SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Fire in a bathhouse spread through homosexual "slave quarters" and 24 more buildings Friday, crumpling structures.

It was the biggest blaze to hit the city since the 1906 earthquake. No deaths were immediately reported in the "suspicious" fire but five firefighters were injured and loss of life was feared, possibly including people chained to beds. Damage estimates ran into the millions of dollars.

Fire Chief Andrew Casper ordered a temporary morgue set up at the scene, where half a long city block of buildings lay in charred ruins.

"It was reported to me that there was an S & M slave quarters at the back of the alley," Casper said. "We can't write this off as a lifeless fire. There may have been people chained to beds."

The five-alarm blaze took three hours to subside after it broke out at 2:15 a.m. in a homosexual bathhouse known as the Folsom Street Barracks.

It spread to quarters used for sado-masochistic practices, into a warehouse where a sex potion was stored and went on to burn the other, mostly wooden, three-story buildings housing apartment dwellers.

Assistant Fire Chief Ray A. Landi, head of an arson task force, said the fire "progressed a lot faster than normal." He said members of the "homosexual community" started cases of the highly flammable "Rush" substance were illegally stored in the warehouse.

Jay Freizer, the owner some of burned property, was ordered to remove "Rush" from another location earlier because of the fire hazard.

Casper said the fire was the worst in the years. "It's the largest area fire I've seen in my career working in the fire department," he said. "Since the 1906 fire, this is the first fire this big."

"We have a true disaster on our hands," said Casper before the fire was controlled.

San Francisco firefighters Friday battled the town's worst fire in 75 years. UPI

Brown calls for aerial pesticides

LOS GATOS, Calif. (UPI) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. Friday ordered aerial spraying of pesticides to rid the populous Santa Clara Valley of the Mediterranean fruit fly.

The move avoided an immediate federal quarantine of California's $14 billion worth of farm crops.

Brown, who had opposed aerial spraying in favor of a massive ground attack because of possible health hazards to a half million residents, said an ultimatum by the Agriculture Department left him no choice in the year-long $22 million war against the insect.

Republican legislators in the state capital admitted they pressured the Reagan administration to impose the quarantine if aerial spraying wasn't initiated to stop the insect from spreading outside of a 620-square-mile area.

Agribusiness leaders who had warned that the Democratic governor's ground assault on the fruit fly was not adequate, were elated over the decision to drop the pesticide from the air.

"We are happy," said Clark Biggs, head of the California Farm Bureau. "The effectiveness of malathion has been proved throughout the country."

The move was opposed by Bob Scowcroft, a resident of the infested area and researcher on pesticides for Friends of the Earth.

"The decision to go with aerial spraying represents a cynical effort that will poison people, not the Medfly," Scowcroft said.

Spraying was to start early Tuesday morning and residents were warned to stay indoors in the areas where pesticide would be dropped. The location of the helicopters to be used in the spraying wasn't revealed for security reasons, state officials said. Brown said an ultimatum to slip a quarantine on California's crops by the Agriculture Department left him no choice in the year-long $22 million war against the insect. He said the federal action amounted to "sabotage."

The director of the eradication project, Jerry Scribner, said the spraying of malathion would begin at 2 a.m. Tuesday over a 15-mile square area. Helicopters will spray the chemical over a 37-square mile area by the end of the week in the first of a series of six applications, he said.

First successful Cuban hijacking this year ends safely

MIAMI (UPI) — Two Latin men welding flaming "Molotov cocktails" in the cockpit hijacked a jumbo jet with 192 people aboard, forcing it to fly to Havana Friday.

It was the first successful hijacking of a U.S. aircraft to Cuba this year, but the passengers appeared far from unnerved when the Eastern Airline plane brought them back from Havana to Miami Friday evening.

One young man with his bride said it was "something different — something I didn't expect on our honeymoon."

The diversion of the Chicago-Miami-San Juan jetliner apparently was carried out by two families, the FBI said after questioning of passengers and crew when the plane finally reached Miami at 6 p.m. EDT.

In addition to the two hijackers, who were taken into custody by Cuban authorities after the L-1011 jet landed at Havana's Jose Marti Airport at 1:08 p.m. EDT, two women and four children, one of them an infant, remained in Cuba.

The two men "took command of the cockpit, carrying three bottles of Molotov cocktails which were lighted, for 30 to 40 minutes until they arrived in Havana at which time they extinguished the flames," said Jim Freeman, assistant special agent in charge of the Miami FBI.

He said the hijackers claimed to have six Molotov cocktails but only three were seen. There was no immediate answer to the question of why, if the "cocktails" were filled with gasoline or some other volatile fluid, they did not explode in that period of time.

"We go Cuba" was all he said. He couldn't speak English very well, if at all — Minnie Shaffer, Sunrise, Fla.

Freeman said investigators believe the hijackers smuggled the torches aboard the plane at Chicago by disguising them as baby bottles.

Neither of the two hijackers appeared able to converse in English and used a Spanish-speaking passenger as an interpreter. The women and children remained in their seats and took no active part in the hijacking. Freeman said the nationality of the hijackers was not known. Passengers described the two men as well-dressed and said the oldest of the four children appeared to be about 12.

Minnie Shaffer of Sunrise, Fla., told reporters that she and her husband got a good look at one of the hijackers when he came into the first class compartment and announced in broken English: "We go Cuba."

He had a shiny, silver cylinder with a flame coming out of it — like a cigarette lighter, but it was big," Mrs. Shaffer said. "He was nice looking, about 30 to 32, wearing a dark suit."

"We go Cuba" was all he said. He couldn't speak English very well, if at all — Mrs. Shaffer said.

All the passengers were taken off the plane at Jose Marti airport in Havana. They were allowed into the upper level of the airport where they were allowed to shop in a souvenir store and had access to a cafeteria while their jet was refueled.

The plane was Eastern's Flight 71, which left O'Hare Airport in Chicago at 8:50 a.m. CDT, bound for Miami and San Juan, Puerto Rico. The hijackers took over the plane as it began its final landing approach to Miami about 12:21 p.m. EDT, an Eastern spokesman said.

In the last 10 successful U.S. plane hijackings last year — on Sept. 17, 1980 — Cuban President Fidel Castro promptly returned the two hijackers, both Cuban refugees, the next day to the United States to stand trial for air piracy at Columbia, S.C.

Two separate attempts to hijack U.S. planes to Cuba earlier this year were thwarted.

On March 18, a 49-year-old Cuban refugee living in Puerto Rico attempted to divert a New York-to-Miami Air Florida jetliner to Havana. Rigoberto Sanchez Gonzalez threw a briefcase in the aisle of the aircraft, claiming it contained a bomb. The aircraft landed safely at Charleston, S.C. and Sanchez surrendered to crew members. There was no bomb.

Local delegation continues redistricting battle

Congressional redistricting — A2

BOISE — A standoff between south central Idaho legislators and leadership threatened to escalate Friday into warfare.

For the third time in three days, the region's legislators refused to submit a reapportionment plan shifting about 1,000 residents into southeastern Idaho legislative districts.

"We voted to stand pat," Rep. Vard Chaburn, R-Albion, chairman of the region said. Chaburn's district and home county of Cassia would lose some 1,600 residents in the shift.

The regional vote was taken Friday morning immediately after House and Senate leaders meeting behind closed doors established two dividing lines, between northern and southern Idaho and the Magic Valley and eastern Idaho.

The Legislature then recessed until Monday. Leadership's decision stemmed from an impasse between legislators in the area of the north-south dividing line and the rebellion of legislators from south central Idaho.

House Speaker Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls, missed the leadership decision on the east-west line.

Later, he said regardless of his position in the meeting he could not have changed the decision because he would have been the only Magic Valley vote.

Under a plan proposed by Rep. Darwin Young, R-Blackfoot, leadership placed 3,868 people from Cassia, Minidoka and Blaine counties in legislative Districts 24 and 35:

• The Yale precinct in southeastern Blaine County, containing 43 people.

• The Acquila precinct in northeastern Minidoka County, containing 2,127 people.

• The Sublett, Heglar-Yale, Bridge, Malta and Jackson precincts of eastern Cassia County, containing 1,698 people.

The shift would require District 26, in Cassia and Minidoka counties, which is already 3,679 people short, to take 5,377 people from Twin Falls, Jerome or Minidoka counties, or some combination.

District 21, containing Blaine County, most of Minidoka County, and part of Lincoln County, which has the right population now, would need 2,464 people from Camas, Jerome or Lincoln counties, or a combination.

Legislators end first week with little progress

BOISE (UPI) — An impasse about reapportionment of legislative districts in the Magic Valley and eastern Idaho remained unbroken Friday.

An edict from the legislative leadership — delivered after a two-hour closed-door session — failed to impress Magic Valley legislators, who said they would fight the "directive" regarding regional boundaries.

Rep. John Brooks, R-Gooding, said the impasse would not end until legislative leaders bent to the Magic Valley delegation's wishes. But Republican and Democratic leaders said they expected lawmakers would make progress starting Monday.

The first four days of the special session ended with little progress in the northern and southwest regions as well. Sen. Mike Mitchell, D-Lewislaton, began talking about reviving his plan to turn over reapportionment to a citizens' commission. Senate President Pro Tem Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, said the leadership "directive" for the regional boundaries "kicked the session off dead center," but he added that the order was "not cast in concrete."

He said the leadership wanted the regional committees to seek a solution to the problem under the directive, but that a plan of Sens. William Floyd, R-Idaho Falls, and Mark G. Ricks, R-Rexburg, was on the back burner if talks fell through.

Under the second plan, population figures would be compiled for each of the four regions, then the regional committees would come up with mathematically equal districts within their regions.

Before the Senate adjourned for the weekend,

Majority Leader James Risch, R-Boise, advised fellow lawmakers to accept the leadership's advice.

"We've got to start making some progress," Risch said.

Budge said leaders agreed unanimously to draw the boundary between the north and the southwest through the middle of Valley County and along the southern edge of Adams County.

Northern and southwest legislators were unable to agree on that boundary throughout the first week of the session.

Budge said the leaders voted for the proposal of Rep. Darwin Young, R-Blackfoot, to draw the southern-southeast line so that parts of Minidoka and Cassia County would be added to eastern districts. That plan was immediately opposed by the Magic Valley committee.

Congressional solution near?

BOISE (UPI) — House Minority Leader Melvin Hammond Friday predicted swift passage of a Republican-backed proposal that would further divide Ada County between Idaho's two congressional districts.

Hammond, D-Rexburg, said he expected one of three measures sponsored by members of the majority party to pass the House as early as Monday and probably go through the Senate soon after.

Minutes before Hammond made his remarks, the House State Affairs Committee sent to the House floor with a "do pass" recommendation a bill sponsored by Rep. Larry Harris, R-Boise, that would move the district boundary further west into Ada County.

Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, cast the only dissenting vote.

Many Democrats oppose the nearly identical redistricting bills proposed by Harris, Rep. Walter Little, R-New Plymouth, and Idaho's all-GOP congressional delegation because they believe it would tend to weaken the Democrats in the 1st District.

However, another faction to which Hammond belongs generally goes along with the Republican proposals because they think any one of them would help the Democratic Party's chances in capturing the 2nd District seat now held by GOP Rep. George Hansen.

Hammond said the fact Democratic sentiments were split on the redistricting issue added to the possibility that the issue would be decided quickly, unlike the frustrating legislative reapportionment work.

A veto of a GOP-backed congressional redistricting plan by Democratic

Gov. John Evans could give the chance of an early end to the process, however, Senate Minority Leader Ron Twilger, D-Boise, has been the Democratic most outspoken against the Republicans' plans for the congressional district boundaries.

His idea to put all of Ada and Elmore counties in the 1st District and Blaine, Canyon and Owyhee counties into the 2nd District failed in the Senate State Affairs Committee Thursday afternoon.

"I think I've very sincere... but I think a majority will quickly pass a redistricting bill," Hammond said.

Hammond said he, unlike Twilger, believed Ada County should be divided between the congressional districts. Under the current district set-up, all but a small part of Ada County, largest of Idaho's 44 counties, is in the 1st District.

White, black youths riot in several England cities

LONDON (UPI) — Thousands of rampaging white and black youths battled with police, burned and looted in London and eight other English cities until early Saturday.

Scotland Yard reported 337 arrests in London's Black suburb of Brixton and nine other city districts. Forty-eight officers were injured, most of them hit by rocks and bottles hurled by young rioters in rioting throughout the British capital that flared until 3 a.m. London time.

"The veneer of civilization is very thin," Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said in a banquet speech to journalists hours after her government had threatened to call out the army to crush the riots.

Declaring "the fire of violence has to be put out," Home Secretary William Whitelaw announced a month-long ban on political demonstrations in the London area and said the government was considering the use of troops to quell the disturbances.

London was infested with "gangs of youths running about breaking shop windows," a Scotland Yard spokesman said. "There was a lot of looting tonight everywhere."

Two hundred firefighters combated a rash of car fires set off by gasoline bombs and two fire stations were firebombed, the fire brigade said.

Rioters in Brixton threw a hail of rocks and bottles in running battles with crash-helmeted police and torched two police cars and a police van and hurled rocks through at least a half-dozen storefronts, looting liquor stores, jewelers, a clothing shop and a sporting goods store, police said.

400 inmates seize New York jail

VALHALLA, N.Y. (UPI) — About 400 inmates, frustrated by overcrowded conditions and temperatures in the high 90s, took control of the Westchester County Jail Friday evening.

Inmates broke furniture and wrecked walls and pipes before beginning to return to their cells.

All five cellblocks in the main part of the three-story, 500-year-old facility were overrun by about 400 inmates at 4:45 p.m., E.D.T. Officials said no one was injured and no one was taken hostage.

It was not known whether the inmates had weapons.

Just three hours later, officials said, 98 male prisoners lodged in the basement portion of a separate women's facility also took over their quarters.

"It was not organized, there was no leadership," a county spokesman said. "There was a lot of flailing around and a lot of destruction."

The jail, designed for 263 prisoners when it was built in 1933, housed 401 prisoners Friday. County officials had been preparing to build more than 200 new cells to relieve the overcrowding.

At 9 p.m., county Correlation Commissioner Albert Gray and his deputy, Joseph Stancari, entered the second floor of the jail and began convincing prisoners to start locking themselves back in their cells.

The county spokesman said the operation was a complicated one that involved the simultaneous locking and unlocking of corridor doors and cell doors to protect the commissioner from harm.

Officials said the rioting prisoners were originally roaming two sections of the jail and succeeded in knocking down a wall to unify their ranks.

Civilian employees were evacuated by jail guards, who tried to stem the overflow but retreated when it appeared the prisoners might take hostages.

"The guards held as long as they could and... were withdrawn when it appeared there could be a hostage situation," County Executive Alfred DeBello said.

He said water and electricity to the facility were turned off as nearly 200 county armed with rifles, surrounded the jail.

"Some of the inmates feel discriminated against by the judicial system, racially," DeBello said, adding that "overcrowding and the hot weather" also contributed to the outbreak.

The south central region would thus total 7,841 people short of the required number and would have to reach to the outskirts of Mountain Home in Elmore County to get it, according to Chaburn.

"How is that going to fail?" he asked.

Senate Pro Tem Reed Budge, R-Ada, said he suggested dividing legislators to achieve "mathematical purity" in reapportioning districts.

"We're trying to break down the concept of numbers in districts and outlines of districts. It's going to be completely different," he said.

Although Budge said the line drawn by leadership was temporary, "we have to look at the plan and see what happens."

In reaction, south central legislators agreed not only to hang tough but also planned to seek support for strong leadership, and to work on alternative plans over the weekend.

Rep. Max Neubaur, R-Paul, wanted to reduce the number of legislative districts in eastern Idaho from 10 to 9, and shift population into south central Idaho.

Many Democrats and Republicans did not support the strict population standard of leadership. Sen. John Peavoy, D-Carey, said he planned to discuss the issue in caucus with fellow Democratic senators.

Sen. Dean Van Engelen, R-Burley, said he and others also might try in a Republican caucus to "get leadership off the mathematical purity trip."

"We'll work over the weekend and if nothing else, on Monday we'll recommend 36 districts again," Rep. T.W. "Tom" Silvers, R-Twin Falls, said.

"I think we're strong enough to hold the line," Rep. Steven Antone, R-Rupert, said, adding District 22 legislators would join the fight against Chaburn's plan.

Chaburn said the region believed its own plan, which did not shift population to the east and stopped at the Elmore County line on the west, would stand up in court.

The leadership's line would probably force Van Engelen to run against District 25 Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, and District 23 Sen. Kenneth Bradshaw, R-Wendell, against District 24 Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl.

"We have all kinds of sitting ducks," Van Engelen said.

But Chaburn predicted the emphasis on mathematical purity would eventually lessen.

Treinen remains critical

BOISE (UPI) — Bishop Sylvester W. Treinen of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Boise remained in critical condition Friday at a Boise hospital where he was undergoing treatment for a massive heart attack.

A hospital nursing supervisor at St. Alphonsus Hospital said Treinen's condition had not improved from Thursday, when the Rev. William Crowley, chancellor of the diocese, said the bishop looked good considering the severity of the heart attack.

Man admits to robbing bank

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — A Pocatello man walked into an Idaho Falls bank Friday and told officials he was responsible for a robbery at the bank on March 12, police said.

Idaho Falls police said 34-year-old Arnold Eldridge was jailed Friday night and would be charged officially on Monday.

Idaho Falls Bank of Commerce President Richard Adams said Eldridge walked into the bank looking for a loan officer; who Adams said was "accessed in the March 12 robbery."

Adams said the officer was on vacation, so Eldridge was referred to another loan officer, who contacted police after he heard Eldridge's story.

Police said Eldridge had $10,000 of the money taken in the robbery is available. The sum was not disclosed.

It and vegetable it attacks, clusters of tiny larvae work their way inward—feeding on the flesh of the edible portion of the plant, ruining it for human consumption.

U.S. District Judge William Ingram issued an order Friday afternoon enjoining the state to enforce its ordinance against aerial spraying of pesticides.

With that legal battle won, the state must only defend the spraying before San Jose Superior Court Judge Bruce Allen on Monday. It will consider a suit brought by other local cities to prevent the spraying.

The cities argued the state must order an Environmental Impact Study of the area before spraying could occur. If litigating, however, the Governor's order to spray will preempt that requirement.

Agriculture Secretary John Block announced earlier Friday he would order the federal quarantine unless Brown abandoned his plan to control the insect without aerial spraying, which the governor considered a health hazard to residents in a dozen communities.

"The actions of the Reagan administration in threatening a quarantine is sabotage," Brown said in a release distributed to reporters in Los Angeles before flying back to Northern California to address the crisis.

The decision of the U.S. Department of Agriculture quantifying statewide 200 types of fruits and vegetables leaves California with no alternative," Brown said in the statement. "We are being forced into aerial spraying."

The governor said the federal quarantine would require a massive fumigation program "imperiling the lives and health of thousands of produce workers."

Even though Brown agreed to the spraying, Block said he still might impose a statewide quarantine or expand an existing quarantine already imposed in the 620-square-mile area where fruit fly larvae were found.

He dispatched an emergency preparedness task force to assess the problem this weekend and ordered Deputy Agriculture Secretary Richard Lyng, a former director of agriculture in California, to go there personally next week.

Today's weather

Mostly fair through weekend, with chance of showers

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert, Jerome-Gooding areas:

Fair through the weekend with chance of a late afternoon or evening thundershower. Light winds except for gusts near showers. Highs today and Sunday in the middle 80s-Lows 50 to 55 degrees. The Twin Falls pollen count Friday was 41 per cubic meter of air.

Camas-Prairie, Halley, Wood River-valley:

Fair through the weekend except for chance of late afternoon or evening thundershowers, mainly over the mountains. Gusty winds near thundershowers. Highs today and Sunday 75 to 80; Lows 35 to 45.

Northern Utah and Nevada:

Fair to partly cloudy skies in Utah, with scattered showers and thundershowers afternoons and evenings. Highs in the 90s. Lows in the 50s.

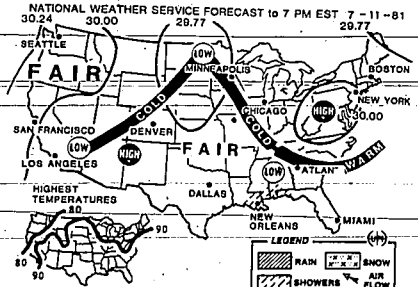

Synopsis:

Idaho had a mixture of summer-temperatures Friday.

In the north, clouds and scattered showers were reported in the Panhandle, caused by a slow moving low pressure system off the Washington coast. Some showers moved south into the central mountains Friday night.

The southwestern section reported clear skies and moderate temperatures.

Warm mist air flowed across the southeastern section, where scattered thundershowers developed, moving northward from the Nevada.

Afternoon temperatures ranged generally in the 70s and 80s in the south, with the warmest 95 at Salmon. Stanley's 32 was the coolest reported on Friday morning, with other lows ranging up to 62 at Burley and 73 at Pocatello.

Elsewhere in the nation Friday, the hottest temperature was 111 degrees at Buckeye, Ariz., while the coolest was 39 at Olympia, Wash.

The extended forecast for Idaho:

calls for dry weather with temperatures ranging from lows in the 50s to highs in the 80s, through Wednesday.

In the Magic Valley, conditions for outside farm work and hay drying should be generally good through Wednesday. Plant growth and the need for irrigation water should be about normal through midweek. Pave evaporation is forecast at 35 inch today and 33 inch Sunday. Spraying conditions will be generally fair but locally poor today with winds mostly 8 to 18 mph.

QUESTION...

In a material sense death is an end to life; why then do we have funerals - especially religious ones?

ANSWER...

In a material sense death is the end of earthly life but in a spiritual sense it is believed to be the beginning of a new existence. During life - music, poetry, law and in religion - we incorporate death consciously or unconsciously into our daily lifestyle. When death actually comes there is nothing in the realm of human experience to match its emotional impact upon the lives of those we leave behind.

We have religious funeral services because there is no other logical approach for us to take. After the death of someone we have a way of coming to an answer to the question, "WHY?" This complete answer continues to evade us, but it comes closer to being found in a religious funeral service than anywhere else.

House leaders attempt budget compromise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Republican leaders agreed Friday to sit down with the House and work out a compromise budget reconciliation bill.

President Reagan and budget director David Stockman originally wanted the Senate to accept without any changes the House's $37.1 billion package of budget cuts adopted 217-210 two weeks ago.

Senate Republican leader Howard Baker convened GOP committee chairmen Friday afternoon, then conferred with Stockman and Reagan, both by phone and in person at the White House.

"The president asked if we would take the House bill," Baker said, noting that he put the proposition to all 16 committee chairmen.

Budget Committee chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said Stockman pressed for the Senate to simply and quickly adopt the House provisions, many of which were virtually dictated by Stockman and went beyond what the Republican-controlled Senate passed.

"I disagreed," Domenici told reporters. "I spoke very strongly in opposition to that approach. There are just a number of areas of disagreement that are important that the Senate worked very hard on. ... I just believe it's our business, I just think in this case it's up to the United States Senate."

Domenici said the GOP chairmen "were disposed to go to conference, and were convinced (the Democratic) House leadership was equally disposed" to make a "good faith" effort to write a compromise in a few days.

Baker said the dispute between the White House and the Senate is "a case where men of good will differed. But everyone is on board."

As a result, Republican Senate leaders will meet with House Democratic leaders early next week and agree on "ground rules" for the conference committee — a joint panel that must fashion identical wording for each chamber to pass.

Baker and Domenici said that while the House voted on the huge cuts as a single package, senators had to vote 43 times on different elements and felt they should have a chance to stick up for their view in the conference.

Domenici said the major areas of disagreement between the two chambers are on Medicaid, health service programs, the true scope of turning specific program funds into block grants to the states, Conrail funding and broadcast licensing.

Baker said Reagan was concerned the entire bill could be defeated when the compromise version comes back to the House if the conference throws out the political "sweeteners" inserted originally to get the 29 swing

Democratic votes needed to pass it.

Baker said House Speaker Thomas O'Neill and House Budget Committee chairman James Jones D-Okla. have not yet agreed on ground rules, such as not reopening issues that the Democrats already lost in House votes, but that both sides have only "agreed to agree" next week.

The House version of the bill contained numerous inadvertent cuts and changes, including an end to the popular Head Start child development program.

Tax cut showdown expected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House and Senate Democrats Friday ignored White House warnings that President Reagan will not compromise on his tax cut plan and geared up to promote their own alternative plan.

Both sides predicted a tough fight.

The administration supports a 33-month, 25 percent across-the-board tax rate reduction. Democrats want a shorter tax cut targeted to people earning less than $50,000.

"The president is very adamant in saying, 'I have gone as far as I can go on this,'" deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said Friday. "He's adamant on it. He says it privately and publicly."

Speakes said Reagan has "conveyed his views" to Senate Finance Committee chairman Bob Dole, R-Kan., one of the congressional leaders who talked Thursday of compromise with the Democrats.

"That is not our position," Speakes said of Dole's speculation of a compromise. But Speakes said the White House recognizes Dole "has the right and duty to work his own deal."

The White House statement came shortly after Dole and Senate GOP leader Howard Baker suggested there might be room for compromise with the Democrats.

Congressional observers suggested Senate Republicans feared the administration would suffer an embarrassing defeat over the tax cut in the Democratic-dominated House and sought to avoid the battle through compromise.

Sources close to Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski said the Illinois Democrat believes he can muster sufficient support in the House for a Democratic victory.

Speakes said Reagan knows "it's going to be a hard fight."

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill said, "As long as (Reagan) insists on an unfair bill, a bill that shortchanges the middle class and penalizes working people, we are set for a tough fight."

In the Senate, six Democrats led by Sen. Bill Bradley of New Jersey announced they will attempt to amend the president's tax bill when it comes to the Senate floor next week.

Holyoke, Mass., was in the midst of a heat wave, but Diane Mathis' dog Pepper cools off

Ice cream sales booming

Heat even has dogs in shade

By United Press International

A few scattered storms dished rain on the heat-wracked East Friday and the humidity let up a bit, but a heat wave that had even the dogs in hiding showed no signs of letting up.

Dog catchers had it easy. There were no dogs on the streets.

"We dog in his right mind wants to be trotting around on hot cement," said Avis Prior, animal control officer in East Providence, R.I. "They're all hiding under autos or in the shade."

Sales of ice cream, cold drinks, air conditioners, fans and ice were booming across the Eastern Seaboard.

"Sales are fantastic," said Bill Weir, an ice cream vendor in Boston. "I sold out of a new thing we started — slush. One girl sold out of two barrels."

Thousands of people crowded ocean beaches and public swimming pools.

Crowds at New York City beaches neared 1 million and the city extended closing hours into the evening at beaches and pools to help people cool off.

Rains moved into the Ohio Valley, New York and southern New England early Friday. Showers and thunderstorms stretched over the Midwest, from Kansas and Nebraska to Kentucky. A few showers dotted the Northwest.

Seven people in Dearborn, Mich., were struck by lightning during a thunderstorm Thursday night but only one was seriously hurt.

The rains provided some relief from the East's oppressive humidity. But the National Weather Service said they would do little about the heat — and temperatures again headed to the 90s.

Electricity demands peaked as people turned on their air conditioners.

"Demand will go up as we get further and further into the heat wave," said a Con Edison spokeswoman. "People get less tolerant as it goes on."

People without air conditioners sought them out.

One hospital in Baltimore reported its waiting room filled with people trying to cool off from the 100-degree heat.

"We get an awful lot of people in to just sit because we're air conditioned," said Peter Stanton of the University of Maryland Hospital. "We just let them sit."

But in Cape May Court House, N.J., two thirsty women — one bare-breasted — were denied a drink of water at the Chamber of Commerce because they were not wearing any shoes.

O'Connor's views satisfy Reagan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan was aware of conservative opposition to Sandra O'Connor and is "fully satisfied" with the views and record of his Supreme Court appointee, a White House spokesman said Friday.

David Gergen, White House communications director, told reporters the 51-year-old Arizona appeals court judge will come to Washington Monday to meet with Reagan and to make courtesy calls on Capitol Hill in advance of confirmation hearings.

In the face of rising opposition to the O'Connor appointment from abortion opponents, Gergen said Reagan "had reassured himself again" of her views in a final telephone conversation before he offered her the post.

Gergen said Mrs. O'Connor will meet with members of the Senate Judiciary Committee and also any other senator who chooses to interview her.

But he said "it is not anticipated she will see others" such as the Rev. Jerry Falwell, leader of the Moral Majority. Falwell said he had asked Reagan to arrange a meeting and the president told him it would be a "good idea."

Reagan interviewed Mrs. O'Connor in the Oval Office July 1 and offered her the judicial post of retiring Justice Potter Stewart in a July 6 telephone call.

A coalition of 21 conservative groups opposed to her nomination charged Thursday that she was a "cover-up" regarding her position on abortion in an internal Justice Department memorandum.

The memo, prepared by Justice Department official Kenneth Starr and released by the coalition, quoted Mrs. O'Connor as saying she "had no recollection of how she voted" on an abortion bill.

Gergen said Mrs. O'Connor supported passage of a bill in the Arizona Senate that permitted doctors and nurses opposed to abortion not to participate in such operations. He also noted she voted against a bill for a new stadium because it carried a rider opposing abortion.

He told reporters the memo was an internal document and "was not intended to be a decisional memorandum."

"The president feels fully satisfied about her views and he is well-informed about her views," said Gergen. "The president said he is fully satisfied regarding her views and judicial record."

The president had a variety of sources check her record, Gergen said, and Reagan had a chance during his conversation with the Arizona judge "to reassure himself again" on her views.

When Mrs. O'Connor meets privately with members of the Senate Judiciary Committee, she is expected to be questioned about her views on abortion and the Equal Rights Amendment.

Senate Republican leader Howard Baker said he expects her to be "easily" confirmed, most likely in September. Conservative Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, told reporters he will vote for Mrs. O'Connor because "she's a splendid choice."

Friday, the Rev. Carl McIntire, a fundamentalist preacher from Collingswood, N.J., condemned her nomination and the National Association of Evangelicals said they had reservations about her position on abortion.

McIntire, in a statement, called Mrs. O'Connor's nomination "a dark and sad day for the fundamentalists in our churches."

Army says specs in order

Proxmire fleeces Army's Worcestershire study

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., presented his monthly "Golden Fleece Award" Friday to the U.S. Army for a $6,000 study on how to buy Worcestershire sauce.

"That's right," Proxmire said. "Seventeen eye-glazing-pour-of-sauce studies have led to buy a 15-ounce bottle of Worcestershire sauce that retails for about $1.50."

"Even a dollar spent on writing and using this document is a dollar too much," Proxmire said.

The study is entitled "Federal Specification: Worcestershire Sauce." But Proxmire, who presents the award for what he considers ridiculous expenditures of federal money, suggested it be returned.

"Everything You Wanted to Know about Worcestershire Sauce, But Would Never Bother To Ask."

The study gives a chemical analysis of the sauce and provides a number of tips, such as how to check to make sure the bottles' caps and labels are on properly.

"Only the federal government could devote a seven-line paragraph to show someone how to check if the bottle cap to the Worcestershire sauce is screwed on tightly," said Proxmire.

"The Worcestershire-sauce specifications," said Proxmire, "represent the tip of the iceberg of a chronic problem the federal government has with needlessly complicated food specifications."

But an Army spokesman defended the study, saying the specification paper released in August 1976 is designed to inform bidders what type of packaging and quality the Army will accept in Worcestershire sauce.

"Our experience shows the specimen is cheaper than buying it off the shelf," said Harvey Keene, public affairs director of the Army's Natick, Mass., Research and Development Laboratories.

The Pentagon buys about 1 million bottles of Worcestershire sauce a year, and researchers found that sauce made to order is 1 to 2 1/2 cents cheaper per bottle than the retail product, Keene said.

"On a million bottles, you can see that it amounts to a bunch of money," he said. "I feel that 17 pages of specs are in order. That's what it takes to deliver a quality product to the troops at the lowest price."

Report says CIA operation arms Afghans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The CIA is coordinating a five-nation, multi-million dollar clandestine operation to supply arms to Afghan fighting Soviet forces in their country, New Republic magazine said Friday.

Authored by Pulitzer prize-winning journalist Carl Bernstein, the article in the latest edition of the liberal weekly said an anti-Soviet alliance involving the United States, China, Pakistan, Egypt and Saudi Arabia "is effectively countering the most blatant Soviet aggression of the postwar era."

"This is the first time that weapons supplied with American help have been used to kill regular troops of the Soviet Army," he said.

Bernstein said officials from the White House, the State Department, the Pentagon and the CIA are convinced the Soviets "are bogged down" in Afghanistan.

"The Russians have lost their grip on the roads linking Afghanistan's principal cities," he said, and have suffered "an estimated 6,000 casualties, with 2,000 dead."

At least 60 Soviet helicopters have been shot down, many by surface-to-air missiles clandestinely supplied by the five nation group, he said.

Bernstein said President Carter ordered the secret arms program launched within hours of the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan in December 1979 and the Reagan administration reviewed the clandestine operation and ordered it expanded.

"The CIA has coordinated the operation through counterpart intelligence services in the four other countries and diplomatic channels were not used," he said. America's NATO allies "were neither consulted nor asked to participate," Bernstein said.

The CIA said it would have no comment on the story.

Reagan, Trudeau prepare for economic summit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan told Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau that the best thing he can do for less developed nations is to help them to help themselves.

Reagan met with Trudeau for two hours in the Oval Office and over a working lunch in the Blue Room to discuss the economic summit conference of the seven most industrialized nations which will be held July 20-21 in Ottawa.

At Trudeau's side was the Canadian prime minister's assistant, who said Reagan had a major topic of discussion at the summit would be ways the industrialized nations can removing social inequities from the less developed countries that make them targets for external subversion and revolution.

Reagan recalled that Canada and the United States were once underdeveloped countries "and through hard work and the role of private enterprise they were able to develop rapidly and become world powers," the official said.

As they bid goodbye in sweltering heat outside the White House, Reagan and Trudeau spoke of their hopes for the summit.

"It's clear that achieving economic recovery now poses one of the greatest challenges to the free world and it's this challenge that shall lie at the heart of our summit in Ottawa," Reagan said.

"We must discuss not just our problems here but our own national policies to cope with them and what we must do together to restore general prosperity," the president said.

Noting that our policies "do affect each other," Trudeau said "much of the world is watching us to see how democracies solve their difficult economic problems."

His talks with Reagan, Trudeau said, were aimed at areas of disagreement rather than agreement among the industrialized nations. He did not elaborate but the White House official said the areas include trade, nationalization of industry in France

PIERRE TRUDEAU world is watching

Corn crop estimate: up 7% from last year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American farmers, rebounding from last year's drought, will harvest 7.12 billion bushels of corn — 7 percent more than last year — the Agriculture Department said Friday in its first official corn crop estimate.

The estimate was accurate it would mean the second crop on record, exceeded only by the 1978 and 1979 crops.

The department said "conditions were generally favorable with most areas in the Corn Belt having adequate surplus moisture supplies."

Differences between last year's and this year's crops showed up both in estimates of average per-acre yield and areas harvested. Based on July 1 conditions, the department's Crop Reporting Board forecast average yields would be 59.9 bushels per acre, up from 51 bushels last year.

The 1979 record was 109.4 bushels per acre.

Last year's crop of 6.6 billion bushels was 16 percent smaller than the year before and broke a string of five consecutive record crops.

The department predicted farmers would harvest 74.2 million acres of corn, compared to 73.1 million last year.

Because of rains that delayed planting, officials revised acreage estimates for Indiana to 6.25 million acres, down 150,000 acres, and for Ohio to 4.1 million acres, down 100,000 acres.

In the first estimate of the entire wheat crop, the department predicted a record crop of 2.8 billion bushels, up 19 percent from last year.

The latest update of the record winter wheat crop, forecast a crop of 2.09 billion bushels, up 4 percent from last month and up 11 percent from last year.

The first estimates of spring wheat were a record 191 million bushels of durum wheat, used for spaghetti and other pasta, and an unprecedented 526 million bushels of other spring wheat.

The durum crop was estimated to be 76 percent larger than last year and the other spring wheat crop was forecast to be 42 percent more than last year.

Corn is a prime source of feed for American livestock so supplies have a bearing on prices consumers pay for dairy products, beef, pork and poultry. One-third of the corn crop is exported.

Americans consume wheat in bakery products and export half of the U.S. crop.

In a separate report, the department reported the Russian grain crop would be 200 million tons, compared to a forecast last month of 210 million tons. The world grain crop is expected to be 1.61 billion tons, down slightly from last month but 4 percent more than last year.

In estimates of other U.S. crops for livestock feed, the department predicted oats production would be 528 million bushels, up 15 percent from last year, and the barley crop would be 481 million bushels, up 33 percent.

Estimates of several other major crops — soybeans, sorghum, cotton, sugar, peanuts and rice — will not be made until August.

House delays work on 1982 defense budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Facing decisions on defense contracting policy and the military personnel in law enforcement, the House Friday opted to wait until next week to finish work on the $136 billion 1982 defense authorization bill.

The bill would authorize $26.4 billion more than the 1981 measure for military procurement, research and development, and operations and maintenance.

After acting on one minor amendment Friday, the House moved to another bill with plans to resume work on the defense measure Tuesday.

On Thursday, the House overwhelmingly rejected an amendment to kill the MX missile program, but did vote to at least temporarily withhold funds for the Air Force's controversial plan to hide the missiles in scattered shelters in Nevada and Utah.

President Reagan is expected to decide soon whether to approve the Air Force's desert basing plan for the MX or to adopt a new plan, such as placing the missiles on submarines.

By rejecting another amendment, the House insisted that Congress have the authority to veto any presidential decision to terminate the B-1 bomber program.

Reagan will decide whether to go ahead with the B-1 program or opt for development of an all new plane, possibly using "stealth" technology to help the bomber elude enemy detection.

Still to be resolved is an Armed Services Committee proposal to allow the Defense Department to enter into long-term contracts with defense contractors. Under present law, most defense contracts must be authorized by Congress on a yearly basis, but the committee said multi-year contracts would be more efficient.

Another proposal in the bill would let military personnel help civilian law enforcement authorities in their efforts to intercept drug smugglers.

Opponents say military assistance should be limited to such things as radar surveillance of planes and ships, but that military personnel should not conduct searches or make arrests.

SALT II opponent attacked at Senate committee hearing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nomination of an ardent opponent of the SALT II treaty to be the chief negotiator of a new arms control treaty was attacked Friday.

Opponents of retired Gen. Edward Rowny's chief negotiator for any round of Strategic Arms Limitation Talks criticized him before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for urging a U.S. weapons buildup as a condition of starting arms control negotiations.

Rowny told the committee Thursday the United States must overcome the Soviets' "strategic superiority" in nuclear weapons before Reagan could make good on his promise to renew SALT.

"Either the Soviets come down of their own volition or we have to go up to convince them to come down," Rowny had said.

"The Rowny nomination appears to be another case of President Reagan appointing foxes to manage the chickens — whether the field of responsibility is arms control, human rights, national parks or clean air," Sen. Harry Preller, R-S.D., chairman of the arms control subcommittee, suggested that "arms control might be Ronald Reagan's China." As Richard Nixon was able to go to China whereas a liberal Democrat could not... perhaps the Reagan-Rostow-Rowny team will surprise us."

Elderly protest Social Security cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor and senior citizens groups told Congress Friday — cutting Social Security benefits would break a long-standing promise to the American people.

But business groups said anything else would ruin the economy.

Significantly, opening the last of three days of Senate Social Security subcommittee hearings, panel chairman William Armstrong, R-Colo., made it clear he did not see any way to avert predicted bankruptcy of the system without making future cuts.

Peter Hughes, representing the National Retired Teachers Association and American Association of Retired Persons, said his groups opposed proposals to limit annual cost-of-living increases or raise the retirement age.

Hughes said such reductions would break a commitment the government made to its people — a pledge they have planned their futures around.

"The continuation of full cost-of-living (adjustments) is critical," Hughes said, explaining this is the only way — retirees on fixed incomes can keep pace with inflation. And he said it would be unwise to raise the retirement age from 65 to 68 in the next century.

"The time has come to reduce reliance on the payroll tax and to finance a significant portion of the Social Security program with general tax revenues," said Josiah Beeman, political director of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees. He also opposed limiting inflation adjustments and raising the retirement age.

Armstrong said he doesn't think there is much chance Congress will agree to turn general tax revenues to finance Social Security because that would make balancing the budget almost impossible.

Both Armstrong and Rep. J. Pickle, D-Texas, — who chairs the House Social Security subcommittee — have said they consider it likely Congress will turn to an increased retirement age and limits on cost-of-living increases to bail out the system.

Lowell M. Jones, representing the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, warned the bill that unless Congress acts quickly, Social Security faces "impending financial disaster."

He backed delayed retirement, cost-of-living adjustments and requiring government workers to be included in Social Security.

Police prepare for Ku Klux Klan rally

MERIDEN, Conn. (UPI) — City police and state troopers were prepared for "the worst situation" at a Ku Klux Klan rally today, determined to prevent another bloody clash with anti-racist advocates.

Acting Police Chief George Caffrey said the city's entire force, including a 35-member SWAT team, would be available along with a contingent of state troopers on standby two miles away.

Police departments from 10 surrounding communities also were prepared to assist if violence erupted at the noon rally, Caffrey said.

"We've tried to discourage it," he said. "Failing that, we're ready for the worst situation."

Two dozen hooded and white-robed Klan members marching downtown on March 21 were pelted with rocks, bricks and bottles by upward of 200 anti-racist demonstrators who converged on the city for a counter-protest.

Five Klan members and 20 police officers who tried to quell the disturbance were injured.

Bill Wilkinson of Denham Springs, La., leader of a Klan faction identified by law enforcement authorities as the most violent, led the last march but he will miss Saturday's rally because of a convention of Klan imperial wizards.

Connecticut Klansmen called the latest rally to protest authorities' failure to seek arrest warrants for demonstrators responsible for the violence at the March rally. There were two arrests during the rally.

The Klan also planned to distribute membership literature on Sunday in surrounding communities.

The Klan held the March rally to support a white Meriden police officer who shot and killed a black shoplifting suspect in February. The officer, Eugene Hale, this week submitted his resignation for "personal reasons" and planned to return to his former Texas home for work outside law enforcement.

Government considers new sites for refugees

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration, considering a number of sites as a new home for 887 Cuban refugees now at Fort Chaffee, Ark., will weigh the effect of the move on nearby communities, administration sources said Friday.

"The impact on the local community is a very relevant consideration and has been fully taken into account," said one source close to the interagency task force that has been working on recommendations for immigration policy.

When word of the potential transfer leaked out Thursday, residents near the proposed camps were soon fuming.

In Selma, Ala., the mayor vowed to greet any Cubans with bayonet-armed troops and Maryland Gov. Harry Hogan promised to "assist" strongly the use of an abandoned naval base near Baltimore, Md.

In an apparent move to assure local authorities that their concerns will not be slighted, administration sources said Friday that the National Naturalization Service, said as of Sunday, there were 887 Cubans at Fort Chaffee, one of four relocation sites set up last year.

Their numbers have been gradually reduced as processors were found for them. More than 25,000 Cubans have been processed through Fort Chaffee in the past 14 months. Those who remain are characterized as mentally ill, handicapped, anti-social or elderly.

Vern Jarvis, spokesman for the Immigration and Naturalization Service, said as of Sunday, there were 887 Cubans at Fort Chaffee, one of four relocation sites set up last year.

Their numbers have been gradually reduced as processors were found for them. More than 25,000 Cubans have been processed through Fort Chaffee in the past 14 months. Those who remain are characterized as mentally ill, handicapped, anti-social or elderly.

Last year, when the Carter administration announced it planned to relocate the Cubans from Fort Chaffee to an abandoned naval base in southern Puerto Rico, the commonwealth government successfully blocked the move through a series of legal injunctions.

Departing DEA official cites progress against heroin

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ongoing Drug Enforcement Administration progress in cutting the heroin flow to the United States.

On his last day on the job, Bensingger outlined for United Press International a number of areas his office has succeeded. But he emphasized a greater international commitment is needed to clamp down on drug trafficking.

The administration decided last month to replace Bensingger, appointed by President Gerald Ford in 1976, with an interim director while a committee studies whether the DEA should be incorporated into the FBI.

Francis M. Mullen Jr., one of the FBI's three executive assistant directors, takes over as acting DEA administrator next week.

Attorney General William French Smith said the administration will place greater emphasis on narcotics enforcement as part of its overall focus on controlling violent crime.

Bensingger told UPI his agency has made major progress in reducing the flow of heroin to the United States over the last five years.

"Through the efforts of DEA agents and others, he said, the supply has been cut from seven tons a year in 1976 to four tons last year. Over the last 18 to 20 months, a coordinated effort with foreign law enforcement has resulted in the breakup of 15 heroin processing laboratories overseas.

Bensingger cited as another major accomplishment the drop in the number of heroin related deaths from about 2,000 to 500 over the past five years. He said there has not been a single heroin-related death in Chicago in a year.

Operation separates twins

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (UPI) — Siamese twin girls, who shared a common liver were successfully separated Friday.

Doctors said they expect the infants to remain healthy after the surgery.

The twins, Deanne and Dianna, were born Thursday to a 32-year-old mother whom North Carolina Memorial Hospital would not identify. They were joined from the tip of the breast bone to the navel area.

Hospital spokesman Dick Broom said the surgery took 3 1/2 hours.

"Doctors said both babies are doing well — and their vital signs are stable," Broom said following the surgery that ended seven days of surgery that ended seven days of surgery that ended seven days of surgery.

Broom said doctors decided to operate after studying X-rays that appeared to show a pocket of air in the babies' abdominal cavities. Broom said doctors feared the pockets were caused by an opening in the babies' bowels, a condition that would have called for immediate action. The X-rays, however, proved misleading.

"Once the decision was made to operate, the doctors agreed to attempt separation of the twins," Broom said.

Broom said the surgery confirmed test results that showed the livers of the babies, both weighing about five pounds at birth, were joined through a six-inch band of tissue that connected their abdomens. Surgeons found that the "air-pockets" showed on the X-rays were caused not by an opening in the bowel but by pressure from a fibrous band in the tissue that connected the babies.

Court choice receives support

By United Press International

Maureen backs Sandra
Maureen Reagan says she's glad her father named a woman to the Supreme Court, but his administration's record on appointing women to important jobs is not good enough. The system has been broken down somewhat by the president's oldest daughter told a Republican fundraising dinner in South Burlington, Vt. Miss Reagan, 40, also criticized conservative groups that have attacked the nomination of Sandra O'Connor because of the Arizona judge's views on abortion and the Equal Rights Amendment. Miss Reagan is for the ERA; her father is against it.

Sadat, Reagan and Begin
President Anwar Sadat of Egypt will spend five days in the United States Aug. 4-9, including a day in New York and one in Plains, Ga. He will be the first Middle East head of state to visit Washington since President Reagan took office in January. Sadat will see Reagan at the White House Aug. 5 and possibly the next day as well. Their talks will focus on ways of breaking the deadlock in Egyptian-Israeli negotiations on Palestinian autonomy in the occupied Jordan West Bank and Gaza. Arianwhile Sadat says he has invited Jimell Prime Minister Menachem Begin to visit Egypt before goes to Washington.

Mixed welcome for Isabel
Former Argentine President Isabel Peron, flanked by bodyguards who punched and kicked reporters, has arrived in Madrid to cheers and jeers to begin her exile in the country where she married Juan Peron in 1960. Fighting broke out and shouts of "Isabel, Isabel" were drowned by cries of "witch" as a shaken Mrs. Peron ducked into a green Mercedes and was driven away. Mrs. Peron was released Monday after five years of house arrest in Argentina. She succeeded her husband as head of state until deposed.

People in the news: Dionne Warwick is featured in a free concert at Belmont Park, N.Y., Saturday night, along with Buddy Rich and his band... Frank Sinatra, who has a soft spot for his hometown of Hoboken, N.J., has donated $5,000 to the Hoboken High School to start a Frank Sinatra Student Scholarship Fund. The school earlier awarded him an honorary diploma, the first one ever approved by the city's Board of Education.

Quote of the day: UCLA law student Willie Banks, holder of the American triple-jump record, says he has doubts about the effectiveness of last year's U.S. boycott of the Moscow Olympics: "I wasn't too pleased by the boycott, but I had to go along with it," he said in Leningrad, Russia.

Feature at pet show

Some prospects might carp at paying $100,000 for fish

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — Like thousands of other Americans, you've been thinking for years now of buying a $100,000 carp.
But things just kept popping up — house payments, the kids' tuition — and you kept putting it off.
Well, don't put it off any longer. Here's the chance of a lifetime to own the ugliest, most expensive pet on your block.

For two days only — Saturday and Sunday — the American Pet Show will be held at the Anaheim Convention Center. The carp will be one of the featured attractions, with fish coming from Japan just for your viewing pleasure.

The fish are native to Japan where they sell for up to $100,000 and while they may be carp, they're not carp — they're called koi fish, which is understandable. (Who would pay $100,000 for a carp?)

The fish are bred and shown in Japan in contests similar to dog shows, where they are judged on size, colors (which include red, white, blue and gold) and shape.

Also considered is the fish's ability to swim. "The fish must be healthy," said noted koi expert Jiro Matsui. "And to decide whether the fish is healthy, watch it swim. You watch his capabilities to women's movement activists' fin movement and tail movement. It's swimming style is very important."

OK, you've made up your mind. You're going to sell the house, one of your children and both cars and buy your first koi fish. Now what?

First, you must build the fish a home. They're not kept in aquariums because of their size (up to 30 pounds) and more importantly, the colors are more striking when viewed from the top, not the side. So you need a pool. The pool can cost up to $50,000. Some contain 100 tons of gravel and rock with complex circulation and filtering systems. The pools hold as much as 40,000 gallons of water and are often 7 feet deep.

But look on the bright side. You won't need a diving board, dressing room or rubber raft.

All right, you're in for $150,000 and this has gotten you a small fish pond and a very attractive carp to dump into it, bringing pride of ownership and social status. Friends and neighbors drop by to view the fish, and you spend many a pleasurable hour watching the twinkle of little fins.

On the other hand, maybe you wonder-if you've temporarily insane. Maybe you wonder of you could unload the lighthouse kruggerand and get most of your money back.

But just as you've convinced yourself you've gone bonkers, friends begin to cheer you up with comments such as: "Hey Fred, nice carp."

Later, when a less impressed buddy makes jokes about sneaking into your yard some night with a sesame seed bun and tartar sauce, you can just laugh.

The carp can even be trained, says Philip Ishizu of Pasadena, Calif., who has imported and bred the fish for 14 years. He says he's seen koi fish come to their owner from across the pool when called by name. He also says he's seen them smoke cigarettes.

Some koi owners have gotten so attached their pet they place a radio or even a television set near the pool in case the fish wants to be entertained.

Given the level of much TV programming, there's probably many shows that would interest a carp. But you can bet they don't watch the American Sportsman.

Reagan letter goes on sale

NEW YORK (UPI) — An autograph dealer hopes to earn up to $400 for a letter in which movie actor Ronald Reagan refuses a 1950 role for fear that his career was starting to "slip into a boy next door and nice fellow type of thing."

The letter is scheduled to be sold by autograph dealer Charles Hamilton in an auction set for Aug. 6 at the Waldorf-Astoria. Hamilton estimates the letter will bring between $300 and $400.

Reagan wrote the letter to writer Sam Berns of Los Angeles, who submitted a film script to the actor for his approval.

Hamilton said he is offering a glossy film studio photograph of Nancy Reagan in a "playful startle pose" at the same sale. It is expected to bring $75 to $100.

Prize winner has to wait for release

NEW YORK (UPI) — A state Supreme Court judge has ordered the winner of New York state's record $2.8 million Lotto drawing last month not to spend any of her winnings until the court can decide whether the money should go to her neighbor.

The neighbor, Christopher Pando, sued Daisi Fernandez Thursday, claiming he was entitled to half her prizes because he selected the winning number and prayed for her to win.

In papers filed in state Supreme Court in Manhattan, Pando said he had prayed to Saint Eleggua that the number would win and that Mrs. Fernandez committed a "cruel and inhuman act" in refusing him his share.

Pando said Mrs. Fernandez, a mother of three, gave him $4 to buy four Lotto tickets June 26 for the weekly June 27 drawing.

In response to the suit, Justice Richard Lee Price signed an order compelling Mrs. Fernandez to show why she should not be barred from dispensing the winnings until the matter is resolved.

Price set a court date for July 13.

Gemini should gather today with their good friends, show wisdom

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you are able to find out more readily just where you are headed. It's advisable that you handle any questionable matters in the right manner. Study to gain knowledge.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Take time to make plans for the future. Be more sociable with persons of character and influence. Show that you have poise.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Engage in activities today that appeal to you the most. Put prejudices aside for best results. Show devotion to loved one.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Getting together with good friends today is worthwhile. Show that you are a wise and considerate person.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Make sure you carry through with agreements you've made with others. You can easily handle a civic affair now.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Ideal day to start building on a new foundation that could increase your income. Be more willing to accept change.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Study the promises you have made and be sure to carry through conscientiously. Come to a fine accord with loved one.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): A good time to improve your surroundings. Don't permit an opponent to take unfair advantage of you. Be happy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Take care of matters you were unable to do earlier in the week. A good time to catch up on your reading. Be more optimistic.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): A day to engage in recreations you really enjoy. Showing more affection for loved ones is wise at this time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): If the situation in tense at home, don't make matters worse by using the wrong words. Count your blessings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Handle communications in a most intelligent way and remain cool at all times today. Obtain important data you need.

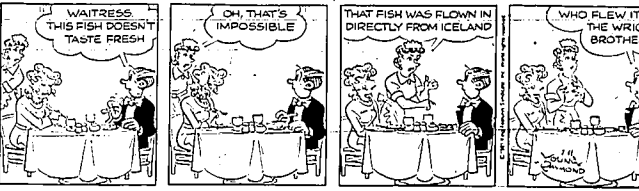

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Study new ways of advancing in your line of endeavor. Look to a successful person for new ideas. Relax at home tonight.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY: he or she will be full of ideas, but should be taught to differentiate between the good and the bad. Your progeny requires a good academic training in order to become successful. Religion is a must in this chart.

What's what

Endurance makes woman strongest creature of all

Strongest mammal on earth—when you measure strength by endurance, the ability to survive the greatest number of years—is woman.

If you were born in 1928 or earlier, you were alive at a time when the President of the United States still had to go out to a booth in the White House hall to make a telephone call.

How many of TV's fictional characters can you recall that have no known first names? Start with Quincy. Add Columbo. Any others?

SERVICE STATIONS

Q. Is it true there are only about half as many gas stations in the country as there were 10 years ago?

A. Almost true. The service station count dropped from 204,500 in 1972 to 106,500 today. Incidentally, car dealerships with repair facilities fell from 49,000 in 1949 to 23,000 today.

That Love and War expert Madame Darloux is quoted: "A man may be Hercules on the outside and have the soul of a mouse or he may be Mickey Mouse with the soul of Hercules. If you ever have to choose between these two types of men, do not hesitate to pick the mouse with the courageous heart."

In 1936, the world's champion hog caller of the time, name now unremembered, said: "You've got to have appeal as well as power in your voice. You've got to convince the hogs you have something for them." An advertising executive saw fit to frame this message and hang it behind his desk. To this day it remains a wall decoration in some ad agency offices, I'm told.

TONGUE TWISTER

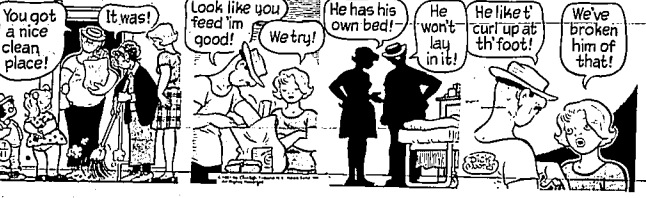

Am asked the most difficult tongue twister of all time. Opinion varies on this weighty matter. But one candidate for that distinction has to be: "Red leather, yellow leather." Not so tough, you say. No, no, no, when you say it once. Try saying it twice. Quickly. Now three times.

Why doesn't some juice company put out small cans of clam broth with a dash of hot-pepper sauce? Might catch on. You could finish off your vegetable juice and clam your forehead and say, "Wow! I could have had a clam broth! No, this isn't my idea. Clam broth so seasoned was the favorite cocktail of that renowned tenor Enrico Caruso.

British troops battle mourners at IRA funeral

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — British troops struggling to catch three IRA gunmen battled with mourners Friday at the funeral for hunger striker Joseph McDonnell.

He was buried next to Bobby Sands in an Irish Republican Army "martyrs" cemetery. Youths with bricks and bottles battled troops fighting their way through the funeral procession in search of three IRA terrorists who fired a volley of rifle shots in salute to McDonnell, who died Wednesday in the 61st day of his fast.

He was the fifth hunger striker to die in the IRA's fast-to-the-death campaign to win political status for its inmates in Belfast Maze prison. Bobby Sands, whose death May 5 touched off province-wide rioting, was the first. The gunmen escaped but one of them was captured later in a shootout in a house in Catholic Andersonstown, about 100 yards from the funeral procession route, police said.

It was believed to be the first time that British troops have broken up an IRA funeral procession, which by unspoken agreement are left alone.

Alerted by army helicopters clattering overhead, army "snatch squads" plunged into the funeral procession winding its way through Andersonstown after the shots were fired by the three masked gunmen.

Most of the 5,000 mourners fled in terror, taking cover in nearby buildings, as the troops fired plastic bullets at bottle-and-brick hurling youths trying to cover the gunmen's escape.

Police said they cornered the gunmen in an Andersonstown

Mrs. Goretti McDonnell, the hunger-striker's widow, attended the funeral with her two children, Bernadette and Joseph house, wounding two of them in a shootout. They captured one of the wounded men but the other two escaped.

The funeral procession regrouped 30 minutes later and McDonnell, his coffin draped with the flag of the Irish Republic and his IRA black beret, was finally buried alongside Sands in what the IRA calls its "martyrs" plot at Milltown cemetery. McDonnell's 10-year-old daughter Bernadette and son Joseph, 9, sobbed uncontrollably as the funeral procession left the family home in Lenadon six hours earlier.

McDonnell's widow, Goretti admonished them: "Hold your heads up like your daddy." McDonnell, 30, was replaced in the IRA's hunger strike campaign by another Maze prison inmate, Pat McGoewen, bringing to eight the number of convicts refusing food.

McGoewen, 25, is serving a 15-year prison term for bombing Belfast's Europa hotel in 1975.

In a sermon for McDonnell at St. Oliver Plunkett church, the Rev. Frank McCorry attacked Britain's refusal to negotiate directly with the hunger strikers.

"It seems the integrity and determination of the Irish Commission for Justice and Peace was not matched by the British government," he said.

The commission called on the government to respond to a compromise it drew up earlier in the week.

Israel, Egypt complete Sinai accord

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Israel and Egypt have reached final agreement on the creation of a multi-national peacekeeping force to be stationed in the Sinai, following the withdrawal of Israeli troops next April, a senior American official said Friday.

"Egypt and Israel have informed me that their governments have approved the texts of the documents constituting agreement on the establishment of a multi-national peacekeeping force," said U.S. Deputy Assistant Secretary of State Michael Serner, who steered the negotiations since last March.

A statement by Foreign Minister Hassan Ali said "agreement has been reached" and will be initiated "in the near future."

Foreign Ministry officials also reported Sadat will make a stop in Plains, Ga., to visit former President Carter when he flies to the United States for talks with President Reagan next month. The first Middle East head of state to visit Washington since Reagan took office last January, Sadat also spend a day in New York City, the officials said.

Sadat told reporters in Alexandria he had invited Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin to visit Egypt, but no date had been set.

Sadat and Begin last met June 4 at Sharm El-Sheikh in Israeli-occupied Sinai, three days before Israeli warplanes bombed Iraq's nuclear facility near Baghdad.

Sadat denounced the attack as "a horrible mistake" but disclosure of his invitation to Begin meant he was not allowing the incident to deter his peacemaking with Israel.

The peacekeeping force for the Sinai was provided for in the 1979 Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty.

Economy top concern for Spanish leader

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Spanish Prime Minister Leopoldo Calvo Sotelo said Friday he did not fear another coup attempt despite what he acknowledged was right-wing "restlessness" within the armed forces.

In an exclusive interview with UPI, Calvo Sotelo asserted that last February's coup attempt by officers nostalgic for Franco was "an isolated act and there was no real risk it would be repeated."

"I don't live with the fear of another coup, but with the problems posed by unemployment, the surging dollar and terrorism," he said.

Calvo Sotelo also predicted the center would hold in Spain and would not be affected by the shift to the left that brought socialists to power in neighboring France. The outcome in France cannot be translated into Spanish terms," he said.

Calvo Sotelo listed as the main achievements of his four-month-old government the negotiations to bring Spain into NATO, the offensive against Basque terrorism and a recent labor agreement.

The unsmiling prime minister said he felt his country's image abroad was tarnished by the Feb. 23 coup led by Lt. Col. Antonio Tejero, who took parliament and the cabinet hostage as they were meeting to invest Calvo Sotelo.

"The brilliant journalistic picture of Tejero waving a pistol in parliament is not the true image of Spain," Calvo Sotelo said, referring to a picture widely printed during the coup.

For the interview, Calvo Sotelo answered both written questions submitted to him earlier and questions put to him during a conversation in his office at the Moncloa Palace on the outskirts of Madrid.

He acknowledged the coup attempt stemmed from a "certain restlessness among the armed forces" fed by terrorism and the military's unease over the government's program to extended regional autonomy.

But he maintained that "the great majority of the armed forces and all its top officers are loyal to the constitution and to the democratic government."

Calvo Sotelo said a labor agreement signed in June would help solve Spain's high unemployment and double-digit inflation.

The labor accord between the government, the unions and the employers reaches into the political, economical, employment and budgetary fields," he said.

The prime minister also reiterated his hopes of joining NATO and the Common Market to bring Spain closer to the West five years after the death of dictator Francisco Franco.

Gandhi blames U.S. sales for arms race

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi charged Friday that U.S. sales of ultra-modern weapons to Pakistan have upset the strategic balance in South Asia and triggered an arms race poor nations cannot afford.

At the same time, Mrs. Gandhi admitted, at her second news conference since she came to power 18 months ago, India is importing what for the first time since 1977.

The sales to Pakistan of $1.5 billion worth of U.S. arms, including F-16 fighter-bombers and the latest tanks, will introduce a new generation of sophisticated weaponry into South Asia, Mrs. Gandhi said.

Neighboring Pakistan is India's traditional rival in the area.

"When you make such a tremendous jump from one era to another it creates problems for your neighbors," said Mrs. Gandhi.

She said the subcontinent is being willy-nilly pushed into an arms race, increasing financial burdens on our people at a time when our limited resources should have been entirely used for the needs of our people.

In response to the U.S.-Pakistan arms deal negotiated in June, Indian officials are seeking the latest in Soviet MiG and French Mirage 2000 jet fighter bombers.

Mrs. Gandhi said the "augmented and urgent" defense spending placed an additional burden on India's already troubled economy and admitted her government needed to exert better financial management.

She confirmed India is negotiating purchases of wheat, sugar and vegetables to help curb rising prices that have plagued her administration.

Cheers, jeers great Mrs. Peron in Madrid

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Flanked by bodyguards who punched and kicked reporters, former Argentine president Isabel Peron arrived to cheers and jeers Friday to begin her second exile in the country where she married Juan Peron.

Spanish officials boycotted her arrival at Barajas Airport after a 12-hour flight from Buenos Aires. Only two small groups of Argentines — one composed of her supporters and the other anti-Peronists — were on hand to cheer and jeer.

Shouts of "Isabel, Isabel" were replaced by cries of "witch" as a shaken Mrs. Peron ducked into a green Mercedes and sped off to the Ritz.

Mrs. Peron, released Monday after five years of house arrest in Argentina, smiled broadly as she stepped off the regularly scheduled Iberia flight.

But her smile vanished and some of the peach-colored roses she carried fell to the floor as a melee broke out between her bodyguards and reporters in the baggage terminal.

Dozens of photographers were knocked to the ground as other passengers jumped onto the revolving baggage belts to escape the turmoil.

Minister says he will stop shock treatments

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — A Baptist minister says he will stop shocking Bible school students with a 12-volt battery to teach them to listen to God, the county prosecuting attorney said Friday.
Kent County Prosecutor David Sawyer said the Rev. Dwight Wymer agreed to discontinue the attention-grabbing Bible school stunt — after learning criminal charges could be brought against him if a child is injured by the shocks.
Wymer could be charged with involuntary manslaughter if a child had a fatal heart attack after receiving the shocks, Sawyer said. No complaints have been received from parents of children subjected to the shocks, he said.
Religious leaders of various denominations decried the "shock treatment," given children as young as 7 years old. Almost without exception, ministers contacted said they could see no educational value in Wymer's use of a stool that gave each young volunteer a shock in the buttocks.

Children received an electrical shock through a screen covering the seat of the stool, which is hooked to a battery providing the same current output of most car batteries. The shock treatment was used earlier this week in Bible school classes at Wymer's Immanuel Baptist Church.
"I think that's a kind of a sick gimmickery to use as a means to relate the Bible," said the Rev. Donald Griffioen of the Christian Reformed Church. "Bible schools are accustomed to a kind of 'can you top this' gimmickery."
"What jarred me is the obvious-parallel between this... and the deadly serious business of the electric chair — that doesn't do the gospel any good."

A fellow Baptist minister, the Rev. R.L. Johnson of Bethlehem Baptist Church in Grandville, suggested Wymer stick to the Bible in his teachings.
"Personally, I don't agree with him," Johnson said. "I've never used such methods — I just use the Bible. I guess he has his own methods of teaching."
"This is a most bizarre teaching method," said the Rev. Louis Stasker of St. Andrew's Cathedral. "The gospel is about God's love, not pain."
Wymer, however, says the "electric chair" is a simple tool to get a child's attention.
"I tell them God speaks to us, and sometimes we don't listen," the 36-year-old pastor said. "God tells us to do something or suffer the consequences. When we don't do it, zap."
The director of Sunday schools for the Michigan Convention of the Southern Baptist Convention, the Rev. John Auvenshine, said his organization does not endorse Wymer's methods.
"I hope it doesn't cast the (Southern Baptist) Convention in a bad light," he said, "because it's certainly not characteristic of what our churches are doing along the lines of religious education."
"I believe that this particular story, like other stories of its nature, has been taken out of context almost in a purposeful manner by media leaders to discredit leaders in evangelical circles," he said.

3 persons injured

Fires trigger I-84 accident

DECLO — A runaway range tire east of Burley triggered a freeway accident that injured three people.

Interstate traffic was delayed for several hours when the fire jumped both lanes of Interstate 84.

Idaho State Police said three persons were taken to Cassia Memorial Hospital Friday night with injuries suffered in an accident apparently related to motorists' obscured vision. Names of the victims, information about their conditions and details of the accident were unavailable Friday.

State Police reported the I-84 exchange to Salt Lake City remained closed at 10 p.m. Friday because of smoke. Vehicles traveling north were being guided by pilot cars along one lane of the freeway late that night, according to police, who said vehicles had backed up extensively because of the lane closures.

Hazards multiplied when motorists drove their vehicles into thick smoke, became alarmed and tried to drive back out the way they entered, police said. Traffic problems began developing at about 7:45 p.m. as winds bolstered the fire, they said.

Fire crews from the Bureau of Land Management thought they had the blaze contained at one point during the afternoon, according to a BLM spokeswoman, but erratic winds accompanying a thunderstorm fanned it back to life.

Lightning apparently triggered the blaze, which started in the afternoon 10 miles east of Declo but had jumped the freeway and was rapidly heading north by 8 p.m. BLM spokeswoman.

Jerome man rescued after motorbike wreck

TWIN FALLS — An injured Jerome man was rescued from the South Hills Friday.

Rescuers from sheriff's departments in Twin Falls and Cassia counties carried the man 1 1/2 miles from a remote spot in the South Hills where he had fallen off his motorcycle and suffered a broken leg.

Officials at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital in Twin Falls said a report on the condition of Dutch Goodman was unavailable late Friday night.

Goodman, 63, lost control of his motorcycle near the South Hills Third Fork area. He was carried out in a litter; Twin Falls County Sheriff James Munn said. A doctor in the vicinity assisted Goodman soon after the accident occurred, according to a Cassia County Sheriff's deputy.

After Goodman was transported part-way in the litter he was placed in a four-wheel-drive vehicle and taken to an ambulance waiting at a nearby access point.

1 caught, 1 escapes pursuit

Auto theft suspect shoots at deputies

By SUSAN GALLAGHER Times-News writer

EDEN — Jerome County law enforcement officials were the target of gunfire for the second time in eight days Friday as they pursued two men suspected of auto theft.

A suspect fired at but missed a Jerome County Sheriff's Department car early Friday morning, said Jerome Chief Deputy Larry Webb. Soon afterward, authorities had one man in custody and were searching for a second.

Arising from theft of a pickup truck at a farm south of Twin Falls, Friday's pursuit came on the heels of a 56-mile, high-speed chase July 2. The earlier incident involved several exchanges of gunfire between two armed robbery suspects and Magic Valley law enforcement authorities. One suspect was injured by gunfire that incident.

Twin Falls County Sheriff James

Munn said the chase Friday began about 1 a.m. when a Jerome County Sheriff's deputy in Eden observed a pickup truck matching the description of one stolen earlier at a Twin Falls area farm. Authorities said deputies pursued the allegedly stolen vehicle a short distance north of Eden.

At that point, another suspect traveling separately wrecked his vehicle, and scrambled to enter the truck believed to be stolen. But the truck drove off before the man could enter. The suspect on foot fired a single shot at officers, then fled.

Joseph E. Gwin, 39, driver of the truck, was arrested on a charge of grand larceny about a mile north of Eden on Hunt Road. The other suspect, unidentified, is believed to have stolen another pickup at about 3 a.m. Friday from a farm west of Hazelton, Webb said. Several hours later, that truck was found abandoned in Twin Falls.

Efforts to locate the suspect at large included an aerial search begun at dawn Friday near the Hansen Bridge. The suspect remained at large Friday night.

Munn said 15-20 officers from sheriff's departments in Twin Falls and Jerome counties, the Idaho State Police and the Twin Falls Police Department were involved in Friday's incident. The pursuit was not a high-speed chase, Munn said.

Gwin, of Twin Falls, remained in Twin Falls County Jail Friday in lieu of $2,500 bond.

Butterfly in auto keys fatal rollover

WENDELL — A California woman, fighting to remove a butterfly from her car, died when she lost control of the car and crashed near Wendell.

Cpl. Frank Mogensen of the Idaho State Police said June Calder Euler, 63, from Oraville, Calif., died instantly of massive head injuries in the one-car accident two miles west of Wendell on I-84 Friday.

"Her husband, Phelps Euler, 68, received bruises and abrasions to his hands and was treated and released at St. Benedict's Hospital in Jerome. No one else was in the car.

Mogensen said the couple was traveling through the Magic Valley to visit relatives in Seattle.

The 1977 Honda Civic Wagon, driven by Mrs. Euler, was westbound when a butterfly flew in the window, Mogensen said.

As she was trying to get the butterfly out of the car, she lost control and the car went onto the median, roller at least twice and landed on its top on the inside eastbound lane. Euler's husband had his hands outside the car when the accident happened, injuring them when the car slid on its top.

Mogensen said the couple made a brief stop in Jerome, and when they resumed their trip, Mr. Euler put his seatbelt on, but his wife did not. Neither were thrown from the car during the accident.

Evans requests aid for hail 'disaster'

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John Evans formally requested disaster aid for farmers in Cassia and Mindoko counties Friday.

Evans made the request in a letter to Agriculture Secretary John Block to help farmers in the two counties who suffered an estimated $6.9 million in crop damage in a hail and wind storm Monday.

The declaration would clear the way for government loans and other assistance for the estimated $300 million in losses suffered by farmers in the two counties. The storm ravaged 23,000 acres of severe storm $4.6 million in Mindoko and 20,000 acres worth $2.3 million in Cassia.

"Crop losses of this severity and magnitude will have a most severe economic impact upon the counties and should warrant assistance from the U.S. Department of Agriculture," Evans wrote.

County commissioners had asked the governor to seek disaster relief from the federal government, and Evans made the request in writing Friday afternoon.

If federal relief is granted, it will be administered through the Farmers Home Administration.

TWIN FALLS — A Utah construction company has asked for more than $170,000 in a breach of contract suit filed against an Idaho subcontractor.

Blaine L. Wadman Construction of Ogden alleges Don L. Border, doing business as Border Construction, did not fulfill his obligations in the construction of the Kimberly Elementary School addition. The suit was filed Wednesday in 5th District Court.

The $942,000 project was started in the spring of 1980 and took a year to complete. The addition was opened in March.

Wadman issued Border a contract to do the project's masonry work in April 1980, but canceled the contract in October 1980. During that time, Wadman paid Border $25,133.

"Because of defendant's (Border) breach of contract, the construction was delayed 120 days while the plaintiff (Wadman) entered into a contract with another subcontractor," the suit alleged.

The suit totals $176,338, including $79,838 Wadman claims was the cost overrun incurred with the new subcontractor.

Other damages sought in the suit are $60,000 for the 120-day delay; $16,500 in expenses incurred by Border that Wadman was forced to pay; and $30,000 in lawyer's fees.

Challis open house will demonstrate solar homes

CHALLIS — An open house for 15 solar-heated homes, built for the Cyprus Mining Corporation, begins this morning.

The homes will be completed in August, but will be open this week to display the various solar systems.

The home designs vary from a two-bedroom, one-bath, 1,000-square-foot model to a four-bedroom, two-bath, 1,800-square-foot model. The appraised value of the passive solar homes range from $65,000 to $86,000.

For more information, contact Carol Clawson, Cyprus Mining Corporation, Housing Director, Challis, Idaho, 878-1327.

Robber uses bomb threat

BOISE (UPI) — Boise police are seeking the driver of a get-away vehicle and a middle-aged man who took an undisclosed amount of cash from a Boise supermarket Thursday after claiming to have planted a bomb in the store.

Lt. Dick Maus said no bomb was found.

He said the 45-50-year-old man entered the Hired Hand supermarket on Hill Road in Boise's North End at 3:05 p.m., gathered a few groceries in a shopping cart, then headed for the check stand.

He said when the clerk had tallied the man's grocery bill, he announced that he had planted a bomb in the store and demanded all the money from the cash register.

Maus said store employees told police the man said he would call the store in 12 minutes and tell them how to diffuse the bomb.

"He said, 'I'm not kidding,' and he repeated this about three times," Maus said.

He said the man put the money in a paper bag with the groceries and ran out of the store, followed by an employee. He said the suspect ran across a street, into an alley, and jumped in a car driven by another man.

Maus said a thorough search of the store revealed no bomb and employees never received a call from the culprit after the holdup.

"If the bomb threats were simply a hoax used in accomplishing a robbery," he said.

District judge to quit, creates rare vacancy

BOISE (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Ray McNichols has told President Reagan he will semiretire, creating a vacancy for a full-time seat on Idaho's federal court for the first time since 1976. The Idaho Statesman reports.

"I've been a judge for 17 years," McNichols said. "I've enjoyed being a judge. The work has been challenging and at times difficult. It's time to take it a little bit easier."

McNichols, 67, was appointed to the bench by Lyndon Johnson in 1964 after being nominated by former Idaho Sen. Frank Church. McNichols said he will go on "senior status" as soon as Reagan appoints his replacement. McNichols said he informed Reagan about his plans last week.

Judges are eligible for senior status — meaning they handle cases only on a part-time basis — if they are at least 65 years old and have served 15 years on the bench or if they are 70 and have served 10 years on the bench. McNichols said

Helicopter joins search

BONNERS FERRY, Idaho (UPI) — Boundary County authorities said today a helicopter would be dispatched to fly over the Kootenai River in search of a missing Whitefish, Mont., canoeist.

A dispatcher with the Boundary County Sheriff's Department, said weather in the area was cloudy, rainy and foggy this morning, and visibility was poor. The search could be called off if the weather continued to deteriorate.

Missing and presumed drowned is John Mohr, 33, of Whitefish, Mont. He and his brother Craig, 30, were in a canoe that capsized near the Katka rail junction on the river, which was running three feet higher than it did last week due to releases from an upstream dam.

Craig Mohr spent about 30 minutes Tuesday afternoon thrashing for survival in a whirlpool before he was pulled to safety by a Burlington Northern track inspector who had been tossed a note concerning his plight from a passing train which had spotted him as it went by.

Inspector Noel Penie, Sandpoint, was westbound on his return trip from Libby, Mont. to Bonners Ferry when he was thrown a message from the canoe of an eastbound train. The person who penned the message, which explained Mohr's location and plight, was not identified.

Man charged in garage shooting

BOISE (UPI) — Law enforcement authorities have arrested a Boise man in connection with a shooting inside a city parking garage Thursday night.

Boise Police Lt. Dick Maus said Gregory Stewart Storey, 32, was arrested slightly more than two hours after the shooting incident and charged with assault with intent to commit murder.

He said Daniel H. Johnson, 27, was shot at 5:47 p.m. when he entered the stairwell of a parking garage at 10th and Grove streets. Johnson told police the assailant "followed" him, commented "as if he was passing the time of day," then fired three shots from a pistol.

Maus said Storey was arrested without incident at 5th and Main streets in Boise at 7:40 p.m. He said a .22-caliber pistol was confiscated at the scene of the arrest.

A nursing supervisor at St. Alphonsus Hospital said Johnson was listed in stable condition Thursday night.

Auto wreck kills 1 near Idaho Falls

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — An Idaho Falls man died and a prominent Idaho and Utah restaurant operator was hospitalized Friday as a result of injuries sustained in a traffic accident in eastern Idaho.

Idaho State Police officers said Richard O. Egeland, 40, died in the accident and Willard Wood, 70, Idaho Falls, was listed in fair condition at an Idaho Falls hospital.

Wood, owner of the Westbank Motel and Restaurant in Idaho Falls, also has been involved in the operation of restaurants in Boise and Salt Lake City. He began his restaurant career in Jerome.

Fires

Lisa Wheeler said the size at late afternoon was estimated at 1,700 acres, but she said it had grown "much larger" by 11 p.m.

Fire officials had no estimate when the blaze would be contained.

A specially trained fire management team was being called in from Boise, Wheeler said.

The last time outside administration was used on a fire in the Magic Valley was on the 37,000-acre Sallit Butte fire two weeks ago north of Minidoka. Two BLM administrators being flown in to handle that fire died in a plane crash that also killed the pilot.

A large number of cattle was threatened by the fire for a time, she said, but there were no known losses.

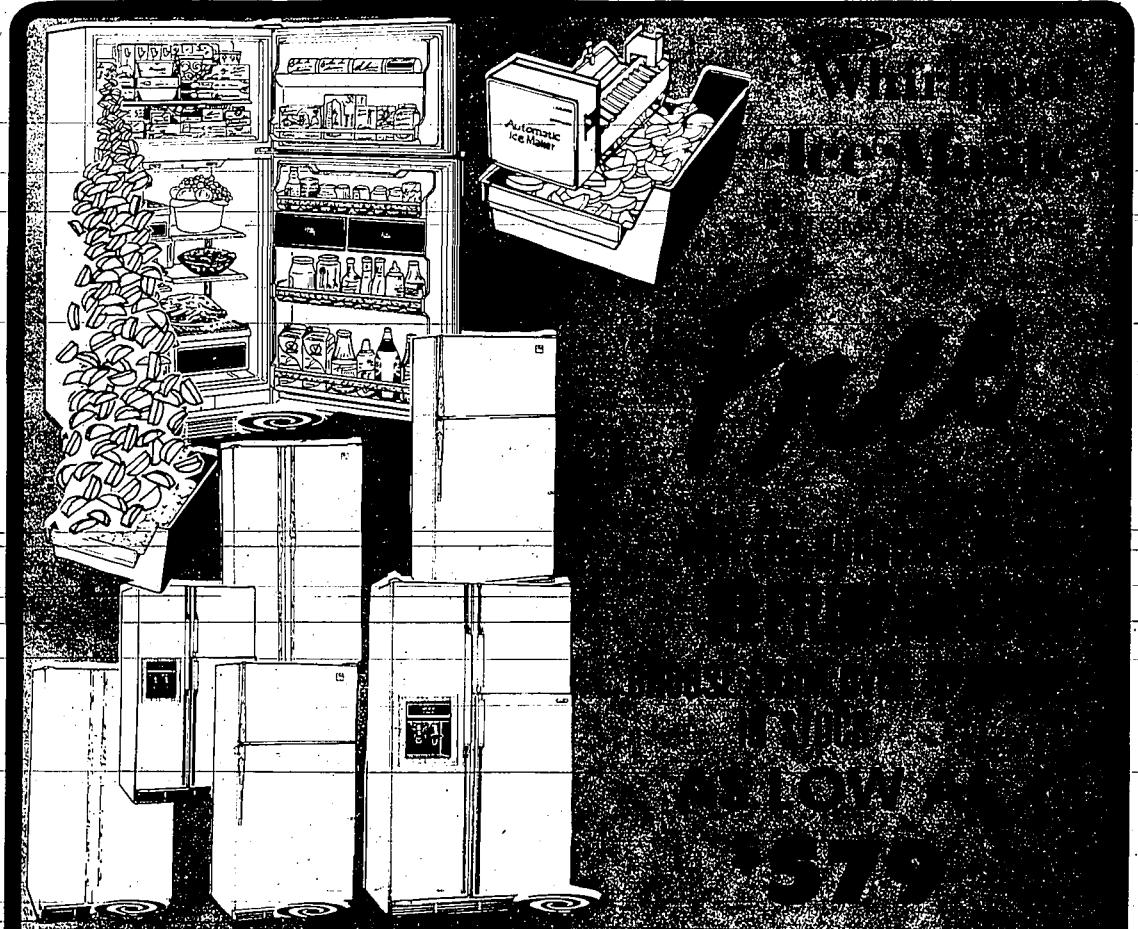

Details on the number of firefighters and equipment were sketchy at press time. Wheeler said 95 firefighters were present from Burley, Shoshone and Boise. Equipment being used included a helicopter, a spotter plane, a bulldozer and several water tankers.

Meanwhile, BLM and Forest Service crews controlled a 60-acre blaze north of Hiley at 9 a.m., but lost a water pumper in the effort.

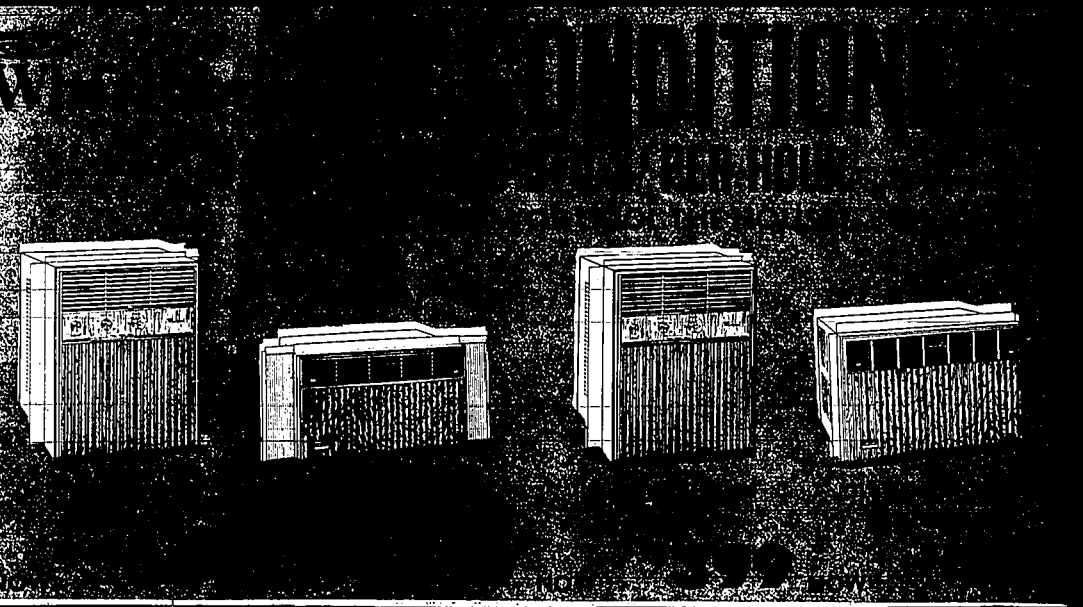

A BLM dispatcher in Shoshone said the pumper belonged to U.S. Forest Service crews in the Ketchum area. Another dispatcher said gas apparently spilled from the truck and was ignited by the flames, but no one was injured.

The man-caused blaze apparently started in the Ohio Gulch sanitary landfill on the east side of Highway 75 between Hiley and Ketchum.

Forest Service fire officials in Twin Falls also dispatched two men to a lightning caused fire on Mount Harrison, but said they expected the fire to be controlled at less than one acre unless winds were severe.

Sides mull 'skeleton of agreement'

© 1981 Chicago Sun-Times

NEW YORK — "I think it has the skeleton of a successful agreement."

So said Baltimore third baseman Doug DeCinces in what appears to be a major break that could bring an immediate end to baseball's 29-day strike.

Federal mediator Kenneth Moffett, the author of the compromise proposal, called the latest developments "a good sign."

DeCinces and Moffett made these observations at 3 p.m. (MDT) Friday—at the conclusion of a three-hour negotiation session at the Doral Inn. Negotiations resumed and continued late Friday night.

DeCinces, speaking on behalf of the striking Players' Association, described Moffett's compromise settlement as having "pluses and minuses for both sides."

The complex proposal addresses only the original issue of compensation for "premier" free agents and does not include any amnesty provisions for days lost for pension credits and service time.

Basically, the 26 clubs would be divided into three groups—A, B and C—on the basis of their worst records for the two years previous.

Compensation would vary and depend on the upward movement of a free agent. If he goes from a bottom club to a team in higher classification, the team which has lost him could "pick a player" from the organization that has signed him.

There would be no compensation for free agents moving downward—from A to B or B to C. A choice in the summer draft of amateur players would be the total compensation for players moving laterally, from A to another A club, or from B to B, etc.

For example:

- If Bill Buckner of the Cubs, a C club, declared free agency and signed with the Yankees — or any A club — the Cubs would be entitled to pick the 25th best player off the Yankee roster for $200,000.
- If Buckner signed with a B club, such as the Pittsburgh Pirates, the Cubs would be able to acquire the 31st best player from the Pittsburgh organization, for $150,000.
- But if Ron Guidry of the Yankees became a free agent and signed with the Cubs or any C club, the Yankees would receive no compensation.

The formula, clearly, is designed to increase competitive balance and would help the bottom clubs losing free agents to teams, which in the two previous seasons, had finished significantly higher in the standings. It would also encourage signings by the C clubs.

The proposal is limited to players who, statistically, at their respective position group (e.g., pitchers, hitters). There would be an annual limit of 12 premier, or compensatory, players.

An important consideration is that premier players would be measured against ALL players, not merely free agents. Also, they would not be subject to the re-entry draft and could negotiate with all clubs.

In the current procedure, free agents cannot negotiate with more than 13 clubs. This arrangement has been in effect since 1976, since the destruction of the reserve clause which had bound players to one team for life.

Molitor blisters course, has Amateur lead by 3

By LARRY HOVEY

TWIN FALLS — Being "aggressively conservative," Pocatello's Dave Molitor threatened Friday to make shambles out of the Idaho State Amateur Golf Tournament.

Molitor, who won the title the last time it was held in Magic Valley at Burley, was a picture of consistency as he carved out a seven-under-par 61 on the short Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course.

Still, he had only a three-shot lead on Twin Falls collegian Mike Hamblin and four on defending champion Scott Masingill of Payette going into today's second round.

Of interest in today's pairings is the top three Idaho amateurs, as rated on the Idaho Cup Matches point-system, will be paired together. They will be joined by Dr. Chic Cutler of Twin Falls in teeing-off from No. 10 at 9:16 a.m.

But getting back to that "aggressively conservative" summation, Molitor said "you have to play for birdies here. You can't win it with pars."

Although he made it look awfully easy, Molitor said, "I hit 17 greens and with the exception of a couple of putts that I thought could go, I didn't have any problems. From the tee to the green it was about as solid as I've played in a long time."

He said he made a conscious effort to stay below the cups on the greens that were considered by most to be very quick and elicited praise for their condition.

"I didn't think they were real fast going up hill. I had only one downhill putt on 16 and I had to make a six-footer to save par there."

"You have to stay below the pins here because if you go over the greens, or to either side of them you'll have trouble getting par," Molitor said.

Molitor said he wasn't expecting another seven-under-par effort while around him the idea that it might take quite a few under to win the title was growing.

Masingill, who had earlier stated that he might be tempted to sit in the clubhouse with a six-under "for the three days, adjusted his sights."

"Of course," he said with a smile, "I didn't know Dave was going to shoot a 61. A 63 maybe. Now I think it might be 12 under. But if Dave is going to have 21 under, then 12 is going to be a long way back."

Both said the scoring would probably be low if the wind stayed down. Neither remembered playing the course very often without wind being a major factor.

Masingill said a concentration breakdown midway through the round almost cost him a chance to stay within contention.

"I started out playing pretty well but when things slowed down in the middle of the round I just went to sleep. I got it going again late in the round, but it was almost too late to save."

Hamblin, who missed six of nine greens on the front, said "I was chipping just excellent and a few of them could have gone in. I settled down on the back nine and had a good round," to sum up his 64.

Cutler attacked the course basically the same way Molitor did.

"I just scraped it around," he said. "I wasn't going to give myself any of those downhill putts on these greens. I just hit everything low and short and had them run up. Some of the guys in my group finally started turning their backs so they wouldn't have to see my shots, but it worked," he said with a laugh.

Several players put themselves in position to have solid under-par days but most of them backed off over the final few holes. A pair of Twin Falls High School seniors-to-be, Dave Rasmussen and Steve Meyerhoeffer, had it three- and two-under, respectively, on the front side before letting it slip a little. Former champion Mike Sweet-Weiser, was in the same position.

In all, eight players bettered par and another four equalled it.

In the first flight, Terry Fox of Twin Falls turned in a 63 to assume a three-stroke lead over Bob Burns. There was a log jam at 72 among Bob Amende, Gordon Barry and Tom Standley, all Twin Falls, and Mike Spalding of Nevada, Terry Spackman of Teton and Tom Hartnett. More than half of the flight was jammed into the 72-76 range.

A pair of Twin Falls golfers shared the second-flight lead at 68. Doyle Dugger, recently moved back to Twin Falls from Winnemucca, Nev., and Ron Boyd shared that figure, giving them a three-stroke advantage on Burley's Bob Saxvile.

Doug Ford and H. Richard Cook, both Twin Falls, had 73s while Roger Holmes of Burley and Ron Hansen of Twin Falls had 74s.

Jim McCallan of Twin Falls absorbed a triple bogey on the front side but stormed the rest of the way in with nearly straight pars to lead the third flight at 72. Gary Lowe of Boise was second at 73 while Mike Hanchey and Gary Burkett, both Twin Falls, had 74s. Art Duncan, Twin Falls, was at 75 and it was two strokes back to Jim Smith, Randy Reed and Wynn Bybee.

Don Price and Wes Startin held the fourth-flight lead with 77s; one ahead of Fred Colley and Bob Skredrestu, Twin Falls. Jack Rasmussen had an 80 while 82 was shared among Mike Pearson, Mike Sweet and Rich Birrell.

In the fifth flight, Bill Brodeur Sr., claiming to be the oldest member of the field in the 1981 tournament, one of the youngest, were knotted at 73. Howard Todd stood at 82 with Stan Myers of Twin Falls and Doug Bybee at 82. Wayne Ballard and Rick Andrews had 84s.

The tourney resumes at 8 a.m. today with the championship, first- and second flights playing in the morning and the third- and fourth flights taking the afternoon shift. The annual event concludes Sunday with another 18 holes.

Twin Falls' golf brain trust gets together for Amateur

By MARV CLEMENS
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — Behind at least one contender in the Idaho State Amateur Golf Championships is a woman.

Twin Falls' Mike Hamblin fired a four-under-par 64 Friday to take second place behind Pocatello's Dave Molitor, who birdied the last three holes for a 61. Carrying Hamblin's clubs was none other than Karen Brown, Twin Falls' highly successful female golfer.

"She asked me a few days ago if she could caddy for me," said Hamblin while escaping the sun after his solid round. "I've carried her clubs in a few tournaments so we traded this time."

Brown gave Hamblin advice a few times during the round. "She helped me with the break on a couple of putts," Hamblin said. "But I don't like anybody second-guessing me, so she mainly carried the clubs and gave me encouragement."

Brown, who just graduated from Idaho State University with a nursing degree, works at Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course along with Hamblin. Since both of them play the course daily, it's probable one or the other knows the best way to handle virtually any delicate shot that might come up during the 54-hole tourney.

"It's equal rights," Brown said with a big laugh when asked about her becoming a caddy.

Hamblin will be in the focus of attention today as he plays with Molitor, defending champion Scott Masingill and Dr. Chic Cutler of Twin Falls in the second round starting at 9:16 a.m. off the 10th tee. Masingill is third with a 65 and Cutler had a 66.

"I was pleased with the 64," Hamblin said. "I should've had a bird at 17 to be five under, but the 15-footer didn't break."

The 20-year-old had troubles hitting greens on the front side, finding just three in regulation. But the ones he did hit — 1, 3 and 7 — he birdied. "Two of those were just tap-ins. When I hit the greens I was close to the pin."

Boys on No. 2 and No. 9 forced Hamblin to take a 33 on the front nine. He came back with birdies at 11, 13 and 18 for a 31.

Hamblin had a downhill 25-footer for an eagle on No. 18 and with a gallery of some 60 people watching, carefully tapped the ball and watched it trickle to just a foot from the hole for an easy birdie.

Before the tourney Hamblin expressed a desire to play well the first day so he could play in the four-hole play-off with the leaders. He has that chance today and hopes he'll be able to do something about Molitor's three-shot lead, but realizes another 61 would make Molitor awfully hard to beat.

TWIN FALLS — The Boise Y Swim Team used experience to surpass Pocatello during opening day action of the Twin Falls Invitational Swim Meet Friday.

The Pocatello Y Aquatic Club had a comfortable margin early in the day with its younger swimmers piling up points, but Boise, with national champion Jeff Erwin leading the way, took that lead away late in the afternoon.

However, the lead is minimal at 237 points to Pocatello's 223. The Nampa-Caldwell Aquatic Club is far back at third with 178 points.

Three of the top four places in the 15-16-year-old division went to Boise swimmers.

Heading into today's finale, Erwin, who received a first and second at national competition last year, holds a two-point lead over Blackfoot's C.L. Sollars. Erwin won the 200-meter intermediate and 100-meter freestyle

Lendl shocks weary McEnroe in Davis Cup

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jimmy Connors broke service six consecutive times to triumph Tomas Smid in straight sets Friday and give the United States a split of the opening day singles against Czechoslovakia.

The United States got off to a poor start when an emotionally worn John McEnroe was upset by Ivan Lendl.

Connors, totally in control after dropping the first two games, routed Smid 6-3, 6-1, 6-2 in the twilight of a steamy day, a victory made necessary when Lendl outlasted McEnroe in a marathon second set and went on for a 6-4, 10-7, 7-5 triumph over Wimbledon champion.

It was only the third defeat in 16 Davis Cup singles matches for McEnroe, the No. 1 ranked player in the world after a championship at Wimbledon.

This left the quarterfinal series against defending champion Czechoslovakia tied at 1-1 with Stan Smith and Bob Lutz playing in today's doubles for the U.S. against Lendl and Smid. In the reverse singles Sunday, it will be McEnroe against Smid and Connors against Lendl.

Only in the opening set was Connors put to a test, with Smid breaking service in the second and sixth games. But Connors then ran off the next eight games to virtually decide the issue.

In the third set, Connors had a string of 16 points in a row for a 4-1 lead before Smid broke in the sixth game. But Connors broke right back in the seventh and then held service to run out the match.

Still feeling a letdown from his Wimbledon victory last Saturday, McEnroe was able to break service only twice in the opening match, which lasted three hours and 14 minutes. And on each occasion, Lendl got the break back in the following game.

"I wasn't moving or hitting the ball that well," said McEnroe, who displayed his best manners on a steamy afternoon. "I found it difficult coming off grass. I felt all right at the end but I wasn't fresh as a daisy. I feel if I had gotten my game together, there is no way I could lose."

"I wish I didn't have to play this week. The last couple of weeks have worn me out emotionally and physically."

The only touch of controversy occurred in the second set, which wore on for an hour and 46 minutes in searing 91-degree heat, and this time McEnroe was only an interested observer. Lendl appeared to have made the critical break in the 25th game and both players quietly headed for the sidelines.

But the referee overruled the linesman and requested both players return to the court. Lendl already sitting on his bench sipping a drink, steamed at the call but went out and got the break with two service returns. He then held for a 1-1 tiebreak.

Following the initial break against him in the seventh game of the second set, McEnroe held his next five service games with the loss of only two points, and twice he went up 3-0 on Lendl's serve. But he was unable to get the break that would have evened the match.

Green Bay gives Lofton final contract

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — The Green Bay Packers Friday were ready to make what could be their last offer to James Lofton — a contract modification that could pay the receiver $250,000 a year in the last four years of his contract.

The pact would include incentive clauses to boost his earnings but would not deal with the base salary. There would be a substantial bonus for just reporting to camp.

The Packers were sticking to their stance of not writing a new contract, as insisted upon by Lofton and his agent, thus keeping Lofton's base pay of less than $100,000 a year unchanged.

Bob Harlan, corporate assistant to the president, made the offer but would not confirm its details. However, The Milwaukee Journal said with incentive clauses and the reporting bonus, it could reach $250,000 a year.

Wilson, Saints ink long-term contract

VERO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Quarterback Dave Wilson of Illinois signed a long-term contract with the New Orleans Saints.

"It's official," said spokesman Rusty Kasmirsky. "It's a long-term contract, but I don't know the specifics. We agreed to terms the day after the draft, but I think he signed the contract yesterday."

Wilson was expected to show up for the start of training Monday. The Saints abandoned their 1982 first-round NFL draft to snap up Wilson in the supplemental draft earlier this week. He signed the contract in his hometown of Anaheim, Calif.

Haas captures Milwaukee Open lead

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Jay Haas, a veteran who has won just once in the Tour in five years, fired a six-under-par 68 Friday to grab a two-stroke lead at the $250,000 Greater Milwaukee Open.

Haas was at 134, which was 10-under-par for 36 holes on the 7,019-yard Tuckaway Country Club course in suburban Franklin, and said he was surprised he had done so well.

Bunched at eight-under-par were 1978 GMO champion Lee Elder, little-known veteran Tom Stoney and rookies Rod Nuckolls and Thomas Gray.

Two-time GMO champion Dave Stockton, who led after the first day with a seven-even 65, played even-par 72 and was three shots back along with Chi Chi Rodriguez and Mike Smith. Rodriguez had a second-round 69, including five straight birdies.

WBC light heavyweight title fight set

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The World Boxing Council light heavyweight title fight between champion Eddie Mustafa Muhammad and challenger Michael Spinks was approved Friday by the Nevada State Athletic Commission.

The match will be July 18 at the Imperial Palace Hotel on the Las Vegas "strip."

Promoter Sam Glass of Tiffany Promotions in New York said more than 50 rounds of boxing would fill the card, including five preliminary bouts of 10 rounds each.

Spinks, 25, a 1976 gold medal winner, is the brother of former heavyweight champion Mike Spinks. Marvin Johnson, the man who lost the title to Muhammad, is among Spinks' 12 knockout victims.

Muhammad, 29, won the light heavyweight title in March of 1980 by defeating Johnson.

A spokesman for the Imperial Palace Hotel said the championship fight would be nationally televised but blacked out in Las Vegas.

Austin still atop Mayflower Classic

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Debbie Austin, a non-winner on the LPGA tour the last two and a half years, shot a three-under par 69 Friday for a one-stroke lead after two rounds of the $150,000 Mayflower Classic.

Austin had a two-day total of seven-under par 137 at the Country Club of Indianapolis.

Cathy Reynolds, one of the top-15 money winners on the tour this year, shot a six-under par 66 Friday for a two-round total of 133. Reynolds' round was one shot away from the tournament record, set by defending champion Amy Alcott last year on the Harbour Trees course in Noblesville.

Austin and Reynolds were well ahead of the rest of the field. In third place was Beth Daniel, who finished 36 holes at three-under par 141 and tied for fourth place were Louise Bruce Parks, Myra Van Hoise and Jan Stephenson.

Goalby dominates Senior Open event

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (UPI) — Bob Goalby, hoping conservative golf can carry him to his second big payday in a row, turned in his second straight 71 Friday to take a one stroke lead at the $150,000 U.S. Senior Open Golf and Country Club.

But the 678-yard Oakdale Hills Country Club course was still the big winner as it refused for the second straight day to cough up a sub-par round and put more than two thirds of the second round scores at 80 or above for the day.

The only players to match a par of 70 in the chase for the $25,000 first prize by golfers of age 50 or older was George Bayer.

The Detroit resident shot a 70 to tie his 73 Thursday and was in a group of three only one shot off Goalby's two-over pace.

Club pro Bob Stone added a 71 to his 72 in the opener and would have had the lead if he hadn't bogeyed the last two holes.

Art Wall, who started the day tied for second with 71, was even with Bayer for the tournament at the turn but bogeyed the 10th and 15th holes to fall back.

First round leader Lionel Herbert, who own the only other par round of the tournament, shot up to 77 and was five strokes behind at 147 while Littler recovered from an opening 75 to register a 74.

Billy Casper went 73-72 and was tied with Miller Barber, 74-71, only three strokes behind Goalby.

Hearn, Leonard match in jeopardy

PANAMA CITY, Panama (UPI) — The World Boxing Association said Friday that Sugar Ray Leonard and Thomas Hearn may lose their titles if they go ahead with plans for their "dream bout."

WBA President Rodrigo Sanchez said he and World Boxing Council President Jose Suleiman had agreed Thursday to ask their respective lawyers to study the legalities involved in the planned Sept. 16 match in Las Vegas.

Representatives for Leonard, who holds the WBC welterweight crown, and Hearn, who owns the WBA version, have indicated the bout will be a non-title match because it would cost $500,000 to get WBA and WBC approval.

Sanchez said he was surprised by that report because the WBA charges only $1,200 to sanction a fight. He said he did not know how much the WBC charged for its sanction.

Whether their titles will be at stake may be academic in light of the financial gains they will receive. The bout is sure to reap millions for Hearn and Leonard, the two most-talked-about boxers in the world today.

Opening lead: ♠Q

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

North-South had no trouble reaching game on today's hand. North's three heart bid is the Jacoby transfer which shows at least five spades and forces South to bid three spades. South dutifully bid three spades and North converted to three no trump, giving declarer the option of either game contract. Declarer, of course, with only two spades and those four ace (150) tricks quickly passed three no trump.

West automatically opened the heart queen. If spades divide 3-3, South would easily make his game with five spade tricks and five tricks in aces and kings. In the other case, declarer won the opening lead in his hand with the ace, preserving dummy's important heart entry. A 3-3 spade division occurs only about one time in three so declarer thought about ways of improving his line of play.

Finally, it occurred to declarer. At the possible expense of an overtrick, South saw an additional line of play. At trick two he cashed the spade ace and then he played the queen of spades and calmly overtook with North's king. When East's jack fell, it was an easy matter for declarer to force out West's 10 of spades. After West returned a heart to North's king, South cashed dummy's two good spades and made his nine tricks. South only needed four spade tricks to make his game. By overtaking his spade honor, declarer still had the 3-3 spade break going for him—while adding the additional chance of the 10 of jack doubling in East's hand.
