

As more Americans turn 30, who'll there be to trust?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The median age of Americans has risen to 30, the Census Bureau said Sunday. That median age is up two years from 1970. Florida had the oldest median age in the nation at 34.7, and Utah had the youngest, 24.2. Idaho was fifth on the list of the states with the youngest population at 27.2 years.

The bureau cited three reasons — a decline in fertility, the aging of those born in the post-World War II baby boom, and growing longevity — for the increase that is a precursor of a much older American population in years to come.

The median age is not necessarily the average age. It is the midpoint at which there are an equal number of Americans above and below it.

The census report showed a large increase in the number of people over 65 — much higher than the 11 percent rate for the population as a whole — while the number of children under 15 dropped.

It showed different median ages by race, with whites having the highest median age at 31.3, to 24.9 for blacks and 23.2 for Hispanics.

In 1980, 31 percent of the U.S. population reported their race as white. Of that figure, the bureau listed 6.4 percent as being of Spanish origin. Blacks made up 11.7 percent of the population. Other races accounted for the rest.

Utah had the lowest median age, 24.2 years, followed by Alaska, 26.1; Wyoming, 27.1; New Mexico and Louisiana, 27.4; Idaho, 27.6, and Mississippi, 27.7.

The median age of the nation's population by regions was Northeast, 31.8; North Central, 29.6; South, 29.7; and West, 29.3.

By divisions within regions and by states, the median ages were:

New England, 31.2; Maine, 30.4; New Hampshire, 30.1; Vermont, 29.4; Massachusetts, 31.2; Rhode Island, 31.8; Connecticut, 32.0.

Middle Atlantic, 32.0; New York, 31.9; New Jersey, 32.2; Pennsylvania, 32.1.

East North Central, 29.5; Ohio, 29.9; Indiana, 29.2; Illinois, 29.9; Michigan, 28.9; Wisconsin, 29.4.

West-North-Central, 29.9; Minnesota, 29.2; Iowa, 30.0; Missouri, 30.9; North Dakota, 28.3; South Dakota, 28.9; Nebraska, 29.7; Kansas, 30.1.

South Atlantic, 30.7; Delaware, 29.7; Maryland, 30.3; District of Columbia, 31.1; Virginia, 28.3; West Virginia, 30.4; North Carolina, 29.8; South Carolina, 28.2; Georgia, 28.7; Florida, 34.7.

East South Central, 29.3; Kentucky, 29.1; Tennessee, 30.1; Alabama, 29.3; Mississippi, 27.7.

West South Central, 28.5; Arkansas, 30.6; Louisiana, 27.4; Oklahoma, 30.1; Texas, 29.5.

Mountain, 28.0; Montana, 29.0; Idaho, 27.6; Wyoming, 27.1; Colorado, 28.6; New Mexico, 27.4; Arizona, 29.2; Utah, 24.2; Nevada, 30.3.

Pacific, 29.8; Washington, 29.8; Oregon, 30.2; California, 29.9; Alaska, 26.1; Hawaii, 28.4.

Flag marks grave of Vietnam veteran buried in Twin Falls

Private war for Vietnam vets goes on

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

BOISE — America publicly honors its war "dead" today and Saturday, but a private war continues for many who fought in Vietnam.

Larry Stanberry of Boise, a frontline medic in Vietnam during the late 1960s, worked up the courage to attend an elementary school play last week. He sat with his back to the wall and a 180-degree field of vision, but he sweated throughout the performance.

Once, during a shopping trip, Stanberry heard a car backfire and found himself on the ground "in about half a second." His violent dreams and flashbacks have diminished since discussing them with other Nam veterans.

An estimated 57,000 Americans were killed in Vietnam. Perhaps twice that many died violently in the years since hostilities ceased in 1973, said John McKay, team leader of the Vietnam Veterans Outreach Center in Boise. Some committed suicide. Others died in one-car accidents or shootouts with police. A fourth of all state and federal prisoners nationwide are veterans from the Vietnam era.

A study commissioned recently by the Veterans Administration found that about half of all Vietnam combat veterans have unresolved conflicts relating to the war, McKay said.

At centers like the one in Boise, Nam veterans discuss submerged feelings and attempt to purge their system of hostilities and bitterness. Five counselors work one-on-one and organize "rap groups" at population centers around the state.

Soviets linked to war

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin charged Sunday that Soviet advisers accompany Syrian troops operating inside Lebanon, directly linking Moscow to the Lebanese conflict for the first time.

Speaking at a campaign rally in Tel Aviv, Begin said Soviet advisers "go together with Syrian units into Lebanon."

Begin's surprise comments about direct Soviet involvement in Lebanon came as U.S. mediator Philip Habib's peace mission lay stalled in Jerusalem awaiting the outcome of crucial talks in Saudi Arabia.

While the presence of Soviet advisers in Syria has been known for some time, Israeli officials have been careful in the past to avoid linking them with the Syrian presence in Lebanon.

Western diplomats said they had heard reports of Soviet advisors in Lebanon but could not confirm them.

Meanwhile, Begin admitted for the first time that Israel secretly committed itself in 1973 to defending Lebanese Christian militias from Syrian air attacks — a vow made good when Israeli jetfighters shot down two Syrian helicopters over central Lebanon last month.

Begin's office said the disclosure, which came in an official statement, was being made to clear up "distorted" news leaks about the agreement.

Both Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization warned that the Middle East stood on the edge of a major war over Lebanon.

In Beirut, Abu Iyad, Yasser Arafat's top deputy in the PLO, said an Israeli strike against Syrian missiles in Lebanon, "would lead to war on all fronts, including the Golan front, and would force the Soviet Union to throw its full weight behind Syria."

But at the same time, both sides seemed to lean back from the brink a bit by issuing more conciliatory statements.

Begin chaired a cabinet meeting which had been expected to set a deadline on Habib's marathon shuttle mission to defuse the crisis caused by Syria's installation of SAM-6 anti-aircraft missiles in Lebanon. "The mission went in a day after Israel shot down the two Syrian helicopters April 28."

Spanish troops storm bank, free 70 held by right-wing band

BARCELONA, Spain (UPI) — Anti-terrorist troops stormed a bank Sunday and freed some 70 hostages held by right-wing gunmen.

The hostages were seized a day earlier to demand the release of the leaders of a recent coup attempt.

Authorities said one of the 21 gunmen was killed and 10 were captured during the 90 minutes of gunfire. The rest apparently escaped by changing clothes and posing as civilians.

One hostage was wounded by a ricocheting bullet, authorities said, but his condition was not immediately known.

Gunfire ripped through the Barcelona branch of the Spanish Central Bank as troops slipped through the terraced windows of the five-story building and stormed downstairs to surprise the gunmen, who had been thought to include a number of military officers and men.

Sources close to Prime Minister Leopoldo Calvo Sotelo said the seizure was planned and financed by right-wing extremists.

But Interior Minister Juan Jose Roson, contradicting earlier reports, said the gunmen did not include members of the paramilitary Civil Guard unit that seized Parliament Feb. 23 at the start of Spain's thwarted military coup.

Screaming hostages stumbled and ran from the bank, collapsing in the arms of Red Cross personnel. Others crawled to a nearby subway station and literally threw themselves down the stairs.

About 30 hostages ordered to stand in front of the main entrance to keep police from shooting through it broke down the door in a panic and crawled on hands and knees across a square.

The spectacular assault by brown-uniformed commandos came 35 hours after the rightist gunmen seized the bank in their own hall of gunfire, taking about 300 persons hostage to demand the release of four military officers jailed for leading the abortive Feb. 23 coup.

The jailed officers, however, refused to leave their cells. The gunmen then demanded a tank escort to the airport and a plane to flee the country.

Turks extend deadline for execution of Americans aboard jet BURGAS, Bulgaria (UPI) — Four left-wing terrorists hijacked a Turkish jetliner to Bulgaria Sunday and threatened to kill five American bank executives among their 90 hostages unless Turkey frees a number of condemned terrorist convicts.

The terrorists, who also demanded a $500,000 ransom, had set a 5 p.m. MDT deadline against the lives of the five American passengers but then extended the deadline indefinitely to allow negotiations with the Turkish government to continue. The Americans were described by Turkish authorities as a group of high-ranking executives of the New York-based Citibank.

There was no immediate information on whether the extension affected the hijackers' second deadline in which they threatened to blow up the plane and all the passengers at 1 a.m. MDT today unless Turkey releases a group of 47 jailed terrorists.

The Turkish government rejected the demands and said that if any of the hostages is killed, "the hijackers will sign the death sentences of their 47 adherents."

A Turkish negotiating team dispatched from Ankara held a lengthy but inconclusive round of talks with the terrorists. Later, one of the gunmen agreed to meet negotiators in the airport lounge but the talks were also reported to have failed.

Bulgarian reports said the hijackers identified themselves as members of Dev Sol, a left-wing Turkish terrorist group, blamed for a number of political assassinations in Turkey.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman in Sofia, the capital of communist Bulgaria, confirmed that five Americans were among the hostages but refused to identify them.

However, banking sources in Sofia and the Turkish capital of Ankara described the Americans as "top" Citibank executives on a business trip to Turkey to attend the opening of a bank branch in Istanbul.

Veterans vow to continue strike for better treatment

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Two small groups of veterans protested Sunday to continue a hunger strike until President Reagan responds to their demands for better treatment for vets.

One man called on Reagan and all other Americans to fast Memorial Day in support of them.

Six veterans sat in the lobby at the Wadsworth Veterans Administration Hospital for a fifth day, waiting to hear from President Reagan, who is spending the Memorial Day weekend at his ranch near Santa Barbara.

On the lawn outside of the Wadsworth facility, seven veterans staged an independent protest of conditions at the nearby Brentwood Hospital, a VA psychiatric complex.

"One of it's impossible for us to be asked all Americans to join for 'just one day' in the hunger strike to support the veterans."

Another protester, Alejandro Lopez, 34, who said he had been refusing psychiatric and medical help, vowed to stop taking medication as well food in his demand for better treatment.

"We've seen probably 700 to 800 vets in here, and a lot of them haven't talked about the war at all since they got back," said McKay, a clinical social worker and combat veteran.

"One of it's impossible for us to be asked all Americans to join for 'just one day' in the hunger strike to support the veterans."

The Boise center may have prevented six or seven suicides, he said, and has helped many veterans get off alcohol and drugs and confront serious psychological problems.

David Stockman, President Reagan's budget director, recommended earlier this year that the 106 outreach centers across the country be closed, saving an estimated $125 million. Congress voted to keep the centers open another two years, and Reagan has reportedly agreed to sign the appropriations bill.

Situated in a converted house at 103 W. State St., across the street from the VA Medical Center, the Boise center enjoys a direct yet arm's-length relationship with the VA hospital. Troubled veterans are occasionally referred to the hospital for psychiatric care, but names are kept confidential. Many visitors simply drop by to drink coffee and talk out their problems.

Most Vietnam vets are doing relatively well considering what they went through, McKay said. "They deserve to be proud of their service. Many of them enlisted. Yet they were rejected by other vets and by the left and the right. They're called baby burners, junkies, misfits."

The divorce rate for Vietnam veterans is more than twice the national average, he said. Many find an inability to express emotions or get close to anyone.

"Maybe he got tight with a buddy, and the buddy steps on a land mine. For protection, he learns to not get tight with anyone," McKay said.

Years afterward, some Nam vets still flare into violent rages. Courts and psychiatrists usually label these as character disorders, independent of the Vietnam experience. McKay disagrees, and points to growing acceptance of the theory of Delayed Stress Syndrome.

Survivors of Yonatan Dam, Three Mile Island and Mount St. Helens are all prone to delayed stress, he said. It is a survivor's reflex.

Veterans of previous wars called it shell shock, said James Goff, director of the VA Medical Center in Boise.

Survivors of World Wars I and II had an important advantage over Vietnam servicemen, Goff said. Earlier vets came home in ships and had two weeks to rehab their experiences. Vietnam vets returned separately when their tour was over. They were in the trenches one day and home for dinner the next.

"U.S. government leaders may have taken a cue from what happened after Vietnam in deciding to keep the Iranian hostages together for a debriefing period following their release, he said.

Goff, himself a Vietnam era veteran, said several wives of participants in the Boise outreach program have told VA officials the center has made a big difference in their husbands' abilities to work out frustrations.

"It took a year to get the program up and functioning after Congress funded it in 1979," Goff said, adding that he hopes the program is allowed to run its original course — through 1983.

Stambergy said he found the center inviting and informal, unlike traditional veterans' programs. Many Vietnam vets shun the VA because they don't want to stand in any more lines, fill out forms and be told what to do, he said.

McKay said the staff has helped organize discussion groups in Lewiston, Pocatello and Idaho Falls, but has not had time to contact veterans in the Magic Valley or assess needs there.

He said some rural areas have had fewer problems, especially when veterans had supportive families, peers to talk to and jobs awaiting them.

A National Guard unit in Idaho Falls was one of the few in the country activated and sent to Vietnam. Members traveled, served and returned together, and as a result experienced fewer problems, McKay said.

He urged vets who feel a need for the program's services to call the center collect.

"He also invited Vietnam veterans from throughout the state to attend an annual picnic May 30 from noon to 6 p.m. in Julie Davis Park in Boise. Sponsored by the Idaho Vietnam Veterans Association, the event includes a fun run, refreshments, family activities and a program to honor Vietnam veterans."

Crash kills Ecuador leader

QUITO, Ecuador (UPI) — President Jaime Roldos of Ecuador died Sunday in a plane crash along with his wife and the Ecuadorian defense minister, the government announced.

Vice President Oswaldo Hurtado automatically assumed the presidency for the remaining three years of Roldos' five-year term. The presidential plane carrying Roldos, 40, his wife Maria, 39, and Defense Minister Gen. Marco Subia crashed and burned at 2 p.m. MDT near the village of Guanachama, 30 miles north of the border between Ecuador and Peru, an official government announcement said.

Holiday death toll tops 200

By United Press International

Four graduated high school seniors in Michigan and three Illinois teenagers were among more than 200 people killed on the highways during the three-day Memorial Day holiday weekend.

A UPI count Sunday showed at least 222 people were killed in holiday traffic accidents during the weekend, which began at 8 p.m. local time Friday and was to end at midnight Monday.

California reported the highest number of fatalities at 19, followed by Texas with 24. Florida had 16, Wisconsin 11, and Georgia 10. Illinois, Ohio, Tennessee and Washington each had 9 reported deaths.

Reagan toils in sun on ranch

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — President Reagan toiled in the sun at his mountain-top ranch Sunday as if he had never been struck by a would-be assassin's bullet.

Press aide David Prospero told reporters the president, on his second full day at the 68-acre retreat overlooking the Pacific Ocean, resumed all his normal ranch pursuits.

The only variation was a switch of horses. The president and Mrs. Reagan were joined by some aides and Secret Service agents for a morning jaunt. Otherwise, Reagan resumed his regimen of horseback riding, chopping wood and clearing brush left from a March snowstorm.

Haig draws jeers, ovation

FAIRFIELD, Conn. (UPI) — Secretary of State Alexander Haig, pestered by anti-war protesters, warned graduates at Fairfield University Sunday Soviet intervention in the Third World poses a threat to Western security which the United States "cannot ignore."

As Haig approached the podium, a young man in the audience shouted repeatedly, "Mr. Haig is a murderer!" An usher removed the protester who was jeered by about 1,000 graduates and their families. Security also hustled out a woman who began screaming "Murderer! Murderer!" The audience later gave Haig two standing ovations.

Today's weather

Shows, some gusty winds possible in region

Twin Falls, Gooding-Jerome, and Burley are in the rain shadow.

Occasional showers and possible thundershowers today. Light winds; gusts near showers. Lows tonight upper 40s to low 50s. Highs today 75 to 80, Tuesday upper 70s to low 80s. Partly cloudy Tuesday.

Halley, Camas Prairie and Wood River Valley:

Widely scattered showers and possible thundershowers today. Light winds near showers. Partly cloudy Tuesday. Lows tonight low 40s. Highs both days upper 60s to low 70s.

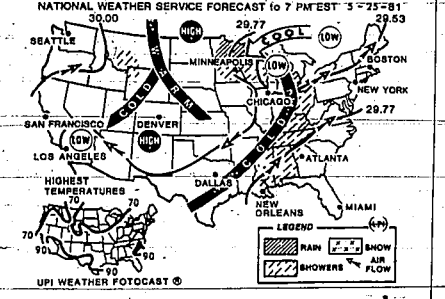

Northern Nevada and northern Utah:

In Nevada, variable clouds this morning, increasing cloudiness with showers and possible thundershowers today and Tuesday. Lows tonight in the 40s and 50s; highs 75 to 85. In Utah, variable cloudiness through Tuesday. Widely scattered showers, mainly near the mountains. Lows today 45 to 55. Highs in the 70s today, 70s and low 80s Tuesday. Increasing southerly winds in northwest Utah Tuesday.

Synops:

Showers are expected to dampen southwesterly Idaho as the three-day Memorial Day weekend concludes.

Partial cloudiness will continue Tuesday, with predicted high temperatures ranging from the upper 60s in the Wood River Valley, to the upper 70s or low 80s in the Twin Falls area.

Eastern Idaho streams remain high as anglers wind up the opening weekend of fishing season, but main river arteries have leveled off since Saturday.

Cloudy skies prevailed in most of Idaho Sunday. Rainfall was generally below .10 of an inch. Cloud cover Saturday night and early Sunday kept low temperatures above normal, with the trapping of infrared heat from the earth's surface creating a greenhouse effect over much of southern Idaho.

Hagerman was the warmest place in Idaho Sunday, reporting 80 degrees. Deadwood was the coolest, at 31.

The extended forecast calls for rain Wednesday, decreasing showers Thursday and dry skies Friday. Highs generally will be in the 70s and overnight lows in the 40s. There will be little change in temperatures until Wednesday through Friday.

In the Magic Valley, plant emergence and growth will remain good through Friday as mild temperatures prevail.

Pan evaporation is expected to be .20 inch today and .23 Tuesday. Spraying conditions will be fair through Monday, with showers and 5 to 10 mph winds.

Soil temperatures showed a maximum Sunday up 1 degree and no change in the maximum today.

Elsewhere in the nation Sunday, the warmest temperature was 103 at Blythe, Calif., and Bullhead City, Ariz., and the coldest was 32 at Laramie, Wyo.

Bradley charges 'hidden agenda' in Social Security cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Bill Bradley accused the Reagan administration Sunday of having a "hidden agenda" in its controversial plan to cut Social Security benefits.

"My suspicion is the administration proposes to cut older Americans' benefits and use those funds to finance the deficit that's going to be created from this ridiculous tax program and dramatic increases in defense expenditures," Bradley, a member of the Senate Finance Committee, said in a UPI Roundtable broadcast.

"The amount of revenue that you're going to save from this is much more than you need to secure the viability of the Social Security," he said.

Bradley, D-N.J., attacked the administration proposal to trim benefits for early retirees and tighten disability standards as "inequitable."

"I think that it's excessive and I think that it's overly abrupt and I think there could be even a hidden agenda here," he said.

Bradley said he favors keeping the Social Security system solvent by financing the disability and medical components from general tax revenues rather than the Social Security tax.

"Of course, that would mean $27 billion, $28 billion dollars in the deficit... but at least it's an honest way to handle it," he said.

Under the administration plan, he said, "the big chunk of this cut is going to fall on those older Americans who are 62 and who have health problems and have to retire."

"The larger question" about Reagan's plan to cut Social Security, Bradley said, "is that he said he wouldn't do it and he has done it."

"That means either that he didn't understand what was awaiting him, he didn't understand the budget and what it took to cut the budget, or he's gone back on his word."

Criticizing the administration's proposed three-year 30 percent tax cut, Bradley said its effect would be to fuel inflation, raise interest rates beyond 20 percent "and push the economy as a whole into a recession."

But he said Reagan was under increasing pressure to modify the economic program and predicted the president would be forced to let Congress play a greater role in shaping it.

"There is not a great deal of confidence in this economic program," Bradley said, noting interest rates were once again very high.

"I think that there are a lot of people in the president's own party who are beginning to caution him in stronger tones about the economic course that he's following," Bradley said.

Investigator stands on river bank near where body recovered

Atlanta officers find another body

ATLANTA (UPI) — The body of a nude black male was found Sunday in the Chattahoochee River, the same stream where five of 27 other young blacks slain in the last 22 months were dumped, police said.

A witness at the scene said the nude body was lying half-submerged about two feet from the river's heavily wooded south shore — in the Atlanta city limits — in an isolated area favored by fishermen.

The discovery by two youths who were fishing prompted an immediate call for the special police task force formed to investigate the mysteries extending back to July, 1971.

But deputy police Chief Morris Reeling, head of the task force, said, "The only thing we have at this time is the body of a black male that was recovered from the Chattahoochee River. We will have no other information until tomorrow (Monday)."

Two rescue boats from Cobb County, separated from Fulton County by the river, were called to retrieve the body which was taken to the Fulton County medical examiner's office to await identification and an autopsy.

Dr. John Feege, assistant medical examiner, said the body was that of a black male in his early 20s, but Dr. Robert Silvers said further identification efforts would await an autopsy to be performed today.

One other spokesman at the morgue said x-ray was used Sunday to determine if the body had been shot, but other tests were delayed until today.

Only one missing person was on the task force list, 19-year-old Darron Glass who dropped from sight last September, but Atlanta police posted alerts within the last two days for two young men.

Ronald Crawford, 22, at 6-foot-1 and 145 pounds, was taller than the other victims, but was said to be mentally retarded like two others. He was last seen by his family May 15.

The other missing man, Clyde Austin, was 26 years old — older than any other victim — but he stood 5-foot-4 and weighed 165 pounds. He dropped from sight Friday after leaving his wife at a hospital and promising to return with clothing for her.

Of the other murder victims, all but four were 17 or younger and only two were females.

Sunday's discovery came 12 days after the body of the latest victim on the list, 17-year-old William Barrett, was found beside a dead-end road that parallels Interstate 20 just beyond Atlanta's eastern boundary.

In addition to the five bodies found in the Chattahoochee, which winds along the city's northern and western boundaries, three others have been pulled from the South River which flows south of town.

There were unconfirmed reports that Crawford had been seen by persons living in the same downtown area where he lived, but police said the investigation of his disappearance was "still open."

Why not save humans as well as whales?

Schweiker admits policies confusing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Health and Human Services Secretary Richard Schweiker, in a heated exchange about the administration's anti-abortion policies, said Sunday he has difficulty understanding "why we can get all wrought up about tadpoles and not unborn kids."

Asked in an interview on NBC's "Meet the Press" whether the administration's promise to "get government off the backs of the people" contradicts its belief that abortion, even in cases of rape or incest, should be banned, Schweiker responded: "I think where actually I see the contradiction is that we have a proposal that in essence says we are going to save the baby seals, we are going to save the baby whales, we are even going to save the small darters and stop a dam, but we won't save the unborn child."

"I have trouble understanding why we can get all wrought-up about tadpoles and not unborn kids."

Columnist Carl Rowan of the Chicago Sun-Times interjected, "I'm talking about women, not tadpoles."

"So am I," Schweiker retorted, "and I'm talking about unborn babies and the right to kill them."

The secretary said the administration believes "the fetus has the same right as the mother, once the fetus is on its way."

Responding to questions about last week's Senate vote of 96-0 rejecting the administration plan to substantially reduce Social Security benefits to people retiring at the age of 62, Schweiker said it was the "least painful" way to save the retirement system from bankruptcy.

He conceded that faced with congressional rejection, the administration is willing to negotiate a bipartisan approach to solving the system's financial problems.

Schweiker said he hopes to meet with House leaders either Thursday or Friday of this week.

The secretary was also asked to explain why "so much money has to be cut from human services by the administration, but so much money seems to be asked for and seems to be made available for the Pentagon."

Schweiker, claiming he can "easily explain that," said the Reagan administration plans to spend "16 percentage points more on social welfare than John Kennedy did and 12 percentage points less on defense."

"It's very understandable," he said, "but the media really hasn't copylefted it."

Medical marijuana limited?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A marijuana reform group said Sunday the federal government is trying to restrict the access of states to natural marijuana for medical purposes, forcing them to accept synthetic pills instead.

And for the first time, the Alliance for Cannabis Therapeutics said, the government is beginning to admit there is not enough natural marijuana to meet the demands of state programs which allow the use of marijuana for cancer chemotherapy and glaucoma patients.

"For years federal officials told the states that supplies of marijuana were adequate to the nation's medical needs," Robert Randall, president of ACT, said. "Unfortunately, that is not the case," he said.

For years federal officials told the states that supplies of marijuana were adequate to the nation's medical needs, "but the federal government has tried to push synthetic Delta-9-THC as an adequate substitute for marijuana. THC is not an adequate substitute."

Since 1978, a total of 30 states have passed laws allowing cancer and glaucoma patients legal access to marijuana. The drug is believed useful in curbing some side effects of chemotherapy and in relieving inner eye pressure in glaucoma patients.

Randall claims the federal government is trying to undermine the state programs by pushing the synthetic THC pills.

"The National Cancer Institute is seeking to control state access to marijuana," Randall said. "NCI will use its control over the outlet of marijuana to the states to force the states, and seriously ill Americans, to accept a medically inferior product."

Part of the problem, according to Randall, is that the state laws allowing marijuana use are based on "medical compassion" while the federal government's approach is to continue to treat marijuana and THC as "research drugs," thus forcing state programs into a bureaucratic maze to implement their programs.

The NCI determines if a state program is "meritorious" and non-duplicative. Only 10 of the 30 states that have passed marijuana legislation have been able to implement programs, most of those are on a much smaller scale than state health officials anticipated.

Car plows into crowd in market, injures 28

NEW YORK (UPI) — A stolen car being chased by police plowed through a barricade into a jammed street market Sunday.

It injured 28 holiday shoppers who were unable to get out of the way in the panicked scramble for safety.

Police said the speeding car crashed through several food stands before colliding with a building shortly before noon on Manhattan's lower East Side.

"There was just no place for the people to run," said Natalie Sosinsky who witnessed the carnage from her husband's store on Orchard Street.

"It was like dropping a basketball among a bunch of pigeons. I saw all these people flying away from the corner and this light blue car coming down the street followed by a police car. And I heard this terrible crunching — bones I guess," she said.

Police said two Brooklyn men in the auto, Fernando Ponte, 17, and Victor Melendez, 21, were arrested and charged with car theft and reckless endangerment. A third suspect is being sought, police said.

Most of the injured were treated for bruises and broken bones, but at least two victims were hospitalized.

Burger wants mandatory education for inmates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chief Justice Warren Burger Sunday called for mandatory programs to train guards and educate prisoners as steps to curb crime.

In a commencement address at George Washington University Law School, Burger said the country was confused and lacked direction in efforts to cope with "an intractable problem that has plagued the human race for thousands of years."

Burger's remarks expanded the theme he first sounded in a February address to the American Bar Association. At that time, he called for a "damage control program" to deal with a rising crime rate and the "reign of terror in American cities."

He suggested increased spending for law enforcement and prison renovation and drew considerable controversy by calling for inmates on the numbers of inmates in criminal cases and restricting release on bail before trial.

In his commencement speech, Burger, 73, advocated mandatory educational programs for prisoners with incentives such as shortened sentences to induce participation.

WARREN E. BURGER ... seeks crime curbs

"The first would be to make certain that every inmate who cannot read, write, spell and do simple arithmetic would be given that training — not as an optional matter but as a mandatory requirement," Burger said.

For the longer term prisoner, Burger recommended mandatory vocational training in the skilled and semi-skilled crafts.

"The objective would be that a prisoner would not leave the institution without some qualifications for employment in the construction, manufacturing or service industries."

Burger, who has been chief justice of the nation's highest court since 1969, also recommended the creation of a national academy of corrections to train prison guards and provide technical assistance to state and local prisons.

"In all too many state penal institutions the personnel — the attendants and guards — are poorly trained and some are not trained at all for the sensitive role they should perform."

Also, he said there was "an astonishing rate" of turnover among correctional officers.

This results in prison personnel becoming "part of the problem rather than part of the solution," Burger commented.

Although he conceded his proposals would be costly, he noted estimates of the annual cost of crime are $100 billion stemming from loss suffered by victims, increased insurance rates, increased homeowners security, beated up police forces and increased court facilities.

Michigan, Nevada prisons quiet but tension remains

By United Press International

Hostile quiet prevailed Sunday at prisons in Michigan and Nevada where riots in which more than 30 people were injured last week were quelled by SWAT teams and prison guards.

Michigan Gov. William G. Milliken ordered a special task force to investigate what caused the worst outbreak of violence in three decades at two of the state's facilities.

Authorities in Utah continued their search for a convicted murderer who escaped from the Utah State Prison by overpowering a guard and stealing his clothes.

A "nerve-racking" routine returned to the Southern Michigan Prison, the world's largest walled facility, housing 5,600 inmates.

Inmates were allowed out of their cells for the first time since Friday's day-long riot. The only reported incident was minor — a guard was struck with a rock as the prisoners walked through the prison yard toward the dining hall. He did not require hospital treatment.

"It's nerve-racking," said Jackson guard Gerry Fryt. "But so far, we've been lucky. Everything's smooth. It's going slowly, but good."

But 7 1/2 miles northwest of Jackson, inmates remained confined for a second day at the Michigan Reformatory at Ionia, where bloody rioting broke out hours after the Jackson uprising.

The riot at Southern Michigan State Prison reportedly started after guards began locking up prisoners, telling them they would stay locked in their cells through the Memorial Day weekend because guards were staging a work stoppage.

Officials said they believed the Jackson riot at least initially sparked the melee at Ionia.

A spokesman for Gov. William G. Milliken said a special state task force would be named this week to conduct a wide-ranging probe of the prison problems.

A shakedown to search for weapons was under way at Ionia. A shakedown by Jackson guards Saturday produced boning knives and meat cleavers stolen during the disturbance and an assortment of homemade weapons.

Prison officials in Nevada said inmates were quiet at the Nevada State Prison near Carson City the day after a SWAT team firing automatic rifles put down an uprising.

A prisoner, David Wayne, 37, identified as "one of the most dangerous men in the United States, took three guards hostage at gunpoint and freed 50 hardened criminals from Death Row and top security cells before surrendering after 10 hours Saturday.

Four guards and at least 25 inmates were injured in the Michigan disorders. Two prisoners were hurt in the Nevada uprising — neither seriously.

Utah authorities searched Sunday for Edward Dale Hardy, 29, a convicted murderer who escaped from the Utah State Prison by holding a knife to a guard, then putting on the officer's clothes and driving away in the guard's car. The guard was not hurt.

House leader predicts tax cut compromise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Democratic leader Jim Wright of Texas predicted Sunday a compromise tax cut will be reached because President Reagan's three-year, 30 percent proposal would send national debts "spiraling through the roof."

The majority leader told television interviewers he believed the "ingredients for compromise" involve letting Reagan preserve some form of a multi-year cut, while agreeing to give relatively more relief to "middle-income Americans and working poor who are the most helpless victims of inflation."

Wright, guest on CBS' "Face the Nation," said not only Democrats but "responsible" Republicans have been telling the president there is a need to cut compromise.

"If the administration and Congress are unable next year to match this year's "draconian budget cuts, 30 percent tax cuts could send our debts spiraling through the roof."

The 30 percent cut proposed by Reagan, Wright said, "could be putting in motion some $150 million, and I think the Democrats are leary of that."

Also, he said, the Democrats would like to see elimination of some "inequitable" current clauses such as the so-called marriage-penalty tax and addition of some changes to make it more attractive for lower income Americans to save.

Wright professed no concern that conservative Democrats who voted with Reagan on the deep budget cuts will bolt to the Republican Party as has been publicly speculated.

'Brain drain' may include shuttle team

NEW YORK (UPI) — The number of top government employees retiring to higher paying private-sector jobs is increasing dramatically and NASA expects to lose much of its space shuttle team in the "brain drain," Newsweek magazine said Sunday.

Newsweek in its latest edition reported that there has been a five-fold increase in the number of top employees in the 25-to-59 age bracket retiring since 1977. It said a full 95 percent of workers in that category left government service on pension last year.

Newsweek said many young civil servants are also quitting their jobs for higher salaries in private employment.

The magazine said that now that the first shuttle flight has been successfully completed, NASA is expecting to lose much of its shuttle team to private industry where salaries are sometimes triple what the space agency pays.

Donald K. "Deke" Slayton, who served as the shuttle's flight test manager, is leaving his job and told Newsweek that with his government pension, he can make more doing manual labor than staying with the space agency.

The magazine said the increasing "brain drain" comes at a time when President Reagan appears to have abandoned his campaign pledge to increase the salaries for the government's top bureaucrats.

Newsweek said that low pay accounted for an all-time high attrition rate at the Securities and Exchange Commission. And the magazine said the National Institute of Health has been rebuffed by five candidates for the top job in its Cancer Cause and Prevention Division because the minimum-salary-of-$50,112 cannot compare to what they could make in the private sector.

Bush reiterates stand on rights

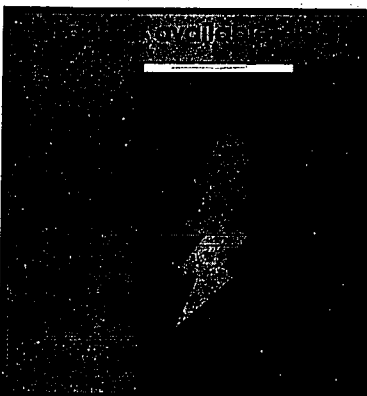

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va. (UPI) — The Reagan administration is committed to improving human rights worldwide, but will not "shout from the rooftops" to do so, Vice President George Bush said Sunday.

"This administration is pledged to human rights," he said in a commencement address at the University of Virginia.

"We will work to effect changes to help improve human rights, but we're going to do it quietly. We will not be selective in our indignation," he said.

Idaho uses nearly all of its available electricity.

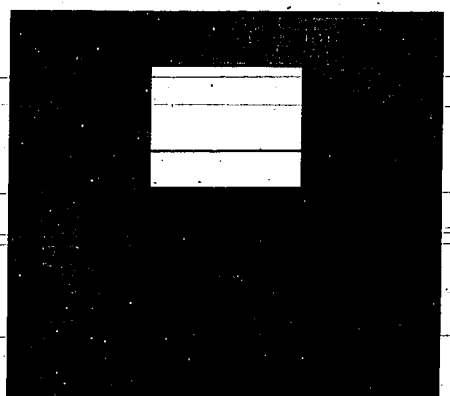

The remaining electricity available for use in Idaho should be conserved for essential electric service in our homes and to fulfill the power requirements for new industries and new jobs for Idaho's work force.

The surplus gas available now for heating and water heating in Idaho is equal to 1,000 megawatts of electricity for the same purpose. It could cost a billion dollars to build new thermal power plants to produce that much additional electricity and rates would increase significantly. If natural gas is used for heating and water heating, it won't be neces-

Natural gas should be used for space heating and water heating whenever possible. The surplus gas is available and the delivery system is in place which means we can use for more gas without investing hundreds of millions of dollars to produce the same amount of electrical energy.

Acuff modest over TV special

By United Press International

MODESTY ITSELF

NBC is planning a two-hour special next season to honor Roy Acuff, "King of Country Singers." Roy modestly says, "I doubt if I'm well enough known to warrant such national attention. I suppose the producers will surround me with enough biggies to make the show a success." Well, let's see. Dolly Parton, Kenny Rogers, Emmylou Harris and dozens of other country stars will take part in the show, to be taped at the Grand Ole Opry House in Nashville in September.

LIFE IMITATING ART

Barbara Cartland, step-grandmother of Lady Diana Spencer, says "Lady Di's" romance with Britain's Prince Charles sounds like one of her own popular romantic novels. "It mirrors my plot lines, where a virginal heroine, like Di, falls passionately in love with a man of nobility and rakkish, if not raffish, characteristics, like Charles," she told People Magazine. "Di is chaste and chided, just like one of my characters. The world is returning to love and pure morals. It turns out I was right all along." Miss Cartland, 79, has written 307 of what she likes to call her "bodice-ripper" books.

She had been given only a month or two to live and could hardly walk before she underwent the surgery early this month. Her new heart came from an unidentified 11-year-old child killed in an accident. "She's real excited about getting home and running around the other kids," said Cindy's mother, Betty Spicer.

HONOR FOR CAREER

Actress Helen Hayes has been named this year's recipient of the Virginia Museum Theater's third annual award for outstanding contribution to the American professional theater, the museum announced during the weekend. Miss Hayes, 80, who has come to be known as "the first lady of the American stage," said she was "deeply honored" by the selection. Miss Hayes, whose long career spans more than 70 years on the stage and screen, is best known to contemporary audiences for her Academy Award-winning performance in the film "Airport." She will accept the award in Richmond on Sept. 1.

House plants love old, outdated pills

BOULTE, La. (UPI) — Two beauticians in Southeast Louisiana have discovered an illegal, unorthodox way to use old birth control pills and their house plants are thriving.

For more than a year, Sue Holder and her sister, Margie Watson, have been dissolving old birth control pills in water and using the liquid as plant fertilizer. Holder says the results have been amazing.

Thriving vegetation blankets the tables and walls of their beauty shop. Pointing to a blooming begonia hanging in the window, she said: "A year and a half ago, you could see the pot and all its rope tassels." The plant now trails well over four feet from the rim of its pot down to the floor and the tassels are concealed by the thick foliage.

Although the possession of outdated birth control pills violates both federal-state-drug-laws, drug-enforcement agents have more pressing problems.

"I don't think we'll be going out looking for some lady putting pills on her geraniums," said Ron Hingle, administrator of the state Office of Health Services and Environmental Protection.

Holder and Watson dissolve three or four pills in a gallon of water every week and pour the hormone-laden solution on the dozen or so plants hanging or standing in the front of the shop.

Miss Holder says the diluted pills revived a corn plant and a false aralia, both of which were dying. Holder sticks about a year ago. She discovered, however, a too potent concentration of the solution can do more harm than good. "I tried four pills in a small pitcher of water," said Ron Adams, another beautician at the shop. "Man, my plants grew fast, but they burned out."

Miss Holder first learned of the unusual fertilizer solution from a pharmaceutical salesman who came to the shop for a haircut. Watson later began swapping the outdated pills with a nurse from Gretna.

"I'd do her hair for nothing, she'd swap the pills for a cut," Watson said. Physiologists recently began studying the effects of steroid hormones on plant growth. Preliminary tests indicated a steroid compound called brassin caused a "reasonable increase in growth" on potato and tomato plants, said Dr. Judy Bradov, a plant biochemist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

She said Holder and Watson may be years ahead of many plant scientists. "They may have lucked into the cutting edge of science," Dr. Bradov said.

But Dr. Bradov warned of possible health problems that now prevent many women from using the pill.

"These steroids will remain in the plants," she said. "That's OK for ornamental house plants, but I don't think I'd put them on my tomatoes."

Receivership last blow for bankruptcy court

DETROIT (UPI) — The federal bankruptcy court in Detroit, its chief clerk indicted, its judges under investigation and its reputation sullied, faces what could be the ultimate irony:

The court is in receivership. The U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals took control recently of the Detroit court, which is responsible for taking over the financial disasters of people and business but is rapidly becoming its own disaster.

Allegations, surrounding the court, include charges of sexual misconduct, cronyism and on-the-job drunkenness. The takeover move by the appeals court came after the indictment last month of the bankruptcy court's chief clerk, William Harper. He was charged with buying items from the estate of a bankrupt man while an officer of the court in 1976 — a violation of federal law.

Trial is now pending for Harper, but the problems did not end there. Records show that the FBI and a grand jury are investigating allegations including promotions for some female clerks court depended on sexual favors; and that the blind-draw system of assigning cases to bankruptcy judges — crucial to the court's integrity — was tampered with to benefit certain lawyers.

Also under investigation is an allegation Senior Bankruptcy Judge Harry Hackett awarded extraordinary fees to one lawyer and that the pair have a close tie, including taking trips together.

"It's all hearsay," said Hackett, who this week faces a routine merit hearing to determine if he is qualified to remain a bankruptcy judge.

Lettergate' catches up with staff

Station sacks letter writers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Five employees of WABC-TV accused of falsifying letters purportedly written by viewers have resigned or been fired, station officials say.

Another 10 employees of the ABC affiliate who were associated with three programs on which the phony letters appeared received "letters of admonition," the officials said.

The station's general manager, William Fyffe, went on the air at 7 p.m. Saturday to announce the action. He did not identify any of the employees.

Fyffe described the incidents as "directly contrary to WABC-TV's standards of honest and forthright programming."

A spokesman for the station said Sunday that WABC had initiated a widespread investigation into the matter after a Brooklyn man complained that he had not written a letter attributed to him that was read on a program called "Airmail Special."

The station canceled the program in late March after staff members admitted writing some of the letters that were aired on the program.

Subsequently, the spokesman said, the station's investigation revealed that "similar occurrences" had been discovered on two other programs: "Good Morning New York" and "Eyewitness News."

Fyffe said that "Good Morning New York," a daytime program, contained a segment based on household hints furnished by viewers. In seven or eight instances, Fyffe said, the "hints" had actually been written by staff members. He also said that a segment of the station's "Eyewitness News" program called "Legal Briefs" contained a number of question supposedly submitted by viewers that were actually written by staff members.

"We are determined that WABC-TV integrity will not be compromised. Other appropriate actions are being taken to prevent departures from our standards in the future," Fyffe said in a prepared statement.

A station spokesman said that the employees in question were dismissed or resigned on Friday. He added that the station was satisfied that no further investigation was necessary. "As far as we are concerned, this is the end of it," he said.

Debate looming over nuclear policies for Japan

TOKYO (UPI) — Former U.S. Ambassador Edwin Reischauer's attempt to cure Japan's "nuclear allergy" sets the stage for tough questioning this week that could lead to a debate on embattled Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki's ability to lead the nation.

Suzuki and his cabinet ministers go before the houses of parliament during a specially extended session expected to center on his ability to run the government and the whole nuclear issue.

Since the 1960s the Liberal Democratic Party governments that have continuously ruled Japan, including Suzuki's, have vowed that the nation that suffered the atomic bomb at Hiroshima and Nagasaki will not make, possess or introduce nuclear weapons.

But last week Reischauer said U.S. warships carrying atomic weapons have entered Japanese ports and traveled through its waters for decades.

"I think it's about time for the Japanese public and government to simply recognize that fact," said Reischauer, an historian of Japan.

The Suzuki government denied Reischauer's claim and after wavering at one point, Suzuki said if permission were sought by the U.S. to have warships with nuclear armaments ply Japanese waters, the answer would be "No."

Reischauer said he was surprised at the furor, saying the Japanese realized it was "common sense" to know the ships had nuclear weapons.

The furor touched off by Reischauer comes at a time when several incidents are causing friction in U.S.-Japanese relations.

A U.S. nuclear-powered submarine armed with Polaris missiles on April 9 accidentally rammed and sank a Japanese freighter in international waters and left the scene unaware the vessel was sinking, with two men dead and 13 survivors left to float for hours before being rescued.

Suzuki met with President Reagan in Washington May 7-8, signed a communique for the first time calling Tokyo-Washington relations an "alliance," a word which had military overtones to critics. His foreign minister resigned because of the controversy.

U.S. Navy ships on joint maneuvers with Japanese vessels apparently cutting fishing lines in the Sea of Japan, outraging fishermen.

Japanes government observers said they were surprised at the controversy caused by Reischauer's statements.

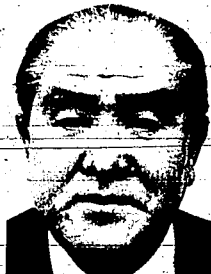

"Until today, we've lived in a kind of Alice-in-Wonderland situation," Hideaki Kase, director of the Japan Center for the Study of Security Issues and an advocate of a bigger Japanese defense role, told UPI in an interview. "Everyone knows we rely on the U.S. nuclear umbrella, that the U.S. nuclear umbrella is the core of our mutual security. Everyone knows the (U.S.) ships are not going to get rid of their weapons before entering Japan."

The politicians knew, the public knew. I'm sure over 90 percent of the public knows U.S. warships do carry nuclear weapons when they enter our territorial waters."

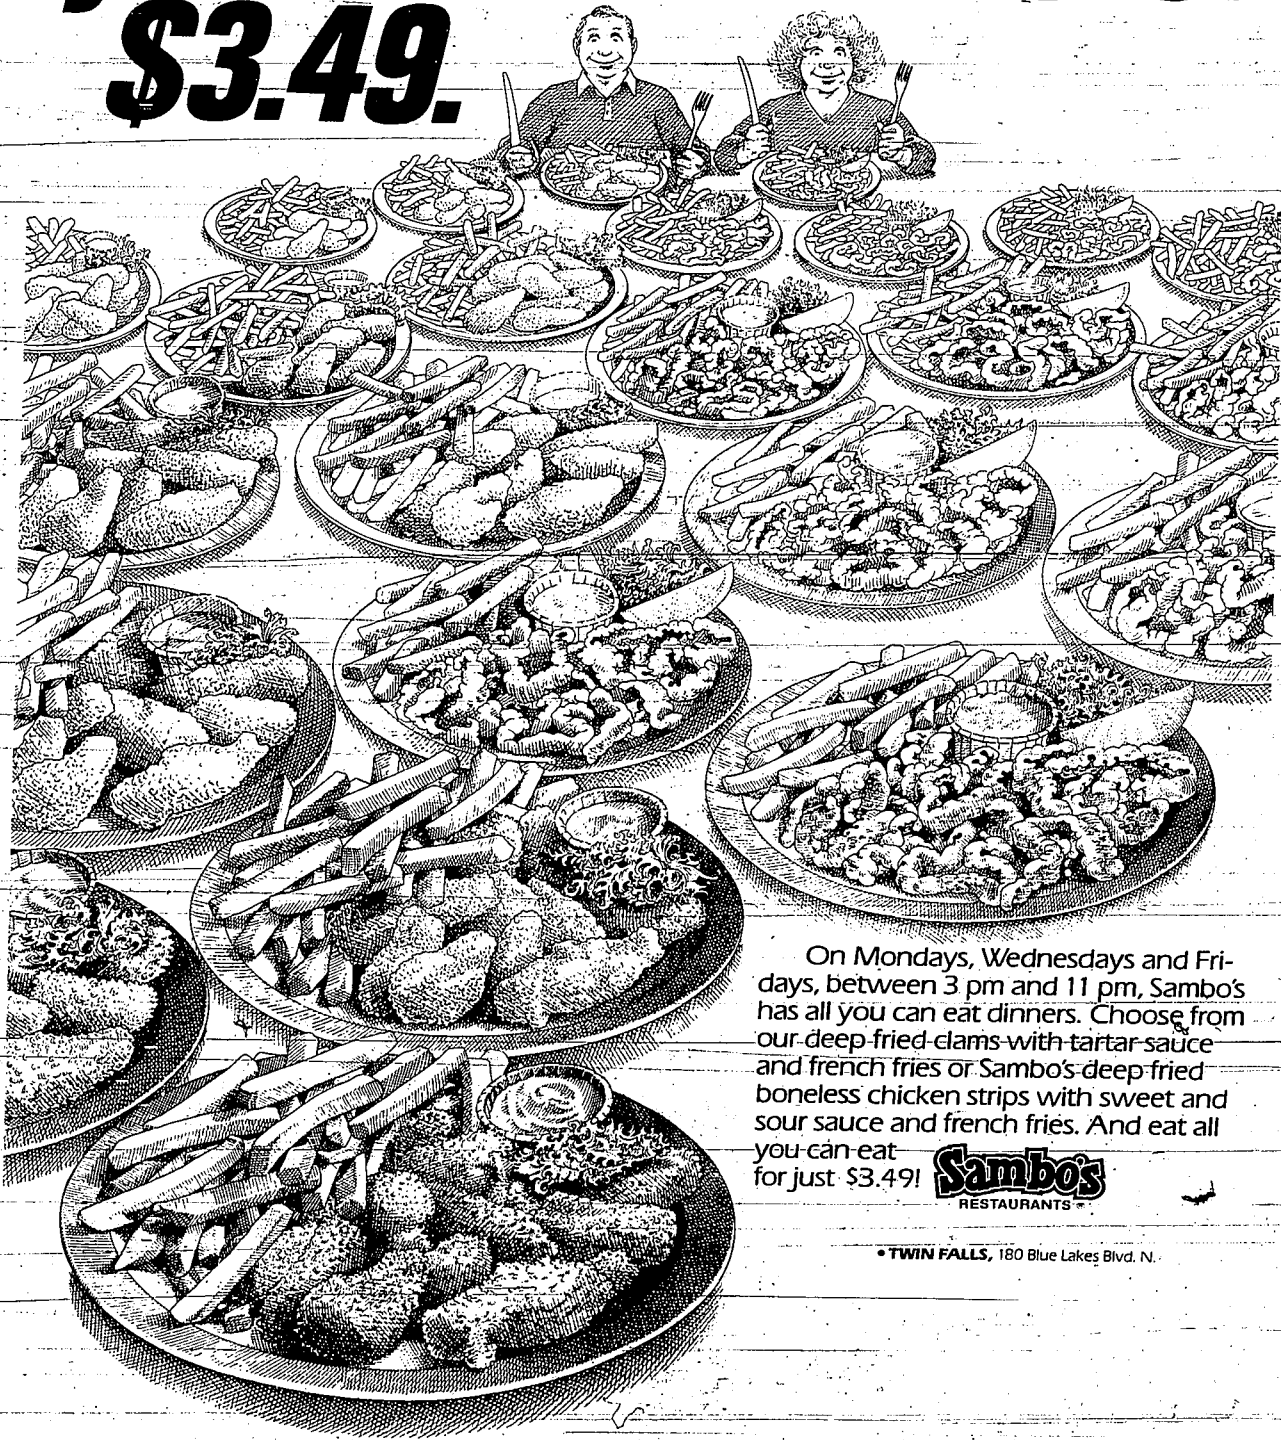

Another advocate of a greater Japanese military commitment is Jun Eto, a Tokyo Institute of Technology professor specializing in American-Japanese comparative literature and culture.

Eto was in Washington in 1979-80, watching the "growing crisis and feeling of military inadequacy."

Dear Abby

Nob Hill neighbor scorns new visitors

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Two men who claim to be father and adopted son just bought an old mansion across the street and fixed it up. We notice a very suspicious mixture of company coming and going at all hours — blacks, whites, Orientals, women who look like men and men who look like women. We even saw a nun and a priest go inside.

People come in everything from motorcycles to Cadillacs.

This has always been considered one of the finest sections of San Francisco, and these weirdos are giving it a bad name. How can we improve the neighborhood?

—NOB HILL RESIDENTS
DEAR RESIDENTS: You could move.

DEAR ABBY: My mother is having a nervous breakdown. Her home was robbed last week and she lost all her jewelry and silver. (No insurance.)

You had a letter in your column some time ago from a woman who had lost all her treasures in a flash flood. Your reply was brilliant. Now I'm sorry I didn't clip it out and save it so I could show it to my mother. It might put material things in their proper perspective. Please try to find that column and run it again. Thank you.

—PALM SPRINGS
DEAR PALM SPRINGS: I found it. And here it is:

DEAR ABBY: About a month ago we had a flash flood, and I lost nearly all the treasures I had saved for 45 years. Albums filled with pictures and snapshots, letters, clippings — none of which can be replaced. I had them stored in plastic containers, and when I opened them, all I found was mud and water!

It seems that a part of my life is gone, and I am heartick over it. I am 60 and have had a very happy life. Our children are married and gone, and there are just the two of us.

I've tried to keep busy and not dwell on my loss, but it is on my mind constantly. I wish I could forget this terrible nightmare.

Somehow I feel that you can help me. Abby, have you ever lost any of your treasures? And if you have, how did you get over it?

—DEPRESSED
DEAR DEPRESSED: Yes, dear. I lost my beautiful mother in 1945. (She was only 57.) And a few years later, I lost a wonderful father. (He was 62.) And not a day passes but I don't thank God for letting me have my parents for as long as I did. I know many who were not nearly as blessed as I, and I think of those who have survived a far greater tragedy — losing their children.

Now, what were you saying about clippings and pictures and other "treasures"?

DEAR ABBY: I own my own business and I hire many high school students for part-time work. Abby, you cannot imagine how many parents call me and ask if I have a job for Ann or Tom!

If Ann and Tom want to work, I think they should do the asking. Having Mama and Dad ask for them doesn't say much for the child's initiative.

I feel it is important for young people to work and I give as many of them a break as I can, but I have made it a policy never to hire anyone whose mother or father calls and asks me to give the child a job. If a boy or girl is old enough to draw a salary, he or she is old enough to ask for a job.

I am sure other employers share my viewpoint. And if this letter helps to wake up just one teen-ager, it will have been worth the time I took to write it.

—E. IN MINNEAPOLIS
DEAR E: I'm glad you wrote. I'm sure you wake up more than just ONE teen-ager. (And a few parents, too.)

Metabolism of bulls and men differ

DEAR DR. LAMB — I don't agree with you about vitamin E. I have read that if cows don't have enough vitamin E in their diet they will have heart failure. And I know it is used to increase the potency of bulls. In view of that I don't see how you can say it is not necessary for people to take vitamin E. I have also heard that it is good in preventing aging. Besides that, there is no harm in taking extra vitamin E.

DEAR READER — The point is I know the difference between cows, bulls and people. So do most responsible investigators.

It is quite true that cows require vitamin E and a deficiency can lead to heart failure. There has never been a documented case of heart failure in humans, because of vitamin E deficiency. You see, our metabolic system is different from a cow's or a bull's.

Many people do not realize that much of nutrition is based on pure science, not opinions. The biochemistry of metabolism is well established. You can write the chemical formulas for each step of the chemical actions that involve processing your food and providing energy for your body. Biochemistry is the basis for many of the statements of competent nutritionists, such as the fact that selenium can be used in place of vitamin E for metabolism in man.

Vitamin E was first discovered as essential to improve the fertility of rats. There is no evidence that it improves the fertility of man. It is sold, though, by some unscrupulous people under the guise of improving one's sex life.

The real history of vitamin E is discussed in The Health Letter No. 4-12, Vitamin E: Myth or Miracle, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long-stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Letter award plan.

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The city school board says academic achievement has been ignored for too long and it is considering a plan to award letters — similar to those given athletes — to students who excel in such things as debate, mathematics or even chess.

taking additional vitamin E besides what you should get in your diet will prevent aging. And there are some studies that suggest an excess intake of vitamin E can be harmful. I don't think the risk is great but you should be aware that some serious scientists don't think that popping large amounts of vitamin E is entirely harmless.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently a relative had chest pains and the doctor called it "walking pneumonia." A few days later he had swollen feet and swelling to the middle of the waistline. Does walking pneumonia produce these symptoms or was the chest pain from heart failure? Should a specialist be consulted?

DEAR READER — Walking pneumonia is not a real medical term, it means different things to different people. Your question, though, is very astute. Early in heart failure the accumulation of fluid in the lungs may cause a cough or breathlessness. The cough with noises in the lungs can be confused with pneumonia.

As the right side of the heart fails, the legs and abdomen may swell. Heart failure with fluid in the lungs may not cause pain unless there is an associated complication.

Blood clots to the lungs can cause chest pain and breathing problems. The overload on the right heart can cause failure.

A consultation with a heart specialist would certainly help if there is any question about the diagnosis.

At Wit's End Terminal boredom strikes all children

By ERMA BOMBECK
Field Enterprises, Inc.

You think America has come a long way toward finding a cure for the diseases that plague our society until you remember that summer is approaching and we are in for another epidemic of "There's nothing to do."

"There's nothing to do" is a form of terminal boredom that strikes children from the ages of 2-17, from every economic level in the United States. With some children, it's sporadic throughout the year, but on the last day of school, there is not a child in North America who is not afflicted.

"The malady is characterized by a whimpering that starts in the back of the throat and slowly works its way up through the nasal passage and out. Victims never suffer in silence. They eatwine themselves around your leg, throw themselves on the bed or on the hood of a car, or call you at the office where you work.

Offering suggestions for "something to do" only aggravates the condition. I have the unique distinction of having given birth to three poster children for "There's nothing to do."

In an attempt to alleviate their discomfort, I advised them to: Clean up your room ... hose out the garbage cans ... cut the grass ... take the bottles back to the store ... carry out the trash ... clean out the hamster cage ... sweep out the garage ... set the table ... clean out the fireplace ... go to the store for milk ... write thank-you notes for Christmas.

I should never have done that. They became quite hostile and lapsed into a coma in front of the TV set for five days.

One of the most tragic side effects of "There's nothing to do" is mothers. I've seen some of them in a given summer drop like flies from the pressures of dealing with the disease. I used to work with a woman who answered her phone every 15 minutes during June, July and August and shouted, "Do not put the doggie in the oven, Bruce. It will make him mean. I know you are bored. Why don't you let Mommy put a stamp on your forehead and mail you to cousin Grace?"

In the name of all that is compassionate, I am putting together a telephone for mothers of children with "There's nothing to do." There is much research to be done on why a child with $4,000 worth of toys is afflicted and how long a mother can put up with it until she snaps.

All donations are tax deductible and go toward sending a mother to a summer camp where ... there's nothing to do.

Few care as Iraq-Iran war drags on Monday, May 25, 1981 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho A-11

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Every day some young woman in Tehran or Baghdad or Basra or Dizful becomes a widow, and no one in the outside world cares any more.

Every day a tiny girl learning to walk or a boy who thinks mud walls are normal becomes an orphan. Every day a man who could hardly find Washington or Moscow on a map is blown apart by an American-made artillery shell or a Soviet-made tank.

But nobody much cares that the war between Iran and Iraq is still going on. Beirut is more important in the grand scheme of things these days. The artillery shells exploding along the green line now make headlines.

Basra, Iraq, is a forgotten city. Last October, Basra was in the headlines of every newspaper across the world. Now it has faded back to the obscurity it deserves.

On Sept. 22, 1980, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein sent his forces — teen-agers and men who thought they were national heroes — pouring across the Iranian border in several simultaneous attacks.

Young Iraqi soldiers rode past the university outside Basra in Soviet-made trucks on their way to the Iranian customs station 13 miles away at Silman.

The metal sign with the Pepsi-Cola trademark and the English words "Welcome to Iran" became a target for Iraqi reservists who probably had shot their Kalashnikov rifles only once or twice before in their lives.

Those same Iraqis — except for those like the three who were buried in the sand near a burned-out truck — probably are sitting in tents in Khorramshahr or outside Abadan today. Every day the Iranian Ministry of Information and the Iraqi News Agency dutifully put out progress reports on the war.

Last Tuesday was the 240th day of the war. The Iraqis issued their 507th war communique. It spoke of 83 Iraqis killed and 89 wounded.

The Iraqi News Agency that day said 38 Iranians — a word most Iraqis now loathe — had been killed.

If both reports were accurate, 121 young men died that day. Each report was exaggerated — adding up all the "enemies" and "aggressors" the Iraqis and Iranians claim to have killed since last September would leave both countries populated by little but mourning women and orphans.

Claims of jets and tanks and trucks and artillery pieces destroyed are equally inflated. But western Iran is one giant scrapyard, the brown dirt Iranians call desert littered with rusted hulks of tanks and trucks which American taxpayers bought for the Shah of Iran or which loyal Soviet workers donated to their brothers in Iraq.

The war communique last Tuesday said 50 people, some of them civilians, were killed near the Iranian city of Abadan.

Abadan once was the home of one of the world's largest oil refineries. Now it is home of one of the world's longest-burning fires. The oil storage tanks and pipelines have been spewing black smoke since Iraqi artillery shells hit them last September.

They found the refineries still, but few if any Western reporters are there to tell the story these days.

Nobody cares any more.

IRA gives permission to end hunger strike

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Another day of rioting swept Catholic areas of Belfast Sunday and the IRA said one of its hunger strikers may break his fast with its permission.

The hunger striker, Brendan McLaughlin, was reported suffering from a bleeding ulcer after 11 days without food and an IRA spokesman said he may give up his fast because of the physical pain.

In Belfast, Catholic rioters pelted police and British army vehicles with firebombs and bottles of acid as Ulster's strife claimed another life.

In one incident, a police Land Rover hit by firebombs careened out of control and hit and killed a man identified as Brendan Lynch, 33. He was the 15th victim of the violence rocking the province on an almost daily basis since the death of hunger striker Bobby Sands May 5.

In another incident, a rioter set himself on fire during the night in an accident with a molotov cocktail. His condition was not immediately known.

Kennedy backs Israeli demand for missile withdrawal

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy Sunday told a receptive crowd of Jewish youths he supports Israel's demand that Syria remove anti-aircraft missiles from Lebanon.

The Massachusetts Democrat said Syria's deployment of SAM missiles in Lebanon was an "unacceptable danger to peace."

"If these missiles are not removed, they will give military cover for PLO attacks on Israel," Kennedy said. "Syria's military forces there have abandoned any pretense of peace keeping."

Kennedy addressed about 800 cheering Jewish youths at a meeting of the American Assembly for Zionism and Israel at the Hilton Hotel in Manhattan.

Kennedy also sharply attacked the Reagan administration's proposal to sell AWACS, sophisticated radar-equipped reconnaissance planes, to Saudi Arabia.

The senator drew one of several standing ovations when he told the audience, "I strongly oppose the Reagan administration's decision to sell AWACS planes and advanced military equipment to Saudi Arabia. This is equipment we haven't even trusted to Western Europe."

The proposed sale must still be approved by Congress.

Woman meets pontiff

ROME (UPI) — One of two American women wounded in the attempt May 13 to kill Pope John Paul II in St. Peter's Square visited the pontiff Sunday in the hospital where the spiritual leader of the Roman Catholic church is recovering from serious gunshot wounds.

Rose Hall, 21, who was hit in the left arm by a bullet, went to John Paul's suite at Rome's Gemelli hospital shortly after leaving her own room at Santo Spirito hospital.

Mrs. Hall, formerly of Shirley, Mass., and now residing near Würzburg, West Germany, with her husband Ken, a Protestant minister, was wearing a large cast on her left arm. Her step was unsteady and her husband had to support her.

"He is truly a man of God," Mrs. Hall told reporters after her 10 minute meeting with John Paul. "He said he was very sorry that I had been wounded."

"I told him I was praying for him so that he would recover soon and that I offered my sufferings for his recovery," said Mrs. Hall who was wearing a yellow flowered top over her cast.

Hall, who accompanied his wife to the meeting, later told reporters the pope appeared "very weak, but was dignified. He gave his prayers."

Even as Mrs. Hall met the pope, a chorus of 60 Polish visitors sang outside his hospital window in John Paul's native Poland.

Vatican officials said Mrs. Hall met with the pope at John Paul's invitation. They said the other wounded American woman, Mrs. Ann Odre, 58, of Buffalo, N.Y., also had been invited to meet John Paul before returning to the United States. Mrs. Odre was critically wounded in the chest and abdomen and is still undergoing treatment at Santo Spirito hospital.

Earlier in the day, the pope made a tape recorded address over Vatican Radio and said he had dedicated his sufferings to the church and to all others who are ill. The pope's voice was still weak and shaky.

Pope target for protest of silence

NEW YORK (UPI) — Turkish terrorist Mehmet Ali Agca said in a handwritten note he wanted to kill Pope John Paul II to "protest the silence of the world" to the victims of American and Soviet terrorism, Newsweek said Sunday.

The two-page note, written in Turkish and found by Italian authorities on Agca, said that "American and Soviet Imperialism and dictators under their control have murdered hundreds of thousands of innocent victims," the magazine said.

Newsweek said it obtained a copy of the note dated the day the pope was shot.

To protest the silence of the world, he was obliged to try and kill the pope," the note said. "I have no personal aim, no personal desire."

Agca, accused of shooting the pope May 13, also called in his letter for the United Nations to "arrange a peace and disarmament conference" and to "immediately investigate matters of racial discrimination, religious pressures, hunger, health hazards, torture and human rights in general."

The note also said "developing countries should be excused from paying interest on their debts until they year 2000."

OPEC split on questions

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — On the eve of their first full conference this year, OPEC's 13 oil ministers conceded Sunday that they were deeply divided over how much oil they should sell and how much they should charge for it.

"It is highly unlikely that there would be agreement on the Saudi proposal for a price freeze lasting until the end of 1982," one United Arab Emirates delegate said.

"Saudi Arabia holds all the cards," he added.

The Saudis have glutted the market with about 2 million more barrels of oil per day than it needs in a bid to force the other producers to accept a price freeze.

But the president of the ministerial council, energy minister Subito of Indonesia, said the 13 nations of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries may clash over attempts to set a uniform cutback in production.

UAE Oil minister Mana Said Otaiba said "it is possible" that the ministers would agree during two days of talks on a general 10 percent production cutback and also agree to freeze prices near current levels.

Coors, Schlitz win season's first tourneys

Coors of Magic Valley's Wendy Coonts tightens up her muscles and urges the softball into the outfield for a hit during the women's championship game

TWIN FALLS — A pair of beer companies can add championship softball trophies to their shelves this week.

Coors of Magic Valley and Schlitz of Pocatello walked away with top honors in Twin Falls' first softball tournaments of the season Sunday.

Coors knocked off Intermountain Employment of Salt Lake City 7-5 for the championship of the Women's A League Tournament. Coors was undefeated throughout the two-day tournament, winning all of its games.

Likewise, Schlitz performed in the same winning manner, coasting through its schedule in winning the Men's B League Tournament.

The Pocatello team rallied from an early deficit and defeated Great Expectations of Jerome 14-7 for the title.

Great Expectations jumped out in front 5-0 after the first inning, but was held to just two runs in the final six. John Webb, the tournament's Most Valuable Player, gave Schlitz the lead for good in the fifth inning with a two-run homer to make it 6-7.

Schlitz worked itself into the finals with a 10-7 win over Circle 4 Cattle Company of Jerome Sunday morning. Circle 4 knocked Great Expectations into the losers bracket 8-5, but Great Expectations fought back with wins over The Hitchcock Motel of Ketchum, Hawkins' of Buhl and a revenge effort over Circle 4 Cattle Company in the semifinals.

Webb won the MVP honor by hitting .765 over the three-day span, which included four home runs. Circle 4 Cattle Company's Mike Desmond was the leading hitter with an average of .767.

Twyla Bulcher of Jerome was picked as leading hitter in the women's tournament. The Boise State graduate hit .714. Patty Wasiko was the tournament's MVP. Both women played for Coors of Magic Valley.

Los Angeles' bats come alive for split with Reds

The Los Angeles Dodgers waited too long to use their bats against Cincinnati in the first game of a double-header Sunday — and didn't need to use them in the second game.

Pered Thomas drove in four runs in the nightcap and the Dodgers took advantage of Bruce Berenyl's wildness to defeat the Reds 10-3 and gain a split of their double-header.

In the opener, four pitchers combined on a six-hitter and Ron Oester singled home what proved to be the winning run in the fourth inning to give the Reds a 3-2 triumph.

Berenyl, 4-2, retired the first batter in the fourth of the nightcap before throwing 15 consecutive balls and walking Rick Monday, Pedro Guerrero, Mike Scioscia and Thomas to force in the first run of the game.

National League

After striking out pitcher Dave Goltz, Berenyl walked Bill Russell to make it 2-0. Overall, the Dodgers received 13 walks from five pitchers in the game.

In the opener, Tom Seaver started for the Reds but departed after three innings when he re-injured his left thigh.

Paul Moskau, 2-1, loser of Saturday's 10-inning game, took over and was credited with the victory, although he needed relief help from Tom Hume and Joe Price.

San Diego 7, Atlanta 5
At Atlanta, pinch hitter Randy Bass lined a two-out, two-run single in the eighth to lift the Padres. Reliever John Curtis, 1-2, earned the victory while Dan Boone notched his first save. Phil Niekro, 2-3, took the loss.

New York 3, St. Louis 1
At St. Louis, John Stearns doubled home Lee Mazzilli with one out in the 10th to trigger a two-run outburst against Bruce Sutter, 1-3. Reliever Neil Allen raised his record to 3-1. Mazzilli and Keith Hernandez earlier traded homers.

Chicago 6, Montreal 2
At Chicago, Bill Buckner drove in three runs with a double and triple and Bill Caudill, 1-3, picked up his first victory in a starting role in three years.

The triumph marked the first time since last September Chicago has won two straight games. Montreal has lost eight of its last 12.

Pittsburgh 7, Philadelphia 1
At Pittsburgh, Jim Bibby, 3-2, smacked a two-run homer and combined with Victor Cruz on an eight-hitter. Marty Bystrom, 3-3, took the loss. Omar Moreno had a two-run single and Bill Madlock a two-run double.

San Francisco 2, Houston 1
At Houston, Vida Blue and Greg Minton combined on a five-hitter and Larry Herndon scored one run and drove in another to spark the Giants.

Blue, 4-3, struck out six and walked two over 7 1-3 innings before Minton came on with Gary Woods on second and retired the side.

Chicago slaughters California pitching

The Chicago White Sox found the perfect Memorial Day weekend taste treat — California Angels' pitching.

The White Sox feasted off the Angels' woeful staff, again Sunday, pounding out 13 hits en route to a 10-2 triumph that completed a sweep of their three-game series. The White Sox collected 34 runs and 45 hits in sweeping the three games.

Detroit 8-5, Baltimore 2-3
In the opener at Detroit, successive two-out run-scoring singles by Alan Trammell, Steve Kemp, Richie Hebner and Champ Summers drove in four unearned runs to highlight a five-run fourth inning that carried the

American League

Tigers to victory.

Lance Parrish hit two home runs, including a two-run shot with one out in the eighth inning, to give the Tigers a sweep.

Cleveland 12, New York 5
At New York, Mike Hargrove had three hits and three RBI and Alan Bannister added three hits and scored three runs in helping the Indians rout the Yankees at New York.

Kansas City 6, Minnesota 4
At Kansas City, Willie Alkens' two-run single highlighted a five-run seventh inning that lifted the Royals. Winner Rich Gale, 2-3, struck out nine, scattered eight hits and set down 17 batters in a row at one point.

Texas 5, Seattle 3
At Seattle, Buddy Bell drove in Mickey Rivers with a sacrifice fly in the seventh to break a 3-3 tie, lifting the Rangers to victory at Seattle and a sweep of their three-game series.

Milwaukee 2-10, Boston 1-7
At Milwaukee, Ted Simmons lofted a bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the 14th inning to score Charlie Moore from third base and lift the Brewers to victory in the opener. They lost snapped the Red Sox' six-game winning streak.

Roy Howell doubled home the tie-breaking run with two out in the eighth and Cecil Cooper followed with a two-run homer, enabling Milwaukee to complete its sweep.

Oakland 6-5, Toronto 5-0
Rickey Henderson singled home Rob Piccolo from second base with one out in the bottom of the 12th inning to lift the A's over Toronto at Oakland in the first game of a double-header. Tony Armas had four hits, including a game-tying homer in the 11th, and drove in three runs for Oakland.

Mike Norris became the AL's first seven-game winner and pitched his first shutout in leading the A's to victory in the nightcap for their sweep.

Andrews wins twice at TBS

TWIN FALLS — Mike Andrews of Twin Falls won the A Main event Sunday night during hobby stock racing at Thunder Bluff Speedway.

Andrews also won the B Heat race. Rick Marlon was second and Dave Page of Twin Falls was third.

Twin Falls' Johnny Lee scrambled to a win in the A Heat race ahead of St. Jaramillo and John Bates of Twin Falls. Gene Teske of Twin Falls won the C Heat race. Gary Young and Kurt Fairchild were second and third.

Marlon of Burley, who was second in the B Heat race, improved one notch in the Trophy Dash for a win and Randy Price of Dietrich took the B Main event in winning fashion.

In the only non-hobby stock race, Corby Runyon of Castleford took the checkered flag in a jalopy stock sprint.

Indy

Rookie Jesse Garza, the young Mexican driver, was easily the stand-out among the 10 rookies until he hit the wall in the 139th lap after twice leading the pack.

There were eight nine leaders during the race, including Unser, Andretti, Johnson, Garza, Ongais, Mears, Tom Sneva and Gordon Smiley.

This was the first time Unser has won from the pole—His other two victories occurred after starting from the No. 3 slot.

An Unser won Indy in 1970, 1971 and 1978. Rutherford was the other three-time winner in the race.

Bobby Unser's only serious challenge early in the race came from Rutherford.

"Big Lem" Star J.R. lasted only 25 laps before a $5.50 belt that controls the fuel pump broke.

"I was very disappointed to say the least," Rutherford said. "Bobby and I kind of went off and left the troops." —

Unser's reaction?
"I was happy he was out of the race, to be honest with you."

Unofficial Indy finish

1. Bobby Unser, Penske-Cosworth, 200 laps, 129.04 mph.
2. Mario Andretti, Wildcat-Cosworth, 200 laps, 138.901 mph.

Memorial tourney to Frank

TWIN FALLS — Tracy Frank used an eagle to open up a three-stroke lead and coast into the Coors Memorial Day Tournament championship Sunday.

Frank, who entered the day with a two-stroke edge, saw the margin slip to one at one point. But he hit a sand wedge into the cup on the par four ninth hole for an eagle. After that runner-up Mike Hamblin couldn't make another charge.

Frank ended with 131 against 136 for Hamblin. Perry Hanchey had 137 and the gross list was rounded off by Ray Dey at 145 and Gary Roland at 146.

In net, Richard Cook had 121 while Gary Burkett and Wes Starlin were tied at 125. Clay Mecham stood at 126 and Don Hutchings was fifth with 123.

In the 15-over handicap division, Matt Beglan was 12 strokes off his strong 73 opening round but still took the title with a 156, three ahead of Frank Bucher. Randy Kolar had 160, Lowell Willis 161 and Bob Young 162.

Net winners went to Greg Lanting and Russ Renk at 124 while Jim Lepore had 125, Ray Hackley 126 and Art Selin and Mike Leazer 123.

The holiday weekend winds up with the scotchball elimination derbies at 3 p.m. today.

Young Mike Hamblin carefully watches his ball as it crosses over a creek in the 10th fairway.

French Open begins today; bad back forces Lendl out

PARIS (UPI) — A strained back has made fifth-seeded Czechoslovak Ivan Lendl a doubtful starter for the $37,500 French Open tennis championships which starts today.

The 29-year-old Czechoslovak, who is scheduled to meet Australian John Fitzgerald, was crippled with pain during Saturday's semifinals of the Italian Open in Rome.

But fortunately for the tournament organizers, Sweden's defending champion Bjorn Borg, top-seeded to win the title for a record sixth time, is confident he has recovered from the nagging shoulder injury which forced him to rest for five weeks.

Borg's chief challenge in Paris will come from Jimmy Connors and John McEnroe, the No. 2 and No. 3 seeded American superstars. The French Open is the only major title to have eluded Connors.

Connors, who meets Frenchman Christophe Roger-Vasselin in the first round, faces some difficult opponents in his quarter of the draw where seventh-seeded Clerc looms dangerously along with Americans Brian Gottfried, the 1977 losing finalist, and baseline specialist Eddie Dibbs.

McEnroe, pressing hard to overhaul Connors in the world rankings and dislodge Borg from his No. 1 spot, faces fellow-American Vince Van Patten in the opening round. The feisty New Yorker will find his passage eased considerably if Lendl is forced to withdraw, leaving 1980 losing finalist Vitas Gerulaitis of the United States, and improving Australian Peter McNamara as the only seeds in his quarter. Gene Mayer will also be playing for the top honor.

Four-time winner Chris Evert, champion for the past two years, is seeded to meet U.S.-based Czechoslovak Martina Navratilova in the women's final with the titleholder facing West Germany's Claudia Kohde. In the first round and Navratilova receiving a bye.

Pro golf

Fergus wins 1st PGA tourney - $400,000 Memorial

DUBLIN, Ohio (UPI) — Keith Fergus finally found out what his friends on the PGA tour meant when they told him there is nothing like winning.

"I always wondered what it felt like. They told me there was nothing like it and they were right," Fergus said moments after he captured the $400,000 Memorial Tournament and a $25,000 check.

Fergus had flirted with victory several times but was never able to capture the top prize until he salvaged par from a fairway bunker on the final hole Sunday to shoot a final round one-under-par 71, good for a one shot win over Jack Renner.

He finished 72 holes at four-under on the rugged 7,116-yard course at Muirfield Village Golf Club.

"I have played well enough to win," he said. "I paid my dues. I think it was my turn to win."

Fergus started the day at three-under, one off the lead held by Tom Kite, Craig Stadler and George Archer. But he quickly birdied the first hole and then made only one bogey and carded another birdie the rest of the way.

Fergus appeared to be in serious trouble on 18 when his tee shot went into a fairway bunker about 175 yards from the green on the 457-yard, par-four hole. His ball was below his feet and near the lip of the trap, but he played a superb shot, hooking the ball onto the green and he two putted for his winning par.

Renner started the day at two-under and was four-under after 10 holes but bogeyed the par-three 12th and the par-four 14th and finished with a 71.

Tom Watson, the 1979 Memorial champ, made a brief charge for the lead, but bogeys at Nos. 15 and 16 put him out of contention and he finished with a 74 and a four-day score of one-under 287, which tied him for third with Archer, Stadler and Tom Purtzer.

Stadler and Archer struggled to closing 75, while Purtzer finished with a 72. Kite remained in the chase most of the day, but a double-bogey six at 17 and a bogey five at 18 gave him a 76 and a final total of 288, a score matched by Fuzzy Zoeller, Mark Hayes, Lanny Wadkins and Don Hallstrom.

Jack Nicklaus, who designed and owns the Muirfield Village course, also surged out of the pack with a front-side four-under 32 but he bogeyed the par-five 11th and double-bogeyed the par-three 12th to finish at 289.

Fergus, a Texas native and a 1976 graduate of the University of Houston, has been a steady player on the tour the past few years but, despite several fine finishes, had never been able to capture a tournament. His winnings Sunday boosted his 1981 earnings to $116,900, the second straight year he has gone over $100,000.

Hite fires even-par for LPGA victory

CORNING, N.Y. (UPI) — Kathy Hite shot a par-72 Sunday to beat JoAnne Carner by one stroke and win a $125,000 LPGA tournament.

Hite, who finished at six-under-par 267, was 68th on the tour's earnings list entering the tournament with just $3,488. But she picked up $18,750 for first place Sunday. Carner, who shot a 67 in the final round to finish at five-under 283, received $12,250.

The turning point for Hite came on No. 17. She birdied the hole while Patty Sheehan, who had a one-stroke lead on Hite after trailing the leader by three shots after three rounds, double-bogeyed.

Carner was in clubhouse and had completed her round when Hite and Sheehan were on the 17th hole.

On the 17th, Sheehan quickly got into trouble when she put her tee shot in the left rough. Her second shot landed into a sand trap at the left front of the green. Sheehan's third shot flew over the green and into the crowd.

Sheehan, a 25-year-old rookie from San Jose, Calif., then hit the green and two-putted for a double-bogey.

At the same time, Hite put her second shot on the green 12 feet from the pin and then made the putt for a birdie-3.

On the 18th, Hite, who was then one stroke up on Carner, put her tee shot into the right rough. The 32-year-old from Florence, S.C., then made an excellent shot from the rough, fading the ball left to right and onto the green within 10 feet of the pin.

From there, Hite routinely two-putted for the victory.

Hite shot the front nine in one-over 37, including two birdies and one bogey, and the back nine in one-under 35 which included two birdies and one bogey.

Carner, 42, who started the day at even-par, shot the front nine in one-under 35 and then four-under-par 32 on the back nine.

Carner's second place finish moved her into the hunt to be the first LPGA golfer to win $1 million in her career. The Palm Beach, Fla., native has won $917,694 in her 11 years on the tour.

Carner, the former U.S. Open women's champion in 1971 and 1976, is one major victory away from being eligible for the LPGA Hall of Fame.

Big manhunt pressed for escaped slayer

POINT OF THE MOUNTAIN, Utah (UPI) — Law enforcement officers throughout Utah and in Nevada and California continued a massive manhunt Sunday for a convicted killer who escaped from prison by stealing a guard's uniform at knife point.

And, while the intense search for Edward Dale Hardy proceeded, the Utah State Prison notified the police that a second inmate had escaped in a separate incident 12 hours later.

Hardy, 28, broke out of the prison at 4:40 p.m. Saturday. He was a maximum security inmate, serving a term for first-degree murder.

Belardino Martinez, 26, was reported missing at 4:58 a.m. Sunday. Martinez, a minimum security inmate sent to prison for a parole violation, walked away from the facility's dairy farm.

Jan Roberts, senior dispatcher for the Salt Lake County Sheriff's Department, said the search for Hardy was expanded to Nevada because the escapee's wife lives in Reno, and to California because some members of his family live in Lakeside.

In Utah, Roberts said, police were keeping close watch in Davis County, where Hardy has friends.

Prison officials said Hardy was alone with a guard in the prison kitchen when inmate pulled a knife and held it at the officer's back.

The guard was forced into a walk-in refrigerator and told to take off his clothes, officials said. Hardy put on the guard's uniform, walked out of the unit and drove away in the officer's car — a 1972 Oldsmobile.

The guard was released from the cool room about 15 minutes later. He was not hurt during the incident.

Hardy pleaded guilty to first-degree murder charges on Aug. 15, 1979, in Second District Court, in connection with the Feb. 21, 1978, shotgun slaying of Hill Air Force Base Sgt. Kirk Cordary, 24. Investigators believed the victim was shot to death outside the Crossroads Lounge in Fruit Heights as a result of an aborted drug deal.

Hardy escaped from the Davis County Jail in Farmington in May of 1979. SWAT teams tracked the suspect to a nearby apartment, where police negotiators spent three hours before convincing Hardy to give up.

Police said the heavily-tattooed inmate should be considered armed and dangerous.

Leroy contends regulatory process needs revamping

BOISE (UPI) — In response to a request from the National Association of Attorneys General asking for identification of faulty federal regulations, Attorney General David Leroy said the entire regulatory process needs revamping.

Leroy said after he received the request he contacted the heads of Idaho's state agencies to obtain their opinions on excessive federal regulations.

In a letter to U.S. Attorney General William French Smith, Dr. James C. Miller III, executive director of the Presidential Task Force on Regulatory Relief, and Mogensen, Gray of the vice president's office, Leroy said the response to his inquiry was "enormous."

"To select only 10 issues from all of those who called to my attention with the sincere hope that they would be forwarded to the attention of the vice president's task force, was as anticipated, most difficult," Leroy said.

"In fact, the problem is more complex than simply narrowing Idaho's complaints down to 10 main issues. It is the system itself that is largely at fault."

Leroy said the regulatory process often did not allow enough time for affected agencies to respond to proposed regulation changes. In addition, after changes were approved, not enough time was allowed to bring local regulations into conformity with federal rules.

He said such laws as the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit, controls of outdoor advertising, limitations on motor vehicle weights and widths and the Clean Air Act "tend to degrade the very conditions federal managers seek to achieve."

"Additionally, this forced compliance and disregard of state sovereignty often adds unnecessary red tape and cost by the establishment of field monitoring sites, acquisition of costly equipment, additional staffing requirements and burdensome duplication or blurring," Leroy said.

The following are Leroy's recommendations:

- Asking-and-answering-the-question, "Is this something that government should and must be regulating in the first place?" to establish need both for existing regulations and proposed amendments.
- Requiring thorough research to determine the existence of conflicting and/or overlapping regulations and eliminate them.
- Provide adequate time for input by the affected state agency or any agency with expertise in the area of regulation, and for the state implementation of newly-adopted regulations.
- Require regulations to balance toward achievement of overall benefit, not benefit for a special interest.
- Set cost-effectiveness guidelines and maintain them to eliminate expensive regulations which provide minor returns.
- Reduce the number of existing regulations and keep them at a minimum.

Boise gays conduct initial demonstration at Capitol

BOISE (UPI) — Boise's homosexual community held its first public demonstration Sunday night.

Members gathered on the Statehouse steps for a candlelight rally entitled "I Love America, Too."

The rally, which drew a crowd of 200, an estimated 50 to 75 of them from Boise, was held in part, in response to Rev. Jerry Falwell's "I Love America" rally at the same spot on Thursday.

At the rally, Falwell rejected homosexuality, saying, "It was Adam and Eve, not Adam and Steve."

But the Rev. B. J. McDaniels of the Boise Metropolitan Community Church, who organized the Saturday night rally, said Boise homosexuals also wanted to say something for themselves, in addition to making a rebuttal to Falwell.

"They're making the statement that God loves them, that they're not bad, that they're OK," McDaniels said.

The rally came in conjunction with a conference of Northwest leaders of the Metropolitan Community Church, held this weekend in Boise. The Boise MCC church, which was established in 1977, openly accepts homosexuals.

"We didn't know Jerry Falwell was coming" when the MCC scheduled the conference, McDaniels said. "When he came, we asked our members whether or not they wished to respond."

One man who attended, a Boisean in his late 20s, said, "I felt we need to make a statement that we belong here as much as anybody else. You don't have to hate anybody to be an American."

Although he described Boise as "a tolerant community," the man didn't want to disclose his name. "I can't risk my job," he said.

"People are still being fired (in Boise) for being gay," McDaniels said. "Some of the people sitting on those steps will not have a job on Monday morning."

Morals agency praises legislators

BOISE (UPI) — The 1981 Legislature performed with "restraint-and-good-sense" on moral issues which came before it this spring, says an article in the July edition of the Idaho Challenge.

The article is put out by the Idaho Allied Christian Forces, which bills itself as a group "for moral and social progress."

The article said "sub-standard" action occurred on a bill aimed at raising Idaho's drinking age, which was killed in the Senate Affairs Committee, and another which deleted the three-day waiting period for marriage license applicants, which became law.

But the publication gave legislators good marks for adopting measures to help control illegal keg beer consumption, voting down a proposal allowing limited lotteries for church and charity organization and for strengthening liquor license laws and laws covering juvenile violation of alcohol and tobacco statutes.

Bills selected for grading the Legislature's performance must concern a morals issue such as pornography, child labor law enforcement, homosexuality, gambling, religious freedom, public education and drugs and alcohol, the publication said.

Proposals also must be of a nature to "clearly indicate the moral position of the legislator," the publication said.

"A clear indication of where a legislator stands on the drinking problem would have been the IACF-backed bill to raise the drinking age," the publication said. "Unfortunately, this bill died in committee and could not be used."

The publication said it tried to use as "broad a variety" of bills as possible in order to provide insight on the legislators' performance on all morals issues.

BLM officials explained the plan to the association's executive board in January. At that meeting, Mogensen said he urged the BLM to consider an alternative plan which would improve the efficiency of the agency by 19 percent by simply shifting personnel in the field.

Mogensen said the plan would save an estimated cost of shifting personnel was $9,000 per employee.

Since the January meeting, Mogensen said, local cattlemen's associations have opposed the plan. He said the state association still did not have "adequate" cost benefit information to show that a "reorganization of the BLM in Idaho would save taxpayers money or reduce the number of staff personnel at existing district or resource office."

Tougher line on predators

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, said the Reagan administration has vowed to examine methods for reducing livestock losses due to predators.

The Idaho Republican said Friday that Max L. Friedersdorf, assistant to President Reagan, will contact the White House advisory staff "to determine what action should be taken to provide the necessary relief to the livestock industry."

Hansen and other Western congressmen have attacked orders issued by the Carter Administration that ban certain methods of predator control. They contend livestock producers are sustaining "serious economic damage" because of the increase in predator populations.

License upgrading approved

BOISE (UPI) — Specialty contractors of subcontractors may upgrade their licenses so they may accept work from a general contractor even if they were not licensed in the proper class when bids were opened, an Idaho attorney general's opinion says.

While the subcontractors may upgrade their licenses, the opinion said such action won't save the bid from being voided if the subcontractor or specialty contractor is of the type specifically mentioned in Idaho law.

Plumbing, electrical and heating and air-conditioning contractors' names specifically must be mentioned by bids are submitted by general contractors, the opinion said.

As a result, if a subcontractor, whose name is mentioned in the bid, is not fully licensed when the bid is opened, Idaho law requires the entity issuing the contract to disqualify the bid.

Those contractors who are not covered under the so-called "naming" provision, however, may upgrade their licenses after the bid opening without jeopardizing the bid, the opinion said.

Obituaries

O.D. 'Oz' Mullins
 BOISE — O.D. "Oz" Mullins, 62, of Boise, died of natural causes Friday in Boise.

He was born Nov. 3, 1918, in Twin Falls, grew up in Twin Falls and Kimberley and attended Kim Kimberley High School in 1935. Montana flooding subsides HELENA, Mont. (UPI) — Flood waters subsided across Montana Sunday. Hundreds of people evacuated from low-lying areas were waiting to return to their homes and civil authorities were readying clean-up efforts.

In north-central Montana, the town of Belt — evacuated Saturday as Belt Creek swelled — remained closed and cut off from travel by land. But Cascade County officials said some residents were returning to their homes.

"A few people are starting to go back in but it's not officially recommended," sheriff's dispatcher Del Mahoney said. "Their sewer and water systems are still out."

Floes generally peaked two to four feet above flood stage on major rivers in the western two-thirds of the state, the National Weather Service said. The rivers were predicted to go down and not threaten other states. There were no lives lost in the widespread flooding.

Gov. Ted Schwinden, who earlier declared nine counties disaster areas, flew over the flooded areas Saturday in the company of Sen. Max Baucus. Baucus said Sunday damage would total "in the millions."

A federal disaster assistance team arrived Saturday to help state officials prepare a request for federal designation of a disaster area. Schwinden aide David Wanzeneid said Sunday. Schwinden would formally ask President Ronald Reagan for aid Monday or Tuesday, Wanzeneid said.

About 200 people driven from their homes at Deer Lodge waited to return to their homes, Civil Defense coordinator Earl Wahl said.

In western Montana, about 150 people taken from their homes at Clinton and Turah were in temporary shelters as the Clark Fork River subsided. The river knocked out four bridges on secondary roads, Missoula County Civil Defense Director Rick Leavell said.

"It's looking a little brighter," Leavell said. "The waters are receding and the pressure's off. But there's still a lot of water that's going to have to go down the river."

Leavell reported "minor flooding" of low spots in Missoula, the state's third-largest town.

About 500 persons had been airlifted from areas isolated by flooded streams, Col. Pete Oljar of the Montana National Guard said Sunday.

helicopters continued to fly support missions Sunday, he said.

"Today we're starting to wind down the operation," Oljar said. Service was restored over a few highways, but Helena — the state capital — remained cut off by land to the west and south.

Heavy rains that began falling two weeks ago gave some areas about one-half their average annual rainfall. The National Weather Service reported rains that began May 18 at Helena and culminated in the flooding, which started Friday, were the heaviest in 20 years.

The Missouri and Sun rivers peaked at Great Falls early Sunday, but only minor flooding was reported west of the city. Residents had been warned to remove items from basements.

Fisheries council seeks water discharge to aid migration

LEWISTON (UPI) — The Columbia Fisheries Council has filed an emergency petition seeking the discharge of water from upstream to help steelhead and salmon past Lower Granite Dam, 30 miles downstream from Lewiston.

Terry Holubetz of Portland, Ore., the executive secretary of the council, said the petition was filed with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission because Bonneville Power Administration has refused the council's request to subsidize a discharge of water from Brownlee Reservoir.

About two-thirds of the steelhead and salmon migration was above the dam when the request was made. One fishery biologist called the situation

"one of absolute emergency."

But Mother Nature may take care of the problem before the government can act on the petition. Heavy mountain rains have swollen the Salmon and Clearwater river drainages. The flow of the Clearwater River had increased to 105,000 cubic feet per second, enough to push the fish past the dam. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers said.

Holubetz said the council will be conducting "extensive monitoring" early next week to determine if the extra water is still needed. The council represents state and federal fishery agencies as well as Indian fishing operations.

Holubetz claims the BPA's refusal constitutes a violation of a provision in the Northwest Power Act.

Lumber operations slack in March

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The western lumber industry operated at 80.5 percent of its practical operating capacity during March, said the Western Wood Products Association.

That performance showed a slight increase from February, when the industry operated at 77.5 percent. In March 1980, the industry operated at 79.9 percent of its practical capacity.

Year-to-date figures through the first three months of 1981 show the industry has operated at 80.5 percent.

That compares to 83.7 percent for the same period last year.

"The western lumber industry is still running at a rather stagnant pace," said WWPDA Director of Economics Fred Reseburg. "Unfortunately, with interest rates still on the rise, it's still premature to count on a significant turnaround. When those rates drop to a level the consumer can afford or quality for, and housing construction picks up, our industry will follow suit."

Pisceans should plan to take time to improve health through treatment

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You're eager to receive praise and encouragement, but you need to display more creative skills before this happens. The acclaim of others will spur you on to greater efforts.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be sure to handle important business matters as early as possible today. Take time to please the one you love.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't neglect to take care of a delicate condition at home that is upsetting the usual harmony there. Stop wasting time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Choose your words wisely with others today, or there could be trouble. Try to be encouraging to a co-worker who is depressed.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) If you are more objective you can handle monetary matters most intelligently now, and gain the respect of others.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You can accomplish a great deal today if you apply yourself properly. Take health treatments that can lift your spirit.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) If you are not happy with your environment, this is a good day to improve it. Try to be more generous with loved ones.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Be sure to steer clear of a social affair where arguments could easily start. Find recreation elsewhere and be happy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Show others you are a fine citizen and at the same time make a good impression on higher-ups. Improve your credit standing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You could be eager to start on a new project today, but this is not the right time for such. Be wary of outsiders.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study whatever you have in mind that could lead to greater abundance in the future. Strive for happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Think more of those who mean much to you. Try to please them more and gain their goodwill. Think constructively.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take the right steps to become a more dynamic person. Plan time for improving your health through right treatments.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who can solve problems readily and should have good practical training early in life. Give the encouragement needed to bring out the fine talents in this chart. Governmental work could be fine here.

PFANUTS

What's what

Artists pick 2 shapes for ideal human faces.

The Sunan face shows up in seven shapes: oval, round, square, oblong, diamond, pear or heart. How would you categorize your own face on this list? In drawing of women, artists tend to idealize the oval face. Of men, the square.

Is there a veteran of World War II around your neighbor? If so, ask whether said citizen still owns any part of the old military uniform. Pollsters say 53 percent of those veterans possess such keepsakes.

There are those naturalists, too, who use parody as an underarm deodorant.

When you talk about the left or right wing of an airplane, you take the point of view toward where the plane is going. But when you say west wind or east wind, you take the point of view toward where the wind is from. When you say the left or right arm of a chair, you take the point of view toward where the chair is facing. But when you say clockwise or counterclockwise, you take the point of view that faces the clock. It's all mixed up.

Some restaurants post signs to announce no water is served unless requested. To conserve. A client terms ridiculous the notion it does any good to save eight-ounce glasses of water. Maybe so, maybe so. The restaurants say if it's not the cold water in the glass, but the unpleasant time that much hot water to clean the glass. Debate goes on.

CINDERELLA COMPLEX

Q. What's a "Cinderella complex"?

A. A paragon for a tendency among some women to be dependent in the extreme—upon a husband, mother, father, somebody else. It's what the old folks used to call a "cling ing vine" trait.

Can you compose a sentence without any vowels? A wordgame player does such by quoting a student addressing a loud lady in a library: "Fst, Mst Tch, tch, tch! Ssthl! That's forced. Isn't there a better one?"

Nine out of 10 medical school graduates enter medical practice. But only five out of 10 law school graduates go into law practice.

Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

For the defense

Oswald: "Jeremy Flint and David Greenwood, two of Great Britain's best players, have produced a book called 'Instructions for the Defense.' There is considerable meat there for the student."

Alan: "The last chapter of the book shows hands from actual play where the defenders went wrong and explains why they shouldn't have."

Oswald: "West opened his singleton club. East took his ace and returned the eight (an obvious suit preference signal). West ruffed and led the four of hearts. East took his heart king. If East had just led back a club, South ruffed with the jack and night had fallen."

Alan: "West blamed East for not returning a heart. East blamed West for not leading his king of hearts to start with."

Oswald: "The authors give West 90 percent of the blame. They point out that West had nothing to lose by leading the heart king. If East had just ruffed, three clubs he could overtake that king of hearts with his ace and give West the club ruff. We agree that West was somewhat at fault, but that East could have led back the heart anyway."
