Mock arrest
Being arrested is no laughing matter, but in this case, Wayne Fuchs, being helped into a squad car, got a chuckle out of it. Fuchs was one of several OBI law enforcement students who participated Friday in a mock snuffing spree at a request of store owners in Twin Falls to see how observant store employees are about potential shoplifters.

Jobless rate hits 6-year high

The Baltimore Sun

WASHINGTON — Unemployment jumped sharply last month to 8.4 percent, reaching its highest level in six years.

The figures confirmed that the nation is in the grip of a significant recession.

In the classic pattern of recession, most of the increase came among adult men, largely because of layoffs, figures released Friday by the Labor Department indicate.

Michigan ranked highest in the nation in unemployment, followed by Ohio, Pennsylvania and Illinois.

November's 8.4 percent unemployment, an increase from 8 percent in October, was still below the postwar record of 9 percent. That total came at the peak of the 1974-75 recession, the worst since the Great Depression.

But November's unemployment outlook was grim enough.

The unemployment level for adult men of 7.2 percent has exceeded only during one month since such statistics were begun in 1947. That came in May, 1975, when the figure was 7.3 percent. The November level for jobless women was even higher, rising from 7 percent to 7.3 percent, but below previous highs.

Unemployment among black and other minority workers was unchanged last month, but already was at a record 15.5 percent — more than double the figure for white workers.

Teen-age unemployment reached 21.3 percent, the highest on record.

The number of unemployed workers jumped by half a million last month alone, bringing the total jobless to 9 million.

The broadest of all measures of unemployment, the portion of the entire population holding jobs, reached the lowest level in four years.

Since July, 340,000 have joined the unemployed ranks. But on top of those who lost jobs in the economic slump were another 290,000 people who entered the labor force but couldn't find employment.

President Reagan said Friday it is a "very great tragedy" that millions of Americans are out of work, but he vowed to stick with his austere economic recovery plan.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, (D-Mass.) said the president's program "is producing thousands of layoffs slips just in time for Christmas" and threatens to aggravate already bad economic conditions.

"What we do not need ... is an administration that plays Santa Claus for the wealthy and Scrooge for average families, the needy and the working men and women of America," Kennedy said.

CIA power expansion mild

By Knight-Ridder Newspapers

WASHINGTON — CIA agents got expanded power to collect foreign intelligence from American citizens here and abroad under an executive order signed Friday by President Reagan.

However, the order represented a substantial retreat from earlier drafts that would have authorized the CIA to infiltrate and influence American companies and political organizations through vastly increased covert operations.

Sen. Walter Huddleston of Kentucky, ranking Democrat on the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence and a critic of the earlier proposals, said the president's order was "a vast improvement" and "acceptable overall."

The American Civil Liberties Union agreed that the White House had gone a long way to protect individual rights but not nearly far enough.

ACLU legislative counsel Jerry Beriman put it this way:

"If I'm a law-abiding American corporate executive with information about the economic plans of a foreign country, or if I'm a member of the worldwide anti-nuclear movement, the CIA could seek to get that information through covert means — pretext interviews, informant, bank records, the works."

One part of the president's order allows domestic collection of "significant foreign intelligence" provided that the purpose is not to spy on "the domestic activities" of Americans.

But Beriman said it often is difficult to separate foreign from domestic purposes.

Reagan's order also allows Americans to be shadowed abroad to obtain significant information that cannot reasonably be acquired by other means.

The previous executive order, issued by President Carter in 1976, more severely restricted CIA activities in this country and limited physical surveillance of Americans overseas to those suspected of working for a foreign power.

Civil libertarians also expressed concerns about a section of Reagan's order permitting the CIA to "conduct special activities" approved by the president.

That section, Beriman said, would permit "covert operations" in the United States which could restrict "civil liberties of Americans."

The president's order culminated a long effort to change the restrictive Carter guidelines. Reagan said Friday that approach "emphasizes suspicion and mistrust of our own intelligence efforts" and "can undermine this nation's ability to confront the increasing challenge of espionage and terrorism."

Senate approves largest defense bill

Chicago Sun-Times

WASHINGTON — The Senate has passed the largest appropriations bill in U.S. history — a $208.7 billion military spending measure that includes funding for the B-1 bomber and MX missile.

Concluding five days of debate that saw efforts to kill the B-1 and President Reagan's plan to place MXs in existing silos, senators voted 84-5 Friday to approve the bill.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., called the bill a "historic" defense appropriations bill that "may indeed set the tone and shape the form of defense in this country for decades to come."

Voting against the measure were four Democrats, William Proxmire (Wis.), Paul F. Tsongas (Mass.), Claiborne Pell (R.I.) and Carl Levin (Mich.). Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon was the lone Republican voting against.

Neither the House nor the Senate has ever passed such a massive appropriations bill, a bested-up measure which the administration has insisted is necessary to improve the nation's sagging defenses.

The House already has approved a $197.4 billion defense appropriations bill for the year that began Oct. 1. Members of the House and Senate must now work out differences and approve a compromise before it goes to Reagan for his signature.

Essentially, both bills give Reagan nearly everything he wanted, including the first installment on his $180 billion six-year plan to modernize U.S. strategic nuclear forces.

If Reagan were disappointed at all with the plan approved by the Senate, it would be with a strong signal to the White House that nearly the entire Senate disapproves of his interim plan to place MX missiles in existing Minuteman and Titan silos.

The senators approved 90-4 an amendment designed to keep the Pentagon from spending research funds on the silo basing approach.

The bill approved Friday, after some 40 hours of occasionally vitriolic debate and 26 roll-call votes, includes $2.43 billion for the B-1, a bomber its critics say is too expensive and soon to be obsolete.

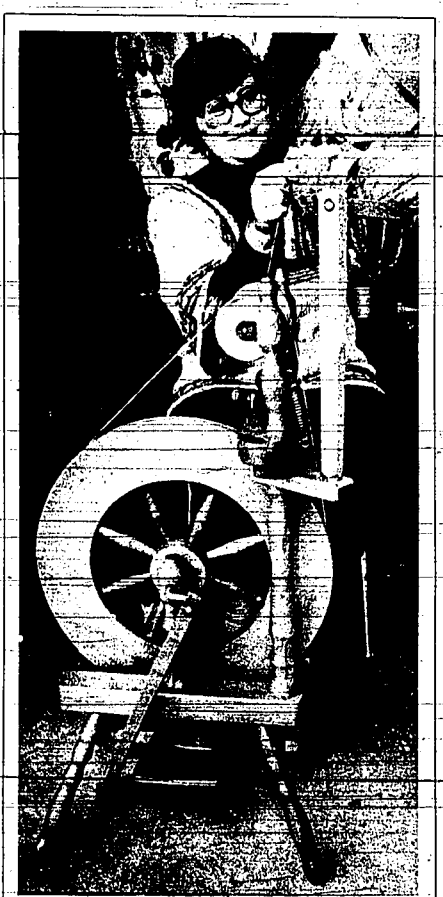

Reagan intends to build 100 of the bombers to replace aging B-52s until the radar-eluding Stealth bomber is ready to be deployed, probably in the 1990s.

The bill also includes $2 billion for 100 MXs.

The House version provides roughly the same amounts for the B-1 and MX, and Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, floor manager of the Senate bill, said he envisioned prompt agreement by conferees on the differences between the two versions.

The Senate bill provides money for F-18, F-16, and F-15 "warplanes, one new 'aircraft' carrier, nuclear attack submarines, cruisers and guided missile frigates, Army helicopter and more than 1,300 combat vehicles, including 720 M-1 tanks at a cost of $1.4 billion.

It also carries $228 million for reactivation of the battleships New Jersey and Iowa.

Local gas prices a big attraction

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls gas wars are attracting innocent and happy bystanders from throughout the Magic Valley.

"I turned around and came back," said Kevin Huff of Halley as he filled the tank on his 1974 Chevrolet. He was leaving Twin Falls Friday afternoon on his way to Halley when he realized the bargain he had just passed up.

A gallon of self-service-regular gas, selling in the Twin Falls war zones for $1.239, sells for about $1.389 in the Kelchum-Sun Valley area, he said.

The gas war broke out last month. Prices dropped from about $1.339, in small steps at first, then in larger gulps as new participants joined the fray. Most managers at the warring stations say they will match the lowest price any of their competitors offers for as long as they offer it.

As long as they do, the result will be a bargain for drivers in Twin Falls.

"I buy all my gas here," said a driver from Rupert filling up at a Blue Lakes Boulevard station. A gallon of regular in Rupert sells for about $1.339, he said.

"I think it's fantastic," said Wendell, driver of the same station. "Like anybody else I'm on a tight budget."

Jim Powers, a member of the group Super Glide playing at the Littletree Inn, is from Indiana. Friday afternoon he was putting unleaded gas into a station wagon with Michigan license plates. "This is a pretty good price," he said, about two cents a gallon less than the best prices he has seen in other areas where he has traveled recently.

Several Twin Falls drivers also expressed their pleasure with the gas war. "I love it," said Rob Hackett. "I hope it lasts 'til Christmas," said another.

But others shared the reaction of John Flight as he finished pumping the relatively inexpensive gas into his tank. "I didn't really notice to tell you the truth. It's got to go in."

Alleged Libyan hit squad wins attention from agents

WASHINGTON — Federal agents are scouring the nation for trained commandos who may have been hired by Libya to kill top U.S. officials.

Several options that include assassinating President Reagan by shooting down Air Force One are feared, sources said Friday.

Reagan Friday acknowledged to reporters that he was "obviously concerned" about the intelligence reports and ordered special protection for his top aides.

Orders for beefed-up security were issued last week for such Cabinet officers as Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger.

The FBI, Secret Service, Customs officers and others have been mobilized for the operation, which includes questioning Americans with ties to President Gaddafi or his strongman leader, Moammar Khadafi.

The State Department has asked the New York City police department to intensify its intelligence gathering. City police were asked to check informants about members of a hit squad slipping into this country. Vice President George Bush visits the city next Friday.

A State Department source said U.S. intelligence experts have been told of one plot involving a five-member hit team, made up of combat veterans, who would target the president.

Under one of their options, the commandos would fire a heat-seeking surface-to-air missile at Air Force One while it was either landing or taking off.

Such an attack most likely would occur away from Washington since Andrews Air Force Base, Md., where the fleet of presidential craft is kept, is considered a secure area.

In explaining the feasibility of such an attack, one expert noted that the Soviet-made SAM missile is a shoulder-fired, heat-seeking weapon that is highly effective against aircraft moving at the slow speeds required for landings and takeoffs.

The weapon is a favorite of terrorists, he noted, adding that it also is highly effective in downing helicopters — which poses a serious risk to Marine One, the presidential chopper.

A White House aide acknowledged that the potential danger is having an impact on presidential activity. Reagan made only one trip away from the White House last week, and that one was not announced in advance.

"When asked if safety concerns were curtailing appearances, the aide said the situation was 'moving in that direction.'

Stouffer's fire trial changed

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (UPI) — Prosecutors asked a judge Friday to set a trial date for a former busboy accused of arson in the Stouffer's Inn blaze that killed 26 people exactly one year ago.

The defense said it wasn't ready and the case was adjourned to January.

Defense lawyer Howard Dryer also said he would seek a dismissal next week on grounds the evidence that led to the indictment of Luis Marin, a 28-year-old native of Guatemala, "was insufficient, improper and inadequate."

He maintains the prosecution has not been able to demonstrate that an accelerant was used intentionally to ignite the blaze at the Harrison, N.Y., hotel's conference center last Dec. 4.

Westchester County Judge Carmine Marasco adjourned the case until Jan. 15.

U.S., Soviets silent after second session

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — U.S. and Soviet arms negotiators, maintaining a news blackout to avoid a propaganda battle, held their second working session Friday on reducing nuclear weapons in Europe.

A terse statement issued afterward said only that the meeting at the Soviet diplomatic mission lasted two hours and 25 minutes — 15 minutes shorter than the first full plenary session Tuesday.

Western diplomats said the two sides exchanged initial responses to the opening proposals at Friday's meeting.

While no details of the talks were forthcoming, Eugene V. Rostow, the Reagan administration's chief arms control official, said in Rome that the negotiations had gotten off to a good start but would be "long and difficult."

Rostow, director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, said the talks "have begun very well" but added, "there are no grounds at present for optimism or pessimism."

"We still have to see what the position of the Soviets is. The talks will be long and difficult," he told reporters after a meeting with Italian Foreign Minister Emilio Colombo.

In Moscow, Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev met the defense ministers of Romania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Poland, Hungary and the Soviet Union, and told them to seek "new successes in strengthening the defense capacity of the Warsaw treaty member states," the Tass news agency said.

The Warsaw Pact ministers were holding their fourth day of meetings in Moscow.

Allen ends talk-show defense tour

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard Allen inexplicably called off his traveling defense show Friday.

He complained the news media "grossly exceeded" the bounds of propriety in pursuing the case that forced him to take leave from his White House job.

Allen, who has been taking his case to interview programs all week, canceled what had been a tentatively scheduled appearance at the National Press Club on Tuesday.

"The media blitz is over," said an Allen spokesman, who was not immediately available a short time later to elaborate further.

The Press Club scheduling office said Allen's appearance had only been a tentative booking and had not been formally announced.

Allen, interviewed Friday on the CBS "Morning" program by reporter Robert Shackne and network media critic Jeff Greenfield, said, "I think, if nothing else, this case raises legitimate questions about the limits that constrain the press, the self-imposed limits if you will, in the pursuit of the story. I say that some of these limits have been grossly exceeded."

It was the latest in a series of appearances Allen has made since he announced last Sunday he was taking administrative leave from his post as President Reagan's national security adviser.

He is remaining on leave, with pay, pending completion of an investigation into his receipt of a $1,000 honorarium and two watches from a Japanese reporter who interviewed Nancy Reagan and errors on his financial disclosure statement.

The Justice Department said earlier this week it found no reason to appoint a special prosecutor to review Allen's acceptance of the cash, which he said he intended to turn over to the proper office but forgot about in the crush of events the day after Reagan's inauguration.

His receipt of the watches and his financial disclosure statement remain under investigation.

Allen complained of reporters and camera crews attempting to put questions to his 6-year-old daughter on her way to school, among other things.

Allen agreed that reporters can pick and choose where they put questions to a public figure.

"But," he said, "what happens generally is that my remarks wind up on your cutting room floor and the cutting room floor of other networks. So my choice has been to have formats such as this where my views could be presented in an unedited way."

Allen said he wanted responses from the public, from reporters and news executives to the questions he raised "about the wisdom, about the rectitude, about the morality of the things that were done" in covering his story.

"What is the boundary line?" Greenfield asked Shackne.

Shackne said reporters were at Allen's house because, for whatever reasons, Allen chose not to be available elsewhere.

Seven teenagers sentenced on manslaughter convictions

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — A judge imposed stiff jail terms Friday on seven teenagers convicted of involuntary manslaughter in the drowning of two youths following a party last summer.

"Anyone who causes a violent or reckless act that results in death is going to be held accountable for it," said Berkshire Superior Court Judge William F. Simons before imposing two concurrent 2 1/2 year jail terms on each of the seven defendants.

A jury found the seven guilty last month in the June 5 deaths of Barry F. Griffin, 19, and Richard W. Retzel, 19, whose bodies were found in a 1971 Cadillac submerged in Laurel Lake in 1980.

The sentences meant the seven could be paroled 15 months after beginning their terms. Simons stayed the sentences until Jan. 5 pending appeals. Charges of assault and battery were filed without a finding.

Defense attorney Frank F. Antonucci termed the decision "Islamic justice" because of its harshness.

Simons said all the defendants except one — Joseph Burke — had records of "violence, involvement with the law, hawling and school discipline."

One of the attorneys mentioned the word "punks." "I don't like the word, but it could be applied here," Simons said.

Despite high unemployment

Reagan sticks with economic recovery plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan said Friday it is a "very great tragedy" that millions of Americans are out of work, but he vowed to stick with his austere economic recovery plan.

The unemployment rate reached a six-year high of 8.4 percent in November, translating to more than 9 million persons were jobless.

"I would be alarmed if there were only half that many," Reagan told reporters in the Oval Office, insisting he does not take unemployment lightly. "I think it's a very great tragedy for our country and for the people involved."

The president and his spokesmen argue the unpleasant figures are the product of inherited policies and the jobless rate will eventually be turned around under the Reagan program.

"It is the result of the past policies that have resulted in inflation," said Larry Speakes, White House deputy press secretary.

The president met for 90 minutes later in the morning with his economic advisory team to discuss the status of the economy and the tentative plans for the 1982 fiscal year.

Speakes said the meeting resulted in "a determination by the president to keep on track, to stick with the program, to stick with the plan. And that's what we intend to do."

The president made his comments as he signed into law his first major appropriations measure — a $12.5 billion bill covering energy and water. It includes funds for the controversial Clinch River breeder reactor and the Tennessee Tombigbee Waterway.

Reagan said the public-works measure was "a model... to reduce the budget deficit" and "provides nearly three-fourths of the additional savings for 1982 that I requested."

He also sent a clear signal to Capitol Hill he was ready to sign a so-called continuing resolution to fund government operations for the rest of the fiscal 1982 year — if it sticks close to a compromise developed by Republican leaders.

The GOP plan would provide Reagan with another $4 billion in requested budget cuts, but first must receive both House and Senate approval before a Dec. 15 deadline. Reagan vetoed an earlier compromise in November because he said it was too expensive.

"I'm very pleased with the progress that is being made," Reagan told White House correspondents.

In other White House developments:

- Kenneth Duberstein was appointed presidential assistant for legislative affairs, succeeding his resigning boss, Max Friedersdorf, who becomes consul general to Bermuda.
- The president met with representatives of U.S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel and the American Iron and Steel Institute for broad discussions on the steel industry.
- High-ranking administration officials asked news organizations to refrain from reporting details of presidential security measures.

At least two die in Virginia mine collapse

BERGCOO, W.Va. (UPI) — Rescuers found two men dead Friday and worked with pick and shovel 350 feet underground to reach a third man still trapped by tons of rock in a central West Virginia coalmine.

Earlier, two other miners trapped by the rock fall were rescued.

The cave-in at the Elk River Sewell Coal Co. mine was one of two serious mining accidents that occurred Thursday night in the state. An acetylene tank explosion at a mine in southern West Virginia killed four men.

The three men trapped in the Elk River mine were identified as Robert Bennett, 34; Doyle Gillis, 36, and Donald Arbogast.

Rescuers first found Bennett's body and brought it to the surface. Several hours later they found Gillis' body, leaving Arbogast still inside the mine.

"All the (rescue) work is being done by hand, using axes and picks," said State Police Sgt. Fred Dickinson.

He said the miners were working in a space less than 4 feet high when the roof collapsed. Two men, Donzil Culp, 27, and Larry Clevenger, 18, were reached by rescuers.

Clevenger was brought out first. Culp was in the mine for several hours and given medical treatment before rescuers brought him out.

Clevenger said the roof "just gave way" and tons of rock fell. He and Culp ducked under a piece of machinery that protected them.

Officials estimated the length of the cave-in at 35 feet.

The rock fall occurred at 9:30 p.m. Thursday, but rescuers did not establish contact with the survivors for seven hours.

Three other men had been working in the area of the collapse but were not trapped, Carl Hill, the father of one of those three men, said "he just moved four or five rocks and he was out of there."

In the southern West Virginia accident, near Bon, an acetylene tank blew up in a space where men were working, 300 feet underground. Three of them were seriously burned: Daniel Brock, 21; Bruce Grant, 30; and William Persinger, 31. Darrell Francis sustained less serious burns.

Five others were treated for smoke inhalation.

Frank Legg, a state mine inspector, said when the tank blew "there was a tremor."

The cave-in was the worst coal mine accident in the state since an underground gas explosion killed five men at the Ferrell No. 17 Mine in southern West Virginia Nov. 7, 1980.

What's what

There really is a creature known as a bookworm. Its scientific name: anobium pertinax.

Q. Why was Edgar Allan Poe kicked out of West Point? A. He refused to go to church. On Sundays he wanted to write.

During Biblical times newborn babies were rubbed down with salt.

If the pearl is a bit yellow, its oyster lived in especially salty water.

Johnny Carson says he wants his epitaph to read: "I'll be right back."

Greeting cards now account for half of all the personal mail.

UNDERSTATEMENTS

New on the market is a line of women's underwear imprinted with feminist slogans. It's called "Understatements."

Enough flying lessons to get a private pilot's license will cost you about $2,000 now.

"You meet that skunk in daylight? Look out! Skunks roam at night, mostly. Daytime exploration is not normal behavior for them. So ask yourself, Why is that skunk behaving abnormally? One possible reason: rabies."

Only Prince of Wales ever to graduate from college is Prince Charles.

Said George Gallup, Jr.: "I could prove God statistically."

HORSES

Current United States horse population is 3 million. If farmers were to revert back to horses as their only power source, they'd need 61 million. Not likely they'll revert back, true. But there are people, you know, who think we'll all revert back, someday.

Q. What are 'The Remarkables'? A. Snow-capped mountains on the South Island of New Zealand.

Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when increased activity is likely to occur. It's wise not to act too hastily. Consider all phases of a new plan before making a decision. Think along more constructive lines.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Instead of going off on a worthless fun spree, concentrate on your personal aims. Strive for greater rapport with friends.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Allow time for analyzing your position and what should be done to improve it. Taking risks now could be dangerous.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A day to study the data that can help you get ahead in career activities. Steer clear of one who wants to waste your time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make sure you understand new business methods introduced in your line of endeavor. Improve your environment.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Ideal day to meet with congenials and exchange ideas. Study a new outlet that could be profitable in the future.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Look over your surroundings and make plans for improvements. Take a new treatment to improve your health.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle chores early in the day and then join friends at the amusements that are mutually enjoyable. Think logically.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are in a mood to argue and could easily annoy others, so do something constructive instead. Sidestep a troublemaker.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Much care in motion is important now or you could get into trouble easily. Shop with care and count the cost.

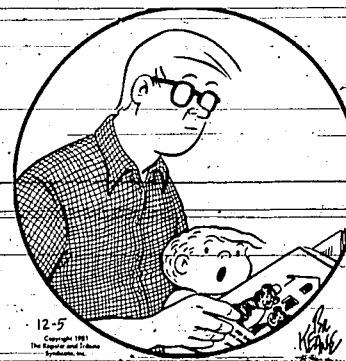

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make a point to study new ways and means of increasing your income. A business expert can be helpful with suggestions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Try not to be too forceful with others in order to gain your aims. Use your charm in entertaining others for best results.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) It is wise to handle your obligations efficiently now instead of trying to get out of them. Pay more attention to details.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have unusual ideas or a strong desire to put them in operation. Be sure to give as fine an education as you can afford and the good in this chart will manifest itself early and properly.

FIGHTING BACK

Richard Allen says the news media "grossly exceeded" the bounds of propriety in pursuing the case that forced him to take leave from his job as President Reagan's national security adviser. He said on the CBS-TV "Morning" program, "This case raises legitimate questions about the limits that constrain the press in the pursuit of the story. I say that some of these limits have been grossly exceeded." Allen complained of reporters and camera crews "camping out on our lawn day and night, frightening the children, eating on my front lawn, causing me to step into a box of food garbage, attempting to put questions to our 6-year-old child on her way to school, climbing a tree to look in the windows to see if I might be there."

Hearst reveals her link to robbery, bombings

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)

Patricia Hearst has revealed that she drove a getaway car during a bank robbery in which a woman was murdered while Hearst was a fugitive in 1975 living with a terrorist band.

In her new book, "Every Secret Thing," she also revealed that she took part in another robbery and helped plant four pipe bombs in an attempt to kill police officers.

The book was released to selected bookstores this week.

Ms. Hearst, now Mrs. Bernard Shaw and mother of a 6-month-old daughter, was kidnapped Feb. 4, 1974, in Berkeley, Calif., by a tiny terrorist band called the Symbionese Liberation Army. Ten weeks later, after saying she had joined her captors, she helped them rob a San Francisco bank branch.

She was arrested in September 1975 in San Francisco and served a prison term for armed bank robbery. Her sentence was commuted by President Carter on Feb. 1, 1979.

One of the mysteries about Ms. Hearst's fugitive years was what she was doing during a so-called "missing year" before her arrest.

Ms. Hearst was believed to have given evidence to authorities in connection with the fatal bank robbery, but it was never announced whether she was granted immunity in return for her cooperation.

There had been speculation that she was associated with a group thought to have committed two Sacramento, Calif., area bank robberies. But until her revelations in the book, the extent of her involvement had not been known.

Ms. Hearst, now 37, and living quietly in a San Francisco suburb, said she was forced to commit the first bank robbery by her kidnapers and that she only pretended to go along out of fear for her life.

But after six members of the SLA died in a fire and shootout with police in Los Angeles, she said she felt her only way she could stay alive was to stay with William and Emily Harris, the only remaining SLA members, and others who subsequently joined them.

Authorities, she said, "would shoot me on sight. I firmly believed that."

"Once I had been a kidnap victim, but now I was a hunted criminal."

On Feb. 25, 1975, she wrote, she waited in a car nearby while others in her fugitive band robbed a branch of the Guild Savings and Loan Association in Sacramento, Calif.

Two months later, on April 21, she drove a getaway car from the scene of a bank robbery in the Sacramento suburb of Carmichael. During the robbery a 42-year-old mother of four was killed. Ms. Hearst said Emily Harris shot her by accident.

Ms. Hearst wrote that she and Wendy Yoshimura, another fugitive who was arrested with her, did not want to take part in the Crocker robbery.

"Wendy and I tried to beg off, but Teko (Harris) said we were needed, and that was that," she said.

During the inter-summer of 1976, before she was arrested, Ms. Hearst said she helped plant pipe bombs at three locations in the San Francisco area which destroyed two police cars in a series of attacks intended to kill law enforcement officers.

"Police were our enemy and they should be our prime target," she said in her book. "When we were killed enough, the police would retaliate by cracking down on the oppressed and the masses would rise up to fight them."

Garage workers outraged over death of mascot cat

DETROIT (UPI) — The fur is flying over the death of a cat that had been adopted as a mascot by workers at the Ford Street garage of Greyhound Bus Lines.

Some of them are so outraged, they're talking about a wildcat strike.

The pregnant, tiger-striped stray feline — named "Cat" — was found dead last month, and the mechanics and maintenance men who had adopted her — say they suspect a supervisor was responsible.

Steven Cooke, a maintenance man, said he saw a foreman "carrying the cat" by the back of its neck and walking to the end of the building. "One 15 minutes later, Cat was found dead."

The foreman has denied the allegation but the workers were outraged.

"These people are up in arms over this thing," said Russ Nolan, their union representative. "People were talking wildcat strike."

Nolan, president of United Auto Workers Local 656, said 56 workers signed a petition demanding that the foreman be transferred.

Greyhound sent a regional manager from Chicago to investigate Cat's death but the company has decided to take no further action because Cat's killer can't be determined for certain.

The company also issued instructions forbidding mascots and requiring that any future stray animals be taken to the Michigan Humane Society.

But the workers are still mad.

"It was an inhumane act and we want the company to get to the bottom of it," Nolan said.

"We haven't stopped working, but we resent having to work for a man who could do this kind of thing," said mechanic Don Pomaville. "She was a good little of Kitty."

Libya a threat to Habib

JERUSALEM (UPI) — U.S. Middle East envoy Philip Habib met Israeli leaders Friday to discuss the Lebanese crisis and his effort to avert a Syrian-Israeli confrontation over it.

The veteran American diplomat refused to disclose any details of his talks, which came as security sources in Beirut said they had uncovered a Libyan plot to kill Habib when he returned to the Lebanese capital.

Habib was to leave for Saudi Arabia Saturday, and most likely fly from there to Beirut on Monday on his latest shuttle mission to defuse the Lebanese crisis. Details of his schedule were kept secret for security reasons.

Habib conferred with Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir for nearly two hours and later held a 30-minute meeting with Defense Minister Ariel Sharon.

Officials said both meetings focused on Lebanon, including Israeli concerns about the introduction of heavy weapons in the south by Palestinian forces and the presence of Syrian anti-aircraft missiles in the central part of the country.

Israel has threatened to remove the missiles by force if Syria does not withdraw them.

During the session with Sharon, a note was slipped to Habib informing him of the alleged Libyan assassination plot. A U.S. Embassy official declined comment on the report.

Neither Habib nor Sharon made any statement to reporters after their meeting. But the U.S. envoy earlier described his talk with Shamir as "very good," adding he expected to return to Israel during his current shuttle to meet with Prime Minister Menachem Begin "at a time that is to be arranged."

Solidarity takes arguments to TV

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — The Polish government made a significant concession to the Solidarity labor union Friday by granting the union time to air its grievances on national television.

A close aide to union chief Lech Walesa and a spokesman for Solidarity at Polish Television said a program featuring three members of the union executive discussing economic policy would be aired tonight.

The Warsaw Solidarity information bulletin had earlier said the program, which was taped Friday afternoon, would be broadcast Friday evening.

Solidarity Warsaw branch spokesman Janusz Onyszkiewicz said the government appeared willing also to give Solidarity television time for hour-long programs on at least three other issues.

Access to the mass media has long been a Solidarity demand, although union sources said programs such as the one to be broadcast Saturday were not the Solidarity-produced programs the union wants.

Authorities have long resisted Solidarity's demand for access to the state-run television. But the government of Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski was reportedly considering the move in a move to head off a 24-hour general strike the union has threatened to call.

Haig blames Nicaragua for subversion

CASTRIES, St. Lucia (UPI) — Secretary of State Alexander Haig charged Friday Nicaragua had become the headquarters of the Cuban and Soviet-backed subversion of Central America.

He said the United States would do "whatever is necessary" to stop it.

With Nicaragua's foreign minister seated only a few feet away, Haig told a meeting of the Organization of American States that Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government was seeking to build the largest army in Central America—and outfit it with MIG jetfighters and Soviet tanks.

"The other nations of Central America must also be asking about the meaning of these military activities. They fear—and we must all fear—that the militarization of Nicaragua is but a prelude to a widening war in Central America," Haig said.

"For our part," he told the audience gathered in a steamy conference room, "the United States is prepared to join others in doing whatever is prudent and necessary to prevent any country in Central America from becoming the platform of terror and war in the region."

"The countries of the region should know that the United States will help them resist illegal intervention from their neighbors or from the outside," he said.

Haig said there are 1,500 Cuban military advisers in Nicaragua and called on "judges" for the Sandinistas to charge—as they have—that the presence of 31 American military advisers in El Salvador constituted U.S. interference.

Nicaraguan Foreign Minister Miguel Descoie, who met Haig on Wednesday and sat quietly through the secretary's tough speech, later rejected the charges.

Haig, whose speech was greeted with moderate applause, also called on the OAS to support the government of El Salvador in its war against leftist guerrillas.

If to pursue Walker Center plan

Gooding County officials await St. Benedict's decision

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

GOODING — In the wake of a public hearing that aired strong sentiments both for and against an interim plan involving Gooding Memorial Hospital, county officials are trying to determine what to do next.

Bob Spackman, chairman of the hospital board, said that representatives of the hospital that owns the Walker Center for Alcoholism and Drug Abuse will now return to their board to discuss the comments voiced at Thursday night's hearing.

He said they will notify the Gooding hospital board early this week whether they will continue to pursue an agreement to temporarily house recovering alcoholics at the hospital. A special board meeting may then be called, Spackman said.

Walker Center, which is owned by St. Benedict's Hospital of Ogden, Utah, is planning to build a new facility next to the hospital. However, construction is not scheduled to start until July.

Under an interim plan proposed by St. Benedict's, to Walker

Center patients would be housed temporarily in four rooms and a solarium in a portion of the hospital's north wing.

The plan is opposed strenuously by Gooding doctors Richard Short, A.W. Loeschner and James McLean. Retired doctor Alvin Klingler also has expressed his opposition. Dr. Doug Smith, who serves as Walker Center's physician, would not comment on the issue.

At the public hearing Thursday, supporters of the plan questioned whether misconceptions about alcoholism have overdramatized the effect the plan might have.

Other residents stated repeatedly that they support Walker Center and do not oppose alcoholism treatment. However, they questioned whether the best hospital could house Walker patients without detriment to other patients.

Although the doctors voiced support for the permanent facility, St. Benedict's officials said that the concerns voiced about the interim plan raise the question whether Walker Center's final location really was acceptable to the community.

"We don't want to do something the community is obviously against," said Bob Bednarek, the administrator of St. Benedict's alcohol and drug program.

Since the permanent facility would be attached to two wings of the hospital, Carl Bergstrom, the Walker Center director, said he suggested the interim plan to save the center from the high cost of heating and maintaining its present location, a state-owned, former tuberculosis hospital.

During Thursday's hearing, these questions on the plan emerged:

- Can the hospital logistically house Walker patients?
- St. Benedict's proposes that eight beds in four rooms be used for Walker patients; two more would be set up in the solarium. Bathroom facilities would be installed. This section would be separated from the rest of the hospital by an installed door.
- The solarium now provides office space for the hospital's director of nursing and dietitian, and sleeping quarters for emergency-room doctors.
- Two general hospital beds would be used for detoxification, but these persons would be considered hospital patients, not Walker patients.

DR. RICHARD SHORT opposes center's plan

Kellwood plant is still up for sale

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — There has been no offer to purchase the vacant Kellwood Co. hosiery plant just outside Twin Falls, according to the real-estate agent representing the company.

"The chances that the preliminary talks he has had with a prospective buyer will lead to a sale are 'shaky,'" said Boise real-estate agent William Hale.

In fact, he is preparing to ask Kellwood to cut its current asking price of $3.1 million to help spur interest in the building.

But Hale's pessimism about this particular buyer puts him at odds with a Kellwood spokesman, who expressed optimism about the progress of the negotiations.

Sharon Bateman, public-relations manager for Kellwood in St. Louis, said the company had made an offer to the prospective buyer.

Of course, she said, high interest rates and the poor state of the economy may make it difficult for the buyer to finance the sale.

The Kellwood hosiery plant has been vacant since the summer of 1980. It formerly employed about 30 people and had an annual payroll of about $3.4 million.

The difference of opinion about the building's sale prospects arose, according to Hale, "because they don't know what's going on, and I do." He said Bateman spoke without consulting him or the people he reports to at Kellwood's headquarters.

Hale has handled all negotiations between the prospective buyer and Kellwood. The only agreements have been oral, he said. "And you know what the late Sam Goldwyn said about oral contracts — they're not worth the paper they're written on."

Apparently, the prospective buyer, who came on the scene within the last month, suggested a price it could pay for the building. Kellwood agreed it would sell it for that price and asked the prospect to make a deposit. In return, Kellwood would give the buyer 60 days to complete the sale at the agreed price.

"The prospect has never responded to that offer, according to sources connected with the sale."

Hopefully, the buyer is trying to purchase the facility for a plant to manufacture and building materials.

Two weeks ago, Hale said the chances of a sale were only about 25 percent on a scale of 10. Friday, he said the chances had dropped to about a half.

How's your health?

State's survey seeks to find out if Idahoans are living right

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — If you received a light-blue questionnaire in the mail last week, it means you're one of 1,600 Idahoans being asked to help gauge the state's health needs.

The state Department of Health and Welfare is conducting a study of Idahoans' health status and health habits to help the state target potential problem areas.

The questionnaire, mailed to randomly selected individuals in Idaho's eight largest cities, asks about eating, drinking, smoking and exercise habits, medical history and responses to stress.

Answers will be kept confidential, and the information gathered will be used only for statistical purposes.

Harry Fong, the state's risk-reduction coordinator, said that similar surveys will be done by all 50 states in an effort to develop local resources for health programs in the face of decreasing federal funds.

As a letter from Gov. John Evans, which accompanies the questionnaire, says, "There is a growing realization that we as individuals have to assume a greater responsibility for our health."

"Most of today's most pressing health problems are related to excesses — of smoking, drinking, faulty nutrition, overuse of medications, fast driving and relentless pressure to achieve," the letter states.

Fong said that the information gathered by the survey may indicate if certain eating habits are related to heart disease in Idahoans. Businessmen may be interested in the responses about stress and how it affects job performance, he said.

The questionnaire also purports to disseminate information as well as obtain it. "It provides such tidbits of knowledge as: 'Stress is normal, inevitable and a part of life but controllable through preventive measures.'"

And: "People who exercise regularly report they feel better, have more energy and often require less sleep."

Fong calls such statements "non-threatening and commonsensical," and they are meant "to try to educate the public. The survey is telling you something back."

The survey is required by the federal government. It will be funded by a five-year grant from the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga. The cost is $2,300, which accounts for development fees, postage, printing and computer time, according to Fong.

The DHW composed the questions, with guidance from the Center for Disease Control, and it is distributing the survey. Boise State University will compile the results.

Fong said he hoped that 45 percent of the questionnaires will be completed and mailed back. He noted that Utah, the only other state to conduct the survey so far, had an amazing 90-percent return rate.

He encouraged all those who received the survey to complete it and mail it before Christmas. Addressed, stamped envelopes are provided with each questionnaire.

The survey's data will be compiled into a report by early February, Fong said.

Twins Falls residents are supporting KAID

TWIN FALLS — Fund-raising efforts for public television station KAID yielded more individual contributions in Twin Falls than in Boise during the first day of the station's "Winterfest."

Spokeswoman Margie Boytan said that volunteers, working out of a studio on the College of Southern Idaho campus, recorded $2,260 of the $6,700 pledged Thursday throughout the station's southwestern Idaho coverage area.

While in Twin Falls, station personnel originated two segments of "The Reporters," a public-affairs program styled after the popular "MacNeil-Lehrer Report," which precedes 10 on KAID.

The Thursday segment featured Magic Valley legislators Tom Stivers, Lawrence Knigge and Ralph Olmstead, all Republican House members.

Knigge, and state Sen. Laird Noh also agreed to take shifts on the air to seek monetary pledges between programs.

Spot broadcasts seeking donations will continue through Sunday, along with special programs and movies purchased for "Winterfest." Twin Falls civic groups, students and educators are donating time to answer the telephone pledges.

KAID is seen on Channel 4 on Cablevision and by rural viewers on Channel 13 via signal translators on Jerome Butte.

Young 'soldiers' brave obstacle course to learn motor skills

By GLEN WARCHOL
Times-News writer

"We're going to walk like turkeys today," he says, following an attention-getting blast of his whistle. "Turkey walk! Let's go, turkeys! Get your tail feathers down!"

The three-foot troopers waddle quickly to their next station, the obstacle course. After weeks of training, the kindergartners "know" the one bicycle-tires-and-hurdles course well, and they quickly hop and stagger-step their way to the end of the mat.

No, it isn't boot camp for tiny Marines. The five training stations of balance beams, hurdles and bouncing boards is the Twin Falls School District's program of "organized motor learning." — And the kids, and Remaley, an elementary physical education supervisor, seem to be enjoying every minute of it.

The program, which is winding up this week, is based on the idea that kids who can skip, hop and jump well, will be able to read, write and learn well, also.

Geared for first-graders and kindergartners, the training sessions are an amalgamation of several perceptual-motor programs that were used in Twin Falls schools. About eight years ago the program was shelved, destined to collect dust until Remaley resurrected and revamped it this fall.

The program shares some of the characteristics of a road show, in the way it travels from one elementary school to another, with Remaley as the ringmaster. Wednesday, the show was at Morningside Elementary.

Besides the developing of motor skills that will carry over into learning, the program has several secondary goals, Remaley says. It enhances the children's physical fitness and teaches direction, which is basically the concept of left- and right-handedness.

Connie Feldhusen, a kindergarten teacher at Morningside, feels the program did wonders for her class.

"I've seen definite improvement," she said, "in writing, following directions, and things like tying shoes."

But one of the most critical areas of development in young children that is enhanced by the program is self-concept.

Self-concept in young children has two meanings. The first is the basic physical concept of knowing their bodies — how many fingers, how many legs and what is right, left, up and down.

Although it sounds absurdly simple, early childhood experts believe that without a good understanding, a child will be hobbled in future learning.

The program, however, has had good success in also enhancing the second type of self-concept: the child's sense of value as a human being.

"We make sure that everyone gets some success," says Remaley. "Everyone can do it, although we really had to work on it with one or two of them."

During the training session he nods toward a four-foot-wide balance beam.

"He's one of the ones who thinks he can't do it," Remaley says.

"Go ahead," he says to the boy. "You can do it. Close your eyes. Walk very slowly." Go slow now.

In the confusing whirl of a score of children attempting similar tasks throughout the room, the blond-haired child walks the 15-foot balance beam. It's a painfully shaky walk, but he makes it.

Just as Remaley knew he would.

Wallace may run again

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Former segregationist Gov. George Wallace, on the political sidelines for nearly three years, is expected to make another bid for governor in 1982.

"I think he will have the aid of influential blacks, friends said Thursday.

"He is nearer to making a decision than he was a few weeks ago," said Wallace's chief aide, Elvin Stanton. "I'm going to assume he's going to be involved until he says he is not."

Reagans print Christmas cards

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President and Mrs. Reagan's first White House Christmas card is a reproduction of a Jamie Wyeth painting entitled "Christmas Eve at the White House."

The first lady's press office, which issued a press release and photograph of the card, said the Reagans will mail 60,000 of them around Dec. 8 to world leaders, friends and political supporters.

The card was printed at cost by Hallmark and will be paid for by the Republican National Committee. There was no immediate estimate of the cost.

Station owner can carry gun

OAK PARK, Ill. (UPI) — Prosecutors Thursday gave the go-ahead for gas station owner Don Bennett to pack the .45-caliber pistol he carries on his belt at the gas pumps to deter robbers.

Bennett, 38, has been operating B and D Arco just across the city limits from Chicago's rough West Side for 12 years. In an area where the crime rate has been steadily rising, he has been robbed twice and burglarized once in the last five years.

For the last year, he and four of his employees have been packing pistols at the gas pump.

A spokesman for the Cook County state's attorney's office said Thursday Bennett has the right to carry the pistol on his property, but whether his employees can carry weapons still is questionable.

$1 million for cancer cure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Oil billionaire Armand Hammer offered $1 million Thursday to the scientist who finds a cancer cure as comprehensive as the Salk vaccine that virtually eliminated polio.

Hammer, 83, said he wants to see a cure in his lifetime and that a breakthrough may be closer than presently believed.

The award is part of $2 million being set aside for awards by the Armand Hammer Foundation. Hammer said he hopes it will spur research "just as the Nobel Prize spurs people in all areas."

Mandel's sentence commuted

LINTHICUM, Md. (UPI) — Former Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel, smiling and shaking hands like a campaigner, returned to his home state Friday after being released from federal prison at the order of President Reagan.

Mandel, 61, who served 19 months on racketeering charges, was dressed in corduroy workclothes as he met reporters and a few former colleagues at Baltimore-Washington International Airport.

"It looks like old times," said Mandel as he and his wife Jeanne, who clutched the former governor's arm, stepped off a flight from Atlanta.

Mandel was released from the prison at Eglin Air Force Base near Pensacola, Fla., earlier in the day after President Reagan cut short by five months his two-year sentence on mail fraud and racketeering charges.

Carrots cut lung cancer risk

CHICAGO (UPI) — Eating a lot of carrots may significantly reduce the risk of lung cancer.

But researchers who came to that conclusion say it would be foolish to use it as an excuse for smoking cigarettes.

The researchers, headed by Dr. Richard Shekelle of Chicago's Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital, recently concluded a 20-year study of 2,000 middle-aged men. Findings were published in the most recent issue of Lancet, a leading British medical journal.

The study found high levels of beta-carotene, a natural ingredient in carrots and leafy green vegetables, may significantly reduce the risk of lung cancer in even longtime cigarette smokers.

"We were able to show, particularly among men who had smoked cigarettes for a number of years, that men with low levels of carotene had higher risks than the ones with high levels of carotene in the diet," Shekelle said.

"We're not saying that if you eat enough carrots you can smoke with impunity," he said.

The study examined 2,000 male workers at the Western Electric Co. Chicago Hawthorne works, which manufactures telephone equipment, over a 20-year period beginning in 1957. Shekelle said it originally began as a study of heart attack victims.

He said the lung cancer angle was explored after a recent study by a researcher at Britain's Oxford University suggested beta-carotene, a precursor of vitamin A, might be an anti-cancer agent.

"We were able to test this hypothesis in our data because we had extensive dietary data on these men," Shekelle said. "We now have a 20-year followup."

Shekelle said the study dealt only with the relationship between beta-carotene and lung cancer.

"There have been other studies suggesting that it may also be related to helping prevent certain other kinds of cancers, but this was not clearly evident in our study," he said.

He said other research is needed to determine if longtime smokers with low levels of beta-carotene may be helped by ingesting large quantities of the substance.

The National Cancer Institute reports 19 of 21 epidemiological studies over the years have indicated diets high in beta-carotene contribute to at least a 40 percent risk reduction in developing some kinds of cancer.

AT&T considers charge changes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American Telephone & Telegraph Co. offered a plan to boost most long distance charges — but — give customers breaks, including a larger "evening" discount.

Under the changes sent to the Federal Communications Commission for review, callers making direct-dialed interstate calls — about 83 percent of all interstate calls — would pay an average of about 1.3 percent more, based on time of day, average distance and length of the call.

The proposal also includes a 4.1 percent rate hike for Wide Area Telecommunications Service, except for Hawaii and Alaska, and a 1.6 percent increase for most interstate private line services, used chiefly by businesses.

The changes, he said, are to meet an FCC order that AT&T equalize its rate of return for the three classes of long distance service while reaching the overall 12.75 percent rate of return the commission approved in April.

AT&T, which provides most of the nation's telephone service through its Bell System, proposed the changes take effect next March 3.

Private school checks sought

LEWISTON (UPI) — The Legislature should enact a law to allow education officials to evaluate academic programs taught at private schools in Idaho, says the state superintendent of public instruction.

Jerry Evans unveiled his 1982 legislative proposals Friday at a meeting of the Idaho Education Board.

He also announced the appointment of Dr. Gerald Wallace, former dean of the college of education at Boise State University, as chairman of a "commission on excellence" to examine the state public school system, and said some readjustments had been made in the recommended education budget for fiscal year 1983.

Under current law, Evans said local school boards are allowed to evaluate programs taught by parents to their children at home to ensure the subject matter is comparable to that available in public classrooms.

But he said there is no authorization for similar evaluation of private school curricula. His proposal would allow the local boards to evaluate private school programs the same way they do home teaching.

Although Evans said he expects "a lot of controversy" over the recommendation, he said it was made "simply in the interests of children." He also noted the proposal was not an attack on the quality of private instruction, noting that "some of our fine schools in this state are private, parochial schools."

Other proposed legislation would allow state funds to be used to pay local tuition for children enrolled in an institution or shelter home within a district, and would require a 30-day residency before someone could vote in school district elections.

The superintendent said the "commission on excellence" would include parents, educators and business and industry representatives. They will examine ways the school program might be improved, he said.

And Evans told the state board its fiscal year 1983 funding request for public schools had been readjusted to reduce the general accounting portion by $6.5 million.

Although the total budget request — $379.5 million from all sources — remains the same under the revision, the general accounting portion was decreased to reflect higher estimates on endowment earnings and completion of district tax certifications, he said.

Idaho's jobless rate declines in November

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's unemployment rate dipped two-tenths percent to 7.9 percent last month, but that still was the highest November jobless rate recorded in 21 years, state officials said Friday.

About 53,500 people in Idaho's civilian labor force were without work in November, while 391,800 retained their jobs, the Idaho Employment Department said.

Department Director Scott McDonald said the absence of a steep drop from the 8.1 percent unemployment figure for October was attributed to a rise in retail trade employment as stores headed into the Christmas shopping season.

McDonald said employment decreased in all categories except the retail trade in November, pointing to normal seasonal unemployment, but also to sluggishness in the Idaho economy.

He said the 7.9 rate for November was the highest recorded for that month since the department changed the way it computed the jobless rate in 1960. The November unemployment figure was 1.3 percent above the 6.6 percent calculated for November 1980, according to the state agency.

Many workers were laid off last month because of poor weather conditions, the completion of the harvest season, and the end of temporary summer jobs, the director said. November also had a normal lag between the summer and winter tourist seasons.

Lifting predator control ban wins Farm Bureau support

POCATELLO (UPI) — The Idaho Farm Bureau Federation Friday supported efforts by the Interior Department to reinstate several methods of predator control banned by the federal government.

Delegates to the federation's 42nd annual convention said coyotes and other predators have become a large enough problem in Idaho that new measures of control must be allowed.

The department's Fish and Wildlife Service last month overturned a 1959 restriction on the practice of denning — gassing or shooting coyote pups in their dens — and recommended that 10 of the 26 restrictions on M-44s be lifted. M-44s are spring-loaded devices planted in carrion which shoot a pellet of sodium cyanide into the mouth of the animal which lugs at the bait.

On Dec. 1, the Environmental Protection Agency also announced it would hold formal hearings on a proposal to allow the use of 1080 to control predators. The toxic chemical was banned by EPA in 1972 on the grounds it was an indiscriminate killer of wildlife and might pose a threat to human health.

"The Idaho Woolgrowers and Idaho Cattlemen's associations, and animal damage control services, have already supported this measure in efforts to control predators and rodents on Idaho's public grazing lands," the convention resolution said. "We support present efforts by the Department of Interior to reinstate formerly accepted methods of predator and rodent control."

Farm Bureau members also voted during the last day of the convention to support a program aimed at gaining more cooperation between landholders and sportsmen who wish to hunt and fish on private acreage.

— Idaho Fish and Game Director Jerry Conley told the convention the program is already showing signs of success, but he said more work was needed to improve the relationship between the two groups.

Convention spokesman Bill Whitton said resolutions were also adopted which support the state water plan, but oppose new amendments to the legislative action on the grounds they might stop development of hydroelectric projects and new power generation.

"And he said delegates were concerned that the plan fails to address the "very important" subject of ground water supplies for culinary and irrigation uses.

Symms emission proposal scored

BOISE (UPI) — An Ada Planning Association official has rapped a proposal by Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, to allow automobiles to emit more than twice as much carbon monoxide as now permitted.

Bob Minter, AFA environmental director, said Ada County would not likely be able to clean up its air as planned by 1987 if the amendment proposed by Symms becomes law.

Minter said the association's plan, adopted earlier this fall, relies heavily on reducing emissions from new cars. Minter said the county should be able to meet a 1987 federal deadline if the present standard of 3.4 grams of carbon monoxide per mile on new cars is maintained. The Symms bill will relax the standard to seven grams per mile.

CALDWELL (UPI) — Two Nampa brothers were sentenced to life in prison Friday for the murder and robbery of local grocer Rudy Salek.

Canyon County Prosecutor Dennis Goff said Kelly and David Wilson would not be eligible for parole for 31 years — only two years less than the 33-year prison terms he had requested.

Third District Judge Edward Lodge imposed fixed life sentences for the brothers on the first-degree murder charge, Goff said. They also received indeterminate life sentences to run concurrently on the robbery charge — and three years indeterminate to run consecutively for use of a firearm while committing a felony.

Kelly Wilson, 20, and David Wilson, 25, had pleaded guilty to the charges on Aug. 27 in a plea-bargain agreement with Goff. The prosecutor had agreed not to recommend the death penalty in exchange for the guilty pleas.

During a mitigation hearing Thursday, the brothers described the Feb. 16 robbery of Nampa's Lone Star Market and the shooting of Salek in the basement of his store.

They said Salek was accidentally shot to death during an impulsive, whiskey-inspired robbery — and that they did not intend to kill anyone when they needed money and decided to hold up the store.

Explain dismissal, woman asks

BOISE (UPI) — An eastern Idaho woman sued Seventh District Magistrate Robert C. Brower Friday, contending she deserves an explanation for his dismissal of her claim against the owner of a cow that caused a traffic accident.

Betha Parsons, 55, Blackfoot, sought $50,000 in damages from the judge in a lawsuit filed in U.S. District Court, claiming her constitutional right to an appeal was denied when Brower ruled that rancher K.O. Harris owed her nothing in connection with the 1979 accident.

Ms. Parsons' suit said she brought the action against Harris and another rancher, Grandon Arbon, in Small Claims Court for Blaine County in July after Harris refused to pay for damage to her vehicle.

She said she was driving along an icy eastern Idaho roadway the night of Nov. 24, 1979, when she hit a cow Harris was herding along the highway — allegedly without a legal right to do so. Ms. Parsons' vehicle was damaged in the accident, the suit said, but the cow was not harmed.

Harris and his insurance company agreed to pay half of Ms. Parsons' damages, the lawsuit said, but would not pay the full amount because Harris was unable to determine if the cow that caused the accident belonged to him or Arbon.

Because she wanted to obtain full compensation, Ms. Parsons said she took the case to small claims court, assuming if the judge believed Harris' contention, he then would order Arbon and Harris to split the damages.

Former Idaho official dies in Oregon truck accident

SWEET HOME, Ore. (UPI) — A logging truck rollover has claimed the life of a former official of the Idaho State Hospital South in Blackfoot who was convicted two years ago of stealing more than $100,000 in state-owned pharmaceuticals.

The Linn County Sheriff's Office said Franchot S. Jensen, 46, Idaho Falls, Idaho, was killed Thursday night when the truck he was driving left Highway 20 about 12 miles east of Sweet Home.

Jensen was alone in the vehicle when it left the road at a set of curves and tipped over, deputies said.

The victim was convicted in April, 1979, of the illegal sale and embezzlement of more than $100,000 in drugs while he was chief of the hospital's pharmacy.

He was sentenced to three years in prison and fined $31,000, but was released from jail after serving a portion of his term. Jensen was working as a professional truck driver at the time of the mishap.

Scores flee Ogden blaze

OGDEN, Utah (UPI) — Firefighters used ladders to rescue people trapped on balconies by a general alarm blaze which raced through a three-story section of the Canyon Cove apartment complex early Friday.

Ogden Fire Chief Lawrence Todd said the 18-unit building was fully occupied but all the residents were safely evacuated.

The blaze broke out at about 4:40 a.m. It quickly demolished six apartments and damaged most of the others in the building, Todd said.

Todd said firefighters, who wore off-shoots, were called in so the department's entire force and all its equipment could be dispatched to the burning apartments, in the mouth of Ogden Canyon.

"It was a pretty spectacular fire," he said. "When we got here, the building's roof was pretty well collapsed in flames."

The chief said the fire apparently started on the second floor. He said some residents ran through halls knocking on doors and kicking some doors down in order to alert their sleeping neighbors to the danger.

In some cases, people were forced onto balconies by smoke and flames. "The whole sky was orange from the flames," said one woman who, along with her husband, waited on a balcony for rescue by firemen with ladders.

Todd said the fire was brought under control at about 6 a.m. Fire officials said flames and smoke caused some damage to buildings adjacent to the section which burned.

A dollar estimate of damage was not immediately available. The cause of the fire was under investigation.

Young woman survives attack, forest ordeal

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A young woman left for dead after being gang-raped, stabbed and twice shoved over a 200-foot embankment was recovering Friday from a 36-hour ordeal she survived by licking moisture from leaves and using dirt to protect herself from freezing temperatures.

Three security guards in the Angeles National Forest were arrested in the attack on the girl and the slaying of her teenage boyfriend.

The unidentified 18-year-old woman was in stable condition with multiple stab wounds suffered during the severe beating. Detectives called her "a born survivor."

"I'm too tough for them to get me," the girl told her mother. "I'm going to make it."

"She was scared but she was determined to make it," the mother said. "She's a tough cookie."

Sheriff's deputies said Clifton Shedelbauer, 23, Panorama City, and Steven Romero, 21, Sylmar, were arrested late Thursday after an intensive manhunt. The third suspect, Michael James Dominik, 21, was arrested Wednesday. All were charged with murder, attempted murder, rape, robbery and kidnapping.

The three were employed as security guards at an ITT facility and regularly patrolled the area where the attack took place last Saturday night north of downtown Los Angeles.

It was the young woman's description of the attackers that led officers to the suspects. The attackers all wore guard uniforms and badges.

The body of her slain companion, Daniel Harris, 16, was found in his car at the bottom of the embankment where the attackers had pushed the auto after robbing Harris and beating him to death.

Forecasts of eruptions difficult, scientist says

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Scientists do not have enough data to predict the next eruptions of volcanoes that pose the most destructive potential, an internationally known geologist said Thursday.

"The volcanoes that present the greatest hazard to us are those that erupt least frequently and for which we have the least data," Alexander R. McBirney told 230 scientists attending a volcanic hazards workshop.

Without more information, McBirney said, scientists cannot predict when the next eruptions will occur.

Shasta and Lassen Peak in Northern California fit McBirney's description of such volcanoes. Lassen Peak in the Cascades mountain range last erupted in 1915.

Sponsored by the state Department of Conservation, the two-day seminar is expected to provide officials from the Office of Emergency Service with information to develop a response plan for a volcanic eruption in California.

But McBirney said scientists will first have to find a way to predict when the "really destructive eruptions" will occur.

"The answer may lie in studying — like an autopsy on a corpse — the most deeply eroded and dissected volcanic peaks that will never erupt again," McBirney said. The University of Oregon geology professor has studied volcanic activity in Central America, the Galapagos Islands, the Oregon Cascades and other parts of the world.

Avalanche traps mobile home on road

VALDEZ, Alaska (UPI) — A mobile home carrying from five to seven passengers was trapped in an avalanche on the Richardson Highway, 39 miles north of Valdez, Alaska, State Patrol troopers said Friday.

Names of the victims and their conditions were unknown.

At least two other avalanches rumbled in the vicinity as mountain rescue personnel gingerly tried to reach the vehicle, trapped in the Thompson Pass-Keystone Canyon area.

The mobile home was caught in cascading snow about 7 p.m. Thursday. The state patrol said authorities did not expect to reach the stricken vehicle until late in the day.

BUENA PARK, Calif. (UPI) — Walter Knott, who founded Knott's Berry Farm, the nation's oldest theme amusement park, died Thursday of Parkinson's disease. He was 91.

Private graveside services are planned for Monday.

Knott's Berry Farm started out in 1940 as a Western ghost town, built by Knott as a diversion for guests who had to wait in long lines outside his wife's chicken dinner restaurant.

The park eventually outgrew the Knotts' 10-acre farm. Today it is a 150-acre facility that attracts more than 5.5 million guests a year to the amusement rides, historical buildings, restaurants and shows.

Knott also helped develop the boysenberry in 1932 when he obtained six hybrid berry plants from a local farmer, Rudolph Boysen, who had crossed loganberry, blackberry and raspberry plants.

Knott christened the new fruit the "boysenberry," and it became an important cash crop for California farmers. He also popularized the thru rhubarb pie and pioneered methods of quick-freezing fruits and vegetables. The park's food division now markets preserves, sauces and relishes throughout the country.

Knott, who died at his mobile home on the park grounds, was born in San Bernardino, Calif., in 1890.

In his twenties, he moved to Buena Park and leased 20 acres of land where he and his wife, Cordella, grew berries to sell from a roadside stand. When the Depression hit, Mrs. Knott began serving chicken dinners in the family dining room. In 1934, visitors paid 45 cents for a full-course meal.

By 1940, the dinners were so popular that customers would wait in lines up to two or three hours each day before sitting down to the homestyle chicken dinners.

Knott decided the people in line should be amused while they waited, and began to buy and move buildings from old Western towns for his customers' entertainment. He added amusements each year, including the world's first upside-down roller coaster, a model Spanish village and dancing shows.

Knott is survived by his son, Russell; two daughters—Martha—Knott—Virginia Bender and Tony Oliphant, plus nine grandchildren and 22 grandchildren. His wife died in 1974.

Lower prime rate hinted by trends

NEW YORK (UPI) — The "one-two punch" — the Federal Reserve lowering its discount rate and the sharply higher unemployment figures for November — foreshadows further declines in the prime and other interest rates, analysts said Friday.

caught in a profits squeeze when rates turned around sharply in mid-1980, have been "once burned, twice shy" in lowering their charges to corporate customers.
