

Beans Inc. settlement ends inquiry

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Prosecutor Harry DeHaan has suspended his investigation into the July 1979, Beans Inc. fire.

In making the announcement Tuesday, the Twin Falls County prosecutor said that Beans Inc. officials have submitted a $1,050,000 settlement offer to area farmers who are suing them.

DeHaan's decision arose from an agreement he made with Beans Inc. officials at the start of his investigation last May. At that time, he said he offered to end his investigation if a settlement was reached in the civil suit before he had gathered sufficient evidence to file criminal charges.

The prosecutor said he made that arrangement "because I think the first priority is to get the farmers paid off."

The announcement came just minutes before DeHaan's offer of immunity to persons who offered information about the Beans warehouse fire was set to expire. He said six persons came forward during the 72-hour immunity period, but none of them produced the "smoking gun" needed to win a conviction.

"If I had a solid case, I would have filed it," DeHaan said. "We don't have enough (evidence). The only thing we're doing is, we're going to stop looking."

Despite DeHaan's announcement of a settlement offer, the fate of the civil case is by no means certain. Lawyers representing the farmers reportedly have not determined whether to recommend if their clients should accept the offer. The case is scheduled to go to trial in June.

The 23-month-old lawsuit is at the heart of Tuesday's developments. About 150 farmers have sued the defunct Beans Inc.; its parent company, Commodity Marketing Corp.; and CMC's owner, Jim Woods of Salinas, Calif.

The farmers want payment for the beans that were stored in the warehouse prior to the fire. They also have accused Beans Inc. officials of selling beans that they did not own. In all, the farmers have claimed that an estimated $1.3 million to $1.6 million worth of beans were in the warehouse.

Woods and business associate Martin Taylor of Madera, Calif., also have been named as defendants in a Utah criminal action stemming from the same fire.

In Utah, each defendant has been charged with one count of arson with intent to defraud and one count of insurance fraud.

The Salt Lake County Attorney's Office claimed jurisdiction in the case because the adjuster, Glenn Bammerlin, who represented the insurance companies that covered the warehouse, and one of the insurance companies, Fireman's Fund Insurance Co., are located in Salt Lake City.

National groups lobby right-to-work Signals mixed on decontrol

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — An East Coast group is conducting a statewide poll to identify support for right-to-work legislation in Idaho.

"The AFL-CIO came out with a poll of some sort of absurd statistics showing anti-right-to-work sentiment in Idaho," said Bill Wilson of the National Right to Work Committee in Springfield, Va. "We just thought it was time someone did gather some clear, credible data on this topic."

Introduced two weeks ago by Rep. John Brooks, R-Gooding, the proposal to outlaw mandatory union membership as a condition of continued employment already has passed the House.

The national committee is conducting telephone polling throughout Idaho, without support from the local Freedom to Work Committee based in Boise.

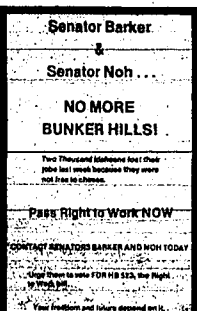

Several Magic Valley residents — including Louise Kooz, a Kimberly resident who is co-chairman of Freedom to Work — have been called by the Virginia group. It is headquartered near Washington, D.C., and that is used in the telephone presentation.

"We're breaking down our calls according to county population," Wilson said. "About 600 completed calls would give us an acceptable sample, but we're hoping for a 1,000

receives 50 calls

Right-to-work add ran Sunday

'we're wasting our time'

completion to eliminate some of the error factor."

Results from the poll should be compiled in about two weeks, he said.

The phone-call campaign — which Wilson claimed is not designed to encourage people to contact their legislators — comes at the same time the state Freedom to Work Committee is buying newspaper advertisements to elicit backing for the right-to-work bill now before the Senate.

The phoning "is not being done by our committee," said Peter Bratt, co-chairman of Freedom to Work. "I don't know anything about it."

"We're concentrating our efforts on the newspaper ads and working with legislators to see how its going to set in the Senate," he said.

The newspaper ads, while placed by the Freedom to Work Committee, reportedly are financed with contributions from the national coalition in Virginia.

One of the ads appeared in Sunday's Times-News and requested people supporting right to work to contact two Republican senators, Laird Noh of Kimberly and John Barker of Boise. "I've probably received about 50 calls (on right to work) since Sunday, but I can't say they were all prompted by the ad," Barker said. "They're about balanced between being for it and against it."

Barker says he has "a wide variety of people" who are "Magic Valley residents who previously opposed right to work."

Noh said he received 11 calls in response to the ad while he was at his Kimberly home on Sunday.

"I received six calls opposing right to work and five in favor of it."

But Noh says he remains disappointed the issue was introduced in the Legislature this year, even though he personally supports the movement.

"I can't see that we have enough votes to override a governor veto, which is certainly expected, and so, we're really wasting ours and the taxpayers' time debating it," he said.

Last year, right-to-work legislation, also sponsored by Brooks, passed the House, but died after it was tabled by a Senate committee.

"That's the push of our advertising campaign," Bratt said. "We just want to get a fair hearing — to be voted on this year in the Senate."

Wilson, who said he is closely following right-to-work progress in Idaho, said the 50-20 House vote was an indication of the bill's following.

Rep. William Lytle (R-Pinehurst) was right on target with his assessment of public support," he said.

In right-to-work debate on the House floor, Lytle said that while he still opposes the legislation, overwhelming support from his constituents made him change his vote this year.

"Gov. (John) Evans, who has opposed right to work since 1956, should take the position of the people of Idaho and let the bill become law without vetoing it," said Wilson. He claims Evans has taken "an arrogant tone" on the issue to date.

"It will be a liability in his campaign for re-election if he goes against the people on this issue," Wilson said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said Tuesday that President Reagan has no immediate plan to seek accelerated natural gas decontrol.

But Regan's agency contradicted the statement four hours later.

"At the current moment, the president is not going to propose deregulation of natural gas — nor a windfall profits tax on it," Regan told a luncheon audience at the National Press Club.

However, later in the afternoon Regan spokesman Martin Fitzwater said the secretary really did not mean to rule out legislation to decontrol the price of natural gas. He said Regan was only ruling out a windfall profits tax.

"The windfall profits tax is out but there could still be a bill otherwise," Fitzwater said. "He did not mean to preclude the possibility of a bill on decontrol on natural gas without a windfall profits tax."

Earlier in the day, however, Treasury was essentially confirming the secretary's original comments. Until recently, members of the administration — including Energy Secretary James Evans — have been saying that an administration-backed natural gas deregulation bill would go to Congress this month.

"I know that several senators and congressmen are of this opinion and such legislation may go forward, but at the current moment I know of no immediate plans to send any such legislation to the Congress," Regan said in response to reporters' questions.

The president, who campaigned on a platform that stressed decontrol and a free market for energy, refused to support any of the accelerated gas decontrol bills offered in Congress last year.

At the same time, he personally endorsed subsidies for a regulated coal gasification project in North Dakota and asked Congress for a special expansion of regulations to help a consortium finance a $45 billion Alaskan gas pipeline project.

Sources said Reagan's fiscal 1983 budget contains an increase for the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, which administers gas and wholesale electricity price controls.

Observers agree that unless the administration backs a decontrol initiative this month, chances are nil that one could be enacted before Congress suspends work for the fall election campaigns.

Under the current congressional timetable for partial gas deregulation, controls would come off only half of all pipeline gas supplies by Jan. 1, 1985. The rest — "oil" gas from wells tapped before April 20, 1977 — would remain under controls indefinitely.

Reapportionment fight moving closer to truce

By ANN D. KIRKWOOD
United Press International

BOISE — Settlement of Idaho's reapportionment battle moved one step closer Tuesday — but only after red-faced Republicans admitted they had attempted to pull a trick on the Democrats.

Senate Democrats confronted Republican leaders over an attempt to juggle the chamber's calendar so that the bill could be signed into law by Lt. Gov. Phil Batt while the governor was out of the state.

Afterward, Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, the Senate's president pro tem, announced that the reapportionment bill would be held while Republicans worked with the governor in an attempt to iron out differences over the measure.

He said no date had been set for calling a vote on the measure because of the possibility that the bill's Democrats now oppose could be amended to avoid a gubernatorial veto.

That announcement, which came on the heels of a series of closed-door meetings and confrontations, gave Ron Twilegar, D-Boise, the Senate's minority leader, Gov. John Evans their party's first major procedural victory of the session.

Democratic Senate Chairman Sen. Mike Mitchell of Lewiston said angry Democratic senators devoted their discussions Tuesday morning to the GOP's movement of the House-passed reapportionment bill on the Senate calendar.

The lawmakers were prepared to stall debate on the measure by reading aloud into the record or by filibustering, Mitchell said, rather than see it approved by the Republican majority.

The measure was reported out of the Senate State Affairs Committee on Monday, then quickly moved for a second reading, he said. Bills customarily are held another legislative day before the second reading, then voted upon on after the third legislative day.

Neither the Democrats nor the public was notified that the bill would be up for a vote Tuesday, he said.

"They wanted to get the bill down on the governor's desk this week because the governor has out-of-state travel plans, and there would be another governor," Twilegar said.

Republican Batt acknowledged such a Republican plan. While Budge initially denied Twilegar's accusation, when told of Batt's confirmation, he acknowledged that the attempt to have the bill signed into law by the lieutenant governor had been "one of the considerations in our discussions."

"At least for a change the two parties are talking," Batt said, as Budge, Senate Majority Leader James Risch and other GOP leaders walked downstairs in the Statehouse to the governor's office for a meeting over the dispute.

"I believe it took this kind of a confrontation to bring that about."

Testimony: Clubbing works best against pests

REXBURG (UPI) — A Jefferson County commissioner told a state judge Tuesday that rabbit drives are the most effective way to control crop losses from the animals.

Nine outings have netted more than 100,000 animals in eastern Idaho this winter.

The testimony from Commissioner Rex Furness came in the second day of hearings in Seventh District Court on a request from a wildlife-protection group to halt the weekly roundups on the grounds they violate state anti-cruelty laws.

Furness said the commission voted on Dec. 14 to classify the county's jack rabbits as "pests," thus placing them under state guidelines for controlling such nuisances as insects and rodents.

The law allows farmers to take "any means necessary" to control the rabbit overpopulation, which peaks in the area about every decade, he said.

But the group opposing the drives, the Fund for Animals, claims the roundups and slaughters inflict unnecessary cruelty on the animals. Fund attorney Bill Mank said Judge Willard Burton on Monday that the drives subject young children to needless brutality because they are allowed to participate in the events.

Furness said he has witnessed rabbit drives spanning three separate winters during his 34 years as a county resident.

"My experience, the drives have been the most effective way to control the problem," he testified. "After the drives, we didn't see the rabbit numbers the following year."

Fund representatives also claim police officers at the roundups failed to arrest people who allegedly were inflicting needless pain on the rabbits, or who were playing so-called "bunny baseball" by tossing live rabbits to friends who would strike at them with sticks.

But county sheriff's deputy Lavar Summers said he saw only isolated instances of misconduct during the drives, which began Dec. 12.

He also said he was asked by farmers organizer Orvin Twitchell of Midd Lake to keep children under the age of 16 out of the killing pens, where rabbits are slaughtered at the end of the drive, and to prevent any incidence of "bunny ball."

"I saw one instance of bunny ball with a live rabbit on Jan. 23, and I asked that participant to stop," Summers testified.

"He said that no arrests had been made at any of the roundups. 'I was told to keep the peace, and that's what we did,'" he told Burton.

Ford follows GM's lead with rebates

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. Tuesday bowed to pressure and announced a rebate program ranging from $750 on lower-priced cars to $2,000 on its top luxury model.

General Motors announced a similar plan last week.

Ford's announcement came as bargaining between the United Auto Workers and Ford resumed — with company Chairman Philip Caldwell a surprise guest at the main table. Both sides said the chairman would play no role in the discussions.

Philip Benton, Ford vice president of sales operations, announced Ford will give cash rebates of $750 on Mustang, Fairmont, Granada, Capri, Zephyr, Cougar cars which range in price from about $7,000 to $10,000.

Purchasers of luxury Continental models listing at around $22,000, will get $2,000 back.

Rebates of $750 will be given on selected trucks, excluding the new front-wheel drive Ranger.

Benton said the company was extending through April a two-year maintenance offer and 5 percent price cut on Escort and Lynx. List price for each car is about $6,500. Also added to the plan, originally scheduled to expire March 13, were the two-seater EXT and LN7 models.

While Escort and Lynx sales have nearly tripled since the program began two weeks ago, Benton said the rebates would not have been announced had GM not initiated similar price cuts last week after the breakdown of negotiations with the UAW.

"I do not believe in rebate programs except to respond to competition," Benton said. "We would not have chosen to offer rebates had GM. not offered them."

State has no place for executions

BOISE (UPI) — The State Department of Correction has three men on death row awaiting execution by lethal injection, but no place to carry out those sentences.

So Chester Crowl, director of the Idaho Department of Correction, says he will ask the Legislature for permission to use already allocated construction funds to build a death chamber within the next very few short months.

But if the $40,000 in existing funds doesn't cover construction of a permanent building, Crowl says the department is prepared to remodel a mobile home, or perhaps a cattle trailer, for the grim task.

The life term was levied against John Lester Harris of Blount County, Ala., who also was given consecutive five-year prison terms on three other counts involving the kidnapping of one worker and the enslavement of three others.

Harris, 39, also was sentenced to consecutive five-year terms on three other counts involving the kidnapping of one worker and the enslavement of three others.

He was sentenced — Dennis Warren, 10, the 10-year-old son of the Nash County, N.C., camp, and his brother Richard, 22, who, like Harris, was a field supervisor who worked under Dennis Warren. The Warrens are from Orlando, Fla.

Life sentence for slavery charge

NEW BERN, N.C. (UPI) — A federal judge Tuesday sentenced the field boss of a migrant farm camp where one worker died to life in prison for conspiring to enslave workers. Two other supervisors were sentenced to lesser terms.

U.S. District Judge Earl Britt said he hoped the harsh sentence in what was believed to be the first federal slavery case involving the death of a worker would sound a warning "heard throughout the nation."

Panel OKs funds for job centers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressional panel approved an additional $2.3 billion Tuesday to extend unemployment compensation benefits and prevent state employment offices from closing as a result of President Reagan's budget cuts.

The House Appropriations' labor subcommittee voted unanimously to advance the unemployment compensation trust fund $1.9 billion and make $343 million available for state unemployment office staffing requirements. (See related story on Page A3.)

Cuba hijacking ends safely

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI) — An Air Florida 737 jet with 77 people aboard was hijacked to Cuba Tuesday by a Latin man claiming to have a flammable liquid.

All those aboard except the hijacker were back in the United States three hours later.

The Boeing 737 landed safely in Havana at 3:28 p.m. EST and was released by Cuban authorities 2 1/2 hours later.

It arrived in Key West from Cuba at 6:30 p.m. and a few minutes later the passengers — all unharmed — began cheering, clapping and grinning at a waiting crowd of spectators at the Key West Airport.

The hijacker, described by an unidentified source as a "young Latin male," remained behind in Havana under custody of Cuban authorities, according to a spokesman for Air Florida.

The pilot of Air Florida's Flight 710 from Miami to Key West, Fla., radioed about 20 minutes after takeoff that he was being forced to fly to Havana. At that time the plane, carrying 72 passengers and a crew of five, was about 60 miles southwest of Miami, the Federal Aviation Administration said.

The Boeing 737, which took off from Miami at 2:37 p.m., landed safely in Havana at 3:28 p.m., the FAA said.

Robert Jordan, spokesman for the U.S. Interest Section in Havana, said everyone got out of the plane after it landed at the Jose Marti Airport.

"Everybody is safe and sound," Jordan reported.

Cuban authorities indicated they would release the aircraft and all its occupants, except the hijacker, for return to the United States later Tuesday.

An Air Florida spokesman said the plane was scheduled to fly from Miami to Key West, Fla., and that Key West where FBI agents planned to question passengers and crew.

It was the second crisis involving an Air Florida jet in less than a month.

On Jan. 13, an Air Florida Boeing 737 crashed on takeoff from Washington's National Airport, killing 79 people.

There was no immediate word on the identity of the hijacker, who had managed to pass through the tight security measures maintained at Miami International Airport to detect suspected air pirates.

The hijacking involved one man claiming to have a bottle of flammable liquid, said Fred Farrar, FAA spokesman in Washington, D.C.

Shortly after the airline disclosed news of the hijacking, FAA spokesman Jack Barker in Atlanta reported: "There have been no problems. The airplane is perfectly safe. The passengers are perfectly safe. It is down safe in Havana and all the passengers are fine."

It was the first hijacking of a U.S. airliner to Cuba since July 10, 1981, when an Eastern Airlines plane was diverted to Havana on a flight from Chicago to Miami.

But Utah's jurisdiction in the case has been challenged by the defendants, and Utah officials have said they will not prosecute DeHaan until he has stood a better chance of winning a criminal conviction. As of last month, Utah prosecutors still were waiting to see how well DeHaan's case progressed before proceeding on their own.

Tuesday, DeHaan conditioned his statements by saying he would restate the investigation in the event that a settlement is not finalized. And until a settlement is reached, DeHaan said he will continue to pay a passive role, indicating that he might file charges in the event that further investigation "falls to my lap."

Once a settlement is finalized, DeHaan said he will close the books on the case, although he said that the prosecution of any person who is not party to the settlement would not be ruled out.

DeHaan said he was "very, very close" to filing a complaint. DeHaan would not identify any suspects in the case. However, he indicated that the suspects "were none of the people who have been so loudly speculated in the community."

According to the prosecutor, Woods has authorized a settlement offer in which all of the defendant's assets "have been thrown into the pot." DeHaan said the $1,650,000 offer would give each farmer 70 percent to 90 percent of his original claim against Beans Inc.

Under their settlement offer, Woods and his associates are "going to end up with nothing for a lifetime of work," DeHaan said. "I feel he has sacrificed his life for the bargain."

DeHaan's announcement may have given the farmers their first glimpse of the details of the settlement offer, which was presented to their lawyers Friday.

A large portion of the offer comes from the Beans Inc. receivables, which is valued at approximately $725,000. The rest of the funds reportedly will come from Beans Inc. holdings and the insurance companies.

Mark Stubbs, who represents the National Farmers Organization, declined to elaborate on the settlement offer. But Stubbs disagreed with DeHaan's assessment that the offer would give farmers as much as 90 cents on the dollar.

"Seventy percent would be the most realistic picture, the absolute highest I could ever have committed Stubbs," he said. DeHaan's 90 percent figure "might do our clients a very big disservice because he's going to get their hopes up."

Stubbs said lawyers still are reviewing the offer, and they have not decided whether to recommend it. That recommendation will be made sometime next week, he said.

To what degree DeHaan's implied threat of prosecuting Beans Inc. officials aided the settlement negotiations remained unknown, although it probably had some effect in securing an offer, Stubbs said.

"It's hard to say because the threat of criminal prosecution was always a worry for Woods," he said. "But as to how much that influenced Woods, who can say, because he still has the criminal prosecution in Utah to fight."

Stubbs said the timing of DeHaan's announcement would not reduce pressure on Woods to settle. Preparation for the trial is continuing, and Stubbs said he believes that fact will provide an incentive for successful negotiations.

"I think the offer is firm and legitimate. I believe that any further negotiations will be based on the possibility of winning in our civil case, not on the outcome of any criminal case that will be going on at the same time," he said. "The cases are certainly parallel, but they don't cross over."

Proposal provides time for school prayer

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — School children should be given "quiet time" to pray or meditate before class begins, whether they use it or not.

Rep. Gary Paxman, R-Idaho Falls, is pushing this proposal to allow students one minute of quiet at the start of each school day "for meditation or prayer."

The plan eventually won support Tuesday from the House Education Committee, which after emotional debate, voted 11 to 5 to approve the measure and send it to the full House, after some grammatical corrections are made.

"I can see some real problems with this, though — like the kid thumbing his nose at the teacher or wiggling his ears like a jackass and claiming that's his form of prayer," said Rep. George Johnson, D-Lewiston.

Reacting similarly was Rep. Dan Kelly, R-Mountain Home. A school teacher, Kelly warned committee members that attempting to get students to be quiet for a minute would upset a classroom more than it is worth.

"It may take 15 minutes of class time just to get the kids to quiet down for that one minute of silence," he said.

Rep. Tom Silvers, R-Twin Falls, disagreed, however, saying guiding the students for meditation would have a calming effect that would bolster the classroom process.

"I know that's true of the House," he said. "When we stop for a moment for our prayer each morning, it does kind of calm everyone down."

More at the center of the debate, however, was the constitutionality of allowing time for prayer in school. A similar bill passed the House last year but died in the Senate.

"The Supreme Court ruling appears pretty strong in this area," said Rep.

Paul Keeton, D-Lewiston. "Perhaps if we strike the words 'or prayer,' it will fly."

The Idaho Education Association also voiced objection to the proposal.

"This is a very difficult bill to oppose; you feel like you're being anti-religious," said IEA spokesman Donald Rollee. "Our concern is not for a moment of silence, but for this encroachment of church and state."

"We would probably be more receptive to mandatory prayer for the schools, rather than in them," Rollee quipped. "Public schools should not be used for the promotion of religion."

Rep. Marguerite McLaughlin, D-Orofino, argued that under present law, nothing prevents teachers from holding "a moment of silence. This bill doesn't change anything as I see it."

In defending his bill, Paxman acknowledged McLaughlin's point, but he argued "that with the precedent set by the Supreme Court, we perhaps need a bill like this to remind us that individuals can pray or meditate in school if they desire. What can't be done is straight dictating of a prayer."

Paxman, who began his presentation with a moment of silence "to pray that all goes well with this bill," said his plan will "afford students an opportunity to pray if they so desire."

"Our moment of silence doesn't compel any child to pray or to worship any one God," he argued. "It would only ensure that opportunity is there."

"The Supreme Court has misapplied a constitutional rule," Paxman continued. "Prayer in school was something that was going on for over 100 years. My class even graduated, so it didn't apparently hurt any of us."

"What the court ruling has done is send us toward atheism rather than being a religious nation as we were founded."

Local educators not opposed

By GLEN WARCHOL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Several Magic Valley educators say they would not be opposed to a moment of silence in the schools for "meditation or prayer," but many of them question what it would accomplish.

"I find it a noble gesture to correct what a lot of people think is wrong with the schools — a lack of Christian ethics," said Superintendent Bob Pratt of the Buhl School District. "But I don't think they are solving the real problem. One minute of silence is not going to replace Christian ethics."

Pratt said that while outward signs of the Christian religion have been removed from the schools, most public educators still teach ethics to their students.

One problem that Pratt sees with the proposed law, which was introduced into the House on Tuesday, is how teachers will explain to a young child what the minute of meditation or prayer is for without teaching them how to meditate or pray.

"I think the difficulty would be: How do you convey to the student what the minute is for without endorsing the concept of prayer?" he said.

Similar laws that have been introduced in state legislatures across the country have ended up in court over their constitutionality, Pratt said.

"The question to ask them (the state legislators) is:

What specifically is the purpose behind this, and what do you hope to achieve?"

Superintendent-Norman-Hurst-of-Casela-County School District said that if the law is passed, he would have no objection to implementing it.

The Cassia district's current policy is that if students want to gather before or after school for prayer or religious instruction, the district has no objection, he said.

Emphasizing that he was not speaking for his staff or the district's residents, Superintendent James Reed of the Glenns Ferry School District said he favors the law.

"I think a minute of silence is a fine idea," commented Reed, who said that the minute should not be colored by a particular religious point of view.

He said that religious freedom is one of the basic concepts of the nation, and he feels that a moment to practice that freedom is a reasonable idea.

Although he is not opposed to it, Superintendent Richard Smith of the Hanser School District said he could not see any purpose for a moment of silence without instructing the children on what to do with it, which would complicate the issue.

"I have nothing against it," he said. "They can have a moment of silence — while they think about fishing." But "I fail to see what it will accomplish: if there's no instruction given, it isn't really that worthwhile."

Bill would aid CSI program

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — Bills to increase the divorce-filing fee and to extend state support for adopted handicapped children were introduced in the Senate on Tuesday.

The Center for New Directions at the College of Southern Idaho, which counsels recently divorced and widowed women seeking employment, would benefit from the bill to increase the divorce-filing fee by $20.

The bill would raise the fee from $41.50 to $61.50. Last year, there were 6,600 divorces filed in Idaho. Using this number, the bill's sponsor projects that the change would generate an estimated $12,000 in additional revenue.

"The purpose of this bill is to establish an account to provide a dedicated fund to expand the programs for displaced homemakers," said the sponsor, Sen. Norma Dohler, D-Moscow.

Dohler said it is her goal to see programs similar to the one in Twin Falls established in northern Idaho and possibly in Pocatello. Dohler submitted her bill in the Senate Health Education and Welfare Committee, which voted to introduce the measure.

The Center for New Directions is seeking $38,500 to continue its Magic Valley program, which offers free or low-cost state support after June 30. Dohler's bill would provide money in addition to the center's fiscal year 1983 budget request.

The center helps women who have suddenly become heads of households learn how to find employment rather than relying on welfare.

However, not all the committee members were in complete support of Dohler's proposed fee hike. Sen. Terry Sversten, R-Cataldo, voted against introduction.

Committee Chairman Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, also said he had reservations. "I have a problem with designating this for dedicated funds, but the bill probably should be allowed discussion on the (Senate) floor."

In other health and welfare committee action, legislation was introduced to allow the Department of Health and Welfare to continue supporting severely handicapped children after they are adopted.

"There are foster parents who want to adopt the children they now care for but cannot, because it would mean losing the financial support needed to cover the expensive medical care," said Kent Henderson of the state welfare division.

The proposed legislation would allow the state to continue medical coverage of a handicapped child through an adoption subsidy until the child's 18th birthday.

"What we're really talking about is about 20 youngsters who are severely handicapped," Henderson said. "While a few of these children probably can't be adopted because of the severity of their cases, many of them can be."

"Our major interest is to get these children into a more permanent home, but at some time, there could also be some cost savings for the state," he said.

Henderson reported that 39 handicapped children are now in adopted homes at a cost to the state of about $37,000 a year. He estimated that the cost of foster-home care for these children would have been about $145,000.

"Obviously, the care for the more severely handicapped is going to be a lot more expensive," he said. "We can't say for sure there will be cost savings, but it would not cost any more, and the child would benefit from a permanent home. Ultimately, there could be savings, though."

Legislature briefs

Budget committee begins funding

BOISE (UPI) — The Legislature's budget-setting committee began doling out state funds Tuesday by earmarking money to help agencies and programs make it through the current fiscal year.

Setting of the supplemental appropriations is expected to take a week — and work on budgets for fiscal year 1983 is scheduled to begin next week.

The appropriations are referred to the full Legislature for final approval.

The Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee set a lump-sum appropriation for fiscal year 1982 for the state's self-governing agencies and commodity commissions at about $1.56 billion.

Bill would raise speed limit

BOISE (UPI) — The House Transportation Committee voted 6-4 Tuesday to introduce a bill that would raise the speed limit on Idaho's four-lane highways to 60 miles per hour.

The bill would boost the limit from the current 55 mph standard and give drivers an additional "5 percent increased leeway for passing."

Idaho Transportation Director Darrell Manning said raising the limit would force the U.S. Transportation Department to withhold federal matching funds from the state. He said the action could cost the state $67 million in one budget year.

Letter seeks Bunker Hill ruling

BOISE (UPI) — Twenty-six senators signed a letter Tuesday urging Attorney General David Leroy to clarify whether it would have been legal for Bunker Hill Co. unions to sign a labor contract with potential buyers of the firm.

Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, asked his colleagues to sign the letter after Leroy refused to offer an opinion on a similar request Peavey made by himself in an earlier letter.

Peavey has sought to defend labor leaders' claims that they had no choice but to nullify a union membership vote that approved a proposed contract with an investor consortium that was seeking to buy the Kellogg company.

The collapse of the potential sale of the troubled company last month sparked the introduction of a right-to-work bill in the Legislature. Sponsors said such legislation would have prevented the collapse of the proposed sale.

Higher drinking age suggested

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. Linden Bateman, R-Idaho Falls, will ask a House committee Wednesday to introduce a bill that would raise Idaho's legal drinking age from 19 to 20.

Bateman, a high school teacher, said he's concerned that students have "too much contact" with 19-year-olds, so the legal age should be hiked to reduce the chances that teen-agers will be exposed to alcohol.

The bill will be proposed to the House State Affairs Committee, and Bateman said Tuesday he expected the vote would be close.

Reagan may rescue employment offices

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — Employment offices slated for closure in Jerome and Gooding may get a reprieve from President Ronald Reagan, but the word won't be out until Monday.

"The newspapers have reported that Reagan will be asking for additional money for unemployment compensation, but we haven't been given that word," a spokesman for the Idaho Department of Employment, Randy Furniss, said Tuesday.

The Jerome and Gooding offices are scheduled for closure because of budget cuts approved by Congress in December. Exact dates have not been set for closing those two offices, but Furniss acknowledged that other "employee notices were to be sent out probably next week."

However, Furniss said the Employment Department is now on hold.

In Tuesday's edition, The Times-News printed a United Press International story that reported Reagan is seeking $2.3 billion in supplemental appropriations to help some states pay extended unemployment compensation benefits. Reportedly, some of this money also would help reopen state employment services that were closed as a result of the budget cuts.

"After reading this, we checked first thing this morning (Tuesday) with the (U.S.) Office of Fiscal Management and Budgets," Furniss said. "They said, 'Yes, Reagan is seeking to extend unemployment compensation in face of the 8.9 percent unemployment measured in December,' but they would not confirm or deny whether money would be sought to help keep some of our offices open."

Furniss said the move by Reagan "is a hopeful sign," especially in light of a similar move being made in Congress.

However, he stressed that until firm indications come to the state Employment Department, plans to cut offices and employees will continue.

"We have been working on a reduction of force," Furniss said.

"However, we will wait until at least Monday when we'll see what the president's proposal really is," he said. "Then we can proceed from there accordingly."

Lesson in Wendell: listen to the people

No one likes to see a small town torn apart by controversy, yet this has become an all too common occurrence in the Magic Valley.

The community of Wendell is the latest to become embroiled in a divisive debate, one we think could have been avoided if officials had been more sensitive to their constituents.

The issue here also is a familiar one: the police department. Wendell Mayor Otto Lemke ignited the debate when he refused to reappoint the town's police chief and indicated a two-man department would be sufficient. Then, one of the remaining two officers resigned, and until Monday, the third member of the force had been on vacation.

To this date, Lemke has not explained sufficiently his reasons for failing to reappoint former Chief Otis Lumpkin. Then, in what appeared to many to be just sheer arrogance, the mayor refused to allow citizens a forum on the matter.

That prompted talk of a recall drive, which now has been muted somewhat to become a petition movement to ask the mayor to resign. Tuesday, other forces in the community began their own drive in support of the mayor.

This entire affair may be defused Friday, when a special meeting will be held at 8 p.m. at the American Legion Hall in Wendell to discuss the Police Department. Mayor Lemke says the meeting is "to discuss what the people really want on the Police Department."

Bravo! If the mayor had taken this approach in the first place, he may have avoided the split taking place within the community.

Does Wendell need a three-man police force? We don't know, but if enough citizens show up Friday demanding such action, the direction for Wendell officials ought to be crystal clear.

Here they go again

"We're on a mission from God." Ellwood deadpanned repeatedly in the movie "The Blues Brothers."

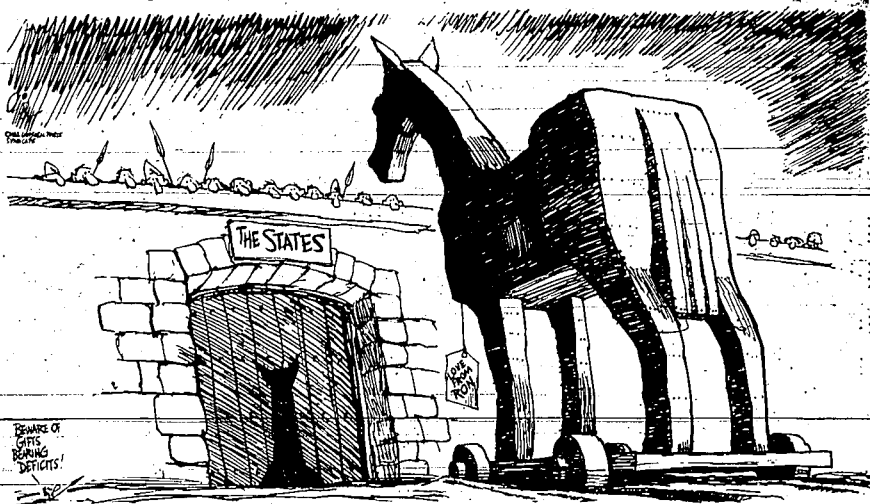

Some Idaho lawmakers must believe it's their mission, too. Rebuffed last year in an attempt to mandate a minute of silence in public schools for prayer or meditation, supporters are at it again.

The House, no doubt, will pass it overwhelmingly. The Senate, thank heavens, will find better things to do.

We could bring up all the old and correct arguments about lawmakers trying to circumvent the constitutional division of church and state. But we won't.

We'll just repeat last year's position: A minute of silence, please, for a silly bill.

Dead wrong on unions

Editor, Times-News:
In a letter from Noel T. Krefl (Jan. 28) it states that "Idaho's work force has historically not gained anything from unions." This is the most senile opinion I have seen in print in your newspaper.

Unions have gotten us decent wages, decent working conditions, safer-working conditions, better vacations, health and dental benefits and, seniority so we can prove we can do the job just as good as the boss' kid.

My brother-in-law works in a cabinet shop for $4 per hour, 50 hours per week. No overtime, no paid holidays, no paid vacations, no insurance for his family. Where's your business benefit machine there?

You blame the collapse of Bunker Hill on the union. David LeRoy, the states attorney-general, says the contract offer was illegal. The investors that offered it didn't even own the company.

If you want to blame someone, blame Gulf Resources. They wouldn't even negotiate to keep it open themselves. They wouldn't even sell to the employees. Yes, air, there's your generous business world.

Then comes along J.R. West of Dallas, makes one offer and says take it or leave it. What would you do if you had a choice between the death penalty or life in prison? There again, your generous world of business.

You stated "new Idaho gets it in the neck from a Pittsburg union." The Right-to-Work committee gets most of its funding from out of state.

I'm not Republican or Democrat, but I'll never vote for anyone who'll support a bill that will allow freeloaders to work alongside of me getting benefits I paid for.

Answer to allegations

Editor, Times-News:
In reference to Mr. Renk's letter castigating the opponents of the Equal Rights Amendment, I have researched some of his allegations and find an interest thread that runs through his "web" theory.

On April 17-19, 1978, at the Washington, D.C., headquarters of the National Education Association union, 300 persons from across the country gathered for a seminar on the "Far Right." Besides the NEA, organizations represented were the AFL-CIO, the Coalition of American Public Employees, the National Organization of Women, the National Women's Political Caucus, the National Council of Churches, the National Consumer's League, Congress Watch and the American Civil Liberties Union. This alliance was christened the "Interchange Resource Center."

According to "Human Events," the bulk of the 300 persons that gathered were feminists.

A cartoon in their literature announcing the meeting at which the new "clearing house" was formed, showed an octopus labeled "New Far Right" with tentacles representing such organizations as STOP ERA, Right to Life, the Conservative Caucus and the National Right to Work Committee. Among the tentacles, however, is one labeled "KKK," the obvious implication being that the previously listed organizations were somehow on a par with the racist, violence-prone KKK. The caption reads: "Are you beginning to feel the squeeze?"

Further evidence of the kind of anti-conservative bias to be expected from the "clearinghouse" is detected by the emotive and inflammatory rhetoric of the "person" who first suggested the meeting, State Rep. Midge Miller of Wisconsin. She stated she thought everyone would agree that Ronald Reagan is "on the far right."

Mr. Renk's whose wife is the area chapter leader of National Organization of Women, refers us to such "right-wing organizations" as the National Conservative Political Action Committee, National Right to Work Committee, Americans Against Union Control of Government, John Birch Society, the Heritage Foundation, Eagle Forum and Moral Majority. Apparently he feels that these organizations are a threat to the liberal-left strategy to bring about great changes in the American society.

I wondered why Mr. Renk "got down" on Joseph Coors so strongly, charging him with supporting the left's dreaded phantom, the John Birch Society.

In December of 1978, following a 22-month strike, the first 1980 union workers at the president's own Adolph Coors Brewery in Colorado voted by a margin of 71 to 19 percent to decertify Brewery Workers Local 366. The first time in 44 years Coors production and maintenance employees had decided by better than two to one not to be represented by a union. During the strike, union membership. More than 70 percent of those who left their jobs returned to work. Some never left at all. Coors has one of the best, if not the best, affirmative action programs of any major company in the region.

Behind the controversy at Coors was the wider issue of the "union shop." Despite the Taft-Hartley Act of 1947 outlawing the support of union dues or their equivalent to get or keep a job.

Instead of labor-management conflict, the need today is for workers and management to work together to resolve our present economic crisis. More and more workers and management are beginning to join together in a common effort to cut costs, boost production and expand profits for the sake of all concerned. Such cooperation is absolutely essential if America is to regain its competitive strength against such formidable Industrial giants as Japan and West Germany where labor-management cooperation is a successful way of life. Above all, at Coors and wherever around the nation Americans work, the majority's will, once freely expressed, should prevail under the law.

The same holds true for the so-called Equal Rights Amendment. The majority spoke against the amendment in the seven years allotted for its passage.

Put together with President Reagan, Senator Steve Symms, Phyllis Schlafly and other Americans should be equated to the "far right" as opposed to the "far wrong" by the Renks, so be it.

I wonder if the gentleman who expressed his ideas so vividly on the taxation of caffeine all the way up to sugar would feel as strongly if he used some of these products. I've never been a real advocate on any of the particular items that Mr. Keith mentions.

On the other hand, I never thought of myself (or anyone else for that matter) as being wicked or evil, just because they enjoy a cup of coffee or a Twinkie from time to time. Is this man serious? Tell you what, Mr. Keith, I've got a better idea.

Local official presents a defense of Bunker Hill's unions

It is understandable to me that the Bunker Hill situation would appear in a bad light to those who know little or nothing about this nation's labor laws.

Once this issue has been fully aired and discussed, I have no doubt that the unions involved will appear to have acted properly.

The main issue here was the vote the union members took on that Sunday and the subsequent appearance to the public that the union leadership refused to follow the will of the majority. The union's position, both before and after that Sunday vote, received very little attention in the media. This also contributed to the public's misconception of the facts.

The Bunker Hill unions were anxious to engage the investors in discussions from the outset of the "exclusive option to buy" deal; back in early December. The investors weren't interested. They assembled all of their other pieces of the puzzle, letting the unions wait until the deadline was almost upon them. Personally, I believe this was done to put the unions into a position where they had no time and no options but to accept what was offered.

Finally, with little more than a week left the investors played their hand. They called the union leaders in, presented the labor contract they wanted, and refused to discuss any changes in it. What was offered is/was unbelievable. I'm not sure the unions will until the end of the year. The Bunker Hill unions voted last August, at the request of Gulf Resources, to make significant cuts in their wages and benefits. These unions have repeatedly stated they expected to make significant economic concessions to the investors. What they hadn't anticipated was the literal gutting of their contract. The investors wanted the unions to give up the work rules, most of the grievance and arbitration procedures, seniority and many other non-economic items. These items wouldn't contribute to the economic viability of the company, but they would totally undercut the union's ability to represent the workers. A title Management Rights, basically entitled the investors to do anything they deem appropriate. This is why the union leadership opposed the contract; it would render the workers powerless before management.

The Sunday vote of the membership doesn't deserve the controversy surrounding it. The contract offer wasn't from the union's employer, but an outside third party. Federal labor law will not allow a union to unilaterally break its existing contract with its employer, and enter into another one. All of the Bunker-unions have contracts already with Gulf Resources. What should have happened was that Gulf should have designated the investors as its bargaining representative. Then, legal contract talks and a binding vote of the membership would have taken place. The investors weren't empowered to be Gulf's bargaining representative, therefore the union had to say the vote would be advisory. Legally, it could be no other way! The ballots for this vote had printed upon them — ADVISORY VOTE. Somehow, the investors hoodwinked much of the media into believing that this was a legal ratification vote. Nothing could be further from the truth!

Subsequently, the unions involved telegraphed Bunker Hill and stated "we accept the mandate of our membership and stand ready at all times to engage in legally projected contractual negotiations." The telegram also outlines the illegality of the investors' demand that the unions sign contracts with them, "the unions cannot legally enter into an agreement or consent to any proposal submitted to them by the investor group which in any way seeks to alter, amend or otherwise modify the current labor contracts."

The only response from the investors was to attempt to stampede the unions into meeting the investors' short-time lines with signed contracts. Very short time lines, because that's the way the investors chose to play it! After a couple of days, even the investors stated that they had been advised by their attorneys that the legal problems appeared insurmountable.

Did the investors do this openly and honestly with the Bunker Hill unions? I don't think so! Did the investors attempt to exploit a very bad situation with an outrageous contract offer? Most definitely yes! Did the unions irresponsibly represent their membership? No! Are the unions still ready to accept significant economic cuts to save Bunker Hill and their jobs? Are they ready and willing to institute legal contract talks with the investors? Most emphatically yes.

One result of the Bunker Hill situation has been the introduction of a so-called Right-to-Work bill in our Legislature. After years of trying and failing, proponents of this bill are now saying that if Idaho already had a so-called Right-to-Work law everything would be coming up roses in the Silver Valley. This is absolutely false!

The reality of this matter is quite different. So-called Right-to-Work had nothing to do with the failed attempt to purchase Bunker Hill. What a so-called Right-to-Work Law would do is to forbid labor contracts from having a Union Security Clause. Union Security Clauses require all workers to join the union. Present labor law allows a local union to bargain for a Union Security Clause if that is the will of the majority of the workers. In the past, the Bunker Hill unions have had these clauses. The contract offer by the investors left these clauses intact. Union Security was never an issue!

Assume for a minute that Idaho already had a so-called Right-to-Work Law. That still wouldn't change the fact that the unions are the designated bargaining representatives of the workers. They are the bargaining representatives for their respective workers because that is the will of the majority of the workers. As such, when negotiating anything that affects these workers, you have to deal with their designated representatives. So-called Right-to-Work doesn't change this. If Idaho did have a Right-to-Work Law that wouldn't have enabled the investors to go around the unions and deal with the non-union members.

The fact is that those who are pushing this phony legislation are simply using the Bunker Hill incident as a smoke screen. They haven't been able to pass this issue on its merits so now they are trying to utilize the "big lie." Both Gov. John Evans and Rep. Ralph Omstead, men who agree on very little, have publicly stated that "a Right-to-Work law wouldn't have changed anything regarding Bunker Hill."

Bunker Hill and Right-to-Work are apples and oranges! Those people who are attempting to piggy-back phony Right-to-Work on the events at Bunker Hill are engaging in outright distortion at the expense of the people in the Silver Valley. Punitive anti-worker legislation will do nothing to help the Bunker Hill workers, nor will it in any way revive the mining complex. It is a shame that these Right-to-Workers are actively attempting to exploit the human misery to North Idaho to further their own lost cause.

Bush started when brick hits car

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The "loud bang" that startled Vice President George Bush on his way to work Tuesday was caused by a piece of brick or other "building material" hitting the roof of the armored Cadillac, the Secret Service said.

The incident, coming on the heels of reports about Libyan hit squads seeking high-level American targets, sent a brief shiver of fear through the capital city and prompted tighter security for the vice president and at the White House.

But authorities, who conducted an painstaking sweep for evidence and intensive investigation, soon concluded it was unlikely the object that hit the black limousine was part of an assassination attempt.

In a late-afternoon statement, the Secret Service said the investigation of the incident was complete. "It has been determined that there was no assault on the vice presidential limousine," it said.

Bush, who followed through on his daily rounds, said the incident was "nothing to laugh about," but added, "There wasn't anything scary about it."

The vice president's office issued a statement saying, "The Secret Service has received information from the FBI based on laboratory tests that the object that struck the vice president's vehicle... was a brick or a stone."

"Based on laboratory tests, the object contained clay and cement.

There were no metal fragments found. An on-site investigation by the Secret Service and the D.C. police is continuing to determine how the object struck the vehicle."

Initially, law enforcement officials said some sort of "projectile" hit the car as it made its way through early rush-hour traffic. Eight blocks from the White House.

About four hours after the incident, FBI Agent James Yatter said, "We're about 99 per cent sure it was a rock or some similar type object."

"There is absolutely no indication there were any metal fragments which would indicate a bullet was involved."

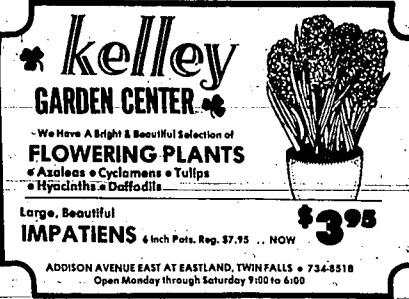

A laboratory analysis confirmed no bullet was involved, officials said.

A Secret Service spokesman said the FBI examination of a V-shaped tear in the vinyl roof "revealed the presence of material consistent with building materials being used in the area."

U.S. pays Poland's interest

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Alexander Haig said Tuesday the administration repaid $71.3 million Poland owes the U.S. government and banks to prevent a situation that could "bring down the temple of Western unity."

Haig said allowing Poland to default on the January interest payment risked giving Warsaw and its Soviet patron an easy way out of meeting the rest of its $20 billion debt to the West, causing disarray in the Western alliance.

"The cost to the West would exceed those which would result to the East," Haig told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. "This does not foreclose the possibility of some action in the period ahead."

It was disclosed Monday that the National Security Council last week ordered the Agriculture Department to pay the interest. This circumvented a Commodity Credit Corp. rule that banks must find a foreign country in default before the U.S. government will cover the country's bad debt.

Poland owes $2.25 billion to U.S. interests, including $1.3 billion to banks and $1.8 billion to the Agriculture Department for grain purchases.

"The president of the United States personally approved this action," Haig said, "rather than one which would obviate Polish and Soviet responsibility to repay their obligations to the West."

Mubarak wants same aid as Israel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, making his first visit to the United States since the assassination of Anwar Sadat, arrived Tuesday to seek U.S. military aid on par with Israel's.

Mubarak flew from Paris to Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington for a four-day visit that will include talks at the White House Wednesday with President Reagan.

The Egyptian president will meet later in the week with Secretary of State Alexander Haig, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan and a group of Jewish leaders. He also will make a nationally broadcast appearance at the National Press Club.

Mubarak already has served notice he is disturbed that Egypt receives about 50 percent less U.S. military assistance than Israel does, despite what he contends was an American promise of equal assistance.

In advance of his arrival, Egyptian newspapers carried what were described as "authoritative statements" — apparently by Mubarak — that warned Egypt "takes enough risks for peace and now the Israelis must give up the West Bank and Gaza strip."

Dozier ignored warnings of possible attack

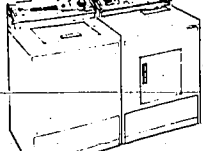

VICENZA, Italy (UPI) — Brig. Gen. James L. Dozier said Tuesday he ignored warnings of a possible terrorist attack.

He assumed responsibility for not taking precautions that might have prevented his kidnapping by Red Brigades terrorists.

"You folks are looking at a sort of an embarrassed guy here," a smiling Dozier, wearing a full-dress Army uniform, told a news conference one day before his scheduled departure for a brief vacation in the United States and a meeting with President Reagan.

"Yes, I was warned. However the experience in the past had been that these folks did not have U.S. personnel in line and quite frankly I was so busy... before the kidnapping that I paid no attention to these threats. So I accept full responsibility for not heeding the warnings that I had been given."

Dozier was freed by Italian police last Thursday after 42 days in Red Brigades captivity. He described his captors as "well organized" and "smart" — criminals "near the top of the heap."

What's what

If you "marry up," you marry someone who is taller, older, richer, better educated or otherwise more prestigious than yourself. Most women marry up, by choice. And, fittingly, most men, by choice, marry down. They prefer shorter, younger, poorer, lesser educated and otherwise unprestigious partners. Surveys repeatedly show this.

Q. Do we always have a temperature when we get sick?
A. Word perfectionists say yes, everyone has a temperature, even though not everyone has a fever. Our Language man likes the vernacular, however. Right or wrong, as far as he's concerned, "to run a temperature" means to have a fever.

If you are over 55 years old, you were both before anybody had a handset telephone. Wall-phones had been around for quite awhile, but Herbert Hoover was the first U.S. President to have a phone on his desk. Calvin Coolidge could have had one, but wasn't interested.

RACK AND PINION

Q. Did you say you've long wondered what "rack and pinion" steering meant? The "rack" is a slotted bar. The "pinion" is a gear with teeth that fit into the bar's slots. When you turn the rack, its teeth push the slotted bar. Why don't you look under "rack" in the dictionary on your desk, dummy?

A. You're right; all right. It's there. Embarrassing.

During the last decade, the two faces most recognized worldwide were the faces of men with Moslem names. Can you identify them? Mohammad Ali and the Ayatollah Khomeini.

Q. What was the name of Gen. George A. Custer's horse, the only survivor of the Battle of the Little Big Horn?
A. Custer's horse, Vic, was killed. The only survivor was another cavalry horse called Comanche.

SNAKE BIT

A white settler in what once was Africa's Rhodesia wore leather leggings. He was bitten by a black-mamba. The snake's fangs pierced the leather and discharged some venom, but they did not pierce the man's skin. Twenty years later, the man's son put on the leggings. He had an open scratch on his leg. The poison killed him.

Overweight men tend to be fastidious about their feet, for some reason. Their shoes usually have better soles than those of thin men.

Cat books campus 'meow' for non-verbal college youth

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's the year of the cat on campuses, according to a college best-seller list.

The current crop of collegians is being described as "nonverbal."

Cat books fill three slots on The Chronicle of Higher Education list. A tome on uses for a dead cat is number two, right behind the Preppie Handbook. Books on Garfield the cat occupy the fourth and tenth spots.

"The Simple Solution to Rubik's Cube" is fifth and "What Color is Your Parachute?" is number three.

To Edith H. Unlila, an expert in 17th Century English Literature and compiler of the list for 11 years, it's shocking.

"The socially conscious generation of the early 1970s gave way to the me generation, which in turn seems to have yielded to the 'Amuse me or tell me the answer — and keep it simple generation. "It's shocking.

NOW THERE'S A NEWS FLASH FOR YOU

"What I've seen is the rise of the non-verbal book. That's what the cat books are. The kids aren't going for books of substance.

"The 'parachute' book is a career advice. So is the preppy book, at least among those who take its advice seriously.

"I think it means the students are looking for simple solutions."

"Books on cats and Rubik's cube have displaced 'pop psych' in college reading tastes.

"I'm OK — You're OK," a pop psych text, the most popular paperback on campuses from 1971 through 1981, was on the Chronicle's best-seller list 23 months. Popular studies of sex, the psyche and society also hung on a relatively long time.

The Chronicle in 1971 launched its regular listing of best-selling books on campuses with a survey of the best sellers for the preceding five years.

"Only two titles appeared on a majority of the respondents' lists," Ms. Unlila said.

"The Prophet," by Kahlil Gibran, and "Listen to the Warm," by Rod McKen.

"Both books, with their appeals to the emotional rather than the rational, and their emphasis on feeling at one with nature, were popular among college students of the late 1960's — the love generation.

"Looking at what has happened to the monthly list over the past 11 years, one is tempted to conclude that the present generation of college students, who made a best seller of Simon Bond's '101 Uses for a Dead Cat,' may never have had any contact with reason, emotion or nature, and is irresistibly drawn to the simple."

X-rated movies off tube in pen

WAUPUN, Wis. (UPI) — Prison officials allowed inmates to view X-rated movies on their TV sets but banned them after the Division of Corrections received a citizen's complaint.

"Generally these type films haven't been shown," said Carl Manthe, assistant superintendent of the Waupun Correctional Institution.

The films were among those selected by a prisoners group for general viewing last week during a lockdown, a period when prisoners are confined to their cells. The X-rated films included "Emmanuelle," "A Dirty Western," "China DeSade" and "11."

However, the decision was made Monday to discontinue the showing of the X-rated films after a citizen complaint to the corrections department.

Evidence connects teenager to death of Turkish consul

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Ammunition, a receipt for a gun, pistol targets and the manifesto of the Armenian Youth Federation were found in the home of the teenager charged with assassinating a Turkish diplomat, court documents reveal.

Hamlet "Harry" Sassoulian, 19, a high school dropout who moved to the United States from Lebanon five years ago, was charged Monday with the murder of Consul General Kemal Arkan.

Sassoulian, who could face the death penalty if convicted, pleaded innocent and was held without bail. He faces an April 1 preliminary hearing.

Court documents attached to the complaint indicated that detectives found a wealth of physical evidence when they searched his family's home in suburban Pasadena Thursday only hours after the daylight ambush of the 54-year-old diplomat on Wilshire Boulevard.

The documents said investigators found a receipt for a gun purchased from a local gun store and 9mm rounds. Police also found a bullet cartridge from a .357 magnum and a copy of the 39-page Armenian Youth Federation manifesto in the youth's car.

A spokesman for the district attorney's office said the official police report was mistakenly attached to the complaint and had been removed. The spokesman refused to confirm the contents of the report originally obtained by a reporter, but added, "I have confidence in the reporter who saw it."

Firm alters plans for coal mines

KALISPELL, Mont. (UPI) — Sage Creek Coal Ltd. of Canada has updated plans for two giant open-pit coal mines in an environmentally sensitive area a few miles northwest of Glacier National Park.

Bill Burge, secretary of Sage Creek, said a Stage 2 mining application for the Cabin Creek mining complex has been submitted to the British Columbia government.

Sage Creek hopes the application, the equivalent of a detailed environmental impact statement, will be accepted sometime this month and that the project can begin by summer. Full production of 2.1 million tons of coal a year could be reached in three years, Burge said.

Potential customers for the high-grade bituminous coal have been approached in Korea, Taiwan, the Philippines, West Germany and Belgium, Burge said.

The mining site is about six air miles northwest of Glacier National Park and straddles Cabin Creek, a tributary of the North Fork of the Flathead River.

Among changes in the plan is establishment of a special fund for the enhancement of fish and wildlife in the North Fork.

Sage Creek also has pledged $5,000 for grizzly bear research to a British Columbia researcher.

Burge said the company has abandoned plans to create a town for workers near the mine, and to divert Howell Creek, a major Flathead tributary that flows along the edge of the planned mine. Burge said plans for a small coal-fired power plant at the mine have also been scrapped.

Northwest power bills may rise rapidly

SEATTLE (UPI) — Monthly electric bills will rise to three times their present level by 1985 in many Northwest public utility districts, a new study prepared by a Washington Public Power Supply System consultant shows.

Although the people who prepared the study say it is not detailed and is based on factors that "could change," the findings show that rates in most areas will reach levels by the mid-1980s previously not expected until the 1990s.

Rates will more than triple in Snohomish, Clark and Grays Harbor counties and nearly triple in Tscoms, the study by R.W. Beck & Associates says. Rates in Port Angeles will quadruple.

Other utilities' rates will rise according to the percentage of power they get from the Bonneville Power Administration. In Seattle, for example, rates will rise about 40 percent over the next two years.

WPPSS anticipated such rate levels would not be reached until after the completion of its five-nuclear-projects, when Northwest utilities would have had to start paying for their construction.

But with the termination of two of the five projects, some of the bills are coming five years sooner.

Comedian sues Los Angeles officials over drug arrest

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Comedian Flip Wilson has sued the city and county for $2 million over his arrest last spring for possession of cocaine and hashish.

The suit, filed in Superior Court, claimed law enforcement officers violated Wilson's civil rights, caused him intentional and negligent emotional distress and invaded his privacy.

Wilson was arrested March 10, 1981, at the Pan American Airways terminal at Los Angeles International Airport following an anonymous tip to police.

He was returning from a trip to Japan with a letter from the mayor of Nagoya to Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley.

Activists' spokesman protests jail conditions

PLEASANTON, Calif. (UPI) — Peace activists arrested for staging a human blockade at a nuclear weapons laboratory were held in handcuffs without food or water for eight hours, a spokesman for the protesters said Tuesday.

Private security guards at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory held 158 handcuffed protesters, including anti-nuclear activist Daniel Ellsberg, at the laboratory for eight hours and denied them food and water, said Livermore Action League spokesman Bob Cooper.

The protesters were later transported to Santa Rita County Jail and locked in holding cells separate from the general prison population. Santa Rita is reputed to be one of California's most violent penal institutions.

The demonstrators were arrested Monday and held overnight at the jail on charges of obstructing traffic by the symbolic blockade at the nuclear research and development laboratory.

Cooper said 24 women were held in a 10-by-10 foot jail cell. The women have since begun a hunger strike, he said.

None of the protesters have been allowed to see their attorneys, Cooper said.

Jail spokesman Sgt. Bert Wilkinson said 163 adults were arrested in Monday's action that aimed to stop business-as-usual at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, one of two nuclear research centers in the country.

Five of those arrested were cited and released after signing a statement acknowledging participation in the protest, he said. The remaining 153 refused to sign and were held pending arraignment.

Ellsberg, an ex-Defense Department analyst who released the classified "Pentagon Papers" to the press at the height of the Vietnam War, was taken into custody along with his wife and spent the night in jail.

In addition to the 163 adults arrested, eight juveniles were charged. One was released with the understanding he would appear in court at a later time. Another, a 15-year-old boy, was booked at the San Leandro juvenile hall.

Saffron-robed Buddhist monks participated in Monday's rally, in which about 750 people linked arms or sat in front of cars in a human chain to block the nuclear facility's entrances.

A spokesman for the Livermore Action League said this and other protests in many parts of the world were aimed at forcing the United Nations to adopt a motion for unilateral nuclear disarmament at a UN General Assembly special session on disarmament set for June 7.

Parents take youth home

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — The boy who survived a mountain plane crash by wrapping himself in sleeping bags until rescuers found him five days later has been released from the Stanford Medical Center.

Doctors said they amputated Donald Priest's feet because the freezing temperatures in the mountains had caused irreversible circulation damage. His mother and stepfather died in the crash.

A hospital spokesman said the 11-year-old would return to the center three times a week for therapy.

Donald Priest, the boy's father, and his stepmother, Cathy, took Donald to his home in nearby Portola Valley Monday.

The plane crashed in a blizzard on Jan. 3 at the 12,000-foot level of the Sierra Nevada near Tioga Pass on the border of Yosemite National Park. The youngster was rescued five days later. He survived in the wreckage by wrapping himself in sleeping bags.

They said he would have a good chance of regaining the use of his legs with the help of prosthetic devices.

Donald celebrated his 11th birthday last week.

Reagan's plan cuts student aid in half

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reagan administration's 1983 budget will propose a 50 percent cut in student aid.

Higher education groups Tuesday called the cuts a "disaster" that will put college beyond the reach of hundreds of thousands.

The Action Committee on Education, a coalition of 12 college and university associations, said the Reagan budget, to be released Monday, will eliminate more than 2.3 million grants to needy students and loans to 600,000 graduate students.

"That budget will be a disaster for students in higher education," said J.W. Pettason, president of the American Council on Higher Education. "These cutbacks and changes will make a college education impossible for almost a hundred thousand students."

Reagan's request for basic grants and campus-based awards run by the Education Department will be $1.8 billion for fiscal year 1983, compared with $3.9 billion in the 1982 continuing resolution under which government is now operating, the groups said. They estimated college costs will rise 15 percent to 20 percent next year.

Gary Jones, education deputy undersecretary for budget, would not comment on the specific figures, but he said the Reagan administration will not deny a college education to needy students.

"We must caution many people to define the word 'needy' when they are going to use it so loosely," he said. "The key fact that needs to be understood is that students who establish a need to attend an undergraduate institution will have access to federal dollars to meet their need," Jones said. "No student will be denied an education simply because they cannot get the dollars."

Among the changes to be proposed, the groups listed:

- A 40 percent cut in Pell Grants for the needy, eliminating more than 1 million students from eligibility, including almost one-third of those currently receiving the money.
- Higher financing charges on 9 percent Guaranteed Student Loans, including doubling the origination fee and imposing market interest rates two years after graduation.
- Graduate students will no longer be eligible for GSLS; 600,000 now receive them.

30-day forecast: Some relief in sight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — January was one of the most devastating winter months in memory and cost the nation $5 billion.

More cold weather is in sight this month for the eastern part of the country, government forecasters said Tuesday.

But the National Weather Service does not foresee a repeat of the extreme record-breaking cold that hit much of the nation last month.

Robert Dickson, deputy chief of the long-range forecast office, said the cold weather patterns are now being disrupted east of the Rockies and more relatively warm weather is likely to be interspersed with additional cold.

"It looks to us, all things considered, that the eastern four-tenths will average below normal, but we do expect to have disruptions of this pattern from time to time," he said.

The history of this whole winter has been one of extremes.

Outside the eastern part of the nation, the 30-day outlook calls for normal or above normal temperatures.

Rain or snow is expected to exceed normal along the north Pacific coast, the northern edge of the country from eastern Montana to the Great Lakes, along the Gulf coastal states and across to the southern Atlantic coast, northward through the Mid-Atlantic states and the Ohio Valley.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said the unusually severe weather during the first three months of January in many parts of the nation produced an economic loss of $5 billion in crop damage, increased energy consumption, damaged roads, cars and buildings, and disruption of services.

"Before it was over, ice, snow, freezing temperatures and wind chill made life miserable for millions of Americans from the Rockies to the East Coast and as far south as Florida," NOAA said.

January's arctic blasts, however, were not nearly as costly as the long siege of frigid weather that gripped much of the nation from October 1976 to February 1977. NOAA said that winter caused losses of $26.9 billion.

The agency said the final week of this past month saw a return to relatively normal conditions for much of the country although another severe storm battered the Midwest on the final days of January. Dickson said the temperature outlook for February, March and April anticipates that the area affected by cold weather will shrink somewhat. Temperatures should average below normal across most of the South, Midwest, Appalachia and New York state.

Warmer-than-normal conditions are expected in northern parts of the Rockies and High Plains, as well as in the Great Basin and far Southwest.

Dickson said forecasters are unable to predict the temperatures over the next 30 days along the East Coast, southern Florida, the upper Mississippi Valley, southern Great Plains and Rockies and the Northwest.

News briefs

Defense cuts predicted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Top Congressional leaders predicted Tuesday that lawmakers will slice billions from the record military budget President Reagan expects to propose next week.

And presidential counselor Edwin Meese confirmed reports that Reagan's fiscal 1983 budget will seek savings from social programs previously immune from the drive to slash federal spending and reduce the record budget deficits.

Senate Republican leader Howard Baker said he thinks Congress will agree with him that $5 billion to $10 billion in waste and duplications can be eliminated from Pentagon spending without cutting into the military buildup.

And House Speaker Thomas O'Neill agreed. The Massachusetts Democrat predicted the House will lead the lead in scaling back the military budget.

"We will whittle it down a lot," he told reporters. "I only hope the Senate will see the light."

The Washington Post reported Tuesday that in his budget message due next Monday, Reagan will propose deep new cuts in such programs as Medicaid, food stamps and subsidized housing.

Blood stains link Williams

ATLANTA (UPI) — Witnesses testified Tuesday that blood stains found in the car driven by accused killer Wayne Williams matched that of two slain young blacks, and both blood types were relatively rare.

Williams was linked by the blood stains to victims William Barrett, 17, and John Porter, 28. Barrett, testimony revealed, had Type A blood that contained PGM-1 enzymes, a combination common only to 7 percent of the world's population.

Porter had Type B blood, also with the PGM-1 enzymes, a combination common to 24 percent of all humans.

Williams, 23, a black photographer and aspiring musical impresario is on trial for the murder of Nathaniel Cater, 27, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, two of 28 young blacks abducted and murdered in Atlanta over a 22-month period. But testimony has been introduced in 10 more cases to try to show Williams' "pattern, plan, scheme and bent of mind."

Linda Tillman, a serologist with the Georgia Crime Lab, testified the blood types of Barrett and Porter matched blood stains along the seams of a seat in a 1970 station wagon driven by Williams.

Victims' family plans suit

BOSTON (UPI) — The family of a father and son presumed drowned when a World Airways DC-10 split open in Boston Harbor have given up hope they are alive.

Divers returned Tuesday to the icy waters in search of Walter Metcalf, 70, and his son, Leo, 40, pitched out when the jumbo jet slid off a Logan International Airport runway Jan. 23.

Boston attorney Camille Sarrouf said the elder Metcalf's son and daughter, Ronald and Audrey Metcalf of Dedham, Mass., "are facing reality and realize there is no longer any hope" the men are alive.

The relatives plan to file a suit seeking millions of dollars in damages, claiming wrongful death, infliction of emotional distress and mental anguish.

Reagan eases media contacts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan rolled back Tuesday on a directive controlling media contacts with government officials.

But he insisted on strict rules for handling secret documents in his continuing campaign to plug leaks.

Reagan's new order supersedes a much tougher edict issued Jan. 12 which required pre-clearance for contacts with media representatives by government officials dealing with security matters.

Author defends book in school

GIRARD, Pa. (UPI) — Studs Terkel defended his book "Working" Tuesday at a high school where a move to ban it is under way, telling students its language, which includes profanity, is the way hard-working people speak.

"The book I've written is about the very people who have chosen to criticize it," Terkel told a student assembly at Girard High School. "It's about good, hard-working people who live in places like Girard, Pa."

The book is based on numerous interviews with workers.

Terkel, 69, of Chicago, addressed the assembly after appearing in the classroom of English teacher Karolyn Nichols, who made the book a reading assignment for her students. The meeting in the classroom was closed.

The cigar-chomping author traveled 400 miles to this small rural community of about 2,000 residents in the northwest corner of Pennsylvania to defend his best-seller.

He planned later to talk with a school board committee and parents who want the collection of interviews banned because of language considered offensive.

Taste Debate Ends.

Former higher tar smokers report MERIT "Best-tasting low tar I've tried."

Can a low tar cigarette provide the taste incentive to switch smokers from higher tar brands?

Research consistently proves that MERIT can.

MERIT Taste Sparks Switch.

Nationwide survey reveals over 90% of MERIT smokers who switched from higher tar are glad they did. In fact, 94% don't even miss their former brands.

Further Evidence: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers report MERIT an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

MERIT Landslide.

In addition, extensive unmarked-pack tests confirm that MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar when compared with higher tar leaders.

Confirmed: The overwhelming majority of smokers reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands.

Confirmed: When tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.

THE FIBER DIET

Successful Weight Control with High Fiber Foods

Many health professionals agree that the addition of foods high in fiber would be beneficial to the typical American diet. Dietary fiber is the portion of plants that is largely indigestible by humans. Because of an additional concern with weight control in this country, the Fiber Diet has been developed.

The Fiber Diet combines a higher than average intake of dietary fiber with a reduced calorie intake. The diet includes a variety of commonly eaten foods which makes it easy to follow. When successfully tested in two major medical centers, participants found that their appetites were satisfied. Because high fiber foods generally require more chewing, take longer to eat and tend to be bulky, they help create a "full" feeling. A wide variety of grain products, fruits and vegetables are good sources of dietary fiber. The Fiber Diet recommends a daily intake of 20 to 25 grams of dietary fiber along with 1,200 or 1,500 Calories.

A suggested day's menu for the Fiber Diet may include appetizing recipes like Pineapple Bran Muffins for breakfast, Creamy Yogurt-Tuna Salad for lunch and Meatball Vegetable Soup for dinner. With such an array of delicious-sounding foods, dieting need not be a struggle. In fact, the Fiber Diet can be the beginning of a healthier, life-long dietary regimen. Of course, before undertaking any new diet plan, it should be reviewed and approved by a personal physician.

The Fiber Diet, allowing a wide variety of popular foods, is useful for both weight loss and weight maintenance programs.

Simple ingredients are low cost pleasers

Saucy Chicken and Noodles Paprikash will please both your appetite and pocketbook.

ENGLEWOOD CLIFFS, N.J.—For those of us on tight food budgets, there seems to be a never-ending search for low-cost recipe ideas.

"Too often, however, a meal that is kind to the pocketbook is not always very appealing to the palate. Even if recipe ingredients total just pennies, if the meal doesn't taste good, then you've wasted your time and money and still are left with a hungry family to feed."

Economy and delicious flavor blend perfectly in this convenient and easy dish, Saucy Chicken and Noodles Paprikash. A pouch of noodles and sour cream and chives sauce is the creative key that helps turn a few simple ingredients into a hearty family pleaser for less than 80 cents a serving. Golden enriched egg noodles cook to tender perfection in the savory sauce is just minutes.

The rich sour cream sauce, uniquely seasoned with chopped chives, complements the chicken perfectly—to give this dish a delightfully different flavor accent. The whole family will love the taste, and you'll love the one-skillet convenience. Round out the menu with slices of warm bread and crisp tossed salad topped with your favorite bottled salad dressing.

So, don't let flavor take a back seat to economy. With Saucy Chicken and Noodles Paprikash, you'll get more than your money's worth in delicious eating.

Your Spine & Health: The SPINAL CORD

by Dr. Ludwig C. Landwehr, D.C.
Brain and spinal cord form the central nervous system which acts as a switchboard in the complicated unit that makes up the human body.
The spinal cord is contained in a canal which is formed by the vertebrae of the spine, properly aligned throughout its length. Interruptions or breaks of nerves are given off to supply different areas and organs of the body. Any interference with normal flow of nerve impulse, caused by one or more abnormally aligned vertebrae, may weaken that specific area or organ and make it susceptible to disease, or cause improper functioning of pain and spasms.
It is with chiropractic adjustments that improper alignment of the spinal segments can be corrected and normal nerve impulse transmission restored.
(One of a series of articles published in the public interest to explain and illustrate the practice of scientific chiropractic, written by Dr. Ludwig C. Landwehr, D.C., West Chiropractic Clinic, 732 Main Ave., W. Twin Falls, Tel. 733-0522.)

2 fruits escape

HOMESTEAD—Fla.—(UPI)—Florida limes and avocados escaped damage during the January cold wave that hurt some other food crops in the state, an industry spokesman says.

The production area for both fruits is primarily in the southern tip of the state, where temperatures did not go as low as in the citrus belt further north, says Charles Walker, manager of the Florida Lime and Avocado Administrative Committee.

Walker says trees for both crops look very green and healthy and are beginning to blossom earlier than usual. He says the lime trees' bloom is "very, very prolific, which signals an early peak of summer limes."

Garlic adds flavor

Times-News Correspondent

TWIN FALLS — A inexpensive head of garlic can charm simple, low-cost staples into a classic dish. And, a true garlic experience is more than a spicy-tomato spaghetti sauce, a super salad dressing, garlic bread or a roast, seasoner.

This wordy and age-old tall-man cooks into a divine French Peasant-style soup; a Greek-style puree for meats, poultry and fish, and an Italian pasta sauce. Special is the French Aioli for boiled beef and potatoes.

FRENCH PEASANT-STYLE GARLIC SOUP

1 tablespoon butter
all the cloves from 1 large head of garlic
8 cups boiling water
salt and white pepper to taste
French bread, toasted and buttered 1/2-inch thick slices
In large skillet or heavy dutch oven, melt butter; add garlic cloves; cook until peeled garlic cloves are lightly browned. Pour the boiling water over garlic. Season to taste with salt and white pepper. Cover; simmer soup 30 minutes. Just before serving, remove garlic cloves if desired. Making sure that soup is boiling hot, pour it over sliced and toasted bread in bottom of tureen. Serve immediately in warmed soup bowls or mugs. (Makes 6 or 8 servings.)

GREEK GARLIC SAUCE (Skardalia)

all the cloves from 1 small head of garlic
3 medium-sized potatoes, peeled, cooked and mashed
1/2 cup olive oil
1/4 cup white wine vinegar
salt and white pepper to taste
In blender, mortar or food processor, crush peeled garlic; blend in mashed potatoes. When a good paste, add olive oil and vinegar gradually and alternately. Stir or blend until very smooth. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Blend until sauce is stiff enough to almost hold its shape. Serve with poultry, meat, fish dishes or alongside cooked beets, freshly sliced cucumbers or broiled eggplant. Makes 2 cups.

ITALIAN GARLIC PASTA SAUCE

1/2 cup olive oil
3 cloves garlic, peeled and chopped
1 pound pasta, cooked

An inexpensive head of garlic cooks into peasant-style soup

salt and freshly ground pepper to season to taste

In large skillet, heat olive oil; add garlic and cook until golden brown. Stir in drained, cooked pasta; season to taste with salt and pepper; simmer 1 minute. Stir and turn pasta so that it is moistened with sauce. Serve hot with grated Parmesan cheese and/or Romano cheese on top. (Makes 4 to 6 servings.)

FRENCH GARLIC SAUCE (Aioli)

5 garlic cloves, peeled and mashed
2 egg yolks
1 slice dry French bread without crust, soaked in milk and squeezed out pinch salt
1 cup olive or vegetable oil
1 teaspoon cold water
1 teaspoon lemon juice
Make this sauce as you would homemade mayonnaise... very slowly and beating constantly. In mixing bowl, beat together mashed garlic, egg yolks, squeezed out bread and salt. When very well-blended, slowly add and constantly beat in oil. When sauce thickens, beat in cold water and lemon juice. Serve with boiled beef and boiled potatoes or over fish. (Makes 1 cup.)

THIS WEEK'S BEST MARKET BUYS

The rosy herald of warmer weather, rhubarb, is making its annual debut in Magic Valley markets now. And, if rhubarb is here, can strawberries be far behind? No! The first of what is being called an early, big crop of strawberries will be arriving any day. Of course, the price per pint will be nearing the $2 mark, but for those with the yen to indulge, spring will be only a taste away. Thick rinds and pulpy flesh. That's what distinguishes the best fruit buys this week, as many markets promote across-the-boards citrus sales. Other getting-better-buys: cauliflower and cucumbers.

Aseptic packaging termed answer to disposable cans

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

A Massachusetts-based marketing cooperative says it has found an answer to the disposable-bottle and can problem.

It has begun packing fruit juices and juice drinks in airtight paper containers that need no refrigeration or freezing at any stage from packing plant to home. The technique is called aseptic packaging. The container and the contents are sterilized separately before filling.

The flavor and quality of the first juices and drinks resemble that of bottled beverages, but without the heavier and more expensive packaging.

Co-op president Hal Thorkilsen says the estimated saving for consumers who buy the 8.5 ounce, single-serving, three-packs for about 99 cents will be about 10 percent on a per ounce basis, compared to single serving cans of Ocean Spray drinks. The drinks traditionally have come in 5.5 ounce cans.

Thorkilsen says savings will range as high as 20-30 percent for one-liter containers of ready-to-serve beverages and shelf-stable, non-frozen concentrates the cooperative plans to introduce in selected markets in May and June, respectively. The concentrates will reconstitute on a 4-to-1 ratio. Their frozen counterparts require three parts water to one part concentrate.

The individual size containers being used by the Massachusetts-based cranberry marketing cooperative resembles an individual serving size cereal box. It consists of layers of polyethylene, paper and aluminum foil with a short, plastic drinking straw in a plastic sleeve on the back.

Zucchini dumplings accent beef stew, making a hearty welcome meal on cold wintry days

Artichoke enlivens brunch

By BEV BENNETT
© Chicago Sun-Times

The artichoke, that most exotic looking of vegetables, provides a marvelous foundation for transforming ordinary ingredients into brunch fare that is more than ordinary.

Within one fresh artichoke (it's the only type to use, unless you just want marinated artichoke hearts for an hors d'oeuvre) are two different tastes and textures. The sharp-pointed leaves have a meaty stem end that has a slightly nutty taste. The base, or the bottom is faintly tart, slightly sharp and otherwise bland.

To appreciate the contrast, eat the artichoke parts separately. In the following recipe, the artichoke is cooked in seasoned water. The leaves are pulled off, the fuzzy choke in the artichoke center scraped out and the bottom laid bare.

Poached Eggs, Artichokes and Tarragon Mayonnaise

Time: about 70 minutes
Cost: less than $3.90
2 artichokes
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 garlic clove, mashed
Dash lemon juice
Tarragon mayonnaise (follows)
2 eggs

Trim stems off artichokes. If desired, trim tips off leaves and brush with cut lemon. Combine oil, garlic and lemon juice with about 2 quarts water. Bring to boiling. Add artichokes. Reduce heat to simmer and cook artichokes 40 minutes or until tender when tested with fork.

Meanwhile, prepare tarragon mayonnaise and set aside.

Allow to cool until artichokes can be touched. Pull off tender leaves of 1 artichoke and arrange on 1 serving plate. Repeat with second artichoke. Scrape fuzz off artichoke bottom and discard. Arrange artichoke bottoms in center of each plate, surrounded by leaves. Poach eggs or gently fry if that seems easier. Arrange 1 egg on top of each artichoke bottom. Spoon mayonnaise lightly over leaves and drizzle over eggs. Serves 2.

1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon salt
Pepper to taste
one-eighth teaspoon dry mustard
1/4 teaspoon dried tarragon leaves
1/2 cup vegetable oil
In blender or food processor equipped with plastic or steel blade, combine egg, lemon juice, salt, pepper, dry mustard and tarragon leaves. Process 30 seconds until smooth. Tickle in oil in steady stream until mixture thickens and becomes smooth. Makes 1/2 cup.

Beef stew good on cold day

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — What could be better on a biting cold winter's day than a piping hot meal of Beef Stew topped with Zucchini Dumplings or maybe a Potato Sausage Ruff? These two recipes have been developed with those blustery days in mind.

The hearty beef stew features generous portions of onions and carrots in a tasty gravy. There's no need to flour the meat or worry about lumpy gravy when you stir in an envelope of au jus gravy mix. It will give you a savory brown gravy with a rich appetizing color.

Even if you've never served dumplings, you'll be assured of success with this idea for flavorful zucchini dumplings. They can be prepared in a snap simply by stirring shredded zucchini into an envelope of potato pancake mix. Serve the stew with Waldorf salad, a hot beverage or milk and sherbet or cookies for dessert.

The Potato Sausage Ruff, bound to become a family favorite, is guaranteed to warm even the coldest of souls. The quiche-like filling of sausage, Cheddar cheese, pimiento, and olives rests on a tender potato crust. Serve it with a tossed salad, green beans, milk, and fruited gelatin for a nutritious cold weather meal.

BEEF STEW WITH ZUCCHINI DUMPLINGS

STEW:
2 pounds stewing beef or chuck steak, cut in cubes
1 tablespoon oil
6 small onions, peeled and halved
4 medium-size carrots, peeled and quartered
2 cups water
1 envelope (1/2 ounce) au jus gravy mix

DUMPLINGS:
1 small zucchini
1 egg, slightly beaten
1/4 cup water
dash salt
1 envelope (4 servings) potato pancake mix

In large skillet, brown beef in oil, pour off excess fat. Add onions, carrots and water; stir in gravy mix. Cover and simmer one hour, or until almost tender. Shred or grate 1/2 cup zucchini; slice remainder. Combine egg, salt, water, shredded zucchini and potato pancake mix; let stand 10 minutes. Add sliced zucchini to simmering stew then drop on dumpling mixture by heaping tablespoons. Cover and continue cooking for 15 minutes or until dumplings are firm. 5 servings.

POTATO SAUSAGE RUFF

8-serving recipe of mashed potato flakes
3 eggs
1/2 pound bulk sausage
1/2 cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
2 teaspoons chopped chives
1/2 cup milk

Prepare mashed potatoes following directions on package, except reduce water to 1 1/4 cups. Beat 1 egg and stir into potato mixture. Spread potatoes on greased cookie sheet to form a 10-inch circle, building up edges to form a thick 1/2 to 3/4-inch high rim. Bake at 450 degrees for 15 or 20 minutes or until nicely browned. Reduce oven to 350 degrees. Brown sausage, pour off excess fat. Sprinkle sausage, shredded cheese, pimiento and chives over crust. Beat remaining two eggs and combine with milk; pour over filling. Bake 15 minutes at 350 degrees or until filling mixture is set. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Men enjoying 'sport' of coupon saving at supermarkets

By MARTIN SLOANE
 © United Feature Syndicate

One of the best-kept secrets in refunding and couponing is that men are doing it, too! Unfortunately most of the men involved in my favorite "sport" are either "refunders" or "couponers." They haven't been particularly anxious to let the fellows at the office or at the plant know that they are smart shoppers - and that they actually enjoy this money-saving pastime!

David Schotter of Muskegon, Mich., is a state prison officer and does a lot of the shopping for his family of five.

"Some of the men I work with think that shopping and clipping coupons is for women only," says Schotter. "But they have begun to listen to a little more carefully when I explain how I purchased $74 worth of groceries for $53. Where I work those savings were more than two hours of tax-free pay. Few of my buddies are willing to laugh at that."

John Clayton spends long days in a Florida forestry tower watching for forest fires. "We also live at the lower side, so supermarket shopping gives me a welcome change of scenery," says Clayton, who saves $40 to $60 a month by couponing and refunding.

"Since my relatives have learned of my pastime, they have been sending me envelopes full of coupons and refund forms," he says. "It seems that the more I use, the more I receive. Saving money this way requires a little work, but I feel that it is well worth the effort."

Frank Willis Jr. is a dead-ringer for the Brawny lumberjack, but he doesn't mind pushing a shopping cart. He got interested in doing the shopping a year ago when his second daughter was born. Now he feels like a "professional shopper."

Willis also doesn't mind doing the record keeping for his wife, Wendy, who is now sending out 15 to 25 refund requests each week.

"We're doing great!" he says. "Our refunds alone are averaging almost $5 a month."

In next week's column you'll meet Stan Fedison, the "Coupon King" of New Jersey, and other interesting guys who enjoy the sport of couponing and refunding.

SMART SHOPPER AWARD
 The Smart Shopper Award goes to Paul Denis of Peabody, Mass. Here is how he describes a recent shopping spree:

"Last week I picked up $30 worth of groceries and, with my coupons for free products and cents-off coupons, left the supermarket with all the groceries free and more than $2 change in my pocket."

"Was that ever fun! I have been couponing and refunding for two years and now save $25 to $30 a week."

Denis and other readers whose smart-shopping experiences appear in this column receive a copy of my refunding magazine, The National Supermarket Shopper. Write to me in care of this newspaper.

CLIP 'N' FILE REFUNDS

Lowly egg serves inexpensively from breakfast to dessert

What single food costs little, comes in its own neat package, stores well and — last but not least — does at least eight jobs (thickening, leavening, coating, binding, clarifying, emulsifying, retarding crystallization and glazing) in the kitchen?

If you guessed a laboratory creation or an invention of the 1980s, you guessed wrong. But you did, didn't you? You knew all along that the answer was, "The egg."

Egg white, beaten to incorporate air, will lighten a cake or a soufflé to where it fairly floats off the table. Egg yolk, blended into a sauce or soup, turns a thin liquid into a velvety one, a flour-and-liquid mixture into a crepe or a popover, a loose mixture of ingredients into a firm loaf or croquette.

Without egg yolk to keep oil suspending in vinegar, you would have no mayonnaise and consequently no potato salad, tuna salad, chicken salad, and, to many minds, no picnic. Without egg whites, there would be no meringues.

Breakfast without eggs would be breakfast without muffins or pancakes as well as a meal without poached, soft-cooked, fried, scrambled eggs or omelets. Spinach salads would be less of a meal without a hard-cooked egg garnish. Would a picnic be a picnic without deviled eggs? Or a dell worth the designation without egg salad?

Without eggs to retard crystallization we would have no sherbets. Without an egg glaze, breads would look dull-crustied.

Eggs, even at prices of more than $1 a dozen, are a pricy bargain. Those large eggs you may have bought for $1.15 a dozen last week, for example, gave you protein at 76¢ cents a pound.

Both whites or yolks may be frozen but yolks require some special handling. To prevent a yolk from becoming gelatinous when frozen, it should be beaten with either one-eighth teaspoon salt or 1 1/4 teaspoons sugar or corn syrup for every four yolks. (Be sure to mark the container with the number of yolks and whether you've added sugar, salt or corn syrup.)

Uncooked egg whites freeze beautifully. Freeze each egg white in an individual ice cube compartment, then transfer it to a freezer container. To thaw, let the eggs stand in the refrigerator overnight or under cold running water. Once thawed, they will beat to a higher volume if you let them warm to room temperature (this will take about 30 minutes).

Although some egg preparations — notably the making of mayonnaise, hollandaise and meringues — require some experience, other egg dishes can be mastered by a novice cook.

Puffy Artichoke Omelet, for example, must be handled carefully when folding in the egg whites (stop the folding motion the minute the ingredients look blended), but after that, the recipe is fairly foolproof. If you prefer a conventional omelet, we offer a recipe for one with a sour cream and onion filling flavored with dill. Finally, for the easiest egg main dish of all, there's Cheese Fondue. Bake, a real family-pleaser enriched with sausage, mushrooms and omelet.

PUFFY ARTICHOKE OMELET
1 jar (8 ounces) marinated artichoke hearts
1/2 cup thinly sliced onion
1 can (8 ounces) stewed tomatoes
2/3 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon thyme
1/4 teaspoon cornstarch
4 large eggs
1/4 teaspoon cream or tartar
1/2 cup plain yogurt
Dash pepper
1/2 cup grated process Swiss cheese

Drain oil from artichokes and set aside. Sauté onion in one tablespoon of artichoke oil. Add tomatoes, one quarter teaspoon salt, thyme and cornstarch. Simmer rapidly, stirring constantly, until slightly thickened. Set aside. Separate eggs. Beat whites with remaining salt and cream of tartar to stiff peaks. With same beater, beat yolks with yogurt and pepper. Pour over egg whites, gently folding together.

In 9-inch skillet, heat one tablespoon artichoke oil, tilting pan to oil sides. Pour egg mixture into skillet. Cook over medium heat a minute, then place in moderate oven (350 degrees) for 15 minutes, or until browned and set on top. Reheat tomato mixture, adding artichokes and remaining marinade. Sprinkle cheese over omelet and return to oven for a minute to melt cheese. Turn out and spoon tomato and artichoke mixture over. Cut into wedges to serve. Makes four servings.

CHEESE FONDUE BAKE
12 slices bread, buttered
1 pound bulk sausage, fried and crumbled
1/2 pound sliced mushrooms
1 medium onion, thinly sliced
2 tablespoons butter
1 pound Cheddar cheese, grated
3 cups milk
4 eggs
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon paprika
Dash pepper
Grease a 9- by 13-inch baking dish. Put six slices of bread in bottom. Sprinkle sausage over bread. Sauté mushrooms and onion in butter until onions are softened but not browned. Sprinkle onion mixture over sausage. Add half of cheese. Top with remaining bread slices and cheese.

Combine milk, eggs and seasonings and pour slowly and evenly over top of casserole contents. Bake uncovered at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Makes six servings.

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: A charming young married couple we know well are both gourmet cooks, college graduates and from well-to-do families. They enjoy entertaining and do it with great style — setting their table with the finest china, crystal and silver.

The problem: They have two long-haired cats who have the run of the house. I have seen these cats walk all over the countertops in the kitchen, sluffing the food, lying down and shaking themselves while this couple prepares the food. Naturally, an occasional cat hair is found in the food. We find this most unappetizing, and so do others who have eaten there.

Many of their friends are beginning to decline their invitations. It is so sad to see an intelligent couple with so much to offer losing friends by such carelessness.

Isn't this unhygienic? Or are we being too finicky?

— CARING FRIENDS
DEAR CARING: Although I doubt

if a cat hair (or a human hair, for that matter) ever killed anybody, the appearance of same could easily kill one's appetite. As good friends, you should be able to talk candidly to them about their carelessness. Speak up, and don't pussyfoot around.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 39, divorced, have four kids, am on welfare and I think I'm pregnant again. That's bad enough, but what's really bothering me is my hair won't hold a perm. Can you please advise me?

— ELAINE IN LOUISVILLE

DEAR ELAINE: First, see a doctor. It could be due to your physical condition. If it's not that, inquire at a beauty parlor that specializes in hair care.

DEAR ABBY: Concerning the letter from "Confused in Indiana": She complained that some people "have so little respect for the dead that they would bury a spouse in the afternoon and dance the same evening."

Abby, there are many reasons why the widowed woman would "celebrate" the death of her husband. One may be that she ... his guts for a long time but couldn't divorce him because of her religion.

Personally, I think the death of a loved one is a time to celebrate, not a time to cry from selfish grief if the person who dies is out of pain and misery at last.

Incidentally, I am 13, and my folks agree with my views. They both want big parties after their funeral services.

— KATY
DEAR KATY: Thanks for writing. I wish more young people would express their views.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for sending the booklet, "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know." It was the best $2 I ever spent. I have already witnessed a miracle. My 15-year-old son not only read it, but passed it around in a class at school.

Normally he reads only under duress from parents or the night before finals. Now his secret is out. At least one teacher and about 15 kids know he can read.

Filer council rescinds 'quicky' Acme vote

By KAREN MAIN
Times-News correspondent

FILER — More than 35 residents turned out Tuesday night to hear Filer City Council debate a controversial rezoning proposal. But they were in for a surprise.

Without calling for input from the citizens who filled City Hall — some of whom were there to support the rezoning — council voted on the issue at the start of the meeting.

And it voted unanimously to endorse the Filer Planning and Zoning Commission's recommendation that Acme Manufacturing's land be rezoned from commercial to industrial.

However, those opposed to the rezoning, which involves a 15-acre site north of the city, won a victory of sorts before the night was over.

Immediately after the meeting, two of the homeowners confronted council members and demanded an explanation. As a result, City Council agreed it will rescind its unanimous vote at a special meeting this Friday at 7 p.m., and then allow further discussion before taking another vote on the issue.

Acme, which makes farm equipment, has requested the rezoning of its land so it can build a manufacturing facility on the site. Presently, Acme is located in several buildings inside Filer.

The Twin Falls County Commission has requested council's advice on the county-zoned property because it is just outside the city limits. The county commissioners will make the final decision.

During the meeting, homeowners from Regal subdivision, which borders the proposed building site, left and gathered outside City Hall.

Bob Parent, a leading spokesman for homeowners opposed to the project, said the mayor had told them previously that the issue would be discussed before a vote was taken.

After the meeting, Parent and homeowner Dave Wood questioned council members about voting without an open discussion.

"I didn't think to ask for a discussion," Councilman Bob Fort said.

He said he was aware of the crowd, but he said he assumed the homeowners would speak up during the motion.

Parent said the homeowners did not disturb the meeting because "I've heard we've been acting like a bunch of radicals," and we "didn't want to stir things up."

The city's attorney, Fred Decker, recommended that council go back into session or meet again next month to rescind the vote, then vote again after listening to the homeowners.

Council decided it would be unfair to open the meeting after it had been closed. Instead, members opted to hold a special meeting Friday.

Bond issues Overcrowding keys Cassia's need

By GLEN WARCHOL
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Too many elementary students — crowded into deteriorating buildings — will force Cassia County School District voters to consider an $8 million building program.

A series of community meetings will be held this month to get residents' suggestions on the building project and the bond levy that would be needed to finance the improvements, according to Superintendent Norman Hurst.

A 3 percent increase in enrollment this year — mainly in the elementary grades — has created overcrowded conditions in the district's schools. Especially hard hit are Oakley Elementary, Malta Elementary and Overland Elementary in Burley, all old buildings.

The crowding problem at Overland

Elementary is compounded by student safety due to its location off congested Overland Avenue, according to Hurst.

Under the proposed building plan, all three buildings would be replaced with new elementary schools.

A 12- to 14-room building would be built in both Malta and Oakley, and a 25- to 28-room building in Burley would replace Overland Elementary, Hurst said. Additionally, crowded classes at Declo Elementary would be relieved through a 6- to 8-classroom expansion there.

The balance of the bond issue would pay for additional vocational education facilities at Burley High School for the auto-mechanics and building-construction programs, he said.

With voter approval, the building program would begin in late spring or early summer, Hurst said. Completion would be expected by the fall of 1984.

Until the new buildings are ready, the existing ones will be maintained by "patch and scratch," Hurst said.

The district's architectural consultant, Design West Inc. of Boise, will meet with residents in their communities to get suggestions on what the buildings should include.

The architects will at the elementary on the following days:

- Declo Elementary, Feb. 8, 9 and 10, with a public meeting at 7:30 p.m. on Feb. 10.
- Oakley Elementary, Feb. 9 and 10, with a public meeting at 7:30 p.m. on Feb. 11.
- Malta Elementary, Feb. 15 and 16, with a public meeting at 7:30 p.m. on Feb. 17.
- Overland Elementary, Feb. 16 and 17, with a public meeting at 7:30 p.m. on Feb. 18.

Minidoka ponders need for new buildings

By GLEN WARCHOL
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Voters in the Minidoka School District soon will be looking at a $2 million to $2.5 million bond issue proposal to replace aging, overcrowded school buildings.

According to assistant superintendent Floyd Merrill, the school board proposed the bond issue at a special meeting Monday night.

The levy would finance the construction of a 20-room elementary in Rupert to replace the 80-year-old Lincoln and Washington elementaries, as well as build an eight-room elementary school for Acquia.

Minidoka's problems with aging school buildings were aggravated this year by an increase in enrollment, primarily in the lower elementary grades.

Merrill feels that the enrollment upswing in Minidoka is the result of the settling of the north side of the county in the post-war period.

The 1950s' baby boom caused enrollment growth that didn't end until 1972, when a drop in enrollment forced the district to close 16 classrooms. Now, a second increase in enrollment is flooding the schools in Minidoka with a wave of the baby-boom babies' babies, he said.

However, the rate of increase in elementary enrollment, according to Merrill, appears to have stabilized. He said that approximately equal numbers of 3-, 4- and 5-year-olds are waiting to enter school.

A kindergarten proposal, made earlier in the school year, also has complicated the space problem. A kindergarten program would require 10 additional classrooms, Merrill said, which will add approximately $500,000 to the cost of the bond issue.

The new elementary in Rupert would replace Lincoln and Washington schools, and would provide classrooms for fourth-through sixth-graders.

Merrill said property for the building would have to be acquired outside the city. However, the new location would solve an existing problem at Lincoln and Washington elementaries, which are on opposite sides of a busy street. The cafeteria for both schools is in Lincoln, requiring Washington students to cross the street for lunch.

If the bond proposal is approved by the voters, it will be two to three years before the Rupert elementary building is finished, Merrill said. Until then, additional classrooms would be opened at Lincoln Elementary, which now houses only two special-education classes.

The facts and figures of the district's problem will be put before the voters at a series of community meetings, which will be scheduled later this month. The bond issue itself would be voted on sometime in the spring, Merrill said.

At the next regular school board meeting, Feb. 15, Watson and Macey Inc. of Boise, the architectural firm hired by the district, will present some tentative cost figures and sketches of building designs.

Snow still plagues valley schools

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Classes in the Minidoka County School District were in session Tuesday, with 90 percent of the students in attendance despite snow-blocked roads on the district's northern fringe.

Assistant superintendent Floyd Merrill said the school board approved a plan Monday night to keep school in session, barring severe districtwide blizzards.

"We will go ahead and hold classes for the youngsters that can make it to the buses and to the schools," he said. "This will be difficult for some of the students who can't get to school, but we have instructed teachers to work a little harder with these students when they are in class."

The Valley School District was closed Tuesday but plans to be open today.

Superintendent Arlyn Boddy said the roads were cleared Tuesday, and most buses will complete their runs. Valley schools have been closed nine days since Christmas vacation.

In the Jerome School District, classes were open again after being closed Monday. Jerome has missed eight-and-a-half days of school because of bad weather and road conditions.

spring closure," he said. There is no problem with state funding because of the loss of time, Merrill said. State regulations provide for such emergencies by allowing the district to list attendance for the days missed at the average daily attendance level.

The Minidoka School District, which covers 800 square miles, serves all of Minidoka County and parts of Cassia, Jerome and Lincoln counties.

"When we consolidated, we took in 17 small school districts, and this is one of our problems this year," Merrill said. "There used to be a small school every few miles, and the kids could get there. Now, we travel 520 miles a day with buses to bring the students to larger schools. We have 5,300 students riding buses."

The Valley School District was closed Tuesday but plans to be open today.

Superintendent Arlyn Boddy said the roads were cleared Tuesday, and most buses will complete their runs. Valley schools have been closed nine days since Christmas vacation.

In the Jerome School District, classes were open again after being closed Monday. Jerome has missed eight-and-a-half days of school because of bad weather and road conditions.

Embattled Wendell mayor wins merchants' support

WENDELL — Mayor Otto Lemke and Wendell City Council Tuesday a vote of confidence Tuesday from the city's business leaders.

Thirty of the town's business owners and managers signed a statement that read simply: "We the following merchants of Wendell support our mayor, Otto Lemke, and the present council."

Robert Simerly, whose family owns a Main Street clothing store, said only one merchant he contacted opposed the statement. Three others said they were too new in the community to take sides in the controversy.

The merchants' statement evolved from a meeting held Monday afternoon, Simerly said. Attending were representatives of the Wendell Chamber of Commerce, the Gooding County Sheriff's Office, the mayor and two council members.

Noting that a petition drive was launched last week to seek Lemke's resignation, Simerly said the merchants decided to counter with their own statement before an informational meeting is held this Friday at 8 p.m. in the Wendell American Legion Hall.

"Our consensus was, we elected these people. For heaven's sake, give them a chance," he said. Criticism of Lemke has stemmed primarily from the mayor's decision not to resign.

The town's previous chief, which removed the mayor and council, Gloria Williamson said she contacted 18 business owners last week and found nine who favored the retention of three officers.

Lemke said he called Friday's meeting to discuss what kind of a police force the city's residents want.

Plan worries nearby homeowners City can't set mobile home park rules

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Homeowners who want guarantees about the overall impact of a proposed Twin Falls mobile-home park apparently won't find those assurances at City Hall.

At a meeting Tuesday, Susan Swanberg, the city's attorney, spelled out what the city can and cannot do in terms of regulating the characteristics of a mobile-home park planned for 7.8 vacant acres in the 1900 block of Elizabeth Boulevard East.

Swanberg's comments, presented at a noon work session of the Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission, were prompted last week when several homeowners living near the site sought assurances that certain rules will prevail at the mobile-home park, even if its ownership eventually changes.

In short, Swanberg said, the city can regulate the use of land but not the characteristics of the people who live on it. Neighboring residents said that among other things, they want to be guaranteed that park tenants always would be persons over 18.

Noise levels are another of the residents' concerns, and Swanberg said the city can't demand a quiet atmosphere anymore than it can demand adults-only occupancy.

After interviewing neighbors about their preferences, the developers compiled a set of park rules. If future needs dictate, said Doug Howard, a partner in the development, the management has the right to adjust the rules. If changes are made, Howard said, he hoped they would not be objectionable to the neighbors, but he said he could not stipulate the rules to be followed by future park owners.

The partners in the development want the city to rezone the property, which presently is designated as a residential area where multiple-family dwellings are permitted. The developers are seeking mobile-home zoning, and they want to enter into a planned-unit development agreement with the city.

Swanberg plans to present a PUD agreement for consideration at a Planning and Zoning Commission meeting next Tuesday.

In a related matter, Swanberg said she has concerns about negative precedent-setting if the city allows the first phase of the mobile-home park to consist of 4.4 acres, instead of the five acres that the city has established as a minimum size for such parks.

Upon completion of both phases of the Elizabeth Boulevard project, the total park will consist of 7.8 acres, Howard said. But the developers' plans call for 4.4 acres in the first phase because that portion of the site already features paving, utilities and other improvements. Howard said last week that the construction schedule for phase two depends partly on how rapidly tenants fill phase one.

Swanberg expressed confidence in the reputation of Howard and his partners, but she said an undesirable precedent could be established by allowing them to develop a first phase that doesn't meet the city's minimum size. In the future, she said, developers of other projects could demand the same leniency as a way of skirting city regulations.

Hypothetically, she said, a developer could present plans for a multiple-phase project, obtain the necessary zoning and then proceed with a first phase that doesn't meet the city's size specifications for a finished project. A new city law provides that if the remaining phases are not developed within a specified period of time, the land involved would revert to its original zoning.

Gary Young, the city's engineer, suggested that the developers of the mobile-home park consider entering into an agreement with the city that addresses the full project. Such action would require that the developers post performance guarantees, such as a bank's letter of credit or a bond, he said.

Conflicting stories prompt judge to dismiss shooting case

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

While Elcheberger's version met those elements, the woman's testimony indicated that the shooting was an accident and no threats had been made upon Elcheberger.

The conflicting accounts had each lawyer challenging the credibility of his opponent's witness.

Voorhees questioned the validity of the woman's statement that Elcheberger had twice asked her to dance and that her husband and she subsequently decided to leave the bar.

But Elcheberger's lawyer, public defender Mike Waltz, argued that was not an unreasonable response. He said that some of Elcheberger's testimony had been inconsistent and perhaps fabricated.

Waltz noted that under his questioning, Elcheberger had admitted having at least four drinks before the incident, and that previously, he had been convicted of a felony.

Saying the issue came down to deciding the credibility of one witness over another, Brumbach said Elcheberger's testimony did not appear to be credible.

Despite the ruling, the prosecution reaffirmed the aggravated assault charge against Evans on Tuesday. The defendant will be summoned into court rather than arrested.

In two other preliminary hearings held Monday:

- Brumbach also dismissed a grand theft charge against 22-year-old Larry Pickell of Twin Falls. Pickell was charged with entering a Twin Falls home on Jan. 14 and removing a .38 caliber handgun.
- The judge's ruling stemmed from a determination that Voorhees had not produced evidence of the gun's value. In the original complaint, prosecutors charged Pickell with stealing a gun worth more than $150.

Valuation of more than $150 is one of the elements prosecutors must prove in grand theft cases, which are felonies. Anything less, in most cases, constitutes petty theft, a misdemeanor.

Voorhees said he also will refile the charge against Pickell. In explaining the re-filing of both cases, Voorhees said the cases were important "because they're over felonies, and the judge is telling us we didn't do the job right. We're going to go back and do the job right."

Brumbach ordered 23-year-old Douglas Starnes of Twin Falls bound over to the district court on burglary charges following a preliminary hearing.

Starnes was charged with two first-degree burglary counts in connection with two separate automobile burglaries on Nov. 15.

However, Brumbach ruled that the prosecution had not demonstrated whether one of the alleged burglaries occurred at night, an element of first-degree burglary. As such, he reduced one count to second-degree burglary.

- Another felony case was dismissed at the preliminary hearing stage on Tuesday. A grand theft auto charge against 22-year-old Gary Hogue of Twin Falls was dropped when prosecutors discovered that they had no jurisdiction in the case.
- Hogue was charged with stealing an automobile from Emmett Gibb of Twin Falls on Dec. 30. According to police, Hogue was arrested in Jackpot, where he allegedly was in possession of the car.
- However, testimony at the preliminary hearing indicated that the theft occurred in Jackpot, not in Twin Falls.

JEROME — A 69-year-old man who robbed a Jerome motel clerk at gunpoint was found insane at a judge's charges Tuesday because the judge determined he suffers from a mental problem.

Howard Edmond Davis of Salem, Ore., was placed in the custody of the state Department of Health and Welfare by Judge Theron Ward, following a hearing in Fifth District Court in Jerome.

Ward said Davis probably will spend the remainder of his life in a mental institution.

Davis was charged with two felonies for using a deadly weapon while robbing the motel clerk and shooting at police officers who tried to apprehend him.

He checked into a room at the Towle's Motel, 281 E. Main St., on Nov. 12. Later, he went to the motel office with a .22 caliber revolver and ordered Kathy Wright, the motel clerk, to give him $1,000, according to Dan Adamson, the deputy county prosecutor.

Adamson said Wright told Davis she only had $200 and would have to go to the bank to get another $800.

"He went back to the hotel room with the $200 to wait for her, and she called the police," Adamson said.

Davis fired shots at Jerome police Chief Darryl Cameron and county Sheriff Eliza Hall after they ordered him out of the motel room. The officers used tear gas to get him out of the room.

In a psychiatric evaluation ordered by the court, Dr. Richard Smith of Twin Falls determined that Davis suffers from schizophrenia and probably was hallucinating and having delusions when he committed the crime.

Smith said Davis claimed to be the "Jerome Hickock" at the time of the robbery.

Gooding's police chief in hospital

GOODING — The police chief of Gooding, Bill Bunn, was hospitalized Sunday after an apparent heart attack.

Bunn is undergoing further tests at the Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital.

According to Gooding Councilman Chet Floyd, who oversees the Police Department, Bunn was out of intensive care Monday evening.

"He's still on the heart monitor, and they're doing some tests," Floyd said. "He's worrying about not being to council meeting with his monthly report. He's just that kind of guy."

Floyd, a former city police chief, said he named an acting chief, and he emphasized that "the department is functioning just fine."

Bunn was hired as police chief about four years ago, Floyd said.

Former store manager held on embezzlement

TWIN FALLS — Ray O. Hamilton, 31, of Kimberly, the former branch manager of the Idaho Best food store in Twin Falls, was arrested Tuesday on grand theft charges in connection with an alleged embezzlement.

Sheriff James Moon said Hamilton was arrested in Latah County and returned by Twin Falls deputies. A warrant for his arrest was issued last week.

According to Twin Falls police, Idaho Best officials reported on Jan. 25 that $21,272.95 was missing from the company. They told police that the money had disappeared over a two-year period.

The complaint against Hamilton alleges that he embezzled the money by changing records on grain purchases that he made for the company. He allegedly purchased — in grain, changed the documents to show a greater amount was purchased and then repaid himself with company checks.

Hamilton was in the county jail Tuesday night in lieu of $20,000 bond, pending arraignment in magistrate court.

Weather news offered

KETCHUM — A daily telephone recording has been installed by the Ketchum Ranger District to forecast weather and avalanche conditions in the northern half of the Sawtooth National Forest.

The recording is updated between 9:30 a.m. and is available by dialing 622-0027.

Butch Harper, the district snow ranger, and Ken Britton, a recreation officer for the Sawtooth National Recreation Area, compile the avalanche report from snowpack conditions, the weather forecast and from information provided by back-country helicopter-ski guides.

Harper and an assistant also check weather conditions daily on the top of Bald Mountain and combine that information with reports available from the U.S. Weather Service office in Boise.

Avalanche danger is listed as extreme, moderate or light. Temperatures, wind speeds and snow depths are given at several elevations. The recording includes both an immediate and a three- to five-day forecast for the area.

The Forest Service plans to use the device to record a campaign, (use weather forecasts and information during the summer months.

Low-income homes get help with bills for heating costs

TWIN FALLS — Assistance with winter heating bills is available to low-income residents from the South Central Community Action Agency.

The agency has been working with the state Department of Health and Welfare and with senior citizen centers around the Magic Valley to reach eligible residents, according to Sharon Fisher, the program's director.

An estimated 3,100 applications have been processed in the eight-county Magic Valley area, she said. However, persons who think they might qualify still can contact Community Action Agency offices in Jerome, Twin Falls and Burley, or inquire at senior-citizen centers throughout the region.

Family size, income and heating method determine eligibility and the amount of assistance, Fisher said.

The maximum monthly income to qualify ranges from $49 per individual to $1,024 for a family of five, with steps between the two.

The program is designed to assist in the payment of heat bills, not to pay total heating costs, she emphasized. The program began Jan. 1 and continues through the end of March.

Jackpot hit with quarter in Jackpot

JACKPOT — A short-term investment brought an Idaho Falls bank loan officer a considerable return Sunday.

Jean Wolring, who works in the loan office of the Valley Bank in Idaho Falls, won $25,674 on a quarter slot machine at Cactus Pete's casino after putting in less than $5, according to Paul Hayden, a spokesman for the casino.

Wolring has asked the bank's trust officer to look into the best way of investing for her new-found money, Hayden said.

Arson 'sniffer' aid donated

TWIN FALLS — An insurance company's $300 donation to the Twin Falls Arson Task Force may go a long way toward aiding arson investigations and deterring arsonists, county officials said Monday.

Representatives of the Farm Bureau Insurance Companies donated a device, known as a "sniffer," to the task force. The $300 device, which detects the presence of flammable vapors, will enable arson investigators to locate the source and cause of many suspicious fires, local officials say.

"Fire investigation is one of the most difficult things to do, primarily because of the lack of equipment," said Harold Jensen, the chief deputy for the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Department.

"Twin Falls County was the first in the state to receive the device, under the insurance company's program," said Lynn Miller of Pullman, a regional claims manager for Farm Bureau Insurance.

"The Farm Bureau people have been concerned about arson for quite some time," commented Miller, who said that arson-related fires have resulted in rising premiums for legitimate policyholders.

Local firms win transportation board contracts

BOISE — Severance Construction Inc. of Eden has received a $55,465 contract from the Idaho Transportation Board to construct a 94-foot steel truss bridge on the Pleasant Valley Road over Jordan Creek, approximately six miles southeast of Owyhee Valley, Ore., in Owyhee County.

Another contract recently awarded by the board went to Hicks-Adams Contractors of Idaho Falls for $113,894 to construct sewage lagoons and access roads, including septic tanks, pumps and electrical service, at the Hildesburg Area and port-of-entry facilities in Gooding County.

Late surge pushes Valley past Bulldogs

By MARV CLEMONS
Times-News sports editor

WENDELL — With just 94 seconds to play, Valley's Tracy Agee put stubborn Kimberly to rest Tuesday night.

The junior forward dug up a steal on the Valley press and cruised in for a layup. The basket put Valley High into a 30-25 lead for an eventual 94-29 victory and a berth in next week's state A-3 tourney.

Agee's heroics gave Forrest Fonesbeck's squad the final lead in a nip-and-tuck contest that twice saw the Bulldogs take a lead only to have Valley come back both times with enough desire to offset 18-percent shooting.

Kimberly forged an early 9-6 lead and then went cold as Valley charged to a 18-9 halftime cushion. In the third quarter the Bulldogs rallied behind Johnna Krieger and Lisa Crothers for a 27-25 lead, the only lead in the cold-shooting Vikings find the right shooting, rebounding and defensive combinations to gain a hard-earned spot in next week's eight-team state field.

"The girls were really drained," Fonesbeck said. "We had to beat them (Kimberly) twice tonight."

Shawver made sure of the Valley victory 10 seconds later when she stole a Kimberly, was fouled and sank two free throws for the five-point margin.

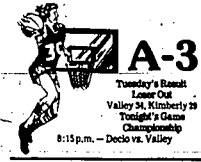

Valley faces Declo tonight at 8:15 for the A-3 Fourth District championship at Wendell and should Valley win, a second title game would be played Thursday at the same time since Declo must lose twice to be put in the runner-up spot. Declo would play the 42-23 Monday night to send the Vikings to the loser's bracket.

Kimberly was almost too much for the Vikings.

The Bulldogs moved out to an early 5-2 lead as Cyndi Corlier hit a fielder and Jenny Stark produced a three-point play.

The Kimberly lead was 9-6 early in the second period, but Tracy Agee's Bulldogs didn't score over the last 6:32 of the half and that gave Valley its chance.

Clark and Henry got the Vikings going. Clark popped from 10 before Henry added a 15-footer from the wing and then a free throw, putting Valley up 11-9.

Valley 54, Kimberly 29
Tuesdays Game Championship
8:15 p.m. — Declo vs. Valley

A steal and layup by Shawver, two short bankshots by Rochelle Cohen and a Denise Hardy free throw re-energized in Valley's 18-9 halftime lead.

Krieger brought the Bulldogs back life early in the third quarter with a rebound basket and then a three-pointer.

Agee slowed the Kimberly charge briefly with a basket from the corner, but Jill Ballard and Corlier hit from out to bring the Bulldogs within two, 20-18.

Crothers, a sophomore who Kimberly looks to when the pressure is on, hit her first fielder of the night for a 20-20 count with 2:06 left in the quarter.

Henry's smooth turnaround jumper from six feet put Valley up 22-20 and reserve Cindy West hit a solo free-throw to trim Valley's lead to 22-21 with eight minutes to play.

Crothers, who hit three of Kimberly's four last-quarter field goals, brought Kimberly from behind into a one-point lead three times over the next five minutes. But each time Valley responded. First it was Agee with two free throws, then it was Shawver on a steal and uncontested layup and then it was Agee from the corner.

Ballard gave Kimberly its final lead at 29-28 with a long jumper, but that's when Kimberly's tournament luck at winning close games (the Bulldogs won all three games by 11 total points) ran out.

Valley had the answers by the end of the stretch.

The Vikings must now try to topple Declo after two tough games while Lynn Payne's squad has had a day of rest.

"We're tired and we just may not have enough pressure left for Declo," Fonesbeck said.

Valley's record is 12-13. Kimberly's record is 7-13.

Going into this week, the point totals showed Burley with nine but with only five games to play; Minico at nine with seven to play and Twin Falls at eight with seven left.

Weather has benefited both Twin Falls and Minico — but Minico to the larger degree. A snow out moved Burley from the Bruins' 11th to 10th game, automatically picking up a point. But the big move was for Minico which, like Twin Falls, entered the final 10 games with five home, five away, now plays seven of its last 10 on the home court.

"Actually, the point situation right now indicates that either Twin Falls or Minico will get this area's chance at the extra spot provided we beat Burley," said Astorquia. "But if Burley beats us and then hits a..."

I-A shrinks to 92 football teams

NCAA switches 39 schools to I-AA

MISSION, Kan. (UPI) — Almost one-third of the 137 NCAA Division I-A football members have been reclassified to Division I-AA effective Sept. 1, the chairman of the NCAA classification committee said Tuesday.

The reclassification of 39 schools was necessitated by the revised Division I-A criteria, changed during the December special convention, said Capt. J.O. Coppedge of the U.S. Naval Academy and chairman of the NCAA classification committee.

He said classification for six additional institutions has not yet been determined for 1982 because of the need for additional data or lack of verification. Those six are Cincinnati, Miami (Ohio), Pacific, Southwestern Louisiana, Utah State and Western Michigan.

The reclassified Division I-A includes 92 institutions; the new Division I-AA has 89.

Coppedge emphasized that the reclassifications were an initial determination — made at the request of the NCAA council to be available during recruiting — and that some classifications could change up to Sept. 1.

Schools reclassified to I-AA are: Appalachian State, Arkansas State, Ball State, Bowling Green, Brown, Cal State-Fullerton, Citadel, Colgate, Colorado, Cornell, Dartmouth, Drake, East Tennessee, Eastern Michigan, Furman, Harvard, Holy Cross, Illinois State, Indiana State, Iowa State.

Also, Lamar, Long Beach State, Louisiana Tech, Marshall, North Texas State, Northeast Louisiana, Northern Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Richmond, San Jose State, Southern Illinois, Texas-Chattanooga, Texas-Arlington, Villm, West Texas State, Western Carolina and William & Mary.

Cal-State Fullerton, Long Beach State and San Jose State are members of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, whose conference classification has not yet been determined. Pacific and Utah State also are members.

Institutions that met the I-A criteria and remain part of that division are: Air Force, Alabama, Arizona, Arizona State, Arkansas, Army, Auburn, Baylor, Boston College, Brigham Young, California, Central Michigan, Clemson, Colorado, Colorado State, Duke, East Carolina, Florida, Florida State, Fresno State, Hawaii, Houston, Also, Georgia, Georgia Tech, Hawaii, Houston, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Iowa State, Kansas, Kansas State, Kentucky, Louisiana State, Louisville, Maryland, McNeese State, Memphis State, Miami (Fla.), Michigan, Michigan State, Minnesota.

Golden Eagles, Bruins make bids for postseason berths

CSI needs victory against regional foe Treasure Valley

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho enters the topsy-turvy regional basketball picture by hosting the Treasure Valley Chukars at 8 tonight.

"It will be family night with mom, dad and the kids admitted for a $5 fee. The game is the first "must" for Coach Dave Campbell and his Eagles as they embark on what apparently must be a 6-0 record against regional opponents.

Meanwhile, the CSI team, fresh from their first win ever over Flathead Community College of Kalspeck, Mont., will entertain the TVCC women at 6 p.m. in their second regional battle.

CSI players and fans got a look at Treasure Valley last weekend when Coach Carlye Dean's Chukars participated in a pair of double-headers against the two Montana university junior varsity teams.

What they saw was a small team that appears quite deep with good quickness and solid outside shooting.

"It's the kind of team that you have to worry about. You know they have enough players that their perimeter shooting will hold up. And with their quickness, they can spread the defense and take the ball inside pretty well. When you have the defense spread and an edge in quickness, you also can get more rebounds than your height would indicate," said Campbell.

Dean was more than self-effacing when he noted "we should be embracing bringing down a little team like this to play the height you've got here.

"Actually, they are pretty good competitors and they play intelligent basketball. But at our size, we can't overcome any mistakes."

The plain truth is CSI can't afford to lose to TVCC or Ricks or North Idaho, at home or on the road.

The emphasis of the regional chase is "focused" on North Idaho since the Cardinals, for the first time in history, knocked off Ricks in Rexburg Saturday night.

CSI's first concern had to be Ricks since Ricks had beaten the Eagles by two in the Casper tourney and NIC ostensibly had dismissed star Charles Meriwether from its team for disciplinary reasons. But Meriwether re-appeared in Cardinal victory to lead NIC to a four-point win at Ricks.

That, coupled with the new regional...

Twin Falls seeks to climb point ladder against Burley

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Twin Falls is playing for a lot more than a non-conference win when it travels to Burley tonight.

It is a critical game for the Bruins in the view of Coach John Astorquia as under the "new state point system," it could mean four points toward possibly gaining the eighth berth in the state tournament.

The Bruins topped the Bobcats by 12 points in a pre-Christmas meeting. Since then, Burley has posted a 2-13 record while Twin Falls is 9-3.

But it is the last 10 games of the season that have special meaning.

Under a new state rule, the three Magic Valley teams and three non-half teams will get one becomes a whole under a formula for the final 10 games.

In that formula, a team beating an A-1 team with a winning record gets five points, a win over a team with a losing record earns four points. Losing to a plus-500 team nets two and losing to a losing A-1 team is one. The formula for A-1 teams — the northern schools play a lot of A-2 competition — is four points for a win over a plus-500, three for a win for a sub-500, one for losing to an over-500 A-2 team and zero for a sub-500 A-2 team.

On that basis, Twin Falls has four for beating Blackfoot and one or two for losing at Pocatello. "We're hopeful the Indians can wind up with a plus-500 mark," Astorquia said.

Since Burley is doomed to a losing record, the maximum possible is four. But a loss would give the Bruins just one.

McKinley, the defending women's World Cup giant slalom champion, spotted her chances for a medal in the second run. She was third fastest behind the two HESS girls in the first heat and had the third-best intermediate time in the second run.

"I had to brake in a steep gate combination to avoid a fall," McKinley said. "This cost me a medal. Hard luck, but there is nothing I could do about it."

Hess edges Cooper in world giant slalom by .78 second

SCHLADMING, Austria (UPI) — Erika Hess of Switzerland Tuesday captured her second gold medal at the World Ski Championships and said she is now aiming at a third victory "with great confidence."

Hess, 19, took the women's world giant slalom title with a flawless performance in two heats, through a total of 100 tricky gates, in 2 minutes 37.17 seconds.

Christin Cooper of Sun Valley took the silver medal in 2:37.95 and Ursula Konzett of Liechtenstein took the bronze in 2:38.03.

Cooper, who had strong runs in both heats, said, "I am very pleased with my silver medal. I knew it was almost impossible to defeat Erika unless I made a mistake. She did it."

Under the circumstances, I am very pleased with my silver medal."

Cooper, 27, said she was defeated by Hess "mainly in the first run when I skied a little bit too sensitive on the steep part of the track. I didn't know how it would go on this crucial part and I didn't risk as much in the first run as I then did in the second heat."

Tamara McKinley of the Olympic Valley, Calif., after placing third in the opening heat, wound up sixth in 2:38.77.

"The way I feel like a giant slalom track — very steep and low I like a giant slalom track — very steep and low," Hess said. "I like to ski on ice, it doesn't bother me. I was certainly favored by the extreme conditions on this track."

"The world's best women skiers took off at temperatures of 13 degrees Celsius and some of them, such as favorite Irene Epple of West Germany, didn't like it too much.

"I have now won two gold medals in events which I don't consider my strongest," she said. "I will therefore enter the slalom with great confidence."

Hess, women's World Cup leader and winner of four World Cup slalom titles this season, is considered by far the most complete skier on the women's circuit.

She was cheered and applauded by a huge crowd, members of the "Erika Hess Fan Club" led by her aunt Annemarie Waser-Hess, winner of a slalom bronze medal at the 1968 World Championships at Badgastein, Austria.

The fan club members were equipped with huge cowbells, and shouted "Erika we love you" as Hess danced and darted through the icy gate combinations with surprising ease.

Monika Hess, her 17-year-old cousin, clocked the second fastest time in the first heat behind Erika, but dropped out on the second run after hitting a vertical gate combination too fast.

"Monika was too nervous," said her mother, Annemarie Waser-Hess, "but she has plenty of time to win top honors in future events."

McKinley, the defending women's World Cup giant slalom champion, spotted her chances for a medal in the second run. She was third fastest behind the two HESS girls in the first heat and had the third-best intermediate time in the second run.

Montreal wants to dump Ferragamo

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Montreal Alouettes Tuesday said serious efforts were being made to send quarterback Vince Ferragamo back to the National Football League.

Alouettes Executive Vice President Bill Putnam said owner Nelson Skalbania was handling the Ferragamo deal, but would not elaborate on which teams had been approached to take the $450,000 per year signal-caller.

"(Ferragamo) still has a contract with the Alouettes," Putnam said. "But it will probably be worked out with mutually agreeable terms for him to go back to the NFL."

Ferragamo played with the Los Angeles Rams before going to Montreal.

Pat Bowen, who said Monday he would probably not exercise his option to buy the Alouettes from Skalbania because he could not find Montreal-based partners, also confirmed that deleting Ferragamo from the payroll was one of his conditions for purchasing the team.

"Part of my arrangement would demand settlement of the Ferragamo situation," Bowen told the Montreal Gazette. "I don't think there is any question of his not playing in Montreal (in 1982)."

Raider trial to stay in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The National Football League's bid to have its upcoming antitrust trial against the Oakland Raiders moved to another city was denied Tuesday by a federal judge.

U.S. District Judge Harry Pregerson said in a 10-page opinion that he was not convinced by NFL arguments that it was impossible to find an unbiased jury in Los Angeles.

The first trial ended Aug. 13 after four months when Pregerson declared a mistrial with the jury deadlocked 8-2. The second trial is scheduled to begin March 15.

Bird named NBA's best for January

NEW YORK (UPI) — Forward Larry Bird of the Boston Celtics, who averaged 26.9 points over 14 games and won the Most Valuable Player Award in the All-Star contest, Tuesday was named the Player of the Month for January in the National Basketball Association.

Bird scored in double figures in every Celtics game except one during January and led the club 10 times. He also averaged 12.9 rebounds, 7.1 assists and 2.8 steals per game.

In the All-Star Game on Sunday, he scored 12 of his 19 points in the final 6:46 and led all rebounders with 12 as the East topped the West, 120-118.

Inexperienced boxer wins crown

TOKYO (UPI) — Davey Moore of New York, whose previous experience amounted to just eight pro fights, knocked out champion Tadashi Mihara of Japan in the sixth round Tuesday to win the World Boxing Association junior middleweight title.

Moore dropped Mihara three times with a series of combinations and after the third knockdown, Mihara was unable to stand up as Panamanian referee Carlos Berrocal counted him out 53 seconds into the round.

Moore, 22, floored Mihara with a sharp left to the jaw for a mandatory eight count. Mihara rose and Moore resumed the attack, throwing wild lefts and right hooks to the canvas for the second time after a hard right. Mihara again stood up and tried to fight but he was in no condition to continue and a flurry of punches put him away.

Rangers hire Allen as hitting coach

ARLINGTON, Texas (UPI) — Texas Rangers general manager Eddie Robinson announced Tuesday the club had hired Dick Allen, who compiled a lifetime .292 average with five major league clubs, to serve as the team's hitting instructor in spring training.

Robinson said Allen's spring training performance would be evaluated and if he proved to be a benefit to the Rangers he could be hired on a full-time basis.

Allen, who will be 40 next month, spent 15 years in the majors with Philadelphia, St. Louis, Los Angeles, the Chicago White Sox and Oakland, and hit 351 home runs during his career. He retired from baseball after the 1977 season.

Stephenson out for at least 1 month

HOUSTON (UPI) — Jan Stephenson, a three-time winner on the LPGA tour last year, informed the association she broke a small bone in her right foot and will miss at least a month of tournaments, a spokeswoman said Tuesday.

LPGA Public Relations Coordinator Clare Shells said Stephenson, of Phoenix, Ariz., called Friday and said the injury occurred in an exercise class.

Stephenson missed the first tour event of the year last weekend in Deer Creek, Fla., after having scheduled herself to compete.

Upcoming tournaments she will miss are in Miami, St. Petersburg and Sarasota. She also may not be ready to return to the tour by the time of the LPGA tournament in Tucson, Ariz., Feb. 25, Shells said.

Jerome captures two from Buhl, Filer

BUHL — Jerome proved to be the overall winner in a triangular match with Buhl and Filer Tuesday night.

The Tigers took a 27-24 victory from Buhl, and thrashed Filer 41-15. In the other match, Buhl defeated Filer 42-27.

All three schools will meet Feb. 10 at Declo High School for district competition.

All the kids put a lot into it, and everybody had to wrestle twice which made it a real challenge," Filer Coach Bob McGrew said.

GLENN'S FERRY — The Glens Ferry wrestlers won four of the last five weights Tuesday night to nip the Declo Hornets 36-34.

Declo jumped out to a 29-12 lead before Jim Howell, Harley Riggs and Myron Adams picked up pins for the Pilots.

The winning points actually came on a tufflet at heavyweight but Glenns Ferry had given Declo those six points at 98 pounds.

Irish tip No. 8 USF 75-66 behind Mitchell's big night

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Mike Mitchell scored a career-high 19 points Tuesday night, sparking Notre Dame to a 75-66 upset of No. 8 San Francisco.

Mitchell hit 6-of-7 first-half shots to give the Irish a 38-23 lead. In the second half, John Faxon hit three straight shots to give Notre Dame its biggest lead, 49-37, with 15 minutes to go.

San Francisco's John Hagwood came off the bench after suffering a sprained ankle earlier in the game to score 8 straight points and bring the Deacs to 65-38 with less than four minutes left. But Notre Dame then went to a delay offense.

San Francisco, 19-3, as led by Quintin Dalley with 24 points, including 15 in the second half. Notre Dame raised its record to 7-11.

Notre Dame made 21-of-30 foul shots in the second half and 29-of-45 for the game. USF was 14-of-25 overall.

Valley 42, Wendell 30

HAZELTON — Valley took five matches in the middle weights to record a 42-30 dual match victory over Wendell Tuesday night.

Walter Higley, Craig Black, Cory Sellers and Brad Black all pinned their Trojan foes, and Curtis Ulrich won by forfeit in the 145-pound class.

"We've had kind of a setback because we haven't had school all week, and it is hard to get the kids up," Valley Coach Jerry Michener said. "The kids wrestled well, but we usually don't have any forfeits. One kid was sick, and we couldn't even find the other."

Valley, 5-2-1, in dual matches, hosts the Burley Junior varsity Thursday at 7 p.m. This is the last regular season match for the Vikings before heading to the district tournament Feb. 10 at Declo High School.
