

Inflation eases to 18-month low

By New York Daily News

WASHINGTON — Inflation at the pocketbook level eased in January, the government reported Thursday. Post-Christmas clothing sales and lower gasoline prices held the consumer price index to an advance of only 0.3 of a percent, the smallest increase in 18 months.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes hailed the news as evidence of "a continuing trend of improvement" in the Reagan administration's campaign against inflation. But private analysts said the gains reflected the damage caused by the recession, which has pushed unemployment close to its postwar high.

"It's clearly a better number, but I'm more or less consider it to be a temporary reaction to the recession," said economist Joel Popkin, former assistant commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics. He said the underlying inflation rate was still 9 percent.

The 0.3 of a percent January hike in the consumer price index, following increases of 0.4 of a percent in December, 0.5 of a percent in November, 0.4 percent in October and 1.1 percent in September, worked out to an annual annual rate of 3.5 percent — the lowest since 1972. Last year, the index rose 9.4 percent.

Acknowledging that it does not expect January's price performance to be repeated, the administration has officially predicted that consumer prices at the end of the year will be 6.6 percent higher than a year earlier. But Popkin warned that only a prolonged recession could produce this result.

"If we have the mid-year recovery the administration is predicting, the inflation rate will settle around 9 percent," he said.

Aside from clothing, which fell 0.1 of a percent, and transportation, off 0.2 of a percent, the January report showed inflation running at a brisk level in most spending categories. The main exception was the hard-hit housing sector, where lower new home prices helped ease the pinch of higher taxes and heating bills and hold the overall increase to 0.3 of a percent.

Food and beverages rose by 0.7 of a percent, powered by a 16.9 percent rise in vegetables and higher prices for pork, poultry, seafood, fruit, sugar, cereal and baked goods. But beef and eggs were lower.

Medical care continued to be the most inflationary category in the index, rising 0.8 of a percent for a 12.1 percent increase over the year.

Entertainment prices climbed 0.7 of a percent, and services were up 0.6 of a percent. The increases in health and entertainment were higher than in December; the service sector was unchanged.

Overall, the government said, consumer prices in January were 0.4 percent higher than a year earlier. The index stood at 322.1, which meant that it took $22.10 to purchase a basket of goods and services that sold for $100 in 1967.

Land sales may cut debt

By Knight-Ridder Newspapers

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration unveiled a broad new program Thursday aimed at selling off tens of thousands of acres of unneeded federal real estate.

Under increasing pressure to reduce the $1 trillion national debt, budget director David Stockman outlined the plan before a Senate subcommittee chaired by Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill.

Percy has introduced a resolution calling on the federal government to reduce its vast land holdings — estimated at 74 million acres.

"They're up in the attic, and we're going to move them down to the garage and have a garage sale," Percy said.

An aggressive land sell-off program, Stockman said, could bring $1.2 billion in federal revenue in 1983 and $2.2 billion more in each subsequent year.

As a first step to implement the sell-off program, President Reagan signed an executive order Thursday establishing a new federal property review board staffed by senior White House personnel and modeled after a similar group formed by President Nixon in 1970.

Schools' letter-writing campaign sours some lawmakers

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — A drive by Twin Falls School District residents to solicit more state funding support from area legislators may have backfired.

The six Twin Falls County delegates have received about 100 letters each from parents encouraging them to support a 14.6 percent increase in public school appropriations.

But the way the letters were solicited apparently has soured some of the legislators on the sincerity of the requests.

Students carried requests for the letters home to their parents, and in turn, each class gained one point for each parental response. The class bringing in the most letters won a skating party at a Twin Falls roller rink.

"I've had a blizzard of mail," said Rep. Lawrence Knigge, R-Filer. "I certainly approve of letters to support funding for education, but when a bribe is involved..."

Knigge said the letter campaign had no effect on his stand, since as a member of the Joint Finance and Appropriations Committee he will support as much funding for schools as anticipated revenue will allow.

But the 14.6 percent increase the letters request probably is unrealistic, said Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, the chairman of the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee.

"Unless we get some additional revenues, there's no way to get the 14.6 percent increase," he said. "About 10 percent is as strong as we can get."

"But 10 percent would leave public schools at the percentage of state funding they received last year. That would amount to about $19 million more being allocated to public schools next year, which is better than simply keeping up with inflation."

The letter drive, which received support from the school board, the teachers association and parent organizations, was not meant to appear as a scheme to entice parental response, commented assistant superintendent Gary Piller.

"All these groups wanted somebody to show support for the statewide coalition favoring the 14.6 percent increase," he said. "But there had to be some way to encourage the kids to make sure the letters got home to the parents and then for the letters to be returned to the school for mailing."

"The parents were encouraged only to respond," Piller said. "They were also free to oppose the increase, and the letters were left in sealed envelopes to ensure privacy."

Of the 90 to 100 letters Sen. Laird Noh, R-Twin Falls, received, only two opposed the 14.6 percent increase.

"But I was impressed by the effort and thought put into the letters. Each one was done individually, unlike many organized campaigns," he said. "It had to take some of these people an hour to sit down and write them."

Many of Noh's letters proposed budget cuts for non-educational programs as a way of raising additional revenue. Others stressed that whatever increases are granted, they should be put into salaries and maintenance, and not into "frill classes or athletics."

While impressed by most of the letters' contents, Rep. Tom Stivers, R-Twin Falls, said he was alarmed by some threatening comments made by some parents seeking additional school funding.

"I don't mind the school contacting the patrons of the district, but I kind of dislike them using the youngsters as messengers and offering a party as a reward," Stivers said.

The biggest question facing the legislators now is how to respond to the letters. Noh said he hopes his wife has a lot of spare time for typing this weekend.

"I don't know how I'm going to respond to all of them," Stivers said. "I started to, but I've hardly had time to read them all."

Senate favors meeting law

Tighter rules pass despite GOP opposition

BOISE (UPI) — A bill tightening Idaho's open-meeting law passed the Senate Thursday despite opposition from Republican legislative leaders.

A core of GOP lawmakers — including Senate President Pro Tem Reed Budge of Soda Springs and Majority Leader J. Wilson Steen of Glenns Ferry — opposed the bills, which now go to the House for a vote.

The bill to amend the open-meeting law would "moderately shore up terms of the existing statute" by simultaneously protecting rights of the public and press to know about government actions — and rights of officials to privacy when considering sensitive issues, said Sen. Edith Miller Klein, R-Boise. In carrying the measure to the floor.

"I am here because no one else on the committee was too enthusiastic about this bill," Mrs. Klein said. "But the more I study it, the more enthusiastic I am. This is a bill which does not unduly favor either of the parties" — the public and press or elected officials.

A related law passed by the Senate gives city residents a look at municipal campaign-finance records. The senators approved on a 21-11 vote a bill that would require those running for city offices to make their campaign-finance records public in those municipalities where the population exceeds 16,000.

The open-meeting measure would render null and void any decisions made in a closed meeting — or any decision that results from such a meeting if the decision comes within 30 days, she said. It also would impose a $100 fine for any member attending such a meeting as long as that member voted in favor of closing the doors.

The bill also requires that any court challenges to a closed meeting be filed within 60 days — rather than the two-year limit in existing law, she said.

Meetings still may be closed to discuss personnel items, union negotiations, any closed records, issues involving competition with other government agencies or for pending litigation or when there is "general public awareness of pending litigation," Mrs. Klein said.

"These are modest, moderate changes which will result in a statute which is functional and fair to all parties," Mrs. Klein said.

The measure cleared on a 23-10 vote, with negative ballots cast by Republican Sens. Budge, Steen, Vearl Crystal and Marsden Williams of Idaho Falls, David Little of Emmett, Mark Ricks of Rexburg, Leon Swenson of Nampa, Walter Yarbrough of Grand View, John Barker of Buhl and Kenneth Bradshaw of Wendell.

Legislators hope to parlay agency funds into tax cash

BOISE (UPI) — Funding for tighter enforcement of Idaho's income-tax laws cleared the Legislature's budget-setting committee Thursday.

Lawmakers agreed to a one-year trial program designed to raise about $2.5 million for the state's coffers.

In moves designed to raise money without hiking taxes, the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee agreed to spend $150,000 to hire seven people to go after Idahoans who have been refusing to file income tax returns — and another $36,200 for a "phone-power unit" to get money from citizens who file returns but don't pay their taxes.

The committee agreed to fund the programs only on a one-year basis, however, saying they would "sunset" on June 30, 1983, if increased revenues didn't materialize.

Meanwhile, lawmakers also approved about $12 million, which would be available to low-income Idahoans next year for circuit-breaker relief on their property tax bills.

But the circuit-breaker funding cleared on the assumption that another bill will pass the Legislature, said Sen. Vearl Crystal, R-Idaho Falls. The other measure would require counties to cut their property tax collections to make up any circuit-breaker relief that isn't covered in the $3.2 million appropriation.

For example, if the total bill for the tax relief comes in at $3.5 million next year, the counties will have to reduce their property tax collections by $300,000 to make up the difference between the actual cost and the state appropriation, Crystal said.

While Crystal said that plan "won't cost the counties anything," Sen. Mike Mitchell, D-Lewiston, disagreed, saying he didn't believe it was fair to charge counties for the program at a time when applications for the circuit-breaker should increase due to poor economic conditions.

Rumors say Stockman ready to quit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Budget director David Stockman was despondent over losing recent arguments within the White House and at one point was prepared to resign, it was learned Thursday.

White House and budget office spokesmen denied Stockman was quitting.

White House communications director David Gergen told reporters that rumors on Capitol Hill of Stockman's demise are "totally unfounded and the president has full confidence in him."

"There are no plans for Mr. Stockman to resign," he added.

And Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes quoted Reagan as saying, "I have never heard such a thing mentioned anywhere."

A friend described Stockman to United Press International as "coming across as a defeated man" at a budget meeting earlier this month and ready to resign.

Stockman, 35, was described by a source as "despondent" over losing internal battles to raise certain taxes and cut some defense spending and having expressed a willingness to surrender his job at the request of the White House.

Edwin Dale, Stockman's spokesman, angrily denied Thursday night that Stockman had been ready to quit. He said the story was "wrong."

The denials came despite high-level congressional concern that Stockman had lost his effectiveness in trying to sell Congress on Reagan's 1983 budget with its $91.5 billion deficit.

Stockman's tenure has been a matter of speculation since publication of the Atlantic magazine article last November that quoted him as expressing severe doubts about Reagan's economic program.

Congressional speculation about Stockman's departure this week focused on when, not if, he would go, because even opponents conceded that his expertise would be needed in any compromise to be developed between the administration and Congress.

A Republican source said the negative talk was "as strong as green onions" but any move to oust Stockman would probably wait until the 1983 budget legislation is well along, perhaps by May 1.

House Republican leader Robert Michel rallied to Stockman's defense, calling reports of his resignation "some sort of fantasy." He called Stockman knowledgeable and "out in front... on the real reality of the economy" and said "He deserves to be supported."

Stockman's credibility has been under attack since the Atlantic interview revealed a less-than-ferveat belief in "supply-side" economics; Stockman, who said he thought his comments were "off the record," offered to quit at the time, but Reagan kept him on.

Unlike Reagan's board, however, Nixon's property review board, which was disbanded by President Carter, was designed to identify surplus federal lands and then give them away to state and local governments for use as parks.

Partly as a result of Nixon's Legacy of Parks Program, the federal government has given away millions of dollars worth of surplus properties to states and local governments for parks, schools, hospitals and historic preservation projects.

Stockman said the administration has nearly all such land giveaways, adding that an exception was made for properties to be used as jails — a practice that is not permitted under the laws and amendments that created the various donation programs through the years.

Stockman stressed that the administration's sell-off initiative will not include "national treasures," such as national parks and areas designated as wild and scenic rivers. But he cited several examples of undeveloped public wilderness lands — including 4,000 acres near Sparks, Nev., and 8,900 acres within five miles of Palm Springs, Calif. — that he said could be sold at enormous profits to the federal government.

Stockman's testimony drew praise from Percy and two Republican congressmen who sat in on the session. But the sell-off program is likely to encounter opposition from state and local officials whose constituents have benefited from land giveaways.

Earlier this week, for example, California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. called the administration's sell-off plan an exercise in "Napoleon economics." Brown added, "this proposal is similar to when Napoleon sold off the Louisiana Territory to pay for military armaments."

Several congressmen also have voiced opposition to the idea.

Reacting to the administration's budget forecasts that the initiative would help reduce the national debt, Rep. John L. Burton, D-Calif., said earlier this month: "The chances of finding and selling that much unwanted federal land are about all... Some people may believe the president's assumptions, but the same people believe that chickens have lips."

Stockman conceded Thursday that his land-sale proceeds estimates weren't computed using "scientific methods" but were based on the past successes of Nixon's property board.

The new Reagan property review board is charged with setting overall federal land policy and arbitrating disputes between government agencies that hold land and the General Services Administration, the executive agency now responsible for identifying and disposing of surplus land.

Appointed to the six-member board were Stockman; presidential counselor Edwin Meese; White House chief of staff James Baker; national security adviser William P. Clark; Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, and Edward Harp, newly appointed director of White House policy development.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — An untelevised Ed Asner Thursday he "goofed" in the style of his recent call for medical aid for leftist rebels in El Salvador, but stressed he stood by the substance of his controversial remarks.

"I feel I have an obligation to the cause of justice and human rights to speak out as a private citizen," the tough city editor on the "Lou Grant" television series told a news conference.

Apparently no one had told them the electrified tracks stopped at Newark.

There were no injuries in the bizarre drama, reminiscent of the book and film "The Taking of the Pelham 123" about a subway hijacking, and the pair was quickly arrested.

The two suspects, who had no gun, were identified as John Franklin and Eric Butts, both 18. They told police they lived in the Bronx.

Analysis:

A ridge of high pressure continued to build both at the surface and aloft over Idaho Thursday. This pressure system is causing the air over Idaho to warm slowly and will cause inversions to develop. This in turn will result in an increase of smoke and haze in the valleys.

Variable higher cloudiness was drifting over the state Thursday, blocking out any lower level cloudiness. As a result, any rain or snow fall is also blocked and shunted toward the north.

Most stations in Idaho Thursday afternoon were observing east to southeast winds in the 10 to 20 mph range.

Afternoon temperatures were on the warm side. Afternoon readings ranged from 28 at McCall to 43 at Lewiston.

Most readings were in the upper 30s to low 40s.

Warehouse license bill to Evans

BOISE (UPI) — A bill designed to protect Idaho farmers who turn over their crops to warehouse operators was approved unanimously by the state Senate Thursday without debate.

The bill carried by Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, now goes to the governor to be signed into law.

Noh said writing of the measure was a cooperative effort among groups of agricultural warehouse owners, the Idaho Farm Bureau Federation and the National Farmers Union.

The bill would make it a felony for someone to operate an agricultural warehouse without a license — and would require detailed financial statements as a condition for receiving that license, Noh said.

The measure — which was prompted by about $1.5 million in claims by farmers who alleged they lost that amount worth in a 1979 fire at the Beans Inc. warehouse in Filer — also broadens the bond coverage of such warehouses and allows quick action by the Idaho Agricultural Department if any problems are found in administration of such a facility, Noh said.

In the House, members approved a $60,000 budget cut for the Idaho Commission for the Blind despite an attempt by Rep. Melvin Hammond, R-Rexburg, to boost the funding bill.

Hammond attempted to add funds for two staff members to the supplemental appropriation for fiscal year 1982 — but that attempt failed 19-45. The bill then passed 49-18.

In other action, the House:

- Approved a $100,000 supplemental appropriation for the Idaho Fish and Game Department for an emergency feeding program of starving big game animals.

- Agreed to abolish the three-day waiting period for issuance of a marriage license on a 41-22 vote and forwarded that bill to the Senate.

In the Senate, meanwhile, lawmakers:

- Failed to gain the required two-thirds majority needed to place a constitutional amendment on the ballot. The resolution proposed by Sen. Mike Mitchell, D-Lewiston, would clear the way for family farmers to incorporate, then issue non-voting stock to their children so parents can maintain control of their farms but still take advantage of tax breaks.

- Senators also voted 20-12 to allocate $77,000 for fulltime security protection for the governor and legislators. Sen. J. Wilson Steen, R-Glenns Ferry, led the fight against the House-passed bill, however, saying he believed protection was sufficient now without spending additional cash for two fulltime agents.

- A bill that would require parental notification when a teenager seeks an abortion — and another requiring doctors to provide patients with detailed information about the operation — face opposition in the Senate State Affairs Committee.

The panel has introduced the bills — but committee Chairman Sen. Leon Swenson, R-Nampa, said the measures will return to the committee for hearings next week, possibly on Wednesday.

Senate OKs bill to end insanity pleas

BOISE (UPI) — Criminal suspects would not be allowed to use insanity as a defense under a bill that cleared the Senate Thursday amid protests that the measure may not be constitutional.

The bill passed on a 24-9 tally — but Sen. Mike Mitchell, D-Lewiston, and other lawmakers said the constitutionality of the measure was in question despite assurances from Idaho Attorney General David Leroy. Idaho would become the first state in the country to have such a law if the measure is approved by the House and the governor — and withstands any court challenges.

The bill's sponsor said someone "who was strangling a person but thought they were squeezing oranges" could be committed for mental treatment — not prosecuted — if a judge determined the person couldn't participate in his defense, or if a judge couldn't form an intent to commit a crime.

Sen. Roger Fairchild, R-Fruitland, also said the bill would "remove theatrics from the courtroom" by barring defense attorneys from calling "hired guns" as expert witnesses; who rely on emotion, not facts, to convince jurors.

"This bill does not eliminate mental illness as a defense in a criminal trial — it limits it," Fairchild said. The bill that has been in the works for two years is opposed by the Idaho Mental Health Association, he said, but that group and others still have helped work out the terms of the legislation.

The bill would not allow defendants to plead innocent by reason of insanity — but it would allow a judge to drop charges against them if the court commits the person after determining the defendant didn't have criminal intent and can't participate in his defense, Fairchild said.

That provision protects the defendant's constitutional right to be fit to stand trial, Fairchild said. If a judge determines the defendant can stand trial — defense attorneys still can introduce evidence about the person's mental condition, he said. And that information can be considered when the defendant is sentenced.

"They would not just be locked up, they'd be treated," Fairchild said. "And, after treatment, they'd be eligible for parole or commutation." But Mitchell said he did not believe Idaho had a problem with use of insanity defenses. Testimony presented to the Senate Judiciary Committee indicated that only one-tenth of 1 percent of all criminal cases rely on that defense — and only 5 percent of that figure succeed, he said.

He and Senate Minority Leader Ron Twilegar, Boise, questioned the constitutionality of the bill, saying they believed the measure had not been written to withstand the court challenges raised when other states have approved such bills.

Twilegar said the bill also would allow prosecution of "a class of people that for centuries have been statutorily unable to be convicted of crimes" — the mentally ill.

Throughout the history of western law, the concept of mens rea — or criminal intent — has been recognized, he said, and this bill would negate that principle.

"If you think this legislation is reasonable, if you think removing a class of people who for centuries have been protected, I think it's just as reasonable to remove children and say they can be prosecuted for crimes," Twilegar said.

Bill keeps foreign particles off scalp

BOISE — After asking a hair stylist for advice on baldness, Rep. Rich Orme, R-St. Anthony, said he was told to "continue the wide part down the middle of my head."

And so, Orme began his presentation Thursday of a bill that would prohibit the implantation of any material in a person's scalp except for that person's own hair. The law is meant to protect bald people from transplants of synthetic or other types of hair, "which are both dangerous in terms of infections and totally ineffective," said Orme, who was unanimously selected by the House Health and Welfare Committee to sponsor the bill because of his Yul Brynner appearance.

"Ugly sayings, like skinhead, can cause severe depression to come about," Orme said. "It can cause people to turn to desperate measures, which in turn allows others to prey on unfortunate people like us."

The bill would make it a misdemeanor offense for anyone to conduct a hair transplant with anything but the patient's own hair. The measure passed 61 to 6.

House approves bill to toughen child-abuse laws

BOISE — A bill to toughen Idaho's child-abuse laws passed the House on Thursday by a unanimous vote, 65 to 0.

The Child Protection Act was last revised and adopted in 1976, said the bill's sponsor, Rep. Pam Bengson, R-Boise: "It's time it was made stronger."

About 7,400 cases of child abuse and neglect were reported last year, "and in that time, seven children were killed," she said.

The first of two major revisions offered in Bengson's bill is to "more broadly define sexual abuse" to include pornography, rape and prostitution.

The second revision would change a statute governing court-appointed counsel for child victims.

The measures gives the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare the power to petition courts to establish child custody and to collect foster-care support.

Troubling thoughts on Caribbean plan

There are troubling aspects to President Ronald Reagan's overture to aid the Caribbean Basin to the tune of $825 million.

First and foremost is the difficulty of convincing the American public that the nation can afford millions more in aid to foreign nations when Reagan's domestic policies are under attack on a number of economic fronts.

There is the problem of Reagan's foreign policy approach. It remains confusing, and it is complicated by the conflicting roles of Secretary of State Alexander Haig and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, both of whom dabble in setting tone and substance overseas.

Third is the lingering bad dream of another foreign foray resulting in disaster. "Another Vietnam" is the buzzword applied to involvement in Central America. While that might be overstating the circumstances, the framework of American foreign policy does leave considerable room for doubt.

The nation's conscience continues to be deeply bothered by aid to such repressive regimes as Nicaragua and El Salvador. A recent U.S. Senate fact-finding team presented a hard-line approach when confronting human-rights violations in El Salvador. That is a forerunner of the rough grilling Reagan will face in getting any aid package through Congress.

The president wants just about everything short of committing U.S. troops to the region. This includes the use of U.S. advisers, increased shipments of American arms and the training of foreign troops at U.S. bases — all at a huge cost.

But the difference between Vietnam and Central America is that Vietnam was an ocean away; the nations to the south are on our doorstep. With Cuba serving as the communist pipeline into Central America, the Soviets have a handy hit man in Fidel Castro. Castro would like nothing better than to begin the "domino effect" in the region.

Reagan thus should be applauded for taking a firm stand against further communist expansion and support of insurgencies. "No more Cubas" is a rallying cry that might win considerable support in the West.

The question is whether Reagan can pull off this program without taking the ultimate step of putting American soldiers on foreign soil, whether anything short of U.S. military might can staunch the upheavals now taking place.

Another 'phantom' tax relief bill

BOISE — As if the Idaho Legislature did not have enough problems with financing, a bill in the Senate would take $6 million and use it for local property tax replacement.

It is being offered in the guise of "tax relief." The amount of relief for most taxpayers would be so small as to be unnoticeable. Residential taxpayers might get an average of about $10. After values on homes are adjusted upward this year, as required by law, they would probably get nothing.

All, or nearly all of this "tax relief" would go to non-residential property, just as virtually all of the relief from past "mill bills" has gone to non-residential property. Residential taxpayers pay for it, in the form of sales and income taxes, but they don't receive it.

If the $6 million is used in this way, it would be at the expense of the state aid appropriation to the public schools. It would be at the expense of funds for universities and junior colleges. It would be at the expense of such programs as public television.

Very likely the taxpayers would end up paying for at least $6 million in the form of override elections for the schools, fees at the colleges and universities, or in other fees. Considering the state's financial situation, this is no time to be handing out $6 million in phantom tax relief.

After the next fiscal year, the projected Reagan administration budgets include $4 billion a year in projected revenue from land sales. This fits in with resolutions in the House and Senate authorizing the administration to inventory and consider selling off any land under federal jurisdiction, excepting only national parks and national monuments.

While there is merit in disposing of surplus federal lands in urban areas, the resolutions would give the green light to an extensive selloff of the public lands in the West managed by the Forest Service and the Bureau of Land Management. You would have to sell a lot of land to get $4 billion.

There is a proposed constitutional amendment in the State House, HJR 18, that would allow the State Land Board to grant tenure to holders of livestock grazing leases. Presently leases expire after 10 years, and are subject to competitive bidding. This differs from the practice on the federally-managed public lands, where leaseholders have tenure.

Unfortunately, that isn't all this amendment does. If the "sagebrush rebels" should persuade Congress to transfer the public lands to the states, this amendment would prohibit management of those lands for multiple use. They could be managed only for "maximum long-term financial return."

This means management for commercial uses, excluding recreation use, wildlife, or water quality, in the case of conflict with commercial uses.

Presently it appears that the constitution prohibits multiple use management of public land under federal jurisdiction, if it should be transferred. It says any lands granted to the states can only be managed for maximum financial return — which means commercial uses.

There is some question as to whether the existing language runs out multiple use for federally-managed public lands, if the lands were transferred to the state. SJR 18 leaves no doubt.

You couldn't have multiple use. So the Idaho Cattlemen's Association, which supports both the "rebellion" and this resolution, apparently doesn't want multiple use management of the public lands.

Certainly this is inconsistent with the views of many, if not most, livestock operators in Idaho. Cattlemen and sheepmen generally are not opposed to consideration for recreation use, or wildlife, in land management.

The constitution, if it is to be amended, should be changed to allow multiple use management of the 2.5 million acres of state endowment land under jurisdiction of the State Land Board. Presently, in case of any conflict, wildlife and recreation use always lose.

A better way to sort mail

Editor, Times-News: Postage rates, in some instances, are 10 times what they were more than a half century ago, with services deteriorating at about the same ratio, in the eyes of many. And there's talk of a nine-digit zip code!

Sometimes criticism falls upon local postal personnel, but often they are as victimized as the rest of us. They take orders from the top, and their comments, for instance, that there is only a slight difference in background color as to an 18- or 20-cent stamp, with no indication as to value, are ignored.

Then, there are route and box numbers, often changed without patrons being advised. Sixteen years ago we were assigned Box No. 116, while living on a rural route, which number was imprinted on stationery, checks, etc. After encountering mailing difficulties recently we discovered our box number was now 170, replacing 157 somewhere along the line. Locally, the post office advised us to use the route number, since box numbers were really supplied to assist the mail carrier.

And why not sort mail locally, hiring local people?

Due to sorting of mail at central locations via the computer system, one can mail a letter to a local addressee and it will take longer to be delivered than if it had been sent to New York City! A few years ago two letters were dropped into the mail chute at the local post office, one addressed to the county commissioners a half block way; the other to the zoning board chairman 10 miles out in the country. It took six days for the letter to reach the courthouse — seven to reach the addressee in the county.

Rather than pointing the finger at local offices, perhaps we should lambast the regulators at the top of our mechanized society, insisting they discontinue policies costing more all the time, yet giving less.

Cattlemen needed on council

Editor, Times-News: In regard to Mr. Darwin Phillips' letter in the 2-26-82 paper:

I feel he is jumping to a conclusion. Does he know these men, how they really feel about the use of public land? I don't. Let's give them a chance.

I say it's about time a couple of cattlemen were appointed to the Public Lands Advisory Council. In our ever-growing state with more folks using the public lands, I think it wise to have representatives from the resource users, as you call them. And, believe me, cattlemen are simply using a resource as are the hunters, hikers, skiers, campers, etc. Having been raised on a ranch, I know the cattlemen usually are the last when it comes to land use considerations, besides the fact they pay for the use of said land. I say it's about time they were in on the decision making process.

What bothers me most, his use of the words "conservation and preservation" in the same breath. Being a Hunter Safety Instructor, I teach children the difference between these two words: CONSERVATION — The wise use of public lands and its resources. PRESERVATION — The non-use of public lands and its resources.

Which does Mr. Phillips want? Those for preservation will be defeated by those for conservation, and cattlemen are for conservation. They are not a greedy bunch. Think about that the next time you sink your teeth into a hunk of beef.

Who will be served with news cameras in Senate?

© The Washington Post Co.

WASHINGTON — Anyone who thinks sensibly about most things has a right to be utterly dully about some things. Howard Baker, in his campaign to get television cameras into the Senate chamber, is exercising his right with a vigor that deserves a larger, better cause. Cameras in the chamber would not be good for the Republic, the Senate or journalism.

Proponents accuse opponents of opposing an "open" (Baker's word) Senate and favoring "secret deliberations" (Baker again). But the Senate already is a fishbowl in a spotlight. Cameras are allowed into most committee meetings, where most Senate business is performed — and where, perhaps not coincidentally, most of the demagoguery occurs.

In the Capitol, senators have provided themselves a studio where they can make their own programs, and have provided broadcast journalists with facilities for conducting interviews. There are press galleries in the chamber. And Jack Danforth (R-Mo.), Missouri's finest ornament since Stan Musial, notes that the Congressional Record prints every word uttered in the Senate, and many that are not actually uttered.

Baker notes that the Senate, which during its first seven years met behind closed doors, voted in 1794 to provide public galleries. Baker says that "introducing broadcasting to the chamber merely extends the gallery." The charitable response to that thought is: Oh, my.

Differences of degree often involve differences of kind. Debating in front of a few hundred, say, high school students on their senior trip from Missouri is different than performing in front of cameras that may, if one says something sufficiently pithy, or reckless, carry what one says to 20 million voters. And people in the gallery, unlike viewers of evening newscasts, hear more than 30-second snippets of debate, snippets wrenched from context and sandwiched between commercials for denture adhesives.

A camera is a constricting news-gathering instrument, and network newscasts are restricted to about 22 minutes of news. Hence the tendency to fill the time with footage of episodes that are vivid and brief. Cameras in the Senate would strengthen that baleful tendency by adding a new source of such footage.

Sensors can provide such vivid, brief episodes, but should they be encouraged to? The Senate is supposed to be a place for calm and extended discussion.

Some argue that because the House of Representatives is televised, the Senate should be, too. But that non sequitur springs from careless consideration of the Constitution. The Constitution clearly intends for the Senate a more detached, aloof and deliberative role than that of the House, which is a more purely representative institution.

Danforth notes that the Senate already is "overloaded," that there is little "slack" or "empty space" in senators' lives, which are constantly chopped into maddeningly smaller segments. Senators despair of finding larger blocks of calm time in which to deal with issues, so they become habituated to achieving satisfaction, or at least recognition, from "dealing with some little thing which is colorful."

Danforth believes that things might be made worse by television's incitement to the "60-second quick trick." Most — about 99.5 percent — of a good senator's work is done not in the chamber but in committees or his office. Danforth says the telling question is: If the chamber is televised, will senators apportion their time as they do now? Surely many will be drawn from other duties, to the chamber.

The networks (and here I bite a hand that feeds me) are at least as nimble as journalists generally are at cloaking their self-interest in the rhetoric of altruism. When journalists start exclaiming about "the public's right to know" — to know about Al Haig's confidential remarks, or whatever — they sometimes are correct about the public's right. But they invariably are demanding something that will serve their professional-commercial interest in spicier journalism.

It is naive or arrogant or cynical for journalists blindly to assert that whatever serves their interest is ever-wilder and more direct access to government serves, necessarily and automatically, the public interest. The public's primary interest is in good government, and there is tension, not perfect harmony, between that goal and journalists' more parochial goals. The tension is apparent in the argument over televising the Senate.

There is such a sufficiency of reasons for opposing the televising of the Senate, we opponents can generously discount one argument against televising: the fear that cameras in the chamber will excite senators' presidential ambitions. Most sharks' appetites are stimulated by aperitifs?

Hyatt skywalks violated city codes

GAITHERSBURG, Md. (UPI) — Two 32-ton skywalks that collapsed and killed 113 people at the Kansas City Hyatt Regency Hotel last July violated city building codes, a government study concluded Thursday.

The National Bureau of Standards said its investigation of the tragedy determined that the original design of the skywalks would have provided for a load tolerance less than that required by city building codes.

A change during construction compounded the problem, doubling the load on three sets of slender rods suspending the skywalks and leaving them able to support just 27 percent of the load standard set by the city, the 349-page report said.

"The resultant connection had barely enough capacity to resist the walkway dead load (the weight of the walkway itself) and very little additional capacity to resist the loads imposed by people," said Edward P. Frang, who headed the investigation.

The investigation did not assess responsibility for the insufficient load capacity, but its findings are expected to be used by litigants who have filed billions of dollars in law suits.

A fourth-floor skywalk loaded with people apparently swaying to the beat of a band cracked and fell atop a crowded second-floor skywalk directly below during one of the hotel's popular tea dances last July 17. Both then plunged to the lobby.

The accident, which also injured at least 212 people, forced engineers and architects across the nation to review the safety of similar designs.

The investigation said neither the dancing nor any defects in materials were to blame. "Neither the quality of workmanship nor the materials used in the walkway system played a significant role in initiating the collapse," it said.

Researchers simulated collapses with mock-ups and subjected debris from the actual walkway to hundreds of tests in the bureau's most extensive investigation ever of a building failure.

The original design called for the two walkways to be suspended from the hotel's roof by three common sets of connection rods.

However, a change in construction had the fourth-floor walkway suspended by one set of rods, and the second-floor walkway suspended by the one above it by a second set. Both sets were attached to a horizontal beam along the walkway.

The connection rods running to the roof pulled through the fourth-floor walkway under the excess strain, the report said. There were also signs of distortion on a third-floor walkway that was suspended separately and had not collapsed, the report said.

Investigation summary

GAITHERSBURG, Md. (UPI) — Here is a summary of conclusions by the National Bureau of Standards in its investigation of the Kansas City Hyatt Regency Hotel disaster last July that killed 113 people:

1. Collapse of the skywalks occurred under the action of loads that were substantially less than the design loads specified by the Kansas City Building Code.
2. The ultimate capacity of box beam-hanger rod connections can be predicted on the basis of laboratory test results.
3. Under the action of the loads estimated to have been present on the skywalks at the time of collapse, all fourth-floor box beam-hanger rod connections were candidates for inflation of walkway collapse.
4. Observed distortions of structural components strongly suggest that failure of the walkway system initiated in the box beam-hanger rod connection at location 9UE (east end of middle box beam in fourth floor walkway).

5. As constructed, the box beam-hanger rod connections, the fourth floor-to-ceiling hanger rods, and the third-floor walkways hanger rods did not satisfy the design provision of the Kansas City Building Code.
6. The change in hanger rod arrangement from a continuous rod to interrupted rods essentially doubled the load to be transferred by the fourth-floor box beam-hanger rod connections.
7. The box beam-hanger rod connections would not have satisfied the Kansas City Building Code under the original hanger rod detail (continuous rod).
8. Under the original hanger rod arrangement (continuous rod), the box beam-hanger rod connections as shown on the contract drawings would have had the capacity to resist the loads estimated to have been acting at the time of collapse.
9. Neither the quality of workmanship nor the materials used in the walkway system played a significant role in initiating the collapse.

Senate tempers cool off; agree to anti-busing vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, with tempers starting to flare, agreed Thursday to end its long debate and vote next Tuesday on a bill containing the most sweeping anti-busing legislation ever to move through Congress.

Sen. Lowell Weicker Jr., R-Conn., who has kept the legislation tied up in the Senate since last summer, finally agreed to Senate Republican leader Howard Baker's pleas not to use the remaining 70 hours of debate provided under a closure rule.

With Weicker sitting quietly by Baker announced the Senate would set aside the remaining anti-busing amendments, resume debate on it for two hours Tuesday and then vote on final passage of the bill.

The amendment, forbidding busing longer than 30 minutes or 10 miles roundtrip for purposes of school desegregation, is attached to the $2.45 billion 1982 Justice Department authorization bill. The House has passed the bill, but still must act on the anti-busing amendment.

Weicker took the floor to apologize to Baker for an incident earlier in the day. Weicker did not disclose what happened other than to say, "I was responsible for it. It was inadvertent, unintentional; he's a good friend, a fine majority leader."

Baker praised Weicker in turn, saying "I doubt I've ever had an adversary as tough as the senator from Connecticut. . . . There are few senators more dedicated to principle."

Agency estimates Reagan red ink at $121 billion for 1983

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan's 1983 budget plan would lead to a deficit of $121 billion, a congressional agency estimated Thursday.

A top Republican said red ink for this year could hit "the $110 billion range."

Together the two figures are $42 billion above official deficit estimates Reagan sent to Congress just three weeks ago.

The Congressional Budget Office said Thursday it figures the 1983 deficit under Reagan's budget would be nearly $30 billion more than the administration projection of $91.5 billion.

House GOP leader Rep. Robert Michel of Illinois, after a White House meeting, told reporters, "I'm certainly not going to be surprised to see that (fiscal 1982) deficit going (into) the $110 billion range."

Michel, who attended a meeting between Reagan and the GOP members of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, cited almost exactly the $111 billion '82 deficit figure forecast by the budget office.

Reagan's budget forecast — $96.6 billion in red ink for the present fiscal year.

White House deputy press secretary

Larry Speakes said late in the day that the administration stands by its projected deficit. "We are confident our figures are correct," he said.

Michel's announcement was the strongest confirmation to date from a top Republican that the deficit is heading into a deepening spiral and seemed likely to fuel calls for defense cuts and tax hikes to staunch the rising debt.

The budget office report said it expects deficits would climb steadily from $111 billion in 1982 to $140 billion in 1985, rather than decreasing as the administration projects, trailing down to $71.9 billion in 1985.

Overall, the administration is underestimating the total deficit during the next three years by some $140 billion, budget office director Alice Rivlin said. A good share of the difference grows from varying views of how fast the economy will recover from the current recession, she said.

"This is a very grim outlook for the budget," Ms. Rivlin told the Senate Appropriations Committee.

"To reduce the risk of continued economic instability... the Congress may wish to consider possible alternatives to the president's budgetary proposals," she said.

Committee favors contempt charges for Watt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Energy Committee voted Thursday to cite Interior Secretary James Watt for contempt of Congress.

Watt refused to provide 11 subpoenaed documents for which President Reagan has claimed executive privilege.

The vote was 23-19. Texas Democratic Rep. Phil Gramm and Ralph Hall voted with the Republicans against citing Watt. Republican Marc Marks of Pennsylvania voted with the Democrats and blamed the White House for the problem.

The resolution, introduced by Rep.

Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., refers to the full House of Representatives Watt's refusal to comply with a Sept. 28, 1981, subpoena, recommending that the secretary be cited for contempt "to the end that he may be proceeded against in the manner and form provided by law."

Hasty House action appears unlikely. Congressional aides said it could take weeks simply to prepare the report to the House.

If the House supports the committee's recommendation, the matter would be referred to the U.S. attorney for the District of Columbia and presented to a grand jury.

The maximum penalty, if Watt were found guilty, could be fined a maximum of $1,000 and one year in jail.

Watt has said he is willing to go to jail for the principle, but Chairman John Dingell, D-Mich., said he still hopes to work out a settlement short of a House vote on the citation.

Interior Department spokesman Douglas Baldwin said the issue involves executive privilege "and has nothing to do directly with the interior secretary."

He said the president ordered the documents withheld, and the issue will "probably be decided by the Supreme Court and hinges on the extent to which the executive branch may withhold certain sensitive information."

Marks said Watt would have provided the remaining documents "had that great backdoor of access to Baker to Deaver not decided to inject themselves in this."

The reference was to counselor Edwin Meese, chief of staff James Baker and his deputy Michael Deaver.

Atlanta murder trial could reach jury today

ATLANTA (UPI) — Testimony ended Thursday in the murder trial of Wayne B. Williams with his mother insisting prosecutors failed to prove her son was the feared killer of young Atlanta blacks.

The case could go to the jury today.

"Wayne's character has been drug through the mud, his daddy's character has been drug through the mud, and I been drug," Mrs. Faye Williams testified. "In fact, they have ruined the Williams family and they continue to lie and lie. But they have not produced evidence my son is a killer."

The defendant's 64-year-old mother was the last witness in the 9-week long trial. Following her testimony, defense attorney Al Binder moved for a directed verdict of acquittal. Superior Court Judge Clarence Cooper denied the motion.

Cooper ordered final arguments to begin Friday and allotted each side two hours in which to make their presentations.

A court spokesman said he hoped to have the case in the hands of the eight black and four white jurors by late Friday.

Williams, a 23-year-old black freelance photographer, stood trial for the murders of Nathaniel Cater, 27, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, two of 28 young Atlanta blacks whose slayings over a 22-month period spread fear through Atlanta's black neighborhoods.

Testimony tied Williams with 10 other slayings.

The state contended Williams killed for the challenge of it, that he enjoyed outwitting the massive task force that police put together to track down the killer, who preyed chiefly on young black children.

Fibers found on the bodies of the victims were the state's chief physical evidence against Williams, but the defense produced a counter expert witness who testified the fibers could have come for a variety of sources, and not necessarily Williams' home and car as the prosecution claimed.

The jury will also have to wrestle with conflicting testimony on whether Williams had homosexual tendencies, whether he despised poor young blacks and whether he was an inveterate liar, or a model son, as his mother testified.

Williams projected a calm, placid nature throughout the trial until his last hour under cross-examination Wednesday when he underwent a startling personality change.

Reagan sends tax exempt issue to court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reagan administration, reversing its position for a second time, urged the Supreme Court Thursday to settle one and for all whether private schools that discriminate should enjoy tax exemptions.

The Justice Department filed papers asking the justices to proceed with a test case involving Bob Jones University of Greenville, S.C. and the Goldboro (N.C.) Christian Schools.

The case set off political fireworks in January, when President Reagan decided to overturn a 12-year-old practice of denying tax exemptions to private institutions that practice racial bias.

At that time, the administration urged the high court to drop the case.

But Thursday government lawyers said the administration changed its position because of a decision last week by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington, which has temporarily barred the Internal Revenue Service from granting or restoring any tax exemptions to such private schools.

"In these circumstances, we believe it would be appropriate for this court to proceed with adjudication of the issues," the department told the high court.

Significantly, the department also moved for "divided argument" in the case — meaning the administration does not intend to take the same position in the case as the two religious schools.

Defending the decision to give the schools the tax breaks, Reagan argued that government bureaucrats should not be making such decisions. He said Congress is the proper place to decide the issue, and he called on lawmakers to pass a law to clear up the controversy.

Bob Jones, however, maintains Congress cannot constitutionally deny such tax exemptions.

The difference shapes up as the key split between the administration and the fundamentalist schools on the sensitive question.

Civil rights groups and Capitol Hill critics have assailed Reagan's stand on the tax breaks as another example of his insensitivity to the problem of discrimination.

Hinckley trial set, then reset

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge Thursday set March 9 as the trial date for accused presidential assailant John W. Hinckley Jr., but within hours an appeals court blocked the beginning of the case for the third time.

Acting at the request of federal prosecutors, a three-judge appellate panel postponed the trial at least until April 9 to give prosecutors time to decide whether to appeal an order barring use of illegally obtained evidence at Hinckley's trial.

The delay was a hint, but not firm evidence, that prosecutors will seek to win court approval to use contested statements made by Hinckley hours after President Reagan was shot nearly one year ago.

"Jurisdiction in the case now resides in the court of appeals," a spokeswoman for the U.S. District Court said. "The March 9 trial date has been postponed pending further developments."

The one-page order by the Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia overrides the directions of District Judge Barrington Parker, issued earlier in the day, ordering the case against the 26-year-old drifter to commence.

Area officials beg for extra judge

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — Magic Valley residents will lose access to timely court hearings if a sixth judge isn't appointed to the Fifth District Court.

That was the claim presented Thursday to the House Judiciary, Rules and Administration Committee by Magic Valley judges and public officials.

With no debate, the committee then gave its support to a House bill that would authorize an additional Fifth District judge, who probably would be located in either Jerome or Gooding counties.

This is the third attempt at locating a full-time district judge in one of those counties.

"The adverse effect of all the travel time our (five) judges have to deal with is a difference," said District Court Prosecutor Douglas Rose.

Rose cited a recent case he filed against fraudulent welfare recipients as an example of time delays affecting justice. Despite having an air-tight felony case, he said he reduced the charge to a misdemeanor so the case could be heard earlier. The defendant, a woman being held in jail in lieu of bond, "was seven-and-a-half months pregnant, and if we'd waited for a district court trial, the county would have had to pay for that couple's baby."

The administrative judge of the Fifth District, Douglas Kramer, who normally would have handled that case, testified that his calendar is booked totally through 1982. He said other district judges are equally tight for the time.

"The big issue is whether we're going to give the public the service they deserve," Kramer said. "The people living in the mountains or on the farms are entitled to the same service received by those in metropolitan areas."

But traveling around the eight rural counties of the Fifth District makes it tough for the judges to meet that responsibility, said Fifth District trial court administrator Phillip Becker, a magistrate from Gooding.

Becker applauded Kramer's handling of the district, noting the Fifth District is the only judicial area not levying taxes the last three years to support the courts. But he warned that "Judge Kramer's 12-hour days" are going to give in to either less trial work or less administrative work, and could endanger the financial stability of the district.

Most of those testifying recommended the sixth judge reside in either Jerome or Gooding counties.

"Jerome is one of the fastest-growing areas in the state, but it has been passed over before as a site for a district judge," said Jerome Mayor Ralph Peters. "Jerome should not be the stepchild of the Fifth District."

Jerome lawyer Robert Williams echoed Peters, noting that Jerome and Gooding counties are probably the only areas in the state with a population exceeding 30,000 that do not have a resident district judge. Williams explained how Jerome

County's district court calendar is scheduled only on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and "we've purposely filed cases in other counties because we felt our clients could not be served in proper time in Jerome County."

Having too few judges is also complicated by a state law that allows filing parties to disqualify at least one judge from hearing a case, said Blaine County Prosecutor Keith Roark. He said this simply creates even more time delays and scheduling problems without a sixth judge being available.

"And I firmly believe in the saying, 'Justice delayed is justice denied,' Roark told the committee.

'Blood runners'

Red Cross volunteers keep blood costs low by rushing pints to hospitals in emergencies

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Where can you find 18 people who are willing to get out of bed at any hour of the night and drive 100 miles or more with no pay and sometimes little thanks?

The Sawtooth chapter of the American Red Cross in Twin Falls functions with the help of numerous volunteers, but board members are particularly proud of their "blood-runners' program.

Chapter executive Ann Livingston says the program began Memorial Day, 1980, when Duane Schrank, a blood-service committee member, told the board there had to be a better way to make emergency blood deliveries. At that time, the blood was taken from Magic Valley Memorial Hospital to smaller hospitals in outlying communities by taxi — a high cost to the Red Cross Blood Center in Boise and the area chapter.

Under the direction of the Boise center, the hospital in Twin Falls maintains a regional blood bank to supply Magic Valley and Wood River Valley hospitals.

Schrank says it was not his idea, but he presented it to the local board after a suggestion from the assistant director of the Boise center.

"I guess you could say I stuck my neck out," he says. "She asked me if I thought we could make such a plan work in Twin Falls, and I told her we could."

"I think the program is successful in several ways," Schrank says. "First of all, of course, it saves on the cost of the blood to the patient, and it also saves money for the blood program. But beyond that, it has given more people an active part in Red Cross services. They feel they are doing something important to help others, which indeed they are, and it gives them a good feeling."

"We were paying around $35 to get an order of blood to the Sun Valley or Blaine County hospitals," Livingston says.

"Now, the Blood Center in Boise pays only a mileage fee, and the deliveries are made for less than half the former cost."

Drivers receive no salary, but the mileage payment has been increased to 25 cents a mile, so the drivers can pay for their gasoline and some of the cost of operating their vehicles.

Just 'trying to defend our property'

Opponents give up Acme rezone fight

By KAREN MAIN
Times-News correspondent

FILER — Homeowners in Regal subdivision apparently have resigned themselves to the county's decision to grant Acme Manufacturing's rezoning request north of Filer.

"As far as I know, we're not going to appeal," homeowner Dave Wood says. "We don't think it would do any good."

Two weeks ago, the Twin Falls County commission voted to rezone the 15 acres owned by Acme from commercial to industrial, despite objections by homeowners in the Regal subdivision, which is adjacent to the property.

The issue had been before the Filer Planning and Zoning Commission and Filer City Council, which acted as advisors to the county commission in recommending the parcel be rezoned.

"Bob Parent, a leading spokesman for the homeowners' group, says the only option the homeowners have left is legal action, and that is 'out of our reach,'" he said.

Attorney Lonny Stanger, who had several telephone conversations with the homeowners but never formally represented them, says he advised the group it would be an "uphill battle" to pursue the issue at this point.

Wood says the homeowners did consider legal action but could not afford the cost.

Now that the farm-equipment plant will be in their "backyard" soon, Wood says many homeowners want to move. But because the homeowners live in "low-income housing," they can't afford to do that either, he says.

"We're limited to where we can live. Now, we're pretty well condemned."

Wood says the homeowners also are concerned that since one parcel has been rezoned, more industry will move into the area. "There will be no end to it now."

He says the rezoning decision can be attributed partly to the city's attitude toward Regal subdivision.

"This subdivision has always been looked down upon by Filer. We've been called second-class citizens numerous times."

Wood also questions the Filer Planning and Zoning Commission's vote, charging that two of its members, Ardean Long and George Huddleston, also want to move industries into the area.

As for City Council, Wood says there are "no working-class people" that understand the homeowners' needs. "We need somebody on the City Council who's concerned, somebody who will look down the road five years."

Wood says there has been some talk among Regal homeowners about organizing a homeowners association so the group would have "representation at council meetings."

"We were never against Acme, just poor city planning," he says.

Parent says he hopes "long-range planning will evolve from this" so other homeowners do not "suffer like Regal."

"We were just a group of homeowners trying to defend our property."

Acme construction to wait on revenue bonds?

By KAREN MAIN
Times-News correspondent

FILER — Acme Manufacturing is considering using industrial revenue bonds — if the Legislature makes them available — to build its controversial farm equipment manufacturing plant on property north of Filer.

Jim Herrett, Acme's chief executive officer, says there is a "distinct possibility" that Acme will wait to see if the building can be funded by industrial revenue bonds.

Friday, Herrett testified before the House Revenue and Taxation Committee on the merits of revenue bonding, which would allow businesses to offer low-interest, tax-free bonds to pay for capital improvements.

Wednesday, the House approved the sale of industrial revenue bonds. The Senate will consider the measure, which would require a constitutional amendment, next week.

If the measure passes by 1983, Herrett says Acme will "be interested in that source of revenue."

But most of the plans for relocating the facility from downtown Filer, to the 15-acre parcel are "quite a ways down the road," he says.

It probably will be as long as 18 months before construction is started on the 100,000-square-foot building, which will house offices and production equipment, he says.

Acme has a "lot of homework" and "a lot of things to do internally" before contractors are hired to start the project, Herrett says.

Walker Center, hospital OK tentative deal

By STEPHANESCHOROW
Times-News writer

GOODING — The Walker Center and Gooding County Memorial Hospital have tentatively agreed on a contract for the temporary housing of Walker patients in a wing of the hospital.

At a special meeting Thursday night the board hammered out an agreement which eliminated the hospital from liability for any Walker Center bad debts and set an 18-month limit, on the arrangement. The arrangement is scheduled to begin April 1.

Gooding County Commissioners, who had met Wednesday night with hospital and Walker Center officials, would support for the contract, saying it will put the hospital "in complete control. We're in the driver's seat."

Dr. A.W. Loesch, medical staff chief, who had earlier opposed the contract, now views it favorably after the details were worked out.

"I swallowed the pill, it was bitter... but it wasn't as sour as I thought," he said, adding that he would encourage the medical staff to cooperate in implementing the plan.

The contract designates the hospital as a "primary" provider, with the Walker Center acting as a "subcontractor" to supply alcoholism treatment services.

The hospital will bill Walker patients full hospital rates, $125 a day, for residential and detoxification. The hospital will then pay Walker Center a specified rate for its staff fees, set at $94.50 per patient day.

Gooding Hospital Administrator Ed Myers estimated Wednesday that the arrangement would bring the hospital an estimated $9,000 in net revenue a month.

Because the hospital bills the patients, more insurance policies and Medicare will cover the Walker treatment program, increasing its patient load, said Carl Bergstrom, director of the Walker Center. The contract is based on a similar arrangement at a Nampa hospital.

At last Thursday's board meeting, Gooding County Prosecutor Severt Swanson expressed reservations about a draft of the contract, saying it put the hospital in the "business" of alcoholism treatment and subjected it to additional liabilities. Board members also voiced concerns about the hospital becoming liable for the Walker Center's bad debts.

The contract approved this Thursday stipulated that bad debts would be deducted from the monthly payments to the Walker Center.

Bergstrom said Wednesday that only about 6 percent of the center's total revenue, about $24,000, was generally written off as bad debts.

The contract also stipulates it must be re-negotiated in a year. It may be extended for two three-month periods.

A clause stated that on acceptance of the contract, the board of St. Benedict's Hospital in Ogden, Utah, which owns the Walker Center, would initiate procedures for building a new center adjacent to the hospital. The new center is now located in the former state tuberculosis hospital.

St. Benedict's officials said Thursday that construction may start as early as this spring and could be completed by January 1983. The Walker Center also will pay for remodeling costs incurred by the temporary plan.

Wednesday night, Myers told the commissioners the subcontracting arrangement was financially better for the hospital than a lease arrangement.

He said that because of federal regulations, the hospital would receive a higher Medicare reimbursement. The hospital would be under no obligation to avoid rate increases. The reimbursement scheme was "straightforward" and did not involve a complicated computing of shared costs.

Also "It's our contract and we call the shots," he said.

Blood

"This doesn't cover all of the costs, especially for the people who drive bigger cars," says Leo Campeau, one of the steady drivers.

"When a specific type of blood is needed in an emergency in Sun Valley, Halley, Jerome, Gooding, Burley, Minidoka, the hospital they needs the blood contacts Magic Valley Memorial. Staff members there contact Livingston, and she gets out five list of volunteers and calls the next morning in the rotation system.

"These people have to go out at all hours and in all kinds of road conditions," Livingston says. "I have never sent out a volunteer who didn't get to the hospital within about 10 minutes. Sometimes, they get there before the blood is ready for the trip."

Gooding's limited and ice-filled blood keeps the blood cool during the trip. "Sometimes they are very appreciative and offer me a cup of coffee; but sometimes, I don't even get so much as a "thank you," Campeau says.

The volunteer blood runners, the only such group in the state, probably save about $300 to $400 a month, Livingston says. Last year, the volunteers averaged 12 trips a month.

Schrank says even during this winter's extremely bad weather and road conditions, the blood runners only failed to deliver once, forcing other arrangements to be made.

P&Z approves day-care center

Church school illegally sited

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — A church operating a school in violation of a Twin Falls city ordinance may take legal action to keep the school functioning.

Opponents of the school operated by the Christian Center of Magic Valley say they're prepared to present their position in court, too.

Both sides expressed their views Thursday before the Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission. But commissioners stated early in the evening that because of the technicalities involved, the school issue belongs in the hands of City Council, not the commission.

The hearing on the church's proposed day-care center largely involved testimony concerning the school, instead.

A municipal ordinance requires that the school at the Christian Center, 181 Morrison Drive, have city authorization to operate in a residential area.

Another regulation also comes into play because Morrison Drive is a dead-end street and the city requires that schools be on arterial or collector streets.

Church member Lee Bunch told commissioners that "the school is not a school per se; it is a ministry of the church." Bunch said the church is prepared to seek legal assistance from a church-advocacy organization, the Christian Law Association, "to take whatever action we feel is necessary in order to accomplish our goals."

Joe Laragan and Larry Dee, both residents of the Rock Garden condominiums in the 300 block of Morrison Drive, said they were speaking on behalf of themselves and their neighbors in opposing the school.

Dee claimed 90 percent of the condominium project's residents object to the school, but the Rev. Sheldon Sigel said that figure is far too high. Sigel occupies a Rock Garden con-dominum and is the Christian Center's pastor.

Opponents said their concerns include traffic congestion, the noise of children and a real problem in the value of the condominiums, which are for adults only.

Church members said traffic is minimal because of car pooling, and the noise of children playing outdoors is unnoticeable. The members also said that a nearby complex of doctors' offices creates more noise than the school.

...Sigel pointed out that the church existed before the condominiums, and buyers of the Rock Garden homes knew they would be living next to a church facility.

The church, which encountered comparatively few obstacles Thursday in obtaining a special-use permit for the day-care center, apparently can continue to operate the school illegally until City Council decides the issue. Both the church and opponents of the school have 15 days to initiate council consideration.

Teen will be tried as an adult

TWIN FALLS — A 17-year-old Payette boy will answer as an adult in Fifth District Court to charges of burglary and grand theft.

The decision to prosecute Ronnie Kelly, 17, as an adult followed a juvenile hearing held on Feb. 19 before Judge Melvin Edwards.

Boutlier waived his right to a preliminary hearing Thursday. That means his case will move automatically to the district court, where he will be required to plead either innocent or guilty to charges of grand theft-auto, first-degree burglary and second-degree burglary.

If convicted, Boutlier could be sentenced to spend up to 14 years in prison on the grand theft charge, 15 years for the first-degree burglary charge and five years for the second-degree burglary charge.

Boutlier, who is being held in custody, was arraigned in magistrate court on the three felony charges Wednesday.

He is charged with stealing an automobile—the property of Anderson-Riecke-Fay Insurance, 529 Central, E., on Dec. 22, 1981. The vehicle was found on Dec. 27 in Canyon City.

Boutlier also is charged with burglarizing the homes of Frank McMillin and Jim Howells, both of Twin Falls, on Dec. 24.

Burglary case on to district court

TWIN FALLS — Dana J. Dade, 18, of Twin Falls, waived his right to a preliminary hearing on Thursday and answered in Fifth District Court to charges that he burglarized a stereo store.

Dade, 519 1/2 Third Ave. W., was one of seven persons arrested in connection with a series of burglaries that occurred between Jan. 1 and Feb. 11 at Century and Auto Sources, 801 St. S.

By waiving his right to a preliminary hearing, Dade will advance to the district court where he will be required to plead either innocent or guilty to an amended charge of grand theft. He had originally been charged with first-degree burglary.

If convicted on the amended charge, Dade could be sentenced to serve up to 14 years in the state penitentiary in Boise.

He remained in the county jail on Thursday in lieu of $10,000 bond.

It'll be a picnic when hospital fixes kitchen

TWIN FALLS — As of April 1, Magic Valley Memorial Hospital patients will be eating off paper plates due to renovation of the kitchen area.

As part of the hospital's massive building and renovation project, the basement kitchen will be remodeled and modernized this spring.

The hospital's second-floor conference room, now used for pregnancy classes, board meetings and other business, will be converted into a kitchen that will prepare food for patients and staff.

Assistant administrator Steve Fisher said employees will continue to eat in the basement dining area, with food brought down from upstairs.

Fisher said the hospital's menu will be modified but not substantially changed.

Developer of oil shale sets lecture

KETCHUM — The chairman of the board of Geokinetics Inc., the only U.S. company that produces oil from shale on a continual basis, will speak tonight at 8 p.m. in the Hunter Room of the Alpine Hotel in Ketchum.

Henry Patton will discuss his company's operations, located in a desolate area 70 miles south of Vernal, Utah, and their impact on the environment.

Today, the company produces 100 barrels of oil a day, and Patton says it will produce 2,000 barrels a day in a few years.

The project has been funded through the federal Department of Energy, but Patton says the project will be self-sufficient by the end of the year.

Oil shale developments date back to the 1850s, but have not been proposed on a massive scale until recently. Oil-shale proposals have come under fire from environmental groups, which say the installations would cause massive environmental damage.

Patton contends his operation has not been criticized by environmental groups because it uses no water, has no surface installations and needs no large surface installations.

The free talk is sponsored by the Institute of the American West, the humanities division of the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities. A question-and-answer period will follow the speech.

U.S. pays Romanian loan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Department officials Thursday sent a check for nearly $5.5 million to a New York bank that failed to receive money owned by Romania for its purchase of American agricultural products.

On Tuesday, they sent off another check for more than $19,000 to a second American bank which Romania failed to pay. The two transactions made Romania the second Warsaw Pact nation, after Poland, to be in arrears to the U.S. government.

Even though the money has been paid to the banks, State Department officials said the United States would press Romania to come up with the full $5.5 million and had not decided whether the Communist nation would be declared in default.

Spokesman Dean Fischer said the State Department learned only late Wednesday that the Romanian government had been unable to come up with interest payments. Romanian officials had raised the possibility of asking for a loan extension when talking in Bucharest on Feb. 12, with Secretary Alexander Haig.

Under a routine procedure, the banks had transferred the amount owed by Romania to the Agriculture Department's Commodity Credit Corp. when it was due. When Romania failed to pay the banks, they sought refunds from the Commodity Credit Corp.

The larger reimbursement check went to European-American Bank and the smaller check was sent to First Chicago International, said Thomas Hammer, deputy undersecretary of agriculture.

Unlike guaranteed loans that Poland has not paid, the loans to Romania were direct credits from the Commodity Credit Corp. with the banks acting only as intermediaries.

Hammer said Romania owes nearly $100 million in principal for its agricultural purchases, half of which are guaranteed loans and half direct credits. Poland, by contrast, owes about $1.5 billion.

"In both cases, Poland and Romania, we are using the good offices of our overseas offices to tell them they have missed a payment with us," he said.

He declined to predict if Romania would be unable to make additional payments.

On Haig's recent trip to Romania, Romanian officials sought promises for a new loan to buy corn and soybean meal, but President Reagan rejected the request.

Some months back, Agriculture officials wanted to lend more money to Romania, but they retracted their approval more recently because they could see these developments on the horizon, Hammer said.

The administration has come under fire for offering to pay banks $71 million that Poland has not paid for its agricultural purchases. Hammer said banks are still stuyting that proposal and Commodity Credit Corp. has not actually paid the money.

Hammer said Poland had paid one bank about $450,000 of the $71 million total, showing that the Poles are still "making a conscious effort" to pay.

President Reagan ruled out declaring Poland in default, saying it would remove any leverage on Warsaw's government.

As for Poland, "there was never a question of whether or not we would pay the banks on our guarantees," Hammer said in defense of the controversial offer to avoid default.

"Some of the banks were worried that the use of our normal procedures might cause the financial jitters in Poland and therefore have some banks, those not even participating in the CCC programs, call Poland in default," he said. "Once that happens, the entire banking structure can call Poland in default."

Region's best: Monson, Wyoming's Garnett

DENVER (UPI) — Forward Bill Garnett of Wyoming, the leading scorer in the Western Athletic Conference, Thursday was selected the regional basketball player of the year by the U.S. Basketball Writers Association.

The coach of the team selected by the association for its District 7 team is Don Monson of Idaho.

The district team encompasses players at NCAA schools from the WAC and Big Sky Conference and Independents in Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho, Utah, Arizona and New Mexico.

The 6-9 Garnett is averaging 18.8 points per game and has the best field goal percentage in the WAC with a .620 mark. He also is fourth in the WAC in rebounding average, grabbing 8.1 per game.

Idaho had the most players selected with three: Ken Owens, Brian Kelleman and Gordy Herbert.

Others named to the team were: Fred Roberts, Brigham Young; Todd Harper, Weber State; Terry White, Texas-El Paso; Pace Mannion, Utah; Phil Smith, New Mexico, and Greg Palm, Nevada-Reno.

Spring training notes

Chisox manager gets tough

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — Chicago White Sox Manager Tony LaRussa Thursday cracked down on players easing through spring training drills, saying he won't tolerate loafers and will trade anyone who doesn't want to go out.

"I'm warning to the squad of 52 players, including 19 who are non-rostered, LaRussa said he was disappointed in some players' approach to base running and that he had noticed slackers during Wednesday's workouts.

The third-year manager had been stirred up moments earlier by a news article quoting Oakland A's manager Billy Martin as saying: "I don't see anybody around who is better than us."

"I've been making similar claims about you guys because I honestly feel we have the players to be a championship team," LaRussa said. "But we're not going to be champions of anything if you take the things we do here lightly."

"Those of you who were with the team last year remember how Billy popped off. He said he could beat us anytime, but we were 7-6 against Oakland. We'd like to do better than that this year, but we won't if you don't show you are interested."

Jay Johnstone clowns at Dodger camp high 71 bases last year despite missing 54 games due to the player strike. Raines led the Expos in hitting with an average of .304.

Shortstop Frank Tavaras was the only player not accounted for in the Expos first full-squad workout. Acquired from the New York Mets in exchange for pitcher Steve Ratzler over the winter, Tavaras is expected to fight Chris Speiter for the first-string job.

Cardinals begin drills

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — Only pitcher Joaquin Andujar was absent Thursday at the St. Louis Cardinals' opening spring training session for pitchers and catchers.

The Cardinals said Andujar was last known to be at his home in the Dominican Republic, and noted that it is not unusual for players from Latin countries to have visa problems.

Veteran pitcher Jim Kaat led calisthenics to open the session and Manager Whitey Herzog followed with a drill of more than two hours.

Kaat's first appearance this year will mark the 25th season in which he has played, setting a record for major league pitchers. Kaat is 43.

Although only batterymen were scheduled to be at the session, four other players — infielders Ken Oberkfel and Mike Ramsey and outfielders Tito Landrum and David Green — also took part.

The full Cardinal squad is scheduled for its first workout on Monday.

Valentine sour over contract

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — Outfielder Ellis Valentine arrived at the New York Mets' spring training camp four days earlier Thursday but said he was upset with the club's refusal to offer him more than a one-year contract.

"All I'm looking for is security for my family for six years, all I get is a one-year contract," Valentine said. "I thought when the Mets got me last May they wanted me. But when they went to sign me this winter they offered me one year and a cut."

Valentine then filed for arbitration but eventually avoided that by signing at last year's salary.

A solid hitter with the Montreal Expos for several years, Valentine was hit in the cheek with a pitch in May 1980 by Roy Thomas of St. Louis. He still managed to hit .315 in 88 games that season but slipped to .208 in 70 games last season.

"I'm bitter," said Valentine. "I thought the Mets wanted me when they dealt for me last May. But all they offered was a one-year contract, same as Montreal did every year."

"I was going to arbitration until they restored the cut and then I signed. All I'm looking for is security but no one will offer it to me."

Valentine can become a free agent at the end of the 1982 season.

"I'm not looking to become a free agent and I'm not looking to create a market by having a great year. I'm going out to win a job. If they come to me with a long term contract during the year, I'll consider it. But you should catch a guy when his knees are wobbly, not when he's going strong."

"I'm still a productive hitter who drives in runs."

The Mets announced that Mookie Wilson, their center fielder, is taking special batting instructions from Harry Walker at the University of Alabama at Birmingham.

Oriole pair attract attention

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI) — Outfielder Dan Ford and third baseman Cal Ripken Jr. were the centers of attention Thursday as the Baltimore Orioles held their first full squad workout of the spring.

The Orioles' success could depend on the production Manager Earl Weaver gets from recently acquired Ford and Ripken, heralded as the team's top prospects.

Ford, who hit 15 home runs and batted .277 in 97 games with California last year, was obtained from the Angels last month in exchange for Doug DeCinces.

DeCinces' trade opened a spot in the lineup for Ripken, who played briefly at shortstop last year when he came to bat only 39 times and hit a disappointing .128.

"All the reports say that he is ready to play in big leagues," Weaver said of Ripken, who hit 23 home runs in 114 games at Rochester in the International League last year, and led the Puerto Rican League in RBI this winter.

"Ford is a proven big league hitter and he gives us another everyday outfielder," Weaver said. "I don't know where he'll play yet, but he'll be in the lineup somewhere every day."

Jerome to hold softball meeting

JEROME — The Jerome Softball Association has announced that it will meet Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the High School.

SEC denies Tennessee-LSU reversal

ATLANTA (UPI) — The executive committee of the Southeastern Conference refused Thursday to reverse Tennessee's 54-53 victory at Louisiana State last Saturday even though "there was convincing evidence of an inaccuracy in timing during the last few seconds of the game."

LSU Chancellor James H. Wharton had asked SEC Commissioner Boyd McWhorter to not accept any score as final in the game until the committee ruled on his request that the last eight seconds be replayed.

LSU took a 53-52 lead with 10 seconds remaining Saturday and Tennessee called timeout with eight seconds showing on the clock. Tennessee scored, on a tip-in by Dan Federman with one second left, but LSU Coach Dale Brown immediately protested that the clock had been slow restarting after the timeout and that the Federman goal should not count.

Young says Holmes won't fight him

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jimmy Young said Thursday that published reports of a title fight against heavyweight champion Larry Holmes in April were untrue and that Holmes considers him too dangerous an opponent.

Holmes was scheduled to defend his World Boxing Council title on March 15 against top-ranked Gerry Cooney in a $10 million payday. Cooney, however, injured his shoulder, forcing a postponement until June 11.

There were reports that Holmes, who is looking to stay active, would be facing Young on April 10 but Young claims that Holmes won't face him.

"That's not coming off," Young said from Vancouver, where he is in training. "Larry and I agreed 10 days ago that we would fight. We made a verbal agreement seven years ago that whoever got the title first would give the other a chance. I thought this was going to be my chance. But a few days ago, he told me he was going against his word. He said he's afraid that I might make him look bad. He said that I would try to knock him out and cost him his $10 million. I told him that I wasn't going to go out and fall down for him and he said he wasn't interested."

Pact hassle threatens O'Grady bout

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Former World Boxing Association lightweight champion Sean O'Grady, who was stripped of his title last year, has canceled a Saturday bout with Edwin Viruet because of contract problems, officials said Thursday.

But Dana Davis, O'Grady's promoter, said the young Oklahoma man may still meet Viruet in the 10-round non-title bout if the contractual difficulties are resolved in time.

Ex-middleweight champ Minter quits

LONDON (UPI) — Former world middleweight boxing champion Alan Minter announced his retirement from the ring Thursday.

Tony Sibson's unanimous decision over Dwight Davison in Sunday's world title elimination earned Sibson a world title challenge against American Marvin Hagler this fall and Minter said his avenues to continue a worthwhile career were immediately shut down.

Sibson's stunning third-round knockout over Minter in their European title clash in London last September really signaled the end of the road. He had lost his undisputed world title to Hagler the year before, again inside three rounds.

Minter went from 1972 Olympic bronze medalist to world champion in less than eight years.

Niekro hurt, Washington late

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Veteran 42-year-old Atlanta Braves pitcher Phil Niekro will be idled a week to 10 days because of a hamstring pull, while outfielder Claudell Washington notified the team he will be in camp by Saturday.

Niekro, who has won a career total of 240 games, was examined extensively Thursday, and trainer Dave Pursley said he will be out "for at least five days and no more than 10."

He suffered the injury during running drills Wednesday.

Washington was absent, he told Braves officials, because his daughter has pneumonia and that he did not want to leave until he was certain she was recovering.

The left-handed batting outfielder was the team's leading hitter last season with a .291 average.

Latin players Rafael Ramirez and Rutino Linares, both from the Dominican Republic, remained absent because of visa problems.

Expos ink base thief Raines

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Expos left fielder Tim Raines signed a one-year contract Thursday, leaving only utility prospect Dan Briggs unsigned.

Expos president and general manager John McAlle said, "This is the finest contract that I have ever seen to be a second-year player in baseball — depending on what happens with (Los Angeles pitcher) Fernando Valenzuela."

The 22-year-old Raines stole a major league

Plenty of competition at last Prix track meet

NEW YORK (UPI) — There have been 44 world records broken this season, and more are expected to fall in intense competition tonight at the U.S. Indoor Track and Field Championships, the final Grand Prix meet of the year.

Among the entrants are Billy Olson, who will have a last fling at becoming the first pole vaulter to clear 19 feet indoors, and sprint-jump star Carl Lewis, who will perform his celebrated double for the only time this season.

On disappointment for the meet was the withdrawal of Mary Decker Tabb, the star of the indoor track season up to now, who last week aggravated a chronic ankle injury while running a mile in 4:20.5 — the lowest time ever achieved indoors or outdoors.

Her pullout left Jan Merrill as the favorite in the mile, over Maggie Keyes, Cindy Brenner and Brenda Webb, and Franck Larrieu leading the 2-mile field.

Decker Tabb leads the women's overall Grand Prix standings with 149 points, while Olson, behind three world-record leaps in the pole vault, has already clinched the men's championship with 150 points. He earned $7,500 for the overall title and $3,000 for the pole vault, with all money, as stipulated, going to his athletic club for training.

Olson began the most successful vaulting season in history with an American record of 16 feet 1/2 inches. He set a world mark of 18-4 1/2 on Jan. 29, upped it to 18-9 1/2 on Feb. 6, and then cleared 18-9 1/2 at the San Diego meet. He thinks he has a shot at 19 feet in Madison Square Garden Friday in the final major invitational meet of the season.

"I can jump if it conditions are right," said Olson, 23, of Abilene, Texas. "I can do it at the Garden if they make the runway longer. It's 137 or 138 feet now and I need 144 to 146."

Officials are studying the feasibility of extending the runway. Olson says a shorter run "forces me to chop my steps at the start, and then I'll be a little off at the end. If it's short, the best I can hope for is 18-4 or something like that."

In his most recent effort, Olson was beaten by Earl Bell at 18-4 1/2 last Saturday at San Francisco. Bell, who also won the Millrose Games vault, will challenge Olson again, along with Frenchmen Thierry Vigneron and Philippe Houvion.

Spectacular finish at Nordic ski

OSLO (UPI) — In the most sensational race in the history of Nordic skiing, the Soviet Union and Norway Thursday split the gold medal in the men's 4x10 kilometer relay at the Nordic World Ski Championships.

Finland barely edged East Germany to capture the bronze.

The Soviet team of Vladimir Nikitin, Alexandre Batuk, Yuri Buriakov and Alexandre Zavalov seemed to have won the event as Zavalov, in a brilliant finish, appeared to edge Norwegian Oddvar Braa as they crossed the line.

It took the jury one hour and 30 minutes to decide the Soviets should share the title with the Norwegian quartet of Lars Erik Eriksen, Ove Anuli, Pål Gunnar Mikkelsen and Braa.

Both teams were clocked in the same time of 1 hour 56 minutes 27.6 seconds.

The Russians protested the decision, but the jury confirmed its verdict another hour later.

The Finnish bronze medal-winning team comprised Karl Harkonen, Aki Karvonen, Harri Kirvesniemi and Juha Mieto.

Eriksen took a one minute 20 second lead over Nikitin in the first lap and the Russian complained about badly waxed skis. The three remaining Russians quickly rewaxed their skis before they went out for their legs.

Batuk claimed 27 seconds on Anuli, while Buriakov, with the best individual time, overtook Mikkelsen.

Zavalov had a 12.9 second advantage going into the last lap. Braa caught him after two kilometers and from there they fought neck and neck. In the last uphill the Norwegian took a gamble. He jumped ahead of Zavalov, who fell on his knees. Braa, however, broke his stick in the collision.

Dear Abby

He's perfect but woman not satisfied

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am living with a man. He's 29 and I'm 27. He's almost a saint. He doesn't smoke, drink, or curse. He opens doors for me and treats me with the greatest respect. ...He would do anything in the world for me. He wants what most people want — home, family, love, etc. So do I. So what's the problem? I don't love him the way he loves me. He's very romantic, likes candlelight, soft music, long foreplay and the works. Me? I'm just a J-23 lover. I do a lot for him (physically), but he doesn't really do that much for me. I'm honest. I don't play games. I try to explain that just because we have different needs doesn't make either one of us weird. We are just incompatible when it comes to love.

I have been in love and I know how it's supposed to be. I'm not really miserable with him, but I'm not completely happy either. Why do we both continue in this arrangement? Am I hurting both of us by staying? He says he loves me and he's content. But is contentment enough? I don't want to hurt him. He's a wonderful man and most women would feel lucky to have him.

What do you miss of this? — MISSING SOMETHING
DEAR MISSING: It's his contentment, knowing that you don't feel for him what he feels for you, you aren't being unfair to him. But whether you're being unfair to yourself is another question.

When people feel they're "missing something" (you provided the signature, I didn't), in time they usually go looking for it.

DEAR ABBY: I am 84, single, of sound mind, in fairly good health, and I have no heirs. I recently completed a will with a bequest to a particular friend, and I made the mistake of telling her what I had willed to her.

Since then she has been asking for additional items I told her plainly that my will was written and I had no intention of altering it. I wonder if other elderly people have had a similar experience, and if so, how they handled it.

This friend now appears to be more interested in my early demise than in me.

— APPALLED
DEAR APPALLED: Ignore her requests. Feeling as you do, I wonder why you would want to leave her anything.

DEAR ABBY: I wonder why the feminist groups haven't challenged the age-old tradition of the bride's parents paying for the wedding.

That custom dates back to the days when the male reigned supreme and a female was made to feel fortunate if a man asked to marry her. Parents of daughters used bribes (dowries) to unload them. And parents were only too happy to pay for the wedding. Talk about sex discrimination!

If women want equality with men, isn't it time they abolished that ridiculous, demeaning custom? Today's women work as hard as men, and many of them earn more than their husbands.

I'm for splitting the cost of the wedding: 50-50. Are you with me, Abby?

Lennon wins his first; Jones tops field with five

By JEFF WILSON
United Press International

LOS ANGELES — "Bette Davis Eyes" was chosen both record and song of the year, and John Lennon and Yoko Ono's "Double Fantasy" was named album of the year in this year's emotional Grammy award ceremony.

Kim Carnes, who sang "Bette Davis Eyes," said "I knew the song was a hit. I knew it would win. I loved it."

Versatile rhythm man Quincy Jones picked up five Grammys, including producer of the year, and singers singing his songs won two more awards.

Double winners included country singer Dolly Parton, vocalist Lena Horne, composer Mike Post, jazz singer Al Jarreau, the Manhattan Transfer and the rock group The Police.

"I think John is with us here today," said an emotional Miss Ono in accepting the award for her husband. "Thank you very much."

Lennon, who had been the only Beatle not to win a Grammy after the quartet broke up, recorded the album and the single "Starting Over" shortly before he was gunned down outside his apartment in December 1980.

Winners of 1982 Grammy Awards presented Wednesday night by the National Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences included:

Record of the Year: "Bette Davis Eyes," by Kim Carnes.

Album of the Year: "Double Fantasy," by John Lennon and Yoko Ono.

Beatty's epic 'Reds' a bit lengthy but sharp, romantic

By ROGER EBERT
Chicago Sun-Times

Movies

The original John Reed was a dashing young man from Portland who knew a good story when he found one, and when he found himself in the midst of the Bolshevik revolution, wrote a book called "Ten Days that Shook the World" and made himself a famous journalist. He never quite got it right again after that.

He became embroiled in the American left-wing politics of the 1920s, participated in fights between factions of the Socialist Party and the new American Communist Party, and finally returned to Moscow on a series of noble fool's errands that led up, one way or another, to his death from tuberculosis and kidney failure in a Russian hospital. He is the only American buried within the Kremlin walls.

That is Reed's story in a nutshell. But if you took a little more deeply you find a man who was more than a political creature. He was also a man who wanted to be where the action was, a radical young intellectual who was in the middle of everything in the years after World War I, when Greenwich Village was in a creative ferment and American society seemed, briefly, to be overturning itself.

It is that personal, human John Reed that Warren

Beatty's "Reds" takes as its subject, although there is a lot, and maybe too much, of the political John Reed as well. The movie never succeeds in convincing us that the feuds between the American socialist parties were much more than personality conflicts and ego-bruings, so audiences can hardly be expected to care which faction is "the" American party of the left.

What audiences can, and possibly will, care about, however, is a traditional Hollywood romantic epic, a love story written on the canvas of history, as they used to say in the ads. And "Reds" provides that with glorious romanticism, surprising intelligence and a consistent wit. It is the thinking man's "Dr. Zhivago," told from the other side, of course.

The love story stars Warren Beatty and Diane Keaton, who might seem just a tad unlikely as casting choices, but who are immediately engaging and then grow into bold, plausible people on the screen. Keaton is a particular surprise. I had somehow gotten into the habit of expecting her to be a touchy New Yorker, sweet, scared and intellectual. Here, as a Portland dentist's wife who runs away with John Reed and eventually follows him halfway around the world, through blizzards and prisons and across icy steppes, she is just what she needs to be: plucky, healthy, exasperated, loyal and funny.

Beatty, as John Reed, is also surprising. I expected him to play Reed as a serious, noble, heroic man for all seasons, and so he does, sometimes. But there is in Warren Beatty's screen persona a persistent irony, a way of kidding his own seriousness, that takes the edge off a potentially pretentious character and makes him into one of God's fools. He permits play Reed but does not beatty him: He brings the silliness and boyishness to coexist with the self-conscious historical mission.

The action in the movie takes Reed to Russia and back again to Portland, and off again with Louise Bryant (Keaton), and then there is a lengthy pause in Greenwich Village and time enough for Louise to have a sad little love affair with the moorously alcoholic playwright Eugene O'Neill (Jack Nicholson). Then there are other missions to Moscow, and Beatty political debates in New York basements, and at one point I'm afraid I entirely lost track of exactly why Reed was running behind a horsecart in the middle of some forgotten battle in an obscure backwater of the Russian empire.

The fact is, Reed's motivations from moment to moment are not the point of the picture. The point is that a revolution is happening, human societies are being swept aside, a new class is in control — or so it seems — and for an insatiably curious young man, that is exhilarating, and it is enough.

The heart of the film is in the relationship between Reed and Bryant. There is an interesting attempt to consider her problems as well as his. She leaves Portland because she is sick unto death of small talk. She wants to get involved in politics, in art, in what's happening: She is so inexorably drawn to Greenwich Village that if Reed had not taken her there, she might have gone on her own.

If she was a radical in Portland, however, she is an Oregonian in the Village, and she cannot converse conversationally with such well-performed fast-talkers as the anarchist Emma Goldman (Maureen Stapleton). In fact, no one seems to listen to her or pay much heed, except for sad Eugene O'Neill, who is brave enough to love her but not smart enough to keep it to himself. The ways in which she edges toward O'Neill, and then loyally returns to Reed, create an emotional density around her character that makes it really mean something when she and Reed embrace at last in a wonderful tear-jerking scene in the Russian train station.

Annual Country Music Jamboree kicks off at CSI Monday night

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Country Music Association will present its 21st annual Country Music Jamboree at the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium Monday and Tuesday.

A different show will be presented at 8 p.m. each night. Proceeds will be given to the Heart Association. Announcers will be Carl Raids, Virgil Marritt and Henry Keyes.

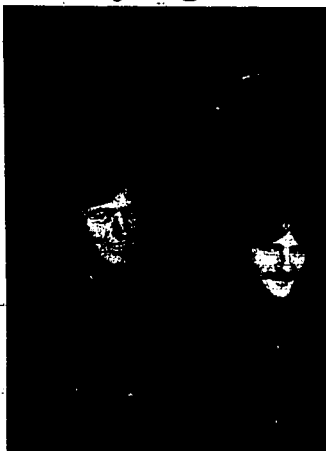

Bands scheduled for the two-night performances include The Bronsons, Floyd White Band, the Last Resorts, Eddie Band, Sweetwater Rim, Country Sunshine Band, Rhythmaires, Clover Creek Band, Common People, Country Ramblers, Outlaw Blues Band, Praise Givers and Ken Reynolds.

Tickets are $3 for adults and $1.50 for students and senior citizens. They may be purchased at the Music Center and Petersons Western Wear in Twin Falls, Larry's Quik Service and Saw-Mor Drug in Buhl.

The association presents two shows each year, in the spring and fall. The group was organized 21 years ago by Gene Bosserman of Jerome. Since the group's inception members have donated thousands of dollars to many local organizations with proceeds from the shows, according to Wilma Marritt of Buhl.

In past years money has been given to the Quik Response units, Oasis Shrine Club for Crippled Children's Hospital, Lions Club eyeglass project and scholarships, YFCA, Boy Scouts, mentally handicapped, equipment for the newborn unit at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, baseball equipment for Little Leaguers, Buhl Rodeo Association and Easter Seal.

The organization consists of members from throughout Magic Valley from Glenns Ferry to Burley, who enjoy performing country music, Marritt said. The group also travels to Boise each April to perform at the Veterans home and they do benefit shows during the year, she said.

Tickets for 'The Mikado' on sale

TWIN FALLS — The renowned Gilbert and Sullivan repertory company Opera A La Carte will make its first appearance in Twin Falls March 26 when "The Mikado" will be performed at 8 p.m. at CSI Fine Arts Auditorium.

The performance is being sponsored by the Northwest Opera Guild, with the cooperation of the Idaho First bank.

Based in Los Angeles and founded in 1979 by well known British Gilbert and Sullivan specialist Richard Shelton, Opera A La Carte has enjoyed a rapid rise to fame, according to Harold Gerber of Twin Falls, president of the opera guild.

He said the company quickly grew from a small concert ensemble to producing its first full scale production — "The Mikado" — five years later. Further productions were subsequently added to the repertoire and the company has earned national recognition as a touring group with high standards and artists of outstanding caliber.

Especially notable, Gerber said, is the authenticity of the presentations which have firmly established Opera A La Carte as a unique organization and the foremost Gilbert and Sullivan touring repertory company in the nation.

Their performances frequently play to capacity audiences and receive highest critical acclaim, he said.

"The Mikado" contains many Gilbert and Sullivan favorites such as "A Wandering Minstrel," "Behold the Lord High Executioner," "I've Got a Little List," "Three Little Maids from School" and "My Object All Sublime."

Tickets are available at all Idaho First bank branches throughout Magic Valley. They are $7.50 for general admission, with reserved seats for donor ($50); sponsor ($100) and patron ($25) ticket holders.

CBS tops Niensens (again)

NEW YORK (UPI) — It was business as usual last week in the ratings wars. CBS won it all, taking prime-time Nielsen for the 15th time in the season.

ABC ran Steve Martin's farcical movie "The Jerk" into 7th place in the Top 10 and captured four nights of the week, but the totals weren't enough to keep CBS out of the winner's circle.

CBS posted a rating of 18.6 and an audience share of 29, topping ABC's 18.1 and 28. NBC was third, with 15.6 and 25.

On the evening news scene, CBS again was the winner, with a rating of 14.7 and a share of 25, but the NBC "Nightly News" continued to come on strong, with 13.3 and 29.

ABC's "World News Tonight," apparently becoming entrenched in the Nielsen collar, was a poor third, with 11.9 and 20. NBC boasted the largest point victory over ABC since February 1981, and the widest share win since October 1980.

ABC's loss marked the sixth straight week of decline, both in rating and share.

The Nielsen's top programs for the week ending Feb. 21 were:

1. Dallas (CBS).
2. 60 Minutes (CBS).
3. Falcon Crest (CBS).
4. Too Close for Comfort (ABC).
5. Three's Company (ABC).
6. Magnum, P.I. (CBS).
7. ABC Monday Night Movie: "The Jerk" (ABC).
8. Alice (CBS).
9. Dukes of Hazzard (CBS).
10. Hart to Hart (ABC).

Movie reviews in brief

From Times-News wire services

ON GOLDEN POND: The pairing of Henry Fonda and Katharine Hepburn created all the magic hoped for in this touching, delightfully good-humored film about an aging couple spending what may be their last summer together. Rated PG. 4 stars.

RAGTIME: Miles Forman's splendid tapestry of a vibrant and wild and ruthless America before the outbreak of World War I. Featuring a host of great performances, including the return of James Cagney, this is an extraordinary rendering of a remarkable book. It's one of the year's finest films. R. 4 stars.

THE SEDUCTION: Let's be blunt. Would you pay $4.50 for Morgan Fairchild? Well, there's no other reason to invest in this laughably implausible thriller about a TV anchorwoman who is being chased by a psychotic fan. Well, would you pay $5? Rated PG. 1 star.

TAPS: As the head cadet in a military academy, Timothy Hutton defies his commander (George C. Scott, in an echo of his "Patton" role) and real-estate developers to save the school. An uncommonly engrossing character study, primarily because of its fine performances, "Taps" leaves us with ideas to think about, involving the implications when right and right are on the same side — and when they are not. With Ronny Cox, Tom Cruise, Tom Penn. Rated PG. 3 stars.

Reds

The whole movie finally comes down to the fact that the characters matter to us. Beatty may be fascinated by the ins and outs of American left-wing politics 60 years ago, but he is not so idealistic as to believe an American mass audience can be inspired to care as deeply. So he gives us people. And they are seen here with such warmth and affection that we sense new dimensions not only in Beatty and Keaton, but especially in Nicholson.

In "Reds," understanding his desire, apologizing for his passion, hanging around Louise, handing her a poem, throwing her out of his life, he is quieter but much more passionate than in the overwrought "The Postman Always Rings Twice."

And as for Beatty, "Reds" is his bravura turn. He got the idea, nurtured it for a decade, found the financing, wrote most of the script, produced and directed and starred and still found enough artistic detachment to make his Reed into a flawed, fascinating enigma instead of a boring archetypal hero. I liked this movie. I felt a real fondness for it. It is quite a subject to spring on the capitalist Hollywood movie system, and maybe only Beatty could have raised $35 million to make a movie about a man who hated millionaires. I notice, here at the end of the credits, a wonderful line that reads:

Hope turns ladies' man Sunday

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — No leading man in movies or television has worked with more beautiful women than Bob Hope, who proves his prowess with damsels Sunday night on his two-hour TV special.

Not Valentine, Barrymore, Gable and Beatty together kissed as many beauties as the 81-year-old comedian.

Hope proves the point on the NBC special in clips from past TV shows in which he is caught bussing such guest stars as Dyan Cannon, Rosemary Clooney, Janet Leigh, Carol Lawrence, Jill St. John, Stella Stevens, Sally Struthers, Tuesday Weld and many more.

He tops that clip with "Foreign Affairs," romantic moments with Ursula Andress, Chare, Diana Dors, Ben Lillie, Virna Lisi, Lill Palmer and Romy Schneider, among others.

"Actually, I've appeared on TV with more than 200 beautiful girls, including the ones who went on my overseas tours," he said, dispatching a hamburger at Lakeside Country Club.

"Let me tell you something, there's not much more fun in the world than working with really beautiful women. You gotta work with 'em. You gotta."

Hope is using clips only from his TV shows. He's holding off on his movie co-stars — another legion of gorgeous actresses — for a future show.

He will feature 10 Oscar-winning actresses from past shows: Anne Bancroft, Ingrid Bergman, Joan Crawford, Greer Garson, Shirley Jones, Ginger Rogers, Barbara Streisand, Elizabeth Taylor, Dorothy Malone and Shelley Winters. Malone and Winters won "best supporting" Oscars.

Hope discovered long ago that most beautiful actresses like nothing better than an opportunity to play comedy.

"You watch a lot of serious actresses in movies and you wonder how they'd perform in comedy," he said. "And a lot of them surprise you."

"One of the biggest surprises was Bergman. She has a terrific comic delivery and great timing. You'll see her in one of the sketches. Betty Davis and Kate Hepburn were super, too."

"Among the best of today's leading ladies at delivering a comic line is Loni Anderson. She's super."

"Working with beautiful women has been a tremendous asset to my career. And the actresses like the show because it's sort of a holiday for them. Some are a little afraid, but only for a few minutes."

"The problem with this show was deciding which beautiful women to use and which ones had to be left out for lack of time."

Hope said only one great sex symbol had failed to appear on his show, Marilyn Monroe. Schedule conflicts always got in the way.

"She wanted to do a 'Road' picture with me and Bing," Hope said. "But the project never materialized."

- In 1815, Napoleon Bonaparte and 1,200 men left the Isle of Elba to start his 100-day conquest of France.
- In 1919, Congress established Grand Canyon National Park in Arizona.
- In 1933, Germany began operation of its air force — the Luftwaffe — under Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering.
- In 1972, a flash flood in West Virginia killed 118 people.

A thought for the day: American poet Ralph Waldo Emerson said, "The reward of a thing well done is to have done it."

BRIDGE

Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Luck favors the wise

...elected to open one diamond, the American South came into action with a 15 point no-trump. North cue bid two diamonds to see if South could show a four card major. South bid three clubs and North had to bid a rather unhappy three no-trump.
 ...East won the spade lead with the singleton ace and shifted to the queen of clubs. South won and led a spade. West took the king and decided to kill queen later spade entry to dummy by continuing the suit.
 ...South won with dummy's 10 and led heart to his queen. He continued with a second heart and was delighted to see West's jack appear. He knocked out the heart ace and was now sure of two spades, three hearts, two diamonds and two clubs. He couldn't get three diamonds because he had to overtake his queen with dummy's king.
 ...The dummy was lucky indeed, but over the years luck seems to favor declarers who bid close no-trump games.
 ...At the other table the American East passed and North and South just got to a comfortable two diamond game. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Letterman does it all for laughs

By DAVID BIANCULLI
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

The highlights of the first week of NBC's "Late Night with David Letterman" were a dentist's review of "Reds," an audience member's impromptu performance as an NBC cameraperson and a "Stupid Pet Trick" featuring a skateboarding rabbit.

They may sound more like lowlights than highlights, but each of those segments was howlingly funny — and anything that can make you laugh out loud at 1 a.m. is really doing its job.

Letterman, by those standards, is really doing his job. Most of the stuff he tries falls flat, but he's taking chances that no one else on TV is taking.

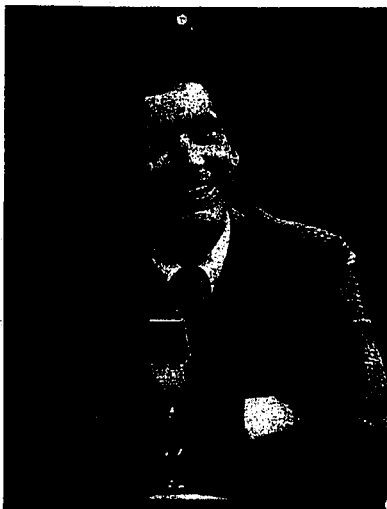

He'll tour the NBC studios, bring a woman's 1954 home movie, show Mr. Wizard back to demonstrate the gaseous content on soda water, point out a misspelled sign on a New York City street and have an NBC sports reporter waiting backstage to interview Hank Aaron about his just-concluded interview with Letterman.

In short, he'll do anything for a laugh.

It's the proper approach, of course, for a series following "The Tonight Show With Johnny Carson," which is popular precisely because of its familiarity and predictability.

The "Tonight Show" audience is so conditioned to Carson that, like laboratory pigeons, they can be prompted to respond. When Carson says "It was so cold," there isn't a soul in the studio who doesn't shout back: "How cold was it?"

Letterman's show (12:30 a.m. EST. Monday through Thursdays), a Carson Production, is precisely the opposite. The audience at the studio, like the audience at home, has no idea what will occur. One poor woman was pulled out of the crowd, given a five-second lesson in camera operation ("Here's the focus knob, here's how to zoom," here's how to pan, this is a zoom") and ordered to follow Letterman through his opening monologue.

... keeps 'em laughing

Letterman was sadistic, moving from place to place and asking for close-ups while director Hal Gurnee fed the woman's blurry, jerky picture to a nationwide audience. She did very well, actually, but the segment was hilarious — and you wouldn't have seen it anywhere else on television.

Another of Letterman's master strokes is "Limited Perspective," a review of the arts from (very) particular viewpoints. An orthodontist, asked to review Warren Beatty's "Reds," came back with a thumbs-down verdict for the film's unconvincing bridgework.

Attention to detail was evident in other aspects of "Reds"; the dentist explained, but not in the anachronistically capped smiles of Jack Nicholson, Warren Beatty and Diane Keaton, whose flawless mouths were "disappointing."

This is the type of cynicism Letterman brought to his NBC daytime show in 1980, but he has belonged on late-night TV all along. In the same respect, the guests he brings are suited to a nighttime audience: Bill Murray, Terry Gilliam of Monty Python, Joe Flaherty and John Candy of "SCTV Comedy Network" (which occupies Letterman's time slot on Fridays).

However, Letterman's talents as an interviewer are limited to his lightning-fast asides. Murray and Gilliam, in particular, made fools of themselves without making anyone laugh, and Letterman relies too strongly on note cards and pre-interview questions provided by his staff.

In addition, the guests are rushed on and off very quickly. Except in the case of Flaherty and Candy, who were funny and comfortable with Letterman, that's been a cause for thanks, but Letterman ought to devote more time to his "special" guests, such as upcoming visitors Bob and Ray.

Letterman should trust his instincts for interviewing as much as he does for comedy. Perhaps when his shakedown period is over, he'll be less restrained when he sits at his desk — closer to Steve Allen's style, say, than Carson's.

Nevertheless, it's good to have David Letterman back — especially late at night, where he belongs.

This week's best

Friday

ABC's "Best of the West" is moved to a new time slot to try to take some of the wind out of "Dallas," which has already decimated "McClain's Law" on NBC. In this show, Marshal Best spends the night handcuffed to a pretty cattle rustler in a lonely miner's shack while she tries to outwit him with her womanly wiles.

Saturday

"Walt Disney: The Spaceman in King Arthur's Court" on CBS is about the best the networks have to offer. A space engineer and his look-alike robot are catapulted in time when lighting strikes his spacecraft and he returns to Earth in sixth-century England during the reign of King Arthur.

Sunday

Comic outtakes from TV, motion pictures and news footage will be featured on "TV's Censored Bloopers No. 3" — the latest installment of the popular show — on ABC. Host for the show is Dick Clark and Jamie Lee Curtis, Chad Everett and Tony Randall appear as guests.

Monday

ABC's "Divorce Wars" stars Tom ("Magnum P.I.") Selleck and Jane ("Saturday Night Live") Curtin teaming up for this made-for-TV movie. Selleck plays a divorce lawyer and Curtin his wife as their seemingly-perfect marriage begins to crack.

Tuesday

While posing as a doctor, Jack encounters a real patient and an eager intern.

Wednesday

In the CBS movie "Desperate Lives," Doug McKoon and Helen Hunt star in a story about teen-age drug abuse and a high school guidance counselor's war against it.

Thursday

The creative minds who hatched 1980's smash film spoof, "Airplane," will bring their special brand of offbeat humor to the small screen in "Police Squad," a half-hour sitcom premiering on ABC.
