

Right-to-work's fate up to Evans

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho senators sent a right-to-work bill to a certain death in the governor's office Thursday. They passed the measure 21-14 despite charges that the proposal gained support due to emotionalism surrounding the Bunker Hill Co. closure.

After Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, unsuccessfully attempted to send the bill back to committee for further hearings — and about an hour of debate that focused on speculation about the effect of such a law on attempts to revive Bunker Hill — senators agreed with Majority Leader Jim Risch, Boise, to stop "prolonging the agony" leading up to a gubernatorial veto.

Gov. John Evans has vowed to kill the measure. Risch said GOP leaders had agreed, however, not to send the bill to Republican Lt. Gov. Phil Batt while the Democratic governor was out of the state.

Evans is scheduled to return from a trip to California today.

To consider the bill on Thursday, Republicans first had to gain a two-thirds majority to suspend rules and move up the measure on the calendar. That vote tallied an easy 36-5 in favor of pending rules.

That gave the victory Democrats sought earlier in the year when the bill first came to the chamber from the House — and perplexed Senate Minority Leader Ron Twitlar, Boise, who said lawmakers "could get whip lash" from the abrupt position changes.

GOP Sens. Vernon K. Brassey and Edith Miller Klein, both of Boise, opposed the bill along with the chamber's 12 Democrats. Brassey said he had considered backing the measure — for what would be his first time since 1977 when the bill first came to the Legislature — but he said he voted against it because of constituents' calls opposing it.

The lengthy debate prompted jokes about the chamber's "cave of mighty hot winds" and emotional speeches about parents, who worked for just cents a day before the labor movement gained strength.

But tempers flared when Republican backers claimed the measure would have kept Bunker Hill alive in the Silver Valley of north Idaho.

"It's time to quit kidding ourselves," said Sen. Kenneth Bradshaw, R-Wendell. "As a result union activity and control, 2,000 men (at Bunker Hill) are out of jobs."

Sporting a "Solidarity" button backing the Polish workers' union on his lapel, Peavey accused the senators of looking down "a very long and narrow tunnel" when considering the measure.

Steen, Barker switch

BOISE — Two switched votes and a face-to-face debate highlighted the roles of Magic Valley legislators in Thursday's passage of right-to-work in the Senate.

Strong constituent support for the bill resulted in both Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, and Sen. J. Wilson Steen, R-Glenns Ferry, changing their votes to the affirmative, after opposing the legislation in past years.

The right-to-work bill, which Gov. John Evans says he may veto, would outlaw mandatory union membership as a condition of continued employment. All senators from the Magic Valley voted in favor of the bill except John Peavey, D-Carey.

One side show during the bill's debate was a face-off between Peavey and Sen. Ken Bradshaw, R-Wendell, over the possibility that right-to-work could have saved the Bunker Hill mine operation at Kellogg.

"About 60 percent of the workers voted in favor of a contract with the new investors. In any other election, that would have been considered a landslide," Bradshaw said. "But since the vote went against the (International Steel Workers) union, they

House agrees on 5% pay hike

BOISE (UPI) — House Republicans and Democrats agreed in separate party caucuses Thursday afternoon to endorse a 5 percent pay raise for state employees in fiscal year 1983.

The closed-door meetings were held five hours after a special six-member House subcommittee voted unanimously to submit the $8.1 million proposal, which mirrors the recommendation made by Democratic Gov. John Evans in his annual budget message two months ago.

The pay plan, which has the reluctant support of the Idaho Public Employees Association, was given an excellent chance of clearing the House by early next week.

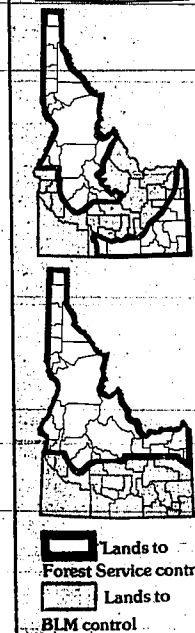

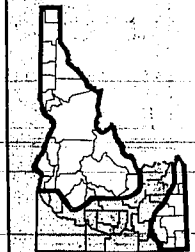

House leaders were putting the proposal in resolution form Thursday to be introduced in the House State Affairs Committee or Ways and Means Committee sometime Friday.

The resolution, if passed by the House and Senate, will be a guide to the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee for setting fiscal year 1983 budgets.

Also included in the plan is a 1.5 percent allocation for merit raises. Money for those raises would be generated through salary savings from workforce turnover.

Rep. B.E. "Bud" Lewis, R-St. Maries, majority caucus chairman, said the 5 percent increase was con-

Three land consolidation concepts being considered for federal land in Idaho

Agencies discuss concepts to alter land management

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The U.S. Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management have embarked on a study that could place all federal land in Twin Falls County under the management of one agency.

Emphasizing that no specific plan has been written, officials presented three land-exchange "concepts" at a news conference Thursday in Twin Falls.

Two of the three concepts would give the BLM control of all federal land in Twin Falls and Cassia counties, which would eliminate the southern half of the Sawtooth National Forest.

The third proposal would eliminate the Burley BLM District, placing federal land south of the Snake River and east of Salmon Falls Creek under Forest Service jurisdiction.

Nick Cozokos, the Burley District BLM manager, said the three maps were prepared only to stimulate discussion. Other management combinations are possible, he said.

The two agencies have adopted similar management policies and have cooperated in recent years on fire suppression and range improvements, Cozokos said.

The next logical step, he said, would be consolidation of lands to improve administrative efficiency and service to the public. At present, federal lands are divided into an often confusing mosaic — with lands in one jurisdiction often surrounded by the other.

Similar exchange studies are being conducted in Wyoming and along the California-Nevada border, according to Ed Waldappel, a public information officer for the Sawtooth Forest.

"We're not asking people to respond to specifics, just the concept," Waldappel said. "Both agencies will drop it (consideration) if there is no support."

Public meetings will be held beginning next week to gauge reaction to the concept of consolidating federal lands, he said.

The informational meetings are scheduled for: Friday, Feb. 12, at 1:30 p.m. in the Twin Falls forest dispatch center, 2647 Kimberly Road; Friday, Feb. 19, at 2 p.m. at the Burley Elks Club, 1350 Oakley Ave.; Tuesday, Feb. 23, at 1:30 p.m. in Kelchum's old city hall; and Tuesday, Feb. 23, at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln County Court-house in Shoshone.

If support for the concept is evident, land managers will hold additional meetings in March or April to decide the scope of the land exchanges.

According to Waldappel, Max Peterson, the chief of the Forest Service, and Robert Burford, the BLM's national director, agreed in November to make recommendations on the land exchanges to Congress by July of this year. No exchanges could take effect without approval by Congress.

Cozokos said a six-member inter-agency planning team made several assumptions in deciding to seek public support for the exchanges. Among them were:

- Sufficient public and congressional support will be available to allow transfers that are large enough to justify their cost.
- Financial returns to state and local governments would not be affected greatly.
- All employees with full-time appointments would be retained, although some employees might be transferred to other agencies or locations.
- The management direction of the lands exchanged would be maintained until plans are updated by the receiving agency.
- All communities that currently have a Forest Service or BLM office will continue to have an office. However, some offices may be transferred between agencies, and where two exist in the same town, they might be consolidated.
- The proposals will not attempt to

Three public TV proposals fail

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — Three plans to fund public television effectively canceled each other out Thursday, returning that debate to square one.

"There is a minority of people on the Joint Finance and Appropriations Committee who don't want to fund public television at all, and the others split about 50-50 on how to do it," commented Rep. Lawrence Knigge, R-Filer, a JFAC member.

"I don't know what's going to happen now," he said.

The three unsuccessful motions to provide Idaho's three public television stations with supplemental funding for the current fiscal year were:

- Approve $128,000, but stipulate that separate filming at Moscow and Pocatello would be phased out in the next five months, leaving those stations as broadcasting satellites for KAAD in Boise. That measure was sponsored by Sen. Dean Van Engelen, R-Burley.
- Allocate $225,500 to maintain the three separate stations, a recommendation supported by the stations and Gov. John Evans. It was sponsored by Sen. Mike Mitchell, D-Lewisston.
- Approprate $157,500 as a compromise, limiting the amount of state support, but retaining the three stations as independent programmers.

The sponsor of that proposal was Rep. Kitty Gurnsey, R-Boise.

Although all of the proposals supported public television to some degree, Rep. Mack Neibaur, R-Paul, cast a black cloud over any hope for continued state support.

During the debate, Neibaur said that if none of the motions passed, he would consider asking that no supplemental funding be appropriated.

"I can't see any place for Idaho general-fund money to be in competition with private enterprise," he said. "I think all three proposals should be defeated."

"Our tax money should be used for the essential things in life, not the pleasurable things in life. It's time to get this public television funding back into education, if that's what it's to be used for, so the college presidents can decide how best to use the money."

After all three motions failed, however, Neibaur said he remained undecided on whether he would ask that the funding request be rejected totally. The issue will return to JFAC on Monday morning.

Van Engelen said he supported shrinking the public network to "a one-station system" because federal support for the program eventually will be lost, and the state won't be able to pick up the tab.

"It makes better sense to me to go one station in Boise and leave Moscow and Pocatello as translators," he told the committee.

"That way, the equipment would still be there (in Moscow and Pocatello) for students to use, and the bulk of the programming that people want to see would still be present. Only local programming would be reduced."

Testimony indicated that only about 8 percent of the network's programming throughout Idaho is produced locally.

"When I came up here (to the Legislature), I thought I could support Van Engelen's one-station concept," Knigge responded. "But the fact is that we have not yet lost our federal funding. If we pull-out now, we'll lose about $120,000 in federal dollars."

"If the feds eventually do pull that support — and Sen. Van Engelen is probably right in that assumption — then that will be the time to reconsider the one-station concept," he said. "It seems premature to make that move now."

Friday briefing

Judge's ruling on rabbit injunction expected today

REXBURG (UPI) — Seventh District Judge Willard Burton is expected to decide today whether he will grant a request to issue a preliminary injunction against future rabbit drives in eastern Idaho.

Burton heard two days of testimony earlier this week by witnesses for the Fund For Animals and for the Mud Lake Farmers Rabbit Committee.

The fund contends that the drives, in which more than 100,000 jack rabbits have been clubbed to death since early December, violate state anti-cruelty laws and that youngsters should have been barred from the events near Mud Lake, about 60 miles west of the Grand Teton mountain range.

The farmers claim the rabbits have destroyed more than $5 million in crops in the last year.

During closing arguments Tuesday, Bill Mauk, a Boise attorney representing the fund, asked Burton to issue a preliminary injunction halting the drives for at least four weeks.

However, Mauk said if the injunction were not granted, he would want the judge to set down five guidelines for future drives.

"With proper restraint, I think these drives can go on if they are conducted in a dignified fashion which becomes the citizens of the state of Idaho," Mauk said.

Mauk asked Burton to set down guidelines requiring the Jefferson County commissioners to supervise the drives to insure humane treatment of the rabbits; that participants be advised that inhumane treatment of the rabbits violates state law; that no children under the age of 16 be allowed to participate in the drives; that killing only take place in a controlled area and that no rabbits will be clubbed to death that escape through lines of drivers; and that the farmers try to find a more humane method of eliminating the rabbits.

JFK tapes to be released

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk, responding to news that 600 taped conversations from John F. Kennedy's White House are soon to be made public, said Thursday microphones were a common sight in Kennedy's Oval Office.

The material — involving 325 meetings and 275 telephone conversations — now being transferred to the Kennedy Library in Boston, ranged from trivial political chitchat to top secret discussions of such then-current issues as Vietnam, the Cuban missile crisis and Berlin.

Franklin stabbed in prison

MARION, Ill. (UPI) — Avoled racist Joseph Paul Franklin, convicted killer of two black joggers in Utah, was stabbed 15 times, several penitentiary officials said Thursday.

Franklin, repeatedly stabbed with an "leek-like" homemade weapon, was lying in stable condition. The FBI said it has a suspect in the attack.

Franklin, 31, Mobile, Ala., also has been charged with the murder of two Indianapolis blacks in sniping incidents.

Franklin had arrived at the prison last Sunday from the federal prison medical center at Springfield, Mo.

Reagan offers zero option treaty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan said Thursday he has offered the Soviet Union a treaty containing his "zero option" proposal, to forego deployment of U.S. medium-range nuclear missiles in Western Europe if the Soviets dismantle their opposing missiles.

"I call on President (Leonid) Brezhnev to join us in this important first step to reduce the nuclear shadow that hangs over the peoples of the world," Reagan said in a statement.

Ford announces $1 billion losses

DEARBORN, Mich. (UPI) — Ford Motor Co.'s chief labor negotiator said Thursday the firm suffered 1981 losses of more than $1 billion and will not hesitate to use the setback for leverage in talks with the United Auto Workers.

Peter Pezillo, vice president for labor relations at Ford, also said he feels the firm's salaried employees have suffered enough during the company's two-year slump and should not have to take further cuts sought by the UAW.

UAW Vice President Donald Ephlin called the projected loss for "serious." He said the red ink serves to underscore our concern for the job security of Ford workers now and in the future.

Vote

discarded it as merely an advisory vote.

Workers vote 51 percent in favor of unionizing, an employer would have no choice but to accept union representation of workers, commented Bradshaw, who said right-to-work would not bust unions. "It's only a tool to make unions more responsive to their members."

Questioning Bradshaw, Peavey asked where he obtained "his inside knowledge of what went on in the contract negotiations?"

Bradshaw responded that any issue like the Bunker Hill closure generates ample news coverage and public comment.

Peavey argued that by not negotiating their original contract, the mine workers and the investors who were considering buying Bunker Hill would have broken the Taft-Hartley Act by circumventing the original employer.

Right-to-work is a law that outlaws freedom of choice, Peavey said. "It keeps both employer and employee from entering into a certain type of contract that they both may desire."

Peavey noted "that it took a union" to negotiate reduced wages and create lowered auto prices at General Motors.

"It has taken a union to accomplish these changes through bargaining with these large companies," he said. "Right-to-work is a union-busting bill, and it's going to make unions here in Idaho ineffective in negotiating with these giant corporations."

Barker said he changed his vote this year for two reasons: strong constituent support and the realization that unions in Idaho don't necessarily handle their problems within the state.

The sponsor of the bill, Rep. John Brooks, R-Gooding, said he hadn't been sure of Barker's support. "I expected 20 votes in favor of the bill, but Barker turned it to 21," he said.

"When Gov. (John) Evans receives the phone calls and letters supporting right-to-work, he's going to have to take a long, new look at the same issues that changed these senators' minds," said Brooks, who acknowledged that it would be tough to find 24 Senate votes to override a veto by the governor.

balance — work — loads, acres or persons behind the two agencies.

Southern Idaho legislators who received briefings on the study Thursday expressed doubts about the likelihood of public support for massive boundary shifts.

"The exchanges probably would have greater success if they were limited to small parcels," said Sen. Rander who grazes livestock on federal lands administered by both agencies.

Although the BLM was established to manage grazing on non-forest lands, not said many ranchers prefer Forest Service management because the agency is less subject to political upheaval and is able to relate a more stable, professional staff.

"The head of the Forest Service is not replaced with each change in administration, the way the BLM administrator is," he said.

Rep. Vard Chatham, R-Albion, who also leases public land, said he doubted forest and range users would tolerate consolidation if it meant traveling farther to meet with land managers.

"It's hard to change habits," he said. "On the other hand, there's very little merit to having vehicles pass each other on the road doing the same kind of management."

He said differences in grazing policies also would have to be resolved.

A Jerome man who was active in the fight to preserve wildlife habitat in the South Hills — now administered by the Forest Service — said senators, too, must be convinced the exchanges would lead to improved management.

Carl Nellis, the secretary of the Idaho Conservation League, said the proposal to transfer existing personnel, where necessary, to preserve continuity might help convince environmental advocates.

"But a certain amount of management direction still filters down from the top," he said. "It's my personal opinion that the Forest Service has traditionally been much more responsive to wildlife and resources other than grazing."

Tax bracket readjustment divided into separate bills

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

GORDON HOLLIFIELD
... against any tax hike

BOISE — A bill to increase some state income-tax brackets will be split into two bills before going to the House floor for a vote.

The original concept of the bill, authored by Rep. Morgan Munger, R-Ola, was to juggle some high-income brackets — both individual and corporate — in order to recoup money lost to recent federal tax cuts. At the same time, the state tax code would be changed to conform with the new federal codes, so people only have one tax schedule to consider when filing state and federal forms.

"The savings from the federal tax cuts are relatively large amounts, up to a net 25 percent, while the few increases in state taxes would be quite small, maybe 7% to 9 percent for couples," said Steve Swanson, a Boise accountant who supported Munger's plan.

"The offsetting effect of these two would still mean significant tax cuts for everyone," he said.

But the House Revenue and Taxation Committee did not agree. Instead, committee members passed a motion to hold the bill voting to approve the bill as one package was the committee chairman, Rep. Steve Antone, R-Rupert.

"I encourage you (committee members) not to impose this tax increase on those whose income isn't keeping up with inflation right now," said Rep. Gordon Hollifield, R-Jerome. "And that's what this is — a tax increase, regardless of the benefits the proponents are outlining."

"Increasing taxes at the state level, no matter to what degree, is not part of the concept of the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981," he said. "It cuts down on money going into investment and therefore, offsets part of the effect of supply-side economics, which is what we're suppose to be looking to right now."

The tax increases proposed in Munger's bill would affect only high-income individuals and corporations. Munger said the extra income gained from these increases would amount to about $25 million, of which about $10 million would be needed to offset state revenue lost to federal tax cuts.

"We estimate it would generate about $15 million in new money," Munger said.

until it can be split. It will be divided so that conformity to the federal code and the proposed tax increase will become separate issues.

"I believe we need to let this tax increase stand on its own merit, and not let it tag along with the conformity issue," said Rep. Myron Jones, R-Malad. The only Magic Valley legislator

Bill offers equity for property tax

BOISE (UPI) — A bill to establish a five-year cycle for the reassessment of property was approved by a House committee Thursday.

Opponents of the measure cried it was a new way to get around the 1 percent property-tax initiative.

The House Revenue and Taxation Committee voted 14-4 to send the proposal to the House floor with a "do pass" recommendation after sponsors said it would streamline the property reappraisal process and help bring about equity in Idaho's tax system.

State Tax Commissioner Darwin Young said the plan would require county assessors to reappraise 20 percent of each county's property each year — meaning all property would be revalued every five years. It would base property taxes on current market values rather than 1978 values as required in the 1 percent initiative.

But the two leading supporters of the 1978 people-passed 1 percent property-tax limitation returned to haunt the committee and the Idaho Tax Commission, accusing them of carrying out the complete destruction of that law.

"This is nothing more than a hop, skip and a jump around what's left of the 1 percent initiative," said Don Chance, president of the Idaho Property Owners Association.

Chance and Cal Williams, secretary-treasurer of the group, said the measure would result in increased property taxes across the state because the reappraisal would sharply boost recorded property values.

"We're left to wander out in the boon-docks, those of us who are trying to retain some part of the 1 percent,"

Chance said.

He said the bill would require "massive" reappraisal projects that the county assessors would not be able to conduct because of budget and manpower restrictions. He said this would foster further inequity in property reappraisal and taxation and increase confusion between the assessors and the Tax Commission.

Williams said reappraisal of property would be unfair because the county assessors would be able to choose which 20 percent of the county area to reappraise each year. That could result in tax increases for any group of taxpayers an assessor chose to target, he said.

Young said the bill would allow the state to "go a long ways toward achieving equity — we will have an orderly plan, so assessments will come in at 20 percent each year."

Supporters said the bill could prevent future controversies such as the unsuccessful recall of Kootenai County Assessor Henry Nagel last fall. Many people were upset by Nagel's reassessment program. Young said the bill would make reappraisal uniform across the state.

Rep. Louis Horvath, D-Pinehurst, said the bill would reduce property taxes in Shoshone County because values of property owned by the slumping mining industry, especially Bunker Hill Co. — would drive down values.

Law Enforcement receives funds

BOISE (UPI) — The Legislature's budget-setting committee earmarked $56,000 for the state Law Enforcement Department Thursday.

The agency's director warned he would eliminate up to 170 positions if he didn't get the cash.

Director John Rooney initially asked the committee for a $56,000 supplemental appropriation to pay the department's debts. But that sum had climbed by $30,000 by the time the request came back to the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee for a vote because of even more shortfalls experienced by the agency.

Legislative fiscal analyst Jeff Youtz said the department came in with another $30,000 deficit during the past two months due to declining revenues from new-car sales.

Rooney said he's already ordered a freezes on $700,000 that had been earmarked for capital outlay — and another $500,000 was saved by halting vehicle purchases and laying off staff.

"Now we get into the first part of the calendar year and we find that the economy is not getting better... and, in fact, it's taken a dive," Rooney said in explaining the additional loss.

The director said if the committee refused to appropriate any money he would be forced to eliminate the 170 positions — which would result in closure of the agency for the last four months of the fiscal year.

If the lawmakers refused all but $566,000, Rooney said, he still would have to lay off 60 workers.

But Sen. Dean Van Engelen, R-Burley, said he could back only a supplemental appropriation of $566,000. He asked the committee to wait to come up with the additional $300,000 until later in the session.

Van Engelen said he believed new-car sales would be going up again — and revenues to the agency also would rise. If that occurred, he said, the agency wouldn't need the extra $300,000.

But the committee defeated Van Engelen's motion 6-13 — then voted 18-1 to back an $866,000 appropriation recommended by Rep. Kathleen "Kitty" Gurnsey, committee co-chairwoman.

Reapportionment showdown likely

BOISE (UPI) — Senate Democrats for the Pocatello area recoiled Thursday from proposed legislative reapportionment amendments offered by the majority Republicans.

The conflict boosted the possibility of another veto showdown between Gov. John Evans and the GOP-dominated Legislature.

Sens. Israel Merrill of Blackfoot and C.E. "Chick" Blyeu of Pocatello said they could not accept a plan put together by Sen. Mark Ricks, R-

Rexburg, to amend the House-passed reapportionment bill that has been held up in the Senate.

Blyeu said the latest GOP plan was essentially no different than that contained in the House bill — and also in the reapportionment plan Evans vetoed last summer.

Merrill and Blyeu charged that Ricks and other Republicans did not incorporate in their new reapportionment proposal any of the recommendations made by the minority Democrats.

Blyeu said he believed Evans would veto any of the proposals submitted by the Republicans so far.

Ricks said Wednesday he probably would try to amend the House's reapportionment bill later this week or next week.

But Senate President Pro Tem Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, said the GOP majority had not committed itself to allow an amendment attempt — only to seek a compromise with Evans.

Filer action causes citizens to wonder

We've often taken local government to task for shutting the public out of the decision-making process.

Tuesday's Filer City Council meeting was another example of where officials showed a callous disregard for citizen input.

By now, just about everybody in Filer knows about the controversial rezoning proposal involving Acme Manufacturing. The citizens who showed up at the council meeting expected a discussion and then a vote on whether to accept or reject that city's Planning and Zoning Commission decision to endorse Acme's request.

But council, without an open discussion, quickly voted to sustain the planning and zoning board's decision. Those who came to address council on the topic were ignored.

Council will hold a special meeting tonight at 7 to rescind its vote, listen to the people and then vote again. That will allow public input but probably won't change the vote.

Filer's councilmen may have the best of intentions, but when they allow things like this to happen, citizens lose faith and trust in their elected officials. We trust that at tonight's session the issue will get a fair and thorough airing — just for the record.

We knew they wouldn't

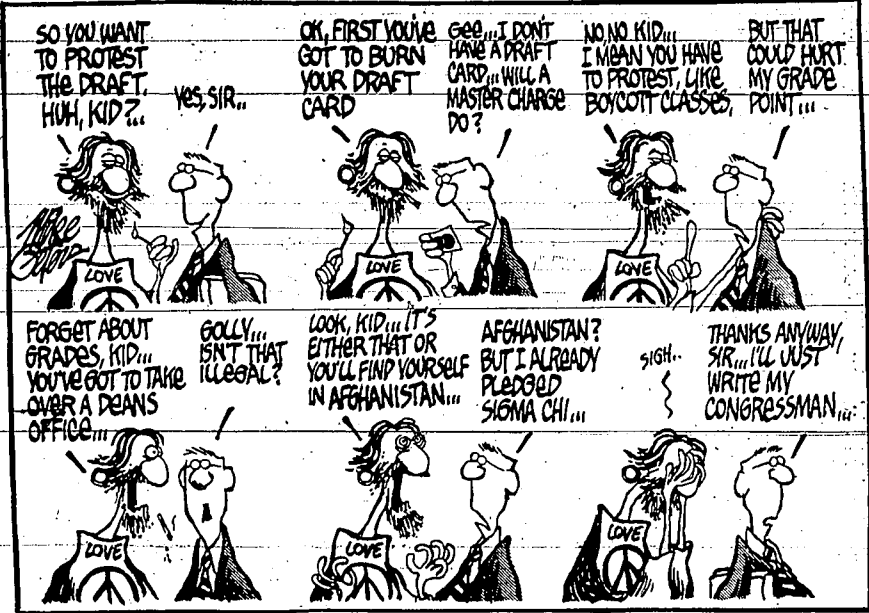

Waiting for the day when Idaho lawmakers open up their caucuses for public scrutiny would be like waiting for the proverbial day when hell freezes over.

Therefore, it came as no surprise Wednesday when a bill to prohibit secret party caucuses was killed in committee.

The Senate Judiciary and Rules Committee did, however, vote to print a bill strengthening Idaho's open-meeting law. That's a priority for this legislative session.

Attorney General David LeRoy has prescribed the right medicine for what ails open meetings in this state by proposing some sharp teeth: make actions taken in violation of the law invalid and fine any public official who votes to illegally close a meeting.

Lawmakers, no doubt, will be sensitive to press and public cries for a stronger open-meeting measure. What we have to do now is guard against efforts to dilute the effort.

Letters to the editor

Stop supporting El Salvador

Editor, Times-News:
 I am sickened by the recent butchery performed by the El Salvadorian government on its people. I am outraged that my own government tacitly sanctions and covertly finances the fascist regime of El Salvador. If Vietnam taught us anything, it was that we cannot impose a puppet government on an unwilling populace to serve our own political ends. If we have not learned that, then my buddies who lost their lives in that war truly died in vain. How ignorant does President Reagan think the American people are? Does he think we will rally behind his foreign policy of the Soviets for what they are doing in Poland and then look the other way while he does the same thing in El Salvador? I do not want the money I work so hard for to be used to murder people who have done me no harm. If President Reagan can think of no other use for the $95 million in tax dollars he plans to send to the butchers of El Salvador, let him send it to Idaho. $95 million would put the people of Northern Idaho back to work. We could enhance the education of our children, we could feed the poor, $95 million dollars would put this state back on its feet.

Write your congressman, write the president and tell him how you feel about this travesty. Write now! At this moment, the weapons you bought are killing people like you and your children. Stop American jobs to feed American children, not to buy bullets for a South American tyrant.

Leave Banbury Springs alone

Editor, Times-News:
 Regarding Banbury Hot Springs, there are two parties seeking to desecrate one of the last remaining natural springs in Idaho. The surprising thing is that Idaho Power, a public utility, is seeking to start a fish farm there. In no way, can see fish farming as a public utility. Oh yeah, they're going to call it a separate entity, same stockholders, but two sets of books. Meanwhile, they demand from us through the PUC 15 to 19 percent return on the stockholders' investments. All on our utility rates. Are we then going to subsidize an entirely new enterprise and still be liable for any losses they undoubtedly will encounter in this depressed, river-polluting, industry?

It seems Uncle Sam is permitting a company that is losing or showing a loss to sell or transfer (in this case) their losses to another money-making industry.

Are they going to show us the books and the possible manipulation? I'll bet not.

Idaho Power doesn't seem that efficient in keeping our electric costs down. They talk about our average cost being lower than other locations, but to begin with, the bulk of Idaho Power has been hydro.

Anyway, handle and stick to what you're supposed to be best at without getting us into a mess you know little about. I, for one, don't believe that BIG is always BEST. I don't want to support anymore conglomerates that eventually will cost us like AT&T will pretty soon.

I won't even comment on the other party, enough has been written and said about him.

being depleted, then there are the labor problems that were first caused by management and later by labor unions.

I say that because in 1930-31-32 I worked as a miner; in 1933-34-35 I worked as a mine operator. Our mine was only a short distance from a large mine that employed over 400 miners. That company had an office in town where they did their hiring. As the depression deepened and more men came looking for jobs the company decided to cut wages from $8.50 a day for miners down to $4.50 for helpers, muckers and outside workers down to $3 and $2.50 for outside. On top of that they closed their office in town forcing those trying to get a job to walk five miles each day just to show up in the late afternoon.

When I see on television the lines of unemployed and hear them being told to come back tomorrow, I am reminded of those days. Unions were desperately needed at that time, but later on they became too powerful. That was the time for right-to-work legislation. Now, with a depression coming on, is not the time.

It is unrealistic to believe that any group of people who are less familiar with that operation, could take over the Bunker Hill mine and smelter and operate it at a profit under present conditions.

Solution to taking losses

Editor, Times-News
 Because of Reaganomics, business losses are mounting, and one solution the Reagan administration has come up with is for workers to take the business loss in the form of wage cuts.

Several solutions have been forthcoming, one of which is most interesting.

The employee accepts the wage reduction in the form of a one-year certificate in the amount his/her wages were reduced. This certificate is not stock in the company, but rather an investment by the employee in the company. If the company does make money, the employee will get some of his money back. If the Reaganomics works and the company does not make money, the employee will have the right of any good businessman, declare a loss on his income tax.

The employer loses nothing, he gains his wage cuts, the employee has taken a business gamble, and if it does not work out he has the business privilege to take the loss and pass it on to President Reagan.

Seems fair to me.

Vary a right to work law

Editor, Times-News:
 During the time of Roosevelt and the Great Depression, Roosevelt did not have the unions such as the CIO-AFL, etc. to deal with as we know them today.

Inflation, where you are making more monies and buying less, no one benefits. This is called labor taking advantage of business.

At the time of inflation on the state government should impose the Right-to-Work Act (amended).

When recession strikes, it means business has the working class at a poverty level on income. At this point a closed union shop is necessary which will create a balance.

In total, the Right-to-Work Act should be imposed during inflation and taken away during recession. This is necessary for the proper function of government and the economy.

The Bunker Hill situation

Editor, Times-News:
 Regarding closing of Bunker Hill and Right-to-Work legislation, for the past several months there has been much said and written about the Bunker Hill mine closure, much of which has been incorrect and misleading. I would like to make a few comments because I have worked in the mines as a miner and as a mine operator.

The Bunker Hill mine and smelter has been in operation for almost 100 years. During that time many changes have taken place. When they started operations they had many problems to overcome.

Today they have problems that are much more complex and more costly, such as government restrictions having been imposed, lawsuits are more common and costly and their ore reserves are

Joblessness a social disease

© Los Angeles Times Syndicate
 When I saw Dembow shoveling his snow off his walk I stopped and said, "Getting some exercise?"

"Sort of," he said. "But then again it gives me something to do. I don't know if you've heard it or not but I am now an unemployment statistic."

"I'm sorry to hear that," I said.

"Why are you edging away from me?" he wanted to know.

"Was I edging away from you?" I said in surprise.

"Don't worry about it. You're not the first person who's done it. The thing I discovered about being unemployed is that it is not considered so much an economic tragedy, but more a social disease. People are afraid you've got something that they could catch."

"I never thought about it. How do they behave?"

"Well, as you know, the first thing anyone in this country asks you is 'What do you do?' If you say you're unemployed, you can see the person becoming nervous and fidgety. He either tries to get away or starts telling you stories about other people he knows who were unemployed, like we all had the same bad back problem."

"What do you say now when people ask you what you do?"

"I tell them I do dishes, watch television, make beds, and now I can tell them I shovel snow."

"Don't you tell them you're looking for another job?"

"Rarely. Most people freeze up when you tell them that because they're afraid you'll ask them for one. I guess the toughest thing about being out of a job is talking about it with friends. All they keep doing is squeaking you on the shoulder and saying 'Everything's going to be okay.'"

"They haven't done me any good, but they sure have made my shoulder sore."

"You're lucky you can still shovel snow."

"There is a lot more to this unemployment bit than people know. First of all people tend to think you did something wrong or you wouldn't have been laid off. It's like being raped. The victim is the one who is under suspicion. You can see it in their eyes. 'Old Dembow, just couldn't cut the mustard.' Then there's a telegraph system in this country and the word gets around faster than you can get a letter across town. You start hearing from every place you had a charge account. Even if you don't owe them any money, they know you're not going to spend any with them any more, so they figure they have nothing to lose by being nasty."

"How is your wife taking all this?"

"She's been great and so have the kids. But her relatives seem to be enjoying my bad luck. Ever since I married Evie they said she made a mistake, and now they feel their predictions have come true."

"But being out of work doesn't make a person a bad husband or a bad wife."

"It does to the spouse's relatives. Most of Evie's lie in deathly fear the phone's going to ring and she's going to ask them to take us in."

"I must say, you're handling yourself very well for a person who is having a difficult time."

"I didn't intend to. When I got word I was canned I wanted to kill somebody, but I didn't know who to kill, so I'm just biding my time."

"Are you still planning on killing somebody?"

"Yep, the next economic expert who says, 'Things have to get worse before they get better.'"

"Well," I said, "it's good talking to you. I have to get back to the old grid."

"Then I realized my faux pas. 'I'm terribly sorry,' I said, 'Dembow.'"

"Forget it," he said. "At least you didn't squeeze my shoulder."

Budget seeks spending cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan will request some $31 billion in spending cuts in his fiscal 1983 budget.

Included are deep reductions in social welfare programs, and about $34 billion in new military spending. It was learned Thursday.

United Press International compiled the following information about the budget from administration and congressional sources.

The budget, which will be submitted to Congress Monday, will project a deficit of about $90 billion in fiscal 1983, which begins Oct. 1, and about $78 billion in 1984.

It will project a $96 billion deficit for this year although the Congressional Budget Office places it at $109.5 billion. The fiscal 1981 budget deficit, attributed to President Jimmy Carter, was $58 billion.

Since Reagan has rejected major tax increases or defense cuts to lower the deficit, he will seek to pare down the basic benefit or so-called entitlement programs, which are among the largest in the budget.

Unlike discretionary programs subject to the annual congressional appropriations process, entitlement programs involve almost automatic spending.

The largest entitlement program is Social Security, which Reagan has said he will not touch, but other major ones include Medicare, Medicaid, and government pensions. Reagan plans to save $63 billion over five years by reducing or delaying benefits.

Reductions in automatic annual cost-of-living adjustments in assorted federal entitlement programs could save the Treasury $15 billion to $20 billion in 1983.

Reagan will seek to cut about $2 billion this year from Medicaid, the health service for the poor; $1.2 billion from the main welfare program, Aid to Families with Dependent Children; $2.5 billion from Medicare, the health service for the elderly; $2.2 billion from government retirement programs; $2.3 billion to $2.8 billion in food stamp, school lunch and breakfast and women-infants-and-children feeding programs.

Reagan's budget will seek to:

- Wipe out the Economic Development Administration, a public works program.
- Convert the Education Department into a foundation, with some of its biggest cuts in student aid.

• Eliminate new construction of subsidized housing for the poor.

The president will propose cutting the Environmental Protection Agency's budget by 29 percent, with deep cuts in the hazardous waste program, pesticide regulation, research, and outside contracting funds.

He will seek to eliminate the remains of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act program and replace it with a much smaller private-sector program, using up about $1 billion of the $3.4 billion in job-training obligations.

Jet crash transcripts released

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The cockpit crew of an Air Florida jetliner repeatedly discussed the icing and the weather in their final minutes of conversation before the plane plunged into the Potomac River killing 78 people, tape transcripts showed Thursday.

However, the captain and co-pilot apparently did not believe the ice buildup on the wings would hamper the operation of their aircraft enough to affect takeoff.

Investigators are focusing on icing of the wings and an instrument that measures engine thrust as possible causes of the Jan. 13 crash of the Boeing 737 shortly after takeoff from National Airport.

"Larry, we're going down, Larry," were co-pilot Roger Alan Pettit's last words before the plane struck the 14th Street Bridge and crashed into the ice-clogged river.

"I know it," captain Larry Wheaton replied, as the sound of impact was heard according to transcripts released by the National Transportation Safety Board of the cockpit voice recorder.

The crew repeatedly referred to icing on the wings of other planes — and possibly their own — during the minutes leading up to takeoff.

"Boy, this is a, this is a losing battle here on trying to de-ice those things. It (gives) you a false feeling of security, that's all that does," Pettit said at one point as the jet was still waiting in line.

"That, ah, satisfied the Feds," Wheaton replied.

When the plane was on the runway and gathering speed for takeoff, Pettit — apparently looking at an instrument showing airspeed — said, "God, look at that thing."

Four seconds later, he added: "That don't seem right does it?" And three seconds beyond that, he said: "Ah, that's not right."

Wheaton replied: "Yes it is, there's eighty (knots)."

Pettit was unconvinced. "Now, I don't think that's right," he said, but then added, "Ah, maybe it is."

Wheaton called off 120 knots and then announced the jet had reached V-1 — the speed at which the plane is committed to taking off.

But as he called off V-2, lift-off speed, the tape recorded the sound of the plane's "stick shaker," a device that warns the plane is about to stall.

"Forward, forward," Pettit urged, "Come on, forward . . . Just barely climb."

"Stalling. We're falling," one of the pilots then apparently said. The transcripts indicate the words were not clear.

"Larry, we're going down, Larry," said Pettit.

"I know it," Wheaton replied.

The last sound on the cockpit voice recorder — the sound of impact — was recorded at 4:01:01 p.m.

No summer road repairs likely as snow breaks budgets

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The past six weeks of winter have left several Magic Valley highway districts virtually broke.

Floyd Dayley, the manager of the Twin Falls Highway District, one of the larger and better-financed districts in the valley, said costs have not been controlled, but the maintenance budget is running low.

"We may have to cut way back on maintenance and seal coating. Our maintenance budget is being eaten up pretty fast," he said.

But if that sounds bad, Dayley's problems are insignificant compared to some smaller districts.

"Our trouble is that conditions are beyond the limits of our own equipment," said Michael Telford, the Kimama Highway District director. "We have had to hire equipment to get through the five-, six- and even eight-foot drifts on our roads. We are only keeping about 20 of the 85 miles of road in our district open."

Kimama is a small district in Lincoln County that extends into part of Minidoka County.

Telford said there is a section of road north of Paul that looks like a long tunnel. Drifts five- to seven-foot high line both sides of the road for eight miles.

"We have been using one grader pushing another in order to break through the drifts, but we are about through for the year," he said. "There isn't much more we can do if it keeps blowing snow," he said.

"We are out of money now. We can't plan for any summer maintenance. We will just have to let the roads go."

Several farmers have contributed equipment and time to help clear roads, Telford said, and highway board members have worked 25 straight days operating snow-removal equipment. Normally, they would get some reimbursement, but with the district budget gone, they are donating their time and personal equipment.

Hillsdale Highway District, in the eastern end of Jerome County, is another district that's been hit hard by the snow.

Fred Tattersall, the board's chairman, said the five workers in the district had 80 hours of overtime last week alone. He also said snow removal will consume the year's budget, with nothing left for summer maintenance or projects.

The district has 238 miles of road, all of which were blocked by drifts after Sunday's wind storm, he said.

"Today, we worked in the Hunt area and northeast of Hazelton, through drifts five- and six-foot deep. We clear them out, and then they build back again in a few days. It's hard to make any progress," Tattersall said.

Jerome Highway District plows have been on the roads 21 of the last 26 days, H.E. Wilson, chairman of the Safety feature defect may be cause of blast

OK Tire back in operation

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — OK Auto Systems Centers was back in operation Thursday morning after an explosion of the tire firm Wednesday night rocked several city blocks in southwest Twin Falls.

A tank at the rear of the building for an air compressor exploded at 8:31 p.m.

Tom Tarter, the manager of the firm's tire store and recapping service at 559 Fourth Ave. W., said building damage will be the most costly result of the accident. Damage to equipment and materials was only slight, he said, as most of the impact was outside.

He said the blast left a hole 12 feet in diameter in the rear wall of the under-block building and damaged 15 feet of a side wall. A section of the roof was lifted about four to five inches off its support, Tarter said.

No damage estimate had been made Thursday.

The tire retreading department of the business is located across the street from the main store and office. Tarter said the tank was buried about four feet in the ground at the rear of the building.

"It has been there and in use for about nine years with no problem. It was just a freak thing," he said.

Tarter guessed that a number of safety features failed to work correctly, allowing the pumps to keep pumping air into the tank until it exploded.

He said it was fortunate that the incident occurred at night when there were no workers in the building. There were no injuries, or serious damage to adjoining property.

One brick damaged the roof of the Wonder Bread plant off Washington Street, more than a block away.

Several surrounding property owners reported cinder blocks in their yards. And a large metal portion of the tank came to rest on Fifth Avenue West after it was blown through a high voltage line near the tire road plant.

The power-line damage cut service to 764 Idaho Power customers in a large section of southwest Twin Falls.

Jerry Wilson, the Idaho Power electrical superintendent, said all customers were back in service Wednesday night, most of them within 15 minutes and others within an hour or two.

He said the cost to the power company to repair the damaged line probably would be about $1,000. He said the bill probably will be presented to OK's insurance company.

Twin Falls mulls weapons ban in bars

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A criminal defense lawyer will ask Twin Falls City Council to ban weapons from drinking establishments.

Twin Falls County public defender Mike Walz announced Thursday that he will ask City Council to pass an ordinance similar to a measure that has been under consideration by Jerome City Council.

Walz is proposing a ban on carrying weapons into an establishment that sells alcoholic beverages by the drink.

Twin Falls has no such ordinance, and the city's attorney, Susan Swenberg, says city officials may be receptive to Walz's proposal.

Walz said he will approach council on the issue within the next two weeks.

Such an ordinance, he says, could prevent serious crimes that started out as minor altercations until a gun entered the picture.

"Professionally, I would prefer to represent people charged with carrying weapons into bars, than represent them for murder," Walz said. "I think there will always be fights in bars. I think that's the inevitable, but I think there are steps that can prevent simple fights from turning into murders, knifings and shootings."

He said the ordinance is needed to protect innocent bystanders who may "find themselves injured or killed accidentally. I can't see any legitimate reason that such an ordinance should not exist. I can't understand why anyone would advocate carrying weapons into bars."

State law forbids the carrying of concealed weapons within city limits. But that law exempts such groups as county, state and federal officials, police and security guards.

Moreover, some courts have required prosecutors to prove that a defendant is not excluded under the exemptions, something that has made prosecution under that statute difficult, Swenberg said.

"However, as soon as the gun comes out of the pocket, those difficulties disappear, because no one is excused from showing a gun in a threatening manner," she said.

"I have to speak to the police as to whether it would add them to have such an ordinance, but off the top of my head, I can't see any objections. I think it might help. It might fill in the gaps that the statute leaves."

That trial was ordered when Judge Daniel Hurlbut moved the case to magistrate court in order to allow Susan Swenberg, the city's attorney, to represent Qualls.

Swenberg requested the action because she said lawyers cannot argue cases in small-claims court, and because Idaho law requires governments to provide legal representation for public employees who are sued over job-related incidents.

According to MacNeil, a stereo stolen from her business, Snelling

Businesswoman will drop suit against police chief, says costs are too great

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Businesswoman Barbara MacNeil says she plans to drop her lawsuit against Twin Falls police Chief Tim Qualls.

That doesn't mean MacNeil is dropping her allegation that Qualls returned her stolen stereo to the wrong victim. But MacNeil, who sought to have the case heard in small-claims court, said on Thursday that she can't afford the costs of a full trial, which was scheduled to begin Feb. 26 in Fifth District Magistrate Court.

That trial was ordered when Judge Daniel Hurlbut moved the case to magistrate court in order to allow Susan Swenberg, the city's attorney, to represent Qualls.

Swenberg requested the action because she said lawyers cannot argue cases in small-claims court, and because Idaho law requires governments to provide legal representation for public employees who are sued over job-related incidents.

According to MacNeil, a stereo stolen from her business, Snelling and Snelling Employment Services, on Jan. 28, 1981, was turned over to Blue Lakes, Showkase and Sound, where another stereo had been stolen.

"I would like to pursue this because I feel they're wrong and I'm right," she said. But she said the cost of hiring a lawyer and preparing for a trial was prohibitive.

"It's going to cost at least $1,000-plus," she said. "They (police and city officials) have practically admitted—that this is my stereo that they have returned to Blue Lakes Showkase, and I really am concerned—that a citizen cannot act in small-claims court and have his say."

MacNeil said she might pursue the case if supporters offer to help with the costs.

And, apparently, MacNeil is not the only one who would like to pursue the case. Contacted Thursday, Swenberg indicated she would have preferred taking the case to trial.

"It's unfortunate in a way that the case won't go to trial, because Chief Qualls will not have the opportunity to fully clear himself of any allegations of wrongdoing," she said.

Jerome council tabled vote on weapons ban

By LAURY MASHER
Times-News writer

JEROME — It is not yet illegal to carry deadly weapons into Jerome's bars.

Jerome City Council voted unanimously Tuesday night to table an ordinance that would have made it illegal to carry any "firearm, pistol, revolver, gun, dirk, bowie knife or dagger" into any business where alcohol is sold and consumed.

A Times-News article Thursday incorrectly reported that council had approved the ordinance.

Mayor Ralph Peters said council members tabled the motion because they were uncomfortable with the way the ordinance was worded.

One citizen told council that it should be careful about distinguishing between what is and isn't a deadly weapon.

Council members discussed amending the ordinance for clarity, so that any knife with a blade more than four inches long would be classified as a deadly weapon. But Jeanne Vandiver made a motion to table the ordinance because of the present wording.

Peters said other council members also indicated they were leery about getting involved with laws pertaining to gun control.

"We're taking a gamble by getting involved with gun control," the mayor said. "We voted to table this because some of us feel there may be some other way of handling the problem."

The ordinance was read for the third time Tuesday night.

If the ordinance is approved, Peters said law-abiding bar owners will be able to keep a licensed gun behind the bar, but they will need to obtain permits from police Chief Darryl Cameron.

Peters said the ordinance may be reconsidered at the next council meeting, which will take place March 9, but it will have to be brought up by a council member.

"If it isn't brought up at the next meeting, it will automatically die," he said.

Peters declined to offer an opinion on the issue, but instead, said he would go along with the wishes of council.

Brenda Larsen, Y campaign worker, enjoys 80' swimming at the newly opened pool

Members-only policy at YFCA pool needed for sound budget, director says

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The new members-only policy for recreational use of the Magic Valley YFCA's swimming pool is expected to help the Y's financing.

The indoor pool is the Y's biggest asset and its principal means of attracting memberships, executive director John Eschenburg said Thursday, the pool's first day of operation after standing idle for almost a year.

The pool was drained last April when the Y building closed because of debts. A $250,000 fund-raising campaign provided the funds to reopen the facility.

Under a previous arrangement that allowed non-members to swim for a small user's fee, "there was no incentive to be a member," Eschenburg said. And memberships that guarantee the Y a certain amount of money are essential if the organization is to function in the black, he said.

"We cannot do any kind of planning based on the idea that 20 people come in on Monday and each paid $1.50 to swim; therefore, they're going to give us money next week, too," Eschenburg said. "We have our bills, just like everyone else, and we have to pay them."

"If 500 families buy memberships at $129 each, we know where we stand. We see the memberships as being inherently responsible for paying the bills."

Membership fees must supply 50 to 60 percent of the Y's budget, he said.

Getting memberships, Eschenburg said, depends heavily on offering something in return, and for now, that something is the pool. He hopes the Y soon will have a well-equipped weight-training room as another incentive.

Eschenburg said that YFCAs traditionally have been membership organizations, and those with which he is familiar offer recreational swimming under a members-only and guest-pass plan. The holder of a guest pass pays a fee and must be accompanied by a Y member, he said, and only limited use of the passes is allowed.

Y's that permit non-members to swim for a user's fee include the Boise Family YMCA, which serves more than 800,000 persons a year. Among attractions at the Boise Y are a swimming pool, men's and women's health clubs, and a weight-training room.

The Magic Valley Y's new policy of allowing only members to use the pool for lap swimming and general recreation does not preclude non-members from swimming completely, Eschenburg said. Everyone is invited to register for aquatics programs, he said, and he hopes to develop school programs that will bring children to the pool, regardless of Y affiliation.

The new hospital addition requires officials to seek another site for helicopters to land

MVMH's front lawn likely

Hospital tests helicopter pad sites

TWIN FALLS — How do you determine if a hospital's front lawn can safely serve as a helicopter landing pad? By having a helicopter land there.

That's exactly what happened Thursday morning in front of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital. A helicopter from a rescue unit at Mountain Home Air Force Base made a trial run to the hospital to check out the potential hazards of a proposed landing site.

The helicopter's crew circled the hospital until it determined that the best landing pattern was from the west. The crew brought the craft to rest near the hospital's front circle as interested spectators, hospital officials and the county commissioners watched.

The practice landing had been requested by Ed Woods, the county zoning administrator, who had been attempting to determine where a helicopter pad best could be located.

Transportation by helicopter to, or from, MVMH is infrequent. However, air safety standards must be met. A pad had been located north of the hospital, but new construction now fills that area. Hospital officials then planned to install a helicopter pad in the parking lot northeast of the hospital, but lost parking spaces and potential traffic problems scratched that plan.

That left the front lawn. After Thursday's landing, Woods and the helicopter's chief officer decided concrete, lighted pad near the front circle was feasible if one pine tree on the west side of the lawn was cut down.

Man drops phone booth, breaks his leg, then sues phone company

BELLEVUE — A Bellevue man who failed to pick up a phone booth that had fallen down, and then dropped it on his leg, has filed suit against the phone company.

According to the complaint, filed in Fifth District Court in Halley last month, Ernie Carter broke his knee in the accident. He is asking for at least $100,000 in damages.

No hearing has been scheduled in the case.

The accident happened almost a year ago, on March 15. A pay phone off Main Street in Ketchum, located between Slavy's Red Robin and The Kitchen, was lying on the ground. Carter, believing it to be in working order, tried to pick it up to make a call.

The phone was the type that is mounted on a pole and has an egg-shaped shell around most of the phone. Because the design is top-heavy, it fell over on him. This would not have happened if it had been installed properly, Carter claims in his complaint.

Stratton Laggis, Carter's lawyer, said he will seek damages for the year before filing suit because he was trying to negotiate a settlement with Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph Co. "They weren't the least interested," Laggis said.

Kenneth Mann, the district manager of customer services for the phone company in Twin Falls, said the company's position is that "we have investigated the incident and feel we have no liability."

Mann said that the "alleged offending phone has been replaced."

Eschenburg said he has talked to five persons who previously swam on a users-fee basis, and none have objected to the new arrangement. He also said he does not foresee campaign contributors complaining that they supported the Y once and now must buy memberships to swim recreationally.

"If they donated because they really wanted to see the Y stay here, I can't believe they would disagree with this philosophy," he said. "I can't imagine them wanting us to continue something (users' fees) that didn't work. We need memberships to survive."

Installation payments and financial assistance, made available through private gifts, will be offered to persons experiencing financial hardship, he said.

Prices for annual memberships are $120 for families, $50 for one adult and $65 for youths. Eschenburg figures that at those prices, the average family can use the Y once a week for $2.50.

Current prices are below those in effect when the Y closed last year. He said the reduced rates are intended to attract members, and plans call for the fees to increase, probably this spring. The amount hasn't been announced.

New allegations add twist to Elkhorn foreclosure case

SUN VALLEY — The Elkhorn at Sun Valley foreclosure has taken a few more twists on its way to court and possible resolution.

In fact, it is still too early to guess when it may get to court for the next step, according to one lawyer involved in the case.

In December, Elkhorn's original developers — the Johns-Manville Corp. and the Dollar Mountain Co., a subsidiary of the Sun Valley Co. — brought a foreclosure suit against Elkhorn Village Inn owners Jack Franks and Richard Heckman.

The suit, claiming that Franks and Heckman owe $9.3 million to the developers from the purchase of the inn and other accumulated debts, was filed in Fifth District Court. A receiver was named by the court to manage the property.

Gary Babbit, a lawyer with the Boise law firm that's representing Johns-Manville, said Franks and Heckman have been given until Feb.

22 to file papers with the court in their defense. Only then will a hearing date be set, he said.

Meanwhile, several counts were added last month to the original foreclosure complaint. The new allegations claim Franks and Heckman improperly transferred funds from the hotel, and that they did not operate the property in a businesslike manner to protect its value.

It also was revealed that Johns-Manville has begun foreclosing on a 6 1/2-acre parcel near the development that it sold to Franks in 1979. Franks owes $5.6 million plus interest on the land. An auction of the parcel is scheduled for May 18, although Franks has until that time to pay the debt and halt the sale.

According to a legal notice filed to announce the foreclosure sale, Franks did not make a $65,000 mortgage payment to Johns-Manville by the Dec. 27, 1981, deadline for the annual payment.

The board of directors, said January cost the district $2,000 in overtime.

"There won't be any new construction in our district next spring," he said.

Wilson said the Jerome Canal Co. and other individuals and companies have aided the district by loaning heavy equipment on numerous occasions.

The Buhl Highway District is also caught in a crunch between battling snow and not breaking the budget, according to Carolyn Jones, the office secretary.

"The board has cut back to a flat 40-hour week for everyone because there is no money for patching and maintenance," Jones said.

Basically, she said, the district tries to keep school bus and mail routes open. Bus drivers report problem areas after each day's runs, and the plows are dispatched there first, she said.

Ruben Kraus, the foreman for the Minidoka County Highway District, said the snow has been "devastating."

"We started plowing at 2 p.m. Christmas Day, and since then, we have had one Sunday off — last Sunday. That was because it was too windy to work."

Kraus suffered a mild heart attack a week ago while working long hours on road equipment, but he's back on the job again. He said it takes all available manpower to keep the situation under control.

"Our district covers a wide expanse of open country. We still have some roads closed by 15-foot drifts," he said.

"When you spend all of your money on snow removal, you have nothing to show for it. The snow melts and the winter problems are gone, but so is the money."

Three injured in rear-end collision

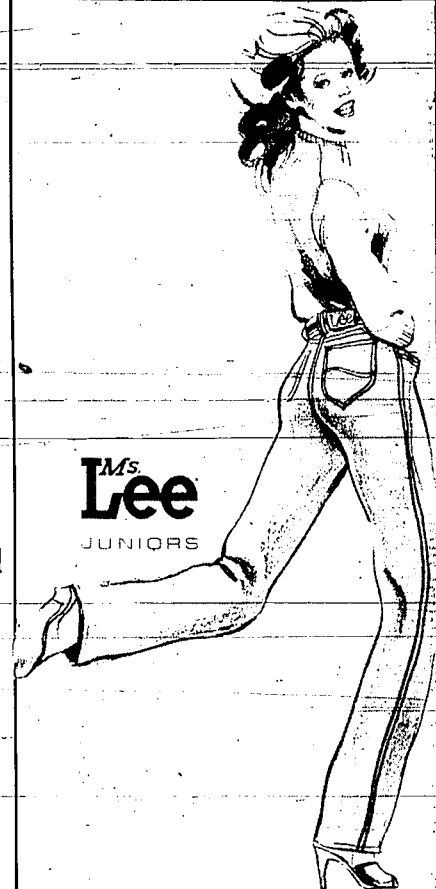

TWIN FALLS — Three persons were treated at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital on Wednesday evening following a two-car accident on U.S. 30, west of Twin Falls.

Sheriff's deputies said Darrell Dean Ruhter, 47, Route 1, Filer, had stopped in the center lane to make a left turn, when another eastbound vehicle struck the rear of the Ruhter vehicle. The second car was driven by Lori Lynn Jenkins Brady, 16, Route 2, Filer.

The accident occurred at 5 p.m. two miles west of Twin Falls.

Ruhter, his daughter, Lori, 14, and Brady were all taken to the hospital, where they were treated and released.

Brady was cited for inattentive driving.

Mexican trip winner named

TWIN FALLS — At least one lucky Magic Valley resident will be able to escape this month from Idaho's cold and wind and snow.

Vance Reed won an eight-day, seven-night trip for two to Playa Blanca, Mexico, on Thursday. Reed, of Route 4, Twin Falls, will leave on his trip Feb. 27.

He was among 50 finalists in the 17th annual travel promotion, sponsored by The Times-News and Four Ways Travel, who gathered at the Turf Club last night for the final drawing. Seventy-one area merchants participated in this year's contest. Reed's winning coupon was from The Bon department store, 201 Main Ave. E.

Corrections

FILER — In a story in Thursday's Times-News about the Filer City Council meeting, it was reported incorrectly that one of the homeowners opposing Acme Manufacturing's requested rezoning said two council members would be in this year's contest. Reed's winning coupon was from The Bon department store, 201 Main Ave. E.

Parent also said that she and other homeowners in the area were not told when they purchased their homes that she was planning to build only a "tin storage facility" on the site. She said some of the homeowners heard this information a couple of months ago.

TWIN FALLS — In a story Thursday about Robert Miller's lawsuit against radio station KTLC, it was reported incorrectly that Miller's former wife filed for divorce several months before he resigned from the Twin Falls station. It was Miller who filed for divorce.

Market stages rally for gain of 2 points

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks finished with mixed results in active trading Thursday as a late blue-chip rally trimmed earlier losses sparked by investor concerns about high interest rates.

Some heavy buying in oils and rebounds in selected high-technology issues such as IBM paced the late rally. Takerover situations also attracted considerable attention amid some grim earnings reports.

The Dow Jones industrial average, down 6.06 points at 3:30 p.m. EST following Wednesday's 7.52-point slide, rallied in the final half hour to gain 2 points to 847.03.

Analysts noted the DJIA had fallen about 26 points in the previous three sessions and was due to rebound. Monte Gordon, Dreyfus Co. vice president, said "this was mostly technical. I didn't see any news to drive it."

Other averages didn't fare as well as Dow. The New York Stock Exchange index fell 0.11 to 67.30 and the price of an average share decreased five cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index shed 0.06 to 116.42. Declines topped averages 845-577 among the 1,852 issues traded.

Big-board volume totaled 58,906,000 shares compared with 49,650,000 traded Wednesday.

Analysts said the market's action most of the day indicated investors were nervous about interest rates, which have risen this week in reaction to a surge in the money supply.

Some buying was sparked by speculation the past couple of days that the Federal Reserve would report a sharp decline in the money supply late Friday.

But similar speculation the previous two weeks proved to be surprisingly and painfully wrong.

However, some traders were encouraged the federal funds rates banks charge one another for overnight loans dropped to the 15 1/2 percent range after jumping to 17 percent Wednesday.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 61,243,760 shares compared with 56,679,250 traded Wednesday.

The American Stock Exchange index shed 1.50 to 285 and the price of a share fell seven cents. Declines topped advances 302-234 among the 744 issues traded. Composite volume totaled 4,167,900 shares compared with 4,377,600 Wednesday.

The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ index of OTC stocks lost 0.29 to 187.14.

On the trading floor, blue-chip issues came on strong toward the end of the session.

Texaco, the most active NYSE-listed issue, gained 3/4 to 30 1/4 in trading that included a block of 1 million shares at 30 1/4. Some analysts said that block trade turned the market around.

Mobil Corp., whose Montgomery Ward unit's January sales fell 10 percent, was second, unchanged at 22 following blocks of 384,700 shares at 23 and 125,000 shares at 21 1/4.

Exxon was third on the active list, off 1/4 to 29 1/4 after a block of 130,000 shares crossed at 29.

Corporate quarterly reports

Pitney Bowes Inc. Thursday reported net income for the fourth quarter rose slightly on 1.2 million more shares to $26.8 million or $1.40 a share compared with $26.7 million or $1.49 a share during the same period last year.

Revenues increased 10 percent to $297 million compared with $261.6 million in the year earlier period.

Dow Chemical Co. earnings plummeted to 35 cents a share in the final quarter of 1981 from $1.33 a year earlier in spite of a rise in sales to $2.965 billion from $2.772 billion.

For the year, Dow earned $3 a share, down from $4.42 in 1980 although sales grew to $11.873 billion from $10.628 billion.

McGraw-Hill Inc. Thursday reported earnings for the fourth quarter rose 15.4 percent to $26.6 million or $1.15 a share compared with $23.8 million or $1 a share for the same period last year.

For the year, earnings rose 13.6 percent to $96.1 million or $3.94 a share compared with $86.4 million or $3.48 in 1980 on sales of $1.1 billion compared with $1 billion in 1980.

McDermott, Inc., the marine construction and heavy engineering combine, earned $3.76 a share in the first nine months of fiscal 1982, up from $1.33 in 1980 as sales spurred to $3.544 billion from $2.727 billion.

Net income rose to $16.1 million from $17.29 million.

Columbia Pictures Industries, Inc. Thursday reported a 62 percent gain in profit in its fiscal second quarter ended Dec. 28.

Net income was $12.67 million or $1.52 a share on revenues of $206.43 million compared with $9.63 million or 94 cents a share a year ago on sales of $143.26 million.

First half profit was $22.95 million or $2.79 a share on revenues of $37.5 million compared with $26.36 million or $2.56 a share on substantially more shares a year ago and revenues of $329.43 million.

Greyhound Corp. said Thursday it earned a record $3.06 a share in 1981, up from $2.67 in 1980, in spite of a drop in revenues to $4.72 billion from $4.782 billion.

Net income rose to $138.19 million from $118.32 million.

Final quarter profit slipped, however, to $32.55 million or 75 cents a share on sales of $1,195 billion from $5.16 billion or 75 cents a share a year earlier on sales of $1.27 billion.

W.R. Grace & Co., the chemical specialty and natural resource company, earned $7.58 a share last year, up from $6.41 in 1980 on a rise in sales to $6.52 billion from $6.135 billion.

Net income rose to $361.33 million to $287.44 million.

Prentice-Hall, Inc., the book publisher and communications firm, had a 10 percent gain earnings last year and an 18 percent rise in the final quarter.

Net income for the year was $33.79 million or $4.41 a share on sales of $390.57 million compared with $30.8 million or $3.11 a share a year ago on sales of $333.41 million.

Witnesses say poor blacks shamed Williams

ATLANTA (UPI) — The state wound up its 19-day-long case against accused killer Wayne Williams Thursday by trying to convince the jury he was ashamed of black street children and driven to kill them.

In a day of hard-hitting testimony, the prosecution presented witnesses who recounted Williams' disgust with poor blacks and said he demonstrated how pressure to the neck would render a victim unconscious.

The most telling single witness of the state's case against the 23-year-old black photographer was a hulking white ambulance driver who said Williams once asked him "if I had ever considered how many blacks could be eliminated by killing one black child."

Williams is on trial for the murder of Nathaniel Cater and Jimmy Ray Payne, two of the 28 young blacks abducted and murdered in Atlanta.

Upon the state's conclusion of its entirely circumstantial case, defense counsel Al Binder moved for directed acquittal and Judge Clarence Cooper promptly denied the motion.

Bobby Toland, an ambulance, was the prosecution's star witness. He said he was with Williams frequently several years ago when the young black was doing "free-lance photography of accident scenes."

"He seemed to me like he was ashamed of lower class, lower middle class blacks," Toland said. "He seemed to think they were not doing enough for themselves; not putting their best foot forward. He was angry about it."

"On one occasion he asked me if I ever considered how many blacks could be eliminated by killing one black child," Toland said.

When prosecutor Jack Mallard took him over the testimony again, he used "niggers" instead of blacks — the same word another witness from the ambulance company said that Williams had used. Judge Cooper had upheld a defense objection that such words would be inflammatory to the jury of eight blacks and four whites, but it apparently slipped out of Toland despite prosecutor warnings.

"He had figures — I don't know if he read them somewhere or if he did them himself," Toland said.

Reagan issues call for more volunteerism

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, mixing a bit of politics with his religion message, carried his call for replacing government services with increased volunteerism to a National Prayer Breakfast Thursday.

Illustrating his point with the biblical tale of a traveler who halted his journey to aid a troubled stranger, Reagan noted the Good Samaritan

"didn't just hurry on by . . . and look up a case worker and say that a fellow back on road looks like he might be in need of help."

The president asked: "Isn't it time for us to get personally involved . . . to restore our spirit of neighbor caring for neighbor?"

"We'll never find every answer, solve every problem, heal every wound," he said, "but we can do a lot if we walk together down that one path that we know provides real hope."

About 3,000 people — representing all branches of the government, all the states, 120 nations and Congress — packed into the large auditorium at the Washington Hilton for the annual event.

Government's goal: Cut paperwork by 13%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration released its 1982 "paperwork budget" Thursday, an attempt to reduce by 13 percent the reporting and recordkeeping the federal government forces on individuals.

"As we strive to control taxing and spending, we must also cutback government regulations that are anticompetitive, excessively stringent, or just plain unnecessary," Reagan said in announcing the budget.

Vice President George Bush, who chairs Reagan's regulatory reform task force, said there are 100 government programs are currently being reviewed to see if their regulations can be modified. About 25 of them have so far undergone some final action, he said.

Bush said the cost of paperwork for small businesses alone is estimated at $12 billion annually.

All adjectives apply to CSI-Ricks

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "Critical, crucial, big, most important."
Those are the adjectives College of Southern Idaho fans must get used to from now to the end of the season. The Golden Eagles are into their regional schedule where a stubbed toe can mean post-season disaster. You can read that as not hosting the regional tournament. Only twice since 1969 has a non-host team gone into a foreign fieldhouse and come out with the regional championship. All of which merely precludes the announcement that CSI will be invading Ricks College Saturday night. But before that happens, the Eagles, with a 17-4 record, will entertain the Snow College Badgers tonight. It will be Lynwood Merchants family night with the entire family admitted for $5.

It would be difficult to call tonight's game a tuneup because CSI had to battle to pull out a 51-49 decision over the Badgers in Ephraim in early December. Lebro Bates provided all the fireworks in the closing minute to preserve that victory.

"It is a game we definitely want to win. It would give us some momentum going into Saturday night," said Coach Dave Campbell. "Snow might be the best team we've faced since the Christmas break and they have a history of always playing CSI tough. CSI is one of their two or three big games every year."
Campbell said the matter of having a tough game 24 hours ahead of the Ricks showdown is "something we'll have to do if we can get into post-season playoffs and we might as well start getting used to it now."

Matters have changed considerably since the first Ricks-CSI game was snowed out 10 days ago.
The big thing was NIC's four-point victory at Rexburg last Saturday. That road victory — the first time the Cardinals have ever won there — has put North Idaho in the driver's seat for the regional host designation.
CSI's mission is even clearer now. It has to win all six to get the tournament in Twin Falls. A tie with either NIC or Ricks would place the tournament on foreign courts.

Burley romps to make state

RUPERT — The whole tournament looked like it was set up for the underdog.
And in the final scene, the team with the worst record was playing on the home court with a chance to provide the biggest surprise of them all. But it didn't work out that way.

The Burley Bobcats, bolting off to a 16-2 first-half lead, swamped ice-cold Minico Spartans 43-28 Thursday night to clinch the Fourth District A-1 Girls Basketball Championship.

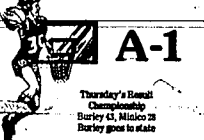

This Burley, which won't be eligible to defend the title next year because it will be in the A-2 classification, bows out by claiming the district's only berth in the state tournament.

The Bobcats will meet the second place team from the Boise area at 2:15 p.m. Thursday in Boise.
Minico, which provided the first surprise of the tournament by knocking off pre-meet favored Twin Falls by a point Saturday night, couldn't manage that trick against the Bobcats.

The Bobcats, first-round losers to Twin Falls, came back the hard way, beating Minico the final two nights for the championship.

Burley did it without leading rebounder Kristin McFadden, who sustained a knee injury in Tuesday night's game. It didn't respond sufficiently to allow her to play.

Minico went with the press that had polished off Twin Falls but Burley didn't have a lot of trouble with it and when the Spartan offense could muster only two points in the first 16 minutes, defense didn't matter.

Burley didn't do much in the first quarter, managing just a 4-2 lead as both teams showed the nervousness associated with the "big game." But the Bobcats showed in the second period to outscore Minico 12-2.
Minico managed to claw back to within single-digit deficits a couple of times in the second half. The Spartans scored 14 points in the final period, three more than they managed in the first three.

"We were cold all the way around," said disappointed Coach Alice Hill. "The defense was poor, our shooting was poor, the press didn't affect them. Nothing worked."

Big Sky hierarchy welcomes expansion

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

The NCAA's action to re-classify 39 schools from Division I-A to I-AA status in football will improve the I-AA — though it might crowd its playoff system — while the effect on the Big Sky Conference will be negligible.

Those were the sentiments of Ron Stephenson, Big Sky commissioner, and Babe Caccia, Idaho State University's athletic director, who also selection committee.

Both officials, interviewed by telephone, welcomed the I-AA's expansion from 50 to 89 teams.
"The direct effect on the league won't be too significant until the playoffs, a direct effect on I-AA-level football which I think is positive: it'll give us additional teams and more exposure media-wise in some areas of the country where we haven't had attention," Stephenson said.

"You get stronger with numbers and people. This makes it twice as competitive," Caccia affirmed.

Stephenson has no doubt that Big Sky teams can provide any former I-A school with rigorous competition. He said that scholarship limit often an indicator of talent, do not vary much between Big Sky and other schools.

"I don't think there's a huge, significant difference in scholarships," he said. "For example, the Mid-American Conference has a limitation of 75, 75 and 65 in the Big Sky limit are certainly comparable."

The I-AA postseason should become more exciting — "I think we'll have a hell of a playoff now," Caccia said enthusiastically — as soon as a new playoff format is devised to replace the eight-team setup.

This week another drive apparently got underway in which boosters are being asked to contribute cash to be presented to Monson anyway.
But the simple facts are, Monson's salary of about $40,000 at Idaho even with a $50,000 bonus doesn't match up with the $200,000 annual income the Arizona job generates. The base pay from the university isn't a lot more than he gets at Idaho but with TV and radio shows, camps plus other fringes, the salary is the smaller percentage of the income.
Monson has to be realistic concerning his family and future.

Raft River's Robin Nye goes up over Hagerman center Kristin McFadden for two points during Thursday's championship

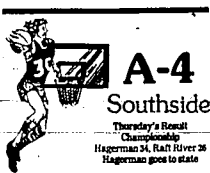

Wagner, McFadden lift Pirates to state

HAGERMAN — Audra Wagner provided the lead and Kristin McFadden protected it. Thursday night, giving Hagerman a 34-25 victory over Raft River and the Southside Girls A-4 District basketball championship.

Wagner, held scoreless in the first half, shoved Hagerman into the lead with eight points in the late third and early fourth quarters. Coming to the wire, McFadden hit five of six free throws to stymie any rally plans Raft River might have had.

Hagerman moves to the state playoffs, opening at College of Southern Idaho Thursday. It will play the second-place team from the northern Idaho district at 12:30 p.m.

The victory confirmed Hagerman's No. 1 seed coming into the tournament and seconded the Pirates championship in the Magic Valley Conference.
"It's been up and down all season but we had enough ups to put us here," said Coach Brad Royse.
Royse praised the effort of Raft

River, which often led in the first half. "They came to play. They covered up both our posts (Wagner and McFadden) and we had trouble getting the ball inside."

Raft River Coach Olene Warr said he couldn't be too disappointed with the runner-up spot as he was proud of his charges' efforts.
"We just played too many games. I was a little afraid of this when we came down to play tonight. The girls played so hard last night (a 41-35 win over Oakley)," he said. "It's a long ways back when you lose that first one."

Warr said Raft River concentrated on containing Hagerman's height inside and felt his girls did well enough there and on defense to win.

"But ball-handling, passing and dribbling, just handling the ball has been the weakest part of our game all year and tonight it showed. We worked and worked on it and it improved, but not enough, I guess."

Neither team scorched the nets and both worked the perimeters with a lot of passing. Both teams, of course, stayed in zone defenses.

Raft River hit the first basket of the game, an inside shot by Vedamae Boddy, but four McFadden points sent Hagerman back on top.

The Pirates took a 9-6 lead early in the second period before Raft River hit its only good offensive flurry of the game. Boddy hit a follow shot and then added a crumple off a steal: Robbin Nye sent the Trojans ahead 12-9 with an inside shot and the teams traded baskets as the first half ended.

Outside influences put pressure on Monson, Vandals

MOSCOW — It's tough enough trying to win the Big Sky Conference championship without the distractions attending a winning season.

Life is not a bowl of cherries for University of Idaho Coach Don Monson, although his team is ranked 15th in the nation and holds a one-game lead at the mid-point of the conference race.
But in the middle of this a few things have popped up. One is the "stress fracture" in the leg of stickout guard Brian Kellerman, who plays despite it. The major distractions are (a) the reverboration of that overtime loss at Notre Dame and (b) the increasing speculation that Monson will be moving elsewhere at season's end.

The San Francisco Chronicle added some fuel to the latter fire Wednesday when, quoting Arizona Athletic Director Dave Strack, a former Idaho coach, it listed Jim Brandenburg, Boyd Grant of Fresno State and Monson as the top three candidates for the Arizona coaching vacancy.

Fringsh of interest, Grant and Brandenburg were roommates at Colorado State one year and Brandenburg accepted the Wyoming job after Grant turned it down.
Monson said he was out of the office earlier in the week when he did indeed receive a phone call from Strack. "I haven't been able to get back in contact with him... I haven't been able to run him down and I guess I haven't tried very hard," Monson said. "No, I haven't applied there."

Monson's name continually is being linked with the University of Washington but he maintains he has never discussed anything in that field with the Huskies. The basis for that seems to be that Coach-Mary Hirschman will be $65 following next season.

"I guess everyone assumes he'll be retiring. I don't know if Washington has a mandatory retirement age. I've talked to Marv several times this year but I've never discussed that with him," Monson said. "But yes, that would be one job I'd have to be interested in."

Vandal boosters have tried a couple things to assure Monson's longevity in Moscow. Last year they attempted a plan whereby $50,000 would be donated by boosters and placed in savings escrow. If Monson stayed with the Vandals five years, the $50,000 and interest would be his. The NCAA squashed that "incentive plan."

This week another drive apparently got underway in which boosters are being asked to contribute cash to be presented to Monson anyway.

But the simple facts are, Monson's salary of about $40,000 at Idaho even with a $50,000 bonus doesn't match up with the $200,000 annual income the Arizona job generates. The base pay from the university isn't a lot more than he gets at Idaho but with TV and radio shows, camps plus other fringes, the salary is the smaller percentage of the income.
Monson has to be realistic concerning his family and future.

"I think you get to that age in any profession," he said about looking for another job. "I don't know what it is, whether it is the challenge or what. I'll be 49 years old and have coached 23 years and people don't want you too much longer for one thing. For another, you've got to have some years like we've had the last couple before they'll even consider you. I probably have as good a chance right now of being considered as I will in the next five or six years. And by then I'll be in the mid-50s."

"The Arizona thing is unique because it's come up in the middle of the year. Coaches don't resign in the middle of the year and they (the employers) don't go looking for coaches in mid-year. I'm too busy myself with the team to put in a lot of time chasing anything like this down. Right now I'm just trying to keep the job I've got."

"While some Idaho fans are writing letters of criticism over the Notre Dame loss.
In that game, Idaho, shooting 37 percent, jumped ahead 28-10 but then became very tentative offensively and the Irish caught up at the buzzer and won in overtime.

"I'm getting a little bit, not a lot... a few letters from a couple of coaches who want to help me," Monson said.
"My wife tells me I don't take criticism very well," he said. "In fact, she got mad at me this morning about it. Yeah, it kinda bothers me."

"I think it was kind of a team thing," Monson said. "The players stood around and I'm the guy who induced it.

When you've been gone that long (on the road for four days, playing three games) the players are more than happy to do it. But we've done those things before (gone into spreads) and always had penetration and tried to score. When we finally did try to get back into the flow, the crowd, the officials, everybody got caught up in it and when that happens the whole world's a giant you."

Concerning Kellerman's injury, Monson said, "We used to call it the old greenstick type thing. It won't show up on regular X-rays but he continued to have the pain so they used a bone scan with dye and it showed up."

"It isn't a thing that would keep him from playing or cause further injury so far as a permanent thing. It's painful like a bad ankle sprain. In some (players) the pain tolerance isn't too great. But evidently Kellerman's tolerance is good because he's playing without much reduction in effectiveness."

"We rested in a couple days this week but he's been back the last couple of days because we feel if you sit out too long you lose your timing."

With those things hanging over their heads, the Vandals begin the second half of the Big Sky Conference chase by hosting Northern Arizona tonight.

"The second round's always tougher," Monson promised. "The games get closer and some were plenty close (in the first half) as far as I'm concerned. It's the same old thing. There are road games you have to win and you have to win at home."

Fans shake Jerry Pate's hand after he aces No. 16 at Cypress Point in the 1st round of the Crosby

Golf

Lietzke, Fezler tied at Crosby

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Bruce Lietzke, a big winner on the tour a year ago, shot a six-under-par 66 at Pebble Beach Thursday and Forrest Fezler, who struggled throughout the 1981 season, matched it at Cypress Point to share the first-round lead in the $300,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am.

George Burns, who won the Crosby two years ago, had a 67 at Pebble, and Mark Lye shot 67 at tougher Spyglass Hill.

Chip Beck, also playing Spyglass Hill, shot a 69 to tie Scott Simpson, Jack Nicklaus and Ben Crenshaw, only three shots off the lead. Simpson played Pebble while Nicklaus and Crenshaw opened at Cypress Point, regarded the easiest of the three courses used in the Crosby.

As expected, Cypress yielded the lowest scores as play opened in perfect conditions with the temperature ranging in the 60s and a warm sun bathing the Monterey Peninsula. Traditionally the tournament, which includes as many amateurs as pros playing at least 54 holes, has been plagued by inclement weather.

Morris Hatalasky, Gene Littler, Jeff Mitchell, Hal Sutton, Dave Eichelberger, Rod Curl and Tommy Valentine had 70s while Johnny Miller, who won the San Diego Open last week, and Craig Stadler, who started the 1980 tour season by winning the Tucson Open, were in a larger group tied at 71. Miller played Cypress and Stadler Spyglass.

Lanny Wadkins, who the Phoenix Open two weeks ago, was in a group at even-par 72 while defending Crosby champion John Cook and Tom Kite, the leading money winner a year ago, were in a group at 73.

Jerry Pate aces the par-3 16th at Cypress but finished with a 74. It marked the first time anyone has aced the hole in the Crosby, and it was only the fourth time ever anyone has made a hole-in-one there. One of those who accomplished that feat was the late Bing Crosby.

U.S. Open Champion David Graham shot a 75 at Cypress while PGA champ Larry Nelson had a 78 on the same course. Both have been struggling since the 1982 season opened five weeks ago.

Lietzke hasn't played well this year, either. But Thursday he got hot coming home, making an eagle and four birdies in his final eight holes.

Fezler won only $13,064 in all of 1981 and he already has passed that figure this year with good finishes at the Tucson and San Diego opens and the Bob Hope Desert Classic. He also played well coming home, sinking four birdie putts in his final four holes.

"I'm pretty proud of my 31 coming home," said Lietzke, who won three tournaments and more than $300,000 last year. "It is by far my best round ever at Pebble and my best ever in the Crosby."

Fezler credited his improved play this year to a better attitude.

"Last year I worried too much about my scoring," Fezler said. "I found myself trying to break down the swing, shot for shot and day by day. As a result, I became tense and couldn't swing. This year I'm not thinking that much about the score."

King gets eagle-3, LPGA lead

MIAMI (UPI) — Betsy King, the first player off the tee Thursday, fired a four-under-par 68 to take a one-stroke lead over a pack of seven golfers in the first round of a $125,000 golf tournament.

The tournament is sponsored by Elizabeth Arden. King's round on the 6,211-yard South course at the Turnberry Isle Country Club featured an eagle-three on the 470-yard 11th hole.

A non-winner in more than four years on the LPGA tour, King, 28, holed out an 85-yard wedge shot at the 11th, the ball damaging the edge of the cup slightly when it hit the pin and dropped to the bottom.

Included in the logjam at 69 were defending champion Sally Little, who three-putted the 18th green to drop out of a tie for the lead; Jane Blalock, who had pulled into a tie before she bogeyed the 16th; and Hollie Stacy, winner of the tour-opener last weekend at Deerfield Beach.

Also at 69 were veteran Donna Caponi, 1981 Rookie of the Year Patty Sheehan and two unheralded youngsters, Deanie Wood and Becky Pearson.

JoAnne Carner, who lost to Stacy on the fifth sudden death playoff hole last week, was among seven players at 70. Another 11 shot 71 and 13 matched par 72.

Coincidentally, King also holed out a wedge shot during the final round of a tournament in Japan last November en route to victory.

Asked if the eagle could be an omen, she replied, "I don't know. That was in the last round. This is the first round."

"I'm just trying to get off to a decent start in Florida because I usually don't play the wind very well. The wind was about the same this morning as it was last week, maybe a little less."

A member of the same Furman University team that sent two-time money leader Beth Daniel to the LPGA tour, King is off to a good start this winter.

"She had only one over-par round last week and finished tied for sixth at one-over 289. Thursday, she had only one bogey, missing the green at the short seventh hole, and made birdie putts of 30, 12 and 18 feet.

"The wind, normal for south Florida this time of year, died considerably during the afternoon as 25 of the 39 scores at par or better were among the afternoon starters.

Still, no one could catch King, who has had several runner-up finishes on the tour. A native of Reading, Pa., King has earned less than $200,000 in her brief career.

Lutz had what she called "a solid round ... I only made one mistake, at the 18th."

 "And that assumes that we can win all six," Campbell pointed out. "With the talent that those three teams have, going undefeated would be a miracle."
 Ricks Coach Gary Gardner is painting as black a picture possible in viewing the game, most of it prompted by that North Idaho loss.
 "That put us right out of it," he said in a lowered voice. "We're just playing for fun now. I don't think we can beat CSI. We can't handle that (Rick Tunstall inside. And for quickness, (Gerald) Kennedy, (Charles) Williams and (Lobro) Bates, I'd need any three of my players for one of those quick guys."

 Gardner finds discouragement in the overall excellence of the region.
 "Where can you go and find three teams that have these kinds of records?" he asked. "19-1, 18-4, 20-3, holy cow. I think North Idaho is the best junior college team I've seen since some of the teams Boyd Grant had at CSI. And this year's CSI team ranks right along with them."

 But when it was pointed out CSI has won only three or four times in Rexburg, Gardner said "I hope so

Hagerman

 appeared Hagerman might blow it wide open.
 Wagner hit two field goals and Bonnie Bright added another as Hagerman took the lead 17-14. That moved to 21-14 when McFadden and Bright, the 21-year on a long shot, kept the Hagerman streak going.
 But just as suddenly, Hagerman's shooting eye left. Laurel Cottle and Nye added free throws in the final minute to reduce the third-quarter score to 21-17. Raft River went the entire third quarter without a field goal.
 Twice in the first three minutes of the final period, Raft River closed the gap to three point, the last time at 25-22. Then McFadden began hitting her free throws and with 2:09 left, Wagner's bucket moved Hagerman out of reach.

Williams to be in Old Timers game
 BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Red Sox will lure back Hall of Famer Ted Williams and Joe Cronin to Fenway Park for the team's first Old Timers Game May 1.
 The three-day game will be played before the regularly scheduled game between the Red Sox and the Texas Rangers. It also will celebrate the 50th year of ownership by the Yawkey family.
 Among those joining Williams and Cronin will be Frank Malzone, Johnny Pesky, Mike Andrews, Walt Dropo, Birdie Tebbetts, Russ Gibson, Jim Lonborg, Dick Radatz and Mel Parrill.
 In all, about 40 players are scheduled to participate.

Famed Nashua destroyed

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Nashua, a top thoroughbred whose racing rivals with Swaps still are avidly discussed nearly three decades after they occurred, now lies beneath the bluegrass at Kentucky's Spendthrift Farm.
 The 30-year-old famed sire was humanely destroyed late Wednesday when it was determined he was suffering from incurable complications resulting from old age.
 Arnold Kirtpatrick, vice president of Spendthrift, said, "It's like losing a member of the family. We've been agonizing over it for about two weeks. But there comes a time when sustaining that life becomes contrary to the laws of nature and what's best for them."
 Nashua, once the leading thoroughbred money winner, earned more than $1 million in three years of racing in the mid-1950s. He lost the 1955 Kentucky Derby to arch-rival Swaps, but went on to win both the Preakness and Belmont Stakes — second and third jewels of racing's triple crown.

NFLPA re-elects negotiators

KEFUHI BEACH, Molokai (UPI) — The National Football League Players Association re-elected its president and negotiating committee to two-year terms Thursday, showing intent to maintain a position on percentage pay during the upcoming negotiations with team owners.
 Re-elected to two-year terms with president Gene Upshaw of the Oakland Raiders were first vice president Jeff Van Nite of the Atlanta Falcons, second vice president Dan Jiggett of the Chicago Bears and executive committee members Tom Condon of Kansas City, Stan White of Detroit, and Elvin Bethea of Houston.
 Newly elected to the executive committee were Mark Murphy of the Washington Redskins and two alternates, John Bunting of Philadelphia and James Lotton of Green Bay.
 The NFL player representatives and alternates are meeting this week to work out bargaining strategies.

VMI skipper won't be back

LEXINGTON, Va. (UPI) — Virginia Military Institute's basketball coach said Thursday he is dissatisfied his contract won't be renewed and said VMI, which just broke the nation's longest losing streak, is making "a big mistake."
 Charlie Schmaus said, "I am of course very disappointed at the recent news; I feel that I have been cut short in being able to bring VMI basketball back. With the present recruiting class we were making great strides."
 The Keydets' victory Saturday over Southern Conference rival Appalachian State snapped the nation's longest losing streak — 23 games — but Schmaus was told Wednesday he will be jobless at the end of the season.

New pro football league would not compete against NFL

By WILL McDONOUGH
of Boston Globe

America will have a new professional football league within a month if plans go according to schedule. Those plans call for the official formation of the United States Football League (USFL).

The league, which will consist of 12 to 16 teams located primarily in the nation's top television markets, is not geared to compete with the National Football League.

Under its proposed format, the USFL season will run from March to July 10 each year, so as not to compete with the powerful NFL. The league is made for television, with its creators hoping to cash in on the tremendous broadcast ratings brought in by professional football. Presently, there are six groups or individuals who have said they would put up the $6 million necessary to purchase a USFL franchise. At a meeting of potential owners a month ago, it was agreed that each team would have to put up $1.5 million during the first season, with the balance followed 60 days later by a letter of credit for another $4.5 million.

Mulvey: Lacked reason to fight

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI)—Paul Mulvey, the center of a controversy involving Los Angeles Kings Coach Don Perry, said Thursday he had no reason to become involved in the bench-clearing brawl that led to Perry's suspension.

"It's not that I was sitting there and wouldn't engage in this bench-clearing brawl," Mulvey said, "it was the fact that I was sitting there and wouldn't start this bench-clearing brawl."

Mulvey, 24, was placed on NHL waivers Sunday. When league teams passed on his services he was reassigned to the Kings' farm team, the New Haven Nighthawks of the American Hockey League.

Perry was suspended Wednesday for 15 days and the Kings fined $5,000 after the coach checked Mulvey to leave the team bench during a game 10 days ago with the Vancouver Canucks. Perry is a former Nighthawks coach.

"I've always been a good team man and what I believe to be a decent, mature, a decent enforcer. I was instructed to leave the bench and fight. That's what I refused to do," Mulvey said at a news conference arranged by the Nighthawks.

"I did my job. I stood up. It was a gut feeling I had, nothing to do with anybody else, nothing to do with the league. I was ordered to leave the bench and fight. That's what I refused to do," he said.

"This was a gut feeling I had for myself, my wife-to-be (Kerri Reynolds, a Virginia resident). This was something I had to do. And that's it. I don't feel as a hockey player I can go out and fight and drop someone. That's what I'm standing up for."

He said he didn't consider himself a hero.

"I don't look at myself as anything more than a victim of circumstance. If I didn't have to do it, (it would happen) to somebody else sooner or later," he said.

He stressed it was not a publicity stunt.

The movie "Slap Shot," starring Paul Newman, was shown this week on network television and part of the plot centered on a player who refused to "goon it up."

Mulvey, of Sudbury, Ontario, said the order from Perry was similar to his jumping over the lectern at the news conference "and punching the next man right in the head. I don't believe I can do that."

"I've been involved in plenty of fights. I've tried to be a very tough up-and-down winger. That's the only way I can survive. That's naturally going to bring some fights on me."

"I've got over 600 minutes in penalties in my 12 years. That doesn't mean I sit there. I've also fought in 5-on-5 situations in bench-clearing brawls. But the fact is that there was nothing going on."

"If a player would have been getting severely hurt out there or whatever, I would have been the first off. Basically, this game really reflects on your personal life."

"If I had a close friend walking down the sidewalk with me and someone came up and hit him, I'd protect him. I'd do my best to take that man off his back. It might require that man be punched. But nothing was happening," Mulvey said.

Mulvey said Wednesday in an interview with the Journal Courier of New Haven when he arrived from the West Coast that it was Perry who broke the code of silence involving hockey fights.

"Perry went on a TV talk show and said he didn't want me on his team because I refused to go out and fight."

Most of the men involved have made their money in oil or television. Some of the founding members of the league have been meeting about once each month for the past year. They made their decision to definitely go ahead two weeks ago.

The league hopes to play its first game next year, in March of 1983, giving the teams a full year to secure stadiums, hire management personnel, draft players and sell tickets.

Some of the top pro coaches of the past who have been contacted — or who actually have attended some of the secret organizational meetings — are Chuck Fairbanks, former Patriots' head coach and current coach at Colorado; Red Miller, former coach of the Denver Broncos; John Ralston, another former head coach of the Broncos; Lou Saban, current president of the New York Yankees; George Allen and Hank Stram.

The men who own the rights to the team in Boston are former Patriot star Randy Vataha and his business partner in several ventures, George Matthews. The Boston team hopes to play its home games somewhere in the city, at Harvard Stadium, Fenway Park or Boston College.

Each new team will consist of 40 players, and they will not be top college players, NFL superstars or, at least after the first season, former NFL players.

If all goes according to schedule, the league will conduct its first draft next December. The teams will choose college players who would probably be picked no earlier than the fifth round by the NFL.

These players will be paid on a wage scale agreed to by their bargaining agent, which in all probability will be the present National Football League Players Assn. Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFLPA, has reportedly been working closely with the founder of the league, New Orleans attorney David Dixon. Dixon has pioneered the league, going around the country nonstop for more than a year, holding secret meetings with prospective owners and selling his pitch that a pro football league could be financially successful from March to July, though it has never been tried.

The Dixon theory is that pro football is so popular with the sporting public that it would still get great ratings on TV during what would normally be considered the sport's off-season. Dixon has had surveys taken in top markets around the country to support his claim.

The USFL, knowing it will live or die with television, hopes to have a combination television package which will include network broadcasts, cable, pay-TV and syndicated-TV. The league hopes to have a game available virtually every night for a viewing public it feels would rather watch pro football than hockey, basketball or the beginning of the baseball season.

The league is so dependent on television that the feeling among the original owners is that the first commissioner should have more of a TV background than a football background — the type of person who would sell it to television.

Jordan earns football honor

AUBURN, Ala. (UPI) — Ralph "Shug" Jordan, who moulded Auburn into a national football power while coaching at the Southeastern Conference school for 25 years, was named Thursday to the College Football Hall of Fame.

Jordan, who died in 1980, compiled a record of 176-83-7, ranking him 18th on the NCAA's list of all-time winning coaches.

He will be honored at ceremonies on King's Island, Ohio, this summer and in New York at the National Football Foundations induction dinner in December. The local induction will be made at the Auburn-Georgia football game Nov. 13.

Opera singer Joyce Guyer-Hiller returned from New York to perform with the Magic Valley Symphony Tuesday night at CSI

SUSAN POLLARD/Three News

Aspiring opera star brings her music home

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "I like to make people cry if I can," said opera singer Joyce Guyer-Hiller. Then she laughed.

Her luminous dark eyes brim with pleasure as she recalls one of her favorite roles, that of Lucia in "Lucia de Lammermoor" by Gaetano Donizetti. Lucia, a woman betrayed into betraying the man she loves, kills her husband on her wedding night and goes mad thinking she hears the voice of her lover calling her. Then she dies.

Soprano Hiller says four out of the five opera roles she'd like to play are ladies who die by the end of the drama. But, she adds cheerfully, "That's opera."

It's doubtful anyone attending her performance with the Magic Valley Symphony Tuesday will shed tears. More likely they will marvel at how a local talent has blossomed into a professional performer.

At rehearsal, when an orchestra member wondered if the musicians should hold back so as not to drown out Hiller's voice, director Larry Curtis says simply, "I don't think you can cover her voice. She can defend herself quite well."

Hiller's voice features more than volume; it resonates with quality, whether she's trilling through a light-hearted Italian aria or intoning a bitter-sweet, nostalgic musical poem.

A graduate of Twin Falls High School who debuted as an eighth grader on an O'Leary Junior High School stage, Hiller is now living in New York launching her professional opera singing career.

She returned to Twin Falls this week for a performance with the Magic Valley Symphony. On Tuesday night, the symphony will perform Beethoven's Sixth Symphony, followed by two pieces for voice and orchestra.

The music for "Knoxville: Summer of 1915," was written by Samuel Barber and the words are taken from James Agee's "Death in the Family." The combination of words and music could show the non-opera fan another facet of this kind of music.

Hiller will also sing two numbers from La Sonnambula by Vincenzo Bellini, the lively story of a sleepwalking woman who must explain to her lover why she was found in another man's apartment.

While Magic Valley residents seem to favor country

Director Larry Curtis rehearses a number from "La Sonnambula" with Hiller western over classical music, Hiller thinks people from this area would enjoy opera, if they gave it a chance.

"I think opera is really romantic," she says. "It appeals to the most sentimental emotions. Anyone who cries at 'Gone With the Wind' will cry at 'La Boheme.'"

Also, more and more operas are being performed in English to give American audiences the full flavor of the humor as well as pathos that goes into an opera production, she said.

As an aspiring opera singer at Twin Falls high school, "It didn't bother me to be different," Hiller said. Other students may have poked fun at her desire to be an opera singer, but she continued to study with Martha Mead, sing solo in many area churches and perform for local civic groups.

She later received a degree in music performance at Arizona State University, where she met her husband Jon, now an electrical engineer. He had taken a music appreciation class and worked as a spear-carrier in a local opera production. Joyce sang in the chorus.

While in Arizona, she made her professional debut singing the role of Zerlina in Mozart's "Don Giovanni."

It was her husband who encouraged her move to New York in 1974, the opera capital of the country. And it's her husband who's been able to support both of them — starting an opera career is not a lucrative endeavor.

Moving to New York was difficult — not only because of the different lifestyle there. Hiller found she lost much of the privacy of wide open space in the crush of big-city congestion. And, as a friend of hers noted, living in New York means "about 10 percent of your consciousness is devoted to survival."

She also found that while there are many roles for sopranos, there are more than enough sopranos to fill them — good sopranos, too. Joyce had to learn how to maintain her self-confidence when she was no longer the proverbial big fish in the small pond.

Despite the competition, she was a 1981 Metropolitan Opera National Auditions Finalist and a 1981 first-place winner in the Nina Kaufman Rudd Fund competition. She served two apprenticeships with Central City Opera in Colorado, performing various roles as the widow in Argento's "The Moor," Madeline in Mollicone's "The Face on the Barron Floor" and Mrs. Gobhain in Minott's "The Medium."

She laughs about the usual role of "Bitter Water" which she created in Garland Anderson's "Soyazhe," an opera based on a Navajo legend. "The author burned it afterwards," she said. Navajo chants, on which the music was based, proved too monotonous for most audiences.

She is now gearing up to play Mme. Silberklang in the "Empressario," by Mozart.

Hiller, 29, said she is considered a "fledgling" singer since her vocal cords do not fully mature until 38 to 43 years old. She sees her acting and voice coaches once a week. Every two weeks or more, she sees her voice teacher.

Unlike European operas, American operas are performed without many rehearsals, Hiller said. Sometimes less than two weeks is allowed to prepare for a show. She calls it "Instant Opera: Add water and stir."

Hiller is continuing her search for an agent, a sometimes discouraging task. Since sopranos will often compete against each other for roles, agents cannot take on too many clients. The old saying about a broken heart for every light on Broadway is true, she adds.

She knows she's in a difficult profession "trusting these lily bits, two folds of flesh to work right every time."

But listening to her voice at Tuesday's rehearsal, soaring effortlessly, one easily forgets it all comes from two small folds of flesh.

'Absence of Malice' takes on media's 'good guy' image

VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD — Motion pictures traditionally have treated newspapermen and newspapers with kid gloves, perhaps out of fear of retribution.

In serious dramas, editors and reporters almost invariably are depicted as heroic defenders of the downtrodden or fearless champions of the exploited who unmask corrupt politicians or business malfactors.

Movies of the '30s and '40s most often presented newsmen in packs, press cards in their hats, shouting queer a time Pat O'Brien epitomized the wise-cracking, gum-chewing reporter out to get the truth. Reporters were often called "Scoop." Editors would bellow, "Tear out page one! We're going to turn this town upside down!"

Film producers saw newspapermen as a swaggering, hard-drinking fraternity of rascals who, while not exactly social assets to the community, were steeped in truth and journalistic integrity.

Bon Hecht's and Charles MacArthur's "The Front Page" all but immortalized the ink-stained wretches of the press as warm, compassionate human beings who worked for the love of it, not for fame and fortune.

In the '50s and '60s, especially on television, newsmen frequently became crime-solvers, the next best thing to private investigators, bringing felons to justice with front-page bylines.

To this day, the press is treated gingerly by the entertainment media. TV's "Lou Grant," for instance, romanticizes a big city newsmen.

"All The President's Men" made heroes of investigative reporters. Robert Redford and Dustin Hoffman played Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein, the men who helped destroy the Nixon administration with their Watergate revelations.

Now comes "Absence of Malice" starring Sally Field as a careless, ambitious investigative reporter looking for personal aggrandizement rather than an honest story. And, worse, a stupid editor looking for a circulation builder.

Their victim is the innocent son of a mobster played by Paul Newman.

For the first time in recent memory, a motion picture tackles the seamy side of newspaper editorial rooms and there has been some outcry from the press.

"But not as much as we expected," said director Sydney Pollack.

"If we'd made this picture about politicians, cops or big business, no one would have been offended. But until recently, everyone has been convinced there is no such thing as bad reporters."

"The press is very thin-skinned. However, we didn't get as much negative feedback as we expected. There were four editorials which attacked our movie, including one in the New York Times."

Pollack, a big, personable man, withdrew a folder from a file cabinet in his Burbank Studios office. It contained part of his research for his film.

"The press does make mistakes, sometimes purposely. Look at the Janet Cook case, the phony Pulitzer Prize story about a kid drug addict, the Washington Post Blair House bugging and the Michael Daly IRA killings story in the New York Daily News that proved untrue."

"There are others. A lot of the explanation lies in the post-Watergate investigative reporting that is going on with editors, reporters and papers looking to expose, not just to report or explain."

"I don't know if the press is losing its credibility, but personally I think it is doing a better job now than ever before."

"Yet the public seems to be more concerned about the ethics of the press and the media in general. People are asking more questions about newspaper credibility than at any time in the past five years."

Pollack pored through mountains of research at the Columbia University School of Journalism Library. He read many books on the press and hung out at the Miami Herald where much of "Absence of Malice" was filmed.

"I had a great deal of confidence in our screenplay which was written by Kurt Luedtke, who is a former managing editor and executive editor of the Detroit Free Press."

"Newspapers are not above reproach. Nothing is. My film doesn't tell the whole truth about the press — only one aspect of a particular group of people in certain circumstances."

"The press is like any other institution. It makes mistakes. It employs bad guys and good guys. There is enough evidence that the process can go wrong with severe enough results to make an interesting movie."

Storyline for 'Rollover' not meltdown material

By GENE SISKEL
Chicago Tribune

Movies

It's very clear that what "The China Syndrome" was to nuclear energy, "Rollover" would like to be to the issue of the Arab oil states holding massive quantities of dollars.

Both films were produced by Jane Fonda's production company, IPC Films, and both films are supposed to be warnings in the guise of entertainment. In other words, you are supposed to walk out of the theater shaking your head and thinking, "We've got to do something about those damn nuclear power plants (or those damn petrodollar accounts)."

Well, in the case of "The China Syndrome," that pretty much was my reaction. But in the case of "Rollover," I could only think, "What a deadly dull, badly acted and occasionally preposterous movie."

What is the difference between the two films? To start with, it's the visual difference between a rumbling nuclear reactor and a declining bank balance. One is cinematically exciting; the other is not.

In "Rollover," Jane Fonda plays a former actress who has retired from the film business to help her husband in his effort to run a multinational petrochemical corporation. Apparently, it's sort of a Joan Crawford-Pepsi Cola situation.

As the films begins, however, Fonda's husband is murdered by an unknown person. Significantly, his blood drips on a secret bank account number, and the whole movie turns out to be a mystery about that bank account. Who controls it and why?

In an effort to spice the action, the film offers Fonda a love interest in the form of a financial troubleshooter played by Kris Kristofferson. He is hired by a high-powered private investor (Hume Cronyn) to arrange a loan for Fonda's husband's company.

The board of directors of the company fully expects Fonda to play only a decorative role in the company, and most likely just take her husband's money and run — but in conjunction with Kristofferson, Fonda decides to make a run at becoming chairman of the board and expanding two businesses by building a huge petrochemical plant. Whoopee!

I mean, gee, wouldn't it be exciting if the deal goes through? And it is precisely the lack of conventional excitement in this film that sinks it. Obviously, director Alan J. Pakula was drawn to this material because he saw in the private world of international banking the same kind of naked abuse of power that he filmed in "All the President's Men." But in that film we knew the reality of the power. With "Rollover" we are never convinced of the threat.

Pakula's visual style is quite old-fashioned and melodramatic — with sinister closeups — and it all comes across as, much ado about nothing. For example, the price of gold shown in some of the video displays in the film is $520 an ounce. Now gold is now down to $100 less. The dollar is in better shape than when this film was made. Where is the threat of the dollar collapsing? The Arabs are buying into American — and its companies — and not selling it out.

The title of the film refers to the survival of the fittest motif in "The China Syndrome." The danger presented is that Arabs would trigger a run on the dollar by pulling "rollover," or reinvest the funds they have in this country.

What about the performances? Fonda seems uncharacteristically stilted. I don't enjoy seeing her play an "older woman." Kristofferson is even less appealing. His onscreen energy has been muzzled, apparently in an effort to represent the "cool" of the banking elite.

Thus we have two deadbeats in a wobbler, with the ultimate danger does not seem real. So much for "Rollover."

'Star Child' to appear here

TWIN FALLS — "Star Child," a popular Mormon musical, will be presented in Twin Falls Feb. 13 and 15 at the Lyndon B. Johnson Center of Southern Idaho.

"Star Child" is an upbeat audio-visual spectacle combining elements of drama, comedy, concert and dance. It was written by Gayle Beeson and Doug Stewart. Stewart also wrote "Saturday's Warrior," another popular Mormon musical.

Since it's first appearance in Twin Falls last June, "Star Child" has been seen by more than 120,000 visitors in major cities around the West.

Tickets for the production can be purchased in advance at the Pavilion LDS Bookstore in the Lyndon B. Johnson Center and in the Burley Mall. Curtail will be at 8 p.m.

Tickets are $5, $6 and $7. Mail orders accepted. Send check payable to Ensign Productions for full amount (specify date desired) with self-address, stamped envelope to Ensign Productions, 2129 Alla Vista Drive, Twin Falls 83301.

Some readers reacting to reviews on 'Malice'

By DESMOND RYAN
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

For the most part, "Absence of Malice" is a film that is receiving no quarter among journalists who have taken issue with its treatment of the profession's ethics.

I shared the opinion of the movie that found it unreal and distorted, and several readers have dissented. Typical of them is Charles Debra of Philadelphia, who writes, "Do be so sensitive when you are looked at in a negative light. Sometimes you need to be looked at this way. Funny, I don't recall you stating that all journalists weren't as wonderful as Woodward and Bernstein when you reviewed 'All the President's Men.' You can take accolades, but you can't stomach the criticism, right?"

The odd thing about Sydney Pollack's film is that your view of it is likely to be governed by how much you know about the way newspapers work. Anyone sampling "Absence of Malice" with the memory of recent deplorable lapses at the Washington Post — the return of an unearned Pulitzer and the later recanted story about Carter bugging the Reagans — might think it a pretty fair reflection of the distortion in "Absence of Malice."

ice" is a matter of sheer quantity. It is quite conceivable that the reporter played by Sally Field could make at least some of the mistakes and gross errors of judgment and ethics. Any one of them would make an interesting film. It is not conceivable that a single reporter could make all these mistakes and do so in the presence of her colleagues without something being done about it. I thought the film entertaining and well acted, and some of the journalistic criticism of it has bordered on the hysterically righteous. However, it remains a movie with an absence of balance.

What's what

In that matter of physical shape among commercial aircraft crew members, it's almost never the pilot who's in the best condition but rather the flight attendant.

Most usually, when a woman's efficiency drops at work, what's bothering her is something outside the office. But when a man's efficiency drops, what's causing it is something right on the job. Or so contend the experts. They claim further that a breakfast quarrel at home is far more likely to disrupt a woman's performance all day long than a man's.

If you take off nine scheduled work days a year for whatever reason, you're typical.

POPULATION CENTER

- Q. Where's the U.S. population center now?
- A. Five miles southwest of Mascoutah, Ill.

Q. Do all whales sing?
A. No, sir, only the humpback. Only the male. Only in the mating season. Only at night.

Q. Is it against the law for a minor to run away from home?
A. In most states, yes.

ANIMAL WORLD

Those creatures that people like most, in descending order, are dogs, horses, cats, robins, butterflies and trout. Those disliked most are cockroaches, mosquitoes, rats, wasps, rattlesnakes and bats. The Interior Department's Fish and Wildlife Service found that out by talking to 4,107 grownups. Half of those interviewed, incidentally, thought veal came from sheep. And more than half thought that iguanas were insects.

Extremely cold golf balls play like little round rocks, according to the pro golfers. And the leather grips on clubs get hard, too, in freezing weather. So serious golfers never leave their golf bags out in the car trunks overnight.

Four out of five tropical fish sold in this country come out of Florida fish farms.

Q. Did you say polonium was the only chemical element named in honor of a nation? Specifically, Poland, I guess. Francium was named after Anatole France, right? And Americium after American Motors, no doubt. Germanium after a bacillus, Columbium after an exhibition. Scandium after a scandal. And...

A. All right, all right. Nobody's perfect.

Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you should avoid getting into arguments, otherwise you could lose out where it counts the most. Make plans to build a more secure future for yourself.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study creative ideas you have and build a sound foundation for the future. Engage in favorite hobby with congenials.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan to have more of the good things in life by using your talents to best advantage. Sideswap a troublemaker.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study your surroundings and then quietly go about making needed changes. A new venture can be most successful.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Come to a better understanding with associates. An invitation could lead to an interesting experience.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Engage in the more practical aspects of your living instead of spending so much time on fun and frolic. Be sensible.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A fine day to engage in some new activity that will be inspiring to you. Stop worrying about matters unrelated to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Listen carefully to what an expert has to suggest and you find the right solution to a pending problem. Be more cheerful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try to understand what associates and good friends expect of you and endeavor to please them. Take it easy tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make sure you carry through with civic duties you have assumed and get the right results. Avoid arguments.

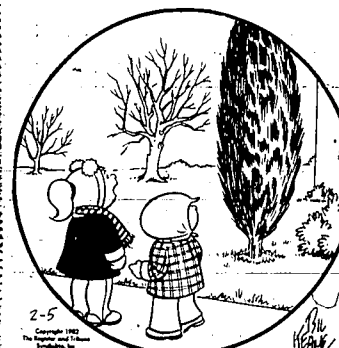

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You are highly inspired and can accomplish a great deal today. Be alert to opportunities at hand. Be logical.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handle obligations before engaging in amusements. Become more skilled in your line of endeavor. Be courteous to others.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Come to an agreement with associates on a joint project you have in mind. Avoid temptation to argue with co-worker.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have a practical nature but will also appreciate the importance of idealism. Make sure you provide the kind of education that will encourage your progeny to tackle large projects and bring to a workable level.

Dance Ensemble performs tonight

HAILEY — The Idaho Dance Ensemble, a Ketchum-based dance troupe, will perform tonight and Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Wood River High School Auditorium.

Two new pieces and two revisions of pieces presented at a March 1981 performance will be featured at this concert.

The trio "Migration," has been revised and will open the concert. A new piece entitled "Brevities" will follow. It is a series of six short movements and theatre piece using three actors and athletes as well as the company's three dancers.

"On A Night Without Song," danced in silence, comprises the concert's third section. The final piece will be a premiere of a new trio-to-music by Keith Jarrett.

The concert features choreography by Carl Rowe, artistic director, and music by composers Jarrett, Mike Oldfield and Paul McCandles. The dancers are Rowe, Laura Furbee and Hilarie Neely.

This concert is the Idaho Dance Ensemble's third set of performances in the Wood River Valley since its founding in 1980 by Neely and Rowe, former members of the Portland Dance Theatre in Portland, Ore.

The concert is being presented by the Ballet School Foundation Inc. and made possible by contributions from individuals and businesses in the Wood River Valley.

Tickets are $4 for adults; $3 for seniors and under 14; and $5 at the door. They are available at Chapter One Bookstore.

Valhalla Dancers' show set for CSI auditorium Feb. 12

TWIN FALLS — The Valhalla Dancers from Ricks College will present a dance spectacular at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 12 at the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium.

The Ricks College touring show is from Rexburg in Eastern Idaho and the Twin Falls appearance is the beginning of a tour which will take the group into California and Nevada.

The 30 dancers are trained in many areas of dance performance, including folk, modern and international ballroom style. The show combines fancy footwork with lavish costumes and comedy.

During a recent five-week European tour which took them to Germany, Holland, France, Spain and Austria, the Valhalla Dancers gained an international reputation as the only dance group to represent the United States at these festivals, according to director Chuck West.

They have been equally well-received as they have traveled throughout the United States. West said, Claire Blakeley is choreographer and dance instructor with Doug Smith instructor for the ballroom dance team.

The performance is termed "a family show featuring a variety of comedy, folk and ballroom."

Tickets are available at Bells Family Books, Crowleys Book Nook and the LDS Pavilion.

Dear Abby

Reader tells poem's real author

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN of Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Recently I had the sad task of correctly identifying a beautiful passage for inclusion in the eulogy for a young neighbor who died suddenly.

I was, therefore, pleased but left unsatisfied to see a pale facsimile of it submitted by a Michigan reader and run in your column.

Your applied title of "Perspective" was good, but not as apt as the real one, "A Parable of Immortality." Further, the author's name is not Henry Scott Holland, but Henry Van Dyke, a famous American preacher, poet and philosopher...

"I am standing upon the seashore. A ship at my side spreads her white sails to the morning breeze and starts for the blue ocean. She is an object of beauty and strength and I stand and watch until at last she hangs like a speck of white cloud just where the sea and sky come down to mingle with each other. Then someone at my side says, 'There she goes!' 'Gone where? Gone from my sight...' that is all. She is just as large in mast and hull and spar as she was when she left my side and just as able to bear her load of living freight to the place of destination. Her diminished size is in me, not in her. And just at the moment when someone at my side says, 'There she goes!' there are other eyes watching her coming and other voices ready to take up the glad shout, 'There she comes!'"

DEAR ABBY: Should a mother tell her daughter she is loud, and if so, how? My daughter is truly a lovely person, and I am so proud of her for many reasons, but when she is in a group of people she tends to get loud and strident; she talks constantly and laughs raucously.

These are not easy things to say to one's daughter. However, she's 35 years old, and I'm sure these are qualities that cause men to shy away from her. She is a beautiful girl, kind, happy and intelligent. Can you suggest a way to handle this?

DEAR MOM: Be as gentle and diplomatic as possible. First let your daughter know that you think she is truly lovely, beautiful, kind and intelligent. Then suggest that at times her enthusiasm causes her to come on a little too strong, so if she could try to tone down a few decibels, she would be even more attractive.

DEAR ABBY: When signing cards, letters, invitations, etc., whose name appears first, my husband's or mine? We have been arguing about this for some time. Also, where can I buy a breast pump?

DEAR RUTHIE: If you write the card, letter, invitation, etc., your name appears first. If your husband does the writing, his name appears first. You can purchase a breast pump at your local drugstore.

'Open All Night' a TV comedy for '80s?

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI/Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD — "Open All Night" is television's newest sitcom, a half-hour series that its producers believe is the first TV comedy for the '80s.

"Open All Night" involves the shenanigans in a small, family-operated convenience store not unlike the 7-11 chain which is open 24 hours a day, mostly catering to transient trade.

Certainly, such stores are flourishing in this decade and enough they are the hub of hinky neighborhood activity.

Writers-producers Tom Patchett and Jay Tarses have peopled their fictional 364 Store — for the 364 days of the year (excepting Christmas) it is open — with a teasty family that makes the Archie Bunker clan appear saintly by comparison.

Patchett and Tarses know their way around quality comedy. They wrote "The Bob Newhart Show" for four years and put in a stint with Carol Burnett.

They are aware that a genuinely good comedy series has its roots deeply embedded in outstanding writing — witness "M-A-S-H," "Barney Miller" and "Taxi," as opposed to, say, "Three's Company" and "Laverne & Shirley."

With writing uppermost in mind, the producers cast "Open All Night" with unknown names and unfamiliar faces consisting of George Dzundza, Susan Tyrrel, Sam Whipple and ex-professional footballer Bubba Smith.

The result was a hilarious pilot show which won ringing praise from critics but tepid Nielsen ratings.

Dzundza plays Gordon Feester, the fat, harassed proprietor of the store with Tyrrel as his slightly daffy wife. Whipple plays Feester's nerd stepson for whom he has even less use than Archie had for the Meathead.

Smith is the hulking night manager, a gentle black giant with surprising comic skills picked up while doing beer commercials with a gang of other retired professional athletes.

As important to the series as its excellent regular cast is the parade of zanies, flakes, wackos and weirdos, including a pair of recurring cops played by Bever-Leigh Banfield and Tarses, who invade the premises.

Producer Patchett is a tall, youngish man with a mustache and shock of brown hair. His wit is tinged with irony and sarcasm which, clearly, he has invested in the characters of "Open All Night."

He is also confident that the new series is a cut above most of what passes for comedy on the tube today.

"Our jokes are more intelligent and outrageous than some of the highly rated sitcoms on the air right now," he said. "We're geared to the more hip audiences. We're more 1980s than 'Three's Company' or 'Laverne & Shirley.'"

"We are more about what's going on and what's being said in Southern California today. For instance, Whipple plays the kind of lethargic L.A. kid you see added all out too much sunshine and junk food.

"We're going for our own style. Jay and I love to put words together to be as unpredictable as possible. We're willing to take a chance that the audience won't get every joke."

"We throw in one joke after another without losing track of our story line. We've made the series less verbal than Newhart's and we've added more physical stuff but not the pratfalls you see on the other shows I've mentioned."

"Our format leaves the door open for the frunks who come into the store — bagwomen, drunks, crooks, the confused, desperate, beggars, beautiful girls, lunatics, the whole spectrum of people who walk the streets of Los Angeles.

"We've completed a dozen episodes and some of the transients are so funny we'd like to bring them back from time to time."

"It's the same unexpected appearance of weird characters that gives 'Barney Miller' an extra dimension with the nuts that wander into the precinct station or who are arrested for wildly funny crimes."

Along with hay, we also have the potential for disaster, as in the case with 'M-A-S-H' where a bomb is liable to hit the operating room. We have the continuing possibility of the store being robbed at any time.

"I think it's wonderful what we're even on the air because 'Open All Night' seems to go against the mood of the country right now. It certainly isn't going to be endorsed by the Moral Majority."

There's a sharp edge to the dialogue and not a noticeable degree of Christian fellowship squandered among the characters in the series. No apologies are made for the paucity of nice guys in and around the store.

For those who enjoy satirical lines and hostile but humorous exchanges of dialogue, "Open All Night" is a bonanza of razor-sharp acrimony.

Entrepreneur Feester finds himself in the eye of a hurricane beset by the lunatic kid, a feisty wife who has been married four times and an ineffectual employee.

"There is a bite to all the relationships in our show, which is not all that uncommon in real life," Patchett said.

"ABC wanted us to tone it down a bit but finally agreed to go along with us. As far as we're concerned, this is the first real comedy show of the '80s."

'Knots Landing' getting soapy — for real

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI/Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD — Life imitates art and vice versa on "Knots Landing," the weekly prime time soap opera, which finds two of its leading ladies in private life soapists themselves.

Michele Leo plays the newly widowed Karen Fairgate on the series, rearing her family in a one-parent household. Michele in real life is the newly separated from actor James Farentino and is caring for her son, David, alone.

Co-star Constance McCashin, who plays the newly pregnant Laura Avery, is every bit as much with child as her character on the show.

But actresses believe their off-screen situations, when applied to their performances, add considerable authority to their roles.

It should be noted that Michele and Constance initiated their off-screen romances before their fictional characters caught up with them.

Michele's real life son, David, is 12. One of her three children on the CBS soap is a 12-year-old boy.

"I can see similarities between David and the youngster who plays my son in the show,"

Michele said. "Being a single parent myself gives me a better understanding of Karen, how she behaves and reacts in given situations."

"Sometimes I ask the writers to change a scene involving an exchange between Karen and the youngster because my own experiences at home give me a better sense of the mother-son relationship in a single-parent family."

"Jim and I separated before I knew that my husband on the show, played by Don Murray, was going to be killed off in an automobile accident."

"I was truly saddened by 'Sid's' death because because I simply adored working with Don. Psychologically, I missed the married state in the show. I'll never forget playing a scene with an empty chair. I felt really alone."

Michele's own single life, after 15 years of marriage, is reflected in some of her scenes in "Knots Landing."

Now she and Karen face the hazards of the dating game as mature women with a child in the house.

"I share some of Karen's uncomfortable feelings about dating," she said thoughtfully. "I have an incredible scene in the show involving Karen's first date that really shook me up."

"There are a lot of readjustments to be made in a person's life when a marriage comes to an end. I know what Karen is going through so it gives me an opportunity to play her emotions as I've been living them myself."

"I will remarry someday. So will Karen. But not too soon for either of us."

Constance feels less emotionally involved with 'Laura' because their private lives are starkly dissimilar.

Constance and her husband, actor Sam Welspan, are anticipating their child with unbridled joy. "Laura, whose husband is a brutal lout, has mixed feelings about bringing a baby into her joyless life."

"Laura is a long-suffering wife who sleeps around," Constance said. "The producers had no plans for her to get pregnant. But Sam and I had our own plans. We really wanted a baby."

"I didn't tell (producers) David Jacobs and Michele Flitman I was pregnant until I was almost four months along. I would have waited even longer but I didn't want to ruin the show's story lines."

"They were writing in a new affair for Laura and I worried that I would complicate the plot development."

"So I went in and told them I was expecting a baby and they were very happy for me. Thank God. My lawyer told me they could have dropped me from the show if my pregnancy interfered with the story."

This week's best

Friday

On "Dallas," J.F. tries to convince Donna the only way to save her marriage is to persuade Ray to give up his 16 voting shares to J.F., thereby severing ties to the Ewings. CBS.

Saturday

"Silver Streak," a dynamite comedy starring Richard Pryor and Gene Wilder, makes its network premiere on CBS. The comic pair ride an express train to Chicago loaded with intrigue and out-of-the-ordinary situations.

Sunday

ABC features "Superman" starring Christopher Reeve, Margot Kidder, Gene Hackman, and Valerie Perrine in a two-part network television premiere which never before shown scenes included in this movie version about America's greatest hero. NBC counters with "The Day the Bubble Burst," starring Robert Vaughn in a story of "Black Tuesday," in October, 1929, when the stock market collapsed.

Monday

"Olivia Newton-John: Let's Get Physical" on ABC. Olivia Newton-John stars in this visual fantasy that travels from London to Malibu through a series of mini-movies that capture the passion of her hit music.

Tuesday

The CBS movie, "Dangerous Company," stars Beau Bridges in this true story of Ray Johnson, who after surviving 27 years of violent crime and imprisonment, ultimately triumphed over adversity and earned respectability.

Wednesday

One reluctant super hero, Ralph, is about to have an electrifying encounter with an unearthly creature whose spacecraft has crashed — leaving it stranded and wandering about causing death and destruction on ABC's "The Greatest American Hero."

Thursday

On NBC's "Fame," Bruno takes an after-school job and strains his relationship with his very proud father. And, on ABC's "Barney Miller," Harris and Dietrich stay locked up in a hotel room with a key witness to a gang murder and a socialite complains about the attentions paid her by 1. Scanlon of Internal Affairs.
