Court says counties must up taxes

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

BOISE — A day after it heard the case, the Idaho Supreme Court has handed the State Tax Commission a court order to force five Idaho counties to increase property-tax assessments in some areas.

Included in the Friday order were Twin Falls, Gooding and Blaine counties, which had been locked in a dispute over the Tax Commission's authority to mandate property-tax assessment increases.

This summer, the state agency ordered:

- Twin Falls County to impose a 15 percent increase in the value of improved urban residential property.
- Blaine County to increase by 27 percent the value of improved residential land.
- Gooding County to institute a 19 percent increase on residential improvements and a 7 percent increase on residential land located within Gooding County cities; a 14 percent increase in the value of improvements in rural residential tracts and other rural residential properties; and a 15 percent increase in the value of property located within rural subdivisions.

Since the One Percent Initiative limits the amount that a county can tax, the ruling probably will not result in an overall tax increase. Instead, it will cause a tax shift, with taxpayers affected by the order paying a larger share of their county's total property-tax assessment.

Four of the high court's five justices joined in the 19-page ruling, which said the Tax Commission clearly "is constitutionally and statutorily empowered and authorized to equalize the assessments of property among the various counties of the state of Idaho."

Justice Stephen Bistline did not join in the ruling. No reason for Bistline's exclusion was given in the document.

The mandate also applies to Caribou and Canyon counties, which also had refused to implement the Tax Commission's assessment orders. Those two counties, along with Blaine and Gooding counties, have sued the Tax Commission in the district courts and had obtained restraining orders against the state agency.

Thursday, lawyers for the counties argued that the high court should deny the Tax Commission's request for a court order in order to allow them to continue their cases in district court. Taxpayers would be denied their right to due process if the Supreme Court issued a mandate, the lawyers said.

But the Supreme Court agreed with the arguments of the Tax Commission's lawyers that the agency's decisions are not subject to court review unless fraud can be shown.

The counties made "no allegation that the action of the Tax Commission was fraudulent, or so arbitrary as to amount to constructive fraud," the justices wrote.

Their decision clears the way for more than 15 counties to finish preparing tax levies. The Tax Commission had refused to certify those levies for the five dissident counties. And it also refused to certify the tax levies for any county containing a taxing district that overlapped into any of the five counties.

By state law, counties must issue tax notices by late November and those taxes are due by Dec. 20. Noting the timetable, the Supreme Court justices on Thursday had promised a speedy decision.

Tax Commission officials said Friday that they would move quickly on the certification process.

"The court has issued its decision, and now

Democrats' chances are looking better

By LOYE MILLER JR.
Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — The 1982 campaigns are grinding to a finish with rising signs of Democratic gains.

Strategists and pollsters of both parties are going into the final weekend still hovering over results of continuous "tracking" polls in hundreds of House, Senate and gubernatorial races.

Although polling results are somewhat mixed, they generally have continued to be good news for Democrats, a trend that can be traced to the announcement Oct. 10 that the nation's unemployment level is the highest since the Depression.

Republican leaders initially claimed the party had weathered that sharp political blow with only a momentary worsening in the polls. But in later interviews with administration aides and other GOP strategists, the unemployment factor was mentioned repeatedly as dead weight on many Republican incumbents and challengers.

The stakes are enormous. A shift of no more than 15 House seats to the Democrats would follow historical precedent for a new Republican's first mid-term election. But even such a modest gain almost certainly would wipe out Reagan's ability to pull together enough Republicans and conservative David Durenburger already had seen his once-solid lead evaporate in Minnesota.

Vincent J. Breglio, executive director of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, claims that a frantic blitz of electronic advertising has pulled Durenburger, Fenwick and Danforth back into the lead. But Chafee remains highly vulnerable in Rhode Island, where he has always run against the tide in the heavily Democratic state.

And one or two other Republican Senate candidates, most particularly incumbent Sen. Harrison Schmidt in New Mexico and challenger Paul Trible in Virginia, could lose.

Breglio and other Republican strategists have stopped predicting that they will gain at least a seat or two over their 54-46 edge in the Senate. Instead, the emphasis is on a defensive effort to maintain the current margin.

Those charged with watching the House situation, where the Republicans now hold 192 seats out of 435, were waiting at week's end to see whether the general Democratic gains noted several days earlier in Senate races would spread to the House contests.

"It could happen, and if it does we could lose 30 to 35 House seats as pollsters like Gallup have already predicted," says one Republican field strategist. A

Analysis

"Boll Weevil" Democrats to push his programs past the majority of House Democrats still loyal to their party.

"In a lot of our races we've managed to come back from it (the unemployment announcement jolt), and we're still very competitive," says one pollster working for GOP congressional and gubernatorial candidates in more than a dozen states. "But I don't see the Republican surge that it would take to pull out the more shaky ones."

Instead, if there is to be a surge in the final hours before Tuesday's voting, it is more likely to be Democratic, hastening the trend that has become particularly evident in many of the 33 Senate campaigns.

About a week ago, several Republican incumbent senators and some non-incumbent challengers who seemed comfortably ahead suddenly became threatened.

The list included incumbent Sens. John Danforth in Missouri, John Chafee in Rhode Island and Rep. Millicent Fenwick, who is running for the open Senate seat in New Jersey. Incumbent Republican Indicators a 'patch of blue'

Economic gauge inches higher

By JEROME CAHILL
New York Daily News

WASHINGTON — A government gauge of future economic activity turned up in September on the strength of stock market gains and increases in building permits, the Commerce Department reported Friday.

President Reagan, campaigning in the West for GOP hopefuls in next Tuesday's elections, called the report "another patch of blue," suggesting that the economy is about to pull out of the recession.

But Otto Eckstein, president of Data Resources Inc. and a member of the Council of Economic Advisers under President Lyndon B. Johnson, said the economy was still "muddling sideways" and that a recovery might be delayed until consumers start spending for Christmas.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige noted that the 0.5 of a percent increase in the department's index of leading indicators was the fifth rise in the past six months and "strengthens the prospect that recovery is near."

Robert Ortner, chief economist at Commerce, added that he was "very confident" that the economy would start growing in the current quarter and would expand at a "very good" 3.5 percent to 4 percent rate in 1983.

Ortner dismissed as "extremely conservative" an internal Federal Reserve Board staff forecast suggesting only 2 percent growth in 1983. "I think that forecast is much too low," Ortner said.

How will the state face funding gap?

By GLEN WARCHOL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Jerry Evans has a hunch how the Legislature will handle the complicated problem of the $22.6 million holdback of public school funds.

"It's possible that the Legislature may throw up its hands and say, 'Leave it like it is,'" he says.

Evans, the state superintendent of schools, made that prediction to the State Board of Education at its meeting Friday at the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls.

If the Legislature doesn't tamper with state law, Evans said, the holdback situation will be taken care of automatically.

Twice this year, Gov. John Evans has ordered general-account reductions for all state programs to bring the state budget in line with anticipated revenues. The public schools' share of the holdback has reached $22.6 million, but the governor has not ordered the schools to make up their share of the shortage — yet.

If Evans is re-elected governor next Tuesday, he is expected to call a special session in December and toss the problem into the Legislature's lap. Otherwise, the problem will be taken up in the regular session in January.

Good morning!

Set your clock back tonight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Daylight-saving time ends in most of the nation Sunday, giving millions of Americans a chance to catch up this Halloween on that hour of sleep they lost last spring.

The change to standard time comes at 2 a.m. local time Sunday, when it automatically becomes 1 a.m. Most people find it easiest to set their clocks back one hour on Saturday night.

Bush's guards get scare near Boise

GARDEN CITY (UPI) — Vice President George Bush was shooed under a table then whisked from a Garden City restaurant Friday night as a "precaution" when two men approached the establishment with an unloaded shotgun, officials said.

Spokesman Joe Petro said the vice president was in no danger and the incident was apparently unrelated to his presence. The two men were being questioned by the Secret Service, he said.

Garden City Police Officer Dan Hess said the incident at the Chart House Restaurant in the Boise suburb was "not related to the vice president at all — it's more like a family disturbance."

Tom K. Larsen, a 38-year-old Denver businessman traveling through Boise, said he was eating at a nearby table when saw Secret Service agents rush to the vice president and shove him under a table.

Larsen said he then looked outside the window and saw two men, one of whom was carrying a gun and dressed in a camouflage jacket and had paint on his face.

The weapon was not pointed at the vice president, Larsen said.

"I don't think they (the men outside) could see into the restaurant to see where he (Bush) was seated," Larsen said.

He said Secret Service agents outside shooed the two men to the ground as agents inside the restaurant moved to protect the vice president. Both men were handcuffed behind their backs and led away, he said.

Chart House Manager Craig Boyer said at about 8 p.m. two men, one of whom was carrying a gun, walked outside the restaurant along the windows in the direction of the vice president's table.

"They never got close," Boyer said. "They got within 30 yards and then the agents apprehended them."

Bush was attending a private dinner with Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, and Mrs. McClure. Their table was located near the windows.

Bar caused locomotive fire

MISSION VIEJO, Calif. (UPI) — Investigators suspected Friday that vandals placed a metal bar on a railroad track that ruptured the fuel tanks of an Amtrak train, engulfing both engines and five passenger cars in flames.

Eight people aboard the San Diego-bound train suffered minor injuries Thursday, some of them while fleeing the burning train, but all 230 passengers escaped.

A spokesman for Santa Fe Railroad, owners of the track, said a 28-inch metal bar used for installing switches had been placed on the track. The device was 9 miles from where it had been used earlier for an installation, and officials speculated that vandals placed it on the track.

A hand fresh marks on it where the fuel tank started leaking," Gene Flohrschultz said. "We have to assume that's what it was."

Government halts Bendix sale

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department Friday temporarily blocked Allied Corp.'s plans to acquire Bendix Corp. and a 39 percent stake in the Martin Marietta Corp. until it could further review antitrust aspects of the proposed transactions.

The Justice Department asked all three companies to supply additional information for the antitrust review, which effectively prevents Allied from proceeding with either of the transactions until at least 20 days after the date the Justice Department receives "satisfactory responses."

In Morris Township, N.J., a spokesman for Allied said the company "had expected such a request in view of the complexity of the transaction which involves three very large companies."

10 groups want land hearings

BOISE (UPI) — Nine organizations of environmentalists and outdoors enthusiasts have joined the Idaho Conservation League in asking Sen. James McClure to schedule a congressional hearing on the Reagan administration's land-inventory program.

The league recently asked McClure, R-Idaho, chairman of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, to hold such a hearing in Idaho to "open the land-sale program to public view and involvement" and get those officials who are running the program to venture to the West.

League officials said Friday the groups that since have joined in the hearing request are: the Idaho Wildlife Federation; Ada County Fish and Game League; Southeast Idaho Rod and Gun Club; Save our Public Lands Inc.; Rocky Mountain Council of the Federation of Fly Fishermen; Idaho Environmental Council; Committee for Idaho's High Desert; Sierra Club; and the Portneuf Chapter of the National Audubon Society.

Doctor thinks Mulcahy killed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The last doctor known to treat former CIA analyst Kevin Mulcahy, who was a key witness against renegade agent Edwin Wilson; says he does not believe Mulcahy died of natural causes. It was reported Friday.

"He had no jaundice, he had no seizures, he had no delirium tremors, he had no pancreatitis, no gastrointestinal bleeding — nothing that would indicate any chronic problem with alcohol," Dr. Alben Goldstein told NBC News.

Goldstein said he had treated Mulcahy for alcoholism at the end of September.

Mulcahy's body was found Tuesday wedged between the screen and front door of a cottage in Edinburg, Va., 90 miles west of Washington, where he had been staying since Oct. 20. There were a dozen empty bottles of wine inside.

A communications expert who left the CIA in 1968, Mulcahy provided information that triggered the government investigation of Edwin Wilson and Frank Terpil, two ex-CIA officers accused of illegally shipping explosives to Libya and conspiring to commit murder.

we need to get along with doing the job we need to do," said Paul Adams, the Tax Commission's property-tax bureau director. "We hope it doesn't require any great amount of time. We'll move as quickly as we can to do our part, and we hope the counties will do the same."

Twin Falls County commission Chairman Ann Cover said Friday that she was disappointed with the decision.

"They more or less said the counties, as Boards of Equalization, aren't worth anything," she said. "This leaves the taxpayer no recourse to object."

But she indicated the county will not pursue further court battles.

"With our time limit, we don't have time to wait for another court case," she said.

Cover said she was confident the county will meet the deadline by virtue of its computer.

Assessor Dorothy Hamby "will start indexing, and they will go ahead," Cover said. "With that computer, they will be able to get the tax notices out."

The dispute over 1982 property-tax assessments, which began in early May, appears over. But Cover predicts that the Supreme Court decision may galvanize county officials across the state in their efforts to have the Legislature reduce the Tax Commission's authority.

"I think this is the way we will definitely have to approach it," Cover said. "It is the Legislature that gave the state Tax Commission all the powers that they have."

Schools

Idaho law provides a "safety valve" that automatically would make up for a shortage in funds to public schools.

world trigger an increase in property-tax levies to make up the $22.6 million holdback, Jerry Evans said.

The mechanics of property taxes, however, would make the tax money a year late in arriving — in December 1983 and 1984 — Evans said. But the schools could meet their immediate contractual obligations by borrowing money through tax-anticipation notes, he said.

Evans said that there are other options available to the Legislature to solve the holdback problem, including raising taxes or reducing the appropriation to public schools.

The option of raising taxes should be reserved to meet the problems of the 1984 fiscal-year public school budget, Evans said, rather than filling gaps in the current budget.

On the other hand, reducing the appropriation would only remove the holdback on paper, he said. The districts still would have to meet their fiscal responsibilities. Evans said this option would put the schools in an "impossible" situation.

"The school systems will have to decide what law they will violate," he said, explaining that schools must uphold contractual agreements, but they also are prohibited from having a deficit.

While the holdbacks in the current budget continue to grow, the board on Friday approved its 1984 budget request for public schools. The $371.5 million budget request would be an increase of 10.4 percent over the 1983 appropriation.

Speaking in favor of increased support for public education were representatives of the state Parent-Teacher Association, the Idaho Education Association, the Idaho Association of School Administrators and Idaho School Boards Association.

Rick Van Hemert, the executive director for IASA, told the board that studies that show Idaho ranked 47th in the nation in per-pupil expenditures and as having teacher salaries that are approximately 20 percent behind bordering states was not attractive to new industries considering Idaho as a location.

"It is time to turn around that statistic and the negative image it conveys to prospective new business," he said.

Don Rolfe, the executive director of the IEA, presented the board with a tax study recently done for the teachers association.

"In my judgment, it is no longer a question of should there be a tax increase," Rolfe said. "It's a matter of when, what manner and how much."

Elections

loss of 30 seats probably would leave President Reagan crippled for the remaining two years of his term.

A number of political pros in both parties remain puzzled by the continuing contradiction between national polling samples and those taken at the congressional district level.

The Gallup Poll, and internal polls taken for the White House and the Republican National Committee by pollsters Richard Wirthlin and Robert Teeter, continue to show that 55 percent to 60 percent of the voters say they will vote Democratic in congressional elections.

"I don't think the Republicans are in too bad a shape right now, but this election isn't over yet," says Republican pollster Robert Teeter.

Peruvians hit U.S. facility

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — Six gunmen attacked the U.S. ambassador's residence in Lima Friday but fled when police guards opened fire on them, radio reports said.

Ambassador Frank Ortiz was not in the building during the midday attack and no injuries were reported. U.S. Embassy spokesmen made no official comment.

Diplomatic sources earlier said President Fernando Belaunde Terry cancelled a planned official trip to Washington after U.S. government trade policies were judged harmful to Peru.

The Peruvian press also said President Reagan's decision to visit Colombia, Brazil and Costa Rica, but not Peru, was an insult to the Lima government.

The radio reports said four men in a small car and two on motorcycles sped up behind the U.S. ambassador's residence, a "large pink" building in downtown Lima, and began firing revolvers.

Tampering cases mushroom

By DONALD E. MULLIN
United Press International

The Halloween jitters hit parents and police Friday as fresh reports of sabotaged trick or treat goodies mushroomed around the country.

Suspected tampering of candy and fruit has turned up in New York, New Jersey, New Hampshire, Ohio, Iowa, Texas and Florida.

No serious injuries were reported, but many authorities begged parents to keep their youngsters off the streets Sunday.

"We recommend they attend some kind of party," said Phoenix, Ariz., police Sgt. Brad Thiss. "We're concerned this Halloween, with all the poisonings and all the nuts trying to see if they can outdo the next guy."

Besides caustic material under investigation, most of the candy and fruit turned in to authorities contained pins, needles, razor blades and nails. Police stripped store shelves of goods but found few clues.

Suspensions were growing that some of those turning in sabotaged goods might have done it themselves for publicity, but police could not afford to take chances.

In Tilton, N.H., a 26-year-old woman was treated and released after swallowing a Demerol tablet that had been baked into a fudge brownie she bought.

Demerol is a powerful and addictive prescription pain reliever. The Food and Drug Administration ordered all fudge brownies under the "Peggy Lawton" label off the shelves in the state.

Authorities said Demerol could cause dizziness and nausea if taken in large quantities.

In suburban Westchester County north of New York City, the Board of Legislators offered a $5,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person who stuck needles into a package of candy sold in a Yonkers store.

A 12-year-old Indianapolis boy found a thin, half-inch finishing nail in a banana that he peeled for his sister. "People are just sick," said their mother, Mary Logwood, 32. "You're scared to give your kids anything."

To add another macabre element to what normally is a fun-and-mischief holiday, the Supreme Court Friday refused to give Texas officials the go-ahead for the Halloween execution of Ronald Clark O'Bryan, 38, by poisonous injection.

O'Bryan, of Deer Park, Texas, was convicted of killing his 8-year-old son with poison-spiked trick-or-treat candy in 1964 in an insurance scheme. Other Death Row inmates have nicknamed him "the Candy Man."

As the ghoulish business snowballed, many communities banned trick or treating and others planned parties and contests to keep the kids off the streets.

"I think what they're doing is killing the holiday," said Atmore, Ala., Police Chief Bill Smith, where a 69-year-old woman suffered burns to her mouth, throat and stomach after eating a candy bar.

"I know I've got two little girls who ain't going trick-or-treating this year," he said. "My 2-year-old doesn't mind, but my 8-year-old is ready to trade me in on a new daddy."

DeLorean indicted, released

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — John DeLorean was indicted Friday by a federal grand jury on charges he financed a $24 million cocaine deal, and — hours later — the flamboyant automaker was freed on $10 million bail after 11 days in prison.

DeLorean's attorneys posted $250,000 and turned over the deeds to a 48-acre estate north of San Diego and a Fifth Avenue apartment in New York. Assistant U.S. Attorney James Walsh said DeLorean also promised to turn over the deed to several hundred acres of farmland in New Jersey by next Friday.

DeLorean, who was scheduled for arraignment Nov. 8, did not speak with reporters as he left prison. Dressed in a suit, he was driven away with his wife, model Christine Ferraro, and his mother-in-law in a black Jaguar.

Mrs. DeLorean told reporters at the courthouse earlier that she was uncertain about their plans. "I just want to get him home," she said.

The indictment indicated that DeLorean, a former General Motors vice president, may have given away his Northern Ireland-based auto company to an undercover federal agent who posed as a drug dealer. Prosecutors refused to elaborate.

DeLorean, who allegedly agreed to finance a $24 million cocaine deal in a futile attempt to save the collapsing sports car company, spent 11 days at Terminal Island federal prison.

Criminal attorney Joseph Ball said he did not know what DeLorean would do when he is freed on bail or where he would live.

Asked if the increased bail presented special problems, Ball said, "Ten million dollars or $100 million, I don't give a damn as long as it gets him out. He's not going to run, he's going to be here and get all the property back."

Attorney Bernard Minsky said

DeLorean, who was described by a fellow inmate as "relaxed," had been reading the Bible while in prison and attending religion classes.

Walsh said the terms of the bail were expanded to permit DeLorean to travel to New Jersey. It was previously stipulated he could travel only throughout Southern California and New York City.

The indictment charged that DeLorean on Sept. 29 sent stock certificates representing 100 percent of the stock of DeLorean Motor Company, Inc., to an undercover agent using the name James Benedict in San Carlos, Calif.

Landers gets mass murder letter

WHEELING, W.Va. (UPI) — School principals Friday were asked to keep close watch on their teachers after columnist Ann Landers received a letter from a man identifying himself as a Wheeling teacher who threatened to "commit" the worst mass murder in the history of this country.

"It is the principal's responsibility at all times to observe all teachers. This is an effort in our schools at all times," Frank Dumas, assistant school superintendent in Ohio County, said.

Dumas said the principals were instructed to talk with teachers in their schools about the letter, which was written to Ms. Landers several months ago and is scheduled for publication Sunday.

The anonymous writer — who signed the letter "Wheeling, W.Va." and did not include a return address — said he was an elementary school teacher who hated his job. However, he said he had to teach because the economy in the Wheeling area is so bad there are no other jobs available.

"I've have to go back to teaching next term, I will end up committing the worst mass murder in the history of this country," he wrote. "I am going to kill the principal, two teachers and as many kids as I can lay my hands on. Then I will kill myself before the police get me."

Wheeling police said they were not conducting an investigation.

Police Chief Edward Weith said he was concerned by the letter, but somewhat relieved because school has been in session two months and there had been no incidents.

Poland threatens U.S. retaliation

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — In retaliation for Reagan administration sanctions against his martial law regime, Polish military chief Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski vowed "in a speech released Friday to restrict U.S. presence in Polish soil."

The central committee meeting, the first since the banning of the Solidarity trade federation Oct. 8, was characterized by stormy debate over Poland's economic ills.

"Poland will not allow itself to be closed in a reservation like the (American) Indians," Jaruzelski told delegates. "It will always be open to the world."

"However, in the existing situation, we shall limit the American presence on Polish territory," he said in the speech Thursday night. "These will be our (own) restrictions." A text of the address was released Friday.

Jaruzelski did not specify how he would restrict the American presence on Polish soil and it was not immediately known whether he intended to break or downgrade diplomatic ties already at a low point.

Battles erupt in Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Heavy fighting erupted Friday on the northeastern front of a major guerrilla offensive as rebels claimed to have killed or wounded more than 4,250 government troops in the past 14 months.

Military sources said the heaviest fighting was around the Chalatenango province town of La Laguna, 36 miles northeast of San Salvador. Rebels waging an 8-hour battle killed eight security force members, captured six others and wounded two more.

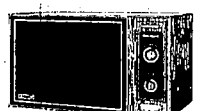

Security forces killed three guerrillas Thursday in the fighting around La Laguna, located about 10 miles west of other rebel-held villages in Chalatenango province. The province is one of the fronts of the guerrillas' "October offensive."

Rebels claim to be holding 20 towns and villages in Chalatenango, the northeastern province of Morazan and the eastern province of San Miguel.

Reagan ends Western campaign trip

By NORMAN D. SANDLER
UPI Political Writer

ROSOWELL, N. Mex. — President Reagan, pointing to some good economic news from Washington, closed out his final barnstorming trip of the 1982 campaign Friday by promising Western voters "a future of hope" if they stick with his policies.

Reagan made his final personal appearance at an airport rally for Sen. Harrison Schmitt, capping a two-day swing that took him to five Western states to aid Republican Senate candidates whose races appear close.

Republican concern about late shifts in voter sentiment gave Reagan's trip a heightened sense of political urgency, but the president's attitude on the campaign trail hardly reflected this.

Out to counter the "doom and gloom" of his Democratic critics, Reagan pointed to a 0.5 percent rise in the government's leading economic indicators in September as evidence of "another patch of blue," on a once, cloudy economic horizon.

Reagan speaking at Salt Lake City

His message was a variation on his campaign plea to voters to "stay the course."

"This is the fifth increase in the last six months," Reagan told an enthusiastic crowd of about 8,000 at a rally in Salt Lake City earlier in the day for conservative Sen. Orrin Hatch.

"Pretty soon, even the die-hard doom peddlers will have to admit it — America is on her way back and we will lead the way out of this worldwide recession."

"Make no mistake," Reagan told the New Mexico rally for Schmitt. "America's future is a future of hope and it grows brighter each day as more people respond to the drop in inflation, tax rates and interest rates."

"We have worked for a better alternative — an alternative that offers hope for the future and already is making real progress," he said. "We're on a new road now — a road that is leading America to better times."

Roswell, a city of 44,100, was considered friendly territory. It had an unemployment rate of 7.6 percent in September, well below the overall rate for New Mexico, which mirrored the national average at 10.1 percent.

Aboard Air Force One en route to New Mexico, a presidential aide told reporters he thought Reagan had been successful in neutralizing the Social Security issue raised by the Democrats.

Campaigning Thursday, Reagan said Democratic charges that he intends to cut Social Security benefits or weaken the system if he wins enough support in Congress, are "a falsehood" and "one of the most dishonest canards."

Democrats pump dollars to key races

By CLAY F. RICHARDS
UPI Political Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Democratic Party is pumping the last of its limited resources into carefully chosen House and Senate races in the closing days of the campaign to try to pick up some key seats.

While not voicing hope for a Democratic landslide, Democratic National Chairman Charles Manatt has found targets where he thinks the momentum is moving away from the Republicans.

The Democratic National Committee headquarters is almost deserted as staff members who normally man desks in the campaign trail in Virginia, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and Illinois.

Democrats are investing in heavy radio advertising campaigns in key districts in what they believe is the best use of their remaining resources. A party official said $375,000 is being pumped into the selected races.

"That may not be much money, but for us that is unheard of," the official said.

Among the key House races getting special attention from Democrats is the drive by Jim McNulty to defeat Republican James Kolbe in Arizona and Pat Bosch's uphill struggle against Bob Stump, a Democratic congressman running as a Republican this year.

The national committee sent a vanload of Democratic volunteers to Illinois to help young labor lawyer Doug Stephens, who is giving House GOP leader Bob Michel the race of his political life this year.

Former Secretary of State Edmund Muskie will go on national television Sunday night and Monday to present the Democrats' final campaign message.

The message warns that Republicans will cut Social Security benefits if they keep a working majority in the House and control of the Senate.

The national committee has sent an eleventh-hour memo to all its candidates offering fresh ideas to be used in final campaign speeches. If the candidates listen to the political professionals in Washington, the message will be the same in House districts throughout the nation this weekend.

"As voters go to the polls on Tuesday they should keep in mind what I call the 'November surprise,'" says the made-in-Washington speech. "The 'November surprise' is what we will all wake up to on Nov. 3 and beyond if Ronald Reagan is given a majority in the Senate and a working majority in the House."

"Despite intense efforts by the administration to maintain secrecy about their post-election plans, their real intentions concerning several key policy areas have already leaked out," the speech contends.

Then it goes on to say Reagan wants

Court backs execution stay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Friday refused to give Texas officials the go-ahead to execute "Candy Man" killer Ronald Clark O'Bryan on Halloween, the eighth anniversary of his son's poisoning death.

The justices voted 8-1 to leave in place a lower court order postponing O'Bryan's execution date so he can continue to appeal his sentence.

The court's one-paragraph order said Justice William Rehnquist voted to set aside the postponement and allow the execution.

O'Bryan had been scheduled to die by injection at 12:01 a.m. Sunday, exactly eight years after he gave cyanide-laced Halloween candy to his 8-year-old son. He would have been the first person in the United States to be executed by injection.

But the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans this week postponed O'Bryan's death sentence. Texas officials objected, and turned to the Supreme Court for permission to carry out the sentence as scheduled.

Bush in Idaho, denies land sale charge

By ANN D. KIRKWOOD
United Press International

BOISE — Democrats who contend the Reagan administration intends to sell substantial amounts of public range and timberland in Idaho are "practicing the politics of fear," Vice President George Bush said Friday.

Bush told reporters at a Boise news conference (UPI) — "Comments about the possibility of massive land sales made earlier in the day by former Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus 'just aren't true.'" sional delegation and GOP gubernatorial candidate Lt. Gov. Phil Batt, made a swing to Idaho Falls earlier in the day and then to Boise to encourage Idahoans to cast their votes for the Republicans.

The vice president, flanked by Idaho's congress-

Andrus, flanked by Democratic candidates at the Statehouse in Boise, said he had talked to former colleagues at the Interior Department — and they confirmed the agency is putting together paperwork to sell "substantial amounts" of public land. But he said department workers "have been muzzled until after the election."

But in both Idaho Falls and Boise, Bush attacked

Andrus' claims, saying the former Idaho governor was "trying to scare the people into believing the president of the United States is going to be selling off the public lands in this state... That's a lot of baloney."

"He is absolutely wrong," Bush told the Boise news conference. "He is practicing the politics of fear and he really ought to be ashamed of himself."

Bush also told reporters he believed balloting on Tuesday would surprise many political analysts who have been pessimistic about the GOP's chances of maintaining seats in Congress — or gaining.

Andrus says GOP fear brought Bush

BOISE (UPI) — Fear of election defeat among the state's Republican candidates was the reason for Vice President George Bush's visit to Idaho, former Democratic governor Cecil Andrus said Friday.

"They are scared," Andrus said. "They are frightened that Democratic candidates will in fact be elected."

Andrus, former Interior Secretary, appeared at a morning news conference with five Democratic candidates to remind voters to express their disapproval of Reagan by going to the polls on Tuesday.

He said he welcomed this week's appearances of Bush and President Reagan in several western states, but he said the visits do not reflect well on the Republican candidates they have come to support.

"They are calling him (Bush) in because they're afraid to lose," said Andrus, referring to Bush's campaign stops in Idaho Falls and Boise to stump for GOP candidates.

He criticized Republican economic policies, and referred to criticism Bush voiced of Reaganomics while running against the president in the primary.

"Waiting for Reaganomics to work is like leaving the runway lights on for Amelia Earhart," he said. "I wonder what he thinks of 'voodoo economics' today. It certainly has put a lot of Idahoans out of work."

Andrus gave credence to some of the Democratic candidates who have based their campaign on the Administration's controversial plans to sell $17 billion worth of public land to help reduce federal deficits.

The former cabinet member said he visited with Interior employees this week, who confirmed the agency is putting together paperwork to sell "substantial amounts" of public land and to make available for sale two-thirds of its property.

But he said department workers "have been muzzled until after the election."

Andrus said Idaho's best protection against such an action was to vote for Democrats' Richard Stallings in the Second District and Larry LaRocca in the First District, both critics of the land sale program.

"We all must recognize (the Administration) can't make massive sales without congressional approval," he said. "That's why we must have from your state those that oppose 'land sales."

Oregon judge invalidates WPPSS agreements

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — Lane County Circuit Judge George Woodrich ruled Friday that Oregon public utilities' contracts with the Washington Public Power Supply System for two abandoned nuclear plants are invalid. WPPSS officials vowed an immediate appeal.

The contracts, signed by 11 Oregon utilities to share in the costs of WPPSS nuclear plants 4 and 5, were an "improper" delegation of the utilities' rate-making function, Woodrich said in final rulings on a lawsuit filed by Springfield ratepayers against WPPSS and the Springfield Utility Board.

"By entering the participants' agreement, the Oregon peoples' utility districts and municipal participants became shareholder-investors in Washington Public Power Supply System in violation of Article II, Section 9 of the Oregon Constitution," the judge said in his two-page ruling.

"The participants received a share of an expectancy of electric energy in return for an open-ended obligation without adequate individual or collective control," Woodrich added.

"The risk of unlimited contingent liability with a public entity such as (WPPSS) is as great as it would be with a private entity and expose the participants to the type of hazard for which the Constitution was meant to protect," the judge ruled.

WPPSS officials were not surprised by the ruling, since Woodrich ruled in pre-trial judgments that the contracts with Oregon utilities were invalid.

"We expected it, and even now an appeal is being prepared," WPPSS Managing Director Bob Ferguson said.

After a 15-minute conference call to inform the 16 lawyers representing various parties in the complex case of his decision, Woodrich told reporters his ruling was based on a broad interpretation of that section of the constitution.

The section prohibits public entities from becoming stockholders in private projects, but Woodrich said that, in his view, "The general evil the Constitution was trying to protect the public from applies in this case."

However, the judge noted that the Oregon Supreme Court could interpret the same section in a more strict sense and reverse his decision.

94-year-old woman is candidate

HOUSTON (UPI) — Alleen Grimes waited until her great, great, great grandchildren grew up before deciding to run for public office for the first time.

Mrs. Grimes, 94, is the Libertarian Party candidate for a seat in the Texas House of Representatives.

"I have a good chance of winning next week even if those Republicans and Democrats are running," said Mrs. Grimes, ignoring poll results indicating she would be lucky to run third in a three-candidate race.

"This is the first time I'm running for office because it is the first time I've wanted to run," she said, recalling the first time she voted it was for Herbert Hoover in 1928.

The tiny, grey-haired politician, who walks with a cane following a recent back injury, spends her days at a senior citizens center rather than campaigning.

She is letting her friends and party workers — who mainly are interested in getting their issues aired — campaign for her.

"They are taking care of all that for me," she said during an interview at the West End Community Center.

"But if I get elected, I'll hire a secretary to do all the writing for me."

Mrs. Grimes, a widow for the past 11 years whose only source of income is Social Security, was nominated for the inner city state representative seat for District 137 in Houston, where she has lived since 1945.

Running against her are Democrat incumbent Debra Danburg and Republican Wilmont McCutchen.

The spy Mrs. Grimes said her qualifications for campaign duty include long experience, including work with her husband running a grocery store. She also said she loves history, arts and common sense.

Mrs. Grimes is also an artist and even a political songwriter. She says she once offered to campaign duty for unsuccessful GOP presidential candidate Thomas E. Dewey in 1948.

O'Neill charges considered

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (UPI) — A grand jury will determine whether any charges should be lodged against actress Jennifer O'Neill for her husband for possession of a .38 caliber revolver with which she was accidentally shot last week, authorities said Friday.

Assistant District Attorney William McKenna said the decision was made to take the case to the grand jury to let them assemble the facts and decide whether any crime was committed.

Miss O'Neill told police she accidentally shot herself in the stomach about 6 p.m. Oct. 22 as she checked the weapon to see if it was loaded. She said she was alone at the time.

McKenna said unlawful possession of a weapon was the only charge the grand jury would consider. Police have been unable to determine who owned the gun. McKenna said it did not turn up in state computer files of registered weapons.

The 33-year-old star of such films as the "Summer of '42" was in good condition at Northern Westchester Hospital. A spokesman said no decision had been made on when she would go home.

Police ruled the shooting an accident based on Miss O'Neill's account and statements by others at the 11-acre estate in Bedford Hills, where Miss O'Neill lives with her husband, John Lederer, their two-year-old son and a nanny.

Dozer driver returns cash

NEWBERRY, Mich. (UPI) — Vernard "Ole" Olsen's bosses describe him as a "hero" for turning $90,000 he found while bulldozing the foundation of an old house.

Olsen, 50, a Department of Natural Resources equipment operator, found the $90,000 in cash while working in the Tahquamenon Area State Park Oct. 21. He turned it into his superiors, the DNR reported Friday.

DNR crews spent the following weekend collecting the money from under a concrete slab near Tahquamenon Falls, a remote area north of Newberry in the eastern Upper Peninsula.

The DNR praised Olsen as a "hero."

Bill Cornish of the DNR park staff said the money was found in the basement of an old house the state bought in 1977 for $32,500. The house, built in the 1930s, was torn down "some time ago," he said.

A Newberry radio station said the money was stashed in glass jars, but the DNR refused to confirm that report, saying it didn't want to give out any details that might produce false claims of ownership.

The money has been placed in the state treasury and officials are attempting to determine who it belongs to.

Spain entering critical political period

By BARRY JAMES
UPI Senior Editor

MADRID, Spain — November is likely to be a critical month for the Socialist Party of Prime Minister-elect Felipe Gonzalez, which won an overwhelming mandate in the third general election since the death of dictator Francisco Franco seven years ago.

As the socialists form their government and await the parliamentary approval needed for them to take office, the country will be for several weeks in the weak hands of the defeated government led by Prime Minister Leopoldo Calvo Sotelo.

He failed to gain personal reelection in a rout of the ruling center coalition that virtually eliminated it as a serious parliamentary force.

"November will be crucial in our history," said Jose Luis Cebrían, editor of the liberal newspaper El País; in an editorial earlier this week warning that ultra-rightists might try to stage a spectacular coup during the caretaker period in order to thwart the socialist takeover.

Cebrían also warned of the danger of a massive capital flight that would destabilize a socialist administration from the start and eventually influence a shift to the hard right represented by Manuel Fraga, leader of the Popular Alliance party that placed second in the polls with 155 seats to the socialists' 201 in the 350-seat parliament.

Many political observers say this polarization, reminiscent of the conservative-liberal gulf that preceded the 1936-39 Spanish Civil War, could eventually weaken democracy in Spain. For the present, however, Gonzalez's landslide majority gave him ample room for maneuver.

Gonzalez's victory marked the most dramatic break yet with the past of dictator Francisco Franco, who died seven years ago and for whom Fraga served as information minister.

It brings into office new faces as well as people who were illegal outsiders under Franco's 36-year rule. The transition from dictatorship to democracy finally has slipped from the grasp of the Francoists. The implications for Spain are revolutionary.

Clearly, many Francoists will do everything in their power to win back their lost influence.

King Juan Carlos, who rose in national esteem when he put down an attempted army coup in February last year, has a pivotal role to play in reconciling the old and the new Spain. One positive factor is that the king is reported to like and admire the youthful Gonzalez, who at the age of 40 becomes Europe's youngest head of government.

Gonzalez has carefully avoided making statements that might exacerbate tensions between Spaniards. He publicly dismisses the possibility of a successful coup.

Italian terrorist captured

MILAN, Italy (UPI) — Police arrested Italy's most wanted woman terrorist and 13 other suspects during the third major crackdown in as many weeks on left-wing terrorist hangouts, the state-run television said Friday.

Susanna Ronconi, 28, one of Italy's most notorious leftist terrorists, was captured Thursday in a Milan restaurant with four or five friends, all suspected terrorists, the broadcast said.

Miss Ronconi had a pistol in her handbag but had no chance to use it, the broadcast said.

"It was one of the biggest blows against armed terrorists in recent years," a police officer said.

Miss Ronconi was a member of the Red Brigades strategic planning executive from 1975 to 1978, but switched to the Front Line organization, a outfit closely aligned with the Red Brigades.

Israel-Lebanon talks may begin soon

By BROOKE W. KROEGER
United Press International

U.S. envoy Morris Draper met Friday with Prime Minister Menachem Begin and said Israeli and Lebanese officials might soon hold their first face-to-face negotiations to rid Lebanon of foreign armies.

In Beirut, 100 U.S. Marines evacuated the city aboard helicopters and ships in the first phase of a planned rotation to replace the 1,800-man American peace-keeping force with fresh troops.

As night fell in the Lebanese capital, hundreds of Palestinians streamed out of the Sabra and Chatila refugee camps in a panicked rush.

The Lebanese army issued a statement denying the reports and said they were caused by the movement of army troops around the camps. Reporters who went to Sabra and Chatila, the scene of the Sept. 16-18 massacre of as many as 1,700 Palestinians by Christian Phalangist militiamen, reported no signs of a new slaughter.

Soldiers used loudspeakers to urge the Palestinians to return to their homes, and Lebanese military sources said two men were arrested on charges of spreading rumors that right-wing militiamen had entered the camps.

The 1,200 Marines deployed at Beirut airport and the 600 held in reserve aboard Sixth Fleet ships will be replaced by a similar number from the 24th Marine Amphibious Unit.

The rotation will be completed Saturday, ending a month-long tour of duty for the Marines who arrived in Beirut as part of a 3,500-member international peace-keeping force.

The Marines have been in Beirut since Sept. 23, serving alongside French and Italian peace-keeping troops.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli military officials reported a new attack on Israeli troops in Lebanon. The military command said a terrorist tossed a hand grenade from a speeding car at an Israeli army checkpoint near the village of Sil south of Beirut, but no one was hurt.

The incident came a day after an Israeli soldier was killed by gunfire south of the town of Aley along the Beirut-Damascus highway.

Soldier says nuns nabbed under orders

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — A soldier who witnessed the kidnapping of three slain U.S. nuns and an American lay worker testified the officer in charge said the abduction was ordered by "superiors," court records obtained Friday said.

It was the first official indication that five Salvadoran national guardsmen were following orders in abducting the four American churchwomen — whose bullet-riddled bodies later were found in a shallow grave.

Salvadoran and U.S. authorities contend the five soldiers were acting on their own and that no top military official was involved in the Dec. 1980 kidnap-killings.

Court documents in the case of five men accused of killing Maryknoll nuns Maura Elizabeth Clarke and Ita Catherine Ford, along with Ursuline nun Dorothy Kazel and Jean Donovan, a Catholic social worker, were obtained by UPI.

Belk plea-bargain deal draws flak

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

JEROME — The state attorney-general's office and the Jerome County prosecutor are unhappy with the explanations that have been given of the plea-bargain agreement between Special Prosecutor Harry DeHaan and Blenda Belk, the former Jerome County clerk.

"I think Harry folded with four aces," says Bill Dalling, the Jerome prosecutor. "I was Dalling who originally asked a Fifth District Court judge to appoint a special prosecutor in the case."

And Russell Renuau, the chief criminal investigator for the attorney-general's office, said Friday that he resents any implication that there were mistakes by his office in investigating the case.

Belk resigned last week under terms of the plea-bargain agreement, but she was allowed to seek re-election.

DeHaan, in dismissing five bribery counts against the former clerk, said some of the evidence obtained by a state investigator, Neil Custer, might have been thrown out of court if the case had proceeded to trial because Custer did not read Belk her rights when he interviewed her in April.

Belk has admitted turning over to Custer five gifts worth about $450, including a rocking chair, a camera and a toaster oven. Those gifts were received in exchange for purchasing supplies from American Data Products Co., a California office-supply firm.

DeHaan says the case was further complicated by the fact that Belk, at one point, left the interview with Custer to consult Dalling, who also serves as legal adviser to county officials.

Dalling, however, says that he has no misgivings about the conduct in the case. He says that he would have welcomed the opportunity to "clear the air" on the issue by proceeding with a hearing to decide questions of admissibility.

The Jerome prosecutor also is disputing several statements Belk has made in her campaign for re-election.

In letters written to The Times-News and the North Side News, Belk has implied that the charges against her were inspired politically, Dalling contends. He notes that he is not seeking re-election, that Prosecutor DeHaan is unopposed in Twin Falls County and that the charges were developed initially by the attorney-general's office.

Belk has said that the prices charged by American Data Products were competitive with local firms when she began making purchases from the company. In 1979, overcharges began occurring only within the past year, she said on a radio talk show Thursday.

However, price comparisons done by the attorney-general's office show that to be incorrect, Dalling says.

On the same talk show, Belk said that American Data also has sold products to three other county departments, although those officers were not prosecuted.

Dalling says the purchases by other departments totaled $301.92, while Belk's purchases totaled more than $9,000.

"How much of a gift do you think you could get for a $39 purchase?" he asks, referring to a supply order placed by the Jerome County sheriff's office in 1978.

According to the attorney general's report to local prosecutors, Belk made 10 purchases from American Data Products, beginning in 1979. Straight price comparisons with three firms in Twin Falls showed overcharges on all but one of the orders, and postage and handling charges made even that one more expensive.

In May 1979, an order from the company included three dozen medium-ink pens at 39 cents each. A comparable pen could have been obtained locally for 15 cents each.

During that three-year period, the report said, overcharges on orders placed by Belk amounted to $4,688 — nearly half of the total.

Salary battle with Minidoka teachers ends

Board OKs 4% overall pay hike

By GLEN WARCHOL
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Minidoka County teachers have reached a tentative contract settlement with that school board that will give them a 4 percent overall pay increase.

The contract agreement came following a "fact-finder's" report which recommended that the teachers be given a "modest" 3.8 percent pay increase. The fact-finder, however, rejected the teachers' proposal that the board drastically increase their fringe benefits.

The 4 percent increase will provide a base salary of $12,340. The increase will be retroactive to the beginning of the school year.

"It's not going to land us in the lap of luxury," Anne Hayes, a teacher spokesman, said Friday. "But I think it will be ratified. They have shown us they are willing to listen."

Superintendent Gene Snapp said that the board rejected the fact-finder's report at its meeting Monday on the grounds that the suggested pay increase was based on this fall's enrollment figures, which were not available until after the May 1 cutoff date for negotiations.

However, the board offered the teachers a 4 percent increase on Monday anyway, contingent on adequate state funding, he said.

But the teachers rejected the state-funding stipulation, Hayes said.

By noon Friday, an agreement had been negotiated that does not include a contingency.

When negotiations began, the Minidoka teachers rejected the board's offer of a 5 percent across-the-board salary increase, which would have been contingent on voter approval of an override levy.

The teachers, who originally wanted a 13 percent increase — including salary and fringe benefits — rejected the override stipulation outright, saying that teachers' pay should be budgeted without resorting to overrides.

A $400,000 override that included $250,000 for teachers' pay raises was attempted by the board in July anyway. It failed.

Hayes says that negotiations in the district should go more smoothly in the future. Under the new agreement, salary and fringe benefits will be negotiated every year. But other parts of the contract, including leave and grievance procedures, will be handled every other year, beginning in 1984.

The teachers will vote on the agreement after school on Wednesday. The school board is scheduled to take final action later in the week.

Salesman offers world trade services

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Ken Beebe of Twin Falls thinks he has a better idea when it comes to promoting trade between Idaho firms and foreign countries.

Foreign trade is no different than any other kind of buying and selling, he says. The first step is common sense — putting buyers and sellers together.

Beebe, the owner of Four Ways Travel Service, is an experienced world traveler and a salesman. He says he can make the initial face-to-face contacts that might lead to a sale.

Beebe was a panelist during a portion of a one-day seminar — held Friday at the College of Southern Idaho — on promoting sales of Idaho products on world markets. About 40 people attended the seminar, which was sponsored by the Idaho World Trade Association. The group was founded in Twin Falls earlier this year.

The seminar featured presentations by businesses involved in export trade, talks by state and federal officials who work with export sales, and a luncheon speech by Sen. James McClure.

Beebe, during his presentation, said most small Idaho firms think they need to hire someone to help them plan an entry into foreign markets.

"You probably have not had an individual sitting around with nothing to do," he says.

But one of Beebe's businesses is to travel to foreign countries, representing several clients who have products to sell in those markets. This divides the cost of the trip among several companies.

"I don't come into this saying I'm a marketing expert," Beebe says. "I'm a salesman, and nothing happens until a sale is made."

The fine points of foreign shipping, proper documentation and financing are important, he says. But first, a small firm in Idaho needs a way to economically tell potential customers about its products.

Other panel members went into some of those fine points of export trade. Salah Uddin, a Spokane-based export consultant, said, "If you are a small company, you cannot spend a lot of time on research and development." But some basic market research is essential to find out if a particular product is wanted in a particular foreign country.

Business travel in a foreign country can cost $600 to $800 a day. "I would not go to a country and spend $20,000 without first preparing," he said.

Mark Samson, a Boise export consultant, described the reasons he helped found R.J. Samson International six months ago.

"There are products in Idaho, both manufactured and commodities, that can move into foreign markets," he says. "We are basically an export management company. We will take on people as clients, research markets for them and serve as their documentation expert."

Companies that want to sell their goods in foreign markets should prepare by organizing their company before the first sales are made, he said.

"You need to know what kind of service you'll be able to provide," Samson said. Make plans, find the most promising markets and then the company is ready to start selling. "Don't get overextended, then move confidently into those markets."

McClure says he encourages all efforts to expand the sale of Idaho goods overseas. "Foreign trade is essential to us," he said.

He also criticized trade barriers that would block imports into this country in the name of defending domestic industry.

"We can't get mired in protectionism," McClure said.

For example, he said, U.S. farmers are the world's most efficient food producers. As long as markets remain open, they can compete successfully with producers anywhere, and that helps improve the nation's balance of payments with the world.

"Trade restrictions will stifle those markets where we can compete best," McClure said.

Family suffers limelight's heat over DeLorean ties

KIMBERLY — The arrest of John DeLorean on charges that he allegedly bankrolled a drug deal has turned the media spotlight on other persons who had financial dealings with the flamboyant automaker.

One of those persons is Clark Higley, who claims that he lost a Salmon ranch and Ruper farm through his dealings.

Higley is Friday's Times-News — with DeLorean and DeLorean's employee, Roy Nesselt.

Higley has been interviewed by Forbes, Time and New York magazines. An ABC television crew spent a day with his family at their Kimberly home, filming material that will be used either on the nightly news or the network's "20-20" news program.

Higley's story, and that of two other families caught up in a series of DeLorean capers, were detailed last December by Detroit Monthly, a Detroit-based magazine.

Higley also has been contacted by a reporter from the London Daily Mail, who was investigating DeLorean's background, after DeLorean made a deal with the British government to locate an auto plant in Northern Ireland.

While Higley says that he is glad that the other side of the DeLorean myth has come out, he and his wife, Colleen, have become weary of recalling details that awaken painful memories.

It is unlikely, he says, that he now will benefit from the publicity coming out about DeLorean's business connections.

AG candidates differ strongly on solutions to fight drugs

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Much of this year's race for the attorney-general's office has hinged on criminal-justice issues, and as the election nears, the two candidates remain split over solutions.

Perhaps the biggest difference between Republican Jim Jones's plans and those of Democrat J.D. Williams is in the area of drug enforcement.

Both agree that more effort needs to be made in this area. But Jones believes the Legislature must appropriate more money to crack down on drug pushers, while Williams says a voluntary dollar checkoff on income-tax returns could be used to fund additional enforcement.

The two men also disagree about whether the governor should be granted the power of final decision in cases of reduced prison sentences — a responsibility now vested in the Idaho

CAMPAIGN '82 State-wide races

Commission for Pardons and Parole.

Jones, a Jerome lawyer, says a "consistent funding source" is needed to operate a statewide drug enforcement program. He says the present program is underfunded and therefore does not have enough undercover agents in the field.

He criticizes Williams' proposal for a check-off-type donation on state income-tax forms as a means of creating drug-enforcement funds.

"You can't have a viable program without knowing for sure how much money you're going to get."

"Yes, my plans call for additional funds. But as attorney general, I believe I can convince the Legislature that our drug problem in Idaho warrants a higher priority than some of the other state expenditures."

Jones also has suggested cutting back on some of the administrative personnel involved in drug enforcement, and then shifting the dollars saved to more undercover agents.

But Williams says the Idaho Constitution does not permit such shifting.

"The administrative costs are specifically paid for by highway and other special funds dedicated to drug enforcement," Williams says. "Under our constitution, you can't channel dedicated funds to some other purpose. The state is financed with general fund monies."

Williams, however, is standing behind his call for the income-tax checkoff.

"Jones is missing the point, that this is new money to be added to the existing dollars in order to enhance our program by providing more (drug) buying money and equipment in undercover operations," he says.

"The Legislature has already granted high priority to our drug problem," Williams says. "The Joint Finance and Appropriations Committee agreed they needed to fund this area as much as possible, but we still remain six agents underfunded."

"Going to the Legislature for more money in this time of financial crisis is simply isn't going to work," he says.

Jones' drug-enforcement plan includes four elements:

- More undercover agents.
- Education for grade-school children about the medical and legal dangers of drugs.
- Harsher penalties for convicted drug pushers, including a requirement that at least a third of a prison sentence must be completed before parole.

- Allowing the state to impose all profits and investments of convicted drug pushers.
- Williams' plan has three key points:
 - Require judges to issue mandatory prison sentences for convicted drug pushers, rather than allowing "well-educated" and "convincing" dealers to get off on just probation."
 - The income-tax return checkoff to allow Idahoans to voluntarily support the anti-drug campaign.
 - Help train county prosecutors to handle drug cases, which usually "are well-defended, complex and involve special evidence problems."

Additionally, both men advocate changing the parole board's appointment system.

Under current law, parole board members are appointed by the Idaho Board of Corrections. Both Williams and Jones say those appointments should become the sole domain of the governor.

Williams, however, opposes Jones's plan to have the governor also become responsible for granting reduced prison sentences.

Jones believes an elected official should be accountable for reducing a convict's sentence, rather than having "the parole board have the final say when they are doubly-insulated from the public, judges and prosecutors."

But Williams insists that change would return politics into the realm of pardons and paroles.

"You need to learn from history," he says. "In the 1930s, the people passed a constitutional amendment to allow an independent parole board to replace the political one of the governor, secretary of state and the attorney general."

"Too many political problems existed in the old system. We've already gone through those testing stages, so why repeat the same mistakes?"

Jones, Williams disclose finances

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Jim Jones has outspent J.D. Williams by almost $7,000 in the attorney-general's race, according to the latest financial disclosure.

But most of that difference is due to the fact that Jones had opposition in the Republican primary. Williams, a Democrat, did not.

As of Oct. 18, Jones had spent $115,840 since Jan. 1; Williams has spent $44,389.

But since the May 25 primary, Jones's expenditures have totaled $40,738 — about $10,000 more than Williams' — according to Tony McNevin, Jones' campaign coordinator. Jones spent about $75,000 when he ran against Ada County Prosecutor Jim Harris for the GOP nomination.

Williams, who earlier in the year called for a $50,000 or $60,000 spending limitation for each candidate in the general election, still maintains that Jones is outspending him in the final two weeks of the campaign.

"Despite all his claims to the contrary, Jones is outspending me in media advertisement by three-to-one right now," Williams says.

Jones and Williams attempted to negotiate a spending ceiling this summer. But they failed to agree on how the financial information would be disclosed or how in-kind services — volunteer campaigning and group services — would be valued.

With two weeks left before the election, Jones, a Jerome lawyer, had spent $80,000 since May 10 — the reporting cutoff for primary winners prior to the May 25 primary election. For the same period, Williams, the Franklin County prosecutor, reported spending $34,853.

McNevin flatly denies Williams' charge that Jones is "buying the election" for each candidate.

Instead, he says that Jones will spend only an additional $10,000 to $15,000 in the final two weeks of the campaign — resulting in a total general-election expenditure of between $50,000 and $60,000, just like we've been saying all along.

Williams estimated Friday that his total campaign expenditure, including $15,000 during the primary period, also will be in the vicinity of $60,000.

Jones's expenditures

Most of the contributions to Jones's campaign since the primary have been from individuals. Some include: former Sen. Len B. Jordan, $300; state Sen. David Little, R-Emmett, $250; and Idaho businessman H.F. Magnuson, $200.

Jones himself, has had to pump about $25,000 into the campaign since May 10. About $12,000 of that was in the form of paying off a bank loan for expenses incurred in the primary. A separate $10,000 personal loan was made by Jones to his campaign and the balance of the $25,000 has been spent for gas, food and lodging.

Corporations and lobbying groups backing Jones include: Boise Cascade, $1,500; Morrison-Knudsen, $500; Idaho Association of Realtors, $500; the Republican Party, $4,000; Idaho Energy Resources Committee, $500; and the Bunker Hill Co., $500.

The bulk of Jones's expenditures have been for advertisements in newspapers and on radio and television stations throughout the state.

Williams's expenditures

Williams has loaned his campaign $13,180, plus he has donated an outright $200 since May 10.

The largest single donations to his campaign have come from labor groups and the Democratic Party: Idaho Democratic Party, $5,000; Laborers Political Action Committee, $100; the AFL-CIO PAC, $1,000; and the Democratic Women's Club, $100.

Individuals supporting Williams with donations larger than $50 include: former Attorney General Anthony Park, $250; former Senate minority leader Cy Chase, $100; and members of the Twin Falls law firm of May, May, Sudweeks, Hindurung and Stubbs, $100.

Corporations and lobbying groups donating to him also include: Idaho Bank and Trust, $250; Hecla Mining Co., $100; Utah Power and Light, $500; and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Committee on Political Action Trust, $200.

Most of Williams' expenditures have been divided between campaign travel and advertising.

Trick or treat Mini-Cassia area celebrates tonight

BURLEY — Halloween will be celebrated tonight in Minidoka and Cassia counties.

And Mini-Cassia law-enforcement officers will be out in force tonight to look after trick-or-treaters. Several community groups have informed the police departments that their activities will be held tonight instead of Sunday night, says Paul Fries, the Rupert police chief.

Because the children have to go to school Monday, trick-or-treaters have been urged to celebrate the holiday tonight, says Lemah Messley, the Burley police chief.

Smaller towns in Cassia and Minidoka counties also will be observing Halloween tonight.

Reacting to Dalling's comments Friday, Belk says that she based her statements about the purchases on figures printed in the North Side News. The Jerome newspaper compared American Data's prices with those of its own retail office-supply business.

Belk says that "it seemed to be the practice in Jerome County" to accept gifts such as calculators from companies who did business with the county. She says that she questioned former Prosecutor Eugene Fredrickson in one instance and was told small gifts were no problem.

Fredrickson could not be reached for comment Friday.

Dalling says, however, that the difference between tokens and bribes lies in whether the gifts influence an official's decisions.

Belk's large orders from American Data could have been introduced as evidence, he says, along with information from the company about how salesmen determined the size of gifts they could offer.

Dalling says that his office should be the one to determine whether city charges will be filed against American Data Products, as DeHaan has suggested. But the Jerome prosecutor says that he doubts the $30,000 audit requested by DeHaan could be charged successfully to the California company.

Defending his office's investigation, Reneau says that two court cases in Idaho set ample precedents to guide the conduct of officers in questioning suspects. As long as Belk was not in custody and was free to come and go, no reading of legal rights was required, he says.

"Our position is that Mr. DeHaan, since he was in charge of the case, had the absolute authority to dispose of it in a manner in which he deemed appropriate," Reneau says. "I would, however, take exception to any inference that the case was weakened by the interview done by our investigator."

DeHaan said Friday that both men were entitled to their opinions.

"That's why there are lawsuits," he says. "Lawyers disagree."

DeHaan says that he recognizes Jerome County's authority to decide whether or not to file a civil suit against American Data.

He says that he has mailed a copy of the tentative wording for such a suit to Dalling, and that he will consult with the Jerome County commissioners after the election, before deciding how to proceed with the case.

Panty raid on local shop nets $2,500 in lingerie

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls police are soliciting help from anyone who might have information concerning the theft of about $2,500 worth of women's underwear from a store earlier this month.

"We're just up against the wall on this thing," said L.D. Jim Kistler.

The burglary — at Sweet Nothing's, 127 Second St. W. — occurred between 7:30 p.m. on Oct. 14 and 4:55 a.m. on Oct. 15.

Police say the burglar forcibly entered the building and apparently cut himself, leaving blood on the scene.

Kistler asks that anyone who may have seen the burglary occur or has seen the stolen items "floating around or if they have seen large amounts of it," should contact the department.

"We'd like that information."

People with information can call 733-6860. Callers will remain anonymous, Kistler says.

Chili feed, cartoons mark Wendell event

WENDELL — Halloween will be celebrated in Wendell today.

According to Mayor Otto Lemke, all activities will be held today, regardless of the weather.

At the American Legion Hall, off Idaho Street, chili will be served from 5 to 8 p.m. Cartoons will be shown for entertainment.

A parade is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. Prizes will be awarded for the best costumes. In case of heavy rain, the awards will be made at the fire station.

Access to sunlight triggers request for setback variance

WENDELL — In order to receive unobstructed sunlight, a proposed solar-heated apartment building in Wendell must be built to feet rather than the required 25 feet from a city alley.

A variance for the building was requested at the City Council meeting Thursday evening by Ben Morgan, a Wendell resident who wants to build the apartment building off East Avenue C.

Morgan said his existing fourplex apartment would shade the new building if the variance is not granted.

After discussion, council agreed to meet with Morgan and a city building inspector at a work session next Wednesday, Nov. 3. Before a variance can be granted, all adjacent property owners must be given 15 days notice.

In other business, city Clerk June Holm reported that the city's auditors, Seamon's, Bancroft, Smith and Cook of Jerome, were at City Hall for three-and-a-half days this week auditing city records. They will report the results of the audit next month.

The council meeting ended with a 15-minute executive session to discuss personnel.

Two-day exotic chicken show opens today

FILER — Between 300 and 400 exotic chickens and pheasants will converge on the Magic Valley today and Sunday for a regional show of some of the nation's most unusual and top-quality birds.

Sponsored by the Snake River Valley Poultry Club, the show will feature entries from Idaho, Utah, California and Nevada.

"Many of the entries coming here have been winning national show honors around the country this year," according to Betty Henderson of Jerome, a member of the show committee and a fancy poultry breeder.

One of the largest shows in the four-state area, it will be held at the Twin Falls County fairgrounds in Filer all day today and until noon on Sunday. The fee is free and open to the public.

Henderson says that the show will give local residents an opportunity to see chicken breeds not often shown in this area.

The show will be handled by John Sidney Garnett of Haynesville, La.

This is the second such show for the Snake River Valley Poultry Club, which was organized two years ago. In spite of the remoteness of the local club, many members have been breeding fancy poultry and showing their chickens in national shows for 20 years or more, Henderson says.

But does Mr. Hansen always vote right?

"When Mr. Hansen again voted against reauthorizing the Commodity Futures Trading Commission on Sept. 23, 1982, I must question if this was not one more favor for the Commission's long time antagonists, silver moguls Bunker Hunt, Hunt would rather operate outside the review of that body."

"This legislation also affirms a jurisdiction between the Commodity Commission and the Securities Exchange Commission. The SEC charged last week that Hunt's silver dealings in 1979 and 1980 brought the U.S. financial system to the brink of collapse."

Infant-formula debate divides Methodist Church leaders

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI religion writer

A host of religious and civic groups, including the National Council of Churches and a number of Methodist agencies and conferences, have joined an effort to boycott the Nestle-based Nestle Co. because of the way the multi-national firm markets infant-formula products in less-developed nations.

But while the boycott of Nestle products has been endorsed by such sub-units of the national council as 34 national conferences and its Board of Global Ministries and Board of Church and Society, the nation's second largest Protestant church's highest decision-making body, the General Conference, has withheld its endorsement of the boycott.

Instead, the church has appointed the Infant Formula Task Force to study the highly emotional issue and devise a response to the multiple questions involved, including the Nestle boycott.

And the task force's recent report already has stirred up considerable debate in the denomination.

The infant-formula question has attracted the attention of a number of church and public health workers who contend that the intense promotion and marketing of infant formula — at the expense of breastfeeding babies — has led to malnutrition and higher levels of child mortality in Third World countries.

In 1977 a number of these groups launched the Nestle boycott, choosing the boycott over the more usual stockholder campaigns generally favored by religious groups, because the Swiss-based firm is not accessible to U.S. religious stockholders.

The pressure on Nestle was increased when the World Health Organization adopted a set of guidelines governing the marketing and promotion of infant formula in Third World countries — guidelines that the Nestle boycott organizers claim the firm is not following.

But the Methodist Infant Formula Task Force, recommending the church not take part in the boycott "at this moment in history," says the firm is making progress in implementing the World Health Organization code.

It noted that the multi-national company is under new management and "in response to dialogue with church groups and others" is moving to comply with the code. "We believe," the task force reported, "it is time to respond positively to this new situation." It urged Methodist conferences and agencies supporting the boycott to reconsider their participation.

But Methodist supporters of continuing the boycott strongly disagree.

They insist that Nestle still is not in compliance with the World Health Organization code.

And they are unhappy that two members of the church task force, including its head, Dean Philip Wogaman of the Wesley Seminary in Washington, D.C., are on a Nestle-created auditing committee to monitor the firm's enforcement of its version of the code.

Mini-Cassia churches plan holiday concert

RUPERT — The Mini-Cassia Ministerial Association is inviting singers to participate in the Community Christmas Cantata that the association sponsors annually.

Eugene Brown, of St. Nicholas Catholic Church in Rupert, will direct the singers in the performance of "Born a King" by John W. Peterson. Brown is a semi-retired choir director with 21 years experience.

The cantata will be performed at the Rupert Christian Church on Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 11 and 12, at 7:30 p.m.

Rehearsals have begun and will continue to be held on Mondays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Rupert Christian Church. An additional practice session may be held on Dec. 8 or 10, according to Mary Lou Ottman, one of the program's coordinators. The coordinators are emphasizing the need for faithful attendance at rehearsals.

Ottman says the program has about 50 singers, compared to about 65 last year. Men and women are invited to participate, although there is an extra need for male voices, she says. Persons interested in singing can audition on Nov. 15.

All singers are being asked to buy sheet music at a cost of $4. Persons who would find that a hardship are asked to contact Ottman, at 438-5365, or her fellow coordinator, Carmen Suchan, at 438-9638.

Ottman says last year's cantata was presented to more than 900 listeners.

Our church news guidelines

The Times-News encourages any church in the Magic Valley area to submit information for our listing of church services, which appears each Saturday.

To ensure your information is used, follow these guidelines:

- The deadline for church news is Thursday noon.
- Typewritten or plainly printed information is best; it helps eliminate errors.

- Provide full information — complete names, times, locations, day and date. Include the name of the community — we serve many — and a phone number to call if more information is needed.

If you have questions about church news, call 733-0931 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., and ask for Glenda May or Jon Kinney.

Jury gives plaintiff $150,000

By MARTIN J. TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Buhl man, who claimed he permanently injured his right arm when the floor of his mobile home collapsed, has won a $150,000 jury verdict.

A four-man, eight-woman jury emerged from about four hours of deliberations Thursday and awarded the verdict to Larry Van Komen, of Route 3, Buhl.

The verdict followed six days of trial proceedings in Fifth District Court.

Van Komen sued: Champion Home Builders Co. of Utah, which constructed the mobile home; Gordon Carter, doing business as Carter Homes of Twin Falls, who sold the unit to the plaintiff; and Weyerhaeuser Co. of Washington, the firm that provided construction materials to Champion Home Builders.

Van Komen said the floor of the mobile home collapsed first in November 1979, and subsequently was repaired by agents for Champion Home Builders.

When the floor again collapsed on Dec. 12, 1979, Van Komen said he was severely injured and that use of his right arm was limited.

Lawyers for the defendants argued that the incidents did not cause Van Komen's injury. The plaintiff has been injured after the floor collapsed and those incidents either contributed or directly caused his injuries, they said.

Defense lawyers also challenged the severity of Van Komen's injuries. But the jury concluded that the mobile home had been unreasonably dangerous and that the structure caused Van Komen's injuries.

Weyerhaeuser's lawyer, J. Walter Sinclair of Twin Falls, says the defendants are studying an appeal of the verdict. They also plan to ask Judge Daniel Weehl to call a new trial, set aside the verdict or reduce the amount of the jury's verdict.

Kidnapping arrest leads to $25 million in legal suits

HAILEY — A man charged with kidnapping a Hailey youth has filed claims totaling $25 million in connection with the case, after the kidnapping charge was reduced to a misdemeanor.

Edward Penney, the owner of the Wood River Taxi Co. of Hailey, has filed a false-arrest claim against the city of Hailey, police Chief Dan Norton and his department, and Prosecutor Keith Roark and his office. The claims are $5 million against the city, $5 million against Norton and $15 million against Roark, Penney said.

Penney was arrested in Ely, Nev., on Sept. 8, on charges of kidnapping. Last week, following an investigation into the incident, Roark reduced the charges to encouragement of the delinquency of a minor.

The incident that sparked the charge began on Sept. 7, when a 15-year-old youth apparently approached Penney at Friedman Memorial Airport in Hailey and asked him to drive him to Fullerton, Calif., to join his father.

The boy's mother, a Hailey resident, reported him missing the next day, at which time an arrest warrant on kidnapping charges was issued against Penney. Penney was arrested by the White Pine County Sheriff's Department that day near Ely, where Penney's taxi had broken down. The youth and Penney's wife were with him at the time.

Penney was held for three days in the White Pine County jail until he was released to return to Hailey to face the kidnapping charges.

If Blaine County does not act on the claims in 90 days, Penney will be free to file identical lawsuits.

Penney, who said he was "disgusted and disgruntled with a bunch of stupid and unfounded charges," has denied all wrongdoing in the incident.

He told The Times-News that he intends to file additional suits in an effort to recover damages for the loss of his good name.

Penney said that he intended to file a small-claims lawsuit against the youth's family for the cost of the trip as far as Ely, and a civil lawsuit, also against the youth's family that will allege defamation of character and mental and physical suffering, among other reasons.

He also indicated that he intends to file false-arrest and harassment lawsuits against officials in White Pine County, including the county, the sheriff and the county-welfare department, which he alleges failed to assist his wife, who is crippled with muscular sclerosis. He says that he will ask for $157.5 million in the collection of lawsuits he anticipates filing there.

Republic Airlines improving

MINNEAPOLIS — Republic Airlines is doing better but still in the red.

The airline reports improvements of $12.6 million for the third quarter and $36 million for the first nine months of 1982.

Daniel F. May, president and chief executive officer, attributed the gains to record traffic and strict cost controls.

In the third quarter, operating revenues were $397.2 million with a profit of $18.2 million. After interest and other expenses of $24 million, the net loss was $3.8 million or 31 cents a share.

In the comparable period in 1981, revenues were $368.2 million, profits were $2.7 million, and the net loss was $18.4 million or 90 cents a share.

For the first nine months this year, revenues were $1.18 billion and profit was $67.5 million. Interest and expenses of $80 million left a net loss of $12.5 million or 69 cents a share.

In the comparable period a year ago, revenues were $1.09 billion, profits were $24.5 million, leaving a net loss of $38.5 million or $1.92 a share.

Utility offers stock at $20

SPOKANE (UPI) — The Washington Water Power Co. is offering 2 million shares of its common stock for sale at $20 per share.

WWP spokesman Bob Strenge said half the $40 million in proceeds will be used to repay short-term debts obtained to finance new construction.

The rest will be used to pay off first mortgage bonds which came due this month.

Mining firm's net halved

WALLACE (UPI) — The Couer d'Alene Mines Corp. reports a third quarter net income of 6 cents a share, down from 12 cents a share the same quarter last year.

Revenues for the quarter were $1.9 million compared with $2.6 million last year. Second quarter earnings were 1 cent a share.

Money fund assets soaring

NEW YORK (UPI) — Money market mutual fund assets soared to a new record of just under $230 billion in the latest week.

An industry expert said much of the week's $1.2 billion increase came from individuals getting out of the stock market after Monday's loss.

Assets of money market funds totaled $229.9 billion in the week ended Oct. 27. In the latest three weeks, $5.33 billion in net new money has gone into the funds, according to the Investment Company Institute, Washington-based industry association.

"Every time interest rates fall money fund assets grow," said William E. Donoghue, publisher of Donoghue's Money Fund Report, Holliston, Mass.

Donoghue's reported average, seven-day, yields were 8.87 percent in the week, down from 9.09 percent the previous week; 30-day yields fell to 9.23 percent from 9.38 percent.

S&Ls lose during September

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's savings and loans lost $1.8 billion in deposits during September and another $6 billion in deposits during October, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board says.

The net worth of the thrift industry also declined again, to $21.6 billion, but the erosion appeared to be leveling off with the help of new regulations that allow some cosmetic changes in industry accounting.

The industry's net worth dropped 2.6 percent from June to July, 1.3 percent from July to August and only 0.5 percent in the latest report.

Steep losses for American

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (UPI) — American Motors Corp. Friday reported a net loss of $30.9 million for the third quarter, nearly double the $16.8 million net loss the automaker posted in the same period last year.

Net sales for the period were $754 million, up from $648 million in the year-earlier period.

For the first nine months, AMC reported a loss of $150.6 million, compared to a net loss of $89.4 million for the same period last year. Net sales in the first nine months were $2 billion, unchanged from 1981.

"The general economic downturn and a resulting failure of the domestic industry to achieve higher sales volumes persisted through the third quarter of 1982," Paul Tippet, AMC chairman and chief executive officer, said.

Dupont earnings off sharply

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — Dupont Co. had a 29 percent drop in third quarter earnings from the pro forma combined earnings a year ago of Dupont and Conoco.

Net income was $105 million or 82 cents a share compared with $273 million or $1.15 a share a year ago. Sales were $8.2 billion, down from $8.3 billion. Last year Dupont separately reported earnings of $2.88 a share in the third quarter on sales of $6.8 billion.

Nine months' profit was $692 million or $2.91 a share on sales of $25 billion. The earnings were down 17 percent from the pro forma profit of $835 million or $3.53 a share a year ago on sales of $24.6 billion.

Chairman Edward G. Jefferson said Conoco's contributions increased for the nine months by $1.10 a share. He said after-tax operating earnings for all the company's energy segments were up significantly in the third quarter.

U.S. clears Moroccan sale

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States Friday approved the first farm sales package under a new credit program intended to boost American agricultural exports.

The package provides for sales of 1.1 million metric tons of wheat to Morocco — sales that would not have been made without the new program, Agriculture Secretary John Block said.

Reagan administration officials have explained the three-year, $1.5 billion "blended credit program" as a mix of interest-free direct government export credits and government-guaranteed private credits intended to produce lower interest rates for developing countries interested in increasing imports of U.S. farm goods.

"This new credit is opening up untapped demand, and that was the purpose of the program — to generate additional demand for U.S. agricultural exports," Block said.

Morocco's new purchases will boost that nation's imports of U.S. wheat this year from the 600,000 tons projected earlier to 1.7 million tons, Block said. Morocco's total wheat imports are projected at 1.8 million tons.

Under the new program, Morocco received $28 million in direct credit and $12 million in credit guarantees in order to buy the wheat, Block said.

Small gain for stocks

By FRANK W. SLOSSER
United Press International

NEW YORK — Stocks rebounded late to score a small gain Friday but the market still suffered its worst weekly loss in nearly three years.

That was the result as Wall Street's historic rally cooled off prior to next Tuesday's elections.

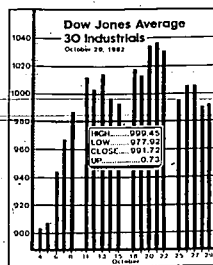

Trading was slow for the second consecutive session but it was enough to push the October total over the 2 billion-share mark, a monthly record that accompanied a strong overall advance.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, down more than 7 points at the outset after skidding 15.36 points Thursday, rebounded late to gain 0.73 to 991.72. It lost 39.74 points for the week, the worst setback since it dropped 42.58 points the week ended March 7, 1980.

But the closely watched average, which reached a 94-year high of 1,036 a week ago, jumped 55.47 points for all of October.

The Dow fell 30.57 points on Oct. 29, 1929, the "crash" that heralded the Great Depression.

The New York Stock Exchange index added 0.98 to 76.95 and the price of an average share increased four cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index faked on 0.12 to 133.71.

Advances edged declines 822-755 among the 1,942 issues traded.

Big Board volume totaled 74,530,000 shares, compared with 73,590,000 traded Thursday, the slowest session in three weeks.

Many investors stayed on the sidelines for the Federal Reserve's report after the market's close that showed the nation's money supply dropped $700 million in the latest statistical week after rising sharply the two previous periods.

Trading also was slowed by investor uncertainty about the outcome of next Tuesday's congressional elections. Many were waiting to see if there is any major shift in the House or Senate that would influence President Reagan's economic policies.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 88,217,640 shares compared with 86,556,440 traded Thursday.

The American Stock Exchange index rose 0.87 to 319.82 and the price of a share added four cents. Advances edged declines 304-293 among the 794 issues traded. Composite volume totaled 5,740,000 shares compared with 6,510,000 traded Thursday.

The National Association of Securities Dealers NASDAQ index of OTC stocks gained 0.76 to 212.63.

On the trading floor, Revco Copper & Brass plunged 4 1/2 to 5 1/2.

The company earlier this week filed to reorganize under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code.

Technicolor climbed 5 to 22 1/2, and MacAndrews & Forbes lost 1 1/2 to 10 1/2. MacAndrews & Forbes has agreed to acquire Technicolor for $23 a share.

Sterling Drug, a 1 1/2-point lower Thursday, was the most active NYSE-listed issue, off 1 1/2 to 24 1/2.

Food & Drug Administration panel recommended approval of an intravenous form of Stirling's heart drug but made no recommendation on the oral product.

Chrysler was second on the active list, up 1 to 10 1/2. The company had an $11.3 million third-quarter operating loss. The United Auto Workers voted not to strike the carmaker.

General Motors gained 2 to 56 1/2. Dealers said the company is about to cut financing charges on left over 1982 models to less than 11 percent from 15 percent.

Georgia-Pacific was the third most active issue, losing 3/4 to 20 1/2, after the company cut its quarterly dividend payout to 15 cents a share from 30 cents.

Manville Corp., which recently filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 bankruptcy rose 1 to 6 1/2 with a block of 769,000 shares at 5 1/2. Manville registered third-quarter earnings of 76 cents a share vs. 27 cents a year ago.

Dataquest, which scored big gains recently, lost 7/8 to 19 1/2, following a block of 400,000 shares at 18 1/2. The company's sales and earnings slipped in the past year.

McDermott lost 1 1/2 to 16 1/2.

But Soviets remain noncommittal

U.S. offers incentives for grain sales

By JOHN IAMS
United Press International

VIENNA, Austria — The United States has offered the Soviet Union two major incentives to buy nearly twice as much U.S. grain as the amount agreed to for this year, U.S. Undersecretary of Agriculture Louis Lofwick said Friday.

In line with President Reagan's Oct. 15 announcement, the United States officially informed a Soviet trade delegation Thursday that they could purchase an additional 15 million metric tons above the 8 million tons agreed to in the current U.S.-Soviet grain agreement.

If they purchase all or any part of the 15 million tons during November and ship it within 180 days, delivery will be guaranteed regardless of any hitches in U.S.-Soviet trade relations.

The dual proposition was seen as an incentive to the Soviet Union to buy now to prop up sagging U.S. grain prices.

There was no immediate response from the Soviet delegation, led by Boris Goryev, deputy minister for foreign trade, who described the one-day meeting as "satisfactory."

"At this stage, and particularly this year, it is simply too early to judge what total Soviet grain import requirements for this year will be," Lofwick said.

He was optimistic that the U.S. approach would reap positive returns and that "large imports will continue."

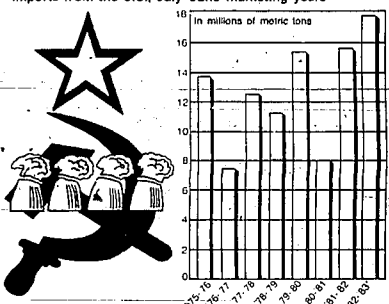

Last year, the Kremlin bought 13.9 million metric tons. So far this agreement year, which began Oct. 1, they have purchased 1.6 million tons of wheat and corn.

Under the 7-year-old agreement, the Soviet Union agreed to purchase a minimum of 3 million tons of wheat and 3 million tons of corn annually, with an option of raising imports to 8 million tons total without prior consultation with U.S. officials.

Lofwick said Thursday's talks made clear that there would be "an additional 15 million metric tons for Soviet purchase during the 7th agreement year without the necessity of further consultations" and there could be no proportion of wheat to corn.

Meats, grains pace decline

Raw farm prices down in October

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American farmers were paid 5.1 percent less in October for raw farm products, largely because of lower prices for hogs, cattle, corn and soybeans.

The Agriculture Department's Index of Prices Received by Farmers was 0.8 percent below October 1981 levels.

The farm value of foods accounts for only about one-third of the retail price, which is expected to rise about 5 percent in 1982, the department said.

October's decline follows a 2.3 percent increase in prices paid to farmers in September. The September figures marked the only time in 15 months prices rose above levels set one year earlier.

The separate Index of Prices Paid by Farmers for Commodities and Services, Interest, Taxes and Farm Wage Rates was down 0.6 percent from September, but 3.3 percent above the October 1981 figure. The department attributed the decline largely to lower prices for feeds, fertilizers and fuels.

In its monthly analysis, the department's Crop

Reporting Board said increased prices for milk, cotton, lettuce and tomatoes only partially offset lower prices paid for meat animals, corn, soybeans and oranges.

The October price for meat animals prices was down 3.2 percent from September, with hog prices off $1.90 to $56.50 per 100 pounds and cattle prices off $1.10 to $54.40 per 100 pounds. Overall, the meat animal index was up 4.8 percent from October 1981.

The feed grains and hay index was down 3.7 percent from September and off 13 percent from October 1981, with corn down 12 cents to $2.03 per bushel. Barley was down 19 cents to $1.98 per bushel; sorghum down 6 cents to $3.72 per 100 pounds, and oats, down 1 cent to $1.34 per bushel.

The report also attributed a 34 percent decline in prices paid for fruit to the "sharply lower prices" of California Valencia oranges. But overall, fruit prices were 51 percent above those of one year ago.

Department statistics measured a 2.2 percent increase in dairy prices over last month, with the average price of milk sold to plants and dealers listed at $13.80 per 100 pounds — up 30 cents from September. Dairy prices were down 1.4 percent from one year ago.

Other increases were the 2.7 percent hike in prices received for cotton and the 6.9 percent jump in vegetable prices, the department said.

The decrease in prices paid by farmers for commodities and services was partly a result of the 3.4 percent drop in the price of fertilizer since May, the department said. Fertilizer prices were down 2.1 percent from October 1981.

The department also noted a 1.7 percent decrease in prices paid for feed (down 6.5 percent from one year ago), a 0.6 percent drop in prices for livestock being added to herds up 1.9 percent from one year ago, and a 0.5 percent drop in fuel costs (down 0.9 percent from one year ago).

Prices paid by farmers for building and fencing materials were unchanged from August, but 0.7 percent higher than October 1981 levels, the report said.

U.S. money supply drops after 2 weeks of growth

By MARY TOBIN
United Press International

NEW YORK — The money supply measure known as M1 fell $700 million in the latest week, a small reversal of two weeks of strong growth.

Business loan demand fell sharply, boding well for a future washout of money supply growth.

"The money numbers are difficult to interpret when you're having substantial shifts of funds," Nicholas Marrone, vice president at Bank of New York, said. "However, the business loan data is important in that the loan demand could give us a further washout in money, later in the quarter."

Commercial and industrial loans at the nation's major banks fell $627 million in the week ended Oct. 26, following a drop of $1.375 billion the previous week. Commercial paper borrowings fell $1.75 billion in the latest reporting week.

The Federal Reserve has said it will not pay too much attention to money supply figures during October, when $32 billion in maturing All Savers were expected to cause distortions.

M1 rose a revised $7.1 billion and $3.2 billion in the previous two weeks.

Albert Sandler, who heads a consumer-research firm based in Media, Pa., said his latest surveys show "at least $3.4 billion of the All Savers is now in components of M1. People tell us they are waiting until after the election to decide what to do with this money."

Borrowed reserves are another figure watched by the markets for an indication of the Fed's policy stance. Commercial banks were in a modest free reserve position in the banking week ended Wednesday, compared with a small $21 million net borrowed position last week.

But Marrone said the discount rate will be the leading edge on any change in Fed policy, as the markets will be bidding time until the Fed acts on the discount rate.

M1, comprised of cash, checking accounts and NOW accounts, money that is available for immediate spending, was a seasonally adjusted average of $467.7 billion in the week ended Oct. 26, compared to $468.4 billion the previous week.

Declining prime seen

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A prime rate of 10 percent by the end of the year, and single-digit interest rates next year have been predicted by Leland S. Prussia, chairman of BankAmerica Corp.

Prussia told members of the National Association of Real Estate Investment Trusts Inc. rates on both short-term and long-term borrowing will fall farther than they have recently. Lending institutions will lower their loan rates, he said, because they realize that real rates — the difference between the inflation rate of 4.8 percent, and the interest rates being charged, must narrow if the economy is to recover.

Economists judged wrong

By LEONARD CURRY
Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — High interest rates, psychological factors and simple misjudgment account for the failure by most economists to foresee that the recession would last as long as it has.

With the benefit of hindsight, economists are now saying that interest rates remained high longer than expected and the rising level of unemployment made consumers wary about spending.

The consensus of many economists in late 1981 and early 1982 was for the recession to end in the spring and for production and employment to grow in the final six months of 1982.

Though the gross national product — the broadest measure of economic activity — has risen modestly for the past six months, manufacturing production and unemployment have worsened.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige, whose department generates most of the economic data on which government and private economists base their conclusions, says most political economists were "too optimistic" about the beneficial aspects of President Reagan's tax cut program.

Baldrige says he always believed tax cuts and federal spending reduction would lead to economic growth, but that the expansion would be much longer in coming because of high interest rates.

Richard W. Rahn, chief economist for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, was among the private forecasters who predicted a rapidly expanding economy.

"That the economy did not turn up this summer is a mystery that economists have yet to fully resolve," Rahn says. But he says psychology appears to be the most important reason.

Until consumer confidence returns, Rahn says, production and unemployment will continue to be dismal.

"Despite the substantial turnaround in the fundamental factors that contribute to a recovery, economic activity continues to wallow along in a trough-and-households remain cautious in their spending plans," Rahn says.

"What is needed to get this (recovery) under way is a change in attitude from caution to optimism," he says.

says the 10 percent tax cut and the 7.4 percent increase in Social Security benefits in July was "a powerful temptation for most economists to see a recovery."

But Lavery says "cynics" in the bond market continued to make investments under gloomy assumptions that the economic recovery would unleash another round of inflation. As a result, investors and speculators kept interest rates in the bond market higher than they should have been in relation to inflation.

The Federal Reserve Board shattered the cynics by bringing down interest rates beginning in July, Lavery says.

But not all forecasters missed the mark.

Dr. Lawrence Klein of the University of Pennsylvania, a Nobel Prize winner and the father of modern economic forecasting, was on the mark.

While the consensus forecasters saw an economic recovery in the second half of this year, Klein predicted declining production, worsening unemployment and only small gains in the gross national product.

Klein based his pessimistic outlook on the premise that interest rates would remain high.

"There was no question that without lower interest rates, a sustainable economic growth was not possible," Klein says.

Guessing starts about Fed chair

By JEROME IDASZAK
Chicago Sun-Times

It may be too early for most people to consider the question, but managers of big bond portfolios are playing the guessing game over the chances that Paul Volcker will be reappointed chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

Volcker was named by President Carter to a term that ends in August, 1983. His fortunes seemed to be on the wane this year as various Reagan administration officials criticized the Fed's actions on money supply growth.

Lately, though, Volcker and the Fed have been praised for conduct of monetary policy as the rate of inflation has slipped to below 6 percent annually.

PAUL VOLCKER
He might keep post

At a conference of leading bond money managers from around the country early in October, two Fed watchers were asked their opinions of a Volcker reappointment.

"I think Volcker would love to be reappointed," said Alan Lerner, money market economist for Bankers Trust Co.

The consensus in the investment community was that Volcker prefers to step down after his four-year stint. But Lerner thinks he'd stay to further etch "his mark on history."

Lerner acknowledged that he is "one of the few" who thinks Volcker would and could stay on. He said the Fed's decision to abandon the M1 money supply target temporarily and to pay some attention to the level of interest rates enhances Volcker's chances of being reappointed.

If it weren't Volcker, Lerner said it also wouldn't be Beryl Sprinkel, an ardent monetarist who is an assistant secretary in the Treasury Department, or current Fed Vice Chairman Preston Martin.

"It would be a surprise, somewhere out of left field," Lerner said.

W. Lee Hoskins, chief economist at Pittsburgh National Bank, said, "Initially, I thought there was no way Volcker would be renominated. At this point, I think his chances are enhanced."

The question also was put to Murray Weidenbaum, who had served until last summer as chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers. Weidenbaum said he would make his opinions known to President Reagan, if asked, and not go beyond that.

He added that he thinks it's "too soon" to talk about the situation.

Stock exchange agreement ready

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (UPI) — Bendix Corp. officials say when the firm is merged with a subsidiary of Allied Corp., Bendix common shareholders will receive a preferred stock and notes as well as Allied common stock.

Under an agreement between the two firms, each Bendix share will be exchanged for 1.3 shares of Allied common plus fixed-income securities valued at $38.50 on a fully distributed basis. These securities will consist of new nonconvertible preferred stock and two new series of Allied notes.

Allied said it expects to issue up to 15.3 million new Allied common shares and new nonconvertible preferred stock valued at about $25 million and notes valued at about $18 million to acquire up to 11.7 million Bendix shares outstanding at the time of the merger.

IRS plans to change 'FICA' to end errors

Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — The Internal Revenue Service has decided to change its W-2 form because too many people don't know what "FICA" means, resulting in the single most frequent taxpayer filing error.

The change is being made on the recommendation of Congress' General Accounting Office, which studied the amount of federal income taxes that have been withheld, and the "FICA tax withheld."

"FICA" is the abbreviation for Federal Insurance Contribution Act, the law that set up the Social Security system. "FICA tax withheld" is the amount of wages withheld for payment into the Social Security fund.

The GAO, however, found that many people filling out their income tax returns erroneously took credit for only the FICA tax withheld rather than the usually larger income tax withheld. They didn't know what "FICA" meant, and the front of the W-2 form had no explanation of the term.

In a sample of returns studied by the GAO, 7 percent of the people who filed erroneous returns made a mistake on FICA — the most frequent mistake GAO found.

The GAO recommended that IRS alter the W-2 form so as to label the "FICA" withholding as "Social Security" withholding and to clarify all instructions. The GAO also recommended that when taxpayers make an error with FICA in the future, the IRS should send them a notice specifying the mistake so they won't repeat it.

Battle for survival faces fuel industry

By ED PETYKIEWICZ, Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON - Consumers are finding cheaper gasoline prices because of a bitter struggle for profits and survival between the Davids and the Goliaths of the nation's oil industry.

Independents

The aggressive marketing campaign was sparked by slumping sales that have dropped 10 percent since 1978 and are expected to continue downward through 1990.

Major firms

The large oil firms are using their dominant position to try to fill everyone else's gaps. Says Jack Blum, president and general counsel of the Independent Gasoline Marketers Council, a trade association representing some of the largest independent retail gasoline chains.

Problem bank list

ATLANTA - The number of problem U.S. banks has soared from 220 to 320 this year and is expected to increase further in 1983.

By LEONARD CURRY
Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — High interest rates, psychological factors and simple misjudgment account for the failure by most economists to foresee that the recession would last as long as it has.

With the benefit of hindsight, economists are now saying that interest rates remained high longer than expected and the rising level of unemployment made consumers wary about spending.

The consensus forecast of economists in late 1981 and early 1982 was that the recession would end in the spring and for production and employment to grow in the final six months of 1982.

Though the gross national product — the broadest measure of economic activity — has risen modestly for the past six months, manufacturing production and unemployment have worsened.

Secretary Malcolm Baldrige, whose department generates most of the economic data on which government and private economists base their conclusions, says most political economists were "too optimistic" about the beneficial aspects of President Reagan's tax cut program.

Baldrige says he always believed tax cuts and federal spending reduction would lead to economic growth, but that the expansion would be much longer in coming because of high interest rates.

Richard W. Rahn, chief economist for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, was among the private forecasters who predicted a rapidly expanding economy.

"That the economy did not turn up this summer is a mystery that economists have yet to fully resolve," Rahn says. But he says psychology appears to be the most important reason.

Until consumer confidence returns, Rahn says, production and unemployment will continue to be dismal.

"Despite the substantial turnaround in the fundamental factors that contribute to a recovery, economic activity continues to wallow along in a trough-and-households-remain-cautious-in-their-spending plans," Rahn says.

"What is needed to get this (recovery) under way is a change in attitude from caution to optimism," he says.

says the 10 percent tax cut and the 7.4 percent increase in Social Security benefits in July was "a powerful temptation for most economists to see a recovery."

But Lavery says "cynics" in the bond market continued to make investments under gloomy assumptions that the economic recovery would unleash another round of inflation. As a result, investors and speculators kept interest rates in the bond market higher than they should have been in relation to inflation.

The Federal Reserve Board shattered the cynics by bringing down interest rates beginning in July, Lavery says.

But not all forecasters missed the mark.

Dr. Lawrence Klein of the University of Pennsylvania, a Nobel Prize winner and the father of modern economic forecasting, was on the mark.

While the consensus forecasters saw an economic recovery in the second half of this year, Klein predicted declining production, worsening unemployment and only small gains in the gross national product.

Klein based his pessimistic outlook on the premise that interest rates would remain high.

"There was no question that without lower interest rates, a sustainable economic growth was not possible," Klein says.

Guessing starts about Fed chair

By JEROME IDASZAK
Chicago Sun-Times

It may be too early for most people to consider the question, but managers of big bond portfolios are playing the guessing game over the chances that Paul Volcker will be reappointed chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

Volcker was named by President Carter to a term that ends in August, 1983. His fortunes seemed low earlier this year as various Reagan administration officials criticized the Fed's actions on money supply growth.

Lately, though, Volcker and the Fed have been praised for conduct of monetary policy as the rate of inflation has slackened to below 6 percent annually.

At a conference of leading bond money managers from around the country early in October, two Fed watchers were asked their opinions of a Volcker reappointment.

"I think Volcker would love to be reappointed," said Alan Lerner, money market economist for Bankers Trust Co.

The consensus in the investment community has been that Volcker prefers to step down after his four-year stint. But Lerner thinks he'd stay to further etch "his mark on history."

Lerner acknowledged that he is "one of the few" who thinks Volcker would and could stay on. He said the Fed's decision to abandon the M1 money supply target temporarily and to pay more attention to the level of interest rates enhances Volcker's chances of being reappointed.

If it weren't Volcker, Lerner said it also wouldn't be Beryl Sprinkel, an

PAUL VOLCKER
He might keep post

ardent monetarist who is an assistant secretary in the Treasury Department, or current Fed Vice Chairman Preston Martin.

"It would be a surprise, somewhere out of left field," Lerner said.

W. Lee Hoskins, chief economist at Pittsburgh National Bank, said, "Initially, I thought there was no way Volcker would be reappointed. At this point, I think his chances are enhanced."

The question also was put to Murray Weidenbaum, who had served until last summer as chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers.

Weidenbaum said he would make his opinions known to President Reagan, if asked, and not go beyond that.

He added that he thinks it's "too soon" to talk about the situation.

IRS plans to change 'FICA' to end errors

Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — The Internal Revenue Service has decided to change its W-2 form because too many people don't know what "FICA" means, says a source in the single most important taxpayer filing error.

The change is being made on the recommendation of Congress' General Accounting Office, which studied IRS forms and procedures to find out why taxpayers and the IRS make 33 million errors a year in handling individual income tax returns.

The W-2 is the form employers send to each employee at the end of the year, listing the employee's total pay, the amount of federal income taxes that have been withheld, and the "FICA tax withheld."

"FICA" is the abbreviation for Federal Insurance Contribution Act, the law that set up the Social Security system. "FICA tax withheld" is the amount of wages withheld for payment into the Social Security fund.

"The GAO, however, found that many people filling out their income tax returns erroneously took credit for only the FICA tax withheld rather than the usually larger income tax withheld. They didn't know what 'FICA' meant, and the GAO's W-2 form had no explanation of the term."

Saudi horseman purchasing farm

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — An internationally known Saudi prince is buying a horse farm in the heart of the Bluegrass country.

Prince Khalid Abdullah reportedly is purchasing Belair Farm Ltd. in Lexington and another farm in Ireland for a total of nearly $30 million. The transaction is expected to be completed shortly, according to the British real estate agent handling the sale.

Under the agreement, the prince will acquire more than 1,100 acres in Lexington and Ireland plus a collection of breeding stock.

Stock exchange agreement ready

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (UPI) — Bendix Corp. officials say when the firm is merged with a subsidiary of Allied Corp., Bendix common shareholders will receive a preferred stock and notes as well as Allied common stock.

Under an agreement between the two firms, each Bendix share will be exchanged for 1.3 shares of Allied common plus fixed-income securities valued at $38.50 on a fully distributed basis. These securities will consist of new nonconvertible preferred stock and two new series of Allied notes.

Allied said it expects to issue up to 15.3 million new Allied common shares and new nonconvertible preferred stock valued at about $293 million and notes valued at about $158 million to acquire up to 11.7 million Bendix shares outstanding at the time of the merger.

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFF

"The usual fortune of complaint is to excite contempt more than pity." — Samuel Johnson.

Declarer complained bitterly after he blew today's ice-cold game. "Three bad things had to happen for me to have gone down," he lamented. "Only one good thing had to happen for you to make it," was the caustic reply.

The spade deuce was ducked in dummy and East's king won. East found the fine shift to clubs and declarer's ace was knocked out. With only seven top tricks in sight, the diamond finesse was imperative, and when that lost, the defenders beat the game by two tricks.

"I make the game if West holds the spade king, if East doesn't find the club shift or if East has the diamond king. It's a sign of poor luck when I go zero for three."

"You didn't need any of those chances," corrected North. "All you had to do was to win the first trick with the ace of spades and take a finesse in your longest suit. West would win the trick, but you would be safe against any defense. If West continues spades, you would have made an overtrick. And with any other lead, you would have had nine top tricks (one spade, three hearts, four diamonds and one club)."

Bruin girls miss by two, Jerome wins 10th

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

BOISE — It couldn't have gotten any tighter for team honors in the Class A division of the Idaho State Cross-Country Championships Friday.

Coeur d'Alene had to go to its sixth girl to nip Twin Falls for the girls championship while Highland won the boys crown over Borah on the same basis.

But it wasn't close in the B division where Jerome Coach Tim Dunne watched his boys romp off with a 10th straight championship. Welser nipped Wood River 37-45 for the girls crown.

Twin Falls also wound up tied in the boys division and had to go to the sixth runner's placing to move into fourth place ahead of Capital.

The difference in the girls Class A title was two points, even going to the sixth runner. The Vikings' Diane Kelly finished 40th, two ahead of Bruin Susie Crow.

In the boys division, Steve Sexton's 25th-place showing for sixth-place beat Borah's sixth runner, Randy Osgood, by eight places.

Meanwhile, Wood River sophomore

Crosscountry

Maureen McGinnis took the individual championship, but couldn't quite bring the Wolverines into first place.

In the boys B division, Jerome placed three in the top six — runner-up Kurt Foote, fourth-place finisher Barrett Craig and sixth-place finisher Greg Bartholomew. Lance Gines' 13th-place effort locked up the title.

Because the state meet includes individual runners who are not members of the team, certain displacers are withdrawn from the final team point standings. Before those non-displacers were removed in the girls A race, Twin Falls held a 101-103 advantage on Coeur d'Alene.

The Vikings had come into the event with a strong showing in district but that was something the southern teams couldn't gauge. From a southern Idaho standpoint, it was Pocatello and Capital and then a squabble among Twin Falls, Meridian and Idaho Falls.

Bruin Coach Duane Stands approached this meet as he has the past couple of weeks — aiming at Capital and Pocatello.

"We beat everyone we set out to beat — we just didn't know about Coeur d'Alene," Stands said. "Our goal was to have everyone run at Nancy (McGinnis). She's our leader and we told the other girls to go after her. They all did, especially Teesle Szubert. Teesle beat her. We wanted our top five girls to run within 30 seconds of each other. Even with Teesle winning, there was only a 29-second lapse from our first to our fifth girl."

Stands, who was hopeful of repeating as team champion and getting the eighth title in nine years, said he couldn't be disappointed in the showing in the final analysis.

"There's always room to improve. You can point to probably a dozen places. But the key thing is, our girls ran their best in the two most impor-

Murtaugh High defensive tackle Russ Riggs upends Mackay High's Randy Nelson at the line of scrimmage

Red Devils face Wilder in playoffs

Murtaugh ends perfect regular season

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

MURTAUGH — The Murtaugh Red Devils have had things their way all season, but they probably haven't enjoyed a victory as one-sided as their 38-0 pasting of the Mackay Miners Friday afternoon.

By maximizing a perfect 9-0 season, Murtaugh once again displayed its most prominent 1982 characteristic — dominance. Yet the Red Devils were probably in more control during their latest triumph than they were in any game this year.

Murtaugh rarely allowed the Miners to escape their half of the field. Mackay passed the 50-yard line just once, advancing as far as the Red Devils' 15. But that was late in the game, and even then, the Miners couldn't score.

Accordingly, the margin of victory was Murtaugh's largest this year. "These guys were 'jacked,'" Murtaugh Coach Jim Anderson said of his players. "They didn't want to lose this last game."

The Red Devils won't want to lose their next game, either. Murtaugh will face Wilder Friday in the opening round of the A-4 state playoffs at 7 p.m. at Twin Falls High School. "We're gonna go big time now," Anderson said.

Tim Gott and Roy Nebeker gave big-time performances against Mackay. Gott rushed for 122 yards on 19 carries and scored the Red Devils' first and last touchdowns, both on 1-yard runs. Nebeker completed 11 of 16 passes for 218 yards and 3 TDs, two to James Matthews.

Murtaugh surged to the Miners 8 on its first possession of the game

Few slip-ups for Bruins in 28-12 triumph

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — On a night where it was easy to slip, the Twin Falls Bruins kept their footing in the Gem State Conference race.

Before the game degenerated into a continuation of penalties, the Bruins assaulted the Bonneville Bees with stout defense and sufficient offense to prevail Friday, 28-12.

The Bruins' triumph, coupled with Pocatello's 10-6 victory over Skyline, thrusts them into a tie for second place with the Grizzlies and Bonneville at 5-1. For Twin Falls to finish second and gain a berth in the state playoffs, the Bruins have to defeat Blackfoot next week while Skyline must lose to Bonneville.

"We're not out of the woods yet," Twin Falls Coach Bill Jones explained. "But this is a great win for us."

The Bruins didn't achieve victory in the moderate, but constant rain without a struggle. Leading 14-6 at halftime, Twin Falls extended its cushion to 21-6 on Mike Ulrich's 25-yard interception return and Brent Standing's third of four extra point kicks with 6:21 left in the third period.

The Bees then used the rest of the quarter and four seconds of the fourth to come within 21-12 on Steve Jorgenson's 2-yard run. But Twin Falls stifled quarterback Rich Clements' run on the conversion, meaning the Bees would have to score more than a touchdown and a two-point conversion to surpass the Bruins. "I thought that was really important," Jones said.

Just as important was the Bruins' defensive effort on Bonneville's next two possessions. The first time, Clements relied almost exclusively on the pass to lead the Bees from their own 15-yard line to Twin Falls' 43. Once there, however, Bonneville stalled: Twin Falls' Marc Kleinkopf batted down a pass, Jorgenson dropped a screen pass and Clements fired consecutive incompletions.

Bonneville regained possession with 2:44 left when Bruin quarterback Mike Rice fumbled the snap at the Bees' 25. Clements threw to tight end Mike Biddulph for 12 yards on Bonneville's first play, but Bruin defensive back Brock Miller broke up Clements' next pass.

Then came the last play of the game. Clements left-handed a pass

Bonneville's coaches and players, however, vehemently protested that Kelli had been interfered with. Three personal foul calls and an offside penalty — all against the Bees — enabled the Bruins to move from Bonneville's 43 to its 2 while running just one play.

From there, Rice plunged in with 1:10 to go before Standing added the extra point, ending the scoring.

The evening wasn't always so bad for the Bees. They received the opening kickoff, and on the second play from scrimmage Wade Sheets burst up the middle and capped 82 yards for a touchdown.

"We were in a stack defense; we had been working all week long on stopping the veer, and we didn't anticipate the dive," Jones explained. "I know that's poor on our part."

Nothing was poor about Twin Falls' ensuing possession: a 60-yard, 11-play march culminating in Virgil Hurt's 3-yard touchdown run. Hurt's running accounted for 44 yards on the drive. Standing's extra point gave Twin Falls a 7-6 lead with 5:30 left in the first quarter.

With their defense almost totally dominating Blackfoot — the Bees gained just two first downs in the first half — the Bruins increased their advantage to 14-6 on Corky Federico's 1-yard run with 4:21 left before halftime and Standing's second kick.

As they did in the final Bruin touchdown, penalties assisted the score. On third-and-12 from Bonneville's 29, Rice threw up the right sideline to wide receiver Doug Clark, enabling Bonneville's Bart Larson to intercept the pass. But the officials called pass interference on Bee defender Joel Richardson, giving the Bruins a first down at the 14.

A horde of Bees threw Rice for a loss, but a late-bit penalty advanced the ball to the 11, from where Federico danced in on the next play.

Bonneville 5 0 0 6-12
Twin Falls 7 7 7 21-12
11 - Sheets 62 run (kick failed)
11 - Hurt 3 run (standing kick)
11 - Federico 1 run (standing kick)
11 - Ulrich 25 interception return (standing kick)
11 - Jorgenson 2 run (run failed)
11 - Ulrich 2 run (standing kick)

Camas County's Mike Faulkner strains to stop Carey senior Mike Shaffer's long gain on the Musers' snow-covered field

Eight-man showdown

Carey leaves little doubt about which is Magic Valley's best

By MARV CLEMONS
Times-News sports editor

FAIRFIELD — If anybody had doubts about which team was Magic Valley's best eight-man football squad, Carey High made a convincing case for itself Friday afternoon.

Scoring 30 points in the first quarter alone, the Panthers crushed rival Camas County 48-0 on a snowy field to capture the Sawtooth Conference Championship and home berth in next week's eight-man playoffs against Council.

In addition, the Panthers completed an undefeated regular season.

Camas County Coach Ed Blankenship was optimistic at the outset as he looked at a home field covered with four inches of snow.

"It's exactly what I ordered," he said as the flakes continued to fall. "It won't help either of us, but it should slow down some of Carey's speed to the outside."

Within minutes, Carey's Todd Wesche, a transfer student from Boulder City, Nev., had left Blankenship's theory in his footprints as he swept right end for 55 yards and a Panther touchdown on just the third play of the game.

Panther quarterback Brad Tingey hit Neil Parke on a quick out to the two-point conversion.

Wesche's outside speed, perhaps, might've been considered a fluke play on the slippery turf. But after the Musers were forced to punt on their first possession, Parke showed more agility and speed as he returned the kick 60 yards for another TD.

Tingey's pass to Andy O'Crowley was good and the Panthers led 16-0 after three minutes into the game.

"The snow didn't hurt us," Carey skipper Heber Kirkland said after the game. "We practiced in the rain every day this week and we worked with the backs on their running."

Wesche, who missed two games this season with a fractured finger and suffered some numbness in the digit during Friday's game, upped Carey's lead to 24-0 when he swept left end for a 36-yard TD run and also added the two-pointer.

The Musers, who will travel to Cascade for next week's playoff semifinals, showed some signs of life late in the first quarter when quarterback Lonnie Funkhouser ripped off a 25-yard gain to midfield. But a clipping injury to the game, upped Carey's lead to 24-0 when he swept left end for a 36-yard TD run and also added the two-pointer.

The Panthers moved 36 yards in three plays in the closing minutes of the first quarter to have Parke bang over from the one. Parke's conversion run was stopped by a determined Camas County defense, but the Panthers had a 30-0 lead with less than 12 minutes played.

Wesche went to his left for a 36-yard and a six-pointer in the second quarter, giving the Panthers' fans, who outnumbered Camas County backers about three-to-one, a 36-0 cheering factor at the half.

Parke's 11-yard TD run in the third quarter and Mike Shaffer's 46-yard sweep of left end in the fourth quarter simply upped Carey's verdict by a dozen points.

Camas fans had a chance to cheer in the second half when Kurt Swartz leaped high into the air to steal a Carey pass, but Tingey answered back with his own interception on the Musers' next play.

Carey mustered 395 yards total offense, including 364 on the ground. Wesche, who was sealing his first action in a month because of the broken bone, had 138 yards rushing while Parke gathered 74 yards on 12 carries. Shaffer added 64 on just seven attempts and Mark Conrad cracked the middle of the line six times for 49 yards.

"Todd gave us an added dimension we hadn't had for quite a while," Kirkland said.

Wesche had regained feeling in his right little finger by the end of the game and is expected to be ready for next week's playoff game.

Camas County finished with minus five yards as it fell to 7-2 on the season. The Musers went to the shotgun during much of the second half in an attempt to throw and Carey's defense was able to sack Funkhouser more often than not.

As for Jerome, winning the 10th straight Class B title wasn't that big on Durre's personal list.

"I'm excited for the kids. It's great when they can win on their year. No one wants to be on the team that ends the streak. But I didn't think that much about No. 10. Just this year. After who wins more than a couple times in a row, the percentages start running against you," he said.

For the first time in nine years, it was bad weather at the Shadow Valley Golf Course. It was calm enough but a steady drizzle had been about 7 a.m. softened and slickened the course. Several runners fell, including Class A girl champion Carol Bradley of Pocatello. She fell hard in mid-course and appeared stunned with difficulty getting up. The fall cost her probably 60 yards but she made it up and won by 20.

In the boys' A division, Twin Falls' Chris Williams and Steve Summers did something they haven't done all year — beat Minico's Albert Lara —

However, the Red Devils got it right the next time, as Golt notched his first TD with 2:51 left in the first quarter. The conversion attempt failed.

The Red Devils followed with a 22-point second-quarter explosion to take a 28-0 lead at halftime and essentially settle matters.

Early in the period, Nebeker bounced a punt for 57 yards all the way to Mackay's 11, trapping the Miners drastically. Unable to sustain a drive, the Miners had to punt, but their kick traveled only five yards, giving the Red Devils priceless field position at Mackay's 15.

Three plays later on third-and-1 at the 16, Nebeker completed a short swiping pass on the right side to Mat-

Jerome edges Buhl; will play Soda Springs

Buhl played on-pride night, but Jerome took an 18-15 win in a fourth-quarter score.

Jerome's win guarantees Jerome will play Soda Springs in the first round of the playoffs. The game will be played at Jerome, Soda Springs defeated Marsh Valley 8-6 to win the district crown Friday night.

A rainy night greeted Indian fans who saw their club miss a field goal from about 35 yards out with 40 seconds left to play. That effort earned a nine-point Buhl scoring drive after Marsh Lang ran one in 57 yards out. The conversion was successful, with Buhl's defense later forcing Jerome's quarterback out of his own end zone for a safety.

Because Buhl is out of league conference, secondary Coach Ben Allen said the Indians were told they had to "concede tonight."

"The kids still really wanted it," he said. "So we hope it's a sign they'll want it even more next year. They did pretty good the second half."

Part of the reason Buhl looked good, the coach conceded, was because Jerome quarterback Bob Stone, who scored on an 11-yard run in the second quarter, was thrown out in the third period because of a "misunderstanding" with a Buhl player.

Buhl reacted, Allen said, by going to a six-man front, putting pressure on backup quarterback Shaun Black. Black later ran in what turned out to be Jerome's winning TD of the night on a 1-yard run.

Jerome finishes its up-and-down regular season at 5-4, while Buhl falls to 1-8.

Kimberly 20, Glenns Ferry 0

GLENN'S FERRY — Behind Tony Jackson's three interceptions, the Kimberly Bulldogs defeated the Glenns Ferry Pilots 20-0 Friday night in the final Canyon Conference game of the season for both teams.

Kimberly will meet Grangeville Nov. 6 at 1 p.m. at Kimberly in the first round of the A-3 state playoffs. Zapalad defeated Kamiah 50-18 Friday night — to make — Grangeville — the runner-up team in its district.

Despite a rain-slicked field, the Bulldogs were able to move the ball well and never allowed the Pilots to get ten inside the 30-yard line.

Kimberly's 50-yard return of a Glenns Ferry pass set up Kimberly's score on Tim Cordier's 3-yard run.

Kimberly's final touchdown of the game came from a 25-yard run by RB running back Todd Morris.

The Bulldogs' defense was an impressive wall. "When we got close, they simply turned us away without a fight," said Pilot Coach Paul Shrum.

Kimberly's secondary totaled five interceptions, adding to Glenns' misery.

The decision left Glenns Ferry 1-5 in the season play and 2-6 overall in the season.

Filer 20, Gooding 14 (ot)

FILER — Sparked by a strong and consistent offensive line, the Filer Wildcats defeated the Gooding Senators 20-14 in overtime Friday night in a season-ending Canyon Conference game.

After a few opening exchanges, Filer engineered a 30-yard drive that culminated in Scott Dunlap's 22-yard screen pass to Lee Chadwick.

Then, with only two minutes left in the first half, Ben Sackett scored on a 14-yard pass from "Lonnie" Brown to complete another Wildcat drive.

But the Senators retaliated with a drive of their own as Paul Childs scored early in the fourth quarter and tacked on the two-point conversion.

With only 50 seconds left in the game, Childs plunged for a score from the 10 that tied the game.

On the conversion, Filer's Greg Hall leaped high into the air, blocking any hopes of a victory for Gooding and sent the game into overtime.

Filer won the coin toss and elected to run their four offensive plays (the conference's tie-breaking procedure) first.

"Our defense needed that motivation," said Coach Joe Leach. "It was a very physical game and I was concerned that the offense might tire without an advantage."

After three unsuccessful running plays, Sackett's 10-yard pass to Dunlap gave Filer the eventual winning touchdown.

Leach's strategy worked, as a determined defense held Gooding scoreless on its possession of the overtime.

The decision left Filer 1-5 in conference play, and 3-5 overall. Gooding completed the season 2-4 in league play and 3-6 overall.

Declo 48, Wendell 20

WENDELL — Second-place Canyon Conference Declo finished eliminated any lingering doubts it deserved that ranking by blowing past league opponent Wendell 48-20 here Friday.

The rain-swept game saw the playoff-bound Hornets put up 26 quick points in the first quarter and two more scores in the second before Wendell's defense could find its receivers.

Declo junior running back Lynn Osterhout opened up Wendell's defense with a 60-yard touchdown run in the second play from scrimmage.

Minutes later, Osterhout, ran in another from 10 yards, then capped his night with a third score, again from the 10.

Hornet running back Rod Butters did more than his fair share, scoring three touchdowns on a 92-yard kickoff return and runs of 30 and 2 yards.

Wendell scored as Bertagnoli connected with Dave Swanson on a 20-yard pass and Dave Adams on a 60-yard effort. Wendell's final score, coming in the fourth quarter, came on Bertagnoli's 1-yard run.

"We were pretty pleased with our performance," said Wendell Coach Frank Stevens. "The team came out and played much better football the second half — especially the defense."

As far as his defense was concerned, Stevens credited standouts Calvin Campbell, who had eight tackles, and Paulo Cioce, who had seven. He added he was pleased with the running of Brett Thackerby, who had 59 yards on the ground in the second half.

Declo finishes its regular season with a mark of 7-2, their only league loss coming to Canyon Conference leader Kimberly. Wendell concludes its season at 3-6 overall, 2-4 in conference.

Hagerman 21, Hansen 7

HAGERMAN — Coach Skip Pauls' Hagerman Pirates picked up their third score to snap a five-game losing streak, beating Hansen 21-7 Friday night.

"I think it's important we end the season on a winning note," said Pauls. "The kids here care a lot. It's good to see that we can play this kind of football."

Pauls' kind of football began on a shaky note, as the score was tied in the first quarter.

Hagerman's Greg Lock scored from two yards out, after Hansen fumbled a snap on its 25-yard line. Hansen scored immediately after that, on an estimated 75-yard kickoff return by Steve Eiman.

Mark Jones of Hagerman ended the first-half scoring on a six-yard off-tackle run to the right, which came as the result of an interception. The Pirates' final score was from three yards out on a run by West Owsley.

Defensively, too, Hagerman, Rick Clarkston was tops with 10 tackles and five assists. Helping Clarkston was Owsley, who had five tackles.

Hagerman finished the season with a 3-3 mark, while Hansen tought out a long season at 0-8.

Richfield 32, Shoshone 0

SHOSHONE — A tough year ended for Shoshone as the Indians dropped their final game of the season at the hands of the Richfield Tigers 32-0 Friday night.

The loss dropped the Indians' overall record to 1-8 while the Tigers moved to 3-6.

The Tigers scored two quick touchdowns in the first quarter, the first coming on Jimmy Newberry's 37-yard run and the second from Darren Exon's 42-yard romp into the end zone. Richfield managed to convert one of the two PATs, that coming on Exon's pass to Jerry Robinson, giving the Tigers a 14-0 advantage.

The second quarter featured fine offensive and defensive play by both teams, but only Richfield managed to score, tallying on Garr Ward's 2-yard surge widen the margin at 20-0 at halftime.

Despite two long second-half drives, the Indians just couldn't come up with the score while the Tigers managed two scores in the third and fourth quarters, the first on Exon's 2-yard plunge and the second on Newberry's 5-yard scamper to paydirt.

Despite the loss, Shoshone's Mike Aslett gained 119 yards on 28 carries.

Valley 29, Oakley 13

OAKLEY — Despite some fine offensive play by the Oakley, the Valley Vikings overwhelmed the Hornets 29-13 Friday night.

The Vikings, a 6-3 season performance by the Viking while the Hornets dropped to 5-3 overall.

Valley was first to score late in the first half on Marlin Mussmann's one-yard run. A pass from Gary Taylor to Dwight Barreick for the two-point conversion gave the Viking a 8-0 advantage at the half.

Valley was quick to score in the third quarter on David Tilley's one-yard run, but Oakley bounced back on Rick Adams' eight-yard pass from Mike Martin for a 16-6 edge.

Then, late in the third quarter Craig Black scored from 21 yards out, giving the Viking's a 23-6 advantage.

Both teams scored in the fourth quarter with Martin converting a 60-yard pass for Oakley, to Guss Gorringer, but that wasn't enough as Mussmann rambled in from the five to ice the game for Valley.

Castleford 26, Raft River 0

MALTA — Senior running back Rob Owen scored all four Castleford touchdowns as the Wolves defeated Raft River 26-0 Friday night in a season-ending-Magic-Valley-Conference game.

Four interceptions, two blocked punts and two fumbles played Raft River throughout the game.

Owen's first score, a 23-yard run, came after the Wolves blocked a Raft River punt. A fumble by Raft River on their 28-yard line set up Owen's second TD, a 4-yard run, with only 55 seconds left in the first half.

Raft River's second fumble of the game came on the second-half kickoff. Castleford quickly capitalized on the mistake as Owen scored on the 28 on the next play from scrimmage.

Owen completed Castleford's scoring for the night, returning an intercepted pass 38 yards for a TD early in the fourth quarter.

"We were never able to amount a serious threat the entire game," according to Raft River Coach Olani Wallace.

Friday's victory left Castleford 5-1 in Magic Valley Conference play and 8-1 overall for the season.

Carey

Carey can continue its perfect season against Council next week. The game is tentatively scheduled for 2 p.m. at Carey.

"We didn't get a chance to scout them," Soik didn't know a thing about them," Kirkland was elated. "If we play the same type of ball we did here today, the title can be ours. We'll just have to see what a new team offers and try and meet that challenge."

As for the perfect regular season that saw the Panthers outscore their opposition 368-32 with four shutouts in seven games, Kirkland was elated. "It's something that doesn't happen very often and it's kind of hard to believe," he said. "It's been a pretty good year for us."

All 6 Magic Valley teams advance to today's title play

By The Times-News

Each of Magic Valley's six teams is alive in the girls state volleyball tournaments after the first day of play.

Twin Falls, Wood River, Gooding, Shoshone, Hagerman and Dietrich all won at least one match in Friday's final play to gain today's championship round. Four teams are left alive in each class of the four tournaments.

The details:

Twin Falls gained the second round with a split in Friday's pool play.

The Bruins, one of four surviving teams, will face Sandpoint today at 10 a.m.

Friday morning the Bruins faced Meridian and suffered a three-game loss. Meridian won the first game 19-17 before the Bruins reeled off a 15-0 decision. The Warriors regrouped and scored a 16-14 verdict to win the match.

"We played really well," Twin Falls Coach Kathleen Anderson said. "It was a match that could have gone either way. If anything hurt us down the stretch it was some poor serving and some hits into the net, but it was just a matter of a few points that decided the match."

The Bruins came back Friday evening to defeat Blackfoot 7-15, 15-5, 15-11.

"We didn't play well against Blackfoot, but we won," Anderson said. "We just kept hanging in there and we had a pretty good serving string at the end to win it."

After the Bruins and Sandpoint do battle, Idaho Falls and Shoshone will meet at 12 p.m. today. The final is scheduled for 8 p.m. at Idaho Falls High.

A-2
At Idaho Falls, Wood River advanced to today's final via the tie-breaker system after all three teams in its pool split their matches Friday.

Wood River defeated Meridian in the opener 15-5, 15-11 before Meridian defeated defending state champion Preston 15-9, 15-7. Preston then came back Friday evening and downed Wood River 15-9, 8-15, 18-16.

The tie-breaker is based on winning percentage, so Meridian and Wood River advance since Meridian was 3-2 and the Wolverines were 3-3. Preston was 2-3.

Meridian, the pool champion, will meet Valley at 10 a.m. today while Wood River will tangle with St. Maries at 11:30 a.m. St. Maries won its pool with two victories over the only undefeated team in the A-2 tourney.

A-3
Gooding and Shoshone, playing in the same pool both advanced to today's championship round.

The Senators won the pool championship by defeating both Sugar-Salem and Shoshone while the Indians defeated Sugar-Salem in the early play before falling to the rival Senators in three games.

Shoshone may be in trouble for today's title round since top players Anne Warbis and Clarin Osborn suffered injuries in the first game against Gooding Friday night and had to be taken to a hospital. The extent of the injuries wasn't known late Friday night, but Gooding Coach John Toone said Osborn suffered a locked knee and Warbis "came down wrong on her ankle and may have tendon or ligament damage."

Gooding downed Sugar-Salem 15-6 and 15-10 in the morning before taking Shoshone 15-10, 9-15, 18-16 Friday night.

Kelly Fosseecco and Sandy Hinkle each scored nine points for the Senators in the win over Sugar-Salem while Dione York and Julie Clemens paced the spiking attack. In the match against Shoshone, York and Fosseecco each scored 13 points.

"I can't say that we had a good spiker against Shoshone," Toone said. "The two Shoshone girls got hurt in the first game and neither team played really great."

Shoshone defeated Sugar-Salem 15-4, 13-15, 15-8 in its earlier action.

Shoshone plays Fruitland at 10 a.m. today and Gooding faces Malad at 11:30 a.m. in the first matches of the double-elimination round. The finals are slated for 8:30 p.m.

Toone is optimistic about today's action.

"If we can put some games together we can win it," she said. "Maybe we can get some fans up here to help us. Most of them were at the football game Friday night and we'll need them here to help us. It's mainly been just parents so far."

A-4
At Meridian, Magic Valley entries Dietrich and Hagerman advanced along with Troy and Cambridge to today's championship round.

Troy and Dietrich won their pools to be the two undefeated teams.

Troy defeated Plummer 15-8, 15-4, then later in the day downed Hagerman 15-9, 15-12. Dietrich beat Leadore 15-5, 15-3 then moved on to trounce Cambridge 15-12, 15-9.

Hagerman also defeated Plummer 15-7, 16-14, while Cambridge downed Leadore 15-12, 15-10.

Dietrich faces Hagerman at 10 a.m. today while Troy faces Cambridge at 11:30 a.m. The losers will meet at 1:15 p.m. and the winners will play at 2:45 p.m. The fifth match will be at 7 p.m. and the championship will be at 8 p.m. with a 10 p.m. match if necessary because of the double-elimination format.

Sides attack Davis' plan, NFL talks resume

NEW YORK (UPI) — On the brink of resumed strike negotiations between the NFL's Management Council and the Players Association, both sides fired some final salvos Friday over a plan developed by Los Angeles Raiders' owner Al Davis.

Talks will resume today at 9 a.m. MDT in a midtown hotel as the first regular-season strike in the league's 63-year history enters its 40th day with little indication that either side has budged from positions which have been unchanged for eight months and polarized by a $30-million a week strike.

Once again, 73-year-old San Francisco attorney Sam Kagel will attempt to find common ground between the union and league owners on the key issue of how the NFL's $1.6 billion proposal should be distributed to players. The union is calling for a wage scale based on seniority tied to the number of years owners prefer the policy of individual salary negotiations.

Kagel presided over 12 days of fruitless bargaining sessions in Hunt Valley, Md., and recessed the talks last Saturday.

On Friday, the NFLPA filed additional unfair labor practice charges against chief owners' negotiator Jack Donlan, Davis and Marvin Demoff, a player agent. The union said the three have been polling player reps directly about the "Davis plan," a proposal which calls for wage increases of at least $20,000 per player.

"Clearly that violates the (unfair labor practices) act," said Players Association executive director Ed Garvey. "We are outraged by the fact that just on the eve of negotiations and just after Jack Donlan finished talking with the (National Labor-Relations Board) general counsel, now they start calling the player reps directly."

"I think it's time the commissioner of the National Football League (Pete Rozelle) got hold of the situation on their side and tell them to start obeying the law, get the table and get this resolved," he said.

On Friday night, Chuck Sullivan, chairman of the Management Council's executive committee, responded to Garvey's charges in a prepared statement.

ED GARVEY

"Al Davis is not authorized to speak on behalf of the Management Council or its executive director, Jack Donlan," said Sullivan. "He neither had the authority to make a collective bargaining proposal nor was he being used by Donlan as our agent to test the acceptability of his proposal with player representatives.

JACK DONLAN

Such undermining conduct alleged by the Players Association would disrupt the collective bargaining efforts of both players and club owners.

"The Management Council Executive Committee will investigate the charges against Mr. Davis promptly and schedule a disciplinary hearing under provisions of our constitution if allegations contained in the union charge prove to be true."

Sullivan said the union has indicated to Kagel it was preparing to offer a "modification of their proposal," at Saturday's bargaining session, but the Players Association has repeatedly denied speculation it will enter the weekend talks with a new formula.

"We want the owners to respond to their five-point criteria for a settlement — immediate wage increases, reduction of wage disparities, a fair share of future league revenues, incentive bonuses and protection for veterans," said union president Gene Upshaw.

The NLRB Wednesday provided the union with some firepower in the negotiations by issuing a complaint against the 28 league teams, citing the Management Council's "bad faith" with the Players Association.

A hearing was ordered for Nov. 15 in New York on the charges and (the complaint is upheld in court, the striking players may be entitled to back pay. The owners were given 10 days to respond to the complaint.)

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said teams should play at least 10 more games to constitute an acceptable season. All NFL teams played only two games each prior to the strike.

"Surely you don't want to play 10 or 12 more and have a season," Landry said. "It would have to be in the area of 10 or 11 or 12 games or that sort. Of course Garvey feels like he can have a complete season. Most people don't agree with that. I think it gets a little bit cold in February and January to play football."

Brilliant sports

Puckster remains 'poor'

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (UPI) — Normand Leveille, the 39-year-old Boston Bruins' left winger who suffered a brain hemorrhage during an NHL game last weekend, remained in poor condition Friday in the intensive care unit at Vancouver General Hospital.

A VGH spokesman said there had been no change in Leveille's condition since he underwent a six-hour operation last Saturday after collapsing in the Bruins' dressing room during the first-period intermission of a game against the Vancouver Canucks.

He has been in a coma and breathing with the assistance of a respirator since the operation, the spokesman said.

His neurosurgeon, Dr. Barrie Woodhurst, who has refused to speak to reporters, has said through hospital spokesmen that Leveille's condition all week has neither deteriorated nor improved.

Woodhurst conceded there had been some brain damage, but its extent could not yet be determined.

McAdoo finally inks with L.A.

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Bob McAdoo, the fifth leading scorer among active NBA players and a three-time scoring champion, has signed a multi-year contract with the Los Angeles Lakers, the team announced Friday.

The deal was worked out more than a week ago, but league technicians held the official signing. McAdoo, reportedly frustrated by the red tape, returned to his New Jersey home last week to wait out the postponement in the signing.

He flew to Los Angeles Thursday night and finally signed the contract four hours after his arrival. McAdoo was scheduled to sit on the bench Friday night when the Lakers began their quest to become the first team since the 1969 Boston Celtics to successfully defend the NBA crown.

Further terms of the agreement were not disclosed.

Shriver steals tennis spotlight

LONDON (UPI) — Martina Navratilova, Chris Evert Lloyd and Tracy Austin scored expected victories in a $150,000 tournament at Brighton Friday, but it was Pam Shriver who stole the limelight with a 4-6, 6-3, 6-3 victory over Romanian Virginia Ruzici to reach the semifinals.

In all-American clashes, Navratilova downed American Barbara Potter 6-4, 6-2, Evert Lloyd ousted Leigh Ann Thompson 6-1, 6-0 and Austin walloped JoAnne Russell 6-0, 6-2.

But Shriver had more of a struggle against Ruzici in a match which lasted for more than two hours.

Shriver, talked, joked and laughed her way into the last four where she will face Evert, but Ruzici was not amused by her antics, and stormed after losing. "I got distracted by her mad behavior."

"I was not playing tough tennis so I just started talking to myself," said Shriver. "It doesn't do me any good just to stand there and say nothing. If I don't say anything I just boil up and get furious."

TPC payoff to be $700,000

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — The PGA's 1983 Tournament Players Championship will offer an record purse of $700,000 — $200,000 more than last year, officials said Friday.

"The TPC is the forefront of the tour," PGA Tour Commissioner Deane R. Beman said. "This is the tour's showcase tournament. We have the best field of any tournament and the purse should be paid accordingly."

"We think we are at the top in spectator amenities and golf course design and condition, and the purse is just another way of remaining at the forefront," he said. "We're also looking forward to donating more money to local charities."

First place, or 18 percent of the winnings, will be $126,000 — $4,000 more than pocketed by last year's leading tour money-winner, Billy Casper.

The $700,000 was more than the entire 26-tournament tour purse was worth in 1981.

Cowens will start for Bucks

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Dave Cowens, who is coming off a two-year self-imposed retirement, will return to the NBA tonight as a starting forward for the Milwaukee Bucks.

Cowens, 34, said Friday the 34-year-old former All-Pro center will start opposite Marques Johnson when the Bucks open their season at home against the New York Knicks.

The 6-foot-9, 225-pound Cowens was given the nod over Mickey Johnson, the starter the last few seasons, even though Johnson's statistics were slightly better in the exhibition season.

Nelson also said he will start Brian Winters at the guard spot opposite Sidney Moncrief, a position left vacant when the Bucks traded Quinn Buckner, to the Boston Celtics for Cowens.

Bob Lanier, the 12-year veteran, will start at center. Nelson said this week has been wrestling with the decisions on Cowens and Winters, who had a back problem and missed all but the last exhibition game when he played 15 minutes.

Lawyers want charges dropped

MIAMI (UPI) — Attorneys for 10 race car drivers and mechanics charged with conspiring to import marijuana have asked that their clients be cleared after charges against one defendant were dismissed for lack of evidence.

When the lawyers file those requests in writing, their requests will join a stack of at least 1,100 other written motions in the case.

Defense attorneys charge that the NASCAR mechanics and drivers were improperly indicted without enough evidence to convict them. Prosecutors decline to discuss the case.

U.S. District Judge Sidney Aronovitz ordered lawyers for NASCAR defendants to file written motions for dismissal of the charges after he freed pit mechanic Gene Johnson Thursday.

Prosecutors said Johnson took part in tape-recorded conversations planning the smuggling operation, but they never proved the voice in the taped phone calls was Johnson's.

Johnson's fingerprints and name were missing from "bale lists" prosecutors say were used to account for the six million pounds of Colombian marijuana. Also, none of the 71 crimes mentioned in the 35-page indictment were attributed to Johnson.

Hagler faces Obelmejias tonight

Middleweight champ takes it easy before title rematch

SAN REMO, Italy (UPI) — World middleweight boxing champion Marvin Hagler of the United States was taking life easy Friday in the final hours before his weekend title defense against Venezuelan Fulgencio Obelmejias of Venezuela at the Italian Riviera gambling resort.

"Marvin's just taking long walks, everything's beautiful, he's strong as a bull," manager Pat Petronelli said at Hagler's San Remo headquarters hotel. "Marvin will finish off Obelmejias once and for all in this fight."

The championship fight, Hagler's second defense in two years against the 23-year-old Venezuelan, is scheduled for 3:20 a.m. Sunday (8:20 p.m. MDT today). The bout will be telecast live to the United States on Home Box Office.

Obelmejias lost on a technical knockout against "Marvelous Marvin" as he is now officially known, in the eighth round of their Jan. 17, 1981 fight in Boston.

The Venezuelan has been training far from the glitter and hubbub of this seaside resort and his entourage was scheduled to arrive in San Remo late Friday evening.

The late starting time of the bout, in which Obelmejias is "guaranteed" a $100,000 purse, does not seem to be a problem.

"For us the problem doesn't even arise," Obelmejias' manager Luis Baretto said. "You have to take into consideration he has been training in Italy for more than two weeks and is acclimated to the time change. He'll have a rest Friday and Saturday before taking the world title from Hagler."

But most boxing experts predict that Obelmejias has his work cut out for him. Hagler has not lost since 1976, when he stumbled to his only pair of career defeats against Willie Monroe and Bobby "Bugalo" Watts.

The fight against Obelmejias will earn Hagler $600,000, his best payday ever.

Hagler, who won the world title from Brian Stann on Sept. 27, 1980, boasts a career record of 45 knockouts over the course of his 58 fights. In his only fight so far this year, he pummeled American challenger William "Caveman" Lee to a first-round defeat.

American boxing promoter Bob Arum, whose Top Rank organization is co-promoting the bout with Italian impresario Rodolfo Sabatini, said Friday that Hagler specifically wanted the fight against Obelmejias to be staged in San Remo.

"Marvin has good memories of San Remo from when he fought here in 1979," Arum said. "Marvin is far and above any middleweight today, but I think Obel will give him as good a fight as anyone."

Arum said the sold-out bout, to be staged in a San Remo cinema, would be seen by at least four million cable television subscribers in the United States.

The world-wide audience for the 15-round fight is expected to reach 500 million. The bout will be telecast live in South America, South Korea, England, Japan and Italy.

There are forecasts for both fights shows planned this weekend as the networks pounce up boxing programming to fill the void left by the NFL playoffs strike.

This afternoon, Hector Camacho, the unbeaten (17-0) junior lightweight from the Bronx, N.Y., whose flamboyant style has made him a television favorite, will take on Melvin Paul (15-1) in a 10-rounder at Atlantic City, N.J. On the undercard of the show, which will be televised by CBS, Harry Arroyo, will face Joe Manley, Jr., a 10-round junior welterweight bout.

Tonight in Las Vegas, Nevada, former lightweight champion Salvo O'Grady will take on Pete Ranzany in a 10-round welterweight bout. Also on the card, promoted by actor Sylvester Stallone and telecast on cable by ESPN, Vinnie Curto will face Jeff McCall in a 10-round middleweight bout. Monte Masters will take on Elio Acosta in a 10-round heavyweight encounter and Al "Earthquake" Carter will face Arnie Wells, Jr., a 10-round junior welterweight fight.

Sunday in McAfee, N.J., former heavyweight champion Leon Spinks, now fighting as a cruiserweight (155-pound limit), will meet No. 1 ranked Jesse Burnett for the vacant North American Boxing Federation cruiserweight title. Also on the card, to be televised by CBS, No. 3 ranked Azumah Nelson will face eighth-ranked Irving Mitchell in a 10-round featherweight bout and young welterweights James Kinchen and Ralph Moncrief will tangle in a 10-rounder.

NBC will telecast a double-header from Miami Sunday. No. 4 ranked Roger Stafford (20-3-1) will take on unbeaten Fernando Castro (31-0) in a 10-round welterweight bout. Dominican Republic will face Robert Anderson (21-2) in a 10-round junior lightweight fight.

Leonard doesn't offer hints about decision

SAN REMO, Italy (UPI) — World welterweight champion Sugar Ray Leonard was offering no hints Friday about whether he would quit boxing or remain active in the sport that has already brought him estimated career earnings of $2 million.

The 26-year-old undisputed world champion, in town to provide TV color commentary for the United States on this weekend's world middleweight bout between Marvin Hagler and Venezuelan Fulgencio Obelmejias, concealed his plans at an impromptu press conference held at a hotel.

Deflecting questions from the media, Leonard said, "I have no desire to get back into the ring. In fact, that's the last thing on my mind, boxing now."

But then, when asked if he would like to fight Hagler, he replied, "It would be a big payday for both of us."

Leonard faces a Nov. 9 deadline to decide whether to defend his welterweight title. The Palmer Park, Md., fighter underwent an operation for a detached retina last May but added Friday, "My vision has been restored to normal and I'm still contemplating which direction to go now."

A press conference has been arranged Nov. 9 in Baltimore at which he will announce his decision.

Leonard arrived in San Remo Friday, dripping in gold jewelry and accompanied by two huge guards, and said he thought he would put away Obelmejias with ease.

On the possible outcome of the fight, Leonard said, "The caliber of champion that Hagler is, this fight should be just a repeat of the first one."

"Obel could capitalize on mistakes, but the only mistake to make would be Marvin Hagler is to get into the ring with him."

Baseball sues video firm

NEW YORK (UPI) — Major league baseball sued a California company for $100,000 Friday for allegedly violating the trademark law by marketing a video disc entitled "World Series Baseball."

The office of Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said the term "World Series" has long been trademarked. Its unauthorized use, the complaint said, trades on the money and effort spent by the major league teams in promoting "the best known and most widely publicized sports event in the country."

The complaint was filed in U.S. District Court in Manhattan against Datamost, Inc., of Chatsworth, Calif., marketers of software for video games played on home computers. It alleged trademark infringement, unfair competition, and asked that Datamost be barred from marketing the disc and fined $100,000.

Come Monday, Kuhn may be job hunting

By BARRY HORN
Dallas Morning News

"Situation wanted: Princeton-educated, former Wall-Street lawyer, 55, degree from the University of Virginia, has served present employers faithfully through rain, sleet and snow since 1969 only to be advised services no longer needed; is seeking employment. Write Bowie Kuhn c/o Baseball Commissioner's office, New York, N.Y."

If Bowie Kuhn has to place such an ad in the near future, he never again would have to bear an indignity such as being called "the village idiot" live and in color, coast-to-coast, by one of his employers. Never again would he have to sit in the freezing cold, sans warm-weather gear, to prove that yes, you can play baseball at night in mid-October.

Kuhn who has been the commissioner of baseball for 14 seasons, may well be looking for a new vocation very soon. Monday afternoon, Kuhn is expected to be told that his services no longer will be needed when his present seven-year contract expires Aug. 12, 1983. His contract status will be the only item on the agenda when the 26 major league club owners meet in Chicago.

For Kuhn to keep his job, a new contract would have to be approved by at least three-quarters of the owners in each league. That means nine of the 12 National League owners and 10 of the American League's 14 owners. It doesn't appear he has the necessary votes.

At least six National League owners, for a variety of reasons, have indicated that they no longer care to keep Kuhn as commissioner. Even if two should change their minds between now and 1:30 p.m. Monday, Kuhn would not have sufficient support. Because of the three-quarters rule, he could be dropped by as few as four negative votes in the National League or five in the American League.

If the commissioner escapes the meeting with a third seven-year contract, baseball experts would call it the greatest comeback since the 1961 New York Giants came from 13½ games back in August to win the National League pennant.

"Feel there are enough votes to start looking for a new commissioner," said Eddie Chiles, the Texas Rangers owner and a Kuhn opponent.

"The National League votes are the ones that count," he said. "And I think there are as many as six against the commissioner. I believe there are as many as four in the American League."

But Kuhn will not join the ranks of the unemployed, even temporarily, without a fight. He has had to battle to keep his job before, and he appears willing to go the distance again. In 1975, Charlie Finley, then the owner of the Oakland A's, and the man who dubbed Kuhn "the village idiot," led a nearly successful mutiny that was quelled only after the late Walter O'Malley, owner of the Los Angeles Dodgers, forced a postponement in the vote and rallied enough late support to the commissioner's favor.

"It came back," Kuhn is fond of saying. "I was Lazarus." Kuhn and his allies, including O'Malley's son Peter and Montreal Expo owner Charles Bronfman, are maneuvering behind the scenes, trying to set the stage for a second resurrection. Kuhn is fighting so hard to keep his job that he has little time for anything else. "He's trying to

Selecting a replacement won't be easy

By BARRY HORN
Dallas Morning News

You really expect 26 major league baseball owners who can't even agree to play their game by the same rules (see designated hitter) to be able to agree on a replacement for Bowie Kuhn, should they decide not to renew his contract Monday?

Cal Smith, the former New York Yankee and Houston Astro executive who runs a private baseball consulting firm, is often mentioned as the favorite to succeed Kuhn. Former New Jersey governor Brendan Byrne is another oft-mentioned candidate.

Smith, however, has maintained that he has no interest in the job. He certainly wouldn't be interested in the job if the owners decide at their winter meetings in December in Honolulu to make the commissioner the No. 2 man to the proposed position of Chief Operating prepare for Monday," one press aide said, explaining why the commissioner would not grant interviews this week. But, in the past, Kuhn has been adamant about seeking re-election.

"I have no intention of resigning," Kuhn has said. "But I wouldn't politic for the job."

The baseball owners were supposed to have reached a decision regarding Kuhn's fate at their mid-August meeting in San Diego. But all they reached was a stalemate. A deadlock developed over the issue of hiring a business executive to a separate post to take charge of finances, including television revenue and ticket sales.

Kuhn is not opposed to establishing a position for a finance man. He does, however, want the authority to direct the new position. Kuhn's opponents want the new man to be No. 1, and might allow Kuhn to stay as No. 2.

"I have considered resigning during the past 14 years," Kuhn has said. "But not in recent months. We all came to San Diego looking for solutions and didn't find them."

"I think the commissioner should be the chief executive officer of the game," he said. "That leaves plenty of operating room for an operating officer. But he must be subordinate to the commissioner."

Chiles is a leader of the segment of owners who want to turn the No. 1 job over to a man with a strong business background.

"I think the commissioner system is outdated," Chiles said. "He (Kuhn) has been in there 14 years. At one time, he was real qualified for the job. But baseball has changed in 14 years. We need a man who would understand more about the economics of the game. Our major problems are economics and labor relations. The No. 1 man has to be someone who understands these problems."

Nelson Doubleday, owner of the New York Mets and leader of the National League's anti-Kuhn forces, says the Mets, St. Louis, Houston, Atlanta, Cincinnati and Chicago can be counted on to vote against Kuhn. In the American League, the leading anti-Kuhn franchise is the Rangers.

Officer for Baseball Affairs (COBBA). The COBBA would oversee Kuhn's financial affairs, including television contracts.

Don't count on Lee MacPhail, the American League president, or Chub Feeney, the National League president, to replace Kuhn. Neither would be acceptable to owners in the other league.

Feeney, in fact, was the leading candidate to replace Gen. William Eckert when he resigned from the commissioner's post after the 1968 season. But American League owners would not agree to elect a man with such close National League ties.

"It's a good bet that when the major league owners announce their choice to succeed Kuhn as baseball's chief executive, it will be another compromise candidate in the Kuhn mold, and reaction across America will be a unanimous 'Who is he?'"

New York Yankees and Seattle Mariners.

"I simply do not think that Bowie Kuhn should be commissioner of baseball," Doubleday says. "It's a big business, a huge business and no lawyer can run it."

At one time or another, the commissioner has antagonized everybody involved in the game — the fans, the players and the owners. His job was safe until he antagonized too many owners, at whose whims he serves.

As in most businesses, the primary concern in retaining a chief executive officer is money and profits. Money made from television. Money spent on players. Money teams make playing a game in the increasingly complex world of high finances.

At last December's baseball meetings in Hollywood, Fla., Kuhn reported that the sport lost $25 million last year.

Such news was not greeted kindly by owners, especially some of the newer ones who are highly successful businessmen.

Kuhn's major problem seems to be that he supports a system of television revenue-sharing for all 26 teams. The owners in the lucrative markets, such as New York and Atlanta, don't want to share their money with owners in the hinterlands.

Doubleday, who paid $21 million for the Mets three years ago, is upset with a Kuhn plan that would force owners to share their local television revenue — estimated to be $65 million a year — in the name of competitive balance.

"They want us to share our television income," Doubleday says with a sneer. "Well, nobody put up $19 million to help us buy the Mets. It's nothing personal. I told Kuhn to his face that I liked him, but that he shouldn't remain."

Ted Turner, who bought the Atlanta Braves with the idea of sending their cablecasts across the country on his cable network, doesn't like Kuhn's demands to restrict cablecasts.

Still, Kuhn's supporters, such as Montreal's Bronfman,

BOWIE KUHN
Odds against baseball commissioner

say Kuhn has the desired image to present baseball to the public.

"He's a decent, honest man and baseball has prospered," Bronfman says. "I have learned that first baseball is a sociological thing, a resource, and second a business."

But there are also competitive gripes. The Cincinnati Reds ownership is peeved at Kuhn because the playoff system he devised after the Great Strike of 1981 left its team out in the cold, though it had the best record in baseball in 1981. And they haven't forgotten they once purchased Vida Blue only to have Kuhn void the deal.

The St. Louis Cardinals, who finished the 1981 season with the best record in the NL East, also were locked out of the playoffs because of Kuhn's scheme. It remains to be seen how much the Cardinals' 1982 World Series Championship has calmed the Cardinals' ruffled feathers.

And so that brings us to Monday's Chicago showdown. Too bad they haven't sold the television rights to the meeting. Baseball could use the money and we could enjoy the drama of watching Lazarus trying to rise one more time.

Champions do have a few extra outfielders

Cardinals probably won't make many deals this winter

WHITEY HERZOG
Teams have to come to him

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Whitey Herzog has entered the last two weeks of his tenure knowing he had to make trades to improve the St. Louis Cardinals. He doesn't believe that will be the case this year.

Herzog's wheeling-and-dealing transformed the Cardinals from a fourth-place team into World Series champions. Acquisitions Bruce Sutter, Lonnie Smith, Ozzie Smith, Darrell Porter and Joaquin Andujar were keys to the turnaround.

In the past, Herzog has had some players he couldn't get rid of quickly enough. This year, he may have a fight to keep some of the ones already on the Cardinals' roster.

"You're always looking for help and we might do something," the St. Louis manager said in a telephone interview from his home in Kansas City. "But for the guys, people would have to come to us."

"Our club should get better. Our young pitchers didn't do that bad and we don't have any age problems." Herzog and the Cardinals do have a surplus of outfielders, with five players — Gene Henderson, Lonnie Smith, Willie McGee, David Green and Dane Iorg — who could probably play everyday somewhere in the majors.

Herzog can come up with reasons for trading some of them but he can't come up with a reason why he would like to keep all of them in St. Louis.

"We have to figure out some way to get David in the lineup," Herzog said. "He can do so many things. I know he's only 21 but look what he contributed this year."

"I don't mind keeping the five I've got. I don't mind deciding day-by-day who is going to play. Really, it was a helluva good thing for us this year."

Herzog discounts the theory that trading Hendrick would strip the team of its only legitimate power hitter. The Cardinals hit a major-league low 67 homers this year and Hendrick led the team with 19.

"There's not that much difference between 19 homers and 10 in 500 at bats," Herzog said. "That's about two every 100 at bats. It just depends on when you hit them."

"But I think George likes it here and I think he's a helluva player. I'm not leaning that way (toward trading him). People would have to come to us and I would have to think it was a good deal. I'm not going out shopping George Hendrick."

Herzog has heard the rumors that the Cardinals will put together a package to acquire Kansas City third baseman George Brett, a close personal friend of his. But Herzog said he won't believe that until it happens.

"I don't know where all that got started," Herzog said. "I don't think there is any way the Royals would consider trading Brett to the Cardinals, especially while I'm there. I don't think they'll trade him to anybody."

If the Cardinals are not as active in making deals as in the past, they do expect to at least test the free agent market, where Seattle left-handed pitcher Floyd Bannister is expected to be available.

Bannister is considered the prize in the free-agent draft. He has said he would like to play for a contender with a good defense.

"I think they'll be a pretty good bidding war but he's classified as a Type A player and that means the Dodgers and Angels can't go for him," Herzog said. "I don't know if we'll get the money to try for him but it doesn't cost anything to draft him and then see what happens."

The 27-year-old Bannister had his finest season this year, compiling a record of 12-13 with an ERA of 3.43 for the Mariners, who were 70-86. He led the American League in strikeouts with 209 in 247 innings. Bannister has turned down a three-year $2 million-dollar contract offer from the Mariners.

The Dodgers and Angels are barred from selecting Bannister because they elected not to sign Type A players so they didn't have to risk losing any players as compensation for free-agent signings.

The Cardinals have three of their players — Gene Tenace, Jim Kaat and Steve Braun — who are eligible to be free agents but Herzog said he expects all to be with the club next year.

On other matters, Herzog said both Sutter and second baseman Tom Herr might undergo knee surgery over the winter to correct what he described as "non-serious" problems. No final decision has been made on whether surgery will be necessary on either, he said.

Herzog said he expects the club will be able to sign Lonnie Smith and Ozzie Smith, even though both are coming off excellent years. He said the club would like to reach a long-term agreement with Ozzie Smith, who would be eligible to become a free agent after next season.

"I'm sure that's the No. 1 priority for Joe (McDonald, St. Louis general manager)," Herzog said. "We've still got a year left, but generally if you don't get it done before the season you don't get it done."

Oakland's woes began in August

By PETER GAMMONS
Boston Globe

BOSTON — Roy Eisenhardt, president of the Athletics, first realized that Billy Martin was in trouble on Aug. 19. That was the night that Billy Martin tore up his own office. He didn't only because he was upset at losing, but because Eisenhardt had refused to renegotiate Martin's contract.

Martin wanted a contract extension from five to 10 years, a raise from his $250,000 annual salary and a $100,000 interest-free loan to take care of the IRS, which was on his case. There was a severe disagreement about the direction of the club, with Eisenhardt wanting to build an organization-oriented team and Martin wanting not only to retain his cronies (Chicken Stanley, for instance), but go after more veterans.

Management had long since grown tired of his irrational rages, starting with the dumping of Rob Piccolo, which forced Tony Phillips into the majors before he was ready, and when Martin found Phillips wasn't ready, he humiliated him, setting him back another year. Eisenhardt and Alton Ray Sandy Alderson overruled two other Martin deals: one that would have sent two of his best prospects, Mike Davis, Kelvin Moore — to the Giants for veteran Darrell Evans, the other sending Brian Kingman to the Red Sox for virtually nothing.

But Martin now moves on, knowing that he can collect the $750,000 owed him for the final three years of his contract and keep the $500,000 house the Oakland management bought him. The night he was fired, he was tracked down by Reno, Nev., listening to boxer Willie. When asked for a request, Billy called for "I'm So Lonesome I Could Cry." Really.

Oakland's next manager will not be John McNamara or Jim Fregosi, even though each has talked to the Athletics. Eisenhardt is looking for a young, patient, teaching type of man, with Seattle's Rene Lachemann the prototype. There is a lot of clamor in the Bay Area for Sal Bando, but Eisenhardt has questions about him — he hasn't taught and how much could he want a manager's job if he turned down the Brewers when Buck Rodgers was fired?

The Athletics when not, incidentally, name a general manager. With Eisenhardt, Alderson, Carl Finley for paperwork, Dick Wiencek for the minor leagues, and the field manager, Eisenhardt plans to operate under the "team" concept of a front office. He added former Angels manager Bill Rigney to the team Wednesday.

As far as all the other managerial vacancies are concerned, reports persist that Yankees Coach Joe Altobelli — not McNamara — will be Earl Weaver's replacement in Baltimore, although the announcement probably won't be made until next week. If so, then McNamara, who Wednesday said he had talked to Baltimore, Oakland and California, may end up with the Angels. With another Yankees coach, Mike Ferraro, going to Cleveland and the met in Tampa Wednesday afternoon with Gabe Paul and Phil Seghi, the announcement is imminent.

Martin inevitably came back with the Yankees. Gene Mauch is still in contention, but his friends say he was deeply hurt by the second-guessing and criticism by the players, media and front office. The Little League took a terrible beating for blowing out Don Asse, whose complex elbow operation involving a nerve transplant, calcium deposit and bone spur has probably ended his career. Mauch was also mercilessly questioned for leaving back Tommy John and Bruce Kison with three days rest and not bringing Andy Hassler in to face Cecil Cooper in a crucial situation in the American League championship series. But Mauch's Angels set a club record for victories in one season.

Top-ranked teams expected to prevail

By United Press International

First- and second-ranked Washington and Pittsburgh are expected to extend their winning streaks today along with the five other unbeaten teams currently ranked among college football's top 20.

Washington is a five-point favorite over a Stanford team which features one of the nation's most gifted quarterbacks while Pittsburgh is expected to score almost at will when it plays host to four-time loser Louisville. The second-ranked Panthers, who started the season the No. 1 pick of the UPI Board of Coaches, have been bothered by a stuttering offense.

The five other unbeaten teams among the top 20 also are favored to win handily.

Third-ranked Georgia is expected to romp as easily as Pittsburgh in its meeting with Memphis State, fourth-ranked Southern Methodist is rated nine points over Texas A&M, fifth-ranked Arkansas is a whopping 30 over Rice, 10th-ranked UCLA is 21 over Oregon and 11th-ranked LSU is 11 over Mississippi.

In other games involving the Top 20 it's No. 6 Nebraska at Kansas, No. 7 Penn State at No. 20 Boston College, Maryland at No. 8 North Carolina and Mississippi State at No. 9 Alabama.

Also, it's No. 12 Florida State at No. 14 Miami (Fla.), No. 15 Oklahoma at Colorado, Minnesota at No. 16 Michigan, East Carolina at No. 17 West Virginia and No. 18 Auburn at No. 19 Florida. No. 13 Clemson is idle.

Washington, which was almost embarrassed before beating Texas Tech 10-3 last week, must handle John Elway, Stanford's talented quarterback who is capable of throwing three or four touchdown passes in a game. The Huskies, 7-0, counter with quarterback Steve Pelluer, runner Jacques Robinson and kicker Chuck Nelson plus a sturdy defense.

While Pittsburgh's defense has performed like a potential national champion in defeating such teams as North Carolina, Illinois and West Virginia, the offense has not lived up to either to its 1981 track record—or the collective potential of its highly talented starters.

Dan Marino has passed for 1,253 yards and nine touchdowns in leading Pittsburgh to its 6-0 record. But those figures are routine compared to Marino's performance at a similar stage of last season.

Coach Foge Fazio says numerous factors have contributed to his offense's scoring deficiency, including too many penalties, mental errors, injuries and inspired game plans and play by opponents' defenses.

Georgia, aiming for a third straight Southeastern Conference crown, will use Memphis State as a tuneup for its crucial road games the following two Saturdays against Florida and Auburn. The game also could serve as a showcase for Herschel Walker.

Walker, a junior, already holds SEC career records for rushing (4,482 yards) and touchdowns (43) and a 200-yard-plus performance would move him into sixth place on the NCAA all-time rushing list ahead of Marcus Allen.

In other games around the country it will be Michigan vs. Minnesota, Yale vs. Dartmouth, Georgia Tech vs. Duke, Notre Dame vs. Navy, Ohio State vs. Purdue, Pennsylvania vs. Princeton Army vs. Columbia, Oklahoma vs. Colorado, California vs. Oregon State and Virginia Tech vs. Kentucky.

Hostetler, star West Virginia QB, won't play

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (UPI) — Despite East Carolina Coach Ed Emory's opinion to the contrary, West Virginia University's football staff insisted Friday that Mountaineer quarterback Jeff Hostetler will not play today.

WVU Coach Don Nehlen named Kevin White, a 6-foot, 180-pound sophomore from Casa Grande, Ariz., as starting quarterback against 4-3 East Carolina because of Hostetler's injuries.

"Right now, I'm listing Jeff as doubtful, which means there's only a 25 percent chance he'll play," Ott said. "I do not think he'll play. I do not recommend that he play."

WVU offensive coordinator Russ Jacques went a step further, saying Hostetler will not suit up for the game.

Hostetler, the 6-foot-3, 212-pound junior transfer from Penn State, is recovering from a sprained toe he suffered during the Virginia Tech game two weeks ago and a hyperextended knee he suffered against Penn State last week.

James nixes Seattle, stays with Huskies

SEATTLE (UPI)—Washington Coach Don James says he'll stay on with his top-ranked Husky football program and has no plans to consider offers to replace Jack Patra as coach of the Seattle Seahawks.

James held a news conference Friday as the No. 1 ranked Huskies prepared to depart from Seattle-Tacoma Airport for today's clash with Pac-10 rival Stanford.

Patra, the only man to lead the seven-year NFL team, was fired earlier this month after team owners became disenchanted with the club's performance.

Patra also became embroiled in a dispute over waiving wide receiver Sam McCullum, now a Minnesota Viking. McCullum subsequently filed a grievance, claiming he was dismissed because of his activities as player representative.

Since Patra's dismissal, Seattle media and fans alike have speculated that Seahawks investors would make James an offer he could not refuse to jump to the NFL club.

James said he didn't know if the time was right to address the rumors, but said, "It's important to get it off my chest and bring an end to the media blitz."

James noted that he's always believed a coach should wait until the end of the season to re-evaluate his future.

SEC battle tightens up considerably

NEW YORK (UPI) — This is the week the 18th-ranked Auburn Tigers find out whether they have a shot at winning their first Southeastern Conference title in 25 years.

College picks

Auburn, 6-1 and 3-0 in the SEC, tackles No. 19 Florida, 4-2 and 1-2 in the conference, today with a shot to move into a first-place tie with league leader Georgia. The third-ranked Bulldogs, 7-0 and 4-0 in the SEC, meet winless Memphis State today.

Auburn Coach Pat Dye, however, already sounds like a beaten man. "I am just concerned whether we can match up with them or not," said Dye, whose team's only loss came against Nebraska. "If we don't get some of our injured people back, it could be awful. It frightens me to think we are going into a situation with Florida where they have an open date to get all their people healthy while we are going in with a patched up team that will have to be fighting to stay on the field."

Florida Coach Charley Pell, whose Gators have never won an SEC title, has seen his team lose its last two games — to Louisiana State and Vanderbilt.

"Our remaining five games will determine what kind of year we have in 1982," says Pell. "There is still a great deal to be accomplished this fall if we can meet the challenge."

Eleventh-ranked LSU, 5-6-1, is third in the SEC with a 3-0-1 league mark. The Tigers meet Mississippi, 3-4 and 0-3, on Saturday and a victory keeps them in the title picture.

Here are the selections:

SOUTH
Florida 27, Auburn 14 — Florida snaps two-game losing streak.
Georgia 49, Memphis State 7 — Herschel Walker runs wild.
Florida State 20, Miami 14 — Florida State has a few surprises for Miami's defense.
Alabama 45, Mississippi State 20 — Alabama quarterback Walter Lewis battles Mississippi State.
Maryland 21, North Carolina 17 — Maryland stuns North Carolina for its sixth straight victory.
Louisiana State 27, Mississippi 11 — LSU remains unbeaten.

EAST
Penn State 27, Boston College 17 — Coach Joe Patra's boys don't lose many games to Eastern opponents.
Pittsburgh 45, Louisville 7 — A tuneup for Pitt.
West Virginia 24, East Carolina 11 — WVU now embarks on the easy portion of its schedule.

MIDWEST
Nebraska 45, Kansas 14 — Nebraska's Buck Mike Hostetler is a tough man to stop.
Michigan 42, Minnesota 14 — Quarterback Steve Smith again sparks Michigan.
Others: Michigan State 24, Indiana 21; Illinois 20, Iowa 24; Kansas State 21, Iowa State 21; Ohio State 25, Purdue 17; Wisconsin 45, Northwestern 14.

SOUTHWEST
Arkansas 45, Rice 7 — Razorbacks remain undefeated while Rice remains winless.
Southern Methodist 24, Texas A&M 17 — SMU gets a scare.
Others: New Mexico 33, North Texas State 14; Oklahoma State 21, Missouri 20; Texas 41, Texas Tech 17; Houston 24, Texas Christian 20.

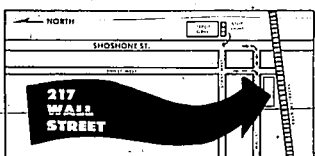

WEST
Oklahoma 37, Colorado 10 — Oklahoma's new offense overpowers Colorado.
Washington 33, Stanford 17 — Washington manages to repel another challenge.
UCLA 35, Oregon 7 — UCLA quarterback Tom Randle rides the Oregon secondary.
Southern California 24, Arizona State 21 — USC hands Arizona State its first loss of the year.
Others: Air Force 20, Wyoming 21; Colorado State 27, TCU 20; Paso 13; Fresno State 35, Long Beach State 20; Hawaii 27, Fullerton State 17; California 45, Oregon State 25; Brigham Young 42, Utah State 19; Arizona 24, Washington State 18.
