

British tighten Port Stanley noose

By United Press International

British troops atop three commanding outposts traded furious mortar and artillery barrages with besieged Argentine soldiers Sunday.

The British forces pressed their drive to retake the Falkland Islands capital of Stanley and the 12-week war.

"There is some way still to go, but the outcome is not in doubt," boasted British Defense Secretary John Nott. He said some British troops were perched only three miles from the capital.

As many as 4,500 paratroopers and marines, backed by naval and air bombardment, overran Argentine footholds in a surprise night attack Saturday. Britain said its troops advanced five miles in the attack, but Argentina claimed it lost only half that territory.

Neither side released casualty reports from the attack, but Nott for the first time reported 85 men were killed and 74 wounded last Tuesday in Argentine-led raids on British forces that landed at Fitzroy Bay. The casualties brought Britain's war dead to 201.

He said the delay in releasing the casualties helped achieve surprise in Saturday's raids and kept Argentina from assessing "exactly when, how, or in what strength we would attack" Stanley.

Nott said British troops were consolidating footholds on three vantage points west of the capital — Two Sisters Hill, Mount Harriet and Mount Longdon, just three miles from Stanley.

Defense sources said troops were locked in combat under clear skies, with Argentina's 7,000-man garrison furiously battling to hold on to its last stronghold on the islands seized April 2.

But the military command in Buenos Aires said its war jets strafed Two Sisters Hill and its troops were beefing up their defenses in anticipation of a new British assault.

"Combat is continuing with intensive use of artillery and mortars by both sides," the command said.

In a communique early Monday, the command said "concentrated fire from its artillery repelled an attempted British advance from Mount Harriet, forcing British helicopters to 'work intensely' to rescue casualties under a smokescreen. It also said the jet attacks scored hits on British vehicles and troops.

Nott said Sea Harriers from the HMS Invincible disabled a small Argentine patrol craft. There was no word on casualties.

Reports from the war zone said British ground commander Gen. Jeremy Moore was "delighted" with the advance. "We now have our lead positions where the Argentine lead positions were until last night," he said.

ITN reporter Jeremy Hands said some Argentine soldiers were surrendering from positions not even under attack.

The reports also said the Argentines were heavily fortified with mortars and were "not the pushover predicted by some people."

Israeli armor cuts guerrillas' escape route

By United Press International

Israeli troops and tanks, led by Defense Minister Ariel Sharon, rumbled around Lebanon's presidential palace and captured the strategic southern Beirut suburb of Baabda Sunday, cutting off Palestinian guerrillas from escape.

Intense artillery and air raids shattered a 12-hour cease-fire with the PLO.

Heavy tank and infantry battles raged on the outskirts of Beirut and Israeli jets pounded parts of eastern West Beirut, the closed international airport and Palestinian guerrilla garrisons outside the city.

Pierce ground fighting was reported at the PLO-held strategic highway junction at Khalde, six miles south of Beirut, and on the heights overlooking the Lebanese capital and its airport.

The Israeli movements formed a ring around southern Beirut, cutting off Palestinian guerrillas from their highway link to Damascus and establishing Israeli forces on the heights overlooking the Lebanese capital from Baabda, four miles south of the center of the city.

At the United Nations, Lebanon asked the Security Council for an emergency on the crisis but, as of late Sunday no session had been planned.

In Jerusalem, U.S. presidential envoy Philip Habib met with Prime Minister Menachem Begin and six other top Israeli officials before flying on to Damascus for talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad.

The substance of the Jerusalem talks was not disclosed.

Both Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization accused each other of breaking the cease-fire declared at 9 p.m. Saturday following 13 hours of Israeli jet and artillery bombardment.

There was no fighting reported between Israel and Syria, and their separate cease-fire appeared to be holding. The PLO protested Israel's "flagrant" violation of their cease-fire in a message to the United Nations.

The Israeli forces combined with their Christian Phalangist allies to seize Baabda, which houses Lebanon's presidential palace. There was no resistance from regular Lebanese troops, government and military sources said.

The Israelis moved in an arc from the coast below the airport, curved inland and north up to Baabda, occupying several villages on the way.

High-ranking Lebanese military sources confirmed Sharon and 10 senior advisers accompanied troops into Baabda. They said Sharon met with Col. Rafic al-Hassan, commander of the local gendarme, and told him Israel only came to fight Palestinian and Syrian forces. Sharon left after an hour.

Lebanese and American sources doubted Israel would invade the heart of the capital, which would spark bloody street battles and cause massive destruction. Rather, the sources said the Israelis would likely besiege Beirut and impose stiff conditions for their withdrawal.

Government sources said the Israeli-Christian forces made no move to seize the presidential palace but took over a military hospital, courthouse and a Lebanese army barracks.

"I was just talking on the telephone when I heard the noise of tanks and looked up to see the Israelis outside," a Lebanese officer said. Lebanese President Elias Sarkis was meeting in the presidential palace with 10 of his cabinet ministers when the Israeli tanks rolled into Baabda.

The palace switchboard answered the telephone but the operator said only: "We never give any information."

The move marked a major setback for the Palestinians and achieved a tacit objective of Israel's week-long thrust into Lebanon, which originally aimed to sweep Palestinian guerrillas out of southern Lebanon but has for two days been trying to oust the guerrillas from Beirut itself.

Baabda straddles the demarcation line separating Moslem and Christian sectors of Beirut and sits atop the main highway leading out of Beirut to the Syrian capital of Damascus.

The town was considered vital for the Israelis in completing their encirclement of Palestinian guerrillas in their stronghold in the southern suburbs of the war-battered city.

There was no immediate confirmation of the move from the Israeli government.

There were no Palestinians in Baabda when the town was captured.

Fireworks stands bang open in Twin Falls on Tuesday

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — With summer still struggling to get a foothold in the Magic Valley, the Fourth of July may seem a long way off.

But starting Tuesday, fireworks stands will be allowed to make their 1982 debut in Twin Falls. The city's Fire Department, which has responded to several fireworks-related blazes in recent summers, is gearing up for Independence Day by reminding fireworks users about hazards and laws.

As in the majority of the states, certain types of fireworks are permitted in Idaho. Fifteen states have banned them entirely.

In Twin Falls, prohibited fireworks basically consist of those that create a loud explosion or are self-propelling, according to Walt Roberts, the fire-prevention specialist for the Fire Department. The roster of what is and is not allowed in Twin Falls reads like a list of titles for cult comic books.

In short, legal fireworks are not that kind that create spectacular bursts in the air. Twin Falls residents who want to see the traditional Fourth of July fireworks show planned should head for Buhl, where such a display is planned.

The city of Twin Falls no longer presents a fireworks display, which requires a special permit for the use of dangerous fireworks, because it would cost about $5,000, says Mayor Chris Talkington. In an effort to save money, the city of Burley also dropped its fireworks show, a couple of years ago, according to Bud Brinegar, the city clerk.

"(It a display) would have to be done privately, and at this late date, I doubt anyone is going to come forward as a sponsor," Talkington says.

People who want to conduct their own celebrations will be able to choose from about 18 fireworks stands in Twin Falls, if last year's merchandising is any indication, according to Roberts. He says the stands in the city must be inspected and licensed.

Nonetheless, banned fireworks have been sold in Twin Falls, and Roberts says not much can be done about people obtaining the illegal fireworks elsewhere and bringing them into the city. Last year, he says, officials confiscated illegal fireworks that were being sold at a Twin Falls grocery store.

The fact that certain fireworks are legal does not mean the possibility of injury is eliminated. The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission has determined that three of every five fireworks-related accidents involve misuse of the product, rather than the product malfunctioning. The commission's study also revealed that fireworks that did malfunction typically were in the categories banned under a federal law.

The commission has found that fireworks-related accidents are on the rise. Nationwide, in 1980, there were about 9,400 such accidents requiring emergency room treatment, compared to 8,100 in 1979 and 7,100 in 1978. The number of accident victims reached an all-time high of 11,000 in 1976, when the nation celebrated its bicentennial. As 1976 drew to a close, a federal law limiting the routine marketing of highly explosive fireworks took effect.

Philip Nelson, a physician at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, says the emergency room staff has treated a variety of Fourth of July accidents involving fireworks. Injuries include flesh burns and eye damage, and in one case, a youth almost had blown off his index finger, Nelson says.

Whatever the type of fireworks, children should not be allowed to discharge them without adult supervision, Roberts says. To minimize hazards, discharge fireworks in an area of steady brush or grass. Choose an area that is at least 100 feet from containers of gas or other flammable liquids, and at least 25 feet from any building, he says.

The skin can be burned by fireworks debris, and Roberts says celebrants can spare themselves the discomfort by making sure the debris has cooled before it is handled.

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (UPI) — Saudi Arabia's King Khalid bin Abdul Aziz died Sunday after suffering a heart attack.

He was succeeded by his half brother, Crown Prince Fahd, the power behind the throne for many years and one of Washington's closest allies in the Arab world.

Less than seven hours after he died in the mountain resort town of Taif, the 69-year-old Khalid was buried in the royal cemetery after prayers in the Grand Mosque of Riyadh.

Tens of thousands attended the simple ceremony that lacked all the trappings of the Saudis' vast oil wealth.

Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak and Persian Gulf rulers flew to Riyadh for the funeral, meeting for the first time since Israeli forces invaded Lebanon last Sunday.

President Reagan said he was "deeply grieved" by Khalid's death and extended his condolences on behalf of all Americans to the royal family. Secretary of State Alexander Haig called the late king "a friend and a collaborator" and said his death was a "loss."

Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat called Khalid "a martyr in the battle for Palestine." In a message of condolence, one of many from around the world that included expressions of sorrow from Britain's Queen Elizabeth and French President Francois Mitterrand.

The United Arab Emirates and Qatar led the way in declaring 40 days of mourning, with all government offices closed for three days. Iraq announced a three-day mourning period and Egypt declared a two-week period of mourning.

Immediately after Khalid's death, the royal family went through the formality of declaring Fahd, 60, king, thereby ensuring the continuation of the moderate, pro-Western policies of Khalid, who ruled Saudi Arabia for seven years as the nation became the main foreign supplier of U.S. oil.

Prince Abdullah bin Abdul Aziz, commander of the Saudi National Guard, succeeded Fahd as crown prince in what Western sources said was a "balancing operation."

They said Abdullah, 58, like Khalid, is an old-style traditionalist with the support of Saudi Arabia's desert tribes. His rival for the job, Saudi Defense Minister Prince Sultan, was more in the modern Fahd line, the sources said.

Khalid, the fifth son of Abdul Aziz, the founder of modern Saudi Arabia, ascended the Saudi throne in 1975 after the assassination of his half brother King Faisal.

When Khalid first became king, he made his Cabinet ministers responsible to Fahd, a half brother and a frequent visitor to the United States.

In 1981, Fahd grabbed international attention with a Middle East peace plan that called on Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization to recognize each other. The plan caused the break-up of the Arab summit in Fez, Morocco, last November but enjoyed a short revival of interest before Israel's massive entry into Lebanon last week.

The royal palace, quoted by the official Saudi Press Agency, said Saudi would "pledge loyalty" to King Fahd and "lower" Friday's mourning today at the royal palace in Riyadh.

Today's briefing

Regan's optimism fading

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although the administration still expects a modest economic recovery later this year, it will be far from the dramatic turnaround predicted earlier, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said Sunday.

Regan, interviewed on Cable News Network's "Newsmaker Sunday" television program, said he expects short term interest rates to drop by about 2 percentage points to 14 percent by year's end in contrast to his previous forecast that "the economy would 'come roaring back' by midyear."

The treasury secretary said he feels "a great sense of relief" that the House last week passed a budget package that holds the deficit below $100 billion, and he expects this to "send the proper signal to the financial markets."

"I think we're going to get a recovery in third and fourth quarter of 1982," Regan said. "It will be a little slower and a little less than we initially hoped. Why? Because the recession lasted a lot longer and these high interest rates persisted a lot longer than has ever been the experience in the history of the United States."

Viet lashes U.S. envoys

NEW YORK (UPI) — Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach accused Henry Kissinger of lying and U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick of slander in an interview aired Sunday.

Thach said Kissinger, secretary of state under President Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford, lied during "the peace talks with Vietnamese" by telling Vietnam's No. 2 man that he was against bombing North Vietnam.

Referring to Mrs. Kirkpatrick's recent comments at the United Nations that there was evidence some type of chemical warfare was being conducted in Laos and Cambodia, Thach said, "It is slander."

He said the poisonous substances, or "Yellow Rain," Mrs. Kirkpatrick referred to were not man-made, but occurred in nature. He said the Vietnamese people, too, were victims of the substances. Thach made the accusations in an interview with Mike Wallace Jr. Sunday's CBS-TV "60 Minutes" program.

Solo sailor starts voyage

PORTLAND, Maine (UPI) — With 3,000 miles of open ocean ahead of him and the risk of death his only companion, William Dunlop set sail for England Sunday in a nine-foot sailboat.

Seconds before his 10 a.m. departure time, Dunlop paddled his tiny craft out of a marina and into the harbor, while his wife, Joyce, clapped and waved from a boardwalk overlooking the dock.

Just outside the marina, Dunlop unfurled his sails. About 20 vessels ranging in size from an inflatable raft to a double-deck pleasure cruiser formed a flotilla to escort Dunlop out of the harbor.

Watergate 'sad, Stans says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Maurice Stans, finance director for Richard Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign, considers it "very sad that (Nixon) didn't see Watergate creeping up on his blind side."

Stans said the Watergate scandal grew out of "misguided excessive loyalty."

"The president wanted to win big so he could show Congress a huge mandate from the people," Stans said in an interview. "And his staff did some things they shouldn't have done to ensure that."

For his part, Nixon, again out of loyalty, tried to help them and it cost his job," Stans said. "I think it is very sad that he didn't see Watergate creeping up on his blind side."

Stans has maintained his own innocence of wrongdoing throughout the Watergate investigation and in the years since. The 10th anniversary of the Watergate break-in is Thursday.

Bush applauds new right

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Vice-President George Bush told thousands of fundamentalists packed into the Superdome Sunday the new right was a "healthy" political response to the spread of pornography, drug abuse and amorality.

In a speech to more than 35,000 people attending a Billy Graham crusade before this week's Southern Baptist convention, Bush denied the "religious right" was trying to impose its strict values on other Americans.

Dr. Max Rafferty dies

TROY, Ala. (UPI) — Dr. Max Rafferty, conservative head of California state schools during the administration of then-Gov. Ronald Reagan, died Sunday when his car plunged over a dam into a pond, state troopers said. He was 65.

Officials said Rafferty's car slid off the earthen dam on County Road 1 near the Pike County community of Spring Hill, about eight miles south of Troy about 11:30 a.m. while he was taking a friend of his granddaughter's home.

Rafferty was pronounced dead at a Troy hospital. Officials said an autopsy would be performed but the cause of death appeared to be accidental drowning.

Camilla Kimball improves

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The wife of Mormon Church President Spencer W. Kimball, who reported "significantly improved" Sunday since her hospitalization Friday for observation of gastrointestinal bleeding.

Dr. Robert Nielson said 82-year-old Camilla Kimball is in good spirits and if she continues to respond favorably to simple medication could be released from LDS Hospital early this week.

The physician said he is now convinced Mrs. Kimball's condition is a minor recurrence of a previous problem and he expects a full recovery.

NY police get ready for rally

NEW YORK (UPI) — City officials marveled Sunday at the lack of trash left behind by the 700,000 participants in the largest disarmament rally in U.S. history, but police girded for mass arrests expected at a second demonstration today.

The Police Department reported only one arrest in the huge march and rally Saturday, but mass arrests were expected Monday when demonstrators planned to set up "non-violent" blockades outside five missions to the United Nations.

The War Resisters League and a coalition of peace, religious and community organizations announced a "Blockade the Bombmakers" demonstration would begin at 8 a.m. today at the U.N. missions of the five nuclear powers — the United States, Soviet Union, China, France and Great Britain.

Police Commissioner Robert McGuire said he was assigning 3,000 police officers to patrol the five missions.

Rally organizers said they felt the huge demonstration Sunday had consolidated opposition to nuclear arms as a broad based issue.

"It was enormously successful and we now have the strength to consolidate the issue nationally and internationally," said Patricia Clark, spokeswoman for the June 12 Rally Committee which organized the huge demonstration.

"It now has the U.S. dimension to it. That had been missing as being a mass movement. It was isolated before. But it's gone way beyond the interest of political parties," she said.

Bessie Cagan, an official of the committee, called the march and rally "a major turning point and a major step forward in our movement."

Today's weather

Today's clouds will yield to sunshine Tuesday

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert and Gooding-Jerome areas:

Mostly cloudy today with a slight chance of showers or thundershowers. Highs near 70. Sunny and a little warmer Tuesday. Highs near 75. Lows near 50. Near normal temperatures Wednesday through Friday. Highs 70 to 80. Lows 40 to 50.

Camas Prairie, Halley and lower Wood River Valley:

Partly cloudy with a chance of showers, decreasing later today. Highs 65 to 70. Mostly sunny Tuesday. Highs near 70. Lows near 45 with winds decreasing.

Northern Utah and Nevada:

Partly cloudy over northwestern Nevada today. Highs 75 to 85 with variable winds 5 to 10 mph. Mostly sunny and warmer Tuesday with highs reaching near 80. Decreasing showers today and clearing this afternoon over northern Utah. Warmer Tuesday with highs in the 80s. Lows 50s.

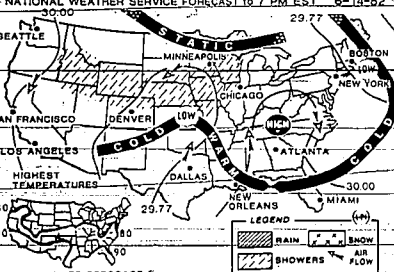

Synopsis:

By Tuesday, Idaho weather should begin to resemble summer.

High pressure, moving in behind the low pressure system that brought showery activity and clouds to much of southern Idaho during the weekend, brings promise of warm sunny weather in the next few days.

Conditions for fieldwork and cutting and drying of hay look good through Friday except for spotty showers today. Plant growth and water demand for irrigation will be slightly below normal today and normal for the remainder of the week. There will be areas of moderate morning dew through Tuesday.

NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE FORECAST 7 PM EST. 6-14-82

UPI WEATHER PHOTOCAST

Sprawling conditions call for winds in 10 to 15 mph through today. Strong gusts to 30 mph or more near thundershowers. Pan-evaporation 18 inch today, 24 inch Tuesday.

Low temperatures Sunday morning ranged from 36 degrees at Stanley to 51 at Grangeville. Most towns were in the upper 40s to low 50s, due to cloud cover. High in the state Sunday was 78 at Hagerman and Sandpoint.

Precipitation over the past 24-hour period included 1.5 inch at McCall, .67 at Parma and .02 in Idaho Falls and Moscow. Boise recorded a trace.

Latest weather radar and satellite pictures indicate showers and a few thundershowers were scattered over western and northern Idaho Sunday. Skins over the southeastern part of the state were clear.

Although a few showers may linger over the state today, the extended threat is for anytime temperatures a little above normal with clear skies. Highs should remain in the mid 70s to low 80s and lows in the 40s to low 50s.

This nation's hottest temperatures Sunday were 101 recorded in three Arizona cities including Lake Havasu City, Buckeye and Gila Bend. The coldest was 37 at Salt Lake City.

U.S. to try for 'withdrawal' from Lebanon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Alexander Haig said Sunday that once it is clear the cease-fire in Lebanon is holding, the United States will seek the "withdrawal of all foreign elements" from the strife-torn nation.

Haig, interviewed on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley," said the administration's first priority is to stop the bloodshed. Then it will seek a long-term solution re-establishing the sovereignty of Lebanon.

"Clearly, no one would welcome a return to status quo ante in Lebanon with all the instabilities that we've experienced since 1976," Haig said. "I think we are going to want to work to achieve adjustments and the withdrawal of all foreign elements from Lebanon."

Haig said Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev has sent President Reagan a second communication about the outbreak of fighting between Israeli, Syrian and Palestinian forces in Lebanon and that Reagan replied Saturday night.

"It was a continuing expression of concern on the part of the Soviet leadership about the potential dangers of a spreading of the violence and we share that concern ourselves," Haig said. "I would describe the Soviet attitude thus far as being encouragingly cautious."

Haig said it should be clear to the Soviets "that they have no business intervening or becoming involved in this situation other than to urge those with whom they exercise influence to exercise restraint."

Whether the administration would be willing to send U.S. troops to the volatile area to participate in a peace-keeping force is "still a hypothetical question" not yet considered, the secretary of state said.

Haig said he would not "discount" a referendum that would give the people of southern Lebanon a chance to say whether they want the Palestine Liberation Organization and Syrian troops to return.

Lebanon, he said, "is a country that's been wrecked by internal elements, not under the authority and control of the Lebanese government, as well as a nation that's been occupied by Syrian forces for too long."

"I think it's very clear that you must not and cannot have enclaves of separate authority in a sovereign nation and expect the seeds for stability to grow," he said. "They will not."

"We've got to work with all the nations in the region and some of those in Western Europe who are concerned to seek to provide a long-term solution in which the sovereignty of Lebanon will again be established," he said.

Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman Charles Percy, R-Ill., said in a separate interview on CBS's

"Face the Nation" he informed Haig earlier Sunday of his concern about indications Israel does not intend to pull out of Lebanon in the near future.

"We feel it is in the best interest of all parties — including Israel — not to appear to in any way to be staying there and occupying that land, as they have the West Bank and Gaza Strip and the Golan Heights," Percy said.

"It would be a disaster for the peace process for them to do that."

Percy, who will hold hearings on the Middle East soon, said he told Haig it would be "extraordinarily incorrect in this case" to go ahead with the sale of 75 F-16s to Israel, and he indicated there may be opposition to the administration's proposed increase in military aid to Israel.

"I doubt that this creates a very favorable climate for the Senate increasing aid by $425 million," he said.

But Haig pointedly refrained from criticizing Israel for failing to withdraw immediately from Lebanon as demanded by U.N. Security Council resolution 506 or to say whether the United States would go along with Israel's objectives in Lebanon.

Percy describes PLO threat as 'myth'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said Sunday that Israel's swift success in its drive against Palestinian forces in Lebanon proves the threat posed to the Jewish state by the PLO was "a myth."

Percy, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, also said he hopes "some opportunities" will arise from the conflict, especially to "spur negotiations" to establish a homeland for "600,000 homeless Palestinians."

But he warned the Israeli strike against the Palestine Liberation Organization strengthens "could further radicalize the Arab world and undercut the moderates."

"I hope not. I hope that Jordan and Saudi Arabia will renew their interest in pursuing the peace process with us," he said on CBS' "Face the Nation."

Asked if he believed the Israeli operation had succeeded in its aim of crushing the PLO's military arm, Percy said "it looks as though they've destroyed it. The damage done to those military forces was considerable."

"But also it demonstrated and proved that the threat the Palestinians posed Israel was a myth," he said, noting the Israeli campaign was so successful "they beat their own time schedule, they cut it in half."

"You can't destroy in a couple of days something that threatens the security of a mighty country such as Israel in military terms," he said.

Percy, who said his committee will hold hearings on the Middle East soon, said he told Secretary of State Alexander Haig Sunday of his concern about indications Israel does not intend to withdraw from Lebanon in the near future.

"I hope not. I hope that Jordan and Saudi Arabia will renew their interest in pursuing the peace process with us," he said on CBS' "Face the Nation."

Asked if he believed the Israeli operation had succeeded in its aim of crushing the PLO's military arm, Percy said "it looks as though they've destroyed it. The damage done to those military forces was considerable."

"But also it demonstrated and proved that the threat the Palestinians posed Israel was a myth," he said, noting the Israeli campaign was so successful "they beat their own time schedule, they cut it in half."

"You can't destroy in a couple of days something that threatens the security of a mighty country such as Israel in military terms," he said.

Percy, who said his committee will hold hearings on the Middle East soon, said he told Secretary of State Alexander Haig Sunday of his concern about indications Israel does not intend to withdraw from Lebanon in the near future.

"It is totally contrary to the policy of this government, of the United Nations, and of the pronouncements of the Reagan administration," he said.

Senator lands licks in Kirkpatrick fuss

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ambassador Jeanne Kirkpatrick took some licks Sunday from a leading Republican senator but Secretary of State Alexander Haig appeared for a cease-fire in the escalating interest in the U.N. envoy's job security.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick's outspoken nature prompted Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., to brand her with one of the harshest epithets conceivable for one of President Reagan's appointees — he compared her to a Jimmy Carter man.

"She is a brilliant person, but sometimes brittle. And she's an academician. And she has really some of the same problems that Andy Young had," Percy said on CBS' "Face the Nation."

Young, Carter's U.N. ambassador, resigned after a controversy over his contacts with the Palestine Liberation Organization at a time the United States was flatly denying any talks with the PLO.

Haig, appearing on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley," was questioned about a speech Mrs. Kirkpatrick — a university professor and Latin American scholar — delivered last week describing the United States as having been "inept," "impotent" and acting like a "bunch of amateurs" at the United Nations.

Haig said the criticism was not aimed at the Reagan administration but had been "propelled into great national attention by you gentlemen" because of its "juxtaposition" with recent events.

Those events included a Haig-Kirkpatrick clash over the Falkland Islands conflict and a diplomatic faux pas that found Mrs. Kirkpatrick explaining she had vetoed a U.N. resolution instead of abstaining on a key vote because Haig had changed his mind but word of the switch reached her too late.

As Haig soft-pedaled the dimensions of the conflict he was asked if his position is "forgive and forget."

Cycle accidents aren't automatic

Typically, the driver is young, between 16 and 24, on a short trip, going about 30 miles an hour. For the most part, he is self-taught, has less than five months experience and, perhaps surprisingly, isn't paying close attention to the task at hand.

That is part of the profile of the typical motorcycle driver who's involved in an accident, according to a significant study of motorcycle safety research done in 1981 in California.

Much of what it says is frightening, particularly for the driver of a motorcycle who is, in a real sense, taking his life in his hands when he revs up the machine.

Among the most critical factors in accidents, the study found, was the failure of automobile drivers to see the motorcycle before the collision. Three-fourths of motorcycle accidents involve a collision with another vehicle, and in two-thirds of those cases, the car or truck crossed into the motorcycle's right of way.

The most typical accident was a car or truck making a left-hand turn at an intersection into the path of an oncoming motorcycle. Glare, obstruction of vision by other vehicles and how conspicuous the motorcycle is, all affect accident occurrence.

Once an accident occurs, the study found that the use of a helmet was a critical factor in the prevention of head injury. But perhaps as expected, helmet use was lowest among untrained, uneducated young riders on short trips on hot days. That, unfortunately, is often the typical rider.

A number of states have passed mandatory motorcycle helmet laws, and Idaho might well consider reestablishing such a requirement, which was dropped in 1981. Sure, there will be objections from motorcycle groups and maybe from some "freedom" advocates, who treat every law as an invasion of their personal lifestyle.

But we think the law would make sense, as would required training for motorcycle operators. Learning to drive defensively is an acquired art for any driver, and motorcycle operators need the skills at least as much as the drivers of other vehicles.

Primaries were not a vote on Reagan

WASHINGTON — There were primary elections in 10 states this past week, and political oracles are making heavy pronouncements about what the results mean for the future of the Reagan presidency. Nothing, that's what.

NBC took advantage of the occasion to ask 10,000 voters whether President Reagan should run for a second term. A substantial majority said he shouldn't. That means exactly nothing.

What Tuesday's primaries mean is the following: (1) Having a strong political organization behind you is better than not having a strong political organization behind you.

(2) Having money is better than having a strong political organization.

(3) Having the news media behind you is better than either of the above.

(4) Having a well-known name helps, but not much.

(5) Being dumb hurts.

(6) Democrats can't be too conservative and win primaries.

(7) Republicans can't be too liberal and win primaries.

(8) Style is as important as substance.

None of the above is news, but it is all the primaries proved — unless you were one of the candidates.

The people who vote in primaries are politically turned out. Asking them whether Reagan should run for a second term is meaningless. Half of them think he shouldn't have run for a first term. Some answer "no" because they think he's great and don't want him to kill himself. Others answer "no" because they think he's a disaster.

The vast majority of U.S. citizens are politically turned out. If Reagan decides to run for a second term, the Republicans will nominate him just as the Democrats renominated former President Carter. Turned-out citizens then will choose between Reagan and another trail human being, not some vision of political perfection.

New Jersey voters nominated two millionaires Tuesday to vie for the U.S. Senate — Rep. Millicent Fenwick, a Republican, and Democrat Frank Lautenberg.

The Democrats showed the effectiveness of strong political organization. Hudson County gave its favorite candidate, Joe Lefante, a 32,000-vote margin. Bergen County gave its favorite candidate, Andy Maguire, a 22,000-vote margin. But there are 21 counties in New Jersey, and Lautenberg's money was buying ads in all of them.

Fenwick's victory was a triumph of style over substance. She is so gracious, so charming, so earnest that innocent voters and hardened reporters alike forgot to ask the follow-up question: Fenwick had the news media, and that is always better than either political organization or money.

In Ohio and California, people named Seth Taft, Barry Goldwater Jr. and Maureen Reagan lost. Don't think the names had no value; without them, the people bearing them wouldn't have been running. It is good to bear a good name, but bad to appear to be leaning on it.

Goldwater, the front-runner for most of the California Republican senatorial campaign, wound up a weak third. He refused, as a front-runner, to debate his opponents. If he had debated, no one would have paid much attention to what he said, and the press would have treated him gently. Refusing to debate is much worse than debating badly.

In Ohio, Democratic Rep. Ronald M. Mottl, who voted for the Reagan budget and tax proposals last year, was beaten in the Democratic primary. Those who think this means anything to the Reagan presidency don't understand primaries. Of course you get hurt in a Democratic primary in a Northern state if you voted with the Republican president. The question remains: Can the liberal Democrat who beat you win in November?

What did the primaries mean? They meant that Democratic candidates moved left and Republicans moved right. Now that the primaries are over, the winners all will move back to the middle.

Otis Pike, a former congressman, writes his column for the Newhouse News Service.

Student loans are sterling example of our 'malaise'

WASHINGTON — It was three years ago this summer, if memory serves, that Jimmy Carter got himself in a heap of trouble. In one of his introspective periods, the president concluded that our country was suffering from a "malaise." This was defined, generally, as the wasting sickness, marked by a decline in old values.

You will recall that Mr. Carter's critics leaped upon his remark, hollering virtuously that the president was all wet. Everything was OK, they said. Sick? No.

Mr. Carter's perception was more accurate than many of us wanted to believe. For evidence of what concerned the president, consider the program known as guaranteed student loans. You will find few more telling examples of the disease that afflicts us.

Once upon a time — and the time was so awfully long ago — there was no such thing as a GSL program. This was how a young person went to college: (1) His family paid the entire expense from current income; (2) His family borrowed a part of the cost from a local bank and paid the rest from current income; (3) His family scraped together what they could, and the student financed the rest from a scholarship or from his own earnings; (4) The student worked his way through college.

In various combinations, this was how the task was accomplished and the expenses were met. It wasn't easy. Except for families in upper-income brackets, it often meant real sacrifice. Ambitious youngsters worked their hearts out. They waited tables, or pumped gasoline in the summers, or took any jobs that made it possible to save something for September. And of course, a lot of this still goes on.

But in 1965, the idea took root in Congress that higher education somehow had become an obligation of the federal government. A modest program of guaranteed student loans came into being. The program began to grow. By 1977, the cost to the taxpayers had reached $31 million for the year. Then, it took off. In 1981, the GSL subsidies reached $2.4 billion.

No other entitlement program — not even such abused ventures as Medicaid and food stamps — has approached this rate of growth. In the coming year, despite the best efforts of the Reagan administration to put on the brakes, more than 6 million college students will receive interest subsidies and outright grants amounting to $6.3 billion.

Outlays of this magnitude cannot be justified. There may be some tenuous rationalization for federal aid to elementary and secondary schools; where attendance is compulsory and a plausible argument can be made in the name of the "general welfare." College education is not compulsory, and it is not general.

The GSL program has been terribly abused. Some months ago the General Accounting Office documented cases in which upper-income families had received the guaranteed loans, at a delayed rate of interest of 9 percent, and immediately transferred the proceeds to money-market funds at much higher rates.

Thousands of families simply were not making the sacrifices that used to be regarded as a part of the burden of parenthood. The savings that might have financed a son's college education was going into a second home at the beach.

Since the program began 17 years ago, $1.7 billion in loans have gone into default. Medical students are among the worst of the defaulters. More than 6,000 doctors are delinquent on $700 loans.

Under protest from the White House, Congress last year made some feeble gestures toward reform. Eligibility standards were tightened mildly: Families with incomes above $30,000 must demonstrate "true need." But according to the Office of Management and Budget, the new standards are so lenient that a family with two children at Harvard "can make $100,120 and still qualify for maximum federal loans."

Mr. Reagan has asked for a further tightening. In 1983, but House and Senate committees have been already moving negatively. The GSL program is immensely popular with middle- and upper-income families, who do not benefit from such other entitlement programs as school lunches, military retirement, food stamps and Medicaid.

In a social atmosphere pervaded by subsidies for everyone, Mr. Carter's "malaise" infects us all. The deficits go up, and old values go down.

Lebanese Christians are best choice to fill PLO void

WASHINGTON — One Sunday last October, a PLO brigade with tanks and artillery staged a mock attack on a Lebanese settlement resembling a fortified Israeli village on the West Bank. This training exercise was evidence of the accelerating evolution of the Palestine Liberation Organization in southern Lebanon into a quasi-state, with a conventional army of 15,000 and logistical support from 23,000 Syrians.

The PLO benefited from U.S. diplomacy last spring, when Syria put missiles in Lebanon. Only a patch of bad weather prevented Israel from promptly destroying them.

Such a shot across the bow of the PLO and Syrian occupation forces in Lebanon might have slowed the slide toward today's crisis. But by the time the weather cleared, President Reagan had sent an entreaty letter, soon followed by a special ambassador, to paralyze Israel. Did the Reagan administration expect to talk the PLO into tranquility?

Perhaps the administration's Saudi Arabia enthusiasts expected Saudi "revenge" on the PLO — revenge supposedly resulting from Saudi financial support — to be used for moderation. But Saudi payments to the PLO are protection payments from the timid to the ruthless.

Israel repeatedly told U.S. officials it could not tolerate on its border a quasi-state that is terrorist in morality and form. Today, Israel's primary aim — an aim that serves U.S. interests — is more ambitious than the stated aim of pushing PLO artillery too far north to hit Galilee. It is to drive 15,000 PLO members off the land they have usurped for bases and training.

The PLO, a state without a nation, would become an army without an infrastructure. This would leave them with no place to go, and a powerful incentive to melt away. Israel believes that any PLO attempt to relocate in northern Lebanon would kindle Lebanese nationalism, sparked by resentment of PLO and Syrian occupation.

The existing Palestinian state is Jordan. It has the Palestinian majority, and a majority of all Palestinians hold Jordanian citizenship. But it will not receive the PLO. Jordan could have established a separate Palestinian state on the West Bank during the 19 years it held that land. Jordan never considered it. And in "Black September" 1970, Jordan expelled the PLO, bloodily.

Might Syria's rhetorical solidarity with the PLO extend to allowing the PLO to locate in Syria? Not likely. Syria has engaged Israel's forces to protect its own forces, not to aid the stricken PLO.

The disorganization and demoralization of a dispersed PLO should diminish the terrorist organization's diplomatic weight in the world's capitals. It also might reduce PLO intimidation, which has impeded West Bank accommodation.

Only the Soviet Union has an interest in a strong PLO. But many European governments, and elements of the U.S. foreign-policy establishment, have invested a lot of ingenuity in rationalizing appeasement of the PLO. They have treated the PLO as a state government in diaspora; and the sole legitimate representative of the Palestinians.

Israel's eviction of the PLO has been made especially necessary by Western diplomacy that has sanitized the terrorist organization, and thus emboldened it.

If Israel succeeds in creating a political vacuum in the portion of Lebanon that the PLO controlled, the urgent task, for others as well as Israel, will be to fill the vacuum. There are three basic options. Two seem improbable, the third presupposes a rationality and coherence rare among indigenous Lebanese forces.

One option is for the United Nations to expand its peacekeeping presence. But the United Nations, a plaything of its anti-Israel majority, is not apt to adopt a plan so compatible with Israel's purposes.

A second option is a peacekeeping machinery constructed outside U.N. auspices. But who will do it? France has historic ties to Lebanon, but is not apt to initiate a solution. No first or third volunteers spring to mind.

The third option is to stitch together a fabric of Lebanese sovereignty. Nation-building is a dicey business at the best of times. It is singularly so when the society is as invertebrate as Lebanon's is now. But the place to begin is with the central government, such as it is, and the Christians, the most cohesive indigenous force. The Christians have an ideology, a political party, and considerable military command.

The spotlight map of Lebanon — a Jackson Pollock canvas of PLO and Syrian units — must have told Israel's experienced soldiers that they could not operate against PLO units without engaging Syrian units. Evicting both would serve Israel's purpose by enabling northern and southern Christian elements to join. As has been said, the West should support Lebanon's Christians, or the West should change its name.

George E. Will writes his column for the Washington Post Co.

What's what

Q. Wounds on what part of the body heal the fastest?
A. Inside the mouth. Because we continually lick them. See in your ready reference manual the chapter entitled "First Aid, Cats and Dogs."

As far as the threat of divorce goes, the most dangerous year of marriage is not the seventh, contrary to widespread report. The seventh is the national median year. Half the divorces happen after that, half before. But the year in which most breakups occur is still the first.

Q. Why do we cross our fingers for luck?

A. Early Christians for the sake of their health chose not to cross themselves in public, but duplicated the reverential gesture in secret simply by crossing their fingers. It came from that.

CANTON

The little town of Canton in Massachusetts was named by an early settler who calculated that a hole dug straight down from the village square would eventually emerge on the other side of the earth in Canton, China. And he thought it appropriate that the metropolises at each end of the hole have the same name.

Q. What did the swastika symbolize before Adolf Hitler's Third Reich took it over?

A. Natural harmony. It was a pagan sign for the perfect marriage of Mother Earth to Father Time, or some such.

Least expensive city in the world—where the U.S. dollar goes nearly twice as far as it does in the United States—is said to be Colombo, the capital of Sri Lanka, once known as Ceylon. Inflation is moving fast there, however, so the distinction may not last long.

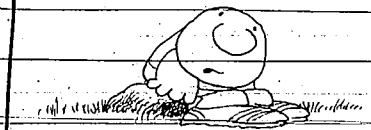

FARETO PRINCIPLE

Q. You say 20 percent of the sales people write 80 percent of the business. Is that just a guess?

A. It's an example of the Pareto Principle, stated by an Italian scholar around the last turn of the century. Sometimes it's called "The Concept of the Vital Few and the Trivial Many" or "The 80-20 Rule." It applies to group accomplishments generally. Twenty percent of the fishermen catch 80 percent of the fish. Twenty percent of the burglars steal 80 percent of the loot. Twenty percent of the teachers teach 80 percent of what's taught. Twenty percent of the actors get 80 percent of the roles. Twenty percent of the legislators write 80 percent of the legislation.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are eager to receive praise and encouragement but you need to display more creative skills before this happens.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to April 19) Be sure to handle important business matters as early as possible today. Take time to please the one you love.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't neglect to take care of a delicate condition at home but is upsetting the usual harmony there. Stop wasting time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Choose your words wisely with others today, or there could be trouble. Try to be encouraging to a co-worker who is depressed.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) If you are more objective you can handle monetary matters most intelligently now, and gain the respect of others.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You can accomplish a great deal today if you apply yourself properly. Take health treatments that can lift you out of arguments could easily start. Find recreation elsewhere and be happy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Show others you are a fine citizen and at the same time make a good impression of higher-ups. Improve your credit standing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You could be eager to start on a new project today, but this is not the right time for such. Be wary of outsiders.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study whatever you have in mind that could lead to greater abundance in the future. Serve for happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Think most of those who mean much to you. Try to please them more and gain their goodwill. Think constructively.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take the right steps to become a more dynamic person. Plan time for improving your health through right treatments.

IF YOUR CHILD WAS BORN TODAY... He or she will be one who can solve problems easily and should have good practical training early in life. Give the encouragement needed to bring out the fine talents in this chart. Government work could be fine here.

Hunger strike opens path to U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The husband of Soviet hunger striker Tatyana Lozansky said Sunday her father, a three-star general, persuaded authorities to permit her to emigrate to the United States in order to save her life.

Edward Lozansky, a professor of physics and mathematics at American University, said he has been unable to talk to his wife since she ended a 32-day fast Thursday, but he was told she plans to apply for her exit visa today.

"I urge her to leave as soon as possible," he said in a telephone interview.

Lozansky said his father-in-law, Gen. Yevgeny Yevgenyevich, who is chief of staff of Soviet civil defense, gave his word that Mrs. Lozansky and the couple's 10-year-old daughter Tanya will be cleared to leave the country.

Earhart plane found?

SAN MATEO, Calif. (UPI) — An aviation expert said Sunday he has determined when famed aviatrix Amelia Earhart's plane crashed-dived into the Pacific 45 years ago and he will launch a campaign this week to have her twin-engine Lockheed raised from the ocean floor.

If successful the venture will solve a mystery that has intrigued experts and Earhart fans for years.

Eigen Long, who made a world record round-the-world flight himself 11 years ago, will present his new evidence about the Earhart flight at a special symposium next Friday at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C. He has discussed his findings in an interview with UPI.

"For the past 13 years I have been investigating this as an aircraft accident—I am the first one to do this; and I have the skills to do it. Basically, it was a problem in navigation, communications and aircraft operation. I'm an expert in those three fields."

On his own round-the-world flight in 1971, Long flew a Piper Navajo to Howland Island using the same navigational technique that Fred Noonan, Miss Earhart's navigator, used. Long was trained in radio-aircraft communications and navigation in the Navy in World War II. Now he flies a Boeing 747 for Flying Tiger Airlines.

"What I'm going to propose is a search-to-locate-the-airplane-on-the-ocean floor—it's still there. Locate it, photograph it, photographically identify it, and recover it," said Long.

He said the plane should be perfectly preserved because there is no light or oxygen at the depth where it presumably lies.

The search would be made 35 miles west-northwest of Howland Island, about 11 miles from where the U.S. Navy determined the Earhart plane ran out of fuel on July 2, 1937.

Long said he has narrowed the location to "a reasonable search area." He said the ocean off Howland is an "ideal search area," with a flat clay bottom, but the water is 16,800 feet deep. "No battles were fought there. It is not on any shipping lanes, so there should not be a lot of junk around."

Deep-sea recovery experts have told him an expedition to find and raise the plane would cost $2 to $3 million. Long hopes that in another Earhart Symposium five years from now, the Smithsonian will be able to unveil the historic airplane in its flight museum.

Others have speculated that the woman flier crashed on another island and was taken captive by the Japanese, and that she is still alive.

Sophia to appear in picture probe

ROME (UPI) — Authorities are investigating a six-Italian photographer for selling what appears to be a fake picture of actress Sophia Loren while she was in jail, an Italian newspaper reported Sunday.

The Rome daily Il Messaggero said Deputy State Prosecutor Antonio Marini had summoned Miss Loren, 47, to appear at a hearing on the case today at Rome's justice building.

The picture, which reportedly was sold for about $43,000 and appeared in various European publications, purportedly shows the actress behind the bars of a chapel window at the Casa di Maria's prison, where she spent 17 days in May and June on tax evasion charges.

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: With all the kids out of school, I wish you would return the letter, "Please, God, I'm Only 17." I am 19 now; but when I was 16 I read it for the first time, and it made such a tremendous impression on me I have not exceeded the speed limit since, and I know I never will.

— HAROLD IN NORFOLK, VA.

DEAR HAROLD: With pleasure:

DEAR ABBY: I died was an ordinary school day. How I wish I had taken the bus! But I was too cool for the bus. I remember how I wheeled the car out of the "Special favor" I pleaded. "All the kids drive." When the 2:50 bell rang, I threw all my books in the locker. I was free until 8:40 tomorrow morning! I ran to the parking lot, excited at the thought of driving a car and being my own boss. Free!

It doesn't matter how the accident happened. I was going off — going too fast. Taking crazy chances. But I was enjoying my freedom and having fun. The last thing I remember was passing an old lady who seemed to be going awfully slow. I heard a deafening crash and felt a terrific jolt. Glass and steel flew everywhere. My whole body seemed to be turning inside out. I heard myself scream.

Suddenly I awakened; it was very quiet. A police officer was standing over me. Then I saw a doctor. My body was mangled: I was saturated with blood. Pieces of jagged glass were sticking out all over. Strange that I couldn't feel anything.

Hey, don't pull that sheet over my head. I can't be dead. I'm only 17. I've got a date tonight. I am supposed to grow up and have a wonderful life. I haven't lived yet. I can't be dead.

Later I was placed in a drawer. My folks had to identify me. Why did they have to see me like this? Why did I have to look at Mom's eyes when she faced the most terrible ordeal of her life? Dad suddenly looked like an old man. He told the man in charge, "Yes, he is my son."

The funeral was a weird experience. I saw all my relatives and friends walk toward the casket. They passed by, one by one, and looked at me with the saddest eyes I've ever seen. Some of my buddies were crying. A few of the girls touched my hand and sobbed as they walked away.

Please... somebody... wake me up! Get me out of here! I can't bear to see my mom and dad so broken up. My grandparents are so racked with grief they can hardly walk. My brother and sisters are like zombies. They move like robots. In a daze, everybody! No one can believe this. And I can't believe it, either.

Please don't bury me! I'm not dead! I have a lot of living to do! I want to laugh and run again. I want to sing and dance. Please don't put me in the ground. I promise if you give me just one more chance, God, I'll be the most careful driver in the whole world. All I want is one more chance. Please, God, I'm only 17!

Summer stress joggers' worry

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
Newsday/Enterprise Association

DEAR DR. LAMB — I belong to a group that has taken up jogging and swimming for physical fitness. Most of us are pretty active.

We want to keep our program up during the summer months but some of the group have become concerned about the possibility of heat stress. What is heat exhaustion? How hot or humid must it be outside before this becomes a problem? Are there any ways to prevent it? Is there a maximum temperature at which we should just forget it?

DEAR READER — Your own body constantly generates heat. Through heat loss mechanisms the body heat is stabilized. Without these heat loss mechanisms even a rest your body temperature would rise about 1 degree C each hour. During moderate physical activity it would increase about 2 degrees C an hour. The biggest factor affecting your body's ability to eliminate heat is environmental temperature and humidity. You may be surprised to know that about three-fourths of the energy used during physical exertion is converted to heat rather than mechanical effort.

If the temperature is 85 F and very humid your body will just be in heat balance if you sit quietly and don't exert. For this reason it is commonly said that under maximum humidity you should not exercise if the temperature is over 78 F.

Of course, exercising in the early morning hours or late evening hours, preferably after the sun goes down, greatly decreases your heat exposure. Wearing light clothing helps, too.

WHY YOU SHOULD HAVE TWIN SYSTEMS INSTALL YOUR LAWN SPRINKLING SYSTEM!

Installation of a sprinkler system should be done by an expert like Twin Systems. There is much more to an installation than just putting in and sprinkler heads in the ground. The system must be properly designed and customized to efficiently use the amount of water and pressure your home has available. Sprinkler heads in sufficient number and right type of sprinkler heads must be spaced for proper watering. TWIN SYSTEMS OF INSTALLATIONS ASSURES YOU OF A PROFESSIONAL JOB!

Since a sprinkler system is underground, where you can't see it, you must rely on your installer to do a professional, workmanlike job. Poor quality parts, poor design and slovenly workmanship mean that the system will not work in the first few weeks after installation. TWIN SYSTEMS USES ONLY THE FINEST QUALITY MATERIALS AND OUR WORKMANSHIP IS SECOND TO NONE. WE DO THE JOB RIGHT!

Know your installer! A sprinkler system installer's reputation and previous work is your best reference and assurance of a good job. Install a list of previous installations, not just one or two. TWIN SYSTEMS WILL GIVE YOU MORE THAN 100 NAMES FROM ALL OVER THE MAGIC VALLEY AND WOOD RIVER VALLEY!

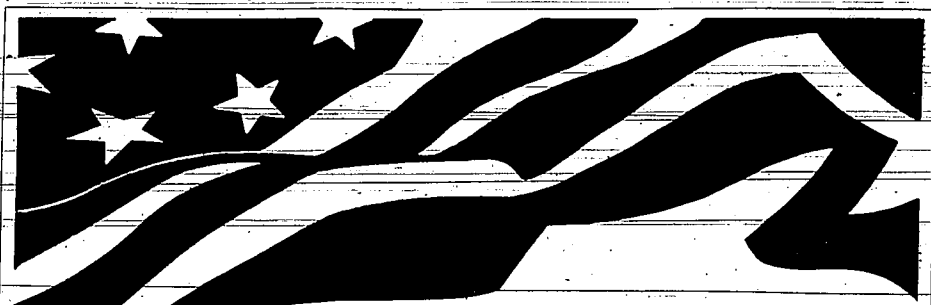

Don't buy on price alone! Price without quality is no bargain! So-called system installers usually charge according to the number of sprinkler heads and type of head installed. A bargain means no more than that an installer is going to "skimp" on materials and try to make fewer sprinkler heads to a job they are designed to do. A "skimp" installation cannot properly water your lawn and uneven watering will soon show in different shades of greenness in your lawn. TWIN SYSTEMS WILL DO THE JOB RIGHT... AT A FAIR PRICE!

We guarantee it! Twin Systems has the best guarantee in the business! We completely take care of your system the first year at no charge. This includes winterizing and next spring turn-on and check-out. If the system is an automatic we also reset the controller to compensate for temperature conditions and seasons. TWIN SYSTEMS GIVES A 100% GUARANTEE OF SATISFACTION!

We give service! Our customers enjoy prompt, efficient service. Our installers however require less attention than other systems because they were properly installed for long years of service.

We like Toro! Toro sprinkler heads are the best in the market. Their design and quality have made everything else obsolete! Toro sprinkler heads however must be properly installed according to the manufacturer's specifications for you to have a true Toro sprinkler system. TWIN SYSTEMS WILL SHOW AND DEMONSTRATE AN INSTALLATION CLOSE TO YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD.

CALL GREG MOORE AT 734-4958 FOR A FREE ESTIMATE. ANNUAL OR AUTOMATICALLY CONTROLLED UNDERGROUND LAWN SPRINKLER SYSTEM. OUR TRENCHLESS INSTALLATION AND CAREFUL WORKMANSHIP WILL NOT HARM YOUR PRESENT LAWN. THE AVERAGE SYSTEM TAKES ABOUT 3 DAYS TO INSTALL AND THEN YOU WILL BE READY FOR CAREFREE LAWN WATERING.

Magic Valley shooters top state meet

JEROME — The Magic Valley Silhouette Shooters, paced by John R. Weston, won 44 percent of all the trophies awarded Sunday at the conclusion of the Idaho State Silhouette Championships.

Jerome's Weston, was the high overall three-gun champion, hitting 152 out of a possible 180 targets while Jack Callen of Kootenai was the top four-gun winner, hitting 204 out of a possible 240 targets.

"We did quite well," Weston said. "It was the largest handgun match ever held in Idaho outside of the international match last summer. There were more than 230 shooters here."

Weston won the unlimited class competition for international-category shooters with a perfect score of 60 while Halley's Gary Swanner, also a member of the local club, took the production single shot international division with a 60.

Callen claimed the production standing international class with a 40 and Darrell Cornell of Nampa won the international class in production revolver with a 55.

Weston placed second in the production standing to Callen and was third behind Swanner and Cornell in the production single shot event.

"We had 11 clubs represented," Weston noted, "and we (the local club) took 42 percent of the production trophies, 61 percent in the standing competition, 28 percent in the revolver class and 46 percent in the unlimited."

Shooters came from all over Idaho, Utah, Oregon and Washington. Shooters must knock down steel silhouettes of various animals to score points. A perfect score is 60.

The trophies were sponsored by Coors. The results:

Voyles perfect in trap shoot singles

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls' Bernie Voyles had what you might call a perfect weekend.

The trapshooter won the singles competition in a trap shoot at the Twin Falls Gun Club by hitting all 225 targets he fired at.

Voyles hit 100 targets Saturday and hit another perfect score Sunday. Fred Hayes did the same, so the two tied for the championship. In a shootoff, Voyles broke 25 of 25 targets while Hayes missed just one and had to settle for second place.

Hayes claimed the Class A singles title while Gail Jones took Class B, Bob Lundstrom won Class C and Earl Gratton took Class D.

Jon Whipple of Twin Falls won the one-day handicap event by breaking 96 clay targets Sunday.

Hollen Hiller won the 17- to 22-year event with 95 targets and Chuck Woodland was the winner at 23- to 27-year-olds with 95 targets hit.

In the overall competition for the two-day meet, Voyles was tops in Class A with 483 targets hit. Ron Veatch paced Class B with 470 targets while Barry Messner led Class C with 415 and Earl Gratton took Class D with 375.

Billie Mason, was the high woman in the singles with a score of 194 while Helen Keppinger defeated Judy Pope in a shootoff to win the high women crown in the handicap event. The two had tied with scores of 85.

Nyle Winn won Saturday's doubles competition, hitting 99 of 100 targets.

The two-day competition was sponsored by Budweiser.

Driver dies after Canadian Grand Prix crash

RICCARDO PALETTI Hits pole sitter Pironi

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Brabham team of Brazilian Nelson Piquet and Riccardo Paletti of Italy took advantage of their opponents' mishaps Sunday to coast to an easy 1-2 victory in the Canadian Grand Prix, a race marred by the death of Italian driver Riccardo Paletti.

Paletti died in Montreal's Royal Victoria Hospital after his Donim Osella crashed into the back of pole sitter Didier Pironi's Ferrari and burst into flames at the start of the race.

A restart was recalled after Paletti's accident and the race began two hours later. Paletti, at 24 a rookie on the circuit, died less than two hours after he was cut free from the wreckage of his car and airlifted to the hospital by helicopter.

Piquet passed France's Rene Arnoux on a hairpin curve near the starting line on the ninth lap, and held a two-second lead until the Renault driver spun out on the 28th lap and left the race.

Up until that time, Arnoux had recorded the fastest lap of the race on his 27th lap and was gaining on the defending world champion.

Arnoux's departure put Piquet into second place, 29 seconds behind the leader, Piquet, who started the race eighth on the grid, gained steadily on the leaders and moved on Arnoux when France's Alain Prost spun out and left the race in the 31st lap.

A hospital spokesman said Paletti, who would have celebrated his 25th birthday Wednesday, died on the operating table from massive hemorrhaging of his abdomen and thorax.

Doctors said before his death that Paletti had suffered a perforated aorta and torn diaphragm, as well as fractures of both legs and extensive internal bleeding.

It was the second death on the Grand Prix circuit this year. Ironically, the race had been dedicated to Canadian driver Gilles Villeneuve, who died in a fiery crash in a trial run May 8 for the Belgian Grand Prix.

Moments after the race began, Paletti's car, which started 12 cars behind Pironi's Ferrari, rammed into the back of the French driver's car, which did not start at the opening flag for unknown reasons.

Pironi and track rescue crews immediately rushed over to Paletti, who sat motionless in the cockpit of his car. As the would-be rescuers attempted to lift off the injured driver's helmet, the battered Osella, which had been leaking gas and oil, suddenly burst into flames which engulfed the driver's compartment.

Firefighters sprayed foam on the blaze but it took about 20 minutes to free Paletti from the car.

Paletti, who was in his first year on the Grand Prix circuit, was airlifted by helicopter to the hospital, receiving cardiac-pulmonary resuscitation on the way.

Wapi beats Gooding team for women's softball title

TWIN FALLS — Wapi of Idaho Falls went undefeated over the weekend to take first place in Class B-C women's softball tournament at Harmon Park.

Wapi defeated Gooding Lumber 7-3 in the championship game. North's Chuckwagon-Black Connection of Twin Falls took third and Scott's Refrigeration, also of Twin Falls, placed fourth.

Gooding Lumber took a 1-0 lead in the top of the second inning. Sunday's title game as Stephanie Astorquia and Mona Nichols singled before Lisa Graves hit a sacrifice fly to center field to score Astorquia.

Wapi struck back for three runs in the bottom half of the second inning and never again trailed. Julie Thibodeau and Marsha Johnson singled before Cornack singled in Thibodeau for the first run. Helen Stanton's ensuing single scored Johnson and Cornack scored the third run on a fielder's choice.

Wapi added a run in the fourth before Donna Christensen's triple and Renee Berglund's sacrifice fly gave Wapi its fifth run in the last of the fifth inning.

Gooding Lumber scored twice in the top of the sixth to make the deficit 5-3. Reineke Koonce singled and scored when Jeanne Clemens singled and took third on a Wapi error. Julie Cline then popped out behind second base and Clemens, tagging up at third, beat the throw to the plate with a head first slide.

Wapi produced two insurance runs in the last of the sixth inning. Gooding Lumber's Angela Hohnorst singled with two out in the top of the seventh inning, but Wapi stopped any would-be rally.

Koonce was the top hitter in the tournament with a .526 average. While Kelly Fosco, Gooding Lumber's third baseman, was named the most valuable player.

Floyd never trails on way to 6-shot Memphis victory

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Ray Floyd, leading from wire-to-wire, won his second PGA event of the year with a six-shot victory Sunday in the $400,000 Memphis Classic and pronounced himself ready for this week's U.S. Open at Pebble Beach.

"I played very, very well for four rounds and putted tremendously," said Floyd, who was never more than three feet into the rough on any hole and who sank 22 birdie putts. "I don't know how I could have played any better."

Floyd shot a final round 69 to finish with a 17-under-par 271. He had earlier rounds of 67-68-67.

Nike Holland, a little known former University of South Carolina golfer who started the final round five strokes back and finished second with a 70-277, said playing in the same threesome with Floyd helped spur him on.

Armie's Army triumphant — B2

"He helped me a lot," Holland said. "I got off to a fairly solid start. I was hitting solid shots, but nothing happened. I wasn't concerned about Raymond."

It was Holland's best finish in his two-year pro career. Curtis Strange, who finished third with a 69-278, said he could not have hoped for a better finish in Memphis.

"I played as good as I can play and finished third," he said. "It can only make some puts."

major victory, belonged to her. She shared the lead after the first round, led by one stroke after the second and by two after the third.

Stephenson stretched her margin to three shots on the first hole Sunday when she parred and Daniel, who collapsed on the back side, bogeyed. After that, Stephenson never led by less than two strokes and was five shots in front at one time.

Stephenson, who picked up a $30,000 check for the win, came close to blowing the tournament wide open early in the round, barely missing birdie putts on both the first and third holes. She finally holed in a 12-footer for a birdie on the fifth and followed with a nine-foot birdie putt on the sixth.

Stephenson bogeyed the seventh when she three-putted

"This week, they started to drop," he said. "Now, I'm ready for Pebble [Pebble Beach]. No, I'm not sure if anyone's ready for Pebble, but I'm pleased."

Floyd also said he was primed for the U.S. Open. "My spirits are good going to Pebble," he said.

Floyd made the turn at two-under for the round. He stumbled with back-to-back bogeys at Nos. 12 and No. 13, but came right back to finish with birdies on the last three holes to cap his second victory of the year.

His 271 total was one stroke higher than the record low of 270 at Colonial set by Gene Littler in 1975.

Floyd's $72,000 victory check pushed his 1992 earnings to $230,610, moving him from No. 7 to No. 2, ahead of Tom Watson but still below Craig Stadler's $317,088. He also pushed his career earnings over the $2 million mark.

and made the turn at one-under-par-35, two shots in front of Daniel. But a two-shot swing on the 10th hole, when Stephenson birdied and Daniel bogeyed, was the turning point.

Daniel, who had played inconsistent golf the entire tournament, still managed to stay in contention, bogeying three more holes in succession. She finished with a 75 and a 285 total, good for a seventh-place tie with Hollis Stacy and Sandra Haynie.

Carnier, who picked up $19,600 for second, finished with a birdie on the par-5 18th for a 69 and sole possession of second place at 281.

Alex, who started the day eight shots off the pace, fired a five-under 67 and finished tied for third at 283 with Pam Gietzen, who had a final round 71.

Site for wrestling clinic changed

TWIN FALLS—The site has been changed for a wrestling clinic that starts today.

The clinic, which runs through Wednesday, will be held in the small gym at Robert Stuart Junior High, not at Vera C. O'Leary Junior High.

The gym floor at O'Leary has been resurfaced, making it unavailable for the clinic which features Skyline High Coach Floyd Young.

Barry's top mother-daughter golf

TWIN FALLS—Emma and Mary Lou Barry took first place Sunday at Canyon Springs Golf Course's Mother-Daughter Tournament.

The duo recorded a best-ball score of 60 while Shirley Straugh and Nancy Webb were second at 67. Justine Messersmith and Janet Stroder were third with a 69.

In the junior-senior division, Jean McCullum and Kathy Hanchett took first with a 62. Elda Felton and LaVerne Rudolph were second with a 65 and Donna Harriman and Glenda McGreer placed third with a 67.

Twenty twosomes took part in the annual event.

Palmer takes senior tourney

MARLBORO, Mass. (UPI)—Arnold Palmer, drawing a legion of 14,000 fans in a steady rain, fired a two-under-par 69 Sunday to retain the title and capture the $150,000 Marlboro Classic seniors tournament.

Palmer, with a sea of colorful umbrellas behind him, shot a 72-hole total of 276 for a four-stroke victory on the 6,174-yard Marlboro Country Club course and boosted up his confidence for next week's U.S. Open at Pebble Beach.

Palmer plodded through a steady rain to play a second round, hitting 17 greens and making two birdies to stave off early charges by Bob Rosburg and Billy Casper, who shot 70 and 71, respectively.

The victory was Palmer's first in New England since he won the $20,000 first place money at the 1968 Kemper Open at Pleasant Valley Country Club in Sutton, Mass.

Rosburg and Casper shared second place with 72-hole totals of 280, one stroke better than Australia's Peter Thomson and four veteran Dan Sikes. Last year's runner up Art Wall was alone in sixth place at 282.

Connors handles McEnroe

LONDON (UPI)—Jimmy Connors, serving with impressive consistency, drubbed top seeded John McEnroe, 7-5, 6-3, Sunday to win a $175,000 tennis championship at Queen's Club.

The victory enabled Connors to take a 10-8 career lead over the world's No. 1 ranked player.

Connors, by winning in 79 minutes, earned $24,000 and McEnroe $12,000.

Connors played down the possible significance of his triumph in total to Wimbledon, where they will also be seeded to meet each other in the final in three weeks time.

"Every time we play it's a new day and a new time," said Connors. "Although I'd be very happy if I could keep this form through until then."

Richmond defeats Labonte

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI)—Tim Richmond, a former-rookie-of-the-year at Indianapolis, won the Riverside 400 Sunday with a four-second victory over Terry Labonte.

It was the first Winston Cup Grand National stock car race victory for Richmond.

Richmond forced his 1982 A.D. Stacy-Buell ahead of Labonte with just five laps remaining in the 95-lap event and went on to win at an average speed of 104.16 mph.

Labonte took the lead at the start and dominated most of the race before giving up the lead to Richmond.

Johncock claims Rex-Mays 150

WEST ALLIS, Wis. (UPI)—Gordon Johncock, who won this year's Indianapolis 500, breezed to victory Sunday in the Rex-Mays 150, beating A.J. Foyt by 11.1 seconds in the fastest Rex Mays ever.

Johncock, who won $19,979, drove his Wildcat Cosworth to a record speed of 126.967 mph in winning his fourth championship on the one mile paved oval at Wisconsin State Fair Park.

A's win on speed & power

By United Press International

The Oakland A's used their combination of speed and power to take the rubber game of a three-game set from the Blue Jays Sunday.

At Toronto, Tony Armas hit a two-run homer to key a three-run second-inning rally—and Rickey Henderson tied his career high with four stolen bases in leading the A's to a 5-3 victory over the Blue Jays in the first of a three-game series.

Trailing 4-3 in the seventh, the A's began their comeback when Henderson singled to left with one out, then stole second and third. Wayne Murphy walked off losing reliever Roy Lee Jackson, 5-4, and Dan Meyer's sacrifice fly drove in Henderson. Armas then ripped a 2-and-2 pitch into the left-field bleachers for his seventh homer.

Henderson's RBI prouder with the bases loaded, Henderson stole his fourth base of the game later that inning to raise his season total to 62.

Tom Underwood, 3-4, allowed one hit in 3 1/3 innings to notch the victory in relief.

Angels 7, White Sox 4

At Chicago, Don Baylor's two-run double with two outs in the eighth inning triggered a four-run rally that won the Angels and disappointed a crowd of 50,892—largest of the year at Comiskey Park. Rod Carew extended his hitting streak to 18 straight games, tying his career high, with an RBI single in the ninth. Geoff Zahn, 7-2, scattered six hits in his sixth complete game in 13 starts.

Brewers 13, Tigers 5

At Milwaukee, Gorman Thomas hit two home runs and Ben Oglivie, Don Money and Robin Yount also batted to pace an 18-hit Brewers attack. Thomas hit his 11th homer of the season in the first to score Yount and Oglivie followed with his 12th.

Mariners 7, Astros 4

At Kansas City, Mo., Dave Henderson hit a two-run homer to back the combined five-hit pitching of Floyd Bannister and Larry Andersen and lead the Mariners, who reached a 31-30 record to mark the latest date in their six-year history that they have surpassed the 500 mark.

Rangers 10, Twins 4

At Arlington, Texas, the Rangers cruised for seven runs on eight hits, including Dave Hostetler's home run, in the first inning to crush the Twins. Kent Hrbek had two hits for Minnesota to extend his hitting streak to 17 games.

Padres 5, Astros 4

At San Diego, Alan Wiggins singled in the tying run in the seventh inning and then stole second and continued home on two throwing errors, putting the Padres 11 games over .500, by far their best showing ever at this stage of the season.

John Montefusco, 5-4, went the first 7 2/3 innings and was credited with his fourth straight victory. Gary Lucas earned his eighth save as the Padres completed a four-game sweep of the Astros.

Nolan Ryan went 6 1/3 innings for Houston and was saddled with his eighth loss in 13 decisions.

Expos 5, Cubs 3 (10)

At Montreal, Tim Lincecum hit a two-out, two-run homer in the bottom of the 10th, handing the Cubs a club record-tying 13th straight loss. It was the Expos' fourth victory in a row while the loss equalled the Cubs' record for most consecutive defeats set in May, 1994.

Reds 4, Dodgers 2

At Los Angeles, Alex Trevino singled home two runs in the third inning and Tom Hume saved starter Bruce Berenyi's first win since April 27, lifting the Reds. Berenyi, 5-4, had lost five straight. Hume earned his 12th save.

Giants 2-1, Braves 1-5

At San Francisco, Jack Clark led off the sixth inning with his 11th homer of the season to help the Giants snap Atlanta's five-game winning streak in the opener. The decision was "the Braves' first road defeat in 14 games against West Division teams."

Dale Murphy hit a two-run homer in the first inning to help the Braves salvage the nightcap. Murphy's homer followed a single by Rafael Ramirez and came off losing pitcher Alton Hamaker, 3-4. Rick Camp, starting for the first time since 1978, went 5 2/3 innings to gain his fourth victory in seven decisions.

Hailey mall annexation vote date up in air

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Hailey residents will get to decide whether to annex the controversial 7.6-acre Atkinson-Levin mall property, but when that will happen remains unclear.

Hailey's attorney, Mike Donovan, has determined that the city's special water bond election, tentatively scheduled for July, does constitute a municipal election. If that's true, a city ordinance requires the special annexation election to be held at the same time.

Two weeks ago, City Council voted — with one member opposing and one absent — to schedule the annexation election for Aug. 10. Mayor Wordell Rainey said the election dates probably will be discussed again at tonight's council meeting.

"Most of the council is concerned that the two issues will be confused if they are held during the same special election," Rainey said.

Consequently, council may decide to postpone the water bond election until after the annexation election is held Aug. 10, according to Rainey. Two other alternatives are holding the two elections simultaneously or changing both dates.

The initiative forcing the public vote on whether to annex the proposed mall site also calls for that area to be zoned for business. Earlier this year, the Hailey Planning and Zoning Commission recommended that the area be zoned residential if it's annexed — a move that effectively would have canceled any mall plans.

Grocer Don Atkinson and physician Don

Levin are proposing a shopping mall-medical clinic at the site, an area that's mostly zoned commercial in Blaine County's zoning ordinance.

Primary opposition has come from Rainey and Councilman Bob Ward, who fear that the establishment of a mall will detract business from Hailey's downtown district.

"Nationwide, we see shopping centers on the edge of towns drawing away business," Rainey said. "Then the downtown areas begin to decay and decline in property value. We don't want to see that in our town."

But Rainey said that this concern is only a secondary issue in opposing the annexation.

"Any kind of annexation carries an additional impact on our city's budget. And under the 1 percent limits, which allow us only 5 percent budget increases per year, there isn't enough money to adequately extend city services to new areas."

Even though the proposed mall would pay its share of the tax burden, Rainey said that state law prohibits the city's budget from increasing more than 5 percent.

"The dollar amount we will remain roughly the same, although the burden of the taxes would be spread out some (if the mall becomes reality)," he said.

Rainey says that city services — fire and police protection, and road maintenance — already are spread thin, and that "the smaller area the city maintains, the better."

However, the developers have said repeatedly that they can design the mall — at a reduced level than originally proposed — so that it will not compete unduly with downtown businesses. The redesigned mall would limit retail space and have phased-in construction in order to gradually mix in with other Hailey businesses, according to Levin's lawyer, Evan Robertson.

The water bond election, which apparently has been brought into conflict with the annexation, is for a $400,000 bond to finance improvements to the municipal system.

If ultimately approved by the voters, the bonds would be used to build a million-gallon water storage tank near the city's water source in Indian Creek Canyon. City officials claim the tank primarily is needed to ensure adequate water pressure for fire-fighting.

A hydroelectric generator also has been proposed as part of the water system's improvements.

High run-off may hold up bridge project

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Unusually high run-off from the Snake River is threatening to delay the Murtaugh Bridge project beyond its Oct. 1 completion date.

Work crews on the project have completed the north and south abutments of the structure. That means the old Murtaugh Bridge will be reopened to traffic within the next two weeks. The old bridge was closed in April to allow construction of the north abutment.

But run-off waters must subside before crews can begin work on the new bridge's pier footing. Earlier this year, "project engineers" expressed some concern that the unusually wet winter would delay construction.

"That concern has become a reality due to the high level of snowpack and the corresponding run-off," says Gerald Martens, the consulting engineer for the project. "The water has not dropped, as it has in a normal year."

The $89,181 construction project will replace the 65-year-old wood-decked span with a modern steel and concrete structure.

Federal highway funds will pay for the bulk of the project. However,

Jerome County, the Hillsdale Highway District, Twin Falls County and the Murtaugh Highway District are providing an estimated $25,000 to $30,000 as their share of the costs.

So far, the work has proceeded on time, Martens said. But unless run-off waters subside by next month, some delay will be inevitable.

"It's not good news, but it's not serious yet," he said. "I would think that any delay past the first of July is likely to result in a corresponding delay in completion of the project. There's nothing that anyone can do about it."

In another on-going area-highway projects, the Idaho Division of Highways reports the following status:

- Blue Lakes Boulevard North — Work crews are scheduled to begin crushing operations to provide materials for the roadway base, and this week, crews are scheduled to begin excavating the east half of the existing road.
- Bliss rest area and port of entry — Construction of sewage lagoons for the rest area is virtually complete.
- Hailey — Construction of a 114-foot concrete bridge over the Big Wood River northeast of Hailey is now complete with the exception of a guardrail and bridge handrail.

Vehicles turn targets for vandals, thieves

TWIN FALLS — Someone tried to give Janice Haney's 1980 sedan a new paint job but the result was $300 damage.

Police reported the vehicle was parked in the alley behind 133 Monroe St. between 10 and 11 p.m. Saturday night. Someone used a can of black spray paint to give the car an unwanted look.

Ernie O'Connor told police someone damaged his vehicle early Saturday while it was parked at the Alley Bar, 121 4th Ave. S. He said someone slashed both front tires, causing about $200 damage. The incident occurred about 2 a.m. Saturday.

Twin Falls police were also investigating a report of about $600 damage to a wheat field after someone drove through the field. Robert Whitaker, who lives in Kimberly, says his field in the 1300 block of Blue Lakes Boulevard North, near Roy Raymond Road, was damaged during the weekend.

The theft of about $500 worth of tools was also reported to police Sunday morning. Doug Welch of Twin Falls said his pickup truck was burglarized between 3 p.m. Saturday and 3 a.m. Sunday. Someone entered the truck and took a box of tools from the front seat, he said.

Pilots, craft scheduled to gather at Buhl

'Ultra-lights' on wing in Magic Valley

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — It resembles a giant grasshopper or butterfly, but it's an "ultra-light," the latest fad for Magic Valley aviation fans.

There are several brand names, but those seen most often in this area are Weed Hoppers, said as kits by Ernie Kendrick of Twin Falls. He describes them as motorized hang gliders.

"They give you the best of both worlds," he says. Instead of having to climb to the top of a hill, unload and assemble the glider, with an ultra-light, you can take off from the backyard or nearby pasture and fly to the top of the hill, or simply climb and glide long distances without difficulty.

Kendrick says that if a pilot wants a "pure" glide, he can cut the engine, but if he needs to climb and doesn't have the proper air motion, he can start the motor and up he goes.

Ultra-lights are powered by small, 25-horsepower engines, which cruise at 20 to 30 mph. They can range over a 90-mile radius on one tank of gasoline. It is economical travel, Kendrick says; the miles-per-gallon rating is about 40.

This type of aircraft can be purchased for about $4,000, which both owners and manufacturers say is about the same price that some other recreational vehicles such as snowmobiles or motorcycles cost.

While flying ultra-lights is purely for recreation, there are some dangers to consider, Kendrick warns.

"It's not just a matter of hopping aboard and taking off. The pilot needs some flight experience, and when Kendrick sells one, he insists on a few flight lessons in a regular light aircraft.

Popular for several years in California, ultra-lights are just coming into their own in the Magic Valley. And Kendrick says that as they become more prevalent, owners and dealers alike are becoming more concerned about safety.

"We are now working on regulations to ensure the safety of ultra-light traffic," he says.

A flight school for ultra-light pilots and prospective owners is being arranged for July 15, Kendrick says. Also, there will be an ultra-light "fly-in," the first for this part of Idaho, at the Buhl airport later this month. Here, ultra-light owners and pilots will have an opportunity to compare experiences and show their skills.

Final arrangements are being made with the city of Buhl and the Buhl airport manager, and the event, tentatively scheduled for June 26, is expected to attract pilots and ultra-light aircraft from around the country.

Ultra-light owners are becoming numerous enough in the Magic Valley that an informal organization has been formed. The group meets regularly to compare notes and make some recommended rules of their own.

Kendrick says the group is working closely with the Federal Aviation Administration in an effort to draw up guidelines for safety and regulation of traffic to protect ultra-light flyers and to avoid conflict with other aircraft.

Deer breaks car windows

FAIRFIELD (UPI) — A deer smashed through the front windshield and out the back window of a car while it was traveling on U.S. 20 near Fairfield Saturday.

The occupants of the car, Russell Brueggemann, 64, and his wife Helen, 61, of Boise, were cut by flying glass but not seriously injured. They were treated at St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center and released.

The deer, a doe, weighing an estimated 150 pounds, was killed by the impact. Camas County sheriff's deputies were called to the scene of the accident to remove the carcass.

Brueggemann said the accident happened so fast that he did not see the deer until after it had flown through the car, crashed through the back window and rolled off the rear.

News briefs

Miss Twin Falls runner-up
BOISE (UPI) — Karmelle Whitaker, 19, Miss Twin Falls, was chosen fourth runner-up in the Miss Idaho Pageant Saturday night.

Miss Eastern Idaho, Lisa Eaton, 22, was crowned Miss Idaho 1982. Miss Eaton will receive over $2,000 in scholarships, loans, the state in the coming year and represent the 48th term state in the Miss America Pageant in Atlantic City, N.J., in September.

First runnerup in the contest was Miss Rexberg, Elaine Pack, 19; second runnerup was Miss Boise, 21-year-old Karen Peterson. Third runnerup was Miss Idaho Falls, Kona Pursell, 19.

Victor crash kills woman
VICTOR, Idaho (UPI) — A late night car crash south of Victor in Teton County claimed the life of a Wyoming woman Saturday.

Beth Graefenauer, 21, of Jackson, Wyo., was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident on State Highway 33. Teton County Sheriff Tim Trout said another car driven by Gordon Wayne Jones, 23, Victor, traveling eastbound on the road hit the woman's car head-on.

Trout said Jones was in stable condition Sunday at Parkview Hospital in Idaho Falls with a fractured ankle.

Steam locomotive in Idaho
BOISE (UPI) — The largest operating steam locomotive in the world will be in Idaho this week, said a spokesman for the Union Pacific Railroad.

Locomotive 3985 will arrive at Montpelier on Thursday, then travel to McAdams and then Pocatello that same day.

The locomotive will be part in Union Pacific Family Days/Open House to kickoff Pocatello's Centennial celebration. It will be on display at the Pocatello depot June 19, and part of June 20.

Obituaries

Orvel Lee Wright

JEROME — Orvel Lee Wright, 48, of Jerome, died Saturday afternoon at his home of natural causes.

Born Nov. 24, 1933, in Twin Falls, he attended schools in Twin Falls and Wendell. He served in the Pacific area with the U.S. Navy during the Korean War. He was married to Lucinda Ekkel June 10, 1956, in Wendell. The marriage was later solemnized in the Oakland Mormon Temple. They lived in Modesto, Calif., and later in San Francisco before moving to Jerome in 1980 from Hawthorne, Nev.

Mr. Wright was a civil service employee most of his adult life. He was a member of the Mormon Church and the Elders Quorum Presidency in San Francisco.

Surviving are: His wife of Jerome; three daughters, Della Atwood of Hawthorne, Nev., Nancy Lee Wright of Orem, Utah, and Linda Wright of Jerome; his mother, Janie L. Wright of Wendell; a sister, Betty Rice of Nurtlugh and two step-grandchildren.

Mr. Wright was preceded in death by his father and a brother.

The service for Mr. Wright will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Jerome Second Ward Mormon Chapel on North Lincoln by Bishop Keith Thompson. A flag ceremony will be conducted at the Wendell Cemetery by the Wendell American Legion. Friends may call at the Home Funeral Chapel in Jerome Tuesday from 3 to 5 p.m. and Wednesday from 9 a.m. until 1:30 p.m.

OAKLEY — Arthur Clifford Burch, 80, of Oakley, died Sunday morning at his home after a short illness.

Born Aug. 30, 1901, in Oakley, he married Olga Wilson June 27, 1928, in Oakley. The marriage was solemnized in 1929, in the Salt Lake City Mormon Temple.

He was a dairyman most of his life and a member of the Mormon church, and had served as ward clerk and bishop's counselor.

Surviving are: His wife of Oakley; his mother, Macena Burch of Salt Lake City; two sons, James C. Burch and Arthur L. Burch, both of Oakley; a daughter, Ina Frances of Burch; two brothers, Golden Burch of Oakley and Adonis Burch of Salt Lake City; two sisters, Mrs. Joseph Baker and Gwen Chatterton, both of Salt Lake City; 14 grandchildren, and a great-grandchild.

The service for Mr. Burch will be at 1 p.m. Wednesday in the Oakley Second Ward Chapel with Bishop Mack Lloyd officiating. Burial will be in the Oakley Cemetery. Friends may call at McCulloch's Funeral Chapel Tuesday from 4 to 8:30 p.m. and Wednesday one hour prior to services at the church.

Billy Randy Fruit

FAIRFIELD — Billy Randy Fruit, 20, of Fairfield, died at his home yesterday. The service will be announced by Demaray's Thompson Chapel in Gooding.

Harvey W. Smith

CAREY — Harvey W. Smith, 57, died Friday in the Blaine County Medical Center after a short illness.

Born Nov. 22, 1904, in California, he was reared and educated in the San Francisco Bay area. Mr. Smith resided with the U.S. Merchant Marine for about 20 years before retiring after suffering an injury during a Japanese attack on his ship.

He worked on construction jobs and married Ruby M. Therpe in 1944. They moved to Carey where they owned and operated the Carey Telephone Co. until their retirement in 1962. While they operated the telephone company, they introduced the first dial system into the area. He enjoyed fishing, gardening and cooking.

Surviving are his wife in Carey and numerous nieces and nephews.

The service for Mr. Smith will be at 2:30 p.m. today at the Larkin Community Church in Carey. Presiding will be Carey LDS Bishop Heber Kirkland. Burial will be in the Carey Cemetery under the direction of Wood River Chapel.

L. Ray Dunken

TWIN FALLS — L. Ray Dunken, 92, a pioneer resident of Twin Falls, died Saturday at the Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital.

Born Sept. 7, 1889, in Richland County, Wis., he came to the Twin Falls area in 1904. During his life he lived in the area Mr. Dunken taught school at Kimberly, Hackett and Rock Creek, later working as a farm implement mechanic.

He married Margaret Webster on Nov. 2, 1925, at Gooding. She preceded him in death on Dec. 31, 1972.

Mr. Dunken was a member of Twin Falls Lodge No. 45, A.F. and A.M., and the Presbyterian church. He was the senior partner in the Dunken Distributing Co.

Surviving are: A son, Kenneth Dunken of Twin Falls; two daughters, Leah Jones of Twin Falls and Betty Sifton of Woodland Hills, Calif.; six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Mr. Dunken was preceded in death by two brothers and three sisters.

A graveside service will be conducted at 11 a.m. Tuesday at the Twin Falls Cemetery by the Twin Falls Masonic Lodge. Friends may call at the White Mortuary today from noon until 5 p.m. The family suggests memorial contributions be made to a charity of the donor's choice.

Raymond Dale Alger

TWIN FALLS — Raymond Dale Alger, 48, of Twin Falls, died Saturday in Magic Valley Regional Medical Center after a short illness.

Born Feb. 5, 1934, in Twin Falls, Mr. Alger attended schools here and during the Korean War served in both the U.S. Marine Corps and U.S. Air Force. He married Mary Lou Corle in Twin Falls in 1962 and they were later divorced. He was a member of the First Baptist Church and Disabled American Veterans.

Surviving are: A son, Michael Ray Newbury, and two daughters, Jean Newbury and Cindy Lou Newbury, all of Pocatello; his mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. George Cooper of Twin Falls; two brothers, David of Twin Falls and Cleo Alger of Monroe, Wash.; a sister, Sheila Ross of Salem, Ore.; three stepbrothers, Ron Cooper and George Cooper, Jr., both of Salt Lake City, and Carl Cooper of Colorado; and a step-sister, Belva Dalton of Salt Lake City.

Mr. Alger was preceded in death by his father and a sister.

The service for Mr. Alger will be conducted at 1 p.m. Tuesday at White Mortuary Chapel. Burial will be in the Sunset Memorial Park, with military rites by the combined members of the D.A.V., V.F.W. and American Legion and Pearl Harbor Survivors. Friends may call at the White Mortuary today from noon to 5 p.m. and Tuesday until noon.
