

Tax revolt in Michigan stymies IRS

FLINT, Mich. (UPI) — Thousands of auto workers are refusing to file income tax returns and falsifying withholding forms in a revolt that has stymied the government, an Internal Revenue Service official said Sunday.

"This is the biggest, or at least one of the biggest, tax protest movements in the country," said Leonard Nawrocki, IRS manager of criminal investigations in Flint.

Nawrocki described it as a grass-roots movement being spread in and around auto plants from Flint to Detroit. He said the protesters number at least 3,500, most employed by General Motors Corp. Many are white-collar workers.

The protesters argue that income taxes violate citizens' rights in several ways, in particular, that forcing a person to report income violates rights against self-incrimination.

The IRS is threatening to strike back with its entire legal arsenal, but Nawrocki conceded the large number of protesters will make prosecutions difficult — and he is considering asking for help from Washington.

"That's the secret — the numbers," Nawrocki said.

"I don't think we can prosecute every one of them."

Several organizations are promoting the revolt, including a group called "We the People-American Citizens Tribunal."

Dean Hazel, an hourly worker at a GM plant in Pontiac, said he founded We the People, but he denied being an "income tax evader or cheat," saying the group is defending the Constitution.

Most protesters directed their employers to stop deducting city, state and federal income taxes from their paychecks. The IRS learned of the movement when employers reported workers were changing their filing status.

Plan faces pens

Rewriting in House big hurdle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan's presentation of his economic recovery program went off without a hitch — but now Congress is likely to rewrite the script.

In his address last week, the president called for quick action on his proposal to cut the budget by $41.4 billion and reduce taxes by 30 percent across the board over the next three years.

He urged Congress to act simultaneously on both parts of the package — which he claims is essential to restore the nation's economic well being — and indicated the legislators should not tamper with the proposed levels for budget and tax cuts or slow the process with amendments.

Senate Republican leaders would like to push the Reagan package through so fast that Democrats can't mount a reasonable challenge without looking like big spenders or obstructionists.

Democrats, in what Sen. Robert Byrd calls a willingness to cooperate, haven't jumped on the spending cuts in the Reagan package. As a group, they've been unusually quiet about budget cuts and have focused their criticism on the tax program.

In the House — the last Democratic bastion in a city where the White House and Senate now are controlled by Republicans — the question comes down to whether the leadership can keep its members in line.

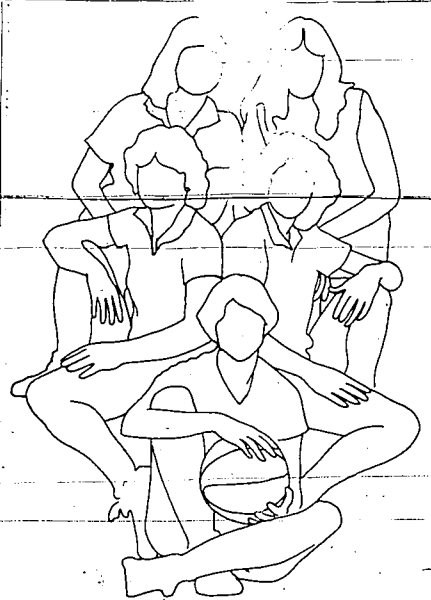

The leaders have taken several steps so far to maintain control, including announcing a timetable for action on the economic package which calls for final consideration of a budget bill in late July — just before Congress recesses for more than a month.

In the Senate, GOP leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., and budget chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said they hope to accomplish the first step of the budget-cutting process within a month.

That is a bill ordering budget cuts for the current fiscal year which ends Sept. 30. Such legislation would write the reductions into law so subsequent appropriations bills could not exceed them.

But the budget figures themselves are disputed more vigorously than the timing.

The Senate budget committee is committed to an attempt to cut even more than the $41.4 billion the president proposed, and committee staffers are eyeing additional cutbacks in subsidized housing, foreign aid or food stamps.

Accused sniper on trial today

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — An avowed racist accused of gunning down two black joggers as they trotted home from a public park is scheduled to stand trial today on civil rights charges stemming from the slippings.

Joseph Paul Franklin, 30, Mobile, Ala., is accused in U.S. District Court with violating the civil rights of David Martin, 18, and Ted Fields, 20, on the night of Aug. 20, 1980.

The two young men were shot to death as they jogged across an intersection near the park in the company of two white teen-aged women. Police said the sniper hid in a weed-covered vacant lot and fired at least six shots at the victims with a 30-caliber rifle.

FBI agents in Fort Wayne, Ind., say they want to question Franklin in connection with the sniper wounding of National Urban League President Vernon Jordan last May. Police in Cincinnati also say they would like to talk the suspect about the unsolved killings of two black teen-agers last June.

Franklin was arrested four weeks later in Florence, Ky., but escaped from the police station during questioning.

Federal Judge Bruce Jenkins, who will preside at the Salt Lake City trial, last week agreed that weapons found in Franklin's brown Camaro by Kentucky authorities — including two handguns and a pair of rifles — were legally seized during a search of the vehicle.

The suspect was recaptured on Oct. 28 as he left a blood bank in Lakeland, Fla. He was extradited to Utah to face the federal charges, which carry a maximum sentence of life in prison.

The Salt Lake County Attorney's Office has also filed first-degree murder charges against Franklin.

Rt. Rev. Hanford L. King Jr. gestures while preaching Sunday in Twin Falls

Retiring Episcopal bishop sees conservative trend

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The retiring bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Idaho sees a more conservative trend in the future of his church.

"Churches generally follow the pattern set by the people, and I see a more conservative time coming," the Rt. Rev. Hanford L. King Jr. said in Twin Falls Sunday.

Bishop King was in Twin Falls for his annual visit to the Central Idaho Deaneary and to deliver a farewell address prior to his Sept. 1 retirement from the church leadership.

He said, "Trends seem to move in cycles and I think we will see more conservatism, not just in the church, but in other ways nationwide."

Bishop King said he is looking forward to the selection of his successor. A search committee has been established with representation from all regions of the state and church leaders. He said Dr. Rodney Swartling of Twin Falls is one of the committee members.

This committee, he said, will assemble potential candidates — priests from Idaho and possibly bishops from other dioceses, and will present recommendations, at a conference of the entire diocese late this year.

The convention will elect a candidate who will also have to have the majority approval of all of the bishops and committees of the church in general. Bishop King said he does not expect the appointment to be completed before 1982.

He announced plans of the church to launch a "Venture In Mission" next Sunday.

He said in that project the church will be seeking contributions with which to expand church facilities.

He said the world-wide church with 65 million members has never been self-supporting.

"I think our own financial problems have tended to make us look inside rather than outside of our own organization. There will be greater emphasis now on looking to people and places outside of our selves, and this I think is good. We see much less when we look only on the inside than we will looking on the outside," he explained.

Bishop King, who has held the top Idaho post for his church for 10 years said he feels some of the future conservatism will be good for the Episcopal Church.

He said he is "just old fashioned enough" not to want to put "my stamp of approval" on such trends of the day as couples living together without benefit of marriage ceremonies.

"We can only hope to reach our own members with the right kind of teaching and Christian influence," he said.

Not everyone supports trend to bilingual staffs, services

Second of three parts

Bilingual Dos lenguas

TWIN FALLS — "If they're going to live in America, they should learn to speak American."

At least, that's how some people express themselves about providing bilingual services in Magic Valley. But "What is American?" is the response of those who say America was forged in a melting pot of customs and cultures.

The use of both Spanish and English as "official" language is an issue of increasing concern in states with a growing number of Hispanic residents.

The Magic Valley has yet to have the bilingual services offered in such places as Los Angeles, but increasing numbers of Hispanic residents have meant a growth in bilingual staff in state agencies and private businesses.

"I maintain if they want to live in this country and accept and receive the benefits of this country, they must pay the price of learning the customs of this country and this language (English)," says Rep. Tom Silvers.

Silvers told the Times-News he intended to introduce a bill eliminating Idaho's requirement for bilingual education in the public schools.

However, Robert Johnson, a lawyer with Servicelogs Legales Para Campesino Migrantes, the Idaho Legal Aid Services office in Burley geared for migrants, says, "If it's required to speak (just) English and give up their native language, it's saying, 'Our language is better than yours.' It's saying, 'If you choose to live here, you live this way.' It leaves no room for freedom of choice."

While those supporting bilingual services acknowledge English is necessary for advancement, they say bilingual translators guarantee equal treatment for those with limited English, many of whom were born or raised in the U.S.

Others interviewed say many older persons, who've "gotten by" all their lives with limited English, find it difficult to learn a new language. Should old people be cut off from help and information by mere virtue of their speech, they ask.

Others question the cost of bilingualism. Some say in the long run it's a disservice not to encourage people to learn English; without it, people are locked into low-paying jobs. The experience of other immigrants who were successfully assimilated is cited.

Marta Padilla of Twin Falls has worked as bilingual clerk in the Social Security office for 10 years. She's seen an increase in the number of limited-English speaking clients who feel "more comfortable" discussing details in their own language.

Most younger Hispanics now know English as well or better than Spanish, which could indicate the need for bilingual services will decrease. But Padilla feels the

Chopper crash kills 2

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A tourist helicopter carrying a honeymooning couple and a family of five crashed Sunday off Santa Catalina Island and sank in the ocean, apparently killing a young boy and the bridegroom, officials said.

The pilot of the chopper was hospitalized in serious condition with chest injuries. The five rescued passengers suffered broken bones, scratches and bruises.

Pope says mass on Guam

AGANA, Guam (UPI) — Pope John Paul II, surrounded by some of the tightest security he has ever seen, celebrated an outdoor mass on the U.S.-run island of Guam today and called for increased Roman Catholic missionary work throughout the world.

Shortly after the mass, John Paul boarded his private jet and headed for Japan, where he will make the first papal visit to that country.

Before leaving Guam, the pope repeated the Roman Catholic Church's condemnation of abortion, urging people to "respect and safeguard the dignity of every human life, especially the life of the aging and unborn."

The U.S. Secret Service protection the pontiff enjoyed during his stop on the 200-square mile island before flying on to Japan brought complaints from local residents unused to the organization's strict security measures.

Britons freed by Iran

LONDON (UPI) — Three British missionaries arrested in Iran last August and held on spying charges have been released and are expected to fly home some time this week, church sources said Monday.

Terry Waite, the Archbishop of Canterbury's special envoy in Tehran, reported the three Anglicans were released Sunday and spent the day in a government reception center where they held a small religious service and ate a meal, the sources said.

Israelis hit guerrilla base

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israeli troops striking under cover of darkness Sunday destroyed a Palestinian base in south Lebanon and killed 10 guerrillas, the military command said. It was the third such raid this month.

A military spokesman said the base, northwest of the Palestinian-controlled town of Nabatiye, was used by the Arab Liberation Front, a group allied with the PLO, to launch an attack on the Israeli border kibbutz of Misgav Am last April in which three Israelis and five guerrillas died.

Jury still deliberating

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (UPI) — Some members of the "Scarsdale Diet" jury, which is weighing a murder charge against Jean Harris, heard a biblical admonition Sunday against "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth."

The start of the sixth day of the panel's deliberations was delayed until shortly after 11 a.m. to let the eight women and four men go to church.

Several jurors who are Catholic attended mass and, by coincidence, the readings were from the Gospel of Matthew and the Old Testament Book of Leviticus.

The panel apparently was still debating whether Mrs. Harris intended to kill Dr. Herman Tarnower, her lover of 14 years.

Americans arrive home

NEW YORK (UPI) — Four Americans jailed for more than eight years in Turkey for smuggling hashish arrived in the United States Sunday and were taken by a police escort to an unknown location.

The four arrived at Kennedy International Airport aboard a Pan Am flight at 2:45 p.m. MST. They avoided reporters, were whisked into a grey van by authorities, and driven away with a Port Authority police escort. The Port Authority operates the airport.

The Americans — originally given life sentences which were reduced to 24 years — were released under an agreement between the United States and Turkey which allows them to serve the rest of their sentences in American prisons.

Jerome hearing postponed

JEROME — A public hearing scheduled for tonight by the Jerome County Planning and Zoning Commission on a dairy operation expansion has been postponed.

Zoning Administrator Al Heworth said if Ted Turner, dairy operator, decides to go through with the request for expansion another hearing will be advertised and held at a later time.

Heworth said it was discovered Turner had not been able to locate and notify one of the property owners of land within 300 feet of the dairy, southeast of Jerome. The ordinance requires the individual seeking special zoning consideration must notify adjacent land owners.

"We have now located the individual he was not able to reach, but it was necessary to delay the hearing because the man had not been given official advance notice," Heworth said.

Immigration of Spanish-speaking people from Mexico, Peru, and South America, means a continual need for bilingual services.

Often called to do translation outside the office, she said she wished more bilingual services were provided.

Others feel needs are being met. Judging from lack of appeals to them, Twin Falls County Commissioner Ann Cover and Minidoka County Commission Chairman Max Garner feel those with limited English are finding adequate help.

Cassia County Commission Chairman Weldon Beck is still miffed at how the county printed Spanish-language ballots about four years ago, and had no requests for them.

However, Johnson feels that speaking English "good enough to go shopping is not good enough for a defense attorney." And this is an area where translators are often needed.

About 7 percent of all adult and juvenile arrests by the Twin Falls Police Department in 1980 were of Hispanics. About 16 percent of all Twin Falls County Sheriff's Department arrests were of Hispanics. This compares with an estimated four to six percent of the county resident population being Hispanic.

By contrast, about 39.5 percent of all arrests by the Burley Police Department and 31.7 percent of Cassia County Sheriff's Department arrests were of Hispanics. An estimated eight to 10 percent of the population is Hispanic.

These figures were drawn from reports required by the FBI and do not indicate whether formal charges were actually filed. Ethnic background was either self reported or determined by arresting officers. It is not unusual for minority ethnic groups at the lower end of the economic scale to have disproportionate arrest rates.

The chief of detectives, a detective and a secretary in the 26-person Burley Police force speak Spanish. One patrolman of the 51-person Twin Falls police department speaks Spanish.

The Twin Falls County Sheriff's 29-person department has one bilingual employee who works in the drivers license division and often helps translate in court procedures.

However, "Being bilingual does not mean you're able to go into the courts and translate. You must be bilingual, and bi-cultural," asserts Gladys Esquibel, assistant to the lawyer in Burley's migrant legal aid office. All their staff is bilingual.

A mere knowledge of Spanish does not necessarily mean a person is a capable translator, she feels. Education is needed. Cultural differences may be unapparent to those with a "textbook" education.

Cassia County Undersheriff Bill Crystal agrees. For example, if a translator reports a person struck another because he was called an "ox," a judge must call that an overreaction. However, calling someone a "buey" (literally an ox) is a severe insult to Hispanics. "You call someone that in Mexico, you get your nose bent," Crystal remarked.

The migrant legal aid office provides its own translators, who are only involved in some civil and no criminal cases.

Crystal, as his department's sole bilingual person, translates for the court and drivers license division. He believes the court and division could use a full-time, trained translator to streamline operations.

The expense of providing staff or bilingual pamphlets such as a driver's manual, can draw opposition.

"You look at the expense of doing everything in duplicate, that's getting to be quite a problem," Garner said. "I mean, we speak English here. You go to other countries, you speak that language."

Hilda Rendon, bilingual clerk for the Department of Health and Welfare, sees a need for more bilingual DHW employees, but she feels, "If they (Spanish speakers) plan to live in this county, they should make an effort to learn English."

Others warn of making services too extensive: "If you give them an inch, they'll take a mile," Stivers said.

Maggie Machala, a bilingual nurse at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, feels denying bilingual service because people "should" learn English, "is a very cold approach."

For example, migrant or low-income Hispanic families have more high-risk pregnancies than the rest of the population, she said. Many have little prenatal care and come to the hospital only as labor begins. And when persons, even the medical staff, "can't communicate, you start talking loud, yelling, frightening people."

Machala hopes to organize bilingual birth classes geared toward farmworkers or former farmworkers and wishes MVMH had more bilingual staff. The hospital has two bilingual nurses but, "more often than not," the hospital uses "someone from the janitorial service" to translate, she said.

However, well-trained bilingual professionals are scarce. Twin Falls Mental Health Director Phil Grover said he's tried to hire a qualified bilingual counselor since 1974. Bilingual therapists are "so much in demand, they pretty well set their salaries at double what we can pay," he said.

Bilingual personnel are, however, popping up in retail businesses — not by government decree, but because so many more people are bilingual. Also, it's apparently just good business. Someone who speaks Spanish will shop at places with Spanish-speaking help, Padilla observes.

Next—Nowhere is the argument over the issue of bilingualism more intense than in the school system over bilingual education.

Administration officials defend Reagan plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three top administration officials Sunday defended President Reagan's tax cut plan against charges it favors the rich and stressed Congress should not tinker with the president's economic package.

Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, Budget Director David Stockman, and White House counselor Edwin Meese — in separate television interviews — also predicted Reagan's recovery plan will renew the economy if adopted.

Regan and Stockman stood by administration projections of how the program of spending cuts and tax reduction will spur productivity while reining back inflation.

"The inflation rate will come down," Regan said on NBC's "Meet the Press."

"If the program is passed promptly and wholly, you'll see evidence (it is working) by the end of the year," he said.

Stockman, appearing on CBS' "Face the Nation," defended the administration's economic forecast as "not that optimistic" in predicting 4 percent annual growth.

"Getting inflation down below 5 percent in the next four years shouldn't be that extraordinary," he said. "We should be able to achieve that if the entire plan is put into effect."

On ABC's "Issues and Answers," Meese said, "What is required is a break with the past. That is why the total package is so important and why we can't take one part out or diminish another without damaging the total."

Democrats, while generally supporting Reagan's call to cut federal spending, have reservations about his tax plan. They prefer a one-year tax cut aimed at lower income persons rather than the three-year, 10-percent-a-year general reduction Reagan proposed last week.

But Regan said, "What we're trying to do is to be fair about it — those who pay the most taxes, when we make an equal 10 percent cut across the board, will also get a greater part of the savings, that's only natural. I see nothing wrong in being fair to everybody."

Stockman, a key economic architect who presided over the $4.1 billion in budget cuts Reagan has recommended, dismissed protests that it favors the rich.

"I don't think it's relevant to say, 'Well, does that occur in the $100,000 class, the $50,000 class or the $20,000 class?' We can't fine tune to that degree."

Regan sounded another theme of the new administration — that taxes should not be used to redistribute the nation's wealth.

"I don't think you should use taxes for social purposes, neither does the president," he said.

"Our tax program is not designed to change society. It is designed to put more money back into the family budget and not the federal budget."

Meese was questioned about suggestions the president might veto a tax cut bill that was substantially different from his proposal.

"I don't believe that Congress is so unresponsive to the need for jobs and economic recovery that we are going to get to that point," he said.

"We are optimistic that we will get the total package, although, perhaps not in the exact form as requested... we have discussed a lot of options, but it is 'way too early to talk about ultimate weapons that might be used to get this program through."

DONALD REGAN...inflation to ease

Governors examine budget cut impact

States want time to adjust

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chairman of the National Governors Association said Sunday President Reagan's budget cuts are "totally unacceptable" unless Washington gives the states enough time and flexibility to adjust to them.

Georgia Gov. George Busbee, expected to lead 47 state and three territorial governors to Washington for the association's three-day annual meeting, told reporters, "We agree with many of the goals that the President has espoused."

Busbee said Reagan's proposed budget cuts "will cause difficulties for state and local governments, but many of them can be absorbed if we are given sufficient time and flexibility to adjust."

"But the cuts are totally unacceptable if flexibility and relief from mandates do not arrive simultaneously."

Busbee said the biggest problems appeared to be in Reagan's proposed reductions in Medicaid and education programs, both of which have numerous federal requirements and restrictions.

Without the authority to use remaining funds as they see best,

GOV. GEORGE BUSBEE...attacks cutbacks

Busbee said, state officials would be unable to dispense with unneeded programs and save the ones that best serve their states.

At a seminar on human services, California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. said the federal law permitted hospitals to charge whatever they chose for patient care.

With Reagan calling for a big cut in federal Medicaid spending this year and a 5 percent "cap" on growth of spending for it next year, Brown said the only salvation for the states would be a change in the law defining "reasonable" hospital charges. And that, he said, would require Reagan "to take on the American Hospital Association... the strongest lobby in the country."

The federal government pays 55 percent of the $30 billion Medicaid program and the states 45 percent, but the states cannot negotiate with the hospitals on costs. When they go up, the only option is to cut services.

White House officials were on hand for the first committee sessions of the National Governors Association's regular winter meeting.

The architect of the plan to slash federal spending, Budget Director David Stockman, was scheduled to brief governors on the budget at a late afternoon meeting.

Today, the governors will meet with four members of the Reagan Cabinet — Attorney General William French Smith, Health and Human Services Secretary Richard Schweiker, Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige and Agriculture Secretary John Block.

The climax of the day will be a scheduled 90-minute afternoon meeting with the president at the White House on "state-federal priorities of the new administration."

The governors are important to Reagan because the states may have to pick up the slack caused by a number of the cuts in federal programs planned by the administration.

The president is asking Congress to convert about 100 specified federal aid programs to lump sum payments to the states for use in such areas as education, health and social services as their officials think best.

The block grants from "categorical" to "block" grants is supposed to save the federal government $4 billion by 1983.

Salvador situation concerns Reagan

POINT MUGU, Calif. (UPI) — President Reagan said Sunday he is "very concerned" about political instability in El Salvador and by communist military aid to the Central American nation.

Reagan spoke to reporters at the Naval Air Station in Point Mugu as he boarded Air Force One for the return trip to Washington. The president spent three days at his 688-acre ranch northwest of Santa Barbara.

Asked his thoughts on the current situation in El Salvador, where rebels are contesting rightist leaders for control of the country, Reagan said, "We are all very concerned."

The president confirmed recent remarks by Secretary of State Alexander Haig, who said the United States has established contingency plans to stem the flow of weapons from communist sources into El Salvador.

Reagan told reporters he had "two very nice days" at his Rancho Del Cielo. Asked if he did any work while staying at his five-room adobe house, the president laughed, "Oh, sure — brought in some firewood. Got rid of some more old dead brush."

Ex-president may take up teaching

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Former President Carter, retired to his family peanut farmstead with a pension of nearly $70,000 a year, could earn millions of dollars writing his memoirs, but an aide says Carter may seek a teaching job.

Carter, whose net worth is estimated at $1.8 million, is known to be planning at least one book.

Carter rights policy called 'utopian'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick attacked the Carter administration's human rights policy Sunday as utopian and arbitrary, and said it helped raise the threat of a ring of Soviet bases around U.S. borders.

The Reagan administration will not abandon human rights but will change its approach, taking into account "the concrete circumstances in which a human rights violation takes place" and recognizing that "there are degrees of evil," Mrs. Kirkpatrick said in an interview with U.S. News & World Report.

"We're not free to have relations only with the democratic countries of this world," she said. "To say that measles is less bad than meningitis doesn't make you pro-measles, does it?"

But Patricia Derian, former assistant secretary of state for human rights, defended the Carter policy in a parallel interview. She said it was successful and "in our long-range national interest."

"Countless numbers of people are alive today because of our policy," she said. "Torture has been reduced somewhat. A number of countries have returned to civilian government. Thousands and thousands of people who were in prison are now free."

It was not the U.S. government's human rights policy that brought about the revolutions in Nicaragua and Iran, she said, but the tyranny of dictators that the United States put into power and kept there for 30 years.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick said the administration will not expect reforms to be carried out in a country like El Salvador, which is fighting a civil war, but will trust the judgment of Napoleon Duarte, the military junta leader "known as a social reformer."

In Africa, she said, the United States could not rule out relations with "moderately repressive autocracies" whose leaders who took power by military coup.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick said the Carter policy should be discarded "because it was utopian, because it was conducted outside of the political and historical context and because it didn't work."

The Carter administration set up standards that no real country, not even the United States, could meet and then operated "on the basis of arbitrary judgments" — making mistakes in Nicaragua, El Salvador, Guatemala and Bolivia, she said.

"Our position in the Western Hemisphere has deteriorated to the point where we must now defend ourselves against the threat of a ring of Soviet bases being established on and around our borders," Mrs. Kirkpatrick said.

Carter's human rights policy "certainly played a role" in bringing about this situation, she said.

Near-death for gasohol unnecessary

The Legislature acted irresponsibly in almost wiping out a tax incentive for the gasohol industry last week.

The program of rebating 4-cents of the state gas tax on every gallon of gasohol produced and sold in Idaho appears to be saved for the moment.

The industry needs that rebate, which expires in 1984, to get started.

But no member of the Legislature spoke up until alcohol producers got wind of two bills to repeal the rebate, contacted their legislators and then swarmed on the capital Thursday and Friday.

The State Senate was scheduled to vote to repeal before the right people got to the right legislators and stopped the process.

Up until then, two committees had quietly and unanimously approved what appeared to be innocuous bills.

The sponsors and backers, including the Idaho Farm Bureau, never mentioned or asked what the bills would do to the alcohol distillers and gasohol distributors.

No other legislator or group mentioned or asked about the effect on gasohol.

Instead they dwelled on the unfairness of the funding system. Farmers and ranchers supplied most of the funds under legislation passed only last year.

The funding system worked by withholding half the refund those people and others usually get on the bulk gasoline they buy for their tractors, trucks and equipment.

The sponsors and their backers argued that the farmers who were hurt the most were small and low-income. They were the ones who had not been able to afford to convert to diesel powered equipment.

True, an inequitable burden falls on these farmers, but not to deal with the problem of destroying a new and greatly beneficial industry was just as wrong.

Because of what was not said about the repealing legislation, many legislators did not even know the gasohol industry was threatened.

Thanks to speedy but somewhat costly lobbying by the industry, the threat has been repelled momentarily.

The Senate Transportation Committee has promised to hold hearings and allow the industry to testify and an alternate funding system is being formulated in the House.

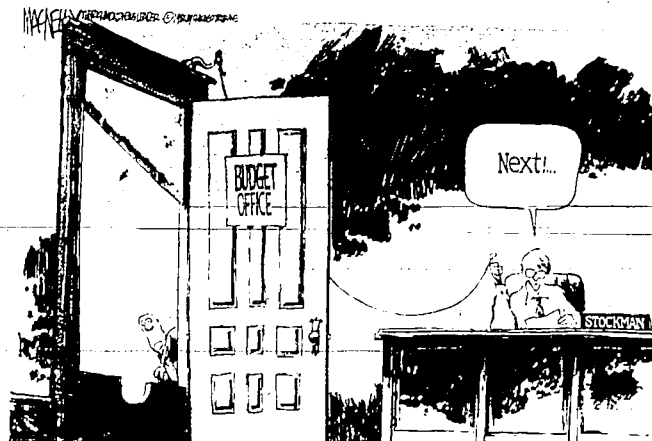

The House and Senate leaders are to be commended for recognizing the problem and agreeing to do something about it.

They showed fairness and responsibility once they learned there might be a problem.

But it is incredible that the repealing bills could have gotten so far so fast so quietly without any visible concern for their impact—especially since farmers will benefit and are benefiting from a new, viable energy-producing industry.

That industry is providing jobs, dollars and fuel for Idaho.

Legislators should know that impact is important and vital to those who believe in energy independence and want to do something about it.

Did right thing

Editor, Times-News:

In the Sunday paper of Feb. 15 I read part of the editorial about the Garwood case, and I am indignant about the statement, "But Vietnam was not an honorable war for honorable circumstances."

To my mind this is an extremely irresponsible statement and in no way true. The Vietnam war was not a war of aggression on our part, but was a war of defense, ours as well as of the Vietnamese.

Before World War II Hitler and his armies pushed from one small area into another in Europe, and England and France did nothing but negotiate, until it finally became clear to them that he had to be stopped and driven back. The struggle was probably much harder at that time than it is now.

In Vietnam the communist Viet Cong with massive communist help were trying to subjugate the Vietnamese. The U.S. Army was there, first as advisers and later became more and more embroiled in the conflict. The only thing many of us regret about that was that our armies were not allowed to go all out and win.

I still believe we did the right thing by being there, and that we did so good by letting the communists know that there can be some resistance to their expansion. I have talked to young men who had been there and who believed in the cause. Some planned to go back because they were needed.

Among the nations of the world we have to stand on the side of freedom. That may be a high-sounding phrase, but it is true. Who else can stand against the kind of aggression the communists, so-called, are demonstrating? The communists are creeping into every continent with their corrupt way of governing. When our armies pulled out of Vietnam the Viet Cong took over and murdered, tortured and subjugated the population.

Of course war is obscene, unspeakable, and leaves behind a dreadful feeling among a lot of people. The veterans from Vietnam were not alone in this feeling. And, of course, the soldiers were revolted by what they saw and heard, but I believe the great upward and distiveness we experienced in this country was caused by the kind of newspaper and television reporting that was constantly before us. These newscasts fostered the feeling of uselessness with their biased reporting. They told over and over the "atrocities" of our army men but didn't mention the cruelties of the Viet Cong.

To my mind, the Vietnam veterans deserve as much of our gratitude as other veterans. I am so very thankful they did their part, and I resent very much the statement that they were split upon and reviled. I feel the younger people who did not live through the second World War may not have understood what it was all about, and I also feel the uproar in this country about our involvement there was encouraged, if not started, by the very forces that were fighting us there. I'm sure I'm not alone in this belief.

TRIM responds

Editor, Times-News:

As chairman of the TRIM (Tax Reform Immediately) Committee I feel I must respond to a recent letter by a clergyman whose church gives financial aid to the National Council of Churches (NCC) and the World Council of Churches (WCC). These groups are both working against Christianity and all religion.

It is unfortunate that more clergymen did not hear Mr. Gordon Lloyd's first-hand account of what these groups actually do with Christian money. Mr. Lloyd photographed terrorist atrocities in assignment for the Rhodesian Police Force. He reported and showed the torture and killing of black, white, male and female and even babies. These terrorists were armed with Soviet-made weapons and received supplies from the WCC.

Mr. Lloyd narrowly escaped the Marxist country now called Zimbabwe (formerly Rhodesia). Zimbabwe is not trying to hide the fact that they are a communist nation as their new flag largely consists of a hammer and sickle.

Mr. Lloyd reported that as recently as August 1978, a grant of $85,000 by the WCC was given to the Patriotic Front. This terrorist coalition is headed by Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, who by July 31, 1978, had caused the murder of 1,712 black and 207 white innocent civilians. Later the WCC gave $125,000 to Soviet-armed Cuban-trained Marxist SWAPO terrorists.

The NCC in the U.S. is the most affluent member of the WCC and provides significant financial support to it. Many of the goals of the NCC are the same as that of the Communists. These include: 1. Abolishing all congressional committees investigating communism; 2. Increasing foreign aid to Communist countries; 3. Adopting world socialism and end all supernatural religion, especially Christianity; 4. Redistribution of wealth, land reform, guaranteed annual income, etc.; 5. Surrendering American sovereignty to the Communist-dominated World Court; 6. More power for the Communist controlled United Nations; 7. Firearms control (essential to a communist takeover); and 8. Removing all prayer and Bible reading from schools.

The National Council of Churches is anything but a Christian organization and is working to destroy all religion. Unfortunately Christian money is used to destroy Christianity.

In addition to aid to terrorists from the World Council of Churches our own government has slated $45 million to go as foreign aid to the Marxist Mugabe government. One of the goals of TRIM is to stop wasteful government spending and end all aid to our communist enemies. This was why the Magic Valley TRIM Committee sponsored Mr. Lloyd to speak in Twin Falls.

If your church supports the NCC and WCC you should ask, "Why? since both support pro-communist, anti-Christian viewpoints. Their own publications and actions verify that fact."

Similar problem

Editor, Times-News:

We read your recent article regarding the odor problems in the area of Farrago Inc. in Twin Falls with great interest and sincere sympathy for the people in that area. Residents of the Hagerman area have endured a similar stench from the Farrago operation here. Whatever they are processing here certainly doesn't smell like "fresh popped popcorn" as the Twin Falls plant officials claim in your article (1-13-81). If popped corn smelled like that the popcorn market would collapse overnight!

Russell Renk of Health and Welfare's Environmental Services Division was quoted (1-11-81) as saying of Farrago owner Ken Ellis, "his credibility (with us) is just about gone." Living about a mile from the Farrago operation in Hagerman, we too, find Ellis' credibility gapping when he states that "published statements about the odors were totally false." (1-13-81).

Technology to control this type of pollution is readily available and at reasonable cost. But one must either CARE or be FORCED to utilize it.

Renk reports (1-13-81) that Farrago has decided to "move the beams out." We trust he is not simply moving them to Hagerman! As with any other freedom, free enterprise carries responsibilities. It is time for Ken Ellis to either accept his or face the consequences.

Let's hear it for onions

BOISE — Is nothing sacred anymore? Are there no true value measurements left?

The Idaho Historic Preservation Council recently passed out some awards for the best and worst treatments of the state's historic buildings. The Council labeled the awards Onions and Onions.

As one who has long recognized the positive merit of onions, I naturally assumed that this marvelous vegetable (or herb) was again being recognized as a symbol of excellence.

Imagine my chagrin when I found that the onions were for the losers and were equated with ineptitude and destruction. In fact, one of the onion awards went to the elm beetle because it preys upon the historic trees of Boise.

How can an ordinarily fair-minded people be so misled? The onion is a source of joy which lends a touch of excellence to all that it comes in contact with.

What soup would be worth sampling without onions? A salad loses all chance of sappiness if it is not graced by a touch of the tasty onion. All main dishes, from stews to steaks, are enhanced and embellished by onion salt — or flakes — or slices.

And, of course, the pungent bulb is a delight served by itself — baked whole on a barbecue or deep-fried in rings.

If you don't like the looks of an onion, you can peel off a layer and find a whole new world. Furthermore, everyone's breath takes on character after the ingestion of onions. This phenomenon is so inviting that people will often eat onions immediately after smelling them on someone else.

Scientific studies have attached significant health benefits to the practice of eating onions. Circulatory ailments are alleviated and digestion is improved. Even claustrophobia is eased if a strong onion odor is carried on the person.

Adding insult to injury at that bad-awards scene was the slinging of praise to orchids. Can you imagine rating an orchid over an onion? An orchid is a parasite plant which is such a pest in some parts of the world that it is regularly sprayed with herbicide.

The orchid derives its name from an unmentionable part of the body. Although it has a certain beauty about it, its attractiveness is ephemeral. An orchid will soon wilt and return to the dust from whence it came.

An onion, on the other hand, has staying power. If you don't believe me just eat one whole and have someone check your breath later.

So, I would implore the Historic Council, a group noted for its adherence to fact, to reverse the order of their awards when they present them next year, for:

"We unto them that call evil good, and good evil;" — Isaiah 5:20

GOP helps fuel Idaho Democrats' recovery in 1982

BOISE — Idaho Republicans are manufacturing plenty of cannon fodder for use by Democrats toward re-electing their governor and winning back some seats in the Legislature.

Some broad-brush Democratic oratory over the weekend in Boise tore into a list of Republican proposals from the six-week-old legislative session.

Ranging from right-to-work to reduced care for the mentally and physically handicapped, the proposals are swelling the ranks of the "wronged" in Idaho.

The underdog never had a better friend than some Republican legislators. However, GOP legislators as a whole still have time to soften their approach and probably will. The Legislature has yet to act on any one of the threats made so far to cut programs.

But they have already caused some political damage by rallying friends of kindergarten, Lewis-Clark State College and state employees.

The problem has created open division in the GOP Party with the vote of its state central committee over the weekend against passage of the right-to-work bill.

As state Sen. Ron Twillegar, D-Boise, points out, five Democratic candidates for the Legislature lost by less than 600 votes in 1980.

Twillegar, who headed a Democratic campaign to capture the State Senate, said the 31 candidates who were recruited to run formed the best slate he had ever seen.

He asserted the five narrow losses at least could be blamed on the Ronald Reagan sweep and that the single mistake Democrats made was their timing.

That alleged trick of fate dropped the party balance in the State Senate from 19-15, in favor of the Republicans, to 23-13.

Twillegar compiled a plan to rebuild the Idaho Democratic Party that was adopted by the central committee.

The key feature would raise more party operating funds and modernize the system — or lack of system — of fundraising.

When implemented, the plan will triple funding simply by switching to a categorization of donors and monthly collection of donations.

Republicans have been doing it for years.

That succeeds and some Republican legislators get their way, Idaho Democrats will be more of a force in 1982 than they were in 1980.

Mark Roby of Boise, who came in a distant second to Maie Hanzel of Boise for state party chairman, provided some preview of the Democrats' 1982 campaign platform in his campaign speech.

"We suffered one of the most stunning defeats in Democratic history," Roby said.

"They got us voting against things," he asserted, referring to negative political action committees in Idaho and across the nation.

Although he was speaking in the context of his own campaign, his plea "not to vote against" a person or where he comes from led into an infant 1982 Democratic platform.

"Let's vote for meaningful programs for the elderly," Roby began his list.

Democrats stand — for education, while the GOP "has proved" it does not support — from kindergarten through college.

Democrats stand for "the working man and his right to organize and bargain collectively" and for equal rights under the Constitution for minorities and the "oppressed majority," women.

Democrats vote for the mentally and physically handicapped.

"Many Republicans want to put a dollar value on life and the quality of life. Democrats can't and won't," Roby said. "I wonder what price-tag the Republicans today would put on a Helen Keller as a child?"

Consumer caution continues

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Consumers are more willing to spend in 1981 than they were last year, but their already fragile confidence could vanish unless the credit crunch eases, University of Michigan researchers reported Sunday.

The university's Institute for Social Research said its 125th survey of consumer sentiment indicates the buying public is optimistic the Reagan administration will improve the economy — yet is approaching with caution.

Researchers called the favorable data "characteristic of past presidential honeymoons."

The survey showed confidence waned near the end of 1980 because of renewed worry about tight credit and high interest rates, with the sharpest decline in the housing market and a slight dip in the automobile market.

However, the researchers said, confidence was still up slightly over the third quarter of 1980 and far above the record low recorded in the year's second quarter.

"Given recent increases in interest rates, and the ephemeral nature of the presidential honeymoon, it is likely that consumer sentiment will follow a volatile path during the coming months," Survey Director Richard T. Curtin said.

Researchers interviewed 2,063 people nationwide between Oct. 1 and Dec. 30, 1980, for the 125th consumer confidence survey they have taken since 1946.

They pegged the Institute's "Index of Consumer Sentiment" at 72.1 in the fourth quarter, up 4.3 points from the third quarter index in September 1980 and 10 points above the year-earlier figure.

Suicide rate soars for teens

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The number of teen-age suicide victims has nearly doubled in 10 years and family problems are the major cause, a study released Sunday said.

According to research conducted by psychologist Carl Tishler, 46 adolescents who attempted suicide from 1978 to 1980 had parents who were more depressed than parents of a control group of 46 non-suicidal teen-agers.

The parents of the suicide-prone teen-agers also drank more and had a lower self-image than the other parents, said Tishler, of Children's Hospital in Columbus, Ohio.

The study found fathers of suicide-prone teen-agers were more depressed and anxious than the control group's fathers.

Tape release appeal filed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government, fearing the information may help tax cheats, has asked the Supreme Court to block release of computer tapes of individual income tax returns.

The Internal Revenue Service was ordered last year by U.S. District Judge Walter McGovern in Seattle to give the tapes to Susan and Philip Long, who have been locked in a legal struggle with the IRS since their taxes were audited in 1969.

In papers filed with the high court late last week, U.S. Solicitor General Wade McCree said that if the tapes are released, "persons knowledgeable in statistical procedures and methods (could) use the information to reduce the likelihood that their returns would be audited by differing income or deductions to different categories."

Judge McGovern's order was temporarily stayed by an appeals court, but that delay expired last week when the appeals panel rejected the government's arguments. The government then asked Justice William Rehnquist, who handles Western states, that it be allowed to keep the tapes until an appeal can be brought to the high court.

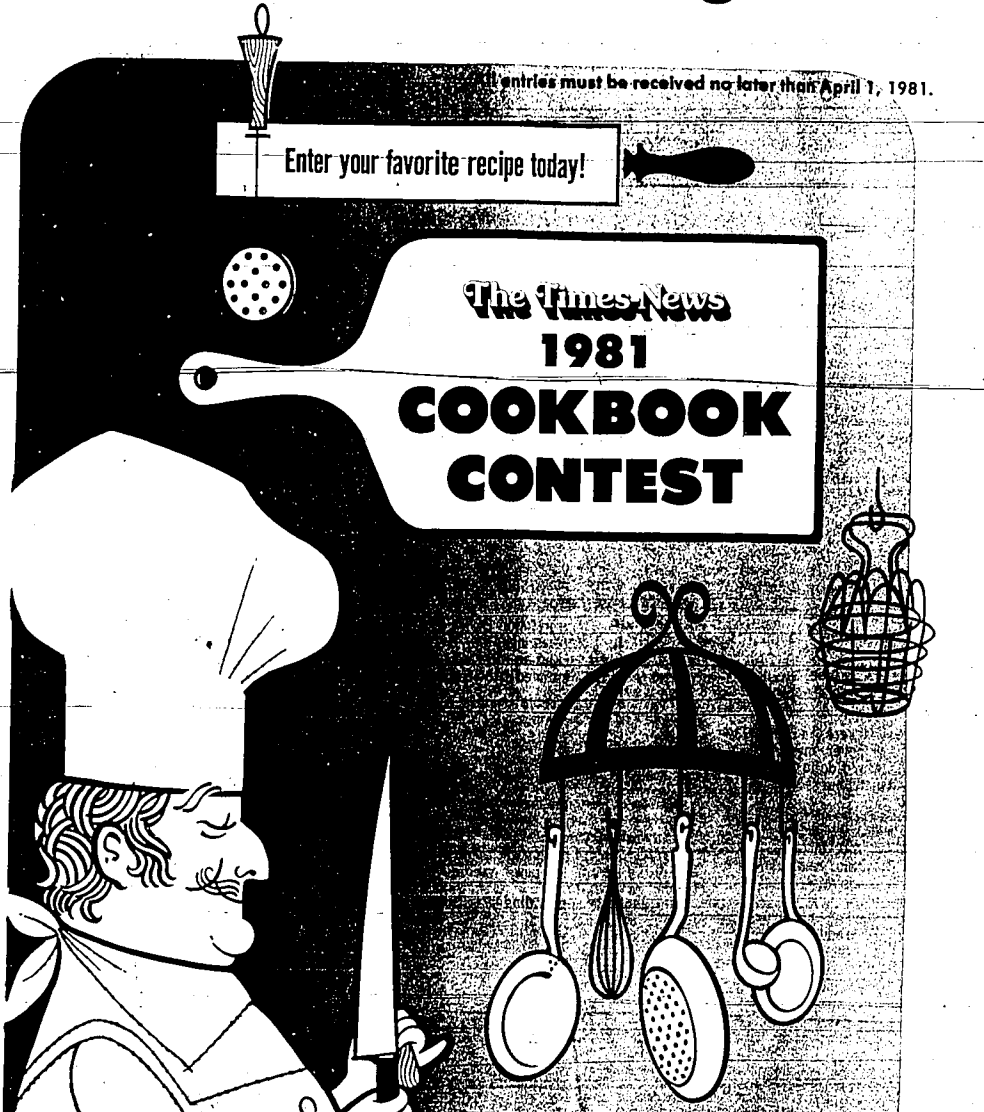

Lawyers battling exam for Daniel

ANAHUAC, Texas (UPI) — Lawyers for Vickie Daniel, accused of killing her husband, former House Speaker Price Daniel Jr., will oppose an attempt to subject the woman and her two children to psychiatric examinations.

A hearing was scheduled this morning before Judge W. G. Woods on a request seeking a psychiatric examination of Mrs. Daniel and the children.

Daniel's sister and executrix of his estate, Jean Daniel Murph of Richardson, is attempting to gain custody of the children and the request for the court-ordered mental examinations was related to her effort.

Moral Majority in court today in film checkout quest

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI) — In what may become a landmark First Amendment case, the Moral Majority group is set to court today to learn which public schools have borrowed a controversial sex education film from the Washington State Library.

Michael Farris, state Moral Majority director, called the film "Achieving Sexual Maturity" a "how-to manual" for sexual intercourse and masturbation.

The 21-minute, award-winning movie has been in national circulation since 1973 without complaints, but Farris said its nudity and explicit treatment of sexuality makes it improper for public school use.

Distributors said the film was one of a series produced for human sexuality courses at the college level, but would not be inappropriate for similar classes in high schools if reviewed beforehand.

Portions of the movie show adults and children dancing together in the nude, teen-agers of both sexes separately engaging in masturbation and depict a variety of sexual organs in stages of development.

The debate has generated a lot of public interest.

State library officials said their three prints are now booked through August.

Assistant State Attorney General Thomas Bjorgen said the legal fight could set a precedent because he knows of no state or federal court ruling on whether library check-out lists are confidential.

"It might be the first court decision on the issue," Bjorgen said.

Farris said he wants to know which schools showed the "morally offensive" movie so he can lobby legislators to ban all public school sex education without prior parental consent.

State Librarian Roderick Swartz had rejected the conservative group's request for a list of those who checked out the film.

Although the movie has been "screened in" at least one high school, Swartz said there were no public schools on the check-out list.

Library officials said teachers may have borrowed the film for their classes and it was impossible to know which names on the list were connected to schools and which were private individuals.

Magistrate turns to priesthood

By United Press International

BENCH FOR PULPIT

U.S. Magistrate Joseph Quinn says he's giving up his government post, his private law practice and all the money that goes with them to join the "ultimate form of service to others" — the Roman Catholic priesthood.

"I certainly enjoy a fair amount of material wealth but I feel that's not all there is to life," the Scranton, Pa., man said. Quinn said when he announced his decision to leave the magistrate's office many of his acquaintances were shocked. "But those close to me knew it was a life style I had been considering for a while," he said.

ALL IN THE FAMILY

Jack Ford says he is seriously considering following in the footsteps of his father, former President Gerald Ford, by entering politics next year in a bid for California state controller. Ford, 28, said his father has urged him to run for Congress. The former president served as a congressman from Michigan for 35 years. "Nothing would thrill my father more than for me to follow in his direction," Ford said in San Diego. "He's been encouraging me quite a bit in that direction." Ford said he thinks he could make a "more significant impact" at the state level.

WHITE HOUSMEN TURN TV WRITERS

Now that the hostages are home, CBS plans to make a six-hour "docudrama" on the Iran crisis. The network has signed former Carter administration aides Gerald Radsbun and Hamilton Jordan to research and write the mini-series, scheduled for airing during the 1982-1983 television season. Radsbun said the series will be "factual" and there would be no attempt to slant the story to make it more favorable to Jimmy Carter and his top advisers. The show has not yet been cast.

Atlanta officers continuing to push search for 'witness'

ATLANTA (UPI) — Authorities are still searching for a "witness" they want to question in the cases of 20 murdered and missing children — after apparently ruling out a 24-year-old suicide victim who resembles the man being sought.

The suicide victim, Victor Todd Bartolotti of Atlanta, was found dead Saturday of carbon monoxide poisoning in a friend's car in the city's northwest section.

A police composite drawing of the witness being sought — a white man with straight, scraggly hair and a mustache — was published Saturday in Atlanta newspapers.

Hearing of the suicide victim's resemblance to that drawing, Mayor Maynard Jackson rushed to the suicide scene with members of the special police task force investigating the baffling cases.

But late Saturday, officials in suburban DeKalb County said Bartolotti was not the man they want to talk with in the death of 11-year-old Patrick Baltazar, the latest black child to be found dead.

At the suicide scene, Jackson acknowledged it was unusual for him to appear personally. Asked why the suicide interested him, Jackson replied "Let's just say I'm particularly interested in this case."

Later, a spokesman told why the mayor and police reacted so quickly to the suicide.

Drawing of suspect

"Any clue, anything that might have anything to do with case gets scrutinized very closely," spokesman Angelo Fuster said. "That explains why everybody was out there."

The body of young Baltazar was found Feb. 13 in a ravine near a suburban office park. A dental technician told authorities she had seen a man earlier that day in a green Chevrolet near the spot where the body was found.

She underwent hypnosis to provide the description for drawing the composite and was called to view the body of Bartolotti.

But DeKalb County Public Safety Commissioner Dick Hand said late Saturday the young woman said Bartolotti was not the man she saw near the scene.

DeKalb County homicide detective R.E. Kane said "we're still looking for the guy in the composite drawing."

Hand, releasing the composite drawing, emphasized the man depicted is only considered a witness.

"Let me emphasize to you this is for witness purposes only," Hand said. "We're looking to question him concerning what he may have seen at the scene where Baltazar's body was discovered."

The bodies of 18 black children have been found in the last 19 months and two other youngsters, 13-year-old Curtis Walker and 10-year-old Darron Glass, are missing.

Meals for vegetarians

Computer plans their menu

CLEVELAND (UPI) — A mathematics professor and his wife believe they have found a solution to the problem of menu planning for vegetarians — let a machine do it.

Keith Kendig, an associate professor at Cleveland State University, has programmed a computer to develop nutritionally balanced meals for vegetarians and, based on the results, he and his wife Joan have written "Modern Vegetable Protein Cookery."

The computer has calculated the proportions of various types of beans, grains, nuts and seeds to be eaten for a balanced diet.

Kendig said he started eating some of the computerized combinations and has never felt better.

The professor explained that the human body pulls apart amino acids in food to make protein. But if a person is low on certain amino acids, the proteins can't be put together right. The trick is to make the amino acids balance out.

Guesswork or even hand calculations were fruitless, he said. "After I realized that the problem could be approached mathematically, I started writing equations," he said. "But it was much more complex than I first thought. I spent four hours on one problem and was no further than when I started."

Kendig programmed the computer to do the calculations. He gave it the amino acid contents of 40 different seeds, grains, legumes and nuts, and asked for the best combination of every ingredient with every other ingredient.

The computer had the answer in 19 minutes, Kendig said.

At 103, he's still preaching

FORT GAY, W.Va. (UPI) — The Rev. Bryon Reed might be 103 but he still loves to go out and preach.

"It doesn't matter that he no longer can read the Bible — he's got much of it memorized."

"I can't tell any difference (between now and when I was young)," Reed said. "I'm a little bit surprised. I didn't expect to live this long."

Reed's life has changed little since he was in his 80s. He might not be able to see or walk as well as he once could, but he's willing to preach anytime and anywhere.

"I'll preach anywhere if someone will come and get me," Reed said. "I can't walk much any more."

He doesn't need to carry a Bible. Poor vision forced him to commit most of the New Testament to memory.

"Some people call me a hobo preacher because I'll go to any church where people want me to preach," Reed said. "I've been ordained twice. I grew up in the Methodist church, but I've belonged in the Pilgrim Holiness, and I belong to the Christian Baptist Church in Louisville (Ky.), across the river from Fort Gay."

"What is a Christian?" he asks without waiting for an answer. "It's being Christ-like. If you're Christ-like, you'll want to do his work. You'll delight in it."

Born Jan. 9, 1878, on a farm outside Fort Gay, Reed said the ministry came naturally to him.

"My grandfather was a pioneer Methodist preacher in Baltimore," he said. "I was saved during a revival. You know how it is, a lot of Christians were talking to people in the church about being saved."

Reflecting his 88 years of church work, Reed says the life of a preacher leaves little room for anything else. "You have to have time to pray and prepare," he said.

He attributes his longevity to two things: absence of the biblical "labor and sorrow" that comes with years, and abstinence from alcohol and tobacco.

And, oh yes, "Leave the women alone."

Soviets, Poles agree to control unrest

Monday, February 23, 1981 *Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho A-7

MOSCOW (UPI) — President Leonid Brezhnev will tell Communist leaders in Moscow that Soviet and Polish officials have reached a "mutual decision" to control unrest in Poland, informed sources said Sunday.

Brezhnev's keynote address at the opening of the 26th Soviet Communist Party Congress, to be delivered today, does not directly mention the possibility of Soviet military action against Poland, the sources said. But his words left no doubt that such a move was high on the Kremlin's list of options.

Key portions of Brezhnev's 120-page speech made available to UPI also showed him denouncing "the communist world" "cannot leave fraternal Poland in a weak condition," an apparent pledge from the Kremlin that it will continue to help Warsaw should its huge debts.

Conference sources said Brezhnev will tell delegates to the nine-day congress that the Soviet leadership and Warsaw's top communists have reached a "mutual decision to secure our interests" in Poland.

One Eastern analyst who read a complete advance text of Brezhnev's four-hour speech said the Soviet leader's remarks about Poland were blunt and uncompromising, reflecting the discomfort the Kremlin has felt in the past seven months of labor turmoil in Poland.

Portions of an advance text of his speech, made available to journalists on condition that no lengthy quotations be repeated, showed the Soviet leader condemning "anarchy" in Poland.

He blamed the Western powers for aiding Poles who are "trying to turn the development of events [there] in a counterrevolutionary stream."

But he also blamed Poland's own Communist establishment for last summer's upheavals, which he said was due to their "mistakes in internal policy."

Brezhnev's speech, a traditionally exhaustive examination of the state of communism and communist policies throughout the world, also concentrated on U.S.-Soviet relations, the sources said.

The Soviet leader said the Kremlin's disputes with the West

Reagan administration in Washington were "unfortunate," and he repeated several offers to reopen talks with the United States on a variety of military issues.

Brezhnev also insisted any talks on strategic arms limitation must "preserve positive elements" already achieved in previous negotiations, thus apparently rejecting U.S. demands about the SALT-2 pact.

Communist leaders from all over the globe, including Cuban President Fidel Castro, arrived in Moscow Sunday for the start of the congress.

As expected, Polish Communist Party chief Stanislaw Kanja was accompanied by his regime's new premier, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski.

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — South Korea's electoral college seems certain to elect President Chun Doo-hwan this week, handing a seven-year mandate to the former general who consolidated power in a year of well-planned political moves.

While three opposition candidates remain in the race, the landslide victory by Chun's recently created Democratic Justice Party in preliminary Feb. 11 elections to the presidential college virtually assures him the simple majority needed to win on Wednesday.

Bombing, politics connected

MUNICH, West Germany (UPI) — Police said Sunday they suspected political extremists were behind the powerful bomb blast that ripped through the Munich offices of Radio Free Europe, America's voice to the Soviet bloc.

Eight people were injured, three seriously, when the bomb blew a large hole in the basement of RFE's drab concrete headquarters Saturday night, badly damaging the Czech newsroom and causing an estimated $2 million in damage.

Hundreds of windows and all the telephones in the building were knocked out by the blast.

One woman was quoted as saying she saw three masked men flee the scene and investigators said the blast "must have political motives, but we have no idea" who was responsible.

They said it would be easy for the bombers to escape since the unguarded building is located in an isolated corner of Munich's Englischer Garten park.

No threats were received prior to the blast and no one immediately claimed responsibility for the attack.

Newscasts to Eastern Europe were briefly disrupted by the blast, RFE said.

RFE director Glenn Ferguson said security would be increased around the building.

RFE spokesman Bob Redlich said the three people seriously wounded — two men and a woman whose names were withheld — were Czechs who worked on the Czech desk. He said two of them were in critical condition at a Munich hospital.

A fourth RFE employee wounded in the blast was a German telephone operator who was treated at a hospital and released, Redlich said.

Police said the other four injured were Germans who were in their homes when the explosion shattered windows over a 350-yard area from the RFE building.

Firefighters worked Sunday to clear piles of jagged glass, torn curtains and smashed furniture spewed out of the building by the force of the blast, which police described as "a very powerful bang."

Consuls flee Basque area

BILBAO, Spain (UPI) — Fearing they may be kidnaped by separatist guerrillas about 40 foreign consuls fled Spain's Basque region over the weekend, well-informed diplomatic sources said Sunday.

The exodus followed the abduction last Thursday of three honorary consuls and guerrilla threats to strike again to draw international attention to their demands.

The diplomatic sources said that by Sunday, more than half the 55 foreign consuls stationed in the northern Basque country had left for other parts of Spain.

Spain's state-run television said more than 30 consuls had left the Basque country following the triple abduction.

The sources said the majority of the departing consuls only had honorary status.

Border massacre reports denied

LONDON (UPI) — Almost 300 peasants in El Salvador were massacred by Honduran and El Salvadoran troops in a border "cleaning operation" which the two governments deny ever took place, the Sunday Times reported.

Troops herded together peasants from Las Aradas last May 14 and machine gunned them down while soldiers from both countries shot others fleeing "in flocks" across the Sumpul River, which marks the border between northern El Salvador and Honduras.

Members of Orden, El Salvador's right-wing paramilitary organization, meanwhile, threw babies and young children into the air, slashing them with machetes, cutting off their heads and slitting them in two, the paper quoted witnesses as saying.

Mom files suit over son's death

TWIN FALLS — The mother of a 15-year-old boy killed last year has filed suit against a Twin Falls man, seeking more than $250,000 in damages.

Marlene Lance of Burley, in a lawsuit filed in 5th District Court Thursday, charges the death of her son, Troy Larson, on Jan. 12, 1980, was due to negligence on the part of Daniel Mort of Twin Falls.

Larson was electrocuted while assisting Mort with the removal of a citizen's band radio antenna from Mort's residence, located at 339 Locust St.

The suit charges the boy was killed when Mort handed him the antenna which subsequently touched a power line. At the time of the incident, heavy rains and gusting winds persisted, according to the suit.

Lance seeks $275 in special damages, $200,000 for loss of protection, comfort, society, companionship and other pecuniary losses, $50,000 in punitive damages, court costs and attorney's fees.

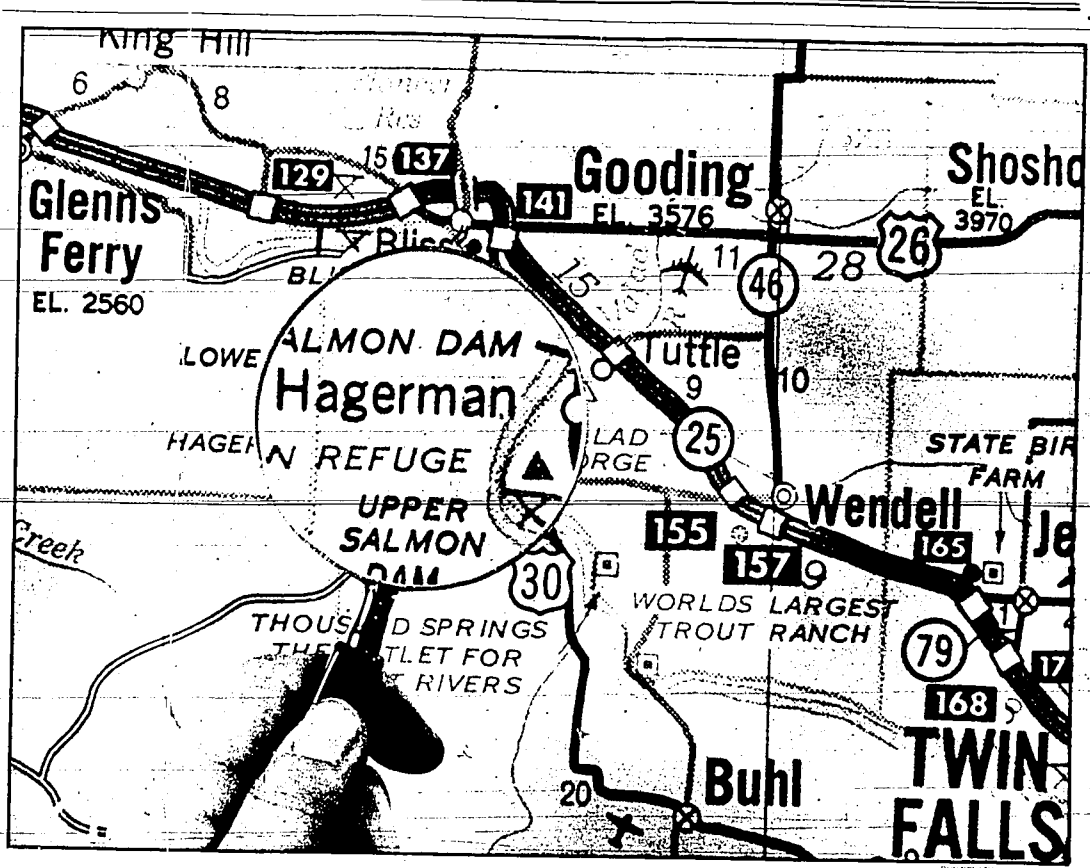

Cash, dog taken during weekend

TWIN FALLS — Union Cab Co. lost about $300 in cash and a Twin Falls man lost his $300 dog to burglars over the weekend.

Police were notified by William Willis of Union Cab Co. that someone had entered the company's office at 461 2nd Ave. S. and removed a bank bag containing cash. Officers said apparently the door had not been properly closed and did not lock. The burglary was discovered about 8:20 a.m. Sunday.

Paul H. Roberts of 1126 6th Ave. E. told police Saturday someone apparently entered his fenced back yard early that morning and stole his dog. He said the black Labrador dog was chained to his dog house. The chain had been unfastened and the dog taken from the yard between 6:10 and 10:50 a.m.

Police said both burglaries were under investigation Sunday.

Promotional efforts of Hagerman Chamber of Commerce have goal of making town, surrounding valley better known in Idaho, elsewhere

Putting Hagerman on the map

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

HAGERMAN — The weather is balmy and the fish are always biting, but Hagerman Valley is a secret kept too well, say several of the valley's merchants.

The Hagerman Chamber of Commerce has embarked on a promotional campaign to put the town's name on the map.

At least five Idaho tourism brochures refer to the Hagerman Valley solely as the "Thousand Springs Area," said Chamber President Bert Holmes, owner of the Rock Lodge Motel.

Not only is the valley a fisherman's heaven, Holmes points out, it offers glimpses of the Oregon Trail and some of the state's best bird hunting. It was also the home and burial place of the Hagerman Horse, a pre-historic three-toed creature whose bones are stored at the Smithsonian Institute.

Chamber efforts to promote the town and its surrounding valley began anew last year, according to former chamber president Robert Lawerson. A handful of volunteers collected material for brochures, helped organize festivities for the opening of fishing season and contacted highway officials about getting an exit sign on Interstate 84.

The efforts mushroomed this year when several newcomers joined the chamber. Meeting attendance has risen to 30 or more persons. And the chamber is assessing ways to extend the valley's tourism draw.

One such effort might be to get the Hagerman Horse declared the state fossil. Officials at the Office of Economic and Community Affairs, which prepares tourism brochures, did not think the state has a fossil although Idaho does have a state rock.

Holmes has written letters to newspapers and tourism promoters around the state proclaiming the valley's virtues and requesting recognition of Hagerman's often distinct weather patterns.

"Our temperature was the highest in the state a couple of weeks ago at 60 degrees, but no one but us knew it. We need our own temperature reports and forecasts as Hagerman Valley is different," the chamber president wrote in a letter to the editor that the Times-News.

As if to prove Holmes' hot-spot contention, Mayor William Stinemates said at a chamber meeting Feb. 9 the city would postpone completion of a community ice rink until next year because water would not freeze on the pond.

There also were two fire calls during the meeting. Both were to extinguish the same tree, which, fanned by winds, was spreading sparks in the vicinity of a rural home.

Holmes said he spoke with State Meteorologist Carl Keith in Boise about getting more extensive forecasts and temperatures for the Hagerman Valley. Keith has since retired and is away on an extended vacation, said Chris Hill, acting state meteorologist in charge.

Hill noted many of the state's reporting stations are manned by volunteers who have agreed to supply temperatures once each morning. Temperatures printed in "Today's Weather" in the Times-News are obtained from a Weather Service teletype in late afternoon, and include only those stations which supply current high temperature readings.

Hill said he would contact Mrs. Lyle Callow, who supplies Hagerman's readings, to see if she is willing to provide afternoon temperatures as well. The financially strapped office issues temperature forecasts for 27 cities in Idaho already, he said, and could not replace one without raising someone's rate.

The Callows also have been away on vacation and could not be reached Friday.

Magic Valley news media also do not report temperatures of other small towns in southern Idaho, but Holmes notes "all of those towns are on a plain — we are not."

Not all residents of the Hagerman Valley are anxious for publicity. Several declined to be interviewed, or frowned at mention of the chamber's efforts. A key to the dissent might be found in the fact that four or five Hagerman businesses have been sold in the past two years to former residents of California.

Lawerson, a Hagerman realtor who moved from California 12 years ago, said he is still considered a newcomer by many of the valley's residents.

Rollie Conklin, the valley's volunteer fire chief, said he is one Hagerman native who liked the town better a decade ago. Growth has brought too many big city ideas, he said, like laws restricting the movements of pets on the city's streets.

But Conklin concedes he moved away after high school because jobs were not available. He could be making twice as much money in his car repair and body shop business were located in Pocatello, he said, but he prefers small-town living.

Holmes, who has lived in the valley only six months, said he is aware of some animosity toward some of the chamber goals. He added, however, that even many natives who have returned to raise families in Hagerman are at least partly dependent on tourism.

"We all have mortgages. They can't expect us to sit back and live like they do," he said of the valley's more complacent residents. Promotional efforts will never bring more than a couple thousand new visitors into the valley, he said, and not many of those will be smart enough to actually move to Hagerman.

One endeavor that has joined newcomers and natives is the formation of a committee to explore situating a museum in Hagerman.

The old fire hall has been suggested, although it may be in use longer than expected. Conklin said the city is still waiting to see if cuts in the Farmers Home Administration budget will delay or eliminate funding to build a new fire station.

Two historic homes were mentioned as possibilities. Both are in rural locations, however, posing security problems for the storage of antiques and other valuables.

Uncooked spaghetti works like matches

If you don't want to spend the money for foot-long matches, bear in mind you can light hard-to-reach spots in the fireplace with lit shafts of uncooked spaghetti. You already thought of that?

"Gung" meant "work" in the Chinese lingo of the South Pacific and "ho" meant "harmony." It was on the islands down there during World War II that U.S. marines Americanized the expression "gung ho."

AMAZING GRACE

Q. Is it true that the man who wrote the religious classic "Amazing Grace" was, in fact, a slave trader along the African coast?

A. Quite right. John Newton first dealt in human bodies. But then he became a born-again Christian and went on from there.

Q. What are the odds that children of renowned men somehow tend to mess up their lives. For instance, President John Quincy Adams and his wife Louisa had three sons. What happened to them?

A. George committed suicide. John died an alcoholic. Charles became minister to Great Britain. Calculate those odds.

MEAN UPPER LIP

Sir Lawrence Olivier is said to be under the impression that he has a "mean upper lip." He therefore declines to wear a moustache in any role that calls for him to appear as an unsympathetic character. A mean upper lip, is it? Examine your face in the mirror, please. How would you label your upper lip? Mean? Kind? Careless? Maybe you can describe it in wine lingo: Brassy? Silky? Shy? Dry? Impertinent?

At large of late is the report about the poultry breeder who wanted to produce a bird with big drumsticks. So he crossed a duck with an ostrich. Didn't work. The bird flew off the platter and buried its head in the mashed potatoes.

Do you, too, doubt the claim that the color yellow discourages crime? Hard to swallow, that one. Still, the owner of one store with an extremely high incidence of shoplifting painted his walls yellow and insisted thereafter the thefts dropped off to about a fourth of what they'd been.

A source of unknown reliability insists there is now more American acreage in country clubs than in cemeteries. Could this be true?

ALL-MAGIC VALLEY Girls Basketball Team

Magic Valley did not produce a state championship girls basketball team this past season, but a number of fine players proved their talents and abilities on the court in the growing sport.

Near the end of the regular season the coaches in the Magic Valley were asked to nominate their outstanding players and to comment on other players they saw during the season. Final selection of the following honor team was made by the Times-News sports staff.

The Times-News proudly honors the top female basketball players with its first All-Magic Valley Girls Basketball Team:

Jenny Easton ranked among the top five in both scoring and rebounding in the Gem State Conference this season, a testimony to the complete play the 5-8 senior provided Minico High with.

Jenny averaged 13.2 points during the Gem State campaign and grabbed well over 100 rebounds.

As a junior Jenny played center, but moved to forward her final season.

"Jenny has a good head for basketball and can always find the hole for driving to the basket," Minico skipper Alice Hill said. "That's why we moved her to forward. She is a very natural basketball player."

Jenny averaged 9.3 points and 8.7 rebounds her junior season, proving she is a consistent player.

Basketball is the only sport Jenny plays for the Spartans and she is considering playing college ball.

"She's always eager to play. She has been going to camps every summer and is a dedicated player," Hill said.

Laurie Gandiaga was the primary force behind Castleford's undefeated season. The 5-8 senior guard averaged 19.4 points and 8.4 rebounds in her final season while finishing her career at Castleford with a 13.2 scoring and 8.4 rebounding average.

Laurie was another player with the ability to hit from outside or go in against the taller players and consistently score. Her passing ability also resulted in teammates getting the ball underneath despite tight defenses.

Castleford Coach Jerry Allred summed up his star's ability:

"She tries harder than any player I know," he said.

Laurie was also tough on defense with excellent quickness. Her rebound figures attest to her jumping abilities and she also produced 3.5 steals per outing during the past season.

With a high school grade point average of 3.9, Laurie is looking to attend Boise State University. Trying out for the Broncos women's squad is next in her basketball plans.

Lori Graves was a leader in Gooding High's successful bid for the Canyon Conference crown. The 5-7 senior wing averaged 13.5 points and eight rebounds this year and finished her career with a 10.8 scoring and 7.8 rebounding average over 78 games.

Whenever Gooding was on the schedule, opposing coaches knew one of the players they had to control was Lori if they were to have any chance at winning.

A good outside shooter, Graves also has the ability to drive inside. Although not as quick as some other guards, Graves is a solid defensive player. She produced 34 steals during the 1980-81 campaign and also dished out 59 assists.

"She's very coachable and a leader both on and off the court," Gooding skipper Joene Toone said.

Final statistics show Lori shot 38 percent this season, but many coaches felt her streak shooting capabilities. Lori's district tournament performance nearly brought the Senators through some tough games when the team wasn't performing up to par. She converted 54 percent of her free throws.

The three-year starter is the student body president at GHS and ranks 10th in her class with a 3.77 grade point average. Her plans include college with marketing and/or merchandise

No. 11 Notre Dame pulls off another miracle in defeating unbeaten, No. 2 Virginia, 57-56

ROSEMONT, Ill. (UPI) — Orlando Woolridge says it was the type of shot he used to practice in his backyard when he was growing up.

The stakes were much higher for Woolridge and 11th ranked Notre Dame Sunday as the senior forward hit a dramatic 18-foot turnaround jump shot with 2 seconds remaining to lift the Irish to a 57-56 victory over second-ranked Virginia.

The loss snapped the nation's longest winning streak at 23 games, and was the Cavaliers' first after 23 wins this season.

"I used to run in my backyard and try to make those types of shots," explained Woolridge, who scored 12 points. "When I shot it, I didn't know. It went in until I looked at the referee and about 800 people mobbed me."

Woolridge's heroics helped give the Irish another end-of-the-year upset victory in a string that has seen them knock off either a defending national champion or a team ranked in the top two eight times in the last 11 years.

"But this one's got to be the best," said Woolridge, whose free throws helped Notre Dame upset then No. 1 and previously unbeaten DePaul a year ago.

Notre Dame, 20-4, got the ball with 10 seconds remaining after Virginia was unable to get the ball inbounds within the required five seconds. Woolridge missed a jumper with about eight seconds left but wound up with the ball and converted his game winner.

"On the final shot, we just told them to take it to the hole and put it on the glass. By putting it on the board, it gave us a second chance and Woolridge just put it in," said Irish Coach Digger Phelps. "I can't explain it, but whatever way would Notre Dame win one of these games?"

Notre Dame's string of upsets

- Here is a list of the top upsets by Notre Dame under Coach Digger Phelps:
 - Notre Dame 71, Marquette 69: Phelps' first upset as Notre Dame coach came on Jan. 11, 1974, when Dwight Clay's jump shot with four seconds left lifted the Irish to a 71-69 win at Marquette, snapping the Warriors' 41 game home court winning streak.
 - Notre Dame 73, Indiana 67: Indiana's 19 game home court winning streak snapped Dec. 11, 1973.
 - Notre Dame 71, UCLA 70: Trailing by 11 with 3:22 left, Notre Dame rallied to defeat the Bill Walton-led Bruins to end the longest winning streak in NCAA history, 81 games, on Jan. 19, 1974.
 - Notre Dame 72, South Carolina 68: Irish

- end Gamecocks 34 game, home-court winning streak on Feb. 18, 1974.
 - Notre Dame 66, UCLA 63: Notre Dame ended Bruins 115-game non-conference home winning streak on Dec. 11, 1978.
 - Notre Dame 83, San Francisco 82: Notre Dame spoiled Don's unbeaten season after they had won 29 straight games on March 1, 1977.
 - Notre Dame 76, DePaul 74: Like USAF, DePaul entered game unbeaten and No. 1 with 23 straight wins before Irish won in double overtime on Feb. 27, 1980.
 - Notre Dame 57, Virginia 56: Virginia was ranked No. 2, unbeaten in 23 games this year and 28 over a two-year stretch. Woolridge's jump shot with two seconds left at Rosemont-Horton gave Irish the win.

"A lot of people don't understand what Notre Dame really is. It's just the greatest underdog institution I know of."

Woolridge was also part of Phelps' defensive strategy against 7-4 sophomore Ralph Sampson, who was held to 10 points.

"We gambled and doubled up on Sampson because we didn't want him to get 40 points," added Phelps, who admitted he was conceding 22 points and 16 rebounds.

Virginia Coach Terry Holland was miffed his club did not have an opportunity to set up its own game-winning shot after Woolridge's basket.

"There were definitely two seconds on the clock," Holland noted. "I pointed that out to the official and he told me he had no authority to put time back on the clock. I didn't quite understand that because I've seen it done dozens of times."

But Holland credited Notre Dame with controlling the tempo of the game and containing Sampson.

"I don't think it is a matter of mystique at all," Holland added. "It's just good, physical basketball with good players."

Woolridge's desperation shot capped a dramatic Irish rally that saw Notre Dame erase a 3-point deficit in the final 35 seconds.

John Paxson hit two free throws with 25 seconds left to bring Notre Dame, 20-4, to within 56-55.

Notre Dame came up with a steal seconds later, but Kelly Tripucka was called for traveling. Virginia, 23-1, could not get the ball inbounds within the required five seconds and Notre Dame took over under its own basket with 10 seconds remaining.

Woolridge, who scored 10 of his 12 points in the second half, missed a jumper with seven seconds left but scrambled to get his own rebound and put in the game winning shot that ended the nation's longest winning streak. Virginia could not call timeout and went down to its first loss since Feb. 28, 1980, when it lost to Clemson 57-49.

Notre Dame's John Paxson (23) passes away despite pressure from Virginia's Jeff Jones.

Miller captures L.A. Open in record-breaking fashion

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Seven years ago Johnny Miller was virtually unbeatable. And no one knew that better than Johnny Miller.

"During 1974 I used to start a tournament knowing I was going to win," Miller said. "I just knew nobody could beat me. It got to the point where I thought I could walk on water."

Well, Miller never walked on water, but he did win eight tournaments and $53,021 that year for a PGA money record.

Four years later, he probably wished more than ever that he could walk on water, because he hit a lot of his golf balls into golf course ponds. From his high of 1974 he fell to the lowest point of his life. He earned just $17,440 in 1978 and it appeared the sparkling career of the dazzling Miller had come to a premature end.

But Sunday, Miller gave notice that the bad old days are over. He fired a three-under-par 68 for a tournament record 14-under and a two-stroke victory in the $300,000 Los Angeles Open, his second victory in 1981.

And while admitting the dismal days of 1978 and 1979 are over, Miller quickly pointed out that he hasn't approached his stunning form of seven years ago.

"I'm not back to that point yet," he said. "And I may never get back there. Those were magical days. I'm not the best golfer today. I'm not even close. But after so many years of listening to people ask me what was wrong, it's real nice to have those days behind me."

Tom Weiskopf, who began the day two strokes behind Miller, also shot a 68 but couldn't overhaul the stubborn Miller and finished alone in second place, two shots behind Miller. Another stroke back was veteran Miller Barber, who bogeyed the 18th hole, and first-round leader Gil Morgan.

Miller was the brightest star on the PGA Tour in 1974 when he won eight tournaments and finished first on the money list. His fortunes then took a radical turn and his slide culminated in 1978 when he earned just $17,440.

But Sunday, while not quite reaching the brilliant form of 1974, Miller displayed enough of those skills to fight off the closing challenges of Weiskopf and Barber over the tough, 7,029-yard Riviera Country Club course.

The crucial holes were Nos. 16 and 17. With Miller holding the precarious one-stroke lead, his tee shot on the par-three 16th hole landed in a sand trap and Weiskopf needed to sink a 14-foot putt for birdie on No. 17.

Barber, playing with Weiskopf, one group behind Miller, hit the pin with his approach shot on No. 17. The ball dropped just a foot from the cup and Barber sank the birdie putt to forge the tie with Weiskopf. But Miller blasted to within seven feet and sank the putt for par while Weiskopf's putt slipped a foot past the hole.

Miller wrapped up the victory on the 18th by sinking a 15-foot putt off the fringe of the green for a birdie moments after Barber bogeyed the hole to fall out of second place.

Miller had rounds of 66-69-67-68 for a 270 total, two strokes better than Hale Irwin's previous record of 272 set in the 1976 LA Open. The victory was worth $54,000 to Miller and boosted him to the top of the 1981 money list with $121,548. Earlier this season, he won the Tucson Open.

Weiskopf earned $32,400 for his second-place finish while Barber and Morgan picked up $17,400 each.

Miller, 33, of Napa, Calif., began the final round tied for first with Ed Sneed at 11-under. But he began his surge quickly, carding a birdie on the par-five, 506-yard first hole — his fourth birdie of the tournament on the hole — to take sole possession of the lead at 12-under.

Johnny Miller raises a clenched fist after sinking his final putt.

Alcott celebrates 25th birthday with Bent Tree victory

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — Amy Alcott outdueled JoAnne Carner down the stretch with a sizzling 67 Sunday to win a $150,000 LPGA event by one stroke with a tournament record 18-under-par 276.

The $2,500 first prize was a welcome birthday present for Alcott, who celebrated her 25th birthday Sunday. Carner kept it close until the end by shooting a 69 over the par 72 Bent Tree course.

Alcott started the final round one shot back of Carner, but pulled even on the fifth hole. She went ahead by one stroke with a birdie on nine, only to have Carner catch up with a birdie on 11.

For awhile it appeared Carner would be headed into a playoff for the third straight week. But after she and Alcott both birdied 12, Carner bogeyed 13 to drop one shot back and they both birdied 14.

Carner pulled even again with a birdie on 15 and both birdied 16.

Alcott retook the lead on the par-three 17th when Carner bogeyed, and then held on to win with a par on 18 when Carner missed a three-foot birdie putt.

Sandra Post, who started three shots off the lead, was even par for the day at 72 and finished third at 283.

Beth Solomon fired a 70 for a 72-hole total of 284. Dot Germain and Beth Daniel both shot 69 to tie for fifth with 286.

It was the 14th victory for the effusive Alcott, a Santa Monica, Calif., resident who is starting her seventh year on the LPGA tour. She is coming off one of her best years on the tour, finishing third on the 1980 money list with earnings of $218,867.

Tournament field already selected

Idaho in driver's seat for complicated Big Sky title race

By United Press International

It's going right down to the final week of the regular season to see which team will host this year's Big Sky Conference tournament.

Idaho, with a pair of wins over the weekend, moved into a first-place tie with Montana State. Both teams have 11-2 records, but the Vandals appear to be the favorite to be at home in the post-season Big Sky tournament.

Montana, 10-3, will be the third team in the playoffs — at Moscow or Bozeman, Mont. — and Idaho State will fill out the field.

While the tournament site is still in doubt, the fourth team in the conference's post-season playoffs was decided last week. Idaho State backed into the field when Boise State lost both its games during the weekend.

The 16th-ranked Vandals crushed Montana State 73-55 Thursday night in Moscow before defeating Montana 87-78 Saturday night to up its overall record to 22-3 on the season.

Montana State rebounded from its loss at Idaho and stayed in the Big Sky's first-place tie with a 93-90 double-overtime win at Boise State Saturday night.

Montana also beat the Broncos, 60-57, Thursday night before falling at Idaho.

The easy way to determine the host of the Big Sky tournament would be for Idaho to win its only game this week, on the road at Northern Arizona. Or for Idaho to lose and Montana State to win its final regular-season game at Montana. Then the winner would be the hometown team in the playoffs.

But things aren't always that easy, and a tie is a very likely outcome.

Under the Big Sky's tie-breaking rules, the first method in determining the tournament host uses the head-to-head records between the deadlocked teams.

Assuming Idaho and MSU both win this coming week, the Vandals and Bobcats would still be tied since they split in their two-game series this year.

But, going to the second method of picking the champion — their performance against the league's other teams in the order of finish — Idaho would host the tournament because the two teams would have both beaten Montana twice, but the Vandals were 2-0 against fourth-place Idaho State, while the Bobcats split with the Vandals.

And, if Idaho and MSU both lose, then the Bobcats, Montana Grizzlies and the Vandals would all end the season with 11-3 league records. But, that would also give the crown to Idaho, based on its sweep against Montana, while MSU would be 1-1 against the Grizzlies.

The only other Big Sky school winning two games last week was — of all teams — Weber State. The Wildcats crushed Northern Arizona 83-57 Friday night and then edged Nevada-Reno 77-73 Saturday night.

"We knew Nevada-Reno wouldn't be very strong in a man-to-man defense," said Weber State Coach Neil McCarthy. "So we tried to run against all their players, and force them into a man defense."

"Then, we had to work the ball around quickly to force them into mistakes," McCarthy said. "We finally turning into a good team. We have not given up five starters."

Todd Harper was the big man for the Wildcats each night. Harper scored 28 points in the win over NAU.

And he had a career-high 31 against Nevada-Reno. Royal Edwards added 44 points in the two victories, and Gerald Mattinson 29 rebounds and 28 points.

Ken Owens was almost a steady for Idaho in the Vandals' two wins. Owens had 22 points against Montana State and 19 against Montana. Brian Kellerman added 33 points in the pair of Vandal victories.

In the only other Big Sky games last week, Nevada-Reno whipped Idaho State 87-63 Friday night and Northern Arizona dumped the ISU Bengals 80-79 Saturday night in overtime.

Idaho State is fourth in the league standings, with a 6-7 record. Nevada-Reno and Weber State are tied for fifth at 4-9, followed by Boise State 3-9, and Northern Arizona 2-10.

The final week of the conference's regular season begins Monday night with Boise State at Nevada-Reno. Idaho then will try to put the pressure on Montana State, with the Vandals playing at last-place Northern Arizona Thursday night.

On Saturday night, Montana State is at Montana, while Northern Arizona hosts Boise State and Idaho State moves down to Weber State.

management studies. She hopes to make basketball a part of her college life too.

Kelly Krahn helped Twin Falls on a 18-8 season record and the Bruins' best performance in the state tourney in several seasons.

Kelly's best asset was her defensive ability yet she netted 9.6 points and 6.2 rebounds per game.

"I would hate to see what our team would be without her," Twin Falls Coach Kathy Anderson said. "She definitely was a factor inside. We needed her size and without her our win-loss record would have been different."

"She played good defense for us in the middle and her rebounding was good," Anderson said.

Janise VanderVeg is the only junior among the Times-News first team. Jerome High School's six-foot forward was a scoring and rebounding machine all season, leading the Tigers to their first berth in the A-2 State Tournament two weeks ago.

"She's the best forward in the valley and she's only a junior," Jerome Coach Jim Stauffer said, obviously enjoying the aspect of having Janise back for another season.

Anderson produced "14" points per game this year and her career average is 14.0. Her rebounding figures are perhaps even more impressive. She pulled in 14 rebounds a game this season. It's a rarity when a player can average as many rebounds as points.

Brenda Grant, although just 5-foot-3, has many of the qualities needed in a basketball player, according to Valley Coach Forrest Fornsbeck.

"She is a very quick defensive player and averages about four steals per game," he said. "She plays intelligent basketball and is a fine shot."

Brenda always seems to play well under light or adverse game situations.

Brenda averaged 14.4 points from her guard position and also contributed on the boards with a 6.1 rebound average. She is also active off the court, serving as secretary of the senior class, V-Club secretary and a member of the honor society with a 3.98 grade point average.

Wendy Peterson of Nirtuaugh is one of the juniors on the second team. Peterson, at 5-foot-4, played the point guard position for the Red Devils and averaged 6.1 points—and four rebounds.

"Wendy is our defensive person," Coach Stacey Winn said. "She comes up with many steals because of her quickness. She does some scoring but playing out at point does not shoot much. She hustles 100 percent of the time."

Wendy is another player active off the court. She is the junior class secretary, pep club president and has been a cheerleader.

Lisa Krahn was the other half of the Bruins' sister combination. The junior had a good state tournament and as instrumental in helping Anderson's squad to their best season mark in several seasons. Lisa averaged 9.1 points and 5.2 rebounds. Lisa's improvement in the offseason could be a big factor for the Bruins in the 1981-82 season.

Players named to the honorable mention unit include several seniors who finished their prep careers this winter. Among the most notable are Shoshone's Shannon Carraway, Bonnie Coltrin of Deelo and Lori Oschner of Filer.

But the honorable mention list also includes several players to watch for next season. Some of Magic Valley's best players next season could include Karl Easton of Buhl, Clarin Osborn of Shoshone, Marge Marshall of Jerome, Kristin McFadden of Hagerman and several others.

Pintor defends crown

HOUSTON (UPI) — WBC bantamweight champion Lupe Pintor, buoyed by an easy title defense and weary of drinking water to lose weight, said Sunday he wants to step up in weight class and take the super bantamweight title from Wilfredo Gomez.

The popular 25-year-old Mexican champion battered Jose Uziga of Venezuela Sunday to win a unanimous decision, an easier task than it was for him to hold his 118 pounds and remain at the bantamweight limit.

Pintor barely made the weight at a 7 a.m. weigh-in Sunday, standing on a scale naked.

"I would like to go after the super bantamweight title," Pintor said through an interpreter moments after the fight. "I will find out in my next fight whether it is getting tougher for me to keep this weight."

Although he made the weight, Pintor said, "I have to start drinking water more than usual."

His sixth title defense was his "most difficult," he said, because Uziga would not stand and punch. "This is my most difficult one, not my hardest one," he said. "It was difficult because of the way the other fighter fights."

Uziga said he broke both thumbs, one in the fourth round and one in the 10th round.

"I'm not disappointed because I felt I fought a courageous fight," the challenger said through an interpreter.

Wearing a button picturing his wife, son and daughter pinned to his warm-up suit, Uziga praised the champion as the best man he has faced.

The title defense for Pintor was workman-like and unspectacular.

Pintor rocked the ninth-rated WBC challenger twice in the 11th round with straight rights. But he failed to put Uziga away.

Uziga, the South American champion from Pergamino City, Venezuela, backed away from the stalking Pintor until he tired in the 11th round and was unable to stay out of his reach.

Uziga suffered his second loss in 33 professional fights. He still has not been knocked out as an amateur or a pro.

The victory was Pintor's 41st in 46 pro fights.

10-round unanimous decision Rossman easily defeats Capuano

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mike Rossman won a unanimous decision over hometown favorite Luke Capuano Sunday in their light heavyweight rematch in the Hilton Hotel Grand Ballroom.

Rossman, Turnersville, N.J., won all but two rounds of the fight, earning identical 48-43 scores from referee Stanley Berg and judges Larry Rozadilla and Tony Perez.

Both judges had been imported because Rossman, who raised his career record to 40-6-3 and is ranked eighth by the World Boxing Association, would not agree to the rematch with all Illinois officials.

Rossman, who won a split decision against Capuano in November and earned $60,000 in his rematch victory, said, "The only reason I came back was for more money."

Capuano, ranked 10th by the WBA and now 20-4, earned $30,000 in the defeat.

Rossman, who said he was thoroughly satisfied with the results and the scoring, opened a cut over Capuano's left eye early in the first round, which was a deterrent to Capuano for the remainder of the 10-round bout.

"I fought a different fight this time because I made him walk into punches," Rossman said. "I tied him up inside and tried to stay off the ropes."

"Capuano made a mistake by fighting a bad fighter in between our two bouts. You can't fight a bad fighter and expect to improve yourself."

Capuano said he was afraid to get close to Rossman after the two butted heads in the first round. "We really knocked heads," he said. "He beat me fair and square. He still has championship quality. I hope he gets a shot at it."

"Early on, my game plan went down the drain and I went back to the old Luke, brawling and slugging. I knew right away then, the only way to beat him was to knock him out."

Rossman turned to the crowd after the fight and said: "Bye, Bye, Chicago. I've been here twice. I got a square deal here this time, too."

Capuano stated before the fight he would retire if he lost, but would not confirm the statement after the fight. Rossman said he will soon embark on a cruise with his 4-month-old son.

Tennis

Mandlikova stops Bunge

HOUSTON (UPI) — Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia overcame both her "bridesmaid" image and a sore hand Sunday to defeat Bettina Bunge, 6-4, 6-4, and win $22,000 in a women's tennis tournament.

Third place was taken by Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia with a 6-4 win over Kathy Jordan of King of Prussia, Pa.

Mandlikova, whose hand has been numb lately, said it still bothered her Sunday but her serve gave her more control.

"I had problems with my first serve the whole match," she said. "I just had two aces. I usually have more. I lost concentration. My second serve was too short and she was coming in too quick. I couldn't do anything."

Second-place finishes in Detroit and Chicago, plus her second-place finish in the 1980 U.S. Open, had given her a "bridesmaid" image. But Sunday's loss should erase.

"I'm very happy," said

Mandlikova, who was seeded second in the tournament. "The winter circuit is so tough. I had chances in Detroit and Chicago and lost."

"I wasn't nervous at all," said Bunge, of Coral Gables, Fla., who has lost all eight of her meetings with Mandlikova.

"I had played her in the finals at Stockholm. This didn't feel like the finals. I lost serve in the eighth game of the second set. I was leading 4-3 and saw a chance and tried to do too much. I lost three games in a row because I was thinking about that game."

Bunge won $11,800 for finishing second, and Jausovec and Jordan won $5,700 each.

Tracy Austin, who had been seeded first in the tournament, withdrew before play started because of a bad back.

In the doubles finals, Sue Barker and Ann Kiyomura defeated Mary Lou Platak and Regina Marsikova, 5-7, 6-3, 6-4.

Connors masters Lendl again

LA QUINTA, Calif. (UPI) — Jimmy Connors continued his mastery over Ivan Lendl Sunday by defeating the Czech 6-3, 7-6 for the championship in the $175,000 Association of Tennis Professionals tournament.

The top-seeded Connors took the first set in just 43 minutes as the 20-year-old Lendl committed a number of forced errors. Lendl, the No. 2 seed, came to the net only twice in the set and lost both points on lobs by Connors.

Lendl, ranked sixth in the world, settled down in the second set and took a 4-0 lead. Connors retained the offensive in the set but made mistakes when he tried to hit the corners.

"I felt I played a flawless first set doing everything well," said Connors, who is ranked third in the world. "But when he won the first game of the second set at love on his serve I didn't lose my confidence. But I did become frustrated."

"I dug myself into a hole by making too many mistakes," said Connors, 28.

"I felt I would lose the set but I didn't want to lose it 6-0, so I became more aggressive."

Connors began his comeback by holding his serve. He broke Lendl twice and held his serve again to tie it at 4-4. Both players then held serve to send the match into a tiebreaker, won by Connors 7-5.

Connors said an ace that gave him a 4-3 lead in the tiebreaker was the turning point. Lendl fought off the first match point but on the second Connors returned Lendl's serve deep into the corner, ran to the net and put away a volley to win the match.

Lendl and Connors first met on the court in 1979 and the American veteran has now beaten the Czech in each of the seven matches they've played.

Connors, of Miami Beach, Fla., won $28,000 for the victory.

In the final doubles match, Brian Teacher and Bruce Manson defeated Eliot Teltscher and Terry Moor 7-5 (9-7), 6-2 to collect the $10,500 prize.

Waltrip wins Richmond 400

Waltrip, in winning his first NASCAR race of the season with an average speed of 76.570 mph in his Buick, took the lead on the 190th lap and only lost it briefly during a pit stop. He won $18,800 for his effort.

Rudd, of Chesapeake, Va., finished four seconds behind Waltrip, and Petty, a lap down from a penalty when he passed the pace car during a yellow flag 68 laps from the finish, took third.

Waltrip easily had the most powerful car on the half-mile track, but with help from Rudd, he wheeled-to-an easy victory.

Dear Abby

His wife preferred dining room set

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: This is in reference to the 72-year-old man, who says he cannot marry because he had a prostate operation 10 years ago that ended his sex life.

Abby, there is a new surgical procedure that will restore a man's sexual capabilities if the nerves are still intact. It is known as a "penile implant," and is now being done at Baylor University Hospital in Houston. Friends of mine who have had this operation tell me that it has been a godsend.

Freiburger and Wayne D. Winkelman of Rupert, College of Engineering; Calvin R. Morris, College of Engineering and Richard S. Jones, College of Forestry, both of Shoshone.

The training was conducted under the Dna Station Unit Training (OSUT) program, which combines basic combat training and advanced individual training into one 13-week period.

During the course, students received training in the duties of a tank crewman, including firing the tank's armament and small weapons. Instruction is also given in field radio operations, map reading, and tank maintenance and repair.

BURLEY — Pfc. Kathy E. Decker, daughter of Larry D. and Bernice G. Woodall of Burley, has reported for duty with the Support Battalion, Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, N.C.

A 1980 graduate of Minidoka County High School, she joined the Marine Corps in May 1979.

FILER — Navy Aviation Electronics Technician Airman Timothy L. Eakin, son of Kenneth and Shirley Antrim of Filer, has reported for duty with Attack Squadron 145, Naval Air Station, Whidbey Island, Wash., embarked aboard the aircraft carrier USS Ranger.

He joined the Navy in September 1978.

GLENN'S FERRY — Daniel B. Shrum, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Shrum of Glenn's Ferry, has been accepted at the U.S. Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo. He was nominated by Sen. James A. McClure and is a senior at Glenn's Ferry High School.

High absorbency increases risk

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Women using high-absorbency tampons have a significantly higher incidence of toxic shock syndrome than other tampon users, a new study shows.

"There is also some indication of increased risk associated with Rely brand tampons beyond that predicted by their absorbency," said Dr. Michael Osterholm, chief of acute disease epidemiology at the Minnesota Department of Health.

When I had bladder cancer eight years ago, I was offered this type of operation, but I didn't have it done because my wife assured me that she preferred a new dining room set. Sincerely yours, —NICK IN CANOGA PARK, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: I need to know how to handle a very obnoxious 27-year-old Australian who recently joined the same company as myself. I am a 42-year-old Englishman, single and a very private person. Because I never discuss my personal affairs, or invite any of my friends (male or female) to visit me at work, this rube Aussie keeps asking me if I am "gay."

He boasts constantly about his sexual conquests and claims that most of the women who are chasing him are married, as he has more to offer them than their husbands. He came to work with a new gold watch, claiming it was a gift from one of his married lady/friends. More recently he came to work with a new car, claiming it was a gift from another of his "women." I find this difficult to believe. However, true or false, it is none of my business and I am not one bit interested.

Since I have to work with this man, I prefer to be on good terms with him, so I would appreciate a few tips on how to keep him in his place without offending him.

I read you in the Rome Daily American. —ENGLISHMAN IN ITALY

DEAR ENGLISHMAN: I would not worry about offending anyone who makes a practice of asking offensive questions. Simply tell him that your personal life is none of his business. Keep him at arm's length, and when he starts boasting about the women in his life, absent yourself from his company.

DEAR ABBY: I've been wanting to get this off my chest for a long time:

Why do people let young children answer the telephone? I get so annoyed when kids answer the phone and in a whining voice say, "Who is this?"

They're unable to take a message or telephone number — they just keep whining, "Who is this?"

Please print this, Abby. I'm sure others feel as I do.

IRKED IN EDEN, N. C.

DEAR IRKED: Most busy mothers ask their little ones to answer the phone, and, of course, youngsters enjoy being "helpful." But no child should be allowed to answer the telephone before he is old enough to do so properly.

Bidding tips off defense was one of those scientists who believe firmly that the more bids you make the better you are playing. Warned away from a spade lead, West opened his ace of clubs. The defense started with two club tricks. Later on, when South played trumps he went up with his king, lost two trump tricks and a vulnerable game.

Alan: "I suppose at the other table, South bid four hearts right over the two diamond rebid, got a spade lead, never lost a club trick and made five or six odd."

Oswald: "Exactly so! The losing South went through all sorts of explanations of how lucky the man who didn't show his four card spade suit had been. How failure to bid spades might have cost a slam, etc., etc."

Alan: "He might be right once in a blue moon, but if North couldn't find a rebid after South's one heart, followed by a direct jump to four hearts, then slam was not likely to be missed."

Oswald: "As the late Harry Fishbein, one of the greatest natural players once said, 'Let others have the education. I want to win!'"
