

Weidenbaum: Forecasts off-target?

By JEROME R. WATSON
Chicago Sun-Times

WASHINGTON — Murray I. Weidenbaum, who is quitting as chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisors, acknowledged Friday that he feels the Reagan administration is overly optimistic about the likely strength of the recovery from the current recession.

Weidenbaum insisted during a meeting with a group of reporters that he is not resigning in frustration or over policy disagreements, and said he still believes in Reaganomics. Nonetheless, he came across in the interview as someone trying — but not quite succeeding — in the role of a loyal soldier.

He said he had accepted an offer to serve part time on the president's Economic Policy Review Board.

Weidenbaum said he is confident about the ultimate success of Reaganomics, which he described as based on the four pillars of tax cuts, spending cuts, regulatory relief and monetary restraint. He opened his remarks to reporters by describing himself as feeling somewhat like Moses, who led his people to the borders of the Promised Land, but didn't quite get there himself. "I do feel recovery is in sight," he said, adding that he is as enthusiastic as ever about Reagan's policies.

But in response to questions about his success in selling his viewpoints within the White House, Weidenbaum used cautious, hedged language. Asked for example whether he had been influential, he said, "I've had ample opportunity to present my advice orally and in writing." Did the president follow it, he was asked? "I think he gave it considerable weight," Weidenbaum said. But why, it was asked, was he leaving? "I'm leaving," he answered noncommittally, "because I think I've had ample opportunity to make my contribution to economic policy."

Weidenbaum said he told Reagan last week of his decision to return to Washington University in St. Louis, and the president disclosed the resignation in casual conversation during his visit to St. Louis Thursday, possibly intending to downplay its significance.

The resignation comes only a few days before the scheduled issuance by the White House of a midyear economic review that is based on outdated assumptions and will therefore minimize — in this period running up to the fall elections — the projected deficit for fiscal year 1983.

Weidenbaum said his resignation was not related to any disagreement over handling of the midyear review. But when asked whether he could endorse the forthcoming review, Weidenbaum said, "It's not the most likely forecast I'd be likely to make," and added that his own view about economic recovery was more "cautious."

When a reporter asked again whether the report was more optimistic than Weidenbaum thought it should be, he said, "If you want to think that, I wouldn't argue with you."

The usual practice in drawing up a midyear economic review is to base it on updated assumptions about government income and spending, but the '82 review will be based on assumptions that undergirded the budget resolution passed in the spring. Since then, the recovery outlook has become more gloomy,

Forced home sales

Foreclosure rate climbing in area

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Home foreclosures in the Magic Valley have been climbing for about two years, yet they have not reached alarming levels, say people in the real-estate industry.

The number of home foreclosures was small to start with. Even after large percentage increases, the numbers still are relatively small, they say.

From the time a person falls behind in his mortgage payments, several months usually pass before a lender starts foreclosure proceedings. And from that point, several more months pass before a person would lose his home at a trustee's sale.

"Actually going to the mat and selling still isn't that frequent," says Ralph Smith, the manager of the Safeco Title Insurance Co. office in Twin Falls.

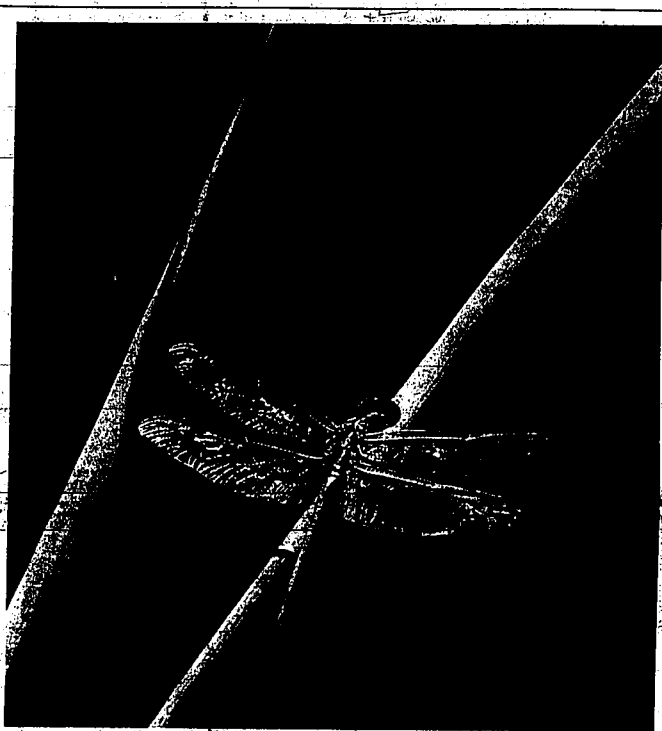

Also, people losing homes through foreclosure are generally not losing homes they have lived in for many years or homes where they have thousands of dollars in equity from years of mortgage payments, Smith says.

Depression-era memories of people losing homes of 20 years after falling just a few months behind in payments are not likely to be repeated, he says.

"I'm mindful of the depression-type thing, when we'd be selling at a real steal. We haven't reached that point," Smith says.

The homes sold at foreclosure sales are rarely bargains. If the house is worth more than the debts against it, most people will sell the house, pay their debts and avert the property loss from a foreclosure auction.

Senate tax bill hiked to House

By JEROME CAHILL
New York Daily News

WASHINGTON — In a marathon session that ended an hour before dawn, the Senate Friday approved the largest tax bill in peacetime history — a $98 billion package that would hit virtually every American in the pocketbook.

The bill now goes to the House where the Democrats are in control and are anxious to preserve the measure's made-in-the-Republican-Senate label. One strategy under consideration is simply to go to conference with the Senate and work out differences there, and not draft any rival House bill.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan told reporters he hoped the House "will come up with a bill along the lines of the Senate bill and do it quickly in the interest of fiscal responsibility."

Before winding up 20 hours of non-stop deliberations, however, the Senate dropped a plan to sock tip income of waiters — a proviso heatedly opposed by the restaurant industry — and added a surprise attack on the three-martini lunch.

The bill preserved tax-exempt state and local bonds from the grasp of Uncle Sam, as the Senate rejected a proposal to subject these holdings to a special tax on wealthy individuals.

By and large, however, the bill closely followed the recommendations of the Republican-controlled Senate Finance Committee, which recommended the $98 billion in savings and $17.5 billion in economies in Medicare, Medicaid and welfare programs under terms of a binding budget resolution aimed at closing future budget deficits.

Most of the revenue would come from business, which would lose about a third of the tax breaks industry won in last year's tax-reduction bill, and from "wealthy" individuals, main targets of stiff compliance language aimed at fattening the federal Treasury by $20 billion over three years.

But ordinary taxpayers — the little guy frequently referred to during the debate by Senate Democrats who opposed the package — will feel the bite in a number of ways:

• The eight-cent-a-pack cigarette tax would be doubled to 16 cents.

• The telephone tax would rise from the current 1 percent to 2 percent next year and to 3 percent in 1984 before dropping back to 2 percent in 1986 and thereafter.

• Airline ticket and travel taxes would also be increased.

• Families would not be able to claim deductions for medical expenses until they exceed 7 percent of income, compared with the 3 percent deduction in present law.

• Home casualty losses cannot be claimed unless they exceed 10 percent of income.

One of the most controversial features of the bill would withhold for tax purposes 10 percent of dividend and interest income, except for taxpayers with $100 less of such income a year. Banks and thrift institutions' heatedly opposed this section but failed in a 50 to 47 vote to knock it out of the bill. It would raise $12 billion over three years.

The section on tip income, designed to correct a long-standing under-reporting of such income, was repealed on a vote of 70 to 25. To make up for revenue lost by this action, the Senate then voted 57 to 40 to cut in half the business tax deduction now allowed for in-town business lunches and entertainment — the three martini lunch that has been a tax reform target for years.

U.S. may have given up direct negotiations with PLO

From Times-News wire services

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration apparently has put aside any prospect of direct dealings with the Palestine Liberation Organization until the Lebanese problem can be solved with evacuated PLO guerrillas and foreign military forces, authorities said Friday.

With a critical week of negotiations ahead, the administration is concentrating on getting several Arab countries to accept parts of the 15,000-to-70,000-member PLO force that would leave West Beirut.

The next stage of the plan, under exploration with Arab states, and Israel, would call for the removal of Israeli and Syrian forces from Lebanon and also the evacuation of remaining PLO elements in other parts of the country — Tripoli in the north and the Bekaa Valley in the east.

In response to reports of backstage moves involving the PLO, the State Department repeated Friday its position that the United States would not deal with the organization unless it recognizes Israel's right to exist and accepts pertinent United Nations resolutions.

The Associated Press, quoting a prominent Lebanese in Washington, said negotiations for establishing direct contact between the Reagan administration and the PLO had broken down. The reason, according to this report, was that Israel did not now want ties with the PLO, whose forces it has bottled up in West Beirut.

The report, which brought various denials from the White House, State Department and Israeli officials, indicated the extreme sensitivity of the negotiations regarding Lebanon.

A well-informed American source said the administration had considered whether there was some way of phrasing a statement under which the PLO would express recognition of Israel. This would presumably have opened the door to U.S. dealing with the PLO.

The conclusion, this source said, was that all energies must first be concentrated on getting the PLO out of West Beirut.

The source emphasized the recent statements by President Reagan and Secretary of State George P. Shultz on the urgency of solving the Palestinian problem. He said, however, that it was concluded the door could not at this crucial juncture be left open for talks with the PLO.

U.S. Mideast envoy Philip C. Habib has had to deal with the PLO through intermediaries in his efforts to reach a settlement in Lebanon.

Meanwhile, the Israeli government Friday insisted the continued attacks on Palestinian positions in West Beirut do not represent a decision to abandon the negotiating process to get the Palestine Liberation Organization out of Beirut.

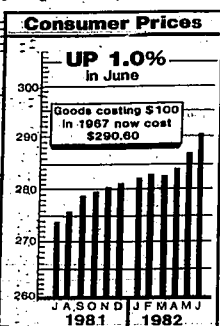

Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir said that the intensified bombardment of West Beirut should not be viewed as a sign that Israel has given up on negotiating. "We have never weakened our pressure. We will continue our pressure until they are evacuated," he said.

"We did not bomb Beirut," he added. "We bombed selected targets."

And as if to mollify concern in Washington that the Israelis have severely jeopardized the negotiating process, Shamir said, "Mr. Habib's mission has not failed. The Americans are still convinced that there is a good chance for these negotiations to produce results. Our assessments may differ, but there is no need as yet to take extreme measures."

More bad news: Consumer Price Index jumps 1%

By DONALD H. MAY
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Consumer prices jumped a full 1 percent for the second straight month in June, paced by housing and gasoline costs, the government reported Friday.

The Labor Department report said the increases amounted to a compound annual inflation rate of 13.3 percent in June and 12 percent in May. (The difference is due to rounding.)

Despite these two bad months, officials still believe the trend of inflation is moderating.

Murray Weidenbaum, the outgoing chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors, told reporters Friday he expects it to average about 6 percent for this year as a whole.

Weidenbaum — whose pending departure was let slip by President Reagan in St. Louis Thursday night — also told reporters he is leaving to get back into teaching, and not out of any dissatisfaction with Regan's economic program.

A sharp increase in gasoline costs — 5.4 percent — on a monthly basis alone — accounted for much of the June increase in retail prices.

Gasoline prices had been falling earlier in the year, then rose 0.9 percent in May.

Government analysts said this apparently results from the fact that a much publicized recent oil surplus "appears to be gone." But some of them said the effect of this on gasoline prices may largely have been felt already, barring a larger Middle East conflict, they believe gasoline prices may stabilize.

Housing pushed overall prices up because of a 2.3 percent rise in house prices in June, which was partially offset by a 0.8 percent decline in mortgage interest rates.

Food prices rose more modestly. Grocery store prices were up 0.6 percent in June, largely due to increases in meats, poultry, fish, eggs, fresh fruit and vegetables.

The Consumer Price Index stood at 290.6 in June, which means a bundle of goods that cost $100 in 1967 were up to $290.60 in June.

The Labor Department also reported that average weekly earnings for blue collar workers — after inflation is taken into account — fell 1.2

percent from May to June.

In the past year, average weekly earnings have increased 4.6 percent. But adjusted for inflation to reflect their actual buying power, they have declined 2.1 percent, the Labor Department said.

The inflation rate has gradually declined from 13.3 percent in 1979. Early this year, it was down to a few tenths of a percent per month. In March, the index registered a decline in prices.

Labor Department analyst Patrick Jackman said the true inflation trend is somewhere between the recent extremes.

For the first half of this year as a whole, prices are up 5.1 percent. Jackman's own estimates by many private economists of 6 to 7 percent inflation for this year as a whole are "on track."

Home fuel prices increased 1 percent in June. That included a 1.2 percent rise in natural gas prices, which have risen at an annual rate of 25.5 percent over the past six months.

Electricity prices rose 0.6 percent in June. Home fuel oil rose 0.1 percent.

Medical care rose 2.9 percent, about the same as recent months.

Today's briefing

Commission bans killing of whales

BRIGHTON, England (UPI) — The International Whaling Commission voted Friday to impose a worldwide ban on the killing of whales, ending an 11-year struggle by the United States and other nations opposed to the commercial hunting of the mammals.

The decision by the 35-nation commission set up a schedule to gradually phase-out commercial whaling by 1985.

Immediately after the vote was announced, several hundred anti-whaling demonstrators standing outside the sea-front hotel where the commission was meeting erupted in an uproar of cheering, singing, whistling and horn blowing.

But Japan's delegate to the commission, Kuno Yonezawa, bitterly opposed the ban which said was "clearly in violation" of the 1946 International

Whaling Convention.

Hinting Japan might quit the commission and continue to kill whales, Yonezawa said: "Should the proposal for a total moratorium lead to the eventual collapse of the IWC, the possibility should not be attached to my government."

"It should be beyond doubt that the right of member governments in the convention cannot be abrogated or denied by a vote of the IWC," Yonezawa said.

Yonezawa was 25 to 7 with 5 abstentions, over the three-fourths majority required. The resolution provided for a review of the ban by 1990 at the latest.

Conservationists contend that whales face extinction because of commercial killing.

The seven who voted to were: Brazil, Iceland, Japan, South Korea, Norway, Peru, and the Soviet Union.

Torrential floods, landslides kill at least 84 in Japan

TOKYO (UPI) — Torrential rains sent walls of water through southern Japan Friday, flooding cities, destroying buildings and unleashing landslides. At least 84 people were killed and more than 265 were reported missing.

Some of the worst damage was in the city of Nagasaki, where a river, being devastated by a U.S. atomic bomb in 1945, shifted its course and rose to head-high and streets were turned into rivers, witnesses said.

"Yesterday it was a prosperous town and today the place looks like a huge garbage can," said one Nagasaki resident.

By midday Saturday, 84 persons were confirmed dead, with 265 missing.

Authorities said 131 of the missing were believed buried alive when flooding and mudslides unleashed by torrential rains dumped massive flows of mud on their homes on the southern Japanese island of Kyushu.

An army of some 3,800 rescue workers dug frantically through the mud and rubble but rain continued to fall, hampering their efforts, police said. A record 18 inches of rain lashed the southern portion of the island of Kyushu for seven hours, sending rivers up over their banks and washing out roads and bridges.

"Rains were cascading down like a waterfall," a television reporter said.

Another witness said "some people who tried to escape by car had to abandon their vehicles because their cars were almost floating."

The downpour was so intense in Nagasaki that a stone bridge that withstood the forces of nature for 300 years gave way, its stone surface peeled off by rushing water. The rainfall caused overflowing of the Nakajima and Urakami rivers in Nagasaki.

2 escapees arrested in Twin Falls

TWIN FALLS — Two state penitentiary escapees were arrested Friday in Twin Falls, and city police are looking for a third man who escaped Friday.

Police Chief Tim Qualls said that Edwin Lee Driscoll, 36, and Michael Edwin Harrison, 27, were arrested in the 1300 block of Blue Lakes Boulevard North at about 9 p.m. The two men apparently had just arrived in Twin Falls after hitchhiking from Mountain Home, he said.

The escapees, who were making a call at a telephone booth, were spotted and identified by patrolling police officers, Qualls said.

Earlier, Friday, Robert Gene Clayton, who was serving 14 years for forgery, burglary and escape out of Jerome, Twin Falls and Ada counties, became the 10th inmate to escape from the penitentiary since November. Such losses could drastically reduce Reagan's influence in Congress next year, wiping out the narrow governing majority he enjoyed in 1981.

Democrats, in addition to capitalizing on high deficits, interest rates, and unemployment, also hope this fall to benefit from the huge, $99 billion GOP-sponsored tax increase now making its way through Congress. Some Reagan loyalists fear that the tax measure, a group of specific increases, not only will hurt the party politically but will undercut the recovery efforts of last year's three-year, across-the-board tax cuts.

Although Reagan's job rating in the polls has held steady recently, and even inched up a bit, some White House officials acknowledge that the president's popularity could dip significantly if the public loses patience with Reaganomics and begins to reject the president's argument that the Democrats are to blame for all the nation's economic woes.

The Weidenbaum realization, listed in a series by Reagan economic aides, also comes at a time when various administration officials have been admitting that the immediate recovery will be weaker than originally has been expected, and that real recovery may not occur for some time.

At a meeting with reporters earlier this week, Reagan's communications director, David Gergen, said the situation is "a process of recovery, not recovery itself," and added that "I'm not sure anybody knows the answer to when interest rates will come down."

Gergen conceded that if interest rates "hang up there" even after Congress acts on the pending tax increase and appropriations bills, then a re-evaluation of the administration's monetary policy might be undertaken, though not necessarily this year.

Although Weidenbaum expressed concern chiefly about deficits and their relation to high interest rates, some critics of Reaganomics, including some Reagan loyalists, maintain that recovery is being hampered by internal contradictions in the recovery program. They say the massive tax cuts, which tend to stimulate the economy, are limited in their effects by a tight money policy that has reduced inflation but tends to be anti-expansionary.

Weidenbaum

meaning, for one thing, that deficits will be bigger than had been hoped."

In a series of retreats, the administration has steadily lifted its estimate of deficit for 1983 from just over $40 billion to more than $100 billion, and yet another major retreat is possible — though not until after the election.

In a parallel series of retreats, Reagan has repeatedly postponed the expected date of full recovery.

Weidenbaum is known to be deeply alarmed at the size of the projected deficits, and is reported to be favoring deeper defense spending cuts as one way of reducing them. He told reporters that the deficits are holding up interest rates, and that high interest rates are hurting the recovery.

There also have been reports that Weidenbaum disagreed with the composition of the tax-increase package consented to by the president earlier this year.

Whatever disillusionment Weidenbaum may have felt as CEA chairman, his resignation spotlights a deepening alarm and growing debate within the administration over the failure of Reaganomics to work so far

Homes

Thus, most foreclosures do not end in a trustee's sale, but the percentage has grown.

Today, there is almost an even chance a foreclosure will end in such a forced sale, says Richard L. Allen, vice president of Title Fax, a Twin Falls title insurance company.

"This week, we were scheduled to have three foreclosures. In one instance, the default was cured. The other two sales were held," he says.

"In the old days — and by that I mean about five years ago — when foreclosures began, there was a 90 percent chance that the sale would not be held," he says.

Nonetheless, the number of homes lost through foreclosure remains fairly small. At First Federal Savings and Loan, the number of foreclosures is about twice as high as last year, says Rick Allen, the savings and loan's senior vice president.

People have visions of First Federal owning tracts of foreclosed houses it cannot sell, Allen says. But that vision is far from the truth.

"We only own two — one in Pocatello and one in Jerome."

Jeff Harris, the manager of the Twin Falls branch of United First Federal Savings and Loan, says he has noticed a small increase in mortgage delinquencies but almost no change in foreclosures.

While current foreclosure activity is causing little panic, the president of the Twin Falls Board of Realtors sees a big threat for the near future.

The threat is balloon payments, says real-estate broker John Altman, and they could send foreclosures soaring.

During the past three years of high interest rates, real-estate agents have relied on "creative financing" to sell many homes.

In most cases, creative financing means a home owner agrees to wait several years before making full payment for his house. He is paid interest on this deferred payment, which is considered a loan to the buyer. After a time set in the sales contract, the original owner receives a lump sum to pay off this private loan. A typical balloon payment will be several thousand dollars, and a normal wait before the balloon comes due is three to five years, Altman says. Thus, many are about to come due.

Yet if interest rates remain high, many buyers will not be able to afford to borrow money to make that balloon payment, Altman says. That will leave the original owner with no choice except to start a foreclosure, he says.

Watt letter causes stir

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Interior Secretary James Watt wrote Israeli Ambassador Moshe Arens last month that American support for Israel could be jeopardized unless Jews in this country support the Reagan administration's energy policies. It was reported Friday.

Watt's June 17 letter was disavowed by the White House.

"Secretary Watt's unofficial letter to Ambassador Arens represents his own personal views," said Assistant White House press secretary Anson Franklin. "The White House regards his remarks as unfortunate."

The Washington Post reported in today's editions that the letter was written after a personal conversation between Watt and Arens at a Bonds for Israel dinner at the Washington Hilton, according to an Israeli Embassy official.

The letter warned that unless the United States reduces its reliance on foreign energy sources "there is great risk that in future years America will be prevented from being the strong protector and friend of Israel that we are and want to be."

GSA chief quizzed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chief of the General Services Administration says he met with a lawyer for the Marriott Corp., a major Republican campaign contributor, before ordering the quick sale of a valuable federal property for use by the hotel chain.

GSA Administrator Gerald Carmen Friday revised an earlier statement that letters from the attorney and Marriott vice president Fred Malek were his only contacts with the firm regarding his approval in November 1981 of the sale to the city of San Francisco.

Carmen, a key figure in President Reagan's 1980 campaign, strongly denied politics motivated his decision, which overturned recommendations of five levels of GSA officials.

First Haitians released

MIAMI (UPI) — Relatives leaped onto the sides of the white church bus as it rolled past the gray gates at sunset, screaming tearfully over the 15 Haitian men who softly sang "Jesus, How Can We Thank You."

Father Tom Wenaki of the Haitian Catholic Center beamed at the wheel as he pulled over for the crowd of 50 friends, relatives and reporters waiting Friday to greet some of the first of more than 2,000 Haitians to be released after more than a year in detention camps.

Their release had been ordered nearly a month before by a federal judge.

The release brought to 17 the number of Haitians freed Friday from the Krome Avenue detention center near Miami — but nearly 300 remained behind the fence.

"I am very happy today, I have been here a long time," said Francis Didier, 24, as he hugged his cousin, who had waited outside the gates for him. "Everyone inside feels good. They know it's all over now," he said, unable to stop smiling.

Two other Haitian men had been released earlier in the day, cheered by a handful of waiting Haitians who waved garlands of yellow wild-flowers.

Today's weather

Evening thunderstorms possible

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert, Jerome-Gooding areas:

Variable clouds today with a chance of afternoon evening thunderstorms. Lows mostly 50s, highs mid 80s. Sunday mostly fair and even warmer.

Camas-Pringle, Halley, Wood River valleys:

Today and Sunday will be partly cloudy with gusty winds. Highs mostly 80s and lows upper 40s to low 50s.

Northern Nevada and Utah:

Most states call for scattered thunderstorms in the afternoon and evening today and again Sunday.

Synopsis:

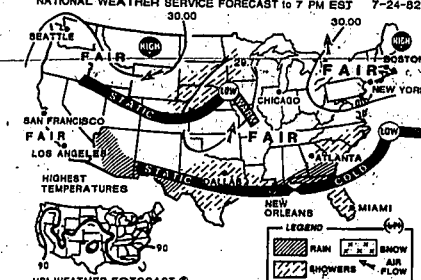

The pattern aloft consists of stationary high pressure over eastern Colorado and a weak trough of low pressure on the Pacific Coast. A southwest flow through the western states is bringing subropical moisture into Idaho. The division between the cool dry air to the northwest and warm moist air to the southeast is fairly abrupt. The line extends from Missouri to San Francisco.

North and west of this dividing line, satellite pictures show skies to be cloudless. Thunderstorms developed in eastern Nevada and southeast Idaho Friday afternoon.

Mained had 4.0 in of rain.

Clear skies and slightly below normal temperatures made Friday a really pleasant day in northern Idaho. But temperatures in the mid 80s with fairly high humidity along with partly cloudy skies made the weather less enjoyable in southeast Idaho.

NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE FORECAST FOR 7 PM EST 7-24-82

UPI WEATHER FORECAST ©

The upper level trough of low pressure will shift very slowly eastward through the weekend exposing a greater area of western Idaho to fair weather.

Conditions for fieldwork, including the cutting and curing of hay, will be good through Wednesday. Plant growth and irrigation demand will be increasing over the weekend as temperatures warm to near normal.

Spraying conditions should be good today with winds 5 to 10 mph.

An evaporation rate will be .29 of an inch both today and Sunday.

Pollen count for Friday in Twin Falls was 28 particles per cubic meter of air.

The extended forecast Monday through Wednesday calls for possible afternoon and evening thunderstorms over the mountains of southern Idaho. Otherwise, dry weather with near normal temperatures.

High for the state Friday was Hagerman with 91 degrees, while Elk City had the low of 32 degrees.

Elsewhere in the nation, Lake Havasu City and Bullhead City, both in Arizona, recorded 113 for the highest temperature, and Cutbank and Kalispell, both in Montana, had the low of 37.

Iraq may be turning tide in Gulf conflict

By SAJJID RIZVI
United Press International

Iranian artillery shelled the Iraqi oil fields on Friday but Iraq said the forces had all but crushed an 11-day-old invasion and were pursuing fleeing Iranian troops back to the border.

Iran countered with claims that its invasion force launched guerrilla-style attacks that broke through Iraqi lines and killed or wounded 60 Iraqi troops.

An Iraqi military communique said Iraqi helicopter gunships inflicted "direct hits" on Iranian troop concentrations east of Basra and within 3 miles of the Shatt al-Arab waterway, the disputed border.

Iraqi troops killed a total of 2,328 Iranians and wounded or captured "large numbers" in a three-day-old counter-attack, the communique said. Iraq did not specifically say that it had cleared its territory of all Iranian forces, but an earlier military communique said the Iraqis were in full control in the battle zone.

In Washington, U.S. intelligence sources said the Iraqis allowed an Iranian force, estimated at 20,000 troops to march 10 miles into Iraqi territory Thursday before attacking from the flanks and driving the Iraqis back to the border.

The intelligence sources said that since launching its invasion July 13, the 100,000-man Iranian force had been unable to hold more than a bow-shaped line about 3 miles inside Iraqi territory.

The latest Iraqi communique said Iranian shelling killed three residents of Basra and wrecked residential areas in the town of Khaneqin. Iran said Iraqi artillery fire killed a resident and wounded 10 others in its oil city of Abadan.

The fighting on the 11th day of Iran's massive invasion of Iraq came as both nations were celebrating the end — of the Muslim holiday of Ramadan.

A top Iranian official, meanwhile, said the Iran-Iraq war was a threat to the security of United States and the Soviet Union, but was no cause for fear among neighboring nations in the Persian Gulf.

"With the entry of (Iran's) Islamic forces into Iraq, all relative superpowers are crying out that the security of the region is in peril," said Ayatollah "Abdolkarim" Mousavi Ardebili, the head of Iran's supreme court.

"It is as if Iran does not want security," Ardebili said. "It is the security of the United States, and the superpower hegemonies, that are in danger."

Ardebili's remarks coincided with assurances by other Iranian leaders that the Islamic republic sought no territorial gains in Iraq — only the downfall of Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein.

"We announce that if the Iraqi nation arrests (Hussein), we would welcome the Muslim nation of Iraq with open arms," Ardebili said in a speech broadcast by Tehran Radio and monitored in London.

Ardebili said Iran "considered the conflict 'a war of Islam on infidels.'"

Iranian President Sayed Ali Khamenei said Thursday Iran had no "expansionist intentions when we entered Iraq's territory and we will never have such intentions."

"The only way open for us is to put out the enemy (Iraqi) artillery or push it back so much that it cannot hit our cities. This is essential for the Islamic Republic," Khamenei said at a Tehran ceremony.

An estimated 100,000 Iranians invaded Iraq July 13 in revenge for Iraq's invasion of Iran at the beginning of the 22-month-old Gulf war.

Iran was apparently confident it could follow up its spectacular recapture of Khorramshahr from Iraq with a successful campaign on Iraq's own soil.

Air security criticized by hijacked passenger

MIAMI (UPI) — Two hysterical Latin women hijacked an Air Florida flight to Havana "were acting strange" and should have been jabbied by security before they struck, a passenger complained Friday.

"Somebody screwed up," said Michael Munroe, 36, one of the seven passengers aboard the Thursday evening flight that originally was bound from Miami to Key West.

The hijacked plane was owned by Marco Island Airways but leased by Air Florida for the flight to Key West. In addition to the seven passengers, it was manned by a crew of three.

The hijackers, yelling "Cuba! Cuba!" and shouting gasoline around the plane, struck about 26 minutes after the plane lifted off from Miami at 6 p.m. MDT, Munroe said.

The two guys were acting strange the whole trip.

"He (a hijacker) poured gasoline all over me. I mean he saturated me," Munroe said. "I was nervous. Oh yeah! They had a lighter clicking behind me."

One hijacker was described as over 6-feet tall with long, brown hair, and the other about 5-foot, 11-inches and balding. Both were about 40-years-old and spoke little English.

Once the plane reached Havana, Cuban police coaxed the two hijackers for five minutes before they would leave the plane, and when they did, they were promptly arrested.

"They had the gasoline in a plastic rubbing alcohol bottle," said Wilton Merry, a spokesman for the FBI in Miami. "You can walk through with something under a bulky jacket on and it doesn't show."

Cuban authorities immediately released the aircraft and when the passengers finally arrived in Key West early Friday, they were tired but in good spirits. "I'm real glad to be home. This is my first visit to Key West," said passenger Miriam Goldfarb of Washington, D.C.

Some of the passengers disembarked wearing white T-shirts emblazoned with "Cuba," in blue letters. Others carried Cuban cigars and rum.

Chrysler sales up; others dip

DETROIT (UPI) — Newly profitable Chrysler Corp. said Friday its sales were up in the middle of July, but the other four American automakers reported sales drops that triggered the worst daily selling rate since 1968.

Separately, the United Auto Workers wound up the first week of bargaining at the No. 3 automaker by asking for a national pool of laid off workers that would be drawn from to fill jobs that open up at any Chrysler plant. Currently, workers are hired in each area where jobs are available.

The five U.S. automakers said they sold 132,538 cars in the July 11-20 period, a drop of 17.9 percent from last year's 161,345. The daily selling rate of 46,567 cars was the worst in 24 years.

"There was a slight glimmer of hope, however, because the annual selling rate — a figure used by automakers to chart their performance in each reporting period — was 5.6 million cars."

This is the highest since the first 10 days of June when the annual rate was 6.2 million. The rate has stood below 5 million cars in the last three reporting periods.

"Mid-July sales while still low have shown considerable improvement since mid-June," said one analyst.

But that's about it.

Sales for the automakers so far in July are down 17.2 percent. Sales for 1982 trail 1981 by 11.6 percent.

Chrysler sold 18,696 domestically produced cars in the middle of July, a jump of 4.6 percent from 17,839 sold last year. The automaker reported a second quarter profit of $106.9 million on Monday, its second straight quarterly haul, and the company said buyers were influenced by the optimistic report.

"Good news sells cars for us," said a Chrysler spokesman. "If people think we're gonna make it, they go out there and buy our cars."

Car prices hold steady

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. announced Friday it will only raise prices minimally on autos purchased by fleet buyers, a strong indication all Big Three automakers will hold the line on new car prices.

Analysts say automakers rarely digress from fleet prices in setting retail prices.

The action by Ford, which comes a few weeks after similar actions by General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Corp., likely will mean retail buyers can expect the same small increases or none when they enter showrooms this fall.

Ford has notified dealers that fleet prices on subcompact Escort and Lynx and compact Fairmont and Zephyr models will be no higher than the current base price of 1982 models. Fairmont, a popular fleet car, currently costs $8,383.

Jail death report criticized

BOISE (UPI) — A Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor attacked Friday the attorney general's investigation into the torture-slaying of a 17-year-old youth at the Ada County jail, questioning the inquiry's objectivity because of involvement by three fellow Republicans.

State Sen. Mitchell, Lewiston, the Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, said his opponent in that race — GOP Attorney General David Leroy — never should have agreed to conduct the inquiry into the death of Christopher Peterman because he is too close a friend and political ally to Ada County judges and prosecutors.

The Democrat called on Leroy to issue a statement supporting either a grand jury investigation into the slaying — or to turn over the remaining questions about the case to an independent prosecutor — to lead objectivity to the inquiry.

"I think the temptation to do this investigation himself and gain the media attention it would attract may have clouded him (Leroy) to what was really wanted from that office," Mitchell said.

A Democratic candidate for Ada County prosecutor, meanwhile Friday, called the county's jail a "fire-breathing dragon" where conditions led to the torture-murder of the 17-year-old traffic offender — and could lead to injuries for any citizen jailed for a minor offense.

"It could happen to me, it could happen to you," Brock Selinger said at a Boise news conference held in a parking lot amid the opening of the Streets for People festival. "It could happen to anyone jailed for a minor traffic offense."

Comments from Mitchell and Selinger came in the wake of the release of an attorney general's report into the slaying Peterman, who died as the result of a beating while he was jailed on a contempt charge for failure to pay $73 in traffic fines. Four fellow juvenile inmates have been charged with first-degree murder in the death and face the death penalty "if convicted."

Leroy, however, said the report had been "widely praised" since its release on Wednesday.

"Our statement of problems (at the jail) and specific recommendations, if followed, would greatly reduce the likelihood that anything like this tragedy could ever happen again," Leroy said. "The report was designed to encourage positive public dialog that would lead to swiftly accomplished changes."

"Allegations of the type offered by my political opponent on my professional work do not contribute to that dialog in a meaningful way," Mitchell said.

Mitchell said the report mentioned that the cell Peterman shared with the other juveniles was checked nine times in 14 hours and none of the guards noticed anything unusual. But, he said, the report did not address the question of what constitutes a "check."

He said jail rules also require officials to take steps to ensure the safety of juvenile prisoners — but no where did the report explain what procedures or policies have been established at the jail to protect inmates and comply with those rules.

"Some of the problem has to be a need for adequate procedures in that jail, and I don't see how you can avoid pointing the finger at the sheriff," Mitchell added. "He is the employer."

HBO, Showtime censored in Utah

OGDEN, Utah (UPI) — Community Cable TV of Utah Friday chopped three national cable movie channels from its circuits in the suburb of Roy, saying it couldn't comply with the anti-obscenity language in a local licensing ordinance.

CCTV General Manager Dave Cox said he was eliminating Showtime, Spotlight and HBO — subscription channels in Roy. He said about 1,400 homes had subscribed to the one or more of the three services.

Cox said he considered the licensing ordinance unconstitutional because it would "ban most of the academy award winning movies produced in the past eight years."

Cox said he would have to edit many of the films shown on the three channels to comply with the law. But he said his contract with the entertainment services prevented him from cutting the movies.

"So we have no choice but to quit offering the services basically because a very small group of people who want their own way," he said.

"It's ironic," he added, "that of the 2,800 homes where cable tv is available in Roy, 50 percent have voluntarily subscribed to at least one of the pay services."

In place of the movies, Cox said, the cable company would broadcast a written message explaining why the channels had been eliminated.

The Roy City Council adopted a licensing ordinance in April that was similar in wording to a statewide cable tv regulation law that was rejected by the Utah Legislature earlier this year. That bill was similar to a law that was struck down by the federal courts last year.

A coalition of anti-obscenity groups is currently pushing a new version of the proposed cable tv law which has been named the "Child Protection Act."

Cox said the Roy ordinance was an attempt to pass the Child Protection Act on a local level.

"It's wholly unconstitutional," Cox said. "It would ban such movies as the Godfather, Annie Hall and Private Benjamin."

"These movie channels do not show anything that can be defined as criminal under the pornography statutes," he added. "We do not show pornography."

Cox added that his company offers a key lock device so parents can lock up the cable channels if they don't want their children to view a specific movie.

The cable-company manager said the firm would watch public reaction to elimination of the channels over the weekend and announce on Monday if it planned additional action. He said the company was studying a possible suit to challenge the law.

CCTV's action came one day after the Deseret News revealed the results of a statewide poll in which 61 percent of the people interviewed said they did not think the Legislature should interfere with cable television programming.

Arco blaze contained

Fires scorch West

By United Press International

Fires raged in Idaho, Utah, Nevada and California Friday, as management firefighters Friday night contained a blaze that had burned more than 650 acres of range near Arco, crew dispatchers said.

Some of the estimated 100 firefighters from the BLM and the Targhee, Caribou and Challis national forests who had been assigned to the fire were sent home after officials declared the blaze contained after 6 p.m., according to dispatchers at the Idaho Falls headquarters office of the BLM.

The Anderson Canyon fire, which was burning about seven miles north of Arco, was expected to be brought fully under control by this evening.

Investigators said they believed the fire was man-caused, but a probe was continuing.

Two large range blazes were declared under control late Thursday, officials said. One blackened about 2,000 acres 12 miles east of Minidoka and the other charred some 1,500 acres two miles north of Hammett in the Boise BLM district.

In Utah, firefighters extinguished a 12,000-acre lightning-caused blaze on Antelope Island State Park in the Great Salt Lake at 6 p.m. Friday.

The flames charred nearly half of the 27,000-acre island which was recently purchased as parkland. The burning June grass sent a cloud of smoke drifting into Salt Lake City 20 miles southeast of the island.

Interagency Fire Center spokesman Martha Burridge said 55 state, local and federal firefighters completed a six-mile fire line north of the fire, and succeeded in burning the portion left between the north line and the fire itself.

Afternoon winds threatened to whip up the flames that had been pretty much contained by noon, but the winds were accompanied by rain showers.

About 40 transplanted buffalo and the deer on the island were not endangered by the fire, added Burridge. She said the animals have survived several fires in the past, as the fast-moving flames leave behind enough foliage for the animals to feed.

In Nevada, some 500 firefighters were reported "making progress" Friday in containing a mountain brush and timber fire that has blackened 9,500 acres in the Spring Mountain Range.

Firefighters began battling the blaze Wednesday as flames, fed by tinder-dry brush and pine, quickly spread during the first day-from an initial 100 acres to 6,000 acres, about 50 miles west of Las Vegas. The spread was slowed Thursday and Friday as firefighters were aided by lower temperatures and increased humidity.

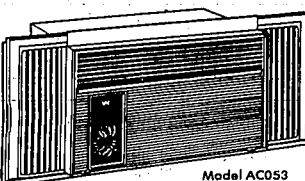

Bureau of Land Management officials said Friday they had no estimate when the blaze would be contained. The fire is the worst in southern Nevada since flames destroyed more than 6,000 acres of timber in Cold Creek Canyon about 45 miles northwest of Las Vegas last year.

"We are making progress," said BLM spokesman Ed Gilbert. He said BLM fire officials had determined the fire was "man-caused" by eliminating any possible natural causes.

What's what

Cooks of every civilized nation have their own versions of that filled pastry heretofore called the "turnover." In China, egg rolls. In the Soviet Union, pirozhki. In Spanish America, empanadas. In France, chaussons. What are they called in the language of your ancestors?

Among juvenile delinquents, teenage girls get tougher sentences than teenage boys. Girls average 10.7 months, boys 8.2 months. Nothing in the record at hand explains the why of this.

Casanova, the world's most renowned lover, noted in his memoirs that he was impotent before age 50.

BEAR TEETH

Q. You said grizzly bear teeth were far more valuable than even big pearls. Why?

A. Hold on, I said early American Indians prized grizzly bear teeth more than they prized pearls, and their reason was understandable: It is a whole lot easier to open an oyster to extract a pearl than it is to . . . you get it.

Q. What's the most nutritious food in the world?

A. Blood.

Q. Why do men grow beards?

A. Let me turn your query inside out, young lady. Instead, ask: "Why do men shave?" Among the most famous of bearded men was George Bernard Shaw, who noted: "I remember standing at (my father's) side, when I was 5, while he was shaving for the last time. 'Father,' I asked, 'Why do you shave?' He stood there for a full minute and finally looked down at me. 'Why the hell do I?' he said."

HENPECKED

That a third of the husbands are henpecked was just reported. Unmentioned was the fact that many of these browbeaten fellows like to be nagged. Or so contend researchers for the American Institute of Family Relations. Some men, evidently, get edgy, if their wives don't tell them what to do. They crave domination to satisfy insecurity. Our Love and War man is not wholly convinced the matter is worth analysis.

The all-time greatest escape artist, Harry Houdini, is listed in the record books, too, as the first person to fly an airplane in Australia.

Edgar Rice Burroughs, creator of "Tarzan," never went to Africa.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you will want to be assured by others that you are making gains in your line of endeavor. A good time to engage in favorite hobbies with congenials. Be more optimistic.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Take care of chores which you've put off during busy work week. Showing more devotion to loved one is important now.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) Spend the daytime with persons you most enjoy and have a delightful time. Study a new outlet that could be profitable later.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get busy on the phone and improve your line with others. Go to the right sources for the information you need.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A time to take advantage of new opportunities coming your way. Show others you are a practical person.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Ideal day to take health treatments and improve your appearance. Try not to be extravagant in the evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21) Study new ways that could give you added income in the future. Allow time to engage in pleasurable activities.

LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 21) Make your plans for the day's activities and carry them through with a steady hand. Your ideas and aims to loved one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 22 to Nov. 21) Ideal day to handle civic affairs you have let slide. You are thinking cleverly now and can easily gain your wishes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Engaging in a new outlet can be interesting and profitable at this time. Make the acquaintance of influential persons.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 21) Go to a trusted friend for the advice and information you need. Use only your mature judgment now since your intuition is off.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 22 to Feb. 19) Study career activities and make plans for advancement. Strive for better relationships with family members.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study your surroundings and make needed repairs to your property. Criticizing others is not advised at this time.

IF YOUR CHILD WAS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those delightful young persons with personal confidence, so be sure to encourage this in order to bring out the fine potentials in this chart. The business field is particularly good and success is assured.

Meese's son killed in accident

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Presidential counselor Edwin Meese's 19-year-old son was killed during the night when his car swerved off a highway and crashed into a tree.

Scott Meese lost control of the compact car on a curve along the George Washington Parkway near the Washington suburb of McLean, Va., said police officer John Nawrot. It skidded more than 300 feet over a grassy median and struck a tree.

Police pulled the youth from the wreckage before it burst into flames.

"Police units could find no sign of life in the victim," Nawrot said. A passing physician, who stopped to offer help, confirmed that Meese had been killed on impact.

"Nancy and I are shocked and deeply saddened," President Reagan said in a statement. "Our hearts go out to Ed and Ursula, who with their family, are close and dear friends of ours."

Investigators believe the car was traveling at a high rate-of-speed but found no evidence that alcohol was involved in the accident, said police spokesman Robert Stratton.

The accident happened at 11:50 p.m. Thursday as Meese was returning to his parents' home in McLean across the Potomac River from the nation's capital. He was alone in the car.

"The youth, a sophomore at Princeton University, was spending the summer working as a student intern with the Republican Senate Policy Committee on Capitol Hill."

The youth's father, a longtime aide to Reagan, learned of the accident while in Northern California for a meeting of the Bohemian Club.

Vic Morrow dies in grisly helicopter crash

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Veteran actor Vic Morrow was killed Friday in a freak helicopter crash along with two child-actors—possibly working illegally—during the filming of a movie based on "The Twilight Zone" TV show.

Morrow, 50, who gained fame in the 1960s as an infantryman in the World War II TV series "Combat," and Reese Shinn Chena, 6, and Myca Dinh Lee, 7, were cut down by the rotor blades of a crashing chartered Bell 205 military-type helicopter in a scene depicting a Vietnam War aerial attack.

Six people aboard the helicopter were slightly injured.

Witnesses said Morrow, with the children in his arms, was running across open ground mined with explosive charges to simulate machinegun fire when clods of dirt and rocks flew into the helicopter blades, disabling it.

More than a hundred movie extras and production assistants making the film based on the old television series watched in horror as the chopper plummeted and caught Morrow and the children in the main rotor blade. The chopper crashed into a river bed.

The Steven Spielberg production was being filmed at 3:30 a.m. MDT in rural Indian Dunes Park, about 30 miles northwest of Los Angeles near the community of Saugus and Six Flags Magic Mountain amusement park.

Francis Bacon, a senior deputy labor commissioner in the State Department of Industrial Relations, told UPI that two investigators were en route to the scene. He said the child actors were probably working illegally when the accident occurred.

Bacon said state labor law permits child actors under the age of 16, but "not at those hours."

Director John Landis, who directed "Animal House," and was reported in shock. Five members of the Warner Bros. crew and pilot Doremy Wingo, 35, were slightly injured in the crash and were treated and released from a nearby hospital.

Morrow, who co-starred with Rick Jason in "Combat" from 1962-67 was a veteran of more than a dozen movies and scores of television shows.

Idaho Power cancels plan for Dike Dam

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

GLENN'S FERRY — A brighter energy outlook means Idaho Power Co. will not build a controversial dam on the Snake River near Glenn's Ferry, a company spokesman said Friday.

"We've decided to give up seeking a license for the Dike (Dam) site," said Larry Taylor, a spokesman for the utility.

The company faces an Aug. 1 deadline to apply for a federal license to construct Dike Dam. A preliminary permit granted in July 1979 to conduct studies of the project expires then.

Taylor said the utility decided not to apply for the construction permit because the 70-megawatt power plant, which was projected to begin operation in June 1991, will not be needed. Idaho Power has lowered projections of its power needs and raised projections of the amount of power that will be available from other sources, Taylor said.

"A regional energy surplus has opened more options to the company. At least that's the way things appear now," he said. "Out of all the projects we have on the drawing board, this appears the most expensive and the least likely to be licensed."

Dike Dam was one of five proposals for hydropower development in the Snake River that critics charged would eliminate the last stretches of free-flowing water in the river's Magic Valley reaches.

The several miles of the Snake River that would be backed up behind Dike Dam support an active white sturgeon population, studies have shown. But the fish died rapidly moving water to thrive.

The proposed 70-foot dam also would have flooded some archaeological sites near the river. Detailed studies of these sites would have been required before the dam could be built — and Idaho Power would have had to pay for them. Company officials have estimated that such studies would cost Idaho Power about $400,000, Taylor said. If those studies led to significant discoveries, several times that much would have had to be spent recovering the artifacts — another cost the utility would have had to bear.

"The dam was one of a trio of proposals pursued by Idaho Power. The company's other proposals — the 86-megawatt A.J. Wiley Dam near Bliss and a 10-megawatt facility at Kanaka Rapids near Buhl, are not affected by the Dike Dam decision, Taylor said.

Current company forecasts, which Taylor said will be updated soon, call for producing power at Wiley and Kanaka Rapids in 1988 and 1989.

Cogenerated power rate review sought

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

BOISE — The state Public Utilities Commission will be asked to review small-power contracts in light of poor performance from the system's first private cogeneration plant, an Idaho Power official said Thursday.

Idaho Power and the PUC have battled before over the cost of "cogenerated" power. The utility is required by law and PUC regulations to purchase power from small thermal and hydroelectric power generators at a cost equivalent to what the utility would save by not building a coal-fired plant to generate the equivalent amount of electricity. That "avoided cost" currently is 6.7 cents per kilowatt-hour.

David Meyers, Idaho Power's manager of environmental affairs, says the Mud Creek plant near Buhl is producing only a fourth of its expected output the first five months of operation.

Because a portion of the cogeneration contract between the plant and Idaho Power is devoted to payments based on plant capacity, power from the project costs the company's ratepayers upward of 24 cents a kilowatt-hour, Meyers says.

The cogeneration contract with Daniel Skeem of Buhl calls for production from the Mud Creek plant of 3.5 million kilowatt-hours of electricity, Meyers says, but the plant has produced only 261,771 kilowatt-hours in its first five months of operation.

Water-flow figures, presented when the application was filed, show that the highest flows occur in August, September and October, he says. But the pro-rated figure for June still shows the plant at only half of expected production.

"We're not in a position to say all of these types of plants will start out this poorly, or that this one won't eventually live up to its contract," Meyers says. "But we felt this was a significant enough departure to bring it to the attention of the commission."

Overpayments to the plant have cost ratepayers many thousands of dollars, he says.

Wayne Skeem of Twin Falls, who developed the project along with his son, said Thursday that design problems kept the plant from performing up to expectations initially. New turbine blades had to be ordered and did not arrive for several months.

In addition, the Twin Falls Canal Co. did not turn water into its irrigation canals until about a month later than normal, Skeem says. Mud Creek flows from underground springs that are recharged by irrigation water.

Performance of the plant has improved steadily, he says. So far in July, power from the project is costing about 8 cents a kilowatt-hour, compared to the contracted 6-cent rate.

When the plant exceeds capacity, the producer will receive only about 1.64 cents a kilowatt-hour for the surplus power, he says.

"We are confident we are not going to be a burden to the taxpayers in any way, shape or form," Skeem says.

"On the last half of this year, when flows are higher, we should be able to produce at about 6 cents a kilowatt-hour," he says.

The learning experience has been costly for the developers and the turbine supplier as well, Skeem says. But he says he is confident the plant will repay any power deficit in two or three years, he says.

Meyers says that no other small hydro plants have been on the Idaho Power system long enough to provide a comparison.

The utility also has been gathering figures that indicate the cost of new power is less than reflected in the small-power rate schedule, he says. The figures will be presented to the PUC later this summer.

License limit

New ruling changes residency qualifications for driver's license

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — Effective this week, driver's license examiners throughout the state will no longer require 90 days residency before issuing an Idaho driver's license.

The Idaho Transportation Department has altered its residency policy as the result of several inquiries about the requirement from around the state, according to Jane Caviness, the manager of the driver's licensing bureau. The state bureau sets policy for all county driver's licensing offices.

However, the change in policy came a month too late for a drivers-education class planned for migrant students in Cassia County. The class was scrubbed because the migrant students did not meet the residency requirement and could not obtain learner's permits, said Sherry Klep, the director of the Summer Migrant Teen Program, which was offering the course.

Last month, her office requested that a Transportation Department attorney interpret the law defining residency as it related to driver's licenses, Caviness said. The law is used by her office to make policy for licensing examiners.

Under the attorney's interpretation, the definition of Idaho residency "is not a requirement to reside in the state for 90 days" before a license can be obtained, she said.

Under a previous definition, a person had to live in the state for 90 continuous days, or be "genuinely employed." Two years ago, the Legislature eliminated the gainful-employment clause, effective last summer.

In the last year, counties have questioned the 90-day residency requirement, including Cassia County, Caviness said. Not only migrants, but out-of-state and foreign students, minors and transients were affected by the residency requirement, she said.

"We didn't have any guidelines to go by. It was an interpretation problem."

All-county licensing examiners have been notified of the new policy, which is effective immediately, Caviness said.

Karma Jones, who is in charge of the Cassia County licensing office, said the whole incident concerning the migrant education class was blown out of proportion.

"I don't feel I was doing anything wrong. I was just following procedure at the time," she said.

Klep could not be reached for comment about the new policy. Earlier, she had said her group hoped to offer driver's education next year in the migrant program.

Twin Falls Sheriff Jim Munn said he foresees no problems with the new policy, but he said that in the past, the Twin Falls office had had no problems with the old residency requirement.

Non-residents seeking a driver's license must still show proof of age and a resident address, Caviness said. Those rules already are in the law.

CSI courses offer pragmatic job skills

By GLEN WARCHOL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho will offer a new program this fall that combines alternate-energy technology with a good dose of job-market pragmatism.

The two-year program will train technician-level professionals in four areas of the growing alternate-energy industry. But it will ground the students in the established areas of heating, air conditioning and sewage maintenance, to help ensure that the graduates get jobs in a competitive market.

Dave Makings, the coordinator of the program, says the heart of the course is a core of math, science and computer training. With a year of those basics in hand, the student will move on, into one of four areas of energy technology.

Initially, Makings says, the solar heating and air-conditioning technology part of the program will be emphasized. Its basic academic, science and design curriculum will be combined with conventional training in heating and air conditioning that's already offered at CSI.

That combination of solar-energy training with conventional heating and air conditioning, Makings says, is not only logical, but will provide more job opportunities for the technician, and an employment bonus for the contractor.

"The advantage to the employers is that these people have the expertise to take a look at a house and design a solar system, then install, service and keep it going," he says. "Contractors want to have someone around who knows solar. But the contractor typically can't afford to employ someone full time as a solar specialist."

Makings has no doubts that solar and other alternative sources of energy are economically viable and will establish themselves as soon as the economy improves. At that point, he says, the employment opportunities for energy technicians will increase rapidly, and CSI graduates will be in demand as supervisors. They also will be in a position to open their own energy equipment and installation businesses.

The second energy-specialization area offered in the program is in the field of biofuels production.

Basically, students will be trained to work as maintenance technicians at municipal sewage treatment plants. But by getting a strong math and science background, the technicians will be knowledgeable in methane production.

Again, Makings says, the combination of skills is pragmatic because it will improve a student's chance of getting a job.

"If the only thing they could do is methane production," he says, "I don't see their employment possibilities as very good."

The final two areas of the program — energy management and conservation, and power-plant operator specialization — are on the back burner for now, Makings says. The energy-management and conservation-technician programs would teach students to monitor the efficiency of institutional heating and cooling systems.

The power-plant technician program, he says, will prepare students to begin the specialized training required to work at commercial power plants.

Students who would like to get an idea of whether the energy-technology program would interest them, should register for "Introduction to Solar Energy."

The course, which is part of the energy-technician program, also is oriented to the needs of people who would like to apply the concepts of solar heating to their home, Makings says.

The course will be offered on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to noon. The fee is $49.

For more information, call Makings at 733-6554, extension 328.

Utility expansion plan faces PUC cost review

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Power Co.'s ratepayers should be informed of the impact of the utility's $1 billion-plus, five-year construction program. This is the opinion of the state Public Utilities Commission, which announced Friday that it will conduct a public investigation into the expansion plan.

In light of Idaho Power's current concern over the "avoided cost" rates it is required to pay independent producers of electricity (see above story), PUC staff members said it is time to look at how much it will cost the utility to undertake its own power projects.

Because the utility's plans for new construction must depend on its forecast of how much electricity will be needed in the future, PUC officials say they also must take close look at how the company has calculated its prediction of 2.7 percent annual growth through 1990.

In addition, a spokesman said the PUC is particularly interested in examining the cost of several power projects that Idaho Power has proposed. The projected cost of a power plant usually escalates between the time it receives preliminary PUC approval and the time it goes on line, the spokesman said.

Cost estimates have doubled for at least two Idaho Power projects, according to the commission, which noted that the "cost overruns" that come to light at the eleventh hour should be taken into account.

For instance, although Idaho Power's cost estimate in 1979 for its 12.5-megawatt Cascade Dam was 4.35 cents per kilowatt-hour, the company

Mall plans stalled

TWIN FALLS — The plans of the three firms that have announced their intention to build shopping malls in Twin Falls apparently are at a standstill.

"The economy obviously is having a big effect," says Rick Woodbury, whose Woodbury Corp. had announced in 1980 that it would build a mall on the former John Blum Lakes Boulevard North, between Pole Line Road and North College Road.

"We're talking to department stores, and we're still planning to go ahead," Woodbury told the Times-News recently. "I think it's silly to make forecasts at this point."

Nonetheless, he said construction of his shopping center could get under way in 1983.

Price Development Corp. and the city of Twin Falls, meanwhile, involved in a court battle over the disputed zoning of Price's proposed mall site next to the Green Acres subdivision. After going through several tiers of government and judiciary, the matter is in the hands of the Idaho Supreme Court.

Price, which unveiled its mall proposal last year, and Woodbury both are based in Salt Lake City.

Despite repeated attempts, the Times-News has been unable to obtain a statement from General Growth Corp. concerning the Iowa-based company's plans to build a mall in Twin Falls. General Growth has registered the One Boone Farm Northwest of the Blue Lakes-Pole Line intersection. The company announced its mall project in 1980.

Wendell promised computer software bill clarification

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — Questions about computer-programming expenses were discussed Thursday before Wendell City Council.

At the previous meeting, council decided not to pay a $300 programming bill because council members said, it should have been included in the original $5,500 programming fee.

Richard Langford of IBM, who sold the city the computer last year, described parts of the bill as "improper," and he advised city officials on how to question the programmer, Jim Peterson of Superior Systems.

"I was not aware you were having problems," Langford said, adding that he has talked to Peterson about once every two weeks. "Compile a list of errors and corrections made each month . . . When you have problems, call me first."

Langford said he personally would talk with Peterson on behalf of the city, and might put "some pressure" on the programmer to reduce or eliminate some of the reprogramming charges.

In justifying his bill, Peterson had contended that after the programs had been made, the city gave him additional information, and a fee was charged for those changes. He is scheduled to attend an August council meeting with an itemized list of changes he made that allegedly were the city's fault.

One example that city clerk June Holmes gave of a programming error was that the city does not mail out bills for less than $2. Instead, the smaller amounts due are carried on the records until they are worth billing. The computer, not programmed

Sex offender given 10 years in prison

BY MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Testimony from two victims of sexual abuse led Judge Tabor Ward on Friday to order a 24-year-old Mark Holley of Murtaugh to spend up to 10 years in prison.

Both victims, who testified during Holley's Fifth District Court sentencing hearing, said they had been sexually abused by the defendant during their childhoods.

One of the victims said Holley abused her from the time she was 4 until she was 16. The second witness reported one incident of abuse, which occurred when she was 14.

The women, both 21 and both from Twin Falls, testified after Ward ordered spectators removed from the courtroom. That action, proposed by Prosecutor Harry DeHaan and agreed to by defense lawyer Mike Powers, was taken to spare the women from additional embarrassment and trauma, Ward said.

Following the reportedly emotional testimony, one of the witnesses was seen crying as she quickly walked out of the courtroom.

Neither of the two 21-year-old women were named as the victim in Holley's court case. Holley pleaded guilty on April 30 to a charge of lewd and lascivious conduct with a minor, which stemmed from allegations that he fondled a 10-year-old girl on Jan. 30 and 31.

The charge carries a maximum life sentence. Under Ward's decision, Holley will be released from the state penitentiary after no more than 10 years and probably sooner, depending on the decision of the state Board of Pardons.

The defense sought to convince Ward that Holley's activity stemmed from a combination of sexual frustration in his marriage and a drinking problem. Powers sought a probation, noting that the defendant was undergoing counseling.

Richard Worst, a Twin Falls psychiatrist who testified on Holley's behalf, contended the incident did not stem from any psychiatric disorder or sexual perversion. As such, counseling to improve communication in his marriage and to control his drinking should alleviate the problem.

"My opinion is this is the best program available, that it is the one most likely to be successful," Worst said. He said that probation would provide a partial incentive for Holley to continue treatment because he was frightened of prison.

"I think at this point, he really is frightened at the prospect of going to the penitentiary," Worst said. "Once he's gone (to prison), it would be my opinion that rather than being frightened, he would be angry and bitter."

DeHaan, in asking for a life sentence, sought to show the incident was not isolated, but rather part of a 20-year-long pattern.

He said the pattern began in 1964 with the then-4-year-old girl and continued until this year.

The prosecutor also noted that the defense had not acknowledged the incident involving the second of DeHaan's witnesses.

Finally, DeHaan said that a second lewd and lascivious charge, involving a 9-year-old girl, is pending against Holley. That case is scheduled for a preliminary hearing in Fifth District Magistrate Court next week.

Man arraigned on charge of sex abuse of 8-year-old

TWIN FALLS — A 24-year-old Twin Falls man, charged with sexually abusing an 8-year-old girl, was arraigned Thursday in Fifth District Magistrate Court and jailed in lieu of $25,000 bail.

Twin Falls police allege that Loren Flournoy, 269 Heyburn Ave., engaged in sexual foreplay with the girl approximately 50 times during the past six months. The last incident allegedly occurred Monday.

ISP praises citizen aid

TWIN FALLS — Citizens closed ranks with the Idaho State Police officers Friday afternoon to help arrest a Twin Falls man for allegedly driving while intoxicated.

According to Cpl. David Rich of the ISP,

A Twin Falls couple, Les Jarton and his wife, followed a badly weaving Cadillac south on U.S. 93 from Shoshone to about two miles north of the Interstate 84 interchange. At that point, the car finally pulled off the road and stopped.

According to witnesses, the weaving vehicle was off on the wrong side of the road and forced at least two cars off the road.

Jarton then drove a mile south to the KOA campground, where he called the ISP. His call was one of a half-dozen the police had received on the weaving vehicle.

Jarton then drove back to where the Cadillac was parked, and waited for the officers to join him.

Police soon arrived and arrested Alexander Smith, 52, of 215 Heyburn

Ave. W., and charged him with driving while intoxicated.

Since Smith refused to take a breathalyzer test at the Jerome County sheriff's office, Rich said that a conviction of Jarton and his wife to be involved will be crucial.

"Essentially, I'm going to have to rely on the witnesses that saw him drive, to testify in court," Rich said. He figures the chances of obtaining a conviction without a breathalyzer test are about 50-50.

"It will be a little better with this guy and his wife," he said. "The chances are increased to about 75 percent. I think we have a fair chance to win, but you never know how a jury will decide."

The willingness of people to call the police when they witness a crime has grown more significant since ISP was opened late last year, said officers at the scene.

"It's a good deal, since we are so few in number any more, that people are responsible enough to call a law-enforcement agency when they witness driving like this," Rich said.

Teen admits to theft

RUPERT — A 16-year-old Rupert male was charged with grand theft Friday after turning himself in to authorities Thursday morning.

Accused of stealing two irrigation-line motors from a field south of Rupert, the juvenile was released to relatives Friday, according to a Minidoka County sheriff's deputy.

At 3:15 a.m. Thursday, the juvenile's uncle, who was not identified, brought the teenager into the sheriff's office. The youth, who resides with his uncle, appeared to be talking into giving himself up by the older man, the deputy said.

The stolen motors, worth about $800, were recovered. They belonged to Dennis Abo, no address given.

One-car wreck injures two

TWIN FALLS — A Jerome man and a Declo woman were injured Thursday night in a one-car accident 12 miles south of Twin Falls.

According to the Idaho State Police, a northbound vehicle, driven by Boyd Rydahl, 72, of Jerome, failed to negotiate a curve on Blue Lakes Boulevard South. The car rolled several times, coming to rest on its wheels.

Boyd was treated at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center and released. His passenger, Lucille Darlington, 63, of Declo, is reported in serious condition at the hospital.

Boyd has been cited for inattentive driving.

Langford agreed that programing error was not the city's fault.

"If he (Peterson) wasn't told, he should have asked. That should have been on there. It's a general thing," Langford said.

The IBM representative also advised council on how to market to other cities the programs it is buying, as a means of compensating for the programing error.

In other business Thursday evening, Terry Archibald, of Archibald's Home Roofing in Wendell, inquired about council's tentative plans to re-roof City Hall. He said the city should be sure to get a guarantee if the existing roof is resurfaced.

Council President Bob Thackeray said the re-roofing job will not be done right away.

However, he said, "We have to have this done by the end of September if we're going to do it."

Council made no motion to open the job for bidding.

now estimates it will cost about 6.4 cents per kilowatt-hour.

The cost of energy from the proposed A.J. Wiley project on the Snake River was 3.5 cents per kilowatt-hour in 1978, when it received tentative commission approval. Now, the construction cost estimate has risen from $96 million to $233 million, placing the per-kilowatt-hour price at 8.9 cents.

A commission spokesman also said that last March, an Idaho Power shareholder aired his concern over the utility's expansion program.

The shareholder said that if Idaho Power plans to finance the program by issuing stock, he feared existing stock values would be diluted.

Commission officials said the fact-finding hearing will try to establish how Idaho Power plans to finance new construction through stock issuances, changes to new customers who may cause the need for additional power plants, or through increased rates and charges paid by all customers.

Clarification

TWIN FALLS — The Funtasia carnival has moved the location of its appearance in Twin Falls next week from the Lynwood Shopping Center to the back parking area of the Blue Lakes Mall. The move was made because of anticipated traffic-flow problems associated with construction on Blue Lakes Boulevard North near the Lynwood shopping site. The carnival will be held from noon on Wednesday through Sunday.

Obituaries

Hazel H. Gines

JEROME — Hazel H. Tanager Gines, 78, of Jerome, died Thursday morning at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in Twin Falls.

Born March 8, 1903, in Minneapolis, where she was reared and educated, she married Parley Gines in the Salt Lake City Mormon Temple on June 13, 1923. He died in September 1978.

They resided at Woodland, Utah, until 1944, when they moved to Jerome, farming southwest of town. She worked for J.C. Penney Co. for eight years.

She was a member of the Jerome Fifth Ward Mormon Church and took an active part in all church activities. She was member of the American War Mothers and at the time of her death was president of the Jerome chapter.

Surviving are: three sons, Richard Gines of Holbrook, Ross Gines of Jerome and Evan Gines of Wellton, Ariz.; four daughters: Evelyn LaBar of Las Vegas, Pauline Forbes of Kokomo, Ind., Geraldine Court of Bountiful, Utah, and Madge Gines of Minneapolis; two sisters, Grace Samuelson and Ethel Mattson, both of Milaca, Minn.; 32 grandchildren; and 22 great-grandchildren. A daughter preceded her in death.

The funeral will be held on Monday at 2 p.m. in the Jerome Fifth Ward Chapel on North Lincoln Street with Bishop Robert Bingham officiating. Burial will be at 4 p.m. in the Frances Cemetery in Frances, Utah.

Friends may call at the Home Funeral Chapel in Jerome on Sunday from 2 until 9 p.m.

TWIN FALLS — Domenick E. Quilici, 83, of Twin Falls, died Friday morning at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

Mountain States Tumor Institute, 151 E. Bannock St., Boise, 5706.

JEROME — The funeral for Lawrence H. Swenson, 72, of Jerome, who died Wednesday, will be held at 11 a.m. today at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls. Friends may call at White Mortuary in Twin Falls until 10:30 a.m. today.

TWIN FALLS — The funeral for J. Neil Denning, 55, of Idaho Falls, formerly of Twin Falls, who died Wednesday, will be held today at 11 a.m. at the Wood Chapel of the Pines in Idaho Falls. Burial will be in Rose Hill Cemetery in Idaho Falls, with military rites provided by the American Legion.

The obituary and service will be announced by Reynolds Funeral Chapel in Twin Falls.

Aileen A. Whittington

PAUL — Aileen Amelia Whittington, 81, of Paul, died Thursday in Cassia Memorial Hospital at Burley after a lingering illness.

Born July 24, 1900, in Butte, Mont., she married Benjamin Whittington in 1920 in Red Lodge, Mont. He died in 1975. After his death, she moved to Paul to live with a daughter.

Surviving are: a son, Allen L. Whittington of Billings; two daughters, Alice Priest and Anna Dean, both of Paul; two brothers, Carl Hansen Jr. of Red Lodge and Henry Hansen of Columbus, Mont.; a sister, Little Book of Billings; five grandchildren; 12 great-grandchildren; and a great-great-grandchild. She was preceded in death by two children and a brother.

The memorial service will be held at 1 p.m. today in McCulloch's funeral chapel with the Rev. James Dillon of the Paul First Baptist Church officiating. Friends may call at McCulloch's one hour prior to the service. Burial will be at a later date in Red Lodge.

The family suggests memorials to the Minidoka Christian Education Association.

RUPERT — The funeral for Dell Lou Thompson, 61, of Rupert, who died Wednesday, will be held today at 11 a.m. in the Rupert Mormon Stake Center. Burial will be in Rupert Cemetery. Arrangements are by the Hansen Mortuary in Rupert. Friends may call at the stake center one hour prior to the service today.

HAILEY — The funeral for Johanna K. Povey, 73, of Hailey, who died Wednesday, will be held today at 2 p.m. in the Episcopal Church of Hailey. Arrangements are by the Bergin Funeral Chapel in Shoshone. Friends may call at the church in Hailey prior to the service. Burial will be in Hailey Cemetery.

The authors of 'Holy Terror' take on the Religious Right

By BRUCE BURMAN
Chicago Tribune

CHICAGO — The authors of a newly published book on the dangers of the fundamentalist Christian crusade in America, a treatise entitled "Holy Terror," have acknowledged in an interview that their assessment of the conservative religious movement may strike a more dispassionate observer as a touch harsh.

"But I believe it's time for a little outrage," says Joe Conway, "when books can be banned in the United States of America in the name of God, and when science is condemned as anti-God, and when knowledge is labeled as 'anti-humanism.'"

Conway, 40, and his co-author, 31-year-old Jim Siegelman, visited Chicago recently as part of a national promotional tour for the book, a devastating and polemical indictment of the radical Religious Right. The $17.95 book is published by Doubleday & Co. of New York, the same firm that publishes books by Rev. Jerry Falwell, the evangelist who founded the New Right's Moral Majority lobbying group.

But Conway and Siegelman regard Falwell as only a clever front man and bit player in a larger plan, seeking to rewrite the American Constitution in the language and style of fundamentalist dogma.

"This country has a tradition of being the beacon of tolerance and respect," says Conway, a Catholic who attended a parochial high school in Evanston, Ill., before embarking on his professional career in New York.

"But now we're seeing this ideological fundamentalism in the country — a sort of 'Obey or be damned' situation — and it's based on total propaganda."

Conway and Siegelman joined forces before on another controversial book, "Snapping," a psychological analysis of the sudden personality changes said to be common among religious cult members.

But now they are assessing the implications of a "modern Holy War for the hearts, minds and cash of millions of Americans." They call the emergence of the religious Right a "dynastic crusade to convert the United States into a fundamentalist republic (and a campaign of fear, intimidation and manipulation being waged by preachers and political strategists.)"

"In 'Holy Terror,' they cite such religious figures as Falwell, the Rev. M.G. 'Pat' Robertson of the Christian Broadcasting Network; the Rev. James Robison, a Texas television evangelist; and Bill Bright, the founder of Campus Crusade for Christ, International, an leaders of the movement."

"I don't think they're in it for the money, although there's an unlimited amount of money in the New Right," says Siegelman, a native of Cleveland and a philosophy major at Harvard University. "They want power and control. They want to direct us into a future world of American spiritual imperialism."

The book also identifies three major "secular" strategists of the radical Right: fund-raising specialist Richard Viguerie; Paul Weyrich of the Committee for the Survival of a Free Congress; and Terry Dolan of the National Conservative Political Action Committee.

Listed among the key beneficiaries of the movement are such wealthy corporate czars as Joseph Coors of the Coors Brewing Co. and Nelson Bunker Hunt of Hunt Oil & Energy and other companies in Dallas.

"It's been said that this movement is just the old Right with computers," Siegelman says. "But what we're really got here is a bunch of punks with their fingers on the push buttons."

Both Conway and Siegelman express alarm that the New Right has enlisted in its army "a lot of sincere people who believe in the goodness of their church, the goodness of the clergy and the strength of religion."

And the secular press, they say, has been far too timid in attempting to report each interpret the movement.

"The media has bent over backwards to be fair," says Siegelman, "and in the process, has left a lot of people confused and very vulnerable to the absolutist evangelists who claim to have all the answers."

"We have watched the electronic church religiously," he says, "and we find out more about what's motivating the White House and what our national policy is becoming by watching the television preachers than by watching Dan Rather on the 'CBS Evening News'" or by reading the major newspapers."

Siegelman says that the New Right faces a major test in this fall's congressional elections.

"They've got the money for a major propaganda blitz," he says. "If they pull it off this year, they're going to be very tough to beat in 1984."

Deseret Industries will open Twin Falls outlet

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — A new Deseret Industries thrift store will open for business in Twin Falls on Aug. 5.

The second-hand store will be located at 1117 Blue Lakes Blvd. N., according to Marion Lund, the Burley-Deseret Industries manager. Deseret Industries is a branch of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. The purpose of the thrift-store operation is to train, employ and place handicapped persons, Lund says.

"We know a lot of handicapped people here in Twin Falls that need employment," he says. The basic reason behind opening the new store is to employ, train and rehabilitate them, he adds.

A ribbon-cutting ceremony will be held at noon on Thursday, Aug. 5, to officially open the facility, Lund says. Area Mormon Welfare Service director Ray Baldwin of Idaho Falls and several local church leaders will be present for the event.

Most of the 5,700 square feet of the Twin Falls operation will be retail floor space, Lund says. Only cleaning, polishing and sanitizing of "as is," ready-to-sell items will be done at the Twin Falls store. Donated items requiring repairs will be sent to the larger Burley operation.

"We will start here with six or seven people," Lund says.

Deseret thrift stores must "carry their own weight," that is, through sales, they must pay the expenses, including employees' salaries, he says. Any profit is used for Christmas bonuses or to hire more employees, according to Lund.

Employees will be hired through recommendations of local Mormon bishops, Lund says. The present Burley staff also will administer the Twin Falls operation, although a separate supervisor will be hired for the new outlet. Lund says he already has received more than 15 applications.

Anyone interested in donating items to the store should take them to boxes at Harrison and Maurice streets Mormon churches, Lund says. Until a new donation center is set up at the new Twin Falls store.

Currently, work crews are remodeling the facility. The walls have been painted and new flooring added.

"It's going to be a nice-looking store," Lund says.

It is a second-hand store, but it will be a first-class thrift store, he says.

Our church news guidelines

The Times-News encourages any church in the Magic Valley area to submit information for our listing of church services, which appears each Saturday.

To ensure your information is used, follow these guidelines:

- The deadline for church news is Thursday noon.
- Typewritten or plainly printed information is best; it helps eliminate errors.
- Provide full information — complete names, times, locations, day and date. Include the name of the community — we serve many — and a phone number to call if more information is needed.
- If you have questions about church news, call 733-0931 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., and ask for Glenda May or Jon Kinney.

Early action important in All-Star game

Kickoff tonight: 7:30 at TFHS

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — North Coach Jim Carberry of Boise calls it playing checkers.

For South mentor Bob Brulotte it's early adjustment periods.

But in the minds of both men, mastering the first possession offensively and defensively could make the difference in tonight's Idaho High School All-Star Football Game at Brulotte Stadium.

It's the second time in three years the North and South have squared off on the gridiron and football fans have been put on notice that financially this year "is the last chance."

The most recent all-star game, 1980 in Boise, reportedly lost $14,000. This year the key will be at the gate because under an NCAA mandate, no sanction will be available next year if 50 percent profits isn't reached.

But money matters will be lost in the heat of the battle which starts at 7:30 p.m.

In dismissing his troops from their last major drill, Carberry noted, "Whether you're an Orefline Maniac or a Kellogg Miner or whatever, when you walk on that field tomorrow night, you will be representing your community. You must become united as a team with a goal of going 2-0 (in the series)."

Brulotte, who probably is correct in assuming his team is the underdog, noted, "The kids are starting to get jacked. They're getting back inside themselves like the good ones usually do. They don't even want to be touched as it gets closer to the starting line."

Both coaches would like it to be the second quarter right now because there really isn't enough understanding of the other staff's philosophy, tendencies and passions. They also lack detailed knowledge about the other's personnel.

"I think the interesting part of the game will be the matchup from a team concept," Carberry said. "We don't know what they are going to do offensively or defensively. So our coaches are going to have to play checkers a little until everything has been covered."

Brulotte isn't sure what his players will face tonight.

"Since Carberry is handling the offense for the North, we assume we're going to see some formation shift," Brulotte said. "But we don't know. Defensively, we have no idea of what Coach (Herb) Cramer does at that level. I'm sure he has a '50 defense, but what kind? There are a lot of things you can do with a five unit."

"I think the big thing is to get out of that first time defense without getting damaged. By then you have a little understanding of what they want to do and you can start adjusting. But they get on the board before you can make those adjustments and you happen to go scoreless, they have a big edge for the remainder of the game," Brulotte said. "That first quarter is going to be an adjustment period for both sides, offense and defense."

Carberry feels that the North is more than adequate in every position.

"Our offensive strength probably is at quarterback with Wynn Mosman (Moscow) and Bob Wheeler (Boise)," he said. "Those two are good players. Defensively the front (Ron) Hadley (Boise), (Kevin) Hudgens (Caldwell) and (Mike) Jarvis (Meridian) is really solid. In the secondary (Mark) Tidd (Boise), Don Hobart (Boise) and the others are solid. We have another plus with Jody Griswold (Boise) at tight end. He has speed enough to get deep on you and he's big enough to be a devastating blocker."

Carberry stuck to his week's promise that the North offense would be balanced but he qualified: "By that I mean the results will be that of an offense that is equal. That's necessary because it keeps the defenses sane and a little more predictable."

The other plus, Carberry said, is "that in just a week they're like a regular team now. Like they've been together for five years. They're all good buddies. I'm sure it's like that on the other side and that's how it should be in a game like this."

Brulotte, who admits to hanging more crepe than tinzel until the final gun at least, said anything that happens won't be because his Southerners have let down.

"This is the best team I've ever coached or been associated with," he flatteringly said. "But I still have to be scared of the guns they have up north. They have 26 or 27 kids good enough to get college scholarships. We have maybe 10 or 12 on our side. So I don't know how good we are by comparison."

"But I'll tell you something else about our team. I like their attitude. I know we are going to get everything from them they have to give and maybe a little more. We hit one this week and it scared us so much we quit hitting. I'm sure the North had the same thing," Brulotte said.

Although Carberry said he really couldn't put a finger on what he expected, Brulotte said, "You'll see a more wide-open game, at least from our standpoint. I know they feel that they are big enough and tough enough to run the ball down our throats. If they are, we're probably going to have to throw — a lot."

He said Idaho Falls' Eric Walker, backed by Soda Springs' Kurt Almschew, will do most of the throwing. His other two quarterbacks, Rocky Eller of Kimberly and Paul Smart of West Side, will be playing safety.

"They've all taken snaps and can throw it well enough to step in if something happens. But Eller and Smart have played defense all their careers and they told us they wanted to play defense because they could get in more playing time and maybe help the team more," Brulotte said.

He said the South will play a lot of its offensive hopes on the mobility of the linebacksers of Lance Sellers, Twin Falls; Kris Sibley of Highland, and Jeff Green of Preston. The running back chores will be shared among Evan Campbell of Highland and Rod Hegi of Wendell in one set and Dave Ensuna, Castleford, and Dewey Mahoney, Idaho Falls.

Complementing Walker's passing will be the speed and ability of the receivers of Stuart Fredrickson, Shelley; Garen Jensen, Madison, and Steve Galley, Twin Falls. "They all have great hands. They can catch it," Brulotte said.

Perhaps Brulotte summed it for both sides when he noted, "We have great athletes and excellent skill players on both teams. We'll both be running very basic stuff. Barring breaks killing either team, the difference will simply come down to a matter of horsepower. But I'll be a battle of thoroughbreds."

Steve Galley of Twin Falls, a top South All-Star receiver, tunes up Friday for tonight's game

Usually kind Mancini doesn't like foe

WARREN, Ohio (UPI) — World Boxing Association lightweight champion Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini is usually the picture of propriety. Affable and articulate, a choir boy through and through.

But in the days before his first title defense against Venezuelan Ernesto Espana, Mancini has broken with tradition.

"It's not that I dislike Espana as a human being," said Mancini, who has a 23-1 pro record. "I don't know him that way. I do know I don't like him as a fighter for the way he treated me when we met. I said then that I don't like the guy and I'll take that dislike into the ring Saturday afternoon."

Is the WBA crown, which Mancini took from Arturo Frias in one round last May, too small for the youngster's head? Not at all. As is usually the case in boxing, the unsettling feelings stem from politics.

The WBA, whose job it is to sanction such affairs, told Mancini many months ago that the only way he'd ever get a shot at the title was to promise Espana the first defense.

Espana, 36-4, has been in five title bouts, winning just one.

Espana, however, says Mancini should be thankful to him for winning the title.

"Mancini should be proud of me," he said. "I helped him become champ. If not for me, Mancini would not be the champ right now."

Espana was referring to a controversial loss earlier this year to Frias. The fight was stopped in the late rounds when Frias developed a cut on his cheek. Since Frias was ahead on points at the time, he was given the decision.

For his part, Espana has done little to convince observers he belongs in the ring at Mollenkopf Stadium today.

In his public workouts, he's been drab and listless, the solo exception coming when he tore into a little featherweight in a brief sparring session.

Espana, 27, has a four-inch height and reach advantage on Mancini. He claims 20 early knockouts in his 36 wins and predicts a seventh-round knockout of the champion.

His manager, Pedro Aponte, says Mancini's style of working in close to the body is to Espana's advantage. He also considers Espana's size and reach advantage a big factor and considers his boxer's style to be similar to Arguello's.

Three days before the fight, Espana was four pounds over the 135-pound weight limit but was showing no signs of concern.

McNamara says he knew he would go

CINCINNATI (UPI) — John McNamara said Friday he knew he would be fired as manager of the Cincinnati Reds.

"I was prepared for it," McNamara told a news conference two days after he was dismissed by Reds president Dick Wagner. "I knew it was inevitable. I knew it was coming."

"But I want to be with a ball club. I've been there 30 years of my life. I'll be at the stadium tonight. I'll be sitting in the red seats or the green seats. I love baseball. Baseball is my life."

Wagner said he fired McNamara because he thought the Reds were a better team than his record — 34-66 after Friday night's loss to Chicago — indicated. The Reds replaced McNamara with veteran Cincinnati coach Russ Nixon.

"We did the very best we possibly could," said McNamara. "Baseball is measured by one-run games, and we weren't very successful in those situations."

Many fans blamed the Reds' demise this year not so much on McNamara but on Wagner, who let go much of the team's offensive club before the season.

Ken Griffey and Dave Collins went to the New York Yankees, Ray Knight was traded to the Houston Astros and George Foster went to the New York Mets.

McNamara, 50, was asked if he could have molded the Reds into a contender had Wagner not let go many veteran sluggers.

"I am not an auto mechanic by any means," he replied. "You can tinker with an engine but you can't overhaul it."

McNamara's firing followed his disclosure last weekend that Wagner was dictating lineup changes. McNamara was asked if he might have precipitated his ouster by revealing this information to a reporter.

"I was asked a question," he said. "I've always been honest. I don't. I never have lied."

McNamara said, however, he thought the incident was "overblown" in the media.

"It wasn't that big of a thing. There was no blow up (between McNamara and Wagner). In the three-plus years I've managed this ball club and we've never had an argument. Dick Wagner is, has and always will be a very good friend of mine."

McNamara added he was considering an offer of another job in the Reds' organization but refused to elaborate.

He said he'd been approached informally by friends on other ball clubs, but no contract offer had been extended.

Jerome could be '84 site for women's state amateur

TWIN FALLS — The chances of Jerome Country Club hosting the Women's State Amateur Golf Championship in 1984 are more than good.

But it was rather interesting how a chance to zip into the lineup for the course came at such an early stage. For instance, it will be 11 years before Twin Falls Muny becomes eligible again.

When the State Women's Golf Association held its business meeting here last week, the women's association from Hillcrest Country Club of Boise extended an invitation for 1982. (It will be played at Highland next year.)

This suggestion was well received because Hillcrest has a certain snob appeal enhanced by its reputation as a tough, fair and well-manicured course.

However, there were some stipulations. First, no more than 130 would be accepted and, secondly, no one would be allowed to tee off after 1 p.m.

This was a demand — evidently firmly backed — by the men's golf association.

Since it would automatically eliminate about a third of the usual field, there was immediate resentment from the voting body.

And when the full implication of the "male chauvinistic" attitude was understood, Hillcrest had no chance.

But don't think it was all that easy. Immediately, some of the Jerome CC gals jumped to their feet to issue the call. However, they reported they felt some trepidation because they weren't certain how the possibility of missing four whole days of golf in two years might be received by their male counterparts.

Twin Falls Muny Pro Don Hamblin could hardly believe his ears, however.

"If I were at a private club like that I would love to have as many of these type tournaments as I could get. They're all money makers," he said.

There is a certain prestige connected with holding the state tournament that most golfers seem to understand — but evidently not all, Hamblin said.

He noted that Twin Falls Muny, by hosting the event, actually lost money because it lost three days of greens fees — a peg he placed at about $1,500.

"But when you stop and consider that it will only be here once every 11 years and then consider all the money the women spend on season tickets, greens fees and the volunteer work they do around the clubhouse in various projects, I think every one would feel the course is more than compensated."

Conversely, for a country club, the state tournament is all income.

First, the membership dues continue at the same pace. Whether they play that or not, the first-of-the-month statement reads exactly the same.

"Then," Hamblin points out, "you rent out every cart every day, you're pro shop and restaurants are going all the time and if you have sufficient banquet facilities, the association can hold all its meetings and banquets right there. It should be a bonanza for them, probably the biggest single money-maker they could hope to get."

Viewed from Hamblin's insight, it does seem an especially selfish thing for certain members to veto the tournament on the grounds that "I'm a member and, by golly, I want to play golf."

What it actually means, that in 11 years — or, putting it another way, 4,020 days — some individuals don't want to give up four possible playing days. And that assumes they were going to play each of those four days.

It presumes that there isn't another golf course within 100 miles of Boise, too.

But when the 1983 state tournament goes up for invitation and the Boise area is the logical recipient, will you give your bet that Boise's new Shannamann Golf Course will be front and center. Professional Craig Palmer said the new layout, which could be open to play by September, should be in good playing condition by then. And, Palmer said, such things as hosting every possible tournament is first priority in the minds of Shannamann's owners "as soon as we feel the course is in championship condition."

White's squeeze bunt climaxes Royals' comeback victory

By United Press International

Frank White's ninth-inning suicide squeeze may prompt a few Milwaukee Brewers to seek out the nearest bridge.

White's bunt delivered Jerry Martin from third base to cap a four-run, ninth-inning rally Friday night and give the Kansas City Royals a 4-3 victory over the Brewers.

Milwaukee received back-to-back homers in the ninth from Gorman Thomas and Ben Oglive to score three runs and the game appeared well in hand for Brewers starter Bob McClure, who had limited Kansas City to two hits over the first eight innings.

American League

But U.L. Washington opened the ninth with a single and George Brett unseated his 12th homer of the season to draw the Royals within one and chase McClure in favor of relief ace Scott Flannery.

Amos Otis greeted Flannery with a single to right and took second on a groundout by Hal McRae. Martin rapped another single to score Otis and took third. Willie Aikens followed with a single. White then dropped a perfect bunt up the first-base line and Martin easily beat the throw to the plate to give Kansas City only its third victory in its last 12 games.

Rangers vs. Tigers
At Detroit, Frank Tanana allowed two hits in 6 2-3 innings and Dave Schmidt got the last seven outs to lift Texas. Mike Richardson, Larry Parrish and Mickey Rivers drove in Texas' runs.

Indians 4, Mariners 3 (11)
At Cleveland, Bill Bahorodny delivered a sacrifice fly with one out in the bottom of the 11th inning to pace Cleveland. Gaylord Perry, seeking his 30th career victory, held a 3-1 lead before being chased in the seventh.

Orioles 2, A's 1
At Baltimore, Eddie Murray's seventh-inning leadoff home run broke a 1-1 tie and boosted the Orioles and Jim Palmer. The blast, a towering drive to right field, broke up a tight pitching duel between Palmer and Matt Keough, who limited the Orioles to three hits and took the loss. The victory was the 256th of Palmer's career.

Yankees 6, Angels 3
At New York, Jerry Mumphrey hit a three-run homer and Dave Winfield drove in three runs with a sacrifice fly and a triple to power the Yankees. Steve Tarkenton, making only his fourth start of the season, scattered 10 hits over 8 1-3 innings.

Blue Jays 7, White Sox 1
At Chicago, Buck Martinez and

Lloyd Moseby had RBI doubles in a three-run seventh inning that boosted Toronto. The Blue Jays took advantage of two White Sox errors in the inning to erase a 1-0 deficit and make a winner of Luis Leal.

Twins 6, Red Sox 4
At Minneapolis, Tom Brunansky and Tim Lincecum hit two doubles each and the Twins rode a six-run third-inning rally to victory. Bobby Camacho scattered seven hits over 6 2-3 innings to gain the victory and Ron Davis registered his 10th save by going the last 1 1-3 innings.

Cowboys explode in opener, falter in nightcap

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Cowboys had an infrequent offensive explosion Friday night when they stomped past the Boise Senators 15-5.

But the Cowboys' nemesis, the in-field gloves, plus some sticky hitting by the Senators set the American Legion double-header to a split decision. Boise won the nightcap 7-5.

Steve Krawitz scattered seven Boise hits to win the opener and shipped in with a two-run double, running his hitting streak to four games.

But Twin Falls trailed 1-0 coming into the third inning. At that point, Virgil Hurt, Scott Morgan and Shawn Humberger received walks to start the Cowboys' first big inning. The runs started coming across when Mike Federico drilled a single and Curt Thiemann and Brock Miller followed with doubles.

After a single run in the fourth, Twin Falls moved out of reach when Dave Slotten and Hume singled and Krawitz drew a walk to load the bases. Morgan forced in a run with another free pass and then a couple of errors provided the last three. Krawitz' double accounted for both Cowboy runs in the third.

For a moment in the nightcap, Boise errors seemed to have Twin Falls headed for a possible sweep. The Senators picked up a single run in the first but in the bottom of the third Twin Falls replied with four. Humberger started it with a single and Federico beat out a well-placed bunt. Slotten hit produced the tying run. Two runs scores when Miller's bouncer drew a throwing error and he scored seconds later when Hurt lived on another misce.

But the Cowboys then returned the favors, committing two errors and misjudging a drive to left field, helping the Senators to four runs and the lead.

Twin Falls remains home Sunday, entertaining Caldwell in a double-header beginning at 1 p.m. at Frontier Field.

Rhoden bats, pitches BuCs past Braves

By United Press International

With a bat like that, it's a shame Rick Rhoden is a pitcher.

Rhoden fired a six-hitter and drove in two runs with a sixth-inning double Friday night to pace the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 6-0 triumph over the Atlanta Braves.

National

Rhoden did not allow a runner past second base in registering his third complete game and first shutout of the season.

Cardinals 6, Astros 2
At St. Louis, Tom Herr had two hits and scored two runs to support the 10-hit pitching of Joaquin Andujar.

Padres 11, Mets 4
At San Diego, rookie right-hander Andy Hawkins pitched a seven-hitter for his first major-league victory and Sixto Lezcano and Terry Kennedy drove in three runs each to lead the Padres.

Phillies 6, Dodgers 3
At Los Angeles, Larry Christenson and Mike Schmidt belted two-run homers to spark the Phillies.

ISU denies sex discrimination

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho State University officials said Friday they fired women's volleyball coach Jo-Ann L. Garavaglia because of "poor performance," not in retaliation for sex-discrimination complaints she had lodged against the institution.

In affidavits filed in U.S. District Court, ISU President Myron Coulter, other school officials and two members of the Idaho Board of Education rebutted Ms. Garavaglia's charges that she was dismissed last year after she fought back against alleged mistreatment.

ISU Women's Athletic Director Kathy Hildreth said in her affidavit that Ms. Garavaglia's employment as a volleyball and softball coach was terminated because of her "poor performance as a coach."

Elder leads rainy PGA tourney

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) — Lee Elder fired a 5-under-par 68 Friday to take the early second-round lead at 4-under 138 before thunderstorms halted play in the $350,000 PGA tournament at Round Golf Club.

Second-round play will be completed beginning at 8 a.m. MDT today. The tournament will be shortened to 54 holes with the final 18 holes Sunday, but the entire $350,000 purse will be paid. The PGA's contract with tournament sponsors permits cutting the purse by 25 percent for each round that is not played.

The tournament is sponsored by Anheuser-Busch Inc.

Carnar on top at Women's Open

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — JoAnne Carnar continued to play what she described as her "lightning and grinding game" Friday and extended her lead to three strokes in the 30th annual U.S. Women's Open Golf Championship at Del Paso Country Club.

Carnar, 43, who is one victory shy of qualifying for the Ladies Professional Golf Association Hall of Fame, carved a 5-birdie 3-bogey round into a two-under-par 70 for a two-day 139 total.

"I am a fighter and a grinder and good trouble player," said Carnar, who has won five U.S. Amateur and two U.S. Open titles. "If I get in the rough it doesn't bother me. I know in the Open I'll be in the rough, so I practiced from the rough all week."

76ers ink No. 1 pick McNamara

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia 76ers Friday announced the signing of first-round draft pick Mark McNamara to a multi-year contract with hopes the 7-foot-1 center will provide needed rebounding punch.

Terms of the contract, including the number of years, were not disclosed.

McNamara, 23, a 232-pounder who finished his college career at the University of California at Santa Clara, was the 22nd player selected in the NBA draft on June 29.

As a senior, McNamara was his team's scoring leader in all 27 games for a 22.0 average, and in rebounding 26 of 27 games for a 12.6 average.

Last season, he also became the third player in Pacific-10 history to lead the conference in scoring, rebounding and field-goal percentage. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Bill Walton were the other two.

Bulls reportedly got cash, too

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Bulls apparently got more than Dave Corzine and Mark Oberding when they traded veteran 7-foot-2 center Artis Gilmore to the San Antonio Spurs.

The Chicago Tribune reported Friday the Spurs agreed to pay the Bulls $1 million in connection with the deal which was announced Thursday.

The newspaper reported the $1 million would be spread over a number of years to help defray Corzine's salary of $850,000 a year for the next five years.

Montana signs 4 one-year pacts

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (UPI) — Quarterback Joe Montana, who led San Francisco to the Super Bowl championship last season, Friday signed four 1-year contracts with the 49ers.

Montana, 26, a former Notre Dame star who joined the 49ers in 1979, renegotiated his contract after the Super Bowl victory.

He completed 311 of 468 passes for 3,565 yards and 19 touchdowns last season. He threw only 12 interceptions.

Pocklington kidnapper sentenced

EDMONTON, Alberta (UPI) — Mirko Petrovic, the masked gunman shot by police in last April's botched kidnap attempt of the wife of Edmonton Oilers' owner Peter Pocklington, was sentenced Friday to 15 years in jail.

Provincial Court Judge C.H. Rolf sentenced Petrovic, 29, to 12 years for the April 20 kidnapping attempt on Pocklington and 12 years for the attempted kidnapping of Pocklington's wife, Eva.

Sage blasts Gems 21-3 before succumbing 7-3

RUPERT — Two outs away from recording a double-header win, Minico Sage faltered and lost the nightcap to the Boise Gems 7-3 after stomping the visitors in the first, 21-3.

Jeff Schow led a 13-hit Sage attack in the first game, which was shortened to five innings by the 10-run rule. Schow rapped four hits in four trips, including two doubles. He scored four runs and drove home five.

The Sage held a 3-2 lead in the nightcap, but a double scored the tying run with one out and another double one out later with Gems on first and third plated the winning tallies.

Minico, 27-12, faces Blackfoot today in another double-header at Rupert at 1 p.m.

First Game
Boise Gems ..... 21 — 3 — 3 4
Minico ..... 3 — 2 — 1 — 3
Pehrman, Russ (4) and Montoya, S. Krawitz and Thiemann, W. (Krawitz) — Pehrman.
Second Game
Boise Gems ..... 7 — 3 — 0 — 3
Twin Falls ..... 3 — 2 — 1 — 3
Boyd and Rapp, G. Krawitz (5) and Miller, W. (Boyd) — Burke.

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE
PUBLIC COMMENTS
The Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, Division of Environmental and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) are in the process of developing the annual State/EPA Agreement for fiscal year 1983 (October 1, 1982 through September 30, 1983). As a part of that process the two agencies have developed a draft of the State/EPA Agreement which identifies activities to be conducted under the provisions of State and Federal acts dealing with water quality, air quality, drinking water and hazardous waste. Copies of the draft State/EPA Agreement are available for review at the following listed offices:
DIVISION OF ENVIRONMENT, 2110 Ironwood Parkway, Coeur d'Alene, Idaho.

THEY'RE HAVING A SALES DUEL... BUT YOU'LL BE THE WINNER!

Roy Raymond and Ace Hansen are competing for the most sales in the valley by July 24th. The Winner eats steak, the loser eats beans and cod-dies for the other, so they're lowering prices, making deals, and giving you the best cars for your money!

One will be the loser But It Won't Be You! Come in, make a deal, have some fun and get tremendous savings during this duel of sales! IF THE DEAL ISN'T GOOD ENOUGH... TELL THEM TO EAT BEANS!

HURRY TO ACE HANSEN OR ROY RAYMOND. YOU'RE SURE TO BE A WINNER!
