital of viral meningitis.

John Angus, 19, of Winnemucca, Nev., contracted the disease Jan. 10 while attending CSI.

Angus was a sophomore and competed on the CSI rodeo team. He was attending a roping school when he became ill. He had been a patient at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital before being transferred to LDS Hospital last week.

"We received word last week that his condition was improving," CSI rodeo coach Shawn Davis said Friday after learning of the death. "The kids on the rodeo team had just signed a card and mailed it to him today (Friday). We thought he was recovering."

Davis said Angus's showed concern about regaining his rodeo scholarship at CSI shortly before his death.

"The kids are taking it pretty hard," Davis said. "It hasn't been a great week. On Monday we learn we aren't going to have a rodeo program after this year, and now this happens."

Angus, who competed in the National High School Rodeo in 1979, graduated from Winnemucca High School in 1979. His parents are Henry W. and Jane B. Angus of Winnemucca.

Accident suit filed

TWIN FALLS — Jonathan R. Magee and Joanne Wright have filed suit against Virgo R. Veeder of Twin Falls in 5th District Court in connection with an Oct. 10, 1979, auto accident.

The suit alleges a "vehicle driven" by Veeder struck the rear of a vehicle, owned by Magee and driven by his wife Mary K., while the Magee vehicle was halted for traffic on Blue Lakes Boulevard North. Wright was a passenger in the vehicle.

Wright is seeking $3,309 in medical costs, $6,690 in general damages and $4,000 in attorney fees. Magee is seeking $800 for damages to his vehicle and $300 in attorney fees.

One school bid entered

TWIN FALLS — One bid was submitted to the Twin Falls School District for replacement of steam heat coils in the high school building.

Home Plumbing of Twin Falls submitted a bid of $32,200.

The bid will be evaluated by the architectural firm, Ener-Con Inc., of Twin Falls. The decision on awarding the bid will be made at the Feb. 10 school board meeting.

Trentham admits error

FILER — Police Chief James Trentham Friday withdrew his allegation that a Filer garage propretor lied to him in connection with repair of a police car.

"We've had a long discussion about it, and we have determined it was a misunderstanding," Trentham said. "I made a mistake, and I'm willing to admit it."

Trentham's original comment concerning the garage owner arose of Thursday's Filer City Council meeting when the council said municipal cars must be repaired by city crews or at Filer garages. Special authorization is required for cars to be repaired outside the city.

Surcharge waters available

KIMBERLY — Applications for waiver of the Kimberly sewer surcharge are available at the Kimberly City Hall, Mayor Rosa Lea Whitehead announced Thursday.

She said the city is making waivers available to senior citizens, low income families and other needy persons.

The council approved plans to waive the charge for such people in a special meeting earlier this week. Deadline for applying is Feb. 23, the mayor said.

The surcharge is $4 per month. Whitehead said and is designed to pay for sewer improvements. She said the city of Kimberly is bonded to the maximum at this time because of rapid residential growth and limited water and sewer systems.

She urged persons qualified for waiver of the special $4 a month charge to make application at

What's what

Debate still continues over best-looking girls

Debate goes on over that question of which of the world's women are the most beautiful. A widely travelled airline pilot insists that the girls of Cambodia used to merit that distinction, and that those who've survived the recent years of horror there no doubt still do. The blue-eyed blondes of Northeastern Italy always get numerous votes in this election. Also those high-cheekboned ladies of Czechoslovakia. Our Love and War man admits no preference.

When your ties get dirty, sir, you might want to give them to a charity clothes shop, then buy them back all cleaned and pressed for 50 cents each. The late Billy Rose did that—in his younger years. Forget it. The price has multiplied a bit, certainly.

Nobody yet has explained why people born in June or July are more likely to get cancer, but the statistics out of Norway, Sweden and Great Britain indicate such to be the curious case.

DIVORCE

That girl who marries before the age of 20 is twice as likely to get divorced as she who marries later.

Q. How much crude oil goes into the making of a man's polyester suit?
A. About 70 cents' worth. At this writing.

Among youngsters who make New Year's resolutions, the girls outnumber the boys by about two to one, inexplicably.

Q. In golf, what's a maskee niblick?
A. The old name for the seven iron.

Studies show that three out of five cars damaged in accidents were moving at less than 5 m.p.h. at impact.

TRIVIA

Was none other than Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., who said, "A civilization defines itself by its trivia." What he meant by that I do not know, but if it's significant, this is certainly the place to quote it. Can you explain it? Never mind. It's not as good, anyhow, as: "A bird in the hand makes it hard to blow your nose."

Word is it only took 34 hours 25 minutes 55 seconds for a contractor in Albuquerque, N. M., recently to build a 1200-square-foot house with three bedrooms, two baths and a double garage. Is that possible?

Bus hijacking report discovered to be hoax

WALLACE (UPI)— The Shoshone County Sheriff's office is holding a man who Thursday night entered their office and reported a Greyhound Bus headed for Spokane had been hijacked and that he had managed to escape.

The report was a hoax, but Idaho State Troopers and area law enforcement officers followed the bus to Post Falls and shot two tires out of the big rig before finding out.

The man told the officers that one person had been killed in the takeover and that persons involved were carrying guns and knives.

By the time the bus reached Post Falls, the ISP had backed Kootenai County Sheriff's units join them and all of the units surrounded the unsuspecting driver and passengers.

The bus driver refused to open the door of the bus and passengers and officers exchanged words out a window.

The officers ordered the people to exit the bus with their hands over their heads and they refused.

One passenger said he wanted to see the officers' badges before he would get out.

The standoff came to an end when the driver began to pull away and the police shot out two tires.

After more exchanges, the police learned from the frightened group aboard the bus that there had been no hijacking.

Unofficial reports indicated the 38 year old man who made the hijacking report may have mental problems.

Shoshone County officers said the unidentified man would be held for Kootenai County authorities and that they will determine whether or not to level charges.

F&G panel shows 15 concerns

BOISE (UPI) — An Idaho Fish and Game Department panel assigned with reviewing the safety policies of department employees identified Thursday about 15 areas of concern which it will investigate and review in a final report.

The panel was appointed to investigate the department's safety procedures after two Fish and Game officers, Conley Elms and William Pogue, were slain while apparently investigating reports of poaching in southwestern Idaho.

According to department spokesman Hugh Wilson, the committee decided to investigate department policies regarding all department personnel — not only conservation officers — while they are in the field.

The list of safety concerns of the group included the risk of being assaulted by poachers and other violators as well as the hazards involved in sending employees to remote areas alone where they could be injured with no way to reach help, Wilson said.

The group also will investigate whether the department has the capability to extend communications to all employees when they are in the field.

Wilson said the committee will conduct their investigation by talking with department employees throughout the state as well as similar agencies in other states.

Law officials arrest woman accused of welfare fraud

BOISE (UPI) — The arrest of a Boise woman on charges of welfare fraud was announced Friday by Idaho Law Enforcement Director Kelly Pearce.

Pearce said Patricia Ann Bernard was arrested for receiving fraudulent payments made under the Aid to Dependent Children's Act, receiving and using food stamps illegally and receiving medical assistance ineligibly.

Mrs. Bernard received $14,028 in fraudulent payments, Pearce said.

He said investigators of the department's Welfare Fraud Bureau found that Mrs. Bernard had been abusing welfare support since 1978.

Mrs. Bernard was approved for welfare in 1974, but in 1978 she established her own business and continued to receive welfare payments while she claimed no employment, or, at most, part-time employment with her own company, Pearce said.

He said Mrs. Bernard was arrested Wednesday by Ada County Sheriff's deputies.

Pearce said Welfare Fraud Bureau was organized last October and since December warrants have been issued on 14 persons for fraudulently receiving public assistance.

He said nine arrests actually have been made, one of whom was illegally receiving ADC payments, food stamps and medical assistance from Utah.

The director said 12 of the 14 persons on whom warrants have been issued were in Ada County, one in Canyon County and one in Bonneville County.

Pearce said overpayments to the 14 persons involved total $50,754.

Redford's resource institute draws praise from both sides

MOSCOW (UPI) — Industry and environmentalists both like the idea of Robert Redford's proposed University of Idaho-Washington State University resource institute, in part, they think because they each think the other side needs it.

Louise Shaddock, executive director of the Idaho Forest Industry Council, said the goals of the Resource-Management Institute—a balanced approach to environmental issues—appear to match those of the "modern forest industry."

"If the institute can be successful in teaching a middle ground from which people with varying degrees of opinion on the uses of natural resources can operate" it will have the support of industry, she said in a story by Nancy Stator of The Daily Idahoian.

The institute began by actor and environmentalist Redford with a promise to raise a $5-million endowment is scheduled to take its first class of 20 students this fall.

Kirk Ewert, director of Industry Affairs for Boise Cascade Corp., was enthusiastic.

"Our reaction is extremely positive to an advocate of a balanced approach such as Redford being willing to back up his ideas with money," Ewert said.

The balanced approach institute graduates will have is supposed to result from their studying all areas of effect of environmental and industry decisions.

"Boise Cascade favors that approach," Ewert said.

"We think we are already using balanced thinking," he said. "There are many of our critics who do not agree."

As a result of training at the institute, Ewert said he hoped people "negative to our view will swing around to a more realistic viewpoint."

Dennis Baird of the Idaho Environmental Council also likes the institute idea.

Rock burst kills miner

WALLACE (UPI) — One miner was killed and another injured at the Sunshine Mine Thursday evening when a "rock burst" buried the men at the 5,000-foot level of the mine.

James Evans, 40, was apparently killed instantly, authorities said. The injured man, Keith Collins, 46, Smelterville, was listed in stable and satisfactory condition Friday morning at West Shoshone Hospital in Kellogg.

Collins was taken out of the mine on a stretcher Thursday night.

Rescue efforts went on throughout the night to find Evans. His body was located and removed from the mine about 10 a.m. Friday.

One miner said the force of the collapsing rock "caused it to rain rocks on the 4,200-foot level."

Evans was buried and Collins was partly buried, mine officials said.

Collins was conscious when he was taken from the mine, witnesses said. Company officials said the two men, who were work partners, were performing repair work when the accident occurred.

Sunshine officials and Mine Safety and Health Administration representatives were investigating the accident Friday.

McClure, Symms to discuss embargo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Idaho U.S. Sens. James McClure and Steve Symms announced Friday they are tentatively scheduled to meet with President Reagan Feb. 17 regarding the proposed continuation of the U.S. grain embargo to the Soviet Union.

McClure said "if the U.S. is to continue to embargo the sale and shipment of U.S. products to the Soviet Union, then that embargo must affect every segment of our economy, not just the nation's farmers."

"Agriculture must not, and should not carry the entire burden of a questionable punishment of Russia," he said.

McClure, Symms and 10 other senators requested the meeting with President Reagan to express their "any permanent continuation of the embargo becomes the administration policy."

"There is ample evidence that the U.S. grain embargo has only served to harm U.S. farmers to the delight of grain producers in other countries," McClure said. "Even U.S. exporters of agricultural commodities were not prevented from reselling foreign grain in Russia. Only the American farmer took the brunt of the embargo on the grain."

McClure said he would meet with several farm groups in Idaho the coming week before meeting with President Reagan.

Eagles even score with Dixie Rebels, 93-70

By MIKE PRATER
Times-News sports writer

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho had revenge on its mind all week.

It turned into sweet revenge Friday night as the Eagles disposed of the Dixie College Rebels 93-70 to even up the season's series at one win each. The Rebels knocked off the Eagles by four points following the Christmas break.

But it was different story Friday. Led by Frank Baines' 20 points, four other Eagles scored in double figures to generate CSI's drive-to-the-basket offense that frustrated Dixie.

Nearly every shot the Eagles took came within the key and many of those drew fouls that CSI converted into free throws. CSI used the charity tosses for 27 of its points, 15 more than Dixie's 12.

"My teams always take the ball inside. We very seldom shoot from outside. It makes it easier that way,"

Coach Dave Campbell said. "Tonight's win was a good one. We had good control on the boards and we shot the ball especially well. The guys wanted this one awful bad."

"But the game really could have been a rout if we played our cards right," he said. "We lost our intensity on the court at certain periods and made quite a few mental errors that caused turnovers. We had 15-20 of them and that's too many."

The Eagles spread the game open on a series of inside buckets — most of them coming off rebounds. At the 18:40 mark of the second half Baines slam dunk gave the Eagles a 16-point lead and the momentum it needed to carry them through the night.

"We really controlled the boards well, but once we got the ball we couldn't capitalize on it," Campbell said. "Once we get the ball we need to turn them into fast breaks for easy layups."

Michael Ingram hit another inside follow shot to give CSI its biggest lead of the night at 53-37 and seconds later the Rebels switched into a full-court press that CSI penetrated with no problem.

After Mark Owen hit on a series of free throws resulting from Dixie Coach Neil Roberts' third technical foul and ejection from the game and Baines hit another driving layup, CSI jumped out in front 85-68 with 2:28 left.

Tony Stone hit from 10 and Matt Swan connected on two from inside to give CSI a 25-point lead and its 21st win against four losses.

Bruins blast Idaho Falls

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News sports writer

TWIN FALLS — Bill Atkinson gave Twin Falls something it seldom enjoys this days — control of the middle.

The 6-4 senior came up with five or six blocked shots, a double handful of rebounds and paced the Bruins to a rollicking 84-62 decision over Idaho Falls Friday night.

Along the way the triplets sprung back into life, Clay Mecham, Gary Krumm and Lars Hovey combining for 52 points — and putting teeth in a full-court press — as Twin Falls had its best overall effort since the holiday tournament.

The victory lifted Twin Falls to 8-9 for the season with the key to a .500 season coming tonight at Skyline of Idaho Falls. The Bruins wind up at Nampa next Friday and host Highland next Saturday in the regular season finale.

"Bill Atkinson played a great game tonight. He had those blocked shots and he controlled the key for us tonight but just as important his rebounding got our fast break rolling," said Coach John Astorquia.

"I was surprised they were willing to come out and run with us," the coach said. "Our problem tonight was that at times we got out-of-control and were running faster than we can play."

"We played 26 minutes of good basketball and six of the worst I've seen in a long time," he said. "At times we looked like rats in the maze and the maze was covered with cheese. But at other times we played very well."

Despite the 84 points, Twin Falls had two long scoring lulls, about three minutes in the late second quarter and four minutes in the fourth without points.

"We started getting a little point greedy," Astorquia said. "At the end of the first half everyone wanted to shoot the ball. We had a little talk about that at halftime."

"I think we can do it," Astorquia said of the 500 season. "The key is Skyline tomorrow night. It looks like Skyline has had a little inconsistency through the season and I think they're still kinda searching for something to bring it all together. But they are becoming more consistent and I'm expecting a tough game. I know they like to work defense."

The key for us is stopping their front line. (Dave) Piper killed us last time. We just couldn't control him inside. I think we might start with Atkinson on him. Last time Piper had a great night. Everything he put up went in. Bill is playing his best basketball right now and that longer arm might upset Piper a little bit," the coach said.

Twin Falls had a little problem getting layins to go down in the first quarter but after Hovey and Steve Galley opened up a 6-2 lead, the Bruins never trailed.

Hovey, Krumm and Mecham came up with points for an 11-2 lead before Idaho Falls stouided. In the final two minutes, the Tigers got two field goals from Eric Walker and another from Jon Potter to narrow the count to 18-12.

In the second period Mecham warmed up with his 15 to 18-foot jumpers, hitting three straight while Idaho Falls replied on buckets by Potter. Galley's two free throws re-established a 16-point margin and the Bruin press then took deadly effect.

Mecham and Krumm stole the ball and caused turnovers over the next four minutes and at one point ran up a 15-point lead. But then came the first scoring lull as Idaho Falls stayed within 13 at intermission.

Krumm, who was 10-for-10 from the line, opened the second half with four points and Hovey added another. After a Mike Fledging bucket for Idaho Falls, Hovey hit twice, Mecham twice and Atkinson added another field goal. At that point Twin Falls had it 56-39.

Connors handles Borg

TORONTO (UPI) — Jimmy Connors, ending a subservience that had lasted 26 months, defeated five-time Wimbledon champion Bjorn Borg, 7-5, 6-3, Friday night in the third round of the $500,000 Tennis Challenge.

The 28-year-old Connors, in one of the most memorable comebacks ever staged against Borg, rallied from a 4-0 deficit to take the first set with three service breaks and completely dominated the second set as Borg's machine-like style broke down.

It was Connors' first victory over the super Swede since the South American Open in Nov., 1978, and re-opened one of the most colorful and dramatic rivalries in tennis. Since 1978, Borg had run off nine straight victories.

"We produced great tennis," said Connors, who claimed the $25,000 bounty as the first player in the tournament to defeat Borg. "Everytime I play him, there is great anticipation. I enjoy it and I'm going to play him again. That's what's great about it."

Connors, who appeared to be rushing his shots in the early going, tied the first set when he broke Borg's service and deadlocked the game 5-5, and began a string of four straight service breaks against his No. 1-ranked opponent.

"The last five or six times I played him I've had some difficulty but I've always been anxious for the next match. When we play, we battle. And I always know I'll face him five or six times a year — that's beautiful for me, beautiful for tennis."

One of the few players in the game who does not shy from rallying with Borg, Connors roared out to a 5-0 lead in the second set before Borg managed to break back once after the outcome was academic.

The late-night match came as a much-needed thriller to a tournament that had been plagued with poor attendance, temper tantrums and a default by Ilie Nastase because of obscene language and gestures.

Some 17,000 fans who paid up to $20 a seat — $2,000 for boxes for the entire week — attended the third-round matches, which were essentially extravagant exhibitions.

Borg, Connors, John McEnroe and Vika Gerulaitis were among the best berths in Saturday's semifinals after emerging from the first two rounds undefeated under the tournament's double-elimination format. In semifinal action, McEnroe faces Borg, while Connors meets Gerulaitis.

McEnroe earlier staged a methodical rout, using a strong return and superior placement, to prevail 6-3, 6-3 over Gerulaitis.

McEnroe and Gerulaitis stage a one-hour, 20-minute match which had only one rally that went more than 10 hits, and was for the most part a case of "my serve your serve."

"It was really a case of one player holding serve until the other one broke," said McEnroe, the number two-ranked player in the world. "He was serving very well at times and he made a lot of aces. But I had a good return and I was getting good placement."

The 22-year-old U.S. Open champion relied on his customary aggressive play at the net to break the seventh-ranked Gerulaitis in the eighth game of the first set and the seventh game of the second set.

Gerulaitis served six aces but was often erratic. He lost the first set when he double faulted in the ninth game.

McEnroe said he was not concerned about who he met in Saturday's match.

"It doesn't really matter whether I face Jimmy or Bjorn Borg but I do want to know just who it will be when I turn in for the night," he said. "I wouldn't change anything about my preparation like I wouldn't eat a hamburger if I faced Borg and a steak if I faced Connors. But mentally you like to know who you're facing the next day."

In afternoon matches between players already eliminated from the semifinals, American Sandy Mayer defeated Wojtek Fibak of Poland, 6-7, 6-3, 6-2.

Promoter King steps in to help save big boxing card

NEW YORK (UPI) — A scandal-rocked Feb. 23 four-fight spectacular that officially was called off Friday has been rescued in part by promoter Don King.

At least two of the bouts are expected to be rescheduled for Madison Square Garden either late March or April.

King said he answered an appeal from Sam Glass, president of Tiffany Promotions and after a four-hour early morning meeting agreed to participate in the new fight program.

The heavyweight bout between No. 1 ranked Gerry Cooney and ex-champion Ken Norton and the World Boxing Council super bantamweight title fight between champion Wilfredo Gomez and Mike Ayala will go on with new contract negotiations.

The aftermath of the Muhammad Ali Professional Sports, Inc. (MAPS) scandal in which Harold J. Smith, the chief executive officer of MAPS, has been accused of embezzling $21.3 million from a California bank, finds contestants in the other two scheduled bouts seeking new promoters.

The WBA welterweight title bout between champion Thomas Hearns and ex-champion Wilfred Benitez probably will be staged at the Silverdome in Pontiac, Mich., although there are indications New Orleans also is bidding to hold the fight in the Louisiana Superdome.

Momentarily, an opportunity as been lost to unify the light heavyweight division titles held by Matthew Saad Muhammad (WBC) and Eddie Mustafa Muhammad (WBA). Philadelphia has been mentioned as a potential site for a championship meeting since both fighters are heavily backgrounded in the city.

Glass told a Friday news conference that he tried to put on the fight show as originally scheduled but the demands by participants to receive the exorbitant purses promised by Smith, "was far in excess of what we could afford. I asked the fighters' managers to be reasonable. I knew the purses were outlandish and the gate could not possible pay for it. We were depending on closed circuit facilities to give us a profit."

Vandals hold off ISU

POCATELLO (UPI) — Brian Kellerman scored 21 points and Dan Forge made two critical free throws with six seconds left as Idaho maintained its Big Sky Conference basketball lead with a 58-58 win over Idaho State Friday night.

Idaho State held four three-point leads in the game's last 10 minutes but Kellerman's outside shooting kept bringing the Vandals back. They got the lead with 2:19 left at Ron Maben's basket under the net.

There was no scoring from one on until six seconds were left, when Forge made both ends of a one-and-one to tie the win. He had missed a one-and-one with 25 seconds left.

Brent Koetter closed out the scoring on a drive at the buzzer.

The Vandals maintained board domination and shot a sizzling 65 percent from the field to Idaho State's 50 percent. Idaho controlled the boards 40-20 with Maben getting eight. Maben backed Kellerman's hot shooting with 14 and Phil Hopson had 10.

Dale Wilkinson and Byron Williams topped Idaho State with 16 points each, and Robert Tate had 14, all in the first half.

The loss was only Idaho State's third in the last 12 games.

BSU gets past Weber

ODEN, Utah (UPI) — Reserve Derek Anderson scored a game-high 14 points and Eric Bailey hit two baskets near the end of the game in leading Boise State to a 44-39 win over Weber State Friday night in Big Sky Conference action.

The win was the third straight in league play for the lowly Broncos, now 3-5 in the Big Sky. It was Weber State's sixth consecutive loss. Bailey added 12 points for BSU and Larry McKinney 10 — as Anderson, Bailey and McKinney scored all but eight of the Broncos' points.

Royal Edwards led Weber State with just 10 points. The Wildcats are now 4-17 on the season while the Broncos are 5-14. Weber State is 1-7 in the league and in last place in the Big Sky.

Boise State slowly pulled out to a 30-22 halftime lead, hitting 75 percent from the field. But Weber State switched to a man-to-man defense in the second half to lead briefly, 33-38 with 7:30 to go.

But the Broncos grabbed the lead back at 3:33 on Bailey's 15-foot jumper, following a Wildcat turnover. BSU's press forced another turnover and Bailey scored again, this time on a layup. The Broncos then scored the final points on a layin by Kevin Ross.
