Japanese auto firms agree to import limit

TOKYO (UPI) — Japanese automakers reluctantly agreed Friday to abide by the government's agreement to end its "car war" with the United States.

Under the agreement they will reduce exports by 7.7 percent.

The decision came after two days of extensive talks between Hokusuke Tanaka, minister of International Trade and Industry, and U.S. special trade negotiator William Brock.

The ministry announced a curtailment of 140,000 units in the current fiscal year to 1.68 million cars, or 77 percent less than the 1.82 million cars shipped in during 1980.

Brock said the deal was a matter of "voluntary" restraint by Japan. He said there was no formal agreement, but that was exactly what the Japanese called it.

President Reagan hailed the decision and expressed optimism the move will revitalize the U.S. auto industry, his spokesman said.

Reagan is "aware of the risk of higher American car prices as a result of the reduced competition, but is hopeful it will not result in that," said acting press secretary Larry Speakes.

In Detroit, General Motors Corp. chairman Roger B. Smith said the move was not likely to have an immediate market impact in the first year because Japanese automakers now have 500,000 U.S.-destined cars in stock.

"There's no customer that's going to suffer from a lack of choice out there," he said.

Chrysler Corp. Chairman Lee A. Iacocca said the curtailment "may not be as extensive as some would like" but it "does show that our government wants to give this industry the time it needs to get back on its feet."

"We will get on with the job of building the fuel-efficient cars that will go head-to-head with the Japanese," Iacocca said.

United Auto Workers President Douglas A. Fraser said the import limit is necessary, but the long-term solution is for Japan to build cars in this country, he said.

Leading Japanese newspapers Saturday were critical of the accord.

The Asahi Shimbun, arguing that Japanese imports were not the root cause of the American automotive industry's problems, said the decision "left a bad precedent in solving trade problems."

Eiji Toyoda, president of Japan's No. 1 auto maker Toyota, expressed "great disappointment" but said his company had "no choice but to comply."

He warned American consumers will bear a heavier financial burden and the Japanese economy will suffer a serious blow as a result.

Takashi Ishihara, president of Nissan Motors, makers of Datsun, expressed similar sentiments, adding:

"In the end, the Japanese government made concessions so as not to harm friendly relations between Japan and the United States."

Doty flees

Mother who taught kids at home leaves state

TWIN FALLS — Ruby Doty, and her two children who were declared habitual truants, probably do not have to fear prosecution.

Doty moved to Miramar, Calif., last week and plans to get instruction for her children through the Miramar Institute said Victoria Bull, a friend of Doty who also is involved in a confrontation with the school board over teacher her children at home.

Doty had been teaching her 12-year-old son and 15-year-old daughter at home with a correspondence course since February.

The Twin Falls School Board declared Doty's children habitual truants April 21 and a petition was filed with the county prosecutor Tuesday, said attendance counselor Robert Tilton.

Friday officials at magistrate court were not aware that charges had been filed, however. Since Doty has moved from the county and is out of the court's jurisdiction the case will probably remain pending, Tilton said.

Tilton said he did not understand why it was so difficult to enroll the children in a public or parochial school. "The concern is for the children," he said.

The correspondence course which the students were taking was not state accredited and if the children want to attend college they must take graduate equivalent courses.

Tilton said "She (Doty) was a fine person, but she did break the law. Later on this could turn a handicap on the children."

Doty moved to Twin Falls in January and asked the board to allow her to teach her children at home.

After evaluating the home instruction, according to criteria set by law, the board denied her request because they determined the children were not receiving a comparable education.

Doty enrolled her children in public school for one month. During that time they were tested and Doty said the results showed her children were socially and academically average or above average as compared to children the same age.

Doty said the test results proved to her that her children were given a comparable education and she withdrew them from school.

Doty decided to move from the area because she did not have the money to hire a tutor to solve her children from the habitual truant problem.

She said her children said she did not feel that she was wrong in teaching her children at home.

Bull's 15-year old daughter, Shawn, has not attended school since June but has been taking a correspondence course at home.

The board will determine May 14 if Shawn should be declared a habitual truant, Bull said.

"I'm under the opinion they have already decided because my case because it is the same as Ruby's," Bull said.

"I know my rights — I have a right to teach them as long as I am teaching them," she said. "It's a similar case" was prosecuted in Boundary County and the parents were allowed to teach their child at home, Bull added.

She said she does not want to run from the situation. "You need to face your enemy."

O'Neill: White House is getting nervous over budget fight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Speaker Thomas O'Neill said Friday the White House is getting nervous about the budget fight in the House and has sunk to "a new low" in trying to win over undecided conservative Democrats.

"We've got the president of the United States a little bit on the run," O'Neill told reporters, reversing the position he had taken last week when he said it appeared Democrats would be unable to stop Reagan from ramming his plan through Congress.

Meanwhile, for the second consecutive day, Reagan summoned wavering House Republicans to the White House for budget pep talks.

Three of four GOP legislators who met with the president Friday said they would vote for his budget proposal. The other was undecided.

As the House began its second day of debate on the 1982 budget, O'Neill charged the White House had used "every trick in the book" to get its agenda through major contributors to conservative House Democrats, and then asked the contributors to pressure the politicians.

"That's the most irresponsible thing I've ever heard of," O'Neill said. "Politics is politics, but they've sunk to a new low."

The House was debating two major proposals: The Reagan plan, which began with deep spending cuts and was modified with $6 billion more; and a Democratic alternative that would restore some funds to social programs.

The crucial votes are expected by next Wednesday. The outcome will be determined by whichever side can capture the largest number of undecided conservative Democrats and moderate Republicans.

"This is the first skirmish of many battles that will take place," O'Neill said, declaring Democrats would win the ultimate battle. "The war is the elections of 1982. We're going to win that war."

O'Neill and House Democratic leader Jim Wright of Texas argued whether Americans would be badly hurt by Reagan's proposed budget cuts for social programs, education, economic development, loans, bilingual education, vocational education, welfare and other social services programs.

Wright said if reports were true that Reagan was telling wavering Republicans that adjustments could be made later in specific budget items, "the president just simply doesn't understand the budget process."

"There ain't no way they can fix it up later and be honest and abide by the law," Wright said.

O'Neill said his mail, arriving at the rate of 10,000 letters a day, had been heavily in favor of Reagan, but this week changed to a percentage of about 50-50 as Americans realized what Reagan's budget would do to them.

At the White House, acting press secretary Larry Speakes said congressional aides still view the upcoming vote in the House as "very, very close."

Children testify at Congressional hearing

'Senator, why for do poor people pay taxes and rich people don't?'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sharon Hewitt, a 4-year-old third grader, raised her hand and asked the senator, "I want to know why for poor people have to pay taxes and rich people don't?"

Laughter, then applause rang through the Senate Caucus Room, filled with well-scrubbed boys and girls representing the Save the Children Foundation.

"It isn't just that — but it seems that way," Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., told Sharon. "When you see David Stockman, I want you to pipe right up and ask him that same question."

Dodd then went into a long explanation of how loopholes allow some upper-income people to pay a smaller percentage of their income in taxes.

Dodd, a member of the Senate foreign relations International economic policy subcommittee, presided at the fourth annual Senate hearing where "our nation's children have presented their views."

About 200 children and a few adults attended. Twenty of them read messages carefully selected by the organization from among 20,000 letters written by children across the nation.

Dodd injected some spontaneity at the end of the hearing by inviting all the children to crowd around the hearing table and ask questions or offer their ideas.

Most blurted out their thoughts without bothering to identify themselves.

In response to Dodd's questions, an overwhelming number raised their hands in support of stronger gun control while six, along with some adults, indicated existing laws were strong enough.

Most favored helping the people of El Salvador with economic or food supplies but not military advisers. One boy, however, shouted "yes" when asked if any of the children were in favor of military aid to the Central American nation.

But another boy said he didn't think the United States should advisers, because it could lead to "having so many Americans killed like in Vietnam."

On the subject of inflation, most children indicated they thought a balanced budget should be the government's priority. Only a few raised their hands in agreement when Dodd asked whether it was "not so important to balance the budget, but to try to provide services."

One boy said inflation was so bad his mother took his birthday present of $10 to help pay her taxes.

Molly McCarthy, of Upper Marlboro, Md., told a story of the woman who cleans her parents' home.

"She has absolutely no money," Molly said. Several months ago, construction workers moved her house to make way for a highway; and in the process, if you're "three months gone by, Molly said, and the woman still has no home.

After the hearing, the children visited the White House to present the letters to Stockman, director of the Office of Management and Budget, on behalf of President Reagan.

This time, Sharon didn't speak up.

Protestant women gossip on a streetcorner near a sign scrawled on wall urging Sands' death.

LET BOBBY SANDS DIE

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Hunger striker Bobby Sands may hope to accomplish more by dying than by living, but the British army sees his death as a chance to smash the IRA once and for all in open street warfare.

After more than a decade of fighting an invisible foe whose tactics have been the sniper's snail, the bomber and the landmine, British security forces are looking at the possibility of taking on the IRA in a frontal assault fought out on the streets of Belfast, Londonderry and other Northern Ireland cities.

With a total security force of around 30,000, including armed police, there is little doubt that the army's superior firepower would win the day.

It would also give the security forces the opportunity to comb out Roman Catholic areas for the IRA arms dumps which fuel its urban guerrilla war.

Although army spokesmen and British politicians frequently assure the public they are on top of the situation, professional soldiers admit there is no way they can stamp out the hit-and-run strategy used by the Irish Republican Army to keep violence at the simmering point.

Army intelligence estimates the IRA can muster 400 trained men to keep the current level of violence going in a "doomsday" situation. It would have to rely on the backing of Catholic sympathizers in ghetto areas, mostly young, untrained men and women.

But the IRA understands the danger

Death near N. Ireland braces for battle when Sands dies

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Growing weaker by the hour, IRA convict Bobby Sands rejected another plea to end his 62-day-old hunger strike Friday.

His supporters said he probably had only 24 hours to live.

Anticipating violence if Sands dies, the British army increased its patrols on the streets of Belfast.

Sands' political manager Owen Carron, who also visited Maze prison during the day, said Sands "has only 24 hours left to live."

The pleas turned into an argument and Cannon left, telling reporters that Sands seemed "just as determined as ever" to die unless the British government accepted five demands that would have the effect of giving IRA convicts the status of political prisoners.

In London, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher told Parliament there was "no question... now or at all" of meeting Sands' demands.

Sands' political manager Owen Carron, who also visited Maze prison during the day, said Sands "has only 24 hours left to live."

As a bright morning sun surrendered to gray storm clouds, Protestants and Catholics braced for the explosion of violence both sides see as inevitable if Sands dies.

Supporters of Sands and "free" other IRA hunger strikers snarled Belfast's evening rush hour traffic by blocking roads with hijacked vehicles. Army bomb squads worked for three hours to check the cars and trucks and move them from the streets.

Sands, a 27-year-old IRA member serving a 14-year sentence for gun possession, was one of four IRA convicts on a hunger strike in Maze prison. All four were reportedly near death. But it was Sands' fast that polarized the British ruled province following his election to the British Parliament last month.

Since then, Sands has turned down repeated appeals from relatives. British officials and even the pope to end his fast and end his hunger strike.

"He is prepared for the end," said Sands' mother Rosaleen, adding that her son is now "very, very weak."

"If he gets the five demands he will be only 100 glad to put his arm out for the injection to be revived," she said. But if not, Mrs. Sands said she promised him she would not allow doctors to prolong his life when he slides into a coma.

Cannon said Sands was still "mentally very alert" and that their talk ended in "quite a political argument."

Supporters of Sands and his fellow hunger strikers — Francis Hughes, 27, in the 48th day of his fast, and Patrick O'Hara and Raymond McCreech, both in their 41st day without food — quietly began a campaign of protest against their impending deaths.

Protesters with photographs of Sands were used to be stood silent vigil in Belfast's rush hour traffic morning and evening. Police reported no incidents, there or elsewhere.

A chorus of condemnation also echoed from Roman Catholic spokesmen over Thursday's tough statement by Northern Ireland Secretary Humphrey Atkins, made after conferring with Mrs. Thatcher.

Atkins accused the extremist Provisional Wing of the IRA of "calculated and cold-blooded" campaign to create violence if Sands dies. Atkins called the IRA's plans "contemptible."

In Londonderry and Belfast, many predicted a similar showdown was at hand.

Instead, the IRA faded into the hills. When the tanks were gone it returned to resume bombing and shooting.

The same "patron" could occur again if the IRA must be seen to be acting in a defensive, rather than offensive, role in the days following the death of any hunger striker.

New TV network idea set

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — Hubbard Broadcasting Inc. of St. Paul said Friday it plans to start a new television network to distribute programs by satellite to stations and individuals across the country.

Stanley S. Hubbard, president of Hubbard Broadcasting, said the firm has applied to the Federal Communications Commission for authority to launch a satellite.

The company said the system will be made available to a television station in every market in the United States, delivering public affairs, entertainment, children's and cultural programming, and news.

He said the new system also will be available to people who install satellite receiving dishes at their homes.

Draft board volunteers to be sought

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Selective Service will begin soliciting volunteers for draft-board classification duties in the event of a military call-up, an induction official disclosed Friday.

The nation-wide recruiting drive, which begins June 1, does not mean a draft was imminent, he said.

Letters will be mailed to thousands of organizations, asking for names of "responsible citizens" who would in the event of an emergency be charged with classifying the draft status of young men, said Joe Formick, of the Senior Operations Office at the Selective Service's regional branch.

"As of this date, it is not contemplated that the citizen volunteers will start functioning as draft boards," Formick said. "We would need congressional authorization first."

"These citizens will have no function other than to be available should draft boards be reconstituted."

No funding is available this fiscal year for training the volunteers — who must be U.S. citizens between 18 and 60 years old, residents of the area represented and have no connection with the military.

Synopsis:

May arrived in the Magic Valley Friday with a mixture of sunshine, warm temperatures and thundershowers.

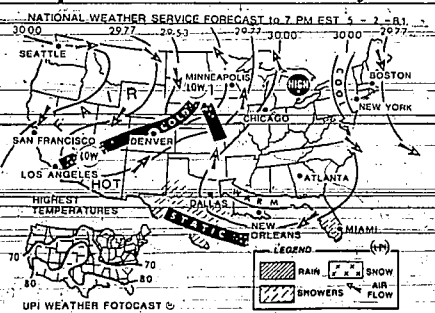

Thundershowers with strong gusting winds and hail hit the southern half of Idaho late Friday as moist air from the west collided with record-high temperatures.

Forecasters said about one-eighth of an inch of hail was reported in the mountainous area near Salmon during an afternoon thundershower, although only .02 inches of precipitation was reported in that storm.

Earlier also pelted up a large thundershower south of Burley at about 3 p.m., and by the early evening, most skies over the southern half of the state had darkened with the storm.

Spotty shower activity over the Magic Valley during the next few days should not hamper most field preparation and planting operations. Although temperatures will be lower, conditions for plant emergence and growth will be fair to good through Wednesday.

Spraying conditions today will be generally good with winds 3 to 8

Carson reaches agreement with writers, plans return

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Johnny Carson will return to his "Tonight Show" next week now that his company has reached a contract agreement with the Writers Guild of America, a Carson spokesman said Friday.

The WGA's general board of directors in New York voted overwhelmingly Friday to accept the new contract terms reached with independent producers on the board of the guild, ratified the three-year pact Thursday.

The contract will give writers a share of profits from the home video markets — cassettes and video discs — and pay TV.

"Johnny could be on the air as soon as Tuesday night," said a Carson representative at NBC. "If not, he'll certainly be back with the show before the end of the week."

Carson, among the first independents to come to terms with the WGA, said, "How much tennis can you play? I've been going crazy with all this time on my hands. I'm anxious to get back to work."

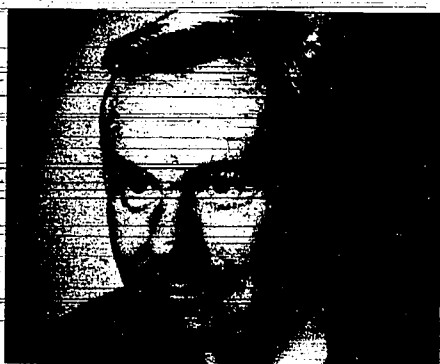

The new contract would apply to Carson's two new television series for next season, "The Angie Dickinson Show" and "Gabe and Gail," starring Gabe Kaplan.

So far, the three-week strike has not affected production of other major TV series nor movie production.

Such prolific TV suppliers as Norman Lear, Grant Tinker and Spelling Goldberg fall under the "major producers" along with MGM, Paramount, 20th Century-Fox, Universal, Warner Bros. and Columbia, all of which continue operations despite the strike.

The new contract terms call for the WGA's 8,500 members to be paid a minimum guild scale of 2.75 percent of the gross profits of pay TV programs after the producers take the first $1-million in sales for each hour of broadcasting.

The WGA also won a 40 percent raise in scale for theatrical motion pictures over a three-year period and a 45 percent increase in scale for prime-time TV shows over the length of the contract.

Johnny Carson will return, live, to his show next week.

DEA may be broken up, senator says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration is considering a proposal that would eliminate the Drug Enforcement Administration and assign its duties to other agencies, a spokesman for Sen. Joseph Biden said Friday.

The spokesman said it was Biden's understanding from "reliable sources" that the administration was considering a proposal to eliminate DEA and divide its duties among other agencies.

Sources said a memorandum is being circulated in the administration proposing to assign DEA's duties to the FBI, Customs Service and Alcohol Tobacco and Firearms.

DEA spokesman Robert Foldcamp said he had not heard about the proposal, but he said, "Every four years, there are a bunch of rumors."

Liberal congressmen sue Reagan over Salvador

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Eleven liberal House members sued President Reagan Friday for allegedly violating the Constitution, acts of Congress and international law by sending military advisers to El Salvador.

The members asked the U.S. District Court in the District of Columbia to order Reagan, Secretary of State Alexander Haig and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger to immediately withdraw all United States armed forces, weapons, military equipment and aid from El Salvador and prohibit any further aid of any nature.

At a news conference after filing the suit, the House members listed incidents of murder and torture allegedly committed by right-wing security forces in the Central American country.

Rep. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., said that on a visit to Central America earlier this year, she was told by humanitarian organizations that children are used as target practice, "and mached up to be eaten by dogs." She also charged rape is used as a systematic form of social control.

Shortly after taking office, Reagan sent 50 military advisers — including 15 Green Berets — to help the ruling junta in El Salvador. For this fiscal year and the next, he has set aside $261.5 million in military and economic aid.

The suit charges that Reagan, Haig and Weinberger violated:

- The constitutional provision giving war-making power to Congress.
- The 1973 War Powers Resolution during much of the Vietnam War.

"If the leaders of this administration can honestly look at what the government of El Salvador is doing, and conclude that it is not a government engaged in a consistent pattern of gross violations of internationally recognized human rights, then God help us all," Harkin said.

Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., said the first-court-test-of-the-War-Powers Resolution was made necessary by Reagan's failure to notify Congress he was sending the advisers. He said if the president did so, he could not get the votes necessary to keep the advisers in El Salvador beyond 60 days.

Convicted FBI officials may ask government to pay for court costs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two former FBI officials pardoned by President Reagan want the government to pay their court costs for a civil lawsuit arising from break-ins for a hunt for radical fugitives in the 1970s, their lawyers said Friday.

Lawyers for Edward S. Miller, the FBI's former intelligence chief, and W. Mark Felt, the FBI's former No. 2 official, said they would ask the government to pay legal fees arising from the lawsuit filed in New York in 1978.

Felt and Miller were convicted last November of charges they authorized FBI agents to break into homes to search for fugitive members of the Weather Underground.

On April 15, President Reagan pardoned the two men, saying they had served the nation with "great distinction" and had not acted with "criminal intent."

Shortly after their indictments in 1978, a group of individuals filed a civil suit seeking $100 million for alleged violations of their constitutional rights by the federal government and various officials.

Howard Epstein, Miller's lawyer, said the FBI officials previously asked the Justice Department to pay their legal fees in the case, but the government declined because the two men faced criminal charges arising from the activity.

"Now, of course, with the situation as it is, we believe it is appropriate to renew our request for the government to pay for the civil suits," Epstein said.

"It is usual and customary that the government defends its employees... when they are accused of wrongdoing in connection with their official duties," he said.

Brian Gettings, Felt's lawyer, said he planned to make the request as soon as an assistant attorney general to head the Justice Department's civil division is named.

"I received information from law enforcement sources that the hospital's chief of police has done this sort of thing in the past," Sen. James Wallwork said, adding, "he had walked long enough" for the FBI to do so.

Comedian is arrested at Vatican

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Vatican police "collared" comedian Father Guido Sarducci for impersonating a priest and entering the Vatican without authorization, friends said Friday.

Don Novello, who portrayed the irreverent gossip columnist for the Vatican daily newspaper L'Osservatore Romano on the NBC television show Saturday Night Live, reportedly was detained Thursday for seven hours — along with his wife Kathy, photographer Paul Solomon and Rome journalist Paul Bompard.

In New York, the editor of the Italian-American magazine Attention said that Novello was searching for a story on Guido Sarducci's Rome.

The four were arrested shortly after they had entered the Vatican walls, Bompard told reporters. He said the group had not been permitted to enter the Vatican, one of the world's smallest nations, located in the heart of Rome.

Bompard said Novello, who was wearing pink sunglasses and cowboy boots as well as a priest's collar, wanted his picture taken in front of the offices of L'Osservatore Romano.

He said they drove up to the gates to Vatican City and the Swiss guard on duty waved them in when they saw Novello was dressed as a priest.

Security guards surrounded them as they were snapping pictures, Bompard said.

"Are you a priest?" the guards asked Novello. When he answered no, they told him to "take the collar off immediately," he said.

Bompard said they were taken to the Vatican police station and then turned over to Italian police. They were not charged and released after five hours, he said.

Bompard said Novello's priestly garb is actually a woman's black velvet cape with red satin lining and sequined buttons that Novello bought eight years ago in a used clothing store.

Assassination attempt was hoax?

SHORT HILLS, N.J. (UPI) — A New Jersey state senator who is a Republican gubernatorial candidate said Friday he believed an "assassination" attempt against him last week was a hoax, staged by a publicity-hungry security chief at a veterans hospital.

"I received information from law enforcement sources that the hospital's chief of police has done this sort of thing in the past," Sen. James Wallwork said, adding, "he had walked long enough" for the FBI to do so.

Reagan asks Congress to break up Conrail

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan Friday sent Congress legislation to break up and sell the federally financed 17,000-mile Conrail railroad system.

It is the second of two controversial railroad proposals he wants Congress to approve.

The bill, covering freight and commuter operations of the Northeast-Highland railroad, would also substitute lump sum payments for the labor protection agreements included in the law that set up the line in 1974.

That provision would mean workers would get far less money than they would be entitled to under the 1974 law. It is certain to raise the ire of organized labor and produce a Supreme Court test if passed by Congress.

Conrail was formed April 1, 1974, from lines of the Penn Central and other bankrupt railroads.

The other administration railroad proposal covers Amtrak passenger operations.

Reagan has moved to slash the federal subsidy for Amtrak to $613 million, which the corporation said would force it to abandon all the nation's passenger trains except for the Washington-Boston, Northeast Corridor.

Amtrak celebrated its 10th anniversary Friday with Director executives, crowded by Reagan's budget plans but still upbeat because Amtrak is booming with record passenger loads, almost all new passenger cars and the best on-time performance of the decade.

Amtrak was formed May 1, 1971 as an experiment to save the country's declining passenger train network, then operated by individual railroads.

Reagan has recommended a $613 million budget for Amtrak. The corporation says this does not leave enough to continue nationwide operations and it will be forced to end all the country's passenger service except for the Washington-Boston corridor on Oct. 1.

The Conrail legislation contains these major provisions:

- The Transportation Department could enter into agreements with profitable railroads, mostly from the South and West, to buy individual parts of Conrail.
- Commuter services and employees, mainly in the New York and Philadelphia areas, would be transferred to commuter authorities or to Amtrak. Some $50 million would be included to smooth the transfer.

- Some legal and regulatory barriers would be removed to acquisition of light density branch lines by states or shippers.
- Current labor protection agreements, which can result in a lifetime salary for senior laid-off employees, would be repealed. Instead, employees with less than five years' experience would get nothing, those with five to 15 years would get $1,000 for each year of service, those with 15 to 25 years would get $10,000 plus $2,000 for each year over 15, and those with more than 25 years would get $30,000.

Mayors claim cuts are threat to cities

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan's proposed budget cuts will affect the nation's cities more adversely than anyone first suspected and could threaten their very existence, the U.S. Conference of Mayors said Friday.

"These cuts represent the first really serious threat to the life, to the existence of cities since World War II," said conference president Richard Hatcher, mayor of Gary, Ind.

Hatcher made his comments in releasing a 52-page report estimating the effects on 100 cities of the administration's plan to slice $37 to $48 billion from the budget.

"This document," said Syracuse, N.Y. mayor Lee Alexander of the report, "is so staggering I just wonder if the Reagan administration isn't living in another universe than we are."

He compared the economic assumptions of the Reagan proposal with that of a "side show barker, a shell game con man."

Hatcher said most cities already describe their overall fiscal situation for 1982 as "chaotic" and said the proposed cuts will make things even worse.

"Well over half the cities, 58 percent, reported it will be necessary to lay off workers in 1982 and 68 percent predicted service decreases," Hatcher said. Forty one percent said they will have to increase their local taxes.

The city of Cleveland described the Reagan proposal to eliminate the Economic Development Administration as "disastrous."

Fort Wayne, Ind., said the elimination of the EDA will leave the cornerstone of its downtown development project uncompleted.

Norfolk, Va., said it will lose $3 to $4 million in slum clearance funds and in Dayton, Ohio, commitments from private sector industries to stay in the city are "down the tubes" because of the freeze on EDA funds.

Kansas City reported cutbacks in federal education funds will force a 20 percent reduction in its teaching and administrative staffs and Warwick, R.I., said the cuts will be "very severe," affecting teachers with tenure and 10 years of experience.

Baltimore predicted a total loss to the city of $250 million from the Reagan cuts.

"Especially hard hit in the jurisdictions reporting will be capital expenditures for economic development, public transportation, environmental protection and other programs," the 52-page study said.

Energy Department proposes end to tertiary oil recovery program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Energy Department proposed Friday to end the so-called tertiary oil recovery incentive program, which lingers on as a billion-dollar hangover from the era of oil price controls.

The program, in effect since Aug. 21, 1973, was supposed to give companies a $20 million in incentives for every depleted well made to produce oil after production by ordinary methods was exhausted.

In announcing its intentions to end the program retroactive to March 18, the agency's Economic Regulatory Administration said the tertiary recovery program may not add much crude oil production but would result in large subsidies.

"Oilers say the real problem with the program is that the source of incentives is limited.

The incentives came from adjustments in the federal entitlements program in which oil firms were required to swap payments in an effort to equalize each refiner's crude oil acquisition cost, whether he used domestic or imported supplies.

The basis for the payments ceased on Jan. 28, 1978 when the abolition of controls permitted domestic oil prices — some still capped at $7 a barrel — to rise to the world level of about $35.

Bonner Templeton, Mobil vice president for supply, estimated that someone might have been liable for "many billion dollars" in incentive payments had the program continued.

Another troublesome legacy of price controls is an industry dispute over an "apparent" price-switching scam involving so-called controlled "old oil."

Old oil is a classification of domestic oil that sold for $7 per barrel under controls but leaped to world levels of about $37 on Jan. 28. It began "disappearing" in the supply pipeline in recent years only to turn up later with a new classification that commanded a higher price.

The disappearances swelled to half a million barrels a day last December in anticipation of decontrol, which would mean a $30 per barrel bonanza for misclassified oil.

"There very definitely has been some suspect disappearances of oil," said Templeton. "In anticipation of decontrol, certain members of the industry started to squirrel away old oil."

"It certainly appears a lot of this stuff is getting rebranded," he said.

Templeton said Mobil scrupulously accounted for old oil all the way from the well head to the refinery, but many other companies did not.

Mobil has appealed to the Energy Department to demand an industry accounting for oil to make sure some companies do not reap a bonanza from price switching.

Some competitors, however, have denounced agency enforcement attempts as a violation of President Reagan's decontrol order.

Gorsuch wins key support to head EPA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Colorado lawyer and former state legislator Anne Gorsuch, Reagan's choice to head the Environmental Protection Agency, won support from key Republican senators today despite the strong reservations of environmental groups.

Testifying at confirmation hearings before the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee, Ms. Gorsuch said she and Reagan are "committed to the preservation and enhancement of environmental values."

However, she said, environmental protection must be balanced against "the need to improve our economy and develop affordable domestic resources."

Her failure to more strongly support environmental standards and her earlier statements that the benefits of clean air and water standards should be weighed against their costs were the source of much of the opposition by environmentalists.

But in answering questions by Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., Ms. Gorsuch agreed to a "difficult" task to do a cost-benefit analysis to primary standards — those directly involving human health.

The most outspoken opposition to Gorsuch's nomination came from Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the National Audubon Society and chairman of the Council of Environmental Quality under President Ford.

In a letter to Stafford, Peterson expressed "dismay" over the nomination, saying Ms. Gorsuch had "evidenced no dedication to protecting our air, land, water and wildlife."

Sen. Williams guilty in Abscam case

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen. Harrison Williams Friday night became the first senator and seventh member of Congress to be convicted of political corruption charges in the FBI's Abscam probe.

A jury of eight men and four women found the New Jersey Democrat guilty of all counts in the nine-count bribery-conspiracy indictment against him.

Williams was found guilty of bribery, accepting illegal gratuity, conspiracy and conflict of interest and interstate travel to commit bribery. His co-defendant, lawyer Alexander Feinberg, was convicted of the same counts.

Bribery, the most serious charge against the pair, carries a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison.

Williams, a 22-year Senate veteran, was the most prominent of seven congressmen convicted during the FBI's two-year undercover probe into political corruption.

The verdict came days after Rep. Raymond D. Motta was found guilty of Abscam defendant to be re-elected to the House, resigned to avoid facing almost certain expulsion.

Williams, who has two years left to serve on his Senate term, told reporters he will not resign. "Of course I am deeply disappointed," he said. "In my heart, I know I did no wrong. There was no wrongdoing."

Williams, his wife Jeannette, and his lawyers, said no formal appeal would be filed until the conclusion of a due process hearing in which Williams is challenging the legality of the whole Abscam operation.

The government claimed that Williams promised to use his influence to get government contracts for a Virginia titanium mine in which he held a secret 18 percent interest.

In return, the government claimed Williams expected that a wealthy Arab sheik — actually an undercover FBI agent — would give the mine $100 million in loans.

Sen. and Mrs. Williams were confident entering courthouse

Abscam investigation netted 7 congressmen

NEW YORK (UPI) — The FBI's Abscam investigation into political corruption netted seven congressmen, one mayor, and 10 other businessmen, politicians, lawyers and immigration officials.

All were caught in the two-year undercover Abscam, or Arab Scam, " sting" that lured money-hungry Arab scam investigators and hundreds of thousands of dollars in bail.

The trial of Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., and his co-defendant, lawyer Alexander Feinberg, was the last major Abscam case to go before a jury. Eighteen defendants, including Williams, six members of the House and the mayor of Camden, N.J., face jail sentences if they lose their appeals.

The Abscam probe had moments of high tragedy and low comedy. The American public saw videotapes on the nightly news that showed their elected officials stuffing cash bribes into their pockets, demanding additional bribes, and heading "Pin the Boy Scout," or "Money talks in this business."

FBI agents disguised themselves as wealthy Arab sheiks and their representatives spent two years undercover, using a former con man and political go-between to put out the spending large sums of money to get help in immigration and business matters.

The money changed hands in suitcases, paper bags and unmarked envelopes. Rita Jenrette, the ex-wife of ex-Rep. John Jenrette, claimed she found some Abscam loot stuffed in a shoe.

The congressmen, when indicted, offered a variety of excuses. One said he was too drunk to know what he was doing. Another said he was conducting a private probe of political corruption and spent some of the cash to throw his quarry off the track. Another said he had taken the money, but never planned to follow through on the promises he made to earn it.

The probe raised the hackles of many jurists and elected officials who said the agents were in fact causing the very crimes they were supposed to be investigating.

The FBI paid a convicted con man, Melvin Weinberg, $100,000 to help with the probe. Weinberg was heard on some tapes coaching the politicians about what they should say when they met with the phony sheik.

Another former FBI informer, Joseph Meltzer, made use of his knowledge of the probe to blik California businessmen out of $140,000 by promising to help them obtain low-interest loans from Abdul Enterprises, according to an indictment filed against him. The businessman said they were particularly mad when the FBI declined to intervene after learning what Meltzer was up to for fear of blowing their cover.

All the political figures convicted in the Abscam trials are appealing, arguing that FBI agents entrapped them into actions they would not otherwise have taken.

A District Court judge in Pennsylvania has overturned the convictions of two Philadelphia city councilmen, George Schwartz and Harry Jannotti, saying the FBI agents illegally entrapped them into accepting bribes. The federal government is appealing the reversals.

A few minor characters in the Abscam probe still face additional charges. Camden, N.J., Mayor Angelo Errichetti, already convicted in one Abscam trial, has further charges pending against him.

Errichetti's Abscam videotapes showed, "was among the busiest of the Abscam defendants, perpetually bouncing from New Jersey to New York to Pennsylvania in an effort to work out deals between major politicians and the sheiks."

Like the congressman, Errichetti is appealing his conviction. Federal officials have said that if Errichetti loses his appeal, they will drop the additional indictment.

Dining with Kennedy expensive

By United Press International
COCKTAILS FOR TWO

If you want to attend any of the parties for Sen. Edward Kennedy, bring money. Kennedy attended a $500-a-plate dinner Thursday at the Beverly Hills Hotel in Los Angeles to help raise money for his 1982 senatorial campaign. Mayor Tom Bradley and former Sen. John Tunney were there. Kennedy's agenda had two fund-raising dinners in San Francisco Friday — a $1,000-a-couple affair in the city and a $500-a-couple evening at a private home in the plush suburb of Atherton. Kennedy plans to visit San Diego next fall. A $1,000-a-person reception at the home of former City Councilwoman Maureen O'Connor and a $50-a-person cocktail reception at a private home. That's a lot of money to pay for cocktails and dinner, but as J.P. Morgan once observed, "If you have to ask how much it costs, you can't afford it."

LOVE'S LABOR LOST
 Labor leader Alfred Antenucci is miffed. Antenucci is the man who grappled with and possibly spelled the aim of the men who allegedly shot

President Reagan. Antenucci said Friday he was "disappointed" the President did not mention his name in his address to Congress Tuesday night. Before speaking about his economic package, Reagan offered tribute to the other three wounded with him March 30. Antenucci, the president of Carpenters Union Local 1750 in Cleveland, said he would have felt better if the President had mentioned his name at the time. "I'm a little disappointed," he said. "I was hoping (Reagan would say something), but he must have his reasons."

CENTENARIAN BASH
 Rhode Island Gov. J. Joseph Garrahy Friday threw a breakfast bash for people who are 100 years or older, and 15 centenarians showed up. "This is the fourth time I've been here," said Mary Thomas, 105, of Providence. She looked over at Garrahy from her wheelchair and proclaimed: "Is he still governor? He keeps his age good."

SOLIDARITY FOREVER
 American civil rights activist Bayard Rustin has been in Poland for more than a week at the invitation of the Solidarity branch in Kielec. He says he has met with various Solidarity officials from Lech Walesa on down and he will report back on the situation to labor union representatives in the United States. Rustin said "my view of the situation has changed since I've been here. I came here thinking that this was fundamentally a trade union revolt. Since coming here I've come to believe it is far, far greater — a revolt against a totalitarian society."

WEATHERMAN
 For 45 years Harry Geise has been getting up at 4 a.m. He had to. He was a weather forecaster and had to be on the air early in California because of the East Coast time difference. Now Geise is retiring — a self-made millionaire. He says he plans to travel extensively and to sleep late. "When I started weather forecasting 45 years ago for radio (at 16) I got 20 cents an hour," Geise says. "Lately, he has been charging his clients a standard $5,000 a month for his long range forecasts. His client list included a number of oil companies and weather-dependent agri-industries such as Borden's and Quaker Oats."

Engines rumble to rail museum

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Two of the largest steam locomotives ever built rolled into Sacramento Friday to take their place at the opening of the largest rail history museum in the world.

The two Union Pacific engines chugged the final miles of their trip from Cheyenne, Wyo., into the rail yards, spewing nostalgia and black smoke. Dozens of motorists looked in amazement and freeway traffic was jammed as the "iron-horses" — one the largest operating steam locomotive in the world — came to the city that was once one of the nation's busiest rail centers.

It was all for the opening of a nine-day rail fair and the California State Railroad Museum — the biggest such museum in the world.

The museum, which formally opens on Saturday, will be permanent "home" to 21 gleaming locomotives and cars. Other engines have been loaned from other states and countries.

The museum was authorized by Ronald Reagan when he was governor. The president, who has since proposed huge cuts in Amtrak's budget, declined an invitation to attend.

Three is more than just company

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — Australian actor Jack Thompson believes three is company.

Thompson, 40, who has lived with sisters Lee and Bunkie King for 12 years, is now living with both women. He began dating Lee, 30, first, then Bunkie, 25, and now he fancies both women.

The three live on his farm near Coff's Harbor, a coastal resort town 300 miles north of Sydney. They also have an apartment in Sydney overlooking Bondi Beach. Thompson is still friends with his ex-wife, Beverly, and their 12-year-old son, Patrick.

Asked about his relationship with the sisters in a newspaper interview, he said, "I suppose lots of men have two or more girlfriends and sometimes the girls know each other. Bunkie, Lee and I just decided to go on knowing about each other and realizing it could work on a day-to-day basis and it has."

"Neither has asked me to choose between them. I love them both for different reasons, and although they are very similar in some ways they remain very different people," he said.

In another interview, he said he was an emotional slave to both women, and there were "no threesomes, nothing kinky ... I move from one to the other on alternate nights. It's always a one-to-one situation. It's times I think it would be nice if the law could be changed so I could marry both of them," he said. He also said wherever he goes to film, it is a part of the contract that he gets return fares and accommodations for three.

Iowa rejects censoring modern Mormon book

Pioneer American Jews celebrate

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

The American Jewish Committee, the nation's pioneer Jewish civil rights-and-human-relations agency, marks its 75th anniversary this month, confronting some of the same issues and problems that brought it into existence.

When the 7,000 delegates gather in Washington to mark the anniversary it will be a time of gala celebration and well-deserved congratulating.

But it will also be a time of "some soul-searching, for expressions of concern if not alarm about the condition of Judaism and the Jewish community in the United States, and time for mapping a strategy for the group for the remainder of the 1980s.

Two items in particular will occupy the delegates: The sharp rise of anti-Semitism incidents in the United States, accompanied by apparent strains in inter-group and inter-faith relations; the significance of the "Reagan Revolution," and its implications for the traditionally liberal domestic agenda of the Committee.

Another major concern will be the plight of Jews in the Soviet Union, echoing the event that led to the creation of the committee in 1906.

At that time, a small but influential group of American Jews sought to organize a humanitarian response to the plight of the Jews of Kishinev, Russia, where a particularly vicious program had taken the lives of some 200,000 Jews in a single year.

The American group sent money and medical supplies to the beleaguered community, and augmented that aid with a campaign to publicize the cruelty of the Czarist government.

With the rescue effort, which began with 50 people, the American Jewish Committee was born and now claims a nationwide membership of about 50,000 in 600 communities and 37 chapters.

During the meeting, the delegates will spend time discussing a new report by the committee's national office, which finds a sharp rise in the number of anti-Semitic incidents in the United States although it asserts "on balance... the Jewish position in the United States remains secure."

The report documents 377 anti-Semitic incidents in 1980, primarily acts of vandalism and desecration.

But it notes that most of these events took place after the highly publicized bombing of a Paris, France, synagogue and were primarily the work of "politically motivated" neo-fascists, whose actions seemed to be "imitative" rather than a "personal expression of anti-Semitism."

On a positive note, the report said "historically anti-Semitism has constituted a powerful threat... only in those countries where it has been institutionalized in the laws and traditions of the land."

"No organized hate groups have any appreciable political or social influence in this country," the report said.

The various Ku Klux Klans and neo-Nazi groups... receive media attention far beyond what their numbers and strengths warrant."

But while overt anti-Semitism does not appear to be a threat, a number of Jewish leaders appear to be concerned about the rise of the so-called Religious Right and its implications for the future of the Jewish community in the United States.

The Religious Right's strong support for Israel coupled, however, with a Christian absolutism that in some cases approves the effort to convert Jews to Christianity has raised a sense of unease among Jewish leaders.

DUBUQUE, Iowa (UPI) — Supported by written testimony by a number of Mormon scholars, a panel of Iowa librarians has rejected a call to censor the book "Roots of Mormonism," which a church member says delays the religion.

The recommendation, which came at the end of a three-hour public hearing Thursday, now goes to the Board of Trustees of the Carnegie-Stout Library for consideration.

The basic "rationale" revolved around the polenta as to whether or not a few errors in a book would be sufficient to remove it from the collection," said Robert Klein, chairman of the committee that reviewed the book.

"I think the committee agreed that almost any book you pick up is going to have a few errors," said Klein, the chief librarian at Loras College in Dubuque.

Fred Moser of Dubuque, a Mormon church elder, wanted the book withdrawn because he said it painted early Mormons as "disloyal" Americans.

He complained particularly that author Mark Leone stated Mormonism began as "an intentional negation" of America. Leone is a professor of anthropology at the University of Maryland and said he worked on the book for 10 years.

Moser's was the first formal request for censorship—in the city's libraries in more than a decade.

Following the recommendation, Moser said he would not press the matter further. He said media coverage of the complaint put people on notice that the book is objectionable to him.

"At least they've been warned," he told the panel.

His views not shared by number of Mormon scholars and librarians, who sent letters in support of Leone's book.

Reports of the controversy prompted the committee from Melvin P. Smith, director of the Utah Division of State History; John L. Sorenson, chairman of Brigham Young University's Anthropology department; William D. Rusk, chairman of the Division of Social Sciences at Graceland College in Lamoni, and others.

"Frankly, I'm surprised that such scholarly work could generate such an overreaction," wrote Smith, who is president-elect with the Mormon History Association.

The committee which reviewed the book included Kivine, Elizabeth Morgan, librarian at Thomas C. Kempstead High School, Dubuque; Carter, director of the Cedar Rapids Public Library; Herbert Achleitner, director of the Northeast Iowa regional library and Barry Porter, Iowa State University librarian.

Soviet parade used to criticize NATO

MOSCOW (UPI) — As a pale and downy — Brezhnev — in the foreground from atop Lenin's granite tomb, tens of thousands of Soviet workers marched through Red Square Friday in the annual May Day parade.

Western ambassadors boycotted the celebration because of the occupation of Afghanistan.

This year's 90-minute parade had a distinctly anti-American accent as fluttering red banners carried by the workers mingled with placards denouncing the U.S. plan to install medium-range nuclear missiles in Western Europe.

President Brezhnev 74, did not speak and looked fatigued as he watched the parade from his traditional post atop Lenin's tomb, flanked by most of the other members of the ruling Politburo.

For the second year, 16 top officials — including Brezhnev — watched the parade sent lower ranking diplomats to represent them. U.S. Charge d'Affaires Jack Mallock, for instance, sent his economic and cultural counselors in his place.

Other nations taking part in the protest included Australia, Belgium, Britain, Canada, Denmark, France, Greece, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Portugal, Spain and West Germany.

As in previous years, the May Day parade was an all-out affair. Missing were the displays of Soviet troops and equipment which had marked the event until downplayed and eventually discontinued during the mid-70s.

But the placards carried by the marchers, mixed military themes with statements lauding the rise in living standards and filled production quotas under the socialist state.

"No to U.S. Imperialism," "No to Medium-Range Rockets in Europe" and "No to Nuclear War" — the placards said. All of the slogans came from a list of approved sentiments screened in advance by party officials for ideological content.

May Day

Violence marks rallies held in world capitals

By United Press International

Workers around the world celebrated May Day Friday but violence in several countries and an assassination in Austria marred the festivities.

The Midwest crisis, Afghanistan, the arms race, women's lib and a host of other causes all intruded, sometimes violently, on the various celebrations.

In Vienna, May Day celebrations turned to mourning when the head of an Austrian-Israeli friendship group was gunned down in front of his home by a lone killer, who escaped.

Violence also broke out in Switzerland, where youths rioted in the streets of Zurich and in Italy, where rival unionists got into fistfights in several cities.

In Germany, protesters chanting "Women, take over the night" stoned sex shops in Hamburg. In Hanover, they broke into a peep show and assaulted the stripper, who was rescued by police.

In Paris, five separate marches turned into demonstrations against U.S. involvement in El Salvador and British rule in Northern Ireland.

In Santiago, Chile, police arrested 90 workers when an unauthorized May Day, in Peking, the portraits of Mao, Marx, Engels, Lenin and Stalin gazed austere on the otherwise festive crowds thronging into Tiananmen Square to buy ice cream, take pictures and fly kites.

Polish leaders break tradition, join march

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Poland's leadership broke with a May Day tradition Friday and marched alongside the workers who truly united over the past nine months to challenge the authority of the Communist state.

The circumstances under which we welcome May Day are unique this year," the Communist Party newspaper Trybuna Ludu said.

"If we tried to determine the theme of all that has been going on in Poland since last summer, we would probably define it as the dignity of man and the dignity of work."

In Gdansk, where the Independent Solidarity union was born in last summer's strikes, local party chief Tadeusz Fiszbach and labor leader Lech Walesa laid wreaths on the monument to workers killed in the 1970 food price riots.

Walesa spoke of the changes the Polish people have undergone as a result of the workers' revolt.

live has changed," he said. "Only it depends by what measure you apply to it."

Generally, he said, "if you were to measure it by their stomachs and the queues (lines before shops), it has deteriorated."

"But if you looked inside them, you would see that they are no longer depressed — that they can speak out loud."

In Warsaw, Communist Party chief Stanislaw Kania, Prime Minister Wojciech Jaruzelski and other Politburo members joined tens of thousands of common citizens in marching through a drizzle in the 2-mile-long May Day parade.

"We have to be optimistic," Jaruzelski said when asked what he thought about the new-style parade, which unlike past years did not go past a reviewing stand of the party leadership.

"It is 'too soon' too assess my impressions," a smiling Kania said as he got into a limousine after the parade.

Jets buzz Beirut as fighting cools in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Israeli jet fighters buzzed Beirut Friday but steered clear of the central Bekaa Valley desert areas in Syria.

Soviet-made SAM-6 anti-aircraft missiles, security sources said.

For the second day, the capital and the mountains surrounding Zahle, 33 miles northeast of Beirut, the Bekaa were quiet as Syrian troops and Christian militiamen respected a truce.

The only serious violation occurred when nine artillery shells apparently fired by the Christians landed on Beirut Airport, causing minor damage, officials said.

The airport, located in the Moslem sector of Beirut, has been shelled on a daily basis since April 27 in an apparent effort to ensure it does not reopen.

In Washington, the State Department, which 24 hours earlier saw the Lebanese crisis coming in an explosive mood, said the crisis now appeared to be easing due to the restraint shown by both Syria and Israel.

The spokesman did not elaborate on the diplomatic effort to contain the crisis but the United States has been putting pressure on Israel while Saudi Arabia has been pressuring Syria to avoid a confrontation over Lebanon.

Reporters who toured the Bekaa Thursday said the Syrians made no effort to conceal the missiles, which stood in clusters along roadsides next to their auxiliary radar units.

In Beirut, government officials prepared for a second round of reconciliation talks between Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam and leaders of the various Lebanese political and militia factions.

Government sources said Khaddam would return to Beirut Sunday to discuss "practical measures" aimed at "translating the present truce into a lasting peace."

India claims Pakistan sets a bomb test

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Pakistani jet fighters are expected to appear in the desert areas of Rajasthan bordering India, possibly preparing the site for a Pakistani's first nuclear test, the Press Trust of India said Friday.

The Indian news agency reporting from the town of Bormer in the Indian desert state of Rajasthan, close to the Pakistani border, said observers have noticed the villagers on the Pakistani side are being shifted to other areas.

The Press Trust said the possible blast area in Rajasthan of eastern Pakistan appears to run in a crescent along the border with the western Indian state of Rajasthan extending southward to the Rann of Kutch, a marshy area near the Indian Ocean.

Reporters reporting Bormer from across the Pakistani border said officials began urging villagers to vacate their land nearly four months ago.

The Press Trust said it would take two months to complete the construction of an underground blast tunnel. Presuming construction began now, a Pakistani explosion could be conducted in July.

Officials told an Indian parliament committee on atomic energy and space on Tuesday that the site of the Pakistan's test explosion may be close to the Rann of Kutch or in Pakistan's Baluchistan Province, a sparsely populated region on the Afghanistan border.

The officials, according to an Indian press release, believe Pakistan will conduct its first explosion between July of this year and September 1982.

U.S. Senate Democratic leader Alan Cranston said Monday Pakistan is constructing a horizontal tunnel on a hillside in Baluchistan to prepare for a nuclear test explosion.

Cranston told the Senate India is also digging a tunnel in Rajasthan state close to Pakistan where India exploded its first nuclear device in 1974.

Socialist tops poll in France

PARIS (UPI) — A poll released Friday showed Socialist candidate Francois Mitterrand for the first time leading among voters in the French presidential election, a percent ahead of President Valery Giscard d'Estaing.

The poll, taken by the news magazine Le Point early this week, compared only voters who said they had made up their minds for the election next Sunday to decide who will run France for the next seven years.

Le Point said 51.5 percent would vote for Mitterrand in the runoff and 48.5 percent for Giscard.

But 16 percent of the voters questioned were undecided, leaving ample room for a swing vote throwing the runoff to either Mitterrand or Giscard.

Giscard defeated Mitterrand by less than 2 percent in the 1974 runoff election and the voters' runoff promises an even closer fight.

NEW YORK — Stocks skidded for the fourth consecutive session Friday. The market wrapped up one of its worst weeks in months, skidding as interest rates climbed and the Dow Jones industrial average sank farther below the 1,000 level.

Trading slowed from its recent pace as many investors retreated to the sidelines.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which lost 26.30 points the previous three sessions, dropped 2.16 to 995.59. The average shed 6.57 points Thursday to close below the 1,000 level for the first time in 11 sessions.

Fortune-wrecking Dow, which hit an eight-year high Monday, lost 20.00 points, the largest setback since it skidded 33.10 points the period ended Jan. 23.

Franklin Templeton Co. registered late afternoon selling when it raised the rate it charges brokers for loans 2 1/2 points to 20 1/2 percent. Most banks charge 12 1/2 percent, a few 18 and First National Bank of Chicago 18 1/2 percent.

The New York Stock Exchange index edged 0.06 to 76.00 and the price of an average share decreased 3 cents. Declines topped advances 933,587 among the 1,907 issues traded 4 p.m. EDT.

Big Board volume totaled 48,360,000 shares, compared with 47,970,000 traded Thursday.

A few blue-chip issues were supported by investors replacing borrowed shares sold earlier in hopes the market would decline. There was uncertainty over how long that trend would last. Middle East tension and possible impact on oil supplies and prices was also a market factor.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter 4 p.m. totaled 55,376,100 shares, compared with 54,182,100 traded Thursday.

The American Stock Exchange index slipped 0.01 to 356.24. There was no change in the price of a share. The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ index at OTC locations edged 0.01 to 112.25.

On the trading floor, National Grid Corp. was the most active NYSE-listed issue, up 1 1/2 to 24 1/2 in trading that included blocks of 564,100 shares at 23 1/2 and 125,900 at 24.

Santa Fe International was second on the floor, up 1/2 to 21 1/2. Middle South Utilities was third, off 1/2 to 11 1/2, after a block of 323,000 shares at 11 1/2. Mobil lost 1 1/2 to 61 1/2. The company's Montgomery Ward unit was ordered by the Federal Trade Commission to make it easier to get information on warranties at its 650 stores.

Among the oils, Getty gained 1 to 67, Shell 1 1/2 to 11 1/2, Gulf 1 1/2 to 36 1/2 and Superior Oil 1 1/2 to 20 1/2.

Handy & Harman, subject of considerable takeover speculation, the past year, gained 4 1/2 to 32 1/2 in heavy trading. The company had no immediate comment on the stock's action.

A.E. Staley gained 2 1/2 to 29 in fairly active trading. The company said it could not explain the activity in its stock, which has been volatile in recent months.

On the Amex, declines topped advances 242,233 among the 722 issues traded 4 p.m. Volume at that time totaled 5,150,000 shares, compared with 5,850,000 traded Thursday.

Ranger Oil was the most active Amex issue, unchanged at 13 1/2. International Banknote, which reported higher earnings recently, followed, up 1 1/2 to 20 1/2.

General Telephone may charge for directory assistance

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has authorized General Telephone Co. to charge for directory assistance calls.

However, under the order, customers can make six calls per billing period to directory assistance before being charged and customers can ask for two different numbers during each of the six free calls.

All calls to directory assistance after the first six in the billing period will cost 20 cents each. Handicapped persons, patients of hotels and motels, and patients in hospitals are exempt from the charge.

The PUC's decision stems from a September, 1980, order granting General Telephone a rate increase. The company had requested authority to charge for directory assistance.

The PUC's September order said such a program could be implemented only if the company's equipment was upgraded so that it could separate calls for numbers not in the directory from calls for numbers in the directory. The commission's intent was that customers be charged only for numbers already listed.

In September, the PUC has reviewed cost estimates for equipment upgrade and found that the costs outweigh the benefits. Therefore, General Telephone will be allowed to charge for directory assistance calls regardless of the listing status of numbers, but only after providing the first six calls at no charge.

Commissioners said the new charge will not go into effect until after the company informs all of its customers through bill staff or other means.

Grain futures

CHICAGO (UPI) — Wheat and corn were higher Friday and soybeans climbed at the close Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat and soybeans were up 1/4 to 1 1/2, and oats 1/4 to 1 1/2, and soybeans oil 1/4 to 1 1/2.

Although the market was slower, liquidation that led to close dropped grain and soybean futures below seasonal highs.

Wheat and soybean futures were up 1/4 to 1 1/2, and soybeans oil 1/4 to 1 1/2.

Some European markets were closed in observation of the late May holiday.

The outside markets were higher.

Blaine voters face $850,000 levy vote in Tuesday's election

By STEVE LATHROP
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Blaine County voters will go to the polls Tuesday to ratify or deny an $850,000 school levy override proposal.

The polls will open at noon at Hemingway Elementary, Ketchum, Halley Elementary, Bellevue Elementary, and the Carey School. Voting will continue until 8 p.m.

Voters will decide whether or not to approve taxes, enabling local school managers to avoid a budget crunch, which Superintendent Dick Jones said "would literally rape our school district."

The override, which supplements normal school levies against real property, requires a simple majority vote to pass. Blaine County voters have passed school overrides in each of the last two years—the override for the fiscal school year ending June 30 totaled $575,000.

Jones said the 43 percent increase in the coming year's override request came as a result of sharp cutbacks in state and federal school funding. Jones said the override would add an additional $51 of taxation to property valued at $50,000. Jones said total school taxation for the present fiscal year was $168 for each $50,000 of property value.

Jones expressed confidence in the election outcome: "I think the people in Blaine County value education very highly."

Compared to other Idaho school districts, the Blaine County district is not heavily taxed, Jones said. When the present fiscal year's levies were listed, the Blaine County district ranked 94th in school taxation out of a total of 106 comparable districts.

Jones said the most heavily-taxed district was the East Bonneville district, Idaho Falls, where $50,000 worth of property drew $184 in taxation. High property values in a small school-age population explain the Blaine District's low taxes, Jones said.

In the event the override fails at the polls, Jones has outlined two alternatives: One, a straight budget-cutting approach, would whittle both "fat and muscle" from school levies. Included in the proposed cuts:

- Firing about 20 of the 105 teachers in the district;
- Eliminate all extracurricular activities except high school varsity and junior varsity basketball, which pay for themselves;
- Cut 90 percent of all textbook and supply funds, along with 90 percent of library acquisition and material funds;
- Eliminate eight teaching aide positions;
- Stop all equipment replacement and purchases of new equipment, except for one-school bus; and
- Cut the contingency fund from $67,000 to $27,000.

Jones announced the above cuts as possibilities when he requested the override election on April 7. The cuts would require approval by the school board.

A second possibility involves a transfusion of funds from Blaine County, which is a separate entity from the school district. Jones approached the county commissioners last Monday with a proposal that the commissioners supported the district with money paid to the county in lieu of taxes by the federal government, which owns 90 percent of county land. The commissioners made no promises.

Reagan wins local support

Area legislators rally for White House budget proposal

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

WASHINGTON — Several Magic Valley area legislators emerged from meetings with White House officials Friday, ready to urge support for Reagan economic proposals to their constituents.

Representatives Tom Silvers, R-Twin Falls; Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls; John Brooks, R-Gooding and Sen. Dean Van Engelen attended the two-day session along with 250 members of the American Legislative Exchange Council.

The members did not meet with the president, however. Reached Orion Overton, who chaired the meeting, was impressed by presentations made by several cabinet members including Interior Secretary James Watt.

"Some of the statements he made were very heartening to us in the West," Silvers said.

Silvers said he was especially pleased at Watt's intention to turn over some federal lands to state governments. Those lands would continue to be managed for public use and not be sold to private interests, Silvers stressed.

"It was very clear on that. What he was talking about really, without the whole thing of the Sagebrush Rebellion, was converting some of those federal lands to the public use," Silvers said.

Silvers said he was also pleased with one proposal which would call for increasing the states' share of gasoline taxes.

"I'm sure it will work for Idaho because we have a state highway department and we're limited now on our funding. We can't raise taxes now without some remedial effect and if we have the tax back into our own state and relax the tax at the federal level, then we can make our own decisions," Silvers said.

The ALEC members were invited to the White House session for the briefing in order to provide local officials with current information about Reagan budget proposals, Silvers said.

Federal cuts affect folk festival

HAILEY — The Northern Rockies Folk Festival may fall prey to cuts in federal funding for the arts.

Bob Waite, acting director of the Sun Valley Center's Institute of the American West, said the center has learned the festival will not receive a fourth year's funding of $5,000. However, one or more concerts might be held using private and corporate donations.

Grants from the National Endowment for the Arts, Folk Arts Program were used in each of the last three years to print brochures and provide workshops on such topics as saddle making, Wood River mining history and Indian ceremonial dancing.

Funding for concerts, the most popular aspect of the festival, was obtained from a variety of sources including corporate gifts, Waite said.

Richard Hart, who is on leave from the center director's post but who was in charge of booking musicians, said the center's board had not determined whether to go ahead with plans for the concert, which were to be held during Hailey's Centennial celebration Aug. 2-8.

Hart said he anticipates approval of a scaled-down concert schedule, perhaps without expensive bands. Last year's concert featured Vassar Clements, Live Wire Choir and Brian Bowers.

Media speech set for Monday

TWIN FALLS — The Trilateral Commission's influence on the media will be discussed by radio personality Richard Patterson Monday in Twin Falls.

Fatherly is scheduled to appear at the Holiday Inn, 1350 Blue Lakes Boulevard N., at 8 p.m.

Fatherly argues several national news leaders are members of the Trilateral Commission and as a result, many news reports concerning "strategic policy of national influence" are biased.

Fatherly argues the mission of the Trilateralists is to promote "government monopoly, management of America's economy and submergence of our national independence into a world order or world socialist government."

Delegates' joint statements will announce state grants

WASHINGTON — Idaho's four Republican congressional delegates have revised procedures on grant announcements.

In a joint press statement released Friday, Congressmen George Hansen and Larry Craig, and Senators Jim McClure and Steve Symms announced their offices will take turns on a monthly basis making the announcements. In the past, each office has announced grants awarded to local features.

The new procedure was adopted to demonstrate the delegation's unity and cohesiveness, according to the press release.

"We are working together here in Washington to further goals we supported during the campaign: more responsible government, lower taxes, less regulation and a stronger national defense," the members said.

We confer often, we work together, we discuss strategy on issues affecting Idahoans and we share a similar philosophical approach to the proper role of government."

In making grant announcements, the members said they were not necessarily showing support for the programs.

Inmate fasting fades at prison

BOISE—(UPI) — The number of inmates staging a hunger strike at the Idaho State Penitentiary has shrunk to five from between 45 and 49 when it began Monday, said Warden Darrol Gardner Friday.

Inmates were protesting what they termed "dehumanizing conditions" in the newly devised close-custody cell blocks.

In a letter to Gardner, inmates charged that they were served poor food, were forced to eat in their cells or corridors of their tiers, were allowed no telephone calls and were given "no recreational special."

But Gardner said he had lunch with some of the strikers Friday and had reached an agreement on the food complaints.

He said he believed some of their issues were valid, particularly those dealing with the food service.

"They ate and I think everything's settled down in that area," Gardner said.

The warden said some of the inmates' complaints about food included overcooked eggs, cold toast and being served through the bars of their cell. He said he had spoken to prison food service personnel who agreed not to overcook inmates' eggs.

He said the prison also was ordering warming units to place in the close-custody cell blocks to keep bread warm. He said the cell blocks mostly were equipped with steam tables to keep other foods warm.

The warden said inmates usually were allowed to walk through a chow line by the steam tables, but were being kept in their cells while construction went on in the cell houses. He said as soon as the construction was finished, inmates would be allowed to go through the food line.

Gardner said he "doubted the sincerity" of the five inmates who are still on a hunger strike. He said there is "a lot" of food available to the inmates from vending machines and visitors.

He said the five have told him they will not begin eating prison meals, however, "the next move is theirs."

Concerning complaints about inadequate recreation, Gardner said the inmates were upset because they did not have gymnasiums equipment in their exercise areas.

He said the area in which the striking inmates were held had exercise areas, which the inmates were allowed to use two hours a day. He said inmates also are allowed to move about the tiers of the cell houses except when the cells are locked down in certain instances.

Gardner said the inmates were allowed "exercise and a reasonable amount of activity." "I don't think that it is the general feeling amongst the taxpayers in Idaho that we should buy an elaborate base of exercise gymnastics equipment to put it out there for the inmates that generally cause trouble," Gardner said.

More generation viable

BOISE—(UPI) — Idaho Water Resources Board members said Friday additional electrical generation at Fallsides Dam on the Snake River in eastern Idaho still was a viable project and directed their staff to work toward that goal.

Board members asked the state Department of Water Resources staff to apply to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission for a preliminary license for additional generation capacity and to inform Idaho's congressional delegation of its action.

Additional generators would utilize present water releases from the dam and would not change the flow or affect the environment.

Department Director Kenneth Dunn asked the board for direction concerning Fallsides. He said he has met with the Idaho delegation and got the indication that the prospect of federal legislation was "very small."

Nampa bank robber flees

NAMPA—(UPI) — Nampa police and FBI agents pursued what they called a "Nampa robbery Friday into the robbery of the Idaho Bank and Trust on 12th Avenue at about 1 p.m.

Nampa Lt. R.D. Frizzell said officials had no suspects in the case, but he said officers were checking out all red-pickup trucks in the area because the lone robber was seen fleeing from the scene in such a vehicle.

He said authorities "also were checking to determine if Friday's robbery in Nampa was connected to the bank robbery in Boise Thursday. He said officials had no substantive reason to believe the two robberies were linked, "but obviously that's one of the things we'll check out."

Frizzell said the man entered the bank and handed a female teller a handwritten note, which said he had a gun in his pocket. He said the note also demanded the teller hand over all $20 and $100 bills in her drawer.

He said the man, wearing a faded Levi jacket and jeans, did not have a gun for carrying the cash, but "just grabbed a handful and took off." He ran across the street and behind a building and then drove off in the faded red pickup, Frizzell said.

Frizzell said no customers were in the bank when the incident occurred and no injuries were reported.

He said witnesses described the suspect as 25-30 years old, 5-foot-10 inches to 5-foot-11 inches tall, 165-pounds, with short, blonde hair.

Jensen appointed acting chief for Public Works

BOISE—(UPI) — The appointment of Ray Jensen as acting administrator of the state Division of Public Works was announced Friday by Director Glenn W. Nichols of the Department of Administration.

Jensen, chief of the bureau of construction, replaces Kenneth A. Hall, who has been named to accept the directorship of the physical plant at the University of Idaho.

Jensen held the public works directorship on a temporary basis from June 1, 1977, to July 9, 1977, at which time he resumed his responsibilities as chief of project construction.

Nichols said he was pleased that Jensen had consented to take on the dual responsibility of Construction Chief and Public Works Administrator until a permanent administrator can be recruited. Nichols said he would advertise the opening and solicit applications in the Pacific Northwest and hopes to fill the position within 60 days.

The appointment was made on Nichols' first day on the job as director of the Department of Administration.

Nichols was appointed by Gov. John Evans to replace Les Peters, who was named by the governor to head the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare.

QUESTION...

We have never joined a church in Twin Falls. What will we do when we lose a member of our family?

ANSWER

A funeral service is primarily a religious experience of great spiritual significance. Its purpose is to conclude the physical existence of someone we love with the knowledge that God's will has been accomplished. At this time it is a priest, minister or rabbi to whom your family should turn. He is your logical counselor by virtue of his training and dedication.

The clergy of Twin Falls are known for their compassion and understanding. Those who do not have a church affiliation will find many friends volunteering to help them select a clergyman. Our personnel are affiliated with many religious groups, we also can be helpful in this choice.

Lawsuits, rulings push Kentucky Derby field to 22 horses

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Churchill Downs broke its own rules in determining which horses can run in Saturday's Kentucky Derby. Two judges ruled in separate hearings Friday.

The rulings, coming on Derby eve, were the best news in two days for the owner and three owners of Flying Nashua and hometown favorite Mythical Ruler, two of three horses barred from the 107th Derby.

The third horse barred from the Derby Thursday — Law Me — an impressive second-place finisher in the Blue Grass Stakes, also was cleared to race the Derby but the track said the colt apparently would skip the racing classic.

State racing rules specify that a horse cannot be barred from a race in which two other jointly-owned horses are entered. The Derby field entered Thursday included two pairs of horses with joint ownership.

And because the state racing rules must prevail, the track cannot bar Flying Nashua, Law Me and Mythical Ruler from the Derby because of the joint ownership question, a state Court of Appeals judge ruled.

The decision by Judge Michael McDonald, who was elected to the appeals bench just five months ago, broadened the earlier decision by a self-described "racing" judge, Jan Charles Leibson, a circuit court judge.

McDonald first announced a brief ruling that Flying Nashua must be allowed in the Derby. Then under questioning from track attorney Bert Combs, a former governor who presented the roses to Derby winners in 1960-63, McDonald agreed his decision extended to the other horse.

"Win, lose or draw I think we won the Kentucky Derby," said a smiling Larry Barrera, the 21-year-old trainer of Flying Nashua who is hoping to saddle his first Derby mount in today's race.

His friend and adviser, Glenn Laken of New York City, said he was impressed by Bluegrass justice, saying the lawsuit had been "high odds. We were up against the Kentucky establishment" in Kentucky.

The initial lawsuit was filed by the owner of Flying Nashua, Dr. Ulf Jensen of Newport, Calif., whose success before Judge Leibson prompted the Louisville owners of Mythical Ruler to file a similar lawsuit four hours later.

Before giving up the fight in the wake of McDonald's ruling, Combs had contended throughout the legal proceedings that the late inclusion of more Derby horses would create "chaos and confusion."

Two immediate results were the cancellation of Friday's advance betting on the Derby and a delay in printing updated track betting programs for today.

After McDonald issued his ruling, a weary-looking Lynn Stone, the cigar-smoking track president and usually in a buoyant mood on Derby eve, extended his hand to Barrera and said "Good Luck."

Stone had grimaced when McDonald read his decision.

Asked then if he intended to withdraw the two disputed horses into the Derby, a poker-faced Stone said, "I think that's what we're going to do."

Jensen, in an affidavit filed with Leibson, said he would be irreparably harmed if Flying Nashua was barred from the Derby. The horse has been trained for three years in anticipation of the Derby and his value could increase from $5 million to $12 million if he wins the race, Jensen said.

Marks fall as Bruin girls, Capital boys win classic

By LARRY HOWEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — No one asked for their money back when the Twin Falls Track Classic ended Friday evening.

The crowd "was several" all-time Idaho bests in watching Capital run off with the boys division and Twin Falls, behind the return-to-legacy form of Dena Libert, beat back a Capital challenge in the girls division.

Actually, team points probably were the bird most important part of this meet, which featured 11 of the 12 largest schools in the state. Borah senior Larry Smith tied the state best of 9:12.4 in the two mile and also won the mile in 4:18. Capital's field event duo of pole vaulter Kasey Lewis (15-6) and shotputter Scott Lundy (62-6) highlighted that division, although Twin Falls' Greg Scherer rang in with a personal best of 22-5/4 in winning the long jump.

Also in the boys' division, Stu Sato of Skyline whipped Greg Harrison of Borah handily in the short sprints in 21.9 and 11.9.

But the feature of the boys racing just might have been the 800-meter run where Bruin senior Eric McManaman led perhaps the all-time best finish in Idaho history across the line. McManaman collected a personal best of 1:55.5 with sixth place timed in 1:59.0.

In the girls' division, Libert, who didn't have a great day in the Gem State Conference finals at three games apiece.

The Celtics can become only the fourth team in league history to rally from a 3-1 deficit when the best of seven series concludes Sunday at the Boston Garden.

Note — Archibald gave the Celtics, who had to rally from deficits of 17 and 15 points, the lead for good, 96-95, on two free throws with 2:16 remaining. Bird, who led Boston with 25 points, then sank a 30-foot jumper to give the Celtics a three-point lead over Philadelphia's Andrew Toney, who led it on one-point game with 52 seconds left to play.

Toney stole the ball from Bird with 30 seconds left to give the '76ers a chance to take the lead but his running-oligofooter was blocked by Kevin McHale with 14 seconds left and Boston took possession. Maxwell, who was involved in a third-quarter altercation with a fan, was fouled and sank the insurance free throws with 7 seconds left.

Darrel Dawkins led the Sixers with 22 points, eight in the final period, but it wasn't enough as the Celtics broke an 11-game losing streak at the Spectrum dating back to January 1977.

Maxwell's trouble with a fan came with 0:10 left in the third quarter after he fell out of bounds off balance going for a loose ball behind the basket. Maxwell brushed the fan and after a verbal exchange went after the fan before officials, teammates and security guards separated them.

The Celtics trailed 57-42 on Dawkins' jumper with 9:58 left in the third quarter. But Bird scored nine points in a 12-2 spurt and Robert Parish, who scored 21 points, before fouling out, later sank a 13-4 rally that brought Boston within a point before the '76ers scored the period's final basket to take a 73-70 lead.

Kleinrop said. "But this wasn't state. It's still coming up."

Crow had her hands full with Johnson in the half mile.

"I knew about that girl," Crow gasped for air afterward. "I didn't know if I could hold her off. It was such a dogfight that anything could have happened at the end of the race. I'm not looking forward to seeing her again in two weeks."

Libert drew praise from Kleinrop for her showing.

"There's been a tremendous altitude change in Dena for the past few weeks. She's now leading in practice and she's caring about the other members of her team. The way she ran today, well, I think we can say that Libert is back."

Bird, Maxwell keep Boston alive

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Larry Bird canned the deciding jumper with 1:05 left and Cedric Maxwell added two free throws with two seconds remaining Friday night to give the Boston Celtics a 100-98 victory over the Philadelphia '76ers, evening the NBA Eastern Conference finals at three games apiece.

The Celtics can become only the fourth team in league history to rally from a 3-1 deficit when the best of seven series concludes Sunday at the Boston Garden.

The Sixers moved out to leads of six points twice in the fourth quarter but Boston came back to tie the game at 80-80 on Bird's follow-up shot and free throw with 8:53 left to play. Bird later hit a jumper from the top of the key with 7:35 remaining to give Boston an 83-83 advantage. It's first since the opening quarter.

After Bird's basket, the lead changed hands eight times before Archibald put the Celtics on top for good at 2:16.

Archibald added 19 and Maxwell 17 for the Celtics. Julius Erving, who missed his first six shots, chipped in with 15 for the Sixers.

As they have been doing the entire series, the Celtics got into an early hole, going down 35-18 early in the second quarter. Trailing 43-30 midway through the period, Maxwell sparked Boston on a 10-2 lead that narrowed the gap to 45-40 with 3:08 left in the half — before Philadelphia slipped to a 51-42 advantage at the half.

"No, she did not make any promises to the woman regarding a house of money or anything," the attorney said.

He suggested that the suit might have been filed in an effort by Miss Barnett, who is now a paraplegic, to gain possession of the beach home, and said the Kings were now in the process of getting an eviction notice to remove her from the premises.

"Any human being in my shoes should have some idea of what I've been through in the last few days," Mrs. King said. "I am worried about what my loved ones are going to do."

"I've known for quite awhile that Marilyn was unstable. I have no idea how my fans will react."

I made a mistake and I'll assume all responsibility for it from the fans. I hope they have compassion and understanding."

She said she will go ahead with plans to work this spring as a network commentator for the Wimbledon tennis championships in England.

Mrs. King also said she was thankful for one thing — "I think I have found out now who my friends are."

She singled out her parents, Don and Betty Moffett, and her husband for special thanks.

"He has been my lover, my husband and my best friend for 19 years," she said, "and it's very important to me that I thank him."

Mrs. King refused to disclose details of her homosexual relationship with Miss Barnett, who claimed in her lawsuit that "sexual intimacies commenced approximately six months after their first date."

Wasser also refused to answer several questions about the tennis star's legal plans.

King admits to affair, hopes for compassion, understanding from fans

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Tennis star Billie Jean King admitted Tuesday she had a romantic relationship with a man who she said she called it "a mistake" and asked her fans to show compassion and understanding.

King was joined by her husband, Larry, and her attorney, Dennis Wasser, at a news conference she called to respond to allegations in a "galmomy" lawsuit filed earlier this week by Marilyn Barnett, a former hairdresser who claimed she and King were lovers.

The suit said the tennis star proposed to give Miss Barnett the Malibu beach house she now lives in and to "provide for all of her financial support and needs for the rest of her life."

"Against the advice of my attorney, I have called this news conference," King told reporters at an airport hotel.

"I felt very strongly about this. I've always been above board with the press and I will talk now as I have always talked from my heart. People's privacy is very important but unfortunately someone didn't respect that."

"I did have an affair with Marilyn, but it was over quite some time ago. I'm very disturbed and shocked that Marilyn would do this in such a selfish way."

Her husband, also named in the suit, opened the news conference, calling it "a difficult time for Billie Jean, her family and friends."

"I have loved her dearly for 19 years," he added, "and nothing will change that."

Mrs. King and Wasser both emphatically denied charges that she had ever offered Miss Barnett a home or financial support.

Both big and small tracksters excel

Skylone High's Dave Thorsen tried his best yet was a distant runner-up at 52 feet, 4 inches. The distance between Lundy and the rest of Idaho's shot men is immense and it is undoubtedly hurting his performance.

Lundy came to Twin-Falls hopeful of setting Idaho's all-time best. He likes the shot put arrangement at Bruin Stadium and this might be the day to cancel out what he feels has been a lackluster spring.

"I went 63-feet-11 in Pocatello last winter and my best this spring is 62-feet-11 3/4. I should be going further," he said with a grin. His final throw was consistent Friday. His final throw was the winning mark while his shortest throw was 60 feet, 4 1/2 inches. In practice, this past week he has surpassed the state record.

Unfortunately for Lundy consistency and/or practice won't qualify towards records and he's running out of meets. Only the district and state meets remain in his high-school career. It's doubtful that any other competitor will be able to match Lundy's throws. Most likely, it will be a matter of self-motivation.

"I'm trying not to become complacent," he said.

"Physically, it's not hard to get ready. It's the mental part," Lundy said.

Smithie said his problem was also mental. "I got out there and was running ahead of my pace," he said. "Then I felt the heat and I let it bother me."

Smithie and Pocatello's Jay Ost locked up in a good race for six of the eight laps before Ost started to die. Smithie stayed close to a nine-minute pace but faltered in the stretch.

"I was thinking about the heat and I didn't put on a kick or anything. I was telling myself I couldn't do it," he lamented. "Even on the last lap I was on schedule to do 9:30 or even a second better but I lost five seconds because I didn't kick."

Smithie said considering the heat we would've been happy with a 9:10. The 9:12 is still his best time of the year by 4-1/4 seconds.

"It may be hot at this site so this may be good preparation," he said. "I've got to be ready."

Smithie is confident he can reach his two nine-minute mark. Like Lundy, he has just two meets left in the district and state.

Later in the meet Smithie won the 1,600 meters with a 4:17.6 to be a double winner.

Capital's Scott Lundy watches his 60-foot plus effort.

TWIN FALLS — One was slim in stature the other was a high school version of the Incredible Hulk.

Both performed well at Friday's Twin Falls track Classic and were disappointed.

Borah High's Larry Smithie, the slim one, won the 3,200-meter run in 9 minutes, 24 seconds — the fastest Idaho time ever recorded for the event. He wanted to finish at least 10 seconds faster.

Capital High's Scott Lundy, a muscle-bound defensive tackle, set the 16-pound shot 62 feet, six inches. He was looking for another three or four feet.

Lundy was given the opportunity and I wasted it," Lundy said. "I should've gone for 65 feet. That I did in me today but I just didn't do it."

Lundy, ever though disappointed, won the event by more than 10 feet. That's part of his problem. "Some people don't, but I thrive on competition," said the University of Tennessee-bound senior. "I wish there was somebody going 60 or 62 feet. It would help me. It would get me going."

Wander powers Jerome girls, Caldwell boys win

BURLEY — Vicki Winder helped the Jerome girls narrowly win the Cross-State track championship but Caldwell had too much live power for the Tigers in the boys division Friday.

Winder collected a customary three individual titles — 100 meters, 200 meters, dashes and long jump — as Jerome's girls just outlasted Blackfoot 116-113 1/2.

But with junior distance ace Robin Mein a little off kilter and Caldwell showing surprisingly good depth in the field events, Jerome couldn't match the Cougars. Caldwell took the boys title with 164 points against 149 for Jerome. It marked the end of three years — of frustration — for Caldwell which lost by one and one-half points on the past two finals, respectively.

With Meim having trouble shaking the effects of the flu — or something — for the past couple of weeks, Jerome didn't have its usual strength in the distance — although it scored well in the sprints.

One of the big reasons was Brad Shirely of Madison who easily won both long events. Jim McKeane was second in both and Jerome picked up points in the 400 and 800 meters.

But Caldwell offset that with a 19-point power move in the pole vault and going into the running final, Jerome's other big event was the half-mile — making up the first two points by getting the next three.

In the girls division, freshman Joni James, ignoring a sprained ankle, won the quarter in 6:16. The Tigers

Libert greeted her 5.87 time in the quarter with surprise — and then a big smile. She said she was aware she was going faster than usual because "it hurt a lot."

But she seemed more aware that her 200 time was going to be good, having run the first half of the race well. "That's my best time — ever," she said with a broad smile afterward.

McManaman, who dedicated his previous best time last week to an injured teammate, accepted the suggestion he dedicate his 1:55.5 to himself.

"I tried to open-up on that — being going into the backstretch on the second lap — this will be a good mental block — getting rid of that thing about those runners from up there (Boise area). Now I know I can beat them," he said.

Bees drop Spartans

IDAHO FALLS — The Bonneville Bees threw the Gem State Conference in the lap of the Twin Falls Bruins Friday by knocking off the Minico Spartans 5-2.

Twin Falls can win the title today when it hosts Highland at noon at Jaycee Park.

"That game will cap a frantic week which saw Twin Falls holding a one-game lead going into tonight at Pocatello 3-2. Minico then knocked Pocatello out of the three-way lead only to see Bonneville perps end the Spartan hopes for a co-championship.

Bonneville, after scoring single runs in the first three innings, tied with a five-run fourth inning punctuated by winning pitcher Jeff Drake's bases-loaded triple.

Minico picked up a run in the second when Brock Wimmil singled, stole second and scored on an Ed Beckstead single. Two innings later, Cliff Hanks doubled and came around on a ground out and passed ball. The Spartans added two more in the sixth when Kenarkin walked and flew around on Chris Christensen's triple. Cliff Hanks then singled Christensen home.

Gilder takes Houston lead

HOUSTON (UPI) — Bob Miller struck for an eagle on the 16th hole following a short play delay because of lightning and then rolled in four quick birdies in five holes Friday to finish with a 7-under par 64 and take the lead in the Houston Open after 36 holes.

Gilder, the tournament's third place finisher the past two years, moved into the lead at 10-under in five holes to play after Hale Irwin, Bobby Wadkins, Tommy Valentine and Mike Holland had held it. Gilder's 36-hole total was 132.

Steady Tom Kite put together a 68 as the majority of scores under 80 as threatening weather conditions in the city afternoon joined him at 9-under par with 36 holes to play.

Two shots back were Irwin, Valentine, George Burns, Pat Lindsey and Jay Haas.

Gilder, a Corvallis, Ore., resident, shot a 68 Thursday and had only one birdie in the first seven holes Friday when his playing partner, Dan Hallorsorson, saw a bolt of lightning. At that point Gilder was five shots off the lead.

The field was cut to those players with even-par 142s or better.

Attorney says Payton likely to remain a Bear

CHICAGO (UPI) — Walter Payton's attorney Friday said the Chicago Bears' star running back would sign with the Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League only if the salary offer was "overwhelming."

A Bears spokesman said the NFL club expects to sign Payton, whose one-year contract expired at the end of last season.

Payton's feelings are now — and always have been — that the people in Chicago, the fans and the team, have always been first class to him.

Payton's attorney, W. Holmes, said by telephone from Hattiesburg, Miss., he would have to take the amount of money would be so overwhelming that a good business judgment would dictate that as a professional person he would owe his duty to himself to accept. Holmes said.

Payton is the Bears' all-time leading rusher and the NFL top runner the last three seasons. His contract expired at $475,000.

Alouettes owner Nelson Skabania, who this week signed Bears wide receiver James Scott and Los Angeles Rams' quarterback Vince Ferragamo, told the Edmonton Journal he planned to go after Payton.

Expos nip Dodgers in 13th

By United Press International

Friday The Montreal Expos "Rained" on the Dodgers' parade.

Expos Rookie Tim Lincecum homered with one out in the 13th inning to give Montreal a 3-8 victory over the Dodgers.

Lincecum's first homer in the major leagues came off reliever Bob Castillo, 1-0, and gave the victory to Bill Lee, 1-4, who pitched the final three innings.

The Dodgers tried at six with three outs in the eighth on Kirk Monday's first home run and a two-run single by Ken Landreaux.

Montreal scored five runs in the third inning off starter Burt Hooton. Lincecum singled, stole second and third and scored on Rodney Scott's single. Scott went off second when Andre Dawson was hit by a pitch and scored on Gary Carter's RBI single. Larry Parrish's single scored Dawson and Carter came around on a throwing error by Rick Monday. Royals shut out Texas 4-0

By United Press International

George Brett welcomed home an old friend Friday night — a four-run game, went 4-for-5, including a double and one run scored. Brett, who hit .390 last season, also started off slowly a year ago, hitting only .259 in April.

"Toronto" at Baltimore was rained out.

Cleveland 10, Chicago 2

Andre Thornton drove in four runs with a double and a single and John Denny tossed a seven-hitter to the Indians. Thornton's double came off Britt Burns, 2-1, in a five-run third inning during which the Indians sent nine batters to the plate.

Minnesota 6, Boston 1

Roy Smalley drove in three runs with a single and a sacrifice fly and Sal Butera knocked in two runs with a double and a single, leading the Twins to a 6-1 victory over the Red Sox.

California 6, Milwaukee 2

In Anaheim, Calif., Fred Lynn drove in five runs with a pair of homers and a bases-loaded walk and rookie Mike Witt survived a rocky start to pitch a seven-hitter in leading the Angels over the Brewers.

St. Louis 7, Cincinnati 6

At St. Louis, Steve Lezcano's two-run double capped a four-run third inning that carried the Cardinals. Lezcano's double off reliever Paul Moskau followed a two-run single by Ken Oberkfell off starter Mario Soto, 1-4, and gave the Cardinals a 6-1 lead.
