By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

HAILEY — The death of 8-month-old Monique Nicole Longoria was no accident, doctors testified Tuesday in the first-degree murder trial of 35-year-old Mark Emilio Aragon.

In fact, the neurosurgeon who treated the child during the last two days of her life in April, Dr. Marion Walker of Salt Lake City, said the force of the blows against the child's head were equal to falling from the third or fourth floor of a building.

Doctors believe the child suffered repeated blows.

"I think the force required would be an extremely violent force," Walker said.

He said the extent and type of the baby's injuries would be difficult to achieve for any victim of any age.

And the man who performed an autopsy on the child's body, Utah's chief medical examiner, Dr. Wallace Graham, said his findings were "consistent" with the theory that the child's head was thrown, twisted, and repeatedly against a blunt object, such as a bathtub.

Tuesday marked the second and final day of testimony into the Fifth District Court case, with both the prosecution and the defense completing their presentations. Aragon did not take the witness stand in his own defense.

A six-man, six-woman jury will begin deliberations today.

Judge Douglas Kramer, who is presiding over the trial, has scheduled jury instructions and closing arguments for 9:30 a.m. today in the Blaine County Courthouse.

Aragon has pleaded innocent to the charge that he severely and intentionally beat Monique Nicole Longoria on April 10 by smashing the infant's head against a bathtub in a Ketchum apartment. Aragon shared the apartment with the baby's mother, 20-year-old Teresa Watson of Burley.

The baby died April 12 at the University of Utah Primary Children's Medical Center in Salt Lake City.

Aragon, a native of Grand Junction, Colo., has been held in the Blaine County Jail in lieu of $500,000 bail since his April 10 arrest in Ketchum.

Highlights of Tuesday's session included:

- A detailed report of the baby's injuries, treatment and autopsy. Among the exhibits presented to the jury and courtroom spectators were a series of seven vivid photographic slides depicting the autopsy.
- A defense motion asking Kramer to rule that Watson, who testified Monday against Aragon, was an accomplice in the case. Kramer denied the motion.
- Evidence that showed that Watson's initial account of the incident contrasted with her court testimony. Defense lawyers are contending those inconsistencies raise doubts about the woman's credibility.
- Testimony from a prosecution witness who said that he heard Aragon threaten the baby's life on one occasion and saw the defendant physically abuse the child on another occasion.

Blaine County Prosecutor Keith Roark devoted the bulk of his presentation Tuesday to medical evidence, in an attempt to show that the baby's injuries were not due to an accident and that the child's assailant acted with premeditation, which must be shown in order to prove first-degree murder.

Walker testified he believed the child was subjected to at least three blows. Graham testified the damage could have been caused by as few as two blows.

Utah officials became involved in the case when the child was transported by helicopter on April 10 from Moritz Community Hospital in Ketchum to the Primary Children's Medical Center.

Israel accepts Habib's plan to end war

By VINCENT J. SCHODOLSKI
United Press International

In a breakthrough to end its 66-day-old invasion, Israel accepted "in principle" Tuesday a U.S.-arranged plan for the peaceful occupation of Palestinian fighters from Lebanon.

Israel, however, sought to add several "preconditions" to the 15-day timetable for the withdrawal developed by U.S. envoy Philip Habib and reportedly accepted by Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat.

Habib flew to Jerusalem for a Wednesday meeting with Prime Minister Menachem Begin to resolve Israel's concerns that thousands of the besieged guerrillas were not accounted for in his plan.

That concern apparently was resolved late Tuesday when Syria reversed its previous position and declared it will grant asylum to all PLO guerrillas that are not accepted by other Arab states, Damascus radio said.

Syria's change of heart was in response to a formal PLO appeal to accept "its fighters" as well as an apparent job to Israel's Defense Minister Ariel Sharon, who had claimed Sunday that no nation was willing to rescue the guerrillas.

The Israeli jets and tanks for a second straight day bombed the PLO guerrillas near the Arab university in west Beirut and in the Sabra, Shatila and Bourj el Barajneh refugee camps on the southern rim of the capital.

They also struck positions along a main road near the Beirut International Airport and destroyed newly placed, Soviet SAM-9 missile batteries in the Syrian-controlled eastern Bekka Valley. Nearly 20 missile batteries were destroyed previously.

Near midnight, jets returned, screaming low over the city, and dropped orange flares to illuminate the devastation done earlier.

Cabinet Secretary Dan Meridor, who announced the Israeli acceptance in Jerusalem, said Israel first wanted a full list of how many guerrillas will leave and where they will go before formally halting its invasion that began June 6.

"The government approves in principle this document but it has suggestions for a number of amendments — substantive and textual — which have been transmitted to Ambassador Habib," Meridor said after an emergency Cabinet meeting.

He insisted "the total" number of guerrillas leaving to other Arab states must be "absolutely equivalent to the number of terrorists in Beirut."

Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir says there are 12,000 PLO, Syrian and armed leftists in the besieged capital while earlier estimates talked only of 6,000 to 9,000 PLO guerrillas.

And Israel's chief of military intelligence, Maj. Gen. Yehoshua Sagel, claimed that asylum in Arab states for 5,000 fighters still needs to be secured.

Israel radio reported that Habib had a list detailing how many guerrillas will go to which Arab state.

Former Lebanese Prime Minister Saeb Salam, a key intermediary between Habib and the PLO, said he had reliable information that 2,400 Syrian and armed leftists will travel by land to Syria along with 2,000 PLO fighters.

Homefront defense

Ken Topolm attempted to extinguish a brush fire Tuesday that burned 45 acres of sagebrush around his home, a red cedar south of town. The fire started about noon when a nearby ditch fire burned out of control and came within 25 feet of his home. The Kimberly Volunteer Fire Department, as well as neighbors, fought the blaze for almost four hours before bringing it under control. At one point, a crop-dusting plane, flown by Marvin Taylor of Twin Falls, assisted the group with a water drop. Although 25 property damage occurred, Topolm said that $2,000 gallons of water from his above-ground swimming pool was used to fight the blaze.

Reagan's tax fight carries high risk

By LOYE MILLER JR.
Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — In going all out for congressional passage of the controversial tax bill, President Reagan has undertaken a grave risk that could undermine his presidency on many fronts.

The bill, which would raise $36.3 billion over three years, was not Reagan's to begin with. It was crafted by Senate Finance Committee Chairman Robert Dole, R-Kan.

But Reagan now has embraced the measure so vigorously that it has become his own — he has willingly laid his prestige squarely on the line.

He thus has evoked what seems the most severe congressional challenge of his administration, as a platoon of angry conservative Republican congressmen have openly revolted against him.

While he has won against seemingly overwhelming odds on Capitol Hill several times in the past, never has the opposition seemed as great as it does now.

Analysis

Yet never has Reagan's lobbying been more open and more fervent than it is now.

So the stage is set for a bruising fight, which Reagan well might lose.

If he does, it would be a severe blow to his power and prestige, destroying the legend of his invincibility in disputes with Congress. The presidential "cloud" would be greatly diminished.

The shock waves of defeat could spread like ripples in a pond, undermining many other aspects of the Reagan programs.

Some shrewd White House aides are acutely aware of this danger.

But they observe that they "need" the tax bill to lower projected deficits over the next three years enough to impress the financial community and thus hasten the now-lagging economic recovery.

Even if this need were not perceived by others at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, Reagan has so totally committed himself to the bill that his staff would have no choice but to go full-throttle in an effort to save their boss's reputation from a damaging blow.

And so almost everything being said and done at the White House this week has "tax bill" written all over it.

On Tuesday, for the second straight day, squads of House members were ushered into the Oval Office for earnest pep talks by Reagan.

Much fanfare accompanied another scheduled event, Reagan's meeting with the presidents of Chrysler Corp. and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce to congratulate them for coming out in support of the bill.

Both Chrysler President Lee Iacocca and Chamber President Paul Thayer spoke enthusiastically about the bill, even though the Chamber's executive committee recently voted 8-4 against endorsing it.

Ballots cast in two special local elections

Hailey says 'no' to annexation of mall

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

HAILEY — The proposed annexation of the controversial 7.5-acre Atkinson-Levin mall property was defeated by Hailey residents in a special election Tuesday.

The final vote tally was 183 against and 66 in favor of annexation.

But the defeat did not disappoint or surprise the developers — grocer Don Atkinson and physician Don Levin — who last week asked voters to defeat the measure.

"We worried that we would have been a real detriment to Hailey taxpayers if we had been annexed,"

Atkinson said following Tuesday's vote.

But annexation also was no longer necessary, since the developers received approval for their plans from the Blaine County commissioners late last month.

"We know what we can do in the county," Atkinson said, "so that's where we want to build. If annexation seems appropriate later, then OK."

Atkinson and Levin plan to build a shopping mall-mall clinic at the site. But the grocer acknowledged that his plans have been "scaled down" in light of a Safeway store under construction just across the road from the proposed mall.

"I am still going to build a full-service grocery store, but it will be scaled down somewhat to adjust to the market that exists here," he said. "Obviously, we may have to share some of that market."

Their next step is to either contract with the city for water and sewer services or to build their own facilities, said Levin's lawyer, Doug Annestad of Ketchum.

But regardless of how those needs are met, Atkinson said construction work will begin this fall.

"Hopefully, some of the foundation work can be done," he said. "The goal is to have people moved in by spring."

Cassia voters give solid approval to levy

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — Voters overwhelmingly approved a $55,000 override levy Tuesday to maintain the fire protection provided by the North Cassia Rural Fire District.

According to Ray Freymiller, the chairman of the fire district board, 671 persons voted in favor of the tax increase, and only 13 voted "no."

The vote was more than enough to obtain the two-thirds majority needed to pass the override.

"It was a real good turnout," said district board member Russell Shockey. "We didn't expect anything like this."

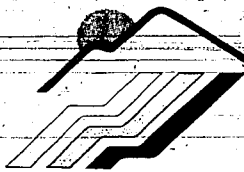

With the affirmative action at the polls, the fire district will be allowed to increase district property taxes by a total of $55,000 a year for each of the next five years. The district now taxes about $25,000 a year to maintain its operation.

Due to the limitations imposed by the One Percent Initiative, the district had not been able to increase its tax assessment to pay for ever-growing expenses.

The success of the override will enable the district to continue paying the city of Burley to maintain and man district fire equipment, Shockey said.

Freymiller had predicted increased fire insurance rates for district residents if the override failed. "I think they could see the savings in the insurance," Shockey said late Tuesday evening in explaining the massive support given the levy request.

Today's briefing

Fonda's condition deteriorating

From Times-News wire services

Representatives of Los Angeles-Cedars-Sinai Hospital revealed today that the condition of actor Henry Fonda is "serious and, despite readjustment of his medication, has worsened. He is suffering from a progression of long-standing and chronic heart condition."

The 77-year-old Academy Award winning actor, who has been in and out of hospitals for the last two years, was admitted to the Los Angeles medical facility early

Sunday morning (Aug. 8) with what a member of his family describes as "a mild heart attack."

His wife Shirley has been close by his side, as have his daughter Jane and son Peter. Peter has revealed that his father has slipped in and out of lucidity during the last few days, and that the family has come to the painful conclusion not to try to prolong the elder Fonda's life by employing the use of a life support system, but to let him go with dignity.

Fonda, who has relied on a pacemaker for the past eight years and has been hospitalized five times in the past 18 months, ended his previous hospital stay July 22.

Earthquake rocks Stanley

STANLEY (UPI) — An earthquake of 4.5 on the Richter scale shook the remote mountainous area 15 miles north of Stanley Tuesday afternoon, and two milder aftershocks also hit the area, a professor with the Boise State University Geophysics Department said.

Chuck Melness said equipment at the Boise university registered the 4.5 reading, which can cause moderate damage, at 1:36 p.m. Aftershocks of 2.2 at 1:57 p.m. and 1.8 at 3:58 p.m. also were measured, he said.

But a Custer County sheriff's dispatcher in Challis said the department's resident deputy in Stanley reported nothing about the quake.

"A quake of this magnitude is unusual," Melness said. "Normally we do get a lot of 1.0 to 2.0 up there, but one of this size is fairly significant."

State revenue collections drop

BOISE (UPI) — An Idaho Legislative Fiscal Office report said Tuesday state general fund revenue last month dipped 17.7 percent below collections in July 1981, endangering plans to survive the current fiscal year without adding to the $40 million budget cut already in force.

Collections declined from $22.9 million in July 1981 to $19.9 million this July, the legislative agency said, explaining that the reduction was so severe because $4 million in revenue was skimmed off the top to pay leftover 1982 income tax refunds.

Revenue from individual income taxes was down 8.4 percent — even without taking into account the diversion of funds for tax refunds from the old fiscal year, said fiscal analyst Jeff Youtz.

State Tax Commission member Darwin Young said a slight uptick in sales tax revenue, coupled with the 8.4 percent income tax revenue drop and figures from other categories, put the overall general fund decline at about 4.5 percent for the month — not counting the $4 million tax-refund allocation.

Woman finds her son's body

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) — A woman discovered her son's decapitated and castrated body in his lakeside home Tuesday, and police investigating the killing found four people next door whose throats had been cut.

Police said they believed all five people died sometime between 6 a.m. and noon Tuesday.

Tarrant County Assistant District Attorney J.M. McIntire said officials were looking for a suspect, although they had no motive.

His said investigators believe the man living alone was the initial target of the suspect and the other four were probably bystanders.

Police said the unidentified woman went to her 31-year-old son's modest, yellow stucco home, just west of Carswell Air Force Base along the heavily wooded shores of Lake Worth, after being unable to reach him by telephone and found his body about 4:30 p.m. CDT.

The man had been decapitated, castrated and stabbed repeatedly. His head and torso were found on the floor of a bedroom, and his genitals were in the kitchen sink, said J.L. Kirkpatrick, an investigator with the Tarrant County Medical Examiner's office.

Police said they went to an adjacent home to ask neighbors if they had seen anything and found the four other bodies — that of a man, two women and a boy. They had all been stabbed several times, police said.

Child killed in bus accident

YAMPA, Colo. (UPI) — A Continental Trailways bus skidded off a mountain highway Tuesday, killing a 3-month-old boy and injuring more than two dozen people.

At least 34 people were aboard the bus, which had left Denver and was headed for Salt Lake City after a stop in Craig, Colo., a Trailways official said.

Authorities said a tire blowout may have been responsible for the accident which occurred at about 6:45 a.m. MDT in the Yampa River Valley south of the resort town of Steamboat Springs.

One passenger, Patricia Tande of Washington D.C., said she was asleep when the bus veered off Colorado Highway 141 less than a mile south of Yampa.

FAA says 3 wrong decisions caused Air Florida crash

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three crucial decisions by the flight crew of an Air Florida jetliner led to the crash of the Boeing 737 into the Potomac River in January, federal safety investigators concluded Tuesday.

Boeing's own Transportation Safety Board examined the probable cause of the crash was the flight crew's failure to use the plane's engine anti-ice system before and during takeoff; the decision to take off with snow and ice on the wings; and the captain's failure to abort takeoff when certain instrument readings showed signs of trouble.

Flight 90, bound for Tampa, Fla., took off from Washington at 11:15 a.m. from Washington's National Airport Jan. 13 and seconds later, plunged into the ice-covered river, killing 78 people. Five of the 79 people aboard survived the crash, which also killed four people on a commuter-clogged bridge clipped by the jet.

The board listed as contributing to the accident a 45-minute delay between the time the plane was last checked and left the ramp, and the 737s to "pitch up" lift their noses sharply — when there are even small amounts of ice or snow on their control surfaces; and the limited winter flying experience of the crew.

After the meeting, Air Florida general counsel Robert Silverberg said that although the airline cannot comment directly on the report, the company has attributed the accident to problems with the design of the 737.

"We concluded that the probable cause of the accident was a severe icing situation that occurred immediately after liftoff of Flight 90, from which recovery was not possible," Silverberg said.

Silverberg said Air Florida is "gratified, although rather belatedly," that Boeing is revising its procedures to allow for use of its wing anti-ice system on the ground.

The Boeing Company has sold about 1,000 of its 737s nationwide, making it the world's second most popular aircraft after the 727.

The company has reported 23 incidents of control problems among 737 operators in the past few years, in which the nose pitched up or the jet rolled from side to side, or both, when

Light turnout marks two primaries

By United Press International

Four-term Rep. James Blanchard became the hope of Democrats Tuesday to end a one-year Republican lock on Michigan's highest office, while Georgians looked to a runoff to choose a probable favorite to become their next governor.

Turnout was light to moderate in both states, despite a scramble by Democrats for the nomination in Georgia and the highest unemployment rate in the country — 14.4 percent — in Michigan.

Blanchard — the best financed Democratic hopeful and strongly backed by Michigan's influential labor unions — seized an early lead and held on to 46 percent of the vote. His closest rival, William Fitzgerald, had 17 percent.

Blanchard, 50, is a former state legislator and a leader for the GOP nomination over Lt. Gov. James Brickley and county prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson.

Headlee had 44 percent of the vote to Brickley's 32 percent and Patterson's 17 percent.

Philip Ruppe, an ex-congressman and wealthy businessman, won the GOP Senate nomination over three candidates and will face Democratic Sen. Donald Riegle, who was first elected to Congress as a Republican in 1968.

Democratic hopes of ending a 20-year Republican reign over the governorship in Michigan have been boosted by the state of the economy and GOP Gov. William Milliken's decision to step down after 14 years.

In Georgia, five-term congressman Bo Ginn and veteran state Rep. Joe Frank Harris moved ahead of four other contenders for the Democratic nomination for governor, with Ginn leading Harris 38.4 percent to 26.7 percent.

However, an Aug. 3 runoff appeared inevitable because neither could achieve the 51 percent majority needed for nomination.

Murder

"On arrival, she was in profound shock. That is, she did not have a blood pressure that we could obtain," Walker reported. Doctors revived the baby's blood pressure through an artery and maintained her through artificial life-support systems, he said.

An analysis of the child's condition revealed two jagged fractures of her skull, internal bleeding in the rear and internal brain swelling.

An EEG (electroencephalogram) revealed no activity in the child's brain, a sign of "brain death," Walker said. Before the child died at 3:15 p.m. on April 12, doctors had discussed turning off the life-support systems.

"But she actually died without us having to intervene in that way," he said.

But under defense lawyer Robert Fallowfield's questioning, Walker conceded that either a woman or a man could have caused the injuries.

"It would be unusual for a woman to be able to do that, but that's certainly possible," he said.

Watson's testimony, which is the only information linking the defendant to the scene of the child's injury, continued to play a major role in Tuesday's defense presentation.

The entire defense presentation focused on it. First, Fallowfield moved for a ruling that Watson had acted as an accomplice in the case. Kramer denied that motion, saying he would not find "in any way" that the woman was an accomplice.

Next, Fallowfield presented evidence to demonstrate the woman's inconsistent accounts of the incident.

Watson testified Monday that Aragon was alone with the child in the bathroom of their apartment when the girl was injured.

She testified that she heard "thumping noises" coming from the bathroom during that time. After briefly checking on the baby and deciding her daughter appeared to be all right, Watson said she left the bathroom.

Watson said she noticed the injuries only after Aragon reported that something was wrong with the child.

Tuesday, Fallowfield produced evidence concerning the woman's statements to authorities immediately following the incident.

For a correction in ambulance attendants Rick Robertson, Watson initially reported that the child was injured.

while she was unattended.

A transcript of Watson's April 10 statement to Ketchum police Chief Cal Nevland revealed that the woman had said that she "didn't hear Aragon's cry or anything, and that she didn't even know when it happened."

A text of Watson's April 12 conversation with Aragon showed that the woman had said, "All I heard was splashing. If I had heard a thud, I would have checked her more closely."

In all, Fallowfield called three witnesses. His presentation lasted about 30 minutes.

On rebuttal, Roark attempted to refute the challenge to Watson's credibility by calling Franz Vickerman of Beloit to the stand.

Vickerman reported that on one occasion, Aragon "picked the baby up and said, 'You little bitch, shut up, and throw her down on the couch.'"

While driving with the defendant, Watson and the child, Vickerman said he overheard Aragon order Watson to "shut the baby up or he was going to throw 'the little bitch out.'"

Congress focuses on trimming spending

By PETER A. BROWN
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Senate-House negotiators laid aside the proposed $39.9 billion tax increase bill Tuesday and turned to working on the package's requirement for spending cuts likely to add up to around $12.5 billion or more.

Only some $2 billion of the total had been tentatively agreed to before Tuesday's meetings began.

Negotiators met for close to three hours before recessing briefly, planning additional talks into the night. Conference Chairman Bob Dole, R-Kan., who also is chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, has said he wants the conference to complete the bill by Wednesday midnight.

A comparison of the areas on which the total package indicates a willingness to yield showed slightly more than $10 billion in cuts favored by both sides, a pattern that would make the final product close to the Senate-passed bill.

But Dole told reporters "we haven't agreed to anything," and said it is possible the items tentatively accepted may not be in the final package.

On Monday the negotiators agreed on most of the less-controversial provisions to tighten income tax compliance enforcement. The total compliance package, as approved by the Senate, would bring in an estimated $9 billion over the 1983-85 period.

The only major tax provision approved so far is one for withholding for tax purposes to percent of income from interest and dividends. The poor and elderly would be exempt.

Still unresolved are provisions to double the 8-cent-a-pack cigarette tax, to reduce write-offs for medical expenses and to cut in half the "three martini lunch" deduction.

The bulk of the increased revenue over the three-year period comes from improved taxpayer compliance through the withholding procedure plus stiffer penalties and reporting requirements and the closing of an array of business tax loopholes.

The two sides have indicated they are close together on slightly more than $10.5 billion in Medicare cuts, including the approximately $2 billion of cuts agreed to last week.

The major component of that package is $6.3 billion in cuts in Medicare reimbursements for hospitals, with much of the financial responsibility falling on patients if the changes are made.

Another $1.1 billion in savings could come from requiring firms to provide their workers aged 65 to 69 with the same comprehensive health coverage afforded younger workers, so the older employees would not have to rely on Medicare.

The negotiators also indicated discussions that could lead to saving $281 million in Aid to Families With Dependent Children, the major welfare program, and $76 million in the child support enforcement program.

Idaho's congressmen aren't teachers' pets

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's all-Republican congressional delegation has been given a "zero" rating by the American Federation of Teachers, which says President Reagan and his lawmakers supporters are trying to destroy many pro-education programs.

In a survey of votes cast on 12 education-related issues, Sens. James McClure and Steve Symms and Reps. George Hansen and Larry Craig voted "wrong" each time, the AFL-CIO-affiliated national teachers' union said.

The voting record of Congress since the Republican sweep to power in the 1980 elections is a chronicle of the most anti-education and anti-anti-administration and congress in history," the federation said.

The votes were selected both to illustrate the ferocity with which the president and his supporters from both parties in the Congress have attacked AFT-supported programs and indicate the nature of the administration's policies.

"The current Congress is dominated by those who follow the Reagan line regardless of the cost to the people," the AFT said.

"Reaganomics uses teachers and school districts as pawns—or the Republican shell game. The 1982 elections can cause the trick to backfire."

The Gern State congressmen reacted Tuesday to the voting record report with charges that the federation is only trying to keep taxpayers' money flowing into wasteful government programs.

"The American Federation of Teachers is a liberally oriented union whose main concern is spending federal dollars," McClure said. "At this point in time, Congress must not further mortgage our children's future by increasing government spending. We should be cutting it."

"I'm not at all ashamed of voting to cut federal spending to support Reagan's attempts to bring the federal budget under control," McClure said.

That organization has a tradition of going after any and every congressman's big money budgets," Hansen said. "Year after year, around election time, we get these news releases condemning us for our unwillingness to vote for these unlimited budget bills."

Hansen said the AFT was not representative of rank-and-file teachers and that he believed he had the support of Idaho teachers.

Craig said he has provided "substantial" support for Idaho school districts and teachers. He contended that issues noted in the AFT survey did not accurately reflect the whole picture of the government's handling of education programs.

"I'm not at all surprised by this," Symms said. "That's an extremely liberal teachers' union that backs every left-wing cause and supports every big-spending, big-government project proposed."

The first-term senator said only two of 12 votes listed in the AFT survey were directly related to education. The exclusively GOP congressional contingents of Idaho and Wyoming were the only delegations to receive complete condemnation from the AFT, the survey said.

All congressmen from the two states consistently voted against budgets favorable to education, approved tax cuts for the rich and the oil industry, wiped out education programs and voted against social security and unemployment compensation as well as food stamps.

In casting ballots on the issues singled out by the teachers' group, McClure voted "wrong" 10 times and was absent for two votes. The federation said Symms voted against legislation it supported nine times and was not present when three other pro-teacher bills were considered.

Hansen voted against AFT-backed bills 11 times and was absent for one measure's consideration, while Craig cast "wrong" ballots all 12 times, according to the group.

Investigators search for more victims of Coral Watts.

Suspect implicates self as 'Sunday Morning Slasher'

By BRIAN FLANIGAN and PATRICIA CHARGOT
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

DETROIT — Coral Eugene Watts, the prime suspect in the Sunday Morning Slasher murders of three Ann Arbor, Mich., women two years ago, implicated himself in as many as 22 unsolved slayings Tuesday — including those in Ann Arbor — while pleading guilty in Houston to burglary with intent to commit murder.

Watts, 28, dressed in a khaki shirt and blue jeans, showed no emotion in Houston as District Judge Doug Shaver accepted his guilty plea to a May 23 incident in which Watts tried to drive a Houston woman in her bathtub during a burglary.

Shaver, who told a reporter that Watts "does not like women ... he thought they were evil ... he'd just find one and kill that particular woman," agreed to wait until next Tuesday before sentencing Watts to be sure that Watts keeps his promise to co-operate in the homicide investigations.

As part of a plea-bargaining agreement, which calls for Watts to be sentenced to 60 years in jail, he also admitted nine killings in the Houston area but will not be charged in those cases.

Watts has already led homicide investigators to two gravesites in Houston, police said.

Prosecutors said Watts also agreed to lead authorities to other graves in Austin and Galveston, Texas, as well as Detroit, Ann Arbor and Kalamazoo, Mich., and Windsor, Ontario, if authorities in those areas offer him immunity from prosecution.

Houston law-enforcement officials said Watts may be responsible for as many as 22 slayings of women. In addition, he is considered the prime suspect in three assaults on women in Windsor.

Investigators from Ann Arbor, Kalamazoo and Windsor were en route to Houston to testify before Shaver about Watts' being the major suspect in their cases.

Watts "has been our prime suspect since July of 1980," said Ann Arbor Police Chief William Corbett of the three slayings in that city.

On April 26, 1980, Shirley Smith, 17, was killed outside her residence at Georgetown Townhouses. Three months later, Glenda Richmond, 23, was found slain outside the University Townhouses. On Sept. 14, Rebecca Huff, a 30-year-old graduate student and former airline stewardess, was found dead outside her apartment in Western Ann Arbor. Corbett said the women had been stabbed to death.

"We interviewed (Watts) on two occasions in depth," Corbett said Tuesday, "and each time we became more convinced he was our man." Since being arrested in Houston, Watts has been interviewed again by Corbett's investigators, but Corbett declined to say what was discussed.

Corbett credited a Detroit police officer with providing information that led to Watts' becoming a suspect. The Detroit officer, who was familiar with Watts' record, phoned Corbett after the second Ann Arbor slaying and suggested that investigators check with Kalamazoo police, since Watts had been a prime suspect in a coed's slaying in that city.

Lawyers postpone ethics action

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The American Bar Association Tuesday postponed taking a position on a controversial revision of the ethics code governing lawyers' professional conduct.

The 387-member House of Delegates, which makes policy for the lawyers' organization, spend 4½ hours of fruitless debate over two provisions in the voluminous code which seemed to reflect the deep internal divisions in the group attempting to update rules adopted in 1969 that guide lawyers' professional behavior.

A special commission has been studying the issue for five years and recommended changes in the code that run into thousands of pages.

"While the rules do not have the force of law, once they are adopted by each state, they may be used in disciplining attorneys and perhaps in malpractice suits brought by unhappy clients," the federal, taken by a voice vote, means the nation will now take up again by the delegates at their mid-year meeting in February.

Although they were barely touched on during the debate, the most controversial provisions were those that would require "whistleblowing" by lawyers if their clients threatened or were involved in fraud or other crimes.

Opposition to the code was read by two trial lawyers groups who said requiring lawyers to disclose client secrets would destroy the traditional adversary system and discourage necessary "divulging" confidences necessary to good legal advice.

Despite vigorous opposition, the delegates defeated a motion to discharge the commission that drew up the new ethics code, which has cost the organization $60,000.

Idaho Power blasts PUC ruling

BOISE (UPI) — Calling the state Public Utilities Commission's order "unreasonable, unlawful, erroneous and unduly discriminatory," Idaho Power Co. requested Tuesday a rehearing in a case involving the purchase of electricity from a small power producer in Wyoming.

The commission has ordered Idaho Power to enter into a 35-year contract with Afton Energy Inc., Everett, Wash., by Wednesday — to purchase electricity from the firm's Afton, Wyo., wood-burning plant at a price already fixed by the PUC.

The utility protested that ruling, however, saying the PUC was overstepping its authority by essentially "setting the terms" of Idaho Power's contract with Afton Energy.

The petition for a rehearing in the case asked the commission to rescind the portion of the order requiring Idaho Power to sign the contract with Afton for the fixed long-term price.

Idaho Power Chief Executive James Bruce said the utility would appeal the case to the Idaho Supreme Court if necessary.

He said he believed the commission order would amount to "tying everybody's hands for 35 years," and place the burden on paying for "After electricity on the ratepayers."

"Such a bad business decision" requiring the company to pay a cogenerator far higher rates than rates at which the company can buy power from other sources, he said, would have a serious financial effect on all Idaho Power customers, Bruce said.

The utility's petition for a rehearing said Idaho Power "does not dispute the fact that the commission has authority to require Idaho Power to purchase power from a qualifying facility."

Explosion levels fireworks plant

SEABROOK, N.H. (UPI) — A fireworks factory was flattened Tuesday in an explosion "like an earthquake" that killed two people and injured five but did not damage the unfinished Seabrook nuclear power plant next door, fire officials said.

The 2:30 p.m. blast at the Rockingham Fireworks Co. on Route 1 was felt a one-quarter mile away as windows were blown out and groceries were rattled off shelves in a supermarket. The cause was not immediately known.

"It was like a mushroom cloud ... it was just like an atom bomb going off," said Peter Hussey, 24, of Amesbury, Mass., a gasoline attendant at the Whistle Stop Convenience Store about 100 feet away from the factory.

"There was debris up in the air too, big chunks," he said.

Hussey said he and several others at the station had to grab each other to keep from falling down during the explosion.

The blast also blew out two windows in the front of the convenience store.

House votes against pipeline embargo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Foreign Affairs Committee Tuesday voted to lift the embargo on the sale of U.S. equipment that could be used to build the Soviet Union's natural gas pipeline to Western Europe.

The 22-12 vote reflected concern in Congress that the sanctions Reagan imposed against the Soviets in retaliation for the Soviet-supported crackdown in Poland are causing more harm to the United States in terms of lost jobs and strained relations with U.S. allies.

The committee voted to rescind both the original ban Reagan imposed in December on the sale of equipment produced by U.S. firms and his extension of the embargo in June to cover foreign subsidiaries of U.S. firms and equipment manufactured abroad under license from U.S. firms.

The governments of France, Italy and England have announced they will defy the embargo that Reagan imposed "settling the matter" given by the Export Administration Act.

The House bill, sponsored by Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., does not eliminate the president's authority and even if the measure became law Reagan could simply reimpose the sanctions if he saw fit.

Committee Chairman Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., said the pipeline embargo only stiffen Soviet resolve in Poland.

Rep. Jonathan Bingham, D-N.Y.,

said the embargo also imposes sanctions on our allies and "treats them as schoolchildren." He said the damage to U.S. relations with the allies is "severe."

"We cannot afford throwing people out of work for no gain," Rep. Bill Clinton, D-N.Y., said.

Rep. William Brock, R-Mich., ranking Republican on the committee, defended the administration, saying the sanctions represent "a carefully thought out policy."

Harris media jabs are at wrong target

At the risk of seeming to close ranks with journalistic colleagues when a challenge is made, we think Ada County Prosecutor Jim Harris is after the wrong culprits in his attack on the Boise news media for coverage and editorials on the jail death of 17-year-old Chris Peterman in the Ada County Jail.

Monday, Harris lashed out at The Idaho Statesman in particular for what he called an "anti-law enforcement" editorial position that has "tended to undermine the public's faith in its law-enforcement agencies."

We'd like to be sympathetic to Harris, who strikes us as a dedicated, if sometimes over-zealous prosecutor with obvious ambitions to higher political office. But in this case, we think he is wrong.

It is not the Boise media that controlled the jail in which young Peterman was subjected to hours of torture on Memorial Day weekend. That is Ada County Sheriff Chuck Palmer's office.

It is not the Boise media that decided to drop charges against a fifth juvenile defendant, despite the youth's admission that he participated in hitting Peterman. That is Harris's office.

We think The Statesman's editorial position calling for an independent investigation of these, and other aspects of the case, is appropriate, and we echo that call. A court-called grand jury investigation seems to us to be the best vehicle.

Juvenile justice in Idaho is clearly in need of a close examination, and we're afraid that there will be only reports and no reform, from Peterman's tragic, senseless death. Equally disturbing is the prospect that what happened to Chris Peterman could happen elsewhere in Idaho jails.

Attorney General David Leroy's office has completed a report on Peterman's death that touched on some of these aspects; but we agree with The Statesman that the report needs amplification.

It appears that Harris is lashing out at the media, always a convenient target, because the media are raising tough questions that so far haven't been answered.

If, as he claims, Harris is most concerned with the fair administration of justice in Ada County, he ought to welcome a grand jury investigation into the Peterman death.

What to wear when you grow up

Editor's note: Art Buchwald is recycling some of his best columns whilst he and his family soak up the sun and enjoy the soft sea breeze of the Falkland Islands, otherwise known as "Maggie's Vineyard."

This is the time of year when fathers sit down and have heart-to-heart talks with their sons.

"Son, now that you have graduated, your mother feels I would not be fulfilling my duties as a father if I did not explain certain facts about life to you."

"Yes, Dad."

"First, I would like to show you a few things that you will have to deal with in the outside world. For example, this item is called a necktie."

"What do you do with it?"

"You tie it around your neck like this and wear it with a shirt."

"What for?"

"Nobody is quite sure. But when you go out into the cold world, people will expect you to wear one. It's the Establishment's answer to the peace symbol."

"It sure looks funny. What else, Dad?"

"This, my boy, is a suit — what are you laughing at?"

"The jacket matches the pants. Hey, that's really crazy."

"Yes, the jacket does match the pants, and you will be expected to wear them together during the 'daytime'."

"But the pants have a crease in the front. What's that for?"

"I'm not certain of its purpose, but now that you are an adult, you are supposed to keep a crease in your pants."

"Man, what will they think of next?"

"Son, I wish you wouldn't take our talk lightly. Perhaps I should have explained these things to you before, but I didn't want to ruin your school days. Yet what I am telling you now will have a great effect on everything you do."

"Sorry, Dad, but you have to admit wearing a tie and a jacket that matches the pants — what do you call it, a suit? — is a pretty funny idea."

"Can we proceed? These queer-looking leather things are called shoes. Do you have any idea what they're used for?"

"Beats me."

"You put them on your feet to protect them from sharp objects."

"I don't want to wear anything like that, Dad. I'll take my chances."

"I don't know how to break it to you, son, but most places require grown-ups to wear shoes."

"Look, Dad, if you want me to, I will wear a necktie, and I'll even go along with the jacket and matching pants with a crease in them; but I'm not going to put those stupid leather things on my feet."

"Shoes, son, shoes. Believe me, you'll get used to them. After a while you might even get to like them and keep them polished."

"You mean I have to polish them, too?"

"You don't have to, but they look better that way and last longer. Here, put on these socks and then..."

"Socks?"

"Yes. You wear them inside the shoes so the leather won't rub your feet."

"I thought the shoes were supposed to protect my feet."

"Provided you wear socks. Son, please don't make this too difficult for me. I'm not very good at explaining the facts of life, but believe me, I've been telling you the truth."

"I'm sorry, Dad. It's just that you've thrown all this stuff at me at one time, and it comes as a shock."

"Perhaps we've talked enough for one day. Tomorrow, I'd like to tell you about a thing called a razor."

"Razor? That's a funny word."

Letters / "...the Idaho Republican party has swallowed the right-to-work issue..."

Why no real flowers?

I have lived in Twin Falls for over 30 years. In all these years, I have enjoyed the summer time beauty of our city — the parks, especially, and the way they have been maintained. However, the plastic flower arrangement on the corner of Shoshone and Sixth Avenue East at the War Memorial is a disgrace to the living as well as the honored dead.

It's hard to believe that the city of Twin Falls cannot afford real flowers and the water it takes to keep them beautiful.

I wonder what the people that come into Twin Falls and use the City Park for whatever reason must think. Maybe they think as I did when I first noticed. What is this, some kind of joke?

I know that the city is trying to cut "corners," but why in the world is it this small corner?

ROSE MARIE STAGMEYER
Twin Falls

Editor's Note: Twin Falls City Manager Tom Courtney said that, because of the work hours required, the city no longer maintains a number of small park areas like the flower bed. Some, such as the downtown mall flower beds, have been taken over by other groups, merchants and individuals, he said. Courtney said that if a club or civic organization came forward and agreed to maintain the war memorial flower bed, the city would be "more than willing" to buy the flowers and supply the water.

Hess attempts whitewash

Leroy Hess, who claims to be a Republican, has outdone himself in his attempt to whitewash Gov. John Evans' anti-business record.

During my service in the Legislature, I have had occasion first hand to deal with John concerning incentives to business. He has vetoed attempts by the Legislature to reduce burdensome rules and regulations and to provide tax credits for producing investments by farms and businesses.

He also vetoed attempts to adjust our usury rate to provide necessary capital and turned down over $30 million dollars of property tax relief.

In fixing property tax relief, Gov. Evans

Plastic flowers: a disgrace to the dead said, "The tax relief proposed by this bill might be defensible if it would show up in the economy, but... large corporations and utilities would not pass on the relief to consider utility taxes when it sets rates."

Tell that to the miners who lost their jobs because Bunker Hill couldn't turn a profit. Tell that to the Public Utilities Commission which is required to consider utility taxes when it sets rates.

Phil Batt is action oriented and he'll stimulate business after he is elected. But when Batt points out the difference between his business posture and that of Gov. Evans, Leroy Hess calls it "vicious lies."

Maybe it's time Mr. Hess tells us who is behind his activities, as I certainly do not believe he is a Republican. I have been active in Republican circles for several decades. I have never heard of Mr. Hess being involved in Republican functions nor contributing any funds to the Party.

It's time to expose him for what he really is. He is masquerading behind the Republicans for Evans' banner so that he can take cheap shots for Gov. Evans' re-election committee.

Thank you, George Hansen

There are a few areas in the 2nd Congressional District that owe a real debt of gratitude to Congressman George Hansen. Now that the General Accounting Office Report is complete, we find out that the Federal Agencies (BPA & REA) along with WPPSS were in deep trouble and went after the BE utilities to — in effect — bail out these federal agencies.

This GAO investigation and Hansen's flat rate tax proposal are just the latest in a whole series of things that show how the big money people keep trying to rip off the little guy.

Thank you, Congressman Hansen, appreciate what you are doing.

GRANT P. PACKER JR.
Idaho Falls

Journal attack no surprise

Some of Congressman George Hansen's critics have been complaining that he's always in a fight with the government.

The Congressman's fights for the people include, among other things, a victory over OSHA in the Supreme Court, a victory over the Immigration Service for using illegal practices on Idaho farmers, and bringing the son of an Idaho school teacher home from Bolivia who was being held illegally in prison.

Each time George Hansen takes on one of these fights, his political enemies and opposition try to hurt him, but so far the people of Idaho have been too smart to be fooled. But they try every dirty trick to do George in with more dirty tricks.

Surely it didn't surprise anyone to see the Wall Street Journal try to side-track Congressman Hansen's exposure of how Idaho money by the millions is being siphoned to the Wall Street financial brokers in New York.

Election may be polarized

The 1992 election in Idaho is fast shaping itself into a polarized, single issue contest: the Democratic Party-Labor movement alliance versus the Republican Party-right-to-work movement alliance.

As both a union member and a Republican, I have for quite some time attempted to separate the so-called right-to-work movement from the Republican party's basic political philosophies. Despite these attempts, right-to-work's hold on Idaho Republicanism has become increasingly stronger. The vast majority of Republicans favor right-to-work legislation because they have no knowledge of how a labor union works. All labor union leaders are elected in free, democratically conducted elections (most by secret ballot).

Whenever a craft is working under a closed shop contract, that arrangement has been entered into by the members of that craft through a referendum election process. If a craft wishes to revert to an open shop, it arranges for the craft leadership to be directed by the rank and file to negotiate such a contract.

If the majority of Republicans understood the labor movement as I do, I believe that they would not regard labor as an evil mouthful but rather as a great pool of political strength from which Republicans could draw.

With the single exception of the so-called right-to-work issue, the majority of Idaho union members are much closer to the national Republican platform positions on gun control, welfare, deficit spending, prayer in schools, and abortion than they are to the national Democratic platform positions on these same issues. However the Idaho Republican party has swallowed the right-to-work issue, and in so doing has totally alienated organized labor in Idaho.

Historically, Idaho Labor and Idaho Republicanism have not always been at loggerheads. Idaho's most famous statesman, Sen. William Borah, was a Republican who enjoyed the support of Idaho labor unions.

No such Labor-Republican coalition exists in this election year. In recent elections the so-called right-to-work issue has been a peripheral issue. In this election, right-to-work is the dominant issue. As a union member, I find that I cannot support a political candidate of either party who will not afford to Idaho union members the same basic right of association and organization that is now being denied to Polish Solidarity members.

Idahoans who have freely associated — themselves into labor unions are not to be feared or mistrusted. They are fathers, mothers, neighbors, Democrats, and yes, Republicans. They are concerned about their futures and the communities in which they live. Labor Union members ask only that they be allowed the same freedom of association enjoyed by doctors, lawyers, realtors, and chamber of commerce members.

Iranian artillery inflicts 'heavy casualties'

By SAJID RIZVI
United Press International

Iran claimed Tuesday its invasion forces inflicted heavy casualties and damages during shelling of the strategic Iraqi oil port of Basra in the latest but inconclusive round of fighting in the 23-month Persian Gulf War.

A war communique issued in Tehran and carried by the official Islamic Republic News Agency said Iranian troops killed "more than 50 Iraqis" and wounded "many others" in fighting along the border with Iraq. Iraqi forces "suffered heavy casualties and damage" and were "forced to flee" because of the shelling, the Iranian agency said. In Baghdad, the official Iraqi news agency said its forces killed eight Iraqis in the latest fighting of the war that began Monday. Iranian forces have been fighting inside Iraq since a July 13 invasion by an estimated 100,000 revolutionary guards sent by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini to oust President Saddam Hussein.

Iraq claims to have repulsed five Iranian attempts to overrun the key oil port of Basra. Iraq said the targets were destroyed near the island of Khor Mussa, a recently built naval base southeast of the Shatt al Arab waterway.

Fierce fire fight escalates guerrilla war in Afghanistan

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Moslem rebels trying to destroy an ammunition dump in Afghanistan's capital of Kabul killed 29 Soviet soldiers in what Western diplomats Tuesday called the city's "most intense fire fighting of the year."

Western observers in Kabul took cover on rooftops to witness the seven-hour battle—a week ago that echoed through the war-torn city. They said artillery, rocket, machine gun and automatic rifle exchanges "lit up the sky."

Guerrillas battled Soviet and Afghan troops from 10 p.m. curfew until 5 a.m. last Tuesday but were forced to attempt to destroy an ammunition dump at Bala Hissar, a fort between the Old City and Shahshahid on the eastern edge of Kabul.

The diplomats quoted a source as saying the rebels were aided by a "lack of enthusiasm shown by Soviet and regime forces" in the Kabul fighting.

Afghan government forces during one battle purposely shot over the heads of the rebels, they said. Others refused to fight and fled, leaving behind full ammunition magazines for the rebels, the diplomats said.

They said the battle was "the most intense fire fighting of the year" in Kabul, but reported no guerrilla casualties.

Diplomats also said they continued to receive reports of a shake-up in the ruling Soviet-backed government of President Babrak Karmal.

A diplomat in Islamabad, Pakistan, said Maj. Gen. Gul Aga, political affairs chief of the armed forces, had been ousted and replaced by Yasin Siddiqi, an engineer.

Government-run media reported the first vice president of Kabul's secret police, Abdul Jamil Nooristani, has not been seen at work for a week. There also were reports Interior Minister Sayed Mohammad Gulabzai is on his way out.

The diplomats said there "was hardly a family not affected in Kabul" by the government's new conscription order that extended the age of military service to 39 and lengthened the term of service from one to three years.

Shops and the bazaars were closed last Tuesday and Wednesday as shop owners either hid or were taken away by soldiers to serve in the Army.

Soviet troops north of Kabul in the Shomali region, the diplomats said, have gained the upper hand in a cluster of villages by carving out "fire free zones," where civilians risk their lives if they enter.

"Travelers report no sign of life near the main highway leading north to Kabul," they said. "The entire population fled" two villages in the region.

The diplomats also reported significant fighting among the Moslem rebel factions in the Shomali area who have been battling Soviet and Afghan troops since the December 1979 Soviet invasion.

General says Argentina needs army

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Argentina's ousted Air Force commander warned Tuesday that the military must participate in the next civilian government to avoid a "dictatorship of the vote."

Gen. Basilio Lami Dozo resigned last week after he proposed the formation of an official military political party.

Discarding the military's influence in Argentina could mean "the installation of a dictatorship. Just as if it were based on the force of arms, it would be based on the force of votes."

He said in his final speech to mark the 70th anniversary of the Air Force. "The armed forces' 6 1/2 year effort to rebuild Argentina after the 1976 military coup is not complete, he said. A premature return to disorderly civilian rule could jeopardize any progress that has been made.

"We have not built democracy, that's for sure. We have merely tried to establish the basis for it," Lami Dozo said.

"Free elections are necessary but the country, which time after time turns to the armed forces when the country is in danger," does not want the military to pull out of the government completely, he said.

"This isn't the case of losing the country to the political parties, as if you rid yourself of a red-hot coal, saying: 'There you have it, govern it,'" Lami Dozo said.

"On the contrary, we should say: 'Here is the Republic, free of the threat of dictatorship, protected by terrorism,'" he said.

What's what

Look into the personal backgrounds of artists and writers, as researchers have done, and you, too, may find that an astonishingly high proportion experienced close relatives. It's another pattern that has turned up in psychological studies. These findings are respectable, I'm sure, but it is not also true that an astonishingly high proportion of the citizenry in general experience such premature death in the family? Think so.

Q. I know Alaska is the No. 1 state as far as coastline goes. But what state is No. 2?

A. Florida. Not all realize Florida has 800 more miles of coastline than California, even.

SNAKES AND FISH

Am asked if snakes and fish can hear. In another sense, they can. A snake's tongue registers sound vibrations just as those ribbon nerves from head to tail along a fish's sides register sound vibrations. They hear, all right, but with different mechanisms.

Q. Is heroin addiction incurable?

A. Not at all. Many shake it out by themselves and then go on about their business, almost ever after about it, but determined never to get hooked again.

Q. Who was the first movie star pictured on an official postage stamp?

A. Grace Kelly.

TRAVEL COSTLY

To take your family of four by car on summer vacation now, air, will cost you $150 a day, if your expenses are typical. That, from the American Automobile Association.

It is a predictable matter of record, too, that major league baseball players who are traded develop a higher batting average against their former teams than against other teams in the league.

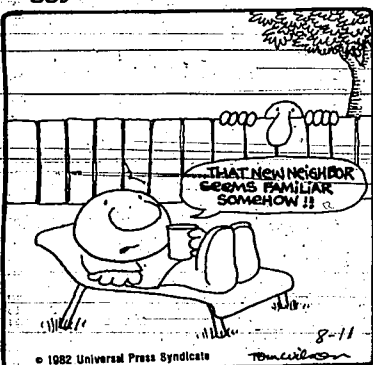

Q. What proportion of the children live with one parent only?

A. One in five.

Claim is every second person nationwide is related to somebody who's an alcoholic.

Viking voyager

Surrounded by modern small craft, the American-built replica of a Viking ship, the "Hjakenkomst" — homecoming — sails into the harbor of Oslo, Norway, on Monday afternoon. The ship's journey of several months took it from the Great Lakes, down the St. Lawrence seaway, and across the Atlantic Ocean, retracing the route of the Vikings between Europe and North America.

Red tape snarls island-wrapper

MIAMI (UPI) — Just when the artist Christo thought he had won all the permits he needs to plunge ahead with his project to wrap 10 Biscayne Bay Islands in frangipani-pink polypropylene fabric, another hurdle has arisen.

The latest voice of opposition is that of environmentalist Jack Kassewitz Jr., who made headlines last month when he spearheaded a drive to save a herd of deer in the Florida Everglades during a state-ordered "mercy kill."

Now, Kassewitz, who heads National Wildlife Rescue Team Inc., says he is opposed to Christo's project and will urge the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to turn down the project because it could harm the bay's endangered brown pelicans and manatees.

"What good is the art if it does harm to the animals?" Kassewitz said. "There are five manatees in the area. They could come under the curtain and get stuck."

CALL "A brown pelican just learning to hunt could fly through the fabric and break its wing. If one thing happens to those animals, it will be an arrestable offense."

Christo's project, entitled "Surrounded Islands," calls for wrapping 10 bay islands with 5 million square feet of frangipani-pink polypropylene fabric for two weeks in March.

He would encircle the islands with the 250-foot wide mesh fabric. It would rest "on the surface" and be held in place with anchors.

The Bulgarian-born artist plans to use helicopters to drop the fabric in place and then have volunteers pull the fabric around the islands. He envisions the islands resembling huge water lilies.

"The Army Corps of Engineers is not expected to act on Christo's application until the state Department of Environmental Regulation makes a final decision on whether to permit the project."

Llama Louie needs home

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Louie the llama needs a new home.

Louie's owner, Glenn Mulholland, placed ads in Pittsburgh newspapers over the weekend, reading: "LLAMA: Male, chocolate, $800, 845-7825."

So far, the llama lovers of the world, have not been beating a path to Mulholland's door in nearby West Leechburg.

"I'm one of these suckers who gets taken in" and buys a llama," he said. "You wind up having a llama you can't get rid of."

The one caller the ad has produced was from a sheep-owner.

"Some lady from Franklin wanted to buy the animal. She thought it would be good to run with her sheep and keep dogs away. I had to tell her the truth. He's afraid of dogs," Mulholland said.

Arizona 'roast' brings pot power

JOSEPH CITY, Ariz. (UPI) — A "pot roast" will help produce electricity for Arizonans today.

Tons of marijuana will be mixed with coal, crushed and pulverized and fed into a steam generator at the Arizona Public Service Cholla Power Plant near Joseph City.

More than 30,000 pounds of marijuana will be burned in an operation unofficially dubbed "Pot Roast" by the state Department of Public Safety. The marijuana was seized during various criminal investigations around the state and is being burned under court order.

In the past, marijuana has been burned in open pits in desolate areas.

Governors gather

Conference votes down balanced budget amendment

By CLAY F. RICHARDS
UPI Political Writer

AFTON, Okla. (UPI) — The nation's governors narrowly rejected a resolution Tuesday calling for a constitutional amendment to require a balanced federal budget after one member said it would destroy the states.

Winding up their three-day conference at a lakeside resort, the National Governors' Association voted 26-10 for the amendment, short of the three-fourths majority the group's rules require for items placed on the agenda at the last minute.

Every governor who spoke during the often sharp debate agreed a balanced budget is necessary to cure the nation's economic woes, but opponents said the first thing that would happen under a constitutional amendment would be a cut-in-aid-to-the-states.

Wisconsin's Republican Gov. Lee Dreyfus called it an "anti-economic-suicide clause in our Constitution," but its chief opponent, Democrat Jay Rockefeller of West Virginia said it would lead to "the most total devastation of human services" and rapid "annihilation of the states."

Earlier, President Reagan won a victory of sorts when the governors backed away from a threat to circumvent the White House and go directly to Congress with their own plan for new federalism.

Six months of negotiation between Reagan and the governors on his plan for sending most federal programs back to the states has produced a stalemate.

Vermont's Gov. Richard Snelling, outgoing association chairman, after two days of negotiations with presidential aide Rich Williamson, backed off his plan to talk directly with Congress.

Williamson, convinced the governors are their strongest ally in the battle for more power.

The governors voted to draw up their own plan independently of the White House and have it ready for their winter meeting in January, but also agreed to continue negotiations with the administration.

Williamson said that change indicates the governors have "an appreciation that to get Congress to embrace this, you've got to have bipartisan support and the president's backing."

"We are retaining our negotiating position with the president," said Utah Gov. Scott Matheson, a Democrat, the new chairman of the conference.

'New Federalism' tackled differently

UPI Senior Editor

AFTON, Okla. (UPI) — The National Governors' Association Tuesday backed away from a go-it-alone challenge to the White House on New Federalism and called for a "dual track" effort to return federal programs to state control.

The governors, winding up a three-day meeting at a lakeside resort in northeastern Oklahoma, unanimously approved an "action plan" that will continue efforts to cut a New Federalism deal with President Reagan while also preparing a separate program of their own.

The outgoing chairman of the association, GOP Gov. Richard Snelling of Vermont, originally wanted to bypass President Reagan and go directly to Congress with the governors' plan if the long-running negotiations did not bear fruit.

But he retreated to the "dual track" approach of a series of meetings Monday with Reagan's personal representative at the meeting and with Democratic Gov. Scott Matheson of Utah, the incoming chairman.

The essence of the resolution was that the governors would continue their long but so far fruitless negotiations with Reagan and prepare their own bill. But there was no mention of taking the group's bill directly to Congress next winter, a step that would have been interpreted as a challenge of Reagan's leadership on his own New Federalism initiative.

The New Federalism proposal was approved by voice vote without dissent.

Presidential aide Rich Williamson, Reagan's man-at-the-conference, in-an-appearance-on ABC's "Good Morning America" program, described the governors' action as "pretty healthy give-and-take and the changes, if anything, have made the program stronger."

Snelling, on the same program, said that with Reagan's proposal as well as the governors' "in essence we'll have a dual track, we'll have two separate opportunities to design a federalism that will be wholesome and acceptable to the president, acceptable to Congress. I think that enhances all the opportunities of success probably by the next congressional session."

Williamson predicted, "In certain areas, we'll be able to reach agreement."

The governors dickered with Reagan for six months trying to agree on reallocation of 40 federal programs, including such budget-busters as Medicaid, food stamps and welfare.

Condemned man gets execution wish

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — The Supreme Court Monday ruled in a last-minute stay of execution, allowing the state of Virginia to execute convicted murderer Frank Coppola.

Coppola, a former policeman who preferred death to Death Row, went calmly to his execution Tuesday night in Virginia's electric chair saying, "I take care of my family, my children."

Coppola, who maintained his innocence but said he wanted to be executed to spare his family further embarrassment, died at 6:27 p.m. EDT, state corrections director Ray Procunier said.

Coppola became the fifth convict executed in the United States since 1976 when the Supreme Court lifted the ban on capital punishment and the first to die in Virginia's electric chair in 20 years.

The U.S. Supreme Court, in a 5-2 ruling announced 30 minutes before Coppola's scheduled 9 p.m. MDT execution, cleared the way for Coppola, 38, to die as he requested in a letter he sent Tuesday to Chief Justice Warren Burger. The high court's ruling overturned a mid-afternoon stay by a federal appeals court judge.

"Frank J. Coppola, do hereby seek relief through the U.S. Supreme Court so as to bring about my execution this date," Coppola said in the letter.

Coppola was convicted of beating a Newport News woman to death in 1978 during a robbery in an attempt to make her tell where money was hidden in her home.

Gov. Charles Robb said, "While I respect the beliefs and convictions of those who oppose capital punishment under any and all circumstances, the law of the Commonwealth provides for that penalty under certain, very limited circumstances, and I support the law."

Warden James Mitchell read the execution order to Coppola, whose head was shaved, and then escorted him to the death chamber 30 paces from his cell.

Mitchell inserted a key in a slot in the death chamber, which opened the current and at the same time activated a signal to the executioner to push a button, sending two 55-second bursts of 2,400 volts through Coppola's body.

The execution took place after a day of legal maneuvering.

Lawyers — working without Coppola's permission — won an 11th-hour stay from Judge John Butner of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. Butner stopped the execution shortly before 1 p.m. MDT.

Butner overruled a federal district judge who late Monday refused a stay and kept Coppola on course to the death chamber.

Lawyers from Virginia Attorney General Gerald Baliles' office flew to Washington and filed an appeal of the stay at 7:25 p.m. with Burger. The Supreme Court, only 30 minutes before the scheduled execution, vacated the stay on a 5-2 vote and allowed the state to kill Coppola.

"After consideration of the matters presented by the application of the petitioners, the application is granted and the stay... is hereby vacated," the Supreme Court said.

Jury awards $4,000 to drunken car buyer

PAINESVILLE, Ohio (UPI) — A jury had awarded $4,000 damages to a woman who claimed she was intoxicated and did not know what she was doing when she bought two used cars.

Joyce Dahlstrom, 42, of nearby Mentor, had filed suit in Lake County Common Pleas Court against an auto dealer in Painesville, charging she was coerced into buying two cars on May 29, 1981.

Several witnesses, including the woman's son, testified during a three-day trial which ended Monday that Mrs. Dahlstrom showed signs of being intoxicated while she was negotiating with a salesman.

"During the signing of the papers... she was leaning on her knees, her eyes were closed and she was about to pass out," said Mrs. Dahlstrom's 18-year-old son, John.

Bill for Cabinet chauffeurs increases

By MICHAELA HOBBS
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

WASHINGTON — The personal driver for Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis earns about $20,000 a year in regular salary. But 1981 was a very good year for Lewis' chauffeur. He made an extra $21,000 in overtime pay last year.

According to a General Accounting Office report, Lewis is not the only Reagan administration Cabinet member with a chauffeur who has been able to add hefty overtime pay to his base salary.

The GAO report, made public Tuesday by Rep. Adam Ertel, D-Pa., notes that combined overtime pay for Lewis' chauffeur and the personal driver for Treasury Secretary Donald Regan increased by more than 50 percent from 1980 to 1981 — from $24,233 to $38,125.

The GAO study also revealed that taxpayers are footing the bill for personal cooks and servants assigned other Cabinet secretaries.

At the Transportation Department, Lewis and other top officials eat their meals in a private dining room staffed by cooks and waiters who are members of the Coast Guard. The study put the yearly cost of their services at $111,000 in public funds.

The 10-page GAO report shows what Ertel called a "disturbing increase" in overtime from 1980 to 1981 for personal drivers in 10 other Cabinet departments and government agencies, and foresaw no substantial overtime reductions in 1982.

Ertel, a three-term liberal Democrat from central Pennsylvania who is challenging incumbent Republican Gov. Dick Thornburgh in the November election, said at a news conference Tuesday that Lewis, Regan and other Cabinet members were abusing the perks of their high positions in ordering the "questionable" overtime payments.

When a reporter asked if the Cabinet members might explain that the overtime was due the demands of their jobs, Ertel said, "I don't know whether going to a cocktail party is working overtime."

He added that Lewis, "as head of the Transportation Department, should drive his own car and find out what the roads are like."

Ertel conceded that Cabinet members in previous administrations have taken advantage of the same perks and said he had been critical of Carter administration officials for similar abuses.

Ertel also attacked Veterans Administration chief Robert Nimmo earlier this year for spending more than $45,000 sprucing up his office with new carpeting, a new private bathroom and other items in violation of a presidential directive against "unnecessary" remodeling.

Judge says Rev. Moon shouldn't be deported

NEW YORK (UPI) — The federal judge who sentenced the Rev. Sun Myung Moon to 18 months in prison said Tuesday he will recommend to the attorney general that the 62-year-old Korean evangelist not be deported.

The recommendation by Judge Gerard Goettel would be binding on the Justice Department.

It applies only to Moon's conviction in May on charges of failing to report as personal income the money he got in interest from stocks and a $1.6-million bank account. Goettel said he believed the prison sentence and deportation proceedings based on that conviction would represent excessive punishment.

"I have given this matter considerable thought," he said. "I find the government's argument to leave the matter to an Immigration Judge to be practical."

Moon — the founder and spiritual leader of the Unification Church, still faces possible deportation, because the government could try to deport him on allegations he made false statements to become a resident alien in 1973.

FARM FOR SALE

The Government is offering for sale the former Patrick S. Russell farm. This is a 560 acre farm, 300 acres sprinkler irrigated. 100 acres could be developed; 560 inches of Snake River water. The farm is located 9 miles northwest of Grand View, Idaho. The property may be purchased for cash with 25 percent down and the balance in ten (10) equal annual installments. All bids must be accompanied by a certified check, cashier's check, postal money order, or bank money order payable to the Treasurer of the United States for at least five percent (5%) of the total bid. The property may be inspected at any time. Additional information and bid forms can be obtained from the Farmers' Home Administration, 286 South Third West, Mountain Home, Idaho, 83647, telephone number (208) 587-9791. The opening of the sealed bids for the property will be public. Bids will be opened at 10:00 a.m. at the Farmers Home Administration, Mountain Home Office, on Wednesday, August 18, 1982. The Government reserves the right to reject any and all bids. This property will be sold without regard to race, color, sex, age, religion, national origin, or marital status.

Outbreak of whooping cough strikes state

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The largest outbreak of whooping cough in 10 years has hit Idaho, primarily in the eastern part of the state.

Thirteen cases of the infectious disease have been confirmed, two of them in Jerome County, according to South Central District Health Department officials.

The victims were young children — five weeks to seven years old — who either were not vaccinated properly against the disease or were too young to receive vaccinations, health department officials say. No deaths from the disease have been reported.

Floven of the affected children live in the American Falls or Rexburg area.

In 1981, only four cases of whooping cough (known medically as pertussis) were reported in Idaho, according to figures kept by the state Bureau of Vital Statistics.

In District Five, which includes Magic Valley, the last reported case of whooping cough occurred in 1976, when Twin Falls County had five of the 10 cases reported in the state. The last case reported in Jerome County was in 1972.

Childhood whooping cough is a serious disease, according to Dr. Ben Katz, the health department's medical consultant. He said it can be prevented by immunizations.

The disease is commonly called whooping cough because victims suffer a series of violent coughs, followed by a high-pitched "whoop" when they are able to take a breath.

It is of special concern for children under 1, because 70 percent of the deaths caused by the disease occur in that age group, according to the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

Complications from whooping cough include pneumonia, ear infections, encephalitis, emphysema and brain damage. About 1,000 to 3,000 cases are reported each year, with 5 to 20 deaths attributed to the disease annually.

The cause of Idaho's outbreak has not been determined yet, according to Tom Machala, this district's health educator. The outbreak apparently began in March, with the majority of the cases occurring after May.

In April, NBC's "Today" show aired a report on complications from the widespread use of the whooping cough vaccine, including brain damage in some individuals. The show provoked a statement from the U.S. Public Health Service in support of the vaccine.

The American Academy of Pediatrics recommends that whooping cough immunizations begin at two months of age. The vaccine usually is combined with diphtheria and tetanus immunizations in a single injection called a DPT. It must be given at two, four, six and 18 months.

A booster dose should be given when a child enters kindergarten or grade school, according to district health officials.

Although one of the Jerome County cases involved a child too young to have begun the immunization schedule, children who have received one or two shots tend to have milder cases if infected, according to officials at the Center for Disease Control.

"Currently, we have 82 percent of school-age children immunized in the Magic Valley, but we have no idea how many non-immunized adult carriers are in the area," Cheryl Juntunen, the District 5 physical health director, said Tuesday.

Juntunen said a 90 percent immunization rate is the level considered necessary to prevent an epidemic.

Immunizations are available at the South Central District Health Department office in Twin Falls, and at county courthouses in Blaine, Lincoln, Gooding, Jerome, Minidoka and Cassia counties. Persons with questions should call the health department at 734-5900, or their personal physician.

IFF begins waste plant construction

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Construction of Idaho Frozen Foods' controversial waste-treatment system is expected to shift into full throttle next week.

Work began on July 26, according to Jim Coleman, an engineer for the project.

Workers are laying pipe now, he said Tuesday, and the excavation of waste-treatment basins in the Snake River Canyon is expected soon, pending final approval by the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare.

Final plans for the basins, along with the treatment system's operations and maintenance manual, will be submitted to the DHW this week, Coleman said.

He said IFF's project should be finished by late October. The company has announced that it intends to withdraw from the city's waste treatment plant no later than January to cut costs and better meet IFF's waste-treatment needs.

The IFF project calls for potato wastes to be piped eight-and-a-half miles from the IFF plant off Russett Street to a series of shallow basins that will be excavated on the canyon floor, near the confluence of Rock Creek and the Snake River.

Engineers say the waste water will be cleansed through a biological process that will occur as the water seeps into the earthen basins.

The costs of acquiring the land and building the treatment plant are expected to exceed $2 million. IFF's president and general manager, Lee Odenwald, has said that by withdrawing from the municipal treatment plant, the company can cut its annual waste-treatment costs by $500,000.

New bumper stickers, suitable for cars or "other" vehicles used in barrel racing, now can be purchased in Twin Falls.

First Jackpot funeral held for casino cook

JACKPOT — Friends and acquaintances of a Jackpot cook who died last week and who wanted to be buried with his fishing pole, paid their respects Tuesday at the first funeral held in the community since its founding 28 years ago.

Roy Spence, 54, a cook at Cactus Pete's casino for the past seven years, was eulogized by his kitchen supervisor at a service in the casino's conference center.

Spence had complained of chest pains and later was found dead in his Jackpot apartment last Tuesday, Aug. 3, apparently the victim of a heart attack, according to Carl Hayden, Jackpot's publicist.

About 150 persons attended the funeral Tuesday, Hayden said. The Rev. John Schreckenberg, the pastor of the Jackpot-Baptist Church, officiated. Music was provided by The Motifs, a group of casino entertainers.

Spence, a bachelor, had no known relatives and was a loner who devoted himself to his work and to fishing, according to Hayden. Spence was buried with his rod and reel. Since Jackpot does not have a cemetery, burial took place in Twin Falls later Tuesday afternoon.

Hayden said there have been memorial services but never a funeral in Jackpot. Typically, he said, the funerals of Jackpot residents are held in Twin Falls or Elko, Nev.

Over a barrel

Bumper stickers poke fun at Blue Lakes' construction detours.

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Construction along Blue Lakes Boulevard North may be frustrating to motorists, but the street-widening project has spurred a little business venture for a Jerome man.

Two bumper stickers — reading "I am a Blue Lakes Barrel Racer" and "Pray for Me... I Drive Blue Lakes" — are being sold at a variety store and a gas station in the construction area.

The stickers are the creation of Howard Johnson, 27, who raises pheasants at the state game farm in Jerome. Johnson is in Twin Falls often to visit his girlfriend, and consequently, he has learned the fine points of driving along Blue Lakes, where barrels confine the previous four lanes of traffic to two lanes because of construction.

"I'm making fun of it; I'm not criticizing it," Johnson says, "and I think most people take it that way."

He says he approached a number of boulevard merchants about selling his bumper stickers, but his sales pitch succeeded only at King's in the Lynwood Mall and at Blue Lakes Chevron. Johnson says that the next time he gets a day off, he intends to make follow-up appeals at various stores.

At this point, he says, he's in the red.

"I had a thousand printed, and I have to sell 700 to break even. So far, I've only sold a couple hundred."

He spent 30 cents to print each sticker, offers them to merchants for 50 cents and suggests they sell them for $1.

To produce the bumper stickers, Johnson used the services of a former college friend who operates a print shop in Caldwell. The idea for the stickers, Johnson says, dawned on him soon after the Blue Lakes project began in April.

He's launched various enterprises before, he says, although this is his first try with bumper stickers. His previous ventures included a custom gardening service that he operated while in college, and an independent research service.

Johnson's product should be timely for a couple more months, as crews continue to dig, spread gravel and pour concrete as part of the $1.6 million boulevard widening project.

This week, curbs, gutters and sidewalks are being built along the west side of the boulevard. Crews are expected to finish installing the concrete improvements Thursday, according to Doyle Matkin, the project's superintendent.

On Monday, he says, the west side of the roadway will be "primed" for paving. Wednesday, Aug. 18, is the tentative starting date for work on the boulevard's east side.

The road is being widened from the intersection of Blue Lakes and Falls Avenue, southward to the 200 block of the boulevard. Matkin projects the work will be finished by the scheduled completion date of Oct. 1. Next Monday, crews will start working six days a week, he says.

Governor OKs grant to help repair Hagerman's lagoons

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

HAGERMAN — The city of Hagerman's sewer woes appear to have been resolved by a state grant approved Tuesday by Gov. John Evans.

After nearly two-and-a-half years of combatting leaks in the municipal sewer-treatment ponds, the bottom of the main pond literally fell out on May 15. The state Health and Welfare Department approved a $600,000 repair grant for the $944,807 project, but even above the cost, the city can't afford its 10 percent share of the cost.

"We already passed one bond levy to pay for the plant's construction, and we're still paying on that," Mayor Karen Yarbrough said Tuesday.

Yarbrough cited the town's large retirement population and its resulting "fixed income" as the reason more revenue could not be generated within Hagerman.

"To be honest, we were just about down to our last dollar," Yarbrough said.

In response, an $84,807 grant has been approved by Evans for Hagerman to use to match the funding from the Health and Welfare Department.

Temporary repairs, including a small dike, already had been made on the malfunctioning lagoons, but further work is needed to prevent possible contamination of the drinking water supply of about 75 people, according to the governor's office.

The Hagerman sewer-treatment plant, located at the southeast edge of town, was built in 1978 at a cost of about $1.1 million. The city's $345,000 share was financed through a municipal bond sale.

However, one of the three treatment ponds never was completed and a second has been leaking for some time, Yarbrough said. Only the middle pond was in use when the 2-foot-wide hole broke open in May.

"We had been trying for some time to find money to repair the lagoons," she said. "What essentially has to be done now is that all three of the ponds must be repaired."

Council members are hoping the engineering phase of the repair project will be completed by early September so that bids can be advertised and construction can begin by October.

"There is no way the temporary dike we have now will hold all winter long," Yarbrough said. "We just hope all this can be done quickly, before winter sets in."

So far, there has been no immediate danger to local water supplies, according to Health and Welfare officials. Hagerman city employees have been monitoring the middle pond's water level on a daily basis to ensure that excessive leakage does not occur.

Lee Stokes, the administrator for the DHW's Division of Environment, says his agency hopes to recoup up to 75 percent of its 90 percent grant to Hagerman from federal funding.

In addition, if the party responsible for the condition of the Hagerman system can be pinpointed, there will be an effort to recover repair costs from that party as well, he said.

DHW is sponsoring an engineering study that could determine who is responsible for the errors in construction. According to Yarbrough, the repair work is being engineered by James Montgomery Consulting Engineers of Boise.

"All I can say at this point is that we are terribly relieved that we found some funding," the mayor said. "It had us all really worried."

Agriculture Department recommends sale of 510 acres of Idaho land

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Agriculture Department will recommend the sale of 510 acres of Forest Service land in Idaho, but it will seek congressional authority before adding to the list of "surplus" lands.

Agriculture Secretary John Block announced Tuesday that the department had identified 133 acres in 26 states that are available for immediate sale under President Reagan's asset-management program. Under the program, federally owned lands no longer needed will be sold to help retire the federal debt.

Most of the surplus forest land in Idaho is in the northern half of the state.

Only one parcel was identified for immediate sale in the Sawtooth, Boise and Challis national forests of southern Idaho. A one-acre site near Oakley called the "Basin Stock Corral."

The parcel was included in a list of 307 potential sale sites issued recently by the Property Review Board, which was established by Reagan to take charge of the asset management program. A second parcel near Oakley was withdrawn from the list after officials determined it already had been sold.

In a press release issued Tuesday from Washington, Block said the Agriculture Department will prepare legislation for the next congressional session, asking that the department be given new authority to dispose of land it finds difficult to manage or is better suited for private ownership.

Officials have divided national forest lands into three categories, Block said.

About a fourth of the 191 million acres of national forest land have been placed in Category I — lands to be retained in federal ownership. Included are wilderness areas, wild and scenic rivers, national recreation areas, game refuges and national monuments.

Category II, those lands recommended for disposal, contains the 60,133 acres the agency has the authority to sell, and it will be expanded when Congress establishes criteria for new sales.

The third category, encompassing the remaining 141 million acres, contains lands that require further study to determine whether they should be retained, Block said.

Although the bulk of federal timber lands are designated for further study, Block estimated that only about 15 million to 18 million acres ultimately will be sold.

A Forest Service spokesman, Jay Humphreys, told The Times-News that the selling agency has no intention of federal large blocks of timber land.

Seeking congressional guidance before making potentially more controversial decisions on forest land sales should help ease criticism of the president's program, another official said.

But a spokesman for the Idaho Conservation League, Bruce Boccad, said Congress has been guilty of making hasty decisions as well.

Boccad said the Senate recently passed a Defense appropriations bill that contained a rider giving the Defense Department authority to sell lands it no longer needs with only the president's signature. Such authority previously had required congressional action.

"We were concerned that the administration might try to slip these without giving people a chance to respond... and we are still concerned," he said.

Car wrecks on way to hospital

Filer girl in critical after fall on rocks

BURLEY — A 7-year-old Filer girl was flown to Salt Lake City on Tuesday night in critical condition after she fell earlier in the day while climbing on rocks in the Lake Cleveland area south of Albion.

A Cassia County sheriff's deputy said that Karen Brady was camping with her family near the lake when she fell. The parents, whose names were not available Tuesday, were away from camp at the time, and a sister, Ann Brady, 15, asked another camper to take her to the Pomeroy Ski Resort to call an ambulance.

However, Deputy Bill Crystal said the car taking her to the ski resort ran off the road and dropped about 200 feet down an embankment, rolling over four times. The driver, Connie Sells of Burley, and Ann Brady were treated at Cassia Memorial Hospital and released.

Karen Brady was in critical condition with severe head injuries when she was transported from Cassia Memorial to the University of Utah Medical Center. Officials there said she still was undergoing examinations and X-rays late Tuesday night, and a condition report was not available.

Crystal said the sheriff's office was notified of the accident at 12:30 p.m.

Accident claims second life

BURLEY — The death toll has mounted from a weekend accident that occurred Saturday west of Burley in Jerome County.

Billy Norman Tipton, 32, of Twin Falls, died Monday morning in a Pocatello hospital. He suffered head injuries when the pickup truck he was driving left Interstate 84 about 8:35 p.m. and rolled over four times.

A passenger in the pickup, William B. Fisher, 48, of Yuma, Ariz., was killed in the accident. He was thrown from the vehicle and crushed as it rolled over him.

Tipton was treated first at Cassia Memorial Hospital and then transported to Pocatello Regional Medical Center later Sunday.

Victim's relatives sought

BURLEY — Cassia County sheriff's deputies were still working with the Mexican embassy Tuesday in an attempt to reach relatives of a man killed Sunday night in a one-car accident south of Burley.

Deputy Bill Crystal said the man, a native of Mexico who was working in Cassia County illegally, had no relatives in this country. However, the identity of the man is being withheld until his relatives are notified.

"We were lucky in this case. The man had the telephone number in his possession of a brother in Mexico,"

Crystal said. "We are working through the Mexican embassy to locate the brother and other family, but the telephone number will make it a lot easier."

The two passengers left the scene and went to where they were staying, about a mile from the accident, to notify their employer and get assistance, Crystal said.

Vargas was taken to Cassia Memorial Hospital, where he was admitted, Crystal said. No information could be obtained from the hospital Tuesday evening regarding the man's condition.

But because of his condition, Vargas could not be questioned about why his vehicle left the road, Crystal said. Sheriff's deputies have estimated damage to the vehicle at $2,500.

Burley man hurt in rollover

BURLEY — A Burley man was hospitalized Tuesday morning after his car rolled over five miles west of Burley.

At 5:50 a.m., Juan Vargas, 21, was driving southwest on U.S. 30, when his vehicle went off the side of the road, according to Bill Crystal, a Cassia County sheriff's deputy. Vargas apparently overcorrected, and the car flipped over, throwing him out of the vehicle.

Crystal said. "We are working through the Mexican embassy to locate the brother and other family, but the telephone number will make it a lot easier."

The two passengers left the scene and went to where they were staying, about a mile from the accident, to notify their employer and get assistance, Crystal said.

Murtaugh schools to buy music gear

MURTAUGH — School board officials in Murtaugh approved the purchase of several pieces of musical equipment Monday evening.

The $4,365 purchase includes a base model guitar, two amplifiers, drums, cymbals and an electric piano, according to district clerk Janine Bennett.

The district bought the instruments from Welch Music in Burley.

Minidoka commission OKs wage hike

RUBEN — The Minidoka County commissioners approved a salary increase for themselves Monday.

Max Garner, the chairman of the commission, said the $1,000 salary increase had been included in the county's 1982-83 fiscal year budget, but it was not official without the approval of the Legislature, which OK'd the increase earlier this year.

The salary increase will give the commissioners a $3,000-a-year wage, Garner said. It is retroactive to October 1981, the beginning of the current fiscal year.

Hansen paving project to begin soon

HANSEN — Street paving in Hansen could begin as early as next week, according to Allen Deboe, the city's consulting engineer.

Deboe told City Council on Monday evening that construction crews hope to begin paving in the northwest section of town "early next week, from Railroad Street to Walnut Street, near the school and the bean warehouse."

IFF

Odenwald has said repeatedly that the reduction is essential for IFF to remain competitive in its industry, and that the municipal treatment plant cannot meet IFF's waste-handling needs, despite the city's plant's recent $6-million worth of modifications.

The treatment system IFF is installing has been the subject of ongoing controversy since it was unveiled last winter.

Homeowners on the nearby Snake River-Canyon rim have voiced concerns about odors, the visual impact of the basins and the compatibility of the treatment system with the canyon's outdoor-recreation zoning designation.

A finding by county officials that the zoning is incompatible with the IFF plant has been appealed by residents of Meander Point, a subdivision on the canyon rim. The Twin Falls County commission plans to hold a hearing on the appeal next Wednesday, Aug. 18, at 10:30 a.m. In the county's judicial building.

Ella S. Crandall

TWIN FALLS — Ella S. Crandall, 74, of Salt Lake City, a former Twin Falls resident, died Tuesday morning in a Salt Lake City hospital, following a long illness.

Born Sept. 7, 1907, in Daniel, Utah, she was educated in the Salt Lake City School District. She married Martin O. Crandall on Oct. 10, 1925. The marriage later was solemnized in the Salt Lake City Mormon Temple. They moved to Twin Falls in 1935.

She was an active member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, serving as an officer and teacher in the Relief Society and MIA, receiving the 25-year service award. She received the first honorary Golden Gleam Award issued in Twin Falls in 1955.

She was a member and officer of the Daughters of the Utah Pioneers and was a member of the Twin Falls Literary Art Guild. She and her husband served a mission in Cleveland, Ohio, from 1937-38 for the church.

Surviving are: her husband of Salt Lake City; four sons, Lloyd O. Crandall of Twin Falls, Richard W. Crandall and Edwin M. Crandall, both of Salt Lake, and Ted S. ## Japanese defend revision of textbooks

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan's education minister defended revisions in Japanese history textbooks Tuesday, rejecting criticism that Tokyo is whitewashing its wartime brutality.

But while Education Minister Heiji Ogawa said no further changes in the textbooks were needed, the Japanese press interpreted some new flexibility by Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakuruchi.

Ogawa, speaking before a Diet (parliament) panel, denied Japan was attempting to rewrite history by pressuring textbook publishers to tone down historical accounts of Japan's operations in China and the colonial rule in Korea.

"We've given no thought to re-do any revisions,"

Ogawa told an upper house committee.

The revisions, ordered by the education ministry for school texts to be used starting with the 1983 school year, have brought angry charges from China, South Korea and other Asian countries that Japan was trying to gloss over its wartime atrocities.

Foreign Minister Sakuruchi told another parliamentary panel that officially sanctioned school texts are a factor by which other nations would judge whether Japan has repented for its actions against China and Korea before and during World War II.

On Monday, Sakuruchi told another Diet panel that he had urged the education ministry to deal "properly" with criticism from Peking and Seoul.

Japanese press reports saw Sakuruchi's remarks as an oblique attempt to urge the Education Ministry to call off the revisions.

Shohei Naito, a foreign ministry spokesman, said he would not quarrel with Japanese press speculation that the foreign minister would like the revisions changed to prevent a further deterioration in relations with the offended countries.

One of the controversial revised texts called Japan's 1937 invasion of China an "advance," and another called a 1910 Korean uprising against Japanese colonization "rioting."

U.S. halts ouster of moderates

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — U.S.-and-Venezuelan diplomats blocked a rightist attempt Tuesday to oust Minister of Defense Jose Guillermo Garcia and two other American-backed ministers.

The U.S. Embassy, however, said it had "no knowledge" of the reported attempt by the right-wing Arena and National Conciliation Party to oust the moderates.

An embassy announcement meanwhile said an FBI investigator was assigned to probe the apparent kidnapping of American-born Patricia Cuellar and her father, Mauricio, a Salvadoran industrialist.

Miss Cuellar was working with a Salvadoran human rights group when she and her maid were kidnapped July 28. Her father was kidnapped from his home the same day.

An embassy official said Salvadoran security forces have denied arresting or detaining the three and have assigned two investigators to the case.

"We are convinced that the Salvadoran government is conducting a serious investigation into the disappearances," the official said.

Christian Democrat leaders said the failed political shakeup was aimed at ousting the Defense Minister, as well as moderate Christian Democratic ministers of labor and economy.

"With the help of the U.S. and Venezuelan governments, it was possible to halt an action equal with what occurred recently in Panama," said a high Christian Democrat official, who asked not to be named.

Panama's national guard ousted the country's civilian president July 30 in a move apparently paving the way for a military man to assume the presidency after elections in 1984.

The sources did not say what action was taken by the U.S. and Venezuelan embassies.

A pre-dawn rebel attack on suburban San Salvador reached the edge of a housing complex for the U.S.-trained 1,000 man Ramon Bellosa battalion, a military official reported. Insurgents penetrated as far as civil defense and police garrisons in the northern suburb of Sopayango, the official said.

Four soldiers were wounded in another 300-man-rebel-mortar-and-automatic weapons attack on a government outpost, 75 miles northeast of San Salvador, a military official said.

Power company officials report 17 high voltage electric towers knocked out, half in the last 24 hours, as part of a six-day rebel attack on power lines which have blacked out at least half of the country.

Italy forming government

ROME (UPI) — President Sandro Pertini met Tuesday with delegations from Italy's smaller political parties, seeking the first phase of negotiations for the formation of the country's 42nd postwar government.

The 85-year-old head-of-state will nominate a prime minister-designate Wednesday, said Giorgio Almirante, secretary of the extreme right-wing Italian Social Movement Party, after a 45-minute meeting with Pertini.

Pertini was expected to ask Prime Minister Giovanni Spadolini, whose five-party coalition collapsed Saturday after the Socialists withdrew their support, to attempt to form another government.

Pertini also held meetings with the Social Democrats, Liberals, Republicans, and Spadolini's own Republicans.

Almirante said his party was in favor of early elections, but the Christian Democrats, Social Democrats, Liberals and Republicans — all part of the outgoing coalition — expressed support for the reinstatement of the coalition.

Socialist leader Bettino Craxi, 46, who precipitated the government crisis by pulling his seven ministers out of a 26-member Cabinet, met with Pertini Monday evening and said what Italy needed was "a great will for renewal and change expressed in concrete and significant forms."

Lifting dumbbells helps Mark Schaal, a Boise State University tight end and a former football star at Buhl High School, prepare for the struggle he will face in trying to earn a starting job

A weighty challenge for ex-Buhl grid star

Mark Schaal must overcome injury, talented teammates to crack Boise State's backfield

By MARV CLEMONS
Times-News writer

BUHL — Mark Schaal is trying to beat the odds. The Boise State University junior, a star running back for Buhl High School's 1978 and '79 state championship teams, wants to be a part of the Broncos' starting offensive backfield this fall.

The numbers are stacked against him. First, Schaal suffered a shoulder separation in the third quarter of last year's opening game against Northwestern Louisiana. When practice had started, Coach Jim Criner said Schaal was a candidate to be the Broncos' No. 1 tailback. The injury took Schaal out of the picture. He did play in eight games, but his left shoulder went under the knife in January and he missed last spring's practice sessions as well.

Second, Rodney Webster established himself as one of the best runners in the Big Sky Conference, running for 1,139 yards.

Third, John Broadous found enough playing time behind Webster to gain 362 yards. He impressed the BSU coaches enough to be listed as the team's No. 1 tailback, ahead of Webster, at the end of spring practice.

Fourth, Borah High School speedster Greg Harrison elected to play his college football for the Broncos, bringing blistering speed to the position. Harrison displayed his speed by winning three sprinting events at the state track meet last May.

The names and numbers of the situation are nothing new to Schaal. All of the players listed above are his teammates — and rivals for the starting position. He knows Webster's statistics speak loudly and Broadous is fairly secure since Criner has said he will alternate between the two all season.

Yet Schaal is intent on playing football this fall. "I'm going to go up to camp, give it my best and see what happens," Schaal said while pumping weights in the Buhl High weightroom Monday evening.

Criner, even with an apparent abundance of talent at tailback, hasn't written Schaal off. He likes Schaal's brand of determination. BSU's pre-season roster didn't list Schaal's name, but that doesn't mean the program for the Sept. 11 home opener against Cal State-Fullerton won't.

"Mark is a solid football player and we'll give him a good look when camp opens," Criner said at the Big Sky Conference football meetings in Sun Valley two weeks ago. "I honestly don't know what Mark's situation is. He had the surgery and missed spring ball. I'm sure he's working out this summer and we'll evaluate him when he gets to camp."

Schaal has spent the summer working in a bean warehouse in Plover, playing softball and tennis, running and lifting weights.

"I weigh about 190 right now, but I'd like to get down to 185 or 182 so I can be just a little quicker," the 5-10 blond said. "The tennis and softball should help my quickness and I've been doing a lot of reps on the weights."

Schaal's uphill battle will officially begin Monday at 1 p.m. when the Broncos report.

"I'd better be ready," Schaal reminded himself. A business education major, Schaal acknowledges Criner may redshirt him this season. That would mean a season of practice drudgery without a chance to play. It's an idea that simultaneously agrees and upsets with Schaal. "I don't really want to be redshirted," he said. "I imagine it would make for an awful long season."

There is one advantage to being redshirted, however. "It means I'd have a year of eligibility after Rodney and John graduate," Schaal noted.

Criner said Schaal "is too good of a running back to consider using him at another position," so it appears the options are play or redshirt. If Criner asks Schaal to sit out the season, the decision probably won't be based on the shoulder injury.

"I haven't had any trouble with it since the surgery," said Schaal, pointing to a four-inch scar. "They (the doctors) took a piece of bone off the point and brought some muscle from the front (of his shoulder) over the bone to reinforce it."

The Broncos — and an insurance company — have made an investment in Schaal's future.

"We bought eight pair of specially made shoulder pads," the seventh-year BSU coach said. "We have seven other players who have shoulder problems and these pads are like the flak jackets that many quarterbacks wear. When you get hit, the pads spread out the force of the blow across a wide area."

The pads cost $300 each and the insurance company paid part of the cost. It hopes that the equipment will prevent future surgery.

Schaal would love to put those special pads to work this fall — in more than just mundane practice sessions.

"I feel I can go up there and compete for the starting job," he said. "I'm mentally ready and excited about practice."

Another player who will be trying to make the grade in college football this month is Burley High's Tim Knight. A defensive lineman, Knight started drills Monday at Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah. The Cougars signed Knight early in the recruiting process, giving the all-state player a full scholarship.

"Tim was about 220 pounds and 6-4 when he left," Burley Coach John Billez said. "I've heard that BYU wants to put 15 or 20 pounds on Tim and test him at weak defensive end."

Billez had limited contact with the BYU coaching staff about the Cougars' plans for Knight.

"It was a pretty open-and-shut case about Tim going to BYU," Billez, who must now find a replacement at nose guard, said. "Tim wanted to go to BYU and he flew down there to look at the school and signed that day. If he hadn't gone to BYU, he probably would've gone to Idaho State. BYU opens the season Sept. 11 at Nevada-Las Vegas. Most schools won't open until Sept. 11."

Other former Magic Valley preps on Big Sky Conference rosters include Twin Falls' Jeff Holcomb (Boise State) and Minico's Dave Tracy (University of Idaho).

Holcomb, a 6-foot 185-pound linebacker, spent one season at McPherson, Kan., College before switching to BSU.

The Vandals say Tracy, who had knee surgery during the basketball season after an injury, won't enroll at Idaho until January in order to save a year of eligibility. Idaho skipper Dennis Erickson feels Tracy could be the Vandals' future quarterback.

Dodgers take over top spot

NL West: SF tips Atlanta; LA wins

By United Press International

MILITARY — May's seventh-inning homer snapped a 2-2 tie and carried San Francisco to its sixth straight victory, a 3-2 triumph Tuesday night over Atlanta that dropped the Braves out of first place in the National League West.

The Los Angeles Dodgers assumed a half-game lead as Pedro Guerrero drove in one run and scored twice and Fernando Valenzuela pitched a six-hitter to spark an 11-3 rout of the Cincinnati Reds in Los Angeles. It was the Dodgers' eighth straight victory.

In San Francisco, Bill Laskey went the distance on a seven-hitter, as the Braves suffered their eighth straight loss, their 12th setback in 18 games and fell out of first place — one-half game behind Los Angeles — for the first time since April 27.

The winning streak is the longest for the Giants in 11 years.

May's homer, his seventh, came off reliever Al Hrabosky, who suffered his first loss in three decisions. Laskey survived a rocky first inning to register his fourth straight victory and 11th in 19 decisions.

Jerry Royster opened the game with a single and after Larry Whitenton hit into a forecourt, Dale Murphy hit his 29th homer — his first in nearly two weeks — to give the Braves a 3-0 lead.

Jeff Leonard's two-out triple and Darrell Evans' single in the fourth scored San Francisco's first run and the Giants tied it in the fifth on a single by May, a wild pitch by Rick Mahler, an infield out which advanced May to third and a second wild pitch. Mahler gave up only three hits in six innings.

In Los Angeles, the crowd of 50,266 gave a long standing ovation when the Braves' loss was flashed on the scoreboard in the eighth inning. It was the first time since April 8, when Atlanta and Los Angeles were tied with 2-0 records, that the Dodgers have been in first place.

Valenzuela, 15-8, gave up a run in the first inning and then retired 15 men in a row. He struck out four and walked two and only one of the three runs off him was earned.

The loss went to Tom Seaver, 5-12, who was touched for 10 hits in the seven innings he worked.

Cincinnati took a brief lead in the first when Tom Lawless doubled and scored on Johnny Bench's single. But the Dodgers got the run back in the bottom half of the inning on Rick Monday's solo homer.

Astros fire Virdon, name Lillis manager

HOUSTON (UPI) — Manager Bill Virdon, who transformed the Houston Astros from doormat to a division champion in 1980, was fired Tuesday by owner John McMillen with the injury-racked team mired in fifth place.

McMillen said he wanted to hire a replacement before the end of the season and before other managers had new contracts for 1983.

First-base coach Bob Lillis was named interim manager, and a team spokesman said "that will in a probability go through the end of the season."

Virdon, in San Diego with the team, was philosophical. "He said we're going to make a change. I understand that. It's his prerogative," Virdon said.

"I don't know that you ever get used to it. It's part of the business. If you can't handle it, you've got no business being in the business in the first place."

In a brief team meeting before leaving the club Tuesday evening, Virdon thanked the players.

Lillis then conducted what he said would be the first of several team meetings.

"There won't be any wholesale changes," Lillis told reporters. "We'll give what we got and hope we can make a run at it."

"We've played better ball the last couple of months and I feel that we'll continue to improve as we go along. It really hurts when you lose two quality people from your bullpen," he added, referring to lengthy injuries to Joe Sambito and Dave Smith.

Poky surges past Sage in District final

POCATELLO — Duplicating Andy Kordopatos' return of the previous evening, Craig Toone used both his bat and pitching arm to lead Pocatello past the Minico Sage, 8-4, in the finals of the Class A District-American Legion Baseball Tournament Tuesday night.

Toone's bases-loaded triple in the top of the ninth inning erased a 4-3 Minico advantage and represented the big blow in a five-run rally. Toone also pitched the final five innings for the Rebels, picking up the victory.

Pocatello will face Moscow in the state championships next week, while Minico meets host Lewiston in the first round.

Minico had also fallen victim to double trouble Monday night, when Kordopatos batted and pitched Poky into Tuesday night's extra-championship final.

field power alley, he scored while Mark Collo reached on a two-base error. Collo then came across on Robbie Cutler's single.

Minico built a 4-0 lead over the first four innings. In the first, Lynn VanEvery forced Tracy Woodsow, who had walked, at second base. VanEvery then stole second, took third on a wild pitch and scored on Russ Wright's single.

In the third, VanEvery walked, advanced to second on a wild pitch and came home on Jeff Schow's triple.

Minico added its last two runs in the fifth on RBI singles by Wright and Mark Leonard.

However, the Sage put only two runners on base in the final four innings.

Pocatello is scheduled to play Minico at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday at the Astoria, Ore. (AP) and K. Smith and Wright. W. Toone. L. T. Smith.

Former CSI coach Grant denies he gave player plush car

FRESNO — Calif. (UPI) — Fresno State University Coach Boyd Grant, formerly head coach at the College of Southern Idaho, and FSU athletic director Russ Sloan have denied charges that former star cager Rod Higgins was given an expensive sports car to drive last season.

Revelations that the FSU basketball and football programs are under investigation by the NCAA are that the football program is already on NCAA probation have rocked members of "The Red Wave" alumni and fans of Bulldog sports teams who have gained national publicity for their antics and rabid support.

The two FSU officials, who refused to answer questions from reporters, and Fresno State manager Frank Atkinson said Higgins was twice loaned a 1982 Ford drive and each time the vehicle was returned the next day. They contended Higgins was considering buying the vehicle. He never did.

Higgins, an all-league player and now a rookie with the Chicago Bulls, has refused comment on the situation except to confirm league officials are investigating. Atkinson later conceded it was not a normal practice to let a prospective buyer keep a test drive auto overnight.

An unidentified FSU professor told a Fresno Bee sports columnist he had seen Higgins drive the car "quite often."

Sloan, who first told reporters Higgins had only used the car on one occasion, contended Monday there might be a case of mistaken identity because Higgins occasionally drove a 1981 Ford Mustang, a black Mazda RX-7.

Following Sloan's statements, the unidentified professor reaffirmed he had seen Higgins in the Datsun on numerous occasions and retorted, "Anyone who can't tell the difference between a Mazda and a Datsun needs help."

Grant, who led the Bulldogs to a Top 20 rating, the league championship and an NCAA playoff berth last season, accused the Fresno Bee of stirring up trouble for FSU.

The Higgins matter was never under investigation until it appeared in the Bee," he complained. "Let the investigators come up with the facts. Then you can write it up."

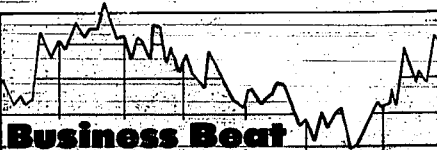

Grant said he accepted Higgins' explanation that he was just test driving the car. "I believe what Rod Higgins told me, and I believe that as an individual, he should have the right to solicit a car of his choice and pay for it the way he chooses," Grant said.

The FSU football program lost three scholarships a year ago for letting some community college coaches in violation of NCAA regulations. FSU officials revealed last Friday.

Head football coach Jim Sweeney and two assistants were also barred from off campus recruiting for paying the late registration fees of some junior college transfers. That situation remains under investigation by league officials and further sanctions may be taken.

Bunker Hill deeper into red

KELLOGG (UPI) — Owners of Bunker Hill Co. say the Kellogg firm's losses deepened more than expected in the second quarter of this year, totaling $13.5 million.

Gulf Resources & Chemical Corp., Bunker's Houston-based parent company, said the northern Idaho operation suffered in the second three-month period of 1982 because of depressed metals prices and the continuing economic recession.

Donald M. Rose, a Gulf spokesman, said the sales and salvage value of Bunker Hill decreased during the quarter while shutdown costs rose.

The company's sprawling lead, silver and zinc mine and smelter closed several months ago after Gulf Resources said last year it could no longer shoulder the burden of high operating costs and low metals prices at the 20,000-employee Bunker Hill plant.

Rose said net losses of Bunker Hill were $96.8 million, including $83.3 million in after-tax losses.

A proxy battle earlier this year in which British businessman Alan E. Gore installed a new slate of directors cost the company $4.3 million, Rose added.

Electronics firm pays bonus

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (UPI) — California Microwave Inc. Tuesday announced distribution of $543,000 in bonuses to employees.

David B. Leeson, president, said the company more than doubled its sales and earnings over the past two years. The firm manufactures electronic communications equipment.

Business failures soar again

NEW YORK (UPI) — Commercial and industrial failures for the week ended Aug. 5 soared after a one-week lull, Dun & Bradstreet Inc. reported Tuesday.

Failures rose to 512 from 343 in the previous week, slightly under the 540 reported bankruptcies two weeks earlier, the credit rating service said. The post-Depression record of 548 was set the week ended June 17, 1982.

In the latest week, all types of operations showed increases in failures. Companies with liabilities over $100,000 accounted for 294 casualties, compared with only 179 a week before and 165 in the week of 1981. Firms with liabilities under $100,000 accounted for 218, up from 164 the week before and 189 last year.

Stocks slip to 27-month low

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks fell for the sixth consecutive session Tuesday, hitting a 27-month low.

The drop followed a rally attempt flizzed on Wall Street concern about the nation's prolonged economic slump.

Trading was moderate. Gulf Oil's dropping of its $5 billion bid for City Service dominated market action for the second consecutive session. Allied Corp. said it has no interest in acquiring City Service as it had been speculated.

The rally attempt was hampered by arbitrageurs trying to cover their losses from the Gulf-Cities Service affair. Several companies announced stock repurchase plans in the uneasy atmosphere.

Dow Jones industrial average, which rose much of the day after falling 3.39 points Monday, shed 1.05 points to 779.30, the lowest level since it finished at 779.13 on April 21, 1980.

The closely watched DJIA, which had been ahead nearly four points early in the session, has fallen 42.81 points over the past six sessions.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 63,155,310 shares compared with 63,093,800 traded Monday.

The American Stock Exchange index dropped 0.38 to 240 and the price of a share slipped one cent. Declines edged advances 279-227 among the 753 issues traded. Composite volume totaled 4,896,600 shares compared with 4,805,700 Monday.

The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ index of OTC stocks lost 0.06 to 161.32.

On the trading floor, Cities Service stock, which slidded 6 1/2 points Monday, was the most active NYSE-listed issue, up 1 1/2 to 32 1/2 with a block of 250,000 shares at 31 1/2.

Allied Corp. lost 1 1/2 to 32 with block of 200,000 shares at 31 1/2. A rebound after its statement on Cities Service, Gulf Oil stock eased 5 1/2 to 16 1/2 after blocks of 115,400 shares and 198,400 shares both at 24 1/2.

Continental Illinois was the third most active issue, up 1/4 to 16 with blocks of 755,600 shares at 15 1/2 and 100,000 shares at 16.

Continental, which suffered a $61 million loss as a result of the collapse of Penn Square Bank recently, had issued a line of credit to the O'Connor Associates of Chicago that reportedly lost heavily in speculation on Concor Service stock.

IBM was the second most active Big

Board issue, off 1/4 to 63 in trading that included a block of 350,200 shares at 62 1/2.

Ford Motor Co. added 1/2 to 23 1/2 after the No. 2 automaker said it would repurchase up to 700,000 of its own shares.

SEDCO jumped 1/2 to 24 1/2. The company's directors approved a plan for SEDCO to repurchase up to two million of its own shares.

Holly Sugar, which dropped 3 points Monday after reporting a $426,000 first-quarter loss, rebounded 1/4 to 30 1/2.

On the Amex, Dome Petroleum was the most active issue, off 7-18 to 13 with two blocks of 100,000 shares each at 13 1/2 and 433,000 shares at 2 1/2. The company denied its officers were being forced to sell off stock because of margin calls.

Wang Laboratories class B followed, off 1/4 to 26. Gulf Oil of Canada was third, off 1/4 to 10 1/2.

Damson Oil rose 1/4 to 6 1/2 after the company announced plans to buy up to one million of its own shares.

Oil company aims to pass along savings

Arco plans to maintain lower gasoline price

NEW YORK (UPI) — The president of Atlantic Richfield Co. said Tuesday his company intends to keep pricing its gasoline 3 cents a gallon below its competitors to reflect the elimination of the Arco credit card.

"The plan is to leave that 3-cent-a-gallon savings in credit in force, giving our lessee dealers a chance, hopefully — to pass that along to the consumer," William Kieschnick told a news conference.

"We plan to continue to give them that advantage," said Kieschnick, who acknowledged that Arco's decision to abandon credit cards April 15 had engendered the wrath of independent gasoline marketers that traditionally have underpriced the major oil company.

Arco, the seventh largest U.S. oil company, is the only gasoline marketer to scrap credit cards. Arco has estimated its credit card program cost $73 million a year to run, or about 2.5 cents for each gallon of gasoline sold.

In the pitched battle to compete with Arco, several other large oil firms have offered discounts to motorists who pay cash rather than using credit.

Arco's 15 percent rise in overall gasoline sales and the 50 percent surge in retail gasoline sales since the credit program ended was "achieved at the expense of our competition," Kieschnick said.

"Our balance on gasoline business is substantially," he said.

Many industry experts had predicted the worldwide destocking of bloated inventories would end in the third quarter — a development that would have firmed prices and erased the oil surplus.

"But demand is not as high as many people had expected and production is still running above what was anticipated," Kieschnick said. "The drawdown (in world oil stocks) might not be completed until year-end."

He said the direction of world oil prices remains "sloppy and uncertain."

Analyze, then select a career

A record number of high school graduates for the post-World War II era will not go on to college or even to the young adults' technical schools this fall. The youngsters simply won't be able to afford the tuition plus the time plus all the extras involved in higher education.

The economic squeeze is getting worse and worse. Student loan programs have been slashed. Tuition rates are going up relentlessly — with the tuition-fee-board total for a single year at the top universities easily into the five-figure range. Loans are hard to get and the interest rates on education loans can scare off even a bold borrower.

On top of it all, two-income families are being reduced to one-income families. Families across the nation are being reduced to one-income families.

Against today's economic background, the model of part-time instead of full-time workers and of adults who have dropped out of the work force entirely because of repeated layoffs is frequently translated into a youngster who drops out of the education cycle, too.

What, then? Let's face it, not hide from the economic facts of 1982. If you are a youngster who is going directly into the job market instead of to college or technical school this fall, you also can select a career. You need not settle for any entry-level opening that becomes available. Your high school guidance counselor may be doing the best he/she can, but you need not stop there. Here are career questions you can apply to yourself — for free.

1) "Are you, a teen-ager, facing the job market, willing to commit yourself to a career program suited to your basic likes — to work for it, to give it your best efforts? There never will be a better time to explore and evaluate your aptitudes."

"Career choices require considerable analysis of the individual and his options," warns Dr. Felix M. Lopez, whose Long Island firm, Lopez Assessment Services, counsels major corporations on personnel. "Good solid advice is hard to come by," adds Lopez. "But you can work out your own."

2) "What — or who — are your role models? Think this out alone, because this question involves the people who have most influenced your life so far — parents, siblings, relatives, friends, celebrities, etc. When you have found by yourself the people or person you truly admire and respect, you'll know the pattern you may be trying to follow.

3) "What are your aptitudes, achievements, interests? If you were being given a complete career counseling service, this would involve a battery of tests costing $300 to $600. (I know several youngsters who have taken the tests and found they were — and the findings have merely confirmed what the apparently confused youngster already knew about himself/herself.) What are your leanings — social, intellectual, mechanical? You don't have the cash to pay for the tests. You can, however, do an enormous amount of self-analysis. You may not be able to judge your own personality, but you can list your own avocations."

4) "What are your deep-down likes and dislikes? No one needs to tell you this. You can tell (or admit it) to yourself.

Once you've done this job-of-self-analysis, you can check your career choices against your likes, that fits your aptitudes.

For instance, say you have an aptitude for mathematics and detail; you like to play around with problem-solving; you rather prefer to working alone. A career in computer programming or high technology (wide open, incidentally) might be just the thing.

Or say you hate to be alone, solving problems. You like to deal with people; you're articulate, enjoy traveling and new situations. Your career might be in sales (also wide open) or marketing.

"Test reality," with your own decisions, says Lopez. Then you might even enroll in a specialty school or take night courses to help yourself.

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFE

"If a man takes no thought about what is distant, he will find sorrow near at hand." - Confucius

There are times when one play that appears to be the silliest is the only one that will lead to success. Eddie Wold of Houston found such a play in the finals of the Vanderbilt Knokk Championship this spring. His farsighted defense picked up a large swing and helped his team to victory.

To fully appreciate Wold's play, let's examine how the play went in the other room at four hearts undoubled. Dummy's club ace won and a heart finesse lost to West's king, a club continuation was ruffed and the ace, and another heart gave West his second trump trick. West switched to diamonds and when East won his queen, he thought it was time to switch to spades. Declarer took the ace, ran all his hearts and East found either had to blank his diamond king or to unguard the spade jack, either choice giving South the contract.

Against Wold, declarer won dummy's club ace and lost a trump finesse to West's king. West shifted to the spade queen, declarer's ace-winning while East discouraged with his ace.

And another trump put West on play and this time West shifted to a diamond. Dummy's 10 went to Wold's queen, and it was time to make the far sighted play.

Wold returned the diamond king (a low one would also work) and declarer's hopes disappeared. Dummy's diamond entry was gone and there was no longer any squeeze against Wold. Declarer tried to cash dummy's diamond jack in desperation but West ruffed for the fourth defensive trick.

ANSWER: Free-heart. The good seven-card suit and a super spade fit justify a strong invitation.

THE ACES®

BOBBY WOLFF

"If a man take no thought about what is done, he will find sorrow near at hand."

There are times when one play that appears to be the silliest is the only one that will lead to success. Eddie Wolf of Houston found such a play in the final of the Vanderbilt Knockout Championships this spring. His fearless defense, picked up a large swing and helped his team to victory.

To fully appreciate World's play, let's examine how the play went in the other room at four hearts undoubted.

Dummy's club ace combination and West's king, a club win was ruffed and the ace and another heart gave West his second trump trick. West switched to diamonds and when East found his queen, he thought it was time to switch to spades. Declarer took his ace, ran all his hearts and East found it impossible to discard. He either had to blank his diamond king or to unguard the spade jack, either choice giving South his contract.

Against World, declarer won dummy's club ace and lost a trump. In essence to West's king, West shifted to the spade queen, declarer's ace winning while East discouraged with his trump. Ace and another trump put West on play and this time West shifted to a diamond. Dummy's 10 went to World's queen and it was time to make the far sighted play.

World returned the diamond king (a low one would also work) and declarer's

A black and white photograph of a long pickup truck, likely a Chevrolet or GMC model from the late 1970s or early 1980s. The truck is parked on a paved surface. A large, dark banner is stretched across the bed of the truck, featuring the text "Auto Dealers &amp; etc." in a bold, white, serif font. The truck's bed is empty except for the banner. The background is a plain, light-colored wall. The overall image has a grainy, high-contrast quality typical of older newspaper print.

Blooming Bridal Shower of Berry Desserts

Something old. Something new. Something borrowed. Something blue — like blueberries! That's what this trio of special desserts bring to your spring bridal shower. Serve these fancy, fresh treats as the highlight of a celebration for a favorite bride-to-be.

A spring shower is a very popular means of congratulations — a sentimental gathering of friends and relatives who literally "shower" the bride with gifts.

It is best to keep the guest list limited to close friends and relatives — or office-mates. Plan the event for a Sunday afternoon, or Thursday evening, and send out invitations at least three weeks in advance. If the shower is to be a surprise, ask a special friend to arrange to have the guest of honor arrive about a half-hour after all the guests are expected, and clearly state "Surprise Shower" on your cards.

Planning for a Sunday afternoon shower allows all of Saturday to prepare the food, although these luscious desserts can all be made ahead of time and chilled. They get their wholesome goodness from the mouth-watering, fresh fruits, like strawberries and blueberries — and their delicately creamy fillings from Jell-O brand instant pudding, Jell-O brand gelatin and Cool Whip frozen whipped topping. The cheesy pie filling can be chilled until firm in the shortbread crust on Saturday morning and then topped with the Blueberry Glaze on Saturday afternoon. A garnish of whipped topping can be added on Sunday.

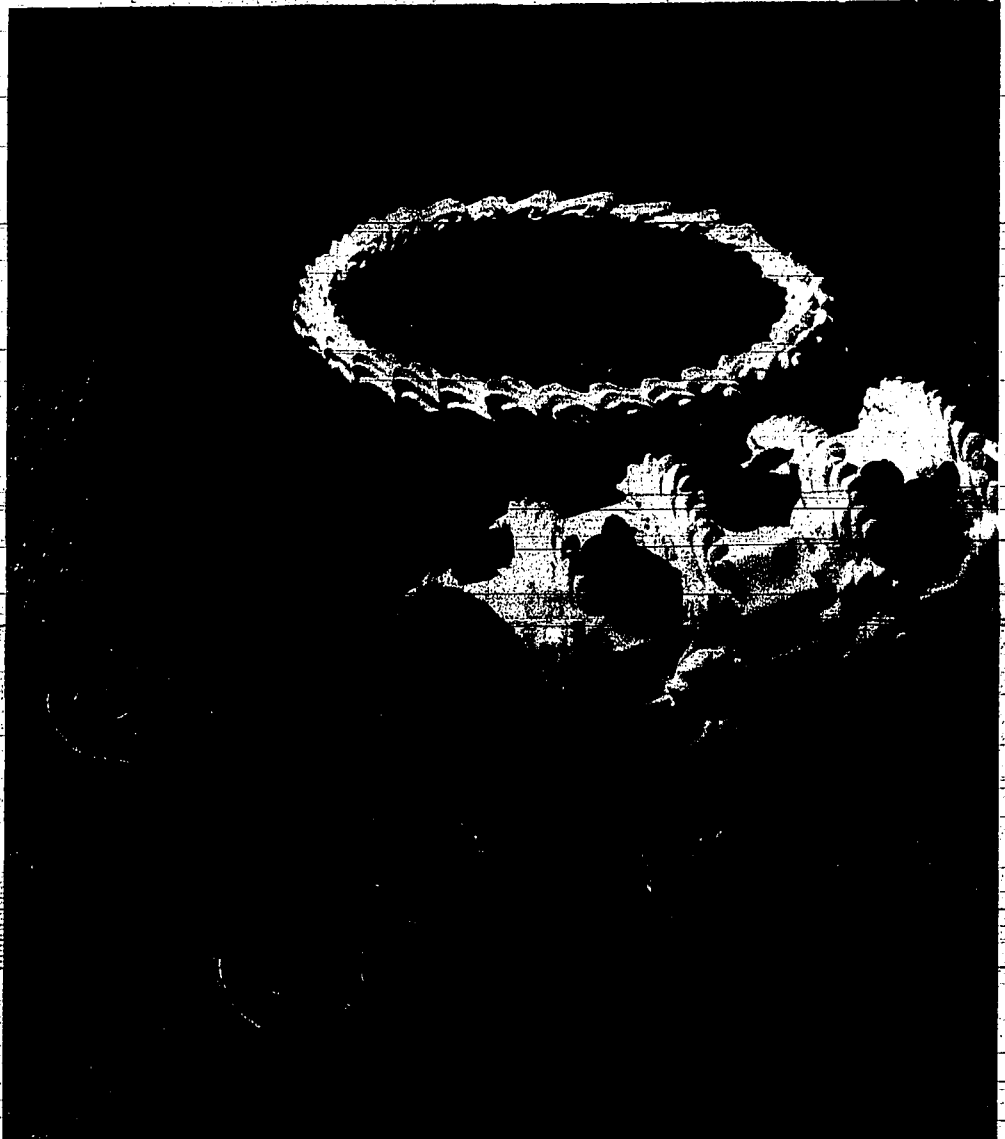

Likewise, the cake for the Blueberry Cake Roll can be made on Saturday a.m., spread with the blueberry mixture in the afternoon and frosted and garnished on Sunday. Prepare the tarts using this same step-by-step time-saving method.

To make preparation of the lovely, luscious decorations on the pie and cake roll, here are some easy tips:

1. Use Cool Whip frozen whipped topping, thawed, for all garnishes.
2. For frosting, use a metal spatula. Make long, even strokes across the length of the cake to simulate a log design.
3. If you don't have a pastry bag, take a medium size plastic food bag and cut a hole at bottom corner. Use a "star" tip to get fluted shapes.
4. Make filling the pastry bag easier by creating a cuff at top of bag. This helps keep the edges neat.

Ask everyone to bring a small flowering plant to the shower. Arrange these around in a circle as a centerpiece. The bride-to-be takes the plants home as part of her "shower" of gifts. Use bright, color-coordinated ribbons to emphasize the festiveness of the occasion. Mix silver, wood, gingham, crystal, straw and pottery — to be pretty, not fancy. Serve a wine or champagne punch, so nobody has to fuss. Keep it elegant but unpretentious by letting guests serve themselves, buffet style.

Let the desserts be the main attraction of the shower. Their vibrant colors and luscious tastes will make your guests focus on them, anyhow. Since they're all prepared ahead of time, thanks to the convenience of Jell-O brand pudding, Jell-O brand gelatin and Cool Whip frozen whipped topping, it leaves you cool and collected to greet your guests.

CHEESE PIE WITH BLUEBERRY GLAZE

- 1/2 cup softened butter or margarine
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1-1/4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 package (8-oz.) cream cheese, softened
- 1-1/2 cups cold milk
- 1 package (4-serving size) vanilla flavor instant pudding
- 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
- 1 pint blueberries
- 1/2 cup water
- 4 teaspoons cornstarch
- 3 tablespoons sugar

Blend butter with 1/4 cup sugar with pastry blender or fork. Add flour and mix until crumbs are formed. Then mix thoroughly with hands to form a soft dough. Press evenly onto bottom and about 1 inch up sides of 9-inch springform pan. Prick bottom of crust with a fork. Bake at 325° for 35 to 40 minutes, or until lightly browned. Cool in pan.

Beat cream cheese in mixer bowl until very soft. Gradually add 1/2 cup of the milk and blend until smooth. Add remaining milk, the pudding mix and lemon rind. Beat slowly at lowest speed of electric mixer, just until blended, about 1 minute. Pour into baked crust. Chill until firm.

Meanwhile, crush 3/4 cup of the blueberries in saucepan. Mix in water, cornstarch and 3 tablespoons sugar. Cook and stir over high heat until thickened. Remove from heat; stir in remaining blueberries and cool for 15 minutes. Spoon blueberry mixture over cheese filling and chill. Carefully remove sides of pan. Garnish with whipped topping.

OLD FASHION BLUEBERRY CAKE ROLL

- 2 1/3 cups unsifted cake flour
- 2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 4 eggs at room temperature
- 3/4 cup granulated sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted (optional)
- 1 cup washed blueberries
- 1 tub water
- 1 package (3-oz.) apricot flavor gelatin
- 1 container (12 oz.) frozen whipped topping, thawed

Mix flour with baking powder and salt. Beat eggs in small mixer bowl at high speed of electric mixer or with rotary beater, adding granulated sugar gradually and beating until mixture becomes fluffy, thick and light in color, about 5 minutes. Gradually fold in flour mixture; add vanilla and butter. Pour into 15x10-inch jelly roll pan which has been greased, lined on bottom with paper and greased again. Bake at 400° for 13 minutes. Turn out onto cloth sprinkled with confectioners' sugar. Quickly remove paper and trim off crisp edges. Starting with short side, roll cake with cloth. Cool completely on a rack.

Combine blueberries, water and gelatin in saucepan. Cook and stir over medium heat until gelatin is dissolved. Chill until slightly thickened. Fold in 2 cups of the whipped topping. Unroll cake roll; remove cloth and spread with blueberry mixture. Roll cake again, leaving the end underneath. Place on platter and frost with remaining whipped topping. Chill. Garnish as desired. Store any leftover cake in refrigerator.

EASY FRUIT TARTS

- 1 package (4-serving size) vanilla or lemon flavor instant pudding and pie filling
- 8 baked 3-inch tart shells, cooled
- 1 to 2 cups (about) fruit, halved (strawberries or blueberries)
- 1 package (3-oz.) strawberry, raspberry, orange or apricot flavor gelatin

Prepare instant pudding as directed on package. Divide evenly among tart shells. Arrange fruits on pudding. Chill. Prepare gelatin as directed on package. Chill until thickened. Spoon over fruit or tarts to glaze. Chill until ready to serve. (Pour remaining gelatin into serving dish; chill to use at another time.) Garnish with whipped topping, if desired. Makes 8 tarts.

Buffet-style menu great for bridal shower

CREAMY FRUIT MOLD
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin.
1 cup water.
1 can, 14 oz. size, Eagle Brand sweetened condensed milk.
1 can, 16 oz. sour cream.
1 teaspoon vanilla extract.
1 cup or ½ pint whipping cream, whipped.
2 cups assorted fresh or canned fruit: strawberries, blueberries, peaches, or etc.
Additional fresh or canned fruit, optional.
In small saucepan, sprinkle gelatin over water; stand 1 minute. Over low heat, cook until gelatin dissolves, about 5 minutes; set aside. In large bowl, combine sweetened condensed milk, sour cream, vanilla, and gelatin mixture. Whip in whipped cream and fruit. Pour fruit mixture into lightly oiled 1½ quart mold. Chill 4 hours or until set. Unmold onto plate garnish with additional fruit. Yield: 12 servings.

Plums in marble ice cream provide several indulgences

YAKIMA, Wash.—Here's the latest scoop: Luscious Plum Marble Ice Cream does triple duty when it comes to late summer desserts that let you keep your cool—with the greatest of ease!

For the simplest refresher, spoon the pretty concoction into parfait glasses. Another time, scoop it into a baked pastry shell and top with whipped cream and almonds for a make-ahead Plum Ice Cream Pie. Or, for the ultimate in late summer desserts, use it as the unbridled filling for a stunning Baked Alaska à la Plum.

Tart-sweet Northwest purple plum-plums, in season from August through September, are the inspiration for this delightfully easy ice cream. Chopped plum plums are combined with a small measure of sugar, simmered gently until tender, then pureed. A food processor or blender makes quick work of this step.

Once cooled, the richly-hued mixture is simply swirled into commercially prepared vanilla ice cream, then spread into a prepared pan and frozen. Freshly flavored and not overly sweet, Plum Marble Ice Cream is the beginning for any number of wonderfully cooling indulgences.

Northwest purple plum plums are ideal for pureeing into ice cream sauces, as well as for cooking and baking, for several reasons: They can be used pool and all they have a non-clinging, freestone pit which separates easily from the flesh. And, during cooking, the flesh takes on color from the skins, turning an exquisite rich, wine-red color.

Of course, Northwest plum plums are a natural when it comes to out-of-hand snacking, fresh salads or glorious fruit plates. They are low in sodium and contain a very good supply of vitamin A, potassium and other important vitamins and minerals. You will recognize Northwest plum plums by their rich purple skins, frosted with silver.

PLUM MARBLE ICE CREAM

1 quart vanilla ice cream
2 cups, 15 to 20, finely chopped

Northwest purple plum plums

1/2 cup sugar
Soften ice cream in large bowl in refrigerator about 4 hours. Do not allow ice cream to melt. Combine plums and sugar; simmer, covered, 30 minutes or until tender. Puree in food processor or blender. Cool completely. Beat softened ice cream with electric mixer; swirl cooled puree into ice cream. Line 8-inch square pan with plastic wrap or waxed paper. Spoon ice cream into pan; spread evenly. Freeze until firm. Serve in small bowls or parfait glasses. (Makes about 1 quart.)

Tips for using plum marble ice

BAKED ALASKA A LA PLUM

Cut an 8-inch square single cake layer (white or yellow cake) in half so each half measures about 8x4x1-inch. Reserve one-half for other use or second baked Alaska. Cut frozen brick of Plum Marble Ice Cream in half. Top halved cake layer with half of ice cream. Cover and freeze. Just before serving, beat 5 egg whites with 1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar and 1/4 teaspoon almond extract until soft peaks form. Gradually add 3/4 cup sugar; beat until stiff peaks form. Transfer ice cream topped cake to oven-proof platter, baking sheet or board. Spread with egg white; seal well to bottom edge of cake. Swirl to form peaks. Bake at 500° F about 2 minutes or until golden brown. Slice and serve immediately. (Makes 2 servings.)

PLUM ICE CREAM PIE

Instead of freezing in an 8-inch pan, spoon Plum Marble Ice Cream into a baked and cooled 9-inch pastry or crumb crust pie shell. Top with 2 cups sweetened whipped cream. Freeze until firm. Remove from freezer 10 to 15 minutes before serving. Sprinkle with toasted almonds. For longer storage, wrap loosely with heavy aluminum foil. (Makes 8 to 10 servings.)

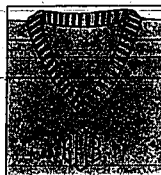

A delightful homemade ice cream, with fresh plums, becomes Baked Alaska à la Plum

Plums in marble ice cream provide several indulgences

YAKIMA, Wash.—Here's the latest scoop: Luscious Plum Marble Ice Cream does triple duty when it comes to late summer desserts that let you keep your cool—with the greatest of ease!

For the simplest refresher, spoon the pretty concoction into parfait glasses. Another time, scoop it into a baked pastry shell and top with whipped cream and almonds for a make-ahead Plum Ice Cream Pie. Or, for the ultimate in late-summer desserts, use it as the ambrosial filling for a stunning Baked Alaska à la Plum.

Tart-sweet Northwest purple prune plums, in season from August through September, are the inspiration for this delightfully easy ice cream. Chopped prune plums are combined with a small measure of sugar, simmered gently until tender, then pureed. A food process or blender makes quick work of this step.

Once cooled, the richly-hued mixture is simply swirled into commercially prepared vanilla ice cream, then spread into a prepared pan and frozen. Freshly flavored and not overly sweet, Plum Marble Ice Cream is the beginning for a number of wonderfully cooling indulgences.

Northwest purple prune plums are ideal for pureeing into ice cream sauces, as well as for cooking and baking, for several reasons: They can be used peel and all and they have a

Of course, Northwest prune plums are a natural when it comes to out-of-hand snacking, fresh salads or glorious fruit plates. They are low in sodium and contain a very good supply of vitamin A, potassium and other important vitamins and minerals. You will recognize Northwest prune plums by their rich purple skins, frosted with silver.

PLUM MARBLE ICE CREAM

1 quart vanilla ice cream
2 cups, 18 to 20, finely chopped

Northwest purple prune plums

$\frac{1}{4}$  cup sugar
Soften ice cream in large bowl in refrigerator about 4 hours. Do not allow ice cream to melt. Combine plums and sugar; simmer, covered, 30 minutes or until tender. Puree in food processor or blender. Cool completely. Beat softened ice cream with electric mixer; swirl cooled puree into ice cream. Line 8-inch square pan with plastic wrap or waxed paper. Spoon ice cream into pan; spread evenly. Freeze until firm. Serve in small bowls or parfait glasses. (Makes about 1 quart.)

BAKED ALASKA A LA PLUM

Cut an 8-inch square single cake layer (white or yellow cake) in half so each half measures about 8x4x1-inch. Reserve one-half for other use or second baked Alaska. Cut frozen brick of Plum Marble Ice Cream in half. Top halved cake layer with half of ice cream. Cover and freeze. Just before serving, beat 5 egg whites with  $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon cream of tartar and  $\frac{1}{4}$  teaspoon almond extract until soft peaks form. Gradually add  $\frac{1}{4}$  cup sugar; beat until stiff peaks form. Transfer ice cream topped cake to oven-proof platter, baking sheet or board. Spread with egg white; seal well to bottom edge of cake. Swirl to form peaks. Bake at 500° F about 3 minutes or until golden brown. Slice and serve immediately. (Makes 8 servings.)

PLUM ICE CREAM PIE

Instead of freezing in an 8-inch pan, spoon Plum Marble Ice Cream into a baked and cooled 9-inch pastry or crumb crust pie shell. Top with 2 cups sweetened whipped cream. Freeze until firm. Remove from freezer 10 to 15 minutes before serving. Sprinkle with toasted almonds. For longer storage, wrap loosely with heavy aluminum foil. (Makes 8 to 10 servings.)

A delightful homemade ice cream, with fresh plums, becomes Baked Alaska à la Plum

SAN MATEO, Calif. — During these lazy August days when everyone wants to spend time outside enjoying the last of the sunny weather, you may need some quick and easy recipes for "take-along" meals.

Whether you're at the beach, a local park or in your own backyard, picnics and barbecues are always fun!

These main-dish recipes are guaranteed crowd-pleasers for family and friends: Add a relish-tray or green salad and a tall glass of iced tea. Enjoy!

Everyone will delight in trying a tasty "twist" to the famous potato: "Baked Beans in Tater Skins," a delightful combination of baked beans, sauteed onions and sausage topped with your favorite condiments. "Hobo Beans" takes us back to the "Hobo Beans" takes us back to the days of summer camp and songs around the campfire. Pineapple chunks, frankfurters, baked beans and chopped green peppers are bundled up in a neat little pouch of foil, provide a perfect picnic treat with little fuss. Everyone will enjoy the excitement of opening up their own individual pouch filled with such a savory concoction!

BAKED BEANS IN TATER SKINS
4 large baking potatoes*
½ lb. ground sausage
2 tablespoons chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
1 can, 28 oz., baked beans butter or margarine toppings, grated cheese, sour cream, bacon bits, tomatoes, chives
Bake potatoes with a fork and then place in oven at 375° for one hour or until done. In medium skillet, break-up and brown sausage, drain off fat and push to one side. Add onions and green pepper; braise with sausage. Add beans and heat thoroughly. When potatoes are done and slightly cooled, cut a slit in the top of each and carefully scoop out potato "liners" and reserve.* Brush the potatoe skins liberally with butter inside and out, place on a baking sheet and bake at 500° for 12 to 14 minutes. Spoon bean mixture into potato skins and serve with suggested toppings. (Serves 4.) *

- Potatoes may be baked ahead of time.
- Save the potato "liners" for other uses such as Shepard's pie, potato pancakes or mashed potatoes.

HOB0 BEANS
(on the barbecue)
2 cans, 28 oz., oven baked beans
16 oz. frankfurters, cut into 1-inch pieces
1 can, 13½ oz., pineapple chunks, drained
1 bell pepper, diced
1 small onion, chopped

heavy duty aluminum foil
In a large bowl combine baked beans, frankfurters, pineapple chunks, bell pepper and onion. Cut eight 12-inch squares of foil and place inside a small bowl for molding the pouch shape. Evenly divide the bean mixture and spoon into the foil "bowls," twist tops of foil pouches to close and place on barbecue for 20-25 minutes or until hot throughout. (Makes 8 individual servings.)

Pineapples star in gourmet recipes

The gourmet quality of pineapples is remarkably high these days which makes them ideal buys for cooking as well as fresh eating.

For those who question pineapple-selecting techniques, here a few tips: The best fruit will have orange-yellow showing at the base of the fruit. The crown will be fresh and green. The pineapple will feel solid. A thump on the fruit with the index finger will make a sound similar to one you would get from a thump on your wrist. It is necessary to remember that your pineapple will not ripen at home. Once picked, the fruit has been cut-off from its food source and instead of sweetening, it has already started to deteriorate.

An old-fashioned freshness-telling technique to ignore is the easy pulling of a leaf from the crown. This doesn't tell you anything about the ripeness of the fruit.

Following are a few cooked ways to

GRILLED PINEAPPLE
1 large ripe pineapple vegetable or olive oil ground ginger or white pepper
Salt pineapple lengthwise into 6 strips; remove core. Brush the flesh with oil and sprinkle lightly with ground ginger or white pepper. Place on grill at least 6 inches from coals. Cook pineapple strips until they are lightly browned.

SAUTEED PINEAPPLE DESSERT

1 small ripe pineapple, peeled and cut into finger-sized pieces

1/2 stick margarine or butter

2 tablespoons light brown

1/4 cup Triple Sec liqueur

3/4 cup heavy cream

sprinkle with cinnamon

In heavy-bottomed skillet heat margarine or butter; add pineapple fingers and cook quickly until lightly browned. Sprinkle pineapple pieces with brown sugar and liqueur; cook slowly until liquid is almost totally reduced. Pour heavy cream over pineapple. Do not stir. Let cream heat throughout and then serve in individual dishes atop a few sponge cake strips. (Makes 4 to 6 servings).

GRILLED PINEAPPLE SANDWICH
8 slices wheat bread softened margarine or butter for spreading on bread.
1/4 cup softened cream cheese pineapple pieces chopped chives or green onion lemon or lime juice

Spread bread with margarine or butter. Spread 4 slices of bread with cream cheese. Sprinkle cream cheese with pineapple pieces, chopped scallions or lemon or lime juice. Press buttered bread slices on top of pineapple filling. Grill sandwiches on both sides of heavy-bottomed skillet or on sandwich grill. (Makes 4 servings.)

PINEAPPLE LAMB BURGERS

- 1 lb. ground lamb
- 2 tablespoons minced onion
- 2 tablespoons tomato ketchup
- 1/4 teaspoon ground sweet basil
- salt and pepper to taste

- 1 egg, beaten
- ¼ cup flour mixed with pinch salt and pepper
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 8 thin, very ripe, crosswise slices fresh pineapple with core removed
- 2 ½ cup water
- 2 teaspoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon cornstarch dissolved in 1 tablespoons water

In mixing bowl, combine ground lamb, onion, ketchup, basil, salt and pepper, and egg. Form mixture into eight burgers. Coat burger with flour mixture and fry them in vegetable oil. Meanwhile in another pan, put pineapple slices, 2 1/2 cup water and sugar; simmer 3 minutes. Remove pineapple slices and place one slice on top of each burger. Thicken the liquid from pineapple slices with cornstarch mixture and serve with burgers. (Makes 4 servings, allowing 2 small burgers per person.)

THIS WEEK'S BEST MARKET BUYS: It's a good idea to get canning supplies now. All markets are getting vinegar back-orders now. Pineapples are probably the best fruit buy. Vegetables and meats remain the same — good seasonal quality with no changes in costs.

Nabisco in real cookie war

DALLAS (UPI) — Call it a good old-fashioned cookie war. Frito-Lay Inc., using its huge network of roulemen who call on almost every grocery store in the country, is going nationwide with a

The new step puts Frito-Lay in direct competition with Nabisco, the giant of the cookie industry. On the other hand, Nabisco is making plans to enter the "salty snack" business which Frito-Lay dominates.

It's a war that will be fought with national advertising, newspaper coupons, and pressure on grocers for increased shelf space. Indications are it also will be fought with strong words.

"From our point of view, there are some substantial consumer dissatisfactions with the cookies now available nationally," Kenneth Treece, a Frito-Lay vice president, said. "Consumer feedback shows that currently available cookies are, well, dry and staling."

Claude Hampton, president of Nabisco's biscuit group, said, "We do not feel that statement shows a real understanding of the cookie market. Our cookies have broad mass appeal as our place in the market clearly indicates. We have some of the best-selling products ... Our cookies are popular across the board."

Frito-Lay, a subsidiary of Pepsico Inc., bought Grandma's Cookies in 1980 from the Wittenberg Family of Beaverton, Ore., a suburb of Portland. Outside of Beaverton, Grandma's only other production plant was in Longview, Texas, which Frito-Lay closed because it was too small and inefficient.

But the company has opened cookie bakeries in Pulaski, Tenn., and Muncy, Pa., and plans to convert a 350,000-square-foot warehouse it owns in the Dallas area into a bakery.

Bundt cake weds two tastes

BALDWIN, N.Y. — For a number of years a retail candy shop in southern New Jersey has been doing a big business in chocolate-covered blueberries. The big beautiful blues are simply dipped in a chocolate mixture, cooled and boxed. And sold.

The candy-maker himself was intrigued with the flavor combination, finding it something that stimulated and satisfied his educated taste. As it turned out, his customers agreed. Most people these days seem to have educated and discriminating palates.

With a successful commercial venture behind the idea of putting chocolate and blueberries together, it followed that the combination would appeal in cakes as well as candy. And it does.

chocolate, what happens when the favorite-summer blueberry is added to the mix? Good things. The sweetness is cut, the cake is a greater pleasure to serve, the slices have more moistness and it has to follow; more flavor.

Very few people don't like chocolate. Even fewer don't consider fresh blueberries one of the greatest gifts of summer. This Blueberry Chocolate Bundt Cake will give the chocolate-blueberry lovers something to savor as long as there is a mix in the pantry and a pint box of blueberries in the refrigerator.

CHOCOLATE BLUEBERRY BUNDT CAKE

- 1 pkg., 18.5 oz., chocolate cake mix
- 1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon ground cloves
- 2 cups fresh blueberries, washed

- and drained
- ½ cup heavy whipping cream
- 2 tablespoons sugar

Empty mix into large bowl. Reserve ½ cup of the dry cake mix. Stir into nutmeg, cinnamon and ground cloves. Prepare cake according to package directions. Toss 1½ cups blueberries with the reserved dry cake mix. Gently fold the blueberries into the cake batter. Pour into greased and floured 10-inch bundt pan. Bake in a preheated 350°F oven about 40 to 50 minutes. When the cake springs back when pressed lightly, it is done. Cool on wire rack for 10 minutes, then loosen from pan and turn out on serving plate. Whip heavy cream with sugar and vanilla until thick. Decorate cooled cake with whipped cream and remaining ½ cup blueberries. (Makes 12 servings.)

Color them blue

Blueberries, now available, are most convenient fruit

By MARY MAUSHARD
Baltimore Evening Sun

BALTIMORE — Color the world berry blue, at least for the next six weeks, as that dull, grayish blue, rich in a homely way, brightens the days of blueberry lovers.

The deep blueberry-reds are but a sad memory, and the dark raspberry hues may have passed without notice, so fragile is their season. But blueberries are now available in Twin Falls stores.

For those who fancy blueberries, and lots of people do, there's no need to count the ways to love them. Their flavor is reason enough. Blueberries do, however, have other endearing qualities.

Their season is long, as berries grow. Commercially grown berries — most of the fresh ones sold in stores and roadside markets — are available from late June through mid-September with the peak here from July 1 to Aug. 25. Wild berries are harvested from early August to mid-September, but most of these are frozen or canned, unless, of course, they grow in your own fields.

Despite their dainty taste, they are sturdy, lasting up to two weeks under refrigeration.

They are convenient food. They don't have to be pitted, cored or even sliced before eating. Just wash and eat.

They freeze easily too, without blanching or boiling. The North American Blueberry Council advises either putting them in freezer containers and then into the freezer or leaving them in the pint boxes they come in, removing the cellophane tops and rewrapping them tightly with plastic wrap, making sure that the slots in the bottom are covered, and then putting them in the freezer. One caution: Do not wash blueberries before freezing or they will freeze into one lump and become mushy when thawed. Correctly frozen berries will pour from the container; wash before using.

They are low in calories with 42 in half a cup. They are high in vitamins A and C, and a good source of iron and potassium.

Historically, they are truly an American food. The Pilgrims found the Indians gathering wild blueberries when they arrived in 1620. And although blueberries grow wild throughout the world, they are grown for commercial use (both wild and cultivated) only in North America — North Carolina, New Jersey, Michigan, Washington, Oregon, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia and British Columbia. Most of the blueberries sold in Maryland come from New Jersey, with Michigan berries coming here late in the season.

Now that you know their virtues, be assured "that it's a wonderful year for blueberries," said Ruth Lundgren, speaking for the blueberry council. The prices, approaching $2 a pint in some stores, should come down as the season progresses and supplies increase.

Choose blueberries that are plump, firm and uniform in size. As with all berries, watch out for stained or leaking containers. Store blueberries in the refrigerator; at room temperature they will continue to ripen and quickly become soft.

Before eating, wash blueberries in a bowl of cold water to let bits of stems and leaves float off; repeat the washing several times if necessary. How you eat them is a matter of choice. Blueberries are perhaps best alone or floating in a little cream; they are, however, not to be scoffed at over ice cream or mixed with vanilla yogurt and a little honey.

Calorie-free fat

A calorie-free substitute for butter and cooking fats may eventually enable severely obese people to lose weight without changing their eating habits, said Dr. Charles J. Gueck of the University of Cincinnati Medical Center. The artificial substitute, sucrose polyester (SPE), looks, tastes and smells like common cooking fats but it is not absorbed by the body.

It's time for blueberries throughout the day

Try oldtime bread pancakes

BALDWIN, N.Y. — Some very close friends are coming now for their annual visit. They are fresh blueberries, arriving to enjoy our present company, to refresh memories of past pleasures and to give mealtime a lift.

And mealtime it is. Fresh blueberries will sit down with us for breakfast, brighten our lunches and complete dinnertime with delightful desserts. If ever there were guests who are welcome at any time of every day they're in town, our friends are the ones.

For breakfast, the blueberries will be there in muffins, on cereal and in pancakes. Many of the latter will be made by adding blueberries to a pancake mix, and no fault with that. A suggestion here: pour the batter on the skillet and drop a big spoonful of blueberries on top. Rather than mixing the blue berries in. When you turn the cakes the blueberries flop over right with them.

Other people will want to try a "new" pancake, such as this "old time" recipe for Blueberry Bread Pancakes. The Blueberry Sauce complements either the convenience pancake or the made-from-scratch.

At lunchtime, try a light Blueberry Citrus Mold, that can serve either as a dessert or be placed over greens as a salad. When a snack is indicated, pour some blueberry drink base (made by cooking together 4 cups of blueberries, 2 cups of water and sugar to taste, and strained) into milk.

For dinner, bring out those favorite blueberry pie, cake and pudding recipes that have been handed down over the years. They are proven winners and will taste as exciting this year as ever.

BLUEBERRY BREAD PANCAKE

- 1 cup dry bread crumbs
- 2 1/2 cups boiling water
- 3/4 cup milk
- 1/2 cup melted butter

- 1 eggs, well beaten
  - 1 cup all purpose flour
  - 2 teaspoons baking powder
  - 2 tablespoons sugar
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 1 cup fresh blueberries, washed and drained
- Add bread crumbs to boiling water. Stir until well blended. Let stand for 15 minutes. Beat milk with melted butter and eggs. Beat in crumb mixture. Stir flour with baking powder, sugar and salt. Gradually stir in dry ingredients. Beat until smooth. Drop large spoonfuls of batter on a hot lightly-greased griddle. Drop blueberries on top of each pancake. Turn pancakes when tops are covered with tiny bubbles. Brown on the other side. Serve hot with blueberry sauce. (Makes approximately 24 pancakes.)

BLUEBERRY CITRUS MOLD

- 1/2 cup Jelling water
  - 1 package, 3oz., lime gelatin
  - 1 1/2 cups cold water
  - 1 1/2 cups boiling water
  - 2 packages, 3oz., orange gelatin
  - 2 package, 3oz., cream cheese
  - 1 cup heavy cream
  - 2 cups fresh blueberries, washed and drained
- Add boiling water to lime gelatin. Stir until dissolved. Stir in cold water. Blend well. Pour mixture into a 9x9x2 inch pan. Chill until firm. Add boiling water to orange gelatin. Stir until dissolved. Whip cream cheese until soft and creamy. Gradually beat in gelatin mixture. Chill mixture until slightly thickened.

Whip cream until stiff. Fold cream and blueberries into gelatin mixture. Pour mixture over firm lime gelatin. Chill until firm. Unmold and cut into squares. Serve as a dessert or with greens as a salad. (Makes nine 3-inch squares.)

Shoppers urged to keep alert as grocery items registered

By MARTIN SLOANE
United Feature Syndicate

DEAR MARTIN — Please print this in your column for all the checkout clerks who get annoyed at customers who (a) insist that all their purchases be on the conveyor belt before the clerk begins to ring up prices and (b) get annoyed at customers who watch the register instead of helping to pack their groceries.

It is not that I mind helping to pack, or that I'm trying to hold up the conveyor. But, I am tired of coming home and finding that I have been overcharged because I was not attentive when prices were being rung up.

This news has been good to me for the third time in three weeks, and I vow that it is not going to happen again. So, to all the cashiers at my local supermarket: Sorry, but I won't be helping to pack anymore, and I won't let you start to ring up my purchases until everything is on the belt for me to watch. Please don't be offended, either, when I stand there with my calculator and point out 3-cent errors to you.

Why should I bother spending time making up a budget and a shopping list and then clipping out coupons if I am not going to make sure that I am not shortchanged at the checkout counter? Sign me — I've Seen the Light.

DEAR LIGHT — Your message comes across loud and clear. It is good news to every shopper.

The supermarket executives and cashiers who read this column should understand that you are reacting to a very serious problem. If you find errors on almost every register tape, your supermarket has been lax in overseeing the accuracy of its cashiers.

When store management lets the accuracy of cashiers slip, the customer suffers — and so, in the long run, does the reputation of the store.

Several readers have asked how they can get the cashier to wait for them to reload when all of their purchases will not fit onto the counter at one time.

I suggest that after the cashier has rung up the first load on the counter, you simply ask him to wait until you have placed the second load on the counter.

What if the cashier objects? I have then asked the cashier to call the manager; he can decide whether he wants me to make my purchases at his store, as this is the only way I will do it. It's as simple as that.

Now, this doesn't mean that I am rude or unpleasant to the cashier. You can accomplish amazing things with a smile and a little firmness. Cashiers suffer a lot of unnecessary abuse, and I wouldn't want to add to it.

My next column will feature letters from several cashiers who want to give us the view from their side of the checkout counter.

Nutrition for infants re-thought

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Mom, for all her wisdom, may not be an expert on infant nutrition. Aunt Sally's advice probably is no better. Even your doctor may be surprisingly out-of-date on the subject.

"Many doctors get very little nutrition training in medical school," says Janette Taper, an associate professor of nutrition at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University at Blacksburg, Va.

"I've run into doctors who are still recommending infant milk in the first year of a baby's life."

Nutritionists frown on feeding babies cow's milk until they are at least a year old. Ms. Taper said in a recent interview in Cincinnati, where she spoke at the American Home Economics Association's annual convention.

"First, nutritionally, the baby doesn't need it. Second, physiologically, they can't handle it. It overloads their systems."

She said the American Academy of Pediatrics supports the position that nursing time needs to be lengthened.

Basically, what the American Academy of Pediatrics is saying is that we need ... breast feeding totally in the first six months — or, if that is not possible, feeding a baby only commercially prepared formula in the first six months.

Mother's milk or formula should be the major food source for the next six months, she said, with solid food introduced gradually.

"In the 1950s, infants were being fed solid food as early as two weeks of age. Now, according to a recent study, the average is more like 3 1/2 months."

Ms. Taper attributes the push toward solid foods, not to physicians, but to well-meaning friends or relatives.

She said infant nutrition is becoming an increasingly important field, with the experts now considering its long-term effects.

Unfortunately, clear-cut information isn't always available, she said.

Dear Abby

Mom uses car seat now

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: "Learned Too Late" lost Tina, her precious 6-month-old daughter in a car accident because the child was not secured in a car seat. She wrote, "If writing this saves only one child, Tina's death will not have been in vain."

I want Tina's mother to know what she has done for me. We have a 7-month-old son, Steven, who has always had the safest surroundings we could provide — except in the car. There, I've lovingly placed him in a carrier beside me. Tina's mother made me see that all the love in the world could not keep our precious child safe in a car without a car seat and seat belt.

The awful truth is that I HAVE a car seat, but have never used it. I found all sorts of excuses — too much trouble, Steven fussed and fought it, takes too long, etc. What a selfish, careless mother I've been. But no more! A trip may take a few extra minutes, but Steven's life is worth it! Thanks to Tina's mom for being brave and selfless enough to tell her story. This mom.

—LEARNED IN TIME IN CLOVIS.
DEAR ABBY: Bravo for your letter concerning safety car seats for children.

It takes about 30 seconds to put my 11-month-old daughter into her seat, stick her arms through the straps and buckle up. Some people say, "Kids refuse to ride in those things."

Hogwash! Who's in charge anyway? If children were placed in car seats from the time they were infants, as mine were, they would be trained to climb into the seats themselves to be buckled in.

Our neighbor was in a car accident with her two young children. The little ones were thrown around so violently that even their father was not allowed to see their bodies before the funeral.

Safety tests were made using 10-pound dummies instead of live infants. The adults were instructed to hold onto the dummies as they would a live baby while riding in a car at 30 miles per hour. The car stopped suddenly, as though in a collision, and even though they knew it was coming, not ONE of the adults could hold on to the dummy! All lost their grip, and the dummies flew forward! Please print this and sign me.

— CONCERNED MOM IN INDIANA

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for printing the letter from "Learned Too Late." We also learned too late. We didn't lose our child, but our child lost an eye while standing up in a car that came to a sudden stop. He was thrown against an open metal ashtray on the dashboard and cut his little eye so badly it couldn't be saved. Had that child been buckled into a seat belt as he should have been, it never would have happened. We will always feel a terrible sense of guilt because it was OUR fault, not his.

— ALSO LEARNED TOO LATE.

DEAR ABBY: After reading the letter from "Learned Too Late," I started shaking in my shoes. I had just dropped off my daughter (I'll call her Amy) at the babysitter's.

Amy was not in a car seat, nor was she belted in by a seat belt. Why? Because she cried and screamed. "I want to stand up, Daddy!" After reading your column, I made a decision. I would rather listen to Amy scream than never hear her voice again.

First I am going home to pick up our unused car seat, then I will go get Amy at the sitter's. And from then on, she will never again ride without being protected!

Thank you, Abby, for printing that letter. And thank Tina's mother for having the courage to write so that other parents could learn from her tragic loss.

— SMARTER NOW IN ILLINOIS
DEAR SMARTER: What a pity Tina's mother will never know how many children her letter will save. My mail showed a tremendous outpouring of love, sympathy and appreciation.

Dr. Lamb

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Association

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am a 55-year-old female in fairly good health, but I am overweight. I do aerobic dancing twice a week and take a fast walk daily.

I am now up to three miles an hour per day. But I am self-taught, so to speak. Could you give me some tips? I don't know any warm up or cool down exercises.

I notice my right knee, which is full of bursitis, aches a lot more lately. I am slowly losing weight. I've stopped eating all junk food, "sw" and cut smaller portions at meal time. I feel so good after my walking session that I would really hate to give it up. On the other hand I don't want to do anything to aggravate my "inflamed" joint condition.

DEAR READER: You may be overdoing it for your joints. First, you should find out for certain what is wrong with your knees and on that basis discuss your program with your doctor.

If your knees are not too bad the walking may not be a major problem. But vigorous dancing or things that require more effort than walking may not be a good idea for you.

It is easier on your joints not to walk too fast. You might get along better to walk the same three miles and walk at a speed that is quite comfortable for you. Between the speeds of two and four miles an hour you use about the same number of calories a mile. The difference in speed is not what counts so much as the distance, if you want to lose excess body fat.

As to a combination of walking and just cutting down on portions of food is a good formula for gradual sensible weight loss.

For walking you don't really need to warm up. Just start at a slow pace and you will warm up enough. I do like to see people stretch all their muscles, particularly the leg and thigh muscles after a walk. They are warmed up then and this is an optimal way to end a walk session.

I am sending you The Health Letter 18-4, Walking To Health, for more information. Others who want this issue can send 25 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB: If a person sleeps in a comfortable rocking chair would his heart get as much rest as if he were lying in bed?

Because of arthritis in my neck and inner ear trouble I have had difficulty sleeping on my side. It also seems to aggravate my angina heart pain, so I've been sleeping in a very comfortable rocker. My heart would get more rest if I could lie comfortably in bed, wouldn't it?

DEAR READER: The heart probably functions better if you are sitting up rather than lying down. The same amount of work it has to do is about the same, perhaps a little less sitting up. The only reason to lie in bed is to maintain circulation to the brain if a person has shock or near shock. We often have heart patients who have trouble breathing all up, which improves matters a great deal.

This means that one reason your angina may be worse lying down is that you may be accumulating a little fluid in your lungs then and sitting upright may prevent this. I would strongly recommend seeing your doctor right away to evaluate this point. He may also be able to help you with your neck.

Exercise changes food needs

ITHACA, NY (UPI) — Some nutritional requirements may change dramatically with exercise, a new study shows.

Active women, and perhaps men, need significantly higher amounts of vitamin B2, also called riboflavin, than less active women, says Cornell University's Dr. Daphne R. Roe.

Dr. Roe, a nutrition professor, says active people also need a diet with high nutrient density and more carbohydrates.

Disproportionately higher amounts of proteins and fats are unnecessary and, in some cases, even unhealthy, she said at a recent meeting of the Cornell Biennial Nutrition Institute in Ithaca.

The professor added that people who exercise a lot need to re-evaluate their dietary requirements in terms of both food energy and nutrition.

Prof. Roe and her research team based their findings on a 12-week study they did with a group of healthy women between 21 and 32 years old. All the women's meals were prepared and monitored by participating staff. In the Frances Johnson-Charlotte Young Human Nutrition Unit of Cornell's Division of Nutrition Sciences.

For the first six weeks, the volunteers did not exercise actively. During the next six weeks, they jogged 30 to 80 minutes daily.

Using blood samples, the researchers found the women needed significantly more vitamin B2 when exercising regularly. That vitamin is required for effective energy utilization by the cells, they say.

The study also found women who exercised rigorously, but maintained their weight by eating more, needed almost double the Recommended Dietary Allowance for vitamin B2. Those who lost weight because of vigorous, regular exercise needed even more than double the RDA. The RDA now is about 1.3 milligrams daily for women and 1.4 milligrams daily for men.

"Although we have not tested men, we are assuming that findings would be pretty consistent," the professor said.

Originally, the researchers thought women using oral contraceptives needed more riboflavin. But their study showed no differences in vitamin B2 requirements between women who were on birth control pills and those who were not. Evidence did point to increased energy needs as a critical factor.

Clothes will grow

By JEANNE LEMSE
UPI Family Editor

Ruth Hinden's two older children will be wearing "grow clothes" when they return to school this fall, just as they have since they were toddlers.

The Las Vegas, Nev., housewife figures she saves about 75 percent of the cost of clothing for her three children (the youngest is still a toddler) by making fashions that can grow with them.

Michael is 11, Melanie 9, and Amy will be 3 on Aug. 23.

In a telephone interview, Mrs. Hinden said she developed the "grow clothes" technique because she was frustrated by "having very nice homemade or purchased clothes outgrown before they even showed signs of wear."

"As a result," she said, "we spent practically nothing on the children's clothes."

Mrs. Hinden said the money she saves goes for travel and other necessities the family could not otherwise afford.

A former home economics teacher, she has put her techniques and a few quick and easy patterns into a paperback book, "How to Make Grow Clothes," published by her husband's company, R.B.H. Enterprises, a division of Advertising Unlimited, Ltd.

She said she plans to go on making fashions that grow with the children when they enter junior and senior high school, where peer pressure to conform may be a problem.

She does not expect the children to be teased about made-over clothes.

"If you are creative, the clothes don't look altered. That's what makes the difference. People have this old image of what grandmas used to do."

Mrs. Hinden demonstrates her techniques before church and community groups, when she isn't looking after her children and helping her husband, Alan, in his business.

"I teach people to coordinate new outfits. For example, if you have a pair of slacks that are too short, you use a slash and sew panel below the knees and make a blouse of the same material."

She adds length to a dress, for example, with sleeve extensions and inserts at the waist and near the hemline of the same contrasting material. Or she may lengthen a dress with inserts just above and below the waistline in a contrasting fabric.

For extra bodice width, she may insert a vertical panel in the front with rick-rack trim and add a line of rick-rack on the skirt to cover the line left by the bodice.

She made Amy's size one, short-sleeved, collared crawler into a jumpsuit by removing the collar and sleeves, enlarging the armholes and adding a horizontal striped panel at the waist for greater length.

Organizing recipes makes one smug

By ERMA BOMBCEK
Field Enterprises, Inc.

Ladies, I'm here to tell you you don't know what angelic means until you've gone through all these bits and scraps of recipes that you've clipped throughout the years and put them in some kind of order.

I had recipes everywhere. They were stuck in drawers, cupboards, phone books, magazines, jammed in envelopes, pockets, taped on mirrors, in old handbags.

They were scribbled on cards, backs of envelopes, my driver's license and warranties.

I'm telling you, you do something like this and it's good for the soul. You feel so full of purpose, so organized, so superior to anyone in the same room with you.

First, I sat in the middle of the floor and every clipping that showed a picture of a cook who was thin . . . got pitched out. I've never trusted thin cooks to know anything about food, and don't know why I clipped them in the first place.

Then I pitched out every recipe that began, "Have the fishmonger clean three pounds of octopus. Rinse the octopus and pat dry before pounding it with a mallet or meat tenderizer for five minutes."

Usually, I saved these recipes after I had just seen a Grace Kelly movie, but in my heart I knew nothing would come of it.

I was on a roll now, and the stack was getting smaller, so I made a decision to toss out any recipe I couldn't read. This included the ones in another language and the ones where the ink had become blurred with sauerkraut juice, egg white, oil and spilled coffee.

Then I looked for repeats. Who needs 187 recipes for turkey breasts holding their breath beneath a tranquil sea of cream of chicken soup and mushrooms, and 55 recipes for carrot cake?

Aren't women silly to put off something like this for years? I now had a floor full of tantalizing, mouth-watering recipes that I wanted to save forever. I got out one of these cute little recipe-holders like a carousel that flips them up so I can see them as I cook, two books with envelopes on each page, and a cute little accordion number with asparagus tips or the cover and a green ribbon.

I threw the whole mess in the stove drawer. I'm going to finish it . . . tomorrow . . . maybe.

Now you know

By United Press International

The A-bomb dropped on Hiroshima, Japan, in 1945 is nowhere near the most powerful nuclear bomb ever exploded, but it was the first ever used against man. The most powerful was detonated at Novaya Zemlya, U.S.S.R. in an October 1961 test. It had the strength of 3,000 Hiroshima bombs.

Dentists' income dips

BOSTON (UPI) — The decline in tooth decay in recent years, attributed to the success of fluoridated water, has reduced the income of dentists.

Researchers from nine nations, meeting recently at a conference on dental cavities, found that adding fluoride to water supplies and the increasing use of the chemical in over-the-counter products has cut tooth decay in half in the last decade.

By one estimate, it costs only about 3 cents per person per year to fluoridate a community's water supply — compared to about $30 to fill a cavity.

The result, specialists say, is an end to the "golden age of dentistry," from the end of World War II to about 10 years ago.

"During the so-called golden era," said Boston dentist Dr. S. Patric Scavotto, "I successfully and easily managed to rear and educate through college eight offspring, acquire a beautiful summer home on Cape Cod with a sailboat and accumulate most of the financial amenities that make life comfortable as I approach retirement age."

Janet A. Brunelle and James P. Caries of the National Institute for Dental Research said it is evident that a major decline in cavities prevalence has taken place during the last decade at every age from 5 through 17 years.

They summarized the results of a recent survey of 38,000 U.S. schoolchildren who are statistically representative of all 48 million American school children.

The study also found a significant increase in the percentage of cavity-free children — now about 17 percent of the under-18 population.

"If dentists don't think they're busy now," said Dr. Greg Connolly of the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, "just wait 10 years."

Drilling and filling comprise 41 percent of an average dentist's time, according to a recent study by the American Dental Association.

Onions now offer many varieties

By SHARON SANDERS
Chicago Sun-Times

There was a time when buying onions was a simple affair. Every month or so, Mom would purchase a sack of dry yellow onions as a kitchen staple, much like flour or sugar. These all-purpose yellow onions were used to flavor everything from salads to stews to sandwiches.

Things are not so simple any more. Consumers are now confronted with a maze of onion choices at the produce counter. "Islands and articles promote the glories of one type of onion over another. Walla Walla Sweet, grown only in the valley of the same name in southeastern Washington state, and Vidalias, named after a town in southern Georgia, have gained national attention for their simultaneous claim to being the world's sweetest onion. The sweetness of both onions is attributed to unique micro-climates.

Jane Armstrong, vice-president of consumer affairs for Jewel Food Stores, views the increased market for these gourmet onions as part of a larger food picture. "Ten years ago we didn't see kiwi fruit, Granny Smith apples or enoki mushrooms, either. People are looking for new food products."

The Walla Walla Sweet season is now at its midpoint. Bryan Magrath of the Walla Walla Gardeners' Association reports that producers will be shipping through the second week in August.

Here are general guidelines to purchasing and storing these or other dried mild onions, such as Spanish, Bermuda, red and pearl onions:

Buy onions from an open bin whenever possible. Select firm onions that are heavy for their size with no gashes or bruises in the skin. Check the stem end to make sure there is no softness or green sprouting. Store onions in a cool, dark spot where air can circulate around them. A straw or metal basket makes a good storage container. Don't store onions in the refrigerator because the humidity can accelerate spoilage.

According to Howard Hillman, "The Cook's Book" (Avon): "Pungent cooking onions tend to keep longer than all-purpose onions, which in turn are usually better keepers than mild onions." This means that all mild, sweet onions, especially the Vidalias and Walla Walla Sweet, should be used as soon as possible after purchase.

Occasionally other onions are mislabeled as Vidalias and Walla Walla Sweet. Be sure to buy the onions in season from a reputable store.

To evaluate the merits of six types of mild, sweet onions, I tasted each type raw, and then sautéed in butter. The approximate price per pound of each type of onion and the results are below. It should be noted that length of time that the onions were stored prior to purchase could diminish their sweetness.

I've rated these onions on a 1-to-5 sweetness scale, 5 being the sweetest. Here are those ratings, with some general comments:

Pearl: 35 cents a pound; raw rating, 4 — sweet and less pungent than others; cooked rating, 5 — best over-all cooked; good onion flavor, not too assertive.

Vidalia: 69 cents a pound; raw rating, 3 — not as sweet as the Walla Walla, it brought tears to my eyes (not supposed to be characteristic of Vidalia onions); cooked rating, 5 — both sweetness and over-all flavor balance improved greatly upon cooking.

Red: 29 cents a pound; raw rating, 5 — best raw flavor, as sweet as Walla Walla Sweet, but not as pungent as the others; cooked rating, 3 — least sweetness and flavor.

Spanish: 39 cents a pound; raw rating, 4 — sweet but had a pungent aftertaste; cooked rating, 3 — had a mild onion flavor but lost some sweetness when cooked.

Bermuda: 49 cents a pound; raw rating, 3 — very pungent, with a mild flavor, not as sweet as Spanish or Walla Walla Sweet; cooked rating, 3 — mild onion flavor, but lost sweetness when cooked.

Here are some recipes using fresh onions.

Tabbouleh

Time: about 30 minutes (plus chilling time)

Cost: less than $2.25

1 cup cracked wheat or bulgur

1 medium onion, chopped

2 to 3 tomatoes, chopped

Salt and pepper to taste

3 tablespoons fresh mint, chopped

2 tablespoons parsley, chopped

2 tablespoons cilantro, chopped

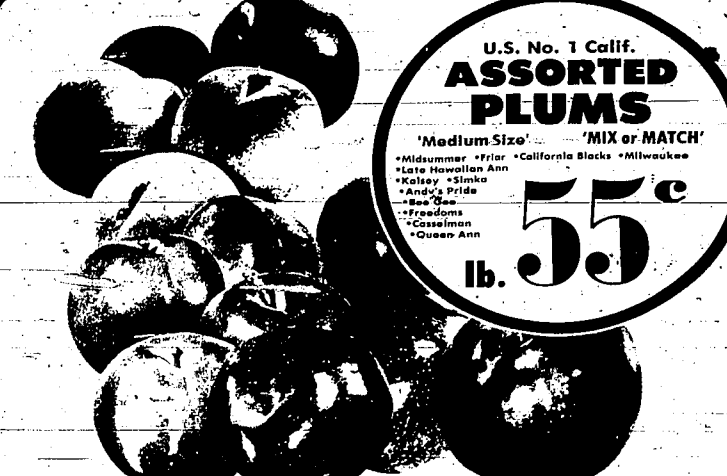

1/2 cup green pepper, chopped

1 cup cooked peas (optional)

one-third cup olive oil

one-third cup lemon juice

Soak wheat in cold water for 30 minutes, then drain and add vegetables. Blend oil and lemon juice, then add to wheat mixture. Mix well and chill. Makes 4 servings.

Angostura bitters are still useful

By SUZANNE HAMLIN
New York Daily News

Angostura aromatic bitters is one of those odd and interesting concoctions that no one ever knows quite how to use.

A liquid blend of herbs and spices, the color of polished mahogany, it was created by a seasoning and flavoring for both food and drink. It was "vented more than 150 years ago and most North Americans probably discovered it first when the rage for Manhattans — the cocktail that requires a dash of Angostura — was on. Now that that preparation is mostly come and gone, your bottle of Angostura may be sitting, woebegone, on the shelf.

Bring it out for a revival, say the Angostura people. In this age of low-sodium eating, Angostura bitters is, suddenly, an avant-garde product. Angostura is lower in sodium than almost any seasoning on the market, with the exception of garlic powder, mustard powder and sage.

For over 20 years, the exact sodium content has been listed on the label. A full teaspoon contains only 0.16 milligrams of sodium, an almost negligible amount compared with the 2,325 milligrams of sodium in a teaspoon of salt. A dash of Angostura has almost no calories, and a teaspoon has 14 calories.

Angostura is aromatic, not bitter, but traditionally many elixirs made from the roots of plants are called "bitters." It has a herbal taste, a rather peculiar one, and it has the strange ability to "marry" flavors in a dish, rather than add a discernible flavor of its own. Like salt, it can heighten and bring out the flavors in food. And, like salt, it can be used in or on just about anything: soups, sauces, drinks, dressings, meat, fish, to flavor fruit and dessert.

The company that makes Angostura has published a little pamphlet, in the shape of a book ("An Investment in Good Health Guide"), that tells us all about it. The formula, a secret blend of herbs, spices, ginseng (from the root of the ginseng plant), often used as a tonic) and water, in an alcohol solution (much as vanilla extract is made), was invented by Dr. Johann Siegel, a surgeon-general in the army of Simon Bolivar, who felt that the seasoning would aid the digestion and lift the spirits of his troops. It is named after the city of Angostura, Venezuela, where the doctor was headquartered.

Today, Angostura is made in Trinidad from the same formula, known — it is said — by only three people. A four-ounce bottle averages costs about $1.50 in the supermarket. The free booklet, which gives salt-free cooking tips and contains 15 recipes with the sodium and calorie count of servings, can be ordered from: Angostura, Box 184, Baldwin, N.Y. 11510. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

One of their recipes that we have used recently makes a refreshing salad dressing.

LOW SODIUM FRENCH DRESSING
Makes six 2-tablespoon servings
1/2 clove garlic
1/2 cup olive oil
2 tablespoons lemon juice

1 teaspoon Angostura aromatic bitters

Dash pepper
1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
1/4 teaspoon paprika

Place all ingredients in a jar with a tight fitting lid. Shake until thick and well blended.

Servings: sodium 0.47 mg.; calories 169.

NOTE: Safflower, or another light oil, can be substituted for the olive oil. Vinegar can be used instead of lemon juice.

ANGOSTURA APERTIF
Another recipe, from a colleague, makes a nice old-fashioned tonic.

Makes one drink
Salt-free seltzer water
Angostura bitters
Lime wedge

Fill a glass full of ice cubes with seltzer. Add several dashes of Angostura and stir. Squeeze in a wedge of lime and drink on a very hot day to restore the spirits and/or stomach.

The Tabasco people wrote a letter to say that Tabasco is very low in sodium: 2.5 milligrams for a dash.

A teaspoon of Tabasco, which is a combination of vinegar, red peppers, and a minimal amount of salt, has no fat and no calories. Besides fish, chicken, Bloody Marys and all the other good things made better by this spicy liquid seasoning, they suggested using it for pasta, substituting it for salt in the cooking water.

Having written that I could not abide pasta cooked without salt, I immediately put Tabasco to the test, using their recommendation of 1/4 teaspoon for three quarts of water.

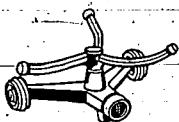

For comparison, I boiled up a batch of the same pasta, a thin spaghetti, in salted water. The Tabasco version tasted bland next to the robust salted pasta. Another attempt, though, using 1 1/2 teaspoons of Tabasco for three quarts of water, produced a gentle, palatable taste.

So, I sold up on the salted, but not bad. It's a taste one might get used to, considering that the sodium saving is so great.

Napoleon's prize began art of 'making seasons stand still'

By CHARLENE NEVADA
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

Napoleon Bonaparte is often remembered for his famous utterance "an army marches on its stomach."

What people don't remember is that Napoleon put his money where his mouth was.

When the French soldiers were hungry, Napoleon decided that something had to be done to make sure his army had food. He decided to preserve food — so that rations would be plentiful in the winter as well as the summer.

So, in the late 1700s, Napoleon offered a cash prize to anyone who could best figure out a way to prolong the freshness of meats and vegetables for several months.

One of the contestants was a candy-maker named Nicolas Appert. Appert took this contest seriously, and after about 10 years of fiddling in his kitchen — concluded that air causes food to spoil. If food could be kept away from the air, he concluded, it would remain edible for long periods.

Appert began sealing food in glass containers. And, in 1808, a French newspaper announced: "Monsieur Appert has discovered the art of making the seasons stand still." Appert won the contest — and canning as a way of preserving food was born.

Appert didn't have all the answers, though. While some things stayed fresh sealed in jars, some didn't. Some foods spoiled. And no one knew quite why.

It was another 50 years before Louis Pasteur came along with the revelation that bacteria causes food spoilage. Moreover, by heating, people discovered that the spoilage could be avoided.

Over the next hundred years, canning — the process of heating food and sealing it in jars — became a mainstay in most American homes. Putting up everything that grew in the garden was not only a nutritional plus, but an economic necessity.

Canning declined in popularity during the 1950s. Frozen foods were growing in popularity, people were moving into urban areas and canning seemed old-fashioned.

But in the last decade, there was a renewed interest in canning.

Part of the reason has no doubt been the economy. It is cheaper to have a garden and can than to buy commercially prepared food.

But there is also an increased awareness of preservatives that are put into commercially prepared foods. With canning, the homemaker has some — although not total — discretion about what goes into the can. (Commercially canned tomatoes, for instance, often contain a high amount of salt; home canned tomatoes can be saltless.)

It is obvious that canning has improved since the Frenchman Appert made the seasons stand still.

But what many homemakers don't know is that there has been a mini revolution in canning in the last decade.

The old rules changeth. So, if you are planning on canning this year, brush up on the rules before you unpack those Mason jars.

At a beginning, if your canning book is more than a couple of years old, toss it out. Better to invest a few dollars in a new book than to give your family or friends food poisoning.

Canning trouble comes when you don't follow — or don't know — the rules, according to the Farm Journal's "Freezing and Canning Cookbook" (Ballantine, $3.50 paperback).

If you are going to can, stop by a bookstore and pick up a book and learn the new rules.

Or, call the cooperative extension agent in your county. Most will be able to provide free pamphlets detailing the latest recommendations for canning, pickling, freezing and drying.

No matter whether you are an old hand at canning or trying it for the first time, there are some rules worth repeating.

First, remember that only high-acid fruits and vegetables can be processed in a hot water bath. All others must be done in a steam pressure cooker.

High-acid foods include most fruits and tomatoes. But — as an example of a new rule — it is now recommended that one-quarter teaspoon of citric acid, or one tablespoon of bottled, undiluted lemon juice, be added to each pint of tomatoes.

Tomatoes once required no additional acid. But in recent years, seed growers have developed lower-acid tomatoes. So, to be safe, it is now recommended that extra acid be added.

With the exception of tomatoes and fruits, all other vegetables should be done in a steam pressure cooker. "Salt includes beans, corn, peas, potatoes and squash."

It is recommended that you not can peppers at all. Although some canning books give recipes, county extension agents — working with U.S. Department of Agriculture guidelines — say they have not conducted enough research to recommend it. Peppers are very low in acid. There is just too much danger that the "poisonous" botulism spores could grow.

Botulism is, of course, the biggest fear of any home canner. The disease attacks the nervous system. About one-third of all botulism victims die, according to the Farm Journal book.

Botulism spores exist everywhere. They are "in the soil, and on the surface of foods which we eat every day," according to the canning book. The spores remain dormant in high-acid foods.

"But these bacteria thrive in low-acid foods and in the moist, low-oxygen environment of an airtight jar," the book said.

Pressure canning will kill those botulism spores. A hot water bath won't.

To rid fruit and vegetables of as many spores as possible — before canning — the fruit should be washed thoroughly. Use two teaspoons of regular dish detergent for each gallon of water. Rinse several times, but don't let foods soak in water. They lose nutrients that way.

The Farm Journal book also advises you discard all spoiled or bruised cherries, berries and plums.

Bruised areas can be trimmed out of large fruits, but it is best to set aside blemished fruit for eating fresh.

Giving proper attention to jars is just as important as preparing the food properly.

Glass jars and screw bands are reusable if they aren't chipped or rusty. New canning lids must be purchased each year.

Make sure jars are clean before filling them with the fruit or vegetable.

They can — under two conditions, according to the Farm Journal book.

"It is not necessary to sterilize empty jars which will be filled with food and processed in a pressure canner, or which will be processed for 15 minutes or more in a boiling water canner. Processing sterilizes food, jars and lids all at the same time." However, if the boiling water bath is less than 15 minutes, those jars should be sterilized first.

Dial gauges on pressure canners should also be checked every year — even if the canner is new. If the pressure is not high enough, the food may wind up being improperly processed.

Most county extension services set up canning clinics in the summer.

Cashiers' job marred because of thoughtless customers

By MARTIN SLOANE
United Feature Syndicate

Several months ago I wrote a column asking supermarket cashiers for a little more cooperation and consideration in dealing with customers. As a result, I received many letters from cashiers who asked for "equal time." I think they deserve it, so consider what they have to say.

DEAR MARTIN — The majority of supermarket shoppers are very nice. Some are darlings — helpful, patient, pleasant and very understanding.

But there are also shoppers who treat cashiers as if we are trying to take advantage of them. Hardly a day goes by that we are not accused of purposely shortchanging someone.

Supermarket Shopper

Why in the world would we want to ring up the wrong price? If a customer is overcharged, the money goes to the store, not to us. In fact, errors are embarrassing, especially when we must get a supervisor to approve the correction.

We also take verbal abuse because of rising prices. We only ring up the amount we see marked on the item. We have no control over prices. When we do our own shopping, we pay the same prices!

We take verbal abuse because shoppers are stuck in a slow checkout line. Is it our fault that the customer at the front of the line didn't have enough money to pay the bill or didn't get a check approved?

Every accusation breaks down our concentration and lessens our ability to achieve accuracy. Thank heavens for the thoughtful shoppers. Without them the job would be impossible. — Cathy from Bethlehem, Pa.

DEAR MARTIN — I think that your readers should get an idea of what it is like on the other side of the checkout counter. Coupon clippers should see a few things from a cashier's point of view.

I may get a few hundred customers through my line a day. If I get a smile or a friendly hello from a few of them, I consider myself lucky. All too often I get money thrown at me and change grabbed out of my hand.

Sure, it is my job and I chose it. But there is no excuse for some of the things we cashiers have to endure at the hands of thoughtless customers.

If customers would show us a little consideration, it would make it a lot easier for us to do our jobs and give them the best possible service. — Denise from Portage, Pa.

Fish studied as big food source

HOUSTON (UPI) — A species of fish that many believe Christ used to feed 5,000 followers in Biblical times is now being studied as a possible food source for millions of people worldwide.

Researchers at Texas A&M University are studying the Tilapia, a small, hardy, fast-growing fish that is native to the Nile River in Egypt. The fish is being studied for its potential as a food source for millions of people worldwide.

numbers of people at a low cost than any other fish we know of," said Dr. James T. Davis, fisheries specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A&M.

The fish is native to the Nile River in Egypt. It has been introduced to the Philippines, Africa and most tropical areas of the world, Davis said.

Dr. Robert Stickney, associate professor of wildlife and fisheries science at A&M, said the Tilapia is the second most widely cultured fish in the world, behind the carp.

"They're easy to manage and difficult to kill. They grow rapidly, live on an inexpensive diet, they tolerate heat, but they don't tolerate cold," Stickney said.

Stickney said the Tilapia's intolerance to cold and its quick sexual maturation of 120-150 days, at which point it begins to slow its growth, are two of the most notable disadvantages to raising the fish commercially. But he said studies on Tilapia in Israel, Egypt, the Philippines and most recently Texas indicate the fish can be grown very economically in small amounts of water.

Chocolate cheesecake recipe may create chocolate shock

By LINDA CICERO
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

Q. Can you please give me a recipe for chocolate cream cheesecake? — K. B.

A. Beware. This chocolate cheesecake, passed on to me by a confirmed chocolate addict, is so rich you are likely to go into chocolate shock.

CHOCOLATE CHEESECAKE
CRUST: 1 and one third cups chocolate wafer crumbs (the kind you find in the ice cream department)

2 tablespoons sugar
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 cup melted butter
Pat into pan.

FILLING: 1 1/2 cups chocolate chips

1/2 cup sugar
2 eggs
2 tablespoons rum
16-ounce package sour cream
28-ounce packages cream cheese
2 tablespoons butter
Melt chocolate. Beat eggs, sugar and rum. Add sour cream. Cream cream cheese, add the chocolate, then the sour cream, egg and rum mixture, then the butter. Blend. Bake for about one hour in a 325-degree oven. Cool at least an hour before serving.

Recently we shared a recipe for Friendship Cake sent to us by Mary Carlson of Sunnyside, Wash. She wanted to know how to make the "starter" for the fermented fruit used in the cake, since without the starter you must rely on a friend who is keeping the fruit going to share some with you (I guess that's why it is called Friendship Cake).

Now, for some background. Apparently, the fermented fruit — alternately called brandied fruit or cheer — originated in Kirbyville, Texas. By itself, it can be spooned over ice cream or cake — and apparently Friendship Cake is just a new variation.

FERMENTED FRUIT STARTER
3/4 cup drained canned peaches cut in pieces
1/2 cup drained pineapple tidbits
6 maraschino cherries, cut in half
1 1/2 cups sugar
1 package dry yeast

Combine ingredients and place in a glass jar with a loose cover. — an apothecary jar is perfect. Stir several times the first day, then stir once a day. At the end of two weeks, this starter has fermented enough to make the sauce. There will be 2 cups of starter, one to share with a friend. Do not double the recipe.

The starter can be used on to the Friendship Cake, or to make this sauce for spooning over cake or ice cream.

VINTAGE FRUIT SAUCE
1 cup fermented fruit starter
1/2 cup drained canned peaches cut in pieces
1/2 cup drained pineapple tidbits
6 maraschino cherries cut in half

1 cup sugar
Combine all ingredients in a glass jar with a loose cover; stir well. Set in a fairly warm place. Continue to stir once a day. Sauce can be served after one week. Fruit and sugar must be repeated every two weeks to keep the process going. There is no need to refrigerate.

Cline says she found her recipe in a booklet published by Red Star Yeast, which she received by writing to Consumer Services, Universal-Food Corporation, 433 E. Michigan, Milwaukee, Wis. 53201.

VINTAGE WINEBERRY JAM
4 cups frozen, unsweetened crushed strawberries, slightly thawed
3 cups sugar

1 package dry yeast
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1/2 cup water

Red food coloring if desired
Combine berries, sugar and yeast in loosely covered glass jar. Stir several times the first day, then once a week, pour berries into heavy, deep saucepan. Boil gently for 15 minutes, stirring into heavy, deep saucepan. Boil gently for 15 minutes, stirring every few minutes. Spoon foam from jam. Dissolve gelatin in the 1/2 cup water and add to berries. Mix well. Cover and refrigerate. Jam will be ready in a day. Store in refrigerator up to 1 month. Makes 5 to 6 cups. Serves on toast, pancakes, waffles, ice cream or even meat.
