Pope blasts Polish leaders

By LESLIE CHILDE Daily Telegraph, London ROME — The pope assailed Poland's military leaders for outlawing the Solidarity union movement, accusing them Sunday of violating human rights. In a passionately worded plea, Pope John Paul II called on people throughout the world to pray for the Polish nation...

But the events of the past 48 hours in Poland turned the event into a patriotic occasion as well as a religious one. A huge Solidarity banner was proudly held aloft throughout the ceremony, Poland's red and white flags fluttered over the throng. The pope spoke about the latest crisis in his homeland after he canonized Saint Maximilian Kolbe. It was a hastily prepared speech seizing on the special occasion to attack the "stifling of the legal and rightful activities of Solidarity..."

Dallas case expected to go to jury Tuesday

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — After three weeks of testimony, a Caldwell jury is expected to begin deliberating Tuesday the fate of Nevada trapper Claude Lafayette Dallas, charged with two counts of first-degree murder in the shooting deaths of two Idaho Fish and Game wardens. Third District Judge Edward Lodge last week recessed the trial until Tuesday, telling the 10-woman jury he hoped they could begin deliberations after several rebuttal witnesses are presented. Jurors will have a number of issues to consider, primarily whether to accept Dallas' contention that he shot the wardens after one of them pulled a gun on him first. Dallas took the stand Wednesday to describe his view of the events that led to the deaths of wardens William Pogue and Conley Elms on Jan. 5, 1981. A packed courtroom listened spellbound as Dallas gave a graphic description of the incident and revealed a secret that authorities have been trying to learn for 21 months — where Pogue's body was hidden. Authorities listened to Dallas' testimony, then phoned Nevada authorities to relate the defendant's description of the burial site. Within hours, the shallow grave was found between Paradise Hill and Winnemucca. Dallas told the jury how he dumped Pogue's body in the South Fork of the Owyhee River, where it was found two days after the incident. The defense this week tried to build its case by showing that Dallas' actions were in response to aggressive wardens who invaded his campsite and threatened him. Before putting Dallas on the stand, attorneys called several people who had met Pogue and thought he was violent. The defense also presented Boise pathologist Frank Roberts, who said Pogue had not been shot in the back as the autopsy report claimed. Roberts said a wound in the officer's back actually was an exit wound caused when Pogue was shot twice in the front of his body. Then Dallas took the stand and said he "responded in the only way I could have to keep these men from killing me."

Rising hemlines may be good news for Reagan

Editor's note: This is the sixth in an eight-part weekly series on what Americans think of life during the Reagan administration. By WILLIAM C. TROTT United Press International NEW YORK — Ed Walegor looks out the window of his First Avenue health food store and what he sees makes him feel good about the future of the economy. His optimism has nothing to do with Reaganomics. "I base it on hemlines," he says. "Women's hemlines are coming up, dresses are getting shorter again. And there are trends and studies that show whenever skirts get shorter, the economy improves."

"Why it works — damned if I know. But it does." More seriously, Walegor says he would be more comfortable if President Reagan had a clear field in which to operate rather than having to tangle with congressional boondoggles and pork-barrel mentality. Because of a devotion to health food and meditation, Walegor is hardly a typical Ronald Reagan supporter. He considers himself an independent voter who voted for Reagan in 1980 because he could not stand another four years of bungling by Jimmy Carter. "You can't say I'm a conservative or a liberal or a Democrat or a Republican. It depends on the issue," he said. "I want with Reagan to get Carter out of there. Carter should have been a pastor or something. We dropped so much in world esteem with him. We lost Afghanistan, we lost in Iran." If nothing else, Walegor says, Reagan's efforts to boost the economy have given many Americans a morale boost. "Under Reagan you have to say there's been improvement over what Carter did," he said. "With Carter the prime interest rate got up to 22 percent and it crippled the building industry, crippled the car industry. Inflation now is only going up in drips and drabs but then again unemployment is up. But then you have to remember the old cliché — it's always darkest before the dawn." Walegor may not be entirely sold on Reaganomics but he's willing to give it a chance. Should Reagan improve the economy as he promised during his campaign, he will get the credit, Walegor says. If he falls, Congress should get the blame. "I think a monkey could run the nation," he said. "It's Congress that rules it. We give these people the money and they do what they want with it. Congress hasn't given him enough of a shot to try all these policies. They're too busy making traditions that will keep getting them re-elected. "I say give him a chance — give anybody a chance. We've been doing the same stuff for 20 years and it doesn't take a genius to figure this stuff is not working."

Police still face standoff in Raleigh Amtrak gunman says baby died

By CRAIG WEBB United Press International RALEIGH, N.C. — A man barricaded in an Amtrak sleeping car with two children and a woman for three days told police Sunday night one of the children was dead. But police could not tell if the man, often irrational, was telling the truth. Authorities have feared since Friday the Spanish-speaking gunman — already — had killed the children's mother. The gunman has claimed there is also a dead man in the small sleeping compartment but police have tended to discount that claim. Sgt. P.M. Anderson said the gunman, who identified himself as Mario Rodriguez, told negotiators a 9-month-old girl was dead. Police said the baby had been crying more infrequently as Sunday wore on, but they could not confirm or disprove Rodriguez' claim. Earlier in the evening, Rodriguez lowered a 9 mm handgun wrapped in a white cloth from the window of the compartment. In return, authorities tied a bag containing soft drinks and cigarettes to the rope and Rodriguez pulled it back into the compartment. But police said they believed he had another weapon. Police worried that the baby might become dehydrated. Rodriguez had refused to take anything offered by police until Sunday afternoon. Dr. Susanne White, a pediatrician, said she also worried about disease that could be transmitted from the corpse believed to be in the 6-by-10 foot compartment. The gunman, apparently enraged over the crying of the baby, began shooting as Amtrak's Florida-to-New York Silver Star arrived at the Raleigh station at 5:20 a.m. MDT Friday. A man identified from an Amtrak passenger list as W. Rodriguez, a woman, the baby and a girl about 4 years old got on the train at Jacksonville, Fla., bound for New York. Rodriguez told authorities the woman, whom he said was his sister and the mother of the children, was dead and her body was in the upper berth of the compartment. Rodriguez had kept out of sight of authorities until mid-afternoon Sunday, when he suddenly lowered the window of the compartment and began waving at police, motioning them towards the car. Police, their guns drawn, began yelling at each other to "get back, get back" as the man, wearing no shirt and his legs bare, sat hunched in the window. The man was thin with dark hair and repeatedly glanced back inside the car. After a few seconds, the man disappeared. Seconds later, a white sheet was draped out the window of the car. The cloth hung out the window for about two hours before police tied a blue bag to it and the man pulled it in the window. The bag apparently contained sandwiches and doughnuts, a fruit drink and a saline solution. Before the blue bag was pulled into the compartment, reporters heard the man tell authorities "Don't shoot, I want some water." In the background, the 4-year-old child could be heard crying "agua," the Spanish word for water, and "mama, mama." Meanwhile, the tense standoff continues.

Police got a brief look at the gunman when he climbed into a window Sunday

Stands collapse, killing six

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Police searched Sunday for the owner of a portable building that collapsed while it was filled to more than double its seating capacity, killing at least six people and injuring 350 others.

Police Col. Augusto Fernandez Jasso, who directed rescue operations, said the Carlos Arzúza Building collapsed when some 1,500 people jammed into the 600-seat structure to watch the arrival by helicopter of Mexican mafador Antonio Laphell.

"There was nothing but pandemonium when Laphell landed," Fernandez Jasso said. "We say the structure shifted under the weight of the people who gathered to watch the descent of the helicopter."

"It was like in a movie the way the bodies began to fall together with the pieces of sheet metal and scaffolding of the structure," he said.

The tragedy took place in the southwestern Mexico City suburb of San Pedro Actopan during festivities surrounding a national cook-off of mole — a rich chocolate sauce prepared with chicken or turkey.

EPA action called deficient

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reagan administration has been dangerously deficient in enforcing environmental laws, the chairman of the House Energy Committee said Sunday.

"This administration is short-changing the American people by failing to enforce aggressively those laws which were specifically put in place to protect their interests," Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., said in a prepared statement.

Dingell released a staff report claiming enforcement of the hazardous waste, Superfund, drinking water, and toxic substances laws has been "dangerously deficient."

"Civil enforcement actions came to a virtual halt during the first 14 months of the Reagan administration," he said.

In response, the EPA said administrator Anne Gorsuch has set a policy of initially seeking voluntary compliance rather than being confrontational.

"The measurable industries are responding to voluntary compliance; those shunning this approach are on notice that there is no hesitancy or timidity on EPA's part in taking them to court," the EPA said.

Dingell said enforcement has improved but "continues to fall short of the record of the previous administration and fails to meet projections set forth in budgetary submissions to the Congress."

Historic shipling delayed

PORTSMOUTH, England (UPI) — Prince Charles dived down to inspect the wreckage of King Henry VIII's flagship Mary Rose Sunday when a technical hitch delayed efforts to raise the historic warship that has lain on the seabed since 1545.

"There is a great deal of will and determination to get the Mary Rose tomorrow," the prince declared as he surfaced and pulled off his face mask. "I'm determined to be here and I want to be able to see it up."

The operation is the climax to one of the world's most daring marine conservation projects — the raising of a ship, a microcosm of Tudor life miraculously preserved in the English Channel mud, that suddenly sank 437 years ago.

After the first loan was made, she was told there was enough money for about six more.

After it became apparent that there still was more money to loan, some lenders — such as McMurray, and some builders — such as Rain Tree, Willis Inc. and Whitehead Home and Finery — in Twin Falls — started working long hours to get as many applications in as possible before the money ran out.

Nationally, 3,100 loans were made during the one-month period, Zimmerman says; Idaho got about 385 of them.

"We got more than our share, thank God," she says.

More than 200 of those loans were made in Ada County, to help fuel a new-home construction boom there.

Of the loans she made in Ada County, 54 were made in the Magic Valley, through TransAmerica.

"I was getting deliveries from TransAmerica three or four times a day. There were times when they would send people to knock on the backdoor when we were working after hours," Zimmerman says.

"They got more than their share."

At least the next several days as dry high pressure continues to dominate the state's weather.

The extended forecast Wednesday through Friday calls for mild dry fall weather with highs in the 60s and lows in the 30s to low 40s.

High in the nation Sunday was 93 at Albia, Ga.; Brunswick, Ga.; and Cecil Field Naval Air Station in Florida. Low was 12 degrees at West Yellowstone, Mont.

Lows tonight 25 to 35 and highs upper 40s to low 50s today and low 50s to low 60s Tuesday.

Synopsis:

A large high pressure system located over the north and covering the entire state of Idaho is responsible for the pleasant clear warm weather that most Idahoans are enjoying.

Clear overnight skies produced another cold night over the mountains and eastern Idaho. Stanley reported 16 for the coldest spot but minimum temperatures in the low 20s were common in the upper Snake River Valley and southeastern highlands. Western Idaho was warmer with lows in the upper 20s and low 30s. The highest temperature in Idaho Sunday was 64 at Lewiston and Moscow.

Mild afternoon temperatures Sunday were running about the same as Saturday with readings in the mid to upper 50s quite common. This autumn-like weather routine should last for at least the next several days as dry high pressure continues to dominate the state's weather.

The extended forecast Wednesday through Friday calls for mild dry fall weather with highs in the 60s and lows in the 30s to low 40s.

Sweden says sub escaped; or maybe that's just a ploy

By CHRISTIAN PALMIE
United Press International

BERGA, Sweden (UPI) — Sweden's supreme commander said a foreign submarine trapped near a top-secret naval base for 10 days may have escaped but Swedish newspapers Monday called the report a ruse.

An all-out sea and air search for signs of the suspected Soviet or East German submarine continued unabated despite the possibility the hunt was futile.

"The probability for the submarine still remaining in Horsfjorden Bay is decreasing," Swedish Supreme Commander Gen. Lennart Ljung said Sunday.

He said a submarine was detected outside Horsfjorden Bay, where steel nets draped to the sea floor were designed to trap the submarine in a narrow Baltic inlet.

Ljung, however, said he was unable to report if the detected submarine was the same vessel, first spotted inside the underwater barrier Oct. 1 and again — for the last time — on Saturday.

Sweden's largest morning newspaper, Dagens Nyheter, said in its Monday edition the submarine was still bottled up inside the bay.

It cited sources saying contradictory information was deliberately issued to confuse the submarine's operational base.

The Swedish navy said it was possible the submarine was now helpless at the bottom of the sea with its batteries dead.

"That is one possibility, but we cannot prove it," said naval spokesman Sven Carlsson.

Additional troops and surveillance planes patrolled the restricted waters near Sweden's top-secret Musko naval base. Air Force surveillance planes flew low over the bay, taking photographs with heat-sensitive film.

Roads and navigable channels leading to and from the bay were closed by the authorities.

Activities around underwater barricades at the northern entrance of the bay were revived Sunday afternoon after a 24-hour lull in visible action. A Vercel helicopter equipped with active sonars hovered over the bay but officials would not confirm that there were new indications of the submarine's location.

In the Mylängen Bay, where a second submarine was detected Thursday, mine fields have been activated and one of the navigable channels is closed to civilian ships.

No official support was given to newspaper reports Sunday that the trapped submarines (Soviet and periscope) had been spotted by radar on several occasions.

For the first time, Air Force surveillance planes were seen Sunday over the bay but the Navy's media spokesman, Maj. Borje Johansson, would not confirm that their presence was directly motivated by the submarine hunt.

There were no reports of unusual military activity in the nearby Baltic sea, Johansson said.

Carlsson continues as intensely as before," Commander Sven Carlsson said.

"Not much can be noticed on the surface," Johansson added, "but there is a lot of activity that can't be seen."

"The operative headquarters still judge it as probable that there is a submarine in Horsfjorden," Carlsson said.

Information given to reporters assembled at Berga Naval School is becoming increasingly sparse. New rumors about the submarine hunt appear every day but are soon denied. Reports from the Italian press saying Sweden is secretly negotiating with representatives from one of the superpowers were categorically denied by the new defense minister Borje Andersson.

"Unfounded rumors," Andersson called the reports.

Radiation exposure increasing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Total radiation exposure to U.S. nuclear power plant workers jumped dramatically from 1969 to 1980, raising "serious questions" about safeguards at the facilities, a congressional agency reports.

The trend is causing "increasing concern" in federal agencies and the nuclear industry, prompting actions to improve radiation protection programs at commercial reactors, said the General Accounting Office.

The study by GAO — the investigative arm of Congress — focuses its review on government and industry figures showing the collective radiation dose to all nuclear power plant workers, not individual doses.

The collective dose is the total amount of radiation received by all workers at a particular plant-on for the nuclear industry as a whole.

"While individual exposures have, for the most part, been kept well below the regulatory limit, the collective dose has dramatically increased," the GAO warned.

Mormans announce new temple

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The Mormon Church says it plans to build a temple in Freiberg, Germany.

The 7,500-square-foot, one-level structure, where marriages, baptisms and other sacred ordinances occur, will be the 41st Mormon temple either in operation under construction or in various stages of planning in the world.

ACLU rips Reagan, Idaho reps

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Civil Liberties Union called the Reagan administration Sunday an "implacable and increasingly isolated foe" of individual freedoms, and accused it of intruding into the private lives of Americans.

But it praised the 97th Congress for defeating "efforts by the New Right to overturn parts of the Constitution," even though "a Department of Justice bent on dismantling federal civil rights enforcement has made steady progress toward its goal."

The ACLU listed the records of senators, and found none with perfect scores. Five had zero scores on all civil rights roll calls — Republican Sens. Mack Mattingly of Georgia, Don Nickles of Oklahoma, Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and Orrin Hatch and Jake Garn of Utah — with zero scores on all its civil rights roll call votes.

Among the House members given zero ratings were Larry Craig and George Hansen of Idaho.

Housing - Poland

Throughout the world to pray for the Polish nation!

Roman Catholic Primate Jozef Glemp Sunday condemned the outlawing of Solidarity in his sharpest criticism to date of Poland's military rulers and said the union may be gone, but its ideals were indestructible.

In Warsaw, the official news agency PAP said President Reagan should realize Poland is not a "banana republic" and warned him not to interfere in the nation's internal affairs.

"For many of our believers the outlawing of Solidarity as the trade union is an acute pain," Glemp said. "But, my brothers and sisters, we know that whatever is just is an ideal that contains in itself an indestructible value and this value will not perish."

"Its (Solidarity's) structures can perish but its values will not," he said.

PAP responding to President Reagan's decision to revoke Poland's "most-favored-nation" trade status warned the president not to interfere with Poland's internal affairs.

"In connection with President Ronald Reagan's statement on Polish affairs, Polish news agency PAP finds it necessary to remind him that the Polish people's republic is not a banana republic where the U.S. president can consider himself authorized to impose American law," the PAP statement said.

Tylenol case leads keep washing out

CHICAGO (UPI) — Authorities held a former hospital employee on extortion charges Sunday, saying he threatened to spike Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules with cyanide.

They said there was no evidence to link the man to the seven Chicago area deaths blamed on doped Tylenol capsules.

Jerome Howard, 20, a former employee of Gottlieb Memorial Hospital in the western suburb of Melrose Park, was arrested Saturday.

U.S. Magistrate Olga Jurco, during a hearing Sunday, set bond for Howard at $100,000.

FBI spokesman Anthony DiLorenzo said a letter found Wednesday on a receptionist's desk at Gottlieb Memorial warned patients would be poisoned with cyanide-laced Extra-Strength Tylenol unless he was paid $8,000.

DiLorenzo refused to say how the letter was traced to Howard. He was picked up at the hospital in an area near the maternity ward, where a ransom packet containing the money had been placed.

Howard allegedly claimed in the ransom note he was responsible for the deaths of seven Chicago area people who died Sept. 29 and 30 after swallowing Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules that had been filled with cyanide.

But Illinois Attorney General

Tyrone Fahner said the Howard case was "unrelated totally" to the Tylenol deaths, even though he said Howard once had been one of the "main suspects."

Fahner said investigators still were pursuing information concerning four suspects. He said 228 of the 1,050 leads investigated so far have been eliminated.

Chicago police arrested an irate telephone caller Saturday night who told a directory assistance operator he was the Tylenol-killer. He was trying to make her give him the unlisted number in Dubuque, Iowa, of the president of the Dubuque Packing Co. A spoiled ham—Jerome Oman—purchased supposedly had been packed there.

The operator kept Oman on the line while tracing his number and calling Chicago police. They charged him with disorderly conduct and said he had retracted his statements, which he made because "he was just very upset over a ham not being up to par."

DeKalb County authorities warned residents not to drink apple cider purchased at the Stanley Johnson orchard near Malta, 65 miles west of Chicago, because of an anonymous letter to a DeKalb newspaper saying cyanide had been placed in one gallon.

DeKalb County Sheriff Wilbur Scott said he suspects the letter was "a prank" by someone who might be trying to ruin Johnson's business.

Victims of the sweeping California fires grieve over the remains of their burned-out mobile home

California fires injure 150 people

MALIBU, Calif. (UPI) — Firefighters took advantage of dwindling winds Sunday to gain the upper hand on raging brushfires that destroyed or damaged about 80 homes, injured 150 people and blackened about 72,000 acres around Southern California.

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. signed an emergency declaration for Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura counties, the first step in obtaining government disaster relief for the victims.

But Brown stopped short of asking President Reagan — who once owned a ranch in the fire area — to designate the fire-ravaged region a federal disaster area.

The biggest of the major fires was in the Malibu area west of Los Angeles, where county Fire Chief Clyde Bragdon said about 55,000 acres were burned and the fire continued to blaze across about 20 miles of open lines in Los Angeles and Ventura counties. Arson was the suspected cause.

"The fire had a blowtorch effect coming out of Malibu Canyon," Bragdon said from a command post established at Pepperdine University. "It just came through like a funnel to the ocean."

The effect resulted from the low humidity Santa Ana winds that gusted to 60 mph Saturday, driving flames over ridgelines in the Santa Monica Mountains, down the canyons and across Pacific Coast Highway to the sea. The northern front of the fire burned into neighboring Ventura County.

Los Angeles County Fire Inspector Paul Quellielle laid much blame on the perilous winds. "All hell has broken loose out there," he said. "The wind is our biggest problem. If we don't get any wind, we can really get in on it."

The winds generally calmed Sunday, but some higher elevations and canyons were still buffeted by gusts of up to 45 mph.

An estimated 20 houses and 42 mobile homes were destroyed or damaged by the blaze and damage was in the millions of dollars. Bragdon estimates that 60 houses were destroyed were downgraded after the smoke cleared late Sunday.

Despite temperatures in the 80s and 90s Sunday and the continuing threat of high winds, the 750 firefighters got a line around 80 percent of the fire. Sunbathers and surfers lolled the beach as the smoke drifted overhead.

In Orange County, near the city of Orange, crews were being released from a 16,800-acre fire that reduced 22 expensive homes to rubble Saturday. Containment was expected by Sunday evening.

Damage was estimated at about $15 million and six firefighters and 140 civilians were treated at Red Cross centers for injuries ranging from smoke inhalation to the broken hip a man suffered when he fell down a ravine while escaping the flames.

Among the victims of the blazes were hundreds of animals, including wildlife and domestic cattle, horses and goats. Many were killed, including a horse that had to be shot after it ran panic-stricken into a steel shaft jutting out of Corral Beach. Many people led their animals to athletic fields where they were tended by county veterinarians.

U.S. plans to beef up Honduran military aid

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (UPI) — The U.S. Air Force is preparing to lead a large force of warplanes in Honduras if Soviet-made MIGs are delivered to leftist-ruled Nicaragua, a diplomatic military source said Sunday.

The U.S. Congress on Oct. 1 approved $13 million to expand the Honduran Air Base at Comayagua, some 200 miles west of Tegucigalpa, to provide access for any aircraft in the U.S. combat arsenal.

While U.S. Embassy spokesman Robert Callahan said "absolutely no American planes will be based in Honduras," a Western military source said the new facilities will allow the United States to set up operations in Honduras "at a moment's notice."

The source, who asked not to be identified, said "not much" would be needed to bring U.S. Air Force warplanes on to Honduran soil.

"The Hondurans can say to the Nicas (Nicaraguans), 'Don't mess with us, we have the Americans here to help us,'" the source said in an interview with UPI.

As a first step in signaling Washington's resolve to back up Honduras in any possible conflict with Nicaragua, the source said the United States plans to "show the flag" in Honduras much more than it has in the past.

Military flights headed to America's Howard Air Force Base in Panama, mostly Navy A-7 fighters and C-130 transport planes, will be stopping to refuel at the new Comayagua base, he said.

Other aircraft, based at the Naval Air Station in Guantanamo, Cuba, or at bases in the southern United States may drop in.

We need second Sputnik

Twenty-five years ago...the Soviet Union launched into earth orbit the beach-ball-sized, 184-pound Sputnik I satellite. The United States suffered technical, political and educational embarrassment.

But one of man's greatest adventures was underway. President Kennedy promised that man would visit the moon and what amounted to a national mobilization began.

The anniversary prompts us to suggest that the country needs another Sputnik shock. A reminder that there is an "unknown universe" out there awaiting exploration both by human explorers and by machines working at their command.

Space is the great arena for the display of technological excellence. It is also the competitive arena of the super-powers who are now being joined in space experimentation by other nations. The Soviet Union, which is able to budget with greater consistency, has placed primary emphasis upon military uses of space, a challenge which the United States must inevitably meet.

Deficits were predicted

For the first time in its history, the United States has ended a fiscal year with a federal deficit greater than $100 billion. But when the Reagan administration first proposed the budget that has produced this mountain of debt, it predicted that the deficit would be $42.5 billion, less than half of what has actually materialized.

There is no mystery behind this stupendous misjudgment. The administration based its estimate of what the shortfall would be on certain assumptions about the course the economy would take during this fiscal year. Those estimates erred on the side of optimism.

The bias in favor of rosy projections is so common that Budget Director David Stockman candidly refers to the figures used as "political numbers."

How right he was. There is a slim hope, however, that things may be changing in the Reagan administration. During recent confirmation hearings for Martin S. Feldstein, Mr. Reagan's choice to head the Council of Economic Advisers, the nominee assured the Senate that he would favor a higher level of realism and integrity in economic forecasting.

The problem Mr. Feldstein is likely to face is that accurate deficit projections would show the devastating effect on the budget of the president's hare-brained tax cuts and defense buildup. Emperors do not take kindly to being told their new clothes leave something to be desired.

GOP "cheap and unethical"

Comic book No. 1: The working people of Idaho need Gov. Evans.

The comic book against Gov. John Evans has attested to the fact that the Republican party is very cheap and unethical.

We could choose to forget which party we belong to, and commence working together for the betterment of our nation. Or, we can continue as the Republicans, carelessly disposing of money to publicize a quest for political might.

Of our two alternatives; if the latter is chosen, the people of America will realize that the candidates who best share the interests and aspirations of the working people, are without exception, the Democrats.

The Republicans, on the other hand, support a "Right to Work" bill. A bill which would ultimately "neutralize" labor unions. And the worker without the representation of a labor union would be prone to unreasonable wages, little fringe benefits, and no respect for the worker.

Shall we oust the Republicans? Yes!

USSR goal has not changed

I read an article headed "A Joe McCarthy Senate debate on the nuclear freeze." Neither you nor Sandy Grady evidently have taken the time to read in October Reader's Digest "The KGB's Magical War for Peace."

Of course, Kremlin wants a nuclear freeze right now. We are dangerously behind them at present. If they can keep us from a build-up they can take over the world. That has been their goal from the first and they have not changed. I think the president is a very smart man with his eyes open and I hope that more people read the article in the Reader's Digest and continue to be watchful, so we can remain free.

In regard to the Democrat congressional candidate's negative ad opposing Congressman George Hansen, would he have us believe that he would work and vote in tandem with Republican Congressman Larry Craig and in conjunction with Republican Senators Symms and McClure as Hansen does for the good of Idaho and the nation?

Changing the "Reaganian" year

WASHINGTON — Julius Caesar was, I grant, a bit bossy. Not at all the sort approved by the League of Women Voters, he had a Caesar complex, and when he was not hounding Verengerotrix, he was trying to solder together Gaul's three parts.

But Ronald Reagan's budgetary problems would vanish if he would do what Caesar did. That is, however, would first require undoing what Pope Gregory XIII did exactly (if one can say "exactly" of anything connected with the calendar) 400 years ago.

The day after Oct. 5, 1582, was Oct. 15, 1582. Why? Because Gregory said so. He was a toughie (the Saint Bartholomew's Day massacre made him so merry he accepted the severed head of the Huguenot leader), so when he said Caesar's calendar must go, it went.

Before Caesar, Rome's calendar had a 355-day year, which meant that the months and seasons slipped out of synch. A Roman mother would say to little Flavius, "It's Ianuarius, so wear your mittens," and little Flavius would remonstrate, citing the unseasonable warmth of Ianuarius. To slide things back where they belonged, Caesar packed extra days into 46 B.C. It wound up 445 days long — about as long as a U.S. election year seems. Then to keep the seasons from again swimming around in the calendar, Caesar decreed that the calendar year would be 365.25 days long.

But Caesar was a silly goose. Everyone with a wristwatch knows that the average year is only 365.242199 days long. Many's the New Year's Eve I have felt thankful that the year is 11 minutes and 14 seconds shorter than Caesar thought.

Under Caesar's calendar the seasons slipped 1.5

days every century, or about a week every millennium. Gregory XIII reasoned that, in time, this slippage would mean that religious festivals (Easter, the World Series) would crop up at odd moments. So Gregory said: Henceforth the calendar shall be for a year of 365.2422 days.

That still is longer than the solar year by 0.0003 days, or 3 days every 10,000 years. If you have library books due in 1,882 A.D., make a note.

But because of tidal friction, the Earth's rotation is slowing, so the length of the year is diminishing — good news for all who dislike the hurly-burly of modern life.

To get Easter back from where it had wandered, to its proper relation to the vernal equinox, Gregory lopped 10 days out of October, 1582. This caused a frightful row, and some riots, in Protestant countries, where feeling ran high against allowing a Pope to shorten everyone's life by 10 days. England and its colonies did not adopt the Gregorian calendar until 1752.

Russia did not conform until 1918; when Lenin made Feb. 1 become Feb. 13.

Lenin probably would have rejected a calendar so tainted with religious associations, but for the mess made by the French Revolution. France's revolutionaries, including those little old ladies who sat knitting at the foot of the guillotine, called 1792 the "first year of liberty."

They decided that there should be 12 months of 30 days each. The leftover five days would be used in September for five festivals: for genius, labor, actions, rewards, opinions (the Feast of St. Gallip?).

Every fourth year there would be a sixth, the Festival of the Revolution. Fortunately, the French found their system inconvenient because the world found it unintelligible. The Gregorian calendar survived even in Gaul.

But now is the time for a little creative Caesarism: Ronald Reagan should do as Julius Caesar did, and stuff, say, three extra months into 1982 — before Sept. 30, when the fiscal year ends. One result would be something for which Americans clamor: a balanced budget.

At least, it would be if Congress would appropriate for a 12-month Gregorian year, and Americans would work and earn — and pay taxes — for a 15-month Reagan year. This would generate an extra 25 percent in revenues, which would mean a balanced budget, a plunge in interest rates, and bliss ever after.

There are, of course, other ways of balancing the budget. Congress could cut the large (because benefiting primarily the middle class) benefit programs. Or Congress could raise taxes paid by the "haves" — often either a share of American wealth: the middle class. Since neither of these alternatives is politically palatable, there is a continuing campaign to amend the Constitution to proscribe unbalanced deficits.

No need to rake up the dead past, you say? I say, rake away, all the way back to Caesar. It is better to fiddle with the calendar than with the U.S. Constitution. If we got the calendar out of whack, we may have the World Series in Ianuarius (sorry, I mean January), which is not good. But if we bollix up the Constitution, we can have chaos from one end of the year to the other.

"Big John" gave us a collector's item, calls, letters

Perhaps 50 letters and phone calls. A half dozen "dropped" subscriptions. One request from a comic collector who said he "smelled a collector's item." And lots of publicity, some of it national.

Those seem to be some of the results of the "Big John" comic book flap which embroiled the Times-News last week, but which, thankfully, now appear to have died down.

Like many editors, I am uneasy when a newspaper — particularly the one I am associated with — is thrust into news events. Most of us journalists prefer to be in the background of events, recording them and providing analysis. Being part of the story is a role to which we are unaccustomed.

I suspect, by the way, that the disdain many print journalists have for their broadcast colleagues stems from the public visibility that often comes with television. And some of it may come from barely-hidden jealousy that television news has made more than one broadcaster rich and famous. But that's the subject for another column.

Back to the comic book. The issue caught us unaware, at first, of its impact to the Times-News. I first learned of the book when Idaho Education Association officials denounced it at a press conference more than two weeks ago. I didn't give much thought to how it would be distributed.

The next day, Times-News advertising manager Bill Blake told me he had had a request from BRIMSTONE to consider carrying the book as a paid political advertisement insert, but even then, I didn't see the full impact coming.

Bill and I discussed the issue and decided to ask for a copy before making a decision. We also checked with other newspapers and found that no one else had been asked to consider carrying "Big John."

The next Monday, a copy arrived and we decided, based on some careful discussion, to carry it as an insert if we could work out routine advertising arrangements.

That is a decision I am still comfortable with, despite the ensuing row. I believe strongly that freedom of information means the right to write and disseminate materials which, while disagreeable within the limits of libel and obscenity, I believe a newspaper has a right — indeed an obligation — to be a forum for the discussion of ideas.

Defending that right is easy when we all agree with the material. I believe a measure of freedom is our willingness to accept such literature, particularly political literature, when we don't agree with it. Personally, I find the comic book distasteful and inappropriate in a political campaign. But that matters not one whit in the decision to carry it.

By Tuesday, our phones were going off the hook with calls from other news media wanting their own quotations on why we were running the comic book. That widespread publicity generated additional calls from the public protesting the decision, although the book had not yet been distributed.

We inserted the book into the paper on Thursday, but by then, the strong reaction had partly subsided. The comic, for all its distortions, was perhaps not as bad as many people imagined. That may have taken the edge off the criticism.

Despite the "explanations," however, we found many readers still reacted strongly. I received about 30 letters on the subject, many of which we've published. A few more were unsigned. A very few were obscene. We also took perhaps 20 phone calls. Our circulation office reported a very few dropped subscriptions, which, I hope, will be dropped soon.

Most of the letter writers and callers have not been as critical of the Times-News for carrying the book as they have been of the BRIMSTONE organization for producing it.

In this case, I don't mind sharing the heat a bit and I've encouraged writers to let BRIMSTONE know how you feel. You can still do so: The address: BRIMSTONE, C/O Vera Hinkle, Box 85, Houston, Idaho 83630. In my mind, that is more effective than wringing our hands about how a political campaign has been waged.

I'm not in a position to assess how the comic will affect the Evans-Batt race, but the common wisdom — shared by Batt himself — is that he was hurt by it. Perhaps a sharp attack — often either a strong defense and Evans may benefit from the book in the form of sympathy votes.

I didn't do a demographics survey, but our reader responses seemed to come more from older citizens, often people who have lived in Idaho for years and who are not at all happy with the campaign conducted in this way.

At this point, I'm just as glad the issue is behind us. This past week, we got back to covering politics and the rest of the news in a normal way, minus the publicity.

I like to think the experience has rubbed off some empathy on us for how it feels to be in the publicity spotlight. That's something every editor should feel from time to time.

But I'll pass on more of it just now. Thanks, anyway, but I've had enough fire and brimstone for one campaign.

Carter: We knew hostage locations

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former President Jimmy Carter said in an account published Sunday that U.S. intelligence "knew where every hostage was located" in the Tehran embassy before the ill-fated 1980 mission to rescue the 52 Americans held by Iranian militants.

Carter also said the failure of the mission on April 25, 1980, came in sharp contrast to the "high hopes" his top officials had.

"I am still haunted by memories of that day," he said.

Carter's comments came in his memoirs, "Keeping Faith." A second set of excerpts from the book was published Sunday by Time Magazine.

Much of the excerpts discuss the 44-day hostage crisis, which ended the day Carter's office and President Reagan was inaugurated.

The April 25, 1980, rescue mission ended in tragedy in its Iranian desert staging area known as "Desert One" after mechanical problems grounded one of the rescue helicopters.

The White House scrubbed the mission, on recommendation of military officials, who said six helicopters were needed for success. But as the helicopters and air transport backup took off, a helicopter collided with a C-130 transport plane, killing eight crewmen.

Critics of the attempted rescue claimed it would have been next to impossible for the American commandos to steal into the sprawling embassy compound and locate the hostages to bring them out.

But in addition to having inserted agents into Tehran to gain advance intelligence, Carter writes, U.S. intelligence had another source, reviewed at an April 16 planning meeting in the White House situation room.

"Much more important, we received information from someone (who cannot be identified) who was thoroughly familiar with the compound; knew where every hostage was located; how many and what kind of guards were there at different times and the daily schedule of the hostages and their captors."

"This was the first time we knew the precise location of the Americans," he said.

Carter said in attempting to resolve the crisis, he "listened to every proposal, no matter how preposterous," including everything up to "dropping an atomic bomb on Tehran."

Utah radiation suit trial expected to end this week

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Plaintiffs in the multi-million dollar radiation cancer suit against the government will resume the final portion of their case Tuesday, expecting to wrap it up this week.

A team of five lawyers has spent four weeks presenting more than 70 witnesses to U.S. District Judge Bruce Jenkins, trying to prove allegations that fallout from atomic bombs caused high rates of cancer in southeastern Nevada, southern Utah and northern Arizona.

The case involves 24 plaintiffs chosen to represent the various cancers cited in nearly 1,200 claims against the government. The trial won't resume until Tuesday because today is a federal holiday — Columbus Day.

The plaintiffs have two more witnesses scheduled to testify in person in the non-jury trial, and they may read one or two more depositions, according to St. George, Utah, attorney MacArthur Wright.

But Gov. Scott Matheson will not testify in the case.

Gas price falling; may rise

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Average gas prices have dropped more than half a cent in the past two weeks, to about $1.26 a gallon, and reduced demand could keep prices down despite inflationary pressures, analyst Dan Lundberg said Sunday.

Lundberg, who surveys 18,000 service stations around the country biweekly, said the 61-cent reduction during the period from Sept. 25-Oct. 9 marked the 11th consecutive weeks gas prices have fallen.

"The main thing is that people have been conserving," Lundberg said, adding the reduced demand also reflects greater automotive efficiency.

The greatest reduction in price since the prior survey period ending Sept. 24 was for premium leaded gas, which dropped from $1.42 to $1.41 a gallon, Lundberg said. Premium unleaded fell to $1.34.5.

Regular, loaded and regular unleaded both declined three-quarters of a cent at self-serve pumps to $1.17.6 and $1.24.5 a gallon respectively.

Lundberg said the price reductions came amid indications the oil glut peaked in July and inflationary pressures were returning.

"All of the forces would now point to increased prices," he said.

Included are signs the glut is over, the once eroding spot market for petroleum has stabilized, a dramatic drop in Saudi Arabia's daily production and the anticipated surge in demand for winter heating oil.

But, he said, "the situation is entirely in the hands of the motorist."

Lundberg said past studies have determined a 10-cent rise in gasoline prices results in a 2 percent drop in demand.

"But when prices drop, if prices drop 10 cents and they have dropped 12 cents since the high of March 1981 — it doesn't produce the reverse effect. It does not increase consumption by 2 percent."

Lundberg said if motorists further reduce their driving and continue what he called "driving by objective," or eliminating unnecessary travel and planning travel to maximize efficiency, "that could possibly forestall an otherwise inevitable increase."

Joel tour in good hands?

By United Press International

JOEL TOUR

Billy Joel will hit the concert trail late this month — but the length of the tour will depend on the strength of his hand. Joel underwent extensive surgery on his left hand after a motorcycle accident last summer and he said, "The doctors think my hand is okay. And at home, I can play the piano all day. But playing onstage is totally different... I just don't know yet whether the hand can take that kind of workout five nights a week."

Stetson kicks it off interviewing George Burns. In the can are Margot Kidder interviewing John Irving and Robert Hayes talking to Boonie Raft. In the future, Anne Murray will interview Wayne Gretzky, Ellice Brennan will interview Ruth Gordon and Arthur Allen will take on William F. Buckley Jr.

HUSKY TONES

"Ann Reinking, who plays Daddy Warbucks' secretary in the movie "Annie," has a husky voice she traces back to a "bad tonsilectomy." She told Bill Diehl of ABC Radio, "I was awfully young at the time but according to my aunt... I had a very high clear soprano type voice, and then after this tonsilectomy, in which I did hemorrhoids, I had to stay in the hospital for a couple of days." That's when her voice dropped. She's tempted to send the doctor a "thank you" note.

HER CHILDREN

Susan Ducci, who plays Erica on the ABC soap opera "All My Children," is helping real-life children — she was named honorary 1983 Mothers' March chairperson Sunday by the March of Dimes at a gala at the American Boys Choir School in Princeton, N.J. The fact that she has two children of her own makes her particularly willing to aid the March of Dimes fight to help the 250,000 children a year in this country who are born with birth defects.

Asked if all his clients were celebrities, Mitchelson said, "No, many are unknown multi-millionaires."

Tough trip for Ford

By JOHN NEEDHAM United Press International

OSAKA, Japan — Gerald Ford and Henry Kissinger flew to Japan to discuss politics and affairs of state, but wound up talking Sunday about Japanese vegetarian food and their wives' wardrobes.

Kissinger's television flew the former U.S. president and his secretary of state, along with their wives and aides, to Japan to appear on a television show, hold two news conferences and appear at two "international forums" meetings. Sunday, a producer at the Osaka-based television station told Ford, Kissinger and their wives the topic would be health food.

Kissinger blinked.

"Oh, I don't know anything about health food, so I could go easy on the questions," Kissinger said.

"Since most of our viewers will be ladies, this is not really an economics or politically-oriented program," the producer said. "We would like to comment on fashion, cooking."

The two couples were duly seated for the taping and dug their chopsticks into the Japanese vegetarian food.

Closely questioned by the actor acting as the show's host, Ford pronounced the dishes "delicious." So did Nancy Kissinger. Ford's wife, Betty, said one of the ingredients, tofu, could be bought in U.S. supermarkets.

Kissinger gamely said he was "very much in favor of health food in the U.S. In general, I'm afraid I eat only what's best for me. I'm happy to have this opportunity to eat Japanese health food. I'm grateful for this opportunity to have a new experience."

More tough questions followed.

Did Ford and Kissinger think their wives had good taste in fashion? Answer: Yes.

What did everyone do to keep in shape?

Ford swims half a mile every day. "Every day," he bested himself. Kissinger walks "four miles a day at a fast clip." "Every day," the host repeated, his voice filled with awe.

A television station spokesman said he didn't know how much Kissinger and Ford were paid for their journey to Japan, which lasts until Thursday.

Soviets announce new space program

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet scientists say the Soviet Union is still No. 1 in space 25 years after the first Sputnik, and they aim to prove their dominance with a series of wide-ranging research flights in the years ahead.

The Russians are comfortably ahead of the United States in their attempts to develop a permanent space station.

Two cosmonauts have been in orbit aboard the Salyut 7 laboratory for nearly five months, in fact, and Radio Moscow confirmed Sunday that they are aiming to break the Soviet-held endurance record of 185 days in space.

In contrast to the Soviet practice of using Soyuz capsules to ferry cosmonauts up to the Salyut station for long-term missions, the United States has championed short-term flights with the reusable shuttle as a better way of exploiting near-Earth space.

Last week, however, Soviet scientists disclosed they are thinking of adapting shuttle technology for their space station program.

"The Soviet-Union has solved the technical problems," said Rold Sagdeev, director of the Space Research Institute. "Now it's only a problem of costs — of deciding which method is more economical."

Former cosmonaut Nikolai Rukavishnikov, who appeared with Sagdeev at a meeting to salute the Soviet successes in space and to discuss the future goals, said the human problem of long-term orbital missions has long since been solved.

"If our people get all the necessary supplies, they can stay up there forever," he declared confidently.

"We are dreaming about space as permanent living quarters," medical expert Oleg Gazenko said.

"Our scientists, engineers and cosmonauts are gradually fulfilling the new task, that of establishing permanently operating manned orbital complexes working in the interests of science and the national economy," Deputy Premier Gury Marchuk said at a ceremony last Monday marking the 25th anniversary of the first Sputnik launch.

"To study the natural resources of the Earth it is planned to create a permanently operating space system that will monitor and control man's economic activity on land and at sea."

Marchuk, who is chairman of the State Committee for Science and Technology, also promised future missions will build solar-energy stations and industrial plants, to take advantage of weightlessness and the perfect vacuum of outer space for crystallography and metallurgy.

Despite the emphasis on manned missions, Sagdeev and his colleagues said unmanned spacecraft offer the greatest promise for basic research aimed at expanding the horizons of man's scientific knowledge.

One of their proudest ambitions in the coming months is a joint effort with France, West Germany, Austria and most of the Socialist bloc nations to study Halley's Comet, already speeding toward the sun for its once-every-76-year rendezvous.

The Russians aim to send a spacecraft within 8,500 miles of the comet as it reaches its perihelion — the point in its orbit closest to the sun — in 1986.

The United States shelved plans for similar studies of Halley's Comet to save money.

W. Germans endorse new Kohl government

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — West Germans endorsed Chancellor Helmut Kohl's conservative party in a state election Sunday but dealt a humiliating defeat to his coalition partner, the Free Democrats.

Kohl's Christian Democrats, as expected, retained their majority in the state parliament in Bavaria, running far ahead of the Social Democrats of former Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.

But Bavarian voters heeded a call by Schmidt to oust the Free Democrats from the state parliament in Munich in retaliation for their defection in Bonn, which caused Schmidt's fall Oct. 1.

Failure of the tiny but pivotal liberal party of Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher to get the 5 percent of the vote necessary to win seats in the Bavarian parliament could shake Kohl's coalition government in Bonn, where it is dependent on Genscher's support in the Bundestag.

The defeat of the Free Democrats was expected to start a party campaign to replace Genscher as chairman and make another deal with Schmidt's Social Democrats.

Must disarm Christian militia

Lebanese government faces tough test

By JOHN IAMS
United Press International

Unidentified gunmen twice ambushed Israeli patrols Sunday near Aley, a town east of Beirut where six Israelis were killed and 22 were wounded in an ambush exactly one week ago. One Israeli soldier was wounded in the new attacks.

State-run Israel radio indicated the unidentified attackers were wounded by return fire from Israeli troops — blood stains were found in the area — but said the attackers escaped.

The radio also quoted government sources as saying that Lebanese and Israeli officials have discussed plans to form a 25-mile security belt in southern Lebanon.

Israel has demanded the creation of a buffer zone to keep northern Israel free from guerrilla attacks. Israel initially claimed its invasion of Lebanon June was aimed at creating such a security zone.

In Beirut, Lebanon's army put off a plan to begin to disarm the Christian Phalange militia and search for weapons in east Beirut. Beirut radio said army searches for arms, ammunition and illegal aliens in Moslem west Beirut were incomplete and that was the sole cause for the delay.

However, the leftist daily As-Safir said the Christian militia — accused in the Sept. 16-18 Palestinian massacre in two refugee camps — were secreting weapons in the mountains east of the capital.

The Phalange presents President Amin Gemayel's new government with "its first and most dangerous obstacle with the refusal of the forces in east Beirut to allow the army to disarm the eastern neighborhoods," the paper said.

With the withdrawal of most PLO fighters from Lebanon, the 20,000-man Phalange army is the largest private Lebanese militia left in the country, which is also 80 percent occupied by Israelis, Syrians and Palestinian fighters.

The bid to disarm the Christian forces is regarded as a major test of strength for Gemayel's government because his control remains unclear over the force that was commanded by his brother, Bashir. Bashir was assassinated Sept. 14.

Israel Television said unidentified gunmen first ambushed an Israeli troop bus and escort vehicle in Aley without any casualties. But when an Israeli patrol was rushed to the area one soldier was slightly wounded in the leg, it said.

Aley, 10 miles east of Beirut, is only 4 miles from the front-line Syrian position on the Beirut-Damascus highway. Six Israelis were killed and 22 were wounded, 11 seriously, in a bus ambush there a week ago.

2 photographers arrested for harassing Prince

MUSTIQUE, The Grenadines (UPI) — Police Sunday arrested two more photographers tracking Britain's vacationing Prince Andrew on his aunt's Caribbean estate, where he is secluded with soft porn star Kathleen "Koo" Stark.

Matthew Ford, a New York-based reporter for the London Sun, and Peter Carrett of the London Daily Mail were jailed overnight on the tiny island of Mustique pending trial today before a magistrate on trespassing charges, Inspector Kingsley Peters said.

If found guilty, they would be deported, said Peters, chief of security for islands of Mustique and Bequia, both British territories.

Ford was arrested around 9 a.m. approaching the swimming pool of Princess Margaret's house on the exclusive island south of St. Vincent and Carrett was picked up an hour later in the yard, police said.

Peters said he had warned one of the first photographers stopped on the way to the house Friday he would jail anybody else who trespassed on private property.

He was referring to Randy Taylor, who was fined $100 after he came to within 30 feet of Andrew at his aunt's house Friday.

Carrett and Ford claimed they were never warned.

Carrett's communications to and from the island at midnight Saturday because they were swamped with calls about the 22-year-old prince. The tiny island's switchboard operator was told not to put through nor accept any international calls.

The prince, whom Peters said would probably stay on the island about another week, attended a private party at a beach house Saturday night.

Mustique is a part of the state of St. Vincent, another island, and is 110 miles west of Barbados. Originally a sugar plantation and later a cotton estate, it was bought by a private landholder 30 years ago and then taken over by the specially formed Mustique Co. in 1969 for development as a resort.

Dear Abby

Letter on rape evokes response

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: The letter signed "Grandma," suggesting that women who are raped "asked for it" by wearing provocative clothing, brings this letter. Your answer (rape is a crime of violence, designed to humiliate and dominate) was right on, but you must admit that women (and some men, too) do dress provocatively in an effort to entice certain relationships—but only on their own terms—with the consenting partner of their choice.

If a merchant were to display goods attractively, hoping to entice interest in his merchandise, no one would say "asked for it." If a burglar broke in and seized the goods without complying with the contractual terms of sale, —DOUGLAS D. IN SHERMAN OAKS, CALIF.

DEAR DOUGLAS: How does one define "provocative"? It could mean something "different" to each man. There are "leg" men, "breast" men, "fanny" men, and men who are turned on by a pouty mouth, blond hair, or you name it.

Perhaps we should emulate Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini, and insist that our women be covered from head to toe in black wool, with only holes for the eyes. Then they would be rape-proof—unless, of course one runs into an "eye" man.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this for those who think it is immoral to destroy an imperfect fetus. I have a 30-year-old mentally retarded son whose life has been nothing but grief for him and me. I could handle the problem when he was a child, although I cried with him every time he was rejected by his peers and adults.

Out of a family of seven children, only one brother acknowledges his existence. The others ignore him, forgetting birthdays and Christmas. My son has no friends, and spends so much time alone that when he does see another human being, besides the small circle he lives in, he chatters constantly and drives everyone away.

He knows that he is "different," and he is even unhappy. He once saved up a lot of vitamins (he knew they were called "pills") until he thought he had enough to commit suicide.

I can't let him go out alone, as he is tormented or taken advantage of sexually. Do all these do-gooders understand all the problems that go along with retardation? Would they take someone like my son and care for him? FORBYER?

The small number of people who would deserve sainthood. Most who open their mouths would disappear if they were called upon to help. I know, as I have asked for help, and have been turned down with some fine-sounding excuses.

Every time I read letters from all these busybodies who would tell someone else what decisions he or she should make; I wish I could send them my son for a month. Let them live with the problems that never end, the grief I feel, have always felt, and will until the day I die. Just setting these thoughts down on paper starts the tears to flowing.

There is no place in society for these mentally handicapped people. They need their own community where they could be with their own kind and not feel different. They could be sterilized so they could love and marry. They have feelings, too! They aren't capable of raising children, but I'm sure a howl would be raised if they were rendered incapable of becoming parents.

When you live with these problems 24 hours a day, you think of mercy killing and suicide, but that takes more courage than I have.

This problem ruined my marriage. I also know other marriages that have collapsed under the burden. It has made family and friends disappear.

I could write a book on the subject. Any small pleasure you may find in a child like this are washed away by bigger problems later on.

These facts need to be put before people so they can see the situation from another point of view.

Night shift upsets natural rhythm

By DUNCAN McLAUGHEN
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

If you work the night shift, you're tampering with a natural rhythm as old as life itself.

But the economy marches to a different beat, and for millions who work the night shift, life can be a struggle.

"Night shift workers are always trying to balance between two worlds," says Michael Colligan, a researcher with the National Institute of Safety and Health who has investigated the effects of working at night.

The primary problem, according to Colligan, is the disruption of the circadian rhythm, the natural ebb and flow of the body's functions, tuned to day and night.

Even though you may have worked nights for years and established a nocturnal routine, he says, the body never quite settles into waking nights and sleeping days.

Daytime noises, brightness and temperatures will prevent a truly restful sleep, Colligan says. Worse, night shift workers will throw themselves further off track with daytime socializing on weekends.

As a result, they average only six hours of sleep daily, according to studies, and Colligan says that eventually, sleep loss leads to general fatigue.

Night shift work takes its toll on the family, too.

"School-age children may not see a parent who is on the night shift for several days because of different schedules," Colligan says. "And even getting the entire family together for meals can be a major endeavor."

Strained marriages may even be limited to working nights.

During a four-year study, psychologist Don Tepas of the Illinois Institute of Technology found the proportion of night shift workers who were divorced or separated to be twice as great as those working days.

Brewers, Cards enter Series

3-game comeback puts Milwaukee in record books

By MIKE TULLY
UPI sports writer

MILWAUKEE — With one dramatic victory, the Milwaukee Brewers recalled a piece of baseball history and created another.

On the 25th anniversary of the Milwaukee Braves clinching their only National League championship, the Brewers became the first team to win an American League playoff after losing the first two games.

Riding a wave of hometown support, the Brewers used Cecil Cooper's two-out, two-run single in the seventh inning Sunday to sweep past the California Angels 4-3 and into the World Series.

It also extended the frustration of California Manager Gene Mauch, whose team lost three straight at County Stadium after winning the first two handily at home. Mauch has managed 23 years in the big leagues without a pennant.

"I'm not frustrated, I'm probably the most disappointed I've been in my life," said Mauch, whose 1964 Philadelphia Phillies suffered a disastrous collapse the final 10 games of the season. "I regret the players were not rewarded the way they should have been."

Cooper's bases-loaded blow came with Milwaukee trailing 3-2 and the crowd of 54,968 imploring the Brewers to complete their run to the pennant and a berth in the World Series.

"The middle of our lineup hasn't been hitting at all," said Cooper. "We've been struggling. We've been trying to do too much. Maybe now we can relax and enjoy the World Series."

"I think I'm going to get a hit every time I come up to the plate," said Cooper, who was 2-for-19 before the hit. "I had a lot of chances today to drive in runs and I'm just thankful to God I had the opportunity. If I had struck out then, I would have been the goat."

After Carew grounded out short to first to end the game, catcher Ted Simmons jumped into the arms of reliever Pete "Big Foot" Ladd and the crowd swarmed the field in jubilation.

The Brewers showed their appreciation of the crowd support by returning to the field to share in the celebration. They held champagne bottles aloft and sprayed the liquid until security considerations forced them to retreat.

The winning pitcher was Bob McClure, who relieved starter Pete Vuckovich with one out and one on in the seventh and threw a double play ball to Reggie Jackson. Ladd stomped out California's last hopes by relieving McClure with one on and none out in the ninth for his second save of the series. Luis Sanchez, in relief of starter Bruce Kison, allowed Cooper's hit and took the loss.

The Angels fell short in the eighth when Marshall Edwards, just inserted as a defensive replacement, made a leaping catch against the left-center field wall to rob Don Baylor of an extra-base hit.

St. Louis returns after 14 years with pitching, 'D'

By BOB RUBIN
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

ATLANTA — A hard-throwing but moody right-hander; a wide-eyed, upright rookie center fielder who has the makings of a star, and perhaps the best reliever in baseball combined their talents Sunday night to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 6-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves for a three-game sweep of the National League championship series.

Reggie Amdur, now 16-10, won his eighth game in a row as he pitched 6 2/3 innings of six-hit ball before leaving with a 5-2 lead. Center fielder Willie McGee provided him with two of the runs with a two-run triple, the key hit in a four-run burst in the second inning, then homered in the ninth. Bruce Sutter relieved Amdur and retired the last seven Braves, all he faced, to send most in a crowd of 52,175 home happy.

The Cards are on a roll. They will play host to the Milwaukee Brewers in Tuesday night's (6:25 p.m. MDT) opening game of the World Series.

Amdur was known as a talent and a flake with the Houston Astros. He used to wear his warmup jacket on his left arm to fool opponents. Once, when he was late in reporting to spring training, he wired a simple three-word explanation: "Country being overthrown."

But Amdur has blossomed into one of the league's best pitchers under the grandfatherly guidance of 68-year-old pitching coach Hub Kittle, who speaks fluent Spanish.

Amdur doesn't think the media in St. Louis knew just how good he is. He blasted newsmen for not giving him the publicity he felt he deserved for being named NL Player of the Month in September, when his earned-run average was a microscopic 0.1.

But he won't be unhappy about the amount of ink he gets today.

The Cards knocked out Atlanta starter Rick Camp with their four-run second inning. Keith Hernandez led off with an opposite-field single to left. Darrell Porter, whose outstanding eye and ability to draw walks make him a more valuable hitter than his batting average (.231) would indicate, thought that Ball 3 was Ball 4, threw away his bat, and was almost at first before he realized that it was only a full count. The crowd cheered loudly, but that died in a hurry when Porter really did take Ball 4.

George Horlick singled to right for a run. Porter taking third. McGee tripled home two runs with a line shot to right-center. When Ozzie Smith singled home McGee, Camp was gone, replaced by Pascual Perez, who belatedly put out the fire.

It has been a strange series for McGee, whose .296 average and 24 stolen bases during the regular season make him an outside candidate for Rookie of the Year. He ran an inside-the-park home run into a triple in the Cards' 7-0 opening victory Thursday, falling to look up at third-base coach Chuck Hiller, who was frantically waving

Cooper thankful for redemption

By GARY LONG
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

MILWAUKEE — The man who inspires booming choruses of "Cooooo!" every time he steps to the plate had struck only two blows in 19 at-bats for the Milwaukee Brewers.

Through four games of the American League championship series, Cecil Cooper's lone contributions were a pair of doubles.

Then he made what he himself described as a "bonehead" play in the fourth inning Sunday. He also struck out to end the third inning with a runner aboard and fanned in the fifth to retire the side with two men on.

Milwaukee still trailed, 3-2, when Cooper came to the plate in the seventh inning with the two outs and the bases loaded. He wanted to be on the spot again.

"I had a lot of chances today to drive in runs, and I'm just thankful to God that I had a chance to redeem myself in that situation," he said. "But if I struck out again, I would have been the goat."

Cooper didn't strike out. He lined a 1-1 pitch into left field for a two-run single, and the Brewers, who came to Milwaukee in 1970 after one season as the expansion Seattle Pilots, had a ticket to their first World Series.

"As Cooper ran toward first, he gestured for the ball to drop. "Yeah, I kind of thought it was going to hang (and be caught) for a minute," he said. "But it dropped."

Cooper wasn't the only Milwaukee slugger who had trouble in this series. He finished at .150 (three for 20) in the series. Gorman Thomas, who hit home runs to chase the regular-season title with Reggie Jackson, managed only one hit — a two-run homer in his first at-bat in Game 1 — in 15 trips. Cleanup hitter Ted Simmons batted .167 and outfielder Ben Oglivie .133.

Cooper's fullness may have peaked in the fourth inning

Atlanta's Glenn Hubbard dives for a run-scoring single by Keith Hernandez in the 5th inning when his mental error put the Angels in position for a potential big inning that didn't occur.

Doug DeCinces had doubled to lead off, and Bobby Grich dropped a sacrifice bunt down the first-base line. Cooper fielded it, saw he had no play on DeCinces going to third and lunged to slap Grich with his gloved right hand. There was one problem. The ball remained in Cooper's left hand.

"It was a bonehead play," he said. "I just panicked in that situation. It just proves that we're all human; that we all make mistakes."

"Harv (Manager Harvey Kuenn) came out and said something about Grich running out of the basepath," he said. "But I didn't argue. I knew I'd made a mistake."

Cooper, who hasn't batted under .300 in any season since he came to the Brewers in 1976 in a trade from Boston, said this pennant means more to him than the one in Boston in 1975.

"I came over to this organization when things were kind of bad," he said. "They were struggling here. But Mr. Selig (owner Bud Selig) promised me he was going to put together a winning organization. That's what makes this so satisfying."

Split finger pitch baffles Braves

ATLANTA (UPI) — Even Bruce Sutter admits he sometimes doesn't know how he throws his bread and butter pitch — a split finger fastball.

The Cardinals' bullpen ace baffled the Atlanta Braves with 2 1/3 innings of hitless relief Sunday night in helping lead St. Louis to the National League pennant with a 6-2 victory.

His performance was similar to Saturday night's stint in Game 2 when he came out of the bullpen to shut down the Braves and pick up a victory. On Sunday, he was credited with a save in relief of Joaquin Andujar.

"I show people how I throw it — but I sometimes don't know myself how I do it," Sutter said amid his celebrating teammates. "I pitch it almost every time. I don't have anything else."

"I try to keep it down and away from the batters. It is a hard pitch to hit. It breaks right at the last minute when it gets to the bat."

St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog said Sutter was one of the main reasons the Cards swept Atlanta.

"The big difference was Sutter," said Herzog, who as manager of Kansas City made it to the playoffs but not to the World Series. "Teams that make it to a Series have a great relief pitcher — that is what Sutter is."

Catcher Darrell Porter, with five hits, including three doubles, was named the NL playoffs' Most Valuable Player and called the honor "sweet" after a mediocre season.

"I was booted early in the season — but I have not been swinging the bat," said Porter. "You tend to hear the boos, rather than the cheers. This is real sweet."

Rookie center fielder Willie McGee had a homer, triple and three RBI in the pennant-clinching series. The fleet McGee was called up from the minors early in the season. "I really didn't expect to be here — so this is just great," he said. "It will all sink in with me tomorrow."

NFLPA ends opposition to federal mediation

By IRA KAUFMAN
UPI sports writer

NEW YORK — Ending its steadfast opposition to the concept of federal mediation, the NFL Players Association Sunday agreed to ask for the assistance of federal mediator Kay McMurray in ending the three-week impasse with the management Council.

In their first face-to-face meeting in eight days, union head Ed Garvey, accompanied by NFLPA President Gene Upshaw, met in secret with owners' chief negotiator Jack Donlan in a hotel in Rye, N.Y., as the players' walkout was held to enter its fourth week.

"We have reached agreement to contact federal mediator McMurray and set in motion collective bargaining," Donlan said after the 3 1/2-hour session, which was hastily arranged late Saturday night and completed Sunday morning. Donlan has been calling for the presence of a federal mediator since the first regular-season strike in the league's 63-year history began Sept. 21.

Garvey emphasized that while McMurray, the director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, would draw from the federal mediation pool, the mediator agreed upon did not necessarily have to be part of the FMCS.

"This was a productive, constructive session, but we didn't attempt to resolve the issues which have kept us apart," said Garvey, who was rebuffed Thursday when he submitted a list of nine potential private mediators to the Management Council. Donlan rejected the offer just hours later, emphasizing NFL owners would agree only to a federal mediator.

"We will contact Kay McMurray tonight or tomorrow," said Garvey, who appeared together with Upshaw and Donlan to answer questions after Sunday's meeting. "It is not for certain that the mediator selected will be a federal mediator, but Mr. McMurray will select a mediator and get us back to the bargaining table."

McMurray, reached at his Washington home, said that as of Sunday night at 5 p.m. MDT he had yet to hear from either side. He did say the dispute necessitated a mediator.

"At some point in time they had to make this step," said McMurray. "I sure looks like they're going to need a little help. I would say it's a step in the right direction."

"I haven't talked to either party since the strike except to call both sides and say I'm available for help."

With the help of two Harvard law professors, Roger Fisher and Paul Weller, a secretive meeting was set up between Donlan and Garvey for Friday night in North Andover, Mass., but with the Management Council in place, the Players Association failed to show because Upshaw would have been unable to attend.

Formal talks broke off last Saturday in Washington but Garvey met with the owners' six-man executive committee Tuesday to personally lay out to management the union's key demand for a centralized fund tied to a wage scale. The committee thoroughly rejected Garvey's presentation, however, prompting accusations of bad-faith bargaining from both sides.

Mauch misses World Series for the 23rd time

GENE MAUCH
Came close in '64

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — In 23 years as a major league manager, California's Gene Mauch has the reputation of a great baseball tactician.

On Sunday, he came as close as ever to being called a winner.

"This probably is the most disappointed I've ever been in my life," Mauch said after the Milwaukee Brewers rallied to win the American League pennant 4-3 Sunday. "I'm disappointed for the owner of the club and everyone else down the line."

Mauch sat rigidly in front of his locker, taking an occasional drag off a cigarette and staring blankly.

"This probably is the most disappointed I've ever been in my life."

—Gene Mauch

Tears seemed to form when he rose to console starting pitcher Bruce Kison, who left with a 9-2 lead after five innings because of blister on his middle finger.

"I don't know if that's any of your business—really?" Kison snapped when asked what Mauch told him. "I don't mean to be rude... but sometimes there are things we say that are not public."

The Angels had said they wanted to win not only for themselves, but for Mauch, who managed the Philadelphia Phillies in the 1960s, the expansion Montreal Expos and the Minnesota Twins.

Gene Autry, the famous singing cowboy and free-spending owner of the Angels, had given Mauch the best pool of talent he ever. Even so, Mauch became the first manager to lose a best-of-five series after winning the first two games.

"Yeah, we wanted to do it for Gene Mauch," said Angel first baseman Rod Carew, who played under Mauch in Minnesota for three seasons. "But not only for Gene Mauch, also for Mr. Autry. He's done so much to give us a good ball club."

Fred Lynn, the series MVP with a .511 average, said: "I think personally—for Mr. Autry than for ourselves—I know Gene has been a manager for a long time, but Mr. Autry has been in the game a long time himself. "It was for Gene Mauch and Gene Autry," said third baseman Doug DeCinces, who played the first two games with a broken nose. "Wanting to do it for both of them just adds to the hurt."

Meanwhile, Mauch, still in full uniform, was questioning himself.

"Any time a team loses three in a row, a manager, at least this manager, feels there must have been some way to make more of a contribution."

Then, with a trace of a smile, he said: "On any team, it's been a pleasure to manage. It was a privilege to manage this club."

Niekro waited 13 years, will continue to try

ATLANTA (UPI) — Phil Niekro waited 13 years for another shot at a World Series but he saw his dream disappear again in three games with the St. Louis Cardinals.

"I thought we would win it," said the 43-year-old knuckleballer in a quiet locker room after his Atlanta Braves lost to St. Louis 6-2 Sunday night, enabling the Cards to sweep the best-of-five playoff series. "We thought we were a better ballclub but the Cardinals just outplayed us."

Niekro was the most effective Atlanta pitcher in the playoffs. He had a 3-0 lead in the fifth inning when rain washed out the opening game in St. Louis and came back with two

"We're going to need some left-handed pitching and be more consistent with our hitting next year."

—Joe Torre

days rest and had the Braves on top 3-2 when he was lifted for a pinch hitter in the second game that the Braves eventually lost 4-3.

"The Braves had a great year this season," said Niekro. "I don't care what Tom Lasorda or Howard Cosell says, we had the best team in the Western Division. But we just came out a little short this series. I don't think it constitutes a bad series to have had three games."

Niekro said the Braves are a younger team than the 1969 Atlanta club, which also lost the NL playoffs in three games to the New York Mets.

"There is no doubt in my mind this club can come back next year," he said. "But you wonder sometimes how long it is going to take to get in a World Series. I've had two chances and never got there. Maybe it will come next year. Maybe it will be four years. But I am going to go for it as long as I can."

"The only reason I keep on going is to get where we were today and hope for a week more. It was just cut short this year."

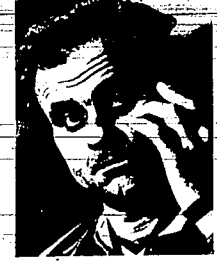

Atlanta Manager Joe Torre said his team performed especially well all season "with the kind of pitching we started the year with and the patchwork job that we had to do all year."

"We're going to need some left-handed pitching and be more consistent with our hitting next year," Torre added.

Torre said the key to the Cards' victory Sunday night was the three double plays turned by St. Louis, including one in the seventh inning when the Braves scored both their runs.

"But you can't look at our deficiencies," said Torre. "If you do, you are taking away from how well the Cardinals played."

JOE TORRE
Cards played well

Brewers

"The back of his knee (Gorman Thomas, the starting center fielder) was bothering him and once we got that fixed, I thought it was best we get some defense out there," said Milwaukee Manager Harvey Kuenn.

For the Brewers, who turned their season around when Kuenn replaced Bud Rodgers June 2, it marked the second straight Sunday they survived a showdown with their season on the line. In an ironic twist, "Harvey's Wallbangers," a team built on power, needed a freak infield single to ignite them in the seventh just when it looked as if the Angels would survive Milwaukee's challenge.

"In Baltimore, we were backed up against the wall," said Cooper. "It showed the kind of character we had. Today we had to do it again and we did it."

"The series MVP would have to be Peter Ladd," said Kuenn, unaware Fred Lynn of California had won it.

"I really wasn't nervous because when I am, I lose something on my fastball," said Ladd. "I don't care who's coming up just so I can throw my fastball. If I start getting panicky, I let the team down."

With one out in the seventh, Charlie Moore sent a frank pop behind the mound that Sanchez was unable to handle and none of the four converging infielders could catch. Second baseman Bobby Grich came the closest but home plate umpire Don Denkinger overruled first place umpire Al Clark and ruled it a trap instead of a catch.

The Brewers, despite making four errors, did the rest. Jim Gantner singled sharply to center with Moore stopping at second. One out later, Robin Yount won a long duel with Sanchez by walking on a 3-2 pitch. Then, with the count 1-1, Cooper, who drove in 121 runs during the season but who had only two in the playoffs to that point, lined a single to left.

Left fielder Brian Downing came up with the ball and threw home but was unable to produce the same gem that Moore made two innings earlier to ball Milwaukee out of a jam.

The Brewers' victory completed a remarkable California collapse for a team that includes such pennant-winning veterans as Jackson, Catch, Lyman, Boyer, Doug DeCinces, Bob Boone and Tim Lof.

Cardinals

him home. Then he let Rafael Ramirez's single go under his glove in Saturday night's 4-3 victory, allowing Ramirez to circle the bases and giving McGee nightmares.

But later in Saturday's game, he fought off a tough two-strike pitch by Braves' relief ace Gene Garber to hit a chopper to second that drove in the tying run in the eighth inning. And his triple Sunday night was the key hit in the decisive inning.

"I can't go on making those terrible mistakes," McGee said before Sunday's game. "I've got to do something positive instead of so many things negative. I'm a young ball player, and this is all new to me. Next year, I'll be able to handle it better, but I've got to make some changes."

He did with his triple, and the Cardinals feel he is going to make many more significant contributions. They got him in a trade with the New York Yankees for pitcher Bob Sykes during the offseason, and they think — they know — that they got a steal.

Sykes spent the season in the minors. McGee spent the season on route to stardom.

Like many talented Yankee youngsters, McGee seemed buried in the minors behind all the pampered high-priced veteran talent. Many Yankee farmhands throw up their hands in frustration, but McGee never did.

"I thought if I worked hard and improved every year, someone would see me and give me a chance," he said. "And it worked out just that way, like it was planned."

"This is a dream come true for me. I never expected in the beginning of the year to be in this situation. I thought maybe it'd still be out there until they might bring me up for a look in September. Since I've been here, I don't say much, I just keep my eyes and ears open. I'm trying to grab onto the shirttails of the veterans and let them take me along for the ride."

For the most part, it has been a joyride.

The Cardinals boosted their lead to 5-0 with a run in the fifth. Tommy Herr led off with a double to left, a ball Jerry Rouser singled to first, and "Herr" took third on a groundout, then scored as Hernandez hit a two-out single past second off the glove of diving Glenn Hubbard.

Meanwhile, the Braves could do nothing against Andujar for six innings, getting only two hits and two runners as far as second. On the second occasion, in the fourth inning, Hendrick robbed them of a run on a nice ankle-high grab of a Bob-Horner line drive.

The Braves finally got to Andujar for two runs in the seventh. Claudio Washington and Horner hit back-to-back singles, putting runners on first and third and the crowd into a hopeful frenzy. They got the run home, but at a high cost, as Charlie Chambliss grounded into a double play — the Cards' third of the night.

3 gymnasts qualify for state

NAMPA — Three members of the Sage Gymnastics team qualified for the junior division state championships during a six-way meet held Friday and Saturday. Erin Fullmore (32.65), Glennia Dee Jones (32.1) and Kelli Potts (32.1) all exceeded the 32-point all-around qualifying standard. The state final will be held Dec. 4 in Boise. Sixty gymnasts competed in the event, won by a team from Ogden, Utah, with 165.85 points. Karcher Academy of Nampa's "Red" team placed second at 165.45, while Mike Young's of Boise's "Green" team was third with 159.1. Sage took fourth with a 158.05 total, finishing ahead of Mike Young's "Red" team and Karcher's "Green" team. Individually, Fullmore placed fifth in vaulting (8.25) and parallel bars (8.45); Jones was third in vaulting (8.5) and fourth in balance beam (8.4); and Potts placed fourth in floor exercise (8.5). Another Sage gymnast, Wendy Fleming, was sixth in floor exercise with an 8.0. Sage will host its first home meet of the season Saturday.

Gant claims National 500

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — A crucial pit stop with seven laps to go in Sunday's National 500 allowed Harry Gant to finish nearly three seconds ahead of Bill Elliott and win his first NASCAR Grand National superspeedway race. Gant, Elliott and Bobby Allison were locked in a three-way duel with 57 laps to go in the 334-lap event at the 1.5-mile Charlotte Motor Speedway. But with 10 laps to go leader Allison blew an engine in the second turn and the race became a two-team duel. Gant, who started on the pole and led twice for 24 laps, took the lead while under the caution flag for Allison. He pitted his Buick with seven laps remaining, taking on four fresh tires and a tank of gasoline. Two laps later Elliott pitted and received right side tires and a tank of gas, relinquishing the lead to Gant. When the green flag came back out and the race resumed with four laps to go, Gant got the jump on the Elliott Ford and extended his lead, finishing 2.93 seconds ahead of the Dawsonville, Ga., driver.

Wilander tops Vilas in 3 sets

BARCELONA, Spain (UPI) — Sweden's Mats Wilander, the French Open champion, defeated Argentine veteran Guillermo Vilas, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4, Sunday to win the 2000 Count of Godo tournament. Wilander, 18, is No. 14 in the world computer rankings while the 30-year-old Vilas is No. 4. The Swede advanced to Sunday's final by beating top-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia in the quarterfinals and Vilas' compatriot Jose Luis Clerc in Saturday's semifinals.

'Patient' Evert whips Jaeger

DEERFIELD BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Chris Evert Lloyd, playing what she called patient tennis, easily defeated Andrea Jaeger 6-1, 6-1 Sunday in the finals of the $125,000 Women's Tennis Classic. It was Evert's first tournament since winning the U.S. Open for the sixth time last month. And it was the third straight year she has defeated the 19-year-old Jaeger in the final of the event. Most of the match was played from the baseline and Evert took command at the start. Jaeger, seeded second behind Evert, scored only 12 points in the first set, including the third game which she won. "I was the patient one," Evert said. "She went for the winners and didn't make them. Maybe the long matches she had the last two days had an effect."

Levi holds off Miller, Gray

ABLENE, Texas (UPI) — Despite a steady West Texas wind, Wayne Levi shot a four-under-par 68 Sunday to withstand charges by Johnny Miller and Thomas Gray and win the $50,000 Laddie Classic. Levi, who posted a 17-under 271 total on the Fairway Oaks course, moved to ninth place on the money list with the $63,000 first prize.

The victory lifted Levi to 74th on the all-time money list, moving one spot ahead of the legendary Sam Snead. It also marked the fifth victory of his 5-year-old PGA career.

Despite bids by Gray and Miller, who fired a five-under 67 Sunday to give him 10-under in the tournament, Levi's commanding lead was never in jeopardy.

"I played some of my best golf ever this week," Levi said. "I said, Wayne, whatever, don't go out and play safe. I knew if I played a good solid round, I could go out and win this thing."

Levi said he "pretty much had things in hand" after finishing the front nine six shots in the lead. A 15 mph wind did not hinder the Whitesboro, N.Y., native.

Miller, who started the day five-under, birdied the ninth hole as well as the 12th, 14th and 15th, finishing seven strokes behind LEVI for third place.

"I played super all week," said Miller, who admitted he never had a chance to win. "I just wasn't converting very well. My goal today was to get nine-under."

Gray, who failed to qualify for the Texas Open in San Antonio earlier this month, passed Miller on the back nine with a birdie on the 15th hole, finishing five-under for an 11-under 77, total and second place. Gray also had birdies on the second, fourth and ninth holes Sunday.

"I didn't make any bogeys, thank God," Gray said. "I didn't have room for them."

Gray's finish, worth $37,800, boosted him above No. 125 of 1982 money winners, qualifying him for the 1983 tour.

Hobby Cole and Gary Koch, both fighting for their pro careers under the PGA's new qualifying rules, finished in the top five.

Cole shot a one-under 71 for a 278 total, enough to tie Miller at 10-under. Koch also shot one-under in the final round to finish one stroke behind Cole and Miller.

Timely Writer to be buried at Belmont Park

Autopsies confirm racehorses' leg injuries

NEW YORK (UPI) — An autopsy performed Sunday by the New York Racing Association's veterinarian on Timely Writer and Johnny Dance confirmed that both horses suffered fractures of the left front leg during the running of the $563,000 Jockey Club Gold Cup at Belmont Park, which was won by Lemi Gold.

Timely Writer, the favorite in the 64th running of Saturday's Gold Cup, and Johnny Dance, were involved in a fatal four-horse spill and within 10 minutes after the accident both were humanely destroyed by injection.

The autopsies were performed by Dr. James Belden, who issued a statement Sunday that read:

"The autopsy on Johnny Dance confirmed the diagnosis of the injury as a comminuted fracture of the left front radius (the bone above the knee joint). The leg was shattered from the knee up."

"Timely Writer's was also a comminuted fracture of the left front cannon bone. The skin was torn from his knee. He had a few other abrasions from the fall, but his other three legs were perfectly sound.

It was announced later Sunday that Timely Writer will be buried Tuesday in the infield at Belmont Park. The filly Ruffian also was buried there in 1975.

Timely Writer, the 3-year-old colt who had made a remarkable comeback from stomach surgery in April to win three of his last four races before Saturday, was racing third behind early leader Island Whirl and Lemi Gold when, with just under a half-mile to go, he plunged into the ground after his left foreleg snapped in mid-stride.

Sing Sing, racing fifth, then stumbled, throwing jockey Miguel Rivera, and another horse, Johnny Dance, hit Timely Writer and crashed into the rail.

Khatango, racing last in the field of 10, swerved to avoid Johnny Dance and Timely Writer and he lost his balance and went down.

All four jockeys involved in the spill walked away without injuries while Sing Sing and Khatango were not seriously hurt.

Ironically, Saturday's race was to be the last in Timely Writer's fateful career before the Niram Stables' colt was retired to stud.

Dr. William O. Reed, who had purchased a half interest in Timely Writer's breeding rights for $3 million last spring, called the colt's multiple fracture "worse" than the one suffered by Ruffian, the filly who shattered a leg during her 1975 match race with Foolish Pleasure.

Dr. Belden examined all the horses before the race and said they were all sound. I felt Timely Writer was a cinch today," said Reed.

Jeff Fell, who was aboard Timely Writer, said he heard the bone snap.

McCrory, Coverson remain undefeated

DETROIT (UPI) — Milton McCrory, the leading contender for the welterweight title of the injured Sugar Ray Leonard, remained undefeated in 20 pro fights Sunday by scoring a unanimous 10-round decision over Vitor Abraham, Leonard's former sparring partner.

In a battle of Detroit lightweight, undefeated Greg Coverson won a unanimous 10-round verdict over Davey Armstrong in the second feature bout of the nationally televised card hurriedly arranged to fill the void left by the pro football strike.

The judges scored the top fight 96-91, 100-89 and 100-89 in the 20-year-old McCrory's favor.

"I thought that was the worst fight of my career," McCrory said. "It's hard to fight a guy like that. He never let me bring the fight to me. I was really looking for a knockout because my other two fights went the distance."

McCoverson, a Detroit moving toward the title Thomas Hearns lost to Leonard in Las Vegas Sept. 8, 1981, carried the fight to the 10th round, trapping him in the corners and against the ropes.

With Leonard and Hearns sitting at ringside, McCrory solidified his No. 1 ranking by effectively using his 4 1/2-inch height advantage and superior reach to outpoint Abraham, 75-61.

Montana State alone in Big Sky lead with key road win

By United Press International

Montana State rookie head Coach Doug Graber, in a moment of understatement, called his Bobcats' 23-20 Big Sky Conference victory at Weber State Saturday night, "a good win for us because it was on the road."

The MSU win, combined with Boise State's 21-14 defeat of Montana, left the Bobcats in sole possession of first place in the Big Sky standings with a perfect 3-0 league record.

And in another example of restrained joy, Graber added, "I'm pleased with our outlook now. We have only one more Big Sky game outside of the state of Montana."

Bill Godfrey completed 21 of 31 passing attempts for 245 yards, including a pair of first-quarter touchdowns that gave Montana-State the lead for good, as the Bobcats dominated the game much more than the final score showed.

But Godfrey's Big Sky game Saturday, Nevada-Reno finally got its

"We followed our game plan all the way," Graber said. "We felt to win on the road we'd have to control the tempo of the game, and that's just what we did."

SI Timberman scored the game-winning TD in the third quarter as Montana-State claimed its fourth consecutive win. And Tony Boddie rushed for 114 yards and caught four passes for another 101 yards, including a 35-yard touchdown pass from Godfrey that put MSU ahead for good.

Godfrey's other scoring pass went nine yards to tight end Joe Bignell. And his TD toss to Boddie and Mike Carter's 46-yard field goal gave the Bobcats a 16-7 halftime lead.

Weber State had scored the opening touchdown on the first play from scrimmage, a 41-yard halfback option pass from Wade Jacklin to Gerald Bradley.

The Wildcats also trimmed MSU's lead to 16-13 on Kelvin Matthews' six-yard touchdown run midway through the third period. However, Timberman's one-yard plunge late in the quarter proved to be the game-winning score, putting MSU up 23-13.

The Wildcats were able to make the final score appear close as Matthews picked up his second touchdown, on a one-yard sweep at the gun. But Weber State had the ball for only 15 minutes in the game, to 41 minutes for MSU.

The Bobcats controlled the game by gaining 407 yards in total offense to 289 for the Wildcats.

At Boise, quarterback Gerald DeSprez completed 17 passes for 199 yards and two touchdowns to help lift Boise State to its seven-point win over Montana. But it took running back Robert Farmer's 26-yard TD run in the final three minutes to break a 14-all tie.

Northern Arizona started with four consecutive field goals by Mark Diamond for a 12-0 halftime lead. But Marshall Sperbeck got Nevada-Reno back in the game with his 13-yard touchdown run, and then Tony Zendejas did the rest.

Zendejas kicked a Big Sky record-tying five field goals in leading the Wolf Pack to their first win. Zendejas' boots were from 25, 35, 52, 24 and 38 yards out, tying the league record held by Eric Gutierrez of Boise State and Tom Jurch of NAU.

Ken Hobart passed for 323 yards and three touchdowns and ran for a fourth score in powering Idaho to its win at Northern Iowa, the fourth consecutive victory for the Vandals.

Idaho State was simply outmanned at Utah State, falling behind 30-0 before finally avoiding a shutout loss on Perry Lawson's 27-yard field goal in the fourth quarter. It was the third consecutive loss for the Bengals, the defending Big Sky and NCAA Division I-AA champions.

Paterno faults Penn State's kicking game

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Penn State Coach Joe Paterno could only shake his head in wonder after falling short by a 42-21 margin in his fourth unsuccessful bid to beat Alabama Coach Bear Bryant.

What if a close call on a pass play to wide receiver Kenny Jackson had been ruled complete? What if quarterback Todd Boddie had not been intercepted four times?

But Paterno had to admit it was a couple of monumental lapses that did it in the previously undefeated, third-ranked Nittany Lions Saturday.

"The kicking game is what blew it for us," he said.

The first miscue, a blocked punt in the opening period, resulted in fourth-ranked Alabama's first score. The second bizarre mistake came with just under five minutes left in the game and the Nittany Lions trailing by only six points.

Blocker Mike Suter backed into a punt by Ralph Giacomazzi, sending the ball bouncing from just short of midfield all the way to the Penn State 12 yard line.

Only two rushes were needed to produce a touchdown by Linnie Patrick and that, coupled with a two-point conversion pass from Walter Lewis to Jesse Bendross, made the margin 35-21 with just more than four minutes left.

A first down pass following the kickoff was picked off by linebacker Eddie Lowe and returned 31 yards for the game's final score.

Suter, a reserve defensive back, was playing for Roger Jackson, a senior who injured an ankle in the second quarter.

"The kid got a little careless and started backing up without realizing where he was," Paterno said. "He hadn't played much—I thought he handled himself very well for the first time he's really played."

He said the Nittany Lions' punters usually line up about "a yard or two" closer to the center than most teams "to cut down the time the ball takes to travel to the kicker."

Hawaii edges Utes to take WAC lead

HONOLULU (UPI) — Richard Spelman kicked a 37-yard field goal with 30 seconds remaining Saturday night to give Hawaii a 10-7 victory over Utah in the first place in the Western Athletic Conference.

Spelman's first field goal of the year capped an 80-yard drive that took nearly four minutes. The triumph was Hawaii's third in four WAC games and fourth in five games overall: The Utes are 1-1 in the conference and 2-3 overall.

The game was primarily a punting duel between the two teams as Hawaii kicked 11 times and Utah nine.

Hawaii took a 7-0 lead at halftime when Randall Cunningham scooped five yards for the score after the Rainbows recovered a fumble at the Utah 25. The Utes tied it in the third period on a two-yard scoring run by Hliria Johnson, which was set up by a pass interception.

Spelman's heroics offset a brilliant rushing performance by Utah's Carl Monroe, who carried 31 times for 207 yards. Hawaii was forced to play for most of the game without their leading rusher, Anthony Edgar, who went out in the second period with a bruised thigh.

Late football

dived with 11 seconds remaining Saturday night to give the undefeated Sun Devils a 21-17 victory over 18th-ranked Stanford.

With 3:14 to go, Wright had fumbled into the end zone and Stanford safety Vaughn Williams recovered. Cardinal quarterback Joe Elway, held in check most of the game, marched Stanford 80 yards in nine plays and hit Mike Tolliver for a 16-yard touchdown pass with only 49 seconds remaining.

After the kickoff, it took ASU just six plays to take the victory.

UNLV 28, Texas-El Paso 21

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Randall Cunningham passed for two touchdowns in a 13-second span, rushed for another and ran 33 yards to set up a fourth TD Saturday night to lead the University of Nevada-Las Vegas to a 28-21 victory over Texas El Paso.

The win was the Rebels' first of the year against four losses. The Miners fell to 1-5.

Cunningham completed 17-of-34 passes for 251 yards. He was intercepted twice and sacked five times.

Park fire

Sunrize park in Twin Falls may need a new recreation building after a fire on Sunday. Twin Falls firemen, responding after several calls by witnesses, arrived to find the building completely engulfed. By the time they had the flames out, not much of the building was left.

Cause of the fire was unknown. Firemen said it was used for storage of recreation equipment. The fire started about 5:30 p.m.

Light turnout predicted for elections

But there's still time to register

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Probably less than 40 percent of the registered voters in the Magic Valley will cast ballots on Nov. 2, according to county clerks in the region.

With only a few exceptions, county clerks expect a light turnout. They say this reflects the traditionally low interest shown in mid-term elections, as well as a lack of contested races in several counties.

Idaho voters will go to the polls to select a slate of state and local officers, including the governor, two congressmen and hundreds of legislators and county officials. Friday, Oct. 22—All-eight-Magic-Valley county clerk offices will remain open until 8 p.m. on the final day to register.

Anyone who is 18 or older and has lived in his or her county for 30 days prior to the election may register. Persons who have moved into new precincts or who have changed their names must re-register. And anyone who has not voted during the past four years also is required to re-register.

Most of the eight Magic Valley counties had a low voter turnout during the May primary election. And the clerks expect only a slightly larger turnout next month.

"We always do get more in the general election, but it's nothing like presidential election," says Mary Green, the chief deputy clerk for Blaine County. Green estimates that 40 percent of Blaine County's 6,760 registered voters will cast ballots.

Richard Pence, the Twin Falls County clerk, agrees that a presidential election draws more interest.

"But I don't think it should," he says. "I think our local representatives are more important to us than our national representatives."

However, the lack of contests for all but one office in Twin Falls County may contribute to a low turnout, he says. Pence estimates that only a third of his county's 27,330 registered voters will go to the polls.

"I'm going to say a little better than 30 percent. It might go to 40 percent. There just isn't a heck of a lot of things up for grabs," Pence says. "We just haven't heard any noise."

Those projections compare with:

• Jerome County — Deputy clerk Kathy Miller projects 40 percent of the county's 7,331 registered voters will show up, compared to the 36 percent turnout in May.

"My guess would be that, during the general election, we'll probably have a little bit bigger turnout, but I hear it's not going to be that great," she says. "It seems that the presidential years are the years that bring the people out."

• Gooding County — Clerk Margaret Clements hesitates to predict how many of the county's 6,392 registered voters will appear at the polls. But, she says, "With no more interest than they're showing, it might be closer to 40 percent."

• Cassia County — The lack of competition for offices in this county could mean only 33 to 40 percent of the county's 9,516 registered voters will cast ballots, according to deputy clerk Barbara Malm.

Burley native retiring as Rupert veterans officer

Veteran helper saw toll of 3 wars

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT — Across the desk from the Vietnam veteran sits a large man in a wheelchair. While the younger man tells of his problems, the older man listens — as he has for the past 12 years.

Garth Brim, 67, is the man behind the desk. For more than a decade he has been aiding veterans and their dependents as the Minidoka County veterans officer. Sometime this month, Brim will retire from the job.

"It's time for somebody else to take over the reins," he says, adding that age and his severe disabilities are making regular work harder each day.

A native of Burley, Brim served in the Army's 25th Division, in the hard fighting in the Pacific Islands during World War II. Wounds received during combat led to his disabilities, which placed him in a wheelchair more than 30 years ago.

Brim mostly breezes over talk about his wounds and declines to provide specific details.

After his release from the hospital, Brim returned to Idaho and set up his own electric-sign shop in Burley. After 16 years of work, he sold out. All the while, he remained confined to a wheelchair.

"You know you never accept it. You can knock your head against a wall for so long," Brim says. But a good marriage and a wonderful wife, Erma, helped him through, he says.

After selling his business, the veterans job came along and he decided "I can handle this all right," Brim recalls.

The job's duties include helping veterans and their families obtain the benefits to which they are entitled, as well as answering their questions.

"Really, it's pretty comprehensive," he says. Brim says that he has dealt with an average of 700 veterans or dependents a year, and that figure doesn't include the number of inquiring phone calls. Veterans from World War II to Korea to Vietnam have walked through the door of his small office.

"All people who come in here have problems," Brim says. The Vietnam veterans, however, have some unique problems because they came home from an unpopular war, he says.

"I was against the Vietnam war. These vets that served didn't get the reception of other returning servicemen," Brim says. "In World War II, everybody was patriotic."

Brim recounts his own experience of coming into Seattle by ship and being greeted by a river boat with "USO girls and a band." A large sign on a hill said "Welcome Home." But the Vietnam veteran found no such welcome, he says.

As a result, veterans of that war are experiencing mental problems, known as "the delayed stress syndrome. And veterans of the 'cold war' in Korea have problems similar to the Vietnam veteran, Brim says.

He sees a danger of the United States entering another "no-win" war in the Middle East, with the sending of peacekeeping troops to Lebanon. During Vietnam, America started sending just a few men in, and the numbers grew, he says. Presently, he believes the United States is in danger of again being "sucked into" a war.

"I think we get involved in too many countries. I would not send a single Marine, not at this time. It's not threatening to our lives," Brim says.

He believes in a strong military, he says, holding up a fist to illustrate his point. However, this country has gone "too far" in nuclear-arms production and military spending, he believes.

"It's draining our country's economy. There are sufficient enough weapons to kill everything on Earth."

Brim also says the face of war has changed, from the united allied front against Hitler to many wars among different factions.

Concerning other military issues, Brim says that Vietnam era draft-dodgers should not have been given amnesty. He also says that he sees nothing wrong with registering for the draft.

"It's the law," he says. As for women in the military, Brim favors females in uniform, but not in combat.

"They're not strong enough for combat." The job he has held for many years requires a veteran because they know the needs and problems of other veterans, he says.

"I've been through the mill, so to speak. I have an understanding of their problems," Brim says. "Each case is different."

Helping others is the job's main reward, he says. After the interview, Brim asked that the article about him be "short and sweet."

"I'm just another dog-face. Some had it better, and some had it worse."

Idaho First facility tops zoning agenda

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A hearing on Idaho First National Bank's request to operate a new drive-in facility downtown will be held Tuesday evening by the Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission.

Idaho First, which intends to build a new bank in the 200 block of Shoshone Street North, is seeking a special-use permit that would allow the construction of a drive-in banking facility, with four traffic lanes, at the site. Two additional lanes eventually could be built, according to city officials.

The two present downtown Idaho First drive-in facilities will be vacated, as will the bank's main office at 103 Main Ave. E.

Idaho First plans to have its new downtown bank ready for occupancy late in 1983 or early in 1984, according to Jack Rucker, a spokesman at the bank's administrative office in Boise.

Rucker says the proposed design of the new building will be studied by the bank's board of directors on Oct. 21. Plans call for a structure consisting of about 15,000 square feet.

The site for the new bank has been razed and fenced. An automotive sales building, offices, shops and a tavern previously occupied the property, which is bounded by Shoshone Street North, Third Avenue North and Second Street North.

Tuesday's meeting of the Planning and Zoning Commission will begin at 7:30 p.m. at Twin Falls City Hall.

Also scheduled for discussion at the meeting is the vacant position of an alternate commissioner, which became open when Ken Roy replaced Koelven Lytle as a regular member of the commission.

The commission is expected to recommend an individual for City Council to appoint to the vacancy.

A bank customer drives up to the window at Idaho First National Bank's motor office which is scheduled to be closed.

Twin Falls woman hurt in auto accident

BUHL — An elderly Twin Falls woman was in fair condition Sunday night, following a traffic accident Sunday morning on U.S. 30, near Banbury Road.

Emma Berry, 85, of the Woodstone Retirement Center in Twin Falls, was a passenger in a car driven by her granddaughter, Grace Berry, 58, of Hagerman, who collided with another car, as was turning, according to the Idaho State Police.

Cpl. Charles Cox said that a vehicle driven by Creighton Miller, about 30, of Grandview, was southbound on U.S. 30 and was slowing to make a left turn onto Banbury Road, when it was hit by the Berry vehicle, which also was traveling south. According to Cox, Grace Berry saw the second vehicle slowing down and decided to pass just as it turned left.

Both drivers escaped injury, but Emma Berry suffered rib fractures. She was taken to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

Grace Berry has been cited for passing at an intersection, over a double yellow line.

This sludge belt at the new waste plant is ready to roll

Treatment plant almost finished

By SUSAN GALLAGHER Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The $6 million construction project at the Twin Falls sewage treatment plant is 99 percent finished, according to the city manager.

Tom Courtney said last week that the aeration basins are being tested, and the modified facility's new digesters are functioning.

During the next few weeks, Courtney says, manufacturers' representatives will be in Twin Falls to monitor the sludge-processing belt presses when they go on-line.

The belt presses will be used to convert liquid sludge, the residual product of sewage treatment, into a substance the consistency of manure. Farm-land disposal of the sludge will continue, but because of the water extraction, fewer trips to haul the sludge to the disposal sites will be required.

The modification project, begun nearly two years ago, was intended to render the treatment plant capable of handling Twin Falls' entire waste load, in compliance with federal environmental standards. However, spokesmen for the plant's principal user, Idaho Frozen Foods, have said the new plant cannot process the combination of IFF's full waste load, plus the city's other wastes.

For that reason, and for reasons of economy, IFF is building its own treatment system and will withdraw from the city's plant in January, according to Tom Odenwald, the company's president and general manager. The withdrawal will require that some sections of the city's treatment plant be mothballed, according to Courtney.

In another matter involving sewage treatment, City Council last week retired the $1.7 million bond fund established in 1970 to finance the city's original treatment plant and the installation of sewage trunk lines.

Prior to construction of the plant in the Snake River Canyon, the city's untreated waste was emptied into Rock Creek. The secondary sewage treatment facility now undergoing modifications was built in 1975, at a cost of $7 million.

Escaped rapist eludes police despite many tips

BOISE (UPI) — A convicted rapist who escaped from the Idaho State Penitentiary into a Boise neighborhood has left in his wake a number of nervous residents.

Although police have no evidence Thompson is still in that area, many where in Boise — homeowners are making no chances.

sleeping in her tennis shoes with her keys in her hand. She said she was not sure she would notify police in the future because of the publicity and because she feared Thompson might seek revenge.

Authorities are receiving numerous tips about the escape. Officers continued Sunday following up leads in their effort to recapture Thompson, but "nothing has proven fruitful yet," Boise Police Sgt. Dave Ingie said.

The 24-year-old convict escaped in the back of a commissary truck, and prison officials say he is "extremely dangerous."

The convict was sentenced in May 1983 to three life prison terms plus 323 years for two rapes and 23 other crimes.

Mountain Home fire damages school gym

MOUNTAIN HOME, Idaho (UPI) — Mountain Home authorities suspect several juveniles set a fire that caused extensive damage to the high school gymnasium Sunday, but no arrests have been made, city fire chief Tom Hiller said.

at 7:12 a.m. "There's reason to believe people were in the building during the night," Hiller said.

He estimated flames caused about $300,000 in damage to the gym's floor and ceiling and to other areas at the northern end of the school, such as the football locker room.

Noone was injured in the blaze.

Voters

The exceptions to the trend appear to be in the Grand Coulees, Camas County Clerk George Kall expects 80 percent of his county's 596 registered voters will cast ballots in November. That compares with a 76 percent voter turnout for the May primary.

The race for the Minidoka County-based Fifth District Court judgeship between incumbent Ronald Bruce and Donald Chisholm, the Rupert city attorney, should contribute to a high voter turnout in Minidoka county, says Clerk August Bethke.

"That seems to be the hottest issue right now," let me put it that way," she says.

About 26 percent of the county's 9,500 registered voters took part in the May primary.

"There will have to be more, but it won't be anything like the presidential year," Bethke says. "I would guess somewhere around 60 percent."
