

Lebanese group vetoes latest peace plan

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Efforts to avert a final Israeli blitz on Beirut were set back Tuesday as a major Christian militia rejected a PLO plan to surrender with honor and Israel warned the PLO was stalling for time in U.S.-sponsored peace talks.

In Jerusalem, Prime Minister Menachem Begin won a parliamentary vote on continuing the Israeli siege of the Lebanese capital. He also changed Israel's demands for a PLO surrender and said he would let the guerrillas take their rifles if they flee Beirut.

"They can leave with their Kalashnikovs," Begin said of the 6,000 trapped PLO guerrillas during a 7 1/2 hour debate in Israel's parliament, the Knesset. "We are not afraid of their Kalashnikovs."

Previously, Israel had demanded that the guerrillas surrender their weapons to the Lebanese army and leave under Red Cross supervision for Syria or any other Arab state. The PLO — seeking an "honorable" solution to rescue its 6,000 men trapped in Moslem west Beirut — declared it was ready for an Israeli assault.

Sources close to the talks stressed, however, that U.S., Palestinian and Lebanese negotiators continued an intense exchange of proposals and counter-proposals. A shaky U.S.-arranged cease-fire held for a fifth day.

Official statements from Beirut and Jerusalem indicated an agreement was far off on how to avoid a final Israeli attack on the trapped PLO stronghold in Moslem west Beirut.

The powerful Lebanese Front rejected PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat's proposal to integrate some of his guerrillas into the Lebanese Army before evacuating the remaining 6,000 from Lebanon.

"No way. This is a ridiculous idea,"

Lebanese Front spokesman Pierre Yazbek told UPI. "It is a maneuver to implicate the Lebanese Army which has so far stayed out of things."

The rightist Front, a powerful Christian Phalangist group based in Christian-held east Beirut, is allied with Israel. The Front's opposition to the PLO proposal stymies the shaky Lebanese government, a coalition of Moslem and Christian groups.

Lebanese political sources said there were deep divisions between some Moslem Cabinet members backing the PLO and some of their Christian counterparts.

"We're ready for it," a top PLO official in Beirut said of an Israeli attack. "They actually believe that once they kill the bandleaders, the band is dead," he said, claiming a third of the PLO executive committee is outside Beirut.

Israel, its parliament meeting for the first full debate on the invasion, has granted an unspecified "interval of time" for the U.S. to mediate a PLO surrender to the Lebanese Army and an exit from Lebanon.

"The terrorists had better engage in some soul-searching at this moment of truth," Israeli Defense Minister Ariel Sharon, a key architect of the June 6 invasion, told the parliament session in Jerusalem.

Also in Jerusalem, a senior Israeli official warned, "We are getting more and more the impression that the negotiations are not advancing as they should at this stage."

"And we hope that in both Lebanon and the U.S. that all the parties concerned will understand the gravity of the situation if all the PLO is doing is dragging its feet and playing for time," he told foreign correspondents.

"This behavior by the PLO can have very grave results," he said.

The Christian rejection and Israeli charges came before the Lebanese Prime Minister Chelbi Wazzan juggled with Arafat. Two high-ranking PLO military commanders also met with Lebanese Army intelligence chief Johnny Abdo.

Technical aspects are at the center of the talks at the moment, a PLO spokesman said. He said the talks focused on the neutralization of the PLO presence in Lebanon.

At the Vatican, Pope John Paul II, in his most explicit statement on the issue to date, said the Palestinians have a right to a homeland in the Middle East.

"Let us pray so they (the Palestinians) can see recognized their legitimate aspirations — the first of which is to be able to have a homeland and so they can live in tranquility with all the peoples of the region," he said.

Judge orders release of Haitians

By GILBERT A. LEWTHWAITE
The Baltimore Sun

WASHINGTON — A federal judge has ordered the release "forthwith" of nearly 2,000 Haitian immigrants being held in detention camps, but the Reagan administration immediately sought a stay of the order and said it would appeal.

U.S. District Judge Eugene P. Spellman, of Miami, ordered the release Tuesday, under certain conditions, of Haitians in camps in Florida, West Virginia, Texas, New York, Kentucky, Louisiana and Puerto Rico. The judge said he would rule on the request for a stay today.

The Haitians' detention has been protested by church and civil rights groups, but the administration has repeatedly stated its determination to crack down on illegal immigration by pursuing its policy of interdiction and detention.

Key points in the judge's order were:

- The Haitians individually would have to be sponsored by both a government-approved agency and a private sponsor. Haitian representatives said plenty of sponsors were available.
- The Immigration and Naturalization Service should establish a "master file" on the Haitians, including fingerprints, photographs and personal histories. Each Haitian would be given an alien number and would be required to report each week to a court-appointed authority.
- Asylum hearings should be held within 30 days of release, with the immigrants assigned a volunteer attorney if necessary.

Under the judge's order, Haitian activists in Miami suggested Tuesday, the first detainees could be freed within 7 to 10 days. Many have been incarcerated for about a year.

The judge's order applies to detainees in camps around the country and in Puerto Rico, but excludes Haitians posing a security risk or judged likely to abscond, and also those suffering from mental or contagious diseases.

Neil Sonnett, president-elect of the Dade County Bar Association, said in a telephone interview: "I am very concerned that all of these Haitians... know now that the judge has ordered their release. To get their hopes up and then, 48 hours from now, have those hopes dashed, could lead to much more widespread depression and perhaps a terrible increase in suicides."

Affects only international businesses Supreme Court strikes down Idaho business tax

BOISE (UPI) — A U.S. Supreme Court decision Tuesday regarding an Idaho business tax law could cost Idaho and other states where international corporations operate millions of dollars in tax revenue.

"I think it's fair to say that in the long run the ruling will have negative effects on all concerned because Idaho and a lot of other states are in a serious financial constraint fight now," said Ted Spangler, the state lawyer who handled the case.

"It's a significant loss of revenue — if this indeed proves to be the case — is going to force governments to either curtail some services or find new sources of income."

Spangler said the ruling "will put one state and others in a dilemma, with neither alternative being particularly attractive."

The cases before the justices were appeals by corporations challenging New Mexico and Idaho laws that allow those states to tax the portion of a company's worldwide income that, based on the states' calculations, stems from business activity within their borders.

The Idaho case reached the high court on appeal by lawyers for ASARCO Inc., which operates mines in northern Idaho. The state had claimed it was owed more than $200 million in tax revenues from ASARCO for the years 1968, 1969 and 1970.

They were appealed from New Mexico by F.W. Woolworth Co.

Issuing two separate 6-3 decisions on the complex business dispute, the justices limited the ability of states to generate revenue from taxes on subsidiaries of national and multinational firms doing business in those states.

The decision could enhance the federal government's power to control the nation's international tax policies.

The disputes focused on complicated income reporting requirements placed on "tax-exempt" businesses that operate in the two states. A unitary business is one in which none of its income is derived from "unrelated business activity."

A unitary business must submit to a system of "combined" income tax reporting," in those states, which assumes that the income from each member of a unitary business constitutes a percentage of the combined business income of the group as a whole.

Writing for the court in the Idaho case, Justice Lewis Powell concluded the state's interpretation of what constitutes a unitary business was too broad and had "no limitation at all."

In dissent, Justice Sandra Day O'Connor argued that businesses need to function "unimpeded by a patchwork of overlapping and conflicting tax laws."

Idaho Attorney General David Leroy said a victory in the lawsuit would have meant additional "tens of millions of dollars" in tax revenues for his state over a 5-year period.

Chief Justice Warren Burger concurred in the rulings, saying he did so because "of the court's 'express statement' that the rulings 'do not preclude future congressional action in this area.'"

At the heart of the case, Spangler said, is which revenue earned by corporations operating in several states is subject to taxation by those states.

"In previous cases, the Supreme Court has indicated dividend income and interest income, where most of this controversy comes in — is subject to apportionment among the states."

"Now it apparently is saying those dividends are not apportionable. What we don't know yet is how the court has attempted to draw the line between dividends which are apportionable and those which are not," Spangler said.

In the New Mexico case, Powell also wrote for the majority that struck down the state tax law, declaring that "income attributed to a state must be rationally related to values connected with the taxing state."

The court found that some of the factors that give a state the right to tax dividends from foreign subsidiaries exists in the New Mexico dispute.

Eugene Corrigan, executive director of the Multistate Tax Commission, said that using the unitary method "does not necessarily mean every corporation pays every state more tax."

Shuttle rolls nose over to bake water off tiles

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Some evidence was found Tuesday that insulating tiles on the space shuttle Columbia's belly may still carry water from a freak Florida storm and they were turned toward the sun to bake for about 10 hours.

But Thomas Moser, a specialist on the shuttle's heat shielding, said the chances were just as good that the tiles are completely dry from their previous 10-hour baking, and the latest sun-soak was just a precaution.

"There is no potential for catastrophe" during re-entry, Moser emphasized, even if some moisture remains in the tiles. He said the worst that could happen would be the surfaces of some tiles might pop off due to ice in them turning to steam in the intense heat of re-entry.

Columbia was hit by a severe, gauge-force hailstorm on the launch pad Saturday night while waiting for the Sunday morning blastoff. It was discovered the hail had kicked about 400 tiles, allowing water to soak into them.

Astronauts Thomas "Ken" Mattingly and Henry Hartfield were asked just before they turned in for their third night's sleep in space to turn Columbia's underside to the sun instead of exposing the tail as scheduled in a long thermal test.

That rounded out "absolutely the busiest day" the pilots have scheduled on this weeklong fourth and final shakedown cruise of Columbia, to end with a Fourth of July landing in California's Mojave Desert.

They gave the 50-foot cargo area a workout through the day and checked what gases and other pollutants are spewing out of the spaceship — including the effects on the craft's environment of firing its attitude jets.

Before he and co-pilot Hartfield tucked themselves in for the night Tuesday, commander Mattingly summed up their day.

"It got kind of hectic there for a while, but it all seemed to come out pretty good. By the middle of tomorrow, I think we'll have our act together."

Agreement will be hard to come by U.S.-Soviet arms talks resume

By WALTER WISNIEWSKI
United Press International

GENEVA, Switzerland — The Strategic Arms Reduction Talks opened Tuesday and the chief U.S. negotiator called on the Soviet Union to sacrifice many of its big land-based missiles in exchange for a pledge that America will curb its $1.5 trillion rearmament program.

The chief U.S. negotiator, retired Lt. Gen. Edward L. Rowny, expressed optimism about the possibility of reaching an agreement with the Soviets at the START talks but warned Americans not to expect instant results.

His Soviet counterpart, Viktor Pavlovich Karpov, acts with the caution of a chess player, Rowny told a news conference, "whereas we in the West like to play Pac-Man. We like to put quarters in and see instant results from electronic machines. The talks are not going to be like that," Rowny said.

The initial meeting between Karpov and Rowny lasted more than an hour and involved plans for a plenary session today. The two men agreed that details of the talks will be kept confidential.

Hard bargaining lies ahead in the new U.S.-Soviet arms talks because the two sides have radically different views about the meaning of equality in the nuclear weapons race.

President Reagan's negotiators stress their desire to achieve a stable balance of power between Moscow and Washington in any new agreement.

Analysis

But the Russians say the American recipe for arms reduction, especially the two-part proposal to cut missile warheads by a third and restrict land-based rockets to no more than 50 percent of the total, has an opposite intent, one aimed at damaging the Soviet Union's basic defenses.

The United States wants each country to cut its supply of long-range missile warheads from about 7,500 to 5,000, and simultaneously ensure that no more than 2,500 of these are carried by land-based intercontinental ballistic missiles, or ICBMs.

To meet that proposal, the Soviets would have to remove 3,400 of the 5,500 nuclear warheads they already have installed and are ready to fire from their ICBM batteries.

The United States currently has only 2,150 warheads installed on land-based ICBMs, so the Reagan proposal would mean no cuts in that category. In fact, the Pentagon could figure on adding 350 new warheads aboard MX missiles.

This is what the Russians mean when they assail "lopsided" American attempts to weaken the Kremlin's military strength.

Today's briefing

Donovan takes verbal offensive

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An embittered Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan took the offensive Tuesday, seeking to solidify his Cabinet position as White House officials weighed any political liability against a favorable special prosecutor's report.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said the White House has not yet received a review of special prosecutor Leon Silverman's findings, but a statement will not be made until the Justice Department completes its own review.

Silverman reported Monday that "insufficient credible evidence" existed to prosecute Donovan on allegations of ties to organized crime.

Tuesday, Donovan rose at dawn in his $800,000 home overlooking the Potomac River, and scurried between network television studios to appear on all three major morning news programs.

His comments had a second thread — that his reputation has been damaged by the repeated charges of underworld connections, but that he plans to remain on the job.

"I came to this town with reputation and character," he said. "My reputation was smeared. I have been damaged by these allegations through these months, but... if they touched my reputation, they've strengthened my character. I have been and will continue to be a very effective labor secretary."

Reagan to face reporters today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan will hold a nationally televised news conference at 8 p.m. MDT today, the White House announced Tuesday.

Reagan has not held a news conference since May 13 and has not consented to answer any questions from reporters since May 24.

He was expected to be questioned on a wide range of events that have developed in recent days including the resignation of Secretary of State Alexander Haig and the Israeli invasion of Lebanon.

Leaks continue after crackdown

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House, which recently proposed a new set of rigid rules to prevent news "leaks," said Tuesday it is not investigating a recent account in The New York Times of a National Security Council meeting.

The meeting was the one in which President Reagan decided to take an even tougher line than before on preventing the sale of technology to the Soviet Union.

In the item published June 21, Times columnist William Safire used few direct quotes but paraphrased in detail the positions of all the participants — President Reagan, national security adviser William Clark, Undersecretary of State Larry Eagleburger, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige and Defense Secretary "Frank" Weinberger, explaining that "Secretary" Caspar Weinberger and (Deputy Secretary) Frank Carlucci have merged.

Safire quoted Reagan as saying during the meeting: "I don't want to shoot ourselves in the foot, either, but a matter of great principle is at stake. It affects our credibility with our allies and with the Russians."

A State Department aide said later Safire's report was so complete it was "as if he had a microphone in the room."

Europeans rip U.S. trade policy

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — Leaders of the 10 Common Market countries Tuesday expressed displeasure about recent U.S. trade restrictions, but dropped plans for a more strongly worded protest under pressure from British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

The heads of the European governments completed a two-day summit meeting Tuesday expressing disapproval of the Reagan administration's decision to restrict European steel imports and ban the sale of U.S.-licensed equipment for use in the Siberian gas pipeline.

French President Francois Mitterrand called the U.S. moves "coercive, vexing, unfair and dangerous," and said he saw no point in holding future summits of Western leaders if the United States planned to ignore their results.

But the Common Market leaders agreed to release only a watered-down statement calling for "a genuine and effective dialogue" between the United States and its Common Market allies, and warning that the world's free trade system would be "seriously jeopardized by unilateral and retroactive decisions on international trade."

Handgun owners strike back

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Opponents fired back Tuesday against San Francisco's new ban on the sale and possession of handguns. One dissenting city supervisor said if the ordinance survived court tests, she would turn in her illegal pistol for a legal shotgun.

"We are going to create an underground traffic in guns," said the supervisor, Carol Ruth Silver, who voted against the gun control measure.

She told reporters a newly-formed "Committee Against the Confiscation of Handguns" would file a lawsuit within a month to challenge the new gun law. If the challenge fails, she vowed to obtain a shotgun — legal under the ordinance — in order to continue legal ownership of a firearm.

The attorney the opponents hired to bring suit, Don Kates, is also fighting a similar ordinance passed in Morton Grove, Ill.

Sides were quickly forming on the issue even though the ordinance does not take effect for 30 days. Gun owners have a four-month grace period to turn in their weapons or face 30 days in jail and a $500 fine.

District Attorney Arlo Smith said he would not file charges against anyone for violating the ban until the courts determined the constitutionality of the law, passed by the supervisors on a 6-4 vote Monday night.

"I'm sure there will be a constitutional determination on this ordinance," Smith said. "Until then, it's my duty to do what I believe to be the law."

Blaine County bridge 'falls'

HAILEY — Rains and warm weather over the past few days resulted in a bridge over the Big Wood River washing out Tuesday afternoon. Officers in the Blaine County sheriff's office said Tuesday night that an old wooden bridge, known as the Deer Creek Bridge, on Deer Creek Road, washed out during the day.

Although the bridge was a total loss, there were no injuries.

Traffic was being detoured around the area Tuesday night.

The Big Wood River has been at flood stage since the heavy snowpack began melting early this spring.

Some land adjacent to the river has been covered with water, but no homes or other buildings have been damaged in the Hailey, Ketchum or Sun Valley areas.

Top clocks get extra second

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The call to "synchronize watches" will echo through laboratories today when scientists get their equipment in step with the sun.

The world's timekeepers will add an extra second in the minute just before 6 p.m. MDT (midnight Greenwich) to make sure that atomic clocks match solar time.

"We add an extra second almost every year," said Dr. Sam Stein.

New tax revenue plans bogged down in Senate committee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attempts to raise the $21 billion in tax increases required by the newly approved 1982 budget got off to a slow start Tuesday as Republicans in the administration and Senate failed to agree how to proceed.

The Senate Finance Committee's plan to begin drafting a tax bill was scuttled after an early closed meeting with GOP committee members and Assistant Treasury Secretary

John Chaponet failed to produce an agreement on the unsavory task.

The budget resolution passed by Congress last week calls for $20.9 billion in new taxes next year, but does not specify how the money is to be raised.

A separate meeting between Treasury Secretary Donald Regan and House GOP leader Bob Michel of Illinois and Rep. Barber Conable of New York, senior Republican on the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, produced little more than general outlines.

Senate Finance Committee Chairman Bob Dole, R-Kan., told reporters there is general agreement among the Republicans on his committee that Congress will have to "trim back" leasing — the controversial tax break that allows unprofitable companies to sell their unused investment tax credits to profitable firms wanting to lower their tax liability. For his part, Regan also acknowledged there will be "some kind of modification" of that program known as "safe harbor leasing."

Dole said his GOP members also believe something should be done about the way the insurance industry and long-term contractors are taxed.

But, he said, discussions over the administration proposal for a minimum corporate tax "have become sticky," so "The administration is looking at another approach."

Dole promised to "get down to hard work" today, warning the committee: "If we cannot reach a consensus on our revenue target by taking up the kind of items I have suggested, then we will have to consider increasing some present taxes or adding new ones."

Reagan criticized as he signs voting bill

By BRUCE DRAKE
New York Daily News

WASHINGTON — President Reagan signed into law Tuesday a far-reaching extension of the landmark 1965 Voting Rights Act. But leading civil rights advocates who attended the White House ceremony sharply questioned the administration's commitment to the fight against discrimination.

"The right to vote is the crown jewel of American liberties and we will not see its luster diminished," Reagan said as he sat down in the East Room to sign the legislation, the key provision of which would have lapsed on Aug. 8.

The measure extends for 25 years enforcement provisions to safeguard voting rights that require nine states and portions of 13 others to get Justice Department approval for any changes in election law or procedures.

It also makes it possible to prove that violations of the act have occurred when an election law has been applied in a manner that "results" in discrimination rather than having to make the more difficult case that there was "intent" on the part of local officials to discriminate.

Although the battle to renew the act had begun in January 1981, the Reagan administration had decided to state its position on it until this year, after it had already passed the House and gone on to the Republican-controlled Senate. Reagan then pressed for the "intent" to be put in the law, but in the face of growing pressure from minority and civil rights groups, backed a compromise that made it easier to prove discrimination.

Reagan said at the bill-signing ceremony that "Yes, there are differences over how to attain the equality we seek for all our people, and sometimes, I am afraid, the overblown rhetoric, the differences tend to seem bigger than they are. But actions speak louder than words. This legislation proves our unending commitment to voting rights."

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., who led the NAACP Monday that Reagan had "the most anti-civil rights administration in the history of this land," said after attending the ceremony that "We started on the extension of the voting rights act... some 18 months ago. It took some months to get the administration aboard on this important piece of legislation."

Two other participants at the ceremony, NAACP President Benjamin Hooks and civil rights leader Jesse Jackson, questioned the administration's commitment to enforcing the act now that it had been extended. Hooks said that the Justice Department under Reagan had "consistently rolled back enforcement on civil rights" and that he had "no confidence at all" in the department's dedication to the Voting Rights Act. Jackson said, "If it is extended and not enforced, it's merely an Indian treaty."

Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, who is black, said outside the White House that Reagan had "prearranged" in supporting extension of the act and predicted that his support now would not help his standing with minorities. "Black people will see and understand this for exactly what it is," Stokes said. "It is not any signal or indication that this president has in any way changed his posture on civil rights (which is) one of not having made any significant contribution."

"Is it logical to demand important unilateral reductions in strategic armaments from the U.S.S.R. and at the same time to give a green light to an intensified build-up in the U.S.A. of the most advanced types of weapons of mass destruction?" Pravda asked last month.

The Communist Party daily said the facts and figures of the American plan provide "irrefutable arguments (to) those who see Washington's recent proposals as amounting to no more than a desire to achieve military superiority over the Soviet Union."

Land-based ICBMs are by no means the only part of the U.S. arms proposal, since the Americans would have to cut back their stocks of submarine-borne warheads more extensively than the Russians.

This could mean an eventual curb of the plan to deploy Trident missiles — a move accurate and lethal version of existing underwater weapons — aboard the United States' new Ohio-class submarine fleet.

U.S. officials involved in the START negotiations say there are no plans to slow down the Trident or MX programs — or other farther-off weapons projects such as the Stealth bomber — because the threat of such U.S. military enhancements is one of their most powerful negotiating tools.

The Soviet reply to the U.S. disarmament proposals is still to come at the negotiating table. But it's likely to be similar to Pravda's vehement thumbs-down to Reagan last month, which complained that the United States was trying to take unfair advantage of structural differences in the two countries' geography and security problems.

Home sale ruling ends buying era

The U.S. Supreme Court's decision blocking assumptions of federal savings and loan associations has drawn predictable responses from realtors and loan institution executives.

For the realtors, the ruling means fewer home sales. Assumption of an existing fixed, low-interest and long-term mortgage is one of the few remaining ways, in this economy, that housing sales are showing any movement. Take that option away, as the court's ruling does, and even fewer buyers will be able to take on mortgages.

Savings institutions say the ruling is a great victory. Without the ruling, they were stuck with many long-term low-interest loans in an economy where rates had risen several percentage points higher. Loan funds were going out the door in a slow bleed.

Their argument in part is that some sellers and buyers benefited by being able to avoid increasing interest rates, but that widespread assumptions ultimately hurt both buyers and sellers by reducing income and cash flow of the savings institutions.

Buyers and sellers, we suspect, are unlikely to accept that argument, partly because directly conflicts with their more immediate needs: finding a home they can afford.

The long-term, low-interest mortgage was one of the economic fixtures of housing's growth decades from the 1940s to the 1970s. Through it, millions of families of modest means were able to finance their homes by stretching out their payments into monthly "chewable" bites.

The result was the development of a true nation of homeowners, most of them single-family units, living cheek-to-cheek on streets in thousands of American cities.

Furthermore, inflation boosted the value of their properties, giving them a ready source of investment which cost little from the paycheck. It was a seemingly painless way of saving money.

The court's ruling formalizes changes in these basic patterns which have been growing for years. Assumptions have shrunk as more and more financial institutions have restricted their use, and into that problem stepped about 15 states with laws to allow assumptions.

With the court's ruling, assumptions may well fade further. The impact on the housing industry and the pattern of life which has emerged in America through the low-interest, long-term loan are, as yet, unknown.

One effect, we suspect, will be a growth in savings as more and more families learn they will have to increase the "amount down" when they purchase a home.

Another may be the beginning of the revitalization of the savings and loan industry.

A more elusive effect may be a shift in expectations. Those steady days of low-cost mortgages and rising property values are very unlikely to return.

He deletes spouse from cursor

For every home computer said in America, there is a computer widow somewhere.

I dropped over to see the Bengals the other night. Mrs. Bengal offered me a drink.

"Where's Walter?" I asked Adele.

"Where he always is these nights. He's in the library talking to his home computer."

"He talks to a computer?"

"All the time. It's taken the place of television, conversation and foreplay," she said bitterly.

"I didn't know Walter was into computers."

"That's all he's into. As soon as he finishes dinner, he leaves the table and says, 'Well, I've got to go in and program a new household fiscal budget for 1983.'"

"At least he's working to save you money."

"He says he's working on a new budget, but I walked in last night and he was playing Star Wars. He told me he was just checking out his floppy disk drive. I've never felt so alone in my life. At least when he watched football I could sit next to him. But now that he has a home computer he says he has to be alone with his software."

"No way. He reads computer magazines the way he used to read Playboy. His idea of a centerfold now is a 64-K Ram Micro-Computer that will expand to 128 bytes and produce a six-color high graphic screen resolution."

"Has he told you this?"

"No, but he talks in his sleep."

"Well, at least he's not dreaming about another woman," I said.

"I could compete with another woman," Adele said. "But I can't compete with a computer. We have no communication any more. The only language he uses is BASIC, COBOL, and FORTRAN. I'm at my wits' end."

"You're not thinking of leaving him?"

"I threatened to last week and he said to hold off until he could program all the variables, and come up with a modified alternative."

"Have you ever thought about getting your own home computer and plugging into his? Perhaps you could talk that way."

"I'm not interested in interfacing with him through a terminal. After all, we're in the same house."

"Maybe I should talk to him," I suggested.

"You can try, but I doubt if it will do any good."

"I went into the library and found Walter hunched over his keyboard. 'Hi, Walter. Am I disturbing you?'"

"No," he said, squinting at me. "I was only justifying my margins."

"How's life?" I asked.

"Fine. I was having a problem with my cursor for a while, but I straightened it out by adding a protocol."

"You have to be careful of cursors," I said.

"What news of Adele?"

"Wait a minute," he said. "I'll find out."

He put in a disk, pushed a code key, and typed on the screen ADELFE. Then he hit his RETURN button.

"Here it is," he said. She's either in the kitchen, the bath, her bedroom or went to a baseball game."

"A baseball game?"

Walter looked worried. "That doesn't sound right, but it's no problem. All I have to do is hit this DELETE button."

"Adele thinks she's losing you to a floppy disk retrieval system," I told him.

"That's ridiculous," Walter said. "All I'm trying to do is store and index data that will be able to forecast how we can enjoy the September years of our life."

"We've been friends for years, so I'm going to ask you a very personal question, Walter. How much do you love Adele?"

"Well, without saying a word, inserted a disk, and started hitting the keyboard."

"What are you doing?" I asked.

"I'm counting the ways. It's much faster to do it on a computer."

Ruling affirms retarded's rights

WASHINGTON — In his 33 years, Nicholas Romeo has not been given much. Retarded, however, he, and approximately 135,000 persons similarly situated, acquired more rights.

The word "landmark" is used too casually concerning Supreme Court rulings. But in its ruling in Romeo's case, the Court stepped, gingerly but unanimously, into new territory. For the first time it has affirmed substantive rights of involuntarily committed retarded persons in institutions. In this context, "involuntarily" does not mean against the individual's will, but rather that the individual's will was not engaged.

Romeo is profoundly retarded. Since the death of his father seven years ago, he has been a resident of Pennsylvania's much-criticized Pennhurst Institution. He can not talk and lacks basic self-care skills. When petitioning for his admission to Pennhurst, his mother said: "He becomes violent — kicks, punches, breaks glass. He can't speak — wants to express himself but can't."

In Pennhurst he was injured 63 times, by his own violence or that of other residents, in the two years before his mother went to court. When in Pennhurst's infirmary for treatment of a broken arm, he was physically restrained in bed during parts of the day, with "soft" restraints on his arms. The staff said this was not for punishment but for his protection, and that of other patients.

Now the Court has held that there are constitutionally required conditions of confinement, derived from the 14th Amendment. The ruling is a delicate assertion of judicial oversight, tempered by assertions of deference to professionals in the field of institutional care.

The opinion, written by Justice Powell, affirms three rights: to safety, freedom of movement, and training. The first two "needs" are rights conditioned by institutional necessities, and the right to training is defined, minimally, as training necessary for enjoyment of the first two rights. But Romeo claimed only a right to "minimally adequate habilitation."

The Court calls this claim "troubling," for several reasons. One is that "as a general matter, no state has a constitutional duty to provide substantive services for those within its border."

The Court says the term "habilitation" is defined neither precisely nor consistently in psychiatry. Actually, it is unclear how such habilitation is a psychiatric matter. The Court also says that professionals differ "strongly" as to whether effective training of all severely or profoundly retarded persons is possible.

The Court does not know what the experience of recent years proves: that pessimistic prognoses, even by professionals, concerning all kinds of retardation, are apt to be wrong (although, alas, somewhat self-fulfilling). But the Court knows that an institutionalized person requires rights — enforceable claims — because he or she is wholly dependent on the state.

All Romeo sought, and all the Court affirmed, is a right to "training suited to" the two "needs" of bodily safety and minimum physical restraint. The Court stressed that, "This case does not present the difficult question whether a mentally retarded person, involuntarily committed to a state institution, has some general constitutional right to training per se. The Court actually pruned a lower court ruling, which it considered so broad as to permit excessive judicial intrusiveness. The Court said there is a "presumption of correctness" regarding the decisions of professionals, who "shall not be required to make each decision in the shadow of an action for damages."

Nevertheless, this ruling will, like a hovering angel, cast a comforting shadow on the approximately 135,000 retarded persons in institutions, many of whom are living in stomach-turning conditions. Furthermore, it expresses, and thereby nourishes, a social sensibility important to six million other retarded citizens.

The affecting surge of gratitude among friends of retarded citizens, including friends who retarded friends are not institutionalized, is perhaps disproportionate to the rights affirmed by the ruling. But the satisfaction is commensurate with the expressive, as distinct from the technical, power of the ruling.

Americans are litigious, but not lawyer-like. American society is not animated by the dry distinctions that characterize judicial craftsmanship. Rulings like this one, and Brown v. Board of Education, the 1954 school desegregation decision, are examples of the law's tutelary functions.

In 1954, the elemental message was: Blacks are full citizens. In 1982, the message is: Retarded people, too, are members of the community that the Constitution constitutes. The fact that these messages have had to be sent down from the Supreme Court — the Mt. Sinai of American government — is a measure of how bad things were, then, and are in some places today.

Hooraay! I'm glad to see someone else feels as I do about the proposed waste-water basin of Idaho Frozen Foods. I've decided to stand up and be counted in favor of IFF.

The site chosen for this waste-water basin is zoned recreational. People are worried about the scenic beauty along the river being destroyed. I am wondering if these people have never seen a recreation area that looks like a garbage dump after being used by our fellow citizens who neglect to pick up their litter. I doubt any waste-water treatment area could look as bad.

It has been mentioned that the "potato soup" might cause damage to the sturgeon and catfish. Since both of these fish are scavengers anyway, maybe a little potato soup would taste good for a change. It is my understanding that the water will not be dumped into the river, so there should be no danger. I believe Mr. Odenwald has stated that there will be landscaping on the site in keeping with the surrounding area. That should quiet some of the skeptics' minds.

IFF is one of the largest industries in this area and employs many people. Let's give them a break and stand behind them and help them instead of being so negative. They are helping the economy in this area and Magic Valley needs their continued growth and development. I, for one, am standing in their corner.

Trial psychiatry criticized

The psychologists and psychiatrists who hired out to testify at the sanity trial of John Hinkley made the usual assinine statements. The only credit was the fact that none of these used the standard ploy of blaming his actions on his mother or some distant relative.

Three of these who appeared for the government billed the taxpayers for "over $300,000." No release yet on how much his parents paid the performers in this farce. The buckets full of crap designed to keep their sanity. Within 60 days confinement in a hospital these same men, after consultations with John H., will declare a miraculous recovery and call for release.

Should you think $300,000 for three government hirelings was steep, wait until the bill for lawyers comes in. The estimate of $1 million as the cost of this farce seems within reason.

While public anger over the verdict seems justified there is another anger. These jurors were, in the main, totally ignorant of the laws applying to sanity and confused by the jurors' emotional gobble-de-gook and the testimony of hirelings who would have taken either side if the price was right. Apparently the Hinkley lawyers were more astute in picking jurors who were not schooled in the fine points of sanity definition. As a result these women were held up to public ridicule while the lawyers and hired witnesses pocketed the cash.

These jurors may have rendered a national service by exposing the falsity of a lawyer's ploy in releasing criminals and the danger of listening to the daydreams of hired witnesses who would talk out of either side of their mouths if the rustle of $100 bills was loud enough.

A thanks to the hospital

I would like to say many thanks to everyone who helped to get me to the hospital and made my stay there as pleasant as could be expected.

The sheriff was at my home within five minutes of the call and the ambulance followed within 10 minutes. They transported me to Twin Falls to the Twin Falls Clinic where I was examined and admitted.

I also want to thank those that sent cards and visits and phone calls, the Church of Christ of Gooding for the potted plant and their prayers. A very, very special thank to all the doctors and nurses that gave me the loving and professional care and also to those nurses that brought adorable children for me to see.

Thanks.

Budget woes

Keiser to Evans: Give us the money to pay our bills.

BOISE (UPI) — Boise State University President John Keiser urged state officials Tuesday to promptly pay the state's remaining fiscal year 1982 bills, saving Idaho's higher education institutions from further revenue problems.

State Auditor Joe Williams in early June discontinued paying bills drawn on the general account for the current year so the state might avoid making a reduction in public school support funding. Cutting that funding would automatically trigger local property taxes increases designed to protect the public schools from sudden reductions.

But Keiser told the state Board of Examiners that if the regularly scheduled school funding shift takes place while other outstanding fiscal year 1982 general account bills are left unpaid, the universities and other state agencies will be forced to use fiscal year 1983 funds to pay thousands of dollars worth of current operating expenses.

Keiser said the state institutions already face a 9 percent budget cut for fiscal year 1983 and that leaving them with bills from the current year would be an undue hardship.

Gov. John Evans and other board members thanked Keiser for his presentation and took the matter under advisement.

Evans, who recently ordered $3.9 million in state spending cuts to balance the general fund budget in fiscal years 1982 and 1983, said he had made no decision on whether to go ahead with a suggested $3.9 million public school funding cut — part of his budget-balancing program.

He said he would announce his decision today, the last day of fiscal year 1982 and his last chance to order the rollback.

The chief executive has delayed as long as possible a final decision on the public school holdback because state law mandates that property taxes must be increased to cover any state funding losses by local school districts.

Public employees: To avoid layoffs; try 32-hour week

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — Idaho public employees have worked their last involuntary 32-hour workweek but already the two main groups representing those employees are talking about a voluntary work curtailment to help avoid layoffs.

Representatives of both the Idaho Public Employees Association and the Service Employees Union said in a telephone interview Tuesday that they are urging state agencies to look at alternatives to layoffs although they expected some state workers will probably lose their jobs.

Warren Lundquist of SEU Local 687 in Boise said employees of one agency found they could make up the 9 percent cut ordered by Gov. John Evans for fiscal 1983 by working 37 hours a week.

"The old timers, the people who have seniority and wouldn't be affected by layoffs — were for it (the short week)," Lundquist said. "But a lot of the agencies aren't asking for any employee input."

Greg Marchbanks, interim manager of the IPEA, agreed that some departments of government may be able to handle the 9 percent cut "with voluntary action such as job sharing and reduction of workweeks."

Evans on May 12 ordered all state workers paid with general account money to go on a 32-hour workweek in order to help make up an estimated $12.1 million revenue shortfall for fiscal 1982, which will end today.

Evans' staff estimated that about 4,700 of the state's 13,300 employees were affected by the order.

But when the governor ordered all agencies to cut 9 percent from their fiscal 1983 budgets, he decided to let department heads determine where to make the cuts.

Judge Roe initiative can't apply to plants

TACOMA, Wash. (UPI) — Washington state's law giving voters veto power over the funding of major power projects cannot apply to three nuclear plants already under construction, a federal judge ruled Tuesday.

But by agreement of all parties in the case, the judge will allow the full force of the law to be effective while the lawsuit challenging it is taken to the U.S. Court of Appeals.

U.S. District Court Judge Jack Tanner said the new law, Initiative 394, would be unconstitutional if applied to three nuclear plants already under construction in the state.

Steve Zemke, leader of Don't Bankrupt Washington, the group that sponsored the initiative, said he believed Tanner's ruling would be overturned by the U.S. Court of Appeals in San Francisco.

Tanner's ruling applied only to nuclear power plants 1, 2 and 3 being built by Washington Public Power Supply System, an agency established by a group of public utilities under state law.

Attorneys on both sides of the issue had agreed to ask the judge to stay the effect of his decision in the event he ruled against the measure which takes effect July 1. Tanner agreed to grant their request.

An attorney for one of the banks challenging the initiative said those who oppose the initiative agreed it would cause too much "uncertainty" if the initiative were not in effect while being appealed.

Opponents recognized any attempt to issue bonds while the appeal was pending would run into difficulty with the bonding houses.

A WPPSS spokesman said that allowing the initiative to take effect while Tanner's ruling was appealed would have "no immediate impact" because the supply system did not plan to seek any additional financing for the reactor projects until next February.

Initiative 394 requires ratepayer approval before a public utility can issue bonds to finance a power project in the state capable of generating more than 250 megawatts.

It was the problem of cost-control that prompted the campaign to put Initiative 394 on the ballot last November. Voters approved it by a wide margin.

Since then, WPPSS has terminated two of its five nuclear projects. It also has delayed a third because of huge cost increases, the difficulty of obtaining continued financing and questions about the need for the high-priced electricity they would generate.

Tanner noted the U.S. Constitution specifically prohibits states from passing laws that impair the carrying out of existing contracts.

What's what

Three out of five husbands believe they married at too young an age. Not surprising, maybe. Still, their common notion of the right age for men to marry seems high. Most felt age 30 was best. Our Love and War man is less opinionated in this matter. He thinks just about any age will do, if it can keep a woman fed and a man out of jail. The aforementioned three out of five husbands weren't queried about it until at least 10 years after their first marriages, please note.

Men prefer black billfolds, women brown. You've read that. The opposite is true of briefcases, curiously.

Why a mare's hooves grow faster than a stallion's I do not know.

PREFER BANKERS

Q. Didn't you say most college age women want to marry bankers?

A. Not quite. Bankers came out on top of the list of desirable professional types most often named by coeds. But that doesn't mean the majority of college women prefer such. Doctors, lawyers and professional athletes wound up on that list, too.

Q. What singer has had the most hits with songs that have city names in their titles?

A. Have to guess at that one. How about Glen Campbell. With "Galveston," "By the Time I Get to Phoenix," "Wichita Lineman" and "Manhattan, Kansas"?

FINGERNAIL BITERS

People who bite their fingernails don't tend to be quarrelsome. Nailbiters are inclined to keep anger bottled up, but take it out on themselves, and nailbiting is one way of doing that. Or so reports one student of human behavior.

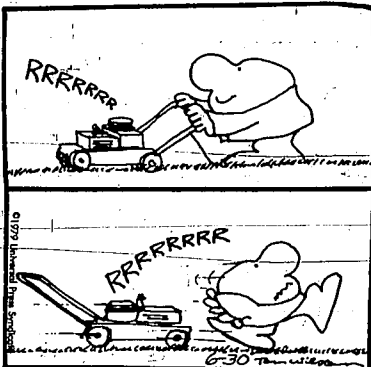

Did I say men take 17,300 breaths daily, but women only take 2,300? Slipped up. That's wrong. Women take 28,800 breaths a day. Both men and women inhale an average of 2,300 gallons of air a day.

Q. How big do lobsters get?

A. Can only report the biggest live one in captivity is a 35-pound beast in Boston's New England Aquarium. It's probably about 100 years old. Another which supposedly weighed almost 43 pounds is mounted in Boston's Museum of Science. Some lobsters taken from New York Bay years ago measured almost 6 feet long.

The firefly has no natural enemies, I'm told.

Moonie leader obtaining license to conduct mass wedding rites

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Rev. Sun Myung Moon, leader of the Unification Church, is belatedly completing the bureaucratic steps necessary to perform what is billed as the largest mass marriage ceremony in history, officials said Tuesday.

As elaborate preparations got under way at Madison Square Garden for Thursday's marriage of 2,100 Unification Church couples, Moon's lawyers were still in the process of filing necessary registration papers so that the Korean evangelist can legally perform the mass marriage.

City Clerk David Dinkins said that state law requires "anyone who performs a marriage ceremony in New York City be registered by the office of the city clerk, and that means the mayor of the City of New York, a rabbi, a priest or anyone else."

Dinkins said Moon "is in the process of registering now, and presumably that will be complete before he performs the ceremony."

Dinkins also noted that "individuals must have a marriage license from us, like anybody else."

But he said he could not estimate how many church members had applied for licenses because applicants are not asked to identify their church on the form. "A church spokesman could not estimate how many applied" because it is up to the couples whether they do or not.

Work began Monday at midnight to transform Madison Square Garden into an elaborate altar-stage for the wedding parties, including the couples and the wedding party of bridesmaids and best men.

Chris Hansen, the Garden's booking and production coordinator, said 13,000 additional seats are being set up for guests.

Moon, his wife and church officials will be seated behind a pulpit on the stage, and couples — the women dressed in white satin gowns with lace veils and the men in dark blue suits — will sit or kneel on a white carpet in front of the stage.

Guru's clan assembling in Oregon

ANTELOPE, Ore. (UPI) — A tent city is in place and thousands of disciples have begun arriving in the remote central Oregon desert to meditate in the presence of Indian guru Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh at his "world celebration."

The five-day festival, set to begin Saturday, will be held on the guru's 65,000-acre muddy ranch near Antelope. The event will reach a climax on July 6, Guru Purnima Day in India, when the moon will be full, having emerged from a total eclipse a day earlier.

Facilities for about 6,000 disciples from around the world expected to attend the festival are set-up, including a large meditation hall, two 125,000-gallon water tanks and 1,800 tents set up at three locations — "Socrates Field," "Buddha Field" and "Zarathustra Field."

Already, more than 2,000 followers of Rajneesh are at the site, having arrived — from Japan, Germany, Brazil, Holland and Chile, as well as the United States.

Bhagwan, continuing to maintain his silence to all but his closest aides, will not speak to his many followers at the hour of meditation planned each morning of the festival. He will make an evening appearance on Guru Purnima Day.

The Rajneesh leader will appear on a stage, protected from dust by a small air conditioning unit under the podium.

More than 250 of the guru's hand-picked followers have made their home on the ranch, much to the concern of the long-time ranchers and retirees in nearby Antelope and the surrounding area.

Seattle (UPI) — A federal bankruptcy court trustee convicted of taking indecent liberties with his former secretary received a three-year suspended sentence Tuesday.

King County Superior Court Judge Robert Elston suspended the sentence on condition that Irwin Kleinman serve 60 days in the county jail, perform 300 hours of community service and be under the supervision of a probation officer for three years.

Kleinman was found "guilty" of fondling and kissing the woman and forcing her to commit a sexual act when she went to ask him why she had been fired. Kleinman, 55, admitted he kissed the woman after agreeing to hire her back, but denied that he attacked her.

Falklands faces domestic nightmares

By A.J. McILROY
Daily Telegraph, London

PORT STANLEY, Falkland Islands — A lone Gurkha soldier has been buried in the cemetery at the Darwin settlement.

From Darwin and from settlements all around the East Falkland, people came in their tractors and their land rovers to be at the service.

"The Gurkha, a member of the legendary British Gurkha Rifles recruited from the Himalayas, lost his life in the dangerous work of clearing Argentinean trenches of mines and live ammunition."

"It could have been a child whose life was lost," said Col. David Hunt. "The men who are clearing mines laid so indiscriminately by the Argentinean garrison, and who are clearing trenches, are deserving of the highest praise."

There is confusion and there is contrast here. While tribute was being paid to the Gurkha, mothers in Port Stanley remonstrated with British soldiers because troops had commandeered a children's play area for themselves.

The pressing problems of finding quarters for the soldiers are exacerbated by the lack of facilities in a town whose population was 800 before the Argentine invasion.

Once the mothers made their point, the British officer in command withdrew politely, one soldier remarking, "It is our first retreat in the Falklands war."

Until a planned garrison is built for the estimated 4,500 marines, soldiers and airmen who will stay here to deter any future Argentinean military ambitions, the problem of accommodation will remain. And there are bound to be tensions between the men in uniform and the local population.

Foreign Office representatives arriving in Port Stanley have found there are local people who are less than happy to see them. I was present when one such representative was told, "It was because your predecessors and the Foreign Office at home gave the impression Britain wasn't interested in these islands that Galtieri (the former Argentinean president) invaded us."

The island's ruling council met Tuesday for the first time since the return of Gov. Rex Hunt, now called the civil administrator, amid a substantial body of local opinion that all council members should resign.

This opinion, though shared by many, is a minority view. But enough are making this point for it to be difficult for the council to get the community together to rebuild the damaged town.

Nerves are on edge. The Falkland Islanders have endured the Argentinean occupation and, in Port Stanley, the weeks of interdiction by the British armed forces, whose naval bombardments and air strikes were sustained to unnerve the Argentinean garrison and weaken its will to resist.

The islanders find themselves still surrounded by thousands of soldiers. Desmond King, owner of the Upland Goose Hotel in Port Stanley, said, "These (soldiers) we are glad to see. But they must understand how difficult it is for the people here to adjust to the changes there must be."

"The sacrifices of those who gave their lives will never be forgotten. (Prime Minister Margaret) Thatcher and President Reagan put it well when they said the Falklands' campaign was not over a 'piece of real estate' but was the democratic world's response to a dictator who tried to take something that was not his own by force."

El Salvador rebels free journalists

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Guerrillas freed six journalists Tuesday, one day after forcing them to join in an escape from government troops and jets, a U.S. resident in the group said.

Leftist rebels attacked villages and army positions across El Salvador, reportedly killing all 12 members of one government patrol, in an apparent attempt to take pressure off guerrillas battling a government "counter-offensive" in Morazan province.

Julian Harrison, 32, a cameraman for UPI-TV, said guerrillas Monday forced him and five other journalists to accompany them in an escape from the soldiers, who were backed by U.S. A-1H Dragonfly jets and a helicopter gunship.

NOTHING UNNATURAL EVER GOES INTO COORS.

Most beers start with chemically altered tap water. And then go on to use additives and preservatives.

Not Coors. Coors knows that pure water is one of the most important ingredients in providing fresh beer taste, beer after beer. That's why only Coors beer starts naturally pure, naturally fresh with pure Rocky Mountain spring water.

And only Coors stays pure. Naturally brewed from beginning to end with no additives or preservatives. Brewed more slowly, and naturally aged longer for a clean, fresh taste, beer after beer.

So when just one beer won't do, your last Coors tastes as fresh as your first.

That's why Coors is the beer made for the way you really like to drink beer.

Feds release list of Idaho lands for sale

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A spokesman for the president's Property Review Board said Monday that he would release today a preliminary list of 307 public land parcels identified for sale to help reduce the national debt.

Bruce Seltan, acting executive director of the seven-member White House panel, said 15 Idaho tracts are on the list, which will be turned over to the General Services Administration for sale or transfer to other agencies.

Among the Idaho parcels are two sites in Oakley and one each in Burley and Heyburn. The smallest is a half-acre site owned by the Interior Department in Heyburn. The largest is 324 acres owned by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers near Dworshak Reservoir.

Seltan contacted The Times-News by telephone in response to a request made under the federal Freedom of Information Act.

The Idaho parcels identified by Seltan are:

- A 2.3-acre administrative site in Burley, owned by the Department of Interior.
- Kenneth Warr site, a one-acre parcel in Oakley, Department of Agriculture.
- Basin stock corral, three-fourths of an acre, also in Oakley, (no agency listed).
- Heyburn Substation site, a half-acre in Heyburn, Department of Interior.
- Dworshak Dam and Reservoir site, 324 acres in Clearwater County, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.
- Mann Creek Project, 264 acres situated 20 miles from Weiser, Department of Interior.
- An 80-acre parcel in Canyon County, four miles east of Nampa, Department of Interior.
- The Little Lost Lake, 160 acres, also in Canyon County, Department of Interior.

Interior.

- Spencer's Pasture site, Idaho Falls, 160 acres, Department of Agriculture.
- Colorado Springs administrative site, Rexburg, 40 acres without buildings, (no agency listed).
- Cottonwood RAH, a one-acre site 15 miles from Grangeville, Department of Interior.
- Elk Road Warehouse, 12 acres of land near the Salmon dog pound, Department of Agriculture.
- Canyon Creek administrative site, 102 acres in steep terrain, near Rexburg, Department of Agriculture.

Seltan said only federal lands previously marked for sale or transfer in land-use plans were included in the initial list.

The review board asked federal agencies to supply information on other public lands that are not used or are under-utilized. But Seltan said the figures obtained in other categories were listed only as acreage totals — not by location and use.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the Idaho Conservation League said the ICL has received two replies to Freedom of Information Act requests it filed for documents relating to the inventory process.

Pat Ford, the ICL's executive director, said the Washington headquarters of the U.S. Forest Service rejected the league's request, contending that the information was privileged under the category of "working papers."

The Bureau of Land Management gave the ICL only acreage totals the agency had previously released, Ford said.

Ford said the ICL would appeal the decision because officials in the Reagan administration had previously set a goal of land sales in the billions of dollars, while parcels identified for sale are worth only a fraction of that amount.

Letters reveal little of shooting motive

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Letters written by the California man who shot an Elko County sheriff's deputy near Jackpot on Saturday, and then was fatally gunned down by bystanders, have revealed little to investigators about the bizarre incident.

"They haven't added very much to our information," Elko County's chief deputy, Neil Harris, said Tuesday concerning the letter and an inscribed cardboard box top found in the gunman's possession.

Joseph Francis Breslin, 32, of San Luis Obispo, Calif., shot Deputy Neil Lawrence, 49, at the Little Salmon Creek rest area, three miles south of Jackpot. He then began firing at several nearby campers, only to be cut down when two of the campers returned shots with firearms they grabbed from their vehicles.

Breslin, who had been shot five times, died Sunday at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in Twin Falls. Lawrence remains in critical condition with a head wound at St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise.

The incident has received national attention, including coverage by Newsweek magazine, because of its connection to a double murder in California last week.

At the time of the shooting, Breslin was carrying a letter with instructions that it be opened upon his death. In it, Breslin said he was "no good anyway," and that his New Year's resolution was to be dead by 1983. He also asked that his body was to be thrown away.

On the box top, Breslin apparently wrote several almost meaningless lines, including profanity, referring to his "last stand." It also said, "For now, I will return."

Authorities had speculated that the letter might contain some reference to a double murder in Breslin's hometown. At the scene of that murder, Breslin apparently left a letter confessing to the slaying of Linda Sue Cain, 37, and her 8-year-old daughter, Desiree.

California police believe Breslin stabbed the mother and strangled the girl either Wednesday or Thursday, and then stole Mrs. Cain's car to drive out of state.

No motive for either of the events was mentioned in any of Breslin's writings.

Breslin had a past history of violence and mental illness. According to California authorities, he was institutionalized at an undisclosed Pennsylvania mental hospital in 1968, where he reportedly killed a fellow inmate.

That alleged crime was first revealed in 1977, when Breslin reportedly confessed the incident to an analyst at the California Men's Colony at San Luis Obispo. Breslin served three years there for wounding a man in the head with a shotgun.

Elko County Sheriff James Miller said Lawrence showed some slight hope for improvement early Tuesday morning, when he opened his left eye while a doctor was talking to him.

"He's still in a coma and still in critical condition, and on life-support systems," Miller reported, "but the doctors indicated this did offer some hope."

"They say he could come out of his coma five minutes from now, or five years. We don't know anything else."

Either the sheriff or Harris has been staying at the Boise hospital since the shooting, waiting for a change in Lawrence's condition.

"It's one of ours," Miller said simply.

Miller said he will continue withholding the names of the two campers who shot Breslin in self-defense because they will not be charged in the shooting, and they have requested anonymity. The two men are brothers from Westminster, Calif., and McGill, Nev.

"I talked to one of the men yesterday (Monday), and he was still pretty shook up about the shooting," the sheriff said. "I understand both of the brothers just had recent surgery, and this incident is being hard on them."

"Right now, they just want to play things down."

Fish waste odor draws complaint

Gooding Commissioners mull disposal

By JANENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — A smelly problem has surfaced at the Gooding County landfill southwest of Gooding.

The Hagerman Valley Citizens' Alert Committee has complained about the odor at the landfill. Commissioner Robert Tupper told the other members of the commission Monday.

He said his own inspection of the site revealed liquid fish-processing waste, fish viscera and raw sewage "leaking over the ground."

Vern Mason, caretaker at the landfill, said he had dug a six-to-eight-foot-deep pit resembling a sewage lagoon to accommodate the fish waste, which is being dumped by Valley Trout Co. of Hagerman and Chase Products Co.

"It's the only way I know how to handle this stuff," he said, describing the material as a liquid waste with fish oil, viscera and other decaying fish matter.

Mason also said that septic-tank pumping firms empty their pumper trucks at the site, sometimes dumping raw sewage into the disposal pond.

According to Mason, the dumping of fish-processing waste has increased from 150 gallons per day a year ago, to 1,000 gallons per day at present. "If they have a load of fish that get too old, they just dump them in too," he said.

Tracy Collings, an environmentalist for the South Central District Health Department, said that the oil in the fish waste seals the ground and prevents absorption of the liquid. It also slows evaporation and decay of the matter. "This material will not break down in two years," he said.

Collings also told the commission that septic-tank pumpers are required by state law to empty their trucks at established sewage treatment plants. That would include the Hagerman sewage lagoon, now under repair due to leaks, and the new Gooding city waste-water treatment plant, which is not completed yet.

Collings and Mason both said the pool of liquid and fish matter posed a danger to a nearby irrigation canal, only 10 feet away. Both men also agreed that covering the liquid material is impossible.

Collings showed the commissioners slides of the area, which indicate the makeshift lagoon is leaking, posing the possibility of contaminating the canal.

County Prosecutor Severt Swenson told the commission that the county is required by state law to operate a solid-waste disposal site.

Radiologists' future uncertain following hospital decision

Incumbents may work for new doctor

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The future of the radiologists now working at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center remains uncertain following a decision by the hospital board Monday night to offer a radiology contract to a Tucson, Ariz., doctor.

After nearly a year of closed-door discussions over radiology services, the board voted to offer a contract to Dr. Richard Strand, a board-certified radiologist.

Drs. Dennis Davis, Greg McKim, and C.R. McWilliams presently are providing radiology services to the hospital without a contract. The board had decided previously to terminate their services on Aug. 10.

Strand told the board he would attempt to form some kind of partnership with the three present radiologists, although his name would appear on the official contract. Dr. Howard Biggs of Arcata, Calif., an associate of Strand, also will move to Twin Falls to provide services.

Davis said Tuesday that "superficial talks with Dr. Strand are hopeful that something acceptable to all concerned can be arranged, although no agreements have been made."

"I do intend to make a more complete explanation of this bizarre, or deal in the future," he added.

McWilliams worked at the hospital for about 20 years. Davis and McKim have been here for the last seven years.

Their contract to provide radiology services expired Dec. 31, 1979. Since then, the hospital board and the radiologists have been unable to agree on a new contract.

Points at issue in the contract discussions included the stipulation that the contract could be canceled by either party "without cause" on 90 days notice; the use of Davis' — not the corporation's — name on the contract; and a requirement that two radiologists always be on duty during working hours.

Hospital officials expressed hope that the board's decision will be "in the best interests of all concerned." The discussions have caused considerable upheaval among the medical staff and the hospital board.

From 1974 to 1980, Strand worked as co-chairman of the radiology department at the Mad River Community Hospital in Arcata, Calif. He has a radiology practice in Tucson and is associated with Holy Cross Hospital there.

His application for staff privileges must be approved by all departments of the hospital's medical staff.

Hospital committee may decide ambulance service fate

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The fate of the two-ambulance system in Twin Falls County may be decided by a committee being put together by the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

Following an appeal by Magic Valley Ambulance Service at Monday night's hospital board meeting, the board agreed that "independent" action will be set up to review the hospital's decision to direct all routine ambulance transfer calls to Twin Falls Emergency Medical Services.

The hospital's decision to cease rotating ambulance calls has put Magic Valley Ambulance Service practically out of business, Mark

Stubbs, an attorney for the firm, told the board Monday.

But on Tuesday, Cloyce Edwards, the owner of MVAS, and who also is the county coroner, said, "The Magic Valley Ambulance Service has plenty of assets that we could stay in business for many, many years, if we choose to."

However, "Magic Valley Ambulance Service will be losing money if we're not re-instated," he said.

Stubbs and Fred Decker, the attorney for the hospital, will meet July 7 with the hospital's joint conference committee — composed of the executive committees of the medical staff and the board — to suggest impartial persons who may form a review committee.

It was suggested that the committee might include emergency-room staff from another city, such as Salt Lake City, and/or Dr. Doug Stag, a former MVRMC emergency-room physician who now works at St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise.

In May, the board followed the recommendation of its trauma committee to cease rotation of ambulance calls. The committee claimed MVAS had violated a county ordinance concerning numbers of certified personnel and did not provide good patient care. However, county Prosecutor Harry DeHaan, the author of the ordinance, later said MVAS was not in violation of the law.

Dr. Michael Phillips, the president of the medical staff, told the board Monday that the medical staff had voted to uphold the board's decision not to rotate ambulance calls.

In his request for a "due-process hearing," Stubbs contended that the board had not heard MVAS's side of the situation.

He asked that the rotation system be re-instated until the hearing is held. If not — even if the service is vindicated — it may be out of business, he said.

"That's not the way we do things. It is not the way fairness is metered out," Stubbs said.

The board rejected the appeal to go back to a rotation system. Board Chairman Clarence Hollifield said, "We don't want to run anyone out of business, but we do want good patient care."

Dr. Kent Pressman, an emergency-room physician, said, "If we put this man's (Edwards') service back on rotation, we are jeopardizing our patients. He may be good a couple of days, and then we don't know."

Edwards' son, Calvin, in speaking to the hospital board, which he referred to as a "lynch mob," contended that allegations against MVAS resulted from personality conflicts between MVAS staff and emergency-room physicians.

Saying his life's dream was to be a paramedic, he said the emergency-room staff had "ostracized" the MVAS staff.

"The ER (emergency room) can make it so tough, our people don't want to go there," he said. "I won't deny we made mistakes. But Dr. Pressman has admitted he has made mistakes."

Dr. Harry Brumback, the chairman of the trauma committee, denied that the allegations resulted from a personality clash, saying problems occurred before the present emergency-room staff was hired.

In 1976, physicians aired complaints about the ambulance service to the Twin Falls County commissioners and "nothing happened," for whatever reason," he said.

Brumback also contends that Cloyce Edwards has not made an effort to correct the problems.

Tuesday crash kills Wendell woman

WENDELL — A young Wendell woman died at the scene of a head-on collision on Westpoint Road, southwest of Wendell, Tuesday morning.

Pamela Daniels, 21, was killed when her small 1977 compact car collided with a hard-bodied hay vehicle driven by Steve Lehman, 17, also of Wendell.

Daniels was driving on the wrong side of the road at the time of the accident. Lehman, who was uninjured, was not cited.

Talkington files for Legislature

TWIN FALLS — Chris Talkington, the mayor of Twin Falls, successfully filed Monday as an independent candidate for the Legislature.

He is seeking the District 25 House seat being vacated by House Speaker Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls, who was defeated in the primary in his bid for the GOP gubernatorial nomination.

Talkington will oppose Republican Donna Scott, a Twin Falls housewife who has the backing of most local

According to Gooding County chief Deputy Bill Boyer, there was no indication why Daniels was driving in the wrong lane on the straight, but rolling stretch of highway.

There also was no evidence that excessive speed was involved in the accident.

Also responding to the 10 a.m. accident were the Wendell Rural Fire Department, Wendell police officers and several other sheriff's deputies. Funeral arrangements are pending. A death notice is on Page B-2.

GOP leaders, including Olmstead

Making his first bid for statewide office, Talkington has pledged to accept "no out-of-state money" for campaign financing. He claims that state law is best developed without "external contributions" pressuring the decision-making process.

Talkington took office as mayor this year, although he is serving his seventh year on Twin Falls City Council. He says he will resign as mayor if elected to the Legislature.

Lincoln County settles out of court

SHOSHONE — An out-of-court settlement with two bonding companies and the Lincoln County commission was reached Monday.

Fidelity Deposit Co. of Maryland and Western Surety Co. have agreed to pay Lincoln County a total of $30,000 on the bonds they provided for a former Lincoln County treasurer, Myron Johnson.

Johnson was found guilty of embezzling county funds in 1976. He was sent to the state penitentiary, and he now is out on parole.

Camas layman judge will retire

GOODING — Beginning Thursday, applications will be accepted for his post-lawyer magistrate judge position in Camas County.

Fifth District Magistrate Charles Packham of Fairfield will retire from the full-time job next June, when he turns 70.

"We're not allowed to let him continue longer than that," Fifth District Magistrate Court administrator Phillip Becker said of Packham's mandatory retirement.

Applications for the layman judgeship are due by July 16 at the Gooding County Courthouse, and the selection will be made by the Fifth District Magistrate Commission. Becker said as many as 20 people have expressed interest in the position.

"Primarily, we're talking about a very limited jurisdiction with these judges," Becker said.

"Such a judge basically handles traffic and small-claims cases, although he can be given some additional duties after he's gained experience."

Requirements for the $15,000-a-year position include a high school education, Idaho residency and a minimum age of 25.

Hansen youths OK after accident

TWIN FALLS — Two Hansen youths, who were injured in a traffic accident involving a hay baler Sunday, were released from the hospital after they received emergency treatment.

Officers have identified the youths as Darby Lee Heidemann, 12, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Heidemann, and Greg Heidemann, 14, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Heidemann, all of Hansen.

A Twin Falls County sheriff's deputy said Darby Heidemann was driving the farm machine west on U.S. 30, east of Hansen, when a motorcycle approached in the wrong lane of traffic. The youth swerved the machine into a guardrail and bridge abutment, throwing both boys from the machine.

The accident report indicated that the motorcycle, which was traveling at a high rate of speed, got back into its own lane of traffic and left the scene of the accident.

The two youths were taken to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center for treatment of minor injuries.

Judge gives embezzler probation

TWIN FALLS — A Kimberly man, convicted of embezzling from his cousin's business, was placed on a three-year "withheld judgment" Monday.

Judge Daniel Meehl's decision in the case of 44-year-old Lawrence William Harney means the felony conviction could be erased from the defendant's record if he complies with the terms of his probation.

Harney pleaded guilty April 26 to one count of embezzlement, involving funds missing from Parks Development Inc., doing business as Sunset Memorial Park. The business is

Harney overplayed himself while he was employed at the business during the years 1979, 1980 and the first three months of 1981.

In exchange for the guilty plea, Prosecutor Harry DeHaven dismissed three other embezzlement charges filed against Harney.

Just how much Harney will be required to pay in restitution to the victims will be decided in a civil lawsuit stemming from the embezzlement. Meehl said he will set the amount of restitution to be paid when the civil suit is settled.

Rape suspect will plead 'insane'

HAILEY — The attorney for a Kentucky man charged with raping a Ketchum woman has filed notice that the defense will base its case on an insanity plea.

Keith Donahoe, 26, whose last known address was Frankfort, Ky., is charged with one count of first-degree rape and two counts of incest crimes against nature in connection with the May 26 incident.

His trial date has been set for Sept. 20, and psychiatric examinations have been ordered by both the court and the defense.

"Normally, the defense mental examiner attends the court-ordered examinations, as well as conducting tests and interviews of his own," said Blaine County Prosecutor Keith Roark.

Roark said that this may be one of the last insanity-defense cases filed in Idaho if a new law limiting mental defense cases pending consideration holds up under constitutional tests. The new law takes effect Thursday.

"Despite the defendant filing notice of intent for the defense of mental disease or defect," Roark continued, "it's not unheard of... after the examinations have been completed that the defense ultimately is not used."

Oppose proposed increase

Irrigators say BPA rate hike unfair

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Managers and board members of public utilities criticized Bonneville Power Administration's proposed 73 percent rate hike Monday, saying the BPA should spend less money on conservation and fisheries programs.

Speaking at a sparsely attended hearing at the Burley Inn, Malta farmer Del Garner said irrigators can ill afford the proposed increase, and he urged Bonneville to halt spending for conservation while the region has a surplus of power.

"We feel we have conserved to the point where it's costing us money," said Garner, who is board president of the Raft River Rural Electric Cooperative.

Noting that irrigators comprise only 1 percent of BPA's power sales volume, Garner suggested changes in the rate structure to extend lower-cost summer rates into May and June. BPA offers the lower rates during the period that its hydroelectric dams produce surplus power.

"We're fighting to stay above water, and things are really getting serious," Garner said, adding that several of the co-op's large farm customers already have been forced to declare bankruptcy.

Golden Gardner, the co-op's manager, said the average residential customer on the Raft River system uses 1,700 kilowatt-hours of electricity a month, while irrigators use an average of 1 million kilowatt-hours a month.

As a result, he said, fish enhancement and conservation efforts cost farmers hundreds of times what the same programs cost residential customers.

"It's an inequity that should be addressed," Gardner said.

Bob LaFol, the Idaho Falls District manager for BPA, said the hearing was called to give the public one final chance to comment before BPA prepares a final rate package that will be reviewed by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

The BPA has spent the past two months taking testimony from organized groups, such as utility associations and consumer advocates.

Ironically, few members of the public turned out for the Burley hearing, one of seven held simultaneously Monday night throughout the Northwest.

Others who testified included John Brog, the manager of Rural Electric of Rupert; Bruce Newcomb, a board member of Southside Electric of Declo; and Don Hill, the Burley municipal electric superintendent.

LaFol said the testimony would be digested and combined with other changes in BPA's financial picture before the agency prepares a final rate request for submission to the FERC.

He declined to predict how the proposed rate might change. But testimony elsewhere has revealed that the cost for three nuclear-power projects in the state of Washington will be lower than anticipated because of a scheduled delay in one of the projects. And this year's abnormally high snowpack has allowed Bonneville to sell more power to the Southwest, reducing the need for additional revenue.

A wholesale rate increase of 73 percent would cause public utilities to raise their rates between 20 percent and 40 percent. Transmission, maintenance and office costs account for the remainder of the cost of power bills.

Federal officials explain flood insurance program to Cassia County communities

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

ALBION — Residents of Albion, Declo and the surrounding rural areas moved a step closer to eligibility for flood insurance this week in meetings with federal officials.

Flooding has occurred in Albion several times in the past 20 years. Yet, homes in most of the city will be eligible for relatively low insurance rates, according to Steven Mitchell, a consulting engineer.

Mitchell met with three members of Albion City Council on Monday. While a large portion of Albion is within the 100-year flood plain of College and Marsh creeks, he said most of the city will be within a "B" zone, used to designate areas subject to a 1 percent flooding chance, but where average flooding depths do not exceed one foot.

Under the federal flood insurance program, property owners can receive insurance for property values of up to $150,000 at rates ranging from 5 cents to 70 cents per $100 value.

Rates vary according to the elevation of a house's location, relative to the level of the flood plain. Under model ordinances required of participating cities, new homes can be built in a flood plain if the owners raise the levels of their foundations.

Herb McElvaine, the director of operations for the Federal Emergency Management Agency, said the agency is assessing flood risks under provisions of a 1968 act of Congress.

The legislation required the government to establish risk zones and charge accordingly for insurance, McElvaine said.

He noted, however, that the insurance program is heavily subsidized, and rates could double if the program is turned over to private insurance companies, as is anticipated after 1983.

Mitchell and McElvaine also met with the Cassia County commission Monday and with Declo city officials Tuesday to present maps of flood-prone areas there.

Once flood zones are identified, residents have 90 days to present technical data in an effort to change the boundaries. After appeals are settled, flood insurance becomes available within six months after communities pass flood-control ordinances. Albion has passed such an ordinance.

Declo participated in an emergency flood insurance program offering single-rate coverage on the first $35,000 of a home's value. Albion did not participate in the temporary program.

Flood risk maps for Twin Falls County are scheduled for completion this fall. Work also is under way to establish flood zones for Blaine, Lincoln and Gooding counties.

Weekend thefts keep Twin Falls police busy

TWIN FALLS — A Canadian man received a rude welcome from a Twin Falls burglar during the weekend.

Mark Bishop of Calgary, Alberta, reported the theft of $1,615 worth of merchandise, including camera equipment, from his car while it was parked at 361 Seventh Ave. E., between 10 p.m. Friday and 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

Twin Falls police said there was no sign that the vehicle had been entered forcibly.

The incident was one of a string of thefts reported to Twin Falls police during the weekend. Among them were:

• Larry Hunter, of 71 Skyline Drive, reported that someone removed a gas barbecue from his patio between midnight and 1 a.m. Saturday. The item was valued at $250.

Someone apparently burglarized Sav-A-Rite Drug, 139 Main St. W., between 6 p.m. Friday and 3:09 a.m. Saturday. The burglar entered the store by throwing a brick through a window. No inventory — of stolen merchandise was available, but police estimated damage to the store at $300.

• Kevin Montgomery, 376 Meadows Lane, reported that someone forcibly entered his car, while it was parked at his residence, between 10 p.m. Thursday and 11:30 a.m. Friday. Missing from the vehicle was an estimated $375 worth of stereo equipment.

Chikay Goodman, 442 Locust St., reported the theft of an estimated $335 worth of jewelry, cassette tapes and cash. The burglary occurred between 6 a.m. and 11 a.m. Friday.

Daniel Skeem of Buhl reported the theft of three calves and a bull from Sun Trap Ranch, located three-and-a-half miles northwest of Buhl. The cattle were last seen at 9 p.m. Wednesday, he told Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies.

However, Edwards told The Times-News on Tuesday that he never had been contacted by Brumback about problems.

Cal Edwards told the board that "as many times as I've been in the ER room, I wonder if he (Brumback) ever knows my first name."

The younger Edwards also contends there is no difference between the service run by Dennis Brodigan and MVAS. Both use the same equipment, and Brodigan has hired some former MVAS employees, he said.

Gloyce Edwards said Tuesday, "I don't feel there's even an issue, because the charges that were made against us were proven false. They (the hospital board) didn't even take time to hear our side of it. We feel there was discrimination. We're prepared to take action against this if we have to."

New emergency room begins service

TWIN FALLS — The new emergency department at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center opened for service Tuesday.

Located to the rear of the present facility, the department features two general-purpose rooms, three trauma areas, a cast room, an obstetrics gynecology area, and an ear, nose, throat and eye area.

"The entrance is clearly marked 'Emergency' and features an entrance for ambulance patients and another for 'walking wounded' patients.

"But it is not the intent of the law to handle commercial and industrial waste," commission Chairman Rick Brailford said.

"This is a solid waste county landfill," Tupper added. "I don't think we need to spend taxpayers' money to operate a sewage lagoon."

Swenson agreed that the law does not require the county to provide for the disposal of liquid waste. "If I can be treated or dried some way, okay. Otherwise, I don't see that the law requires the county to accept liquid waste."

The commissioners also noted that they had asked Valley Trout Co. "about a year ago" to incorporate time in its fish waste to prevent odor and hasten decay of the material, but the company has failed to do so.

Collings said the time would "help some" with the material being dumped, but breaking down the oil is "a serious problem."

He agreed to talk with an expert in fish-biology and report to the commission on disposal alternatives at its July 12 meeting. Brailford said that further action on the matter would be

'Showtime' Lakers add Worthy to roster

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Los Angeles Lakers, adding another jewel to an already overstuffed treasure chest, Tuesday selected James Worthy of North Carolina as the first choice of the NBA college draft.

Worthy, a 6-foot-9 All-American, guided the Tar Heels to an NCAA title last season in his junior year. He then gave up his final year of eligibility and joins a team with such luminaries as Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Magic Johnson, Jamaal Wilkes and Norm Nixon.

"It's going to be an exciting thing to see Worthy at 6-9 work into the Lakers' fastbreak," said Los Angeles owner Jerry Buss. "It wasn't a difficult choice. The team is magic — and I don't mean Magic Johnson. I mean everyone."

Having opened the 10-round draft at Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum, Los Angeles was followed by San Diego, which selected Terry Cummings, a power forward from DePaul, and Utah named forward

Dominique Wilkins of Georgia. After the selection of the three undergraduates, Dallas drafted Bill Garrett of Wyoming and Kansas City chose LaSalle Thompson of Texas to complete the top five.

The Lakers earned the rights to the top choice as the result of a 1980 trade with Cleveland followed by a coin flip with San Diego. But until the announcement of Worthy, the Lakers protected the identity of their top pick.

Admittedly disappointed in not luring Virginia's Ralph Sampson to the pros, the Lakers nonetheless acquire a player of great talent. Last season Worthy averaged 15.6 points and 6.3 rebounds a game while shooting 57 percent from the floor. He can hit from the outside, handle the ball and go to the boards. Initially, he is expected to share playing time with Wilkes and Kurt Rambis.

The fastbreak style is one of my strengths and that should make adjusting from North Carolina to Los Angeles much easier," Worthy said. "Kareem Abdul-Jabbar has always been an idol of mine. I used to watch him on TV and now I'll be playing on the same team with him."

Cummings, at 6-10, was the best power forward in the draft. He has a deadly shot from the corner and is ferocious on the boards. Cummings averaged more than 22 points and nearly 12 rebounds a game last year and helped make the Blue Demons one of the strongest teams in the nation.

The Clippers, with a 17-65 record last year, are hardly one of the NBA's strongest teams. But Cummings said he has no misgivings about going to such a club.

"The world itself needs an image repair," he said. "I'm just happy to be chosen this high."

In Wilkins, Utah secures one of the college basketball's most flamboyant players. Wilkins, 6-7, averaged 21.3 points a game for Georgia last season. Dubbed the "Human Highlight Film" for his flights of fancy, Wilkins has been likened to Julius Erving of the Philadelphia 76ers.

"It doesn't bother me about being compared to Julius," he said. "There is only one Dr. J and it's a privilege to be compared to him."

The draft, marked by a surplus of outstanding guards and undergraduates, provided few surprises in the opening round. With the exception of Cleveland choosing guard John Bagley of Boston College as the 12th choice and Boston closing the round with center Darren Tillis of Cleveland State, the opening round bled to form.

Of the 12 undergraduates that applied for the draft, nine were grabbed in the first round. In fact, six of the first 10 picks were underclassmen.

The overall talent was sufficiently deep that teams choosing in the second round received players of comparable first-round talent.

"Everybody came away with two or three good players," said Marty Blake, the NBA's director of scouting.

The Mavericks certainly got a good player in Garnett, who at 6-4 1/2 is tough on defense and willing to mix it up. Kansas City, for years in search of a big man, landed 6-10 Thompson, who led the country in rebounding last year as a junior.

New York, looking to organize its chaotic offense, went with the best big guard of the draft in 6-5 Trent Tucker who averaged 15 points a game last year for Minnesota. Chicago followed by naming 6-3 All-American Quintin Dailey of San Francisco, the draft's best offensive guard who hit for 25 points a game last season. Dailey was placed on three years probation last week for assaulting a nursing student in her dormitory last December.

Former CSI gun, Thirdkill, picked 15th for his defense

By MARV CLEMONS and LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writers

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho basketball fans may remember David Thirdkill's offensive ability, but the Phoenix Suns made the former Golden Eagle their first pick in Tuesday's NBA draft at least partially for his defensive prowess.

Thirdkill, 22, was the 15th pick in the annual draft of college basketball talent. A wing performer for CSI during the 1978-79 campaign, Thirdkill finished his college eligibility this season by guiding Bradley University of Peoria, Ill., to the NIT championship.

He was the leading scorer on the Mike Mitchell-coached CSI team that was nipped by one point in overtime in a bi-regional game against Dixie College, just missing a trip to nationals. Thirdkill averaged 22.7 points per game that season, an average that remains the best on the CSI record books. His season high was 41 points.

The lofty draft selection, which will likely mean a rich three- or four-year contract, caught the 6-6 Thirdkill by surprise.

"I just expected to get drafted," he said in a telephone interview Tuesday evening from the Peoria home of his agent, Joe Napoli. "I didn't know just where I would get picked. I don't think anybody really knows for sure outside of the top three or four players."

"I'm just happy to be a Phoenix Sun," he said. "It's not a feeling that I can just come out and express in words."

Napoli said several teams expressed a desire to draft his client, but most were "kinda low key" about him.

"The thing that did it for David was a camp they held at Chicago Circle the first week of June," Napoli explained. "There were 54 college players invited to the camp. Only NBA assistant coaches were there, no scouts and no agents. They broke the guys up into six or seven teams and scrimmaged and that's where everybody saw David."

Napoli said Larry Brown of the New Jersey Nets and the Detroit Pistons were especially interested in Thirdkill, but when Phoenix made a trade to Denver earlier this year for the 15th pick, Napoli felt sure the Suns were going for Thirdkill.

"I called Jerry Colangelo (the Suns' general manager) right then and he told me they were very interested in David," Napoli said. "They flew David down to Phoenix just last Sunday for an interview and evidently he must have said the right things."

Napoli expects no problems in negotiating a contract with the Suns for Thirdkill. The agent declined to estimate monetary amounts for Thirdkill's contract.

"Jerry and I go way back," Napoli said. "We've been friends for years."

Norm Webster, a reporter for the Arizona Republic said the Suns drafted Thirdkill for his defensive abilities.

"They like him for his toughness and because he can play defense on any kind of player from a big guard to a big forward," Webster said.

Webster also figures the drafting of Thirdkill means Dennis Johnson won't be a Sun much longer.

Thirdkill felt his defense played a major part in his selection.

"Mike (Mitchell) really taught us a lot about defense and Bradley stresses defense," he said. "It's my feeling that it takes more than just offense to win a game, you have to win at both ends of the court."

"Once I left CSI, I wasn't such a prolific scorer, but when you get to a major college there are six or seven guys on a team who can score like I did at CSI."

Thirdkill became the 23rd CSI player drafted by an NBA team, giving the school an average of better than one per year since the first senior became eligible in 1970.

Two other players drafted Tuesday have performed on the CSI floor. Idaho's Ken Owens, taken 19th in the fourth round, played here as a Treasure Valley Chukar for two years.

Ricky Pierce, picked 18th in the first round, performed for Walla Walla Community College in the K and T Steel Tournament three years ago.

Two years ago, but advanced to the Far West Regionals this year before losing to Oregon State.

The junior college transfer averaged 15.6 points and 4.2 assists per game in Idaho's balanced offense last year. He now heads to Seattle, which has several veteran guards he must battle to make the club.

Fountainet was central cog in Nevada-Reno's strong-finishing effort last season. The Wolf Pack, with the 6-0, 175-pound guard averaging 15.3 points and 3.5 assists on the season, finished third in the regular season.

ISU's Williams, the No. 12 pick in the sixth round, will go to camp with the improving Washington Bullets. The 6-5, 190-pound player led the Big Sky last year — and was among the leaders in the nation — in free-throw shooting with 89.7 percent accuracy.

The other Bengals players headed for NBA camps — Tate, 6-4, 180 pounds, and Wilkinson, 6-10, 220 pounds — helped Idaho State to the Big Sky playoffs in 1981, but both then suffered sub-par seasons in the most recent season.

Idaho's Owens goes in 4th round

By Idaho Press International

Ken Owens, leader of the Idaho Vandals' Big Sky Conference champion and NCAA playoff teams the past two years, was chosen by Seattle in the fourth round of the NBA draft Tuesday.

The 6-4, 180-pound guard from New York was the first of five Big Sky players — three of them from Idaho State — chosen in the draft.

Nevada-Reno guard James "B.B." Fountainet and Idaho State's Byron Williams went in the sixth round — Fountainet to Chicago and the Bengals' forward to the Washington Bullets.

The fourth Big Sky player taken was Idaho State guard Robert Tate, to the Milwaukee Bucks late in the ninth round. In the 10th round, the Phoenix Suns selected Idaho State center Dale Wilkinson.

Owens paced the Vandals to consecutive Big Sky titles in the 1980-81 and 1981-82 seasons and was named the league's MVP last season. Idaho lost to Pittsburgh in the first round of the NCAA tournament two years ago, but advanced to the Far West Regionals this year before losing to Oregon State.

Four of top 10 women upset

Gerulaitis avoids fall of Wimbledon's leaders

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — On a day when the leading ladies were falling with stunning regularity, Vilas Gerulaitis decided this was not the occasion to chase after the women.

So while Gerulaitis came close to joining four seeded women on the sidelines Tuesday, he regained his concentration in time to overcome Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia, 6-7, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2, and reach the fourth round at Wimbledon.

"I was a little annoyed with my form," said the third seed from New York. "I wasn't serving too well in the first two sets and couldn't find any rhythm. My service return strategy wasn't too bright."

"I said to myself, I don't mind losing, but I have to make a fight of it and concentrate. I had never lost to the guy."

Martin Navratilova and Chris Evert Lloyd, the top seeded women, both got off to shaky starts, but they recovered to continue into the quarterfinals. Not so fortunate were No. 4 seed Andrea Jaeger, No. 6 Wendy Turnbull, No. 7 Pam Shriver and No. 9 Sylvia Hanika, who were all eliminated.

Navratilova, loser of only one match this year, fell behind 3-1 before rallying to beat 18-year-old Zina Garrison, 6-3, 6-2, while Evert, who had dropped only three sets to Virginia Ruzici in 21 previous matches dating back to 1974, recovered for a 6-7, 6-3, 6-1 victory over the 15th seed from Romania.

"I never thought about defeat at all," said Evert, seeded second behind Navratilova. "I wouldn't allow myself to think of it. Even at 3-3 in the second set I thought I could gut it out."

Jaeger, although still bothered by the groin injury, was the victim of the day's biggest stunner, losing for the first time in five career meetings to No. 13 seed Anne Smith, 6-4, 6-2.

Not nearly as much of a surprise was the 6-2, 6-3 victory by No. 12 Billie Jean King over Turnbull, whose activity has been limited by elbow trouble, while Shriver lost to No. 10 Barbara Potter, 6-2, 6-4, and Hanika fell to unseeded Joanne Russell, 6-4, 6-7, 6-3.

Third seed Tracy Austin beat West German Claudia Kohde, 6-3, 6-3.

Except for Gerulaitis' flirtation with disaster, there were no surprises among the men, and those moving into the fourth round included No. 5 seed Johan Kriek, No. 6 Gene Mayer, No. 7 Mats Wilander, No. 12 Mark Edmondson, No. 14 Roscoe Tanner, No. 15 Buster Mottram and No. 16 Steve Denton.

Tanner who seeds Gerulaitis in the next round, also was forced to five sets in the third round as he required 2 hours and 40 minutes to dispose of qualifier Vijay Amritraj of India, 6-4, 6-4, 6-6, 6-3.

In a quirk created by the foul weather conditions that plagued Wimbledon for the first seven days, Denton needed three days to complete his second round match against South African Shaiko Van der Merwe, picking it up at 10:10 in the final set Tuesday and winning 11-13.

After a 10-minute respite, Denton was back on court to beat Chris Lewis of New Zealand. Although the lineup for the women's quarterfinals isn't complete, it is guaranteed to be an all-American affair. Navratilova is paired against Russell, Evert against Potter and Austin against King.

Bettie Bunge, the 11th seed, meets Candy Reynolds Wednesday to determine the other quarterfinal berth. Smid, dominated the first two sets with his powerful service, taking the opening set tie-break 6-4, before Gerulaitis began to drive him back from the net with a series of lobs and floaters.

Gerulaitis started to turn things his way by sweeping the first three games of the third set, and he took the initiative again in the fourth with an opening break.

The decisive break came in the fifth game of the final set as Smid contributed to his own downfall with a pair of double faults.

"I got a little annoyed with things in the first and second sets but I told myself to ride it out, not let anything bother me," Gerulaitis said. "I start losing my concentration when I get annoyed."

Cardinals retake first from Phillies

By United Press International

The St. Louis Cardinals, humbled by Steve Carlton Monday night, took out their frustrations on Dick Ruthven Tuesday night and crushed the Philadelphia Phillies, 15-3, behind a 17-hit attack.

George Hendrick was the major offensive weapon as he drove in seven runs with a double, sacrifice fly and a grand slam. Keith Hernandez added a three-run homer for the Cardinals.

Hendrick blasted his 12th homer of the season in the eighth off reliever Ed Farmer following walks to Lonnie Smith and Hernandez and a single by Mike Ramsey. Hendrick also had a sacrifice fly in the first and a two-run double in the fifth.

Pirates 3, Cubs 1

At Chicago, Dave Parker broke a scoreless game with an eighth-inning double and pinch hitter Lee Lacy drilled a two-run single in the same inning to lift the Pirates. Winner Rick Rhoden, 6, scattered 10 hits in pitching his second complete game of the season. He also collected two hits in four at-bats to increase his batting average to .340.

Mets 5, Expos 4

At Montreal, rookie Ron Gardenhire cracked his first major league home run, a two-run shot in the seventh inning, to help the Mets snap a five-game losing streak.

Braves 6, Astros 5 (11)

At Atlanta, Glenn Hubbard lined a single to left center with one out in the 11th inning to drive in Rufino Linares and give the Braves their victory.

Baseball

With one out in the 11th, Linares delivered a pinch hit single off reliever Mike LaCoss, 3. He moved to second on an infield single by Brett Butler and scored when Hubbard lined LaCoss' first pitch to left-center for the winning run.

Giants 3, Reds 0

At San Francisco, Alton Hamaker pitched a four-hitter for his first major league shutout and contributed an RBI single, leading the Giants.

Brewers 1, Yankees 4

At New York, Cecil Cooper slammed two home runs and had three RBI and Don Money added three RBI to lead the Brewers. Mike Caldwell, 5-7, went seven innings to earn the victory, while Ron Guidry, 9-3, dropped his second straight. The Brewers have won 11 of their last 13 games.

Indians 9, Orioles 2

At Baltimore, Andre Thornton blasted his 19th home run of the season and triggered a four-run sixth inning with an RBI double to lead the Indians. Mike Fischlin and Toby Harrah both added two-run singles as John Denny, 5-4, scattered three hits over seven innings to earn his first road victory after six losses.

Red Sox 4, Tigers 2

At Detroit, Dennis Eckersley pitched a four-hitter and Dwight Evans, Jim Rice and Rick Miller homered to lift the Red Sox. Eckersley, 8-6, gave up two homers to Richie Hebner but went the distance, sending the Tigers to their 14th defeat in their last 15 games.

Mariners 4, Blue Jays 1

At Toronto, Gary Gray's two-run double capped a three-run third-inning that carried the Mariners. Floyd Bannister, the American League strikeout leader with 101, raised his record to 7-4. Mike Stanton earned his fifth save. All four Seattle runs off Jim Clancy, 7-4, were unearned.

Angels 2, Rangers 1

At Arlington, Tex., Bob Boone singled home Doug DeCoss from second in the fifth inning with the winning run to help the Angels. Geoff Zahn and Doug Corbett combined on a seven-hitter. Zahn, 9-3, scattered seven hits in 6 2/3 innings and Corbett got his ninth save.

Royals 7, A's 2

At Kansas City, Mo., George Brett and Willie Aikens each knocked in two runs to lift the Royals. Hood, making his first major league start since 1980, scattered three hits, walked four and struck out three over five innings to move his record to 1-0. Armstrong got his first save. Brett belted a two-run homer, his 10th, in the first off Dave Beard, 5-5.

Twins 12, White Sox 5

At Minneapolis, Ron Washington went 4-for-5 and drove in three runs and Gary Ward knocked in four runs to spark the Twins. Frank Viola, 2-0, worked 5 2/3 innings to earn the victory.

Minico B takes pair from Poky

RUPERT — The Minico B Legion team exploded for 31 runs and ran its win streak to six straight Tuesday night by sweeping a double-header from Pocotello.

Coach Doug Brown's crew belted from 12 walks and six Pocotello errors in winning the first game 16-3 and then erupted for 10 runs in the first inning of the nightcap to coast into a 15-5 five-inning decision.

Minico started the batting lineup around well in the opener as Robb Miller, Carey Ferrin, John Miller, Louie Almonza and Coy Thurston all came up with two RBIs.

Minico sent 11 men to the plate in the 16-run first inning of the nightcap. Arlin Smith started that with a walk and Greg Schow followed with a single. They moved up on Terence Smith's sacrifice. The first runs scored on a double by Jerry Johnson and Robb Miller. Steve Garland and Arlin Smith came up with RBI singles. That also set the stage for Schow to climax the inning with a triple.

Buhl romps past Burley

BUHL — Four was a big number for Charlie Carter Tuesday night. Carter picked up his fourth win and fourth home run in pacing Buhl to a 15-1 win over Burley in American Legion baseball action.

Carter fanned 19. Bobcats and cracked a three-run homer to highlight a six-run fourth inning. Kyle Davis picked up his second round-tripper of the season, a two-run blast that punctuated a four-run sixth. He took two singles and four RBIs on the night.

Darrin Stricker had a pair of singles and RBIs while Lynn Chessmore's double drove in a sixth-inning run. Chuck Steele provided the other extra base blow, a double.

Buhl, 9-1 in league and 18-3 overall, meets Minico A and B in a double-header at Rupert at 4 p.m. today.

Depot-Wickes tops Wholesale in HR contest

TWIN FALLS — Depot Grill-Wickes out did Wholesale Carpet in a home run-busting duel 20-5 to highlight Twin Falls slowpitch softball play Tuesday night.

The A-League leaders got a pair of homers from Bruce Thibodeau and Jim Kennedy and another from Ken Petersen while Wholesale, which clubbed five Monday night, got round-trippers from Jim Dawson and John Johnson.

In another A League game, Kerry Wentworth's 4-4 effort pointed Wholesale past Twin Falls Bank & Trust 8-0.

In B League play, Ron Boyd drove across the decisive run in the bottom of the seventh-inning as Balise Cascade slipped. Maxie's Corner overwhelmed Bean Growers 15-4.

Blue Lakes Really topped Northwest Plywood and John Griffith hit two homers as Diamond International bumped Front Page Book Store-First Security Bank 19-2.

Hawaii-bound for nationals

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The advantage of reaching national competition at age 12 is you don't think about anything but the good possibilities. While older competitors may fret over possible embarrassment in losing, the younger the participant the more the thoughts turn toward success.

Wally Walcroft, who leaves Twin Falls Thursday morning for the National Junior Judo Tournament in Hawaii, isn't kidding himself. "There'll be lots of good competition there," he said.

Losing isn't a worry to him. He says he's done that before. But in his last major test, the regional finals in Emmett, he didn't. He won his 12-year-old heavyweight division.

Walcroft has reached the national tournament in just three years of participating in the sport.

"We got a pamphlet from the Y that said they were offering judo lessons and I wanted to take it," said Walcroft of his introduction to the sport. He doesn't exactly know why the sport appealed to him. There was no parental or peer influence.

"I felt I needed to learn to defend myself," he said when pressed for an answer.

In the immediate past season, Walcroft entered five tournaments in the Intermountain region and placed in two, a second and then the first in regionals.

In the others I was going against older players. At the national qualifying in Emmett I went against players who wouldn't have their birthday by July 1. Most of those I'd gone against in the other tournaments would be 12 by then."

At Emmett he defeated Kelly Itano, Boise Valley Judo Club, a long time nemesis. "He usually won," Walcroft said of previous meetings. "But I planned him (in regionals). He's the only other one in my division (at nationals) that I know about but I'm confident I can beat him again."

There is a mathematical possibility Walcroft will be facing 12 other players in his division. That's because each of the 28 regions is allowed to send three participants in each division. However, due to travel expenses, the number, particularly from the east, will be considerably less, Instructor Frank Hirai believes.

Nationals will be scored on the "bad point" system. A win by more than a full point gives the competitor a 0 score. A win by less than a point is a minus 1, loss by less than a point is a minus 2 and loss by more than a point is minus 3. A total of five "bad points" will eliminate the judoist.

"This gives everyone at least two matches," Hirai points out. Hirai believes that Intermountain judo is stronger than most believe.

"The power is in California," he said. "They have five regions in that state alone. If they say the chances of getting a national judo champion is one out of a million, California has 15 chances and Idaho has none because we don't have a million in the state."

"But the strength in judo is from the west coast. It is much stronger than in the east," he said.

While Walcroft admits to being "pretty excited" about visiting nationals, he says other parts of the judo regimen have been good for him.

"It keeps me in better physical condition. Remembering the names of all the throws and things does help your mind," he said.

"From a cerebral standpoint, the courtesy required in the sport helps build character."

"You're not supposed to speak out of turn. When you get on the mat you bow for courtesy and you bow to your opponent and then you have to bow again when you get done. I've never had a bad temper but I think I'm able to control myself a lot better," he said.

His mother says she has welcomed Wally's participation in judo.

"Actually as far as the family is concerned, we've gone more places and done more things together than we ever did before. We don't sit in front of the TV Sunday afternoon, things like that," she said.

But in the end, Wally will admit to one worry.

"I'm three pounds over weight," the 117-pounder admitted.

Borg to face Connors in challenge match

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Bjorn Borg and Jimmy Connors, who have developed one of the fiercest tennis rivalries in the game's history, will meet in a $100,000 challenge match next month, officials said Tuesday.

Borg and Connors will play a five-set match at the Richmond Coliseum July 31, said spokesmen for the event's sponsors.

Proceeds will go to the Tennis Foundation, which plans to renovate Byrd Park, a Richmond outdoor tennis facility, by adding six additional courts and constructing a 1,500-seat indoor stadium.

Postal Service to honor Ruth, Clemente

WASHINGTON, D.C. (UPI) — The U.S. Postal Service announced that baseball greats Babe Ruth and Roberto Clemente will be honored by commemorative stamps in the next two years.

The Babe Ruth stamp will be issued in 1993 in conjunction with the 50th anniversary of professional baseball's All-Star game. Ruth hit a home run in the first mid-summer classic in 1933.

Clemente, who died in a 1972 plane crash while delivering relief supplies to earthquake stricken Nicaragua, will be honored as both athlete and humanitarian in 1994.

Red Sox doctor says Fidrych improving

PAWTUCKET, R.I. (UPI) — Mark "The Bird" Fidrych is getting the zip back in his pitch and it may not be long before he gets back to major league form, according to Dr. Arthur Pappas, team physician of the Boston Red Sox.

"They had the radar gun on him the game before last," said Pappas Monday. "They had him at 85 mph. He'll go a little higher than that, probably another two or three mph. He'll continue to add velocity as the year goes by."

Pappas has been monitoring Fidrych's progress as the former pitching sensation tries to make his comeback from an arm injury with Boston's farm club in Pawtucket.

Fidrych is 2-3 and was shaky in his last outing Saturday. He's scheduled to pitch again Thursday against the Columbus Clippers.

Kings send Ford to Nets for Williams

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Kansas City Kings Tuesday acquired 6-foot-3 guard Ray Williams and an undisclosed amount of cash from the New Jersey Nets in a trade for Phil Ford, the club announced.

Ford, who was the second overall pick in the 1978 draft, earned NBA rookie-of-the-year honors after leading the Kings to their first divisional championship in 27 years. Ford was also a member of the 1976 gold-medal winning U.S. Olympic basketball team and was a two-time All-American at North Carolina.

Williams was the 10th player selected in the 1977 draft out of the University of Minnesota. He played four seasons with the New York Knicks before he was traded to the Nets on Oct. 25, 1981 for forward Maurice Lucas. While with the Nets, he led the club in scoring with a 24.4-point per game average as well as in assists and steals. Williams, who scored a career-high 52 points in his final regular-season game with the Nets, finished 19th in scoring in the NBA.

Jazz like Wilkins, take Trumbo second

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The Utah Jazz picked 6-foot-7 guard Dominique Wilkins of the University of Georgia in the first round of the NBA draft, then picked Utah favorite Brigham Young forward Steve Trumbo in the third.

The Jazz had the No. 3 choice in the first round Monday. It was only the second time in eight years the team had not traded away its first round selection. The Jazz picked guard Darrell Griffith as the first-round choice in 1980.

"We're delighted with our choice," said Jazz Coach Frank Layden said of Wilkins. "We feel we have the best athlete in the draft. He's going to bring us a lot of thrills. We think we have a better jumper than Griffith, if that's possible."

Wilkins, a 200-pound junior, averaged 21.3 points and eight rebounds last season for Georgia. He was also the second leading scorer and the fifth best rebounder in the Southeastern Conference.

Pimm denies losing recruit to Wyoming altered job offer

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — University of Utah Basketball Coach Jerry Pimm called a news conference Tuesday to deny he offered a Littleton, Colo., high school coach a job in an effort to recruit his star player.

But at that same news conference, an attorney for Arapahoe High School Coach Stan Dodds said it was his clients' impression that Pimm renegeed on the job because the recruitment deal fell through and, 6-foot-10 Mark Getty went to the University of Wyoming.

"That was the impression we got," said Evanston, Wyo., attorney James Phillips. "Dodds was told he didn't have the job within days after Getty signed with Wyoming."

Phillips said Dodds would have sued the Utah school for breach of contract if it had not come up with a cash settlement in lieu of the job. The amount of the settlement has not been disclosed, at Dodds request.

Pimm admitted he made a mistake in offering Dodds an assistant coaching job and then changing his mind. But he insisted the reason had nothing to do with the recruitment of highly sought Getty.

"I don't work that way," said Pimm. "Yes, we recruited Getty, but we were never in the running. I told Stan it doesn't matter who you have. I don't make player deals."

Pimm said he just got overenthusiastic about Dodds when he was looking for two assistant coaches last winter.

"After I thought about it, I decided I needed somebody with a little more experience in recruiting on a national level," said the Utah coach. "Stan is a class guy and a quality coach. This had nothing to do with his ability."

"I made a judgement mistake," he added. "And I offered to make good any loss to him even if I had to do it out of my own pocket."

The university paid a cash settlement to Dodds who sold his house in anticipation of the move to Salt Lake City. Pimm, Phillips and University Athletic Director Arnie Ferrin declined to reveal the amount of the settlement. Phillips said Dodds considered that a private matter.

But Pimm said the money paid to Dodds came from a coach's fund he raises each year from Utah athletic boosters, and not from appropriated state funds. Pimm said he raises from $10,000 to $20,000 in private donations annually. He also said this year's fund is "wiped out."

Pimm ultimately filled one of his assistant coaching positions with Lynn Archibald, former Idaho State basketball coach. Two players Archibald recruited for "ISU," then switched to Utah — Mame Hendrix of Phoenix and Clyde Rivers of Victorville, Calif.

Pimm said Archibald did not bring the players with him. "The players came here because the U of U was the best place for them," he said.

He also denied he offered a job to Coach Dennis Helms of Crowder College in Missouri as part of an effort to recruit 6-foot-8 Crowder forward Robert Brannan, who eventually went to Arkansas. Pimm said Helms was interviewed for the job, but it was because he applied along with 191 others.

Ferrin told newsmen the school had previously refused to discuss the case because the settlement with Dodds included a provision that neither side make any comment. "There has been no coverage," he said.

But Phillips said the agreement to maintain silence was the University's idea and was a condition Dodds had to accept to get his money.

"Coach Dodds always felt this should be discussed openly," said Phillips, "except for the amount of the settlement which his family believes is a private matter."

Asked specifically if Dodds believed he lost the Utah job because he failed to bring Getty with him, Phillips replied, "That's the impression he conveyed to me. Stan felt the reason was not because he lacked recruiting experience."

Phillips added, "Stan got involved with the system and he got chewed up. He's taken his lumps and he's learned his lesson."

The attorney said Dodds turned down one settlement offered by the school. But he said the actual settlement was very close to the money Dodds lost selling his home.

Tax change won't pull players to Canada says agent

MONTREAL (UPI) — Professional athletes will still be discouraged by their business agents from playing in Canada despite changes in the federal budget allowing forward averaging of salaries, representatives for several athletes said Tuesday.

"The advice of our financial consultant was that there was no significant change in the budget and I will still recommend that a player go to the U.S. if he has that option," said Toronto-based player agent Gus Badali.

"No one will ever choose Canada over the U.S. or Great Britain in this context," said Montreal-based agent Mordern "Cookie" Lazarus, who represents several hockey, baseball and soccer players.

"I would still advise anyone who is traded to a Canadian team to demand 25 percent more than he would in the U.S. and 50 percent more for a Quebec team."

While agents and team officials said they needed time to assess the impact of tax changes announced Monday by Finance Minister Allan Rock, most agreed the changes allowing athletes and entertainers to "forward-average" their entire salary still left players in Canada at a disadvantage to players in other countries.

The practice of income-averaging was eliminated in last November's budget which led several players to seek free agent status or demand to be traded.

Income-averaging allowed people who earn a high salary over a short period to escape high taxes by having income from their playing years taxed at a lower rate when they retire.

The November budget limited the amount a player could carry forward to 110 percent of his average salary from the past three years and required him to pay a refundable tax — at the rate of 50 percent — on the money carried forward.

On Monday, the government changed the legislation to allow only athletes and entertainers to forward average their entire salary, which would reduce, but not eliminate, taxes on their income.

However, team officials said the changes would improve the economic disadvantage of Canadian-based players.

National Hockey League president John Ziegler, on a conference telephone call with Quebec Nordiques' president Marcel Aubut and a group of reporters Tuesday, said the changes were "more favorable treatment for athletes than was provided in the November budget."

"Whether the impact will be as favorable as (before the November budget), I think we'll have to wait a bit for our experts to analyze the effects."

Aubut said he had hoped the government would include a provision allowing athletes to deduct their agent's fees from taxable income, as U.S. players do.

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFF

"Never give advice in a crowd." — Arabian Proverb.

East's double of today's grand slam was an effort to advise West about the opening lead. Against slams, there is little to gain by doubling only to increase the penalty; a double to direct the killing lead pays off in huge dividends.

Theodore Lightner, one of the world's great players of the past, developed the theory about slam doubles (Lightner doubles). A Lightner slam double carries a conventional meaning. If the defenders have bid a suit, the double forbids the lead of that suit. Opening leader is required to choose an unusual lead; a trump lead being out of the question. The player who doubles expects to ruff the lead of a side suit mentioned by the opponents... or perhaps, to win two tricks with unexpected top cards in the suit.

Some play that the double demands the first suit bid by dummy and today's West was a member of that club. He led a "dutiful" heart and declarer managed his doubled slam with the precision club finesse bringing in the 13th trick.

West could hardly justify his choice of a heart. Had East been void in hearts, South would have had quite a few, and the slam would have been played in hearts instead of diamonds. And if East had unexpected top heart winners, South would

FIRECRACKER RIBS

- 5 pounds spare ribs, cut in serving pieces
- 1/2 cup catsup
- 1/2 cup CocoRibe coconut rum liqueur
- 3 tablespoons lime juice
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1 tablespoon brown sugar
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper

Grill ribs over medium heat 20 minutes, turning often. In small bowl combine catsup, coconut rum liqueur, lime juice, oil, brown sugar, garlic, salt and pepper; mix well. Brush ribs with prepared sauce. Cook 20 minutes longer or until ribs are cooked through. Turn and brush often with sauce. Brush ribs just before serving and pass remaining sauce for dipping.
YIELD: 8 servings.

STAR-SPANGLED COOK-OUT SPIRIT!

Shortly after the Liberty Bell rang out American Independence on July 4, 1776, John Adams sat down and wrote to his wife Abigail: "I am apt to believe that it [Independence Day] will be celebrated by succeeding generations...with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations, from this time forevermore."

What Adams neglected to mention was an extravaganza of food to celebrate the holiday. And what could be a better tribute to the Fourth of July than a traditional, all-American feast — a backyard barbecue under "spacious skies?"

Tempting Beverages

Take a "red, white and blue" approach to the big events this year with colorful dishes and tempting beverages that feature an inspiring American product: CocoRibe coconut rum liqueur. A delicate blend of wild island coconut and Virgin Islands rum, the liqueur adds an unusual dimension to such American favorites as barbecued spare ribs, shortcake and a creamy array of drinks.

Firecracker Ribs, for example, bring out patriotic pride — they're a simple, delicious approach to barbecuing. The ribs are first marinated in a zingy tomato sauce infused with the coconut rum liqueur and a hint of lime, and then grilled to succulent perfection.

For dessert, nothing says "All-American!" better than classic Blue Ribbon Shortcake. As the architect of Monticello, famous patriot Thomas Jefferson would have loved this eye-catching masterpiece! Layers of shortcake alternate with whipped cream that has been tinged with velvety CocoRibe liqueur and topped with brilliant blueberries and strawberries. The subtle touch of nutmeg ties all flavors together.

Colada Collection

And for a toast to the flag there's a bevy of "Old Glory Coladas," color-coordinated drinks that pay tribute to the tantalizing display of foods. You can have your choice of summery Blue Sky Colada; creamy, pineapple CocoRibe Colada; or fruity-smooth Strawberry Colada. All drinks use coconut rum liqueur to make toasting on the patio extra special.

Serve this delectable "red, white and blue" scheme with old-fashioned barbecue favorites: corn-on-the-cob, watermelon, and a crisp salad.

Had John Adams partaken of this memorable feast, Abigail would have heard no end of praise!

- 2 cups sliced fresh strawberries
- 6 tablespoons CocoRibe coconut rum liqueur, divided
- 2 tablespoons granulated sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 1 cup heavy cream
- 2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
- 2 cups fresh blueberries

Prepare shortcake recipe. In medium bowl combine strawberries, 3 tablespoons coconut rum liqueur, granulated sugar and nutmeg; let stand 1 hour. Drain and reserve liquid. Split shortcake horizontally. Spoon reserved liquid over bottom layer. In medium bowl combine heavy cream, remaining 3 tablespoons liqueur and confectioners' sugar; beat until soft peaks form. Spread two-thirds of the cream over bottom layer of shortcake. Spoon 1 1/2 cups strawberries and 1 1/2 cups blueberries over the whipped cream. Top with remaining shortcake layer. Spoon remaining cream and berries over shortcake.
YIELD: 6 to 8 servings.

*Shortcake

- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1/3 cup sugar
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 egg, beaten

In a medium bowl sift together flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. With a pastry blender or two knives cut butter into dry ingredients until mixture resembles cornmeal. In small bowl combine milk and egg. Stir quickly into flour mixture just enough to moisten. Do not overmix. Place dough on a greased cookie sheet; shape into an 8-inch circle. Bake in a 425°F. oven 15 to 20 minutes until golden brown. Cool on wire rack.

BLUE SKY COLADA

- 2 ounces CocoRibe coconut rum liqueur
- 1 ounce DeKuyper Blue Curacao
- 1 ounce DeKuyper Creme de Banana
- 3 small scoops vanilla ice cream
- Maraschino cherry

Combine all ingredients in container of electric blender. Cover. Blend until smooth and frothy. Serve in cocktail glass. Garnish with Maraschino cherry.
YIELD: 1 serving.

COCORIBE COLADA

- 4 ounces pineapple juice
- 3 ounces CocoRibe coconut rum liqueur
- 3 small scoops vanilla ice cream

Combine all ingredients in container of electric blender. Cover. Blend until smooth and frothy. Serve in cocktail glass. Garnish with pineapple chunk and fresh mint.
YIELD: 1 serving.

STRAWBERRY COLADA

- 2 1/2 ounces CocoRibe coconut rum liqueur
- 1/3 cup fresh or frozen sliced strawberries
- 1/4 cup crushed ice
- 1 ounce milk or cream

Combine all ingredients in container of electric blender. Cover. Blend until smooth. Serve in a stemmed glass. Garnish with a fresh strawberry, if desired.
YIELD: 1 serving.

Barbecued Spare Rib Stack, stuffed with tantalizing additions, makes different grill fare

Barbecue season now here

NORWALK, Conn. — Once more smoke signals rising across the land declare the American outdoor barbecue season is in full swing.

After many summers at the grill, today's outdoor chef has developed a more sophisticated approach to cooking that goes beyond the possum hamburger-and-hot dog. A good cook's repertoire now includes all sorts of intriguing recipes, such as this one for stuffed Barbecued Spare Rib Stack.

Cooking the spareribs first in boiling water gets rid of the fat, a bonus for those interested in lowering the fat content of foods that they eat. The two racks of cooked ribs are then stuffed with a deliciously seasoned dressing based on a handy package of Herb Seasoned Stuffing Mix. Since the mix comes already delicately seasoned with a wonderful collection of aromatic herbs that eliminates one chore for the busy chef.

The stuffing mix is then endowed with some tantalizing additions: sweet Italian sausage, chopped zucchini, celery, onion, tomato and a minced clove of garlic. Once blended, the dressing is spooned between the two racks of ribs and all tied together. Thus joined and brushed with a spirited sweet-sour sauce, the ribs are ready for grilling over the glowing coals.

- BARBECUED SPARE RIB STACK
- 2 racks spareribs (4- to 5 pounds total weight)
 - 1 pound Italian sausage
 - 2 tablespoons olive oil
 - 1 cup coarsely chopped zucchini
 - 1 cup sliced celery
 - 1 cup finely chopped onions
 - 1 medium clove garlic, minced
 - 1 cup water
 - 1 cup chopped tomato
 - 1 1/2 cups herb seasoned stuffing mix
 - 1 cup ketchup
 - 4 tablespoons brown sugar
 - 4 tablespoons cider vinegar
 - 2 medium cloves garlic, minced
 - 1 teaspoon basil, crushed
 - 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- Cook spareribs in boiling, salted water for 1 hour. Drain. Meanwhile, in skillet, brown sausage in oil, using fork to break into bits. Add water, tomato and stuffing mix; toss to blend. Lay out one rack of spareribs, top with stuffing mix, spreading to cover meat; top with remaining rack of spareribs. Tie together. Combine remaining ingredients. Cook spareribs 6 inches from hot coals for 30 minutes or until tender. Brush frequently with barbecue sauce and turn every 5 minutes. (Makes 4 to 6 servings.)

Less cholesterol

MISSISSIPPI STATE, Miss. (UPI) — Preliminary research by animal nutritionists indicates a high fiber diet for egg-laying hens decreases the cholesterol in their eggs.

Researchers at the USDA Poultry Department Research Laboratory at Mississippi State found the cholesterol level in eggs dropped as much as 13 percent in eggs from hens fed a high fiber diet.

The largest decrease — 13.3 percent — occurred in hens whose diets included 8.8 percent sunflower meal. Adding about 10 percent wood shavings led to about a 10 percent cholesterol reduction, the researchers say. Other sources of fiber used in the study were corn, soybeans, alfalfa and rice.

Food trends: chocolate still popular

Chicago Tribune

CHICAGO — Spotting food trends is a popular pastime. It pleases man's innate need to make wild guesses about something — in times past, he used the weather. But who can resist jawboning about partly cloudy skies when you can rant on about the kid's replacement and the orgasmic richness of creme fraiche?

Food became a trendy topic in the indulgent '70s, when the world cared so much about what a handful of French chefs were cooking that their slight-and-light dishes were blown into a new (nouvelle) cuisine.

What these chefs concocted was soon imitated by America's food hobbyists. Restaurant cooking became the model for fine home cooking rather than being an excuse to get out of the kitchen.

That influence still remains. It is still fun to wonder whether cold pasta salads will seem clever this summer or whether the chic will still sneer at the martini.

One man seems to have the answers to such musings. It's "yes" to the pasta salads and "no" to the martini's continued low status, according to Hungarian-born George Lang, president of George Lang Corporation, a New York think tank for every aspect of restaurant concept and design. Lang has designed restaurants from Manhattan to Manila and is considered "a renowned chef, author, designer, restaurateur ... (Time magazine) and one ... whose imagination is as fertile as the Indus Valley." Gourmet magazine.

Lang was in Chicago recently and agreed to forecast food trends, but not before he bore witness to the shifting sands a prophet of the food world stands on. "Today's trends give so many conflicting signals, it's hard to be a proper Nostradamus," he said.

For example:

• DESSERTS: "I think 8 out of 10 Americans are on a diet, were on a diet or will be on a diet. Yet, at the same time, chocolate consumption is at the highest it has ever been. In 1980, we ate 10 pounds per person. That means babies.

"Why? My guess is that people like to be in touch with their bodies, yet still want the pleasure of eating sweets."

• SEAFOOD VS. MEAT: "Seafoods have been extraordinarily popular, especially with people under (age) 40. Yet, the latest trend is a return to pork. The boneless pork chop sandwich is all over the place. The renaissance of sausage is incredible; gourmet shops feature all kinds of sausage."

"The ham business is going up and up. I attribute this to neophobia. While Americans, more than any other people, are willing to try new things, anything familiar is increasing in popularity by geometric proportions. Once something becomes familiar, such as ham, there is a point in time when it almost becomes an institution."

• AMERICAN CUISINE: "There is a move to create or bring back regional dishes with authenticity, yet there is a stronger influence of Oriental cooking than the country has ever known."

Yes, being a prophet of poached

oysters is a risky business, but Lang does have an inkling of the food and dining trends of the '80s:

• "The much-talked-about American regional cuisine will not happen as fast or as concentrated as many consultants and food writers predict. Instead, for the next few years, we will have more nouvelle-continent food disguised as the new American way of cooking."

Cold Curried Tomato Soup is a hot weather taste treat

Willetta Warberg

Now's time for cold soup

Times-News correspondent

The last thing you think you need during 80-degree weather is a bowl of soup. That's so if in your mind soup seems analogous to warm-up food.

However, in many experienced kitchens, hot soup meets cold soup about this time of year. So if you haven't already, why not try some cold summer soups on your family? They make perfect summer eating.

Here are a "cool" recipes we are comfortable with.

NO-COOK BUTTERMILK SOUP

- 1 cup buttermilk
 - 1 tablespoon honey or sugar mixed with 1 teaspoon warm water
 - pinch cinnamon
 - 2 tablespoons crumbled cracker
 - 1 tablespoon seedless raisins
 - grated lemon rind for garnish
- In chilled bowl, combine buttermilk, honey-water, cinnamon, cracker crumbs and raisins. Chill until ready to serve. Serve in chilled bowl or mug with grated lemon rind sprinkled on top. (Makes 1 serving.)

SPANISH COLD VEGETABLE SOUP

- (Gazpacho)
 - 6 large, ripe tomatoes, peeled and chopped
 - 2 medium-sized cucumbers, peeled, seeded and chopped
 - 3 stalks celery, minced
 - 1/2 sweet green pepper, minced
 - 1 medium-sized onion, peeled and minced
 - Tabasco sauce to season to taste
 - red pepper (cayenne) to taste
 - salt and white pepper to taste
 - Worcestershire sauce to taste
 - 1 tablespoon vegetable oil or olive oil
 - 1 can, 6 oz., tomato juice
 - 1 clove garlic, peeled and halved
- In chilled bowl, combine tomatoes, cucumbers, celery, green pepper and onion. If finer textured soup is desired, put vegetables through food chopper or blender. Season vegetables to taste with Tabasco sauce, red pepper, salt and white pepper. Worcestershire sauce, vinegar, oil and tomato juice. Rub chilled serving bowl or tureen with garlic. Discard garlic. Pour in soup; cover and refrigerate at least 4 hours. Serve in chilled bowls or mugs. (Makes 6 servings.)

COLD CURRIED TOMATO SOUP

- 4 cups tomato juice
 - 2 teaspoons curry powder
 - 2-1/2 tablespoons tomato paste
 - 1 teaspoon sage
 - dash Tabasco sauce
 - 2-3 tablespoons lemon juice
 - dairy sour cream for garnish
 - snap peas for garnish
 - lemon slices for garnish
- In saucepan, heat tomato juice, curry powder and tomato paste. Simmer, stirring, about 5 minutes. Stir in salt, sage and Tabasco. Remove from heat. Cover and chill at least two hours. When ready to serve, stir in lemon juice; pour into chilled bowl or tureen. Garnish top with sliced snap peas and sliced lemon. Top individual servings with dollop of sour cream, if desired. (Makes 6 servings.)

COLD BEET SOUP

- (Borscht)
 - 8 young beets, peeled and grated
 - 4 cups water
 - juice of 1 lemon
 - 1 teaspoon sugar (use more if desired)
 - salt and white pepper to taste
 - dairy sour cream
 - chopped chives
- In saucepan, put grated beets and water; simmer about 20 minutes, or until beets are tender. Stir in lemon juice, sugar, salt and pepper to taste. Simmer beet mixture about 8 minutes or more. Remove from heat; cool slightly and strain out beets. Discard beets. Cover, refrigerate borscht at least 3 hours. Serve in chilled bowls or mugs, topped with dollop of sour cream and chopped chives. (Makes 6 servings.)

THIS WEEK'S BEST MARKET BUYS

This is the market's best weekend of the year, next to Christmas. Everybody goes in for big give-aways. Most of your good buys, however, will be the use-up or lose-it type so be careful not to buy more than you can handle. Watermelons will be excellent buys this year. Buy meals you can make into stews for freezing.

All-American sandwiches made with ham, turkey and walnuts, make easy picnic fare

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — Tired of the usual picnic fare of burgers, hotdogs and potato salad?

Put the charcoal back in the garage and enjoy the ease of this simple, yet sophisticated, no-cook picnic. By eliminating the need of a grill, you can enjoy these take-along treats anywhere, anytime.

All American Sandwiches and Kaleidoscope Fruit Nibbles are two recipes which add up to a perfect picnic before an open-air concert or a ball game. Simply fill up the picnic basket and go.

Ham, turkey and crunchy walnuts are deliciously highlighted in All American Sandwiches. A creamy dressing made easily with an envelope of cheese sauce mix, mayonnaise, and prepared yellow mustard turns sandwiches into something special.

Carry the filling in a separate container, then spread on crusty rolls just before serving. Instead of lettuce, top with tender broccoli florets, sliced cucumbers or sliced tomatoes for a delicious change of pace.

Be sure to take advantage of seasonal savings on fresh fruit and serve Kaleidoscope Fruit Nibbles as either an appetizer or salad. These juicy, bite-size pieces of fresh fruit are marinated in a sweet and spicy dressing. Confectioners' sugar adds the sweet, ginger and Worcestershire sauce, the spice. What a delicious way to savor the best fruit summer has to offer.

Spread out this delightful old-fashioned picnic on a blanket in the park, or right on your own backyard picnic table and serve with frosty glasses of iced tea or lemonade and butter cookies.

- ALL AMERICAN SANDWICHES
1 envelope, 1 1/2 oz., cheese sauce mix
1 cup milk
1 cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons prepared yellow mustard
2 cups sliced cooked turkey
1 cup cooked sliced ham
1 cup finely chopped walnuts

- 1 cup chopped green pepper
6-8 crusty rolls, split
1 sliced tomato, broccoli florets, or cucumber
Prepare cheese sauce with milk; stir in mayonnaise, mustard, turkey, ham, walnuts and green pepper. Chill well. Spread on rolls and garnish with tomato, broccoli, or cucumber. (Makes 6 to 8 servings.)

- KALEIDOSCOPE NIBBLES
1 cup confectioners sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
1/2 teaspoon paprika
pinch salt
1/4 cup oil
6 cups cut-up fresh fruit
Combine sugar, lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce, ginger, paprika and salt in small bowl. Gradually add oil, beating briskly with fork or whisk until slightly thickened. Pour over fruit; toss and chill. Serve with wooden picks as hors d'oeuvres or as a fruit salad. (Makes 6 to 8 servings.)

Earl had good idea

By CHARLENE NEVADA
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

The Earl of Sandwich, his contribution to society notwithstanding, was hardly a fish fellow.

This 18th century English leader was a gambler, rather despised by his countrymen and generally regarded by most of the English people as immoral.

But because of the earl's immorality — specifically his gambling — we have his namesake, the sandwich. The earl, it seems, had a penchant for all-night poker games.

And, like poker players of today, he often got the humpies while playing with his fortune.

But he hated to spend the time eating with a fork. And he found greasy playing cards equally unacceptable.

So, one day he ordered a servant to bring his roast meat between two slices of bread.

The word quickly spread.

Today, sandwiches are an integral part of America. They go into factory lunch boxes and onto banquet tables. They go to picnics and parties.

We take for granted that something as simple as a filling between two pieces of bread ever had to be invented.

Actually, the Earl of Sandwich gets a little more credit than he deserves.

Some histories trace the sandwich back to 37 B.C. when a famous rabbi started a Passover custom of sandwiching a mixture of chopped nuts, apples and spices between two pieces of matzo.

It wasn't until the Earl of Sandwich, however, that everyone caught on to the idea of putting meat between bread.

For 20th-century folks, though, it is Dagwood Bumstead — more than the earl — who comes to mind when one thinks of sandwiches.

The lovable, but simple Blondie comic strip, first appeared in 1930. Six years later, Blondie's husband Dagwood started to raid the refrigerator at night — and make mile-high sandwiches.

The Dagwood sandwich was born.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING
PHONE 733-0931

Soon "Dagwoods" were synonymous with big, anything-goes sandwiches.

Dagwood and his sandwiches became so popular that today there are even Dagwood-sandwich watchers, according to Ted Hanna, a spokesman for King Features, which owns the rights to the comic strip.

There is no particular recipe for Dagwood sandwiches, explains Hanna. "It's just whatever is in the refrigerator."

With one exception. Real Dagwoods should have a fish tail — specifically a sardine tail — hanging out from between the two pieces of bread, according to Hanna.

But now and again, Dagwood has appeared in his strip eating a sandwich without any fish tail.

The people at King Features heard about it.

"The sandwich-watchers wrote in to ask, 'Where is the fish?'" says Hanna. Most Americans, however, aren't that devoted to Dagwood's antics. They would, rather, eat sandwiches than look at pictures of them.

Over the years, some classic sandwiches have emerged: The Reuben, the B.T. Bacon, lettuce, tomato, the club, the hamburger, the cheeseburger and the gyro.

But almost anything can go into a sandwich. If you'd like to try some different ones, here are two suggestions.

- GUACAMOLE STEAKBURGERS
1 small ripe avocado
2 tablespoons minced onion

- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
4 beef cube steaks
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
4 hamburger buns
1 large tomato, cut in four slices
Salt
Cut avocado in half. Peel pit and mash in a small bowl. Stir in onion, lemon juice and one-fourth teaspoon salt.

Sprinkle lightly with salt. Spread avocado mixture on slices of buns. Top bottom halves with a steak, then a slice of tomato and a slice of onion.

PIZZA MUFFINS
1 1/2-cup can tomato sauce
mushrooms
1/4 tsp. dried oregano, crushed
1/4 tsp. dried basil, crushed
2 hot dogs, sliced into thin rounds
4 slices mozzarella cheese
Preheat oven to 400 degrees.

Split muffins. Place halves, cut sides up, in a single layer in a large, shallow baking pan.

Mix tomato sauce, oregano and basil in a small bowl. Spread about one tablespoon of the mixture over each muffin half. Arrange hot dog slices over four of the halves. Put the cheese slices over the other four halves.

Bake 15 minutes or until the cheese melts. Match each cheese half with a hot dog half, making a sandwich.

Celebrate July 4 with bang

Turkey easy to barbecue over grill

CHICAGO — If you want a Fourth of July meal that the whole family will get a bang out of, barbecue a turkey, suggests American cookery expert Judith Bell.

"Turkey automatically makes an occasion special," Mrs. Bell notes, "and it's one of the most fuss-free meats to cook on the grill. Best of all is the impressive sight at big, juicy, golden bird makes as it emerges from under the grill cover."

Backyard cooks sometimes feel a bit apprehensive about barbecuing a whole turkey on the grill.

Mrs. Bell has compiled this list of turkey grilling questions.

Q. What size turkey is best for cooking on an outdoor grill?

A. If you're expecting a large crowd and have plenty of time of cooking, a full size turkey, 19 to 24 pounds, is best. However, for most occasions the ideal bird is a small turkey, 4 to 10 pounds. When purchasing, allow 1 1/2 per pounds per person, an amount that will provide generous servings plus tasty leftovers. Be careful, though, that the turkey you choose will fit under the grill cover with air space above it for good heat circulation.

Q. What type of barbecue grill should I use to cook a turkey?

A. There are many kinds of outdoor grills. For best results in cooking a turkey, choose a grill with a cover or one with a partial cover. A charcoal covered-kettle or wagon grill, an electric or gas grill, an electric or gas grill with a full cover, a charcoal, gas or electric rotisserie all work well.

Q. How should a covered grill be prepared for barbecuing a turkey?

A. A charcoal grill should be prepared for "indirect" cooking. To do this open all dampers on the grill and leave open during cooking.

Place a drip pan on the bottom rack of the grill or on one side of the firebox. Place 25 to 30 briquets on one side. Ignite the charcoal.

For an electric or gas grill, follow the manufacturer's directions for setting up the grill. Set the control to maintain a temperature of 300° to 350° F.

Q. What is a drip pan? Must I buy one or can I make one?

A. A drip pan is a foil pan placed beneath the turkey to catch drippings. This arrangement prevents drippings from falling onto hot coals and causing excessive smoking or flareups. You can purchase a disposable drip pan or make one by folding a double or triple thickness of heavy duty foil into a pan approximately the length and width of the turkey and 1 1/2 to 2 inches deep.

Q. How can I tell when the grill is ready for cooking?

A. Charcoal briquets should burn for 15 to 20 minutes or until covered with gray ash. The coals will glow with an even red color and smokeless heat.

Q. Should I thaw the turkey before barbecuing?

A. Yes. For best results, completely thaw before barbecuing.

The easiest way to place the turkey in its original wrapper on a tray in the refrigerator. Approximate thawing times are printed on the turkey wrapper or in the instruction folder that come with most turkeys. A 20 pound turkey needs 1 1/2 to 2 days to completely defrost.

For faster thawing immerse the turkey in its wrapper in cool water for 3 to 4 hours. Change the water often so it remains cool. Remember the basics of food safety — never thaw a turkey at room temperature.

Q. How should I prepare the turkey for the grill?

A. Exactly as you would if you were going to roast it in your oven: Remove the thawed turkey from the bag. Free the legs and tail from the tucked position. Remove the neck and giblet packages. Drain the turkey. Do not stuff. Return tail and legs to tucked position. Fold the neck skin back and hold in position by folding the wings back "akimbo" style.

Insert a meat thermometer into the thickest part of the thigh next to the body, not touching bone. Brush the skin with melted shortening, oil or butter to keep it from cracking.

Position the top rack on the grill with handle holes placed over the coals so you can easily add more briquets later. Place the turkey on the top rack directly over the drip pan.

Judith Bell, Swift Co. consultant, gives turkey barbecue tips

For electric or gas grills, place the prepared turkey in a shallow foil-lined pan with a rack and put the pan on the grill rack.

Close the grill lid. For charcoal grills, add 5 to 6 briquets to each side of the fire every hour to maintain the cooking temperature.

Q. Should I stuff a turkey I plan to barbecue?

A. Home economists do not recommend stuffing a turkey you cook on a covered grill. The stuffing will take on a smoky flavor that most people do not like in dressing. You may, however, cook your favorite dressing in a foil pouch alongside the turkey. Place the pouch on the grill during the last hour of roasting.

Q. How can I tell when the turkey is done?

A. With a small turkey, start checking for doneness after the first 1 1/2 to 2 hours. For a 10 to 16 pound turkey, 2 to 3 hours; for a 17 to 24 pound turkey, 3 to 4 hours.

With a full size turkey of about 19 to 24 pounds, the cooking time will be approximately 3 to 4 hours.

When the breast is golden brown, you may want to cover that area loosely with lightweight foil. Check for doneness about 30 to 45 minutes before it is expected to be finished.

— Thigh temperature should be 180° to 185° F.

— Protecting fingers with paper towel or a cloth, press thighs and drumsticks. Meat should feel soft.

— When the skin is picked on thigh, juices run clear, not pink.

Q. Can I use barbecue sauce on my turkey?

A. Yes, but wait to brush with sauce until the last half hour of cooking. Often these sauces contain sugar which will burn if used earlier.

Blueberries tasty treat

By ROBERT W. STRUBE
Chicago Sun-Times

I'm just wild about berries, especially blueberries.

Until about 25 years ago, however, blueberries were not cultivated commercially. A New Jersey woman named Elizabeth White deserves most of the credit for "taming" the wild blueberry.

Every year she used to offer prizes for the largest blueberries. An Agriculture Department botanist got interested in her efforts and started cross-breeding the winners. The result was the superior cultivated berry that we know today.

Your mouth will water when you see these extra-big blueberries in supermarket bins. Peak months for production are July and August, with the later blueberry varieties arriving from Michigan and New Jersey.

Here's a great recipe using fresh blueberries that you can make all year.

Fresh Blueberry Refrigerator Cake

1/2 cup fresh orange juice
1/2 cup hot water
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
1/2 cup plus 1 tablespoon sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup fresh blueberries, plus extra for garnish
2 egg whites, beaten
1 cup whipping cream, whipped and folded

ladyfingers
1 tablespoon sugar
Softened gelatin in orange juice. Stir in hot water. Add lemon juice, 1/2 cup sugar and salt. Wash and crush 1 cup blueberries and add to mixture. Chill until mixture begins to thicken. Fold in beaten egg whites, along with 1/2 cup cream. Line bottom and sides of 8-inch springform pan with ladyfingers. Pour in half the mixture and cover with layer of ladyfingers. Repeat, using remaining blueberry mixture and ladyfingers. Chill until firm and ready to serve. Garnish as desired with cream, sweetened with 1 tablespoon sugar. Top with blueberries. Makes about 8 servings.

Frozen Nectarine Custard, using nectarine puree, skins and all, has rich fruit flavor

Fresh nectarines give flavor

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Searching for the successor to frozen yogurt? Try Frozen Nectarine Custard, a cold and creamy dessert easily prepared in an ice cream freezer or a refrigerator freezer.

Fresh nectarine puree, skins and all give this custard its rich fruit flavor and rosy color. Though it's delicious in a bowl or on a cone, try serving Frozen Nectarine Custard on sliced fresh nectarines with thin, crisp chocolate cookies.

Fresh nectarines are available into October and are still a number of varieties from which to choose. The constant development of new varieties assures consumers of a steady supply of larger, more flavorful nectarines each year. Nectarine research and variety development also address the age-old ripening issue and contrary to what you may have heard, some farmers are experimenting by leaving new nectarine varieties on their trees longer.

Nectarines do ripen beautifully off the tree. Unlike citrus fruit, nectarines emit a ripening hormone called ethylene. If you place a group of nectarines in a ripening bowl or loosely closed bag at room temperature, within hours the ethylene gas will begin to do its magic. A few days later the nectarines will have turned slightly soft to the touch and fragrant.

FROZEN NECTARINE CUSTARD

4 large egg yolks
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon vanilla

1/4 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 teaspoon salt
3 fresh nectarines
1 cup whipping cream
Beat egg yolks until light. Gradually beat in sugar, continuing to beat until light colored, thick and fluffy. Stir in vanilla, nutmeg and salt. Pit and dice nectarines; puree in food processor or blender to measure 2 cups. Stir into egg yolk mixt: "e along with cream. Pour into can of hand-turned or electric ice cream freezer. Freeze, using 8 parts crushed ice to 1 part rock salt or according to manufacturer's directions. Freeze until crank becomes difficult to turn or electric freezer appears too slow. Remove dasher. Pour off water from freezer turn and repack using 4 parts ice to 1 of salt. If ice cream is to be held longer than a few hours, turn into loaf pan and store in freezing compartment of refrigerator. Makes 3 1/2 cups ice cream.

Refrigerator Freezer Method: Prepare mixture for ice cream as above; re-servicing whipping cream. Turn mixture into 9-inch square pan and place in freezer until frozen firm. When mixture is frozen beat cream to soft peaks and set aside. Break frozen mixture into small chunks and turn into large chilled bowl. Beat with rotary beater until smooth and fluffy. Quickly fold in whipped cream and return to freezer until firm. Makes 5 cups.

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago you published something that helped me tremendously when I learned that I had cancer. Please, please run it again. It's advice to patients on how to live with a terminal illness.

I showed it to my doctor, and he thought so much of it, he had copies run off to give to some of his patients. Thank you.

— D.J. IN IOWA

DEAR D.J.: It's "How to Live With Illness" by Orville Kelly:

1. Talk about the illness. If it's cancer, call it cancer. You can't make life normal again by trying to hide what is wrong.
2. Accept death as a part of life. It is!

3. Consider each day as another day of life, a gift from God to be enjoyed as fully as possible.

4. Realize that life is never going to be perfect. It wasn't before, and it won't be now.

5. Pray! It isn't a sign of weakness, it's a sign of strength.

6. Learn to live with your illness instead of considering yourself dying from it. We are all dying in some manner.

7. Put your friends and relatives at ease. If you don't want pity, don't ask for it.

8. Make all practical arrangements for funerals, wills, etc., and make certain your family understands them.

9. Set new goals, realize your limitations. Sometimes the simple things of life become the most enjoyable.

10. Discuss your problems with your family. Include the children if possible. After all, your problem is not an individual one.

Have a good day ... make it count.

DEAR ABBY: I am a nice-looking, 28-year-old divorced woman. I have no trouble getting dates, but my problem is that every man I date runs to the nearest exit when I tell him I have three kids.

I do not hide the fact that I have three children. My oldest is 9 and my youngest is 2. They are well-behaved and well-mannered and I am not ashamed of them. In fact, I am proud of them.

The last four men I dated seemed interested in me — until I told them I had three children. After that I never heard from them again. I haven't dated anyone in nine months because I don't want to be hurt again.

— NOT-DATING

DEAR NOT-DATING: Look into Parents Without Partners. You will meet other single parents who also love their children. Don't waste your time worrying about those who ran for the nearest exit when they learned you had three kids. Too bad they weren't aware that some of the best deals are "package deals." It's their loss.

CONFIDENTIAL TO CHARLIE IN WILMINGTON, DEL.: Samuel Johnson said, "Every animal revenges his pains upon those who happen to be near." Man is no exception.

Library gets 5,000 coupons in community experiment

By MARTIN SLOANE
United Feature Syndicate

Rhoda Orenstein tells me that the idea for a coupon exchange came from one of her library's patrons. "We started the exchange box as an experiment two years ago," says Ms. Orenstein, who is the head of community services at the Plainview-Bethpage Library in Plainview, N.Y. "We put a notice in the library bulletin that we were collecting coupons, and soon we had lots of people dropping their extra coupons into a big cardboard carton."

"We watched it very carefully, and when we saw that an average of 10 people were using it each day, we decided to keep it."

Supermarket Shopper

"It started out as one big carton. But soon it was full of coupons, and it was difficult to find the ones we needed," says Susan Figart, who was one of the first to use the exchange. "One day we found a sign attached to the carton asking for volunteers to help file the coupons by product groups, and I was one of eight people who signed up. She helped to organize the coupons into 10 file folders according to product categories. Soon these, too, were bulging and required a further division. Today the library's "collection" includes more than 5,000 coupons. They are arranged in more than 100 product files and neatly stored in a two-drawer file cabinet. There is even a file folder for refund forms!

Lola Gehman told me that she tries to go through the files at least once a week. Mrs. Figart says that she visits the exchange as often as three times a week.

With all this traffic, you might expect that the coupon files are filled with everyone's rejects. In fact, they are. But, as Frieda Himmel told me, "The coupons one person throws into the exchange box are precisely the

Library gets 5,000 coupons in community experiment

By MARTIN SLOANE
United Feature Syndicate

Rhoda Orenstein tells me that the idea for a coupon exchange came from one of her library's patrons. "We started the exchange box as an experiment two years ago," says Ms. Orenstein, who is the head of community services at the Plainview-Bethpage Library in Plainview, N.Y. "We put a notice in the library bulletin that we were collecting coupons, and soon we had lots of people dropping their extra coupons into a big cardboard carton."

"We watched it very carefully, and when we saw that an average of 10 people were using it each day, we decided to keep it."

Supermarket Shopper.

"It started out as one big carton. But soon it was full of coupons, and it was difficult to find the ones we needed," says Susan Elgart, who was one of the first to use the exchange. "One day we found a sign attached to the carton asking for volunteers to help file the coupons by product groups, and I was one of eight people who signed up." She helped to organize the coupons into 10 file folders according to product categories. Soon these, too, were bulging and required a further division.

Today the library's "collection" includes more than 5,000 coupons. They are arranged in more than 100 product files and neatly stored in a two-drawer file cabinet. There is even a file folder for refund forms!

Lois Gehman told me that she tries to go through the files at least once a week. Mrs. Elgart says that she visits the exchange as often as three times a week.

With all this traffic, you might expect that the coupon files are filled with everyone's rejects. In fact, they are. But, as Frieda Himmel told me, "The coupons one person throws into the exchange box are precisely the ones that another person can use." (Coupons given to the exchange are initially placed in a large carton and later filed by volunteers.)

"I have even found orange juice coupons in the exchange," says Ms. Gehman. And Mrs. Elgart says that she has often found the tuna and disposable diaper coupons that she needs.

Which coupons are in short supply? "Surprisingly, the coupons for hair spray, shampoo and toothpaste seem to be in greatest demand," says Mrs. Elgart.

Has the popularity of the coupon exchange caused any problems for the library? "Not really," says Ms. Orenstein. "When we first started it, a few of our members came in together and

Salads, simple or compound

NEW YORK — The famed "King of Cooks" Auguste Escoffier wrote, "Salads are of two kinds: simple or compound."

"Simple, or raw salads, always accompany hot roasts; compound salads, which generally consist of cooked vegetables, accompany cold roasts." That was a hundred ago. He further counseled his readers not to mold compound salads but instead to arrange seasoned vegetables of various colors in a pyramid for simple service and maximum eye appeal.

Little did Escoffier dream that salads would expand their role in the diet from a light, stimulating accompaniment to become a satisfying main course.

Before World War I people enjoyed over indulging in the culinary delights set before them. Nowadays they check nutritional values, count calories and balk at spending much time in the kitchen. Our life style has changed dramatically from previous generations but Escoffier's ideas about salads are still in vogue.

Picture a main course salad that combines both raw and cooked vegetables with some protein sources such as cooked shellfish, chicken, dry sausage and rice. Then marry those flavors together with a marinade of Roquefort cheese and herbs. Choose a colorful, nutritious array of ingredients and you'll win applause for creating a simple, but elegant, salad.

ROQUEFORT COMPOSITION

Rice: Measure out enough raw rice to yield 1 1/2 to 2 cups cooked rice per serving. Most rice packages have easy to follow directions for preparing perfect rice. Some people prefer the oven method of cooking rice over the top-of-the-range method in order to avoid gumminess. While the cooked rice is warm pour over the Roquefort Vinaigrette.

Roquefort Vinaigrette: Measure out three parts of oil to one part of wine vinegar and one part of Roquefort cheese that has been brought to room temperature and crumbled. Use half olive oil and half vegetable oil, if desired. Combine in a mixer or blender until smooth. Season with salt, pepper and finely chopped fresh chives, tarragon, parsley, chervil and shallots. If fresh herbs aren't available, dried herbs may be substituted. Set the rice aside to marinate while preparing the other ingredients.

Vegetables: The vegetables may be raw or blanched. Look for contrasting colors and textures in some of these suggestions: corn, sliced white, green, or red onions, zucchini, red or green pepper, tomatoes, avocados, mushrooms, broccoli, cauliflower, asparagus, stuffed green olives, black olives, artichoke hearts, beans, beets, Brussels sprouts, carrots, celery, cucumbers, hearts of palm, summer squash, plums.

If you use canned or freshly cooked beet slices be sure to soak them in running cold water until the water is no longer discolored. Otherwise the rice will have maroon spots where the beet slices are placed. Dip avocados in lemon juice.

Fruits: Fresh or canned pineapple, Mandarin orange slices or any other fruit that blends with the vegetables.

Pulp increased

HOUSTON (UPI) — A Houston packer of frozen orange juice concentrate has reformulated the product to increase its orange pulp content — in response to consumer demand. Recent studies indicate many consumers prefer the high pulp content because they think it is closer in texture to fresh-squeezed juice. The Minute Maid division of The Coca-Cola Co. will continue to market the regular frozen concentrate as well. The version with added pulp is currently available in major cities in the East and Midwest, representing more than 35 percent of the United States.

Composition Salad is marriage of rice marinated in Roquefort Vinaigrette and vegetables can be used.

Protein Sources: Hard boiled egg slices, cooked shellfish, thin cubes of dry sausage, ham or roast beef and thin cubes of chicken, turkey and duck are all acceptable choices.

Roquefort Cream Dressing: Blend together three parts of fresh light cream with 1 part of wine vinegar in a mixer or blender. Add enough hard cooked egg yolks mashed through a sieve and crumbled Roquefort cheese until the mixture reaches the desired thickness. Season with salt, pepper and some dry mustard. Pour into a creamer or other suitable serving piece. The egg whites can be cut into slivers and added to the salad.

Composing the Salad: Either arrange the various ingredients in groups of five or six pieces or alternate single pieces of everything paying attention to contrast in texture and color. Place some rice on top of the first layer of ingredients one inch in from the edge of the platter just like you would layer a wedding cake. Follow the same layout of ingredients as you did for the first layer. Move in two inches from the edge to make the third layer. Garnish appropriately with pimiento, olives and parsley.

To serve, spoon some of the salad onto a dinner plate lined with shredded lettuce.
Top with Roquefort Cream Dressing.

MACARONI AND CHEESE DISH

- 2 cups uncooked macaroni
- 1 cup cheddar cheese
- 2 cups left-over meat, cut in small pieces
- 1 cup of cut-up onions
- 1/2 cup of sliced fresh mushrooms

salt and pepper to taste
Cook macaroni and drain off most of the water. Add meat, onion, mushrooms and cheese. Heat together for one minute.

This dish can be prepared the day before you plan to use it; do not add cheese until it is time to heat it just before the meal.

EAST HANOVER, N.J. — You'll enjoy picnics when your picnic basket contains wonderful new taste treats. Give new flavor with these Picnic Pleasers — a cool Vegetable-Bean Salad and Pimiento Deviled Eggs.

Vegetable-Bean Salad is a make-ahead marinated salad which eliminates last-minute preparation. Garbanzo beans (chickpeas), sliced pimientos, fresh vegetables and spices are marinated in a lemon-oil marinade at least six hours and preferably overnight.

It's truly a salad of flavor and flair — of contrasting colors and texture, hearty and satisfying, the perfect picnic take-along.

A second Picnic-Pleaser is Pimiento Deviled Eggs, traditional deviled eggs with a new twist — the colorful addition of diced pimientos. They're not only extra pretty to look at, they have the delicate flavor of pimientos for that special something not usually found in ordinary deviled eggs.

So, pack a picnic basket with Picnic Pleasers and don't forget a loaf of crusty bread and a bottle of your favorite wine. Then go. Go to a delightful green meadow. Go to a tasty warm beach.

Go to a favorite park and set up your picnic under the shade of the biggest tree you can find. The important thing is to go and enjoy your Picnic Pleasers.

VEGETABLE-BEAN SALAD

- 1 (16-ounce) can garbanzo beans, drained and patted dry
- 1 (4-ounce) jar sliced pimientos, drained
- 1½ cups seeded and coarsely chopped cucumber
- 1 cup thinly sliced carrots
- ½ cup chopped parsley
- ½ cup thinly sliced scallions
- 1 tablespoon snipped fresh dill or 1 teaspoon dried dillweed
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
- ½ cup lemon juice
- ¼ cup vegetable oil
- Lettuce leaves

In large bowl, combine garbanzo beans, sliced pimientos, cucumber, carrots, parsley, scallions, dill, salt and pepper; set aside.

In small bowl, combine lemon juice and oil; beat until well combined. Pour over vegetable mixture; stir gently to coat thoroughly. Cover with plastic wrap and chill 6 hours or overnight.

To serve, place lettuce leaves on individual serving plates. Spoon Vegetable-Bean Salad mixture onto lettuce; serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

PIMIENTO DEVILED EGGS

- 6 hard-cooked eggs, shelled, halved lengthwise
 - ¼ cup finely chopped celery
 - 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
 - ¼ cup mayonnaise
 - ¼ teaspoon salt
 - 1 (2-ounce) jar diced pimientos, drained
- Using small spoon, carefully remove egg yolks and place in small bowl; set egg whites aside.
- Add celery, onion, salt and mayonnaise. Using electric mixer at medium speed, blend well. Stir in all but 1½ teaspoons diced pimientos.
- Using small spoon, fill egg white halves with yolk mixture. Garnish with reserved pimientos. Makes 6 servings.

Retardation from hunger reversible

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — Cornell University scientists are challenging the view that mental retardation induced by hunger in children is permanent.

Studies led by David Levitsky, an associate professor of nutritional sciences and psychology, indicate the damage can be reversed by an adequate diet.

Levitsky reported on his findings at a recent meeting in Baltimore of the Eastern Psychological Association. They contradict the long-held belief that mental retardation is caused by permanent brain changes resulting from long periods of poor or inadequate nutrition.

"These changes do not seem critical for intellectual development," Levitsky says. He says the main cause of poor intellectual growth in malnourished children is inhibition of their curiosity to learn — combined with lack of a stimulating environment to foster learning.

He bases his view on 14 years of research, most of it at Cornell. He says he and his co-researcher, Barbara J. Strupp, found "retarded" animals were fully capable of learning even very difficult tasks when such learning was essential for their safety and survival.

French breweries out to change their image

Chicago Tribune

When most of us think of French imports, we are likely to think of fine wines, haute couture or even perfume. But beer? Hardly — how unchic.

Well, a few French breweries are out to change that, as well as their country's image as being too high-brow to be the home of a good brew.

According to Marketing News, French beer soon will be moving into the United States market in a big way. Kronenbourg has been in this country for two years, mostly on the East Coast, and is planning to move its operations west this year. Other brands, such as Pelforth, George Killiney, Meteor, Ackerland and La Belle Strasbourgeoise, all are planning to step up their export efforts.

One of the advantages of French beer, they say, is the wide variety. There's Adelscoit, a whisky malt beer with a "smoked" flavor; Panach, a mixture of beer and a carbonated lemon-flavored drink popular in France, and several nonalcoholic beers that are targeted at Moslems, European teetotalers and diet-conscious Americans.

There's only one problem if they try introducing it in ethnic restaurants the way importers of Mexican and Chinese beers have done: Would anyone have the courage to look a French waiter in the eye and order a mug of beer?
