Baby, mother reunited

Parent arrives to end mystery

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The mystery of the baby girl abandoned at St. Edward's Catholic Church has been solved.

She is Charlotte Louise Fenton, born Aug. 22, 1981, the daughter of Jutta Maria Fenton of Carson City, Nev.

According to Twin Falls police Chief Tim Qualls, Charlotte had been taken by Fenton's estranged husband, Edward William Fenton, on April 13, following a family dispute. On May 6, the child was left with a bag of clothes just inside the doors of the church in Twin Falls. She had been placed temporarily with a foster-care family.

Qualls said that Mrs. Fenton somehow got in touch with friends of her husband on Friday, and they told her the child had been left in Twin Falls. On Saturday, she contacted Twin Falls police and drove here with her mother-in-law on Tuesday.

Qualls determined through footprints, pictures and other information that Mrs. Fenton was indeed the mother of the blue-eyed, blonde girl, nicknamed Sarah Michelle by social workers.

Following a hearing Tuesday in magistrate court, the girl was returned to her mother and grandmother. Qualls said he was not sure if they would return to Carson City.

The plight of the baby girl with the winning personality had touched the hearts of the persons who dealt with her, from the elderly man who found her, to the police officers, to her foster family.

Child-protection workers from the state Department of Health and Welfare marveled at how healthy, happy and alert she was.

When contacted Tuesday by The Times-News, Jess Garrett, a child-protection supervisor, said he could not comment on the placement of baby Charlotte because her case fell under the jurisdiction of the Child Protective Act.

Under that law, which usually involves child-abuse cases, hearings on the disposition of children are closed to the public, and the information is confidential. Because Charlotte was under the jurisdiction of the court, a hearing was required to determine

Argentines in 'difficult' position

British Marines fought to within sight of the Falkland Islands capital of Stanley Tuesday.

Troops captured a strategic peak and shelling surrounded Argentine defenders in preparation for an all-out assault to end the South Atlantic war.

Argentina conceded its troops at Stanley were in a "difficult" position, surrounded on three sides with their backs to the sea.

Argentina sent a high-ranking delegation to the United Nations but Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez denied they were carrying new concessions in an effort to achieve peace. "They are not taking any proposal," he said.

"We have not found anything except intransigence on the part of the British so we have ceded, or are ceding, everything that is prudent, in order to achieve an honorable peace," delegation member Brig. Gen. Jose Miret said earlier.

Miret and Rear Adm. Benito Moya, members of an Argentine negotiating group that represents the military junta, were expected in New York early today.

Leaving the United Nations after meetings with Argentine and British officials, U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar also played down the possibility of Argentine concessions for a cease-fire.

"I don't think there is any special mission," he said in response to a question. "I think they are two sides (Deputy Foreign Minister Enrique) Ros, who leads the delegation."

In New York, Britain's U.N. Ambassador Anthony Parsons delivered a message from Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and her war cabinet, which in effect told the Argentines to "withdraw or face the consequences," government sources said.

Earlier, Gen. Mario Menendez, the commander of the Argentine garrison at Stanley, spurned a surrender ultimatum and told his men to fight with everything at their disposal.

Miret said the two-man Argentine delegation was carrying "precise instructions from the military junta that will allow them to give immediate responses to proposals made by Perez de Cuellar.

"Once again we are demonstrating that as we have the will to fight, we also have the will to seek peace," he said.

Foreign ministry sources said the men had an Argentine response to a British position statement given to Perez de Cuellar on Monday, adding they were not optimistic about progress in the talks based on the British position.

As the war converged on Stanley for the decisive battle, the Defense Ministry in London said 250 Argentines — twice as many as first thought — were killed in last week's fighting for Port Darwin and Goose Green.

Another 120 Argentines were wounded and 1,400 taken prisoner, the ministry said. It said British casualties included 17 dead and 31 wounded.

British already look at what comes next

By GREGORY JENSEN

Analysis

LONDON — Britain by Tuesday considered the battle of the Falklands so surely won that its officials turned their focus to what comes next.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher met her war Cabinet, and political sources said what concerned them was the days and months after the shooting ends.

Newspapers ran speculation — clearly officially inspired — on the alternatives. Opposition Labor Party leader Michael Foot orated about them. Former foreign secretary David Owen even made them his theme in New York.

Moment by moment, official silence on ground fighting strengthened everyone's conviction that the struggle against Stanley's entrenched Argentine defenders was raging already or would begin any moment.

No one thought it would be easy or bloodless. But no one doubted the outcome.

After the inevitable British victory, policies to be applied in the next few days meet little political disagreement. Get the Argentines out, keep them out, and let things settle down a bit.

But thereafter, differences are so severe they have driven a rift between Mrs. Thatcher and her new Foreign Secretary Francis Pym. The split should not be overemphasized, but it is clear.

Other inner Cabinet members are pushing policies different both from Mrs. Thatcher's and from Pym's. Opposition leaders advocate still other lines.

The main alternatives are clear-cut. Here is the state of play:

•Put everything back where it was April 1, the day before the Argentines seized the islands. Governor Rex Hunt and his legislative council reinstalled, the British Union Jack flying, what Tuesday's Daily Mail called "total British control."

This is the "status quo ante" option Mrs. Thatcher favors now. She is so convinced negotiations can never succeed that she feels Britain must develop economically, and protect militarily, the islands it has shed blood to "repossess."

•Once calm is restored, negotiate with the Argentines.

This is Pym's position. It is shared to a greater or lesser degree by Foot, Owen and other opposition leaders.

•Call in the United Nations for some form of trusteeship. Fly three flags — Britain's, Argentina's and someone else's. Call in the United States to build military and naval bases. Call in anybody who might help.

None of these ideas has any real support now.

Related story — A2

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court gave police expansive new power Tuesday to search items they find in cars — from paper bags to locked suitcases — without first getting a warrant.

On a 6-3 vote, the justices sought to clear up 60 years of uncertainty about how far police may go in searching an automobile stopped for legitimate law enforcement purposes.

Basically, the ruling gives police a free hand to search anything in a car that they have good reason to believe is carrying contraband.

It marks a sharp reversal from a badly fractured Fourth Amendment decision by the justices last year that severely curbed what could be searched in a car trunk without a warrant.

"If probable cause justifies the search of a lawfully stopped vehicle," wrote Justice John Paul Stevens for the court, "it justifies the search of every part of the vehicle and its contents that may conceal the object of the search."

During "a legitimate search," Stevens said, "nice distinctions . . . between glove compartments, upholstered seats, trunks and wrapped packages . . . must give way to the interest in the prompt and efficient completion of the task at hand," Stevens said.

The turnabout was due in part to the addition to the court of Sandra Day O'Connor, whose vote helped swing the pendulum to give police broader authority.

In a scorching attack on the majority's view, Justice Marshall warned that the ruling "will have profound implications for the privacy of citizens traveling in automobiles." Justices Byron White and William Brennan also dissented.

In another major case, the court handed down a decision that could encourage development of alternative energy sources. It upheld major portions of a federal law designed to reduce the nation's dependence on fossil fuels.

The high court declared Congress acted within its power in passing a 1978 law that encourages state public utility commissions to adopt rate systems that will promote conservation and use of renewable energy sources, such as solar and wind power.

Also Tuesday, the court:

•Voted 9-0 to set aside, on procedural grounds, a ruling that would have barred generic drugs from being sold in the same size, shape and color as leading brand-name products. The dispute was bounced back to an appeals court for further review.

•Refused to disturb an age discrimination ruling that declares United Air Lines cannot refuse to hire pilots who are older than 35.

•Agreed to settle a multibillion dollar antitrust dispute involving the

Reagan 'superbly prepared' for European trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan conferred with chief policy advisors Tuesday on the eve of his 10-day European summit journey and was pronounced "superbly prepared" for the trip.

Reagan met for three hours with Secretary of State Alexander Haig, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan and other aides to review the economic, political and defense issues he faces on his first European trip as president.

"He's superbly prepared and very intimately acquainted" with the agenda, Haig told reporters. "He's worked on it for 18 months."

Reagan will sandwich a Rome visit to Pope John Paul II and two days of pomp and pageantry in London between the three-day Versailles Economic Summit and a two-day NATO summit in Bonn. The schedule is rigorous and security air-tight — dissidents have promised demonstrations and pledged violence.

In Paris, for example — first stop on the four-nation trip — grand boulevards and winding alleys alike are lined with posters showing a combat commando with a machine gun saying, "The terrorist Reagan must be welcomed with hatred, raised fists and loaded arms."

However, Haig said he believes Reagan's recent initiatives have helped to defuse the nuclear-weapons controversy that sparked many protests in Europe this spring. Reagan announced Monday the United States and the Soviet Union will begin nuclear strategic arms reduction talks June 29.

In a wide-ranging interview Tuesday with four European television network correspondents, Reagan said anti-nuclear rallies abroad merely echo his desire "to be out from under the shadow . . . of nuclear annihilation."

"Actually, it didn't influence me — as a matter of fact, they're kind of following the leader — because way back during the campaign . . . on a number of occasions I publicly I said I would seek outright arms reduction."

Told he would be getting a "hot reception" in Berlin from hundreds of anti-nuclear protesters, Reagan said "I'm curious about what is in their mind . . . or are they going for some imagery concocted that I am a threat to peace?"

About the peace movement and massive demonstrations abroad this spring, Reagan said:

"All I can say is, I'm with them — I may disagree with some of the things they propose, such as if they are proposing again a freeze at the present level."

Reagan scheduled farewell remarks at an East Room ceremony today before flying Air Force One to Paris.

Thursday he attends a round of meetings and social events with President Francois Mitterrand and other French officials. Friday he travels to the outskirts of Paris for the three-day, seven-nation Versailles Economic Summit.

Monda is a marathon-day for Reagan. He flies from Paris to Rome to meet with the Pope and Italian leaders, then on in late afternoon to London, where Queen Elizabeth II will welcome him at Windsor Castle.

During two days in London, Reagan will address the British Parliament, meet with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and ride horseback with the Queen of England. His grand tour will wind up in Germany where he attends the NATO summit in Bonn with 15 other heads of state, including new-member Spain.

Before flying home June 11, Reagan makes the traditional presidential trip to the Berlin Wall and will address U.S. troops.

Haig said Europeans are looking forward to Reagan's visit. He said he anticipates there will be demonstrations — particularly in Germany — since "they've been going on for months."

Today's briefing

Nuclear war de-emphasized

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reagan administration has de-emphasized planning for a limited nuclear war, a top Pentagon official said Tuesday.

The administration has based its defense strategy on preparing for a global and probably lengthy conventional conflict with the Soviet Union, the official said.

"If something nuclear happens, obviously the paramount objective is to contain it," said Fred Ikle, the undersecretary of defense for policy.

The administration's stress on planning for a prolonged, multifront conventional war with the Soviets and its emphasis on ensuring the retaliatory capability of the strategic nuclear forces over an extended period are spelled out in a "National Defense Guidance" document labled "secret" and completed March 22.

Byrd opposition lines up

By United Press International

Conservative Rep. Cleve Benedict won the Republican nomination to oppose Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd in West Virginia Tuesday while Mississippi Democrat easily renominated the Senate's dean, John Stennis.

Benedict, who has the backing of an anti-Byrd campaign by the controversial National Conservative Political Action Committee, is expected to give the Senate Democratic leader more competition than he is used to. Byrd, party leader since 1977, was unopposed in the primary.

Stennis, 80, overwhelmed token opposition but for the first time since coming to Washington in 1947, he will have a Republican opponent this fall. Haley Barbour, a Yazoo City attorney who was state campaign manager for Gerald Ford in 1976 and Ronald Reagan in 1980, easily won the Republican contest.

Recession saves motorists

By United Press International

Economic hard times held the Memorial Day weekend traffic death toll to 334, well below the 500 anticipated by highway safety experts, the National Safety Council said Tuesday.

Council experts had estimated traffic mishaps between 6 p.m. local time Friday and midnight Monday might claim 500 lives. But a final tally by UPI Tuesday set the toll at 334.

"We're delighted," said Chuck Vance, the council's director of public relations.

"The economy quite obviously played a major role in forcing more and more people to stay home or take shorter trips," said Vance. "Another reason is there are so many older cars on the roads and their owners seem to be the ones who drive more carefully."

Begin approves 3-way summit

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin gave tentative approval Tuesday for a three-way summit in Washington with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak and President Reagan, Israel Radio said.

The radio said Begin told the Cabinet of his willingness to attend a summit in Washington, but it did not give any dates. Begin leaves for the United States next Sunday for meetings scheduled at the White House and in New York.

In Cairo, Mubarak met with the president of the Sudan — who called for a summit conference of moderate Arab countries, including Egypt, to discuss the Iran-Iraq War.

Begin made his remarks on a possible three-way summit at a special Cabinet session called to hear Defense Minister Ariel Sharon's report on his visit to Washington, including Sharon's controversial disclosure that Israel supplied arms to Iran.

Court raps lax air bags ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal appeals court Tuesday scornfully condemned the Reagan administration's decision to kill a rule that would have required air bags or automatic seat belts in all cars by the 1984 model year.

The court set aside last October's controversial order by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration that freed the auto industry from the safety regulations, and gave the agency 30 days to justify its stand or make plans to revise it.

"It is difficult to avoid the conclusion that (the reason for the decision) has been distorted by solicitude for the economically depressed automobile industry — which is not the agency's mandate — at the expense of consideration of traffic safety; which is," wrote Judge Abner Mikva for the court.

In a suit brought by insurance companies and consumer groups, the three-judge panel of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington called the agency's action "long on words and short on reasoned decision-making."

UP&L streamlines request

POCATELLO (UPI) — Streamlining months of hearings on a proposed 25 percent rate increase request, Utah Power & Light Co. and Idaho Public Utilities Commission staff agreed Tuesday to drop the issue of a higer rate of return for stockholders in the utility.

Dana Howard, IPUC public information officer, said the informal, tentative agreement drops the proposed rate increase from $23.8 million to $15.7 million or 17 percent for Utah Power's 40,000 southern Gem State customers.

The agreement will mean hearings at the Idaho State University student union building in Pocatello will probably end today instead of Friday, she added.

The utility had sought to increase the stockholder rate of return from 15.75 percent to 19.1 percent.

Judge apparently kills self

GROSSE POINTE WOODS, Mich. (UPI) — A suburban Detroit judge apparently fatally shot himself in his closed court room on Memorial Day, police said Tuesday.

The body of Municipal Judge J. Patrick Denis was found behind his courtroom bench late Monday, police revealed. An officer searching the building after inquiries were made by the missing judge's wife found Denis, 50, in the closed municipal building.

Police said the judge had been shot once in the head. A note and a .38-caliber revolver were found near the body, officers said.

"There's absolutely nothing that points to anything other than suicide," said Lt. Peter Thomas.

Search ruling won't affect Idaho

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idahoans will feel little impact from Tuesday's U.S. Supreme Court decision that affects automobile searches by police officers.

At least that's the opinion of several state and area officials.

"The Idaho Supreme Court six months ago extended officers' rights to search vehicles," said Harry DeHann, the Twin Falls County prosecutor.

"We have not lost a case this past year because of search problems in these type of cases," he said.

Primarily, the federal decision addresses auto searches where officers have reason to believe drugs are being transported. It will allow officers to inspect anything within a vehicle, including locked suitcases and closed bags.

"Because of the mobility of a car, the courts have realized that police need some latitude in handling the situation while they're at the scene," DeHaan said.

John Rooney, the Idaho Law Enforcement Department director, agrees, saying that state police officers "rely on judges for what we can and can not do."

"The searches have not been a problem for us," Rooney said. "The officers are well-briefed on search policies and know what they can and cannot do."

Rooney said that occasional problems with drug cases have occurred with local law-enforcement agencies because of officers not following legal procedure. But he said statewide, cases of such complications impeding prosecution are rare.

Consequently, few complaints or calls for action have come before the state Legislature, said Rep. Tom Stivers, R-Twin Falls, the chairman of the House Judiciary Rules and Administration Committee.

"There has not been any organized movement by prosecutors or police to allow more latitude in searches," Stivers said of the Legislature. "Apparently, it's not viewed as a major problem."

One of the reasons, according to Stivers, is that Idaho courts have successfully distinguished between searches of homes and searches of vehicles.

"There is the distinction that because of its mobility, a car does not amount to the same as a household," Stivers said. "Automobiles are used for transporting goods."

close relationship between some of the nation's most powerful banks and insurance companies.

The search case involved Albert Ross Jr., whose car was searched by District of Columbia police in November 1978. Without obtaining a warrant, an officer opened a paper bag found in the trunk and discover it contained envelopes of heroin.

Ross was found guilty of drug charges, but the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington threw out the conviction. It held Ross' privacy rights required police to get a warrant to open the bag.

In reversing the appeals court, the high court Tuesday also overturned a plurality decision delivered last July that declared it was unconstitutional for police to open even loosely wrapped packages found in trunk compartments.

In addition to Justice O'Connor's position, the clear-cut majority was due to the votes of Justices Lewis Powell and Harry Blackmun, who expressed some reservations but signed the court's decision so police will have clearer search guidelines.

Search-and-seizure law, especially concerning vehicles, has been one of the most confusing issues plaguing the courts. It has rested mostly on fragmented and confusing court decisions.

The court also ruled 9-0 that a discharged military exchange employee may not sue the federal government for money damages.

her placement. The hearing was held before magistrate Judge Charles Brumbach.

Garrett did say that, "at this point, I am extremely pleased. I feel that the case has been resolved in the best possible manner."

While DHW had no chance to look into the mother's circumstances, the department believes Charlotte will be well taken care of "because we had no reason to suspect she was neglected previously," said Anne McNevin, the social-services program supervisor in Twin Falls.

Only sketchy details were available Tuesday about the child's background.

Qualls said her blonde mother appeared to be in her 20s and received the child with great emotion. Both parents apparently were born in Germany, he said.

The whereabouts of the father remains unknown. The identity of the friends who informed Mrs. Fenton about the child also are unknown.

Officials at the Carson City Sheriff's Department said Mrs. Fenton filed a child-stealing complaint against her husband in April. But because they were not officially divorced — a divorce was pending — the case was considered a civil matter. Therefore, her husband could not be charged with a criminal complaint.

Carson City sheriff's Deputy Larry Byrd said that Mr. Fenton and two or three of his friends had taken the child from his wife's home during a family disturbance. His wife tried to resolve the case privately, but becoming concerned about the child, she contacted the Sheriff's Department.

A temporary custody order, giving the child to Mrs. Fenton, was issued. A restraining order and a summons of complaint against Mr. Fenton also were issued. However, sheriff's deputies were unable to locate Mr. Fenton to deliver the summons, and it was withdrawn.

Carson City officials speculated that Fenton's friends or Fenton grew fearful or guilty about taking the child and decided to leave her in the Twin Falls church.

After a few weeks in one foster home, the child was placed in another home last week, following a closed hearing in magistrate court, according to DHW officials. Her new family relinquished her to her parents Tuesday afternoon.

The first foster mother who cared for Charlotte for several weeks, said Tuesday that "what was best for her (the baby) definitely happened."

"I can really identify with how happy her mother must be to see her again," she said.

Idaho vets will appear on monument

BOISE — The failure of weekend fund-raising efforts by the Idaho Vietnam Veterans Association will not jeopardize plans to include the names of 237 Idahoans on a national monument, an organizer said Monday.

Bob Secrist, a counselor for the Veterans Administration and a member of IVVA, said the organization has raised about $3,000 toward its $5,000 goal to help build the monument on the mall in Washington, D.C.

Additional donations have been received, he said, since news accounts Sunday reported that a dance barely recovered the group's expenses.

The goal was established, Secrist said, because it will cost an estimated $20 per name to inscribe the names of servicemen killed in the fighting, making the cost about $5,000 for the 237 Idaho names.

The state's names will not be omitted even if the goal is not reached, he said, since the fund-raising effort is nationwide.

Persons interested in donating toward the memorial can send their contributions to: Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund — Idaho, c/o Idaho First National Bank, West State Street Office, Box 7388, Boise, 83707.

Fights bankruptcy laws

Missouri farmer released

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Missouri farmer Wayne Cryts was freed Tuesday from the jail that had housed him since April 28.

But the federal bankruptcy judge who had cited him for contempt indicated Cryts could be back behind bars soon.

Bankruptcy Judge Charles W. Baker closed the record on hearings on whether the 35-year-old Puxico, Mo., farmer, his wife, father and two other farmers should be found in contempt of court for refusing to testify about taking 33,000 bushels of soybeans that were tied up in bankruptcy proceedings.

"The only purpose for his confinement is to try to coerce him to testify in these proceedings," Baker said after a hearing Tuesday. "Since the record is now closed, it is my understanding that we must release him."

In February 1981, Cryts and other farmers removed the beans Cryts had stored in an elevator in Ristine, Mo., that was owned by the bankrupt James Bros. of Corning, Ark. Cryts moved the beans to an elevator in Bernie, Mo., where Baker ordered them impounded while the bankruptcy case was being resolved, but Cryts defied the judge and again moved them last summer.

Baker ordered him jailed when he refused to tell what he did with the grain or who helped him move it.

"I just feel real good," Cryts said in a telephone interview from the Pope County Detention Center in Russellville, Ark., where he said jailers were planning to take him out to lunch to celebrate his release. "They had to put weights in my pockets to keep me on the ground."

Baker must now issue an order in the contempt case. That order could simply note that Cryts and the others were in contempt or could order them to pay a fine equal to the market value of the purloined grain, plus the added expenses caused by the contempt proceedings.

Lawyers for Robert P. Lindsey of Little Rock, the trustee of the James Bros., estimated Tuesday that would total about $226,000.

Kirkpatrick ignores feud

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick, publicly ignoring her feuds over Falklands policy with Secretary of State Alexander Haig, spoke of feminism instead Tuesday at a meeting of Washington's "100 most powerful women."

However, her remarks about "heat in the kitchen," may have reflected the simmering policy conflict.

"I think, looking around this room today, the future is now," Mrs. Kirkpatrick told the group of women featured in an article in the June "Washingtonian" magazine. "We really don't know what that future is yet."

She said she has been a feminist "since first grade in Duncan, Oklahoma," and knew what the word really meant by the time she was 18.

The ambassador said women are still wrestling with the question of whether it is possible to find happiness "at the top of the pyramid," and added, "I truly believe the answer is out on that question."

Mrs. Kirkpatrick then offered her personal variation of President Truman's favorite dictum, "If you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen."

"My version is, 'If you can't stand the heat, go back to the kitchen,' " she said. "And I can just say I've always been happy there."

Mrs. Kirkpatrick called on President Reagan for 40 minutes Monday, apparently to discuss her lively dispute with Haig over U.S. policy in the armed conflict between Britain and Argentine for control of the Falkland Islands.

The president's deputy press secretary, Larry Speakes, said Tuesday the ambassador visited the White House "at her request for a meeting that was set up several days ago to discuss continuing U.N. business, including the Falklands."

He said he did not know whether the reported Kirkpatrick-Haig clash was discussed and added, "As far as I know, there has been no discussion about her leaving the job."

After Haig's efforts the mediate the Falklands dispute, Haig announced the U.S. was supporting Britain. Mrs. Kirkpatrick had been urging a more neutral stand to preserve ties with Latin America, and has kept up a dialogue with Argentinian officials at the United Nations, much to Haig's dismay, according to reports.

The New York Times said Monday that Mrs. Kirkpatrick confirmed she had a "lively exchange" with Haig over the Falklands. "Basically there is less than perfect agreement," she said.

Newsweek magazine, in its current issue, said the two Cabinet officials are "at it again," with Haig accusing Mrs. Kirkpatrick of interfering with his stewardship of foreign policy.

Hinckley judge allows CAT scans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The judge in the trial of John W. Hinckley Jr. abruptly reversed himself Tuesday and allowed defense lawyers to present sophisticated X-rays of Hinckley's brain.

U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker said he decided to permit the testimony because "exclusion of this evidence deprives the jury of a complete picture of the defendant's mental condition."

Parker's ruling, introducing a unique element into the 25-day-old trial, came after defense lawyers pressed him to reconsider his decision of last week to bar the evidence.

Hinckley's lawyers argued in court papers that the X-rays, called CAT scans, are "absolutely crucial on the issue of whether on March 30, 1981, John Hinckley Jr. was suffering from a mental disease or defect" when he shot President Reagan and three others.

Hinckley has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity.

The jury must acquit him if it finds that if, as a result of a mental disease or defect, he could not tell right from wrong or conform his conduct to the law at the time of the shooting.

A CAT scan taken in April showed abnormal wrinkles on Hinckley's brain similar to those found in many persons suffering from schizophrenia — a disease in which a person suffers delusions, lacks emotional expression and fails victim to his impulses.

Four defense psychiatric witnesses testified that Hinckley had varying forms of schizophrenia or related personality disorders.

In allowing Hinckley's lawyers to reopen their defense to add testimony from CAT scan experts, Parker stressed that he will instruct the jury as to how much "weight" to give the evidence.

Saying the trial must move along "expeditiously," he ordered defense lawyers to produce the experts to testify by day's end, and recessed court until late afternoon.

Hinckley's attorneys scurried to arrange for Dr. Marjorie LeMay, a radiologist at the Harvard Medical School in Boston, to fly to Washington, and for testimony from Dr. Daniel Weinberger of the National Institutes of Mental Health, the world's top CAT scan expert.

CAT scan is short for Computer Assisted Tomography, a advanced X-ray technique for photographing a cross-section of the brain.

Supreme Court cuts Kleindienst

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, following up a state court action, Tuesday suspended former Attorney General Richard Kleindienst from practicing law before the nation's highest court.

In a brief order, the justices voted 7-0 to suspend Kleindienst. They also told him to show cause within 40 days "why he should not be disbarred from the practice of law in this court."

The Arizona Supreme Court last month suspended Kleindienst — who has had two serious brushes with the law — from practicing law in the state for one year.

Arabs urge Iran to halt offensive

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Iraq's nervous Arab allies Tuesday urged Iran to accept an apparent offer of reparations in exchange for halting its successful offensive at Iraq's border and ending the 20-month-old Gulf war.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, at the lowest point of his three years in power, huddled with his top political and military advisers in the capital of Baghdad, 100 miles from fighting on the western front.

Iran's religious leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, who has vowed to overthrow Hussein, told parliament the Iraqi leader "is taking his last breaths . . . spending the last days of his life."

Kuwait and Jordan, once Iraq's loudest ally but quieter since Iran's recent battlefield victories, have both sent top-level emissaries to Baghdad with secret messages.

Hussein was expected to receive a briefing from Kuwait's envoy to the 2-day meeting of the foreign ministers of the Gulf Cooperation Council that ended Monday in Riyadh.

Ballot snafu must not happen again

Ronald Bruce is being quite a gentleman in accepting the results from Twin Falls County in last week's election for Fifth District Court judge.

Judge Bruce, the incumbent, said Tuesday that he will not contest the results, despite the fact that in Twin Falls County the names of the three candidates for the non-partisan judicial post were not rotated on the ballot, as required by state law.

In our opinion, Bruce would have had valid grounds to lodge a challenge to the results. Consider:

• In the eight-county Magic Valley area that comprises the Fifth Judicial District, Bruce won a majority of the votes in six counties. And in Cassia County, he came within 13 votes of winning a plurality of the ballots cast. But in Twin Falls County, Bruce received only 33 percent of the vote.

• His one opponent, magistrate Judge Nathan Higer, carried only one county, Twin Falls, where he received 42 percent of the vote. His level of support in the other counties ranged from a low of 7 percent in Minidoka County to 27 percent in Lincoln County. In his home county, Cassia, just 18 percent of the voters cast ballots in support of him.

• In Twin Falls County, Higer's name appeared on the same line as the Republican slate of primary candidates on all ballots, although it was on a separate section of the ballot. Bruce's name, as well as the name of his other opponent, Donald Chisholm, appeared on the line above, a line reserved for American Party candidates, although there were none in Twin Falls County.

• While the ballot positions of Bruce and Chisholm were rotated laterally, they remained on the same line. Higer's name was not rotated at all. In the other seven counties, all three names were rotated.

In addition to these facts, it should be obvious that if a non-partisan candidate appears on the same line as Republican candidates in Twin Falls County, he would have a distinct advantage for two reasons.

First, Twin Falls County is heavily Republican. Although there were no contested races at the county level, there were several heated ones at the state and legislative levels. For voters who were not familiar with the candidates, it would have been easy to assume that Higer was a Republican, despite the non-partisan disclaimer at the top.

Second, some voters probably were confused by the ballot positions. Since you can only vote for one party's candidates in the primary, could a voter, for instance, vote Republican and then vote for Chisholm or Bruce?

What would have happened if the candidates' names had been rotated properly is only conjecture; no one can prove what might have been. But to us, the available evidence seems to point to the conclusion that the mistake did affect the outcome of the race.

If Bruce would have received an additional 475 votes in Twin Falls County, that would have given him a majority of the votes cast throughout the district, and November's run-off election between himself and Chisholm would have been unnecessary.

We're not sure what motivated Bruce not to contest the election, but the important thing is to ensure that this kind of Election Day blunder does not happen again.

Watt's got all his bases covered

"Who's on first?"

"No, Watt's on first."

"Who is What?"

"Watt is the secretary of the interior. He wants to sell all the mineral rights on federal lands."

"What for?"

"I don't know."

"I thought 'I Don't Know' was on second."

"Watt's on second, too. He's touching all the bases."

"How can What be on first and second?"

"Because he is playing both ends against the middle."

"What for?"

"Because Watt doesn't believe you should support large tracts of wilderness which don't produce one nickel for the government."

"If Watt is on first and second, Who is on third?"

"Watt is on third."

"Why is he on third?"

"Because he thinks there is oil and gas under it. He's just leased it to you know who."

"I don't know who."

"It doesn't matter who, as long as they pay royalties to Watt."

"If Watt is on first, second and third, who is at shortstop?"

"No one is at shortstop because it's being strip-mined for coal."

"Can What do that?"

"I don't know."

"If What is playing all the bases, then Who is on the mound?"

"Who is not on the mound. Watt won't let anybody on the mound because he's the only one who can pitch to the mining interests."

"Let me get this straight. What is on first. What is on second and What is on third, and What is also pitching to the coal companies. Then Who is catching?"

"You're wrong again. Watt is catching."

"What is he catching?"

"Hell from the environmentalists, the Sierra Club, the National Audubon Society and the National Wildlife Federation."

"What for?"

"Because he won't play ball with them."

"Who is in the outfield?"

"No, Watt is in the outfield. He's trying to sell it to private developers for resort condominiums."

"How can you have a game if you sell the outfield?"

"Who knows?"

"Isn't there an umpire to call What out when he's off-base?"

"Watt says he's the umpire, and he calls them as he sees them."

"Why doesn't someone kick dirt in his face?"

"Because the president keeps cheering him on from the side."

"What president?"

"Watt's president."

"I thought Reagan was president."

"He is. Reagan is Watt's president."

"You mean What doesn't have to follow the book as long as Reagan eggs him on?"

"Watt makes up his own rules as he goes along."

"He sounds like a foul ball."

"He's a hit with the people who hate conservationists."

"What's going to happen to all of us if he wins?"

"Exactly."

Utopia's on TV each night at 6

BOSTON — The evening news is on. I watch as the television reporters begin to slog through the swamp of the day's insoluble problems.

In the Falklands, the death toll of ships and planes and people is calculated. On diagonal ends of the Atlantic, ministers and military planners are quoted. None of them can figure out how to end this thing.

The scene on the television screen shifts, and I am greeted with another problem. Here is a woman who went just long a cup of coffee. But, alas, caffeine doesn't agree with her. What a dilemma! And yet in less than 30 seconds we have an answer: Fill it to the rim with Brim!

The scene shifts next to Washington. A man with a chart, is talking about raising the ceiling on the national debt. A figure turns up on my screen: $1.275 trillion. My eyes begin to glaze, as senators and economists try to figure out what can't be done about it.

Then, suddenly, I am alert again. On the television set a strange man is sprinkling white stuff across the surface of the food that passes on the conveyor belt toward his stomach. The man is, I am told in dire tones, a salt*aholic*. But even this dread addiction can be overcome. In half a minute, he will be saved by: New No-Salt!

I sit through a half-hour of these mixed messages. At the end, it finally occurs to me that I have begun to actually like the commercials that punctuate the evening news. What tidy little problems, what lovely little dilemmas! For years I mocked them.

Now, I find myself soothed by them. Actual live answers in a world of questions.

The next night, I watch reports from the mire of John Hinckley Jr.'s madness and motives. There are baffling issues about psychiatry, about the law.

But only moments later, I am asked to think long and hard about "the oldest question in the world: What'll I have for dinner?" For this, praise the powers, there is a solution. You can "set yourself free with Stouffers!"

I see a gruesome tale about cigarettes that start fires and manufacturers who refuse to make them a safer way. But then comes the message from our socially responsible sponsor: The washable paint on the wall saves our freckle-faced, jam-fingered boy from mommy's wrath. Hosanna!

I am not alone, I swear, in my new delight with television commercials. About a month ago, a Yale Ph.D. candidate named Mark Edmundson published his thoughts on why people remember commercials. He described them as powerful myths: "They tell us things we like to hear: That the world makes sense; that quandaries have resolutions."

What better place for what he described as our "version of utopia" than in the murky middle of the real world? On the evening news, few things make real sense, fewer quandaries are resolved.

I worry, however, that I have come to prefer the commercials to the news. Edmundson warned that, of course, "commercials don't address the major questions the way myths did . . ." But I have even begun to fantasize about a world in which foreign and domestic policy is enacted on Madison Avenue.

How lovely if relations in the Middle East could all be made "better with Burlington." What bliss if Reagan could have his budget, his tax cut and his lower-national debt by merely adding a little Metamucil to his diet. What joy if Maggie Thatcher and Leopoldo Galtieri could get through all the gunk and break open negotiations with a bit of Drano.

Every problem would be solved in 30 minutes. Guaranteed happy endings.

I know, I know, I'm asking too much. In a nation beset with anxiety about unemployment, I should be grateful to know that Martha Ray doesn't have stains on her dentures. In a world worrying about nuclear holocaust, I should rejoice that we can at least protect our pooches with a collar that reflects in the headlights of a car, while it protects them from ticks and fleas.

But what I want is "worldwide acceptance," and they told me I could have it. Just last night I heard it on the news. Right before the report on disarmament, they said: "You can have it the way you want it with VISA."

Honest.

Napoleon may have been our first modern 'superstar'

WASHINGTON — Was Napoleon poisoned? I certainly hope so.

Two authors of a heartening new book, "The Murder of Napoleon," say arsenic, not cancer killed that dreadful Corsican. Not soon enough: By then, he was in exile, fat as a pastry, long past careening around Europe, making history and orphans. But today it is instructive to recall this vulgarian who prefigured the worst of modern politics.

He was the first modern tyrant, an absolutist without hereditary pretenses, an upstart compensating with brutality and cynicism for his lack of legitimacy, grounding his power in manipulation of the masses. He was, to borrow a Disraeli phrase, a self-made man who worshiped his creator. But he would refer to Louis XVI as "my uncle."

Like Hitler, who was not German, and Stalin, who was not Russian, Napoleon, who was not French, was a complete outsider, outside all restraints grounded in principles or affections. He had a megalomaniac's estimate of the importance of his undertakings. When planning to invade England he said: "Eight hours of night in favorable weather would decide the fate of the universe."

He had what we now recognize as the totalitarian's thirst for revising as well as making history. One of the most famous of his melodramatic orders-of-the-day ("Soldiers, you are naked, ill-fed . . .") was written 20 years later on Saint Helena. He combined a philistine's sense of culture and a martinet's reverence for the state: "People complain that we have no literature nowadays. That is the fault of the Minister for Home Affairs."

Believing that "the people must have a religion and that religion must be in the hands of the government," he pioneered a modern industry — the manufacture of ersatz religions for political purposes. His birthday — Aug. 15, a black-crepe day in sensible households — became the Feast of St. Napoleon. But he felt he had been born too late, that Alexander the Great had had more fun:

". . . after he (Alexander) had conquered Asia and been proclaimed to the peoples as the son of Jupiter, the whole of the East believed it . . . If I declared myself, today, the son of the eternal Father . . . there is no fishwife who would not hiss at me."

Correlli Barnett, a biographer of Napoleon, is what a biographer should be, "a conscientious enemy." He says Napoleon was "perhaps the earliest example of that phenomenon of the emerging mass society, the superstar." His career aggravated the tendency of 19th-century romanticism to celebrate "great men," the "geniuses" who are "artists of history-making." Romantic painters loved mountainscapes and despoiled many by painting Napoleon into the foreground, struggling through the Alps, like Hannibal.

Napoleon believed that in order to have good soldiers, a nation must always be at war. He gave France good soldiers — and good roads. Like Hitler with the autobahns, Napoleon adored roads for moving armies. He wanted 14 highways radiating from Paris toward any conquest his heart might desire. But highways can carry traffic two ways, and in May and June of 1940, France's roads were enjoyed by troops from Germany — a nation that Napoleon helped make into a modern state by reforming its administration and inflaming its nationalism.

In the 18th century — "the age of reason" — better furnaces for iron-making resulted in better artillery, which conquered what until then had been the key to war — the fortress. Napoleon rose like a rocket, as an artillery officer who understood how to use artillery when reasoning with a restive populace.

A century later, another Frenchman enamored of artillery, Marshall Foch, said: "Artillery conquers the ground; infantry occupies it." At dawn of the first day of the third battle of Ypres, British and French artillery fired 107,000 tons of shells and metal. "Would have been bliss that dawn to be alive for Napoleon, who boasted that he cared "little for the lives of a million men." He used conscription — "the nation in arms" — to make war bigger: 539,000 fought at Leipzig in 1813.

Barnett calls Napoleon "Byron in field boots," the eternal fidget who turned Descartes' "I think, therefore I am" into "I order everybody about, therefore I am." He was the sociopath in politics, utterly without softening values, celebrating bureaucracy for others but willfulness for himself: "I am having three heads cut off here everyday and carried around Cairo . . ."

The only lasting good he did was inadvertent: He excited Beethoven to compose "Eroica." At least Beethoven dedicated it to Napoleon temporarily. Beethoven then had better, second thoughts and changed the dedication. Thus did one of Europe's wisest lives intersect with one of Europe's noblest.

No parole hearing for Bremer

TOWSON, Md. (UPI) — The Maryland Parole Commission Tuesday refused to grant a full parole hearing to Arthur Bremer, the man convicted of trying to assassinate former Alabama Governor George Wallace in 1972.

In an administrative review required by law, the seven-member commission said it saw "no reason" to hold a parole hearing for Bremer before the mandatory August 1985 date.

Bremer will have served 14 years, or one-quarter, of his 53-year sentence at that time.

Questionable payments cost

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress could save $180 million through 1990 by dropping a Social Security provision that allows illegal aliens and other questionable cases to collect benefits, the General Accounting Office said Tuesday.

The GAO report urged Congress to drop the "currently insured" provision, which applies to less than 0.5 percent of workers who die each year. The provision allows survivor benefits for their children and those caring for them.

It serves some workers "under circumstances apparently never envisioned by Congress," GAO said, listing as "questionable" cases illegal aliens, some self-employed people filing retroactively, government "double dippers" and others with only brief work histories.

Butter, cheese given away

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary John Block said Tuesday the government will distribute 50 million pounds of surplus butter and 120 million more pounds of cheese to states for free distribution to needy Americans.

If states order all the butter and cheese made available by the federal government, $395 million worth of surplus dairy products will have been distributed to low-income Americans since last December. Of that, $320 million covers the cost of cheese and the rest pays for butter.

In states that respond quickly to the federal offer, free butter could be given to some Americans as early as this month, an official said.

Reagan vetoes water bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan Tuesday vetoed legislation designed to settle a dispute over water rights between an Arizona Indian tribe and the city of Tucson.

The legislation, said Reagan, "is a multi-million dollar bailout of local public and commercial interests at the expense of federal taxpayers throughout the nation."

The bill would have called on the Treasury to pay the Papago Indians an initial $112 million and an annual remittance of $5 million stemming from a court case against the state, city and local commercial interests.

Medfly traps across nation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department said Tuesday that 35,000 traps will be placed throughout the nation to detect Mediterranean fruit flies before they get a chance to spread as they did last year in California.

Officials do not expect to find any flies in New York, Chicago or Denver — but traps will be put there just in case.

Soviets expect long talks

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet negotiators in the upcoming strategic arms limitations talks with the United States do not expect any results for several years, South Dakota Sen. Larry Pressler said Tuesday.

"Their feeling of skepticism about the whole process, looking on it almost as a humorous thing, joking about 'Well, you've probably got yourself a 10-year job there,' worried me a bit," Pressler said after meeting with the leader of the Moscow delegation to Geneva.

"They look upon it (START talks) as a kind of an exercise that they're going to go through," the Republican senator told a news conference at the home of U.S. Ambassador Arthur Hartman.

"I hope that is not the case."

Pressler met with Viktor Karpov, named Monday to lead the Soviet delegation at U.S.-Soviet talks that begin June 29.

"From some of the humorous comments shared between Karpov and his colleagues this morning, I got the feeling that they're going into it not thinking that anything's going to happen for several years," he said.

Pressler said he told his hosts that he believes President Reagan will want some results "by the end of his first term."

Pope lauds Christian unity

GLASGOW, Scotland (UPI) — Pope John Paul II Tuesday told 250,000 wildly cheering Scottish Catholics in the the religiously divided city of Glasgow to overcome differences with other Christians and go "hand in hand" toward eventual unity.

Hundreds of police confronted about 50 followers of the militant Protestant pastor Jack Glass who had tickets and tried to enter Glasgow's Bellahouston Park for the papal mass but they left without incident after being threatened with arrest.

As the pope, on the fifth day of a visit that ends Wednesday in Wales, drove into the park on his glass-topped vehicle, the crowd erupted in a throaty roar and waved a sea of papal and Scottish flags.

Chinese question Baker

PEKING (UPI) — China's top leader told Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker Tuesday the United States should change the law that permits sale of American weapons to Peking's bitter enemy, Taiwan.

Vice Chairman Deng Xiaoping, China's most powerful leader, questioned Baker closely about the Taiwan Relations Act, which provides for the sale of "defensive" American weapons to the Chinese Nationalist government in Taipei.

What's what

When a man runs a vacuum cleaner, he usually pushes it back and forth in straight sweeps. But a woman with a cleaner tends to steer it along erratic paths. Why they differ in this chore is not clear, but the market researchers say studies show they do.

Those sportsmen who don't much care for the smell of the fish they clean know they can deodorize by washing their hands with toothpaste.

WITH SEARCH WARRANT

Q. When police go into a house with a search warrant, do they have to leave the place the way they found it?

A. Not necessarily. However, if they mess it up too badly, the householder can file a civil suit for damages, providing said resident can prove the search unreasonable. Or so the jailhouse lawyers claim.

Q. I've heard the word "bolshevik" all my life without ever knowing what it means. . .?

A. "Member of the majority party." It's opposite, menshevik, means "member of the minority party."

BEST IN BASKETBALL

Client asks, "Who was the best basketball player of all time?" Come on, who's qualified to answer that one? Not me. Can only report the experts for the National Basketball Association's All-Time Team recently named those players: Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Elgin Baylor, Wilt Chamberlain, Bob Cousy, Julius Erving, John Havlicek, George Mikan, Bob Pettit, Oscar Robertson, Bill Russell and Jerry West with Red Auerbach for the coach.

Seven suicides are mentioned in the Bible. Yet neither the Old nor New Testament specifically forbids suicide as does the Koran which categorizes it as a graver crime than homicide.

Can you verify the claim that the male emperor penguin in an emergency can suckle its young?

Mandatory gun law takes effect

KENNESAW, Ga. (UPI) — The nation's first law requiring a gun in every home went into effect Tuesday but there were no arrests and little noticeable change in this Atlanta suburb because of it.

The American Civil Liberties Union immediately challenged the ordinance in federal court, saying it violated citizens' rights to free speech and privacy.

"I'd just as soon have a cobra or a rattlesnake in my home as a loaded pistol," said Richard Butler, a third generation Kennesaw resident, on whose behalf the ACLU suit was filed.

The law was passed by the city council March 15 in response to a Morton Grove, Ill., ordinance banning handguns. The town has been beseiged by the media since that time and Tuesday was no different.

"We've been answering news media questions most of the day," Mayor Darvin Purdy said. "I'm about ready to hit the woods."

He said although some people thought gunslingers would be strolling down Main Street, it was business as usual in the small town of 5,000 residents 25 miles north of Atlanta.

Implementation of the law had been delayed twice so citizens could complete a firearms safety couse, although Purdy said most residents already owned guns.

He readily admitted that enforcement would be difficult. He said the city has no intention of making door-to-door searches and he said the penalty for violation would only be $50 compared to the normal $200 fine for noncompliance with a city ordinance.

Lion hopeful isn't purring at rejection

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Attorney Elaine Waggoner isn't roaring at the Lions Club International, but she isn't purring at being denied membership either.

Ms. Waggoner, 32, recently was welcomed as a member in the Lincoln Havelock Lions Club. But the International's headquarters has said the Havelock club will lose its charter if she joins.

Havelock Lion Joe W. Wright, also an attorney, said the men's club will continue to welcome her at meetings, but she cannot vote or hold office unless the parent group changes its constitution to allow women full membership privileges.

Ms. Waggoner said part of her interest in joining the club stemmed from her father's involvement. He is on the Lions state Foundation Board.

But her interest goes beyond her father's involvement in the organization, which funds eye banks, eye clinics, seeing-eye dogs and other eye projects. Ms. Waggoner is legally blind and her vision isn't correctable with contact lens or eyeglasses, although she can read with a television reading aid.

Although Wright does not believe a lawsuit is the solution to the membership dispute, Ms. Waggoner said she has not ruled out the possibility although she has no litigation plans at present.

"I'm just looking into the options," said Ms. Waggoner, who is waiting to see if the men initiate a constitutional revision at the Lions summer convention.

Peru officials will unwrap mummy

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Officials said Tuesday they decided to unwrap a 1,000-year-old Peruvian mummy at the World's Fair because a 3,000-year-old mummy was too old to make the trip.

The Peru exhibit, which is to arrive by airplane on Friday, will act as a laboratory in which scientists unravel the mysteries of the mummy starting the last week of July — Peru's independence days.

"This mummy is kind of a window into the past," said William Bass, a University of Tennessee anthropologist who will help the research.

The mummy is one of about a dozen uncovered recently on the outskirts of Lima, the nation's capital.

Jose Boza, the Peru Pavilion manager, said officials had hoped to bring a mummy that dates back 3,000 years. "But we couldn't find one in good enough shape to leave the country," Boza said.

The mummy will be displayed along with $40 million in Peruvian gold and artifacts. Officials will place it in a display window so tourists may watch the unwrapping as they pass by.

Bass said the younger mummy should hold as many secrets as the 3,000-year-old mummy.

Bass said the unwrapping will take up to two months. He said scientists will analyze the mummy's teeth, hair and internal organs — if remaining in the body. They also will study insects on the body.

Amy Carter begins work as Senate page

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With a nod of her head, 14-year-old Amy Carter swore Tuesday, as her father did on the Capitol steps more than five years ago, to "defend the Constitution."

The strawberry blonde, freckle-faced teenager, still wearing braces on her teeth, began her $174-a-week summer job as a Senate page. She will run errands just like the 99 other congressional "go-fers," in blue pants and white shirts bought with their own money.

The only difference is that as the daughter of former President Jimmy Carter, she will be accompanied everywhere by the Secret Service. The law requires such protection for under-16 children of all former presidents.

Although she is the first child of a chief executive to work as a page, other sons and daughters of prominent government officials have held the coveted job, including the son of former Virginia Gov. Linwood Holton and the son of Zbigniew Brzezinski, Carter's national security adviser.

Falklands

Witness describes Goose Green assault

LONDON (UPI) — A British television reporter said Tuesday Argentine defenders suffered "terrible casualties" in last week's battle of Goose Green.

"As I walked forward with the paratroops, the horrendous extent of the Argentine casualties became apparent," said Jeremy Hands in a delayed report.

"I found bodies lying in the thick gorse, the wounded waiting in agony and shock, and frightened, beaten soldiers moving out to be taken prisoner."

Some defenders, said the Independent Television News reporter, were "barely 16-years-old."

Britain's Defense Ministry waited until Tuesday to confirm Hands' report, saying 250 Argentines had been killed, 120 wounded and 1,400 taken prisoner.

Hands said the battle of Goose Green Friday and Saturday was "a desperate fight against an enemy "well trained and surprisingly well supplied."

"At times the Argentines were firing aircraft rockets from a launcher lashed to a children's slide in the Goose Green settlement playground," he said. "They also used anti-aircraft guns against the troops on the ground.

"But the paratroops moved relentlessly forward, inflicting terrible casualties among the Argentines.

"In one incident a white flag was waved from a trench, but the occupants then opened fire on British troops who had moved in to accept their surrender. They were not given a second chance."

Hands said in a change of tactics, Argentine planes were no longer attacking British ships around the San Carlos beachhead but instead concentrating on British ground forces.

"The skill and courage of Argentine pilots has not let up," he said. "I saw two Skyhawks screaming directly toward us less than 100 feet from the ground.

"The men with me and I dived onto the ground as cannon shells ripped up the earth around us. Three large bombs exploded all within 100 yards, covering all of us in mud and stone.

"The attack did claim casualties. I was lucky to escape with a ringing in my ears for several hours."

Picture released recently shows HMS Sheffield after being hit by Execot missile May 4. The ship sank while under tow.

Doubts growing in Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — What had been bursting national pride turned to doubt Tuesday as Argentines questioned the outcome of their battle for the Falkland Islands.

"If Gen. (Mario) Menendez holds out, we should be able to stick it out," said Cesar Bergara, an unshaven, middle-aged Buenos Aires resident who stopped to look at news bulletins in the window of a newspaper office.

Menendez, the Argentine military governor of the Falklands, commands at least 5,000 Argentine troops reportedly ready to battle encroaching British troops at Stanley, the capital.

Bergara argued that the British soldiers, with precarious supply lines, probably have begun to suffer the effects of the region's biting cold.

Military sources said the first major snow of the southern hemisphere's winter fell on the islands Monday and overnight temperatures were below freezing.

For the first time since fighting on the Falklands began May 21, Argentine newspapers Tuesday gave prominent play to reports of British military progress on the islands.

"The decisive battle has begun," said the Diario Popular newspaper.

Also for the the first time, politicians publicly mentioned the possibility of defeat.

"In the unfortunate case of a military triumph by the imperialist and colonialist (British) forces . . . we will have to carefully prepare the reconquest," party leader Oscar Alende said.

Some Argentines suggest new government

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Air Force Commander Basilio Lami Dozo has dropped Argentina's biggest bomb of the Falkland Islands war — only this one was political, not military.

Lami Dozo, one of three members of the ruling military junta, said publicly what nearly every Argentine is thinking — it is time to start thinking about a new government.

He told reporters flying with him from Comodoro Rivadavia to Buenos Aires Monday night that it is possible a "national emergency" government may soon inhabit the Casa Rosada.

A new government, Lami Dozo said, should stand for greater independence from the large powers (meaning the United States), greater civilian participation, more protection for Argentine industry and an easing of the state of siege.

It is rare for members of the military junta to make political statements, and even rarer for them to talk openly about forming future governments.

Yet Lami Dozo's statement was immediately echoed in the officers corps, which has ruled Argentina since a military coup deposed President Isabel Peron in 1976.

"It is unfortunate that many felt that Lami Dozo's statement was a personal act," a military source said. "In fact, what he said represents the thinking in all three services (army, air force, navy).

"The purpose is to establish a democratic government in Argentina."

What nobody will say openly, but what many imply, is that the architect of the Falkland Islands takeover, President Leopoldo Galtieri, will go.

Wall Street skids to mid-March levels

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks fell to their lowest level since mid-March Tuesday.

Investors, finding holiday relaxation more comfortable than the market uncertainties, stayed on the sidelines.

The Dow Jones industrial average, up a point at the outset after skidding 5.42 Friday, sagged 4.57 points to 816.97, the lowest level since it finished at 805.65 on March 19.

The closely watched DJIA, a 16.96-point loser last week, has dropped 54.23 points over the past 16 sessions and many analysts believe the slide will continue to take it under 800 soon.

The New York Stock Exchange index shed 0.18 to 64.37 and the price of an average share decreased seven cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index dropped 0.20 to 111.68. Declines clobbered advances 949-479 among the 1,843 issues traded.

Big Board volume dwindled to 41,650,000 shares from 43,900,000 traded Friday. The market was closed Monday for the Memorial Day observance.

The slow trading demonstrated investors were disappointed interest rates have not fallen much from near-record highs and were uncertain when the recession would end, observers said.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 47,886,770 shares compared with 51,532,450 traded Friday.

The American Stock Exchange index plunged 6.21 to 265.02 and the price of a share skidded 25 cents. Declines topped advances 327-193 among the 751 issues traded. Composite volume totaled 4,098,000 shares compared with 4,613,215 traded Friday.

The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ index of OTC stocks lost 1.18 to 177.38.

On the trading floor, Mesa Petroleum was the most active NYSE-listed issue, up 2⅛ to 19½ after a block of 122,000 shares at 19½. Cities Service was second, up 1¼ to 38¼ after an opening block of 300,000 shares at 39.

Mesa has offered $50 a share for Cities Service stock while Cities has offered $639 million to acquire Mesa Pete. Mesa reportedly wants to liquidate Cities Service's holdings.

Tesoro Petroleum, which last week said it might liquidate part of the company, lost 2⅛ to 17½.

G. Heileman Brewing finished unchanged at 25, while in OTC trading, Pabst Brewing lost 2 to 18⅞ bid and Olympia Brewing rose 4¾ to 22¾ bid. Pabst bid $28 a share for 49 percent of Olympia. Heileman has bid for Pabst.

American Telephone & Telegraph, the most widely held U.S. stock, was third on the active list, off ⅛ to 52¼ following a block of 208,000 shares at 52½.

Warner Communications was the fourth most active issue, off 1¾ to 45½ and Mattel shed ⅞ to 15¾. The stocks have been under fire lately since some analysts said they thought the video game market was saturated.

On the Amex, Dome Petroleum was the most active issue, off ⅛ to 5⅛. International Banknote followed, off ⅛ to 5. Great Basins Petroleum was third, off ⅛ to 2⅞.

Miners laid off

WALLACE (UPI) — Five workers at the Star Mine, jointly owned by Hecla Mining Co. and the Bunker Hill Co., were laid off Tuesday, and four-day work weeks were ordered for 49 surface support employees, officials for the firm said.

Dave Wolfe, a spokesman for Hecla, which operates the mine, said the newest layoffs and reduction in the work week are due to continued financial losses. Hecla is attempting to bring the mine back on a break-even basis, he said.

Hecla has announced that it will close the mine if it becomes apparent it can't operate without losses. When that announcement was made in mid-April, officials said a shutdown was possible in "two months to two years."

Business Beat

Wickes recalls 40 workers

GRANGEVILLE (UPI) — Wickes Forest Industries Inc. recalled 40 workers at its Grangeville mill Tuesday in a move designed to keep log inventories from rotting on the ground.

General Manager David Edgerton said the mill, closed in January, won't make any money by reopening — but it will lose less than by remaining closed.

Edgerton said the mill stockpiled logs last fall to maintain operations through the winter when forests were inaccessible. But when the mill was closed, the logs were left stacked on the ground. They will deteriorate if left through the summer months, he said.

Tough pull for new system

ROANOKE, Va. (UPI) — The chairman and chief executive officer of the Norfolk Southern Railway, Robert B. Claytor, said Tuesday the newly-merged system will be hard-pressed to duplicate last year's profits in the face of this year's recession.

The merger of the Norfolk & Western and Southern Railroads, effective Tuesday, created the third largest rail system in the nation, with 18,000 miles of track in 21 states. Together, the two railroads earned $503 million last year, enough to make Norfolk Southern the most profitable railroad in the country if this year's net income equals that mark.

A weakening market for coal and a national economy in the grips of a recession will make that goal tough to reach, Claytor said.

Kaiser picks Hutchcraft

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — A.S. Hutchcraft, Jr., Tuesday was named president and chief operating officer for Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp.

Hutchcraft, formerly vice president and general manager of the company's aluminum division, succeeds Cornell C. Maier, who will remain in his post as chairman of the board.

The company said the election of Hutchcraft was part of a management reorganization designed to de-emphasize aluminum ingot production and increase emphasis on other diversified activities.

Rail bond tender delayed

CHICAGO (UPI) — A proposed tender offer to holders of certain Milwaukee Road bonds will be postponed indefinitely, attorneys for trustee Richard B. Ogilvie told the reorganization court Tuesday.

Ogilvie in April filed an application with the court for authority to proceed with tender offers for general mortgage and certain "Terre Haute" bonds.

Equitable, Franklin set acquisition terms

PORTLAND — Agreement in principle has been reached for the acquisition of Equitable Savings and Loan Association by Benj. Franklin Savings and Loan Association.

Both associations have headquarters in Portland.

The agreement was announced jointly on May 27 by officials of both associations.

Completion of the transaction will require approval of stockholders and of state and federal regulatory agencies. Depositing and borrowing customers of the institutions will not be affected, the announcement said.

Under terms of the agreement, Equitable stockholders will receive interest bearing savings and certificate accounts with varying maturities and yields. The initial principal amount would be $5 per share of Equitable stock totalling approximately $10 million based on presently outstanding shares.

On completion of the transaction, Benj. Franklin will have assets of nearly $3 billion.

Benj. Franklin is a federally chartered mutual savings and loan with operations in Oregon. As of March 31, it operated 57 branch offices with $1.15 billion in assets including $915 million in mortgage loans and $938 million in savings accounts.

Equitable is a stockholder-owned Oregon-chartered institution. As of March 31, it had 51 branch offices in four states — including Twin Falls — with $1.5 billion in assets including $1.06 billion in mortgage loans and $1.05 billion in savings accounts.

Equitable also announced May 27 the sale of its headquarters building in Portland to Hoffman Construction Co. and the Columbia Management Co. of Portland for $9.5 million. Equitable will retain its offices there the rest of this year.

Grain futures

CHICAGO (UPI) — Wheat, oats and soybeans were substantially lower and corn lower at the close Tuesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat was off 3¼ to 4½ cents; corn off 2½ to 4¼; oats off 5¼ to 6; and soybeans off 11 to 13½ cents.

Soybean futures prices settled sharply lower on the day. Sell-stops were touched off below $6.33 in July soybeans. The other markets followed with lower prices.

The negative tone was due to lower gold and financial instrument prices, lending ideas of higher interest rates to come. The dollar continued mostly firmer and technical selling followed through the day. Open interest showed declines.

Export inspection figures for the week ending May 27 were released after the close. The corn figure was as expected — 51.7 million bushels. Expectations of large exports tempered selling in the corn pit.

Corn basis levels in the Gulf remained very firm in an attempt to induce farmer selling.

The wheat market had new contract lows in the first four months.

The outside markets were lower.

Details of pact not disclosed

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A settlement apparently will be announced today in the nearly three-year-old civil suit that stemmed from a fire and bean shortage at a now defunct Filer warehouse.

Negotiations went down to the wire, as the case was scheduled to begin trial Tuesday in Fifth District Court in Twin Falls. However, instead of starting the trial, lawyers met briefly to inform the court that a proposed settlement had been reached.

About 150 farmers claim to have lost $1.3 million to $1.6 million worth of beans that were stored in the Beans Inc. warehouse in Filer. After a July 1979 fire destroyed one of that company's warehouses, state auditors discovered a 700,000-pound discrepancy between the amount of beans that farmers had placed in the company's warehouses and the amount actually stored there.

The suit against Beans Inc.; its parent company, Commodity Marketing Corp.; that company's owner, Jim Woods, the former mayor of Salinas, Calif.; and the companies that bonded and insured the Filer warehouse was scheduled to go to trial Tuesday. But no prospective jurors were called because lawyers had previously told retired Judge James M. Cunningham — who has continued presiding over the case since it began before he left the bench — that they expected to have the case settled.

In a brief court meeting, Cunningham said, "I was advised that they have settled their differences, (and) that it would require a day, perhaps more, to put their agreement in black and white."

A meeting to present the settlement to the court for its approval was first set for 3 p.m. Tuesday, then rescheduled for 10 a.m. today.

"They have been negotiating for months," Cunningham said. "They came down pretty close to closing an agreement a week or 10 days ago."

"We're hopeful to have the final document by 10 in the morning," said Kent Taylor, a lawyer who represents one group of farmers in the case.

The "bottom line" of the proposed settlement, Taylor said, is that the farmers will receive "far in excess of 50 percent" of what they lost in the warehouse.

Details of the settlement were not released.

Back in February, 70 farmers who are members of the National Farmers Organization, the largest block of farmers suing Beans Inc., rejected a settlement offer reportedly worth $1.05 million.

Meanwhile, Beans Inc. owner Woods and his business associate, Martin Taylor of Madera, Calif., still face criminal charges in connection with the warehouse fire. In May, they pleaded innocent to arson charges that have been filed against them by the Salt Lake County Attorney's Office.

They are charged with burning the Filer warehouse in order to collect more than $800,000 in insurance payments and to cover up a shortage of beans. The criminal charges were filed in Utah because one of the companies insuring the Filer warehouse and the insurance adjuster who represented the insurance companies were based in Salt Lake City.

A criminal investigation into the fire by Harry DeHaan, the Twin Falls County prosecutor, was dropped when the February settlement offer was made. Although that offer was rejected two weeks after it was made, DeHaan did not resume his investigation.

A new angle

Now that the fishing season has been open a few days, some Magic Valley anglers are finding that the "really big one" is often found: a) where the fisherman is not supposed to be; or, b) where the fisherman cannot easily get. That must be the reason so many people find the sport alluring.

Kimberly teachers protest pay scale

By GLEN WARCHOL
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — Teacher protests of the 1982-83 pay schedule will be taken under advisement by the Kimberly School board and discussed at its regular June 9 meeting.

Unless the board changes its stance, teachers will get what was offered them Friday in their individual contracts.

The teachers, armed with a petition, attended a special school board meeting Tuesday night in hopes of convincing the board to plug the 1982-83 salary increases into the 1981-82 salary schedule. The old schedule provided 3 percent incremental raises for experience and educational training.

Teachers were issued contracts last Friday based on a salary schedule that provides for a 6 percent increase in starting pay. It also gives teachers on the first step of the schedule a fixed-dollar increase of $353, and $333 thereafter for each year of experience. Combining the salary increase with the increments for experience, some teachers will receive as much as a 9 percent raise from last year.

Teachers complained, however, that the fixed-dollar increment schedule offered by the board is unfair to more experienced teachers who have reached the end of the experience scale after 12 or 13 years. Those teachers will receive only about a 4 percent raise overall.

The board's priority was to offer a good beginning salary in order to compete with other regional districts in attracting new teachers, according to board Chairman J. Hamilton Smith.

Teachers at the meeting said that they realized the financial limitations of the district, but the board must decide whether it will reward experienced teachers adequately or have an attractive starting salary for hiring new teachers.

Teachers said they also are frustrated that the board is not sticking to the percentage increments in the salary schedule that were agreed to last year.

"It's a matter of principle," said Rich Thompson, a high school English teacher. "We had a salary schedule — let's stay with that salary schedule."

Smith told the teachers Tuesday that since the district has no formal negotiating process, and the board discussed the salary and benefits with the teachers in good faith, the only decision left was whether individual teachers would sign their contracts for next year.

"The board has made a good faith effort to do the best it could with the money available," Smith said. "The board has made its decision. Now the decision is an individual one."

A final decision, however, will be deferred until the next school board meeting, according to Superintendent George Powell.

Election fallout

Judge Bruce decides not to contest Twin Falls election returns

RUPERT — Ronald Bruce, the incumbent Fifth District Court judge, said Tuesday that he will not contest the primary election returns in Twin Falls County, despite charges that lack of ballot rotation may have favored one of the other two candidates.

In each of the ballots cast in Twin Falls County, Fifth District Magistrate Judge Nathan Higer's name appeared on the same line as the Republican Party's slate of candidates. The names of Bruce and Donald Chisholm appeared on the line above.

Some of Bruce's supporters said last week that Higer's name may have been associated with the GOP slate of candidates — even though judges are suppose to be elected on a non-partisan ballot — resulting in Higer winning in Twin Falls County, the only county in the eight-county Fifth Judicial District where he won a majority of the votes in six of the other counties and came within a few votes of winning a plurality in Cassia County.

However, Bruce will face Chisholm in a run-off election in November because he did not obtain an overall majority of the votes cast in the eight-county area. His winning percentage in the primary was 47.1 percent.

"I feel it would be too insulting to the voters of Twin Falls County to allege that they were confused by the placement of names on the ballot," Bruce said Tuesday. "I will not contest the election."

"I'm sure Mr. (Dick) Pence (the Twin Falls County clerk) will do his best to ensure adequate rotation of the lines and elimination of any possible confusion in the November general election."

Gooding recount maintains Thackery victory

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

GOODING — Robert Thackery of Wendell has been declared the winner in the Gooding County commission primary race, following a ballot recount Tuesday.

Thackery, a restaurant owner, defeated Everett Cox, a retired Wendell barber, by a narrow two-vote margin in last Tuesday's Republican primary, resulting in some of the vote tallies being questioned.

The final votes for the three GOP candidates for the commission were: Thackery, 795; Cox, 793; and Kurt Alerti, 257. No Democrats ran for the position.

"In each of the four precincts that were recounted, the ballot count came up the same as before," said commission Chairman Rick Brailsford, the commissioner whose term is expiring and who probably will be replaced by Thackery.

"The results are final, unless Mr. Cox wants to contest the voting in the seven precincts we did not recount," he said.

The recount was ordered, at county expense, because tally sheets did not match the final totals in four precincts — Orchard Valley, Wendell, Northeast Gooding and Tuttle.

The tally sheets involve simple slash marks, which are registered as individual ballots are read aloud. The number of slash marks actually favored Cox by seven additional votes, but the recount showed the preliminary tallies were in error.

Cox could not be reached for comment Tuesday on whether he will challenge the vote totals.

A head start for learning in Twin Falls

TWIN FALLS — When children start school, they are somewhat of a mystery to their first teachers.

It may take several weeks for a teacher to determine a child's readiness for learning and his or her level of ability.

But the Twin Falls School District's pre-kindergarten screening program, now in its fifth year, helps parents and teachers give first-time pupils a better start by determining beforehand their level of development.

In addition, the screening program can detect speech, hearing or other problems that could seriously affect a child's educational progress.

Parents of children who will attend kindergarten this fall can take their children to screening sessions that will be held next Monday, June 7, through Friday, June 11.

Educational specialists will test a child's speech, hearing, language, vision, perceptual-motor, emotional-social, intellectual and pre-educational skills.

Sessions will be held at each elementary school in Twin Falls, so that children can go through the screening at the school they will attend in the fall. Parents also will be able to register their children for kindergarten at the same time.

Screenings will be held at:

- Bickel Elementary School on Monday.
- Harrison Elementary on Tuesday and Wednesday.
- Morningside Elementary on Thursday.
- Sawtooth Elementary on Friday.

Children will be screened at different times, depending on the first letter of their last names. Letters "A" through "F" will be screened from 9 to 10:15 a.m., "G" through "M" from 10:15 to 11:30 a.m., "N" though "S" from 1 to 2:15 p.m. and "T" through "Z" from 2:15 to 3:30 p.m.

A follow-up session to explain the test results will be held Monday, June 14, at 9:30 a.m. in the Sawtooth Elementary auditorium. Parents also will be given suggestions on how to stimulate their child's development at that time.

For more information on the program, call 733-8456.

LARRY OLSEN
Time to join ranks together

Despite attacks, Olsen will offer support to Barker

TWIN FALLS — Despite his aggressive criticism of the voting of Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, Larry Olsen says he will now support the incumbent.

Olsen lost to Barker in last Tuesday's Republican primary for the District 24 Senate seat.

"It is time to lay down the politics and support Republican Sen. John Barker," Olsen said Tuesday.

Barker is expected to run unopposed in the November, since no Democrat filed for the position.

Olsen repeatedly attacked Barker for his votes on abortion, the Equal Rights Amendment and planning and zoning laws.

Motorcycle wreck victim listed in 'serious'

PAUL — A 19-year-old Paul man, Larry Arthur Moncher, remained in serious condition in a Boise hospital Tuesday, following a Memorial Day weekend motorcycle accident.

Paul police Chief Frank Segovia said Moncher had been under pursuit by one of his officers prior to the accident, but Segovia said he called off the chase — in the interest of safety — just before the cycle went out of control at a high rate of speed and crashed.

Segovia said Moncher went through town at a high rate of speed, and one of his officers attempted to stop him. Segovia went another route in an attempt to cut the motorcycle off, but when his officer radioed that the motorcycle was traveling about 95 mph and was a mile out of reach, the chief called off the chase.

It was Segovia who discovered the accident and called an ambulance. He said he was on his way back to town when he discovered the accident.

Moncher was treated at Minidoka Memorial Hospital and then transferred to St. Alphonsus Hospital in Boise.

The car struck the foundation and part of the siding on the east side of the house, according to officers.

Peterson and her two children, Brooke, 2, and Arranne, 3, who were passengers in the car, were treated and released at Minidoka Memorial Hospital.

The car was demolished, deputies said, and there was approximately $400 damage to the Hunsaker property.

Correction chief warns of prison congestion

BOISE (UPI) — Inmate populations at Idaho prison institutions topped the 1,000 mark for the first time Tuesday.

Corrections officials warned that continued congestion at the state penitentiary and other centers could lead to new outbreaks of violence this summer.

C.W. "Bill" Crowl, director of the Idaho Department of Corrections, said capacity and crowding also is serious at the Community Work Center in Boise.

"Overcrowding produces more congestion in prisons, which leads to more tension and more violence," Crowl told a news conference. "We also don't have enough jobs to provide people with meaningful work projects. This creates idleness, which tends to lead to more tension and violence.

"The potential for increased violence is clearly there," Crowl said. But he added any disturbances this summer are likely to be small, not on the scale of a 1980 riot at the state prison which resulted in millions of dollars in damage, the taking of two guards as hostages and injuries to some convicts.

"I don't anticipate any big blow-up this summer, but the potential is there for isolated outbreaks of violence," he said.

The department director also said a suit apparently is being prepared by Idaho inmates alleging that overcrowding at the main prison yard is subjecting them to cruel punishment in violation of the U.S. Constitution.

"If our populations continue to climb, we could be under court-supervised probation by the end of next year," he warned.

Crowl also said the situation with overcrowding is likely to intensify unless a new prison is built — especially one to house medium-and-minimum security male inmates. A new facility to house female prisoners is scheduled to be completed at Orofino in August of 1983.

He said it would cost between $25 million and $35 million to construct a new institution for men, adding corrections officials have not yet made any final decision on a location for a new prison.

"In the next five years, or sooner, Idaho is going to have to have another facility for male inmates," Crowl said. He added a new source of funding for construction would probably have to be found, since the Permanent Building Fund typically has only $6 million a year to spend on capital projects and receives about $50 million in requests.

Members of the Board of Corrections have not yet voted to recommend to the Legislature that a new facility be built, he said, but were expected to take up the issue at a meeting in Boise Thursday.

Teenage inmates charged with torture murder at jail

BOISE (UPI) — Five juveniles were charged with first-degree murder Tuesday in the torture slaying of a 17-year-old Nampa youth at the Ada County jail.

The victim was repeatedly hit, kicked, gouged and burned on his feet over a four-hour period in the recreation yard at the jail.

County Deputy Prosecutor Greg Bower said the youths, who will be tried as adults, were accused of the "sadistic" murder of fellow inmate Christopher Peterman, who was in the yard with the defendants when he was severely beaten and burned Monday afternoon, apparently following an argument.

Although investigators believe the assault lasted for at least four hours, Sheriff Chuck Palmer disputed reports that the youths weren't supervised. He said a guard looked in on the group an hour before the attack began, but admitted that "probably not enough supervision was going on."

Palmer said he was "looking into the situation" Tuesday in hopes of ensuring that such a situation didn't occur again.

Peterman was booked into jail Friday for failing to pay two traffic tickets. His mother, Janice Peterman, said the fines due on the tickets — one for speeding and one for driving without a license — totaled only about $60.

The other youths were awaiting transfer to the nearby Juvenile Detention Center, authorities said.

Ada County Deputy Prosecutor Greg Bower said the 17-year-old youths charged with first-degree murder were Sean Matthews, Andy Anderson, Joseph Krahn, Richard Engle and Randall McKeown. Hometowns and charges which put the youths in jail in the first place weren't available Tuesday, Bower said.

A magistrate ordered the five held without bond following a preliminary ruling Tuesday. Arraignment was set for 2:30 p.m. Wednesday before Magistrate George Carey.

The juveniles will be tried as adults under an Idaho law that automatically refers youths to adult court for murder and other violent crimes, Bower said.

The complaint against the five accused them of killing Peterman "willfully, unlawfully and intentionally through application of beating and torture and with the intent to cause suffering or to satisfy some sadistic inclination."

The death occurred by repeated "striking, kicking, gouging and attempting to burn his feet over a course of four and one-half hours," Bower said.

Paramedics rushed to the jail minutes after the assault was discovered and transported Peterman to a Boise hospital, where he died at 6 p.m. Monday.

Deputy Ada County Coroner Erwin Sonnenberg said an autopsy completed Tuesday showed the cause of death as bleeding between the brain lining and brain itself resulting from multiple blows to the head.

"There wasn't anybody looking right down on the kids at the time of the incident, however, they certainly were under supervision," Palmer said. "An officer had been in about an hour before the incident happened. But the kids had been fighting off and on and arguing back and forth throughout the night; that's true."

No motorists killed on holiday

BOISE (UPI) — Tough law enforcement work and watchful motorists were credited Tuesday with keeping Idaho's Memorial Day weekend traffic toll at zero.

The lack of traffic deaths also was called "a rare occurrence" — and Idaho Transportation Department records said the state hadn't had a holiday without highway deaths in at least three years.

"We were out in force and looking for violations, hazardous violations that could cause fatalities," said Douglas Kraemer, statistics officer for the Idaho State Police. "And, people were just extremely careful."

Kraemer said the severity of nonfatal accidents also declined from a year ago. During 1981 Memorial Day weekend, 18 accidents resulted in injuries to 28 people, he said, and 16 property damage accidents were reported.

During this weekend, 15 accidents left 24 injured, he said, although 21 property damage accidents were reported.

One fatality was reported in 1981.

Idaho prisoners escape

BOISE (UPI) — Authorities in Idaho, Oregon and Utah were alerted Tuesday to watch for two minimum-security prisoners who walked away from a Boise work-release center.

Jim Evans, supervisor of the Boise Community Work Center, said neither Helen Mae Blanchard, 24, nor Ernest Matthew McCurdy, 25, were considered dangerous.

They were reported missing early Memorial Day.

Court backs child abuse law

DENVER (UPI) — The Colorado Supreme Court Tuesday rejected arguments of a western Nebraska woman who claimed she should not be held responsible for the beating death of her 2-year-old daughter because it was her boyfriend who harmed the youngster.

"Child abuse can be committed either by causing or permitting a child to be placed in a dangerous situation or to be cruelly punished," the court said in rejecting the appeal of Cheryl Mann of Scottsbluff.

Mrs. Mann was convicted of child abuse and being an accessory in the death of her daughter, Gaynell, 2, following a Denver motel incident in August 1978.

Authorities said the child was beaten for nearly a two-week period prior to her death by her mother's boyfriend, Melvin Eugene Goodro. Goodro, who died while in custody, carried out the beatings because the child was not responding to efforts to toilet train her, authorities said.

Investigators said the couple, along with Gaynell and Mrs. Mann's 4-year-old son, Lawrence, had been traveling around the country since leaving Scottsbluff in late June 1978. The court said the woman improperly took her children from the custody of a foster home in Nebraska.

Police said the incident that led to the girl's death came after Goodro made the girl run for more than an hour between the bathroom and bedroom of the unit because she had wet the bed. Whenever the youngster slowed down, the man would push her, officers said. On one occasion, the girl fell in the bathroom, apparently hitting her head on the floor.

The girl, who was forced to continue to run, eventually collapsed and her heart stopped, but Goodro revived her with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Several hours later, after the girl suffered numerous seizures, the mother took the "nearly lifeless" child to the emergency entrance of St. Anthony's Hospital, the court said.

Mrs. Mann made up a story about the girl having fallen over a six-foot embankment in the mountains and fled the hospital after she was told the child probably would not live, authorities said.

Mrs. Mann then left the state with Goodro, but turned herself over to police in Pocatello, Idaho, when she decided to return to Denver to see her daughter. The child died Aug. 18 — 10 days after being taken to the hospital.

Mrs. Mann, who was sentenced to 11-to-12 years for child abuse and an indeterminate to five-year term for being an accessory, argued Colorado's child abuse law was unconstitutionally vague and claimed her punishment under the statute was more severe than if she had been prosecuted for criminally negligent homicide.

Strike shuts down Dakota gold mine

LEAD, S.D. (UPI) — About 1,300 members of the United Steel Workers Union went on strike Tuesday at Homestake Mining Co., shutting down North America's largest operating gold mine.

The strike was the first against Homestake since 1972.

Union representative Del Lord said the members of Local 7044 approved the strike vote Monday night by a 67 percent margin.

The strike vote came after the union rejected the company's latest offer to replace a contract that expired at midnight. Both sides refused to comment on specifics except to say the issues were economic.

But Lord said the union was willing to meet with the company to try to resolve the dispute. "We've told them we were ready to meet at anytime," he said.

Homestake Manager Al Winters said the company's mining operations were closed down by the strike. But he said salaried employees were on the job to secure the plant and property.

Winters said the company was willing to negotiate but said no new talks were scheduled.

"We're always willing to meet," he said.

Winters also said he did not know what the union's complaints were in rejecting the company's latest offer.

'Con man' who bilked Utahn arrested

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The Justice Department announced Tuesday the arrest of a Costa Rican businessman described as an "internationally notorious con man" and set a $25 million cash bail.

Judge David Winder set the unusally high bail for Arnoldo Luis Rodriguez, 43, who was arrested Monday in a suburb of Atlanta. A further hearing was scheduled in Atlanta.

A federal grand jury in Salt Lake City indicted Rodriguez April 22 on eight counts of criminal fraud for a "offshore bank" loan scheme in which he allegedly bilked a Utah businessman out of $120,000.

The indictment said Rodriguez also operated under two aliases, Arnoldo Luis Rodriguez Beeche and Jimmy Chinchilla.

U.S. Attorney Brent Ward said the bail — believed to be the highest ever set by a Utah judge — was necessary because of Rodriguez "foreign citizenship and extreme wealth."

A statement released by Ward described Rodriguez as "one of the most notorious international con artists at large" and "the economic crime equivalent of an international terrorist."

"Rodriguez's method has been to form a 'bank' in the West Indies with few or no real assets and then travel the world issuing certificates of deposit, cashier's checks and letters of credit for obtaining loans from real banks," said Ward.

"In exchange for arranging dummy loans, Rodriguez required payment of a fee and interest in advance."

The indictment said Rodriguez cheated John Martin Felt of Salt Lake City out of a $120,000 advance fee paid by Felt to obtain a $1 million loan. It said Rodriguez told felt he had assets of $600 million from which to make the loan.

Rodriguez was the founder of several banks in the West Indies, including the Agrindustrial Bank of Commerce, the International Investment Bank, Discount and Development Bank, Latin American Bank, Bank Bahrain Credit Bank and Banco Commercial Transatlantico.

But the FBI said the banks were unlicensed and consisted of one room and one employee who staffed a telephone and a telex machine. The phone and telex were used to confirm the "legitimacy" of Rodriguez financial claims to his victims.

The indictments resulted from two years of investigation by the FBI and the Justice Department.

WSU to confer degrees on 2,400

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI)— An estimated 2,400 undergraduate and graduate degrees will be awarded at Washington State University's 86th annual commencement exercises Saturday.

Officials said this year's graduating class is the largest since 1978 when 2,480 received degrees.

School president Glenn Terell will preside over the commencement.

Dr. Diptiman Chakravarti, Seattle, president of the Board of Regents, will formally dedicate the new Wallis Beasley Performing Arts Coliseum as part of the program.

Dr. Beasley, executive vice president emeritus, was also scheduled to be in attendance.

Californian to be named ambassador

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Robert H. Phinny of Palm Springs, Calif., will be named by President Reagan to be ambassador to Swaziland, the White House announced Tuesday.

He will succeed Richard Cavins Matheron.

Phinny has been self-employed since 1957 with the R.H. Phinny Co., based in Fremont, Mich., which deals in investments and business interests.

The president also announced his intention to appoint William J. Kilberg of McLean, Va., to be a member of the President's Commission on White House Fellowships. Kilberg is a lawyer in Washington, D.C.

Veteran hopes child can join him in U.S.

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — An American Vietnam veteran hopes new talks between a veterans group and Vietnamese officials will lead to permission for emigration of his Vietnam-born daughter from Ho Chi Minh City to the U.S.

Gary Tanous, 42, said he was encouraged by the American Vietnam War Veterans' report that the Vietnamese would allow the children of Americans to leave Vietnam if the government receives proof their fathers want them to come to the United States.

Tanous said he had been trying for a number of years to bring to the U.S. his daughter, Jean Marie, 14, who was born to a Vietnamese woman he married while he was in Vietnam from 1965 to 1968 as a civilian microwave engineer.

He said the family came to the United States in 1968, but he and his wife divorced and the girl was taken back to Vietnam by her mother later that year.

Tanus said the mother escaped from Vietnam after it fell to the Communists in 1975, leaving Jean Marie there with her grandmother.

Tanous said he is writing the deputy foreign minister of Vietnam in hopes he can get him to grant Jean Marie a visa.

Tanous said he had obtained a passport for the girl and had it delivered by a newsman to her on May 15.

FBI continues probe of bank robbery

PRIEST RIVER (UPI) — The FBI's resident agent in Coeur d'Alene continued his investigation Tuesday into a holdup of a new Priest River bank last week.

Toby Harding, assistant agent in charge of the FBI's Montana-Idaho division out of Butte, Mont., confirmed the FBI was conducting an investigation into the robbery — but declined to release details or comment on whether authorities had identified a suspect in the case.

Bonner County sheriff's deputies said they did not believe the description of the Priest River robber matched that of a federal prison escapee, however.

Trouble for Craig

Auto accident gets ex-hero in big trouble

WAREHAM, Mass. (UPI) — Police Tuesday filed vehicular homicide and driving to endanger charges against U.S. Olympic hockey hero Jim Craig in connection with a weekend accident that killed one woman and left another critically injured.

Police filed the charges in Wareham District Court, but a spokeswoman said no decision on whether the court will issue a formal complaint would be made for at least four days. She said Craig could ask for a hearing before then.

Craig, through his agent Bob Woolf, denied police charges he was driving on the wrong side of the road when the two-car accident occurred in a heavy rainstorm Saturday night on Route 6.

Woolf said Craig, goalie on the gold medal-winning 1980 U.S. Olympic hockey team, insisted he was "driving on the right side of the road and the car was coming right at him and he swerved to the left to avoid it."

Woolf said Craig had returned Saturday from a four-day trip to Los Angeles where he met with ABC-TV about a possible commentary position for the 1984 Olympics and about possible opportunities in the popular ABC show "CHIPs."

"Everything was so upbeat, so positive, it was just incredible out there," Woolf said. "Now this. He's shook as hell. He's really in tough shape. What an awful turn of events."

Margaret Curry, 29, of New Bedford, Mass., was killed in the accident. Patricia Belliveau, 21, of Westport, Mass., was in critical condition at St. Luke's Hospital in New Bedford with multiple injuries, including a fractured pelvis and arm and several fractured vertebrae.

Ingrid Olson, 30, of Westport, the driver of the second car, was treated and released.

Craig, 25, a former All-America whose hockey career has been marred by injuries the past two years, suffered torn shoulder muscles in the accident but declined treatment, said Woolf.

Craig was "terribly shook up" by the accident, said the attorney.

Police said Craig, who lives during the summer in Mattapoisett, Mass., with one of his sisters, was driving west on Route 6, a four-lane highway reduced last month to two lanes because of construction, when the right front end of his BMW auto struck the passenger side of the women's east-bound Toyota.

Craig, who left an indelible image in sports history as he stood draped in an American flag after a stunning upset of a powerful Russian team at Lake Placid, has had a tough time since then.

After being drafted by the Atlanta Flames of the National Hockey League, he opened with a dramatic win, but Atlanta traded him to the Boston Bruins after only four games. This move was welcomed by Craig, who grew up following the Bruins in North Easton, Mass., and at Boston University.

But he played only a year with Boston, appearing in 23 games. His play was uneven and often lackluster. Some attributed his indifferent play to an inability to cope with the intense public attention he had received.

Nixon's the one for Lakers in 129-108 rout of Philly

Cheeks was left in the wake of Los Angeles' Norm Nixon Tuesday night as the 6-foot-2 guard went over him, around him and through him for 29 points and spurred a lightning fast-break to pace the Lakers to a 129-108 rout of the Philadelphia 76ers.

The victory gave Los Angeles a 2-1 lead in the NBA championship series. Game 4 will be played Thursday night at the Forum, with the series returning to Philadelphia Sunday.

Nixon, who had only six points — his low for the season — in the 76ers' 110-94 victory Sunday, hit on 12 of 20 field-goal attempts, including 8-for-10 in the second half when the Lakers blew the game open.

"There really was no difference in his intensity between Sunday and tonight," said Cheeks, who scored 17 points, most coming late in the game when the contest had been decided. "He just got his shots going, and once they started falling there was no way to stop him. I tried to deny him the ball, but that's a tough thing to do because he handles it so much.

"He wasn't an All-Star for nothing. He had to do something to earn that and he showed that tonight."

Lakers Coach Pat Riley said that he didn't anticipate Nixon having another off-night.

"Shooters like Norm are going to have a game like he had in Philly once in a while," Riley said. "He went eight or nine straight games in the playoffs where he was really on. But tonight he showed you can't hold down great players like him for long."

Nixon hit just four of 10 shots in the first half and had only eight points at halftime, but he said that didn't concern him.

"They just weren't falling in the first half, and sometimes there's nothing you can do about it," Nixon said. "I wasn't worried. I just kept shooting, they started to fall and I got my rhythm back. When you're hot like that, you get hungry. You look for the situation to get your shot off."

With the Lakers leading 60-48 after the first half, Nixon missed his first shot of the third period and then hit six in a row to key a 13-2 surge that boosted Los Angeles' lead to 73-50 with 8:20 remaining in the period. Nixon hit on five of six attempts in the quarter and added a pair of free throws.

Magic Johnson scored 22 points, going 8-for-9 from the field, grabbed nine rebounds and had eight assists. Jamaal Wilkes added 17 points, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who sat out the entire second period with three fouls, finished with 16 points and Bob McAdoo added 14, all in the first half.

The 76ers were led by Andrew Toney, who put on a dazzling shooting exhibition and finished with 36 points. He hit on 13 of 21 shots, including 5-for-6 in the third period. Julius Erving added 21 points and Darryl Dawkins contributed 14 points and led all rebounders with 13.

The Lakers opened the game with their devastating fast break, bursting into a 6-0 lead in the first two minutes. With Wilkes and Johnson scoring nine points each, they led 32-20 at the end of the first period.

Los Angeles began the second quarter with another spurt, scoring the first four baskets to open a 40-20 lead behind a pair of field goals each by Nixon and Michael Cooper.

But the 76ers' defense toughened and, led by Toney's six consecutive field goals, Philadelphia cut the Lakers' lead to 51-42 with 2:54 remaining in the half.

Cooper's three-point shot at the buzzer gave the Lakers a 60-48 halftime lead. The Lakers hit just seven field goals on jumpers in the half, scoring 45 of their points on layups or slam-dunks after the fast break.

Quitting

Ram quarterback Haden has had enough of L.A.

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — Pat Haden, who withstood numerous challenges from big-name quarterbacks in six injury-riddled seasons with the Los Angeles Rams, has decided to retire rather than take on his latest challenger, Bert Jones, it was announced Tuesday.

A club spokesman said that Haden, a Rhodes Scholar who attended law school while playing for the Rams and recently joined a Los Angeles law firm, would join CBS as a college football commentator in the fall.

The 29-year-old Haden, who set dozens of passing records as a local high school star before quarterbacking Southern Cal to three appearances in the Rose Bowl, was expected to disclose additional plans at a news conference today.

Critics had labeled the 5-foot-11, 185-pound Haden as too small to play in the NFL, but he beat out several taller, stronger-armed quarterbacks. His record as an off-and-on starting quarterback for the Rams from 1976 to 1981 was 35-18-1.

Haden was drafted in the seventh round by the Rams in 1975 but played his first year of pro football with the Southern California Sun of the now-defunct World Football League in 1975. When the league folded in 1976, he joined the Rams as a reserve quarterback after completing his studies at Oxford.

He became the starter late in the season when injuries struck down James Harris and Ron Jaworski, and threw a 47-year touchdown pass for his first NFL completion. He led the Rams to a playoff victory over Dallas before losing to Minnesota in the NFC title game.

In 1977, Haden beat back the challenge of Joe Namath and led the team to another division title, but the Rams' Super Bowl dreams were again dashed by Minnesota. The next year, Haden again quarterbacked the Rams to a division title but this time Dallas beat them in the NFC title game.

Haden broke the little finger on his passing hand against Seattle in game 10 of 1979 after completing 17 of 21 passes, including a club-record 13 straight at one point.

That was to be Haden's last hurrah with the club. Vince Ferragamo assumed this No. 1 job and led the Rams into Super Bowl XIV against Pittsburgh.

Haden regained his starting job at the opening of the 1980 season, but he suffered a broken right index finger in the first game and was relegated to a reserve role behind Ferragamo for the rest of the season.

When Ferragamo departed for the Canadian Football League last year, Haden again was No. 1, but the Rams acquired Dan Pastorini as a potential challenger. Haden suffered the most injuries of his career, but the Rams were still 5-5 in games he started. They finished with an overall record of 8-10.

This spring, Rams Owner Georgia Frontiere acquired Jones from Baltimore and immediately listed the one-time All-Pro as the starter ahead of Haden, Jeff Rutledge and Jeff Kemp. The Rams also own the NFL rights to Ferragamo, who recently was released by the Montreal Alouettes.

Fairbanks ends drudgery as Colorado head coach

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Chuck Fairbanks, who won only seven games in three disappointing seasons as head football coach at the University of Colorado, resigned abruptly Tuesday, probably to take a position with the New York franchise of the new U.S. Football League.

The resignation announcement was made in a hastily called news conference by CU Athletic Director Eddie Crowder, who said Fairbanks told him at 9 a.m. Tuesday.

"I was sitting in my office this morning and he came in and said, 'Hey Ed, I've decided to resign,'" Crowder said. "Then he handed me a letter of resignation."

Fairbanks came to Colorado in 1979 after a bitter legal battle in which the New England Patriots accused CU of tampering with the NFL team's contract with Fairbanks. In his first year, Fairbanks led the Buffaloes to a 3-8 record, followed by a 1-10 mark in 1980, the worst performance in the team's history. CU was again 3-8 in 1981.

Fairbanks left earlier Tuesday for New York and wasn't present at the news conference. The USFL franchise, which is owned by J. Walter Duncan, a long-time acquaintance of Fairbanks, has called a news conference for 8 a.m. MDT today.

Crowder said the messy court battle forced Fairbanks to labor under a "pall," but acknowledged, "his leaving will eliminate that pall."

Fairbanks had been on a year-to-year contract. Athletic department officials said Fairbanks' salary was in the area of $47,000, but his total benefit package, including revenues from radio and television programs, approached $150,000.

Crowder said Fairbanks began discussions with the USFL months ago, but he wouldn't say if Fairbanks would have a share in the ownership of the franchise, or even if he would be head coach. Other reports indicated Fairbanks would be head coach of the USFL team.

Crowder said Fairbanks kept him appraised of his discussions and the athletic department began efforts to find a new coach as early as last fall. As of Tuesday, Crowder said, CU had one "prime candidate" and a couple of alternates.

CU President Arnold Weber, in Kansas City for a meeting of Big Eight presidents, said that Fairbanks' departure creates only a momentary disruption.

"It relieves the uncertainty that has marked his tenure and will clear the way for continued efforts to build a successful, financially sound program," Weber said in a statement.

Before his tenure at CU, Fairbanks never had a losing season as a collegiate head coach. During his six seasons at Oklahoma, his teams earned five bowl bids and three bowl championships. He left OU in 1972 to coach New England.

Controversy continues over early crash at Indinapolis 500

Andretti, Foyt fume at rookie driver Cogan for causing chain reaction; others see it differently

By GARY RONBERG
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

INDIANAPOLIS — Kevin Cogan comes from the beaches of Southern California. He is blond and handsome, and has a blond, beautiful girlfriend.

If you're planning a beach party, by all means invite Kevin Cogan and his girlfriend to your party. But if you're planning a car race, and veterans Mario Andretti and A.J. Foyt are going to be there, forget about Kevin Cogan and his lady companion.

Without any doubt, the finish of Sunday's Indianapolis 500, in which Gordon Johncock hung on to nip a charging Rick Mears by 0.16 of a second, is now the one by which all future 500s will be measured. Not only was it the closest finish ever, but Johncock's duel with Mears over the last 10 laps, and particularly the final two, was the most dramatic in the 66-year history of the race.

But the start was as bizarre as the finish was breathtaking. Crashes reduced the field from 33 cars to 29 before the green flag was even dropped, and at the center of the resultant controversy was Kevin Cogan, 26, of Redondo Beach, Calif.

"He did exactly what you're not supposed to do," fumed Andretti. "It looked like he was looking for trouble."

"I was in second gear and rolling and all of a sudden, pow!" Foyt said. "It was just a stupid deal."

After qualifying for the race with an average speed of 204.082 miles per hour, Cogan was driving in the first row, just to the left of his Roger Penske teammate, Mears, who had won the pole position with a record qualifying average of 207.004 m.p.h.

Immediately to Cogan's right was Foyt, who had qualified for his 25th straight 500 at 203.332 m.p.h.

But as the starters came out of the fourth turn and headed down the backstretch near the end of the warm-up laps, Cogan's blue PC-10 suddenly lurched to the right, slammed into the left side of Foyt's orange March-Cosworth, and spun back inside toward the retaining wall, where Andretti's orange March-Cosworth caught it amidships.

Foyt's racer sustained only minor damages, but what was left of Cogan's and Andretti's had to be towed, not driven. So too were the cars of Mears' brother, Roger, and Dale Whittington, who — as the scene unfolded before them — collided farther back in the field.

"I saw smoke and all the trash flying, and he (Whittington) just drove over my left side," said an angry Roger Mears. "He had to be on the gas with his eyes shut."

"I got hit and spun," said Whittington, who at 22 was the youngest driver in the race. "I just missed Geoff Brabham and thought I had the problem licked. I hit the wall to get out of the way, otherwise I would have taken six cars out."

But it was Cogan who had ignited the chain reaction, and after he had climbed out of his wreck and reached the pits, he was booed by the crowd and physically shoved several times by Andretti.

"There were the usual alibis, but what I told him, you wouldn't want to hear," said Andretti, who went on to say that "in my opinion, Roger Penske has a car that's too good for him (Cogan). And that's dangerous for everybody else.

Perkins' 3 RBI, Jones' HR help Padres mash Cubs, 9-1

By United Press International

Ruppert Jones is finding life on the West Coast much more pleasant the second time around.

Broderick Perkins drove in three runs with a triple and a single and Jones belted a three-run homer Tuesday to lead the San Diego Padres to a 9-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Perkins' two-run triple highlighted a four-run second inning off Randy Martz, 4-4. Jones, who hit a two-run homer in Monday's 9-7 win over the Cubs, belted his eighth home run of the season in a four-run third inning.

John Montefusco, 3-4, hurled the first five innings of the game to win while Eric Show shut out the Cubs over the final four innings to record his second save.

Jones led off the second inning with a single, stole second and scored on a single by Sixto Lezcano, who took second on the throw to the plate. Joe Lefebvre was intentionally walked and Perkins' triple scored Lezcano and Lefebvre. Montefusco's sacrifice squeeze bunt scored Perkins.

In the third, Tim Flannery led off with an infield single and Garry Templeton, who had three hits, singled. Both scored on Jones' homer to left-center field. Terry Kennedy lined a one-out double and scored on Perkins' two-out single to cap the inning.

Braves 7, Mets 3

At New York, Dale Murphy keyed a four-run first inning with his 15th homer, a three-run blast, to spark Atlanta. Murphy's home run, which gave him the NL lead, capped an outburst against Randy Jones, 6-4, who failed to retire any of the six hitters he faced.

Claudell Washington walked to open the first and Rafael Ramirez singled. Rufino Linares scored Washington with a single and Murphy followed with a drive over the wall in right-center.

Pirates 3, Dodgers 1

At Pittsburgh, Bill Madlock smashed a two-run homer and John Candelaria and two relievers combined on a five-hitter to help the Pirates send Jerry Reuss to his fifth loss in 10 decisions.

Candelaria, 2-0, gave up three hits — including a solo homer by Ron Cey with one out in the fifth — before he left complaining of stiffness in his left elbow after seven innings. He walked none and struck out six.

Rod Scurry relieved and allowed two hits in 1 1-3 innings before being replaced by Kent Tekulve, who got the final two outs in the ninth to record his seventh save.

Giants 4, Cardinals 3 (11 innings)

At St. Louis, pinch hitter Jack Clark's run-scoring single with one out in the 11th scored Darrell Evans with the winning run. Reggie Smith led off the inning with a single off loser Jim Kaat, 1-1, and pinch runner Dave Bergman moved to second on a single by Darrell Evans. Bergman was forced at third on Milt May's attempted sacrifice and Clark, who was being rested with a sore Achilles tendon, greeted reliever Doug Bair with a single to center.

The winning pitcher was Greg Minton, 3-3, who pitched one-hit relief for 3 2-3 innings. Gary Lavelle relieved with two out in the ninth and retired Dane Iorg with the tying run on second to gain his second save.

Reds 4, Phillies 1

At Philadelphia, Mike Vail singled in one run and added a pair of doubles in support of Greg Harris' five-hit pitching, leading Cincinnati to a seven-inning victory. The game was called after a 94-minute rain delay.

Cincinnati took a 1-0 lead off loser Mike Krukow, 4-4, in the third when Eddie Milner singled, stole second and scored on Dave Concepcion's single.

Vail doubled to ignite a two-run fourth and Larry Bittner singled him home to make it 2-0. After advancing on an infield out, Bittner scored on Harris' single.

The Houston-Montreal game was rained out.

Twins fall for 13th straight time

By United Press International

You can believe the Minnesota Twins are mighty sick of seeing the Cleveland Indians.

Reliever Ron Davis walked pinch hitter Karl Pagel with the bases loaded in the eighth inning Tuesday night to force home the go-ahead run and Andre Thornton belted a three-run homer to spark the Indians to their ninth straight victory, a 6-4 decision over the Twins at Cleveland.

The loss was the Twins' 13th straight, tying the club record set in 1961. Five of the losses have come at the hands of the Indians.

Davis, 1-6, who took over in the sixth inning, retired the first two batters in the eighth before Von Hayes singled and stole second. Ron Hassey was walked intentionally and Jack Perconte drew a walk to load the bases. Pagel then walked on a 3-and-1 pitch and Miguel Dilone greeted reliever Paul Boris with another bases-loaded walk.

After spotting the Twins a 2-0 lead in the fourth on a two-run double by Kent Hrbek, the Indians scored four runs off starter Darrell Jackson in the fourth on Thornton's 15th homer, a triple by Hayes and an RBI single by Bill Nahorodny.

Tim Laudner's run-scoring double pulled Minnesota to within 4-3 in the fifth and Hrbek's RBI infield single scored pinch runner Jim Eisenreich with the tying run in the eighth.

Ed Glynn, the third Cleveland pitcher, took over in the eighth and picked up his first victory in as many decisions. Dan Spillner pitched the final inning to register his fifth save.

Blue Jays 5, Yankees 2

At Toronto, Barry Bonnell's two-run single off Rich Gossage with one out in the eighth inning keyed a four-run rally that carried the Blue Jays to their fourth consecutive victory. The victory went to reliever Dale Murray, 3-2, who pitched the final three innings. Shane Rawley, 3-2, took the loss.

Royals 4, White Sox 3

At Kansas City, Mo., Vida Blue survived a shaky first inning to strike out nine and Dan Quisenberry picked up his league-leading 13th save for the Royals. Blue, 3-3, who hadn't pitched since May 15 because of a pulled leg muscle, tired and did not come out for the sixth.

Crash

"He could not handle the responsibility of the front row. I don't think he was ready to be up that far."

Then Andretti, who once drove for Penske, took a personal swipe at Cogan. "I had a run-in with him in practice a few weeks ago," he said. "I was running in the groove, and he just came right out of the blue in front of me. We were lucky we didn't have a wreck then. I tried to talk to him like a father later, but he wouldn't listen.

"The young man doesn't seem to be too easy to talk to. He's with a big team, but his head needs to shrink a little bit."

Clearly, Cogan was crushed — and embarrassed — by his role in the fiasco. After finishing fourth in last year's 500 as an unsponsored rookie, he had been signed by Penske, and, after turning in record qualification times before Mears broke them, was even favored by some to win the race.

"I just got into second gear, was starting to accelerate in anticipation of the green flag, and then the car jerked straight right," Cogan explained. "I was looking at the race conservatively. I wasn't trying to be aggressive."

Cogan also said he couldn't remember any time that Andretti had tried to talk to him "like a father."

"I'm not cocky," he insisted. "After it was over, I tried to explain it wasn't my fault to Mario, but he was very upset and that's understandable."

Johncock, who was starting in the second row, just to the left of Andretti, seemed to have one of the more objective views of what transpired.

"I had a ringside seat," he said. "Everything was going along sure enough, but when Kevin got on it, his turbo really kicked in, and it lit up his rear tires. If he'd been at Ontario (Calif.) or Pocono (Pa.), he would have had time to correct it. But here, the straightaways are so narrow there's not much room.

"I think the car just broke loose on him. He had a lot of torque, and the car went sideways. It's happened lots of times before."

As for Johnny Rutherford, who was starting in the fourth row, the blame fell on the shoulders of Rick Mears, the pole-sitter. "Rick brought us down (the mainstretch) too slow," he said. "I was tempted to drop down into first gear, but then I thought, 'No, just as soon as I do that, they'll take off.'

"So I was coasting down there in second, laying back so I would have some room when the turbocharger kicked in. Pretty soon, all I could see was cars sideways, and I thought, 'What the hell is this?'"

Said George Bignotti, co-owner and crew chief of Tom Sneva's car, which started with Andretti and Johncock in the second row: "The start was too slow. The cars were going less than 80 miles an hour, and they should have been running at least 100 coming down to the green flag."

But Rick Mears couldn't have disagreed more, and he was no stranger to the pole, having started there in the 1979 race, as well as the first two championship races of this season.

"I didn't see anything wrong with it," Mears said. "We had the same start at Phoenix and Atlanta, and here I was told at the driver's meeting not to speed up, slow down, speed up, but just to keep a constant speed. I just let it (the pace car) go and kept up an even pace."

As for Tom Sneva, who had challenged Johncock and Mears through the midway point of Sunday's race, he probably had the most rational assessment of "The Cogan Controversy."

"If you have to have an accident, better to have one when you are going slow," Sneva said.

French Open: Wilander shocks Gerulaitis

PARIS (UPI) — Sweden's Mats Wilander caused his second major upset at the French Open championships Tuesday, reaching the semifinals with a four-set victory over fifth-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis of the United States.

The 17-year-old Wilander went one better than his compatriot Bjorn Borg, who was eliminated in the quarterfinals at Roland Garros on his own first appearance back in 1973.

Having ousted favorite and second seed Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia in the fourth round, Wilander defeated Gerulaitis, 6-3, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, to set up a meeting with Argentine fourth seed Jose Luis Clerc in Friday's semifinals.

The women's semifinal lineup was completed Tuesday when defending champion Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia defeated American third seed Tracy Austin for the first time, 7-6, 6-7, 6-2, and second seed Martina Navratilova beat unranked fellow-American Zina Garrison, 6-3, 6-2.

Mandlikova will meet Navratilova in the last four, with the other semifinal Thursday being between top seed Chris Evert Lloyd and fourth-ranked Andrea Jaeger.

The two who will join Clerc and Wilander in the men's semifinals will be known today when top seed Jimmy Connors plays 14th seed Jose Higueras of Spain, and third seed Guillermo Vilas of Argentina meets France's No. 8 seed Yannick Noah.

"Since playing Gerulaitis in Brussels, I think I've learned a lot," Wilander said.

"I've got more power in my groundstrokes. The difference between playing Lendl and Vitas was that Gerulaitis came in all the time—if my passing shot hadn't worked, it would have been a different game, but the pass worked very well."

Wilander's only visible concession to emotion was to admit wryly and obviously pleased with himself, "I never thought I would get this far and yes I am now thinking ahead to the final."

Gerulaitis admitted that Wilander had been the better player on the day.

"He was good, he played very steady and it was a good solid match," the New Yorker said.

"Wilander has a very good style. If I had a little boy, I might teach him that."

Mandlikova, 20 and seeded fifth, struggled nervously for her first win over Austin in nine meetings, squandering two match points in the second set and dropping service when leading 5-1 in the third.

She took charge in the first set only when it had reached a tie-break, serving strongly, smashing and forcing the pace to win the tie-break 7-4. But she was guilty of numerous errors in the second set after taking a 6-5 lead and could not finish off the 19-year-old Austin, who was playing the French open for the first time.

On her first match point, in the 12th game of the second set, Mandlikova hit weakly into the net. She then produced her second ace of the game but on the second match point she double-faulted, and after three deuces Austin took the game to draw even at 6-6. Austin then won the set in the second tie-break 7-2.

In the third set Austin made the mistakes. But having rushed into a 5-1 lead Mandlikova still could not apply the coup de grace, losing her service in the next game. Finally, after two hours and 39 minutes of play, she broke Austin again to reach the semifinals.

"This was a crucial match," she said. "I always thought I could win it even after losing the second set.

"But I was nervous, because I was 6-1, 3-0 up against Austin in Eastbourne (two years ago in England) and I lost. In the third set, I tried to play the ball early, so she didn't have time to get to it."

Austin blamed uncharacteristic lack of concentration for her defeat.

"She's an erratic player," Austin said. "If you can concentrate hard enough you can win, but I don't think I concentrated enough."

Navratilova had little trouble against Garrison, who was playing in her first tournament as a professional. She conceded only three points to the Texan in the first three games, and the only time Garrison came into the match was when she broke Navratilova's service to even the first set at 3-3.

But the powerful left-hander, keying on Garrison's weak serve, maintained her control of the match.

"I felt very calm on the court and my experience really helps me," Navratilova said after reaching the quarterfinals at Roland Garros for only the second time in her career. "I played the right way and didn't let her get into the match."

McNamara similarly was dominated as Clerc dictated their match throughout with a strong service and powerful ground strokes that had his opponent scampering all over the court.

Clerc had struggled through two four-set battles to reach the last eight, but decisively eliminated the seventh-seeded McNamara.

Brewer GM contemplates Rodgers' fate

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Milwaukee Brewer General Manager Harry Dalton said Tuesday he will not rush into a decision about the future of Manager Buck Rodgers, even though Rodgers had come under growing criticism from players and fans.

The Brewers have lost 14 of the last 20 games, and Monday night ace reliever Rollie Fingers blasted Rodgers for bringing in Mike Caldwell, a pitcher in the starting rotation, in the ninth inning.

Rodgers brought in Caldwell instead of Fingers to face the Seattle Mariners' Bruce Bochte Monday night in the ninth with a runner on second base and two out.

Rodgers brought in Caldwell because Bochte's batting average was only .238 against Caldwell. But Fingers has struck out Bochte the two times he has faced him this season.

Bochte singled to drive in Rick Sweet with the tying run and send the game into extra innings. The Mariners came back to win.

UCLA soph Joyner establishes heptathlon mark in NCAA finals

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — UCLA sophomore Jackie Joyner set a collegiate heptathlon record Tuesday at the NCAA Track and Field Championships, while Norwegian Trond Skramstad of Mt. St. Mary's came from behind to capture the men's decathlon.

Joyner becoming only the second American to score more than 6,000 points in the grueling competition. She won three of the seven heptathlon events to score 6,099 points. Former U.S. olympian Jane Frederick holds the American record of 6,423 points. She set the mark last month.

Skramstad was third behind Mike Ramos of Washinton at the start of Tuesday's events. Ramos quickly took the lead away from Frank Harrison of Pennsylvania and looke like the best bet to win the decathlon.

However, Ramos could not go the distance. He ran out of gas in the final event, the 15,000 meter run, finishing next to last in the race. The loss dropped him all the way to third place.

Scramstad took the lead down the final straightaway of the 15,000 meter to win his heat and finish second overall in the race. The performance zoomed him to the title with a score of 7,770 points.

Last weekend the sophomore from Norway won the decathlon when he represented his small Maryland college at the NCAA Division II meet in California. The win earned him a berth among contesants from major schools in the Division I championships at Brigham Young University.

John Sayre of Southern Illinois won the poll vault at 16-feet, 4 ¾ inches to move into second-place with 7,660, a lifetime best. Ramos, a freshman, also scored a career high, 7,638.

Keith Collins of Washington State was fourth with 7,600, followed by Marty Niebauer of New Mexico with 7,572 and John Irvine of Arizona State with 7,549.

Joyner won the 100 meter high hurdles and the 200 meter dash Monday. She clinched the women's title with her long jump victory Tuesday. Her leap of 20-feet, 11-inches gave her nearly a 400 point lead over second place finisher Annette Tannander of Colorado. Tannander racked up 5,656 points.

The UCLA athlete needed run only a 2:26 in the final event, the 800 meter run, to score 6,000 points, but Joyner finished in 2:18:47.

"Coming into the meet I didn't think I had a chance to break 6,000," said Joyner. "But I did better in the shot put and the javelin than I though I could. I had personal bests in the shot, the javelin, the high hurdles and the 200 meters."

"The only thing I was disappointed in was my high jump," she added. Joyner went 5-feet, 7 ¼-inches— 3 ½ inches short of wining jump by Renee Nickles of Oklahoma.

Tennander said her score was 24 points shy of her personal best. "I never thought I could beat Joyner. She's been at least 300 points better than me each time we've met this year. I'm just glad to be second."

Joyner's victory and a fourth place finish by teammate Susie Ray gave UCLA, the tournament leader, 24 points toward the NCAA team title.

In last year's AIAW meet Tennessee edged UCLA by 4 points for the team title. Both team switched to the NCAA for this season and are expected to once again battle for the team crown.

Texas-El Paso is the favorite to win a fourth consecutive men's championship. However, no UTEP Miners were enter in the decathlon. They will pick up most of their points in the distance races Friday and Saturday.

Carrie McLaughlin of San Diego State was third in the heptathlon with 5,526; followed by Ray of UCLA with 5,511; Susan Brownell of Virginia was fifth with 5,445; and Nickles finished sixth with 5,440.

Arson investigators to aid NCAA inquiries

MISSION, Kan. (UPI) — A contract with an arson-investigating firm will put at least 25 'detectives' at the NCAA's disposal — part-time — to check tips of apparent recruiting violations, the college athletic association confirmed Tuesday.

NCAA Director of Enforcement David Berst said his section hopes "to be more responsive by using the additional people," but clarified that the NCAA itself has only eight full-time investigators. When the NCAA completes another office building, it will have room to hire two more investigators.

"Last August we were authorized to hire two additional people this summer, and to use part-time professional investigators," Berst said. "We've contracted with a group called National Fire Associates, whose central office is here in Kansas City."

The firm of arson investigators has offices around the nation, and the NCAA has trained 25 of the 29 investigators to help make NCAA probes.

"We'll use them on a part-time basis to follow up items in their areas," Berst said. "We don't know yet whether the part-time people will be able to help us that significantly."

Another member of the NCAA's enforcement area, Bill Hunt, had been quoted in Tuesday's Memphis Press-Scimitar that the NCAA had "hired" 25 new investigators, many with FBI experience in white-collar crime investigations. Hunt said the additional investigators would erase any "failure to properly investigate institutions because of our shortage in personnel."

Bing's son hits sour note at British Amateur tournament

DEAL, England (UPI) — Second seeded American Nathaniel Crosby, son of the late Bing Crosby, was knocked out of the first round of the British Amateur Golf Championship Tuesday by a 16-year-old English schoolboy.

Crosby, 20, the reigning U.S. Amateur champion, but was unceremoniously dumped by Londoner David Gilford, 4 and 3.

"Perhaps I should sing a chorus of 'Melancholy Baby' if I could sing in key," said Crosby, who had a chance to become the first player since American Bob Dickson in 1967 to hold both U.S. and British titles at the same time.

He wedged into a ditch guarding the green at the first hole on the Royal Cinque Ports course and was only saved the humiliation of carding an opening seven when Gilford holed from 10 feet for a winning bogey five.

Crosby lost the second to a par four, driving into the rough and hitting his third shot through the green, and the third to a birdie four.

Perkins' 3 RBI, Jones' HR help Padres mash Cubs, 9-1

By United Press International

National

Ruppert Jones is finding life on the West Coast much more pleasant the second time around.

Broderick Perkins drove in three runs with a triple and a single and Jones belted a three-run homer Tuesday to lead the San Diego Padres to a 9-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Perkins' two-run triple highlighted a four-run second inning off Randy Martz, 4-4. Jones, who hit a two-run homer in Monday's 9-7 win over the Cubs, belted his eighth home run of the season in a four-run third inning.

John Montefusco, 3-4, hurled the first five innings of the game to win while Eric Show shut out the Cubs over the final four innings to record his second save.

Jones led off the second inning with a single, stole second and scored on a single by Sixto Lezcano, who took second on the throw to the plate. Joe Lefebvre was intentionally walked and Perkins' triple scored Lezcano and Lefebvre. Montefusco's sacrifice squeeze bunt scored Perkins.

In the third, Tim Flannery led off with an infield single and Garry Templeton, who had three hits, singled. Both scored on Jones' homer to left-center field. Terry Kennedy lined a one-out double and scored on Perkins' two-out single to cap the inning.

Braves 7, Mets 3

At New York, Dale Murphy keyed a four-run first inning with his 15th homer, a three-run blast, to spark Atlanta. Murphy's home run, which gave him the NL lead, capped an outburst against Randy Jones, 6-4, who failed to retire any of the six hitters he faced.

Claudell Washington walked to open the first and Rafael Ramirez singled. Rufino Linares scored Washington with a single and Murphy followed with a drive over the wall in right-center.

Pirates 3, Dodgers 1

At Pittsburgh, Bill Madlock smashed a two-run homer and John Candelaria and two relievers combined on a five-hitter to help the Pirates send Jerry Reuss to his fifth loss in 10 decisions.

Candelaria, 2-3, gave up three hits — including a solo homer by Ron Cey with one out in the fifth — before he left complaining of stiffness in his left elbow after seven innings. He walked none and struck out six.

Rod Scurry relieved and allowed two hits in 1 1-3 innings before being replaced by Kent Tekulve, who got the final two outs in the ninth to record his seventh save.

Giants 4, Cardinals 3 (11 innings)

At St. Louis, pinch hitter Jack Clark's run-scoring single with one out in the 11th scored Darrell Evans with the winning run. Reggie Smith led off the inning with a single off loser Jim Kaat, 1-1, and pinch runner Dave Bergman moved to second on a single by Darrell Evans. Bergman was forced at third on Milt May's attempted sacrifice and Clark, who was being rested with a sore Achilles tendon, greeted reliever Doug Bair with a single to center.

The winning pitcher was Greg Minton, 3-3, who pitched one-hit relief for 3 2-3 innings. Gary Lavelle relieved with two out in the ninth and retired Dane Iorg with the tying run on second to gain his second save.

Reds 4, Phillies 1

At Philadelphia, Mike Vail singled in one run and added a pair of doubles in support of Greg Harris' five-hit pitching, leading Cincinnati to a seven-inning victory. The game was called after a 94-minute rain delay.

Cincinnati took a 1-0 lead off loser Mike Krukow, 4-4, in the third when Eddie Milner singled, stole second and scored on Dave Concepcion's single.

Vail doubled to ignite a two-run fourth and Larry Bittner singled him home to make it 2-0. After advancing on an infield out, Bittner scored on Harris' single.

The Houston-Montreal game was rained out.

Twins fall for 13th straight time

By United Press International

American

You can believe the Minnesota Twins are mighty sick of seeing the Cleveland Indians.

Reliever Ron Davis walked pinch hitter Karl Pagel with the bases loaded in the eighth inning Tuesday night to force home the go-ahead run and Andre Thornton belted a three-run homer to spark the Indians to their ninth straight victory, a 6-4 decision over the Twins at Cleveland.

The loss was the Twins' 13th straight, tying the club record set in 1961. Five of the losses have come at the hands of the Indians.

Davis, 1-5, who took over in the sixth inning, retired the first two batters in the eighth before Von Hayes singled and stole second. Ron Hassey was walked intentionally and Jack Perconte drew a walk to load the bases. Pagel then walked on a 3-and-1 pitch and Miguel Dilone greeted reliever Paul Boris with another bases-loaded walk.

After spotting the Twins a 2-0 lead in the fourth on a two-run double by Kent Hrbek, the Indians scored four runs off starter Darrell Jackson in the fourth on Thornton's 15th homer, a triple by Hayes and an RBI single by Bill Nahorodny.

Tim Laudner's run-scoring double pulled Minnesota to within 4-3 in the fifth and Hrbek's RBI infield single scored pinch runner Jim Eisenreich with the tying run in the eighth.

Ed Glynn, the third Cleveland pitcher, took over in the eighth and picked up his first victory in as many decisions. Dan Spillner pitched the final inning to register his fifth save.

Blue Jays 5, Yankees 2

At Toronto, Barry Bonnell's two-run single off Rich Gossage with one out in the eighth inning keyed a four-run rally that carried the Blue Jays to their fourth consecutive victory. The victory went to reliever Dale Murray, 3-2, who pitched the final three innings. Shane Rawley, 3-2, took the loss.

Royals 4, White Sox 3

At Kansas City, Mo., Vida Blue survived a shaky first inning to strike out nine and Dan Quisenberry picked up his league-leading 13th save for the Royals. Blue, 3-3, who hadn't pitched since May 15 because of a pulled leg muscle, tired and did not come out for the sixth.

Correction

TWIN FALLS — Because of incorrect information supplied to The Times-News, the location of the Mint Bar softball team was listed incorrectly in Monday's and Tuesday's paper.

The Mint Bar team, which took first place in the men's tournament, is from Hailey, not Pocatello.

"He could not handle the responsibility of the front row. I don't think he was ready to be up that far."

Then Andretti, who once drove for Penske, took a personal swipe at Cogan. "I had a run-in with him in practice a few weeks ago," he said. "I was running in the groove, and he just came right out of the blue in front of me. We were lucky we didn't have a wreck then. I tried to talk to him like a father later, but he wouldn't listen.

"The young man doesn't seem to be too easy to talk to. He's with a big team, but his head needs to shrink a little bit."

Clearly, Cogan was crushed — and embarrassed — by his role in the fiasco. After finishing fourth in last year's 500 as an unsponsored rookie, he had been signed by Penske and, after turning in record qualification times before Mears broke them, was even favored by some to win the race.

"I just got into second gear, was starting to accelerate in anticipation of the green flag, and then the car jerked straight right," Cogan explained. "I was looking at the race conservatively. I wasn't trying to be aggressive."

Cogan also said he couldn't remember any time that Andretti had tried to talk to him "like a father."

"I'm not cocky," he insisted. "After it was over, I tried to explain it wasn't my fault to Mario, but he was very upset and that's understandable."

Johncock, who was starting in the second row, just to the left of Andretti, seemed to have one of the more objective views of what transpired.

"I had a ringside seat," he said. "Everything was going along sure enough, but when Kevin got on it, his turbo really kicked in, and it lit up his rear tires. If he'd been at Ontario (Calif.) or Pocono (Pa.), he would have had time to correct it. But here, the straightaways are so narrow there's not much room.

"I think the car just broke loose on him. He had a lot of torque, and the car went sideways. It's happened lots of times before."

As for Johnny Rutherford, who was starting in the fourth row, the blame fell on the shoulders of Rick Mears, the pole-sitter. "Rick brought us down (the mainstretch) too slow," he said. "I was tempted to drop down into first gear, but then I thought, 'No, just as soon as I do that, they'll take off.'

"So I was coasting down there in second, laying back so I would have some room when the turbocharger kicked in. Pretty soon, all I could see was cars sideways, and I thought, 'What the hell is this?'"

Said George Bignotti, co-owner and crew chief of Tom Sneva's car, which started with Andretti and Johncock in the second row: "The start was too slow. The cars were going less than 80 miles an hour, and they should have been running at least 100 coming down for the green flag."

But Rick Mears couldn't have disagreed more, and he was no stranger to the pole, having started there in the 1979 race, as well as the first two championship races of this season.

"I didn't see anything wrong with it," Mears said. "We had the same start at Phoenix and Atlanta, and here I was told at the driver's meeting not to speed up, slow down, speed up, but just to keep a constant speed. I just let it (the pace car) go and kept up an even pace."

As for Tom Sneva, who had challenged Johncock and Mears through the midway point of Sunday's race, he probably had the most rational assessment of "The Cogan Controversy."

"If you have to have an accident, better to have one when you are going slow," Sneva said.

French Open: Wilander shocks Gerulaitis

PARIS (UPI) — Sweden's Mats Wilander caused his second major upset at the French Open championships Tuesday, reaching the semifinals with a four-set victory over fifth-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis of the United States.

The 17-year-old Wilander went one better than his compatriot Bjorn Borg, who was eliminated in the quarterfinals at Roland Garros on his own first appearance back in 1973.

Having ousted favorite and second seed Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia in the fourth round, Wilander defeated Gerulaitis, 6-3, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, to set up a meeting with Argentine fourth seed Jose Luis Clerc in Friday's semifinals.

The women's semifinal lineup was completed Tuesday when defending champion Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia defeated American third seed Tracy Austin for the first time, 7-6, 6-7, 6-2, and second seed Martina Navratilova beat unranked fellow-American Zina Garrison, 6-3, 6-2.

Mandlikova will meet Navratilova in the last four, with the other semifinal Thursday being between top seed Chris Evert Lloyd and fourth-ranked Andrea Jaeger.

The two who will join Clerc and Wilander in the men's semifinals will be known today when top seed Jimmy Connors plays 14th seed Jose Higueras of Spain, and third seed Guillermo Vilas of Argentina meets France's No. 8 seed Yannick Noah.

"Since playing Gerulaitis in Brussels, I think I've learned a lot," Wilander said.

"I've got more power in my groundstrokes. The difference between playing Lendl and Vitas was that Gerulaitis came in all the time — if my passing shot hadn't worked, it would have been a different game, but the pass worked very well."

Wilander's only visible concession to emotion was to admit wryly and obviously pleased with himself, "I never thought I would get this far and yes I am now thinking ahead to the final."

Gerulaitis admitted that Wilander had been the better player on the day.

"He was good, he played very steady and it was a good solid match," the New Yorker said.

"Wilander has a very good style. If I had a little boy, I might teach him that."

Mandlikova, 20 and seeded fifth, struggled nervously for her first win over Austin in nine meetings, squandering two match points in the second set and dropping service when leading 5-1 in the third.

She took charge in the first set only when it had reached a tie-break, serving strongly, smashing and forcing the pace to win the tie-break 7-4. But she was guilty of numerous errors in the second set after taking a 6-5 lead and could not finish off the 19-year-old Austin, who was playing the French open for the first time.

On her first match point, in the 12th game of the second set, Mandlikova hit weakly into the net. She then produced her second ace of the game but on the second match point she double-faulted, and after three deuces Austin took the game to draw even at 6-6. Austin then won the set in the second tie-break 7-2.

In the third set Austin made the mistakes. But having rushed into a 5-1 lead Mandlikova still could not apply the coup de grace, losing her service in the next game. Finally, after two hours and 39 minutes of play, she broke Austin again to reach the semifinals.

"This was a crucial match," she said. "I always thought I could win it even after losing the second set.

"But I was nervous, because I was 6-1, 3-0 up against Austin in Eastbourne (two years ago in England) and I lost. In the third set, I tried to play the ball early, so she didn't have time to get to it."

Austin blamed uncharacteristic lack of concentration for her defeat.

"She's an erratic player," Austin said. "If you can concentrate hard enough you can win, but I don't think I concentrated enough."

Navratilova had little trouble against Garrison, who was playing in her first tournament as a professional. She conceded only three points to the Texan in the first three games, and the only time Garrison came into the match was when she broke Navratilova's service to even the first set at 3-3.

But the powerful left-hander, keying on Garrison's weak serve, maintained her control of the match.

"I felt very calm on the court and my experience really helps me," Navratilova said after reaching the quarterfinals at Roland Garros for only the second time in her career. "I played the right way and didn't let her get into the match."

McNamara similarly was dominated as Clerc dictated their match throughout with a strong-service-and-powerful-ground-strokes that had his opponent scampering all over the court.

Clerc had struggled through two four-set battles to reach the last eight, but decisively eliminated the seventh-seeded McNamara.

Brewer GM contemplates Rodgers' fate

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Milwaukee Brewer General Manager Harry Dalton said Tuesday he will not rush into a decision about the future of Manager Buck Rodgers, even though Rodgers had come under growing criticism from players and fans.

The Brewers have lost 14 of the last 20 games, and Monday night ace reliever Rollie Fingers blasted Rodgers for bringing in Mike Caldwell, a pitcher in the starting rotation, in the ninth inning.

Rodgers brought in Caldwell instead of Fingers to face the Seattle Mariners' Bruce Bochte Monday night in the ninth with a runner on second base and two out.

Rodgers brought in Caldwell because Bochte's batting average was only .238 against Caldwell. But Fingers has struck out Bochte the two times he has faced him this season.

Bochte singled to drive in Rick Sweet with the tying run and send the game into extra innings. The Mariners came back to win.

UCLA soph Joyner establishes heptathlon mark in NCAA finals

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — UCLA sophomore Jackie Joyner set a collegiate heptathlon record Tuesday at the NCAA Track and Field Championships, while Norwegian Trond Skramstad of Mt. St. Mary's came from behind to capture the men's decathlon.

Joyner becoming only the second American to score more than 6,000 points in the grueling competition. She won three of the seven heptathlon events to score 6,099 points. Former U.S. olympian Jane Frederick holds the American record of 6,423 points. She set the mark last month.

Skramstad was third behind Mike Ramos of Washinton at the start of Tuesday's events. Ramos quickly took the lead away from Frank Harrison of Pennsylvania, and looke like the best bet to win the decathlon.

However, Ramos could not go the distance. He ran out of gas in the final event, the 15,000 meter run, finishing next to last in the race. The loss dropped him all the way to third place.

Scramstad took the lead down the final straightaway of the 15,000 meter to win his heat and finish second overall in the race. The performance zoomed him to the title with a score of 7,770 points.

Last weekend the sophomore from Norway won the decathlon when he represented his small Maryland college at the NCAA Division II meet in California. The win earned him a berth among contesants from major schools in the Division I championships at Brigham Young University.

John Sayre of Southern Illinois won the poll vault at 16-feet, 4 ¾ inches to move into second place with 7,660, a lifetime best. Ramos, a freshman, also scored a career high, 7,638.

Keith Collins of Washington State was fourth with 7,600, followed by Marty Niebauer of New Mexico with 7,572 and John Irvine of Arizona State with 7,549.

Joyner won the 100-meter high hurdles and the 200 meter dash Monday. She clinched the women's title with her long jump victory Tuesday. Her leap of 20-feet, 11-inches gave her nearly a 400-point lead over second-place finisher Annette Tannander of Colorado. Tannander racked up 5,656 points.

The UCLA athlete needed run only a 2:26 in the final event, the 800 meter run, to score 6,000 points, but Joyner finished in 2:18:47.

"Coming into the meet I didn't think I had a chance to break 6,000," said Joyner. "But I did better in the shot put and the javelin than I though I could. I had personal bests in the shot, the javelin, the high hurdles and the 200 meters."

"The only thing I was disappointed in was my high jump," she added. Joyner went 5-feet, 7 ¼-inches— 3 ½ inches short of wining jump by Renee Nickles of Oklahoma.

Tannander said her score was 24 points shy of her personal best. "I never thought I could beat Joyner. She's been at least 300 points better than me each time we've met this year. I'm just glad to be second."

Joyner's victory and a fourth place finish by teammate Susie Ray gave UCLA, the tournament leader, 24 points toward the NCAA team title.

In last year's AIAW meet Tennessee edged UCLA by 4 points for the team title. Both team switched to the NCAA for this season and are expected to once again battle for the team crown.

Texas-El Paso is the favorite to win a fourth consecutive men's championship. However, no UTEP Miners were enter in the decathlon. They will pick up most of their points in the distance races Friday and Saturday.

Carrie McLaughlin of San Diego State was third in the heptathlon with 5,526; followed by Ray of UCLA with 5,511; Susan Brownell of Virginia was fifth with 5,445; and Nickles finished sixth with 5,440.

Arson investigators to aid NCAA inquiries

MISSION, Kan. (UPI) — A contract with an arson-investigating firm will put at least 25 'detectives' at the NCAA's disposal — part-time — to check tips of apparent recruiting violations, the college athletic association confirmed Tuesday.

NCAA Director of Enforcement David Berst said his section hopes "to be more responsive by using the additional people," but clarified that the NCAA itself has only eight full-time investigators. When the NCAA completes another office building, it will have room to hire two more investigators.

"Last August we were authorized to hire two additional people this summer, and to use part-time professional investigators," Berst said. "We've contracted with a group called National Fire Associates, whose central office is here in Kansas City."

The firm of arson investigators has offices around the nation, and the NCAA has trained 25 of the 29 investigators to help make NCAA probes.

"We'll use them on a part-time basis to follow up items in their areas," Berst said. "We don't know yet whether the part-time people will be able to help us that significantly."

Another member of the NCAA's enforcement area, Bill Hunt, had been quoted in Tuesday's Memphis Press Scimitar that the NCAA had "hired" 25 new investigators, many with FBI experience in white-collar crime investigations. Hunt said the additional investigators would erase any "failure to properly investigate institutions because of our shortage in personnel."

Bing's son hits sour note at British Amateur tournament

DEAL, England (UPI) — Second seeded American Nathaniel Crosby, son of the late Bing Crosby, was knocked out of the first round of the British Amateur Golf Championship Tuesday by a 16-year-old English schoolboy.

Crosby, 20, the reigning U.S. Amateur champion, but was unceremoniously dumped by Londoner David Gilford, 4 and 3.

"Perhaps I should sing a chorus of 'Melancholy Baby' if I could sing in key," said Crosby, who had a chance to become the first player since American Bob Dickson in 1967 to hold both U.S. and British titles at the same time.

He wedged into a ditch guarding the green at the first hole on the Royal Cinque Ports course and was only saved the humiliation of carding an opening seven when Gilford holed from 10 feet for a winning bogey five.

Crosby lost the second to a par four, driving into the rough and hitting his third shot through the green, and the third to a birdie four.

Giants' Clark collects NL award

NEW YORK (UPI) — San Francisco outfielder Jack Clark has been named National League player of the week, it was announced Tuesday.

Last week Clark batted .429, hit five home runs in a row, including a grand slam, and drove in 12 runs in the six games. He hit safely in five of those games.

Other nominees for the award included San Diego outfielder Alan Wiggins, and Los Angeles pitcher Fernando Valenzuela. Wiggins hit .346, scored six runs and stole five bases last week and has scored 22 runs in his last 23 games. He has safely stolen 17 consecutive times.

49er All-Pro could miss season

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — All-Pro guard Randy Cross, injured in a freak accident at a charity event last weekend, likely will be lost to the San Francisco 49ers for the entire 1982 season, according to head Coach Bill Walsh.

Cross suffered a broken fibula and torn ligaments in his left ankle when he lost his grip swinging on a rope and fell to a canvas-covered water pit.

On Tuesday, he underwent surgery at Stanford Hospital and shortly thereafter Walsh said he had doubts Cross would be able to play this season.

"I would expect that he will miss the whole season, that would be my guess," Walsh said. "With this sort of injury the worst thing you could do is try to come back too soon. I'm going to go ahead with plans on the assumption he will not be able to play."

Dan Audick, a versatile offensive lineman, will assume Cross' job at right guard. Last year, Audick played left tackle when Ken Burgarda went on the shelf with injuries.

After the 49ers drafted Bubba Paris this spring, Audick was out of a regular job, but because of his ability to move in quickly, Walsh had him listed as his No. 1 utility man.

"We are very fortunate to have Audick, who can step right in at Randy's spot," Walsh said. "We haven't tried him at right guard but he has a right-handed stance, so I don't anticipate any problems."

Yankees' Gamble tops in AL

NEW YORK (UPI) — Oscar Gamble of the New York Yankees has been named the American League's player of the week, it was announced Tuesday.

Gamble, an outfielder and designated hitter, batted .500 last week with 10 hits in 20 at-bats. He slugged three home runs, collected nine RBI, scored seven runs and had a slugging percentage of 1.250.

Other players receiving consideration for the award were Rick Sweet and Bill Caudill of Seattle, Cecil Cooper of Milwaukee, Andre Thornton of Cleveland and Greg Luzinski of Chicago.

Lions' coach inks 5-year pact

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — Monte Clark, the Detroit Lions head coach and director of football operations who led his team to the brink of the NFL playoffs the past two years, has signed a five-year contract with the club's owner William Clay Ford, it was announced Tuesday.

The new agreement, which runs through 1987, continues to give the 45-year-old Clark control over the college draft, waivers, scouting and trades. Clark joined the Lions, signing a five-year pact, on Jan. 11, 1978.

No monetary terms of the new contract were released.

"Monte has established a solid foundation, along with the continuing development of his personnel and scouting programs," Ford said in announcing the new contract.

"I have been impressed with the mutual respect that has developed between Monte, his coaching staff and the players. I am looking forward to the 1982 season with great anticipation," Ford added.

Drivers criticize Formula 1 cars

PARIS (UPI) — The International Automobile Sport Federation (FISA) said Tuesday it has received a letter from the Professional Racing Drivers Association charging that present Formula 1 cars were dangerous and demanding that "concrete and immediate" measures be taken to assure their security.

The demand, signed by 21 drivers and dated May 21, asked FISA to inform in writing Frenchman Didier Pironi, head of the PRDA's security commission, before July 1 about appropriate security measures.

The request specifically demanded that the speed of Formula 1 cars be slowed down in curves before the start of the 1983 season.

The letter was sent after the recent death of Canadian Gilles Villenouve in the Belgian Grand Prix.

FISA said it has thanked the drivers for their proposal which, it said, rejoined the one taken by the International Association of the 38 permanent racing circuits.

FISA said in its press statement that its chairman replied as of Tuesday that he shared the drivers' concern and considered himself as being responsible for the application, as of Jan. 1 1983, of new racing rules and that appropriate procedure had been voted by FISA last April 26 at its conference in Casablanca, Morocco.

Injury from brawl shelves Reed

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Philadelphia Phillies reliever Ron Reed sustained a cracked rib in a bench-clearing brawl during a game with the Cincinnati Reds and will be sidelined for at least two weeks, it was announced Tuesday.

Team physician Dr. Phillip Marone estimated that Reed will be out of action for at least two weeks. A decision whether to place Reed on the 21-day disabled list will be made later, a Phils spokesman said.

Reed, Reds' shortstop Dave Concepcion and Reds' pitcher Mario Soto were ejected as a result of the brawl Monday night.

The brawl erupted when Reed hit Mario Soto in the back with a pitch. Soto earlier hit both Mike Schmidt and Bob Dernier with pitches.

NHL

Players Association demands less free-agent compensation

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — The NHL Players Association presented its contract demands to the owners Tuesday, requesting a lessening of compensation for free-agent players.

"The players met for two days and we presented our report to the owners this morning," said Alan Eagleson, executive director of the Players Association. "Needless to say, after the owners picked themselves off the floor, the meeting went well.

"The subject primarily dealt with the adjustment of the equalization and stabilization of compensation, our desired result being no player be compensated for by greater than a first-round draft pick."

Eagleson said that the owners differed in their approach because as a group they are losing $20 million annually and they anticipated no loosening of the agreement.

"The economic overview of the entertainment and sports field of hockey has us a distance apart," said NHL President John A. Ziegler, Jr. "I am encouraged by both sides having specific proposals and that we are talking. The extreme likelihood is that we will reach agreement."

In effect, the owners want status quo, which means virtually equal compensation when a veteran free agent moves. The players, who originally wanted complete free agency, have modified that, as expected, to ask that the compensation never involve more than a draft pick.

"After getting over our initial shock of the players' proposal, the dialogue we had was the best ever," said William Wirtz, owner of the Chicago Black Hawks. "We have mutual respect and the players admit the best benefit package in any professional sport.

"In football a first-round draft choice has a greater value and can usually immediately help a team, which is not usually the case with hockey. The first right of refusal (NBA compensation system) won't work. I am a Chicago Bulls governor in the NBA and it's a nightmare."

Tony Esposito, the president of the Players Association, denied a rumor that six members of the association had resigned from the negotiating committee.

"That rumor is totally without any basis," Esposito said. "We are 100 percent in support of our negotiating officers, and even though we are quite a bit apart from the league, the negotiations are very amicable."

Calgary club names new coach

CALGARY, Alberta (UPI) — Bob Johnson, who coached the University of Wisconsin for 15 years and guided the U.S. hockey team in the recent Canada Cup tournament, Tuesday was named head coach of the NHL's Calgary Flames.

The Flames, who finished third in the Smythe Division and 13th overall in the NHL with a 29-34-17 record, signed Johnson to a three-year contract for an undisclosed amount.

"I'm well aware of the pressure," Johnson said. "I'm at the point in my career where I felt I wanted to try a different phase of the game."

Johnson, 51, who has coached U.S. national teams in several international competitions and has compiled the best coaching record in the NCAA in the 15 years he has led the Badgers, is described as an innovator, communicator and top-notch recruiter.

"When the decision was made by me to make a coaching change, we evaluated all the potential candidates," said Cliff Fletcher, Flames president and general manager. "Bob Johnson was the only one that we were seriously interested in."

Johnson said he chose the pro ranks over an offer to coach the U.S. Olympic team because, "It's a difficult job taking young players and trying to convince them not to turn pro."

He said he was "free" to select his own assistants and wants someone who "loves hockey, is communicative with players and knows something about the game."

Vulnerable: North-South. Dealer: North. The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1♦	2♠	3 NT	All pass

Opening lead: Spade eight

In the play of today's interesting game, declarer doesn't really know where the key high cards are. Nevertheless, he must play as if he knows where they ought to be.

Declarer wins the first spade and puzzles over who has the diamond ace and heart king. If he wonders too long and plays diamonds first, the game will slip away. West will win the first diamond to lead his second spade and East will get his spades when the heart finesse loses.

Declarer should reason that the game is unmakable if East has both key cards. Therefore, he should play West for at least one of them.

At trick two, declarer should take the heart finesse since sooner or later, he must do this in any event. The heart finesse loses and East knocks out declarer's last spade but the game is now safe. When West gets his ace of diamonds, he will have no spade to lead and declarer slides home with nine tricks.

When one opponent threatens with a long suit, it's best to first attack the suit which may give him a sure entry. In today's hand, if West had held the heart king, the finesse would win four tricks and there would be no concern about who had the diamond ace.

ANSWER: Two spades. An admitted underbid and I'm afraid that I'd really bid a non-forcing three spades in actual play because of the good spades and the key kings.

Delivers the taste of cigarettes with up to twice the tar.

—Landmark Smoker Study

Extensive research proves 'Enriched Flavor' MERIT consistently matches the taste of leading higher tar brands.

Latest research offers the most conclusive evidence yet confirming MERIT as the proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking.

MERIT Taste Does It!

In impartial tests where brand identity was concealed, the overwhelming majority of smokers reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands.

Moreover, when tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

Taste Debate Ends.

In a second part of the same study, smokers confirm that MERIT taste is a major factor in completing their successful switch from higher tar brands.

Confirmed: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers report MERIT is an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.

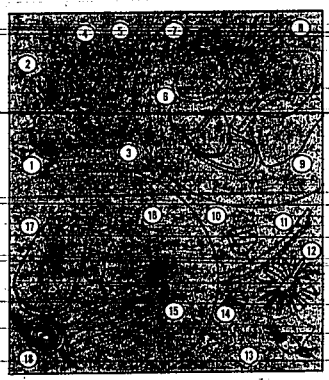
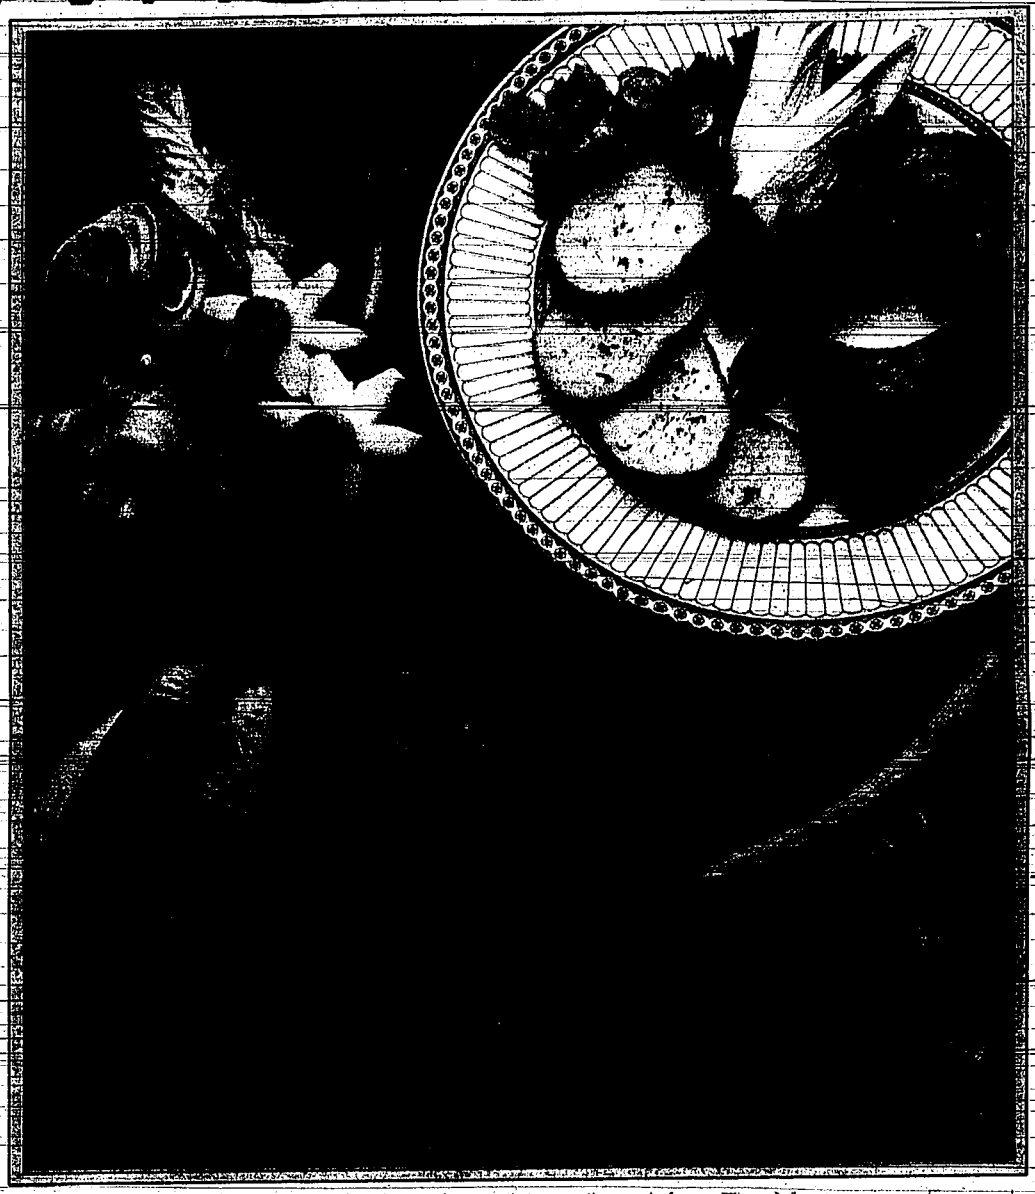
PLATE APPEAL: Turning a Plain-Looking Plate Into Oh What a Dish!

Plate Appeal: it's the difference between a mundane meal and a divine dinner. An accent on presentation as much as on preparation...on achieving a plate which will tantalize the eyes as it tempts the taste buds.

Today's emphasis on plate appeal requires an appreciation of color and balance. While it once sufficed to follow Julia Child's recipes, today's cooks can also learn from the Dutch Masters' rules. But even a home chef can earn her artistic license. With a few simple tricks on balancing colors, shapes, and textures, every meal can be a magnificent masterpiece.



1. Carrot curls on Romaine lettuce. 2. Lemon and lime slices twisted with watercress. 3. Turnip-sculptured daisy with carrot center and celery stem. 4. Black olive slices tucked into a radish fan. 5. Green onion brush. 6. Home Style Potato Planks™ topped with thyme and parsley. 7. Radish flower. 8. Belgian endive on curly kale. 9. Lamb chops. 10. Carrot accordin woven with watercress. 11. Celery stick wand. 12. Carrot corkscrew topped with carrot leaf. 13. Thin carrot strips placed in a black olive. 14. Sculptured radish. 15. Fresh asparagus spears. 16. Tater Tots®. 17. Salmon on a light dill sauce, topped with lime slices and fresh dill. 18. Tomato rose.



The Palatable Palette

Think color when planning the various courses of the meal, for color is the key ingredient in an attractive plate. The more varied a palette used, the more palatable a plate you'll create.

When choosing foods for the meal, start with the main entree and select side dishes of complementary colors. If a dark colored main dish, like prime rib, will be served, add potatoes to fill in the medium and golden colors and a light colored vegetable or salad to round out the spectrum.

Splashes of color will add elegance and excitement to the meal. Sieved egg, parsley, paprika, and chopped pimento, for instance, can be used to change the color of foods without affecting their taste. Or serve mixtures of contrasting vegetables—julienne strips of carrot and zucchini or green beans laced with red cabbage.

Food companies are responding to the interest in visual effects by providing products with extra color attraction. Ore-Ida Foods, for example, added the appeal of the peel to its new Home Style™ Potato line for color contrast and extra hearty taste.

All food colors on the plate need not contrast sharply, however. Several shades of the same color can be featured to achieve a monochromatic look. The dark green of broccoli, for instance, can be softened with the more delicate green of cucumber slices or artichoke leaves. Offset the green shades with light foods like fish or poultry.

Garnishes: The Strokes of Genius

Garnishes are no longer limited to radish roses and sprigs of parsley. Today "anything goes"—as long as it really does go with the colors, shapes, and textures used in the main entree and side dishes.

House plant cuttings can be washed off to add a dash of panache to the plate. And celery and carrot leaves, once doomed to the disposal, are now savored for their soft greenness and warmth. Even a tomato peel, thinly sliced, can be delicately arranged into a beautiful rose, which by any other name would still be an eye-catcher.

The trend toward more natural effects can be seen in today's garnishes. Clusters of red grapes, fresh pink shrimp, and citrus fruits cut with a saw-toothed edge are among the garnishes literally beautiful enough to eat.

Some garnishes earn extra points because they serve a double duty. Fresh dill and flower petals, for instance, add fragrance and color to the plate. And thin strips of celery or lemon, placed in ice water until they curl, provide brightness and interesting shapes to the plate.

Shapes and Sizes: A Balanced Picture

Fat, skinny, large, small. Round, square, short, tall. Variety is the spice of life, and the secret to creating a plate with appeal. To design a dish with dazzle, you'll need a collection of contours and conformations.

Some foods can be shaped and sized for geometric variance. Most vegetables, for instance, can be cut into sticks or cubes or shredded. And if arranged with an eye for architecture (crosshatches of red pepper sticks or parallel lines of green onion slivers), the plate will win extra praise. Another trick to use large foods as a base for smaller items—a hollowed out green pepper filled with marinated fruit or a ratatouille of vegetables atop Ore-Ida Home Style Potato Planks™.

Look for products that provide a host of sizes and shapes. Ore-Ida, for instance, offers Tater Tots®, Hash Browns, French fries and more for a variety of potatoes that serves the mood of any meal. Let your artistic expression flow and engineer a delectable design. For today's dining, it matters what shape.

Art in Good Taste

A masterpiece of shapes and colors will earn applause on the visual scorecard, but the meal must taste as good as it looks for the chef to score a standing ovation.

Side dishes should be selected with the main entree in mind. A slice of meat served with a sharp mustard sauce or a peppery gravy calls for a mellow vegetable, topped with melted butter or a mild glaze. Distinct flavors can also be countered with sweet tastes—a dried fruit stuffing, sweet-glazed potatoes, or a sweet pickle served on the side. Or, take a cue from the Europeans and serve a tossed lettuce salad after the entree so guests can clear the palate and appreciate all the different flavors served.

Dabbling in Sauces

Sauces save many a cook. They can make bland foods more flavorful and dry foods more palatable. There's a tendency to overdo on sauces, however. Just adding a sauce to a food doesn't make it gourmet. As a general rule, use only one sauce per meal. Spoon sparingly alongside the item or place underneath, allowing the food to shine on its own merits.

The Masterpiece Framed

The plate serves as a backdrop for foods. A display piece for the dinner you've designed, the color of the plate should enhance and highlight the foods selected.

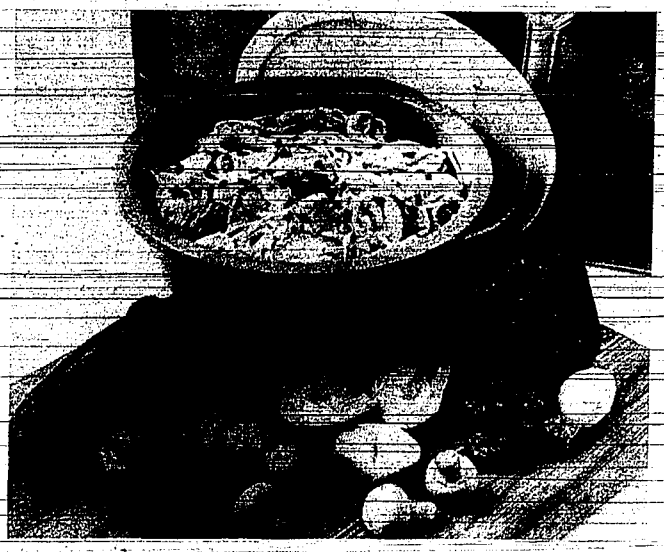
A white or beige surface is easiest to work with because it will complement any food color. While dark colors require more thoughtful menu planning, the background can bring a striking contrast to a light colored menu. To "frame" the meal you've sketched, choose a plate with a small border around the rim.

Minimalist Movement: Less is Best

"Less" is the trend in quantities of food served, a movement nutritionists applaud. Keep seconds ready in the kitchen for hearty eaters, but don't make others feel obliged to burst their buttons to prove they've enjoyed your meal.

By serving smaller amounts, you can leave more space between the food so guests can appreciate the balance of colors and shapes you've created. Make the individual offerings as stunning as the total picture by centering the food on the plate, keeping each item separate.

The home cook need not be a Michelangelo to create a plate with appeal. With a little time, a lot of imagination, and an eye for colors and shapes, common foods can be transformed into royal feasts, creating an aura of magic guests will remember long after the party's over.



Antipasto Spaghetti Salad topped with mayonnaise is chilled and ready for a picnic

Picnics ancient practice

ENGLECLIFFS, N.J. — The fine art of elegant outdoor eating has been practiced for centuries. Europe's royal courts, for instance, would move en masse to a flowering hillside to dine sumptuously while enjoying nature.

Of course it required a palace-size staff to prepare and transport a suitable repast for the royal family and its entourage.

These courtly outings have been scaled down over the years to suit more casual lifestyles. But picnics continue to be a celebration of good food, select company and pastoral surroundings.

Today picnics have a casualness of old-time outings, but with modern overtures. Numerous precautions that are taken today to prevent food spoilage were unknown or unpracticed years ago. One primary precaution is cleanliness. The bacterial growth that can lead to food poisoning is preventable, and special care in preparation is the one way to reduce this risk.

And, as tempting as picnic leftovers may seem, don't risk bringing them home. Instead, bring home memories of a day well enjoyed and of good food, such as these three pasta salad recipes. They have an international flavor and are appropriate for even the most elegant picnics.

Mushrooms top eating

Times-News Correspondent

For instance, slice or dice and saute some in butter or margarine. Sliced onion, mashed garlic or another favorite seasoning may be sauteed with them. Eat them as a sidedish for steaks or roasts. Spoon them over scrambled eggs or cheese omelets.

Sauteed mushroom freeze better than fresh ones. If you find an especially good buy, saute them all. Then freeze them in ¼ cup molds which can be thawed, reheated and used in the same ways as above.

Our most liked mushrooms are raw, as is, because of low calories. Next best are stuffed mushrooms which we serve as cocktail hors d'oeuvres, before main course appetizers and main meal side dishes. Following are a few from our private collection of stuffed mushroom recipes.

STUFFED RAW MUSHROOMS

½ cup cream cheese
½ cup Roquefort cheese
2 teaspoons mayonnaise
½ cup ground walnuts
1 teaspoon steak sauce (A-1, Heinz, etc.)
½ teaspoon curry powder

Remove stems from mushrooms; set mushroom caps aside; mince stems which can be sauteed and frozen for later use. In small bowl, combine cheeses, mayonnaise, nut, steak sauce and curry powder. Using pastry bag, squeeze cheese mixture into bowls of mushrooms caps. Cover and chill until ready to serve.

CHICKEN LIVER-STUFFED MUSHROOMS

1 dozen large mushrooms, rinsed and patted dry with paper toweling
4-5 tablespoons buttter or margarine
½ pound chicken livers
1 very small onion, peeled and minced
1 package, 3 oz., cream cheese, softened
¼ teaspoon crushed sweet basil
¼ teaspoon crushed oregano
salt and pepper to taste

Remove stems from mushrooms; set caps aside; finely chop stems. In small skillet, heat half of butter or margarine; add mushroom caps and saute about 5 minutes, turning to slightly cook all sides; remove to a plate. Add remaining butter or margarine; add chicken livers and minced onion; cook until lightly browned. Mince livers and let cool. In small bowl, combine cream cheese, minced livers and onion, basil, oregano and salt and pepper to season to taste. Stuff mushrooms; cover and chill until ready to serve.

HAM-STUFFED MUSHROOMS

1 dozen large mushrooms, rinsed and patted dry with paper toweling
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 small onion, peeled and minced
2 tablespoons dry white wine
1 cup finely chopped boiled ham
mayonnaise
salt and pepper to season to taste
1 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

Preheat oven to 350° F.

Remove stems from mushrooms and mince. In small skillet, melt butter or margarine. Add minced stems and cook over low heat until they are tender. Add wine and cook until liquid is reduced. Remove skillet from heat; stir in chopped ham. Season to taste with salt and peper. Put mixture into bowls of mushroom caps. Sprinkle each with Parmesan cheese. Dop tops with a small pat of butter or margarine. Put filled mushroom caps into a shallow baking dish just large enough to keep them together. Bake about 15 minutes or until caps are tender.

THIS WEEK'S BEST MARKET BUYS: Strawberries are delicious right now. Look for after-the-holiday picnic food bargains. Meat prices aren't what we would like them to be. Buy meats for skewering and fondling such as chuck and round steak. Nurse your pennies until the weather turns warmer and the fresh produce begins to flood in.

New electronic system to foil shoplifters

By PATRICIA BELLEW
© Knight-Ridder Newspapers

DEERFIELD BEACH, Fla. — Sensormatic Electronics Corp. has unveiled a new weapon in the battle against shoplifting.

The manufacturer of anti-theft systems has introduced an electronic system for supermarkets designed to foil shoplifting of such items as tins of caviar and crab meat.

"We believe that there's an enormous potential market for our system," Ronald Assaf, chairman of Sensormatic, says. "Supermarkets need as much — or more — protection from shoplifters these days as department stores. Some folks can be pretty light-fingered at the meat department."

Sensormatic is the nation's dominant manufacturer of anti-theft electronic systems for retailers, according to such analysts as Loran Braverman with Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner and Smith Inc. in New York City.

Braverman figures that Sensormatic has had a 39 percent compound annual growth rate in revenues and a 60 percent annual growth rate in profits in the last five years.

Most recently, in fact, the company announced that net income soared 77 percent to $2.3 million for its fiscal third quarter.

Revenues climbed 20 percent to $10.9 million from $9.2 million in the 1981 quarter.

Distraught shopkeepers, desperate to find a system that would deter theft and thereby cut their losses, begged Sensormatic for a variety of tags that could be applied to almost any item.

NEW YORK — It's High Noon!

Big Tuna Muffins are heading this away, ready to take on all comers — most of all, them ornery Hunger Pangs that attack without warning at lunchtime.

What's this Tuna Muffin business all about? Well, pardner, lots of folks today are getting pretty savvy about what's going on in nutrition and who nutrition's "Good Guys" really are. Tuna — complete protein-packing fare rates Double Go-go-od!

That's why Big Tuna Muffins are the "White Hats" when it comes to Sudden Starvation. Tuna's always been a gusty hero to Americans. (It's been a gutsy sandwich, too.) But times are a-changing. Young 'uns are looking for something new.

Now Chow, they call it. And Big Tuna Muffins are ready to move into lunchtime territory as potential winners. They're as easy to rustle up as they are to tote around in a knapsack, brown bag or dude briefcase.

The fixing is as simple as all get out. You need two things: muffin batter (your own or a mix) and a quick tuna filling. Here are recipes for three stick-to-the ribs variations. You can eat 'em warm or at room temperature. Either way when you sink your teeth into one of those two-fisted Big Tuna Muffins, you know what satisfaction is.

MEXICALI BIG TUNA CORN MUFFINS

1 package, 10 oz., corn bread mix
1 egg
¾ cup milk

Grease twelve 2½-inch muffin pan cups. In medium bowl combine corn bread mix, egg and milk; stir just until dry ingredients are moistened. Place 1 tablespoon batter in each muffin cup. Spoon 3 to 4 tablespoons Mexicali Tuna Filling* over the batter, pressing it gently so batter comes up around filling.

Spread a heaping tablespoon of batter over filling so that it covers the filling. Repeat until all ingredients are used. Bake in 400° F. oven 25 minutes until muffins are golden brown. Remove from oven and allow to stand 10 minutes before removing from pan. Serve warm or at room temperature. (Makes 12 muffins.)

MEXICALI TUNA FILLING

1 can, 6½ or 7 ounces tuna, drained and flaked
1 can Mexicali corn, drained
½ cup shredded Cheddar cheese
½ cup mayonnaise
½ teaspoon ground cumin

In a small bowl combine all ingredients; mix well. (Makes about 2½ cups filling.)

BIG TUNA SESAME MUFFINS

2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoon toasted sesame seeds
1 egg, lightly beaten
1 cup milk
¼ cup vegetable oil

Grease twelve 2½-inch muffin-pan cups; set aside. In medium bowl sift together flour, baking powder, sugar and salt; stir in sesame seeds. In small bowl combine egg, milk and oil. Add egg mixture all at once to the flour mixture. Stir just until flour is moistened. (Batter will be lumby.)

Place 1 tablespoon batter in each muffin cup. Spoon about 3 tablespoons Savory Tuna Filling* over the batter, pressing gently so batter comes up around filling. Spoon a heaping tablespoon of batter over the filling so batter covers filling. Repeat until all ingredients are used. Bake at 400° F oven for 20 to 30 minutes until muffins are golden brown. Remove from oven and allow to stand 10 minutes before removing from pan. Serve warm or at room temperature. (Makes 12 muffins.)

BIG TUNA WHEAT MUFFIN

1 cup whole wheat flour
¾ cup all-purpose flour
3 tablespoons sugar
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg, lightly beaten
1 cup milk
¼ cup oil

Grease twelve 2½-inch muffin-pan cups; set aside. In medium bowl sift together flours, sugar, baking powder and salt. In small bowl combine egg, milk and oil. Add egg mixture, all at once, to flour mixture. Stir just until flour is moistened. (Batter will be lumpy.) Place 1 tablespoon batter in each muffin-pan cup. Spoon about 3 tablespoons Savory Tuna Filling* or Curry Tuna Filling* over the batter, pressing gently so batter comes up around filling. Spoon a heaping tablespoon of batter over filling so batter covers filling. Repeat until all ingredients are used. Bake in 400° F. oven 25 to 30 minutes until muffins are golden brown. Remove from oven and allow to stand 10 minutes before removing from pan. Serve warm or at room temperature. (Makes 12 muffins.)

SAVORY TUNA FILLING

1 can, 6½ or 7 oz., tuna, drained and flaked
¾ cup chopped onion
½ cup cooked peas, drained
¼ cup chopped, canned mushrooms
⅓ cup mayonnaise
½ teaspoon dried savory, crumbled
¼ teaspoon salt
3 dashes hot pepper sauce

In medium bowl combine all ingredients; mix well. (Makes about 2¼ cups filling.)

CURRY TUNA FILLING

1 can, 6½ or 7 ounces, tuna drained and flaked
¾ cup cored, pared and chopped apple
½ cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped nuts
¼ cup chopped scallion
½ cup mayonnaise
½ teaspoon curry powder

In medium bowl combine all ingredients; mix well. (Makes about 2½ cups filling.)

USDA has new central source to answer food questions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — People with questions about food safety can get answers from a new, central source in the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The new system is designed to eliminate unnecessary duplication and delay that sometimes occur when people must write or call several places, says Agriculture Secretary John R. Block.

Block says the department prefers written queries to the phone, however. Mail should be directed to Food Safety Consumer Inquiries, Room 1163-S, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Among the issues the system can respond to are complaints about the wholesomeness, quality or labeling of products containing meat or poultry and questions about cooking and storage temperatures for meat and poultry.

A bargain's not certain until it's run up on cash register

By MARTIN SLOANE
United Feature Syndicate

DEAR MARTIN — Please caution your readers to pay particular attention to the weighing and pricing of produce, especially when this is done at the checkout counter and not by an experienced person in the produce department.

I purchased 3 pounds of Italian Blue plums. Their price was 29 cents a pound — a bargain! But the cashier rang them up for a total of $2.65.

When I questioned her, she said that the plums were 89 cents a pound. The problem was that she confused "my" plums with another variety of dark plums that were much more expensive.

A bargain is no bargain until it is rung up properly at the register. — Violet S. from Villa Park, Ill.

DEAR VIOLET — When shoppers reach the checkout counter, they should do a little checking of their own:

• If you buy one of an item, make sure that you are charged for only one. A reader wrote to tell me that she bought a single can of soda and the computer charged her $2.39, the cost of a full six-pack.

• Make sure that you are charged for the correct variety, not a more expensive one. The plums are a good example.

• When you buy an item on sale, make sure that you are charged the sale price. This is by far the most frequent error.

DEAR MARTIN — I have heard from some grocery store employees that the stores now pay for the refund forms they receive. Is this true? — Marie M. from Auburn, Ind.

DEAR MARIE — No, it is not true.

The many companies that make refund offers do not sell their refund forms to the supermarkets. Tear-off pads are given to the stores as part of the company's overall promotional program to support the sale of its products.

These pads of forms are occasionally included as a part of a display that is shipped to stores along with the merchandise. This may have lead to the misconception on the part of those employees.

SMART SHOPPER AWARD

"I just solved one of my most painful refunding problems — removing cap liners from soft-drink bottles. In the past, I always wound up with hurt and bleeding fingers.

"Now, I put the caps in boiling water for five to 10 minutes. They either float to the surface or easily lift off with a little prying."

Ms. Downey and other readers whose tips appear in this column receive a free copy of my refunding magazine, The National Supermarket Shopper. Write to me in care of this newspaper.

This is a heavy, rich pudding and is tasty served with whipped cream.

2 cups hot water
4 tablespoons tapioca
3 tablespoons butter
6 tablespoons brown sugar
1 cup pitted dates, coarsely chopped
1 cup chopped nuts
½ teaspoon vanilla
Pinch salt, if desired
Whipped cream

In medium saucepan, combine water and tapioca; cook over low heat until tapioca is clear and mixture thickened. Remove from heat and set aside. In small saucepan, combine butter and brown sugar; heat until sugar is melted. Stir sugar mixture into cooked tapioca. Stir in dates, nuts and vanilla. Bananas best selling fruit in entire world

By CHARLENE NEVADA
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

Seldom costing more than 44 cents a pound, and occasionally selling for as low as 24 cents a pound, the banana is the No. 1 fruit in America.

Americans gobble down 5 billion pounds of bananas a year. That's more than 26 pounds for each man, woman and child.

"It's the top-selling fruit in the whole world. It's a dynamite item," said Tim Horvath, director of produce for Acme-Click stores in northeastern Ohio.

It's little wonder. This nicely packaged fruit is not only tasty and filling, but also nutritious — providing a major source of potassium as well as several other vitamins and minerals.

And, perhaps equally important to many Americans, bananas are low in salt, low in fat and low in calories. Depending on the size, bananas range from 81 to 116 calories.

Although one of the world's oldest fruits (the Koreans believe it was a banana rather than an apple that tempted Adam in the Garden of Eden), the banana is relatively new on the American scene.

Portuguese explorers carried the banana plant to this hemisphere 500 years ago. But for a long time, its domain was the tropics.

Bananas were first sold in New Orleans markets in the 1830s by traders from Honduras and Costa Rica.

There, according to the Banana Bunch, a group that speaks for many major banana importers, the strange-looking yellow fruit was one of two chief curiosities of the fair. The other was the telephone.

Bananas were not forgotten after the fair ended. But for a long time, they were hard to get. Most often, they were over-ripe by the time they reached this country.

One big break for the banana came with the building of the Costa Rican railroad near the end of the 19th century. Coupled with improved U.S. shipping, the banana began to take hold.

Today, the banana business is primarily dominated by three firms: Chiquita (United Fruit Companies), Dole and Del Monte.

One reason that the price does not fluctuate (a high of 44 cents a pound and a low of 24 cents is nothing compared to the way lettuce fluctuates) is the fact that this is a year-round crop. There aren't growing gaps when the fruit is out of season and hard to get.

Imports are not limited, which also helps to assure a steady supply.

Today, bananas are harvested before they are ripe and shipped from the tropics to special warehouses in the United States where they are partially ripened under controlled conditions.

When purchased at the supermarket, they often are yellow with green tips, meaning they are almost ripe. A few days at home and a few brown flecks will start to appear — signaling prime eating time.

If you buy bananas and they reach this brown-fleck stage, you can put them in the refrigerator to prevent further ripening.

To some, that statement might sound strange.

During the 1940s, in fact, one major banana importer, the United Fruit Co., invented a character — Miss Chiquita — to go on the radio to sing to Americans to "never put bananas in the refrigerator."

Last year, the Chiquita company released a statement telling people "times have changed ... and so has Miss Chiquita's advice."

When the Latin American senorita was warbling warnings about refrigerators, bananas were being shipped to grocers on stalks. The grocer would hang the stalks from the ceiling and sell them.

"When you bought these bananas, it would take a while for them to ripen," the company release said. "The act of putting them in the refrigerator would halt the ripening process, and hence the line forbidding refrigeration went into Miss Chiquita's song."

Now, with special warehouses doing the pre-ripening, those bananas are nearer to maturity when they reach the grocer.

Refrigerating them will affect the peel, turning it dark and yes, less appealing. But the fruit will not be affected. And the refrigeration will hold the ripeness for two to four days.

Although the primary way bananas are eaten is out of hand — for snacking — they combine especially well with other foods and are excellent for using in desserts.

DOUBLE-DIPPED CHOCOLATE BANANAS

10 chocolate sandwich cookies
1 12-oz. pkg. chocolate morsels
6 tablespoons vegetable oil
3 medium-sized bananas
6 popsicle sticks

Cut bananas in half crosswise and insert sticks in cut end. Place in freezer about one hour.

In the meantime, roll cookies until they are finely crushed, or crush them in the blender. Spread crumbs evenly in bottom of pie plate.

Remove bananas from freezer a few at a time. (Dipping bananas while they are cold makes the chocolate stick better.)

Dip the bananas, one at a time, into the chocolate mixture and coat well. After dipping each banana, quickly roll it into cookie crumbs to coat. Spoon on additional crumbs until banana is completely covered. Press crumbs gently into all surfaces.

Let bananas stand five minutes, so coating sets. Wrap with waxed paper and store in freezer.

BANANA MILK SHAKE

1 mashed very-ripe banana
1 cup chilled milk
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
Pinch of salt

Put all ingredients into a blender and blend with a few ice cubes.

BANANAS FOSTER

½ cup light brown sugar, firmly packed
4 ripe bananas, peeled and halved lengthwise
¼ cup banana liqueur
½ cup white rum
1 pint French vanilla ice cream
Dash nutmeg

In a shallow, flat chafing pan or large attractive skillet, melt the butter.

Stir in brown sugar and cook until bubbly. Arrange banana slices in a single layer and saute until tender, turning once (takes about five minutes).

Sprinkle with nutmeg and pour in banana liqueur. Warm the rum in small saucepan or deep ladle until steaming. Ignite with long, tapered match and pour over the bananas.

Remove skillet from heat and baste bananas until flame burns out. Serve immediately. Top each serving with a spoonful of soft ice cream.

BALI HAI CREAM

1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 eggs
½ cup sugar
1 cup pineapple juice
½ cup flaked coconut
¼ teaspoon almond extract
1 cup whipping cream

Cut banana into chunks. In blender or food processor, puree banana and lemon juice until almost smooth.

In a medium bowl, beat eggs and sugar until thick and smooth. Stir in pureed banana, pineapple juice, coconut, almond extract and whipping cream.

If you have an ice cream maker, pour the mixture into the canister and follow the manufacturer's directions.

If not, pour mixture in a nine-inch square pan or several undivided ice trays. Cover with foil or plastic wrap. Put in freezer. Freeze until firm, three to six hours.

For a smoother texture, freeze until almost firm, one to three hours. Break into small pieces. Spoon half of mixture into a large chilled bowl or chilled food processor bowl.

Here's homespun dessert

By LINDA CICERO
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

A reader asked us for a recipe for a homespun dessert she called Apple Grunt or Apple John, which she had misplaced in moving.

We received recipes for Apple Crisp and for Apple Pandowdy, but Charles Barkeau of Nassau, the Bahamas, sent us the real thing, a recipe for Apple John, from "The Yankee Cookbook" by Imogene Wolcott.

YANKEE APPLE JOHN

6 tart apples, thinly sliced
2 cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
Two-thirds cup milk
¾ cup fine sugar
¾ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg

Grease shallow baking dish and layer in sliced apples. Sift flour with baking powder and salt. Cut in shortening until mixture is fine. Add milk, mixing until a soft dough is formed. Knead lightly on floured board, roll to fit pan, brush with milk and sprinkle on sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg mixed together. Bake at 450 degrees for 25 minutes. Makes 5 servings.

Barkeau says he serves Apple John with nutmeg sauce or with a lemon custard sauce.

NUTMEG SAUCE

1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
2 tablespoons flour
Dash of salt
2 cups boiling water
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon vinegar

In saucepan mix together sugar, nutmeg, flour and salt. Gradually stir in hot water. Bring to a boil, reduce heat, and cook until sauce is thick and clear, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and stir in butter and vinegar. Serve hot.

Because this recipe is so easy, we thought we'd print it, too:

APPLE CRISP

Butter pie plate and fill with 5 small apples, thinly sliced. Add 2 tablespoons of water. Mix together ¼ cup sugar, 1 cup Bisquick, cinnamon to taste and 1 egg. Sprinkle this on top of apples and bake at 400 degrees for 25 minutes.

Q. Cooking and baking for me are a lot of fun, and I am always looking around for new recipes. In a certain Hollywood (Calif.) restaurant, my husband and I love to order chocolate mousse pie. It is heavenly! I have tried to get the recipe from the restaurant via the Los Angeles Times, but no luck. Do you have a good recipe for it? Their crust was light brown and crunchy, as though made with nuts. I have also had it with a crust made of chocolate cookie crumbs. — I.Q., Arcadia, Calif.

A. We found it in "The Los Angeles Times Cookbook," compiled by the Times staff and recently published by Harry Abrams Inc. This recipe was developed by Justice Mildred Lillie of the Los Angeles Court of Appeals, when she, like you, grew tired of having to go to a restaurant to enjoy mousse pie. We hope this is what you had in mind:

CHOCOLATE CRUST

Two-thirds (8½ ounce) package dark chocolate wafers (about 25 cookies or 1 and two-thirds cups when crushed)
2 tablespoons butter, melted

Grind wafers in blender container until crumbs are very fine. Combine butter with crumbs and pat onto sides and bottom of buttered 9-inch springform pan. Bake at 325 degrees for 10 minutes. Remove from oven and cool completely before filling.

CHERRY CORDIALS

13 maraschino cherries with stems, drained
½ cup brandy
5 ounces semisweet chocolate

Soak cherries in brandy and place in freezer. Melt chocolate over hot water. When cherries are frozen, dry on paper towel and quickly dip, one at a time, into chocolate, swirling around by the stem until completely covered. The chocolate will harden almost immediately. Place on waxpaper-lined rack in refrigerator until ready to use.

Capture summer with no-cook berry jam

ENGLEWOOD CLIFFS, N.J. — Summer with all its special delights, slips by too quickly. But, there are ways to capture a bit of it.

One way is by making jam, that captures the very essence of summer fruit. The trick is in a quick no-cook method with infinite advantages over the kind of jam Granma toiled over, having to cook and cook and skim and seal.

No-Cook jam is easy to make, needs no cooking and retains all the natural beauty and flavor of fruit. It can be made in small batches, requires no special equipment or storage container, and it stays summer-fresh even while winter winds are blowing.

Nearly all summer fruits are suitable for No-Cook jams, or they can be mixture of fruits as in the recipes given here. Corn syrup is part of the technology of making no-cook jams; it helps prevent crystallization without altering any of the fresh fruit flavor.

Pectin, which along with the lemon juice makes the jams "set up" are also important ingredients. Follow the recipes exactly, in both the amounts and procedures.

When making no-cook jam, fill any containers (decorative gift jars, for instance), that can go into the freezer, but do allow ½-inch headspace for expansion as the jam freezes. Refrigerate the jam for several weeks without freezing if you wish, or freeze it until needed. Then store the jam in the refrigerator and enjoy a pleasant return to summer each time you uncap the jam pot.

NO-COOK RASPBERRY STRAWBERRY BLUEBERRY JAM

1 pint fully ripe strawberries
½ cup fully ripe blueberries
¼ cup lemon juice
1 package, 2 oz., jam and jelly pectin
1 cup light corn syrup
4½ cups sugar

Thoroughly crush raspberries, 1 layer at a time, until juice begins to flow. Measure 1½ cups. Remove stems from strawberries; fully crush one layer at a time, to let juice flow freely. Measure 1½ cups. Rinse blueberries; fully crush berries, one layer at a time, to let juice flow freely. Measure ½ cup. In large bowl or saucepan stir together fruit and lemon juice.

Slowly sift in jam and jelly pectin, stirring vigorously. Set aside 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add corn syrup, stirring well. Gradually stir in sugar. To hasten sugar dissolving, jam mixture may be heated very slightly, but do not heat to more than 100° F (lukewarm). Ladle into clean ½- or 1-pint freezer containers leaving ½-inch headspace (no paraffin needed). Cover with tight lids. Jam to be eaten within a week or two may be stored in refrigerator. Store remaining containers in freezer and transfer to refrigerator as needed. (Makes eight ½-pint containers.)

NO-COOK RASPBERRY STRAWBERRY KIWI JAM

1 pint fully ripe raspberries
1 pint fully ripe strawberries
2 medium fully ripe kiwi
¼ cup lemon juice
1 package, 2 oz., jam and jelly pectin
1 cup light corn syrup
4½ cups sugar

Thoroughly crush raspberries, 1 layer at a time, until juice begins to flow. Measure 1½ cups. Remove stems from strawberries, fully crush one layer at a time, to let juice flow freely. Measure 1½ cups. Stem and peel kiwi. Slice and fully crush kiwi. Measure ¼ cup. In large bowl or saucepan stir together fruit and lemon juice. Slowly sift in jam and jelly pectin, stirring vigorously.

Set aside 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add corn syrup, stirring well. Gradually stir in sugar. To hasten sugar dissolving, jam mixture may be heated slightly, but do not heat to more than 100° F (lukewarm).

Ladel into clean ½- or 1-pint freezer containers leaving ¼-inch headspace (no paraffin needed). Cover with tight lids. Jam to be eaten within a week or two may be stored in refrigerator. Store remaining containers in freezer and transfer to refrigerator as needed. (Makes eight ½-pint containers.)

NO-COOK RASPBERRY CHERRY JAM

1 pint fully ripe raspberries
1 pound fully ripe sweet red cherries
¼ cup lemon juice
1 package, 2 oz., jam and jelly pectin
1 cup light corn syrup
4½ cups sugar

Thoroughly crush raspberries, 1 layer at a time, until juice begins to flow. Measure 1½ cups. Rinse, stem and pit cherries. Finely chop in food chopper, blender or food processor. Measure 1½ cups. In large bowl or sauce pan stir together fruit and lemon juice. Slowly sift in jam and jelly pectin, stirring vigorously.

Set aside 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add corn syrup, stirring well. Gradually stir in sugar. To hasten sugar dissolving, jam mixture may be heated very slightly, but do not heat to more than 100° F (lukewarm). Ladel into clean ½- or 1 pint freezer containers leaving ½-inch headspace (no paraffin needed). Cover with tight lids. Jam to be eaten with a week or two may be stored in refrigerator. Store remaining containers in freezer and transfer to refrigerator as needed. (Makes eight ½-pint containers.)

Fruit pie is 'perfect' dessert

By SUZANNE HAMLIN
New York Daily News

Fresh fruit pies are glorious simply because they are so simple: it's just the pastry, the fruit — baked to its ultimate sweetness — and you.

Aficionados have been known to maintain that a summer fruit pie, made right before dinner and served just warm from the oven, is the world's most perfect dessert. (Admittedly, part of the perfection is the pitcher of heavy cream or — in these days when heavy cream isn't heavy anymore — the bowl of creme fraiche served with it.)

There can be no exact formula for a fresh fruit pie, because so much depends on the juiciness and sweetness of the fruit. One batch of peaches may need half again as much sugar as you used for the same amount two weeks ago. Start out with the smallest amount of sugar and keep tasting until it's just right. Dots of butter add richness, and a big pinch of salt and a tablespoon of lemon juice brings out the flavor in the fruit.

Go easy on the flour or cornstarch: most recipes call for far too much thickener, which results in a gummy pie. Better too many juices than too little: when you cut into a pie and the juices run, then you know it's alive.

Experiment with flavorings, but do it discreetly, just to emphasize the flavor of the fruit: a pinch of nutmeg or a drop of almond extract with peaches and nectarines, a little orange rind with rhubarb, a dash of cassis with blackberries.

Some fruit tastes better in a single crust, others are happier in a double crust. It's a matter of personal taste. Children love a lattice-work topped pie, and they will do almost anything to be allowed to weave the lattice themselves.

Use a simple metal pie pan, the more old-fashioned, the better. An unprepossessing aluminum pie pan makes a far better (far less soggy) pie crust than one baked in glass or pottery.

The recipes here are takeoff points for summer bakers. Adjust them to taste and create your own combinations, depending on what's best at the market. A rhubarb and strawberry pie, or a blackberry and raspberry pie, for example. A spontaneous pie is always the best pie.

BLUEBERRY PIE

Makes 1 9-inch pie
3 heaping cups of blueberries (unsweetened frozen ones are a good substitute for fresh)
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ to ¾ cup of sugar, to taste
2 heaping tablespoons cornstarch
Big pinch of salt
Basic pie crust, doubled
1 tablespoon of butter

Sprinkle the berries with lemon juice, mix the sugar, cornstarch and salt together, then mix with the berries. Let sit for 10 minutes, mixing several times, then taste again for sweetness. Roll out half the dough and line a 9-inch pie tin. Fill with the berries and dot the top with the tablespoon of butter. Brush the edges of the crust with cold water. Roll out the rest of the dough 1-inch larger than the pie. Drape it over the rolling pin and gently place it on top, sealing the edges with your fingers. Trim off the excess with a sharp knife. Slash the top of the pie in five or six places to allow the steam to escape. Put the filled tin on a cookie sheet (to increase the heat and catch any juices) and bake on the lowest level of a preheated 425 degree oven for 15 minutes.

Reduce the heat to 375 and bake for 35 to 40 minutes longer, until the pie heaves and sighs and the juices bubble up. If the edges of the crust start to brown too fast, cover them with a long strip of foil. Let the pie rest on a cooling rack for 20 to 30 minutes so that the juices can thicken and settle. Have vanilla ice cream and heavy cream at the ready.

RASPBERRY AND BLUEBERRY PIE

Makes 1 9-inch pie

Make this exquisite combination exactly like the blueberry pie (above), but use half blueberries and half raspberries. Frozen raspberries are a good substitute for fresh ones, but use less sugar in the recipe if the frozen ones are packed in sugar syrup.

RHUBARB PIE

Makes 1 9-inch pie
1½ pounds rhubarb (4 cups when trimmed), cut into 1-inch pieces, but not peeled (the flavor of rhubarb is in the deep pink peel)
Finely grated rind of one orange
¾ cup of sugar, approximately
2 tablespoons cornstarch
Big pinch of salt
Basic pie crust
1 tablespoon butter

Mix the rhubarb with the rest of the ingredients, exactly like blueberry pie (above). Line a 9-inch pie plate with the pastry, pile in the fruit, dot with butter. Put on a cookie sheet and bake on the lowest level of a preheated 425 degree oven of 15 minutes, then reduce the heat to 350 degrees and bake for 30 more minutes. Let cool on a rack for 20 to 30 minutes before cutting.

CHERRY PIE

Makes 1 9-inch pie
4 heaping cups Bing cherries, pitted (frozen, unsweetened Bing cherries are a good substitute)
½ teaspoon almond extract
¼ cup sugar, approximately
2 tablespoons cornstarch
Big pinch of salt
1 tablespoon butter
Basic pie crust, doubled

Make and bake exactly as for blueberry pie (above), but make a lattice crust for the pie, cutting the strips from half the dough. Glue each strip securely to the edge with water.

Toddlers who test water can get in over their heads

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm sure everyone has heard of people who have found superhuman strength or courage in times of extreme emergencies.

I just want to write and tell you about my daughter, who is 2 years old. Her best friend is her cousin, who is also 2.

One day while I was on the phone, the two little girls wandered out in the backyard where there is a 10-foot-deep swimming pool. Before I could get off the phone, my little niece had fallen into the deep end of the pool. Before I could get to her, my little 2-year-old girl had already jumped into the pool and pulled her cousin out! It was a miracle. I didn't even know my child could swim, let alone rescue someone. That just goes to show you what a 2-year-old can do.

— PROUD MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I think it is indeed wonderful that your 2-year-old child could save another child's life as yours did, and you have a right to be proud.

But I am wondering, "Proud Mother," why two 2-year-olds were allowed to wander unsupervised in the backyard where there was a 10-foot-deep swimming pool?

I'm glad you wrote. It gives me another opportunity to warn parents, grandparents, baby sitters — anyone who is in charge of children: Do not take your eyes off them for 5 seconds! Their lives are in your hands.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 40-year-old single male. I never married because I never met a woman I wanted to spend the rest of my life with. I am not bad looking and don't look my age.

The problem is with a young woman in her early 20s who lives near me in this small town. She has indicated to me many times that she would like to go out with me, but I've pretended not to notice. Then her parents started to put some pressure on me to take her out. I did nothing about it, so now they are very unfriendly to me. I do not want to lose their friendship, but I am not going to date their daughter just to please them.

How should I handle this situation?

— BACHELOR BY CHOICE

DEAR BACHELOR: If you lose their friendship because you refuse to date their daughter, you haven't lost much. Clear the air by telling them that you would not feel comfortable dating a girl who is young enough to be your daughter.

DEAR ABBY: So many women write to complain that every man they meet expects them to go to bed after the first date. Thanks, Abby, for saying that all men are not alike, that there are plenty of gentlemen who respect a woman for saying "no." I know. I married one.

We met on New Year's Eve, 1976, at a singles club. I was 56 and had never been married. He was 59, had been a widower for nine years and had five grown children. We started dating, and after we got to know each other better, I told him that I was still a virgin. At first he couldn't believe it, but said it was refreshing to find a woman who could hold out as long as I had.

I was no prude, and I wasn't ugly. I had plenty of dates and plenty of chances. I didn't condemn unmarried women who weren't virgins, but I had my own standards and wanted to save myself for the man I married.

On June 30, 1979, we were married, and I'm proud to say I was a 58-year-old virgin. I am signing my real name, but if you print this please sign me..

Dr. Lamb

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Association

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband, 52 years old, is claiming to be impotent. He is a self-admitted alcoholic but has been sober six years in the AA program.

We seem to be very compatible, live comfortably and he has a steady job he likes very much with no problems or worries of being laid off.

As his wife I cannot see any problems that would bring on this condition. He has had this problem only in the last year. He is seven years younger than I, but I am very active for my age. I do not know how to help him, much less understand the whole situation.

DEAR READER — The concepts about impotence and what can be done about it have changed drastically in the past few years. Obviously your husband should see a physician who understands impotence and is able to provide a proper evaluation.

In more than half the cases of impotence in his age group it is a symptom of some underlying medical problem. This includes an abnormally high secretion of the hormone prolactin from the pituitary gland under the brain.

Some men in his age group are impotent because they have unrecognized diabetes. Still others, usually older, do have a decrease in male hormone levels.

An adequate evaluation of impotence requires a blood test for prolactin levels, a test for diabetes and a measurement of male hormone levels. Anything less than this is inadequate and calls for seeing someone else about the problem. There are a number of underlying diseases that can cause impotence as well.

Many men have periods of depression in his age group. A person may not appear depressed but it takes a professional to tell if that is true or not. Impotence is frequently a sign of underlying depression in the male.

To give you a summary of what causes impotence and what to do about it in the light of modern knowledge, I am sending you The Health Letter 18-6, Help for Impotence. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is it a common practice to continue taking Coumadin, and having weekly blood tests almost two years after having a heart attack? A member of the family has been on this routine as well as weekly visits to his doctor to regulate his medicine. The doctor's diagnosis has been coronary artery disease and he tells his patient he doesn't know how long he will have to continue the medicine. He also takes Inderal.

DEAR READER — Whether to use anticlotting medicines, and how long, is still one of the great controversies in medicine. You see one version of this today in people who take aspirin because of its anticlotting effects by preventing platelet clumping. Some patients have taken anticlotting medicines for years, sometimes for life. And in some instances it may prevent new attacks or prevent future strokes.

Not all patients can or should take such medicines. It is decided on an individual basis. But when a patient does take Coumadin it is important to have a careful follow-up program with regular checks on blood clotting mechanisms.
