Memorial

Work begins on Vietnam tribute

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ground was broken Friday for the $7 million Vietnam Veterans Memorial — a stark granite monument almost as controversial as the bitter conflict it recalls.

It was not the war — ended nearly a decade ago — but the 2.7 million who served in it and the 57,000 who died in it that the memorial remembers.

Jan Scruggs, president of the memorial fund, said they "waited a long time to get the recognition this memorial provides."

The ground-breaking ceremonies for the black granite monument were both dignified and joyous, framed by the music of the U.S. Marine band and highlighted by some 120 veterans and others each turning over a shovelful of earth to begin construction.

Project organizers hope to have the memorial finished in time for dedication on Veterans Day, Nov. 11.

Three years in the planning, the memorial is being built in the Constitution Gardens section of Washington's grassy mall — with one of the long, arm-like polished walls stretching toward the Washington Monument while the other reaches toward the Lincoln Memorial.

On each of walls will be inscribed the names of the 57,692 known American dead and missing in the order of their death or disappearance.

Between the two arms of the V, the ground will be evacuated and with the walls installed at ground level, the arms will appear to recede into the earth at the ends. Atop the apex of the walls will be a flagpole with a plaque reading: "A gift from the veterans of Vietnam to the people of the United States of America."

The design, by competition winner Maya Ying Lin, was bitterly attacked by some Vietnam veterans and conservative columnists who charged that the V shape and the black granite really honored the antiwar movement, and the memorial was a symbol more of America's defeat in Vietnam than a tribute to those who served.

Weather: Shuttle's question mark

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — A top space agency official Friday cleared the space shuttle Columbia for a full seven-day mission despite a nagging radio problem — leaving landing-area weather as the big question mark.

"As far as I am concerned, the mission is going through the usual duration," said Eugene Kranz, deputy director of flight operations at the Johnson Space Center in Houston.

But he said: "Weather is going to be an important factor." Astronauts Jack Louma and Gordon Fullerton are scheduled to land Monday, but Kranz did not rule out their coming back Sunday or even Tuesday should the weather make that necessary.

The communications problem caused no loss of the vital information Louma and Fullerton were gathering on this pathfinding third test flight. The concern centered on maintaining backup communications capability and Kranz said the shuttle still had the necessary "redundancy."

Fullerton continued to put the jointed 50-foot remote cargo arm through its paces, and flight director Harold Draughon told a late-evening news conference he operated it both mechanically with hand controls and with a predetermined program in a computer, and stowed it away manually.

Louma wound up a key medical research experiment.

Astronauts: No travel expenses, hazard pay

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Astronauts Jack Louma and Gordon Fullerton are receiving less pay than the average commercial airline pilot and not a dime for travel expenses.

Since their launch into a 150-mile-high orbit Monday aboard space shuttle Columbia, Louma and Fullerton have worked as pilots, scientists, plumbers and small appliance repairmen.

They have maneuvered the giant space freighter to various positions, tried unsuccessfully to unclog a space age toilet, conducted complex experiments, hung paper-over-an-air-circulation-vent to keep condensation off their windows and helped ground technicians try to get a stubborn radio working again.

Their jobs aboard the Columbia may make them famous, but the pay won't make them rich.

They receive no flight pay, and no hazardous duty pay for their work performed at 17,500 mph.

"It's the same as if they were sitting in an office," said NASA spokesman Charles Redmond.

NASA officials say the Privacy Act prevents them from disclosing the actual salaries for Louma and Fullerton, but the pay range for astronauts is from the $19,500 paid beginners to the $84,000 annual salary of senior astronauts.

Louma has been with the astronaut corps about 16 years, and Fullerton 12.

Even if both earned the maximum astronaut pay, "it's a lot less than what a senior airline pilot makes," said Ed Ezell of NASA.

Draughon also said the system providing nitrogen for the crew's pressurized cabin had started leaking for the second time, but supplies were more than adequate for completion of the mission.

"We could fly three days longer than the mission without a problem," he said, but "I think we'll land Monday."

Initial forecasts for the Northrup Strip in New Mexico's high desert indicated the astronauts would encounter no weather problems on landing there, scheduled at 12:30 p.m. MST Monday.

But by the time Kranz discussed the situation, forecasters were saying the outlook at Northrup was expected to take a turn for the worse about two hours before the scheduled touchdown. The outlook there for Sunday was much better.

Military forecasters at White Sands said clearing skies were expected Sunday and that landing conditions looked good before 10 a.m. MST Monday, but were expected to worsen after that.

"We are continuing to watch the weather," Kranz said. "We have taken a look at the weather at Northrup Strip."

Kranz held an early-evening news conference to clear up day-long confusion and conflicting reports about the communications problem on Columbia and how serious it was.

"We haven't had any significant discussions relative to early mission termination to date in the control center," Kranz said.

An earlier report from mission control in Houston implied that officials would be talking about possibly shortening the flight because of the radio problem.

Disturbances in Middle East may doom U.S. peace plan

By JIM ANDERSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON — U.S. experts on the Middle East say the clashes between Palestinians and Israelis could lead to a final unraveling of the American-led peace process that began after the 1973 war.

One likely scenario is laid out by Harold Saunders, former assistant secretary of state, who sees a developing pattern of Palestinian civil disobedience.

Saunders — now with the American Enterprise Institute, says: "If this becomes a full campaign, and the Israelis respond by becoming repressive, it will end seven to eight years of peace negotiations."

"Camp David will be dead," he says, "and there is nothing to replace it."

So far a Palestinian Martin Luther King has not emerged; neither has an Israeli Bull Connor, but Saunders and others see the potential for a civil-rights style struggle growing.

Another concern, that the disturbances on the West Bank and Gaza could lead to the Israelis canceling or postponing the April 25 final withdrawal from the occupied Sinai seems less likely to develop.

However, one member of the Likud coalition in the Knesset, Rabbi Hayim Druckman of the National Religious Party, says the withdrawal should stop if Prime Minister Menachem Begin — loses a confidence vote, because the resulting caretaker government would not have the right to take such a major political step.

Begin — who was almost toppled this week by a 58-58 tie vote in the Knesset — scoffs at the idea.

In an interview with the Israeli newspaper Ma'ariv, he says, "Where did Rabbi Druckman get the idea that if he helped topple the government he would thus be stopping the withdrawal in the Sinai? This is totally unfounded; we will fulfill our commitments."

State Department officials believe Begin. They also point out that the Israeli government can function very well in a caretaker status, sometimes even better than normal. The Syrian-Israeli disengagement agreement, one of the most painful political decisions in recent Israeli history, was put through when Golda Meir headed a caretaker regime in 1974.

There are two basic problems that raise the prospect, among State Department officials) that the current West Bank disturbances will lead to a general breakdown of Middle East diplomacy.

First, as Saunders points out, the United States no longer knows what the Israeli government's real intentions are in the occupied territories. Is the Israeli government intent on annexing the West Bank; as some officials think; or is Begin simply taking steps to prevent the emergence of an independent Palestinian state on his borders?

Saunders says, "We don't know. The last time Begin met with President Reagan (in September, 1981) there was not a serious conversation. They should have one now."

Second, the fundamental problem comes from the mathematical and political impossibility of squeezing two disparate communities, Arab Palestinians and Jewish Israelis, into the same piece of real estate.

A study by the Jerusalem Institute for Federal Studies, published by AEI, stated the problem accurately in deadpan, scholarly style.

"The main difficulty encountered when planning the settlement of Judea and Samaria (the Israeli term for the West Bank) is that it is not empty but inhabited by about 600,000 Arabs who are not prepared to leave any place of their own free will."

Bank employees can't identify Boyce

Payday for prosecution informants could reach 25,000

BOISE (UPI) — Two bank employees testified Friday that they could not identify convicted spy Christopher Boyce as the robber who held up their bank at Spokane, Wash., in 1980.

The teller and bank operations officer said the man who held up the bank on Sept. 3, 1980, was of medium height and build and had dark, wavy hair like the man convicted of selling U.S. satellite secrets to the Soviet Union.

But, they told the jury in the third day of Boyce's trial, the robber had a heavy beard and unusually smooth skin.

When asked to look around the courtroom and point to the robber, both Nancy Haskell and Jean Davidson of the Pacific National Bank branch said they could not positively identify the man who took $850 and ran into a parking lot.

Federal prosecutors, however, attacked pancake makeup, cans of hair dye, nose putty, wigs and false sideburns in front of the jury — as well as ammunition, a .32-caliber automatic handgun and a holster — and claimed the disguises and weaponry were used by Boyce in eight holdups in eastern Washington, western Montana and Idaho during his 19-month flight from authorities following an escape from a federal prison in California.

U.S. Attorney Guy Hurlbut has cautioned jurors to listen carefully to the descriptions tellers give of the robber, then match those descriptions with the disguises paid government informants will say they applied to Boyce for the robberies.

But the credibility of those paid informants also came into question as jurors considered bank-robbery and conspiracy charges against Boyce and co-defendants Gloria Ann White, 42, of Newport, Ore., and Calvin Robinson, 40, of Richmond, Calif. A federal agent said the undicted co-conspirators — brothers James, Brett and Joseph Pratt — have been paid more than $25,000 in "medical and subsistence" payments since they directed federal agents to Boyce at the Port Angeles, Wash., drive-in where he was apprehended on Aug. 21, 1981.

And U.S. Marshal's Service Chief Inspector Thomas C. Kupferer said the three also have been granted immunity from prosecution in connection with bank robberies they say they committed with Boyce.

Joseph and Brett also have been given $200 rewards for information that led to the convicted spy's capture.

Defense attorneys, however, contend Joseph and Brett are eligible to receive up to $25,000 apiece in rewards — and they have hinted that the final sum awarded the brothers hinges on the quality of their testimony in the case.

Robinson, a convict who served time with Boyce at a federal prison in Lompoc, Calif., and Mrs. White also were accused of harboring the convicted spy at a North Idaho summer cabin after his January 1980 escape.

Boyce, the son of a former FBI agent, also faces five bank-robbery counts in western Washington.

Initiative nets first 1,000 signatures

BOISE (UPI) — An initiative drive to increase the residential property-tax exemption turned in its first thousand signatures Thursday to the state, but need 28,000 more by July to qualify.

Ken Robison, chairman of the residential Tax Initiative, said proposed measure would increase the home-owner's property-tax exemption from 10 percent of $10,000 of assessed home value to 50 percent or $50,000.

The recently-adjoined 1982 Legislature voted to continue the current — 10 percent — exemption — for another year.

KAID given $260,000 in latest fund venture

BOISE (UPI) — The most recent fund-raising effort for Boise's public television station netted $260,000 in pledges and employer matches, a spokesman for the group which organized the drive said Friday.

Philip Hunter, board president for The Friends of Channel 4, said collections from Festival 82 at KAID-TV exceeded the group's goal of $250,000.

Hunter said pledges were phoned in from more than 100 towns in the station's viewing area during the 18-day event.

Margie Boylan, KAID development director, added that Boise is the 143rd TV market in the country, but ranks 21st in the actual number of pledges received.

"This is a real tribute both to the quality of Channel 4 programming and the generosity of our viewers," she said.

Idaho's public television stations have stepped up their efforts to collect money from private sources in light of the Legislature's decision to tone down funding for the three outlets.

Lawmakers gave the stations in Boise, Pocatello and Moscow less than $100,000 for the first half of the current fiscal year, and allocated $125,000 to finance operations for the second half — which ends June 30.

The House and Senate also approved the appropriation of $680,000 for the public-TV system for fiscal year 1983. The allocation was far below the stations' request of more than $1 million.

Police, security officers take anti-terrorism course

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho law enforcement officials and private security agents concluded Thursday a special course on anti-terrorism tactics — just in case. James Davis and James Stimpson of the California-based security consulting firm walked 23 law enforcement officials and private security officers through the terrorist world in a two-day course in Boise.

"The United States is pitifully unprepared to respond to terrorism, not only at the local level, but among corporations as well," said Davis.

The two-day seminar sponsored by the State Police Officers Standards and Training Academy and the Boise

Police Department explored terrorists' tactics and countermeasures — including practice with a 9mm machine gun and other weapons.

"Terrorist groups pose a threat to corporate America," said Davis, pointing out that "small cities like Boise that are the headquarters for international corporations are seldom familiar with anti-terrorist tactics."

In the past such corporations have been targeted by terrorists, Davis said.

Terrorist activities include bank robbery, a common means of financing other illegal activities, bombings and kidnappings.

Two life sentences given to man for robbery death

BOISE (UPI) — A man convicted of participating in the slaying of a Garden City gas station cashier was given a life sentence of life in prison Friday by Fourth District Judge Robert Rowlett.

Calling the April 6, 1981, killing of Dixie Wilson a "brutal and incomprehensible act," Rowlett ordered Randall Bainbridge to two concurrent life terms — one for the robbery of the Baird-Oil Co. station and the second for the multiple stabbing and gunshot murder.

The Judge said there would be no chance for parole for Bainbridge, 22.

He said he handed down the life sentence — rather than the death penalty — because he believed Bainbridge did not actually commit the killing, but knew it would occur when he and Lacey Sivak entered the gas station early in the morning to buy a package of cigarettes.

Sivak, 22, has been sentenced to death in connection with the slaying and robbery that netted $185. He had worked at the station, but was fired in February, 1981.

Fuel flows freer — with OSHA's help

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Motorists may soon get government relief from a common annoyance in using self-service gasoline pumps — the lack of a latch on the pump-nozzle-to-keep the fuel flowing.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration Friday proposed to repeal an OSHA prohibition against such latches. It said earlier safety concerns were not borne out and some people ignore the rule anyway.

Officials said users have propped open nozzles with whatever was available — including such things as gas caps, pens or wooden dowels — creating a greater danger than the latches.

Without the latches, consumers must keep a hand on the cold metal nozzle or the gasoline flow dribbles to a halt.

The latches have been banned by OSHA on gas pumps since 1971, except where a service station attendant dispenses the fuel.

"This is a prime example of what President Reagan means when he says we should 'reduce the unnecessary regulatory burden by getting the government off the backs of the people,'" said OSHA Administrator Thomas A. Cochran.

The proposal is to be formally published in the Federal Register Tuesday, and would go into effect after public comment and possibly a hearing.

A Lundberg Survey cited by the Labor Department estimated about 72 percent of the nation's 190,000 public service stations now have self-service operations, averaging eight self-service nozzles each.

OSHA banned the latch-open devices at a time when the code of the National Fire Protection Association regarding flammable and combustible liquids also carried such a recommendation.

In 1981, however, the association revised its rules to allow the latch-open devices.

Under the new OSHA proposal, service station operators would be required to have latches on self-service pumps, but it would be allowed.

Reagan brings message to blacks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, trying to calm criticism from minorities, Wednesday denied his administration has "attacked the poor to reach our own goals."

He promised to take his message personally to black communities.

The president told about 75 black clergymen attending a White House luncheon that his program to turn the economy around, including elimination of a number of federal programs geared to help the disadvantaged, was designed to help everyone.

"Some well-meaning programs robbed recipients of their dignity, trapped them into a dependency that left them with idle time, left them with little self respect and left them with little prospect of a better future," Reagan said.

Reagan, speaking just before the lunch in the State Dining Room, told the religious leaders that "the accusation that bolters me the most, is the charge that we don't care about the poor and disadvantaged. And it bothers me because it isn't true."

"Some would have you believe we attacked the poor-to-reach-our-own goals," the president said. "I believe some of the things I've seen and read, I'd be worried too."

The Rev. Ralph Abernathy, an old-line civil rights activist, said the president is a "compassionate man" and told the ministers he would explain his policies in person to minorities on their home grounds.

"He has decided to go into black communities and meet with black people," said Abernathy. "I think this will do great deal to straighten out his image."

"I didn't think this meeting was cosmetic," said Hosea Williams, also a veteran of the civil rights days. "I think the president needed it and I think his administration needed it. Those preachers asked some hard questions this day."

Abernathy and Williams endorsed Reagan in the waning days of his presidential campaign in 1980, drawing criticism from some leaders of major civil rights groups.

Abernathy, who led the Poor People's March on Washington, said the religious leaders Friday had "an opportunity to acquaint (Reagan) with unrest in the black community. There was no pulling of punches."

Williams added, "He answered a lot of questions and he put some minds at ease."

Reagan told the ministers everyone benefits by his administration bringing down inflation. "Unemployment remains too high," he said. "But he pledged, 'We're doing our best' to create more jobs through a revived economy."

The meeting was requested by Reagan to develop a "dialogue" to find ways in which churches and the administration can work together to improve conditions for the poor.

Nation's trade deficit drops to 11-month low

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Helped by a drop in oil prices, the nation's merchandise trade deficit fell to $1.2 billion in February — the smallest red ink figure in 11 months, the Commerce Department said Friday.

The shrinkage in the month's deficit was due to conservative lower deficit oil prices and possible paper work aberrations, department analysts said.

The value of all imports dropped 33.7 percent for the month, pulling the value of all imports down by 16.6 percent, the department said.

Exports declined 0.2 percent from January to $18.7 billion, while imports totaled $19.5 billion.

It was the sharpest decline in imports since a 19.5 percent plummet in February 1975.

Reflecting the decline in oil imports, the merchandise trade deficit with oil exporting countries dropped to $1.05 billion — $384 million less than the nation's trade deficit with Japan for the month. Throughout much of the past decade, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries has generated the largest single major category of deficit.

The volume of oil imports averaged 5 million barrels a day for the month, just 100,000 barrels above the December average.

The February deficit was the smallest since a $705 million deficit in March 1981.

The trade deficit for January was a revised $3.1 billion, and for January and February of the 1982 trade deficit is $1.6 billion less than during the same period last year.

For all of last year the trade deficit amounted to $37.7 billion.

The balance of payments, broadest measure of the nation's transactions with other countries, showed a $6.6 billion surplus last year despite a $85 million deficit in the last quarter. It includes trade in services and merchandise as well as returns on foreign investment.

The nation's surplus in trade in farm commodities climbed to $2.4 billion, a 25 percent increase.

More arrests in Brinks case

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two more suspected terrorists of the radical gang that staged the bloody $1.6 million robbery of a Brink's armored car last October were arrested Friday.

Information for the arrest was provided by two members of the group, officials said.

A joint FBI-police anti-terrorist task force captured Edward Lawrence Joseph, 29, and Cecil Ferguson, 35, in two of three pro-dawn raids in Manhattan during which a 9 mm handgun and a 2-caliber rifle with a scope were seized.

Both men were charged with taking part in the bungled Oct. 20 robbery in suburban Rockland County during which two police officers and a guard were killed.

U.S. contacts Cuba about insurgency

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has maintained contact with Cuba to impress on the Castro government the "dangers that there are for all of us" from Cuban-backed insurgency in Central America, a ranking administration official said Friday.

Assistant Secretary of State Thomas Enders would not comment directly on reports confirmed by a high-level source in Mexico City — that Ambassador-at-large Vernon Walters met with Cuban President Fidel Castro for four hours in Havana earlier this month to discuss Cuban ties to Nicaragua and leftist guerrillas in El Salvador.

But, Enders said on the CBS Morning News. "We've always thought that there should be a dimension of contact with declared or potential adversaries in the region."

"We are very concerned by this big campaign by Cuba in Central America to unite the left and arm it and train it," he said. "And we are trying to communicate to the Cubans some of the dangers that there are for all of us if this campaign continues at the level it is."

The United States has charged that Cuba, the Soviet Union and Nicaragua are training and arming the leftist guerrillas fighting the U.S.-backed Duarte junta in El Salvador.

Enders declined to say whether the administration would cut off military and economic aid to El Salvador if the winner of Sunday's elections is an increasingly powerful ultra-rightist movement led by Roberto d'Aubuisson, who opposes land reform and has been linked to death squads.

But he said the United States will expect the new government to continue the political, economic and social reforms now under way.

"We have been pursuing some major policies in these which I think are really fundamental to the United States," Enders said.

"We're going to go on pursuing those," he said. "And we're going to go to whatever government emerges from the election and say, 'These are the things we can support and this is the way we can support it. And we expect those policies to go on after the election as before.'"

Congressional critics of President Reagan's policies have threatened to move to cut off all U.S. aid to El Salvador in the event of such an outcome.

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., left Friday for El Salvador as the leader of a U.S. delegation of election observers.

Reports of the Havana trip by Walters, a former deputy director of the CIA with wide experience in Latin American affairs, surfaced amid mounting efforts to arrange talks on a political solution to the strife in Central America.

Committee threatens official with subpoena

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee is prepared to subpoena a controversial Pentagon official who has refused to testify on civil defense issues, Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., said Friday.

"The committee will not give up," Pressler said in a statement. "If it appears that a subpoena will be issued at the committee's meeting on March 30 to compel Mr. (T.K.) Jones' attendance."

Committee chairman Charles Percy, R-Ill., said earlier this week the Pentagon agreed that Jones, undersecretary of defense for research and engineering for strategic and nuclear forces, would appear before the panel Tuesday.

But, Pressler said, "Yesterday I was called by (Defense Undersecretary) Fred Ikle, who tried to convince me that the committee should abandon its efforts to get Mr. Jones to testify."

The controversy surrounding Jones involves his statement to the Los Angeles Times that Americans could recover from an all-out nuclear war within two to four years. "If there are enough shovels to go around."

Private and administration experts disagreed. Arms arms negotiator Paul Nitze said this week it was impossible.

Pressler, who heads the panel's arms control subcommittee, refused March 16 to hear administration testimony on civil defense issues from Pentagon officials because Jones was not among them.

At that time, a visibly upset Pressler said the civil defense hearings had been rescheduled three times since January at Jones' request.

PATCO contacts ruled OK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Contacts by Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis and union leader Albert Shanker with government board members considering the PATCO decertification had no effect on the decision, an administrative law judge concluded Friday.

In submitting his 51-page report to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, hearing officer John Vittono noted possible "unauthorized communications" with outsiders by Federal Labor Relations Authority member Leon Applewhite, but said they did not affect the decision.

The court is currently considering an appeal by the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization of the authority's decision Oct. 22 to revoke PATCO certification as bargaining agent for air traffic controllers of the Federal Aviation Administration.

It ordered the hearing after an FBI report showed possible improper outside contacts by Applewhite.

Shanker is president of the 600,000-member American Federation of Teachers union and a vice president of the AFL-CIO.

The authority stripped PATCO of its bargaining status following its illegal strike by 12,500 controllers last August against the federal government.

When walking down the aisle, the brides almost invariably smile and the grooms almost invariably frown. There's a simple explanation. When nervous, women usually grin and men usually growl.

PIPE SMOKERS

Every pipe smoker has his favorite pipe. Most probably he bought it himself. But the majority of his pipes, if he has a whole batch, he did not purchase personally. The sales records show seven out of 10 men's pipes are picked out and paid for by women.

Today is Saturday, March 27, the 86th day of 1982 with 273 to follow.
The moon is moving toward its first quarter.
The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.
There is no evening star.
Those born on this date are under the sign of Aries.
American publisher of prints, Nathaniel Currier—of Currier and Ives—was born March 27, 1813.
On this date in history:
— In 1634, Leonard and George Calvert, English colonists, bought a tract of 30 acres on the St. Charles River and established what is now Maryland.
— In 1958, Nikita Khrushchev replaced Nikolai Bulganin as premier of the Soviet Union.
— In 1964, an earthquake in Alaska left 17 people dead and damage estimated at $750 million.
— In 1977, two Boeing 747 jets collided and burst into flames in the Canary Islands killing 577 people.
A thought for the day: U.S. politician Wendell Wilkie said, "The Constitution does not provide for first- and second-class citizens."

Louise Mandrell a sweetheart

By United Press International
Louise Mandrell, haven-raised sister of country music's Barbara Mandrell, is the official "sweetheart of Tennessee." She was the unanimous choice of 50 Tennessee city managers — the first time the city manager's association has so honored anyone. Miss Mandrell — accepted — inscribed crimson hearts from the managers and in return entertained them with a few tunes. She also was named 1981's "Yellow Rose of Texas" by the Texas state legislature, another first.
Sugar Ray Robinson is nobody's punching bag. The former world boxing champion is suing a sporting goods company for $10 million because it allegedly used his name and image to sell its products. Robinson's lawyer, Donald Woldman, said Robinson had a contract with Sport Fun Inc., that expired 10 years ago and never was renewed. "So Robinson walks into a Sears store last Christmas and there's his name on a punching bag," Woldman said.
Abbie Hoffman has something to yell "yippie" about. Hoffman, 44, founder in the 1960s of the Youth International Party, better known as the Yippies, is free after serving 10 months in jail for selling cocaine. Even when he was in jail he was pretty free — he had weekend furloughs, worked as a drug counselor and was only required to sleep in jail. For the next two months, he will travel to New Mexico and California to speak before college audiences.
Police Chief Jim Pertin would have ridden off in the sunset, but it was mid-afternoon. And there was some double he could ride. The chief retired after 20 years on the force in Everett, Wash. "One of the things I've always said... is that one of the last things I'd like to do is ride off into the sunset with my white horse and white hat," said Perin. So, too well-wishers presented him with a 26-year-old Appaloosa. "Where's my posse? Where are you supposed to go with this thing?" Pertin asked, as curious doubters in the crowd he really could ride.

Six-year-old on trial as an adult

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Dimpled 6-year-old Nancy Jo Burch will stand trial as an adult on aggravated assault charges for allegedly hitting her 2-year-old girl friend with a stick, a Circuit Court judge ruled Friday.
Alan Whitte, Nancy Jo's attorney, requested the ruling because he wants the case tried by a jury in hopes the blonde first-grader will be exonerated and no criminal record will follow her under Florida law, Judge R.A. Green had no alternative but to grant the request. He said a trial date would be set within the next three months.
The felony of aggravated assault carries a maximum 15-year prison sentence in Florida.

Papers, photos clues to Nazi posts?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Papers and photographs found in Mexico and believed to have belonged to Hitler's SS chief Heinrich Himmler may offer clues to any former Nazi holding government posts in Europe, a former Israeli diplomat says.

Chaim Rosenthal said Thursday he and a group of private individuals paid $40,000 to a former aide to Himmler to see the documents. He said the aide, about 80, was confined to a wheelchair and living in Mexico.

Himmler was captured by the British at the end of World War II and committed suicide with cyanide.

Rosenthal, 43, a Tel Aviv artist who had been an Israeli consul for cultural affairs in the United States, said the collection includes copies of some 700 letters Himmler is believed to have written to his family between 1927 and 1943, purported diaries of his wife and daughter and 135 photos of Himmler with the top Nazi hierarchy.

Manhattan art appraiser Paul Zerler, who is setting up a special panel of Nazi era experts to study the documents, said so far the papers reviewed appear to be authentic.

"We want to withhold final judgement on whether these are all one of a kind, authentic originals but so far what has been looked at appears to be correct," he said.

Rosenthal, who plans to have the papers donated for research at the University of Tel Aviv and other research institutes, said they give insight into Himmler's character and family life.

"Himmler was a meticulous writer — he wrote about the people he had to meet and business he did," Rosenthal said.

"He wrote about meetings with such men as Herrmann Goering and Reinhard Heydrich and at the same time addressed his wife as 'mummy' and signed 'with love, your pappy'."

Rosenthal said also among the documents are a Hitler Youth organization certificate for his stepson, a Nazi Party membership book for his wife, Marga, who was a health food enthusiast, her recipes with notations on how Hitler enjoyed them, household accounts and gift lists naming persons who gave presents for Christmas.

"In those papers you can find a beautiful list of names," said Rosenthal, explaining that several names were found of people who may currently hold government posts in Eastern and Western Europe. "Those people were young officers at the time so they're at the right age now."

He declined to release specific names or countries, saying that after further research, "I presume we'll contact the proper authorities."

Italy's leader, Haig discuss dangers of Moscow's role

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Sandro Pertini of Italy and Secretary of State Alexander Haig Friday discussed the dangers of the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan and Moscow's role in the political and military crackdown in Poland.

"We discussed Poland and Afghanistan as rather special examples — violations of human rights," Haig said following a working luncheon with the 55-year-old leader, who was jailed in World War II by Benito Mussolini and sentenced to death by the Nazis.

A false release order spared the life of the veteran political leader.

Pertini severely criticized the Soviets soon after nearly 100,000 occupation troops invaded Afghanistan in December 1979, a month after he gave a stinging rebuke to Ayatollah Khomeini for the seizure of the American hostages in Iran.

Pertini blamed the Soviets for "enslaving the crackdown in Poland against the liberal trade and political movement and won the praise of American leaders for his actions." The prime minister is the center of political power in Italian politics, but Pertini, in his largely ceremonial office, is a popular figure well suited to easing tensions and disputes.

Haig praised Italy's decisions in two other areas — participating in the Sinal peacekeeping force in NATO's missile modernization program.

Democrats open conventions to party leaders

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Democratic National Committee voted overwhelmingly Friday to give party leaders more power in selecting presidential candidates.

The move curbs the importance of the Iowa precinct caucus and New Hampshire primary.

On a vote twice by only a handful of dissenters, the party rolled back a number of reforms that have been made in the candidate selection process in the 14 years since the turbulent 1968 Democratic convention in Chicago.

Supporters said the new rules will strengthen the party and make it appeal to a larger section of voters, without weakening traditional Democratic commitments to affirmative action and the equal division of delegates between men and women.

Adopting rules for their 1984 convention, the Democrats voted: to give a big new block of uncommitted delegate seats to party leaders and elected officials; to ease the restrictions on pledged delegates at the convention; to let states conduct modified "winner-take-all" primaries, and to shorten the primary and caucus season in presidential years.

The only real dispute over the new rules was on "loophole" primaries in which the winning candidate takes all the delegates at stake in a congressional district rather than dividing them proportionally according to the vote.

With only about 60 of the 347 members in opposition, the DNC agreed to restore "loophole" primaries for 1984. They were used in 1976 but outlawed for 1980.

At the behest of several larger states with strong political organizations, the 68-member rules commission proposed legalizing "loophole" primaries again for 1984. Party liberals fought on the grounds that it would make national conventions less representative of voter wishes, but they were voted down.

Other changes proposed by the commission:

- Shorten the primary season by five weeks by forcing all primaries into a three month period beginning in the second week of March. There are only two exceptions — the Iowa caucus is to be held no sooner than two weeks before the "window," and the New Hampshire primary, one week before the official season.

The significance of Iowa and New Hampshire will be severely diminished since they traditionally were held much earlier and often selected a frontrunner that proved unrepeatable.

• Add 550 unpledged delegate slots for Democratic elected officials and party leaders, including three-fifths of the Democrats in the House and Senate. After 1984, Democrats virtually banned special treatment for their own leaders, requiring most of them to run for delegate seats like anyone else.

• Nearly remove the controversial "faithful delegate" rule that in 1980 gave candidates the right to remove a pledged delegate who defected on the convention floor. The new rule would require delegates only "in all good conscience to reflect the views of those who elected them."

Herpes afflictions soar to national epidemic

ATLANTA (UPI) — Incurable genital herpes has soared to epidemic proportions in the United States with up to 20 million persons suffering from the disease and the case load growing by an estimated 400,000 a year, federal health officials said Friday.

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control weekly Morbidity and Mortality report said confirmed data supports the contention that genital herpes is an "ongoing epidemic."

The CDC report, based on figures compiled by the National Disease and Therapeutic Index, said the 29,550 yearly cases reported in 1966 had increased to 260,890 yearly by 1979. Officials said it was the first time accurate figures had been compiled on the number of cases for that period.

"We are deluged with calls here about genital herpes," said the CDC's Dr. Mary Guinan, the agency's expert on herpes.

"We bought the figures from them (Therapeutic Index) and it was the first solid data we have on the cases of herpes," she said. "The rate of the increase was surprising and dramatic," she said.

She said CDC officials are not sure how many men now have herpes, but estimate at least 5 million have the virus and up to 20 million could be infected.

Dr. Guinan said at least 400,000 additional Americans are believed to be contracting the disease each year.

She said the latest figures become even more significant because of the economy.

"Due to the economy, the number of doctor visits has decreased. But with herpes the increase is almost a straight line up," she said.

The CDC report said the increased incidence of genital herpes was of concern because in 90 percent of the victims the sores flare up again at intermittent intervals.

Dr. Guinan said there is a strong association between genital herpes infection in women and the development of cervical cancer.

She said babies passing through the birth canal can be infected with herpes and the virus is often life threatening. She said herpes infection in newborns has a mortality rate of 50 percent.

Dr. Guinan said between 500 and 1,000 babies are born yearly with a herpes infection acquired from the mother.

There is no proven cure for genital herpes, said Guinan, although a vaccine is being developed by a major drug company, and a drug in pill form known as Acyclovir looks promising in tests and might go on the market in the next few weeks.

FBI incidents fall astray

CHICAGO (UPI) — An FBI agent was wrestled to the ground and beaten in an attaché case-snatching incident involving a suspected videotape piracy scheme, the FBI says Thursday, as an agency investigation has run awry.

"It's an official FBI investigation and no improperly has been found. There will be no further comment made," said the FBI's top spokesman at the incident Thursday on Michigan Avenue's Magnificent Mile.

Police were equally mum on the incident, referring all questions to the FBI — at the agency's request. But a piecemeal account by those close to the incident showed it began during the lunch hour when an agent ran up to his suspect, snatched the case and ran off.

An unnamed cabdriver who witnessed the snatching described the snatcher as a small white man who "didn't seem well coordinated." The victim of the snatching was a much taller, well-built black man who ran after the alleged thief, tackled him and began beating him.

As crowd quickly gathered and police were summoned, witnesses said, a woman mistook the black man as the snatcher and also began pummeling him with her purse. Police arrived and took both parties into custody for questioning.

The snatcher first gave police a bogus identity, then identified himself as an FBI agent investigating the piracy — tapes and video cassettes. After the suspect was verified by his superiors, both he and the snatching victim were released from custody, police said.

The FBI's first investigative gaffe occurred Tuesday and involved a Chicago police officer who is awaiting trial for bribery. The officer caught a man eavesdropping on him in a Southwest Side pizza parlor and grabbed an FBI-planted transmitter.

The FBI contended the incident had nothing to do with the pending charges.

Tougher standards in school urged

By GLEN WARCHOL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — If a statewide group of experts has its way, an Idaho legislator is going to be worth a lot of more.

In this case, the group is not the Idaho Wool Growers Association. It's the Idaho Commission on Excellence in Education.

The commission, created by the state Board of Education this winter, is moving toward recommending tougher requirements for both high school diplomas and state college entrance standards.

According to Miriam Breckenridge, a Twin Falls parent and civic worker who is one of the representatives on the commission, high school is the weak link in the state's public school system.

"Many students work very hard in the ninth grade, then do less and less as they move through high school," she says. "It's the feeling of the commission that the students should be more interested and stretching more in high school. They should be expending their greatest effort in the 12th grade."

After its first two meetings, the commission agreed that a 35-credit core curriculum should be required of all students.

The students would take English, with emphasis on writing; reading, with courses to accommodate students with different abilities, including advanced reading courses; mathematics; and speech. Also science, social science, health, physical education and a humanities course would be required for a total of 21 credits.

"We are going to insist on a core of capability to write, speak and understand the English language," Breckenridge says.

Additionally, each student would be required to take 14 elective credits in academic or vocational subjects.

The commission suggests that school districts can meet additional electives available by establishing a seven-period schedule, accomplished by planning an extra "floating period" in the regular six-period day.

The commission's recommendations are timely in light of the current scheduling controversy at Twin Falls High School, Breckenridge says. Many parents and educators in Twin Falls would like to see the district's graduation requirements increased and the class schedule changed to allow students to take a full six academic credits per day.

One of the schedules being considered for the high school is a "floating six," similar to the state group's recommendation, but it would have a six-day period rotating on a weekly basis through a five-period day.

"This (floating seventh-period schedule) is a drastic change," Breckenridge says. "We are saying, six periods — of course. But if you (school districts) really want to allow electives, you could have a seven-period (schedule)."

Free speech issue in suit over sign law

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A decision regarding a billboard company's challenge of the Twin Falls city sign ordinance was put off for at least two weeks following a Fifth District Court hearing Friday.

The hearing stemmed from city officials' attempts to secure a summary judgment that would dismiss the lawsuit filed last month by Shelby Outdoor Advertising, 240 Blue Lakes Blvd.

The lawsuit asks for a judgment against the city's sign ordinance on the grounds that it violates the advertising firm's right to freedom of speech guaranteed by the First Amendment.

Although arguments were made on the motion, Judge Theron Ward allowed more time for both sides to submit additional affidavits with the court. Those documents will be filed during the next two weeks.

The lawsuit resulted from the city ordinance that bans the placement of "off-premise" signs in such strip development areas as Blue Lakes Boulevard North and Addison Avenue East. The city allows businesses located in these areas to mount their own signs. But it bans signs that advertise products and services not provided at the location, otherwise known as "off-premise" signs.

Billboards would fall under the definition of "off-premise" signs. Last year, Shelby representatives attempted to have the ordinance amended in order to allow billboards in those areas. During hearings on the ordinance last summer, the city Planning and Zoning Commission endorsed a proposed amendment that would have allowed, through conditional-use permits, billboards along Blue Lakes Boulevard North. However, City Council rejected that proposal, continuing the ban on the grounds of traffic safety and aesthetics.

In asking the district court to find the ordinance unconstitutional, the lawsuit referred to a 1981 U.S. Supreme Court decision that ruled it unconstitutional to ban outdoor advertising as unconstitutional.

But in her arguments Friday, the city's attorney, Susan Swanberg, said the Supreme Court decision did not apply in this case. The Supreme Court overruled the San Diego ordinance because it attempted to ban certain types of non-commercial advertising, she said. The court said attempts to regulate the content of advertising violated the First Amendment, she said.

If anything, the Supreme Court decision would tend to confirm the legality of the Twin Falls city ordinance, Swanberg said. Although overturning the San Diego sign ordinance on free-speech grounds, the same decision contained an endorsement of a city's right to regulate outdoor advertising in order to preserve aesthetics and traffic safety, she said.

But Shelby's lawyer, Rob Payne, countered that the distinction between "off-premise" and "on-premise" signs constituted a free-speech issue.

A business can utilize outdoor advertising on its own premises, but if an advertising firm attempted to rent that same space for use as a billboard, its efforts would be banned by the ordinance, he said. As such, the ordinance gives the city discretion over the content of advertising, Payne said.

"The city has not provided any proof that outdoor advertising constitutes a threat to traffic safety or aesthetics, he said.

Archbishop Patrick Flores of San Antonio says Hispanic parents must give their children the opportunity to succeed

Archbishop encourages ethnic pride

By TRUDY TARJO
Times-News special writer

TWIN FALLS — Archbishop Patrick Flores smiled at the children gazing upward at him and placed his hand on one young girl's head.

"Why are there few Hispanic priests and sisters?" he asked the more than 200 people gathered in the reception area of the Guadalupe Center in Twin Falls on Friday afternoon.

"Because we say our children would never make it. Because the children say, 'We aren't worthy,'" he said.

"I can say, 'I made it!'" Flores said. "The children have the capacity, and we (the clergy) can help them with scholarships and living expenses. Give your children the opportunity.

"As for being worthy, no one's worthy. San Pedro, San Paulo, no one's worthy. It is a gift. And no one does it alone. We all need help."

In Twin Falls as the guest of honor to celebrate the 450th anniversary of Our Lady of Guadalupe's appearance to a poor peasant, Juan Diego, Flores spoke with the authority of experience.

The son of migrant workers, he is the first Hispanic bishop in the United States. He was installed in 1978 as archbishop of San Antonio, Texas, where 80 percent of the Catholic population is Hispanic, almost exclusively of Mexican origin. An estimated 80 percent of the Idaho Hispanic population is from Texas.

He spoke of the need for education and the importance of parental involvement in children's affairs.

Sketching briefly the influx of Hispanic cultures in the United States during the past 30 years, he outlined the present situation of a growing Hispanic population interacting with a basically European culture.

"Just remember, the Europeans came here for the same reasons: freedom and a better life," he said.

He encouraged ethnic pride in a culture that Our Lady of Guadalupe, the patroness of Mexico, had blessed with the image of herself imprinted on Juan Diego's vest. A rough cloak. Scientists have been unable to explain how the image was made.

By the end of the century, 50 percent of the U.S. Catholic population will be Hispanic, he predicted.

"We are special people; we are important to God, which has more value than anything else, even though we are poor.

"We are all brothers and sisters, and must live in harmony," he said.

Gladys Esquivel, of the Idaho Legal Aid Services office in Burley, compared the Hispanic community's elaborate festivities this year with Flores' reception here 10 years ago.

"There were about five people in Burley to greet him. He ended up at the Twin Falls migrant camp, staying mass outdoors."

Man loses bid to have prison time overturned

Ward rules judge not bound by plea bargain agreement

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Boise man lost his second attempt to win an early release from prison Friday.

Judge Theron Ward ruled that prosecutors had not breached a plea-bargain agreement that led to the defendant's conviction for armed robbery last year.

The decision, made in Fifth District Court, means that Spencer will remain in the state penitentiary at Boise to continue serving his five-year sentence.

Spencer pleaded guilty to the March

4, 1981, robbery of the Maverik Country Store, 366 Washington St. N.

And in return for his guilty plea, prosecutors agreed to recommend that Spencer be sentenced to spend 120-days at the North Idaho Correctional Institute at Cottonwood. Generally, inmates who complete the NICI program are placed on probation.

The prosecution made such a recommendation at Spencer's June 22, 1981, sentencing. Jim Meservy, the deputy prosecutor at that time, said Spencer had cooperated with police, had not been convicted previously of a felony and had testified at the trial of co-defendant Ron Pierce, who was later convicted by a 12-member jury. But Judge Daniel Meehl rejected the recommendation and imposed the five-year prison sentence.

When Spencer's case again appeared before Meehl at a sentencing reconsideration hearing on Sept. 30, 1981, Meservy argued against reducing the sentence. As a result, Spencer filed a civil lawsuit, alleging that Meservy breached the plea-bargain agreement.

The decision not to recommend the 120-day Cottonwood program at the Sept. 30 reconsideration hearing was made after consultation with Prosecutor Harry DeHaan, Meservy said.

According to Meservy, DeHaan had concluded that his office had met its obligation to Spencer, and it now was obligated to defend the decision of the sentencing judge.

Generally, the courts have held that if a plea-bargain agreement is breached, the conviction resulting from that agreement can be voided. In his complaint, Spencer asked that the court impose the 120-day sentence or allow him to withdraw the guilty plea.

Testifying Friday, Spencer claimed the public defender who represented him, Mike Walz, had "guaranteed" he would receive the 120-day "rider." As a result, Spencer said he pleaded guilty.

"He told me he had made a deal, and it was a guaranteed 120-day rider," Spencer said.

Referring to court transcripts, Ward concluded the prosecutors clearly had recommended the 120-day "rider" for Spencer at the sentencing hearing. Meehl simply had exercised his own discretion, Ward said.

"I can't say I blame you for being disappointed at not getting what you thought was coming to you," Ward told Spencer. "But no one can guarantee a sentence."

Testifying for the state, Meservy, who is now a private lawyer in Jerome, said prosecutors never guaranteed Spencer their recommendation would be binding on Meehl.

"I never guaranteed anything to anybody," he said.

The original agreement had been reached between Walz and former Prosecutor Tom Gray, according to Meservy. But an explanation of that agreement, contained in Gray's notes, was confirmed in his own subsequent discussions with Walz, Meservy said.

Spencer also claimed that as part of the deal, the prosecution had agreed not to call him as a witness at the

Surpluses still won't cover road repairs

Twin Falls financial audit shows some city funds actually increased

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TOM COURTNEY city is in good shape

TWIN FALLS — Municipal accounts weathered 1981 intact, and some are showing gains, according to an audit presented to Twin Falls city administrators and council members this week.

"Generally speaking, we're in very good financial condition," City Manager Tom Courtney said after reviewing the annual audit prepared by Evans Condit and Co. of Twin Falls.

"Without a doubt, we were able to hold our own."

None of the city's departments overspent their budgets in 1981, he says.

The city maintained reserves for each of its "funds" in seven categories, among them the general fund, the street fund and the wastewater fund, make up the city budget.

The audit shows the reserve portion of the $3.7 million general fund — the city's principal operating account — rose by about 10 percent in 1981.

At the start of each budgeting cycle, the city establishes reserves, money for unexpected contingencies, amounting to 20 percent of the amount in each fund.

Last year, the street fund showed a reduction in reserves, and the water fund lost about 1 percent, because of delinquent customer accounts and other billing problems.

Courtney says the reduction in the street fund stemmed principally from the decision to reduce curbside lighting in Twin Falls. That move involved purchasing Idaho Power Co. contracts in anticipation of future savings.

The city's overall financial well-being, Courtney says, results mainly from City Council's conservative spending, the returns on city money deposited in a high-interest investment program and the computerization of record-keeping. The latter allows week-by-week tracking of expenditures and income.

Mayor Chris Talkington says that in 1981, the city began experiencing the pronounced impact of cuts made over a period of several years, as Idaho's tax-limiting One Percent Initiative took hold. Since 1978, the mayor says, the city has reduced its staffing by 17 percent and consolidated departments.

The surpluses shown in the annual audit likely will be spent on the repair of streets, which have turned to rubble in places because of the unusually harsh winter, Talkington says.

Along with the winter-induced damage, there are accumulated problems because of delayed street maintenance, he says. As tax limitations forced the city to cut back during the last several years, street maintenance has been a low-priority expenditure.

Courtney says that "even if we were to commit all of our excess reserves to street repair, it would not make a major dent in the problem." In addition to having stable revenues, he says, the city faces steadily rising asphalt prices.

City spokesmen say the problem of street repair probably must be dealt with through special taxation, even if only partially.

"If the electorate of Twin Falls city demands better roads, they're going to have to pay for them," Talkington says. But he doesn't believe the public is agreeable to such an outlay right now. The city has received calls from businessmen who want the streets, and parking areas, repaired, the mayor says, and he predicts that in the long run, the business sector will be the driving force behind a push for improvements.

CHRIS TALKINGTON cuts have been made

Ex-feed store manager pleads innocent to embezzlement

TWIN FALLS — The former branch manager of the Idaho Best feed store in Twin Falls will go on trial on charges that he embezzled $1,272 from the company.

Ray O. Hamilton, 33, of Shoshone, pleaded innocent Friday to embezzlement charges against him in Fifth District Court.

Hamilton is free on his own recognizance.

According to the charge, Hamilton allegedly embezzled the funds between January 1980 and January 1982. He is charged with writing a series of checks, payable to himself, for $19,296 worth of grain and $1,977 in merchandise that the company never received.

No date has been set for the trial. Lawyers for both the defense and prosecution say they believe the trial will take about three days.

A Fifth District Court trial also will be held in the case of James J. Kent, Route 3, Vicky Lane, who pleaded innocent Friday to a grand theft charge.

Kent also free on his own recognizance, is charged with stealing a four-door sedan from a Twin Falls man on Dec. 23, 1981.

No date for the trial, which is expected to last two days, was set.

In other court matters Friday:

• Brent Fairchild, 19, of Buhl pleaded guilty to a felony charge of malicious injury to property. He was charged with aiding in a Jan. 31 incident at the Memorial Church near Buhl in which the building's front doors and a containing wall were damaged. Judge Theron Ward ordered a presentence investigation.

• Patrick J. Olson, 23, of Shoshone, was ordered to serve 120 days at the North Idaho Correctional Institute in Cottonwood after he admitted violating a two-year probation, imposed for a 1981 felony conviction.

The probation violation stems from charges that Olson attempted to burglarize the Pizza Palace in Wendell and that he defrauded the Bedford Restaurant in Gooding. Once he completes the Cottonwood program, Olson could be placed on probation or ordered to serve a previously suspended 14-year prison sentence.

• John Eugene Cagle, 20, 354 Seventh Ave. E., Twin Falls, also was ordered to spend the next four months at the Cottonwood facility. Cagle pleaded guilty on Feb. 12 to first-degree burglary. Both the prosecutor and the Idaho Division of Probation and Parole recommended the 120-day program for Cagle.

• Lindsey Saville, 22, 411 Sixth Ave. E., Twin Falls, was placed on one-year probation in lieu of a suspended two-year prison sentence, imposed for his conviction as an accessory after the fact to first-degree burglary. Saville harbored a 16-year-old male who was involved in a Nov. 19, 1981, automobile burglary.

• Sherry Fulkerson, 31, 339 Will 6T, Twin Falls, was placed on two-year probation in lieu of a suspended three-year prison sentence, imposed for her Jan. 15 conviction for writing a bad check. She wrote an $109 check to United Oil, 1992 Kimberly Road, on Feb. 14. The woman claimed she wrote the bad check because she was without funds to purchase heating oil.

Informant wired for sound

Police bust two for hashish sale

TWIN FALLS — A San Diego man and a Jerome man were in the Twin Falls County Jail on Friday following their arrest on charges—selling hashish.

Larry Lee Mills, 36, of San Diego, and Tim G. Keyes, 28, of Route 2, Jerome, appeared in Fifth District Magistrate Court on the charge on Friday. Bond was set at $5,000 each.

Relying on the services of an informant, Twin Falls police arrested the pair Thursday in the parking lot of Blue Lakes Car Wash off Blue Lakes Boulevard North.

According to a statement filed with the court, police said an informant reported that he observed by two men in that parking lot earlier in the day.

The informant said the two men offered to sell hashish to him. The informant said he told the two men he would meet with them at 3 p.m., and then, he reported the incident to police.

Police gave the informant three $20 bills, equipped him with a body transmitter and set up surveillance teams at the parking lot.

At the meeting, police reported seeing the informant meet with the two men inside a pickup camper shell. After the informant left the camper, police arrested Keyes and Mills. Authorities said they recovered the "buy" money from the suspects.

Following their court appearance, Judge Melvin Edwards appointed the public defender to represent the two men.

Twin Falls man arrested for possessing pot stems

TWIN FALLS — Relying on an informant, Twin Falls police have obtained a search warrant. Smith was away from his home at the time of the search.

The police report indicates officers found some drug paraphernalia, a small amount of marijuana and a garbage bag filled with 232 grams, or nine ounces, of marijuana-plant stems.

Possession of more than three ounces of marijuana is a felony in Idaho.

them to Smith's residence, which officers searched Tuesday after obtaining a search warrant. Smith was away from his home at the time of the search.

Possession of more than three ounces of marijuana is a felony in Idaho.

Home fire sparks charges

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man was arrested and charged with arson Friday in connection with a 1981 house fire.

Bernard F. Mozdenski, 36, 212 Quinny St., is in the county jail in lieu of $2,000 bond.

The arson charge alleges that Mozdenski set fire to his home located near the intersection of county roads 3700 N. and 2200 E. on May 7, 1981.

Sheriff's deputies, who filed the charge against Mozdenski, are basing their case on physical evidence found at the scene, statements of witnesses and Mozdenski's financial situation.

According to an affidavit filed with the court, investigators found burn patterns at the scene that indicated the fire was set by using gunpowder and a candle.

The statement also alleges that Mozdenski "had told various people that he intended to burn his house down to collect the insurance monies," and the defendant's financial state established a motive for the alleged arson.

Two women hurt in one-car accident

TWIN FALLS — Two women were injured seriously in a one-car accident Friday south of Twin Falls.

Betty Carrolye Covert, 45, of Idaho Falls, suffered back and head injuries and the victim, Selby Mae Hollister, suffered head, stomach and facial injuries in the 10:30 a.m. rollover accident 10 miles south of Twin Falls.

According to the Idaho State Police accident report: The car, driven by Covert, was eastbound on Foothills Road when the driver failed to negotiate a curve about two-and-a-half-miles east of South Blue Lakes Boulevard. The vehicle slid, then rolled over several times before coming to rest.

The driver was thrown from the car.

Both women were reported in fair condition Friday night at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

Diploma

The commission also is considering requiring two types of high-school diplomas, she says. One would be earned through a vocational program, the other through an academic program.

At the college level, the commission is questioning the open admission policy of Idaho's institutions of higher learning, which indirectly would affect the standards of high school curricula. Currently, anyone graduating from an Idaho high school is eligible to attend a state college or university, Breckenridge says.

The commission will present its recommendations to the state Board of Education on Sept. 2. Before then, it will be seeking public input through a series of meetings. The schedule for south-central Idaho is:

- Jerome High School cafeteria, Wednesday, March 31, at 7:30 p.m.
- Twin Falls High School cafeteria, April 7 at 7:30 p.m.
- Burley High School cafeteria, April 12 at 7:30 p.m.
- Wood River High School in Hailley, April 29 at 7:30 p.m.

Citizens who are unable to attend any of the hearings can mail their ideas to: Miriam Breckenridge, Route 6, Twin Falls 83401.

Religious leaders differ on how to best use power of TV

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

The nation's churches' long relationship with television has been ambiguous: they've never figured out exactly what to make of, or how to use, the important medium.

Some mainline churches have been involved in television, especially Sunday morning programming of church services, for as long as the medium has been around.

Conservative preachers have taken a more aggressive attitude and sought to use television itself as their primary pulpit, organizing people into "the electronic church."

In the late 1970s, many Christians became increasingly concerned about what they thought was an alarming increase in the amount of sex and violence depicted in network programming.

The Rev. Donald Wildmon, the Tupelo, Miss., Methodist pastor who heads the Coalition for Better Television, has become perhaps the most outspoken advocate of this concern, picketing network headquarters and most recently calling for a boycott of NBC and its parent company, RCA.

William F. Fore, the assistant general secretary for communications of the National Council of Churches, has taken a look at Wildmon's boycott and with respect, he believes "he is on to something fundamental."

"People today sense that there is something wrong with TV, and they are frustrated because they seemingly can't do anything about it," Fore writes in the current issue of The Christian Century.

"Unfortunately," Fore adds, "the average citizen's misgivings about TV are focused on surface symptoms: sex as nudity and titillation; violence as blood and guts; profanity as words."

"But something far more pervasive and destructive is going on — namely an endless flow of messages which demean, distort and trivialize the human condition," he writes.

Area churches promoting 'Chariots of Fire' movie

TWIN FALLS — A grassroots publicity campaign is being launched by local residents to promote the film "Chariots of Fire," produced by Inspirational Films and released through Warner Bros. Inc.

The same community committee that has promoted other inspirational film movies is organizing a push for this full-length feature film. The film is built around the 1924 Olympics and "a young man who felt he was created for a purpose, and should glorify God with his particular gifts," according to Jack Muldoon, the committee chairman.

Muldoon said he first learned of the film in January and wrote to the producers asking that it be brought to Twin Falls. However, he said, the film has proved so successful commercially, it will open next Friday, April 2, in Twin Falls through "normal distribution channels."

Muldoon said about 70 churches in the Magic Valley will be contacted about the film. Advance tickets will be available through Christian Radio and Pennywise Drugs in the Lynwood Mall.

"The entertainment industry has rarely brought a story of this spiritual significance to the screen," Muldoon said. "You must know that we are here, and the qualities we want on the air waves and in the cities of this country."

Church-news guidelines

The Times-News encourages any church in the Magic Valley area to submit information for our listing of church services, which appears each Saturday.

To ensure your information is used, follow these guidelines:

- The deadline for church news is Thursday noon.
- Typewritten or plainly-printed information is best; it helps eliminate errors.
- Provide full information — complete names, times, locations, day and date. Include the name of the community — we serve many — and a phone number to call if more information is needed.
- If you have questions about church news, call 733-0931 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., and ask for Glenda May or Jon Kinney.

China rebuffs powers

BEIJING (UPI) — In a double-barreled rebuff to both superpowers, China rejected a Soviet appeal for better relations Friday and warned the United States there was "no room" for compromise over Taiwan.

The official Xinhua news agency said Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev had "chosen a troubled moment in Sino-U.S. relations" to make an appeal for an end to two years of hostility between the two Communist giants.

But it said Moscow had not taken any "substantive actions" or carried out any "actual deeds" to underline its desire for a thaw with Peking.

The developments came as Chinese and U.S. negotiators were holding secret discussions to avert a downgrading of the Sino-American relationship over Taiwan arms sales.

Vice Chairman Deng Xiaoping, meanwhile, warned a leading U.S. industrialist China would not budge on the Taiwan issue in the latest sign that Sino-American diplomatic relations are locked in crisis.

Armand Hammer, chairman of Occidental Petroleum Corp., met with Deng in the Great Hall of the People to discuss China's offshore oil exploration and also a massive coal mine project.

Hammer, 83, signed an agreement Thursday to conduct a feasibility study for the Pinghuo open-pit coal mine in Shanxi province and said he expected permission for the first phase of the project before the study is completed.

"Deng said there is no room for compromise on Taiwan," he told reporters Friday. "The policy is that China was recognized as a sovereign state and there is only one China and the sale of arms to a part of China (Taiwan) is a contradiction."

Nicaragua wants answer to peace plan

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Daniel Ortega, leader of the leftist Sandinista junta, said Friday he was waiting for "a serious response" from Washington to the Central America peace proposal he presented to the U.N. Security Council.

Ortega was greeted at Managua's airport by about 500 cheering and chanting youths upon his return from New York, where he addressed the council Thursday, announcing that Nicaragua, Cuba and leftist rebels in El Salvador all were ready to negotiate with Washington.

Several dozen members of the diplomatic community, including U.S. Charge d'Affaires Roger Canale, the top American official before the arrival of new ambassador Anthony Quainton, also greeted the junta chief.

Continuing the Sandinista effort to improve ties with the United States, Ortega said Quainton's accreditation ceremony Friday gave "the U.S. representative the opportunity to achieve greater communication with the government of Nicaragua."

Moderates back junta

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI) — The United Opposition, Guatemala's most moderate political group, announced Friday that it would stage a series of demonstrations to support the 4-day-old military junta.

"Day by day we can be confident of a basic change for a democratic process in Guatemala," said Vinicio Cerezo Arevalo, head of the Christian Democratic Party that makes up 50 percent of the United Opposition.

Tuesday's coup d'etat "opens the way for a true democratic process," he told a news conference at the coalition's headquarters.

"We are observing the establishment of a military government different from the past," Cerezo said.

Fernan Quinonez, secretary general of the National Renovator Party, a Christian Democrat ally, said the United Opposition was calling a mass demonstration in Guatemala City's main square Monday in support of the junta.

Rebels disrupting Salvadoran vote

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Leftist rebels bent on disrupting Sunday's critical election said they overran a town Friday, blew up bridges and cut roads.

The accelerating violence paralyzed almost all commercial traffic around the Central American nation, with most people staying in their homes for fear of even stronger guerrilla attacks in the next two days.

Rebel-run Radio Venceremos claimed insurgents overran Puerto Parada, some nine miles southwest of the eastern provincial capital of Usulután. It was the third town guerrillas said they took this week.

The fight lasted for 3 1/2 hours and four soldiers and six militiamen were captured, the radio said. Army officers in Usulután confirmed they had lost contact with the port city. "They just said they had problems with guerrillas, and we don't know anything else," one officer said.

The radio also said all roads to Usulután were cut. "We are tightening the circle" around Usulután, Venceremos said. "The enemy has gone on the defensive around its barracks."

The U.S. observer team led by Sen. Nancy Kassebaum arrived in San Salvador aboard a special U.S. Air Force jet along with four other members of the nine-man delegation.

The others arrived previously. "We are here to judge the fairness of the outcome, not to render judgement on the outcome itself," said Mrs. Kassebaum, head of the official U.S. observer team for the elections.

Rep. Robert L. Livingston, R-La., another observer team member, when asked about the possibility that the Salvadoran right would win the election, replied, "Whatever happens here will determine what we (congressmen) do in the future."

Congressmen have threatened to cut U.S. aid if the far-right, accused of links to death squads, takes over the government.

Phelps claims knowledge of cash payments

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps left town Friday on a recruiting trip, but trailing behind was a sudden rash of controversy and some pointed remarks aimed at him from a few of his fellow coaches.

On the eve of the national semifinals of the NCAA basketball tournament and with hundreds of writers and broadcasters in the neighborhood, Phelps chose to say that he knew seven NCAA schools that had paid as much as $10,000 in order to lure a freshman player to their institution.

He declined to name any of the schools but said he had personally given information to the NCAA concerning two of the schools.

"I would turn a school in and I have turned them in,"

Phelps said as he packed his bags. "Some coaches are hesitant to do so. They are afraid."

Although Phelps said that most coaches agreed with his comments, two coaches who have their teams in the Final Four thought the Notre Dame coach should not have made the statements he did.

"I have a big problem with him saying the coaches are doing this when you don't name them," said Georgetown's John Thompson. "I think that casts a very dark shadow on the coaching business. If you say that, you better go on and name someone."

Louisville Coach Denny Crum had the same opinion.

"If he (Phelps) has proof and takes it to the right places, that's fine," Crum said. "But if he doesn't he should not be saying anything. It is not good for our profession."

"You hear rumors, but I don't know anything. Watergate didn't happen to all the lawyers in the country. Just a few."

North Carolina Coach Dean Smith agreed that there were problems in college recruiting, but said he thought an effort was being made to correct them.

"Many fine coaches over the years have been concerned about illegal recruiting," Smith said. "Maybe if the NCAA made the penalties greater it might scare some people."

"You grow up with the American ideal of not squealing, but it's gotten to the point where you have to do something."

Phelps said that it was up to nationally known coaching figures to stop what he thinks is rampant cheating in basketball recruiting.

"Guys like Bobby (Indiana Coach Bobby Knight), Dean and myself have to get going and have to say things," he said. "This problem has been going on too long."

"We've got to come up with some preventative measures, some stiff penalties. Coaches need to talk to their college presidents about seeing that this is done. Schools should not be under such pressure that they have to lure players to come to that institution."

Phelps said the only coach he knew of that disagreed with him was Oregon State's Ralph Miller.

"Ralph says that they were using $10,000 years ago," Phelps said.

Another try for Smith as NCAAs begin

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Amid a backdrop of scandalous allegations against a number of unidentified NCAA schools (see story above), Coach Dean Smith of North Carolina prepared Friday for what has become a familiar journey.

The Final Four is well-explored turf for Smith. He has made 18 previous trips (1967-69, '72, '77, '81) but come up empty each time. And that missing championship has in many ways diminished one of the most formidable coaching records in college basketball: nine titles in the Atlantic Coast Conference, 20-victory seasons for 12 straight years and a .763 winning percentage in 21 years at North Carolina. The Tar Heels are also the first team to make back-to-back trips to the Final Four since UCLA in 1974-75.

Still, Smith has been hounded incessantly about the NCAA title and the ordeal has not escaped his players.

"Are we aware of it?" center Sam Perkins was asked. "The whole world is aware of it."

While there may be some in the outlook of Australia who are unacquainted with Smith's tribulations, that will likely not be the case today when North Carolina meets Houston in the Harlem-Globe Trotters played before 75,000 in Berlin's outdoor Olympic Stadium.

The Tar Heels, 90-2, feature an outstanding frontline of Perkins, All-America James Worthy and Matt Derry. Perkins and Worthy, the team's two leading scorers, are an imposing combination — banging the boards and hitting from inside — while Derry can attack the outside shot, pass well and play gutsy defense.

In the backcourt are point guard Jimmy Black and freshman Michael Jordan. Black is an on-court extension of Smith, anticipating any offensive and defensive changes Jordan, who has progressed remarkably well, can leap to the moon. And should the defense sag on Perkins or Worthy, Jordan will strike from the outside. In fact, he has taken more shots this year than any North Carolina player.

If the Tar Heels have an Achilles heel, it is their bench. The starting five has scored 190 of the team's 196 tournament points and should North Carolina run into foul trouble there could be problems for the Heels.

Thompson, who was on first.

The Eagles made that run stand up, adding another in the third on McDonald's run-scoring single driving in Thompson.

They got the ultimate winning runs in the fourth. With Scott Russell on third base and Rod Gust on second, Art Pigg's sacrifice fly to center fielder Greene drove in Russell. Gust also tagged up and scored when Greene's throw caromed off his leg and into foul territory in short left field.

Utah Tech halved the lead in the fifth, scoring two runs off winner Tracy Foulson, who left the game after finishing the inning. That alone was an accomplishment in Walker's eyes.

"That's what I wanted to see, if he could bring it on back and survive without his good stuff," Walker said.

The Eagles padded their lead with a single run in the fifth as Thompson charged and scored the second base to tie on McDonald's bloop single to center. Greene's throw had Thompson beat, but the compactly built outfielder knocked the ball loose for Wolverine catcher Todd Balser.

The Eagles and Wolverines play another double-header today at Frontier 11 a.m.

Women riders tame savage beasts

But bulls dazzle a dozen males at CSI Aggie rodeo in Exposition Center

By MARV CLEMENTS
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — Cowgirls tamed Joe Kelsey's stock while most cowboys had to eat dirt in the first performance on the College of Southern Idaho Aggie Rodeo Friday night.

No less than a dozen bull riders failed to survive eight seconds in the final event at the CSI Exposition Center while just two saddle bronc riders and two bareback competitors rode out their mounts long enough to score points.

The women, paced by CSI freshman Miltzie de Braga and Utah State University senior Lori McNeill, showed up their male counterparts with some excellent performances.

A freshman from Fallon, Nev., de Braga took the lead in the breakaway roping with a 2.8 second time. Weber State's Joetta Eardley compelling just before the slack competition, was a close second at 3.1 seconds.

Rodeo announcer Zeb Bell said it was the fastest he'd ever seen a cowgirl handle the event while de Braga was pleased but not overly surprised. "I just got out there, threw the rope and everything combined to work," she said. "I've had a 3.0 (second) before. I knew my time was good, but I didn't hear the last part of the score."

McNeill, a top contender in all three women's events, put herself into the No. 1 spot in the goat tying with an 8.2 clocking, 1.7 seconds ahead of Eardley.

"I don't know about the roping," McNeill, a Vernal, Utah, product said. "Barrels is my best event."

The former national champion barrel racer (two years ago) competed with a knee brace, the result of ligament and cartilage damage suffered one week before last year's CSI rodeo.

"The brace really helps," she said. "The knee is pretty stiff so I have to loosen it up quite a bit. The doctors said to have surgery if it gets any worse, but I'm holding off until after the season and then there isn't much to do as far as rodeo after that so I'll just see how it feels."

While most cowboys had trouble, CSI's Brad Johnson was an exception. He rolled his steer over in 4.3 seconds to take a 1.3-second lead over Weber State's Lex Hadley.

"I drew a good steer and that really helped," he said. "Then I just caught him right and threw my weight into him." Johnson said. The CSI cowboy feels former teammate Tim Chadwick (now at Weber State), who will compete in today's 2 p.m. round, will provide stiff competition.

Of the four cowboys who triumphed over Kelsey's bucking stock, CSI's Kevin Chapin and Sterling Wines went 1-2 in the saddle bronc. Chapin scored a 71 while Wines, the region leader in the event with two wins in two rodeos, had a 66.

The team roping, usually a male event, offered some surprises and mostly no times for the 10 teams who tried their skill. Weber State's Clay Robinson and Brenda Durfee took the lead with a 10.3 time. Several all-male teams followed and failed for one reason or another before CSI cowgirls Shelle Snow and Terri Koch recorded a 14.1 clocking.

The rodeo will conclude with the finals at 8 tonight. The second round is held at 2 p.m. Friday's results:

Barrel race — 1. Shane Croseley (Boise) 62.2, Todd Messery (Weber) 52.

Golden Eagles get muffled, then get revenge for doubleheader split

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — After a somnolent offensive effort in the first game, College of Southern Idaho woke up in time to earn a split of its double-header against the Utah Tech Wolverines Friday afternoon at Frontier Field.

Right-hander David Draper stifled the Golden Eagles on three hits to help Utah Tech win the opener, 2-1, but CSI scored in every inning but one in the nightcap and prevailed, 7-2.

The loss was the first for the Eagles, 7-3 overall. According to CSI Coach Jim Walker, Utah Tech took great pleasure in defeating his team.

"They love to beat us," Walker said of the Wolverines, 6-3. "When they beat us it's like beating the New York Yankees."

However, CSI didn't quite play Yankee-level baseball in the opener. Mike Calandro's one-out single in the second inning was the last hit the Eagles got, as Draper settled into an easy rhythm of off-speed pitches.

Draper looked shaky in the first inning, yielding two hits and CSI's only run, and he never managed to rattle the Eagles three-up three-down. But he weathered each threat to keep his record unblemished at 3-0.

"In the early innings I was trying to get a feel for the hitters," the Wolverine sophomore said. "They're poor breaking ball hitters, but they hit the fastball well, so I used that to mix it in and be more effective. The slider was my out-pitch most of the game and I threw a couple of screwballs for ground outs."

Draper had to labor in the sixth inning, which he opened by walking Bobby Thompson and Mike Robbins.

The next batter was Tim McMannon, who hit a home run off Draper in last year's Treasure Valley tournament. This time, Draper induced the Eagles' designated hitter to ground to third base, starting a double play.

"I was pleased to get him (McMannon) out a couple of times," said Draper, who finished the inning by retiring Darrell Preter on a pop-up.

CSI again put the leadoff batter on base in the seventh inning, as pinch-hitter Mickey Lucero walked on a 3-2 fastball. But again Draper benefited from a double play, turning a com-backer hit by Rick McDonald into a 1-6-3 twin killing.

Eagle hurler Scott Troester and Brad McClure pitched just as well, combining to limit Utah Tech to four hits. But two crucial fifth-inning errors — one of them his own — sent McClure and CSI to defeat.

With one out and Rod Tomita on first base, McClure got B.J. Moore to hit a comebacker. His throw to second base, however, was high, allowing Tomita to slide in safely.

After Queen Wilson's ground out advanced the runners, Clint Greene hit another grounder to shortstop Phil Braase. Braase bobbled it, sending Tomita home with the winning tally.

CSI scored another first-inning run in the second game. Mark Barbagelata came home from third base after working a double steal with

They agreed, McClure said. "I think the important thing is to let the owners know that you do exist, that you do want a franchise and that you have the ability to support one." The Phoenix delegation included not only the mayor — Margaret Hance — but Gov. Bruce Babbitt. Phoenix representatives produced a detailed 18-page study prepared by the Governor's Advisory Committee on Professional Football and a promotional film narrated by sportscaster Joe Garagiola, an area resident. The Phoenix delegation got a big boost recently when Arizona State University regents voted to permit pro football to be played in the school's 50,000-seat Sun Devil Stadium. The lack of a suitable stadium had been a major drawback for Phoenix.

Rangers trade speedy Bump Wills (Maury's son) to Cubs

By United Press International

Bump Wills, once considered one of the most promising young players in the major leagues, was traded from the Texas Rangers to the Chicago Cubs Friday for pitcher Paul Mirabella and other considerations.

Wills, son of star base-stealer Maury Wills of the Los Angeles Dodgers, went to the Cubs to fill what they considered a gaping hole for a leadoff man. Wills, 25, joined the Rangers in 1977 and in five years accumulated a .275 lifetime batting average and 161 stolen bases. In 1978, Wills set a Rangers record for stolen bases with 55.

"We talked about it during the winter meetings," said Cubs general manager Dallas Green. "It's been lingering back and forth in our minds. We now have a leadoff man."

The left-handed Mirabella, a 28-year-old who played with the Rangers in 1978, had an 11-7 record with Syracuse of the International League last year. Mirabella, 6-foot-2 and 196 pounds, was 0-0 in eight games with Toronto and recently had been sent to the Cubs.

Spring training roundup

At Mesa, Ariz., the Cubs' scheduled game with the Oakland A's Friday was postponed due to rain. The game will be played on Monday.

In exhibition games Friday:

• Minnesota 9, St. Louis 4

At Orlando, Fla., rookie first baseman Kent Hrbek slugged two home runs and a single in powering the Twins past the Cardinals. Hrbek, who has a club-leading five homers, singled in a run in the first inning and slammed solo homers in third and fourth innings — all off Cardinals starter Andy Rincon.

Toronto 15, Houston 10

At Dunedin, Fla., Willie Upshaw, Barry Bonnell and Ernie Whit hit homers uplighting a seven-run first inning and leading the Blue Jays over the Astros. Bob Knepper was the victim of the homers in the first inning, which sent the Blue Jays on their way to a 17-hit attack.

St. Louis 6, Los Angeles 4

At St. Petersburg, Fla., Ken Oberkell's bases-loaded triple in the fifth inning provided the winning margin. Bob Shirley was the winner for the Cardinals despite walking six batters and allowing four hits in four innings.

Kansas City 4, Pittsburgh 4

At Bradenton, Fla., Johnathan Wathan's two-run triple scored Buddy Balcancala with the tying run in the ninth inning as the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Kansas City Royals played to a 12-inning deadlock.

San Diego 2, San Francisco 1

At Yuma, Ariz., rookie right-hander Floyd Chiffer held San Francisco hitless for the final four innings while striking out six to lead San Diego. Former Giants hurler John Montefusco pitched the first five innings for the Padres.

Cleveland 8, California 3

At Palm Springs, Calif., a grand-slam homer by Ron Hassey in the seventh inning led the Cleveland Indians to their ninth consecutive exhibition victory.

At Sun City, Ariz., the Milwaukee Brewers' scheduled exhibition game with the Seattle Mariners was rained out.

Orioles exchange 2 for catcher Nolan

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI) — The Baltimore Orioles Friday announced the acquisition of catcher Joe Nolan from the Cincinnati Reds in exchange for outfielder Dallas Williams and pitcher Brooks Carey.

The left-handed Nolan, 30, batted .309 with one home run and 26 RBIs in 81 games with the Reds in 1981.

He will be in uniform for Baltimore Sunday when the Orioles meet the Texas Rangers at Miami Stadium in an exhibition game.

Williams and Carey, who were cut by the Orioles earlier this winter, were assigned to Cincinnati's AAA club in Indianapolis.

Who can criticize anyone... for trying to better themselves?

Ex-holdout Drysdale sees Valenzuela's point

CLEARWATER, Fla. (UPI) — Don Drysdale, who once staged a dramatic holdout from the Los Angeles Dodgers camp, said Friday he understood Fernando Valenzuela's contract dispute with the club.

"Who can criticize anyone, no matter what their walk of life, for trying to better themselves," said Drysdale, now a broadcaster with the Chicago White Sox. "People try to get a better deal when they stop for cars. I can't fault anybody trying to better themselves.

"If you look around this game of baseball, how many great players have jobs in baseball today?"

Valenzuela, last year's Cy Young award winner and rookie of the year in the National League, reported to the Dodgers camp this week. He and his representatives, Tony DeMarco and Dick Mass, were seeking a contract estimated as high as $850,000.

The Dodgers offered the left-hander $350,000. Valenzuela, who made $125,000 last year, still has not signed.

Drysdale and Hall of Fame left-hander Sandy Koufax held out for $100,000 apiece in the spring training of 1966.

"Sandy had won 26 games and I had won 23," recalled Drysdale. "We won three games between us in the World Series, but we were offered less of a rate than we had received the previous year. I think it was because of the $100,000 barrier. We eventually got what we asked for."

Drysdale emphasized that he could see merit in both positions in the dispute between Valenzuela and the Dodgers and said the pitcher finally had no choice except to report.

Watson's 68 forces 5-way logjam; Heritage field crowded near top

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (UPI) — Tom Watson shot a 68 to grab a share of a five-man tie for the lead at five-under-par 137 Friday after two rounds of the $300,000 Heritage Golf Classic.

Watson, a winner here in 1979, was tied with Tommy Valentine, Mike McCullough, Frank Conner and Fred Couples.

Among the leaders, only Watson has won a tournament and said this is the last he will play before defending his 1981 Masters championship in two weeks.

Valentine had a second-round 69, McCullough had a 70, Couples shot a 68, and Conners had the day's low round, a 68 that included an eagle on the par-4 9th hole.

Two shots off the pace were Craig Stadler with a second-round 70, 1980 Heritage champion Doug Tewell with a 71, Dan Pohl with 69, John Mahaffey with a 71, George Archer with a 69, and first-round co-leaders Bud Allin and Mike Donald, who began the day at 7-under-par. Allin and Donald both had second-round 75s on a day in which the wind off Calibogue Sound raised scores sharply.

Watson, bidding to become the first tour player to win two tournaments this year, began the day at 2-under and went to 7-under at one point before back-to-back bogeys on the 15th and 16th holes of the 6,804-yard Harbour Town Golf Links.

"I had a good round going, but I botched it up on 15 and 16," said Watson, winner of 28 tournaments in his life, including the Los Angeles Open. "I didn't do anything spectacular. It was just a good solid round of golf until 15."

"I feel good about the way I struck the ball today and I'm in a good position for the next two days."

After an opening round played under ideal conditions that allowed nearly half the field to shoot par or better, the wind presented problems Friday, particularly for the early starters like Valentine.

"It's getting kind of brutal — out there," Valentine said. "I think the low scores you saw out there yesterday are a thing of the past. In the light of the wind, I think 69 was a pretty good score."

At two-under for the tournament were Barney Thompson, who shot a second-round 69, and 1978 winner Larry Nelson with a 68, and J.C. Snead with 67.

Mike Donald, who shared 1st-round lead, laments missed putt

Arnold Palmer shot a second-round 74 for a 150 after 36 holes and missed the cut along with a pair of two-time winners here — Hubie Green, with a 76-72 for 148, and Hale Irwin, who left with a 73-76 for 149.

Conner said his eagle on the 324-yard hole came from about 140 yards out when he hit an 8-iron into the cup. It was only the second eagle on that hole in the tournament's 14-year history, but it was Conner's second in two days.

"The eagle got me going," Conner said. "When I started out, I didn't think I was hitting the ball that well. Conner's round included six birdies and three bogeys, and he used only 23 putts to make the round, far below the PGA average of just over 30 per round. In another development, PGA deputy commissioner Clyde Mangum disclosed that former tour golfer Bert Yancey, a pro at Hilton Head, had been removed by police from the first tee Thursday, after apparently suffering a relapse of his well-publicized manic-depressive mental condition.

Mangum said that two officers were forced to handcuff Yancey when he became hysterical as he walked to the tee early Thursday. He was later released in the custody of his personal doctor and was hospitalized in Columbia.

"He's just sick," Mangum said. "He didn't hurt anybody. He just stopped taking his medicine (to prepare for the tournament)."

Carner's 3-under 70 provides lead over Lopez Melton, local favorite KAANAPALI, Hawaii (UPI) — Joanne Carner shot a 3-under-par 70 Friday for a two-round total of 144 and a one-stroke lead over Nancy Lopez Melton and local favorite Jeannette Kerr in a $175,000 tournament.

The tournament is known as the Kemper Open.

Carner started the day at 1-over 74 on the Royal Kaaanapali North Course on the Island of Maui, carded a 3-under 32 on the front nine and made the return trip in regulation with 71 while Lopez who shared the first-round lead with a 70, fell off to a 1-over 75.

Kerr, only a two-year veteran on the LPGA and whose best finish has been sixth, was 1-over after the first round and came back with a 2-under 71 to move into a tie with Lopez at 145.

According to Carner, her score could have been much better. On the first hole a 30-foot eagle attempt lipped the cup and failed to fall in. Then on the 12th, 13th and 14th, she approached into birdie area but poor pitch shots put her into difficulty and she was unable to capitalize.

Carner, who has won 33 LPGA championships and is one of three million-dollar winners, said she was not aware she was in the lead until she reached the 17th hole.

"I was just playing the golf course," she said. "I didn't know I was in the lead until then."

"The wind and the course here are very demanding. You have to concentrate so much you don't have time to think how others are doing."

The wind Carner talked about was not as intense as it was in the first round.

Lopez traced her problems to slow greens.

"I had to punch the putts, and the ball was bouncing on me," she said. "I felt I played consistent golf except for two holes where I had to three-putt."

Defending champion Pat Bradley and former U.S. Open winner Amy Alcott were at even-par with Betsy King and Joann Washam at 147.

Washam, who held the lead midway through the second round, fell off on the back nine with a double-bogey and three bogeys to go with a pair of birdies.

The 148 group included Cathy Mant and Vicki Tabor. Donna Caponi was with a group at 149, and Sandra Haynie was at 150 with seven others. Kathy Young, Beanie Wood, Jan Ferraris, Patty Sheehan, Laura Furuberg, Yuko Moriguchi and Marga Stubbelfield.

Spring flings, fun races signal end of skiing season

A sure sign that one of the best skiing seasons in years is drawing near...

Such events show up every March and April as resorts bid for late season crowds...

It's the time of year when skiers show up on the slopes in straw hats and shirt sleeves...

Two resorts are planning spring fun events this weekend, but based on this winter's weather patterns...

Sun Valley has announced its closing date of April 18. All runs and lifts will be open through April 11...

Skiing

Mountain. Some other runs may be closed down at that time, depending on conditions and ski crowds.

Both Magic Mountain and Soldier Mountain have scheduled fun races for this weekend.

Soldier's fun races begin at 10 a.m. today with obstacle courses, short races, long races and jumps and some surprises.

Claude Hinkle, resort manager, said there will be special contests for all age groups and all levels of skill. Prizes will be awarded to all winners.

Hinkle said; night temperatures are still in the low teens and snow at Soldier is in excellent condition.

degrees Wednesday morning and a demonstration of the snow-making machines was used to put a light topping on the main runs.

Pomerelle will have a spring fling April 17, and with 95 inches of snow at the lodge and 156 on top, owner Woody Anderson says his vacation to the sunny shores of Lake Powell may be some distance in the future.

On Sunday the first spring fling at Magic Mountain will begin at 10 a.m. It features races for skiers of all ages and degrees of talent.

There will be a no-alti downhill with $10 entry fee. Everyone starts at the same time and the entry fees go to whoever gets through the finish line first. The winnings are usually $100 or more.

The parlor slalom, in which skiers are tied together at the wrist and sit the slalom together, is another fun event.

An obstacle course and dual slalom for all ages with a special giant slalom on the rope tow hill for skiers 5 years old and under are also on the agenda.

Business firms in Twin Falls, Kimberly and Hansen have donated trophies and other prizes.

Bonnie Baird Jones is a Times-News writer and avid skier who writes a weekly column during the ski season.

Phil Mahre snatches crown from Stenmark

MONTGENVRE, France, (UPI) — Phil Mahre of the United States Friday won his last men's special slalom of the World Cup season, finishing in 1:39.41 and snatching the overall World Cup slalom title from arch-rival Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden.

The Swede, who has won the crystal globe for the slalom every year since 1975, conceded the title by finishing second in the final race at 1:40.07. "Things were pretty tense today because Stenmark could have caught me," the 24-year-old American said after the race.

"I was third in the first heat, but I kept my cool and really did well in the second run, taking back more than a second from Stenmark." The overall special slalom standings for the 1981-1982 season were Mahre at 120 points, Stenmark second with 110 and third was Phil's younger brother Steve, aged 23, with 92 points.

Joel Gaspoz of Switzerland placed third in the 517-meter, 64-gate course of Friday's last special slalom at 1:40.09. Boris Riederer of Yugoslavia was fourth with 1:40.74. The snow on the 180-meter vertical drop track was packed and icy but weather conditions were perfect, with sunshine and a blue sky. "Although there is a men's parallel slalom race still to be disputed at Montgenvre Saturday, Phil Mahre has already won the overall Giant Slalom title and is leading the overall World Cup title with an unbeatable total of 309 points — giving him three crystal globes to take back home to America. His nearest rival, Stenmark, is way behind in second place with 211 points.

Keeping things in the family, Steve Mahre looks set to maintain his current third place in the overall standings at 183 points. Stenmark, a quiet Swede who talks rarely to the press, commented after the race, "I had problems with one of my poles and my goggles at the end of the second heat."

"Even without that, I don't think I could have won," the 25-year-old Swede said. "But I ran a good race and I really am quite satisfied with my five World Cup victories and my World Championship title."

Stenmark's French trainer, Jean-Pierre Bégin, said the skier had not been on form since he won the Championships at Schladming, Austria last month. "Ingemar lost his regularity and hasn't been himself since Schladming," Chateillard said.
