Brooks offers right-to-work to Legislature

By BRUCE HAMMOND Times-News writer

BOISE — A union decision that apparently ended any hope of saving the Bunker Hill mine precipitated introduction of right-to-work legislation Friday.
Rep. John Brooks, R-Gooding, personally generated the bill, which will be referred to his Agricultural Affairs Committee for study, probably on Monday. The goal is to outlaw mandatory union membership as a condition of employment.
Brooks contends that if a right-to-work law existed, the Bunker Hill closure could have been avoided.
"Current state law allows union bosses to even union bosses" from Pittsburgh, Pa. — to exercise total control of Idaho's unions," Brooks said in a press conference Thursday.
"They (Bunker Hill workers) have seen the Eastern union bosses in action and have found themselves powerless," he said. "They had all been required to join and financially support the United Steelworkers of America as a condition of employment."
Bunker Hill workers had voted Sunday to accept the labor contract offered to them by a group of businessmen seeking to buy the troubled mine.

But many legislators say the Bunker Hill union decision and the right-to-work issue are unrelated. Others, who support right-to-work, say they are sorry to see it introduced this year because of the volatile political climate.
"Right-to-work does pass, I would fully expect the governor to veto it," says Sen. Dean Van Engelen; R-Burley. "I personally support right-to-work, but this year, we'll just bloody our heads, get all emotional and won't accomplish a thing."
House Minority Leader Melvin Hammond, D-Rexburg, also says he supports the proposal, but he wishes it hadn't been introduced this year because he believes it will disrupt budgeting and reapportionment work.
Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, who opposes the legislation, says union membership was not at issue in the Bunker Hill demise.
He said the four Idaho businessmen seeking to buy Bunker Hill "wanted a union that could speak for the workers because of the complex financial situation that was involved."

WPPSS shuts book on two nuclear plants

SEATTLE (UPI) — The Washington Public Power Supply System Friday terminated two partially built nuclear plants with a plan costing billions without netting any extra electricity.
WPPSS executives sat stone-faced after the vote as 20 anti-nuclear Light Brigade members popped champagne corks in the board room.
Unanimous with the exception of the City of Ellensburg, Wash., — which abstained — the vote sounded the death knell for WPPSS nuclear projects 4 and 5 at Hanford and Satsop, Wash.

Controlled termination will cost $8 utilities in Idaho, Oregon and Washington participating in the projects about $6 billion over the next 30 years.
"We are not here to gloat over the fall of plants 4 and 5," Light Brigade leader George Duval said as the WPPSS directors sat glumly around a large board room table.

"The public trust has been disregarded and now WPPSS is paying the price."
Robert Ferguson, WPPSS managing director, outlined a three-phase controlled termination program during which he said the combine would pay off its obligations to contractors on the projects, seek to seal the reactors in whole or in part, and dispose of the site under the directions of the federal Department of Energy and the state Energy Site Evaluation Council.

Participants in 4 and 5 must raise at least $70.5 million in loans to help WPPSS pay off obligations to two plants through the spring of 1983. WPPSS has asked for total loans of $94.6 million.
Consultant Ray Foleen recommended Feb. 5 as the date to have in place the 80 percent financial backing needed from the participants for the controlled termination plan.

Shutdown of the two projects became necessary after a plan to mothball them until June 1983 failed to gain support from the backing public utilities.
As result, the utilities have sunk $2.25 billion into the projects — a debt they must begin paying next year — without receiving a watt of electricity. Utility officials say interest on bonds sold for the projects will push the debt to $6 billion over the next three decades.

"We're being asked to pay $380,000 a year for 30 years for a dry hole," said Peter V. Wilson, Bonners Ferry, Idaho city attorney in an angry speech moments before the termination vote.
Wilson blasted the board for their handling of the plants and said he may convene a meeting of Idaho utilities to sue for breach of contract and malfeasance.
Idaho public utilities own 2.5 percent of the two plants.

More to come. Blizzards continue to pound Midwest states

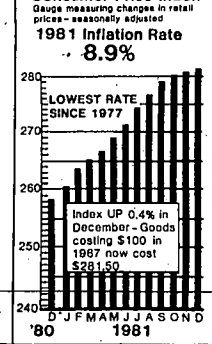

By United Press International
One of winter's worst blizzards roared out of the Rockies Friday and hit the snowpacked Midwest, dumping more than a foot of snow in Minnesota.
Heavy snow and blizzard conditions closed hundreds of schools and brought traffic to a near standstill from South Dakota to Minnesota.
The Twin Cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul received 13.8 inches of snow by Friday night, and meteorologist John White said he expected it to surpass the record of 17 inches set Thursday.
White said about 1 1/4 inches of snow was falling an hour.
Blizzard conditions were issued through Saturday, and the area braced for even more snow.
Conceding defeat to the furious storm Friday, the Transportation Department in southern Minnesota pulled snow plows off highways.
Nearly 20 Minnesota schools were closed and Twin Cities employers sent their workers home.
The storm "has been a mad house, absolutely crazy," said Minnesota State Patrol Maj. Al Gollissaid. "This is a situation where if problems do occur we will not get to them (people)."
Freak thunderstorms from the same storm spewed freezing rain and snow from Nebraska and Iowa to Indiana that turned roads into icy swaths that caused numerous traffic accidents.
Heavy rain lashed several southern states Friday and prompted flash flood watches for Tennessee, Kentucky, northern Alabama, Georgia and West Virginia.

A tornado in Hot Springs, Ark., overturned cars in a shopping center parking lot, ripped roofs from homes, knocked down trees and caused considerable damage to a department store. Damage estimates were not available.
"We had two or three minor injuries," said Hot Springs Police Sgt. Gary Miller. "There were really no injuries to speak of."
The twister touched down at 3:22 p.m. in the Market place shopping center, Miller said. The tornado piled some cars on top of others, he said.
Norfolk, Neb., was hit with 8 inches of snow "this morning during a thunderstorm," said a forecaster in neighboring Iowa.
The storm, which covered the Utah mountains with 4 feet of snow in 24 hours and buried northern Arizona under more than 2 feet Thursday, paused briefly in the Rockies before barreling into the Midwest.
In the Wasatch mountains east of Salt Lake City, 10 avalanches crashed down the slopes of Little Cottonwood Canyon Friday, blocking a highway, burying a dormitory and stranding about 3,000 people at two major resorts. No one was injured.
A chartered bus collided head-on with a car that apparently swerved out of control on snow-covered Interstate 84 — a mile east of Cascade Locks Friday. No serious injuries were reported, state police said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Inflation dropped dramatically last year to 8.9 percent, far below the double-digit rates of the previous two years.
The government reported Friday it was the best performance since 1977.
The Labor Department said its Consumer Price Index for 1981 reflected smaller increases for every major type of consumer expense except medical care.
Many private analysts said the recession had a significant effect in keeping prices down. They said 1982 promises to be still better even if the recession fades.
President Reagan quickly hailed the improvement. "The president welcomes the year-end result on this key indicator of progress against inflation," said deputy press secretary Larry Speakes.
But Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., said the White House did not deserve the credit. "The country should say to the Reagan administration 'Thanks for nothing,'" he said.
In a separate report, the Labor Department said the spending power of Americans — despite a federal tax cut and moderate inflation — decreased 3.3 percent in 1981, dropping half a percent in December alone for

Inflation rate lowest since 1977, but spending power drops 3.3%

The department said it is now discontinuing the spendable earnings report because of "conceptual and methodological shortcomings."

inflation dropped lower in 1981 than even the most optimistic forecasters predicted and reflected prices that moderated through the end of 1981.
The seasonally adjusted rates of 0.4 percent for December, 0.5 percent for November and 0.4 percent for October added up to the smallest three-month change since the second quarter of 1976, the department said.
Inflation hit a decade high of 13.3 percent in 1979 and was 12.4 percent in 1980. It was only 4.8 percent in 1978 and 6.8 percent in 1977.
Economist Lawrence Chimerose of the Bala Cynwyd, Pa., forecast firm, Chase Econometrics, said the recession "had a fairly significant effect in a number of ways." But even after it passes, he said, "We are in for significantly lower inflation for the next several years."
Chimerose predicted that the rate for 1982 will be between 7 and 8 percent, and economist Michael Evans of Evans Econometrics predicted 7 percent barring oil or weather catastrophes.
The Consumer Price Index for December stood at 281.5, meaning consumers had to pay $281.50 for the same "market basket" of goods and services that cost $100 in 1967.

Plan would increase state taxes to offset federal changes

By BRUCE HAMMOND Times-News writer
BOISE — A slight increase in the state income tax is needed to offset fewer federal dollars, according to a member of the House Revenue and Exactions Committee.
Rep. Morgan Munger, R-Ola, has drafted a bill that not only conforms to the new federal tax code but also brackets several upper-income tax brackets to recoup some of the lost federal revenue.
It is one of two such bills the tax committee will examine next week, as soon as the other proposal arrives from Gov. John Evans' office, said committee Chairman Rep. Steve Antve, R-Rupert.

from their federal returns, says Mungler, who also serves as chairman of the Joint Revenue Projection Committee.
The end result, he claims, would be a $12 to $15 million increase in state revenue without excluding anyone from the federal tax relief. Idahoans receiving large federal income tax reductions would lose only a portion of it to the increased state tax.
The governor's proposal asks for no tax increase. It seeks only the adoption of the federal tax guidelines in the Economic Recovery Act, which was adopted by Congress last year.
Munger says his plan is needed not only to raise more state funding but to avoid expected revenue losses due to the federal tax-cut program, which is expected to be incorporated into the state tax structure.

Antone says these losses in state tax revenue could amount to $3 million during the present fiscal year and another $9 million in fiscal year 1983.
However, Antone says Mungler's bill probably will encounter a rocky path in his tax committee.
"I expect mixed reaction (to Mungler's plan)," he said Friday. "Just because it raises taxes at all will mean a certain amount of opposition, especially in an election year."
However, Antone said there is strong support for conforming state tax laws with the federal program "to simply make it easier for Idahoans to file their returns" and to save the state costly bookkeeping headaches.
"It (exact conformity to the federal code) could result in losses of state revenue," Antone acknowledged.

"The last big change like this that we had increased the personal income exemption from $750 to $1,000. It was absorbed totally by the state, resulting in about a $17-million loss in state revenue over two years."
It's Mungler's contention that the same thing will happen if the new federal tax code is adopted without some increase in Idaho's taxes.
Munger says his plan will save the state about half of the estimated $9-million loss expected from implementation of federal tax changes. On top of that, he says, it will generate continued state revenues into fiscal year 1984.
Munger's bill originally was proposed by the Idaho Society of Certified Public Accountants, which still backs the legislation.

Convicted rapist cleared

LEBANON, Ohio (UPI) — An Ohio man serving a maximum 200-year prison sentence for two attacks "ski mask rapist" Jon B. Simonis admitted committing walked out of prison a free man Friday.

Cox, of Lancaster, Ohio, was met at the prison gates by his father, who hugged him. After leaving the Lebanon Correctional Institution, Cox was taken to Lancaster by authorities to formalize his release.

In April 1980, Cox was given a 56- to 200-year sentence for two rapes and robberies to which Simonis, formerly of Carroll, Ohio, confessed.

Simonis, a 30-year-old unemployed lab technician from Lake Charles, La., already has been sentenced to 21 life terms plus 2,890 years for rapes and robberies he committed in Louisiana.

Airman blames fire for crash

MOUNTAIN HOME AIR FORCE BASE (UPI) — The pilot of an F-111 fighter jet which crashed on the western Idaho desert says he and another airman bailed out because a fire erupted in one of the craft's engines.

La. Col. Roland McDonald says a fire-warning light came on minutes after the jet took off Wednesday. The first thing that crossed his mind, he said, was that the light was malfunctioning.

But McDonald said Thursday he shut down the left engine as a precaution, and seconds later the aircraft became uncontrollable and rolled over.

"We knew we had to get out," he said from a hospital bed at the base. McDonald and Lt. Alan Walker ejected from the $18 million jet seconds before it slammed into the desert about 10 miles from the airstrip. Walker suffered a back injury in the descent and was hospitalized at the base infirmary. McDonald was also kept under observation, but was released from the medical facility late Thursday.

New twist to drive-in banking

CHILOQUIN, Ore. (UPI) — Authorities are looking for a burglar who gave the term "drive-through bank" his meaning early today.

A Klamath County sheriff's spokesman said a burglar used a vehicle to ram through the north wall of the U.S. National Bank office in Chiloquin; then drove through the wall-size glass window on the bank's south side for a quick getaway.

Officers said the "drive-through" burglar took a typewriter, television and computer. Authorities would not say whether any money was missing.

Investigators said a light-colored pickup truck apparently was used for the unusual night withdrawal, which occurred around 1 a.m.

Boyce suspect pleads innocent

BOISE (UPI) — A California man accused of helping convicted spy Christopher Boyce hold up banks in three Northwest states has pleaded innocent in U.S. District Court to charges of robbery and harboring a fugitive.

Calvin Robinson, 40, Richmond, Calif., entered the plea Thursday during a hearing before U.S. Magistrate James Christensen. The magistrate set a March 24 trial date in Moscow and continued bond in the case at $25,000.

Prosecutors allege Robinson, Boyce and Gloria Ann White, Newport, Ore., conspired to hold up eight banks in Washington, Idaho and Montana between September 1980 and June 1981. They also claimed Robinson helped Boyce flee California following the spy's Jan. 21, 1980, escape from a federal prison in Lompoc.

Jets may get better recorders

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Difficulties in analyzing the noisy, high-speed tapes of a crashed Air-Florida jetliner may spur efforts to have more modern equipment installed in passenger planes, a government investigator said Friday.

The National Transportation Safety Board is painstakingly checking the tapes of the voice recorder and flight data recorder for clues to the cause of the crash of the twin-engine Boeing 737 in a swirling snowstorm Jan. 13.

"We're still slogging away at it," said Carol Roberts, head of laboratory services at the safety board headquarters, where the two "black boxes" are being analyzed behind locked doors protected by security guards.

Rabbit task force to experiment

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Task Force on Jack Rabbit Control will begin experiments involving zinc phosphide — a poison which does not readily kill should not harm predators who might eat rabbits that had ingested the substance.

State veterinarian Dr. Greg Nelson said Friday University of Idaho scientists will begin study of the poison Monday in eastern Idaho fields infested with the crop-eating pest.

He said task force members would observe the studies and present the outcome at the group's next meeting in Idaho Falls. Nelson said the group expected to hold the meeting in about 10 days.

In addition, the group refused to condemn the method now used to control the rabbits — clubbing them to death.

"They (the task force) did not condemn any system of eradication that is now used as long as it is being done in a humane fashion," said Max Hanson, director of the Idaho Department of Agriculture.

"They did not condemn the people for hitting them in the head. That's still humane regardless of what some people think — it's a sudden death."

Eastern Idaho farmers have clubbed to death about 70,000 jack rabbits in seven drives this winter.

Right

Continued from Page 1 involved, had to know exactly how many workers they would have, at what wage and for how long before labor unrest could come up," Peavey says. "A strong union group was the only means by which they could have worked things out."

Most legislators polled by The Times-News on Friday agreed that Brooks' bill will pass the House with relative ease. Last year, Brooks sponsored similar legislation that passed the House but died in Senate committee.

Again, it looks as if the Senate will be the deciding arena, most legislators agree.

"I think if it gets to the Senate floor, it will pass," Van Engelen says.

But Van Engelen questions whether the bill would survive committee debate. Republican leaders asked last year that right-to-work legislation not be introduced because it could be used as a re-election issue for Gov. John Evans, who opposes the legislation.

Senate Majority Leader James Ritchie, R-Boise, says he expects Brooks' plan to pass the Senate.

"I detect enough enthusiasm for it this year," he says.

In his press conference, Brooks says he believes he has "19 or 20" senators supporting his plan.

But Van Engelen questions arguments that right-to-work law would have aided Bunker Hill negotiations, "but they are similar concepts. People are unhappy with the union deal in Bunker Hill, and they see similarities in the right-to-work issue."

While Senate Minority Leader Ron Twilley, D-Boise, says he doesn't know what the bill's fate would be in the Senate, he agrees that such legislation wouldn't have helped the workers in Kellogg.

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert, Jerome Gooding areas:

Snow through evening, changing to rain during the afternoon. Slight chance of freezing rain. Windy southwest 10 to 15 mph. Highs in the middle 30s today and middle 40s Sunday, lows 22 to 27 degrees. Canaan Prairie, Halley, Wood River valley: Snow showers becoming more numerous today and Sunday. Highs 23 today and middle 30s Sunday. Lows near 20.

Western Nevada and Utah:

Cloudy with chance of rain or snow in Nevada through Sunday. Highs in the 30s. Lows 8 to 18. Snow changing to rain today and Saturday with more in mountain areas. Rain or snow decreasing Sunday. Warmer. Highs in the 40s. Lows in the 30s.

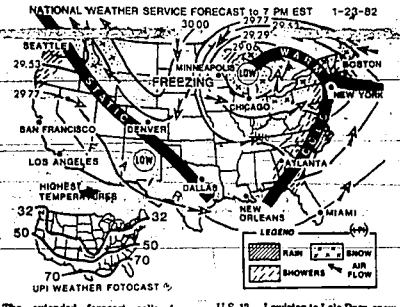

Boyscouts:

A major change in the Idaho weather pattern is expected to change snow into rain over wide areas of the state today. "Warmer, moist air riding a strong westerly wind flow off the Pacific Coast, replaced a cold air mass over the state for the past week. Snow which began falling in the change in conditions moved in is expected to turn to rain today and continue through Sunday. Temperatures will moderate with highs in the middle 30s today and the middle 40s on Sunday in the Magic Valley.

A moderate snow warning was issued for northern and southwestern Idaho Friday, to remain in effect today. Traveler's advisories were also posted for most of the state.

Light snow fell over parts of the state Friday morning and increased in the west during the afternoon. Dryness of the snow produced only a little melting. Gusty winds of 15 to 30 mph were reported in the Magic Valley and upper Snake River valley, producing wet chills or sleet to 30 below.

The coldest spot in the state Friday morning was Red Rock at a below zero with most other minimums in the teens or below. Afternoon readings were in the 20s at most places with the warmest 32 degrees at Lewiston.

The extended forecast calls for warmer temperatures Monday through Wednesday with occasional snow in the mountains and rain in the valleys. Highs will be in the 30s and 40s with lows in the 20s and low 30s.

The warmest reading in the nation on Friday was 81 at McCall, Idaho, while the coldest was 32 below zero at Great Falls, Mont.

More snow and drifting were reported across the state, making highways difficult to maneuver for most Idaho travelers.

Here are the road conditions as reported by the Idaho Department of Transportation.

- U.S. 95 - Plummer to Bonanza Ferry, broken snow floor, snowing; Adams County line to Grangeville, snow floor; Craigmont and Guide Hill, icy spots; Lewiston Hill and Moscow, broken snow floor. SH 85 - Horseshoe Bend to Donnelly, snow floor and snowing; McCall to New Meadows, broken snow floor. 190 - Coeur d'Alene to Lookout Pass, snow floor and broken snow floor; chains advised for Fourth of July Canyon and Lookout Pass.

Idaho Legislature Briefs

Kelly will introduce tuition bill

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. Dan Kelly, R-Mountain Home, Monday will ask the House Education Committee to introduce a constitutional amendment allowing Idaho's higher-education institutions to charge tuition.

Kelly said his tuition proposal might succeed where others failed because it would leave the Legislature the ultimate authority to set tuition rates. Past tuition proposals have given that authority solely to the state Education Board.

Under Kelly's plan, the board could approach the Legislature with a proposal to charge tuition at the three universities and Lewis-Clark State College. Lawmakers then would decide whether to authorize tuition. If it decided to do so, it would determine a percentage of the cost of instruction as the basis for the tuition rate.

House retrieves bills from committee

BOISE (UPI) — The House voted overwhelmingly Friday to retrieve two bills that had been shelved in an unorthodox move by the committee.

The committee a day earlier had refused to print the bills, drawing frowns from the House leadership — which viewed the action as overstepping the panel's authority. The committee generally reviews legislation only for typographical mistakes and other technical errors.

House State Affairs Committee Chairman George Danielson, R-Cambridge, was able to resurrect on a 52-21 vote by the lower chamber a bill that would transfer anti-discrimination law enforcement to the Idaho Human Rights Commission from the state Labor and Industrial Services Department.

On another motion by Danielson, the House agreed to remove from the Printing Committee a state Law Enforcement Department proposal to give it power to revoke beer licenses of taverns which permit gambling on the premises. The vote was 61-2.

Both bills will return to the State Affairs Committee for final House committee consideration.

Revenue predictions sent to Senate

BOISE (UPI) — House resolutions predicting the amount of state general fund revenue collections over the next year and a half were whisked to the Senate without debate Friday.

After Rep. Morgan Munger, R-Ola, outlined the findings of the Joint Revenue Projections Committee, the House voted by voice to approve the amendment of the fiscal year 1982 prediction to $427.6 million from the original $422.2 million figure. Rep. Rachel Gilbert, R-Boise, was the only dissenter.

Then, voting, 53-7, the House adopted a resolution projecting general fund income of $463.4 million in fiscal year 1983.

Bill would end insanity as defense

BOISE (UPI) — An attempt to make Idaho the first state to eliminate insanity as a defense in criminal trials gained preliminary support Friday.

The Senate Judiciary and Rules Committee voted without dissent to print the measure, but members promised a full-scale hearing will be held on the issue before a final vote is taken.

Before the bill was introduced, a dispute broke out over what impact it would have on the state budget.

Deputy Attorney General Ken McClure said if the bill is passed Idaho will be the first state to enact a law wiping out the use of a criminal defense based on the mental state of the defendant.

Three states passed laws doing away with such a defense around the turn of the century, but they were declared unconstitutional.

Bunker Hill suit moved to U.S. Court

BOISE (UPI) — A Bunker Hill Co. employee's lawsuit alleging the international steelworkers union abandoned its duty to Kellogg members by refusing to abide by the results of a local election has been transferred.

The case moves from state court in Wallace to U.S. District Court in Boise, a federal court spokesman said Friday.

The suit, filed in First District Court by union member Arthur Aamodt, claims national representatives of the United Steelworkers of America union improperly refused to honor the Jan. 24 election results — which approved the signing of an agreement between the Kellogg local and potential buyers of the Bunker Hill mine and smelter.

Aamodt alleged the national union legally sign any wage or benefit agreements with people who did not actually own the company.

'We contended that once the union called for a vote and had a vote, they had a duty to abide by its results. They breached that duty.'

They also said the vote was advisory and not binding on local-union officials who resigned after the rank-and-file voted to take a 25-percent cut in wages and rollbacks in benefits to keep Bunker Hill open.

Aamodt's lawyer, Thomas Mitchell of Coeur d'Alene, said the request that the case be transferred to Boise came from the attorney for the international union, Wayne Fuller of Caldwell.

"I personally don't care where we try it," Mitchell said Friday. "We'll get a fair jury anywhere in Idaho."

Fuller was out of town Friday and could not be reached for comment. Mitchell had obtained a temporary restraining order from the First District which allowed the agreement — signed by newly elected union officials — to go into effect. He said he didn't yet know what impact the transfer to U.S. District Court might have on the 14-day order.

"We contended that once the union called for a vote and had a vote, they had a duty to abide by its results," the lawyer said. "They breached that duty by refusing to sign the agreement, causing considerable harm to Mr. Aamodt and others who are in the same situation."

He said plaintiffs want the case tried as a class action, representing all Bunker Hill workers who were employed at the time company officials announced the shutdown last fall.

BBB chief admits using Birch reports as own

BOISE (UPI) — The executive director of the Boise Better Business Bureau has admitted he stole material from John Birch Society literature on 15 separate occasions and printed it verbatim in a local newspaper under his own name.

The admission by Ken Thornberg, a former columnist for the business weekly "Commerce Journal," brought a strong rebuke from the newspaper's publisher, who called the incident "blatant plagiarism."

Thornberg said he used the material with the permission of the conservative John Birch organization, but did not inform the group in the process. He said he did not inform editors about the source of the reprints because "there was no reason to."

"I thought they wanted good, truthful, factual information and that's all," said Thornberg, himself a Society member.

However, Publisher Christopher O'Kelly said Thursday the reprints amounted to "blatant plagiarism and profitreering by someone who represents the Better Business Bureau..."

O'Kelly himself revealed the alleged plagiarism in a front-page story in the Journal this week. The publisher, calling the incident "atrocious," demanded Thornberg's immediate resignation from the BBB and informed the board of directors of his discovery.

Board member Rudy Barchas, a Boise attorney, said the board was "obviously concerned, but it doesn't want to do anything until it gets all sides of the story — and it intends to do so."

Thornberg also said he suspects the attack by O'Kelly is related to complaints received by the BBB about the weekly newspaper. Businesses have called the bureau, he said, to complain that advertising was not printed and subscriptions were not being delivered.

"I feel sorry for the guy," he said. "He has personal difficulties and I hope he works things out."

Friends, foes will greet Watt in Boise

BOISE (UPI) — James Watt, the controversial head of the U.S. Interior Department, is scheduled to arrive in Boise Saturday to help raise funds for the state's Republican Party and Rep. Larry Craig.

Watt is expected to attend two events — the First District congressman, in Caldwell and at the home of potato millionaire J.R. Simplot. Later Saturday, he will speak at the GOP's Legislative Gala in Boise.

The announcement that Watt would be visiting Idaho prompted the scheduling of rallies by both his supporters and opponents.

Murphy rancher Paul Nettleton and Grand View resident Rayola Jacobsen said they were organizing a demonstration to show support for the secretary's land-use policies, which they called "a breath of fresh mountain air."

But the Boise State University Conservation Group said it would hold a rally of its own to protest Watt's administration. A group spokesman said the gathering was intended to show the Interior Department chief

"he doesn't have the mandate he thinks he does."

"We would like to stress the fact that we do not believe James Watt has the solid support or a mandate from Western people, and we believe the majority of Westerners oppose Mr. Watt's policies and are concerned about the environmental policies of the Reagan administration," said conservation group director Bill Lawrence.

But Nettleton said, "Watt's policies are a breath of fresh air. Secretary Watt was raised on a ranch in Wyoming."

Man fined $1,000 for $1.70 theft

OROFINO (UPI) — Scott Barham, 45, Orofino, was ordered to pay a fine of $1,000 plus $11.50 court costs for stealing a $1.70 bottle of aspirin he says he "simply forgot" was in his pocket.

Judge John Maynard imposed the stiff penalty on the defendant.

"The state finds it entirely incredible that a person would go into a store to buy two specific items, quickly find what he wants to go to the checkout stand — again quickly — then have no memory of what he paid for and what he didn't," said Deputy Prosecutor Steve Toblason.

Judge Maynard accused the unemployed Barham of concocting the story, adding if he couldn't pay the fine and court costs, he could work off the costs at $5 per day in the Nez Perce County Jail.

An off-duty Lewiston police officer serving as a security officer at the store said he witnessed Barham pocket the aspirin and then go through the checkout stand.

Atlanta prosecutors say 10 murders linked to Williams

ATLANTA (UPI) — Prosecutors said Friday they have evidence linking Wayne B. Williams with 10 additional murders and that blood matching that of two of the victims was found in the suspect's car.

The disclosure was the most sensational to date in the 4-week old trial and came in the form of a request to Judge Clarence Cooper that the state be permitted to submit the evidence in open court.

The jury was out of the courtroom when the request was made, and Cooper recessed the trial for the weekend to give himself time to study the proposal. He said he hoped the trial could proceed on Monday.

Williams, a 23-year-old black freelance photographer is on trial for the murders of Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, and Nathaniel Cater, 27.

But Assistant District Attorney Joe Drolet went before the bench Friday afternoon and told Cooper the prosecution was prepared to offer "other transaction" evidence linking Williams with 10 other victims. The point, he said, was to establish Williams' "plan, scheme, bent of mind and identity."

He then recited off the names of Alfred Evans, 14; Eric Middlebrooks, 15; Charles Stevens, 12; Lubie Ceter, 14; Terry Poe, 15; Patrick Baltazar, 11; Larry Rogers, 21; Joseph Bell 15;

John Porter, 30; and William Barrett, 17.

Porter, 30, a slightly built black man whose body was found last Spring, was not originally listed among the 23 young Atlanta blacks found slain during a 22-month period.

Drolet told Cooper police had linked Williams with the additional slayings through fiber evidence, and also disclosed that police had witnesses who claimed to have seen Williams with Ceter, Bell and Rogers prior to their deaths — although he denies any contact with all of the victims.

In addition, he said blood found in Williams' 1970 station wagon matched the blood type of Porter and Barrett, both of whom suffered stab wounds.

Defense Attorney Al Binder angrily disputed the state's attempt to link Williams to the other slayings, saying it would hopelessly prejudice the jury.

He claimed that police had other suspects in many of those cases, and mentioned homosexual involvement in several.

Binder also said the state had presented evidence to prove that Payne and Cater were murdered.

"We haven't heard one word in this courtroom since I've been in it from any witness that saw Wayne Williams do anything in a criminal manner," Binder said.

Binder charged the state's case was "circumstantial" to which Drolet agreed. But the assistant district attorney said "a logical connection runs through these cases; most definitely that pattern caught the attention of the entire western world."

"I don't think there's any law enforcement officer in Georgia or Washington that would take the stand and tell you that all of these killings were accomplished by one person," Binder countered.

Earlier an FBI agent raised the possibility that Williams took his alleged victims into his parents home — and the agent, under questioning, agreed that this could make Williams' elderly parents suspect in the sensational case.

Williams lived in the five-room house on Penelope Street with his father, Homer, and mother, Faye, who "spent themselves" into bankruptcy financing his talent-scout enterprises.

FBI fiber expert Hal Deadman took up the entire morning session Friday and indicated officially for the first time that Cater and Payne may at some point have actually been inside the Williams' home.

"I would estimate it virtually impossible to obtain these findings in these cases and not have the victims in the two cases have some contact with the home or automobile of Mr. Williams," he said.

Anti-abortion crusaders rally

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Encouraged by a meeting with President Reagan, an estimated 25,000 anti-abortion crusaders staged a "March for Life" through the streets of Washington Friday.

The demonstrators, marking the ninth anniversary of the 1973 Supreme Court decision legalizing most abortions, circled the White House and marched on Capitol Hill to demand action from the still-recessed Congress on the abortion issue.

Supporters of the right to abortion held a religious service and then released 2,000 green balloons inscribed with the slogan "rejoice for choice" over downtown Washington.

The predominantly white and young anti-abortionists carried red roses which have become the symbol of their campaign, signs that stating support for proposals introduced in Congress to outlaw abortion and placards, including several showing the crucified fetus.

A cold and cloudy day met the marchers as they arrived by chartered bus and car — some from as far away as Kansas and Nebraska — and gathered on the Ellipse in front of the White House.

As Reagan left the White House for Camp David last week, his helicopter flew over the rally site, dropping out the invocation. Demonstrators cheered him and wildly waved their placards toward the chopper.

District of Columbia police at mid-afternoon estimated the crowd at 25,000.

Defenders of the Supreme Court decision told a press conference the anti-abortion movement is in disarray. But they voiced concern that a conservative Congress might pass a "backdoor" constitutional amendment by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, to effectively outlaw most abortion.

"It is true that the anti-abortion movement is in disarray," Judith Widdicombe of the National Abortion Rights Action League said. But, she said, "this dissenation may not keep the Hatch amendment from being passed."

Several hundred supporters of the Religious Coalition for Abortion Rights joined in worship at Washington's historic New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, just two blocks from the stream of placard-bearing marchers.

Three anti-abortion supporters interrupted the service briefly as they sought to take over the altar area of the church and unfurled a large banner reading "Sacrifice."

Religious leaders told the interfaith congregation that the right to abortion was based on religious beliefs and that "no government has the right to enforce a public belief on us."

Thousands join protest at the Washington Monument

Reagan wants unity

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan gave encouragement to anti-abortion leaders Friday but indicated he will not act on the issue politically until the movement unifies behind a single legislative agenda.

"It's nice to have a man in the White House who supports our position," said Rep. Charles Dougherty, R-Pa., co-chairman of the Pro-Life Congressional Caucus.

Later, thousands of chanting anti-abortion demonstrators, some carrying cardboard cutouts of babies tacked to small wooden crosses, marched past the White House.

Reagan by then had flown to Camp David, Md., for the weekend.

The Rev. Jerry Falwell, head of Moral Majority, said the president "reaffirmed an unwavering commitment to the pro-life cause" during the private meeting with 19 anti-abortion leaders and three congressmen.

"I sensed a unity of Americans in this room today toward some how, some way and very quickly developing a legislative or judicial means by which the biological holocaust in this country that is costing 1.5 million lives a year among unborn babies can be stopped," Falwell told reporters.

The president did not discuss specific legislation with the group. Deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan expressed "hope that all of them can come together . . . and can come to common ground." He said the president "looks forward to reviewing legislation when it gets to his desk."

Cuban officials release 4 American prisoners

MIAMI (UPI) — Four Americans were released from a Cuban prison Friday and returned to the United States thankful their ordeal was over and eager to be home.

"Hello America," a joyous Robert Kovick said after stepping off a chartered jet at Miami International Airport. "I never felt so free."

Kovick, 39, a Fort Lauderdale restaurateur, and the others were released two days after three New York congressmen met with President Fidel Castro to urge the release of American prisoners.

"Kovick looking fit," said he hoped their release would signal "topher cooperation with the Cuban government so that the other prisoners can be released."

Released along with Kovick were William Mahaney, 36, of Margate, Fla.; and Robert Bassett, 42, of Davie, Fla.

Rep. Hamilton Fish, R-N.Y., who helped negotiate the release, said at the airport that at least 13 other Americans remain in Cuban jails on drug and illegal entry charges.

In Washington, the State Department said its records showed there were 15 "Americans" remaining in Cuban custody of charges.

Kovick, Bassett and Mahaney had been held since June 11, 1981, when their sailboat ran aground on a reef off the Cuban coast during a tropical storm. Cuban authorities had charged them with drug smuggling and illegal entry, but all denied they had drugs with them.

13 months had been the longest — since then. He said he was arrested Dec. 10, 1980, aboard a freighter that had docked in Havana on its way to Miami and charged with illegal entry. He said he was the only American on board and had no idea why he was arrested.

Authorities said none of the men face charges in the United States.

Only Kovick and Mahaney spoke with reporters. Simons and Bassett left with relative immediacy after leaving the plane.

Fish greeted the new arrivals and said he was grateful to Castro. "I would like to express my great pleasure in the response to our efforts by the Cuban government which resulted in these men," Fish said.

Kovick, greeted by his girlfriend and brother, said he planned to return to the restaurant business in Fort Lauderdale.

Kovick and Mahaney said they were not mistreated in the Cominabo del Este jail on the outskirts of Havana.

"I'd never been in prison before," Kovick said, "but I suspect I was treated the same as any prisoner could expect. But I never lost hope."

Soviet spies plan terrorism at 1984 Olympics

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Soviet Union is dispatching spies and criminals to the United States to stage a Jewish immigration who-be-ho-ness — a "Russian Mafia," a police report disclosed Friday.

The police chief and the president of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee later attempted to downplay the report that the Soviets might stage terrorist activities at the 1984 Olympics, but neither denied accuracy of the report.

The one-page report entitled "Soviet Emigre Mafia," states the flow of Soviet criminals and intelligence agents is entering the country through misuse of the refugee quota system for Russian Jews.

"The Soviets apparently believe that the 1984 Olympic Games offer an opportunity to embarrass the United States," said the report, distributed at a police brass luncheon for top local business and media executives and published Friday in the Daily News of Los Angeles.

"The Soviet news agency, TASS, has already characterized Los Angeles as crime-ridden and smog-beset and has hinted some disaster might befall the Games.

"It is easy to see how the Soviets might try to make their prediction a reality by planning criminal or terrorist activity that would affect persons involved with the Games."

Police Chief Darryl Gates, at a hastily called news conference Friday, exceeded the report was "speculation," but added he "saw nothing in here so out of line it shouldn't have been stated."

He said it would be "naive" not to consider the possibility of terrorist disruption at the Games.

"I think this country is the most decent country in the world," Gates said, "but we're also very naive people. That combination can cause a lot of trouble."

Gates stated he was not concerned about the possible international ramifications of the allegations.

"No one's said anything much nice about the Soviet Union lately, anyway," he added.

Detectives said in the report they have identified about 20 Soviet immigrants in Los Angeles engaged in criminal activity — including murder, extortion, fraud, receiving stolen property and counterfeiting. Details of the crimes and the names of alleged perpetrators were withheld by Gates due to ongoing investigations.

At a separate news conference, Peter Ueberroth, president of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, told reporters he was made aware of the police information "some time ago," but termed the report "a conjecture of some possibilities."

Three convicted of slavery

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — A federal jury convicted three migrant bosses Friday night of conspiring to ensnare migrant workers and creating a regime of fear at a farm camp where one crop picker died unnoticed in a field.

Dennis Warren, 19, of Orlando, Fla., and John Lester Harris, 39, of Bullock County, Ala., were convicted of conspiracy to enslave workers resulting in a death. They could be sentenced to 20 years in prison on that charge.

Dennis Warren's brother, Richard Warren, 22, of Orlando, was acquitted of conspiring in a way that caused migrant worker Robert Anderson to die Sept. 13, but he was convicted on a lesser conspiracy charge as well as one count of enslaving a worker.

Justice Department attorneys said this was the first time a migrant slavery case involved a death.

"We'll vigorously prosecute cases of this type in the future," prosecutor Richard Roberts said.

When asked whether the decision might change the treatment of migrant workers in North Carolina, fellow Justice Department attorney Susan King said emphatically, "I hope so."

Witnesses testified they were tricked into coming to the camp and then beaten and intimidated.

Von Bulow defense loses two arguments

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — The defense lost two battles Friday on the admissibility of evidence in the high society trial of jet-setter Claus von Bulow, charged with twice trying to murder his wealthy socialite wife.

Judge Thomas H. Needham refused a motion to bar the press and public from arguments on admissibility of a black bag, said to contain a needle tinged with insulin, and a statement of Bulow made to police before his indictment.

He also denied a defense motion to exclude as state evidence important medical tests made from blood samples taken from von Bulow's wife after the second alleged attempt on her life.

Needham said defense lawyers failed to prove that news accounts of the circumstances of a yet crucial state evidence would infringe on von Bulow's Sixth Amendment right to a fair trial.

Needham said jurors, while not suggested, would be "consideration in carrying out the responsibility" to avoid reading newspapers or listening to broadcasts about testimony on the motions.

Defense lawyer Herald Price Fabinger argued that evidence was inadmissible because the blood samples were destroyed after the tests were made. But Needham ruled the tests, done by independent labs, were unbiased.

Fabinger's motion also objected to the use of a "private prosecutor" by the "incentive" former Manhattan District Attorney Richard H. Kuh

CLAUS VON BULOW
Danish-born socialite who was hired by von Bulow's stepchildren.

Needham recessed the court to Monday when arguments will begin on the motions to suppress the state's circumstantial evidence. The two motions the defense wanted to argue in private involved requests to suppress a black bag alleged to contain a needle tinged with insulin and a three-hour statement of Bulow given to state police last April before his indictment and without an attorney present.

Von Bulow, 55, a one-time aide to billionaire J. Paul Getty, is accused of twice trying to murder his socialite wife with insulin injections during both the 1979 and 1980 Christmas holidays in the Newport mansion they shared during their 15-year marriage.

Reagan aides woo top conservatives

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two of President Reagan's top White House aides assured a conference of conservative politicians Friday the administration has not lost sight of its conservative goals.

Presidential Counselor Edwin Meese and chief of staff James Baker also asked the conservatives for their help as Reagan battles with Congress to preserve his tax cut program and get new spending cuts.

The two top Reagan aides appeared at the 1982 Conservative Leadership Conference one day after a "who's who" of the nation's conservative leadership sharply criticized the administration for losing the momentum in the goal of turning the United States sharply to the right.

The conference — made up largely of major contributors to conservative political action committees — gave a friendly greeting to Meese and Baker. It was leaders of these committees who led the criticism Thursday of the administration — and particularly its top staff aides.

"The forecasts say there will be an economic recovery the middle of the year and we certainly hope that is the case," Meese said. "But it is not going to work unless we make it work."

"And that is the reason the president is not backing off from any of the things he has done in his first year in office. We are equally adamant about maintaining the tax reduction program and not allowing Congress to tamper with it. We are going forward with our efforts to cut federal spending. In all of these areas we need your help."

"There will be a big move this year to cut back on defense spending," Meese warned. "We cannot let this happen."

Meese gave no specifics of what Reagan will propose next week in his State of the Union address, but he said entitlement programs — things like veterans benefits — must be trimmed.

"We have to reform these entitlement programs or we're never going to balance the budget," he said.

Baker reassured the conservatives, "This president is going to stick to his program, there is no pulling back."

Interior Secretary James Watt addressed a closed luncheon session of the conference.

Soviets feel sanctions' crunch: Congressman

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressman who just visited the Soviet Union said Friday he came away with the impression that despite claims to the contrary, the Kremlin has been "bitterly" by the U.S. economic sanctions imposed in the Polish crisis.

But Rep. Elliott Levitas, D-Ga., said Soviet officials he met seemed "rather smug about the fact that martial law was imposed and that solidarity was suppressed without the necessity of Soviet intervention."

Levitas and Rep. Bud Shuster, R-Pa., met with reporters on Capitol Hill to report on their six-day visit to the Soviet Union earlier this month. They were concerned mainly about the fate of Soviet dissidents.

But asked about the Polish situation, Levitas said he and Shuster discussed the events in Poland with Soviet officials "at great length at every possible occasion."

"They repeatedly made reference to the fact that they resent greatly our sanctions," Levitas said. President Reagan imposed economic sanctions on Poland and the Soviet Union in response to the martial law regime in Poland.

"They kept saying the sanctions weren't going to cause them any trouble. But it obviously is causing them trouble because they were so sensitive about it."

Levitas said he and Shuster are stung bitterly by the sanctions.

Levitas said one Soviet official "remarked to us that the United States would have liked nothing better than to find the Soviet Union with one foot in Afghanistan, with one foot in Poland and bogged down for 10 years so you would have a free hand."

Computer cuts down on fraud

Officials laud food stamp system

WASHINGTON — Food stamp cheating and bureaucratic errors could be reduced sharply by a computer system pioneered in Michigan, federal officials were told Friday.

"From our experience, the cost savings from the system is significant," said Noble Kheder, chief deputy director of the Michigan Department of Social Services.

Kheder told Agriculture Secretary John Block and Health and Human Services Secretary Richard Schweiker that the new system will cut administrative costs for the food stamp program in Michigan by about 44 percent this year.

The savings for state and federal taxpayers in administrative expenses alone will be about $3.5 million this year. The system will produce more savings by virtually eliminating fraud, he added.

"We paid about $350,000 for the system," Kheder said. "It paid for itself by the third or fourth day we had it."

Block and Schweiker expressed enthusiasm about the Michigan program and promised to study it, along with other similar proposals for pilot projects in the nationwide food stamp program.

"We've a six-month period we have had losses of over $500 million on food stamp benefits paid out incorrectly," Block said. "Part of the problem is that we are operating this program almost the same way as 20 years ago. We should catch up with the times."

Systems like the one in Michigan, Block said, represent "a revolutionary approach to our operations."

In Michigan, plastic credit cards are issued to food stamp recipients and then read by computers to dispense benefits. The cards have magnetic strips containing information about benefits. The food stamps are issued only after the card is placed in a computer terminal at food stamp outlet.

The card system, started last September in Wayne and Genesee counties, replaces paper authorization cards that were mailed monthly. The paper cards often were lost, mistakenly reported missing by some recipients who then used a reissued card to draw double benefits.

"Kheder said the computer credit cards, costing a half-cent each, are mailed only once. They can't be used to obtain double benefits, he said, because each transaction is instantly recorded by the state's computer system.

Michigan officials now are investigating the possible use of the credit cards at grocery check-out counters, where computer terminals would be installed.

"That would eliminate food stamps altogether, along with persistent problems with theft and trafficking in coupons, which are used as currency because large cities to buy not only food but clothes and television sets as well."

San Francisco men for awhile during the Gold Rush days had a tough time getting their clothes cleaned. Incredibly, many of them bundled up their laundry and sent it to China aboard the great ships that sailed the Pacific. Took several weeks and much money to get it back, but it came back clean. Then when the unions squeezed the immigrant Chinese laborers out of the mines and-off-the-railroads, local laundries popped up all over the place, and that ended laundry by clipper ship.

Consider the most powerful industrial nation in the world: Only 1 percent of the households have electric refrigerators. Only 28 percent have either gas or electric stoves. Only 35 percent have telephones. Less than 50 percent of the people have the minimum, adequate diet. And not one person has a television set. This was the United States just 60 years ago.

SPECIAL PHONE RINGS

Mentioned earlier that it's now technically possible to use a telephone to tell the difference by the ringing whether the call is long distance, local, emergency, whatever. That's not new, really. In the days when operators hand-cranked the calls, they sent the sound of urgency in the long-distance and emergency rings. Such a valuable.

Q. Does a criminal w/ electrocuted in the chair feel pain before dying?
A. Not according to those who claim to know. The electric current travels at least 40 times faster than the nerve conduction, thus knocking the contemned out before there's time to feel anything.

STRIPEASE DANCERS

When researchers saw fit to interview numerous striptease dancers, they turned up the curious fact that most of those young ladies were first-born children.

You know the "poll" in "poll tax" means "head." But do you know the "pole" in "tadpole" means head, too? If that immature frog looks like nothing more than a head in the water, it's a tadpole. If it wiggles, add "wog," the corruption of "wiggle," and call it a "polywog."

The old Romans—in 3500 B.C.—drank their beer in one gulp only through a straw.

Said George Santayana: "The young man who has not wept is a savage and the old man who will not laugh is a fool."

Today is Saturday, Jan. 23, the 23rd day of 1982 with 342 to follow.

The moon is moving toward its new phase. The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury and Venus. Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

American Patriot John Hancock was born Jan. 23, 1737. American actors Randolph Scott and Ann Sothern were born on this date — he in 1903 and she in 1923.

On this date in history:

- In 1845, Congress ruled all national elections must take place on the first Tuesday following the first Monday in November.
- In 1937, during the Communist Party purges in the Soviet Union, 17 party members confessed they had conspired with Leon Trotsky to undermine Josef Stalin.
- In 1948, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower said he could not accept a presidential nomination from either party. He ran as the Republican, unless four years later and became the 34th president of the United States.

Kimberly church dedicates addition

KIMBERLY — The Redeemer Lutheran Church of Kimberly is now using its new Christian Life Center, an educational facility completed just before Christmas.
The new wing was officially dedicated last Sunday, Jan. 17, with a morning worship service and an afternoon thanksgiving service.
The Rev. Emil Jaech of Portland, president of the Northwest District of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, addressed church members and guests during the afternoon thanksgiving service. The morning speaker was Rev. Arthur Lewis of Filer.
The Rev. Daniel Gerken, the church's pastor, said the addition is a two-level structure, matching in design and brick the main building, which was erected in 1964.

The addition gives the church seven Sunday school classrooms, a mothers' room, a youth room and an adult Bible classroom. Also provided are an office for the Sunday school superintendent and a kitchenette. In addition, there is an entry-way area that is used for meetings, coffee hours and other gatherings.
When all the costs, including furnishings, are final, the building will represent an investment of about $20,000 to $25,000, according to the pastor.
Gerken says construction began four months ago. Bob Brehm Construction of Twin Falls was the contractor. The addition was designed by Gerald Marlens of Edwards, Howard and Martens, Engineers of Twin Falls.

"This more than doubles the former Sunday school space that was available in the church basement," he says. "It also gives our Sunday school its first separate classrooms, as the basement was just one large area divided into class space."
With the completion of the wing, the basement area of the main church has become a fellowship hall.
"We have needed an educational wing for some time," Gerken says. "Planning for it began two or three years ago, and funds were raised locally and through a loan from the district office."

Father and son lug crosses across Philippines

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — An American and his 10-year-old son set out on foot this week, lugging two large wooden crucifixes, on a 600-mile journey that they say was ordered by God.
Arthur Blossit, 41, of Hollywood, Calif., and his son, Joshua, started their journey at the Roman Catholic Santa Cruz Church in downtown Manila and headed for the Magellan Cross in Cebu City, a 600-mile walk.
The father and son drew a small crowd of Filipinos and foreigners, who applauded them with questions and requests for advice about personal problems.

Blossit said he first shouldered his 12-foot wooden crucifix on Christmas Day, 1969, and since then he has covered 18,000 miles in a pilgrimage that has taken him to 60 nations. He has met Pope Paul II, Israel's Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat.

Joshua said Jesus told him to follow his father with an 8-foot-tall cross on Oct. 1, when a "blinding light" came over him in the front yard of their Hollywood home.
Blossit, who says he has no religion but is a "Christian," said he was going to Cebu to pray at the Ferdinand Magellan Cross, named after the Portuguese explorer who discovered the Philippine Islands in 1571 and claimed them for Spain.
He said the Magellan Cross, which the Portuguese planted on the shores of Cebu Island after celebrating mass, was the first to circumnavigate the globe on ship.
But Blossit's cross would be the first to be carried on foot around the world — in the United States, South America, Europe, the Middle East, Asia and the Pacific, he said.

Procter & Gamble 'wages war' on Satan

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Procter & Gamble, one of the nation's largest manufacturers, has launched a major West Coast campaign to dispel rumors that the firm is involved in satanic religions and devil worship, a P&G spokeswoman disclosed Friday.
Kathy Gilbert said the Fortune 500 company began receiving calls in October from hundreds of consumers who, claimed a P&G executive appeared on a television talk show and said the corporate symbol represents the firm's ties to demonic worship. The symbol, which has been the company trademark since 1851, is a crescent moon with a bearded man's profile facing a cluster of 13 stars.

Gilbert, in a telephone interview from P&G's Cincinnati headquarters, said the stars represent the original 13 colonies, while the man-in-the-moon was a popular character that was added in 1851.

Procter & Gamble, which has annual sales of more than $11 billion, has begun to send letters to every newspaper, television and radio station in California, Washington and Oregon explaining the background of the controversial trademark.
"We have begun sending the letters to those states because there have been a lot of consumer calls from the West Coast," Gilbert said. "They think they saw a Procter & Gamble commercial on the Phil Donahue Show discussing Satanism and our trademark."

Auto union divided over contract talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Top leaders of the United Auto Workers Friday told President Douglas Fraser they are not opposed to resuming stalled negotiations with General Motors and Ford.

Bill Parker of Local 51 (Chrysler) in Detroit, a member of Locals Opposed to Concessions, told reporters immediately after the board meeting that an opposition caucus was planned Friday night in hopes of swaying the GM Council to break off talks permanently.

Talks at GM broke down Wednesday and negotiations at both companies were called off. Fraser has indicated doubt whether talks with GM will resume before the normal summer start-up date, but both Ford and UAW officials expressed hope for resuming their bargaining next week.

Merger cuts Marathon gains

Marathon Oil Co., the nation's 18th largest oil company, Friday reported its fourth-quarter profits declined 27.5 percent.

Marathon's profits fell 9.4 percent to $343.6 million, or $5.82 a share, from $378.1 million, or $5.77 a share, in 1980. Revenues advanced 12.1 percent to $9.81 billion in 1981 from $8.75 billion the previous year.

reduced its fourth-quarter earnings by $30.6 million, or 52 cents a share. The inventory increase almost totally negated Marathon's earnings improvement.

Golden Eagles, Ricks clash tonight

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two coaches who feel their teams are more than ready to post possible trips to the national tournament on the line here tonight.

It isn't all that simple because five more games and a regional playoff are yet to come. But the winner of tonight's CSI-Ricks duel will have an edge in getting the best designation for regional and historically, the team hosting that playoff is the one that goes on.

The game will be preceded by a women's clash at 6 p.m. with the men expected to tip off about 8 p.m.

After their best showing of the year against Utah State, CSI Coach Dave Campbell is feeling a little better about tonight's clash with Cary Gardner's Vikings.

"If you play like that Saturday night, you'll shut us out," But, Campbell said, "He didn't sound too sincere. I told him if we had the chance, we'd sure like to (post the shutout). We were both blowing a lot of smoke at each other."

Campbell, who prior to the Utah State game had noted he felt "better chemistry" among his charges, said he wasn't surprised by the effort.

"Oh, it definitely was the best we've played this year," he confirmed. "But I feel we can play better. A couple of our guys didn't have real good nights. I mean they're capable of playing much better."

He felt that expectation of improvement could apply to the defense as well as the offense.

"We had about 10 minutes there where defensively we were very good. We had good intensity. It wouldn't surprise me if this bunch couldn't put together 20 minutes like that or maybe a little more," Campbell said.

Defense will be critical in tonight's game since Ricks brings a lousy 82-point per game average. The Vikings are hitting 51 percent from the field and 72 percent from the foul line.

"They'll shoot better than that against us," Campbell said. "We have to play man against them. They've got hands in their face. And they've got people who can score inside. Man is the only defense I know that can cover all that."

Although the teams have played once previously — Ricks winning a two-pointier in the Casper Tournament, each faces something new.

Gardner got a look at CSI's addition in 7-1 Rick Tunstall. Ricks replies with 6-6 Elijah Jackson who missed the first six Viking games but is the team's top rebounder, carries a 20-point average and is second only to corner shooter Kelly Graves in total points. CSI saw him play against Utah State and was impressed.

Graves has 289 points coming into the game while Norm Parrish, who usually comes off the bench, has 196. Sophomore Doug Gambin has 153 points, followed by Bill McMaster at 137, Rob Nielson 133 and Clay Broadbent at 119, all in 18 games.

Broadbent's 96 rebounds seconds the 119 total of Jackson's.

This is the first time Coach Gardner has entered the CSI gymnasium and he admits to it being a unique feeling.

"I cannot believe the pressure and feeling among CSI and Ricks and North Idaho. I'm a happy-go-lucky guy and I'm just not used to that type of off-court competition."

"It's going to take another miracle," he said, referring to Ricks comeback that nipped the Eagles in Casper, "because that was a miracle. The more I analyze that game, the more I get into it, the more I wonder how we won it."

"I don't know how we are going to handle that height," he said of CSI. "We've got to make them play defense and see if we can get an open shot. We have to speed the game up, no question about that. Whether they'll let us or not remains to be seen. And we have to handle their pressure defense."

On the matter of Jackson and Tunstall, Gardner, of course, gave the big edge to CSI.

"We didn't worry about him (Tunstall) until we saw him Wednesday night. He really played well, passed off and dominated the inside. If he's going to play like that, we are in for a long night."

But under questioning, Gardner admitted "Jackson has helped us... on the boards and inside scoring. He's scored well on the offensive glass. But that's where CSI can take it away from us so I expect we'll have to go with our perimeter shooters again."

Gardner confirmed that this could be the biggest game, since an away game at CSI would be the inside pole for the regional elite.

"Ricks doesn't do well at North Idaho. If we could stay in there, if we could beat them (the Eagles) there it would really help us."

In concluding, Gardner gave it the old coaching try, saying "Probably all we did (at Casper) was just get them all fired up and mad because we lucked out on them. Tell them to take it easy on us."

Idaho wins by 11

BOZEMAN, Mont. — Idaho's undefeated and eighth-ranked Vandals turned to their delay offense with over 14 minutes left Friday night to outlast Montana State 69-56.

Since 1976, gave the Vandals a 5-0 record in defending their Big Sky Conference championship and ran their overall mark to 16-0. Montana State dropped to 1-3 in the league. The Vandals travel to Missoula Saturday night to play the Montana Grizzlies.

The final margin was deceiving as with 2:27 left, Idaho had only a 38-34 lead. But six straight free throws in the final 35 seconds sealed the victory.

The Vandals, the best shooting team in conference stats; had their problems there and added to their woes by committing 13 turnovers in the first half. They trailed until Gordie Herbert, relegated to spot duty due to illness, hit two buckets midway through the half for a 15-14 lead. Craig Palmer sent Montana State back on top with a breakaway cripple.

Idaho led 21-18 at intermission of the low scoring game and three minutes before Hopson got loose inside for a dunk. After a Montana State miss, Hopson scored again and then Smith added a bucket off in on-bounds play to give Idaho a 35-30 lead.

Idaho's first five-point lead came on a Kelvin Smith slam to open the second half but John MacLin and Doug Haskley, MSU's touted forwards, hit the next six points to send Montana State ahead 24-23.

Phil Hopson got inside to send Idaho ahead to stay at 25-23 and it was only by one and three-point margins.

The Vandals turned to their delay offense holding a 25-23 lead and worked the ball three minutes before Hopson got loose inside for a dunk. After a Montana State miss, Hopson scored again and then Smith added a bucket off in on-bounds play to give Idaho a 35-30 lead.

Galley's shot beats Skyline

IDAHO FALLS — Guess when the last time was that Twin Falls beat Skyline at Idaho Falls?

—Yep, the Bruins did it Friday night, 50-46 on a follow shot by Steve Galley with three seconds left.

But go ahead and guess, anyhow. Give up?

The answer is never.

The Bruins have won five at home since the series started in 1969 and they whipped the Grizzlies twice in 1974 when they won the state championship, once in the state semifinals.

But Skyline beat them by 23 in Idaho Falls. Idaho Falls also whipped those state champions by four, lending credence to Coach John Astorquia's claim that it's hard to win in Idaho Falls. "But usually they are a very strong team," he said.

Twin Falls will return home at 8 p.m. today to entertain the Gem State Conference-leading Highland Rams who come into the game with an unblemished 5-0 record.

The Bruins had it weather a spectacular first-half shooting display by Bryan Gunderson, who had 13 of his 17 points at the turn, and Larry Gertsch took over in the second half to score most of his 15 points.

But Joe Shelby, shooting well in the first half and making some key rebounding, driving and assists moves in the second half, was joined by junior Mark Mumm in keeping the Bruins' hand in. Mumm, getting two crucial rebounds in the fourth quarter, scored his nine points in the second half.

It was that type of game. Skyline, usually one of the better teams around but struggling at 3-6 coming into the game, rocked the Bruins with a seven-point deficit early in the second quarter and then mustered a strong comeback to erase a five-point deficit midway through the last period.

Twin Falls got the ball back for the last time with under a minute left and wore it down to 19 seconds before calling timeout. Steve Meyerhoeffer, who wound up with eight, went with a jumper from about 16' with eight seconds left. It bounced high off the iron but Galley was there to stick it back in for his eighth point of the night.

At the outset it was Gunderson taking it to the Bruins, however. He hit six points to send the Grizzlies ahead 11-6 with Shelby replying with two.

Steve Meyerhoeffer came up with two field goals to help cut the margin opened the first second period with two free throws and Gunderson came up with four quick points to explode the Grizzlies into a 21-12 advantage. It appeared the Bruins were going to keep the streak intact.

Then Junior Bowen Call took good inside passes against the Skyline zone for a pair of field goals and Twin Falls started coming back. After a Gertsch bucket, Shelby and Andy Toolson picked up free throws to cut the gap to 23-20. Gunderson nullified with three field goals that nullified points by Shelby and Meyerhoeffer.

Meyerhoeffer sent Twin Falls ahead for the first time at 28-22 with 42 seconds left but Gunderson hit at the buzzer to regain the lead.

Mumm and Galley shot Twin Falls ahead 32-29 as the second half opened but Gertsch started coming on and the Bruins couldn't get away. Gertsch tied it at 37.

Another tie developed as the fourth quarter started at 39 before Twin Falls, with Shelby getting a three-point play and a length of the court driving cripple after a rebound, moved ahead by five. But Gertsch converted a three-point play off a steal to tie it again at 46.

Walsh, Gregg agree—lots of scoring Sunday

DEARBORN, Mich. (UPI) — Super Bowl coaches Bill Walsh of San Francisco and Forrest Gregg of Cincinnati met in the news media for the final time Friday and were in total agreement that Sunday's game should be high scoring shootout.

Both Walsh and Gregg feel it will take four touchdowns to win.

"As long as the game is in doubt, you'll see a wide open football game," said Walsh. "I don't believe in going conservative just because it's championship game. In a game like this, you have to put your best foot forward. You go with your style. It's no time to experiment or get desperate. You simply go out and try to do the things you do best."

"I just can't see a tight defensive struggle when you have two great quarterbacks like Ken Anderson and Joe Montana playing. I expect a lot of scoring. I don't think either team will run away with it. The defenses have been too consistent this year. I think the winner will need four touchdowns."

"We're not changing anything," Gregg said later. "We're pretty much going by the book anyway. I think we shocked the world against San Diego when we ran a fake field goal. It worked and it didn't work — the play worked but it was called back on a penalty. We're lucky Jim Breach came in and kicked a field goal."

"A lot of things can change the complexion of a game. In any event, I just don't think 21 points will win this game. I think it will take 28 or better to win it."

Walsh got some bad news Thursday when wide receiver Freddie Solomon, his deep threat, injured his knee in a collision with defensive back Ronnie Lott at practice. Solomon is considered questionable for Sunday's game.

"I'm very hopeful," Walsh said. "The unfortunate part is that there is more and more awareness. I don't think it's serious but it's still sore. But I won't change our game plan. We'll go with Mike Wilson if Freddie can't go."

"Mike figured to get a lot of playing time anyway. Solomon is our deep threat but we played and won without him in the past. Our game plan wouldn't be affected at all."

Reggie inks 3-year deal with Angels

California owner Bavasi's remarks anger Players' Association president Miller

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — Reggie Jackson signed a three-year contract with the California Angels Friday, ending a bizarre month of negotiations that brought scathing criticism from Major League Players Association president Marvin Miller.

Jackson, who has lived in Carmel, Calif. for many years and has several businesses in Oakland, said he was pleased to join the Angels.

"I'm very happy to join a club that really seemed to pursue me and wanted me," Jackson said from Miami, where he was taping a television show.

"With the Angels I get a chance to play—I guess with everything being equal, the most difficult decision for me was whether to go to Baltimore or California. Both clubs have really fine people."

"I guess the overriding factor for me was that it's time to come home."

The contract guarantees Jackson $700,000 a year for the next three years with attendance incentives that could boost his salary to $1 million a year if the Angels reach specified attendance figures in their home games.

The slinger became a free agent following last year's World Series

Reggie Jackson could make as much as $1 million yearly when his New York Yankees lost to the Los Angeles Dodgers. California was one of several teams to draft the man nicknamed "Mr. October" for his playoff and World Series accomplishments.

Negotiations then began between Jackson, his agent Gary Walker and Angels vice-president and general manager Buzze Bavasi, who last hours before Friday's announcement strongly denied reports the signing had occurred.

Bavasi angered Miller last week with his announcement that if the Angels signed Jackson they would give the Yankees a player from California's major league roster even though the team had no obligation to compensate the Yankees since Jackson became a free agent.

"Bavasi proves there's collusion going on every time he opens his mouth," Miller said. "Jackson doesn't belong to the Yankees. He is a free agent. It can't be a trade."

"Consider what Bavasi is saying. He's saying to the Angels fans that he intends to weaken his team by giving up a player he doesn't have to give up. And he's giving up the player to the American League's champions.

Jackson, the American League's 1973 Most Valuable Player, will appear at Anaheim Stadium for a news conference Tuesday along with the Angels after three former MVP award winners Rod Carew, Don Baylor and Fred Lynn.

Jackson was signed as a free agent by the Yankees Nov. 25, 1976, coming from Baltimore via Oakland. Jackson has been on nine playoff teams, five with Oakland and four with the Yankees — with whom he earned the nickname "Mr. October" for his heroics.

Last season Jackson suffered through a severe slump. He batted .237 with 15 homers and 54 RBI. Against Milwaukee in the mid-September series, Jackson was more like his old self, batting .300 with four homers and four RBI, including a crucial two-run homer in the deciding game that triggered the Yankees' comeback.

Jackson played in only two games against Oakland in the AL championship series, going 0-for-4. In the World Series against Los Angeles, Jackson batted .333 with one homer and one RBI, but dropped a fly ball in Game 4, a time allowing the Dodgers to come back.

Idaho State topples Northern Arizona 57-52

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Idaho State survived two Northern Arizona fourth quarter comebacks to claim a 57-52 Big Sky Conference basketball win Friday night in the playoffs.

The Bengals led by as many as 11 at one point in the second half, but the Lumberjacks clawed back to within five twice, including once at the end of the contest, but could get no closer.

Robert Tate led the winners, getting 19 points, including nine from the free throw line. Mike Penkers was the only other Bengal in double figures with 14, 12 of those in the first half.

Eric Wade had 15 to lead the losers while Ted Flotis put in 10.

The win put the Bengals at 12-4 overall, 3-2 in Big Sky play while Northern Arizona dropped to 4-12 overall, 0-4 in conference action.

Idaho State never trailed in the ball game, rattling off the game's first five points and building a 37-23 halftime lead.

The game was tied 41-41 with 6:30 left in the first half but the Bengals outscored the Lumberjacks 16-4 down the stretch.

"In the first half I thought we played as good as defense as we have all season," said Bengal Coach Lynn Archibald. "But in the last four minutes of the game, I think we played about as badly on defense as we ever have."

Northern Arizona outscored Idaho State 11-7 over those last four minutes to close to the final five-point margin.

Montana 86, Boise State 75
MISSOULA, Mont. — The Montana Grizzlies jumped ahead in the opening seconds and never trailed in downing Boise State 86-75 Saturday night.

The Montana victory, giving the Grizzlies a 3-2 Big Sky Conference mark, knocked Boise State out of a share of second place. Nevada-Reno took over sole possession of the runner-up spot by upsetting Weber State 68-46 to run its record to 4-1, one game behind pace-setting University of Idaho.

Montana, with Doug Selvig hitting six points, jumped out to an 8-2 lead in the early going and held a 21-11 advantage midway through the first half.

Boise State rallied back to within five points but never was able to catch up.

Nevada-Reno 67, Weber 66
OGDEN, Utah (UPI) — Junior guard Bill Allen scored 27 points, including two free throws with no time remaining on the clock Friday night, lifting Nevada-Reno to a 67-66 Big Sky Conference triumph over Weber State.

Allen hit 13-of-16 from the 1950 and toward Ken Green added 15 points.

Weber State took the lead early in the first half, but Allen put the Walkpack back in the game with nine unanswered points, tying the game 28-28.

The Wildcats held a two-point lead at the half, and stretched it to nine with about five minutes to go. But Allen again led a surge that brought the Walkpack the lead at 65-64 with 1:56 left in the game.

Trailing by one, the Wildcats held the ball for a while Harper hit on a 20-foot jump shot from the corner to give WSU a 66-65 lead. But Allen took the inbound pass and started driving for the basket. He was fouled at the buzzer, and went to the free-throw line.

Harper and center Tom Heywood led the Wildcats with 19 points each. Heywood also pulled down a game-high 11 rebounds.

UCLA 42, Stanford 34
STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Sophomore forward Kenny Fields scored 18 points, including 13 in the first half, to give UCLA a 42-34 victory over Stanford Friday night.

UCLA took a 33-30 lead with 11 minutes to play and then held the ball for the next eight minutes. Rod Foster made two free throws to give the Bruins a five-point lead before Stanford's Jimmy Rogers scored a field goal with 1:30 to play.

The Bruins controlled the ball the rest of the way with Stanford forced to foul: Mike Sanders made two free throws and Darren Daye added another in the closing seconds.

Oregon State 64, Washington St. 48
CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI) — Charlie Sitton scored 15 points to lead a balanced attack and power 10th-ranked Oregon State to a 64-48 Pac-10 rout of Washington State Friday night.

The Beavers now are 6-0 in the conference and 13-2 for the season. It was the second conference loss against five victories for Washington State, which is 13-3 for the season.

Oregon State took the lead for good with eight minutes left in the opening period and had a 24-14 halftime lead. William Brew hit 14 points, A.C. Green 11 and Danny Evans 10 for the Beavers.

Game scoring honors went to WSU forward Steve Harriet with 22 points, 18 in the second half.

Southern Cal 66, California 59
BERRIDGE, Calif. (UPI) — Dwight Anderson scored 20 points and Mo Williams added 18 Friday night to lead Southern California to a 66-59 Pac-10 victory over California.

Center Mark McNamara was a standout for the Bears, hitting 23 points.

USC led 38-26 at the half but California chipped away to close to 53-49 with 8 1/2 minutes to go. But Jim McDonald's free throw and Williams' jumper moved the Trojans well ahead again and California never again closed to within five points.

The Trojans are now 11-4 for the season and 5-1 in the conference, while Cal dropped to 8-7 and 2-4.

Hawaii 56, Colorado St. 53
FORT COLLINS, Colo. (UPI) — Clarence Dickerson and David Hopkins scored 12 points each Friday night to pace the Hawaii Rainbows to a 56-53 Western Athletic Conference victory over Colorado State.

Rodney Jones and Bobby Hancock had 10 apiece for Hawaii, 13-2 on the season and 5-0 in the WAC. The league mark ties Hawaii with Wyoming, the Rainbows' opponent in a WAC contest next Monday.

Hawaii jumped to a quick 19-8 lead over CSU in the first half and took a 28-26 lead into the locker room at intermission.

CSU scored the first four points of the second half on a pair of jumpers by Eddie Hughes. But following a 34-34 tie, Hawaii reeled off 10 straight points while holding the Rams scoreless.

CSU battled to within five points on three occasions in the second half but the Rainbows' game-winning shot came back empty.

Jacksonville 95, S. Alabama 91
MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Mike Hackett scored 27 points Friday night to lead Jacksonville University to a 95-91 overtime victory over South Alabama in a Sun Belt Conference game.

South Alabama's Ric Scott hit a 15-foot jumper with 12 seconds left in regulation to send the game into overtime tied 83-83. Jacksonville missed a chance to win it when Dan McLaughlin missed a 22-footer with two seconds left.

In overtime, Jacksonville scored first on Maurice Roullach's 25-footer and was never headed. The Dolphins hit six of eight free throws in overtime and got the rebound on both their misses.

Kimberly's strong offense produces win over Declo
DECLO — Launching a hard-charging offensive attack, Kimberly forced three Declo players to foul out in the final quarter and outlasted the Hornets Friday night, 74-68.

"They put enough pressure on us that we committed a lot of fouls," said Declo Coach Ron Knowles, who watched his team get whittled 33 times.

Kimberly's 5-1 in the Canyon Conference, 8-1 overall, trailed 58-52 entering the fourth quarter but began to catch up when Declo had to abandon its man-to-man press with six minutes left in the game.

The Bulldogs finally surpassed the Hornets, 3-3 in the Canyon and 3-7 overall, with about two and a half minutes left.

Rocky Eller, who sank 10 of 10 free throws, hit four in the final period. Earl Molyneux, who with Eller scored 18 points, dropped to two layups to spark Kimberly's comeback.

 VanderVegt's late scoring surge propels Jerome past Wood River

HAILEY — Jenise VanderVegt hit six points over the closing two minutes to cement Jerome's 35-20 victory over Wood River Friday night.

Jerome held the lead throughout the game, going up 12-5 in the first quarter. But although Wood River had just three girls scoring, the Wolverines were within eight points with two minutes left. VanderVegt then picked up the clinching points on the glass.

Jerome could trace its success to the 19-point effort of Tammy Blades, her best night of the season.

Bengals' experience is key, 'expert' claims

By JOE CARNICELLI
UPI Executive Sports Editor

QB Ken Anderson's adaptability could give him edge over counterpart Joe Montana, right well in the playoffs. Alexander is a 220-pounder who also can put pressure on a defense.

Bengals while guard Randy Cross, a 6-3, 250-pounder, is the 49ers' best lineman.

DEARBORN, Mich. (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers consider themselves a team of destiny but it appears that it is the Cincinnati Bengals who are destined to become Super Bowl champions Sunday.

The key factor is experience, especially at quarterback. San Francisco's Joe Montana has revived his "Comeback Kid" image from his days at Notre Dame but Cincinnati's Ken Anderson has been simply outstanding.

Anderson led the NFL in passing, had the lowest interception percentage in the league and showed another dimension by leading NFL quarterbacks in rushing, averaging seven yards a carry.

The experience factor is the big difference, however. Montana has been a starter for little more than one season. Anderson has been at it for 11 years. Montana is for the most part an extension of Coach Bill Walsh's offensive philosophy. His game is Bill Walsh's game.

Anderson, on the other hand, has more adaptability. His experience gives him the ability to make changes on the field more readily. He very simply has seen more than Montana and has had to adjust to two different coaches.

The Bengals have an advantage in rushing with two big backs. Pete Johnson, Cincinnati's 250-pound fullback, can control a game if his club is ahead. Johnson had good success against San Francisco in the regular season in a game won by the 49ers 21-3. Charles Alexander, a disappointment for most of the year, has been playing well in the playoffs. Alexander is a 220-pounder who also can put pressure on a defense.

Rickey Patton, San Francisco's top runner, has had leg problems recently and Earl Cooper hasn't performed with the effectiveness he showed as a rookie last season.

The offensive lines are comparable, with perhaps a slight edge to Cincinnati. Mammoth tackle Anthony Munoz, a 6-foot-6, 278-pounder, is the key man for the 49ers, but they would be aware of it.

He was questioned about charges that San Francisco got away with "illegal picks" on downfield pass routes in previous games. In their 28-7 NFL championship win over the Dallas Cowboys, the 49ers effectively employed the use of picks, where receivers cross paths to confuse man-to-man defensive coverage.

"The downfield men will be looking for it," Haggerty said. "There has to be contact. I don't think there'll be any cheap fouls. They'll have to be there. It's got to be a good, definite foul."

To prepare for the game at 4 p.m. EST Sunday in the Pontiac Silverdome, Haggerty said the officiating crew has been running several videotape films of the playoff games and looking for the type of situation that might get you thinking about a certain play.

Asked about the pressure of the season's biggest game, he said, "We'll all feel the pressure but once the ball is kicked, we're all professionals."

Contrary to the contentions of some often-penalized league players, Haggerty said there are "no marked men" singled out by the officials for closer scrutiny.

Haggerty, 54, is a physical education teacher and coach at Abraham Lincoln High School in Denver. For working Super Bowl XVI, he and each of the other officials will receive $3,000, which he said is "not enough."

"Maybe half of what the players make" would be a fair compensation for the officials, he said. Players on the winning team will receive $18,000, and losers will receive $10,000.

Haggerty said he would also like to see NFL officials hired on a full-time basis, but conceded, "I don't think they would be any better."

He said he "doubts very much" whether the NFL hierarchy will ever permit the use of televised instant replays to overrule the spot judgments of officials.

He said he realizes officials are often unpopular among scapgoat-hunting players, coaches and fans, but, "I think if they took a real good look at it, we would be very much appreciated."

Soviets planning Olympic sabotage?

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Soviet Union is dispatching a group of spies and convicts disguised as Russian immigrants to the United States who may attempt terrorist activities during the 1984 Olympics, police disclosed Friday.

A police-organized crime study, entitled "Soviet Emigre 'Mafia,'" states the flow of Soviet criminals and intelligence agents are entering the country through misuse of the refugee quota system for Russian Jews.

"The Soviets apparently believe that the 1984 Olympic Games offer an opportunity to embarrass the United States," according to the report. "The Soviet news agency, TASS, has already characterized Los Angeles as crime-ridden and smog-beset and has hinted some disaster might befall the Games."

Baguer Lemongello surrenders

LARGO, Fla. (UPI) — Ex-major league pitcher Mark Lemongello, 26, surrendered at the Pinellas County sheriff's office Friday and was booked on charges of kidnapping and armed robbery.

He was later released on $10,000 bond.

Lemongello and another former major league pitcher, Manuel Soane, 28, are charged with abducting and robbing Lemongello's two cousins of more than $50,000 a week ago.

Soane turned himself in earlier in the week and also is free on $10,000 bond.

Oddsman receives prison term, fine

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Nationally known oddsmaker Robert Martin of Las Vegas, who helps to set the country's sports betting line, was sentenced Friday to 18 months in prison and fined $10,000.

Martin, 63, was convicted last year of transmitting betting information by telephone over state lines in 1977 in a case in which 16 people were indicted by a federal grand jury in Providence.

3 from BC basketball scam sentenced

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three of five people convicted in the Boston College basketball point-shaving gambling scheme were sentenced in U.S. District Court Friday to prison, with James "Jimmy the Gent" Burke receiving a 20-year term and a $30,000 fine.

Sentencing of Rick Kuhn, 26, a former BC basketball star from Swainsville, Pa., was adjourned to Feb. 5 because his attorneys were tied up in another court case and could not be present.

Sentencing of Paul Mazerol of Pittsburgh had been put off earlier to Feb. 8 because of the illness of his attorney.

Indiana State cage coach to resign

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (UPI) — Indiana State University basketball coach Bill Hodges announced his resignation Friday effective at the conclusion of the current season.

Hodges, 38 and in his fourth season as head coach, has compiled a 64-39 record, which included a second-place finish in the NCAA tournament in 1979, when Larry Bird and the Sycamores had a 33-1 record.

McEnroe will get decision Monday

NEW YORK (UPI) — An arbitrator has delayed until Monday a ruling on John McEnroe's appeal of his $5,000 fine incurred after the New Yorker verbally abused officials during the Wimbledon tennis tournament last year.

A spokesman for the Men's International Professional Tennis Council said that the arbitrator, Lawrence Kreiger, would announce his decision on Monday. Kreiger had been expected to rule Friday on McEnroe's appeal.

Hart signs 1-year pact with Cards

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Veteran quarterback Jim Hart, who lost his starting job this season to rookie Neil Lomax, Friday signed a one-year contract with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Hart's status with the club had been clouded by the presence of Lomax. Hart had said earlier he would rather play with another team than act as Lomax's backup next season.

17-year veteran Haggerty leads crew

It's just one more game for officials

DEARBORN, Mich. (UPI) — Super Bowl XVI Sunday will be just another game to a group of seven men on the field that includes referee Pat Haggerty.

"It's not the same thing that we've been doing every week for the past 16 weeks," said Haggerty, a 17-year veteran of NFL officiating, Friday.

Haggerty (who wears uniform No. 4) will head a crew with 96 years of pro officiating experience. The others are Al Conway (No. 7), umpire; Jerry Bergman (No. 17), head linesman; Bob Beeks (No. 15), line judge; Bill Swanson (No. 20), back judge; Bob Rice (No. 19), side judge, and Don Hakes (No. 6), field judge.

Officials are Gene Rauh, Klemmer (No. 8), Bergman, Beeks, Conway, Swanson and Haggerty have worked together in various officiating crews this season.

Haggerty, who was the referee in Super Bowl XIII, said that there will be no emphasis in the officials' preparation on certain tendencies of either the Cincinnati Bengals or the San Francisco 49ers, but they would be aware of it.

He was questioned about charges that San Francisco got away with "illegal picks" on downfield pass routes in previous games. In their 28-7 NFL championship win over the Dallas Cowboys, the 49ers effectively employed the use of picks, where receivers cross paths to confuse man-to-man defensive coverage.

CBS expects audience of 100 million

By SUSAN REIMER
© The Baltimore Sun

PONTIAC, Mich. — CBS is anticipating an audience of more than 100 million for Sunday's Super Bowl game, and the network is hustling to please.

It brought 23 cameras, 17 of which will be trained on the field, 15 vehicles, 100 microphones, 20 miles of cable and 100 monitors. Production costs are expected to be about $1.2 million.

The camera crews even had a dry run Friday. Using Wayne State University football players dressed like the Bengals and 49ers, they had a chance to work at spotting the right numbers on the field.

Despite the expense and preparation, it is doubtful if the game will outdraw the audience which watched the 1978 Super Bowl between Dallas and Denver, which was among the top 10 all-time broadcasts.

An ambitious real estate man here has lined up more than 2,000 private homes in Detroit for Super Bowl guests who can't find hotel space. Richard Dorris then spent $18 for four days of classified ads in San Francisco newspapers. But so far, he has received not a single phone call.

"I don't think people are all that interested in moving into the cold weather," said Dorris.

However, for those who might be interested, he has everything from a room in someone's home for $10 a night to a mansion with an indoor pool and a poolside bar at $1,200 a night.

The roof could just fall in on this Super Bowl. The teflon-coated fiberglass has broken down twice since the Silverdome was opened in 1975. But a grid of cables prevents it from falling onto the playing field.

The Silverdome roof was quite an innovation. It cost less than half of the $6 million that covers stadium roofs usually cost. It weighs 200 tons and covers more than 400,000 square feet. There will be more than 1,350 security men in the Silverdome to keep the peace: local, state and county police; the NFL's security force; the FBI and the Secret Service, here to protect Vice President George Bush, and U.S. postal inspectors looking for counterfeit tickets.

Speaking of the post office: For the first time, there will be a post office at the Super Bowl to issue a commemorative postmark. Shaped like a football, it will be stamped on special envelopes and sold to collectors, 50 cents for $1 each, two for $1.75.

The Michigan Host Committee, organizer of Super Bowl Week activities, sponsors a Super Drink contest, and the results are in. This year's Super Drink is called the Referee's Revenge. It is made of 1/4 ounces of Bailey's Irish Cream, 1/4 ounces Frangelico, 3 ounces vanilla ice cream, 1 ounce orange juice, blended and garnished with an Oreo cookie.

Get it? Oreo, black-and-white, referee's stripes?

Joe Montana will be the second-year quarterback to play in a Super Bowl—by one day. Joe Namath was 25 years, 7 months and 12 days old in Super Bowl III. Montana will be 25 years, 7 months and 13 days old Sunday. The league has its own measure of the most popular Super Bowl: NFL Films puts together its own Super Bowl package, using film never seen on television, and sells cassette copies.

The top seller is Super Bowl XIV, between Pittsburgh and Los Angeles; No. 2 is Super Bowl XIII, between Pittsburgh and Dallas; No. 3 is SB III, between Baltimore and the Jets; No. 4 is SB XII, between the Cowboys and the Jets.

The "Say Nice Things About Detroit" T-shirts on sale here were made in Cleveland.

Young couple dies on Super Bowl guest tour

DETROIT (UPI) — The deaths of a young couple who were shoveling a jostling crowd out of an overcrowded bus carrying Super Bowl travelers on a round of downtown bars and restaurants cast a pall Friday over the city's gala mood.

Police said the pressure of the standing-room-only crowd taking part in one of four "Super Bowl Crawl" tours, an official Super Bowl event, apparently forced the couple through a side door as the bus was rounding a curve Thursday night.

"It's probably one of the most tragic things that we could expect," said Carol Gies, executive director of Michigan Host Committee, sponsor of the Super Bowl tours.

"Our hearts and our sympathies are out to the families of the two accident victims," she said. Police said autopsies were ordered on the bodies of Ivan Ludington III, 29, of West Bloomfield, and his date, Susan Birdsall, 24, of Livonia, 24, alerted by a motorist who witnessed the fall — pulled him over about a half-mile from the accident.

A police spokesman said that a preliminary investigation focused on the possibility of a mechanical defect with the door. He said there was no initial evidence to indicate any fault on the part of the driver.

Gies said the Host Committee issued 10,600 button-type passes at $3 each for the three Super Bowl loops in the Detroit area — far more than originally expected.

"I think what we saw was a tremendous amount of people who showed up — either in the restaurants or who boarded the buses. These were people we just did not anticipate," she said. "Everything we've done so far, the turnout has been instead of 100 percent — it's been 1,000 percent."

Witnesses said the accident happened about 10:30 p.m. as the 55-seat bus, carrying an estimated 75 to 85 people, was on a Lodge Freeway exit ramp near Joe Louis Arena.

"These two people were standing up inside the bus and the bus went around a curve and they were definitely pushed out by the impact of others standing in the aisle," said Sgt. Daniel Carr of the Detroit Police Department.

Ludington and Birdsall fell out a rear door that opened automatically when pressure is applied. They were pronounced dead at the scene of multiple injuries.

The bus driver, Alfred Jefferson Jr., 29, said next he did not realize what had happened until police —

TOM PURTZER shoots top Friday round

Nelson's 63 stands up for Phoenix Open lead

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Home-town favorite Tom Purtzer completed a 5-under-par 66 Friday in the rain-delayed opening round of the $300,000 Phoenix Open. But it wasn't enough to overhaul PGA Champion Larry Nelson who shot a 63 Thursday before a squall cut off play.

This, Nelson's 63 stood up as the top score in a tournament that now has been extended through Monday.

Lanny Wadkins shot a 65 among those who played the opening round Thursday, and was two shots back while Purtzer was tied with Bob Eastwood at 68.

Half of the field of 114 made it around the par-36 Phoenix Country Club course Thursday, and the other half completed the round in bright sunshine Friday.

Purtzer's score was the best among those who played Friday. Defending champion David Graham and Morris Hatala shot 67s Friday to tie with Jim Simons and Chi Chi Rodriguez who played on Thursday.

Next at 68, three under par and five off the lead, were Dan Fohl, George Burns and Barry Harwell while Craig Stadler, who opened the 1980 tour by winning the Tucson Open, was among a big group at 69.

Bill Rogers, the British Open champ and 1981 Player of the Year, and Johnny Miller, who started 1982 by winning $500,000 in South Africa, were in a big group tied at 70. Both played Friday and, at one point, were close to the lead before falling back.

Among those tied at 71 was Tom

Kille, the 1981 money-winning champion. Lee Trevino, making his first start of the year, and Ed Flori who won the Hope Classic in a playoff with Flo shot 70s. Three-time Phoenix champ Arnold Palmer shot a 74 on Thursday.

Purtzer, who never has played well in his hometown event, had tied off on the 7th hole when rain called off play Thursday. He needed a half a dozen holes to get going Friday and finished with birdies on the 17th and 18th holes to complete the 66.

Ice fishing prospects remain good at certain sites

By Stu Murrell
Special to The Times-News

Deep snows have restricted access to the traditional ice fishing spots in Region 4, but for those with snow machines and hardy souls, fishing has been good.

Magic and Little Wood Reservoirs have a special ice fishing season through Feb. 28. Fish Creek and Roseworth Reservoirs do not have a winter season this year because of the low water conditions this past summer. Salmon Falls Creek Reservoir and Mormon Reservoir are open all year, as is the main Snake River.

The road has been plowed into the West Side Resort at Magic Reservoir and fishermen were having good luck. In the Hot Springs Landing Area it has been difficult to reach firm ice because of inflowing water. Little Wood Reservoir road has been plowed along the county road but not into the access area and fishermen have been using snow machines to reach the ice.

Mormon Reservoir is normally a snow machine proposition, as it lies a considerable distance from the nearest plowed road. Salmon Falls Creek Reservoir is accessible near the dam but ice conditions are usually somewhat marginal. It is a deep reservoir and the ice normally does not freeze sufficiently to safely support fishermen.

There are two unusual laws involving ice fishing. The first is you can use any number of poles as long as you are fishing through the ice. However, if you decide to fish an open water area during an ice fishing season, it is unlawful to use more than one pole. The hole in the ice can be no longer than 10 inches in diameter.

The standard trout limit of six trout applies, of which no more than two can be more than 16 inches. No chumming (depositing corn or other substances in the water to attract fish) is allowed and use of live fish for bait is prohibited. It is also unlawful to have in possession in the field or in transit any trout, coho, or kokanee from which the tail or head have been removed.

Standard fishing techniques involve using a regular spinning outfit to which is attached a trout hook or two baited with salmon eggs, corn or a piece of worm. It must have sufficient weight to carry it down through a skin of ice in the hole and the hook is normally lowered to a foot or so above the bottom. Some fishermen use bobbers to determine when a strike occurs.

Winter trout normally hit very lightly and a person must be alert and strike before the bait is stolen. Some of the better spots are off points and drop offs from shallow to deep water. The strikes will usually come in a series as a school of fish passes and a sportsman should try to get the line back into the water quickly after landing their prize. The amount of light or weather outside doesn't seem to have a significant effect and dull days are usually just as productive as sunny ones.

Hailey's Rotarun provides training for youngsters

Having a ski hill in your town, or even two miles outside, is a distinct advantage for young skiers who aspire to racing careers.

Rotarun at Hailey affords just such an opportunity for the youngsters of Hailey and Bellevue. Located two miles west of Hailey, the small ski resort is ideal for young Phil Stelma to shape up some young giant slalom and slalom techniques. The youngsters practice after school three nights a week, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday and usually ski all weekend, Stelma says.

This year Stelma and his assistant, Dave Sawyer, have 21 youngsters, mostly under 13 and 14 years of age. Many are back from last year and the coaches feel they have some good talent and a chance to win some Intermountain regional honors. This weekend members are racing in a downhill at Sun Valley. The race is a regional qualifying event and points earned will go toward selection for the Junior Olympics.

There will be five races at Rotarun this year to which other junior racers in Magic Valley will be invited. These are basically fun events and teams from Soldier Mountain, Magic Mountain and Pomerelle will be invited to participate.

The first such race is Feb. 14 and the second Feb. 27. Others have not yet been scheduled.

Both will be giant slalom and the first is sponsored by the Wood River Run Runners ski team, an offshoot of the Sun Valley Ski Education Foundation.

The second is the Arkoski Memorial race. The Rotarun team will also race at Elkhorn. Last year the team joined the U.S. Ski Association, Intermountain Division, and now races in the various USSA events at Kelly Canyon and Jackson in Wyoming. They have already competed in several out of state events this year.

Stelma says his "kids" have done pretty well against Sun Valley racers, other Intermountain competitors and in fun events.

"Our program is tailored to youngsters under 13 and 14 and is for those who can't afford to get into the Sun Valley racing programs," he explained. "They usually work on our program for a few years and if they are good and want to continue, they try for scholarships that are available through the Foundation (Sun Valley Ski Education Foundation)," he explained.

Stelma has been interested in ski racing since he was nine years old when he entered his first competition. He raced for Sun Valley and won a number of top places in Intermountain competition — enough to be selected on the regional team to the Junior Nationals two different years.

"I like to work out at Rotarun because it's close to where I live and my own kids can ski there," he said.

"I first got interested when I started teaching my own children to ski and saw a lot of talent among the young skiers who use the area," he said.

Rotarun was developed by civic minded Rotary Club Members who wanted an inexpensive ski facility for community children and adults. A sheep rancher named Arkoski owned the land with a good sized hill in it. He donated the hill to the Rotary Club for their project. The Feb. 27 race is a tribute to his generosity and concern for youngsters. Stelma said rope tows served the slope until 1962 when the Rotary club was able to raise enough money to build a J-bar lift to the top of the hill. It is still operating and has support from two rope tows. Stelma says the hill is ideal for training and practicing, with the possible exception of downhill practice.

The whole Rotarun program, the racing team and the efforts of Stelma and Swanner exemplify community support of youth and of junior skiing in particular.

The lift tickets are $4 for day passes for juniors and $6 for adults. The slopes are lighted for night skiing every Tuesday and Stelma says the operators even give junior racers special rates for the season.

Cooper suffers fall

Konzett wins women's slalom, snaps Hess' World Cup victory string

LENGGRIES, West Germany (UPI) — Ursula Konzett of Liechtenstein broke Swiss slalom ace Erika Hess' run of four consecutive World Cup victories Friday when she scored her first world cup win in the women's slalom with a total time of 1:39.55 minutes.

Anni Kronbichler of Austria took second place, pushing Hess back to third.

Sun Valley's Christin Cooper, fourth after the first leg, fell at the start of the second after catching her leg on a pole.

Konzett, 22, who trailed Hess by just 1-100th of a second after the 60-gate first run, took over first place with a second run of 46.60 seconds, but Hess retained her lead in the overall World Cup standings.

"I was nervous because of that 1-100th of a second but as soon as I started the course I forgot the nervousness," said Konzett, adding she was "very happy" finally to win a World Cup race after placing second at Bad-Gastein, Austria two days ago.

Austrian newcomer, 19-year-old Kronbichler, was only 1-100th of a second behind her, pushing Hess, who made a mistake at the top of the second run, into third place.

"I don't mind losing once before the World Championships," said 19-year-old Hess, who has won every women's slalom since the first at Planavallo, Italy that went to Liechtenstein's Hanni Wenzel. "The string of wins had to be broken."

Hess still leads the overall World Cup standings with 253 points against 242 for Irene Epple of West Germany, who picked up two points for 14th place Friday.

Some 8,000 spectators turned out to watch the race in sunny weather. Lenggries' second World Cup event after a men's slalom in 1980. The men skiers agreed with a drop of 180 meters, was a little too flat for a men's slalom. But the ladies seemed satisfied.

"The flat piste did make it difficult to correct the mistake I made at the top of the second run," said Hess. She added, "The third place won't affect my confidence at Schladming next week."

American Tamara McKinney, skiing with a broken hand, finished fourth with a total time of 1:40.72 seconds ahead of France's Perrine Pelen, who clocked 1:41.36.

"It's my second race since I was hurt in December," said 19-year-old

McKinney from Olympic Valley, California, who fell in Bad-Gastein two days ago because she could not hold her poles.

"With my broken hand I can't really use my poles, but it doesn't seem to bother me too much," she said.

Only 48 of 92 skiers finished both runs, the second slightly shorter with 59 gates, but more difficult.

Petra Wenzel, 20-year-old sister of Liechtenstein's ace, Hanni and Andreas Wenzel, dived up one of the day's surprises with an eighth placing after starting with number 46.

Her elder sister Hanni, one of the queens of slalom who would have been a major challenger to Hess in the world championships, still sidelined with injury and will not be at Schladming.

Klammer maintains confidence

WENGEN, Switzerland (UPI) — Austrian Franz Klammer, at 28, admits he's "the old man of ski racing" but still feels confident he can muster up enough strength in his aging limbs to win the World Cup downhill title one more time.

"It's possible I could win this year. I would have to win three or four events to clinch it. But all you really have to do is be in the top three most of the time. That's usually enough," he said prior to his penultimate run before today's testing Lauberhorn World Cup race.

While the course at Kitzbuhel, Austria is the steepest on the annual venue of events, the Lauberhorn, 1.27 miles, is the longest, requiring steady leg muscles, the stamina of a long-distance runner and endless determination simply to finish.

And despite being older than most of his competitors, Klammer, who has won here three times before, first in 1975, said, "I think I will do well here again."

"I have strong muscles for long downhill. I like it here very much because my experience on a course like this gives me the edge over some younger skiers," the 1976 Olympic champion said.

"At the Lauberhorn, it's the routine that's important because there are some very long turns. You have to have the right line and the right technique. This comes with experience."

The Lauberhorn is a tricky race because there are actually some slow parts which the skiers must accelerate into as fast as they can.

Whether or not Klammer overtakes the current World Cup downhill leader Steve Podorski of Canada, who before the Lauberhorn had 94 points to Klammer's 82, has just about clinched a spot in the top five finishers this year, which alone is the comeback story of the Alpine sports year.

Lifetime, Klammer has won 24 downhill events, more than twice the number of any other skier in the sport's history.

'New guy in town' prompts another battle in the gas war

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The chief instigator of a Twin Falls gas war is a relative newcomer in town that has yet to learn how tough the competition is, other gas dealers say. Further, they say, the two By-Rite stations off Blue Lakes Boulevard North will not profit from their price-cutting.

By-Rite's two Blue Lakes Boulevard stations often change prices several times a day, trying to be lower than all other stations, the dealers say.

But apparently, By-Rite doesn't have the lowest price in town.

Snake River Chevron sold a gallon of regular gas, on each sales only, for $1.99 Thursday and $1.99 Friday.

"There is an outfit here in town that has the impression they should be lower than anyone else. We're trying to show them it's not the case," said Roger Roghaar, the Snake River Chevron manager.

What happens next is anyone's guess, he said. He hopes the price has gone low enough that all stations will end the gas war and raise prices "back up to where they can all make a living."

The battle broke out in early November, about the time By-Rite had its signs installed on the two stations the company purchased during the summer.

The battle lines are traffic patterns. Stations with consistently low prices today will get people accustomed to driving into their stations, and presumably, they will profit from the increased business when prices return to profitable levels.

However, Roghaar and other dealers say they won't make it easy for anyone trying to increase their business that way. Dealers watch each other almost constantly for price changes, and many dealers are committed to matching the lowest price they see.

"No one will out-pump the other one. That's not going to happen," Roghaar said.

"No comment," said Bill Craig, a By-Rite station manager.

One sign that the gas war could be about to end is that some stations that normally match the lowest price available have not gone below $1.22 for a gallon of regular. Said one dealer, "I'm tired of changing pumps in the snow."

After the gas war started in November, prices for a gallon of self-service regular fell from about $1.33 to about $1.24. Hostilities ended for a short time in mid-December, when prices jumped to 17 cents per gallon over a two-day period. But prices began creeping back down almost immediately.

Prices went below $1.30 per gallon about two weeks ago. The war was on again in earnest at the beginning of this week, when prices fell to about $1.25 per gallon.

Unique Variety of factors make Moritz Hospital different

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — It began 40 years ago as a hotel first-aid station for broken legs and twisted ankles.

Today, treating ski accidents is only one of the services provided at Sun Valley's Moritz Community Hospital. A variety of medical services, from minor surgery to labor and delivery to lab tests, are being furnished both to tourists and the growing number of full-time residents.

With a recently hired administrator and a newly structured board, the 22-bed hospital continues its transition from a tourist-oriented facility to a community medical center.

Its seasonal fluctuations, 20 active doctors and a relatively low number of Medicare and Medicaid patients, gives Moritz Hospital a unique place among Idaho's small, rural hospitals.

But like many health-care institutions, Idaho's only city-owned hospital has had its share of struggles and political battles.

Administrator Alan Stevenson, hired last March, met with the new hospital board for the first time last week. Previously, all Sun Valley City Council members, plus several hospital and city officials, were seated on the 15-member board.

The new seven-member board is composed of one council member, five appointees and the chief of the medical staff.

Stevenson, the hospital's fifth administrator in the last 11 years, says the wide fluctuations in occupancy that have marked the hospital's history, have evened out. Although admissions tend to increase in February's peak skiing season, the hospital remains busy all year. The average occupancy rate is 55 to 60 percent, he says.

The hospital has a pediatrics clinic, as well as an orthopedic clinic. Specialists include three internists and a recently arrived plastic surgeon.

According to Stevenson, the hospital's $1.3-million operating budget is not subsidized by the city. A $500,000 capital expenditure budget does receive city funds.

Dr. George Saviers, who began practicing in the Ketchum-Sun Valley area in 1953, says the number of skiing accidents treated by the hospital has decreased dramatically in the past decade. He attributes the decrease mostly to better ski-trail grooming and partly to better skiing equipment.

The hospital developed from medical services provided to ski-accident victims by the Sun Valley Co.

In 1959, Dr. John Moritz came to Sun Valley from Nebraska to supervise the resort's medical services. He set up a treatment center in four rooms on the third floor of the Sun Valley Lodge.

In the late 1960s, a hospital was built near the lodge. The city owns the hospital; the Sun Valley Co. retains the right to renovate architectural plans for any additions, according to Mayor Ruth Lieder.

At about the same time, the Blaine County Hospital was built 11 miles to the south in Halley.

In the mid-1970s, there was an effort to make Moritz the county hospital and make the Halley hospital a long-term care facility. No agreement was reached.

"People are very proprietary about their hospital. Accessibility is very important to them," Stevenson observes.

Both Stevenson and Blaine County administrator Francis

As feared, White's leg was broken, requiring a cast

McNamara, who met regularly, acknowledge that their hospitals are in direct competition with each other, and there is some costly duplication of services.

"I think the interests of Blaine County residents could be better served downstream (in the future) by one hospital," Stevenson says. McNamara agrees, saying, "I'm still in favor of one hospital. (But) it's financially impossible."

The two hospitals serve slightly different populations, and Stevenson says people tend to "identify with one or the other."

Because of drawing quality of Sun Valley, Moritz comes close to being "overdoctored," says Dr. Stephen Luber, a Sun Valley City Council member. Moritz has 20 doctors for 22 beds, compared to Gooding County Memorial Hospital that has four doctors for 25 beds.

Also, only about 10 to 20 percent of Moritz admissions are Medicaid and Medicare patients, according to Stevenson. At most Idaho hospitals, such patients number 40 to 50 percent of admissions.

Like other resort hospitals, Moritz has had difficulty in getting payments from some out-of-state patients. As a result, it has instituted a pay-at-time-of-service policy. Stevenson says that about 5 percent of the hospital's receipts are "written off."

Although he feels hospitals must take increasing responsibility for good fiscal management, Stevenson continues "you see medical care as a right, not a privilege. Like education, everyone should have equal access to quality health care."

"In the years ahead, that's going to be more difficult to achieve," he says.

Despite Sun Valley's many wealthy residents, "people here, as everywhere, are concerned about the increasing cost of medicine."

Judge bans press at Friday hearing

In robbery case involving two brothers

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two Twin Falls brothers have been ordered to appear in Fifth District Court and answer to charges that they robbed a local woman in her home.

Friday in Fifth District Magistrate Court, Judge Charles Brumbach ordered 18-year-old Kirby Anthony to plead either innocent or guilty to a charge of robbery. Anthony's 19-year-old brother, Mike Anthony, will answer to a charge of accessory to robbery. All of the charges are felonies.

Brumbach ordered the two defendants bound over to the district court following a preliminary hearing that was closed to the press and the public.

Brumbach closed the hearing after a motion from Mike Anthony's lawyer, deputy public defender Mike Powers.

Powers said he was in the court's wishes of his client in asking that the press and public be excluded from the hearing. Kirby Anthony's lawyer, Randy J. Stoker, did not join in the motion. However, deputy county prosecutor Dennis Voorhees supported Powers' motion.

Voorhees' action followed Brumbach's comment that by keeping the hearing open, he would be committing judicial error. Idaho law provides that a magistrate judge must close a preliminary hearing upon the request of the defendant. However, Brumbach noted that Idaho Supreme Court rulings have found that the failure to close a hearing under such circumstances does not constitute irreparable error.

"Still, such an error could lead to an appeal and possibly complicate the prosecution's case," Brumbach said. "This case is too important to invite error, and so, I feel compelled to join in the motion," Voorhees said.

The case marked the second time in as many weeks that a preliminary hearing in Twin Falls has been closed to the public. On Jan. 11, magistrate Judge Melvin Edwards closed a preliminary hearing into the first-degree murder charge against 43-year-old Lawrence James Jenkins. Jenkins' lawyer, public defender Mike Walz, sought the closure.

The latest hearing concerned the charge that the two brothers robbed Thelma Stull in her home at 135 Fifth Ave. E. on Jan. 6.

According to police statements filed with the court, Kirby Anthony allegedly convinced the woman to let him enter her home to use a telephone. The suspect then allegedly used force on the victim, pulled a pistol and demanded all of her money, according to the charges.

Police charge that Mike Anthony remained outside the residence during the incident.

Testifying at the hearing were the alleged victim, as well as Twin Falls police detectives Don Walden and Ron Garey.

Both defendants initially had been charged with robbery. But on the day of the hearing, they were bound over to the reduced charge.

Winter's fury causes bus drivers headaches

By GLEN WARCHOL
Times-News writer

CASTLEFORD — The snow and ice changes everyone's travel plans. But the hardest decisions are made by school officials: Will they commit busloads of children to the snow-covered roads?

On one hand, the districts can't declare emergency-closure days indefinitely. If at all possible, the schools must be kept open. On the other hand, a school bus that slides off the road or becomes stuck is a serious situation.

"It really scares you when you have little ones aboard, and they might have to walk," says Superintendent Robert Pratt of Buhl. He decided to call off school Friday morning after a tour of the district's roads determined that north-south highways were virtually impassable.

Nearly every district in the Magic Valley canceled school Friday due to snowdrifts that reached heights of up to 14 feet in Mindokota county.

There were no children rejoining in the Castleford School District, however. Classes went on as usual.

The decision to send out the Castleford buses on Friday came mainly from Gerald Bybee, who for 30 years has owned and operated the company that delivers the district's students to their classrooms.

At 5 a.m. Friday, Bybee took a long ride to check the roads. After conferring with Superintendent Ed Schenk, they decided to keep the schools open. Castleford roads were better than most districts' in that area, Bybee says, mainly because of a coincidence in timing between the wind and the highway crews.

Buhl Highway District snowplows reached Castleford late Thursday night. And the wind, Bybee figures, blew the snow off the roads, keeping the Castleford roads relatively clear at 5.

The five Castleford buses completed their runs with the exception of the Blue Gulch and Roseworth routes in the Balanced Rock area. Despite these blocked routes, only 20 of 260 students were kept at home.

"This is the worst winter that Bybee has seen as the contractor for the district's transportation, since the business was passed on to him by his father, Fritz Bybee. Castleford schools have been closed four days. On those days, Bybee does not make his $300-a-day fee.

"Really, those four days probably helped me," says Bybee, who does all the maintenance on the buses himself. "The buses weren't out in the snowdrifts, pulling on the clutches. The peace of mind made the difference."

Bybee's peace of mind may be tested Monday if a storm predicted for the area Saturday continues through the weekend. Freezing rain is forecast into Sunday, with overnight lows in the 20s.

'Lost' butterfly finds help

TWIN FALLS — Like the cavalry, the University of Idaho Cooperative Extension Service has come riding to the rescue.

Friday's Times-News carried a story about a butterfly that mistakenly thought it was spring inside the cozy but snowbound house of Paul W. Stoltz.

Since leaving its cocoon sometime Thursday morning, it has spent much time flitting around a poinsettia, apparently disappointed that it can find no food to its liking in the house near Paul.

But there is a simple answer, says Robert Stoltz, the extension service's entomologist in Twin Falls. His recipe for "butterfly delight" is to put a half-and-half mixture of honey and water in a small cup. Then, place a cotton ball in the cup. The cotton should soak up the mixture, becoming "very, very moist" but not wet on top.

A butterfly, which normally feeds on a leafy plant, should be able to feed on the cotton ball. "If they still bobosc out and suck that right up," Stoltz says.

Werner was grateful for Stoltz's suggestion, and she said she would whip up a batch right away.

The butterfly still was doing quite well apparently; it was sunning itself in front of a window Friday afternoon.

Hansen helps dedicate steam plant

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Rep. George Hansen praised Cassia County officials Friday for building a steam-from-garbage plant without seeking federal assistance.

Speaking at the dedication of the Cassia County steam plant, Hansen said local communities do things for themselves can command their own specifications, not those of federal agencies.

"If people everywhere had the self-reliance and independence shown here, the nation would be the mess we are today," he told a group of 200 area officials and spectators during a ribbon-cutting ceremony at the $14.4 million plant.

"It's a pleasure for me to cut red tape anytime," Hansen quipped, as he maneuvered the giant scissors presented for the occasion.

An aide to Sen. James McClure echoed the congressman's statements, quoting McClure as saying that Cassia County officials still would be filling out forms instead of dedicating a plant if they had waited for federal funding.

Cassia County obtained funding for the plant through a lease-purchase agreement with Idaho First National Bank. Bank officials were introduced at the gathering by Weldon Beck, the chairman of the County Commission.

At a luncheon hosted by the principal builder, Wilder Construction Co., Hansen, Idaho's senior representative to Congress, said he has asked the secretary of the Department of Transportation and the General Accounting Office to determine whether environmental restrictions contributed to last week's crash of an airliner leaving Washington's National Airport.

The crash, which killed 74 persons, occurred when the Air Florida plane struck a bridge during takeoff in a snowstorm.

Hansen said a recent report indicated that minimum speed ratings for Boeing 737s are too low for safe takeoffs. He said no restrictions are responsible for planes taking off at low throttle.

Touring the steam plant earlier, Hansen wondered jokingly if the facility would pass Occupational Safety and Health Administration standards. A hanging switch near the garbage loading chute came to about mid-forward on the 6-foot-6 congressman.

City Council members receive appointments

TWIN FALLS — Members of Twin Falls City Council have received their appointments to act as liaisons to the city's various departments and advisory commissions. They are:

• Mary McClusky — The Highway and Traffic Safety Commission. McClusky also has been appointed the city's vice mayor, and she is on the board of directors of the Twin Falls Senior Citizens Federation Inc., which occupies a city-owned facility.

• Bud Cheney — The Fire Department, the Golf Advisory Commission and the Youth Advisory Commission. Cheney also has been assigned as an alternate representative for the Airport Commission, and he will serve on a committee to pursue development of the city's Alpheus Creek hydro-power project.

• Paul Newton — The street, water and sewer departments, and the Alpheus Creek hydro-power project.

• Emery Petersen — Budget and federal revenue-sharing committees, and the Region IV Development Association.

• John Peterson — Budget, federal revenue-sharing and downtown parking committees, and the Planning and Zoning Commission.

• Alan Wubker — The Police Department, Parks and Recreation Commission, and the Mayor's Commission to Hire the Handicapped.

Wubker also has been assigned as an alternate to the Planning and Zoning Commission.

Suspects arraigned in high-speed chase cases

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Thad Monepenny, the man suspected of shooting at Jerome County Sheriff's deputies during a high-speed chase last summer, remained in the Jerome County Jail in lieu of $60,000 bond, following his arraignment in Fifth District Magistrate Court in Twin Falls on Thursday.

Monepenny, 22, managed to escape from deputies following the July 10, 1981, incident, and he remained at large until his arrest in White Plains, N.Y., in December.

The defendant refused to waive extradition, and a governor's warrant was required to bring him back to Idaho, according to Jerome County Sheriff Elia Hall.

Monepenny arrived in Jerome on Thursday.

The defendant was arraigned before magistrate Judge Roger Burdick on charges filed by both Jerome and Twin Falls officials. The charges included assault, assault to commit a serious felony (assault upon a law enforcement officer), grand theft-auto and grand theft-cattle.

The July chase began when a sheriff's deputy in Eden observed a pickup truck matching the description of one stolen earlier at a Twin Falls-area farm. Deputies pursued the truck a short distance north of Eden.

At that point, another suspect, believed to be Monepenny, was traveling separately and wrecked his vehicle. Then, Monepenny allegedly scrambled into the pickup truck. But that truck drove off before Monepenny could enter it, deputies said.

Officers later arrested Joseph E. Gwin, 19, of Twin Falls, as the driver of the pickup.

After failing to enter the pickup, Monepenny allegedly fired one shot at deputies. Deputies allege that he took the gun from the wrecked vehicle.

Burdick appointed the Jerome County public defender's office to represent Monepenny on the assault charges. The Twin Falls County public defender's office was appointed to represent him on the charges stemming from the theft of a truck and cattle from Twin Falls-area farms.

In another case heard Thursday, Bruce Allen Eggink, 19, of Jerome, remained in the Twin Falls County Jail on Thursday in lieu of $5,000 bond following his arraignment on a string of charges stemming from a late-night chase on Blue Lakes Boulevard North.

According to Twin Falls police, Eggink was first observed traveling north on Blue Lakes at a high rate of speed and refused to obey an officer's signal to pull over. Instead, Eggink allegedly traveled at speeds in excess of 90 mph, and at one point nearly collided with a southbound Idaho

Seven area students earn service academy selection

TWIN FALLS — The offices of Sens. James McClure and Steve Symms have announced the nomination of seven Magic Valley area high school seniors to the service academies.

The students are among 50 selected by the two senators. Nominees are selected on the basis of standard test scores, academic record, physical condition, citizenship, school activities and letters of recommendation.

The final selection for appointments will be made by the academies this spring.

The nominees from this area are: John Patrick Montgomery of Halley, the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo.; Andrew David Carter of Albion, the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md.; William Gordon Hagler of Jerome, the Merchant Marine Academy; Gene Seligson of Ketchum, West Point; Brian J. Quonoes of Ketchum, the Naval Academy; and Duane E. Cantley and Daniel B. Shrum, both of Glenns Ferry, both to the Air Force Academy.

FBI enters Twin Falls bank heist

TWIN FALLS — No new details emerged Friday in the continuing investigation of Monday's robbery of the Idaho Bank and Trust office in downtown Twin Falls.

No arrests have been made in the case, and no new developments were reported by Twin Falls police.

As in any robbery involving a federally insured bank, the FBI is involved with the investigation.

Agent Frank Chidichimo acknowledged the FBI's involvement, saying the agency is working with Twin Falls police in the investigation. He declined to release any further details, however.

A lone gunman entered the bank, located at 220 Shoshone St. E., at about 4:12 p.m. and made off with an undisclosed amount of money.

Tipped off by a triggered alarm, police arrived on the scene seconds after the robber left the bank.

Chamber break-in nets thief zilch

TWIN FALLS — A burglar discovered that the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce office doesn't do much cash business.

Mike Dalton, the chamber's manager, reported to police on Wednesday morning that the office had been broken into, but nothing was missing.

Police said the burglar broke into the basement of the building at 323 Shoshone St. N., then made his way to the main floor, where desks and files were ransacked. Apparently, the burglar did not find what he was looking for and left.

Dalton estimated the entry was made between 8:45 p.m. Tuesday and 9:30 a.m. Wednesday. Damage from the break-in was estimated at $10.

QUESTION...
What are "Death Taxes"?

ANSWER...

Inheritance, succession, transfer and estate taxes, as well as any other taxes levied against the estate or those who inherit the estate of a deceased person, are known as "Death Taxes".

The liability for the payment of these taxes rests with those who inherit the estate or the estate of the decedent. Under the Federal Estate Tax laws and the laws of those states that levy either an estate tax or an inheritance tax, those who succeed to the ownership of property subject to these taxes or the personal representative of an estate must satisfy any tax liability involved with property.

Under certain circumstances funeral costs are deductible from "Death Taxes". Funeral and interment expenses are deductible from the gross estate of a decedent under the Federal Estate Tax laws before the Federal Tax is applied. These costs are likewise deductible before State Inheritance or Estate Taxes are levied by the individual states.

Oswald: "There are all sorts of plays described under the general name of coup. The Vienna coup is a specialized form of the squeeze. Some coups take place at the end of the play — others are made early.

"Alan," "in today's hand South ruffs the third heart and plays two rounds of trumps only to get the bad news. He has lost two tricks and has a trump loser and a club loser still to come.

"There is some obscure chance for a squeeze in case West holds five clubs in addition to his five hearts. But there is a coup en passant" at his beck and call provided that East will follow to three diamonds and two clubs."

Oswald: "South cashes his last good trump, the three top diamonds and the ace and king of clubs. Now he leads dummy's hearts."

Alan: "Poor East has been couped. If he ruffs, South still discards his last club. If he discards, South ruffs with his small trump."

Oswald: "The defense had two winners. South had made them use both winners on the same trick." (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

THINKING OF AN ECONOMY DIESEL PICKUP?

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

LONG BED DELUXE DIESEL $7495

SAVE $884 NOW!

HURRY! OFFER ENDS JAN. 23

Choose From Yellow, Blue, Beige, White or Red.

The Toyota Long Bed Deluxe Diesel... Tough and fuel saving... this diesel delivers higher mileage than any gasoline-powered truck.

It comes standard equipped with features like a rugged 5-speed overdrive transmission and 7-foot bed with 1,000 lb. payload. See us today and truck on down the road in a Toyota Diesel.

Look at these standard features that don't cost you extra:

- 2.2 liter diesel 4-cylinder SOHC engine
- 5 main bearings
- 2.5 Kw gear reduction drive starter
- Two 12-volt batteries
- Swirl-type pre-combustion chamber
- Water separator and spin-on type fuel filter
- Glow plug & fuel sedimentor water level indicator lamps
- Power-assisted brakes (front disc, rear drum)
- And more... more... more.

COMPARE THESE FEATURES, YOU WON'T FIND A BETTER VALUE ON THE ROAD TODAY.

Remember: Compare these estimates to the EPA Estimated MPG of other vehicles. Your actual fuel mileage depends on how fast you drive, weather conditions and trip length. Actual highway mileage may actually be less than the EPA Highway Estimate.
