

Budget ax chops at H&W budget

BOISE (UPI) — The Legislature's Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee today began whittling on the Health and Welfare Department's budget, quickly settling a pattern for drastic program and personnel cuts.

The budget-setting committee virtually eliminated the Substance Abuse program by reducing the 65-person statewide staff to nine at the urging of Sen. Dane Watkins, R-Idaho Falls, whose motion carried with a mandate to turn over the state's alcohol- and drug-treatment programs to private contractors.

Legislators also eliminated at least 15 positions from the Physical Health Services program, another two from the Emergency Medical Services program and seven from the state's medical-testing laboratories.

But the budget cuts didn't stop at eliminating jobs. Lawmakers also began the process of ordering 10 percent reductions in the agency's management costs at the Boise headquarters, and further reducing costs by curtailing funding at department offices across the state.

In addition, legislators bit-by-bit began eliminating the seven regional health managers across the state — and underfunding salaries and other personnel costs in all programs, meaning layoffs would occur in the

"The ax is being swung on the employee side," the panel committee heard, "and the quiet reductions pass."

But the committee's funding to the Medicaid program for nursing homes, awarding more than $17.5 million in state funds to that program, up from the current funding level of about $7.6 million.

Sen. Dean Van Engelen, R-Burley, led the lawmakers who favored increasing Medicaid funding, saying the state had to replace $8 million in federal revenue-sharing funds which will be lost next year.

In addition, he said, more funds, amounting to about $1 million, could be found if the Legislature approves various Medicaid bills that have been introduced.

Calling the program "unique," Van Engelen said the state "has no choice" but to fund Medicaid. He attacked an alternative proposal made by Sen. Mike Mitchell, D-Lewiston, to curtail Van Engelen's motion by another 10 percent, saying such a plan would "merely defer the hurt."

"We have a legal obligation to fund this program," Van Engelen said. "We don't really have a choice... unless we're willing to toss out the services we provide to the elderly under this program."

Mitchell, however, unsuccessfully urged lawmakers to cut Van Engelen's plan by 10 percent, saying he felt the state would earn increased tax revenues by the time the Legislature returns next year. At that time, he said, the Legislature then could appropriate additional funds for Medicaid — but in the interim, he added, more state funds would be available to other programs if Medicaid funding were reduced.

High wins approval by Senate

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Senate confirmed the appointment of former state Sen. Richard High to the Idaho Public Utilities Commission Friday.

High's appointment was brought to the floor by freshman Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, who replaced the Twin Falls Republican in the Senate this year. High retired from the Legislature last year after serving the Magic Valley for about 13 years.

Calling High "a very wise and trusted man," Noh urged the confirmation to the "extremely important position for all the people of this state."

Senators approved the confirmation without a dissenting vote. High was honored earlier this year by the Legislature for his years of service there, was not expected to face opposition. He had actively sought the post.

Reagan OKs new and deeper budget cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan Friday approved a second round of spending cuts that put him "back on track" in his goal of holding the 1982 budget to $695.5 billion, budget director David Stockman said.

"The session today proved that the president's determination to keep a tight lid on the fiscal '82 spending is realistic and achievable," Stockman said.

The new cuts were required by the funding earlier this week that federal programs — actually — would cost $3 billion to $6 billion more than anticipated. Administration officials said the Carter administration had miscalculated.

Deputy press secretary Karna Small would not reveal the exact amount of the cuts.

She said Reagan was presented with item-by-item cuts and in most cases accepted the recommendations. She said there also were a few additions but they did not alter the final goal of holding the deficit to $45 billion.

The White House gave department and agency heads just a few days to scour their programs and come up with cuts beyond the $1.4 billion Reagan already has proposed to keep next year's budget at $695.5 billion.

"We have reviewed every agency from the Veterans Administration to the National Aeronautics and Space agency and there will be cuts across that spectrum," Stockman said before the meeting.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said his second-round proposals provide for a 7 or 8 percent cut in spending, including an 8 percent reduction in personnel. Interior Secretary James Watt said his department's reductions will be "very modest" because it is beginning an "aggressive" water program in the West.

White House press secretary Jim Brady repeated earlier promises that the "social safety net" — Medicare, basic Social Security, veterans' pensions, Head Start, summer youth jobs, school lunch programs for the neediest and Supplemental Security income for the blind and disabled — will be maintained.

The Washington Post reported that the cuts may be found in a 15 percent reduction in the Job Corps program as part of a $1.5 billion Labor Department slash, in reductions in supplemental nutrition programs for low-income women, infants and children, the farm "target price" program and spending for elementary and secondary schools.

And the New York Times said Reagan is planning an "accelerated-debt collection" program to reclaim more than $1 billion in delinquent loans to students, farmers and Small Business Administration clients.

Reagan reportedly is considering vetoing his own proposal for a 30 percent tax cut over three years if Congress tries to retain too many favorite programs or add costly new ones.

Rep. Henson Moore, R-La., who met with Reagan at the Oval Office, reported the president "said he'd certainly have to consider it (a veto) if we make it a Christmas tree."

Soviets cite poor grain harvest; premier seeks new U.S. trade

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikolai Tikhonov called Friday for expanded trade with the United States and a Kremlin spokesman said Moscow wanted Washington to resume the grain deliveries suspended after the invasion of Afghanistan.

Tikhonov reported to the main congress on Moscow's 11th five-year economic plan, admitting grain production was inadequate. "The Soviet Union is in favor of stable, mutually beneficial ties with the capitalistic countries and their expansion, based on strict observance of mutual commitments," the premier said in a 55-page speech.

"It is not our fault, for example, that trade with the U.S.A. is declining or stagnating. That is the result of U.S. policy which is designed to use trade for unseemly political ends foreign to the interests of equitable international cooperation," he said.

"We are prepared to develop economic relations with the United States as well, on the basis of equality and mutual benefit," added Tikhonov.

Later in the day, President Leonid Brezhnev's chief spokesman, Leonid Zamyatin, was asked if this amounted to a call for lifting the 14-month U.S. embargo on grain and technology imposed to protest the Soviet invasion.

Relentless spiral after decontrol

Oil firms hike prices again

By United Press International

Texaco Inc., Chevron USA and Gulf Oil Corp. Friday raised their wholesale fuel prices by between a penny and 4 cents a gallon in the relentless runup that has followed the decontrol of domestic oil prices.

And New York state officials said they would ask President Reagan to declare Buffalo a disaster area because the flight of U.S. motorists to Canada to buy cheaper gasoline had forced 500 Buffalo service stations to close since 1979.

Since President Reagan abolished price controls on domestic crude oil and gasoline eight months ahead of schedule on Jan. 28, U.S. refiners have put through more than 55 fuel price increases — usually on a regional basis.

Field sources said Texaco, the nation's No. 3 refiner, lifted all grades of gasoline, including its lead-free gasoline, by a penny a gallon in the Midwest and Rocky Mountain States.

Texaco's gasoline and gasoline went up 2.5 cents a gallon in Tennessee, but there were no price changes in areas served by its El Paso and Amarillo, Tex., refineries.

Texaco also raised heating oil, kerosene and tractor-diesel fuel by 2 cents a gallon in the Casper, Wyo., market, the sources said.

Chevron, a subsidiary of Standard Oil Co. of California, increased its wholesale gasoline prices generally by 2 cents a gallon east of the Rockies and a penny west of the Rockies. SoCal is the 4th largest U.S. refiner.

Idaho Power passes on rate decrease beginning Monday

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Power Co. officials announced Friday the utility plans to begin billing customers March 2 under new rates that increase FMC Corp.'s rate by nearly 67 percent and reduce rates for other customers by 3.13 percent.

President James F. Bruce said the way was cleared for implementation of the new rates by the Idaho Supreme Court's denial Monday of FMC's request for a stay of its increase pending the outcome of an appeal filed with the court.

Bruce said the company's new rate for residential service, adjusted to reflect the 3.13 percent reduction, consists of a monthly customer charge of $4.91 and a flat energy charge of 2.577 cents per kilowatt-hour.

Under the new rate, the monthly bill of a residential customer using 1,000 kilowatt-hours will be reduced from $31.46 at present to $30.69, or 78 cents.

The new rates stem from increases granted last March 29 when the PUC authorized adjustments of 29 percent for FMC and 26 percent for other customers to provide Idaho Power with about $47 million additional revenues annually.

On Sept. 21, the PUC boosted FMC's increase to nearly 67 percent retroactive to Jan. 1, 1980, and ordered an offsetting reduction in the increase for other customers.

Following its Sept. 30 order, the PUC turned down two attempts by FMC to delay implementation of the increase, but postponed the effective date of the reduction for other customers pending the Idaho Supreme Court's ruling.

Marchers protest coup try

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Undeterred by four bomb blasts along their route, an estimated 14 million Spaniards marched through Madrid Friday to protest this week's aborted right-wing military coup.

At least four small bombs exploded on the march route, sending hundreds of people running in panic, but causing no injuries.

Hundreds of thousands of Spaniards also turned out for similar demonstrations in other cities.

Political sources said King Juan Carlos, who was credited with thwarting Monday's attempted coup, tried to have the Madrid march canceled for fear it would lead to left-right clashes and provoke the army into new rebellion.

In the Basque city of San Sebastian, police fired rubber bullets and tear gas to break up an anti-coup demonstration because the marchers allegedly were carrying unauthorized banners.

The Madrid march started in a peaceful mood under tight rain, but gangs of young right and left-wingers hovered on the edges of the demonstration.

Leaders of all parliamentary political parties except the neo-fascist New Force Party marched at the head of the demonstration in a rare show of unity.

New Force leader Blas Pinar, addressing militants at the party headquarters, said the Civil Guards who took some 350 deputies hostage Monday had demonstrated "patriotism, courage and generosity" and accused the demonstrators of "destroying Spain."

City police estimated 14 million people turned out for the demonstration billed to show support for "liberty, democracy and the constitution."

The crowds were so large that politicians leading the march were unable to reach the steps of Parliament for the reading of a statement demanding the unmasking of those who "incited, encouraged, helped or covered up" the aborted coup.

The crowds shouted "Liberty! liberty!" "Long live the king! Long live democracy!" and "No pasaran!"

(they shall not pass) — the battle cry of the defenders of Madrid against the forces of Francisco Franco in the 1936-1939 civil war.

The nationwide rallies were the biggest street demonstrations backing democracy since the death of dictator Francisco Franco five years ago.

In Madrid, police bomb experts and security forces fanned out along the marchers' route, fearing attacks by neo-fascists angered over the failure of the attempt to return Francoist-style dictatorship to Spain.

Just before the demonstration began, four bombs exploded near Parliament, where the cabinet and deputies were taken hostage at the start of the attempted coup.

Right-wing terrorists sympathetic to the military rebels claimed responsibility for the explosions in a telephone call to the Spanish news agency EFE.

Newspapers donated entire pages for advertisements that urged popular rejection of "the very grave events" Monday and Tuesday.

Plotters duped officers into assisting

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — The two plots that converged into one attempt to topple Spanish democracy involved many officers who had been duped by the plotters, into thinking they were acting on behalf of King Juan Carlos.

Military sources said the rebels used the government's own emergency plans in an attempt to move tanks and troops into strategic points Monday to support nearly 200 Civil Guards who had stormed parliament, taking the cabinet and deputies hostage.

Later, when Juan Carlos and the joint chiefs of staff themselves attempted to launch the emergency plan, "Operation Diana," the new set orders confused military commanders who believed the plan already was in effect.

The king placed calls to all eleven captain generals, the powerful commanders in charge of Spain's military regions, and ordered them to take orders only from him. In that way he thwarted the coup by right-wing Franco loyalists.

All but one commander obeyed the king. The exception was Gen. Jaime Milans del Bosch of Valencia, who ordered tanks and troops into the streets in support of the coup.

In Madrid, units of the Brunete armored division began taking over strategic targets, including the television studios, but withdrew when the king sent in loyal troops.

This enabled Juan Carlos to broadcast a televised appeal early Tuesday, making it clear he condemned the plotters and supported constitutional democracy.

Military sources said the putsch involved both a "hardline" and a "moderate" plot to turn the clock back to Franco-style dictatorship.

Hotel fire claims 2 teens

WEST DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — Two teenagers attending the state high school wrestling tournament were killed and 11 other people were injured in a smoky fire at a suburban hotel early Friday.

The state fire marshal's office was asked to determine the cause of the blaze which was fanned by brisk winds and raced through the corridors.

The 9-year-old Executive Inn was not equipped with a fire alarm or a sprinkler system because the city fire code did not require the devices until 1975.

The blaze was the third hotel fire of the week in Des Moines. One person died in one of the earlier blazes.

Volcano claims helicopter

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — Whirlwinds over Mount St. Helens spun a helicopter into the ground on the edge of the volcano crater Friday, but all five occupants, including four scientists, escaped serious injury.

The chopper had landed on the amphitheater of the northern slope of the volcano. Three USGS scientists and one from Indonesia spent 20 minutes checking conditions and their copter then headed for their home base when the accident occurred.

Baby misdiagnosed as tumor

MEDIA, Pa. (UPI) — A suburban Philadelphia woman has filed a $3 million suit against two doctors and a hospital because she lost a baby when her pregnancy was allegedly misdiagnosed as a tumor.

Veronica Connell, 27, of Media, filed the suit contending that surgeons discovered her pregnancy while she was being operated on for removal of the non-existent tumor. The woman later underwent an abortion because of the fetus' exposure to X-rays, according to the suit filed Thursday.

Con escapes by helicopter

PARIS (UPI) — A hijacked helicopter landed in the middle of a prison soccer field Friday and whisked France's public enemy No. 1 and another inmate to freedom from Europe's largest jail.

The most spectacular jail break in French history took just 30 seconds, said an amazed guard at the high-security Fleury-Mérogis prison.

"Are we becoming Americanized?" bellowed National Prison Director Christian Dalbians. "Will we have to install anti-aircraft weapons inside our prisons?"

Most of the guards, none of whom were armed, were inside nearby buildings watching the game through the windows.

BPA exempted from freeze

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Aides to Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., said Friday the Bonneville Power Administration will be exempted from President Reagan's hiring freeze.

BPA officials and members of the Northwest congressional delegation had urged the exemption, contending it is needed to allow the agency to implement conservation and renewable resource provisions of the new Northwest power act.

Bill may nix appointments

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Senate Friday passed a Republican bill negating the governor's appointments to the Northwest Power Planning Council despite Democratic warnings that the measure would not become law.

The council be confirmed by the Senate.

Both provisions would negate the two appointments Gov. John Evans already made to the council — and Democrats said they also would result in a gubernatorial veto of the measure.

But Senate President Pro Tem Reed Budge, R-Boise Springs, said Republicans wanted the two provisions in the bill to ensure that appointments were not based on partisan politics.

"This takes it out of the patronage system, the spoils system," Budge said after the Senate vote. "This measure is so important to us that, regardless of whether it's a Democratic or Republican administration, we want both parties to be represented... and to be sure that (those) appointed are qualified."

He said he believed the governor was "bucking" the GOP bill because one of his Democratic appointees would have to step down under the terms of the measure.

Earlier this year Evans named his former aide Robert Saxvik and Chris Carlson, former press secretary to Democratic Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, to the council. While Evans has said he will stand by those appointments, GOP lawmakers have protested, saying the governor named the two men without legal authority.

Senate Minority Leader Ben Twilegar, Boise, urged senators to defeat the GOP bill, saying the two parties should reach a solution to the partisan problems with the measure. He also questioned the constitutionality of the bill, saying it probably would end up in the courts. "If it comes to where there cannot be a negotiated settlement between the legislative and executive branches of government, clearly we'll have to refer it to the third branch of government," Twilegar said. "In my opinion, if that happens, it's going to hurt everyone."

In addition, Twilegar said, if the question were given to the courts, "our very young attorney general may be on Social Security by the time" the issue were settled.

But Senate Majority Leader James Risch, Boise, said the bill was within the bounds of legislative authority. He said those who questioned the validity of requiring representatives from both political parties were ignoring the composition of the state's other boards and commissions.

"Down to a commission," Risch said, Idaho's official boards include bipartisan representation.

Water bills near vote

BOISE — The House Resources and Conservation Committee Friday asked the full House to pass three bills affecting irrigators and water rights.

With little discussion the committee put a "do-pass" recommendation on the following three measures:

• House Bill 318, allowing the State Water Board to sell revenue bonds and make loans to local irrigators to finance repair and rehabilitation of existing irrigation systems, and to finance new water projects.

• House Bill 253, allowing the period and nature of use of a water right to be changed, if it is not in conflict with the local public interest.

• House Bill 917, directing the Department of Water Resources to give preference to the present water right owner in issuing permits for additional uses, namely hydropower.

Passes second major hurdle

Levy growth limit law draws fire

BOISE (UPI) — A proposal to amend Idaho's 1 percent property-tax law made it out of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee Friday to be printed, but it drew heavy fire from the fathers of the 1 percent initiative.

Don Chance, one of the leaders of the property tax limit movement, said he will seek repeal of all the state's property tax statutes if the Legislature attempts to relax the law.

Chance said the Idaho Property Owners Association is opposed to giving the state's taxing districts some relief from 1 percent budget limitations. He said the bill violates the intent of the 1 percent lid, which was passed by Idaho voters in 1978.

The 1 percent is a virtual carbon-copy of California's Proposition 13. The bill, prepared earlier this week by the House property-tax subcommittee, would erase from the law the constitutionally clouded 2 percent cap on annual increased assessments of the market value of property.

It also would put a 5 percent restriction on the growth of property-tax operating budgets in 1981. The Legislature allowed taxing districts a 4 percent growth factor last year.

An anticipated attempt to torpedo the bill dissolved after Committee Chairman Steve Antone, R-Rupert, told the panel he wanted the bill to be introduced and that it would be discussed when it was returned to the committee for final consideration. That probably will happen next week.

Rep. Darwin Young, R-Blackfoot, chief bill-writer on the subcommittee, told the full committee it was estimated the bill would increase property taxes about $10.5 million statewide this year.

It would leave the total taxation figure for operating budgets about $1 million above the statewide 1 percent level, Young added.

Emphasized during the discussion in favor of the bill was the need to wipe out the 2 percent cap on yearly market-value increases and allow assessment of property based on current values rather than 1978 figures.

Young said the 2 percent cap had been deemed "probably unconstitutional" by the state attorney general and that a potentially devastating legal challenge of the provision was in the wind.

Rep. Morgan Munger, R-Ola, subcommittee chairman, said he realized the 2 percent cap was regarded as sacred to backers of the people-passed 1 percent law. However, it was essential to remove the provision to allow property taxes to be assessed equitably and keep local governments afloat, Munger said.

If the 2 percent measure was retained, utility taxes would continue to fall, with the burden shifted further on homeowners, Munger said.

Another major provision of the bill would equalize school-district levies at 12½ mills for state school-fund distribution purposes. Under the new law, the 12½-mil figure would translate to 25 hundredths of property's market value.

The measure also would allow a taxing district to exceed its budget limitation permanently with two-thirds approval of the electorate under current law, override levies each year are needed to exceed the limitation.

Clamp on F&G salary hikes survives salvo of criticism

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. Myron Jones campaign to clamp down on salary boosts for top officials in the Idaho Fish and Game Department survived a salvo of criticism in the House State Affairs Committee today.

Jones, R-Malad, had tried earlier this week to attach to a license fee-increase bill a provision exempting the department from state Personnel Commission rules.

But that effort failed and the House passed the hunting and fishing fees bills 53-15 and forwarded the bill to the Senate.

"These people have been getting substantial increases — most of that department's budget goes for salaries increases," Jones told the committee, which introduced his bill on a split voice vote.

The measure would remove the department from Personnel Commission guidelines which mandate salary increases basically in the same step with budget hikes. Jones said big salary hikes then couldn't be justified by the department.

Rep. Walter Little, R-New Plymouth, ripped the department for "making a mockery" of the state's pay plan. He said department officials' pay checks have been fatter for far beyond levels required by the commission's rules.

Reps. Linden Bateman, R-Idaho Falls, and Lyman Winchester, R-Kuna, blistered the proposal, but could not garner enough support to prevent its introduction.

"Why don't you pick on more than one agency," Bateman asked Jones.

"Why not go after some of the other agencies?" To zero in on one department is highly discriminatory.

Winchester said the Jones bill, if it was to become law, should have a provision attached to give merit-pay increases to department employees.

"I you don't we'll come back in with the spoils system we had 40 years ago when malfeasance were made game warden's," Winchester said.

"This could be accomplished within the department" without a statutory provision, Jones replied.

Winchester also said removal of Personnel Commission regulations from the department would deter professional workers from investing years of service with the agency if a new director could sack them in favor of his cronies.

Senators battle Evans on rule oversight time

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's senators fired a "shot across the bow" of Gov. John Evans' ship of office Friday, voting to kill proposed regulations in an attempt to convince the chief executive of the need for more latitude in legislative review over agency rules.

Sen. Dean Van Engelen, R-Burley, brought the resolution to the Senate, asking legislators to kill a proposed national uniform electrical code for the state.

While Van Engelen admitted he had not read the proposed regulations, he said his attempt to defeat them was based on dissatisfaction with overall procedures governing legislative oversight of such rules.

The Legislature has 45 days after each session begins to reject agency regulations. But Van Engelen said the time limit was insufficient.

He and Sen. Roger Fairchild, R-Fruitland, said they proposed killing the regulations to urge Evans to let another bill (Senate bill 1144) become law. That measure, which later passed the Senate, would give the Legislature the right to toss out regulations at any time if they consider the provisions violate legislative intent. Evans has vetoed similar bills in the past.

Despite protests from other lawmakers, the Senate killed the regulations on a 19-15 vote.

In other legislative action:

• A bill to repeal a 4-cent gas-tax break for gasoline was rescheduled Friday for a vote on Tuesday in the House.

Sponsors are waiting before trying to pass the measure. House Bill 234, until another bill is ready that would provide a tax break with a different source of funding than the one to be repealed.

• A House committee found more wrinkles Friday in Rep. Dan Emery's bill to impose a mandatory minimum prison sentence against a person convicted a second time of selling or distributing illegal drugs.

The Judiciary, Rules and Administration Committee agreed to hold the bill to allow time to research a phrase which some said might render the measure ineffective.

• Legislation to consolidate most state-government legal services under the attorney general received a "do-pass" recommendation Friday in the House Judiciary, Rules and Administration Committee.

The panel voted 7-1 in favor of the bill, which will come up for a final House vote next week.

• A bill denounced as a raid on the state's general fund got a 34-31 vote of approval in the House Friday and was forwarded to the Senate.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Rusty Barlow, R-Pocatello, would remove the state Highway Account from the dedicated fund and direct the state treasurer to invest the fund separately and return the interest to the account.

• A state Tax Commission bill designed to prevent non-Indians from dodging the sales tax when they purchase cigarettes at tribal "smoke shops" died today under fire from Indians and the Roman Catholic bishop of Idaho.

Commission spokesmen said the measure would thwart sales of tax-free tribal cigarettes to non-Indians. It would require distributors to reimburse the commission for cigarettes sold to non-Indians.

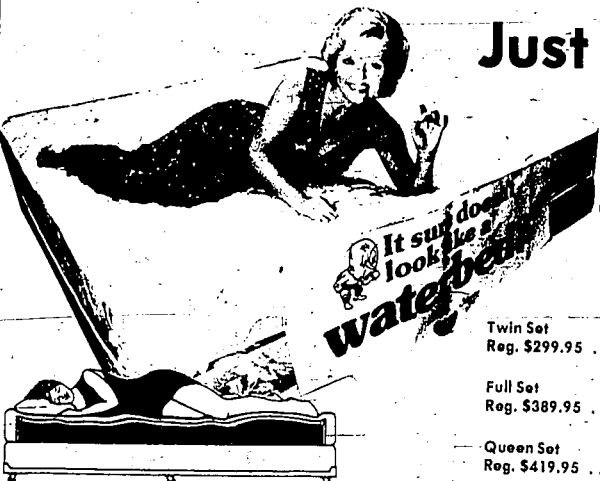

But representatives of Idaho Indian tribes and a letter from Catholic Bishop Sylvester Treinen turned the committee against the bill.

"If the bill passes it will not only eliminate the economic operation of tribal tobacco outlets on Indian reservations, but will deprive the tribes of... net income which now funds tribal social and educational programs."

Franklin admitted killings?

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A convicted racist Joseph Paul Franklin Friday accused his ex-wife and a fellow-prisoner of his lying when they testified Franklin had confessed to ambushing and killing two black joggers.

The first outburst came when Anita Cooper told the court he telephoned her hours after his arrest and said "Have you heard about the two joggers who were killed in Salt Lake? I did that."

"That's a lie," Franklin blurted out. Richard Hawley, who shared a cellblock with Franklin at the Salt Lake County Jail, testified the suspect admitted he was the sniper who hid in a field near a public park and shot David Martin, 18, and Ted Fields, 20, on Aug. 21, 1980.

The two victims were shot at least six times as they jogged home in the company of a pair of teen-aged white girls.

"He said he didn't particularly like the blacks associating with whites," Hawley told the 12-member jury deciding whether Franklin violated the civil rights of the victims. "He said he had gone to the park and had seen blacks with whites and decided to do something about it."

"He said he had staked out a place near the park where he thought he could shoot the people. He had paced it out, and said he went to the desert to sight in his gun."

At that point, Franklin, 30, of Mobile, Ala., shouted: "How long did it take you to make that up Hawley? You're a liar. He's their boy, that's who he is."

The outburst drew a mild reminder from U.S. District Judge Bruce Jenkins that the defendant was to remain quiet during his trial.

During cross examination of the two witnesses, defense attorney Robert Van Seiver accused Hawley of striking a deal with federal prosecutors in exchange for his testimony.

Hawley, who pleaded guilty to illegally transporting firearms across state lines two weeks ago, admitted prosecutors had promised not to seek concurrent prison sentences if he would take the stand against Franklin.

And Van Seiver said Mrs. Cooper, who married Franklin in 1979 while he used the name James Cooper, was angry because her husband had deserted his family.

He also said the 18-year-old former spouse cooperated with federal authorities in the nationwide manhunt for Franklin, agreeing that investigators could place a wiretap on her telephone.

Under questioning from Van Seiver, Mrs. Cooper of Montgomery, Ala., said she had been sleeping for "five or six hours" when she received the telephone call in the predawn hours of Oct. 29.

The defense lawyer also said the call was the only telephone communication she had with her former husband which was not recorded. Mrs. Cooper said the recording device had been removed just hours before the call because it was not functioning properly.

Prosecutors allege Franklin — who has admitted former memberships in the Ku Klux Klan and the American Nazi Party — killed Fields and Martin because they were using a public park while accompanied by white girls.

Pocatello man gets life for murder

KEMMERER, Wyo. (UPI) — A Pocatello man has been sentenced to life in prison for first-degree murder in the execution-style slaying of another Pocatello man.

Lance C. Toomey, 29, was found guilty last week of the Sept. 14, 1980, shotgun death of David Hepperle, 19, Lincoln County District Judge C. Stuart Brown sentenced him to life.

Under a negotiated plea, the prosecution agreed not to seek the death penalty and Toomey pleaded guilty, with the judge having the option of finding Hepperle guilty of either first-degree murder or a lower charge.

Brown heard five hours of testimony, including Toomey's claims that he accidentally shot Hepperle while they were deer hunting in Nugget Canyon. Toomey said he pulled the trigger on his shotgun to see if the safety catch was working, and the gun went off, striking Hepperle in the back of the head.

Toomey said the victim "just rolled over, with his eyes just starting. I stood and looked at him, and though if I made it do you couldn't identify him, they couldn't get me for it."

He said he put Hepperle's hands behind the dead man's head and shot them to get rid of fingerprints. He also shot the body twice in the face, he said.

However Dr. William Fogarty, a Jackson pathologist, testified the weapon was fired from shoulder level, not from waist level as Toomey claimed. Also, Fogarty said it would have been impossible for Hepperle to have turned himself over after the first shot, and the wound that Toomey claimed was caused by the shot at the hands was an exit wound, not an entrance wound.

Fogarty said Hepperle most likely was in the classic surrender position with his hands raised above his head when he was shot, and the shot was fired from a distance of two or three feet.

Life sentence given man for 2 rapes

BOISE (UPI) — A man found guilty of abduction and sexual assault of a 30-year-old Boise store clerk has been sentenced to life in prison, plus concurrent 25-year and five-year terms for rape, second-degree kidnapping and infamous crimes against nature.

Thomas DeJournett, 35, was found guilty on Jan. 8, but he contended during his trial that the woman he was accused of assaulting had consented to go to his mobile home with him to have sex.

The woman, however, told the court that she was taken from the store at knifepoint and held by her hair.

DeJournett also was sentenced in January to a 25-year prison term for the abduction and sexual assault of a 15-year-old Gem County boy last year.

Ada County man charged with rape

BOISE (UPI) — A Meridian man has been arrested in connection with the rape of a Kuna woman last week, Ada County authorities said today.

Michael Parker, 29, was arrested Thursday night on charges of burglary and rape. He was being held in the Ada County jail in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Officials said a warrant also had been issued for another unnamed person believed to be involved in the crime.

The rape occurred Feb. 10 when an unarmed man entered the woman's home, officials said.

U.S. trade deficit isn't bad news

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New government figures Friday showed Americans spending more on foreign cars and OPEC-oil, worsening the trade deficit, but confirming "the U.S. economy is strong."

The demand for imports reduced the nation's trade deficit in January to $5.44 billion, the second-highest monthly deficit ever recorded, the Commerce Department reported.

While oil imports remained the largest single deficit factor, sharply increased imports of automobiles and a wide variety of other manufactured goods added the red ink to the trade balance.

"This is the kind of import pattern you get when the U.S. economy is strong," said one Commerce Department analyst.

The deficit was second only to the largest on record, $5.96 billion, which came last February prior to the recession. The deficit in December was $2.98 billion.

In its monthly report of trade figures, the department said the value of American exports declined 2.2 percent from December to $18.8 billion. The value of January imports was up 8.5 percent from December to $24.3 billion.

The total volume of oil imported was 222.9 million barrels, a 3.7 percent increase from December, increased even more by a new factor in the government's measurement procedure, the addition of oil refined in the Virgin Islands.

That factor, to be included in all monthly trade reports from now on, added about $350 million to the recorded value of imported oil.

Imported oil cost the United States $7.83 billion in January, a 5.6 percent increase over December, at an average price of $32.99 a barrel. Part of the jump was due to the latest round of price increases by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

At the same time, the Commerce Department reported its leading economic indicators, designed to foreshadow changes in the near future, declined slightly for the second month in a row. The composite of eight of the indicators measurable in January showed a decrease of 0.4 percent.

The composite index was set at 135.8, compared to a 1967 base of 100.

The department's specialist in leading indicators, Feliks Tamm, called the back-to-back declines "disturbing in a general way. But he said, "There is no specific indication yet of future trends."

The greatest single decline was reflected in crude materials prices — an indicator particularly sensitive to future economic activity.

One analyst for a private forecasting firm, Dave Ernst of Evans Economics, saw the dip in raw material prices as good news for the fight against inflation, although it might portend some moderate slowdown in manufacturing.

"I would point out that much of the decline came in a slowdown in sensitive materials prices," he said. "And that might be interpreted as a positive sign for inflation rather than a negative sign for the economy overall."

Clean air law called basically OK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A National Academy of Sciences report Friday found contested provisions of the Clean Air Act "basically sound," but said they are "being interpreted too narrowly."

The basically upbeat report on the act's workings was one of two commissioned when the law was amended in 1977. The National Commission on Air Quality's study and conclusions on the controversial anti-pollution law are due Monday.

Congress, again caught in a cross fire between American industry and environmentalists on clean air, will weigh both reports when it starts its review of the act this year.

Meanwhile, Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., said the commission report will conclude the act has had only a "minor impact" on the economy and clean air does not conflict with energy development.

"This means we need not choose between jobs and clean air," Waxman said.

"We need not sacrifice the beauty of our national parks and wilderness areas to achieve energy independence. We need not poison our lakes and streams with acid rain to convert to coal."

Waxman opposed changes in the act that "would have us retreat from our commitment to clean up our polluted cities and protect our clean air areas."

Chrysler reports record loss; loan is approved

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. Friday became the last U.S. automaker to detail its 1980 financial disaster, reporting a record loss of $1.7 billion.

That pushed the industry's overall deficit to an unprecedented $4.2 billion.

Chrysler timed the announcement to coincide with some good news — final approval of the $400 million in federal loan guarantees it needs to pay overdue bills.

It was the largest annual net loss ever reported by a U.S. corporation, exceeding Ford Motor Co.'s 1980 deficit of $1.5 billion. General Motors Corp. had $763 million in red ink last year and American Motors Corp.'s loss was $197.5 million. Each was the worst loss the company ever suffered.

Company and government officials made it clear Chrysler's fate now depends heavily on improvements in the general economy and car sales rates.

Auditors said the company — whose deficit over the past three years totals $3 billion — can't absorb further large losses without another severe restructuring.

Chrysler's fourth quarter loss of $235 million was less than some auto industry analysts had expected and was its best financial performance since the second quarter of 1979.

In Washington, the Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board certified the company has a chance of survival by approving $400 million in loan guarantees. Sale of those notes began immediately, allowing Chrysler to pay overdue bills to suppliers.

"I think that Chrysler's prospects are reasonably good," said Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, chairman of the loan board. "We looked over their sales and the outlook for the automotive industry and we think they have a reasonably good prospect from here on."

Chrysler Chairman Lee A. Iacocca said the trimmed-down company now has a chance "to survive and be competitive on its own."

That assumes Chrysler will capture 9.1 percent of an expected 1981 U.S. car market of 3.6 million vehicles, including domestics and imports, and 9 percent of projected 1981 truck sales of 2.5 million. With recent sales propped by rebates, Chrysler has been exceeding those levels.

Each of the domestic automakers managed to trim losses in the fourth quarter. GM was the only one to show a profit.

U.S. trade deficit isn't bad news

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New government figures Friday showed Americans spending more on foreign cars and OPEC oil, worsening the trade deficit, but confirming "the U.S. economy is strong."

In its monthly report of trade figures, the department said the value of American exports declined 2.2 percent from December to $18.8 billion. The value of January imports was up 8.5 percent from December to $24.3 billion.

The total volume of oil imported was 222.9 million barrels, a 3.7 percent increase from December, increased even more by a new factor in the government's measurement procedure, the addition of oil refined in the Virgin Islands.

That factor, to be included in all monthly trade reports from now on, added about $350 million to the recorded value of imported oil.

Imported oil cost the United States $7.83 billion in January, a 6.6 percent increase over December, at an average price of $35.2 a barrel. Part of the jump was due to the latest round of price increases by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

At the same time, the Commerce Department reported its leading economic indicators, designed to forecast changes in the near future, declined slightly for the second month in a row. The composite of eight of the indicators measurable in January showed a decrease of 0.4 percent.

The composite index was set at 135.8, compared to a 1967 base of 100.

The department's specialist in leading indicators, Felleck Tamm, called the back-to-back declines "disturbing in a general way. But he said, "There is no specific indication yet of future trends."

The greatest single decline was reflected in crude materials prices — an indicator particularly sensitive to future economic activity.

One analyst for a private forecasting firm, Dave Ernst of Evans Economics, saw the dip in raw material prices as good news for the fight against inflation, although it might portend some moderate slowdown in manufacturing.

"I would point out that much of the decline came in a slowdown in sensitive materials prices," he said. "And that might be interpreted as a positive sign for inflation rather than a negative sign for the economy overall."

Clean air law called basically OK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A National Academy of Sciences report Friday found contested provisions of the Clean Air Act "basically sound," but said they are "being interpreted too narrowly."

The basically upbeat report on the act's workings was one of two commissions when the law was amended in 1977. The National Commission on Air Quality's study and conclusions on the controversial anti-pollution law are due Monday.

Congress, again caught in a cross fire between industry and environmentalists on clean air, will weigh both reports when it starts its review of the act this year.

Meanwhile, Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., said the commission report will conclude the act has had only minor impact on the economy and clean air does not conflict with energy development.

"This means we need not choose between jobs and clean air," Waxman said.

"We need not sacrifice the beauty of our national parks and wilderness areas to achieve energy independence. We need not poison our lakes and streams with acid rain to convert to coal."

Waxman opposed changes in the act that "would have us retreat from our commitment to clean up our polluted cities and protect our clean air areas."

Chrysler reports record loss; loan is approved

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. Friday became the last U.S. automaker to detail its 1980 financial disaster, reporting a record loss of $1.7 billion.

That pushed the industry's overall deficit to an unprecedented $4.2 billion.

Chrysler timed the announcement to coincide with some good news — final approval of the $400 million in federal loan guarantees it needs to pay overdue bills.

It was the largest annual net loss ever reported by a U.S. corporation, exceeding Ford Motor Co.'s 1980 deficit of $1.5 billion. General Motors Corp. had $763 million in red ink last year and American Motors Corp.'s loss was $197.5 million. Each was the worst loss the company ever suffered.

Company and government officials made it clear Chrysler's fate now depends heavily on improvements in the general economy and car sales rates.

Auditors said the company — whose deficit over the past three years totals $3 billion — can't absorb further large losses without another severe restructuring.

Chrysler's fourth quarter loss of $235 million was less than some auto industry analysts had expected and was its best financial performance since the second quarter of 1979.

In Washington, the Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board certified the company has a chance of survival by approving $400 million in loan guarantees. Sale of those notes began immediately, allowing Chrysler to pay overdue bills to suppliers.

"I think that Chrysler's prospects are reasonably good," said Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, chairman of the loan board. "We looked over their sales and the outlook for the automotive industry and we think they have a reasonably good prospect from here on."

Chrysler Chairman Lee A. Iacocca said the trimmed-down company now has a chance "to survive and be competitive on its own."

That assumes Chrysler will capture 9.1 percent of an expected 1981 U.S. car market of 9.6 million vehicles, including domestics and imports, and 9 percent of projected 1981 truck sales of 2.5 million. With recent sales propped by rebates, Chrysler has been exceeding those levels.

Each of the domestic automakers managed to trim losses in the fourth quarter. GM was the only one to show a profit.

Gish still seeks the spotlight

By United Press International

DEAR OLD DAD

Silent movie star Lillian Gish is grateful to her father — for what he did not do for her. Visiting Sacramento for a benefit showing of her 1919 film "Broken Blossoms," Miss Gish, 84, made brief appearances before the California legislature. She recalled for the lawmakers how she began working at age 5 with her sister, Dorothy, on Broadway. "And I've worked ever since. I'm so grateful to my father for giving me insecurity," Miss Gish apparently still enjoys the glare of the spotlight. At a news conference following her separate appearances before the Assembly and Senate, a television cameraman began to move lights to shoot cutaway shots of the reporters. "Oh no, oh no, put that — oh please put that back," Miss Gish implored the cameraman. After he trained the spotlight on her again, she said, "Oh thank you."

RATHER BE RIGHT

CBS television newscaster Dan Rather says he doesn't have the time to pursue charges against sibling Eugene Phillips in a dispute that flared after Rather was taken on a wild taxi ride in Chicago. But Rather still insists his version of last November's events is true even though he is dropping the charges against the cabbie. "Without provocation, Mr. Phillips had become threatening and abusive. Ignoring my requests, he drove me away from my destination at reckless speeds," Rather said in a news release. A dispute ensued, with Rather charging he was kidnapped and Phillips contending he would not allow Rather to get out of the cab until he paid his fare.

NO RECONCILIATION

Garner Ted Armstrong says any rumors he and his father would reunite their powerful evangelical ministries into one church is pure speculation. "I have not been contacted by my father at all," Armstrong said from his offices at the Church of God International. "He has been in the vicinity several times recently and not contacted me. It is reconciliation is pure speculation." Rumors of Herbert W. Armstrong and his son rejoining were encouraged by the announcement of the reopening of Ambassador College in Big Sandy, Texas, by the elder Armstrong's Worldwide Church of God, in Pasadena, Calif. It was closure of the school in 1977 which led in part to Garner Ted's break with his father's church.

Magician and escape artist James Randi will announce his awards for outstanding performances in what he calls "the pseudoscience of parapsychology" on April Fool's day, in cooperation with Omni magazine for which he writes. Randi, a founding member of the "Committee of the Scientific Investigation of Claims of the Paranormal" has divided his awards into four categories: "To the scientist who says the dumbest thing about parapsychology; to the funding organization that awards the most money for the dumbest things in parapsychology; to the media organization that supports the most outrageous claims of the paranormalists; and to the psychic who takes in the most people with the least talent."

9-year-old bank robber surrenders

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 9-year-old boy, nicknamed "Billy the Kid" and suspected of holding up a bank at Rockefeller Center for $118, surrendered Friday to FBI agents.

The 4-foot-5, 90-pound youth, too small to be photographed by bank cameras and barely able to see over the counter, was accused of holding up a teller at the New York Bank for Savings Wednesday by brandishing a chrome-plated revolver.

"This is a holdup. Don't say a silent word," he told her.

The boy, whose name was withheld, surrendered with his attorney, Mel A. Sachs. He was later turned over to state juvenile authorities. "The federal government is not set up to handle juveniles," said Ken Walton, deputy assistant FBI director.

Sachs, who refused to identify the boy, said he arranged the surrender after the child's parents contacted him Thursday.

"He's so tiny!" said a startled secretary as the boy, staring curiously up and down the FBI offices, passed by.

The teller told police she at first thought the boy was joking but handed over $118 after the boy became visibly nervous.

Last movie censor pleads for continuation

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — The 70-year-old woman who heads the nation's last surviving movie censor board billed it as her last performance, a shouting spectacle designed to keep her cherished panel from ending up on the cutting room floor.

Screaming at her opponents and describing "sickening" movie scenes, Mary Avara of Baltimore appeared Thursday before a Senate committee to give her annual display of histrionics to convince legislators the censor board should continue its work.

"You took prayer out of schools and you'll never get it back. You put in sex and dope instead!" Mrs. Avara shouted. "This board is not for us. It's for the younger generation."

Some spectators and reporters who eagerly await Mrs. Avara's appearances in Annapolis judged it worthy of an Academy Award.

She shouted, "My last performance is going to be today, so that ought to make you happy."

As for herself, she said, she would be glad to end "21 years of suffering."

The board is due to be legislated out of existence July 1.

What's what

Pound for pound, tobacco planters bought brides

Tobacco planters in the very old Old South could buy brides from England. Indentured girls, they were. The going rate, according to the historical footnotes, was one point of tobacco for each pound of bride. Up to a point, I presume. Our Love and War man says some of the great plantation families in the history began with such bought brides.

Nothing new about the energy shortage, clearly. In 1891, Clara Wells of England registered at the London patent office her idea of how to save fuel: Let the railroad trains be pulled by great balloons shaped like birds.

Claim is that the hair on the back of your neck grows about twice as fast as the hair on top of your head.

BOOZE:

Q. We call "booze" that because a man named Booze invented the stuff, right?

A. Almost but not quite. A guy named E. G. Booz sold it, however. Around 1840. And to popularize his product, he had a special bottle made up in the shape of a log cabin, labeled: "E. G. Booz's Old Cabin Whiskey." The liquor was none too distinctive, but the bottle was, and it was the bottle that made Mr. Booz famous.

Q. How old is a female cottontail rabbit before she produces offspring?

A. Eight months, most often. Three months, sometimes.

Q. Louie, did you ever try keeping track of all your odd facts in a computer?

A. Tried, sure. Doesn't work. My household computer is dandy, but it reports things like: Henry VIII beheaded 33 1/3 percent of his wives. That's not ideal.

Q. Name the one legal way in which a dead person can cast a legal vote.

A. If said voter dies before Election Day but after sending in an absentee ballot, that's a legal vote that's counted.

Sir Winston Churchill did not like to be edited, but the street talker edits them all: "Blood, sweat and tears" was not Churchill's phrase exactly, but that's how he's always quoted. His words in original order were "blood, toil, tears and sweat."

Silver

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mandy and Harman Friday quoted silver at $10.62 per ounce.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which climbed 2.41 points Thursday, rose 7.77 to 974.58. It finished the week with a 38.49-point gain, the best performance since it rose 53.93 in the period ended Nov. 14, right after Ronald Reagan was elected president.

In the past six sessions, the Dow has climbed 41.22 points in its longest winning streak since last May 31, 1980. The Big Board volume of 53,210,000 shares, while down from the 60,300,000 traded Thursday, was far above the average for the past six weeks.

The New York Stock Exchange Index jumped 0.74 to 75.13 and the price of an average share increased 35 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 1.17 to 132.27.

Hundreds of large block trades were crossed in a demonstration of institutional activity that may continue as the Dow average pushes toward the magical 1,000 level.

Observers noted that money market fund assets rose a record $3.5 billion in the latest reporting week and that there is plenty of cash to invest in the stock market.

Numerous observers said the institutions apparently are disagreeing with many economists and are showing they are convinced that interest rates will continue declining.

Traders were encouraged by the Agriculture Department's report that February farm prices declined 0.4 percent, the smallest as January's decline. That raised hopes for some easing of inflation, no matter how small.

There was little reaction to the government's report that its index of leading economic indicators dropped 0.4 percent in January, following a 0.9 percent skid in December.

Listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 60,033,270 shares, compared with 68,825,590 traded Thursday.

The American Stock Exchange index jumped 2.63 to 338.34 and the price of a share increased 14 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ index of OTC issues gained 0.9 to 158.01.

Blue-chip Standard & Poor's, which rose 1 1/2 points Thursday, was the most active NYSE-listed issue, up 1 1/2 to 80 in trading that included a block of 750,000 shares at 80 1/2.

Sony Corp., a big winner in recent sessions following buy recommendations from several analysts, was second on the active list, off 1/2 to 16 1/2. LTV was third, up 1/2 to 2 1/2.

Pirates complete first step to state basketball tourney

By MARCUS PRATER
Times-News sports writer

JEROME — Hagerman took the first step in breaking its nine-year absence at the state tournament by defeating Murtaugh 43-41 Friday night.

The Pirates outdistanced Murtaugh in the Fifth District A-4 Boys Basketball Tournament at Jerome High School and for the first time in nine years Hagerman receives a berth for the right to advance to the state tournament.

Hagerman moves to the regional tournament and battles the Mackay-Rockland winner March 6 in American Falls for a berth in the state classic in Twin Falls March 13-14. Murtaugh also advances to the regionals in American Falls.

"It has been nine years since we had it (went to state) and now we got it, we finally got it," an elated Hagerman Coach Skip Pauls said following the final buzzer.

Hagerman's Larry Barrett and Brian Fuell got action rolling in the first eight minutes for the Pirates. The two inside men combined for the first eight points to give Hagerman a 8-2 edge midway through first period.

Murtaugh went to its usual half-court press and shut down the Hagerman running game. The Red Devils used balanced scoring to get back into the game and the quarter-ended with Hagerman holding 10-8 lead.

Hagerman shut down Roy Nebeker, the Red Devils' leading scorer, in the first eight minutes and the second period proved no different.

Murtaugh's Barry Messner tied the game at 10 with a 20-footer in the opening moments but Fuell added four quick points and Hagerman retained its four-point advantage.

However, Murtaugh came right back with four points from Kyle Gummell's and Nebeker hit a basket with 32 seconds remaining in the second period to give the Red Devils a much-welcomed 19-18 lead at the intermission.

Pauls' strategy of keeping his offense in control of the tempo and his defense in control of Murtaugh's outside game worked to perfection in the first 16 minutes.

"We wanted to control the tempo and slow down our offense so that we could work for the good shot," the court boss said. "We did just that and we slowed it down enough so they wouldn't get the outside basket."

The second half opened with Barrett and Fuell combining again for eight points and the momentum was with the Pirates.

Murtaugh's Paul Graff missed the back end of a three-point play and Hagerman held down a 26-21 lead. Nebeker and Graff took advantage of Hagerman's foul-shooting trouble to close the gap to 29-25 at the end of the eighth minutes.

"Tonight was a good team effort and all the kids played good," Pauls said. "We did force our shots too much but we'll get that out of the way very quick."

Fuell, who looks more like a football player at 273 pounds and 6-3, proved to be the star of the fourth period.

"The senior center dumped in seven points and Nebeker's six didn't make a difference as Hagerman held off Murtaugh's late rally to move on to the regional tournament.

"We have an excellent chance. All we have to do is play heads up ball and have a lot of intensity," Pauls said.

"I figure Mackay will easily beat Rockland and we'll have to play them. They match up with us because they are tall and physical but we handled Murtaugh and that is just what they are," he said. "I wouldn't be surprised if you saw another Hagerman-Murtaugh final game."

In the junior varsity tournament, Rick Valk's 16 points led Castelford to a 48-35 decision over Murtaugh.

Devils claim Northside title

GOODING — Gene Shaw and Tracy Perron combined for 40 of Dietrich's 60 points to lift the Blue Devils to a 60-41 win over Gooding State and the championship of the of the Fourth District A-4 Basketball Tournament Friday.

Each hit 20 points and the Blue Devils took advantage of several Gooding State problems to pick of the district title.

Gooding State's top-playmaker and leading scorer in the tournament, Sonny Cabbage — picked up three quick fouls in the opening minutes and spent most of the second period on the bench.

Dietrich took advantage of the loss to Cabbage and outscored the Redskins 12-0 in that span to take a 23-12 halftime lead.

Shaw went on a scoring tear — hitting eight straight points — to give Dietrich its biggest lead in the third period.

Flathead dumps CSI women

KALISPEL, Mont. — The College of Southern Idaho women have their backs to the wall.

Flathead Community College outscored the Golden Eagles 17-7 from the free throw line and knocked CSI off 57-49 Friday night. The only thing that saved them from tournament elimination was Ricks knocking off North Idaho in Rexburg.

CSI takes on the same North Idaho team tonight in a must win situation at Coeur d'Alene. If the Golden Eagles can repeat an earlier performance when they beat the Cardinals by 30 points in Twin Falls. Coach Lloyd Hardesty's crew will face Flathead again Sunday in Coeur d'Alene for a single playoff game. The winner of that contest advances to the Region 18 Tournament at Rexburg set for Friday and Saturday.

"The loss puts us in a very tough situation," Hardesty said. "Now we have to come from behind and win two games on the road."

"We had the game locked up, but we played one of our poorest — if not the poorest — of our games of the season. We just couldn't do anything. I don't mean just one person, but the whole team. Especially the second half."

The Eagles had control of the game in the first half and even took a lead of up to 16 points. But after taking a 23-18 halftime lead, CSI fell apart in the second half and turned the game over to Flathead to win from the free throw line.

Flathead hit 17 of 27 free throws, while CSI could only manage five of seven attempts.

"I think they just tightened up," Hardesty said. "They knew how important this game was and when they hit the court it hit them and they fell apart. But we're not through yet. I think we can still play in the tournament at Rexburg next week."

Bean moves into Bay Hill lead with Watson at 12 under par

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) - Andy Bean reeled off nine birdies en route to a course-record 62 Friday to move into a first-place tie at 12 under par with Tom Watson after 36 holes in the Bay Hill Classic... Watson, the leader by two shots Thursday, shot a five-under-par 66 to go with his first-round 64 on the par 71 7,689 Bay Hill layout... Bean played the second best round of his six-year pro career. He combined solid iron play with great putting and birdied all four of the par threes.

"I wasn't as smooth as yesterday," he said. "But my short game is good. It's really clicking for me and I need to use it to my advantage." Five shots behind the leaders at 135 were Tim O'Meara and Don Pooley. O'Meara shot a three-under 68 Friday and Pooley blistered the course with an 8-under 63... Curtis Strange was all alone at 136, six shots behind the leaders, and Tom Purtzer was seven shots back at 137... Barely missing the 145 cut were host pro Arnold Palmer, who shot a birdie on the last hole to make it, and Ben Crenshaw, who is suffering from a stomach ailment... Lee Trevino is at 140 and Tom Weiskopf is one under par at 141... Playing the back nine first, Bean sank an eight-foot putt on the 10th hole for a birdie and duplicated that by making a 15-footer on the 11th hole... He missed a birdie by two-putting on No. 13 from three feet, but sank a 20-footer for a bird on the 14th, a 218-yard par three. He parred 15 and 16 and came back with another birdie on the par-three 17th... There was a tense moment on 18 when his two-iron to the green looked like it was going into a lake on the right side of the green, but a gust of wind carried it on to the front side and Bean two-putted for his par... He came back with two, sinking birdies on the first two holes, making putts of 10 and 25 feet and then missed a three-footer for a birdie on the third hole... Bean parred the 468-yard fourth hole and then sank a 12-foot putt for a birdie on five. He narrowly missed another birdie on the 553-yard par five fifth hole, but scored back-to-back birdies on seven and eight with putts of 15 and six feet respectively... He closed out the round with a par four on the 467-yard ninth hole... Bean, who had played poorly on the tour's West Coast swing, said he'd been practicing more than usual and was particularly pleased with his putting, even though he missed a couple of three-footers... "I finally got under par (at the start) and kept it there for a change. I guess it means the game is coming around a bit. I sure hope it stays for a while. When your games leaves you it sure is hard to find it again. Not to mention frustrating."... Before his 62 Friday, Bean was one of three players who had shot 64 on the Bay Hill course, just 50 miles up the road from his home course at Greentree... "This has got to be one of my favorite courses. I know it so well... and it's in perfect shape for this time of season," he said... "If I shoot two more rounds of good golf, I don't have to worry about anyone," said Bean. "I'm not saying I'll win, but I'll satisfy myself. That's all I need"

Little overcomes early putting problems for 1 shot I.LPGA lead

INDUSTRY, Calif. (UPI) - South Africa's Sally Little overcame a terrible putting game on the first nine holes Friday to card a two-under-par 71 and grab the second-round lead in a $150,000 LPGA tournament at the demanding Industry Hills golf complex... Little's second straight 71 left her at four-under 142 for the tournament, a stroke ahead of Hall of Famer Kathy Whitworth and 22-year-old Laurie Garbarck. Another stroke back was Nancy Lopez Melton, followed by Beth Daniel in fourth place and six point golfers, led by Amy Alcott and Hall of Famer Sandra Haynie, tied for sixth place at even-par... First-round leader Marlene Fjord and Sandra Palmer struggled to 76 over the 7,495-yard par-73, 5,978-yard Eisenhower course and were tied at 148 entering Saturday's third round... Garbarck had a four-under 69 Friday while Whitworth, the all-time leading money winner on the tour who needs just two more victories to tie Mickey Wright for the lead in that department, posted a 71... Lopez was four-under-par at one point during Friday's round but finished with a 72 while Daniel had a 71 to fall a stroke behind Lopez... Little began her round on No. 10 and missed birdie putts of less than 10 feet on five consecutive holes. Her first birdie came on No. 16 after a 2-iron shot from 160 yards hit the pin and stopped two inches from the hole... She lost that stroke on the 18th-hole with a bad chip shot and made the turn at even-par 37... On the front side, Little ran into trouble on the second hole, dropping her tee shot into the water and bogeying the hole. She moved back to even-par for the round with a birdie on No. 6 after a nine-iron shot hit the pin and bounced five feet from the cup. She then birdied the eighth hole with a seven-foot birdie putt... "I don't know how to play that second hole," Little said. "And I'm still trying to learn how to read these greens out here. I feel if I can figure those greens out and figure out the second hole, I've got a shot at this tournament."... "But there is so many variables on a course like this," she said. "I just hope everything goes my way."... The tournament is sponsored by The Olympia Beer Company.

In-U.S. Indoor tourney Tanner, Gullikson meet for title

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) - Fifth-seeded Jesse Thejas topped No. 3 Harold Solomon, 6-2, 7-5, Friday night to advance to the semifinals of the U.S. National Indoor Tennis Championships... The victory set up a rematch between Tanner, a Tennessee native, and unseeded Tom Gullikson in one of today's semifinal matches... The two met in last week's tournament in Palm Springs, Calif., with Tanner prevailing in three sets... In the other semifinal, Gene Mayer, who breezed past Peter Fleming, 6-4, 6-0, earlier Friday, takes on Yannick Noah, the No. 6 seed from France... Against Solomon, Tanner broke service in the sixth game of the second set and then served for the match 5-3. Solomon broke back and rallied to force the hard-serving left-hander into a tiebreaker... Tanner took a 6-2 lead in the tiebreaker, but Solomon staged off three match points before succumbing... "I wasn't worried (at 5-3) because I've served for the match and lost before," said Tanner. "In fact, I did that in Philadelphia in a final, but I still came back to win the match. A lot of times that happens because the other guy has nothing to lose and he doesn't have to be as careful."... Mayer broke service in the first game of his match and he and Fleming were on even terms through most of the first set... Fleming, however, faltered at the beginning of the second set when Mayer again broke his serve... "Peter is very tough when he gets a lot of first serves in," said Mayer. "He went in sprints where he got as many as four aces in one game, but in the second set I started returning better and he started missing first serves and had to play from the back court. He sort of lost his rhythm."... Noah, France's premier tennis pro, outlasted Buchholz to earn his semifinal berth opposite Mayer... "I didn't start off well, but this is my best match of the tournament that I've played from the backcourt," said Gullikson. "I didn't make many mistakes."

Winfield, Yanks open early camp

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) - Dave Winfield of the New York Yankees' new $1 million contract completed his first day in a Yankee uniform Friday when all members of the team reported for the first full squad workout... Among the missing—when the Yankees took the field were Reggie Jackson, given permission to report March 1, and Oscar Gamble, who overslept and reported late... Winfield, who signed a 10-year contract as a free agent reportedly worth $21 million, wore uniform number 31. His first day went smoothly and he described it as "just the start of spring training. I look forward to it every year. Now it's a matter of me getting to know the players, not just names and numbers but people. A lot of people have been traded before, but this is my first time with a new team and I'm just glad to be here."
