

Voters to decide land use planning

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — The Legislature has agreed to make land use planning an optional activity for counties and cities.

The Senate concurred Friday with a House bill to allow voters to place the question of planning and zoning up for election.

"The wording of this legislation allows the voters to decide how much, or how little, land use planning they want for their area," said sponsor Sen. William Moore, R-Hayden Lake.

There have been abuses by planning and zoning commissions, and this allows the electorate of every city and every county to vote on land use planning and zoning.

The measure, which passed the House March 12, passed by only one vote in the Senate, 18-17, after an unsuccessful amendment attempt spearheaded by Democrats.

Under the plan, 15 percent of those voting in the last election are needed to place the question on a ballot, either in a general or special election.

It essentially repeals the Local Planning Act of 1975 to an optional status. It was prompted by the fact that about 17 counties have not complied with the state order to adopt comprehensive plans. All Magic Valley counties have adopted these plans and accompanying zoning ordinances.

"Idaho is one of the most restrictive states for land use planning," said Sen. James Auld, R-Boise. "This is a very small change, something that many believe should be repealed."

All the laws that do is take the planning away from the voters and places it with some public official.

claiming, "If you want to see chaos, just look at Ada County since it adopted land use planning."

Auld was responding to arguments that the relatively small initiative requirement to place the issue before an election would bring havoc to local governments.

"With this type of a thing, we could have this issue up for election as many as three times a year," claimed Sen. Lester Clemm, D-Troy.

The need for land use planning can be seen in example of small towns caught unaware by growth, argued Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey.

"I hate to keep bringing Challis up as an example, but they've really been impacted by growth," Peavey said. "It's just a shame when you have your bars and dancehalls located on residential streets."

"The planning act is so much of a big thing," he continued, "All we ask is that counties and cities have a plan for the future."

"We don't tell them what to put in their plans," Peavey said. "You do what you want, but have a plan to accomplish it."

Sen. Israel Merrill, D-Blackfoot, said he hoped the Senate's action would still be struck down by a governor's veto.

"This issue is brought before us every year, and it's primarily sparked by a few people who have been ruled against," Merrill said. "If we're going to allow the public to vote on every subject, it destroys our form of representative government."

Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, also said he believed making planning and zoning optional would upset the state's government system.

"One of the biggest problems business faces is the government getting into the market place," Noh said. "One of the most pronounced ways this is done is by the government changing rules of the game all the time."

"That's exactly what we're doing here — setting up a way for the rules to be changed every year," he said.

Session extends until next week

BOISE — The Legislature will continue into next week, despite original plans in the Senate to adjourn today.

On Thursday, Senate Majority Leader James Risch, R-Boise, asked his group to work through its voting calendar "as speedily as possible" so it could finish up after a Saturday session.

"It was felt that there was no way for us to finish up Saturday," House Majority Leader Walter Little, R-New Plymouth, said Friday. "Since there was no chance to finish, it was decided not to even try working Saturday, and simply return on Monday."

Little said his group had at least two days of work left to complete. A Saturday session was ruled out, primarily because several Republicans requested permission to return home over the weekend to take care of businesses.

The Senate has only one more day of labor, unless the reappointment issue sparks lengthy debate, according to Senate Assistant Majority Leader J. Wilson Steen, R-Glenns Ferry.

"But right now I don't know if reappointment will even get out of committee," Steen said.

A House-passed redistricting plan has not been brought to the Senate floor because of Democratic objection to lines drawn in north Idaho. It is the third redistricting bill passed by the House, the two earlier ones both being vetoed by Gov. John Byrnes.

Republican leadership has said they probably won't entertain the latest proposal, without some assurances that it will pass the Democrat governor's desk.

Steen said the Senate leadership also decided not to call a Saturday session, "because it would be wasted effort for us if the House is not going to meet. We really, need to adjourn pretty much at the same time."

Committee won't alter Water Plan

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — Senate committee plans to rework new policies in the State Water Plan were withdrawn in a reversal Friday prompted by the lateness of the legislative session.

"I fully concur with most of the proposed amendments, but we need to get something passed this year and time is running out," said Sen. J. Wilson Steen, R-Glenns Ferry. "If some of these policies that have been changed or cut out by the House need to be readdressed, then the next Legislature can do so in 9 or 10 months."

The Senate Resources and Environment Committee agreed with Steen, 5-3, and will send a House resolution concerning four new State Water Plan policies to the Senate floor for vote.

But the decision was made before committee members were told that the Senate would not adjourn today, as earlier planned. Consequently, the group may reconsider its action on Monday.

Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, proposed Wednesday to bolster one of the water plan policies for preservation of steelhead and salmon runs in Idaho.

He also has prepared changes to restore two policies — one governing hydroelectric plant siting and another protecting "white sturgeon" — which the House completely abolished.

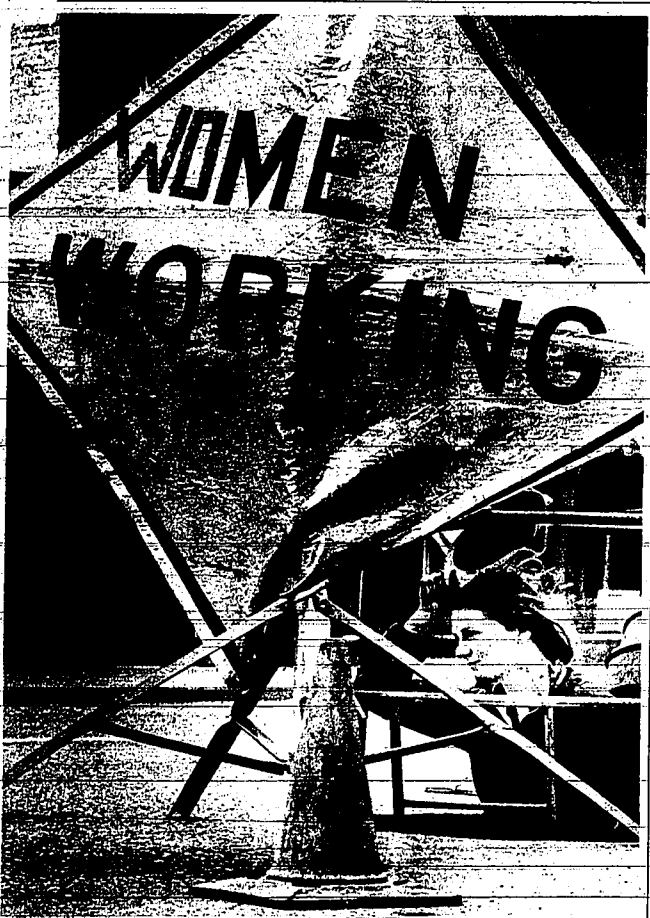

"Now that we are coming back next week, the committee chairman (Sen. J. Marsden Williams, R-Idaho Falls) has said we may reconsider putting out our own concurrent resolution," Noh said late Friday.

Resolutions cannot be amended, so if the Senate committee wants to modify the House's legislation, it must be done with a completely new resolution, Williams warned his committee. Williams also noted that such action would have to be done through the Senate State Affairs Committee, separate from the resource committee.

The six policies, which would become effective automatically without Legislative action, are as follows:

- Reaffirm Idaho's sovereignty over development, use and management of water within the state.
- Preserve and promote steelhead and salmon runs and maintain in-stream flows for spawning areas.
- Protect portions of the Snake and Kootenai rivers for white sturgeon spawning (eliminated by the House).
- Establish a state hydro-power siting process to replace withdrawn federal licensing procedures (eliminated by the House).
- The federal government should defer to state authority in any water project conducted wholly within the state.
- Idaho should enter into cooperation with the federal government to fully develop hydro-electric production at existing dams and facilities.
- "It seems to me the most important aspect of these policies concerns the hydro siting, which has been totally eliminated in the House resolution," said Sen. Ron Beltschpacher, D-Grangeville.
- "We've already passed a separate resolution asking the U.S. Congress to support action by Sen. (James) McClure (R-Idaho) trying to get the feds to pull out of hydro licensing up to 15 megawatt facilities," he said. "It seems to be at odds with ourselves — asking for that without having a water policy to direct the state to take over after the feds pull out."
- The proposed state hydro-siting program is needed to ensure that sites are fully utilized, said Department of Water Resources Director Ken Duna.

St. Helens blasts

—VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — Mount St. Helens exploded in its first major eruption in 17 months Friday night, sending an ash plume 45,000 feet skyward.

Surprised scientists had predicted the volcano would produce a mild, dome-building event.

"We've had an explosive eruption of Mount St. Helens," said Larry Voshall of the Washington State Department of Emergency Services.

"A series of earthquakes accompanied the event," he said. "It (the plume) is ash and is moving south to southeast at a speed of 15 to 20 knots."

"All of our (seismic) stations started clicking at 7:28 a.m. (PST)," said a spokeswoman for the University of Washington Geophysics Department. "Our greater station immediately went dead. It's constant — the needle is going as far as it can either way."

No magnitude readings of the earthquakes were immediately available.

Voshall said the ash was directed along lines between Pendleton and Cascade Locks, Ore., both located about 160 miles apart along the Columbia River between Oregon and Washington.

The fact that a 600-foot-high mound of hardened lava that had been bulging in the mountain's 1.5-mile-wide crater for a week was not known. Two previous "lava domes" were blasted out in 1980, when six explosive eruptions rocked the southwestern Washington peak.

"The National Weather Service has issued a flash flood warning for the entire 'North Fork' of the Toutle River," said Voshall. "Flooding is not expected at this time on the Cowlitz River."

He added: "It is highly unlikely that mudflows would be as large as those that occurred on May 18, 1980."

On that date, a wall of mud, blown-down timber and water from snowmelt — and obliterated glaciers raged down the Toutle, knocking out bridges and washing out homes. Some of the 60 people killed in the eruption were swept to their deaths in the flood.

Tomatoes, blizzards, floods Harsh winter roars in season finale

By United Press International

The historic Winter of '82 exploded with snow and tomatoes from Meleena to Texas on its final full day in season Friday.

An onslaught of thunderstorms hammered the lower Great Lakes states, devastated by floods that have roiled nearly 11,000 from their homes.

A week of floods and twisters was blamed for at least 20 deaths, and flood damages soared to nearly $400 million in Indiana, Michigan and Ohio. The death toll for the entire winter climbed well past 600.

Officials pulled snow plows off the road in South Dakota, where a blustery late-winter storm laid up to 8 inches of new snow and cut highway visibility to near zero.

"Everybody's getting stranded," Peggy DeVille of the Wheel Family Restaurant in Mooridge, S.D., said. "Even the coal trucks aren't moving."

Up to 10 inches were expected in neighboring Minnesota, where the first signs of spring's approach had melted nearly 5 feet of snow in some areas recently.

Spring will officially arrive at 3:50 p.m. MST Saturday at the moment of the Vernal Equinox.

when the sun crosses the Equator.

Unfortunately, "for astronomers, the beginning of spring has nothing to do with the weather," said associate astronomer James Seavers of the Adler Planetarium in Chicago.

Spring weather will arrive someday — maybe — but not in the immediate future.

The blizzard spread "blustery" snow and freezing rain from central Montana across the Dakotas and into down into central Nebraska, chilled by a two-inch blanket early Friday. Two-inch rains deluged Omaha, on the eastern edge of Nebraska.

Winter storm warnings for more snow and freezing rain were posted from Montana into Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Bob Cary, managing editor of the Ely, Minn., Echo, shrugged off the approaching snow with winter reflections.

"It's been a great winter in Ely," he said. "It arrived on time... and did a remarkably excellent job of removing the mosquitoes. We did the thing on Groundhog Day, but we dug around in the snow for four hours and couldn't find the groundhog hole so we postponed it until May 1. But spring is coming."

Tomatoes slammed into the southern Plains from Kansas to the Texas Panhandle during the early morning, injuring at least five people in Oklahoma, destroying homes and a dairy barn and knocking out power in several towns.

A twister slammed into Beaver County, Okla., and tore off the south end of Amelia Cowan's bar and ripped up the shed where her sons raise their hogs.

"It just lifted the shed off the foundation and threw it into the pasture and tore it up," she said. "It left the sows standing there without any top on them."

Heavy rains began falling during the early afternoon in Fort Wayne, Ind., hours after a brigade of student volunteers — from lower grade school to college age — worked through much of the night to shore up a crumbling dike three feet above river levels. Thirty-two miles of sandbag dikes have been thrown up to stave off a new flood of flood disaster from the Maumee, St. Mary's and St. Joseph rivers.

The rivers stabilized Thursday and began falling, but jittery officials warned an inch of rain would add a foot of water to flooded rivers. As much as 2 inches was expected by Saturday night in the city where 9,000 people were homeless and property damage was pegged at $20 million.

DDT ban saving bald eagles

ATLANTA (UPI) — A 10-year ban on DDT has proved a significant development in saving bald eagles, brown pelicans and other bird species from extinction in the United States, Interior Department officials said Friday.

Interior Department spokesman Don Pfitzer said a 10-year assessment of the ban showed bald eagles are making a strong comeback, brown pelicans are on the rise and other bird species threatened by the compound are reproducing.

DDT was banned in 1972 after scientific data showed the compound was causing serious environmental problems throughout the food chain of some wildlife creatures.

Pendergrass has broken neck

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Physicians said Friday they were uncertain if how the paralysis Teddy Pendergrass suffered when he broke his neck in a car accident will affect his singing.

Pendergrass, who fractured the fifth vertebrae in his lower neck and damaged his spinal cord when his 1981 Foala Royce ran into a tree Thursday, is paralyzed from the chest down.

He was listed in stable condition at the Regional Spinal Cord Injury Center at Thomas Jefferson University Hospital in Philadelphia.

Mondale breaks with Demos

BEDFORD, N.H. (UPI) — Former Vice President Walter Mondale broke ranks with other Democratic leaders Friday and proposed moving the effective date of tax cut legislation to get the nation out of its "severe" recession.

Mondale's comments came at a news conference at the start of a two-day trip to New Hampshire, home of the nation's first presidential primary. Mondale, expected to seek the Democratic presidential nomination, was planning to meet supporters and speak at a $150-per-person state party fund-raising dinner.

While most Democrats have indicated they favor delaying the July tax cuts to hold down the size of the federal deficit, Mondale said it should be moved up and made retroactive to Jan. 1, 1980. Other Democrats have said it should be delayed until October.

Beatty sued for 'Reds'

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — Warren Beatty is being sued for $20 million for allegedly "misrepresenting" an elderly man into selling his research for $250 and incorporating it in his blockbuster film "Reds," an attorney said Friday.

William Green, 82, of Lacey, Wash., filed suit Thursday in Superior Court claiming Beatty failed to live up to promises that he would properly pay him and co-author Helen Smith if their biography of writer "outside Bryant was used in a movie.

More weddings, divorces

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More Americans were wed or divorced last year than ever before, but the marriage rate held steady and the divorce rate rose only 2 percent, the National Center for Health Statistics reported Friday.

The increase in numbers of Americans getting married or divorced was relatively small and much of it was credited to a population increase.

The number of births rose as well, but the birth rate went up only slightly, the death rate held steady, and the infant mortality rate continued to decline, the 1981 statistics showed.

Plane crashes after joy ride

LEESBURG, Fla. (UPI) — A light plane taken for a joy ride by three members of rock star Ozzy Osbourne's entourage Friday crashed into a house. All three people aboard the plane were killed.

Although Osbourne and two other members of the group were sleeping in the bus when the single-engine Apache's wing ripped through it, none of them was injured.

Two other members of the entourage standing near the bus taking pictures of the plane as it buzzed the Red Baron Airport also escaped injury.

Driver convicted of murder

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — A woman was convicted Friday of first-degree murder for barreling down a two-block section of downtown sidewalk with her car and killing a pedestrian Thursday, May 1980.

Priscilla Ford, 51, was found guilty of six counts of first-degree murder by the District Court jury of seven women and five men. The verdict could result in the death penalty.

The two-month trial was the longest in northern Nevada history.

Steelworkers, firm agree to tentative Bunker Hill deal

BOISE (UPI) — A tentative labor settlement has been reached between the United Steelworkers of America and an Australian firm interested in buying the Bunker Hill Co., Idaho AFL-CIO President Jim Kerns said Friday.

Kerns said discussions this week in Seattle between Martin Baral, managing director of Australia's Expo Oil Co., and Steelworkers officials have apparently resulted in a tentative agreement which could pave the way for purchase of the lead, silver and zinc producer in Kellogg.

"It's very, very sensitive at this point but apparently Martin Baral and (Steelworkers regional official) Bob Petris have reached a tentative letter of understanding on the labor agreement," Kerns said from his Boise office.

He said that letter of understanding must still be approved by other craft unions representing the 2,100 workers at Bunker Hill who have been losing their jobs since phased shutdown of the mine and smelter were announced last November.

Another group which had tried to buy the mine and smelter broke off negotiations earlier this year after national union leaders refused to accept a 25-percent cut in wages and benefits for Bunker Hill workers as part of a purchase agreement.

Baral announced earlier this month his company was interested in buying the silver, zinc and lead producer in North Idaho's Silver Valley. The facility has been undergoing a phased shutdown since last November. Most of the operation's 2,100 workers have already been laid off and the smelter's sister plant has been sold to a Mexican company.

Baral said the Seattle discussions involved several steelworker representatives — including Petris; Frank McKee, Steelworker's national secretary; and Bill Thompson, a USWA official based in Spokane.

He declined to discuss specifics of the agreement, but said he had "never seen any body as meticulous as dedicated and fair" and the union representatives involved in the talks.

The next step — in the possible purchase plan, Baral said, is to form a coalition of investors interested in participating in the venture. He refused to speculate on the identities of possible investors.

But Baral said "one of the leading American banks" participated in talks in Chicago earlier this month between the oil company executive and union leaders.

Representatives of that same unnamed bank have also discussed the possible purchase with Bunker Hill Co. officials and leaders of Bunker Hill's parent firm — Gulf Resources and Chemical Corp. of Houston — Baral said.

No review of earthquake design at Diablo plant

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission says it will not consider a decision approving earthquake design standards for the troubled Diablo Canyon Nuclear Power Plant at Avila Beach, Calif.

By a 3-2 vote the commission left intact a ruling by the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board, which approved "seismic design" modifications that have been made at the facility since an earthquake fault was discovered apparently resulted in a design standard at Diablo Canyon that was ordered by the NRC.

The NRC's refusal to review the decision came over the vehement protests of Commissioners' Victor Gilman and Peter Bradford.

NRC Chairman Nuzio Palladino and Commissioners John Ashcraft and Thomas Roberts formed the majority against reviewing the licensing board's decision.

Palladino, however, said he would rather have extended the time for the NRC to make up its mind on the issue, and waited for a "reevaluation" investigation of design standards at Diablo Canyon that was ordered by the NRC.

should take precautions now in coordination with local officials to protect life and property," Voshall said.

As a safety precaution, persons along the Toutle River are advised to move immediately to high ground.

"Flooding is not expected on the lower Cowlitz River at this time. However, persons along the lower Cowlitz River are advised to stay tuned to news stations for further information. A flash flood warning means a flash flood is imminent or occurring."

Scientists had issued an eruption alert Friday morning, saying they expected an eruption within the next 24 hours but they had expected a mild "dome-building" eruption rather than an explosive one.

Several earthquakes had been occurring every hour Friday, measuring from 1 to 1.5 on the Richter scale, said Christina Boyko of the University of Washington Geophysics Department.

The Forest Service and the state Department of Emergency Services had ordered the "red zone" restricted around the volcano closed as a precautionary measure.

Mount St. Helens ended 123 years of dormancy with a steam eruption in March 1980 — it followed with a gigantic May 18, 1980, blast that blew 1,300 feet off the top of the mountain, leveled thousands of acres of timber, caused massive mudflows that flooded rivers below and killed or buried 60 people.

It also sent an ash cloud circling the globe and spread a layer of fine, white grit as far as Western Montana.

Top state officials to get big pay hike

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate, tackling one of the few touchy subjects remaining in the state session, voted 20-13 Friday to raise the salaries of Idaho's six top state elected officials an average 38 percent.

Nine of the 23 Republicans and a sole Democrat supported the pay hikes, which when they took effect next January would be the first received by the officials in four years — and the last until at least 1987.

The bill was approved and sent to the House as legislators struggled to adjourn Saturday, as targeted by leaders earlier this week. However, hope waned in late afternoon that lawmakers could complete this year's business before sometime next week.

Senate Majority Leader James Risch, R-Boise, sought united support for the salary bill from the 23-member Senate Republican Caucus, but most defected in a vain effort to defeat the increase or derail the bill for amendment.

Risch said the bill contained "compromise figures and fair increases." He cautioned senators to pass the bill as drafted or risk its defeat in the House, which could further delay adjournment. He said the figures were arrived at only after careful negotiations with House leaders.

The current salaries, proposed new pay levels and percentage increases are:

- Governor, 38 percent, from $40,000 to $55,000.
- Attorney General, 29 percent, from $35,000 to $45,000.
- Auditor, Secretary of State and public instruction superintendent, 42 percent, from $28,000 to $40,000.
- Lieutenant governor, a part-time position, 33 percent, from $12,000 to $16,000.

Risch explained that the Idaho Constitution prohibits the Legislature from raising the officials' salaries during their current terms, restricting consideration of pay hikes to the year preceding the general election every four years.

Sen. Mark Ricks, R-Rexburg, spearheaded a move to amend the bill to reflect smaller increases: to $50,000 for the governor, $14,000 for the lieutenant governor, $45,000 for the attorney general, $40,000 for the schools chief and $35,000 for the auditor and secretary of State.

Ricks said the increases proposed in the Risch bill were "too much all at once," but the Senate voted 13-20 on his request to consider amending the bill.

He indicated the $65,000 additional in funding that would be needed to finance the increases next year alone would place more strain on the Legislature's efforts to balance the budget with current revenue sources.

Supporters of the pay hikes noted they would push the officials' salary rates up less than those of other state employees, but Ricks said the state instead "should restrict state employees' pay boosts to conform with officials' salaries."

Legislator arrested for drunk driving

BOISE (UPI) — State Rep. George Danielson, R-Cambridge, was arrested on drunk driving charges as he drove along an east Boise street late on St. Patrick's night, police reported Friday.

Boise Police Sgt. Dan ...

said an officer pulled Danielson over about 11:22 p.m. on March 17; administered a breath test and decided to book the lawmaker into the Ada County Jail. He was released on bond a short time later.

Freedom to Work group spent $46,000 to push bill

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Freedom to Work Committee spent more than $46,000 to convince lawmakers to pass a right-to-work bill this session.

The Idaho AFL-CIO spent $2,116 to oppose the measure.

According to a report filed with the Idaho Secretary of State's office, the committee spent $46,574 on mailings, newspaper advertisements and billboards during January and February.

The ads urged lawmakers to vote for the right-to-work bill — and urged Gov. John Evans to sign the measure into law.

The committee claimed such a bill would have prevented the closure of the Bunker Hill Co. mine and smelter in North Idaho and the layoffs of 2,100 workers — and one of its ads urged workers to sign the bill, saying "No More Bunker Hills."

Union lobbyists spent most of their money on entertaining and feeding lawmakers when they hoped to persuade to oppose the right-to-work bill.

The measure — called a "union-busting bill" by opponents — would have banned labor contracts that require union membership as a condition of employment.

Crime solicitation bill passes

BOISE — The Legislature has agreed that solicitation of a crime should also be considered illegal.

The issue came from a Idaho Supreme Court ruling last year that a Lewiston man was not guilty of any crime, under Idaho law, when he allegedly attempted to hire an undercover policeman to murder a Lewiston police officer.

"While it certainly seems wrong to me to solicit someone to commit a murder, evidently it is not under our present law," said sponsor Bert Marley, D-Poc.

The legislation makes it illegal to solicit someone else to commit a crime — murder or whatever, he continued. "Rules outlawing entrapment by police remain in effect, however."

The measure — HB50 — passed the House March 17, 1982, by a unanimous Senate vote on Friday.

"The bill does exclude insincere statements, like 'Kill the umpire,' so it should not provide for abuses," Marley said.

WPPSS investigation not justified

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Idaho Sen. James McClure Friday informed Gov. John Evans that a federal investigation into the construction of Washington Power Supply Systems nuclear power plants 4 and 5 might not be justified because federal dollars were not involved.

However, the Idaho Republican said it might be proper to consider an investigation by the General Accounting Office into the relationship of the Bonneville Power Administration and the public power utilities which contracted with WPPSS to construct the ill-fated 4 and 5 projects.

Evans Wednesday charged that the BPA should be held responsible for the debt incurred in building and closing the two plants if it could be determined the agency didn't ensure the project was properly managed.

The Democratic governor said a study by the GAO was needed to determine the circumstances surrounding the construction and shut-down of the plants. Evans said if the investigation showed the BPA was at fault, it should assume some financial responsibility for the debts.

In response to the governor's request, McClure said some question exists as to whether or not the GAO could legally conduct an investigation of an non-federally-funded agency.

"I am not at all certain that the time and expenditure of taxpayers' money such a study would entail is justified by the new information that could be gained, or that another study is necessary," McClure said.

Idaho Power bonds downgraded

BOISE (UPI) — Moody's rating service of New York has downgraded the rating on Idaho Power Co. bonds to the lowest level in the history of the utility.

And Idaho Power treasurer Dan Bowers said Moody's decision to drop the utility's bonds one rating level could cause problems when the company tries to sell its bonds later this month.

Standard and Poor's and Duff and Phelps Inc., two other rating services — did not change the utility's bond ratings, officials said.

Moody's dropped Idaho Power's first mortgage bonds and preferred stock from an "A" to a "Baa" rating, because of the utility's low return on equity and high debt costs, according to a press release from Moody's.

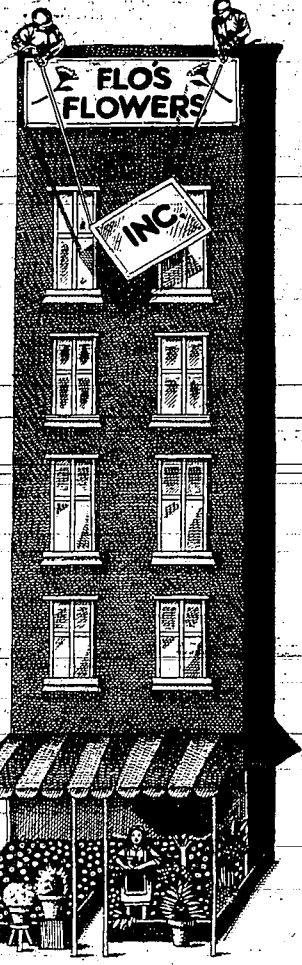

The rating service also blamed the Idaho Public Utilities Commission for imposing a "regulatory climate which has not provided sufficient support."

Memorial calls for federal reactor

BOISE (UPI) — A House committee Friday endorsed a Senate memorial urging the federal government to build a multibillion-dollar reactor near Idaho Falls for the production of nuclear weapons materials.

The memorial — which was the chief target of an anti-nuclear demonstration at the Statehouse earlier this month — calls on the U.S. Energy Department to build a so-called replacement production reactor at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

The Idaho site and federal nuclear test installations in Washington state and South Carolina are under consideration for the $2.5 billion-to-$5 billion project, the committee was told by a representative of EG&G Idaho Inc., a major contractor at INEL.

Henriks Zelle said the reactor would create up to 3,500 jobs and provide a 40-year electric power supply for Idaho. Depending on the type of reactor to be built, power capacity would range from 1,000 to 1,500 megawatts, Zelle said.

The memorial was sent out to the House floor by the House State Affairs Committee only after a heated exchange between two Ada County legislators.

Rep. Lyman Winchester, R-Kuna, wanted to vote on the bill after Zelle testified and without hearing opposition testimony. But Rep. Peggy Bunting, R-Boise objected, saying "we would hear about it long and loud" if testimony was cut off early on a bill opposed by Winchester.

A near shouting match then was sparked when Winchester protested loudly to acting Committee Chairman Jack Kennevik, R-Boise, about "this personal attack against me."

"Let's everyone calm down," Kennevik said, halting the conflict.

The committee then decided to hear from Dorian Duffin, Boise, a spokesman for the anti-nuclear organization Snake River Alliance.

"It's deceiving to say we'd have a constant, reliable source of power" from the reactor, Duffin said. He said power production would be interrupted frequently when the plant was shut down for maintenance.

He said radioactive waste produced by the nuclear-fuels plant would have to be disposed of in Idaho or shipped to sites outside Idaho, creating transportation hazards.

Legislature briefs

House OKs execution bill

BOISE — Convicts condemned to death in Idaho will have a choice in the method of their execution if a bill passed by the House is signed into law.

The measure — HB752 — passed the House Friday, 63-7, and would allow the use of firing squads as an option to the already approved lethal injection.

"The problem we're facing is that, because of their oaths, doctors are not willing to administer lethal injections to condemned prisoners," said Rep. Gary Paxman, R-Idaho Falls.

"We now have three men in our prison sentenced to death, and since the Department of Corrections is having a problem finding a doctor to give the injections, we need to address this problem real soon," Paxman said.

Blind services bill debated

BOISE (UPI) — Legislation to repeal a law that gives the Idaho Commission for the Blind exclusive license to operate food-service facilities in public buildings was knocked off stride in the Senate Friday.

Voting 19-15, senators sent the bill off the final-reading calendar for possible consideration of a change proposed by Sen. Vernon Brassey, R-Boise, to water down the bill. As it currently reads, the bill would give nonprofit organizations representing other handicapped people an equal chance at operating such facilities.

Senate passes threat bill

BOISE (UPI) — Threatening to kill or injure an official in the state's executive branch would be a crime under a bill passed by the Idaho Senate Friday and submitted to the governor.

The measure was approved 34-0 without debate.

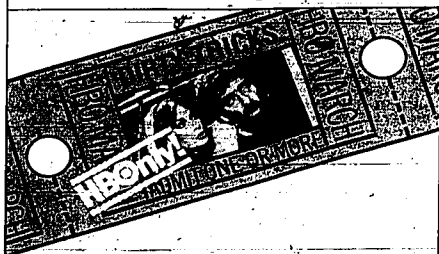

A person convicted of a first offense would be subject to misdemeanor penalties, while a repeat conviction would be a felony.

Raises for commissioners

BOISE (UPI) — Members of three state commissions will get pay hikes under a House bill approved by the Senate Friday and sent to the governor for his signature.

Public Utilities Commission members' annual salaries would increase from $32,340 to $36,500, while Industrial Commission and Tax Commission members' pay would go up from $30,030 to $34,500.

Tampon makers found negligent

DENVER (UPI) — A jury ruled Friday that Procter & Gamble Co. was negligent in selling Rely tampons, but the jury rejected a teenager's bid for $25 million in damages because she contracted toxic shock syndrome.

The jury foreman, James Kaiser, told U.S. District Judge Sherman Fleasilver that after 18 hours of deliberation over a four-day span the panel had decided Procter & Gamble was negligent in its manufacture and sale of a defective product.

But Kaiser, 42, an educator, said jurors found Procter & Gamble had not breached its warranty on the tampons and could not be held liable for damages. Kaiser said the jurors ruled against any monetary award for the plaintiff, Deletha Dawn Lampshire, 18, of Littleton, Colo., or her parents.

The jury began deliberating Tuesday on a $25 million suit filed by Miss Lampshire, who said she contracted toxic shock syndrome in May 1980. She said her use of Rely tampons caused her to contract the rare disease.

Procter & Gamble was the first of about 400 filed against Procter & Gamble to come to trial.

Miss Lampshire said the jury's decision was a victory, but her attorneys said it was a hollow one since no damages were awarded. Procter & Gamble's lawyer said he was unhappy with the decision.

"We were never in this for the money," Miss Lampshire said. "We got what we wanted. We had asked for $25 million, but the fact we proved they had a defective product was what I really wanted."

One of her lawyers, Jon Kidelgh, said the decision was a victory, but far from a complete one.

"I guess we won," he said. "They didn't give us any money. We won on two of three claims, but it is crazy. I don't understand it."

Tom Calder, the lawyer for Procter & Gamble, hurried out of the courtroom after the decision but said he was unhappy.

"We are very badly disappointed in anything that doesn't completely vindicate Rely," said Calder.

GOP leaders, Reagan plan budget meeting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Budget Committee has postponed action so Republican leaders can talk to President Reagan about alternative budget options, it was learned Friday.

Congressional GOP leaders plan to meet with Reagan Tuesday morning to discuss budget proposals, sources said.

The Senate Budget Committee will begin drafting a spending plan Thursday, a committee aide confirmed. Officially, the committee blamed the two-day postponement on the Congressional Budget Office's inability to supply the committee with cost estimates for various budget proposals.

There is a general feeling in both Houses of Congress that a bipartisan alternative to Reagan's unpopular budget — with neither side shouldering all the blame — is the only way to pass a difficult budget resolution this election year.

Despite all the talk of compromise, however, no specific plan has been agreed to on either side of the Capitol.

Senate Republicans are considering several options to narrow the 1983 budget deficit, estimated at $96.4 billion.

They include trimming cost-of-living adjustments on all "entitlement" programs, including Social Security, to one-third the rate of inflation; a 5 percent cut in salaries for all top level federal employees and members of Congress; and a smaller increase in defense spending than Reagan requested.

Shuttle astronauts ready for Monday's launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Preparations for the space shuttle Columbia's third flight began about three hours Friday.

Columbia astronaut Jack Louma exulted "I'm really optimistic" for a blastoff Monday and a full seven-day mission.

The weather, which on Thursday forced a shift of the landing site, also showed all signs of cooperating both at the Cape Canaveral takeoff area and at the New Mexico landing range where Columbia would land if an emergency arose.

Louma and co-pilot Gordon Fullerton spent six hours in a computerized shuttle simulator in Houston, practicing for their scheduled March 29 landing at White Sands, N.M., and emerged smiling and exuding confidence.

"I think if the preparations we've seen for the flight is any forecast of the way the flight's going to be, it's going to be a full seven-day mission," Louma told UPI's Bruce Nichols.

"I don't think we could have a better set of conditions."

At the spacecraft, preparations were running ahead of schedule for the takeoff scheduled at 7 a.m. MST.

"The astronauts carried out their re-entry and landing rehearsals in a trainer so realistic they can see launch weather." At 4 p.m. Friday, the clock was halted in the first of several pre-scheduled countdown "halts," following completion of several chores including cleaning the Columbia's windows.

And at 10:40 a.m. MST, a 23-car "shuttle express" train rumbled out of Edwards Air Force Base, the California landing site abandoned because of bad weather, on the 1,000-mile trip carrying crucial landing-support equipment to White Sands.

"The astronauts carried out their re-entry and landing rehearsals in a trainer so realistic they can see computer-produced images of the rugged New Mexico mountains they will fly through to the table-flat 7-mile strip of desert they will touch down on."

"I am glad we're landing at White Sands," said Louma. "It'd be glad to land anywhere, but White Sands is the place we've done most of our work ... It's just like old home week."

Fullerton, referring to the fact he test-flew the shuttle prototype off the back of a jet plane, said "I've had three landings in the 'arbitrator' at Edwards. I'm looking forward to a new site."

Corporations hurting Recession forecast: no signs of letting up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The stink of a recession, cutting deeply into corporate profits and the nation's economic output, is showing no signs of loosening its grip, government forecasters said Friday.

Administrative assistance by Commerce Department economists showed a surprisingly strong 4.5 percent cut in gross national product under way that duplicates the decline in goods and services from October through December.

At the same time the department said corporate profits after taxes plunged 7.1 percent from October through December.

Administrators clung to its forecast of an economic recovery in the spring but the disclosure of the surprisingly pessimistic "flash" GNP forecast — made worse by January's bad weather — doubt about the strength of the upturn and the outlook for federal deficits.

President Reagan's chief economist, Murray Friedman, said in a news interview he still expects a recovery in May and the 10 percent tax reduction in July will be a "major shot in the arm for the economy."

But James Galbraith, executive director of the Joint Economic Committee of Congress, said the projection "clearly shows no abatement in the recession." Said Galbraith, "Whatever happens in the months ahead the outlook is for continuing very high unemployment and a dismal level of economic activity."

The unofficial figure for the current quarter's GNP is circulated within government near the end of every quarter, at the same time the final revision is made to the previous three months' GNP figure and corporate profits are first tallied.

The final revision showed GNP in 1981's recession-hobbled last quarter declined 4.5 percent, a slight improvement from the 4.7 percent figure reported Feb. 22.

For all of 1981, GNP went up 2 percent, compared to a 0.2 percent decline in 1980. All percentages were after inflation adjustment.

MIA's body identified as Navy pilot

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The remains of a Navy pilot who was shot down over Laos 12 years ago and listed as missing in action have been identified, the Defense Department said Friday.

The identification of Lt. Cmdr. Nicholas G. Brooks of Newburgh, N.Y., brings to 80 the number of remains returned to the United States since the end of the Vietnam War in 1975, the Pentagon said.

Brooks was a bombardier-navigator aboard an A-6A Intruder operating from the aircraft carrier USS Ranger when he was shot down over Laos Jan. 2, 1970, the Pentagon said.

Brooks' remains were among those recovered from Laos by Lao nationals on Jan. 16 and Feb. 3 and turned over to the Joint Casualty Resolution Center-Ha Noi office at the U.S. Embassy in Bangkok, a Pentagon announcement said.

The remains were taken to the Army Central Identification Laboratory in Hawaii for identification, it said. The remains were positively identified March 4 as those of Brooks, the Pentagon said.

A funeral will be held at the Fort Myer Chapel in Arlington, Va., March 24 and Brooks' remains will be buried at sea, officials said.

Dozier appointed to Fort Knox

FORT KNOX, Ky. (UPI) — Brig. Gen. James L. Dozier — a captive of Italian Red Brigades terrorists for 42 days — was appointed Friday deputy post commander at Fort Knox.

The installation's military and civilian communities were delighted.

"I would think it would (create excitement) for quite some time," said Mayor Joseph Hutchinson of nearby Hazard, who described the city's role with its military neighbor as "a good working relationship."

On the post — where the Army trains tank gunners, drivers and mechanics — Lt. Col. Frederick Shire said that with Dozier's appointment, "Certainly there's going to be a great deal of interest both from military people stationed here at Fort Knox and people in the civilian community."

West Germans stick up for U.S.

DARMSTADT, West Germany (UPI) — West Germany's silent majority opposed to the growing anti-American movement, are displaying pro-American automobile bumper stickers, the U.S. Armed Forces daily newspaper reported Friday.
 The Stars and Stripes printed a photograph of one of the stickers — a heart in the black, red and gold colors of the West German flag, and the words "Ein Herz fuer USA" (A Heart for the USA) in red, white and blue.

 "Finally a sticker I can identify with," say letters from Germans ordering the stickers from a club set up by a 16-year-old man.
 "It all began in December when seven German men decided to find a way to demonstrate their sympathy for Americans." The Stars and Stripes reported.
 "Soon orders were pouring in from all over the country - from Hamburg to Lake Constance."
 Since the sale started in February about 7,000 have been sold and Hermann Glessgen, the organizer of the club, said a firm that does business with Americans just has ordered 20,000.

Swallows return to Capistrano

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (UPI) — The mission bells rang as flocks of swallows returned to their home at the old Spanish church of San Juan Capistrano Friday as they have for centuries.
 The official return of the swallows came at 9:02 a.m. PST, as about 500 of the birds crowded around the mission — the oldest standing building in California.
 "They've arrived here and they're flying all around," said Leon Rene, the official "Voice of the Mission" who wrote the 193 hit love song, "When the Swallows Come Back to Capistrano."
 "They're coming in also to the hills and surrounding places and towns around here," he said. "It's quite a thing to see."
 "They don't come in exactly to the mission in flocks like they used to because the town has been built up so much," Rene said, noting that new housing developments had forced the swallows to find food in the hills.
 The swallows leave their nests beneath the mission eaves each Oct. 23 and return on St. Joseph's Day, March 19. They spend the winter in Goya, Argentina, some 8,000 miles southeast of Capistrano. It takes the little fork-tailed birds many days to fly between their summer and winter homes.
 The mission, built in 1776 by Father Junipero Serra, is one of 21 California missions that were built along what was then known as El Camino Real, or the King's Highway. Today the San Juan Capistrano mission serves as a model of Spanish architecture and a museum of early California history.
 A town pageant celebrated the arrival of the swallows, featuring school children dressed as padres and Indians, bands and dancing.
 This year, the town was hoping to see larger crowds of tourists flock in along with the fabled swallows and pay a $1 admission fee to the mission.

Senate panel OKs bill for Box Canyon

BOISE—A Senate committee has approved passage of a bill to limit environmental protection of scenic Box Canyon near Hagerman.

Troit farmer Earl Hardy is seeking legislative intervention to allow him to negotiate water and land swaps with state agencies as a means of building a hydroelectric plant in the middle of the canyon. Hardy says the swap would allow preservation of the riparian canyon for public use.

Hardy has a water right to build five series of fish ponds in the canyon, but it expires March 1, 1983, if he hasn't started construction.

"Mr. Hardy wants to preserve the upper canyon, but he's not willing to give his water rights away, in their entirety, without some sort of compensation," said Boise lawyer Bill Ringert.

The measure, which already has passed the House, asks the Department of Parks and Recreation to shorten its protected-stream area to allow Hardy to refile the anticipated use of his water right from trout rearing to power generation. In exchange, he says he will give the state permanent easement and use of the upper third of the canyon, which remains unspoiled by development.

Box Canyon Creek, an aquifer stream, is the nation's 11th largest natural spring.

Opposition to the bill — HB786 — centers on three major points:

- It strikes reaffirmation of the state's ownership of the streambed, a contention Hardy has opposed for 11 years.

- The measure amounts to single-interest legislation, which the sponsors admit.
- If passed, it could set a precedent for relinquishing the public interest claim to four other springs and several lakes, including Niagara Springs and Malad Gorge.

Doctors increase security at offices

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY—Security will be beefed up at the Cassia Memorial Medical Center after an extensive amount of drugs and cash were stolen from doctors' offices in the center this week.

Sometime Wednesday night or Thursday morning, burglars broke into the offices of eight Burley doctors and four Rupert physicians, Mini-Cassia police reported.

Burley and Rupert police officials said Friday they have no new leads on the cases.

Fred Schloss, the administrator of Cassia Memorial Hospital and Medical Center, said Friday that the hospital management is taking steps to make sure the center is not burglarized again.

Schloss and the Burley police refused to identify the eight doctors whose 10 offices were burglarized. An undisclosed amount of drugs and money were taken, Burley police said.

The hospital-administration will install $1,000 worth of security devices in the medical center, Schloss said. He refused to elaborate on the type of devices, but said some already have been installed.

"This has never happened before, and now that it has happened, we feel we have to take every precaution to keep it from happening again," Schloss said.

Four doctors in the Rupert Medical-Surgical Center behind Mindoka Memorial Hospital lost $50 in drugs and $50 in cash to burglars, Rupert police reported. Police have not released the names of the doctors. Medical representatives could not be reached for comment.

Rupert police reported Friday that their investigators have been in contact with the American Falls police department, which reported a similar break-in at a doctor's office this week.

United Way planning 1983 activities already

TWIN FALLS—Although the Magic Valley United Way fell slightly short of its 1982 goal, the agency has already begun working toward 1983. The final total for the 1982 campaign was $155,000, of which about $3,000 was leftover money from the previous year, according to director Sandy Thomas. The original goal was $160,000.

To compensate for the loss, about 10 percent of the $2.2 million allocated for United Way administrative costs was cut. The remaining $2,720 loss was deducted from the allocations made for each of the 13 members of the United Way, minimizing the effect, Thomas said.

The agency has made plans for a used book fair to be held May 15 at the Blue Lakes Mall. Thomas said all non-profit organizations can participate. Call 733-4922 for more information.

At a recent United Way executive board meeting, Thomas, who has been serving as interim director, was hired as permanent director at a yearly salary of $10,800.

Thomas said that during the summer, the United Way would concentrate on activities in communities outside of Twin Falls to provide them with information on United Way agencies.

Cancer fight

Cassia Memorial Hospital recognized for battle against disease

BURLEY—The diagnosis of cancer is not the death sentence it once was.

And at Cassia Memorial Hospital, the fight has gained some recognition.

Improvements nationally in the treatment of the disease have led to marked increases in recovery rates, and continued research may spell further breakthroughs.

In 1940, no one survived a case of acute leukemia. As of 1979, there was an 18 percent survival rate. In 1940, the survival rate for Hodgkin's Disease was 25 percent. By 1979 it was 72 percent.

Since 1973, Cassia Memorial Hospital has sponsored monthly "tumor conferences" in which doctors on the hospital's cancer committee discuss and compare cancer cases, seeking to increase their knowledge of cancer treatment.

Recently, the hospital's cancer program was given a three-year accreditation by the American College of Surgeons.

Only 1 percent of all small American hospitals (under 100 beds) have gained such approval.

Dr. James Kircher, committee chairman, considers the accreditation quite a distinction for a hospital like Cassia Memorial.

With audits of hospital data and information from the Idaho Central Tumor Registry, the hospital is able to make comparisons of our results against the results of the rest of Idaho, as well as the nation," he said.

"We found that we did better in some sites or types of cancer than other areas, but, of course, identified some types and sites in which our record was not as good," Kircher said.

The monthly meetings or conferences feature an oncologist (tumor specialist) from Salt Lake City and from Pocatello, a therapeutic radiologist and a chemotherapist. Usually three to seven cases are presented for discussion and consultation.

Dr. Charles Smart, director of the cancer department at the Chicago-based American College of Surgeons, said in a letter notifying the hospital of the accreditation, "We commend your efforts to organize and maintain an excellent program, as the motivation and support of your staff has proven."

The hospital began submitting data to the Idaho Central Tumor Registry in 1970. However, after 10 years of submitting data, "no significant or meaningful use had been made of such data," Kircher said.

"We had no way of knowing how well we were doing in our efforts compared to either the rest of Idaho or any larger region."

Early in 1981, the hospital began to seek approval of its cancer committee program from the American College of Surgeons. After an on-site examination last October, accreditation was granted early this month.

Jury awards $65,000 in lawsuit over beans

TWIN FALLS—A seven-woman, five-man jury has returned a $65,000 verdict to a Fruitland company which sought damages against Haney Seed Co., of Twin Falls.

The verdict gives Winegar Farms Inc. just $1,300 less than it had sought in a four-day Fifth District Court trial that concluded Thursday.

The plaintiffs alleged that they had contracted to cultivate, harvest and deliver an estimated 200,000 pounds of seed beans to Haney Seed in 1980.

The plaintiffs further alleged that Haney Seed had refused to pay for the beans at the agreed price of 39-cents per pound.

In response, the defendant denied that the beans were cultivated and grown in accordance with the terms of any contract and that those beans which arrived at its warehouse in Twin Falls were damaged by moisture.

As a result of the alleged damage, the beans could not be sold, Haney Seed officials argued. But the plaintiffs countered by saying that the bean harvest was stopped over concerns about the presence of immature seed pods, which could cause tests to indicate increased levels of moisture.

Only after assurances from an agent of Haney Seed that the pods would be "scalped" out from the crop was the harvest resumed, the successful plaintiff's claimed.

The original complaint was filed in Third District Court in Payette County, but the case was later transferred to Twin Falls.

Imagination: Using the mind to visualize activities can help improve future performances

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—Picture a basketball team that practices by visualizing themselves at the free-throw line sinking bucket after bucket.

Picture a sharpshooter who hones his talent by relaxing in a big easy chair and hitting bull's-eyes with his mind's eye.

Picture a hepatitis victim who fantasizes that his white blood cells are attacking infectious viruses and "chewing them up" like an internal Pac-Man game.

These were the images conjured up by behavioral psychologist Erik Peper, who told an audience at O'Leary Junior High School that "the limits of our imagination are the limits of our experience."

In a lecture sponsored by the Twin Falls Mental Health Association and Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, Peper described the use of "imaging" to increase one's performance in athletics and work.

An instructor at San Francisco

Erik Peper, biofeedback specialists, says it's all in the mind

State University and director of the Family Therapy Institute in Berkeley, Peper said that repeatedly imagining oneself performing a task well can increase one's abilities.

For example, the basketball players and the sharpshooter improved their skills by picturing themselves in action, Peper said.

tended Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He has written "From the Outside In," a book on health and biofeedback. He also is president of the Biofeedback Society of America.

In Thursday's lecture he discussed the characteristics of a "peak performer," someone successful in athletics, business or other areas.

"Peak performers are self-confident. They 'draw upon resources they did not know existed within them.' They 'fear neither failure nor success,' and they learn from their mistakes."

Peper proposed the adoption of a new concept for failure. A mistake — such as missing a basket — is "just a lovely learning experience." Learning, he believes, should not be "judging," saying to yourself, "I'm not good enough."

A peak performer "makes peace with the possibility of total failure."

Peper described three ingredients in becoming a peak performer.

Ward signs settlement ending libel lawsuit

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—More than six years after it began, the libel lawsuit by Sierra Life Insurance Co. against Magic Valley Newspapers Inc. (Times-News) ended Friday.

The case, which involved several appeals to the Idaho Supreme Court and attracted statewide and national attention, ended in an anti-climactic fashion when Judge Theron Ward of the Fifth District Court signed into effect a settlement agreement reached last month between the two sides.

Under that settlement, the insurance company has agreed to dismiss its lawsuit with prejudice, which means it cannot refile the lawsuit at a later date. In return, the newspaper has agreed to waive any claim to $19,757, which it was entitled to under a 1980 Idaho Supreme Court decision.

Fighting the lawsuit cost the newspaper more than $100,000 in legal fees and court costs, according to a lawyer for The Times-News.

The case revolved around a series of Times-News articles, published in 1975, that detailed the insurance company's financial dealings. Sierra Life contended those articles damaged its business, and on March 5, 1976, lawyers for the firm filed a lawsuit seeking $56 million in damages.

The key to the case was the newspaper's refusal to reveal the names of confidential sources involved in the preparation of the stories. The paper claimed it did not have to reveal those sources because no tips or other confidential information was used in the stories without outside confirmation.

In 1977, Ward ordered the disclosure of those sources, a decision which the paper appealed to the state Supreme Court.

But the court stood by its earlier position that the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution provided no "newsmen's privilege," giving newspapers the right to refuse disclosure orders.

Following that decision, Ward again ordered the paper, former Managing Editor Richard High and former reporter Bill Lazarus to disclose the sources. When they refused, the judge ordered the newspaper's defenses stricken.

The following year, Ward ruled that because there was no prejudice, the Man faces charges in 2 counties

TWIN FALLS — A 19-year-old Twin Falls man pleaded guilty to grand larceny in Twin Falls County on Friday and then was returned to the Jerome County Jail where he was being held on an armed robbery charge.

The guilty plea could mean that Joseph Edward Gwin will spend up to 14 years in prison, the maximum penalty under Idaho law for grand larceny.

The plea stems from the July 10, 1981, theft of a pickup truck from Ellis Furr of Twin Falls.

Earlier this month, a co-defendant in a case, a 22-year-old, Tracy Moneybenny, whose last given address was Cheyenne, Wyo., was ordered to spend four months at the North Idaho Correctional Institute at Coeur d'Alene.

In another case of dual-county offenses, a Pocatello man pleaded innocent to two separate charges involving insufficient fund checks.

Peper promptly admonished her for "anticipating failure." Instead, he said, smiling broadly, she should think "that's a marvelous opportunity to bring under stress."

Peper guided his audience through several "momentary relaxation techniques." One technique can be used when one feels a sudden alarm, like the response to an unexpected telephone ring.

Peper illustrated his points by using volunteers from the audience. He showed, in one case, how a person's arm tenses when the person thinks of an embarrassing moment.

Ex-husband charged with furniture theft

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man appeared in Fifth District Judge Charles Curtwright charged with stealing furniture from his ex-wife.

Randy Gee, 25, is charged with second-degree burglary in connection with the March 12 burglary of Patricia Gee's home at 542 Harrison St.

The woman reported that an estimated $400 worth of furniture was missing, including a couch, a love seat and a table.

According to a police report filed with the court, an investigation showed no signs of forced entry at the woman's residence.

Image

In addition to learning "guided imagery" and "profund relaxation," persons should strive to achieve the right level of "arousal" — the point when the person is filled with power and energy.

Peper, who is using guided imagery to help train the U.S. modern rhythmic gymnastic team for world competition, discussed the experience of gymnasts trying the difficult maneuver of the "Iron Cross."

Will guided imagery a person can be more relaxed under stress, Peper says. If, for example, a basketball player misses a shot — once he practices it successfully 50 times in his mind, he will have one failure and 50 successes behind him when he steps onto the court.

Bids awarded for widening of Blue Lakes

TWIN FALLS — Bannock Paving Co. of Pocatello is the apparent low bidder for the widening of Blue Lakes Boulevard North.

The company gave the Idaho Department of Highways a bid of $1.5 million for the project, which involves widening the boulevard from the north end of the Burger King restaurant, at 360 Blue Lakes Blvd. N., to Fairview Avenue.

The four-month project includes realigning the Ferrine Coulee. Work is expected to start this spring and will be funded largely with federal money.

In another project, Willis Inc. of Twin Falls is the low bidder for the construction of curb and gutter next to Frontier Field. Willis awarded a city contract this week, submitted a low bid of $4.931.

This year, the city has budgeted $6,000 for improvements in the area of the field, and officials say that amount probably will be spent by increasing the footage of curb and gutter to be built in 1982. The improvements are part of a multi-year project that could conclude next year.

Lawsuit

Continued from Page B1 paper had defaulted in the libel action and he ordered it to pay $1.9 million.

"That decision was appealed to the state Supreme Court. In 1980 the high court reversed Ward, stating that before defenses could be struck in such a case, the plaintiff would have to demonstrate that the confidential information was critical to the case and that it had been used in the articles.

The court also provided that the extraordinary action of striking a defense could be taken only when absolutely necessary and when no alternatives were available.

The state Supreme Court remanded the case to the district court, directing Ward to reconsider a 1977 summary judgment motion submitted by the newspaper.

But the case never got that far. In April 1981, both sides apparently came close to ending the case under virtually the same settlement terms which were finally adopted this week, according to Lloyd Webb, lawyer for The Times-News.

Bob Webb and the newspaper's publisher, William E. Howard, said on Friday that they believed the Supreme Court's decision was chiefly responsible for the settlement.

Boise lawyer Joseph M. Imhoff, who represented Sierra Life, was unavailable for comment.

"I think the big turnaround came when the Idaho Supreme Court reversed Judge Ward's decision," Howard said.

"I'm relieved that we don't have to go back into district court seven years after the case originated. I think we proved our case and the accuracy of our report. I think the Supreme Court upheld our position on the sources issue, which from the standpoint of journalism in the state, was a major victory."

While the case does not mean that reporters have a First Amendment "newsman's privilege," Webb said he believed it does provide some procedural assurances to newspapers involved in libel actions by spelling out when plaintiffs in libel actions can force disclosure of confidential sources and when judges can strike a newspaper's defenses for retaining such a disclosure order.

BRIDGE

Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

The perfect squeeze

queen of clubs lead, he makes the hand by finding East with specifically the K-Q-4-3 of hearts. The play uses is to lead a heart from dummy at the first club to lead his jack. Now South takes his ace, plays two rounds of trumps and the ace-king of diamonds to get to third his nine of hearts. Then the 10 of hearts from dummy gives him a chance to run East's dummy.

Back to dummy with the last high club to lead the seven and pick up East's king. Now he gets to discard his losing club on the five of hearts.

The hand doesn't require any of this luck. After the club lead there is a perfect double squeeze available. Actually, it has been set up for him in simple form. All he must do is run off his seven trumps and discard three hearts and the four of clubs from dummy. Each opponent is down to three diamonds while West must hold two clubs and East two hearts.

Now a club to dummy gives you the ARTIFICIAL diamond. A heart back to his hand squeezes West out of a diamond. He must retain a club. So his three diamonds take the last three tricks.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Today's hand is from a humorous article in "South has sold his soul to the devil. In return for good luck at bridge."

Another upset for Boston College

By United Press International

The list of "Goliaths" already slain by this year's NCAA "David" is growing more and more impressive.

Surprising Boston College, after victories over San Francisco and second-ranked DePaul, added 18th-ranked Kansas State to its list of victims Friday night when freshman Michael Adams came off the bench to score 20 points to help BC to a 69-63 victory in the Midwest Regional semifinal.

In the East Regional, John Pinone scored 19 points and teamed with Stewart Granger to hit four critical free throws in the final seconds to give Villanova a 70-66 overtime victory over ninth-ranked Memphis State.

In the nightcap of the Midwest Regional double-header, Houston defeated Missouri 79-78 and in the second game of the East Regional, top-ranked North Carolina downed Alabama 74-69.

Adams scored 11 of his points in the second half and hit four free throws during a string of eight straight in the final minute by the Eagles that ended

Kansas State's season at 23-8. Boston College, knocked off San Francisco and No. 2 DePaul in the opening two rounds.

Boston College trailed by five points at the intermission and Kansas State forward Randy Reed scored 6 points during the opening 3 1/2 minutes of the second half to help the Wildcats maintain that cushion at 47-42. But two blocked shots by center John Garris and two press-induced turnovers allowed the Eagles to score eight straight points, including three by Jay Murphy, to take a 50-47 lead.

The score was tied on two more occasions, the final time on a 20-foot shot from the right corner by Tyrone Adams. But Tyrone Adams by Tyrone two shots from the same spot in Kansas State's next two possessions and Murphy made the Wildcats pay for it with a basket and two free throws to give the Eagles the lead for good at 59-55.

Tim Jankovich drew Kansas State back to within 61-55 with 2:57 left and the Wildcats had a chance to tie the game after a turnover by Martin Clark. But Michael Adams lotted a 3-on-1 fast break by stealing the ball from Ed Galvas and the Eagles were able to improve their record to 22-9 with the final string of free throws.

Villanova 70, Memphis State 66 (OT) — Pinone, who led all scorers, hit both ends of a 1-and-1 with 26 seconds to play in overtime to put Villanova ahead for good. Memphis State, which experienced serious foul trouble from early in the game, committed a critical turnover after bringing the ball inbounds when Phillip Haynes was called for traveling under his own basket with 14 seconds to play.

Villanova brought the ball inbounds with 10 seconds to play and the Tigers fouled Granger, who hit both ends of a 1-and-1. Forward Ed Pinckney and Aaron Hargrove scored 16 points each for Villanova and Granger added 10.

Freshman Keith Lee, the Metro Conference Player of the Year, led Memphis State with 14 points but was in foul trouble most of the game. He in fact went to the bench with his fourth personal with 14:37 to play and fouled out with 4:58 remaining. Houston 79, Missouri 78. Clyde Drexler scored 33 points, three added one in the final 90 seconds to help Houston state off a frantic Missouri rally and deliver the Cougars their victory over the fifth-ranked Tigers. Houston advanced to its first regional final since the Elvin Hayes days in 1968.

Norfolk College 64, Alabama 69. James Worthly and Matt Doherty scored 16 points apiece and North Carolina connected on 26-of-31 free throw attempts to down 12th-ranked Alabama. The Tar Heels, 29-2, advanced to the East championship Sunday against Villanova.

Pirates lose; Mullan gains state finals

BOISE — Dominating a few minutes doesn't quite cut it in a state tournament basketball game.

Hagerman, after controlling the first quarter, broke down and lost to Greenleaf Friends Academy 63-43 in the semi-finals of the Idaho State A-4 Boys Basketball Tournament.

The Pirates will battle Cascade, a 58-49 loser to Mullan, today at 7 p.m. at Boise State University. Mullan and Greenleaf meet for the A-4 title at 8:30.

Greenleaf 63, Hagerman 43

The Pirates seemed like they would have an easy time advancing to the championship game in the first quarter. Hagerman hit nine of 15 from the field and exploited large holes in Greenleaf's 7-1-2; 20-0. Mike McFadden hit 10 points and Hagerman led 18-15 at the end of the first eight minutes.

But suddenly at the start of the second quarter these lone defensive holes snapped shut and Hagerman forced poor shots. In fact, the Pirates didn't score until McFadden hit the front end of a one-and-one with five minutes remaining.

Meanwhile, behind a balanced scoring attack, went into the locker room at halftime up 30-22, having outscored the Pirates 15-4 in the quarter.

"The shots just didn't fall," Hagerman Coach Skip Pauls said. "The kids got frustrated and when we went down by eight, we had to speed up our game. We are a disciplined team and it is hard to speed it up."

Hagerman's offensive output was only a basket better in the third quarter. Pauls' defensive tactic of controlling 6-7 Mike Vermorel proved futile. Vermorel — towed over the Pirates — scored six of the Grizzlies' 11 third-period points. Down by 16 midway through the final quarter, the Pirates batted back to within eight and the momentum was theirs. But after a Greenleaf time-out, the momentum suddenly swung back to the Grizzlies when Junior George Redmond hit back-to-back jumpers, putting Greenleaf back in command.

"We felt we were ready to play, but we got frustrated and we had to hurry our shots," Pauls said of the stretch following Hagerman's last comeback.

Bruins capture opening track meet despite wintry weather conditions

By CHRIS HAFT

TWIN FALLS — Humans ran where penguins should have roamed.

Though Bruin Stadium wasn't a proper habitat for track and field contestants, it served as the site of a tripartite meet Friday afternoon, with Twin Falls capturing both the boys and girls races to open the season.

In the boys competition, Twin Falls totaled 80 points to Jerome's 74 and Bonneville's 62, while the Bruins girls amassed 86 to Jerome's 61 and Bonneville's 14.

Hoods and blankets were in vogue among participants and spectators alike. The term "hincind" — old sports slang for a track athlete, wouldn't have been applicable. Many entrants competed in sweatclothes, and those who didn't ran just as fast back to their warmup suits as they did during their event.

"I haven't seen carmeluffs for a long time," a man in the press box remarked, observing a person wearing a pair.

Not over the elements could muffle the Bruins. On the boys' side of things, Coach Jerry Kleinkopf took pleasure in the depth Twin Falls exhibited. The Bruins had no individual stand-outs, but performed well as a whole, winning every relay event.

Without Chris Williams, who missed the meet due to illness, the Bruins suffered in the distance events. Robin Meind won the 1600- and 3200-meter runs and Greg Bartholomew won the 800, helping Jerome keep the team score close.

A Tiger sweep in the 1600 pulled Jerome within four of the Bruins, 75-71, entering the meet-concluding mile relay. But Twin Falls, which needed a second-place finish to clinch victory, sealed the triumph by placing first.

Besides Meind, Jerome's other double winner was sophomore Gary Husey, who won both the 1500 (17-11) and shot put (50-7 1/2) events.

In the girls' competition, Sally Butts, Tammy Crow and Sherry Ford each came through with double triumphs to lead the Bruins.

Butts tied for victory in the 100-meter dash (12-7) and the 200 (28:52). Crow captured the 800 (2:30) and the 1600 (5:31.9), while Ford won the 100 high hurdles (1:16.5) and the 300 lows (5:05.8).

Kleinkopf nevertheless lamented, "We (the girls' team) have no depth." The Bruins were weakened by the absence of Dina Liberti, who is suffering from an infected toe.

Jerome visits Twin Falls again in a dual meet Wednesday.

Purdue advances to NIT semifinals

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — Russell Cross saved his best game for the Purdue's last home game of the year and combined with the Mackey Arena crowd of 14,123 helped the Boilermakers.

"Our crowd was a factor," Keady said. "The only crowd in America which could match Purdue's is Texas A&M's."

"Purdue has one of the best crowds," Metcalf said. "The crowd and facilities are awesome."

A&M's 6-100-11 center Rudy Woods got in foul trouble early, leaving the game for good with 17:06 left in the second half. Keady said that was a key to the game.

"We wanted to get Woods in foul trouble," Keady said. "When Woods got in foul trouble, we were able to start running."

Metcalf said his club's "only percent of its field goal attempts.

Both Keady and Coach Shelby Metcalf of Texas A&M said the Mackey Arena crowd of 14,123 helped the Boilermakers.

New snow creates good ski conditions, hazards too

Winter has returned to the Magic Valley and ski resorts are reporting new snow and mid-winter conditions.

Sun Valley reported 15 inches Thursday and Chuck Webb, resort assistant general manager in charge of publicity, said the sking is "the best in years."

However, the unusually heavy snowstorm also brought warnings in the northern portion of the state. Extreme avalanche hazards were reported by the U.S. Forest Service because of the new snow on top of a hard fast base.

Cross country skiers were advised to stay out of canyons and not to travel along the base of steep slopes.

Other resorts are also reporting lots of new snow. Pomeroy said the new snow with 135 inches now on the top of the ski runs. Magic Mountain got about 14, including four new inches Thursday, and Soldier Mountain received about a foot in the past couple of days. All have excellent skiing and are operating regular schedules. This is a good opportunity for some of the season's best skiing and this time of year conditions can change daily.

Magic Mountain is planning a Spring Fling for March 28 that will include numerous fun races and probably some serious ones. Plans are being made for an instructor's race and contests for skiers of all ages.

Pro-Am ski racing is making a return appearance at Sun Valley March 26 and 27 with top destination racers from world competition scheduled to the test the course.

Andre Arnold, a four-time world champion in pro-am racing circles heads the group of professionals. The race is tagged the Moreau Invitational.

Arnold was World Professional Ski Union winner in 1979, and continued to hold the top place through 1981. Since then, he has been skiing on the Peugeot Grand Prix regional circuit.

Pro-Am racing has been extant this season after Franco-American at the close of last season's tour.

Other top names on the entry list include Hans Hinterberger, a runner-up to Arnold last year and in 1980. He was also the winner of the Firt or Denver downhill and won the Francisco Osborn of Spain. He is a 1972 Olympic gold medalist in downhill.

Billy Shaw of Ketchum, winner of the Japanese pro tour this season, will be back on his home course. Nestor Buegenberger of Switzerland and Robert Schuchter of Austria will compete along with Ruediger Wahl of Norway and several leading European skiers.

Dr. Erik Piper of San Francisco State University will be in Sun Valley the next several days for a special seminar to help skiers put some biofeedback into their skiing.

A biofeedback expert and behavioral psychologist, Dr. Pepper works with athletes on the theory that physical condition can be enhanced by the proper mental outlook and that a good combination of mental and physical strength is an unbeatable situation.

He will be working with both cross country and downhill ski teams at Sun Valley for several days.

He is the president of the Biofeedback Society of America and a director of the Family Therapy Institute in Berkeley, Calif.

Currently he is training 12 young gymnasts and the U.S. Olympic gymnastic team.

He spoke in Twin Falls Thursday night. Perhaps a number of skiers were there to profit from his theory.

Bonnie Baird Jones is a Times-News writer and author of Twin Falls skier who writes a skiing column every week during the ski season.

Kuhn may relinquish power to keep commissioner's post

By JEROME HOLTZMAN
Chicago Tribune

MESA, Ariz. — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn says he would be willing to accept a "modification" of his powers in certain areas, a concession that could help him in his bid to win re-election to a third term in the $200,000-a-year job.

Kuhn, who refused to specify what "modifications" would be acceptable, also publicly stated for the first time that, if necessary, he would consider invoking his "best interests" powers to abolish the National League's unanimous-vote rule.

The unanimous-vote rule has made it possible for one NL club to prevent major changes, such as geographical realignment and three-divisional and interleague play, even if the other 11 teams were in favor of them.

Kuhn's second seven-year term runs out in August 1963, but there has been considerable speculation he would be fired or would resign. That speculation has increased since early December when it was revealed nine owners had signed a statement urging him to quit.

Renewal of Kuhn's contract is expected to be on the agenda at a special meeting of the 26 club owners likely to be called in mid-May by the newly formed 12-owner Restructuring Committee.

A majority of the committee is in favor of decreasing the commissioner's powers and reducing his role to a ceremonial one. His primary function would then be as an overseer of the integrity of the game.

But the committee's top priority is the elimination of the NL's controversial unanimous-vote rule, which committee members contend is archaic and has impeded progress.

"This is not a good provision," acknowledged Kuhn, who stopped at the Cubs' camp Thursday during his annual spring-training tour. "Too many things fall under the unanimous rule."

Kuhn presumably has the power to abolish the rule if he feels it isn't in the "best interests" of baseball.

A unanimous vote is required to eliminate the unanimous-vote rule: The Cincinnati Reds and the Philadelphia Phillies, in particular, have adamantly opposed changing the rule. But there have been indications recently that they are agreeable to adopting the 14-team American League's procedure, which requires a three-fourths majority vote to implement major changes.

Kuhn acknowledged that both teams, which have undergone recent ownership changes, have relaxed their stance and would now agree that a three-fourths majority is sufficient. "When the chips are down, I always felt the NL would take care of itself," said Kuhn.

The chips are also on the table in regard to Kuhn's future. The last time his contract was up for renewal, in 1955, he was almost ousted by a hastily formed revolt led by Charlie Finley of Oakland and Jerome Holtzman of Baltimore, both of whom have since sold their clubs.

The current movement to oust Kuhn is being led by Gusie Busch, the longtime owner of the St. Louis Cardinals.

To win re-election, Kuhn needs both a 9-3 majority in the NL and a 10-4 majority in the AL. Five NL clubs signed the December statement advising Kuhn to step down: St. Louis, New York, Cincinnati, San Diego and Houston. Even if one of these clubs changes its position, the NL vote would be 8-4, still enough to prevent Kuhn from winning a third term if he offers.

That Kuhn would suddenly express a willingness to accept a "modification" of his powers, coupled with his threat of invoking the "best interests" clause against the NL, indicates he has prepared for a fight.

Twin Falls tops Nampa, 11-8

NAMPA — Twin Falls exploded for six runs in the first inning and coasted to an 11-8 triumph over Nampa Friday afternoon in a non-league baseball game at Rodeo Park.

The Bruins, 2-0-1, amassed six hits in that initial inning. "We just hit the hell out of the ball," Coach Bill Ingram said. Among the big blows were Curt Thieman's two-run double and Dave Skottog's two-run home run.

Lance Sellers added a solo homer for the Bruins in the fifth inning. Thieman, Sellers and Todd Wigington each collected two hits.

Though the Boise Valley Tournament was still playing the games that would have been scheduled today the Bruins will try to get in two of those contests: an 11 a.m. encounter at Caldwell and a match against Meridian at 2 p.m.

The Braves who now stand at 10-2. The Royals fell to 4-1.

Bedrosian retired the last 13 batters he faced to pick up the victory. Garber struck out four in the last two innings to get the save.

Larry Whitson drove in two of Atlanta's runs with a third-inning home run off losing pitcher Paul Splittortz and a sacrifice fly in the sixth inning. Terry Harper scored a run after a triple, and drove in another run with a sacrifice fly in the ninth inning.

ISU talks to Hughes about cage job

POCATELLO (UPI) — Idaho State officials began their formal search for a replacement for basketball coach Lynn Archibald by interviewing Friday the head coach of this year's top junior college squad in California.

ISU spokesman Glenn Alford said interviews met in Pocatello with Keith Hughes, head basketball coach at the College of the Sequoias in Visalia, Calif. Hughes' Giants won this year's state junior college tournament.

Hughes, 34, has been at the Visalia school for two years, Alford said.

He added that at least two other candidates would be interviewed by school officials next week before any announcement will be made on a replacement for Archibald, who resigned Feb. 26 after compiling a 65-66 record during five years at the Bengal helm.

Alford also said the identities of the other candidates will not be released until they arrive in eastern Idaho for their interviews.

Senate gives Vandals belated wishes

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho got stomped 60-42 by Oregon State Thursday night in the NCAA Western Regional, but the state Senate decided Friday there was nothing wrong with approving after the fact a resolution wishing good luck to the team.

"We should show we're still proud of our fallen heroes," Sen. Norma Dobler, D-Moscow, said before senators voted unanimously to pass the measure.

The concurrent resolution was adopted by the House Wednesday when it passed a resolution that the eighth-ranked Big Sky Conference champion Vandals could knock off the No. 4 Beavers, winners of the Pac-10 Conference.

Sen. James Ricker, R-Boise, suggested the Vandals might have prevailed if the Senate had approved the measure before Thursday night's game.

Concannon gets acquittal, scolding

CHICAGO (UPI) — A judge, saying undercover investigators may have lured former Chicago Bears quarterback Jack Concannon into selling cocaine Friday acquitted the ex-quarterback but scolded him for setting a bad example for young football fans.

Cook County Criminal Court Judge Earl Strayhorn said he was duty-bound to find Concannon innocent because the state failed to prove undercover agents had not entrapped him into selling them cocaine with a street value of $400,000.

But Strayhorn reprimanded Concannon, saying that in making the sale he had shirked his responsibility to "thousands of young people" who look up to pro football players.

Concannon, who looked haggard and spoke slowly, had testified in his own defense Thursday, saying he was trapped into arranging the cocaine deal after he met undercover agent Sharon Bastian in September 1980.

Mistrial requested in Raider case

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Lawyers for the Oakland Coliseum called for a mistrial Friday in the antitrust case against the National Football League because of charges by an attorney for the Oakland Raiders that there was collusion between the NFL and a U.S. senator.

U.S. District Judge Harry Pregerson, who has denied several previous motions for mistrial by NFL attorneys, took the request under submission.

Edwin Hestley contended statements made Thursday at a news conference by Raiders attorney Joseph Alioto were prejudicial. Alioto accused Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker of supporting legislation that would exempt the NFL from antitrust laws in exchange for an expansion franchise in his home state of Tennessee.

A spokesman for Baker said the allegations were "completely untrue and unfounded."

The antitrust suit was filed after the NFL refused to let the Raiders transfer from the Oakland Coliseum to the Los Angeles Coliseum, left without a pro tenant when the Los Angeles Rams move to suburban Anaheim.

"It was a ploy motion," Alioto said of the mistrial request. "Their basic strategy is to fight for a hung jury."

Pregerson declared a mistrial in the case last summer when the jury in the first trial deadlocked 10-2 in favor of the Raiders and Los Angeles Coliseum.

Flyers dismiss head coach Quinn

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Flyers, declaring they don't want their young players to become accustomed to losing, fired head coach Pat Quinn Friday and replaced him with Bob McCammon.

It was Quinn who replaced McCammon on Jan. 30, 1979, when McCammon was given the axe as Flyers head coach. McCammon, 46, will leave his job as coach of the Maine Mariners, Philadelphia's farm team, to pursue his new duties.

In addition to signing on as coach for the rest of the season McCammon inked a multi-year contract as assistant general manager.

"A decision on whether or not Bob will continue to coach after the season has not been made," said Flyers General Manager Keith Allen. "We'll sit down and talk about it this summer."

In discussing Quinn's dismissal Allen said: "It's too early to start thinking about next year. We want to win now. Maybe it's expecting too much of Bob to turn things around in so short a time, but if anyone can do it he can. He's coached most of our players on our Maine farm team and he's a proven winner."

Allen also said he was concerned that the young players weren't progressing like they should.

Hoyas, Beavers clash for West berth

Georgetown may rely on Ewing; OSU to stay with slow-down

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — It took Georgetown Coach John Thompson half a game to break down Fresno State's defense. Now he has the same problem against Oregon State and the answer may again be 7-footer Pat Ewing.

The Hoyas, top-seeded in the NCAA Western Regionals, play the OSU Beavers today in the game for the West's berth in the NCAA final four at New Orleans next weekend.

In his semi-final game against 10th ranked Fresno State, Georgetown virtually ignored Ewing during the first half. As a result, the big freshman had only three points and just one rebound up to the time of his foul.

Ewing became the seventh-ranked Hoyas' favorite target in the second half. The other Georgetown players began lobbing passes inside to him for a series of slam dunks and easy layups that carried the Hoyas to a 58-40 win over the Bulldogs Thursday night and into the regional title game against No. 4 Oregon State.

"He's a winner," said Thompson about the play of his towering center. "And this was one of his typical games. He can be very surprising to teams by the way he pops in and scores."

"There are a lot of seven-footers around today. Pat's thing is his armspan. He's so very, very big nobody near him get a rebound," Thompson said.

"The kid likes to win and he surfaces when we need him. He began moving better in the second half against Fresno and that's why he played so much better."

Ewing hit on seven of his eight shots from the field for 15 points helping Georgetown set a regional tournament shooting record. The Hoyas hit 21 of their 33 attempts from the floor for 51.6 percent shooting accuracy in breaking the old playoff record of 61.9 percent set by Oregon State in 1966 against Houston.

Fresno State Coach Boyd Grant said it simply: "Ewing was extremely tough on us. He kept them ahead and did a good job of taking care of the ball inside."

In Thursday night's other game at the Brigham Young University Marriott Center, Oregon State outbounded eighth-ranked Idaho 33-17 to whip the Vandals 60-42.

Thompson called Fresno State's full-court press and match-up zone "the best defense I've seen this year."

And he claimed, because of the pressure, "we never really got into our offense against them."

And looking ahead to Saturday's afternoon game (2:35 p.m. EST) Thompson said, "I feel Oregon State will pose the same defensive problems as Fresno State did."

All-America guard Eric Floyd led Georgetown to a 25-20 halftime lead over Fresno State, scoring 10 of his 18 points in the opening half. But Ewing dominated the final 20 minutes. Red Higgins led the Bulldogs with 12 points, but Higgins had only two in the second half.

Georgetown is now 28-6 while Fresno State ends its season with a 27-7 record.

Oregon State, in avenging its 71-49 loss to Idaho Dec. 28, pulled out to a 31-25 lead at halftime and then went into its four-corner offense to beat the Vandals. Lester Conner and forward-turned-center Charlie Sitton led the 25-4 Beavers with 24 and 16 points respectively. Conner also led all rebounders with 10 and Sitton had seven.

Geordie Herbert was high for (27-3) moving better in the second half against Fresno and that's why he played so much better."

And looking ahead to Saturday's afternoon game (2:35 p.m. EST) Thompson said, "I feel Oregon State will pose the same defensive problems as Fresno State did."

All-America guard Eric Floyd led Georgetown to a 25-20 halftime lead over Fresno State, scoring 10 of his 18 points in the opening half. But Ewing dominated the final 20 minutes. Red Higgins led the Bulldogs with 12 points, but Higgins had only two in the second half.

Georgetown is now 28-6 while Fresno State ends its season with a 27-7 record.

Oregon State, in avenging its 71-49 loss to Idaho Dec. 28, pulled out to a 31-25 lead at halftime and then went into its four-corner offense to beat the Vandals. Lester Conner and forward-turned-center Charlie Sitton led the 25-4 Beavers with 24 and 16 points respectively. Conner also led all rebounders with 10 and Sitton had seven.

Louisville, UAB may break low-scoring trend

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Low-scoring games have been the bad thing in the NCAA Tournament this year but 20th-ranked Louisville and upstart Alabama-Birmingham should put a stop to that in the Midwest Regional final today.

"It ought to be an up-and-down the floor, interesting game to watch," said Louisville Coach Danny Crum Friday before putting his Cardinals through a final practice session.

"Quite wise, I think we match up pretty well."

"We know they have a great full-court press," countered Alabama-Birmingham star guard Oliver Robinson. "But once we break their first line of defense, we're going to take it right to the basket."

Louisville (22-9) goes into the 10:40 a.m. MST nationally televised game as the best ball of the season.

After a 12-8 start, the Cardinals have won 10 of their last 11 games with the only loss at Memphis State (73-62) in the finals of the Metro Conference Tournament.

Crum, who led the Cardinals to the NCAA title two years ago and to the Final Four three times in the last 10 years, said he was not about to give up after the disappointing start.

"I never thought our season was over," he insisted. "I felt with the schedule we played, if we won 18-9 games we'd get a bid."

Alabama-Birmingham Coach Gene Bartow, one victory away from becoming a coach at Louisville, said his school is not about to give up after the disappointing start.

USF officials deny coverup in Dailey case

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — University of San Francisco officials Friday denied a San Jose Mercury News report that they tried to protect their star basketball player, Quintin Dailey, after he was charged with sexually assaulting a female student.

"We have not been able to make any comment because of the gag order," said USF spokesman Ron Brill. "We haven't even been able to defend ourselves. But the university has been insistent in maintaining that no improprieties took place in the handling of the Dailey case."

Brill was accused of entering a woman's unlocked dormitory room, asking her for a kiss and forcing her to commit sex acts when she refused to kiss him.

He is free on $5,000 bond and faces charges of assault with intent to commit rape, assault with intent to commit oral copulation, assault, false imprisonment and burglary, with intent to commit rape. A preliminary hearing was scheduled for March 22. People close to the victim told the Mercury News during the two months before the assault and Dailey's Feb. 12 arrest on five felony charges that USF officials tried to convince her that Dailey could not have done it.

According to the Mercury News investigation, the campus Public Safety Department did not follow standard police procedure when the victim, whose name was not released, reported the crime.

They took no fingerprints, they did not collect other physical evidence, such as sheets, and they did not take the student to a hospital, according to the report. They also failed to report the incident to San Francisco police until the victim decided to report it herself — and by then it was too late to collect any evidence. The report said

Pair lead rain-delayed tournament

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (UPI) — Hale Irwin, a two-time U.S. Open winner, and the winner of last week's Inverrary Classic, shared the second-round lead Friday in the $500,000 Tournament Players Championship with four lesser-known golfers after play was halted for the day with 60 players still on the course.

Early-morning fog delayed the start of Friday's round for more than two hours and only two of the afternoon threesomes were able to finish before it became too dark to finish play.

The second round will be completed Saturday morning and the low 70 scorers in the 147-man field will play the third round Saturday afternoon.

Irwin, after shooting a 4-under-par 69 Friday, stands at 118. He is a 10-hole score matched by Tim Simpson, who tied the course record with a 66; Scott Simpson (70) who is no kin to Tim; Vance Heafner (70); and Lyn Litt (71).

Litt had shared the first-round lead with George Burns, who had a 73-140, and PGA champion Larry Nelson, one of the late starters who is 5-under with three holes yet to play.
