Padilla meets client Heidi Hadley on his first day back to work

A miracle recovery

Padilla is welcomed back

By STEPHANIE SCHORW, Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The staff at the Idaho Department of Employment couldn't let a miracle pass unnoticed.

With balloons, ribbons and a sign that read, "Welcome Back, Amigo," they greeted the return of fellow employee Floyd Padilla back to work.

It was a welcome many had feared they would never make.

Padilla, 36, a 10-year department employee and state president of the Idaho Migrant Council, had been absent from his job for four months, felled by a mysterious illness in June.

He had suffered kidney and lung failure and had been in a coma for three weeks. Doctors feared brain damage and were not optimistic in their prognosis.

But Padilla, the father of four, survived.

Both his memory and the use of his limbs slowly returned. After 1½ months in the hospital, and several more at home, he decided to return to work — even if he found that he could work only part-time.

On Friday, he had begun counseling clients again, despite a tremor in his hands and general feeling of weakness.

"It really does (feel good to be back.) It really does," he said in his characteristically modest fashion. He glanced at the library adorning his desk, smiled and said, "There's nice people here."

Padilla said doctors never figured out exactly what caused his sudden illness. He had been taking various medications for arthritis, both local prescriptions and some remedies from Mexico. He had, however, discontinued use of the drugs before his attack.

About June 1, he began feeling tired and ill; but thinking it was the flu he put off seeking care. Then, when he sought help at the Twin Falls Clinic, the trouble really started. "I had a little bit of everything," he said.

His kidneys failed and he was rushed to St. Alphonsus Hospital in Boise for dialysis. His respiratory system also went haywire and he was placed on a respirator. He said that his red blood cells were not functioning properly and he slipped into a coma.

His memory is vague, but while in the coma, "I was in the war in Great Britain," he said. "I was flying a plane all over the place."

When he came out of the coma, it took some time for his memory to return and to regain the use of his limbs.

"They say it was a miracle. The doctors really didn't think I would make it," he said.

He attributes his recovery to "prayer," especially from his wife, Maria, who stayed with him throughout the ordeal.

Now Padilla is anxious to return to normal and begin his work again with the Idaho Migrant Council.

"I had goals I wanted to accomplish. All this has set me back four months. I want to get back to it," he said.

House vote crushes budget amendment

By MARY BETH FRANKLIN

RONALD REAGAN
Reacts to defeat

WASHINGTON — The House Friday crushed a constitutional amendment to require a balanced budget. President Reagan expressed "deep burning anger" at Democrats and they accused him of playing politics with the Constitution.

The House voted 236-187 — 46 votes shy of the two-thirds majority needed for approval of a constitutional amendment — Idaho — Reps. George Hansen and Larry Craig voted for the amendment.

The proposal would have required Congress to adopt a balanced budget resolution every year beginning later this decade — unless there was a war or three-fifths of each house voted to bust the budget.

In the end, the issue boiled down to a political shooting match between Reagan and House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, who outmaneuvered the president by rushing the bill to the floor before the fabled White House lobbying effort could get under way.

O'Neill called the vote "a victory for the Constitution of the United States." In a speech he was not able to deliver because debate was cut short, O'Neill said Reagan turned to the amendment only because his economic program had failed and he was trying to divert attention before the elections.

"Because of the failure of that plan to live up to its promises, we are voting on an amendment to the Constitution," O'Neill said.

Reagan bitterly replied that it was "Tip who beat the American people."

"Today, I share the deep burning anger, I think, of millions of Americans," Reagan told reporters at the White House. Democrats "have choked off the chances for a balanced budget this year," he said.

House debate was spirited but mainly on a high plain. Unlike many half-empty House sessions, numerous members sat through the historic debate.

The vote was 167 Republicans and 69 Democrats for the amendment and 167 Democrats and 20 Republicans against.

It was clear that the vote removed the balanced budget from the floors of Congress to the political hustings, where it will be an issue in the Nov. 2 elections.

This vote today makes clear who supports a balanced budget and who does not," Reagan said. "Voters across America should count heads and take names. In November, we must elect representatives who will support the amendment when we submit it again in the spring."

"We're going to make it an issue," said assistant House Republican leader Trent Lott of Mississippi. "It will shift the whole tenor of the debate."

But House Democratic leader Jim Wright of Texas said the vote would not divert the country's attention from the failure of Reagan's economic program and unemployment.

Cyanide-laced drug claims sixth victim

By SHARON RUTENBERG

McNeil, in a Chicago news briefing, offered a $100,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person who laced the Tylenol with cyanide, company attorney Paul Nolan said.

McNeil recalled two lot numbers, MC2880 and 1910MD, in some 264,000 bottles from store shelves nationwide and all Tylenol capsules in the Chicago area.

Squad cars blared warnings on suburban streets not to take Tylenol capsules and warnings flashed across television screens.

The Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Poison Control Center for the Chicago region said it received 700 calls Thursday.

Reports that McNeil also recalled two other lot numbers were "flatly denied" by a company spokeswoman.

The sixth death was that of Theresa Janus, 19, of Joliet, Ill., who died "a central doctor caused by cyanide poisoning," said a spokesman at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

Five others, including her husband and brother-in-law, died Wednesday and Thursday.

"I think we're dealing with an isolated, bizarre case," FDA deputy director Mark Novitch said. "All the evidence points to a localized situation in the Chicago area."

Lorraine Barnwell, 49, of Westmont, was in good condition at Good Samaritan Hospital in Downers Grove with a very mild case of cyanide poisoning. She told her doctor she took Extra-Strength Tylenol the day before.

Nadine O'Dell, 62, of Xenia, Ill., was admitted to Deacon Hospital in St. Charles and blood tests confirmed cyanide poisoning. She was listed in good condition.

She took six capsules from lot MC2880 between Tuesday and Thursday.

In Cleveland, a woman who was not identified was hospitalized in Salt Lake City with cyanide poisoning that apparently resulted from taking Tylenol capsules, authorities said.

Marines mop up minefields, papers report Sharon oyster

Also, the Phalange Party newspaper, Al Amal, said Phalange forces arrested a man who confessed to the Sept. 14 assassination of Gemayel's brother Bashir, then president-elect.

There was no immediate confirmation on the arrest from the Lebanese government.

The paper reported the unidentified suspect said he worked "on behalf of a man who is in contact with foreign quarters" and detailed how the blast from 77 pounds of explosives at the party headquarters in east Beirut killed Gemayel and 21 top Phalange officials.

In Israel, the government said a panel led by Supreme Court president

U.S. Marines cleared unexploded mines and bombs Friday from a beachhead where one Marine was killed and three others wounded. The operation delayed Marine deployment to peacekeeping posts at Beirut airport and the arrival of M-60 tanks from ships offshore.

As the Marines disposed of deadly explosives, U.S. special envoy Philip Habib met in Beirut with President Amin Gemayel on plans to get 70,000 Israeli, 35,000 Syrian and 10,000 PLO troops out of all Lebanon.

Habib later flew to Damascus.

Yitzhak Kahane would fully investigate the Palestinian massacre by Lebanese Christian Phalangists at the Shatila and Sabra two weeks ago.

Israeli Newspapers also flatly reported that Defense Minister Ariel Sharon, who ordered the Phalange forces to clean out hidden PLO fighters from the camps, would be ousted from the Cabinet.

The Marines, part of the 3,400-member international peacekeeping force sent back to Beirut following the massacre, said they were taking extra precautions following an explosion Thursday that killed one Marine and wounded three others.

House passes banking reform

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House gave final congressional passage Friday to landmark banking reform legislation that would give thrift institutions expanded investment powers and permit them to offer members new accounts to compete with money market funds.

By voice vote, the House approved compromise legislation approved earlier by the Senate. President Reagan is expected to sign the bill.

The action came after the House agreed, by a 294-50 vote, to take up the legislation despite charges by House Democratic leader Jim Wright of Texas that it "is an outrage."

The legislation stipulates that within 60 days of the bill becoming law, banks and savings and loan associations can offer to customers a new deposit account, that has no interest rate ceiling, thus allowing it to compete with money market funds.

Jet crash captain arrested

LUXEMBOURG (UPI) — The captain of the Soviet airliner in which six people were killed in a crash was arrested for refusing to cooperate with Western accident investigators, national security sources said Friday.

The source said he had refused to be questioned by an investigating magistrate. It was not known when the captain was placed under arrest.

A guard has been placed at the hospital room of the co-pilot, who also refused to answer questions, the sources said.

A team of Russian experts arrived in Luxembourg Thursday to join Belgian experts who are investigating the crash Wednesday at the request of the Luxembourg authorities.

Six people were killed when the Aeroflot Ilyushin-61 airliner veered off the runway when landing at Luxembourg's Findel airport and crashed into a wooded area where it burst into flames.

Hurricane pounds Mexico

CULIACAN, Mexico (UPI) — Flooding caused by Hurricane Paul isolated 400,000 people in two northern Mexico cities Friday and 140,000 more people were left homeless by the killer storm, state officials said.

The government news agency Notimex said 24 people were killed in the storm, but police officials in the state capital of Culiacan said only five people were confirmed dead. At least 82 were injured, police said.

Paul slammed into Mexico's west coast early Thursday with 120-mph winds and driving rains before dying out.

Sinaloa state Gov. Antonio Toledo Corro said the hurricane washed out bridges, tore down power and communication lines and destroyed crops in the northern part of the state, causing an estimated $20 million in damages.

"Not only were crops and houses lost, but there will also be shortages of food and medicine," Toledo Corro said.

Today's weather

Clearing today, partly cloudy Sunday

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert-Jarvis

Gooding areas: Decreasing clouds this morning becoming sunny by afternoon. Winds westerly at 15 mph. Warmer with highs today to 65. Partly cloudy Sunday with light to moderate showers Tuesday to 40.

Camas-Prarie, Halley, Wood River Valley: Partly cloudy this morning, becoming sunny in the afternoon. Partly cloudy tonight and Sunday. Highs 55 to 60 both days. Lows in the 20s.

Northern Nevada and Utah: Mostly sunny and warmer today and Sunday in both states except for some high clouds along the Idaho border. A few showers in northwestern Utah on Sunday. Highs 55 to 65. Lows in the 30s.

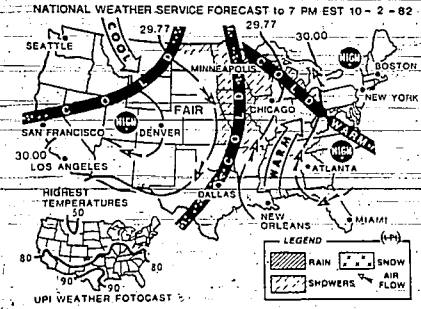

Synops: Clearing skies and warmer temperatures appear in prospect for the Magic Valley and southern Idaho over the weekend.

But there is a chance showers may return on Monday.

Potato harvest and haying conditions for the Magic Valley will become good over the weekend. Dry, warmer weather. A chance of showers Monday may cause a few delays. Light to moderate morning dew is expected through Tuesday.

Soil temperatures will fall 4 to 6 degrees by sunrise but rise above 45 degrees by 10 a.m. Pan evaporation is forecast at 14 inches today and 16 inch Sunday. A few cold low pressure systems moved out of the southeastern Idaho Friday and by late afternoon was in northeastern Wyoming, weakening as it moved eastward. This system kept a heavy cloud layer over southeastern Idaho and produced heavy rain from Burley eastward.

NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE FORECAST TO 7 PM EST 10-2-82

Spotty frost appears likely this morning in the agricultural valleys as skies become clear to partly cloudy. A few fog patches are likely to develop, too.

Early next week a mild westerly air flow, containing several minor disturbances, will become established over the Pacific Northwest. This will bring some clouds and chance of showers in northern and central Idaho.

Temperatures Friday were in the upper 50s or low 60s over western Idaho but in the east remained in the 40s beneath heavy clouds. The warmest reading in the state was 69 degrees at Lewiston. The coolest morning minimum was 25, at Bovill.

The extended forecast calls for a chance of showers Monday but otherwise dry through Tuesday. Temperatures will be near to a little below normal with highs in the upper 50s and 60s and lows in the 30s or low 40s.

Elsewhere in the nation: Friday, the warmest temperature reported was 98 degrees at Paredito, Texas, and the coolest was 23 at Flagstaff, Ariz.

Congress passes stop-gap funding

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress Friday approved a compromise stopgap funding measure to keep the federal government from closing down and sent it to President Reagan to be signed into law.

Working late into the night, the Senate agreed by voice vote for the temporary continuing resolution, which was drafted by a joint conferees committee Thursday to keep the government operating until Dec. 17 and approved earlier by the House.

President Reagan was expected to sign it, ending any threat of a government shutdown. Federal agencies were to begin a partial shutdown at 24 hours earlier.

The House voted 290-123 for the resolution late in the day, after first debating and voting on a proposed balanced budget constitutional amendment.

In a separate voice vote, the House agreed to a Senate amendment to the resolution giving working air traffic controllers an annual 6.6 percent pay increase.

One member who voted against the funding measure, Rep. Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., complained during debate that Congress did too often rolls "all of our appropriations" into a single, foul-smelling lump.

"This bill is a substitute for honest work," Frenzel said. "Almost nobody knows what is being passed."

The delay in congressional approval of the funding measure forced the government earlier in the day to send furlough notices to most of its 2.3 million employees.

The government technically ran out of money at midnight Thursday: the fiscal 1983 New Year, but all government employees were told to report to work Friday and no essential federal services were interrupted.

Office of Management and Budget spokesman Ed Dale said no furloughs would occur unless Congress failed to pass or President Reagan refused to sign the measure by Monday — both considered unlikely.

Reaction strong to amendment defeat Budget

By JOHN F. BARTON,
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Reagan was enraged by the House defeat of a balanced budget amendment, but House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass., called it a victory for the Constitution and the American people.

"Today I share the deep burning anger I think of millions of Americans," Reagan said at the White House following the vote. He said the House vote "choke[d] off the chance of a balanced budget amendment this year."

"When Congress busts the budget it is the American people who are shortchanged," Reagan said. While talking to reporters later, Reagan blamed O'Neill personally, declaring it was "hip who beat the American people."

Earlier O'Neill said, "Today's vote is a victory for the Constitution of the United States and the people of the United States." He said the House did

THOMAS O'NEILL
"Victory for Constitution."
"What was right rather than what was politically expedient."
Rep. Trent Lott, R-Miss., second in line.

the House GOP leadership, said Republicans would make the vote a major issue in the congressional election campaign. "Yes, we're going to make it an issue. It will shift the whole tenor of the debate."

The problem is not the institution, but the people who are here. They don't have the will to have a vote on this by the people," Lott said.

But House Democratic leader Jim Wright of Texas predicted the campaign would be fought over employment and the economy because of public wants "to preserve the Constitution."

Throughout our history there have been attempts by opinionated politicians to scribble their own preferences and leave their own fingerprints on the Constitution. There have been over 7,000 efforts made and only 26 succeeded," Wright said.

Rep. Thomas Foley, D-Wash., No. 2 in the House Democratic leadership, said the GOP constitutional amendment "would have enlarged presidential powers and invaded the judicial process."

Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., said he voted against the GOP amendment because it could force Congress to raise taxes to balance the budget in the coming time, particularly in a recession, and thereby deepen rather than correct the economic downturns.

Lott told reporters Kemp's vote might be used against him by his Democratic opponent.

Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., senior GOP member of the House Ways and Means Committee, said, "We're discouraged but not defeated."

Rep. Phil Gramm, D-Texas, who worked with Republicans to assure a vote on the GOP measure, said, "We're going to come back next term. We'll get a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution."

AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland said the House "has earned the thanks of the nation. House members have protected the integrity of the Constitution and resisted the temptation to give a momentary political advantage at the expense of the nation."

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce's president, Richard Leshner, called the vote one more indication "there are still too many big spenders in Congress and the voters should take that into consideration when they go to the polls on November 2."

The defeat was by a greater margin than anyone had expected, and was stunning in its speed.

Democrats burst into cheers and applause as it became apparent only two minutes into the 15-minute roll call that Reagan, accustomed to overwhelming victories in Congress, would not get what he wanted this time.

Rep. John Burton, D-Calif., hugged his neighbors and Democratic leaders slapped each other on the back, wept and laughed at Republicans on the other side of the packed chamber.

The vote on the administration-backed amendment followed a 346-77 defeat for a less stringent version of the bill.

Rep. Bill Alexander of Arkansas, the amendment was designed mainly to splinter support for the Republicans' measure.

Rather than prolonging the debate, Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., author of the administration-supported plan, then offered to proceed directly to a vote.

O'Neill predicted the defeat even before debate began, but the Democrats took no chances.

In an abrupt change of plans, the Democratic leadership House decided to take up the constitutional amendment as the first order of business to shorten Reagan's lobbying time.

O'Neill said Reagan began telephoning Democrats early Friday morning to seek their support. "There's no need to give him more time to use his guile and charm," O'Neill said.

In addition to requiring a balanced budget, the amendment would have limited the amount of taxes Congress could raise, forcing the lawmakers to balance the budget by cutting spending rather than increasing taxes.

Alexander's bill would have required the president to submit a balanced budget proposal and Congress to adopt one. But it would allow Congress to approve a deficit during any national emergency by a simple majority rather than the "super majority" stipulated in the administration-backed bill.

The budget deficit for fiscal 1983, which began Friday, is expected to top $150 billion.

Tylenol

The woman came into Parma General Hospital Friday complaining of a severe headache, a hospital spokesman said. Dr. Theodore Marsh said tests showed "a very small amount of cyanide in her blood."

Marsh said the woman told him she had taken 10 capsules of Extra-Strength Tylenol since Saturday and that the bottle was from one of the two lots identified as contaminated by the FDA.

Fletcher, spokesman for the Illinois Department of Law Enforcement-Division of Criminal Investigation, said investigators questioned store and warehouse employees of various Chicago area distributors.

"You're dealing here with an absolutely monstrous crime," he said. "Whether it's a psychotic individual, whether it's targeted at one particular person, whether a perverted juvenile prank. There's simply a universe of possibilities in the case."

In Washington, FDA spokeswoman Jennifer Tucker said, "We're advising consumers not to use Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules until a series of deaths in the Chicago area can be clarified."

The FDA also sent an investigator to Cuba City, Wis., where a woman and her daughter became ill after taking Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules a week ago from a bottle marked with the lot number MC288.

"I couldn't move my head I was so dizzy," said Darlene Riley, 38, who purchased the capsules in nearby Dubuque, Iowa. "At times I couldn't breathe. I have never been that sick before in my life."

Mary Kellerman, 12, Elk Grove Village, had been sick with a cold and was threatened for two days. She was found unconscious Wednesday morning and died that night at Alexian Brothers Medical Center.

Adam James, 27, Arlington Heights, died hours later at Northwest Community Hospital.

The first casualties among American peace-keeping troops in Lebanon.

"We are moving cautiously, to the best of ability, to ensure that we have swept the whole area (of mines)," said Lt. Commander Mark Stoll, a public affairs spokesman in Beirut.

"We are using extreme caution, as we have since we arrived, in moving into our positions."

Marine Cpl. David L. Reagan, 21, of Chesapeake, Va., was killed Thursday while clearing an area around the Beirut airport. U.S. officials said only that he was killed by the explosion of a "cluster-type" weapon and not necessarily an American-made cluster bomb of the type used by Israel.

Pfc. Leslie R. Morris, 19, of Pasadena, Calif., was reported in serious but stable condition and Cpl. Anthony D. Moran, 21, of Mason, Ga., and Lance Cpl. George Washington, 19, of Elgin, Ill., had less serious injuries.

Navy spokesman Stoll said M-60 tanks and other support equipment aboard 6th Fleet ships would not be put ashore until the mine-sweeping operation was completed, assuming the airport, which was bombed and shelled heavily by both the Israelis and Palestinians during the Israeli invasion.

The airport reopened to commercial traffic Thursday under Marine control. It is immediately south of 1,100 Italian peace-keeping troops stationed in the southern Beirut suburbs. About 1,100 French troops are deployed in west Beirut and around the Sabra and Chatila refugee camps. Beirut radio reported Habib and President Amin Gemayel focused their talks "on plans to evacuate all foreign troops from Lebanon within the coming weeks" now that the capital has been reunited and the Green Line separating Muslim West and Christian East Beirut has been abolished.

"The situation is just as you see it, a tight-tipped Habib said at the airport. "Now the airport is open, we just like you and everybody else, are still working hard." The Green Line, an invisible barrier that has served as a constant reminder of a divided capital since the 1975-1978 Lebanese civil war, virtually disappeared Friday when five main highways linking eastern neighborhoods with the west reopened to normal traffic.

Lancelot the unicorn is making the county fair rounds.

Couple resurrects unicorns

By ELLEN DEBENPORT
United Press International

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — Otter Zell and his wife Morning Glory were researching a book about legendary animals when they stumbled across the old formula for breeding unicorns — real ones.

Now they have five living unicorns.

"Unicorns really existed," Zell, 39, said. "There's more information about unicorns than any other animal you can name in Renaissance times. They're probably the most frequently depicted animals in art over the past 4,000 years."

Unicorns were originally bred to guard sheep because "all unicorns are invincible warriors," Zell said. They could even fight lions and win, he said.

But they were also believed to have prophetic powers and became the pets of royalty.

The Zells and their first successfully bred unicorn, Lancelot, will be at the Texas Renaissance Festival in Plantersville the first two weekends in October. Lancelot is especially popular at Renaissance festivals, Zell said, because unicorns were last believed seen in Renaissance times.

"He's the first of his kind to walk the earth in over 400 years," Zell said.

Unicorn, from "uni-cornus," simply means "single horn."

"They are not themselves a species," Zell said. "This is probably why a lot of people have dismissed them. What they are is a trans-species phenomenon that may be obtained from any of the horned species of animals."

The earliest unicorns were single-horned bulls. Single-horned rams are recorded in Greek history, and Oriental unicorns were single-horned deer, he said.

In Renaissance times, knights are believed to have put single-horned helmets on their horses as a symbol of strength, and artists later look the liberty to create horned horses — unicorns — in their paintings, Zell said.

But the real medieval unicorns were from the goat family, he said. They were small enough to "fit in the laps of maidens" and are the type Zell said he is breeding at his ranch in Mendocino County, Calif.

Zell carries a tapestry with him for people to compare to Lancelot.

"Not everyone who sees Lancelot is convinced he is a unicorn, however.

"In all the legends, it always says: some people will not recognize him and some people will," Zell said.

"Most people do because he looks just like the tapestry. There are people who are committed to not wanting to believe in unicorns at all. But he knows he's a unicorn."

Lancelot, who looks like a white, bearded goat with a single horn on his head, is about three feet high and 150 pounds. He is not fully grown at 2 1/2 but was bred to be small — mainly so he could be easily handled, Zell said.

"If he's in a good mood, people can even pet him," he said.

Study: illegals cost millions

By D'VERACOHN
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Illegal aliens are getting hundreds of millions of dollars in welfare and unemployment benefits, a new study said Friday, warning of a potential "hemorrhage of our social welfare system."

Use of social services by illegal aliens is going up, and — contrary to popular myth based on earlier studies — evidence indicates illegals pay less in taxes than they get in benefits, said the Federation for American Immigration Reform.

The federation, warning that "illegal immigrants aren't a bargain, urged passage of legislation clamping down on illegal immigration but also granting limited amnesty to some. The Senate has approved a bill, but the House has not yet acted."

Illegal immigration is not substantially stopped — and stopped soon — what (former Vice President) Walter Mondale called a "hemorrhage along our southern border" may well become a hemorrhage of our social welfare system. "The report said."

Casket contains cocaine

HOLYOKE, Mass. (UPI) — State police have confiscated cocaine hidden in a coffin and arrested the son and daughter-in-law of an undertaker.

Police Thursday seized about 2 ounces of nearly pure cocaine — some in the casket at the funeral home — and his wife, Delaine, 21, both of West Springfield.

The couple was free on bail Friday after pleading innocent to cocaine possession and distribution charges Thursday in District Court.

Edward P. Day, owner of the Edward P. Day Funeral Home, said he was "shocked" to learn of the raid and arrest. He said his son hadn't worked at the mortuary for at least five years but still visited to pick up his mail.

"Information was developed that cocaine was secreted in a casket," a police news release said. "So state police and Holyoke police officers made a peaceful entry into the Holyoke home and seized another ounce of cocaine."

The drug was found in a display casket, used for sales purposes, police said.

"Illegal immigration was not a free lunch; it has been charged to our account, and payment is coming due," the report said.

The report, "Breaking Down the Barriers: The Changing Relationship Between Illegal Immigration and Welfare," was written by the federation's executive director, Roger Cannon.

Although studies a decade ago showed illegal aliens used few social services, "later and sounder examination reveals high and increasing welfare utilization by illegal immigrants ... illegal aliens make average to heavy use of welfare services," Cannon wrote.

Among his findings: About 18.5 percent of undocumented women of Mexican descent in Los Angeles, interviewed after giving birth at county hospitals, said their families received welfare, according to one survey.

In a study of illegal aliens in New York City who had not been caught, 13 percent of Haitians and 29 percent of Dominicans said they received unemployment insurance.

A California survey found nearly 35 percent of illegal aliens surveyed received unemployment benefits.

An Illinois survey still under way suggests illegals collect more than $50 million in unemployment benefits, and 46 percent to 51 percent of aliens' applications are from illegal aliens.

"Illegal aliens" are applying for and receiving hundreds of millions of dollars worth of services — at the same time these programs are being cut back for disadvantaged Americans," the report said.

Doctor admits stabbing himself

MARIANNA, Fla. (UPI) — A family doctor who was hospitalized twice with knife wounds and whose home was damaged by fire after he spoke out about a high incidence of cancer in the area admitted Friday the wounds were self-inflicted and he set the fire.

Dr. Frederick Boody, 39, volunteered the confession to the Marianna Police Department just one day after leaving the hospital following the second stabbing.

The doctor was released to the care of his wife and his medical partner, Dr. Robert Huff, and was to be taken to Charter Woods Hospital in Dothan, Ala., for psychiatric treatment.

H.T. "Sonny" Dean, city manager of Marianna, said Boody gave a reason for the bogus attacks in his statements to police but would not reveal what it was.

Dean and other local officials said no charges would be filed against Boody in Marianna or in Calhoun County, where the first reported attack occurred, but state Fire Marshal Bill Gunter said in Tallahassee he expected the doctor to be charged with first degree arson, a felony carrying a maximum 30-year prison sentence.

"I'm absolutely certain they'll file that charge," Gunter said. "I'd say he is a troubled man."

"Our real concern at this time is for Boody and his family," Calhoun County Sheriff Buddy Smith said. "We want him to get the best treatment possible for his family's sake."

Boody, a widely-known and well-liked rural physician, attracted attention early this year when he reported he had found as much cancer in 16 months in the little Panhandle town of Allha as he would have expected to find in 10 years.

He mentioned several possible causes, including pollution of the Chipola River by two battery recycling plants upstream.

He claimed the first attack occurred Sept. 15 when he was lured to the river to see new evidence of pollution — was attacked by two men and stabbed in the arms, thigh, stomach and cheek. He said his attackers warned him to keep quiet about "his river thing."

Three days later a fire broke out at his home and heavily damaged his utility room and automobile.

Boody, a Mormon, claimed he was attacked again Sept. 27 after being lured to his office about 1 a.m. by an anonymous caller who claimed to be a Mormon missionary traveling through the area.

Breathalyzer inaccurate?

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — Breathalyzer tests used for checking whether a driver is legally drunk — taken with Smith & Wesson equipment may be inaccurate because of interference by police radios or AM-FM transmitters, the Springfield-based gun company says.

Readings on some of the devices can be wrong either way in about 5 percent of the machines, if the radios or transmitters are nearby, Jim Vandergriff, Smith & Wesson marketing director, said Thursday.

About 10,000 devices are used in police agencies across the nation, he said.

But the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, the federal agency which approved the device, said it has detected no problems.

"We've found that unless you get right up on top of the instrument — say you place a walkie-talkie within a foot or so of it — there's no interference," said Ron A. Engle, an agency safety management specialist.

Vandergriff said the company has written all police departments using the equipment urging them to test the devices.

Cranston

cautious on troop mission

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A key Senate Democrat expressed fear Friday that President Reagan will have "a blank check" in Lebanon if he does not abide by the War Powers Act and inform Congress the U.S. Marines there are operating in a hostile area.

"The president should not be free to send American forces here, there and everywhere without Congress having a say so in those actions," said assistant Senate Democratic leader Alan Cranston of California.

Cranston's request reflects growing congressional concern that by not invoking specific provisions of the 1973 act, Reagan may have sidestepped the 60-day deadline for winning congressional approval or recalling the troops.

Reagan's decision to dispatch the Marines is widely supported in Congress, but the differences over the application of the War Powers Act surfaced Thursday when an explosion killed one Marine and wounded three others.

"American forces have been introduced into a very dangerous place where there are very hostile forces facing each other, some of them hostile to the United States, and I do not think the president should have a blank check," Cranston said.

"Therefore, I think the president should report under section 4a (1) of the War Powers Act."

The provision requires the president to report to Congress when, in the absence of a declaration of war, U.S. forces are introduced "into situations where imminent involvement in hostilities is clearly indicated by the circumstances."

"The troops may not remain in the area for more than 60 days, or 90 under special circumstances, without the consent of Congress," Cranston said.

"I hope the president will comply with that interpretation of the War Powers Act and grant that Congress has a right to decide that the troops will not stay beyond the 60 days without the authority of Congress," Cranston said.

By informing Congress in a letter Wednesday, Reagan complied with the act. But he said only that he was sending the 1,200 Marines without specifying under which provision of the act, which is an outgrowth of the Vietnam era.

Like Cranston, chairman Charles Percy, R-Ill., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, argued Thursday the Reagan should have specified he was sending U.S. forces into a hostile area — thus triggering the 60-day deadline.

Cranston is a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Senator asks labor unity

BOSTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., urged labor delegates Friday to join a unified Democratic party in November and oust the Republicans responsible for the "disastrous spiral of unemployment."

Kennedy ripped into President Reagan and said "we have have only just begun to fight" the convention, who interrupted his speech with applause more than two dozen times.

Kennedy, considered a likely contender for the 1984 Democratic presidential nomination, said working men and women cannot afford to buy Reagan's promise to have "patience" because prosperity is just around the corner.

"Patience doesn't provide jobs for working men and women," Kennedy said. "Patience doesn't put food on the table."

"We turned (Herbert Hoover) out of office," he said. "We're going to turn this administration out of office."

He said labor and Democrats have been fighting the "most anti-labor administration" and the "most anti-union Senate in history," and had a commitment to Democratic unity and victory in 1982.

"Despite an economic program which has brought us into the deepest economic recession since World War II, we continue to believe that productivity and growth can be restored; that high interest rates can be reduced; that we can provide jobs for all Americans — and then we can make America work again."

"And on this issue, we have only just begun to fight," Kennedy said. Republican Ray Shamie, a millionaire Republican businessman, is challenging Kennedy in the Nov. 2 election.

What's what

The first chief deity to be written into the history of the human race was the great mother-goddess, Venus. Other goddesses preceded her, no doubt, but their names aren't known, although the names of many subsequent goddesses are in the record. The point—For about 3,000 years, the believers of the Western World were convinced that the Supreme Being was female.

CAT

Q. What's a "polydactyl cat"?
A. A cat with more toes than the usual number—five on each forefoot and four on each hindfoot. Polydactyl cats are relatively rare, except in New England and Canada.

Q. What's the difference between "cataplexy" and "catalepsy"?
A. With cataplexy, the patient loses the will to move; with catalepsy, the power to move.

Q. What's the average length of life for men after retirement?
A. 30 months.

Reattached to victim Road closed to find fingers

By ED LION
United Press International

BOSTON — A teenage girl whose fingertips were severed in an automobile accident and then found when police closed a highway and searched on hands and knees with car headlights and flashlights was in good condition Friday.

The outcome of surgery to reattach the fingertips to the girl's right hand was not immediately known, officials at Massachusetts General Hospital said.

While motorists on busy Route 128 in Burlington north of Boston patiently waited late Thursday with headlights illuminating the scene of the accident, police searched about a half-hour before finding the two severed fingertips, which were packed in ice and taken to the hospital.

The girl, whose identity was not released at her family's request, was then transferred from Cheate Memorial Hospital in Woburn to Massachusetts General Hospital,

'It was sort of like looking for contacts' where she underwent surgery. "It was quite a scene. We were about a dozen officers on our hands and knees searching a 100-yard area between the cars looking for the fingertips," said state trooper Byron Rizzo of the Peabody barracks. "It was sort of like looking for contacts."

Police said the accident occurred on the southbound lane when a car's wheel popped off an axle and the vehicle behind it hit the wheel, went up on one side and slammed down hard, shattering the window on the passenger's side.

Police said the girl, who was in the second car with her father, apparently clutched the window. Her fingertips severed on the shattered glass edge.

The driver of the car that lost the wheel managed to pull to the side of the road. He was uninjured.

"The girl — a teenager — was really very brave," Rizzo said. A Massachusetts General Hospital spokeswoman said the quick action by the police was necessary if a fingertip reattachment would be attempted.

"Whom something like this happens, the severed part should be put on ice immediately if possible," she said. "Within four hours the nerves the begin to die."

Rizzo said police from the Peabody barracks and officers from Burlington and Woburn participated in the search while motorists in the four-lane section of the highway that had been closed down kept headlights on.

"They knew that there had been an accident and they were all very cooperative," he said.

Weighty majorette ban holds

MONONGAHELA, Pa. (UPI) — Dressed in a storm of publicity, local school officials remained steadfast Friday in their decision to sideline a high school majorette considered 1 1/2 weeks too heavy to march in this week's football game.

Majorette Peggy Ward, 16, a 5-foot-4 Ringold High School junior, failed a marching band weigh-in Wednesday by tipping the scales at 127 1/2 pounds instead of a required 125.

She was told by band officials two weeks ago to get her weight down from 130 to 126 pounds or be barred from marching with the rest of the majorettes during Friday night's game between Ringold and Alliquippa High Schools.

School officials said Peggy, who has been dieting and skipping meals in an effort to meet the weight restriction, agreed to the 126-pound limit and can rejoin the majorettes on the field when she reaches it.

School Superintendent James Lopresti said the district doesn't plan to yield to the public debate over the issue and bend those rules.

"I don't see us initiating a backdown," Lopresti said. "It's true the pressure could get such that there are some changes. But I think it's the school's position that it's in the best interest of the youngster."

Peggy's parents have filed a civil rights complaint with the state Human Relations Commission against the district, saying the weight restriction is arbitrary and discriminatory.

Gaynor off critical list

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Actress Janet Gaynor injured in a Sept. 5 taxi-van collision, was removed from the critical list Friday at San Francisco General Hospital.

The 75-year-old silent screen star was awake and on a ventilator in the intensive care unit, where she is expected to remain for at least two more weeks, said hospital spokeswoman Linda De La Ysla.

"Her condition is serious but stable," the spokeswoman said. "Her liver and kidney function is improved, her abdominal infection has been controlled, her general metabolic status improved."

Miss Gaynor was riding in a taxi with actress Mary Martin and others when a speeding van ran a red light and slammed into the vehicle at an intersection as the party was headed for dinner at a Chinatown restaurant.

Huntley assumes court seat

By MARK SHENEFELT
United Press International

BOISE — Robert Huntley Jr. took the oath of office Friday as a member of the Idaho Supreme Court, saying he was "humbled and somewhat overawed" by the experience — a highlight of a career that has included 23 years of legal practice and a stint in the state legislature.

Huntley thanked Evans, a fellow Democrat for choosing him for the post, which was vacated last month by Justice Joseph McFadden. He also said he hoped he could live up to the reputation of McFadden, 66, who spent 23 years on the high court before retiring last month.

Although Idaho's Supreme Court justices serve on a non-partisan basis, Huntley served on the Democratic legislature as a Democrat in the mid-1960s and is an ally of Evans — who two years ago named him to coordinate drafting of a State Energy Plan.

Huntley is considered less conservative than McFadden and could spur a change in philosophy on the court, which has flexed a relatively conservative philosophy for several years.

Huntley — the first high-court appointee in the six-year administration of Evans — joins the panel just as it heads toward full review of five death-penalty appeals and key disputes between the state Public Utilities Commission and major Idaho utilities.

Evans, in his appointment of Huntley from a list of four nominees by the Idaho Judicial Council Aug. 24, called the Pennsylvania native and University of Idaho graduate "an expert on utility matters and an accomplished veteran trial lawyer."

The governor, joking about budget restrictions from which the state is suffering, told Huntley after he received the oath of office that he would be happy to help the new justice in any manner "unless it has to do with additional funds."

Idaho State Bar Association President Richard Fields, said Huntley would "round out" the high court's talents.

Jones issues finance report, campaign has cost $98,546

BOISE (UPI) — Republican attorney general candidate Jim Jones released a voluntary disclosure report Friday which shows his campaign has spent $98,546 in the battle to make Jones Idaho's top legal officer.

The report, covering expenditures through Sept. 30, also showed the name lawyer has contributed or loaned about $69,000 in personal funds to the effort to defeat Democratic hopeful J.D. Williams in November.

Jones said he hoped the disclosure would lay to rest claims by Williams "Franklin County's prosecutor" that the GOP candidate would attempt to buy the election with massive campaign spending, including a last-minute media blitz.

"Since my opponent has so grossly misrepresented my campaign finance situation, I wanted to let the Idaho voters know what the true picture was," Jones said. "I was particularly astounded by my opponent's contention that I was going to spend $200,000 just on media advertising during the final months of the campaign."

Williams, however, congratulated Jones for releasing the financial data, saying he thought it had been done because the Republican candidate "has detected the same feelings around the state that I have — that people are concerned about the amount of money he's spending, particularly his own money."

Williams said he spent about $44,000 on his campaign to date and raised roughly $47,000 for the total campaign so far. Of that sum, he said, $11,000 came from his personal account.

He said Jones, however, has spent about $49,000 of his own money on this campaign, added to $106,000 Williams said Jones spent in his 1978 race against Rep. George Hansen and another $86,000 against the Idaho Republican in 1980.

The report showed the Jones camp spent $75,657 in winning the May 25 Republican primary against Ada County Prosecutor Jim Harris, and has spent $22,889 on the general election campaign.

It also showed Jones has personally pumped about $49,000 into the campaign, including a $25,000 loan for the primary election, a $14,000 donation for the primary, and a $10,000 loan for the general.

The last disclosure report released by Williams showed the Democrat had raised $34,950 as of Sept. 9. That amount included $10,000 in donations from businesses, $3,800 from attorneys and $1,100 from labor organizations.

The latest reports from both candidates were voluntary, as state law does not require any disclosures before the primary — and Oct. 25 — seven days before the general election. Candidates who lose in the primary, however, are required to file a final statement 30 days after that runoff.

Jones added his general election spending "will probably not exceed $50,000" — the figure recommended by Williams as a voluntary limit on expenditures by both candidates.

"It is interesting to note that my opponent is now indicating he will spend $65,000 or more, not counting his in-kind services from organized labor, after he repeatedly insisted that we both should keep our campaign spending to $50,000."

"My spending estimate has not changed, but his has decidedly increased. Dare one speculate that he may intend to try to 'buy' the election?" Jones said.

According to the Jones report, contributions after May 10 were received from, among others: former GOP Sen. Len Jordan, $300; former GOP Gov. Robert Smylie, $50; state Sen. David Little, R-Emmett, $250; J.A. Albertson, $600; Coeur d'Alene Mines, $500; Bunker Hill Co., $500; and Boise Cascade, $1,500.

Teri Kahley said, "There are a lot of pickles in the aisles," she said, "but a lot of the big displays just swayed and didn't tip over. It was nerve-racking."

Paul Louterback, manager of Coast-to-Coast hardware store, said the temblor was "pretty bad."

"It was a loud cracking sound, a real loud noise," he said. "We heard it before we felt it. It scared me pretty bad."

Louterback said the shaker left "merchandise all over the floor."

Earthquakes rumble in California desert

RIDGECREST, Calif. (UPI) — A sharp, "scary" earthquake jolted a sparsely settled desert region Friday and slightly damaged a structure at the China Lake Naval Weapons Center where missiles and bombs are stored.

The earthquake was part of a swarm of temblors that cracked concrete, dumped merchandise from store shelves and unnerved residents.

The strongest of Friday's swarm measured 5.2 on the Richter scale when it rattled the area about 130 miles northeast of Los Angeles at 8:29 a.m. MDT, said Caltech seismologists in Pasadena. No injuries were reported.

The ground shook several more times throughout the afternoon with a 4.5 quake hitting at 4:10 p.m. MDT, followed by a 4.4 temblor a minute later. Smaller shocks ranging between 3.5 and 4.0 were also registered throughout the day.

A wall at a new building at the China Lake Naval Weapons Center north of Ridgecrest was cracked but base spokesmen said there was no damage to the storage facilities where missiles and bombs are stored in quake-resistant, underground bunkers.

The 5.2 temblor, described by a Caltech seismologist as "a good scary quake," dumped merchandise off the shelves of an Albertson's supermarket in Ridgecrest, employee

Group OKs LDS temple plan

BOISE (UPI) — The Boise Design Review Committee has accepted plans for the new Mormon temple to be located on Cole Road next to an existing church stake center.

The committee Thursday night gave approval to blueprints that call for a marble exterior on the six-sided building, which will be surrounded by six free-standing towers.

Committee members reviewed the location of the planned structure and landscaping and parking plans. The Planning and Zoning Commission unanimously expressed support for the project at a hearing in July so long as architects appeared at a hearing before the design review committee.

The temple, which will be used only for certain ceremonies, will feature a 112-foot tower, topped by a gold gilded angel blowing a trumpet. Another tower will be 90 feet and the others will be 72 feet, architects said.

The structure, to include three courts and a fountain, will be illuminated so that it can be seen for miles, architects said.

Church expands communications

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Communications in the Mormon Church have come a long way in the 100 years since Brigham Young used only the power of his voice to preach to the faithful gathered in the 6,000-seat Salt Lake Tabernacle.

When the church convenes its October General Conference Saturday, it will beam the speeches of Mormon leaders and the songs of the Tabernacle Choir live by satellite to 376 meeting houses throughout the United States. The sessions will also be carried by 116 commercial television stations in the United States and Canada, in some cases on a delayed basis. And they will be made available to 1,300 cable television companies across the nation via satellite.

Radio broadcasts will carry the words and music even further.

United Way opens '82-83 funding drive

Agency seeks $190,000 goal

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The United Way of Magic Valley kicked off its 20th annual fund-raising campaign Friday with an $10,000 gift from the employees and management of Twin Falls Bank and Trust.

About 130 persons attended the 1982-83 kickoff luncheon at which United Way leaders reasserted their commitment to raise $190,000 by Oct. 30.

Times are tough, said Fred Florence, the campaign chairman, but the country's economic downturn has not dampened the public's interest in the charitable agencies that United Way assists.

Another United Way officer, Alan Horner, told the luncheon crowd that the demand for charitable services, particularly those targeted at the elderly, is rising in the wake of the federal government's reduced support for social-service programs.

Directors during the middle of the campaign.

Friday's luncheon at the Holiday Inn included the presentation of the check from Twin Falls Bank and Trust. Bank spokesman Ivan Skinner, former United Way president, said 100 percent of the bank's employees responded to the fund-raising appeal. The bank matched the donations of its employees.

The appeal began early at Twin Falls Bank and Trust so that its gift could be used as a model of giving during the official campaign, according to United Way officials.

Agencies to be assisted with United Way money in 1982-83 are the Silver and Gold, West End, Ageless, Hagerman and Twin Falls senior citizens' groups; the American Red Cross; the Arthritis Foundation; the Boy Scouts; Camp Pine Inc.; the Girl Scouts; the Twin Falls County-Mental Health Association; Magic Valley Alcohol Recovery Centers; the Salvation Army; United Cerebral Palsy and Magic Valley YFCA.

In terms of allocations, the top 10 recipients are the American Red Cross, the Boy Scouts, the Salvation Army and the West End Senior Citizens. Each will receive at least 14 percent of United Way's income if the $190,000 goal is met.

The cost of administering United Way in 1982-83 is projected at $25,620, which is 13 percent of the fund-raising goal.

United Way rejects charge that funds go to anti-union group

By SUSAN GALLAGHER

TWIN FALLS — A national dispute between United Way and a labor union has no basis locally, say United Way officials in Twin Falls.

From its offices in Washington, D.C., the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers urged members to boycott the United Way charity organization.

In literature that a Twin Falls woman mailed to The Times-News this week, union spokesmen vehemently opposed a determination that the National Right-to-Work Legal Education Foundation on which can qualify for money donated to United Way by federal workers.

Union officials say United Way of America refuses to exert its influence to have the right-to-work foundation's eligibility withdrawn.

Bob Blake, the president of United Way of Magic Valley, says there are no ties between the local fund-raising organization and the right-to-work foundation. Loosely written federal regulations make the foundation eligible for United Way assistance.

Blake says, but that does not mean that local United Way boards are making campaign proceeds available to the foundation.

Dispute high kWh costs cited by Idaho Power

Small power producers say they've met contracts' terms

By RON ZELLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Owners of the first two small hydroelectric plants providing power to the Idaho Power Co. system say their projects have improved and are performing up to terms signed with the utility.

Wayne Skeem, co-owner of the first project connected to the utility's lines, said the Mud Creek plant near Buhl experienced many problems during its first six months of operation.

But Skeem said Friday that the plant has produced power for the past three weeks at the quantities specified in the contract, and for a price below the agreed-upon six cents a kilowatt-hour.

Bill Block, a spokesman for Cogeneration, Inc., said that his firm's project on the Little Wood River near Shoshone produced nearly 230,000 kwh in September at a price below the 6.7 cents a kwh specified in its contract.

Idaho Power Co. officials reported last week that the utility paid 12.1 cents a kwh for power from the two projects during the first eight months of the year.

The utility used the figures to support its contention that the state Public Utilities Commission should revise the contracts the PUC ordered two years ago. The PUC requires Idaho Power to purchase power from appropriate small energy-producing facilities.

The owners of both projects said they expect to make more adjustments to their equipment before the plants can be considered completed.

Historic records indicate that a previous power plant built at the Little Wood River site required eight or nine years of "debugging" to reach consistent power production, he said.

The two producers invited agricultural engineers from throughout southern Idaho to tour the plants Friday. The group held its quarterly meeting in Twin Falls.

Jerry Nielson, electrical superintendent for Idaho Power's southern region, told the group the utility is not attempting to discourage small power producers.

In fact, Idaho Power is counting on the development of about 135 megawatts of privately produced power by 1990, Nielson said.

The company's recent appeal to the PUC to review contract policies, he said, stems from the commission's requirement that Idaho Power sign a power-purchase contract with a Wyoming firm, Afton Energy Co.

Afton, which intends to generate electricity using wood wastes, is not even an Idaho Power customer, Nielson said. He said the firm sought a contract with Idaho Power because its "avoided costs" in the formula established by the PUC gave a more favorable rate than was available from Bonneville Power Administration or Utah Power & Light Co.

"It makes you wonder if people in Idaho (the Idaho Power system) are paying too much for power," Nielson said.

Dr. Dick Strand, right, reviews X-ray series with Dr. Sid Henderson, who will join the radiological staff this January

Controversy fades; transition smooth Radiology picture brightens

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — After a year of producing controversy, the radiology department at the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center may have returned to simply producing X-rays.

Two new radiologists, hired after the hospital board decided against offering a contract to the then-present radiology group, are making what appears to be a smooth transition in taking over the department's management.

Work on expansion and major renovations of the department's facilities have begun, with an intensive phase scheduled to start this month.

Drs. Dennis Davis and Greg McKim, part of the radiology group that ran the department for seven years, now work primarily at St. Benedict's Hospital in Jerome and Moritz Community Hospital, Sun Valley.

But Davis indicated that his group, Magic Valley Radiologists, and that of the now-radiologists, Western Radiology, assist each other in back-up coverage. He said that the individuals involved are "getting along."

No formal agreement exists, but an informal "good neighbors" policy has been established, said both Davis and Dr. Richard Strand, the new department director. Also working with Strand is Dr. Howard Biggs.

Earlier this year, a bitter contract dispute between the hospital administration and Magic Valley Radiologists divided opinions among the medical staff and in the community.

Contract disagreements initially were sparked by controversial stipulations in a series of contracts drawn up by the administration. But the dispute became what some doctors termed a "personality conflict" and "battle of wills."

Eventually, the hospital board voted to offer a contract to Strand, a radiologist from Tucson, Ariz. The recent death of Dr. C.R. McWilliams, a radiologist who worked at the hospital for more than 30 years, and who was regarded as a "legend in his own time," may stimulate what Davis called the "healing process." That process, he says, "has been needed for a long time at this hospital."

Davis says that emotions seem to have cooled and that a more formal working arrangement between the two radiology groups has been delayed primarily by the new radiologists' hectic schedule.

Strand, a boyish-looking 38-year-old, says that he has avoided "politics" and is concentrating on "taking good care of the patients" by providing the best radiology services he can.

Those services will be expanded when a third radiologist, Dr. Sid Henderson, presently the chief of diagnostic ultra-sound at the University of Oregon in Portland, will join the MVRMC staff on Jan. 1, Strand said.

Both the radiologists and the department's technical staff are looking forward to gaining the extra space and new equipment that is being added as part of the hospital's massive renovation project.

Next week, X-ray film files will be moved from the basement to the new quarters of the first-floor radiology department. That will save time and energy in retrieving old files, Strand said.

Renovation work will begin next week in the out-patient waiting area and dressing rooms. Eventually the number of dressing rooms will be doubled.

The next eight to 10 weeks may be difficult for patients who must be served amid construction, Strand said. He has directed his staff to remain in close contact with each other to try to minimize inconvenience.

Construction also is under way on a special room for the hospital's new CAT scanner, a sophisticated "imaging" device. Strand said the CAT scanner will be in operation by Jan. 1.

Also, the nuclear medicine department, formerly an independent department, has come under the supervision of the radiology department. Now located in a nearby vacant wing of the hospital, the nuclear medicine department will be moved into the radiology area in the next four to six weeks.

The various phases of the radiology renovation will be completed in about nine months, Strand said.

Castleford schools schedule $1.05 million bond election

By GLEN WARCHOL
Times-News writer

CASTLEFORD — The Castleford School Board has scheduled a $5 million bond election for Oct. 11. The bond issue will finance the construction of a new high school building, an agricultural-vocational building and the remodeling of the elementary building.

Final details of the project were worked out at a special meeting with the architect last week.

The proposed 17,000-square-foot high school building will house three classrooms, a science, a home economics room and a library. The library, according to board member Roger Clark, will be available for use by the community at large for meetings and other functions.

The building will replace the existing Castleford High School that was built about 1920. Renovating the school was not practical, Clark said, because it suffers from a "bone cancer." The concrete buttresses of the cafeteria are sound, however, according to architect Richard Heindel of Twin Falls, and the cafeteria will be renovated and retained as part of the new high school.

If approved, the bond issue also will pay for the second phase of remodeling the elementary school for computer competency. The first phase, which is nearing completion approximately $905,000.

The 9,200-square-foot, two-story building will be located across the street from the high school. The facility will house a classroom, shop area, office and tool storage area. The building was to have included an art room, but the board decided to save construction costs by using a classroom in the new high school for art instruction.

The cost of the two-story building will be approximately $121,990.

Sidewalks and landscaping were deleted from the construction of the school building, Clark said, because that work lends itself to "student and community projects."

Fees and contingency expenses bring the total for the project to $1,050,000. Clark emphasized that all figures at this point are approximate.

The bond issue should be approved by the voters now, he said, because the climate for bonding is excellent. Interest rates and construction costs will only increase as the economy improves.

Interest on the bonds will be somewhere between 10.5 to 11 percent with a 15-year payoff time, Clark said. That would amount to a $24 tax increase on each $10,000 of assessed property value.

The Castleford Men's Club will present a program on the bond issue Oct. 11, at noon at the Red Barrel restaurant in Castleford.

Gromyko address harsh U.S. attack

By JIM ANDERSON
United Press International

UNITED NATIONS — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, in an unusually harsh attack on U.S. policies, told the General Assembly Friday that the United States shares blame for the Palestinian camp massacres and for any lack of progress in arms reduction talks.

ANDREI GROMYKO
Speaks at U.N.

Several hundred Afghan protesters denouncing the Soviet invasion of their homeland tried to storm the United Nations as Gromyko spoke, but were driven back by police. Gromyko proposed a draft treaty for a U.N.-supervised halt to all nuclear testing, including an immediate moratorium on all weapons tests. Western officials described it as a variation of past Soviet ideas that were unacceptable because of the difficulties of verifying Soviet compliance with their own proposal. Gromyko's address to the 37th General Assembly followed by one day a speech by U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz in which he accused the Soviet Union of "brutalizing" Afghanistan and "distorting reality... with an enormous grinding propaganda machine."

Between the two men. They met on Tuesday for three hours and were scheduled to meet again Monday.

Describing the United States and Israel as "the aggressor and the accomplices," Gromyko said that the "genocide" of hundreds of Palestinians in west-Berit-refugee camps two weeks ago could not have taken place without the U.S.-sponsored Camp David agreement.

He also listed the lack of progress in U.S. Soviet arms talks in his speech, without giving details. He added, "However, it should be emphasized that so far the other side has failed to show the desire to come to agreement."

Iran launches attack to oust Iraqi forces

By United Press International

Iran launched its long-awaited offensive against Iraq Friday, recapturing strategic Baghdad east of Baghdad. Iranian troops attacked to oust Iraqi forces entrenched on their common border for two years.

Iraq immediately called for an urgent meeting of the U.N. Security Council "to discuss the grave consequences resulted from today's Iranian aggression on Iran," the Iraqi News Agency said.

In a memorandum to the Security Council president, Iraq accused Iran of ignoring U.N. resolution 514, which calls for a cease-fire in the conflict, the withdrawal of all forces from occupied territories and the start of peace negotiations.

Iraq's Foreign Minister, Dr. Saadoun Hammadi, met separately in Baghdad with the envoys to Iraq of five Security Council members — the Soviet Union, China, the United States, Britain and France — to discuss "the latest Iranian offensive and its dangerous repercussions on the region and world peace," INA said.

Filipinos protest Marcos

By RON REDMOND
United Press International

MANILA, Philippines — In the largest Filipino anti-government protest in a year, some 5,000 people demonstrated Friday against President Ferdinand Marcos' visit to the United States and burned effigies of Marcos and President Reagan.

Several hundred uniformed riot police stood by in a square across the street from Manila's central post office, but the demonstration was peaceful and no arrests were reported.

The demonstrators — students, workers, slum dwellers and members of the clergy — unfurled on the post office steps banners reading "Dis-mantle U.S.-Marcos Dictatorship" and "Expose U.S.-Marcos Talks As An Act of National Betrayal."

They listened for five hours to speeches by union leaders, church workers, students and members of the opposition before burning effigies of Marcos and Reagan to chants of "Marcos, Hitler, dictator, puppet." "Among those speaking was Mariano Malonzo, acting chairman of the May 1 Movement, known as KNU, a 500,000-member labor organization which was recently the target of a sweeping government crackdown on suspected subversives. KNU's chairman, Belarmino Olla, and vice chairman Crispin Beltran have been held in a suburban Manila military stockade since they were arrested on subversion charges in early August.

More than 80 people, many of them labor leaders, were arrested with planning an alleged nationwide terror campaign the government said was timed to coincide with Marcos' two-week U.S. visit.

"Filipino workers are much worse off now than they were before the declaration of martial law in 1972," Malonzo said. "This crackdown has hurt us. People, workers, are frightened and afraid to strike because of goon squads and arrest."

"I'm also scared with that kind of speech I delivered because the government will think I'm a radical and I'm not."

Malonzo criticized Marcos for inviting U.S. investors to establish businesses in the Philippines, to take advantage of cheap labor and compliant workers who the labor leader said have effectively lost their right to strike because of recent government legislation banning strikes in vital industries.

Germans end Schmidt rule

By JOSEPH B. FLEMING
United Press International

BONN, West Germany — Parliament ousted Chancellor Helmut Schmidt in a no-confidence vote Friday and replaced him with Christian Democrat leader Helmut Kohl — the first conservative to rule West Germany in 13 years.

Kohl, who lacks Schmidt's experience in international affairs, said he would return the country to a "policy of the center" as practiced by Konrad Adenauer, West Germany's first chancellor, who brought the country into the Western alliance.

"The future of Germany is not to be found in extremes, but in the center," said the 52-year-old Roman Catholic, who is known as the Black Giant because of 6-foot-4 height.

Kohl also vowed to give top priority to fighting West Germany's worst recession: since the nation was formed 33 years ago in the American, British and French occupation zones of defeated Germany.

The Bundestag or lower house of parliament — elected Kohl West Germany's sixth chancellor by a vote of 256 to 235 after a bitter five-hour debate that boded ill for future tranquility.

Schmidt's Social Democrats, who took power under Chancellor Willy Brandt Oct. 21, 1969, surrendered to a new parliamentary majority of the Christian Democrats and the tiny but pivotal Free Democratic Party with bitterness and charges of betrayal.

Kohl won the backing of 30 of the 53 Free Democratic members of Parliament, to give him seven more votes than the necessary majority of 249.

Schmidt, 63, who in a savage speech disputed the right of Kohl to replace him without a new national election, and Brandt, the Social Democratic Party president, gave Kohl only a cold, perfunctory handshake on his victory.

But hundreds of Germans gathered outside and inside the parliament building, craning their necks to catch a glimpse of Schmidt and wave good-bye.

Schmidt's term still had two years to go, but he lost his majority in parliament Sept. 17 when Free Democrats' leader, Hans-Dietrich Genscher quit as foreign minister and vice chancellor over a budget dispute and led his party out of the coalition.

Schmidt congratulates Kohl after the vote

Kohl: Middle-of-road politician

By United Press International

Helmut Kohl does not, at first glance, seem to possess the qualities of leadership and statesmanship the world has come to associate with his predecessor as West German chancellor, Helmut Schmidt.

He waited nine years as leader of the opposition to take over from Schmidt. He does so now by default rather than triumph election.

Little known outside West Germany, his image is one of quiet dependability. He is overshadowed on the West German political scene by two giants — Schmidt, still the most popular politician in the country, and Franz Josef Strauss, the fiery leader of the Bavarian sister party of Kohl's Christian Democrats.

But Kohl has shaken off almost constant attacks from these two men, one a political opponent, the other who should be an ally. He emerges as a middle-of-the-road politician appealing to the middle-of-the-road voter.

"This is a difficult time for the country. We must do our duty," said Kohl as he announced his decision to oust Schmidt with a parliamentary no-confidence vote.

Statements like these show where Kohl's appeal lies. His ideals are unsophisticated — love of country, God, family, duty — and his supporters are those who share them.

Once known as the "black giant" for his bulk — he towers above most of his colleagues at 6 feet 4 inches — plus his black hair and the black color associated with his party,

Kohl, 52, is now seen in less dramatic terms.

When he took over his party's leadership in 1973, even some within it spoke of an interim leadership. His lack of charisma and political flair was a disadvantage against the barbed rhetoric of Schmidt, who was riding a wave of popularity. The signs were that the party meant to replace Kohl as soon as it could come up with someone better.

Politically at the dead center of his party, he has proved his ability to find a balance between conflicting pressures of left and right.

This is likely to be even more necessary in his new coalition, which relies not only on Hans-Dietrich Genscher's liberal Free Democrats but on Strauss's Bavarian party, itself a conglomeration of right-wing groups.

Stocks rebound, Dow closes at 907 mark

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, buoyed by speculation the Federal Reserve might ease credit, posted a sharp gain in fairly active trading Friday in a rebound from recent profit-taking losses.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 10.02 points Thursday, rose 11.49 points to 907.74. However, the closely watched average lost 11.78 points for the week overall.

The American Stock Exchange index eased 0.06 to 283.12. There was no change in the price of an average share. Advances topped declines 321-197 among the 753 issues traded.

General Telephone & Electronics was the second most active issue, up 1/4 to 33 1/2, with blocks of 500,000 shares, 177,000 shares, 175,000 shares, all at 33 1/2, and 100,000 shares at 33.

ANACONDA, Mont. (UPI) — Anaconda Minerals Co. executives Friday turned ownership of its sprawling, defunct copper smelter over to the Cleveland Wrecking Co. of Los Angeles, under contract to level the property in three years.

GOP farm bloc pushes hard for continued farm exports

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary John Block and State Department officials assured members of the GOP congressional farm bloc Friday they will do everything they can to assure continued U.S. farm exports abroad.

JOHN BLOCK Message to president

"We had assurances that they will be talking to the president immediately, that we're going to get top-level attention to our problems," Rep. Virginia Smith, R-Neb., told reporters later.

of the administration would take their message directly to the president in the next few days.

"We have problems in agriculture and we're all collectively going to work to solve them," Block said, then wheeling and striding out of the news conference.

Industrial orders dip in August

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American manufacturers saw orders in August drop 2.8 percent to their lowest level in two years, the Commerce Department said Friday.

The figures on overall factory orders confirmed the serious setback dealt the manufacturing segment of the economy first suggested nine days ago when the government reported orders for "big ticket" items — from autos to machinery — were down sharply.

High-yield bonds on market quietly

By R. B. PLUNKETT JR.
New York Daily News

NEW YORK—Merrill Lynch & Co. has quietly introduced high-interest, short-term bonds that could compete directly with bank CD's and Treasury securities for part of the $42.5 billion of All-Savers money that matured Friday.

The bonds, issued by General Motors Acceptance Corp., have maturities of one to three years and require a minimum investment of $1,000. The yields on this first issue range from 10.6 percent for one year, 11.65 percent for two years, and 12 percent for three years.

By comparison, 12-month Treasury bills currently yield 9.38 percent, and bank six-month CD's, 9.73 percent. New one-year All-Savers certificates yield 8.15 percent, but the first $2,000 of interest earned is tax-free ($1,000 for singles).

Until now, short-term bonds have been the exclusive market of institutions—insurance companies, banks, and municipalities—because they required minimum investments of $100,000 to $1 million.

Small investors had to be content with 20- and 30-year corporate bonds or buy Treasury bonds that generally offered lower yields and a tax break.

Merrill Lynch brokers began selling the first issue of bonds, worth about $30 million, Thursday. Company officials say they expect to begin marketing similar bonds for other corporations soon and will create a secondary market so investors can sell before maturity.

demand, especially in city areas, has been heavy for years. Last year, the FCC issued orders allowing cellular radio services to be marketed.

About 160,000 mobile phones operate on about 25 channels in the United States now. The new cellular technology is expected to expand this to 2 million to 3 million phones by 1990, operating on 600 channels with reuse of frequencies.

Portable telephones should be in general use soon, says Lamoureux, possibly even replacing the traditional home telephone, and probably priced under $1,000 in three to five years. Portable phones can be leased for less.

"Cellular promises to revolutionize personal communications with advanced, lightweight, spectrally efficient car and portable telephones," predicts Lamoureux.

It's not just the exciting multiplicity of the new developments in every area that sends our minds soaring. It's the rapidity with which they are emerging and taking over. I can recall (and so can you—if you're an adult when I just hearing the doctor's beeper "beep") was a thrill.

Morgan lifts Bruins past Spartans, 27-8

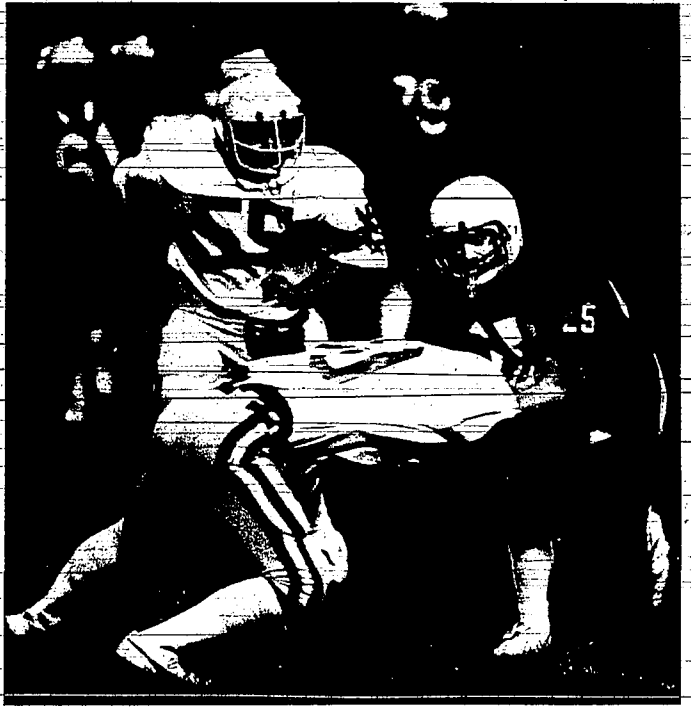

By LARRY HOVEY Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — He wasn't exactly a secret weapon, but he sure became the primary warrior for the Twin Falls Bruins Friday night... Junior halfback Scott Morgan ripped through Minico High's defense for 153 yards on 19 carries and scored two touchdowns...

I'm darn pleased even if we did make a lot of mistakes. —Bill Jones

"We didn't have (Von) Peterman," Halverson explained. "Without him we don't throw as much. The game plan was to pass short, but it never got going. We couldn't catch it even if it did happen to hit the receivers..."

Terence Smith with a six-yard strike. When Twin Falls jumped offense on the conversion play, Minico went for the two-point and Bright carried it home... The teams exchanged punts, Twin Falls getting it back with 1:06 left in the half and after Morgan had rumpled the Spartans 32. A pass to Standing got one first down and another aerial was completed at the three...

Twin Falls running back Scott Morgan, who netted 153 yards, is tackled by a Spartan.

Vikings take Canyon lead with 35-8 win over Gooding

Valley's performance matches cheerleaders' claims

By CHRIS HAFT Times-News writer

EDEN — "Awesome, awesome, awesome, awesome, awesome, or what?" went one of the cheers Valley High School's rooting section screamed into the chilly air Friday night... Considering what was transpiring on the field, the Viking fans can be forgiven for their hyperbole...

Quarterback Gary Taylor accounted for four of Valley's five scores, throwing three touchdown passes and taking the ball into the end zone once himself... The Vikings' final TD pass, a 29-yarder to Marlin Musman, reflected his adeptness as a field tactician...

Gooding kicked off to begin the second half, trailing 14-8. However, Dave Metzger's effort was of the upside variety. The surprise strategical move backfired, as two Vikings immediately fell into the ball and used their bodies to form an impenetrable shield... This gave Valley golden field position on their own 37. From there, the Vikings needed just eight plays to score...

"Our defensive secondary played the pass well, and our linebackers came up and filled (the holes)," Foesbeck said. "We also ran stunts at the right time..."

Following Henry's touchdown, Valley scored twice more. Taylor ended a short 41-yard drive by bursting into the end zone standing up with 5:25 left, stretching Valley's lead to 28-8... Gooding's Sonny Cabbage fumbled the ensuing kickoff, Henry recovering at the Senator 29...

Gooding scored midway through the second quarter with a 43-yard, seven-play drive, climaxed by Kevin Ricks' 2-yard run with 5:26 left in the half. Cabbage romped for the extra two points, tying the score... Valley then set the 14-8 halftime margin, taking Gooding's subsequent kickoff and going 60 yards in 10 plays for the go-ahead TD...

Giants all but eliminated

By United Press International

Phil Niekro has been firing blanks lately and Friday night he had a silver bullet hidden in his holster... Niekro hit a two-run homer in support of his second straight shutout to move the Atlanta Braves one game closer to first place in the National League East... The decision, combined with Los Angeles' 4-0 victory over San Francisco, gave the Braves a one-game lead over the Dodgers with two games to play...

National

fanned six of the first 11 batters he faced. Eric Show, 10-6, was the loser, being victimized by his own wildness... Niekro's home run came in the seventh with one out and Hubbard on second... It was Atlanta's sixth victory in its last eight games, giving the Braves a 37-39 record since the ALCS break...

Dodgers remain alive

Fred Breining escaped trouble in the fifth and seventh innings but his wildness cost him in the eighth... Monday followed with his homer, a towering shot into the right-center-field bleachers... At Houston, Tom Lawless singled, doubled and scored two runs in support of Bob Shirley...

Orioles get tough at home, Angels clinch tie

By United Press International

They were blasting the hit song "Staying Alive" in Baltimore's Memorial Stadium Friday night... Eddie Murray and Cal Ripken each slugged a two-run home run, leading the Baltimore Orioles to a complete double-header sweep of the Milwaukee Brewers with a 7-1 victory that kept them alive in the American League East... The double-header marked the start of a four-game series between the Orioles and Brewers...

five, walked four and escaped a second-inning jam where he walked the bases loaded with two outs before striking out Jim Gantner... Murray's 32nd home run was a line shot over the left field fence in the first inning with Dwyer about on a single... Sakata's solo shot in the second was his sixth of the season and fifth of his career against Milwaukee...

Angels clinch tie

second and doubled across a fourth-inning run: Dennis Martinez, 16-12, got relief help from Tippy Martinez in beating Pete Vuckovich, 16-6... Pitcher Crowley delivered a two-run single in the sixth after the Brewers had rallied to within 5-3 on back-to-back homers by Ted Simmons and Ben Oglivie... Dennis Martinez, 5-0 lifetime against the Brewers in Baltimore, was tagged for 11 hits and was replaced in the seventh...

Milwaukee manager Harvey Kuehn has a glum look as he watches his Brewers lose a double-header to the Orioles.

Auburn, K-State, Minnesota, Duke get their chance today

By RICHARD ROSENBLATT
UPI sports writer

Now is the time for Auburn, Kansas State, Minnesota and Duke to state their cases for national recognition. Rarely seen in the Top 20 over the past few years, Auburn (No. 17) and Minnesota (No. 20) inched their way into the ratings last week while Kansas State and Duke may be one week away from joining the select group. All four schools are 3-0 entering today's games but will be hard-pressed to extend their winning streaks to four. Auburn, with a schedule that calls for its first six games at home, entertains No. 7 Nebraska while Kansas State plays its first road game of the year, against Arizona State, 4-0. Also, Minnesota entertains Illinois and Duke plays host to Navy.

"I feel like we've improved every week," said Auburn Coach Pat Dye. In his second season at Auburn, "Offensively we made some mistakes but fortunately they haven't been learning mistakes." Randy Campbell directs the Tigers' wishbone attack and has completed 19-of-39 for 306 yards and two touchdowns with no interceptions. Bo Jackson and Lionel James are the leading runners for the Tigers. In Nebraska, Auburn will be up against a team which dropped a 27-34 decision to Penn State last week in the final four seconds. The Cornhuskers are making their first trip to the South since losing 20-3 to Alabama four years ago. "Nebraska has the same people they had last year," said Dye. "Mike Rozier and Roger Craig, as a tandem, are the best two running backs we'll play against all year."

Kansas State, off to its best start in seven years, has benefitted from Coach Jim Dickey's red-shirt program, which saw the coach keep eight seniors on the sidelines in 1981. Seven of them are back, including four on a defense that allowed only 19 points in victories over Kentucky, South Dakota and Wichita State. "When we go onto the football field, our players know they can now beat people without having to rely on the other team playing poorly," said Dickey. "If we play our best and they play their best we still have a chance to win." Arizona State, which is serving NCAA probation and does not appear in the weekly Top 20, leads the nation in scoring defense, allowing 5.3 points per game. Against the pass the Sun Devils also rank first (101 yards). "Arizona State is an extremely fast and extremely exciting team," said Dickey. "They led the Pac-10 in attendance last year and both teams are coming in undefeated. This is the type of game every youngster should dream about playing in." Minnesota, the only unbeaten team in the Big Ten Conference, will pit its quarterback, Mike Hohensee, against Illinois' Tony Eason. The Illini dropped its first game of the season last week, losing 20-3 to No. 1 Pittsburgh. "Mike doesn't have to take a backseat to anyone," said Minnesota Coach Joe Salem, whose club has victories over Ohio, Purdue and Washington State. "He's certainly in Tony Eason's class." The surprise in the Atlantic Coast Conference has been Duke, off to its best start in 10 years. The Blue Devils, led by the passing of Ben Bennett, have averaged 472 yards per game in triumphs over Tennessee, South Carolina and Virginia. Bennett ranks third in the nation in passing (55-of-83 for 756 yards). "I think I kept saying the defense had to come through and it has," said Duke Coach Fred Wilson. "We haven't been awesome on defense; but we've made a lot of big plays. So far, we've been bending and not breaking." In other games involving the Top 20 today, it's 14th-rated West Virginia at No. 1 Pittsburgh, San Diego State at No. 2 Washington, Arkansas State at No. 4 Alabama, Louisiana State at No. 5 Florida, No. 6 Georgia at No. 18 Mississippi, North Texas State at No. 7 Southern Methodist, No. 9 UCLA at Colorado and Georgia Tech at No. 10 North Carolina. Also, it's Texas Christian vs. No. 11 Arkansas at Little Rock, No. 12 Notre Dame at Michigan State, No. 13 Texas at Rice, No. 15 Miami (Fla.) at Louisville, Temple at No. 16 Boston College, Kentucky at No. 19 Clemson,

Utes whip Rams

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Ken Viera passed for four touchdowns, two each to Steve Cox and Tony Graham, Friday night in leading Utah to a 35-14 Western Athletic Conference victory over Colorado State. Viera completed only eight passes in the game, but he threw for 148 yards in the four scores and did not have an interception. The sophomore quarterback's 38-yard TD pass to Graham late in the first quarter gave the Utes the lead for good. He also fired a 34-yard touchdown pass to Cox in the opening five seconds of the second quarter, a 30-yarder to Cox in the third period, and completed Utah's scoring with an 11-yard swing pass to Graham in the closing minutes. Running backs Carl Monroe and Hilria Johnson balanced Viera's passing. Monroe and Johnson rushed for 105 and 92 yards, respectively, and Johnson scored Utah's other touchdown on a 15-yard run midway through the third period. The Utes' defense stymied Colorado State throughout much of the game, intercepting four passes and recovering a fumble. Junior strong safety Leonard Marchese led the Utah defense with two interceptions and a pass deflection. Marchese's first interception set up the Utes' opening touchdown. The Rams' two TDs both came on bombs thrown by junior quarterback Terry Nugent, who came into the game in the second quarter when starter Tom Threlki was ineffective.

Haas keeps PGA lead

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — Jay Haas, his hot streak moderating only slightly, turned in a three-under-par 67 at the rain-dampened Oak Hills Country Club Friday that left him at 10-under and one stroke in front of three players midway through the $125,000 Texas Open. Haas won his first start at the Hall of Fame Classic, backed up his opening round 63 with an unevenful day that included three 16-foot birdie putts and no bogeys. "I got to 10-under, which was my goal," said Haas after he walked off the 18th green. "I would have liked to have been a little better than that. But I'm happy with where I am." "You have to be aggressive here, but you can't be too aggressive. Guess you can't go too much on this course sometimes." The 6,525-yard, tree-laden layout, which usually yields more than its share of low totals each year, was hit overnight by heavy rains and additional showers fell on the early starts. "But the sun came out at midday and the assault on par was not slowed." Curtis Strange, who teamed with Haas at Wake Forest to bring the Deacons two NCAA golf titles, shot a 66 to stand at nine-under 131 along with Keith Fergus (66) and D.A. Woltring (64). Fergus and Woltring both birdied four holes in a row at one point during their rounds and all three of the golfers in second place said their rounds could have been several miles shorter. Alone at eleven-under 133 was Dan Pohl while Allen Miller, Tom Purtzer, Larry Ziegler, and George Cadle were at 134. Craig Stadler, the tour's leading money-winner who shot a 65 Thursday and said the Oak Hills course was one on which par should be broken on most any day, fired a one-over 71 to finish at 136 in a group with Bruce Lietzko and J.C. Spauld. "I was eight-under for the tournament Friday, finally settled at three-under 137 with a 71. Lee Trevino made the cut at 138 with his second straight 69 and put himself in position to finish a tournament for the first time since 1975." Tom Kite, meanwhile, rallied from an opening 74 to shoot 65 Friday, make the cut at 139 and look to improve his lead over Tom Watson in their race for the Vardon Trophy.

Haynie leads despite late troubles

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — Tour veteran Sandra Haynie stumbled in the final holes but still managed to finish with a four-under-par 67 Friday to claim a one-stroke lead after two rounds of a $150,000 LPGA tournament at the Almadena Country Club. Kathy Whitworth matched her opening round 69 to finish the day one shot behind her long-time rival, Haynie, at 138. "I played well and putted well today," Haynie said. "The only bad shots I hit all day were on 17 and 18. On 17, I hit a bad drive and on 18 I tried to make a run at a birdie and three-putted." San Jose's Patty Sheehan, who fired a 70 and Pam Gietzen, who had a 68, were tied for third at 139. Beth Daniel was fourth at 140. Sheehan said she hit the ball

"super," but couldn't get a feel with her putter. She had five birdies but also added two bogeys. Beverly Klase and Sandra Post both shot seven-under-par runs of 66 to 68 in a new tournament single-round record by two strokes. They broke the old mark of 68 set in 1981 by Amy Alcott, JoAnne Carner and Vicki Taber. Klase moved up to a tie for sixth at 145 as a result of her hot round, sharing that spot with Jerilyn Britz and Donna White. Post is at 143. Amateur Jill Inkster, who shared the opening round lead with Beth Daniel, ballooned to an 82 and barely made the cut at 150. Among those failing to make the cut was Garner, who leads the tour's money list this season after winning five tournaments.

U.S. leads Australia in Davis Cup

PERTH, Australia (UPI) — The United States, led by a complaining and irritable John McEnroe, grabbed a 2-0 lead over Australia Friday in the opening singles matches of the Davis Cup semifinal. Both matches went to four sets. McEnroe overcame an inspired Peter McNamara, 6-4, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4, in a match that lasted more than three hours and Gene Mayer, playing in his Cup debut, totally controlled John Alexander en route to a 6-4, 3-6, 6-1, 6-2 triumph. In the first match, played in front of a capacity crowd, both players reached numerous high points of outstanding tennis. Was a major moment by the petulant McEnroe, who was pained by McNamara's exceptional play. The 23-year-old American, ranked third in the world, argued with just about everyone, including his team captain, Jimmy Connors. Mayer, a two-timed player on backhand and forehand, displayed a magical touch and deceiving ground strokes and lobbs to a non-pussh Alexander. The doubles match between two of the world's best combinations, Australians McNamara and Paul McNamee and Americans McEnroe and Peter Fleming, took on increased importance today and the Australians will be looking to avenge their 3-1 loss to the U.S. in the semifinals last year by the petulant McEnroe, who at Portland, Ore.
