U.S. orders citizens out of Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The United States ordered the evacuation of American Embassy dependents from Lebanon Saturday and advised all other Americans to leave in the face of mounting danger of a Syrian-Israeli war.

U.S. Middle East trouble-shooter Philip Habib went to Saudi Arabia from Israel in a broadening of his shuttle diplomacy mission to ward off a Syrian-Israeli showdown over Syria's emplacement of Soviet-made SAM-6 missiles in Lebanon.

Israel, which has vowed to use force to remove the missiles if diplomacy fails, sent its warplanes over Beirut, buzzing the Lebanese capital but avoiding eastern Lebanon, where at least 27 SAM-6 missiles were poised for attack. Four were fired last week, shooting down one Israeli pilotless reconnaissance aircraft.

Heightening tension in the area, a Soviet cruiser, the Moskva, capable of carrying 18 helicopters, moved into the Mediterranean Friday. A U.S. aircraft carrier, the Independence, was also in the same waters on its way home to Virginia from the Indian Ocean, the Defense Department said.

"She is headed home but she might be going slower than usual" until a determination is made of the situation, a Pentagon official said in Washington.

Also in the Mediterranean were two U.S. ships on routine missions near the Israeli port of Haifa and a carrier battle group sent to the area Wednesday.

U.S. Embassy Press Attache Boulos Malek said wives and children of American Embassy personnel were ordered to leave Lebanon but a general evacuation was not being ordered.

Jerome criminal attorney Greg Fuller thinks the problems this country has with crime is not solved by locking people up

Fuller hoped to be a doctor

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW Times-News writer

JEROME — In 1969, a young pre-med student in Long Beach, Calif., was accused of breaking into a home and stealing some antique guns. He was arrested, hauled off to jail and failed a lie detector test five times. But he insisted he was being mistaken for someone else.

Handcuffed and in a straitjacket, he was taken to a maximum security cell in the Orange County Jail, where he was held with convicted murderers, rapists and thieves.

Shaken and distraught, the 26-year-old man was eventually bailed out by his parents. He had planned to be a doctor. "I'm going to law school and that's that," he decided.

That man was Greg Fuller, now recognized as one of Magic Valley's best criminal lawyers. His arrest was a "total case of mistaken identity," he said, but it launched his legal career.

The 13 hours he was jailed are still vivid in Fuller's memory. It underlies his philosophy that, if there is an innocent man in a jail, it is better to let everyone out — even if the rest are guilty — rather than keep one man wrongfully imprisoned.

Those are strong words for a strongly conservative man. But Fuller, now 38, lacks his career and his other pursuits with unchecked zeal.

In addition to his law practice, he is board chairman of Magic Valley Alcoholics Recovery Centers Inc. (MVARC). He has helped organize the Magic Steppers, a dinner and dancing club. Recently, he launched the North Side Playhouse, a theatrical troupe now rehearsing for a June production of "The Sound of Music."

A California native, Fuller received degrees in zoology and biology while attending school in Berkeley and Long Beach. He married a nursing student, converted to Mormonism and planned to become a doctor. Then, the California police changed his career plans.

Fuller was arrested by what he calls a "hot shot" young cop and charged with first-degree burglary. The victim had identified him from a painting done by his rather odd uncle.

He was asked to take a lie detector test and called his brother, a law student, for advice. He was told, "Sure, go ahead. If you're innocent, you've got nothing to worry about."

When Fuller flunked it five times, police pressured him to confess. One officer told him, "I've been giving this

ROME (UPI) — A photograph of the shooting of Pope John Paul II supports the theory that an accomplice may have aided the pontiff's would-be assassin, police sources said Saturday.

Italian authorities meanwhile debated whether Mehmet Ali Agca, who has insisted he acted alone, should stand trial at once or whether his alleged links with international terrorist organizations should be investigated further.

The suspect in Wednesday's shooting of the pope, underwent his fourth day of interrogation but investigators provided few new details except to reveal the Turkish university dropout's wandering look him in Tunisia as well as European countries.

But police attention was focused on a photograph of the pope at the moment he was gunned down in St. Peter's Square. The picture shows an outstretched hand holding a pistol at the left edge of the picture.

Police said several witnesses described Agca as holding the pistol with two hands when he fired the shots. The photograph has caused police to re-investigate their "second man" theory, the sources said.

Immediately after the shots were fired, several bystanders told police they saw a man dressed in a dark suit running from the scene. Agca was wearing a light gray jacket over a light shirt.

The police sources said the witnesses described a man "aged around 25." The description resembled a terrorist named Mehmet Sener, whom police described as Agca's "comrade-in-arms."

Agca, 24, believed to be a hit-man for ultra-rightist guerrilla groups, faces life imprisonment for the shooting of Pope John Paul, 60. He also faces the death penalty in Turkey for the murder of an Istanbul newspaper editor.

Investigators said "intelligence services worldwide" were helping track down Agca's links with far-right extremists.

The four state prosecutors investigating the papal shooting met top police officials in Rome to examine a 5-page memorandum written by Agca, police sources said.

Details of the memorandum were not disclosed, but police sources said Agca insisted that he acted alone and that he referred to "various activities" to explain his frequent visits to European countries.

The sources said Agca also repeated that he was "a comrade" of the extreme left Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine rather than any rightist organization. But they said the investigating magistrates believed his stories were a "cover-up" for his real motives.

Officials said the question now was whether or not to complete an investigation of his motives before putting him on trial under a procedure known as "dirittissimo," meaning immediate trial.

Expansion at MVMH may stimulate the city's economy with new construction jobs

Local firms get bulk of funds

Hospital renovation temporarily pours millions into area economy

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Like a stone thrown in a pool of water, the $27 million expansion of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital is sending ripples through Twin Falls' economy.

The dollars being poured into the hospital's construction and renovation project cannot help but stimulate the local building industry, according to area businessmen.

Only six of about 30 firms recently awarded construction bids are locally based, but those six firms account for more than $5 million of the $9 million allocated thus far.

Out-of-town contractors also will be hiring local residents as construction workers, although increasing job opportunities. And those people who are brought into the area by out-of-state firms will be spending money here — on food, lodging and entertainment.

But like ripples in a pool, the hospital's project may have only a short-term effect.

Construction is expected to last 30 months. Because of that limited time period, the effect will not be overly significant, said Craig Hobbey, Idaho Department of Employment labor analyst. "It will do nothing to stabilize the local economy."

The project will add a three-story wing to the hospital and renovate existing facilities. Alvin Spencer, of Oakland Construction of Salt Lake City, the project's general contractor, said between 60 and 65 persons will be working on-site during the next two years.

The guaranteed maximum price for the construction has been set at $14.1 million, but hospital officials say this price may be less because bids have been lower than expected.

The construction project is being managed by the Hospital Affiliates Development Corp., the building arm of Hospital Affiliates International, the hospital management firm.

Twin Falls County Commission Chairman Ann Cover said the last Twin Falls project of comparable dollar size was the construction of the Perrine Bridge in the early 1970s.

Cover said the commissioners are pleased with the amount of the contracts awarded locally. The hospital twice extended deadlines for submitting bids to allow time for local businesses to complete necessary paperwork.

Home Plumbing and Heating of Twin Falls was one of what company president Jack Threlkeld termed the "happy recipients." It was awarded the largest local contract, just over $4 million.

Jury says Garwood innocent

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (UPI) — Marine turncoat Robert Garwood was acquitted Saturday of charges of sexually molesting a 7-year-old girl.

He hailed the verdict as proof he had "finally come home to America."

A Superior Court jury of eight men and four women deliberated two hours and 38 minutes before clearing the 35-year-old Garwood, convicted earlier this year by a military tribunal of aiding the enemy in Vietnam.

Garwood showed no emotion when the verdict was read, but Garwood's girlfriend, who provided him with an alibi that likely won his acquittal, broke into tears.

Garwood was accused of taking the 7-year-old daughter of a friend out for an ice cream cone on the evening of Aug. 7, 1980, driving her to a secluded spot and sexually molesting her.

But his girlfriend, Donna Long, testified Garwood could not possibly have been with the child on that particular evening since he was en route to Charlottesville, Va., at the hour the acts were alleged to have occurred.

The parents of the child appeared stunned by the verdict.

"Just stay away from me, just stay away from me," the father warned reporters who approached him for comment.

Deputies gathered around the father, a retired Marine Corps sergeant, telling him to make no trouble in the courtroom.

"I tried to explain to him it would be better for everybody involved if he and his wife went on home," said Onslow County Sheriff Billy Woodward. "He asked if he (Garwood) could be charged with anything else and I said 'No, it's over. He's cleared.'"

The father testified he did not learn of the alleged incident until nearly a month after the indictment said it occurred.

He said the child, who once loved Garwood "to death," hid behind a door on one occasion when he came to visit, and that her mother later got the story out of her. Other witnesses however, testified the girl did not hide, but ran up to Garwood and hugged him as usual. The parents of the girl were considered good friends of Garwood and helped him after his return to the United States.

The defense portrayed the parents as people who openly cursed their children and kept pornographic material in their home. Under cross-examination, the girl, now 8, changed her story several times as well.

"Whether or not someone did this to (the girl) the evidence cannot tell you," defense attorney Vaughan C. Taylor told the jury. "Maybe someone did this to her, maybe it is something she fantasized. But the evidence shows it was not Bobby Garwood."

The jury agreed.

WELCOME EMBERSON BAPTIST CHURCH

Tornado turns small Texas town into kindling; gives 1 man a ride

EMBERSON, Texas (UPI) — Emberson, an unobtrusive northeast Texas settlement of 80 people, was no match for the tornado that dashed through it this week.

In less than three minutes, the community, what little of it remained to begin with, was flattened.

Of Emberson's 24 buildings — 23 houses and a Baptist church — all but five were destroyed by the twister, turning the community into a field of trash Wednesday evening. Incredibly, no one was killed but 28 people were injured. The structural destruction was almost total.

The homeless mechanically checked the heaps that had been their houses for salvageable items while marveling at the tornado's amazing and random show of strength. They huddled about a camp.

A dozen funnels were reported in north and east Texas Wednesday and two of them apparently fused to make the twister that destroyed Emberson. Witnesses described it as 500 yards wide. Lamar County Sheriff Roger Peterson estimated structural damage at $900,000 with personal property and other adjustments expected to push the cost over $2 million.

There will be no Chamber of Commerce to help rebuild Emberson, primarily because there is no commerce in Emberson. Nor is there a school, town square or post office — just a few houses scattered along FM 149 and an interesting county road. Its population is composed of retired old-timers and others who work 12 miles away in Paris but prefer the country living in Emberson.

Much of the land has been passed from generation to generation. Because of that tradition, coupled with rural perseverance and pride and insurance money, many will rebuild on the same spot — rural renewal.

The Emberson Baptist Church also will be rebuilt, Deacon Glenn Penn said.

"It was over a hundred years old and it had woodwork in it like you don't get any more," Penn said.

Penn was one of 19 exceptionally lucky Wednesday night church-goers who covered in a ditch while the tornado blew down their church.

"Dinner was just being finished and one of the kids playing outside runs in and said, 'This looks like a tornado,'" said Jerry Perryman. "We ran out in the ditch and in less than a minute it was over us. It was something. It was a miracle we didn't have somebody killed. Just a miracle."

One of the most seriously injured was Randy Perkins, who required surgery after a board pierced his back during an improbable ride in a bathtub. Perkins said he had taken cover in the tub when the tornado lifted his house from its foundation.

"The house took off like a helicopter and began spinning around and around and then it exploded while it was in midair," he said. "Then me and the bathtub just continued on in the twister."

"I knew I was dead. I remember my body got real hot like it was burning and then it shot me out of the tub onto the ground."

Perkins said he had come to rest a quarter of a mile from his house.

1 man killed in blast Bomb rips Kennedy Airport

NEW YORK (UPI) — A pipe bomb exploded and killed one man in the Pan-American World Airways Terminal at Kennedy Airport Saturday.

The blast came only minutes after a telephone warning was received by a man who claimed to be a member of a Puerto Rican terrorist group, authorities said.

Alex McMillan, 19, of Queens, was inches from the bomb when it exploded, and suffered multiple injuries including a partially severed arm, police said.

He died later that evening at Queens General Hospital.

Police said McMillan did odd jobs around the airport.

"This is the Puerto Rican Armed Resistance," airport spokeswoman Mary Taylor said the caller told the operator. "There are bombs at the Pan Am terminal near the restaurant and main lobby and also on Flight 403 to Guatemala. You have 15 minutes to clear the terminal."

Fourteen minutes later, the device exploded.

Pan Am's Flight 403 was stopped as it was heading for the runway. Bomb squad members evacuated the passengers from the plane and searched it, but did not find any explosives.

Police said the blast was caused by a pipe bomb with a timing device. It had been placed in a black bag in a second floor men's room.

The victim of the blast, police said, was an airport employee in the men's room. "Somebody forgot his bag."

supervisor, who asked him to call the terminal's security force.

Frank Arigo of the Wells Fargo security company headed for the men's room, the device exploded.

"(McMillan) apparently took the full force of the blast," said William Basore, an officer in the police Arson and Explosion squad.

Witnesses said hundreds of people ran in terror after the explosion.

Police evacuated the terminal, leaving about a thousand travellers lounging on the grass and in the driveways outside. The terminal was reopened about 11:30 a.m.

Authorities were unsure of the motive for the attack or who the Puerto Rican Armed Resistance group was. The group claimed responsibility for the explosion of two pipe bombs last December in Manhattan's Pennsylvania Station.

No one was injured in that incident.

Do not forget the good deeds

With the horror of Wednesday's attempted assassination of Pope John Paul II still vivid, it was heartening two days later to witness Magic Valley residents willing to risk their lives to help one another.

With the aid of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Hales, John Evans Jr. — the son of Idaho Gov. John Evans — and his family escaped harm in a thwarted kidnaping attempt south of Burley.

The neighbors have earned the respect of all Idahoans for calling police after Karen Evans slipped out a bedroom window during the abduction attempt and ran next door to the Hales.

Also earning kudos are the Burley Police and Cassia County Sheriff's departments, who worked together quickly in the face of danger to apprehend three suspects.

While the aborted kidnap attempt, the shooting of the pope and President Reagan have captured our attention in the last six weeks, we should resist the temptation to make pessimistic forecasts about a deterioration of the human condition.

We must focus on the many other acts of friendship done daily that do not make news, that are done out of civic pride and friendship. Locally, some of those acts are:

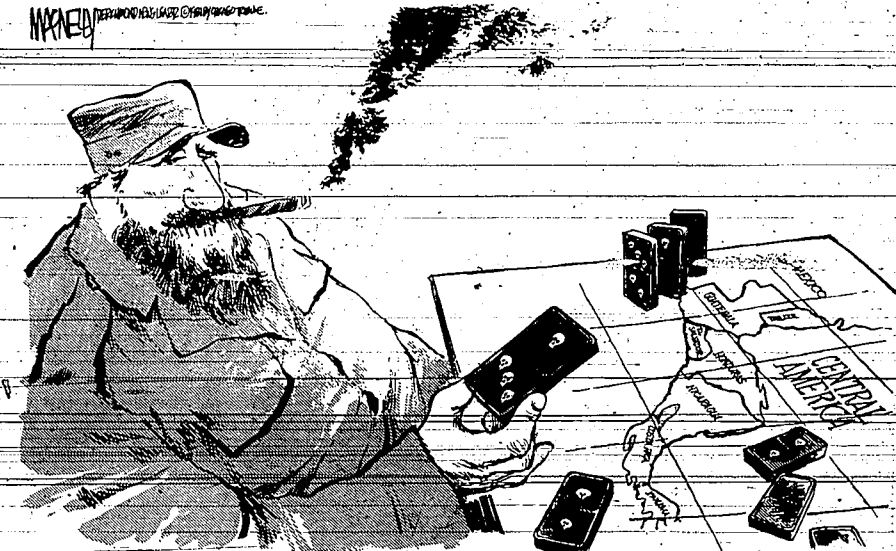

• Spring cleanup campaigns, conducted throughout the valley by countless taxpayers, businessmen and public employees who volunteered time and money so their communities would sparkle.

• Charity fund drives, aided by youngsters and adults alike who participate in fundraising through walk-a-thons, bike-a-thons, marathons.

• In Twin Falls, a massive community effort is beginning to try and raise $250,000 to keep the YECCA building from being sold.

• Clubs, churches and businesses assist in activities such as planting trees to provide windbreaks at Magic Reservoir, giving food to the needy and sending students to Boys and Girls State.

So, while it can not be forgotten that sometimes the world around us appears to be going haywire, we should remember such acts of human kindness. They abound. As John Evans Jr. said Friday, "I am glad for good neighbors." Hear! Hear!

Put MX in Canada — secretly

© Los Angeles Times Syndicate

The Defense Department was shaken a few weeks ago when the Mormon Church came out against the MX missile being built in Utah.

"If should not have come as a surprise as the Mormons own Utah, and while Americans don't have anything personal against the system, no one seems to want the monster built in his own backyard."

Nevada, the home state of Sen. Paul Laxalt, President Reagan's dearest friend, does not want it either. Sen. Barry Goldwater, one of our strongest defense supporters, has no intention of asking for the system to be built in Arizona, particularly since it uses so much water.

So the question is, what place should have the honor of being selected for the MX site?

Texas seems like a good state for the underground missile hiding place, but it presents problems. When you start digging in Texas as deep as our missiles have to be placed, you're bound to strike oil. It would be a very difficult problem for the administration to decide whether the country needs the oil more than it does the nuclear weapons shelter.

New York City would also not be a bad spot, since most of its potholes could be used as dummy missile sites to fool the Soviets. But the difficulty is that if you put the MX system underground, the ground using subway tunnels, vandals would start putting graffiti all over them, and scientists would never be able to prove they had developed a clean nuclear weapon.

New Jersey is a favorite, particularly with senators from the West. Unfortunately everything is now being dumped in New Jersey, and the ground is so full of poisonous wastes that it's doubtful the state's earth could stand another tunnel.

If it weren't for the price of land, California would be a very nice place for the MX system. It's President Reagan's home state, and since he's pressing for it, it would be a wonderful tribute to him to build it underneath his library when he leaves office.

Of course there is the earthquake problem, which cannot be ignored. We could get the missiles all in place, and then a strong quake in Palm Springs might set the damn things off. (For skeptics, I need only remind you that Titan missile in Arkansas was shot out of the ground when a workman dropped a monkey wrench down the hole.)

Forget Rhode Island and Delaware. They are too small to accommodate all the tunnels. Washington, D.C., cannot be considered because the senators and congressmen voting for the system spend too much time there, and refuse to be targets of Soviet retaliation.

Where then? The only answer is Canada, though it's imperative we don't tell the Canadians about it. What we must do is announce we've selected Minnesota as the site for the MX. We start digging right next to the Canadian border. But instead of tunneling south — we tunnel north as far as is necessary to accommodate all the hiding places necessary for the system.

We would have to do the work at night, and carry out the dirt in buckets as they do in prison motion pictures. But if enough workers are involved we could tunnel through by 1985.

Once the tunnels are shored up under Canadian soil, we would give Canada a grant order for wheat. The wheat would be grown on top of the MX system, and Prime Minister Trudeau would never be the wiser.

Now, although Canada can't be in on our dirty little secret, it is essential we leak the location of the MX system to the Russians, so in case of a Soviet nuclear first strike, the state of Minnesota will get hurt.

I know it seems unfair to do something like this when the Canadians do so much for our hostages in Iran. But our national security is at stake and we have to build our tunnels somewhere.

Incidentally, I'm embargoing this column from my papers in Canada so they'll never find out what we're up to.

Letters

Vote for schools

Editor, Times-News:
The April 30 editorial of the North Side News reads: "It is our desire that all parties involved in our troubled community affairs will understand that it is time to work together for the common good of all."

We feel that now is the time to prove we can do this: The $50,000 school bond measure is a "no" vote. The 10 percent would only increase the taxes on property with a $50,000 market value $25.17 in the highest payment year. This means that an individual with a house valued at $50,000 would only see an approximate $2.82, $3.84 a month for the education of our children is not too much to ask, is it?

We were shocked to see that so many people who participated in the recent survey felt that there was not an "extending" problem in the Jerome schools. (Although we were aware that only 237 people responded to this survey, and hopefully were not speaking for the entire community.) As Jerome school employees, we know that this building problem is a reality! We live with it every day. We welcome you to come to our schools and see for yourselves before you vote May 19. We need your help!

Remember, most Jerome school personnel are Jerome taxpayers, too. And, we the undersigned do publicly endorse the upcoming $50,000 school bond issue.

Cholos a surprise

Being a lifelong resident of Burley, I was surprised at reading your three-part series on these so-called cholos.
I was shocked and everybody I talked to had no idea these kind of people were roaming our streets.

From the way they talk, I don't think we need or want them. And if the Burley Police Department can't handle or control them, I'm sure there are plenty of private citizens who can. Come on, you cholos, grow up and be Americans.

Vote for Skaug

Editor, Times-News:
I would like to comment on the upcoming school board election in Jerome.

I have been away from Jerome for quite some time, but I maintain more than a passing interest in my hometown, as I still have family and friends who reside there.

I am totally unfamiliar with the current political climate there, and I hope this letter is not construed as a political statement. It is simply a comment of support for a former teacher and coach of mine — Joe Skaug.

As for most cases, I did not realize how much of an impact Joe had on me until I grew older and had time to reflect on my experiences. As a teacher, he was very organized and knowledgeable of his subjects. Most of all, he was fair. As a coach, he had the ability to "earn" his organization, knowledge, and fairness through to athletes. And he had the patience and ability needed to bring out unknown talents in young people.

From what I understand, he is continuing this through the local Little League program — not for money, but because he cares.

I work for the same agency as Joe and I am in a position to see that his administrative capabilities are excellent. Statistically, his office ranks with the best in the state and his Joe personnel turnover rate speaks for itself. It would be possible to employ many of them for such humble tasks as washing the dirty walls.
As you would surmise, spokesmen for organized labor take a very different view of the act. Robert A. Georgine, president of the Building and Construction Trades Department, AFL-CIO, insisted that Davis-Bacon continues to perform important assessment to say he is pro athletics. He always stressed academics as much or more than athletics. I think you will find that his philosophy is for a well-balanced education, blending a student's needs with his or her respective desires and abilities.

I think his past experience as an educator would be of great value to the board and the community.

In closing, I have no doubt that if elected, Joe would serve the citizens of Jerome as well as he served students when he was teaching and as well as he is serving the Jerome labor market now.

For parents who are really concerned about their children's education, the Watch Donahue traffic in "substandard wages and working conditions."

Mr. Georgine's view has become a minority view. Such diverse outfits as Common Cause, The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, the General Accounting Office and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce all have called for repeal of Davis-Bacon.

Sens. Orrin Hatch of Utah and Don Nickles of Oklahoma have introduced bills with precisely that purpose.

The arguments in support of repeal, in my own view, are overwhelming. Fifty years ago, in the pit of the

In my humble opinion, there has to be a reason for and a solution to our present educational dilemma. Perhaps this program will provide some of the help we need.

It is time for U.S. to repeal the Davis-Bacon Act

Universal Press Syndicate

WASHINGTON — Renault A. Robinson, a commissioner of the Chicago Housing Authority, turned up in Capitol Hill a couple of weeks ago. He had come to testify about light bulbs, pilot lights, toilet seats and dingy walls, and he had a story to tell.

Chicago, as elsewhere, public housing projects are federal projects. This means they are subject to a 50-year-old relic of Depression days, the Davis-Bacon Act of 1937. It hasn't met Davis-Bacon, yet ought to get acquainted — for Davis-Bacon costs federal taxpayers a needless billion dollars a year, indirectly, because of its effect on state, municipal and private construction. The law imposes excessive costs of $15 to $20 billion a year on the economy.

This is how the law works. A federal agency proposes to let a construction contract for more than $2,000, or a service contract for more than $2,500. The Department of Labor then undertakes to determine the "prevailing wage" in the locality where the work is to be done. For all practical purposes, this means the prevailing union wage — and the rates thus fixed may not be in the locality at all. The rates may be the rates in a large city 50 or 100 miles away.

The result is that costs are vastly inflated. The actual wage for a carpenter in a given locality may be $7 an hour. Under Davis-Bacon, the "prevailing wage" is found to be $11 an hour. Near Hagerstown, Md., the actual going rate for a plumber last month was $6.40, but when the Department of Labor finished its sleight-of-hand, the "prevailing" rate on a wastewater treatment plant was $12.65.

Back to Mr. Robinson, whose task is to oversee public housing in Chicago. He would like to hire a few old-time janitors, but he can't. An old-time janitor could change a burned-out light bulb; the projects have to call in a union-wage electrician. A janitor could replace a broken toilet seat; here a union plumber is required. If a pilot light goes out, a Davis-Bacon pipefitter turns it on again.

Depression, the Davis-Bacon Act may have deterred the award of federal contracts to "unscrupulous contractors" in these days no such protections as federal wage and hour laws were in existence. Neither the states nor the federal government had much concern for working conditions. Times and laws have changed. In the coming fiscal year the federal government will award upward of $32 billion in construction contracts. The taxpayers surely may insist that the work be done at the lowest reasonable cost. Where union wages truly are "prevailing" the construction trade unions should be satisfied. Where lower wage rates prevail, the unions have no right to squawk.

Shuttle

Next launch set for Sept. 30

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The second test flight of the space shuttle Columbia, the reusable rocket plane that returned America to space glory last month, has been scheduled for Sept. 30.

The four-day, five-hour orbital voyage will mark the first time a spaceship has flown more than once. The Columbia again will land at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

Officials at the Kennedy Space Center said they originally planned to launch astronauts Joe Engle and Richard Truly on Oct. 18, but advanced the date to Sept. 30 by deleting tests engineers considered unnecessary.

Launch by Sept. 30 — the last day in the current fiscal year — would enable the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to meet a commitment it made to Congress of achieving two shuttle flights in fiscal 1981.

NASA said, however, that the date is "success oriented" and that unforeseen — problems such as bad weather or technical difficulties could delay the launching.

Fritz Widick, chief of shuttle orbiter and external tank operations at the Florida spaceport, said the near-perfect performance of the Columbia on its maiden test flight April 12-14 made possible the abbreviated testing leading up to the longer second flight.

He said engineers and technicians will work six days a week preparing for the upcoming launch. They had worked seven days a week to get the Columbia off on its long-delayed initial flight.

In addition to re-testing the Columbia for the second flight, Widick said about 30 modifications will be made to the ship, including installation of a 50-foot long manipulator arm that will be used on later flights to lift satellites out of orbit.

In all, the Columbia will be carrying 16,000 pounds of payload on the next flight, including a package of Earth-observation instruments.

The new schedule calls for the Columbia to move from its hangar to the towering Vehicle Assembly Building Aug. 4, and move out to the ocean-side launch pad Aug. 26.

Tiles were damaged at launch

HOUSTON (UPI) — Most of the 400 "nicks and dings" in the heat shield tiles of the space shuttle Columbia probably were caused by ice and dust on flying off the giant external tank during launch, NASA officials say.

Thomas L. Moser, chief of structural design at Johnson Space Center said the liquid hydrogen and oxygen in the disposable tank are very cold, and ice formed on the outside of the tank.

"It's kind of like nicks and dings in your car. You clean it up and paint it and you're ready to go," Moser said. "After we're going to have to tie up a little around the pad to see that things are securely tied down."

Only one complete silica tile was lost from the 31,000-tile shield during the shuttle's first orbital test April 12-14. The other losses were only pieces of tile.

"We got our flight data and the system performed as predicted," Moser said. "The tiles performed outstandingly well."

Moser said the places on the orbital maneuvering rockets near the shuttle tail where one complete tile and pieces of 16 others were lost suffered minor structural damage from re-entry heat.

He said some honeycomb aluminum material will have to be replaced in those areas before the next orbital test flight.

Plans are already under way for the next shuttle launch

Apartment fire kills youth

OTTUMWA, Iowa (UPI) — An apartment house undergoing renovation because of an earlier fire "went up like a skyrocket" early Saturday in a fire that killed a young girl and left two babies and a young woman injured.

City officials identified the dead child as Tiffany Nettles, about 3 or 4.

In good condition at an Ottumwa hospital were Rosemary Gates, 17, and Tiffany Gates, 18 months. The other child, Preston Martin, 7 months, was in fair condition.

Ms. Gates saved the two children by tossing them out a second floor window to rescuers, witnesses said.

Fires hit drought-stricken Florida

MIAMI (UPI) — Acid smoke from flames that scarred a tenth of the Everglades' vast Big Cypress National Preserve blanketed drought-stricken south Florida Saturday from Miami Beach to the Gulf Coast.

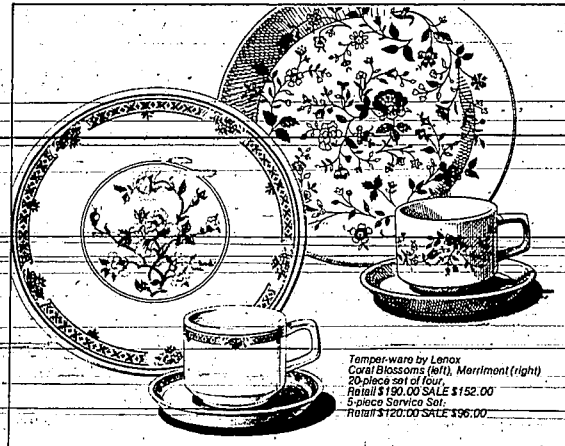

The fires were a spinoff of the area's worst drought in a decade and authorities were considering stringent regulations that would force millions of residents to cut water use in half, barring an unforeseen break in the drought.

In Central Florida the drought was blamed for a new sinkhole that opened under a sidewalk near the elementary school in the Orlando suburb of Windermere Saturday morning, the second there in two days and the sixth in a city in nine days. The new sinkhole was about 50 feet in diameter and 12 feet deep.

Half of Florida's population was already under orders to trim its water use by 25 percent. Bruce Adams, district water resources administrator for the South Florida Water Management District said the 4.5 million Floridians in eight counties would be ordered to cut water use by 50 percent "in a week or two" unless there is significant rainfall.

Separate fires in the parched reeds, sawgrass and brush of the Everglades between U.S. 41 and the Alligator Alley toll road spread until they merged into a single inferno near Alligator Alley.

Diana Ross switches to RCA

By United Press International

DIANA'S DISC SWITCH
Diana Ross has signed a long-term contract with RCA Records, ending an alliance with Motown Records that goes back to her days as one of The Supremes. RCA says the long-term exclusive agreement covers recording rights in the United States and Canada. Her most recent album, "Diana," went platinum, with two hit singles, "Upside Down" and "I'm Coming Out." Robert Summer, president of RCA Records, said Miss Ross brings to the company a "vast contemporary music capability and luster."

LIZ ILL
Elizabeth Taylor suffered a torn rib cartilage from coughing violently because of a respiratory infection Friday and was forced to cancel performances in "The Little Foxes," her first Broadway play. Miss Taylor, 49, was on medication and resting in the Carlyle Hotel on Manhattan's East Side, where she is staying during the run of the play. A spokesman for the show said the standing-room-only crowd of 150 at the theater Friday was not 15 minutes after the curtain normally rises that Miss Taylor was unable to perform as the avaricious Regime Giddens. The spokesman said the infection was the result, in part, of a virus that gave Miss Taylor a 102-degree fever on opening night, May 7, which marked her Broadway debut.

CROWLEY ON THE LINE
Opponents will try to kill the nomination of John Crowley Jr. as assistant agriculture secretary in charge of national forests when it reaches the Senate floor next week. Crowley, former general counsel of Louisiana-Pacific Corp., a Portland, Ore. lumber company, once worked as assistant secretary to a Louisiana-Pacific subsidiary which was found guilty of conspiring to fix prices and control timber in the Tongass National Forest of Alaska. Senate debate on the nomination is scheduled for Tuesday.

NEVER THE SAME
Douglas Fraser, president of the United Auto Workers Union, says the auto industry may never again employ as many workers as it did a few years ago. Fraser told a news conference in Iowa City that it will be at least three years before the industry can complete fully with small imports, and he doubts it can ever recover fully from its current slump. "Breaking even used to be bad news," he said. "In these times-breaking even is good news. What we're seeing now is permanent change."

Coupon redemption is crime

CHICAGO (UPI) — An area restaurant chain is distributing coupons for free meals.
Not unusual you say? Well, the coupons are 6-foot and 12-foot posters and the chain is urging the public to steal them out of buses and off rapid transit platforms, and then redeem them at the chain's eight cateries.
However, Lettuce Entertain You — the chain known for the imaginative names it gives its restaurants and comic-book menus — is also warning "If you decide to redeem this poster and take us up on this offer of a free meal, we'll serve you some good eats and you'll probably serve some time."
The coupon also goes on to explain: "So bring this poster to (our restaurants) for a free meal and for dessert, we'll eat in the suburbs."
"We didn't think any would come back," Lettuce's marketing specialist Bob Watter said, but so far, 13 already have been redeemed. "This is supposed to be a spoof."
Coupon clippers are going to great lengths to get their hands on the posters.
One young man caught a bus with a sign downtown and rode it to the North Side, where he grabbed the poster, jumped off the bus and headed for one of the nearby Lettuce establishments, telling the manager he was in the neighborhood so he figured he would just drop in.

Another enterprising individual jumped off a subway platform and scurried across the tracks to get one of the posters, clipping the coupon and leaving the rest of the poster behind.
A new poster — the biggest yet — was put up on Friday. It measures 48-by-14 feet.
"If someone brings that one in," chuckled Watter, "I'll give him a piece of the restaurant."

Poll: Lincoln gave the greatest speech ever

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lincoln's Gettysburg Address has been selected in a poll as the most memorable speech of the last 150 years, the International Platform Association announced this week.
The association, made up of professional lecturers, surveyed members of Congress, journalists, famous speakers, college speech teachers and foreign agents to determine which speech they considered the most memorable.
Association president Lowell Thomas said Winston Churchill's 1940 "blood, toil, tears and sweat" speech finished second in the polling, followed by Dr. Martin Luther King's "I have a dream" speech.
Responding to the poll, Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, said, "The Gettysburg Address seems to me to be the epitome of a speech which precisely fits an occasion and yet gives voice to a universal theme which has applicability for generations yet unborn and in its own terms possesses the quality of classic literature."
Columnist Marquis Childs said, "If judged above all by impact around the world, Churchill's blood, sweat, and tears' speech obviously takes first place; but the eloquence is equally notable. For greatness, I would be inclined to the Gettysburg Address. Yet, because it was not the style of the time, Lincoln at Gettysburg was almost ignored."

King's "dream" speech received a lot of support from the media.
"It had the quality to rise above the ordinary. It had the power to rally not only blacks but whites to a cause. It moved a nation," said Ike Pappas of CBS News.

Stomach problems? Just dial GUTLINE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — How do you sleep better? G-U-T-L-I-N-E. A project of the American Digestive Disease Society, GUTLINE is a telephone service through which a person suffering from a stomach or digestive disorder can obtain general advice from a physician.
The free service began a year ago in Washington and has also been operating in New York and Baltimore two nights each week.
For four days starting Sunday, it will be available nationally.
"An anonymous gastroenterologist — an expert on digestive diseases — will be on the other end of the line to discuss symptoms and problems in general. The Society said the doctor would not offer a diagnosis or treatment.

The telephone will be manned for the four-day period by physicians attending a national convention of gastroenterologists in New York during that period.
The Society said some 23 million Americans suffer from stomach trouble — ulcers, gallstones or other digestive disorders.
The Gutline, to be reached by dialing the toll-free number 800-223-0299, will be open to calls from throughout the nation between the hours of 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. and from 4 to 8 p.m. Sunday through Wednesday.

Family seeks crucified man

DETROIT (UPI) — Half a world and 35 years apart, an American family is trying to find a Filipino man who has twice crucified himself at Easter in the hope he will someday meet the father he never knew.
"We just don't want him to hang himself up — that cross again next year," said Nevada Doot, now divorced from the man whom Donald Rexford Jr. believes is his father, once an American serviceman stationed in the Philippines.
"Mrs. Doot said her three children believe Rex is their half-brother and want to contact him."
The major question is whether Donald Rexford Sr., now 57 and a truck driver in suburban Detroit, wants to meet the man who claims to be his son.
The elder Rexford has said it is no more than "possible."
Young Rexford, 34, known as "Rex," began what he hoped would be the beginning of the end to his quest at Easter, 1980 in the hilly town of Mandaluyong, 10 miles east of Manila.
"While hundreds of onlookers gaped, he had himself hung from a cross for less than a minute. Two steel nails soaked in alcohol were pounded through the center of his palms, impaling him on the 14-foot wooden cross."
He repeated the rite last month on Good Friday, praying that God would lead him to his father.

The late began, according to family accounts and the elder Rexford himself, when Rexford was stationed in the Philippines after World War II. Rex claims that his mother was only three months pregnant when Rexford left the Philippines in 1946 for the United States, never to return.
"It's all very possible, but I can't be sure," Rexford said, adding, however, that he did not have the means to either return to the Philippines or have the man contending to be his son flown to Detroit.

Schweiker says Reagan will listen to any alternate ideas to save fund

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan is willing to compromise on Social Security, his secretary of health and human services said today.

Richard Schweiker said the plan presented last week — a 10 percent cut for future beneficiaries, lower payroll taxes in 1985 and stiff penalties for persons choosing early retirement — was what the president had decided upon.

But he made clear the president would be willing to consider other approaches if Congress passes other versions, including a reform proposal before the House, social security subcommittee headed by Rep. J. Pickle, D-Texas.

"We would certainly strongly consider working out a bipartisan bill. We would have to ascertain how many elements — from our package are in it and how many elements from a Senate package or Congressmen Pickle's proposal were in it."

"Certainly you're going to have to do some give and taking. It's a little premature to say whether we'd sign any particular package as yet, but I think we're certainly willing to look at a reasonable proposal and blending of different ideas."

Reagan's plan follows a five-month administration study on how to avert predicted bankruptcy for Social Security next year and avoid serious problem in the next century when the "baby boom" generation retires.

Schweiker acknowledged the Republican-controlled Senate has approved a bill that limits cost-of-living increases, and the House Social Security subcommittee, on May 12, voted to raise the retirement age gradually from 65 to 68.

He said those two measures plus the administration approach were a "three-cornered stool."

Reagan is previously on record as opposing a change in the cost-of-living formula, but has never taken a clear position on the age question.

GOP leaders call for bipartisan plan to solve problems of old age system

FASCON, MD (UPI) — A conference of 126 Republican leaders, obviously concerned about a negative public reaction to President Reagan's planned Social Security reforms, challenged Democrats Saturday to find a bipartisan solution to the problem.

GOP leaders meeting at the 4th annual Tidewater conference voted to approve a carefully worded statement saying that a major overhaul was necessary in the Social Security system.

The delegates, however, walked a political tight-rope by neither endorsing the Reagan plan nor criticizing any specific elements that have caused a public outcry.

The delegates adopted a statement calling for "equality in our reforms." The compromise language was inserted as a preference proposal by Republican House members who criticized some specifics of the Reagan plan.

The proposal blamed the problems of the Social Security system on the "abysmal neglect of past Democratic Congresses."

While wanting to support

Reagan, a number of delegates particularly House members were extremely concerned over their constituents' negative reaction to the president's proposals.

Rep. Bill Green, R-N.Y., originally proposed to the conference that any changes in the system be made gradually and that an increase in the retirement age begin no earlier than 1990.

Rep. Dan Lungren, R-Calif., also proposed language that opposed Reagan's proposal to cut benefits for people who retire early.

But those critical statements were eliminated in favor of language saying that any reforms in the system should be equitable.

The conference was also divided over whether to call for a bipartisan approach to solving the problem.

Special Trade Representative William Brock, a former Republican national chairman, said comments by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neil blocked any chance of bipartisanship. O'Neil last week called the Reagan program "stone-hearted."

Court to hear tough issues

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A host of complex issues, ranging from the constitutionality of all-male draft registration to whether a president is legally free to approve unlawful wiretapping, face the Supreme Court as it enters the final six weeks of its 1980-81 term.

Since the court's opening day in October, the nine justices have heard oral "arguments" in 153 cases. They have handed down 70 written opinions and are expected to hand down another 65 before the late June recess.

The most controversial case yet to be decided is whether the males-only draft-registration-unconstitutionally discriminates against men.

Last July, a three-judge district court in Philadelphia declared the statute invalid on discrimination grounds. Excluding women served no "important governmental objective," the panel said. That judgment contradicts Congress' express decision to bar women.

The court's ruling places on the Supreme Court doorstep a quagmire of social and legal issues. Women's groups have flagged the case as a key test of equality, not only in the military, but in the workforce.

The court's failure to strike down the law would undercut women's rights by allowing judges to review sex bias cases against an easier standard for the government or an employer to meet, the groups say.

The administration views the case as the watershed for the future of the military and its ability to respond to national emergencies. The government says conscripting women would hamper military flexibility and reduce the pool of combat-eligible troops. Women are barred from combat by law, the high court was told.

The justices will have to decide whether to give traditional deference to the wishes of Congress in national defense, despite testimony that increasing numbers of women are successfully serving in the military.

Another legal frontier of sex discrimination faces the court this term when it rules in a case involving pay discrimination by sex.

The issue is called "comparable worth" and centers on whether women are victims of discrimination because they hold jobs stereotyped as "women's jobs," such as secretarial positions, that pay less than jobs considered "men's work."

The case, brought by jail matrons in Oregon who want the same pay as their male counterparts, could be the first in a line of cases measuring how much different job categories are worth as compared to other similar jobs.

Beyond that field, a headline-grabbing case on the court's full docket is a challenge by Richard Nixon and three former aides to a ruling that persons whose constitutional rights have been violated by their acts may sue for money damages.

Morton Halperin, a former White House national security aide, sued after he learned his telephone had been wiretapped for 20 months despite no evidence he leaked confidential information. Nixon claims "absolute immunity" from suits for actions taken in office.

Another pending case with political overtones questions the right of the State Department to revoke the passport of controversial ex-CIA agent Philip Agee on grounds he is a national security risk. Agee, who lives in Germany, argues his passport may not be lifted without Congress' express authority.

In the government regulation area, the court will decide two major election law cases. One involves a challenge by three television networks to a Federal Communications Commission decision that they acted unreasonably by refusing to sell prime television time to President Carter's re-election committee.

The court will rule in an important case testing federal election law that limits contributions to political action committees. A California medical group says the $5,000 limit infringes on free speech and political association.

The high court will also decide how far local government can go in regulating activities involving constitutional rights. In two separate cases, the justices will decide the validity of local ordinances banning all billboards in San Diego and barring all live entertainment, including nude dancing, in Ehrhalm, N.J.

'Trailside murderer' victim list grows

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Investigators put on the track of the "trailside murderer" by a young woman's disappearance said Saturday the list of their 51-year-old suspect's random victims was growing.

The arrest of David Joseph Carpenter, who has served 16 years in prisons for rape, assault and other charges, brought enormous relief to San Francisco area hikers, scared into staying off hiking trails since August, 1979.

A massive investigation was fruitless until Santa Cruz authorities received a report that Heather Scaggs, 20, of San Jose, had disappeared May 2 in the company of Carpenter, a co-worker at a printing company.

Police said Carpenter resembled a composite drawing of the killer in the latest trailside slaying. Carpenter's parole officer, contacted by detectives, began "to put things together and got the agencies together," said Deputy Chief U.S. Parole Officer Bill Adams.

On Tuesday a combined task force undertook an intense probe of Carpenter and began around-the-clock surveillance. Officers moved in Friday to make the arrest at the San Francisco home of Carpenter's elderly parents.

He was charged with the fatal shooting March 29 of Ellen Hansen, 20, on a park trail near Santa Cruz. Miss Hansen's companion, Steve R. Haerle, 20, survived four gunshots and was able to describe the assailant.

Marin County authorities announced that the .38 caliber revolver used to kill Miss Hansen was the same gun that killed five of seven victims along trails of Mount Tamalpais and Point Reyes National Seashore north of San Francisco. It was not known if the weapon has been found.

The Marin County cases involved a series of women shot or stabbed in a ritual in which, authorities believe the victims were forced to beg for their lives.

Carpenter has an arrest record dating back 34 years.

According to court records, the victim of a 1960 attempted rape of which Carpenter was convicted, said he told her he had "a funny quirk that had to be satisfied."

Carpenter was last released from prison May 2, 1979. He was sent to a San Francisco half-way house, and the first trailside murder occurred three months later.

A psychologist's report written in 1970 said Carpenter's history was pathological since the age of 7 when his stammering began. It said the stammering resulted from beatings by a domineering mother, that sent him to school with black and blue marks.

The report also said teachers forced the boy, who was left-handed, to be right-handed, and he rebelled.

The psychologist said Carpenter developed a fierce temper that erupted whenever he felt threatened. The frustration expressed itself in sexual rage.

When 17, Carpenter was arrested on a child molesting charge and spent 90 days in a state hospital. In 1950 he was arrested for rape but the charge was dismissed.

In 1970, while on parole, Carpenter went on a rampage of rape, robbery and kidnapping after his car rear-ended another auto. Following an angry exchange with the other driver, a young woman, Carpenter raped her on the scene and stabbed her with a spatula.

Police seek clues to killing

ESSEX JUNCTION, Vt. (UPI) — Police from a half-dozen communities search a village park Saturday for clues to the fatal stabbing of Melissa Walbridge, 12, and the wounding of a friend, Megan O'Rourke, 12.

Authorities said they were looking for two men for "homicide and a sexual assault."

Workers from the Central Vermont Railway found Megan wandering in a railroad tracks behind the park, police said. She was nude and had been stabbed, but was able to lead police to her friend.

Megan, the daughter of Vermont deputy social welfare commissioner James O'Rourke, was taken to the Medical Center Hospital in Burlington for a stab wound and a collapsed lung.

Shock waves ran through the community.

Orgy halts jail escape

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Eight prison inmates who broke out of their cells in an escape attempt apparently became distracted when they found themselves in the women's cell block of the jail, officials said Saturday.

The inmates, who were held in the Metro Jail Friday night and forced their way into the women's side of the facility where they reportedly engaged in sex with the female inmates, authorities said.

The inmates, who were held in the women's cell block, were charged on a total of 24 warrants including charges of assault with intent to commit a felony, assault and battery and kidnapping.

Night Magistrate Bill Norris, who heard testimony from guards and witnesses, said the inmates intended to escape but were distracted by the women prisoners before they could get away.

"One of the arresting guards, I forget which one, said he saw at least one couple involved in sexual relations when the armed guards arrived to make the arrest," Norris said.

"There was other testimony indicating that additional male and female prisoners were having sex. I think it's a fair characterization to say that it was an orgy."

Norris said police attempted to obtain rape warrants against the eight inmates but that the women prisoners declined to prosecute.

The shots rang out...

...and a stunned world asked the question- why?

Seconds after the pope handed back this child, he was shot

By BARRY JAMES
UPI Senior Editor

ROME (UPI) — Pope John Paul II picked up a baby boy and held him high above his head in one of those gestures that have earned him the affection of crowds from Hiroshima to Oungadougou.

Gently, he handed the boy back to his mother and moved on down the white-poppomobile—the open-topped vehicle in which he insisted on riding so that people could see him.

Seconds later, from a sea of smiling faces in the sun-dappled square of St. Peter, a hand appeared holding a black, military-style Browning 9mm pistol, a gun specifically designed to kill and maim. People were lo intent on looking at the pope to notice.

Two or three shots cracked out, sending pigeons flapping skyward in fright and stunning the crowd into a daze.

"Watch out for the pope," a policeman screamed. "Watch out for the pope."

It was too late. The pope, wincing and gasping, his face ashen, a bright red stain spreading on his white cassock, already was sinking into the arms of his private secretary, the Rev. Stanislaw Dziwisz.

Two American women standing behind the Pope collapsed under the impact of stray bullets. The gunman, a smartly dressed 29-year-old Turk named Mehmet Ali Agca, began pushing back through the crowd. Somebody tripped him and his gun went flying under a first aid station. He was lame and jammed.

A nun, Sister Letizia, tried to stop the man and asked the unanswered question that flashed around the world: "Why?"

"Not me, not me," Agca mumbled in broken Italian as people crowded in and kicked him. Then policemen wrestled him free and hustled him into their precinct a few yards away.

Somebody hung a giant photograph of the Pope's beloved Madama of Czesochowa from the front of St. Peter's basilica and the crowd broke spontaneously into a hymn.

John Paul arrived at the hospital muttering a prayer in Polish and asking "How could anyone have done this?" Within an hour of the shooting, surgeons began a four-hour, 20-minute battle to save his life.

Already he had lost a third of his blood. One bullet had plowed through his abdomen, missing vital organs and major blood vessels by a fraction—almost miraculously, as Vatican prelates were later to say. The index finger of his left hand was smashed. A deep cut scored his right arm.

As twilight descended over St. Peter's Square, the crowd remained, slowly dwindling, praying. Messages of shock and revulsion began pouring in from state and religious leaders around the world.

"I was stunned and horrified by the news of the senseless attack," messaged President Reagan, himself recovering from a would-be killer's bullet.

Italy is no stranger to terrorist violence, but politician Deppio Marton said it for everyone when he remarked, "Now we have really seen everything."

The attack on Reagan had accentuated fears in the Vatican that the pope might also fall victim to the wave of violence that is becoming the black plague of the age.

Only a week before the shooting, the pope expressed the prayer that "violence and fanaticism will stay away from the Vatican walls."

But he refused to rein in the exuberant style that had brought him more closely in to contact with the public than any other pontiff. He was fatalistic about his own safety.

"My life is in God's hands and I trust in God," he said in November 1979 on his way to Istanbul, where Agca already had made a threat to kill him.

By the standards of America or the Soviet Union, the security surrounding the pope was ridiculously inadequate. A few police, a few Swiss Guards with medieval weapons, an American bishop bodyguard, Msgr. Paul Marcinkus, who claims that his only weapon is "the right elbow in the Vatican."

The pope mobile accelerated to the speed of a fast jet across the square and into the Vatican as the crowd gasped in disbelief.

Minutes later, an ambulance sped from the Vatican in the direction of the Gemelli general hospital where receptionists began calling around to assemble the best medical team available.

At best, the pope's security could only keep the over-curious at a distance. It could never have stopped a determined killer like Agca, a man known to Alfredo Lazzarini, the head of Rome's anti-terrorism squad, as "a trained and ruthless terrorist with a capital T."

From the grudging statements so far made by Agca, police theorize he spent five months stalking the pope, plotting with precision the moment to kill.

Agca began life in a one-roomed Anatolian village home. He grew up amidst the blind hatreds and indiscriminate bloodletting of Turkey's politics and eventually drifted into thugish circles connected with the neo-Nazi National Movement Party.

In February 1979, Agca killed Abdul İpekçi, the editor of Turkey's largest newspaper, Milliyet, because—as he later told a court—"I did not agree with his ideas, and I'd do it again."

In November of that year, he walked out of Istanbul's maximum security Karal prison in an army uniform allegedly smuggled to him by fellow rightists, and sent a letter to Milliyet demanding the cancellation of the visit by the Pope, whom he accused of being in league with "Western imperialists."

"If this antichrist visit is not canceled, I will shoot the pope," he warned. "The only reason for my escape from prison is this."

The Turkish authorities wrapped the pope in a web of security that not even Agca was able to penetrate.

Later a court sentenced Agca to death in absentia, but by then he had disappeared with the help of money apparently paid him for İpekçi's murder and a false passport alias of Farouk Osgun.

He slipped out of the country, perhaps via Iran, and merged into the 1.25-million-strong Turkish community in West Germany.

Turkish intelligence caught up with Agca and sent several warrants for his arrest to West Germany and Italy. But police either didn't care or were unable to catch him.

Living on the run costs money. But even though Agca had no visible means of support, he never had financial problems. He traveled widely in West Germany, Spain, Switzerland, Bulgaria, Hungary and at least three times in Italy.

"I must say I felt the same feeling of relief when I learned he wasn't an American either," said U.S. author Walter Murphy, who in 1974 wrote a book, "The Vicar of Christ," that depicted just such an assassination attempt.

There was no such comfort for Turkey—its military head-of-state, Gen. Kenan Evren, said Western countries were "misguided" for harboring people like Agca and for ignoring "our repeated warnings about the dimensions of international terrorism."

The pope who preached the value of human rights and assailed violence in all its forms remains on the danger list, although his condition was steadily improving after abdominal surgery.

He lies in a glass-walled observation room at the Gemelli hospital, where doctors are doing everything possible to lessen the considerable risk of infection.

"The pope will live," said John Paul's hometown friend, abbot Jozef Tischner, "but the world will be different."

Mother Teresa visits pope

ROME (UPI) — Mother Teresa of Calcutta, winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, visited Pope John Paul II Saturday.

The pope's doctors said John Paul's life could not be considered out of danger for at least another week to 10 days. They took the 60-year-old pontiff off pain-killing drugs and pronounced him in satisfactory condition but said he could remain hospitalized as long as five weeks.

A bulletin issued by Rome's Gemelli hospital said doctors had him doing deep breathing and leg movement exercises to ward off possible blood clotting caused by extended bed rest.

Valley school elections set for this Tuesday

MAGIC VALLEY — All Magic Valley school districts have scheduled trustee elections for Tuesday with a number holding override elections and Jerome asking approval of a bond issue.

The election essentials by district are:

Twin Falls — Hours noon to 8 p.m. Zone 2 incumbent Byron Snyder is running against write-in candidate Dr. Kevin Lambert. Voting in the Lincoln Elementary School. Zone 5, Eugene Champlin, incumbent unopposed, voting in the Morningside Elementary School. No override levy is asked.

Kimberly — Hours noon to 8 p.m. Voting in the Kimberly Elementary School. Candidates in Zone 1, Keith Jensen, incumbent unopposed, and Zone 3, Steve Grube, incumbent unopposed. A $60,000 override levy is requested. A simple majority is needed on override issues.

File — Hours noon to 8 p.m. Candidates in Zone 5 are Richard Parrott, William Loughmiller and Justin Mills. Voting is in the Hollister Elementary School. Zone 3 candidates are incumbent Board Chairman Alvin Ochsner and Albert Katz. Voting in the Filer High School cafeteria.

Hansen — Hours noon to 8 p.m. Candidates in Zone 4 are incumbent Board Chairman Robert Pettigrove and Gene Walker. Zone 3 candidates are incumbent Gordon Hogan and Marlon Larsen and in Zone 5, incumbent William Allen. All zones vote in the old gymnasium. Hansen seeks a $83,000 override levy and an $18,000 plant facility levy.

Murtaugh — Hours are 1 to 8 p.m. Zone 1 candidates are incumbent Richard Canale, Stanley Earl, Sharon Crossman and Debra Allweave. Zone 2 candidate is incumbent Bill Nebeker. Both zones may vote in the Murtaugh City Hall and the Larry Adams home.

Three Creek — Hours 2 to 7 p.m. In the Three Creek School, Zone 2 candidate is incumbent Nancy Brackett, unopposed.

Jerome — Hours 8 a.m. to noon. Zone 4 candidates are Cecil Patterson, Ben Hoskins, Joe Skaug, Brent Peterson, Tom Barnes and Susan Gunning. Zone 3 candidate is Ben Ness. Jerome also has a $50,000 school bond issue.

Rolling places are the Jerome High School gymnasium; the Bill Emerson residence, 5 miles west of Jerome; and the Gale Van Tassel residence, 16.5 miles west, 12 miles north of Paul.

Valley — Hours 1 to 8 p.m. Zone 4 candidates are incumbent Keith Husting and Judy Holland; Zone 2 Berwin Mussman, unopposed. Both zones vote in the Valley High school.

Gooding — Hours 1 to 7 p.m. Zone 3 candidates are Michael Arkosh and Helen Molchan. Zone 2, Walter

Outlook murky for once-in-a-decade shuffle

Reapportionment to redraw political puzzle

By LARRY WISHER
Times-News Staffer

TWIN FALLS — The prospect of new politicians may not thrill some people.

But Idaho could end up with more after the Legislature reapportions legislative districts this summer. One plan is to increase the present 35 districts to 36 or 37 and thus the number of lawmakers.

Of the state's 44 counties could shrink to 23 or 30 — a prospect much harder to digest for many of Idaho's independent residents.

Those are two suggestions being bandied about in the murky waters that cover reapportionment at this stage.

Such solutions to redistricting are a response to a potentially explosive situation that could lead to head-on fights by 1982 between the state legislators in the 1982 election, and other problems.

The special legislative session should begin peacefully enough July 7. The special session will be the vote in the state on redrawing district lines. Busy legislators had hopefully spending only two weeks or less in Boise in the hot month of July.

Until then, one person's idea is almost as good as another's.

"Where am I going to go (for more population)," Rep. Vard Chaburn, R-Albon, asks you before you can ask him.

His district, 26, falls about 3,600 people short of the population needed to meet the state average for the 1980s. Districts must be adjusted after each census to make their populations roughly the same. Parts of Idaho grew much faster than others between 1970 and 1980, causing unequal representation; some areas even shrank.

Chaburn's district for example, grew less than District 21 to the north.

For the first time, Minidoka County squeaked ahead of Cassia County in population.

Ten years ago, Chaburn and fellow Cassia County legislators robbed two voting precincts from Minidoka County to fill their quota.

"The most compatible, of course, is an area of trade, would be those just across the Snake River," Chaburn said last week, eyeing that area again.

The town of Heyburn is now split between districts 21 and 26. Some residents want to be in one district, he said.

However, picking up more of that territory would still leave Chaburn short, and he concedes that an attempt to reach farther north — to the cities of Paul and the Mindoka County seat of Rupert — would be impossible to sell.

In fact, Mindoka County residents want back those two precincts stolen 10 years ago, according to Rep. Steve Antone, R-Rupert.

"People around here really want to get Heyburn and Emerson back. Maybe Twin Falls (County) could give up some of theirs," he suggested. "Or they could go east to pick up Oneida (County)."

But Chaburn sees problems in every direction.

"Anyplace you go that takes some people out of one district and puts them in another, you're an ogre."

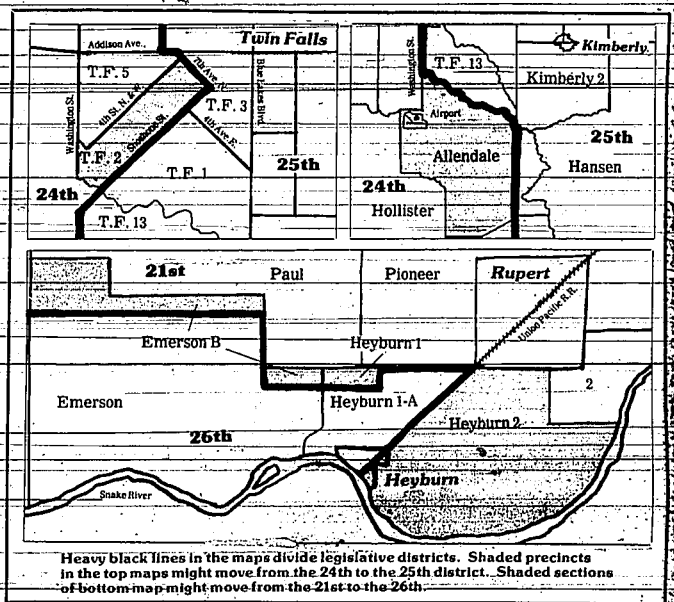

Most legislators in the region said the biggest problems are not in south-central Idaho, however. And those problems will probably have to be worked out first, they said.

"I don't think there are going to be significant differences so much as in Boise, the southeast part of the state and up in the Coeur d'Alene area," House Speaker Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls, said.

Those will have to be worked out first and then we'll see how that shake things around in areas such as ours."

A number of potentially explosive issues are at stake in reapportionment:

- The home turf of sitting legislators, whose districts could be swallowed up by others.
- Compliance with the one-man, one-vote principal laid down by the U.S. Supreme Court.
- The wrath of residents who may be shifted to a new district or forced to remain in a district against their wishes.
- Increasing urbanization of the state that threatens the rural makeup of the Legislature. Chaburn and two other legislators said their biggest concern was to keep urban influence from gaining at the expense of rural areas.
- Domination of reapportionment by the Republican Party majority, which can draw lines to benefit the party's interests.
- Compliance with a guideline requiring reapportionment on the basis of a "rational state policy" as opposed to gerrymandering, which can be challenged in court.

If the problem of head-to-head contests arises in south-central Idaho, there would be few easy solutions.

One District 22 legislator, Donald Steen, R-Citrus Ferry, has said he does not plan to run for re-election in 1982. Rep. Mack Nelbour, R-Paul, said he had planned to step down but now is not sure.

Sprinkler plan is tops on Twin Fall's agenda

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News Staffer

TWIN FALLS — A proposed ordinance mandating installation of fire sprinkler systems will be considered by the Twin Falls City Council Monday.

Also scheduled for council consideration Monday are proposed changes in the Twin Falls Master Street Plan.

The council's regular meeting is at 7 p.m. in Twin Falls City Hall. Council members also will hold a public hearing at 4 p.m. Monday at the Mandarin House restaurant in the Blue Lakes Mall.

Fire Chief Bobby Bopp has recommended that the city require fire sprinklers in all new and remodeled buildings exceeding 5,000 square feet. The city staff agrees, claiming the ordinance and continuation of existing growth patterns could allow postponement of fire department expansion for 10 years.

The fire department's maximum response capability, using on- and off-duty firemen, allows the pumping of 1,000 gallons of water a minute. City officials said that capacity is adequate to suppress fires in structures of about 5,000 square feet. About 35 percent of the buildings in Twin Falls do not exceed 5,000 square feet, officials said.

Alternatives outlined by the city staff include increasing the fire department's staffing and pumping capability. A second alternative would involve informing building permit applicants that the city is not equipped to fight fires involving structures larger than 5,000 square feet.

Proposed changes in the Master Street Plan involves the addition of a limited access arterial around the city's north and west sides, commonly called the "Belt Route." The route, a means of bypassing the city, is compatible with state plans for future linkage with U.S. 93.

Another proposed change in the Master Street Plan would permit connection of Pole Line Road's east end to the "Belt Route" by way of Carriage Lane. The change would allow direct access from the Amalgamated Sugar Co. factory to the Perrine Bridge, according to the city staff, and also would serve commercial and industrial areas between Orchard Drive and Fourth Avenue East.

A third change in the plan would designate widths of 48 feet for a number of collector streets instead of the 34 feet width implemented previously. The additional width would accommodate more traffic and would enhance safety, the city staff said.

Crash kills two Rupert girls

RUPERT — Two Rupert teenagers died early Sunday in a one-car accident near Rupert.

Minidoka County Coroner Joseph Larsen said Monica Pride, 16, and Jenni Dryden, 15, were pronounced dead at the scene of the accident.

According to information provided by Larsen and Minidoka County Sheriff's deputies, the victims apparently drowned when the car they were riding in rolled over into a canal.

Larsen said the two girls were trapped in the vehicle.

The accident occurred at 3:30 a.m., one mile southwest of Rupert on a county road.

Newlyweds in 3-car bash

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Police are recording a three-car collision involving a newlywed couple and their best man as a strange way to start a honeymoon.

Police said two passengers in Vickie's car, Tim Chacon, 20, and Vickie Chacon, 18, both of Kimberly, had been married Friday and Rivera served as best man.

Ironically, a routine check with the National Crime Information Center's computer showed Rivera was wanted in Pueblo, Colorado, on a contempt of court. He was arrested and was being held at the Twin Falls County Jail Saturday in lieu of a $10,000 bond.

Police also cited Stough for driving while intoxicated.

Hookup fees on hold

BOISE — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission will hold a rehearing Wednesday on hookup fees for new space heating and air conditioning.

The commission Feb. 9 adopted a $50 charge for each kilowatt of line capacity installed in new homes and businesses. The charge also applies to the conversion of existing property for electric heating and air conditioning.

The order also applies to electric water heaters over five kilowatts.

The measure is unrelated to declining block rates for electricity announced this week by the commission, but would further add to costs of building new homes or converting older ones to electric heat.

Two petitions for rehearing were filed with the commission March 2, one from a Boise heating and air conditioning firm, said its business would be reduced if the fee were implemented, and also challenged the order on energy conservation grounds.

The order was aimed at reversing the trend toward electric space heating in favor of natural gas. But the petition noted many rural homes would use imported oil if electricity were made too expensive.

A petition from Idaho Power Co. called the fee discriminatory and said it should accompany a system of energy credits to reward home conservation measures such as added insulation.

The rehearing Wednesday begins at 9:30 a.m. in the IPUC hearing room, 472 W. Washington Ave. Boise. Persons wishing to testify should contact the commission attorney in the hearing room.

Booster club makes appeal for Kimberly field repairs

KIMBERLY — A delegation of 16 Kimberly Booster Club members appealed to the Kimberly School Board Wednesday night to repair and improve the school athletic field.

They said the field, which was built last year, is uneven, full of holes and dangerous for athletic activities.

School Board Chairman J.H. Smith said an inspection will be made Tuesday before a special meeting and the board will make a plan for repairs. He said work was donated and apparently in a hurry to meet fall work schedules, the ground was not adequately wet down and packed.

Plans were made to move equipment and supplies into the new elementary school addition on May 27 with student help. The building, under construction since last year, is not yet accepted by the district.

Smith said it is complete except for a "punch list" of items that need adjustment and finishing work.

The board had planned originally to be in the new facility by January of this year but construction delays have prolonged completion.

Mediators try hand in Jerome teacher talks

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

JEROME — Mediation in the stalled Jerome teacher-contract talks begins Monday.

Negotiations between the Jerome Education Association and the Jerome School Board reached impasse April 21. Most of Jerome's 120 teachers walking off their jobs the next afternoon. Jerome schools had to close early because of the one-day protest.

At 4 p.m. Monday, Tom Curdie of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service will seek modified contract proposals from both sides. Friday, Board Chairman Alvin Chojnacky and JEA negotiator Craig Ainsworth said they were planning to be flexible in Monday's talks.

Primarily, only teacher salaries remain unsettled after the last year's agreement. The board and the administration have tried to reach an agreement.

Agreement is close concerning leaves of absence, grievance procedures and fringe benefits; negotiators for both sides say.

"Really, we can probably compromise and settle very easily on all of these items except the salary schedule," Ainsworth said of the JEA's proposal.

Monday's mediation will be conducted mostly during closed sessions except for brief periods required for the negotiators to take formal action such as agreeing on mediation procedure.

The last salary schedule proposed by the Jerome School Board amounts to about a 5.6 percent increase over the 1980-81 contracts.

Board negotiator Robert Gould of Education Consultants of Pocatello offered the teachers a 4-percent increase in base salary, but said increments for experience and fringe benefit increases would result in the average teacher's income increasing by seven percent.

The JEA has proposed an overall 12-percent salary increase.

As well, the JEA wants the board to adopt a new salary schedule that would give larger wage increases to teachers with experience and longevity in the district than to young teachers.

Ainsworth said the goal of increasing top teacher salaries more than base salaries is "to entice more experienced teachers to stay with our district rather than moving somewhere else for better pay."

"We're saying, 'Give us a 12-percent increase in new money and we'll stir it around in a new salary schedule,'" Ainsworth said.

Base annual salary for beginning Jerome teachers this year is $11,005. Top teacher salaries are about $17,000 a year.

But school board members say raises above what they have already offered are going to be hard to find in the district's tight budget. Board members claim their last offer already requires taking $130,000 from the year-end cash reserve to supplement money allocated to Jerome by the state Legislature.

"Right now, all I can say is that the board is waiting for mediation and we hope to get things settled as soon as possible," Chojnacky said. "As far as any compromise on our part, we'll have to wait for mediation. We may be able to move a little."

Non-salary items being negotiated and the status of each are as follows:

- Fringe benefits. Agreement is close following the board's last offer to provide individual health, dental and life insurance. The cost of this package has been negotiated to within $2 per staff member. Much of this is totally new.
- Grievance procedures. How staff members' individual problems or complaints are handled through a chain of command is close to settlement.
- Personal sick leave. Close to agreement.
- Sick leave bank. The two sides are relatively far apart on this proposal to allow individuals to donate their sick leave to a community pool to aid faculty who miss school for long periods. However, both sides agree there is a great deal of room for compromise.
- Professional leave. Normally granted by the school board on an individual basis, the JEA has requested one day of guaranteed professional leave per staff member.

Sales signs return

Wendell sidewalk ads receive OK

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

WENDELL — Sidewalk signs will once again be seen advertising special store sales along Wendell streets.

Representing himself and the Wendell Chamber of Commerce, Everett Winslow of the Wendell Department store appealed in the Wendell City Council Thursday night to allow a variance in the city's ordinance banning signs from sidewalks.

"I don't think (the signs) would look that bad," Winslow said, explaining with photos and data how the two-sided signs were economical and effective advertising.

"They make a business look like it's open," Winslow said. "It looks like the city's got something going."

In an effort to control the increasing number of street and sidewalk signs, the council decided last March to enforce the ban on all these signs, both non-profit and commercial.

Admitting he may have gone overboard with too many signs before, Winslow said his business depended on the customer traffic the signs drew in. He estimated 50 percent of his business is from out of town.

After a lengthy discussion, the council decided to grant a variance, allowing each Wendell business one sign per street boarding that business. Sign width must be limited to three feet.

The council also granted a request from Wendell merchants to permit a sidewalk sale on May 31 and August 1.

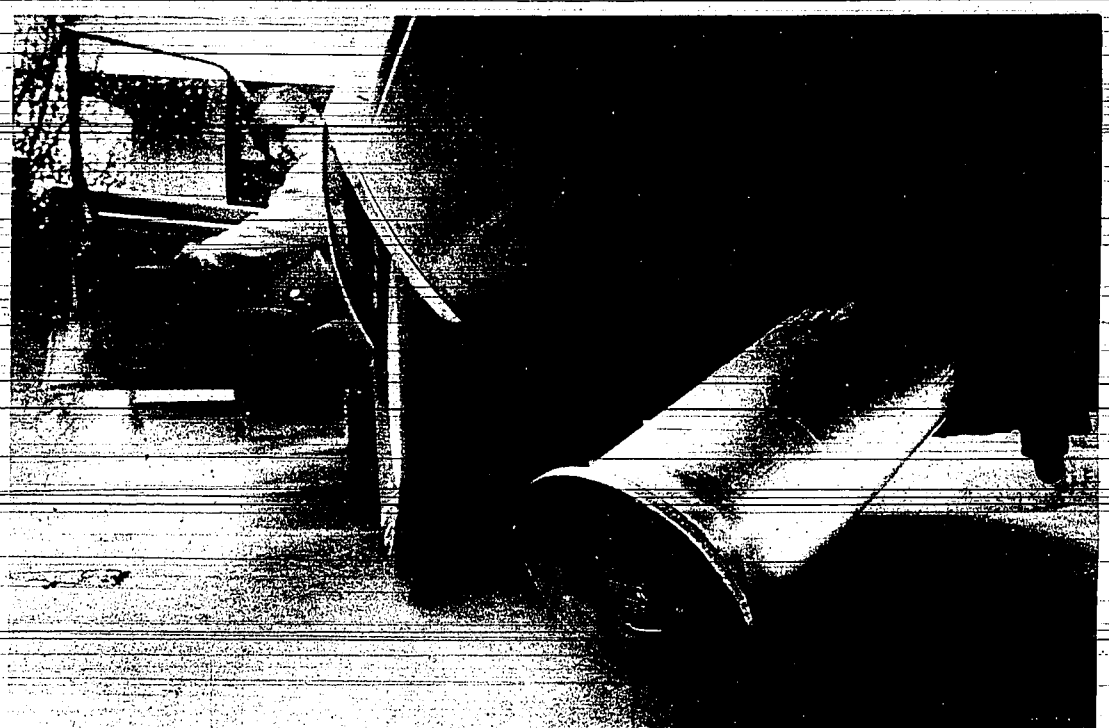

In other action, the council held a public meeting on a proposed dog ordinance which would allow immediate destruction of unlicensed dogs running loose within Wendell city limits.

"I'd hate to have them killed right away," Winslow said, suggesting that increased fines for claiming impounded dogs might be an effective alternative.

Councilman Grant Zollinger said the proposed ordinance was fashioned to reportedly eliminated the town's loose dog problem.

"There are no more dogs running loose in Payette, but there are a million in this town," he said.

A hearing on the proposed dog control ordinance was postponed until the next City Council meeting.

Bob Sewell of Gooding demonstrates his 'Smog Eater,' the auto pollution control device which he designed, perfected and now has patented

Gooding man says 'Smog Eater' quells vehicle fumes

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — One thing Bob Sewell hates most is following a diesel truck.

"All I get in my air conditioning is smog," he says.

To eliminate that annoyance, the Gooding man has worked endlessly the last seven years and has invented what he thinks is an effective and economical solution he calls "the Smog Eater."

"Sewell" as he is designated and patented a cylinder of chemical pellets which, when attached to the end of an auto exhaust pipe, absorbs emission fumes.

Although he and his wife and one of their two sons are deaf, Sewell does not consider himself handicapped as an inventor. Discussing business by telephone with the help of son Bob Jr., is slower and more inconvenient than a regular conversation, Sewell said. But basic communication is not prohibited.

Most inventions, Sewell explained, either do not do what they claim to be able to do, or they have no great market value. This makes it difficult to convince potential buyers of the Smog Eater's efficiency.

When he lived in Los Angeles as a child, he began experimenting with filters and chemicals, tinkering with anti-smog ideas.

In 1974, Sewell said he awoke from a dream about the Smog Eater, jumped out of bed at 4 a.m. and jotted down details of the concept.

Since then, Sewell said, he has been nearly obsessed with the project, often trying his family's patience.

"It interested me that some chemicals would absorb smoke," Sewell said. "The cylinders are filled with five chemicals in five different types of pellets. I fixed them in the proportion they work best."

Patented in April 1979 as the High Temperature Gas Filtering Device, the invention is adaptable to all vehicles, from motorcycles to Sewell's pet peeve, the diesel truck.

It wipes out hydrocarbons 50 to 75 percent, nitrogen oxygen 90 percent and carbon monoxide 98.6 percent," Sewell said. "It has passed all tests so far."

According to minor tests done in Boise, the disposable, refillable inside chemicals have an estimated 20,000 hours of motor life and are more effective than catalytic converters.

The cost of Sewell's invention is estimated at $15 to $10, compared to $75 to $300 for a catalytic converter.

When slipped onto his station wagon's exhaust pipe for a demonstration, the car ran quieter. As the engine was accelerated, the inventor held his shiny seven-pound cylinder firmly as the exhaust flowed through it. When he removed it, the end held to the tailpipe smelled like the foul exhaust, while the other end of the foot-long device smelled like mild laundry soap.

Despite family requests to slow down after a heart attack two years ago, Sewell is still a workhorse, devoting all his time to promotion of his invention.

Since marketing costs are prohibitive for Sewell to handle alone, he is looking for someone to sponsor his product's testing and advertising.

After writing letters to the 50 state governors and a wide variety of auto, oil and muffler companies, Sewell has built a thick portfolio of positive and encouraging replies. He plans to demonstrate it this fall in Chicago.

Sewell said he is not overly concerned with the possible wealth his invention may bring. Keeping the earth safe for plants, animals and humans is his main concern, he says.

Moving across street costs councilman job

HAGERMAN — Sometimes just moving across a street can mean major changes for people.

When Hagerman City Councilman Bruce Bothwell recently decided to move from the south side of Valley Road to the north side, he found that it would place him outside the city limits and in violation of state law.

Idaho statutes require city councilmen to live within their town's city limits.

Consequently, Bothwell was forced to resign Friday, the day his family packed up and moved 600 feet across Valley Road.

Until that time, the 30-year-old house builder — was the councilman's newest member — had been interested to fill Bill Stinemates' council seat when Stinemates was chosen to replace a retiring Mayor Dean Holt.

Tuesday night, the City Council will probably consider a replacement for Bothwell. As Mayor, Stinemates will nominate a candidate from the north end of town to fill his old council seat, but final appointment is left to the remaining five councilmen.

"I had a good time on the council. It's a great bunch of people and I'm still more than willing to help out, even though I don't technically live in town anymore," Bothwell said Friday.

Bothwell said he was disappointed more Hagerman residents didn't attend the council meetings during his term in office.

"What Hagerman needs is more community involvement — people getting interested in the doings of the town," Bothwell said.

"Hagerman is primarily a retirement town with a couple of new industries," he continued. "It's going to grow quite a bit in the future."

JEROME COUNTY MARRIAGE LICENSE — William Joseph Colson of Twin Falls and Julia Louise Nutsch of Jerome.

DIVORCES GRANTED — Michael A. Butler from Toni Butler; Michael H. Allen from Jayne L. Allen.

COURT — Twin Falls Feed and Ice Co. filed suit May 7 in 5th District Magistrate Court alleging Gary D. and Gertrude E. Bothor of Jerome, owe them $2,816 for merchandise purchased. Lawyer fees of $900 and court costs are also sought.

COURT — Central Fidelity Bank of Richmond, Va., filed suit May 8 in 5th District Magistrate Court against Charles and Linda Pratt, of Rupert. The bank repossessed a 1976 van belonging to the Pratts, which they allege leaves a debt, encumbrance owing of $2,902 plus interest. Cost of the suit and a lawyer fee of $1,000 are being asked for.

COURT — Thomas Handy filed suit May 6 in 5th District Court against Dave Lake and Dan Odium, both of Challis. Handy claims he did not receive wages for three weeks of logging for Lake.

The record showed Lake paid Odium the wage, who then, without Handy's consent, allegedly paid a promissory note he co-signed with Handy. As a result, Handy alleged this caused felony charges of insufficient check funds to be brought against him. Handy was held in the Jerome County Jail for several weeks and is now at the North Idaho Correctional Institution at Cottonwood for 120 days. Handy seeks $75,000 for compensatory and punitive damages, three times his wages totaling $5,000, lawyer fees of $5,000 and costs of the suit.

Idaho capital moves into Lincoln County

SHOSHONE — Lincoln County is the location of Gov. John Evans' Capital for a Day Wednesday.

Evans family rests at home

By LINDA CATES
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — Karen Evans, wife of John Evans Jr., is resting at home today following the ordeal involving the attempted kidnaping of her husband at her home on Friday.

Mrs. Evans, who is six-months pregnant, climbed through a rear window early Friday to get help for her husband who was being held at gunpoint in their living room.

Her husband is the son of Idaho Gov. John Evans.

Last night, Lola Evans, the governor's wife, stayed at the Evans home. She told the press Saturday afternoon that her daughter-in-law was not feeling well and that the family had changed their plans to go out of town for the weekend because of Karen's condition.

Meanwhile on Saturday, the Cassia County Jail was holding three new prisoners — suspects in the attempted kidnaping.

"They seem to be depressed," said Cassia County Deputy Lamar Hurst. Russell Piper, 21, Charles Lopez, 21, and Bryan Spurgeon, 22, all of Burley, face identical charges of first degree kidnaping, first degree burglary, aggravated assault and use of a firearm in the commission of a felony. Hurst said the suspects are in individual cells. They may be released from their cells for exercise in the jail garage for a maximum of five hours per week, but Hurst said they have not requested to do so.

"I am not allowed to talk about the case with them," said Hurst, who added that he was acquainted with Lopez prior to the arrest.

Hurst said he had talked with Lopez several times because Lopez had been a police reservist for the Burley police department.

Daniel convicted of manslaughter

GREEN RIVER, Wyo. (UPI) — A seven-woman, five-man jury found Alvah Richard Daniel Jr. guilty of involuntary manslaughter in the stabbing death of a Rock Springs college teacher.

The jury, which returned the verdict late Friday, acquitted him on all other charges.

Daniel, 26, of Magna, Utah, was visibly shaken by the Sweetwater County District Court panel's verdict.

Daniel had admitted stabbing Helen Hay Bunning, 39, but claimed he did so accidentally in an uncontrolled reaction to a chemical irritant she sprayed into his face as the two sat in his car in a Western Wyoming College parking lot.

Daniel was charged with first-degree murder, felony murder in the commission of a robbery, felony murder in a sexual assault attempt and kidnaping in the woman's Sept. 17, 1980, death.

Daniel's wife sat silent in the courtroom with the couple's two young children as the verdict was read.

In statements to police Daniel had said he asked Mrs. Bunning into his car to discuss a college course. He said the woman apparently panicked and sprayed him with the chemical after he drew a knife from his pocket to trim a hangnail.

Both the woman's mother and her husband testified earlier that Mrs. Bunning was extremely conscious of the threat of sexual assault or other harm, and that she had carried a chemical irritant on a keychain. They maintained she never would have voluntarily entered a stranger's car.

Screening slated at Wendell

WENDELL — The Wendell kindergarten will hold a pre-school screening Monday.

The screening will include a check for speech development, vision and individual testing. Parents of their children's birth certificates and health and immunization records.

Results from the screening and kindergarten plans will be discussed with participating parents.

For an appointment, call the Wendell Elementary School at 536-6611.

Brennan to outline new laws

JEROME — State legislative changes benefiting Idaho businessmen will be discussed at a Jerome merchants meeting Tuesday.

Idaho Retailers Association President Tim Brennan of Boise will speak to the Jerome Chamber of Commerce merchants at 10:30 a.m. at the Fireside Restaurant.

"Mr. Brennan wants to talk to the merchants about successes in the Idaho Legislature, what has been done and how it will help the businessman," said Chamber Secretary Ethel Nelson.

Spencer Kimball undergoes surgery

SALT LAKE CITY, (UPI) — Mormon Church President Spencer W. Kimball, 86, was in satisfactory condition Saturday following surgery to implant an electronic heart pacemaker.

Dr. Earnest Wilkinson, Kimball's personal physician, said the pacemaker implant was an "elective" procedure which Kimball had contemplated for some time.

"President Kimball has a history of heart disease and the implantation of the pacemaker is simply a precautionary measure to improve the function of his heart," said Wilkinson.

Wilkinson said implanting a heart pacemaker is a "relatively minor procedure." Kimball was expected to be out of the hospital and back on a normal work schedule within a week.

News briefs

Evers represents Gem State

WENDELL — A Wendell High School junior recently returned from the 30th National 4-H Commodity Marketing Symposium in Chicago.

Jerry Evers represented Idaho at the symposium where he received a state winner pin for his marketing project. Evers worked with his father and brother in raising the Green Giant Co. He also entered the wheat contest although the sweet corn contest and kept records of expenses and market fluctuations.

"I have learned, through communications with others from around the United States, that there are no bounds to the scope of commodity marketing," Evers said after the April 26-29 symposium. "No matter what you do in this (4-H) program, it involves you. And it does not have to cost you anything because you can do an excellent project by just studying markets and charting their changes."

Open house set for Shaud

JEROME — Retiring 5th District Magistrate Court Judge Russell Shaud will be honored with an open house Tuesday.

Shaud will retire June 1 after serving nearly 30 years on the bench in Jerome County. Prior to becoming the county's first magistrate Judge 10 years ago, Shaud served as a justice of the peace, city judge and county probate judge.

The open house is scheduled from 3 to 5 p.m. in the district courtroom of the Jerome County Courthouse. Hors d'oeuvres, cake and refreshments will be served during the casual ceremony which is open to the public.

Limit set on fireworks sales

JEROME — Fireworks sales in Jerome County this summer have been limited to a three-week period.

Following a brief public hearing, the Jerome County Commissioners passed an ordinance Monday limiting fireworks sales from noon June 15 to midnight July 5. No one other than the county commissioners attended the hearing.

Commission Chairman Mel Grindstaff said the fireworks ordinance was ordered to curtail noise, more than a month prior to Independence Day celebrations.

In other action Monday, the county commissioners tentatively approved a road easement for the city of Jerome.

Mayor Marshall Everheart has been seeking road access at the west end of the Jerome County Fairgrounds needed to complete a land exchange agreement involved in establishing the city's new sewer plant.

In this agreement, the city must provide access to property owned by D.C. Fuller immediately west of the fairgrounds. Fuller's property was isolated when land was acquired for the newly completed sewage treatment plant.

"We are having papers drawn up for this easement, and it should be officially approved at our meeting Monday," Grindstaff said.

439 in Twin Falls graduating class

TWIN FALLS — The top 10 seniors of the Twin Falls High School 1981 graduating class are announced. There are seven valedictorians, all with 4.0 or straight A averages, and three salutemans with 3.9 grade-point averages. Baccalaureate services will be held at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in the high school gymnasium for the 439 graduating seniors. Bob Clark, pastor of Christ Covenant Fellowship, will speak. Commencement exercises will be held at 8 p.m. May 22 in the Bruns Stadium with State Rep. Ralph Ormstead of Twin Falls as the speaker.

The valedictorians include Bill Atkinson; Patty Gabica; Matthew D. Meyer; Lynette Pool, Douglas Price, Barbara Rahe and Teresa Woods. The salutemans are Susan Shannon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Shannon; Steve Harris, son of Ray and Shirley Harris, and Janet Stalley, daughter of Jack and Donna Stalley.

Atkinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale B. Atkinson, played varsity basketball, was a National Merit finalist and has received a state scholarship. He plans to attend the University of Idaho and major in engineering. Gabica plans to major in music at Boise State University. The daughter of Hank and Pat Gabica, she belongs to Madrigals, choir, Marching Symphonies and Pep Bands as well as the wind ensemble, Symphonette, Chris League and National Honor Society. Meyer, son of Marjorie J. Meyer, is president of the National Honor Society and the Fish and Game Explorer Scout post. He was a student senator, was Elks Lodge teenager of the month and attended the Intermountain Science and Humanities symposium. He plans to major in mining engineering at the University of Utah.

Pool plans to major in pre-medicine at the University of Utah. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Pool is president of the French club, vice president of Interact, belongs to the National Honor Society and International Club. Price was manager of both the varsity basketball and football teams, participated in golf and bowling and was a Boys' State delegate. The son of U.S. and Audrey Price, he was Student Body Supreme Court Justice, student senator, chairman of the city council's Youth Advisory Committee and a national merit finalist. He plans to major in engineering at Utah State University.

Rahe, the daughter of Don and Ruth Rahe, plans to attend the University of Idaho to major in pre-medicine. She belongs to Symphony, Marching and Pep Bands and wind ensemble. She is band vice president, Outdoor Living Association secretary, student senator and belongs to Girls League and National Honor Society. Woods, the daughter of Edwin and Alyce Woods, plans to major in engineering at the University of Idaho. She is student body vice president, was Junior class president, student senator and cheerleader. She has won the Optimist Young American, Soroptimist and Hugh O'Brien citizenship awards as well as lettering in volleyball and basketball. Harris belongs to the National Honor Society, was named to Who's Who Among American High School students and plans to major in electrical engineering at the University of Idaho. Shannon was Interact club treasurer and belonged to Republican society. Selecting and Arranging Furnishings by Jo Ann Rose

ACCESORIES MAKE THE HOME

In planning your furnishings be sure and budget some for accessories. The harmonized accessories who buys furniture and leaves no money for accessories will complain that her rooms look bare and unfinished and indeed they are, because this is where individuality in decorating shows.

Thorough planning insures the right thing at the right time. Never rush to get everything at once. Buying accessories and single accent pieces of furniture should be a year-round pleasure.

Your accessories should be lovingly bought to complement your furniture. Never buy certain items just because they are the latest. It is pleasing just for the signature of the artist. Pictures and accessories are personal and should be purchased only if you intend to display them. If they don't complement your furnishings they will end up packed away and your investment could have been spent on something that would contribute to the overall beauty of your home.

If selecting accessories is your problem then let us assist you. "REMEMBER HOME BEAUTY IS OUR BUSINESS" . . . our only business.

Valley happenings

Centenarian to be honored

TWIN FALLS — Walter R. Priebe, pioneer businessman in Twin Falls, will be honored on his 100th birthday May 23 with an open house at his home, 165 Seventh Ave. E. from 11 to 5 p.m. May 23. Coming to Twin Falls in 1908, Priebe operated a jewelry store for many years and helped organize the first local sportsmen's group, the Southern Idaho Fish and Game Association, now the Twin Falls Fish and Wildlife Corp. He was actively involved in establishment and maintenance of the fish hatchery now operated by the College of Southern Idaho in Rock Creek canyon in Twin Falls. The open house will be hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Melcher Priebe of Lake Stevens, Wash.; George Priebe and Mary Priebe, both of Seattle; and James Priebe of Twin Falls.

Clover Kids elect officers

TWIN FALLS — The Clover Kids 4-H Club members have elected officers for the current year. President is Jennifer Horst; vice-president, Tanya Robinson; secretary, Liz Allard; historian, Thad Budden, and reporter is Ben Horst Jr. Horst gave a demonstration on trimming goat hooves. Club projects include goats, sheep, veterinary science, rabbits, child care and cats.

Sherry's Posse sets queen contest

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Sheriff's Mounted Posse queen contest begins May 30 at 1:30 p.m. at the Filer Fairgrounds arena. Contestants wishing to compete can get their entries at Peterson's or Macies Boots or by calling 733-8294.

Sorority chapter installs

TWIN FALLS — The Xi Alpha Tau Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority installed officers for the coming year Wednesday night. They include Carol Harper, president; Kathy Hanchett, vice president; Marlene Nelson, recording secretary; Bev Richardson, corresponding secretary; and Bobbi Pyrie, treasurer. A salad bar preceded the meeting. At the May 16 meeting at the home of Leta Reed, a ritual for the Exemplar degree will be held for Jane Merritt, Leslie Hughes and Joann Auger.

Cesarean-birth class Monday

TWIN FALLS — The next Cesarean birth class will be held Monday at 7 p.m. in Magic Valley Memorial Hospital's second-floor conference room. This class is for parents who have recently experienced a Cesarean birth or who expect to in the near future. A one-night refresher course for expectant parents who have previously taken prepared childbirth classes will be held Wednesday from 7:00 to 8:30 p.m. in the second-floor conference room. The course will review breathing techniques and hospital procedures. Participants should wear comfortable clothes and bring two pillows. For more information, call Maggie Machala, childbirth educator, 737-2260.

Christian Radio meet called

TWIN FALLS — A special membership meeting of Christian Radio of Magic Valley has been called for 8 p.m. Monday at the Littletree Inn. Purpose of the meeting, according to Jerry Reinke, president, is to discuss the development of a membership committee of board members and voting members, procedures of nominating board members and financing a Christian Radio station.

Open house set for Hulses

BUHL — Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth G. Hulse will be honored by their children at an open house on May 21 in observance of their 37th wedding anniversary. Hulse married Evelyn Hutchinson in 1934 in Ogden Utah. They have eight children, five of whom reside in Idaho. Two live in Phoenix, Ariz., and one lives in Las Vegas, Nevada. They have 42 grandchildren and 48 great grandchildren. The open house will be held at the Buhl LDS Church from 6 to 8 p.m. Friends and relatives are invited to share this occasion.

Rupert classes set

RUPERT — Mindoka County Community Education students will present an exhibit at East Minico Junior High School Monday. Financial coordinator Rosemary Short announced that items representing more than 850 students will be on display from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Short said the heavy enrollment in this winter's session demonstrates a successful education program. Items on display will include oil painting, calligraphy, candy-making, knitting, judo, and stained glass. Also planned for the evening is a recital of classical ballet, including students in the community education classes of Deborah Grundy and Martell Chandler. The dance recital will begin at 7 p.m. in the auditorium at East Minico. Short has announced plans for summer classes to begin June 8 and run through July 3. Classes will be offered students from first through eighth grade and include courses in reading, math, English, science, and social studies. Interested parents should contact Short at 436-4436.

Bruin girls fall to Capital

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

BOISE — The Capital girls turned in an impeccable performance while the Bruin boys turned loose the power to collect the State A-1 Track and Field Championships Saturday.

Capital's Eagles gave Twin Falls, which entered the event as the slight favorite, a lesson in efficiency: The Eagles won or placed very close to where pre-meet form has placed them while Twin Falls, seeking its fourth straight state title, sustained a series of setbacks in the individual races.

Capital's girls wound up with 83 points against 74½ for the Bruins. The top three places in the boys division stayed in Boise city limits. Borah won with 112, Capital had 90 and Boise 77. Pocatello was fourth with 47, one ahead of the Twin Falls boys.

Borah wasn't certain it could defeat Capital, although Coach Rich Dickson's Lions had won in last week's district.

"I felt after the 800 that we had things pretty much our way," Dickson said.

Twin Falls saw three of its individual defending champions, halfmiler Tammy Crow, miler Julie Yergenson and quartermiler Dina Libert, unscathed. Crow slipped to third place while Libert was relegated to second by Boise's Nancy Steuckle. Both Bruins are juniors.

But the state didn't do much to sophomore Sally Burns who won the 100 and 200-meter dashes to go along with her share of fifth place in the high jump.

"I didn't feel strong," said the double champion after the 200. "I didn't — we didn't — got much sleep last night in the motel... so much going on and the phone ringing all the time. But I'm happy with it. This was what I wanted."

Crow was distressed by her third-place finish in the 800, noting, "It was that two-mile yesterday. That's not an excuse. That's a reason. When I got up this morning my legs were hurting. I thought I'd just ignore it and run but I couldn't."

Libert, who was sixth in the 100 and fifth in the 200, ran two-tenths of a second behind Steuckle in the quarter. She said she felt ill most of the day but most particularly after the quarter.

The 200 was Twin Falls' last big hope to overhaul Capital, which took a 20-point lead by getting the expected one-two in the intermediates. But when Libert ran fifth in the 200, the Bruins were doomed. Capital then ran off with the mile relay to nail it down.

Yergenson, whose year was largely ruined by a foot injury, rallied to get second in the mile.

In the boys division, senior Gregg Scherer came out with an individual title, winning the long jump at 22-5½ to go along with fifth place in the triple jump.

"I don't want it to sound cocky, but yeah, I was confident I could win this. I had beaten the other guys before," Scherer said. "I wasn't worried about one in particular but there were several who had the potential to beat me."

Bruin halfmiler Eric McManaman was knocked to fourth place although he had beaten everyone in the field before and held the best time in the state this spring.

"It's really disappointing," said McManaman after seeing a race-long lead evaporate in the final 10 yards. "But right now I know that I've run the best time in the state and that's more important to me than the title — right now."

Bruin junior Steve Galley closed strong to get third in the quarter and his third leg in the mile relay gave the Bruins a chance to win it. However, Caldwell came from behind to win.

"I fell overall our boys did pretty well," said Coach Jerry Kleinkopf. "We wound up in the top five and I didn't know if we had a chance to do that. I knew we couldn't challenge for the title."

For the girls, however, Kleinkopf wasn't as satisfied.

"Capital simply had a super day. I think they got every point they could have. We, of course, didn't. It seemed like Sally was the only one not affected by this being state. Our junior veterans didn't handle it well. I don't think we had any major collapse but it was just a matter of dropping down a place or two here and there."

Minco's Paul Whitecar was one of those to overhaul McManaman in the stretch, the Spartan taking second place. But the effort apparently sapped him and the Spartan medley relay team went unplaced.

Yogi's girls surprise state with victory

BOISE — Mark down another first for Wendell High School and Coach Elwood "Yogi" Behrens.

The Wendell girls ended a lockout, up and down season to storm easily to the State A-3 Track Championship Saturday. Meanwhile, the Kamiah boys set a precedent of sorts by winning their third straight crown.

"This is our first one," said Behrens holding the girls first-place trophy. "We won it with a small but good group of girls. We have only two seniors and the rest are sophomores, juniors and there's a freshman, too. So I think that means we can make another run at it next year. This will also help in stimulating interest in our girls program. Maybe we'll get a few more out next spring."

Jerome streak halted

By LARRY HOVEY

BOISE — In a division that is used to seeing the Jerome Tigers on top — at least for the past few years — there were some new faces in the State A-2 Track and Field winners' circle Saturday.

The Emmett girls, showing the strength and poise of a senior-dominated crew, ran off with their division with 73½ points while a bunch of Wood River underclassmen hoisted the Wolverines into the runner-up spot with 58. Jerome, seeking its fifth straight district title, finished third with 47½.

In the boys division, Bishop Kelly struggled off the disqualification of a defending champion for a false start to win with 81 points, followed by Madison at 76 and Jerome with 68.

State A-2 Track

The Jerome girls had won the past four state meets while the Jerome boys won in 1979 and 1980.

Emmett dominated the relays and long sprints and hurdles to win the girls division but Wood River got the mile out of its small crew.

Freshman Lisa Bernhagen led all the way in adding the 200-meter championship to her high jump victory of Friday. She added a fourth in the 100. Teammates Laurie Pascoe and Danielle Cherry picked up a one-three finish in the 800 to add 16 more points.

The 800 championship meant success for a three-week experiment at Hailey.

"I wanted to run in the intermediates and mile but they came too close together," said Pascoe who ran her first competitive 800 just three weeks ago. "My coach suggested I try the 800."

That move shoved Pascoe ahead of Cherry who had been winning most of the competition 800s all spring.

"Oh," said Pascoe of relegating her teammate to second, "she doesn't mind. She's a good sport and she works for the team, too."

Cherry helped prove that point minutes later when she came back to anchor Wood River's medley to a champion in 1:58.3. Those five events plus the mile relay accounted for all of Wood River's scoring.

Meanwhile, Jerome was having trouble, particularly in the relays. Emmett took three of the baton events while Jerome had a second, fourth, fifth and sixth.

Wendell rang the curtain down on the rest of the state when Stacie Gabriel grabbed second place in the 200-meter dash. Earlier she'd picked up a fourth in the 100 and anchored Wendell's winning 440-yard relay team.

"The race didn't bother her," Behrens said of the injury that shelved Gabriel much of last year and, after aggravating it by stepping in a hole this spring, slowed her down again. "The more she's run on it the faster she's been going. I think it was just a little matter of confidence but she's over that now."

The Tokian girls won with 46 points while Nampa Christian had 32½ and Salmon River was third at 32. Salmon River blazed to prominence, too, Saturday but lost its chance when its quartermiler fell and didn't qualify for the finals. She'd had the best time coming into the event.

In the boys division, Kamiah piled up 76 points to turn back the challenge of Nampa Christian at 69, not helping

Borah steals Minico's script for state crown

LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

BOISE — "It is the worst feeling in the world."
Minico Coach — Rick — Baumann's words were mirrored by the dejection of the Spartans' bench. Minico was being by its own trademark Saturday night when the Borah Lions rallied for seven runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to take an 11-0 victory and the official Idaho State Baseball Championship.

State Baseball

Minico went to the well one more time in the top of the seventh to score two runs for a 10-9 lead only to find the Lions equal to the task.
With one out in the last of the seventh, Borah's Art Newell stroked a triple and pinch-hitting Matt Weigle drew a walk. Daryl Zeiss tied the game with a single, and moved up to second when Weigle over ran second base and was caught in a rundown.
Gregg Huneitich, who was the hero throughout the journey for Borah, then tied the home team's lead, a bases that just eluded Minico first baseman Gus Christiansen.

For Minico, it appeared the Spartans ran out of pitching but Baumann denied it.
"If there was anyone we wanted in there it was Terrence (Ferrin)," he said referring to his freshman hurler.
"It was a tough place for a freshman to be but Terrence was doing what we wanted him to do, make them hit the ball. But they surprised me, I didn't think they could hit the ball that hard."
Hitting the ball hard was definitely Borah's forte.
Minico helped in the fourth inning with an error and a walk. A single by Mark Jensen and Honecutt's two-run double cut Minico's lead to 6-4.
In the fifth inning, an error and another Jensen single set up a two-run double by Jeff Marker. After the second out Ken Valdez sent Marker across with a single and Zarbinski and Huneitich followed with a triple and double, respectively.

Minico, which had a great offensive night by Christiansen, came back in the top of the seventh when Ken Parkin walked and Christiansen delivered a triple. He scored the go-ahead run when Brock Wimmil's grounder was booted.
Minico had started bulling its big lead in the first inning when Christiansen, who had two triples, a double and a single, drove in the first two runs with a two-bagger and scored on Cliff Hanks' single.
In the second, Dave Garro and Tony Woodson scored on a Lynn VanVorder single set up by a two-run double by Jeff Marker, who pitched the first 2 1/3 innings, ended a brilliant career at Minico with his clutch hitting night.

"He's a class kid and you can't say any more about him," Baumann said.
While Minico, 26-8 for the season, was in the depths of depression, Borah, now 21-5, was whooping it up. The Lions won the game without head Coach, Bill Weigle, who was in Moscow attending his son's college graduation. The championship duties thus fell to assistant Wil Overgaard.
"I had never been worried if we hadn't done this (rally) three or four times in district and in state," Overgaard said. "It was no problem for me because these guys are just good players."
From a Minico standpoint, athletic director Mike Erling may have summed it up best. "You come out of the tournament second best in state, but you leave feeling the worst," he said. "But these kids know they've had a great year."

In the third-place game, Steve McDonald's third RBI on a squeeze bunt also brought Coeur d'Alene two insurance runs in the 7th inning for an 8-5 victory over Meridian. Meridian closed its season with a 16-17 record and Coeur d'Alene ended with 10-11.
In consolation play, Dave O'Rave pitched a four-hitter for the Nampa Bulldogs to beat Caldwell 11-3. Taking the loss was Caldwell's pitcher, Tom Sawyer, suffering his first defeat of the season after eight wins.
Boise 21 01 2 10 13-9
Meridian 10 00 0 00 0-1
Christiansen, Ferrin (1); Smith (4) and Hanks (4); Honecutt (3); and Smith, W. Huneitich (1); Smith, H.H. - none.

Twin Falls wins state golf tournament by 14 strokes

MARV CLEMONS
Times-News sports editor

BOISE — The wind whipped but the Twin Falls High golf team remained unflappable.
The Bruins won the Class A State Golf Championship by a solid 14 strokes over Lewiston at Warm Springs Golf Course Saturday.
Jim and Dave Rasmussen each fired a six-over-par 78 while Steve Meyerhoeffer, the individual medalist with an even-par 72 Friday, had a 81 and Clay Mecham notched an 83. That gave the Bruins a 320 to go with Friday's 311 for a 631 team total. Lewiston, which trailed by seven strokes after Friday's round, had a 327 Saturday for a 645. Boise and Caldwell tied for third at 648.

"It was a no choke performance," Twin Falls Coach Al Rohweder said after Friday's round. "The kids played smart all the way. We went out and made them (the other teams) catch us."
Saturday was the most wind the Bruins had faced all year, but that may have been part of the winning formula.
"We played more than half of our matches in the wind this year," Rohweder said. "The key was experience. We had a lot of that out there today and it helped. Lewiston surprised me. They played great golf."

Before the start of the round, Rohweder told his foursome to be careful in Saturday's wind.
"I told them to be patient and not overpower the course. They were patient today," the first-year head coach said. "The kids got in a position to dictate the kind of shot they wanted to hit instead of the course dictating runs to them."
While the Bruins' scores increased because of Saturday's wind, the rest of the field was also affected. Chris Fate of Lewiston and Larry Bull of Caldwell had the best score Saturday at 77.

"We've tried to have fun this year," Rohweder said. "You've got to do that because there are enough frustrating times."
Rohweder was an assistant last year to Gary Barker, who left to coach and teach at Grangeville. Last year's golf team was third at state.
Three of the five Bruins graduate this week: Mecham, Gary Cook (who was the alternate at state) and Jim Rasmussen. Rohweder loses five golfers from the entire squad.

Doubles team leads way Gooding cops 1st net title

SUN VALLEY — Highlighted by the doubles team of Bonnie Arkoosh and Stacy Reed, Gooding High captured the Class B State Tennis Championship.

The Senators won seven of eight matches Saturday at the Sun Valley Tennis Club to gain the first tennis crown in the school's history.
While being in the running for the past three years but this time we got it," Gooding High Coach Mike Bezzant said. "Actually, we were in the lead after Friday night and didn't know it. There had been a scoring error" and Moscow received nine points it shouldn't have. It's a good thing the coach from Bishop Kelly discovered the error."
Arkoosh and Reed had to settle for second place in last week's Fourth District tourney but put their play together this weekend to win the state championship with a 64-60 win over Shanna Dishon and Tricia Johnson of Weiser for the title.
"Last year they won the district title but they really jelled this year," Bezzant said. "They played exceptionally well this weekend."
Gwen Reed, Gooding's reigning state champion in the girls singles, fails to settle for second this time around. Chris Schreiber of American Falls, who lost to Reed in last year's state title match, took a close 7-6, 0-6, 7-6 win over Reed late Friday afternoon, sending Reed to the consolation bracket.
Reed came back in the consolation matches by taking Wood River's Becky Bradshaw and Weiser's Mel Sutton of Weiser before defeating Bishop Kelly's Sheri Sarni, 6-1, 6-1.

State Tennis

For second place Gooding's mixed doubles team of Bob Hays and Lon Graves took second place by defeating Moscow's Paul Wiese and Michon Menck 6-3, 6-4.
Hays and Graves lost Friday evening in a 7-6, 3-6, 7-6 heartbreaker to Emmett's Ron Worthington and Susie Wemley. The Senator duo then won over Isaac Sherman and Ann Gotsch of Parma 6-3, 6-1 and Wood River's Jaime Marr and Heidi Bradshaw 7-6, 7-6, 6-3 to make the match against Wiese and Menck.
Wood River captured sixth place in the B Division with the boys doubles team of Mark McGowan and Jeff Heiner taking the consolation title.

Linn-Benton ends CSI's ball season

ROSEBURG, Ore. — Twenty-seven innings of baseball finally caught up to the dying College of Southern Idaho pitching staff.
Defending champion Linn Benton defeated the Golden Eagles 9-6 and eliminated them from the Region 18 baseball tournament late Saturday night.
Coach Jim Walker's pitching staff has been slowly deteriorating for the past weeks and plummeted when ace pitcher Clay Carter was sidelined with calcium deposits in his elbow.
Walker threw all of his hurlers, looking for one that had the right touch, but the only one that did finally ran out of juice.
"Stoh Hershonow, saved the Eagles' one win and made a less closer earlier in the afternoon, but when Walker put him in against Linn-Benton, he couldn't handle it."
"I can't say enough about him in this," Walker said. "He pitched in three games in one day and just pooped out in the end." Walker even went as far as putting Carter on the mound.
"He wanted to give it a try and I found himself in a fourth inning jam. Linn-Benton had the bases loaded with no outs, and had picked up enough momentum to seeming to overcome the Eagles.
But Hershonow came in, struck out two and retired a third with a ground out to help Linn-Benton's attack. Hershonow, behind some powerful Eagle hitting, breezed through the final inning.

Zoeller leads Colonial event

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) — Fuzzy Zoeller, ignoring his stiff, hurting back, Saturday birdied the eighth and ninth holes and then parred every hole on the back-nine to take a one-shot lead Saturday over Hale Irwin in the rain-delayed second round of the Colonial National Invitational.
The golfers will finish the tournament Sunday with a 36-hole final.
Zoeller, who recently began taking pain-killers for his back, is 97th on the money list this year and expressed some doubt about how his body would hold-up through two rounds Sunday.
"I'm interested in how I'll play 36," he said. "I haven't done it since the back problems started, and cold, damp weather bothers it. I'm hoping for warmer weather, a lot of sunshine."
Zoeller's 4-under-par 136 was a stroke ahead of Irwin, who played only two holes Saturday in finishing his second round after the midday postponement Friday due to a violent thunderstorm.
Tom Kite and Keith Fergus were another stroke back at 138. Tied at 139 were Jerry Heard, Don January and Tim Simpson.
Except for Zoeller, the leaders predicted a wild final Sunday and said anybody, making the cut could win the $54,000 first prize.
"A 36-hole finish is fun because anybody can come from anywhere and win the golf tournament," Kite said. "Somebody way back can shoot a 65 and then another good score and can win in my opinion tomorrow, but I am going to have to start taking advantage of my opportunities."
Saturday's second round, played on wet grounds and in swirling wind, was more of a defensive effort by most of the players. Only four threesomes had finished the round on Friday and the rain-soaked field included 16 tie locations and resumed from those spots on Saturday, starting at midday to accommodate television coverage.
Zoeller, who had not teed-off on Friday, was the only player able to surge back into the lead.
"I had the advantage of playing 18 holes today, instead of just a few," he said. "That is going to keep my fresh for tomorrow."
First-round leader Raymond Floyd faded with a 74 on Saturday, which combined with his opening 68 kept him at even-par 140. Bruce Lietzke, winner of last week's Byron Nelson Classic and the only person eligible for the $200,000 Texas Bonanza, fell apart with a 78 Saturday and missed the cut.

Saturday's best round was turned in by Rick Masengale, a 64 which he said will make him scramble later Saturday. "I checked out of my hotel this morning (thinking he would miss the cut), and now I have to go get a room somewhere," he said.

Pleasant Colony captures 106th Preakness

Pleasant Colony passes Bold Ego (6) and races to finish.

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The scene was Pimlico Race Course, not Churchill Downs, but more than a few observers thought they were watching an instant replay.

Stretch-running Pleasant Colony, once again setting behind the leaders and waiting for an opening, made a move to the outside at the turn for home and blew past stubborn Bold Ego midway down the stretch to score a one-length victory in Saturday's 106th running of the $270,000 Preakness Stakes.

The Belmont Stakes is the only obstacle standing between Pleasant Colony and a Triple Crown, will be run June 6 and trainer John Campo — as usual — says the best is yet to come.

"He's just been playing around," said Campo. "Just wait until he gets to Belmont. Some people said he couldn't do it, some nitwit. But I'm telling you, he was playing around with these horses."

Bold Ego, a sprint specialist who showed a great deal of heart in the final strides, posed a problem for jockey Jorge Velasquez and Pleasant Colony, assuming the early lead and stubbornly holding on through most of the stretch. A few strokes of the whip by Velasquez, however, sent Pleasant Colony ahead to win in the 1:51 1/2 mile test.

In fact, the winner covered the final three-sixteenths of a mile in a record-tying 18 1/8.

"I couldn't get through in the backstretch on the inside," said Velasquez, "so I had to come outside. When I got to the stretch, the leader (Bold Ego) gave me a hard time. Finally my horse put him away at the end."

Pleasant Colony's victory, in a time of 1:54 3/5, set him up to become only the 12th thoroughbred in history to win the Triple Crown. In addition, he became the 59th favorite in a Preakness field to go on and win the race.

A victory in the Belmont will put Pleasant Colony in the lofty company of past Triple Crown winners Sir Barton (1919), Gallant Fox (1930), Omaha (1935), War Admiral (1937), Whirlaway (1941), Count Fleet (1943), Assault (1946), Citation (1948), Secretariat (1973), Seattle Slew (1977) and Affirmed (1978).

"He was just jostling with them," said Campo. "He ran fast, as fast as racehorses can run. He jogs it for fun — he's a genuine racehorse. He's one of the greatest racehorses ever to run in the U.S. He'll win the Belmont."

Pariso, a 70-1 shot, finished a game third under David Aschcroft. A record handle of $4,596,475 for Preakness Day was set on all 10 races.

Pleasant Colony, sent off as the 3-2 favorite, returned $5.00, $3.40 and $2.20. Bold Ego, the second choice at 7-2, paid $4.60 and $4.20. Surprising Pariso, an inconsistent son of the mighty Buckpasser, paid a hefty $17.80 for third.

Pleasant Colony has won three straight races — the Wood Memorial, the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness — and is 5-0 for his career.

The Buckland Farm colt seemed to have this one well in hand from the outset. Velasquez, well aware that he was aboard the best stretch runner of any 3-year-old, was content to pilot his leggy colt to stay well back of the leaders and avoid a frantic early pace.

Riding Pleasant Colony with the precise touch of a Swiss watchmaker, Velasquez eased the colt toward the leaders at the second turn, then veered to the outside to avoid a crowded inside rail.

Jays wins; break scoring, loss skids

By United Press International

American League

The Toronto Blue Jays, victims of Len Barker's perfect game Friday night, were not about to be similarly humiliated Saturday.

So-called batter Lloyd Moseby singled in the first inning and the Blue Jays proceeded to post a 4-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians, breaking a 32-inning scoreless streak and a three-game losing streak.

Jackson Todd tossed a six-hit and Buck Martinez drove in three runs to enable the Blue Jays to rebound from the perfect game defeat.

Toronto pushed across two runs in the third and chased starter Wayne Garland, 2-3, in the fourth on a bases-loaded, two-run single by Martinez.

Alfredo Griffin opened the third with a double, took third on Rick Boscell's sacrifice and scored when Martinez hit a sacrifice fly to left. Martinez raced to second when Joe Cifuentes dropped the ball for an error and scored on Moseby's double.

Yoda, 2-3, who struck out two and walked none, lost his shutout bid in the fourth when Miguel Dilone hit a one-out pinch single, stole second and scored on Jorge Orta's two-out single to center.

Baltimore 7, Minnesota 0

At Bloomington, Minn., Rick Dempsey hit a solo homer and two doubles and Dave Ford pitched seven scoreless relief innings to give Baltimore the victory.

Ford, 1-0, relieved Steve Stone, who left the game after two innings with a tender elbow. It was the second straight time the AL Cy Young Award winner left a game early. He pitched six innings in a 4-2 victory over Texas on May 9.

Jerry Koosman, 1-0, took the loss.

Kansas City 7, Boston 6

At Boston, Willie Alkens and Hal McRae slammed back-to-back homers, highlighting a six-run Kansas City fourth inning and the Royals held on to beat the Red Sox. Larry Gura

4-3, was the winner and Dennis Eckersley, 3-3, took the loss.

Detroit 7, California 5

At Detroit, Lou Whitaker hit a three-run homer and John Wocken-fuss added a solo shot to help the Tigers to their fourth straight victory.

Dave Toub, 1-0, pitched three innings of hitless relief while Kevin Sauter got his third save. Doug Itau made his first AL start and was charged with the loss.

New York 7, Seattle 5

Reggie Jackson highlighted a four-run first inning with a two-run triple and Doug Bird posted his fifth career victory without a loss over Seattle in leading the Yankees to victory at New York. Gary Gray had two homers for the Mariners.

Milwaukee 6, Oakland 5

Cecil Cooper belted a double and triple to drive in two runs and the Brewers nipped the A's at Milwaukee in a game that featured five errors and eight unearned runs. Trailing 5-1 in the seventh, the Brewers rallied to win against reliever Bob Ovechinko.

0-1, on a single by Jim Gantner. Cooper's triple and an infield out by Jim Gantner, which scored pinch runner Marshall Edwards.

Chicago 9, Texas 1

Harold Baines went 4-for-4, scored three runs and ignited a five-run second inning that carried the White Sox to victory over the Rangers at Chicago. Jim Morrison and Bill Almon each drove in a pair of runs in the five-run second inning to help Britt Burns to his third victory in five decisions.

National League

St. Louis 4, Atlanta 2

George Hendrick drove in three runs with a two-run homer and single in leading the Cardinals to victory at Atlanta. Silvio Martinez went 2-3 in going to get his first victory of the season against two losses and Bruce Sutter came on to get the final out and record his seventh save.

Houston 6, Chicago 1

At Houston, Craig Reynolds tied a modern major league record with three triples and knocked in four runs to spark the Astros to victory over the Cubs. Nolan Ryan, 3-1, allowed six hits, struck out eight and walked three in seven innings to get the victory with Joe Sambito hurling the final two innings to notch his second save.

Los Angeles 9, New York 0

At Los Angeles, Ron Cey drove in three runs with his fourth homer in five games and a double and Burt Hooton remained unbeaten by tossing a six-hitter in helping the Dodgers to their sixth straight triumph and handing the Mets their sixth straight loss.

San Diego 2, Philadelphia 1

Terry Kennedy singled home Ozzie Smith with two outs in the ninth inning to give the Padres a victory over the Phillies at San Diego. Singles by Ozzie Smith and Ruppert Jones off loser Tug McGraw, 1-3, and a walk to Gene Richards loaded the bases before Kennedy blooped a single to short left.

John Litterfield, 1-2, was the winner in relief.

San Diego tied the score 1-1 in the sixth on singles by Jones, Richards and Joe Lefebvre. Richards' hit extended his streak to 14 consecutive games.

Expos, Lea drill Giants, 5-0

By United Press International

Unfortunately for Charlie Lea, his Montreal Expos see the San Francisco Giants only six more times this year.

Lea, who pitched a no-hitter against San Francisco in his last start, allowed the Giants only four hits Saturday and rookie Tim Lincecum drove in three runs to lead the Expos to a 5-0 victory at Candlestick Park.

Lea added two more hitless innings to his string before Mike Sadek led off the third with a single. The only other hit by the Giants were singles by Larry Herndon in the fourth, pinch hitter Jim Wolford in the eighth and Darrell Evans in the ninth. Lea struck out six and walked two in raising his record to 2-1.

Montreal scored four runs off loser Tom Griffin, 3-3, in the fifth inning. With one out, Larry Parrish doubled and Chris Speier walked. Griffin struck out Lea, but Raines doubled to score two runs. Rodney Scott singled to put runners on first and third and both scored when Herndon dropped Andre Dawson's fly to left field.

In the ninth, Mike Phillips singled, went to second on a sacrifice by Lea and scored on a single by Raines, who raised his batting average to .365.

Cincinnati 4, Pittsburgh 0

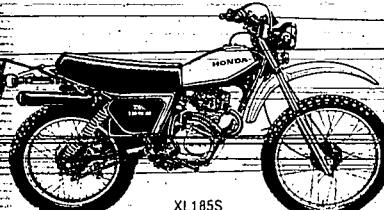

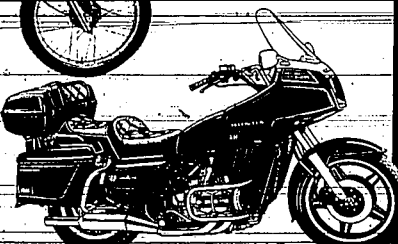

Mike LaCoss pitched a five-hitter at Three Rivers Stadium and four Reds drove in one run each to lead Cincinnati to its fifth straight victory.

LaCoss, 2-1, struck out two and walked none in his first complete game of the season.

Rod Scurry, 1-2, took the loss. Dave Concepcion singled in a run in the fifth inning and George Foster added a sacrifice fly in a two-run fifth.

Ron Oester and Mike O'Berry each cracked an RBI double in the sixth.

FOR LEASE!

Twin Falls Bank & Trust leases equipment and machinery for farming, commercial, industrial, medical and professional purposes. And because we're located here, we understand your individual situation and can help with your specialized requirements.

A few of the advantages of equipment leasing:

- Capital conservation to increase liquidity.
- Increase productive capability while still protecting existing lines of credit.
- An inflation hedge since you commit for constant payments to be made with next year's dollar.
- Rentals are a fully tax deductible expense.
- Leasing can be fitted into the most restricted budget where capital investments for equipment are often impossible.
- Postpones the need for equity financing and thus prevents dilution of ownership.

These are just some of the advantages of equipment leasing. We stand ready to discuss all advantages with you and answer your questions on how leasing can help your company grow soundly. Come talk to us today.

Meyers on top in LPGA tourney

PARAMUS, N.J. (UPI) — Pat Meyers, with five birdies on her last seven holes, shot a career-low, eight-under-par 65 Saturday to share the second-round lead with Alice Ritzman in a $125,000 LPGA tournament.

Ritzman, despite a double-bogey on the ninth hole, had five birdies going out for a 67 to equal her best competitive round. A 29-year-old non-winner from Montana, Ritzman failed in five attempts at qualifying school before earning her card.

Bobby Unser wins Indy pole

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Bobby Unser drastically stepped up the top qualifying rate of the month over 200 miles per hour Saturday and claimed the pole position for the 65th running of the Indianapolis 500.

Unser, a two-time Indianapolis champion, zoomed past the tentative pole sitter, A.J. Foyt, with a four-lap qualifying average of 200.546 mph, the first speed over 200 mph in qualifying since Tom Sneva set track records in 1978.

Unser was joined in the front row by Mike Mosely, driving a Dan Gurney Eagle with a stock block engine. Foyt's speed of 196.078 mph turned in last weekend stood up for the outside of the first row.

Unser, who did not often discuss the fact that his car was one of the fastest in practice this month, tried to low-key his accomplishment.

"It makes no difference where you start," Unser said. "I've been on the front row more than any Indy driver in history. Just being in front is the big thing."

The day's fastest qualification speed came from Sneva, who was rated at 200.691 mph but was placed near the back of the field because he did not take his first time trial attempt in a different car last weekend.

"We weren't ready last weekend," Sneva said of his previous attempt in the 1980s. "That was as fast as that car would go. You change cars and you look like a hero."

Unser's Penske-Racing teammate, 1978 champion Rick Mears, had a no-hit performance against the Toronto Blue Jays on Friday night.

Mears then went out in the Penske backup car, one he had never driven, and qualified the car with an average speed of 193.018 mph.

Mears and Unser joined rookie Bill Ansp in the field, giving the Penske Racing team three cars in the competition.

Gordon Johncock, the 1973 champion, put his car in the inside of the second row with a speed of 195.429 mph, and he was followed by Johnny Rutherford and rookie Josele Garza, who turned in four laps at an average of 195.101 mph.

Rutherford qualified last Saturday. "I just pushed it a little faster and it worked," said Garza, a 22-year-old Mexico native. "This is where it counts, not in practice."

Garza led the nine rookies and three foreigners in the field.—The other foreign drivers were Australians Geoff Brabham and Vern Schuppan.

Garza and Brabham are teammates on the impressive Paach-Garza racing team, which qualified three cars Saturday. Joining the two rookies was veteran Steve Krisloff.

The third row had Alsop, Wally Dallenbach in Mario Andretti's car and Gordon Smiley, another first weekend qualifier.

Dallenbach, in retirement for 1 1/2 years until called to drive the car while Andretti attended the Belgium Grand Prix, will remain listed in the eighth position until Andretti officially takes the car back during carburetion testing Thursday.

"Mario told me to just put her in at 190, but I put a little bit more into it," Dallenbach. "It's a very fine racing machine and if Mario was in it, he should be in the front row."

The field was not filled until 4 p.m. MDT, and only two drivers got bumped in the last hour Saturday. Jim Butek and John Martin were the drivers who were forced out of the field.

The total number of qualification attempts jumped to 65 with Saturday's action, and 38 cars were qualified. The average speed of the tentative field was 199.579 mph—five miles an hour faster than the 185.570 mph average speed of last year's lineup.

The car next to be bumped from the field should weather permit time trials to continue today was the one qualified by Bill Whittington at an average speed of 184.833 mph.

Briefly in sports

Lloyd, Ruzici will meet for Swiss title

LUGANO, Switzerland (UPI) — Chris Evert Lloyd and Virginia Ruzici won their semifinal matches Saturday and will meet today for the Swiss Open Women's Tennis title.

Top-seeded Lloyd took less than an hour to defeat Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia, 6-2, 6-1.

Ruzici, of Romania, had to overcome stiff resistance from Sylvia Hanika, of West Germany, before winning 6-2, 3-6, 6-3.

Pitt signs Sherrill to 5-year contract

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pittsburgh football coach Jackie Sherrill, whose won-loss record is the best in the school's history, has signed a 5-year contract, the university announced Saturday.

Sherrill has led Pitt to a 39-8-1 record during the last four seasons, the highest winning percentage for any coach in the school's history. Last season Pitt finished 11-1, won the Gator Bowl and was ranked second in the nation.

Pitt has appeared in bowl games all four years since Sherrill became coach.

Austin, Jaeger win; other seeds lose

TOKYO (UPI) — Tracy Austin and Andrea Jaeger advanced to the women's singles final in a $200,000 tennis tournament Saturday, but two seeded players went down in the men's singles.

Austin, the 16-year-old No. 1 seed from California, downed Pam Shriver 6-2, 6-3, while second-seeded Jaeger, 15, ousted Bettina Bunge of West Germany 6-0, 6-3.

Austin and Jaeger will meet today for the $30,000 first prize. In the men's singles semifinals, top-seeded Gene Mayer lost to Brian Tichenor 5-6, 6-4, and Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia withdrew from the final set due to an arm injury, giving the final berth to American Bill Scanlon.

Lendl took the first set 6-3. He fell after making a service in the 12th game of the second set when he was trailing 15-40, and lost the set 5-7. He withdrew after he trailed 0-2 in the third set.

Pele honored as Champion of Century

PARIS (UPI) — Brazilian soccer star Pele was presented with a bronze statue Friday night for winning a world-wide ballot of 20 newspapers to find the Sports Champion of the Century.

Pele, 40, who retired two years ago, received the award from officials of L'Equipe, the Paris sports newspaper which organized the poll, before Friday's France-Brazil international soccer match at the Parc des Princes in Paris.

In last July's poll, Pele totaled 178 points, nine more than American track and field athlete Jesse Owens.

Barker's enjoying perfection

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Len Barker "of the Cleveland Indians, still 'flying high' over his perfect game, said Saturday despite Johnny Vander Meer's feat of two consecutive no-hitters would be "unbelievable."

Barker got all zeroes for his pitching performance against the Toronto Blue Jays and loved it.

Friday night, it was no runs, no hits and no Blue Jay runners on base as Barker struck out 11. It was the eighth perfect game in 1981 and the first in 13 years.

"I'm still flying high," he said as he dressed for Saturday's game with Toronto.

"I didn't get much sleep last night. I got a lot of calls and I just took the phone off the hook. Our little girl was sleeping."

Barker, 3-1, lowered his ERA to 1.31. He has two shutouts and three complete games.

Asked if he could duplicate Vander Meer's effort of back-to-back no-hitters, Barker said, "I am always anxious to get out there, but one no-hitter is tough. Two in a row is really unbelievable."

Barker said he felt he was going to have a good game Friday night because of the way he was throwing in the bullpen.

"When I throw good in the bullpen before a game, I know that I am going to have a good effort," Barker said. "All the plays behind me were great. I had good control of my fastball and I was able to get my breaking pitch over."

"This was good for the whole team and now maybe people will realize that the Indians are for real. We can stay with the best."

Toronto announcer Early Wynn, one of seven former Cleveland pitchers in the Hall of Fame, was impressed with Barker.

"The way he was throwing out there I knew that he had a good chance to throw a no-hitter and he did it," said Wynn. "The closest I came to a no-hitter was when I threw eight no-hit innings against Detroit before Fred Hatfield got a hit off me."

The no-hitter was the first for the Tribe since Dennis Eckersley blanked the California Angels May 30, 1979 and the second perfect game for the club. Adrian "Addie" Joss tossed his perfect game Oct. 2, 1908, beating the White Sox 1-0.

"I wasn't around for that one but I bet he (Joss) pitched a hell of a game," Barker said.

Cleveland's Dito Bonaman came close to a perfect game on July 19, 1974, when he faced only 28 batters in no-hitting the Oakland A's 4-0. The only Oakland batter to reach first came as a result of Bonaman's throwing error on a slow grounder.

Bonaman used only 76 pitches to dispose of the A's and Barker threw 103, 84 of them strikes.

In winning, the Indians scored two unearned runs in the first inning and Jorge Orta hit home run in the eighth off of loser Luis Tiant. Tiant gave up only six hits and struck out five.

"I guess if I have to lose I am glad it was to a pitcher that tossed a perfect game," Tiant said. "It is the first time in my life I've ever seen a perfect game and I am glad for him."

India starts quest

New cattle feed sources sought

By SONJA HILLGREN
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Most U.S. government-sponsored research to increase agricultural efficiency is done at the nation's land-grant colleges and universities.

In a new twist, important research will be done in India. With the U.S. Agriculture Department tooling the bill, technology to improve use of agricultural byproducts for cattle feed will be developed by Indian researchers rather than, perhaps, scientists in Ames, Iowa, or Lincoln, Neb.

The department announced recently that a three-year, $108,000 grant was awarded to G.B. Pant University of Agriculture and Technology in Pantnagar, India.

The research is funded under a special foreign currency research program of the Food for Peace law. It provides for financing of scientific research overseas to benefit American agriculture by using U.S. holdings of foreign currencies gained in trade that are not convertible to dollars.

Quentin West, director of the Agriculture Department's Office of International Cooperation and Development, said the goal of research is to lower the cost of producing animals by substituting low-cost ingredients for grain.

A basic problem facing the cattle industry is finding alternative sources of feed that cost less than grain.

Grain producers would like higher prices for their grain, yet at current prices, feed costs for U.S. cattle are expected to be 25 to 30 percent higher than a year earlier, the Agriculture Department estimated this week.

Grain prices and high interest rates offsetting recent higher livestock prices mean producers "may only approach break-even points this summer," the department said in a livestock and meat outlook and situation summary report.

Congress is looking at this problem from another perspective with consideration in the pending four-year farm bill of a new research program to improve rangeland so cattle can be fed longer and more efficiently on grass.

Specifically, the Agriculture Department said, the research in India will explore chemical treatment of wheat and paddy straw to increase their use as animal feeds.

The Indians have been assigned to develop less energy-intensive methods for grinding roughage feed and to come up with better ways to convert roughage feed into pellets so it can be used as a major part of formulated feed.

Controlling Rock Creek pollution

First test for clean-up measures

By STEVE LIEBERMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Only divine intervention can change water to wine, but federal dollars may help make dirty water cleaner.

With about $3 million in federal funds to use during the next 10 years, farmers and government officials began a program last fall to reduce the pollution from agriculture runoff in Rock Creek. With the irrigation season about to begin in earnest, steps taken last fall and earlier this spring will get their first test.

Efforts so far have been focused on one coulee that drains water from about 6,700 acres-as-it-winds-from-the-Twin-Falls-Sun Valley Airport to Rock Creek Canyon near the Amalgamated Sugar Co. factory.

It is longer than most coulees and perhaps dirtier, said Rich Yankey, district conservationist for the Twin Falls Soil Conservation Service office. The water spilling into Rock Creek from the coulee will not be crystal clear this summer, but it may be more cloudy than muddy, he said.

Federal officials are neither angels-nor-miracle-workers. The SCS and Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service administer the program, but they rely on voluntary participation from farmers. Also, the federal funds only pay part of the cost for clean-up measures. The responsibility for cleaning Rock Creek mainly belongs to the farmers.

One of the first farmers to begin taking steps to clean the runoff draining into Rock Creek was Jim Griffiths, who with his three sons farms south of Twin Falls.

Last fall, he and his sons dug a one-acre sediment pond on their farm that will catch and help clean, all the water in the coulee before it reaches Rock Creek. By itself, the pond will ensure that the water entering Rock Creek from the coulee this summer is dramatically cleaner, Yankey hopes.

However, a sediment pond only catches soil washed off farms. One of the goals of the Rock Creek project is to keep the soil from leaving a field in the first place, Yankey said.

As more of those conservation measures are taken, the amount of sediment reaching the Griffiths' pond will dwindle to almost nothing, Yankey said. By then, however, the pond should be nearly filled with topsoil and the Griffiths will have turned the acre of wasteland where they dug the pond into an acre of quality cropland.

A variety of methods are being used on farms along Rock Creek to keep sediment from leaving the fields. Most are simple and unglamorous.

The more water that leaves a field or the faster it runs, the more sediment it will carry, Yankey said. A strip of grass or grain planted at the end of a field will slow water down and allow sediment to settle out before the water drains off the field. A concrete ditch will allow a farmer to apply an even flow of irrigation water and avoid applying more than the field needs.

The Rock Creek drainage includes 290 farms and 45,000 acres. The goal of the project is to reduce the sediment, chemicals and animal wastes flowing from those farms into Rock Creek by as much as 70 percent.

However, even with federal dollars to help defray the costs, the economics of reducing pollution in Rock Creek are questionable for farmers.

Earl O'Harrow, a farmer south of Twin Falls, said he does not expect to live to see his investments in concrete ditches, filter strips and a sediment pond pay for themselves.

He does believe farmers should work to reduce water pollution before they are forced to do it.

Most other farmers seem convinced the long-term benefits of conserving their soil and cleaning the water make the project worthwhile, Yankey said.

That raises another problem, though. There may not be enough federal money to help install conservation practices on all the farms where farmers are willing to put them in, he said.

Empty skies threaten drought across U.S.

By ROBERT LINDERMAN
United Press International

Robert Lee could have taught city dwellers a lot about the menace of an empty sky.

It was the Dust Bowl drought of 1934 that drove him, his wife Martha and their two daughters — one of them my mother — from their Hayworth Okla. peanut and potato farm to the relative safety of a steady income at a Texas munitions plant just south of the Red River.

It took a mild stroke and an early return to return him to his one true love — farming, or rather in those later years, backyard gardening. There, sweating in the heat of yet another Texas dry spell, he talked about the vicious cycle of drought and deluge, of being bound to a profession almost completely dependent on the natural elements.

"A farmer has only God and the future to believe in," he said, stirring up a dust devil with his hoe. "And when God falls him — gives him nothing but cloudless skies and hot winds — there just ain't no future."

On a recent Saturday, the catastrophic balance of forces invisibly shifted. The drought-dry Midwest got its first thoroughly soaking spring rain of the season.

"It wasn't all that much — a series of isolated cloud-bursts, barely enough to dampen the roots of the emerging wheat crops. But it sent many residents of Kansas City gambling about the streets in a spontaneous spring celebration. "Drought-breaking!"

parties erupted on hundreds of screened-in porches about the city.

That's the way city dwellers view a drought — one rain and it's over.

But there was considerably less frolic by the ranchers of Strong City, located in the heart of the Kansas Flint Hills where one knows by instinct that a rainstorm — no matter how heavy — does not necessarily signal the end of a dry spell.

"The boys have got a lot to be concerned about," said Harold Bayer, proprietor and chief cook of Buck's Dine-in & Carry-out, a seven-booth cafe where Chase County ranchers can spend a rainy afternoon eating hamburgers and talking about the weather.

"This little rain will green-up the hills, but it's dry, really dry. The South Fork is more critical. It has a stream, and come July and August, it's going to be tough," he said.

"That's all they talk about — what if the drought continues another year? What if it's as hot as last summer? Last summer, that's pretty much on everybody's minds. They just don't think their herds — their ranches for that matter — can survive another summer like the last one."

"And I'm scared that they are right."

The Summer of 1980 is perhaps the one aspect of the nation's current drought that urbanites can relate to. By various counts, 1,200 Americans died from the heat during those devastating months — most of them in uncooled, shuttered apartments and homes located in cities.

But in the country, the heat exacted another fearful toll that will not be soon forgotten. Corn and peanut crops failed throughout the Midwest and the South. Pig and poultry farms were virtually wiped out by three-digit temperatures. Forests were decimated by lack of moisture.

All told, the heat cost the nation perhaps $30 billion in agricultural damage.

Carl Anderson, agricultural economist at Texas A&M University, says a continuation of that drought — or just another hot, dry summer like the last — could cause an 18 percent increase in U.S. food prices. Tack on an additional $9 in expense for a family buying a shopping cart full of $50 in groceries.

"We need 1981 to be a good crop year," said Texas Agricultural Commissioner Reagan Brown. "We have no real backlog of grain in storage. If we have another drought, it would be terrible, an absolute disaster for this country."

No end in sight

There's every indication that the drought that spawned the Summer of 1980 will continue unabated through 1981. And perhaps longer.

"Drought is a most elusive weather condition when it comes to prediction," said Fred Ostby, director of the Kansas City-based National Severe Storms Forecast Center.

"With drought, you don't know when you are into it until you are already into it, and you don't know when it's finally ended until, well, it's

Walker improving his low profile

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Across Fourth Avenue North is the Twin Falls County Courthouse where Tommy Walker Sr. served for two years as a county commissioner.

Across Shoshone Street is the Mountain Bell Phone Center — his competition.

From a small office at 323 Shoshone St., N. Walker sells telephone systems. They are electronic, computerized and loaded with special features, such as automatic dialing of frequently called numbers and redialing when a line is busy.

"Any business that has more than four phones might profit from owning its own system, Walker said. In some cases, Walker said, he can sell a phone system for the amount a business would pay to Mountain Bell in five years renting a similar system.

There are tax advantages to owning a phone system, too, he said. Walker started — Intermountain Tele-Com Inc. last fall, but he kept a low profile. In fact, he said, it was too low.

He started limited advertising recently because he found people who knew who were in the market for phone systems but did not know he was in business selling them.

He kept a low profile because the company is going to sell more than just phones, Walker said. He did not want to spend money telling people about his company while he could only tell them about one facet of the business.

He plans to offer home security systems and computers, though his plans for some of those products are still being formed, he said.

Walker, retired several years ago after about 30 years as a beer distributor in the Magic Valley. But retirement did not suit the man who has been a county commissioner, American Legion commander, Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce board member, Rotarian and Kiwanian.

"I got itchy feet," he said.

Ad staff joins rival station

TWIN FALLS — The advertising staff at radio station KTLG resigned Monday after all three sales people accepted jobs with rival station KLIK. Bob Miller, who had worked at the station for 10 years, Laura Hendrix-Branch and Jack Chapman said they resigned because of personal and philosophical disagreements with station manager

Dick Ryall. When asked Tuesday about the resignations, Ryall denied the three salespeople had resigned and said they were still working at the station. Charlie Tuma, KLIK general manager, said he hired the three sales people, but stressed that he did not "raid" KTLG. "They called me," he said.

Boise air routing endorsed

HELENA, Mont. (UPI) — The State Aeronautics Commission has endorsed Minuteman Aviation's plan for new computer air service linking Missoula and Boise.

A company spokesman said Minuteman plans to begin offering one round trip daily by the end of the month.

In addition, Cascade Airlines of Spokane told the commission it may expand its service to include Helena, Bozeman and Missoula. Cascade currently is authorized to begin flights between Butte and Salt Lake City June 15.

KETCHUM — A Boise company began a nationwide effort Friday to sell "time-share units" in condominiums in the Ketchum and Sun Valley area.

In the first phase of the project, shares in 100 condominiums will be sold, according to Dennis Clark, vice president of First Idaho Mortgage Corp. A time-share is the right to use a piece of property at a particular time each year. A week during the prime summer or winter season will sell for between $9,000 and $11,000, the company said.

The time-share units will be sold through Silver Birch Vacations Inc. of Sun Valley. As many as 550 condominiums could be included in the program, according to the company.

Bill Britton of Twin Falls has been appointed to the honorary sales council of Northrup-King Co. in recognition of his outstanding sales achievements. Britton is a territory sales manager, covering two states in the Pacific Northwest district, and has been employed by Northrup-King for 15 years.

Laura Jorgans, co-owner of Jerome Floral and Wedding, served as one of the designers at a three-state workshop conducted in Salt Lake City by Teleflora Wire Service. New ideas and designs were presented for participating florists.

John M. Sinclair of Sinclair Shutters in Rupert has received the National Award from the Professional Photographers of America, Inc., at a meeting of the Professional Photographers of Idaho. The award recognizes Sinclair's professional leadership and service. He is the third Idahoan to receive the award and the first since 1969.

Louise Shaddock of Coeur d'Alene has been elected a director of the Bank of Idaho. Currently executive director of the Idaho Forest Industry Council, she is a former secretary of the Idaho State Department of Commerce and Development and was a journalist before becoming administrative assistant to several Idaho political leaders.

Denny Cuppett has returned from a week in London, England. The trip was awarded her by her employer, Oberchain Insurance, where she is office manager and bookkeeper, in recognition of her work over the past eight years. She was accompanied by her husband, Bruce.

Lee Helder, owner of Intermountain Dive Shop in Twin Falls, has been certified as an open water instructor following completion of required training. Helder is now qualified to certify all levels of basic and advanced divers, including assistant instructors.

Emmett Harrison, owner of Theisen Motors, recently received a "Distinguished Service Citation" from the Ford Motor Co. Salt Lake City Division. He was one of five dealers, and the only Lincoln-Mercury dealer, to win the award in the division that includes more than 130 dealers.

Sluggish world grain demand looms for '81

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department, in its first forecast of world grain trade for the coming year, predicted sluggish world demand and only a 3 percent hike in trade.

The forecast trade level would be a record 217 million tons, but the year-to-year increase is small compared to a 6 percent gain in 1980-81 and a 14 percent gain in 1979-80. Expanded production, combined with generally sluggish worldwide demand due to economic factors portends a somewhat more competitive atmosphere in world grain markets than over the recent past, the department said in the first world grain situation outlook for the season that begins July 1.

Although forecasts are tentative because it is early to predict accurately, world grain production is expected to be a record and could exceed use by 30 million tons.

With that occurring for the first time since 1978-79, stocks could be replenished after two years of declines. That would put grain stocks at 13 percent of a year's needs instead of 11 percent in the year that is drawing to a close.

The United States faces tight competition in selling its expected record wheat crop, the report said, because "world wheat trade is expected to remain relatively flat."

Trade of corn and other feed grains like barley, sorghum and oats could set a new record of 110 million tons, up from 104 million tons.

Here again, the United States will face sharp competition. The report said, "supplies from competitor countries are also expected to be sharply increased and, at the current time, the level of U.S. coarse grain exports is only expected to match that of the previous year."

Burley may get townhouses

BURLEY — Mountain View Townhouses in Burley will be built beginning next month if a market test now being conducted shows enough demand for the project.

Gordon Paving Co. of Burley plans to build a 38-home, planned unit development featuring one-, two- and three-bedroom townhouses. Tennis courts, a playground and a community building will be available to all the residents of the development. Those facilities, and the landscaped grounds surrounding the townhouses, will be maintained by an association funded by the townhouse owners.

The development was designed by Dave Armstrong and Tom Neirwhor of Twin Falls.

Before construction begins, the developers are testing the market by offering reservations on the first-16 townhouses to be built.

Idahoan explains claim filing process

MOSCOW — Filing a mining claim is harder than it looks, according to a University of Idaho professor who has written a book designed to explain the process.

Olen Paul Mathews said many people make invalid claims because they file them improperly, file a claim where one cannot be filed or file the wrong kind of claim.

In some cases, he said, the owner of the land may not be the owner of the mineral rights. On federal land, certain minerals can only be leased, he said.

Even people who work in the minerals industry make mistakes in their claims, Mathews said.

His book, "Legal Pitfalls, Land Status and The Acquisition of Mineral Rights," is available for $7.50 from the Idaho Mining and Minerals Resources Research Institute at the University of Idaho.

Drought

"But I will say this: when Mother Nature gets into a cycle like this, she generally chooses to stay in that cycle for a very, very long time. Dry soil warms faster than damp. Drought and heat feed off each other.

Bad times

To talk with farmers out in the parched lands of the cotton, corn and wheat belts is to be told that times have never before been so bad — not even during the great droughts of '34, '36, '54 and '57.

The mighty Mississippi went through winter at its lowest level in recorded history while its main tributaries — the Ohio, the Missouri, the Illinois, the Tennessee and the Arkansas — became little more than wide muddy streams.

The lack of snow in the Rockies received considerable national play because of its hindrance to skiers, but the lack of an adequate snowmelt this spring is a harbinger to a very dry summer for farmers.

Meanwhile, Christmas tree prices are expected to rise because of the loss of seedlings during the dry, hot summers of 1979-80. Hawks and owls are starting because of the prolonged drought in the Midwest. The drought is the usual number of the roadside rats, mice and other rodents on which they feed.

Cause of drought

The roots of the current drought can be traced even to the hot, dry, and horrid summer of 1980. But that is when it finally came to the public eye.

The problem, as Ostby explains, can be somewhat blamed on the jet stream, that high-speed river of air that normally meanders like a snake across the North American continent at altitudes generally equal to that of his home in Kansas City.

The annual distribution of temperature in the Pacific Ocean has affected normal wind patterns. The jet stream has become convoluted and forced northward along the Canadian border. Along with it went most of the moisture.

"The weather systems that normally come up from the southwest are breaking up, falling apart and not producing rain," he said. "The pattern we have now is oriented toward a continuation of either dry weather or very sparse precipitation."

Climatologist Murray Mitchell of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration also says the U.S. as a whole — the Midwest in particular — is in the midst of a very prolonged drought.

"Since last summer, rainfall has been below normal all across the country — from California eastward as far as the Middle Atlantic states and southern New England," he said.

Gall Martell, an assistant vice president and senior meteorologist for E.F. Hutton, says production of winter wheat nationwide will increase only 1 to 2 percent this season — and that it's directly attributable to the extended dryness.

For Kansas, 1980 was the driest year in the past decade with only 50 percent of normal moisture levels. Fortunately for farmers, a few brief rainstorms returned to the Sunflower State in late April, a critical point for the emerging green winter wheat.

Cattlemen hurt

But beef producers throughout the Midwest are in dire straits. "I've never seen that country look so bad. It's the griff of a mess with no grass prospects at all," said Kendall Frazier, a Kansas Livestock Association spokesman.

One of the Midwest's prime cattle grazing areas — the Kansas Flint Hills — is virtually a 4-million-acre desert. The native bluestem prairie is suffering from drought stress at a time when it should be turning green. The late April rains helped, but at this time it can't sustain through the summer the 750,000 head of cattle that regularly graze there.

Heavy rains and snow in late January brought a measure of relief to the Pacific and Rocky Mountain states, but, as almost everywhere else in the nation, climatologists say more moisture is needed.

The San Francisco Public Utilities Commission was so worried that it voted to spend $75,000 on seeding clouds over the city-owned reservoirs in the Sierra Nevada.

The lack of early winter snows left many ski areas without skiers — and without the millions of dollars in revenue they annually bring in. Steamboat Springs, Colo., estimated it has lost $6.5 million in business through the first two months of the season.

But as devastating as they are, losses during the winter will pale in contrast to what could happen if the scattered April rains don't repeat.

Ostby, the Kansas City weather specialist, says, "There's every good reason to suspect that we are a long way from seeing the present drought."

Researchers in parasites due in Idaho

MOSCOW (UPI) — A federal research program studying a blood parasite that kills cattle will move to the regional veterinary program operated by Washington, Oregon and Idaho from Beltsville, Md., this summer.

The $800,000 laboratory program under the U.S. Agriculture Department will be moved to Washington State University and the University of Idaho campuses, but the epidemiology and applied studies will occur at the UI's veterinary medical facility in Caldwell.

The research will concentrate on anaplasmosis, a major hemoparasitic disease in cattle.

The move is expected to be completed by September and is designed to foster "greater productivity and research accomplishments for the same amount of revenue or, perhaps, less," said Dr. Loren Kotler, assistant dean of the Idaho faculty involved in the program.

Debenture sale terms disclosed

SALT LAKE CITY — Northwest Pipeline Corp. has announced terms of a sale of $100 million in debentures.

The 16 1/2 percent sinking fund debentures due 2001 were offered to the public at a price of 95.8 percent of the principal amount plus accrued interest from May 1. An underwriting group managed by Lehman Brothers Kuhn Loeb Inc., Goldman Sachs and Co., and Shearson Loeb Rhoades Inc. handled the sale.

Montana braces for water shortage

BOZEMAN, Mont. (UPI) — The U.S. Soil Conservation Service says summer water shortages in Montana are a certainty.

Little rainfall during April will mean an early melt at higher elevations.

snowpack ranging from 40-60 percent of average.

The low snowpack and early melt means streams will begin dropping two to three weeks earlier than usual.

Farnes said water shortages will become critical in some areas by mid-June and in "most other areas" by July.

Gem wheat crop smaller

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service today forecast the state's winter wheat crop at 43.8 million bushels, 11 percent below last year but reported hay stocks increased from last year's record low.

The service said a 56-bushel-per-acre yield is expected for the state's winter wheat crop, down one bushel from 1980's yield.

A drop of 90,000 acres harvested to 820,000 is the primary cause for the lower production level.

The service said the mild winter kept winter kill to a minimum. It said the crop had good stands and was in excellent condition.

Hay stocks in Idaho on May 1 totaled 835,000 tons; up 35 percent from the record low of last year. A good production last year was followed by a generally mild winter which contributed to increased stocks, the service said.

Exxon chief links company to solar, fusion resources

HOUSTON (UPI) — The chairman of the country's largest corporation says renewable energy sources — such as solar and fusion — are where Exxon's future lies.

C.C. Garvin Jr., speaking at the corporation's annual stockholders' meeting, stressed the need for conservation of energy sources and said synthetic fuels, too, will have a major impact on the world's energy situation.

"A continuing effort must also be made in renewable energy alternatives — solar, fusion and anything else that looks promising," he said. "For the long run, that is where our hopes lie. But there is no question in my mind that synthetics can, and must, make a major contribution in the period of long transition and that is what we must deal with first."

Garvin said 1980 was the company's best year in its history, and dividends reached $5.40 a share, $1.50 more than in 1979 and double the level of four years ago.

He said Exxon spent more than $8 billion in capital investments and exploration programs "to strengthen and broaden its current and future operational base."

Garvin said activities in the oil, gas and petrochemical fields contributed to the largest share of Exxon's 1980 earnings.

He said President Reagan's decision to decontrol oil prices was "especially encouraging."

But, he said, "the impact of decontrol on our profits is less than generally supposed."
 For the first quarter of 1981, net income was down almost 17 percent from the first quarter of 1980.

In addressing the 1,000 shareholders who attended the meeting, Garvin said the company has made no decision on whether to return to doing business in Iran and Iraq, but "we have no plans to go back." He noted it was extremely difficult to get information about the political situation in those countries and the status of their war.

An Exxon dealer from Long Island, N.Y., spoke at the meeting about his concern for the "company's image."

Joe Caruso told Garvin marketing Exxon's products — was becoming extremely difficult because independent dealers are able to sell Exxon products "cheaper than we buy wholesale."

"We can't compete with independents. We are being forced to go out of business or debrand our products," Caruso said.

The shareholders re-elected the 19-member board of directors and voted to split their shares two-for-one.

April oil imports plummet to lowest level since 1975

NEW YORK (UPI) — U.S. oil imports plummeted in April to their lowest level since mid-1975 and accounted for only 35 percent of the nation's oil demand, the American Petroleum Institute reported.

Imports of crude and refined petroleum products averaged 5.4 million barrels a day last month, down 22.5 percent from 6.9 million barrels daily in April, 1980, the oil industry trade group said.

"Imports, in fact, have not seen similar levels since mid-1975," the API said.

April oil imports represented only about 35 percent of domestic demand for the first time since 1973, compared with 42 percent in April 1980 and 45 percent in April 1979, the group said.

The API attributed the drop in imports to declining U.S. oil demand which fell 6.4 percent to 15.7 million barrels a day last month from 16.7 million barrels a day in April last year.

The API defines demand in terms of deliveries from primary storage to the marketplace.

Gasoline demand was down 3.6 percent in April to 6.6 million barrels a day from 6.8 million barrels daily a year earlier. — Due primarily to the long-range effect of price increases, the trade group said.

"This took place even though the retail price of gasoline dropped about a half cent per gallon in April compared with March postings," the API said.

Deliveries of kerosene-jet fuel declined 13.9 percent in April "as airlines reported a drop in revenue passenger miles, one indicator of airline traffic," it said.

The API attributed a 16.7 percent downturn in April demand for residual fuel oil, used primarily by utilities to generate electricity, to switching to alternate fuels sources and the sluggish economy.

Demand for distillate — home-heating oil and diesel fuel — were up just 0.4 percent in April and remained essentially unchanged from year-earlier deliveries.

"Though temperatures were about 20 percent higher nationwide, this was offset by cooler than normal temperatures in high-usage areas during the latter part of April," the API said. "In addition, there was a gradually growing impact of vehicle diesel fuel usage, which increased between 29,000 and 30,000 barrels a day over last year."

The nation's crude oil stocks stood at 399.7 million barrels at the end of April — up 1.4 percent from 394.7 million barrels a year earlier. Motor gasoline stocks were down 1.7 percent and distillate supplies were 8.6 percent lower.

Credit card service charge studied

HOUSTON (UPI) — Exxon Corp. may soon begin charging its credit card customers an annual service charge, but the corporation's chief executive said he would prefer the company to sell gasoline on a cash only basis.

C.C. Garvin Jr., chairman of the board of Exxon Corp., said following the annual stockholders' meeting administrative costs for managing credit card sales may soon have to be passed on to the consumer. Randall Meyer, president of Exxon Co. USA, said the decision when to eliminate the credit card depends on economics.

However, Garvin said Exxon is considering making the drastic move, but will not proceed if "we're the only company not offering credit cards."

Garvin said 1980 was the company's best year financially in its history and dividends reached $5.40 a share.

Debt restructuring plan proceeds

Harvester's outlook bright

CHICAGO (UPI) — More than 200 banks are cooperating with International Harvester's efforts to pay off $3.4 billion in debts and, except for the opposition from a New Orleans bank, the debt restructuring plan is "on track."

"The situation with the New Orleans bank is expected to have no significant effect on the long-term success of the debt restructuring," a Harvester spokesman said.

Harvester "believes the refinancing plan is on track and the company is very satisfied with the way the banks have responded to our debt restructuring program," he said.

U.S. District Judge Edward J. Boyle Sr. in New Orleans this past Wednesday granted a motion for a summary judgment against the financial unit of IH on behalf of First National Bank of Commerce, requiring the repayment of a $3.5 million note.

Harvester officials said they have counterclaims pending and plan to appeal Boyle's decision.

More than 200 banks are involved in the IH debt restructuring plan — a plan IH officials are calling one of the largest and most complex in U.S. corporate history.

"Quite simply, the note is due and we're due our money," said Thomas Rapiet, president of First National Bank of Commerce. "We have a judgment for $3.5 million and it is up to Harvester to decide what it will do next."

Bill Cowell, IH spokesman, said the company was refinancing $3.4 billion in short term debt for both the parent company and the credit corporation.

Lenders accounting for percent of funds involved in forming the new, $3.4 billion revolving credit facility have approved, in principle, their participation, Cowell said. He added some lenders are waiting for extra information from IH.

IH also has received indications of interest for about $1.3 billion of the $1.5 billion in additional funds which would be provided by banks through a standby purchase facility for IH credit corporation receivables, Cowell said.

IH is cutting costs in many areas, Cowell said, but none of the cost-cutting measures is directly tied to the judge's decision.

Venezuelan proposes freeze

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — Venezuela will propose an oil price freeze for the rest of this year at the forthcoming OPEC ministerial conference in Geneva, Energy and Mines Minister Humberto Calderon said Friday.

"Market conditions indicate that it would be convenient to freeze oil prices for the rest of this year," the Venezuelan minister said in briefing reporters on his country's position at the OPEC meeting scheduled to be held in Geneva on May 25. Calderon, whose country is a charter member of the 13-nation Arab-dominated cartel, said that Venezuela believes the organization should seek to establish a balance between supply and demand on the international market through production controls.

"Our opinion at this moment is that it would be desirable to restore a balance between oil supply and demand through an adjustment in production," Calderon said.

Compromise farm bill pares supports

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two weeks ago, the Senate Agriculture Committee endorsed a four-year farm bill billions of dollars above a budget ceiling.

In compromise approved this past Wednesday, the panel cut the difference to a few hundred million dollars.

In sending a bill to the full Senate for consideration "this month," the committee refused to go along with Agriculture Secretary John Block's request for broad discretion to set price supports.

The compromise, fashioned under leadership of Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., was not a victory for the administration, Deputy Secretary Richard Lyng said, "but, on the other hand, it certainly isn't a loss."

Complimenting senators for a "valiant effort," Lyng said the administration would oppose parts of the bill on the Senate floor, where more cuts may be made, but no decision has been made on which battles to fight.

The committee pared down price support levels and eliminated cost of production indexes from its initial bill, but rejected Block's proposal to eliminate cash to farmers if market prices fall below targets.

However, it set targets low enough so payments probably would not be made, except to rice, farmers, administration officials said.

Advocates of targets said potential target price costs were insurance against government actions that would push down farm prices.

Administration officials estimated the newly approved provisions would cost $2.4 billion in fiscal 1982, compared to an administration proposal of $1.95 billion and a Senate-passed ceiling of $2.1 billion.

But it was unknown what the eventual budget ceiling would be because a compromise still must be reached between the Senate figure and a lower House-passed figure of $1.2 billion.

Over the four-year life of the bill, the Senate measure would cost $9.8 billion, while the administration sought a bill worth $7.89 billion. Two weeks ago, the committee approved higher-price supports that added several billion dollars over four years.

Recalling that Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said, "The committee has already been held up for ridicule all over America."

But Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont., said there was too much talk about budget costs and not enough about farm income. Melcher was the only one of 15 senators to vote against the compromise. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., and Edward Zoritsky, D-Neb., voted present.

The compromise would set:

- Wheat price support loan at $3.50 per bushel in 1982 and a target at $4.20, with the target rising 20 cents a year until 1985.
- Corn loan at $3.50 and a target of $2.75, with the target rising 20 cents a year until 1985.
- Minimum cap on a wheat reserve of 700 million bushels and a minimum corn reserve cap of 1 billion bushels.
- Cotton loan of 65 cents a pound, adjusted yearly by a market price formula, and targets from 71 cents in 1982 to 93 cents in 1985.
- Soybean loan of $5.01 a bushel, adjusted by a market price formula.
- Rice loan of $2 per 100 pounds and targets from $11.23 in 1982 to $13.50 in 1985.
- Peanut loan of $631 per ton.
- Dairy support at 75 percent of parity, except at 70 percent if government purchases exceeded $500 million or 3.52 billion pounds of products, adjusted a second time each year to prevent the support from falling below 70 percent.
- Sugar loan at 19.6 cents a pound of raw product.

The House committee approved a higher wheat loan of $3.55 and a higher corn loan of $2.76.

USDA offers predictions for season

Wheat prices may decline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department predicted farmers' wheat prices would drop slightly this coming season.

The department predicted average prices would be within a range of $2.70 to $4.30 per bushel. The average for the marketing year that ends May 31 was estimated at $4 per bushel and the average last marketing year was $3.76.

Although the first official estimate of spring-planted wheat will not be made until July, the department is basing its estimates on expectations of a total wheat crop of a record 2.7 billion bushels.

The department predicted a third year in a row of record wheat exports of 1.58 billion bushels.

"Domestic usage is expected to increase substantially as larger wheat supplies and lower prices relate to feed grains encourage increased feeding of wheat," the department said in its world agricultural supply and demand estimates.

Domestic and export use may rise from 1980-81, but could fall 250 million bushels short of production. Much of the excess would move into the farmer-owned reserve.

Wheat supplies on hand next spring were estimated at 1.2 billion bushels, up from 954 million bushels this spring.

World wheat consumption may fall short of production for the first time since 1978-79 so that stocks may be rebuilt after two years of sharp drawdowns.

The department predicted that total world grain stocks would rise by 30 million tons, with about 50 percent of the buildup occurring in the United States.

The department predicted that world feed-grain production—including corn, sorghum, barley and oats—will exceed production, resulting in stock buildups for the first time in three years.

Feed grain use in the United States is expected to increase because of use of grain for gasoline, sweetener production and more animal feed use.

Farmers' prices for corn may compare $2.75 to $3.35 per bushel, compared with an estimate of $3.20 in the current season, the department said.

Rice prices are expected to remain about constant in a range of $10.50 to $13 per 100 pounds as consumption and production are about equal.

Soybean prices are expected to change little because of large inventories of soybean oil. The department predicted a price range of $4.50 to $9 per bushel.

With relatively low prices for soybeans, farmers are expected to shift some soybean acreage to corn.

Global cotton production is expected to increase sharply but supply and demand should remain tight, the department said.

Ducks wiped out

WEBB, Iowa (UPI)—A fire Wednesday caused an estimated $100,000 in damage and was blamed for the death of 4,000 baby ducks.

Flames also destroyed 3,000 duck eggs and the barn housing the ducks.

Fire officials said the blaze started at the Larry Blittner Game Preserve.

Smaller orange crop result of bad weather

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department reduced its forecast of the U.S. orange crop to 239 million boxes, down 2 percent from last month's forecast and 13 percent less than last season.

The department's Crop Reporting Board estimated the orange crop in Florida at 169 million boxes, down 2 percent from an April report.

Florida's early and mid-season varieties were estimated to total 106 million boxes, the same as last month.

The decline came in the Valencia crop, forecast at 63 million boxes, down 5 percent from last month.

"Citrus groves continue dry and in need of rain," the board said.

The board estimated that each box of Florida oranges will produce an average of 1.20 gallons of frozen concentrated orange juice, compared to last month's estimate of 1.19 gallons and last year's average of 1.39 gallons last year.

The yield was reduced by a hard freeze in January.

The California orange crop estimate was reduced by 2 percent to 63 million boxes. The total was 6 percent greater than last year.

California Navel orange production was expected to set a record at 36 million boxes, down 3 percent from last month.

The Valencia crop in California was unchanged from last month at 27 million boxes, the same as last season.

An estimate of the grapefruit crop, at 67.6 million boxes, was up fractionally from last month and 8 percent smaller than last season's crop.

Florida's grapefruit crop was expected to hit 60.6 million boxes, 1 percent more than last month and 8 percent less than last year.

The lemon crop was estimated at 31 million boxes, up 2 percent from last month and 49 percent more than last season.

Citrus forecasts on the basis of May 1 conditions, with last season's harvest in parentheses, are:

Oranges: Arizona 2,850,000 boxes of oranges (3,500,000), including 1,850,000 of Valencia (2,650,000); California 63,000,000 boxes (59,600,000), including 27,000,000 boxes (27,000,000) of Valencia; Florida 168,600,000 boxes (206,700,000), including 63,000,000 boxes (68,000,000) of Valencia; Texas 4,400,000 boxes (4,030,000), including 1,800,000 boxes (1,730,000) of Valencia.

Grapefruit: Arizona 3,000,000 boxes (3,000,000); California 7,300,000 boxes (7,500,000); Florida 59,500,000 boxes (54,500,000); Texas 6,600,000 boxes (7,300,000).

Lemons: Arizona 7,000,000 boxes (3,500,000); California 24,000,000 boxes (17,700,000).

Tangerines: Florida 4,900,000 boxes (6,400,000).

Tangerines: Arizona 800,000 boxes (750,000); California 1,700,000 boxes (1,650,000); Florida 3,000,000 boxes (3,900,000).

Temples: Florida 3,800,000 boxes (6,000,000).

Larger crop in USSR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Soviet grain crop may total 210 million tons, about 21 million tons more than last year, the Agriculture Department said in its first estimate of this year's crop.

The department predicted that ideal conditions could raise its estimate by 15 million tons, but sustained bad weather could reduce it by as much as 25 million tons.

The department said wheat production could total 103 million tons; feed grain production total, 97 million tons; and miscellaneous crops, 10 million tons.

The estimate is well below the Soviet plan of 236 million tons. The department will make an estimate Tuesday of how much grain the Soviets are expected to import.

Growth of grain planted last fall has jagged as a result of cold snaps in late March and cool April weather, the department said.

"Such a lag does not appear serious at this time," but additional delays could create problems, it said.

Seeding of spring crops was slowed in the European portion of the Soviet Union by excessive moisture and low temperatures.

Southern crop figures sound peachy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department estimates peach production in nine Southern states will total 657 million pounds, 11 percent above last year's crop.

In the first forecast of the season, the department said larger crops are expected in all the southern peachproducing states except North Carolina.

Most of the crop in that state as well as Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, Oklahoma, South Carolina and Texas is sold for the fresh market.

Feedlot figures set record

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department said Thursday that the number of cattle and calves sent to feedlots during April was the highest for the month since records were begun nine years ago.

The figure, 1.72 million in seven key states, was 39 percent higher than a year ago.

"The strong increase in placements on feed was influenced by a shortage of forage from grazing in several of the major feeding states," the department said.

Also, the total number of calves and cattle being fattened in feedlots prior to slaughter was up 3 percent on May 1 compared to a year ago.

The change represented the first year-to-year increase in cattle on feed since last September.

As of May 1, cattle and calves on feed totaled 7.03 million head. Marketings of feed cattle in April totaled 1.39 million, 3 percent less than a year ago.

The seven states in the May 1 survey were Arizona, California, Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska and Texas.

Farm chemicals hot sellers on black market

VISALIA, Calif. (UPI) — The hottest black market items in California's central valley are herbicides and other farm chemicals. Sheriff's deputies say the bootleg agricultural products sell at from $30 to $70 a gallon and are so hard to trace that farmers sometimes repurchase chemicals stolen from their own ranches.

Sophisticated black market operators, often using illegal aliens or heroin addicts to commit the actual burglaries, time the heists so that particular types of herbicides or pesticides are stolen just before farmers need to apply them, authorities report.

In Fresno County, deputies recently broke up a family-run chemical theft ring suspected in 17 thefts over the past two years. The leader was a local gardener. "There is some evidence people are filling out shopping lists," Smoky Crumley, a detective with the Tulare County sheriff's office, said in an interview. Precise figures on the actual amount of "big" chemical thefts are not available because state and local agencies lump them with farm equipment thefts.

Funds deal Woolworth heavy loss

NEW YORK (UPI) — The F.W. Woolworth Co. said it had a $6 million loss in the first quarter partly as a result of foreign currency translation losses.

In the comparable 1980 quarter, net income was $26 million, or 84 cents a share, which included a gain of $20 million, or 67 cents a share on a refund of prior years' Advance Corp. taxes. The figure also included a $10 million, or 32-cent-a-share gain, on currency translation, which compares with a $4 million translation loss in the latest quarter.

Sales, however, were up 4.1 percent to $1.58 billion from $1.52 billion a year earlier.

Edward F. Gibbons, chairman and chief executive, said, "While overall 1981 first-quarter results were disappointing, domestic sales and operating income — income before unallocated expenses — improved noticeably in the last two months of the period and exceeded our expectations."

He added that during the combined two-month period, domestic sales showed the largest percentage gain in nearly two years.

While it is too early to characterize this performance as a turning point, we observed no measurable decline in activity in the weeks following the Easter selling period," Gibbons said.

Domestic sales were up 8.9 percent. Foreign sales in terms of U.S. dollars declined 2.3 percent.

Olive Beech gains honor in aviation

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) — Olive Ann Beech, widely known as "the first lady of aviation," and three other aviation pioneers will be inducted into the Aviation Hall of Fame in Dayton July 25.

Being honored with Mrs. Beech are Dr. Charles Stark Draper, the space scientist who developed gunsight, fire control and inertial guidance systems; Edward H. Helemann, developer of a series of attack airplanes from the propeller-driven SBD "Dauntless" to the jet-powered AD "Skyhawk"; and the late Lawrence B. Sperry Sr., pioneer of inventions in automatic flight controls, aircraft instruments and guided missiles.

Mrs. Beech will be recognized for more than 57 years of contributions to the development and progress of general aviation and nearly a half a century of leadership of the Beech Aircraft Corp., which she and her late husband, Walter H. Beech, founded in 1932 in Wichita, Kan.

Walter Beech was enshrined in the Hall in 1977. The Beech's John Charles and Anne Morrow Lindbergh as the second husband-wife team in the Hall.

Science His & hers

Scientists find evidence of physical differences in brains of men and women

BOSTON—Nature appears to have given mankind his and hers brains. But whether those differences should be regarded as significant remains an open question.

Sensitized by the potential for sexist implications, biologists and psychologists studying sex differences in the brain and human behavior are cautious and divided on their interpretations of evidence suggesting that the female brain is put together differently than the male brain, and that women use their brains differently than men.

"I won't make any pronouncements one way or the other," said Dr. Peter Wolf of Children's Hospital Medical Center on the social implications of his research that shows, for example, that growing females are more proficient at tasks requiring the use of small motor muscles.

This proficiency allows girls to carry out sequential movements more quickly and efficiently than boys of the same age, a skill that could be related to any sequential operation from typing to flying a space shuttle. In tests conducted by Wolf, boys were easily disrupted from keeping time with their fingers when anything interfered with a time-keeping metronome. Girls were not.

While Wolf is cautious, others trace this proficiency to the left half of the brain, which not only controls sequential analysis, but also controls speaking and reading, two skills that girls develop more quickly than boys.

"It would be surprising, scientists warn, if such experimental knowledge were marshaled to attack or support the woman's movement or to suggest that one sex is naturally superior to the other. On the contrary, the evidence suggests a variety of skill superfluities that out across the sexes. While girls develop speaking and reading skills faster, boys tend to be more skilled in mechanics and math."

The work of Dr. Deborah Waber at Children's Hospital likewise can be interpreted to show sex differences in brain function, but she, like Wolf, is hesitant to push such a suggestion.

Waber studies "lateralization"—in brain function: the amount of sharing of behavioral tasks by the left and right halves of the brain. She has demonstrated that females are less lateralized than males. She has tied this to the well-known observation that girls reach puberty sooner than boys. Sexual maturation, it appears, inhibits the brain in sharing functions between the two halves.

"Waber's studies have been cited by Dr. Jerre Levy, a neurologist at the University of Chicago, to support Levy's thesis that the sexual hormones—chemicals secreted into the bloodstream by sex glands—make the brains of males and females different."

Levy's theory holds that the right half of the brain is dominant in males while the left half is dominant in females. The sexual hormones appear to be the most important factors in Levy's thesis, but it remains a scientific mystery just where these differences originate.

Levy and other scientists are exploring the possibility that the sex hormones operate in such a way as to masculinize or feminize a developing brain.

"I think she has gone far beyond what the data reveal," said Waber of Levy's interpretations.

"Hormones and the brain clearly operate in the reproductive function," Waber said. "Everything else is inferential."

Most of the scientific evidence on the role of hormones has been gathered from experiments on animals, and any conclusions based on studies of humans must remain tentative, warn researchers. Endocrinologists Anke Ehrhardt and Heino Meyer-Bahlburg of Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center in New York in a recent Science magazine article summarizing these studies.

In fact, Ehrhardt and Meyer-Bahlburg conclude that experiments studying the effects of sex hormones on general intelligence—that is, total intelligence when all skills are taken together—"produce negative results."

Hormones are tricky. The most glaring example of their effect on humans appears at the beginning of adolescence with puberty. Put simply—the hormones secreted by the gonads are preparing youthful bodies to reproduce.

But the gonads do not lie dormant until adolescence. Some evidence suggests that what happens with the sexual hormones in adulthood is linked to what happens with them when the body and brain are being formed in the earliest stages of development, although the exact connection is not fully understood.

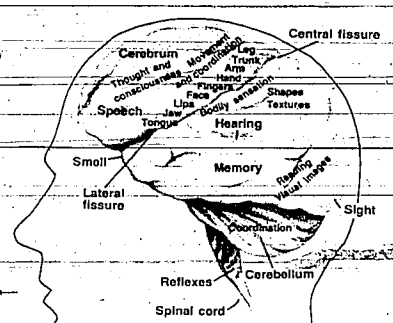

"There are undoubtedly passionate and private motives for wanting to see sex differences in the brain," said Wolf. "We've gone through a long history of environmentalism and now we're seeing the antithesis—everyone is looking for prefixed prenatal determinants."

Waber agrees. "It has an astrological quality," she said. "People are saying to psychologists, 'Tell me how to read my brain,' as if human brain is going to be unexciting the key to who they are."

ferences," Waber said. "Occasionally a glacial difference shows up, but we're talking about brains that still function in pretty much the same way."

According to Dr. Richard M. Restak, a Georgetown University neurologist whose 1979 book—"The Brain: The Last Frontier," summarizes the most research on the brain, the question raised from these studies is not "Are there brain-sex differences?" but rather, "What is going to be our response to these differences?"

Research on differences in brain function between the sexes is largely statistical, Restak notes. As such, it uncovers trends and should not be applied to individuals.

Sigmund Freud claimed that anatomy is destiny, but he had neither the scientific knowledge nor the technological tools early in this century to suggest that his poetic dictum was embedded in the anatomy of the human brain.

And whatever the dictum, contemporary researchers cautiously warn, there is no evidence to suggest that destiny implies inferiority or superiority of one gender in relation to the other.

ATLANTA (UPI)—Cases of tick paralysis, more prevalent with the arrival of warm weather, can be fatal if left untreated, the national Centers for Disease Control warns.

The CDC said most tick paralysis cases occur in the spring and last months and affect primarily persons under 16 years. Men are the main victims in adult cases, but some children—mostly girls—are also affected.

The mortality rate of the disease, first described in 1912, is 10 percent and the CDC said nearly all of those who die of the paralysis are children.

Treatment of the ailment is simple—removal of the tick—the CDC said.

After that step is taken, the victim improves in a few hours and complete recovery occurs within 48 hours.

The health agency said diagnosis depends on "rarest" search of the scalp and body for the attached tick. Untreated, tick paralysis may progress to bulbar involvement, respiratory paralysis and death within hours or days.

Tick paralysis is believed to be caused by a toxin secreted in the saliva of the tick that affects the nervous system. Some 43 species of ticks, found all over the United States, have been found to cause the ailment in humans.

Study ties winds to rainfall

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Small-scale surface wind patterns may help weather forecasters predict local showers that usually come as a surprise by forming without the normal early warning signs, government scientists say.

A new prediction method being examined is based on the fact that when moist, low-level winds converge over an area, clouds and showers result because the air has no place to go but up, said scientists with the Commerce Department's National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The relationship between wind convergence and showers has been recognized in a general way for years, but the researchers recently tested the knowledge in a 25-square-mile section of southern Florida. Wind monitors were placed around the area at four-mile intervals.

The researchers, said NOAA, found that showers in the area were closely related to surface winds measured along the area's perimeter.

The agency said the scientists now are testing applicability of the findings, which they said work well with that region's slow-moving thunderstorms, to the faster moving storms of the Illinois prairie, where thunderstorms are more typical of

Distinguished Service Citation for 1980

Dear Mr. Harrison:
Congratulations to Thelsen Motor Company for achieving the Gold Distinguished Service Citation Award for Total Excellence in Customer Service.

This coveted award is in recognition of your dealership's parts and service managers' contribution to Ford and Lincoln-Mercury owners.

Thelsen Motors is one of 134 Ford and Lincoln-Mercury dealers (sponsored by Ford Parts and Service Division in the Salt Lake City District).

Thelsen Motors, Inc., was the only exclusive Lincoln-Mercury dealership and one of four Ford Motor Company Dealers to receive the Gold Award at the Annual Banquet in Salt Lake City.

Thank you for providing outstanding service to Lincoln-Mercury owners.

Very truly yours,
(Signature)
