Senate votes to lift prevailing wage law

BOISE (UPI) — A bill to repeal a state law demanding the payment of prevailing wages on all public works projects cleared the Senate Friday on a 26-9 vote.

Opponents did everything in their power in an attempt to kill the measure.

The bill, which would abolish Idaho's so-called "Little Davis-Bacon Act," had already been approved by the House, and will be sent to Democratic Gov. John Evans for his review.

Under current Idaho law, contractors involved in public projects are required to pay employees an hourly amount set by the U.S. Labor Department on the theory it is the "prevailing wage" paid to other workers in the county.

Senators haggled over the issue for 90 minutes, with supporters claiming the repeal could decrease the cost of public projects in Idaho by as much as 35 percent and opponents claiming it could lower the quality of those projects and might leave workers at the mercy of wage-cutting contractors engaged in bidding wars.

Those senators opposed to the bill first attempted to amend it, then, when that effort failed, served notice they would ask the upper chamber to reconsider its vote. Sen. Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, citing a little-used Senate rule, demanded an immediate vote on the reconsideration motion.

At that time, opponents moved for an early adjournment of the day's floor session. The adjournment motion failed, as did the reconsideration vote, and the Legislature's activity on the measure was over.

Sen. Terry Sverdrup, R-Cataldo, opened debate on the bill by saying the prevailing wage law drives up the price of public projects by as much as 38 percent. He also said the law creates strife among workers in companies which handle both public and private jobs.

Inverted rate ban held up

Resolution wanted for only Idaho Power

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — A bill to prohibit inverted electrical rates for residential service was halted by its sponsors just prior to a House vote Friday.

Following morning testimony from two northern Idaho utilities, which asked that inverted rates be retained, the House State Affairs Committee unanimously agreed to hold the bill until a joint resolution can be drafted that will address only inverted rates in the Idaho Power Co. service area.

Under an inverted-rate schedule, the price of electricity, per unit, increases as power increases. Previously, Idaho Power customers received usage "discounts" the more they used, the cheaper the cost became.

"I could support a resolution only if I thought the Public Utilities Commission would listen to us," said Rep. Gary Montgomery, R-Boise, the co-sponsor of the bill. "A resolution doesn't have any teeth, and it could be ignored."

Consequently, the committee decided to hold the bill for amendment in case the resolution fails to win approval.

Committee members agreed that the main problem with inverted residential rates involves dairy and other large consumers in southern Idaho. These consumers are being charged high residential rates rather than general business rates, said Rep.

House favors gas tax hike

BOISE (UPI) — House members passed 60-7 Friday and sent to the Senate a measure to raise the state gasoline tax one cent and funnel the additional revenue to county and city highway districts.

The increase is needed because many local road agencies have been hit hard by snow-removal costs and excessive road breakup in this year's harsh winter, said Rep. Myron Jones, R-Mald, the bill's sponsor.

None of the extra revenue would go to the state Transportation Department, which gets a share of the existing gasoline tax revenue, Jones said.

The Legislature last year raised the gasoline tax from 5.5 cents to 11 1/2 cents per gallon upon the request of the department, which said it needed the revenue for crucial highway repairs and to match millions of dollars in federal grant funding.

This year's proposed increase would hike the fuel tax to 12 1/2 cents per gallon.

During House debate, Rep. Noy Bracker, R-Twin Falls, said keeping the state's highways in shape would save people from vehicle repair bills caused by rough roads.

One lawmaker, Rep. Martin Trillhaase, R-Idaho Falls, spoke against the increase. He said the hike is too much to ask of the taxpayers during Idaho's current economic and unemployment problems.

Coming Sunday: Farm and business forecast

Registration grace period ends Sunday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An estimated 927,504 young men have until Sunday to sign up for a draft without risking prosecution on felony charges, a Selective Service official said Friday.

Selective Service spokeswoman Joan Lamb said the administration's official grace period ends Feb. 28 for those young men who have failed to register on time.

"Technically, they will be in violation after Sunday," Ms. Lamb said.

But if young men have waited to the last minute to sign up, Ms. Lamb said the Selective Service will accept their registration late.

Sunday's deadline, she said, is the only grace period for unregistered young men among the estimated 8 million eligible. Draft registration, not the draft itself, was resumed in July 1980 by the Carter administration.

After Sunday, the Selective Service will turn over the names of those who failed to register to the Justice Department for possible prosecution.

Under the law, men born in 1960 and later must register 30 days before or after their 18th birthday. Those who register are kept on the rolls until their 26th birthday. Those born before 1960 are not required to register.

Right now, Ms. Lamb said there is an 88.5 percent compliance rate.

She said the Selective Service expects that some men who have failed to register on time will learn of their obligation over the weekend from the news media as the deadline draws near and when post offices are closed.

"It's not an extension of the grace period. We'll accept their registrations because we are interested in young men registering," she said, adding that "probably nothing will happen" to them.

"Each case is decided on its merits. My advice is to come right on down and register and more than likely nothing would happen to them."

Attorney General William French Smith has said the Justice Department expects to prosecute hundreds of young men who failed to comply with the law. Failure to register is a felony punishable by up to five years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

Barry Lynn, president of Draft Action, a major anti-draft group, said the decision to enforce registration now that the "grace period" is ending "will prove costly and ill-advised."

"Hundreds of thousands of non-registrants remain," Lynn said.

"However, the policy should prove a godsend to violent criminals, drug smugglers, and racketeers who find that scarce law enforcement dollars have been diverted from pursuing them by tracking down non-registrants."

Justice Department spokesman John Russell said it likely will be several months before a non-registrant is prosecuted because it will take time to get names from the Selective Service.

"We won't prosecute anyone until we get referrals from Selective Service," Russell said. "We can't get those until April, probably May."

Then, Russell said the government will screen the names to be sure they are American citizens and in the right age bracket, and send final warning letters before taking a case to a federal grand jury.

Administration to ban all Libyan oil imports

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration is moving toward a total ban on all Libyan oil imports as a means of stepping up political pressure on Libyan president Moammar Khadafi, sources said Friday.

Said one administration official, "You can bet the fact that the administration action will be announced next Tuesday."

Because Libyan oil exports to the United States have declined so steeply in recent months, the move being considered by the National Security Council would be mainly symbolic.

It would involve less than 120,000 barrels of oil per day, or about 2.3 percent of all U.S. foreign oil imports and about 1 percent of U.S. domestic consumption.

At one time, Libya was the No. 3 supplier of U.S. oil imports, but it is now ranked ninth or tenth.

Libya, which is almost totally dependent on its oil revenues, has seen its hard currency earnings drop by more than 50 percent in the last six months, according to U.S. officials.

The loss of revenue has caused cancellation of some domestic projects in Libya, officials said, and a total ban would create further pressure on Khadafi.

However, other oil producers have warned that using oil for purposes of political pressure could set a precedent where the "oil weapon" could also be used against the United States someday.

The proposed measures against Libya, which would also include an absolute ban on the sale of all oil-field equipment, follow the evacuation of most American citizens from Libya in compliance with President Reagan's 1981 order.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said "upwards of 90 percent" of the 1,500 Americans who were in Libya when Reagan issued his

State Department spokesman Dean Fischer declined to confirm the existence of the measures. "I can tell you the United States continues to be concerned by illegal Libyan support for international terrorism and subversion and that U.S. policy toward Libya remains under review," he said.

"Before any final decisions are taken on U.S. policies toward Libya we will be consulting as appropriate with Congress and we will also want to discuss these matters with key allies and friendly governments as concerned."

Speakes added, "No final decisions have been made."

A still unpublished study by the General Accounting Office concludes a cutoff of trade with Libya would have little impact on the United States or American oil companies, a congressional source said Friday.

Oil companies cut prices in light of world oil glut

By United Press International

The global oil glut depressed prices still further Friday as Mexico slashed its best-quality crude by $2.50 a barrel.

Several U.S. oil companies lowered their buying price for domestic crude to under $1 a barrel.

Analysts said U.S. pump prices would decline by about a cent a gallon if the cuts were passed on to the consumer.

British industry sources said Shell U.K. Ltd. and British Petroleum Ltd. are pressing for a $3- to $4-a-barrel reduction in Britain's North Sea crude prices, which dropped by $1.50 to $35 a barrel Feb. 5.

Tokyo oil sources said Japan will stop importing crude from Iran under long-term contracts April 1 despite Iran's decision to cut its crude by a total of $1 a barrel this month in a desperate bid to have its exports absorbed.

Analysts predicted the world oil market would continue to erode Saudi Arabia, OPEC's largest producer, and other cartel members through back output.

In Jakarta, Indonesian Minister of Mines and Energy Dr. Soewarno told UPI that Indonesia — an OPEC member — lowered its production in January and February in face of the glut.

Hijacked jet on way to Rome

JEDDAH, Saudi Arabia (UPI) — Hijackers took a Tanzania jetliner with up to 89 passengers aboard, killed two hostages and forced the jet to hopscotch across Africa and the Middle East.

Early today, the plane took off from Saudi Arabia, reportedly in Rome.

The plane, hijacked over Tanzania Friday, was forced to land at Nairobi airport in Kenya, where the hijackers said they killed two hostages. It was then taken 1,600 miles to Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, where it was refueled.

Saudi authorities at first apparently refused permission for the plane to land but they relented when the pilot told them he was running out of fuel.

Legislation 'cost' questioned

BOISE (UPI) — An Idaho Falls naturopath has accused Idaho Public Utilities Commission member Perry Swisher of saying he could get a bill through the Legislature to license naturopaths for $35,000.

Afton Orchard contends Swisher made the statement while serving as a state legislator and the naturopath made the accusation Wednesday while testifying before the House Health and Welfare Committee.

Swisher, however, said if he ever mentioned such a sum, it would have been as an estimate of what it would cost the naturopaths to lobby in return for the Legislature — not an offer of his services in return for any amount of cash.

Orchard said his and other naturopaths once paid a state senator — now deceased — $5,000 to lobby through a bill that would have licensed the state's naturopaths. They then learned the unnamed senator had pocketed the cash without pushing the bill, Orchard said.

Shuttle crew ready for flight

HOUSTON (UPI) — Jack Lousma, the veteran astronaut on NASA's third shuttle mission, said Friday the flight crew was peaking at the right time for the seven-day mission scheduled for launch March 22.

"We feel confident that we're ready to go," Lousma told the crew's final pre-flight news conference at Johnson Space Center. "We've worked hard. I feel we've peaked at the right time."

The one-week flight is much shorter than the 59 1/2-day mission Lousma spent aboard the Skylab in 1973, but it is twice as long as any previous shuttle mission and it is astronaut C. Gordon Fullerton's first trip into space.

Nampa girl still missing

NAMPA, Idaho (UPI) — Volunteer searchers wearing white armbands fanned out across fields and along canals Friday, while police interviewed school children in an attempt to locate a 9-year-old Nampa girl missing since Wednesday.

"We need bodies, we need volunteers," said Rocky Starr, who helped coordinate the search for Darayn Rene Johnson from the local Salvation Army office. "We need people to go out and walk these ditches and fields."

Starr said 12 Nampa residents responded to the plea by the Mothers Helping Others group to join in the search today. And another 12 left their jobs to join the two-to-four-person search teams later in the day.

Navy parts reported missing

CLEVELAND (UPI) — A $330 million shortage of parts due to theft and mismanagement has undercut the Navy's fighting ability, it was reported Friday.

The Washington bureau of the Armed Services Dealer obtained a copy of a House Armed Services Committee report which assessed shortages and showed evidence of mismanagement.

The report said an inventory shortage — attributed to theft and poor quality control — accounted for the loss of 82 decoy torpedoes, a $125,000 computer, 108 radio transformers and 7,000 rivets, according to the Plain Dealer.

"I view the conditions found with great alarm... Not only is control of Navy material seriously weakened, but more importantly, the readiness of our naval forces is directly impaired," Navy Secretary John Lehman said in the report.

Klanmen must pay for spree

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI) — A federal court jury Friday ordered three former Ku Klux Klan members and a Klan faction to pay $535,000 to five black women wounded in a shotgun spree that sparked three nights of race riots in 1960.

The jury of five whites and a black deliberated 2 1/2 hours before returning the judgment in U.S. District Court against former Klanmen Bill Church, Marshall Thrash and Larry Payne.

The women had sought $1.5 million, but their attorneys hailed the verdict as a victory for blacks against Klan violence. The civil rights lawsuit was cited as the first in the nation ever filed against the Klan based on the Ku Klux Klan Acts of Civil War Reconstruction.

Hart bows out as nominee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Black evangelist B. Sam Hart bowed out Friday as President Reagan's candidate for the U.S. Civil Rights Commission, saying he does not wish to "compromise further to any division among our peoples."

A White House spokesman said Reagan will withdraw the nomination. "Mr. Hart has requested that the president withdraw his name and the president will comply with the request," White House spokesman Mark Wittberg said.

In a telephone interview with United Press International in Philadelphia, Hart, 52, said he dictated a letter to the White House Friday afternoon, asking that his nomination be withdrawn.

He said he would have the president three reasons:

"Firstly, I find that the present demands on my mind, plus the constant phone calls and harassment of the press are taking me from my primary Christian ministries."

"Secondly, the press has already drawn an improper image of my views and this would make it difficult, if not impossible for me now to be clearly understood."

"Lastly, I observe a deviate attitude among the very people that the Civil Rights Commission is intended to help and protect and I do not wish to contribute further to any division among our peoples."

"I will pray that you (Reagan) will find a nominee who will be more acceptable to the people and who will create less controversy."

Guard retrieves portable bridge

By United Press International

Idaho National Guard crews succeeded Friday in retrieving a portable bridge that toppled into a creek near Weiser earlier this week, and commenced reclamation of the stream and land surrounding the area.

Meanwhile, Gov. John Evans declared a state of "extreme emergency" in flood-ravaged Bonner County.

Maj. Kent Jewell, public information officer for the National Guard, said crews had hoped to remove the portable structure from Clear Creek by Thursday.

"When we had pulled the damaged bridge launcher out of the way, I decided that everyone was tired," said Maj. Larry Mereness, project manager. "We'd had people working since 4:30 yesterday... (Thursday) morning and it was time to quit. The safety of our men was No. 1 and we decided Friday would be the day to quit."

The National Guard installed two temporary steel bridges over Crane Creek 16 miles northeast of Weiser Wednesday. But one of the bridges was removed Thursday to allow equipment access to remove the portable structure that had fallen into the creek. That bridge was replaced by 2 p.m. Friday, Jewell said.

Jewell said the Guard began cleanup operations Friday afternoon. Crews will probably work through the weekend cleaning up the streambed, restoring stream banks and replacing barb-wire fences, he said.

The Guard planned to finish this work by Monday, and return their equipment to Boise, he said.

Jewell said the Washington County Commission had discussed with National Guard Adjutant Gen. James S. Brooks the possibility of using Guardsmen later this year to install two permanent bridges.

had an adverse impact on local workers, local contractors, the taxpayer and, most of all, our public institutions," Stervsted said. "This legislation might have been necessary at one time. But the situation has now turned around, and it is the local worker who suffers."

The Republican also said the law "forces an employer to pay more in wages and benefits to one set of workers than to another." This disparity causes ill-feeling among employees and makes it more difficult for a job to maintain a good working relationship with his crew, he said.

But Senate Assistant-Minority Leader Kermit Kiebert, D-Hope, said the law protects local workers and contractors from out-of-state companies which might pay substandard wages to its crews, then move into a town and wrest away contracts by consistently being the lowest bidder.

Kiebert suggested the bill be amended to do away with the U.S. Labor Department standard of a prevailing wage in favor of state-set levels. He said statistics already compiled by the state show that prevailing wages in many Idaho towns and counties are lower than the ones imposed by the federal government.

Nine of the Senate's 12 Democrats voted against repealing the law, although Sen. Ron Beiletscher, D-Graineville, who later changed his vote so he could demand reconsideration of the measure. Opponents were joined by Republican Sen. Vern Braboy of Boise.

Three Democratic senators — Mike Mitchell of Lewiston, Kiebert, and John Feavey of Carey — voted with the majority.

prohibit inverted rates for agricultural customers, leaving the others intact. The inverted-rate schedule was ordered last year by the PUC over Idaho Power's objection, and a court appeal is continuing in that case.

But a spokesman for Pacific Power and Light Co. said his group gives agricultural users an option to split their consumption between residential and commercial rates.

"If the use is predominantly agricultural, however, it would be charged on a general rate and not on our inverted residential schedule," said John Shue of PP&L.

Both PP&L and Washington Water Power Co. are opposing the House bill, which would prohibit any inverted rates for residential service.

"I have used inverted rates since 1979 and I proposed them as early as 1977," said John Buegel of Washington Water Power.

"We designed inverted rates because our residential service is by far the fastest-growing group in our area," Buegel said. "We felt it was one way to signal those users that the costs are rising, and that electric heat can't be in their best interest or ours."

The eastern Washington company promotes the use of gas for heating homes, he said.

"We have not encouraged customers to install electric heat since 1971," he said.

He said PP&L, the largest Northwest utility covering six states, is using inverted rates as "a reflective adjustment" to the high cost of new thermal-powered electric plants now coming on line.

"Inverted rates can be designed to bring out conservation and they can be simple enough for the public to understand and use," Shue said.

Rep. Walter Little, R-New Plymouth, the House majority leader, told the committee he would support a resolution instructing the PUC to remedy agricultural inequities in the Idaho inverted-rate schedule, as long as the proposed bill remained available for amendment.

"I think the PUC has gotten the message from this body that action is desired," responded the House minority leader, Rep. Mel Hammond, D-Rexburg.

Idaho Legislature Briefs

Unemployment funds added

BOISE (UPI) — A Senate bill allocating an estimated $3.9 million in state funds for extended unemployment benefits for job-seeking workers was approved 58-6 Thursday by the House.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. B. E. Lewis, R-St. Maries, authorizes officials to tap the state's unemployment insurance trust fund for the remainder of 1982. The legislation is designed to meet 145,000 expanded unemployment-claimants this year — particularly in the Silver Valley, where Bunker Hill Co. is folding.

The funds will be available for workers who have exhausted the normal amount of unemployment benefits and extended unemployment-benefits from the state and federal governments, sponsors said.

A worker would receive the same amount of weekly unemployment money he received during the regular claim period for a period equal to half the first claim period, they said.

House OKs drunk driving bill

BOISE (UPI) — Without debate, the Idaho House passed a bill Friday that would establish a mandatory minimum sentence of two days in jail for a drunk-driving conviction.

The bill, which was approved 57-7 by representatives and forwarded to the Senate, also would increase from $300 to $600 the maximum drunk-driving fine.

Rep. C.A. "Skippy" Smyser, R-Parma, said he sponsored the bill because "only on very rare occasions" are drunk drivers caught and severely punished.

"This will be a message to anyone who thinks about drinking and driving" and a signal from the Legislature that "we will try and do whatever is in our power to try to stop this continued abuse" of alcohol and driving privileges, Smyser said.

Smyser said there were 11,000 drunk driving arrests in Idaho last year, but he said just one in 2,000 drunk drivers is stopped by a law officer.

He said drunk driving "is increasing at a very alarming rate and the loss of life on the highways as a result of it is alarming."

Box Canyon hearing set

BOISE — A House committee hearing on a plan to change part of the scenic designation of Box Canyon near Hagerman will be held Wednesday in Boise.

The legislation would amend existing law to allow for the negotiation of water rights in Box Canyon, provide for limited recreational purposes and adjust the boundaries of the stream and the canyon.

The bill is being promoted by trout farmer Earl Hardy, who owns most of the land bordering Box Canyon Creek. The purpose of the legislation is to allow development of the stream while maintaining most of the scenic designation already given the area by earlier legislation. Hardy has proposed an electrical turbine site and a diversion for fish propagation, using Box Canyon Creek waters.

The hearing before the House Resources and Conservation Committee will begin at 1:30 p.m. in the Gold Room of the Capitol.

Tax credit bill sent to Evans

BOISE (UPI) — State senators voted 30-1 Friday to approve and refer to the governor a House-originated investment tax-credits bill that was lauded by its sponsors as a way to rejuvenate Idaho's economy.

"This will really help get the economy rolling again," said Sen. Dana Watkins, R-Idaho Falls, floor sponsor of the bill.

Watkins said the investment tax-credits bill and a federal tax code-conformance measure signed into law by Gov. John Evans a few days ago were a "double-barrel approach" to spur investment, expand businesses and heal the economy.

For certain capital investments, a 3 percent tax credit would be granted under the proposal, which has been rapped by opponents as a threat to Idaho's general fund revenues during the current period of tight budgets.

Utah tuition bill supported

BOISE (UPI) — A legislator got initial support in the House Friday for a bill aimed at allowing college students from southeast Idaho to attend Utah State University without paying out-of-state tuition.

Rep. Robert Geddes, R-Preston, said the bill is a component in a plan to permit the Idaho Education Board and the Utah Board of Regents to enter into a reciprocity agreement under which in-state tuition rates would be charged to students from the neighboring states.

Utah students who want to attend Idaho State University in Pocatello or other Idaho institutions would benefit from the plan, as would Idaho students who want to go to Utah State or other Utah colleges, Geddes said.

Geddes said the measure primarily would benefit students in the Preston area who live less than 30 miles from Utah State in Logan, yet are required to pay Utah's out-of-state tuition rates.

The House Education Committee agreed with the measure and sent it to a privileged committee for introduction next week.

Batt: Reapportionment suit ready

BOISE (UPI) — Republican Lt. Gov. Phil Batt said Friday he believes GOP lawmakers will go to court immediately if Democratic Gov. John Evans votes the legislative reapportionment bill passed by the Legislature earlier in the week.

"The possibility exists that the Republicans will not wait for other court action," Democrats, Batt said.

If Evans votes the GOP-supported bill, Republican lawmakers might head into court with a request that the measure be put into effect despite the governor's nullifying action, Batt said.

Welfare funding increases

BOISE (UPI) — The Legislature's budget-setting committee doled out more than $154 million for the Health and Welfare Department Friday in an attempt to at least partly make up for drastic losses in federal funding.

"Do you see what we're trying to do?" Rep. William Lytle, R-Pinehurst, asked after the first of two sessions to be held on the Health and Welfare Department. "We're trying to make up for this loss of federal dollars."

But Lytle and other members of a Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee subcommittee charged with proposing budgets for the massive agency agreed — they couldn't compensate fully for federal funds the Reagan administration is cutting.

"We can't pick up all the federal fund loss and I hope we don't try," said Rep. Mack Neibaur, R-Paul, whose motion for a $1.76 million appropriation for the state's laboratories cleared on a 10-0 vote.

The total funding approved by the committee compares with roughly a $152 million for the same period in various programs last year. More of the money comes from state revenues than ever before, however — and Lytle said even more of the funding burden will fall on the state next year.

Money from the state's general account totals about $45 million for the Physical Health, Emergency Medical Service, Laboratories, Substance Abuse, Eligibility, Medicaid, Adult and Aid to Dependent Children, Social Services, Water Quality, Veterans and Indirect Support Services programs.

Lawmakers approved a $58 million total appropriation for Medicaid — $18.9 million in state funds — and $33.8 million for ADC — $10.3 million in state dollars.

If the committee were to adopt the funding proposals put together by Lytle's subcommittee, the Health and Welfare Department would receive about $1 million less overall than it did last year, Lytle said.

"And you can see if we lost, say, two-thirds of the federal funding next year, it's up to the state," he said.

Rep.—Ray Infanger, R-Salmon, another subcommittee member, echoed Lytle's comments during the budget-setting hearing, saying, "The hard thing on all of these budgets is the loss of federal funds."

He made a motion to give the agency's Emergency Medical Services program $1.1 million in fiscal year 1983. That sum, which the committee approved, was up from a $1 million appropriation for the current fiscal year but less than the $1.2 million program administrators had requested.

EMS stands to lose more than 93 percent of its $382,000 in federal funding this year — while the loss to the Public Health Services program is expected to hit 5.5 percent.

Homestead exemption bill still alive this year

BOISE (UPI) — A bill giving one more year of life to the "homestead" property tax exemption received approval from the House Tax and Taxation Committee on a 12-5 vote Friday.

Proponents of the measure said it would give homeowners another break on their property-tax bills while putting more of the tax burden on other classes of property.

The first $10,000, 20 percent, whichever is less, of the market value of owner-occupied residential property would be exempted from property taxes during the current tax year.

The Legislature granted one-year "homestead" exemptions each of the past two years.

Rep. Morgan Munger, R-Ola, said the only change in this year's exemption is that property owners who received the exemption last year won't have to apply again this year.

He said this would lessen the workload of county assessors, who have opposed the exemption.

Two proposals that would have increased the exemption and made it permanent were killed by the committee earlier this session.

Munger's bill now goes to the House floor, despite heavy opposition from agriculture and business industry lobbyists in the committee meeting Friday.

Russell Westenberg, director of the Associated Taxpayers of Idaho, said the exemption was "tax amnesty" for homeowners at the expense of owners of other types of property such as farmers and small-businessmen.

He said the bill would preserve homeowners' "partial immunity from the cost of government" and said it could not be varied based on the need of individual homeowners.

"This treats bank presidents and welfare mothers exactly alike if they own the house they are living in," Westenberg said.

Sales tax exemptions to continue for INEL

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho National Engineering Laboratory contractors still won't have to pay state sales taxes, thanks to an Idaho Falls senator's lobbying effort and an assist from the House Revenue and Taxation Committee.

The contractors always have been exempt from the 3 percent sales tax, but Sen. Kermit Kiebert, D-Hope, said Friday it's time the state grabbed a share of the "big bucks" at the federal nuclear testing complex near Idaho Falls.

Separate motions to reject and introduce the bill were defeated, each on an 8-4 tally. A motion fails on a tie vote.

Sen. Dana Watkins, R-Idaho Falls, argued against Kiebert's proposal, saying applying the tax to the contractors could cause cost-cutting and layoffs at INEL and even jeopardize its existence as a major Idaho employer.

Kiebert said INEL deserved the sales tax exemption 15 years ago because it was "still a fledgling operation trying to gain its feet." But he said INEL now is a major, established $444 million-per-year industry and that its private contractors — mostly "huge, out-of-state" firms — should be required to pay the state sales tax.

"There are some big bucks there, and there's obviously a tremendous effort to keep those big bucks in their (contractors') hip pockets," Kiebert said.

Kiebert and a committee member, Rep. Gordon Hofflied, R-Jerome, said the state in effect has been subsidizing the federal government by providing state services for INEL employees and their families, yet not getting a fair share of revenue from the operation in return.

Academy study shows short-term pot health risks

By Chicago Tribune

WASHINGTON — Marijuana, the country's most widely used illicit drug, presents a variety of short-term health risks and justifies "serious national concern," the National Academy of Sciences said.

Evidence of permanent long-term effects remains inconclusive, and the academy's Institute of Medicine, which conducted the 15-month, $454,000 study released Friday on "Marijuana and Health," could only recommend further study.

The reversible, short-term health effects, according to the study, include impaired motor coordination, hampered short-term memory, slowed learning abilities, lung inflammation and decreased sperm count.

"We cannot rule out any risk to health in any cases; there's just not enough evidence yet," said Dr. Arnold S. Reisman, editor of the New England Journal of Medicine and chairman of the 22-member study committee.

"But from the evidence we've gathered, any prudent person would have to be blind not to worry about the long-term effects."

Reisman and several other committee members released their report at a news conference at the academy.

"Our major conclusion," the report said, "is that what little we know for certain about the effects of marijuana on human health — and all that we have reason to suspect — justifies serious national concern."

"Our major recommendation is that there be a greatly intensified and more comprehensive program of research into the effects of marijuana on the health of the American people."

The report was in response to a request by the National Institutes of Health to determine possible health hazards of marijuana use, identify therapeutic uses and recommend promising research directions. It did not consider whether the drug should be decriminalized.

Asked if there was a safe "minimal dose" of marijuana, Dr. Reese T. Jones, professor of psychiatry at the University of California, San Francisco, replied, "We couldn't conclude what a safe dose was." He added that the doctors could not specify what a dangerous dose would be because the effects would vary depending on the individual.

The study found that marijuana use:

- Effects mood, perception and psychomotor coordination, all of which impair driving or machine-operating skills.

- Impairs short-term memory and slow-learning, which has unfavorable implications for children and adolescents.

- May cause temporary periods of confusion, anxiety or even delirium, depending on the amount used and the individual's psychological condition.

- Decreases human sperm count and movement during chronic use, although the study did not conclude there was any effect on fertility.

- Effects the lungs and respiratory system much the way tobacco smoke does.

A fireboat sprays water on burning empty tanker that exploded in the East River between Manhattan and Brooklyn

Oil tanker explodes in N. Y. river

NEW YORK (UPI) — An empty oil tanker exploded in balls of flames under the Williamsburg Bridge between Manhattan and Brooklyn Friday and sank in the East River, killing one crewman and injuring three others.

It was worst disaster in New York harbor since two ships collided and caught fire under the Verazzano-Narrows Bridge in 1973. Sixteen people were killed in that incident.

"I heard a big explosion and the entire boat was a ball of flames," said Craig Kuehl, who was jogging by the Williamsburg Bridge when Friday's blast occurred. "Flaming debris was thrown everywhere."

Steve Goldenberg, who lives on the Manhattan side of the bridge, said: "I heard a tremendous noise followed by another huge explosion. My whole building shook. I thought it had blown up."

The blasts were heard as far as eight miles away.

The tanker, the 225-foot, 1,242-ton Poling Brothers No. 3, was returning from Bridgeport, Conn., after delivering a load of gasoline when it was ripped by a series of explosions that blew a hole in the ship's forward section as it passed under the bridge about 9:40 a.m. A 2-foot-by-4-foot piece of steel was blown onto the subway tracks on the bridge, halting service until it was removed.

Engulfed in flames and spewing a dense cloud of black smoke hundreds of feet in the air, the tanker drifted toward the Brooklyn side of the river, where it sank shortly before 11 a.m.

One crew member, identified as chief engineer David Melvin, was killed. His body was found on the roof of the wheel house.

Five others waited on the stern section until the tanker drew close enough to shore for them to jump off. Two other crew members jumped into the river. The two, including Capt. Gordon Wallace, were plucked from the icy waters and hospitalized.

Stockman has 'no intention at all' of resigning

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Budget director David Stockman said Friday he is not discouraged about having to defend President Reagan's 1983 budget and has "no intention at all" of resigning.

A source close to Stockman told United Press International Thursday that after recently losing a series of fiscal arguments with the White House, Stockman was despondent and confided about three weeks ago he members of Congress recently held a private meeting with Stockman about the figures and deficits in President Reagan's budget and "chewed him out," the source said, adding GOP members were nastier to him in private than Democrats were publicly in committee hearings.

In addition, the source said, Stockman was upset when the White House immediately refuted "conciliatory" statements he made on possible budget compromises recently to congressional committees.

While some Republicans — both in the administration and in Congress — are anxious to get rid of Stockman, the source said, others are being supportive and encouraging him to remain in his job to help with the formulation of a compromise budget.

Once that is accomplished, probably in the spring, it is likely Stockman will step down, the source said.

was ready to resign.

But when asked about the report during a visit to the Capitol, Stockman said, "No, I am not discouraged and I have no intention at all of that (resigning)."

The knowledgeable source, however, stressed Friday that Stockman despite his public denial, is still discouraged and could resign at any time.

A group of influential Republican

'Real voices' support alternative budget plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Dan Quayle, R-Ind., announced Friday he decided, after taking President Reagan's advice to listen to the "real voices" back home, to support a Republican alternative budget proposal for the Reagan plan.

The compromise, freezing most government spending and limiting defense spending increases to 5 percent for three years, was offered earlier this week by Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee.

"As you suggested," Quayle, a member of the Budget Committee, said in a letter to the president, "I have taken the opportunity of listening to the 'real voices of the American people' during my stops in Indiana."

"I found strong support for your objectives," he said. "However, with growing unemployment, there is deep-seated concern over high interest rates and the record deficits" in the administration's budget proposal. "Therefore," he said, "I wish to advise you that I intend to endorse the general outline and philosophy — with some important modifications — of the budget proposal offered by Senator Domenici, chairman of the Budget Committee."

Domenici proposed putting a 5 percent limit on real growth of defense spending and freezing most discretionary spending at 1982 levels for three years, freezing indexed entitlement programs such as food stamps, welfare and Medicaid, for one year and enacting tax changes to raise $18 billion in fiscal 1983.

Quayle said his "modifications" would involve a 7 percent cap on defense spending and raising more revenue, partially through a minimum corporate tax and a "minimum personal income tax as well."

The Budget Coalition, made up of labor, civil rights and other liberal activists, charged in a letter to members of the House that the president's budget is "harsh and unworkable." It urged Congress to enact programs to "create jobs, restore essential programs and revive the American economy."

Budget director David Stockman told a congressional task force it would be impractical to freeze spending levels of entitlement programs for up to three years as a means to lower budget deficits.

Several members of Congress have proposed various sorts of spending freezes of entitlement programs over various lengths of time to lower Reagan's 1983 projected budget deficit of $91.5 billion.

Ethiopian archbishop defects to U.S.

HOUSTON (UPI) — A high-ranking Ethiopian leader Friday defected to the United States because he said there is no religious freedom in his homeland, which is under the rule of a powerful military junta.

Archbishop Abba Mathias, 44, of the Ethiopian Orthodox Church said he will seek political asylum this week. He came to the United States two weeks ago on a tourist visa and is residing with a former Ethiopian navy commander, Tasew Desta, who defected several years ago.

The bearded Mathias, who spoke at a news conference wearing the black robe and hat of the Eastern Orthodox Church and carrying a shepherd's staff, is the first Ethiopian member of the clergy to defect in recent years, said Joseph J. De Benedetto, a spokesman for the Roman Catholic Diocese of Galveston-Houston, which granted him asylum.

His reason for requesting asylum is "to call attention to the sad plight of the Ethiopian people because the ruling communist junta is taking away the religious freedoms of all religious sects, which include Muslim, Protestant, Roman Catholic, Eastern Orthodox, and they are stealing all the churches' treasures and massacring men, women and children," Mathias said through an interpreter.

Mathias's last assignment was in Jerusalem, De Benedetto told, where he headed a monastery of 40 monks.

Desta, who defected in 1976 and acted as the interpreter Friday, said his defection had been in protest of military communist atrocities against his people. He currently works as a ship inspector at the Port of Houston.

The Rev. John L. Morkovsky, bishop of the diocese, said religious leaders in Ethiopia are being killed or banished, and are no longer effective in their country.

"Religious leaders in Ethiopia are being hampered in their work, but because of lack of communication — the communists are not letting any outside press into the country — most people are unaware of the problems," Morkovsky said.

"He (Mathias) is in danger for his life. If he ever was to return to Ethiopia, he could not function, he could not live. He is now a refugee."

Church council reaches accord on thorny issues

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

The World Council of Churches, often criticized for paying more attention to social than belief issues, has announced an unprecedented breakthrough in doctrinal agreement among Christian theologians.

The Council's Faith and Order Commission has accepted and sent to its 300 member churches for response a statement of theological convergence that some ecumenists believe could provide the framework for church union for a large number of the world's splintered Protestant and Orthodox denominations.

It also touches on the controversial issue of women's ordination.

Called the "Lima Text," after the city of Lima, Peru, where the Faith and Order meeting was held, the document spells out agreement on three of the thorniest issues faced by contemporary churches: baptism, ministry and the eucharist, or holy communion.

"The . . . statements are an ecumenical achievement of historic significance," said Professor John Deschner of the Perkins School of Theology in Dallas and a vice moderator of the commission.

"The church must discover the ministry which can be provided by women, as well as that which can be provided by men," the statement says. "A deeper understanding of the comprehensiveness of ministry which reflects the interdependence of men and women needs to be more widely manifested in the life of the church."

The Heaths, who have farmed in the Kimberly area for many years, will speak at a sacrament meeting at the Kimberly First Ward, south of Kimberly, this Sunday at 10:30 a.m.

"Though they agree on this need," the statement adds, "the churches draw different conclusions as to the admission of women to the ordained ministry."

Called the "Lima Text," after the city of Lima, Peru, where the Faith and Order meeting was held, the document spells out agreement on three of the thorniest issues faced by contemporary churches: baptism, ministry and the eucharist, or holy communion.

"The . . . statements are an ecumenical achievement of historic significance," said Professor John Deschner of the Perkins School of Theology in Dallas and a vice moderator of the commission.

"They summarize explicitly and coherently the agreements reached at the International Level through more than 50 years of ecumenical dialogue by representatives acceptable to their own churches," he said.

"But another Methodist, Geoffrey Wainwright of Great Britain, cautioned that Baptists and some Reformed denominations might find it difficult to embrace all the points of the text.

And some Orthodox members, as well as Anglicans and Roman Catholics, may have trouble with other portions of the text.

One of the most controversial areas is that of ministry, and the document spells out a three-fold ministry of bishop, presbyter and deacon, accepted in practice. If not name, by a number of churches, although many resist the idea of bishops.

That agreement, however, does not resolve the issue. It leaves the issue of women's ordination to the priestly ministry as a major stumbling block, one that already has strained relations between Roman Catholics and Orthodox Christians over against U.S. Episcopalians.

It also touched on the touchy issue of the "succession of bishops." Some churches, such as the Orthodox, Anglicans and some Lutherans, hold their ordination practices are in continuity with the first apostles of Jesus.

Other churches do not bother about the question of such continuity or succession.

In the statement, the churches which affirm succession are asked to "recognize both the apostolic content of the ordained ministry that exists in non-succession churches."

Non-succession churches, for their part, are asked to "realize that the continuity with the church of the apostles finds profound expression in the successive laying on of hands by bishops, and that although they may not lack the continuity of the apostolic tradition, this sign will strengthen and deepen that continuity."

QUESTION . . .

My husband is deceased. If I put my nephew's name on my property with me, will this obligate him to arrange and pay for my funeral?

ANSWER . . .

There is no possible way you can title your residence property which would by this fact alone obligate your nephew to arrange and pay your funeral and interment expense. Your estate or your entitlement to a funeral benefit would normally furnish funds for your burial. If your home constitutes the bulk of your estate you may consider leaving your house to your nephew through a will.

Growing in acceptance is the concept of pre-arranging and paying for a funeral. Funds left on file for this purpose are put into trust until needed. They are not subject to attachment by creditors nor may they be withdrawn by anyone at anytime for any purpose except those associated with your funeral. We have very comprehensive pre-need funeral plans in effect at our Mortuary — please telephone for additional information.

What's what

Writewatches tend to be broken, if at all, at the same times of day nationwide. Usually around noon or at about 10:30 at night. That's when most wearers take them off, either to wash up or to set them on night stands at bedtime.

The original breeders of Burmese cats were the wealthiest people in Burma. And at that time, each cat had its own servant.

The first day of May and Christmas day always fall on the same day of the week, even in Leap years.

STRING MILKER

Before the big dairymen installed milking machines a few generations ago, the herds were milked by hand specialists called string milkers. One such asked for a job on a farm where I lived. The dairy owner shook hands with him once and hired him on the spot. Later, he told me: "I knew it was a good milker. He couldn't open his hands all the way."

Not only can a Quincy-type pathologist determine in an autopsy that the deceased was poisoned by arsenic. That doctor can often times tell how many doses of arsenic were given. Dr. Hamilton Smith of Glasgow University examined some hairs from the 7th century at Napoleon Bonaparte, and said the emperor was poisoned with arsenic about 40 times between 1820 and 18...

HOUSEFLIES

Q. Are houseflies good for anything at all?

A. Suppose you don't have joy in the defense of houseflies, but those who do claim flies purify the air by destroying decaying vegetation. Outdoor flies, they say, provide food for birds, fish, lizards and the like.

Sauerkraut cooked without a jigger of gin in it is like a hotdog without mustard, according to some gourmet specialists. Many don't know. But if you're going to guzzle it up, don't leave out the caraway seeds and some slices of apple and onion.

Q. What's the best way to deal with a smartaleck cop when I know I'm in the right?

A. Keep your mouth shut and do what you're told and let your lawyer take it from there. Such is the consensus of several veteran police reporters quoted in this matter.

Blindfolded, you probably couldn't tell the difference between the roar of a nearby ostrich and the roar of a far-away lion, unless you were an African animal expert.

Too many candles for Liz

TOO MANY CANDLES
 A cake bearing 50 candles, to mark Elizabeth Taylor's birthday on Saturday crumbled before she got it, and instead she got one with only eight candles. The cake was a gift from reporters and photographers who have been trailing the superstar around London since her arrival there this week. Miss Taylor, who makes her London stage debut March 11 with her Broadway role in Lillian Hellman's "The Little Foxes," got the cake Friday at the house in Chelsea where she is staying. "What a surprise!" she exclaimed. "It really is lovely." She posed with it, smiling, for photographers.

The Doziers are expected to live in the same apartment on the banks of the River Adige in Verona where the kidnapers seized him Dec. 17.

QUOTE OF THE DAY

Brooke Shields says she finds it hard to remember from week to week who she has a crush on. "One week, I'll have a crush on someone, then the next week I'll have a crush on someone else. And I don't know what to say to last week's crush," she says in Seventeen magazine (she is 17). "I hope it's not always going to be like this."

Frank Sinatra will open the reconstructed New Universal Amphitheater in Los Angeles with a nine-day engagement starting July 30. Songwriter Randy Newman, nominated for Academy Awards for his score for "Ragtime" and for the song "One More Hour," has written a musical called "Maybe I'm Doing It Wrong," which opens Off Broadway in New York March 14.

"You don't have to be a frump to run for council," she told a press conference. "I don't think I should be punished because I'm pretty or affluent. I'm very proud of my centerfold. It helped me get jobs in acting." The layout on Lari Laine — her name at the time — is tame by today's standards. It shows her in green terrycloth shorts, with her arms covering her breasts. She

Wins damage settlement

Young millionaire hasn't changed

WAGONER, Okla. (UPI) — Yvonne Kimberly said Friday a $1 million lawsuit settlement with Clorox Co. might make her 12-year-old son the wealthiest youth around but "to me he's just the same old kid."

The woman said Tony is "just fine now" physically, although the injuries caused him to drop one year behind other children his age in school. The sixth grader may be a millionaire, his mother said, "but to me he's just the same old kid."

kind with wheels that cost $30 for each one.

Mrs. Kimberly's attorney last week finalized the million-dollar out-of-court settlement with Clorox for severe injuries the boy received from drinking Liquid-Plumr brand drain cleaner.

The woman said Tony had retrieved a discarded Liquid-Plumr bottle from a garbage can when he was a toddler and drained the bottle's remaining drops into his mouth.

The liquid, which at that time was one-fourth sodium hydroxide but now contains less, severely damaged the child's mouth and esophagus, his mother said.

Mrs. Kimberly said her complaint against Clorox was that the bottle did not have a child proof cap, contained more sodium hydroxide than was necessary and did not have a highly visible warning label.

Underground fire forces road closed

CENTRALIA, Pa. (UPI) — The Pennsylvania Department of Transportation Friday closed a rural highway near Centralia where sin caused by an underground mine has dropped the road surface 12 inches.

Department crews blocked a 2,000-foot section of the road with wooden barriers at the recommendation of federal mine inspectors, William Laubach, the department's Columbia County maintenance manager, said. "We've closed it indefinitely pending further investigation."

Laubach called the sinking a direct result of the mine fire that has burned beneath Centralia for nearly 20 years. U.S. Bureau of Mines inspectors regularly monitor mines from the mine fire.

Paul Solomon, district soils engineer for the transportation department, said the highway drop measured 80 feet-long and apparently occurred over a period of months. "It's passable, but it can go all at once. You never know when it's going to move."

The highway loops two miles from Route 61 near Ashland, through Conyngham Township and the village of Eyrnesville, before intersecting with Route 61 again just outside the Centralia borough line.

Student lessons get off the ground

DALLAS (UPI) — Financially strapped airlines might take a look at the grade school lessons of Hyer Elementary School. Teacher Jean Seymour decided to give her second grade class an economics lesson this week after a class field trip to Dallas Love Field. Students formed their own companies, and with $500 worth of simulated capital, launched into the aviation industry.

Young Matthew Doll, president of his own Famous Flyers Corp., produced the best paper planes, winning $550 in play prize money because his planes stayed aloft longer and flew more accurately than other companies' planes.

But in the paper chase for profits, Matthew finished second to 8-year-old Glenn Stotts' Paper Express. Glenn won only $30 in prize money, but he earned $800 in profits through a shrewd business move.

Glenn early on acquired Aero Tool Co., with assets including three pairs of scissors. Refusing to sell his acquisition, he lent scissors in exchange for other materials or rented them for up to $20 for five minutes.

"We paid $190 just for the airplanes," gloated Sara Kraemer of Famous Flyers.

Atlanta murder verdict up to jurors

ATLANTA (UPI) — The trial of Wayne Williams Friday went to a jury of eight blacks and four whites, who must decide if he is the "mad-dog killer" who stalked Atlanta's poor black children or an innocent victim of circumstance.

The prosecution claimed the 23-year-old son of black school teachers was the evil heir apparent to Adolf Hitler and Idi Amin. The defense, in its final arguments, said he was an innocent and misunderstood man.

The jury deliberated for two hours Friday night, deciding shortly before 7:30 p.m. to retire to their motel rooms because of icy conditions developing on the city streets.

Judge Clarence Cooper concluded his 45-minute charge to the jury at 4:51 p.m. The jurors went to a nearby jury room while the courtroom was rearranged and then were led back at 5:19 p.m. into the paneled, high-ceilinged room where they have heard 35 days of testimony and one day of passionate arguments.

They must deliberate in the courtroom itself because of the mass of evidence introduced in the complex, entirely circumstantial trial.

Williams is on trial only for the murders of Nathaniel Cater, 27, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, two of 28 young blacks abducted and slain in Atlanta, but testimony has linked him to 10 more victims — most of them children.

Defense attorney Al Binder, in a thundering appeal that lasted over an hour, cried that the defendant was "the most misunderstood man I ever met."

"Have you ever heard of a black mass killer?" Binder demanded. "It just doesn't make sense."

The prosecution, however, claimed Williams was a "non-achiever" and a "pathological liar" who turned into a Jekyll-and-Hyde monster when every venture he tried — broadcasting, photography and talent scouting — failed.

He turned, the state claims, to killing the poor blacks he despised and proving his brilliance by ridiculing the police who tried to catch him, calling them "Keystone Kops."

"The Keystone Kops got him," growled District Attorney Lewis Slaton in his low, flat voice as he wound up the prosecution's final summation. "He's failed again."

Prosecutor Gordon Miller said the state had found on the bodies 28 different types of fibers matching 18 different items in the Williams' family car and home.

Such a combination, he claimed, defies odds of 1 in 150 million and is "so significant as to amount to a signature, just as if the defendant had signed his name on the death warrants" of the victims.

Slaton said Williams was "cunning, he's evil."

"Attila the Hun, Adolf Hitler, Idi Amin, Wayne Bertram Williams — the master race doing away with their inferiors," said Slaton.

Binder called the prosecution's witnesses liars and "Judases," quoted from the Bible, bellowed so loudly that the public address system was overloaded and whispered in a hoarse voice so softly he could scarcely be heard.

Stalking in his low, limping gait in front of the jury box like a wounded lion, mopping his massive head, he said that Williams' elderly parents "ask you to give them their $1 back. They love him."

Wayne Williams, left, is escorted to the court room UPI

Captain knew jet was going to skid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The captain of a World Airways widebody jet knew within seconds after the jet's touchdown on an icy runway at Boston's Logan International Airport his brakes were useless, cockpit tapes showed Friday.

"No braking," said Flight 30's Capt. Peter Langley 11 seconds after the DC-10 touched down Jan. 23, according to transcripts released by the National Transportation Safety Board.

"No braking, oh —" exclaimed Langley 25 seconds after touchdown.

"Oh —" echoed flight engineer William Rodger, said the transcript, which listed the blank spaces as "non-pertinent word."

"We're going off the end," said the captain, as the co-pilot almost simultaneously radioed the control tower, "World's going off the end."

Five seconds later, the sound of impact is heard as the huge DC-10, with 289 passengers and crew aboard, skidded off the runway and came to rest in the icy waters of Boston Harbor.

Two people are believed to have drowned in the accident, which severed the widebody jet's cockpit section.

The cockpit voice recorder records about one-half hour's worth of sounds of conversation, switches being thrown and other noises in the cockpit.

Saudis accept AWACS conditions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Saudi Arabia has accepted formal conditions on the use of five AWACS planes they bought from the United States last year, administration officials said Friday.

Saudi Defense Minister Prince Sultan agreed to the U.S. terms after lengthy negotiations with Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger during Weinberger's tour of Arab countries earlier this month, the officials said.

Members of Congress have reportedly been briefed on the agreement, but it was not known if the terms, precisely parallel assurances President Reagan provided the Senate last fall in striving to rescue the $3.5 billion AWACS deal from a congressional veto.

Investors edgy, market slips

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
United Press International

NEW YORK — Wrapping up the wildest week of the year, the stock market slipped Friday amid investor concerns about interest rates, the federal budget deficit and the overall economy.

Trading slowed considerably as many investors retreated to the sidelines to await the Federal Reserve's money supply figures that showed a $1.2 billion increase in the latest reporting period.

Takeover situations attracted considerable attention on the trading floor. Also, earnings reports influenced many issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which slipped 0.56-point Thursday on an early rally fizzle, ended at 1,432.13. The closely watched average had a 13.04 loss Monday and 13.79 winner Wednesday, added 0.09 for the week overall.

The New York Stock Exchange index lost 0.08 to 65.33 and the price of an average share decreased three cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index fell 0.10 to 113.11. Declines topped advances 817-635 among the 1,670 issues traded.

Big Board volume slipped to 43,840,000 shares from 54,160,000 traded Thursday.

The slow-down trading and small average movements indicated there was little in the news background to sway the market decisively in either direction.

Composite volume of NYSE issues traded on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 52,490,000 shares compared with 63,326,000 traded Thursday.

The American Stock Exchange index dropped 1.45 to 266.13 and the price of a share shed six cents. Declines topped advances 265-226 among the 773 issues traded. Composite volume totaled 8,445,145 shares compared with 4,629,000 Thursday.

The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ index of OTC stocks lost 0.01 to 179.43.

On the trading floor, Sony Corp., which has been battered both here and in Tokyo for the past two weeks, was the most active NYSE-listed issue, off 1/4 to 13 1/2 with blocks of 250,000 shares at 13 1/2, 449,000 shares at 13 1/4 and 389,000 shares at 13 1/4.

PepsiCo was the second most active issue, off 1/4 to 84 after a block of 713,400 shares crossed at 33 1/2. Norton Simon was third, up 1/4 to 21 1/2 after a block of 445,000 shares crossed at 21 1/2.

Boeing, which sank a point Thursday after American Airlines canceled a $600 million order, was fourth, off 1/4 to 18 1/2 after a block of 279,000 shares at 18 1/2.

Brunswick Corp., which has agreed to sell its Sherwood Medical unit to American-Home Products to fight a Whittaker Corp. takeover bid, skidded 3/4 to 21 1/2. American Home said its offer for Sherwood Medical was over-subscribed.

Diamond International gained 2/4 to 37 1/2. The company's directors approved a proposal to merge Diamond International into an affiliate of Sir James Goldsmith of Britain.

Marshall Field, which fell 1 1/2 points Thursday following reports it would have trouble fighting a takeover bid by C. Ichan & Co., rebounded 1 1/2 to 21 1/2 when Baywater Realty said it plans to buy 100,000 shares to aid Ichan.

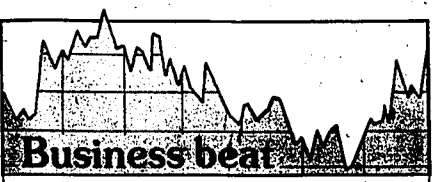

R.H. Macy, which Wednesday announced a 2-for-1 stock split and raised its dividend payout, gained 2/4 to 58 1/2.

International Minerals & Chemicals shed 2 to 26 after the company said it expected its 1982 operating net to drop about 25 percent.

Hazeltel Corp., which said Thursday it had won a $44.7 million Air Force security system radio contract, gained 1/4 to 30 1/2.

On the Amex, Mues Services, which has received a $33-million tender offer from Sleighty Public Ltd. of Britain, was the most active issue, up 8 1/2 to 32.

Dome Petroleum, which has pulled out of the Canadian Alands oil project, was second on the list, off 1/4 to 8 1/2. Tetra Tech was third, off 1/4 to 17 1/2.

Union watches Ford local voting

DETROIT (UPI) — United Auto Workers union leaders kept close watch Friday on the results of voting by members of the nation's largest Ford Motor Co. local on the historic contract trading wage and benefit concessions for job security.

Mike Rinaldi, president of the 25,000-member Local 600 set in the shadow of the smoke-spewing suburban Dearborn Rouge complex, said his members will ratify the pact. He declined to predict a margin. Voting by the 17,000 laid off and current Ford workers nationwide will conclude at 4 p.m. MST Sunday.

While the pact so far has been approved on an 83 percent margin by 28 of the 55 local unions, Local 600's endorsement would be a big step toward ratification. Another key unit is Local 1250 in Cleveland, which votes today.

Kennecott cuts back staff slots

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Kennecott Minerals Corp. announced Friday it will eliminate 57 salaried positions at its headquarters in Salt Lake City effective Monday.

Kennecott said elimination of the jobs amounts to a 10 percent reduction in the headquarters staff. Earlier in the month, the company's Utah Copper Division announced layoffs of 98 hourly employees and 11 salaried positions as a result of depressed market conditions.

Golden Nugget drops resort plans

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Golden Nugget, Inc. Friday said it would not proceed with plans to develop a gambling resort in England.

In a two-paragraph statement, the firm said it was "unable to receive a preliminary approval in the British licensing process."

Golden Nugget operates hotel-casino resorts in Las Vegas and Atlantic City, N.J.

Beatrice moving into soft drinks

CHICAGO — Beatrice Foods Co., which last month completed the purchase of Coca-Cola Bottling Co. of Los Angeles, is moving swiftly to deepen its involvement in the soft-drink business.

Beatrice confirmed it is negotiating the purchase of two privately held Southern California bottlers, Coca-Cola Bottling Co. of San Diego and San Bernardino Coca-Cola Bottling Co., adding that no agreements have been signed.

Shift to checking boosts U.S. money supply

NEW YORK (UPI) — The basic money supply rose $1.2 billion in the week-ended Feb. 17 as the public, worried about the economic environment, apparently continues to seek liquidity by shifting funds into checking accounts.

The latest figure probably eliminates any chance that the Federal Reserve will apply further downward pressure on interest rates, at least for the time being, William V. Sullivan, senior vice president at Bank of New York, said.

But he added that "from the Fed's point of view, as indicated by Chairman (Paul) Volcker's testimony this week, it does feel that some of the money supply buildup reflects a move by households toward liquidity in an uncertain economic environment and that means it probably won't apply any additional pressure on rates."

The basic money supply known as M1 consists of cash, checking accounts and interest-bearing Negotiated Order of Withdrawal accounts, and much of the double-digit gain of the past three months has been in the NOW account component.

The federal funds rate that banks charge each other for overnight loans of excess reserves was trading in a range of 14 1/4-14 1/2 percent Friday after dipping below 13 percent earlier this week.

Sullivan said higher funds "virtually eliminates" any chance for a further drop in the prime rate next week from the 16 1/2 percent level.

M1 was a seasonally adjusted average of $447.7 billion in the week ended Feb. 17 from $446.5 billion the previous week. In the latest four weeks, M1 shows an 11.7 percent rate of gain in the statistical quarter.

Commercial and industrial loans on the books of the nation's large banks rose $845 million in the week ended Feb. 17, compared with a gain of $46 million the previous week.

Business borrowing ends up in the banking week ended Wednesday. The federal funds rate eased to 13.86 percent from 15.61 percent. The rate on three-month Treasury bills fell to 12.62 percent from 14.41 percent.

The rate on three-month certificates of deposit averaged 14.57 percent from 15.84 percent the week before.

Check medicine chest

© Universal Press Syndicate

With the 1982 cold and flu season at its peak, you're a rarity among us if you haven't stood before your medicine cabinet, groping for a drug to offer quick relief.

It's also likely that instead of a health medicine, all you've seen is an assortment of odds and ends — an old bottle of vitamins, nail polish remover, shaving cream, a pair of tweezers — a ridiculous catchall of miscellaneous beauty aids and outdated prescription drugs.

Yet an estimated one out of three visits to hospital emergency rooms could be avoided if consumers had a basic "working" knowledge of how and when to use its contents.

For as little as $35, you can sensibly stock your medicine cabinet to prepare yourself to handle the most common minor illnesses and household accidents. Your medicine cabinet should, in fact, be the home's medical emergency treatment center for illnesses and injuries that happen when you least expect them," says Dr. George Royer of the Upjohn Co., the Michigan-based maker of pharmaceuticals.

What do you need? Why? What should you do now?

Before you even start to add to your present stock, toss out the items that have outlived their usefulness. Discard old prescription medicines and keep only those for chronic conditions such as high blood pressure, arthritis, asthma.

Check the expiration date on the label of all drugs, prescription and non-prescription. If they are out of date (and I'll wager you'll find many bottles with expiration dates in 1979, etc.), throw them away. Your chest will look empty in comparison.

• Minor cuts and scrapes: You'll need antiseptic for cleaning the wound and an antibiotic ointment to apply afterward. Your drug cabinet can suggest the ointments in favor. Sterile gauze or bandages should then be used to keep out dirt and germs and to inhibit infection. These should be staples in all medicine cabinets.

• Eye injuries: If you get a foreign particle in your eye, use clean water to flush it out. If it still bothers you, put on an eye patch and get medical attention. (Never try to dislodge a particle from the eye using dry cotton because you can injure the eye.)

• Minor skin irritations including dermatitis. A hydrocortisone skin preparation, available without a prescription, may temporarily relieve the itch and redness associated with dermatitis, eczema or "detergent hands" (aggravated by dry, cold weather). The skin preparation also may help summertime ailments such as mild poison ivy and reactions to insect bites. Your druggist will help you select.

• Minor burns. Use cold tap water, possibly followed by a burn ointment. (If you have a large or deep burn, do not use an ointment. The physician can treat the burn.) And contrary to the old wives' tale, never use butter on a burn.

• Poisons swallowed. Syrup of ipecac is used to induce vomiting after an overdose of drugs or medications. It should not be used, however, when an acid-based poison or strong alkali such as drain cleaner has been swallowed. Call your local poison control center for instructions. Have the label handy to help the control center advise you. Having the syrup of ipecac on hand could save time as well as a life.

• Other first aid essentials. Tweezers, antacid tablets, elastic bandage (for sprains), tongue depressors, cough syrup, petroleum jelly (to protect chapped lips), sterile cotton balls and gauze pads, thermometer, blunt-end scissors, aspirin.

List important health service phone numbers (hospital, poison control center, physician, emergency squad) near the medicine cabinet, as well as by the phone. Keep your medicine cabinet up-to-date. Divide the cabinet into compartments for drugs, bandages and instruments.

CSI's finish: anticlimactic

North Idaho's surprising loss wipes out tonight's importance

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Tonight's game, which had meant a lot, now means very little.

North Idaho visits CSI at 8 tonight in the last regular-season contest. It would have been more than only a regional contest, but Treasure Valley Friday night reduced what could have been a climactic finale to just another routine season-ender by defeating North Idaho, 72-63.

For the winner of the post-season tournament, matters are fairly well set.

The western regional representatives will be Oregon Community College Conference co-champions Chemeketa and Mount Hood. Chemeketa finished 23-1 this season while Mount Hood went 23-3. Rather than take advantage of the two-week vacation before regionals for a money-making tuneup-playoff, the Oregon teams have decided simply to flip a coin to establish their seeding.

Looking beyond that, the regional champion will take on the winner of the Florida-Georgia bi-regional in the last game of opening day in Hutchinson, Kans., March 16.

"The only thing that's changed from last week is we're home," Campbell said. "Our whole season was riding on the line in that one (last week's overtime win at NIC) and our guys came through. It's the same thing this Saturday night except they're the ones who'll have had the travel."

"We've had so many must games this year because of that rule (in cases of tie, the team having hosted regional most recently must travel) it seems like there should be a break for these players," Campbell said.

"We've had to ask a lot of them emotionally and physically. It's very disturbing to have to psyche yourself up to win a game and once you do, it really didn't help you much, just kept you alive for the next one. You have to do it again and again and again."

"It makes it exciting for the fans but it sure is tough on coaches," he said.

The battle marks the first time in a long while that two nationally ranked teams have played here (North Idaho 14th and CSI 17th in the NJCAA poll).

There were some strange statistics in last week's match at Coeur d'Alene. North Idaho shot over 62 percent from the field in the first half and 50 percent from the night, yet hit just nine of 20 free throws.

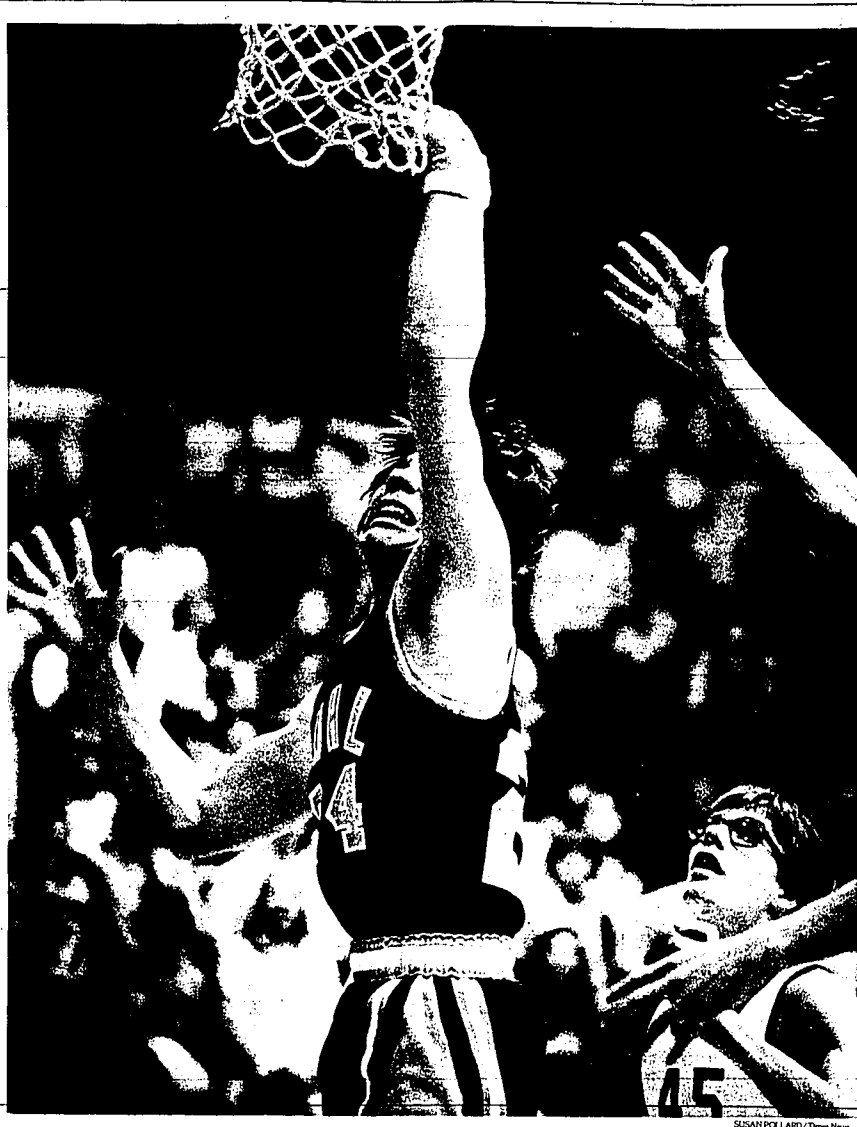

Rick Tunstall had his best shooting night, hitting 10 of 13 field attempts and six of his first seven to keep CSI from falling behind.

Lebro Bates crammed eight of his 10 points into a critical span that allowed CSI to turn a six-point deficit into a six-point lead.

Offensively, North Idaho crossed CSI's defensive strategy up when Dave Ponce rang in with several outside jumpshots. Ponce reportedly was the play-making, assist point guard with Gordon Dixon being the outside gun. But Dixon was limited to eight.

Charles Meriwether hurt the Eagles with 22 points, eight more than his average, and joined with Warren Shepherd, who hit a couple of sweeping hooks, in providing most of the Cardinals' rebounds.

North Idaho's other starter, 6-7 Dave Randa, provided some big rebounds against CSI and also came up with a couple of key inside and follow shots that kept the game close coming to the wire.

Buhl forward Ken Pierce rips a rebound during Friday night's game against Wood River. Wolverine Jeff Bircher watches.

Mushers tip Redskins; Carey outlasts Bliss

GOODING — Camas County's remarkable five-minute comeback and Carey's blazing second quarter about sums up Friday night's action at the Fourth District A-4 Basketball Tournament.

The Mushers came from 15 points down in the final half, and 11 down in the final five minutes, to shock top-seeded Gooding State 45-44 in overtime while Carey took control of Bliss in the second quarter and coasted to a 59-49 decision.

Bliss drops into the loser's bracket against Dietrich tonight at 7:30 and Gooding State clashes with Richfield at 8:30. Camas County and Carey will meet in the winner's bracket contest Wednesday at 8:30 p.m.

Camas County 45, Gooding St. 44 (OT)

Gooding State pretty much controlled the first 27 minutes of the contest. The Redskins, despite trailing 8-0 at the end of the first quarter, outscored the Mushers 16-8 in the second quarter for a 22-16 halftime lead.

However, with three minutes remaining in the third quarter and Gooding State holding a 54-16 lead the Redskins' 6-3 junior Ken Anderson sprained his ankle and left the game only to return for four seconds in the final period.

Gooding State's leading scorer's absence provided a crack which Camas County exploited. The 8:30 p.m. — Richfield vs. Gooding State (loser out)

Mushers scored only four points in the six minute span between the two final quarters, but exploded the final five minutes.

"We just slowly got back in it," Camas County Coach Ed Blankenship said. "They tried to hold the ball, and as you can see it didn't work."

Gooding State called a time out and sent Anderson into the game. The Redskins tossed a full-court pass to Anderson, but his 10-foot attempt slid out sending the contest into overtime. The Mushers outscored Gooding State 21-7 in the final eight minutes.

3-19? Certainly, but lowly? No— Buhl surges past Wood River, 59-52

By MARV CLEMONS
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — Don't call the Indians "lowly" any more.
Buhl High, getting double-figure scoring from almost the entire starting five, ended Wood River's season with a 59-52 victory in the A-2 Fourth District Boys Basketball Tournament.

The Indians, 3-15, must now beat Jerome twice to win the district title and a berth in the state tourney. A Jerome win Tuesday night at the College of Southern Idaho gym would send the Tigers to Pocatello.

Tuesday's Game at CSI
8 p.m. — Jerome vs. Buhl

"We were so down for so long," Buhl senior Mark Lively, who paced the Indians with 20 points, said. "It sure feels good."

A two-time loser to the Wolverines in the regular season, Buhl molded a 13-12 lead at the end of eight minutes before both sides took turns at taking the lead.

The lead switched hands 12 times in the second quarter as Mark Payne carried the hot hand for the Wolverines before Buhl's balance forged a 29-26 lead at the half. No less than four Indians each had three field goals at the half while Payne paced Wood River with 12.

Wood River, its back to the wall after being blitzed by Jerome Thursday night, came out running in the second half. Payne hit the opening basket and Tracy Reynolds added another on the run to put Dick Richel's squad up 30-29. Buhl responded with a rebound basket by Lively and a 22-footer by Charlie Carter before Craig Karel's baseline drive gave the Indians their biggest lead at that point, 35-30.

Jeff Bircher, Wood River's season-long scoring leader who played with two bad ankles, hit his only fielder of the contest and Payne tossed in two free throws to cut the deficit to one, 35-34.

That's when the Indians started their pullaway and looked like anything but a 3-19 club.

Resignations: Filér's Carlberg, Idaho State's Archibald

Wildcat boss quits after 1st year; tires of 'fighting problems'

FILER — After just one season on the job, Al Carlberg announced his resignation as Filér High School's varsity basketball coach Thursday morning.

Carlberg guided the Wildcats, who are participating in the A-3 Fourth District Tournament, to a 12-5 record and second place in the Canyon Conference during the regular season.

Explaining his decision, Carlberg said Friday, "There are problems that I don't think are going to go away, and I'm not interested in fighting the problems.

"I don't want to get into it. It's because of personal reasons . . . rather than get into a sour grapes thing I'd rather not go public," Carlberg summed.

Carlberg, who teaches world geography and U.S. History, said he will "definitely" leave Filér after the school year ends. "I love coaching and would like to stay in it, but it's too early to say just what I'll do," he said.

The 42-year-old College of Idaho graduate previously coached in Idaho, California and Oregon.

Carlberg's resignation caught fellow coaches by surprise.

"Whenever I talked to him I never heard him say anything about it . . . I just assumed he was getting along OK," Kimberly Coach Fitch Thompson said. "They're the only ones to beat us this year (so) he must be doing something right."

Carlberg's Wildcats, second-ranked to Kimberly going into the district tourney, face Shoshone in a loser-out game at 8:15 tonight in the tournament.

Bengal mentor says he hasn't 'met the expectations' of ISU

LYNN ARCHIBALD
... coach since 1977

POCATELLO (UPI) — Idaho State University head basketball coach Lynn Archibald resigned Friday, saying he had not met the expectations of officials at the Pocatello school.

Archibald, 37, whose Bengals are 13-12 on the year and 4-9 in Big Sky Conference play, said he has not decided what he will do following the end of the season. Idaho State closes out the year tonight at Weber State.

"I feel that I haven't met the expectations of our administration, and I feel this is the time that I should step down," the coach said.

"I just thought this might be the time to do it," he told Boise's KBOI Radio. "I have to make a decision sometime. It might as well be now."

Archibald assumed the head coaching spot at Idaho State in 1977, right after the Bengals advanced to the final eight of the NCAA national tournament. During his five years at ISU, the coach amassed a total record of 64-66.

He added he has received several job offers in recent weeks, and intends to remain in basketball.

Skier numbers don't reflect good snow; races set

Despite one of the best winters for snow in a number of years, resorts throughout the West are reporting only average or below average attendance. Most resort operators say they expected to see some new skier day records because of the excellent conditions, but they believe the economy is to blame. Many skiers apparently do not have the funds for travel costs and lift tickets this year.

Utah resorts, normally crowded at this time of year, report short lift lines. Most Magic Valley resorts have reported only a few weekends with crowds that will compare with previous good snow years.

SKI reports from Magic Valley resorts show no new skier since early in the week, but conditions remain good and there is abundant snow.

Pomerelle reports 142 inches at the top of the ski runs and 87 at the base with night skiing continuing to be popular with area skiers.

Sun Valley has 73 inches at the top of Bald Mountain and 20 on the valley floor. Magic Mountain reports about 70 inches on the top and 50 on the lodge.

Soldier Mountain reports excellent skiing with spring-like afternoon conditions and cold temperatures at night. The downhill race planned for last Monday and Tuesday by the Pole Bangers of Keetchum, will be held this Monday and Tuesday. Rain forced cancellation last week, but the resort will be closed to all other skiers for the special downhill Monday and Tuesday.

At Pomerelle, Sandy Anderson, wife of resort owner Woody Anderson, said conditions are so good she forgot about ticket selling, bookkeeping, tax reports and other duties and skied nearly every run on the mountain Thursday—a rare occasion for her.

Two ski racing events are scheduled for next weekend. The U.S. Ski Association sanctioned races for A and J1 class racers will be held March 6 and 7 at Soldier Mountain. Sponsored by the Soldier Mountain Ski Team, Ski Explorer Post 300 and Coca-Cola, the race is one of several Intermountain Division races and gives is an opportunity for ski racers to accumulate points toward the Intermountain Cup, a new award this year.

There will be two ski slalom runs Saturday and again Sunday for the men and women racers. Courses will be on Fritz's Run, which is reached from the No. 2 chair lift.

Men's competition starts at 10 a.m. and the women race at noon.

About 100 racers are expected from southern Idaho, Wyoming and Utah. Deadline for entries is Wednesday. Marjorie Slevitt of Twin Falls is race secretary and J. Michael Devitt of Twin Falls is chief of race. Racers can register at the Soldier Mountain lodge on the second floor March 5 from 4 to 5:30 p.m. and from 7:30 to 9 a.m. March 6.

The junior racing program, new at Magic Mountain this year will host its first junior race March 7. Coaches Barbi Denney and David Lierman who handle the Magic program, have named the event the Claude Jones Memorial, in honor of the late founder of the resort.

Invitations have been sent to Pomerelle and Soldier Mountain junior racers. The giant slalom course will be set on Pike Mountain and the first racers will try the course at 11 a.m.

Age divisions include 6- to 8-year-olds on the course first followed by the 9- to 11-year-olds, 12- to 14-year-olds and 15- to 18-year-olds. Entry fees are $5 and the day's lift ticket will be offered at $5. Trophies will be awarded first, second and third place winners in each event and a Claude Jones memorial trophy will go to the best over-all racer.

Kathy Hoy, Sun Valley's public relations director for the past year and a half, is turning in her skis for boots and spurs.

She left last week for a new career and is reportedly already working on promotion at a San Diego, Calif. radio.

Kathy now works for Wrangler Jeans, a subsidiary of the Blue Bell Clothing line. Her job is to promote the Wrangler clothing at rodeos and auto races. She will headquarter in Greensboro, N. C., and will travel nationally and probably internationally. Prior to joining the Sun Valley staff, Kathy was a writer for Car and Driver Magazine. She started her promotional career in her hometown, Cheyenne, Wyo., by handling advertising and other promotion for Cheyenne Frontier Days, one of the largest rodeos in the country, and the Jackson Hole Resort.

Sun Valley officials say they will not fill the position, but publicity will be handled by current resort employees. Assistant General Manager Chuck Webb, Hoy's former boss, will continue to supervise public relations for the resort.

Bonnie Baird Jones is a Times-News writer and avid skier who writes a ski column each week during the winter months.

'Steady' Stadler uses Doral lead to two strokes

MIAMI (UPI) — Steady Craig Stadler fashioned a workmanlike three-under-par 69 Friday to take a two-stroke lead at the midway point of the $300,000 Doral Open golf tournament.

Stadler stood at nine-under-par 135, two shots better than Andy Bean, who carded a 69 Friday for a two-round total of 137.

Next at 138 were Jack Nicklaus and little known journeyman Mike Nicolette. Nicklaus fired a 71 Friday, including an eagle two on No. 5, and Nicolette carded a five-under-par 70.

Next at five-under-par 138 were Scott Hoch with a 70 and Eric Batten with a 72, even par for the 7,065-yard Doral "Blue Monster" course.

Stadler, who says he has been working on his temper for two years, didn't let a bogey six on his first hole bother him and finished with four birdies and 13 pars to hold on to his lead.

Stadler, known as "the Walrus" because of his stocky build and bushy red mustache, said his slightly dampened temper and an increase in confidence are responsible for much of his success this year.

He ranks second on the money list at $37,238 after winning at Tucson, finishing second at the Big Cross Pro-Am and playing well in all the tournaments he has entered this year.

"I feel like my game is much more solid; that it's getting a little more consistent," said Stadler, 29, of San Diego. "I know I'm going to play well every day, so it's the confidence factor, really."

After the bogey on the first hole, Stadler got the stroke back with a birdie 4 two holes later and a birdie 3 on his seventh. He parred the next eight holes and then started a late move, birdying two of his last three.

He chipped in from 25 feet on his 16th and then nailed a 40-foot putt for a birdie 2 on his final hole.

"I was patient and picked up a couple of birdies at the end," he explained. "I played a little better today than yesterday, although I didn't score as well."

"I hit the ball well off the tee and my irons were better, but I didn't make many putts," he said.

Bean also had trouble with his first hole, hitting his tee shot into the water for a bogey 6. But he said he told himself he had "three more shots this hole to make par and 17 holes to get it back.

"I believe putting it in the water made me more aggressive. I played well and made some good putts to make par," he said.

After the bogey he birdied four out of the next five holes. Then after three pars, he eagled his par 5 10th hole by dropping a 230-yard two-iron five feet from the cup and holing the putt.

That put him in a tie for the lead with Stadler, but he finished his round with two bogeys and six pars to drop two shots back.

Nicklaus said his eagle two on the fifth hole came on "a three-quarters piling wedge that went in on one bounce." He said the shot was from 98 yards away and people watching by the green on the 375-yard hole said it hit about four feet in front of the cup and went in.

Rizzo fires record 65 to lead by 4 over Coles

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Pat Rizzo shot a tournament-record seven-under-par 65 Friday to grab a four-stroke lead after the second round of the $125,000 LPGA Copper Cup.

The 65 gave the 21-year-old rookie a two-day total of eight-under 136 and a four-stroke lead over Janet Coles.

"The birdies came so easy, everything I hit was perfect," Rizzo said. "But I'm not surprised, I have a lot of confidence in myself. I've been hitting the ball extremely well and I figure any time my putter starts working, I'll hit a low score."

Amy Alcott and Beverly Kluss were tied for third at three-under-par 141, five strokes off the pace.

Alcott, a 26-year-old veteran with 15 Tour victories, said it is still a wide-open race.

element of excitement and there's much more pressure involved."

At two-under-par 142 were Pat Bradley, 73-69; Yoko Moriguchi, 71-71; Ayako Okamoto, who was one of three golfers who tied for the first-round lead, 70-72; Hollis Stacy, 72-70; and Kathy Young 73-63.

Beth Daniel, last year's leading LPGA money winner, started the second round one stroke off the pace but had trouble on the front nine and was one over after 36 holes.

Defending champion Nancy Lopez-Melton got back into contention by firing five consecutive birdies on the back nine and finishing the day at one-under-par 143. Lopez-Melton, definitely a crowd favorite, said the key to her round was the putter.

Normally, she started making some putts and stroking the ball well," Lopez-Melton said. "I missed some short putts again but I made some long putts and it really encourages me because I haven't really made any long putts in quite a while."

Fresh snow halts practice for World Cup downhill

WHISTLER, B.C. (UPI) — A east-coast storm that dropped 15 centimeters of fresh snow and reduced racers' visibility Friday forced cancellation of the final training run for Saturday's World Cup downhill race.

Race organizers said the storm, which began six hours before the scheduled start, was expected to abate late Friday, allowing sufficient time to prepare the course for today's race.

Several contenders said the fresh snow made the starting order for the race of critical importance, since those who draw the early start will be traversing a soft course, packing snow for those who follow.

The race committee was to meet late Friday to make the draw.

"Anybody who gets No. 1 is dead," said world downhill champion Hartl Weirather, who trails Steve Podhorski of Toronto by 22 points with three races left in the season.

Normally, the top 15 seeded skiers have a distinct advantage since those who follow them have to navigate a course that becomes increasingly plagued with ruts.

"But that will not be the case tomorrow," said Weirather. "This gives second seeded skiers (the next 15) a better chance."

"I hope I draw the number 15. I would like 20, but since I am in the first 15 they will not let me have it."

Podhorski, who had two 12ths and a ninth in training, compared to Weirather's 44th, 19th, and 34th, said the ideal start number was a 10.

"It would not be good to have anything higher than a five," said the Canadian ace, who can become the first North American male ever to win a World Cup downhill championship with a victory.

"The course gets packed better after the first racers have gone off. Of course, very high start numbers are not good either. It has a diminishing return. Those over 20 will find the course has too many ruts."

Fishing derby starts Monday

HAGERMAN — The third annual Hagerman Valley Fishing Derby begins Monday.

The event is sponsored by the Hagerman Valley Chamber of Commerce and is designed to coincide with the opening of the fishing season at the Hagerman Wildlife Management Area.

The Oster Lakes, Riley Creek from the bridge downstream and the setting pond will open to fishing Monday at HWMA.

The derby begins with the opening of the waters and closes at noon on March 7. The event is not limited to the HWMA, but is open to all legally open waters in the Hagerman Valley. Anglers should check the 1982 Idaho fishing regulations.

Interested anglers may register for $2.50 by using the registration form appearing in today's Times-News or by contacting any of the participating Hagerman Valley merchants.

Registered anglers should take their catch to the Hagerman IGA store or to Phil's Market for official weigh-in. This year, each day's weigh-ins will be posted in participating firms the following day so anglers can have an idea of what their competition is and just how hard they'll have to fish to catch the winning fish.

Ten prizes will be awarded in the trout category, three prizes for bass and also prizes for a new childrens category. Other prizes will be awarded by participating merchants.

Hunter trainer class set

TWIN FALLS — A course to train hunter education instructors will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. today at the Twin Falls Gun Club.

Anyone over 21 years of age interested in helping to teach youth on safety, sportsman ethics and wildlife management are welcome to become a trained volunteer. Instructors are particularly needed from the Wendell area.

ISU grid assistant resigns

POCATELLO (UPI) — Idaho State University assistant football coach Mike Sheppard resigned to seek another job — and Don Johnson, a volunteer coach last season, was appointed fill the vacancy Friday, athletic officials said.

A spokesman for the eastern Idaho university's athletic department said Sheppard was expected to be hired by a NCAA Division I-A school within 10 days.

as Hearn makes his middleweight debut today in a scheduled 10-round bout against veteran Marcos Gerardo of Mexico.

Hearn, whose only loss in 34 fights was to Sugar Ray Leonard for the undisputed welterweight crown Sept. 16, said this week he is merely visiting the 160-pound division for some action and that he remains a welterweight.

"I'm just in the middleweight division for fights," said Hearn, 23. "It's a change, but not a def. life move."

Since the Leonard fight, Hearn only one outing was a 10-round victory in the junior middleweight division over Ernie Singletary of Philadelphia Dec. 11 in Nassau.

The Detroit native was expected to enter the nationally-televised bout at about 155, while Gerardo was expected to tip the scales at about 160.

Armstrong, Nolan to Dallas

DALLAS (UPI) — Former NFL head coaches Nell Armstrong and Dick Nolan have joined the Dallas Cowboys' coaching staff, head coach Tom Landry announced Friday.

Armstrong, 55, who coached the Chicago Bears the last four seasons, will be in charge of quality control. Landry described it as a complex role that includes evaluation of opponents, rating all players in the league and evaluation of the Cowboys' team's tendencies.

Nolan, 49, who was head coach at San Francisco and New Orleans before becoming the defensive coordinator at Houston last season, will be the receivers' coach and will work with offensive coach John Mackovic in coordinating the passing game.

Nolan replaces Mike Ditka, the new head coach for the Chicago Bears.

Veteran coach Ermal Allen, who had the role of special assistant to Landry.

"Because of Ermal's heart attack," Landry said, "we had to curtail his workload, and will work with me on special projects. Right now, he'll be training Armstrong. He'll be working with me on the college draft, also."

Rockies' sale evidently near

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Chances are good that the Colorado Rockies will be sold by owner Peter Gilbert to an investment group headed by a Missouri corporation, the corporation's president and chairman said Friday.

Robert Hutchings, president of the Eagle Pacific Holding Corp. of St. Louis, said his group is "very, very close" to striking an agreement with Gilbert for the sale of the National Hockey League franchise.

Hutchings didn't attend the Friday meeting in Denver where the sale was discussed, but said he was in contact with those who did. Hutchings praised Gilbert as "an absolute gentleman who is trying very hard to keep the Rockies in Denver."

NFL council will complain

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Football League Management Council said Friday it would file a grievance against the NFL Players Association for violating a confidential agreement by disclosing league salaries to reporters.

The Council said a 1977 National Labor Relations Board settlement agreement between the two parties permits the NFLPA to inspect player contracts but forbids the union from revealing these figures to outside parties.

Management Council officials said the union obtained contract information during a meeting at the Council's New York offices the week of Nov. 30, 1981 and then released some player salary statistics to the press.

"Among information released by the union to the press," the Council said, "was a ranking of the individual salaries of the Dallas Cowboys players, published this week in the Dallas Morning News."

"The story quoted fullback Robert Newhouse, the Cowboys player representative, as saying 'Just about every one of them is right.'"

Dailey pleads innocent

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — University of San Francisco basketball star Quintin Dailey Friday pleaded innocent to five felony counts in connection with the sexual attack of a female student during the Christmas holidays.

San Francisco Municipal Court Judge Lucy Kelly McCabe ordered Dailey, 21, back to court Monday for a preliminary hearing. She also signed a gag order restricting attorneys for the prosecution and the defense from discussing specifics of the case with reporters.

Action nears on Beans Inc. trial, claims

Trial in Utah begins Tuesday

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Developments in both the criminal and civil aspects of the Beans Inc. case may emerge within the next two weeks.

In the criminal case, the preliminary hearing of the two men charged with burning down the Filer bean warehouse in July 1976 is scheduled to begin Tuesday in Salt Lake City.

Scheduled to appear before Judge Paul Grant are defendants James Woods of Salinas, Calif., and Martin Taylor of Madera, Calif.

Woods, the owner of the Beans Inc. parent company, Commodity Marketing Corp., and Taylor, a business associate, each have been charged with one count of arson with intent to defraud and one count of insurance fraud.

Utah is claiming jurisdiction in the case because the insurance company that insured Beans Inc., Fireman's Fund Insurance Co., and the insurance adjuster in the case, Glenn Bammerlin, were located in Salt Lake City.

Prosecutors will attempt to convince Grant the case should be bound over to the district-court level, where the defendants would be required to plead either innocent or guilty to the charges.

So far, no criminal charges stemming from the fire have been filed in Twin Falls County. And the likelihood that Prosecutor Harry DeHaan will take such action dimmed last month when DeHaan announced he was suspending his investigation.

DeHaan's action followed the disclosure that the defendants in the 28-month-old civil suit stemming from the warehouse fire had submitted a $1.65 million settlement offer to the estimated 150 farmers who filed the suit.

Last month, DeHaan announced that he had agreed to drop the investigation if the defendants came up with a "good-faith" settlement before his office had obtained enough evidence to file a criminal charge.

The farmers want payment for the beans that were stored in the warehouse prior to the fire. They also have accused Beans Inc. officials of selling beans that they did not own.

In all, the farmers claim an estimated $1.3 million to $1.6 million worth of beans were stored in the warehouse. And on Feb. 15, the largest single group of plaintiffs, the National Farmers Organization, rejected the settlement offer.

The farmers said they were dissatisfied with the $100,000 offered, as part of the settlement by the insurance companies that insured and bonded the defunct Filer firm. The farmers contend those companies are liable for an estimated $380,000.

NFO lawyer Mark Stubbs said Thursday that lawyers representing all of the farmers will meet March 10 to decide upon a course of action. One issue is whether the plaintiffs will submit a counter offer.

The lawsuit is scheduled to go to trial in Fifth District Court in June.

Despite the fact that the settlement offer was rejected, DeHaan said Friday he has not decided to reopen his investigation.

"No, it doesn't change my position at all. I think I accomplished what I set out to accomplish," he said. "There's a substantial offer, and I think Woods has put all his chips on the table. I think the farmers have an argument as far as the insurance companies are concerned."

The decision to suspend the investigation does not mean DeHaan has decided against filing charges in the future, however. And he indicated that if an outside source provided his office with enough information to make a case, he would file charges.

DeHaan also disclosed that some documentation concerning the case has been provided to his office, and those papers are being reviewed.

Fiddlin' fun

The youngest of the Idaho Old Time Fiddlers leads the group in a version of "Faded Love" at the Blue Lakes shopping center Friday. Ten-year-old Amy Stukenholtz of Twin Falls and other members of the musical group entertained shoppers at the mall. Amy says she has played fiddle for about a year and a half and really enjoys playing.

Kellwood: No offer to buy vacant hosiery plant received yet, but local officials expecting action will occur soon

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — No offer to buy the vacant Kellwood Co. hosiery plant has been received by the company, but an offer from a potential buyer still is expected soon.

Also, several other potential buyers have expressed heightened interest in the Twin Falls building, Doug Vollmer, the president of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce, announced at the chamber's annual banquet that a potential buyer was close to making an offer for the building. That offer might be made within a week, he said.

Slightly more than a week has passed since then, and no offer has been received by Kellwood, said Sharon Bateman, the company's spokeswoman at its headquarters in St. Louis. But the company is aware of the potential buyer and is "still looking forward to receiving their proposal," Bateman said. "Business things don't always move as quickly as you think they will," she said.

"No comment," said Mike Dolton, the executive director of the Twin Falls chamber, when asked if the potential buyer has an offer ready to submit or will submit an offer next week, what business the potential buyer is in or how many people it might employ if it did buy the Kellwood building.

Negotiations involving the potential buyer are "extremely delicate," Dolton said.

The last few weeks have seen strong interest expressed in the facility from several other potential buyers, Dolton said, most likely because Kellwood reduced its asking price.

The company's original asking price was about $3 million. That was reduced recently to about $2 million. Kellwood closed its pantyhose manufacturing plant here in the summer of 1980. It had employed almost 400 people.

Wendell council approves new law

Teachers can ticket teen smokers

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — Because of a new city ordinance, school teachers and principals in Wendell may now issue citations to those under 18 who smoke in public.

Charles Meyer, the principal at the high school, requested the ordinance Thursday at the Wendell City Council meeting.

But it wasn't a decision made in the proverbial smoke-filled room. An observer at the meeting, Gini Johnson, later read to council a state law that prohibits smoking during a public meeting.

So council, for the first time, took a 10-minute smoking recess before the evening's business was completed.

Before the break, however, council had voted unanimously to adopt Meyer's anti-smoking ordinance. The law takes effect immediately.

Meyer said the ordinance would be a "handy law to have on the books" and would help curb blatant student smoking, especially in the city park.

He said that a state law prohibits minors from smoking in public, but there must be a city ordinance stating the same thing in order that someone other than a policeman can issue a citation for the offense.

Similar to a traffic ticket, the citations issued to minors caught smoking will be co-signed later by a city policeman. The youths would be subject to a fine.

The main intent of the ordinance, Meyer told City Council, is to discourage young people from starting the habit and also to ease peer pressure on non-smokers.

Councilman Mike Wetzstein questioned the effectiveness of such an ordinance.

"When you tell a kid he can't do something, then you've got a fight on your hands," he said. And council President Bob Thackeray said a man who lives next to the school did not want the ordinance passed because he didn't want students hiding on his property to smoke.

However, Gooding County sheriff's Deputy Dale Bunn said that if enforced with common sense, the proposal would make a good law.

Cable's 'spotty' signal due to activity on sun

TWIN FALLS — This week, Magic Valley Cablevision viewers will see spots.

Sunspots that is, and the reception will be terrible for brief periods, says Gene Ritnour, the area manager for Cablevision.

Signals on seven Cablevision channels are delivered by satellite, but that satellite, as viewed from the Cablevision receiving dish, will have the sun directly behind it for a few minutes each afternoon.

For the first few days, the interference will be slight, Ritnour says. However, on Wednesday and Thursday, the signal from those stations will disappear for about 10 minutes because of the interference.

Cover moves, votes, forgets that county cut weed funds

TWIN FALLS — Contrary to statements made by a Twin Falls County commissioner, which were published in Thursday's Times-News, the county has voted to reduce the functions of its weed bureau.

The vote was taken Feb. 11 at a commission meeting.

According to the minutes of that meeting, the three-member commission unanimously approved Chairman Ann Cover's motion to eliminate herbicide sales and application as part of the bureau's duties.

The move, which leaves intact the weed bureau's responsibility to enforce the state's noxious weed law, is designed to save the county an estimated $40,000 in labor and maintenance costs.

Wednesday, Cover had told The Times-News no vote had been taken, and the commissioners still were accepting public comment on the plan.

Friday, she acknowledged that her statements were in error.

"To be honest about it, say I didn't remember" the vote, Cover said. Weed bureau staff members now will contact farmers throughout the county about the reduction in the program, according to Commissioner Merl Leonard.

Fare for 'Frisco flight only $10 to first 300

BOISE — About 300 people will be able to purchase tickets at the Boise Airport today for a $10 flight from Boise to San Francisco.

The catch is that the tickets, which will be limited to two per customer and sold on a first-come, first-serve basis, will only be good from Sunday until next Sunday, March 7.

And it will require some fancy footwork to get a $10 return flight.

Otherwise, the return flight will cost $69, which is $20 less than the cheapest fare now available.

The introduction of the $69 fare — and the new airline offering it — is the point of the $10 fare promotional gimmick.

Pacific Express, with headquarters in Chico, Calif., will begin business Sunday with flights connecting Boise, San Francisco and Portland. The company plans to offer four daily flights between San Francisco and Boise, and two flights between Boise and Portland.

United Airlines, which also flies between Boise and San Francisco, will reduce its one-way fare to $69 to meet the competition, according to a local travel agent.

The $10 Pacific Express discount tickets will be available only at the airport from which the passenger will leave. According to a company spokesman, sales of the discount tickets in Boise will be limited to about 300 tickets for the San Francisco flight and about 150 for the Portland trip. The tickets go on sale at 7 a.m. today.

Discount tickets will be offered from San Francisco to Boise, but a person who wants to fly there from Boise cannot purchase the cheap return tickets unless he has someone in San Francisco buy the tickets for him, the agent said.

No $10 tickets will be available from Portland to Boise.

Agency's future clouded by federal cuts

Region IV panel taps Cover as president, names director

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Ann Cover, the chairman of the Twin Falls County commission, has a new title.

Cover was named president of the board of directors of the Region IV Development Association on Thursday. Named vice president was E. "Bud" Brinegar, the Burley city clerk. And Dr. James Taylor, the president of the College of Southern Idaho, again was selected secretary.

The Region IV board also moved to finalize its appointment of Stan Ferlic as executive director. Ferlic was appointed interim director following the resignation of former director Tom Fleming in November.

In giving Ferlic the job on a permanent basis, the board decided not to increase his salary, which increased an estimated $3,000 a year to $22,250 when he assumed the post. At the time of Fleming's departure, the job carried an appointment of $27,600 annual salary.

The appointments came despite the uncertain future of the agency, which serves as a clearinghouse for local agencies seeking federal grants. Not only are cuts in federal programs being proposed, but the nature of federal funding may be changed under the block-grant program.

Ferlic told the board the agency's future is secure through September, when the present federal budget expires. Beyond that, the future of the agency depends on forthcoming federal and state decisions, he said.

In reviewing the agency's record in the first year of the Reagan administration, Region IV staff members reported:

- The agency assisted groups in the eight-county Magic Valley area in obtaining $121.7 million in funding for 219 projects.

- Of the nine applications submitted by Magic Valley communities for funds through the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development's community development block-grant program, two were granted. They were a $1.5 million three-year grant to the city of Rupert and a $215,000 grant for the community of Hogerson.

- Local programs under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act reflected cutbacks at the federal level. Two CETA programs were eliminated in March, and two local CETA positions were terminated in October. An estimated 1,075 persons were served by local CETA programs in 1981.

In other action Thursday, the board gave favorable recommendations on two requests for federal funding submitted by area agencies. However, the largest request received that recommendation on the basis of a 6 to 5 vote.

The Idaho Migrant Council is requesting $687,855 to finance a migrant Head Start program for a four-and-a-half-month period. An estimated 500 children, ages 6 months to 6 years, would be served by centers throughout southern Idaho, including Weiser, Caldwell, Twin Falls and Idaho Falls, according to Fred Bojorquez of the IMC.

The board's close vote reflected the concern of some board members who said they questioned whether the program served as an expensive baby-sitting service for migrant laborers.

Board members unanimously endorsed a request from the South Central Community Action Agency for $35,485 to finance a program in which volunteers would be solicited, and trained to act as guardians for children in all court proceedings under the Child Protective Act, according to Cheryl Troyce. She said the agency has obtained the services of eight lawyers in Jerome and Twin Falls counties to represent the volunteers in court proceedings.

New jail facility completed

TWIN FALLS — With construction of a new detention center completed Wednesday, Sheriff Jim Munn now will be able to expand the "trustly" and work release programs for Twin Falls County prisoners.

The detention center, built in the basement of the Courthouse, is able to hold eight prisoners. But the new facilities haven't allowed Munn to completely ease much of the pressure placed on the jail's main quarters by an inmate population that now is pushing 50.

Only sentenced prisoners are eligible for the trustly and work-release programs, which allow them to work outside the jail, on the county or at their own jobs, while spending their off-hours in custody.

Under a work-release program a prisoner is required to pay $12 per night for room and board. Participants in the trustly program work for free, under the direction of the Court-house warden.

Only prisoners who have served at least five days of a jail sentence are eligible for those programs. Other factors that will be taken into account are the individual's criminal record, his employment status, the nature of the offense for which he was convicted and family considerations, the sheriff said.

So far, only six prisoners are participating in the two programs, Munn said. But he noted that the composition of the jail population always is subject to change.

An estimated $4,000 in federal revenue-sharing funds was spent on the detention center, as well as security modifications for the office used for radio dispatching and criminal bookings.

Indigent fund endangered

By MARTY TRILLHAASE Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Five pending medical claims filed against Twin Falls County could bankrupt the county fund set up to pay for medical expenses incurred by poor people.

The situation is not unique to Twin Falls County, say county officials, who point to their case as proof of the need for a statewide insurance plan to protect counties from expensive medical claims filed by indigents.

Such a proposal, which would require all 44 Idaho counties to fund the insurance program, is now before the Legislature.

The proposal stems from the havoc played on county budgets by rising medical costs and restricted county revenues under the One Percent Initiative. Idaho law provides that county governments are the sources of last resort for medical claims filed by poor people.

To handle those claims, the county commissioners budgeted $160,500 for the current fiscal year, which ends in October. The largest portion of that budget, $100,000, has been earmarked to cover medical claims filed by indigents, as well as pay an estimated $7,000 in insurance premiums the county would face if the insurance package is approved by the Legislature.

As of last month, the county had paid $14,085 for medical bills. Even with the insurance program, which is designed to cover medical claims above $10,000, the county probably would have been required to spend that much.

But the five pending claims, including a $70,000 bill involving a prematurely born baby who required treatment at the Primary Children's Medical Center in Salt Lake City, could cost the county $103,087.

"That's why we're so concerned about our catastrophic insurance bill," she said. "This isn't just happening in Twin Falls. It's happening around the state."

"That's why we're so concerned about our catastrophic insurance bill," she said. "This isn't just happening in Twin Falls. It's happening around the state."

But even with those procedures, the county ended up paying $17,513 more in indigent medical costs than budgeted last year, she noted.

Idaho's first guide dog will graduate today

GOODING — Idaho's first guide dog puppy to "graduate" will get his diploma in San Rafael, Calif., today, and his "family" will be there to watch.

Eileen Michals, an enthusiastic supporter of the Guide Dogs for the Blind program, introduced the guide-dog puppies to Magic Valley in 1980, when she obtained "Uncle" as a 4-H project for her daughter, Tricia.

After keeping the dog for almost a year, they returned him to the San Rafael center last fall for his final training phase.

Uncle has passed his training with flying colors, and he is one of 16 dogs that will graduate in ceremonies at the guide-dog center today.

11-year-olds held for theft of elk funds

TWIN FALLS — Two 11-year-old Twin Falls boys could use a lesson in wildlife conservation.

The 11-year-olds said the two were taken into custody shortly after 4 p.m. Wednesday by employees of Blue Lakes Sporting Goods, 1236 Blue Lakes Blvd. N.

Employees at the store told police they saw the youngsters take $27 in cash and a $15 check from the "Help Feed The Elk" money container. The store's customers have been donating money to keep elk herds from starving because of the severe winter.

Police said the two youngsters told them they had been planning the caper all day at school. The boys were released to the custody of their parents.

New Directions center offers stress class

The class will meet from 7 to 9 p.m. for eight consecutive Tuesdays. Methods of stress reduction and prevention will be taught, and a personal stress profile will be developed.

Registration will be held on the first day of class. The cost is $15, and scholarships are available.

For more information, call Marilee Kohltz or Rita Larom at 733-954, Extension 212.

Feed store fund theft plea ordered

TWIN FALLS — The former branch manager of the Idaho-Best feed store in Twin Falls has been ordered to answer to charges that he embezzled $21,272 from the company.

At the close of a preliminary hearing Thursday in Fifth District Magistrate Court, Judge Melvin Edwards ordered Ray O. Hamilton, 33, of Shoshone, bound over to district court on a charge of grand theft.

Hamilton, who is free on his own recognizance, will enter a plea of either innocent or guilty when he appears in district court.

If convicted, Hamilton could be sentenced to up to 14 years in the state penitentiary near Boise.

According to the charge, Hamilton allegedly embezzled the funds between January 1980 and this January. At the hearing, prosecutors presented evidence intended to show "probable cause" that Hamilton wrote a series of checks payable to himself, for $19,296 worth of grain that the company never received. Prosecutors presented as evidence 18 checks that Hamilton allegedly issued to himself.

Prosecutors are also charging that Hamilton charged another $1,977 to the company. None of the items purchased came into the company's possession, according to the charges.

Blaine County hospital wing nearing finish

HAYLEY — Construction of a new wing to the Blaine County Hospital is expected to be completed in the next few days, according to the general contractor, J.A. Clawson of Twin Falls.

Hospital administrator Frank McNamara said the 25-bed extended-care wing may be open by mid-March. It will offer such services as care for terminally ill patients and short-term rehabilitation, in addition to skilled nursing care for long-term patients.

When the new wing is opened, the name of the hospital will be changed to the Blaine County Medical Center to reflect the hospital's expansion of services, McNamara said.
