

A twisted wall and a few stalls were all that remained of one of Hank Goedhart's two barns after powerful winds hit

Winds kill area power, drop trees

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Winds exceeding 40 mph Thursday night felled several trees, toppled a barn and apparently caused a minor truck accident.

The National Weather Service in Boise called Thursday's storm, which left many of the Magic Valley's rural residents without electricity, "the most vigorous" of the season.

For Hank and Pat Goedhart of rural Wendell, the storm packed extra muscle. Walls of a 39- by 200-foot cattle barn at the couple's Good Hart Dairy near the Snake River Canyon collapsed under the force of Thursday's winds. Gusts carried the structure's corrugated metal roof 100 feet, according to Pat Goedhart, who said no livestock was injured.

She said that upon her husband's return home late Thursday, she told him a surprise was waiting. Assuming she had acquired lambs the couple wants, he went outdoors with a knowing smile, only to find the barn, fallen like a house of cards. The barn cannot be reconstructed from the scattered materials, the Goedharts said.

Idaho State Police said wind apparently caused a freight truck near Juniper, just north of the Utah border, off the pavement of Interstate 84 and into the median strip, where the vehicle jackknifed.

Police said driver Irvin Smith, age unknown, of Salt Lake City, was uninjured. The truck he operated is owned by Garret Freightlines Inc. of Pocatello.

An unknown number of Magic Valley residents found themselves without electricity Thursday night as several trees and an abundance of limbs were blown into power lines, according to Ernie Davis of Idaho Power Co. Davis said outages also occurred when winds slapped lines together.

The bulk of households affected were in rural areas nearly spanning the width of the Magic Valley. Davis said it's unknown how many customers were affected.

"There could have been 2,000 customers at one time," he said, noting 70 crewmen worked all night trying to take care of one problem after another. Crews larger than usual remained on duty Friday morning trying to rectify the storm's damage, he said.

Power was first interrupted at about 6:30 p.m. Thursday. Sporadic outages continued to occur through the night and Friday morning, he said. All service was restored by early Friday afternoon, Davis said, with the longest outage lasted three to four hours and affected part of the Magic Valley's east side.

Space shuttle's test firing called a total success

But strike threatens April launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Three rocket engines of America's space shuttle roared to life Friday in a successful 20-second test-firing.

The test showed the reusable shuttle Columbia is ready to take U.S. astronauts into space for the first time since 1975.

But jubilation of NASA officials was tempered by the walkout of 800 workers against the Boeing Co., a strike that could delay the scheduled April launch date.

There have been a host of problems and cost overruns associated with the shuttle program since its inception in 1972. But Friday's flawless 20-second engine firing was a big boost to the $3.6 billion project.

"From everything I've seen, it was a great test," said James R. Thompson Jr., manager of the 375,000-pound thrust power plants. "It appears that it was totally perfect from an engine standpoint."

Shuttle operations chief George Page said it gave the launch crew additional confidence that the revolutionary winged orbital transport will be ready to carry two men around the earth 36 times during the week of April 5. April 7 is the date officials are hoping to launch the spacecraft.

The two astronauts scheduled to fly the Columbia, John Young and Robert Crippen, got a bird's eye view of the spectacle, circling the firing pad in separate jet training aircraft.

Their launch will be America's first manned space flight since 1975 and will come at a time when the Soviet Union has been moving ahead steadily with its manned space missions in an apparent effort to challenge U.S. space pre-eminence.

Kennedy Space Center Director Richard Smith said the sudden walkout after the launch rehearsal by more than 800 members of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers might disrupt launch preparations.

"I was rather shocked that the walkout took place today," said Smith, obviously angry about the strike. He said test completion work was still under way when the walkout occurred.

"In fact, we run the risk of jeopardizing some of the flight hardware," Smith said. "It puts us in the position of using every means that is available and any people we can get to do that job."

Wins key committee

School equalization bill set

BOISE (UPI) — The House property-tax subcommittee endorsed a plan today to equalize school-district contributions to the state foundation formula at 1 1/2 mills, boosting levies an estimated $4 million statewide.

The bill, designed to create equity in taxpayers' contributions to the statewide school-support system, will undergo a couple of minor technical changes and probably be sent to the House Revenue and Taxation Committee next week.

State Public Instruction Superintendent Jerry Evans said he was happy about the subcommittee's action, although the panel had pared down his initial proposal. He wanted members to accept a 17-mil equalization figure, at a projected statewide impact of $18.6 million.

The House subcommittee, with three non-voting state senators in observance, agreed on a unanimous voice vote to endorse the plan.

If the equalization measure becomes law, patrons of a number of Idaho school districts now being taxed at less than 1 1/2 mills would be required to pay up to that level.

As an example, patrons of the Coeur d'Alene School District, now taxed at 9 mills, would be assessed at a higher rate.

In districts such as Boise, where the rate is 17 mills, taxpayers will not be asked to pick up larger levies. But taxpayers in such high-rate districts would not pay less, either. Any taxes above 1 1/2 mills would go straight to the individual district's coffers.

Under the new-computation formula for property-tax levies, 1 1/2 mills translates into 25 hundredths of a percent.

"This would bring some people who are under-taxed up to the level of everyone else," Evans said. "It deals more with equity than anything we've done in a long time."

He said the equalization bill was a tool of fairness because taxpayers in Boise should not be required to put more money into the statewide public-school formula than the rest of the state.

"The people in Boise will enjoy it the most," the schools chief said.

"This may head off a taxpayer revolt down the line. I think people become more upset about unfairness than the amount they pay. The whole thing with this is a desire to deal with taxpayers equitably."

Evans stressed that although the bill would drive up taxes about $4 million, taxpayers would not again be paying the $7.1 million extra burden placed on them under the state's emergency spending holdback last fall.

Levies were knocked out of balance by the 1 percent property-tax limitation, Evans said. The tax freeze kept districts at their 1978 collection level and prevented them from achieving uniformity, he noted.

Hanzel is favorite for selection as Democratic state chairman

BOISE — Idaho Democrats are scheduled to name a new party chairman today, and Marie Hanzel of Burley is the odds-makers' favorite.

The state party central committee will meet in Boise to replace current Chairman Wayne Fuller of Boise, who is stepping down.

The meeting will be a warm-up for tonight's annual Democratic Jefferson-Jackson Day banquet. On hand will be Gov. John Evans, former Secretary of the Interior Cecil Andrus and other top state Democrats. Former Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton, a front-runner for the chairmanship of the Democratic National Committee, will be the keynote speaker at the dinner at the Western Idaho Fairgrounds.

A workshop "for all Democrats, independents and any individuals concerned about the unwholesome political drift to the extreme right" will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. in the Fort Boise Community Center.

Entitled "Political Issues and Strategies for the 1980s," the workshop features talks from Andrus, Larry LaRocco, formerly of Sen. Frank Church's staff, and others.

The central committee meeting at 1:30 p.m. in the community center is expected to choose Hanzel as chairman over Mark Roby of Boise, according to political observers.

Hanzel, 45, is credited with running a good though unsuccessful race in her first try for public office against Sen. Dean Van Engelen, R-Burley, in last year's election.

She is a former Cassia County Democratic chairman and lists her occupation as homemaker and stenographer.

FTC proposal would limit Albertson's buying new stores

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

BOISE — A proposal by the Federal Trade Commission would prohibit Albertson's Inc. from buying more than five supermarkets, in certain cases, without government permission.

The consent order requires Albertson's to get permission from the FTC before purchasing five or more stores if any of the stores is in one of the 15 states where the company already has stores.

The company must also get permission to go ahead with the purchase if any of the stores are within 300 miles of an Albertson's store or 500 miles of an Albertson's warehouse.

The decision, announced in an FTC newsletter, is an agreement between the supermarket chain and federal officials. Before the order can be enforced, 60 days are allowed for public comment. The comment period ends April 7.

The FTC order stems from Albertson's purchase in 1978 of about 40 Fazio's supermarkets in southern California. The purchase of the seventh largest supermarket chain in the southern California area vaulted the then ninth-ranked Albertson's into sixth place.

This prompted the FTC to file a complaint charging the purchase reduced competition, increased concentration and threatened to lead to more concentration.

The two companies had previously been "direct and substantial competitors," according to the FTC complaint. The purchase lessened competition among all grocery stores in the Los Angeles area, it said.

Albertson's Senior Vice President and General Counsel

Michael F. Reuling said Friday because the purchase of Fazio's was a large acquisition, the FTC was given a report on the purchase before it was completed. The agency chose not to try to stop the purchase in court, he said, so Albertson's was surprised when the FTC filed a complaint after the purchase was complete.

The proposed consent order is an agreement hammered out by Albertson's and the FTC over about two years of "sporadic" negotiations, Reuling said.

By signing a consent order, Albertson's does not admit guilt, he stressed, noting the company does not believe it was guilty of any wrongdoing.

The FTC, by agreeing to the consent order, shows it is "obviously not confident they would prevail" in court, Reuling claimed. In addition, a court action would have been an expense neither side was eager to bear, he said.

Once in force, after the comment period, the order will remain in effect for 10 years.

Reuling said the company is not particularly concerned about the order because historically most of its growth has been "internal."

"In our history, we have not made very many acquisitions," Reuling said. Most of the company's growth has come from building new stores, which it would not be restricted from doing by the FTC order.

Albertson's was most concerned that the FTC might try to force it to sell some of the stores acquired through the Fazio's purchase, Reuling said. Since that is not part of the order, he said, the company should be able to live with it easily.

"We don't think this is going to cramp our style," Reuling said.

He said there is little chance the order will be changed after the public comment period expires. Once a company and the FTC agree on an order, it is "extremely rare" the order is changed, he said.

Block: loss of food stamps can be made up by tax cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans who lose food stamp benefits would make up for them with tax savings in President Reagan's total economic package proposal, Agriculture Secretary John Block said Friday.

His statement was challenged by a food advocacy group. Block did not give figures to back up his assertion, but insisted, "They're going to make it up very easily in the tax savings and we don't have to do all that paperwork and fool with it."

Reagan's proposed $1.8 billion cuts in fiscal 1982 food stamp spending are expected to affect a group generally called the "working poor."

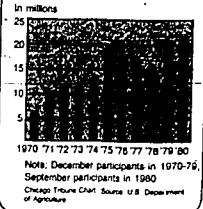

For example, the administration proposes to drop 300,000 to 400,000 people from the rolls by lowering the income ceiling for eligibility for a family of four from $1,026 to $808 a month.

Jeff Kirsch of the Washington-based Food Research and Action Center, disagreed, saying that a three-person household with an income of $8,113 would pay $27 less in taxes but lose $372 in food stamp benefits.

Kirsch also said other proposed cuts go across the board and would not affect only recipients who make the most money.

"It's a pure distortion of the cuts to say they're targeting the people at the top," he said.

Persons receiving food stamps in U.S.

Block defended a proposal to require cuts in benefits to households whose children get free school lunches. "That's only reasonable, that's only fair," Block said.

It would not be an "administrative nightmare," he said, because reductions, estimated to be no more than $11.50 per month per child, would be based on a standard number of days children go to school.

"It gives a whole new meaning to the fact that there's no such thing as a free lunch," Kirsch said.

Block said Americans should look at the Reagan package as a whole, as an effort to cut inflation and taxes and get the nation "back on its feet," rather than concentrate on narrow concerns.

"Everyone's going to lose some kind of federal benefit," he said.

Farmers will have to pay higher interest costs on government loans, rural electric consumers will have to pay more and some people will get less in food stamp benefits, he said.

The administration also proposes to reduce deductions for shelter, child care and medical expenses used in determining food stamp benefits and to base increases in benefits due to inflation on actual past increases rather than on projected increases.

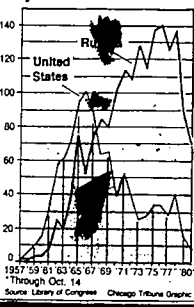

Currently, when people become eligible for benefits they get a whole month's benefits. The administration proposes people who become eligible in the last half of the month receive benefits for only a half month.

Block this week asked Congress to appropriate another $1.25 billion to keep the program from running out of money by the end of July.

He said he wanted to keep benefits at "current levels" through Sept. 30, the end of the fiscal year, but asked for a little less money than is needed.

Current calculations indicate that $1.4 billion is needed in addition to the $9.7 billion already appropriated for the year.

Successful U.S. and Russian space launches

The U.S. may return to space in April following successful testing of shuttle engines Friday

Shuttle

"Probably the union will be complaining about that, but they put us in a surprise position and we'll have to take any means we can."

The machinists contract with Boeing, a prime contractor on the space shuttle program, expired in January and a wage dispute has kept the sides from agreeing on a new one.

Smith said Boeing has plans to bring in supervisory personnel to handle the many technical support jobs performed by the union members. But he says it is possible the strike could delay the launch.

The engine firing marked a spectacular end to a long and troubled countdown. Many procedural delays disrupted preparations since Monday night, but once the ship was fully fueled and began the final minutes of the countdown, things went better than anyone dared anticipate.

"I think it was fantastic," Smith said.

"It's just amazing, the first time through," Pages said.

The three engines ignited a fraction of a second apart, producing a thunderous roar and a pale orange flame, which generated billowing clouds of steam when the hot gases struck water sprayed on the pad to try to suppress noise and cool the structure.

During the unprecedented test, the engines reached precisely full power, then throttled back to 94 percent power and returned to 100 percent. Their eight-foot wide nozzles rocked back and forth as if they were steering the ship into orbit.

Considerable work remains, however, before the Columbia will get the final "go" for launch.

The biggest job still ahead is the repair of 88 square feet of insulation that had separated from a portion of the shuttle's external "piggy back" propellant tank.

Engineers first must construct a special bridge-like assembly to extend from the shuttle's service tower to the area to be repaired. And then they must replace and rebond the insulation. Page said about 20 days had been set aside for that operation.

A quick inspection during the fueling process produced no evidence of any further insulation damage during the test firing, Page said.

But just in case, a cargo net had been stretched around the damaged area to keep any loose insulation from falling onto the Columbia's unrelated ceramic heat shield tiles.

The shuttle, born in 1972 under the Nixon administration, is the first reusable manned space ship of the United States. Its specially designed shape creates a "lifting effect," enabling the shuttle to return from space and "fly" to an airport landing for use again and again.

The developmental problems of the past few years have pushed the project's cost to $9.6 billion — 26 percent over budget — but it still is considered by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration as the best way to reduce the cost of doing business in space.

The project has received continued support from former President Jimmy Carter and most recently from President Reagan because the Defense Department and other federal agencies are counting on the shuttle to carry satellites routinely to and from orbit.

Three shuttles in addition to the Columbia are being built and initial work is beginning on a fifth. They will replace today's stable-of-rockets, which drop into the ocean after use.

Quake rocks Wasatch front

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — An earthquake centered along the Wasatch Fault shook Utah County awake early Friday, tossing one man out of his waterbed but causing little damage.

Research seismologist Walter Arabasz said the quake registered 3.6 on the Richter scale at the University of Utah measuring station in Salt Lake City. The U.S. Geological Survey office in Colorado said the quake registered 3.5.

Arabasz said the jolt at 2:13 a.m. MST was relatively minor, but was still strong enough to awaken many people. He said one Utah County man was thrown from his waterbed by a wave action the quake started.

Jim Tracy, civil preparedness director for Utah County, said the tremor was felt from American Fork on the north of Utah Lake to Payson on the south. Tracy said no serious damage has been reported.

Atlanta ups list to 20 now

ATLANTA (UPI) — Police scoured the area around a housing project Friday for a 13-year-old boy who disobeyed his mother's orders to stay in the house, slipped away and never returned — the 20th black youth to vanish in the city.

Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown ordered the case of Curtis Walker, who appeared to fit almost perfectly the profile of the killer's victims, turned over to the special task force investigating the murders.

He also ordered the task force to add to its list the case of Aaron Wyche, 10, found dead under a railroad trestle last June and originally thought to have died accidentally.

That brought to 20 the names now on the task force's list.

Bitterman to die today?

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — Leftist guerrillas holding American Bible translator Chester Bitterman Friday threatened to kill him within 24 hours unless the U.S.-based missionary group he works for agrees to get out of Colombia.

The new deadline was set for 4 p.m. MST Saturday in a telephone communication from the guerrillas.

Earlier the guerrillas granted a 15-day extension on the original deadline that fell Thursday. But they said Friday they had changed their plans "due to the intransigence of the government and the Defense Ministry which have not permitted the Summer Institute of Linguistics to leave the country and have hampered the negotiations."

The guerrillas have accused the institute, which translates Bibles into native Indian tongues, of being a front for the CIA.

Alcohol projects win OK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary John Block decided Friday to go ahead with $31.7 million in federal loan guarantees for 15 alcohol fuels projects approved by predecessor Bob Bergland shortly before the November election.

One of Block's first acts in office was to halt processing of the loan guarantees because of charges by former Inspector General Thomas McBride that improper procedures were used in hasty approvals.

After detailed review of each of the projects, the department said, Block's "concern has been resolved and his directive not to proceed with these types of loans is now rescinded."

Among the projects now back in business is Power Alcohol-Idaho of Rexburg.

Gasohol lure saved

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

BOISE — Idaho's year-old gasohol industry was rescued from a "death sentence" in the Legislature Friday.

A bill to repeal a 4-cent gas-tax rebate for gasohol, which was due to be voted on, was jerked off the floor of the Senate.

"We're asking for democracy," Larry Janss, part owner of a new alcohol plant at Wendell said at a press conference. "We were never informed or invited to give our opinion."

Alcohol manufacturers and distributors, who learned only days ago that identical repeals were moving rapidly through both the House and the Senate, blitzed the Legislature Thursday and Friday.

Sen. J. Wilson Steen, R-Mountain Home, sponsor of the Senate bill to repeal the gasohol rebate, got unanimous consent to return it to the Transportation Committee, where hearings are promised.

The day before, Steen told the Times-News that alcohol "should stand on its own merits."

In the House, Speaker Ralph

Olmstead agreed to hold the other repeal measure until an alternate source of funding "is in sight."

Legislators passed the tax break last year, and Janss said it spurred the construction of three alcohol plants with a total capacity of 1.2 million gallons per year. Four more plants will be constructed in the coming year at a cost of $80 million to $90 million, he said.

"If the Legislature reverses itself," he said, "this will announce the death sentence to the new and budding gasohol industry."

That would cause the loss of hundreds of jobs, millions of dollars and "in a small way, the energy future" of the state, he said.

The 4-cents-a-gallon rebate amounts to 40-cents per gallon of alcohol because gasohol is a mixture of 90-percent gasoline and 10-percent alcohol.

An additional 4-cent federal rebate makes gasohol competitive with gasoline, Janss said.

The Idaho rebate plan expires in 1984, when the industry plans to be fully competitive.

The estimated $500,000 rebate fund comes from withholding 50-percent of the gas-tax refund that farmers and other off-road vehicle users receive.

Repeal was recommended this week by the House Agricultural Affairs Committee and the Senate Transportation Committee. The House bill was sponsored by Rep. Dwight Horsch, D-Aberdeen, and backed by the Idaho Farm Bureau.

"We have not been represented by our representatives," Janss charged.

Arthur Rathburn of Twin Falls, who is part of a corporation trying to build an alcohol plant in the Magic Valley, said the Farm Bureau "is against gasohol but where the funding is coming from." "And, he said, the alcohol industry is "not bucking" the legislators and groups and agrees small farmers are being hurt.

But Janss said he wants an alternate funding bill passed before the rebate measure is repealed.

Option tax bill goes to floor

BOISE (UPI) — House Revenue and Taxation Committee Chairman Steve Antone broke two 6-6 tie votes Friday to send to the House floor Rep. Rusty Barlow's proposed constitutional amendment that would authorize local-option sales and income taxes.

Antone, R-Rupert, first cast the decisive vote on a motion to kill the joint resolution, then repeated the action on a motion to report it out of committee with a "do pass" recommendation.

Barlow, R-Pocatello, said his measure was tight enough to prevent local officials from succeeding with frivolous local-option measures, but his reasoning, failed to sway six committee members.

Reps. Gordon Hollifield, R-Jerome, and Wayne Tibbitts, R-Rigby, said the amendment, if approved by the Legislature and the electorate, would penalize consumers who lived in towns or counties without local-option taxes but did business in whichever did.

Hollifield said if Twin Falls voters imposed a local sales tax, residents of outlying areas would be forced to pay the tax but wouldn't benefit from it. Tibbitts painted a similar picture for the Idaho Falls area.

After the committee meeting, Hollifield wrapped the sliding scale for elections in Barlow's proposal.

Under the plan, a simple majority would be sufficient to pass a ballot measure only if 65 percent of the registered voters went to the polls. On the other end of the scale, when between 50 percent and 66 percent of those registered turned out, two-thirds approval would be needed. No measure would pass if less than 50 percent of the registered voters went to the polls.

"It's too complicated," Hollifield said. "It looks all right on paper, but when you get something like this, it's hard to get the people to understand it. We'd be better to stay on a simple majority or a two-thirds majority."

Hollifield predicted he would get enough support on the House floor to defeat the proposal.

Barlow headed an unusual coalition of conservative and moderate committee members. He and Rep. Wendy Ungriht, R-Boise — usually hard-line opponents of tax increases of any kind — got aid from moderates such as Rep. Michael Gwartzney, R-Boise.

"This is tight enough that cities or counties aren't going to be passing option taxes unless there's really a need and a desire for it by the community," Barlow said.

Mrs. Ungriht said she supported the proposed constitutional change because the fathers of the 1 percent property-tax law included in the tax-slashing document a provision endorsing local-option taxes if the voters desired.

New pay plan cuts 400 jobs

BOISE (UPI) — A proposed 7-percent salary increase for state employees, with only $4 million to fund the wage hikes, would result in agencies receiving an average of one-third of the personnel money they need — and reductions in the state's workforce of about 400 positions.

Computations prepared for the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee Friday showed that the 7 percent wage hike and 1 percent merit increase proposed in the Idaho House would give departments an average of 31 percent of the money needed to fund the increase, assuming lawmakers stand firm on their plans to provide only $4 million toward the pay package.

Legislative-fiscal analyst Mark Falconer told the budget-setting committee that the proposal also would result in the elimination of 400 to 430 positions across the state.

Analysts for the governor's office said they would present a detailed report to the committee on Monday concerning the actual number of people who would have to be laid off their jobs under the plan — but they said preliminary studies indicate that about 200 state jobs were unfilled as of Jan. 1.

But legislators on the joint committee — both Republican and Democratic — said the salary question is not as easily solved as the tabulations would indicate. Both Sen. Mike Mitchell, D-Lewiston, and Sen. Dean Van Engelen, R-Burley, said the computations carry a clear message — that setting state salaries will be more complicated than expected.

DEAN VAN ENGELEN needs more flexibility

Mitchell said he believed the committee would be forced to go through every agency's budget and identify programs and employees that could be curtailed or eliminated. He said ongoing across-the-board reductions in staff would not work, for example, in the Department of Finance because that agency already has two vacant bank-examiner positions. Those examiners are needed, he said, because state law requires that all Idaho banks be audited regularly.

In addition, he said, another smaller agency — the Department of Insurance — currently has no vacancies, meaning that an across-the-board cut in salaries would require that department to eliminate people, not just already vacant positions.

Van Engelen similarly said he believed the committee should begin looking at the pay package by scrutinizing smaller agencies such as the Insurance and Finance departments to see where cuts could be made. He said lawmakers then should turn to personnel packages for the larger departments — such as Health and Welfare and education.

"I think what we'll do with the larger agencies is just take the amount of funds out of their budgets, and give them the flexibility to decide where they will cut personnel," Van Engelen said.

7% state worker compromise plan is introduced

BOISE (UPI) — The latest in a long string of state employee pay resolutions was introduced today by the House State Affairs Committee.

House Majority Leader Walter Little, R-New Plymouth, said it was a compromise proposal pounded out by House and Senate GOP leaders.

The measure calls for a general raise of 7 percent plus a merit increase of 1 percent. The resolution was agreed upon Thursday afternoon in the House Republican Caucus.

"This is not a very good compromise," said Rep. Melvin Hammond, House minority leader.

Rep. Carl Braun, D-Rofino, said he "would hate to be a state employee if the resolution passed" and "has someone confiscate my seniority." He was referring to two bills running as companions to the resolution. They would drastically change seniority and longevity rules in state government.

Criticizes legislative inaction

PTA official seeks schools rescue

BOISE (UPI) — An Idaho State PTA official bluntly told members of a House committee today that quick fiscal action rather than "diddling" was needed to rescue the public schools.

But the speech merely triggered resentment on the panel.

"We have a problem in this state, a problem which has existed for something like 50 years, of funding education adequately and equitably," said Marianne Donnelly, Pocatello, the PTA's legislative chairman. "It is time to face it."

"Some of you seem to feel we're just experiencing a temporary crunch; things will just be fine next year if only the economy picks up a little. You are wrong — there are fundamental flaws in the system."

Her remarks produced grumbling on the House Education Committee and a brief outburst from Rep. T.W. Silvers, R-Twin Falls, who said he resented the tone of the speech.

"You ought to run for the Legislature if you have all the answers," Silvers said.

Ms. Donnelly said Idaho's present "poor man" system did not produce enough revenue to fund education in Idaho. "This is an unconscionable failure and we ought to be ashamed of ourselves."

She blasted lawmakers for considering the elimination of kindergartens.

"You... must surely realize that public schools are not 'fat, sacred cows' if your major options to reduce educational expenditures are to amputate the base of the system — kindergartens, or to wipe out what little we provide for our exceptionally talented children."

She also said the education-funding system was unequal and unfair as a result of the 1 percent property-tax law and that the Legislature had done nothing to remedy the problem.

Also, the current way of funding education year-by-year is "chaotically unpredictable," Ms. Donnelly said.

Chamber endorses fee hike

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce has endorsed the Idaho Fish and Game Department's efforts to increase license fees.

After the board of directors unanimously approved a resolution supporting the proposed increases, the chamber informed Magic Valley legislators of their stand.

Dave Capps, general manager of Twin Falls radio stations KEEP and KEZL, acted as spokesman for the chamber. House Bill 58 would raise the basic resident combination license from $12 to $15 and from $60 to $75 for non-residents. Capps said. Other fees would be increased by only a small amount.

These are user fees and the chamber feels the users with the Fish and Game Department to continue its effective program of management of Idaho's fish and game, Capps said.

'Final' legislative parking plan introduced

BOISE (UPI) — Senate Majority Leader James Risch, Boise, Friday revealed a plan to "put to rest once and for all" the yearly legislative debates over public parking near the Statehouse in Boise.

"This is my seventh year (in the Legislature) and every year we start out with parking problems," Risch told the Senate State Affairs Committee.

"I've always been opposed to any kind of parking legislation, but this year I've had it up to here," he added, pointing to his chin.

"I think this bill will take care of the problem once and for all."

Risch said his bill would eliminate all city parking meters in the block immediately surrounding the Statehouse. Only 46 meters would be lost, he said, which should lessen the city's opposition to providing free parking for lawmakers and their constituents.

In addition, he said, the bill would instruct the Department of Administration, for the first time, to develop and enforce a parking plan for all state-owned facilities land in Boise.

Two other measures concerning parking also have surfaced this legislative session.

Bill seeks drinking age hike

BOISE (UPI) — A bill to increase Idaho's drinking age from 19 to 21 was introduced Friday by the Senate State Affairs Committee.

Sponsor Sen. J. Marsden Williams, R-Idaho Falls, said the committee agreed to introduce the bill for the purposes of discussion. He said the measure would return to the committee for hearings.

Williams said the purpose of increasing the drinking age was to cut down on the number of alcohol-related accidents in the state — "and not just traffic accidents."

"Kids at these beer busts are doing things they wouldn't do if they didn't have liquor," he said. "There's been a considerable increase in consumption of alcoholic beverages and a considerable increase in the accident rate, particularly under the lower drinking age. Even people younger than the drinking age are getting access to it."

In other legislative action:
 • A proposed constitutional amendment to abolish the Idaho Board of Correction is premature, the co-chairmen of the Citizens Prison Review Task Force said Friday.

Sen. Mike Mitchell, D-Lewiston, and Rep. Lawrence Knigge, R-Filer, said they would oppose the measure — which surfaced in the House Judiciary, Rules and Administration Committee Thursday — at least during the present legislative session.

The purpose of waiting, they said, is to develop a plan for creating some government entity to replace the board.

"When we first looked at it (the board)... we felt the board wasn't doing a good job at all," Knigge said Friday. "But since then, we've backed off for a while... and, as a result, I probably won't support getting rid of the board at this point."

Knigge, however, said it at least "puts the board on notice to know what's going on" at the prison.

"I can say without reservations that that board did not know what was going on out there before the riot," he said.

• A $718,000 supplemental appropriation for the state Administration Department was approved 56-9 Friday by the Idaho House.

The agency needed $500,000 extra because a telephone rate increase after the fiscal year 1981 budget was approved last year boosted telephone costs, said Rep. Lawrence Knigge, R-Filer, floor sponsor.

• Without debate, a "right to farm" bill passed the Idaho House on a 59-6 vote Friday.

The bill, which now goes to the Senate, is designed to protect owners of farm operations from nuisance lawsuits.

• The Idaho Senate voted 26-7 Friday to deregulate portions of the state's trucking industry, sending the measure to the House.

Sen. Kermit Kiebert Jr., D-Hope, said his bill would allow intrastate haulers of agricultural products, sand and gravel, farm equipment and forest products to truck commodities without regulation by the Idaho Public Utilities Commission.

• Idaho's senators Friday approved a House measure welcoming home the 52 Americans who were held hostage in Iran for more than a year.

The joint memorial recognizes that "there is evidence that these 52 Americans were physically and mentally mistreated by their Iranian captors" and that they showed "a great amount of physical and mental stamina and courage to withstand the conditions and treatment they were forced to undergo."

It directs the U.S. secretary of State's office to send a copy of the document to each former hostage.

Bill limiting onion sales is defeated

BOISE (UPI) — Senators called the subject "smelly" and acted accordingly Friday in defeating a bill which would have required all Idaho onions to be graded before they were sold.

Sen. W. Dean Abrahams, R-Caldwell, urged the Senate to adopt the bill, which would have imposed misdemeanor penalties on anyone who sold ungraded onions to retail outlets or consumers.

But Republican and Democratic senators protested the proposal, defeating it 6-27. They said it would impose a needless regulation on a commodity that consumers easily can scrutinize before purchasing.

"It used to be pretty easy to know when you were committing a crime — theft, riot, mayhem or murder," said Senate Minority Leader Ron Tinglegar, Boise. "But, to sell an onion... to me to make it a misdemeanor to sell an onion just makes me cry."

But Sen. Veari Crystal, R-Idaho Falls, came to defend the bill, saying it would bring onions into conformance with other agricultural products that must be graded before they are sold.

"Maybe it does smell a little, but it isn't that bad," Crystal said.

GOP staff seeks even more

Budget cuts attacked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration's package of budget and tax cuts came under scattered Democratic fire in Congress Friday, but anxious Senate Republican budget writers looked for ways to slash spending even further.

Budget director David Stockman and Treasury Secretary Donald Regan encountered strong criticism on the second day of their campaign to sell Congress on the president's economic program.

Republican staffers on the Senate Budget Committee also tried to identify additional cuts beyond those proposed by the president.

A top staff source said it is expected the president will propose almost $8 billion in additional cuts. He listed deeper cuts in subsidized housing, a bigger foreign aid reduction and a larger food stamp cut among possible committee additions to the Reagan bill list.

At a Joint Economic Committee hearing, Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., told Stockman the poor will bear the burden of the proposed budget cuts and called for closing several tax loopholes for the wealthy in order to finance needed social programs.

"Rich oxes weren't really gored," said Reuss, chairman of the joint-congressional panel.

"Congress has not been voting many welfare programs or subsidies for the rich in recent years," Stockman replied.

At the joint committee meeting, Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa, asked why Reagan proposes to end dairy subsidies but not touch similar benefits for tobacco, barley and oats producers.

"Does someone think beer and cigarettes are more healthful than milk?" Jepsen asked.

Stockman said the administration wanted to "cut the worst first... Clearly the dairy program is out of hand, costing about $1.5 billion a year."

for what comes out of your mouth."

TAYLOR MADE

Elizabeth Taylor thinks politics and show business have a lot in common. She should know. The motion picture star, preparing to make her Broadway stage debut, is married to Sen. John Warner, R-Va., for whom she campaigned last year. In the March issue of Ladies Home Journal, Miss Taylor told arts critic Gene Shalit that in both endeavors "you have to be on. You have to be responsible to the public." She noted one difference, however. "In politics you cannot have a re-take or a re-cut, and you cannot lean on Tennessee Williams or William Shakespeare for your lines," she said. "You are out there on your own. You're responsible

PRYOR CLAIM

Comedian Richard Pryor has filed a $1 million malpractice suit against an attorney he says caused the loss of $3.5 million in film royalties. Pryor said he hired attorney Michael Ashburne to help in recovering funds from Special Events Entertainment, which was distributing films of Pryor's onstage performances. Pryor's suit said that after its assets were sold a year ago, Special Events Entertainment filed for bankruptcy early in the same year. Pryor said Ashburne failed to file a creditors claim against the company, which resulted in his losing potential income estimated at $3.5 million.

HE REMEMBERED MAMA

The Paramount TV show "Taxi" needed someone to play the mother of Louis, a character in the popular CBS series. Louis is played by Danny De Vito, so Louis said, "Who's better to play my mother than my mother?" Paramount flew Louis' mother to the West Coast from Neptune City, N.J., for a tryout and she got the part. Afterward said she "look at me, a star at 77. If I die tomorrow I die happy."

JUDGE NOT

In Oklahoma City District Judge Charles Owens wondered who at the courthouse would send him a notice to appear for jury duty — then he found out he sent it to himself. Owens, who as chief civil judge this month is locating March jurors, said a computer actually called him for jury duty. But the notice indicated Owens had issued the order. The judge said he entered a six-digit number into the computer and the machine then selected 250 names at random. Owens said he was unsure of the odds of the computer selecting his name from 246,514 persons. But Owens said when the court date rolls around he will be there — as judge, not juror.

Penthouse loses record lawsuit

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — A former Miss Wyoming won a $26.5 million damage award from Penthouse magazine Friday because of a story about the sexual fantasy of a beauty queen.

Her lawyer called it the largest such award ever.

A federal jury awarded Kimeril Jayne Pring, the 1978 Miss Wyoming, $1.5 million in actual damages and $25 million in punitive damages.

The jury also awarded Miss Pring, 25, $10,000 in actual damages and $25,000 in punitive damages from the author of the story, freelance writer Phillip Cloufari.

Her lawyer, Gerald Spence of Jackson, Wyo., called it the nation's largest standing defamation award.

The jury deliberated more than eight hours before making up its mind about the story, titled "Miss Wyoming Saves the World," published in the August 1979 issue.

Spence said it was "a great day for Kim Pring, a bright young woman who had the courage to stand up and say, 'You can't do that to a Wyoming girl.'"

"It also is a great day for a lot of little people who have been afraid and intimidated by the big guys like Penthouse. It's also a great day for the Constitution of the United States. It says the likes of (Penthouse publisher Robert) Guccione can no longer wrap themselves up in the American flag and claim First Amendment privileges to smear and use and commercialize."

Guccione, reached in New York, said, "The Wyoming decision is not worth the paper it's written on. It is a product of misplaced passion and prejudice, not of reason or law. And because of its chilling effect on the normal constitutional protections of the press, neither we nor our legal advisers have any doubt that it will be reversed on appeal."

The story, billed in the magazine as humor, concerned a baton-twirling

Miss Wyoming at the Miss America pageant who could levitate men and her baton by oral sex.

'Mad bomber' prints book

WAUPAN, Wis. (UPI) — A mental patient, using the print shop of a mental hospital, published a booklet on explosives and lethal devices entitled "Mad Man's Book of Formulas."

The patient, James Multaler, has been selling the 22-page pamphlet for $9.95 a copy through magazine advertisements since its publication in 1976 or 1977.

Officials at Central State Hospital at Waupun said Friday they had no idea how Multaler was able to publish the booklet and weren't sure how much of it was printed in their shop. The pamphlet describes how knockout drops can be made from toilet cleanser, details how an insect poison can be used to kill someone and outlines how to make laughing gas and napalm.

"In a nutshell, what happened was the patient published the book," said hospital Director James Powell. "There's some confusion whether he printed it in the shop here."

Powell said the bulk of the printing had been done by outside printers.

He told the Milwaukee Journal the hospital became aware of the book only recently, when a staff member saw an advertisement for it.

Iran crisis rescue attempt plans told

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) — At separate times, the government involved millionaire H. Ross Perot and Dallas Cowboys coach Tom Landry in plans to free the American hostages, according to NBC News.

Perot, who two years ago instigated a massive prison break in Tehran to free two employees of his Dallas-based Electronic Data Systems, was called in by the federal government just weeks after the American Embassy was seized Nov. 4, 1979, said the report, a joint effort by NBC News and Atlanta KXAS-TV in Fort Worth.

The station said under one plan proposed by Perot, the United States would have set up a phony black market to sell spare military equipment parts to Iran and would have made two deliveries on large cargo planes to establish trust.

On the third flight, commandos would have used the plane to land with trucks outside Tehran, driven to the embassy and used a non-lethal gas to knock out all the guards as well as the hostages.

The hostages would have been loaded into the trucks, then rushed to the airport and escorted out of Iranian air space by American jet fighters from an aircraft carrier.

Perot would not discuss any plans he had but did indicate his participation.

keep training for a make-believe mission" and aborted the plan.

The station said Cowboys coach Landry unwittingly played a role in trying to pinpoint the location of the American captives, who were moved to separate locations in Tehran following the April rescue attempt.

KXAS said sophisticated radio transmitters were installed in tapes Landry donated of Dallas football games. The transmitters were activated anytime the tapes were played, and by that means the government hoped to track the separated hostages.

The plan fell through, however, because there was no way to know if a hostage or one of the Iranian militants was watching the game, the station said.

Transmitters also were planted in clothing and other gifts presented the hostages at Christmas but that plan was foiled when several hostages refused their gifts.

Top mob leaders indicted

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A federal grand jury Friday indicted 10 alleged mobsters, including the reputed godfather of the Philadelphia underworld.

At the same time it offered a rare glimpse of macabre organized crime enforcement methods. — U.S. Attorney Peter Valra said the 10 were charged with "conducting an enterprise with a pattern of racketeering and illegal gambling."

He called the indictments the biggest sweep of the underworld in Philadelphia crime history, and compared it with similar large-scale busts in New York and Los Angeles.

Among those indicted were Philip Teste, 46, who allegedly took command of the Philadelphia underworld with the execution-style slaying of mob boss Angelo Bruno on March 23, 1980, and Frank Narducci, 48, his reputed lieutenant.

Valra said the arrests would

Mafia can't be wiped out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Organized crime can be hurt but not eradicated from America, an FBI official told Congress Friday.

Buck Revel, assistant FBI director for administrative services, was asked at a Senate security and terrorism subcommittee hearing why after 30 years of congressional investigations the crime syndicate is still flourishing.

Although the FBI has "virtually dismantled" the Los Angeles Mafia crime family by convicting five of its top members, "they are replaced by underlings and continue to run and direct syndicate activities from jail," he said.

While law enforcement can hamper particular families or areas of crime by focusing on them, Revel said, "in a free society it is probably too optimistic to think that organized crime can be eradicated." He said it provides services too many people are willing to pay for.

obeying underworld etiquette.

It also said a pair of mob enforcers trying to scare a loan shark "client" who fell behind in payments on $9,000 with a 1 1/2 percent interest a week sent a funeral director to the man's house to collect his body — although the man was still alive, the indictment said.

The others arrested were Harry Riccobene, 70; Joseph Ciancaglina, 46; Mario Riccobene, 48; Pasquale Spirito, 41; Joseph Bogiovanni, 34; and Frank Pirmeno, 42, all of Philadelphia.

Also arrested were Carl Ippolito, 72, of Trenton, N.J., and Charles Whorlery, 40, of Levittown, Pa.

Shortly before some mob figures met to discuss dissent in the "family" ranks, Bruno warned the alleged mobsters they shouldn't gamble in their own games nor spend their money "in a manner that would show the extent of their real wealth."

"put a crimp in the style" of the Philadelphia underworld, which has been vying with the New York mob for control of Atlantic City's gambling casinos.

The indictment said Bruno, who was reportedly executed because of his "old-fashioned" disapproval of narcotics trafficking, had warned his mob family about dis-

Terrorism in America said rising

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI told a Senate subcommittee Friday domestic terrorism is not increasing, but international terrorist activity in the United States is on the rise.

At the first hearing of the Judiciary committee's security and terrorism subcommittee a throwback to the old internal security subcommittee that focused on domestic radicals and communists from 1951 to 1976 — freshman Sen. John East, R-N.C., told FBI officials: "The question of terrorism is one of our principal preoccupations here."

He said it is reasonable to assume that if terrorism is increasing around the world, it will soon have an impact on the United States.

"We're looking for preventive medicine," East said.

Lee Colwell, the FBI's executive assistant director for administration, listed domestic terrorism — activities of American groups — as below three other categories in bureau priority: organized crime, white-collar crime and foreign counterintelligence.

The domestic terrorism division is losing 21 permanent positions in the FBI's proposed $743.6 million budget, reflecting the lack of increase in domestic terrorism.

Buck Revel, assistant director for administrative services, said foreign terrorists operating in the United States come under the counterintelligence program, which is getting more money and personnel.

He cited Omega 7, a Cuban refugee group, as an example of a terrorist group operating in the United States but under the domain of counterintelligence.

Domestically, Revel said, there are 10 organizations and 47 individuals under investigation for terrorism, the same number as last year.

"The terrorism program in the FBI is not ranked among the three top national programs, but this is not to imply that reacting to and countering terrorist threat in our country are afforded anything but the highest possible investigative priority," Colwell said.

Subcommittee chairman Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala., said "there is evidence that certain foreign powers support or incite terrorist activities directed against the national interest of the United States" and that the panel will "investigate those activities of foreign governments and entities which tend to weaken our national security."

Salvador U.S. says communists backing rebels

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department charged Friday the left-wing uprising in El Salvador is heavily influenced and massively supplied by Cuba, and backed by the Soviet Union and other communist nations.

Some of the evidence collected by the department is included in a summary document made available to UPI and The New York Times. State Department spokesman William Dyess confirmed the authenticity of the summary, describing it as a partial, unclassified version of a report prepared by the department and to be published in its entirety next week.

One passage estimates the communist-supplied arms to the Salvadoran left-wing insurgents amounted to 780 tons of guns, ammunition, rocket launchers, mortars and radios.

"The summary concludes that captured documents, supported by other evidence, lead 'clearly and incontrovertibly' to several conclusions:

"The Salvadoran insurgency has unquestionably become the focus of a large-scale commitment by Communist and some radical states outside Latin America."

"The political direction, organization and arming of the Salvadoran insurgency is coordinated and heavily influenced by Cuba with the active support of the Soviet Union, East Germany, Vietnam and other Communist states."

"Although some non-Communist states (Iraq is one example mentioned) have also provided material support, the organization and delivery of this assistance, like the overwhelming mass of arms, is in the hands of Communist-controlled networks."

"Over the past year, the insurgency in El Salvador has been progressively transformed and (is) a text-book case of indirect armed aggression by Communist power through Cuba."

According to the summary, which refers to documents and other supporting evidence that were not made available, the arms supply to the left-wing guerrillas was so heavy in November 1980 that it exceeded the guerrillas' ability to absorb and use it.

The summary says that at the request of the leader of the Salvadoran Communist Party, many of the arms were of American manufacture, apparently as a "cover" to conceal the external Communist sources, Vietnam, which took over a huge supply of abandoned American weapons, was the primary source of such arms.

The report says cooperation, money and help also came from the Soviet Union, East Germany, Bulgaria, Hungary, Ethiopia, Czechoslovakia and Iraq, as well as the Sandinista government of Nicaragua, which permitted the arms to cross its territory.

Acceptance of the alleged evidence of communist subversion by the U.S. government is expected to open the way for large-scale U.S. military assistance to the military government of El Salvador.

"That government is described in the summary as 'a government that has executed important reforms and has convoked a process leading to democratic elections in 1982.'"

Secretary of State Alexander Haig, talking later to reporters, said, the communist support was "a situation which has clearly progressed to the point where it must be a matter of grave concern to the United States."

Philip Agee says evidence faked by CIA

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — Former CIA agent Philip Agee charged Friday that State Department documents detailing alleged Communist involvement in El Salvador bore all the hallmarks of CIA fakes.

Agee, who since resigning from the CIA in 1970 had revealed the names of hundreds of CIA agents he knew.

"What's in the making there is another Vietnam," Agee said. "Although he stopped short of saying that State Department's El Salvador documents were fake, Agee said they were "carbon copy" of the type of documents he charged the CIA used to fake while in was an agent in Latin America.

Faked papers were used to supply "the link we didn't have or the link that we didn't have any proof of," he said.

Agee also produced what he said were some of the CIA documents that Iranian militants seized when they stormed the U.S. Embassy in Tehran Nov. 4, 1979.

It was not immediately clear how Agee obtained the documents or indeed if they were authentic. Agee said they included a copy of a fake passport issued to Thomas Abarr, one of the 52 former hostages that he said was a CIA agent.

Blasts sugar cane employers

Pope urges workers to unionize

ILOILO, Philippines (UPI) — Pope John Paul II delivered the most politically explosive speech of his Asian tour Friday, telling impoverished sugar cane workers they should unionize to resist exploitation by their employers.

At least nine Catholic layworkers have been killed in execution-style slayings for trying to help sugar workers, who earn as little as $3 per day, to organize unions.

Declaring it was "not admissible" that the profits of the land go only into the pockets of the rich.

John Paul told a cheering crowd in Bacolod that "the worker is entitled to wages that give him a just share in the wealth he helps to produce.

"Working conditions should be geared not to the ever-increasing economic profit of the enterprise but to the inviolable dignity of man as an individual," he said.

"It has been the constant teaching of the church that workers have a right to unite in free associations for the purposes of defending their interests and contributing as responsible partners to the common good," John Paul said of the workers' struggle to unionize.

Shadowing the pontiff as he stopped at three island cities in the southern Philippines was First Lady Imelda Marcos, the powerful wife of President Ferdinand Marcos, who rented a private jet to keep up with John Paul.

Vatican aides made little effort to hide the fact they were annoyed by Mrs. Marcos turning up to greet John Paul wherever he went, regarding it as an attempt to capitalize politically from the papal visit.

Brezhnev sets strategy

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev met behind closed doors Friday with Communist Party leaders to discuss Poland and formulate the policies they will recommend to the party's hierarchy at next week's key party congress.

The meeting was seen as Brezhnev's opportunity to disclose what the Soviets plan to do about Poland, as well reveal any firings, resignations, or promotions that will be announced at the 25th party congress, which opens Monday.

The congress, held once every five years, is widely expected to be a dull affair, unless the Soviet leadership makes a surprising statement on the labor unrest in Poland, or announces a major shakeup in the Politburo.

Meanwhile, the new Polish government settled its last outstanding labor dispute Friday and ordered the first regular meat rationing in Poland since the 1950's.

The moves put Warsaw's Communist regime in a position to report progress in solving their crisis at the party congress in Moscow next week.

The rationing program will limit Poles to between 4.4 and 10 pounds of meat each month, depending on age and occupation. The quota also will cut in half the amount of sugar Poles can buy to just over two pounds each month.

Negotiators also reached agreement with farmers on outstanding issues in the early morning hours.

Man convicted of lewd, lascivious conduct

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A seven-woman, five-man jury Friday convicted a 32-year-old Twin Falls man of lewd and lascivious conduct with a 14-year-old girl.

The verdict, reached by the jury after more than four hours of deliberation, means defendant Clifford Kay, now faces a maximum life prison term.

Fifth District Court Judge Theron Ward ordered a presentence investigation and released Kay in lieu of a $7,000 property bond which had already been posted.

The jury's verdict capped a three-day trial in which the prosecution sought to show Kay as the man who attacked the girl on Aug. 1, 1979. The girl identified Kay as the assailant in a five-man police lineup on Aug. 7, 1979.

Kay did not take the witness stand in his own defense during the trial.

Testifying Wednesday, the victim said she was babysitting six children at a Twin Falls residence when a man appeared at the door at about midnight asking about the owner of a dog.

The girl said she opened the door and talked with the man for about five minutes when he suddenly forced himself inside the house and began attacking her. After struggling for five minutes, the teenager said she drove the man away when she grabbed a fork and broom to defend herself.

Defense counsel James J. May argued throughout the trial that deputy prosecutor James Meservy failed to prove Kay's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. Prominent among the holes in the prosecution's case were several different descriptions of the assailant's height, weight and appearance given by the victim during the course of the 19-month-old case, May said.

He also attempted to cast further doubt on the prosecution's case by calling to the witness stand several friends and relatives of the defendant who said Kay was working at his home for all but 10 to 15 minutes on Aug. 1, 1979.

Finally, May produced a University of Washington psychology professor and expert on eyewitness testimony, who, said the discrepancies in the girl's descriptions would tend to indicate her memory of the incident had deteriorated.

Testimony by Dr. Elizabeth Loftus of Seattle figured prominently in final arguments given by both lawyers Friday.

Meservy said her testimony explained why the girl's memory of "peripheral details" had differed on occasion.

But he noted Loftus had agreed people retain major details longer than they remember minor aspects of an event. Those aspects of the incident on which the girl concentrated, such as the color of the dog, had been corroborated by the testimony of other witnesses, he said.

May contended the girl's memory had been adversely affected by the delay in the case, by the stress of the incident and by information she received after the incident.

He added her memory may have been influenced by suggestive questioning of police and lawyers, and possibly by the fact that Kay was the only man in the police lineup fitting the girl's description. May said there was an "excellent chance" the conditions of the lineup itself convinced the girl that Kay was the assailant.

The two lawyers strongly differed on last-minute testimony by three witnesses called to the stand Friday by Meservy. The witnesses, two convenience store managers and a police officer, indicated no investigation was made concerning the defense's alibi for the 10- to 15-minute period in which Kay was alone.

Kay's wife Linda testified Thursday that her husband had returned home within a few minutes with soft drinks.

In his final argument, Meservy said the fact that the defense had not produced evidence to back up the alibi cast the story in doubt.

Noting Ward's instruction to the jury that the burden of proof was entirely on the prosecution, May said, "Casting doubt on our case is not the name of the game."

Kay also faces a civil lawsuit filed against him in September 1979 by the victim's family. The 5th District Court suit seeks $10,000 in general damages and $25,000 in punitive damages.

Lawyer Jon Shindurling, a partner of May's, said whether the criminal case will be appealed "is a decision we haven't made yet. There are several alternatives we have to consider."

Rooster tail

Slicing a rooster tail in an icy slope, a skier headed toward the bottom of Bald Mountain at the Warm Springs lift Friday in Sun Valley. Although Twin Falls and most of the Magic Valley endured 20 and 30 mph winds, the weather at Sun Valley was warm and the winds were moderate.

Malad River power sites proposed

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

HAGERMAN — A series of four power-generation sites on the Malad River has been proposed by a Boise-based group.

Three of the water-right applications recently filed with the Idaho Department of Water Resources were submitted by Consulting Associates Inc. of Boise. The fourth was filed by one of the company's chief members, Vernon Ravenscroft, who owns a ranch bordering the Malad Gorge near Tuttle.

"These are all preliminary filings pending investigation and feasibility evaluation," Ravenscroft said Friday.

Ravenscroft said the applications were submitted to protect the potential power-generation sites while his firm evaluates the proposed projects and negotiates land access agreements with neighboring property owners.

In the proposals, Malad River water would be diverted into the Justice-Thorp Ditch using existing diversions and then dropped back into the gorge through turbines to produce electricity. Ravenscroft said the proposed projects could eventually be joined with other private low-head generators in the area to form a cooperative management association.

Power produced by the proposed generators would be sold to Idaho Power Co. according to rates set by the Idaho Public Utilities Commission.

In water-right applications, Ravenscroft estimated all the proposals would take at least three to five years to complete.

The largest filing in the series is on Ravenscroft's ranch. Ravenscroft has filed for a 150-cubic-foot-per-second water right to produce about 500 kilowatts.

The other three proposed power sites are located downstream along the Justice-Thorp Ditch. All are for 20 cfs, but the power-generation estimates vary: 700 kilowatts from 500 feet of head; 490 kilowatts from 350 feet of head and 316 kilowatts from 240 feet of head.

All these figures are only estimates of peak power production, Ravenscroft stressed.

The Justice-Thorp Ditch, normally used for irrigation, flows along the northwest rim of the Malad Gorge.

"We are just in the exploratory stage with these filings," Ravenscroft said. "There is so much interest in low-head hydro these days we decided we'd best file for the applications now to allow us time to develop mutual cooperation with others involved (including the ditch company), without worrying about someone from New York filing ahead of us."

Crumbling walls discovered in Filer school's basement

FILER — A wall of the Filer High School basement is crumbling so badly you can take it apart with a spoon, according to Principal Larry Roberts.

Roberts said the problem was discovered Thursday by a maintenance man who observed daylight filtering through holes in the concrete wall, which was part of the building built in 1918. Interior paneling covered the wall until a few days ago when it was removed because it had buckled, the principal said.

He said he hopes to have the basement, which houses the school cafeteria, inspected this weekend to determine the extent of the problem.

Normal use of the cafeteria was in effect Friday. Other food service arrangements will be made if an inspection reveals the wall's condition is jeopardizing students, Roberts said. He indicated a classroom situated above the deteriorating portion of the basement also could be ported.

The wall apparently is crumbling because of the age of the school, he said. "I don't know exactly what the problem is," Roberts added. "That's why we want a qualified inspector to look at it." He said he hasn't "the foggiest notion how much (repairs) would cost" and funds have not been specifically budgeted for large-scale maintenance.

"It's a ticklish situation with our bond issue falling," he said. "We don't want people to think this is just being brought out in connection with the bond issue not passing. This problem with the basement has existed for awhile, but we didn't know about it until now."

On Feb. 3, Filer School District voters rejected a $2.9 million bond issue, $2.5 million of which would have funded a new high school.

H&W officials want regional administrations

BOISE (UPI) — A legislative proposal to eliminate regional administration of the state's health and welfare programs would not only cost more but also would result in less local control, inefficiency and less effectiveness, state officials say.

"The proposed reductions are irresponsible," said David L. Humphrey, deputy director of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare. "They see to be based on impressions rather than careful study and have no factual basis. They represent a meat-axe approach to budgeting and offer no alternatives."

Humphrey, who oversees the operation of the seven regional offices of the department, said that centralizing all administrative responsibilities in Boise would eliminate local input and destroy local control over public health and welfare services.

"This is not what the people of Idaho want," Humphrey said. "It would not be efficient or effective."

"Those who have advanced the proposal have failed to take into account the impact such a move would have on local revenues. Jobs would be lost as would the local purchase of goods and services. Trying to run local programs from Boise would also add tremendously to both travel and communications costs.

"The proposal also removes 10 percent of the department's central office staff. Reducing Boise staff while eliminating regional administration would make management of local programs virtually impossible.

"It is ironic that just as new policies in Washington, D.C. are returning local control to us, some legislators are trying to take it out of our communities and centralize it in Boise."

Full levy potential not in effect

Barker says tax increase could solve CSI budget woes

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

BOISE — The College of Southern Idaho was not forced to cut athletics and reduce staff, Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, said Friday.

"The board of trustees could take care of the problem tomorrow," Barker told the Times-News.

The college is levying only about half the local property taxes authorized by law and is exempt from the 1 percent limit and budget freeze, he said.

Earlier this month, CSI President James Taylor announced he would drop intercollegiate rodeo, baseball and track for a savings of $100,000, and reduce academic, vocational, and maintenance staff to save another $45,000.

Barker and other Magic Valley legislators have recently received dozens of letters urging them to fund CSI programs, particularly rodeo and vocational education.

"The Legislature has not cut any programs," Barker said. "We do not dictate their programs, or whether they have rodeo or not."

He said the public deserves to know that CSI could easily raise what is needed to keep the programs, if people are willing to pay for them.

The current property tax levy of .0836 percent of market value, which raises $1,154,000 in Twin Falls and Jerome counties, could be almost doubled, CSI Business Manager Karl Black confirmed.

"I'm sure the board is aware they can raise taxes," Black said. "It's a matter of how much, and it depends somewhat on what the Legislature does."

Taylor said his cuts, which would be effective July 1, were necessary because of inadequate state funding.

At a CSI board meeting Monday, he told rodeo supporters that letters from members of the community to the Legislature would help CSI maintain its whole program.

Barker said: "I don't like people writing, thinking the Legislature did this. Dr. Taylor does not want to go for more property taxes. But in truth, he has plenty of leeway."

"If people want these programs they should go to the local board and tell them they're willing to tax themselves."

Barker said he and other legislators are working to increase funding by 6 percent for junior colleges as well as four-year institutions.

"They're going to get more state money. Not as much as Taylor wants, I recognize."

State funding would increase from $2,114,000 to $2,240,000 with a 6 percent hike. That compares with Gov. John Evans' recommendation of a $35,000 decrease.

Black added that the college's appropriation was cut last year by about 5 percent because of a state revenue shortfall.

At that time, the CSI board knew the public property taxes, and "felt CSI should not impose that much more burden," Black said.

He said CSI needs more than $500,000 added to its $6 million budget to keep pace with inflation and restore last year's cut.

"The board has to make some pretty tough decisions to maintain all programs," he said.

Waste water plant bids opened

GOODING — Valley Utilities of Jerome has submitted a low bid of $1,315,583.25 to build Gooding's waste water treatment plant.

Ten bids were opened at a Gooding City Council meeting Wednesday.

Finishing second in the bidding was Shunn Construction and Maeda Construction of Ontario, Ore., with a joint bid of $1,427,933.25. They were followed by Omega Construction of Provo, Utah, with $1,681,652.22.

M. Morrin and Sons Inc. of Ogden, Utah, submitted the highest bid with a figure of $1,999,004.68.

In a separate bid for an interceptor sewer line, the lowest of 12 bidders was North American Contractors of Beaverton, Ore., with a bid of $279,735.

Other low bids were from Shunn Construction and Maeda Construction of Ontario, Ore., with a bid of $320,811.50, and Valley Utilities of Jerome at $336,219.54.

Of 72 bids for the two projects will be reviewed by the project engineer J-U-B. Engineering of Twin Falls and then submitted to the Environmental Protection Agency office in Boise.

Bids must meet federal and state regulations and construction standards.

Jim Coleman of J-U-B Engineering Inc., of Twin Falls, said Friday the bids will be ready to send to the EPA Tuesday.

The successful bidder will be named by the City Council when the EPA completes its review.

In other action, the council heard the 1980 audit report from Carrico, Oakley and Jones CPA. The council recommended a revision in the report to show funds collected from a sewer surcharge as separate from sewer operating funds. The surcharge was imposed to pay for the waste water treatment plant and is not part of general operating revenue. The revision will be made before the report is approved.

Accounting firm officials requested a fee increase from its $1,680 estimate to $2,500. Few federally required accounting procedures took more time and material than the company had planned. The firm feels they will "break even" with the $2,500 figure.

The matter was tabled for further discussion when the firm presents the amended report.

The council also tabled a discussion of irrigation fee hikes. Mayor Gene Heller said "an increase at this time is not appropriate."

In public bidding, Lester Sliman was high bidder for a two-year grazing lease on city land near the airport. Sliman will pay $1,300 per acre for 120 acres.

Burley woman sentenced

BURLEY — A Burley woman was sentenced on a prostitution charge in 5th District Magistrate Court Thursday.

Melody Ann Clark, 20, was given a 10-day jail sentence after plea bargaining. She changed a plea from innocent to guilty on one count of prostitution and received a court dismissal on a second prostitution charge.

Clark was arrested on the charges by Burley police on Jan. 10 and Feb. 12.

Reed pleads not guilty

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man pleaded not guilty Friday in 5th District Court to six counts of first-degree burglary.

Brad Reed, 23, of Twin Falls is charged with six burglaries which occurred between December 1980 and January 1981. Conviction on each count carries a maximum 15-year prison sentence.

Reed is charged with burglarizing several Twin Falls residences, the U.S. Forest Service building, 653 Fifth Ave. W., and the Browning Freight Lines, 453 Washington St.

Fifth District Court Judge Theron Ward ordered Reed remanded to the custody of the Twin Falls County Jail until the defendant's next court appearance.

A co-defendant on the Browning Freight Lines burglary, Jerry Robinette, 23, of Twin Falls, was given a maximum 10-year prison sentence after pleading guilty last week.

Rape trial set for Tuesday

RUPERT — A Rupert man goes to trial Tuesday on a charge of forcible statutory rape.

Robert Torres, 26, has been held in the Mindoka County Jail since Jan. 8 on a $50,000 bond for allegedly raping a 14-year-old girl.

Torres recently was denied a request for reduced bail by 5th District Judge Sherman Bellwood.

At the same time, Torres' lawyer, Stanley Cole, filed motions one to reduce the transcript fee and to have Torres' car released.

Arguing that the defendant could not afford the transcript of his preliminary hearing needed for defense, Cole's motion was tentatively granted by Bell, who reserved the option of charging Torres for the transcripts.

The fee for a transcript can be as much as $800, according to a court secretary.

The motion to have Torres' car released was denied because the state impounded the vehicle as evidence.

Two towns given HUD grants

WASHINGTON — Idaho Sens. Steve Symms and Jim McClure and Rep. Gene Hansen jointly announced grants totaling $2,000 to two Magic Valley towns recently.

The grants from the Department of Housing and Urban Development will go to the housing authorities in the cities of Buhl and Jerome to subsidize their operations during 1981.

The Buhl Housing Authority will receive $1,652 and the Jerome Housing Authority will receive $941.

The family suggests memorials be given to a favorite charity.

Utah protects life-saving devices

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The Utah Public Service Commission has adopted a new set of regulations to protect customers who are sick or who rely on life-saving devices from unreasonable termination of their electric or natural gas service.

The 17-page collection of guidelines sets forth standards for utilities which want to cut off service because customers have not paid their bills.

Commissioners said gas and electric companies must delay the shutoff of service to sick persons if that termination "would aggravate or cause a serious illness or infirmity in a person living in the residence."

To qualify, the customer would have to present a statement from a doctor outlining the health problem or potential health hazard. The utility would be required to continue service for as long as the doctor requests or one month, whichever is lesser.

After a month, the customer may petition the PSC for another extension.

The commission also banned utilities from immediate shutoffs of service if a customer depends on "an iron lung, respirator, dialysis machine or other life-support equipment."

Commissioners said when customers notify gas and electric companies that such devices are in use at the residence, the utilities must post an appropriate reminder on their meter boxes to prevent "accidental" premature termination.

In other cases where companies wish to cut off service because of non-payment of bills, utilities must send a written notice to the customer 10 days prior to any shutoff.

At least 48 hours prior to a scheduled termination, the firms must make a "good faith effort" to notify the customer by telephone or a personal visit, the commission said.

If personal contact cannot be made, the companies must post a written notice at the residence, the order said.

At rental units, utilities must post a notice of termination at least five days before the cutoff. The notice must be posted at a conspicuous location at the apartment house or unit.

Water right payment totals $80 million

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Developers of the largest proposed cooled power plant in the nation Friday paid $80 million for water rights needed for the construction and operation of the mammoth intermountain power project.

The Intermountain Power Association approved contracts to purchase 45,000 acre-feet of water from about 680 farmers and ranchers in the area around Delta and Lyndell, Utah.

Some of the water owners became instant millionaires in what is probably the largest single water sale in the history of Utah.

IPA Chairman Russell D. Nielsen said $88 million cash would be paid out this month. The remaining $12 million will be distributed in time payments for sellers requesting that type of compensation.

Lawyers representing IPA and five irrigation companies arranged the transfer of the money into 681 escrow accounts.

IPA plans to start construction in September of a 3,000 megawatt coal-fired power plant on a 4,600-acre site near Lyndell. It will supply electricity to two dozen Utah communities and six southern California cities. The municipal power companies of Los Angeles, Burbank, Anaheim, Riverside, Glendale and Pasadena will receive more than 50 percent of the power.

IPA is an association of municipal governments which will sell tax-free revenue bonds to finance the plant. An initial bond issue earlier this month raised $300 million.

Delta attorney Thorpe Waddingham, who represented three of the irrigation companies, said the water was sold for $1,750 acre foot.

But he said the $80 million represented only 1 percent of the total cost of the plant — estimated at $8.7 billion.

"This gives an indication of what can happen when you move a large quantity of water from agriculture to industry," he said.

Waddingham said environmental studies estimate 8,000 acres will be taken out of farm production. But he said most of those acres are the least productive land in the Delta area and some of the property is not farmed every year.

"Whatever acres are retired will be the least productive," he said. "One thing farmers know is the way to the bank."

The water sale was negotiated over a three-year period. Nielsen said an additional $4 million interest will be withheld until legal problems are resolved. Nine lawsuits have already been filed challenging various aspects of the deal.

Former Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus cleared the way for construction of the plant last year after a long fight over where it would be built. The municipalities favored a site in Wayne County, Utah, which was closer to coal sources and much cheaper water from the Fremont River.

But Andrus vetoed the site because it was too close to Capitol Reef National Park.

Basin chairman wants authority

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — Congress should either give the nation's six river basin commissions enough authority to implement water plans, or the commissions should be abolished, the outgoing chairman of the Pacific Northwest River Basins Commission said Friday.

"I leave the commission hoping for some constructive changes, which are up to Congress," said Mel Gordon, who resigned Friday. He was appointed chairman of the commission in 1978 by then President Carter.

Gordon said that if Congress does not give the commission some clout, the Northwest "will lose water to the synthetic fuel projects under way in the Rocky Mountain states, the MX missile project and to the Southwest, which needs water to support their expanding population."

Gordon said the increasing political power of the Sun Belt states could make it harder for the Northwest to hold onto its abundant water resources.

"The Pacific Northwest is not in danger of losing its water immediately, however, because of a Congressional moratorium on water diversion which does not expire until 1988.

Gordon, a former Multnomah County commissioner, said his plans to open an import-export firm with his son.

QUESTION...

There must be some reason why the busy people I know take the time to go to a funeral. Do we have funerals out of habit or tradition or for just what purpose would you say?

ANSWER...

Funerals have been a significant event in every society in recorded history. Probably habit and tradition and religion and the awareness of death itself have all contributed to bring about the simple ceremony we call a funeral today in our Judeo-Christian society.

Materially there is no reason for a funeral — the body of a deceased person can be buried, cremated or entombed without ceremony. The purpose of a funeral most certainly is to be found in the spiritual and physical fulfillment experienced by the family and friends of the deceased.

In a church or in a funeral home or at a graveside for only a few minutes out of all of the years of a person's life he has given an opportunity to reflect upon his relationship with the one who has died. A funeral very possibly is a time for the reassessment of human values.

The judge retained 120-day jurisdiction in the case. VonTobie was arrested by Paul Pelet Chief Frank Segovia after two break-ins in the city.

Storm ends flight

LEWISTON (UPI) — A storm front that moved through the state Thursday sent a Cascade Airways flight scurrying back to Lewiston after it encountered severe turbulence and icing conditions near McCall.

Flight 111 from Lewiston to Boise, which normally leaves Lewiston Airport at 7:15 a.m., was held until shortly after 8 a.m., because of heavy rainfall and winds that gusted to peaks of 35 miles per hour.

Groups seek to join Birds of Prey suit

BOISE (UPI) — Eleven wildlife conservation groups filed a motion Friday to intervene as defendants in Sagebrush Rebellion Inc.'s lawsuit against the Interior Department over expansion of the Snake River Birds of Prey refuge.

In papers filed at U.S. District Court, the potential intervenors said they wanted to prevent collusion between Sagebrush Rebellion and new Interior Secretary James Watt, who has expressed sympathy to the Boise-based group's cause.

The conservationists said they were worried Watt and Sagebrush Re-billion would conspire to wreck former Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus' proposal — to expand the southern Idaho raptor refuge to more than 450,000 acres.

The intervenors said they "have reason to believe that... Watt now or soon may become in collusion with... Sagebrush Rebellion... and other like-minded plaintiffs in this action."

Sagebrush Rebellion was formed last year by Vern Ravescroft, a political consultant and former Idaho Republican gubernatorial candidate. The organization's first action was to file a lawsuit seeking to block the Birds of Prey expansion. Joining in the suit against Andrus and the Bureau of Land Management were the Southwest Idaho Development Association and seven individuals.

Before he left office, Andrus expanded the bird refuge by executive order. But that action could be subject to reversal by Congress or Watt.

Association; Ada County Fish and Game League; plus four individuals.

The seven-page motion to intervene was prepared by Scott W. Reed, a Coeur d'Alene attorney.

The groups said they must intervene because the change in national administrations had left their interests without a defender in the lawsuit.

Statesman phone records subpoenaed in search of custody case clues

BOISE (UPI) — Long-distance telephone records of The Idaho Statesman were subpoenaed last fall by the Ada County prosecutor's office to determine the whereabouts of a woman sought in a child custody case, the newspaper said in Friday's edition.

The telephone subpoena of last autumn was not learned by the newspaper until Thursday when Statesman Managing Editor Rod Sandeen received a letter from Mountain Bell.

Dee Pfeiffer, an investigator for the prosecutor's office, said he asked Mountain Bell to defer notifying the newspaper about the subpoena for 90 days.

In a telephone interview with the paper, Ada County Prosecutor Jim Harris, who is attending a national district attorneys' conference in Las Vegas, said the 90-day delay request was made to "prevent anyone from tampering with records during the course of our investigation."

Sandeen said: "It's unfortunate that the law allows the secret search of telephone records. News sources who are aware that the prosecutor's office has this power would be reluctant to telephone

The Statesman with a tip about a controversial news story, especially one about the pro-sect kidnapping for taking

Pfeiffer said he requested the subpoena in an attempt to track down former Garden City resident Geni Gilmore, who went into hiding with her daughter, Alycia Clary, Sept. 8, before she was interviewed by Statesman reporter Ellen Marks.

Mrs. Gilmore was charged by county authorities with second-degree kidnapping for taking Alycia from her father, Michael Clary, Omaha, Neb. Clary was awarded custody of the child after he and Mrs. Gilmore were divorced in 1975. He and Alycia were reunited on Jan. 24 after she was found at a California shopping center.

Pfeiffer said the charges against Mrs. Gilmore are still pending. Mrs. Gilmore said she took the child because she feared Clary's alleged ties to a religious cult were harmful to the child.

Miss Marks was cited for contempt of court, jailed and fined because she refused to reveal confidential information about Mrs. Gilmore.

Evans contemplates re-election bid

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John Evans plans to stand on his record if he decides to run for reelection.

Evans said halting growth in state government and stopping bad legislation from becoming law were top achievements.

He also said with the defeat of Idaho U.S. Sen. Frank Church he will try to take over some of the political responsibilities the Church offices around Idaho carried out.

Evans said on KTVB's Viewpoint Friday there was little doubt he would not seek another term as governor.

"We in state government solved that problem of rapid growth in government here three years ago," he said. "We anticipated what was going to happen with the 1 percent initiative and anticipated we'd have to slow down that growth, and we've been able to accomplish that in many ways."

He said he has constantly emphasized efficiency in government, adding that recommendations from his Management Task Force have "saved a substantial amount of money for the taxpayers of Idaho."

Beyond that, Evans said he has used his veto power to head off "bad" bills coming out of the Idaho Legislature. He singled out his protection of the state's Land Use Planning Act of 1975 by vetoing frequent attempts to repeal the measure, indicating that under a Republican governor, such bills would have become law.

Potlatch sale of timberland completed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The sale of about 93,000 acres of North Idaho timberlands to Potlatch Corp. has been completed at a price of $134.8 million, said Potlatch chief executive officer and Chairman Richard B. Madden of San Francisco.

The land was purchased from the Milwaukee Land Co., a subsidiary of the Milwaukee Road railroad.

Potlatch acquired 92,972 acres of timberland and 4,510 acres of reserved mineral rights in Beneath, Clearwater, Latah and Shoshone counties as part of federal bankruptcy proceedings.

Madden said the holdings will strengthen Potlatch's ability to provide wood fiber for long-term production needs. Most of the new land is adjacent to or near current Potlatch property.

Prison escapee apprehended in Nampa

NAMPA (UPI) — An escapee from the Idaho State Penitentiary was apprehended early Friday by the Nampa police.

Nampa Police Lt. Donald Brownfield said Michael Johnson, 21, was arrested at a girl friend's house in Nampa about 2 a.m. after prison authorities informed Nampa police that he might be at that location.

Johnson escaped from the prison minimum-security farm east of the penitentiary near Boise about five hours earlier.

Warden Darrol said Johnson escaped with two women who came to the farm to visit Johnson during visiting hours. He said the women left the facility and got into their car and Johnson then climbed the fence surrounding the farm and jumped in the car with the two women.

Gardner said prison officers pursued the vehicle down Pleasant Valley road, which lies between the prison and the outskirts of Boise.

The warden said the car stopped at the base of some hills three miles south of Gowen Field and Johnson got out and fled.

Olsen says right-to-work not an important priority

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho chairman of the Republican party said Friday the Idaho Legislature has more important priorities to consider other than the right-to-work issue.

Chairman Dennis Olsen of Idaho Falls said he felt it would be inappropriate to comment on whether the Republican-controlled Legislature would pass right-to-work legislation, which has been introduced by Rep. John Brooks, a Gooding Republican.

He told a Boise news conference the state faces "severe economic problems" and these issues deserved a higher priority than a right-to-work measure.

Olsen said he felt that if such legislation was adopted it would be vetoed by the governor. Gov. John Evans, a Democrat, already has said he still was not in favor of right-to-work legislation and in all likelihood such a measure would receive his veto if it was received on his desk.

"Right-to-work will be before us for a long time to come," Olsen said, adding that it was not the utmost of priorities for the Legislature to consider.

The GOP chairman also said the party was drafting a bill which would limit the number of candidates the party would endorse on the national and state levels. He said that still would not eliminate the number of candidates who could seek election since there was a provision that an individual still could run for office if he had backing of 1 percent of those who voted in the previous general election.

"Right-to-work will be before us for a long time to come," Olsen said, adding that it was not the utmost of priorities for the Legislature to consider.

The GOP chairman also said the party was drafting a bill which would limit the number of candidates the party would endorse on the national and state levels. He said that still would not eliminate the number of candidates who could seek election since there was a provision that an individual still could run for office if he had backing of 1 percent of those who voted in the previous general election.

Import lid on Japanese cars, contract concessions linked

By JAMES V. HIGGINS
United Press International

DEARBORN, Mich. — Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis said Friday he is prepared to recommend limits on Japanese car imports in an auto industry recovery package but it must also include contract concessions from autoworkers and fair pricing.

Lewis, who met with industry and union executives in a two-day Detroit trip, said he believes U.S. imports of Japanese cars are too high and some form of restriction could figure in the government's auto industry plan.

Refusing to discuss details, he said those who would benefit from import limits — the auto companies and the unions — also must "bring something to the table," possibly in the form of wage, price or investment concessions.

"I can say this unequivocally, that my position will be and has been that the present level of Japanese imports is unacceptable," he said.

"If it appears, reasonable, to recommend to the president some kind of import restraints," Lewis heads a government task force which within two months plans to recommend ways to help the auto industry, which currently has 195,450 workers on indefinite layoff and lost more than $4 billion in 1980.

Japanese imports have captured around 24 percent of the U.S. car market in recent months, raising a unified howl of protest from the domestic industry and the United Auto Workers union.

Government efforts to help the industry began in earnest in the final year of the Carter presidency and have intensified under President Reagan.

Lewis said the government's contribution to that effort will be a review of regulations and could result in "a broad package of deregulation of the automotive industry." Such a step could save the industry billions of dollars.

But there must be union concessions — presumably wage or other contract relief — "and I think they (the UAW) are prepared to make those as long as the industry makes comparable concessions," Lewis said.

The car companies, Lewis said, could contribute by pledging to keep investment in the United States when there is an alternative or, conceivably, by restraining vehicle prices.

"Obviously, a part of this program is going to have to be fair pricing," he said.

Lewis spoke with heads of each of the five domestic auto companies and UAW executives — although he missed a meeting with UAW President Douglas Fraser who was stranded by fog at Cleveland.

$197.5 million in red ink for '80

American Motors reports record

DETROIT (UPI) — American Motors Corp. joined its larger competitors Friday in reporting record 1980 losses, posting a deficit for the year of $197.5 million.

Its worst previous loss was $75.8 million in the 1967 fiscal year.

Following Ford Motor Co. and General Motors Corp., AMC also said it managed to trim its fourth quarter loss from devastating red ink levels earlier in the year.

Its deficit in the October-December period was $23 million, an improvement from $85 million in each of the two previous quarters.

The report brought overall domestic auto industry losses for the year to $3.97 billion — and Chrysler Corp. hasn't yet announced its final 1980 results.

AMC, which sought refuge last year by joining in a close partnership with the French automaker Renault, reported net earnings of $70 million in 1979, including net earnings of $12.8 million in the 1979 fourth quarter.

Ford Thursday reported it lost $1.5 billion last year, while GM's deficit was $763 million — both all-time records for those companies. Chrysler Corp. is expected next week to post a 1980 deficit of more than $1.7 billion — the worst annual loss in U.S. business history.

AMC said recently it doesn't expect to regain full profitability for two more years. But company Chairman Gerald C. Meyers said the association with Renault gives it financial and technical muscle to remain viable.

"Just as American Motors was drawn into the U.S. auto industry's downturn during the 1980, we will move upward as the industry recovers," Meyers said. "We now have the financial strength, imaginative product plans and technological resources befitting a world auto company."

AMC's partnership with Renault gives the French company options to purchase more than half of AMC stock.

The company said net sales revenue last year was $2.6 billion, up 18.8 percent from $2.2 billion in 1979. Worldwide passenger car sales were up 10 percent to 229,377 from 227,032 in 1979, but Jeep sales last year declined 48 percent to 98,871 from 191,172.

The report reflects AMC's recent switch from an Oct. 1 reporting financial basis to a calendar year basis. Its previous financial reports covered fiscal, rather than calendar, years.

Wall Street ends week mixed

Blue chip issues stage Friday rally

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
United Press International

NEW YORK — Blue-chip issues staged a late rally Friday and the stock market finished out the week on a mixed note in moderate trading as the Reagan administration tried to sell its economic plan to Congress.

The Dow Jones industrial average, down more than 3 points at the outset after plunging 13.74 points Thursday, rebounded to rise 2.73 to 936.09. The closely watched average gained 4.52 points for the week overall.

The New York Stock Exchange index surrendered 0.08 to 72.45 and the price of an average share decreased 4 cents. Declines topped advances 946-631 among 1,891 issues traded at 4 p.m. EST.

Analysts said the market was restrained by investor uncertainty about what Congress will do to President Reagan's economic plan of tax cuts and spending reductions.

Some investors were encouraged by First National Bank of Chicago and Continental Bank of Philadelphia cut their prime lending rate to 19 percent from the prevailing 19 1/2 percent level and other banks are expected to follow. But this rate still is extremely high.

Irving Trust Thursday cut the interest rate it charges brokers for loans to 17 1/2 percent from 18 percent.

At the same time, federal funds rates that banks charge one another for overnight loans topped sharply, triggering a rally in the bond market.

Analysts said the Federal Reserve might have eased credit a bit.

Big bond volume amounted to about 41,900,000 shares, up from the 41,630,000 traded Thursday.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 4 p.m. totaled 48,260,368 shares, compared with 47,150,800 traded Thursday.

The American Stock Exchange index fell 1.43 to 330.34 and the price of a share decreased 8 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ index of OTC issues rose 0.45 to 192.29.

At 4 p.m., American Telephone & Telegraph, the most widely held stock in the nation, was the most active NYSE-listed issue, up 1/2 to 52 1/2.

AT&T earlier this week raised its dividend payout for the first time in two years.

National Semiconductor was the second most active NYSE-listed issue, up 1/4 to 31 1/2 in trading that included a block of 472,500 shares at 30. Other high-technology issues also came under pressure. Texas Instruments skidded 3 1/2 to 109 1/2, Motorola 2 to 60 1/2 and Teletype 4 to 18 1/2.

Acta Line was the third most active issue, off 1/2 to 30 1/2. Combustion Engineering was fourth on the active list, off 1/2 to 3 1/2 after a block of 561,100 shares at 36 1/2.

Hecia Mining rose 1 1/2 to 34 1/2. Sunshine Mining, which reported a $3.7 million fourth-quarter loss, said it has bought 5.3 percent of Hecia's stock.

Sunshine's stock jumped 1 1/2 to 15 1/2. Amalgamated Sugar climbed 2 1/2 to 41 1/2. The company raised its quarterly dividend payout to $1 a share from 75 cents and declared a special dividend of $1 a share.

Cyprus Corp. was the most active Amex issue, unchanged at 1. Champion Home Builders followed, up 1/4 to 2 1/2. Houston Oil & Minerals was third, up 1/4 to 46.

Bonanza in bottles

WINNIPEG (UPI) — For four years... Pickwick speculated in beer bottle futures.

That's how long it took him to collect 3,600 empties now stockpiled in a city garage behind his sports-wear shop.

The payoff came Thursday when Pickwick learned the province's liquor control commission had more than doubled the refund to be paid on empties, up from 50 cents a dozen to $1.20, effective next Monday.

"Oh what a score," he said.

"This is going to be just super. Everyone laughed at me. They said I was crazy. I've been waiting for the day to cash in. This is a hell of a deal."

While Pickwick stands to pick up about $300 on his empties when he drops them off at his favorite hotel beer vendor, there's a sting in the government's generosity.

Manitobans also learned this week that the cost of beer is on the rise, up to $5.65 for a 12-pack from $5.

Cold month spurs U.S. oil demand

NEW YORK (UPI) — U.S. oil demand rose in January for the first time in almost two years because of last month's unusually cold weather, the American Petroleum Institute reported Friday.

Americans continued to use less gasoline last month, but the decline was offset by stepped-up demand for home-heating and residual fuel oil since January was about 12 percent colder than January, 1980, the oil industry trade group said.

The API defines demand in terms of deliveries from primary storage to the marketplace.

Domestic deliveries of all petroleum products edged up 0.1 percent in January to 18.69 million barrels a day from 18.67 million in the same month last year.

This marks the first month since February, 1979 that there has not been a significant decline in the daily rate of deliveries," the API said.

But the nation's overall gasoline demand dropped 3.4 percent to 6.12 million barrels a day from 6.33 million barrels a day a year earlier.

"The long-term impact of gasoline price increases during the March 1979-March 1980 period continued to exert a downward influence on gasoline deliveries," the report said.

Demand for distillate, used primarily for home-heating oil, jumped 8 percent last month to 4.02 million barrels a day from 3.73 million barrels a day in January, 1980. Taking into account the frigid January weather, "deliveries of distillate were about equal to last year's," the API said.

Deliveries of residual fuel oil, used for heating purposes and to generate electricity, increased by 7.7 percent to 3.08 million barrels a day in January from 2.85 million barrels a day a year earlier in response to the colder weather.

Domestic crude oil production declined last month, falling 1.6 percent to 8.5 million barrels a day from 8.6 million barrels a day a year ago.

The nation's crude oil imports plummeted 19.2 percent last month to 5.13 million barrels a day from 6.33 million barrels a day a year ago.

But crude oil stocks climbed 5 percent to 371.2 million barrels from 353.6 million barrels in January 1980 and gasoline stocks were up 5.4 percent to 276.5 million barrels from 262.3 million barrels — both above normal levels for this time of year, the API said.

Although distillate stocks fell 14.5 percent to 181.4 million barrels last month from 212.1 million barrels a year earlier, "inventories are considered adequate, especially in view of the high level of crude stocks," the API said.

Weather mows down Toro

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Toro Co., the maker of lawn appliances and s, had a loss of $714,000.

In its second quarter ended Jan. 30 and a loss of $5.1 million in the first half.

The company blamed the continuing losses on the second successive winter of light snowfall and the drought last summer that hurt lawn appliance sales. Toro recently announced it was dropping its president and 125 other salaried workers and was curtailing manufacturing operations.

The loss for the second quarter was on sales of $77.2 million and contrasted with a profit of $4.8 million or 85 cents a share a year earlier on sales of $123.8 million. The loss for the half was on sales of $122.12 and contrasted with a profit a year earlier of $10.41 million or $1.83 a share on sales of $225.47 million.

Overthrust Belt sets pace

DENVER (UPI) — Expanded exploration along the Overthrust Belt from Montana to Arizona in 1980 highlighted a record year for drilling for oil and gas in the Rocky Mountain region.

Petroleum Information Corp. Thursday released statistics showing 5,829 wells were completed in the region in 1980, up from the previous record of 5,213 set in 1979.

Two new Overthrust field discoveries were completed in Montana, three in Wyoming and two in Utah, Pi said. Reserves credited to the Overthrust Belt alone stood at 10 trillion cubic feet of gas and a billion barrels of oil by the end of 1980.

The Williston Basin of Montana and North and South Dakota also was an area of great activity, with 291 wildcat wells resulting in 65 oil discoveries. North Dakota's total oil production last year was one-third greater than in 1979.

Suit preference signals

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

You open the bidding with one heart, holding S-7: H-A 9 8 7 5 4 D-A Q C 6 4 3. With no bids from your partner, your opponents lead in the spades. Your partner leads the six of hearts. Dummy comes down with S-K x H-Q J 3 2 D-K x C-x-x-x.

What do you do with no preference at all? Lead back as the five of seven. Suppose that your partner's hand was S-Q 10 H-2 D-10 8 7 x x C-x-x-x. He ruffs your first two hearts and returns the diamond. The king is played from dummy. You take your ace for your third trick. Now if you try to cash a second diamond, declarer will rump home with his contract.

We will continue with discussion of this convention next Saturday.

Jerome halts Buhl's season, winning streak

By MARV CLEMENS
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — Buhl's domination of Jerome High on the hardwoods is over — at least until next season. The Tigers outlasted the Indians 47-43 Friday night, eliminating Buhl from the Fourth District A-2 Boys Basketball Tournament.

Buhl had won 23 straight games over the Tigers, but Friday's wild win may have given Jerome boosters at least a partial taste of revenge.

Senior guard Tom Curtiss tossed in two perfect free throws with three seconds left to secure the victory that sends Jerome against high-flying Wood River Tuesday night at CSI.

"It's been a long time," Jerome boss Pat Hoke said as the lights were dimmed in the CSI gymnasium. "We were 0-23 and it's been seven or eight years."

Jerome used a triangle-and-two defense to blanket Buhl's top shooters — Doug Walker and Rory Richeson. Richeson, a usual 19-point producer, had 10 in the first period and was limited to just two free throws in the final quarter for a dozen points. Walker, who has been scoring from 14 to 18 almost every time out over the last third of the season, was limited to four.

"He (Richeson) got a lot of his baskets on the transition play early when our defense couldn't do much or from way outside," Hoke said. "Once the triangle started working we were okay."

Buhl held a 15-7 lead with 90 seconds left in the first period and was making a move at taking control. But in just over a minute Kevin Hulsey, Zane Ostler and Brian Dey hit fielders and Jerome trailed just 15-13 at the end of eight minutes.

Buhl's offensive problems surfaced early in the second period. The score was tied at 17-17, but the Indians never trailed, taking a 27-26 lead at the half.

Ostler hit a layup right after the second half tipoff and Jerome was ahead for the first time, 28-27.

The lead changed hands four times before Jerome gained it for good with 1:28 left in the third quarter when Hulsey went inside for two.

Hulsey, whose 17 points and strong inside play was a key element for Jerome, connected on a three-point play with 6:43 left to play. Jerome led 31-27 and Buhl was forced to play catch-up basketball.

The Indians made just two of 12 field attempts in the final quarter, but despite the poor shooting still had a chance to tie the game.

Buhl had put the pressure on Jerome and the Tigers took just a fraction too long getting the ball past the midcourt line. Buhl had the ball on the turnover with 23 seconds left.

"We wanted to go to Rory on the outside, shooting over a screen," Buhl boss Ben Allen said. "But we didn't want to go low and in the excitement we passed the ball low and lost it."

Jerry Povalawski lost the ball out-of-bounds just six feet from the basket and Jerome iced the ball until Curtiss was fouled with three seconds left.

"Jerry was getting into rebound position more than anything else and he was probably as surprised as me when the ball came at him," Allen said.

Curtiss then sank the two charities, sending Jerome to yet another battle and Buhl to the sidelines.

One of Buhl's problems is that it went to the line just three times, making all three.

"That's probably the fewest we or anybody has ever gone to the line," Allen said. "I'm not complaining. It was just that type of game."

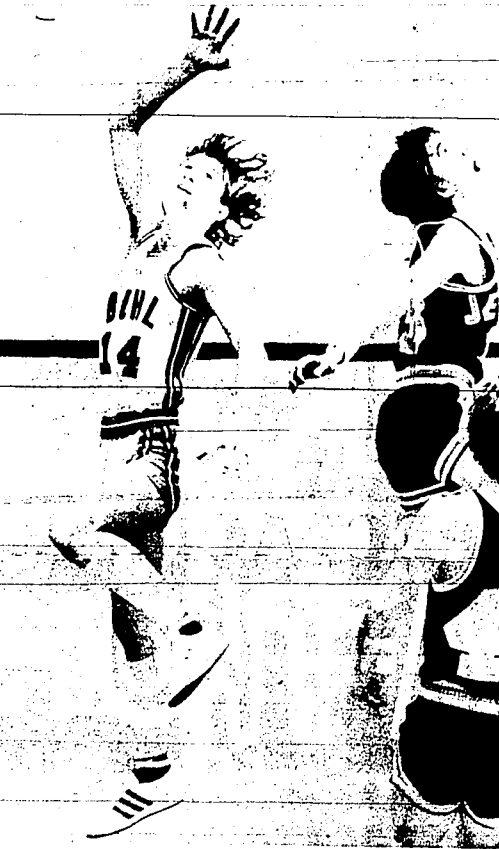

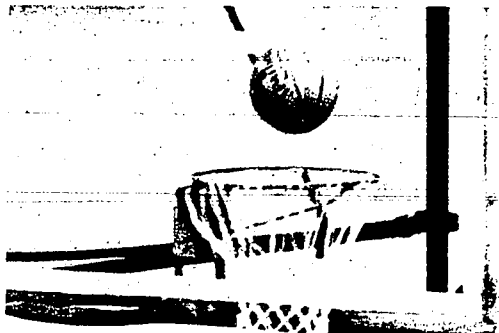

Jerome must now take Wood River twice to make state. One Wood River win sends Dan Gillett's squad to the state tourney.

"It's a matter of who wants it the most now," Hoke said of Tuesday's clash with Wood River. "It's time to get it out."

Buhl won Friday's junior varsity game 52-49 and behind Dan Ashley's 20 points and will meet top-ranked Jerome Tuesday at 6:15 p.m.

Filer, Declo ousted

By MARCUS PRATER

WENDELL — Shoshone and Valley used a pair of little men to show the big men what the game of basketball is all about Friday night.

Shoshone's Scott Peterson threw in 31 points to lead the Indians to a 57-53 overtime victory over Declo. Valley's Rob Tilley poured in 32 points and the Vikings defeated Filer 67-61 in the Fourth District A-3 Basketball Tournament at Wendell High School.

6:30 p.m. — Shoshone vs. Wendell (loser out)
8:15 p.m. — Valley vs. Gooding (loser out)

The two teams move one step closer to the championship of the consolation bracket. Shoshone takes on Wendell today at 6:30 p.m. for the right to advance to the championship. Valley tangles with a tough Gooding squad in the late game at 8:15 p.m.

Filer and Declo are eliminated from the double-elimination tournament and will have to wait nine months for their next game.

In the junior varsity games Valley beat Wendell 45-42 and Kimberly took Glenns Ferry 52-29. Both were first round games.

Shoshone 57, Declo 53 (ot)
The Indians found themselves down 52-48 with 16 seconds to play and Declo was talking victory. However, the Indians came back from a talk with Coach Larry Messick and Doug Astle hit a 25-footer from the corner with just over 10 seconds left.

The Indian defense forced a turnover at Declo's end of the court and Peterson picked it up, shook off two defenders and tied the game with a layup at the one second mark. Declo had two chances in the opening of the extra period to take control of the game. But Dennis Lewis and Lamont Kovitz missed four free throws each and Herman Morrison missed one of a two-shot foul.

Shoshone capitalized on the errors and Peterson hit a clutch 20-footer and added a free throw seconds later to put the Indians up by three, 56-52.

Declo started intentionally fouling with just seconds remaining and Peterson added his 31st point with a free throw to make the final 57-53 margin.

"This is super, just super," Shoshone's Messick said. "This is the best effort of never say die I have ever seen."

"We were down by four with 16 seconds left and the kids were saying 'we're going to win' and that is what they did," Messick said. "They just came to win."

Castleford, Hansen stay alive in Southside play

JEROME — It's all over for Raft River and Oakley.

The Hansen Huskies, riding their best point production of the season, sent Raft River home 68-55 while Castleford ousted Oakley 55-41 in the Fifth District A-4 Basketball Tournament Friday night.

It was a 24-hour reprieve for Hansen and Castleford, however, as they meet each other at 7:30 tonight in the Jerome gym. The loser will be eliminated. The highlight of tonight's

In the Jayvee tournament, Murtaugh topped Hansen 44-35 to join

Hansen 53, Raft River 55
Both John Comer and Hansen reached new highs in topping Raft River, a team that defeated the Huskies twice during the season.

Hansen's 63 points tied its best production of the season (against Richfield) while Comers, leading the fast break at times despite playing inside, piled up 20 points.

"We just did better job offensive, waited for the good shots and did a good job of getting the ball inside," said jubilant Hansen Coach Rod Pruett. "Plus we took better care of the ball than usual."

Pruett, although squirming a little from the mid-fourth quarter on, didn't celebrate openly until Robert Ethington hit two free throws for a six-point lead with 23 seconds left. Then he jumped off his chair, did a little jig and sat down with a face wreathed in smiles.

"I wasn't sure until then," he acknowledged with a grin. "There have been other times I felt we had a win coming but sometimes the way we

"I should have dropped the math and English departments and study hall, then no one would have known about it," he said after a week of answering phone calls.

Then after a CSI game, an alumni and fan get together was held in the school cafeteria. The president was already there when Eric Hovey, assistant men's coach and one of those without possible employment next season, walked in.

"Hovey, what are you doing here?" Taylor asked with a grin. "You should be out looking for a job."

Looking toward the basketball recruiting season, Coach Dave Campbell was asked what prospects he was working on — namely big men.

"We're talking to some," he said, "in the 6-8 to 6-10 area."

"Then he dropped the understatement of the week.

"But we'll take all the 6- or 6-6 e-que leapers and good-shooters we can find. You really can't get enough of those," Campbell said.

Grant, Sutton, Monson appear headed for NCAAs

TWIN FALLS — It would appear that two former CSI coaches and University of Idaho's Don Monson will be taking their teams to the NCAA playoffs this year.

Edwin Sutton has his Arkansas Razorbacks back on top in the Southwest Conference after losing a couple of early games. The Hogs have rallied back into the lead and with just two weeks left should get the nod even if they don't wind up on top of the heap.

Similarly, Boyd Grant at Fresno State should get a nod now. Fresno about half expected to go through the Pacific Coast Athletic Association with no more than a loss or two. The Bulldogs were more than stunned when they dropped two of their first three — and one of those in the heated "Grant vs. Tombs," the Fresno home court.

Fresno State has since rallied back to the top of the league standings and within one game of the coveted 20-victory season.

That 20-game figure is important to the Vandals. They still have to battle to the end of the Big Sky Conference season and then the league post-season tournament, which automatically qualifies the winner for a spot in regionals.

But with the NCAA upping the number of entries to 49, it becomes very hard for any 20-game winner to be overlooked. There simply aren't that many among NCAA Division I schools.

Last year Idaho came close to getting an NCAA berth and probably stumbling a little in the conference tournament hurt the Vandals more than anything.

That Idaho didn't get an NIT bid, however, was the big surprise until the politics of that tourney unfolded. It increased its field to 24 teams, playing the first elimination games at various sites across the country. Since the tournament took all the good receipts, it was only natural that the bids went to schools with the biggest gymnasiums and the best reputation for filling them.

Dalling on hot seat

In the "for what it's worth" department, the grapevine is saying that Ricks' inability to make a strong run for a regional tournament berth at least has brought Coach Glenn Dalling under fire.

Losses to CSI and one to North Idaho didn't help the situation, of course, but the Viking faithful, the report says, aren't inclined to forgive the 11-point loss at Treasure Valley at all.

Also not helping was the pre and early-season estimation of the Ricks fans that this might be that school's best alignment ever and at least in the past 11 years.

It's for sure the Ricks team we saw play CSI at week ago — after that TVCC loss — didn't have the intensity and enthusiasm it displayed during the K and T Steel Tournament.

But that was, to re-emphasize, after the TVCC loss. It reminds one of the old adage that former Buhl and Jerome Coach Ed Peterson used to fall back on: "This team probably is just good enough to get the coach fired."

Expectant fans are unforgiving.

Richfield Tigers take on Bliss at 7 p.m. Camas County collides with Carey at 8:30 p.m.

Dietrich 48, Camas 41

It took the Blue Devils nearly 25 minutes before they could shake off the stubborn Musers. It wasn't until senior Tracy Perron hit three buckets midway through final period before Murphy could breathe easier.

Perron, the last of four basketball brothers at Dietrich, kept the Blue Devils in the game with pin-point shooting that netted him 18 points.

The 5-11 guard hit four of Dietrich's five field goals in the third period to keep his team close and then single-handedly polished the win.

"If it wasn't for Tracey's hot shooting, we would have been substantially blown out of the game," Murphy said. "We were terribly out-played and I have to admit we're lucky to escape with the win. I have to give the credit to Tracey."

"I'm very unhappy with the game tonight," Murphy said. "We looked awful bad out there and I think it's just a lack of desire and pride on the kids; part of I don't think they wanted to play this game too bad. I could tell in the locker room before the game it was going to be one of those nights."

There was no chatter and the kids were rather quiet.

Camas, which got baskets from Davey Lemons and Ed Atnip, took advantage of a three minute scoring slump and took the lead for the first time after surrendering it in the opening minutes of the second period.

Lemons hit a field goal with 3:59 showing in the third to tie it at 29 and Atnip hit one seconds later to make it 31-29. Gene Shaw, the only Blue Devil to score in the third besides Perron, broke the slump with a bucket to tie it at 31. Each team traded baskets in the closing seconds of the third and the state was set for the final showdown.

Perron and center Alvin Powers each hit two baskets in the first three minutes and Shannon Wolf hit two for the Musers.

Camas County then switched into the press and Dietrich combated that with a delay game that pushed them into the only four field goals in final eight minutes while Dietrich hit seven and ended the

Gooding St. 49, Bliss 31

Gooding State, with 6-7 Ken Anderson in charge, took to the second-seeded Bears at the start. Anderson hit two straight to open the game and added two more in the initial period to give the Redskins a 15-9 lead.

The Bears, struggling with poor shooting from the field, never came within seven points after that.

Bliss used its full-court pressure throughout the contest, but it never bothered Crucial's five.

"I was extremely happy with the way we handled ourselves bringing the ball down the court, especially since Sam was out of the line-up," he said. "It's been a terrible problem for us all season and tonight it really looked like we knew what we were doing. I really think that was the key to the win."

"The kids played real heads up ball. This is definitely one of our better performances." Crucial said. "Ken and Sonny (Cabbage) did a real fine job on the boards. The entire bunch played well."

On the other side of the court, Bliss Coach Larry Couch was disappointed with his group.

The Bears were plagued with a turnover problems all night and could only hit 14 buckets from the floor in a poor shooting exhibition.

With the exception of Anderson, the two were evenly matched in the height department. But Gooding State dominated the boards—especially on the offensive end where they poured in several follow shots.

"It was just a poor effort," Couch said. "There wasn't any emotion and the kids were tentative in everything they did. We just weren't ready to play. You can't win without the emotion and drive that gives you a good basketball game.

"Anderson beat us to death on the boards. We couldn't stop him or any others for that matter."

After the fast-paced opening period, the two settled down for a circus of turnovers in the second. The Redskins could only hit five points and Bliss hit only four and fell behind 20-11.

Crucial got balanced scoring from all five in the second half as the Redskins jumped out to a 31-16 third period lead. Sam Wilding hit two buckets and Cabbage hit three to turn the game into a runaway. Anderson, who hit a game-high 20 points, gave his team their biggest lead of the game with a fast-break slam dunk with 1:32 left that left the crowd roaring. With the momentum flowing, he hit two more within a matter of seconds to make it 48-31 and Glenn Woolsey fouled in two free throws with two seconds showing to establish the final margin.

A-3

Shoshone used Peterson and Astle to set up the full percentage offense which usually ended up with an easy inside cradle.

"We wanted to control the tempo of our offense and in turn the game," Messick said. "We were real patient and we worked inside for the easy bucket, which we wanted to do coming into this game."

On the other hand, Declo played more of a run-and-gun offense with the fast break and the easy eight-footer.

Neither team could stop the other's offense and they traded baskets throughout the first eight minutes of play. Declo's Lewis hit two consecutive field goals in the final 30 seconds and the Hornets' Kim Duffin led off the second period with five points to Declo's two and the Indians seemed to have the momentum. But Declo came back with Rick Smyer's five points and the half closed with Shoshone on top 27-25.

"We wanted to do two things with their offense. Not give them the good outside shot and control the majority of the boards," Messick said. "I think we accomplish both of those to some degree."

Peterson came out hot in the third period and did the Indians. The 6-0 senior hit on nine points and Astle added four more.

Declo went to the full-court press in the early moments and cut off the tempo control the Indians had. The Hornets stayed in the game with several turnovers and fast break crumples.

"We wanted to shut down their fast break because we knew if we won then we had to play Wendell and there is no way we can run with them," Messick said. "We got a little bit of what they're going to do tonight and we handled it after we got a good look at it."

The score stood at 42-42 going into what was supposed to be the final eight minutes. Both teams continued the same offense but had little luck with it.

Declo closed in the offensive passes of Shoshone and the Indians shut down the Hornets' break.

The clock wound down to 34 seconds and Shoshone was down by four until Peterson once again came through in the clutch. He sunk a 25-footer from right at the baseline to close the gap.

Two teams met during the regular season. Declo fell short by eight on the Indians' floor and the Hornets took Shoshone by 10 at home.

Since we've come out of our mid-season slump we've been playing pretty good and we could be in it when Wednesday rolls around," Messick said of his teams' chances.

play giving the Wildcats a 17-13 margin.

Tilley came out in the second period and took the control of the game. The playmaking guard scored four quick points and assisted in six more to give the Vikings a 32-25 lead with three minutes to play.

Tilley played a pair of free throws and Filer's Randy Puder pumped up a jumper to put the score at 34-28 with Valley on top.

"We won with defense," Valley Coach Delbert Bennett said. "We didn't lose poise and we held on long enough."

The third period is when the Tilley show really started glowing. The 5-10 senior hit three straight free throw line jumpers to vault the Vikings into a 40-34 lead. Filer's Matt Jones kept the Wildcats in the game with his nine points. Tilley assisted a Jay Blacker layup and he threw in a technical foul to mark up his clean slate. "Tilley finished the eight minutes with 17 points."

"Filer helped us out a lot because they went cold in the third and fourth and they committed many crucial turnover toward the end of the game," Bennett said.

Houston Rockets may use cable TV to help money woes

HOUSTON (UPI) — General Manager Ray Patterson has presented ownership a white paper proposing the Houston Rockets' financial well-being be tied to cable television subscriptions.

Simplified, Patterson's plan would sell Rockets' season tickets as part of a cable television package, a unique idea at a time when many sports teams are negotiating deals with television companies.

Conceptually, a family would pay $100 to have the team's 41 home games televised and to have, say, 10 tickets a season, to be used in any combination of games and seating. That way, the Rockets would sell all their 600,000 tickets in a season to 60,000 cable subscribers and make $6 million instead of the $2.5 million they now make.

In much the same way that he would pay to see a live performance of Frank Sinatra after having watched him perform for years on television, the basketball fan would seek an infrequent live performance, Patterson believes.

In a 40-page investigative report, he told owner Gavin Maloof changes in society have altered fans' willingness to buy a 41-game season ticket.

"Philosophically, people don't want to make a commitment today as much as they did in the past, to the old season ticket, to their city, to their corner grocery, to their wives," he said. "Today, all the kids know my kid's age live together. They don't want to make a commitment."

Patterson is not reticent to tell his bosses unvarnished information about the franchise. He's the one person who has held the team together through the turmoil of seven owners in nine years.

As many NBA owners believe, he feels cable television is big medicine for an ailing game faced with soaring player salaries and an attendance drop this season.

"How much of this plan will come out, I don't know. But I do know that this (cable) is the only thing I see. I can't outbid New York and Los Angeles for players," he said.

A bidding war could result when all-star Moses Malone's contract expires after the 1981-82 season, but Patterson said letting a cable contract before the end of next season is not critical to the franchise.

"I've been around long enough. Nothing is crucial. I was the a- who traded Elvin Hayes, remember," he said.

He admitted his enthusiasm for the job had slipped.

"Had you talked to me six months ago, you would have found a different person. I had to keep my enthusiasm because I couldn't just keep rocking along. Delving into cable situation finally has helped me solve a lot of problems that I had in my own mind," he said. "As it is now, because of costs I end up with 70 cents out of the dollar. But if I take a buck in on the cable, I get the whole dollar."

He claims sending all the Rockets' home games into people's homes will not cut attendance.

"I have a conviction that using the cable the best way we can use it, a great percentage of the subscription buyers will be here. Ten tickets for all they buy. The concept opens up all kinds of possibilities of getting people in the building," he said.

The Rockets, 23-32 and struggling to make the playoffs, average 8,500 attendance with 4,500 of that season tickets. About 85 percent of the season-ticket buyers are companies.

Patterson's plan might allow the companies to continue buying season tickets, with the remainder of them going to the cable subscribers.

CSI ends home slate with TVCC tonight

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho hosts Treasure Valley in its final home game of the season tonight — with one eye on Rexburg.

The 14th-ranked Eagles, who should have Michael Ingram and Doug Wesselmeyer back after a bout with flu, need the victory to run their regional record to 5-0.

Meanwhile, North Idaho will be invading Rexburg where a Ricks victory would assure CSI of the regional tournament host designation. Should North Idaho win, CSI's final game in Coeur d'Alene next Saturday will decide where the tournament will be played.

Although CSI is favored against Treasure Valley, Coach Dave Campbell warns against any over-confidence.

"They beat Ricks by 11 points and knocked them out of the tournament picture," he reminded. "If they knock us off, it probably would mean the regionals won't be here."

Treasure Valley runs under the direction of 5-10 point guard Dave Derricks, an Ontario product who also is capable of shooting well from the outside. TVCC's tallest is 6-9 Doug Cantlay who generally doesn't start but sees a lot of action.

"Our feeling on Treasure Valley is the same as before the first game," Campbell said. "You want to get after them early. If you let them get their game going, particularly shooting well in transition, they can put a lot of points on the board."

Prior to the men's battle, Coach Lloyd Hardesty's women Eagles will take on their Treasure Valley counterparts at 6 p.m. CSI must win to keep its hopes alive for a spot in regionals plus win a pair next week in traveling to Flashhead and North Idaho. The CSI women carry an 11-5 mark into tonight's game.

ISU aims for cage playoffs tonight

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Idaho State has a chance to clinch a berth in the Big Sky Conference basketball tournament by defeating Northern Arizona tonight.

Last week, Idaho State lost a pair on the tough Montana road trip. The Bengals fell to Montana 79-62 Friday and to Montana State 73-55 Saturday. Both opponents shot substantially better than 50 percent from the field while Idaho State shot a cold 43 percent for the weekend.

The Bengals also dropped a home game Friday night to Nevada-Reno 87-63.

The wide losses ended Idaho State's streak of playing seven consecutive games decided by six or fewer points. Idaho has still won 10 of its last 16 games.

The Northern Arizona Lumberjacks have played as many close games as Idaho State. They are 7-14 on the season and 1-9 in the league, but their nine league losses have been by an average of seven points.

The Lumberjacks have lost 12 of their last 14 games with two wins both by one point over Weber State and the University of California at Santa Barbara.

record in the Ivy League by beating Yale 60-47 Friday night.

Mills scored 15 of his 21 points in the first half to give Princeton a 30-21 halftime lead.

Senior forward Randy Melville added 15 points and sophomore forward Craig Robinson chipped in 12 as Princeton improved to 7-0 in the Ivy and 12-8 overall.

Penn 66, Brown 58

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — George Noon scored 15 points Friday night, hitting on all six field-goal attempts, to lead Pennsylvania to a 65-58 Ivy League victory over Brown for the Quakers' sixth straight triumph.

The win improved the Quakers' overall record to 14-4 and its Ivy mark to 7-1 and left them one game behind Princeton, which defeated Yale Friday night 69-47.

Dayton 109, Duquesne 100

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) — Mike Byrd scored six points in the third overtime and Mike Kaneski led Duquesne with 24 points Friday night, sparking the Flyers to a 109-100 victory over Duquesne.

Dayton remained in contention throughout by connecting on 31-of-40 free throw attempts and outscored the Dukes 18-9 in the final five-minute period.

Harvard 65, Columbia 63

NEW YORK (UPI) — Calvin Dixon hit a pair of free throws with three seconds remaining Friday night to give Harvard a 65-63 Ivy League decision over Columbia.

The victory raised Harvard's league record to 5-2, keeping the Crimson two games behind Ivy leader Princeton with five games to play.

Harvard improved to 13-7 overall while Columbia dropped to 7-14 and 3-6 in the Ivy.

Air Force 63, Hawaii 61

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (UPI) — Reggie Jones hit a 12-foot jump shot with one second left Friday night to lift Air Force to a 63-61 Western Athletic Conference victory over Hawaii.

Tim Harris had 21 points for the Falcons and Rick Simmons scored 18 as Air Force improved its record to 8-14 on the season and 11 rebounds, including a rebound of a missed shot by Hawaii's Erwin Washington that set up the game-winning basket.

Weber 83, N. Arizona 57

ODGEN, Utah (UPI) — Todd Harper scored 28 points and Gerald Matlinson added 18 points and 19 rebounds Friday night to lead Weber State to an 83-57 Big Sky Conference victory over Northern Arizona.

Harper was followed by Royal Edwards, who had 19 points. Matlinson's rebound total tied a Weber State record set last season by Richard Smith.

Elliott Jones led Northern Arizona with 21 points and Willy Young added 13 for the Lumberjacks.

Portland 78, Pepperdine 76

MALIBU, Calif. (UPI) — Jose Slaughter hit a 20-foot jumper with three seconds remaining to lift Portland University to a 78-76 victory over Pepperdine in a West Coast Athletic Conference game Friday night.

Portland outscored the Waves 29-11 in the final 10 minutes to overcome a 65-49 Pepperdine lead.

Portland improved its record to 4-6 in conference and 13-10 overall while Pepperdine fell to 7-3 in conference and 12-11 overall.

Barber proves he's still alive with LA lead

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Miller Barber, closing in on his 50th birthday but vowing he's "not dead yet," shot a four-under-par 67 early Friday and watched several challenges fall short, to take a one-stroke lead after the second round of the Los Angeles Open.

Barber, who will turn 50 on March 31, began the second round at the sprawling Riviera Country Club at five-under following his opening-round 66. He was tied with five others, a stroke behind leader Gil Morgan. But Barber's 67 left him at nine-under-par 133, stroke ahead of Morgan, who had a second-round 69.

Alone in third place at seven-under was Johnny Miller who had a 69 following an eagle on the par-five, 506-yard first hole. At six-under were two-time 1981 winner Bruce Lietzke and Bing Crosby tournament winner John Cook, both with 68, charging Tom Weiskopf, who began the day at even-par and eagled the first hole and turned in a 65, second-year pro Rod Nuckolls, who had a 68, and Antonio Cerdas from Argentina, who fired a second-round 65.

Barber jumped out quickly with a birdie on the first hole and followed with a birdie on the third hole to move to seven-under for the tournament. He bogeyed the fourth hole but then reeled off birdies on Nos. 6, 9 and 13.

Barber bogeyed the 17th hole but regained that stroke with a 14-foot birdie putt on No. 18 for his slim lead on the usually-demanding 7,029-yard Riviera layout.

Barber admitted he's in the twilight of what has been a brilliant career, but said as he closes in on his 50th birthday it's his putting — not driving or long iron play — that has suffered most.

"I started using a different putting stroke and it just wasn't doing me any good," the resident of Sherman, Texas said. "But the last two rounds I've pulled very, very well, and that's been the difference."

"We all can't play as well as 50 as we did when we were 20, and sooner or later you've got to admit it. I know I'm in the twilight of my career, but I'm not dead yet. I've still got a few breaths left."

Morgan, who missed the tournament record by a single stroke in the opening round, also began quickly Friday. He birdied No. 1 after crunching a 3-wood to within four feet of the pin and missing the eagle putt.

The 32-year-old practicing optometrist from Wewoka, Okla., in his seventh year on the tour, went to eight-under with a birdie on the 10th hole but lost that stroke with a bogey on No. 12. But on the 17th hole he sank a 6-foot birdie putt to pull within a stroke of Barber heading into today's third round.

Alcott, two others tied for Sarasota top spot

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — Amy Alcott fired a five-under-par 67 Friday to move into a three-way tie for the lead with Ayako Okamoto and Sandra Post in an LPGA tournament.

The three are at six-under-par 138.

Okamoto, the first-round leader with a 67 Thursday, had a one-under-par 71 Friday, while Post carded a two-under-par 70 to go with her first-round 68.

JoAnne Carner, who had a 71 Friday, was one shot behind the leaders at 139.

Alcott put together a round of six birdies and one bogey. Okamoto had two birdies and one bogey and Post had an erratic round of five birdies and three bogeys as the players battled strong swirling winds.

"I'm just exhausted," Alcott said. "I couldn't be more pleased with my round. It's exhausting playing in this wind. You have to play a little more aggressively."

"I thought I played well today but I sure saw some places on the course I had seen before. But I handled it," Post said. "The wind is treacherous."

Okamoto, speaking through an interpreter, said she had hoped before Friday's round to be able to shoot a 70.

Okamoto said she missed birdie putts of seven feet on four straight holes on the back nine.

Okamoto is a veteran of the Japan LPGA but just qualified for her American LPGA card last month at the Bent Tree golf course, where the LPGA tournament is being played.

"My birthday is Sunday and that (victory) would make a nice present," Alcott said.

Alcott also had putting problems missing birdie putts of less than 10 feet four times.

Carner had two birdies and a bogey en route to her 71.

"I just couldn't get the ball close to the hole," she said. "The wind just swirled so much. It was driving me crazy."

Jo Ann Washam had a 71 Friday to make the halfway point at 141. Hollis Stacy (69) and Sally Little (71) were tied at 142. Dol Germain (74) and Beth Daniel (75) were at 143, and Kathy McNullen (75) and Patty Sheehan (73) were at even par 144.

Troubled Whalers can coach

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — The Hartford Whalers, winners of only two of their last 25 games, Friday fired easy-going head coach Don Blackburn and called on assistant coach Larry Pleau to salvage an NHL playoff berth for the team.

Whalers' director of operations Jack Kelley said Blackburn was dismissed because of "a lack of success and obvious frustration that has been building up within the club over the past 25 games."

"This has brought me to the conclusion that a change in the coaching of the team must be made at this time," Kelley said. In the Whalers' first NHL season and Blackburn's first full season as head coach, Hartford rolled up a 27-34-19 record and a NHL playoff slot last year.

But the Whalers have failed to win in their last 11 games and have won only two games in their last 25 contests. They are at the bottom of the Norris Division and in 18th place overall in the 21-team NHL with a 15-29-16 record.

In their first 60 games last season, the Whalers were 15-29-16 under Blackburn.

Blackburn, interviewed by WFSB-TV Friday evening, indicated his firing was not a surprise.

"Anytime you're losing you've got to be concerned as a coach," he said. "It never comes as a surprise. I think the day you sign a contract as a coach you've got to realize it's going to end some time."

Blackburn, whose contract was extended a year ago and then renegotiated last summer, said, "You've got to be realistic about coaching. You know it's a very short-lived job. It's a lot easier to change a coach than 20 people."

Kelley said the Whalers have 20 games left "and the club is still within striking distance of making the playoffs. Hopefully, the team will respond and play up to its capacity for Larry."

$5 million suit filed by Wilson

URBANA, Ill. (UPI) — An attorney for University of Illinois quarterback David Wilson Friday filed a pair of $5 million civil rights suits in Champaign County Circuit Court against the Big Ten and the other nine member conference schools.

Wilson played the 1980 season under a temporary court injunction after the Big Ten ruled he was ineligible to play because he lacked sufficient academic credit.

His suit against the Big Ten and the NCAA is expected to come to trial in May. Wilson's attorney Robert Auler has indicated he may have to ask for another injunction so Wilson can participate in spring practice.

The $10 million in claims filed by Auler are for damages and punitive damages. Auler joked he decided on the $10 million figure because there are 10 conference schools, and the round figure makes for "easy division."

Although Auler filed the suits Friday, he will have to file an amended version to clear up a legal technicality.

"I feel Wilson's civil rights have been violated," said Auler. "We are asking for a jury trial and it will be up to the jury to determine the amount of the damages."

Seattle mayor likes Olympic possibility

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Seattle Mayor Charles Royer likes the idea of his city staging some 1984 Olympics water sports—even though it is 300 miles north of the host city.

Royer in Los Angeles to attend a communications law symposium, was asked what he thought about Seattle hosting Olympic events in canoeing and rowing, and he said:

"I think it's a nice idea to get away from one city. 'And there's a practical reason, Los Angeles doesn't have a lot of water and we do."

The mayor spoke seriously about the long tradition of crew at the University of Washington in support of the idea.

He also said there was a chance Seattle "might get a piece of the soccer activity" for the 1984 Olympics.

Reds complete reorganization

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Cincinnati Reds Friday completed reorganization of their business structure from a corporation to a partnership, the club announced.

The partnership is headed by brothers James R. and William J. Williams, and includes five former Reds owners.

Former majority owner Louis Nippert, who reportedly initiated the change because of his desire to step down as board chairman, will retain a share of ownership as a partner.

Nippert, who had owned 90 percent of the Reds, said proceeds from the sale of his stock will be distributed to charities.

"It has been a pleasure to have been able to be involved with the Cincinnati Reds the way I have these past 14 years, and Mrs. Nippert and I will continue to be involved as partners," he said.

The Williams brothers said in a joint statement they envisioned "no changes in the basic philosophy and direction of the club."

They said Dick Wagner would continue as president and chief executive officer and Bob Howsam will be vice chairman of the Reds.

Niekro glad to give up 'elder statesman' position

ATLANTA (UPI) — Phil Niekro, Atlanta's longtime "elder statesman," finds himself at age 41 no longer the oldest player.

Owner Ted Turner recently signed 42-year-old Gaylord Perry as a free agent, giving the Braves two of the three oldest pitchers in baseball.

The "elder statesman" role is one Niekro is happy to give up, however, although the knuckleball ace says he is still asked every day how much longer he plans to pitch.

"I never look at my age as a factor in playing baseball," said Niekro, who has two more years left on his contract. "Who's to say what I'm going to feel like in two years? If I can continue to feel mentally and physically as I have the last 10 years, I will continue to pitch."

"There is still no age limit in baseball. The commissioner hasn't put a limit on it — a time when you step aside and get a gold watch. I've always looked at it that until someone came along that could do the job better, I would be playing baseball."

Niekro's health became an issue at one point last summer when he was flown home from a road trip for tests after an Atlanta newspaper reported he was gasping for breath on the mound one night.

Niekro says the incident "was blown out of proportion."

"It was a hot, muggy night and I just got tired," he said. "I was running out of gas and looking for air. I've always thrown my head back and tried to get a little extra air. Sooner or later, if you are pitching every four days, it's going to catch up with you."

"Four days later, I came back in St. Louis in 100 degrees, pitched nine innings and ran the bases twice after hitting two doubles. I believe it was a five-hitter."

Niekro said he appreciated the Braves looking out for his health, but he believes the only reason he was flown home was because of his age.

"I also think it had a lot to do with what had happened to J.R. Richard (the Houston pitcher who suffered a stroke last season)," he said.

Despite his age, Niekro continued to be the workhorse of the Braves' staff last year, leading the club in innings pitched (275), starts (38), complete games (11), strikeouts (176) and victories (15). But he also lost 18 games and Manager Bobby Cox believes he can bounce back with a better season this year.

"We need a little bit more than 15 wins from Niekro this year and I believe he can do it," said Cox as the Braves prepared to report to spring training this week in West Palm Beach, Fla.

Niekro, who has a lifetime 233-209 record, said he was looking forward to spending a lot of time with Perry (289-230) in spring training.

"I'm hoping I'm going to learn a lot of pitching from him," he said. "People say I've had a good career but I look at Gaylord Perry as having had just a fantastic career. You've got to learn something from a man like that."

Niekro, an eternal optimist, has never been more confident of the Braves' chances after the club's 81-50 finish last season, including the best record in the National League for the final two months of the season.

"I think we've got the best talent we've ever had in the Braves' organization," he said. "Players and managers on other teams are talking about the Braves more than in past years."

Former champions working hard to gain shape

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Sometimes he's on the racquetball courts by 7:30 a.m., an hour he normally considers the middle of the night. Purposely overdriven to produce sweat, and wearing weighted gloves designed to build hand and wrist strength, he plays as many as nine games before the alarm bell rings 10 a.m. and time for weight training.

For 45 minutes, he pumps iron in the Nautilus way: eight to 12 repetitions of pulley-equipped weights ranging from 70 to 90 pounds on a dozen different machines, each geared to build strength in a different part of the body. Then, before he has time to think about how tired he is, he picks up a weighted bat and swings at imaginary baseballs until he can no longer hold the bat up.

By 11 a.m. he's on an empty indoor tennis court, running sprints, running backwards, running sideways. After a shower and a low-calorie lunch of soup, he heads home to spend the rest of the day while he has time to do his wintertime resting and relaxing. By then it's noon, the time he might finally be rising after a night game.

"If I don't do it early," Pittsburgh Pirates third baseman Bill Madlock says of his early morning workouts, as he grins at his exhausted racquetball opponent of the day, "I won't do it at all."

Madlock has turned his entire lifestyle upside down and inside out this winter, hoping to find a way to avoid the injuries that turned the Pirates' 1980 season into bitter disappointment. So have Steve Nicolosi and Don Robinson, who, like Madlock, have devoted their winter months to training weight, building strength and trying to find the key to the kind of overall good conditioning that might better enable a body to suffer the strains of a 162-game season. And while their changes in lifestyle have not been quite as dramatic as those of Madlock, Nicolosi and Robinson, many more Pirate players have taken it upon themselves to substitute individual conditioning programs for their usual winters of rest, relaxation, too much beer and too much food.

Madlock began his workout program two weeks after the 1980 season ended, interrupting it twice to go into the hospital for repair and reconstruction of his thumb. The full-scale workout described above takes place on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays; Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays are for racquetball only. Sunday is his.

By mid-January, Madlock was 10 pounds lighter than he was during the frustrating 1980 season, when the thumb injury, a bad knee and a 15-game suspension combined to give him the worst individual statistics of his career.

Nicolosi is five years from 30, and he wasn't hurt last season. But since he has a tendency towards chunkiness anyway, he decided a little preventive medicine could only be beneficial. For the first winter in his baseball career, he is in shape.

Like Madlock, Nicolosi spends three days a week — Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays — playing racquetball and working on weights. On Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, he meets pitcher Grant Jackson at Three Stadium for some hitting and throwing in the indoor batting cage. When weather permits, they run outdoors.

Sundays are his off days, but only when it comes to exercise. He has been dieting seven days a week: "lots of grapefruit, grapefruit juice and a lot of salads."

Robinson, 23, has never repeated his spectacular rookie season in 1978. Injuries have taken their toll. Pirate officials suggested dieting and winter baseball might help to cure both while providing time to develop a changeup pitch.

So for the first time since his minor league days, Robinson wintered south of the border, playing for Bayamon in the Puerto Rican league.

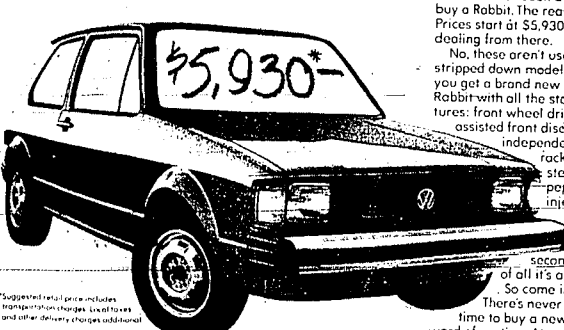

"Ed Ott has always exercised in the offseason, playing racquetball and hiking and hunting in the woods near his winter home in Allentown, Pa. But several minor injuries still got the better of him last year. He decided to add a weight-training program to his offseason regimen.

"I wanted to get stronger in my upper body, and my legs aren't getting any younger," Ott said.

Three days a week, Ott visits an Olympic Fitness Club, where he runs through a routine of three different methods of weight training: free weights, Nautilus and isometrics.
