Harriers hit Argentines supply line

By United Press International

Britain said its Sea Harrier jets attacked two Argentine ships near the disputed Falkland Islands Sunday.

Argentine fire damaged one of the jets.

In addition, London warned of an invasion if a settlement is not reached this week.

"As part of the operations to maintain the total exclusion zone, Sea Harriers from the task force attacked two Argentine vessels in small harbors in the Falkland Sound this morning," a British Defense Ministry statement said.

In Buenos Aires, the military junta said British jets attacked two "unarmed transport boats" Sunday, setting one ablaze and damaging the other, "preventing the supply of provisions and fuel to the (Falkland) islanders."

Reporters aboard HMS Hermes, the task force flagship, said Sea Harriers also carried out attacks on installations near Port Stanley, the islands' capital, for the third consecutive day.

In London, Defense Secretary John Nott said Britain wanted the U.N peace talks "to come to a head one way or another" within the next week, warning "military options" would be pursued more vigorously if they failed.

The fleet reports said a Sea Harrier was hit during the attacks in Falkland Sound on the two Argentine vessels, identified as supply ships trying to maintain the sea link between the two islands and breach the British blockade.

The reports said two planes from the Hermes on a routine patrol bombed and strafed the Rio Carcania with cannon fire near Port King Bay on East Falkland. Other Harriers later reported the ship's crew was in life rafts.

A second unnamed supply ship was attacked later near Fox Bay on West Falkland, the reports said.

They said the Sea Harrier pilots did not drop bombs because of the vessel's proximity to populated areas, but they strafed the ship with 30mm shells. The Harrier was hit by the vessel during this attack, the reports said.

They said the aircraft, whose pilot was described as "irritated but unhurt," returned to the Hermes where it was being repaired.

The ministry later confirmed that British aircraft pounded Stanley airport again and a jet was hit by one of the Argentine ships. "One Harrier has a small hole in the tail, but the aircraft returned safely," the statement said.

In Luxembourg, European foreign ministers put off until today an expected decision on whether to extend economic sanctions against Argentina for its seizure of the islands. The sanctions expire at midnight tonight.

Diplomatic sources said the delay indicated Common Market concern over supporting Britain at a time when it might escalate the fighting by invading the islands.

Earlier, Argentina reported an attack by Harriers on Zorro Bay and Port Darwin on Soledad Island, in the East Falklands, but said the raid caused no damage and was repelled by Argentine forces.

The Falkland Sound separates East and West Falkland, the South Atlantic archipelago's two main islands.

In another development, an Argentine announcement indicated the 3,900-ton transport ship Isla de Los Estados, reported missing Friday in the Falklands Sound, had been sunk.

"Objects have appeared belonging to the (Isla de los Estados) indicating that the ship has suffered a disaster," a military communique said.

It was widely believed the Isla de los Estados was the unidentified ship the British announced they hit with a naval bombardment last Tuesday. One Argentine military source said the ship usually carried a crew of 20 to 30 men.

Drenched in fun

Firefighters from Paul try to guide a beer barrel away from their end of a cable (left) during competition held Sunday in Twin Falls. The competition is part of a convention held every year for fire departments throughout southern Idaho. This year's convention included 20 departments and 12 competing teams. The object of the beer-barrel game is for two crews of four to hook up hoses and then spray the barrel to the other team's side. But Elmer Fetzer of Paul (above) found the event can sometimes include a drenching.

Computer sabotage

Braniff official charges rival airline with illegal campaign

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — A successful but illegal campaign to bankrupt Braniff International was directed from the office of American Airlines President Robert Crandall using sophisticated computer sabotage, one of Braniff's highest executives told United Press International.

Sam Coats, Braniff senior vice president of marketing, is the first Braniff official to publicly accuse American of illegal or unethical conduct.

"I feel there are a few people in the senior management group (of American) who've overstepped the law, who have in my opinion overstepped bounds of fairness," Coats said in a weekend interview. "I like to think justice will be done eventually."

Crandall was unavailable for comment, but American spokesman Paul Haney said, "We're not going to respond to that. It's not worthy of a response."

American, based in Dallas, also is financially troubled with debts in the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Coats said one of Braniff's most valuable assets during federal bankruptcy proceedings may be a lawsuit against American for at least $300 million in damages. Under federal antitrust law, damage awards are trebled which would put a successful Braniff lawsuit against American at $900 million.

Braniff, the nation's eighth largest airline, declared bankruptcy Wednesday and sent home 9,000 of its 9,200 employees. It was $1 billion in debt.

"I'm saying it's come right from Bob Crandall's office," said Coats, referring to what he said was a highly "professional" sabotage effort.

"I see this case being in the hundreds of millions of dollars — $300 million is a conservative figure. If I were Bob Crandall, I'd be very worried" about being indicted on criminal charges. "I don't think he is, but I would be."

The Civil Aeronautics Board and a federal grand jury in Fort Worth, Texas, have been investigating allegations that American used a corporate strategy of "dirty tricks" to harm Braniff and Coats said the grand jury should be able to produce enough evidence to indict high-level American executives.

Coats said he believed American used its SABRE reservations system — which Crandall helped developed and is the most sophisticated in the travel industry — to good advantage.

"They were very effective," said Coats, 41, a lawyer and former state legislator. Coats lives in Austin — 200 miles south of Dallas — where he is one of three men comprising the airline's senior executive echelon.

Coats tempered his views about American, by saying the arch-rival was not Braniff's only problem.

USSR hints it may resume talks on arms

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union said Sunday it favors speedy resumption of strategic arms talks with the United States.

While it did not respond specifically to President Reagan's proposal for negotiations to start in June, an official Soviet statement said, "The earliest resumption . . . would be a positive step."

The message was contained in a joint communique issued after Cambodian Foreign Minister Hung Sen's visit to the Soviet Union.

"The Soviet Union's readiness for a Soviet-American summit meeting, which was expressed by (Soviet President) Leonid Brezhnev, is . . . of a great significance," the communique said.

"The earliest resumption of Soviet-American negotiations on limitation and reduction of strategic nuclear armaments and attainment at the negotiations of relevant accords on the basis of the principle of equality and undiminished security of the sides would be a major step in promoting consolidation of peace and security of the peoples," the statement said.

Brezhnev is expected to spell out the Soviet response to Reagan's proposals in a speech Tuesday at the opening of a Young Communist League convention.

Scientists pursue cancer, fallout ties

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Interview 7,000 people.

Drill holes in the bricks of hundreds of buildings in Utah, Nevada and Arizona.

Those are among steps University of Utah scientists will take in an effort to determine if atom bomb tests 30 years ago are now killing Americans with cancer.

They will also try to reconstruct milk delivery patterns of the 1950s and track down thousands of people who lived in the path of radioactive fallout from the open-air blasts at the Nevada test site.

University officials outlined how they would proceed with new studies prompted by the discovery 3½ years ago that children in southern Utah had a higher than normal incidence of leukemia.

Dr. Charles Mays, professor of anatomy, said the study would focus on three main areas.

He said the researchers would follow up the study of children and try to determine if there is a higher than normal incidence of adult leukemia among the populations of Utah, Nevada and Arizona that were exposed to fallout. The study will primarily involve examintion of death and other health records in the states.

Another team will reopen studies of thyroid cancer done in the 1960s which suggested there was no danger from fallout. Mays said those studies were called off too soon since low-level radiation has been found to cause cancer long after exposure.

The researchers will attempt to find 7,000 people involved in the 1960s tests and re-examine them. Half the people lived in the fallout areas, and half were in control groups that were not exposed to radiation.

A third group of researchers will attempt to reconstruct fallout patterns that swept across the West and determine how much radiation fell on given areas and much radioactive iodine might have been consumed in milk produced by cows that ate fallout covered grass.

"We are going to have to reconstruct the milk delivery patterns of the 1950s," said Dr. Ed Wren, director of the division of radiology.

The scientists will also take core samples from bricks in buildings in the region. Locked in quartz crystals in the bricks is a record of radiation levels, said Wren.

"We have found that when bricks are fired in a kiln, quartz particles in them are sent back to zero on the radioactive clock," hew said. They then begin to build up a new record of radiation.

The researchers will concentrate at first on taking core samples from public buildings in cities throughout the states. But they will also ask some people to let them take samples fom private homes.

Mays said the studies won't be able to conclusively prove that an individual case of cancer was caused by fallout exposure. But the studies will show whether or not there is a higher chance of cancer among people who were exposed.

Board fires head of Glenns Ferry teachers' association

By GLEN WARCHOL
Times-News writer

GLENNS FERRY — The same night the Glenns Ferry school board ratified a preliminary negotiating agreement with the district's teachers association, the association's president was fired from his teaching position.

Michael Kincaid, a three-year teacher in the district, and other teachers believe Kincaid's role in bringing collective bargaining to Glenns Ferry was the reason his contract was not renewed last Thursday.

However, school administrators deny any connection between Kincaid's role in the negotiation process and the fact that his contract was not renewed. They say the dismissal was based on evaluations of Kincaid's teaching abilities.

As president of the Glenns Ferry Education Association, Kincaid worked to get the organization recognized as the teachers' formal representative in negotiations with the board. And on March 25, the board recognized the GFEA as the bargaining agent, after a two-thirds majority of teachers voted in favor of the association.

According to Kincaid, on the next regular school day, March 29, Superintendent James Reed visited his sixth-grade classroom to observe him. In the following week, Kincaid's performance was evaluated twice by school administrators.

At the school board meeting of April 8, Kincaid said the board reviewed his performance evaluations and put him on probation. While on probation, he was observed regularly.

Before the series of evaluations began in late March, Kincaid says he had no indication that his abilities as a teacher were poor enough to have his contract denied.

"There had never been any other feedback whatsoever," he says.

He had been evaluated previously, he says, in December by Reed and in January by his principal. Both evaluations were "neither exceptionally bad nor good," according to Kincaid.

He feels that at least circumstantially, the chain or events indicate that his leadership in the GFEA was behind his probation and eventual firing.

Many of the reasons the board and administration gave for not renewing his contract, Kincaid says, were what he considers minor elements related to his teaching style. Criticism was either in vague terms, like "presentation," or included things like allowing students to wear coats in the classroom or not commanding enough attention, he says.

"I was a little shocked by last night's decision," he said Friday. "I've always prided myself on being able to give people what they want, especially in an evaluation situation."

Reed maintains that Kincaid's work in the GFEA had nothing to do with the firing.

Declining to discuss the evaluations in detail, he says the board basically was disappointed in Kincaid's performance as a teacher. And he says the board acted fairly in giving Kincaid a 30-day probation period, as required by law.

However, Cliff Mitchell, the chief negotiator for the GFEA, says that he is positive that Kincaid's firing was motivated politically.

"I don't have any doubt that it was because he asked for formal negotiations."

According to Mitchell, Kincaid is a good teacher, but he was the only the GFEA teacher with a non-renewable contract. Four-year teachers have "renewable" contracts, which require a more formal due-

BSU graduates 12-year-old

BOISE (UPI) — Jay Luo, the 12-year-old who graduated from college Sunday, clad in a black gown, sat slumped in his seat, perspiring and twisting the tassel on his cap.

He said he doesn't know what he wants to do when he grows up.

Jay concluded his three-year undergraduate education at Boise State University Sunday, joining 1,462 fellow students receiving their degrees in the largest graduating class at Idaho's largest university.

He achieved honors, made Phi Beta Kappa and the Guiness Book of Records as the youngest american college graduate, eclipsing the 1945 mark of Merrill Kennith Wolf, who completed his bachelor's degree in music at Yale University at the age of 14.

The boy and his proud family were exposed to the news media shortly before the ceremony and Jay kept his answers to four words or less.

Asked what kind of things he likes to do, what he likes to study, and similar questions, his usual answer was simply — "a lot of things." He said, yes, he liked school. He was serious and never smiled.

Truck accident injures pair

BUHL — Two employees of Crystal Ranches on the Magic Water Project were injured in a one-vehicle accident late Sunday afternoon.

Sheriff's officers said Ernesto Casteneda, 17, the driver, and his passenger, Raul Montecianas, 28, were injured when the pickup truck left a gravel road two miles south of the Magic Water beet dump about 6:30 p.m. The two were following another vehicle and the driver was apparently blinded by dust and ran off the road, officers said.

Magic Valley Memorial Hospital officials said both were treated and released.

Spy agency defied orders

NEW YORK (UPI) — A State Department spy agency was so desperate for information on the Soviet Union it blatantly ignored the orders of two presidents and smuggled Nazi collaborators and killers into the United States, then lied to Congress, the courts and the public in a massive coverup, it was alleged Sunday.

The Nazi collaborators were given jobs in the United States and some were even sent back to the Soviet Union in parachute teams in an unsuccessful attempt to perform assassinations and start civil wars, an investigator said.

John Loftus, a former prosecutor with the Justice Department's office of special investigations that was set up in 1980 by President Carter to root out Nazi collaborators, made the allegations in an interview with Mike Wallace on CBS' "60 Minutes" program.

A State Department spokesman told United Press International: "We have no comment. We never comment on intelligence matters and we are not commenting on something that happened in the 1950s."

Woman leader in Yugoslavia

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Yugoslavia's parliament Sunday elected a woman prime minister for the first time in the most sweeping government shakeup since the death of President Josip Broz Tito two years ago.

Milka Planinc, 57, the former Croatian Communist Party leader, was elected to a four year term by both houses of parliament, replacing Veselin Djuranovic.

She immediately named a new 28-man Cabinet and pledged to continue Tito's independent foreign policy, work to resolve "numerous economic problems," and strive to preserve the unity of the multi-national Yugoslav state.

In-between rates unlikely

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Economist Milton Friedman, unofficial adviser to President Reagan, believes long-term interest rates will be 5 percent or 20 percent — but nowhere in between.

Although Reagan says quick congressional approval of a budget is the answer to reducing interest rates, Friedman disagrees.

He predicted that over next five years, "interest rates are either going to be 5 percent or 20 percent and its very unlikely they will be anyplace in between."

Collect taxes, Dole advises

HOUSTON (UPI) — The United States government could reduce its national deficit simply by collecting taxes already owed, Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kansas, told the League of Women Voters national covention Sunday.

Dole, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said non-compliance of federal taxes costs the U.S. government as much as $80 billion this year.

"Non-payment of taxes becomes almost as deadly to our economy as the tax rates themselves," he said.

Farmer released to testify

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Wayne Cryts "got a three-day pass" and was released from federal custody Sunday to testify before a Senate committee about his complaints with the law which sent him to the Pope County jail April 28.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Charles W. Baker, who had said he would keep Cryts in jail until he tells who helped him raid a bankrupt grain elevator, issued a temporary release in Little Rock at the request of Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan. Cryts is to return to jail in Russellville, Ark., by noon Wednesday.

Volcano spews steam, gas

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — Under misty rain clouds, Mount St. Helens spewed steam and gas while its huge lava dome swelled 700 feet above the crater floor — a giant birthday cake to mark the second anniversary of its catastrophic May 18, 1980 eruption.

Beneath the 1.5-mile wide crater, a reservoir of magma was expanding, oozing up in a non-explosive, dome-building eruption. The latest eruption began early Friday.

process procedure to be followed before their contracts can be terminated.

The board's decision not to bring Kincaid back next year has not intimidated the district's teachers, Mitchell says.

"They made a lot of teachers damn mad," he says. "Teacher support is behind him."

Jim Shackelford, the regional representative for the Idaho Education Association, said Friday that the state association has been following Kincaid's situation since it began, and he feels Kincaid was fired solely because of his leadership in getting formal negotiations instituted in Glenns Ferry.

"He has been singled out by the superintendent as an example," Shackelford says.

The IEA sees the situation as a blatant violation of the First Amendment right of freedom of speech and association, he says.

"It's fairly certain that some strong legal action will be taken," Shackelford says.

Braniff

"I wish I could lay all the blame on American," he said. "I can't. There was a $700 million-plus debt structure, there was lack of public confidence, American certainly fostered that lack of public confidence, but part of it was our own inability to assure people."

Despite Braniff's internal failures, Coats said he hoped American would be held accountable.

"I think they went in, and canceled out (Braniff) reservations. I think they went in and their (computer) displays (used by travel agents) were not only preferential, their displays were discriminatory to the point that they would display American flights first, anybody else afterwards and do their best not to display Braniff."

Coats said he studied numerous computer printouts of passenger reservation activity — and received many phone calls — "where passengers would show up at our gate and American would have canceled their reservations.

"I've had people call and say, 'I was booked on your flight and American called me and said you didn't fly there any more.' And American sold them their flight."

Coats said, "There's something the Justice Department can do about it. We have a Sherman (antitrust) Act and I hope it (the grand jury probe) won't die because Braniff has died."

He said a lawsuit against American "should become the very biggest claim, the very biggest potential asset that our creditors, shareholders and employees have to look forward to in bankruptcy court."

But he said a successful civil lawsuit against American would probably first require indictments from the Fort Worth federal grand jury.

JOB CREDIT LEGISLATION

Would my opponent vote to put an ADDITIONAL property tax on taxpayers of Twin Falls county?

When I voted against the Job Credit bill — SB1375, it was because we had already granted several million dollars in tax credit for the next two years. Senator Dave Little, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said the passage of SB1375 would have amounted to another $2,400,000 tax loss and would put the state in a deficit position. This would automatically trigger a property tax increase to support our public schools without a vote of the people.

Evangelist Graham ignores critics of crusade in USSR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two critics of Evangelist Billy Graham's crusade to the Soviet Union — a Methodist minister and a Soviet dissident — Sunday told Graham he "undermined" religious freedom and "made a serious mistake."

Graham said he did not consider himself an expert on religious freedom in the Soviet Union and pledged that he will continue to preach.

Graham was interviewed on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley" via satellite from London. Methodist Rev. Edmund Robb, chairman of the Institute on Religion and Democracy, and Soviet dissident Mark Azbel joined the interview in Washington and spoke directly with Graham.

Graham, 67, who lives in Montreat, N.C., said much of the criticism his trip has received was based on him being misquoted, but he did not deny that his sermon contained a biblical passage that told the Soviet citizens to obey the authorities.

Graham said he forgot that passage was in the sermon and, in hindsight, should have taken it out.

Graham also said he thought there was more religious freedom in the Soviet Union than most Americans think.

He said he visited three Moscow Orthodox churches on a Saturday night, unannounced, to find the churches "packed" with people preparing for Sunday worship services.

REV. BILLY GRAHAM
"I'll keep on preaching"

This drew the strongest criticism from Azbel and Robb.

Robb said Graham "has been manipulated" and Azbel said Graham "betrayed religious people in Russia."

"I'm amazed that Doctor Graham . . . would be so deceived as this," Robb said. Azbel said Graham's mission "was very strongly counterproductive."

Robb told Graham: "I love you, I believe in you and I will continue to be your supporter, but I am convinced that you made a serious mistake in your visits to the Soviet Union and if some of the things you have been quoted as saying are true, they've certainly compromised you in the evangelical community."

Graham replied: "Well, I'll tell you one thing, I pledge that I'll contine to preach the gospel whether there are many or few."

Azbel emotionally asked Graham to "stay out of fields you are not knowledgeable about."

"Do whatever you like, preach whatever you like but keep out of the field you are not knowledgeable about which is the freedom in Russia," Azbel said. "Would you just mind putting it straight. For us we know the opinion of people in Russia. Have you met 10 common Jews that pray? Have you met 10 common Christians who pray? Have you met the people in prison? Do you have any knowledge but the knowledge of the officials?"

Graham said he believed there are "millions of people" who go to church on Sundays in the Soviet Union.

Robb told Graham, "I would suggest that you preached to a very elitist congregation."

Delta Queen rams into dam

SAVERTON, Mo. (UPI) — Strong currents in the Mississippi River drove the famed "Delta Queen" into a dam south of Hannibal, ripping a 4-foot gash in the riverboat and forcing the evacuation of more than 200 passengers and crew.

Four crewmen were injured, two in the collision late Saturday and two when a line snapped as a tugboat made an attempt Sunday to pull the paddlewheel steamer away from the dam, the Missouri Highway Patrol said.

The Delta Queen was on a return trip to St. Louis from Hannibal, the river town made famous by Mark Twain.

Education secretary says he'll be around

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Only one-fifth of the Senate is ready to help President Reagan abolish the Education Department and it will be "a while" before the administration moves to bury the agency, Education Secretary Terrel Bell says.

Bell also said in an interview that some education groups who might back a bill to rearrange the federal role in education are too upset over proposed spending cuts to help now, but might be brought around when the budget battle is over.

The administration plans to propose abolishing the department and replacing it with a Foundation for Education Assistance that would control $8.8 billion worth of programs out of a total $10 billion in 1983 federal education spending. Total education spending is now $13 billion.

Reagan promised to get rid of the department during the 1980 campaign, repeated his pledge last September, and announced specifics in his February budget message. But the administration has had trouble winning support and repeatedly has delayed sending a bill to Capitol Hill.

Bell said he is concentrating now on winning support in the Republican-dominated Senate through individual meetings with lawmakers.

"The best count I have is that we have 19 senators," Bell said. "I know it takes 51, but what I'm saying is that we're steadily gaining a little bit more support on this.

Kennedy has edge in poll of Demos

By United Press International

The latest Gallup Poll indicates Sen. Edward Kennedy is by far the Democrats' favorite candidate for the presidential nomination in 1984.

Gallup, which polled 653 Democrats across the nation during four days in April, said 45 percent of those surveyed favored Kennedy. The Massachusetts senator's nearest rivals were former Vice President Walter Mondale, favored by 12 percent, and former President Jimmy Carter, favored by 11 percent.

Kennedy was also named as the second or third choice by 25 percent of those polled, while 30 percent named Mondale and 25 percent chose Carter.

The people who were polled were presented with a list of 15 potential Democratic presidential candidates and asked to choose the candidate they preferred.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown of California and Sen. John Glenn of Ohio were mentioned by 6 percent. All other potential candidates received less than 2 percent.

SEN. TED KENNEDY
Far out in front

Kennedy also had the highest recognition factor among the Democrats, with 98 percent saying they knew who he was and 84 percent saying they knew something about him.

For Mondale, 90 said they knew who he was, and 60 percent said they knew something about him.

Decision on Sirhan due soon

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — California's parole board may rule soon whether killing Robert F. Kennedy — a U.S. senator and potential president — is legally more important than killing ordinary Joe Doaks.

If it decides that assassination of a political giant carries special weight, Sirhan Sirhan, the Arab refugee who shot Kennedy, will lose the September 1984 parole date the state promised him in the mid 1970s.

If not, California will treat Sirhan, 38, the way it treats most people doing "life" for first degree murder. Eventually he will be freed.

On May 10, the board finished a 10-day hearing on a demand by Los Angeles County District Attorney John Van de Kamp that the state scrap the parole plan it gave Sirhan in 1975. Since then, it has been studying the 2,000-page transcript of the hearing, and volumes of documents on the crime and Sirhan's 14 years in confinement.

The decision is expected by the end of May.

Sirhan shot Kennedy in the head in the pantry of the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles on June 5, 1968, shortly after Kennedy won California's Democratic presidential primary. A Los Angeles jury sentenced him to death in 1969. Sirhan was rescued from California's gas chamber in 1972 when the state Supreme Court overturned the death penalty.

The campaign to keep Sirhan locked up comes in an election year. Van de Kamp is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for state attorney general in the June 8 primary election.

Emphasis of Van de Kamp's case has shifted several times. It now rests on the idea that killing a potential United States president is a worse crime that murder of an ordinary citizen.

American sailor slain on Puerto Rico street

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — Unidentified gunmen spraying bullets from a passing car killed an American sailor Sunday and seriously wounded three other U.S. Navy men in the heart of San Juan's tourist district.

"It may have been a terrorist attack, we won't know for sure until someone claims responsibility for it," an FBI agent said.

The early morning incident occurred in front of the San Juan Yacht Club, located on a busy throughfare near the city's Condado district. It was the first time a U.S. sailor has been killed in Puerto Rico since the machine-gun ambush of a Navy bus by leftist terrorists in December 1979.

The FBI identified the slain man as Darryl T. Phillips, 22, of Dublin, Ga., and the injured as Larry Skowronski, Jr., 22, of Dire, Pa., Randell L. Keyte and Anthony L. Phaneuf. The hometowns of Keyte and Phaneuf were not immediately available.

The sailors were shot as they were returning in civilian clothes to their ship, the Pensacola, an amphibious assault vessel docked in San Juan during military manuevers in the Caribbean.

Skowronski was taken to Veterans' Hospital and the two other injured sailors were treated at the Rio Piedras Medical Center.

This cartoon has some lines missing

Over the transom this past week came an ingenious device from some members of Congress to dress up our editorial pages and, not incidentally, promote the tarnished image of Congress as a group that works hard making sure your freedoms are preserved and your money is well-spent.

This latest self-serving plan comes from the Senate Republican Conference, which is offering, free, it claims, a monthly cartoon panel called "Capitol Facts" to editors across the country.

The first sample is reproduced below. An accompanying letter describes it as an effort to "help keep the American people abreast of legislative activities" by providing "significant facts about what the public's servants are doing — rightly or wrongly — to keep the public's trust."

Sounds great, doesn't it? But look closely. One paragraph takes a shot at alcohol research being conducted by the National Institute of Mental Health. It implies the money spent on rat and fish research is wasted. What's the evidence? We don't get that part.

Another paragraph says $66 million has been spent on the purchase of 23 jets for transporting federal officials around at a cost of $6 million a year. It says neither who or why. We doubt it includes the dozens of "study trips" members of Congress take every year to foreign lands, or the military's shuttle trips from Army bases to nearby commercial airports because the incoming brass doesn't want to travel by car.

We suspect we'll wait a long time for a cartoon panel outlining that waste in government from this source.

And while we're at it, we'd like to see a panel on the thousands of dollars in tax savings Congress voted itself recently. Talk about waste, fraud and abuse in federal programs.

But we'll probably have to wait a bit on that one, too.

The Republican Conference, headed by Sen. James McClure, is too busy, apparently, scoring federal workers, those easy, faceless targets, to spend time examining abuses in Congress itself among both Republicans and Democrats. Nice work, if you can get it.

New pacifier could be smokers' savior

WASHINGTON — The Senate currently is wrestling with legislation that would make health warnings on cigarette packages sound more ominous.

While verbal jolts of this type may give some smokers second thoughts, I doubt they really do much toward helping tobacco addicts break the habit.

For further assistance along that line, we may need to look to Europe.

Just recently, big headlines were devoted to reports of a new birth-control pill developed in France.

And now comes word that a team of medical and industrial design specialists in Austria have come up with the first new baby pacifier in 20 years.

Called the Mam Orthodontic Pacifier, it was introduced in Europe five years ago, but only has become available in the United States this month.

In lieu of relating the lore and history of pacifiers, which have been around much longer than either cigarettes or birth-control pills, permit me to quote one of the Americans involved in the Mam import program.

"Personally," he wrote, "I have found it an effective substitute for a cup of coffee. And sucking on one in a plane usually ensures an empty seat next to me."

Here we have signaled what I believe is the real, but as yet largely untapped, potential for pacifiers.

Think for a moment of all the millions of Americans who are trying to quit smoking. Anyone who has ever been through the ordeal will tell you one of the biggest hurdles is finding something to do with your hands.

Through reflex action, the hand continues to rise to the lips, which now are empty of cigarettes, pipes or cigars.

This gives other folks the impression that the new non-smoker is blowing kisses at them.

And the next thing you know, you may be in need of some of the aforementioned pills.

I, personally, licked the problem by growing a beard. Whenever my hand would reflexively spring to my mouth, I would simply give my beard a reflective tug, and others would assume I was meditating or pondering.

That system, however, does not work very well for women who are giving up cigarettes or for men who for one reason or another find it inconvenient to have hair on their face. Here is where the pacifier comes in.

If the new design is an effective coffee substitute, why could not pacifier engineers also design one that would be an effective substitute for cigarettes?

That way, when non-smokers raised a hand to their lips, they could insert or remove a pacifier and it would all look perfectly normal.

And if, as the Mam man indicates, adult use of the pacifier disturbs one's seatmates on a plane, perhaps the airlines could divide passenger compartments into three sections — one for smokers, one for non-smokers and a new one for suckers.

The president's 'troops' have deserted

WASHINGTON — If you were asked to choose a time when political change swept across this nation, the time to pick would be this past week.

For months, it has been raining on Reaganomics. Last week, the dam broke and the flood came.

Congress turned its back on President Reagan and its face toward November.

It was largely the Democratic House of Representatives that did Reagan in, but the Republican Senate did its part, and Republican members of the House abandoned their leader in platoons. By the end of the week, the retreat from Reagan economics had become a rout.

It started the week before, with that touchiest of political issues, Social Security. But by Friday, it had embraced student loans, housing and the whole budget issue. Everywhere, the administration was losing.

A week ago, the Senate Budget Committee reported out a proposed budget. It called for savings in the Social Security system of $40 billion. It didn't specify whether this money would come from cuts in benefits or higher taxes. Reagan accepted the plan. The Democrats pounced.

Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., said the Republicans were paying for their foolish tax-cut plan by "mortgaging the economic future of the elderly."

Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., grabbed the nearest vehicle at hand, the defense authorization bill then on the floor, to attach an amendment saying Congress should do nothing about Social Security until the National Commission on Social Security Reform, appointed last December, files its report — just after this year's elections.

Heedful of the wails of Republicans who have to run in November, and fearful of the Social Security issue, Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., offered a substitute that said the full 7.4 percent cost-of-living increase in Social Security benefits due July 1 should be paid and that Congress should do nothing further until it sees the commission's report.

The Moynihan amendment was tabled; the Baker amendment passed.

Reagan holding the bag.

Over in the House, it was worse.

On Tuesday, the House Banking Committee reported out a bill authorizing $28.7 billion for housing for the poor. This was more than 10 times the amount Reagan had wanted.

A House Ways and Means subcommittee voted to add 13 weeks to the length of time an unemployed worker can collect unemployment benefits, reversing an action it took only last year.

In the House, as in the Senate, Republicans were afraid of the Social Security issue. House Minority Leader Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., joined the parade marching away from the fight. "There's just no way you can address that issue," Michel said, "before the commission's recommendations."

By Wednesday, the Democrats were in full cry. No sooner had the chaplain finished the opening prayer than House Majority Leader James C. Wright Jr., D-Texas, was on his feet blasting the Republicans on Social Security.

And 81-year-old Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., the chairman of the Select Committee on Aging, waxed wrathful on behalf of the elderly.

Democrat after Democrat took the floor to roast Reagan for his willingness to cut Social Security and "balance the budget on the backs of the elderly." After this softening-up bombardment, they really went to work.

They passed a supplemental appropriations bill that included $321 million more than Reagan wanted for student loans. They included a new $1 billion program to subsidize mortgage interest for home buyers, a proposal Reagan had opposed as a "budget-busting bailout."

Trying to rally the GOP troops, Michel warned, "This billion-dollar bailout has all of the potential of becoming another of our great multibillion-dollar boondoggles."

But even the lowliest troops weren't listening.

Freshman Rep. Denny Smith, R-Ore., said for the record: "The administration asked for my vote against this measure, but the Oregonians I represent deserved my support for this effort. I am not Washington, D.C.'s representative to Oregon; I am Oregon's representative to Washington, D.C."

That won't hurt Smith in November.

A senior Democrat said, not for the record: "The president can't win. If he vetoes the bill, the whole housing industry is down on him. If he signs it, it won't have any effect until after November anyway."

The House passed the supplemental appropriation on a 343-67 vote, with Republicans joining Democrats in droves.

It was the week Congress deserted the president and marched off to election.

Our feathered friends are wiser

SCRABBLE, Va. — A couple of weeks ago, Roger Tory Peterson and three companions went birding in a big way. They set out to break the record for birds sighted in a 24-hour period, and after a mad dash by plane and car across southern Texas, they did it. Their new record: 235 species.

Peterson, at 74, is the grand old man of American birding, the author of the definitive bird books, the ultimate arbiter of disputed calls. His crew members were also professionals in their field. Their achievement is bound to stir envy in the hearts of every amateur bird-watcher in the land. Two hundred and thirty-five! Fantastic!

As they say of playing rugby or going into the newspaper game, you don't have to be crazy to be a birder, but it helps. It is the cheapest hobby in the world, demanding nothing more than a good bird book and a pair of binoculars. Are you a baseball fan, whose heart beats wildly at 2 grand-slam homer in the bottom of the ninth? Such rapture pales into insignificance beside the mad exhilaration of spotting a pileated woodpecker hammering away on a hickory tree.

Eugene McCarthy, improving upon Alexander Pope, once declared that the proper study of mankind is animals. Birds provide as valuable an experience in learning. Would you know of loyalty and love? Then watch a gander and his lifelong mate. Did you suppose birds have no sense of humor? Behold the sassy mockingbird. You can learn about street gangs from the cowbirds, black-jacketed, brown-hooded, objects of fear and loathing.

As a political conservative, I suffer occasional pangs of guilt about the birds around our place in the Blue Ridge. The uncomfortable truth is that we have created a kind of socialist society for them and made them clients of a welfare state. We maintain three feeding stations — the squirrels demolished a fourth — and the parallels with the government's food-stamp programs cause some unease. Why am I running a soup line for these creatures? None of them is below the poverty level. All of them are capable of working for their dinner. The feeble answer is that, well, they give us pleasure.

It is best not to brood about such things. On the day after the wire services reported the Peterson triumph, we sat at the big glass doors off the kitchen and counted. Some errands later took me down to the county courthouse and over a back road by McCarthy's place. The unscientific total: 61 species. Not bad for a day in May.

Images spring to mind. One of our feeders has become a nunnery for doves, gray-habited. The red-winged blackbirds are Marine Corps sergeants. Sparrows are street urchins. Swallows are the barnstorming pilots of local air shows. Bluebirds float past in a beauty parade. The quail are Southern dowagers, Daughters of the American Revolution, full-breasted ladies who congregate on the sidewalks by Constitution Hall.

We have undertaker vultures, fleet admiral bluejays, private-eye hawks, housewife wrens and cardinals caparisoned as Canadian mounties. The hummingbirds are back, going from bar to bar like Georgetown singles. The purple finches turned up the other day, evening-gowned in crepe de chine. We have church cholirs of warblers and acolytes of chickadees. The flicker's name is Pete Rose. The dour crow, of course, is Mr. Andrew Volstead.

What does all this have to do with a conservative view of public affairs? That is what I am supposed to write about. The answer is, not much. And yet there may be some eternal truths to be derived from the aerial kingdom of our feathered friends. Our socialistic feeders to one side, birds fend for themselves. The strong survive, the weak perish. Birds build their own nests, care for their own young, teach the fledglings all they need to know. They dwell in an ordered society, flying migratory routes as precisely as any airline captains. God made the computer in a grosbeak's burly head.

But why dwell upon public philosophies and private virtues? If you have seen an indigo bunting dancing through a dogwood grove, you know that Emerson was right: Beauty is its own excuse for being. Every birder learns this every day.

James J. Kilpatrick writes his "A Conservative View" column for the Universal Press Syndicate.

Begin, aides send warning for PLO

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israel said Sunday it will never tolerate Palestinian attacks and claimed terrorists, by holding northern Israeli settlements "hostage," are provoking the Jewish state.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin called in opposition Labor Party leaders before the weekly Cabinet meeting for a 90-minute briefing by military commanders on the situation along the tense Israel-Lebanon frontier.

The Cabinet later issued a statement warning that "under no conditions" is the U.S.-mediated cease-fire only applicable to hostile actions across the Lebanese frontier.

The Cabinet reiterated statements by Israeli government and military leaders made in the past week. A senior official said it is best to "inform the world the situation will not continue."

"We are not looking for an excuse to go to war," he said, "We are simply trying to stop this absurd situation."

The Cabinet communique quoted a Palestine Liberation Organization broadcast that rejected past Israeli warnings against guerrilla activity inside Israel, the occupied territories or abroad.

"According to this interpretation, they are entitled to attack Jewish people and the State of Israel — and they will carry out these attacks as they have done in the past — in all places and fronts, except from southern Lebanon," the communique said.

"Under no conditions will Israel ever accept this distorted, arbitrary interpretation by the terrorist organizations, who directly threaten the lives of Israeli citizens," it said.

"They are holding the residents of the north hostage," the official said, elaborating on the communique. "They are giving us a challenge, which is not only verbal, but practical." He specifically referred to the 10 pound bomb defused in downtown Jerusalem on Friday.

Israeli jets sweep low over Beirut's rooftops

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Israeli warplanes buzzed the rooftops of Beirut repeatedly Sunday, drawing heavy anti-aircraft fire and forcing the capital's international airport to close briefly.

The low-flying sorties startled Sunday strollers on the promenade along Beirut's Mediterranean coastline, who stared as Palestinian and Syrian gunners futilely blasted away at the planes.

The planes also made several reconnaissance flights over the south, a Palestinian guerrilla stronghold.

Beirut International Airport closed for one hour at mid-morning as the Israeli aircraft made seven low swooping passes over the capital. The planes returned for several more overflights in the afternoon.

In the southern coastal city of Sidon, a midday cease-fire quelled more than six hours of street battles between rival militia groups reportedly sparked by the killing of a militia leader.

The combat between the city's main leftist faction and a Palestinian-backed paramilitary group left four people dead and 11 wounded, police sources said.

The factions dueled with rocket and artillery fire that ignited several blazes in the city 27 miles south of Beirut. Snipers shot at firefighters trying to put out the blazes, but later the factions agreed to allow the Red Cross and fire brigades into the embattled neighborhoods.

South China floods kill 330, leave thousands homeless

HONG KONG (UPI) — Torrential rains, tornadoes and hail storms unleashed the worst floods of the century in southern China's Guangdong province, killing at least 330 people and forcing more than 800,000 to flee their homes, news reports said Sunday.

Flood waters roared through villages and towns on the banks of the tributaries of the Pearl River, washing away more than 36,000 buildings and inundating 165,000 acres of land, the Hong Kong newspaper Wen Wei Po reported.

Another Hong Kong newspaper, Ta Kung Po, said heavy rain storms early last week triggered what it called the worst floods of the century in Guangdong province, whose capital is Canton.

In Quingyuan county, the worst hit area 95 miles north of Hong Kong, an estimated 8,000 people were marooned by floodwaters and many others clung to rooftops to escape the deluge, the newspaper said.

The paper, which has close ties to Peking, said another 61,000 people in Quingyuan were cut off by the floods but were not in immediate danger. The county seat was 7 feet under water, Wen Wei Po said.

It said 297 people were killed in Quingyuan and an adjoining county, Yingde.

Poland gears for rationing

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Polish authorities want to ration children's clothing beginning July 1, the official radio and television news said Sunday.

The proposal, which would institute rationing programs nationwide, further underlines the depth of the Polish economic crisis.

In another development, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported that Polish military leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski will visit Bulgaria in the "near future at the invitation of President and Communist Party leader Todor Zhivkov," the news agency said.

The rationing plan — which still needs official approval before it can be implemented — includes issuing ration cards valid for six months to all children aged 15 years and under. About 9 million children would be affected.

The cards would allow each child six sets of clothing — such as trousers and jackets, or sweaters and skirts — and six sets of underwear.

What's what

Q. Kings have had harems of women, but have any queens had harems of men?

A. A few. One Queen Kahena, a Berber in Northwest Africa, kept on her premises 400 male gigilos, for instance. Most queens have not found it necessary to house their playmates behind locked doors, however. That's only necessary if said playmates are inclined to run away.

To that lengthy list of commodities that got their start via sales to the military, please add M & M's candy, developed in 1940 as a "quick energy" ration.

Q. Where do lady nudists put their makeup?

A. All over. Do you mean where do they keep it? Most carry purses.

EXTRA RIB

Approximately twice as many women as men have one extra rib. It's close to the neck, usually. Sometimes it causes pain in the shoulder and arm. One out of every 167 people are so endowed.

Q. The Ringling brothers of circus fame, how many were there?

A. Seven. John, Albert, Otto, Alfred, Charles, August and Henry.

[illegible] enough in Canada four times as much in England and seven times as much in Norway, as in the United States.

Q. When does your hair start growing?

A. About six months before you're born.

NICOTINE GUM

Understand the creative folk in Sweden have come up with a nicotine-based chewing gum that's supposed to ease the withdrawal tensions of those who quit smoking.

Q. Why is a "steeplechase" so called?

A. Early English riders who wanted to race on horseback picked out distant church steeples for finish lines, then cut cross-country to get there, jumping whatever in the way.

Q. You think the homicide rate is a lot worse now than 50 years ago? I thought so, too. That's wrong. Then, 10.3 per 100,000. Now, 9.4.

Letters reveal private life of famed aviatrix Earhart

KENSINGTON, Calif. (UPI) — While Amelia Earhart was flitting about the world in airplanes she carried on a remarkable private correspondence with her mother, according to author Jean L. Backus, who has uncovered the letters.

The correspondence destroys that part of the Amelia Earhart legend which pictures the famous aviatrix as a rugged feminist and a "tomboy" who preferred engine grease to face cream.

"She was a feminist, but she also was a lady in the old-fashioned sense," said Jean Backus in an interview with UPI. "She was very sensitive to the family traditions and the social traditions."

It was 50 years ago this week that Miss Earhart made her historic solo flight across the Atlantic, landing May 21 in a meadow at Londonderry.

The letters span most of the heroine-flier's life, beginning with a thank-you-note-to-her grandmother, pencilled in large square letters at the age of four and signed "Millie."

"Letters from Amelia" is published by Beacon Press, Boston.

The correspondence exposes "the private woman," Miss Backus said, "...the woman who worried about her parents and her sister, the woman who lied to her father on his deathbed that there were telegrams of inquiry from his estranged wife, when there were none.

"She was sensitive, you see.

"She was very eager not to appear to be gauche in any way. For example, she wrote to Mrs. Lindbergh apologizing because the nickname 'Lady Lindy' was used."

With most of the letters Amelia wrote home she sent money for her mother's needs. She gave sometimes strict and detailed advice about such things as the clothes to wear and personal care. She once recommended a toothpaste and told her mother to be sure and brush after every meal. She was also much concerned about the personal affairs of her younger sister, Muriel.

The letters cover the period in which Amelia was in school in Pennsylvania and later, from 1928 until her ill-fated flight over the Pacific on which she disappeared. There are no letters for the period while Amelia was living with her family in Oakland, Calif., and learned to fly.

Ex-Marine wins hearing on discharge

WEIRTON, W.Va. (UPI) — Eva Brodine was one of "the few, the proud" — until the Marines booted her out, charging she was pregnant.

Miss Brodine denies she was with child and has waged a battle against the Marine bureaucracy for 10 months for the right to re-enlist.

On May 7, she won a major victory when the Navy's Board For Correction of Naval Records recommended that the Marines reconsider her discharge. A hearing date has not been set.

Miss Brodine was given an honorable discharge for "erroneous enlistment" and can re-enlist in the military only if the Marines admit their error and agree to change her records.

"It's about time," Miss Brodine said, referring to the long-awaited recommendation. "They're finally moving. I'm angry and want to get my record and name cleared."

Even if the Marines agree to change her record, however, Miss Brodine said she may file a legal suit seeking damages.

"It's been a lot of emotional and spiritual stress," she said. "I've lost 28 pounds."

Miss Brodine's battle began July 22, 1981, when the Marines at Parris Island, S.C., discharged her, 36 days after she arrived for boot camp at the coastal facility.

The 17-year-old recruit was given an honorable discharge after a physician's assistant reported that a pelvic examination showed she was six to eight weeks pregnant, Miss Brodine said.

The examination was ordered after Miss Brodine expressed reluctance to take routine shots because her menstrual period was late.

She had received two urinalysis tests, both negative, she said.

Shortly after returning to her home in Weirton, Miss Brodine was examined extensively by doctors at a local clinic. All agreed she was not pregnant and had not been, she said.

"We ran a pregnancy test, and she was also examined by our physician," the director of the Wheeling Medical Services Inc., wrote in a letter to Miss Brodine's family doctor. She said laboratory results also showed she had never been pregnant.

Dr. Ward Maxson, chief of staff at the Charleston (W.Va.) Area Medical Center and a specialist in gynecology and obstetrics, agreed that Miss Brodine likely was never pregnant.

"The degree of probably that she wasn't ever pregnant is about 95 percent. I've seen this happen enough times. I think she's telling the truth."

Lt. j.g. Kathryn Austin, who works at the Navy hospital which oversees the Parris Island clinic, refused to release details of Miss Brodine's medical records. She did say, however, that pelvic exams are routinely performed by physician's assistants.

Car creates new window for parlor

VALPARAISO, Ind. (UPI) — A drive-through window was already in the works for the Dairy Isle ice cream parlor, but a careening car beat construction crews to the job.

Dawn Sibelius, 18, lost control of her boyfriend's car Saturday night and drove through the front of the ice cream store, crushing a butterscotch dip machine and spilling the sticky sauce on the floor.

Miss Sibelius, who does not have a driver's license, and her boyfriend, Terry Mendenhall, 20, were not hurt. The wife of the shop's owner, Shirley Mills, managed to get out of the way before the car struck, but suffered an injured shoulder.

Police told Miss Sibelius to stay out from behind the wheel until she gets a license.

Dear Abby

Let's think about real money

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Our politicians toss the term "billions of dollars" around so casually that it might interest your readers to know how much a billion dollars really is. To illustrate:

A man gave his wife a million dollars and told her to spend $1,000 every day and come back when she ran out of money. She did so, and returned, broke, after about three years.

He then gave her a billion dollars. After spending $1,000 a day, she returned — after about 2,740 years!

— FELIX IN L.A.

DEAR FELIX: Thanks for explaining in understandable terms how much a billion dollars really is.

Now let me explain it in terms of today's economy. Let's say Mohammed Khalid Ibn Jamal (not his real name) gave his wife a billion dollars and told her to go shopping on Rodeo Drive in Beverly Hills and buy whatever she wanted. She started on Monday and came back on Friday. Broke.

DEAR ABBY: When Jack and I became engaged seven months ago, I asked Jack's mother to please start making up a guest list because I had to know how many people to plan on. I am paying for the reception myself. My father is dead and my mother has all she can do to support the family.

After waiting for three months, I asked Jack's mother for her guest list and she said there was plenty of time. Finally I told her that I could afford to have no more than 150 at the reception, which meant 75 from her side and 75 from ours.

Well, the invitations are ready to be mailed, the wedding is eight weeks away and Jack's mother now informs me that she must invite 85 guests or a lot of people will never speak to her again.

What can I do? I hate to start my marriage off with bad feelings between Jack's mother and me, but all I can afford is 75 from her side. Also, we are short 10 wedding invitations and it's too late to order any more. Please help me.

— BITING MY TONGUE

DEAR BITING: Tell your mother-in-law that if she needs 10 extra guests she will have to pay for them. And if you're short 10 wedding invitations and it's too late to reorder, 10 guests (on Jack's side) will have to settle for handwritten invitations or a telephone call.

CONFIDENTIAL TO TEARS ON MY PILLOW IN CLEARWATER, FLA.: Regret is the cancer of life. Although it's too late for you to give your own mother pleasure, others can profit by your "sins of omission."

There are nursing homes filled with elderly people who would so enjoy a little regular attention. Drop in with a few flowers from your garden, magazines you would have thrown away, some homemade goodies, etc. One day a week take one or two or as many as you can for a little ride. Bring the children along on occasion. Old folks love children.

Do this, at first, in reparation, and in time it will become a labor of love. True, of course, we can only have one mother, but in the family of God we are all one. He loves us, he forgives us.

Cheer up by cheering others up. It is a beautiful prescription for sleep and peace.

At Wit's End

She lost her 'spot'

BY ERMA BOMBECK
Field Enterprises, Inc.

Aerobics classes usually happen without incident.

You just drag in and do it before you wake up and realize where you are.

But this morning was different. Someone took my "spot."

It's one of those things where you know someday it will happen, but you're never really prepared for it when it does.

Actually no one is assigned to any one place. It's all on a first-come, first-served basis, but your "spot" is "understood," like your row at church or your booth in the restaurant where you eat lunch every day.

Mine is the best spot in the whole room. Back row, right next to the door. You get a breeze from the fan, you don't have to worry about bumping into someone behind you and it's right next to the water cooler. I eyed it for months and when the woman who had it before moved to Pittsburgh, I moved right in.

College was all "open seating," yet wherever we sat on that first day, we sat for the rest of the semester. No one would have dared take my place in History of Russia (8 a.m., Mon., Wed., and Fri.). They all knew I was working on a tan and needed the Eastern exposure.

I promised myself I wouldn't get paranoid about staking off unmarked areas as my own ever since I used to ride the bus. I got on at the Loop and for four years rode in the same seat, left hand side, four back, window. I cannot tell you the frustration I felt when I boarded the bus one day and discovered another person in "MY SEAT!"

Of course, I don't get upset about those things now that I'm older and more mature. Someone took "my parking spot" the other day at the grocery and it hardly bothered me at all. What can you expect when you see a bumper sticker from someone who's against the school levy?

Hey, I don't own the spot, right?

Besides, it's not really important. It's not like I'm a seal in mating season. If someone doing aerobics in "my spot" for an hour upsets me, then I've got a problem. It's all so silly. I mean, it's not worth getting excited about.

And it's certainly not worth doing a whole column about.

Dr. Lamb

He solves antacid problem

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Association

DEAR DR. LAMB — I suffer from reflux esophagitis, a condition where the stomach contents leak upward into the lower esophagus.

It causes heartburn. Apparently there is no cure for it but it is relieved by avoiding some foods, coffee and alcoholic drinks and taking antacids.

My problem is with the antacids. The popular antacids contain aluminum hydroxide and they warn against taking more than 12 teaspoons in a 24-hour period or the use of the maximum dosage for more than a two-week period. I must take antacids several times a day indefinitely.

I've solved the problem by using calcium carbonate in bone meal and dolomite tablets. I have been taking two bone meal tablets and two dolomite tablets after each meal and before bedtime with good results. Is there any reason 16 tablets a day could be harmful over a long period?

DEAR READER — Yes. Calcium preparations are very effective antacids. Calcium carbonate is plain chalk and has been used for centuries. The problem is that if you take a large amount over a long period of time the calcium may be absorbed into your bloodstream in sufficient quantities to cause problems.

This is particularly likely to happen if a person also uses lots of milk or a milk and cream routine. The excess calcium may deposit in the body tissues, including the kidneys.

It seems clear to me that you should let your doctor manage your antacid requirements, rather than trying to do it on your own. Many of the highly advertised antacids are all right for an occasional use but almost none should be used regularly as a do-it-yourself project.

Too much magnesium can cause problems, particularly in people past 40 and with each additional year because gradual changes in kidney function decrease elimination of excess harmful magnesium.

Too much aluminum can cause poor calcium absorption and lead to robbing your bones of calcium.

I am sending you The Health Letter 10-4, Use and Abuse of Antacids, which discusses the most common antacids available without prescriptions and their dangers. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I try to feed my child foods with no or low sugar and salt. I've convinced her grandparents that she doesn't need the sugar. We allow occasional graham crackers or cookies. Her grandparents say her food should be salted to make it taste better and to provide iodine. I say food tastes better unsalted, but I do wonder if she's getting the iodine she needs. Could you clear this up for us?

DEAR READER — Yes, she can get along without sugar because she will get the same single sugars, glucose and fructose, in any of the carbohydrates she uses as fruits, vegetables or cereals.

And she can get along without salt because there is naturally salt in milk, meat and many vegetables and cereals.

If she is using cow's milk it is very unlikely that she is not getting enough iodine. Recent studies show that current dairy feeding practices include supplements for cows that contain lots of iodine.

The result is that a quart of milk contains about four times as much iodine as we need on a daily basis. That is a national average for milk in the United States.

Engagement ring among heist loot

LUBBOCK, Texas (UPI) — Christy McDonald was married Saturday, but without her engagement ring on her hand.

The $1,200 ring was among $21,000 worth of property taken by three armed men who terrorized a prenuptial party this week.

The women were making rice bags for the wedding of Miss McDonald, 21, when three men burst into the apartment of Julie Graff, 22, and terrorized the women, including Miss McDonald's mother and future mother-in-law, at gunpoint for about 30 minutes late Thursday.

Police said the intruders took about $21,000 worth of property, including a Cadillac. The automobile was found abandoned early Friday.

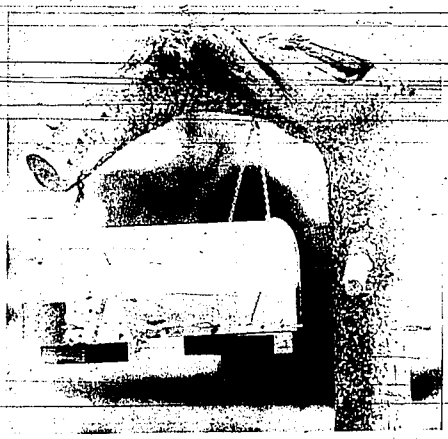
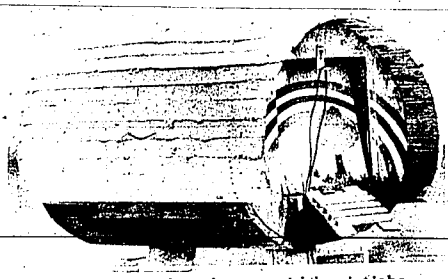
BOB DLASHMUTT/Times-News

Some mailboxes along rural roads in Magic Valley are in precarious condition

It's time to repair boxes





Unusual standards or shapes, sprightly paint jobs are used by some residents for embellishment

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Just when you thought you had everything straight — Mothers Day, Memorial Day, your Aunt Tilly's birthday — they throw a new one at you. Just to catch you off guard.

You may have missed the notice, or filed it with other important messages addressed to occupant, but this is Mailbox Improvement Week.

The purpose of Mailbox Improvement Week is to call attention to the need for mail receptacles that protect the mail from the weather and are safe and efficient to use, according to a memo rural boxholders received last week from the U.S. Postal Service.

It's notice No. 209, if you need additional copies.

"Neat, attractive mailboxes make a significant contribution to the appearance of the countryside and the streets in suburban areas," according to the Postal Service.

It could be worse. Most days and weeks we observe are designed to get us to buy something. May 18, for example, is Flower Day. The month of May is also National Barbecue Month and National Brands Month, according to Chases' Calendar of Annual Events.

And Thursday marks the beginning of International Pickle Week. Apparently, the cucumber growers in Europe and America decided separate observances were a waste of vinegar.

So now that you've been warned, take a little time out to review your receptacle.

Is the box falling off the post? Does the lid flop down and ding the mailman's Jeep as he's driving away? Is your bullet-riddled box a collection of sharp, rusty edges, lying in wait for probing fingers?

Two veteran Twin Falls mail carriers, Mary Cooper and Bob Benoit, say their biggest concerns are with the placement of boxes and their general working condition.

Creative boxes — the kind mounted on plow shears or painted with mountain scenes — usually are not a problem because owners have invested some effort to secure them, Benoit says.

It's the mangled boxes with loose lids, or stuck lids. And those long rows of boxes at the entrance to housing developments, where every third box is 18 inches out of alignment with the others.

Customers occasionally complain that they see no reason a mailman can't accommodate their particular box, says Lloyd Libert, the Twin Falls postmaster. But with 2,819 boxes on six rural routes, it doesn't take too many exceptions to delay deliveries for an entire route.

Regulations state that the base of each box should be 40 to 48 inches above a leveled surface. But with the advent of smaller, more fuel-efficient cars, carriers say 38 to 40 inches is a more convenient height.

When alloting time for minor repairs, be forewarned that Murphy's Law says every defect hides two others.

The support post you plan to reset is probably rotted off three inches below the ground. And the hinge that needs a minor adjustment is attached by only one remaining rivet.

Just remember there are worse home-improvement tasks. May also is National Paint Month. And Tuesday is Visit Your Relatives Day.

Or put it off entirely, and take consolation in May being National Tavern Month.

Passenger listed as 'fair'

Twin Falls motorcyclist in critical condition

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls motorcyclist was in critical condition Sunday, and his passenger was in fair condition, after both lost their left legs just below the knee as the result of an accident early Saturday morning.

Barry Lee Barker, 22, the driver of the cycle, was listed in critical condition in the intensive-care unit of St. Luke's Hospital in Boise. He was transferred there following surgery at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital in Twin Falls.

His passenger, Angelina Born, 19, of Twin Falls, was in fair condition at Magic Valley Memorial.

Cpl. Frank Mogensen, of the Idaho State Police office in Twin Falls, said the couple was returning home about 1:40 a.m. from a social gathering in Buhl, when Barker failed to negotiate a curve on Pole Line Road, about three miles west of Blue Lakes Boulevard North.

Barker was traveling at about 70 mph when the accident occurred, he said.

The road follows an irrigation coulee as it completes the curve. Barker's cycle jumped a borrow pit and cleared part of the coulee before it struck the edge of a bridge leading into a farm, Mogensen said.

The cycle hit the side of the bridge just above the water and shot through the air for about 100 feet, he said. Both Barker and Born were thrown from the motorcycle.

The two other couples, traveling a short distance behind Barker and Born, arrived shortly afterward. They were unable to see Born lying in an alfalfa field and feared she had been thrown into the coulee. They dove into the coulee to search for her, Mogensen said.

Using the spotlight of his police car, Mogensen was able to locate the woman in the field. He said Barker landed on the bridge, 77 feet from the point of impact, while Born was found about 110 feet from the bridge.

The woman's leg was severed by the impact, and doctors at Magic Valley Memorial were forced to remove Barker's leg, according to the officer.

Both victims suffered other multiple fractures, Mogensen said.

Cycle rider, child injured in weekend traffic mishaps

TWIN FALLS — A motorcyclist and a 6-year-old girl were injured in separate accidents in Twin Falls over the weekend.

Vernon Lee Perkins, 27, of Oak Street in Kimberly, was thrown from his motorcycle and into a barbed wire fence early Saturday morning. Twin Falls police said Perkins was traveling at a high rate of speed on a motorcycle when he failed to negotiate a curve in the 500 block of Locust Street South about 1:50 a.m.

The cycle hit gravel at the shoulder of the roadway and went out of control, police said. Perkins was thrown through the fence landing about 20 feet from the cycle. Damage was estimated at $1,000. Perkins was released after treatment at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

At 12:51 p.m. Sunday, Sissy Gusman, 6, of 335 Diamond St. in Twin Falls, ran into the 200 block of Locust Street and was struck by a car. Police said she darted into the street without looking and ran into the path of a car driven by Sheila Ann King, 28, of Twin Falls. She was not hospitalized.

GOP race for attorney general

Jones: Help business, relieve legal problems

JIM JONES
Has 6-point plan ready

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Helping Idaho businesses cope with red tape while relieving criminal and civil law problems is the proper role of the attorney general, says candidate Jim Jones of Jerome.

"He's in a position to facilitate the conduct of agriculture and business . . . where they have contact with state law or with state agencies," Jones says. "The attorney general can help remove legal roadblocks for business and also improve the criminal system — primarily through work with the Legislature."

A 40-year-old lawyer, Jones is seeking the Republican nomination for attorney general after two unsuccessful primary bids for Congress against Rep. George Hansen. He's hoping his name familiarity from the congressional races, combined with door-to-door campaigning, will defeat opponent Jim Harris, the Ada County prosecutor.

The lone Democratic candidate for the job is D. Williams of Preston.

If elected, Jones has a six-point plan for his first year in office:

- Initiate a drunken-driving program that would toughen penalities and call for treatment.
- Establish a drug program, concentrating on educating police officers in drug-related arrests.
- Seek improvements in the parole system, including allowing the governor to have the final say in reduced sentences, while leaving release decisions to the state Commission on Pardons and Parole.
- Propose changes in laws to speed up the civil court system.

Harris: Revamp Idaho criminal justice system

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho's criminal-justice system needs significant revamping to maintain fairness, despite increasing cases of violent crime, says attorney-general candidate Jim Harris of Boise.

"I don't see near as many needed changes in the civil structure as in our criminal system. The criminal area is where we most desperately need improvements."

At 34, Harris, a Republican, is attempting to follow the footsteps of his predecessor, David Leroy, from Ada County prosecutor to attorney general, and at nearly as young an age. He's stressing his experience running Idaho's largest county prosecutor's office as being the best foundation for attorney general.

Mandatory minimum sentencing remains the major thrust of the Harris campaign. It's a concept that would solve both parole and court-backlog problems, he says.

"My primary objective as attorney general is to draft and advocate a mandatory minimum-sentencing structure for virtually all violent crimes, drug-related crimes and repeat offenses. The goal is to remove the parole board's discretion in these cases and to return some deterrence to our sentencing system."

Harris believes that parole board mistakes, as allegedly occurred in the release of convicted Shoshone murderer Danny Williams, can be avoided if hardened criminals and repeat offenders are removed at least partially from the parole system.

But, at the same time, he's also calling for expansion of two rehabilitation programs he believes are

Council slates hearings on fund use

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two hearings on the city's use of federal money highlight a brief agenda for tonight's Twin Falls City Council meeting.

Council members will accept testimony on the city's intent to apply for a federal community-development grant of $350,000. The city staff has recommended the money be sought for street improvements in the area of Adams Street and Shoup Avenue. Other proposals can be presented at the hearing Monday. Community-development grants are awarded to foster economic development or to directly benefit low-income areas of cities.

The second hearing will provide an opportunity for the public to suggest uses for $440,450 in federal revenue-sharing money. The city already has committed an additional $71,550, principally for computerization at the public library, and for a payment toward the purchase of a front-end loader.

Appropriations requested by the public will be included on a needs list to be considered during deliberation of the 1982-83 budget this summer.

In a letter to the city, Charles Capps, the executive director of the Twin Falls Housing Authority, has requested revenue-sharing money to resurface roadways and parking areas at three housing projects for senior citizens. The estimated cost of the improvements is $21,374.

Capps withdrew an earlier proposal that the city seek community-development grant money for the work. Council members expressed concern that that proposal would not be a strong competitor amid the flurry of grant applications expected by the state, which administers the federal grants.

Other business on Monday's agenda includes a request for an encroachment that would allow the Water Tower Plaza, a proposed shopping complex, to install an emergency exit, as required by the building code. Developers plan to convert a warehouse off Second Avenue South into an enclosed shopping mall featuring boutique-type stores. The former Continental Oil Co. warehouse is across from the Shuffle Inn tavern.

Monday's meeting will start at 7 p.m. in City Hall. Council members will hold a public work session at 4 p.m., also in City Hall.

Comment on report sought

TWIN FALLS — Residents of the Twin Falls School District will have an opportunity to comment Tuesday on recommendations made to the school board by its ad-hoc curriculum committee.

The hearing will begin at 8 p.m. in the district's administration office, 201 Main St. W.

Following the hearing, the board will consider ratification of the master contract agreement reached with the teachers last week, following negotiations with the Twin Falls Education Association.

The board also will canvass the votes of the trustee election held earlier in the day.

Special meeting set in June

KIMBERLY — School board officials in Kimberly will hold a special meeting Tuesday, June 8, at 8 p.m. to discuss the 1982-83 budget.

The projected budget for the district is $1.245 million, compared to this year's budget of $1.168 million. According to Superintendent George Powell, the budget includes the "desperately needed" $60,000 override levy, which residents will vote on Tuesday.

With the additional funds, $226,814 is expected to be generated by local tax revenues.

Jones

• Update laws governing agriculture, such as bolstering disclosure requirements for bonded warehouses and reducing some bankruptcy exemptions.

• Establish a consumer-fraud effort, targeting out-of-state phone solicitors and door-to-door salesmen.

Jones's primary goal in the civil field is to sponsor legislation that would require losing parties in civil suits to pay the attorney fees of the winner.

He says that such a move is needed to discourage frivolous or poorly founded lawsuits. As an example, he cites a case in which one of his clients was sued for $9,000. The suit failed, but his client had legal costs of $6,000.

He's also proposing a three-point plan to assault the rising number of alcohol-related accidents. This includes tougher sentencing, consistent suspension of driver's licenses and "mandatory treatment of alcoholics, at their expense."

"The way to improve the parole system and reduce the number of apparent mistakes is to give the parole commission more information," Jones says, "in every instance, the input and recommendation of the prosecutor and judge should be solicited by the parole board."

He advocates that sentencing hearings should be transcribed, and that information should be included in a convict's record with the parole commission.

Jones also is stressing management of Idaho's land and water as an important duty of the attorney general.

Generally opposing any sale of state land, he says the state's 2.6 million acres should "be managed productively for the long-term investment. We can't just shoot for the most productivity or profit in one year, but for years and generations to come."

Because of numerous water-right cases being debated in other states, Jones says the attorney general needs to become active in any case that could set a precedent for consuming Idaho's water.

"In New Mexico, right now, there's a case with El Paso wanting the right to export some of its water out of state. We don't want some other state, like California, coming to us later to take our water, based on some case that occurred in New Mexico.

"We have to get involved in that type of litigation, or we may lose our rights in the future. And the attorney general is the proper person for this role."

Harris

successful: the 120-day Cottonwood program and the community work-release program.

"We must continue to help rehabilitate the people who can be rehabilitated, and warehouse those who can not. The parole function, therefore, is primarily needed in non-violent and first-offense cases."

To accompany this plan, Harris supports construction of a maximum-security prison, either in Idaho or in a Northwest regional program with Oregon and Washington.

"If we had had a maximum-security facility, I'm absolutely convinced we would not have had the prison riot of 1980. The fact is that 20 to 30 percent of the prison population should not be allowed loose in the prison yard with the other, less-dangerous prisoners."

He also supports toughening the Youth Rehabilitation Act, and he wants more juvenile crime cases heard in adult court.

But Harris acknowledges that his call for a major rewriting of Idaho's laws to introduce minimum sentencing will take years to be successful.

Meanwhile, Harris — backed by the Idaho Prosecuting Attorneys Association — sponsored legislation this year to allow judges, prosecutors and inmates to appeal decisions of the state Commission on Pardons and Parole directly to the governor.

"Yes, that would essentially give us two levels for parole hearings, but the prosecutors association felt that is preferable to what we now have, although I believe it's a second choice to minimum, mandatory sentencing.

"I think it is obvious that the parole commission is making too many mistakes. About 35 to 40 percent of inmates released are going back to prison, usually not because of conviction for new crimes, but for parole violations."

Another major goal is to promote multiple use of state lands through the attorney general's role on the state Land Board.

"The attorney general wears two hats on the land board — as a voting member and as legal counsel. I will advocate that state lands be used for purposes of the highest productivity. Idahoans have the right to approach the board with plans to develop and use state lands."

Philadelphia guard Andrew Toney loses Celtic's Chris Ford on a pick as he drives inside

Toney paces 76ers in rout of Celtics

GEORGE SHIRK
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

PHILADELPHIA — This time, there was no fade and panic at the end.

This time, when the 76ers had the Boston Celtics down on the Spectrum floor, they kicked once, then kicked again until they were absolutely sure that the Kelly green corpse was not going to so much as move again.

And when they were through kicking Sunday afternoon, they had delivered to the Celtics their worst defeat of the year — a 119-94 flogging that more than avenged last week's 40-point Mother's Day Massacre in Boston.

It was the Sixers' third straight victory over the Celtics in the best-of-seven Eastern Conference final series, and it allowed them to take a 3-1 lead back to Boston for Game 5 Wednesday night.

A delirious sold-out house of 18,364 watched this most stunning Sixers stomp — a stomp that handed the Celts their first three-game losing streak of the year.

"After last Sunday, I wasn't sure we could beat them three in a row," said Sixers Coach Billy Cunningham.

Well, believe it.

Not only did the Sixers win this one, they did it in Boston-like style, running up point after point in the fourth quarter until the life of the Celtics' offense and defense was buried six feet under Broad Street.

M.L. CARR
Couldn't handle 76er guard

Then, still not wholly satisfied, the Sixers ran it up some more, until, at the very end, the contestants were people like Earl Cureton, Franklin Edwards and Lionel Hollins — players whose hopes of playing at all in this series had been so slim that only the unexpected could have given them a minute or two of playing time.

Sunday, the only unexpected development was that Andrew Toney didn't get 100 points all by himself.

To the Celtics, you can bet it seemed as if he did.

Toney, who for the first time in this series avoided early foul trouble, rat-a-tat-tatted 14 field goals and 11 free throws through the nets and came away with a game-high 39 points — by far his best career playoff performance.

He shot 66.6 percent from the field while being double-teamed, triple-teamed and quadruple-teamed.

He shot from in close and from far away, and was such a pest that Boston Coach Bill Fitch, trying desperately to find some combination that could snuff out his bombs, ultimately sent forward Larry Bird into the guard court to try to draw Toney into a more defensive position.

Toney merely responded by canning 15 points in the third quarter and 10 more in the fourth.

But he didn't stop there. Toney also was spotting free teammates, and was — gasp! — passing so well that, at times, he appeared to be the mirror image of assists craftsman Mo Cheeks, his diminutive back-court partner.

In all, Toney dished out six assists to go with Cheeks' 11. Bonnie and Clyde were known to have been less effective, even on their best days.

"During this series," Toney said, "I've noticed that each time I penetrate I look up and their guys are right there. I know how they switch, so in those situations I've been trying to find the open man."

Naturally, Toney didn't win this one all by himself.

Record-setting Lakers take a break before NBA finals

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — While the Boston Celtics and Philadelphia 76ers play in the tough Eastern Conference finals, the Los Angeles Lakers will sit back and take it easy for at least a week.

And if the first two playoff series they've played are any indication, they may get as much rest during the NBA final.

"Nobody's going to stop them," said San Antonio Spurs' forward Mike Mitchell. "Nobody. Not the way they're playing."

The Lakers completed a four-game sweep of the Midwest Division champion Spurs on Saturday in a 128-123 thriller. The playoff sweep was the Lakers' second in a row, making Los Angeles the first team to ever accomplish that feat. They routed the Phoenix Suns in the division semifinals.

Now it's on to the NBA championships against either the 76ers or Celtics — Philadelphia leads the Eastern Division series 3-1 — but the Lakers have convinced the Spurs that the championships shouldn't be much of a series at all.

The first game could be played Sunday.

The Lakers are at a level that is just unbelievable," Spurs Coach Stan Albeck said. "I cannot remember a team in my years in the NBA as well as the old ABA that plays as hard and as well as they do.

"I like their chances of winning it all. They swept through Phoenix, then us. That's not an easy thing to do.

"Hell, they may be the best team the league has ever seen. They have seven great athletes who never stop applying the pressure. They're never satisfied with a jump shot off the fast break. They keep on going until they get a layup."

The Spurs had a chance to win the fourth game of the series Saturday, leading by two points with about three minutes left. But a crucial mistake by Albeck a couple of minutes earlier proved decisive.

With 6:11 remaining, George Gervin, the Spurs' ace and the league's four-time scoring leader, fouled out after scoring 38 points. About 30 seconds before he fouled out, Gervin had been charged with his fifth foul.

Albeck, however, mistakenly thought the earlier foul was given to San Antonio forward Mark Olberding — who was in the vicinity and raised his hand towards the scorer's table in an effort to fake out the officials and keep Gervin at four fouls.

The officials noticed the ploy and didn't go for it.

But Albeck fell for it.

"It was my fault," Albeck admitted. "I screwed up. It was a mixup on the bench and it never should have happened. I take full responsibility."

Albeck said if he knew Gervin had five fouls with nearly seven minutes remaining, "I definitely would have taken him out and saved him for the stretch."

But he didn't, and down the stretch, when the Spurs needed some clutch baskets to offset a Laker surge, Gervin could only watch.

Despite his praise for the Lakers, Albeck said they could face a serious problem in the league chmpionships.

"Because they're playing such perfect basketball," he said, "I wonder how they will react to a loss. They have a lot of fragile personalities on that team. Will they come apart? That's a legitimate question."

But then Albeck paused and seemed to remember what the Lakers had done to his team.

"But hell, who knows?" he said. "They may go undefeated."

Baseball pairings nearly set

Lewiston or CDA to face Bruins

Minico will meet Meridian while Twin Falls' opposition will be either Lewiston or Coeur d'Alene when the state baseball tournament begins Thursday at Nampa and Borah High schools.

The Spartans, Fourth District champions, will meet Meridian High at 8:30 p.m. Thursday at Borah High.

Lewiston and Coeur D'Alene, rained out Saturday, are playing each other today to see which advances to state. One Lewiston win would give the Bengals a berth opposite Twin Falls while CDA must win twice to make the state trip.

The Bruins will meet the northern Idaho representative at 8:30 p.m. Thursday at Nampa in the opening round.

"I suspect it will be Lewiston that wins up there," Borah High Coach Bill Wight said Sunday afternoon. "Lewiston has a pretty good team and Coeur d'Alene doesn't have a winning record."

Even if Lewiston loses twice to CDA, the Bengals would advance to state as the western at-large team. If Lewiston comes to state as the northern champion, Borah High will be the western at-large team.

The top bracket pairings for state at Nampa against Skyline at 6 p.m. Thursday at Nampa. Twin Falls, the eastern at-large team, is also in the top bracket against Lewiston or CDA.

The bottom bracket has Pocatello, the Fifth District champion, against either Lewiston or Borah at 6 p.m. at Borah High and Meridian, the Third District runner-up, against Minico.

Friday's consolation games are set for 6 p.m. at both sites while the championship semifinals will be at 8:30 p.m. All of Saturday's games will be at Borah and include the consolation championship game at 11 a.m., the third place game at 2 p.m. and title game at 8 p.m.

Jack Nicklaus enjoys his 25-foot victory-clinching putt at 16

Gains 1st victory in 22 months

Nicklaus ends win drought

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus erased some of the shadow of Ben Hogan from Hogan's Alley Sunday and, for those who might have forgotten during the past two years, showed why he is the greatest name in golf.

Nicklaus, finding himself in a stretch duel with Andy North, curled in a 25-foot putt at the 16th hole to spark golf's all-time leading money winner to a triumph in the Colonial National Invitation, his first tour victory in 22 months.

The triumph came over a course that was used by the legendary Hogan to hone his game for four U.S. Open championships and a host of other victories and Nicklaus played it Sunday just as Hogan used to when he captured this event five times.

"The feeling to have won again is a nice feeling," said Nicklaus. "You can't say you don't enjoy winning everytime, because you do. But when the wins get this far apart, you sometimes forget how much fun it is.

"I've been saying for some times that the wheels have been coming off too regularly and today they didn't. I played very good today. There have been tournaments lately where I have not finished good and it felt good to finish like I wanted to."

It was the 69th tour title for Nicklaus, 15 short of Sam Snead's all-time win total, and the $63,000 first prize brought him to within range of $4 million in career earnings before the year is out. His first Colonial title in 10 tries raised his lifetime earnings to $3,907,320, $1.2 million ahead of second-place Tom Watson.

Nicklaus shot a final round of three-under 67 Sunday over the treacherous Colonial Country Club course for a four-day total of seven-under 273. North, who began the day with a two-shot lead over Nicklaus, Jerry Pate and Danny Edwards, suffered through an up-and-down round that included a costly double bogey at the watery, par-4 ninth hole and finally finished with a 72 that left him at 276.

Pate failed to make a charge and shot a 71 Sunday to finish at three-under 277 with Tom Kite next at 278 following a 68. Tom Purtzer, Lenny Clements and Joe Imman wound up at even par, and Edwards slumped to a 76 to finish at two-over.

The tournament's turning point came over a stretch of less than 30 seconds with Nicklaus standing on the 16th green and North only 200 yards away through the trees on the 15th. They were tied at that point at six-under.

North was facing a putt of less than two feet, but yanked it left and saw it lip out. The groans of the huge gallery had barely died down when Nicklaus stroked his birdie putt at the 16th. It broke sharply to the left and went in the center of the hole.

Nicklaus, whose last victory had come during the summer of 1980 in the PGA at Rochester, N.Y., raised his putter into the air and clinched his right fist in celebration of his sudden two-shot lead.

North promptly bogeyed the 16th to remove all doubt as to the outcome.

The victory was a popular one with the immense crowd that tromped through muggy and occasional showery conditions to see Nicklaus return to the winner's circle. The throng that lined the 18th fairway gave Nicklaus a standing ovation as he walked to the last green, and when he recorded his par at the last hole Nicklaus warmly hugged his son, Steve, who had served as his father's caddy during the week.

North, whose greatest moment in golf came when he won the U.S. Open four years ago, won $37,800 for his second-place finish.

Whitworth pleased chase for victory No. 83 completed

ROSWELL, Ga. (UPI) — Kathy Whitworth became the winningest woman in golf history Sunday when she captured her 83rd LPGA tournament by a commanding four strokes and pulled ahead of former record holder Mickey Wright.

"I'm glad it's over," the lanky, 42-year-old Texan said after her third and final round 70 gave her a total of nine-under-par 207 in the Atlanta LPGA tournament.

"I couldn't even phantom how it would feel, but if I hadn't won here, I would have had to try again the next week and maybe the week after that. I want to win more than 83, but it sure feels good to have the pressure of that number behind me."

Whitworth, who also regained her former spot as the LPGA's leading career money winner as the $22,500 first prize vaulted her all-time earnings to nearly $1,138,000, appeared in trouble Sunday when Barbara Moxness grabbed a two-stroke lead shortly after the turn. But a late birdie by Whitworth and a barrage of late bogey trouble for Moxness enabled Whitworth to breeze home to her record.

"I didn't realize until I saw the scoreboard at 15 that Barbara was doing as well as she was," said Whitworth. "But then, when I got to 16 and saw she had double bogeyed and I made a birdie, I felt confident No. 83 was mine — although I was still cautious."

Moxness wound up at 71-211 where she tied for second with 20-year-old Sharon Barrett, who had a final round 68 and exulted that the $12,600 she earned was the biggest purse of her brief pro career.

Defending champion Amy Alcott closed on a strong note with a 69, but that was only good enough for a 213 total and a tie for fourth place with Sue Ertl and Julie Stanger Pyne. Pyne had gone into the final round two strokes off Whitworth's pace, but shot a 74.

However, the day's most disappointing round had to belong to Kelly Fuiks, who started the day one stroke off the lead and wound up back in the pack after shooting a 78-216.

"I'm tickled to death for her," Wright said about Whitworth.

Wright, who retired from full-time competition 13 years ago while only 35, added, "I know the pressure she's been under and I feel relieved for her. I told Kathy after she won No. 81 last year that she should let someone else worry about 82 and 83 and she should worry about No. 100."

Whitworth, who tied Wright a month ago when she won the Women's International by a runaway nine strokes, said before Sunday's round that she didn't feel confident. But she played steady golf, making three birdies — including one on the first hole — and only one bogey — when she missed a 10-foot par putt.

"I just hope I can continue to win," said Whitworth. "I don't know why I've been able to stay out here on the tour as long as I have and still win, but I'd like to stay another four or five years."

JoAnne Carner had been leading the LPGA career money list but lost ground Sunday when her 73-220 was worth only $1,113.

Sunday's [illegible] on this year's money [illegible]. She now trails only Sally Little, who has won more than $125,000 despite not playing this week. Last Sunday, Little deprived Whitworth of getting victory No. 83 a week earlier by beating her on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff in Virginia.

Council slates hearings on fund use

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two hearings on the city's use of federal money highlight a brief agenda for tonight's Twin Falls City Council meeting.

Council members will accept testimony on the city's intent to apply for a federal community development grant of $350,000. The city staff has recommended the money be sought for street improvements in the area of Adams Street and Shoup Avenue. Other proposals can be presented at the hearing Monday. Community development grants are awarded to foster economic development or to directly benefit low-income areas of cities.

The second hearing will provide an opportunity for the public to suggest uses for $440,450 in federal revenue-sharing money. The city already has committed an additional $71,550, principally for computerization at the public library, and for a payment toward the purchase of a front-end loader.

Appropriations requested by the public will be included on a needs list to be considered during deliberation of the 1982-83 budget this summer.

In a letter to the city, Charles Capps, the executive director of the Twin Falls Housing Authority, has requested revenue-sharing money to resurface roadways and parking areas at three housing projects for senior citizens. The estimated cost of the improvements is $21,374.

Capps withdrew an earlier proposal that the city seek community development grant money for the work. Council members expressed concern that that proposal would not be a strong competitor amid the flurry of grant applications expected by the state, which administers the federal grants.

Other business on Monday's agenda includes a request for an encroachment that would allow the Water Tower Plaza, a proposed shopping complex, to install an emergency exit, as required by the building code. Developers plan to convert a warehouse off Second Avenue South into an enclosed shopping mall featuring boutique-type stores. The former Continental Oil Co. warehouse is across from the Shuffle Inn tavern.

Monday's meeting will start at 7 p.m. in City Hall. Council members will hold a public work session at 4 p.m., also in City Hall.

Schools

Comment on report sought

TWIN FALLS — Residents of the Twin Falls School District will have an opportunity to comment Tuesday on recommendations made to the school board by its ad-hoc curriculum committee.

The hearing will begin at 8 p.m. in the district's administration office, 201 Main St. W.

Following the hearing, the board will consider ratification of the master contract agreement reached with the teachers last week, following negotiations with the Twin Falls Education Association.

The board also will canvass the votes of the trustee election held earlier in the day.

Special meeting set in June

KIMBERLY — School board officials in Kimberly will hold a special meeting Tuesday, June 8, at 8 p.m. to discuss the 1982-83 budget.

The projected budget for the district is $1.245 million, compared to this year's budget of $1.168 million. According to Superintendent George Powell, the budget includes the "desperately needed" $60,000 override levy, which residents will vote on Tuesday.

With the additional funds, $226,814 is expected to be generated by local tax revenues.

Jones

• Update laws governing agriculture, such as bolstering disclosure requirements for bonded warehouses and reducing some bankruptcy exemptions.

• Establish a consumer-fraud effort, targeting out-of-state phone solicitors and door-to-door salesmen.

Jones's primary goal in the civil field is to sponsor legislation that would require losing parties in civil suits to pay the attorney fees of the winner.

He says that such a move is needed to discourage frivolous or poorly founded lawsuits. As an example, he cites a case in which one of his clients was sued for $9,000. The suit failed, but his client had legal costs of $6,000.

He's also proposing a three-point plan to assault the rising number of alcohol-related accidents. This includes tougher sentencing, consistent suspension of driver's licenses and "mandatory treatment of alcoholics, at their expense."

"The way to improve the parole system and reduce the number of apparent mistakes is to give the parole commission more information," Jones says. "In every instance, the input and recommendation of the prosecutor and judge should be solicited by the parole board."

He advocates that sentencing hearings should be transcribed, and that information should be included in a convict's record with the parole commission.

Jones also is stressing management of Idaho's land and water as an important duty of the attorney general.

Generally opposing any sale of state land, he says the state's 2.6 million acres should "be managed productively for the long-term investment. We can't just shoot for the most productivity or profit in one year, but for years and generations to come."

Because of numerous water-right cases being debated in other states, Jones says the attorney general needs to become active in any case that may set a precedent for consuming Idaho's water.

"In New Mexico, right now, there's a case with El Paso wanting the right to export some of its water out of state. We don't want some other state, like California, coming to us later to take our water, based on some case that occurred in New Mexico.

"We have to get involved in that type of litigation, or we may lose our rights in the future. And the attorney general is the proper person for this role."

Harris

successful: the 120-day Cottonwood program and the community work-release program.

"We must continue to help rehabilitate the people who can be rehabilitated, and warehouse those who can not. The parole function, therefore, is primarily needed in non-violent and first-offense cases."

To accompany this plan, Harris supports construction of a maximum-security prison, either in Idaho or in a Northwest regional program with Oregon and Washington.

"If we had had a maximum-security facility, I'm absolutely convinced we would not have had the prison riot of 1980. The fact is that 20 to 30 percent of the prison population should not be allowed loose in the prison yard with the other, less-dangerous prisoners."

He also supports toughening the Youth Rehabilitation Act, and he wants more juvenile crime cases heard in adult court.

But Harris acknowledges that his call for a major rewriting of Idaho's laws to introduce minimum sentencing will take years to be successful.

Meanwhile, Harris — backed by the Idaho Prosecuting Attorneys Association — sponsored legislation this year to allow judges, prosecutors and inmates to appeal decisions of the state Commission on Pardons and Parole directly to the governor.

"Yes, that would essentially give us two levels for parole hearings, but the prosecutors association felt that is preferable to what we now have, although I believe it's a second choice to minimum, mandatory sentencing.

"I think it is obvious that the parole commission is making too many mistakes. About 35 to 40 percent of inmates released are going back to prison, usually not because of conviction for new crimes, but for parole violations."

Another major goal is to promote multiple use of state lands through the attorney general's role on the state Land Board.

"The attorney general wears two hats on the land board — as a voting member and as legal counsel. I will advocate that state lands be used for purposes of the highest productivity. Idahoans have the right to approach the board with plans to develop and use state lands.

Philadelphia guard Andrew Toney loses Celtic's Chris Ford on a pick as he drives inside

Toney paces 76ers in rout of Celtics

GEORGE SHIRK

PHILADELPHIA — This time, there was no fade and panic at the end.

This time, when the 76ers had the Boston Celtics down on the Spectrum floor, they kicked once, then kicked again until they were absolutely sure that the Kelly green corpse was not going to so much as move again.

And when they were through kicking Sunday afternoon, they had delivered to the Celtics their worst defeat of the year — a 119-94 flogging that more than avenged last week's 40-point Mother's Day Massacre in Boston.

It was the Sixers' third straight victory over the Celtics in the best-of-seven Eastern Conference final series, and it allowed them to take a 3-1 lead back to Boston for Game 5 Wednesday night.

A delirious sold-out house of 18,364 watched this most stunning Sixers stomp — a stomp that handed the Celts their first three-game losing streak of the year.

"After last Sunday, I wasn't sure we could beat them three in a row," said Sixers Coach Billy Cunningham.

Well, believe it.

Not only did the Sixers win this one, they did it in Boston-like style, running up point after point in the fourth quarter until the life of the Celtics' offense and defense was buried six feet under Broad Street.

M.L. CARR
Couldn't handle 76er guard

Then, still not wholly satisfied, the Sixers ran it up some more until, at the very end, the contestants were people like Earl Cureton, Franklin Edwards and Lionel Hollins — players whose hopes of playing at all in this series had been so slim that only the unexpected could have given them a minute or two of playing time.

Sunday, the only unexpected development was that Andrew Toney didn't get 100 points all by himself.

To the Celtics, you can bet it seemed as if he did.

Toney, who for the first time in this series avoided early foul trouble, rat-a-tat-tatted 14 field goals and 11 free throws through the nets and came away with a game-high 39 points — by far his best career playoff performance.

He shot 66.6 percent from the field while being double-teamed, triple-teamed and quadruple-teamed.

He shot from in close and from far away, and was such a pest that Boston Coach Bill Fitch, trying desperately to find some combination that could snuff out his bombs, ultimately sent forward Larry Bird into the guard court to try to draw Toney into a more defensive position.

Toney merely responded by canning 15 points in the third quarter and 10 more in the fourth.

But he didn't stop there. Toney also was spotting free teammates, and was — gasp! — passing so well that, at times, he appeared to be the mirror image of assists craftsman Mo Cheeks, his diminutive back-court partner.

In all, Toney dished out six assists to go with Cheeks' 11. Bonnie and Clyde were known to have been less effective, even on their best days.

"During this series," Toney said, "I've noticed that each time I penetrate I look up and their guys are right there. I know how they switch, so in those situations I've been trying to find the open man."

Naturally, Toney didn't win this one all by himself.

Record-setting Lakers take a break before NBA finals

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — While the Boston Celtics and Philadelphia 76ers play it the tough Eastern Conference finals, the Los Angeles Lakers will sit back and take it easy for at least a week.

And if the first two playoff series they've played are any indication, they may get as much rest during the NBA final.

"Nobody's going to stop them," said San Antonio Spurs' forward Mike Mitchell. "Nobody. Not the way they're playing."

The Lakers completed a four-game sweep of the Midwest Division champion Spurs on Saturday in a 128-123 thriller. The playoff sweep was the Lakers' second in a row, making Los Angeles the first team to ever accomplish that feat. They routed the Phoenix Suns in the division semifinals.

Now it's on to the NBA championships against either the 76ers or Celtics — Philadelphia leads the Eastern Division series 3-1 — but the Lakers have convinced the Spurs that the championships shouldn't be much of a series at all.

The first game could be played Sunday.

The Lakers are at a level that is just unbelievable," Spurs Coach Stan Albeck said. "I cannot remember a team in my years in the NBA as well as the old ABA that plays as hard and as well as they do.

"I like their chances of winning it all. They swept through Phoenix, then us. That's not an easy thing to do.

"Hell, they may be the best team the league has ever seen. They have seven great athletes who never stop applying the pressure. They're never satisfied with a jump shot off the fast break. They keep on going until they get a layup."

The Spurs had a chance to win the fourth game of the series Saturday, leading by two points with about three minutes left. But a crucial mistake by Albeck a couple of minutes earlier proved decisive.

With 6:11 remaining, George Gervin, the Spurs' ace and the league's four-time scoring leader, fouled out after scoring 38 points. About 30 seconds before he fouled out, Gervin had been charged with his fifth foul.

Albeck, however, mistakenly thought the earlier foul was given to San Antonio forward Mark Olberding — who was in the vicinity and raised his hand towards the scorer's table in an effort to fake out the officials and keep Gervin at four fouls.

The officials noticed the ploy and didn't go for it.

But Albeck fell for it.

"It was my fault," Albeck admitted. "I screwed up. It was a mixup on the bench and it never should have happened. I take full responsibility."

Albeck said if he knew Gervin had five fouls with nearly seven minutes remaining, "I definitely would have taken him out and saved him for the stretch."

But he didn't, and down the stretch, when the Spurs needed some clutch baskets to offset a Laker surge, Gervin could only watch.

Despite his praise for the Lakers, Albeck said they could face a serious problem in the league championships.

"Because they're playing such perfect basketball," he said, "I wonder how they will react to a loss. They have a lot of fragile personalities on that team. Will they come apart? That's a legitimate question."

But then Albeck paused and seemed to remember what the Lakers had done to his team.

"But hell, who knows?" he said. "They may go undefeated."

Baseball pairings nearly set

Lewiston or CDA to face Bruins

Minico will meet Meridian while Twin Falls' opposition will be either Lewiston or Coeur d'Alene when the state baseball tournament begins Thursday at Nampa and Borah High schools.

The Spartans, Fourth District champions, will meet Meridian High at 3:30 p.m. Thursday at Borah High.

Lewiston and Coeur D'Alene, rained out Saturday, are playing each other today to see which advances to state. One Lewiston win would give the Bengals a berth opposite Twin Falls while CDA must win twice to make the state trip.

The Bruins will meet the northern district representative at 8:30 p.m. Thursday at Nampa in the opening round.

"I suspect it will be Lewiston that ends up there," Borah High Coach Bill Rigler said Sunday afternoon. "Lewiston has a pretty good team and Coeur d' Alene doesn't have a winning record."

Even if Lewiston loses twice to CDA, the Bengals would advance to state as the western at-large team. If Lewiston comes to state as the northern champion, Borah High will be the western at-large team.

The top bracket pairings for state at Nampa against Skyline at 6 p.m. Thursday at Nampa. Twin Falls, the western at-large team, is also in the top bracket against Lewiston or CDA. The bottom bracket has Pocatello, the Fifth District champion, against either Lewiston or Borah at 6 p.m. at Borah High and Meridian, the Third District runner-up, against Minico.

Friday's consolation games are set at 6 p.m. at both sites while the championship semifinals will be at 8:30 p.m. All of Saturday's games will be at Borah and include the consolation championship game at 11 a.m., the third place game at 2 p.m. and the game at 8 p.m.

Gains 1st victory in 22 months

Nicklaus ends win drought

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus erased some of the shadow of Ben Hogan from Hogan's Alley Sunday and, for those who might have forgotten during the past two years, showed why he is the greatest name in golf.

Nicklaus, finding himself in a stretch duel with Andy North, curled in a 25-foot putt at the 16th hole to spark golf's all-time leading money winner to a triumph in the Colonial National Invitation, his first tour victory in 22 months.

The triumph came over a course that was used by the legendary Hogan to hone his game for four U.S. Open championships and a host of other victories and Nicklaus played it Sunday just as Hogan used to when he captured this event five times.

"The feeling to have won again is a nice feeling," said Nicklaus. "You can't say you don't enjoy winning everytime, because you do. But when the wins get this far apart, you sometimes forget how much fun it is.

"I've been saying for some times that the wheels have been coming off too regularly and today they didn't. I played very good today. There have been tournaments lately where I have not finished good and it felt good to finish like I wanted to."

It was the 69th tour title for Nicklaus, 15 short of Sam Snead's all-time win total, and the $63,000 first prize brought him to within range of $4 million in career earnings before the year is out. His first Colonial title in 10 tries raised his lifetime earnings to $3,907,320, $1.2 million ahead of second-place Tom Watson.

Nicklaus shot a final round of three-under 67 Sunday over the treacherous Colonial Country Club course for a four-day total of seven-under 273. North, who began the day with a two-shot lead over Nicklaus, Jerry Pate and Danny Edwards, suffered through an up-and-down round that included a costly double bogey at the watery, par-4 ninth hole and finally finished with a 72 that left him at 276.

Pate failed to make a charge and shot a 71 Sunday to finish at three-under 277 with Tom Kite next at 278 following a 68. Tom Purtzer, Lenny Clements and Joe Inman wound up at even par, and Edwards slumped to a 76 to finish at two-over.

The tournament's turning point came over a stretch of less than 30 seconds with Nicklaus standing on the 16th green and North only 200 yards away through the trees on the 15th. They were tied at that point at six-under.

North was facing a putt of less than two feet, but yanked it left and saw it lip out. The groans of the huge gallery had barely died down when Nicklaus stroked his birdie putt at the 16th. It broke sharply to the left and went in the center of the hole.

Nicklaus, whose last victory had come during the summer of 1980 in the PGA at Rochester, N.Y., raised his putter into the air and clinched his right fist in celebration of his sudden two-shot lead.

North promptly bogeyed the 16th to remove all doubt as to the outcome.

The victory was a popular one with the immense crowd that tromped through muggy and occasional showery conditions to see Nicklaus return to the winner's circle. The throng that lined the 18th fairway gave Nicklaus a standing ovation as he walked to the last green, and when he recorded his par at the last hole Nicklaus warmly hugged his son, Steve, who had served as his father's caddy during the week.

North, whose greatest moment in golf came when he won the U.S. Open four years ago, won $37,800 for his second-place finish.

Whitworth pleased chase for victory No. 83 completed

ROSWELL, Ga. (UPI) — Kathy Whitworth became the winningest woman in golf history Sunday when she captured her 83rd LPGA tournament by a commanding four strokes and pulled ahead of former record holder Mickey Wright.

"I'm glad it's over," the lanky, 42-year-old Texan said after her third and final round 70 gave her a total of nine-under-par 207 in the Atlanta LPGA tournament.

"I couldn't even phantom how it would feel, but if I hadn't won here, I would have had to try again the next week and maybe the week after that. I want to win more than 83, but it sure feels good to have the pressure of that number behind me."

Whitworth, who also regained her former spot as the LPGA's leading career money winner as the $22,500 first prize vaulted her all-time earnings to nearly $1,138,000, appeared in trouble Sunday when Barbara Moxness grabbed a two-stroke lead shortly after the turn. But a late birdie by Whitworth and a barrage of late bogey trouble for Moxness enabled Whitworth to breeze home to her record.

"I didn't realize until I saw the scoreboard at 15 that Barbara was doing as well as she was," said Whitworth. "But then, when I got to 16 and saw she had double bogeyed and I made a birdie, I felt confident No. 83 was mine — although I was still cautious."

Moxness wound up at 71-211 where she tied for second with 20-year-old Sharon Barrett, who had a final round 68 and exulted that the $12,600 she earned was the biggest purse of her brief pro career.

Defending champion Amy Alcott closed on a strong note with a 69, but that was only good enough for a 213 total and a tie for fourth place with Sue Ertl and Julie Stanger Pyne. Pyne had gone into the final round two strokes off Whitworth's pace, but shot a 74.

However, the day's most disappointing round had to belong to Kelly Fuiks, who started the day one stroke off the lead and wound up back in the pack after shooting a 78-216.

"I'm tickled to death for her," Wright said about Whitworth.

Wright, who retired from full-time competition 13 years ago while only 35, added, "I know the pressure she's been under and I feel relieved for her. I told Kathy after she won No. 81 last year that she should let someone else worry about 82 and 83 and she should worry about No. 100."

Whitworth, who tied Wright a month ago when she won the Women's International by a runaway nine strokes, said before Sunday's round that she didn't feel confident. But she played steady golf, making three birdies — including one on the first hole — and only one bogey — when she missed a 10-foot par putt.

"I just hope I can continue to win," said Whitworth. "I don't know why I've been able to stay out here on the tour as long as I have and still win, but I'd like to stay another four or five years."

JoAnne Carner had been leading the LPGA career money list but lost ground Sunday when her 73-220 was worth only $1,113.

Sunday's [illegible] on this year's money list. She now trails only Sally Little, who has won more than $125,000 despite not playing this week. Last Sunday, Little deprived Whitworth of getting victory No. 83 a week earlier by beating her on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff in Virginia.

Smiley's tragic death only slows driver's battle for speed

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The death of a driver causes a pause, but does not halt, the battles for speed at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Other competitors may wonder whether they might be next, but still head back out onto the track. And thus qualifications resumed after Gordon Smiley was killed Saturday in a fiery crash that shredded his racer against the wall.

Observers said Smiley lost control, overcorrected and then the "ground effects" design of his March chassis carried the car head-on into the wall. Only three compressed sections of the car remained.

Smiley, a 36-year-old native of Omaha, Neb., died "doing what he loved to do," said his car's owner, Bob Fletcher. Fletcher owned the car nine years ago in which driver Art Pollard was killed, also in a crash against the wall.

The last to die before Smiley at the Speedway was Swede Savage, during the running of the 1973 race.

Smiley was killed on his second warmup lap as he prepared for a qualification attempt. Fletcher said his crew had clocked Smiley over 190 miles per hour and had expected him to complete his run in the 197 mph range he had recorded during morning practice.

Derek Mower, crew chief on Fletcher's team, said Smiley was enthusiastic all week.

"He wanted to run good for his sponsors," Mower said after the accident. "I tried to calm him down this morning and told him just to run the car as fast as it was comfortable because we had a backup if things didn't work out with this one.

"But he said we didn't need a backup because he was gonna run 200 miles an hour with this one. He was super aggressive and super competitive and he felt he was better than some of the guys going faster than he was."

Four-time Indy winner A. J. Foyt, who qualified hours after Smiley was killed and took the No. 3 starting spot, said a driver never knows what is going to happen.

"You're never ready for it — at least I'm not," said Foyt, who was severely injured at Michigan International Speedway last July.

"I think these cars are safe until you hit wrong. But it was like that in the old cars, too. If you hit wrong — I don't care if you're in a Sherman tank — it isn't going to help."

Only two drivers make tentative field on 2nd qualifying day

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — There were lots of race cars, lots of people, lots of sunshine and even actress Carol Channing, but there was not very much qualifying Sunday on the second day of time trials for the Indianapolis 500.

Indianapolis Motor Speedway officials got Miss Channing, appearing in a show in Indianapolis this week, to say a few words to the crowd, which was disappointed by a lack of qualifying action. The fans, who paid $5 each to enter the IMS grounds, saw only one driver start a qualifying run before 4 p.m. MDT, and that run was aborted after two laps.

During the "happy hour" between 6 and 7 p.m., when the track is cooling down, four qualification attempts were started. Two were completed, by Geoff Brabham and Dennis Firestone. Brabham had a four-lap average of 198.906 mph, and Firestone was at 197.217.

They were placed behind the 20 cars that qualified Saturday in the pole position. Eleven places remained in the 33-car field, with more qualifying scheduled next weekend.

The non-action Sunday came one day after one of the most important sessions in Speedway history. All speed records were broken by pole-setter Rick Mears, and a tragic crash killed race car driver Gordon Smiley.

The aborted qualification runs were by rookies Chet Fillip and Jim Hickman and Greg Leffler. Fillip ended the run despite averaging just under 194 mph for three laps, a speed which would have beaten the slowest speed turned in Saturday by rookie Chip Mead.

Hospital releases Leonard

BALTIMORE (UPI) — World welterweight boxing champion Sugar Ray Leonard, who underwent eye surgery last week, was released Sunday from Johns Hopkins Hospital and doctors were optimistic about his chances for a full recovery.

Leonard slipped out of the hospital's Wilmer Eye Institute at 6 a.m. (MDT), said hospital spokeswoman Mary Ellen DeLoache.

"The physicians remain optimistic that he will achieve a full recovery," DeLoache said, declining to offer a further comment. Neither Leonard nor family members or aides could be reached for comment.

A spokesman for the fighter previously said Leonard would recuperate at his residence in Mitchellville, Md., located near Washington, D.C., following his release from the hospital.

A week ago, Leonard underwent two hours of surgery to repair a partially detached retina in his left eye. The retina is the part of the eye that "sees," and, through the optic nerve, transmits messsages to the brain.

Dr. Ronald Michels, the physician who operated on Leonard, said "many athletes" have recovered from such an operation. But neither he nor the fighter would speculate on Leonard's chances of resuming his boxing career.

Numerous friends and boxing associates of Leonard's have urged him to quit boxing rather than risk blindness in his left eye.

Tiger Stadium resembles auto production — in good times

By United Press International

Baseballs were flying out of Tiger Stadium in Detroit Sunday as often as cars off an assembly line in good economic times.

Larry Herndon cracked a seventh-inning homer, the eighth homer of the game, to snap a 6-6 tie and lift the Detroit Tigers to a 7-6 victory and a sweep of their four-game series against the Minnesota Twins.

Randy Johnson slammed a two-run homer, Tom Brunansky and John Castino cracked solo homers and Tim Laudner stroked a run-scoring single as the Twins took a 5-0 lead in the first inning against starter Larry Pashnick.

Alan Trammell hit his first home run of the season and his first major league grand slam in the second inning following a pair of walks and a single off Minnesota starter Brad Havens.

Mike Ivie tied the game at 5-5 with a homer leading off the third and Chet Lemon blasted his second homer of the season in the fourth to give Detroit a 6-5 lead.

Dave Engle greeted winning reliever Dave Tobik, 1-0, with a home run leading off the sixth, but Herndon responded with his fourth homer of the season off loser Terry Felton, 0-5.

Baseball

Royals 5, Red Sox 0

At Kansas City, Dennis Leonard and Dan Quisenberry combined on a five-hitter and John Wathan hit two run-scoring singles to lead the Royals.

Rangers 2, Blue Jays 1 (10)

At Arlington, Texas, George Wright, who tripled home Texas' first run, singled in the winning run with two out in the 10th inning to lift the Rangers.

A's 7, Yankees 6

Cliff Johnson's fifth-inning RBI double drove in Rickey Henderson with what proved to be the winning run. Steve McCatty, who left in the sixth inning when his shoulder stiffened, notched his third victory in four decisions. Dave Righetti, 2-3, took the loss.

Angels 3, Indians 0

At Anaheim, Calif., Don Baylor scored from second base on Doug DeCinces' infield single and Reggie Jackson and Fred Lynn hit home runs to back Ken Forsch's four-hitter and enable the Angels to complete a four-game sweep. Forsch, 3-3, outdueled John Denny, 2-4.

Phillies 6, Giants 1

At Philadelphia, Pete Rose doubled home a pair of fifth-inning runs to break a 1-1 tie and help the Phillies extend their winning streak to seven games. Mike Krukow, who served up a second-inning home run to Jack Clark, went the distance to pick up his third victory in five decisions.

Braves 5, Cardinals 2

At Atlanta, Rick Mahler tossed a seven-hitter and Bob Horner's two-run double triggered a five-run first inning that carried the Braves. Mahler, 3-3, struck out three and walked one to register his first career triumph over the Cardinals. It was the right-hander's third complete game of the season.

Chicago 2, Astros 1

At Houston, Larry Bowa's two-out single up the middle in the fourth inning drove in what proved to be the winning run and gave the Cubs their sixth victory in seven games.

76ers

quietly hit for 17 points, took down nine rebounds and blocked three shots.

Darryl Dawkins, playing his second consecutive strong game off the bench, delivered 30 solid minutes of inside play that netted him 16 points on 7-for-10 shooting. He also cleared six rebounds and blocked four shots as Philadelphia out-rejected Boston's "Rejector Set" of Bird, Robert Parish, Kevin McHale and Chris Ford, 14-9.

Caldwell Jones, meanwhile, blocked four shots, scored 10 points and took down 11 rebounds to help Philadelphia win the war of the boards, 48-32.

Could anyone do wrong?

Hardly. The Sixers buried the Celts with an incredible fourth-quarter shooting percentage of 72.2, sinking 13 of their final 18 shots.

On the other hand, the Celts could do little that was right in the second half. Rarely do the Celtics manage only 38.9-percent fourth-quarter shooting, and it would be foolish to expect them to do it again in this series.

But Boston, after all, was operating without All-Star guard Tiny Archibald, who separated his shoulder in Saturday's 99-97 Sixers win.

Without the league's best penetrator, the Celtics most of the time were just where the Milwaukee Bucks were without their point guard, Quinn Buckner: up a creek without a paddle.

"They play differently with Archibald out of there," summed up Cunningham.

Fitch certainly would not use Archibald's injury as an excuse, at least not publicly, despite the fact that his team now faces its first "must" game of the season.

Still, there is little reason to think that the Celtics will go away quietly.

The Sixers and Celtics have been here before, you know, so neither team was conceding anything.

It takes no great memory to recall that, last year, the situation was just about the same. Sixers up, 3-1. One week later, the Celtics walked away with the series.

"We have a mission — a purpose," declared Mike Bantom, "and it's not to win just one game. It's to win four. Three-to-one does not win this series."

Said Lionel Hollins, who played the final 2 minutes and scored four points:

"I'm sure that last year we probably had a feeling that the series was over, and there'd be no way they'd be able to come back. We learned from that. We learned that it's a seven-game series."

Wyoming Oil 'Lottery' Open To All In June!

ROCKY MT. REGION (EXTRA) — Oil Lease Rights will be awarded to hundreds of U.S. Citizens in the upcoming public drawings conducted by the State of Wyoming. Some may realize an overnight fortune by selling their rights to oil companies while retaining lifelong royalties on all oil and gas production.

Most will risk no more than a tax-deductible $40 to enter this little-known government program that affords every American the right to compete equally with major companies for these valuable leases on public lands.

Information and entry details are available from the S. Charles Stanton Company, Post Office Box 3197, Ventura, California 93006. (Office address: 6650 Crescent, Ventura, Calif. 93003) Enclose $1 to cover postage and handling.

The Stanton Company will rush official entry cards and full instructions in time to meet the June, 1982 drawing deadline.

THE ACES® IRA G. CORN, JR.

Dear Mr. Corn:
Partner doubles one heart for takeout and I respond in my best suit, two diamonds. Partner now bids two vulnerable spades. What kind of a hand does he promise?

Broken Promises, Minneapolis

ANSWER: On this bidding, partner promises a fine hand and a good suit (about 16-19 points); a hand too good for a simple overcall of one spade.

Dear Mr. Corn:
Partner opens and opponents overcall at the two level. Is there any difference between a penalty double of a two level major suit overcall and a double of a minor suit overcall?

Bad Scenes, Greensboro, NC

ANSWER: Yes, there should be. Against a major suit two level overcall, doubler should be almost sure of an easy down two. Against a minor suit overcall, one can be more speculative. Why? If made, two of a minor, doubled, does not surrender a game.

Dear Mr. Corn:
When an opponent makes a takeout double of one spade, what does a jump to four spades by next hand show?

Shutout, Dayton, OH

ANSWER: The jump is intended to make it difficult for the opponents to bid. It is a shutout bid and promises long trumps and unusual distribution, little in high cards or defense. It's usually an early sacrifice, but don't be too surprised if dummy's distribution helps declarer to make his game.

Dear Mr. Corn:
A change of suit by responder forces opener to bid again. Does this rule apply whether or not responder has originally passed?

One Over One, Phoenix, AZ

ANSWER: A change of suit by a responder who has not passed is forcing. It is not forcing if responder has passed his first turn to bid.

Dear Mr. Corn:
With no entry problems, is the play of this combination the same when declarer needs either three or four tricks from this suit? Dummy: A Q 10 9. Declarer: 7 5 4 2

Toss-up, New Orleans

ANSWER: Yes, it is. For four tricks, the best play is to finesse the nine hoping to find both honors on declarer's left. For three tricks, finesse twice, but one might try the long shot of first finessing the queen to pick up a singleton jack.
