

Haig peace plan 'unacceptable'

By United Press International

Argentina declared a "yellow" alert — the last step before full combat preparation — and claimed Britain will launch a sea-and-air assault on the Falkland Islands within 48 hours.

Britain clamped a news blackout on its reinforced war fleet — heightening fears of an all-out battle.

In an 11th-hour bid to avert major fighting, the United States gave London and Buenos Aires a compromise peace proposal drafted by Secretary of State Alexander Haig, diplomatic sources said.

But an Argentine news agency quoted sources in Washington that the plan was "unacceptable." Diarios y Noticias said the military Junta of President Leopoldo Galtieri was drafting a reply.

Haig, through the U.S. Embassy in Buenos Aires, reportedly told Galtieri that Britain was "deadly serious" to retake its colony of 149 years and that the U.S. was bound by treaties to support its NATO ally.

ABC News said British warships could begin shelling 10,000 Argentine troops entrenched on the Falklands at any time. CBS said military analysts believe the fleet will stage short, swift sorties to embarrass the Argentine Junta.

In London, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher told Parliament, "Unless we bring military pressure to bear, Argentina is unlikely to withdraw its forces." The Defense Ministry said it sent 1,600 troops and two more ships since Monday to join the South Atlantic task force. The fleet now contains 5,500 marines and paratroopers.

Argentina banned export of strategic minerals, threatened army deserters with death and ordered foreign journalists to leave a 1,400-mile stretch of southern coastal towns in 48 hours. The area has been the daily staging ground for troop, ship, aircraft and supply shipments to the Falklands, 450 miles east in the South Atlantic.

The military junta also issued a "yellow alert" in the region, putting police, firemen and doctors on 24-hour call and confined to their towns. Hospitals reportedly were emptied of all but the critically ill.

The junta warned against hoarding of "food, medicine and fuels" or withdrawing bank assets and urged each citizen to make the "best contribution to the fatherland as the key to victory in this decisive hour."

Argentine Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez told a meeting of the Organization of American States in Washington that the British war fleet will attack in "24 to 48 hours." He did not elaborate.

But Argentine Navy sources said its 16-ship fleet is ready for war — though they refused to say if the ships were poised anywhere near the Falklands, which Argentina seized April 2.

Falklands: Bigger war than either envisioned?

By BARRY JAMES
UPI Senior Editor

LONDON — Though just a tiny cloud on the international horizon a few weeks ago, the Falkland Islands crisis now threatens to engulf Britain and Argentina in a war that could be longer and costlier than either envisioned.

Analysis

The Royal Navy task force can either press on with a blockade in which time and geography appear to be on Argentina's side or launch an assault that could result in heavy loss of life, including some of the 1,800 islanders.

"I doubt whether in its long history the navy has ever been given a more difficult job," said naval historian Capt. Stephen Roskill.

Argentina seized the islands April 2 acting on a claim going back 149 years to the time that Britain colonized them and has since poured in as many as 10,000 troops who have had ample time to fortify their position.

Britain's strategy could be to attempt to isolate the Argentine force:

•By strengthening the 200-mile naval blockade begun April 12 and enforced by hunter-killer submarines.

•By electronically jamming Argentine communications and radar, preventing radio contacts between the islands and the mainland.

•By stationing the bulk of the task force out of range of Argentina's land-based aircraft, but close enough to be able to fly aerial missions over the Falklands.

The first step as a morale booster for the British forces and a warning to the Argentines was the receipt this week of South Georgia, 800 miles to the east of the Falklands and well out of range of Argentine aircraft.

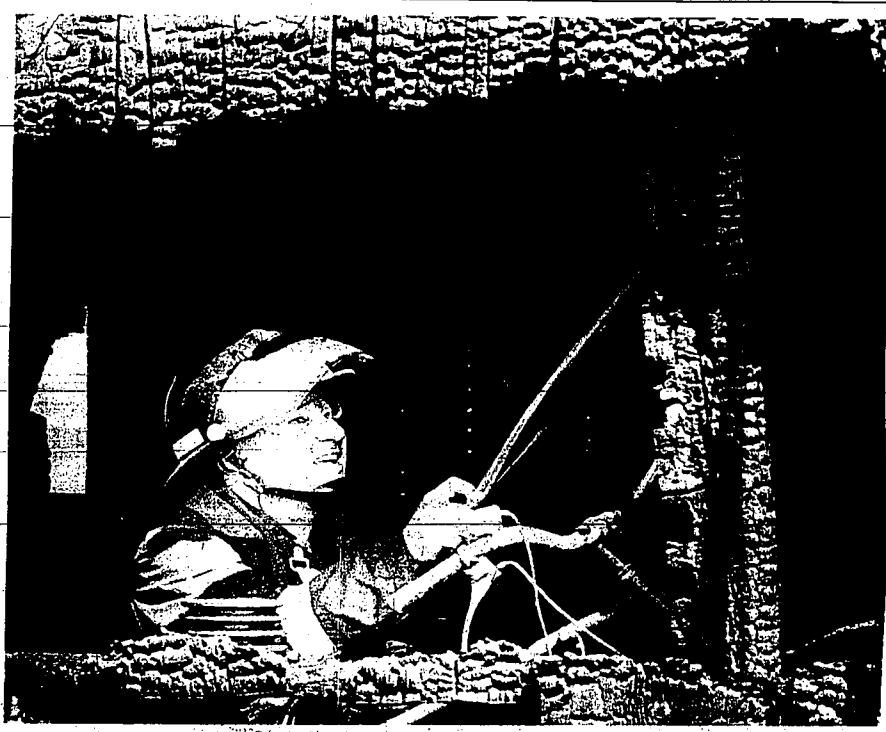

The next stage perhaps would be the landing of Marines and paratroopers on a high ground to establish an airstrip for short takeoff Harrier fighters, which could then support a ground attack.

Geography favors Argentina with harbors close to the area, but the Royal Navy is well practiced in replenishing fuel and supplies on the move. But in the coming winter months, British crews will have to cope with lashing winds, mountainous waves, fog and crippling cold with no secure place to anchor.

Britain's deadliest threat is posed by its 4,200-ton nuclear-powered submarines, at least two of which may be in Falkland waters. Each submarine is equipped with 25 Tigerfish torpedoes, which can be loaded in seconds, have a range of more than 20 miles are guided to their targets by thin wires fed information from a computer.

But the submarines are all-weather weapons that cannot be used in a graduated display of force.

Fireman Monte Lee cools the remaining cinders of the 15-by-34 foot shed where sheep got caught in a fire Tuesday

Blaze ruins sheep shed

TWIN FALLS — A fire, believed to have been caused by faulty electrical wiring, destroyed a sheep shed and storage building Tuesday morning at the Robert Howard property in Twin Falls.

Dale Platt, a battalion chief for the Twin Falls Fire Department, said three sheep, apparently 4-H projects, perished and a number of small motors, equipment and supplies were destroyed.

The building was completely involved by the time firefighters arrived, he said.

The fire, at 775 Falls Ave. W., occurred at about 10:30 a.m. Firefighters had the blaze under control within a few minutes, Platt said, but it was too late to save the building or any of its contents.

China added to Bush's Far Eastern itinerary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a bid to improve sensitive U.S. relations with Peking, Vice President George Bush will visit China at the conclusion of his current Far Eastern tour, the White House announced Tuesday.

Bush will be the highest ranking U.S. emissary to Peking since Reagan took office 15 months ago. President Reagan conferred with Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang in October at the summit meeting of developing nations Cancun, Mexico, and Secretary of State Alexander Haig visited China in August.

Some analysts view the trip as a possible prelude to a visit to China by Reagan later in the year.

Bush, who was in Singapore on Tuesday, is expected to visit Peking starting sometime between May 5 and 9 at the conclusion of his current trip, which includes stops in Japan, Korea, New Zealand and Australia.

Officials said they expect Bush to confer with Chinese Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping, among others, during his stay. The exact itinerary has not been worked out, officials said, and it was unclear what, if any, other cities Bush will visit.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan suggested the Bush visit to the Chinese earlier this month. Peking responded with a formal invitation last week, officials said.

Speakes said the visit is an "indication of the great importance we place on our relations with China and of our desire to further understanding between our two governments at the highest levels."

It will come at a time of some stress to the Sino-American relationship. For one thing, the Chinese are angry over Reagan's decision to sell $60 million worth of spare military parts to Taiwan.

Speakes said while Bush's trip is "not a mission to resolve at one stroke our differences on the Taiwan arms sales issue," the subject "will be thoroughly discussed."

The strains go much deeper than that, however.

Reagan's statement during the campaign of 1980 that he favored "an official government relationship" with Taiwan, was interpreted by Peking as an endorsement of the "two China policy" in which the Nationalist Chinese government of Taiwan would be given equal rank with Peking in relations with the United States.

Peking rejects such an arrangement, and Reagan finally had to explain it did not want to upgrade the unofficial U.S. relationship with Taiwan.

The vice president was chief of the U.S. Liaison Office in Peking from October 1974 to November 1975. He was last in China in August 1980 when Reagan's comments on Taiwan caused such a furor.

Budget leaders meet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan arranged Tuesday to go to Capitol Hill to meet with Democratic Speaker Thomas O'Neill and GOP leader Howard Baker to discuss the budget.

Reagan indicated he would accept some form of tax increase to break the budget impasse.

White House communications director David Gergen said the meeting will take place in the President's Room of the Senate chamber today at 2 p.m. EST.

After the negotiations broke up late Tuesday, White House spokesman Larry Speakes told reporters the negotiators "have narrowed the differences on the range of most issues" and "felt the time was right to bring in the leaders."

O'Neill's spokesman Chris Matthews said Speakes' comment that the negotiators had narrowed their differences "is absolutely inaccurate."

"Social Security is still very much in dispute," he said, with the administrator taking "a much different position" than the Democrats take.

Matthews said Reagan wanted a meeting just between himself, O'Neill and Baker, but O'Neill persuaded him to include Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., and House Democratic leader Jim Wright.

"The major difference at the conference table is taxes — how much and what kind of taxes," said Speakes in a clear signal Reagan will accept some form of increased revenues to narrow the projected deficit which experts say could reach $180 billion if nothing is done.

The deficit is projected at $10.9 billion in Reagan's original $787 billion 1983 budget.

A spokesman for House Budget Committee Chairman James Jones, D-Okla., said there are still "significant differences" on revenues, cost of living adjustments and defense growth.

He said the meeting broke up because the negotiators felt they could go no further without the principals being involved in the talks. "It's up to Reagan and O'Neill now," the spokesman said.

Earlier in the day, Democratic negotiators presented a specific set of budget recommendations and threatened to begin writing their own resolution if President Reagan fails to respond.

O'Neill, D-Mass., said if the president did not accept the package or present a counterproposal, "we will go immediately into committee and begin mark-up of a budget resolution."

"We find no flexibility on the part of the president whatsoever," O'Neill said. "We think we have offered a very fair and equitable proposal."

'Work in wild rhythm'

Soviet 'spy' leaks fast-food secret

MOSCOW (UPI) — Somewhere in sunny California in the shadow of the golden arches, a Soviet reporter researching preparations for the 1984 Olympics stumbled on the secret of McDonald's success.

No, it was not the famous sandwich with the two all-beef patties that impressed Washington-based Izvestia correspondent A. Palladin.

In fact, nowhere in his feature article in the current edition of Soviet Culture does Palladin confess sampling even a quarter-pound of the product that almost sidetracked his research.

But he left little doubt that his investigation took him inside at least one shop "specializing in selling sandwiches with meat patties and which, for this purpose, (McDonald's) keeps numerous caches all over the U.S.A."

"They serve very rapidly in these cafes,"

'The firm's uniforms do not have any pockets for the workers and they have no place to hide tips' — Soviet correspondent

Palladin told line-weary Soviet readers. "But the local consumers told me the secret of this rapidly."

"McDonalds hires girls and boys of 20-22 because it is simpler to deal with them and easy to make them work in a wild rhythm. The firms uniforms do not have any pockets for the workers and they have no place to hide tips."

McDonalds officials, he wrote, do not object to the workers accepting tips, but they want the tips passed on because "they are greatly interested in getting all the earnings up to the last cent."

So great has been McDonalds' success, he wrote, that the company "besides its usual business will construct the (Olympic) swimming pools on the campus of the University of Southern California and they will be named after the Hamburger king."

The article suggested that McDonalds' involvement was a good example of the commercialism dominating preparations for the '84 Games.

Soviet Culture said McDonalds and other big U.S. businesses had accepted happily the sponsorship overtures of the Los-Angeles Organizing Committee and would put $33 million into the event.

"For this they will get the title of official supplier of the Olympiad, which will be the best advertisement for them and will let them be compensated with interest," the article said.

Survey: Budget cut proposal affects most welfare families

Today's briefing

New reapportionment suit filed
SANDPOINT (UPI) — A revised version of a lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of Idaho's new legislative reapportionment law has been filed in First District Court.

The amended complaint seeking to overturn the redistricting plan and halt the May 25 primary election until a replacement plan could take effect will be heard Monday by Judge Dar Cogswell.

The suit, originally filed in early April, apparently was amended in response to a motion by the state — which is defending the reapportionment plan — that the suit should be thrown out because it did not name "indispensable" parties.

Idaho man jailed for shooting

SANDPOINT (UPI) — A North Idaho man is confined in the Bonner County jail on $100,000 bond following a shooting incident 12 miles west of Sandpoint.

Mark A. Holsbach, 29, is charged with assault with intent to commit murder, felony destruction of private property and misdemeanor possession of a controlled substance.

Reportedly a veteran of the Special Services in Vietnam, Holsbach allegedly shot several rounds of gunfire and led police on a two-hour chase through the woods near the Wrenco area Thursday morning. At least one bullet struck a tree where Mark Watkins, 19, was hiding, according to a Bonner County sheriff's deputy. No injuries were reported.

Holsbach allegedly had threatened to blow up gasoline and diesel tanks near the Myron Watts residence on Wrenco Loop, said Senior Deputy Dave Biggs.

The suspect constructed a bomb from a jug with black powder and a blasting cap attached to it, Biggs said.

He set it off behind a trailer on the Watts property — not under the bomb. The fuel tank said, "Only the blasting cap went off and the bomb was located in an area where it couldn't do great damage, the deputy said."

Judge blasts bank salaries

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (UPI) — "A federal judge, in a scathing assessment of the large number of bank embezzlement cases in his court, places part of the blame on the 'miserably' salaries paid to bank employees."

U.S. District Court Judge Malcolm Muir refused a request by People's Bank of Shomokin, Pa., to order a former employee who embezzled more than $28,000 to pay the costs of an audit.

"I most emphatically decline to do so because I consider the bank in this culpable," Muir said in a statement Monday prior to the sentencing of Howard R. Buczeskie.

Buczeskie, 37, Marlon Heights, pleaded guilty March 30 to embezzling the money from the bank, where he worked as an assistant cashier.

Pentagon fires hero for leaks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department has notified one of its officials, a Vietnam war hero, that it intends to dismiss him on charges of disclosing information from a top secret briefing, the Pentagon said Tuesday.

The charges against John C. P. Tillson, a director of manpower management until his resignation to a lesser position two weeks ago, are believed to be the first level of a ranking government official since an administration crackdown against leaks was instituted earlier this year.

Criminal code doomed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate leaders Thursday called off efforts to pass a federal criminal code, because members could not agree on allowing debates and votes on such volatile issues as the death penalty, rape and abortion.

After days of futile, behind-the-scenes negotiations, Republican leader Howard Baker said there appeared to be no hope for reaching an agreement and he formally withdrew a motion he made last Thursday to call the long-awaited legislation to the floor.

Baker left open the possibility of calling up the measure "later."

CIA 'marginal but adequate'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Retiring CIA deputy director Bobby R. Inman said Tuesday he was leaving the agency with no hard feelings and at a time when U.S. intelligence capability was marginal but adequate to safeguard the country against a surprise attack.

Inman, who has announced he will resign effective July 1, addressed an American Newspaper Publishers Association convention. Inman denied that his departure resulted from differences with CIA Director William Casey, who, he said, could not have given him better support.

SLA member denied parole

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (UPI) — Joseph Remiro, a Symbionese Liberation Army "soldier" convicted in the 1973 cyanide-bullet slaying of a school superintendent, was denied a parole date Tuesday.

A three-member State Board of Prison Terms panel said Remiro showed a continuing pattern of violence after being jailed for the killing of Oakland, Calif. school chief Marcus Foster and had refused to submit to psychiatric evaluation.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration's budget cuts would affect virtually every family on welfare and food stamps, and shift millions of dollars in costs that states could not make up, a national survey said Tuesday.

The American Public Welfare Association, which said 37 states responded to its survey, cautioned the responses are speculative. But the group challenged Reagan administration estimates that many Americans would be affected by the cuts.

The administration's 1983 budget proposes savings of $1.2 billion from the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program, $2 billion in Medicaid costs and $1.7 billion in food stamps. Although the overall budget is considered dead in Congress, some specific cuts may be adopted.

"Contrary to last year's proposals, aimed at those in higher income levels, these proposals don't discriminate on that basis," said the group.

The survey challenged administration savings estimates. The administration says 43,000 families would be affected by counting income in figuring eligibility. But the survey said more than 180,000 families would be affected in 20 states that made estimates.

Forces

The 272-foot submarines, which must keep moving, would be vulnerable to detection by Argentina's Sea King helicopters and Neptune maritime patrol aircraft.

Argentina has four diesel-electric submarines, two of them long-range World War II vintage craft acquired from the United States. One of them, the San Francisco, was disabled by the British Sunday.

Britain probably has a superior ability to conduct super-secret electronic warfare — jamming or listening in to the opponents' communications and radar and guiding ships and aircraft to suitable targets.

The surface naval forces are more evenly matched, but Britain appears to have the edge with 16 major warships, among them the 28,700-ton aircraft carrier, Hermes, and the 19,500-ton carrier Invincible, two assault ships, five destroyers and seven frigates.

The warships are supported by about a dozen naval auxiliary ships and 35 requisitioned or chartered civilian vessels, including the 45,000-ton liner Canberra, which is ferrying troops to the potential battle area.

Some of Britain's ships have been deprived from the scrappard or the sellers' block. Among these are the 12,000-ton assault ship Fearless, the San Francisco, which has been considered selling to Argentina.

Argentina's flagship is the 19,900-ton aircraft carrier Veinticinco de Mayo, which was launched by Britain in 1943 but since has been owned by Argentina. It takes high performance combat aircraft.

The Argentine navy boasts a 13,000-ton cruiser, the 44-year-old U.S.-built General Belgrano, which has 4-inch main armor and 15 six-inch guns as well ship-to-ship and anti-aircraft missiles.

It also has nine destroyers, two of them modern British types, three corvettes, which are smaller than a frigate but equipped with missiles capable of sinking larger ships, and several fast patrol boats.

Unlike the sluggish naval artillery duels that characterized past battles in the South Atlantic, the fighting between ships will be primarily by means of long-range missiles.

Both sides are extensively equipped with French-built Exocet missiles, which approach targets at a little over the speed of sound. The missiles are carried on a ship at an average height of 6 to 9 feet above wave crests and have a range of 20 miles.

Control of the skies is likely to be as vital as control of the seas. Argentina has more than a faster aircraft than the logistics of the Falklands confrontation could even the odds.

The islands are at extreme range from some of Argentina's air bases and the Argentine navy has only a few dozen or so fighters. But the runway at Port Stanley, the Falkland's capital, could accommodate Argentine Mirage jets with a light load, as well as the tough, short takeoff Pucara turboprop planes that Argentina developed specifically to attack guerrilla armies.

The British government has not said how many soldiers and marines it is sending to the South Atlantic. Official estimates speak of more than 5,000 troops, including some 2,000 aboard the liner Canberra and nearly 1,000 who are being sent to the South Atlantic aboard a North Sea ferry boat.

Britain therefore lacks the 3-to-1 advantage that military commanders reckon to be the minimum needed to guarantee victory for an invading force assailing enemy positions.

The apparent rule out a frontal assault on Port Stanley.

But the intended, 800-mile coastline of the archipelago favors invaders, and it would be feasible for British forces to establish a beachhead in the extended region and set up an airstrip for Harriers and transport helicopters.

With a well-equipped army of 130,000 and thousands of volunteers eager to join the fray, the British has ample reserves of troops. But it will have difficulty getting reinforcements and supplies to the islands if Britain establishes an effective naval and air blockade.

David Racine, the group's governmental affairs director. "They go after all families regardless of income."

"In 1983, if most of the new proposals are enacted, the entire AFDC food stamp caseload — earners and non-earners — is likely to be affected," the association reported.

An estimated 3.7 million families get AFDC, the nation's main welfare program, and 6 million are on food stamps. The numbers include some duplication; up to 40 percent of food stamp families also get welfare.

The administration estimates at least 921,000 AFDC households would lose some or all benefits, and 22 percent of households would either lose all or some food stamp benefits, with the average reduction $13 per month per household.

The combined AFDC-food stamp benefit for the typical working family would drop $50 a month, to $221, for a total $546 income that is 84 percent of the poverty line, the survey said. For the average non-working family, benefits would drop $32 a month, to $464 or 67 percent of the poverty line, it said.

The survey challenged administration savings estimates. The administration says 43,000 families would be affected by counting income in figuring eligibility. But the survey said more than 180,000 families would be affected in 20 states that made estimates.

Sixteen states estimated a total of $31 million in additional administrative costs to meet proposed U.S. mandates.

Falklands

Amid signs of Argentine discontent with the junta, military sources said four Argentine soldiers were killed Sunday in Britain's recapture of South Georgia, a dependency 800 miles east of the Falklands.

The sources also claimed 100 Argentine marines had eluded capture and were trying to stop the Royal Navy from building a landing strip on South Georgia that could be a springboard for an attack on the Falklands.

"South Georgia was the appetizer," Rear Admiral Sandy Woodward told reporters on the HMS Hermes before the news blackout took effect. The commander of 40-ship war fleet added: "Now this is the heavy punch coming up behind. My battle group is properly formed and ready to strike."

In Washington, the OAS considered an eight-point resolution calling for a cease-fire and negotiations to settle sovereignty of the Falklands, but American support was uncertain. It claims the issue belongs in the U.N.

It appeared unlikely, Argentina would seek OAS sanctions against Britain or invoke the Rio Treaty of 1947, which requires each of the 22 signatories to assist each other militarily when attacked.

Man guilty of Buffalo murders

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — White Army private Joseph Christopher, pale and solemn, was found guilty of murder in a temporary trial Tuesday for the random 22 caliber slayings of three blacks — two men and a teenager.

State Supreme Court Justice Frederick Marshall declared Christopher, 26, guilty of three counts of second-degree murder in the September 1980 shooting deaths of Glenn Dunn, 14, Emmanuel Thomas, 30, both of Buffalo, and Harold Green, 32, of Cheektowaga.

The three were slain with what authorities believe was a saved-off 22-caliber Ruger rifle during a 25-hour period that began Sept. 22, 1980. The murder weapon never has been found.

Christopher still faces trial in the shooting death of a black man in Niagara Falls and in knife attacks — one of them fatal — on four black and Hispanic men in Buffalo and New York City. He also faces charges in an attack on a black soldier while he was stationed at Fort Benning, Ga.

Marshall, who presided over the non-jury trial, set a May 24 sentencing date. Each second-degree murder count carries a maximum sentence of 25-year-to-life.

"I'm just happy Justice was done," said chief prosecutor Albert Ranni. "We made a good pitch," said defense attorney Mark Mahoney. "We did not feel the proof they had was sufficient. But it is a decision we have to live with." An appeal is being considered, he said.

"There is a general satisfaction in the black community," said the Rev. Bennett Smith of the Black Leadership Forum following the verdict. "A great sense of justice has been completed."

As the verdict was read, Christopher sat as he had during the two-week trial, his hands clasped and a blank expression on his face. His mother, Theresa, sat in a front row apparently saying a rosary.

Hinckley jury choice begins

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John W. Hinckley Jr. went on trial Tuesday on charges he tried to assassinate President Reagan.

Prosecutors said Reagan may deliver historic testimony in the case, and also said they would show Hinckley may have stalked Jimmy Carter.

U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker began the arduous process of finding a jury "free of bias, free of opinion" despite the incessant publicity about the shooting attack 13 months ago. Extraordinary security measures were in effect.

Hinckley, 25, a lonely drifter who professed an infatuation for teenage movie star Jodie Foster, has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity. A similar plea led to the acquittal of would-be assassin President Andrew Jackson in 1835 and former President Theodore Roosevelt in 1912.

Parker, assembling the prospective jurors in the courtroom where the 1974 Watergate trial opened, spent the day questioning an initial pool of 90 prospective jurors about their backgrounds and attitudes.

The judge dismissed two of the jury candidates and questioned several others into the evening hours.

The winnowing process, which could last for days, was to resume Wednesday morning. Twelve jurors and six alternates will be seated.

In addition to the 90 on hand Tuesday, more than 250 other people were on notice they could be called into court.

At one point, Parker asked the prospective jurors if there was anyone who had not read about or heard of the case. When not a single hand was raised, Parker said, "That doesn't surprise me in any way."

A television reporter assigned to the White House, a retired Washington police officer and a housekeeper at St. Elizabeth's Hospital — a mental institution where at least one past presidential assassin was committed — were among those questioned by the judge.

Hinckley, a Colorado oilman's son, has pleaded insanity to all 13 counts against him, ranging from attempted assassination of the president to weapons violations.

Parker intended to quiz the possible jurors about their views on mental illness and the idea of an insanity defense. Hinckley would face life in prison if convicted of the most serious charges against him. If found innocent by reason of insanity, it is probable he would be committed to a mental hospital.

The trial — the first in 80 years for a man charged with shooting the president — could last a month or longer.

As the jury selection proceeded, prosecutors filed court papers listing evidence they planned to present, including news film, purportedly showing Hinckley in a crowd about six feet from President Carter when Carter was campaigning in Dayton, Ohio, on Oct. 2, 1980.

The government also will offer evidence that Hinckley was arrested Oct. 9, 1980, at the airport in Nashville, Tenn., with three weapons in his suitcase. That same day, Carter was in town for a campaign speech.

Law enforcement officials had looked into the possibility that Hinckley may have stalked both Carter and Reagan before the attempt on Reagan's life, but they have never revealed the outcome of that investigation.

Illegal alien crackdown continues

By United Press International

The government intends to press its search for illegal aliens at work sites in nine states through Friday unless there are "diminishing returns," the Immigration and Naturalization Service said Tuesday.

Spokesman Duke Austin said unwanted publicity about the "Operation Jobs" sweep that began Monday could impede the search and send illegal aliens into the underground to elude INS and Border Patrol agents.

Austin said agents check employees for Social Security cards and Alien Registration cards and conduct "on-the-spot interviews" to determine if the person is in the country legally. While "there is no exact formula" for deciding which employees to question, "some people just appear foreign" and speak broken English, Austin said — but the agents "try to check all workers."

In Washington and New York, the American Civil Liberties Union said it is monitoring the raids on job sites that resulted in about 1,500 arrests Monday.

The INS said approximately 400 INS and border patrol officers were participating in the raids in Dallas, Houston, Los Angeles, San Francisco, New York, Chicago, Denver, Detroit and Newark, N.J.

The objective, the INS said, is to remove illegal aliens from relatively high-paying jobs that could then be filled by unemployed Americans.

In New York City, raids Tuesday morning snared 50 more illegal aliens, raising to 250 the number detained in the metropolitan New York area in the first two days.

Relying on early figures, INS officials said 475 illegal aliens were arrested in Texas, more than 130 in Los Angeles, 263 in Fort Worth, more than 230 in Houston and more than 200 in Chicago.

In Colorado, officials said they rounded up between 180 and 200 suspected illegals and deported all but one or two to Mexico. In Napa, Sonoma and Alameda counties outside San Francisco, 61 men and women — all Mexicans — were picked up the first day.

'Infraction' change is a step forward

The changes don't become effective for nearly a year, but from what we know, we think the Legislature has taken some wise steps in its reform of the state's traffic-violations statutes.

The debate was low-key, and some details — such as standardization of fines — still need to be worked out. Yet, as Times-News reporter Marty Trillhaase explained in articles Tuesday, the changes are sweeping ones.

Effective March 1, 1983, most traffic offenses, including speeding and other moving violations, will be reclassified as "infractions" and removed from the state criminal code. The changes eliminate jail as a punishment, create a uniform citation form and allow payment of fines without an appearance.

The defendant will be entitled to a court trial, but not a jury trial, on the new "infractions." That part of the change may be the most controversial, in that people may be accustomed to a jury trial and believe it is a right in all circumstances.

Not so, says Tom Cushman, the president of the Idaho Prosecuting Attorneys Association. And locally, Susan Swanberg, the attorney for the city of Twin Falls, agrees with the measure.

The U.S. Constitution affords a right for a jury trial only in cases where there is a threat of a jail term. Cushman says the changes will reduce the logjam of cases in traffic court and will free precious court time for more important cases. Both changes should help reduce costs, although we're more skeptical of that, given the track record of government agencies in reducing costs generally.

Provided the rights of defendants aren't violated, we think all these changes make sense. Wisely, the Legislature did not include several major driving offenses in the new law. Drunken, reckless or inattentive driving, or failure to stop for a stopped school bus will remain misdemeanors, and violators will still be subject to jail terms.

Most citizens are lawful folks whose only contact with the justice system is in the traffic-violations area. We hope the changes in the law will improve that often tangled, time-consuming forum of the law.

PUC needs more, not less, power

BOISE — A decision of the Idaho Supreme Court limiting the authority of the Public Utilities Commission to try to slow down the growth in demand for electricity is bad news for Idaho customers.

It means that electric rates are likely to rise faster in the future than they would have otherwise. The unanimous decision of the high court was to take away one of the few tools the PUC has to try to hold down the rise in rates.

Whenever a rate increase is granted, it is common for people to complain that the PUC acted unreasonably. Yet the truth is, the PUC's discretion to regulate rates is limited. Also limited are the options available to try to hold down future rate increases.

Any time a new electric heating customer hooks on, it costs $6,000 or more for the portion of a new power plant to serve the load. Most of that $6,000 is not paid by the new customer — but by all of the other customers who use electricity.

Is it logical for an electric customer who uses a moderate amount — and is not increasing his use — to pay the cost of building new power plants to serve new customers and new loads?

According to existing law, it is perfectly logical.

And when the PUC attempted to help the present customer by asking new electric heat hookups to pay part of the cost of serving the new loads, the state Supreme Court said you can't do that.

This policy was not a problem in the day when the addition of new power plants did not mean rising rates. The existing customers weren't hurt if the utility's load expanded, and if new plants were built to serve the expansion.

Now, the cost of the expansion is the primary reason for rising electric rates. And the faster a utility expands, the faster rates go up. The most critical question concerning future electric rates is the future rate of load growth and of expansion.

Conservation measures are helpful because they slow growth in demand — and help avoid the need for costly new power plants. The PUC has had some success with policies to encourage utilities to offer interest-free or low-interest loans for insulation and other conservation measures.

Also, the policy of allowing individuals and businesses other than the utilities to put in small power projects seems to be a success. It encourages the use of energy sources that might not otherwise be available.

The effort to require new electric heat loads to pay part of the cost of serving them was a critical part of the PUC's efforts to help consumers.

Idaho's PUC in recent years has attempted to work for the interests of the consumer, while also allowing expansion needed to serve population growth. In so doing, it has frequently run into criticism from the legislative majority, which tends to be most concerned with giving utilities all that they ask.

The state PUC should have more, and not less, discretion to establish policies to try to protect the pocketbooks of consumers. It has responsibility to look out for the interests of consumers — but it doesn't have the latitude under the law to carry out that responsibility.

People who ask why the PUC hasn't done more to hold down utility rate increases should ask another question instead. That question is: Why hasn't the state Legislature granted the PUC more leeway to help the consumers?

Smugness about Falklands reveals short sense of history

WASHINGTON — The smugness and levity with which much of the American press and public have greeted the Falkland Islands crisis is not only demeaning, it is dangerous.

There has been a great deal of easy talk about how far away the islands are from the homeland, how tiny they are, how miserable the climate is, how there is nothing on them but sheep, how they are of no strategic importance, how it doesn't matter what flag flies over them, how no one could possibly go to war over them.

Wrong — and dangerous. Let us pretend that the United States had an island possession a long way from home. Let's say it was a small island, about 600 square miles, and it was 2,400 miles from the nearest point in the United States. It was 5,000 miles from Washington. We had not claimed title to it very long, less than 50 years, but it did have one good large harbor and one good small one.

Now, let us pretend that someone attacked that little island. They did not attempt to invade the island and capture it, merely attacked it. Can't you hear British TV commentators smugly, but ever so precisely, suggesting that surely rational men would not go to war over such a remote piece of real estate, that surely diplomacy was the only sane course of action for settling the dispute?

If, however, you take this pretended island and give it a name, Oahu, call the small harbor Honolulu and the large one Pearl Harbor, then the folly of smugness becomes obvious. Let us have no more laughter about the sheep in the Falklands and how Margaret Thatcher sending the British navy sailing off to war reminds us of Gilbert and Sullivan doing "H.M.S. Pinafore."

The island of Oahu, where 80 percent of the people of Hawaii live, has only 608 square miles, and the total of all the Hawaiian Islands is 6,450 square miles. There are 132 islands and islets in the chain, and 124 of them are infertile and uninhabited.

The Falklands include two main islands and about 200 smaller adjacent islands, which total 4,618 square miles. South Georgia adds another 1,450 square miles, and the South Shetlands bring the area of the land claimed by Britain in the South Atlantic to an area greater than our own Hawaiian chain.

All of these islands were introduced to the Western world by the British navy. Capt. James Cook found the uninhabited Falklands, South Georgia and South Shetlands in 1775, the inhabited Hawaiian Islands three years later.

Of course, there are huge differences. The Hawaiian climate is ideal. It is a glorious place to live, and we would — and did — go to war for it when attacked. We also have gone to war for much lesser reasons.

The same volume of any encyclopedia that includes "South Shetlands" also includes "Spanish-American War." That one started because the battleship Maine blew up in Havana harbor. We never were sure why it blew up, but we were ready for a war, and "Remember the Maine" made enough of a battle cry.

The Falklands and South Georgia are not as vital as they were, but they are still important for strategic reasons. There is an impressive precedent for treating the islands seriously.

In World War I, control of the seas meant everything, and it was contested everywhere. On Nov. 1, 1914, off Chile, the naval battle of Coronel was fought. The Germans, under Adm. Graf Von Spee were victorious. The British flagship and a cruiser were sunk, and their crews totally lost. Two smaller British ships escaped, but the Germans controlled the western approaches to Cape Horn.

The surviving British retreated to the Falkland Islands, got strong reinforcements from home and awaited the Germans. They came on Dec. 8, unaware of the reinforcements. The British fleet steamed out of Stanley so much in the news today, and sank four of the five ships in Spee's squadron. It was called the Battle of Falkland. As a result of that battle, England held undisputed control of the ocean trade routes.

Today, there are aircraft and nuclear powered warships. There are nuclear bombs and nuclear missiles. Secure ports mean less than they did. As long as the Western world runs on oil, however, control of the sea lanes is essential. Super tankers must traverse the South Atlantic.

Last week, at the White House correspondents' dinner, a big laugh went to the line that the British battle cry in the Falklands is, "Don't give us the sheep." If they were our islands, we would not be laughing. If we were thinking, we would not be laughing, either.

Police react in strange ways when they are criticized

CHICAGO — I once wrote about three teenagers who were yanked off the street and arrested by police because they were making "funny signs" with their hands. The police thought the gestures might have been obscene.

It turned out that the teenagers were deaf or deaf-mutes and were talking to each other in sign language. Obviously, the police are never pleased when a story of that kind is made public. Especially since the mothers of the boys said their sons were slapped around and otherwise roughed up.

At the least, the publicity leads to a perfunctory investigation by the Police Department's office of professional standards. At worst, it could lead to some kind of punishment — a reprimand, a suspension without pay and in some rare cases, dismissal from the department.

So, policemen resent it when someone beefs about their conduct. Even if the policemen are wrong, they still think that it's unfair for a citizen to complain about them.

In this case, the most vociferous of the parents was Mrs. Alice Lord, whose son, Danny, 16, told her he was knocked around by the police.

Mrs. Lord was angry and was outspoken in complaining to the police and when she told me her son's story. She asked for a full investigation.

Since then, strange things have been happening around the Lord home.

They could mean nothing. Just coincidence. Or they could mean that some policemen are upset because Mrs. Lord complained and made trouble for them.

I don't know what the answer is, but this is what Mrs. Lord says has been happening.

"One night Danny and I were sitting in the living room. Suddenly, Danny jumped up and turned pale. He ran over to the front window and hid me. 'The police are coming, the police are coming.'"

Danny, I should mention, was terrified of police since his arrest, his mother says.

"I looked from my chair and saw a squad car and assumed it was just parked there and had nothing to do with us, and I told Danny not to get excited."

"But then a policeman came to the front door and knocked. I told Danny to stay away from the door because I could see he was nervous. His hands were shaking. He didn't know what was going to happen."

Mrs. Lord opened the door and asked what the policeman wanted.

"He asked if he could talk to me for a minute. I stepped outside. The policeman didn't say anything for a minute. He just looked around, acting rather strange, like he was a lookout man or something. I asked him again what he wanted, and then he asked me if I had called the police. I said we hadn't."

"Then, without saying anything else, he turned around, walked to his car and drove away."

"I thought the officer just had the wrong house, so I just pushed it out of my mind."

The next evening, at dusk, Mrs. Lord says she was in her living room, talking to a friend of hers.

"My friend was standing in the middle of the living room when she noticed a squad car out front shining a light right into the window of my house. She turned to me to ask what was going on.

"I got up and looked out the window and saw the squad car backing up, like the driver was trying to reposition the car."

"There was only one cop in the car, and he had his hand on the spotlight. He kept the light on me for a while. Then, he pushed the light down and drove away."

"The whole thing didn't make much sense. It was still light out, and this officer was beaming his light into my home for no reason."

Three days later, Danny and one of his deaf-mute friends were walking to an ice-cream parlor.

As they turned a corner near Danny's home, an unmarked police car appeared.

"The car stopped dead in the middle of the street," Mrs. Lord said her son told her.

"The detective motioned for them to come to the car, but they stayed on the sidewalk."

Danny said the cop sprang from the car, leaving it in the middle of the street and walked quickly over to them. Danny said the cop looked angry, and his face was all contorted when he spoke.

"Danny couldn't understand what the policeman was saying. He just pointed to his ears and then to his mouth, and made the sounds for the letters 'E' and 'F' to let the policeman know they were deaf. 'There's no way anybody could mistake what Danny was trying to say.' The detective kept talking, while Danny and his friend used basic hand signals to indicate they couldn't talk.

After several minutes, an elderly neighbor noticed them and came over to see what was going on.

"He (the neighbor) stood next to the boys and didn't say anything. He told me later that as soon as he arrived, the detective walked away."

When Danny told her about that incident, Mrs. Lord tried to reach Capt. Joe McCarthy, head of the Gang Crimes Enforcement Unit, because his men had been the ones who had arrested Danny in the first place.

McCarthy is a favorite of Mayor Jane Byrne and her husband, Jay McMillen, and was promoted to his present job after assuring Byrne he could crack down on teen rowdies on public buses.

Mrs. Lord couldn't get through to McCarthy, and the policeman who answered the phone said she ought to just add the incidents to her earlier complaint, which she did.

But she's still nervous. "I don't know what this is about. Maybe it doesn't mean anything, but when policemen suddenly start coming around like that, for no reason, I get worried. And it makes Danny frightened. He just doesn't understand what any of it means — the arrest or any of the rest."

So what Mrs. Lord has asked me to do is pass on a fairly simple message to the policeman in her area. "Don't call her — she'll call you."

Jetliner crash kills 112 in China, worst in country's history

PEKING (UPI) — A Chinese jetliner on a popular tourist run from Canton to Guilin crashed in a mountainous region of southern China, killing all 112 people aboard, Chinese officials said Tuesday.

It was the worst crash of a Chinese domestic airliner on record, officials said.

The U.S. Consulate in Canton quoted officials of the state-run domestic airline CAAC as saying two American tourists were among the dead. Their names were withheld, pending notification of their families.

Confirming the crash more than 24 hours after it occurred, the official Chinese news agency Xinhua said there were no survivors among the 104 passengers and eight crew members on board the British-made, three-engine Trident jet.

Unconfirmed reports said 50 residents of Hong Kong were also among the passengers.

It was China's first known major air disaster in three years and the worst that China has ever confirmed.

Xinhua said the jet crashed at 4:44 p.m. Monday, 27 miles from the city of Guilin, whose scenic limestone mountains are a popular tourist attraction.

The jet, CAAC Flight 3303, had taken off from Canton, 225 miles southwest of Guilin, 34 minutes earlier. Controllers at Canton's Baiyun Airport lost contact with the jet shortly before the crash.

Xinhua said rescuers had arrived at the crash site in Guangxi province and airline and provincial government officials were investigating the cause of the crash. It gave no further details.

The Canton-Guilin route is a popular tourist run and foreign visitors usually make up the bulk of passengers on the frequent flights.

Guilin is famed for the majestic limestone cliffs that encircle it — and making landing approaches hazardous.

Swatted fly triggered Korean killing spree

WOO BUM-KON killed 56 people

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — Woo Bum-kon's wife swatted a fly on his chest as he slept and something in his mind snapped. By the time his eight-hour rampage was over early Tuesday, the South Korean policeman had killed 56 people and blown himself up.

Another 37 people lay wounded in Woo's rampage through five terrified villages that did not end until he pulled the pins on two hand grenades and held them to his body.

Officials investigating the incident dismissed a provincial police chief and four other officers for negligence. Home Minister Suh Jung-hwa offered to resign, taking full responsibility for the incident, the worst of its kind in South Korean history.

It began innocuously enough.

Woo, a 27-year-old ex-marine, was asleep in his home in Ilyeong, a farming village 170 miles southeast of Seoul. His common law wife, Chun Mal-soon, noticed a fly on his chest and swatted it with her hand.

Police said Woo awoke in a fit of rage, quareled with his wife and stormed out of the house. He returned a few hours, drunk on whisky. They quarreled again. Woo struck his wife, left the house again, and drank some more.

Then, according to police, Woo went to his police station and offered to relieve the officer on duty in order to gain access to the armory.

Three pedestrians were strolling down the street when Woo emerged from the station, dressed in his police uniform and armed with two automatic M-1 carbines, 180 rounds of ammunition and seven hand-grenades.

He cut the pedestrians down in a hail of gunfire, killing all three. He ducked into a nearby post office and opened fire, killing five more people, including two switchboard operators.

Along the street, people emerged from their homes to see what the shooting was about and Woo opened fire on them. Several excited children appeared. Woo killed them too.

Evading police, Woo went from village to village, shooting into houses and bursting into shops, firing on anyone he saw.

Shopkeeper Shin Woo-do said Woo came into his store "for a bottle of Coke." Seconds later, Shin's wife and two sons lay dead. Shin himself was wounded in the leg. "It happened in a matter of seconds," he said.

At some point — when was not clear — Woo also shot his wife, who survived after a six-hour operation for a bullet wound in the abdomen.

Finally, after an all-night rampage, Woo turned his fury onto himself. He ducked into a cottage, pulled the pins on two of his grenades and blew himself to pieces.

Begin promises no more pullouts

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin said in Independence Day interviews Tuesday he will submit a proposal barring any future abandonment of Israeli settlements.

In the occupied West Bank, Israeli soldiers shot and wounded two Palestinian youths who attacked them with slingshots and metal fragments in the ancient Casbah marketplace of Nablus, Israel Radio said.

The radio said the students were protesting the closure of their school Monday by West Bank authorities. The shootings raised to at least 72 the number of youths wounded by gunshots in six weeks of disturbances.

Two days after Israel's final Sinai pullback, the nation paused to remember its war dead and abruptly switched moods in the evening for the start of Israel's 34th Independence Day.

The theme of the holiday this year is settlement and the state-run radio said 14 new paramilitary outposts will be dedicated Wednesday in the occupied West Bank, Gaza Strip and the annexed Golan Heights of Syria.

In Washington, White House spokesman Larry Speakes told reporters, "We don't consider additional settlements to be helpful."

In a television address kicking off Independence Day, Begin insisted Israel never would allow a Palestinian state on the West Bank "at a distance of eight miles from the coast, less than the length of Broadway in New York."

"Who could imagine that we would withdraw to that line?" Begin asked. "Under no circumstances will we do that."

Begin said the new resolution, which would not have the binding effect of a law, would be debated at Sunday's regular Cabinet meeting and go to the Knesset — Israel's parliament. — Monday for debate.

"What happened in Yamit," — the Jewish town demolished last week before the Sinai was returned to Egypt — "was a one-time occurrence, was special," Begin said. "It won't happen again."

Begin was to meet Thursday with opposition leader Shimon Peres in an effort to get his backing for the measure, but Israel Radio said Labor had already rejected the proposal.

Begin repeated that if the Palestinian guerrillas in south Lebanon attacked Israel again, the army will retaliate "with much stronger" than last Wednesday's air strike that killed more than 20 Arabs and wounded 80 others.

The Israeli leader also said the next round of Palestinian autonomy talks must be in Jerusalem, Israel's disputed capital, instead of Tel Aviv, where most rounds in Israel have been held.

Salvadorans delay interim appointment

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — The army unleashed up to 4,000 troops backed by warplanes and helicopters Tuesday in the largest military drive of the year against rebels planning May Day attacks, military sources said.

El Salvador's Constituent Assembly postponed a scheduled a meeting to appoint an interim national president to rule the war-torn country until new elections can be held in 1983 or 1984.

Sources said Assembly President Roberto d'Aubuisson and other leaders of the new legislature decided to postpone the meeting until Wednesday because they want more time to present alternate choices.

Soviet official executed for caviar scam

MOSCOW (UPI) — A former Soviet deputy minister of fisheries believed to have been involved in a multi-million dollar caviar smuggling operation has been executed, Pravda said Tuesday.

An article by chief prosecutor A. Rekunov said "an exceptional measure of punishment" had been carried out against Vladimir I. Rytov, former deputy fisheries minister.

In the Soviet Union, "an exceptional measure of punishment" is a euphemism for execution.

"There can be no mercy here," the prosecutor said, citing "the extraordinary social danger of grafters."

While he gave no details of the case, Rekunov said a number of other high-ranking officials also faced trial.

"Extortioners as a rule try to create a situation of mutual guarantees around them," he said.

"The extraordinary social danger of bribe-takers requires that the strictest measure of punishment be taken against them."

The caviar scheme has never been confirmed officially, but more than 200 employees of the ministries of fisheries and foreign trade are believed to have been involved.

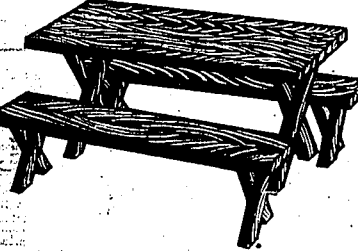

Over a period of at least 10 years, they smuggled precious sturgeon roe abroad, packed in herring cans.

Western partners arranged for the caviar to be sold at $100 an ounce or more, and Soviet officials drew their share from secret Swiss bank accounts when they came to the West on business.

What's what

You get the impression from the media that most elderly parents are abandoned by their offspring, but that's not true, evidently. In a recent study of Seasoned Citizens, 53 percent had seen one or more of their youngsters either on the same day or the day before they were queried about it. Only one in 10 had not seen at least one of the children for more than a month.

Q. Why are "bootleggers" called by that name?

A. Early traders hid liquor flasks in their boot tops when they traded to score with the Indians.

Heavyweight boxer James "Quick" Tillis recalls his first visit to Chicago: "I put my suitcase down, and looked up at the Sears Tower, and said, 'Chicago, I'm going to conquer you!' When I looked down, my suitcase was gone."

MOST POPULAR WRITER

Q. Who's the most popular writer for movies and television?

A. Charles Dickens. More than 80 productions of his writings have been filmed, taped, staged in the United States and Great Britain—more than that of any other writer.

Science types know how to convert the solar energy in tropic waters into electricity. Claim is that solar plants in the Gulf Stream could generate 75 times more power than all the utility plants in the United States. Ocean Thermal Energy Conversion—OTEC—is what it's called.

Q. Why is the "Secretary bird" so identified?
A. Because its head crest looks like a bunch of quill pens. Did I tell you that African bird can run faster than a horse? It eats snakes.

BOOT BEEPER

Fit a small but powerful battery-operated transmitter into the toe of your ski boot. Let perspiration activate it to broadcast a beep. If ever lost in an avalanche then, your rescuers will be able to home in on you directly. No, this isn't such a wild notion. Swiss manufacturers are producing same.

Do you buy the pollster's claim that 21 percent of the nation's university students don't know there are 50 of the United States? Neither do I.

Four years is now the typical waiting period for childless couples who want to adopt a baby.

Cardinal Cody lies in state at Holy Name Cathedral

Cody leaves estate to elderly priests

CHICAGO (UPI) — Cardinal John Patrick Cody left the bulk of his estate to the sick and elderly priests in the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago, a will filed Tuesday in Circuit Court showed.

The will made no mention of Helen Dolan Wilson, Cody's lifelong friend and object of a federal investigation into his alleged misappropriation of tax exempt church funds.

The document was filed as thousands of mourners paid their last respects at Holy Name Cathedral, where Cody's body was displayed for public viewing.

Cody, 74, died early Sunday at Northwestern Memorial Hospital of an apparent heart attack. His body was placed in a bronze coffin on a red-draped bier and dressed in blue and white vestments.

A funeral, to be celebrated by Apostolic Delegate Pio Lighi, Pope John Paul II's personal representative in the United States, was scheduled for noon Thursday.

The Very Rev. John Richard Keating has been elected to serve as interim administrator until the pope chooses a permanent successor to Cody.

Cody's last will and testament, which was signed last Jan. 6 and initialed on each of its seven pages, named the ill and aging priests of the 2.4 million member Chicago archdiocese as his chief beneficiaries. It named the Lake Shore National Bank as executor.

No dollar amount for the cardinal's assets and property was listed, but his attorney, Don H. Reuben, described the holdings as "modest."

The document directs the bank to distribute the estate as soon as payment is made for the cardinal's estate taxes, hospital and doctor bills and his funeral, burial and monument.

The will made no mention of Mrs. Wilson, to whom Cody was suspected of diverting church funds.

Thousands of mourners passed through the doors of the cathedral, beginning at 5:30 a.m., to look for the last time at the spiritual leader who led them for nearly 17 years.

Court ruling dilutes water control law

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The lack of a pollution permit is no reason for federal courts automatically to halt Navy bombing practice in the Caribbean, the Supreme Court said Tuesday in a ruling that weakens water quality controls.

In an 8-1 decision the court declared that the Federal Water Pollution Control Act — the key U.S. water quality law — does not compel federal judges to order an immediate halt to all waste discharges that do not comply with the statute.

Justice Byron White wrote for the majority that under the law, "a federal judge sitting as chancellor is not mechanically obligated to grant an injunction for every violation of law."

The decision was a victory for the Pentagon, which challenged a ruling that ordered the Navy to obtain pollution permits before conducting bombing and shelling practice on and around tiny Vieques Island near Puerto Rico.

The Puerto Rican government had sued for an immediate halt to the military training exercises, contending they violated federal air, water and noise pollution standards.

Alone in dissent, Justice John Paul Stevens called the majority opinion "rather glib," and argued his reading of the law shows "a general rule of immediate cessation must be applied in all but a narrow category of cases."

The Navy currently is challenging a decision by Puerto Rico's Environmental Quality Board denying it a water pollution permit for the military exercises. The Defense Department can still appeal to President Reagan for an exemption on grounds of national security.

In other decisions handed down Monday, the high court:

- Ruled 7-2 that a seniority system, even though it treated blacks unequally, was improperly invalidated by a lower court. The high court ordered a new trial to determine whether the seniority system used at an Alabama railroad car plant intentionally discriminated against blacks.
- Unanimously ruled that a railroad's failure to comply with federal credit regulations does not necessarily allow a shipper to refuse to pay charges levied against the recipient of the shipper's goods.

The environmental controversy focused on Vieques Island, six miles off the southeast coast of Puerto Rico. The Navy owns most of the 20-mile-long island that averages four miles in width.

The Navy uses the eastern end of the island for weapons training — specifically as a range for air-to-ground "naval gunfire support" and other governmental training.

Puerto Rico sued in 1978, seeking to stop the use of Vieques for weapons training. It accused the Navy of violating nearly every major federal environmental protection law.

Concerned about IRS 'harassment'

Conservative groups support tuition tax credit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Conservatives are willing to support the administration's tuition-tax-credit plan, but only if it includes safeguards to protect non-public schools from Internal Revenue Service "harassment," spokesmen for a number of groups said Tuesday.

"We join our voices in commending President Reagan for initiating action on tuition tax credits," leaders of some two dozen conservative religious, family and education groups said in a statement.

"His action recognizes the fundamental principle that, ultimately, parents have the primary right and responsibility to educate their children," they said.

But the conservatives, including representatives of the Moral Majority, the Conservative Caucus and the Coalition for America, conditioned their support on the proposal including strict provisions to bar the IRS from challenging discrimination based on sex, religion or sexual preference.

"At the same time, they said they strongly support tough provisions that would deny the credit to parents who send their children to schools that discriminate on the basis of race. They also would impose stiff sanctions on school administrators who lie about the discriminatory nature of their schools.

"There is widespread concern throughout the private school commu-munity that tuition tax credits will open the door for additional harassment and entanglement by the IRS and other governmental agencies," said Ronald Godwin of the Moral Majority.

"Moral Majority is aware of this widespread concern and we will not support tuition tax credits if there are not sufficient safeguards against IRS harassment in its final version," he

Nader group wants warnings on aspirin

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government is delaying a public warning against aspirin use that could save the lives of children victimized by Reye's syndrome, Ralph Nader's Health Research Group said Tuesday.

The Food and Drug Administration denied that any needless delay has taken place, saying its review of the question has been "expeditious" and in no way reflects industry pressure.

The Nader group repeated allegations it first raised earlier this year that studies sponsored by the Centers for Disease Control show children who developed Reye's syndrome had been given aspirin earlier during bouts of flu or chicken pox.

Reye's syndrome is a condition that hits children and some adults as they recover from viral infections such as chicken pox and influenza. It causes severe vomiting, fever, convulsions coma and — in 28 percent of all cases — death.

Sidney Wolfe, head of the Nader group, said information he obtained from the Centers for Disease Control shows "there have been 60 cases of Reye's syndrome, including 12 deaths since Dec. 1, 1981. Children are being killed and injured because of continuing FDA delays in requiring a warning label for all aspirin-containing products."

Last December, the centers informed the FDA of a recommendation from one of its advisory groups that a warning be issued on the possible Reye's-aspirin link.

Wolfe said he also has asked the FDA to require a warning on aspirin bottles and on signs to be placed in drugstores, recommending that aspirin be avoided by children under age 18 suffering chicken pox or flu.

"Most if not all deaths and injuries to children from Reye's syndrome could be prevented if physicians and parents heeded such a warning," Wolfe said.

"Most moderate or low fevers do not require any treatment. If the child is uncomfortable, non-drug treatments such as cool sponge baths, drinking cool liquids and wearing light clothing should be tried first."

Wolfe said lobbying by the $50-million-a-year children's aspirin industry has stopped the FDA from acting on the matter.

But FDA spokesman Wayne Pines denied that.

Government kicks off anti-drinking campaign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Citing the danger of birth defects and auto accidents caused by alcohol abuse, the government Tuesday unveiled a $1.5 million campaign to tell women and teenagers, "It's OK to say 'no' to a drink."

"Women and teenagers can make up their own minds," psychologist Joyce Brothers, the campaign's honorary chairman, told a news conference.

"They can assert themselves. It's OK to say 'no' when you don't want another drink."

The National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism is sponsoring the two-year education campaign of television and radio spots, brochures, posters, sample editorials, talk show scripts and magazine ads. Spots began airing last month in 30 states.

"We're trying to teach a simple and usable skill — a refusal skill," said Susan K. Maloney of the institute. "Saying no is not a big deal."

In addition to Miss Brothers, former Los Angeles

Dodgers pitcher Don Newcombe will join the campaign, which will be run at the state and local level with the help of national materials. Several national groups also are involved.

Most anti-alcohol campaigns have been directed at men, the nation's biggest drinkers. But Miss Brothers said they ignored the particular dangers of drinking among women and teenagers — chief among them birth defects and auto accidents.

Conservative estimates are that 24 percent of the nation's problem drinkers are women, with some estimates as high as 50 percent, she said.

An estimated 1,500 to 2,000 babies a year whose mothers drink are born with "fetal alcohol syndrome," a pattern of irreversible birth defects including low birth weight and mental impairments, she said.

"No one really knows how much is too much," Miss Brothers said. "The safest choice is not to drink during pregnancy."

A third of teenagers have their first drink before age 14, and an estimated 27 percent of high school students drink at least once a week. Between 40 percent and 60 percent of fatal crashes involving young people are alcohol-related, and 8,000 a year are killed in car accidents, Miss Brothers said.

"Drinking and driving teens are a double threat because they haven't had enough experience at either," she said.

Miss Brothers said later she drinks "only champagne during celebrations, and only to sip it. There's very little call for dancing, singing, psychologists."

The television spots have three main themes. One, aimed at women and girls, asks, "How do you say no when you don't want another drink?" Using a few examples, the ad answers, "Any way you want to."

Another set is aimed at pregnant women. A third is directed at teenagers. (The teenager ads have no adult voices — only teens — and in a low-key way emphasize the consequences of drinking.)

Gentle Joys of Teatime

The Tea Renaissance

It's the backbone of the British Empire, and it has crossed the Atlantic to thrive amid the elegant lobbies and potted palms of this country's finest hotels. It brightens the afternoons of dock workers, office workers, and "the best families" alike. It's steeped in centuries of tradition yet recently has gained new popularity in our hectic world. It's afternoon tea, and in its finest form, it's accompanied by the most tasteful array of cakes the hostess or host can manage.

The Story of Tea

Many Americans are finding that tea is an easy, affordable way to entertain and a nice change of pace from dinner, brunch, or cocktail parties. Because the essence of teatime is warmth, formality, and relaxing conversation, it has strong attraction for today's hostesses who may prefer not to serve a full meal requiring elaborate last-minute preparations and clean-up.

Although afternoon tea in the U.S. is not so formal as in Britain, it nevertheless requires that the hostess or host serve delectable sweet things with which to tempt guests' appetites. A hostess in Victorian England had a "downstairs" staff to prepare tea cakes, scones, and watercress and cucumber sandwiches, but today's hostess can take advantage of the ready-to-eat cakes from Kitchens of Sara Lee. These baked treats are a delightful addition to any teatime with no embellishment yet versatile enough to serve as the base for some very fancy tea party fare with only a few minutes' preparation time.

Tea and Cakes

The variety of tea flavors ranges from mild and herbal, even decaffeinated, to strong and stimulating. Tea lovers can argue endlessly over the merits of Darjeeling, Ceylon, Jasmine, Earl Grey, English Breakfast, Orange Pekoe, After Dinner Anisette, Spicy Lemon, Chamomile, and more. Suit your own taste!

Here are some tempting tea cakes. The Petits Fours are made from Pound Cake and a variety of frostings. From Vienna, chocolate lovers' paradise, enjoy a Sacher Torte made from Chocolate Cake and yet more chocolate. The New Orleans Cheese Cake starts with a Cream Cheese Cake and turns into a praline fantasy. Next the tea party goes exotic with an elegant Tropical Coffee Cake. And for a light touch, a Lemon Filled Coffee Cake incorporates lemon yogurt in an easy-does-it recipe.

After decades of cocktails, colas, and coffee, Americans are rediscovering the gentle joys of teatime. When the clock points to four in the afternoon, people are drawing close to hearth, family, and friends. Here we can gear down, relax, and enjoy a sip of tea and a taste of goodness.

Pound Cake Petits Fours

- 1 frozen Sara Lee Pound Cake, thawed
- 1/2 cup apricot preserves
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 2 tablespoons water

Chocolate Icing

- 1 square (1 oz.) unsweetened chocolate
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 3/4 cup confectioners' sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon vanilla
- 2-2 1/2 tablespoons hot water

Orange Icing

- 3/4 cup confectioners' sugar
- 2 1/2-3 tablespoons orange juice concentrate

Cherry Icing

- 3/4 cup confectioners' sugar
- 2 tablespoons maraschino cherry juice
- 1/4 teaspoon almond extract

Cut Pound Cake lengthwise into 2 layers. Cut each layer into 12 cubes; set aside. Place cake rack over cookie sheet. Stir together apricot preserves, sugar and water; bring to boil, then simmer for 2 minutes. Pour through sieve into bowl. Place cake cube on fork. Holding over icing, quickly spoon apricot glaze over cake to coat. Using small spatula, push petit four onto cake rack; let stand 30 minutes to dry.

Place another cake rack over another cookie sheet. Ice cake by placing glazed cake on a fork. Holding over icing, spoon desired icing on top and sides of cake, letting excess icing drip back into bowl. Use small spatula to push each petit four onto cake rack. Touch up fork prints. Dry 20-30 minutes. If icing begins to thicken add 1/2-1 teaspoon hot water. Makes 24 petits fours.

Chocolate Icing: Melt chocolate with butter. Beat in confectioners' sugar, vanilla and hot water. Use immediately to ice petits fours.

Orange Icing: Beat orange juice concentrate into confectioners' sugar. Use immediately.

Cherry Icing: Beat cherry juice and almond extract into confectioners' sugar. Use immediately.

Decorating: Garnish with candied red and green cherries, sliced almonds or small pecans.

Tea Etiquette

Americans are often puzzled by the formalities of tea. High tea is a substantial meal and a dinner substitute for those attending a concert or play. It is served to children after school and to adults between five and six-thirty in the evening and can include eggs, sausage, meat or cheese sandwiches, fresh strawberries with rich Devonshire cream, and an assortment of pastries. Afternoon tea is simpler but choreographed just as carefully.

The proper hour for serving afternoon tea is four o'clock, and how it is prepared and what accompanies it are the difference between making a cup of tea and having tea.

The tea pot is pre-warmed with hot water which is emptied into the "slop" bowl. Next, the hostess puts tea into the pot. The measure is about one rounded teaspoonful of loose tea per cup. The tea is barely covered by boiling water, then allowed to steep for about five minutes. More hot water is added, and now the tea is ready to be poured to the guest's taste. ("Strong, please, with just a bit of sugar and lemon," or "Weak, please, with two lumps of sugar and a dash of cream.")

Sweets and "dainties" are passed around to guests on a plate or a "curate," a three-level serving plate with a handle at the top. It's all very proper, based on a code of etiquette that has evolved over centuries.

Dear Abby

Meanness, not morality, blamed for wedding refusal

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: The Rev. J. Roger Skelley-Watts wrote you that he performed a wedding ceremony for an obviously pregnant bride after the couple had been previously refused by a Catholic priest.

I will never understand how any religious minister could be so arrogant and vindictive as to chastise a "sinner" and not address the human need for understanding, forgiveness and acceptance. If that's a Christian attitude, I'll eat my Bible.

As for marrying expectant parents: few people seem to realize the wedding ceremony is a blessing of a couple's union to formalize a commitment already made in their hearts. If the family is begun before the blessing, why not attribute the "sin" to the impatience of love, for which there is plenty of precedent?

Through history (and in some countries still) unions were consummated far in advance of the blessing because there weren't enough men of God to go around. It was not unusual for an itinerant minister to bless the marriage and baptize its offspring at the same time.

A lot of us wouldn't be here today if current righteousness prevailed then, and a lot more of us could not claim to be properly legitimate dependents of our ancestors.

Meanness, not morality, is in the hearts of those who would deprive a pregnant bride of a church wedding and all the support they can possibly give to welcome this new family into the community.

If this is too long for your column, please forward it to the Rev. Skelley-Watts with my warm congratulations.

—LOVE IS EASY TO FORGIVE
DEAR LOVE: Your letter is well worth the space, and deserves a wider audience than one clergyman in Bolivar, Ohio. But stay tuned for the voice of a Catholic priest who deserves equal time:

DEAR ABBY: You published a letter from a clergyman who said that he had performed a marriage ceremony for an "obviously pregnant bride" who had been previously refused by a Catholic priest."

I think in all fairness to the Catholic Church, the reason for the priest's refusal to perform the ceremony should be explained.

The Catholic Church takes the position that the holy wedding rite should not be used to protect a pregnant girl from embarrassment, or to give her baby a name. I think most people would agree that such marriages seldom last.

If, however, after the birth of the child, the couple still wants to marry, then the wedding could take place. Catholic priests have been known to marry pregnant brides after talking with the couple and being convinced that the pregnancy is NOT the only or main reason for the marriage.

—THE REV. ROBERT M. COX, DALLAS

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this in hopes that it will get through to some knuckleheaded daughter or son out there.

My daughter, who is now an adult and lives out of town, is a wonderful young woman. We have a great relationship and I know she loves me, but a few years ago she told me she thought Mother's Day was a "racket" and she refused to be sucked into it, so since then she has never acknowledged Mother's Day with flowers, gift or card.

I could never bring myself to tell her that I feel hurt and that a card would mean a great deal to me. So I'm writing this. Maybe she will read it. Or perhaps someone else's child will read it and get the message.

DEAR MOM: Perhaps. A little ink can make one think.

Today's Safeway, where

Dr. Lamb

Epilepsy hereditary rate very low

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Association

DEAR DR. LAMB — I noticed in one of your columns you told a young woman who has epilepsy that she could have normal children. You should have told her that Dilantin causes birth defects. I had two healthy children and then began taking Dilantin and then wondered if it would cause birth defects. Eventually I contacted a doctor doing research on the "Dilantin Baby."

Nine weeks into my pregnancy, my husband and I decided to abort. As it turned out, death had already occurred. Some of the side effects of Dilantin are cleft palate, strabismus (crossed eyes), severe heart lesions and many others. Perhaps you should comment on this.

DEAR READER — I received several letters from women who misunderstood my comment about epileptics having children.

In the past there was much misinformation about the likelihood of a person with epilepsy having children with epilepsy. In some states, epileptics were forbidden to marry. This is living in the dark ages.

Even if one parent has epilepsy, the chance that the couple will have a child with epilepsy is as low as 25 to 50 per 1,000 births. The chance is even lower if neither parent has epilepsy despite a history of someone in the family having it. And parents with no family history of epilepsy sometimes have a child with this problem.

Now for Dilantin, the different investigators at top-notch universities do not agree on the interpretation of available data. Just as some totally healthy mothers will give birth to children with birth defects, so do some women taking Dilantin. In your case, you do not know if the Dilantin caused the problem or if it would have occurred anyway.

I think there is enough evidence to think that Dilantin may indeed cause this problem, even though many mothers taking it have had normal babies. Mental development may be a problem. But I must warn that no woman taking this medicine or other anticonvulsant should stop it abruptly. That may cause life-threatening problems, such as status epilepticus. In regard to medicines to control convulsions and pregnancy, rely on your doctor for guidance in your particular case.

I am sending you The Health Letter 10-8, Epilepsy: You Can Have It Too. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Rice dishes simplify backyard meals

Rice mix seasonings add flavor

CHICAGO — After a seemingly endless winter, it's no wonder people are dreaming of casual outdoor summer entertaining.

To avoid making sudden changes in plans because of weather, many people are enjoying backyard gazabos. These roomy aluminum-framed, screened-in gazabos allow you to enjoy the outdoors while offering shelter from the rain and unwanted "guests."

It's fun to have something special and different on the menu for a backyard gathering, or anytime. For many years, wild rice was used only at holidays and for special occasions.

The combination of wild rice with long grain white rice offers economy, convenience and special flavor that complements a variety of foods and adds a touch of luxury to any meal, including outdoor patio parties. The 23 carefully selected herbs and seasonings in the rice mix are not only perfect in hot accompaniments and main dishes, but they're ideal in salads too.

Oriental Wild Rice Salad combines quality wild rice and long grain white rice mix with pea pods, green onions and shredded carrot in a delicate lemon-soy dressing for a salad that looks as refreshing as it tastes. Prepare rice the night before the planned outing.

Or cook extra while preparing dinner; the rice needs little attention, thanks to its foolproof, no watch cooking directions. The next morning, simply add the remaining ingredients, then chill until it's time to eat.

Instead of the typical coleslaw, try a hot variation. Hot Wild Rice & Slaw combines rice with green or red cabbage, or a combination of both, in a side dish that's destined to become a family favorite year round. Since the rice doesn't get sticky, even when it stands or must be reheated, prepare it just before going outdoors to begin the grilling. Then keep it warm on the edges of the grill.

Garden fresh cucumbers, green peppers, green onion and tomato fleck the Original-Long Grain and Wild Rice on Confetti Wild Rice Salad. The 23 herbs and spices in the rice mix season the lemony dressing perfectly for a salad that can't be beat —

Rice accompaniments such as Oriental Wild Rice Salad give flair to outdoor entertaining

Kumquats are true oranges which come from ornamental trees originally from the Orient

Willetta Warberg

Pickled kumquats tasty

Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — You guessed right! Those tiny orange-colored edibles filling a section of your market's fresh produce counter are what you think they are.

They may not be much more than an inch in length but they are truly oranges which come from ornamental trees originally cultivated in China and Japan. Call them Kumquats, and store them in your refrigerator.

Their rind is sweet and orange-smelling. The pulp is acid. One can eat the entire fruit, rind and all, uncooked.

You might enjoy, however, spicing or pickling some kumquats to use as garnishes for meat and poultry platters. Perhaps you want to preserve some for use as condiments with your favorite curry dish.

SPICED KUMQUATS

- 1 pint kumquats, washed
- water
- whole cloves
- cinnamon stick
- 2 cups sugar
- 2 cups water

In small kettle, put kumquats and cover with boiling water; let stand 2 to 3 minutes; pour off water. Push a clove into each fruit; return fruit to kettle. Add cinnamon stick, 2 cups sugar and 2 cups water; simmer 20 minutes or until fruit are tender.

PRESERVED KUMQUATS

- 2 cups sugar

- 1 cup water
 - 1 quart washed kumquats
- In kettle, put sugar and water; bring to a slow boil; boil, stirring 5 minutes. Add kumquats; cook gently 1 hour, or until tender. Don't overcook. Pour into 6 sterilized 8-ounce glasses. Cover; keep in cool, dry place.

PICKLED KUMQUATS

- salt water (allow 1 tablespoon salt to each quart)
- 1 cup vinegar
- 1 cup water
- 1 cup light brown sugar
- 1 cup sugar
- 20 cloves
- 1 stick cinnamon, broken into small pieces
- pinch of ground cinnamon

In kettle, put kumquats and salt water to cover; let stand 24 hours. Rinse kumquats; cover with fresh water; boil 30 minutes; drain. Add more fresh water and cook kumquats until they are just tender.

In another kettle, combine vinegar, 1 cup water, brown sugar, sugar, cloves, cinnamon and ginger; boil 5 minutes. Then add cooked kumquats, a few at a time and cook until translucent. Lift out kumquats; pack into sterile jars; add hot syrup to 1/4-inch from top of jar. Prepare more syrup if necessary.

THIS WEEK'S BEST MARKET BUYS: Watch for fresh produce spectacular buys. Lettuce will be plentiful. Tomatoes are getting less costly. There are plenty of tasty, sweet green peppers. Barbecuing time is here. Stock up on barbecuing supplies now while you can find what you need at a decent price.

Value of coupons depends on competition firm faces

By MARTIN SLOANE
United Feature Syndicate

DEAR MARTIN — Several months ago I found a 10-cents-off coupon good on the purchase of three cans of Campbell's Soup. I felt that the value of this coupon gave me very little incentive to purchase the soup and decided to write to Campbell's about this.

In response, I received a letter from Dean E. Bair, marketing manager for condensed soups.

He said: "Before you judge us too severely, let us explain that the denomination of a coupon usually has a relationship to the retail selling price of the product. As you are well aware, Campbell's Soups still represent a very good food value. Ten or 12 cents off on the purchase of three cans, which can normally be purchased for anywhere from 69 cents to 79 cents, still represents a worthwhile savings — over 10 percent."

His letter concluded with this statement: "Another aspect of coupon promotion relates to the strength of the product's franchise, which for Campbell's Soups is quite strong. Therefore, a large coupon denomination is not necessary to move additional product."

What do you think of this? — S.R., Bronx, N.Y.

DEAR S.R. — It is true that the retail price of the item should be considered in determining the value of a coupon. But last year coupons gave shoppers a discount of about 18 percent on their couponed items; this places the Campbell's coupon below average.

Bair's reference to the strength of his company's "franchise" is certainly interesting. Having the lion's share of the canned soup market, Campbell's obviously doesn't feel compelled to be more generous with the value of its coupons.

Is there a relationship between the degree of competition and the value of coupons? You be the judge.

DEAR MARTIN — A supermarket in my area advertised Parkay Margarine on sale at 49 cents a pound. I checked my coupon file and found three Parkay coupons.

When I got to the store, the Parkay was out of stock, and the clerks was substituting another brand. I asked whether they would accept my Parkay coupons and they said "no." Were they correct? — Diana S. from Goshen, Ohio

DEAR DIANA — The terms printed on coupons clearly instruct the retailer to redeem the coupon only for the corresponding product. It doesn't matter that the Parkay was out of stock. If you didn't buy it, you can't redeem the coupon.

Rhubarb cobbler can't be topped

By CAROL RASMUSSEN
Chicago Tribune

If you're just acquiring a taste for rhubarb, here are three recipes developed by The Chicago Tribune test kitchen.

Stewed rhubarb, the most basic way to prepare the fruit, can be thought of as applesauce — it goes with everything, except maybe tacos, and can be eaten at any meal.

This version is greatly reduced in sugar, which seems to accentuate the great taste of rhubarb. The strawberry rhubarb cobbler is so wonderful that if there isn't a run on rhubarb after readers have made it but once, there's something wrong with the world.

Rhubarb, by the way, is really a vegetable but is considered a fruit because it is used in cooking as if it were a fruit. After all, how many people serve rhubarb with meat?

Perhaps we can begin a trend, then, for the rhubarb Yorkshire (rhubarb baked in a Yorkshire pudding) is an excellent accompaniment for roast pork or poultry.

STEWED RHUBARB

Four servings
Preparation time: 5 minutes
Cooking time: 15 minutes
1 pound fresh rhubarb, cubed or 1 quart individually frozen cut rhubarb, thawed
1/4 cup sugar, or to taste

1. Rinse rhubarb; put rhubarb with water that clings in medium saucepan. Cook and stir 10 to 15 minutes until fork-tender or whatever texture you like, adding additional water only as needed. Stir in sugar; cook and stir just until hot.

(Variation: Chopped nuts may be added if you wish. Or chill and stir into plain yogurt and sprinkle with granola for a breakfast dish.)

RHUBARB STRAWBERRY COBBLER

Six servings
Preparation time: 25 minutes
Cooking time: 35 minutes
1 cup flour
2 tablespoons sugar

Eggs have nutrition, versatility

By KIM UPTON
Chicago Sun-Times

As always, Eastertime means eggs are cheap. So even if you do have plenty of hard-cooked eggs around, investing in eggs now is a good idea.

Eggs keep well. If fresh when purchased, they will maintain quality in the refrigerator for several weeks. And they can be used in any meal and for any dish, from salads to sandwiches.

Serve eggs hard-cooked and sprinkled with seasoned salt or herbs. Mix them into other foods. Chop them and use as garnishes.

To uniformly chop eggs, use an egg slicer. First slice a hard-cooked egg then give it a quarter turn and slice again. This makes perfect small pieces of egg for salads, sandwich mixtures or garnishes.

Here are a few suggestions for hard-cooked eggs:

Salad a la California

1 pound fresh asparagus
2 medium-sized potatoes, cooked
1 medium tomato
1 tablespoon chopped black olives
1 (7-ounce) can tuna, drained
1/2 teaspoon curry powder
one-eighth teaspoon dried basil
1/2 cup vinaigrette
Salted greens
2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
Whole black olives (for garnish)

Wash asparagus. Snap off and discard tough end of stalk. Cut stalks into 2-inch diagonal slices. Steam over simmering water until tender-crisp (5 to 10 minutes). Cut potatoes in 1/4-inch slices. Core tomato and squeeze out seeds. Cut into eighths.

Combine cooked asparagus, potatoes, tomato, chopped olives and drained tuna. Mix together. Add curry and basil to vinaigrette and pour over vegetables. Mound vegetables onto bed of greens. Sprinkle with chopped hard-cooked egg. Garnish with whole olives. Serves 10.

Shuffed Eggs

8 hard-cooked eggs
2 (4 1/2-ounce) cans shrimp, drained, rinsed and chopped or two-thirds cup finely chopped cooked shrimp
1/2 cup sour cream
1/2 cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
2 tablespoons finely chopped fresh onion
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon curry powder

Shredded lettuce
Cut hard-cooked eggs in half lengthwise. In medium bowl, sieve or mash yolks from 4 eggs (8 halves). Add chopped shrimp, sour cream, mayonnaise, cider vinegar, onion, salt, pepper and curry powder; mix well. Remove yolks from remaining whites, sieve, reserve. Spoon 3 tablespoons shrimp mixture into each egg-white half; arrange on shredded lettuce on platter. Sprinkle sieved egg yolks on stuffed eggs. Cover and chill until ready to serve. Serves 8.

By CAROL RASMUSSEN
Chicago Tribune

Back in 1947, the rhubarb industry looked like the place to put your money.

The New York state agricultural experiment station in Ithaca suggested there could be an "excellent future" in bottling rhubarb juice because rhubarb was found to be an excellent tooth preservative. Its small amount of "oxalate" protects the enamel of teeth.

Well, obviously no one dug their teeth into the project and, in fact, America turned a cold shoulder to rhubarb, once so popular for making pies that it was called the pie plant. Farmers took the hint, and now the volume of rhubarb grown for market is quite small.

But there appears to be some good news for die-hard rhubarb lovers. The present-day demand for the pie plant is greater than the supply. "We sell all we can get," said Freida Caplan, owner of Freida's Finest Produce Specialties Inc. in Los Angeles. "We are the biggest distributors of rhubarb in the country and we have an excellent demand. In the last 10 years, the job that Weight Watchers have done with their recipe for rhubarb stewed in low-cal black cherry soda has created a whole new market."

When Caplan says "excellent demand," she judges it against a time a few years ago when very few people were asking for rhubarb. Even as recently as the '70s, demand still seemed slow enough for a spokesman for a Chicago supermarket chain to lament: "I hope people start buying rhubarb again; it's such a shame to see it disappear." In comparison to fruits-like-apples-or-oranges, rhubarb today still is a "nothing demand," said a produce buyer for a Chicago supermarket chain.

Greet spring with Alaska Crab Louis

JUNEAU, Alaska — With warmer days approaching, entertaining calls for a light yet festive entree like this luscious Alaska Crab-Louis.

This main dish salad captures the flavor and spirit of the North Pacific with succulent Alaska Snow crab in the shell, combined with a variety of garden vegetables and hard-cooked eggs. It's all served with a zesty Louis dressing of mayonnaise, chili sauce, green onion and lemon juice.

Alaska Snow crab comes already cooked and ready to use; simply allow the clusters to thaw before cutting them into serving-size pieces. Arrange on a platter with crisp asparagus spears, hard-cooked eggs, cucumber slices, tomato wedges and olives.

Serve the dressing in individual dishes for convenience. It's difficult to be neat when enjoying crab, so be sure to supply plenty of napkins, along with cocktail forks to easily remove the tender snow crab from its shell. Crusty bread and chilled white wine or ice tea go well with this spectacular warm-weather menu.

Frozen Alaska Snow crab is a good item to have on hand for spring and summer entertaining since it transforms soups, salads and sandwiches into exciting party fare.

ALASKA CRAB LOUIS
 2 lbs. frozen Alaska Snow crab clusters
 1 pound fresh asparagus, trimmed and blanched
 3 hard-cooked eggs, halved
 2 medium tomatoes, cut in wedges
 1/2 medium cucumber, sliced
 1/2 cup ripe olives
Louis Dressing:
 Thaw crab. Cut into serving-size pieces; crack. On a large lettuce-lined platter, arrange crab, asparagus, eggs, tomatoes and cucumber; garnish with olives. Serve with Louis Dressing for dipping crab and vegetables. (Makes 6 servings.)

Louis Dressing — Combine 1 cup mayonnaise, 1/4 cup each chili sauce and chopped green onion, 2 tablespoons lemon juice and a dash cayenne pepper; mix thoroughly. Makes about 1 1/2 cups dressing.

Try luscious Alaska Crab Louis when entertaining calls for a light, festive entree

Poaching suggested in fish preparation

By BILL BURTON
 Baltimore Evening Sun

Poaching is among the most simple ways to prepare fish, and certainly among the best if the fish is truly fresh and has been well preserved since it was caught.

Poached fish can be served as an entree with just about any seafood-type sauce added, though even that isn't necessary if you want all the flavor of a fish. And poaching is also recommended for preparing fish that will be used in a casserole or other combination dish.

When chilled and flaked, poached fish is the base of a delicious salad.

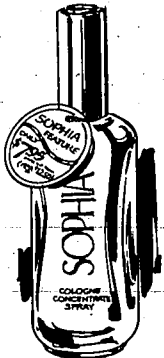

cooking the fish in a simmering liquid. The fish are placed in a single layer in a shallow, wide pan, then barely covered with one of several liquids.

Some prefer lightly salted water; others choose water mixed with herbs, spices or wine. Then, there are those who claim that rockfish poached in milk can't be beat.

As with all procedures, in poaching it is important that the fish not be overcooked. Simmer it in a covered pan only until it flakes easily with a fork, usually five to 10 minutes. Remove it promptly, but don't discard the poaching liquid. Once the fish is removed, the liquid can be further reduced by more simmering.

Today is national nursing home day

By ELLEN MAY GOLDBERG
Chicago Sun-Times

Charlie Wyszniowski, 86, is alive and well and living in the Willows Nursing Center in Geneva, Ill. Although he is frail, his spirit is strong and his attitude cheerful. Wyszniowski once owned a hardware store and knew everyone in town. He was and still is a member of the Rotary Club, on the park board and leader of a Boy Scout troop. His wife and family are all dead. He has few visitors but would like to tell you about his life if you would care to listen. Would you?

Margaret Walsh, 91, is in a wheelchair most of the day. She smiles and says hello to any visitor who hurries down the corridor of St. Ann's Nursing Home in Camden, N.J. Margaret was a schoolteacher in a one-room schoolhouse in Big Bend, Okla. Her parents homesteaded there. She still remembers "dust" storms, tornadoes and the sod floor in her home. She is alert and charming, but very lonely. There is no one left in her family. Except for the few volunteers who visit the nursing home, Margaret has hardly anyone to talk to about her life. She would love to if you would care to listen. Would you?

Today is National Nursing Home Resident's Day. For the third year, the National Citizens Coalition of Resident Councils will call on Americans to honor the nation's 1.6 million citizens living in nursing homes. Wednesday is a time to affirm the strength, dignity and spirit of these residents, and to work with them to make their needs known within their communities.

"One of the most meaningful contributions you can make," says Marcia Friedlander of the Evanston Council on Aging, "is to volunteer your services in a nearby nursing home. Far from being depressing as so many think, getting to know one or two residents, listening to their life stories is a rich and rewarding experience."

Many worthwhile improvements have been made in nursing home administration, health standards and staff. If you have not already read the resident's bill of rights, ask the administrator of any nursing home to furnish you with a copy.

Many nursing homes are planning special events and parties for Wednesday. Some will have craft and bake sales, others will be entertained by community and school groups. Others will be recipients of small favors and refreshments furnished by church and club groups. One nursing home is even putting on a circus. Another is having a plant sale made possible through their horticulture therapy program directed and administered by the staff at the Chicago Botanic Gardens.

Sister Mary Sears of the Evanston Commission on Aging says, "April 28 is an opportunity for the community to see nursing-home residents as whole people — as people with a history."

By all means, go, and see for yourself that she is right.

It's very difficult to prove real originator of most recipes

By LOUIS SZATHMARY
Chicago Sun-Times

Sometimes when I give someone a copy of a recipe, the question arises, "Is this your own recipe?" I always hesitate to answer.

I don't knowingly take other people's recipes and pass them off as my own. Twenty-five years ago, when I still was working for Armour & Co., I knew a woman who "wrote" cookbooks in her elegant apartment. One day she invited me and my wife to her home and showed us how she worked.

First, she would buy two copies of all kinds of cookbooks. Then, using a razor blade, scissors and glue, she would cut recipes from the books and paste them on index cards.

She would change a word here, an ingredient there, then turn the recipes over to her typist, an elderly woman who would come to the apartment, take off her shoes, put on her glasses and pound away with incredible speed to produce page after page of "manuscript." I was amazed, embarrassed, upset.

I recalled this "author" several years later when a big case of plagiarism stirred the calm waters of the food pages as well as the torrents of the social columns.

An English lady of rank and means published a cookbook that turned out to consist of recipes clipped from Gourmet magazine, Craig Claiborne's New York Times columns and other widely read sources.

I was fascinated by her defense: She said she got these recipes from domestic help, from friends and from newspaper clippings she had collected for decades. When someone suggested she write a cookbook, she just honestly and sincerely dipped into her own box of "her own" recipes.

My little niece Mari Joy replied sharply after I told her the beautifully wrapped dilly bread she gave me for Christmas was made from my recipe.

"No, Uncle. This is not your recipe. I got it from my grade-school teacher."

What she didn't know was that once upon a time her teacher was among the first pupils in my Sears Gourmet Cooking Forum. Indeed, that recipe was mine.

Or was it?
Where did I get the recipe? Well, I certainly didn't cut it out of someone else's cookbook. I got it from my mother, who learned it from my father's mother. So it was in my family for a long time — but I don't know where my grandmother got it.

When I came to the United States in 1951, I became friendly with the Quinns, a Canadian family transplanted from Kitchener, Ontario, to Norwalk, Conn. They were among my first acquaintances here, and later were among my closest friends.

Mrs. Quinn gave me an excellent no-knead recipe for cinnamon rolls. They are the gooey kind, with no molasses but chopped nuts and caramel as well, and they are sinfully good.

I have used the recipe for years and years and often give it to friends. At first I gave it out as "Mrs. Quinn's cinnamon rolls."

But after making the rolls for 10 years, I no longer knew what I had kept from the original recipe and what I had changed. And one day, browsing through old cookbooks, I found that the recipe also resembled one in a Pillsbury baking book published more than 30 years ago. Anyway, here are "my" cinnamon rolls. I doubt if Mrs. Quinn or Pillsbury will sue. Even if they did, they couldn't win. Copyright and other laws are so weak and so vague when it comes to recipes that anyone can get away with murder.

Cinnamon Caramel Pecan Rolls
 1/2 cup milk
 3 tablespoons butter
 3 tablespoons sugar
 1 teaspoon salt
 1/2 cup water
 1 ounce cake fresh yeast
 1 egg
 4 cups flour
 3 tablespoons melted butter

2 teaspoons cinnamon sifted with 1 tablespoon sugar
 1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
 1/2 cup chopped pecans

For muffin pans:
 1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
 3 tablespoons light corn syrup
 1 1/2 tablespoons melted butter
 1/2 cup chopped pecans

Scald milk and remove from heat. Add 3 tablespoons butter, sugar, salt and water. Cool to lukewarm. Add yeast in small pieces and mix well. Blend in egg. Gradually add 3 1/2 cups flour, about 1/2 cup at a time. Mix well until flour is incorporated. Sprinkle dough with flour, cover with a towel, and let rest 15 to 20 minutes.

Dust a pastry board or table top with flour and roll out dough to a rectangle about 12 by 18 inches. With a pastry brush, spread surface of dough with melted butter. Combine cinnamon-sugar with brown sugar and -chopped-pecans, and -sprinkle- evenly over dough. Roll up along length, like a jelly roll.

For muffin pans, combine brown sugar, syrup, melted butter and chopped pecans. Grease muffin pans with 18 to 24 pockets (we used corn oil to brush the sides) and divide syrup mixture evenly among the pockets. Cut rolled up dough into 18 to 24 pieces and gently push each piece into one of the muffin pockets. Let rise at about 90 degrees, away from drafts, for about 1 hour. Bake in a pre-heated 375-degree oven about 20 minutes. Cool a few minutes, turn over rolls, and remove rolls. Yield: 18 to 24 rolls.

Note: This recipe was developed for fresh yeast. If you wish to use dry yeast, use two envelopes; note expiration date, and follow package directions.

WINE TIP: If you are among the growing minority who enjoys a glass of wine instead of some other beverage with freshly baked cinnamon rolls, my suggestion is one of the California dessert wines. An excellent one for the price is Sutter Home's 1960 Muscat Amabile, available throughout the Midwest in several chain stores.

Transactions are highlight of NFL draft

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Football League draft didn't only bring smiles to the faces of Kenneth Sims and the rest of his college cohorts Tuesday. It also fulfilled the wishes of veteran All-Pro Bert Jones, Russ Francis and Mike Barber.

Sims, a 6-foot-4, 285-pound defensive end from Texas, as expected was the first pick in the draft, going to the New England Patriots. But the rest of the first round selections were overshadowed by deals which sent Jones and Barber to Los Angeles and Francis to San Francisco.

After Baltimore took Mississippi State linebacker Johnnie Cooks and Cleveland, choosing third because New Orleans had used its first pick on quarterback Dave Wilson of Illinois in last year's supplemental draft, took linebacker Chip Banks of Southern California, the wheeling and dealing began.

Baltimore traded Jones, one of the NFL's top quarterbacks, to Los Angeles for the Rams' first and second round draft picks this year. The Colts then selected the man they hope will be Jones' heir, Art Schlichter of Ohio State, with the choice obtained from Los Angeles.

"It's just great," Jones said. "I'm proud for the opportunity and I'm looking forward to playing for a first class team supposedly interested in getting me but I felt this was the appropriate place for me to be. It worked out just like I thought it would. I'm looking forward to playing the best football I can and helping the Rams reach the playoffs as they have done so often over the years.

"I've been favorably impressed with the Rams and the way they've handled this entire situation. I'm happy and that's what really counts. I enjoyed nine great years in Baltimore and they were very good to me. I'm going to do the best I can and to the best of my ability generate some offense for the Rams."

Later in the first round, New England sent Francis, the former All-Pro tight end who sat out last season on the voluntarily retired list, to San Francisco for two high draft choices. And Houston then dealt unhappy tight end Mike Barber to Los Angeles for tight end Lewis Gilbert and an exchange of draft choices.

The Patriots also made another deal, trading veteran safety Tim Fox to the defense-starved San Diego Chargers for a second-round choice this year and a third round pick next year.

Sims, who is expected to ask for and receive about $1.5 million for three years, was thrilled with his selection.

"It's a great way to end my college football career," Sims said. "From now on, I don't have to give a politician's answer when people ask me what team I'm going to be playing for. I'm glad to be getting an opportunity to play on the outside — hopefully I can utilize my speed and quickness there."

Chicago took Brigham Young quarterback Jim McMahon, the all-time passer in NCAA history, and Seattle selected defensive end

"Minnesota is the only team I sent a letter to, telling them I didn't want to be drafted by them," Nelson said. "I am a little disappointed."

When in doubt, swap

By COOPER ROLLOW
Chicago Tribune

When you're a new coach, trade. When you've got your back to the wall, trade. Even if you're a champion, trade.

Shrewd trading on draft day — that's how the rich get richer and the poor avoid becoming even poorer in the National Football League.

Analysis

Tuesday's opening day of the NFL draft saw a flurry of early-round trading that would have made a commodity broker blush. But there was no bushes to be seen on the faces of the coaches who were behind the wheeling and dealing. Just smiles all around. For instance:

- Frank Kush, rather than get stuck in his first year at Baltimore with a quarterback his boss can't stand, untraded Bert Jones on the Los Angeles Rams and drafted Art Schlichter of Ohio State, who is Kush's kind of guy — tough and surly.
- Rams' Coach Ray Malavasi, who almost certainly will be fired if he doesn't win next season, welcomed Jones and got him a tight end to work with — highly regarded Mike Barber, who came in a deal with Houston. Jones loves to throw to his tight end.
- Super Bowl winner Bill Walsh of the San Francisco 49ers, who talked New England out of retired tight end Russ Francis and added a top second-round draft choice, defensive tackle Bubba Paris of Michigan. The package cost Walsh four draft picks: a first, two seconds and a fourth.

Before choosing Schlichter with the draft pick they got from the Rams for Jones, the Colts picked linebacker Johnnie Cooks of Mississippi State. Then they chose Schlichter over another quarterback, Jim McMahon, selected on the next pick by the Bears.

"We feel Schlichter has a little more physical stature than McMahon," Kush said. "He has some problems with the mechanics of throwing, but we can resolve those things."

Schlichter said an ankle injury that disrupted his senior year with Ohio State no longer is a problem.

"I got into some bad habits when I was hurt, throwing more with the arm than the body," he said. "But I'm throwing better now than I have in the last three or four years — maybe in my life."

The accent was on offensive players in the laborious, first round of the "thin" 1982 draft, which lasted three hours and 30 minutes — the longest opening round in six years.

Boise State star goes in 4th round

Steelers give Woods a chance to keep hitting

By MARV CLEMENS
Times-News sports editor

BOISE — Hard-core defensive football is what Rick Woods was taught in Boise State University. Deliver the hit to your opponent so as to dictate to him when he can and can't do.

Woods will apparently get to keep playing the game with that philosophy, only next fall it will be in the National Football League for the Pittsburgh Steelers.

The 6-1, 200-pound safety was selected by the Steelers 14th in the fourth round of the NFL draft Tuesday afternoon, the 97th overall pick in the annual talent hunt.

Woods, an All-American performer for the past two seasons, is glad to be going to Pittsburgh.

"I'm just ecstatic, there's nothing much else I can say, and I told the Times-News reader an hour after he was phoned by the Steelers. "I probably couldn't have picked a better team to go to. They need help in the secondary and are a good organization."

Woods wasn't selected by the end of the third round as he hoped, but he said that disappointment is going away quickly.

"It's (his selection) starting to sink in now," he said. "I wanted to go in the third round, but I realize now that I was kind of unrealistic."

The Steelers will be holding a camp for all of their selections in the two-day draft starting Friday. Woods will fly from Boise Friday morning.

"They called and we talked, but I can't remember more than half of it," Woods said.

Woods said Jack Lambert, Pittsburgh's All-Pro linebacker, was a boyhood idol.

"A grew up not quite idolizing but admiring the Steelers," he said. "I can't wait to meet Jack Lambert. The Steelers play hard-nosed football and the philosophy that Coach Jim Criner has given me parallels Pittsburgh's style."

Woods earlier said if he was selected in the third round that he could expect a contract of around $100,000 a year. He and the Steelers weren't talking money Tuesday.

"I know it will be enough to help me finish school," the business management major joked.

Woods has already set some goals.

"I want to start and I want to wear a Super Bowl ring," he said. "Pittsburgh is an established team, but they're in a awful tough division."

Idaho State University quarterback Mike Machurek was selected by the Detroit Lions in the sixth round of the draft. The All-American selection who led the Bengals to the 1981 NCAA Division I-AA championship was not available for an interview Tuesday evening.

Three other likely Idaho draftees — BSU defensive lineman Randy Trautman, Idaho State's punter-kicker Case deBruijn and Idaho running back — were not selected in Tuesday's first six rounds.

Ricks suffers from anemic offense again as CSI notches double whitewash

By MARV CLEMENS
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — Baseball teams that hit for a .118 average don't win too many baseball games.

The Vikings of Ricks College were blanked twice by College of Southern Idaho Tuesday afternoon, 11-0 and 5-0. When the two-day series was complete, Ricks had four losses, just 10 hits in 83 at bats and one run.

"We set them (the Ricks batters) up well," CSI coach Jim Walker said. "I was surprised with Ricks. The Utah Tech coach said they were tearing the cover off the ball in March, but they sure looked weak today."

Four CSI pitchers looked anything but weak Tuesday. Undefeated Scott Troester threw a very tight ball in the first game to move his record to 4-0. Russ Cannon, just coming back from elbow surgery, allowed just one hit in three innings of the second game while Brad McClure and Brian Osberg each worked two innings to complete the shutout performance.

"I'm really encouraged by the pitching," Walker said. "Maybe that is what is going to carry this team into the regionals. We looked good on the mound both days."

Cannon had elbow surgery in January and it was a surprise to some Eagle followers that he'd be able to pitch at all this year.

"They worked on the outer curve and while they were at it they spilled a tendon together," Walker said. "He pitched a good three innings and had some pop on the ball."

Troester allowed only a fifth-inning single to Terril Ewing in the opening game. Ewing was quickly erased on a double play and Troester faced only 18 batters.

Offensively, the Eagles reached Ricks starter Scott Engum for one run in the second and five in the third before a five-run fifth inning decided the game via the 10-run ruff. Darrell Freter's three-run homer down the left field line was the final blow.

Rik McDonald and Mike Robbins each had doubles to help pace CSI's seven-hit attack. Engum and Brian Jennings combined to allow seven walks to bolster CSI's offense.

In the second game CSI led 3-0 by the end of two innings, but left 13 runners stranded in what might be another 10-run decision. Sonny Pigg and Mike Calosain each batted in two runs. Pigg had two singles while Calosain had a double and a single.

Walker expressed displeasure with CSI's batting performance despite 16 runs in 12 innings.

"We're not adjusting (to a pitcher) as we should during a game," he said. "Our pitchers are adjusting like they should and we're getting some major league fielding, but we're not aggressive at the plate."

Walker said finding an offensive leader may be the answer, but he acknowledged that Ricks' anemic performance didn't prompt the Eagles to be aggressive.

"We were out in front early in the games and Ricks didn't do anything to put the pressure on us," he said. "Why steal or why do anything when they're playing the way they are?"

Walker made note of his team's inability to take advantage of certain offensive situations.

"I had the guys back in the box and ready to hit the ball behind the runners and we just wouldn't do it. We've got to learn that it's like a light bulb in a dark room. When the light goes on you've got to do it and just that fast."

CSI's fielding didn't need any help Tuesday. The Eagles had two double plays while Pigg had a superb showing at third base for the second straight day.

Ricks heads home with a 9-17 season record while CSI takes its 23rd victory to Ontario, Ore., Friday and Saturday for another four-game district series against Treasure Valley Community College.

"We'll probably throw Tracy (Poulson) some more and see how he does with the arm," Walker said. "We may also look at Tim McMannon. He pitched a little in the pen today and said his arm felt fine."

Unearned runs doom Bruins in 8-4 loss; Schow, Smith shine for Spartans

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Taking advantage of nearly every Twin Falls mistake, the Minico Spartans scored six unearned runs in the first three innings and coasted to an 8-4 triumph Tuesday afternoon at Jaycee Park.

The Spartans' lead triple from second baseman Jeff Schow in the third inning to turn a one-run advantage into a comfortable lead. A Bruin error, however, enabled Schow to come to the plate and climax Minico's five-run rally.

Left-hander Terence Smith kept his pitches down and, with them, Twin Falls' run total. The Minico sophomore forced 20 of the 21 Bruins he retired to ground out or strike out in recording his fifth victory in six decisions.

The triumph gave the Spartans a 2-1 mark against Fourth-District competition and a chance to gain the first-round bye in next month's playoffs with a victory Friday over Burley.

"You can't put too much emphasis on it (Tuesday's victory)," Minico Coach Rick Baumann said. "It doesn't mean anything unless you win the district. But it gives us an edge."

Twin Falls Coach Bill Ingram accepted the defeat realistically. "They're a darned good baseball team," he said of the Spartans. "We messed up by making errors."

The Bruins, 16-5, began erring immediately. After starter Brock Brodeen yielded a one-out double to Lynn VanEvery in the first inning, Schow smacked a lefty to left-center field. Center fielder Todd Wington had an easy play, but missed the ball. VanEvery scored easily, and Schow proceeded to third.

Moments later, Brodeen's wild pitch sent Schow home. The Bruins' lead was 2-1.

Twin Falls fought back, scoring three runs in its half of the first to take a 3-2 lead thanks to a Spartan miscue.

With the bases loaded, Mike Black hit what could have been a double-play grounder — at least a force-out — to shortstop VanEvery, who threw to Schow at second base. But Schow dropped the ball, keeping the bases loaded and giving Twin Falls a run.

David Sloton forced Black at second, Mike Federico scoring the tying run. Jose Salinas drove in Curt Thieman with the inning's final tally, stroking a single to right field.

Minico clinched matters two innings later. Consecutive singles by Dave Garro, Russ Wright and Brock Winnill scored a run and chased Brodeen.

Steve Kravitz, the Bruins' top pitcher, relieved Brodeen, but an error by third baseball Black on Terence Smith's bunt loaded the bases. Kravitz nearly pitched out of the jam, fanning Arlen Smith and inducing Tracy Wodskow to pop up.

The Bruin right-hander and VanEvery then duelled until the count reached 3-2. VanEvery won the battle by taking a high fastball for a walk, forcing in a run and putting Minico on top, 4-3.

This brought Schow, who entered the game batting .543, to the plate. In Twin Falls' 11-inning, 4-3 triumph over Minico March 31, Schow collected the only hit the Spartans managed off Kravitz in eight innings.

Schow continued his mastery, starting a 1-1 pitch into right-center field for three more runs. Kravitz had delivered his pitch outside, but Schow adroitly drove it to the opposite field.

"Jeff has got awfully strong wrists," Baumann said. "He just wrestled the thing.

That's the trademark of a good hitter."

Theater, all that remained was to watch Terence Smith display the trademarks of a good pitcher. Except for Wington's run-scoring double in the fourth, Smith remained dominant, permitting only two hits after the first inning.

Because of a sprained thumb suffered on the final play of last Saturday's game against Pocatello, Smith wasn't certain to start Tuesday. "I didn't know about 45 minutes before the ball game whether he would throw or not," Baumann said.

Twin Falls tries to maintain its hopes for the district tourney by today, traveling to Burley for a 2:30 game.

Bears: McMahon has chance to start

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — All American quarterback Jim McMahon didn't waste any time Tuesday getting to Chicago to begin learning the Bears' system.

McMahon was Chicago's first-round pick in the 1982 collegiate player draft. And the quarterback caught the first plane from Salt Lake City to Chicago to meet with Bears officials. As soon as he arrived in Chicago, McMahon promised a battle with Vince Evans for the No. 1 job next fall. "Vince Evans lacks consistency," said McMahon, who completed 533 of 1,066 passes for 9,536 yards and 84 TDs in his career. "That's the story of Chicago quarterbacks. Can I start? I'm not going to come into camp and lie down."

Last year, Evans was 195 of 436 for 2,354 yards and 11 touchdowns. His rating of 51.0 was one of the lowest in the NFL.

New Coach Mike Ditka, whose input helped change the Bears' draft philosophy after the team shunned quarterbacks in the first round for years, indicated the job was wide open.

"He'll (McMahon) come in and compete. The best man will win," Ditka said. "We didn't know whether he would be available when we drafted."

49ers get Francis from Pats

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (UPI) — The Super Bowl champion San Francisco 49ers swapped their first four selections in the 1982 NFL draft Tuesday to New England in exchange for former All-Pro tight end Russ Francis and the Patriots' second round pick.

San Francisco had the last pick in the first-round-and-after-watching other coaches draft the Patriots they had in mind, the 49ers finally completed a deal with New England which Coach Bill Walsh said involved all-night negotiations.

In addition to the final pick in the first round, the 49ers traded the massive offensive tackle Bubba Paris of Michigan.

Walsh said he finally was able to make the trade for Francis only minutes before it became San Francisco's turn to draft in the opening round.

"Russ Francis has been a premier player for a number of years," said Walsh. "So, we acquired a great tight end."

Francis sat out his final year at Oregon but still was a first round draft choice. Last year, he refused to play for New England over a contract hassle, but Walsh said the 49ers have reached agreement with the player and he anticipates no problems over a contract.

"As for Paris, who weighs 300 pounds, Walsh said he was surprised the tackle was still around by the second round.

"When someone of his stature is available," said Walsh, "you have to do everything possible to get him."

Reeves: Gamble will pay off

DENVER (UPI) — Denver Coach Dan Reeves admits it was a gamble but believes the risk paid off with his selection of running back Gerald Willhite of San Jose State as the Broncos' first round choice of the 1982 NFL draft Tuesday.

In the second round, the Broncos traded the first round pick, Orlando McDaniel of Louisiana State, who distinguished himself as 7th among LSU's all-time receivers with 64 receptions.

Denver earlier became entangled in a game of risk-taking after Reeves suddenly balked at choosing 19th in the first round and instead traded away the slot to Buffalo in exchange for the Bills' 21st spot and also their slot in the fourth round.

The Broncos had been preempted from the fourth round because of last year's acquisition of running back Tony Reed from the Kansas City Chiefs.

Because acquisition of a top-notch running back was the Broncos' top priority in this year's draft, Reeves' decision to defer making the club's first draft pick could have been a costly move.

"We took a gamble by switching but we felt the two teams ahead of us (Buffalo and Philadelphia) were looking to get different positions," Reeves said.

Reeves said the 5-10, 190-pound Willhite had been reading the Broncos' scouting staff as being among the top running backs in this year's draft and despite his relatively small size was expected to be a Bronco asset.

During his two years at San Jose State, Willhite carried the ball 542 times for 2,403 yards and 20 rushing touchdowns while pulling down 125 catches for 1,051 yards.

drafted. We were pleasantly surprised when he was."

Scouting director Jim Farmer said McMahon's drop-back style will make the transition to the pros easier.

"Sure, I wish he was 6-foot-4, but that doesn't seem to be a factor," said Farmer, who added McMahon eased Chicago's concerns about any knee problems by passing a tough physical.

The Bears had the sixth pick in the draft after finishing 6-10 under Evans last year. While Ditka indicated McMahon would be given a shot at starting, General Manager Jim Pinks indicated he was in no hurry to rush the young quarterback.

"That's an awful lot of pressure to put a young quarterback under,"

Finks said. "I don't think Vince Evans is a dead cord by any means."

It was the first time in 31 years Chicago had made a quarterback his No. 1 draft choice. In 1951, Chicago took Notre Dame's Bob Williams. McMahon said his only disappointment with the draft was that he wasn't the first quarterback selected. Ohio State's Art Schlichter was the second player taken Monday, by the Baltimore Colts.

"But, I'm still happy with Chicago, especially if what I've read is right—that they're going to do the stadium," he said.

The big question mark surrounding McMahon's NFL future is his left knee.

McMahon underwent surgery on the knee following his sophomore year, sitting out the 1979 season. He then returned the knee in the Colorado game last fall and missed two games while being fitted for a special brace.

"I feel as good as I've felt in my life," he said. "The knee hasn't given me any problems. But, I will definitely wear the brace when I play in the NFL. However, it won't hinder me."

He said all the NFL teams interested in him had "their physicals and their agility tests when I visited and everyone found me fine. One doctor said he couldn't believe I'd ever had a problem."

Cindy Charlton directs traffic as construction crews continue work on Blue Lakes Boulevard

Blue Lakes work proceeds smoothly

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — After about two weeks of construction work on Blue Lakes Boulevard North, Twin Falls motorists apparently are getting used to the slowdown in the flow of traffic.

Work leading up to the widening of the boulevard began April 15 and has proceeded with few problems, according to the project's superintendent.

Doyle Matkin, of the Pocatello-based Bannock Paving Co., says he hopes to have the Perrine Coulee realigned and irrigation and storm-drain systems installed by May 31. Then, crews will start the actual widening.

The $1.8 million project, funded largely with federal money, calls for the boulevard to be widened from the north end of the Burger King restaurant, at 390 Blue Lakes Blvd. N., to Falls Avenue. Work will be finished by Oct. 1, according to the contract between Bannock and the Idaho Division of Highways.

Matkin says there are no plans to close part of Blue Lakes for the construction work. He also says it's hard to tell whether motorists have begun taking alternate routes to avoid congestion on the street.

"It (the traffic) looks about the same now as it did when we started," he says.

However, Steve Beckel, the manager of The Prime Cut restaurant next to the construction site, says his volume of business indicates traffic has declined.

"We are noting an impact, mainly at lunchtime," Beckel said. "Business seems to be pretty steady at night, though. Overall, we're losing some business, but not enough to worry about." There's not a heck of a lot you can do about it, anyway."

Matkin says the construction company has scheduled merchants' meetings, to be held three times a month, in an effort to minimize the road work's impact on the stores.

Clean-up job opens canal

Officials search Carey area for possible victim of flood

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

CAREY — The discovery of camping equipment in the flood area north of Carey led police officers on an unsuccessful search Tuesday for a possible victim.

Sheriff's Deputy Donald Green said a woman found a lawn chair, a sheet and pots and pans in the flood path Monday. So, officers and volunteers from the Blaine County Search and Rescue Unit combed a four-mile stretch Tuesday, from the bridge at the Little Wood River dam, down to the diversion canal.

Searchers found more lawn chairs, bed springs, pots, pans and clothing, which Green said may have been washed out of a camper. But they found no evidence of a vehicle or victims, and he said there were no reports of missing persons.

However, Green said debris piled against irrigation structures and rocks could easily hide a car or body. He said a broken lantern was found that still contained pressure in the pump, and the camp equipment had been washed along a one- to two-mile section of the flood's path.

The American Red Cross will be setting up flood-relief headquarters in the Mormon Church in Carey today, he said. The center will offer food, clothing and bedding, and volunteers will assist homeowners in getting furnaces, hot water heaters and other essentials back in service, he said.

Men and equipment worked feverishly during a 12-hour period Tuesday to clear the irrigation canal and clean out most of the silt from the main channel of the Little Wood River.

Mrs. Jim Peterson, whose husband serves on the irrigation district and flood control boards, said men began gathering at their ranch at 6 a.m. Tuesday to start work.

And by late afternoon, the diversion canal that carries water to the irrigation system was ready for use, she said, and the crews were turning their attention to the river channel.

Gates on the Little Wood River dam, 12 miles above town, were closed for the 12-hour period to allow workers to restore the damaged canal and irrigation structures, and clean the river channel. The flash flood Saturday night carried so much silt and debris into the river, that its capacity for handling the heavy runoff flow was reduced greatly.

County Commissioner Rupert House said a lot of progress had been made by Tuesday evening. With the river bed cleared and the diversion system ready to carry water, the problem of additional flooding had been minimized, at least for the present, he said.

Mayor Green estimated that five large bulldozers, several loaders and numerous gravel trucks, farm tractors and farm trucks, as well as about 50 men, worked from dawn to dusk in the clean-up effort. In town, other residents are handling cleaning mud and debris from flooded homes.

The heavy equipment was furnished by local canal and highway districts, the state highway district in Shoshone and several contractors from Blaine and Lincoln counties.

"House said an effort by the county to set an overall damage estimate was postponed Tuesday, but it will resume today."

However, Deputy Green reported that the extent of the damage was worse than originally thought.

"We find there are 54 homes with flood damage, instead of the 25 we first estimated. Some are trailer houses that are beyond repair."

Beans Inc. 'moves' to keep judge busy

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A battery of lawyers will argue Friday about the date, location and type of Fifth District Court trial to be held in the Beans Inc. case.

Lawyers involved in all sides of the civil lawsuit have filed nine separate motions, which will be heard by retired Judge James Cunningham, who is presiding over the case.

The lawsuit stems from the July 30, 1979, fire that destroyed a warehouse at the now-defunct Piler bean firm.

About 150 farmers have sued Beans Inc., its parent company, Commodities Marketing Corp., and CMC's owner, Jim Woods of Salinas, Calif., seeking payment for the beans that were stored in the warehouse prior to the fire. The farmers also have accused Beans Inc. of misstatements of selling beans they did not own.

In all, the farmers claim an estimated $1.3 million to $1.6 million worth of beans were in the warehouse. While most of the motions before Cunningham seek summary judgments concerning technical issues, three motions pose questions that could alter major aspects of the trial, scheduled to begin June 1.

"These issues are..."

A plaintiff's motion to withdraw their earlier request for a jury trial. Lawyers for the farmers have indicated their desire to waive a jury trial in what is expected to be a complicated and time-consuming trial.

A defense motion to delay the trial.

A defense motion to move the trial outside of the eight-county Magic Valley area.

Defense efforts to continue the trial stem from an on-going criminal case against Woods and his associate, Martin Taylor of Madera, Calif., in Salt Lake City. Taylor, both defendants are scheduled to be arraigned on arson and insurance fraud charges Friday in Salt Lake City.

In a motion filed with the district court earlier this month, defense lawyer Larry Duff of Rupert indicated that Woods could not fully testify in his own defense in the civil case until the criminal case is resolved. An affidavit filed with the court says defense lawyers "have concluded that there are certain factual items necessary to the defense of the Idaho case which could not be presented prior to the Utah trial because of the necessity of non-disclosure before trial to preserve their effectiveness in the Utah action."

Defense lawyers are seeking a change of venue in the case on the basis of pretrial publicity. An affidavit in support of the motion says the case has received an "abnormal amount of press and news media coverage."

Walker Center selects St. Louis firm to build

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

GOODING — A general contractor for the construction of a new facility for the Walker Center for Alcoholism and Drug Abuse has been selected.

Hospital Builders and Equipment of St. Louis, Mo., will handle the design, architecture, engineering and on-site supervision for the $12 million project.

The 28-bed facility will be built next to Gooding County Memorial Hospital.

HB&E is working on a building project for St. Benedict's Hospital in Ogden, Utah, which owns Walker Center.

HB&E has been in business for 21 years and has completed more than 400 hospital projects in 44 states, including the Elks Rehabilitation Hospital in Boise, according to Carl Bergstrom, the Walker Center director.

Area companies will be eligible to bid on the actual construction, including the electrical work, heating, plumbing, carpentry and roofing, he said.

"We feel strongly that work should be performed by local people if possible," Bergstrom said.

Construction is scheduled to start this summer. It will include 60 other projects under construction.

Walker Center presently is housed in a wing of the Gooding hospital, and it uses two nearby facilities for activities and administrative purposes.

The center moved into the hospital April 1, after several months of controversy. Since then, all 12 of the beds allotted for Walker patients have been kept full, Bergstrom said.

"It's really working out well," he said.

Election ruckus

Petition challenge may force Sen. Peavey off primary ballot

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Incumbent state Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, may be struck from the May 25 primary ballot because of an incomplete filing petition.

Two county clerks have disqualified enough signatures on Peavey's petition to make it invalid, and a decision on Peavey's candidacy is expected to be made next week by the secretary of state.

The challenge to the signatures was filed with the state by Peavey's primary opponent, Richard Russell, a Rupert bar owner. Russell lost the District 21 Democratic primary to Peavey in 1980.

"The way it looks now, we may have to run on a write-in campaign," Peavey acknowledged Tuesday. "I'm still waiting for more word on the signatures and haven't decided whether I'll request a hearing (with the secretary of state)."

Peavey said flooding around his Carey ranch following Saturday's breakage of two irrigation dams has kept him from working on the petition problem.

Seven non-registered voters apparently were among the 52 who signed Peavey's petition. To qualify, he needed 50 valid signatures.

"We did have four signatures that were in question," said Blaine County Clerk Marie Ivie. "One signature was illegible, but we finally found out who it was, and he is registered. The other three are not registered, however."

In Minidoka County, four more signatures were declared invalid by County Clerk August Bethke because the signers were not registered. That would reduce the number of valid signatures to 45, five short of the requirement.

On Monday, Peavey was mailed a letter informing him of the challenged signatures, and he was given seven days to request a rebuttal hearing.

After he defeated Republican Maurice Ellsworth in 1980 by only 54 votes, Blaine County Republicans claimed that dozens of people who voted for him were not registered properly in District 21.

Peavey's Senate colleagues dismissed the challenge, but the incident spawned a host of bills to correct perceived election problems in the Idaho Code.

But according to Conrussa, the new legislation passed over one problem — certifying nominating petitions.

He said it would be impossible, however, for his staff to double check all signatures on nominating petitions. Instead, Conrussa said he would seek legislation next year to require county clerks to certify the validity of petition signatures.

This year, four people filed for the District 21 Senate seat. In addition to Peavey and Russell, two Republicans will square off in the GOP primary — Eugene Moon of Heyburn and Leland York of Ketchum. Peavey is seeking a fifth term in the Senate.

Peavey said he would not support any candidate, but Peavey's "leadership in gathering votes" for small-business legislation — tax credits and exemptions — has endeared him to the organization.

Peavey also acknowledges that his right-to-work stand will destroy his top rating with NFIB, but he from receiving a 100 percent rating when NFIB releases its evaluation of legislators in three or four weeks.

Criticizing Peavey for making such a statement before the NFIB evaluation was completed, Russell charged that the incumbent did so in order "to get votes."

Bernau said it is true Peavey's stand against right-to-work will cost him his 100 percent rating, but he said this was Peavey's only vote against NFIB's goals.

"It will merely reduce his rating with us from an A-plus to an A," Bernau said.

Bernau also says that Peavey's stand will destroy his top rating with NFIB, but he

SEN. JOHN PEAVEY
May run write-in race

Primary opponent says Peavey lied on interest-group rating

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Senate candidate Richard Russell of Rupert is claiming that his primary opponent, incumbent John Peavey, D-Carey, has lied to the public.

Russell charges that Peavey gave a false account of his voting record during an interview printed in a Shoshone weekly newspaper. He said Peavey lied regarding the rating of his Senate record by the National Federation of Independent Businessmen.

"On top of an irresponsible record which misrepresents the people who sent him to Boise, Peavey has now resorted to outright lies to try to mislead us," Russell said.

But local NFIB director Jim Bernau says Peavey's statements regarding his evaluation by the small business organization were correct at the time they were issued. He said, however, that Peavey's rating has been lowered, as noted by Russell.

According to a statement reported April 8 in the Lincoln County Journal, Peavey said he was proud of the 100 percent rating given him by the NFIB.

However, Russell said that Peavey's vote against the vetoed right-to-work bill, which would have outlawed mandatory union membership, will prevent him from receiving a 100 percent rating when NFIB releases its evaluation of legislators in three or four weeks.

Criticizing Peavey for making such a statement before the NFIB evaluation was completed, Russell charged that the incumbent did so in order "to get votes."

Bernau said it is true Peavey's stand against right-to-work will cost him his 100 percent rating, but he said this was Peavey's only vote against NFIB's goals.

"It will merely reduce his rating with us from an A-plus to an A," Bernau said.

Bernau also says that Peavey's stand will destroy his top rating with NFIB, but he

Family affair

Judge hears cases involving father and son, husband and wife

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Larceny was a family affair Monday in Fifth District Court.

In the course of his weekly criminal court session, Judge Daniel Mehl:
• Accepted a guilty plea from a Twin Falls man charged with purchasing a stolen lawnmower from his son, and then, he sentenced the son to at least four months in confinement.

• Sentenced a Buhl man to spend at least four months in confinement following a hearing that included prosecutor Harry DeHaan's off-hand reference to the defendant's family.

• Accepted an innocent plea from a Twin Falls man who has been charged with grand theft as a result of his wife's statements to police.

• Accepted a guilty plea from a Kimberly man accused of embezzling from his uncle's business.

The father-and-son case involved a charge that 41-year-old Joe Gonzalez possessed a lawnmower, stolen from Krengel's Hardware, 210 Second Ave. S. in Twin Falls, on Feb. 10. Gonzalez pleaded guilty to the charge — grand theft by possession of stolen property, which carries a maximum 14-year prison sentence. And he told Mehl he purchased the lawnmower from his 19-year-old son, Robert.

The elder Gonzalez told Mehl he was unaware the machine was stolen, but prosecutors said the defendant should have known better. However, defense lawyer Jeff Stoker explained that his client pleaded guilty in exchange for a prosecutor's promise not to make a recommendation when Gonzalez appears in court for sentencing.

Mehl ordered a presentence investigation and continued the defendant's release on personal recognizance.

to spend 120 days at the North Idaho Correctional Facility at Cottonwood. Mehl will retain jurisdiction in the case during that period. If Gonzalez successfully completes the NICI program, Mehl may suspend a five-year prison sentence imposed for the defendant's convictions on grand theft and first-degree burglary charges.

Mehl also ordered 20-year-old Robert Dean Nevil of Buhl to spend four months at the Cottonwood facility. Nevil pleaded guilty to possessing a stereo that had been stolen in mid-November.

Nevil's lawyer, Mike Walz, offered little resistance to the NICI program, saying it was "probably unrealistic" for defendants in light of the defendant's prior criminal record. But much of that record stemmed from Nevil's problems with alcohol and drug abuse, he said.

In response, Mehl ordered Nevil to spend an additional 30 days at State Hospital North at Orofino after he completes the Cottonwood program. In doing so, he rejected Prosecutor DeHaan's recommendation of a minimum of five years in prison.

Noting the defendant's prior criminal record, which included a conviction on his count of malicious destruction in 1978, DeHaan said, "I would say that Mr. Nevil still hasn't got the faintest idea of how to get along in society."

A prison sentence would at least keep the defendant away from society, the prosecutor said.

DeHaan challenged Walz's contention that substance abuse was the root of Nevil's problems. But the defendant might have "a genetic defense since his entire family is in trouble with the law," DeHaan said.

DeHaan may have been referring to Nevil's 22-year-old brother, Derrell, who is serving a jail sentence for burglarizing a home.

Family ties may play a prominent role in the case of 38-year-old Richard Kyle Silcox of Twin Falls. Silcox faces two counts of grand theft as a result of statements provided by a neighbor who had her husband arrested Feb. 17 for beating her.

Silcox previously pleaded innocent to the felony charges, which stemmed from the alleged theft of carpet-laying tools from a stolen car. He was charged with grand theft from Big-O Tire, 211 Addison Ave. W. in Twin Falls. Prosecutors have since amended their complaint to charge that the defendant committed grand theft by possessing stolen property.

Silcox again pleaded innocent to the charge Monday. His trial is scheduled to begin May 12.

In the fourth case, 43-year-old Lawrence Harney of Kimberly faces two counts of grand theft after pleading guilty to embezzlement.

Harney was charged with four counts of embezzling from Parks Development Inc., doing business as Sunset Memorial Park, during 1979, 1980 and the first three months of 1981. The business is owned by his uncle, Robert Harney, and his wife, of Twin Falls.

In exchange to Harney's guilty plea to four counts of embezzlement, Harney charged that the defendant overpaid himself while he was an employee of the business, prosecutors agreed to drop the three remaining counts.

Just how much money was embezzled was the subject of dispute. DeHaan said. But the amount was more than $150, a prerequisite for a felony under Idaho law, he said.

Mehl ordered a presentence investigation.

In other court matters:
• A 49-year-old Twin Falls woman, charged with issuing a check with insufficient funds, stormed out of the courtroom after a psychiatric examination. Crivits, the woman demanded to know what was going on and threatened not to appear for the examination.

"What are you trying to do?" she shouted at Walz. "You're my attorney, not my executioner!"
After the woman ran out of the courtroom, Mehl ordered her held in protective custody at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital. Deputy prosecutor Dennis Voorhees said that order was rescinded when an investigation determined that Crivits was not dangerous.

• A 35-year-old Twin Falls woman faces up to five years in prison for writing a fraudulent $30 check. Ella Kimbrough pleaded guilty to issuing the check to Smith's Food King, 1913 Addison Ave. E., on Jan. 27. Mehl ordered a presentence investigation and continued the woman's release on her own recognizance.

Hansen board places levy on ballot again

HANSEN — In a special meeting Tuesday night, the Twin Falls school board decided to put the recently defeated plant-facilities levy on the ballot for a second time.

"We'll hold the election again" on May 18, in conjunction with our trustee election, and hope it passes, so we can repair the roof on the elementary building," Superintendent Richard Smith said.

Hansen School District voters defeated the levy attempt Friday, but by a slim margin. As board Chairman Richard Yource said, "we only needed two more 'yes' votes or one less 'no' vote," to pass the levy, which would have raised $16,000 a year for five years.

In Friday's election, voters approved a $30,000 override election, but the plant-facilities levy failed. With 160 voters going to the polls, the override levy was approved, 106 to 54. The vote on the facilities levy was the same, but it required a two-thirds majority to pass, while the override levy needed only a simple majority — anything over 50 percent — to win approval.

The extra funds provided by a plant facilities levy would be used for building maintenance and "hopefully to purchase a new school bus in the next two years," according to Smith.

The polls will be open from noon to 8 p.m. on May 18. Voting will take place in the high school gym.

Technicalities delay cases involving sexual misconduct

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two cases involving men charged with separate incidents of lewd conduct with a minor under 16 were delayed Monday in Fifth District Court when procedural irregularities were uncovered.

Judge Daniel Mehl ordered a one-week delay in the arraignment of 57-year-old George Merkle because he is not eligible for the services of the public defender's office. The public defender, which had represented Merkle since his arrest in late February, is assigned to represent defendants who lack money to hire a private lawyer.

And Mehl delayed sentencing 45-year-old Pedro Trejo of Twin Falls after defense lawyers contended the defendant's inability to fully understand the charges was the result of an inaccurate presentence investigation.

The charge against both men carries a maximum penalty of life imprisonment.
Merkle was scheduled to enter a plea of either innocent or guilty Monday to the charge that on Feb. 20, he lewdly touched a 9-year-old girl.

But the court hearing never got that far. Instead, the hearing focused on deputy prosecutor Dennis Voorhees' contention that Merkle did not require a public defender.

Under Mehl's questioning, Merkle said both he and his wife are unemployed.

But he said that he receives a $1,125 per month pension and owns a home, a car, a pickup truck, a camper and a 14-foot aluminum boat. In addition, he said he had $300 in a savings account and another $3,600 in a money-market certificate.

Public defender Mike Walz offered to continue as Merkle's lawyer, saying his office could handle the work.

load and Merkle could be required to reimburse the county for the cost.

But Mehl said state law provides that public defenders are to be used exclusively for indigents. Ruling that Merkle probably was not indigent, Mehl ordered the defendant to at least attempt to obtain a private lawyer.

Trejo pleaded guilty March 8 to a charge that he had sexual intercourse with a 15-year-old girl on Jan. 26. Twin Falls police said they became aware of the case after the girl ran away from her home. During questioning, the girl reported having sex with the defendant for several years, police said.

Trejo's lawyer, Mike Powers challenged several aspects of the defendant's presentence investigation, prepared by the Idaho Division of Probation and Parole.

The confidential reports review a defendant's past criminal, employment and social records, and recommend a disposition.

Powers speculated that Trejo's difficulty with English may have prevented him from understanding the nature of the charge against him and the questions submitted to him by probation officers.

Mehl ordered another presentence interview, complete with a translator, for Trejo.

Robbery suspect pleads innocent

JEROME — Robbery suspect Joseph E. Gwin, 19, of Jerome, pleaded innocent Tuesday when he appeared for arraignment in Fifth District Court in Jerome.

Gwin appeared on a felony charge of armed robbery in connection with the March 17 holdup of the Mini-Mart convenience store at the south edge of Jerome.

According to police reports store attendant Randy H. Read was robbed of $489.82. The attendant was able to summon officers, and as sheriff's Deputy Larry Webb arrived, the suspect was leaving. The officer gave chase, and when the suspect wrecked his vehicle, the occupant took off on foot and deputies apprehended him about three miles from the Mini-Mart. Gwin appeared before Judge Daniel Mehl.

In another case heard Tuesday in Jerome, Charles Edward Jones, 22, of Jerome, appeared for sentencing on a felony charge of driving while intoxicated. It was his second offense. Mehl sentenced him to serve up to three years in prison.

U.S. trade deficit surges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's merchandise trade deficit rose to $2.6 billion last month as a surge in imported automobiles helped offset a decline in foreign oil purchases, the Commerce Department said Tuesday.

Aramco partners' profits dip

By United Press International

Exxon Corp., the world's largest oil company and industrial concern, Tuesday reported its first-quarter profits fell 22.5 percent primarily because of weak demand for oil and chemicals.

Standard Oil Co. of California, the 4th largest U.S. oil company, recorded a 65 percent slump in its first-quarter earnings and said the global oil surplus has depressed prices for petroleum products.

Shell Oil Co., Phillips Petroleum Co. and Citicor Service Co. — all large domestic oil firms — also announced lower first-quarter results.

Analysts had forecast Exxon, SoCal, Texaco Inc. and Mobil Oil — U.S. partners in the Arabian-American Oil Co. that produces most of Saudi Arabia's crude oil — would show first-quarter earnings' declines of 30 to 40 percent below year-earlier levels because Saudi crude is overpriced at $34 a barrel in the glutted world market.

Texaco blamed a 44 percent drop in its first-quarter profits on high crude oil prices in Saudi Arabia and other OPEC nations. Mobil has yet to report.

Exxon earned $1.24 billion, or $1.43 a share, down from $1.6 billion, or $1.85 a share, in the first quarter last year. Revenues dropped 10.5 percent to $2.1 billion vs. $3.0 billion.

Exxon's chemical profits fell 49 percent to $31 million in the latest period.

SoCal, which is more dependent on Saudi crude than the other Aramco partners, reported its earnings dropped to $220 million, or 57 cents a share, from $666 million, or $1.95 a share, in the 1981 first quarter. Revenues were off 16.5 percent to $10 billion vs. $12 billion.

SoCal said a 90 percent decline in foreign petroleum earnings to $34 million reflected weak overseas petroleum products markets that were supported largely by "relatively higher cost crude" from Saudi Arabia.

Late in the day Gulf Oil Corp., the 6th largest U.S. oil firm, announced its earnings slipped 12 percent to $267 million, or $1.44 a share, from $303 million, or $1.55 a share, in the first quarter last year. Revenues dipped 4 percent to $7.54 billion against $7.88 billion.

Shell, the 8th largest U.S. oil company, had a 4.4 percent slide in first-quarter profits to $345 million, or $1.12 a share, from $361 million, or $1.17 a share. Revenues were off 11 percent to $4.8 billion vs. $5.4 billion.

Shell attributed the decline primarily to crude oil price declines and lower oil and natural gas production.

Phillips, ranked 10th, reported a 30 percent slide to $188.8 million, or $1.24 a share, from $270.8 million, or $1.78 a share. Revenues dropped 10 percent to $3.8 billion from $4.2 billion. Phillips cited lower oil and natural gas production worldwide and higher exploration expenses.

Profits of Citicor Service, the 18th largest, fell to $53.3 million, or 63 cents a share, from operating earnings of $65.2 million, or 79 cents a share, a year ago. Sales rose 4 percent to $2.26 billion vs. $2.18 billion.

Record profit for First Security

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Chairman Spencer Eccles says First Security Corp. had record earnings last year.

But Eccles said national economic problems have finally caught up to the regional bank holding company.

Eccles told shareholders Monday the banking firm had earnings of $43.4 million during 1981, compared to $40.9 million from the previous year.

"The earnings were achieved in the face of record expenses of $428 million," Eccles said. "This compared with $331 million in expenses in 1980 — a 29 percent increase."

In his first annual meeting as chairman, Eccles said, "The largest single expense last year was $225 million in interest paid on time deposits, an increase of $66 million from 1980."

But he said First Security's first quarter earnings this year totaled only $8.4 million — compared to $10.5 million for the first quarter last year.

"The recessionary economy caught up with First Security in the first quarter," he said. "Economic activity slid deeper into recession during the first quarter, and the bottom of the economic slide is still ahead."

"We expect 1982 to be a challenging year for First Security. But our earnings should improve as the year progresses. The business climate of the region should strengthen in advance of the national recovery, and this should occur starting in the second half of this year."

The Salt Lake City-based firm operates banks in Utah, Idaho and western Wyoming. Its financial resources totaled $4.16 billion as of Dec. 31, 1981, up from $3.6 billion at the end of 1980.

He also said the firm's directors have voted to increase the semi-annual dividend from 50 cents per share of common stock to 55 cents per share. The dividend is payable June 7 to shareholders of record as of May 21.

The directors also re-elected Eccles as chairman, president and chief executive officer. Eccles succeeded his uncle, George S. Eccles, as head of the banking firm last January following George Eccles' death. George Eccles had directed the company's operations for 36 years.

Idaho mining firms in red

SPOKANE (UPI) — Depressed metals prices were blamed for losses reported by two north Idaho mining concerns.

Hestia Mining of Wallace reported a $1 million loss in its first quarter report.

Callahan Mining Corp. of Phoenix, operator of the Galena Mine in the Coeur d'Alene District, reported a first quarter loss of $210,000.

During the same period last year, Hestia reported earnings of $4.2 million and Callahan reported earnings of $2.1 million.

Recession takes its toll as big companies go bankrupt

By LEONARD CURRY

Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — Eleven major banking, merchandising, real estate and manufacturing companies have failed so far this year.

Dozens more are barely surviving due to high interest rates in the depths of an economic recession.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago forecasts widespread bankruptcies among Midwest farmers, farm machine manufacturers and manufacturers' suppliers.

The Civil Aeronautics Board has adopted an emergency procedure for honoring tickets of passengers stranded in the event that any of six financially shaky airlines collapse.

First Boston Corp., a financial adviser, says more than 600 major corporations are in cash binds that will worsen if the recession continues and interest rates remain high.

In the past 90 days, the nation has seen the second-largest bankruptcy in history — Wickes Companies Inc. of Los Angeles — and seven banking institutions with assets of at least $1 billion each, two manufacturers big enough to have their stock traded on the New York Stock Exchange and one of the nation's largest real estate developers have failed.

These companies, and many others that are on the brink, contributed to their own woes through management decisions that turned out to be wrong.

Wickes, which operates supermarkets, drugstores and lumber and furniture stores, owed $2 billion when it collapsed as a result of the housing recession and its rapid expansion financed through credit in the past three years.

Two venerable office machine manufacturers, AM International Inc.

of Los Angeles and Saxon Industries Inc. of New York, failed this month.

AM, formerly Addressograph-Multigraph) began its slide in 1978 when new management borrowed heavily to modernize in a bid to convert into a high-technology company.

"The complexity of our debt structure and the magnitude of interest concessions required were too great a barrier to overcome," says Joe E. Freeman Jr., the third AM chairman in a year.

Arien Realty & Development Corp., a stock market high-flier in the 1960s and early '70s, is now insolvent. Arien had been in financial straits since the 1975 recession, and soaring interest rates and falling property values finished it off.

Of the seven giant banking institutions to fail this year, the one with the boldest history was the $3 billion Fidelity Savings and Loan Association of Oakland, Calif. Fidelity made home mortgage loans in 1979 that other savings and loan associations would not because the market was gamboled that interest rates had peaked. Instead, interest rates soared to unprecedented levels and the S&L was caught in an earnings squeeze.

International Harvester Co., the Chicago truck and tractor producer, has told its banks that it no longer can make interest payments on $4 billion in loans. Without an extension of credit, the company will be in default and could be forced into a form of bankruptcy until its debts are sorted out.

International Harvester's sales soared to a record $8.4 billion at the height of the farm price boom in 1979. But farmers have stopped borrowing against their land to expand operations and buy new equipment in the face of record harvests in Canada and Argentina that have knocked the bottom out of world grain prices for the past three years.

"Trouble for Braniff International Corp. of Dallas, Tex. World Airways Inc. of New York started after ticket prices fell when deregulation opened a new era of competition beginning in 1978.

Despite reduced fares, Braniff tried to expand rapidly, grabbing 624 unused air routes, preventing other airlines from getting them. Braniff ultimately offered them on 57 new routes.

By contrast, UAL Inc. — which operates United Airlines, the most successful carrier — had first claim on thousands of unused routes before Braniff made its selection, but United took only one.

World Airways traces much of its problem to deregulation, which allowed other airlines to match its pioneering discount fares.

But two federal actions damaged World Airways more than established airlines. The government grounded all DC-10s, on which World is heavily dependent, for six weeks in 1979 after an American Airlines DC-10 crashed in Chicago. Then in 1981 the government ordered a cutback in flights due to the air traffic controllers strike.

Some of these troubled companies can make adjustments that can set the stage for more durable growth and employment opportunities ahead.

Bankruptcy allows a shaky company time to align its debts without being forced to close the doors forever.

Penn Central Corp., which was the largest bankruptcy ever, and Texas International Airlines Inc. have rebounded from bankruptcies. First Pennsylvania Corp., Lockheed Corp. and Chrysler Corp. also bounced back, with federal help. Each is healthy today, including Chrysler, which is expected to show a profit for the first time in five years.

Policy required Sirhan parole date

SOLEDAD, Calif. (UPI) — Former state policy virtually forbade denial of a parole date for Sirhan, assassin of Sen. Robert Kennedy, an official testified before a special parole hearing Tuesday.

"We knew that this case was going to come back and haunt us," testified James Hoover, a member of the board that in 1975 granted the September 1984 parole date to Sirhan. The current board is considering revocation of that date.

Sirhan, 38, shot and killed Kennedy in June 1968 in Los Angeles the night of the senator's victory in the California presidential primary. In 1969, the Palestinian refugee was convicted of the murder and sentenced to death, but the sentence was commuted to life in prison in 1972 when the California Supreme Court overturned the state's death penalty law.

Hoover said he personally believed Sirhan "should have been executed" as originally sentenced, but kept his personal feelings out of the case and followed state policy.

As Sirhan, garbed in his prison uniform, looked on, Hoover said he recalled thinking before the 1975 hearing, "This — — — ain't going nowhere." However, he said, he changed his mind because he could find no record of disciplinary or psychiatric troubles that under state policies could prevent Sirhan's release.

He said that under the policies of Ronald Reagan, who served as governor until January 1976, the three-member board would not have granted a parole date. The new administration of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. encouraged setting dates.

Bank heist pleas due by Boyce

SEATTLE (UPI) — Convicted spy Christopher Boyce has agreed to plead guilty to five more bank robberies committed while he was a fugitive.

Boyce had pleaded guilty to eight holdups earlier.

Gene S. Anderson, U.S. attorney for western Washington, said an indictment charging Boyce with five counts of bank robbery and six counts of unlawful possession of a firearm has been transferred to federal court in Boise.

He said the transfer was being made under Rule 20 of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, which now an indictment to be moved for purposes of a plea of guilty and sentencing. The transfer required the consent of the defendant.

Boyce, 28, will appear before U.S. District Judge Harold E. Ryan in Boise Friday for proceedings on his western Washington robbery charges. Ryan had already set his sentencing for that time for eight robberies in Idaho, eastern Washington and western Montana.

Boyce, who was convicted of selling secrets to the Soviets, escaped from the federal prison at Lompoc, Calif., two years ago and fled to the wilds of the Northwest. He was recaptured last year by FBI agents at a hamburger stand in Port Angeles, Wash.

Photog says actor shoved him around

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Bert Reynolds has been accused of roughing up one of two movie photographers who trailed the movie star as he drove blonde actress Lori Anderson to his hillside estate.

Police Lt. Dan Cooke said Russel Turjak filed a report Monday, charging that Reynolds knocked him to the ground and damaged his camera Sunday afternoon.

A spokesman for Reynolds said the actor was upset because the photographer was trespassing on his property.

Cooke said the battery complaint would be forwarded to the city attorney's office for a decision on whether to file charges. He said officers had not questioned either Reynolds or Miss Anderson, the curvaceous secretary in "WKRP in Cincinnati."

Turjak's complaint said he and another photographer, Philip Ramsey, had followed Reynolds' Rolls-Royce most of the day in an effort to get a picture of the movie star.

Mother of Year pageant starts

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The American Mother of the Year Conference opens its annual pageant in Salt Lake City today with 52 candidates from each of the states, Washington, D.C., and Puerto Rico seeking the 1982 title.

The theme of the 48th annual pageant is "A Good Mother is a Child's Birthright," said conference officials. The 1982 winner will be crowned Saturday.

The activities begin tonight with a reception in the State Capitol Building to introduce the 1982 candidates. The reception will also honor Mrs. Frances Burtenshaw of Logan, Utah — the 1979 American National Mother.

Olive Osmond, mother of the singing Osmond Family, will be the featured speaker at the awards luncheon Saturday. Jean Crouch of Topeka, Kansas — the 1981 Mother of the Year — will crown her successor.

Mojave quivers

RIDGECREST, Calif. (UPI) — A light earthquake rattled the Mojave Desert Tuesday, but caused little damage and no injuries.

The tremor at 9:24 a.m. MDT measured 3.9 on the Richter Scale. It was the second quake of that magnitude to strike the Ridgecrest-China Lake Naval Weapons Center in three days.
