Dallas draws 30-year prison term

By STEVEN CHRISTENSEN
United Press International

CALDWELL (UPI) — A Third District judge Tuesday sentenced trapper Claude Lafayette Dallas to 30 years in prison for gunning down two Idaho game wardens.

The decision by Judge Edward Lodge struck a middle ground between the prosecutor's plea for a 50-year jail term and a defense recommendation that Dallas receive probation for killing the lawmen when they arrived at his tent at Bull Camp on Jan. 5, 1981, to investigate allegations of poaching.

Dallas, 32, sat quietly at the defense table as Lodge spent nearly an hour recounting testimony from a month-long trial which on Oct. 20 resulted in verdicts of voluntary manslaughter against the bearded outdoorsman.

Jurors also found the defendant guilty of two counts of using a firearm in the commission of a felony and a count of concealing evidence — in this case trying to hide the bodies of the two slain officers.

The trapper, dressed in a royal purple scarf, jeans and a pale blue western shirt, did not change expressions as Lodge ordered him to serve up to 10 years for each killing, and other 10 years for using a gun.

The judge tacked on an additional six-month sentence on the concealment conviction, and ordered that all terms run consecutively. He noted the Dallas eligible for parole as early as 1983.

Although defense attorney Michael Donnelly said the manslaughter verdicts showed the jury believed Dallas' testimony that he killed Pogue, 50, and Elms, 34, only after Pogue drew a gun and threatened to shoot him, Lodge said he did not share that opinion.

"I do not believe the issue of self-defense arose at Bull Camp," the judge said. He said the evidence showed Dallas resisted the attempt to

CALDWELL (UPI) — Wildlife officials lauded it as long-awaited justice, the defendants' friends condemned it as unfair punishment of an honest and hardworking man, and the judge breathed a sigh of relief when his verdict was announced in one of Idaho's most controversial criminal cases.

The sentence Tuesday for Claude Lafayette Dallas aroused the same polarity of opinion which accompanied a jury's verdict in October that the 32-year-old Nevada trapper was guilty of manslaughter for shooting two Idaho Fish and Game wardens at his camp on the Owyhee River.

arrest him for taking game out of season by shooting the men, then pumping another bullet into the head of each victim as they lay on the ground.

"I'm proud to live in a state that has a judge like Edward Lodge," state Fish and Game Director Jerry Conley said moments after Lodge ordered Dallas to serve 30 years in prison for killing officers Bill Pogue, 50, and Conley Elms, 34, on Jan. 5, 1981 at his Bull Camp trapping base.

Conley — who believes the jury should have found Dallas, 32, guilty of first-degree murder — said the sentence will help restore the confidence of officers who were worried they might become the victims of similar incidents of violence in the wilds.

He also said he was relieved that Lodge did not accept the defendant's testimony that Dallas shot the men only after Pogue drew a gun and made threatening statements.

"We maintained all along it was not self-defense," Conley said. "I am elated that the judge agreed it was a heinous act."

But one of the defendant's friends who braved snowpacked highways to make the long trip from Lawen, Ore., to Caldwell to testify at the sentencing hearing said the jail term amounted to a miscarriage of justice.

"I maintain it was self-defense. I think they should have let him go," said rancher Gary Rose. "I disagree with the judge, plain and simple."

Meanwhile, a weary Judge Lodge left the courtroom with a comment that he was not yet "emotionally ready" to elaborate on his sentence —

Job seekers flock to E.F. Johnson

Firm takes applications

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Several hundred people have applied for a handful of jobs at the soon-to-be-opened E.F. Johnson Co. plant in Twin Falls.

About 100 applied Monday and about 75 Tuesday, the first days the company's subsidiary, U.S. Communications Corp., opened the doors of the former Kellwood Co. pantyhose factory to seek job applicants.

And about 400 people jumped the gun on the official start of the application period by writing to the company or submitting resumes through the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce, says Larry Dunn, the personnel manager for U.S. Communications.

Applications will be accepted for the rest of the week. "We want people to apply. Frankly, they are being considered," Dunn said Tuesday. "But there's such a mass of people, and only a few jobs, that we can't hire everyone who applies."

Applicants will find a card table — covered with clipboards, application forms, pencils and a box of 49-cent pens — in the lobby of the building. Several business cards, left by area businessmen hoping to do business with the company, were on the card table and on a shelf behind the receptionist.

In Dunn's office, more business cards were scattered about on a desk, along with an assortment of applications, letters, phone messages and resumes.

People should be forewarned, Dunn says, that the electronics company will need only about 60

Reagan sticking by guns

Congressmen advise cuts

By LOVE MILLER JIK
Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — President Reagan is stubbornly resisting heavy congressional pressure to cut defense spending and reduce the federal deficit.

Within a span of 18 hours, from Monday afternoon to Tuesday morning, Reagan was warned by Republican leaders of both House and Senate that his 1984 budget, as it is now taking shape, would have no chance of passage on Capitol Hill.

Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., one of Reagan's closest friends, warned the president that unless he changed his plans to increase defense spending while cutting $30 billion in domestic programs, the upcoming budget "isn't going to fly in this Congress."

However, both congressional leaders and White House aides said that while Reagan listened, he remained determined to send up a budget that will include more than a $20 billion increase in defense outlays while running up a federal deficit of $180 billion to $200 billion.

"These numbers are a little terrifying," Laxalt told reporters after he and other GOP Senate leaders had breakfast with Reagan Tuesday. "The deficit numbers that we're looking at now are huge and probably intolerable."

Meanwhile, top presidential economic advisers complained privately that Reagan's current course would create deficits of $200 billion or higher through 1988. Before Reagan took office, the largest annual deficit in American history was $66.4 billion in 1976.

Both the senators and a delegation of House Republican leaders, who met with Reagan Monday afternoon, urged the president to at least consider a freeze on defense funds.

But White House spokesman Larry Speakes confirmed the legislators' impressions that Reagan remained doggedly determined to "stay the course" on budget plans.

"He is firm" on demanding the $20 billion defense increase, Speakes said. "The president is determined to do what is right. Politics will not be a part of our decision process here."

The delegation tried to convince Reagan that if he sends Congress a budget certain to fail, he risks becoming irrelevant as a force and Congress will write its own budget. "That is what happened last year when the president's 1983 budget went up in smoke as soon as it reached Capitol Hill."

Rep. Henry Moore, R-Ia., said he warned Reagan Monday that if the president repeated that mistake he would risk becoming the victim of "Cartoonization" — a reference to the fact that former President Carter became isolated and ineffective as Congress increasingly ignored his proposals.

Farmers try to prevent auction after foreclosure

Farmers are hit with tear gas at Baca County Courthouse

Deputies fire tear gas, break up demonstration

SPRINGFIELD, Colo. (UPI) — About 300 angry farmers protesting the auction of a 420-acre farm tried to break down the doors of the Baca County Courthouse Tuesday. They were turned back by tear gas thrown by sheriff's deputies.

Three law officers suffered minor injuries and one reporter who fell during the melee was taken to a hospital. Three protesters were arrested, but one dramatically escaped by leaping through a courthouse window.

The violence broke out during the public auction of farm land owned by Jerry Wright, who helped found the militant American Agriculture Movement in 1977.

"There was a lot of shoving and pushing going on during the auction," said Melvin Stults, editor of the Springfield Plainsman-Herald. "They kept chanting. The sheriff told them to disperse and when they didn't, the tear gas was thrown."

Wright was two years behind in paying off an $85,000 loan secured by the farm. The Federal Land Bank in Hamar, which made the loan and purchased the farm at the auction, went to court last month to force the sale.

Wright contended the sale violated his constitutional rights because he had no control over government policies, such as the Soviet grain embargo, which he said kept him from making a profit.

The protest drew farmers from as far away as Missouri and North Dakota.

The protesters, who had lined the streets with about 30 tractors, chanted and yelled as County Treasurer Thelma Goodnight, flanked by Sheriff Willard Goff and Police Chief Gary Armitage, conducted the auction on the courthouse steps. Goff shouted through a bullhorn for the farmers to quiet down, but was met with louder chants of "no sale, no sale."

Mrs. Goodnight opened the sealed bid from the bank and asked if there were any other bids. When there were none, Goff declared the sale over.

Several protesters rushed up the steps as the officials tried to get inside. Three farmers fought with Goff, Armitage and Undersheriff Gallon Lofin, who all suffered minor injuries.

Deputies inside the courthouse tossed three or four tear gas canisters into the crowd, dispersing the farmers. The three farmers in the front were arrested, pulled inside the building and handcuffed.

One farmer, who identified himself as Kinnan Burk of New Mexico, escaped by jumping through a courthouse window, cutting himself. With blood covering his face, Burk told reporters he had been beaten by deputies.

A sheriff's secretary, who declined to give her name, said Jim and Doug Goodpaster, of rural Baca County, were being held for suspicion of assault on a police officer for allegedly punching Goff in the nose. After the scuffle, Wright — shouting through a bullhorn — vowed to hold on to his property.

Fighting raging in Tripoli

United Press International

Residents of the city of 250,000 were suffering from severe shortages of water and essential food supplies. Barring fires could be seen from outlying roads, it said. Power cuts plunged the city into darkness. Snipers fired from rooftops into and out of the city. Security sources said reports about the fighting in the Syrian-occupied area were gathered from police radios and witness accounts from residents in hilltop villages surrounding the city. The Israeli-occupied Shouf and Hezbar mountains east of Beirut, scene of 3-month-old gunbattles between Christians and Druse Moslem militiamen, were reported quiet but tense after an informal cease-fire Monday ended a week of violence. Lebanese officials continually blamed the factional fighting on the 80,000 Israeli, Syrian and Palestinian forces occupying more than half of its territory. Three rounds of face-to-face U.S.-led talks between Israel and Lebanon aimed at the withdrawal of the troops—however, have failed to produce agreement even on an agenda. The next round of talks are scheduled for Thursday in the northern Israeli town of Kiryat Shmona.

Rival militia fought artillery and rocket battles for a fourth straight day in Tripoli Tuesday, bringing the death toll to 61 and turning Lebanon's second largest city into a smoke-shrouded ghost town. State-run Beirut radio said former Lebanese Prime Minister Rashid Karami, a Tripoli political leader with close ties to Syria, drove to Damascus seeking help to end the fighting in the city, 40 miles north of Beirut. Lebanese television reported Karami conferred with Syrian President Hafez Assad on ways of ending the bloodbath which claimed 14 more lives Tuesday, bringing the casualty count in four days to 61 dead and 109 wounded. Beirut radio said the fighting between pro- and anti-Syrian factions was so intense Tuesday that ambulances were unable to clear victims from the streets. The radio said hospitals were short of blood and medical supplies, and

Wazzan was quoted as saying: "We want to get into the talks in depth and not continue to move in this vicious circle of the agenda."

Alliance named car of year

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The Renault Alliance, a joint international automaking venture between American Motors Co. and Renault of France, has been named car of the year for 1983 by Motor Trend magazine. The magazine gave the car high praise, the first joint vote of the two firms. The Alliance is produced at the AMC plant in Kenosha. The official announcement of the award is not scheduled until next Monday but the magazine, published Tuesday, contained news of the award. "With the well-thought-out engineering and design that went into the Alliance, from both Renault and AMC, the car emerged the clear winner in this year's competition," said Motor Trend writer Jim Hall. "Put simply, the Alliance may well be the best assembled first-year car we've ever seen."

Accident has bizarre twist

GARLAND, Texas (UPI) — Police attempting to notify a woman of a traffic accident involving her husband Tuesday found her headless body in a Dallas suburban apartment. Dallas officials later found the head near the scene of her husband's accident. Dallas police spokesman Bob Shaw said the man was found Tuesday about 11 a.m. in his wrecked car and taken to Parkland Memorial Hospital where he was later listed in critical condition. "He was going down a freeway about 100 mph and crashed into a creek," Shaw said. Dallas police tried to contact the man's wife to notify her of the accident. Unable to reach her, they contacted Garland police. "We went to the man's address and found his wife's body," said a Garland investigator. She had been decapitated.

Teacher union official jailed

WASHINGTON, Pa. (UPI) — Walking the final steps through a gauntlet of 2,000 cheering supporters wearing black armbands and holding candles, California Area Education Association President Gerald Cowen was jailed Tuesday. Fellow teachers, supporters from the community and members of several non-teacher unions gathered outside the Washington County Jail at 8 p.m. to begin an all-night vigil to protest Cowen's imprisonment. He was jailed because teachers have ignored an order by Common Pleas Judge Samuel Rodgers to end the day strike, the longest in state history. "The judge ordered me to go to jail, what else can I do?" said Cowen shortly before being jailed. "If this is the only way we can get our point across that these people (the board) are trying to break our contract, we're willing to go all the way," said Pat Cowen, who accompanied her husband to the jailhouse door. "The judge ordered Cowen to be jailed each night until the strike ends."

State sends insurance refunds

BOISE (UPI) — Governments and businesses will be receiving about $12 million in refunds from the State Insurance Fund for premiums paid in 1980. Gov. John Evans said Tuesday. The governor presented the first of more than 4,000 refund checks to Idaho business and government representatives during a news conference. Evans said dividends will be paid to some 1,000 government entities and 3,200 private businesses for premiums paid to provide workmen's compensation coverage for their workers. The total represents unneeded money that is refunded annually to policy holders, he said. Evans said during a news conference that policy holders will receive a minimum of 39 percent of their 1980 premiums and as much as 150 percent, depending on their claims records and the size of their original premiums.

Lawmen shot in 'ambush'

HAZARD, Ky. (UPI) — A deputy sheriff and two officers were wounded Tuesday in an apparent "ambush" of the officers as they tried to serve an arrest warrant at the home of one of the victims. Police said they were attempting to serve the warrant on Tommy Allen Combs, 47, at his home at Glenmar Hollow, 4 miles south of Hazard. Combs was killed in the burst of gunfire at about 5 p.m. EST as were his 14-year-old nephew Wayne Davis and Perry County Deputy Sheriff Alex Eversole. "It wasn't a shootout situation, just a mow-you-down, just like an ambush," Ed Robinson, a spokesman from the Hazard state police post, said. "That's more probably like how you'd describe it — an ambush." However, police said they were not sure who was shot by whom and the shooting was under investigation.

Cancer claims Rep. Rosenthal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., a strong consumer advocate who also fought for the human rights of people around the world, died of cancer Tuesday. He was 59. A spokeswoman in Rosenthal's Washington office confirmed the congressman died at Georgetown University hospital Tuesday afternoon. She declined to provide specific details on his illness, other than to say he was diagnosed Jan. 17, 1981, as having cancer of the colon. The New York City native was believed to have been treated in hospitals several times in the almost two years since he learned he had cancer. His death prompted New York Mayor Edward Koch to order the city's flags flown at half-staff on the day of Rosenthal's funeral. A leading liberal in the House, Rosenthal was first elected to the New York district that includes a part of Queens in a special election in 1962. A member of the Government Operations Committee and the House Foreign Affairs Committee, he was re-elected with 77 percent of the vote in 1980. Rosenthal's death creates another vacancy in the 98th Congress that convened Monday. Republican Jack Swiger of Colorado died earlier, a week before he was to be sworn in as a new member of the House. Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, called Rosenthal "a diligent congressman who was an outspoken advocate of increased aid to Israel. He also worked on improving human rights in Latin America and the Soviet Union, where he was concerned about the difficulty Jews have in emigrating. Rosenthal also was known as a staunch supporter of consumer affairs. He was chairman of the House Government Operations subcommittee on commerce, consumer and monetary affairs.

Dallas

"Continued from Page 1 or anyone believe you can kill someone, then get a second chance." Lodge told the defendant, who looked squarely at the judge as the sentence was read. Lodge characterized the killings as "extremely violent," and said a lesser sentence "would depreciate the seriousness of these crimes." But the judge, saying "I don't like to play God," turned down a request from Owyhee County Prosecutor Clayton Anderson that Dallas be sentenced to a total of 50 years in fixed prison terms — the maximum allowable under Idaho law. Anderson said "a maximum sentence would vindicate the widows of the two slain wardens from feelings that their husbands somehow brought on the shootings by belligerent action, and would serve as a solid example to others who might be tempted to resist conservation efforts with force. Idaho Department of Fish and Game Director Jerry Conley said he was pleased with the sentence, and "proud to live in a state that has a judge like Edward Lodge." Conley testified during the daytime sentencing hearing that the killings had prompted fear among department employees and humiliation among Idaho's lawlifer trashers, hunters and anglers. But Game Rose, a Layven Orcharder who has been Dallas' friend

Reaction

"Continued from Page 1" which culminated a bylong hearing and nearly six weeks of trial. Defense attorney Michael Donnelly said he and Dallas shared a sense of "significant disappointment" with the sentence. He also said an appeal is likely. "My hope was that the judge would issue a much more minor sentence, which would give credence to our argument of self-defense," Donnelly said. "The jury did that."

He added he believed Dallas felt sincere remorse at the killings, but probably did not communicate that to the judge. "The defendant's only statement during the sentencing hearing was: 'I do regret what took place at Bull Camp. But I still feel, as I felt at the time, that I did the only thing I could under the circumstances.' Owyhee County Prosecutor Clayton Anderson said he was satisfied with the sentence, even though "it fell below his recommendation. "What goes over and over in my mind is the tragedy of the two widows," he said, referring to the wives of the slain men. "Certain people are going to believe the defendant, and others never will. A sentence of any kind would not solve any of those discussions." Anderson also said he shared Judge Lodge's sense of tragedy surrounding the entire Dallas story. Lodge said the tragedy encompassed "castigation and threats" of jury members, "emotional hypocrisy" on the part of an eager press, pressures on the bench for a stern sentence, and the loss of a loved one by Pogue's and Flinn's survivors. But the largest tragedy, he said, involves Dallas, "a person who probably lives freedom more than most of us — judging by his lifestyle — who has given up or forfeited the right to freedom."

Hiring

"Continued from Page 1" employees when it begins production tentatively scheduled to start Feb. 28. Of these jobs, about 40 requiring training and experience not available in the Magic Valley.

Of the 20 remaining jobs, about 15 will be for electronics assemblers. And the company already has applications from enough experienced assemblers to fill those positions, he says.

AS production expands in the years ahead — the company will hire assemblers with vocational training and no prior experience, Dunn says. But for its Twin Falls start-up, U.S. Communications wants only experienced assemblers.

The remaining few jobs will be for secretaries and clerks, he says. "We're dealing with a little too much of a blow-up thing," Dunn says. "We're a good-sized firm, but we're not that big, and we really have only a few jobs for people with a non-electronics background. There needs to be some patience."

The company will grow, and it will hire people locally to fill many jobs that now are going to experienced people from outside the area, he says. In the meantime, Dunn encourages people to apply and promises that each application will be reviewed and saved for possible consideration for future job openings.

And, of course, there are a few jobs to be filled now.

The chosen applicants will be interviewed for those positions late this month or in early February, Dunn says. All job offers should be made by the third week in February.

U.S. Communications is a subsidiary of Minnesota-based E.F. Johnson, which recently was acquired by the New Jersey-based Western Union Corp. The Twin Falls facility purchased last summer, will be used to manufacture components for radio communications systems. A new generation of mobile phones will be manufactured at the facility, at the southern edge of Twin Falls, later this year or early in 1984.

Company projections say the facility could employ 2,000 people by the end of the decade.

Farm failures, poor prices to cut down state's income

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — Farm foreclosures and continuing poor crop prices are expected throughout 1983 by Idaho agricultural experts.

At least that was the testimony given by representatives of the Farmers Home Administration and of the state dairy and wheat commissions, who appeared Tuesday before a legislative committee setting the project state revenue for the next fiscal year.

"Yes, the trend for foreclosures is up," said William Nörberg of the FmHA. "Concerning our (Idaho) farm loans in 1982, there were 79 demands for payment of which 43 resulted in foreclosures."

"Our goal in 1983 is to keep as many of our borrowers on the farm as possible, but the fact of the matter is that at any given time, some operations are going to be in serious trouble," Nörberg said.

"There's not enough data to predict how many farm foreclosures we have this year, but my guess is that they will be up slightly."

FmHA currently is loaning money to 4,630 Idaho farm businesses, about 19 percent of the 24,000 farms operating in the state this year.

Don Papenburg of the Idaho Dairy Association gave a similar forecast for the milk and cheese industry.

He estimated that the number of Idaho dairy farms, many of which are located in the Magic Valley, would decline during 1983, from about 2,400 to 2,000.

"However, we believe that most of the cows involved in these closing operations will be sold to surviving farms, resulting in milk production increasing despite the loss of farms," Papenburg said.

He also predicted that dairy-farm income probably will increase slightly this year.

Part of the reason for that forecast is the continuing good price for dairy products, especially in Idaho. While grain and potato prices have been low, dairy prices have remained favorable, primarily due to the federal price-support program, he said.

But good news for dairymen is countered by the fact that the federal support program soon may be changed and new, increased competition may threaten Idaho's dairy industry this year, Papenburg said.

"For example, the Rupert area is one of the leading cream-cheese manufacturing areas in the nation, but that industry may be upset by imitation products, much like what margarine did to butter," he said. "Already, imitation cream cheese is taking away large percentages of the dairy market."

Quality products have been the biggest advantage of Idaho's dairy industry, he said.

"We estimate that 80 percent of our cheese production (involving 60 percent of Idaho's dairy production) is sold in the California market," Papenburg said. "But they are into that by making large investments, and that could have a significant impact on our industry."

Idaho lawmakers also should not look to wheat farmers for improved state revenue via more income tax, warned Richard Rush of the Idaho Wheat Commission.

"The big problem for us is still the rising cost of production outweighing the current price per bushel for our soft, white wheat," he said.

Rush also said that property-tax increases for farmers will result in further increased overhead and possibly more foreclosures.

"If a property-tax increase is triggered this year to make up the public-school appropriation, it will create a 30 percent or more increase in farm property taxes," Rush said.

Treasurer echoes bad news

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — Idaho's state treasurer gave a dismal forecast Tuesday for future interest earnings on state investments — an indication that even less money will be available to support state programs.

"Our average daily investments are down. The interest rates are down. Marjorie Ruse-Moon told the Legislature's Revenue and Projection Committee. This is good for the economy as a whole, but it sure doesn't help when you are trying to earn interest for the state."

Consequently, interest earnings from investing the state's "idle" cash probably will be below the earnings of the last three years, she said.

Moon estimated that her office will earn about $1 million this fiscal year in interest income, and about $8.1 million in fiscal year—1984, which begins July 1.

That compares to the past three years when between $10.2 million and $12.9 million was earned annually from the treasurer's investments. The income is used to help pay for state programs, thereby lowering the amount of money that the state has to raise in taxes.

Moon's dilemma is twofold; lower yields from interest rates and less state money to invest.

"I made some overnight investments yesterday (Monday) at 2.5 percent interest," Moon testified. "That compares to rates of over 21 percent, which we received around the start of last year."

The second element is a reduction in the amount of money Moon's staff has to invest. Because of ever-tightening state budgets, less money is being kept in treasury accounts, pending bill payments.

Over the past three years, the average daily investment by Moon has declined from $118 million to $91 million last year. This year's daily investment is only about $89 million, Moon estimated.

Moon also warned that if the legislature alters state funds in its attempt to balance the state budget this year, state investments could be reduced even further.

"My (income) projection can be changed if the money is not available to invest. If the Legislature changes the funds that can be invested ... or passes new laws that either increase or decrease the number of funds which have legal authority to receive their own interest," Moon is concerned about what might happen to state investments if the Legislature allows borrowing from dedicated funds, to make emergency payments to public schools.

The Revenue Projection Committee accepted Moon's testimony Tuesday as it began work on developing estimates of how much money the state will take in during the remainder of this fiscal year, as well as during fiscal year 1984.

Those revenue projections will then be used by the legislature to set state budgets and possibly to determine if tax increases are necessary to keep state government operating in the black.

Sour economy adds to problem

BOISE (UPI) — The employment picture in Idaho will not improve significantly this year, although the number of jobless workers should level off during the first quarter, a state Employment Department official told a legislative committee Tuesday.

However, the bleak prediction for this year will be an improvement over 1982 when "for the first time cuts in employment affected every one of the major industry groups," Employment Department researcher James Day said in testimony filed with the Revenue Projection Committee.

Day was one of several witnesses to appear during the first day of a week-long hearing on the status of Idaho's economy.

At the end of the week, committee members will hear four different estimates of the amount of revenue the state will collect in fiscal year 1984, which begins next July, Legislative Auditor Bruce Balderston said.

The panel then will set its own projection, a figure that lawmakers will rely on when deciding such fiscal measures as possible tax hikes or budget cuts.

Day told committee members that relief in the unemployment situation will lag any improvements in the general economy. The latest figures show an unemployment rate of 9.9 percent in November.

"Recovery from this depression will be a slow process as it relates to the work force and... unemployment will continue to be a major concern for some time after business begins to improve," he said. "I am more convinced now than I was (last year) that the labor force in Idaho is in a true depression and has been since late 1979."

The Employment Department also has been hit by the economy, and officials were forced to ask the federal government for a loan to cover unemployment insurance payments, Day said.

He said the agency also has asked the Idaho Legislature to temporarily increase taxes to repay the federal loan, which became necessary when the employment security trust fund balance dropped to $23 million toward the end of the year.

Despite those problems, Idaho Wheat Commission director Dick Rush urged lawmakers not to siphon funds from agricultural research at a time when farmers also are suffering difficulties and must rely on the quality of their product.

Evans pushes exemption

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John Evans said Tuesday he will resist any attempts in the 1983 Legislature to delay or prevent adoption of the "50-50" property-tax exemption approved by Idaho voters in the November election.

Evans acknowledged during a news conference that there is some opposition to implementing the initiative, which would allow property owners to claim a tax exemption for 50 percent or $50,000 of the value of their property, whichever is lesser.

Some special-interest groups — including the Idaho Association of School Administrators — have said the state might not be able to afford reducing property-tax revenues while it faces an estimated $47 million revenue shortfall in the current fiscal year.

And business and utility spokesmen have said the measure unfairly shifts the property tax burden on businesses and industries, saying those firms will have to increase prices to consumers to cover the additional tax expense.

Senate President James Risch, R-Boise, said initiative opponents might bring a court suit to block the measure's implementation. If that happened, he said, the Legislature probably would not put the law on the books until the legal challenge was decided.

Go very cautiously on revenue guesses

Estimating state revenues when the economy is going up is not easy, given the wide number of sources from which revenues can come and the difficulty of guessing the amount of new construction, new residents and new taxpayers there will be in Idaho at any given point in the future.

And if you are off a bit, so what? No one really gripes beyond the behind-the-scenes scrapping among state agencies for funding just one more project or program. For years, that was the situation facing Idaho. Revenue estimates were low, but the actual figures generally came in pretty close to the call; rarely was there a significant gap.

Now all that has changed. Idaho's economy is following the national downturn, and is perhaps lagging behind it, with a slower recovery to come who knows when.

Last year, the governor's office projected state revenues at more than $500 million; the Legislature projected revenues of $464, which was then appropriated. But revenues haven't remotely reached either figure, resulting in severe shortages that are trickling through every agency in state government.

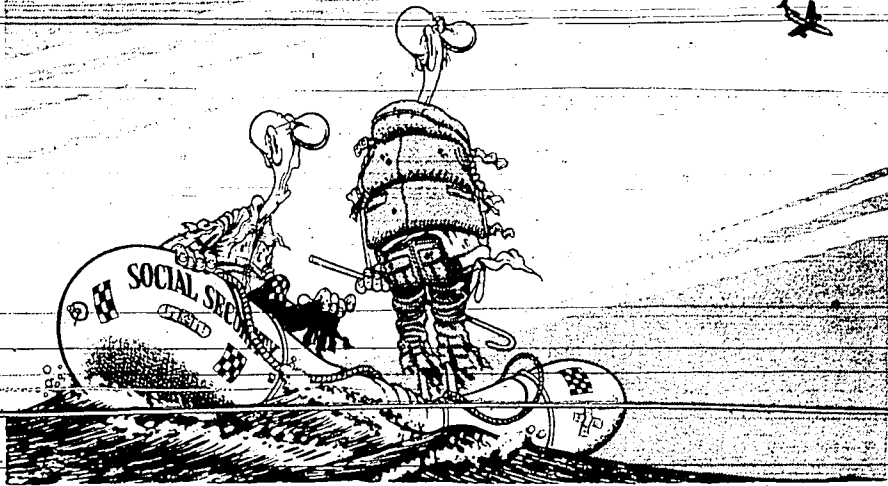

Now, the Legislative Revenue Projection Committee is taking up the task again, looking for indications of how far Idaho's economy will fall in the 1984 fiscal year, which starts July 1.

The projections aren't good. One official after another has testified this week about how Idaho's economy is hurting in agriculture, interest receipts and job creation. The 1984 figure may be well under $400 million, given the lag between the national economy — which is only now showing signs of real recovery — and the state's — which is tied to such long-range industries as timber and mining.

We don't envy the committee, or it's chairman, Rep. John Brooks (R-Gooding), which must come up with the best guess it can. In our judgment, the committee should err on the side of caution and should base its estimates on modest, not enthusiastic, projections.

There seems to be general feeling that Idaho will experience another sharp growth period in the mid-1980s, but when that growth will start, no one knows.

Certainly, it isn't going to be tomorrow, and with each passing month, the recovery time is stretching further and further ahead.

Greenspan knows priorities for nation

WASHINGTON -- Alan Greenspan is an economist. But don't touch that dial, he is more than that. He was chairman of President Ford's Council of Economic Advisers. Now he is chairman of the National Commission on Social Security.

He has been around long enough to know the difference between economic and political possibilities. He has a deep sense of priorities, of what must be done and what can be done without. When he says, speaking of the most basic causes of the nation's economic problems, "The No. 1 priority is to make credible the idea that long-term deficits are coming down," the new 98th Congress should listen. President Reagan should listen, too.

It was Reagan who made Greenspan chairman of the National Commission on Social Security, which is one very large problem. When he is asked about an even larger problem, the state of the nation's economy, he comes down very reluctantly against the president two times out of three.

Greenspan was on "Meet the Press" Sunday and the stiff questions were asked: If he had to make the hard choices, he would be in favor of cutting social welfare programs. He agrees with his president. He would be in favor of cutting planned defense spending. He disagrees with his president. He would be in favor of tax increases. He disagrees with his president.

All three items represent very difficult choices, and Greenspan knows it. "Not controlling the long-term deficits is the worse choice," says he. The prospect of long-term deficits will make banks and other lenders fear a return to galloping inflation. While this fear persists, long-term interest rates such as those on mortgages will stay too high to permit a real boom in housing, or any major business expansion.

That was Greenspan, economist and former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, talking. He was straightforward. When he put on his other hat, and spoke as chairman of the National Commission on Social Security, he was cautious and ambiguous. He has to be.

The commission, which was created to give both the president and the Congress someone to pass the buck to until after the election, was supposed to make its recommendations on bailing out the Social Security system by the end of 1982. Greenspan asked for, and got, an extension of 15 days. He is on borrowed time, trying desperately to put a package together that everyone on the 15-member commission could agree on. That would take a miracle.

"We are close," he said, but there is no agreement. He is looking for "guidance" from the White House and from House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass. If there were agreement between those two, there would have been no need for a commission.

Greenspan's commission can agree on two major things: From now until 1989, Social Security will have a deficit of from $150 billion to $200 billion. All of the possible measures for closing the economic gap are politically painful. "None of them look very appetizing," Greenspan said.

Raising taxes (they call it "accelerating already scheduled tax increases") is painful. Increasing the retirement age is painful. Putting a limit on increases in benefits, or delaying increases in benefits, is painful. What is easy for an economist is difficult for a politician.

The easiest thing, politically, is just to borrow more money from general revenue and add it to the already awesome deficit. Democratic commission member Rep. Claude Pepper of Florida says, "Congress saved New York City, Congress saved Chrysler, Congress saved Lockheed. I don't see why Congress can't save Social Security."

Congress guaranteed loans to all of those entities and bailed them out. As a price for those bailouts, it demanded painful concessions from other creditors, wage freezes and give-backs from unions, loss of control by management. When Congress bails out Social Security by borrowing, there is no pain until another Congress, or another generation.

Priority No. 1, said economist Greenspan, is to make credible the idea that long-term deficits are coming down. Bailing out the Social Security system by having the U.S. treasury take over its debt would violate the top priority.

Reagan buffaloes U.S. progressives

WASHINGTON -- At mid-term, it seems fair to say that progressives, those standing to the left in the Democratic Party or outside of it, have been buffaloes by Ron Reagan.

Their problem is precisely the opposite of that of more traditional Democrats. While Democrats are criticized for having had no fresh ideas since the New Deal, progressives have generated a host of economic and other proposals but have never been able to find a potent electoral vehicle with which to test the support such ideas might have.

A case in point might be the 1982 elections. The Citizens Party, a moderate progressive party which ran environmentalist Barry Commoner in the 1980 presidential election, fielded 81 candidates for a host of local and federal posts.

It won one election, gained 40 percent of the vote in several others, was accused of spoiling a Democratic victory in at least one House seat race, and made some surprisingly good races in a number of other places. Still, it won but one office.

At the same time those candidates were out campaigning, another group of progressives, grouped around the magazine Social Policy, issued a stinging critique of the Reagan administration in the Harper and Row paperback book, "What Reagan is Doing to Us."

In 15 essays, collected by Social Policy editor Frank Riessman and others, progressives looked at the effects of Reagan's policies on the economy, foreign policy, women, minorities, crime, health, education, welfare and neighborhoods.

But more than that, they offered policy proposals they believe will result in a fairer, more equitable, more caring society.

"To go beyond Reaganism," one essay argues, "requires going beyond liberalism."

In many respects, the progressive alternative to the current administration philosophy stands Reaganism on its head, urging the extension of democratic principles and democratic control to the economy — the opposite of the rampant free enterprise supported by conservatives — while urging a decentralized vision of local and neighborhood control in other areas.

For example, the progressives argue that "Merely restoring Reaganite cuts in existing welfare programs is not what is needed."

"Profound change in social programs is important," one of the essays said. "The general principle is to avoid dependence and promote independence and autonomy . . . to shift decision making and day-to-day operations out of the top-down bureaucratic setting toward a more participatory form."

Another essay added: "The struggle against Reaganism will not be advanced by a defense of liberal programs and ideology as they have been experienced. It should be a fight for new and additional ways of effectively and compassionately dealing with the problem of American life today."

Norman Thomas, the perennial Socialist candidate for president several decades ago, never was elected to public office, but many of his proposals are part of American life today.

But there is no politician outside the major party orbit of Thomas' standing in contemporary American politics.

New ideas need new politicians if they are going to be taken seriously. And it is even more difficult for new politicians, especially if they step outside the mold of the two major parties, to get a serious hearing.

Letters/ Keep hands off Idaho Fish and Game funds

Empires mean more debt

Your editorial on the Use of Fish and Game funds is another Times-News faux pas. I pay for my fishing and hunting license so our Idaho Fish and Game department can use the money, not the spendthrifts who call themselves politicians. This state is in debt because there are too many politicians and bureaucrats still building themselves empires. These empires are overstuffed with people putting out excessive amounts of useless paperwork and regulations. The way to get out of our state funding mess is to eliminate the excesses in all state government from the top to the bottom. Government of the politicians for the politicians and by the politicians is a carbuncle to all taxpayers. This state of Idaho has a good Fish and Game department. They could also probably stand some cuts. We should however realize that the good hunting and fishing generates money in the form of taxes on all fishing and hunting supplies sold in this state. The general fund also gets tax from the gas sold to go on hunting and fishing trips, plus the sales tax on clothes, tents, etc. The Fish and Game people are some of the few money makers for this great state and its fine taxpaying people. So I say let the money the Fish and Game department has in their fund remain in that fund. It should be used wisely and well by the Fish and Game. The politicians might be in my taxpaying pocket but they don't need to put their hand into my Fish and Game paying pocket. E.A. KELLY

Handling drunk drivers

How they handle drunk drivers in other countries:

Australia — the names of the convicted drivers are published in local newspapers under the heading, "Drink and Jail."

Malaya — The driver is jailed, and if he is married, his wife is also jailed.

Finland, England and Sweden — Drunk drivers are automatically jailed for approximately one year.

South Africa — The drunken driver is given a 10-year prison sentence, a fine of $10,000 or both.

Turkey — Drunk drivers are taken 20 miles from town and forced to walk back under police escort.

Bulgaria — A second conviction of drunken driving is your last. The punishment is execution!

San Salvador — Drunk drivers are executed by a firing squad.

Democrats whip mavericks into line

By DON PHILLIPS
United Press International

WASHINGTON — House Democrats, one day after removing Texas "Boll Weevil" Phil Gramm from the Budget Committee, Tuesday allowed a conservative to keep his committee chairmanship.

But Rep. G. V. "Sonny" Montgomery, D-Miss., said following his close-call re-election as chairman of the Veterans Affairs Committee that he "got the message" from his colleagues. He was re-elected 179-53 by the Democratic Caucus, an unusually high negative vote against a sitting chairman.

"I think those of us who have our conservative philosophy are going to keep it," said Montgomery. "But I will support the leadership where I can."

All other nominees for chairman received only a scattering of negative votes, including a new Rules Committee chairman — Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., the oldest man in the House at age 82 and a popular fighter for elderly and social causes.

In two days of organizing for the

Gramm meets with reporters in Texas

98th Congress, Democrats have served notice they are cracking the whip on party loyalty this year, first by removing Gramm from the budget committee as discipline for his active support of President Reagan and next by packing key committee vacancies with loyalists.

Gramm returned to Texas Tuesday to contemplate a switch to the Republican party, which he probably will announce at a press conference Wednesday in his office in Bryan, Texas. He told friends he may resign and run in a special election as a GOP candidate, rather than simply switching parties.

House Republican leaders, also meeting to organize for the upcoming Congress, voted to hold open a GOP seat on the Budget Committee for Gramm if he switches parties, as expected. And the White House revealed that President Reagan had written Gramm saying he would be welcomed into the GOP.

Gramm has been Reagan's most loyal Democratic supporter, and Reagan's massive 1981 budget-cutting bill bears his name as one of the sponsors along with Rep. Delbert Latta of Ohio, ranking Republican on the Budget Committee.

The Democratic Steering and Policy Committee, made up of Democratic leaders and regional representatives, continued work throughout the week assigning members to committee vacancies.

President signs bill to promote orphan drugs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan signed legislation Tuesday that provides a tax break to drug companies to encourage them to develop medicines for some 2,000 rare and debilitating diseases that afflict about 20 million Americans.

Now we can all live with hope to the future," a jubilant Sharon Dobkin said as she drank champagne at her home in New York. Mrs. Dobkin, who suffers from myoclonus, sometimes shakes so badly she cannot hold her 15-month-old child, Shelomo, in her arms.

In Los Angeles, Adam Sellgram, 21, said he is "incredibly excited" and feels like giving a party. Sellgram, a victim of Tourette syndrome, has been subject since childhood to tics, jerks and bursts of uncontrolled swearing.

The so-called orphan drug bill is one of a handful of pieces of legislation left from the 97th Congress. Backers had feared Reagan might veto the bill or let it fall victim to a midnight deadline.

Reagan's advisers argued it would cost needed tax dollars and the Justice Department said an amendment it carried could make the government liable to law suits from Westerners exposed to atomic fallout.

The president said in a statement that while he had "grave reservations" about parts of the bill, he signed it gladly.

"I only wish with the stroke of this pen to be able to direct that the pain and heartache of people who suffer from these diseases would cease," Reagan said.

The U.S. drug industry has not marketed drugs for conditions like Tourette syndrome, myoclonus, the disfiguring elephant man's disease and Huntington's disease, which killed folk singer Woodie Guthrie, because their victims number in the hundreds or thousands, rather than many millions.

Reagan will meet press

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan holds a nationally broadcast news conference Wednesday and likely will be asked again about high unemployment, the sluggish economy and talk of a $200-million budget deficit.

Reagan meets with reporters at 6 p.m. MST in the East Room, his first news conference of the new year and 25th since taking office. His last was Nov. 11, but aides indicated the president plans more frequent sessions in 1983.

Reagan can count on questions about the economy. The administration is working on his fiscal 1984 budget, which must go to Congress by Jan. 31, and there are growing demands — even from GOP conservatives — that he either cut defense spending or spread it out over a longer period.

Reagan's fiscal experts have predicted a deficit of nearly $200 billion, and the president probably will be asked how he plans to control the red ink. He campaigned on a promise to balance the federal budget by fiscal 1984, but instead has been hit by record deficits.

Agnew pays back $268,000 to state

BAITIMORE (UPI) — A check for more than $268,000 from Spiro T. Agnew was presented to state Treasurer William James Tuesday, ending a 6-year-old bribery suit against the former vice president begun as a student law project.

The payment represented the money authorities said Agnew accepted in kickbacks from highway contractors while he was Maryland governor, plus interest.

"Those who violated the public trust have paid for it with the item any potential wrongdoer understands best; money," Maryland Attorney General Stephen Sachs said as he handed over a check for $268,482 to James.

A Maryland Circuit Court judge ruled in 1981 that Agnew, 64, violated his public trust by accepting $147,500 in kickbacks from 1967 to 1969.

The judge ordered Agnew, vice president under Richard Nixon until he resigned in 1973 and a leading Nixon administration proponent of "law and order," to repay the state the money, plus $101,235 in interest.

The payment was more than the original amount of $248,735 because of the addition of post-judgment interest on the original principal judgment, the attorney general's office said.

Sachs said the judgment was believed to be the largest of its kind in the nation.

"It is especially gratifying to have this money returned to the state because it confirms three important but sometimes ignored points," Sachs said.

"It reminds us of the good, old-fashioned principle that a public office is a public trust; it helps erase at least part of the stain that Maryland's reputation suffered because of Mr. Agnew's greed, and, finally, it proves what determined citizens can accomplish."

Syria building missile bases

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — The Israeli army disclosed Tuesday that Syria is building bases inside its territory for Soviet-made long-range SAM-5 missiles that could threaten Israeli air supremacy over Lebanon and northern Israel.

The anti-aircraft SAM-5's have a range of almost 180 miles. The SAM-5's and SAM-2's Syria already has deployed can only reach targets up to 30 miles away.

"From inside Syrian territory the SAM-5's can cover Lebanon and even the Golan," said Ze'ev Fitan of the Israeli Center of Strategic Studies. "It can give the Syrians the feeling that Damascus and its ports are defended."

The announcement came one day after Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir said that Israel is concerned by reports that Soviet crews may be manning "highly sophisticated Soviet weaponry" in Syria.

The army announcement went beyond the standard communiques dealing with military operations and guerrilla attacks. It was apparently aimed at putting Syria on notice it should not think that the missiles improve its position in negotiations on getting foreign troops out of Lebanon.

"When the Syrians get advanced weapons, it means they will be less flexible in negotiations," an Israeli official said.

Israeli officials quoted by Armed Forces Radio said deployment of the SAM-5's might be a signal to Washington from the Soviet Union it would continue to rearm Damascus despite the poor showing of Soviet weaponry — including anti-aircraft missiles — in the Lebanon war.

The army said the two bases being built inside Syria have not yet been staffed. Israel Radio said SAM-5's, operational since 1967, have never been delivered outside Soviet borders.

Nicaragua routs rightist rebels

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Government troops routed about 40 rightist commandos in a five-hour battle and drove them back across the border into Honduras, leftist Nicaraguan military officials said Tuesday.

A Defense Ministry spokesman said an "undetermined" number of the rightists were killed or wounded in the fighting Monday night near the hamlet of Cerro El Cipres, in the coffee-growing border province of Nuevo Segovia. He made no mention of government casualties.

He said the rightists crossed from Honduras several days earlier and had set up a base with foxholes and trenches that could have accommodated 180 commandos.

Local army commander Jaime Agurecia said Nicaraguan soldiers had tracked the rightists to Cerro El Cipres "where we roused them and tore up their camp," which had been occupied by about 40 men.

Agurecia said the army found Chinese automatic rifles, one .50-caliber machine gun, mortars and packages of coffee from Honduras at the abandoned camp.

Warsaw pact prepares to answer NATO plan

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (UPI) — Soviet leader Yuri Andropov met Tuesday with Moscow's Warsaw Pact Communist allies to update their mutual defense policy and map countermeasures to NATO's plan to deploy nuclear missiles in Western Europe.

"The deployment in Western Europe of new American medium-range nuclear missiles... will dangerously increase the risk of nuclear war," the Czechoslovak Communist newspaper Rude Prava said.

It said the Warsaw Pact nations "must exert new effort to prevent the implementation of these plans" for the deployment of U.S. Pershing-2 and cruise missiles due to begin next autumn.

Andropov, attending his first summit as Communist Party chairman, was clearly the dominating force in the discussions centered on nuclear strategies of both the West and East defense alliances.

Present at the conference, in addition to Andropov, were Poland's military ruler Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski and the leaders of Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary, East Germany and Czechoslovakia. The seven East bloc leaders opened their top-secret meeting with a minute of silence for the late Soviet chief Leonid Brezhnev who died in November.

The first move, according to Prague diplomatic circles, will be the adoption of Andropov's December proposal to pull back Soviet medium-range missiles, including some sophisticated SS-20s, if NATO scraps its deployment plans.

If the Andropov plan — already given a cool reception by the United States — is rejected outright, diplomatic sources said the East bloc might try to scuttle President Reagan's arms program by undermining its support among the NATO allies.

YOUR SPINE & HEALTH: SHOES

By Dr. Ludwig C. Landwehr

Shoe style to many is more important than good footcare and feet are forced into shoes that do not fit — purely because of fashion or vanity.

If the shoes are too tight they prevent normal movement of the foot, constrict muscles of the foot, cut off an adequate blood supply, cause hemorrhoids, bunions, callouses or other foot problems that in turn may be responsible for body imbalance.

Whether your feet show overt symptoms or not, they are deserving of proper care. Soles or heels that are worn down too much and throw your feet out of balance can cause more severe problems in your supporting bone and muscular structure. Not seldom pelvic or spinal distortion are a result of improper shoes or can be reduced by a corrective support for the feet.

After studying your back problems, if necessary your doctor at chiropractic will advise you on what type of shoe and/or support is best for you.

An estimated $30,000 in damage resulted to Melvin Griffith's truck after he apparently fell asleep and rammed another vehicle Tuesday morning on I-84

Three Tuesday accidents send eight to hospitals

TWIN FALLS — Five persons were injured in two mishaps Tuesday morning on I-84 in Jerome County, and three young Twin Falls girls suffered minor injuries in a car accident later in the day in Twin Falls.

Idaho State Police officers in Twin Falls reported that two trucks collided at 11:03 a.m. on I-84, six miles east of the Kimberly exit, sending three persons to the hospital and resulting in about $35,000 damage to the vehicles.

According to Trooper Greg Harris, Melvin Raymond Griffith, 30, of Nampa, was eastbound in a semi, carrying a load of fish, when he apparently fell asleep and rear-ended another semi, which was loaded with lumber.

The lumber truck was driven by Roberto Vasquez, 48, of Scobell, Mo.

Officers said both drivers and a passenger in the Griffith vehicle, Norman Griffith, 24, of Boise, were treated at St. Benedict's Hospital in Jerome and released.

Griffith has been cited for inattentive driving.

Damage to his truck and cargo was estimated at $30,000, and damage to the Vasquez truck and cargo was estimated at $5,000.

At 6:16 a.m., Geraldine Cowan, 55, of Santa Rosa, Calif., lost control of her vehicle as she left the rest stop just east of the Twin Falls exit on I-84.

Harris said the vehicle skidded on the icy highway and crashed into a rock embankment. She and a passenger, Gerrie Cowan, 30, of Heyburn, were taken to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in Twin Falls for treatment of minor injuries and released.

At about 4 p.m., a vehicle driven east in the 1600 block of Kimberly Road in Twin Falls collided with a parked truck after the driver reached for something on the floor of the car. The driver, Shanna Marie Price, 18, and two passengers — Bonnie Johnson, 17, and Tammy Kopnick, 16, were treated at the medical center for minor injuries and released.

The driver told officers the road was slick at the time.

Economy stalls malls' recruiters

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Plans for a new shopping mall in Twin Falls are apparently on hold and showing no signs of being revived according to a J.C. Penney Co. executive.

"Nobody is knocking down our door any more," says Steve Evans, Penney's representative for the Western region. "Right now, the opportunities that seem to be presenting themselves in Twin Falls seem to be on the back burner."

Plans for a new shopping mall in Twin Falls have been stalled since 1979, but have since subsided.

"Nothing much has happened in a while," Evans says. "The economy is to blame, he says. High interest rates made financing difficult to obtain and projects too costly to be attractive."

"The pace of development is as slow as it's ever been," Evans says. Thus, proposed malls in Twin Falls and throughout the nation have stalled while still in the planning stages.

"Twin Falls isn't alone," he says. "There are Twin Fallses all over the country right now." But when the economy improves, he sees no reason to think the trend toward building more malls also won't continue, turning more stores from their current downtown shopping areas.

"If the economy turns around, you probably will see a lot of the same things you've seen in the past," he says. But he cautions people against drawing conclusions from even that mild statement. Penney's would not necessarily move from downtown Twin Falls to a regional mall, he says.

"We look at every single market and determine what's the best thing in that market. We just don't carte blanche say, 'We have to be in malls everywhere, or conversely, we have to be in downtown.'"

A spokesman for a rival retail giant echoes many of the same thoughts. "You can't say we've been moving out of downtowns, that's not so," says Bruce Brown, the regional director of public affairs for Sears Roebuck and Co. "Neither can it be said we are staying in downtown."

Whether the Sears in downtown Twin Falls would move to a mall, should one be built, "I wouldn't even speculate," Brown says. "There are so many factors: it would depend entirely upon the package presented."

Sears has pulled out of some proposed malls in the past year, he says. But the major reason was delays in the projects caused by the developers' financial problems.

Prosecutor questions zoning decision

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A deputy Twin Falls County prosecutor has labeled as "fatally defective" the legality of the way zoning officials last month approved plans to rezone an 189-acre parcel for development.

A three-page memorandum, released Tuesday, concerns a request by Cecil Lyons of Buhl to rezone his property, located on both sides of U.S. 30, one mile west of Buhl, for commercial and residential development.

The opinion comes just as the three-member county commission is considering rezoning arguments on the matter. A public hearing will be held on the issue today at 11 a.m. by the county commissioners.

The proposal calls for zoning as commercial land an area that is 600 feet back from the south side of the highway and 400 feet from the north side of the road. The rest of the area would be developed as residential land, with a minimum lot size of 2.5 acres.

The land now is zoned for agricultural use. Last month, the county's Planning and Zoning Commission — on a split vote — recommended approval of the rezoning, after the proposal had been

In pesticide controversy

Buena Vista residents claim tests support their claims

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Buena Vista Street resident says the discovery of pesticide residues in soil samples taken from his neighborhood substantiates concerns about toxic chemicals stored nearby.

However, Elmo Muir of Twin Falls, who runs the two Warberg Warehouses off Canyon Street, says that because the source of the pesticides is unknown, the discovery proves nothing.

State laboratory tests, released this week, found traces of two compounds — Furadan and carbaryl — plus a breakdown product of Furadan — in soil samples taken from the yard of Mrs. Edna Rains, at 210 Buena Vista. No traces of several other chemicals, stored at the warehouse, were found.

The Idaho Department of Health and Welfare's environmental division had obtained the samples following complaints by Rains and other neighbors that toxic chemicals stored in the two warehouses were making them ill.

The Idaho Department of Agriculture, which inspected the warehouses this summer and found nothing amiss, has decided to test more soil samples, says Rodney Awe, the chief of the department's Bureau of Pesticides.

"We want to find out the root of the problem," Awe says.

He says the new tests will "scan" the soil for a range of chemicals, unlike the previous tests, which could only verify the presence of individual chemicals. The sampling will be done "as soon as the weather clears up," he said Tuesday.

Gary Burkett, a DHW environmental specialist, says information from a U.S. Environmental Protection Agency toxicologist indicates that the levels of Furadan and carbaryl found in the soil do not pose a health hazard.

However, Carl Niedrich of 220 Buena Vista, says he feels the tests show "there was a reason for all the residents to complain" about the warehouses.

He contends the results "proved management of pesticides in the warehouse is not reliable."

Muir says that although both Furadan and carbaryl, which also is

Now, you can start your 'super NOW' account

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Area banks and savings and loans started offering checking accounts today that pay money-market interest rates.

Like other new accounts offered in the past two years, these accounts are the product of deregulation in the banking industry, which has produced more competition and a sometimes baffling variety of accounts.

The new accounts are called "super NOWs." They are an improved version of the NOW account, as well as a close cousin to the insured money-market accounts that banks and savings and loans were allowed to start offering last month.

Depending on the institution, the interest rates when those accounts first became available in December ranged from slightly more than 8 percent to 12 percent. The rates available today on those accounts range from slightly more than 8 percent to about 11 percent.

Rates on both types of accounts can be adjusted daily, although many institutions are adjusting the rates only once a week or once a month. In the case of First Federal Savings and Loan Association.

The interest rate on the super NOWs is expected to be slightly lower than

on the money-market accounts, since the money-market accounts offer limited check-writing service, and the new NOWs offer full check-writing privileges.

NOW stands for negotiable order of withdrawal. In practice — although not strictly correct in bankers' parlance — the accounts are checking accounts that pay interest.

When "NOW" accounts became available nationally about two years ago, the interest rate was set by federal regulations at 5.25 percent. On the new NOWs, there is no limit on the interest a bank or savings and loan can pay. A $2,500 minimum deposit is required.

The major difference among the accounts being offered at Magic Valley banks and savings and loans is whether a money-market interest rate is paid on the full balance of the account, or whether the first $2,500 earns 5.25 percent and the remaining balance earns a money-market rate.

The institutions that do not pay a money-market rate on the full balance are expected to offer a higher rate on the remaining balances in order to make their accounts attractive.

Health professionals, educators support sex education

By HARRIET GUTHERTZ
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Saying that teenage pregnancies are one of the nation's biggest health problems, five Twin Falls health practitioners and educators have stressed the need for sex education in the schools.

They presented their views at a Magic Valley Regional Medical Center forum Monday night.

In 1980, around 14 percent of all children born in Twin Falls County were born to women under 19, said Cheryl Becker, a South Central District Health Department nurse. And nationally, teenage pregnancies account for 20 percent of the births and 33 percent of the abortions, according to a March of Dimes film, screened at the public lecture.

Young mothers have a greater than average chance of giving birth to an underweight child or one suffering from birth defects, said Dr. George Miller, a gynecologist and obstetrician.

The charges for medical complications resulting from teenage pregnancies amount to about $250,000 per year at MVRMC, said Paul Miles, a pediatrician at the hospital. And because many teenagers don't have adequate health insurance, MVRMC must cover about $125,000 of the total, he said.

Miles also said pregnancy is one of the major causes for dropping out of school.

Marvin Bartosovsky, an eighth-grade science and health teacher at Buhl Junior High School, said the sex-education program at his school has been a success and has resulted in a drop in the number of pregnancies. And Miles said sex education should be part of a comprehensive health-education program, which starts in elementary school.

Responding to charges that sex education leads teenagers on, Miller, who said he teaches his children that sex is reserved for marriage — said, "Teenagers think about sex once every five minutes, so you're not putting ideas in their heads."

Bartosovsky, who has been teaching a two-week sex education unit for the past three years, stressed that it's important to couple lessons on anatomy and contraception with discussions about morality and value judgments. But because of restrictions on religious instruction in the schools, Bartosovsky said what he could do is limited. He encourages the churches to work more with the theme, he said.

Searchers find bodies of plane crash victims

HAILY — A day-long effort Tuesday by skiers, snowmobilers and avalanche specialists resulted in the recovery of the bodies of two Illinois fliers from a covered mountain ridge east of Haily.

The two men were killed Monday morning when their jet crashed into Red Devil Mountain, about two and a half miles short of the Haily airport.

Blaine County Sheriff Dennis Haynes said rescue crews reported that the pilot, Henry F. Cook of Decatur, and his copilot, Chester Wesołek of Lovington, apparently died on impact.

Both bodies, the sheriff said, were thrown clear of the wreckage and were found "about 200 yards" from where the plane struck the ridge.

Haynes said both men were in their 50s, and both were working for the A.N. Staley Co. of Decatur, the owner of the new Canadair Challenger 600 twin-engine craft that crashed.

Haynes said he met early Tuesday with Federal Aviation Administration officials and Blaine County Search and Rescue personnel whose responsibility it would be to locate and remove the bodies from the crash site. The operation was completed by about 2:30 or 3 p.m., the sheriff said.

"We cleared the terrain and snow, set up the search area, set up the conditions," he flew with Harper (a U.S. Forest Service avalanche expert) and my search and rescue commander, Ray Wheeler, to the ridge at the crash site to determine an avalanche danger and decide on a plan of recovery," Haynes said.

They determined combs above the wreckage were unstable and conditions were hazardous for the rescue efforts, the sheriff said. Two Sun Valley ski patrolmen were then taken to the site by helicopter and the combs were detonated.

About a dozen members of the Sun Valley Nordic Ski Patrol, who are part of the Blaine County Search and Rescue team, then were air lifted to the ridge, near the point of impact. They searched the area on skis and located the victims.

The ill-fated craft left Decatur about 4 a.m. MST for Haily and disappeared from the air-traffic radar screen in Salt Lake City at 9:01 a.m. However, the crash was not confirmed until about 3 p.m. Monday, officers said.

Police chief ends search of river for 'missing' youngster

GOODING (UPI) — An organized search of the Little Wood River probably will not be resumed unless authorities receive a missing-person report to match a second-grader's claim someone slipped into the stream, Gooding's police chief said Tuesday.

Rescue teams searched the ice-covered river for six hours Monday afternoon and evening, after a child said he saw what he thought was a little boy slip into a hole in the ice where the river runs through downtown Gooding.

"Gooding police Chief Bill Bunn said late Tuesday that there have been no reports of missing children, and he believed that if a small child had gone into the river, the family would have reported him missing within 24 hours.

"I think now it may be the case of a bigger kid playing a trick on a smaller child," Bunn said. "Someone apparently might be the child that saw someone fall into the river. We can't find anything concrete to verify the incident."

Divers used lights to search under the frozen water Monday night, Bunn said.

"We still have had no reports of anybody missing, so I doubt if we'll search again unless something turns up," Bunn said.

The police chief said the child who reported the incident attempted to identify the would-be victim at school Tuesday, but couldn't be sure if the child he thought he saw slip into the water was in school or not.

Miles warned against dictating morality — A state school superintendent pointed to lay out all of the options and to help teenagers make value judgments in the end, they have to make their own decisions.

Although no Magic Valley public school system offers a class devoted solely to sex education, most schools offer some sort of instruction as part of a health or home-economics class.

Becker said, Magic Valley schools also can invite public-health nurses to provide additional lectures on specific topics, such as venereal disease and contraception, she said.

MVRMC recently has put together a three-member team that will travel to schools and present an intensive four-hour sex education session, said Sharon Fischer, a nurse in district health department as a community service, she said.

Both MVRMC and the health department visit the schools only at the invitation of the principal. Parental permission is required before students attend the special classes.

Becker said that only a few parents request that their children not attend. Bartokovsky said only one parent in three years has refused to approve the attendance slip for his classes.

The Buhl school system is the only one that has invited the MVRMC team, but Fischer hopes that more will do so.

Chemicals

known as Sevin, are stored in one of the warehouses, he does not believe the soil contamination stemmed from his operation.

Sevin is a common insect spray that many homeowners and county agents use in gardens, he says.

Most of the stored Furadan is in a liquid form. The only way it could have been found in Rains' yard was if someone had "taken it over there and poured it there," he said Tuesday.

The dry Furadan is stored in sealed plastic bags, he says. Furadan is used to control corn rootworms and other soil pests.

However, Niedrich says he remains convinced that further testing will produce more evidence of other pesticides. Both he and Rains have said they do not use pesticides in their yards.

Niedrich says neighbors are asking City Council to use a "public nuisance law" to force the warehouse to close. If city agencies do not pursue the matter, he says the neighbors will hire their own lawyer and pursue further legal action.

Muir says he will cooperate with officials in further investigation of his warehouses. He also says that a new formulation of Thimet, a particularly toxic chemical, was replacing the Thimet previously stored there.

Because of its strong odor and toxic properties, Thimet has been the focus of attention by investigators. Muir says the new Thimet does not have an odor.

Zoning

dormant for three years. A public hearing before the zoning board was held in 1979, and the matter had been tabled, pending additional information.

But deputy prosecutor Dennis Voorhees says the way in which the zoning board handled the matter last month was so deficient that the county would not be in a "defensible position" if the decision is challenged in court.

Among the problem areas that Voorhees pointed out were:

- The decision does not meet Idaho

Supreme Court and statutory requirements that zoning board make findings of fact and conclusions of law.

- State and county requirements for adequate public notice were not met. A specific state requirement that residents living within 300 feet of the affected property be notified by mail was not met. Voorhees says. And the county commission violated a county ordinance by providing only one, instead of the required two, formal legal advertisements, he says.
- The zoning board's failure to hold a second public hearing last month contradicts a 1980 Supreme Court decision, Voorhees says.

"At the Dec. 9, 1982, meeting, at which final approval was given, one member of the public asked to comment, but was told that a public hearing had been held three years ago and was directed [in the speaking]. This flies directly in the face of the Cooper decision," the deputy prosecutor says.

Voorhees says he prepared the opinion on his own initiative after several questions about the case were raised. "No one specifically asked for it. It was prepared for the benefit of (county zoning administrator) Ervin Wilkins," Voorhees says. A copy of the decision also has been forwarded to Larry Orton, the community development director for the city of Twin Falls.

But Voorhees' opinion is just that; it is not binding upon the county commissioners.

County commission Chairman Ann Cover declined to comment Tuesday on how the commissioners will respond. The public hearing will be held today as advertised, she said.

Schlund's free throws give Wolves OT win

CASTLEFORD — Troy Schlund converted two free throws with three seconds remaining in overtime to lift the Castleford Wolves over the Hagerman Pirates Tuesday night.

The loss snapped a six-game winning streak for the Pirates' while Castleford took its sixth consecutive victory of the season. Hagerman fell to 1-1 in Magic Valley Conference play while the game was Castleford's first league outing.

"The Wolves roared to a 14-7 first-quarter lead and managed to hold off the Pirates inside efforts to take a 20-22 tie at halftime."

Hagerman, however, rallied in the second half, outscoring the Wolves 18-12 in the third quarter and applied heavy defensive pressure in the fourth which proved enough to tie the game at the end of regulation.

The overtime period moved rather slow for both teams offensively and Hagerman was forced to foul Schlund which led the game for Castleford.

Castleford's 6-1 travels to Hansen Friday night while Hagerman, 6-3, visits Oakley.

Castleford also took the junior varsity contest, defeating Hagerman 50-21.

Camas City won the preliminary 38-34.

Easton powers Buhl to 11th win; Bruins defeat Burley

BÜHL — Karl Easton poured in 14 points Tuesday night to lead the Buhl Indians to their 11th victory in 13 games, a 44-25 win over American Falls.

"The Indians came out strong for the first quarter, outscoring the Beavers 14-4, then slowed down in the second and third quarters and didn't shoot well from the floor according to Buhl Coach Janet Smythe.

Easton had eight of his 14 points in the fourth period, play as Buhl outscored the Beavers 18-8.

"The girls played well toward the end of the game, and we were never behind," Smythe said.

The Indians' varsity win capped off their perfect high as Buhl's junior varsity won 29-27 in overtime.

Buhl hosts Mountain Home Friday night in the junior high gymnasium.

Rams' owner lauds, fires Malavasi

RAY MALAVASI
Axed for fans' sake

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — Los Angeles Rams Coach Ray Malavasi, who led his club to the Super Bowl in 1979 but whose teams failed to make the NFL playoffs the past two seasons, was fired Tuesday.

"We are indebted to Ray for some fine seasons of football," Ram owner Georgia Frontiere said. "He helped us into the playoffs three times, one two-division championship and coached our first superbowl team."

"Unfortunately, the results of the past two seasons have fallen short of our goal to give our fans a winning team," Frontiere said. "I have strong personal feelings of friendship for Ray. He is a fine and loyal person. However, I feel for the sake of our fans it is time to make a change."

The Rams lost to Pittsburgh in the 1979 Super Bowl in Malavasi's second season as coach. But in the last two seasons they failed to qualify for the playoffs, finishing the 1982-83 season at 2-7, last in the NFC.

A team spokesman said a news conference would be held "shortly" concerning a successor.

Malavasi, 52, succeeded George Allen, who was fired by Frontiere's husband and then club owner, Carroll

Levy canned by K.C. Chiefs after 5 years

MARV LEVY

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Kansas City Chiefs fired Marv Levy Tuesday for his failure to win the little ones in his five-year head coaching tenure.

The Chiefs missed out on the playoffs for the 11th consecutive year with a disappointing 3-6 finish this season — the first step-backward in Levy's term as head coach of the Chiefs. He had posted records of 4-12, 7-9, 8-8 and 9-7 leading up to his team's collapse during the strike-torn 1982 season.

Levy's firing came two days after he appeared to have saved his job with a 37-13 rout of the playoff-bound New York Jets.

"We were 7-7 over the past two years against teams in the playoffs this season," Chiefs President Jack Steadman said. "We've gone 12-8 against teams in our division (AFC West) and are 5-2 against the Raiders over the last few years. We feel we have the talent that is capable of making the playoffs."

"We feel we had reached a plateau with Marv as our coach. He has taken us as far as he can. We feel we need a fresh approach if we are going to make the breakthrough. Five years is

Oilers say Biles merits another year

ED BILES

Protecting draft choices

Houston Oilers Tuesday ended speculation and retained Ed Biles as coach for a third year.

Oilers owner Bud Adams and General Manager Ladd Herzog, in announcing the decision, said at this point this stage in the team's rebuilding that retaining draft choices is more important than winning immediately.

"The organization felt that Ed deserved the opportunity to continue his program," Herzog said.

Biles has one more season remaining on his contract. He was not given an extension. According to Herzog, keeping Biles as head coach "was not a cut and dried decision."

There was a "lengthy meeting" between Biles, Adams and Herzog early Tuesday. Later, as he sat behind his desk in the Adams Petroleum Center office, Biles was visibly relieved.

"I didn't have to do any selling job at all," he said. "There wasn't any doubt at any stage of the discussion (about job security). The meeting was almost an end-of-the-year discussion — what had been done and what had to be done." Biles said.

He said he had carried out Adams' dictates by protecting top draft choices, although failure to trade for veterans has contributed to Biles' 8-17 record over two years.

Adams said there were many factors for the continued vote of confidence, including the fact that Biles had been placed into a difficult situation "in replacing fired head coach Bum Phillips on Dec. 31, 1980. Phillips had led the team to three playoffs in three years."

Biles said no one would have to show him the door if the Oilers did not improve in 1983.

'Dogs romp in triangular

By The Times-News

Kimberly won two Canyon Conference matches while Idaho Falls high schools defeated two Magic Valley schools — Minico and Twin Falls — in Tuesday's prep wrestling action.

At Hazelton, the Kimberly Bulldogs took six consecutive matches as they rolled over the Valley Vikings 50-18 and proceeded to crush the Wendell Trojans 63-9 in a triangular meet Tuesday night.

Wrestling

Valley, behind the strength of Curt Ulrich in the 155-pound division, defeated 30-15.

Shacked by three forfeit losses, the Twin Falls Bruins lost to the Idaho Falls Tigers, 38-28.

The Bruins gave away the 98- and 105-pound matches, in addition to the heavyweight contest. Otherwise, Twin Falls performed capably, winning five of the nine matches it participated in.

At Idaho Falls, the Minico Spartans suffered their first dual-match loss this season, falling to the formidable Skyline Grizzlies, 31-20.

At Declo, two Aberdeen forfeits gave Declo 12 vital points as the Hornets scored a 34-32 win.

Noll: Steelers regain 'championship attitude'

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll says the Steelers seem to have recaptured a "championship attitude" — one that would stand them in good stead if it continues into their first-round AFC playoff with the San Diego Chargers Sunday.

"Watching the films of last Sunday's game (a 37-21 victory over Cleveland) was a pleasure," Noll said at a news conference Tuesday. "The team played with the zest and enthusiasm you like to see, and it was reflected in all the plays — on offense, on defense and in our kicking games."

"The team exhibited the kind of championship attitude that is necessary — the kind that we had through the years of Pittsburgh's four Super Bowl victories."

A good example of the team's enthusiasm, he said, came when a couple of the members of kick coverage teams suffered minor injuries during the Cleveland game and the coaches asked for volunteer replacements.

(Bob) Kohrs and (Greg) Hawthorne both jumped up and volunteered. Everybody was ready to help out," Noll said.

The attitude of the Steelers, who are in the playoffs for the first time in three years, was Noll's primary concern during the part of the season following the players' strike.

After going unbeaten through the pre-season — and the first three regular-season games, the Steelers lost three of their next four games, suffering shutouts in two of them.

Noll complained at the time the players did not have the proper attitude to "go out and get things done."

Noll and veterans alike claimed the team had rediscovered the old enthusiasm in defeating both Cleveland and New England the preceding weekend.

Ironically, however, a large portion of the 1982 team is made up of players who have never experienced the "championship attitude" of the Steeler teams that won Super Bowls after the 1974, '75, '78 and '79 seasons.

Of the 49 players on the active roster, only 11 were members of all four Super Bowl champion teams; 23 of the 49 players played in at least one of the Super Bowl teams. But 26 players — including three starters, kicker Gary Anderson and punter John Goodson — have never been in a playoff game.

But Noll said he is not worried about the young players falling prey to playoff jitters.

"Veterans with that kind of experience can rub off on the younger guys what it takes to do well," Noll said. "And we've been trying to get that message across to them all season. The message about just what it takes to play in the NFL."

Noll said it appeared linebacker Bryan Hinkle would miss the playoff game at Three Rivers Stadium. Hinkle suffered a partially torn quadriceps muscle in the Cleveland game. Rookie safety and punt returner Rick Woods, who has been out with a broken elbow, probably will be activated this week, Noll said.

Raiders favored

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Harrah's Reno-Tahoe Sports Book made the Los Angeles Raiders 2 1/2 to 1 favorites Tuesday to win the Super Bowl.

The Book rated the Cincinnati Bengals and the Dallas Cowboys co-second choices at 13-5, while the New York Jets were rated 3-1, the Washington Redskins 4-1 and the Miami Dolphins 5-1.

The San Diego Chargers, Pittsburgh Steelers and Atlanta Falcons were grouped at 6-1 with the Green Bay Packers 8-1.

Tampa Bay is at 12-1, Minnesota is 20-1, Detroit and New England are 30-1. The Cleveland Browns and St. Louis Cardinals have 50-1 odds.

Landry would like to forget season

DALLAS (UPI) — It has been a like no other, as far as Tom Landry is concerned and he is not talking about the players strike or the number of no-shows or losing two games at home or the longest run in NFL history which Tony Dorsett unraveled Monday night in a losing effort.

"I hope this kind of season never happens again," the Dallas Cowboys coach said Tuesday. "It's been a season when the Cowboys have not had to rise to the occasion."

The Cowboys obviously did not rise to the occasion on Monday night against the Minnesota Vikings in a game they could easily have lost by three touchdowns but actually came close to winning.

Dorsett's 99-yard touchdown run, a 60-yard interception return by Dennis Thurman and a long, fluttering pass from Danny White to Doug Cosbie that set up a score were offset by fumbles, tipped passes and general ineptness which resulted in a 31-27 Vikings victory.

"We had a chance to win even though we were not playing as good as I would have liked," Landry said. "Minnesota, which has the ability to play to have a home field edge in the playoff's opening round, was very intense."

"But anybody would be concerned (about how the Cowboys are playing). We've got to show the ability to stop people and win when you have to win. And now we have to win or the year is over."

"I wouldn't say we are real confident. We have to prove what we can do. We are capable of doing it. But when you don't play well, like we have played the last two weeks (in losses to Philadelphia and Minnesota), then I would have to say the odds are against you."

"We are going to have to play a game you have not seen yet for us to take Tampa Bay."

But even Landry had to admit his team was not faced with a must situation when it played the Vikings. Win or lose the Cowboys had a home field advantage for the playoffs for the first two rounds.

A victory for Dallas would have brought Minnesota to Texas Stadium next Sunday instead of Tampa Bay.

"Actually, that game meant nothing to us really," said Landry. "And it is awfully difficult to play a team again right after you have played them."

Tampa Bay will give us all the problems we can handle, though. It really doesn't matter. We have to beat whoever we play."

Bills may make several changes

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — The Buffalo Bills, in the wake of not making the NFL playoffs for the first time in three seasons, may be making wholesale roster changes by the time the 1983 season opens.

Bills wide receiver Frank Lewis says he may seek to renegotiate his contract, while veteran defensive back Bills Simpson has reportedly decided to retire and all-pro nose tackle Fred Smerlas has indicated he may take a year off from football.

Lewis, 35, sought to have his contract renegotiated before the NFL player strike but gave up when the walkout began.

"I'm not going to play for the same thing I'm playing for now," Lewis, a 12-year NFL veteran, said. "Doing that wouldn't make any sense. If I play next year, I want a better contract."

Simpson could not be reached for comment on reports he planned to retire. Smerlas, a starter in this year's pro bowl, said he was considering sitting out a year because of the "wear and tear" he suffered during the just completed campaign.

Following the Bills' loss to New England Sunday, Bills defensive lineman Sherman White announced his retirement and running back Joe Cribbs said he would not return next season unless his contract is renegotiated.

Bills Coach Chuck Knox may not be in Buffalo next season, either. Knox, with a year left on his contract as coach and vice-president football operations, has been rumored to be considering taking another coaching job in the league.

Mahre wins slalom after two disqualified

PARPAN, Switzerland (UPI) — Steve Mahre of the United States, taking advantage of two disqualifications, was declared the winner of a men's slalom Tuesday when the World Ski Cup season resumed after the Christmas break.

When the race ended, it seemed 16-year-old Stenmark of Sweden had won from Paul Frommelt of Liechtenstein on the strength of a strong second run. But after viewing video tapes, the jury disqualified both Stenmark and Frommelt, along with several other racers, for crossing the flexible rigid gate poles incorrectly.

Of 55 starters, only 42 finished the race, many being disqualified on close calls.

As the rapid poles bend right at the bottom, and racers aim to ski as close to them as possible, it is often too difficult for a gate judge to tell if the gate has been taken correctly.

With the elimination of Stenmark and Frommelt, Mahre was credited with the fastest time on each run. He clocked 49.05 seconds on the first course, staked out with 59 gates, and 49.91 for the second, with 63 gates. His winning aggregate was 1:38.96.

Jacques Laethy of Switzerland took second place with 1:40.73, and Andreas Wenzel of Liechtenstein finished third in 1:40.92.

The jury had to review video films to make a number of decisions after the first run, when World Cup defender Phil Mahre was thrown out after posting what would have been the fastest time for that course, 48.79 seconds.

Even as they were being feted as winners, both Stenmark and Frommelt had second thoughts.

WSU told to pay women $500,000

COI-PAX, Wash. (UPI) — A judge has ordered Washington State University to locate hundreds of women and compensate them a total of $500,000 for being sexually discriminated against while participating in WSU sports programs in recent years.

Judge Philip H. Farris of Whitman County Superior Court signed a decision Monday outlining the consequences to WSU of his verbal decision last March that the university had systematically — if without intent to harm — underfunded and otherwise slighted women's sports programs.

Mary Ellen Hudgins, a Seattle attorney who argued a class-action lawsuit filed on behalf of 53 women athletes and coaches, said the long-awaited decision was "very, very gratifying."

She said the success of the case not only vindicated women's rights in college sports programs, but also showed the WSU administration that it was not an "entirely unto itself" and could be reprimanded by the courts if it violated sex discrimination laws.

Farris ordered WSU to set up a sex-equity committee to end such practices as providing practice uniforms and free letter jackets to men but not women, allowing men's sports coaches to use university vehicles but not women, and generally favoring men's sports in funding.

An important distinction made by the judge was his exclusion of the football program from the money-sharing program, said attorney Wallis Friel, who represented the university. Farris agreed that WSU historically put emphasis on football "because of its entertainment value" and that the program is self-supporting for nearly 90%.

The judge's ruling requires WSU to devote 37.5 percent of its athletic scholarship money — outside of the Cougar football program — to women athletes, with the percentage rising annually until it matches the percentage of the university's female enrollment.

Farris also outlined a procedure by which WSU must attempt to locate and advise by mail all women who participated in tennis, basketball, skiing, track, gymnastic and other teams between September 1977 and the end of this year's spring semester.

Farris rejected the plaintiff's claim that women's coaches should be compensated for the difference between their salaries and those of men's coaches.

Poe, Gibson battle for womens' top spot

TWIN FALLS — There was tight competition for the top game score among women in this week's Times-News Bowling Honor Roll.

Karen Poe and Jeanne Gibson finished within one pin of each other. Poe, in the Sh-Shoem league, took top honors with a 242, while Gibson, of the Thursday Threesomes, rolled a 241.

Verna Raymond rolled a 602 to take the high series title by 10 pins over Sharon Dickerson. Raymond belongs to the Welcome Wagon League while Dickerson bowls in the Liberation League.

In the men's ranks, Sparty Tucker claimed the high game with a 256 in Sh-Shoem League action while Craig Allred was 10 pins back in his 246 effort in the Consolidated League.

Ron Dawson of the Industrial League claimed the high series effort with a 665. Louie Horvath's 652 Valley League performance netted second place.

Bert Hartnall was among the senior citizen leaders. His 221 topped the high game list while his 565 series was second to Vern Smith's 591 performance.

Stocks stage strong rebound

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
United Press International

NEW YORK — The stock market staged a powerful rally Tuesday that drove prices sharply higher in heavy trading.

It nearly erased Wall Street's record opening day loss.

The blue-chip and glamor stocks that paced the historic 1982 rally were in the forefront of Tuesday's revival, along with long-neglected oil issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which plunged 19.50 points Monday, rebounded 19.04 to 1,046.08. Monday's setback was the biggest opening day point loss and the second worst percentage drop in record.

"Double-digit moves in the Dow are the order of the day," Newton Zinder, E.F. Hutton vice-president, said.

Since the Dow had fallen 43.51 points over the past week after hitting an all-time high 1,070.50 on Dec. 27, many investors found stocks selling at bargain prices.

The New York Stock Exchange index rose 4.50 to 81.29 and the price of an average share increased 6 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index jumped 3.01 to 141.35. Advances topped declines 1,050-500 among the 1,935 issues traded.

Big Board volume increased to 75,530,000 shares from the 52,080,000 traded Monday.

Oil stocks, which figure heavily in the DJIA, rebounded on hopes U.S. members of the Arabian-American Oil Co. would be able to persuade Saudi Arabia either to cut production or cut prices to stabilize the sagging industry.

Federal funds rates banks charge one another rose to 9 1/2 percent from around 8 1/2 percent late Monday when the Federal Reserve reported a less-than-expected $2.4 billion drop in the nation's money supply.

Increasing prospects of a furious battle between President Reagan and Congress over how to cut the record federal budget deficits left many investors trading.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over-the-counter totaled 87,345,220 shares, up from the 68,908,670 traded Monday.

The American Stock Exchange index rose 2.92 to 342.14 and the price-of-a-share added 11 cents. Advances topped declines 362-232 among the 863 issues traded. Composite volume totaled 6,830,870 shares compared with 6,572,350 traded Monday.

The National Association of Securities Dealers NASDAQ index of OTC stocks rose 1.05 to 231.61.

On the trading floor, American Telephone & Telegraph, whose new American Bell unit began operations Monday, was the most active NYSE-listed issue, up 2 1/2 to 62. IBM was the second most active issue, up 2 1/2 to 95 1/2.

Texasaco, also a DJIA component, was third on the list, up 1 1/2 to 31 1/4. Among the other oils, Atlantic Richfield rose 2 1/2 to 44 1/2, Exxon to 30, Mobil to 25 1/4, Phillips 1 1/2 to 34 1/4, California Standard 2 1/2 to 43, Standard Oil to 37 1/2, Indiana Standard 2 1/2 to 43, Sun Co. 1 1/2 to 33 and Superior Oil 2 1/2 to 30 1/2.

Chrysler, last year's percentage leader that lost 1 1/2 points Monday, rebounded 1 1/2 to 17 1/2 in active trading.

Warner Communications, which has been rebounding from a severe December loss triggered by its disappointing earnings forecast, gained 1 1/2 to 34 1/4.

On the Amex, Wang Laboratories Inc. B was the most active issue, up 1/4 to 2 1/4. Dome Petroleum followed, up 1/4 to 2 1/4. Texas Air was third, off 1/4 to 3 1/4 with a block of 200,500 shares at 9 1/4.

Business Beat

Simpliflo acquires supplier

POCATELLO (UPI) — J.R. Simpliflo Co. says it has acquired the California and Idaho assets of the Best Products Division of Occidental Chemical Agricultural Products Inc.

Officials of Boise-based Simpliflo in Pocatello said the deal was effective on New Year's Day. Terms of the transaction were not disclosed.

The Occidental facilities are to be operated as part of Simpliflo's Minerals and Chemicals Division, which has headquarters in Pocatello. That Simpliflo's Suppliers Division has fertilizer plants in Pocatello, Brandon, Manitoba, and Helm and Bena, Calif., as well as 80 farm-service retail outlets throughout the West and Midwest.

Ben D. McCullum, Simpliflo division president, said the purchase would increase operating efficiency and provide an assured supply of ammonia — a central ingredient of nitrogen fertilizers — for the company's operations and customers in California.

Chrysler joins 11.9 rate

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. said Tuesday it will join General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. in offering 11.9 percent financing on 1982 and 1983 cars and trucks.

Chrysler is the last of the Big Three to make such an announcement. It has been offering 10.9 percent loan rates on 1982 and 1983 cars for the past several months.

A spokesman said further details on the company's program were to be available later.

"Domestic car sales during November and December rose substantially due to the lower interest rates plus other incentives."

Amoco lists Nevada well

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Amoco Production Co. announced an oil discovery in northern Nevada, 115 miles from the nearest production area.

The well, the Amoco at Blackburn Unit No. 3, pumped at the rate of 346 barrels of oil a day through perforations in two zones between 7,000 and 7,199 feet.

The well is in Pine Valley, about 45 miles southwest of Elko.

The nearest production area is at the Trapp Springs field, operated by the Salt Lake-based Northwest Energy Co., which is now Nevada's largest producer.

Record day for Western

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Western Airlines says Sunday was the best day ever for passenger traffic out of the Salt Lake International Airport.

An all-time high of 10,930 passengers flew out of Salt Lake City on 77 Western flights Sunday to 23 cities non-stop. Counting the flights with intermediate connections, the Salt Lake passengers flew to 52 cities, said Larry H. Lee, senior vice president at Western's Salt Lake hub operation.

He said there were 11,909 Western passenger seats available on the Salt Lake City flights, and more 90 percent of those were filled.

Court stops Utah action

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A federal judge has temporarily barred the state of Utah from interfering in the tender offer of National Distillers & Chemical Corp. for more than half of the common stock of Suburban Propane Gas Corp.

In granting a motion for a temporary restraining order, Federal Judge Bruce Jenkins said the state cannot enforce its Utah Take-Over Offer Disclosure Act until he had held full hearings on National Distillers' suit against Utah.

The Utah federal judge has scheduled a Jan. 12 hearing on whether to make his temporary order permanent.

Earlier Monday, National Distillers said in New York it is commencing a tender offer for 56.6 percent of Suburban Propane's 5.28 million shares of common stock at $48.50 a share.

Soviets buying U.S. wheat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Soviet Union has bought 100,000 metric tons of American wheat, boosting its total grain purchases from the United States in this fiscal year to 5.5 million tons, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday.

Under a grain sales agreement between the two countries, the Soviets are required to buy at least 6 million tons of U.S. wheat and corn during the year ending Sept. 30. The agreement permits them to buy up to 1 million tons without further approval from U.S. officials.

The purchases announced Tuesday were listed as 50,000 metric tons in new sales and another 50,000 tons in "changes in destination" sales — a term used to mean the actual sales were made before, but their destination had not been announced.

Queries, answers about Super-NOW

By GARY KLOTT
United Press International

NEW YORK — The Super-NOW, an account which allows depositors to write an unlimited number of checks and earn market rates of interest on the balance, is being introduced today at many banks and savings institutions across the country.

It comes just three weeks after the premiere of the similar, but less flexible Money Market Deposit Account — the bank equivalent of the popular Wall Street money market funds.

Here is question-and-answer format is how the two accounts stack up against each other.

What is the Money Market Deposit Account?

An account which pays market rates of interest — much higher than on a passbook account — and permits withdrawals or deposits without penalty, plus limited checking and transfer privileges.

What is the Super-NOW account?

It is similar to the money market account except that it allows unlimited check-writing and transfers of money to other bank accounts or to third-party accounts.

How much money is needed?

Both accounts require a minimum $2,500 balance to qualify for the high interest rate.

What if my balance falls below $2,500?

If your average balance during the month — or any shorter period picked by the bank — drops below $2,500, the bank cannot pay you any more than the regular NOW checking account rate of 5 1/2 percent for that period.

Which account will pay the highest rate?

The money market account. That is because the Super-NOW will be subject to federal reserve requirements which are costly to a bank. In addition, the unlimited checking and transfer privileges will make the cost of processing the Super-NOW higher. Industry officials expect money market account rates to average at least one percentage point higher than the Super-NOW.

Will there be fees?

Some banks might charge fees on the money market account. But fees are more likely on the Super-NOW. Some banks say they will charge a fee only if the customer's balance falls below a certain level.

Will all banks offer the same account features?

No. Rates, fees and restrictions will vary from bank to bank. Early indications are that not as many banks will be offering the Super-NOW as did the money market account. Some are advertising ways to use the money market account in conjunction with a regular checking or NOW account to achieve the same type of flexibility of the Super-NOW.

Can withdrawals be made anytime on the accounts?

Regulations allow unlimited cash withdrawals and deposits.

Are the accounts federally insured?

Each depositor is insured up to $100,000.

How many checks can be written against the accounts?

Regulations allow up to three per month on the money market, unlimited on the Super-NOW.

Do you have to be a big checker?

Federal guidelines set no minimum denomination.

Can I also transfer money to another account?

On a money market account regulations allow you to make up to three telephone or automatic transfers a month to another of your bank accounts or to a third-party account for bill paying. Transfers are unlimited on the Super-NOW.

Is the interest rate set by the government?

No. Banks are free to offer whatever rate they want on the accounts.

Is there a way to lock in a high rate?

Regulations forbid a bank to guarantee a rate on the accounts for longer than a month.

Are the high rates being advertised an indication of future rates?

Not necessarily. Many banks currently are advertising high rates to attract early customers. But the rates are guaranteed at most for a month.

After the promotions, they probably will settle down to the range of the Wall Street money funds which have been averaging about 8 percent.

Bank in Las Vegas reopens Tuesday

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Mineral Bank, a two-year-old Las Vegas financial institution which apparently was duped by a multimillion-dollar check scam, opened for business Tuesday as state and federal investigators attempted to determine exactly how the loss occurred.

The amount was believed to be about $5 million. Bank officials declined to confirm the figure.

A District Court 24-hour gag order shut off information about the case late Monday.

Judge Stephen Huffaker imposed the gag order on all pleadings following a closed-door meeting with officials of the bank and state auditors.

"We are trying to protect all the parties," said Huffaker. "That is why we've sealed everything for 24 hours. We want to give them time to check this out."

Huffaker said depositor money was not in jeopardy.

FBI agent Bill Jensen confirmed Tuesday that the FBI was conducting an investigation to determine if wire fraud or embezzlement occurred.

"We are questioning bank officials and employees are being interviewed. The FBI was advised of the situation by state officials Monday," Jensen said.

State officials presumably proposed a plan to the court Monday calling for continued interim operation of the bank by a Nevada Commerce Department supervisor during the investigation.

"We are letting — no asking — the bank to remain open," said Jim Johnson, superintendent of the Commerce Department's Financial Institution Division.

Start the New Year Light

New Year's Resolution Number 1

Eat Light And Eat Sensibly

Finally, a food resolution we can all keep and feel good about! With the holidays behind, it's the natural time to think about balancing our diets and maybe shedding a few extra pounds picked up during all the festivities.

Don't think diet, think light and sensible. After all, there are many foods, like apples and wheat germ, that taste great, are not fattening, and are good nutritionally. You can stick to your resolution by following a few simple strategies:

- Eat smaller portions of main dishes that are visible fats from meat, skin chicken, broil or bake instead of frying.
- Fill up on vegetable side dishes or soup courses to give you a full feeling.
- Look for foods that offer the most nutrients to fill you up, not out. Try ice milk or yogurt-based frozen desserts as an alternative to ice cream, or plain yogurt instead of sour cream.

- Be sure to eat three meals a day and don't fall into the trap of skipping meals because you think you'll want a rich, gooey dessert at dinner. That's not sensible.
- Beverages can sneak extra calories into your diet. Look to diet sodas or spritzers made of seltzer water and fruit juices or wine to keep calories under control.
- To pack extra nutrients, use wheat germ in place of bread crumbs in casseroles and vegetable dishes. Try apple juice instead of wine for poaching fish.
- Cut back on the amount of sugar and fat in your own cooking.
- If you're concerned about increasing fiber, it's easily done with foods you like to eat. Apples and other fruits, wheat germ, vegetables, nuts, and whole grain breads are good sources.
- If you're interested in reducing your salt intake, use herbs and spices for flavor.

- Exercise goes hand-in-hand with light eating habits. Exercise painlessly by incorporating it into your daily routine. Stretch to reach, or try isometrics. A brisk walk before dinner is another way to stave off hunger and get exercise benefits as well.

Apples and wheat germ, two of the most wholesome foods available, can help you stay on track when eating light. According to the International Apple Institute, there are sixteen varieties available nationwide, so you can enjoy fresh apples as a nutritious snack anytime, or you can use apple sauce or apple juice as a convenient and flavorful ingredient in recipes. Wheat germ, with its nutty flavor, is also an easy and healthy add-on to fruit, salads, and cereals. It's lightly toasted and vacuum-packed to retain freshness and nutritive goodness, with no need for preservatives.

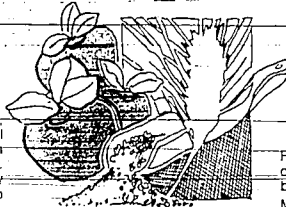

The recipes that follow have all been developed with sensible and light eating in mind.

APPLE-STUFFED FILET OF SOLE

- 2 tablespoons oil
- 1/2 cup chopped fresh mushrooms
- 3 tablespoons chopped shallots
- 2/3 cup chopped peeled apple
- 1/2 cup fresh bread crumbs
- 1/2 teaspoon rosemary, crushed
- 4 sole filets
- 1 cup apple juice
- 1/2 teaspoon lemon juice
- Chopped parsley

Heat oil in a skillet; saute mushrooms and 1 tablespoon shallots. Add apple, bread crumbs and rosemary; mix well. Spoon filling down center of filets. Roll up and secure with toothpicks. Place remaining 2 tablespoons shallots in shallow baking dish. Place rolled filets over shallots. Pour apple juice over fish. Bake in a 400°F oven for 20-23 minutes, basting twice, until fish flakes easily when touched with a fork. Remove from liquid and keep warm. Transfer liquid to saucepan. Bring to a boil and continue boiling until only 1/2 cup remains. Stir in lemon juice. Garnish fish with parsley. Serve sauce over fish.

Makes 4 servings.

CRISPY WHEAT GERM CHICKEN

- 1 3-pound chicken, cut-up and skinned
- 1 cup Kretschmer Regular Wheat Germ*
- 1 teaspoon tarragon leaves, crushed**
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind**
- 1/4 cup milk

Rinse chicken, pat dry. Combine wheat germ, tarragon and lemon rind. Dip chicken pieces in milk, then roll in wheat germ mixture. Place on foil-lined baking pan. Bake in a 375° oven for 40-50 minutes.

Makes 4 servings.

*One teaspoon oregano leaves, crushed, and 1/8 teaspoon garlic powder may be used instead of tarragon leaves and lemon rind.

APPLE AND SQUASH SOUP

- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 3/4 pound butternut squash, peeled and chopped**
- 3 baking apples, peeled, cored and chopped
- 1 quart chicken broth
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- Pinch nutmeg
- Salt and pepper
- Chopped chives

Heat butter in 5-quart saucepan. Add onion and squash; saute until onion is transparent. Add apples and cook 3 minutes. Add chicken broth and curry powder. Bring to a boil; reduce heat and simmer 30 minutes, or until squash is very tender. Transfer soup in batches to blender or food processor and process until smooth. Return to pan; season with nutmeg and salt and pepper to taste. Serve hot, sprinkled with chopped chives.

Makes 7 cups.

**Any hard winter squash may be used.

WHEAT GERM SPINACH SAUTE

- 1 pound fresh spinach
- 1 cup Kretschmer Regular Wheat Germ
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1/4 cup pine nuts or coarsely chopped almonds
- 1/2 teaspoon basil leaves, crushed
- 1/2 teaspoon thyme leaves, crushed
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine

Wash and drain spinach. Discard stems. Chop spinach coarsely. Combine spinach, wheat germ, eggs, pine nuts, basil, thyme, salt and pepper; mix well. Melt butter in large skillet. Add spinach mixture. Cook over medium-high heat for 2 minutes, stirring constantly.

Makes 4-6 servings.

WHEAT GERM-APPLE YOGURT TORTELLI

- 16 ounces plain yogurt
- 1 cup applesauce
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- 3/4 cup Kretschmer Wheat Germ, Regular or Brown Sugar & Honey
- 1/3 cup finely chopped walnuts
- 1-2 tablespoons honey

Combine yogurt, applesauce and vanilla; set aside. Mix together wheat germ, walnuts and honey. Reserve 1/4 cup for topping; stir remaining mixture into yogurt mixture. Spoon into paper-lined muffin-pan cups. Sprinkle with reserved wheat germ mixture. Freeze until firm, about 2 hours or overnight.

Makes 8 servings.

Homemade soup always satisfies

By SHARON SANDERS
Chicago Sun-Times

Opening a can may be easier, but it's not as satisfying as making your own soup. In less than an hour, broth, vegetables and herbs can be transformed into a comforting meal. Cheddar, cheese and some whole wheat bread are all that's needed to complete this homespun repast. For dessert, fresh apple gingerbread can be quickly mixed and popped in the oven before the soup starts to cook.

Basic Vegetable Soup
(adapted from "The Victory Garden Cookbook" by Marian Morash, Knopf, $25)

Time: about 50 minutes
Cost: less than $6.10
2 tablespoons butter
2 cups leeks (white portion) or onions, chopped
1 teaspoon minced garlic
1 can (28 ounces) tomatoes, strained, seeds removed, chopped
1 cup carrots, thinly sliced
1 cup celery, thinly sliced
1 cup turnips, thinly sliced
8 cups broth, half beef and half chicken
1 cup green beans, cut into 1/2-inch pieces
1 1/2 cups zucchini or yellow squash, diced
1/2 cups Chinese cabbage, julienne-cut
1/4 cup small pasta such as tubetti
1 to 2 tablespoons fresh herbs (oregano, basil or parsley) chopped, or 1 tablespoon fresh parsley mixed with 1/4 teaspoon dried herbs
Salt and pepper

Heat butter and cook leeks or onions until wilted (5 to 10 minutes). Add garlic; cook for 30 seconds. Add tomatoes, carrots, celery, turnips and broth. Bring to a boil; reduce heat and cook gently for 5 to 8 minutes. Add beans, squash, cabbage and pasta; cook until tender (8 to 10 minutes). Stir in herbs; season with salt and pepper. Makes about 3 quarts (6 to 8 servings).

Fresh Apple Gingerbread

Time: about 60 minutes
Cost: less than $1.65
1/2 cup butter or margarine
2 cup sugar
2 eggs
two-thirds cup molasses
2 cups flour
1/4 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ginger
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon cloves
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1 1/2 cups apple, peeled and grated
one-third cup milk
Whipping cream (optional)
Cream together butter and sugar. Beat in eggs one at a time. Blend in molasses. Mix flour, baking soda, salt and spices; add to creamed mixture alternatingly with milk, beginning and ending with flour mixture. Stir in apple. Pour into greased and floured 9-by-9-inch baking pan. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven for 45 to 50 minutes, until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in pan for 10 minutes; turn out onto rack. Serve warm with cream if desired. Serves 9 to 12.

Nuts high in calories, but tasty

By ROBERT W. STRUBE
Chicago Sun-Times

Nuts continue to be a favorite snack. Their fat content makes them high in calories—but after all, this is the season for indulging.

Nuts are the dried fruit or seeds of plants—usually trees. The outside covering of nuts is the rind or shell. Inside is the meat, or kernel. Technically, some of the seeds we call nuts are not considered so by botanists: Peanuts belong to the pea family, the almond belongs to the peach family and the cashew is a part of the fruit of the cashew apple.

Nuts in the shell can be stored much longer than shelled nuts, and cost less. One pound of nuts in the shell will produce 7 ounces of English walnuts or filberts, 6 1/2 ounces of pecans, 3 1/2 ounces of black walnuts, 6 1/2 ounces of almonds and 8 ounces of Brazil nuts.

When buying whole nuts, choose those that are heavy and well-shaped for their variety; with clean, bright, unbroken shells. A USDA stamp on the package means the nuts are Grade 1 or better.

Almonds on the tree look like small green peaches. When ripe, the hull opens, revealing the nut inside. The kernels are eaten unprocessed, used in cooking and ground to make almond butter. They are 60 calories in 12 to 15 raw, shelled almonds.

Pistachios, like almonds, are the seeds of a fruit, and are sometimes mistakenly called green almonds. The long, greenish seed is used in cooking, candies and ice cream. Americans gobble up 87 percent of the world supply—close to 30 million pounds. Pistachios contain 184 calories per quart cup.

Pecans grow in clusters. The shell is smooth, light brown and dull, but is always polished for commercial sale. Twelve pecan halves contain 104 calories.

Shopping bag art wanted

By MARTIN SLOANE
United Feature Syndicate

Supermarket poets have been vindicated. They've seen their works published in this column and for the second year. The National Supermarket Shopper Poetry Competition has drawn thousands of entries from all parts of the country. "Why not have a supermarket shopping bag art competition?" someone asked. Why not?

Think of the creative spirits that can be unleashed in a medium that has all but been ignored!

So, I throw out the challenge: Grab a bag and turn it into art. It doesn't matter what kind of bag it is, so long as it is commonly used in a supermarket. Your work of art must use one full bag, but no more than three. You can draw on it, paint it, create a sculpture or even make a mobile out of it. You can also add "foreign" elements (up to 50 percent of your bag creation). But the work of art you create must be something that is created from a shopping bag.

The judges for this "First Annual Supermarket Shopping Bag Art Competition" will be the directors of The National Alliance of Supermarket Shoppers; I'm one of them.

The first prize-winner in the competition will receive $100, the winner of the second prize will receive $75 and $50 will go to the third prize-winner. In addition, a special prize of $50 will be awarded for the best entry submitted by a "junior" shopping bag artist, age 14 and under.

Here are the other rules and instructions for the art competition:

1. A person may submit only one entry.
2. Attach your name, address and telephone number, printed in block letters, securely to the work of art.
3. Send the work of art to: Martin Sloane's First Annual Supermarket Shopping Bag Art Competition, c/o The National Alliance of Supermarket Shoppers, 1250 Hempstead Tpke., Franklin Square, N.Y. 11010.
4. All entries must be received by midnight, March 31, 1983. The winners will be announced in this column in June.
5. Entries will not be returned, and will become the property of The National Alliance of Supermarket Shoppers.

SMART SHOPPING AWARD
The Smart Shopping Award goes to Diane Shields and her dog Max of Dearborn, Mich.

"I would like to nominate my dog Max for the Smart Shopping Award. He sniffed out a Chuck Wagon 50-cent coupon and a refund from a recent Sunday newspaper. His favorite supermarket doubled the coupon and Purina sent him a check for $2.77, which gave Max a 70-cent profit. Max eats his free food out of his own personalized bowl, free from Gravy Train; keeps his away with his free record and $10 in refunds from visits to the veterinarian from Cycle."
Diane and Max and other smart shoppers whose experiences appear in this column receive a Free copy of my couponing and refunding magazine, The National Supermarket Shopper.

CLIP 'N' FILE REFUNDS
(Week of Jan. 2, 1983)

Miscellaneous Food Products (File No. 9)
Clip out this file and keep it with similar cash-off coupons — beverage refund offers with beverage coupons, for example. Start "collecting" the needed profits of purchase while looking for the refund forms of the supermarkets in newspapers and magazines, and when trading with friends. Offers may not be available in all areas of the country. Allow 10 weeks to receive each refund.

The following refund offers are worth $9.87. This week's refund offers have a value of $30.76.

Bananas popular with all

Special to The Times-News

For money-saving credentials, bananas have a pleasant reputation with all ages, from babies to grandfolds, and they have a few thousand universal recipes for cooking.

It is hard to ruin a banana, no matter its state — firm, green-skinned and barely ripe, or brown, mushy and pulpy.

Bananas hold varied positions on the breakfast, luncheon and dinner tables throughout the world. Here are some ways we prepare the fruit, which is reputedly one of the best non-meat nourishments available today.

BANANA PUDDING

- 1/4 cup flour
  - 1 cup sugar
  - 2 tablespoons cornstarch
  - 2 cups milk
  - 2 egg yolks
  - 3 tablespoons margarine or butter
  - 1/2 teaspoon each vanilla and almond extracts
  - 1 box vanilla wafers
- 3 egg whites
1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
1/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
- Sift flour, sugar and cornstarch. Stir in a little of the milk to make a paste. Beat the egg yolks and stir into the first mixture, along with the remaining milk. Cook slowly, stirring occasionally, to make a thickened mixture; remove from heat and stir in margarine or butter and extracts.

Arrange the vanilla wafers on the bottom of a pie plate or casserole of the same size. Layer the wafers with the pudding over the wafers and bananas. Make another layer of wafers and bananas, and pour the pudding over top. Finish with wafers and bananas on top. Set aside. Make a meringue from the three egg whites, cream of tartar, sugar and vanilla extract. Spread meringue on top of first preparation. Bake in preheated oven set at 350 degrees for about 12 minutes, or until meringue browns lightly. (Makes eight servings.)

BANANA FRITTERS

- 2 eggs, separated and beaten
- 1/4 cup milk
- 1 teaspoon melted margarine or butter
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup sifted flour
- 5 bananas, sliced into 2-inch pieces
- 1/2 cup juice from 1 lemon
- 1 jigger of rum
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- nutmeg to sprinkle

In a mixing bowl, combine beaten egg yolks, milk and melted margarine or butter. Stir together into the egg mixture the salt, baking powder and sifted flour; mix well. In separate bowl, beat the egg whites until they stand in peaks; fold into the egg-yolk mixture.

Heat oil in deep fat fryer to 365 degrees. Meanwhile, combine in a small bowl, the lemon juice and rum. Dip the banana slices in the juice mixture; sprinkle with sugar and nutmeg. Then dry the banana slices a little before dipping into the batter. When well-coated with batter, fry in deep, hot oil until they are lightly browned and puffy. This should take about three minutes. Drain on paper towels. To serve, sprinkle with confectioners' sugar. (Makes about 24 fritters.)

BANANA AND BEANS

- 2 strips bacon, diced
  - 1 onion, peeled and minced
  - 1/2 cup tomato puree
  - 1/2 cups drained, canned red kidney beans
  - salt and pepper to season to taste
  - 1 large firm banana, cut into 1/2-inch slices
- In a skillet, cook the bacon until it is barely browned. Remove cooked bacon pieces from skillet but leave fat. In the fat, cook minced onion until it is limp. Stir in tomato puree; cover and simmer one minute. Stir in drained beans, the bacon pieces and season to taste with salt and pepper.

To serve, heat thoroughly and quickly toss bean mixture with banana slices. Serve immediately. (Makes about five servings.)

THIS WEEK'S BEST MARKET BUYS: Bananas are extremely low priced. Citrus is low-cost now and nicely sweet. Don't be confused by marked rinds that are a result of poor growing weather. Meat prices are stable. Look for good pasta sales. Good buys will be found in generic soaps and household cleaning supplies.

Herbal tea called possibly harmful

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — Many herbal teas now in markets once were used as drugs, and are potentially harmful, says Christina Slone, The Cornell University nutritionist says herbal teas are known to contain alkaloids, which are potent chemicals, highly soluble in water.

She says treating an illness with herbal preparations can be dangerous for several reasons:

• Herbal compounds can interact with or counter the effect of prescription drugs.

• Some people drink so much herbal tea they build up a toxic effect.

• Even a small amount can cause an allergic reaction in highly sensitive people. For example, those with pollen allergies may be allergic to chamomile tea.

• Almost all herbal teas are blends, and some may contain as many as 20 different kinds of roots, leaves, bark, twigs, flowers, fruit and seeds. Large tea companies have quality control specialists, the nutritionist says, but small companies may not be able to hire such experts, so the contents and quality of the teas could vary from lot to lot.
