

Senate renews reapportionment debate

BOISE (UPI) — Senators haggled over 13 proposals to amend the House's controversial reapportionment bill Wednesday before finally approving only one.

That revision would stop the lower chamber's effort to combine Power and Oneida counties into one district.

The amendment, offered by Sen. Mark Ricks, R-Rexburg, would restore Power County to the district it is currently included in, 35, along with northern Bannock County and part of Bingham County. The House bill had placed Power with Oneida and southern Bannock County.

Ricks' measure would also move Precinct 51 in Power from its current district, 35, to District 33.

All 12 of the Senate's Democrats voted against the amendment. But they were overpowered by the chamber's 23 Republicans in a straight-party vote.

Senators probably will vote on the amended bill in its entirety "within four or five days," predicted Senate Minority Leader Ron Twiegar, D-

Boise. If approved, the amended version would then be sent back to the House for its consideration.

In a 2 1/2 hour floor session marked by some confusion over Senate rules on procedure, senators rejected 12 other proposals to amend the House bill — which is closely similar to a measure vetoed last summer by Democratic Gov. John Evans.

The confusion stemmed from an amendment automatically eliminates from consideration other conflicting amendments on the same section of the bill under review. Since several of the amendments offered Wednesday dealt with the same portion of the House bill, senators wondered if each proposal could be decided on its own merits.

Sen. James Ritsch, the Senate Majority Leader who presided over the meeting of the Senate Committee-as-a-whole, declared after 20 minutes of discussion with other lawmakers that both parties had agreed to suspend the rule for the purpose of considering the amendments.

But the end result was the same. Ricks' amendment was the first one considered and, after its approval, the following 12 proposals went down in defeat.

Twiegar offered five amendments to do away with legislative reapportionment, allowing candidates to select the district they wish to represent regardless of residency. He also offered two tongue-in-cheek proposals to combine most of the incumbent senators in Ada County into one district — forcing a runoff next November.

An amendment offered by Sen. Dane Watkins, R-Idaho Falls, which would have included all Shelley residents in one district, was also soundly defeated, 4-31.

Sen. Ron Baltispaicher, D-Grangeville, offered an amendment to make a series of precinct and boundary changes in the House bill, but that plan was narrowly rejected on a 16-19 tally.

Senators want new procedure

Say reapportionment process needs change

By BRUCE HAMMOND

BOISE — Two Magic Valley senators say the reapportionment process needs to be changed from the struggling system that Wednesday produced a mildly reformed version of the plan vetoed by the governor last summer.

Both Sen. J. Wilson Steen, R-Glenns Ferry, and Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, were calling for abolishment of the redistricting process following Wednesday's debate in the Senate.

New legislative boundaries were proposed last summer for the six Magic Valley districts, and these remained unaffected by the latest revisions. Steen is the only area senator whose district is significantly changed by the plan.

"I simply feel that reapportionment has failed so badly ever since its inception," said Steen, whose district will drop rural Camas County and move west to pick up part of residential Ada County.

"I would like to start a movement to elect House members by population, while electing the Senate from geographical areas, similar to what is now practiced at the national level," he said. "This principle allows people from sparsely populated areas to have equal power at least in one body."

"It's not equitable when people in, say, the Ada County area have so many more votes than people from other communities."

Steen's proposal — a system previously used in Idaho — would preserve community identities, but it may not be possible because of federal laws requiring redistricting according to population, Peavey said.

"Yes, I was frustrated today," Peavey said following the failure of several Democratic-sponsored reapportionment amendments. "Most lines are drawn according to the wishes of the legislators and not so much for the representation of the people."

"Lines shouldn't be drawn because I live here and Winter unkind to Valley superintendent

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

HAZELTON — It has been a hard winter for Alyn Bodily of Eden.

Bodily is superintendent of the Valley School District, and his school has been closed almost half of the time since Christmas.

His daily routine consists of getting up at 6:30 to check winds, snowdrifts and roads before deciding if school will be open. There have been snowdrifts in front of his home, just south of Eden, that he couldn't get through. There have been drifts blocking the road to his office at Valley High School.

Just when he thought things were getting better and the snow was melting, nature struck a personal blow just after noon Tuesday.

"I've had just about all of this winter I can stand," Bodily said Wednesday.

He returned from a meeting in Twin Falls on Tuesday afternoon and stopped by his house to check on the water that had been slowly rising in nearby fields and in his yard.

"It looked pretty good, and I decided to go back to school. I asked my neighbor what he thought about the ditch near the house, and he said it would hold about three times the water it then was carrying."

"We were just standing there talking when Norma (Mrs. Bodily) asked, 'What's that noise?'"

"What they heard — and saw — was a wall of snow, ice and water about 20 yards wide rushing toward their home."

"I just stood there. I didn't know what to do, and there was no way to stop it."

The water and chunks of ice and snow hit the house and pushed into the garage, where it lifted his wife's car off the ground. The flash flood left a foot of water on the basement floor.

"We hauled a leather davenport to the dump this afternoon, and the carpet is all ruined," he said.

"We just about live in the basement. My daughter's room is there, and we have a fireplace and recreation room. I'm just glad it didn't happen at night. My daughter would have been floating in a foot of water."

Bodily, who grew up in the Eden area, said he has never seen anything like Tuesday's rush of water.

Nobody knows where it came from, he said, except to guess that the snow became so water-soaked it broke away and washed down the adjoining field that slopes toward his house.

Another family, Mr. and Mrs. Lew Harmon, abandoned their Hazelton-area home about 6:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Their son-in-law, Gary Kincaid, said water, about 18 inches deep, poured into the Harmon home. Friends and relatives helped carry furniture to safety, and what couldn't be taken out of the house was put on blocks.

Harmon and his wife moved in with the Kincaids.

The Harmons said they saw the water coming but were helpless to prevent its washing through their home.

"The couple has lived in the home, about three miles east of Greenwood, for 12 years, but they had never been flooded out until Tuesday."

Opponents likely to organize to resist IFF sewage system

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Organized opposition to Idaho Frozen Foods' plans to treat its waste water is likely, according to a spokesman for the Meander Point Homeowners' Association.

Ed Laats says "there are mixed feelings" about the potato-processing firm's desire to treat its waste water in basins near the confluence of the Snake River and Rock Creek. The land is below canyon-rim homes in the Meander Point subdivision, and Laats says the residents suspect they will be the victims of odors from the basins.

IFF recently held a meeting to inform the homeowners of the proposed treatment system, which would allow the company to withdraw from the Twin Falls municipal plant.

IFF manager Lee Odenwald has said the company can save about $500,000 annually by operating its own system, and in terms of waste-handling capability, the company's needs can be better met.

"I'm sure you're going to find some sort of organized resistance as this thing goes along," says Laats, a Meander Point homeowner, who coincidentally works for Nelson and Co, the main contractor for the current modification work at the city's treatment plant.

As for the plans of the homeowners' association, Laats says he's "not sure our strategy should be published just yet."

He says there are about 15 homes in the subdivision, which is laid out for 32 homes. Several more homes are nearby, but technically, they are not in the subdivision, he says.

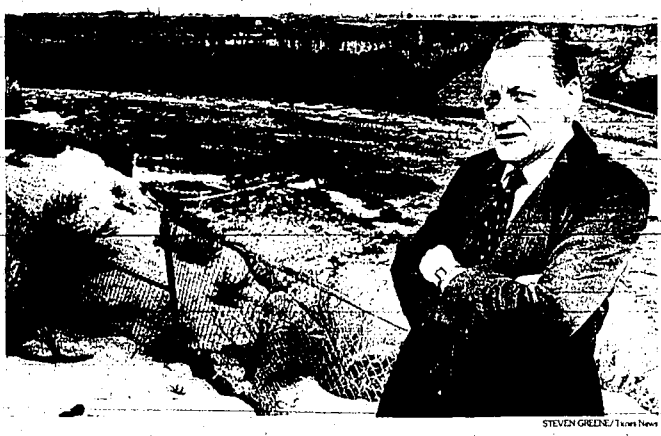

"Our goal is not to generate any potential for odor or poor aesthetics," Odenwald said recently when he told Twin Falls City Council of the company's plans.

IFF's proposed waste-treatment system has been studied by three engineering firms in the interest of developing as problem-free a project as possible, according to Odenwald, who says the company has not received any objections, formal or informal, from homeowners near the site.

The company's plans call for a series of basins to be excavated on a portion of the 580 acres of canyon property IFF owns. The company wants to pipe its potato-processing water to the basins, where the water will be cleaned through a system known as rapid infiltration.

Conditional aid called for WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. John Murtha, D-Pa., just back from Central America, said Wednesday continued U.S. aid to El Salvador should be tied to human rights improvements, next month's elections and the level of "communist aid" to Salvadoran guerrillas.

Murtha also told a Capitol Hill press conference he did not believe Nicaraguan claims that the Managua government is only giving "philosophical support" to El Salvador's leftist insurgents.

But he said he returned from El Salvador with the impression that U.S. ground troops are not needed nor wanted by the civilian and military leaders of that country's ruling junta.

Earlier jet slipped on runway

BOSTON (UPI) — Seven minutes before World Airways Flight 300, hurtled off the icy runway into Boston Harbor, another jumbo jet spewing flames almost didn't stop in time on the same runway, transcripts released Wednesday showed.

There was no conversation between the tower and Flight 30 from the time it received clearance to land at 7:33 p.m. EST and the point when the pilot, Capt. Peter Langley, reported at 7:38 p.m.: "World's going off the end!"

Logan International Airport controllers made no mention of the problems of Northwest Airlines Flight 42 to the World Airways DC-10, the transcripts showed.

Union head admits to meeting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Teachers union president Albert Shanker admitted Wednesday he met with a federal official who voted to decertify the air traffic controllers union, but denied he tried to influence the man's vote.

Shanker, a member of the Federal Labor Relations Authority, in the face of a new court investigation into Applewhite's conduct before the agency's Oct. 22 vote decertifying the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization.

Shanker told reporters in Bal Harbour, Fla., where he is attending a labor convention, he is unsure whether he is the "well-known organized labor figure" mentioned by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

The appeals court Tuesday called for an administrative law judge to hold special hearings into allegations Applewhite might have been influenced by his discussion about PATCO with the labor leader during a Sept. 21 dinner engagement.

Pan Am 727 aborts takeoff

MIAMI (UPI) — A Pan American World Airways Boeing 727 aborted takeoff after flames were seen spouting from one of its engines Wednesday, forcing an emergency evacuation in which two passengers were slightly injured.

The pilot of flight 975, carrying 52 passengers and crew from Miami to Orlando, immediately reduced the jet's speed and veered it across another runway after a controller reported flames and smoke billowing from one of the engines, said Ed Newbern, chief of the Miami International Tower.

The aborted takeoff forced the closing of one of the airport's three runways and part of another for more than an hour. A tower spokesman was unable to determine immediately how many flights were delayed by the incident but said it occurred during a slack time in flight operations.

Seven in family shot to death

FARWELL, Mich. (UPI) — Police hunted Wednesday for the estranged husband of one of seven family members — four adults and three children — shot to death at a remote central Michigan farm.

The only survivor of the massacre was a baby girl, less than a year old, who was shielded from the bullets by the bodies of her mother, two sisters and brother all found in a pickup truck outside their grandfather's farmhouse.

Clare County Sheriff Ghazey Alek said he had issued an "all points" bulletin for Robert Haggart, about 30, but stopped short of naming him as the "possible suspect" officers were seeking.

Gunman kills three in siege

CHULA VISTA, Calif. (UPI) — A gunman firing from a trailer at a mobile home park Wednesday killed three people and wounded two others before being flushed out by tear gas that ended a standoff of nearly four hours, said authorities.

Sheriff's Lt. R.W. Reed said the man, described only as an older white man, came out of trailer No. 70 choking and was immediately arrested. A small arsenal of weapons, including spent shells, were found in the trailer.

No motive was immediately known for the shootings.

Dry spell helps Weiser flooding

By United Press International

Residents in Weiser and Salmon got a hand from Mother Nature Wednesday as floodwaters began to recede at the start of a dry spell the National Weather Service predicts will last until Saturday.

An ice jam which had blocked the Weiser River and forced officials to evacuate 15 homes in Weiser and Ontario, Ore., broke up about 4 a.m. Wednesday morning and floodwaters began to drain out of the flooded east end of town.

Meanwhile in Salmon, where another ice jam blocked the Salmon River and sent streamwaters into town, flooding several municipal buildings and a city park, Lemhi County Sheriff Bill Baker said Wednesday the situation was almost back to normal.

No injuries in connection with flooding in either area have been reported.

"We haven't got any flooding to speak of now," Baker said, "and unless something drastic happens we won't."

because Sen. (Ken) Bradshaw (R-Wendell) lives there," he said.

"This is my third or fourth experience with reapportionment, and more and more, I'm convinced that the Legislature is absolutely irresponsible in redistricting itself."

Consequently, Peavey said he is supporting a constitutional amendment to turn reapportionment over to a bipartisan committee. That legislation is expected to be introduced to the Senate State Affairs Committee later this session; but Peavey said it has only a slim chance for passage.

Regardless of the bickering over reapportionment, district lines in the Magic Valley are going to shift to accommodate the 1980 census, lawmakers agree. The current plan is to accommodate for the westward shift of District 22.

District 26, which was significantly short of people, will expand to three precincts in eastern Jerome County — and parts of — Mindokota County precincts.

"I think this is a good plan," said Sen. Dean Van Engelen, R-Burley. "It is an honest-attempt to take care of the governor's concerns in Bannock and Power counties without adversely upsetting the rest of the state."

Van Engelen opposes changing the reapportionment process because only elected representatives can watch out for constituents' interests, he said.

"We do represent the people. We come in and fight for our areas' interests, but it is, on a political battleground, and so a political decision is reached."

works this way: Toilet-processing water is applied evenly over the basins, and the water then percolates through the soil. The water's organic matter breaks down through the oxygen-exchange capability of the soil. When the process is complete, the basin is allowed to rest and re-aerate in preparation for another oxygen-exchange cycle.

Burkett says it's expected that after the water goes through at least eight inches of soil, it will run into the Snake River or Rock Creek. He says his department conditionally has approved the concept for IFE's treatment system.

"It's impossible to be odor-free," Burkett says. "There originally will be some construction odors — diesel odors from machinery down there. Those odors are definitely acceptable to the state of Idaho."

After that, he says, odors will exist during the start-up of the system. Such odors, providing they're temporary, will be acceptable under the state's standards, according to Burkett.

"We expect that intermittently, there will also be some odors during normal operation," he says. "Depending on the prevailing wind direction and velocity, those odors could have some effect on adjacent homeowners. Those odors are the type that can be minimized by the way Idaho Frozen Foods operates and maintains its plant."

The Meander Point Homeowners Association previously has objected to waste-treatment plans involving canyon property. In the winter of 1979-80, the association protested the city's plans to store sludge, the residual product of sewage treatment, in canyon basins.

According to City Manager Tom Courtney, the city excavated the basins and intended to use them as a last-resort storage site. He said the city has continued to dispose of sludge on farm land and hasn't needed the basins.

Van Engelen joins auditor race

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

DEAN VAN ENGELEN
... delays campaigning

BOISE — Saying he won't begin campaigning until the Legislature closes, Sen. Dean Van Engelen, R-Burley, entered the race for state auditor Wednesday.

At this point, no opposition has appeared to Van Engelen's primary candidacy. He will face incumbent Auditor Joe Williams, a Democrat, in the November general election.

"The only question I have had raised is why a state senator, who has so obviously enjoyed the legislative process, would run for a rather obscure office that doesn't seem to do much," Van Engelen, 52, said during his announcement in Boise. "I think in the question lies the answer."

"The present office doesn't do much, but the potential of the state auditor's office is so great, it should be used."

He said the auditor should expand into more control of state spending, data processing and advising of both executive and legislative officials.

Criticizing Williams, Van Engelen said the auditor "should sound off on year and a half ago would have sounded the alarm when bills started coming in that were months old," he said.

In addition to bookkeeping, he said the state auditor should expand the state's data-processing service, which already falls under the auditor's jurisdiction.

"The hardware is already there," Van Engelen said. "But state agencies have to have their own software (programming)."

But Van Engelen acknowledged he has "a tough road ahead" in trying to unseat Williams, who has held the office since 1959.

To accomplish this goal, he said he will rely on about six or seven months of traveling, at an estimated cost of about $20,000. He announced that his son, Craig, will serve as his campaign manager.

"It will be a low-cost campaign because the office of state auditor is a low-profile position."

Van Engelen, who manages his family's department store in Burley, has a bachelor's degree in business administration from Washington University in St. Louis, Mo. He has served as a state senator since 1976.

Senate OKs property tax relief

BOISE (UPI) — A plan to give Idaho property owners tax relief cleared the state Senate Wednesday.

The vote came despite objections from some lawmakers who said the state needed to keep the cash—and others who said the sum wasn't enough.

The Senate — meeting as a committee of the whole to consider changing a bill already before the chamber — approved the amendment carried by Sen. Dave Watkins, R-Idaho Falls. The bill, as amended, now goes to the Senate for final approval.

The measure would dole out property tax relief money if the state experiences a budget surplus this year — but only if that surplus exceeds $5 million, Watkins said.

Republicans and Democrats agree that some budget surplus is likely, with predictions ranging from roughly $4 million to up to $10 million.

Watkins faced some opposition to his plan, however. Republican Sens. Walter Yarbrough of Grand View, Dean Van Engelen of Burley, Roger Fairchild of Fruitland and Terry Sverdrup of Cataldo joined Democrats in voting against the amendment.

Sen. Lester Clemm, D-Troy, urged senators to approve an amendment he offered, which he said would make the homeowners exemption permanent, increase it, and ease the burden residential property owners now carry because of different assessment techniques used for determining the value of utilities property.

"This is meaningful tax relief," Clemm said, noting that he believed Watkins' plan would result in only "$2 to $5 in tax relief" for most homeowners.

And Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, also urged approval of the Clemm amendment, noting that residential property owners have contributed more and more toward the total sum since 1967, while operating property — such as utilities — has received a break in property taxes.

"Right now the homeowner is really getting a raw deal, and this would correct that," Peavey said.

But the lawmakers rejected the Clemm amendment. Republican Sens. Vernon Brassey and Edith Miller Klein joined the chamber's 12 Democrats in backing the measure.

Sen. Mike Mitchell, D-Lewiston, said he questioned the value of the entire plan.

Low salaries costing state best instructors

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — Idaho colleges and universities are losing their best instructors because of low salaries, according to documents compiled by a Senate subcommittee.

"The tradition of excellence at Idaho's universities is in the verge of disintegration," says Sen. Laird Noh, R-Twin Falls, one of three members on a Senate Health, Education and Welfare subcommittee. "Faculty salaries, adjusted for inflation, have declined over 22 percent since 1976."

The tradition of excellence at Idaho's universities is in the verge of disintegration," says Sen. Laird Noh, R-Twin Falls, one of three members on a Senate Health, Education and Welfare subcommittee. "Faculty salaries, adjusted for inflation, have declined over 22 percent since 1976."

"In the last two years, we've lost 17 staff members to higher-paying jobs — nine from the vocational department and eight from academics," says Gerald Meyerhoeffer, CSI's assistant president. "Twelve of those went to private industry, while the others took better-paying jobs at other institutions."

As examples, Meyerhoeffer cited a chemistry professor who left to work for Hewlett-Packard, a government instructor who changed to real-estate sales and a nursing instructor who returned to private nursing.

"But we probably don't have the same degree of difficulty in retaining personnel as the universities," he said. "That's because they have more of the high priced experts — like engineers — and subsequently, more outstanding offers are made to them."

According to the latest edition of the Chronicle of Higher Education, the average annual pay for an assistant professor at CSI is $17,200. This compares with $17,400 at Lewis and Clark State College, $17,500 at Idaho State University, $17,800 at Boise State University and $18,300 at the University of Idaho.

Noh agrees much of the problem rests with the technical professions, where industry actively seeks college instructors.

"With the (U of I) School of Mines as critical as it is to our state, it is ominous that associate professors of metallurgy are being offered, by private industry, twice what the universities can pay."

The U of I Law School faculty salaries are lower "than all approved law schools except in Puerto Rico and Akron, Ohio," Noh says.

The State Board of Education has asked for $2.2 million to help bring Idaho's faculty pay scale closer to what is offered in surrounding states. The governor has recommended $543,000 for the same purpose.

"The problem is accentuated by a growing feeling that the Legislature and the people of Idaho don't care," Noh says. "In recent years, the percentage of the state general fund budget going to higher education has been trimmed from 19 to 15 percent."

"This problem holds serious implications for Idaho's future. The competition won't go away," he says.

Stivers blasts print committee for not printing

BOISE (UPI) — An "incompetent" committee chairman has launched a campaign designed to curb the antics of the Idaho House's Printing Committee, which one lawmaker said "could easily be replaced by a half-bright secretary who can read."

The Printing Committee has irked many House members the past two years by refusing to print scores of bills which its members considered unworthy of processing.

After the committee voted against printing a half-dozen measures Tuesday, Judiciary and Rules Committee Chairman T.W. Stivers, R-Twin Falls, decided it was time to do something to stop what he said was violation of House rules.

Stivers made a motion on the House floor Wednesday to dissolve the Printing Committee. After blasting the committee's activities and gaining support from several lawmakers, he withdrew the motion.

"I got the attention of the House," he said. "I got my point well across."

Groups urge Legislature for full public TV funding

BOISE (UPI) — Teachers, college administrators and citizen funders urged Idaho lawmakers to fully fund the state's three-station public television system Wednesday, saying residents across the state benefit from the programming.

If the state merges its three stations into one, the public won't be willing to donate as much money for local programming, the federal government will withdraw about $50,000 in grants and students — in public schools and universities and those taking correspondence classes at home — will suffer, witnesses before a Senate committee said.

"What we're really ask for this year is manpower . . . the manpower to keep the system running," said Barbara Conrad, Caldwell, a member of the state's Commission on Public Broadcasting.

Public schools can't fully use television as a teaching tool and universities can't take advantage of all the possibilities for instructing broadcasting majors if the state doesn't come up with the money for full staffs at the three stations, she said.

The comments came as the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee considered a resolution that would halt plans to consolidate the three stations and make facilities in Moscow and Pocatello satellites of Boise's KSLD.

The resolution — sponsored by Sen. Norman Dobler, D-Moscow — would state the Legislature's intent to retain the three-station concept. That could stop an appropriations bill already approved by the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee that calls for moving toward the one-station concept.

Committee members did not vote on Mrs. Dobler's resolution Wednesday — but Chairman Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, said he would call for a vote today.

Support 3-station public TV concept

The state Senate's Health, Education and Welfare Committee is expected to vote on a resolution today to forestall action gutting public television in Idaho.

We implore members of the committee to support this move by Sen. Norma Dobler, D-Moscow.

The motion supports a three-station plan for the state, instead of the single-station and remote-transmitters proposal favored in a Joint Finance and Appropriations Committee plan. The latter came out of committee on an 11-9 vote, with no recommendation.

By now, senators and representatives know of all the arguments for retaining the public television system. There is widespread support for the educational opportunities public TV offers.

Retranching to a single-station concept would not only severely limit those opportunities but jeopardize public funding as well.

Lawmakers are clearly at odds with this issue. The House Revenue and Taxation Committee voted 9-8 Tuesday against a proposed permanent funding base for public television and killed a bill to provide a taxpayer and corporate filing fee for public TV. Meanwhile, the House Education Committee voted Tuesday to downgrade the public TV system to a central transmitter in Pocatello, with satellite operations in Boise and Moscow.

The entire Legislature is getting into the act over this issue, but there is no clear-cut direction being established. If the single-station concept is adopted, there will be a brouhaha over which of the three stations survives.

Lawmakers could end up with a shell of a system, established with political overtones and favoritism — one that is going to have limited public appeal and support.

Our advice: Keep public television as it now exists and go back to the drawing board to consider future funding alternatives.

Oust the rascal

Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., who Tuesday was sentenced to three years in jail and fined $50,000 for his Abscam conviction, no longer deserves a place in the U.S. Senate.

The hearings on Williams' expulsion from that body take place next week. But that is a formality. Harrison sold himself, his office, his influence, and in so doing, sold out his constituent trust.

There is no room in public office for the likes of him and his idea of what a public servant ought to be.

As one who believes that the United States must have a strong defense at any cost, I decided to go out and buy a tank the other day. After listening to the testimony of the Pentagon experts and the secretary of Defense, I decided the Chrysler M-1 Tank was the best that money could buy. Besides Lee Iacocca needs the business.

I went into the Chrysler Tank Showroom and a smiling salesman greeted me at the door. "I'd like to buy an M-1 Tank," I said. "I understand it is superior to any armored vehicle in the world."

"We like to think so," the salesman said. He showed me the model on the floor. "It has the most sophisticated electronics equipment that man could devise. Why don't you jump in the turret and see for yourself?"

I inspected the interior. "How much is it?"

"It will cost you two million five."

"I thought, when you announced you were going to build the M-1, it would be priced at $500,000."

"You must be joking, sir. You can't even get a Jeep for that price anymore."

"Well, I guess I better order one before the price goes up again," I said.

The salesman took me over to his desk and pulled a contract out of his drawer.

"I have to ask you a few questions. You are an American taxpayer, aren't you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Good. That means we won't have to check your credit. Now you want one M-1 Tank. What color?"

"I think I'd like green."

"Green. A very good choice. What options do you want on it?"

"What do you mean?"

"The tank costs two million five, stripped. If you want it to perform right I would strongly suggest the options."

"What kind of options?"

"Well, because it's so sophisticated it cannot do what other tanks in the past have done, such as dig itself in when it is prepared to fire its guns. You need a companion vehicle called an ACE which is a high-speed bulldozer to travel next to you."

"How much is the bulldozer?"

The salesman looked at the chart. "One million, one hundred thousand dollars."

"Do I really need it?"

"The M-1 Tank is no good without it. Now government regulations require me to tell you that the M-1 is a gas guzzler and you'll also have to have a fuel truck behind you. We can supply you with one for $660,000."

"That was a little more than I wanted to spend. By the way, how far can I drive the M-1 Tank before it needs repairs?"

"About 43 miles before it breaks down. I strongly recommend a service contract which only costs $300,000 a year. In the event the tank gets dirt on it and won't move, we'll send a team of Chrysler experts out within 48 hours."

"As a taxpayer, I was hoping you people could come up with a less expensive model."

"When it comes to combat effectiveness, you can't cut corners. This is the top of the line when it comes to tanks, and it's only for people who can afford it."

"Who can afford it?"

"The U.S. Army wants 7,000 of them. And the nice thing about the military is, they never haggle over price."

Impressed with Phil Batt

Editor, Times-News:

I would like to tell of an interesting encounter I had recently. I attended a large gathering with many people I didn't know, including several aspiring politicians. I was introduced to Lt. Gov. Phil Batt. This man is enough to change anyone's preconceptions of what people in politics are like. I was really impressed by his deep, true care for the state of Idaho and by his remarkable lack of interest in personal glory.

HAVING grown up on a farm in Magter Valley, I have been concerned with the problems that have developed through the years with migrant workers and farm labor. As I talked with Lt. Gov. Batt, I learned that not only has he shared my concern, but that he has been very active in alleviating many of these complex problems. When Cesar Chavez and the United Farm Workers tried to organize Idaho farm workers in a strike, Batt, a farmer himself, was one of the most instrumental and effective arbiters to defuse that potential volatile situation.

At the time Batt was serving as the first president of the newly formed Food Producers of Idaho, a coalition of all the major agricultural groups within the state: Farm Bureau, Grange, commodities commission, etc. Their efforts with the United Farm Workers resulted in the Idaho Farm Labor Bargaining Act which brought peace to Idaho farmers after his divisive assault. The Idaho farmers' firmness paid off.

This law allowed Idaho to keep its own house in order without the mandate and interference of federal regulations.

Batt is a working farmer, as well as a hard-working politician. If you would like to meet Lt. Gov. Batt, he will be in attendance at the Twin Falls County Lincoln Day Banquet on Feb. 19 at the Turf Club.

Thankful for Evans, Peavey

Editor, Times-News:

The supporters of the Right-to-Work bill know it is not to protect the working men and women of Idaho, but to help business break what unions that now are in place, and mostly to keep employees from forming new ones. It would take away the fear of unions from bosses who would mistreat their employees. This type of bill attacks the right of majority rule and freedom. It will not help to free workers but will help to enslave them.

I am thankful that we have good and just leaders like Gov. John Evans and Sen. John Peavey, who will not only stand up for the working people, but can also come up with legislation to help private business to build and expand in our state. We need more lawmakers with foresight to help all Idaho's people, not lawmakers who pick and make legal war on the working class.

Improving grass roots justice more than just a goal

Universal Press Syndicate

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — It is part of the nature of news that we seldom hear much about the state courts. When a spectacular trial comes along — a Jean Harris in New York, or a Wayne Williams in Atlanta — we recognize the role the state courts play, but otherwise the feds get all the press. Now and then we ought to direct a glance at where most of the judicial action is.

This is the function of a lively but unpublished outlet here on the campus of the College of William and Mary. The National Center for State Courts. Now in its sixth year, the center serves one important purpose only — to improve the administration of justice back at the grass roots. It is doing an excellent job.

Day in and day out, it is the state tribunals that provide most Americans with the only experience they ever will have with court proceedings. When it comes to criminal jurisdiction, the federal courts have a growing but still limited jurisdiction — narcotics, interstate auto theft, moonshining, kidnaping, crimes on federal property and the high seas. When it comes to civil cases, the feds get the big ones — bankruptcies, damage suits in interstate commerce, large questions of constitutional law.

The state courts handle everything else. They deal with divorce, child custody, routine civil litigation. They get the simple assaults, local murders, the whole gritty range of criminal cases. The state courts are the repository of many of the records we live by, of marriage, property sales, our last wills and testaments. To be part of a state's judiciary is to be right at the heart of American jurisprudence.

Until recent years, not much attention had been paid to that heart. There were loose associations of court clerks and state chief justices, and sporadic efforts were made to standardize record keeping, but for the most part judges ran their own courts and got together at annual meetings of the bar.

About 10 years ago the idea took root of forming a non-profit institution that would concentrate solely upon improving the performance of the state courts. That idea has materialized into a handsome but functional building close by the college's Marshall-Wythe School of Law. Under the direction of Edward B. McConnell, a 20-year veteran of court administration in New Jersey, the center is going full speed ahead.

Well, three-quarter speed, anyhow. Cutbacks in federal aid complicated a substantial reduction in operations last year, but participating state governments and private foundations have provided a million-dollar budget for the current year. The money goes into four major areas — research, education and training, technical assistance, and the compilation of all kinds of information on what the state courts are up to.

What have they been up to lately? McConnell is keeping tabs on the trend — if it is a trend — toward the use of television and still cameras in courtrooms. About 30 states are experimenting in this direction, but the movement appears to have stalled until results can be evaluated. Texas recently refused to go along. Delaware also is hanging back.

The center is keeping an eye on developments in the field of small tribunals for the resolution of small disputes — a project much loved by Chief Justice Warren Earl Burger. McConnell guesses it that these informal tribunals will have little effect on reducing the case load in established state courts. Indeed, if litigants in the neighborhood tribunals are permitted to appeal up the judicial ladder, the effect could be to add to the burden.

A continuing study deals with the law's delays. Why does the typical civil case require three years in Boston or Chicago but only one year in Phoenix, Miami or Providence? McConnell believes the answer lies in the "local legal culture." Lawyers and judges will set the pace that suits them. Computerized docket controls may expedite some proceedings, but leisurely judges will not be hurried.

There's nothing sensational in these colonial surroundings. The National Center for State Courts makes no sexy headlines, but it's refreshing, all the same, to find an outfit that is doing quiet, constructive work, and doing it well.

Local heads OK Ford deal

CHICAGO (UPI) — By a nearly unanimous vote, United Auto Workers local leaders Wednesday agreed to take to the rank-and-file a historic contract agreement with Ford Motor Co. that trades wage and benefit concessions for job security.

The union's Ford Council placed a nearly unanimous stamp of approval on the pact after a three-hour meeting with a 132-12 standing vote. The full Council has 225 members.

The contract will now be submitted to a vote by the 170,000 eligible Ford hourly workers. Of that group, about 60,000 are indefinitely or temporarily laid off.

Union leaders predicted rank-and-file members would ratify the pact.

UAW President Douglas Fraser said the ratification process would begin immediately and set a Feb. 28 deadline, if the pact is approved, it would take effect March 1 and run through September 1984.

"I'm very, very pleased," Fraser said. "This pact is in the best interest of Ford workers. They (Council members) realized we wouldn't bring to them an agreement that wasn't in their best interest."

UAW leaders will meet Saturday in Detroit to plot strategy for selling the contract to the rank and file.

Fraser said he would not discuss returning to General Motors to resume talks until the ratification vote is completed. But delegates speculated negotiations there could resume as early as two weeks from now.

UAW Vice President Donald Ephlin, the union's chief Ford negotiator, predicted the margin of approval by hourly workers will mirror the Ford Council's vote.

"Ford workers, I'm confident, will vote in relatively the same manner as their leadership did," Ephlin said.

A tiny band of dissidents denounced the pact at a news conference earlier in the day. Their leader, Local 600 member Al Gardner, vowed to fight the pact during the ratification process.

The Ford contract did not include a deal reached during failed talks at GM that would have passed along as rebates to consumers the amount of concessions granted by the UAW.

Fraser later said the contract should result in "more stable pricing" even though no guarantees of price cuts were made.

Under the 31-month pact, Ford promised to maintain current jobs, which might be lost by future subcontracting of work to non-union domestic and foreign sources, and to replace jobs to the best of the company's ability.

Workers with 15 years experience are guaranteed 50 percent of their pay in the event of layoffs. The company will beef up its depleted Supplemental Unemployment Benefits fund, enabling laid off workers who have run out of SUB benefits to again receive the funds.

Ford agreed to a two-year moratorium on the closing of plants due to subcontracting.

Williams' defense finished with character witnesses

ATLANTA (UPI) — Defense attorneys apparently presented the last of their character witnesses Wednesday for accused killer Wayne Williams with testimony disputing the claim he is homosexual.

Darlene Evans Cann was the last in a series of witnesses who have claimed they saw no homosexual tendencies in Williams, as prosecution witnesses have indicated. Other defense witnesses have testified that Williams referred to homosexuals as "twinkies."

The black, 23-year-old suspect is standing trial for the slaying of Jimmy Ray Payne and Nathaniel Cater — two of 28 young blacks slain during a 22-month period in Atlanta.

Prosecutors' suggestion that Williams was homosexual and testimony that he allegedly disliked poor young blacks are the only motives the state has suggested for the killings.

replied Ms. Cann when asked what Williams thought about homosexuals. She said that Williams once told her that a young singer named James Thompson, who testified for prosecution, was "weird."

"He had suspicions that if he (Thompson) was gay, he didn't want to mess with him," she said.

Democrats rip Stockman, budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Budget Committee began its hearings on President Reagan's 1983 budget Wednesday with a stinging Democratic attack on the credibility of its figures and of David Stockman, who devised them.

Stockman, director of the White House Office of Management and Budget, challenged Congress to come up with a workable alternative instead of "demagoguery."

The opening hearing started Reagan's $177.8 billion budget on a rough road this session.

Both Democrats and Republicans want to lower the projected $91.5 deficit for the year that begins next Oct. 1, and many members would prefer to reduce the increase in military spending instead of imposing new cuts in the social program.

Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., criticized Stockman for presenting Congress last year with budget figures whose reliability Stockman later questioned in an Atlantic magazine interview.

"There is nothing funny about what happens in this country when people who run the government don't level with the country and don't level with

"I have no questions for you because, very frankly, I would not believe the answers you would give me."
 — Rep. David Obey

Congress, "Obey said.

"I have no questions for you because, very frankly, I would not believe the answers you would give me," Obey said, provoking audible gasps in the packed hearing room. Stockman glared, but did not reply.

House Democratic leader Jim Wright of Texas said the administration is proposing "more of the same" economic medicine that he said has caused record high interest rates, deficits and business failures.

Citing cuts in job placement programs, Wright said, "Those of you in the administration must recognize we are dangerously crippling the human element, which always has been the great strength of this country." Republicans were gentler, but they, too, warned Stockman that defense spending might be cut.

Rep. Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., said, "Some of our members have raised their eyebrows about military spending, and we are going to be looking at that."

Stockman said it was "the most difficult budget ever presented to Congress," but, "We simply have to set aside oratory and roll up our sleeves and make some of the hard choices."

"We are giving it our best shot," Stockman said. "The next step is up to you." If Congress does not like the administration's proposals, he said, it should come up with a detailed, workable alternative.

"I believe this president will look hard at a good-faith effort" by Congress to find an alternative approach, Stockman said, adding: "So far all we've seen is demagoguery."

He said the recession "is not going to be a permanent condition" and "built-in stabilizers... will pull us out this summer or this fall." It was a later estimate than has been heard so far. Most experts have predicted an economic turnaround in the spring or early summer.

Oil company will inspect three North Atlantic oil rigs

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland (UPI) — Oil company officials said Wednesday they will send mini-submersibles to inspect the sunken Ocean Ranger oil rig in which 84 men died and will tow in to shore two similar rigs for safety checks.

A Mobil Oil Canada spokesman said both the towing and inspection operations depended on improved weather conditions in the area where the Ranger lay under 260 feet of water. A new winter storm caused poor conditions in the area throughout the day.

Mobil said the two other semi-submersible rigs it had in the same oil-rich Hibernia fields would be towed to Marysvale, Newfoundland, for a full safety inspection.

Mobil spokeswoman Susan Smerk said she did not know whether the 76-man crews on each of the two smaller rigs would remain aboard during the towing.

One of the rigs, the SEDCO-706, was on charter to Mobil from the South East Drilling Co. of Houston, Tex., while the other, the Zapata Ugljan, was on lease from the Zapata Off Shore Drilling Co., also of Houston.

suspended their operations at the same time as the Ocean Ranger developed a list shortly before it sank early Monday.

Mobil official William Gridale said the mini-subs could provide some answers as to why the 30,000-ton rig toppled and sank down.

The icy Atlantic yielded 41 bodies during a lull between storms — 20 from the Ocean Ranger that went down Monday and 21 Soviet seamen who refused to abandon their freighter which sank Tuesday awaiting rescue by another Russian vessel 65 miles from where the rig sank. Five Russian seamen survived.

Authorities called off the air search for the bodies of 12 men still missing from the 375-foot Mekhanik Tarasov's crew of 38 while in Moscow, the Minister of the Soviet Merchant Navy praised the seamen for their valor.

A Canadian Coast Guard ship, the Sir Humphrey Gilbert, searched for bodies with the five Russian survivors and 14 dead sailors on board. Defense Department spokesman Lieut. Cliff Reddekop said, "The survivors are in excellent health."

Davenport school board allows Huckleberry Finn

DAVENPORT, Iowa (UPI) — Huckleberry Finn has received a unanimous vote of confidence from a committee of citizens and students and can be assigned reading for public school students.

The use of the word "nigger" in the story prompted black Central High School student Adrienne Royal and Mrs. German Gibbs, to file complaints about the book's use as a reading assignment in an American literature course.

The objections were referred to the district's Reconsideration Committee, composed of citizens, students and staff. The committee voted 11-0 to keep the book.

Miss Royal said the way and the number of times the objectionable word was used caused embarrassment to both black and white students. She said she wanted the book to be optional reading, not removed from the library.

The committee members disagreed.

Study links alcohol ads, consumption

WASHINGTON (UPI) — About one in six high school juniors and seniors questioned in a limited government survey conceded they had driven a car when they were too drunk to drive, a consumer group said Wednesday.

The Center for Science in the Public Interest said the government study found alcohol advertising on TV prompts excessive drinking and contributes to alcohol problems.

The study, conducted by researchers at the University of Michigan, was financed by four government agencies seeking to find out the impact of advertising on the consumption of beer, wine and hard liquor. It was completed last fall, and its availability announced in the Federal Register.

But Michael Jacobson, head of the center, said the Federal Trade Commission and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, two of the agencies that paid for the study, did nothing with it.

The two, he said, have "totally abdicated their responsibility to the public to regulate the advertising of products that cause tens of thousands of deaths a year and enormous harm to society."

The FTC has general responsibility for policing advertising, but has traditionally left alcohol advertising to the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms. However, the Reagan administration, in its new budget, has proposed abolishing the regulatory agency.

Jacobson said the alcoholic beverage industry spends $1 billion a year advertising its products, and called for a congressional investigation into the impact that has on consumption.

The other agencies that paid for the study were the Transportation Department and the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism.

The study estimated that in 1977 network television carried more than 5,000 beer and wine ads while 41 major magazines carried more than 2,500 liquor ads.

Jacobson said the study "is limited by its reliance on simple questionnaires and lack of random sampling." But, he said, it still sheds "new light on the relationship between advertising and one of society's most pressing social problems."

The report itself notes that those surveyed, while similar to the general population, were not chosen to be scientifically representative of the general public and "thus direct extrapolation of the data to the population cannot be made, and one must exercise caution in generalizing the findings to all young people."

Smith ready to enforce registration

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General William French Smith said Wednesday the Justice Department is likely to prosecute hundreds of young men who have failed to register for a draft.

Smith said the department intends to enforce, as best it can, the law that requires American males to register with Selective Service when they reach 18.

Failure to register is a felony punishable by up to five years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

An estimated 800,000 young men have failed to register. The administration extended a grace period until Feb. 28 for them to register without fear of prosecution.

When asked whether there will be hundreds of prosecutions, Smith replied, "There certainly will be hundreds. How many more it's difficult to say."

He said the administration intends to enforce the laws "within our existing resources."

"We are in the business of enforcing the laws, and we are going to enforce them one way or another, and if we have problems with resources, we're just react to the situation after it develops," Smith said.

He made his comments to a reporter in a hallway following a news conference. A transcript was made available by his press office.

U.S. considers more Soviet sanctions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration is considering further moves to block some Soviet exports and limit Soviet credit in the West as the next salvo of economic sanctions in the Polish crisis, officials said Wednesday.

One official listed two measures under consideration:

- Limiting credit on any Soviet purchases in the West — in effect, making the Soviets spend more hard currency for everything they buy. There is a consensus among Western industrial nations that this would be effective, but there is no plan for exactly how and when it should be done.

- Further cutting Soviet hard currency earnings by banning the purchase of certain "non-essential" Soviet products in the West, such as automobiles, caviar and vodka.

Such products provide less than 2 percent of Soviet earning capacity in the West, but the restriction would hurt the Soviets without causing any real economic hardship elsewhere.

The State Department said a mission led by Undersecretary of State James Buckley will go to Europe soon to discuss the matter of future credits on sales to the Soviet Union.

It is expected the credit restrictions would apply only to future sales, not current contracts.

The administration has received warnings from Europeans — including Belgian Prime Minister Wilfried Martens who is in Washington on a visit — that U.S. economic policies causing high interest rates have damaged European economies heavily already.

The second stage of sanctions went to the head of the list of options after the White House received advice from European leaders and American businessmen that an attempt to bar U.S. subsidiaries abroad from selling high-technology equipment to the Soviets would be ineffective, illegal and politically unpopular in Western Europe.

Sales of high-technology and oil and gas equipment by U.S.-based firms already are banned by a Dec. 29 executive order from President Reagan.

Deputy Commerce Secretary Lohel Oltmer told a congressional committee Feb. 9 the administration was considering enlarging that ban to include such firms as the French-based subsidiary of General Electric, which makes a compressor that would be part of the Siberian natural gas line going to Western Europe.

Since then, Martens and Luxembourg Foreign Minister Colette Flesch, also in Washington, told President Reagan and his chief advisers the European reaction to such a move would be harsh.

Mao loyalists fight Deng purge attempt

PEKING (UPI) — Diehard loyalists to the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung are likely to mount stiff opposition to Vice Chairman Deng Xiaoping's attempt to purge them from the Chinese government, Western diplomats said Wednesday.

DENG XIAOPING
opposes purges

Deng's allies announced Tuesday they intend to rid the Communist Party of "remnants of the Gang of Four," a group of radicals, including Mao's widow, who dominated China until 1976.

About half of the party's 39 million members became Communists during the gang's reign and, although Deng has been able to secure the top positions, the vast majority of Mao loyalists still hold their jobs.

A West European diplomat said Deng's campaign to clear the bureaucracy of more than 200,000 old, corrupt and inefficient officials — as well as his enemies — is like a "Dengist Cultural Revolution," repeating the 1966-76 struggle between "left" and "right" that plunged China into turmoil.

"There is bound to be a lot of opposition and problems," the diplomat said.

Premier Zhao Ziyang acknowledged at a meeting Wednesday that some analysts say "China will meet many difficulties" in restructuring the government.

"But I can tell you all present, we are full of confidence in doing a good job," said Zhao, a key Deng protégé as quoted by the official Xinhua News Agency.

Diplomats in Peking were less convinced that Deng's campaign will succeed.

"It must be a potential gamble," said the Western diplomat. "There are risks that it might backfire. Deng's people must be aware of that."

Poland strikes martial law violators

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Poland said Wednesday authorities staged a two-day crackdown on Poles suspected of violating martial law.

Officials punished 52,000 for breaking curfew and detained 3,500 others presumably for more serious violations.

A senior Polish official charged U.S. sanctions aimed at provoking internal discord and destabilizing the East Bloc have fortified the regime's ties to its socialist friends and pushed it further from the West.

Polish authorities last week launched a two-day campaign called "Operation Peace" designed to crush a thriving black market and quell violations of martial law imposed by Poland's military regime Dec. 13, the official PAP news agency said.

In Washington, the State Department said the announcement of a massive crackdown in Poland was "deeply upsetting" and said it was investigating the reports.

Reading from a prepared statement, State Department spokesman Dean Fischer said the new measures "would make a mockery of all recent Polish government statements to the effect that life is beginning to return to normal in Poland."

Officials checked 51,000 shops, stopped 60,000 vehicles and ran security checks on 145,000 citizens "who violated obligatory restrictions," PAP said. About 29,000 people were released with warnings, PAP said.

The news agency said 52,000 were punished for violating the dusk-to-dawn curfew but did not elaborate. Unconfirmed reports said the 52,000 were "fined" and punishment could include fines or a month in jail.

In addition, 3,500 people were detained at police stations, the official news agency said, but again did not elaborate. Those detainees presumably were held for more serious violations.

PAP said 614 people were placed under arrest for violating military rules and 129 drunken drivers were taken into custody.

Deputy Planning Chief Stanislaw Dlugosz charged U.S.-imposed sanctions designed to disrupt Poland's economy and wreak havoc on the Eastern bloc have backfired and are strengthening Polish ties with its socialist allies.

His remarks came as West Germany announced new measures against the Soviet Union, including a ban on state visits, because of the continuing martial law in Poland.

"The United States counts on the complete breakdown of our economy and the emergence of social dissatisfaction as well as on a chain reaction, because the economic situation in Poland has a certain influence on the economies of other socialist countries," Dlugosz told TAP.

The sanctions "can complicate the social situation," he conceded, but the real result is that "we are establishing closer links than before with the socialist countries and we shall also gradually decrease our dependence on economic cooperation with the West."

Recent statistics show Poland is in an economic nosedive. January figures showed a dramatic drop in the nation's production level as well as severe cuts in purchases of grain and other foods from farmers.

Only coal production was up — 5.1 percent over last January and 8.8 percent over December, the figures showed.

Corsicans set blasts in Paris

PARIS (UPI) — Corsican nationalists protesting French rule extended their campaign of violence to Paris and Versailles Wednesday, exploding 19 bombs in post offices, tax offices and banks.

No injuries or arrests were reported after the overnight blasts during a 15-minute period but windows and security gates of several buildings were damaged, police said.

Militants of the National Liberation

Front of Corsica, the French-ruled Mediterranean island, claimed responsibility for the bombings that began shortly after midnight. Three unexploded bombs were also discovered at dawn outside banks in the Paris area.

The 16 explosions in Paris and three in nearby Versailles were all aimed at public buildings representing French authority — as were the 26 bombs and gun attack

Defense Ministry denies slaughter in peasant village

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — The Defense Ministry Wednesday denied reports that government forces slaughtered 400 peasants in a major sweep southeast of the capital, saying only 28 leftist rebels died in the offensive.

Despite the ministry's communique, there were still conflicting versions of the incident — described by refugees as a massacre — last week in the town of Jucuaran, 26 miles southeast of San Salvador.

The leftist guerrillas' clandestine Radio Venceremos claimed army troops shot to death 30 — not 400 — innocent civilians last Friday at two ranches south of the town of Jucuaran, in El Salvador's Usulután province.

He said the army troops who took him to Jucuaran to publicize last week's 1,500-man anti-guerrilla sweep forbade him to travel south of the town where surviving refugees told government officials of an army massacre of some 400 civilians.

Guatemala troops kill six suspects in Indian massacre

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI) — Army troops staging a massive search-and-destroy mission Wednesday killed six guerrillas suspected of participating in the slaughter of 51 Mayan Indians in northwestern Guatemala, military officers said.

Helicopters and armored personnel carriers scoured rugged mountains north of the Quiché province village of Ustantan, where Armed Forces Chief Staff, Benemérito Lucas García claims at least 51 Mayans were beheaded.

In the first clash connected with the massive anti-guerrilla sweep, army troops killed six rebels discovered around the town of Ixcán, some 25 miles north of alleged massacre scene, military officers said.

What's what

The Agus is a dead volcano in Guatemala. Heavy rains filled the great hollow cone with water, making a deep crater lake, and the torrents turned the mountainsides to mud. Then came the earthquake. No, it wasn't an eruption, just powerful tremors. But the weight of the water inside cracked open the crater walls, unleashing the deluge. At 7:30 a.m. on August 15, 1974, mud engulfed the capital town of Ciudad Vieja at the foot of the flow, burying more than 1,000 people. Little late in reporting this, but a client asks where the volcano got its name, meaning "The Water."

POOL HALLS

Q. Are there any pool halls in Japan?
 A. Many more than any, sir. The billiards craze over there is giving way now to electronic arcade-games. I'm told, but during the 1960s, the Japanese opened an average of 9,000 new pool parlors a year.

Q. What does "SHAZAM" from the Captain Marvel Comics stand for?
 A. Solomon, Hercules, Atlas, Zeus, Achilles and Mercury.

Q. What's the top speed of a roadrunner?
 A. About 15 mph.

Q. How big is a newborn kangaroo?
 A. About the size of a lima bean.

QUICK CURE

Arabic physicians of old relied on a most curious treatment for rheumatism in women. They thought body heat could cure the ailment. So to generate that heat, they snatched off her skirt on the theory this would make her burn with shame.

Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Thursday, Feb. 18, the 49th day of 1982 with 318 to follow.

The moon is moving toward its new phase.

The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

There is no evening star.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

American philanthropist George Peabody was born Feb. 18, 1795.

On this date in history:

- In 1861, Jefferson Davis was sworn into office as president of the Confederate States of America at Montgomery, Ala.
- In 1930, the planet Pluto was discovered by astronomer Clyde Tombaugh at the Lowell Observatory in Flagstaff, Ariz.
- In 1967, nuclear physicist Robert Oppenheimer died at the age of 82. He played a key role in development of the atomic bomb.
- The 1980, Pierre Elliot Trudeau and the Liberal Party were returned to power in Canada.
- A thought for the day: Thomas Jefferson said, "I hold... that a little rebellion now and then is a good thing, and as necessary in the political world as storms in the physical."

Automatic teller witnesses assault

HOUSTON (UPI) — An automatic bank teller machine, assaulted by a frustrated customer, turned out to be an excellent witness.

Lowell Clinton Craig, 23, lost his temper when the machine at the First Bank of Deer Park refused to give him money out of his account.

"He got angry and tried to knock its lights out," said Assistant District Attorney Doug Durham of the Feb. 8 incident.

Craig said he decided to demolish the screen with beer bottle and vent his frustrations.

But the machine automatically took a picture of its assailant, giving police the positive identification needed to make an arrest.

Durham said damage to the machine totaled $3,766. The machine photographed a pictorial essay showing Craig's attitude during its final moments.

"I think this is just a case of one citizen's anger at an automated world," Durham said.

Craig was charged with criminal mischief and bond was set at $1,000.

Strasberg heart victim

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lee Strasberg, who taught "method acting" to generations of leading American stage and screen performers — including Marlon Brando and Marilyn Monroe — died Wednesday of a heart attack. He was 80.

An actor himself, Strasberg was best known for his direction of the Actors Studio. It was there that he became the moving force behind the so-called method school of acting, forcing performers, in effect, to "become" the characters they portray so they will project the real emotion of a situation instead of simulating it.

Brando helped make the technique famous both on stage and in films — such as "Streetcar Named Desire." Other Oscar-winning pupils ran the gamut from Rod Steiger and Joanne Woodward to Jane Fonda and Sally Field.

Strasberg, father of actress Susan Strasberg, died six days after appearing in the "Night of 10 Stars" extravaganza at R: o City Music Hall.

Family spokesman John Springer said Strasberg suffered the heart attack at his Manhattan home at 6:30 a.m. and was rushed by ambulance to Roosevelt Hospital. Efforts to revive him failed, and he was pronounced dead at 7:56 a.m.

At the hospital with Strasberg, were his wife Anna, two children, David, 11, and Adam, 12, and actor Al Pacino, a former student. His two children from a previous marriage, Susan and son John, also an actor, arrived later.

Pacino was distraught later when he returned to the Manhattan apartment building with both he and Strasberg lived. "I lost my friend," he said, turning away from reporters and television cameras to wipe tears from his face.

Thelonious Monk Jazz giant dies of stroke

ENGLEWOOD, N.J. (UPI) — Jazz musician and composer Thelonious Monk, a giant in the postwar progressive jazz movement, died Wednesday of a stroke. He was 61.

Monk suffered the stroke two weeks ago and never regained consciousness. He died at Englewood Hospital's Coronary Intensive Care Unit, where he had been undergoing treatment for a brain hemorrhage since Feb. 5, officials said.

Monk was a self-taught and unpredictable musician who became widely celebrated in the mid-1950s.

One of his boyhood idols was Louis Armstrong and the major influences on his work were music greats such as Earl "Fatha" Hines, Art Tatum, Fats Waller and Duke Ellington.

Ford sees lawyer about printed insult

GERALD FORD
...angered by comment

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former President Ford asked a powerful lawyer to consider the "legal ramifications" of a profane insult by industrialist Justin Dart, a close friend and adviser to President Reagan.

Bob Barrett, a Ford aide, said Ford asked Washington attorney Edward Bennett Williams for legal advice after a profile of Dart containing the quote appeared earlier this month in the Los Angeles Times.

"President Ford has not retained Mr. Williams in a formal way, but asked him to look into it as a close associate and longtime personal friend," Barrett said. "It would be a mistake to assume otherwise."

Dart, a member of Reagan's "kitchen cabinet" and a longtime adviser, made the remark to Times reporter Bella Stumbo on a flight from Palm Springs after discovering Ford was on the plane.

"Jerry's a nice man but he's not very smart," Dart said. "Actually, our sealmate is a dumb bastard." He then added, "As a president, Ford was pretty much of a nothing."

In a telephone interview from Vail, Colo., Barrett said the former president was "madder than a wounded grizzly bear" when he read the story.

But he refused to confirm a Newsweek report that Ford was considering a libel suit against Dart.

He said Williams had been asked only to consider the "legal ramifications" of the remarks, and said the matter "is not totally finalized."

"It's floating around a little bit right now," he added. "I think eventually it will just die."

Williams could not be reached for comment.

Dart, a Southern California millionaire who is an influential GOP fundraiser, attempted to have a letter of apology delivered to Ford on Feb. 7, the day after the article appeared.

In the letter, which was read to Ford several days later, Dart said he was "enormously distressed and ashamed" by the quotation.

Barrett said Ford has calmed down since first reading the story.

Jury asks life term for Cline

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — A district court jury Wednesday ordered convicted Las Vegas Hilton arson-murderer Phillip Bruce Cline to a sentence of life in prison without the possibility of parole.

The nine-woman, three-man jury ruled that mitigating circumstances presented by the defense outweighed aggravating circumstances offered by the prosecution and decided Cline should not die in the Nevada gas chamber as prosecutors had asked.

The defense had argued that building code violations contributed to the death of eight tourists in the Feb. 10, 1981, fire.

The jury, the same panel that convicted the former busboy following a 28-day trial, decided Cline's punishment in the second day of deliberation in the penalty phase of the legal proceedings.

Jurors had a choice of three punishments — death in the gas chamber or life with or without the possibility of parole.

Cline was specifically charged with one count of first degree arson and eight counts of first degree murder. In addition to the eight deaths, several hundred were injured and damage to the gambling resort totaled $28 million including lost revenue.

Firebombing suspect held

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The brother of the accused assassin of Turkish Consul General Kemal Arikan is being held on $1 million bail for allegedly hurling firebombs at the diplomat's home.

Harout Sassounian pleaded innocent Tuesday to one count of arson and one count of possessing a destructive device. Municipal Court Judge Sam Mayerson ordered the suspect held on $1 million bail pending a bail reduction hearing Feb. 25.

The 26-year-old arson suspect is the brother of Hampl "Harry" Sassounian, 19, who is charged with the Jan. 28 ambush-slaying of Arikan at a Westwood intersection. The younger Sassounian is being held without bail pending an April 1 preliminary hearing.

Deputy District Attorney Dennis Choate said he asked for the $1 million bail on the older Sassounian because "he is obviously the brother of one alleged assassin, and the firebombing of the consul general's home is no small matter."

Layoffs may end in court

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI) — Washington State University Senate president William Iulo said the school "will probably find itself in court" for laying off tenured faculty members.

Iulo says the WSU administration is considering dismissing faculty members "under the guise of a state financial emergency."

The WSU Regents last fall granted the administration's request for a declaration of a state of financial emergency.

The board then adopted a set of guidelines for laying off personnel. Under terms of the state of emergency designation, the school has the power to lay off any WSU employee, including tenured faculty.

The state of emergency was sought and received after Gov. John Spellman ordered state universities to prepare for 10 per cent and 20 per cent cuts in their budgets.

Roosevelt cousin dies after illness

CARMEL, Calif. (UPI) — Nicholas Roosevelt, a diplomat, journalist, author and life-long conservationist, died at a Carmel hospital Tuesday. He was 88.

Roosevelt, a cousin to President Theodore Roosevelt, was known for his efforts to preserve the scenic Monterey Peninsula since he settled in the spectacular Big Sur area in 1946. He died in his sleep after a long illness.

Roosevelt's wife died in May, 1961. The couple was childless. Memorial services are pending.

Cold weather drains Jerome indigent fund

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — Cold weather and increased unemployment have taken a toll on the Jerome County indigent fund, Mel Grindstaff, the county commission chairman, said Tuesday.

"I think we have used about 60 percent of our total fund, and we still have to make it last through October," he said.

"The high utility costs this winter caught a lot of people by surprise," he said. "We have had to help a lot of our people pay for fuel costs during the past two months when cold temperatures required so much more fuel than normal."

Grindstaff said people coming in for assistance are "good local people who are just unable to find jobs."

He said the majority of the requests are from area families, rather than transients or people who do seasonal work and normally seek welfare assistance during slack winter months.

"We budgeted an additional $8,000 this year, anticipating more unemployment and hardships. But we didn't anticipate so much extreme cold weather," Grindstaff said.

He also said there are more medical cases than normally this year. The county has one medical and hospital bill alone, involving a premature baby, that may cost $20,000. He said the bill already is about $15,000 and probably will go higher.

Commissioner Henry Schutte said the county budgets about $45,000 for indigent assistance, plus a $20,000 emergency fund that is used only in the event of a disaster or widespread emergency.

Courthouse phone numbers change

JEROME — The Jerome County Courthouse has a new telephone system.

While there still are some adjustments to be made, the county commissioner says the new system will be less expensive and more efficient.

Commission Chairman Mel Grindstaff said the system, installed by Mountain Bell, eliminates the switchboard, one full-time operator and a reliever operator.

Although one full-time position was eliminated, there were no personnel reductions. The former switchboard operator has been transferred to the magistrate court to serve as secretary for Judge Roger Burdick.

Grindstaff said the county will have to put up with some confusion until the new telephone directories are published in March. With the new system, callers can dial directly to the department they wish to contact.

But Grindstaff said that since the public doesn't know the new numbers, all calls still are coming in on the county number listed in the telephone directory.

The one number listed for Jerome County offices, 324-8111, is now the number for the county clerk and the commissioners. Workers in the clerk's office are taking most calls and transferring them to the appropriate numbers.

The new phone numbers for the various departments are:

- Assessor, 324-7507 and 324-7508.
- Automobile license department, 324-7589.
- Treasurer, 324-7394.
- County health nurse and environmentalist, 324-7565 and 324-7566.
- County agent, 324-7578 and 324-7579.
- Prosecuting attorney, 324-7547 and 324-7548.
- Sheriff, 324-8844.
- Jerome city Police Department, 324-4313.

State withdraws funds for Jerome road work but City Hall benefits

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — A street project planned in Jerome this year will have to be dropped, but the result may mean the early completion of the City Hall renovation project.

Mayor Ralph Peters told Jerome City Council on Tuesday night that the State Department of Transportation will not make its 90 percent cost-share funding available this year as planned, for improvements on Fillmore Street.

As a result, council is proposing using federal revenue-sharing money, originally earmarked as local matching money for the street project, to complete an additional phase of the City Hall renovation work.

"If we budget local tax money, we are locked in and can't use the money for anything else," Peters said. "We can transfer revenue-sharing money, however, after an appropriate hearing."

The hearing will be held on Tuesday, March 2, the mayor said.

Because Fillmore Street is an arterial route through Jerome, the state approved using its funds for 90 percent of the cost of reconstruction, widening and resurfacing.

"We will still be able to start the project this fall, since the new (fiscal) year begins in October, and we will put revenue-sharing money back in the new budget this fall," Peters said.

Known as the Urban-D project, the proposed improvement includes all of Fillmore Street from Main Street to 16th Street. There is an irrigation ditch crossing the street, and work can only be done between irrigation seasons since the water must be shut off.

In other action Tuesday, council approved the appointment of Lanny Sloan as public-works director. He succeeds Gene Jenks, the temporary director who has served since Gib Williams resigned from the position in December.

Also, Peters asked council to consider selecting an engineer to study Jerome's domestic water supply. He said the city needs to go ahead with the study soon in order to be in a position to apply for grant money to upgrade the existing system.

Jim Trentham, Filer police chief, and his department will try to find homes for stray animals, rather than killing them

Adopt-a-dog

Filer police seek homes for strays rather than destroying them

By KAREN MAIN
Times-News correspondent

FILER — The Filer police force may be going into a new line of business as a "dog adoption agency."

The department's renewed interest in finding homes for homeless strays came about with the completion of the new dog pound last month.

Although Filer police officers always have doubled as part-time dogcatchers, construction of the new pound increased those duties.

Since the canines cannot escape from the new cinder-block facility and the five kennels that hold additional animals, more dogs that are running loose can be picked up.

And more dogs captured means a greater number of animals destined to be destroyed if the owners cannot be found.

However, the officers would rather do anything than be responsible for the demise of animals.

So the Police Department has decided to make an all-out attempt to either reunite dogs with their owners or find the dogs a new family.

"I hate to have to dispose of animals," police Chief Jim Trentham says. "I'd rather have them adopted out."

"It's not one of the more choice jobs we like to do," Officer Gary Roehl says. "I'd rather shovel snow from City Hall."

Trentham advised citizens last month that the city's new comprehensive dog ordinance, which went into effect last year, would be enforced strictly.

"The police tried to let everyone know when they were going to clamp down," police Commissioner Wanda Shaffer said.

The revised ordinance provides that dogs that can be identified are to be held 48 hours to locate the owners. Dogs with no identification can be destroyed immediately.

However, Trentham says dogs usually are impounded two or three days.

By then, the police hope to have located the owner or found a new owner.

In January, Trentham says, officers brought in eight dogs. The owners of six of those dogs were found, and one has a new "parent."

Roehl says Trentham was the one who talked him into adopting his newest "family" member.

"I am responsible for that, yes," Trentham says, laughing.

Since he brought the pet home last month, Roehl says his two children "got so attached to it, it's hard to make them get to bed."

With that successful adoption behind him, Trentham started advertising locally for owners for the orphaned pooches.

"We're going to make more of an effort to find new owners for dogs," he says, "especially since we've got the new pound."

Before the installation of the new pound, Trentham says officers "would not actively seek out strays because of the facilities they used to have. But it was the best we had at the time."

"We've always enforced it (the dog ordinance),"

Roehl says. But with dogs breaking out of the previous wooden, two-kennel dog pound, "It was getting to be a waste of time."

"When people knew the old dog pound was not usable, they let their dogs run," Shaffer says.

Conditions at the dog pound are "1,000 percent better," Roehl says.

The cinder-block facility has five chain-link fences and cement floors "to wash down and keep sanitary," Trentham says. "Dogs can't chew their way out."

Once the finishing touches are on the pound, and after the winter settles down, Shaffer says the city will have a formal opening to celebrate its completion.

"Everyone's proud," Roehl says.

The next step will be to find alternative ways of transporting stray dogs to the pound.

Presently, the dogs ride in the back seat of the town's only police car.

With only a wire partition dividing a police officer from a friendly, panting dog, Roehl says, "I've never met a dog that doesn't have had breath."

Trentham says he has been "kicking around different ideas" on transporting dogs to the pound.

Right now, a vehicle just for carrying dogs would be a "luxury item," Trentham says. "It doesn't appear our budget will afford us to do that."

However, he has suggested to City Council that a retired person be hired part-time, who could pick up stray dogs in a portable pen.

"That is 'something we have on the back burner,'" Trentham says, bringing up at next year's meeting on the budget.

Lawyer says it duplicates state code

Jerome tables animal anti-abuse law

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — Although Jerome City Council took no action Tuesday night on a requested animal-control ordinance, its sponsors are not giving up.

The city's attorney, Robert Williams, told council he could see no advantage to the city adopting the Animal Protection Agency's proposed ordinance, since most of it is already state law.

He told council it would be a duplication, and the city has gone to considerable lengths to eliminate duplication by recodification of city ordinances.

He said the only provision not included in state law is the portion making it a misdemeanor if a driver strikes an animal and does not stop to offer help or try to find the owner.

After hearing Williams' report, council went on to other agenda items with no action taken.

The Animal Protection Agency requested the ordinance as a means of raising revenue for dog-pound improvements and operations, suggesting fines be earmarked for the pound and an animal-control program.

Mayor Ralph Peters said he had heard estimates that a new, adequate dog pound would cost $40,000 to $60,000. He said the city now is spending $17,000 each year for animal control.

Elmer Stroder, a Jerome resident, suggested the city adopt a policy similar to one in Payette, where when a licensed dog is picked up, it is taken to its home by the animal-control officer, and the owner is given the dog and a citation.

Stroder also said dogs picked up without licenses should be killed immediately, not kept at the pound for owners to claim.

Gladys Rasco, the president of the recently formed Animal Protection Agency, said she was unable to attend the meeting because she was stuck in a snowbank. However, she said the plans to call the mayor and ask for time on the agenda at the next council meeting.

"I don't think they gave an explanation of their reason for not accepting our ordinance, and there was no mention of the 10-point improvement plan needed immediately at the existing pound to prevent cruelty," she said.

Impounded animals are not treated humanely in the present facility, she said. If the floor is cleaned and disinfected, it does not drain, and animals are left to sleep in about an inch of water, she said.

Rasco said the facility is inadequate in other ways as well.

Has worn many hats in service to city

Filer councilman resigns to begin ministry

By KAREN MAIN
Times-News correspondent

FILER — One of Filer's councilmen is giving up politics to devote his time to the ministry.

On Feb. 6, John Glandon sent his letter of resignation from council to Mayor Perry Dyke.

In his letter Glandon stated, "My reason is other interests, and I cannot devote the time necessary to do justice to this position."

The main reason Glandon says he decided to quit was to work part-time as a minister for people serving time or recently released from jails and prisons in Idaho.

"I want to tell them there's something better," he says.

"I admit sometimes my attitude was not Christian-like at (council) meetings," he says. "But I've kind of cleaned up my act in a lot of ways."

Glandon had served on council five years. And he was appointed the community's mayor by the council for the two-year term before former Mayor Elden Ryals held office.

He also has served at various city jobs, from working as an officer in the previous marshal's office and Fire Department to maintenance.

"You name it," he says, laughing. "The only thing I've never been is city clerk or librarian."

After so many years of service to the city, Glandon says one reason "I chose to leave now is because I feel comfortable with the mayor and council. They're doing what they can."

Another reason he decided the time was right to resign was because "I got burned out," he says. "I had lost my interest."

Reflecting on his years as a council member, Glandon says, "I've been through some battles."

Police Chief Jim Trentham and I "didn't see eye to eye on a lot of issues, but we were friends," he says.

Glandon says two of the toughest decisions he made were voting to terminate former police Chief Randy Lammers and recommending that Acme Manufacturing's property north of the city be zoned industrial despite protests from neighbors.

But he says he always tried to vote "in the best interests of the city."

New Jerome police chief 'keeps the peace'

Jerome police Chief Darryl Cameron hired receptionist Patty Ward to handle paperwork

By LAURY MASHER
Times-News writer

JEROME — Aside from protecting the city, a large part of a police chief's job is dealing with people. Since he took the position on Oct. 1, Jerome police Chief Darryl Cameron says he has been working at "keeping peace in the family."

"The chief faced some unusual problems when he took charge of the Police Department, due to personality conflicts that arose between his predecessor, City Council and the county sheriff."

"Morale was down. We needed to forget the past so that we could regain confidence in our abilities to work together," Cameron says. "I feel our department has come a long way."

City and county officials who work with Cameron agree.

"I think he's a 150 percent improvement over the last chief," says Sheriff Eliza Hall. "The last chief was a smart and capable man, but we didn't have good cooperation between the departments. You lose a lot of law enforcement when the city and county don't cooperate with each other."

Prosecutor Bill Dalling says he feels Cameron has brought a breath of fresh air to the Police Department.

"The officers seem much more relaxed," says Ron Merkley, the juvenile probation officer. "Officers doesn't seem to be the tension and friction there used to be."

Magistrate Judge Roger Burdick said he appreciates Cameron's sensitivity to the needs of citizens and his willingness to take responsibility.

"When confronted with a problem, he isn't the kind of guy who says that it's someone else's fault," Burdick says. "Instead, he tries to fix it. I think he's an excellent addition to the city. I have a lot of respect for the guy."

Aside from quelling personality conflicts, Cameron also has made changes inside the department.

His latest improvement is the addition of receptionist Patty Ward.

Cameron hired Ward instead of a 10th police officer so that she could take care of the increasing amount of paperwork and keep the office open on a regular basis.

"We'd often been criticized before when people come down here (to the basement of the Courthouse) and find a closed door because all the officers are on calls," Cameron says. "This way, we can keep the office open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., and we have plenty of work to keep her busy."

Cameron says Ward will be more than a receptionist, however.

He has given her the option of becoming a certified police officer so that she can help with investigations, and he also has sent her to a recent rape seminar in Twin Falls, so that she eventually can be in charge of handling interviews with rape victims.

"We feel that in a crime of this nature, it's best to have a female handle the interviews," Cameron says. "It's a very traumatic experience, and I think it's easier for a victim to talk to another female. She'll work with an officer on this until she can handle the situation herself."

Cameron also plans to start a target-shooting program for his officers within the next few months, and he plans to set qualifying standards for his officers.

In addition, Cameron feels a Neighborhood Watch program also will help offer better protection to Jerome residents.

He said officers Mark Lockwood and Dennis Rinehart have been attending seminars and compiling information so that they can instruct citizens on how to help prevent crimes by watching out for their neighbors.

Mayor Ralph Peters says he is pleased with Cameron's work and improvements within the Police Department.

"The fact that I haven't received any complaints about him indicates that he must be doing his job the way the public wants him to," the mayor says.

Filer school board approves planner

By KAREN MAIN
Times-News correspondent

FILER — A Boise architectural firm, Gile-Armstrong, has been approved by the school board as the master planner for the Filer School District.

The master planner will evaluate the condition of the schools and then present the district with long-range recommendations for improvement.

The firm will "start almost immediately," Superintendent Sheldon Kovarsky said at Monday night's meeting.

Gile-Armstrong was the first choice of the Citizens Advisory Committee that made the recommendation to the school board. The committee needs professional assistance in its effort to evaluate problems facing the district schools, members said.

After the master plan is completed, the district can either retain Gile-Armstrong as the architect to implement any improvements or hire another firm. In other business Monday night:

- Board members agreed to furnish the school car and gasoline for five students to travel to the Smplopt Track Meet in Pocatello on Friday and Saturday.

- Gina Ochsner, the high school's student-body president, told the board that five girls will run on a mile relay team and in the 440-yard and 220-yard races.

- Students from throughout the West and part of Canada will take part in the competition.

- Larry Roberts, the high school principal, reported on the cost of a computer.

The district is considering installing computers at the high school to teach students how to use them. They also could be used for keeping school records.

- The board decided that each member will have a specific area of control relating to the school district.

By next month's meeting, members will decide whether they want to be involved with transportation, grounds and maintenance, finance or elementary or secondary curriculum and personnel.

- Board members discussed community education classes for adults, which will begin again in March.

- Kovarsky announced that April's school board meeting will be held in Hollister.

Ketchum council sets tentative date for vote on sewer plant bonds

KETCHUM — April 6 has been chosen by Ketchum City Council as the tentative date for voting on a $4.95 million bond issue to fund improvements to the waste-water treatment plant.

The date will not be adopted formally until council members meet with the Sun Valley Water and Sewer District next week. The district currently is exploring the possibility of issuing its own bond issue, according to Jim Jaquet, the Ketchum, city administrator.

Jaquet said it is possible the district will decide to accept half the cost of the necessary improvements, thus cutting in half the amount that would be paid by the city of Ketchum.

He said no matter what procedure eventually is decided upon for issuing the bond issue, there "has been basic understanding all along that we needed assent in both communities."

The bond issue would be used to pay for short-term improvements at the treatment plant, which serves both Ketchum and Sun Valley. The improvements have been mandated by the federal Environmental Protection Agency as a result of discharge violations.

Merchants begin planning for promotions

New Filer chamber launches contest for logo

By KAREN MAIN
Times-News correspondent

FILER — A contest to design a logo for the new Filer Chamber of Commerce is part of the chamber's initial efforts to promote the city.

At Monday night's meeting, members discussed asking merchants to donate prizes to winners of the contest.

Anyone with a Filer mailing address may enter the contest. The deadline for submitting entries is Feb. 28.

Jane Angles, a reporter for a Filer weekly newspaper, said she had contacted the schools, and art students also will be working on the project.

In other business, board members discussed renovating the room over City Hall.

Ron Stokesberry, a city councilman and the owner of R&S Excavating, suggested organizing the chamber, Fire Department, City Council and any other interested civic group to share the cost in refurbishing the upper story to use as a meeting hall.

Gayle Flinn, the owner of Flinn's Inn and the head of the chamber's community spirit committee, offered several ideas submitted by her committee.

Having an annual "Filer Celebration Days" sometime in late summer, giving the history of Filer businesses in a weekly article and greeting new individuals and businesses with a "welcome wagon" were three of the proposals.

A community auction to raise funds for the newly organized chamber was suggested by President Paul Sheller.

At the next meeting, members will determine the date of the spring auction and work on coordinating the other ideas.

Sun Valley council alters its regular meeting date

SUN VALLEY — City Council has changed the date of its regular meeting, according to Sun Valley Mayor Ruth Lieder.

Held on Monday in the past, council meetings now will be held on the Tuesday after the third Monday of each month at 3:30 p.m. in City Hall.

Lieder said the move is designed to facilitate meetings of the Moritz Community Hospital board, which are held on Monday.

"This way, the council can take action (in a timely manner) on anything forwarded to us by the board," she said.

Glandon

Glandon says that the person who replaces him on the council should "have an open mind. Do a lot of soul-searching and researching before you make a decision."

At the council meeting in March, the mayor will make a recommendation to council on naming a replacement for Glandon.

Glandon says he had thought about going into the ministry for several years since "the Lord told me. He woke me up one night in a dream. Then, it became real to me."

But it was not until recently that he sat down with his wife, Judy, and "rearranged my priorities," Glandon says.

After contemplating politics as his goal, Glandon says he realized "my heart's in the other one."

Glandon plans to contact county sheriff and police departments in the eight counties of the Magic Valley about passing out religious literature to inmates.

At a later date, he hopes to open a half-way house in southern Idaho to help people recently released from prisons adjust to life on the outside.

By stopping one person from "pulling another job," Glandon says, "you can save taxpayers a whole lot more money than I ever could sitting down there on the council."

Referring to his clean shaven face, which formerly sported a beard, and his recent haircut, Glandon laughs and says, "I decided to clean my act up. I'm not a politician now."

Foreign exchange student in Wendell faces three winters

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — The new foreign exchange student in Wendell will have to endure three winters back to back, but she doesn't seem to mind.

Andrea Alvear, 17, arrived early in January from Santiago, Chile, where summer was just beginning — and where winter will be starting when she returns in six months.

This is her first trip out of her native country and her first experience of life in a small community.

"I like the life in a town," Andrea says. "In the city, nobody knows anybody. Here, you know all the people, almost, and they are friendly, like everyone is your family."

Andrea heard of Idaho for the first time only one month before her arrival. Since Wendell was not on her map, she guessed her new home to be near Canada.

A picture of her host family — Lawrence and Peggy LaRue, and their children, Michael, 16, and Kristy, 12 — was Andrea's only security.

"I was nervous because I didn't know anything," Andrea says, telling of her confusing 28-hour plane trip to Twin Falls via Peru, Miami, New York City, Chicago and Salt Lake City. "Then, I saw Mom, and she said, 'Are you Andrea?' and I said, 'Yes,' and then I was happy."

After she unpacked her clothes, a sentimental toy dog, some jewelry and photos, the South American gave her new family their gifts — a copper map of Chile and a picture book about her country. She then bought a new coat, some designer jeans, a Spanish-English dictionary and began learning about life in North America.

Valentine's Day, fruit salad, wooden houses and school spirit were all new to Andrea.

"Everybody is worried about the games, if you win or not," she says. "We don't have that in Chile. They are not important like here."

In Chile, she says, most people work longer days, starting early and coming home to dinner at 9. Also, Saturday is a regular work day.

Students do not pick their own subjects; they are assigned about 12 classes, which are alternated during the week. Teachers, not students, move from room to room.

Favorite television shows in Chile, Andrea says, include "Mash," "Happy Days" and "Perry Island," all dubbed in Spanish.

And video games are the rage there, too. "We play Space Invaders when it's too cold to go outside," she says. "Winters are rainy there."

GOODING — A beginning knitting class will begin next Thursday, Feb. 25, at 7 p.m. in the Gooding County commissioners' room.

The cost will be $1 for three hours of instruction.

The class will be taught by Karen Eggersdorf and is sponsored by the University of Idaho Extension Service.

To register, call 834-4056. A list of supplies needed for the class will be provided at that time.

Wendell club sets public fish fry

WENDELL — A fish fry preceding the Wendell-Gooding basketball game will be held this Friday, Nov. 19, from 5 to 7 p.m. in the Wendell Elementary School multi-purpose room.

The event is sponsored by the Wendell Ski Club.

The cost will be $3.25 for adults, $2 for children, $5.50 for couples and $10 for families.

Gooding group gets drug grant

GOODING — The We Care organization of Gooding has received a $5,400 grant from a Minnesota foundation to continue its work combating drug- and alcohol-related problems in the community.

The grant, from the Archie D. and Bertha H. Walker Foundation of Minneapolis, will be used to establish a substance-abuse program in the Gooding school system.

In cooperation with school officials, plans are being made to send representatives to seminars in Minneapolis.

The money also will be used to purchase films and other educational material to be used in the schools and in a community education campaign.

Sun Valley Center elects officers

SUN VALLEY — Officers have been elected for the board of the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities.

They are: Glenn Janss, chairman; Jim Barnett, first vice chairman; Sharon Beapire, second vice chairman; Norman Fuller, president; Bill Limes, vice president; Karl Bick, treasurer; and Marlow Lockwood, secretary.

The following new trustees also have been selected: Jerry Blank, Jim Lockwood, Lolly Mezzies, Mary Lou Mickelson, Ric Ohrstrom, Carolyn Olbum, Ann Puchner, Dick Roberts, Carolyn Terteling and Bill Woods.

Greer Markle, who formerly ran a major Boston art institute and has directed the visual arts program for the Utah Arts Council, has been appointed executive director of the center, beginning March 1.

Ranger wins performance award

KETCHUM — A Forest Service snow ranger in Blaine County has received a $300 cash award for outstanding work performance.

Gary "Butch" Harper was given the award for outstanding performance as acting Ketchum District ranger in 1980, according to Jerry Davis, the district ranger.

Harper's duties include issuing avalanche warnings to the public and assuring safety in the operation of the Bald Mountain ski area by the Sun Valley Co.

Sun Valley firm wins film award

SUN VALLEY — Two films produced by Rickers Film Productions of Sun Valley won awards recently at the Travel Film Festival in Anaheim, Calif.

"Ski Alberta's Canadian Rockies," placed second for a foreign travel film in a government-agency category.

"Perspectives in the Wilderness," finished second in U.S.A. Travel category.

E.G. "Rick" Rickers, the cinematographer, editor and producer of both films, said the Alberta film displays the many facets of skiing, against the backdrop of Alberta's Canadian Rockies in the Banff and Jasper national parks.

The Idaho wilderness film was filmed in The River of No Return Wilderness Area.

"Ski Alberta's Canadian Rockies," a 23-minute film, was sponsored by the Canada West Ski Association, while "Perspectives in the Wilderness," a 14-minute film, was sponsored by the Mackay Bar Corp. of Boise.

Buhl library board taps president

BUHL — Rev. John Garbrandt has replaced Louise Franzen as president of the Buhl Public Library Board of Trustees.

Others elected at a recent board meeting were: Jan Wimberly, vice president; Carma Hamp, secretary; and John Wilson, treasurer. Cecil Childs was chosen as the group's representative on the Magic Valley Library System Board of Trustees.

New board members Wimberly and Childs hold positions vacated when the terms of Franzen and Earl Allen expired. In other business, Robert Leitch was appointed as City Council's liaison to the library board.

Garbrandt said he anticipates no changes in services at the Buhl Public Library.

In addition to public funding, he said the library receives about $6,000 a year in interest from an $80,000 trust fund established by Ed Homling. The terms of the trust state the money must be used to buy books, Garbrandt said.

Glenns Ferry chamber vote held

GLENN'S FERRY — Officers of the Glenns Ferry Chamber of Commerce were installed recently.

David Skyberg will serve as president of the organization. Other officers are: Jerry Health, vice president; Mrs. Jessie Flemming, second vice president; Elana Swensen, secretary; and Mrs. Robert Janousek, treasurer.

Board members installed were: James Juker, Alvin Joslyn, Larry Smith, Rev. Sandra Alden and Mrs. Lee Bybee.

New restaurant opens in Wendell

WENDELL — Authentic Chinese food now is available in Wendell.

The China Garden, operated by Chuck Wing Ng and Hilda Hundek, opened recently in a remodeled building, formerly the Old Timers Restaurant, off North Idaho Street.

"Business has been very nice," commented Hundek, who is originally from Louisiana. "The people are really nice. I think we're in the right town."

The China Garden menu offers 15 different main dishes, four combination dinners and a variety of side dishes and appetizers. Business hours are 11 a.m. to 10 p.m., with luncheon specials served from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., seven days a week.

Wing Ng, originally from Hong Kong, also has a Chinese restaurant in Rupert, which is now operated by his sister.

Guide dog fund drive under way

GOODING — A fund-raising drive that won't cost the donor anything is under way in Gooding County, organized by participants in the Guide Dogs for the Blind program.

Eileen Michols, whose family now has two guide-dog puppies, said participants are collecting the weight-circle labels from dog food bags.

Since the drive began, about 1,400 labels, along with some cash donations, have been collected.

"We are asking people who use dog food to clip the weight circles from the packages and drop them in a canister in their communitites," she said.

Major dog food manufacturers offer refunds for various sizes of weight circles, she said.

"Only persons feeding four or more dogs can qualify for the refunds, however, and we have more than that number now," Michols said.

The weight circles will be sent in to the companies for redemption, and the money will go to Guide Dogs for the Blind, the nonprofit organization based in California that trains dogs for blind persons.

Many of the guide-dog puppies are "farmed out" to 4-H club members or other young people for "social training" during their first year.

Anyone wishing to donate weight circles may call 934-4056 or 834-5187 for the location of the canisters.

'Labels for Education' campaign nearing end

GOODING — February is the final month for the Labels For Education campaign in Gooding.

Sponsored locally by the Parent-Teacher-Student Organization, Labels for Education is sponsored nationally by the Campbell Soup Co. and according to Kalle Child, the PTSO president, the campaign is receiving good response.

Students from kindergarten through the eighth grade are participating in the program. As of now, the seventh grade at Frum Junior High School has collected the most labels.

The label fund-raising campaign, which has been conducted in Gooding for the past several years, began in October and will end this Saturday, Feb. 20.

"We expected the response to be slow at the beginning of the campaign, but now the kids know that they have to hurry to get the labels in before the deadline," Child said.

One point is given for each label. It takes roughly 15 to 20 labels, or points, to equal one dollar, she said. The labels from Campbell Soup, Swanson canned food and Franco-American products are then redeemed for educational teaching aids and equipment.

Anyone who would like to contribute to the campaign may deposit them in marked containers at the elementary school, Frum Junior High or at one of the following Gooding merchants: Kendrick Pharmacy, Johnson Rexall Drug, Cook's Food Town and Safeway.

Hagerman to remove rodeo chutes in park

HAGERMAN — The white rodeo chutes in the Hagerman city park are scheduled to be removed as soon as weather permits.

Hagerman City Council opened five bids Tuesday and awarded the contract to the highest bidder, Randy Steadman, who offered to buy the chutes for $427.50.

Influenced by a public survey, council decided last month to have the chutes removed since the July Hagerman Pioneer Day is no longer held, and the chutes are no longer used. Tentative plans for the area include horseshoe pits, playground equipment and a picnic area.

Steadman, who works for Timberline Tree Service, will fill all holes, level the ground and do general clean-up.

'Copter saves 3 after night on mountain

AGOGA SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — An Air Force rescue helicopter snatched three men from the rim of a rugged southern Colorado mountain Wednesday.

The helicopter crashed Tuesday night.

Initial reports said one or more of the trio had suffered injuries. Two of the men worked for the state Division of Wildlife, which chartered the helicopter for aerial wildlife surveys.

The rescue helicopter, from Kirtland Air Force Base at Albuquerque, N.M., had been hampered by deep snowdrifts all night in an effort to reach the crash site. The ground team didn't reach the wreckage.

The helicopter crashed Tuesday about nightfall on a canyon rim overlooking the Piedra River 20 miles northeast of Pagosa Springs. It was the second Wildlife Division helicopter to crash in the area in a week and the third helicopter to go down in the southern Colorado mountains in two months.

Fifteen rescuers initially tried to reach the wreckage on snowmobiles, but were forced onto skis and snowshoes because of dense timber.

The helicopter, which belonged to Roberts Helicopters of Colorado Springs, was piloted by Larry Nelson of Colorado Springs. His passengers were the evening district wildlife manager in Pagosa Springs, and Don Masden, a wildlife biologist from Montrose.

The helicopter had been surveying bighorn sheep and elk herds in the mountains and was returning to Pagosa Springs when it went down, said division spokesman Arch Andrews. Andrews said the first report of the crash came from a Mayday signal picked up by a Frontier Airlines pilot.

Andrews said initial radio contact with the downed chopper indicated two of the men suffered back injuries. Andrews said there was "no immediate indication" why the helicopter went down.

per. She said a photographer came out later and snapped her picture as she stood alongside the 6-foot-high bomb, which had been rolled into a standing position.

Now, she says, the Air Force has a "much better attitude."

Mrs. Dickenson said Air Force representatives visited her Tuesday to show her the map of the Melrose Bombing Range.

"Yes, we looked at the map, and they assured us that all we had to do is call them when (the airplanes) flew over our house . . . that they would let the pilots know that they were doing what they ought not to do," she said.

She said she would have been unaware of last week's near-miss, but an Air Force official asked permission to go into her pasture a mile from her house to retrieve the bomb.

"It's not so much the distance, as the time," she said. A delay of five seconds in the release by the supersonic jet, she said, would have sent the 850-pound bomb crashing into her home.

Airmen admit hazard exists

MELROSE, N.M. (UPI) — A woman whose house is precariously close to a target area for dummy bombing runs says she thinks a bit of negative publicity has caught the Air Force's attention.

Joann Dickenson, who was away from home a week ago when an 850-pound bomb and "incendiary" bomb slammed to Earth a mile from her house, says her relationship with the Air Force after past incidents was cool.

She said Air Force officials usually "just had negative replies . . . like that they weren't doing any wrong . . . that they had every right."

Air Force planes and National Guard aircraft from Albuquerque use the Melrose Bombing Range for practice. Sometimes bombs have landed near Mrs. Dickenson's home 14 miles north of the range, and near Troyce and Donna Mitchell's residence as well.

After the most recent incident, Mrs. Dickenson said she reported the near-miss to a Clovis newspamining claims out of 19 acres held by the heirs of Paul Trooster. Mrs. Saragoza and Mrs. Draper say they and the other heirs — her 80-year-old mother and a cousin — are willing to lease the 19 acres to Trooster, but don't want to lose ownership of the property.

The women said they returned to Las Vegas to meet with their lawyers in preparation for fighting it out with Getty in court.

Getty has also filed a second condemnation suit. It seeks ownership of 92 acres in Mercur from the heirs of Dr. J. Floyd Cannon. The Cannon heirs have refused to sell to Getty.

Mercur, a one-time gold boom town, declined into a ghost town after 1917. Getty has sold it plans to employ 200 people mining, concentrating and refining gold in Mercur by 1983.

First round to Getty, mining heirs concede

MERCUR, Utah (UPI) — Two Las Vegas, Nev., women who are fighting Getty Mining for control of gold claims staked out by their late father returned home Wednesday.

They landed in the first round of the battle to the giant International Corporation.

But Paula Trooster Saragoza and Helen Trooster Draper say they still hoped to win the war. On Tuesday, they kept Getty crews off their land unmoored by padlocking a gate.

The crews, preparing to resume gold production in Mercur, re-entered land owned by the heirs of Paul Trooster. The company, an arm of Getty Oil, went to Third District Court Tuesday and obtained a temporary restraining order which forced the women to unlock the gate.

Getty has filed a condemnation suit seeking ownership of 64 acres of mining claims out of 19 acres held by the heirs of Paul Trooster. Mrs. Saragoza and Mrs. Draper say they and the other heirs — her 80-year-old mother and a cousin — are willing to lease the 19 acres to Trooster, but don't want to lose ownership of the property.

Ship puzzle unsolved

KALAMA, Wash. (UPI) — The question of who cut loose a burning 600-foot grain freighter from a Columbia River pier remained a mystery Wednesday.

Meanwhile, the Coast Guard contained the stubborn blaze to the beach by stern for a fourth day.

A Coast Guard firefighter died Tuesday of head injuries suffered in an explosion aboard the ship, Edward A. Carbaugh, 23, of Tumalo, Ore., died in a Portland hospital from injuries received when a huge blast buckled a bulkhead on the ship early Monday.

The blast, which sent flames shooting 40 feet into the sky, also injur-

Chief Warrant Officer Joseph Hoffman, 41, of Vancouver, Wash., who was seriously but stable condition.

Cur LaRoy, a grain handler from North Pacific Grain Growers, said Monday he had cut the ship loose. But Tuesday, he said the move actually was made by one of his employers who feared the fire would spread to the wooden dock and huge grain elevators.

Officials for the grain elevator company declined to comment on LaRoy's statement.

But Kalama Fire Chief Mike O'Neil said whoever cut the ship loose made the right decision.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF WASHINGTON FOR ISLAND COUNTY

In Re the Interest of a Minor Child to be born to MARY JANE SWARTZ and JOHN BAKER, Infant Swartz.

NO. A-2001

NOTICE OF PETITION FOR TERMINATION OF PARENT/CHILD RELATIONSHIP

TO: JOHN BAKER FROM: ISLAND COUNTY SUPERIOR COURT

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN TO JOHN BAKER, alleged father, that the Petition for Termination of the Parent/Child Relationship between JOHN BAKER and the child expected to be born to the petitioner, Mary Jane Swartz, was filed on March 29, 1982, has been filed in this court.

The approximate date and location of conception of the expected child was mid to late June, 1981 at Twin Falls, Idaho.

You have the right under Chapter 26.26 RCW to file a claim of paternity within thirty days or before the birth of the child or to file a Notice of Intent to Claim Paternity directly in a responsive pleading in this cause of action under 26.26 RCW.

When this notice and a copy of the petition are filed with the court, a service is made upon you more than thirty days prior to the birth of the expected child, your failure to file a claim of paternity before the expected date of birth of the child shall constitute a waiver of your right to receive notice to which you would otherwise be entitled under 26.26 RCW and shall result in the termination of your rights and responsibilities with regard to the child.

You have the right to representation by legal counsel at all stages of the termination proceedings. If you are indigent you are entitled to counsel appointed by the court.

National Smoker Study:

Higher Tars Meet Taste Match.

Latest research confirms MERIT delivers taste of cigarettes having up to twice the tar.

To date, only one low tar cigarette has proven it can equal or surpass the taste of higher tar leaders.

That cigarette: MERIT.

MERIT Clear Choice In New Tests.

In impartial new tests where brand identity was concealed, the overwhelming majority of smokers reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands.

Moreover, when tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

"Best-Tasting Low Tar I've Tried."

In a separate part of this extensive new study, MERIT smokers report that taste is a major factor in completing their successful switch from higher tar brands.

Confirmed: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers say MERIT is an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.

Kellwood site purchase offer expected soon

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The first serious offer to buy the vacant Kellwood Co. hosiery plant in Twin Falls is about to be submitted.

Doug Vollmer, the president of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce, said Tuesday at the chamber's annual banquet that negotiations now in progress could lead to announcement of a sale within a few weeks.

Wednesday, Vollmer said the potential buyer is making preparations before submitting an offer, so that it will be ready to proceed if Kellwood accepts.

A Kellwood spokesman at the company's St. Louis headquarters said Kellwood has not yet seen an offer, but it is aware of talks with a company interested in the facility and expects to see an offer soon. Kellwood also has been told the potential buyer has done its "homework," said the spokesman.

The potential buyer is a different company than the one that expressed interest in the factory a few months ago. That company made an informal offer, but it did not have finances available to follow through when Kellwood expressed interest.

The Kellwood plant south of Twin Falls has been vacant since July 1980. The pantyhose manufacturer once employed almost 400 people and had an annual payroll of $3.4 million.

Details about the potential buyer are few. One of the 450 people attending the chamber banquet was a representative from the company, said Mike Dolton, the chamber's executive director.

He would say nothing else. "We're sworn to secrecy."

Brack Hale, the Boise real-estate agent representing Kellwood, revealed even less. "No comment," he said.

Vollmer said he has only dealt with a lawyer representing the company. He does not know the name of the company, what they would manufacture or how many people they would employ, he said.

Some roads southeast of Hazelton appeared more easily navigable by boat than pickup as high water made driving difficult

Aquifer level study set for Oakley Fan

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

BURLEY — The Oakley Valley could benefit greatly from a comprehensive study of ground-water use and recharge, an official of the Department of Water Resources said Wednesday.

But a study by the U.S. Geological Survey, targeted for completion this fall, will deal only with the newest problem area because funds are not available to look any farther, according to Norm Young, the department's assistant director.

Young told farmers from the West Oakley Fan area south of Murtaugh that the USGS study should pinpoint the amount of water entering the basin and help establish a water budget to keep well levels from dropping.

Pump tests scheduled for this summer also should determine the extent to which well levels in the West Oakley Fan are related to those in another critical ground-water area to the southwest, he said.

DWR Director Ken Dunn established the West Oakley Fan critical ground-water area — the eighth such area in Idaho — last month after preliminary data showed farmers were drawing between 41,000 and 43,000 acre-feet of water annually, while replenishment was estimated at 28,000 acre-feet.

The meeting Wednesday night in Burley was called to explain the director's action and to gather information from farmers affected by the ban on additional pumping.

The West Oakley Fan area is surrounded by three other critical ground-water areas established in the 1960s.

Stanley Szczepanowski, a DWR hydrologist, said monitors on three wells indicate that water levels have been dropping between 1.4 and 6.3 feet per year.

Farmers attending the meeting asked that the study be expanded to determine the source of water in all four critical ground-water areas. But Dunn said a larger study would require a larger budget than the department anticipates receiving from the Legislature.

Some farmers said they believe that while most of the water originates in mountain ridges to the south, a portion of the annual recharge comes from the Snake River or from irrigation seepage to the east.

Private wells will be measured to construct a detailed water elevation map of the area, Szczepanowski said, which should indicate directions of flow, since water travels downhill.

Pump tests will be conducted in an effort to determine the relationship between the water levels in the West Oakley Fan and other critical ground-water areas, he said.

Eden area phones disrupted

Flooding begins to stabilize

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Flood conditions in the Magic Valley forced residents from their homes Wednesday, cut telephone service and washed away portions of area roads.

Cooler temperatures Wednesday helped retard the melting of snow and consequently, water levels in most flood areas dropped. But many fields and yards still were under several inches of water.

Most county highway districts reported that water running across many roads had washed away shoulder beds and in some cases caused sections of pavement to collapse.

The Shoshone Falls Road, northeast of Twin Falls, was closed because of water damage. Highway officials said water was pouring down the grade for almost the full length of the road Tuesday.

All area schools were open Wednesday, but Lou Freese, the transportation superintendent for the Minidoka County School District, said there still were plenty of problems.

"Last week, the kids were coming to the buses by snowmobiles, skis and four-wheel drives. This week, they are coming on tractors or horses," he said.

"We have gone back to our point pick-up system that we used for snow-blocked roads, but this time, it's water and mud that keep the buses from completing routes."

In the Eden-Hazelton area, the water caused a number of new problems. Telephone service was out Tuesday and most of Wednesday. Ken Mann, the division manager for Mountain Bell in Twin Falls, said a wet cable caused the disruption.

"When we found the problem, we couldn't get to it because it was under about four feet of water," he said.

The damaged cable was adjacent to the railroad tracks, Mann said, so telephone workers asked the railroad to haul in about 1,000 feet of cable, and Mountain Bell service crews spliced it in, leaving it exposed along the railroad track, high and dry above the flooded area.

One Hazelton-area family had problems compounded by the weather. The home of Mr. and Mrs. Doug Kaserman, east of Hazelton in the Greenwood area, burned Monday afternoon. The family was away from home at the time, but firemen and relatives were able to save most of the furniture in the house.

The furniture was placed in a shop near the damaged home, but neighbors and relatives had to move it again Wednesday, racing to beat rising floodwaters. The furniture was taken to an empty home in the neighborhood, and the family moved in with relatives.

Gooding Highway District workers used dynamite Wednesday to break ice jams on creeks and rivers, especially in areas where bridges were threatened, according to Dean Sabala, the district's manager.

Thorn Creek peaked about 5 p.m. Tuesday and was receding Wednesday, staying within its banks in most areas, he said. However, a number of fields along Thorn Creek, Dry Creek and Big Wood River were under water.

Assistant engineer Dale Harding of the Shoshone Highway District said water was continuing to cause problems along U.S. 30 near Murtaugh, on Idaho 46 near Gooding and in several other areas around the district. But he said the biggest problem the district is facing is the increased maintenance costs caused by road surface and shoulder breakup.

Citizens will be asked to help set social-service priorities

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "Guns or butter" decisions about the allocation of federal dollars has left officials of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare wondering how and where to spend the "butter."

State officials are now devising a plan to get state residents involved in setting priorities for dwindling government funds.

In the next four to five months, the Idaho DHW will assess the needs for its Title XX social-service programs. These include child protection, homemaking and home health services, foster care, adult protection and sheltered workshops.

Title XX funds always have required some form of "needs assessment," but state officials are attempting to get communities even more involved with the process.

Ken Henderson, the chief of DHW's social-service bureau, and his staff have put together a proposal in which questionnaires and community forums will be used to help decide where Idaho should focus its social-service efforts.

"We have so many needs, we have to prioritize and meet the most significant needs first," Rich Donovan, the regional services manager, told the Region 5 DHW advisory board Wednesday.

"We have to decide what the community wants and make them understand we can only do so much."

Donovan said questionnaires will be supplied in the next week to local DHW offices. Questionnaires will be sent to "key respondents" involved with social services. They include health professionals, city officials, county commissioners, probation officers and community action agencies.

Interested individuals also may come in and fill out questionnaires at the regional DHW office in Twin Falls, Donovan said. He also has asked the board to suggest names of other persons who should be sent questionnaires.

Responses will be tabulated by the state Bureau of Program Development and Analysis. The report prepared by that agency will be made available to the public, according to Donovan.

Community forums then will be held in each region of the state to gather reactions to the report and to receive further input on area needs.

Donovan said the forums will be used to validate the information from the questionnaires.

Donovan said this approach differs from previous public meetings, which could be packed by various interest groups to sway officials' opinions.

A 16-member statewide task force will be appointed by Gov. John Evans to review the assessment procedures. Information from the questionnaires and forums will be used by the Bureau of Program Development and Analysis to draft Title XX priorities. The statewide task force then will review the draft.

However, the DHW already has fallen behind a timetable set up in December by department officials, Donovan said. He has not yet been sent the questionnaires, but he expects them this week.

Donovan said the plan would first concentrate on creating priorities for Title XX funds, but it may be expanded to include other DHW programs.

Ellis trying to withdraw from project

Idaho Power may get Banbury trout farm site

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

BUHL — Ken Ellis is trying to withdraw from a controversial project to build a trout farm at Banbury Springs.

Under an agreement proposed by Ellis, the project still could continue, though. The Idaho Power Co. would take his place on the water-right application for the trout farm.

The Buhl trout farmer already has put his signature on a contract that would give his place on the application to Idaho Power. The utility has had the contract for about a month but has not signed it.

Idaho Power has asked for clarification of some points in Ellis's proposal to pull out of the Banbury project, according to Larry Taylor, an Idaho Power spokesman.

To obtain the water right, if the application is approved, Idaho Power still would have to build a trout farm on the site, since the application says the water would be used for a trout farm. But if the company does not accept the offer to take over the project, it could risk losing the option to do anything with the water on the site, Taylor said.

Since the water application for the site across the river from Banbury Hot Springs was filed in 1978, Ellis has received much criticism from groups opposed to the project. Opponents say it would destroy one of the few remaining natural outlets of the Thousand Springs system.

But Ellis says he was involved only at the request of the Snake River Area Boy Scout Council. He applied for the water right with Coley Parrish and LeGrande Nelson, who were Scout officials at the time.

The Scouts have a camp at Banbury on land owned by Idaho Power. The trout farm was envisioned as a source of income to improve the camp.

Idaho Power at first opposed the application, but last year, it began negotiating to become a partner in the project.

In his contract to turn over his place on the water-right application, Ellis specifies that Idaho Power must sell the camp to the Scouts or sign a long-term lease with them.

Robber demands cash, then asks to be arrested

TWIN FALLS — It started out as a robbery when a Twin Falls man demanded cash from a clerk at a 7-11 convenience store, 1609 Kimberly Road, at 10:15 p.m. Tuesday.

The clerk complied, handing over $57 in cash. No weapon was involved.

Then, the suspect did the unexpected. According to a Twin Falls police, he ordered the clerk to call the police and then waited at the store until they arrived.

Arrested was Jesse W. Jones, 23, of 28 Holly Lane. After reviewing the evidence, deputy prosecutor Dennis Voorhees concluded Wednesday that the circumstances did not warrant filing a felony charge. So, Jones was arraigned in Fifth District Magistrate Court for disorderly conduct, a misdemeanor.

"There may technically be an argument for robbery, but the circumstances seem such that a robbery conviction would be ludicrous," Voorhees said.

Jones pleaded guilty to the charge. Judge Michael Redman sentenced the man to 30 days in the county jail.

Voorhees said Jones may undergo a psychological examination.

Chamber members honored at banquet

TWIN FALLS — In front of 450 people Tuesday night, Mike Dolton revealed that he had been with Doug Vollmer's wife in her bedroom, closets and garage. "I better explain that," Dolton added quickly. Dolton is executive director of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce.

a gift to present Vollmer in recognition of his service to the chamber. He found out that Vollmer's hand-pulled golf cart was broken, so he presented Vollmer with a new one at the chamber's annual banquet Tuesday. The banquet attracted a record crowd this year. The Holiday Inn banquet room, the largest in Twin Falls, was filled to capacity. The audience saw the presentation of a lifetime chamber membership to Bill Grange, who works in industrial relations for the Idaho Power Co. and is a former manager of the Twin Falls chamber. It was Grange who first encouraged Dolton to apply for his job with the Twin Falls chamber. Also, two men stepping down from the chamber board of directors at the end of their three-year terms, Larry Everton and Bob Alexander, received plaques.

Local officials lobby in Boise

BOISE — Representatives of 43 of Idaho's 44 county governments, including Twin Falls County, are meeting in Boise this week to put the final touches on a series of legislative proposals. The session, sponsored by the Idaho Association of Counties, began Thursday and will run through today. Representing Twin Falls County are commissioners Ann Cover, Marvin Hampton and Merl Leonard. Clerk Dick Pence, Assessor Dorothy Hamby and Sheriff Jim Munn. Leonard, who is president of the IAC, said the major county government issue facing the Legislature this year is a proposal that would give counties some protection against expensive medical bills for indigent. "No. 1 is catastrophic illness insurance," he said. "That's the No. 1 legislation we would like to see passed."

The measure would provide a $500,000 to $800,000 reserve fund to cover medical claims filed by poor people unable to pay their bills. That fund would be matched with a $2 million insurance policy to cover so-called catastrophic illnesses. Legislative approval is needed because the bill would require all 44 counties to fund the program. The proposal stems from the havoc played on county budgets by rising medical costs and restricted county revenues under the One Percent Initiative. Idaho law provides that county governments are the sources of last resort for indigent medical claims. Other proposals that IAC members will discuss include: • Increasing from $5,000 to $10,000 the amount county officials could spend with competitive bidding. • A proposal to repeal the state's Little Davis-Bacon Act, which requires governments to pay prevailing wages on public-works projects. • A measure that would give county commissioners the authority to set their own salaries, as well as the salary of the county prosecutor. At present, those salaries are set by the Legislature. Leonard said IAC members also may discuss a proposal that would remove district health department employees from the authority of the State Personnel Commission. An IAC committee is looking into the matter, but Leonard said he doubts whether a proposal will be submitted to the Legislature this year. Although the state sets the salary levels for district health department employees, those departments are funded by county governments, Leonard said.

S/LC stations returning to cable

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Cablevision will return two Salt Lake City television stations to its system within a month, according to Gene Rittour, Cablevision's area manager. Cablevision recently received approval from the Federal Communications Commission to add the stations. It has also received the equipment many people will need to rent or buy to allow them to receive the stations. Salt Lake City stations KSL, a CBS affiliate, and KUTV, an NBC affiliate, will be broadcast on mid-band channels "D" and "G," Rittour said. Those channels are actually on frequencies between conventional channels 6 and 7. Many newer television sets have tuning systems designed to receive mid-band channels. Other cable subscribers will require special channel selectors to receive the Salt Lake City stations. These can be rented for $1.50 a month, Rittour said. He estimated that 3,000 subscribers will want the selectors and that another 3,000 probably have televisions capable of receiving mid-band channels. The company serves about 14,000 subscribers in Twin Falls, Jerome and Gooding counties. Cablevision stirred controversy last fall when it removed the Salt Lake City stations from its system. The stations had been available on cable in this area for up to 20 years. They were replaced by Boise stations. Cablevision used the money it saved when it stopped bringing Salt Lake City stations here by microwave to begin offering the services of an all-sports network, an all-news network and a combination children's and cultural station. None of those services will be lost, nor will the Boise stations be replaced, because the two Salt Lake City stations agreed to pay the cost of sending their signal to Twin Falls by microwave.

Burglars steal items worth $7,300 from area homes

TWIN FALLS — Thieves stole an estimated $7,300 in items from two Twin Falls residents Tuesday. Twin Falls police said someone removed an estimated $6,460 worth of jewelry and household items from the home of Steven Berg, 217 Lincoln St. The burglar entered the home through an unlocked door between 9 a.m. and 12:15 p.m., according to police. Meanwhile, Kent Heller, 1410 11th Ave. E., told police someone forcibly entered his car between 11 p.m. Monday and 9 a.m. Tuesday and removed an estimated $820 worth of stereo equipment.

Novak turns old jewelry into shiny framed collages

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — J.A. Novak will be 88 next week but he's too busy to worry about aches and pains.

He produces framed pictures which are collages using everything from castoff jewelry to greeting cards. While the ingredients are often second hand, the result is artistic, symmetrical and definitely first class.

A retired carpenter and contractor, Novak also writes religious poetry, the inspiration for which he says comes from God.

An unpretentious man, Novak makes no claim to literary ability, but says he simply writes down what comes to him.

"I was lying in bed one night when I woke up with words going through my mind," he said. He ignored them and went back to sleep but when he was awakened the third time he turned on the light and wrote his first poem.

That was some 20 years ago and he has since had a booklet of his verses privately published. One of his daughters writes for the religious section of a newspaper in Lovelock, Nev., and he shares some of his work with her.

"I write all the time," he said, literally "as the Spirit moves him."

But he doesn't just sit waiting for the Muse, divine or otherwise.

In his heated and comfortably furnished garage workshop Novak is busy turning piles of old earrings, buttons and other costume jewelry he picks up at yard sales into beauteous pictures for his six children.

While most of them have a Christian theme (such as the words Faith, Hope and Charity) with such symbols as the 30 pieces of silver for which Judas betrayed Christ, Novak currently is working on a collage with the words "Home, Sweet Home" in large letters. Pictures of the individual families of his children will be balanced between the jeweled borders.

The craftsman can't even estimate the number of hours required to complete one of the framed pictures as every piece is individually glued and the work is a project of love, not for sale.

Novak did sell the first one of such pictures he made, which was made for the top of a coffee table, for $50.

"When my daughter found out I'd sold it she was pretty upset because she wanted it," he laughed. He is back in her good graces, having already given one such creation to each of his daughters. He is now completing one for each son.

Novak worked in his contracting business now operated by his oldest son, Lyle, until he was about 70. "I got the flu so I had to quit," the slender man said. But he said he "had to have something to do" so he started repairing bicycles.

"Man, was I busy," he said of that project which he also quit, after eight or nine years, before switching to working with jewelry.

Novak and his oldest son came to Idaho June 17, 1940. They were actually headed for Oregon where Mrs. Novak had relatives, but they ran out of money and so were forced to stop in Twin Falls.

Fortunately, they had friends in this area and were able to get work doing everything from picking fruit and spuds to topping onions.

"We did anything we could find," he said of those slimy times.

After Mrs. Novak and the rest of the children arrived they lived east of Buhl in a little tenant house for which they paid $8 per month, with water and electricity furnished.

He knew the lumber business because he had worked as manager of a lumber yard in Miller, Neb., for 21 years, so this knowledge led him into carpentry work in Twin Falls. They moved here in 1959 from Buhl.

"I wish I had a picture of every house we've built," Novak said.

A native of Howells, Neb., where he was born Feb. 23, 1896, Novak had a traumatic early childhood. His parents died about two weeks apart from some kind of poisoning when he was very small and a "family friend" who took care of Novak and his brother and sister used to beat him. So the three orphans were put in the Child Saving Institute at Omaha.

One night Novak said he awakened in the middle of the night to find his brother getting dressed. The older boy was being put on a train at 2 a.m. for Norfolk, Neb., where he was adopted. They did not see each other for 16 years.

But Novak was not left in the orphanage. A family named Arnold wanted a little boy to sit with the wife who was bedfast while her husband was out farming.

At the age of about 5, little Novak was put on a train with only an identification tag in his coat lapel for the trip to his new home in Miller, Neb., where "Mr. and Mrs. Arnold" adopted him with a team and buggy.

The Arnolds provided a loving home for both Novak and his sister, whom they also got from the orphanage after he cried because he missed her.

The young boy sat with Mrs. Arnold, brought her water and kept her company. Once, when she asked him to get her a pillow he looked at her blankly, for he did not know that word in English.

She at first thought the child was retarded but the Arnolds wrote back to Omaha and learned that their adopted children were Bohemian. Despite the fact that Arnold had told the orphanage he "didn't want a darn furriner," by that time they already were food of them, prejudices were forgotten and the couple raised the two orphans to adulthood.

Novak only went through the eighth grade as he had to stay out of school to do farm work as he got older. He continued to live with the Arnolds until he married.

One day as he rushed around the corner of his lumber yard he ran smack into a young music teacher. Both were trying to get to the train depot, she to catch the train to her home in the next town and he to leave his business mail.

Novak found out her name was Grace Hart and the next time she was in town to give music lessons he asked for a date. She delayed an answer until she asked friends about him and "found out he was a fine young man."

Their marriage, April 18, 1923, has lasted nearly six decades.

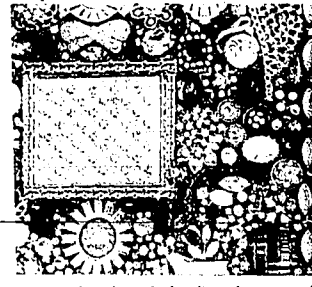

Their children include Lyle and Larry Novak, both of Twin Falls; Norman Novak of Fresno, Calif.; Ronald Novak of Grants Pass, Ore.; Jo Ann Meredith of Lovelock and Marilyn Ashford of Boise.

During World War II Novak worked briefly in defense work in Brigham City, Utah, and then in Richland, Wash., before returning to this area. It was while living at Kennewick that he experienced conversion to Christianity although he said he had been "churchy" all his life. The Novaks are active in the Faith Assembly of God Church in Twin Falls.

The couple lived on Harrison Street in Twin Falls for 20 years but now are in smaller quarters on Fillmore where he keeps busy turning other peoples' discards into unique pictures.

By LOU COTTIN
Newspaper Enterprise Association

It's a sneaky trick.

The administration's effort to reduce the amount of our Social Security payments and other entitlements goes right on.

Now the Labor Department is recalculating the Consumer Price Index, which is used to adjust our benefits to account for inflation.

The revised figures will most likely, be unfair. Expect a reduction in the cost-of-living increases allotted to recipients of Social Security, Supplemental Security Income, health and other benefits.

Like other cost-of-living indices, the Consumer Price Index is based on a theoretical "market basket" of items — ranging from bread to housing — bought by a typical American consumer.

The planned change will reduce the housing component of the index by including the cost of renting a home rather than the cost of buying one.

Fish Sommers, president of the Older Women's League, contends that this will be unfair to older people — women and men. She sees the move as "a away to make deeper cuts in entitlements needed for survival by the elderly."

The CPI adjustment does not have to be approved by Congress. The administration saves money at the expense of the aged.

Some statisticians have criticized the CPI because it permits over-compensation of Social Security recipients in times of high home prices and interest rates.

Most older people, they argue, are not about to buy a new house.

But others point out that if all the CPI components were especially weighted for old people, the housing allowances would be offset.

The reason is simple: older people have higher expenses for fuel, utilities, food and medical care.

"Social Security recipients need 25 percent more for food," says Thomas Borzilleri, the consultant economist to the American Association of Retired Persons. "They spend 100 percent more than others for fuel, utilities and medical care."

"The new CPI measures understate the level of inflation for those at the bottom of the economic ladder."

The important factor here is that the "market basket" of goods purchased by the general population is not the same as the "market basket" purchased by the elderly population.

and middle-income Americans, accurately reflect buying by the neediest segment of the population.

Therefore, the "market basket" should be readjusted to reflect poor people's purchases. The least that Congress should do is to study and reject the new CPI statistics produced by the Department of Labor.

Congress must act before the administration decides to use the new figures to reduce the benefits for those getting Social Security, SSI and other entitlements.

Dear Abby

Grandma should take no chances about pregnancy

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I read in the newspaper that a 50-year-old grandmother of eight just gave birth to twin boys in Michigan. I'm sure it wasn't planned, and now I'm worried because I'm also 50 and a grandmother, and if it could happen to her it could happen to me.

Abby, I have a fairly active sex and thought child-bearing years were over, but how can I be sure, haven't used any birth control for the last five years. I thought I didn't have to. At what age is a woman safe?

—NERVOUS IN NEVADA
DEAR NERVOUS: Don't go by age. Ask your gynecologist and take no chances. Medical records show that a baby was born to a woman in her 54th year. And biblical history (Genesis 21) reveals that Abraham's wife Sarah, laughed when she learned that at age 90 she was pregnant, which today would be no laughing matter.

DEAR ABBY: You recently published a letter from a housewife complaining because she had guests for Thanksgiving and her husband spent the day watching football, which spoiled the Thanksgiving dinner. You advised her to ask him either to sacrifice his football watching or to refrain from inviting guests on a holiday.

Why didn't you get with the times and advise that poor woman and thousands of football widows like her that life would be a lot less complicated if she or her husband would simply buy a videotape recorder and record the (stupid) game while the entire family enjoys a lovely meal together? Then afterward the football "nuts" can see the entire game together.

—WINNIE IN S.F.
DEAR WINNIE: It wouldn't work. Football "nuts" aren't content to wait until after the game is over to watch it on tape. They prefer the excitement of "seeing" history while it's being made.

DEAR ABBY: My husband was reassigned to the night shift some months ago. I work days. When he comes home at 2 a.m., he's wide-awake and ready for romance. I am already three hours into a deep sleep. He can't understand why I don't wake up ready, willing and able. Our weekend love life is fine, but the weeknights are killing me!

So how can I keep him happy and get enough rest at the same time? No jokes. This is serious.

—TOO TIRED FOR LOVE
DEAR TOO TIRED: The only viable solution is to synchronize your work schedules so you will both be ready, willing and able at the same time.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were talking about what we would do if the other one died first. My husband said if I died first, he would never marry again. Then I said if he died first I wouldn't marry again either. That's when he got a piece of paper and a pen and asked me to put it in writing!

At first I thought he was kidding, but he was serious, so I put it in writing and signed it. We're not old, Abby. He's 43 and I'm 42. What I want to know is this: Can he hold me to it?

—WONDERING
DEAR WONDERING: After he's dead, he can't "hold you" to anything.

DEAR ABBY: I work as a shampoo girl. I get only $1.75 an hour, which is practically peanuts. Please let people know they should tip their shampoo girls. Unless, of course, I'm wrong.

DEAR DISH-HEAD: Nobody should tip anyone unless he or she wants to show appreciation for a job well done. An extra-special shampoo usually delights the customer into tipping well and cheerfully.

If you aren't trying to satisfy each customer by determining what kind of shampoo she wants (heavy? light?), try it.

DEAR ABBY: "Fed Up With Football" gets no sympathy from me. So her man watches football all weekend — so what? She's lucky. He's there, she's there, and he's all hers. What more could she ask for? And a little love in at halftime helps even the score and makes the afternoon more fun!

Anniversaries

MR. AND MRS. DOMER W. BERTSCH

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Domer W. Bertsch will celebrate their 50th anniversary at an open house Feb. 26 at the First Christian Church at 601 Shoshone St. N. in Twin Falls. Friends and relatives are invited to call between 2 and 5 p.m.

Bertsch worked in a garage for 10 years, then served as secretary-manager of the Twin Falls Elks lodge and spent his last 10 working years at the Twin Falls Feed and Ice. He retired from the firm as manager in January, 1980.

Bertsch and the former Velma Grimm were married Feb. 18, 1932 in the First Christian Church parsonage and have lived in Twin Falls since their marriage.

Hosting the event will be their niece, Irma Jessa Mings and Judy Watson, and Bertsch's sister, Wilma Watson, all of Twin Falls.

Sauce:
2 cans (8 oz.) tomato sauce
1/4 cup ketchup
1/4-1/2 teaspoon dried Italian seasoning, sprinkle of oregano toppings, use mushrooms, peppers, cheeses, hamburger, Canadian bacon, olives, etc.
Combine all ingredients in sauce pan and simmer for about 1/2 hour. Put sauce on pizza crust and add your choice of toppings. Cook in preheated 350° F. oven for 20 to 25 minutes or until crust in golden brown.

EVOLUTION EGGS

The idea that complex things like Swiss watches, computer chips, the amazing human mind and eggs could spontaneously evolve or create themselves is definitely more amusing than scientific, as theories go, and the only evolution taking place in eggs lately is the constantly escalating price. You've probably noticed that the 50¢ per dozen eggs of 10 or fifteen years ago have gradually changed to $1.00 per dozen eggs today. Now that's evolution Darwin could really sink his teeth into, and when it comes to natural selection, Swensen's are sure that Charles D. and all his fans and critics would naturally select Swensen's eggs for low price and super freshness this week.

Large AA EGGS

ENJOY EGGS NOW AND SAVE!

P.S. Swensen's eggs are always so fresh you never have to worry about reverse evolution. When you crack the shell, no embryonic alligators, turtles, dinosaurs, ducks or chickens will ever pop out; just beautiful integral yolks, albumen and chalazas.

Putting out Minico's success comes down to all performing at 100%

By CHRIS HAFT
 Times-News writer

RUPERT — Give a pat on the back to one of Minico High School's wrestlers after a grueling match or practice, and he's liable to wonder what all the fuss is about.

For the Spartans, working hard is a part of life as essential as eating and breathing. They accept it as a daily routine. To expect rewards for their toll would be unthinkable.

However, the Spartans have been rewarded for their hard work. They have 11 members competing in this weekend's State Wrestling Tournament, giving Minico one of the largest contingents in the A-1 division. The Spartans would have a representation of 12, but 165-pounder Melbert Taylor was recently taken ill and will miss the tourney.

Minico's achievement culminates Coach Jerry Ennis' rebuilding process, a task he started four years ago when he took over the wrestling team.

In Ennis' first year Minico, a wrestling powerhouse during the 1960s which had fallen on difficult times in the '70s, won one dual match. "We used to be a joke," senior Ted Tateoka recalled.

"Since then, the improvement has been steady: four dual victories in the second year, six the third and this season, eight."

Last week the Spartans breezed to the Fourth District championship, winning eight of 12 individual titles.

"We set certain goals at the beginning of the year, and all of those goals have been met," Ennis said. "One goal was to improve our dual record, which we did. Another goal was to place in the top four in all major tournaments we entered, which we also did. The other was to win district, which we did in a big way."

It's all because the Spartans work in a big way. Ennis never wavers from his belief that any effort put forth must be a total, thorough effort.

"I'm very honest with them. If they're not putting out the way I think they should be, I say, 'Start working hard or leave.' It's probably very blunt to say that, but it's the way we feel, and it's worked out for us," Ennis said.

Indeed, "putting out" has become a habit with the Spartans, so much so that they attribute it to their proficiency. Tateoka and senior Bryan Grant were asked separately what has caused this year's successes, but their responses might as well have been in unison: "Everybody's putting out."

Ennis didn't have everybody putting out for him immediately. His first couple of teams weren't used to performing under such a stern taskmaster. "They rebelled," Ennis said.

Four Twin Falls seniors vow to give it their best shot

By MARCUS PRATER
 Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — There are only three days left.

That's the way four senior wrestlers from Twin Falls High School look at the start of today's State Wrestling Tournament at Meridian High School.

For Shane Cole, Bobby Galvan, Rob Pearson, and Billy Walker the next three days are all that remain of their high school wrestling careers — and they plan to go out in style.

Cole, a 112-pounder, has made the trip to the state classic the past three years, and although he has never placed high at the event, this year's tourney could be his worst. Cole has come down with a case of strep throat and hasn't practiced for three days.

"I have been healthy all season. I can't believe it. Hopefully I will be healthy by the time it (tournament) starts, but right now I can hardly swallow," he said Tuesday.

Even if he was healthy, Cole would face a tough task. His opening match is against Borah's Brent Lickiss — the returning state champion at 112 — Cole, who is 14-5 this season, is going to state via a 13-0 decision over Burley's Robby Jones in the district tournament Feb. 11.

Cole's philosophy about doing well is simple, "I have to wrestle the best I've ever wrestled," and about Lickiss, "I think I can beat him."

Galvan drew a bye in the first round

ROB PEARSON

BILLY WALKER

CURTIS GAMBREL

and faces the winner of the Barry Jones-Mike Roberts dual in the second round. Galvan has lost to Blackfoot's Jones in their two previous meetings this season, but he still hasn't lost his optimism.

"I think I can put it together. He has beaten me twice, and it will be tough to get by him," the 128-pounder said.

Galvan, 16-7 this season, is also making his third trip to state. He pinned Burley's Marty Hatt for the privilege this season, and said he hopes to improve on his sixth place finish last year. Rob Pearson is making his first trip to state and faces 155-pounder Mike Plesner of Blackfoot in his opening match.

"It's my first time and I am happy, but nervous. I've watched it before, but being down on the mat is totally different," Pearson said.

Pearson earned the right to go because of a second place finish at district.

Walker is making his third consecutive trip, and seeks to improve on last year's runner-up finish. The 167-pounder finished the regular season with a 21-3 record, including a second place finish at the district tournament behind Minico's Ted Berrie.

"I'm going to take it (first place). It is going to be tougher this year, because the competition is a lot stiffer," he said. "I'm going to have to wrestle all out. Go all six minutes with every man."

Walker opens the tournament against Highland's Brad Condie.

Because they are seniors, and this will be their last match in high school, the tournament's importance is greatly magnified.

"I'm trying to make my last few days the best," Galvan said.

"Last year's season, as a whole, was better because we had more tournaments (because two were snowed out this year)," Walker said. "But the state meet will be the finest."

Bruin Coach Andy Barron said that the four seniors play a bigger role for Twin Falls than most people realize.

"They set an example for the younger wrestlers to strive for," Barron said. "They become especially important when they are going to the state tournament, because that is where the younger wrestlers should be as soon as possible."

The senior foursome agrees with their mentor when setting an example for the up and coming grapplers.

"We try to work hard in practice," Cole said. "If they see that we are

Cooney postpones bout with Holmes

Torn shoulder muscles keep challenger out; new date June 11

NEW YORK (UPI) — The WBC heavyweight title fight between champion Larry Holmes and Gerry Cooney was kayoed Wednesday because of an injury to the challenger's left shoulder and rescheduled for June 11 at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas.

Cooney, who originally injured the shoulder last Jan. 11 while training for an exhibition bout with Joe Bugner that was later canceled, underwent a series of tests Wednesday and was diagnosed by Dr. John Bergfeld, a prominent orthopedist from the Cleveland Clinic, to be suffering from torn muscles in his left shoulder.

Bergfeld said Cooney would begin a series of strengthening exercises, under the supervision of his personal physician, Dr. Jeffrey Minkoff, immediately and said the challenger might be able to begin sparring within two weeks if he responded well to the treatments.

GERRY COONEY
the fibers are torn.

"He has partially torn the muscles adjacent to the rotator cuff," Bergfeld, who was added to the examination team at the request of Don King, the promoter for Holmes. "There are several muscles in the back part of the shoulder and many of surgeon for the Cleveland Browns, said that Cooney's therapy would consist mostly of a weight training program designed to strengthen the muscles.

Minkoff said that while Cooney was undergoing therapy he would continue with his cardio-vascular training.

Cooney, naturally, was disappointed with the postponement but said that the pain was so intense the past week that he just couldn't continue training.

"I'm very hurt that the fight is not going to take place in March," said Cooney. "I guess you people all know the kind of things Holmes has been saying about me (being afraid) and it would have been much easier if he (the pain) got progressively worse and I filed. I just want everyone to know that it's not the money that's important to me in this fight — it's winning the title.

"If the money were the only thing that were important, I wouldn't have said anything (about the injury). But the pain got progressively worse and I time ran out on us."

Cooney said that he harbored some fear that the injury could linger on but that he trusted his doctor and would follow his therapy plan to the letter.

"I'm confident with him," said Cooney.

Don King, Holmes' promoter, said he expected the champion to have a preliminary bout sometime before the fight with Cooney. He mentioned Jimmy Young and Tex Cobb as possible opponents for Holmes.

"These things happen in boxing," said King. "Holmes will probably be fighting someone within the next 60 days. He has to fight to stay in shape."

Cooney's manager, Dennis Stappoport, said he did not object to Holmes having a bout before the championship fight in June.

Holmes, the 32-year-old undefeated champion from Easton, Pa., had said Tuesday he had resigned himself to the postponement and had stopped training. Eddie Futch, Holmes' manager, did not feel the postponement would have any adverse effect on his fighter.

"He was ahead of schedule anyway," Futch said Tuesday night. "I had to keep slowing him down, it would only take him at anytime about four weeks to be ready to fight. He's been looking very good, very sharp, I don't anticipate any problems."

Garvey pessimistic on NFL $$$ talks

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (UPI) — The head of the National Football League Players Association said Wednesday he does not anticipate progress in contract negotiations with team owners until they "realize the players are ready to strike."

Players' union Executive Director Ed Garvey said the players will not decide until the July 15 expiration date of the current contract whether to report to training camps this summer.

Garvey, union president Gene Upshaw of the Oakland Raiders and several other members of the players' negotiating team told labor reporters at the AFL-CIO Executive Council mid-winter meeting they expect a hard bargaining process.

"We don't anticipate any progress until they realize the players are ready to strike," Garvey said.

Talks between the two sides at nearby Hollywood, Fla., began Tuesday and will resume today.

As bargaining began, Garvey handed the owners a demand calling for players to divide up a percentage of the NFL's gross revenue, and used 55 percent "as an illustration of how it will work."

He called the current system, where owners share television and playoff revenue equally, and divide up most of the ticket sales, "sort of corporate socialism."

"Most importantly, the playoff monies are shared equally, so that the worst team in the league makes as much money from the playoffs as the winner of the Super Bowl, Garvey said.

He said each team gets 1-28th of the revenue, so "if a player becomes a free agent... he is not worth anymore to one team than he is to the team that now owns him."

Garvey used Chicago Bears' star running back Walter Payton as an example of the problems with the current free agent system.

"Not one other team made an offer to him," Garvey said. "In a sense, the reason is that every other team owns 1-28th of Walter Payton."

Ex-star fired as Chicago coach; GM Thom takes over

Did Sloan spoil his own good thing?

By RAYSONS
© Chicago Sun-Times

CHICAGO — The first paying job the boy Jerry Sloan had been mowing the grass in a cemetery in his hometown of McLeansboro, Ill.

"His only equipment was an old-fashioned push mower. By working hard for seven days, wheeling the contraption between headstones and over milehills, he finished the job by the deadline of Memorial Day. He was paid $5.

"I wanted that $5 so bad, because I knew I could buy a bike for $5," he recalls. "I bought the bike, rode it down a hill right away — and destroyed it. I didn't know how to ride it. I'd never ridden one before."

Sloan didn't mean to draw a parallel with his experience in riding the first basketball team he had coached. But perhaps the analogy fits. A few hours earlier, he had been fired as head coach of the Chicago Bulls. If he had known how to stop a basketball team that was careening downhill, he wouldn't have crashed. The boy Sloan has done well as a manager for which he had worked so hard. Some would say the man Sloan had done likewise with the job for which he had worked all his adult life.

Knowing the man, I'm sure of this much about the boy. He didn't cry when he was crashed.

It was just a few hours after he had been fired when Sloan met the vanguard of a growing throng of reporters Wednesday in the office he soon would vacate. He had had a short night's sleep. After his team had taken its ninth loss in his last 10 games, he had stopped for a couple of minutes with assistant coach Phil Johnson and broadcaster Jim Durban. When he got home, he tried to call general manager Rod Thorn to find out if he still had a job. Thorn was irked. Thorn was up and on the line at 6:30 a.m. Now Sloan was sitting patiently for all of the painful interviews a lesser man might have shunned.

He had seen the ax coming, he said with a wry smile. ("My mother didn't raise any idiot children.")

Jerry didn't complain. He didn't rap title players who had not played for him or the bosses who had given up on him. He had been an original Bull, drafted by the embryo franchise from Baltimore in the expansion draft of 1966, and he would not quickly turn his coat.

JERRY SLOAN

"You can't give as much of yourself to an organization as I have, then turn about-face against them," he said. "What kind of a person would you be?"

Whose fault was it that this Bulls' team had collapsed after raising so many hopes with last season's strong finish?

"It's my fault. I really believe it's the coach's fault."

Some will say it is impossible to coach or manage today. The star is much better paid and much more secure than his coach. The coach can be fired tomorrow. The talented player will have a job as long as his legs last. Players often pay little heed to the coach. Players get coaches fired. We raised this alibi for Sloan. He didn't take it.

"I don't agree with that—that it's impossible to coach pro athletes today," he said flatly. "Some people (coaches) are very successful. The money players make has not been a problem with me. I don't give a hang how much they are making."

There must be a suspicion that money has had something to do with the Bulls' decline. Reggie Theus, their best player, has been dependent over management's refusal to renegotiate a contract that pays him less than teammates who are far less valuable. Artis Gilmore talls retirement, while exploring the possibility that his own pact might be renegotiated.

There is also the matter of an apparent difference in philosophy between Sloan and Thorn, who now has taken over as interim coach. Sloan prefers players who blend into a disciplined, controlled offense and a tough defense, the way he played under Dick Motta. Thorn has drafted and traded for players better suited to a dashing, breakaway style — Theus, Ronnie Lester and Larry Kenon.

Sloan is a man who likes to conform to fit his material, too inflexible in dealing with laggard players. He was a throwback to the days when loafers were spanked. He didn't find it easy to cajole.

In 11 years as a player in the NBA, Sloan was willing to pay a higher price for floor burns and bruises than the player of today. He was raised that way, as one of 10 children of a farmer and livestock trader who died when Jerry was 12.

Now that he is out of work just short of his 40th birthday, there is no need to feel sorry for Sloan. He will be paid for more than two years remaining on his contract, reportedly at $125,000 a year. To dispel any temptation to feel sorry for himself, he has only to think of an elder brother who farms Jerry's 800 acres at McLeansboro in his spare time, in addition to commuting three hours a day to a full-time job in an aluminum factory.

Getting the opportunity to coach the Bulls was "a helluva break," Jerry said. "It didn't work out, but I'm very grateful to Mr. Wiriz (Arthur) and the others (he named the other owners) and to Rod (Thorn). It's obvious things didn't work out... They had to make a change. I was to wish them all — a lot of luck, and I mean that sincerely."

"I'm very disappointed for the fans' sake. There's a little bit of sadness that we couldn't carry it off."

As for the players who could have sluffing off, then they think that they can do it."

Bruins

"Billy has kept an eye on the upper weights, Shane on the lower ones and me the middle weights," Galvan said of the seniors' watchdog role.

Barron said he is definitely pleased with the way the seniors have wrestled thus far, but cited the "magic" of the state meet as being a decisive factor.

"They will be out of school for three days, because state is the biggest tournament of the year," Barron said.

"They will just have to keep their minds on wrestling the whole time."

Twin Falls' Curtis Gambrel is also making the trip for the Bruins. The junior 155-pounder is replacing Minico's Melbert Taylor who is unable to make the trip because of illness. Gambrel placed third at the district tourney behind Taylor.

Spartans

As an example, Ennis noted that the season before he arrived, the team elected co-captains for the following campaign. After a week of laboring under Ennis, those paragons of leadership quit wrestling.

Just the reader think that Ennis patrols practices with a whip while driving the Spartans through hours upon hours of torturing drills, the truth is that he is similar to many wrestling coaches.

The difference is that Ennis, by the admission, asks more from his athletes than most coaches do.

"I just demand that whatever they do, they do it right," he said. "We stick pretty close to the basics, but when they do it they should try to do it right."

One Spartan who understands what Ennis wants is Grant, this year's district champion at 145 pounds. After a promising sophomore season, Grant didn't wrestle during his junior year.

"I had no interest," he said. "I didn't feel like it, and I wasn't doing the team any good."

In Ennis' words, "We decided we didn't want him wrestling because he wasn't putting out. So he didn't come out as a junior."

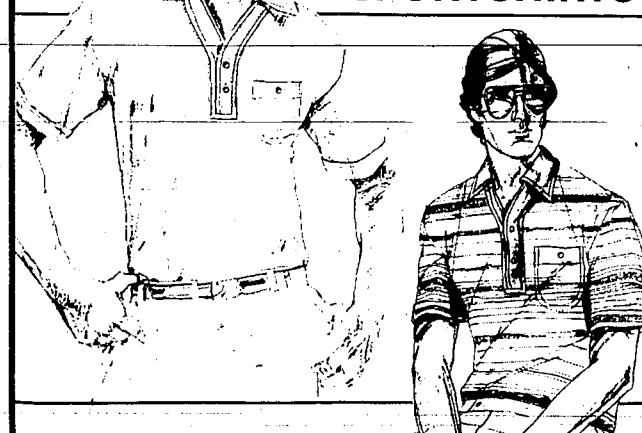

Knowing he would be facing arduous hours of practice — "All I told him was if he came out I wanted 100 percent, and that's all," Ennis said — Grant nevertheless decided to give wrestling another try this season: His attitude toward the sport, he said with a smile, has changed "tremendously." In essence, he matured enough to withstand wrestling's and Ennis' rigors.

"It's just that I wanted to do well," Grant said. "When I was a sophomore, I used to say, 'I've got another year. I've got another year,' but this year..."

Grant's presence has bolstered the Spartans, who strongly depend on each other rather than two or three standouts.

CSI squeaks by again—39-38 over Chukars

ONTARIO, Ore. — Treasure Valley got two shots and a tip attempt in the final five seconds of overtime Wednesday night but couldn't get any of them to go as the College of Southern Idaho scripped out a 39-38 victory.

Treasure Valley, trying to pull off a two-major upset in a row, got off a jump shot with five seconds left but missed. Kirby Ward tied up George Scott on the rebound and on the alternate possession went to the non-tip non-tieout to TVCC.

The Chukars got another jumper when then a tip by Larry Poston at the buzzer but again came up empty as Lebro Bates took the rebound that finally led it.

Bates emerged as the hero as he came up with 11 points in the second half, including three key slams off steals, that brought the Eagles back to Treasure Valley, fresh from a two-victory over Ricks Saturday night, led most of the night and had bulges up to seven points in the first half.

Freshman Phil Rohr provided the victory margin when he hit the first of a two-free throw situations with less than a minute left. But CSI didn't touch the ball again after that.

CSI's major problem was miscues on four consecutive possessions while holding a three-point advantage in the waning minutes at 36-33. Three turnovers and two missed free throws kept giving TVCC life but the Chukars didn't convert the first one — and then with a reverse three-point play. That came when Spencer Brookshier hit the first of two free throws, missed the second but got the rebound and powered it back up for the CSI points.

That came with 3:27 left and Cylt held the ball the rest of the way until Rohr missed a long jumper at the buzzer.

CSI controlled the second half tip but missed a 12-foot jumper. Bates then came up with his third steal and slammed the ball home for a 38-36 lead. Dave Derrick, who hit several key long shots for TVCC in the second half, tied it back up with a 20-footer.

Treasure Valley then came up with a steal but missed the shot and Rohr was fouled on the rebound, setting up his clinching free throw.

The Eagles, winning their third consecutive one-point victory stretching back to the Western Wyoming game, apparently took the Chukars lightly and almost paid for it.

Treasure Valley used a 2-3 zone to nullify CSI's height advantage and Greg Langley came up with first half's 11 points in a slow moving first half.

CSI closed its early deficit to one point with 10 minutes left in the half on two straight George Scott field goals but — Langley — came back with four points and Poston added two as TVCC moved into a 17-10 lead.

The Eagles, with Brad Blaine and Bates getting the closing points, narrowed that to 21-19 at intermission.

In the second half, Bates hit CSI's first eight points, fashioning ties at 23 and 25 and then sending the Eagles ahead 27-25 on a slam off a steal. After Brookshier tied it, CSI went to a delay in an effort to pull TVCC out of its zone but the Chukars didn't budge.

Gerald Kennedy, after CSI held the ball for nearly two minutes, hit a short jumper and with 8:55 left CSI had the lead and the ball for the first time in the game. Bates slipped inside for a slam to make it 31-27 but George Percin replied for another. A Bates free throw and another Kennedy bucket gave CSI a 34-31 lead and two George Scott free throws offset another Percin outside shot.

But — at the point — CSI went into its turnover rash, leading to Brookshier's three-point play and the closing minutes and overtime.

"We knew if they got the game into their tempo they'd be tough," said CSI Coach Dave Campbell. "Coach Carlyle Dean has done a miraculous job with his team. They're not big but they play with a lot of heart and they really made us earn it."

Campbell's Eagles went without point guard Ron Bechall for all but the final three minutes of regulation play due to a foot injury. Freshman Kenny Moore and Brad Blaine earned Campbell's praise for their performances in his absence.

"Our bench came in and did the job," he said, adding Bechall should be 100 percent for Saturday night's showdown at North Idaho.

Although the victory kept CSI undefeated in its quest for the regional tournament berth, it really didn't have an effect on that score. CSI still must beat North Idaho on the next two Saturday nights to get the home court advantage. A loss to Treasure Valley wouldn't have effect the siting of the tournament either way since a split by North Idaho would give the Cardinals the regional under a new regulation. In cases of ties, the regions go to the team having hosted the tournament; least recently and CSI held it last season.

Eagle women win, clinch playoff berth

ONTARIO, Ore. — College of Southern Idaho's women clinched a spot in next month's post-season playoffs by thumping Treasure Valley Wednesday evening, 85-64.

It was the fifth victory in five tries against regional competition for the Golden Eagles, 11-0 overall. Even if they lose the rest of their games they would still advance to the tourney at Oregon's Linn-Benton college as the region's second-place club.

Sharp 54.7-percent shooting keyed CSI's attack, which was led by Tammy Jarocik. The former Filtror star scored a career-high 23 points on a balanced effort; 12 points in the first half and 11 in the second. Many of her points came on jumpers from the top of the key.

Jeanne Morgan added 14 points for the Golden Eagles. Karen Harr pumped in 12, all in the first half, while Melissa Barler tallied 10.

CSI jumped to a 14-2 lead before "getting complacent," according to Coach Lloyd Hardesty, and allowing Treasure Valley to close within 38-33 at halftime.

In the second half, the Golden Eagles got several fast-break baskets and, in Hardesty's words, "really cranked it up."

CSI plays again Friday night at Flathead College before taking on Northern Idaho Saturday evening.

Boston College tips No. 12 Georgetown

NEWTON, Mass. (UPI) — John Bagley poured in 26 points and Boston College rode a 77 percent first-half shooting percentage to build up a 12-point lead it never relinquished Wednesday night en route to an 89-71 Big East Conference triumph over 12th-ranked Georgetown.

The loss snapped a six-game winning streak for Georgetown and dropped the Hoyas out of first place in the conference.

Patrick Ewing, Georgetown's freshman center who played high school basketball last year in nearby Cambridge, scored a career-high 23 points and had a game-high six rebounds. He was given a hostile reception by a 4,400 sellout crowd, many of whom used an old college trick of pretending to read newspapers when the 7-footer was introduced.

BC fans were miffed last year when he did not pick their school, which actively sought him.

BC did little wrong in the first half after falling behind 8-3 in the first three minutes. Bagley then began an 18.5 bits with a drive and a jumper and Dwan Chandler finished the run with an offensive rebound layup to give BC a 23-13 lead.

5 local gymnasts entered in state competition

TWIN FALLS — Five local gymnasts will try to earn berths in regional competition this week when the annual Class II Idaho State Gymnastics Meet is held at Sage Gymnastics.

Ellen Buck, Kristina Swenson, Kathleen Lehr, Mike Miller and Tracy Pfarr will be competing for the Twin Falls group in the two-day United States Gymnastics Federation (USGF) meet starting at 6 p.m. Friday.

"There will be about 60 girls from around the state in the meet," Sage Coach Judy Barkley said. "The meet is divided into three age groups; children (9 to 11 years), Juniors (12 to 14 years) and seniors (15 years and over)."

Other competitors will come from Mike Young's

Academy and WINGS (both in Boise), North Idaho Academy (Coeur D'Alene), Sportsworld (Pocatello), Teton Athletic Club (Idaho Falls) and from Ontario, Ore.

The top four finishers in each age group will advance to regional competition set for March 5-6 at Pocatello. The top placers will be determined by their combined scores in both compulsory and optional competitions.

Buck, Swenson and Lehr are in the junior division while Miller and Pfarr are in the seniors competition. It will be the first state meet for Swenson.

"Macie has been our leading scorer lately," Barkley said. "She has been very consistent on both floor exercise and vaulting. Kristina has been doing well in the same areas while Tracy and Ellen are our top bar people."

Friday's action will be compulsory competition while Saturday's portion, from 1 p.m. to about 4:30 p.m., will be the optional routines.

"Friday night the girls have to do exactly what is written," Barkley explained. "Saturday they will be able to do their own routines, but even those must meet certain requirements in them."

As for the team title, Barkley isn't sure who is the favorite. "Mike Young's looks good, but it will probably come down to who manages to stay on the beam."

The meet is being dedicated to Marge DiLorenzo, Idaho's state chairman for the USGF, who is retiring from the position at the end of this year.

Wyoming Oil Lottery Runs in March

BELLA VISTA, CALIF. (Special) — Hundreds of average citizens will win oil lease rights in upcoming public drawings conducted by the State of Wyoming. Some may achieve overnight wealth by selling their rights to oil companies and retaining lifetime royalty on any oil or gas production.

Inducement will risk no more than $25 and a minimal service fee to enter the little-known program that offers every American the opportunity to compete on an equal basis with giant oil companies for leases of public lands. Information and entry details are available from the Dexam Company, Inc. (Public Lands Division), 5000 Bechtel Lane, Post Office Box 9, Bella Vista, CA 96008, Dept. 22.

Please enclose $1 for postage and handling. Official entries will be rushed by return mail to permit you to meet the March 15th filing deadline.

Rams' Harrah, former teammate named in rape lawsuit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Lineman Dennis Harrah and a former teammate on the Los Angeles Rams have been named in a $1 million lawsuit by a woman who claims the two repeatedly raped her in 1960. It was revealed Wednesday.

Also named in the federal court suit were former Rams' coach Jeff Severson and real estate agent Jerry Scanlan, who both allegedly joined in the rape, and Robert Heard, a former Long Beach police officer accused of covering up the crime.

The suit, filed by 25-year-old Carol Kventik of Long Beach, Calif., claims the woman's civil rights were violated by the defendants during the investigation into the alleged rape at Scanlan's home in July, 1960 and by the subsequent decision not to file criminal charges.

Al Albergete, a spokesman for the district attorney's office, said no charges were filed because "there was no reasonable expectation that a jury would convict them."

No double winners so far on TPA tour this season going into 7th tournament

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Entering today's start of the Los Angeles Open at the Riviera Country Club — the seventh event on the TPA Tour this year — there still has been no double winner in 1982.

Lee Trevino said that shouldn't be a surprise.

"People should realize it's all over," Trevino said. "The day of the superstars is over and the quicker the public accepts it, the better off the sport will be."

Trevino said because of the wealth of talent on the tour he doesn't think anyone will ever dominate the sport the way Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Sam Snead, Ben Hogan and Tom Watson did.

"I know the people still want to see Nicklaus win," Trevino said. "They still root for me, too. They'd like to see Watson and (Johnny) Miller win more often, too. And we will. But not nearly as much as we used to. It's time for the people to start looking at the Pates and Kites and Haefners and Clampetts. They're the stars of the future, but don't expect them to win as much as a Nicklaus or a Trevino because we have too much depth on this tour."

The six 1982 winners — Miller, Wayne Levi, Craig Stadler, Ed Flori,

Lanny Wadkins and Jim Simons — were all scheduled to compete in the LA Open. But some of the tour veterans, including Tom Kite, the 1981 Golf Writers' Player of the Year, feel there will probably be a seventh new name on the 1982 winner's list by Sunday night. Kite was last year's leading money winner despite winning just one tournament.

"Every time you tee it up, at least half the field is capable of winning," Kite said. "There are always going to be players who win two or three times in a single year, and that's a tremendous accomplishment. But I don't think anybody will win seven in one year like Johnny Miller did in '74."

"We have too many great players now. All you have to do is look at the scores. It seems like someone is setting or approaching a record every week. The scores for the cuts are getting lower and lower."

Miller is the defending tournament champion. He shot a record 14-under-par 270 in 1981.

The 1982 LA Open will probably be the last at the famed Riviera Country Club. Next year the tournament moves to Rancho Park, 10 miles away, the site of the tournament from the mid 1950s to 1972.

1st half propels Spartans

RUPERT — The Minico Spartans came up with an almost flawless first half Wednesday night to sweep past the Pocatello Indians 63-38.

Minico went the entire first half without a turnover and wound up the night with just three. Pocatello had 16 turnovers.

Minico jumped in front 10-4 at the end of the first quarter and pushed that advantage to 21-10 by intermission. The Spartans lacked on 42 points in the second half to run away. Both coaches cleared their benches in the final period.

The victory gave Minico a 14-5 record for the season, the same as the junior varsity, which won the preliminary 56-44.

Madison beats Burley, 48-31

BURLEY — Junior center Dan Conway stung the Burley Bobcats with points and paced Madison's Bobcats to a 49-31 decision Wednesday night.

The Bobcats couldn't find any offensive punch in the middle two quarters as Madison, 17-3, outscored them 13-8 in the second period and 17-8 in the third.

"We just couldn't handle Conway,"

Coach Gary Swain said. "We let them get the ball inside too easily."

Burley's inside game was crippled due to illness by Tim Knight who carried eight of his nine points in the first half but didn't have the strength to come back hard in the second half against the 6-7 Conway.

Bowling honor roll

TWIN FALLS — Darrell Cardwell dominated the men's division in this week's Times-News Bowling Honor Roll.

Cardwell, participating in the Softwhirlers league, rolled a 265 for high game honors and had a 246 effort, good for fifth best. He also picked up a 220 in the Hoosen league for sixth.

The bowling honor roll is compiled weekly from results taken at Bowldrome and Magic Bowl.

Tar Heels average Deacons' loss

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — Second-ranked North Carolina, avenging an earlier loss to Wake Forest, got 23 points from James Wyatt Wednesday night to beat the 18th-rated Demon Deacons 69-51 in an Atlantic Coast Conference match.

North Carolina, 21-2 for the season and 9-2 in the ACC, never trailed and led 31-22 at the half.

The Deacons, 17-6 overall and 7-4 in the league, were led by Guy Morgan.

North Carolina was the top-ranked team in the country when Wake Forest went into the Tar Heels' Carmichael Auditorium. The Tar Heels, playing without center Sam Perkins, who was in the infirmary with the flu, suffered their first loss of the season.

Trailing 57-47, the Deacons fouled Jordan, who had previously missed three straight free throws. Jordan hit both ends of a 1-and-1 to stick the Tar Heels to a 59-47.

Again the Deacons fouled Jordan and again he hit both ends of a 1-and-1 as the Tar Heels went to a 61-47 lead.

College basketball

DePaul 74, Detroit 70

DETROIT (UPI) — Senior forward Terry Cummings scored 22 points and DePaul guards Skip Dillard and Kenny Patterson combined for 26 Wednesday night to lead the third-ranked Blue Demons to a rugged 74-70 victory over the University of Detroit.

The Titans, 8-14, held a 52-50 lead with 11:49 to play but cooled off, 10 unanswered points to record their 19th straight victory in a 241 season. DePaul built up a 72-61 advantage with 2:37 to play and held on.

Alabama 99, Georgia 85

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI) — Alabama guard Mike Davis scored 18 points in the second half to lead the 15th-rated Crimson Tide to an easy 99-85 triumph over Georgia in Southeastern Conference play Wednesday night.

Davis, who scored just two points in the first half, was Alabama's leading scorer. Alabama, which led the entire second half, broke a three-game losing streak to lift its record to 18-5 overall and 10-5 in the SEC.

The Bulldogs, dropping their second straight contest and slipping to 13-10 overall and 7-8 in the conference, kept the game close until Alabama scored six points on one free throw down the floor to go up 62-53 with 11:17 left in the game.

Alabama scored the six points with the help of two free throws by Davis after a technical foul was called on the Georgia bench.

Shriver wins in first round

HOUSTON (UPI) — Top-seeded Pam Shriver rallied from an opening-set loss Wednesday night to defeat U.S. Open junior champion and hometown favorite Zina Garrison, 4-6, 6-1, 6-3, in the first round of a $100,000 women's tennis tournament.

In the only other first-round singles match of the day, Sabina Simmonds of Italy defeated Yvonne Vermaak of South Africa, 7-6, 6-3.

Shriver, 19, of Lutherville, Md., the sixth-ranked woman in the world, availed a man upset by sticking with her powerful serve-and-volley style through a tentative first game which was dominated by Garrison, 18.

Shriver, frustrated and stalking around the court, won five straight games starting with the third game of the second set and then held off Garrison's attempts to gain a lead in the third set.

Garrison is a high school senior playing as an amateur.

Buckner joins Cub fold

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Cubs Wednesday reached agreement on a new contract with first baseman Bill Buckner, General Manager Dallas Green announced.

No terms were revealed, but Green said the renegotiated pact is "reflective of the current salary structure of the team."

The Cubs have loosened their salary pursestrings slightly since being purchased by the Tribune Co. Buckner had threatened to suit out the season if the team did not renegotiate his contract.

"We're pleased this modified agreement between the Chicago Cubs and Bill Buckner could be consummated before spring training," Green said. "This will allow Bill and the rest of the team to prepare physically and mentally for the 1982 season and the future."

Nestor Chylak: an umpire all could appreciate

By BOB MAISEL
© The Baltimore Sun

BALTIMORE — If you're like I am, so often when you hear of someone's death, you sit there and wonder why you didn't tell him when he was still alive how great you thought he was at his profession.

That happened to me again Wednesday, when the sports wire carried the story that Nestor Chylak had died of a heart attack at age 55.

In my time around baseball, Nestor Chylak was the best umpire I ever saw, and I regret not having told him so. He is the kind of guy who would have appreciated it, even coming from a mere sports writer.

Chylak was an umpire's umpire, a player's umpire, and management's umpire in one package. He knew his job, was good at it, and had tremendous confidence in his ability to handle whatever came up. What he had that a lot of other umpires lack was common sense, an appreciation of what he was out there for. He didn't try to be the show. All he wanted to do was call the plays right, keep the game moving, and handle the situations as they arose so that others could flourish as well.

Nestor did not have big ears, nor was he one of those supersensitive individuals who specialized in the quick hook. All the proof you'll ever need of that is that in all their years in the

AL's Nestor Chylak was top umpire

American League together, Nestor Chylak never threw Earl Weaver out of a ball game.

Which isn't to say that he was a pushover. He definitely wasn't. In fact, he took very little guff from players and managers. He didn't have to, because they respected him and he respected them. He knew people paid to see players and managers, not umpires, and that his job was to keep them on the field as long as they gave him half a chance to do so.

As far as I know, he had been in good health in recent years. The reason he retired back in 1978 was that he had what was diagnosed as a slight stroke while on the field. He had gone through a brutal week of travel back and forth across the country, it had been extremely hot, and it was the second game of a doubleheader. He seemed as good as ever in his visits to Baltimore the last few years as one of the American League's supervisors of umpires.

Nestor was sort of a vanishing breed of umpires who enjoyed talking with the press. Many times, I sat with him in the umpires' room for a half hour or so, kicking around various aspects of the game. You could learn a lot about the league and its players that way. Now, most of the umpires seem to consider the press as an evil that has to be tolerated now and then, as part of the job.

"Don't worry about it, they're the same way with me," he said one day last year, when the fact was mentioned to him. "I just went in to talk one of the guys about a mistake I thought he made last night, and he told me if I bothered him too much, he'd go to see the umpires' union about it. How do you like that? It's a different ball game these days. All business."

He was such a believer in team play, not only for the clubs but among the umpires, that he couldn't abide the fact that members of the various crews would not talk to, or even associate with, those who had been called up by the league to fill a void during the umpires' strike.

One of the reasons he loved Baltimore was because he loved crabs. When he was here one day last year, I said, "I guess you're going to pick some crabs after the game tonight," and he said, "Yep. I just told the umpires I'd take them with me. . . if we all go together. If they don't, I'm going with the new man."

When I asked the next day whom he had eaten with, he said with a sad shake of the head, "The new man. The others wouldn't be seen with him. I can't understand how they can be that way."

Everybody has a Chylak story. Jack Dunn, current Orioles vice president who has been around the club his entire life in every conceivable capacity, had one about the minor league days.

"I was vice president of the International League in 1952; the year Nestor came up," Dunn said. "You could see right away he was an excellent umpire. Don Huff was the Orioles manager, and one day they had a rather heated argument. Naturally, the umpire won, and when he went back behind the plate, Nestor turned to the stands, pumped his fists over his head and gave a sort of victory sign."

FERNANDO VALENZUELA
... $1 million per year?

Dodgers offer $350,000 per year

Lasorda thinks Fernando will sign

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tom Lasorda, the eternal optimist, is confident the contract squabble between star pitcher Fernando Valenzuela and the Los Angeles Dodgers will be settled soon.

"I think they'll get together," Lasorda said Wednesday at a news conference to promote some futuristic baseball equipment manufactured by a Japanese company.

Lasorda said he didn't believe that Tony DeMarco, Valenzuela's agent, ever advised his client to sit out the season if the Dodgers didn't meet his contract demands.

DeMarco is seeking $1 million a year for Valenzuela while the Dodgers are offering $350,000. Last year Valenzuela received the minimum salary of $40,000.

"I don't think Tony DeMarco ever said that," said Lasorda. "I saw Tony recently and he said he never said that."

Lasorda would not say whether he felt Valenzuela, who won both the National League Rookie of the Year and Cy Young Awards last season, was worth $1 million a year.

"I can't comment on that," he said. "First of all, it's not my money. I will not get into the negotiations. I don't believe a manager should do that. It's not my job. It's my job to get them ready once they sign. I hope they get together and sign."

Lasorda said if he did have the money to spend, there would be one sure way of telling if a pitcher was worth $1 million a year.

"I'd take him down to the nearest car wash and tell him to throw a ball through it. If it came out dry, I'd give him a million dollars," he said.

Waging war: Cincinnati vs. Reds

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Cincinnati Reds have escalated the financial and legal war between the city and the ballclub.

Reds President Dick Wagner announced Wednesday the club has filed a reply to the city's lawsuit against the Reds. In that suit, the city contended the Reds owe the city more rent for city-owned Riverfront Stadium in the wake of the players' strike last year that canceled home games for two months.

Wagner summed up the ballclub's legal response Wednesday by saying, "The Reds categorically deny any liability to pay any further amount to the city."

Then, Wagner announced the Reds have filed new lawsuits against the city to try to settle some old issues.

"The Reds have also filed several counterclaims against the city which are related to resolve several issues which have existed for a long time and which the Reds have long attempted, without success, to negotiate and settle with the city," said Wagner.

"The Reds asserted in their counterclaims that the city has failed to meet its lease obligations to maintain the stadium in good repair and to carry out proper housekeeping measures.

"The club also complained the city had failed to install and operate a Stadium Club and public restaurant, which the club said the city was required to do by terms of a 1967 lease.

"The Reds also want a proper and accurate accounting of the amounts collected and of disbursements made of the Stadium Use Tax, and also of the Hotel-Motel Tax, which was imposed to support the stadium and convention center," said Reds officials.

"The Reds believe that the Stadium Use Tax should have been abated for some substantial period of time and that the Hotel-Motel Tax receipts have not been properly applied."

Wagner said the Reds "regret the necessity of litigating these matters and believe they could have been settled without litigation if the city had been willing to carry on good faith negotiations."

However, added Wagner, "The city's suit requires that the Reds raise all matters in dispute between the city and the Reds."

Killebrew's son decides to pass on court hearing

BOISE (UPI) — The son of former major league home run slugger Harmon Killebrew waived his preliminary hearing Wednesday on charges of armed robbery in connection with the holdup of a Boise bank, Ada County authorities said.

Ada County Deputy Prosecutor Ron Howen said Kenneth Lynn Killebrew, 33, waived the hearing before Fourth District Court Magistrate Judge John Dutcher. Howen said a trial date for the defendant would be set in a week or two.
