Air Force to test fire laser beam at airborne missile

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Air Force plans within several days to test fire its top secret airborne laser beam weapon at an air-to-air missile.

It will be the first experiment of its kind, defense sources said Friday.

The weapon is aboard an NKC-135A, a domed military version of the Boeing 707 jetliner dubbed the Airborne Laser Laboratory. The beam weapon frequently has been fired to determine if the system works but it generally has not been aimed at targets, the sources said.

The laser is to be fired against an air-to-air missile for the first time within the next several days, possibly over the weekend, the sources said. Until now, they said, the weapon has been fired successfully in the air against aircraft that have been tested behind other planes.

The Soviet Union is said by the sources to have nothing like the airborne laser weapon though it is believed to be working on laser beam technology for military applications in space.

The sources said the weapon aboard the NKC-135A would not be practical for use in space, possibly because of the large amount of fuel required to fire the beam. A laser is a high intensity beam of light.

The Pentagon decided to comment on the forthcoming test, which has been postponed several times in the past week because of poor weather conditions in the test area in the western United States.

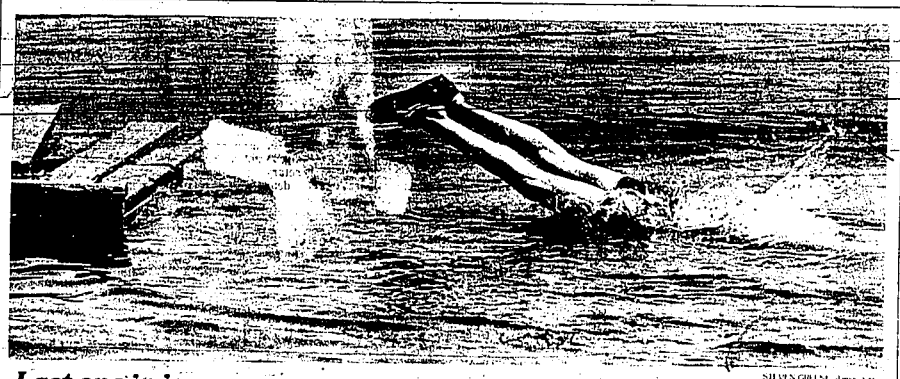

But the Pentagon did acknowledge May 15 that "preliminary in-flight testing has begun" with the weapons system, although it would not give any details. A recent report said the Air Force successfully has tested an airborne laser weapon capable of destroying jet interceptors and missiles.

The Pentagon did not deny successful tests had been carried out but said tests had not been conducted "at a level which would demonstrate capability to destroy jet interceptors aircraft and missiles" — meaning no tests had yet been conducted against missiles.

Sen. Harrison Schmidt, R-N.M., told Aviation-Week and Space Technology magazine that by the end of 1981 the "airborne laser beam" will "in test adjustments with lethality demonstrate against air-to-air missiles."

He said such a capability could convert an aircraft like the NKC-135A to an airborne battleship.

Missile procedures changed Officer faces charges after embassy calls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Strategic Air Command charged that a missile-launch officer Friday made unauthorized contacts with the Soviet Embassy in Washington three times within the past year, Pentagon officials said.

The officials said it was the first case of its kind involving a military officer, but Air Force officials later clarified that to mean it was the case involving a missile launch officer.

2nd Lt. Christopher Cooke, 25, of Richmond, Va., was jailed at McConnell Air Force Base, near Wichita, Kan., and his case was handed over to the Justice Department for action, the officials said.

SAC still was investigating whether Cooke, based at a Titan II missile launch complex, passed on information to the Soviets that might be damaging to the United States, the officials said.

"As a matter of precaution, appropriate action has been taken to protect our national security posture," an official said.

The officials said SAC charged Cooke as of 4 p.m. MDT. A spokesman at McConnell said Cooke was jailed Thursday afternoon for "preliminary confinement." He declined to say when a hearing or trial will be held.

Changes were made in missile launch procedures so that if any information was handed the Soviets — "it won't do the other side any good," an official in Washington said.

Cooke allegedly visited the Soviet Embassy three times within the past year, but Pentagon officials declined to disclose further information — citing what they called "the sensitivity of the case."

Cooke, who joined the Air Force in December, 1979, was not charged with spying.

Specifically, he was charged by SAC with violating Air Force Regulation 2055-57 that requires superior officers be advised of all contacts with representatives of communist countries, the officials said.

One official said he believes the maximum penalty upon conviction for such a charge is two years in prison.

"The case is being referred to the Justice Department for possible additional charges," one official said.

Chief FBI spokesman Roger Young said investigation of the case is a "coordinated effort" between the FBI and the military. Young declined to comment on the case.

Air Force officials said Cooke, single and a graduate of William and Mary College, was the deputy combat missile crew commander in a team of four men at the Titan II complex.

His duties included monitoring the missile alert status and managing a missile launch in times of crisis. Cooke underwent training at Vandenberg Air Force Base in California, the Air Force officials said.

"I can never recall a case like this either personally or professionally — involving a military officer," a Pentagon official said.

There are 17 Titan II missiles at McConnell. In all, there are 1,052 intercontinental ballistic missiles in silos west of the Mississippi River.

Coal union accepts contract

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United Mine Workers bargaining council Friday overwhelmingly approved a new contract with the soft coal industry.

It sent the tentative agreement to striking miners for a ratification vote. However, the 64-day work stoppage by 160,000 miners will continue under the "no contract, no work" tradition of the union at least until results of the June 6 ratification vote are tabulated.

The miners rejected an earlier settlement effort.

Union President Sam Church Jr. said he believes the settlement, which would give miners a 37.5 percent wage benefit package over 40 months, may be the "best" reached this year with any major industry.

The agreement would boost wages for most top-scale miners by $3.69 per hour over the life of the contract, from the current $10.56 to $14.16.

Church and other union leaders expressed optimism that members of the union, who voted 2-1 against the earlier agreement, will accept the new pact.

"I think it's a very good contract, probably the best to be negotiated this year in the country among a major industry," Church told a news conference.

But UMW Secretary-Treasurer Willard Esselstyn warned that unless a separate agreement is reached involving about 11,000 construction workers, their pickets could keep several mines closed even after ratification of the basic contract.

Esselstyn assailed the Associated Building Contractors, the construction industry bargaining arm, for not holding negotiations with the UMW on a new contract. He said union construction workers "are not going to get one rammed down our throat."

Among key points in the new agreement:

- A royalty fee that coal operators must pay to the union's health and pension fund for processing any coal from non-union mines or mines that are not part of the agreement.

The old $1.90 per ton fee was eliminated in the previous agreement, but returned in the new document with a slightly increased rate. It had been cited as a principal cause of rank-and-file rejection.

• A near 40-month term expiring on Oct. 1, 1984 — the longest since industry-wide bargaining began in 1950 — that will ensure workers their "miners' holiday" in 1984, but also protect the industry from a strike during the critical peak air conditioning season.

• A $95 per month pension for about 35,000 widows whose husbands retired before 1974, effective March 1, 1982. The first agreement called for a $100 monthly pension starting on Jan. 1, 1982.

• Elimination of a provision that had required mines to subcontract work only to UMW-covered workers of outside firms, but with greater protection for construction workers covered by the BCOA-UMW agreement.

• Elimination of a proposed 55-day probationary period for new employees.

"I think it will play," said J.B. Trout, a bargaining council member from Pikeville, Ky.

The union said Church plans to make a six-day swing through the coal fields to explain the agreement to the membership in hopes of winning their support.

Rank-and-file miners also expressed hope the new agreement would end the "kick, but hold to their normal 'wait and see' attitude until they read the contract."

Settlement between the UMW and negotiators for the Bituminous Coal Operators' Association came just before 5 p.m. Friday.

Industry officials had little to say. Chief industry negotiator Bobby R. Brown, president of Consolidation Coal Co., said only that the agreement "addressed most of the issues that were outstanding and we believe it's a good contract for the union."

Fibbed in seeking funds for search

Peking man hunter admits bank fraud

CHICAGO (UPI) — Socialist stockbroker Christopher G. Janus changed his plea to guilty Friday on charges of defrauding banks in a worldwide search for the bones of the legendary prehistoric Peking Man.

Janus, 69, who set out in 1972 to find the fossilized bones of what was once regarded as the missing link in mankind's evolution, faces sentencing June 24 on two fraud charges.

Janus, whose wife and two sons quietly watched him plead guilty, faces a maximum sentence of four years in prison and a $10,000 fine. He was freed on personal recognizance bond pending sentencing.

During his hunt for the missing bones, Janus gained worldwide publicity, co-authored a book about his adventures, and told wealthy friends he planned to star in a movie about his quest.

He wound up in U.S. District Court telling Judge Prentice H. Marshall that, in seeking financing for his promotion, he fibbed to two Chicago banks about his financial liabilities.

Janus was originally indicted on 37 charges of defrauding friends and banks of $640,000. The government agreed to drop 35 of the fraud charges in return for the two guilty pleas.

Specifically, he said he misrepresented his liabilities to get a $40,000 loan from the Central National Bank and to consolidate and renew $165,000 in loans from the American National Bank & Trust Co.

Once, Janus had said he was hot on the trail of a foot locker packed with priceless fossils lost during World War II. They were, he said, the bones of a slope-shouldered, cannibalistic, manlike creature who hunted near Peking 500,000 years ago.

At the time of Pearl Harbor, archeologists entrusted the bones to U.S. Marines fleeing the American Embassy in Peking. They were placed in a marine's foot locker. Somewhere along the way, they were lost.

DC-9s due wing check for cracks

WASHINGTON — The Federal Aviation Administration said Friday there are no plans to ground any DC-9's, although cracks have been found in wing spars on a few planes.

"We do not expect any DC-9's to be grounded," said FAA spokesman Fred Farrar. "There's no safety hazard, no immediate danger."

Within a few days, the FAA will order inspections of the wing spars on DC-9's that have made at least 35,000 landings, Farrar said. Spars, which run the length of the wing, are the main strengthening and stiffeners in the wing. Each DC-9 wing has six spars.

Republic Airlines, which flies four DC-9's daily into Twin Falls, has already finished its inspections, according to Walter Hellman, a spokesman at the company's headquarters in Minneapolis. Seven of the airline's 124 DC-9's have cracks in a wing spar, Hellman said.

All are in hangars being repaired, he said, and no schedule changes were required.

The cracks were discovered in mid-April at Republic's maintenance facility in Phoenix. The discovery led to a story Friday in the Arizona Republic in Phoenix saying the FAA planned to ground many as 900 DC-9's due to potentially dangerous structural defects.

The FAA denied the report. Hellman said it was a "complete distortion."

Republic has the largest DC-9 fleet in the country. Of its 160 planes, 124 are DC-9's, but only seven — all from the first series of DC-9's built — have cracks, Hellman said.

Farrar said the newspaper was incorrect when it described them as cracks in the main spar.

"They are in the lower cap of the rear spar, one of six spars in the wing," he said. "The largest crack to date was 1/8 inches long."

He added, "A spar cap could crack completely and the wing could stay on with no problem at all; there is great redundancy in the rear wing."

Minor fuel leaks have developed when spars have cracked, often staining the wings and making it possible to spot cracks by a walk-around inspection of the aircraft, FAA officials said.

"Whenever you have a crack in a wing, you will have some fuel leakage because most of the wing is a fuel tank in today's jets," Farrar said.

The FAA order to inspect DC-9 wing spars will apply only to older DC-9's and it allows inspections to be performed anytime between the next 300 landings and 2,000 landings, Farrar said.

"So you're talking about very small number of airplanes that do not have to be inspected immediately," he said, adding it was not immediately known how many of the planes will be affected.

Ignited by lightning

Towering plumes of flame surround two of eight tank cars which caught fire after being struck by lightning early Friday near Gallup, N.M. No one was hurt but one worker at a gas plant was treated for shock. A nearby segment of Interstate 40 was closed and about 300 persons living nearby were evacuated for several hours.

Florida execution held up

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — A federal judge Friday stayed next week's scheduled execution of condemned killer Charles Kenneth Foster pending a hearing involving psychiatric evidence in the case.

U.S. District Judge Lynn Higby ordered an evidentiary hearing for Foster's lawyers to present psychiatric evidence they claim was not brought out in state proceedings.

On Thursday, the Florida Supreme Court rejected Foster's claim his trial counsel was ineffective and refused to stay the execution.

Chicago starts to take over

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mayor Jane Byrne Friday moved to seize control of the financially-depleted Chicago Transit Authority.

Gov. James Thompson said he might call a special session of the Legislature to avert mass transit chaos in the region.

Mrs. Byrne introduced an amendment to the original 1945 ordinance establishing the CTA that would give the city control of the agency through the year 2031.

The action came as the bus lines and commuter railroads serving 1.25 million passengers a day in the six-county metropolitan area prepared to shut down operations.

Broad gag order challenged

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI) — An extension of the gag order issued in the case of the suspected "traveller killer" to include jurisdictions outside of Santa Cruz County was challenged Friday by two news organizations.

The San Jose Mercury News and KNTV, Channel 11 of San Jose, filed suit in Santa Cruz Superior Court to limit the gag order, which was amended Friday morning to include 10 murder cases and an attempted murder.

Nuclear specialist sworn in WASHINGTON (UPI) — W. Kenneth Davis, a nuclear specialist from Bechtel Power Corp., was sworn in Friday as deputy energy secretary.

Davis, 62, was director of reactor development at the Atomic Energy Commission from 1951 to 1954. Since 1973 he has been vice president for planning and advanced development at Bechtel, which handles nuclear construction contracts.

Energy Secretary James Edwards is a strong advocate of atomic power who has favored development of the Clinch River breeder reactor and a federal buyout of defunct spent nuclear fuel reprocessing plant in his home state of South Carolina.

Pope continues to improve

ROME (UPI) — Doctors said Pope John Paul II is making slow but steady improvement from an assassination attempt but cautioned him to cut down his activities to avoid fatigue, Vatican Radio reported Friday.

The radio said the 61-year-old pontiff was experiencing occasional moments of fatigue in his 10th floor hospital suite at Rome's Gemelli hospital.

Doctors who visited the pope early Friday, 16 days after he was shot in St. Peter's Square, said he was making continued progress and was eating more solid food and sleeping normally.

Tokyo hints at policy change

TOKYO (UPI) — Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki said Friday the government had no objection to the return of the U.S. aircraft carrier Midway to its home port in Japan amid hints at possible revision of Tokyo's non-nuclear arms policy.

The U.S. 7th Fleet carrier has become a target of attack by anti-nuclear activists who claim U.S. warships visiting Japanese ports carry nuclear weapons in violation of Japanese policies.

Stockpiling could erase glut of oil

NEW YORK (UPI) — The worldwide oil glut that forced OPEC to adopt a price freeze for the remainder of 1981 could be erased by the end of summer as consuming nations build up stocks in preparation for peak winter demand, an oil company analyst said Friday.

"The global oil surplus is estimated at between 2 and 3 billion barrels a day," said the analyst, who asked not to be identified.

"But what most people forget is that consuming nations normally build up their inventories by 2 billion barrels a day during the summer to help supply the big surge of demand that occurs in the winter," he said.

"In addition, many of OPEC's overpriced members have lost business lately and the cartel's production has been sliding," the analyst said.

"In light of the summer stockpiling and declining OPEC production, the world oil market will be about in balance," he said.

Maneuvering continues over tax cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan is still hopeful of working out a tax cut compromise with the House Democratic leadership.

However, if that fails he may form another coalition with conservative Democrats, a Democratic congressman said Friday.

The senior Republican on the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, Rep. Barber Conable of New York, was to meet with administration tax strategists to discuss achieving a compromise with the Democratic leadership.

And House Republican leader Bob Michel sent a strongly worded letter to other GOP members accusing Speaker Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass., of being out of touch with his fellow Democrats.

Reps. Phil Gramm, Kent Hance and Charles Stenholm of Texas, all part of the bloc of conservative Democrats who were crucial in Reagan's budget victory, met earlier in the day with White House chief of staff James Baker and congressional liaison Max Friedersdorf.

"I would characterize it as a useful and productive meeting," said White House press secretary Larry Speakes said. But, "no deals were made," he added.

Gramm said if White House attempts to work out a compromise with the House leadership, "We will move ahead with a bipartisan tax plan" along the lines of the Republican-southern Democrat budget coalition. Speakes said, "We remain hopeful that the House Democratic leadership and the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee will step forward with a plan that will meet the criteria. We're hopeful that something will move on that, possibly as early as next week."

Speakes said Reagan has no "artificial deadline" for a compromise, but there is "an urgency because of Congress' self-imposed Aug. 1 deadline for tax legislation."

Baker said Reagan has invited the Democratic leadership of the House and Senate for a meeting at 11 a.m. Monday "in an effort to see if we can work out some sort of bipartisan tax bill."

Thursday, Democrats on the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee quashed a compromise their chairman, Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., was discussing with Treasury Secretary Donald Regan and Senate Finance Committee Chairman Bob Dole, R-Kan.

Dole telephoned Rostenkowski Friday and both men agreed to continue negotiations, but no meetings were scheduled. An aide said Dole referred to the setback as a mere "bump in the road."

In his letter, Michel said O'Neill's "defiance of the president and what he seeks to accomplish is reminiscent of the old-fashioned iron-fisted Democratic rule we have had in the House for the past 25 years."

Judge orders warrants at Beans Inc. hearing

SALT LAKE CITY — A Salt Lake City judge ordered bench warrants issued against the owner of the now-defunct Beans Inc. and a business associate Friday.

But the warrants, ordered against James Woods, president of the former Filer-bean operation's parent corporation, Commodore Marketing Corp., of Salinas, Calif., and CMC Vice President Martin Taylor of Madera, Calif., may not be issued, Utah 5th Circuit Court officials said later in the day.

Judge Paul Grant made that order when Woods and Taylor failed to appear in Salt Lake City for an arraignment.

Apparently, court officials were unaware that Woods and Taylor had not completed extradition proceedings in California when Grant ordered the warrants issued.

Salt Lake County's lawyers have charged Woods and Taylor each with arson with intent to defraud and insurance fraud in connection with a July 30, 1979, fire which destroyed the Beans Inc. warehouse in Filer.

Grant set bond on the warrants at $100,000 each.

Woods and Taylor are scheduled to appear in a California court on an extradition warrant next week.

Today's weather

Merry month of May ending with ideal weather

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert, Jerome-Galding areas: Fair and mild through the weekend. Westerly winds 10 to 15 mph today. Highs both days near 80 degrees. Lows near 45. The Twin Falls pollen count Friday was 50 per cubic meter of air.

Camas Prairie, Halley, Wood River Valley: Mostly fair and mild through the weekend. Highs in the middle 70s. Lows 35 to 45.

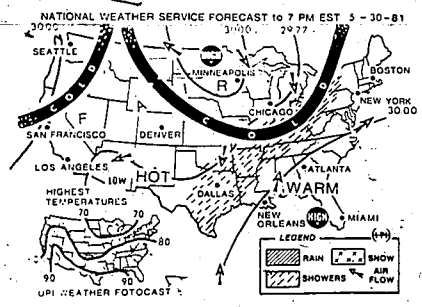

Northern Utah and Nevada: Partly cloudy today and Sunday with a few showers over the mountains in Utah. Highs in the 80s. Lows in the 40s.

Synopsis: Plenty of sunshine across Idaho Friday.

And—more in store for the weekend.

Although filtered through a thin layer of clouds and haze, the sunshine pushed temperatures about 10 degrees above normal in western sections of the state, while readings elsewhere were near normal. The warmest was 88 at Hagerman while the morning's minimum was 31 at Stanley.

High pressure over the state produced the sunny weather and the thin clouds at high altitudes. A rainbow halo around the sun developed during the afternoon. Visibility was restricted slightly by haze caused by warm air aloft, creating a temperature inversion which traps some particulates near the earth.

For Monday through Wednesday, there is a slight chance of showers in northern Idaho but mostly dry weather will continue in the south. With any shower activity next week's widely scattered conditions for planting, cultivation, plant emergence and growth should remain generally good through Wednesday in the Magic Valley. Pan evaporation is forecast at .33 inch today and Sunday. Spraying conditions will remain generally good with winds 3 to 8 mph. Maximum soil temperatures will be up a degree at 82 today after a low of 47.

Crane aboard Nimitz hoists unsalvageable F-14 Tomcat overboard as ship heads for port following destructive crash, fire

Night landing exercises resume

Nimitz returns to sea today

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — The nuclear carrier USS Nimitz will return to sea today. It will immediately resume night landing exercises despite the late night crash Tuesday of an electronics warfare plane.

That crash and the ensuing fire killed 14 crewmen and injured 48. "We fly as safely as possible — we don't have reason to change our operation," said Atlantic Fleet spokesman Mike Walsh. "That (a change) may come down from the board of inquiry, but there's no way of knowing that now."

A Marine EA-6B Prowler exploded into a fireball Tuesday night on the Nimitz' deck, engulfing flight deck crewmen and causing at least $100 million in damages to parked aircraft. The Nimitz was returning to sea after only 48 hours in its home port for repairs.

Walsh said an aircraft mishap board appointed after the crash met Friday. He said officials wanted to conduct interviews with crew members still had fresh memories of the crash off the coast near Jacksonville, Fla.

"The major aspects of the accident will be cleared up as soon as possible," he said.

Marine Lt. Col Jack Haynes of the Cherry Point, N.C., Marine Air Station, home base for the Prowlers used aboard the Nimitz, noted that the Navy "feels there's an element of pilot error" in the accident.

"There is nothing wrong with the airplane," he said. "They are excellent and safe. What you have here is the most demanding procedure any pilot is required to fly — the night-time approach."

The EA-6B Prowler veered to the right during its approach, missed an arresting cable and slammed into 18 parked jets.

The Navy insists A-6 type planes like the Prowler — there is also an attack version and a tanker version — are safe. But officials released a report showing 15 previous accidents and 20 deaths involving A-6 aircraft since November, 1979, including two prior incidents on the Nimitz.

Haynes said experience details of the pilot, 1st Lt. Steve F. White, were not available because his background records had been confiscated by the Navy investigating team.

Seven seriously damaged jets were removed from the Nimitz and taken to the Naval Air Rework facility in Norfolk. Three jets destroyed in the mishap were dumped overboard with Pentagon permission on the Nimitz' 650-mile return trip home. A spokesman said the planes would be replaced this afternoon when the Nimitz is at sea. The Nimitz is headed for the Caribbean to continue the exercises interrupted by the accident.

The Navy said the bodies of 13 crewmen would be sent to their home towns for burial. The body of the Prowler navigator, Marine 1st Lt. Laurence Cragun of Orem, Utah, was never found. He is listed as missing and presumed dead.

Walsh said the investigating team is working with a "sense of urgency" and intends to determine the cause of the crash quickly.

The mishap board was described by Walsh as a "mixed bag" with representatives from the staff of Adm. Bryon Fuller, commander of the Nimitz carrier group, and Nimitz crew members not directly involved in the accident.

Vets demand Reagan visit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Vietnam-era veterans rejected White House promises to increase funding for veterans services Friday. They also vowed to continue their hunger strike and sit-in until President Reagan meets with them at Washington Veterans Administration Hospital.

"We want to meet personally with the president," said Ron Kovic, one of the "Inside Six" staging a sit-in in the hospital lobby. "One of our major demands is that we meet with the president right here."

"Two of the hunger strikers who were in their 14th day of fasting, withdrew from the protest Thursday, saying they were satisfied with the letter from White House acting administrator of veterans affairs, Donald Custis.

Kovic said the remaining 11 hunger strikers and the six sit-in protesters and about 150 supporters voted unanimously Thursday night to reject Custis' letter.

In the letter, the Reagan Administration promised a 300 percent budget increase to study the effort of Agent Orange, continued funding for 91 storefront veterans outreach centers and a halt to other planned cuts in VA services.

"We voted unanimously in favor of continuing the sit-in and hunger strike," Kovic said. "We feel that nothing less than a meeting right here with the president of the United States is acceptable."

"We think it's an embarrassment to us and to the American people when Vietnam veterans must starve themselves to death to receive the treatment they should have received immediately on their return from Vietnam," Kovic said.

"We're completely dissatisfied that the response came from the VA," Kovic said. "We're upset that the response didn't come from the president."

Kovic said the veterans would send a response to Custis' letter to the White House.

Custis said Reagan planned to triple funding for the study of the toxic defoliant Agent Orange to a new total of $9.5 million in the next fiscal year.

He also said the administration will increase the overall VA budget by $1.3 billion to a total of $24.2 billion next year.

The protesters are also demanding a comprehensive investigation into delayed stress syndrome and a complete evaluation of the G.I. Bill of Rights and care provided at the VA hospital.

The 11 hunger strikers were identified as Kenneth Van Glen, Los Angeles, in his 11th day of fasting; Walter Buchanan, Los Angeles, and a man identified only as Dr. John, New York, both in their eighth day; William Rig, Detroit, seven days; Clarence Stickler, Oxnard, Calif.; Carl Anonson, Los Angeles, Robert Blake, Los Angeles, six days; Edwin Gilbert, Buffalo, N.Y., five days; Robert Zappy, Los Angeles and Greg Morton, Phoenix, Ariz., both in the fourth day of their strike.

A diabetic veteran who was hospitalized after four days of fasting and a veteran hospitalized with a urinary infection withdrew from the strike.

Be willing to sacrifice lives, author says

U.S. needs hostage policy

DALLAS (UPI) — A Dallas psychiatrist and author who has done extensive research on international terrorism says the U.S. government must establish a more reasonable perspective on hostage safety — including a willingness to sacrifice hostages' lives.

Dr. David G. Hubbard said Friday the United States must be willing to sacrifice U.S. hostages if it wants to be taken seriously by other countries.

"What other nation could ever take seriously our defense preparations when we are unwilling to lose even a handful of lives to a minor enemy," he said in an address to the annual meeting of the Dallas Council on World Affairs.

Hubbard, one of the first to apply clinical methods to the study of terrorists and their victims, currently is directing a research project in which captured terrorists are interviewed and tested.

Referring to the Iranian hostage situation, he said: "We must not dance a crazy 444-day jig to a ragged terrorist tune sung by a few men. We can't allow the presidential office to be gambled by shooting craps with a hairy old terrorist."

Hubbard said Americans accept the fact that more than 150 people die each day in auto crashes. "We don't launch a helicopter attack on Detroit," he said.

He warned U.S. citizens were giving up their right of privacy in exchange for personal safety. He used as an example the security measures in force for airplane travelers.

Brady doing 'super duper' in struggle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House press secretary James Brady is "doing super-duper" under treatment for pneumonia, the latest complication in his struggle to recuperate from a bullet wound to the head, doctors said Friday.

Brady's fever has "really come down dramatically" since he started receiving treatment Thursday for pneumonia in his left lung, said Dr. Dennis O'Leary, a spokesman for George Washington University Medical Center.

Brady had temperatures of 103 to 105 degrees for the past few days, and doctors discovered Thursday the cause was pneumonia in his left lung. He was immediately given an antibiotic.

O'Leary said Brady, 40, is now "doing super duper."

"His clinical course is very good so far," O'Leary said. "He's had only modest temperature elevations."

Brady, who was shot through the brain during the attempted assassination of President Reagan March 30, is taking his new ailment in stride, but he did observe he has "had his share of complications" in recovery, O'Leary said.

Hinckley given trial antidote dose

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John W. Hinckley Jr. was given an experimental antidote to counter an overdose of headache pills he took this week in the prison where he is being held for allegedly shooting President Reagan, a medical official said Friday.

Dr. Barry Ruckack, director of the Rocky Mountain Poison Center, which is testing the drug for the federal government, said his Denver, Colo., facility was notified of the overdose and gave its required approval to use the remedy.

Ruckack also acknowledged that for Hinckley to be administered the oral antidote, Mucosyl, he had to be informed that the Federal Drug Administration has not yet approved the drug and give his consent.

Ruckack declined to discuss Hinckley's condition at the time. He authorized it as an apparent attempt by Hinckley to "harm himself."

patients considered to have taken a toxic overdose."

Hinckley swallowed an undisclosed quantity of Tylenol, an aspirin substitute, at the federal correctional institute at Butner, N.C. The drug, when taken in large quantities, can damage the liver and cause death.

The Justice Department has characterized it as an apparent attempt by Hinckley to "harm himself."

Haig blames Western nations for invasion

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Secretary of State Alexander Haig said Friday the United States and other Western nations were partly to blame for the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Haig said it was unfortunate the free world failed to act when the Soviets made initial overtures toward Afghanistan a year before the actual invasion.

Haig chided "an unnamed Eastern newspaper" for an editorial at the time that advised the American government to "stay cool in Kabul."

"That was Eastern press jargon to suggest that we should not be concerned about that initial Soviet intervention — the installation of a puppet leader in Kabul."

forces a year later, is a very small step to take. I would say that in the West have some obligation and some culpability that that second step occurred in the first place."

However, Haig said the Soviet Union has not yet succeeded in Afghanistan, saying "the control the Soviets have over the countryside in Afghanistan is very limited."

"The countryside is a very risky place for the Soviets."

Haig said the effort to punish the Russians by imposing the grain embargo was ineffective.

"We frankly shot ourselves in the foot," Haig said of the now lifted embargo. "A grain embargo alone is too narrowly based. There were other sources available, as we saw in this last embargo."

Accused bank robber Robert walks between his lawyers

Bank tellers testify at hearing for boy, 10

NEW YORK (UPI) — Several bank tellers testified Friday at a hearing in Family Court involving the city's youngest bank robbery suspect — a 9-year-old boy named Robert.

Robert, who turned 10 since he allegedly robbed the New York Bank for Savings on Feb. 26, appeared before Judge Reggy Davis to face charges of juvenile delinquency.

The information hearing was closed to the press.

Six employees of the bank sat outside the courtroom and three were called to testify before lunchbreak.

Robert arrived at court in Lower Manhattan with his attorney, Mel Sachs, his mother and grandfather.

He allegedly pulled a gun on a teller at the bank the Americas, demanded money and left with $118.

Sachs originally told reporters the gun was a toy and that Robert was only playing when a teller suddenly gave him the money. He had no comment when he appeared with his client today.

Robert allegedly spent most of the loot on a watch and junk food.

Probation, suspended jail term for Hinson

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Rep. John C. Hinson, R-Miss., who entered a no contest plea to a charge of attempted oral sodomy, has been given a suspended 30-day jail term and put on probation under medical supervision for a year.

District of Columbia Superior Court Judge David L. Norman Thursday accepted Hinson's plea, entered a judgment of conviction and suspended the 30-day sentence he imposed. He ordered that Hinson be under medical supervision during the probation period.

Norman said Friday because Hinson will be under a doctor's care he will not have a tight reporting schedule to a probation officer and will be under only "minimum supervision." The prosecution and defense agreed on the sentence.

Hinson, a 33-year-old second-term House member, had been scheduled to go to trial Monday as was Harold Moore, a 29-year-old Library of Congress employee who was arrested with Hinson in the restroom of a House office building. Moore's trial is still set for Monday.

After his arrest in February, Hinson entered a Washington hospital for treatment of a "disassociative reaction."

Aside from answering Norman's questions about whether he understood his rights and entering his plea, Hinson said nothing during his brief court appearance.

Texas jury turns down shopping money story

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) — Ora Lee Jones told a jury she went into a bank armed with a twig to get a couple hundred dollars for Christmas presents for her six children.

Instead she got $14,250 and 10 years.

Mrs. Jones, 35, pleaded guilty to aggravated robbery Thursday and asked punishment be set by the state District court jury hearing her case.

"I didn't have a dime, not one cent," she told jurors of the Dec. 22, 1960, robbery. "I wanted to buy Christmas presents for my kids."

"I really only wanted $100 or $200 but I thought they would think I was silly if I asked for that," she said.

She testified she had spent several weeks last winter in a makeshift tent, fashioned from a plastic sheet she found on the banks of the Trinity River. Three days before Christmas she plucked a twig from a tree near her campsite and went to the Fort Worth National Bank.

She said she pressed the twig against the inside of her coat pocket and handed the teller a note that read: "Act natural. This is a stickup. Don't think that just because I'm a woman I won't shoot you."

She was nabbed by a security guard on her way out of the bank.

Mrs. Jones, who had no previous record, told jurors she had not seen some of her six children for 11 years following four broken marriages. Two of the children live with a former husband in Texas, two with a former husband in Oklahoma and two in a Texas children's home.

Her testimony elicited little sympathy from jurors who assessed a penalty twice as long as the five years requested by prosecutors.

"That stuff about wanting to see her kids didn't cut any ice with us," juror Stewart Schropmeyer said. "I think she will be better off by learning a trade or something in the penitentiary."

FBI recovers 4 items stolen at Smithsonian

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI has recovered four items stolen in the last year from the Smithsonian Institution, among them a valuable silver pen used by John Hay to sign the 1898 Treaty of Paris, the Smithsonian said Friday.

Three persons, including a museum guard, were charged in connection with the theft of two swords, which were recovered, and the theft of two medals, which were not recovered, a Smithsonian spokesman said.

The pen, valued at about $25,000, was discovered missing Feb. 10. It had been taken from its case the day before to be photographed for a book.

The swords and medals were discovered missing March 9. Also recovered was a gold-plated and jeweled cigarette case missing since December.

The FBI identified the suspects in the case as guard Vincent Butler Whitley, and Watson Lewis-Mills Jr., and Ronald Conrad Pugh, all of the District of Columbia.

Tulsa police seek 2 gunmen

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Police investigating the country club slaying of Telex Corp. founder Roger M. Wheeler sought help from other agencies Friday.

They were searching for a gunman described by witnesses under hypnosis — with possible ties to organized crime.

Funeral services were held Friday for Wheeler, the father of five children, at the First Presbyterian Church in Tulsa to which he had anonymously donated large sums of money.

Police Detective Don Bell said Friday that Wheeler might have been carrying a gun when he was shot. He said police had not determined if four unspent shells found in Wheeler's lap and on the ground nearby matched the bullet recovered from the body.

"He (the gunman) could have shot (Wheeler) then thrown those shells at him or they could have been (Wheeler's) or they could have already been there," Bell said.

"He (Wheeler) could have had a gun," Bell said. "I can't release that information."

The unspent shells were being tested for fingerprints, the detective said.

A police detective said officers were investigating known professional gunmen resembling a bearded man who shot Wheeler Wednesday as the Telex board chairman sat in his car after a round of golf at Southern Hills Country Club.

Detective Stanley Glanz said the FBI and other agencies had been given composite drawings made from the witnesses' descriptions of the gunman and a getaway driver who fled the posh country club after the slaying.

"That is one of the things we are asking the FBI to help us with," Glanz said of the possibility of a professional gunman. "We don't have too many of those type people around here."

"We are inquiring with other agencies if they know of anyone who may be or was known to have been tied to organized crime that might fit our descriptions or of any known hitmen they know of," Glanz said.

Wheeler, 55, who founded the $150 million a year computer and electronics firm, had other business interests that included jail deals in Florida and in Connecticut.

"He had high priced business deals and if he thought something was right he would take it to the limit," Glanz said.

'Met murder' testimony ends

NEW YORK (UPI) — Testimony ended Friday in the trial of an ex-stagehand accused of killing a violinist at the Metropolitan Opera House, and the case is expected to go to the jury early next week.

After the prosecution finished questioning its last rebuttal witness, defense attorney Lawrence Hochheiser asked acting state Supreme Court Justice Richard Denger to dismiss the three-count indictment against Crimmins because of "lack of evidence" to corroborate the second and third counts.

Crimmins, 22, was accused of killing the violinist, Helen Hagnes Minniks, 31, at the Met July 23 after trying to rape her.

Ways, means panel arena for tax battle

Projected federal receipts 1980-1986

By MICHAEL F. CONLAN
Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — "Powerful" is the adjective so often used to describe the House Ways and Means Committee that it seems a permanent fixture — like a loophole in the tax code.

Because Social Security, Medicare, welfare, unemployment and, of course, taxes are the committee's responsibilities, its decisions are far-reaching and its influence considerable. Until a few years ago, its Democrats even decided on which committees other Democrats would serve.

Now the Ways and Means Committee is the crucial arena for President Reagan's proposal for "multi-year, across-the-board" tax cuts — the latest jousting ground for his administration and the badly split House Democrats. Reagan's proposal for a three-year, 10-percent-a-year tax cut has been under fire by many Democrats and some Republicans who believe the tax cut is too large, should not be legislated more than one year at a time, and should be targeted toward specific income groups.

The committee is controlled by the Democrats with a 23 margin, and its recommendations rarely have been defeated in the past on the floor.

But it has a new chairman, several Democratic factions, and a united, if somewhat restless, band of Republicans who back the president.

Here are sketches of some of the key figures among the committee's 23 Democrats and 12 Republicans.

That Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., took the committee helm, instead of the No. 3 post in the House leadership, underscores the importance Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts places on the job. Rostenkowski, 53, is a close friend of O'Neill, who wanted a party loyalist in charge on the most important economic committee in Congress.

He's probably as astute a politician as we've ever had in the House of Representatives," says former Rep. Charles A. Vanik, a committee colleague who retired last year. "Committee-wise, floor-wise, he's aware of the forces affecting his proposals."

Vanik ranks Rostenkowski with the almost-legendary, "skilled" ex-chairman Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, and adds, "Danny knows the political facts of life. The strength of a leader is really knowing how far he can go."

Rostenkowski, first elected in 1958, learned those facts from former Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, and there are reports he would like to be mayor of his hometown, someday — if he does not try to succeed O'Neill.

The committee's ranking GOP member is Rep. Barber Conable from upstate New York, the single most influential Republican on tax and fiscal matters in the House.

Conable, 58, who is serving his ninth term, has long been cool to the idea of cutting all tax brackets of 10 percent in each of three successive years as originally proposed by Reagan. Lately, however, his skepticism of the plan's fiscal wisdom has been muted.

"Barber is sort of a prisoner of the White House," observes a business lobbyist who knows him well.

Most of the current state of tax negotiations have centered on Rostenkowski and his opposite number in the Senate, Robert Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, rather than Conable.

Still, he supports Reagan and his views are respected not only by fellow Republicans, but a number of Democrats as well.

Two Democratic factions, conservative and liberal, are important in any tax bill's fate, underlining the difficulties facing the party leaders in the House.

Conservatives, mostly from the South and Southwest, are generally regarded as the most important because their defections from the leadership's position provided much of the margin of victory for Reagan's budget cuts.

Rep. Jim Jones, D-Okla., absorbed that defeat as chairman of the Budget Committee, and as member of Ways and Means he is not anxious to see it repeated.

"Although regarded by some liberals as too conservative, his opposition to Reagan's federal spending reductions have made him somewhat suspect among his natural conservative allies."

Many politicians believe Jones, 42, a former aide to President Johnson, and Rostenkowski someday may be rivals for the speaker's post. Rep. Kent Hance, 38, and in his second term from the high plains of West Texas, is viewed as a pivotal figure among the conservative Democrats who supported Reagan on the budget cuts, but who are extremely wary of the additional federal deficits resulting from the president's tax plans.

O'Neill and his lieutenants want to accommodate conservatives like Hance enough to woo them from Reagan, but at the same time try not to alienate the party's liberal wing, where most of their sympathies lie. Among those on the committee expected to be active in trying to get any tax cuts directed more toward moderate and low-income wage earners are Reps. Charles B. Rangel of New York and Harold E. Ford of Tennessee, members of the Congressional Black Caucus; William M. Brodehead of Michigan, new head of the liberal-oriented Democratic Study Group, and James M. Shannon of Massachusetts, regarded as a protégé of O'Neill's but increasingly independent.

Watt sticking to land plans despite Sierra Club efforts

JAMES WATT ...won't duck fight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Interior Secretary James Watt said Friday he expects the Sierra Club to gather "several million" signatures urging his recall, but that won't sway him from managing America's public lands "for all people."

Watt, whose department oversees use of 750 million acres of federal land, has been bitterly criticized by many conservation groups as an "anti-environmentalist" — and the Sierra Club is leading a petition drive seeking his recall.

Asked about the club's prediction it will gather 1 million signatures by this summer, Watt said during an NBC "Today Show" interview. "Well, they should have had it before now."

"I should think Congress would be looking at several million acres, or signatures," he said. "That should be easy to acquire."

But, Watt said, opposition from environmental group leaders will not sway him from his goal of "opening up these lands to all the people, not just a select few."

"So we'll put emphasis on hunters and fishers and those who want to use the lands and manage them, the lands and waters and wildlife, for everybody," he said.

Watt's office does not welcome a fight with environmentalists.

"We, I would rather not have the confrontation," he said. But "we've been brought to do a job. And that is that we need to manage the lands for all the people. And we have lots of lands."

The former western land lawyer noted his department's Bureau of Land Management manages 450 million acres — twice the size of Texas.

He said: "Those lands need to be managed so we can have more beef, so we can have more timber to build homes for people. We need to open up fishing and hunting areas; we need to have multiple use. We need to mine some of the coal there so we can have electric power in St. Louis and elsewhere."

Nixon not China choice

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Alexander Haig said Friday Richard Nixon will not be asked to serve as ambassador to China.

Haig, speaking to a civic group in St. Louis in a broadcast monitored at the State Department, was asked if the former president would be the best choice for ambassador to Peking because of his background and experience in reopening diplomatic relations with the communist government.

"Certainly not," Haig said.

Haig said the question was important and justified on the basis of Nixon's qualifications and background — "But I don't anticipate he will be asked," Haig said.

Haig served as Nixon's White House chief of staff in the final months of the Watergate scandal that drove the president to resign in 1974.

It has been reported that the administration will nominate a career diplomat, Arthur W. Hummel Jr., as ambassador to China.

State probes leak of papers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department has launched an urgent investigation into the leaking of top classified documents on U.S. policy toward South Africa, a spokesman said Friday.

Spokesman David Passage said it is "contemptible and reprehensible" for a Foreign Service officer to try to influence policy by leaking classified working papers to the press. He compared it to a "code clerk turning over his codes because he does not approve of secret diplomacy."

The investigation was triggered by the appearance in The Washington Post of several draft memos, leaving out the U.S. intention "to open a new chapter" in relations with South Africa.

The Post said the documents were made available to it by Randall Robinson, executive director of TransAfrica, a black-oriented lobbying group with a special interest in African affairs.

New hearing on nominee for senators

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee said Friday it will reopen next week the confirmation hearings of Ernest LeFever, President Reagan's controversial human rights nominee.

A committee spokesman said the panel — already leaning strongly against nominee for assistant secretary of state for human rights — will recall LeFever for private questioning Thursday about conflict of interest allegations.

The allegations involve LeFever's Ethics and Public Policy Center which received contributions totaling $25,000 from Nestle, one of the largest manufacturers of infant formula.

Committee chairman Charles Percy, R-Ill., had scheduled a vote of LeFever for Tuesday, but the spokesman said that has now been delayed until after LeFever answers the committee's questions Thursday.

In addition to LeFever, the committee has also been asked to hear from officials of the Nestle Corp. and from U.N. Ambassador Jeanne Kirkpatrick.

USSR scores Reagan over pledge

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union criticized President Reagan Friday for meeting with the wife of imprisoned Jewish dissident Anatoly Shcharansky.

It described the meeting as a "sordid" action that further damaged U.S.-Soviet relations.

In an article signed by leading commentator Yuri Kronilov, the official news agency Tass charged that Reagan's 30-minute conversation in the White House Thursday with Avlita Shcharansky was an attempt to interfere in the Soviet Union's internal affairs.

"Needless to say that attempts of this kind in no way help toward improving U.S.-Soviet relations. It is even more astonishing that none other than the U.S. president joined in this sordid activity," said the article, which was given added authority by the Kronilov byline.

Diplomats said the tone and swiftness of the Soviet reaction indicated that Reagan's pledge to work for Shcharansky's release from a Soviet prison camp may have caught the Kremlin off guard.

"These actions can be assessed only as an attempt at interference in the Soviet Union's internal affairs," Tass said.

Mrs. Shcharansky told Reagan that her 33-year-old husband, a former computer programmer and Jewish dissident, was near death due to harsh treatment in a Soviet labor camp. She said she has reports his weight has dropped to about 100 pounds.

Shcharansky was convicted of treason and anti-Soviet activities in 1978 and sentenced to a total of 13 years. In recent months, family members have been refused permission to visit him.

Odometer ruling set back a year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration took another step Friday to ease regulations affecting the ailing auto industry by delaying for one year a requirement that odometers be more tamper-resistant.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration also announced it will soon issue a proposal to rescind the entire federal standard in question, which covers both odometers and speedometers. A proposal to rescind the regulation was included in a list of government actions announced by Vice President George Bush last month. A separate auto industry task force put the brakes on almost a dozen regulations affecting automakers.

The delay in the odometer requirements, which were due to take effect Sept. 1, will save the industry an estimated $10 million in model year 1982, NHTSA said.

A review of the standard led the safety agency to question whether it is likely to yield significant safety benefits, and it concluded it would be inappropriate to require automakers to comply with the odometer requirements this year.

'Angel dust' found in child's blood

ROYAL OAK, Mich. (UPI) — Doctors at Beaumont Hospital have found traces of PCP, a powerful animal tranquilizer in the drug culture as "angel dust," in the blood of a 3-year-old boy, police said Friday.

State social services officials have taken temporary custody of the boy and his 5-year-old brother pending a child abuse investigation of their 26-year-old mother and her live-in boyfriend.

Investigators said the 3-year-old may have been injected with the PCP.

Fred Halimeh of Atlanta paid $8,800 for 4-bottles of wine

It'll be some party given bill for wine

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A wine consultant from California Thursday paid $3,300 for two bottles of Chateau Lafite, a red Bordeaux bottled during America's post-Civil War Reconstruction era.

The prices — $1,550 for an 1868 vintage and $1,750 for an 1870 — were the highest paid for single bottles in the morning session of the Heublein Premier National Auction of Rare Wines.

"It's been a very productive morning," said Jan Duplass, formerly of New Orleans and now living in Los Angeles.

Ms. Duplass said she had no intention of drinking the wines — yet.

"I'll put them away, let them sleep," she said, "and then maybe have a wonderful party."

Aside from the venerable French wines from the famed vineyard of Baron James de Rothschild, some equally aged wines from California's Napa Valley demanded the highest prices in early bidding.

Restaurateur Don Monette of Boulder, Colo., paid $1,150 for a single bottle of 1891 Inglenok Napa Zinfandel. It was the highest price ever paid for a single bottle offering of California wines in the 13-year history of the Heublein auctions.

The total California wine sales were $50,350 and averaged more than $1 per bottle, about double the price drawn last year.

The 13-year-old auction is the largest one-day sale of rare wines in the world, generating $617,683 in sales last year in San Francisco.

More than 185 buyers from 24 states and three countries — some collectors and some wine merchants — were bidding on the collection of wines from France, Hungary, Argentina, Greece, Portugal and the United States.

Couple's animals land them in court

CHICAGO (UPI) — A couple has been charged with endangering the health of their children by keeping 15 dogs, 18 rabbits and numerous birds in their basement apartment.

The children, 1-month-old Mary, Joseph, 4, and Edwardine, 5, were placed in the custody of the state Wednesday. The birds and animals were taken to the City Animal Control Center.

Edward P. Cwik, 53, and his wife, Josephine, 39, were each held in lieu of $25,000 bond.

If you've got the money, the town's all-yours

MONETA, Wyo. (UPI) — With a four-table cafe and a population of 12, Moneta is still an oasis on the windswept prairie of central Wyoming, and for $315,000 it can all be yours.

Moneta, a four-acre hamlet 77 miles west of Casper, is for sale. Its owners, Darrell and Pat Henderson, decided they have had enough of the rural life. "It can be very enjoyable when you own your own town, but it can also be a lot of hard work," Pat said.

The Hendersons ran the four-table Bright Spot Cafe, a small grocery store, gas station, trailer park and small motel plus a small bar where gas crews relax.

"Pat has been Moneta's back-up bartender, cook, greaser, monkey and garbage collector. As mayor, Darrell is head bartender, police chief and sanitation director. He takes out the garbage."

"We open at 7 in the morning and don't close until 2 in the morning. It's a totally different kind of life. It's a challenge," Pat said.

"It's quite a town, I'll tell you that. I was impressed with it when I first saw it and I am still impressed with it. I'm going to miss it in a lot of ways," Darrell said.

Darrell has reason to be impressed with Moneta's potential. It lies south of rich natural gas fields, amid oil fields and near two now-defunct uranium fields. The large cattle ranches that first brought the railroad to Moneta in 1927 are also still in business.

But it is the tourists on their way to Yellowstone, the Tetons, Boyesen Reservoir or points beyond that bring most of the revenue to Moneta.

Hell's Angels have stopped at the small cafe for two consecutive summers; a woman horseback rider seeking a world distance record camped out on the driveway, and a bicycling family on a cross-country tour stopped to repair 10 flat tires.

Punk rockers face cocaine charges

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Johnny Thunders, who helped bring punk rock to the United States with his New York Dolls, has been arrested on suspicion of being under the influence of cocaine.

Thunders, 28, whose real name is John A. Genzale, and Louis Scaccia, 25, a member of his current band, The Heart Breakers, were arrested Tuesday during a disturbance outside the Bacchanal nightclub.

Police said police were called to the club four times beginning Monday night to quiet an unruly crowd. The final call came as the club closed at 2 a.m. Tuesday and officers faced a crowd of about 50 people.

Chatham to anywhere, its via Maine

CHATHAM, N.H. (UPI) — If you're driving from Chatham to anywhere else in New Hampshire you really can't get there from here — without a lengthy detour through Maine.

And people visiting this tiny hamlet on the edge of the White Mountains say the guy who drew the line separating the two states must have been crazy.

"It just doesn't make sense," said Edward Boissy, arriving in town with the New Hampshire bookmobile, based in Littleton. "We've got to drive 15 miles through Maine. The mountain range to the west is the natural boundary."

Chatham children attend school in Fryeburg, Maine.

Rescue and fire trucks are dispatched from across the border to handle Chatham crises.

Maine radio and television stations entertain the town. The mountains block most broadcasting signals from New Hampshire.

Mail is delivered to Chatham's 185 residents from the North Fryeburg post office.

But Chathamites wouldn't change the boundary for their lives.

"I'm glad it's New Hampshire because of the taxes," said Nelson Eastman, a heavy equipment operator who lives behind the wooden Chatham Town House, site of the annual town meeting.

Maine has a 5 percent sales tax and a general income tax. New Hampshire has neither.

"If I had my druthers I'd move the store up a mile or two," said Adrienne Robbins, owner of the Slow Corner Store in Stow, Maine. "People from Chatham always complain about the sales tax."

Chatham citizens usually shop in North Conway, N.H., a 25-mile drive south through Stow and Fryeburg — and back west through the mountains.

"You can buy stuff in Maine if you want to pay through the nose," said Eastman, 50. He chooses the cheaper route.

Town Clerk Claire Perry says her friends in Maine "holter all the time" about poor road conditions in the Pine Tree State — potholed pavement and ice-coated winter roads. "They tell me about this new thing in Maine."

The "new thing" is financial woes for the Maine Transportation Department and a recent policy of reduced road maintenance and winter plowing.

A New Hampshire snowplow is based in Chatham to plow "the road" connecting the town with Stow. The road has no real name.

The border between the two towns is marked by a little wooden post saying "S-17-(state-line)". It's nearly impossible to spot.

"Guys who deliver stuff here sometimes try to charge sales tax, because they don't know they've crossed the line into New Hampshire," said Town Constable Wayne McAllister, a dairy farmer paid $150 a year to keep law and order.

"If anything big happens, the sheriff or state police comes in," he said. "Sometimes I get ahead of the Oxford County (Maine) sheriff and sometimes it's the Carroll County (N.H.) sheriff."

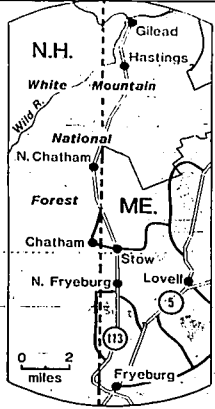

A camping area on the border, Evans Notch, often has both Maine and New Hampshire state police called in to break up boisterous summer soirees.

The town was chartered in 1767 in honor of British Lord Chatham — the "Great Commoner" who eloquently defended rights of the American colonies.

Nelson Eastman's 250-year-old house lies in Center Chatham, overlooking the town house, the Chatham Congregational Church and the Slow-Chatham Community Library. His sister-in-law Barbara Eastman is librarian.

"The hills are full of Eastman's," said the librarian's niece, Ellie Eastman.

Mount Eastman rises out of McAllister's backyard in the White Mountain National Forest.

Asa Eastman was the town's first justice of the peace, back in the 18th century, according to Georgia Drew Moore's "History of Carroll County," published in 1889.

And Nelson Eastman is sure he won't have to cross through Maine during his one last drive.

"That pine has to go right over there," he said, pointing to the graveyard nestled in a nearby hillside.

Jazz composer dies at 71

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — Mary Lou Williams, the innovative jazz composer and pianist who developed "Kansas City Swing" and then moved on as a pioneer in the use of jazz as sacred music, died Thursday night of cancer. She was 71.

Miss Williams, once described by Duke Ellington as "soul on soul," was one of the few jazz musicians who weathered the changes in music — from spirituals and ragtime of the Roaring 20s, through the reflected troubles of the Depression to the bebop style of the 1940s and 1950s.

She left music in the early 1950s to devote more time to religion but returned in 1957, opening her New York home to a host of young jazz musicians, including Thelonus Monk, Bud Powell, Tadd Dameron, Art Blakey, Kenny Dorham, Charlie Parker and Miles Davis.

She came to Durham in 1977 and was artist in residence in the Duke University Music Department.

Miss Williams wrote songs for the giants of jazz. Her hits included

MARY LOU WILLIAMS ... 'soul on soul'

"Walking and Swinging," Lotta Sax Appeal," "Little Joe from Chicago," and "Camel Hop," which became the theme of Benny Goodman's radio program "Camel Caravan of the Air."

In his book, "Music is My Mistress," Ellington praised her talent and willingness to take risks in her style and composition.

The pianist was to be taken to the John B. Rooney Funeral Home in New York for viewing Saturday and Sunday in New York and burial will be Tuesday in Pittsburgh.

Miss Williams, born in Atlanta in 1910, grew up in Pittsburgh where her mother encouraged her musical development by inviting professional musicians to their home to play.

"By the time I was 7, I was covering the neighborhood playing the neighbors' pianos and playing for neighborhood parties," Miss Williams said in a 1977 interview. "When other kids were out playing hopscotch, I was inside at the piano. My mother said when I was 12, I would spend 10 hours a day at the piano."

Laos is the only nation in the world that currently uses no coins in its money system.

In less than a week, Uno sees best, worst

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Uno Skantz receives few letters.

"Just a piece of junk mail every once in a while," he said in his clipped Finnish accent.

Not many people write to a 71-year-old man with polio who lives alone, confined to a wheelchair.

But Thursday, Uno received letters from 10 people. None knew him, but all wrote for the same reason.

They were saddened to read a newspaper article that on Memorial Day he had been robbed of his life savings — $350.

How someone could be low enough to rob a 71-year-old man in a wheelchair is almost beyond comprehension.

"Uno never bothers anybody, everybody around here loves him," said Ken Carter, desk clerk at the downtown Fort Washington Hotel where Uno lives. "But, I believe anything can happen anymore. The unusual is becoming more commonplace."

Uno cried when he recounted Monday night's robbery. He said someone came into his room, tied him in his wheelchair and found his $350 in a chest of drawers.

"I had never had anything like this happen to me," he said.

A tear slipped down his red cheeks.

"He said he had a knife. I didn't want to be hurt. I was afraid."

He paused. He reached down and picked up a small bag he carries on his wheelchair. He awkwardly picked out a handful of letters.

He held the letters proudly in his hand. He slowly sorted through them, looking at each return address. He counted them, Ten letters.

"This week," he said, "I have seen the worst and the best in people. These people wrote to say they felt bad about what happened to me. It makes me feel good."

Some of the letters contained checks. Later in the day, a representative from a church visited Uno and told him the church would be sending him a $350 check to replace his lost savings. A visitor from another church said he could expect another $50.

Uno said he appreciated the money, but wished he was still able to work and earn his own money.

Arafat says Libyans aid PLO in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — PLO leader Yasser Arafat admitted Friday that Libyans were helping the Palestinians in Lebanon.

He charged the Reagan administration gave Israel the "green light" for air and ground attacks following the departure of U.S. envoy Philip Habib.

Addressing a rally as rocket and mortar fire ripped across Beirut, Arafat made the admission a day after Israeli warplanes destroyed a Libyan-operated SAM-9 missile battery precision base on the coast 13 miles south of the capital.

"I ask Begin and his (American) masters... why all this fuss over the Libyans? Tell them that the Libyans fought alongside the Palestinians in 1947, 1948 and 1972 — or has Begin forgotten this," Arafat told a cheering crowd.

Arafat said that the Israeli air strikes came only 24 hours after Habib's departure for consultations in Washington "proves that Washington gave the green light to Israel to carry out its military operations against our Palestinian people."

At the United Nations, U.N. officials disclosed that Secretary of State Alexander Haig sent an oral message to Arafat last week through the office of U.S. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim.

The officials said the message asked the PLO to show "self-restraint" while negotiations to ease the missile crisis were underway. A PLO official said Arafat now felt "betrayed" by the United States because of the new Israeli attacks.

In south Lebanon, Lebanese officials reported the third Israeli raid in two days, saying commandos crossed the frontier and blew up three houses in the border village of Mjidal. Israel denied the report but confirmed a sea-borne assault force earlier on the Lebanese coast south of Beirut, saying its commandos ambushed a Palestinian jeep, killing the occupants.

PLO officials said the Israelis also attacked a vehicle belonging to Syrian troops in Lebanon, killing one Syrian soldier.

Violence also erupted in Beirut as right-wing Christian militiamen and Syrian troops traded rocket and mortar fire across the confrontation lines dividing the battered capital. Four persons were reported killed.

In Washington, Habib conferred with President Reagan and announced plans to return to the Middle East next week to resume his shuttle diplomacy aimed at averting a Syrian-Israeli war over the Lebanese missile crisis.

Although Reagan had effusive praise for Habib's attempts to defuse the crisis, both Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization blamed Washington for the fighting.

First lady of Peking regime dies of leukemia at age 90

PEKING (UPI) — Soong Ching Ling, honorary president of China and the grande dame of its Communist regime, died of leukemia Friday at the age of 90, the official Xinhua news agency announced.

The widow of Sun Yat-Sen, the man who ended dynastic rule in China and set the stage for the Communist takeover in 1949, Madame Soong was to be buried with China's highest honors, Xinhua said.

"Her death is a great loss to the country and the people," the agency said, announcing that memorial services would be held Wednesday in the Great Hall of the People.

A 392-member funeral committee was named, including Communist Party Vice chairman Deng Xiaoping and Chairman Hua Guofeng. The government ordered all Chinese flags be flown at half-mast on Peking's Tiananmen Square and at Chinese embassies abroad.

Recently named honorary president of China, the American-educated Madame Soong — was Communist China's last link with Sun Yat-Sen, the revolutionary leader who ejected the Ching dynasty in 1911.

She was one of the three Soong sisters, daughters of a Chinese missionary, who married their way into the echelons of power in pre-Communist China.

Ching Ling's older sister, Ai Ling, married Mao Zedong's son, Liu Xiang. Her younger sister, Mei Ling, married Chiang Kai-Shek, who lost the civil war to the Communists and founded the present day nation of Taiwan.

SOONG CHING LING... honorary president

Madame Soong joined the Communist government in 1949 and never again saw her younger sister, who now lives on New York's Long Island.

The official Chinese media mounted a campaign in the final days of Madame Soong's life to get Mei Ling to come and visit her dying sister in the time-honored Chinese tradition.

But the move would have undercut the legitimacy of the current president of Taiwan, Mei Ling's stepson Chiang Ching-Kuo, and implied a sense of reconciliation between Peking and Taipei.

In the face of strenuous objections from Taipei, Mei Ling stayed at home.

Xinhua said Madame Soong's other family members were at her bedside when she died of chronic lymphocytic leukemia.

Despite her critical illness, Madame Soong could not avoid being drawn into China's political infighting in the weeks preceding her death. Diplomats said her funeral would also be used to display China's leadership unity.

Educated at Wesleyan College for Women in Macon, Ga., Madame Soong became personal secretary to Sun Yat-Sen when his political fortunes were at a low ebb. When Sun exiled himself to Japan, Soong Ching Ling followed him there and married him, despite strong family opposition.

After Sun Yat-Sen's death in 1925, Soong renewed her association with Communists in Shanghai, whom she had known earlier.

In 1949, when the Communists emerged victorious in the civil war and set up the national government in Peking, Soong was named its vice chairman.

She was described as the most beautiful and graceful of the Soong sisters and played an important behind-the-scenes role in many of the decisions that shaped modern-day China.

Hanoi accounts for 3 more MIAs Americans' remains found HANOI, Vietnam (UPI) — Vietnam announced Friday it has found the remains of three more U.S. airmen missing since the Vietnam war.

The announcement was made during a visit by a three-man delegation from the U.S. Joint Casualty Resolution Center, based in Hawaii.

Vu Hoang, director of the Vietnamese office in charge of finding missing American servicemen, said the remains of the three airmen would be turned over to U.S. officials as soon as forensic specialists had completed identification of the remains.

"The Vietnamese government, prompted by goodwill and a humanitarian spirit, shall continue the search process," he said.

"We're pretty happy," said Lt. Col. Joe Harvey, 40, commander of the center, adding that the arrangements for the transfer of the remains would be worked out with the Vietnamese embassy in Bangkok, Thailand.

Both sides refused to reveal the names of the three airmen, among some 2,500 American servicemen still listed as missing in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

The Vietnamese announcement came less than a month after news reports revealed that Washington had sent a secret commando reconnaissance team into Laos to seek evidence of live American prisoners of war in jungle camps there.

The commando team returned with no evidence that any Americans were still being held prisoner.

But in Washington, Ann Griffiths, executive director of National League of Families of Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia, said that if the Vietnamese intend to return the remains of only three Americans, "it's a deliberate slap in the face."

"They are aware our government possesses a substantial amount of information that has been substantiated by the Defense Intelligence Agency that Vietnam is withholding the remains of over 400 American servicemen," she said.

"This is another one of their dribbling out the remains of a couple of people because they must think it suits their purposes. It's really insulting."

"It, of course, will ease the uncertainty for three of the families. Of course we are happy for the three families, if indeed the Vietnamese follow through and return them. As for the overall picture, it's disgusting. It's another indication of how they lie," she said.

Spanish king visits Barcelona

BARCELONA, Spain (UPI) — Surrounded by some of the strictest security ever mounted in post-Franco Spain, King Juan Carlos made a symbolic trip to Barcelona Friday despite the discovery of what appeared to be a right-wing plot to assassinate him.

The king's arrival in Barcelona, where right-wing terrorists seized more than 200 hostages in a bank last weekend, was seen as an attempt to rally the support of the military for Spain's delicate democracy following an abortive military coup Feb. 23.

Prime Minister Leopoldo Calvo Sotelo and top officials were at Barcelona's Prat airport to greet King and Queen Sofia, who arrived in separate air force planes to attend the largest military celebrations in Spain since the attempted coup.

Police also were on the alert for possible left-wing terrorism during the military celebrations.

They said Basque separatists were known to have entered Spain from France, and far-left urban terrorists were thought to be in Barcelona, the capital of Catalonia province.

Troops and national policemen patrolled the city's streets, searched some homes and made spot checks of identity papers. Hospitals were on a special alert.

Paramilitary Civil Guards stood on airport tarmacs, with police sharpshooters on rooftops.

cognized as a powerful figure installed by Hanoi after its 300,000 troops ousted the Khmer Rouge regime and occupied Cambodia in 1979.

But the announcement made to the Cambodian party congress was the first public acknowledgment of his title and the first time a party leader has ever been recognized publicly.

Vietnamese Communist Party boss Le Duan, the theorist of Indochinese communism, announced Pen Sovan's appointment to the Cambodian party congress.

Analysts said the recognition placed Pen Sovan in a position to assume higher positions when the nation's new constitution becomes effective and lightened Hanoi's grip on Cambodia.

"Now we know they really mean the situation in Cambodia is irreversible," said one Western analyst in Bangkok.

Investigation sought for Buhl ambulances

BUHL — An advanced emergency medical technician has asked state officials to investigate possible deficiencies with ambulance service provided in Buhl.

Mark Grimes, who worked as a volunteer unit January at the Buhl ambulance unit owned and operated by Magic Valley Ambulance Service, has requested Region V Emergency Medical Services Coordinator Dennis Grimes investigate the following:

- Lack of coverage in the Buhl area due to transferring the one unit assigned there to other areas.
- Slow ambulance response times.
- Poor communication with the Buhl joint police-fire department radio dispatcher.
- High turnover rates of personnel in the Buhl area who have completed EMT courses.
- The ambulance has not utilized Grimes, Buhl's only resident advanced EMT since January.
- Inadequate equipment used by the ambulance service.
- Magic Valley Ambulance employees have not been informed of a Twin Falls County ordinance requiring them to pay licensing fees. Idaho Department of Health and Welfare officials have been investigating the Twin Falls-based ambulance service since December 1980. Officials conducting that investigation have declined comment beyond saying information is being compiled and a final report prepared.

Grimes conditioned his comments by saying he was raising questions about the service and not making specific allegations. He said he was taking his complaints to the public because Magic Valley Ambulance officials have ignored him.

The charges accompany a request by Buhl City Councilman Terry Lechner that Grimes explore the possibility of obtaining another ambulance service, either privately or publicly owned.

Grimes said one of his major concerns was the fact that Buhl was left without a local ambulance whenever its unit was called out of town.

"It just seems odd. Every time the ambulance goes out of town, we need it," he said. Even when the ambulance remained in Buhl, 15-minute response periods were not uncommon, he said, adding that some improvement has been made in the last week, however.

Grimes said he did not know why the ambulance service had a high rate of employee turnover.

"Since I've been here, I can think of four (EMT-certified volunteers) who have quit. This goes back years and years... no one stays more than a year with the same ambulance," he said, adding since the EMT program is state funded, the high turnover rate constitutes a waste of tax dollars.

Grimes said the ambulance service in the past has not provided some advanced equipment recommended by the American College of Surgeons. He said he had previously made that complaint known to the EMS officials and that Magic Valley Ambulance Service since has made some improvements.

Defense wants dismissal

Robbery prosecution ends

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The prosecution in the 5th District Court trial of a Jerome man charged with robbery concluded its case Friday.

The defense called for an immediate dismissal of charges.

Fifth District Court Judge Daniel Meehl will rule whether the trial of 27-year-old Ron Pierce should end with a robbery a local convenience store, will continue when the case resumes Tuesday.

Pierce was arrested March 4 one hour after the Maverik Country Store, 366 Washington St., was robbed by a man carrying a gun. Relying on a description of a get-away vehicle provided by an eye-witness, Jerome Police arrested Pierce and two co-defendants, Robert D. DeLucia, 26, and Charles F. Spencer, 26, in Jerome.

DeLucia turned state's evidence and his testimony implicated Pierce in the robbery.

Twin Falls County Deputy Prosecutor Jim Meservy called four witnesses Friday, attempting to verify DeLucia's testimony.

Jerome police patrolman Loyd Bonawilt said he spotted the suspected get-away car, described as a late-model station wagon, followed it and recognized the driver as Pierce.

After the car was stopped, Bonawilt said he detained the three suspects.

Twin Falls Police Lt. Pat Birmingham said a search of the car revealed a .22 caliber pistol and $240 in cash had been placed beneath the vehicle, while a .45 caliber pistol and miscellaneous items were found inside.

Police Lt. Jim Klister said his department received two reported Jerome County license plate numbers from the eyewitness and forwarded that information to Jerome officials.

From that, police determined one of the vehicles belonged to Pierce's former wife, Rose, he said.

Meservy also produced Tom Wood of Twin Falls, who said the three suspects visited him recently. Although he said the visit occurred about six weeks ago, the witness said he couldn't remember the date of the incident, adding it was the only time all three had visited his home together.

DeLucia had testified the three went to Wood's home after the 9:30 p.m. robbery.

But Pierce's lawyer, Randy J. Stoker, argued the prosecution had failed to verify DeLucia's testimony and had failed to prove its case.

Stoker argued Idaho law prohibits a conviction based on uncorroborated testimony of an accessory to a crime. Meservy's evidence did not place Pierce at the scene of the crime without DeLucia's testimony, Stoker said.

"It's just as likely that Ron Pierce was at the Corner Pocket at the time as it is to say he was at the scene of the crime, aiding and abetting in a robbery," Stoker said.

Meservy countered Idaho law says verification of an accessory's testimony need only be slight, point to one material fact and need only be circumstantial.

By identifying Pierce, placing him at the scene of the arrest in his former wife's car and placing him at Wood's home, the prosecution had more than satisfied the corroboration requirement, Meservy said.

First-degree murder charge filed

TWIN FALLS — Jon LeRoy Sjogren was arrested Friday on a first-degree murder charge stemming from the death of Donna Hartley Smith.

Twin Falls Police Chief Tim Qualls said Sjogren, 29, of Twin Falls, was arrested Friday at the Twin Falls Police Station, where he was taken for questioning. Sjogren, who was arrested on a charge of kidnapping, will be arraigned in 5th District Magistrate Court Monday.

The body of Smith, 61, was found Wednesday morning at her residence, 1400 Second Ave. W., according to Qualls. Twin Falls County Deputy Coroner Steven Baitsch said Friday he is awaiting a state pathologist's report on the cause of Smith's death.

Qualls declined to release additional information about the case on grounds that it could hinder further investigation.

River search fails to find body

BUHL — The body of an apparent drowning victim remained unrecovered Friday, the second day of a Snake River search.

Gooding County Sheriff Robert Aja said efforts Friday to locate the body of Ray Hawkins, 47, of Buhl, involved dragging hooks through the water. Divers searched briefly but were hindered by conditions of the river, which had risen several feet since the apparent drowning of Hawkins Thursday afternoon, Aja said.

Authorities said Hawkins and Mike D. Hessler, age unknown, of Buhl, were fishing between Banbury Hot Springs and the Camp Roach Boy Scout Camp when Hawkins apparently slipped out of the boat after possibly suffering a heart attack. Hessler's unsuccessful attempt to rescue Hawkins resulted in the fisherman's small boat capsizing.

Aja said units from Twin Falls and Gooding counties and Buhl participated in the search Friday. Monitoring of the river will continue through the weekend, Aja said.

Jerome shooting victim stable

JEROME — The Jerome County Sheriff arrested at Twin Falls man Friday in connection with a non-fatal shooting early that day.

Sheriff Plaza Hall said the shooting of a 17-year-old man from Twin Falls occurred on the north side of the Snake River in a natural pit called "The Bowl," east of the Perrine Bridge, apparently around 1 a.m.

Hall said the victim, whose name was unavailable Friday, was hospitalized with a gunshot wound in the neck. Magic Valley Memorial Hospital officials reported the victim in stable condition Friday night.

Jailed on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon was Ron Webb, 26, of Shelby's Mobile Home Estates in Twin Falls.

Hall said the shooting occurred at a party attended by 60 to 80 persons. After he was shot with a .22-caliber semi-automatic pistol, the victim scuffled with another partygoer, Hall said. He said a motive for the shooting has not been determined.

It's a two-way street for Acequia principal

ACEQUIA — Sherman Peck did not lock the Acequia Elementary School doors for the last time Friday.

Thanks to staff members who backed him at a school board meeting earlier this month, Peck will stay at the school where he has spent 30 of his 31 years in education.

Peck was being considered for transfer because he had backed a teacher who was under fire by parents for being too strict.

"That teacher has had a few problems," conceded Peck, "but he was a good teacher and has been improving. I tried to help get him a transfer."

At the board meeting, after a letter was read expressing gratitude for Peck's work as principal and requesting that he be allowed to remain in his present position. Peck and his staff won. "I plan to stay here until I retire in four or five years," he said.

While the effort to keep Peck at Acequia was planned, his move to Blinnidga County 31 years ago was more roundabout. His brother, Howard, needed a ride to Rupert from Utah to accept a teaching job in Rupert. While there, Sherman landed one in Acequia that fall.

Though he had trained as an agriculture teacher, there were no job openings in his field. So that summer he finished up classes to teach elementary grades.

"The school then was just an old two-story frame building, with two rooms up and two rooms down," Peck recalled. "The sand blew through the windows and there was an outside toilet."

His last 25 years of the school have been as its principal.

"I like it here," said Peck. "My philosophy is, if you like what you're doing and you're able to make a living at it, why change?"

Peck said he is proud of the way his school teaches patriotism to the students. Six trophies are given annually to finalists who win a patriotic speech contest. These finalists give their speeches in February at the PTA meeting and that winner receives another trophy from the superintendent.

The first year of the contest saw former Idaho senator Frank Church enter the winning speeches into the Congressional Record and Peck received a letter

Officials re-examine flood zone designation for Gooding, Shoshone

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

GOODING — New construction in Gooding and Shoshone has received at least a temporary reprieve from a recent federal flood zoning order.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency ordered community leaders to zone about 90 percent of each town as a flood hazard area. This requires stiffer building code requirements that, for example, resulted in an additional $25,000 expense of building Gooding's new $450,000 senior citizens housing project.

If the towns fail to comply with this order, they will be dropped from the National Flood Insurance Program.

The program has subsidized insurance required for most Farmers Home Administration and Veterans Administration building loans.

"We just received word that FEMA has ordered a re-examination of our flood hazard designation," Gooding Mayor Gene Heller said Friday. "Until this $160,000 study is completed, we can't be penalized for not conforming to the previous order to rezone and require stiffer building standards."

The towns have proposed flood hazard zone designations in compliance with FEMA order, but public objection has stalled work on these proposed ordinances at the planning and zoning commission level.

Most of the stiffer building codes involved taller foundations and sealed basements.

In their letter to Gooding and Lincoln county officials, FEMA representatives acknowledged there was some question about the accuracy of U.S. Army Corps of Engineers water flow projections that were used in establishing the large flood plains encompassing most of Gooding and Shoshone.

FEMA responded primarily to questions raised by a Boise engineering firm, CH2M-Hill, which was contracted by FEMA to continue studies of the Little Wood River system in Gooding and Lincoln counties.

CH2M engineers recently told FEMA they could not insure the accuracy of their work if they were required to use the existing Corps of Engineers water flow data.

CH2M representatives said lava formations surrounding the Little Wood River may allow more percolation of flood waters into the Snake River Aquifer than Corps projections considered. The CH2M engineers have not said the Corps data is wrong, only that there is doubt.

"We told FEMA officials that we believe this $160,000 study is a better use of public money than (to proceed) with the Corps' proposed $2 million flood water diversion project proposed east of Shoshone," Heller said.

To reduce flooding and shrink the flood plain designations, the Corps has proposed building flood water escapes on the Gooding-Milner Canal and at the Dietrich Irrigation diversion

"If only 70 percent of the Corps' base data is found to be accurate, it would relieve the need for this expensive diversion project and significantly reduce flood plain designations in both of the towns," Heller said.

No target date has been selected for CH2M Hill to complete its study of the Little Wood River's flood potential. FEMA officials have hired CH2M to conduct the completely new study to double check the Corps' projections.

"We've always said the Corps' figures aren't correct," Shoshone Mayor Ellwood Werry said Friday.

Much of the Corps' flood plain designation for Shoshone was supported by a 1907 flood, but Werry said evidence indicates this flood, probably the worst in Shoshone's history, was not as serious as cited in the Corps' study.

"According to our people living here at that time, the water didn't even cross the railroad tracks (into south Shoshone)," Werry said. "Our records just mention there was flooding and a ditch northeast of town had to be cleaned out."

"In the newspapers of that time, the only mention we've ever found is on the inside pages, not on the front page," Werry continued.

Werry believes the 1907 flood, which occurred before many of the local irrigation diversions were built, was caused by an April snowstorm that deposited 18 inches in Halley and 20 inches in Ketchum.

Border Patrol's vehicle seizure illegal, prosecutor says

By JANE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — Lincoln County Prosecutor Doug Rose claims a recent vehicle seizure by the U.S. Border Patrol is unconstitutional.

He sent a letter notifying the Twin Falls border patrol office that agents attempting to confiscate property in Lincoln County without court-issued warrants will be arrested for trespass. This action was prompted by the May 24 seizure by federal agents of a vehicle belonging to William Hubert Shaw of Detroit.

"In my opinion, it is a violation of the constitutions of the United States and the state of Idaho," since both guarantee that no person can be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process," Rose explained.

Rose said he has been in touch with Idaho Attorney General David Leroy, U.S. Attorney Jeff Howe and immigration officials in Washington, D.C. Rose said he is considering filing charges of larceny, illegal seizure, and extortion against the agents involved in the incident.

"The national immigration people told me to be careful of false arrest charges," Rose said. "I feel that is just intimidation."

At issue is a procedure used by the Department of Immigration and the U.S. Border Patrol, known as an administrative order.

Harry Rhodes, supervisory investigator from the Boise immigration office, explained Friday that a vehicle believed to have been used to violate federal immigration laws by transporting illegal aliens is subject to confiscation under the federal law.

"Federal agents obtain a notice of confiscation from the chief patrol agent in their Border Patrol sector, then serve the notice on the owner of the vehicle."

Rose contends this procedure is not constitutionally correct. "Due process has been determined by the courts to mean that a citizen must be notified of the charges against him prior to the loss of his liberty or property, and given an opportunity to defend himself against the charge," he said.

Cases of property seizure the courts have held that the evidence must be presented to an impartial judge and a warrant issued naming the property to be seized and the reason.

Rose acknowledges the federal immigration law does provide for the use of administrative orders to seize property if "a warrant is not constitutionally required."

"Court tests have shown this means if a vehicle is found with illegal aliens in it, the vehicle would be destroyed or hidden," he explained.

"The administrative order for confiscation has been examined in court and found to be correct," Rhodes said, and added, "In this case, the owner was also seized with a criminal summons to appear in federal court on charges of transporting illegal aliens."

Rose contends previous court trials have dealt only with vehicles caught in the act of transporting illegal aliens. "The indictment against Shaw was given four days before the seizure of his vehicle. There was plenty of time to get the proper warrant," Rose said.

Also of concern to Rose is the fact that the order bears the name of the Havro, Mont. Border Control Sector Chief Patrol Agent, but with the notation "by R. Okins."

It appears agent Roger Okins of the Twin Falls Border Patrol office who served the notice may also have filled it out and signed it. That is not an important legal," Rose said.

Okins could not be reached for comment Friday.

Lincoln County Sheriff Darwin Mills is also concerned with the incident. "I got a call at my home Sunday from Mrs. Hubert Shaw. She said some armed federal agents were at her home trying to take their pickup, and wanted to know what to do," he said.

Mills went to the Shaw residence and met with the federal officers. "They showed me this letter and said it gave them the right to take the truck. I asked for the original, but the agent said he had just one copy."

Ellis' attempt to drop suit not easy

TWIN FALLS — Eight men named by Buhl trout farmer Ken Ellis in a suit he later dropped are not letting the matter drop.

Lawyers for six of the eight people Ellis sued appeared before 5th District Court Judge Theron Ward Friday asking for money from Ellis to repay them for the costs of preparing a defense. Ward issued no decision, but indicated he will probably rule the trout farmers are entitled to money from Ellis.

How much money they are entitled to would not be decided until a separate proceeding after Ward makes his ruling. The six men are seeking about $3,000.

Last March, Ellis sued eight individuals connected with the trout industry for $1.5 million. He claimed their disparaging comments about the value of his Crystal Springs hatchery delayed the sale of that hatchery to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Two weeks after he filed suit, the Corps purchased the hatchery for about $3.4 million. A week later, Ellis dropped his lawsuit against Thorpe Hansen and Ted Eastman, both of Buhl; Elbert Davis, John Hepworth and Percy Greene, all of Twin Falls; J.W. "Bill" Jones, Jr. of Hagerman; Larry Cope of Filer and Robert Erkins of Bliss.

Rangan and Jones are not trying to recover money from Ellis.

For the others, they appeared to have taken the first step toward recovering about $8,000 in costs and attorneys' fees Friday.

Ward did not rule officially because a brief filed by Ellis's lawyer, Newal Stuyves of Boise, had not been received by the court. Ward said he would read the brief before making a decision, but expected to rule in favor of the six trout farmers.

The next battle would then come when the lawyers argue how much money the trout farmers are entitled to. Before they can collect money for attorneys' fees, for example, they will have to show Ellis filed his suit "frivolously," said lawyer John Hohnhorst, who represented Hepworth, Cope, Davis, Eastman and Erkins.

New computer a tight fit

TWIN FALLS — Getting a 900-pound computer to the third floor of the Twin Falls County Courthouse Friday required brains and brawn.

Fitting the IBM computer into the elevator was a tight squeeze and was accomplished only by removing the elevator handrails, said Twin Falls County Commissioner Marvin Hempleman.

The computer, six terminals and a printer arrived this week and will be hooked up next week, Hempleman said. Total cost for the system is $83,300 and the county will make monthly payments of $2,716 for 36 months, said Twin Falls County Commissioner Ann Cover.

The county and city have shared a computer located at city hall since last October, but because the agencies have increased their use of the computer the system had become overloaded, said computer programmer Bob Stephenson.

The new computer has the same memory capacity as the city's computer and Stephenson said he expects the county will not need a larger computer for five years.

The computer will store motor vehicle registrations and land parcel and property deed records and payroll information. Eventually law enforcement and court records will be stored on the computer, he said.

Stripe rust found locally

TWIN FALLS — The first reported outbreak of stripe rust in Magic Valley wheat appeared Friday morning.

Robert Forster, plant pathologist at the Snake River Conservation Research Center in Kimberly, found it in one of his test fields. Stripe rust is a fungus disease that could cause high losses in spring wheat.

It can be treated only with a new, and relatively expensive, fungicide called Bayleton, Forster said.

To see if their wheat has stripe rust, farmers should look for orange pustules on the wheat's leaves. The pustules will usually form a striped pattern, Forster said, although in the disease's early stages the pattern may not have emerged.

Canal arguments delayed

TWIN FALLS — The dispute between the Twin Falls Canal Co. and the company that wants to force it to share its canals didn't return to court Friday.

Lawyers for the canal company and Canyon View Irrigation Inc. agreed to delay arguments for another month on a motion by the canal company to dismiss a case brought against it by Canyon View.

Last year, an Idaho Supreme Court decision gave Canyon View the right to use a portion of the canal company's system to transport irrigation water from Milner Dam to land west of Salmon Falls Creek. In a case filed in 5th District Court here last January, Canyon View seeks to have the courts decide how much the company will have to pay for that right.

Thomas Nelson, lawyer for the canal company, filed a motion to dismiss the case because of what he described as some technical details about the way the case was filed.

Man unwilling owner of new gold car

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man found himself the owner of a gold car Friday.

But Pat J. Gay, 528 Third Ave. N., wasn't calculating wealth as he gazed upon his 1965-model vehicle.

Sometime between Thursday and Friday mornings, Gay told Twin Falls Police, someone wrapped toilet paper around his car, sprayed it with gold paint and garished it with eggs and sliced pickles. The car was parked in the 500 block of Third Avenue North when the incident occurred.

Peck

"from an Alabama man with a copy of that day's Senate proceedings."

"I used to play basketball and baseball with the students," said Peck, "but now I try to involve myself with them in other ways."

One way he gets involved is lunch duty, which also relieves teachers so they can have some free time, which may help explain his staff support at the May school board meeting.

A teacher who has worked with Peck for 20 years speaks highly of other traits he has exhibited. "He listens to any problems that I have," she said, "and some discipline problems with boys once and he was behind me all the way."

Another teacher at Peck's school landed in hot water when he ran up onto a stage in an auditorium in Idaho Falls to hand-deliver a letter to President Reagan during his recent campaign.

"Mr. Peck helped me clear that situation. I owe him a lot," said the teacher. "He reprimanded me severely at first, but then he backed me when they wanted to fire me for what I had done," he continued.

Peck said he has supervised some 85 teachers since he became principal and three of them have been former students.

Peck said after patriotism, the most important item that his school is involved in is building character. He maintains that the students in his school are taught by honorable teachers and "the good example they set carries into the lives of the pupils."

Peck's idea of example comes from leading, in the memory of another Aequila school staffer. The custodian remembers the time "the well at the school went haywire."

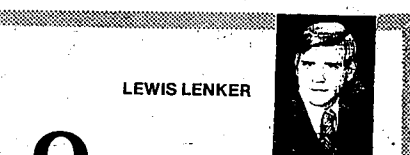

"We had to pack warm water and cold water from wherever — warm water for the kitchen and cold water for the toilets and for the kids to drink," he said.

"It was quite a job, but Mr. Peck didn't bother with the question of whose job it was. He plunged right in and helped with everything — even taking water into the restrooms and cleaning the toilets. That's what I kind of guy he is."

saying the former volunteer was making false and damaging statements about the company.

"When you have an employee that is not loyal to the company... you fire him," Edwards said, adding Grimes frequently was "not operating as efficiently as possible."

The fact that one ambulance unit is stationed in Buhl does not mean the unit is there solely for that city's use, Edwards said. While Twin Falls County pays a subsidy to the, privately-owned ambulance service, "the city of Buhl does not, he said."

"We could actually put the ambulance anywhere we want," he said. "Buhl doesn't pay us anything... I'm losing money in Buhl. So my comment to Buhl is if Buhl is considering putting in their own ambulance service, they're welcome to it."

Edwards also charged Grimes' ambulance response time charge, saying the former volunteer, in arriving at an average time, had included non-emergency calls with emergencies.

Grimes also characterized Edwards' charge of high turnover rates at the Buhl ambulance service as a "completely false statement. There are no EMT's to begin with in Buhl. We've even put advertisements in the newspaper for people who would be interested in the EMT course in the Buhl area and we've had very poor response."

Don't forget: Christian Radio is now at the crossroads. We have no choice now but to put a station on the air. The number one call for our programming requirements is proposed to the FCC by July 1st. Unless we have your classes, our radio will be unable to contribute $100 per month and will have to be taken off the air. This is a real crisis. We need you to help us meet this challenge. Please help us to have a "Sound" Alternative. It's not an impossible dream.

The West

Fums still mystery

Cameras search for gas leak

WEST VALLEY CITY, Utah (UPI) — City officials planned to run a television camera through municipal sewer lines Saturday in an effort to find the source of gasoline fumes which forced evacuation of a mile-long, business-lined highway this week.

City Fire Marshal Jay Miles said Friday the specially-designed camera, used by oil-and-natural-gas companies to check for leaks in their pipelines, should be ready for its first run through the sewer system by early Saturday morning.

"That's when the lines will be at their lowest use level," Miles said. "We're looking for areas of gasoline concentration or penetration. If this doesn't work, we may have to excavate up to two miles of the sewer line."

He said city and Salt Lake County officials are becoming very frustrated in their attempts to pin down the elusive fumes which prompted the 24-hour evacuation of about 100 business firms and two dozen houses Tuesday, plus the closure of 3500 South between 3200 West and 4000 West since the alert.

All buildings along the highway "have been cleared" of the potentially-dangerous fumes, Miles said. But he said the street was still closed for the fourth day Friday, due to "flammable vapors coming from open sewer manholes."

"It's getting numb and boring for us," Miles said. "But it's killing the businessmen. It's cutting of their lifeblood. With the highway closed, they're only getting walk-in customers."

Crews started tearing up service station parking lots Thursday in hopes of locating the origin of fumes which started creeping up through basement storm drains and toilets early Tuesday.

Miles said the crews hit paydirt on their first excavation. He said ground under the service station lot was "very, very hot" with vapors. "We have some gasoline counts in the station's soil which are so high you could almost run your car on them," Miles said.

But he said the station, adjacent to a grocery store parking lot where officials first thought the fumes originated, may be only one of several contamination sources.

"It's possible every station out here is contributing to it, or that the gas was dumped here years ago," he said. "There are six service stations in the blocked-off area."

The gasoline vapors were apparently freed from the soil by heavy rains and entered the city's sewer system through cracks or ruptures in pipes.

"Police and fire crews evacuated more than 100 businesses and about two dozen homes during Tuesday's initial alert."

Residents were allowed to return to the area Wednesday and stores were reopened, but not before merchants lost a total of at least $50,000 for every hour they had been "closed" down.

But late Wednesday a second alert was imposed on 3500 South. However, the evacuation was limited to less than 10 homes and the businesses were not ordered to shut down.

Traffic was allowed to resume on 3500 South for about eight hours during the second day of the alert. But the mile-long stretch of highway has been blocked off continuously since about 8 p.m. Wednesday.

"If it turns out the seepage is stemming from gas which was dumped in this area many years ago, this is a situation which every city in the county can learn from," the fire marshal said.

"It may be a good example of dumping fuel in the ground and Mother Nature not being able to accommodate the contamination. It's a lesson we may be reminded of here for some time to come," he said.

Nuclear weapon detonated at test site

YUCCA FLAT, Nev. (UPI) — United States scientists detonated an underground nuclear weapon Friday, which packed a punch of less than 20 kilotons.

A spokesman for the Dept. of Energy said the 10 a.m. MDT detonation, code-named "Alligote," was conducted 1,650 feet beneath the surface of the Nevada Test Site.

It was the fifth announced underground test this calendar year.

The government spokesman said no radiation leaked into the atmosphere and the test was not felt outside the boundaries of the Nevada Test Site.

Since the 1963 treaty banning atmospheric nuclear tests, scientists have conducted 335 nuclear tests underground at the Nevada facility.

What's what

Soup as an appetizer turns off hunger signal

The soup before the meal gives your brain time to turn off the hunger signals. So if you eat soup, you eat less when you get the main course. Many generations of grandmothers have known that. Researchers at the University of Pennsylvania monitored 1,056 dieters. They learned in this particular study that those who started their main meals with soup lost just as much weight as the yogurt and salad dieters.

Judge dismisses 42 Teton Dam claims

Nuisance act upheld

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Supreme Court upheld the constitutionality of the state's "Moral Nuisance Abatement Act" in a decision Friday ruling against two Garden City adult bookstores.

The high court said the state had a constitutional right to close the U.S. Marketing, Inc. and Nikis & Nikes bookstores. The action reversed a decision by 4th District Court Judge W.E. Smith that the state's statutory nuisance provisions was unconstitutional. A unanimous decision written by Chief Justice Robert E. Bakes held that the state may, in appropriate circumstances, penalize individuals who sell obscene materials by closing their retail premises for a year.

The court concluded that such a closure order does not violate the first amendment provisions of free speech.

BOISE (UPI) — Forty-two lawsuits filed by insurance companies which sought more than $6 million from the government as a result of the Teton Dam disaster were dismissed Friday by Federal Judge Marion Callister.

The orders were the final steps in a two-year, three-court process toward denial of the claims of dozens of insurance companies who contributed to the sea of litigation that flowed after the June 5, 1976 dam collapse.

After the companies' claims for damages were denied by the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation, dozens of lawsuits were filed in U.S. District Court at Boise in 1978. The firms sought money from the government under the Tort Claims Act. The claims first were denied by the district court, and the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed the decision in October 1980.

The subsequent rejection of a motion for a rehearing at Boise and the refusal of the U.S. Supreme Court two months ago to study the case paved the way for Callister's final dismissal decrees.

Eleven persons died and hundreds were injured in the 1976 flood, which also caused hundreds of millions of dollars in damage. Congress later in the year passed the Teton Dam Disaster Assistance Act, allocating $400 million to victims of the catastrophe. Insurance companies argued that the Bureau of Reclamation was negligent in designing and building the eastern Idaho Dam and that the agency was liable for payments the companies made to clients in the devastated area.

Many of the lawsuits termed the $55 million flood-control dam on the Teton River "inherently deficient and dangerous."

But the government argued in response — and the courts agreed — that the companies had no legal standing and presented insufficient evidence in their claims.

The government said the relief action by Congress called for payment to be made only to the extent of losses not covered by insurance. Government attorneys also contended the federal Flood Control Act provided the federal government immunity from liability caused by floods.

Several other legal battles stemmed from the destruction caused by the flood, including lawsuits against the builders of the dam, Morrison-Knudsen Co., Boise, and Peter Kiewit and Sons Co., Omaha, Neb.

The government also has been prosecuting people in eastern Idaho who allegedly filed false damage claims.

Circuit Convention planned

TWIN FALLS — Jehovah's Witnesses of Twin Falls will host a semi-annual Circuit Convention in O'Leary Jr. High School Gymnasium June 6 and 7. Delegates from 15 congregations will be attending.

Principle speakers on the program will be J.D. Wengert, District Supervisor from New York and George H. Cook, Circuit Supervisor of Jehovah's Witnesses in Twin Falls, Idaho. Wengert will deliver the main discourse Sunday at 2 p.m. "Facing the Future with Faith and Courage" is the topic.

Sessions begin at 9:55 a.m. Saturday and are open to the public. Admission is free and no collection will be taken.

Former Custer sheriff cleared of fraud charges

BOISE (UPI) — A former Custer County resident sheriff in Stanley was found innocent Friday of a 12-count grand jury indictment by a U.S. District Court jury in Boise.

Carl Glenn Ellis was charged with defrauding the U.S. Forest Service under a contract the county sheriff's department has with that federal agency. Under terms of the contract, the sheriff department's Stanley office patrols in the Sawtooth and Challis national forests.

In return for those patrols, the Forest Service reimburses deputies and reserve officers for personal expenses and mileage.

But the indictment contends Ellis padded the reserve officers' expenses, falsified their signatures on those vouchers and then demanded the officers turn over a certain percentage of the funds to Ellis.

The jury, which began deliberations late Thursday after closing arguments, retired at 6 p.m. Friday, reaching a verdict about an hour-and-one-half later.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Warren S. Derbidge told jurors during closing arguments that "there is no question" Ellis was guilty of the charges.

Franklin defender wants out after argument with client

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The fifth public defender appointed to represent Joseph Paul Franklin filed a motion to withdraw from the case Friday.

The request came one day after he and the man accused of gunning down two black joggers had a heated argument in the Salt Lake County Jail.

Tom Jones filed the petition with Third District Court Judge Jay Banks, who scheduled a Monday morning hearing on the motion.

Jones declined to talk about his specific reasons for wishing to be removed from the case, but said he and Franklin had had several recent arguments concerning the strategy for defending the 30-year-old Mobile, Ala., man against capital murder charges stemming from the Aug. 20, 1980, slayings of two blacks.

Jail officials said the lawyer and Franklin had a loud argument Thursday in the jail's visiting room. Jones said the encounter an argument "was putting it very mildly."

The attorney would become the fifth-court appointed lawyer to withdraw from the case since federal civil rights charges were first filed against the avowed racist late last year.

One counselor withdrew because of a conflict of interest involving representation of a witness in the federal trial. The others said Franklin refused to accept their advice regarding a defense against the charges.

East miscues lead West to Shrine victory

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The West got back to even in the Magic Valley Shrine All-Star Football Game Friday night. Two breaks — one earned and the other a gift — in the opening minutes of each half set the stage and quarterback Gary Krumm, Twin Falls, turned them into touchdowns for a 16-8 decision.

It may have been the difference in the game came on the fourth play when the East gambled on fourth and a long yard and missed. Ten plays later the West was ahead to stay.

Throughout the first three quarters the West totally dominated. Not hurting was a muffed punt on the fourth play of the second half which Twin Falls' Jeff Holcomb covered on the 17. The West turned that into a 16-0 lead and it appeared might be capable of pulling further ahead.

But, the East then went to the air with Valley's Rob Tilley handling the passing chores. Although Tilley took perhaps 10 snaps from center last fall and last started a game (one game only) two years ago, he immediately passed the East to a touchdown.

The East never had good field position again — until a minute remained in the game — when the West fumbled on a fourth and one gamble at its own 47. It gave the East one last hope to pull into a tie. But that evaporated on next play when Gooding's Brett Legarreta jarred Tilley's arm. He was releasing a pass. It caused the ball to fall well short of its target and was an easy interception for John Simon of Glenns Ferry. The West then ran the clock out.

East Coach Barry Espil traced most of his team's woes to being outplayed in the line. And he felt that early fourth-down gamble may have contributed to it.

"Our line came out firing pretty well in the first series." But after we missed that fourth down, I don't know. Maybe our line lost its confidence or something. Anyway, after that the west took it to our linemen — both ways. We thought our line was tougher than that," Espil said.

If that was the turning point it came at the East 42. Twin Falls' Bob McMillen immediately hit twice for a first down to the 32 and three plays later Krumm hit Bruin Rick Tegan for nine yards and first down. McMillen and Gooding's Stewart Foscecco hit for another first down and then, after a penalty and a fumble, Krumm panned across from the one. He rolled out for the two-point conversion.

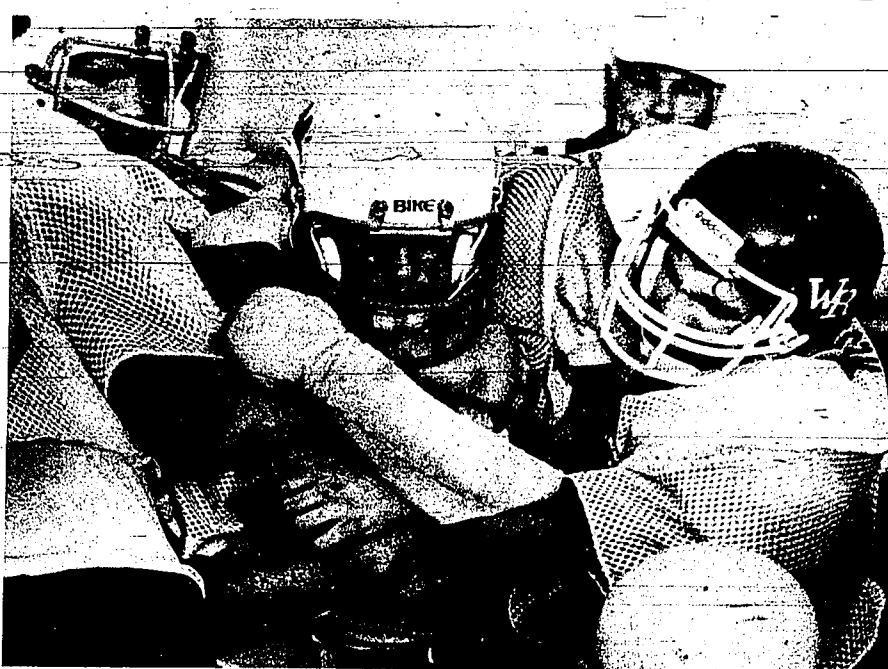

On its next possession, the West rolled 80 yards to a first-down at the East 10 before the East stiffened. A 16-yard field goal attempt strayed well right.

The West never let the East pass its own 45-yard line and late in the half moved to the East 27 before being stopped.

"All the coaching staff was thinking of was getting out of the half with the score 8-0," Espil said. "We had thought about trying to throw the ball earlier but, heck, if you can't block on simple run plays, you're not going to pass block."

"We wanted halftime to reorganize the line and show some confidence in it. We came out with some simple running stuff with rule blocking. And the line came back. We got a series going and scored but then we messed up by not getting a couple of key first downs in the fourth quarter," Espil said.

The early minute blues struck when Krumm's muffed punt was recovered by Holcomb. He ran it in to the joy of the West crowd but a muffed punt can not be advanced. From the 17, Foscecco and McMillen alternated carries until McMillen plunged in from the three. Krumm then rolled right and threw back to Buhl's Rory Richeson deep in the end zone for the two-pointer.

After one first down, the East had to punt and the West started putting together an impressive drive. Passes to Doug Walker and the running of Dennis Pruitt of Glenns Ferry and Ken Wolfe of Camas County carried quickly to the East 32 before a fumble struck. Scott Young of Kimberly recovering for the East.

Immediately Tilley started hitting on some passes. The big one was a 35-yard bomb to Shane Lierman of Hansen that carried to the West five,

Two plays into the final period Tilley sneaked across from the one. Curtis Farmer of Kimberly added the two-point on a quick pitch.

The East then exercised the all-star rule that allows the trailing team to receive after scoring.

"They can take that rule and stick it in their ear," said Coach Bill Jones of the West and Twin Falls afterward. "Even if they hadn't scored the two-point conversion, they still could have had the ball back."

The nail went into the coffin in the five minutes remaining in the game. Krumm punted out-of-bounds on the East fourth-yard line. While the game had several outstanding individual performances, Tilley and Castleford's Ray Garrison appeared to have the best ones.

Tilley, one of the best defensive backs, had a good night at quarterback but he didn't agree with Espil that the East should have been throwing earlier.

"I was pretty confident about my passing," he said. "But it felt better after a few plays. It (playing quarterback) was okay until that last play (when the West intercepted)."

Garrison wound up playing both ways and four positions, confirming

Jones' pre-game estimate that the Castleford grad was "the best line-man we have."

"It was quite a bit easier than I expected," Garrison said. "I didn't get that tired but I did have to have a rest now and then."

"We lost (Wood River's Ty Loutzenheiser) and Garrison was the only man we could possibly double," Jones said. "And Ray was the only guy getting penetration on defense."

Klein remains satisfactory at hospital

Rozelle says Davis' request for move was first of its kind

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle testified Friday on National Football League membership in necessary witness after 13 days of the federal court trial of the antitrust charges against the league was San Diego owner Eugene Klein who had a heart attack after about four hours of strenuous testimony Thursday.

Klein was in the intensive care unit at Queen of Angels Hospital in satisfactory condition. He was diagnosed as having suffered an acute myocardial infarction, a blockage of the blood flow that damaged tissue in the heart area.

NFL attorney Patrick Lynch had Rozelle provide the jury with a mini-history of the NFL, relating how there have been seven moves since he became commissioner in 1960. All the moves were within the home territory — a 75-mile radius — of the club involved and they were not comparable to the 400-mile jump the Raiders want to make from Oakland to Los Angeles.

At Davis, Oakland's managing general partner, tried to move the Raiders south without league approval last year but was deterred by court action. Up until 1978, league bylaw 4.3 required unanimous approval of other teams for a transfer of franchise but the rule was amended to read three-quarters at a meeting in Chicago. Davis abstained in the voting.

Lynch drew from Rozelle the information that moves made by NFL teams since 1960 required traversing a total of merely 130 miles.

The Rams moved 94.55 miles to Anaheim; the New York Giants moved about 10 miles to New Jersey; the Patriots moved 23.24 miles to Foxboro from Boston; the Buffalo Bills moved about 10 miles from Buffalo to Orchard Park; the Dallas Cowboys moved about 10 miles to Irving, Texas; and the Detroit Lions moved roughly 30 miles to Pontiac.

Raider attorney Joseph Alioto took over examination of Rozelle and they bickered about whether Davis ever told the commissioner he was not required to ask for a vote on the proposed transfer. Alioto has claimed Davis was given the right to move without a vote at the 1978 Chicago meeting when he passed instead of voting no on the amendment to Rule 4.3. One no vote would have killed the amendment.

Alioto went over previous testimony by Rozelle who had related how Davis came to see him in New York City on Jan. 7, 1980 and had not "fully made up his mind" to move to Los Angeles but asserted in any case he would not need a vote.

The bickering was over whether Davis ever told Rozelle the league had promised him the right to move without a vote.

Alioto cited a letter Rozelle sent to Davis a few days later referring to their meeting and saying: "You took the position that no vote by National Football League members clubs was necessary for you to move from Oakland to Los Angeles."

'Jury' picked to deliberate Indy appeal

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Bobby Unser's appeal for a new ruling on whether he or Mario Andretti won the Indianapolis 500 will be heard by a three-man "court of appeals."

The court will be headed by Edward R. Render, a lawyer and professor at the University of Louisville Law School, USAC President Dick King announced Friday.

Render, 45, will serve as chairman and chief judge, King said, whose statement described Render as a "nationally recognized arbitrator" and a member of the National Academy of Arbitrators.

Other members of the court will be Reynold C. MacDonald, Chicago, chairman of the board of Interlake, and a past chairman and member of the USAC board since 1971, and USAC past president Charles T. Brockman, an Indianapolis businessman.

The hearing will be at USAC's offices in suburban Speedway, with a preliminary conference Wednesday to establish procedures. Testimony will start Thursday at 1 p.m.

Attending the preliminary conference will be lawyers representing Unser and Penske Cars Ltd., and lawyers representing USAC stewards.

"We must maintain that this proceeding is clearly a USAC responsibility that is provided for within USAC rules," King said. "USAC, as an independent and impartial body, will not shrink its responsibility in providing a fair hearing for the speedy resolution of this dispute."

Billy battles

Strike could be shelved until season completed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Baseball negotiations went on a hold Friday pending a decision by Judge Henry F. Werker in Rochester, N.Y., next week which could pave the way for the club owners and players to avoid a strike by tabling the difficult issue of compensation for another year.

The threat of a strike beginning at 10:01 p.m., MDT, Thursday was averted when representatives of the players and owners agreed to extend the strike deadline pending the outcome of a preliminary injunction filed against the Players Relations Committee by the National Labor Relations Board.

Should Judge Werker grant the injunction, the implementation of the basic agreement regarding compensation would be delayed for one year. A strike was averted at the last minute in 1980 when the owners and players agreed to table the issue of compensation for a year.

"A strike could be put off for a year," said Mark Belanger, player representative of the Baltimore Orioles. "That way we would maintain a status quo. We want to avoid a strike. If the ruling goes against us, we would definitely strike."

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, said that the player representatives had voted unanimously to strike if the judge's decision went against the organization.

The NLRB filed a charge of unfair labor practices against the club owners, accusing them of refusing to bargain in good faith. The injunction sought by the NLRB seeks to further postpone the strike deadline while an administrative law judge rules on whether the owners must disclose their financial records to the players, as part of negotiations dealing with compensating clubs who lose players as free agents to other teams.

The administrative law judge is to hold a hearing on the complaint on June 15.

The clubs have been maintaining that free agency is destroying them financially, and the NLRB is seeking to have the clubs open their financial registers to the Players Association to prove their financial hardship.

Judge Werker will render a decision on the preliminary injunction in Rochester, where he will be hearing a number of criminal court cases next week. He has asked that briefs be submitted to him in the upstate court for a hearing June 3.

He is expected to hand down a ruling within 48 hours after the hearing is completed, and the players could strike from 24 to 48 hours after his decision. If Werker were to rule on June 3, the players could strike the next day.

"I do not have specific knowledge as to how long that will be," said Miller. "But it could be accomplished this week. The federal judge has indicated his intention to rule on the matter two days after the trial. The Players Association has the right to strike within 48 hours after that decision."

If the judge's decision is appealed by either party and the Circuit Court of Appeals changes the injunction in any way or overturns the decision, the players could strike 24 to 48 hours after that verdict.

If the injunction is granted as requested by the NLRB, the players could strike next season by June 1.

The owners would not be able to implement the compensation proposal until next year, between Feb. 15 and Feb. 20, if the NLRB gains an injunction as requested. The players, as they did this year, would have to decide by March 1 whether to accept the proposal or strike. If they decided to strike, they would have to do so by June 1.

Missing the fun Bench laments broken ankle, sees August return

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Johnny Bench rested his broken ankle at home Friday and lamented that the injury has halted "the most fun I've had in baseball in years."

Bench, who broke his left ankle sliding into second base in Thursday's Cincinnati Reds' 7-4 victory over San Francisco, said he didn't expect to play again until at least Aug. 1.

The former all-star catcher had been playing most of this season. He felt the change had helped his hitting and rejuvenated his interest in the game. The 35-year-old veteran of 14 major league seasons had been leading the club in hitting with a .343 average.

"It's been a long time since I've had this much fun," Bench said as he relaxed at his modern, sprawling home. "Playing at first, I could help out (second baseman Ron) Oester, scream at (third baseman Ray) Knight, make fun of (shortstop Davey) Concepcion."

"It was a whole different attitude, a whole different perspective for me. I loved it because the mental pressure of catching wasn't there."

"It was a different kind of contribution for me, and I think a very effective contribution. I was glad I could hit. We were winning and I felt the whole club had picked up. It was the most fun I've had in years. Just a joy."

The "problem" Bench spoke of, was former regular first baseman Dan Driessen's unhappiness at losing his starting job. Just a couple of days before Bench was hurt, Driessen said he wanted to be "traded." Although Bench's injury means Driessen should start the next couple of months, Driessen says he still wants to be traded.

Ironically, Bench received his chance to play first base when Driessen was hurt earlier this year. When Driessen recovered, Bench was hitting too good to lose the job. Now, Bench admits Driessen has a chance to beat him out because of the broken ankle.

"Patience and time make things work out," said Bench, recalling he had been trying since spring training to win a job at first, third or the outfield. "Things worked out for me. Now it's in reverse. If Danny's hitting well and playing well when Bench is ready to play again, I'm sure they'll say it's his job. It's all up to him. I hope he can do a good job."

Bench insisted the situation has not caused "dissension" on the team.

"What dissension there was, was the fact that somebody wanted to play. I fell. I was capable of playing. I proved I could play first base. It may have worked the same way at third or the outfield. I only proved it in one area and it happened to cause problems."

"But the problems that people try to make out of this thing, whether they be friction, dissension or racial or whatever, I think they're just unfounded because I haven't seen any problems within our clubhouse."

Asked about his relationship with Driessen, Bench said, "I never was overly friendly, for the whole spring training and everything. But we never had a harsh word. We never had problems. Never faced each other."

"If Danny did something, I was right there to congratulate him and Danny did the same thing to me. But when it finally got right down to the point of (Bench taking over at first), it was very concerning for Danny Driessen. Heck, who doesn't want to play. I mean I wanted to play."

Asked if he was worried about losing his position back to Driessen in the next two months, Bench just chuckled and said, "No, I'm worried about falling down steps with these crutches."

Bench, who will have to wear a cast on his left ankle most of the next two months, said he plans to relax and do some fishing, but also will follow the Reds.

"I'll be watching the games on television and listening on radio and I think I'll be anxious to get back to the park," he said. "I was on the brink of retiring after last season, but now I'm interested in coming back in August and September and swinging the bat well."

'Kong' hits 5th homer in last 8 games

By United Press International

Pitchers, beware! Kong is loose. Dave Kingman, often referred to as "Kong" because of his gargantuan rampages, is on one of his home run romps. The big first baseman hit a three-run homer — his fifth home run in his last eight games and 10th of the season — to spark the New York Mets to a 6-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Rookie Mookie Wilson chipped in with four base hits and three runs scored in helping Mike Scott to the victory. Scott, 24, struck out nine hits, walked one and struck out two in going the distance.

The Mets scored twice in the third off loser Randy Martin, 2-3, on a walk to Scott, a double by Wilson and a single by Bob Bailor.

In the Mets' fifth, Wilson opened with a triple and, after an infield out, Mike Jorgensen was walked. Kingman followed with his fifth homer in his last eight games.

The Mets added another run in the sixth when Doug Capilla walked. Lee Mazzilli, with the bases loaded.

Chicago scored its run in the fourth inning when Leon Durham singled, stole second and scored on a single by Jerry Morales.

In late games, Cincinnati was at Los Angeles, Houston at San Francisco and Atlanta at San Diego.

St. Louis 11, Philadelphia 4

At Philadelphia, George Hendrick drove in four runs with a three-run homer and a single in helping the Cardinals snap a four-game losing streak.

Hendrick's homer, his seventh, followed Garry Templeton's single and a walk to Keith Hernandez in the first inning after the start of the game was delayed 15 minutes by rain. Dan

Long also homered for the Cardinals while Bob Boone connected for Philadelphia. Phil Forsch, 5-2, pitched five innings before leaving with a blister on the middle finger of his pitching hand.

Mark Littell pitched one inning, reliever over the last four innings to pick up his first save.

Montreal 3, Pittsburgh 2

Scott Sanderson combined with Bill Lee on a seven-hitter in pitching the Expos to victory over the Pirates at Montreal. Sanderson, 5-2, pitched the first five innings before he was forced out of the game in the sixth inning when he stumbled off the mound after throwing a wild pitch and sprained his right ankle. Sanderson gave up three hits and one earned run. Lee, who collected his fifth save, gave up four hits and also an earned run.

Dauer, DeCinces lead Orioles to victory, 14th win in 17 games

By United Press International

The Baltimore Orioles are fast becoming the Ol' Man River of the American League East. They just keep rollin' along.

Rich Dauer drove in three runs with a pair of doubles and Doug DeCinces hit his seventh homer Friday night to power Baltimore to a 6-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Dennis Martinez, with relief help from Tippy Martinez, boosted his record to 6-2 with his sixth triumph in his last seven starts as the first-place Orioles posted their 14th triumph in their last 17 games.

The Birds now lead second-place Cleveland by three games.

Dan Schatzelder, 2-4, failed to survive the first inning as Baltimore jumped to a 2-0 lead on a double by Al Bumbry. Dauer's RBI double to left and Jose Morales-run-scoring single. The Orioles made it 3-0 in the third.

Dave Rozema, when Dauer walked, advanced to third on Ken Singleton's single and scored on a wild pitch.

Detroit made it 3-1 off Dennis Martinez in the fourth on Alan Trammell's double and Steve Kemp's RBI single, but the Orioles boosted their lead to 5-1 in the bottom of the inning when Dauer doubled to drive in Mark Belonger and Bumbry, who had singled.

California at Chicago was rained out.

Milwaukee 5, Boston 4

At Boston, Ted Simmons, hitting just 190 at the time, belted a two-run homer, his seventh of the year, off Tom Burgmeier, 2-3, with one out in the ninth inning to lift the Brewers to their fourth straight triumph and 12th in the last 15 games.

New York 5, Cleveland 2

At Cleveland, rookie Dave Righetti allowed three hits over eight innings and Rick Cerone drove in two runs; enabling the Yankees to snap a four-game losing streak.

Kansas City 3, Minnesota 1

At Bloomington, Minn., Rich Gale scattered four hits in seven innings and Willie Aikens drove in two runs to lead the Royals, Gale, 3-3, struck out one before departing in the eighth for reliever Dan Quisenberry, who picked up his sixth save.

Seattle 5, Texas 4

At Arlington, Texas, Jerry Narron led off the 12th inning with his second home run of the season to give the Mariners the victory. Dick Drago, 2-2, gained the victory and Bob Galasso, just recalled from the minors Thursday, picked up a save.

Ellis Valentine, one of the Montreal Expos' prized possessions, was traded Friday night to the New York Mets to acquire relief pitcher Jeff Reardon.

In addition to Reardon, the Expos also received minor league outfielder Dan Norman and a player to be named later. Norman will report to the Expos' Triple A team at Denver.

The Expos were desperately needed a relief pitcher.

Parker was 1-0 with two saves in 19 appearances.

Considered one of the best all-round players in the National League, Valentine, 26, has been on the 15-day disabled list since May 20 after aggravating a hamstring pull. He was hitting .211 with three homers and 15 RBI in 22 games.

Dave Parker, the Pittsburgh Pirates rightfielder, has been removed from the 15-day disabled list.

Patuta was called up from the Braves' Richmond farm to take his place.

Gene Tenace, thrust into a starring role for the St. Louis Cardinals because of an injury to Darrell Porter, will miss several games because of a sprained left hand. The Cardinals said Tenace will be limited to pinch-hitting duty with rookie Glenn Burchmore expected to do the bulk of the catching.

Tenace had the hand X-rayed Thursday in Philadelphia and more X-rays and an examination by Dr. Stan London, the team physician, are scheduled for Monday when the Cardinals return to St. Louis. There is a possibility—the hand is broken—the team said.

Steve Henderson, Chicago Cubs leftfielder, was placed on the 15-day disabled list Friday and replaced him on the roster with outfielder George Yuzkovich from their Oklahoma City farm club.

McBride, who underwent surgery Wednesday for an inflamed knee, was disabled retroactive to May 24. He had been hitting .356.

Yuzkovich, with a batting average of .300 for Oklahoma City, leads the club with six homers and 29 RBIs.

Bob Walk, the Atlanta Braves pitcher who has lost four games, while winning only one, was placed on the disabled list Friday while Rich Mattia was called up from the Braves' Richmond farm to take his place.

McBride, who underwent surgery Wednesday for an inflamed knee, was disabled retroactive to May 24. He had been hitting .356.

Yuzkovich, with a batting average of .300 for Oklahoma City, leads the club with six homers and 29 RBIs.

Elliott Invitational today

Strong mile field to salute a legend

VILLANOVA, Pa. (UPI) — Many of the nation's finest runners will pay tribute to a legend today when the inaugural Jumbo Elliott Invitational track meet takes place at Villanova Stadium.

In a fitting salute to Elliott, who coached 15 men who ran the mile in less than four minutes in 77 years as Villanova coach, meet promoters have assembled a mile field featuring three men who hope to lower the world record this summer.

John Walker, the former world record holder who has moved into the suburban-Philadelphia area from his native New Zealand, will take on Steve Scott, the nation's No. 1 miler, and indoor world record holder Eamonn Coghlan, the former Villanova runner from Ireland.

Walker ran the mile in 3:50.58 last March in New Zealand. The 1976 Olympic gold medalist in the 1,500 meters, Walker ran a world record 3:49.4 in 1975, a mark that has been reduced to 3:48.8 by England's Steve Ovett.

But Walker says the man to beat is Scott, who defeated Walker in 3:52.50 at the UCLA Invitational in Los Angeles earlier this month. Scott is shooting to break the long-standing American record of 3:51.1 set by Jim Ryan.

"He's in pretty good shape right now," Walker said of Scott. "He's running at a pace where he'll peak in the TAC's (Track Athletic Congress meet June 19-21). Eamonn and I are preparing for the European season in July and August. If it's a strength race, he (Scott) should win."

Coghlan set a world record indoors with a clocking of 3:50.6, a personal best, in San Diego last February. He said his goal for the outdoor season is breaking 3:50 and then moving on to challenge the world record. Sydney Maree, a recent graduate after a stellar career at Villanova, also is expected to challenge in the mile. Also in the field are Craig Masback (3:52.06 personal best) and former Villanova runner Phil "Tiny" Kane.

World record holder Edwin Moses, making his first local appearance since before his gold-medal winning performance in the 1976 Olympics, will attempt to extend his winning streak in the 400-meter hurdles to 61 races.

Others scheduled to appear are University of Houston teammates Carl Lewis and Stanley Floyd in the 100-meter dash, Willie Smith and Herman Frazier in the 400, Greg Foster and Dedy Cooper in the 110-meter hurdles, James Robinson, Mike Bolt and Mark Eynart in the 800, Matt Centrowitz and Rod Dixon in the 5,000 and Francie Larrieu and Jan Merrill in the women's 2,000.

There also will be a 1,600-meter relay, in which Seton Hall will attempt to break the national collegiate record of 3:01.4 against the strong challenge of the Philadelphia Flyers.

Kemper: Edwards uses irons for 2-shot lead

BETHESDA, Md. (UPI) — Danny Edwards rode crisp iron play to his second straight three-under-par 67 Friday for 134 and a two-stroke lead ahead of a crowd of challengers after two rounds of the $400,000 Kemper Open.

Seventeen players, including his older brother Dave, were within five shots of Edwards after Congressional Country Club's rolling 7,656 yards were made easier by Thursday's day-long rains. Taking advantage of the softer greens, 22 players beat Congressional's par 70.

Jack Newton, who shared the first-round lead, Jim Simons, Tom Weiskopf, Craig Stadler and Howard Twitty were in a group at 136. John Cook, who matched Newton's 65 Thursday, Dan Pohl and Vance Heafner stood at three-under 137.

Edwards had 11 birdies in two days, a very un-Congressional-like total. But he also had five bogys as the long, hilly course took its toll. "I've just been hitting my irons extremely well," said Edwards, who grew up in Oklahoma after being born in Ketchikan, Alaska. "If I hit the ball inside 10 or 12 feet often enough, I'll make some putts sooner or later. Fortunately, a few fell in today."

Newton struggled to a 71 Friday and Cook was saddled with a 72 after both missed the course record by one shot on Thursday.

Cook left three birdie putts less than six inches short of the hole, all dead on line.

"Leaving those three putts short probably helped me three-putt the next hole (No. 2, his 11th)," said Cook. "I had a solid round hitting the ball, but nothing real good happened. I could have had a 67 or 68 if I'd putted well."

Newton, suffered—not entirely in silence—through four consecutive bogeys on the back nine, where he began play Friday afternoon. The Australian bogied the 13th through 16th holes and nearly added another on the 18th when he drove into the left rough and had his second-shot "backswing hindered by a tree."

"I made a five-footer to save par on 18 and then birdied No. 1 (from eight feet)," said Newton. "If something good hadn't happened there, I don't know what I might have done. Fortunately, it just takes a couple of good shots and a putt to change things for the better."

Weiskopf's consistent round showed birdies on the 603-yard ninth and the 439-yard par fourth. He had two bogeys and four birdies on Thursday. "Anytime I can get around a tough course like this without a bogey, I'm thrilled to death," said Weiskopf, a three-time winner of the Kemper Open during its 12-year run at Charlotte, N.C., before it moved to Congressional last year.

The cut came at 145, three-shots lower than last year, with 76 players earning the right to play the final two rounds.

Defending champion John Mahaffey is one over par along with six other players as 32 players are within five shots of the lead.

BYU and Houston will be paired in the final round today while Oral Roberts will be paired with Arizona State, fourth in the team chase at 278, eight strokes beyond BYU.

Next comes Texas A&M followed by New Mexico, Tennessee, Oklahoma State, Utah State, Georgia, Colorado, Wake Forest, Texas, Florida and Southern California.

NCAA: Utah State's Blake in spot to repeat

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Jay Don Blake shot a 69 early in the day Friday for a 51-hole score of five-under-par 208 and saw it stand up for the lead in the 84th NCAA golf championships.

Blake had been smooth since the tournament began on Wednesday, controversy broke out late Friday when Ray Barr of Houston was assessed a three-stroke penalty and his coach Gabe Williams, accused Brigham Young University Coach Karl Tucker of harassment.

As it was, Barr managed a 69 but finished down the list at 216, eight shots behind Blake.

Tommy Armour of New Mexico, grandson of the former pro with the same name, shot a 70 for 213 and second place.

BYU and Houston will be paired in the final round today while Oral Roberts will be paired with Arizona State, fourth in the team chase at 278, eight strokes beyond BYU.

LPGA: Little, Reynolds share top spot at 141

GREENWICH, Conn. (UPI) — South African Sally Little shot a two-under-par 70 and Cathy Reynolds came in a stroke behind Friday to share the lead after a rain and fog delayed second round of a $125,000 LPGA tournament.

Little and Reynolds both fashioned consistent rounds on the 6,239-yard Stanwich Country Club course to reverse their scores from Thursday's first round and share a one-shot lead at three-under 141.

Former pro softball pitcher Joan Joyce was at 142, followed by Jane Blalock and Marlene Floyd two shots off the pace. Five players were bunched four strokes behind at 145.

A total of 73 players from an initial field of 97 bettered or matched the 157 cut to proceed to Saturday's third round.

Reynolds hit 16 greens with superb iron play. Her only two bogeys of the day came when she had difficulty putting — on the 343-yard first hole, she three-putted from 25 feet and on the 15th she needed two putts from eight feet.

"Frankly, I'm surprised I played so consistently," said the 23-year-old from Kansas City, Mo. "I've had a cold the last few weeks and my doctor said I could have bronchitis. But those three birdies made me feel a lot better."

"I thought about skipping this tournament but I'm glad I came. I've never won on the LPGA tour and this might be the week."

Little, second on the 1981 LPGA money list with more than $92,400, was pleased that she managed to play well on the waterlogged Stanwich layout, where fog and drizzle had forced tee times back as much as 45 minutes.

Beth Daniel, who won this tournament last year, was seven shots behind with rounds of 73 and 75 for a 148. Nancy Lopez-Mellon skied to an 80 and was at 155.

Pat Bradley and Janet Alex, who had each shot three-under 69 to lead after Thursday's first round, each shot 77 Friday to fall behind in the pack.

NY governor proposes plan to rescue U.S. Grand Prix

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Gov. Hugh Carey plans to ask lawmakers to approve a $2 million aid package to try to save the U.S. Grand Prix auto race at Watkins Glen that has been canceled by international racing officials, aides said Friday.

A Carey spokesman said the governor plans to present legislation next week to save the October race. However, he said the actual measure had not yet been drafted.

A spokesman for Senate Majority Leader Warren Anderson said the package would include $275,000 in a "first instance appropriation" for this year's prize money. That amount would have to be repaid.

The package also would have the state's Urban Development Corp. guarantee a $1.7 million loan to the Watkins Glen track. The Anderson spokesman continued. That loan would be used to repay debts from last year.

The race was canceled earlier this month by the Federation Internationale du Sport Automobile because Watkins Glen officials owed $300,000 to drivers and crews from last year's race. Other debts have brought the total amount owed to about $2 million, officials said.

The track borrowed money from the Formula One Constructors Association, a racing organization, to pay the drivers and crews. However, the debt has yet to be repaid.

Flowers blooming in Sawtooth Forest

TWIN FALLS — Mother Nature's annual spring flower-show, highlighted by the Camas lily display in the Fairchild district blankets the Sawtooth Forest. The Forest Service's weekend report says the Camas Prairie is alive with color. It also notes the Burley Ranger District has flowers everywhere. The Camas lily is usually a top attraction for Southern Idaho residents who use its blooming as a reason for visiting public lands. For the most part campgrounds are open throughout the forest and travel, on the main roads, is regarded as good. However, some soft spots and perhaps some muddy areas might be encountered on auxiliary roads.

Hayes has surgery to remove sponge

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Former Ohio State football coach Woody Hayes was reported in satisfactory condition Friday recovering from a second operation — this one to remove a sponge left in him from his first operation. On May 9, doctors at University Hospital removed Hayes' gall bladder and on Wednesday took out a surgical sponge left in his body from the earlier operation. Hayes developed a fever last weekend, and an examination Tuesday revealed he was suffering from a post-operative infection.

Five milers beat four-minute mark

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — Tim Byers of Athletics West sped through the mile in 3:55.73 Thursday night to win the featured event at the annual Oregon Twilight track meet. Byers' rapid time pulled four other runners to sub-four minute miles. In second place was Bill Chesney, a red-shirted, university of Oregon team member competing for the Oregon Track Club, who posted a time of 3:56.36. He was followed by Rudy Chapf of Oregon U. at 3:57.04, Ed Spinney of Athletics West at 3:57.43, and Ken Martin of Athletics West at 3:57.84.

CART may hold Cleveland race in '82

CLEVELAND (UPI) — A spokesman for the Championship Auto Racing Teams said Friday his organization has been negotiating with Cleveland for an Indy car race at the city's Burke Lakefront Airport, but he refused to confirm reports an agreement was signed. A local newspaper said in its Friday editions that the agreement had been reached for a 500-kilometer (310-mile) race July 4, 1982 and all that was left was the formal signing. There will be a news conference next Wednesday, but to the best of my knowledge a final agreement has not been signed yet," said Michael Knight, Director of Communications for CART, an organization composed of nearly all the top Indy-car owners.

NFL to decide '84 Super Bowl site

DETROIT (UPI) — The National Football League owners will meet Monday through Wednesday June 1-3 at the Plaza Hotel to take bids for the site of the 1984 Super Bowl. It was announced Friday. Other cities scheduled to compete for the 1984 event are Dallas, Miami, New Orleans, Tampa and Pasadena.

Woman files suit against USAC, Indy

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — A woman who attended the 1981 Indianapolis 500 filed suit Friday in federal court against the United States Auto Club and the Indianapolis Motor Speedway for not completing the race in the presence of the ticket-buying public. Joan P. Grubbs, Indianapolis, filed the suit against USAC and IMS, saying the ticket she bought allowed her to watch the race until a winner was determined. Bobby Unser was the first driver to finish 500 miles this year and was allowed to participate in the post-race celebrations, but was penalized one lap for a violation on the 199th lap. The victory was turned over to Mario Andretti hours after the event was completed.

Jimmy Connors uses two-hand grip in battling Gabriel Urpi

McEnroe breezes, Connors struggles in French Open

PARIS (UPI) — Americans Jimmy Connors and John McEnroe, leading contenders for Bjorn Borg's French Open tennis crown, safely joined the Swede in the third round Friday but in vastly contrasting styles. Connors, the second seed, toiled for more than 3 1/2 hours before finally outlasting Spanish outsider Gabriel Urpi, 6-4, 6-7, 6-4, 6-4, while McEnroe breezed past Chile's Jaime Fillo, 6-3, 6-0, 6-2, in double-quick time. The two American southpaws were followed into the last 32 by fifth-seeded Czechoslovak Ivan Lendl, who came from behind to edge Ecuador's Andres Gomez, 6-2, 3-6, 2-6, 7-6, 6-4. Although Urpi is listed only 160th in the ATP rankings, 104 places below Connors, the 19-year-old Spaniard is obviously a player of great potential. Winner of the Orange Bowl tournament in 1979, he was obviously at home on the slow red clay court of the Roland Garros stadium and gave Connors a much-needed workout. Connors, playing his first tournament for six weeks, looked as if he was due for an easy passage after winning a fiercely-contested opening set. It seemed as if Urpi's resistance was broken as Connors raced into a 5-2 lead in the second, but the 26-year-old left-hander then relaxed his grip. Urpi fought back to 5-5 and went on to win the tie-breaking 13th game by seven points to four. The American, chasing the only

Monaco Grand Prix course dangerous

MONTE CARLO (UPI) — The last thing auto racing needs is a serious accident or controversy at Sunday's Monaco Formula One Grand Prix. But the famed twisting and narrow circuit through the streets of the Mediterranean principality provides all the ingredients for potentially explosive incidents. Although the 76 laps of the 2.658 mile course constitute the shortest Grand Prix course on the calendar, the tortuous bends and lack of straight make Monaco the longest Formula One race to complete. Sunday's winner can expect to take the checkered flag just under two hours after the start. Monaco is also the toughest circuit on both men and machines. Brakes, transmissions and suspensions take an enormous battering and the drivers will have to make up to 1,600 gear changes over the 76 laps. But, after a fortnight which has seen two deaths and two other serious accidents in auto racing, the crucial factor determining the safety and success of Sunday's race will be the skill and self-discipline of the drivers themselves. Ten drivers have never experienced Formula One in Monaco, another three made their debut here last year and even Brazilian Nelson Piquet, fastest in the first qualifying session, is one of three drivers who appeared here only once in two years ago. Monaco is still the showpiece of the Grand Prix season, and though its traditional glamor may now be somewhat tarnished by the feud, petty jealousies and disputes over car design which have bedevilled Formula One this year, the sport can still afford any more controversy or incident Sunday. One mechanic was killed, and another, seriously injured at the Belgian Grand Prix two weeks ago. Swiss driver Herbert Mueller, was killed in an endurance race in West Germany, while American Danny Ongais suffered massive injuries in last weekend's Indianapolis 500.

For safety sake, officials in Monaco have restricted the number of people allowed into the pits. Fire procedures are among the most stringent of any grand prix. But just clipping a guardrail slightly can put a car out of the race — as happened to race leader Didier Pironi last year when he was almost in sight of victory — or cause a pile-up. Four cars crashed on the first turn of the first lap in 1980, although all the drivers involved escaped unhurt. The arguments over the technical specifications of cars continue following the ban on ground-effect skirts and on the revolutionary dual-suspension Lotus 88, though the disputes have simmered down of late, world championship leader Carlos Reutemann was still angered Thursday when the fastest practice lap he recorded was disallowed because the skirt on his Williams did not clear the ground by the required minimum of 6cm when he drove into the pit lane. That infringement could cost Reutemann, last year's Monaco winner, dearly. He dropped from fourth to ninth place and with the weather clouding over, conditions for Saturday's final practice may not allow him to improve his time. Piquet's Brabham dominated the first practice session. Although other teams claim that, like the Lotus 88, it should be banned because of a controversial suspension system.

NBA coaches seek many rule changes

DANVERS, Mass. (UPI) — NBA coaches and general managers Friday recommended the league change its zone defense rule, change the penalties for using it, eliminate bonus free throws on shooting fouls and making a backcourt foul a non-shooting violation. All of the recommendations, which were approved on the final day of meetings, must be ratified by the league's board of governors which will consider the proposals next week in meetings in Cambridge, Mass. The Rules Committee, which adopted the proposals, voted 8-1 to eliminate the automatic technical foul for use of a zone defense. Instead, the first violation will result in the resetting of the 24-second clock and all subsequent violations will result in a foul shot with the offensive team keeping possession. The committee voted to clarify the zone rule in six ways and will instruct coaches, players and referees on the changes in summer clinics. The new rule will be tried in Southern California Pro League this summer where coaches will be encouraged to use a zone to see if the referees can spot it. "It is complicated. That's why we have to hold clinics," said Joe Axelson, the NBA's director of operations. "But it's no more complicated for the fans than it was last year." The Rules Committee also voted 8-1 to recommend that outcourt fouls no longer be automatic two-shot infractions. Instead, they will be just like any other non-shooting foul unless the shooting team is in a bonus situation. The committee also proposed eliminating the bonus situation, resulting in the famous 3-for-2, on shooting fouls. If a player is fouled and misses the shot, he will get two chances. If he makes the shot, he will get one. There will be no penalty shots. The other recommendation was to allow the offensive player on an inbound pass to immediately put the ball in play without waiting for the defense to set up. "There's no reason these people can't get back on defense. Seeing the pros walk back on defense doesn't look good," Axelson said. The committee put off a recommendation on the collapsible rim, with the coaches being against it because they feared a player might catch a finger in it when it collapses. The rim also will be tried in the Southern California league, and the coaches will meet after that and will adopt it if they don't see it as a hazard. The Committee voted down a 30-second clock, a no-out rule and widening the baseline. They also decided against the college 1-and-1 free throw shooting situations "because that would mean the last two minutes of a game would take an hour and a half," Axelson said. There was no action taken on re-amping the playoff format, although there were some recommendations on changing the tie-breaking system. There was no talk of expansion, he said. Axelson also announced that the league was following the lead of the NFL and would hold pre-draft tryouts next year for college prospects, veteran free agents and Continental Basketball Association players.

Poultry farms facing high feed costs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Poultry and egg producers who are losing money as a result of high costs for feed and other expenses may recoup some of their losses in the second half of the year, the Agriculture Department predicted Friday.

Consumers are expected to face higher prices this summer. Higher costs of feed and other inputs relative to product prices caught poultry and egg producers in a cost-price squeeze, the department said in a poultry and eggs outlook and situation summary.

"However, rising pork prices and the continued strong export demand for poultry products may bolster prices in the second half of the year," the department continued.

May farm price drop is first in seven years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Prices farmers receive for raw farm products fell 0.3 percent this month in the first monthly decline during May in seven years, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

"It usually goes up in May...and) has not gone down in May since 1974," a department spokesman said.

The decline continued a downward trend in farm prices that began in January.

Lower prices for eggs, soybeans, cattle, wheat, tomatoes, potatoes and corn caused the decline in the overall index of farm prices through mid-May. The drop was partially offset by increases in prices farmers received for oranges, hogs, lettuce, broilers and hay.

The index was at the lowest level since last August but average farm product prices were still 14 percent higher than a year ago.

On the average, the farmer gets about one-third of each dollar consumers spend—for food at the supermarket.

Retail food prices also are affected by labor, transportation, energy and marketing costs, but trends in farm prices eventually show up in the supermarket.

In fact, in recent months lower-than-expected farm prices have stabilized both retail prices and the overall consumer price index. In April, for example, food prices were unchanged, but trends in keeping the overall annual inflation rate at just 5.1 percent.

Lower energy prices that also stabilized the cost of living affected farmers' costs, which were unchanged from April to mid-May. But farmers' expenses were 10 percent higher than a year ago.

Inferno at sea Flames exploded on deck of carrier Nimitz when jet crashed on landing

U.S. Navy photo shows scene aboard USS Nimitz Tuesday night as crewmen fight flames from burning jet which crashed, careened into parked planes

Destroyer raced to help carrier

Fireball lighted up skies at midnight

CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI) — Lt. Ed Sheldon was standing watch on a Navy destroyer when a "large fireball" lit the night sky.

"Everybody saw it at the same time," said Sheldon, 25, an anti-submarine warfare officer from Greensboro, N.C. "It seemed to get bigger as time went on. Basically, it was a dark red glow for quite a few minutes."

"After that," he said, "there were flames shooting off from the glow."

The glow began when a jet slammed onto the flight deck of the aircraft carrier Nimitz and burst into flames late Tuesday night. In seconds crewmen on the destroyer U.S.S. Moosbrugger were awakened as their ship sped to the rescue of the carrier 8 miles away.

The Moosbrugger, a Spruance-class destroyer with 20 officers and 280 enlisted men aboard, closed in on the Nimitz at a speed of 25 knots. It arrived near the world's largest aircraft carrier in about 10 minutes, said Cmdr. Robert N. Giuffreda, the ship's top officer.

Giuffreda said the Moosbrugger was the only ship in the vicinity when a radar-jamming jet crashed at 11:51 p.m. EDT Tuesday on the nuclear-powered Nimitz, killing 14 people, injuring 48 and damaging more than $100 million in equipment in a roaring blaze off the coast of Jacksonville, Fla.

"All we saw was a large fireball," when the jet smashed onto the carrier, Giuffreda, 43, said Thursday after the Moosbrugger docked at the Charleston Naval Base.

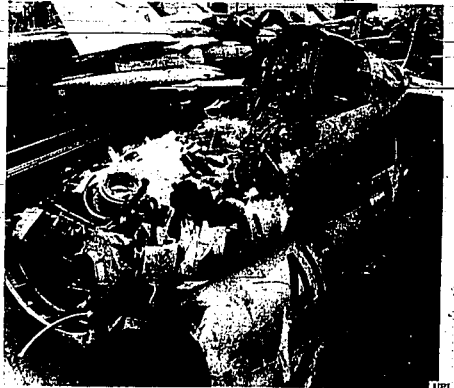

The Brooklyn, N.Y., native said his crew could see the carrier's running lights just before the accident. Then, in an instant, the fireball "sort of blinded out everything" about 60 miles east of Jacksonville.

As the Moosbrugger headed toward the Nimitz through 3-foot waves and a 15-knot breeze, its sleepy crew members scrambled from their bunks and began preparing for the rescue effort.

"I think the Nimitz people did a good job under trying circumstances," he said. "They seemed to have good control of it and got the fire out as reasonably quickly as they could."

The Moosbrugger, which teamed up with the Nimitz May 19 off the coast of Virginia, was conducting regular operations off the Florida coast when the crash occurred, Giuffreda said.

Toll of A-6 accidents: 16 airplanes, 20 lives

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sixteen A-6 aircraft of the type involved in Tuesday's accident aboard the Nimitz have crashed since November, 1979, with a loss of 20 lives; the Navy said Thursday.

The Grumman-built A-6 is a family of three warplanes — the A-6 Intruder attack aircraft, the KA-6 tanker, and the EA-6B Prowler, the type that crashed on the Nimitz.

The twin-engine jet first went into service in 1972, during the Vietnam war.

Ten of the crashes of the A-6 type occurred from November, 1979, to February, 1980, when the Navy decided to ground the aircraft for three days while it undertook a safety study. It concluded there were no mechanical problems with the plane, a Navy spokesman said.

Half of the crashes were of the A-6 Intruder and four each were of the Prowler and the tanker, Navy records showed.

The total of 16 includes the crash of the Prowler on the Nimitz but the number of men who died does not include those killed in that crash.

The Navy said it did not know how many persons were aboard the aircraft. An EA-6B seats four. An A-6 and a KA-6 seat two.

Losses total 149 aircraft in 17 months

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy reported Thursday it lost 149 aircraft of all types in crashes and other accidents since January, 1980.

It estimates a routine peacetime attrition rate of 114 warplanes and helicopters annually.

By comparison, the Navy lost an average of 230 planes a year in "mishaps" during the last three full years of the Vietnam War — from 1970 to 1972 — Navy records indicate. The worst of those years was 1970, when 315 aircraft were lost.

There was no immediate indication whether by "mishaps" the Navy meant planes crippled by antiaircraft fire that were abandoned by the pilot, or if all the losses were the result of non-combat accidents.

Most of the peacetime losses, which include both Navy and Marine aircraft, occur during routine training operations such as the exercise aboard the carrier Nimitz Tuesday in which four planes were destroyed and 15 others were damaged, five of them seriously.

The annual cost to the taxpayer in the loss of aircraft runs into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

The cost of replacing the planes involved on the Nimitz appears to be staggering. The price tag on the four destroyed planes and those that were heavily damaged is $213 million.

Navy needed 8 hours to gather facts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon said it took the Navy more than eight hours to release information about the accident aboard the Nimitz because it did not have all the facts until that much time had elapsed.

"The Navy released information as soon as it had the facts," the Pentagon said in a statement in response to a question by a reporter.

The crash aboard the carrier occurred at 9:51 p.m. MDT Tuesday but the Navy did not release any information about it until after dawn Wednesday.

Navy officials said pilot error may have caused the crash, which was the worst aircraft carrier landing accident in at least 28 years.
