

Group wants to tax INEL researchers

By BRUCE HAMMOND

Aquifer, the sponsor of the Initiative drive, which is seeking 29,000 signatures to place the issue on the November ballot.

loss of the exemption would not drive these businesses to other states, like Washington, where no tax is levied on the research contractors.

he said. "INEL will not close-down if its contractors must pay sales tax, nor will any programs be reduced or eliminated for that reason alone."

Redistricting plan formed

BOISE (UPI) — A legislative reapportionment plan was put together by a special House committee Tuesday, but the panel's Democratic member warned the proposal would meet stiff opposition from the minority party.

Legislative aides were to check their calculations overnight and have the proposal in bill form by this afternoon for possible introduction in the House.

Compared to the Senate bill passed last summer by the Legislature and vetoed by Gov. John Evans, the new bill would change the boundaries for five of Idaho's 35 legislative districts. Rep. James Stotcheff, D-Sandpoint, said changes from the dead Senate bill were minor.

"I'm afraid that will put us right back where we started," Stotcheff told the other committee members. Republican Reps. Vard Chalmers of Albion and John Sessions of Driggs. "We really didn't make that many changes."

He predicted Democratic legislators from districts 33, 34 and 35 would fight the plan, which adjusts their districts and districts 27 and 32.

Alleged gerrymandering in District 35 was the reason Evans cited when he vetoed the first reapportionment bill in July.

The committee's refusal to accept the recommendations of Democratic Sens. Ron Twiligar of Boise and Ron Belletsbacher of Oangeville for a five of Idaho's 35 legislative districts. Rep. James Stotcheff said.

The panel also declined to incorporate a proposal by District 9 Rep. Jim Riggins, R-New Meadows, to avoid throwing him into District 8, which has three incumbent Democrats.

Batt offers bill to aid housing

BOISE — Lt. Gov. Phil Batt said Tuesday he will recommend legislation that would provide "fresh investment money" to Idaho's housing industry.

"The housing industry is central to generating more jobs in Idaho," Batt said. "Home building has virtually stopped; Realtors are going out of business; the lumbering and building-materials suppliers are dying of the vine."

"I think I can draft a bill to focus the use of pension funds in Idaho, for Idaho, and at the same time, protect their safety and earning power," he said. "If we can allow the flow of this money out of state and earmark just a quarter of it for investment in Idaho, it will open up jobs in the forest-product industries, give the construction trades a shot in the arm and Realtors a new lease on life."

The lieutenant governor qualified himself, however, saying that such legislation must contain investment guidelines that allow the administrators of the fund to seek returns "reasonably near" those now obtained through other practices.

Batt said his first concern is for maintaining the integrity and rate of return of the pension funds.

He criticized Gov. John Evans' recently announced plan to create a state lending agency. "It might require a constitutional amendment and therefore, not be in place for a year or two. We need action now."

Constitutional amendments must be approved by at least a two-thirds majority in a general election.

Batt cited the national trend toward the use of pension and insurance funds in real-estate and mortgage lending — a practice advocated by President Ronald Reagan.

Senator blasts 'union torch'

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. William Moore, R-Hayden Lake, blasted out-of-state labor officials Tuesday for putting a "union torch" to Idaho's mining industry through their intervention into attempts to save Bunker Hill Co. from closure.

He told the Senate that Pittsburgh-based officials of the United Steelworkers of America have meddled with the operation of the union local which voted Sunday on a proposed contract under which a group of investors would purchase Bunker Hill from Gulf Resources & Chemical Co., Houston.

If the national union officials are able to shoot down the proposed agreement, "one of our major industries... will have been put to the union torch by men who will fly back to Pittsburgh, where their jobs will still be waiting, and forget that Bunker Hill ever existed," Moore said.

Moore also attacked the Legislature for failing to pass a right-to-work bill — and Gov. John Evans for saying he would probably veto such a bill if it ever reached his desk.

Moore said a right-to-work law "would allow individual Bunker Hill workers to leave the eastern-dominated union if that's what it took to save their jobs."

Secretary pay issue resolved

In other legislative action Tuesday:

A week-long controversy in the Senate over legislative secretarial pay ended with a decision by the minority Democrats to drop their protest. After a mid-day caucus, Democratic Leader Ron Twiligar of Boise told the Senate the Democrats were letting the pay resolution pass without opposition because they wanted to preserve harmony between the parties.

The House State Affairs Committee swiftly approved the introduction of bills to establish penalties for threats against public officials and to give the Law Enforcement Department explicit authorization to take steps to protect the lives of the governor, his immediate relatives and state legislators.

BOISE — Taking the research companies working at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory to provide money for a nuclear monitoring program is the goal of an initiative drive launched Tuesday.

The target of the drive is the state sales-tax exemption granted to private contractors — like Exxon, Westinghouse and EG&G, that do research, development and processing of nuclear fuels at the federal complex.

"This tax exemption is a direct subsidy of these commercial researchers by the people of Idaho," said Janice Berndt of the Snake River Alliance.

The sales-tax exemption applies to equipment and materials the companies use in research.

"All other private contractors in Idaho pay such a use tax," Berndt said.

Several groups have joined together to form the Coalition for a Clean

Conservation League. Concern that wastes from the INEL could be polluting the Snake River aquifer, which empties into the Snake River primarily between Twin Falls and Bliss, is the center of the initiative drive.

By removing the contractors' tax exemption the State Tax Commission estimated last year that $8 to $14 million in new revenue would be generated. This estimate was offered when both the governor and several Democratic legislators sought funding for an INEL monitoring program.

The aquifer coalition is asking that the sales tax exemption be dropped, and that $250,000 of the generated funds be allocated to an INEL discharge monitoring program. That supporters of the proposal say "The loss of the exemption would not drive these businesses to other states, like Washington, where no tax is levied on the research contractors."

"The tax exemption should probably be dropped anyway, and we're simply asking that a small amount of the money be spent on monitoring INEL," Berndt said.

During the last two years, Gov. John Evans has unsuccessfully called for a comprehensive monitoring system at INEL. However, no legislation from the governor this issue is expected to be introduced this session.

Pat Ford, the Idaho Conservation League director, says his group is actively supporting the initiative for three reasons.

"First, the state of Idaho needs more revenue to adequately fund environmental and environmental-health functions of state government," Ford said. "Environmental programs are probably not the only victim of this lack of revenue, but we believe they are the biggest victim."

"Second, the contractors at INEL have no need of such an exemption,"

he said. "INEL will not close-down if its contractors must pay sales tax, nor will any programs be reduced or eliminated for that reason alone."

"Third, Idaho needs a comprehensive monitoring program to keep track of what is occurring to the land, air and water at and near the INEL site."

Monitoring by the federal government has not been adequate, according to the sponsors of the initiative.

"A state program would not eliminate the need for federal monitoring; it would give Idahoans some assurance that Idaho has necessary information and control of operations at INEL," Ford said.

"Radioactive contamination of the environment is a real and serious threat," he said. "Idaho must assure itself (that what does occur at INEL is within acceptable limits."

Members of the coalition say they will be circulating petitions in the Magic Valley this winter and spring in an effort to obtain the necessary number of signatures.

Lawmakers oppose auditors

BOISE (UPI) — Legislators balked at the idea of approving more auditors for the Revenue and Taxation Department Tuesday.

Lawmakers said they've earmarked money to hire additional staff for years and the funds always seem to be spent for other purposes.

State Tax Commissioner Larry Looney told the Legislature's budget-setting committee that his agency needs $84,000 for 30 more tax auditors, who could bring in at least another $3.7 million in fiscal year 1983 by going after tax evaders and cheaters.

The agency had more than $439,400 left over from the past fiscal year — and used about $200,000 of that sum to boost its tax auditing program, Looney said, and left another $200,000 in the bank.

But officials didn't use the extra cash to hire additional auditors, he said, because they would need more legislative appropriations to keep the staff on board after the carry-over money ran out.

"I know we're probably going to get beaten around the head and shoulders for this, but we wanted to try to do what we thought was the responsible thing to do" with the carry-over cash, Looney told the committee. "We want to work with this committee as much as possible... We don't want to put auditors on staff if you decide you're not going to fund any of them."

What's what

Q. In the days of the pistol duels, weren't most fought by men over women?
A. No, sir, personal insults prompted most. And most were bloodless. The men in many cases agreed beforehand to follow certain standards which prohibited the aiming of weapons and the firing of more than one shot each. This was not to say most were "fixed" in fear. Rather, it was a way in which a brave man who'd delivered an insult could say, in effect, "Look, I didn't intend it to be this serious. I don't want to kill you because of it, and I don't expect you to kill me. You decide." In some of these subtle situations, it was possible on the field of honor for a man to lose his honor by aiming to kill.

CHARITY

"In charity, there is no excess," said Sir Francis Bacon, who, clearly, never answered his own telephone.

Q. What causes sinkholes?
A. Limestone caverns a hundred feet or more underground ordinarily are filled with enough water to equalize the pressure against their inner walls. When the water drains out of them, they collapse, and so does the earth above them.

Claim is 10 professional boxers die every year from ring injuries.

Q. Where'd the tomato come from?
A. Same place the potato came from. The Peru-Ecuador-Bolivia area of the Andes.

Here's a lady who says she improved the appearance of her beloved Boston fern almost miraculously six months ago when she started taking it into the shower with her every Sunday morning.

Iceland is another place where the women keep their own surnames after marriage.

Q. What's the difference between an A.B. degree and a B.A.?
A. No difference, except A.B. is short for the Latin "Artium Baccalaureus" and B.A. is short for the English "Bachelor of Arts." But they mean the same.

Crash survivor full of love

DORAVILLE, Ga. (UPI) — Kelly Duncan, the only crew member to survive the crash of an Air Florida jet in Washington's Potomac River, said Tuesday all she remembered of her helicopter rescue was grabbing a lifeline and holding on until she reached land.

The 23-year-old Miss Duncan, who called a news conference to "get it all out of the way," brushed tears from her eyes before stepping in front of cameras and microphones but remained composed thereafter.

Leaning on crutches, Miss Duncan hobbled onto the front porch of her stepfather's home in a suburb of Atlanta to talk to reporters.

Members of her family stood protectively around her. Her stepfather, Bob Kleinschmidt, cautioned reporters not to ask detailed questions about the crash or "do anything to upset her."

"I feel fine, but I'm cold," the pretty six-haired stewardess said. "I don't ever want to be cold again."

Kleinschmidt said her body temperature was so low when she reached the hospital that "they couldn't even register it."

"There's so much love inside of me now," she said. "I really don't think they're all that conservative."

Miss Duncan said she had not decided whether she would return to work at Air Florida.

"I'm just going to relax. I don't really have any plans right now," she said. "I still think flying is the safest way to go."

Miss Duncan refused to answer any specific questions about the crash last Wednesday which killed 74 of the 79 people aboard the plane, but her stepfather told briefly of her rescue.

"She hit the water and she came up. She didn't go down a second time," he said. "She said she grabbed the rope and held on for dear life until she got to shore."

Miss Duncan broke her left leg, her right arm and suffered a severe laceration on her right thigh in the crash. "Every inch of her is bruised except her face," her stepfather said.

Her brother, Kevin Duncan, 25, said she remembered little of the rescue.

"She said she has no recollection of anyone passing her the rope," he said in response to questions about another passenger.—Arland Williams—who according to some reports handed her the rope to other wreck victims before he drowned.

Conservative leader gives Reagan C-plus

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard Viguerie, conservative fundraiser once called godfather of the New Right, said Tuesday President Reagan deserves no better than C-plus for his first year in office.

If Reagan does not respond to criticism from the right, Viguerie said on NBC's "Today" show, the conservative movement could sustain setbacks in the November congressional elections.

"I'm concerned, quite frankly, that the conservatives could suffer because the administration is perceived as being a conservative administration and I really don't think they're all that conservative," he said.

Viguerie has invited other leading conservatives to assemble in Washington Thursday and assess what he called a generally disappointing first year of the Reagan presidency.

"The president and his administration have done some good things and we're going to talk about that. But also missed a lot of opportunities. And I'd say... I'd give the president about a C-plus at this point," he said.

He said Reagan was given a mandate to carry his conservative philosophy to Washington, but has filled his administration with "too many people from previous failed presidencies" and with "people from Wall Street, big business, corporate lawyers, who really do not understand politics" and who do not share his ideology.

Von Bulow jury selected to decide fate of socialite

SEE TOM NETHERTON In concert

SAT. JANUARY 30 College of Southern Idaho 8 p.m. $6.00 Res. $3.00 Gen. $3.00 Senior Citizens TO BENEFIT Christian Radio of Magic Valley Concert underwritten in part by: Winton International Inc. Skyview Hotel/Manor Reynolds Funeral Chapel Jensen Jewelers of Idaho Mandarin House

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — A jury of seven men and five women was seated Tuesday to decide the fate of socialite Claus von Bulow, charged with twice trying to murder his rich and beautiful wife with insulin injections.

The panel of housewives and blue and white-collar workers were tapped after 36 days of intense questioning involving 35 prospects.

The dozen jurors were seated before the noon recess, subject to the final preliminary challenge allowed both the state and defense. Neither side used the last of their six challenges, however, and the rest of the day's session left-for-selection of four alternate jurors.

Danish born von Bulow, 55, is charged with trying to "kill" his socialite wife, Martha "Sunny" von Auerberg von Bulow, 50, during both the 1978 and 1980 Christmas holidays.

The Pittsburgh utilities heiress remains in a New York hospital in an irreversible coma which the state alleges was caused by von Bulow's second attack in their Newport Millionaire's Row mansion, Clarendon Court.

Von Bulow's weapon, prosecutors allege, was a needle filled with insulin and plunged into Mrs. von Bulow's vein — an action which would worsen her chronic blood sugar condition.

Defense lawyers will try to prove Mrs. von Bulow triggered the coma herself by a steady diet of sweets, alcohol and drugs.

The state's circumstantial case will be buttressed by two possible motives: Mrs. von Bulow's fortune, estimated between $35 million to $100 million; and von Bulow's love affair with another woman, New York socialite Alexandra Lates.

Of the alternate jurors 3 were seated, probably Wednesday, Judge Thomas H. Needham will consider two key defense motions: one involving a black travel bag taken from von Bulow's closet and containing syringes, drugs and a needle laced with insulin, the other concerning a lengthy statement of von Bulow made to state police in April, before being charged, without an attorney present.

Before opening arguments are presented, the jury will tour the 29-room ocean-side mansion the von Bulows had shared.

Court throws out death sentence for youth

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled 5-4 Tuesday courts must give great weight to a defendant's "mental and emotional background" when imposing the death sentence on a minor.

The decision threw out the death sentence of Monty Lee Eddings, who was a 16-year-old runaway when he killed an Oklahoma state trooper with a sawed-off shotgun.

The case marked Justice Sandra Day O'Connor's most important vote since coming to the high court, since her concurrence created the majority lineup.

The ruling gives juveniles significant additional protection from the death penalty, but does not rule it out.

Justice Lewis Powell, writing for the majority, said the justices were not reaching the question of whether the Eighth Amendment's ban against cruel and unusual punishment forbids execution of a defendant 16 or under at the time of the crime.

But Powell stressed that under guidelines established in previous high court rulings, judges and juries must consider "the characteristics of the person who committed the crime."

In capital punishment cases involving juveniles, courts must weigh "any relevant mitigating fact" that stems from a defendant's age and personal history, he said.

"Youth is more than a chronological fact," Powell wrote. "It is a time and condition of life when a person may be most susceptible to influence and to psychological damage."

Joining Powell in the majority were Justices Thurgood Marshall and John Paul Stevens, with William Brennan and Mrs. O'Connor concurring.

The dissenters were Chief Justice Warren Burger and Justices Byron White, Harry Blackmun and William Rehnquist.

Burger argued the majority was requiring "that any potentially mitigating evidence be described as a mitigating factor — regardless of its weight."

Mrs. O'Connor filed a lengthy concurrence, while Brennan's was a one-sentence declaration of his belief that the death penalty is fully unconstitutional. Those circumstances suggest Mrs. O'Connor was the critical "swing" vote on the issue that so narrowly divided the court.

In a second decision delivered Tuesday, the court affirmed on a 4-4 vote a lower court ruling that a $1,000 spending limit on independent committees in support of a presidential candidate is a violation of free speech guarantees.

Justice O'Connor did not participate in the case. The decision — viewed as a major setback for the Federal Election Commission and the citizens' lobby Common Cause — opens the door to massive private spending in the 1984 race for the White House.

In the death penalty case, the high court directed the lower court to reconsider Eddings' sentence in light of the new ruling.

Explaining the decision, Powell wrote, "Our history is replete with laws and judicial recognition that minors, especially in their earlier years, generally are less mature and responsible than adults."

Oklahoma Senate votes down ERA

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — The Oklahoma Senate Tuesday rejected the Equal Rights Amendment for the second time in less than a week, killing the question as a Senate resolution this year.

"If I had the opportunity, I would do it all over again," said Senate President Pro Tempore Marvin York, D-Okla. City, who led the unsuccessful fight to have Oklahoma become the 36th of 38 states needed to make the amendment part of the U.S. Constitution.

Time runs out June 30 in the decade-long battle to ratify the ERA, which states: "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

Justice O'Connor did not participate in the case. The decision — viewed as a major setback for the Federal Election Commission and the citizens' lobby Common Cause — opens the door to massive private spending in the 1984 race for the White House.

Nuke plants hit

Ecologists fire rockets at France plant

GRENOBLE, France (UPI) — Self-styled "peace-loving ecologists" fired five rockets from a Soviet launcher Tuesday at a nuclear plant under construction.

The rockets were an apparent protest against the socialist government's pledge to continue France's nuclear power program.

Police said three rockets fired across the Rhone River hit the main 250-foot tower that will house the 1,200-megawatt Super-Phenix fast-breeder reactor and two others hit a crane at the site in southeastern France about 40 miles south of Lyon.

Damage was light but officials of the Nersa industrial consortium building the $1.5-billion plant said the rockets narrowly missed a group of 20 night-shift workers inside the tower. No radioactive material was at the site.

"This attack is intolerable," said Maurice Barberger, head of the construction work. "One of the shells passed through an opening in the structure and exploded 20 meters (22 yards) from one of the employees."

NRC wants $550,000 fine for Pilgrim

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission Tuesday hit Boston Edison Co. with a proposed $550,000 fine — the highest civil penalty it has sought to date — for alleged safety violations at the Pilgrim atomic plant.

The staff also gave the utility 30 days to organize an independent probe of its own management structure and a systematic review of the status of all safety-related activities at the reactor.

Boston Edison has until Feb. 18 to formally respond to the staff allegation or pay the fine.

The Pilgrim reactor, licensed in 1972, is a 665-megawatt boiling water reactor located near Plymouth, Mass.

The commission staff blamed violations — ranging from substandard equipment and risky plant operation to "a material false statement" — to the commission — on shoddy management, and directed the utility to recommend improvements.

"We view the failures in the management and control of safety-related activities at the Pilgrim facility as very serious matters requiring extraordinary regulatory actions to assure that you will put forth a set of actions that will correct the problems described in this letter," Richard DeYoung, director of the Office of Inspection and Enforcement, wrote the firm.

Mothball collapse effect may spread

SEATTLE (UPI)—A former director of the Washington Public Power Supply System says the failure of a plan to save two partially built nuclear reactors may have serious consequences for the supply system's other three projects.

Edward E. Carlson, one of three "outside" directors who resigned from the WPPSS executive board last week in the wake of the "mothball" plan failure, said WPPSS has "a serious problem" in the task of managing a "controlled" termination of WPPSS plants 4 and 5.

"The same sort of hiatus could exist on the 1, 2 and 3 plants that existed on 4 and 5," said Carlson, chairman of UAL, Inc., the parent company of United Airlines. "If you can't work out a controlled termination, you will impact plants 1, 2 and 3 pretty seriously."

Carlson said Northwest utility and Puget Sound Power Administration officials are "worried" about the bond ratings for the remaining three projects, for which the supply system must hold a bond sale in early March.

Fears have been raised that if sufficient funds are not raised for the termination costs of plants 4 and 5, the New York financial community could refuse to loan the money needed to keep construction on the other projects alive.

WPPSS has set a Feb. 5 deadline as the date when it must have "bridge loans" from the 88 public utilities backing plants 4 and 5 to pay off the contractors and suppliers at the shut-down reactors.

One factor in favor of the remaining projects is a labor agreement concluded over the weekend for Hanford workers that eliminates the threat of more costly strikes at the plants. But most power officials believe New York financiers will link the three remaining projects with the fate of the other two.

"There is no time to dribble around," said Bill Hubert, manager of the Snohomish County PUD, the largest owner of the WPPSS 4 and 5 plants. "By Feb. 5, there has to be a perception in place that we have a (termination) plan. The diving force for putting together a controlled termination plan has to be the bond sale on 1, 2 and 3."

Puget Sound Power & Light President John Ellis warned that other public utility projects, and hence the Northwest's future energy supply, could be jeopardized "if any of the public agencies talking about walking away from their (WPPSS 4 and 5) contracts really do it."

Ellis said the resignations of Carlson, Consolidated Edison Chairman Charles Luce and Seattle First National Bank President C. Michael Berry was a sign of how serious WPPSS's situation really is.

Air Force launches inquiry

Human error crash cause?

INDIAN SPRINGS, Nev. (UPI) — The deaths of four pilots of the famed Thunderbirds precision flying team Monday during a practice session at Indian Springs Air Force Base may have resulted from human error by one pilot, the Air Force said Tuesday.

Col. Mike Wallace, public information officer at nearby Nellis Air Force Base, home of the Thunderbirds, said it was "possible" that the other three pilots flying wing-to-wing may have followed one plane's lead and dived in formation into the desert.

Wallace. "That's why we have a board to investigate."

The crash, the worst in the 28-year history of the Air Force stunt flying team, occurred about 15 minutes into a 45 to 50 minute practice session.

Four of the six Thunderbirds were practicing a "line abreast loop" maneuver in which the four planes streak parallel about 100 feet above the ground, sharply climb several thousand feet, make a loop in formation and then resume their original wing-to-wing flight about 100 feet above the ground at speeds of about 400 miles per hour.

At the time of the crash, the other two Thunderbird pilots were practicing solo stunts at Nellis.

"In the maneuver they (the four pilots) were doing, the pilot on the exterior left divides his time between checking the instruments and his right wing man," said Wallace.

The Air Force officer said the instruments provide air speed and altitude information; but the pilots are trained to maintain their positions based upon visual sighting of the other aircraft.

Could a miscalculation by one pilot cause the other three planes to follow his lead and crash in formation? "Yes, it is possible," Wallace said.

Plans for funeral and memorial services for the dead pilots were pending.

Maj. Gen. Gerald D. Larson of New Hampshire arrived in Nevada from New Hampshire late Monday to take charge of the crash investigation.

He was briefed Tuesday by Nellis officials and planned to fly by helicopter to the crash site to begin the task of searching through the bits and pieces of the four F-38 Talon jet trainers, scattered over a one-square-mile area about 60 miles north of Las Vegas.

Witnesses said the T-38s had completed the loop sequence and failed to pull up from their normal dive towards the ground. Four charred streaks near the runway showed where the planes crashed and burned.

Monday's deaths brought to 19 the number of Thunderbird pilots killed since the group was formed to promote the Air Force in 1953, according to Nellis officials.

Maj. Gen. James Gregory, commander of the Tactical Fighter Weapons Center at Nellis, said Monday a decision on this year's Thunderbirds would be made later.

Killed in the crash Monday were: Maj. Norman L. Lowry III, 37, Radford, Va., a veteran of 264 combat flights in Vietnam and the new commander-leader of the Thunderbirds.

Capt. Mark E. Malancon, 31, Dallas, Texas, slot position.

Judge blocks Watt mine review plans

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A judge has refused to allow Interior Secretary James Watt to review a Carter Administration decision banning strip mining of coal near Bryce Canyon National Park in southern Utah.

However, environmentalists interpreted his move as a prelude to a reversal of the action to allow strip mining for coal near the scenic national park.

U.S. District Judge David K. Winder's ruling will allow other challenges to go forward, including one by environmentalists who want additional land not included in the 1980 decision declared unsuitable for strip mining.

William J. Lockhart, attorney for the Environmental Defense Fund, argued before Winder that Watt's request was "an abuse of power by those who govern."

Watt said in September he wanted to review the decision by his predecessor, Cecil Andrus, because of a rash of legal challenges that appeared to him to reflect a broad-based dissatisfaction with the decision.

Lockhart said the judge's decision is a "setback" to the Reagan administration, which "has sought to pursue tactics similar to those in this case — in one way or another to recapture and turn around decisions already made and reversed in an earlier administration."

Jury deliberates on Bonin sentence

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Freeway killer William Bonin described Tuesday as a ruthless executioner and troubled war hero in final arguments before jurors began deliberations to decide if he should die in the gas chamber.

"My God, it would be an injustice to give this man anything less than the penalty of death," prosecutor Sterling Norris told the seven-man, five-woman jury.

"He's earned himself the right to the death penalty. Those who live by the sword die by the sword."

The same jury that convicted the 35-year-old truck driver of first-degree murder with special circumstances for the homosexual-torture slayings of 10 youths must now decide if he should be executed or spend the rest of his life in prison without possibility of parole.

Jurors were expected to begin their deliberations after instructions from Superior Court Judge William Keene.

Bonin sat passively, his chin resting in his hand, throughout arguments by Norris and defense attorney William Charvel. The jurors sat with expressions taut, many casting their eyes downward.

be a helpful member of society in prison."

The attorney's arguments brought audible indignation at points from the mothers of four of the victims, who sat together in the courtroom.

"A lot of men go to Vietnam and they don't all come back as killers," Jerry Fox, whose 17-year-old son was one of the victims, said during a recess. "That's no excuse."

Norris recounted Bonin's criminal convictions dating back to 1963 and said he had spurned many opportunities for rehabilitation.

"We have given him more than ample opportunity," Norris said. "And what did he do with it? He threw it back in the face of society and went out and started executing his victims."

He said Bonin remained unrepentant, citing the testimony of a television reporter who said Bonin told him in January 1981, "I'd still be killing. I couldn't stop killing — it got easier."

"It's not just the death of these men," Norris told jurors. "It's the way they died. He picked them up, hogtied them, sodomized them and then dumped them like garbage."

Accused accomplice in court, files no plea

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — Gloria Ann White, accused of harboring convicted spy Christopher Boyce and helping him commit several bank robberies, appeared in federal court Tuesday but did not enter a plea to the charges.

Charles Porter, attorney for Mrs. White, 41, Newport, said the only plea she could have made without traveling to Boise would have been guilty, adding, "She's not about to plead guilty."

In a brief appearance before U.S. District Court Judge Robert Belloni, bail was set at $10,000 on the federal charges and Mrs. White posted a $1,000 security deposit, allowing her to stay out of jail.

Porter said Mrs. White will travel to Boise next week and enter her plea in district court.

Last week, a federal grand jury in Boise indicted Mrs. White, Boyce and Calvin Robinson of Richmond, Calif., on charges of conspiracy to rob banks.

Mrs. White was charged last year with harboring Boyce at her log cabin near Bonners Ferry, Idaho. That charge was dismissed last November.

She is now charged with harboring an escaped prisoner, conspiracy to commit bank robbery and two counts of aiding and abetting bank robbery.

Californians get off easy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A chance of continuing showers persisted in flood and mudslide-ravaged Northern California Tuesday, but a modest spattering of rain, hail and snow Monday night failed to trigger additional weather woes.

A landslide prompted the California Highway Patrol to close a portion of Highway 299 east of the Humoldt-Trinity county line and Highway 50 was closed in the Sierra foothills while state Transportation Department crews worked to eliminate the danger of avalanches, the California Highway Patrol said.

But the storm expected to hit the coast Monday lost its punch, spreading scattered showers and brief hail storms instead throughout the ten-county disaster area surrounding San Francisco Bay.

The showers were expected to continue through Wednesday, with the possibility of some thundershowers, the National Weather Service said.

Quake shakes hills in Oakland area

WALNUT CREEK, Calif. (UPI) — A minor earthquake rumbled through the hills overlooking Oakland Monday night, causing some short-lived worry of more mudslides in the rain-soaked area, but no damage.

HAPPY CHINESE NEW YEAR!

Greet the Year of the Dog with a Fabulous Oriental Feast

4680, in the Chinese Calendar, is the Year of the Dog

The Year of the Dog, which starts January 25, follows the tradition of naming the years after constellations of the Zodiac in 12-year cycles. In order after the Dog are the constellations of Boar, Rat, Ox, Tiger, Rabbit, Dragon, Serpent, Horse, Ram, Monkey and Rooster.

People born in the Year of the Dog are said to be loyal, devoted, and moral — and intelligent and prosperous. Dog people, La Choy Oriental lore experts say, also can be defensive, critical and stubborn but they make good leaders and inspire confidence.

January 25 is chance to begin the New Year again

According to the Chinese moon calendar, January 25 marks the beginning of the year 4680 and the Year of the Dog.

If you've already broken your New Year resolutions, you'll have a chance to start over when the world leaves behind the old Year of the Rooster. The Chinese say the Dog will favor strong leadership but finances may be unsettled.

Chinese New Year is the biggest holiday in the Chinese Calendar, celebrated with feasts, fireworks, gift-giving and visiting.

On the New Year in old China, the Chinese enjoyed the best food available, even if they only could afford a bowlful of rice on most days. A New Year's feast was a sumptuous dinner sure to be remembered.

To create an American version of a Chinese New Year feast, serve an Oriental dinner that includes Dynasty Beef on Green Cabbage.

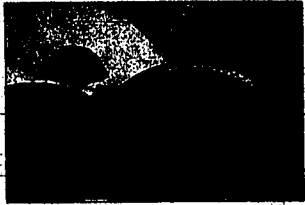

Developed by LaChoy home economists, this holiday dish includes beef, green cabbage, water chestnuts, green onions and fresh ginger, topped with a chicken-flavored sauce. Pea-Pod Cucumber Salad is a refreshingly different accompaniment to the entree.

Select a variety of prepared La Choy Oriental foods, readily available at supermarkets, to round out the meal. Frozen egg rolls, heated according to package directions and served with a blending of Chinese Hot Mustard and Sweet & Sour Sauce are a great beginning. Won Ton Soup, available in frozen concentrate, and fried rice, both frozen and in cans, complement the meal.

New Year's dinner in old China was a sumptuous feast sure to be remembered. To create a memorable Oriental meal in your kitchen, La Choy home economists have developed Dynasty Beef on Green Cabbage... A delicious way to greet the Chinese Year of the Dog.

1. Combine meat with water chestnuts, green onions and ginger. Stir in egg and seasonings. Mix thoroughly and shape into four large meatballs.

2. Heat oil in wok or deep fryer to 375 degrees. Deep fry meatballs until golden (about five minutes). Drain on paper towels. Pour off oil, reserving for another use.

3. Transfer cooked cabbage to large casserole, lining bottom and sides. Place meatballs on cabbage; pour hot broth over. Simmer, covered, about one hour or until done.

DYNASTY BEEF ON GREEN CABBAGE

(4-6 servings)

- 1 can (8 oz.) La Choy Water Chestnuts, chopped fine
- 2 green onions, chopped fine

- 1 medium head green cabbage (or two heads celery or Chinese cabbage, if available)
- 2 tablespoons cooking oil
- 1 cup chicken broth, hot
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1/4 cup chicken broth, cold
- Cherry tomatoes for garnish

PEA POD-CUCUMBER SALAD

  - 1/4 cup La Choy Soy Sauce
  - 1/4 cup white vinegar
  - 3 tablespoons sesame oil

Chinese Almond Creams are cookies crisp on the outside, smooth and creamy inside

Almond creams are traditional

NEW YORK — The Chinese reckon their years according to 12 variable phases of the moon, accounting for the changing date of the "New Year" holiday. But there is one tradition in China which never changes — the celebration of New Year with a banquet of festive foods. New Year, a joyous time of family reunions and vacations from work, is marked with many special meals. Sweets and desserts are favorite foods served at this time of year. The Almond Creams pictured here, for example, are a traditional Chinese dessert adapted for Americans. In the Chinese tradition, sweet cakes and cookies were fed to children to "prevent them from speaking bad words" during a holiday which represents the start of a pure, new year. Chinese Almond Creams are made with pure peanut oil for a light, delicate flavor. Peanut oil was considered the high quality frying oil in China because of its fine flavor. Here in America, it is sold in all Chinese grocery stores as well as in local supermarkets. Serve these delightful treats with afternoon tea or at dessert time.

- ALMOND CAKES
- 3 egg yolks, slightly beaten
  - 1 cup water
  - 4 tablespoons sugar
  - 1/2 cup unsifted flour
  - 4 tablespoons cornstarch
  - 3/4 teaspoon almond extract
  - 3 cups peanut oil
  - 2 tablespoons finely ground almonds
- Blend egg yolks, water, 2 tablespoons sugar, flour, 1 tablespoon cornstarch and almond extract in small heavy saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a full boil. Cook 1 minute longer. Remove from heat. Spread mixture evenly in greased 8 1/2 x 4 1/2 x 2 1/2 -inch loaf pan. Chill thoroughly. Cut chilled cream into 3/4-inch thick slices. Coat with remaining 3 tablespoons cornstarch. Fry in shallow hot (375°F.) peanut oil until golden brown. Drain on paper towels. Sprinkle with ground almonds and remaining 2 tablespoons sugar.

Nourish your Super Bowl fans

By MARILYNN MARTER
© Knight-Ridder Newspapers

Come next Sunday, millions of football fans will be happily home-bound, transfixed in front of the TV to see the Bengals and the 49ers clash out Super Bowl XVI at the Silverdome in Pontiac, Mich.

Those on kitchen detail that day will have their work cut out for them, especially if they, too, have an armchair seat reserved for the game.

For the occasion, some cooks will want to tackle a Super Bowl party with festive foods. Others will rely on soup-and-sandwich meals to satisfy football-hungry appetites.

Whichever direction this indoor tailgate picnic takes, you have the advantage of being assured of foods still warm from the oven or grill and within easy reach for seconds.

Whether the meal is for the family or for a crowd of avid sports enthusiasts, it will almost certainly be served in front of the television. How much effort you want to put into the preparation and cooking will depend mainly on your mood. Escapists can be as creative as they please in the kitchen.

Here are a few ideas for finger foods and hot and hearty fare that should unstick (momentarily, at least) anyone whose attention is glued to the tube. There's a Super Bowl Sandwich that's really a super-sized bowl, made by hollowing out a round loaf of bread.

And to keep up the spirit of the occasion, we've even concocted a special treat honoring the Cincinnati Bengals — an AFC Today. That's apple-fennel-cinnamon.

To be fair, San Francisco fans can turn it into an NFC Today with the simple addition of grated nutmeg, making it a nutmeg-fennel-cinnamon drink.

- SUPER BOWL SANDWICH
- 1 cup sour cream
  - 1/2 envelope dry onion soup mix
  - 2 tablespoons chopped, pitted ripe olives
  - 2 tablespoons chopped sweet pickles (or relish)
  - 1 (9-inch) round French bread loaf
  - Lettuce
  - 12 ounces cooked roast beef, sliced thin
  - 4 ounces sliced Swiss cheese
  - 1 tomato, sliced
  - 1 green pepper, cut into rings

In bowl, combine sour cream, onion soup mix, olives and pickles; chill. Cut loaf lengthwise slices off top of bread loaf; reserve top. Hollow out center of loaf, leaving at least one-quarter-inch shell. (Reserve bread for other uses, such as the Apple Bread Pudding included below.) Spread three-quarters cup sour cream mixture inside bread shell; line with lettuce. In shell, layer roast beef, Swiss cheese, tomato slices and pepper rings, spreading remaining sour cream mixture over each. Replace reserved top of bread loaf. To serve, cut loaf in half and again into quarters. Makes four servings. Note: The same loaf-type meal be made with your choice of sandwich fillings. F.

Lil Frazier's maple bars make drive to Eden worthwhile

Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — How about a morning fling in Eden?

On Wilson Avenue and Highway 25, southside of the "mainline" and kitty-corner from the post office, at the Eden Cafe in Eden, Idaho?

Lil Frazier presides there. It's well worth the trip. Her devastatingly delicious maple bars will forever spend your palate's imagination.

They're rich, full of calories and the best we've ever eaten. Lil makes them fresh every morning.

We coasted Lil for her fabulous and famous recipe. Just in case you can't get to Eden to buy Lil's delicacies in person, we're telling you how she makes them.

Lil insists you to make her large recipe. Use just what you'll need each day. The dough will keep covered in the refrigerator for at least 5 days, as will her Creamy Maple Frosting.

BUYS: The worst winter of the 20th century is wreaking its damage to our food crops, particularly to the citrus and poultry supplies. Prices increases are certain in the next few weeks. The wisest move now is to stock up on frozen and canned citrus products and frozen chicken.

Budget minders will get further help this week with reduced prices on some generic items. Watch, too, for good buys on beef cuts that take to slower methods of cooking, like chuck roasts. Their flavorful aroma while cooking will fill your kitchen with chill-chasing warmth.

 UPI Family Editor

CHICAGO (UPI) — Energy efficiency, home security and safety, time-saving devices and housewares for living the good life are the trends at the 76th semi-annual National Housewares Exposition.

"People with money have never stopped buying," said manufacturer Patrick Hart of East Hanover, N.J., who makes ceramic accessories for food and beverage use.

"Business was very, very good last year," he said Monday, and he's expecting more of the same in 1982.

His introductory at the current show include a wine canteen this is supposedly a reproduction of the Western canteen cowboys used to put over their saddlebags. The sand-colored stoneware carrier, which comes in its own natural canvas shoulder tote, holds 22 ounces and is expected to sell for about $27.50.

The trade show, sponsored by the Chicago-based National Housewares Manufacturers Association, is the major showcase for American manufacturers, buyers and other merchandising executives as well as some foreign companies.

A Brooklyn, N.Y., manufacturer, H.G. Arms, showed a locking cabinet designed to fit in standard bathroom medicine chests to keep medicines beyond the reach of children. The Safe-T-First Security Cabinets range from about $16 to about $25, depending on size.

Dangerous pollutants such as lead, cadmium, mercury and arsenic are concentrated in hair and can be diagnosed most accurately by HAIR ANALYSIS.

More than 5% of all preschool children have toxic levels of lead which have an effect on the nervous system, blood and kidneys. Mental retardation, hyperactivity, cerebral palsy, blindness, kidney disorders are some of the conditions to name just a few that can be caused by toxic levels of lead.

Some of the common causes of lead toxicity are industrial or auto fumes, copper plumbing (leaded), paints. To overcome such toxicity a specific detoxification program is instituted and the patient is also treated symptomatically.

the morning."

"Because the patron saint of the kitchen, Tzau Wang Ya, is sent up to heaven on the 14th day before New Year in order to report on everyone's behavior, there is a fish sacrifice made to him first," said Mitchell Silk, a captain at the restaurant, who attended college in Taiwan and who will enter the Georgetown University Foreign Service School this semester. "Everyone prays before his picture and burns incense," said Silk, a student of Chinese lore and customs. Tangerines are strewn all over the Chinese house, he said, because they represent luck. Fish is de rigueur on the Chinese table, though some families, depending upon individual tradition, do not eat it. Others are bound to take a bite, while still others will eat the fish in its entirety.

Sticky, rice buns — delectable, dumpling-like, rice-based sweets tossed with shrimp, watercress and pork pieces — will be a part of the Christine Lee dinner. An exotic sticky rice pudding containing dates, prunes, figs, nuts and red beans also will be served because it symbolizes prosperity. Hair vegetables (a variety of seaweed) will be fried with Chinese black mushrooms and smoked oysters to assure that there will be riches in the coming year. Lotus seeds will be present to guarantee that wives in the family will have bright sons. Braised duck with black mushrooms, braised whole pork butt and deep-fried shrimp scallions with shredded ginger and scallions will be part of the extensive menu. Stuffed dumplings containing coins will be there to surprise and delight the children.

All the dishes, including soups and appetizers, are placed on the table at once," Carothers said. "And everyone tastes a little of everything. There's always enough to last for the duration of the celebration, and because no one is expected to work during that time, many of the foods will be eaten at room temperature, with perhaps a little warming of certain dishes."

The Lee table therefore will include a spectacular soup called Silver Fruit Soup, containing stuffed, log-shaped omelet dumplings (symbols of wealth); fish and meat balls (their roundness signifies family unity) and cellophane noodles. Traditional New Year's Eve appetizers — the "gold plate" — consist of a variety of dishes such as marinated smoked fish, a tangle of turnip and jellyfish strings, lightly pickled Chinese cabbage and wine chicken.

Mo Shu Pork is an elegant Chinese classic which satisfies any hearty appetite

Pork considered a luxury

NEW YORK — Many meat dishes — especially pork dishes — are served during the Chinese New Year's Day celebration because meat is considered a luxury reserved for special occasions.

Mo Shu Pork is a classic Chinese favorite which may be served at Chinese New Year or any time of the year. Much of the preparation of the dish is completed in advance of cooking time. In a matter of minutes the ingredients are stir-fried in peanut oil.

MO SHU PORK

- 1/2 pound boneless pork loin, thinly sliced
- 1 tablespoon Dry Sack Sherry
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- 1 teaspoon cornstarch
- 1/2 teaspoon sugar
- 4 tablespoons peanut oil
- 3 eggs, well beaten
- 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger

- 1 cup finely packed shredded cabbage
- 1/2 cup sliced water chestnuts
- 1/2 cup finely chopped scallions*
- 1 teaspoon sesame seed
- Hot cooked rice
- soy sauce

Cut pork slices into very fine strips 1/4-inch long; combine with dry sack sherry, soy sauce, cornstarch and sugar. Mix well and set aside.

Heat 2 tablespoons peanut oil in a large skillet. Add eggs and scramble until very dry. Break eggs into small pieces; remove from skillet and set aside.

Heat remaining oil in skillet. Add the prepared pork mixture and ginger. Stir-fry until pork begins to turn color and separate into shreds. Add cabbage and water chestnuts. Cook over high heat for 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Mix in scrambled eggs, scallions and sesame seed. Stir and cook 1 minute. Serve with hot rice and soy sauce. (Makes 4 servings.)

Unlike the New Year's celebrations in the United States that endure for one glorious honky-tonk night, Chinese New Year festivities, family bash of epic proportions, can continue for three, five or seven days. Some have been known to string out for several weeks.

This year, New Year's Eve is Jan. 24, ushering out the Year of the Rooster and welcoming in the Year of the Dog, 4680.

The main focus is on food, a bounty of food, much of it symbolic and steeped in ritual, superstition and whimsy.

For example, sticky rice buns eaten on the Chinese New Year's Eve will close the diner's mouth to evil talk. Fish, the most essential of all the celebration dishes, is the symbol of plenty.

"The preparation for the Chinese New Year begins days ahead," said Mary Carothers, daughter of Christine Lee, who owns two of the most successful Chinese restaurants in South Florida. "The tradition is that we do not work during the time of the celebration, so there must be enough food prepared for the entire period. Even the grocery stores close during that time."

The New Year's celebration, the biggest and most important of the Chinese holidays, is a time when all members of the family reunite at the home of the patriarch to eat, reminisce, gossip, gamble and undergo spiritual renewal. It is a time when neighbors and friends visit and are served tea and something to eat.

"The ritual of reuniting with the family is taken very seriously by the Chinese," Carothers said. "I've had requests from a number of employees for time off to go home to their families."

Her first recollection of celebrating the New Year dates to her ninth birthday.

"I was born in China, but we left there when I was very small," she said. "My mother had to work, so it wasn't until she opened her own restaurant that I remember attending a New Year's Eve celebration. We celebrated with all the restaurant employees and their families. And we continue to do so every year at both the restaurants. The festivities begin at midnight and continue into the morning."

"Because the patron saint of the kitchen, Tzau Wang Ya, is sent up to heaven on the 14th day before New Year in order to report on everyone's behavior, there is a fish sacrifice made to him first," said Mitchell Silk, a captain at the restaurant, who attended college in Taiwan and who will enter the Georgetown University Foreign Service School this semester. ## Age-Retardant.

- Most people think the term "sun block" means no tan at all. No summer glow. Spoilsport.
- Not true. With a good sun block, you can tan if you want to. The point of sun block is to guard skin from the burning radiation of sun — which, dermatologists say, is the one factor most responsible when skin looks older than it should.
- Protection — no pallor — is the purpose of Clinique Sun Block. Clinique Sun Block is invisible. 8SPF has a Sun Protection Factor of 8 which is the basic sun-need for anyone. Learn how it works for your skin by consulting the Clinique Computer at the Parls.
- With Clinique Sun Block, you can still tan. Slowly. Gently. Chance of appling is far, far less. The sun's aging effects are retarded.

Smart shoppers save effort by assembling 'refunding tool kit'

By MARTIN SLOANE
of United Feature Syndicate

Here are some excellent tips that readers have recently sent me:

Gretchen Tait from Cattaraugus, N.Y., wrote to tell me about the "Refunding Tool Kit" that she uses.

"When I settle down to work on my refunding, having all my 'tools' together saves me the time and effort of getting up and down and hunting for them," she says. "My tool box is a large, sturdy shoe box. In the box I keep scissors to cut refund forms out of magazines and coupons out of newspapers."

"A small utility knife comes in handy for cutting proofs of purchase from cardboard boxes. I have 3-by-5-inch cards to request refunds if a form is not needed. A roll of transparent tape helps to mend torn coupons, forms and proofs."

"My refunding tool box also contains packages of envelopes, post cards to request refund forms, address labels and stamps, a pen or ballpoint pen and a rubber stamp."

Colleen Schelder from Bismarck, N.D., has a tip for teachers: "As a grade-school teacher, I like to give my students small prizes for work done well and for special occasions."

"I have found many of these prizes through refunding. These have included pencils, pens, T-shirts, book bags, mugs and many other items that children can use and enjoy."

"Donald Schmidt from Brillion, Wis., has some advice for manufacturers and their refund fulfillment houses:

"Today I received another refund addressed to 'M. Schmidt'. I didn't send for it, and I know that it must belong to one of the other Schmidts on our rural postal route. This is also a problem for me, since other Schmidts receive my refunds."

"This happens because some of the fulfillment companies use first initials instead of full first names. Since there are so many Schmidts on the route and they have so many children, it isn't fair to expect the postman to figure this puzzle out."

"I use my full first name when I send for a refund, and I wish the companies would do likewise when they send it to me."

Mrs. B.M. Lohbert from Lewiston, Maine, deserves a special award for resourcefulness.

"As my inventory of coupons and proofs of purchase grew, I felt that I needed a four-drawer filing cabinet," she reports. "I didn't want to spend the money to buy one, so I did the next best thing."

"I went to a store that sells them and asked for the empty box that a file cabinet comes in. Next I found four cartons that would fit as drawers. I made my own filing cabinet in four hours' time with colorful self-stick shelf lining."

"It looks great and now stands in the kitchen between my desk and the refrigerator."

New Year

birth and new life. It occurs at the first moon, at the end of January or the beginning of February, according to the lunar calendar.

Here are some of the recipes that will appear on the Christine Lee table on New Year's Eve. The recipes serve four to six persons.

SPICED SHRIMP WITH GINGER AND SCALLION
12 large shrimp in shells
2 scallions
1 small head of fresh ginger root
2 tablespoons water chestnut flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon Chinese spiced peppercorn
Split the back of shrimp, rinse and clean, then mix with water chestnut flour. Peel the ginger root and shred. Shred scallions, keeping separate from ginger root.

In a hot greaseless fry pan, sautee salt and peppercorns until light brown. Remove from pan and cool, then remove peppercorns and set salt aside.

Pour two cups of oil in fry pan or wok, and when oil is very hot, drop in the shrimp. Stir quickly about one minute, then remove shrimp. When oil is hot again, drop in the shrimp to cook one more minute. Pour contents of wok through strainer, saving oil for another use. In the same pan or wok, sautee the ginger for a few seconds and add to shrimp. Add the scallions and mix with shrimp and ginger. Sprinkle shrimp with spiced salt to taste and serve.

These shrimp are eaten with the shells on.

BRAISED PORK BUTT WITH STEAMED WATERCRESS
2 pounds pork butt with skin and bone
1/2 cup soy sauce
1 scallion
1 tablespoon sugar
1 small ginger root, crushed
1 star anise
2 tablespoons cooking wine
Pinch of cornstarch
2 bunches of watercress

Bring a pot of water to the boil. The pot should be big enough and there should be sufficient water to cover the butt. Add butt and simmer for 30 minutes. Pour off water and trim and clean the butt. In the same pot, add all the remaining ingredients along with the pork, then add cooking wine. Add just enough water to cover pork, bring to boil and simmer for 1 1/2 hours until meat is very tender. Liquid should be reduced to about two cups. Skim away grease and taste for proper seasoning. If too salty, add sugar until proper seasoning is achieved.

Remove butt and thicken the sauce with a small amount of cornstarch. Place the pork on a serving platter, surround with the watercress that has been steamed quickly. Then pour the sauce over the pork. This may be served with steamed rice.

SWEET AND PUNGENT PORK CHOPS
4 1/2-inch thick pork chops
1 egg
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1/2 cup water
For the sauce:
1 tablespoon tomato ketchup
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 teaspoon cornstarch

Remove butt and thicken the sauce with a small amount of cornstarch. Place the pork on a serving platter, surround with the watercress that has been steamed quickly. Then pour the sauce over the pork. This may be served with steamed rice.

Plastic jugs claimed to affect milk

By SONJA HILLGREN
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Milk sold in one-gallon clear plastic jugs loses both its nutrients and flavor when displayed for several hours in supermarkets, a dairy researcher says.

A Clemson University dairy scientist thinks general loss of flavor may have something to do with an ongoing decline in U.S. milk consumption.

Whether he can prove it is another thing, but Jack Janzen said he is going to try. He has completed taste tests using panels of students and consumers.

The next phase, which he said he expects to complete by June, will involve families who will receive two quarts of milk at a time, one that has lost its nutrients and flavor and one that has not.

"With detailed questionnaires filled out by the families, Janzen hopes we'll be able to determine which they would be more likely to purchase and whether they would drink the good sample more often than they drink milk now."

If he can prove his "pet theory," as he called it, and show there are economic implications of selling off-flavor milk to the public, the industry might change the containers in which it sells milk, he said.

The problem is that milk in plastic jugs is laid under fluorescent lights loses vitamin content and gets an off-flavor that Janzen says is like the aroma of a storeroom filled with paper products.

Scientists call it light-activated oxidized flavor, caused possibly by chemical reaction involving the light and the milk's protein. It happens in two to four hours after milk is placed under the lights. After six to eight hours, most people can detect the off-flavor. After 10 to 14 hours, everyone can tell the difference.

That cardboard-like flavor, as Janzen describes it, is not present in most milk sold in cartons, because the cardboard is coated with plastic.

Janzen said loss of vitamins begins almost immediately after milk in plastic jugs is put on grocery shelves under fluorescent lights. Other researchers have found losses in vitamin A, an important nutrient in milk.

Although vitamin C is not important to milk, Janzen has studied it because it is easy to measure. He found the vitamin C in milk is lost after 24 to 36 hours under lights.

Although the industry has not yet been convinced to change containers, Janzen said, "One solution would be simply to go back to old-fashioned fiberboard cartons."

Or they could use an opaque plastic bottle that light couldn't penetrate, like those used for bleaches.

He knows of some dairies in the Northeast who are using gold-colored plastic jugs that are expensive but that are recycled.

Janzen is hoping his research may convince the industry to put in color or a light-ray inhibitor in the jugs.

"I think one reason (why the industry has not changed) is they feel quite strongly that the housewife demands the plastic container because of the light barrier," he said.

The glass milk bottles said a generation ago did not cause problems because when they were in use stores did not sell milk in open refrigerated cases and the milk was not put under fluorescent lights.

Janzen's work several years ago found 60 percent to 65 percent of milk in plastic jugs in supermarkets had the off-flavor.

One thing Janzen has learned and found to be especially disturbing is that young adults who have known nothing but plastic jugs are beginning to accept the off-flavor as normal.

But that flavor is not accepted in the Janzen household. They drink milk from plastic jugs rarely, and only if cardboard cartons absolutely cannot be found.

Larger eggs produced as hens tricked

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — Scientists at Cornell University have found a way to induce white leghorn chickens to lay eggs that are larger and have tougher shells by tricking them about the length of their "work day."

Instead of providing the chickens with 16 hours of light per day, as is done conventionally, Ari Van Tienhoven, a reproductive physiologist in the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell, devised a "20-hour day" with different lighting. It starts with 16 hours of light, then six hours of darkness, two hours of light again, and then 18 hours of darkness.

The scientists say chickens are peculiar in that they have a "biological clock" or daily physical cycles of about 16 to 20 hours and that is why they do not lay eggs punctually at 24-hour intervals. Knowing this, the scientists devised the 20-hour day.

Readers express varied opinions about Abby's reruns

BY ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Being an avid reader of your column, I read with interest the letter from "D. from Big D" imploring you to stop printing all those boring reruns, which you call your "golden oldies." I agree with "D." I never read beyond the first sentence if I've read it before.

When you do get requests for reruns, wouldn't it be wiser (and more profitable) to direct these minutes to the nearest bookstore to buy your new book, "The Best of Dear Abby"? All those "golden-oldies," from your Thanksgiving prayer to your annual New Year's resolutions, are in that

DEAR ABBY: "D. from Big D" has my heart/felt sympathy. Apparently "D" never permitted his mother to repeat the same nursery rhyme, has never sung the same hymn in church, or thrilled to the words of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address when delivered by a gifted orator.

I am program chairman for three organizations, and one of my cardinal rules is: "If a guy's good, get him back!" Thus I have had the privilege of hearing the same speaker, often with the same speech, two or three times. No audience has ever complained. Right? Hell, yes! What's wrong with exorcists?

—M.C.W. FROM ROCHESTER, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: So "D. FROM BIG D" doesn't care for reruns. Poor baby. When his wife says, "I love you, what does he say?" "You already said that once?"

LITTLE J. FROM THE BIG APPLE

DEAR ABBY: Bravo for "D. From Big D"! Your reruns are invariably maudlin, folksy, corny, vintage 1899. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale: up-by-your-bootstraps baloney!

ABBY: you are super terrific when you suffer the heart of a problem we can all relate to and deliver a sharp and witty answer. But please forget those golden oldies.

—ED SLABOTSKY

DEAR ABBY: I'm glad somebody finally spoke up about the reruns. A few days ago I read again — like your New Year's resolutions, but please, Ab, take it easy on all those syrupy poems, prayers, quotes and philosophical "gems" you feel you must share with your readers.

I read your column to see what YOU have to say — not to get a lecture or a sermon from somebody else.

—DICK IN DENVER

DEAR ABBY: In regard to the letter from "D. in Big D": I think the "D." in his or her name stand for "Dummy."

Many times I have clipped out the reruns rather than the original article because I felt that the article was more relevant to my life than as it appeared as a reprint than as a first-run article.

Keep running the reruns, Abby. I may be only 13, but I appreciate them more than some adults. And they say the nation's youth is going down the drain. Hal!

—YOUNGER AND WISER

DEAR ABBY: This is a "yes" vote for reruns. I tend to need reminders, so I appreciate them. Plus, I had misplaced that marvelous pecan pie recipe, and your recent reprint was a welcome surprise in time for the holidays.

As long as I'm writing, I'd like to comment on the letter from "Evelyn from N.J." who took you to task for being "unfair" to smokers. The situations she mentioned — "drinkers, dopers, teen-age unwed mothers and all the sex gluttons who brought VD back, etc." — involve a certain degree of consent on the part of those involved.

But when a smoker blows smoke into the face of a non-smoker, the only alternative is to stop breathing. I become so annoyed with people who forget they are not alone on this planet!

—REPRINTS, YES! SMOKERS, NO!

Dr. Lamb

Diverticulosis explained as colon lining rupture

BY LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Association

DEAR DR. LAMB: — I am a female, age 65, and I have diverticulosis. Will those little pockets of the colon ever go away?

I often have painful spasms of the colon that cause pain in my left side. I also have spells of diarrhea which make it difficult to go out socially or even to go shopping.

I started on a diet like you recommended to give me more bulk, including eating more bran, whole wheat bread and leafy vegetables, but I still have trouble with the diarrhea. Do I need an operation? Will I have trouble with those little pockets if they don't

GO AWAY? — You may be surprised to know that as many as half of the people in your age group have those little pockets called diverticula. And the vast majority of people don't even know they have them until a colon X-ray is taken and they can be seen on X-ray.

No, don't expect your pockets to go away regardless of what diet program you follow. They are really some ruptures of the lining of the colon through its wall. Many authorities think they are caused by increased pressure within the colon causing the rupture.

And some think the increased pressure is caused by spasm of the colon. Colon spasms may be increased because of a diet low in bulk but there are other reasons for such spasms, too.

Your complaints are really about your overactive colon and your colon spasms that cause the pain, not the diverticula. The two problems often often exist together and improved bulk in the diet often helps these symptoms. But bran may increase gas formation, particularly during the first three weeks you use it.

I am sending you The Health Letter 5-6, Diverticulosis, to provide more information on the diet and management. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1531, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Your diarrhea and spastic colon may be aided by antispasmodics that your doctor may want to prescribe. And you may find that some of the things you eat contribute to this problem.

Milk intolerance may be a factor. About 10 percent of adult Anglo-Saxons and as many as 80 percent of adults from other ethnic groups have milk (lactose) intolerance which causes similar symptoms.

DEAR DR. LAMB: — I have a hernia about the size of a hen egg. There is not pain at all. When I stand or sit, part of the hernia descends into the left testicular sac.

When I lie down, all of the hernia leaves the scrotum and returns through the tear or opening back to its normal place of residence. I have had the hernia for several years but it doesn't appear to be enlarged.

I have been informed that my hernia can be healed naturally, without surgery, by a naturopath, but since none is available in this area I have decided to attempt to do it naturally myself with the program I am sending you. Will this system work? I'll appreciate any suggestions you have.

DEAR READER: — I have a very good suggestion. See a doctor. I have received several letters recently inquiring about curing hernias without surgery.

For inguinal (groin) hernias you can forget it. There is only one way to correct those torn and stretched ligaments and muscles and that is mechanical correction through surgery.

It is like a torn cloth that needs to be sewed together again.

The Green Thumb by George Abraham

Apples not only grow in tropical climate but produce two crops

Times-News correspondent

If you asked 100 readers of this paper if apples will grow well in the tropics, it's likely you'd get 100 percent of them to say no.

The fact is apple growing is big business in Indonesia in spite of the hot climate. Today there are more than two million apple trees grown in just one region of Java. And they don't get just one crop a year, like we do, but two crops of the same tree!

How do they do it when we all know that apples are a "cold season fruit" which needs the winter to break dormancy? Growers find that removing the leaves has the same effect as cold in breaking the rest period. A tree is planted and allowed to grow for five months, until dormant buds are formed.

Then the tree is defoliated by hand. In three or four weeks buds break out, new leaves appear and defoliation is repeated by hand. This program is continued for two or three years until the tree is ready to "rest" and produce. The tree is defoliated, therefore, as soon as the mature fruit is harvested. In three or four weeks new blossoms and leaves appear. Trees produce two crops a year from then on.

The same with grapes—another "cold" or temperate climate plant. "Wounding" or pruning can replace the cold requirement, so in the tropics grapes are severely cut back—more than 90 percent of the previous season's growth is removed by pruning. This severe pruning breaks the plant's rest period and gives two regular crops of fruit each year, where we get one.

COLD WATER AND PLANTS
Water temperature from your tap may hover around 40 degrees F now, only eight to 10 degrees above freezing. Cold water shocks many plants. Draw off a pall of water at night and let it set so it will warm up to room temperature. Another reason: This enables fluorine and chlorine to dissipate into the air before plants get it. Never use cold water on seeds as it delays germination or rots seed.

Soil in seed boxes ("flats") watered with cold tap water will take a full day to come back to 70 degrees F. Cold soils cause growth of seedlings to be retarded by inducing a photosynthesis shortage. Marigolds, petunias and tomatoes will show this by developing purple foliage. Ever notice it? So during the winter months, use room-temperature water on houseplants and seeds.

KEEP THE TIME TO . . . Recycle that discarded Christmas tree. It makes a good snack bar for birds. Order a couple "no ladder" dwarf fruit trees for spring planting. Root cuttings from your Swedish Ivy.

Keep watering your spent amaryllis; also Thanksgiving cactus. Discard your spent paperwhite narcissus bulbs. Start a kitchen window herb garden. Keep wood ashes dry. Check violets for white rings and spots. It's a sign of cold water on soil or leaves.

GREENHOUSE MUMS
Florists can grow potted chrysanthemums any month of the year by manipulating the daylight. Some excellent varieties are grown both as potted plants and cut flowers in the greenhouse, but they aren't satisfactory for outdoor planting.

In other words, there's not much sense keeping the florist mum after it has finished. Many potted mums take as long as 12 weeks from bud to bloom. These plants normally flower the first week in December, fine in a greenhouse (or home) but much too late for garden use.

You can save your florist mum if you don't care when it blooms for you indoors in winter. Cut the plant back, keep it watered, and in summer put it outdoors. In September bring it indoors and it will bloom perhaps sometime in February.

Florists use lighting to bring garden mums into flower out of season. If you want outdoor mums, varieties can be selected from catalogs that list the blooming dates.

WHEN YOU VACATION
When you go on vacation you'll water your plants? Some people are lucky enough to have friends or relatives who'll drop in and do the job. Sometimes this isn't the best idea because there's always someone who always drops in and does the job.

Your sink or bathtub makes a good greenhouse for keeping your plants a couple of weeks or so. Run in two inches of water and place a couple of bricks on the bottom. Set pots on the bricks and the plants will water themselves. Do not place newspapers on the bottom of bath tubs since chemicals will etch the enamel. No need to place any kind of cover over the plants in the tub or sink.

Don't keep cacti plants this way as they are apt to rot. Just give them a good soaking before you leave and they'll be in good shape when you return. Cacti are the camels of the plant world and endure long periods of drought. Be sure vacation plants are in an area where they get light.

THE WAX BEGONIA
The wax begonia (B. sempervirens) is one of the best winter-blooming begonias available. Even plants lifted from the garden and brought indoors will never completely stop flowering. They do shed blossoms and get a bit messy but their show is worth it. The trick in good growth is not to overwater. They like leggy, don't hesitate to trim back.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: R. F. of Twin Falls: "I have poor luck growing houseplants using the artificial mixes on the market. Can you give me a homemade mixture?"

You can try an all-purpose mixture of 1 part each, using washed sand, garden loam, sphagnum moss (or compost) and perlite. This works pretty well with most plants, with proper lighting, watering and feeding.

A bit more complicated formula consists of 4 parts sphagnum moss, 3 parts perlite, 1 part charcoal, 1 part cow manure, 1/2 part bone meal and 1/4 part ground limestone. "Part" can be any size measure, depending on the quantity you want to prepare.

The artificial soils are light and some gardeners like to "beef" them up with a little sand or loam from the garden. If you plan to start seeds, use one of the artificial mixes because they are more or less sterile, loose and ideal for seed starting. C. F. of King Hill: "Why do I have so much trouble growing the calla lily begonia?"

The calla begonia is a real queen, but a stubborn one, too. Often called "Youth and Old Age," its leaves are blotched, very interestingly and shaped like a calla lily blossom.

Plants should be grown quite dry in winter with just enough water to keep leaves from drooping. It likes a wet but a stubborn one, too. Often called "Youth and Old Age," its leaves are blotched, very interestingly and shaped like a calla lily blossom.

Since this prima donna lacks chlorophyll it has a hard time making its own food, hence its fussy behavior. You can bypass this shortage by purchasing chlorophyll tablets in a drug store. Dissolve one in a glass of water and root cuttings in the solution. They root easily this way.

Ellis files bankruptcy to keep control of fish

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

BOISE — Three corporations controlled by Buhl trout farmer Ken Ellis filed for bankruptcy this week.

But this is not the end of his career in the trout business, Ellis said. It is an effort to stay in business.

The bankruptcy proceedings will offer him protection from his creditors while he reorganizes the corporations and seeks to pay their debts, according to Ellis.

Petitions were filed in federal bankruptcy court in Boise on Monday for Ellis's companies: Farrago Inc., Valley Trout Farms and Magic Springs, Inc.

In December, Ellis saw his live and frozen trout placed under the control of Robert Erkins of Boise, a former trout farmer. Erkins was given the power to care for and sell the fish in an effort to satisfy an $8.6 million debt that Ellis owes the Southern Idaho Production Credit Association.

Ellis protested the naming of Erkins to control his fish. But he did not fight to prevent the court from appointing a receiver who would act as an agent of the court while trying to pay off Ellis's debt to the PCA.

He said he was unable to get loans to continue his operations.

Now, however, by filing bankruptcy petitions under Chapter 11 for corporate reorganization, Ellis will be placed back in control of his fish, according to his lawyer, Dale Higer of Boise.

A hearing will be held in Boise, perhaps as early as next month, to begin formulating a plan for repaying all creditors, Higer said.

According to Ellis, documents to be filed with the bankruptcy court will show that his corporations have $5 million in assets and only about $2 million in debts.

"We're forced to file because of the way PCA and the receiver were proceeding to liquidate all of the assets of Valley Trout Farms and Magic Springs," Ellis said.

Trout were sold for "distressed" prices. And Erkins' actions would not have allowed the business to continue to operate, Ellis said. "It was a liquidation," which, he charged, would benefit the PCA and no other creditor.

Ellis said his company has continued to sell trout at better prices than Erkins has.

But last week, PCA lawyers appeared in Fifth District court in Twin Falls, claiming that Ellis was using his corporate structure to avoid giving Erkins control over the proceeds from some sales. As a result, Judge Theron Ward expanded Erkins' authority.

Now, under the protection offered by the bankruptcy laws, Ellis said, he will formulate a reorganization plan that will allow all creditors to be paid and his companies to remain in the trout business.

Garbage burned in the new Cassia County steam plant will produce steam for the the nearby Simplot processing factory

Full steam ahead!

Cassia County incinerator will turn garbage into gold

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

HEYBURN — Idaho's first garbage-fueled steam plant will be dedicated Friday.

Officials are optimistic the plant will pass air-emission tests scheduled later this month.

Plant manager Doyle Cahoon gave The Times-News a preview of the plant Monday, as technicians tested and adjusted the equipment.

The plant's twin boilers produced steam at a deafening roar. On Monday, the heat was vented into the atmosphere, instead of being piped to the J.R. Simplot food-processing complex barely 100 yards away.

Additional equipment has been ordered to boost the steam to 150 pounds per square inch, the level required for use at the potato plant, Cahoon said. In the meantime, the company plans to reduce steam pressure in its peeler room to 135 pounds to accommodate the current generating capabilities of the plant.

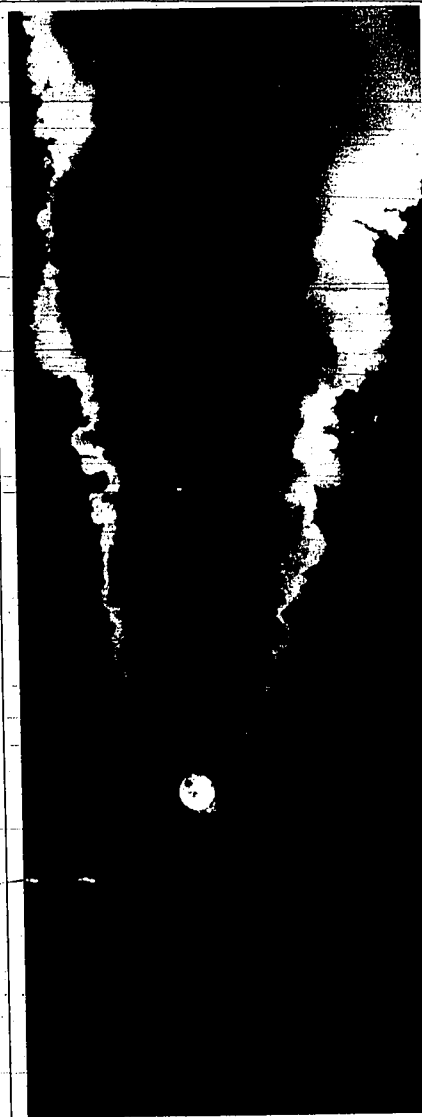

Dedication ceremonies are scheduled for 11:30 a.m. Friday at the plant, situated just west of the Simplot complex in Heyburn. Tours of the plant will be given.

Guests will include: Rep. George Hansen; J.R. Simplot or a company official; Chuck Wilder, president of Wilder Construction; and an official of Idaho First National Bank.

Twin Falls Council revives idea to burn garbage for steam, power

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The possibility of Twin Falls getting a garbage-fueled steam plant has been rekindled at City Hall.

Construction of a plant that would generate steam by burning household garbage was explored in 1979-80 by the city and by county officials. But the project was abandoned for various reasons, ranging from leadership problems to concerns about using pioneer technology, according to Mayor Chris Talkington.

The mayor says that he remains convinced that such a plant belongs in Twin Falls, and he invited an engineer to City Council's work session Monday to outline what the city could expect if it builds one.

The presentation, by Scott McClure of McClure Engineering, came just four days before the official opening of Cassia County's steam plant (see story above). That plant was conceptualized at roughly the same time that the city and county considered the proposal for Twin Falls.

McClure participated in the development of the Cassia plant, which is Idaho's first, and he used some of its data in developing rough projections for Twin Falls.

He told council that about $450,000 could be earned annually from the sale of the steam obtained by burning the estimated 100 tons of garbage that Twin Falls residents produce daily. Expenses to be paid with part of that income would range from plant maintenance to construction costs.

"The bottom line," Talkington said, "is that it's costing $300,000 a year (in landfill-operation costs) to bury garbage that's worth $450,000 a year."

McClure said a garbage-fueled plant could be built for about $2.5 million and operated for about $170,000 to $200,000 a year.

The cost of building a plant would increase by an estimated $1 million if the city wanted a facility that would use steam to generate electricity for sale to a public utility, he said.

The engineer said that Idaho Frozen Foods appears to be the most appropriate place to market an ongoing supply of steam.

Twin Falls bank robber may be linked to Boise holdups

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The gunman who robbed a downtown Twin Falls bank Monday may have committed two recent bank robberies in the Boise area.

Boise police say they are investigating that possibility because several characteristics of the Idaho Bank and Trust robbery appear to match the circumstances of two Boise bank robberies.

Those robberies occurred at the same bank, Citizens National Bank, 1111 Broadway Ave., in October.

Twin Falls police Chief Tim Qualls declined to comment Tuesday on that or any other aspect of the Twin Falls case.

But the possibility that the same man committed all three robberies was under investigation by local police. According to Boise Detective

Frank Richardson, Twin Falls police have contacted his department.

"Sure, and we have contacted Twin Falls," Richardson said.

The robber, wearing a ski mask over his face, entered the Twin Falls IB&T branch, 230 Shoshone St. E., at 4:12 p.m. Monday. Armed with a sawed-off rifle, he robbed the bank of an undisclosed amount of cash and reportedly escaped seconds before police arrived.

Boise police believe the same gunman may have been responsible for the Citizens National Bank robberies because of the following common characteristics:

- In all three robberies, the physical description of the gunman given by witnesses are similar. The IB&T robber initially was described as a 5-foot-7 male of medium build. However, later reports indicated the gunman may have been a few inches taller.
- All three incidents involved a man who wore a ski mask over his face. The gunman also wore similar clothing in each robbery.

- Similarities in the use of the firearm.

Richardson declined to be more specific, saying the weapon used in the Boise bank robberies would not be identified by his department until the case goes to trial. However, he acknowledged that in one of the Boise robberies, the weapon was fired once into the bank's floor. Monday, witnesses reported that the gunman fired one round into the floor of the IB&T office.

In each of the Boise cases, the gunman left the bank on foot and traveled to a waiting vehicle.

"But only he is involved," Richardson said. "There's no other driver."

Twin Falls police used roadblocks around the area following Monday's robbery, but they were disbanded after about an hour.

Paterno will drop AD duties

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Joe Paterno will step down as athletic director but remain as head football coach at Penn State March 1, the university said Tuesday.

His successor will be athletic director Jim Tarman. "I was Joe's decision, of course," said Tarman. "I really don't believe it was because he didn't think he had the time to do an adequate job in both positions."

"Over the course of a year, I know that he has been talking about spending more time with his family. And you could see how much he enjoyed coaching the football team this past season . . . particularly the last half of the season."

Paterno has coached football at Penn State 32 years, the last 16 as head coach. He served as athletic director for two years, replacing Edward Czekaj, and did not comment personally on his latest decision.

Magazine ranks McEnroe as No. 1

NEW YORK (UPI) — John McEnroe, the Wimbledon and U.S. Open champion, has been ranked No. 1 in the world for 1981 by World Tennis Magazine, it was announced Tuesday.

Although he was beaten by Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia in the season-ending Grand Prix Masters last weekend, McEnroe won one Grand Prix titles and the WCT Finals in Dallas in addition to Wimbledon and the U.S. Open.

Being No. 1 for the previous three years, dropped to the second ranking. Borg, on an extended vacation from tennis, won one Grand Slam event in 1981, taking the French Open for the sixth time. Lendl, who ended the year by winning seven consecutive tournaments and 36 matches in a row, moved up one notch to third.

Hallan Open champion Jose-Luis Clero of Argentina, winner of 25 consecutive matches during the summer, was ranked No. 4 while Jimmy Connors dropped to fifth, his lowest ranking by World Tennis since he first appeared in the Top Ten in 1973.

Cooney hurts shoulder while training

NEW YORK (UPI) — Top-rated heavyweight Gerry Cooney has injured his shoulder in training, forcing the postponement and probable cancellation of Friday's exhibition with former British champion Joe Bugner.

Cooney is in training for his March 15 fight with World Boxing Council champion Larry Holmes.

A Thursday news conference was scheduled in New York to give details on the injury, but a source close to Cooney said, "It's nothing major and jeopardizes nothing on March 15. It's a shoulder. We're not leaving training camp."

The four-round exhibition was to take place in lieu of an actual fight in December, which was called off after Cooney injured his back while training.

Playboy to host international meets

NEW YORK (UPI) — A series of international competitions in boxing, wrestling, weightlifting and gymnastics will be held in Atlantic City, N.J., during 1982 in an effort to give future Olympians a chance to showcase their talents, it was announced Tuesday.

The competitions are being sponsored by the Playboy Hotel and Casino.

The United States' wrestling team, coached by former Olympic gold medalist Dan Gable, will have three dual meets with foreign countries during the year. The U.S. team will meet West Germany on Jan. 30, Bulgaria on Feb. 20 and the Soviet Union on March 24.

The U.S. boxing team has meets scheduled with East Germany on Feb. 20 and with Poland on March 20.

Weaver gets order to stop ticket sales

POMONA, Calif. (UPI) — World Boxing Association heavyweight champion Mike Weaver has obtained a Superior Court temporary restraining order to stop the promotion and ticket sales for the World Boxing Council title bout between champion Larry Holmes and Gerry Cooney.

The restraining order was issued Monday by Superior Court Judge Charles E. Jones. The order forces the promoters of the scheduled March 15 bout in Las Vegas, Nev., to appear in court Feb. 4 to show cause why the court should not grant a preliminary injunction.

The suit stems from Weaver's claim that he had a contract to fight Cooney, the top-ranked challenger, in July and the Holmes-Cooney fight would jeopardize that bout.

Coaching changes

Sherrill takes Texas A&M bid; Fazio replaces him

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Coach Jackie Sherrill turned his back on Pittsburgh's powerful football program Tuesday to accept a multi-year, million-dollar deal as coach and athletic director of Texas A&M.

Assistant head coach Serafino "Fog" Fazio, a former Panther football star and a favorite of players and boosters, was named to replace Sherrill.

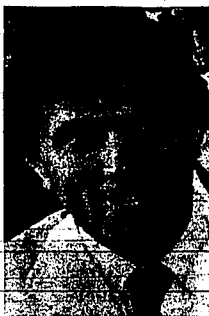

Sherrill's leave-taking puzzled Pitt supporters, who have lost two head coaches in five years despite a winning program.

Generally, it is losing teams, rather than winning ones that lose coaches. But Johnny Majors left Pitt days after his Tony Dorsett-led team claimed the 1976 national title with a victory over Georgia in the 1977 Sugar Bowl.

Likewise, under Sherrill who replaced Majors, the Panthers have finished No. 2 the past two seasons and with 18 of 22 starters returning next season will be early favorites in the race for another national crown.

Sherrill, 38, made it clear that money and security came before the ties he felt to the Pitt team and program.

He told a news conference the contract he agreed to with Aggies officials was a two-year deal that can be renewed annually through his lifetime.

The base salary, he said, is $95,000, compared with $80,000 at Pitt. But there are numerous fringe benefits that will boost the overall value of the pact to a reported $300,000 yearly.

"It was a very difficult and emotional decision to make," Sherrill said. "I've been here since 1973 (when he arrived at Pitt as Majors' assistant)."

"I came as a young, tough abrasive football coach, and I experienced the city of Pittsburgh. It was like putting sand paper on me and it transformed me into a very polished person," he said.

The decision to go to A&M, Sherrill said, "was made strictly logically. You plan things out, where I'm going to be in five, 10, 15 years."

He said the fact that he would be athletic director as well as head coach weighed most heavily on his decision to go to A&M, where university President Frank Vandiver fired Aggies coach Tom Wilson to make way for Sherrill.

"I don't consider this a changing of the guard, a major change," Fazio told a news conference shortly after Sherrill's announcement. "It's a continuation — The Pittsburgh football program will continue to be successful."

Fazio, 42, a native of neighboring West Virginia, was the architect of Pitt's defense, ranked first statistically among the nation's colleges the past two years.

Fazio paid his predecessor high tribute during his news conference.

"Sherrill was a tremendous asset to me and he was a friend of mine," Fazio said. "He allowed me to grow. He was my strongest supporter."

Fazio said he had asked six of the eight assistant Pitt coaches to remain on his staff and was waiting for their responses. He said he would announce the makeup of his staff this morning.

Sherrill, however, said he was taking at least one assistant, George Fugh, with him. Fugh nearly was fired in December for his involvement in a scheme to scalp Sugar Bowl tickets, but Sherrill talked Pitt officials into letting him off with a suspension.

Sherrill promised not to recruit any Pennsylvanians for one year, which should help Fazio hang onto some of the local talent leaving toward Pitt.

Fazio said several times that he regretted Sherrill's decision as much as he relished a chance to be head coach.

"I hate to see him go," Fazio said. "The players hate to see him go."

Pittsburghers' hate to see him go too. Just two days ago, Sherrill was honored as Man of the Year in Sports by the Dapper Dan Club of Pittsburgh. Following a mail-in vote by the public.

Ditka to become Bears' boss today, wife says

CHICAGO (UPI) — Dallas Cowboys assistant coach Mike Ditka will be formally named head coach of the Chicago Bears Wednesday, his wife confirmed.

Ditka met with Halas at the owner's North Side apartment for several hours Tuesday and accepted the position.

"Yes it's true," Ditka's wife Diana said in a telephone interview in Dallas. She said she had been out shopping when her husband called and left a message with their children that he had had accepted Halas's offer.

Neither Halas nor other Bears officials were available to comment.

Ditka had been the leading candidate for the job since Halas fired Neil Armstrong earlier this month.

Ditka has served as an offensive coach for the Cowboys and had conceded he was seeking the Bears' top job.

Ditka, who played tight end for the Bears in the 1960s, was one of three candidates for the job, Halas has said. Halas has denied in the past week talking to former NFL coach George Allen about the job.

Ditka will inherit a team that finished 6-10 in the NFC Central Division last year.

He will also inherit an entire coaching staff. Halas has already rehired defensive coordinator Buddy Ryan and his entire defensive staff and has indicated he would rehired offensive coordinator Ted Marchibroda and the entire offensive staff for next year.

Halas, who said he would not talk to Ditka until Dallas was eliminated from the playoffs, has said he is not concerned that Ditka has no previous head coaching experience.

Ditka said he would not make many "initial" major changes in the Bears, saying the team had enough personnel to become a winner.

"I think the leadership is there; I think the discipline is there," he said. He also said he was not concerned about confusion over the lines of authority in the Bears.

Halas reportedly told Ditka he would report directly to the owner. Halas has relieved general manager Jim Finks of many of the day-to-day responsibilities of running the club.

"I'm going to be the one who takes the blame, regardless," Ditka told a local television station. "I know where the buck stops."

Cowboy coach Tom Landry said in Dallas he believes Ditka is ready for the head job in Chicago despite his lack of administrative experience.

"You have to spend a certain amount of time in a position of responsibility on an NFL staff. In my opinion, to be ready for a head coaching job," he said. You have to pay your dues. I think Mike has done that and I think he's ready."

Ditka, 42, joined the Cowboys coaching staff in 1973 after making All-Pro at tight end four times in his career with the Bears and Cowboys. He has coached special teams and receivers.

Ingemar Stenmark heads through a gate en route to a 66th World Cup win in a giant slalom race at Adelboden, Switzerland (UPI)

Poland says it won't host cross country ski finals

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI)— Poland has withdrawn its offer to hold the world cross country championships March 21 in Warsaw and organizers have sent out a worldwide appeal for a new meet site, athletics officials said Tuesday.
The Athletics Congress, the U.S. track and field governing body, said it received a telex Tuesday from the London-based International Amateur Athletic Federation announcing the cancellation.
"Yesterday, 18 January, Poland officially withdrew their offer to organize. May we ask you if, in this emergency, your federation wishes to organize the 1982 IAAF world cross country championships on the same date — March 21," the telex read.
The same message was sent to all IAAF member federations throughout the world. John Holt, IAAF general secretary, asked for responses by Jan. 25.
"TAC officials said there were no plans for the United States to pick up the 1982 meet.
The Polish federation two years ago won the right to host the 1982 meet, which was to be at Warsaw's Sluzewiec race course. Since the imposition of martial law in Poland, track officials had been contacting the Poles who would have to give up the meet.

World Cup Stenmark gets 66th win, says giant slalom easy

ADELBDODEN, Switzerland (UPI)— Claiming giant slalom racing is easy, Sweden's Ingemar Stenmark eked out his 66th World Cup victory in the men's giant slalom Tuesday.

Recording the fastest times in both heats on a hard-packed, icy track with a vertical drop of 375 meters on the Knielsenberg mountain, Stenmark registered his fourth win in a row this season, and his 35th in a giant slalom.
He opened a gap of 2.15 seconds over the shattered opposition led by World Cup leader Phil Mahre of the U.S. as he had an aggregate time of 2 minutes, 34.41 seconds.

Mahre finished in the runner-up spot for the sixth time this season but retained an almost insurmountable lead in the overall World Cup standings with 237 points, while runner-up Stenmark increased his total to 159.

"It's much easier than the slalom," Stenmark said after the race. "There is not so much risk involved, you can let the skis go. That's what I did in the second heat no, because you cannot rely on a one-second edge. You make a mistake and it's all gone. So I went full out in the second heat as well."

"The closest Stenmark came to a mistake was in the upper stretch of the second heat when he touched one of the 33 gates and was whirled off course."

"I got too close, touched it with my shoulder and rotated a bit, but I was never in trouble," he added.

This contrasted with Mahre who confessed: "I was lucky I made it to the finish in the first run."
Mahre has built up his impressive World Cup lead mostly by winning combined events, but he said he would abstain from downhill racing from now on.

"It makes no sense risking an injury by competing in downhill. No one can catch up with me in the World Cup anymore," he explained.

Looking ahead to the World Championships at Schladming, Austria, Mahre claimed he was not worried about those two and three-second gaps by which Stenmark has outskied the opposition in both slalom and giant slalom racing. "I was two seconds ahead of him in December when I was skiing better, now Ingemar skis better and beats me by two seconds," Mahre said. "But Ingemar is getting tired — who knows what will happen in two weeks time."
Some upstarts are adding to the uncertainty. Max Julien of Switzerland, who had never done better than 13th previously, carried his starting number 41 to a third-place finish, just 0.41 slower than Mahre on aggregate time.
"A few months ago, after a back injury, a doctor advised me to quit competitive skiing," the 30-year-old former Swiss junior champion beamed.
Hubert Strolz of Austria finished fourth while Switzerland's former World Cup champion Peter Luescher, who had hit skidding's skid row for two seasons, resurged with a fifth spot.

16-year-old becomes youngest downhill victor

BADGASTEIN, Austria (UPI)— Sylvie Eder, a 16-year-old Austrian girl, became the youngest woman ever to win a World Cup downhill race Tuesday by capturing the last on an ice-covered track that saw many of the favorites end up far behind.

Eder, who was third in another downhill the previous day on the same track, covered the 9,016-meter course in 1 minute, 58.10 seconds, followed by Elisabeth Chaud of France in 1:58.27 and Holly-Beth Flanders of the United States, Monday's winner, in 1:53.33.
Even the now-retired former downhill queen Annemarie Moser-Proell, like Eder from the Austrian province of Salzburg, was older when she won her first World Cup race.

"I had no reason to be nervous because I knew I could handle this track when I came third on the previous day on the same course after making a mistake on the final schuss," Eder said. "I like downhill, but I like slalom even more."

"Austrian Coach Werner Margreiter described Eder as one of the greatest talents this country has produced in recent years."
"Her style in the sharp bends on this icy course was perfect," Margreiter said. "There is a lot of talent in this girl and I think she can be equally good in all the three Alpine events — downhill, giant slalom and slalom."

another World Cup downhill at Grindelwald, Switzerland, last week, said: "I was a bit nervous at the Grindelwald race and I held back on some of the demanding sections."
"But this time, I knew I had to attack from start to finish if I want to win. The scare was totally gone."

Eder, a pretty woman from Leogang in the province of Salzburg, finished school only last year and said she was doing "nothing but skiing" at the moment.
"I have no other plans for the future at this time than to do as well as possible in the forthcoming World Championships," she said.

The Alpine World Championships begin Jan. 27 at Schladming, Austria, with the women's downhill to be held on Jan. 30.

Hall of Fame voting reveals psychological rocks

By STEVE DALEY
Chicago Tribune

Analysis

It's that time of year when sportswriters, specifically 10-year members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America, come in for their annual flaying over balloting for the game's Hall of Fame.

From season to season, ballplayers like Willie Mays or Hank Aaron are shipped off to Cooperstown by enormous margins, and deservedly so. Inevitably, though, and much to the consternation of baseball fans, a few of the wizards with the vote are unable to make room on their ballots for a Mays or an Aaron.

unanimity. Mays, in his turn, was found wanting by 23 of the electors, prompting an outcry that stopped just short of demands for public flogging.

What, the question follows, could a baseball writer be thinking when he leaves a Mays or an Aaron off the ballot? When a man hits more home runs than Babe Ruth, what else does he have to do? If Willie Mays is not worthy of a plaque in Cooperstown, then why bother with the voting rigamarole at all?

On the occasion of Mays' selection a few years ago, I found myself asking these same questions of Jack Lang, a New York baseball writer who is secretary of the BBWAA and the first man to get a look at the Hall of Fame ballot.

Lang was not enthralled with my inquiries, as my phone call was one of many that morning. Each and every caller was demanding the identities of the dissenters and perhaps some insight into their thought processes.

"How do you expect me to explain it?" Lang growled. "I don't know what they're thinking, for crying out loud. Maybe they've got their reasons. Maybe they're senile."

That is, of course, a possibility. Senility, often setting in at an early age, is considered an occupational hazard in this line of work. It is not always a bar to career advancement.

A more logical, though less romantic, notion has to do with human nature. For example, some of the BBWAA's eligible members did not vote for Willie Mays simply because they did not like him. Mays was and is a contentious, complicated individual, a man whose personality has little in common with his public image as the "Say, hey" kid. Not to put too fine a point on it, Mays had difficulties with writers and the feeling was often mutual.

If you don't believe a grown man would take vengeance for a locker-room snub or a bad interview by withholding his vote, then you hold a far more generous view of humanity than most sportswriters.
