As economy snags enlistments, armed services become selective

Army recruiter Sgt. Rick Hartley holds enlistment forms covering 3-year period

Chief Darrell J. Evans has enlistment application ready for next prospect

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Uncle Sam doesn't want just anybody.

Economic uncertainties apparently are creating brisk business for military recruiters around the country, and the trend largely holds true in Twin Falls, where the Army and Air Force recruitment offices have exceeded their enlistment quotas.

A major result of the upward trend is that the armed forces, riding the coattails of unemployment, are becoming more selective. Furthermore, many enlistees face longer waiting periods to enter training programs.

Unemployment, the cost of living — basically, the economy's a big part of it," says Marine Sgt. Donald Allard, a Boise-based recruiter who serves the Twin Falls area. Recruiters say that "basic reasons include the high cost of college financing for civilians and the apparent absence of the Vietnam syndrome among persons in their late teens and early 20s."

The Navy recruiter in Twin Falls reports that his office is 50 percent below its quota, though nationwide, Navy enlistment goals have been met for two years in a row. While local figures for the Marine Corps were unavailable, Allard says the rate of enlistment by Magic Valley residents is "fairly good."

Air Force recruitment is running somewhere between 18 and 30 percent above the goal set for the Twin Falls area, says Sgt. Gene Knox, one of the recruiters in Twin Falls. He says the average Twin Falls enlistee is a man who has one year of college and is between the ages of 18 and 22.

An Army spokesman in Salt Lake City cautions that he "wouldn't exactly say people are knocking down the doors to join, but overall, recruitment is good."

In Twin Falls, that's reflected by an enlistment rate that's about 20 percent above the Army's goal. As an average monthly objective, the Twin Falls office is expected to recruit nine to 10 persons for reserve and active duty.

It's increasingly difficult for a high-school dropout to enlist, say military spokesmen, and the services have become tougher about refusing applicants with police records. Allard reports that about one out of seven persons visiting his office qualifies for enlistment.

"Most of the people who walk in off the street are non-high-school graduates," he says. "They're basically the first ones not by unemployment."

However, the Marine Corps will allow no more than 25 percent of its force to consist of dropouts.

Navy Chief Darrell Evans of Twin Falls says the goal of his recruitment office is slightly below its goal of four recruits a month stems largely from the arrival of new recruiters who still are developing a center of influence. A less significant reason, he says, could be Twin Falls' farm-based economy, and the resulting opportunities for young men to enter family businesses.

He says the Navy imposes relatively selective recruitment standards, and it is stiffening them on a continuing basis.

Union adopts contract

Historic contract preserves Ford jobs

DETROIT (UPI) — United Auto Workers union members at Ford Motor Co. Sunday night ratified by an overwhelming margin a historic contract swapping wage and benefit concessions for job security, the union said.

After a week of voting, unofficial totals from the UAW showed the pact was approved on a vote of 43,683 to 15,937, a 73 percent margin. About 70,000 current and laid-off Ford workers were eligible to vote.

The agreement takes effect Monday. Formal signing ceremonies were set for 12:30 p.m. MST Monday at Ford World Headquarters in suburban Dearborn.

The bargaining units with about 14,000 members were the last to vote on the pact, which was expected to save the automaker nearly $1 billion during its 31-month lifespan.

The pact already had won mathematical approval Saturday when 84 of the 94 bargaining units had tallies in showing a 73 percent margin of approval.

"We are extremely pleased at the margin of ratification," said UAW President Douglas Fraser and Vice President for Ford Donald Epton in a joint statement.

"It is clearly evident that our members at Ford understand and support the historic breakthrough contained in the agreements which will lead to greater security for themselves and their families."

Ford Chairman Philip Caldwell echoed the praise for workers in a statement hailing the vote.

"There is an conviction, a clear understanding in our plants and at all levels throughout the company of what we all have to do to regain our national competitiveness," Caldwell said.

Everybody is in this battle and it must now be clear beyond any doubt that the only continuing success will be the kind of cooperation and trust that has been so evident in these negotiations and in our day-to-day operations."

The week of voting went smoothly with few locals resisting the pact. UAW leaders said the low turnout resulted from members who decided not to vote when they heard the pact was passing on a wide margin.

Ratification now means a "three-tier" system of contracts exists between the UAW and the nation's Big Three automakers.

General Motors Corp. workers will remain under the current pact approved in 1979, while Chrysler Corp. workers last year approved contract concessions in the midst of the company's near-brush with bankruptcy.

The spotlight now returns to GM, where negotiations fell apart Jan. 29. Fraser said he would like to reopen talks, but only if he has a "mandate" from GM workers, whose opposition to concessions was cited as a reason for the breakdown in negotiations.

Since bargaining broke off, GM has announced plans to close eight plants. GM Chairman Roger Smith — who has predicted a return to the bargaining table within the month — says further plant closings depend on the union.

The Ford contract would serve as a basis for any talks at the No. 1 automaker.

Under the pact, the automaker promises to maintain current jobs, which might be lost by future subcontracting of work to non-union domestic and foreign sources, and replace jobs to the best of the company's ability. Ford also agreed to a two-year moratorium on the closing of plants due to subcontracting. In addition, it will immediately pour $70 million into its depleted Supplemental Unemployment Benefit fund to aid laid-off workers.

Workers with 15 years experience are guaranteed 50 percent of their pay in the event of layoffs.

In return, there will be no wage increases for hourly workers for the next 31 months. Cost-of-living allowances will be frozen at the current $2.03 per hour level for the next nine months. Workers will lose 36 paid personal holidays they now receive over the three years of the current agreement.

Aspin seeks light penalty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said Sunday he will ask Congress to reduce the penalty for failure to register for the draft to a fine not exceeding $200.

Under current law, failure to register is punishable by a fine of up to $10,000 and a prison term of up to five years.

In calling for the change, Aspin said the current law is too harsh because there is no draft. Although the draft was abolished with creation of the all-volunteer Army, the Carter administration followed the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan — reinstated registration to provide for a rapid callup if one were necessary.

The law provides that males born Jan. 1, 1960, and thereafter, should register at any post office within 30 days of their 18th birthday, officials said. The grace period for those who have not registered technically ended Sunday but officials said delinquents probably could sign up this week without fear of prosecution.

"It's one thing not to register for the draft when that means evading the draft," Aspin said. "It is something else to avoid registering when there is no prospect of a draft on the horizon."

The penalty, he said, should have "some relationship to the crime."

Rep. Aspin Democrat said the goal should be to get people registered, not "to make martyrs out of people."

"Therefore, anyone found unregistered must be registered immediately and fined," he said.

Parole control debate today

BOISE (UPI) — Proposals to give judges and prosecutors more influence over decisions by state parole commissioners to release convicts are slated for floor debate today at the 1982 Idaho Legislature, enters its eighth week.

Senators will consider a proposed constitutional amendment sponsored by Sen. James Risch, R-Boise, that would allow a sentencing judge to prohibit the commissioners from pardoning a convict or commuting a felon's sentence.

The Legislature's upper chamber had been scheduled to address the resolution Friday, but Risch asked that it be held over the weekend because several senators wanted to debate the issue.

The resolution has drawn opposition from Pardon and Paroles Commission Chairman Samuel Kaufman, and a parole-crackdown measure in the House also has drawn fire from some lawmakers.

While the Senate tackles Risch's proposal, House members should get a chance to debate a bill drawn up by Ada County Prosecutor Jim Harris that would allow prosecutors to attempt to shut down scheduled conviction releases by appealing the paroles to the governor.

Supporters of the proposal say they are needed to keep dangerous criminals behind bars, but opponents have warned that the involvement of elected officials in the process will only cause trouble.

Elsewhere in the Legislature this week, the Joint Finance and Appropriations Committee will shift into top gear with final consideration of remaining Health and Welfare Department budget requests. Then, the 20-member panel will swim into various higher education and public school budget proposals.

House members will consider a series of fiscal year 1982 supplemental appropriations, and senators are to veto on the Law Enforcement Department's $300,000 supplemental appropriation — a ball-out for the agency's motor vehicle revenue problems.

The procedural operations of the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee will be under scrutiny in the House State Affairs Committee.

House Democrats disgruntled by the conservative-dominated panel are sponsoring bills that alternatively would abolish the committee and give the House more power in its operations.

Also up for a vote in the committee is a bill to put the legislative auditor under control of the Legislative Council instead of the joint committee.

In the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee, members are set to debate and cast final votes on three bills that would set up a state registration system for home, private and parochial schools. The registration measure, sponsored by the state Education Department, was blasted at a public hearing last week by those who say it would be an attack on religious freedom.

Social Security, tax cuts likely targets for budget knife

SEN. BOB DOLE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Both Social Security benefits and President Reagan's tax cut program must feel the budget knife if Congress is going to hold back the burgeoning federal deficit, a top Senate Republican said Sunday.

Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas, a member of a special commission studying Social Security's financial troubles, said lawmakers will have to make some "adjustments" in the cost-of-living formula for the old-age benefits as part of a package to control government red ink.

"I don't know of any other recourse," Dole said during an interview on CBS' "Face the Nation." Dole, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, also said it "must be assumed" Reagan eventually will accept some changes on the revenue side of his $75.6 billion fiscal 1983 budget to reduce the official deficit estimate of $9.5 billion.

"I believe we need a bipartisan effort with the president to bring deficits down as quickly as possible," he said.

The tax changes, he suggested, could include trading the July 1983 individual income tax rate cut for inflation indexing of tax rates, and a stiffening of the minimum corporate tax proposal Reagan recently sent to Congress.

Dole conceded there is a "very widespread" public perception that Reagan's economic program is unfair, and, "in some respects, it's correct."

"Along those lines, he also advocated making sure the wealthy pay their fair share. "We believe that everybody ought to contribute to the economic recovery — including the rich," he said.

Dole indicated most programs have already been cut as much as possible. For example, he said the nutrition subcommittee he chairs will not accept further reductions called for in Reagan's budget.

While suggesting he would support some cuts in the $21.5 billion defense budget, Dole said, Congress must focus mainly on the so-called entitlement programs for additional savings.

Questioned specifically about the automatic cost-of-living increases for Social Security, Dole said: "I think we have to do something. We just can't tolerate $150 billion deficits, and that's really what we're looking at."

Both Sen. (Ernest) Hollings (D-S.C.) and Sen. (Peter) Domenici (R-N.M.) have suggested we freeze some benefits, which includes Social Security benefits, this year. "Maybe we won't have to totally freeze, but we can have some combination thereof." He noted one suggestion to discount the first 2 percent of inflation when making the cost-of-living boosts.

"I would expect some adjustment by this Congress in this election year," he said. "If we're really serious about bringing down deficits — not posturing and making political speeches — we have to."

City funding troubles cut out maintenance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The recession and cuts in federal spending are helping turn bridges, roads and buildings into "blighted" structures, with maintenance and replacement indefinitely postponed, city mayors were told Sunday.

John Petersen, the director of the Government Financial Research Center of the Municipal Finance Officers' Association, told a gathering of mayors, city managers and other local officials what they knew already. Just they are having an increasingly hard time raising money, at the same time state and federal funds evaporate.

The mayors were attending the annual Congressional City Conference of the National League of Cities. Petersen said local governments are attempting to make up the difference but are not succeeding. One of the most popular new tactics users are growing rapidly, he said, is the new tax on consumers of government services is getting about 14 percent larger a year.

But federal government payments to state and local governments are dropping by about $5 billion from last year. In addition, help from state governments to the cities, which is even more important than federal help, also being cut back because many state governments, he said, "miscalculated" their revenues and are now readjusting their budgets.

Cities are also realizing, he said, that even before revenues started to dry up, that they had been channeling capital improvements into areas like waste water treatment, instead of maintenance, because 37 percent of their money came from government grants that specified the way they should be spent.

The new tax law, lowering the top tax rate from 70 to 50 percent, made the income shelter provided by tax-free municipal bonds less necessary for investors, he said.

Draft registration penalty too severe

The last thing this country needs today is another emotional and costly battle over enforcing draft registration.

But unless Congress changes the law, Uncle Sam is prepared to come down with all its collective might to prosecute those who haven't registered. The deadline for registering was Sunday.

The trouble is with the penalty Congress established under former President Jimmy Carter's renewed draft. Failure to register carries a prison term of up to five years and a $10,000 fine. It's hard to imagine that a judge would throw the book at a non-registrant, but there's so much room for discretion here that inequities in sentencing would occur.

We aren't taking draft registration lightly. Some teeth are required in the law or else it would be ineffective. But draft registration during peacetime for the purpose of creating a standby reserve system is a little different than drafting during wartime.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., also recognizes this point and will introduce legislation to make failure to register for the draft a misdemeanor. The penalty would carry a maximum 300 fine.

Congress needs to be realistic about this. It also needs to be concerned about a heavy-handed Justice Department, which apparently is ready to pounce on those who haven't signed up. It's almost as if the Justice Department savors this opportunity, judging from the remarks of Attorney General William French Smith.

By the end of this week, the Selective Service system will know who did and didn't register. Written warnings will be sent to those who failed to sign up. After that prosecution will begin.

The Reagan administration would be wise to support Aspin's legislation. We see nothing to be gained from throwing 18-year-olds in jail or fining them thousands of dollars they don't have.

CSI's golden season

Congratulations are due the College of Southern Idaho Golden Eagles basketball team for its superb year and 26-4 season record.

But the best may be yet to come. This Friday, the Golden Eagles, by virtue of their 6-0 regional mark, hold the regional tournament. Two more victories will send CSI to the national finals in Hutchinson, Kan.

Strange things have a way of happening in tournaments, but this one will feature CSI and Chemeketa (25-1), two nationally ranked teams. Whatever happens, this game should be the highlight of the tourney.

Now if we can just talk Republic Airlines into offering $10 fares to Hutchinson.

I CAN'T COMMENT ON OUR PLANS FOR EL SALVADOR...

IF I REMEMBER CORRECTLY, IT WAS PUBLIC OPINION...

THAT ALLOWED US TO WIN THAT WAR

Letters to the editor

Fight to save public lands

Editor, Times-News: It seems it would be better to go to war to save our public lands from open sale and development than to fight for El Salvador and Vietnam. These that would exploit us and our lands are the very people we've elected both in the nation and state.

James Watt has added one man, a founder of the Sagebrush Rebellion and another who has been affiliated with the National Citizens' Association; to his council, so watch out. It isn't enough that our elk and deer are starving because of the severe winter and overgrazing of their natural food by cattle and sheep on public lands, we are now on the verge of being taken over entirely by stockmen, timber and mining. All we the people will have left is "No Trespassing" signs.

They have even overpriced the sale of wild horses to individuals, so now they can be killed for dog food.

Write to your Congressman or somebody to stop this "land steal" as it is to be transferred to present commercial users, who are holders of grazing or mineral leases or timber buyers.

I wonder if they want this sold off to pay on the national debt, so our politicians can keep up with their spending "they day."

We do not inherit our lands from our fathers, we borrow them for a time from our children. BOB WALKER Shoshone

The test for Reaganomics

Editor, Times-News: Ask your employer how Ray-Gun economics works.

What did he do with his reduced taxes? Did he improve his product? Did he hire more people? Did he raise your wages? If none of the above, it's working!

BOB B. JOHNSON Twin Falls

Get off Stockman's back

Editor, Times-News: Of all the revolting things we see on news reports, the cup of mud goes to the petty harassment of David Stockman by senators looking down from lofty perches and over and over repeating mouthings of deception.

With the public aware of the dirty ladder these men climbed to Congress and the numerous indictments and convictions thereafter it is apparent that this show is made to impress folks with the impression they are diligently working to defend the wall being and reputation of Congress. With the convictions of ABCAM and the fact that 26 members have retired under clouds of suspicion, it is little wonder that they are zealous in seeking publicity.

The sneaking of an amendment onto the Black Lung Treatment Bill to raise the "take" of members to a reported $2,000,000 per year is a common practice. The Social Security Act has over the years, had every known kind of do-gooder amendment tacked onto it until it has become a jigsaw puzzle incapable of sustaining its original purpose. This insurance for old age has become a dumping ground for legislation. A bill to dump questionable or debatable amendments onto a "must pass" bill has become a common maneuver in legislation.

We have perhaps the greatest nation on earth today. However, every echelon of government of public trust is riddled with dishonesty. Government school officials, county officials are continually to the news charged with every known crime against honesty and decency. Even Boy Scout leaders are being charged with sexual offenses. Let me suggest that Congress quit this beating of dead horses and occupy their gigantic minds with affairs of national importance. Forget abortion and David Stockman. Further nit-picking and heckling will not enhance your stature. CECIL CALHOUN Buhl

Statements insult student

Editor, Times-News: As most people are well aware, House Joint Resolution No. 13, which would have brought the issue of in-state tuition to the Idaho voters in November, was defeated by a scant vote.

Like most of my fellow college students, I breathed a sigh because it seems we dodged a bullet by inches. However, it is not this issue I wish to address; I was personally insulted by the statements of two of our representatives, one of whom was from the Magic Valley.

The chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, Rep. Kathy Gurinsey, R-Boise, stated that tuition would not pose too severe a burden on students. She said most students seem to have enough money for gas for their cars and books.

That statement is not only repugnant but it seems to reflect the prevailing condescending attitude that is becoming more apparent in Boise.

I take exception to that. For the past three years, I have worked at three different part-time jobs, raised a child and supported a wife who is also a student, and taken a full credit-load of courses.

The support-working people

Editor, Times-News: I agree with Loren E. Wells, three cheers for Gov. Evans and Sen. Peavey and all the rest who vetoed the Right to Work. At least we know that there are one or two for the working people yet.

Now if we will just remember on Nov. 2 to get the rest out of office, who are against the working people, maybe we will get this world turned around after all.

We know Steve Symms is against the people and for right to work after the big splash on the front page of The Times-News.

And another thing, they have wasted a lot of money, time and arguing over this abortion bill. I say if anyone goes on "left" and "right" states they should sign a paper for a hysterectomy. We shouldn't have to pay for supporting all their fun and games. For people that aren't on welfare, that should be up to their doctor and themselves - it shouldn't concern the government.

How to misrepresent yourself and your opponent

WASHINGTON — The conservative bandwagon has recently attracted some peculiar passengers, such as Bruce F. Caputo. He seems determined to offer vehemence in espousing conservatism as compensation for the tardiness of his conversion to conservatism. But his problem is veracity. He can't seem to get the hang of it.

Caputo, 38, wants the Republican nomination to run against Sen. Pat Moynihan (D-N.Y.). He is waist deep in derision because of lies he has told about himself. But equally bad is his mendacity about Moynihan, a kind of mendacity that is becoming common in campaigns.

Three months ago I asked Caputo if he really had once been drafted into the Army. I measured his reply: "Not exactly."

After election in 1976 to his single term in Congress, Caputo's biographic entry in Congressional Quarterly said: "Military record: None." But soon his office biography read: "Served two years as an assistant to former Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara with responsibilities for budget analysis, legislative liaison and policy planning for SALT talks and Vietnam troop withdrawal."

Six months ago his senate campaign committee said that at Defense he had been "responsible for... weapons procurement, legislation and the defense budget." As the public mood changed, he changed what he claimed to have been responsible for. In 1977 it was arms control and Vietnam withdrawals; in 1981 it was procurement.

He has repeatedly referred to himself as a "draftee" who served "a 2-year hitch" as a second lieutenant "immediately after leaving school." He has made both claims while accusing Moynihan of being soft on defense. Both claims amaze the army's computer, which has never heard of Caputo.

Caputo now says he was not drafted "in the military sense of the word," and was not "technically a lieutenant." He says "I am not embarrassed" about having "misspoken," because he was a draftee in the sense that he sought civilian employment in the Pentagon to avoid the draft. He says he was "created like a lieutenant" because he had to take orders, wear his hair short and get up early.

Today Caputo claims to be a deep-deep conservative, but his exploration is the result of a recent injury. In 1977 he criticized Jimmy Carter — yes, Carter — for an arms-control proposal to "one-size" and "unfairly" to the Soviet Union. He worried that Carter might "fail to build new weapons systems" and "offend the Soviets." Caputo was one of only three Republicans to vote against the House defense appropriations bill. He also supported the sort of liberal domestic programs he now promises to "dismantle."

Caputo has lost bids to become lieutenant governor and a Senate nominee, and is, surely, finished in politics. But before he sinks into night, consider another, more common, campaign malpractice.

He distributed a letter calculated to curl the hair of conservative contributors by charging Moynihan with various sins. He said, for example, that Moynihan "voted for a plush $60 million Senate office building at your expense." Well, not.

The building was authorized in 1972, five years before Moynihan reached the Senate and began leading opposition to it. In 1979 he voted three times against additional funds for it, and he even voted to rescind unspent funds already authorized. When that failed, he shovelled funds attached to a cost charge. That is the small shadow of truth in Caputo's charge.

Caputo asserts that Moynihan "voted against capital punishment." Moynihan favors capital punishment for certain crimes. There has been no talk of capital punishment since Moynihan entered the Senate. Caputo is referring to procedural votes that reveal more about the parliamentary context at the time than Moynihan's views on the subject.

To untangle the truth from similar Caputo charges (such as that Moynihan favors foreign aid for Cuba, and voted to increase gasoline taxes and his own pay) would require many columns. That is the problem: As has been said, a lie can travel around the world while the truth is still lacing its shoes.

Not long ago, senators cast only 60 or so roll-call votes a year. Now they can cast that many in a week. Many of the votes are purely procedural, but can be misrepresented as expressing policy convictions. That tactic is increasingly used because there are so many votes, and so few opportunities for clearing up confusion once it is spread. The tactic can only be ended by an attentive press, and by an oral that is as honest as the written candidates misrepresent themselves.

Williams to fight Senate expulsion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Harrison Williams Jr., D-N.J., facing impeachment for his Abscam conviction, will fight to save his political career. In his colleagues' open debate on a motion to expel him from the Senate, Williams, the third senator in history to be convicted of a felony while in office, could become the first since the Civil War to be expelled. With less than a year remaining in his fourth Senate term, Williams vows to fight for the end and scoffs at the idea of resigning. Williams has avoided further comments, but friends have said more recently he would not welcome a "reprimand" or "reprimand" because they would leave his name equally besmirched. Despite the historic stakes, Sen. William Wallop, R-Wyo., who is floor manager of an expulsion resolution voted by his Senate Ethics Committee, expects procedures to be about the same as for any other resolution.

HARRISON WILLIAMS, D-N.J., faces a vote on Wednesday.

Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, who became a military hero in World War II and later a political hero in his state, has volunteered to be Williams' counsel. "Any others who care to speak at that time on any side may do so," Wallop said. "There may be some procedural challenges on the part of Williams' counsel." Both Williams and the committee's majority vote, the Senate could substitute a less severe resolution or even send the matter back to the committee. Expulsion requires a two-thirds vote. "As chairman of the committee, it will be my obligation to present the committee's case," Wallop said. "Obviously, I will be supportive of every chairman." He called the bill "B-1A."

Khadafy' hit squads threat, Casey claims

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Libya's leader Col. Moammar Khadafy could well be mad, and those elusive "hit squads" of his still pose a threat, President Reagan, CIA Director William Casey said in an interview released Sunday. "Asked if Khadafy is a madman, Casey told U.S. News and World Report, 'You could say that. When he is granted he has to be rational. He has that kind of ego drive. He has to show that he is as big as anybody else, and if the United States knocks two of his planes out of the air, he's got to do something about it.'"

WILLIAM CASEY, CIA Director, says Libya's hit squads are a threat.

There are over 20 terrorist and guerrilla training camps in Libya, Casey said. "Training guerrillas and terrorists is the second largest industry there — second only to oil." The CIA director said he thinks Khadafy sent his jets to the United States to assassinate U.S. leaders in retaliation for America downing two of Libya's jets. And he said that although hit squads are not talked about as much now, President Reagan is still in danger. "You don't call those things off," Casey said, adding, "We find they're still there. We keep getting reports that people are being recruited, moving around."

The Soviets, he said, "go in and exploit underlying social and economic ills, which are plentiful."

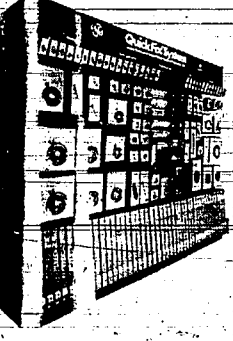

The interview had no information about published reports there was an assassination attempt against Khadafy two months ago and he was nicked by a bullet in the leg. The Washington Post said the CIA had concluded the attempt was carried out by some members of Khadafy's army during the last two weeks of December. "Asked if the United States was being drawn into another Vietnam-like war in El Salvador, Casey said, 'No. I don't think El Salvador or what we're likely to do there bears any comparison to Vietnam.'"

"In the first place, El Salvador is on our doorstep. And we're not just talking about Central America, Costa Rica, Honduras and Guatemala. The insurgency is beamed at all those countries. Furthermore, this is part of a worldwide problem." He said the Soviets "assessed the impact of Vietnam on American public opinion and decided we probably would be restricted in our ability to respond to low-level insurgency operations."

OAU blasts U.S. policy

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (UPI) — The Organization of African Unity Sunday condemned the United States, Britain and Israel for providing military, nuclear and economic aid to South Africa's "racist regime." The denunciations came at a 10-day budget session in the Ethiopian capital of Addis Ababa, marred by a Moroccan-led walkout of 19 countries in protest over the acceptance of the Polisario Front as the 51st OAU member. Backed by Algeria and Libya, Polisario guerrillas have been fighting Morocco for the former Spanish colony of Western Sahara since 1975. The attacks came in resolutions adopted at the close of the 38th budgetary session.

Today is Monday, March 1, the 60th day of 1982 with 305 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

There is no evening star.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Pisces.

American singer-actress Dinah Shore was born on March 1, 1920.

On this date in history:

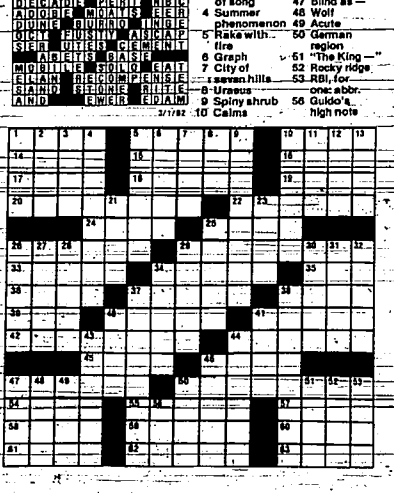

In 1781, the American colonies adopted the Articles of Confederation, paving the way for a federal union.

In 1829, famed flyer Charles Lindbergh's 20-month-old son was kidnapped. The boy's body was found May 13, and Bruno Hauptmann was executed for the kidnap-murder in 1936.

In 1924, five congressmen were wounded when Puerto Rican nationalists began firing from the gallery of the U.S. House of Representatives.

In 1961, President John Kennedy formed the Peace Corps for overseas aid and service.

A thought for the day: American writer Henry Thoreau said, "It is characteristic of wisdom not to do desperate things."

Dear Abby

Answer is simple, he is cheap

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Universal Eress Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a 23-year-old woman and my "problem" is the 25-year-old man I've been going with for nearly two years.

To get right to the point, I have bought him presents (expensive) for me on every gift-giving occasion his birthday, Christmas, Easter, Valentine's Day, etc. — but he has never given me anything. He has a good job and he could afford to buy me something, but this is what he does: He picks a fight with me just before Christmas or my birthday, and he decides it's better if we "cool it" for a while. We are always "cooling it" on special dates, and I get no present.

We were cooling it on Christmas, and we made it just before New Year's. Just before Valentine's Day he picked another fight so he wouldn't have to give me a present. (I gave him one anyway because I had already bought it.)

He's a nice guy otherwise, but I've just about had it with this stunt. Could there be some deep, hidden psychological reason for this? I really feel stupid because I was a just before New Year's.

PSYCHOLOGY MAJOR
DEAR MAJOR: The problem is minor. The man is just cheap.

DEAR ABBY: When my son was born three months ago, my stepmother sent him a basket of gifts, made especially for him. I was deeply touched by her thoughtfulness, until I found nine straight pins in it!

She is a meticulous person, so it's hard to believe she had all these pins in the quilt accidentally. I think my stepmother consciously will evil on my child. You see, she tragically lost her only daughter, who was pregnant with her first child at the time. Now her only other child, a son, is dying of a terminal illness. So she is grieving for the grandchild she will never have.

We had planned to visit my father and his wife in about six months, but six months ago, I was deeply touched by her thoughtfulness, until I found nine straight pins in it!

I don't want to come out and accuse my stepmother, and I don't want to mention anything about this to my father, but I am honestly concerned about my baby's safety during that visit.

Do you think you should go and keep a sharp eye on our son? I hate to deprive my father of seeing his grandson, but I can't risk any harm to the baby.

— FEARFUL

DEAR FEARFUL: I seriously doubt that your stepmother left the pins in the blanket because she "unconsciously" will evil on your baby. However, if you honestly believe she did, you should not visit her. And the next time you see your doctor, don't forget to tell him about your fears.

DEAR ABBY: For years my husband has made dinner a miserable time by correcting our children's manners or their grammar at the table. He does this even when we have guests. I realize the importance of teaching youngsters "good" table manners, but my husband is so corrected in front of company. My husband is overly critical, and he picks on them for every little thing.

He insists that had manners are rude. I say that he is being a tyrant to the children when he makes our guests uncomfortable.

Incidentally, our children's manners are far from bad. In fact, we are often complimented on the way they behave.

INDIGESTION AT MEALTIME
DEAR INDIGESTION: You pushed the right button. Eating while anxious or upset produces indigestion. Your children's digestions are undoubtedly suffering too.

Mealtime should be enjoyable and pleasant, but because it's the only time the family gets together, some parents use it to give orders, make rules, and lay down the law. It's unfortunate, particularly for the children. (Serve this to the tyrant in your house for dessert.)

Salvador battles continue

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Leftist guerrillas fought off assaults by government troops on a northern volcano Sunday in the heaviest combat in more than a year, military officials said.

Heavy fighting was reported near the villages of Palo Grande and El Roble on the slopes of the Guazapa Volcano about 30 miles north of the capital, military officers in the nearby town of Suchitoto said.

At least 10 government soldiers were seriously wounded in fighting on the volcano late Saturday and early Sunday as guerrillas continued to hold their positions, a shift from their traditional tactic of retreating from the army.

One military doctor involved in weeklong army offensive said the fighting, which began Feb. 22, was the heaviest he had witnessed since the rebels' "final offensive" in January 1981.

Five 105mm howitzers set up in a soccer field in Suchitoto pounded rebel positions Sunday.

An army official at the garrison in Colutepeque, nine miles south of Guazapa, Sunday said reinforcements had been rushed to the volcano to back up a hard-pressed army, including elite commandos trained by the U.S. Green Berets.

Meanwhile, a right-wing party leader cancelled planned campaign trips Sunday when he learned from being grazed by a bullet Saturday.

A spokesman for the National Republican Alliance said former National Guard Maj. Roberto D'Aubuisson was in good condition but not feeling so well after he was shot by an unidentified assailant.

D'Aubuisson's party, one of seven competing in the March 28 elections for a constituent assembly, continued its campaigning despite the assassination attempt.

Power play in Kremlin under way

MOSCOW (UPI) — A series of incidents embarrassing to President Leonid Brezhnev has led Soviet and Western analysts to believe a major Kremlin power play is under way involving the army and the KGB secret police.

"There is certainly a scramble going on, but we don't know who the players are yet," said a Western Kremlinologist.

A Soviet political observer interviewed on condition his name not be used, agreed, "You observe certain signals, you know a transition is in progress, but you're not sure just where it stands," he said.

No one has suggested that Brezhnev, 75, is in danger of losing his post as president or as general secretary of the Communist Party.

But what is apparent in the murky world of Soviet politics is that his position has been weakened by the death Jan. 25 of Mikhail Suslov, the leading party ideologist and the man generally credited with engineering the downfall of Nikita Khrushchev in 1964 and Brezhnev's rise to succeed him.

The clearest signals have been: Reports by Soviet sources that two close friends of Brezhnev's daughter, Galina, were arrested and charged with involvement in a multi-million dollar diamond smuggling ring.

Recurrent rumors that Brezhnev's son, Yuri, will soon leave his job as first deputy minister of foreign affairs and be reassigned to regional party work. The younger Brezhnev's office told UPI he was ill but was still deputy minister.

The failure of Brezhnev to sign the obituary of Semyon Tavlygin, first deputy director of the KGB secret police and the husband of a sister of Brezhnev's wife, Victoria.

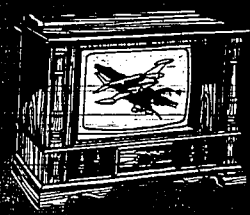

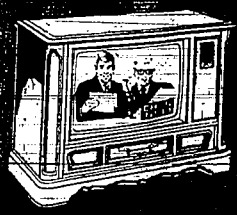

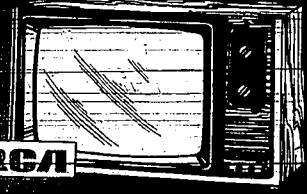

Soviet and Western sources are convinced that even if the rumors are not completely true, they are part of a concerted power play designed to embarrass and weaken Brezhnev.

Israeli settlers, soldiers face off

YAMIT, Israeli-Occupied Sinai (UPI) — Israeli settlers faced off police and unarmed soldiers at a desert roadblock Sunday to protest Prime Minister Menachem Begin's refusal to dismantle barricades sealing off the Sinai from an expected flood of squatters.

Begin met in Jerusalem with representatives of the Sinai settlers who unsuccessfully appealed to him to take down five roadblocks set up Friday, Israel Radio reported.

Hundreds gathered at one roadblock at an intersection outside the development town of Yamit immediately after news of Begin's decision was broadcast. Some veteran residents of the seaside town together with members of the militant "Movement to Stop the Withdrawal from Sinai" blocked the road with cars and tractors.

Desert divers ardent

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Not all scuba divers live beside the ocean or on tropical islands.

There is a scuba divers club, healthy and growing, in the southern Idaho desert, 600 miles from the nearest ocean.

About 25 enthusiasts of the sport are members of Magic Valley Scuba Divers, with headquarters in Twin Falls. They find time to enjoy diving in Redfish and Alturas lakes to the north, Diarrick Lake in Twin Falls, and, yes, even in a swimming pool occasionally.

Bonnie Gillespie of Twin Falls, a certified diver and an ardent supporter of the club, says many of the members use their talent and equipment to help out in search-and-rescue programs. Some members also work on underwater pipelines when repairs are needed or help with other underwater problems.

"Our members are available in case of a drowning or other emergency involving the Snake River, lakes or irrigation laterals," she says.

The club is now about three years old and is about to stage its first scuba olympics.

The event is scheduled for this Saturday, March 6, at the Banbury pool in Hagerman, beginning at 11 a.m. The pool is closed the first of year, but it will be turned over to the club for the day's events.

The water in the pool is warm, and although the weather may be cold, the club will stage a tug-of-war, hurdle races, obstacle-course swimming, egg races with golf balls substituted for eggs and, if another large-sized tricycle can be found, there will be some underwater tricycle racing.

The public is invited to watch the free show. Events are expected to continue through most of the day. Gillespie says. Clubs have been invited from other Idaho areas, Utah and Nevada.

"We are staging the olympics for several reasons. It is a lot of fun and will get us acquainted with other scuba clubs, but more important, we want people in the Magic Valley to be aware of our club, and we want other divers to join," Gillespie says.

Members of the club have an opportunity to enjoy ocean diving at a reasonable cost, she says. The club is planning trips to such areas as the almost primitive island of Isla Mujeres in Mexico, the San Juan Islands off northern Washington and many tropical areas.

"Of course, ocean diving is the greatest, and tropical waters are special. It's a whole different world down there. Fish, plants and coral all come in vivid colors and resemble nothing ever seen on land," Gillespie says.

The club has four certified diving instructors and its own air compressor for filling tanks. One member, Leo Heider, has his own scuba shop and can "repair anything a scuba diver needs," she says.

"We want people to know our club exists and to join us, so we can keep a strong organization for fun or necessary assistance," Gillespie says.

The Magic Valley Scuba Divers meet the second Wednesday of each month, and information is available from Gillespie, 723-8393, or other club officers. Ron Metzger of Twin Falls is president of the group, while Mary Freeman of Jerome is the secretary-treasurer.

Divers are required to have 30 hours of training for certification and must pass a test to show they can handle an emergency situation underwater, such as loss of air or injury.

Gillespie says her first experience at diving was a disaster. She and her husband, Bob, another active club member, were on a trip to the Bahamas when they decided to try it.

"I had claustrophobia so bad I couldn't go down over four feet and couldn't stay more than a few seconds. But even I got used to it, and I love it down about 75 or 80 feet with the ocean fish."

Ron Goertzen will compete in the underwater tricycle races at Banbury pool March 6.

Ketchum condo fire loss high

Damage estimate close to $1 million

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

KETCHUM — A fire that destroyed most of a four-unit building in the Warm Springs Ranch Condominiums in Ketchum cost owners and occupants nearly $1 million, according to estimates made Sunday.

The fire was reported about 9:30 p.m. Saturday in a condominium at 1521 Warm Springs Road. The blaze had spread into three of the building's four units before it was discovered, according to fire Chief Bill McCullough.

There were no fire alarm or sprinkler systems in the two-story building, he said. The fire was brought under control about midnight, but firefighters and equipment from both the Ketchum and Sun Valley fire departments remained at the site until 3 a.m.

McCullough said about 40 firefighters from the Ketchum and Sun Valley departments battled the blaze. Ketchum has a partially paid Fire Department, with about 30 volunteers, and all available members were summoned.

There were no injuries to firefighters or the residents of the approximately two-acre condominium development, which is about 10 years old.

McCullough, who spent much of Sunday at the scene, said he and other fire officials had determined the fire started in an electric baseboard heater. It apparently smoldered for several hours before a woman in an adjoining condominium discovered it.

"I think she heard glass breaking from the heat and turned in the alarm," the chief said. "When we arrived, flames were already reaching up under the eaves of her building."

McCullough credits Ketchum's new water system with helping firefighters keep the flames from spreading to adjoining structures. The frame buildings in the Warm Springs development are about 15 feet apart, he said, and this concerned the firefighters during the peak of the blaze.

Another fireman, R.L. "Lake" Provonsha, said that had it not been for the water system installed by the city about a year ago, the loss could have been more extensive.

"Until that time, the area was served by a number of private wells, and I don't think this would have given us enough pressure. We had plenty of water, and that helped a lot," he said.

Each condominium was owned separately, McCullough said, and three of the four units were being lived in at the time of the fire, but all of the occupants were out for the evening.

George Grandemire was the only owner-occupant, the fire chief said. As of Sunday evening, the Fire Department had not determined the names and addresses of the other owners and occupants. Warm Springs Property Management maintains the buildings.

"The building was pretty well destroyed. Three of the units were total losses, and the fourth was severely damaged," McCullough said.

Each unit was valued at approximately $150,000, but he said that with furnishings, this amount could nearly double. Some furnishings were saved from the partially damaged unit, but nearly all the furnishings in the other three were destroyed.

Auction called success

TWIN FALLS — About $6,000 was raised through a farm equipment auction for the Ralph Olmstead gubernatorial campaign, a son of the candidate, Brian Olmstead, said Sunday.

"It went real good, we sold everything out," said the younger Olmstead. About 80 pieces of farm equipment were sold at the auction, which was held Friday, he said. About a third of the equipment, such as swathers, harrows and plows, was auctioned on a contingent basis, while the rest was donated to the campaign.

Trail bike accident hurts youth

TWIN FALLS — A trail bike accident Sunday afternoon sent 13-year-old Jamie Schrock to the hospital with multiple injuries.

An Idaho State Police officer said the youth was injured about 1:45 p.m. on Devil's Corral Road, four miles east of U.S. 93.

Details of the accident were sketchy, the officer said, but apparently, the youth was riding on a dirt road when he rounded a curve and collided head-on with a four-wheeled drive vehicle operated by Randall Plankey of Twin Falls. Plankey was not hurt, but the impact threw Schrock into a rocky area near the road.

Project in works

COEUR D'ALENE (UPI) — The U.S. General Services Administration has announced the federal building in Coeur d'Alene will be spruced up in the coming months.

The GSA has asked for bids from small businesses on a variety of alterations and repairs, including installing a fire alarm and emergency lighting system, modernizing offices, weatherstripping windows and repainting the loading dock.

Emotional trauma of mastectomy overshadows surgery pain

Road to recovery long journey for housewife

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — She was bitter at first. She's not bitter today. But it was a long road from then to now.

A poem written after her surgery describes the anxiety she hid beneath a controlled countenance:

*"Is your love just glitter,
Or is it honest gold?
Or will you subtract the missing pieces,
From the total of the whole.
Must my body forget I am a woman,
And remain untouched by my husband's hand?
Or will you at last reach out to me,
And accept me as I am?"*

Pam Dowd, 34, a soft-spoken but poised housewife, had a radical mastectomy seven years ago to remove a cancerous tumor in her left breast. The emotional trauma it caused overshadowed the pain of the operation itself.

Her marriage disintegrated, she was haunted by the fear of additional cancers. And in an on-again-off-again recovery from, she was told she could not have children. pregnancy hormones may activate cancerous cells.

Her remaining breast, in a weird quirk of anatomy, began to swell, a nightmare for a woman trying to rebuild her self-image.

Yet Dowd did just that — reconstructed her self-image from the ground zero. She exercised until she regained the use of her left hand. She learned to dress herself in both comfortable and feminine styles. She remarried, happily, and finally, she underwent elaborate reconstructive surgery, which further normalized her appearance.

Four years ago, she began to reach out to others in a similar situation. She became a volunteer for Reach to Recovery, a national organization that tries to meet the physical, psychological and cosmetic needs of women who have had breast surgery.

Not all of the Reach to Recovery patients Dowd counsels go through the emotional wringer she did. Most have supportive husbands or children and are able — with time and patience — to return to a normal life.

Reach to Recovery was first established in 1952 by Terese Lassen of New York City. After her mastectomy, she realized she could provide assistance to women in a similar situation. At the least, she could reassure them they are not alone. In 1969, the program became part of the American Cancer Society.

For a Reach to Recovery volunteer to visit a patient, a physician must check with the patient and contact Waldemar Peterson, the Reach to Recovery supervisor for Twin Falls.

Pam Dowd helps others through Reach for Recovery.

She arranged a visit from someone like Dowd, who has undergone training.

Dowd usually talks to a patient three to four days after the surgery. She brings a kit containing information about rehabilitative exercises and a temporary breast form. But the most important thing she brings is herself, dressed stylishly and smiling confidently, as if to say, "You can do it!"

Twin Falls firemen carry equipment past Skyview Manor residents who were moved from their rooms during a fire

Rest home fire causes minor damage

TWIN FALLS — Fire that started around a heat lamp in a bathroom caused minor damage at Skyview Manor rest home, 640 Filler Ave. W. Sunday evening.

The fire caused a number of residents to be moved from their rooms.

Firemen said the fire was confined to insulation, the ceiling and one room. The fire occurred shortly after 7 p.m. and three fire engines responded.

Battalion Chief Ted Poulton said two engine crews went after the fire and the third began evacuating residents from the south wing of the building where the blaze started.

"We cut a hole in the ceiling and were able to drop the burning insulation down into a bathtub below. This helped us with the cleanup process," he said.

Poulton said residents were moved out of their rooms and doors were kept closed — to keep the smoke from spreading. All of the residents were able to return to their rooms by 9 p.m. including the room adjoining the bathroom where the fire started.

Skyview officials said there were no injuries and everything was back to normal by 9 p.m.

Poulton said the fire could have been serious had it spread through the ceiling of the building before it was detected. Police and an ambulance stood by until the fire was declared out.

No death cause found for girl from Nampa

NAMPA (UPI) — No obvious cause of death was found during the autopsy of the recovered body of a nine-year-old girl Saturday night.

It will be sometime Tuesday or Wednesday before the results are completely analyzed, the pathologist in the case said Sunday.

Dr. Kenneth Drouillard said the two-hour autopsy was performed at Nampa Mercy Hospital, but no obvious cause of death — like a knife or a bullet — was found.

Neither Proutard, Klein or Merritt would comment further on the autopsy results.

Merritt said either city or county law enforcement officials would announce the results of the autopsy.

The child's body was found early Saturday afternoon under a bush in a creek bed near the Snake River, officials say.

Volunteers from throughout the city had aided the search for the girl since Thursday — and the search was expanded early Saturday as 45 National Guardsmen joined police and off-duty officers in the effort.

Canyon County Sheriff James Prescott said Sunday night that a joint county-city police task force will be set up to continue the investigation. Prescott said "probably eight to ten sheriff's deputies and police officers will be assigned."

Burning car closes interstate lanes

TWIN FALLS — State police closed Interstate 84 just east of the junction with U.S. Highway 83 briefly Sunday night when a car caught fire and burned.

Officials said the fire occurred just after 8 p.m., destroying the car and causing minor damage to the highway.

There were no injuries and the highway was reopened within a few minutes to traffic in all but one lane. The Kimberly Fire Department's first truck answered the alarm, but firefighters had not completed a report late Sunday night and the name of the car owner was not available.

Recovery

When Dowd herself was recovering, two Ketch to recovery volunteers came to visit her. "They would have given me more support, but I didn't want anyone to know how hard it had hit me," she recalls.

At 27, was much younger than most women undergoing mastectomies. Breast cancer strikes 90,000 American women a year, but most are over 35.

Like many, Dowd had discovered a lump on her breast and thought, "It's my imagination; it'll go away." "It's not," she didn't smoke, she didn't drink, she was just an average housewife who someday wanted children.

When the lump didn't go away after two months, she saw a doctor. X-rays showed it was a tumor on the chest wall. Whether it was malignant, only a biopsy would tell.

"At first, I didn't quite believe it," Dowd recalls. She decided to opt for a biopsy, with surgery following if the tumor proved malignant. That meant she would not know until it was all over if she had had a mastectomy.

After the operation, she slowly regained consciousness, her chest bandaged and painful, she saw her doctor sitting by the side of her bed.

"I'm sorry," he said. "I had to take it all."

"After 10 days in the hospital," Dowd was discharged — to a friend's house — with a scar, reaching from her shoulder to an inch above her waist.

Although her husband had talked to the doctor about the operation, he couldn't face her.

"I don't think he was able to handle my emotional trauma. Just came along with it," she says softly.

"When I was home, at first, he would look out the window when I came into the room. I felt I was not quite human anymore."

"Perhaps the hardest blow was not having children. In addition, her fingers began swelling, another side effect. She was fitted with a prosthetic. It was uncomfortable. She had to buy another, and yet another, trying to create an even match with a breast that had begun to swell.

There were days she wanted to pull out her hair and scream. There were times she was furious at her doctors for letting her live. When she saw her husband staring at a woman in a bikini, her despair overflowed.

She tried to keep her bitterness to herself, but it came out at odd times. Like when she dropped the salad comment. "What she can swing. I can throw," while her girlfriends gazed at her in embarrassed amazement.

Any change in her body alarmed her, and she constantly called her doctors. She felt she couldn't go shopping for clothes. Once, she was trying on a bra, and a pushy saleslady pulled aside the dressing-room curtains and just stared.

After six months, she was staying with her parents when a stranger told her she seemed "to have a hurt in my life. I wasn't accepting. I began to realize if people don't accept me the way I am, that's their problem."

Through a friend, she met the man who became her second husband. "He knew the type of surgery I had," she says. "It was never a problem."

"When he asked me to marry him, he reminded me I had this scar. I'd probably have the rest of my life. He took my hand and said he thought he was man enough to handle it."

Later, because she still was relatively young, she underwent reconstructive surgery, a complicated and painful procedure. Her dorsal latissimus muscle was loosened, a flap of skin was taken from her back, slipped under the arm and attached to the chest wall. Silicone implants and a saline bag were used to rebuild the breast.

Cystic tissue from her right breast was removed. The remaining healthy nipple was divided and half of it was attached to the left side.

The process took from November 1980 to April 1981. Yet "it helped me a lot. (Previously) I had days I was really depressed, thinking, 'So what if I lose weight—When I wake up I'm loquacious.'"

She may not be completely "normal," but, as she says in a poem: "Don't feel sorry for me. I'm still a woman and a wife. I have a beautiful scar. This is my scar of life."

Bean, one of the tour's biggest draws, sank a pressure three-foot putt for a par-4 on the parsome 18th hole to hang on for a stroke victory.

After falling behind 3-1, Jaeger charges to upset Evert

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Second-seeded and defending champion Andrea Jaeger used her serve-and-volley style Sunday to score a 7-6, 6-3 victory over top-seeded Chris Evert-Lloyd in the final of the $150,000 Women's Tennis Championships of California.

The event was sponsored by Avon. The early moments of the match belonged to Evert. The Florida native placed her shots with a surgeon's precision in the first four games of the opening set to take a 3-1 lead.

broke Evert's service and rallied to own the match at 5-6. Both players held service, sending the opening set into a tie-breaker.

But Jaeger, trailing 3-2, forced Evert into three straight errors to break back in the sixth game and even the set.

Orlic, also said Bean had asked him immediately after his shot if there was any foul and was told there was none.

Two No. 1 teams have fallen, will there be more?

District basketball tournament happenings: It hasn't been a good year for top-seeded teams. Wood River and Gooding State were eliminated in the minimum two games.

Twin Falls and Minico played Saturday night at Rupert and a $4,000 gate was the result. In the opening game of the A-1 tourney when Burley visited Twin Falls, the gate was just over $2,000.

The Golden Eagles are hosting the Region 18 NJCAA playoffs Friday and Saturday, so the prep game would have to be played Thursday.

That, of course, was about the first thing Reed Tucker of Twin Falls heard Wednesday when he "let" Hagerman take an early game overtimes in the A-Fifth District Tournament.

Idaho and Montana, but Weber State split against No. 3 Nevada-Reno, while Boise State was also 0-1 against the Wolf Pack.
Weber State could have clinched the No. 4 spot without going to the tie-breaking step...

Montana moved into second place in the conference standings with its win over Northern Arizona 65-52 last Friday night and 82-74 over Nevada-Reno on Saturday night.
'We had set our goals to make the tournament,' said Montana Coach...

even break in rebounds. So far we haven't done that this season.
Dexter said he doubts people will see a replay of Saturday's 68-64 Twin Falls win which was hailed by most as being one of the better playoff games in the long history of the tournament and Bruin-Spartan series.

Steward threatens to sue WBA, WBC for taking Hearn's off list of contenders

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Emanuel Steward, Thomas Hearns' manager-trainer, says he is considering filing suit against the World Boxing Association and World Boxing Council for removing the former WBA welterweight champion from the list of contenders for Sugar Ray Leonard's crown.

and then automatically get promoted. He, at least, is staying active.
Hearns, currently ranked number two among junior-midweight contenders by both the WBA and the WBC, said he had trouble getting his weight up for the non-title fight.

when Hearn won a 10-round decision in the Bahamas.
'I was very happy with the win,' said Hearn, now 34-1 with 31 knockouts. 'I would have liked to have a bit more work.'
