

Reagan: Upbeat promise

By New York Daily News

WASHINGTON — President Reagan Thursday promised upbeat news for the economy in the months ahead. He predicted — even in the face of fresh increases in interest rates — that his recovery program would bring down the cost of borrowing in the coming year.

Press conference highlights — Page A3

Reagan also called a truce on the sniping between his administration and Chairman Paul A. Volcker of the Federal Reserve Board. The president and his top aides have several times in the past vented their displeasure at what they see as an up-and-down course by the Fed that has created uncertainty by alternately loosening and tightening the nation's money supply — cash in circulation plus checking account balances.

Confirming a secret Monday meeting with Volcker at the White House, Reagan voiced support of current Fed policies and said that interest rates would drop faster "by working together than by working at cross purposes." Reagan's statement was quickly interpreted by European money markets as a sign that Volcker had agreed to ease up on interest rates and the value of the dollar abroad dropped as a result.

Although his economic game plan is now besieged by opponents in Congress and overshadowed by this week's run-up in the prime rate — the amount banks charge their best customers — to 17 percent, Reagan presented a picture of confidence in the program and refused to budge much from its main elements.

He stood by his proposed new spending cuts — and also by his tax cuts and his call for more defense spending, even at the expense of $90 billion deficits.

But despite his expressions of confidence, Reagan hedged noticeably on earlier assertions by himself and his economic advisers that a strong recovery would make itself felt by mid-year. Calling economic indicators "volatile," he said, "I'm not going to pick any particular month or anything and then find myself having to be held to that."

"I'm just going to tell you that I believe in these months ahead, in the coming year, I think we're going to see the recession bottomed out and we're going to see interest rates begin to fall — return to normal, (the) beginning of a return to normal (and) see the beginning signs of recovery."

Lowering the BOOM!

Most fishermen use bobbers at one time or another to float their bait to just the right spot beneath the surface. This is what the Gooding County Highway Department had in mind Thursday, except its bait had a lot more "bang" to it.

Two sticks of dynamite, taped to a roofing shingle and attached by a long cord to a milk bottle "bobber," made the ideal device for blowing up ice jams on the Big Wood River.

The area in front of bridges often is clogged with large ice chunks and must be kept clear to prevent flooding.

United Way donations up despite economy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans contributed a record $1.68 billion to United Way campaigns last fall and winter, it was announced Thursday.

At the same time, a United Way leader said private charity cannot make up the sharp budget cuts President Reagan has ordered in federal social-services funds.

"There is no way business, foundation and individual giving, of which United Way giving is a part, can match the level of federal tax dollars no longer available for human services," said Donald V. Seibert, chairman of the board of governors of United Way of America.

Seibert said total contributions to the 2,100 local, combined charity campaigns rose 10.3 percent last year — the biggest increase in a quarter-century — to $1.68 billion. He said the amount raised was the largest in the 55-year history of the United Way movement.

"The results, more than anything else, tell us that Americans are still unusually generous and caring people," he said.

However, Seibert made clear that nationwide contributions were tied to the economy, and United Way campaigns results were strongest in the economically healthy states that generally make up the Sun Belt.

"But the most dramatic accomplishments of all," Seibert said, "are in states and cities hard hit by recession and unemployment."

Regionally, the Northeast and Midwest had the smallest percentage increase in giving, but Seibert said the results of campaigns in such high-unemployment states as Pennsylvania, Illinois, Kansas and

Local campaign at 92 percent mark

TWIN FALLS — So far, the United Way of Magic Valley has raised 92 percent of the goal set for this year's campaign.

As of Thursday, the United Way had received about $147,000 in donations and pledges, according to Bob Blake, the United Way president in Twin Falls. A "clean-up" campaign will continue until Feb. 28.

Blake said the total collected probably will still go up. "How far up, we don't know."

United Way funds in this area are distributed among 13 agencies, including: the Boy Scouts, the Salvation Army, Camp Fire, the American Red Cross and the Magic Valley Alcoholism Recovery Centers.

Blake said he was pleased by this year's donations, especially in light of the depressed economy and an earlier fund-raising drive by the Magic Valley YFCA.

Michigan were "very positive and very encouraging."

He cited both Detroit and Flint, Mich., as examples of hard-pressed cities that still increased their contributions over last year.

Detroit, in "an incredible achievement by the area's working people," increased contributions by 2.5 percent over last year.

"Even in Flint, a city with one of the top unemployment rates in the country, giving did not drop off," Seibert said. The campaign in Flint brought in $38,000 more than a year ago, according to United Way figures.

About 68 percent of giving to United Way campaigns is from individuals, 28 percent from business corporations, 2 percent from foundations and 2 percent from other sources.

Seibert, using preliminary figures, estimated that business giving increased about 10 percent.

The bulk of United Way money is used to support direct social services to people in three major categories: family services, social development and health.

Collection figures will be studied carefully to see if the corporate world is responding to Reagan's plea that it become more involved in philanthropy, as the federal role in domestic social programs is reduced.

While saying that charitable giving could not take the place of federal dollars, Seibert was also upbeat.

"But looking at the situation, positively, that simply means we must all work to increase giving and to stretch available resources, so that people continue to receive services," he said.

Brooks' tax credit bill wins House approval

BOISE (UPI) — An investment tax credits bill gained a 55-12 vote of approval in the Idaho House Thursday.

Backers said the bill would fit into the framework of the Reagan administration's economic recovery program.

The debate featured a Democratic lawmaker's contention that an alternative economic-revitalization measure sponsored by Democratic Sen. John Peavey was inadequate and an attack upon critics of "Reaganomics" by two conservative Republicans.

Rep. Dwight Horsch, D-Abberdeen, said the tax-credits legislation proposed by Rep. John Brooks, R-Weathering, was superior to a Peavey-sponsored bill — now in the Senate — which would provide tax credits for new jobs.

Brooks and Horsch said their bill, which would grant tax credits for businesses who invest in expansion of their industries, would spur economic growth and, in the long run, boost state revenue.

Horsch said the job credits that would be made available under the Evans bill "just wouldn't be enough" to significantly stimulate Idaho's economy.

Rep. Harold Reid, D-Craigmont, said the Brooks-Horsch measure would not create any new jobs and would have a severe impact on state revenue.

Rep. Lyman Winchester, R-Kuna, referring to Reid and other opponents of the tax-credits bill, blasted "people who have always protected government at the expense of the taxpayers."

A blistering attack was launched by Rep. T.W. Stivers, R-Twin Falls, against state officials and Dew's organizations that he said have been spreading "ghost stories" about the effects of tax cuts and the granting of tax credits.

"We can't sit here and get frightened" about reducing taxes in an effort to rebuild the economy, Stivers said.

Committee deals setback to public TV's 3-station system

BOISE (UPI) — A Senate committee refused Thursday to send a proposal endorsing Idaho's three-station public television system to the full chamber.

The panel's chairman — Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl — broke a tie vote to defeat the measure.

The resolution sponsored by Sen. Norma Dobler, D-Moscow, would have stated the Legislature's endorsement of the existing system of three public television stations in Idaho — one each in Boise, Moscow and Pocatello.

The measure, if passed, could have forced changes in a supplemental appropriation already passed by the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee.

That bill calls for moving toward a consolidated system, with a central station in Boise and bare-bones satellites in Moscow and Pocatello.

JOHN BARKER key vote

Dobler attacked the committee's action and said she backed her proposal would assist her in attempting to amend the joint committee's appropriation bill on the floor.

She said the joint committee was attempting to save roughly $300,000 in state money by the consolidation move — and that action would cost the state about $400,000 in federal funds, plus private donations from Pocatello and Moscow residents unwilling to support a system out of Boise.

Barker said he could not vote with the four committee members who backed the plan because he believed that vote would indicate he backed the three-station concept.

The Magic Valley lawmaker said he believed he would vote for the centralized plan when it reaches the Senate floor.

Funny man Pat Henry dies

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Comedian Pat Henry, the regular opening act for Frank Sinatra for more than two decades, was found dead Thursday in his Caesars Palace Hotel suite.

Henry, 59, who closed an engagement with Sinatra at Caesars Wednesday night, apparently died in his sleep of natural causes, according to hotel officials.

Las Vegas police, paramedics and the Clark County Coroner's Office were called to the resort at 9:20 a.m. A spokesman for the coroner's office said an autopsy likely would be conducted.

Energy secretary tours INEL

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of Energy James Edwards Thursday assured eastern Idahoans that he supported the growth of the nation's nuclear program — part of which will continue to be conducted at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

"I think that the facilities that we have this morning have been very important in the past and should be very important to future development of nuclear energy," Edwards said after touring the eastern Idaho facility.

Edwards made his remarks at a news conference attended by the state's congressional delegation in Idaho Falls prior to the annual eastern Idaho Lincoln Day banquet.

Murder suspect captured

FARWELL, Mich. (UPI) — A former livestock auctioneer suspected of slaying his estranged wife and six members of her family at a Michigan farm was arrested Thursday evening at a roadblock in Jasper, Tenn., authorities said.

Robert Haggart, 31, was arrested about 6:30 p.m. EST. Clare County Sheriff Ghazoy Aleck said Thursday Haggart, who did not resist arrest, was named in a seven-count open murder warrant issued late Thursday.

Aleck said he and three Michigan State Police officers planned to leave Friday for Jasper — a small town in southeast Tennessee coal country — to bring Haggart back to Michigan.

Marion County Sheriff Lloyd A. Hood said a businessman who had learned the slayings through news accounts spotted Haggart's car and notified authorities Thursday. Haggart was arrested on a road just inside the state line.

Andrus raps Clean Air change

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus said Thursday administration-backed changes in the Clean Air Act could worsen the already threatened air quality of U.S. national parks and wilderness areas.

The former Carter administration official said the Reagan administration's policies have "crippled" the government's environmental protection efforts.

Testifying before the House subcommittee on health and the environment, Andrus criticized a bill introduced late last year to revise the 1970 Clean Air Act.

Sponsored by a coalition of Democrats and Republicans, the bill is supported by the administration and industry groups, but strongly opposed by most environmental groups. Its chief sponsor is Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich.

Expulsion hearing delayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate expulsion hearing of Sen. Harrison Williams will be delayed until March 5 to give the New Jersey Democrat more time to prepare for his defense, Senate Republican leader Howard Baker announced Thursday.

The announcement released by Baker's office said Baker spoke to Williams, who "indicated that for health reasons it has not been possible for him to be in Washington to prepare for the debate."

"On that basis, Baker agreed to recommend that the debate be postponed until March 5 and be advised Senator Williams there will be no further postponements," the announcement said.

Plan would OK firing squads

BOISE (UPI) — Firing squads may be employed to carry out Idaho executions if the Legislature approves a proposal to make use of the untried lethal-injection method optional.

The co-chairmen of the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee said Thursday the bill has been drafted because state Corrections Department officials have indicated the death-by-injection method would be difficult to administer.

Although use of either method would be optional, Rep. Kathleen "Kitty" Gurnsey, R-Boise, co-chairman of the budget committee, said prison officials would favor the firing squad method.

Williams' father takes stand

ATLANTA (UPI) — The elderly father of accused killer Wayne Williams testified Thursday that carpet squares linking his son to three of Atlanta's murdered young blacks were not installed until after the killings and slayings.

The testimony from Homer Williams, 68, came after an expert testified there was no way anyone could say positively that fibers found on the bodies of 12 of 28 young blacks slain in Atlanta came from Williams' home.

Williams, 23, a black freelance photographer and aspiring talent scout, is on trial for the murders of Nathaniel Cater, 27, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, two of the 28 victims.

The elder Williams told the jury of eight blacks and four whites that the carpet squares in a small back room of his home were not installed until May 25, 1981 — a day after Cater's body washed up in the Chattahoochee River. Cater was the last of the 28 victims.

Prosecution fiber experts had testified that fibers taken from the carpet squares matched those found on the bodies of Cater and two other victims — Charles Stephens and Terry Pae. Stephens' body was found Oct. 10, 1980 and Pae's body was discovered Jan. 25, 1981.

Although Williams was linked to those victims and nine others by fibers from other parts of his house and car, the testimony from the elder Williams could cause jurors to question those links as well as the carpet square connection.

Homer Williams also told the jury he never smelled "vile or pungent" odors in two cars that he owned but were regularly used by his son. Prosecutors contend the younger Williams used the two autos — a white station wagon and red Ford LTD — to transport the bodies of his alleged victims.

The suspect's father also testified that he and his wife had to declare bankruptcy in the mid-1970s because of expenses incurred by a radio station operated by their son.

But the elder Williams was quick to add, "I certainly stood behind him. If I had to do it over, I'd do it again."

Williams, a bespectacled, balding man, described how his son grew up much like any other child with a penchant for electric trains, fishing and the later interest in broadcasting.

He also told the jury the younger Williams accompanied him on hunting trips but later lost interest.

"He didn't kill very much so I guess he just gave it up," he said.

Williams said his son, who lived with his parents until his arrest last June, had swapped bedrooms with the parents last August. Some of the fibers linking Williams to the slayings were taken from the suspect's newly occupied bedroom.

The defense contends Williams could not possibly be linked to several of the 12 victims because they were killed before Williams took occupancy of the bedroom.

Post prints Haig notes from staff meetings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Alexander Haig once privately referred to British Foreign Minister Lord Carrington as a "duplicitous bastard," according to notes of a participant in one of his senior staff meetings quoted by the Washington Post Thursday night.

The Post ran a story in today's editions including a long list of candid Haig comments, including ones where he is critical of "ideologue" supporters of President Reagan and calls the Pentagon "naive," at his senior staff meetings.

Reporter Bob Woodward reported the quotations were based on notes taken by a participant at nearly two dozen senior staff meetings over the last year and "verified as to general contents with two other participants."

A State Department spokesman declined comment on the story.

The notes show Haig believes that once Israel returns the Sinai to Egypt under the terms of the Camp David agreement, relations between the United States and Egypt will come apart, the Post said.

According to the Post, the notes taken at a Jan. 18 meeting quoted Haig as saying, "Egypt will go back to (the) Arab world with (the) U.S. isolated as Israel's sole defender."

On Oct. 15, Haig was quoted in the notes as calling Carrington a "duplicitous bastard" for his handling of one Middle East matter, the Post said.

At the Jan. 18 meeting, Haig was quoted as saying, "We never articulated our defense strategy in a coherent way... perception in country that we're just slinking backwards into defense without an overall strategy," the Post said.

In a June 8 discussion of the proposed sale of AWACS radar planes to Saudi Arabia, the notes quote the secretary as saying the Pentagon was "naive," the Post said.

On Feb. 5, he said according to the account, "Everything we've done has been torpedoed at every turn by the ideologues. The president knows this and is sensitive to it... (We) need to educate the (New York congressman) Jack Kemp of the world."

Haig's senior staff meetings are held in the morning in his office on the seventh floor of the State Department. Those who normally attend include the deputy secretary of state, the four under secretaries, the assistant secretaries for congressional relations and public affairs, the heads of other major offices and his personal staff.

When Haig used the expressive language to refer to Carrington Oct. 15, the notes show, he was referring to the issue of British participation in the multinational peace-keeping force for the Sinai after scheduled Israeli withdrawal in April. The British were apparently saying they were being pressured by the Saudis not to take part.

Increasing chance of rain; highs in the 50s

Twin Falls, Magic Valley and Gooding-Jerome areas:

Cloudy and mild today and Saturday with an increasing chance of rain. Highs both days in the low to mid 50s, lows tonight in the mid 30s.

Hayley, Camas Prairie and Lower Wood River Valley:

County with an increasing chance of rain today and Saturday. Snow shows 6,000 feet. Highs both days in the mid 40s and low tonight near 30.

Northern Nevada and Northern Utah:

Nevada shows increasing clouds with a slight chance of a shower along the northern border today and Saturday. Utah shows windy, wet and generally dry.

Synops:

High pressure system over southern Idaho Thursday began to weaken and it will allow another system to track eastward into Idaho today. But will result only in an increase in cloudiness.

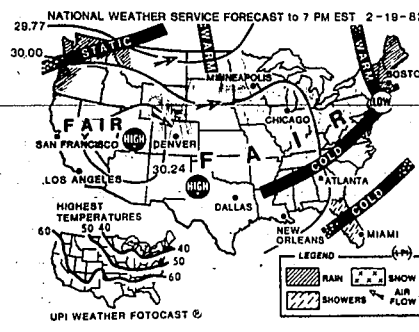

Although most skies cleared early Thursday morning, some valley areas had fog which persisted into the afternoon in some places.

Precipitation during the past 24 hours was widespread over the state but amounts were generally light, from traces in some places to a quarter of an inch at Millan Pass and McCall.

Temperatures peaked mid Wednesday night and Thursday morning, ranging from a 77 at McCall to a rather pleasant 54 degrees at Emmett. Lows Thursday morning were generally in the 30s with the low being 13 degrees at both Stanley and Sun Valley.

All rivers in the state were receding Thursday afternoon except for the St. Joe and it was expected to crest at or below flood stage today.

The extended outlook for Idaho for Sunday through Tuesday calls for periods of rain in the valleys and snow in the mountains through Monday.

Partial clearing Tuesday. Highs are expected to be in the upper 30s and 40s with overnight lows in the 20s and 30s.

Elsewhere in the nation, Fort Myers and Miami, both in Florida, reported the high temperature of 84, while the lowest, 18 degrees below zero, was recorded at Houston, Maine.

THE FED

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Taking a different stance than some members of his administration, President Reagan Thursday expressed confidence in the Federal Reserve Board.

"I have confidence in the announced policies of the Federal Reserve Board," Reagan told a news conference. "The administration and the federal reserve can help bring interest rates down faster by working together than by working at cross purposes."

His statement followed a meeting with Fed Chairman Paul Volcker Monday — the first time they have talked privately. They have had several meetings with other officials present.

Treasury Secretary Donald Regan and a recent report by the Council of Economic Advisors have criticized the Fed for allowing money growth to fluctuate too much.

Volcker has replied that a greater danger to the economy is the high deficits forecast for the next several years in the administration's budgets.

Reagan said he not only supports the Fed's policies in general but also its specific money goals for this year.

Some private economists say these do not provide enough money for the economic growth the administration projects and that this clash of policies will keep interest rates high and stall recovery.

But Reagan said the Fed's targets are "fully consistent" with his economic projections.

On the economy as a whole, Reagan said, "Obviously, we're not out of the woods yet. There will still be some difficult days ahead, but at least, we're headed toward a clearing."

"Neither this administration nor the Federal Reserve will allow a return to the fiscal and monetary policies of the past that created the current conditions," he said.

Reagan promised to devote full resources to keeping deficits down during the next several years.

SALVADOR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan Thursday declined to discuss what might prompt him to order American combat forces into El Salvador, but said the administration is building a vast army with record amounts of weapons from the Soviet Union and Cuba.

"Well, maybe if they dropped a bomb on the White House I might get mad," Reagan joked at his news conference. He refused to list the conditions under which he would send U.S. troops to the Central American nation.

The president repeatedly deflected questions on the possible deployment of U.S. forces in El Salvador or covert activities the United States might undertake in Central America.

"But he added, 'I will say in case there may be some misunderstanding, there are no plans to send American combat troops into action in any place in the world.'

Reagan said he would not do what previous administrations have done: "And that is to put down specific do's or don't's with regard to some situation that deals not only with national security matters but such things as trying to influence a situation, as the one in Poland."

"I think to do so is just giving away things that reduce your leverage."

VIETNAM

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan refused Thursday to fully assure there will be no "secret plan" to involve the United States in El Salvador's guerrilla war without advanced notice to the American people.

At the same time, Reagan disputed the suggestion there had been any "secret, surreptitious" maneuvering by U.S. officials to bring the United States into Vietnam 20 years ago.

During his nationally broadcast news conference, the president was asked:

"In the 1960s, the CIA came up with a secret plan to get us involved in Vietnam in a surreptitious, covert manner. Is it possible you can tell us there is no secret plan now... to surreptitiously involve Americans in such activities in Latin America and also can you assure the American people we will not go in there secretly without you and the government giving us some prior warning?"

Reagan replied that there now is a law "by which things of this kind have to be cleared" with appropriate congressional committees.

"Can you say there will not be a secret plan (involving El Salvador) you will not tell the American people about?" Reagan was asked.

FARMS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan said Thursday he is "not committed" to the plight of the American farmer, but his administration is working to stimulate foreign markets for U.S. agricultural products.

At his eighth news conference as president, Reagan also reiterated his intention not to repeal Jimmy Carter's 1979 grain embargo unless it is a part of a comprehensive package.

"I have no intention of repealing the only way I would consider a grain embargo would be as part of an across-the-board embargo, that we will not again make what I thought was a mistake earlier and penalize on sector of our industry, the farmers, by just using that as an embargo item," said Reagan. "So we will not do that."

Reagan was asked about a White House refusal to a request for a meeting with Reagan from a group of 42 farm state congressmen from both major parties.

"I don't know what the schedule problems are and I can't believe that they permanently turned those gentlemen down. Maybe they couldn't okay the meeting at the time they wanted it," he said.

Reagan reaffirms budget stance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House cautioned Congress Thursday against reading too much conciliation into an offer by budget director David Stockman to "look hard" at alternatives to President Reagan's 1983 budget proposal.

While House aides emphasized there has been no change in Reagan's "no compromise" position. The president is willing to listen to alternatives, they said, but has not yet heard a serious proposal.

Also, the president's top economic adviser, Murray Weidenbaum, told a congressional committee Stockman was making a personal observation when he said the recession may not end until "this summer or fall."

The administration position has been that the recession will begin to fade this spring or early summer, and Weidenbaum, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors, said Wednesday: "It is our expectation that late spring, early summer... the upturn will be visible."

At his news conference, Reagan dodged a question on the timing, saying he would not be pinned down on a date.

But Weidenbaum said he believes the first quarter of this year will be "the last quarter of negative growth" for the economy and there will be a slight expansion in the second quarter.

"I think we all agree the second quarter will be the turning point," Weidenbaum said, despite Stockman's view.

Weidenbaum, testifying to Congress' Joint Economic Committee, said all mortals are capable of making mistakes and "David Stockman is very mortal."

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan gave Stockman an "A-plus" for his performance in the House Budget Committee Wednesday, when Stockman said, "I believe this administration, and I think this president will look hard at a good-faith effort" by Congress to propose alternative spending plans.

Although Stockman added moments later the administration has seen only "demagoguery" so far in response to Reagan's budget, there was speculation his earlier comments had opened the door to compromise on key areas of the budget — defense spending and income tax cuts scheduled for 1982 and 1983.

"I count it as progress and hope," said committee chairman James Jones, D-Okla.

But White House aides disputed both Jones' assessment and a report that Stockman may not have cleared his remarks with the White House before appearing on Capitol Hill.

This one deserved death by laughing

One moment of silence, please, for the state House of Representatives. In all their collective might and wisdom, members passed a bill Thursday requiring a moment of silence by public school students for meditation.

But kudos to Rep. Christopher Hooper, R-Boise, who unsuccessfully tried to amend the bill last week by laughing it to death with preposterous enforcement provisions.

This was so good, it bears repeating: Hooper proposed the following (honest): A teacher violating the act would be punished by having to serve one year of lunchroom duty on the first offense and 100 hours of duty in a hospital nursery on subsequent violations.

He proposed that students found guilty would, if capable of writing, be forced to write "silence is golden" 100 times on the blackboard. If the guilty student couldn't write, he would have to stand silently, without fidgeting, for two minutes. After subsequent violations, students would be required to memorize the names of legislators who voted for the bill.

Such jocularity is in keeping with the provisions of the bill. But it's too bad time has to be wasted on such trivia when a plethora of major issues are going begging.

Well, so the House — save the 13 who voted "no" — wanted to conduct another exercise in futility. We'll even give most members the benefit of the doubt as to their sincerity on the issue.

But Senators — in the name of common sense — please let this one die on the vine, again.

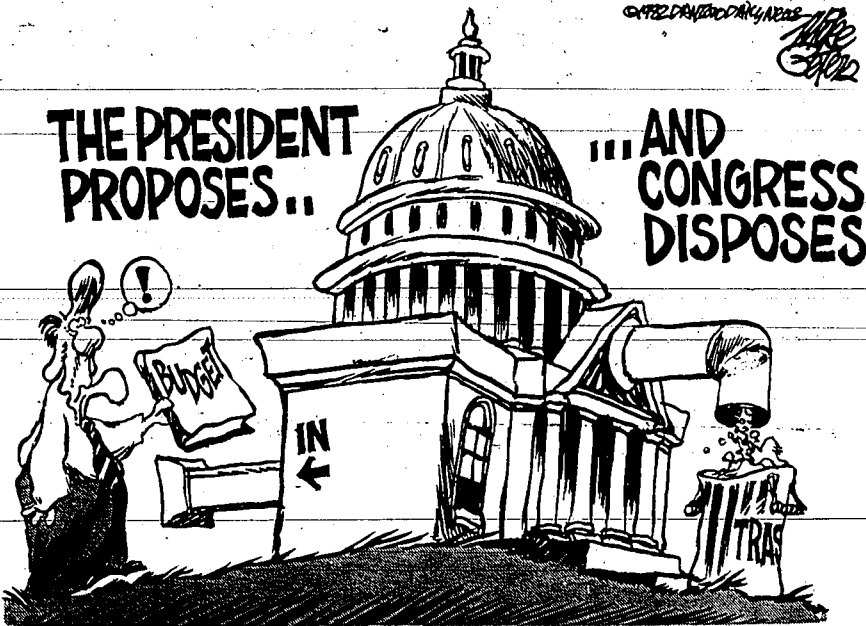

The signs look good

Magie Valley residents fed up with this nasty winter have to be encouraged by this week's weather.

Although some flooding has occurred, most of the snow has disappeared under rising temperatures and heavy rains. We can see the grass again!

Those finding their winter doldrums being dispated by the weather also have to be buoyed by some good economic news. First, Twin Falls car dealers are reporting strong sales despite the sagging national picture. The other tantalizing news this week is that the sale of the vacant Kellwood plant may be in the offing.

The latter would really give us all good reason to celebrate the coming of spring — early.

Letters to the editor

Remarks were unfortunate

Editor, Times-News:
In response to the unfortunate letter of E. Gene Abercrombie, Idaho Public Employee Association representative (union steward) from Gooding published in The Times News Feb. 8, regarding the remarks of Rep. K. Stephenson, R-Nampa, who reportedly said "state employees and public officials ought to take their lumps along with the rest of the taxpayers."

That is, in my opinion, a true motherhood statement and very difficult to fault by anyone.

It is readily apparent to all reasonably informed Idaho citizens that the present unfortunate economic situation does affect us all, and not caused by any part of the Idaho Legislature, as alluded to by Mr. Abercrombie. All union representatives, and certainly all government officials, should know we have had cycles of depression, prosperity, grasshoppers, corn growth, etc., in all countries, including dictatorships, recorded since 1839.

With regard to his bragging about being a taxpayer, let us clarify that point and put it in the proper perspective — public employees are not primary taxpayers for their government salary — they are tax dividers, merely redistributing the taxes paid by a true primary taxpayer. For his information, this is how the system works. All government is an expense, some of it necessary.

To lobby and scream for twice your worth (old union tactics) is every employee's prerogative, but to pay, ignore, adjust or fire is the bosses' choice, in this case the Legislature.

For Mr. Abercrombie to refuse to be grouped as a citizen of Idaho with the rest of us is indeed unfortunate.

There is no question addressed here regarding individuals who are truly deserving of raises and those less deserving. If such were the case many would receive large increases (adjustments), many raises, many nothing and many fired. This applies from the governor on down through the entire spectrum.

If Mr. Abercrombie's contribution to the government for his salary and other benefits is related in any manner to his snailow remarks, and closed mind it is easy to see in which of the latter two of the preceding four categories he belongs.

This is just criticism?

Editor, Times-News:
I write this in response to Mr. Will Buhler's scathing attack on your editorial concerning FDR's "Legacy."

Mr. Buhler, a few questions if you will:
1. What is your age?
2. What is your average income, give or take a few dollars, as this is a public forum and the IRS is privy to it?
3. Why, for the love of God, did you base "your remembrance" of FDR on the two points, those being 1) whether or not you could afford the social programs that set so many of our people free? And 2) (if I could weep on paper, or perhaps laugh, I would do so now) on the physiognomy of Mrs. Roosevelt? My, My! Have we come to this at last. That a person should be publicly maligned for the face they were born with? Of course I haven't had the pleasure of beholding your face, nor those of your parents, nor your children, but I must assume they are all the spitting image of a physically, computer-perfect human specimen?

Now, perhaps you can see why I have put forward these questions? Once you have answered them, I will be better equipped to evaluate you and yours in a more informed manner. Some may find it prudent to evaluate their fellow man by what they see on the surface, but as for me, I choose to gather more information before I "pass judgment upon them!"

May your days be filled with all that is yours.

Give radio plans time

Editor, Times-News:
Up until the past few months we have heard a lot about the plans of a Christian radio station in the Magie Valley that would broadcast over a large area of southern Idaho, northern Utah and northern Nevada. Christian Radio of Magie Valley has done an outstanding job of bringing well-known Christian musicians to this area. The ones who have come have done much to uplift Christianity and, in turn, Christian Radio has received a financial blessing.

Having lived in areas where there are these types of radio stations, I can say that they are definitely uplifting and they do much for the spiritual needs of their listeners. There is nothing better than good music.

There are people who think Christian radio station isn't going to happen. The reason for this negative thought: It is taking too long to get on the air. Remember, good things don't just happen. It takes time and money to get something good going and the same to keep going. From my understanding Christian Radio wants to go on the air debt-free, this in itself takes extra time.

Just because we aren't hearing about big name gospel musicians coming to Twin Falls and concerts in the park or other places, be assured Christian radio is still here and it is progressing. Good things take time and each day is one day closer.

All should sacrifice

Editor, Times-News:
Since our president stated all must sacrifice for the good of the nation and deficit, let's not forget our representatives in Washington, D.C. Our representatives in Washington, including

Mr. Reagan, should take a cut in pay as well as in their expense account. We feel all should sacrifice, them included.

The high deficit being the fruit of their works, not ours, we feel this reduction in pay and expense accounts should continue until the deficit is gone and the budget balanced.

A fee for feed programs

Editor, Times-News:
Ten years ago at an Idaho Fish and Game public meeting in Boise, it was suggested by a group of us Magie Valley sportsmen that F & G propose that every hunter pay an extra dollar in addition to license fees to be used for a winter feeding program.

Of course, nothing was ever done about it. As a result, the F & G, during the worst winter we've had in 33 years, is hard pressed for money to winter-feed our starving elk, deer and antelope. Had that regulation been enacted in 1972, when it was first proposed, it's safe to say that the state would have about $1 million for feeding programs.

I think this $1 donation from each hunter is the only way to go, providing this money is placed into a separate fund, and not to be used for any other purpose other than winter feeding. Guidelines would have to be set up to protect this money, so that some overly ambitious politician couldn't get his hands on it to spend for every other purpose than what it was set up for.

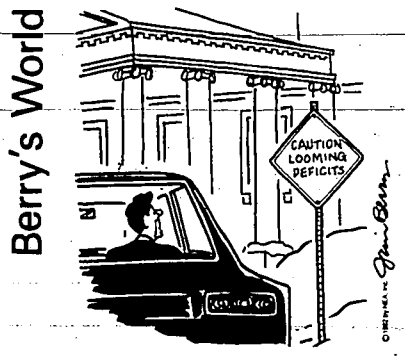

With hunting license sales from 150,000 to 200,000, in a very short time this fund could very well winter-feed our big game, and as an additional bonus could be used to pay farmers and ranchers that have big game working over their hay stalks. Of course, there would have to be strict guidelines so that the program couldn't be abused.

The Wyoming Fish and Game Department has been doing this since 1919, when they initiated their first feeding program at Jackson. It has now winter-fed our 23 winter feeding stations located in the western part of the state. It was either feed elk or lose them, and with a $15 million or $20 million stake because of hunting, they decided to winter-feed. Wyoming today is the top leader in elk harvest.

Without some kind of a way to fetch in money for winter feeding, our big game hunting in Idaho is bound to go downhill, especially should we get two winters in a row like this year.

I don't believe that any true sportsman would object to paying $1 for this program. In addition, it would take the burden off the backs of the people who this winter are donating time, money and hay in this winter's emergency. Without these donations it's possible we'd lose at least a third of our deer, elk and antelope to starvation, one of the severest deaths known to man!

Let's be prepared so this never happens again.

How to predict teenager moods: look at her hair

© The Boston Globe

BOSTON — For the past several decades, scientists throughout the nation have been working to solve one of life's great mysteries. They have tried to track the single most stormy weather pattern in the wide world of human nature: the mood of the average teen-ager.

What supernatural force, they have asked each other in paper after paper, turns this sunny 14-year-old into a tornado? What sudden changes in human humidity emanate from this 15-year-old until the whole family atmosphere is dark and heavy? How can we know what is coming next, so that families can batten down the hatches and evacuate the area?

These questions and others motivated a search unprecedented in scientific annals since the invention of the Richter scale: All American parents looked desperately to these experts in hopes that they could produce satellite pictures of the psyche, that we might yet be able to prepare for our own home-grown hurricane. These attempts were valiant. Endocrinologists drew colorful graphs of raging hormonal imbalances. Astrologists wrote elaborate charts of stars and moons out of joint. Palm readers analyzed quarts of sweat. But the goal — to give parents a handy mood-reading tool — remained elusive. Indeed, some intriguing research came from a dermatologist who was able to correlate the eruption of a single pimple on the forehead with a mood change that rivaled Mount St. Helens.

All of these solutions had limited appeal. Only now can I step forward modestly and claim success. It wasn't easy. I spent long months wrestling with this problem, long months during which my sample was limited to the teen-age research subjects who roamed unsuspectingly through my kitchen.

But I have finally come up with a definitive, instant, fail-safe way to predict teen-age moods: I have learned how to read hair.

The clues were there all along. How often had I seen a teen-ager walk into the bathroom smiling and walk out in tears? How often had I seen a girl return from a haircut and go immediately into a locked room? How often had I seen a boy who refused to remove a paper bag from his head?

The reason for all these crises, these aberrations, was not psychiatry. It was HAIR. Hair, I finally realized, is the Rosetta stone of adolescence.

But how do you read it? you ask. This, I have discovered, is relatively simple. Adolescent hair, which is different from all other hair, comes in four basic ways:

1. too long
 2. too short
 3. too curly
 4. too straight
- It also comes frizzy, limp, dirty and, of course, gross. From time to time, it even comes right. "Right" is the way that it generally looks in the magazine or on someone else.

A general rule of thumb is that the average curly-headed adolescent girl is depressed because she cannot blow-dry her hair straight. The average straight-haired adolescent girl is despondent because she cannot curl it enough. The issue for boys is a bit simpler, having to do mostly with cowlicks, and ears.

Once you have mastered the basics of hair, it becomes easier to detect the moods of the hair-owner. Merely observe the teen-ager. Is his hair flat on one side? Here comes self-hate. Is there a piece of hair that stands perpendicular to the rest? Watch out for rage.

Is she unable to make the right side match the left? Existential angst is on the way. Is there a bump in the back of her head that cannot be controlled by either the six barrettes, the curling iron, the hot rollers, or the ribbon? Frustration building. (It is best at this moment not to suggest a scarf.)

I do realize that the ability to predict behavior by the sophisticated reading of hair doesn't mean that you can control it. But this preliminary discovery offers something: It offers time to prepare, time for self-defense.

As for the rest, remember the motto of the weather watchers and repeat it 100 times a night: This too shall pass.

House passes school meditation bill

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — Idaho school children will honor a moment of silence for daily prayer or meditation if a bill passed by the House on Thursday becomes law.

The legislation does not dictate what students do with the time except be quiet, said the sponsor, Rep. Gary Paxman, R-Idaho Falls. "Somebody brought out the point that someone could pray to the devil. Well, so be it," Paxman told the House during debate. "But we need to at least recognize the need for school children to have an opportunity to pray if they so desire. Right now, there is no recognition."

Paxman's proposal is nearly identical to a bill that passed the House last year before being blocked in the Senate. On Thursday, representatives voted 55 to 13 in favor of the measure, which would require a period of silence of up to one minute for prayer or meditation to be implemented at the start of school each day for all grades.

Saying the nation is at a "moral crisis," Paxman said separation of church and state does not mean "separation of God and state."

Several representatives supported the bill because it allows school administrators to shorten the silence to any length under one minute. Since no penalty exists for failure to comply, school districts also would be free to ignore the act entirely.

"And that's exactly what's wrong with this legislation," said Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello. "We are passing a law that we assume people won't obey."

Several Magic Valley legislators opposed the measure for the same reason.

"It's silly to pass a law, no matter what the merits, if it can't be enforced," said Rep. Steve Antone, R-Rupert.

Other local representatives opposing the measure were: House Speaker Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls; Rep. John Brooks, R-Gooding; Rep. Gordon Hollifield, R-Jerome, and Rep. Dan Kelly, R-Mountain Home.

Kelly, a high-school teacher, argued that despite the bill's wording to include meditation, all the debate and the real purpose of the act is to return mandatory prayer to public schools.

"This is an inappropriate way to go in the public schools," he said.

Others also argued that Paxman's bill could violate the state Constitution, which says students can't be required to attend or participate in any religious ceremony.

Regardless of constitutional conflicts, Paxman's bill offers no real change because teachers already are free to hold moments of silence, said Olmstead. He also opposed the legislation because "we already have too many laws that dictate what the schools will do and won't do."

More than one million French, German and British soldiers died in history's bloodiest recorded battle — World War I's First Battle of the Somme in 1916.

Committee favors higher speed limit

BOISE (UPI) — The House Transportation Committee voted 5-4 Thursday to approve a bill that would raise the speed limit on Idaho's four-lane highways to 60 miles per hour.

Rep. Rusty Barlow, R-Pocatello, made a motion to have the bill amended to raise the standard to 65 mph, but it died because no one seconded it.

Before sending the bill to the floor with a "do pass" recommendation, the committee voted 4-5 to defeat a motion that would have scuttled the proposal.

The bill's sponsor, Rep. Wayne Tibbitts, R-Rigby, left the room before the committee began voting.

Tibbitts said the existing 55 mph speed limit discriminates against westerners who must drive long distances. He said boosting the limit to 60 mph would not reduce highway safety or increase fuel consumption.

Doubled snowmobile fees proposed

BOISE — A plan to double snowmobile registration fees received a favorable recommendation from the House Local Government Committee on Thursday.

"But it should be noted immediately that it was that state organization of snowmobilers that asked for this bill," said the sponsor, Rep. Jim Higgins, R-New Meadows.

Money from the increased fee would be used for maintenance of snowmobile areas, plowing of parking lots and marking of trails, according to Higgins.

The bill would raise the $5 fee to $10. Of the additional $5, $4.75 would be returned to the county where it was collected and would be designated for snowmobile area maintenance. The remaining 25 cents would be retained by the Motor Vehicles Division to cover the cost of handling the registration fee.

Prevailing wage law debated

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate State Affairs Committee heard two hours of testimony Thursday on a proposal to repeal the prevailing wage law on public projects, then postponed its vote until additional committee members could be present.

The bill — sponsored by House Majority Leader Walter Little, R-New Plymouth — would remove the requirement that cities, counties and the state pay the local prevailing wage to crews building projects at public expense. House members approved the proposal 36-13 last week.

Most of Thursday's discussion centered on whether the so-called Little Davis-Bacon Act, adopted in Idaho in 1911, drives up the cost of public projects.

Plan would make false reports illegal

BOISE — A bill passed the House on Thursday that allows county prosecutors to file charges against people who purposely file false crime reports.

The measure, which passed 62 to 2 and was sent to the Senate, makes false crime reports a criminal offense, subject to a $1,000 fine and up to one year in jail.

As an example of problems plaguing police officers, Rep. Robert Scates, R-Post Falls, cited a recent northern Idaho incident in which police used aircraft to comb a lake region for hours looking for a reported drowning victim before it was discovered that the "victim" was the one who called in the report.

"There was nothing police could do because it is not a crime to make such false reports," Scates said.

Such worthless investigations cost taxpayers money, take officers away from real emergencies and sometimes endanger innocent bystanders, he said.

Heating bill assistance requests rise

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Recent cold weather has flooded the South Central Community Action Agency with requests for help with heating bills.

The CAA has been processing applications for the low-income energy assistance program, a federally-funded, state-administered project.

Approximately 3,000 applications have been taken by the CAA so far — about 1,000 more than last year at this time, according to Sharon Fisher, the program manager.

About 50 percent of those applying are elderly, but "increased unemployment, the CAA also is seeing more single heads of households and handicapped persons seeking assistance," Fisher said.

Eligibility guidelines have been lowered this year, making more persons eligible. However, about $6 million was funded for the program this year, compared to about $9 million last year, Fisher said.

The income guidelines are based on federal poverty-level standards. The maximum amount a person can earn in a month to be eligible for the assistance is $449. For two persons, it's $593, and for each additional person, another $144 is added to the total.

The one-time energy payments range from $35 to $250, depending on income and the type of fuel used. Fisher emphasized that the program is designed only to assist with heating bills, not to be the entire payment. This year's benefits also are "small compared to previous years," she said.

"We encourage people to keep up with their (heat) payments as much as possible."

The CAA does not determine whether individuals are qualified for assistance, and it does not set the payment amounts. The staff simply takes the information from the application, attempts to verify it and then sends it to the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare in Boise via a recommendation.

The DHW decides whether persons are eligible or not, sets the payment amount and mails checks to the successful applicants, usually in two to four weeks.

The checks are issued both to the person and their fuel supplier in an attempt to prevent misuse of funds. The CAA will identify the person's major fuel source when the application is processed.

Applications will be accepted until March 30.

Individuals must apply in person at one of four sites: the Twin Falls CAA office, 128 Second St. E.; the Jerome CAA office, 226 Lincoln; the Burley CAA office, 1201 Normal Ave.; and the Shoshone Senior Citizens Center, 218 N. Rail St. W.

The CAA determines a person's income for the last 30 days. Applicants should bring check stubs, employers' statements or other material that will help verify income levels.

Floyd Dayley of the Twin Falls Highway District evaluates the damage on Shoshone Falls Road on Wednesday.

Receding waters leave potholes behind

Weather wiping out highway budgets

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Water-logged highways and homes were being out in the Magic Valley on Thursday, with most areas enjoying sunshine and no rain.

But highway district officials say the receding water is leaving behind heavy road damage and a concern for repair costs, which comes on the heels of record snow-removal expenses.

Arlene Gross, the secretary for the Twin Falls Highway District, said snow-removal costs in that district were $64,000 through Jan. 31. February figures are not available yet.

Floyd Dayley, the manager of the highway district, said damage costs will be extremely high this year.

"The situation is changing every day. We go over a road one day, and outside of being soft, it looks like it will hold," he said. "The next day, it's broken up."

Dayley said there still is some snow on roads in the Bell Rapids area near Hagerman — and two roads were washed out and closed Thursday in the Blue Gulch area, north of the Balanced Rock grade.

"We have our work cut out for us. The roads are breaking up everywhere," he said.

Dayley said his crews completed temporary repairs Thursday on the section of the Shoshone Falls Road that washed out earlier this week. He said the road will be open for weekend travel, although some work still is under way.

Gooding Highway District crews finished blasting ice jams Thursday to prevent additional flooding. Manager Dean Sabala said water was down, and there were no new problems except for more road breakup.

Highway district crews began repair work Thursday.

Rural youths may be less inclined to crime

TWIN FALLS — Most of the juvenile crime reported in Twin Falls County during the last year and a half occurred in the cities, according to a report released Thursday.

The report, prepared by the county Juvenile Probation Services office, shows only 10.5 percent of the juveniles brought into court during a 17-month period lived in rural areas of the county.

The report also indicates that only 7.6 percent of the juvenile crimes committed during the period from July 15, 1980, to Dec. 31, 1981, occurred in rural areas.

Most of the juvenile crimes reported to the courts occurred within the city of Twin Falls, with most of the young offenders living in the city, the report shows.

Juvenile probation officials say the statistics do not show conclusively that rural youth are less likely to be involved in crime. Although the figures tend to indicate those circumstances exist, other factors, such as the priority placed on pursuing juvenile offenders by individual police departments, may play a role in the statistics, according to Ron Roberson, the county probation supervisor.

According to the report, 276 charges were filed against juveniles during the study period. However, only 171 individuals were involved since some juveniles were charged with multiple offenses.

Regionally, the report shows the following:

- One hundred sixty-six, or 60.1 percent, of the 276 counts filed, stemmed from offenses committed in the city of Twin Falls. Ninety-six, or 56.1 percent, of the 171 juveniles brought into court, lived in Twin Falls.

- Sixty-nine, or 25 percent, of the charges filed stemmed from offenses committed in Buhl, which accounted for 23, or 15.2 percent, of the juveniles brought into court.

- Twenty, or 7.2 percent, of the charges stemmed from offenses that occurred in Hansen, Kimberly and Filer. Those three areas collectively accounted for 15, or 8.7 percent, of the number of juveniles brought into court.

- Twenty-one, or 7.6 percent, of juvenile charges filed involved incidents in the county's rural areas, which accounted for 18, or 10.5 percent, of the number of juveniles brought into court.

Suit charges MVMH used wrong blood type

TWIN FALLS — A $650,000 lawsuit has been filed against Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

The suit charges that the hospital staff injured a Twin Falls woman by giving her the wrong type of blood during an operation.

Russell and Larayne Baker of Twin Falls filed the lawsuit Wednesday in Fifth District Court.

The plaintiffs are seeking a jury trial.

According to the complaint, Larayne Baker was admitted to the hospital on Sept. 17, 1981, for exploratory surgery. Before the surgery, a hospital technician drew a sample of the woman's blood for analysis, the complaint states.

During surgery, the woman was given two-and-a-half units of type A-negative blood, but her actual blood type is O-positive, according to the suit.

The suit alleges that as a result of the mistake, the woman suffered a severe reaction that included seizures, amnesia, disorientation, hallucinations and permanent damage to her nervous system.

Contacted Thursday, hospital administrator William Burns said he was insufficiently informed about the case to issue a statement at this time.

The suit seeks $3,000 as compensation for special medical and other expenses, $500,000 in general damages and $150,000 as compensation to Russell Baker for the trauma caused to his marriage.

Debate over vendors' license keys on cost, need, worth

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Dee Davies' "store" is devoid of the usual displays and posters that tout the virtues of various brands of merchandise.

Instead, a city license is the only thing that hangs on the walls of Davies' tool shop, which consists of a trailer parked off Blue Lakes Boulevard North.

The license specifies how long Davies, a transient vendor, can do business in Twin Falls, and it's proof that he has paid for the privilege of selling in the community. At $25 a day for licenses, plus a $25 filing fee, Davies is paying the city $275 so he can sell tools in Twin Falls for 10 days.

Down the street, at North Five Points, the Rev. George Duncan is selling sorghum and syrup out of his truck after a three-month absence that he attributes largely to a harsh winter. But Duncan says that even during fair weather, when people are more likely to stop and buy at the street-corner site, it's been hard to make a decent profit after paying the city $25 a day.

Tuesday, he won a waiver of the city's licensing requirements after he told City Council about severe health problems that limit his ability to do ministerial work and physical labor. Along with granting the waiver, council decided it will try to revise Twin Falls' transient vendor ordinance to resolve inequities.

Mayor Chris Talkington says the regulation of transient vendors "was ramrodded by the Chamber of Commerce." and he's had misgivings about the ordinance since its adoption in August of 1979. Among other things, Talkington says, the ordinance has been enforced selectively.

Councilman John Peterson questions whether regulating transient vendors is an appropriate function of city government, while Councilman Bud Cheney contends transient vendors qualify for city amenities, like police protection, and the vendors should help pay for those services.

Jim Newton agrees with Cheney, and goes a few steps further.

Newton, the owner of Newton's Sports Center, pushed for a transient vendor ordinance several years ago when he was on the chamber's board of directors. The ordinance is needed as much now as it was when council adopted it, he says.

"An ordinance was necessary to help control fly-by-night businesses that set up shop on a corner for a day or two and then left all of a sudden," Newton says. "People who may have bought defective merchandise were left with no recourse."

An ordinance allows some screening of the short-term merchants, according to Newton.

The city's license application asks vendors to state the type and quality of goods to be sold and the type of advertising involved. Vendors also are asked whether they have criminal records and in what towns they have conducted similar selling during the last six months. The completed, two-page application must be signed by a notary public.

Police Chief Tim Qualls says the review of applications involves a routine check of the Police Department's records. The review ordinarily takes about an hour, according to Qualls, who says the process has yet to result in the discovery of stolen goods or persons who are wanted by law-enforcement authorities.

Nonetheless, Newton says, he believes the ordinance deters errand peddlers and produces at least some money to help fund city services.

Gooding may increase fees for irrigation

By JANENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — Residents of Gooding might pay more for their irrigation water this summer.

Gooding City Council agreed to hold a public hearing on the proposed fee increase at its regular meeting Tuesday. The hearing will be held Monday, March 1, at 8 p.m. at City Hall.

According to Mayor Gene Heller, irrigation fees have not been raised since 1976. "The council has to consider the cost of operation, manpower and the number of repairs the system needs," he said.

Councilman Tom Lowman, who oversees the irrigation department, said $10,000 worth of repairs has been completed by council with four or five projects completed last fall. "But there's still a lot to do," he said.

Council is proposing a $2 increase, from $14 to $16 per lot.

In other action:

Council received a report that North American Contractors, a company that has been working on the interceptor sewer line for the new municipal waste-water treatment plant, has made satisfactory efforts to pay its outstanding debts.

A payment of $11,000 to North American was authorized by the city on Feb. 8, with the stipulation that it be used to pay the contractor's suppliers and subcontractors.

"We feel they are trying to sell the terms of their contract," Heller said.

Council considered an $800 expenditure for installing a direct link between City Hall and the Gooding County Sheriff's Department's warning board.

The alarm system would be in addition to City Hall's sprinkler system. The alarm would protect the building against break-ins, as well as fire or accidental activation of the sprinkler system, which would cause water damage.

The meter was taken under advisement.

"We are concerned about the cost and need to do more homework," Heller said.

Council granted a liquor license to Ramon and Jinx Zugazaga, who will operate a restaurant called Billtok.

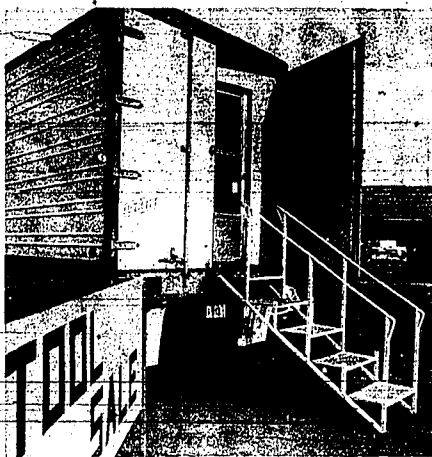

Church plans fair

TWIN FALLS — The Kimberly Stake of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will hold a preparedness fair this Saturday, Feb. 20, from 1 to 6 p.m. at the new Stake center, one mile north of Red Cap Corner in Kimberly.

Food preparation, storage, and drying and canning techniques will be presented, along with displays and discussions.

Another portion of the fair will feature speakers on various career areas, including military, professional and agriculture.

The event is free and open to the public.

Trailer selling tools is typical example of transient vendor

Vendors

"Why should people be allowed to come here, skim off the cream and leave without contributing anything?" he asks.

But both Duncan, of rural Jerome County, and Davies, of Rexburg, reply that they do contribute to the community because they spend a significant amount of money for goods and services in Twin Falls.

The ordinance is not an effort to restrict trade, says Newton, who points to Burley as an example of the type of action the chamber could have sought had it wanted to restrict competition.

Transient vendors who want to sell in Burley must post a $5,000 bond and pay a daily fee of $150 for the first 10 days of operation and $50 a day after that time. Vendors also must apply for licenses 60 days before they want to start selling, and they must be screened by City Council. Burley officials say the terms have drawn no takers.

Duncan can vouch for that. He says Burley is "anti-American and anti-free enterprise," and while the situation isn't nearly as pronounced in Twin Falls, he perceives problems here, too.

For one thing, he says, "I'm not a transient. I've lived here (the Magic Valley) for 40 years," many of them in Twin Falls.

The city defines a transient business as one that's expected to be in operation for six months or less.

"I believe in the free enterprise system — it's what we've fought and died for — and I think a person has the right to try to earn a living," Duncan says.

He thinks the city should have a system of screening the sellers of suspect goods, but he questions the notion that vendors such as himself should pay for police and fire protection.

"The police do a fine job," he says, "but I haven't had them out here to protect me. The rig's only here during the daytime, and I don't leave it unattended."

Davies says he regularly sells tools in Idaho Falls, and he has to pay that city $100 every time he parks his trailer at a new location. But in Idaho Falls, he says, the screening is comprehensive and includes a visit by an electrical inspector who checks the safety of his trailer. Davies says he sees some merit in that approach, but he believes that in Twin Falls, the city simply takes his money.

"I don't know what the people here get out of this," says Davies, who claims that in view of the waiver granted Duncan, enforcement is discriminatory. "The city of Twin Falls is just ripping us off."

Because of his low overhead costs, Davies says, he's selling tools at a fraction of the prices charged by established stores.

"Our markup is small, so we're a real thorn in the side of the merchants here," Newton says $25 a day isn't an excessive fee, considering the overhead costs involved in operating a store for a day, and he wants the transient vendor ordinance to remain on the books. But fine-tuning is in order so that licenses need not be obtained if vendors want to sell goods they have made, he says. Exhibitors who sell their projects in art and craft shows already are exempt.

Defendant didn't intend to participate

County drops case against robbery 'accomplice'

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — County prosecutors dropped their case Thursday against a Twin Falls man accused of participating in the robbery of an elderly woman.

In dismissing the robbery charge against 19-year-old Mike Anthony, Dennis Voorbes, the deputy county prosecutor, said an investigation into the matter determined that Anthony had not intended to participate in the robbery.

In fact, Voorbes said the evidence indicated that Anthony may have attempted to stop his 18-year-old brother, Kirby Anthony, from committing the offense.

Kirby Anthony pleaded guilty earlier this month to robbing Thelma Stull in her home at 1351 Fifth Ave. E. on Jan. 6. He is awaiting sentencing on the charge.

The move means the 19-year-old, who also is awaiting sentencing in Fifth District Court on a burglary conviction, will be released from the county jail. Although bond on the robbery charge had been set at $75,000, no bond had been set on Anthony's burglary charge.

The decision to drop the charge marks a complete reversal in the stance of the prosecutor's office. Anthony, originally charged with robbery, allegedly had remained outside the victim's house while his younger brother convinced the woman to let him inside to use a telephone and then robbed her.

Following a preliminary hearing, magistrate Judge Charles Brumbach ordered the older Anthony bound over to district court on a lesser charge of accessory after the fact to robbery.

But last week, prosecutors refilled the robbery charge, alleging that Mike Anthony had agreed to the robbery and aided his brother by remaining outside the woman's home.

However, on Thursday, Voorbes told magistrate Judge Melvin Edwards that an investigation showed Mike Anthony had attempted to talk his brother out of the robbery attempt.

Voorbes said the investigation, which included a lie-detector test, indicated that the older brother had refused to enter the woman's house with his brother.

The defendant "passed the test and he did so without a hitch," Voorbes said.

Edwards dismissed the case without comment.

Wife sends mate to jail, names him in thefts

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man remained in the county jail Thursday in lieu of $12,500 bond after his wife filed battery charges against him and reportedly implicated him in two recent thefts.

Richard Silcox, 38, 836 Second Ave. W., was arraigned Thursday in Fifth District Magistrate Court on charges of battery; a misdemeanor, and two counts of grand theft, which are felonies.

According to reports filed with the court, the man was arrested after his wife, Lisa Silcox, charged him with striking her in the face, grabbing her by the arms and bruising her left leg.

According to court documents, the woman then implicated her husband in two recent thefts. The defendant was later charged with taking three items from Big-O Tire, 211 Addison Ave. W., between Jan. 1 and Wednesday, and stealing tools from a vehicle owned by Mike Walker of Twin Falls on Feb. 11.

The defendant pleaded innocent to the battery charge. No plea on the felony charges was required at this stage of the court proceedings.

Judge Charles Brumbach appointed the public defender to represent Silcox.

In a second arraignment Thursday, Tracy Glenn Lowry, 27, of 210 Washington St. N., was arraigned on charges that he attacked two Twin Falls police officers during his arrest for disorderly conduct Wednesday night.

According to court records, police responded to a family disturbance at the residence. When officers arrived, the defendant allegedly threatened and then kicked officers Gary Molzner and Ronald E. Axman.

Lowry was charged with disorderly conduct, resisting arrest and battery upon a law-enforcement officer. He pleaded innocent to all three charges.

He was being held in county jail Thursday in lieu of $3,300 bond.

Brumbach also appointed the public defender to represent Lowry.

Blood donors meet quota

TWIN FALLS — The quota for this week's Red Cross blood drawing in Twin Falls was met both days, according to Ann Livingston, the manager of the local Red Cross chapter.

There were 117 donors on Monday and 107 on Tuesday, she said.

William Clubb received his 10-gallon donor pin. Other donors earning pins included: Dick Chilcote, eight gallons; Katherine Weizstein, four gallons; Gordon Terrel and Colin Randall, three gallons; and Gary Bondfield and Jeffrey Crossland, two gallons.

Receiving one-gallon pins were: Clyde Massie, Doug Biggers, Stacy Nussbaum, Diane Connor, Loren McCoy, Julie Follow, Dale Webster, Geneva Eskridge and Richard Allen.

Vandals get win, home-court edge

MOSCOW — Idaho Coach Don Monson wanted an up-tempo game and the Big Sky Conference tournament home-court advantage.

He got both Thursday night when the Vandals avenged one of their two defeats with a 75-53 victory over University of Montana.

The victory means that only Nevada-Reno can catch Idaho for the regular-season title but since Idaho has beaten the Wolfpack twice, it would get the home-court nod.

Idaho can clinch it outright, however, when it entertains Montana State Saturday night. The Vandals wind up the season next week at Boise State.

Monson expressed concern about Montana's size and the methodical offense the Grizzlies used to nip his Vandals by a point at Missoula. That defeat ended an Idaho 16-game win streak. Idaho now holds a 23-2 overall record and is 11-1 in the league. It also was Idaho's 32nd straight home-court victory.

He said the Vandals had to push the action defensively and offensively. He accomplished the first by putting his charges in a half-court pressure defense compared to Idaho's usually compact matchup zone.

But not even Monson could have ordered the type of transition game Idaho came up with.

After a 2-2 tie, Gordie Herbert, Phil Hopson and Ken Owens sent the Vandals into a 6-2 lead and for a while it appeared a rout was on the way. In the first several minutes it was the inside punch of Kelvin Smith and Hopson but then the transition game came to the fore.

Bryan Kellerman dominated the closing minutes of the half with 10 points while Herbert followed with nine. Idaho led 40-33 at the break.

Montana came out patiently in the second half, trying to get the ball inside to Derrick Pope. That worked for the first four minutes as Montana scored 10 points against four for the Vandals. Pope had six of Montana's points.

The Grizzlies narrowed the deficit to 44-43 with just over 14 minutes left but in the next 90 seconds Idaho broke away.

Hopson scored on a three-point play and Pete Prigge added a follow shot for 13 minutes remaining. Hopson scored the next time down court for his 15th point of the night and a 53-35 lead.

After the teams traded four points each, Idaho went to work on the clock, slowing its offensive pace. The lead shrank slightly to 14 before Kellerman and Owens came up with consecutive points to give Idaho its first 20-point lead at 64-44.

Drugs Drivers involved in scandal

MIAMI (UPI) — The world of stock car racing was rocked Thursday by a $300-million-a-year drug smuggling scandal that federal undercover agents said involved 70 persons, including four drivers.

Agents said many of the mechanics whose skills kept stock cars screaming around the nation's tracks used those same skills to tune high-speed powerboats that ran marijuana and cocaine in from the Bahamas.

Seventy people were named in indictments issued by federal grand juries in Miami and Raleigh, N.C., Feb. 9 and unsealed Thursday. The indictments said there were four separate groups within the loose-knit ring.

The 2 1/2-year federal investigation resulted Thursday in the arrest of more than 50 of those indicted. They were charged with numerous drug law violations, including importation and conspiracy. Officials said more indictments are expected.

FBI Agent Joseph V. Corless identified the kingpin of the ring as Bruce "Pee-Wee" Griffin, 49-year-old Miami racer who entered, but did not race, in last Sunday's Daytona 500.

The other stock car drivers arrested acted as "supervisors" for small smuggling rings and reported back to Griffin, Corless said. They were identified as Gary Balough, 34, who finished 11th in the Daytona 500; Billie Harvey, 32, who finished 38th in the same race; and driver Herbert Martin Tillman, 52.

Bond set in magistrate's court in Miami included $250,000 for Griffin, $100,000 for Balough and $135,000 for Tillman. All said they could meet the requirements.

Corless said the ring smuggled at least one million pounds of marijuana into the country each year and had profits of $300-million annually since it began operations in 1976. The bust was one of the largest in history, he said.

"They ran a service organization for people who wanted to buy marijuana," said Corless.

"They would offload mother ships in the Bahamas and then bring the pot into this country, put it on smaller boats, offload it again, then store the marijuana until distribution."

The organization used boats of all sizes in its smuggling operations, but at least once, Corless said, a race car was filled with marijuana, loaded onto a flat bed truck and transported from Florida to North Carolina.

U.S. Assistant Attorney Bruce Kritzer said "many" of those arrested were mechanics who worked for the drivers.

"These men are admit at using their hands and because they knew how to fix race cars, they also knew how to fix the vessels that were used in the operation," he said.

The smuggling operation dealt primarily in marijuana but the indictments said cocaine was also imported. The marijuana, purchased in Colombia, was taken to the Bahamas, where the ring picked it up and went to work, Corless said.

"This is significant because we have attempted to bring down a whole organization," he said. "We have identified not just the top man, but the ones who unloaded the boats, too."

Bruins finish 'noteworthy' hoop season

By LARRY HOVEY Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls' Bruins wind up a regular basketball season that is noteworthy from two standpoints this weekend.

Two victories would mean equalling the second-best record in Bruin basketball history. The other is probably a freak happenstance that couldn't come together again in 50 years. But it is fact that going into the weekend, Twin Falls has posted a 14-4 mark and has yet to beat a team with a winning record.

Twin Falls will be entertaining Blackfoot at 8 p.m. today and travel to Highland for the windup Saturday. That Highland game will be Twin Falls' last chance to beat a winning-record team since Blackfoot already is doomed to less than .500.

The best Twin Falls record was a 17-3 posted in 1959-60 when Ollie Butler was coach and playing Tom Baltantyne, Frank (Red) Nelson, Bart Strong, (Dr.) Chic Cutler and Dan Keller. But Astorquia is looking forward to better things than that team ran into when, after the 6-5 Stron underwent an emergency appendectomy, it bowed out in two straight in the district tournament.

Astorquia said the goal for the weekend is 16-4 and agrees there is no way anyone could have sat down and figured out a schedule that would have included nine of 11 losing teams.

"Rigby and Madison are responsible for that," he said. "The Idaho Falls schools and Blackfoot came in with young teams while those two must have had good talent and experience returning. Rigby and Madison blitzed them in the first three weeks of December and since then the Gem State Conference schools have been trading wins, keeping everyone under .500."

Historically, the best basketball is played in eastern Idaho and current fans probably will live out their lives before all three Idaho Falls schools end another season with losing marks.

Astorquia doesn't see an easy weekend, noting "we beat Blackfoot up there but it probably was the best game we played all year. We got 81 points, out-rebounded them 41-24 and shot 52 percent from the field. Those are numbers you can't play on duplicating often."

The coach said Blackfoot has comparative size and notes its strength is "good perimeter shooting. (Garth) Gulating is a fine player. He hurt us up there, especially when they were running."

"We're going to have to play to beat them and we have to play well Friday night if we expect to do well Saturday," he said.

Highland broke away from Twin Falls in the late minutes of their first meeting, Don Holston and Bob Montgomery getting eight points each when the Rams went on a torrid medium-range jumping streak.

"You look back at all the games at Highland over the years and its the first quarter that always is critical. They have the ability to blow teams away in the first eight minutes," Astorquia said, noting Highland had Twin Falls' only state championship team down 2-4 at the end of the first period in 1974.

"We'll have to be careful early ... not get caught up in a up-tempo game with them. I don't believe Highland is as awesome as press ... conditions were indicating. But they are a good solid team and we'd have to play very well to beat them in Pocatello."

With the district playoffs just a week away, Astorquia said "I'm pretty happy with where we are right now. We are doing things spontaneously on the floor that has relieved that stilted or structured offense look. Mentally the guys are up with confidence and enthusiasm. We're finally even making free throws when we have to in the fourth quarter. We've been 85 percent from the line in the last quarter of the last five games."

"But the thing I like best is that we're still improving. Every night we're seeing the team or individuals doing things they've never done before. We're getting decent play from our three junior big guys underneath and Steve Galley is looking good right now. I think its coming together at just about the right time."

Minico, Kimberly fare best at state wrestling tourney

By MARV CLEMENS Times-News sports editor

BOISE — Minico and Kimberly emerged from the first day's action of the combined state wrestling tournaments with the best record of Magic Valley teams.

Coach Jerry Ennis kept five of his Spartans in the championship bracket going into tonight's semifinals while Kimberly still has three going for titles.

Overall, the state took a heavy toll of Magic Valley's 72 wrestlers qualifying for the season finale. Just 18 of them stayed alive. Once beaten, no wrestler can finish higher than third place.

Meanwhile, the team races were light in the A-2 and A-3 divisions while Skyline opened up a 59-50 lead on Meridian in the A-1. The tightest team race looms in the A-3 division where Homedale leads with 34 points, hotly pursued by Parma at 32 1/2, Teton 31 and North Fremont 30 1/2. In the A-2 division, Lakeland amassed 34 points Thursday, followed by Snake River at 30 1/2 and Preston with 27 1/2. The top four A-1 teams were Skyline 50, Meridian 50, Nampa 46 and Minico 31 1/2. Minico scored just six points in this event last year.

While our second seeds were beaten in the quarterfinals, all the top seeds in all three divisions advanced to the semifinals unscathed.

A-1 Billy Walker overcame some stalling trouble and Minico put five wrestlers into today's semifinals to highlight the first day of action for Magic Valley's three A-1 schools.

After taking a 7-0 first-round win over Highland's Brad Conder, Walker had a 10-4 lead on Caldwell's Brent McClure with one minute left in his quarterfinal match. Officials quickly called Walker for three stalling points, drawing the ire of Twin Falls Coach Andy Barton.

Montreal wants ex-NFL coach to bring stability

Allen joins Alouettes as chief executive officer

TORONTO (UPI) — George Allen, the strict disciplinarian who compiled the fourth-highest winning percentage in NFL history, Thursday accepted the challenge of converting Nelson Skalbania's debt-ridden Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League into a winner at the box office and on the playing field in 1982.

Skalbania disclosed he is negotiating to sell Allen a minor share with an option to become majority owner of the club, which lost over $4 million in the 1981 season. The Vancouver millionaire said Allen would be announced as the club's chief executive officer at a news conference in Montreal today.

CFL Commissioner Jake Gaudaur, at a news conference following a day-long session of the league's Board of Governors devoted to the shaky status of the franchise, said Skalbania had brought Allen in to allay the league's concern that the Alouettes would be financially stable in 1982.

"Nelson Skalbania has named George Allen as the senior on-site manager of the club. His title you will have to ask him about," Gaudaur said.

Earlier, however, Skalbania indicated that the former Washington Redskins and Los Angeles Rams coach would take over either as president or general manager.

"I want somebody running the team who knows more about football than I did last season," Skalbania said.

Gaudaur said no formal ownership application had been tendered by Allen, but Skalbania had alluded to the possibility that the former NFL coach would take on a minor share of the team at some point.

"We were made aware of an agreement between the two parties," Gaudaur said. "You can make all the agreements you want but it is academic until it is manifested in a formal application."

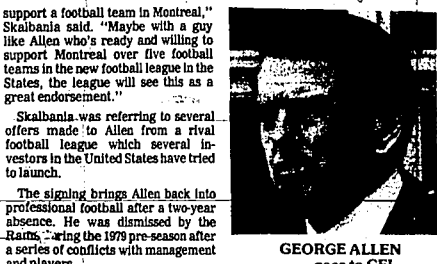

Skalbania said he had sought Allen's financial assistance after several offers from Canadians had been deemed insubstantial.

"We had no Canadians willing to write the size check necessary to support a football team in Montreal," Skalbania said. "Maybe with a guy like Allen who's ready and willing to support Montreal over five football teams in the new football league in the States, the league will see this as a great endorsement."

Skalbania was referring to several offers made to Allen from a rival football league which several investors in the United States have tried to launch.

The signaling brings Allen back into professional football after a two-year absence. He was dismissed by the Rams, ending the 1979 pre-season after a series of conflicts with management and players.

GEORGE ALLEN goes to CFL

Financial squeeze endangers Legion baseball schedule

By LARRY HOVEY Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls American Legion baseball is checking out its options before committing to a schedule this season.

Inflation and demands in the Legion's other philanthropic projects is putting a heavy squeeze on the organization's budget. Unless substantial assistance is provided — by the community, officials see probably curtailment of the program.

"We all believe in the merit of the junior baseball program. We've been part of it for years. We would hate to have to give it up," said spokesman Bill Rose. "But under the consensus of our memberships, there's too much going out and not enough coming in" to fund the other Legion undertakings.

"We have always thought of our organization as a giving one, not a taking one," he said.

The program's budget of $12,000 was trimmed $2,000 this past season as the Twin Falls team played 50 games. Of that amount, the Legion provided $8,200 and services chairman Jim O'Connor picked up another $3,200 in sponsorships, advertising and concessions.

"I don't think our membership will go along with another open-end budget in support of baseball," Rose said. "I think probably the maximum that can be expected from the Legion this year will be about $5,000."

O'Connor, who serves as general manager for the team, said transportation, lodging and meals amounted to $5,230 last summer. Coaching fees (head coach plus part time assistants) came to $1,500. The other major expense was $765 in umpire fees.

O'Connor noted about the only way the budget could be reduced would be to cut back in travel, particularly overnight trips, and play fewer games.

"But that represents approximately $800 per year participating in the program," Rose pointed out. "You compare this against some scholarships and even some professional contracts, and it is quite an expenditure. For instance, we can sponsor a boy to Boy's State for $125 and that's for a whole week."

O'Connor said that a nucleus of Twin Falls businesses has stayed with the program for many years.

"But there are so many other things," he said. "Business is down everywhere this year. And then there's our adult slowpitch softball. A lot of businesses we contact point out they are putting a lot of money into that."

Still, Rose and O'Connor, meeting with some interested individuals at a luncheon meeting, stressed they solidly behind keeping the program alive and participating financially to as great a degree as possible.

A group of parents agreed that money must be generated outside the Legion and some fund-raising projects were suggested. Hurting to a degree is Twin Falls' lack of adequate facilities that would allow charging admission. O'Connor said "when the hat is passed (among those attending the games) the most you can hope for is $20 ... $20 on down."

O'Connor said if a parents' committee was going to help come up with the money, "we have to do it now. It's taken us from September to June to pay the bills for the previous year and while the business that have done business with us have been very good about waiting for their money, it isn't right to expect them to carry us for six months."

Broncos defeat Montana State, 73-63

BOISE (UPI) — Bruce Bolden and Vince Hinchen threw in 14 points each as Boise State powered to a 73-63 victory over Montana State Thursday night in the final available Big Sky Conference playoff spot.

Hinchen directed Boise State's slowdown offense in the last three minutes and Bolden overcame early trouble to lead Boise State's rebounding effort with six boards.

Montana State took down 31 while Boise State grabbed 23.

Montana State had several chances to cut the double-digit deficit in the second half but guard Greg Palmer missed three technical foul free-throw and reserve guard Bethel Debnam missed four straight foul shots late in the second half. The Bobcats could not get any closer than eight points in the final period after trailing 38-31 at halftime.

Montana State also suffered from turnovers, committing 19 errors while Boise State fumbled away the ball just nine times.

The Broncos kept a hold on fourth place in the Big Sky in the win.

moving to 6-6 in league action and 12-12 overall. Montana State slipped to the brink of elimination in the layoff race.

Forward Eric Bailey added 12 points to the Broncos offense while forward Derek Anderson tossed in 10 points, center Travis Hayes had eight and substitute center Buster Whitney chipped in seven.

Highland's Carpenter heads Gem State stars

TWIN FALLS — Highland High School's Tracy Carpenter heads the 1981-82 All-Gem State Conference girls basketball team, which includes two Twin Falls players.

Carpenter, a senior, was named the conference's Most Valuable Player. She averaged approximately 14 points and nine rebounds per game. The guard-forward shot 38 percent from the floor and 71 percent from the free-throw line.

Joining Carpenter on the first team are Laurie Romeo and Wendy Olsen from Pocatello; Debbie Merkley of Blackfoot; Tracy Hemming of Bonneville and Marylin Harmer from Arvada.

Twin Falls senior Lisa Krahn, who averaged 10 points and eight rebounds per game, garnered second-team honors, while Marcia Dewey, another

Brin senior, was given honorable mention.

The complete All-Gem State team:

ISU loses in overtime

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (UPI) — Junior guard Eric Wade got a rebound basket with nine seconds left to lead Arizona State University to a 70-68 victory over Idaho State Thursday night in an overtime Big Sky Conference basketball game.

After taking a 42-lead early in the game, the Lumberjacks didn't trail until Byron Williams hit a 20-foot jump shot with 44 seconds left in regulation play, giving the Bengals a 66-65 lead.

NAU's Ted Ploitt hit one of two free throws with nine seconds remaining in regulation play, that created a tie at 66 and sent the game into overtime.

The victory gave NAU a 4-17 overall record and 2-9 in Big Sky play, while the loss dropped the Bengals to 13-11 overall and 4-9 in conference play, eliminating them from post-season contention.

Gooding State takes title

GOODING — Ken Anderson and Sonny Cabbage combined for 49 points Thursday night as the Gooding State Redskins nailed down the Northwest Conference championship by whipping the Dietrich Blue Devils 63-47.

Gooding State took all the suspense out of the game when it pipped up an 18-2 lead in the first quarter. The Redskins dominated the boards, out-rebounding the Devils 22-14, and that led to a lot of fast breaks. Gooding State scored well in transition all night.

The victory gives Gooding State a first-yr by in the district tournament opening next week.

District 2 18 18 20-47
Dietrich 18 18 18 13-47

GOODING 47

Wrestling

He (McClure) had his legs in a combination that Billy couldn't get out of. Barron said after a mild protest to the officials. The penalty points came in the last 15 seconds, so Walker was able to ride out a 1-7 win and will meet Capital's Brad Harris in tonight's semifinals. Harris was fourth at state last year while Walker was second. Walker has vowed to come back a winner this year, his final season.

Walker was the lone Bruin to make the semifinals.

Barron's wife, suffering from beach-aches, will be taken to Boise hospital today for a CATscan. Barron missed Thursday's opening because of his wife's problem.

Minico, having qualified 11 wrestlers, advanced five into the semis.

Twin brothers Ted (119) and Tom (126) Taleoka started the evening win streak for the Spartans after two freshmen and lost to the boys' team of St. Mary's. Minico and Capital's Pat McDowell and scored a reversal with 20-seconds left for a 10-8 decision while Tom, trailing 3-0 at the time, pinned Highland's Mike Painter in 1:46.

Bryan Grant (145) also made the semis with a 5-41 win over Highland's Terry Porter and top-seeded Ted Berrie made the 167 semis with a 9-4 win over Blackfoot's Allen Eskelson.

David Pene, Minico's heavyweight, advanced to the final four with a 5-0-4 pin of Bonneville's Matt Buttker. In the first round, Pene got past Boise's Shaun Henley with the University of Idaho-bound senior injured his left knee in the first 10-seconds of the match and had to be removed from the mat by stretcher.

Barley, which brought eight wrestlers, advanced 185-pounder Drew Hurd and heavyweight Matt Hartman into the semis. And it took controversial calls to do it.

Hurd was tied with Rick Gillespie of Bonneville 3-3 late in the match when Gillespie was called for a penalty point for not having his palm flat on the mat on the start after the two had gone off the mat. That put Hurd up 4-3 and Gillespie made a successful takedown down just after the time limit had expired.

"The ref ruled that he didn't have control in time," Hurd said with a sigh of relief. "It was very close.

Green pinned Caldwell's Sam Rhon in the third round.

seven Magic Valley A-3 grapplers advanced into the semifinals, and three of the seven are from Kimberly.

NAU's Ted Ploitt hit one of two free throws with nine seconds remaining in regulation play, that created a tie at 66 and sent the game into overtime.

The victory gave NAU a 4-17 overall record and 2-9 in Big Sky play, while the loss dropped the Bengals to 13-11 overall and 4-9 in conference play, eliminating them from post-season contention.

Gooding State took all the suspense out of the game when it pipped up an 18-2 lead in the first quarter. The Redskins dominated the boards, out-rebounding the Devils 22-14, and that led to a lot of fast breaks. Gooding State scored well in transition all night.

The victory gives Gooding State a first-yr by in the district tournament opening next week.

BYU coach Arnold hospitalized

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — Brigham Young University basketball coach Frank Arnold was hospitalized Thursday with a gallbladder problem and will miss BYU's Western Athletic Conference game at Utah tonight.

A university spokesman said the 64-year-old Arnold went to Utah Valley Hospital in Provo after suffering chest pains and labored breathing.

Dr. Gordon Brown said surgery may be necessary to correct the problem. If an operation is required, Arnold would be hospitalized for about five days and would require another two weeks of rest before he could resume coaching duties.

L.A. Open course, touney marks set

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Terry Mauney, who slipped into the tournament by winning a qualifying playoff Monday, tamed the sprawling Riviera Country Club course Thursday with a record 8-under-par 63 to grab a four-stroke lead in the first round of the $300,000 Los Angeles Open.

His round of 32-31 included one eagle, seven birdies and a lone bogey. His most sensational shot came on the par-6, 613-yard 17th hole — when he lofted a nine-iron from 115 yards out and the ball dropped into the cup.

In addition to his stirring eagle on No. 17, Mauney sank a 30-foot birdie putt on the 13th hole and ran in a 20-footer for another birdie on the 16th hole. His other five birdies came on putts of 15 feet or less.

His round broke the course and Los Angeles Open record of 64 set by Pat Fitzsimmons when he won the event in 1975 and tied last year by Ed Seay.

Pardee quits Chargers' post

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Jack Pardee quit Thursday as assistant head coach in charge of defense with the San Diego Chargers, ending a 23-year playing and coaching career in the NFL that brought him Coach of the Year honors with both the Washington Redskins and Chicago Bears.

Pardee said he has quit football and will go into private business to head up the marketing operations for the Rumrills Mud Company of Lovington, N.M., an oil related firm.

Pardee, who coached the Bears and the Redskins three years before becoming to the Chargers last year in a failed attempt to improve San Diego's defense, said he was disappointed that he wasn't offered a head coaching job following the 1981 season.

He (McClure) had his legs in a combination that Billy couldn't get out of. Barron said after a mild protest to the officials. The penalty points came in the last 15 seconds, so Walker was able to ride out a 1-7 win and will meet Capital's Brad Harris in tonight's semifinals. Harris was fourth at state last year while Walker was second. Walker has vowed to come back a winner this year, his final season.

Walker was the lone Bruin to make the semifinals.

Barron's wife, suffering from beach-aches, will be taken to Boise hospital today for a CATscan. Barron missed Thursday's opening because of his wife's problem.

Minico, having qualified 11 wrestlers, advanced five into the semis.

Twin brothers Ted (119) and Tom (126) Taleoka started the evening win streak for the Spartans after two freshmen and lost to the boys' team of St. Mary's. Minico and Capital's Pat McDowell and scored a reversal with 20-seconds left for a 10-8 decision while Tom, trailing 3-0 at the time, pinned Highland's Mike Painter in 1:46.

Bryan Grant (145) also made the semis with a 5-41 win over Highland's Terry Porter and top-seeded Ted Berrie made the 167 semis with a 9-4 win over Blackfoot's Allen Eskelson.

David Pene, Minico's heavyweight, advanced to the final four with a 5-0-4 pin of Bonneville's Matt Buttker. In the first round, Pene got past Boise's Shaun Henley with the University of Idaho-bound senior injured his left knee in the first 10-seconds of the match and had to be removed from the mat by stretcher.

Barley, which brought eight wrestlers, advanced 185-pounder Drew Hurd and heavyweight Matt Hartman into the semis. And it took controversial calls to do it.

Hurd was tied with Rick Gillespie of Bonneville 3-3 late in the match when Gillespie was called for a penalty point for not having his palm flat on the mat on the start after the two had gone off the mat. That put Hurd up 4-3 and Gillespie made a successful takedown down just after the time limit had expired.

"The ref ruled that he didn't have control in time," Hurd said with a sigh of relief. "It was very close.

He remembers early lesson Steel applies his art to life's varied textures

By GLEN WARCHOL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — One morning at Burley High School, 40 years ago, an art teacher gave each student the usual flat metal box containing squares of water colors and an unusually simple assignment.

"Go out and paint a tree," Raty Laine said.

When the class returned with their tree portraits, most of the students had used the pre-mixed brown tint for the trunks of the trees. Laine shook his head.

Taking the students out again to each tree they had painted, he pulled them close to the trunks.

"Look at the colors in the bark," he said, forcing the startled students to stare closely at tree bark. "There's greens and reds and browns in there!"

One student in the class never forgot the experience. Ever since that day, LaVar Steel, who 30 years later would become chairman of the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Department, has been concerned with the textures and colors of tree bark, crop-duster wings, grain sacks and anything else that came into his view. Of late, even the concepts of history and communication have undergone his scrutiny.

With short-cropped hair, large hands and a thick body, Steel looks more like a medieval turkey than an artist. As soon as he speaks, however, the impression dissolves. Straddling a chair in his studio, he talks about his life and art. Steel's way of poking fun at himself enables him to talk about his art and life without sounding highfalutin.

"I was rural, ultra-conservative," he says. "We had a 'Blue Boy' hanging on the wall as a role model. How in the world someone from Burley got involved in the art game..."

He shrugs. "You don't make any money on it, that's for damn sure."

Beginning next week, Steel will have a rare opportunity to contemplate his involvement in art.

Feb. 23 through March 26, the Herrett Museum Gallery at the College of Southern Idaho will display a LaVar Steel Retrospective art exhibit containing 39 pieces representing the sum of the artist's life's work.

"I'm getting excited," Steel says. "I'd like to see it all up — to see what it's been about for 25 years."

Considered one of the valley's foremost visual artists, he has painted, potted, cast and welded in pursuit of his art.

"His hallmark is his versatility," said Mike Green, CSI art curator. "He has worked in so many media — pottery, jewelry, painting."

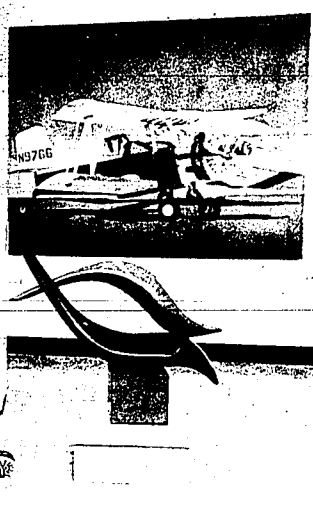

Steel's earliest existing work is a painting he did in the third grade; but he was unable to get his mother to part with it for the retrospective.

Being born in the Oakley Basin south of Burley can have a lasting effect on a man whether he becomes a farmer or an artist. It takes a farmer who likes solving endless irrigating problems to work that arid land. The basin fits a similar tinkering tenacity in Steel.

"I like when something works," Steel said. "I guess I'm a frustrated inventor. I present a problem to myself and solve it. I think that's part of the excitement of creativity."

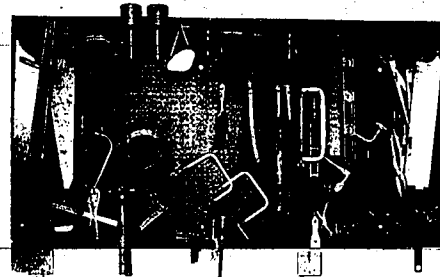

For the viewer, the excitement of the retrospective exhibit is not only how Steel solved his creative problems, but that he presented them in the first place.

"I don't know whether this stuff of mine is real art," he says. "But I think it is."

Federal budget cuts may hurt Herrett's mission: showcase variety

TWIN FALLS — If man truly does not live by bread alone, the Herrett Museum Art Gallery might be the place to shop for the cultural goodies that sweeten life.

Through exhibits of traveling art shows and local artists, the gallery offers a wide range of art experiences to residents of the Magic Valley. The gallery, combined with the College of Southern Idaho's Fine Arts Department and the Herrett Museum, forms one of the islands of art and culture in the valley's agriculture and industrial mainstream.

"Our primary concern is education," says Mike Green, curator of art exhibits. "The exhibits are a way to expose our students to different art forms."

It's often difficult for artists to live in an area like the Magic Valley, Green said, where they find themselves without the "support system" of other artists and art patrons typical of a metropolitan area.

By bringing in quality regional and national art exhibits, the gallery offers local artists the opportunity to study trends in the world of art. The museum also provides a focal point for valley artists to meet and exchange ideas.

The museum's ability to offer quality exhibits is dependent on funding, Green said, which comes partially from the student fees and from various federal and state grants for the humanities.

"We have to do a lot of hustling for funds," he said.

One of the gallery's "hustles" was joining the Museum Art Association. The membership has allowed the Herrett Museum to become the temporary home of expensive traveling exhibits that could not be invited otherwise. The gallery hosted three traveling shows this year.

The other purpose of the gallery, Green said, is to showcase the work of Idaho's finest artists.

"To show Idaho's best — that's an obligation to the artist in Idaho," he said. "He is already giving something up by living here because there are not as many opportunities."

Displaying the work of Idaho artists is also important to the students and residents of the valley, Green said.

"I think sometimes people overlook the importance of an artist from the area," he said. "Students are able to compare and see that Idaho artists are doing as well as artists outside the state."

Although Green feels the gallery is presently adequate to meet the needs of the college and the community, he fears that federal budget cuts may make it difficult for the Herrett to maintain the quality of its shows.

"The cloudiest thing right now is whether President Reagan is going to cut back the arts and humanities," he said. "The effect will be the most pronounced on small states like Idaho, because we have to bring almost everything in."

CSI presenting 'Getting On' Western premiere next week

TWIN FALLS — The CSI Drama Department will present the western premiere of "Getting On" Feb. 25-26-27 in the college's Fine Arts Auditorium.

The theme of the play is the fact that everyone is "Getting On" and three things we can be sure of are taxes, death and aging.

The audience will relive experiences in their own lives, the director said, when they first realize they are getting older because their parents' hair is turning gray; the class reunion where everyone looks older than you and the retirement banquet at age 64 when the retiree is presented a gold watch and five-year subscription to TV Guide.

It's something a little different than what CSI show-goers might be used to.

Tony Mannen, assistant professor of speech and drama, who is director, said the show will be performed backstage of the auditorium in a theater-in-the-round setting.

"It's the first time I've done one out there like this," he said, adding that the special seating will accommodate only about 160 people.

The play itself is somewhat unique as well. It has never been performed west of the Mississippi. Published in 1971, it has been presented several times in the East.

The author, Carol Flint, a playwright in residences at Florida State Theater, Tampa, is a sister to Mannen's wife, Chris.

The play has no defined cast, Mannen said. The father can be any age and his roles include many working men while the mother portrays any number of girls and women involved in family situations.

Mannen has cast the play using four women and five men rather than two for each of these four roles. The rehearsals have been a lesson in what improvisational acting is, since he let each actor decide which parts he would like to portray and give his own character interpretation.

"In order for them to find the right framework to do the characters... people have been fairly impovative at what they've had to do," said Mannen.

For example, in the scene calling for a grandmother, the cast decided that wearing a cobbler apron might communicate this designation to the audience.

The play starts off with a group of people sitting around a room reminiscing about their past. As the show progresses, 13 different scenes are performed following several individuals as they experience life's milestones.

Music is incorporated into the transitions to help set the mood.

"It's a fairly complex show," said Mannen, adding that it will challenge the audience's imagination.

"And it's a show that people can relate to," he said. "It's about all phases of life. Hopefully, this is a show that people can see and say 'Oh, yeah, I went through that.'"

The cast includes Jenny Ball, Jana Vandenberg, Karen Walton, Cyndie Woods, Mike Corbett, Matt Frantz, Derek Marble, Doug Starnes and Dean Wardell.

Posters for the show were drawn by Flynn McRoberts, a ninth-grader at Robert Stuart Junior High School in Twin Falls.

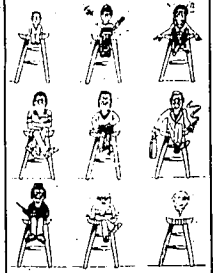

Other publications by the author include "Flat in Bliss" written after a scenic drive in Magic Valley which ended with a flat tire just outside of Bliss.

This experience was the springboard for the title, not the content of the poem which is also the title of a book of poems, Mannen said.

Curtain time for all performances is 8:15 p.m. Tickets for the CSI production are $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for youth and senior citizens. CSI students will be admitted free with advance tickets. No one under age 6 will be admitted.

For reservations call 733-9554, CSI 234. Tickets are available at the Ext. Bookstore.

Simon and Garfunkel reunion disk released.

By BILL CARLTON
New York Daily News

Music

Simon and Garfunkel reunion — Last summer in New York's Central Park, they performed "Me and Julio Down By the Schoolyard," "Bridge Over Troubled Water" and all the other oldies. Now, finally, the album — a two-record set called "Concert in the Park" — is out.

The show will also air this weekend on Home Box Office.

For those who attended that benefit, the LP won't be like hearing it all over again — because hardly anybody could hear it at the gig. And the release of the album may provide an explanation.

Lured by the pious promise of a "free concert for the people of New York," some half a million of us braved the rain to soak up the folk-rock music. But all we ended up hearing was the sound of silence, because it was impossible to get anywhere near the stage and no special provisions were taken to sprinkle extra speakers around.

"Why isn't the concert at least simul-cast on radio?" I wondered. Now a likely answer appears: to protect the live album, the concert may not have been broadcast for fear of bootleggers.

Remembering that soggy, featureless night, the only way the duo could redeem themselves in my book would be by donating all profits from the album to the city.

Rogers the Rich — What an incredibly successful year silver-haired crooner Kenny Rogers just completed. His "Share Your Love" LP sold more than 2 million copies and spawned three hit singles. His self-produced "Kenny Rogers Christmas" album was no slouch, either — it went to No. 1 on the country charts. Then there was his "Greatest Hits" package, which is still on the charts after 60 weeks.

His TV movie, "Coward of the Country," pulled in a stunning 49 share and Rogers gave 120 SRO concerts across the nation. But his proudest achievement is his seven-pound, eight-ounce baby boy, Christopher Cody Rogers, who was born Dec. 4.

First Nighter Party March 12

Dilettantes announce next show

TWIN FALLS — The Dilettantes of Magic Valley will hold its annual First Nighter Party March 12 for this year's show "Anything Goes."

Only 150 couples can be accommodated at the Turf Club dinner preceding the opening night show March 12, according to co-chairmen Liz Remer and Hank Willis.

Doors open at 6 p.m. for cocktails with prime rib dinner at 7 p.m. Bus transportation will be provided to the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium where curtain time is 8:15 p.m. The Sun Valley Trio will be at the Turf Club for after-show dancing.

Cost for the evening's package is $17.50 per person or $35 per couple. The children said the Turf Club will be available only to the show audience and cast members after the show.

The musical "Anything Goes," which was written 1926 and first produced in 1928, will be performed at CSI March 12-13-14 and 18-19-20. The March 14 show will be at 2:15 p.m. with the rest at 8:15 p.m.

The show has no particular message, Remer said, but has "zany light-hearted humor which provides pure entertainment."

The story revolves around young lovers, Billy and Hope, who try to cope with one unlikely situation after another while questionable characters and shady ladies interrupt the propriety of the "upper crust" during an Atlantic crossing.

The story is punctuated by the catchy lyrics and music of Cole Porter, including songs such as "You're the Top," "I Get a Kick Out of You," "It's Delovely," "Blow Gabriel Blow" and the title song, "Anything Goes."

Reservations should be mailed to P.O. Box 787, Twin Falls, with checks payable to "Anything Goes."

He will not rat on his partners. This is his bottom line. He will talk to investigators about all the other guys he knows things about. He will talk about how narcotics cops get involved in the narcotics traffic, how they bring information with drugs, how they string out addicts and use them as informers, how they keep some of the money of the drugs after big busts. He will tell what he knows about how the other cops do these things. But he will not talk about his partners in his own unit. This is his code, and, of course, he is going to have to break it.

That is the central situation of Sidney Lumet's "Prince of the City," one of this year's great American films. While you are watching it, it's a movie about cops, drugs and New York City, in that order. After you leave the theater and go home and the film starts to turn itself over in your mind, it becomes a much deeper piece, a film about how difficult it is to go straight in a crooked world without hurting people you love.

Drugs are a rotten business. They corrupt everyone they come into contact with, because they set up needs so urgent that all other considerations are forgotten. For addicts, the need is for the drug itself. For others, the needs are more complex.

The members of the special police drug unit in "Prince of the City," for example, take on an elevated departmental status because of their assignment. They have no hours, no beats, no uniforms. They are elite free-lancers, modern knights riding out into the drug underworld and establishing their own rules. They do not look at it this way, but their status depends on drugs. If there were no drugs and no addicts, there would be no narcs, no princes of the city. Of course, their jobs are also cold, dirty, lonely, dangerous, thankless, and never finished. That is the other side of the deal, and that helps explain why they will sometimes keep the money they confiscate in a drug bust. It's as if they're leaping their own fates. It also explains why they sometimes supply informers with drugs: They know better than anyone how horrible the addict's life can be. "A junkie can break your heart," the hero of this movie says at one point, and by the movie's end we understand what he means.

The film is based on a book by Robert Daley about Bob Leuci, a New York cop who cooperated with a 1971 investigation of police corruption. In the movie, Leuci is called Cielo, and he is played by Treat Williams in one of the most demanding and grueling performances of the year. Williams is almost always on screen, and almost always in situations of extreme stress, fatigue and emotional turmoil. We see him coming apart before our eyes. He falls to pieces not simply because of his job, or because of his decision to testify, but because he is in an inextricable trap and he will sooner or later have to hurt his partners.

The movie is filled with other actors, other characters. We meet dozens of cops, judges, lawyers, prosecutors, mafioso, friends, relatives, neighbors and junkies. The movie does not belabor the exact identities of all of them, but good casting and strong performances make it no problem to keep track of the cast. The film is also very good at making its issues clear.

This is a movie that literally hinges on the issue of perjury. And Sidney Lumet and his writer, Jay Presson Ascher, have a great deal of respect for the legal questions involved. There is a sustained scene in this movie that is one of the most spellbinding I can imagine, and it consists entirely of government lawyers debating whether a given situation justifies a charge of perjury. Rarely are ethical issues discussed in such detail in a movie, and hardly ever so effectively. "Prince of the City" is a very good movie and, like some of its characters, it wants to break your heart. Maybe it will. It is about the ways in which a corrupt modern city makes it almost impossible for a man to be true to the law, his ideals and his friends, all at the same time. The movie has no answers. Only horrible alternatives.

Good acting helps 'Taps'

From The Times-News wires

As the head cadet in a military academy, Timothy Hutton defies his commander (George C. Scott, in a echo of his "Patton" role) and real-estate developers to save the school. An uncommonly engaging character study, primarily because of its fine performances, "Taps" leaves us with ideas to think about, involving the implications when right and right are on the same side — and when they are not. With Ronny Cox, Tom Cruise, Tom Penn. Rated PG. 3 stars.

Not a winner in Siskel's book

'Ghost Story' spoiled by the oh-so-obvious

By GENE SISKEL
Chicago Tribune

What do you expect from a movie called "Ghost Story"? A fantastic ghost? "Ghost Story" has a pretty one. A scary conclusion? "Ghost Story" has an obvious one.

That combines to make "Ghost Story" one of the more boring films of the year. If Hollywood's profits are down this year as compared with last year, some people will contend the recession made the difference. But I say it's movies like "Ghost Story," which fall to the minimum expected of a film in its genre.

"Ghost Story" has a terribly overworked plot. Four elderly men are terrorized because of something they did together in the past. Gee, I wonder if at the end of the film we'll see a reenactment of the original dastardly deed. I wonder.

Actually, one never wonders either in suspense or in doubt in this film. In addition to the predictable story line, most of the major characters are poorly written and overacted.

The cohorts in crime are Fred Astaire, as a prissy lawyer; the late Melvyn Douglas, as an ailing doctor; John Houseman, as a bearded bully of a lawyer; and Douglas Fairbanks, as a one-time Lathario, now mayor of their New England town.

The four characters are the only members of a social organization known as the Chowder Society. But fear, not food, is their stock in trade. They gather almost every night to tell each other ghost stories. (And you think you have trouble with a husband who likes to go bowling once a week!) Their goal is to divert themselves from their guilt, which is approaching its golden anniversary. But as the film begins, the nightly dose of spookiness isn't working. The men are having nightmares.

Does the sight of Fred Astaire sweating and groaning in bed appeal to you? How about watching Melvyn Douglas crying in terror? Those are just two of the dubious delights offered as entertainment by "Ghost Story."

But I have a question for John Irvin, the film's director: Does he seriously think people want to see such sights? Who does he think wants to see two of our most beloved actors writhe in pain in bed? "Ghost Story" wouldn't have worked any better if its lead characters were young, but the film certainly would have been less obvious.

Offered as youthful relief in this geriatric groaner are the characters of the two sons of Douglas Fairbanks, both played by Craig Wasson, and a mysterious young woman, played by Alice Krige. Her character holds the key to the old men's nightmares, and when she begins turning up in the company of one of the sons and in a photograph, look out — the past has come back to haunt the present. Oooohh!

Actually, the presence of newcomer Alice Krige (pronounced Kree-ga) is the film's only pleasure. Krige also is RAGTIME: Milos Forman's splendid tapestry of a vibrant and wild and ruthless America before the outbreak of World War I. on view in "Charlots of Fire," playing the girlfriend of the Jewish runner. In addition to being quite lovely, Krige projects an intelligence that is compelling. She takes center-stage in "Ghost Story" with her every appearance.

But other than Krige, "Ghost Story" offers nary a surprise, only a forced march toward a predictable conclusion: The four men did something very bad years ago and they must be punished. OK, but what crime did the audience commit to be forced to endure "Ghost Story"?

What's what

In New York City, about 500 people, who seek treatment for broken bones each week during the winter, explain the cause with "slipped on the ice" or words to that effect. The medics call these injuries "snow fractures."

The present-day government of Vietnam levies a fine against the estate of anybody who commits suicide. The technical charge translates "desertion."

In Saudi Arabia, a woman is not permitted to drive a car or eat alone in a restaurant.

MUBLEFUBBLES

Q. What's the meaning of "mublefubbles"?
 A. Where'd you find that one? It goes back 400 years. People said they had the mublefubbles when they meant they were depressed, melancholy, down in the mouth, without knowing why. It was in common use about the same time that people referred to an unfaithful matrimonial mate as a bedwerver.

Q. I say public television gets more money from corporations than they give to any other philanthropic cause, right?
 A. Almost right. Public television ranks second in this category after the Red Cross.

Q. When I got out of the Army at age 22, I decided to get a college education without actually going to college by reading one book a week. How many college students read that much?
 A. Few. If you've read roughly, you'll have read 2,600 volumes.

SOAP OPERAS

Among those college students who like soap operas, the typical woman, if her hours permit, will watch four a day while the typical man will rarely watch more than one. Pollsters found that out, too.

An ordinance in Garfield County, Montana, prohibits people from displaying cartoons on their window shades.

Thirty percent of the U.S. population lives within 50 miles of seacoasts.
 An elephant doesn't get all its teeth until age 40 or so.

Q. What do most turtles eat, plants or animals?
 A. Land turtles, plants. Sea turtles, animals.

By TONY SPINA
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

Q. I'm starting to take portraits and would like to know how to set up lights. How many do I need to start with and how many different light sources are there? Does the angle of the light mean much?

A. Light is not matter where it comes from. Daylight, artificial, electronic flash or flash used as a bounce light — all light affects the subject when the exposure is made. When using color you have to make sure of the proper light temperature. The most common studio lights are 3200K lights and can be used for both color and black-and-white films. The indoor light (3200K) is for tungsten color film.

Castling light on the subject is an important factor. Remember that light creates the mood of the subject and the impact. You have to be creative when controlling light. It is a dramatic tool, and when used properly it can give you just what you desire. The most common lights used for black-and-white photographs are 500W, with an eight-inch reflector placed on a light stand that can go up to at least eight feet. It is a very good idea to work with two lights with the same intensity, one used as the main light source and the other as a side or back light. The position and direction of the light is a big factor in the subject's appearance.

If you plan to use one light, use it correctly. Front lighting can be a problem, because the light travels in the same direction as the lens. It flattens the facial features, casts shadows. (It is usually used on persons who have wrinkles.) Move your subject at least four feet away from the background so shadows are not cast on it.

Placing the light on a 45-degree angle will bring out the shape of the subject by giving it some dimension. Direct side light creates an effective image, giving you a shadow on half of the subject's face. When using this lighting, it would be a good idea to use a second light as a side or back light on the shadow side, unless the facial features, such as back-light and rim-light are very effective to outline a subject. If you plan to use a back light, it would be a good idea to set it up first to see how it falls on the subject.

A good scale to follow when using two lights — one as a main light, the other as a side or back light — is that the back light should be one-third closer than the main light. If the main light is set at a distance of nine feet from the subject, the back light should be set at six feet from the subject.

The second light at times can be used as a fill light, and when used that way the proportion is different. Let's say that you placed the main light on a 45-degree angle on the subject and the second light is to be used as a fill. The fill light should be placed at a distance of 12 feet.

The same rules should apply if electronic flash is used. Bounce light is when the light source is bounced off the ceiling onto the subject. If you plan to do portraits, I suggest you use straight lighting. You can experiment later with bounce light after you understand light. Remember that the angle of the light is up to you. So study shadows and how the light falls on the subject, because you have to set your own technique and style in portraiture. It will take a lot of practice to properly light the subject the way you want. To experiment, I suggest you use a square block and practice how light falls on the subject at different angles.

Blinking district cools down town's gaming minority

There are many of you who feel that the Asteroids freaks among us are, well, a little odd. But apparently in Arlington, Texas, they feel even more strongly about the whole computerized game craze than that.

According to Electronics Monthly, the town fathers have decided that adolescents who engage in such unwholesome activities as Pac-Man and the like should be segregated from the more upstanding members of their generation, not to mention the community at large.

To that end they've created a special blinking light district. There are certain areas of the city where those kinds of things are allowed and certain areas where that kind of behavior won't be tolerated, and never the twain shall meet.

Can't replace lost pet but new dog will help

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Universal Press Syndicate

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I need help. I'm not a silly kid, I'm a 34-year-old woman who can't cope with the terrible loss I suffered two weeks ago. My dog died.

"Naffie" was like a child to me. I had her for 12 years. I got her at the animal shelter when she was 3. I was told if someone didn't adopt her she would be put to sleep within one week.

She was part poodle and part cocker spaniel, and she really was a beautiful dog. And smart? I'd say, "Let's go out," and she'd run and get her leash and bring it to me!

I can't stop crying, Abby. She wasn't even sick. She just started to have convulsions, and by the time I got her to the vet she was gone.

Everyone tells me I should get another dog, but no other dog could ever take Naffie's place. Besides, I don't ever want to go through this again.

It's like losing a child. I can't even look at her bowl or leash without crying. Maybe you could tell me if I should get another dog or not.

—GRIEVING IN JERSEY
DEAR GRIEVING: You can never replace Naffie, but you can fill the emptiness she left by getting another pet. Go to the animal shelter and rescue another homeless dog. It could be a lifesaver for both of you.

DEAR ABBY: My husband had a triple bypass operation 14 months ago. He is doing fine now and does everything I used to do before — except one thing.

He hasn't made love to me since his operation. He says he is afraid the excitement might damage his heart. Abby, is this true? Don't tell me that every man who has had a bypass doesn't ever take his wife again!

We've been married for 15 years and had a good sex life before this. I would hate to think our sex life is over so soon. Please ask some of your heart doctors about this.

—NO LOVE IN TEXAS
DEAR NO LOVE: My heart doctors inform me that normal marital relations can be resumed following bypass surgery without fear of heart damage. Your husband should consult his own doctor for confirmation and reassurance.

Some excess vitamins can bring on fatigue

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Association

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: In one of your columns you cautioned that certain vitamins can cause fatigue. Which vitamin was it? I take vitamin E and also B and C vitamins. I thought vitamins gave you more energy. I do have fatigue and am wondering if it could be my vitamins.

DEAR READER: First, let me say that you have a very good idea. There is nothing to do with your vitamin intake or even a lack of vitamins. Fatigue is a symptom. It sometimes means a person is bored and in some cases, it is a symptom of an underlying illness.

The B and C vitamins are water soluble and excess may be washed out through the kidneys. But vitamins A, D and E are fat soluble vitamins and can build up in your body. Both vitamin A and E in excess can cause fatigue.

Vitamin E is not always innocuous. Reports have implicated vitamin E in thrombolytic pulmonary embolism, high blood pressure, fatigue, enlarged breasts, breast tumors, vaginal bleeding, headache, dizziness, nausea and diarrhea, muscle weakness, visual complaints from antagonizing the action of vitamin A.

There are others in my family who have hair that falls out like a freak, rather as making you look disturbed. It doesn't hurt to be different. Girls often like a young man who looks a little more mature. With a young face the gray hair can be quite attractive. Go to a hair stylist and let him help you choose a style that looks good for you.

I'd forget the coloring at your age. Some preparations, including Grecian Formula, contain lead and there has been some concern about its possible role in causing lead toxicity. It will never look as natural as your natural gray hair.

Hair turns gray because of loss of pigment or from air in the hair shaft. It is not a sign of illness or poor health.

I am sending you The Health Letter

4-12, Vitamin E: Miracle or Myth, to have a more balanced view of the uses and limitations of this vitamin.

Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long stamped, self-addressed envelope to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have an unusual problem and hope you can help me. I'm a 16-year-old boy and have gray hair.

I have used several treatments and colorings such as Grecian Formula and none work because I wash my hair often. Why do I have gray hair so early? I know I don't eat right all the time but neither do most teenagers.

There are others in my family who have hair that falls out like a freak, rather as making you look disturbed. It doesn't hurt to be different. At wit's end Life's so predictable, prices the big mystery

By ERMA BOMBECK
© Field Enterprises, Inc.

There are some people who say there are no surprises in the world anymore. They say that everything has become predictable.

We know who wins the election before the polls close.

We can accurately predict the sex of an unborn baby.

We can tell when our appliances will go just by checking the date on the warranty.

And if a woman serves braised parakeet lips over wild rice for dinner, it's a certainty her husband had it for lunch.

Well, adventurers, take heart. There are a few things that will continue to be unpredictable in the world no matter how much technology dominates our lives. Some things will never be predictable in our times.

Take the cost of your prescription. I can never anticipate how sick I am until the druggist tells me the cost of my medicine. I can be standing there feverish, nauseated, aching, and afraid to start a long novel, when he announces, "That'll be $12.17." $12.17? I've paid more for a suntan!

simple stitch in my side. The druggist presses a small vial in my palm no bigger than a thimble and announces, "447.53." I haven't seen that much cash since the garage sale.

And speaking of garages, what about the one where you take your car to be fixed? Don't tell me the world doesn't hold some shocks. The garage I go to is a shrine. It marks the birthplace of the "post-dated" check. More check pains have been recorded at a service department of car repairs than at any other single place of business. No matter what estimate has been given, there is always a charge that was not foreseen. I have heard there was a person whose car had to be pushed into a garage only to discover the problem was a 15-cent hose, but I never knew him personally.

The American people are not naive, nor are they without appreciation that services cannot carry a standard price tag, but I watched a young girl recently in the vet's office who had come to claim her puppy. First she had her blood out and as they talked up the charges she got out her checkbook. As they continued adding up the tab, she graduated to her charge card revolving account.

I wouldn't be surprised if that dog had to live to be 137 before he was paid off.

LEGAL NOTICE

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE FIFTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT OF THE STATE OF IDAHO, IN AND FOR THE COUNTY OF BLAINE, FIRST SECURED BANK OF IDAHO, N.A., Plaintiff vs. MARK E. JENSEN Defendant

NOTICE OF SHERIFF'S SALE Under and by virtue of an Execution issued out of the above entitled Court, the sheriff is directed to sell at public auction, dated the 28th day of DECEMBER, 1981, wherein the plaintiff obtained a judgment against the defendant herein, on the 24th day of September, 1981, for the sum of $18,412.46, plus interest, I have levied upon all the right, title, interest and claim of said defendant, of, in and to the following described REAL PROPERTY: REAL PROPERTY: FILER ACRE TRACT NO. 209 OF TAX #169 and NO. 209 OF TAX #171, LOT 25

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN: That on the 24th day of February, 1982, at the hour of 10:30 o'clock A.M., Mountain Time, of said day, at the EAST FRONT DOOR OF THE TWIN FALLS COUNTY COURT HOUSE, County of Twin Falls, State of Idaho, I will, in obedience to said Order of Sale, sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, lawful money of the United States, all the right, title, interest and claim of the above named defendant, of, in and to the above described REAL PROPERTY to satisfy said judgment together with all costs that have accrued or may accrue.

Dated at Twin Falls, Idaho, on this 2nd day of FEBRUARY, 1982. JAMES R. MUNN Sheriff

PUBLIC NOTICE Notice is hereby given that the Area IV Planning and Services Council on Aging Inc., is seeking the assistance of a public official of the State of Idaho, Department of Transportation to purchase a vehicle which will be used to provide transportation for the elderly persons aged 60 years and over who are handicapped and general public.

These funds are being sought in order to provide services that are either unavailable, insufficient or inadequate to meet the special needs of the elderly and handicapped persons who reside in the 6 counties of Area IV of the State of Idaho by existing public or private transportation or paratransit services.

Persons wishing to offer suggestions or other comments regarding this service are invited to submit written comments to the Area Agency on Aging, P.O. Box 1238, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301, Attn: Charles Chambers and Administrative Division of Aeronautics and Public Transportation, Idaho Department of Transportation, 3483 Rickenbacker St., Boise, Idaho 83725.

Comments must be made within thirty (30) days from the date of this notice.

Comments must be received by March 30, 1982.

CHARLES CHAMBERS Authorized Representative Director, Transportation Planning Office, PUBLISH: Friday, February 19 and March 5, 1982.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING Notice is hereby given by the Planning and Zoning Commission for the City of Twin Falls, Idaho, that a Public Hearing will be held at the hour of 7:30 P.M. on the 9th day of March, 1982, a Tuesday, in the Council Room, City Hall, located at 321 Second Avenue, City of Twin Falls, Idaho, on changes in the Zoning Map for the City of Twin Falls, Idaho, and changes in the Zoning and Subdivision Regulations of the City of Twin Falls, Idaho.

These Changes are as follows: 1) Rezoning of the following parcels of land from R-5 to R-30 (professional overlay): That part of Lot 23 of the Southeast 83177' of the Northeast 217'x206'; and except South 133.8' East of the Cou of Lot 23.

2) Rezoning of the following parcel of land from P-8 MHO (mobile home district overlay) to CB (central business district):

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Oswald: "The American team of Bud Reinhold, Eric Rodwell, Bobby Levin, Jeff Meckstroth, Russ Arnold and John Solodar with Tom Sanders as non-playing captain won the world's championship last year."

Alan: "Their final round opponents were a team from Pakistan. After 48 boards the Pakistanis — Nishat Abedi; Zia Mahmood, Masood-Salim; Jan-Fazli; Munir Ata-Ullah, Nisar Ahmed and non-playing captain Sattar Cochinwalla — led by two IMPs."

Oswald: "The Pakistanis started with a rush. On board one Munir and Fazli reached six clubs on the bidding shown in the box. The clubs broke 3-2 and Munir romped home."

Alan: "Munir's four no-trump was a no-trump raise, not Blackwood and Fazli made the very imaginative bid of six clubs."

Oswald: "Arnold and Solodar almost got to six no-trump, which would have given them a two IMP gain. Their bidding was the same as the better table through four no-trump. Then North bid five diamonds. South five hearts and North five no-trump which South elected to pass. Any slam depended on the 62 percent chance of a 3-2 club break, but as such the slam is a good one to bid."

Despite some negative feedback on character

Anderson loves his 'Animal' role

By RICK KOGAN
©Chicago Sun-Times

CHICAGO — He is very pale and quite tall and he doesn't smile much. At least he didn't smile much when he rose from the couch in his 20th floor hotel suite one late morning recently, rubbing half-sleep from his eyes.

He shook hands and his hands were cold and when he started to talk he coughed first and scratched his beard. He did not look much like his picture. His eyes were not twinkling, for one thing, and as you've already heard, he wasn't smiling. And then there was that beard.

He is most proud of his beard and of his new, shorter haircut.

"I've seen myself enough on talk shows," he said. "And I know that I look good with this shorter hair and with the beard."

The producers of "Lou Grant" are surely of a like mind. They have decided that this 39-year-old actor named Daryl Anderson will be able to keep his new look, this shorter hair and beard, adding another dimension to the character he plays, that unconventional photographer named Animal.

"The first year I had dirt on my wardrobe. I was only dirty for the first three episodes but the image stuck," he said, sparkling clean in a plaid golf shirt. "During the second and third seasons I had patches on my clothes. Then we got rid of those. Last year I grew the beard. That's staying."

Throughout these cosmetic changes, two things about Animal have remained constant over the last four seasons: His tweed cap, "my own, 10 years old, perfectly aged," and the relative absence of his presence.

"I'll be the center of one or two shows a season and that's great," he said. "I always get a nice story. When you think about it, about three-fourths of the shows on 'Lou Grant' have to do with important social issues... My episodes are a little offbeat. They're unusual pieces. And I don't have to put in 12-hour days when I just have a small part. So, I have the best of both worlds, I think. It's really a grind on Ed (Asner, aka Lou Grant), Bobby (Walton, aka Joe Ross) and Linda (Keisley, aka Billie Newman)."

It does not bother Anderson at all that next season's Lou Grant holds few surprises or more exposure for his character. Neither does he seem concerned that he might have to face a life after Lou Grant.

"I suppose the show might run two more years," he said. "That would make seven and I'd be happy. No, I don't feel trapped. You have to be real ambitious—to feel trapped. And you're going to be typecast no matter what you do. This is really my first job and it's a good part for a young actor."

It came easily. Anderson was 25 years old, a Seattle native, a former acting student at the University of Washington and the Seattle Repertory Theater and a bit player in a film called "Sweet Revenge," who was playing a part at the Los Angeles Actors Studio when he was invited to read for the role of Animal.

"When I showed up for the audition I had a scraggly three-day beard," he recalled. "I'd gotten a description of the character and grew the stubble just for the reading. The casting director knew some of my stage work and later told me that I had the part of Animal the minute I walked in the door. The reading was just a formality. My look hit the '60s aura they were looking for."

The role of Animal, staff photographer on the mythical Los Angeles Tribune, was Anderson's first television appearance. His debut caused outrage from genuine newspaper photographers who resented seeing their profession characterized by a bleary-eyed, rag-garbed street creature.

"I was really surprised at all the criticism," Anderson said. "I was really surprised that everyone started yelling about the way I looked. I thought real newspaper photographers would be more upset about the fact that Animal always seemed to be little more than a reporter's assistant, just tagging along on a story."

The dirt was brushed from Animal's clothes and Lou Grant started calling him by his real name, Dennis. And the character settled into his comfortable niche at the Trib.

In his spare time, Anderson played a guard in the movie "Butch and Sundance: The Early Years," and recently appeared as a scientist in the ABC made-for-TV spooky film, "The Phoenix." He and some fellow American actors and actresses recently returned from a 17-day tour of East Germany. While he was there Anderson took pictures.

"I think I take very good pictures," he said. "I started fooling around with cameras when I started playing Animal. I have a very good eye. Some of the things I took in East Germany have been published in a Toronto paper and I think People magazine is going to use some."

"But as for as doing it for a living, I don't think I could. I have no interest in taking pictures unless they concern an event that I'm really interested in. I couldn't just snap anything."

This week's best

Friday

McClain and Gates investigate charges that a police sergeant and his officers in a neighboring town are guilty of routinely brutalizing the suspects they arrest on NBC's "McClain's Law."

Saturday

On CBS, Eddie Albert, Eileen Zimbalist Jr., Tracy Gold and Andy Freeman star in "Walt Disney: Beyond Witch Mountain," a sequel to the story of two extraterrestrial children possessing psychic powers sought by a power-mad billionaire. And, on the CBS movie, a gang-boss Marine pilot battles with his sensitive but strong-willed son in "The Great Santini." Robert Duvall, Blythe Danner and Michael O'Keefe star.

Sunday

How about a mystery movie? Or, rather, a pot luck movie... Our Sunday listings and UPI's network summary list "The Capture of Grizzly Adams" on the NBC movie but some ads have turned up recently promoting "And Justice for All" with Al Pacino. The latter wouldn't be a bad bet and most likely will appear in that time slot.

Monday

NBC offers "A Wedding on Waltons Mountain" on its Monday night movie. Erin Walton and Paul Northridge announce their plans to marry, but Ashley Longworth Jr., one of Erin's former boyfriends makes a desperate attempt to prevent the wedding. Meanwhile, ABC counters with "Oliver's Story," starring Ryan O'Neal and Candice Bergen in a moving sequel to "Love Story."

Tuesday

On NBC's "Bret Maverick," Guthrie is tried for murder with Maverick as his lawyer.

Wednesday

The Grammy Awards, usually a real snoozer, will be on CBS with John Denver as host. The highlights are always the singing performances by nominees, and advance releases maintain there will be more performances this year.

Thursday

Karen Valentine stars in the CBS movie "Muggable Mary: Street Cop" — a story of a divorced woman who becomes a cop to pay for her son's considerable medical expenses and who works as an undercover decoy, hoping to catch muggers in the act.
