Strike violence claims driver

By DONALD E. MULLEN

Ambushers attacked truck drivers along the nation's highways Tuesday with bullets, rocks and bricks in attempts to enforce the independent truckers' strike.

A Teamster Union driver was killed and two other persons seriously injured in the bitter hit-and-run warfare.

Many other drivers were hurt by flying glass as the violence that began early Monday spread to 27 states, a count by United Press International showed. Included were incidents in Idaho.

Montana authorities were asked Tuesday to investigate reports that someone in their state had phoned an anonymous threat to an Idaho commercial carrier that is sending trucks across the state line in defiance of a nationwide strike by independents.

Rick Owens, a spokesman for the Idaho State Police, said his agency was informed by an Idaho Panhandle company that it received a telephone call early Tuesday, threatening violence if the firm continues to send trucks into Montana.

"Most of the calls which are being reported in Idaho, threats or whatever, seem to be centered on trucking in the Panhandle area — the stretch of Interstate 90 from Spokane east through Idaho and into Missoula," he said.

The ISP official said some firms in the northern Idaho area had ordered their trucks to travel in pairs or threes, to stave off any incidents of violence — such as one late Monday, which saw rifle shots fired at a driver near Post Falls. The driver was not injured.

However, Sgt. E.D. Strickfaden, of the Idaho State Police office in Twin Falls, said there were no problems with truckers Tuesday on Magic Valley highways or ports of entry.

"As far as we know, there are no problems with anyone in our district. The officers who have been patrolling say they have not seen any decrease in truck numbers on the roads," Strickfaden said.

Pennsylvania and Ohio, the main corridor between East and Midwest, were the hardest hit, with trucks hit by sniper fire, rocks, bricks and metal objects. Trucks were burned, tires slashed and nails strewn in parking lots and along highways.

Pennsylvania state police reported more than 64 incidents of violence Tuesday, including rock and brick throwing and more than a dozen shootings.

Three independent truckers were arrested on charges connected with the strike.

Some truck stops reported business dropped off as much as 50 percent and police reported truck traffic was down, in some places by as much as one-half.

"I'm afraid of violence," said independent trucker Claude Dalton, of Fairfield, Calif., who pulled his rig off the road. "I got shot a lot in Vietnam and I don't need any more of that here."

Violence was reported in Alabama, Arizona, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, New Jersey, Nevada, North Carolina, and Ohio.

Lawmakers allege Nazis wrote dirty trick letter

By MARK SHNEFFELT
United Press International

BOISE — White supremacists are responsible for a letter that says legislators "will be just like the Nazis" if they oppose a bill aimed at cracking down on racial and religious terrorism, two senators charged Tuesday.

Sen. William Moore, R-Hayden Lake, said he believed the letter was written by a member of the Aryan Nations Church or Nazi Party in an attempt to spark a backlash by senators, misleading them into killing the anti-malicious harassment bill.

The two-page correspondence, bearing the letterhead of the "North West Commission on Human Rights and Community Relations" told senators, "If you don't vote for this bill you will be just like the Nazis and their front groups, and it will be apparent that you support them and their racist causes."

"To vote against this bill is the same as participating in the Holocaust and your actions will be viewed as anti-Semitic," the letter said.

"Once this bill is law, it will be possible to seek further restrictions on Nazi groups, and hopefully next year we will get some gun-control measures passed into law that will put a stop to their paramilitary activities in Idaho," the letter continued.

Moore said he believed the reference to gun control was intended to raise the ire of conservative senators to oppose the anti-malicious harassment bill — an Idaho Human Rights Commission proposal that would impose felony penalties against those convicted of cross burnings or similar acts of racially or religiously motivated terrorism.

"I'm anti-gun control 100 percent, but I'm not like the Nazis," said Moore, a conservative District 2 lawmaker in his second term.

The letter was signed by "V. Martin Shecter, Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith."

But Moore said no one in the Senate or with established human rights groups he contacted had heard of Shecter or the human rights commission named on the letterhead.

Marvin Stern, a B'nai B'rith representative in Seattle, and officials of the Idaho Human Rights Commission have denounced the letter as a hoax, Moore said.

Sen. Norma Doblin, D-Moscow, sponsor of the anti-malicious harassment measure, said the Post Falls, Idaho, post office box number and telephone number listed on the letter belonged to Keith Gilbert, a member of the Hayden Lake-based Aryan Nations white supremacy group. Repeated attempts to contact Gilbert were unsuccessful Tuesday.

"This letter is a hoax," Moore told his colleagues during the Senate's session Tuesday. "The address and telephone number on this letter belong to a member of the Nazi Party. They sent this letter to try and turn you off from voting in this harassment bill. I didn't want anyone in this Senate to be misled."

Bill provides prison time for pyramid schemers

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — Promoters of chain letters and pyramid schemes could face up to three years in prison if they are convicted under a law proposed Tuesday in the legislature.

Sponsored by the Boise Better Business Bureau, the measure would make it a felony to participate in these types of investment schemes if they result in more than $1,000 being contributed by participants.

Smaller operations would be prosecuted as misdemeanors.

Chain letters and pyramid schemes are designed around the concept of selling people the right to participate in the scheme. A participant pays money for the right to solicit several others, who in turn purchase the same right.

"But as soon as the number of investors runs out, the pyramid effect ends, and most of the people involved aren't able to sell their part of the scheme, and they end up losing their money," said David Gee, the enforcement chief for the state Department of Finance's securities division.

"Chain and pyramid schemes are inherently fraudulent," Gee said. "They entice low-income people into paying out money on the misrepresentation that they'll earn lots more money in return.

"In the end, it does not work out that way," he said. "Only those who get in at the top of the pyramid — the beginning of the scam — make the profit."

When asked by a member of the House Judiciary, Rules and Administration Committee if existing law covers these types of schemes, Gee replied, "Yes, if I had more than two investigators working in my division, we may be able to prosecute most pyramid schemes under existing law."

"But I do not, and so if anything is going to be done to protect our citizens, then it's going to have to be through local authorities and with legislation like this."

PAT COLLINS, a deputy attorney general, testified that the new law is needed because pyramid schemes can't be prosecuted as a theft.

"While there may be some deception involved, building up someone's expectations for profit that won't ever materialize doesn't really meet our definition of theft," Collins said.

"But what if you're only a dumb businessman who doesn't understand how these schemes work?" asked Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello. "This makes the act of promoting a pyramid scheme a felony, even if you had not intent to defraud."

Administration weathers budget blasts

By ROBERT MACKAY
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Members of Congress pounced Tuesday on administration officials making their first journey to Capitol Hill to sell the 1984 Reagan budget.

Treasury Secretary Donald Regan became rattled during one round of questioning in the House Appropriations Committee, saying "no one knew" the economy was in a recession six months ago when Congress passed $99 billion in tax increases.

The audience laughed loudly, to Regan's chagrin.

Also testifying were budget director David Stockman and President Reagan's chief economic adviser, Martin Feldstein.

On the other side of the Capitol, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger was assailed even by conservative Republican members of the Senate Armed Services Committee for his proposed $30 billion increase in military spending.

"The battleground is going to be the deficit of nearly $200 billion and the defense budget," Sen. John Warner,

R-Va., told Weinberger. "There is a consensus among the members of Congress that if there is going to be further cuts, defense cannot be exempt."

"Which is better?" Warner asked. "A reduction in the human account or the weapons account? Which is the least harmful to our overall security?"

"I don't think any one of them," the secretary replied, urging that reductions should not be "made blindly" for the sake of getting a "tidier budget."

In the House, Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., senior GOP member of the appropriations panel, warned the trio of administration officials: "Our (non-defense) discretionary programs have taken their lumps."

And Rep. Joseph Addabbo, D-N.Y., was highly critical of additional proposed cuts in the new budget for low-income energy assistance, Medicare and food stamps.

"We see the poor dying because of malnutrition," Addabbo shouted at Stockman. "We see a reduction of almost $30 billion below '81 levels for low income programs."

Congress broaches Social Security problem

By VERA COHN
United Press International

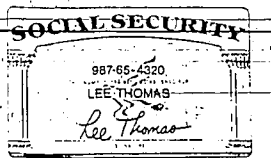

WASHINGTON — Congress opened hearings Tuesday on a multibillion-dollar Social Security bail-out bill.

A fight over whether to raise the retirement age lurked in the wings during otherwise friendly proceedings.

The House Ways and Means Committee will pattern its bill after a $168 billion rescue package approved by the National Commission on Social Security Reform. Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., said he is "very optimistic" about quick action.

But Rostenkowski, who said compromise demands concessions be made on all sides, predicted a battle over whether to raise the retirement age, hike taxes or curb benefits to solve Social Security's long-term problem.

The commission's plan, adopted 12-3, proposes payroll tax hikes, a six-month benefits freeze, a first-ever benefits tax, and requiring new federal workers to join the Social Security system next year. It would provide the cash needed by Social Security through the decade and erase two-thirds of its projected 75-year shortage.

A majority of the 15-member commission urged raising the 65-year retirement age to 66 in the next century to find the rest of the money, but the panel's liberal Democrats endorse a payroll tax hike in 2010 if the pension program needs another transfusion.

Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., ranking GOP member on the tax-writing committee, said there are "any number of permutations and combinations" for dealing with the long-term problem.

He said the package of short-range solutions includes "a little something for everyone to dislike."

Conable, who served on the commission that spent more than a year working on how to keep checks flowing to 38 million Americans and head off a future fiscal crisis, said the committee is "likely to do its own thing" rather than flatly accept either the retirement age change or tax hike alternatives proposed to keep Social Security solvent next century.

The basic plan won endorsement from President Reagan, House Speaker Thomas

O'Neill and congressional leaders, who hope it will be enacted by Easter.

Rostenkowski voiced hope "Congress will have the steel" to settle the long-term problem, but later said he will stay neutral on the options.

Four commission members at the witness table and two on the committee said Congress should raise the retirement age — an option supported by Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Texas, chairman of the Social Security subcommittee.

"It is indisputable people are living longer," Presidential Insurance Co. chairman Robert Beck said. "We need to move the retirement age out of the cement of 65 and move it to a more reasonable number."

But Robert Ball, leader of the commission Democrats, argued Social Security's long-term deficit is far from certain and said, "The five of us who were appointed by Democrats are strongly opposed to that whole approach."

Commission chairman Alan Greenspan, a Reagan administration economic adviser and the Ford administration's chief economist, warned that failure to enact a rescue bill would push up interest rates and inflation.

"Social Security is now a critical symbol to the international financial community of how the government is going to solve its budget problems," he said.

If Congress is forced to turn to general government revenues for Social Security — "a signal to the financial community that we are truly in a state of fiscal hemorrhage," Greenspan said.

"The financial markets would react accordingly," he warned.

Pickle, assessing the opening session of the hearing that will run for two weeks, pronounced it a "good beginning."

"No surprises," he said. "No antagonistic questions. It was a good healthy inquiry."

Another papal assassin caught

MILAN, Italy — Italian authorities arrested a Turkish citizen on charges he plotted a new attempt to assassinate Pope John Paul II during a scheduled papal visit to Milan in May, police said Wednesday.

Police identified the Turk as Mustafa Savak. They would give no details on the arrest or the alleged assassination plot.

State-run radio said, however, that Savak was arrested at Rho, near Milan, after an informant told police the Turk had contacted "several people" to organize an attempt on the pope's life.

There was no indication who provided the information to police that led to Savak's arrest or how it was given to police.

The Vatican had announced last month that the pope would travel to Milan in May as part of his continuing travels to all parts of Italy.

The arrest marks the third time John Paul has been targeted for assassination.

Gunfire marks power struggle

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — A right-wing "death squad" staged a submachine gun attack late Tuesday on a meeting of moderate politicians who played a key role in stripping the assembly's rightist president of power.

The attack occurred on the headquarters of the Democratic Action Party, a conservative group that holds four seats in the assembly, during a meeting of its leadership.

The rightist "General Maximiliano Hernandez Death Squad" took responsibility for the attack in a phone call to the Press International.

At least 25 bullets strafed the front of the party headquarters but no one was reported injured.

Witnesses said two gunmen fired on the building from a speeding pickup truck.

A spokesman for the party said the attack was linked to debate earlier in the day in the assembly, during which assembly President, Robert d'Aubuisson threatened to resign unless the 10-member body overturns its vote to strip him of most of his power.

The debate was halted after Democratic Action assemblyman Luis Nelson Segovia suffer a stroke and was rushed to a local hospital. The debate was to resume Wednesday, officials said.

d'Aubuisson was stripped of power in a 39-1 vote last Thursday after he led assemblymen of his ultra-rightist Nationalist Republican Alliance, known as Arena, out of Congress to protest a motion ratifying a new health minister.

Two die in truck-train wreck

NORTONVILLE, Kan. (UPI) — A collision between a Santa Fe train and a propane truck carrying three people killed two passengers and seriously injured the third in an explosion that ripped the hoods off two train engines Tuesday.

A witness to the aftermath of the accident said the truck, owned by Rural Gas Co., was demolished and the hoods of two train engines had been ripped off.

The Jefferson County Sheriff's Department reported two passengers in the truck were killed. They were identified as Greg Weibauer, 19, of Nortonville and Gary Carroll, 30, of Atchison, Kan.

The injured passenger was transferred to the University of Kansas Medical Center in serious condition, authorities said. The victim's name was not released.

The accident occurred about 3:40 p.m. CST in the northeast Kansas community of 694 people. Details on how the wreck occurred were not available.

The propane tank reportedly was lying under one railroad car and the truck tractor was beneath a second railroad car. There were no reports of injuries to the train passengers or crew.

EPA orders GM auto recall

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency ordered General Motors Tuesday to recall 174,000 automobiles made in 1980 that are violating federal standards for nitrogen oxides emissions.

The models affected by the recall are the eight-cylinder Buick Regal, Buick Century station wagon, Buick LaSalle, Pontiac Tempra, Pontiac Grand Prix, Pontiac Safari station wagon, Pontiac Grand Prix, Pontiac Catalina, Pontiac Bonneville and Pontiac Firebird.

They are equipped with 4.9 liter engines.

California-model vehicles are not included in the recall, the EPA said.

The cars average about "2.4 grams of nitrogen oxides per mile," the agency said. "The emission standard required by the Clean Air Act for that model year is 2 grams per mile."

Under recall provisions of the act, General Motors has 45 days to submit a plan to remedy the pollution problem on the car, or to request a hearing.

Once the agency has approved a recall plan, General Motors will notify owners whose autos are involved.

The cars will be repaired by GM dealers at no cost to the owners," EPA said in a statement.

In Detroit, GM spokesman Stan Hall said the company is "studying several courses of action to take to fix the non-conforming vehicles, and we will present the plans to the EPA within the required 45-day response time."

GM last year reached an agreement with EPA that allowed the automaker to avoid a recall of 1979 cars that violated nitrogen oxides emissions regulations. Under the settlement, GM promised to produce cars well below federal standards in future model years.

"I would think this would be one of the things we would like to consider" to resolve the latest problem, Hall said.

The Independent Truckers Association, which claims to represent 100,000 drivers who own their rigs, said it had loads for a fee called the strike to protest the Reagan administration's program to hike taxes on fuel and road use.

However, the majority of the nation's truck drivers are members of the Teamsters Union who work for wages under contracts.

Some of the striking independents lobbied state government officials for relief.

In Colorado, Gov. Richard Lamm met with striking leaders in Denver and agreed to create an eight-member committee — to study — whether the truckers are being taxed fairly.

In New Hampshire, a convoy of about 40 truckers, horns blaring, drove past the state capital in Concord and later met with a representative of the governor's.

"We're not trying to raise hell," said trucker Richard Gagne of New Boston, N.H. "We're just trying to keep prices down."

Teamster trucker George Capps was killed by rifle fire Monday night while driving between Smithfield and Newton Grove, N.C.

"We must condemn this sort of horrible violence," said Teamsters President Roy L. Williams in a statement Tuesday. "We are deeply saddened and troubled by this action."

Williams called for government protection for Teamster drivers and added, "We are also developing programs to minimize the exposure to violence in such situations."

He did not explain what the programs might be, but some Teamster members were already running patrols to check highways and truck stops for trouble spots.

The independents carry about 90 percent of the nation's fresh food, but stores around the country reported few shortages Tuesday.

The organization's president, Mike Parkhurst, said the nation's supply of fruit and vegetables would be affected first.

"It takes five days or so for that pipeline to be squeezed," he said.

tee's defense panel, said the United States has spent about $2 trillion on defense in the past 40 years "and we went through three wars."

"It's in the next five years we're going to spend $1.7 trillion" under the Reagan budget, Adabbo said sarcastically. "And we're told we're able to save only $55 billion!"

Stockman replied a long-range view of the defense budget is needed because, "The world did not begin yesterday and it obviously will not end tomorrow."

"There is some tough medicine in this budget," Stockman said. "But I think we all realize tough medicine is unavoidable. We're asking this committee to cap the deficit and bring it down. "I know your priorities may differ, I think this (budget) is a good starting point."

Lawyer challenges death sentence

By ELLEN MARKS
United Press International

BOISE — Lacey Sivak should not be executed for the torturous slaying of a female gas station attendant because Idaho's death penalty law is unconstitutional and vague, a defense attorney told the state Supreme Court Tuesday.

Court-appointed attorney David Nevin also said the 23-year-old Boise man should not be executed because Fourth District Judge Robert Newhouse committed several errors when he imposed the death sentence in December 1981.

Sivak was convicted of first-degree murder in the killing of Dixie Wilson, 30, and ordered to be executed on Jan. 25, 1982. The date was stayed by the state Supreme Court as required by Idaho law.

Wilson had been shot five times and stabbed 20 times during an April, 1981, robbery at a gas station in Garden City, near Boise.

Nevin argued Newhouse ordered the death sentence in a written ruling, failing to provide Sivak an opportunity to be present when the decision was announced.

"The absence of the defendant and his counsel requires automatic reversal of the sentence imposed," Nevin told the justices.

Deputy state Attorney General Lynn Thomas, however, argued Idaho law does not contain such a requirement. He also noted that Sivak was present at all other court proceedings in the case.

Justice Allan Shepard said he believed the Legislature's intention was to ensure defendants are present when judges pronounce sentences.

"It seems to me that not you, not any court, but the Legislature — regardless of whether it makes any sense or not — has said pointedly judgment may be pronounced only when a defendant is personally present," Shepard said.

Nevin argued the death penalty is unconstitutional in general because it provides a vague description of aggravating circumstances that may be used to justify executing a defendant.

He also said the statute violates the constitution because it allows a judge to impose death without requiring the jury be involved.

Nevin contended Newhouse sentenced Sivak to die because he believed the crime was premeditated, although the jury rejected that contention and found him guilty of first-degree murder because the killing occurred during a felonious robbery.

"Having made this determination, it is impermissible for the judge to make findings directly in variance with the jury," Nevin said, prompting a lengthy exchange on the authority of a judge in sentencing matters.

Justice Robert Bakes said, "The problem I have is the trial judge nevertheless concluded he was guilty of premeditation when the jury found him not guilty."

Thomas argued there is no prohibition against a judge considering all facts in the case — along with the jury's verdict — when determining a sentence.

"There is no legal rule that says the court is not entitled to consider all the facts," Thomas said.

The court took the appeal under advisement and will issue a ruling later.

Salvador rebels hold onto major city

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Leftist guerrillas Tuesday occupied the biggest city, to fall in three years of civil war, driving off two army reinforcement columns, government officers said. Sixty civilians were reported dead in the fighting.

An occupation force of some 500 rebels from the Farabundo Martí National Liberation Front held Berlin, 50 miles east of San Salvador, after capturing the city in two days of round-the-clock fighting.

The capture of Berlin left the entire western half of Usulután province in rebel hands and put a major guerrilla force just a few miles from the Pan American Highway, the only link between San Salvador and the eastern 40 percent of the country.

It was the first time in three years that guerrillas had been able to occupy and hold a city as big as Berlin, which in 1979 had a population of 30,000. That number has dwindled to half as residents fled the war zone.

Relief organizations said 60 civilians were killed and 32 seriously wounded in the 94-hour battle between 500 guerrillas and 70 national guardsmen backed by bombing and strafing from U.S.-made aircraft.

Rebels claimed at least six national guardsmen were killed and 21 captured, and the fate of about 50 other guardsmen was not known. Guerrillas said two rebels were killed and eight wounded.

The army tried to send two reinforcement columns of an undetermined size into Berlin but rebels drove them off in ambushes at Mercedes Umana, about 6 miles north of Berlin — on the Pan American highway, government officers said.

The guerrillas' Radio Venceremos said the ambushes caused "numerous casualties."

Defense Minister Jose Guillermo Garcia called a news conference to declare the army was "preparing" unspecified actions in Berlin.

"We are preparing precisely what is pertinent to satisfactorily resolve the situation of Berlin in the next hours, such as the armed forces should do," he said.

Relief officials estimated 5,000 refugees had fled Berlin since Sunday, when the guerrilla attack began.

Nicaragua protests as U.S. exercise begins

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (UPI) — The United States and Honduras opened their largest joint military exercises ever Tuesday near the border with Nicaragua, which branded the war games a "provocation."

Honduran President Roberto Suazo Cordova, other national officials and foreign diplomats flew to the swamps of eastern Honduras for the opening of the six-day maneuvers, code-named Big Pine.

An embassy spokesman said U.S. Ambassador to Honduras John D.

Negropte might also visit the exercises.

Some 1,600 U.S. Army, Navy and Air Force personnel — joined — 4,000 Honduran soldiers in the $2.2 million exercise to simulate the rescue of a Honduran battalion attacked and surrounded by an enemy force.

The Honduran 2nd Battalion parachuted 600 men into the swampy area. In the eastern province of Gracias a Dios, while the same number of men from the 9th Battalion were airlifted by U.S. C-130 transport planes.

"Thursday and Friday those battalions will simulate ground attacks on the captured position while Honduran Air Force A-37 "Dragonfly" fighter jets and Super Mystere jets will provide tactical air support," said armed forces press officer Maj. Jose Francisco Bustillo.

The soldiers will stage a mock rescue of the 5th Battalion, under siege from a regiment belonging to a mythical country, named Corinth, near the town of Durzuna, 20 miles north of the Nicaragua border and 215 miles east of Tegucigalpa.

Bustillo said the air exercises would take place farther north from the Nicaragua border than the ground exercises, "avoiding to the maximum, any problem."

Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government, which refused a Honduran invitation to send observers, has called the exercises a "new provocation" and claims Big Pine is a preparation for an invasion of Nicaragua.

Senate, House agree

Democrats to offer job program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional Democrats will get together on a unified jobs-creating proposal, Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd said Tuesday, despite an administration declaration that "the worst is now over."

"There will be a jobs bill ... in a matter of days" costing between $5 billion and $10 billion, Byrd told reporters.

"We are not talking about make-work jobs," he added. President Reagan has repeatedly said he opposes any legislation that would create "dead-end, make-work" public works jobs.

Byrd met with House Speaker Thomas O'Neill last week to forge a common strategy, unlike last year when a House-passed Democratic jobs bill and a Senate-passed Republican bill died under the threat of a presidential veto.

O'Neill arranged a meeting of House Democratic leaders Tuesday. Byrd conceded Senate Democrats do not have the votes to deliver a partisan jobs bill, "but we hope to pick up some votes."

In another move Tuesday, Byrd introduced legislation to set up a "National Investment Corporation" to help revive faltering basic industries and start new businesses in areas of high unemployment.

Earlier in the day, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said Reagan's budget will create between 1.4 million and 1.7 million new jobs, mostly through economic recovery that "may well already be under way."

"The worst is now over," Regan told the House Appropriations Committee.

He said the unemployment rate of 10.8 percent, the worst since the Great Depression, is of "great concern" and "the most pressing problem in America today."

Budget's rhetoric can't hide the facts

Already, the fur is flying in the fight over the Reagan administration's proposed federal budget, but we suggest keeping a few points in mind as the rhetoric and hyperbole unfold.

First, the budget deficit is the result of real increases in both defense and social-services spending. Proponents of each will point fingers at the other, but the truth is, both are to blame. Defense, for example, asks for $30 billion more.

Second, ignore the hogwash that social services will be "cut" under this budget. Not so. Social services will continue to grow, because previous administrations and Congresses approved increases years ago that now are coming due.

The proposed budget would only "slow" the rate of growth in social services, by imposing, among other things, a freeze on cost-of-living increases in Social Security benefits, railroad retirement, veterans' compensation, food stamps and child nutrition.

These programs all will show increases in 1984, just as they have in past years. The difference is that the rate of increase will be slowed.

So when a politician howls about how this budget is going to "cut domestic spending," that just isn't the case. The spending still will go up, and that is why the nation is still in deep economic trouble.

And while we're all pointing fingers, a few might be at ourselves. A report out of Washington this week says that nine out of 10 American families receive some form of non-cash benefits, ranging from group health plans to food stamps. Nine in 10 of us, in effect, are on some form of "welfare," although God forbid we would use that awful term.

Everyone talks about scaling down our expectations as a people, but right now, it looks like a whole lot of us are at the trough. Remember that when the rhetoric starts on the budget.

Letters More reaction to series on Mormons

Send in comments by Friday

Editor's note: As we said in Sunday's editorial, we welcome responses to the series of articles on the Mormons. We will cease publication of letters on the subject, however, early next week, and will move on to other subjects in the letters column.

To be considered for publication, all letters on the articles should be received at The Times-News by Friday, Feb. 4. Letters received on that subject after that date will be held but will not be published.

Impressions are disconcerting

I have been most interested in the article on the Mormons that you are publishing each day. It appears quite factual as far as doctrine is concerned, but it's disconcerting to me to learn the impression that non-members have of our doctrine.

Are we really considered Victorian because we believe in the equality of marriages? Is Victorian for couples to be faithful to each other? Is Victorian to practice sex only within the bonds of marriage? It's difficult for me to believe that the world has become so liberal that the teachings of the Savior are no longer pertinent, that they do not apply to society today. Has the world really come to believe that the Ten Commandments have become obsolete?

I have difficulty in accepting the things that were written of LDS predominant schools, being discriminating and of LDS students being favored and given special privileges because they are Mormon. I have lived in Mormon predominant communities all my life; for 40 years as a non-member, and have never felt any of this supposed discrimination.

Before my conversion, even though I could not accept LDS doctrine, I admired their way of life, and was happy to have their children in our home because they were a good example to our children. It was the example of our Mormon friends and neighbors that influenced me to investigate the church.

We, my husband and I, have recently served a mission for our church, and although it was the most difficult experience of my life, it was also the most rewarding. Through our missionary experiences we established beautiful relationships with both members and non-members. Some of the dearest friends we made in the mission field. Listened to our message, chose not to accept our

Twin Falls Stake president responds

We have heard much from our people (the Mormons) and many comments from those of other beliefs who have been stirred by the recent articles in the newspaper.

For this reason we wish not to make further comment but we forget what our Savior has said, "...Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself." Matthew 22:37-39. May peace and the love of Christ be with us all.

hearts they know the church is true; they have a testimony of the gospel and the Mormon way of life. The fact that they have turned their back on it is festering their very souls. Because they once knew the blessings of the Gospel, their rejection is causing them untold misery.

Knows of prejudice first-hand

I moved to Utah, Ogden when I was 10 years old. My family and I were from the mid-west and totally innocent of Mormonism and Utah's culture. We learned first hand of the prejudice against other faiths, of the intolerance and lack of concern neighbors have for those who do not attend the local ward. I was raised before this in Nebraska, Wyoming, Kansas and I never was treated like I was in Utah. I didn't need a preconceived idea of Mormonism.

I agree with the articles if you want to know what Mormonism is like when you are not Mormon. The teachers are most certainly biased and use every opportunity to encourage Mormonism in school. One of my junior high teachers called me in on my lunch hour to show me the errors of the Bible. The suppression is unreal. I could document hundreds of stories not quite as flattering as the ones the newspaper has published, but the thing that needs to be said is Mormonism is not Christianity. Their god is a different god than the one in the Bible. I do not go to heaven because of a human organization or church, the Bible teaches that heaven is gained when we accept the sacrificial atonement of Jesus' shed blood on the cross.

A church is an extension of this salvation and a vehicle that the Lord uses to touch lives. When a church takes the place of God and reorganizes his plan, look out. It's another cult, not a different phase of Christianity.

I have read all the defenses of the Mormon people and all I hear them saying is "I don't want to hear these things." If a person can't look at criticism and see problems for what they are, how can anything be changed? I don't hate Mormons. I'm sorry they can't see what is happening.

If they think they are being badgered, look up what Joseph Smith said about other faiths. He started the battle.

Please get past the hurt and anger and really look into what Mormonism is.

Try this alternative idea

Mr. Hollifield's idea of taxing soft drinks is ridiculous. We actually pay him to think up such absurdities.

People are war casualties

A letter to Mr. Thompson. Our success as a nation is a measure of our desire to go beyond what is expected of us as citizens. "Ask not what your country can do for you, but what you can do for your country." Intimidating, isn't it?

Today's frame of mind breeds much of the same: "Stay-the-course," you, out there. The change is in tone, only.

The problem with politicians is that they misjudge the capacity of people's reasoning. They just keep playing the immature game of intimidation for so long that it becomes ineffective or provocative.

Take our Constitution, for example: Simple, straight to the heart, beautiful, honest, inspired. Almost a poem. Then, came the jack asses, the lawyers, the bureaucrats. ... They took the law, raped it, lubbled against it, made it complicated, ugly, duckingled it, so we the people had to hire the same culprits to spell out the jargon for us, poor peasants. Stupid, indeed.

Sure, there is a war going on, Mr. Thompson, as a matter of fact, for every dollar you labor, 60 percent of it, goes to support that war politicians are waging against you and I. No one's life, income, property or freedom are safe; it is a take-and-take issue.

...Mind you, there will never be a 10-percent income tax cutting across the board. Simplify the law and one will eliminate, in the process, lawyers, accountants, bureaucrats (some federal agencies) and all those who build their golden nest at the cost of one's seat. The wolves are out, and the jackals are not far behind. So, you see, it is a matter of survival for them.

Those who are chewing us, have long forgotten their heritage. They are from us, but not of us. Surely, we are getting fed up with all the manipulation, dirty tricks and taxation shot at us. Of course, there is a war, we are the casualties. Congratulations, Mr. Thompson, you have discovered the power of capitalism.

Shout for tax refunds

OK Mini-Cassia area residents, we created some static about the price of gasoline and the price has dropped a few cents.

Now, let's make some noise about the tax-refund delay. It's our money they are talking about, or should we say they are gambling with it. I am sure every working person in the state of Idaho who has a refund coming could use it before July 1.

Also, they didn't say how long after July 1 and if they get away with this one, we could lose it all together.

Question? Do the working people of the state of Idaho think we should stand by and let them continue to slaughter us on every issue? Take a look at WPPSS. We didn't pull the boob, but we are the ones that are paying and paying plenty.

Think about this tax-refund delay for a little while. If you're a keeper still and if you don't like it, well you had better start shouting and loud.

Lottery proven fund source

Your editorial on the lottery question deserves some rebuttal.

First, lotteries don't just "look like easy ways to raise funds." They have proven themselves as a source of funds in all of the states that have them. None of these states are considering any action to abolish its lottery. This must mean they're pleased with the results.

Second, you state they are not a dependable source of funds. Neither is income tax, unless people are working. Neither is a sales tax, unless we're all spending. Perhaps the only truly dependable source is a property tax, since if it isn't paid, the home or farm goes to the county.

Third, you imply it is only the poor who would play and it is therefore prudent for the state to "protect" those unfortunate from "wasting" a dollar or so each week, in order to purchase a dream of climbing onto the pedestal you've placed yourself on; namely, having enough income that apparently brings with it a higher degree of intelligence when it comes to spending one's disposable income. Really?

Fourth, yes, it is obviously a "sin" tax. There are generally a very dependable source of funds. Reference the state's tax on beer, wine, alcohol and tobacco. Surely you don't believe the state has a monopoly on liquor with the ultimate aim of preventing alcohol consumption. Although, with their excessive prices, many of us are wondering. And yes, it is a form of gambling. So is farming, the stock market, driving on bad roads, etc., etc. Should the state eliminate them?

Fifth, I question your statement that they are difficult to regulate. Obviously, the state could model its lottery after those that have proven to be well run.

Personally, I believe a lottery would be just one more method of helping raise funds for the state function more smoothly through the ups and downs of our times. It won't solve all the financial problems by itself, any more than any of the more traditional methods can, by themselves.

Finally, I challenge your publication to conduct a survey of its readers, to see what the citizenry thinks on the subject. With the cost of postage eliminating the response from the poor, and the inability of the simple-minded to respond at all, surely the results would agree with your thoughts.

Remove the power drunk

How many times as a teenager did you walk out the door to the parental advice, "Remember, if you're with someone who is driving too fast or wrecklessly, ask that they shape up or demand that they stop and let you out." It was good sage advice, though perhaps a bit short: if in fact you were let out and the driver of that vehicle went on to kill himself along with a few other unsuspecting and innocent folk.

It is the duty of each citizen, of each inhabitant of this planet, to act responsibly and demand it of others. Forget irresponsible action, whether by public official or private citizen, go unchecked is to acquiesce and in short be a participant to that action.

We are faced, with what I believe to be the ultimate irresponsible act against civilization, the environment, the spirituality of human-kind: the thinking, the planning and arming for nuclear war. There are those that even imagine that one nation can win. There will be no winners; by mere participation, we all lose.

It is time to demand that the leaders of the nations of this planet be held accountable for their actions; that they change the course of their leadership in regard to military armament or step aside. There is no getting off. Nuclear war is unacceptable, the Russian leadership must know that; the American leadership must know that, and any other left or right wing leader that strives for international leadership must know that.

There's lots of talk now days of how to remove the alcohol drunk from our highways; we must also remove the power drunk from the triggers of conventional and nuclear arsenals around the world. If humanity is to survive, we must find other means to settle global conflicts. I believe that President Eisenhower said it best; "Above all, the people, I like to believe that people, in the long run, are going to do more to promote peace than our governments. Indeed, I think that people want peace so much that one of these days, governments had better get out of the way and let them have it."

Response to series about Mormons continues to come in

Persecution bolsters faith

Persecution makes people strong in their faith. The Polish people are stronger than ever in their Catholic faith. Their convents and seminaries are crowded with Christians ready to spend their lives teaching and spreading Christianity, even with the communists' guns pointed at their heads.

Persecution will make the Mormons stronger. Like your letter-writer, Phil Auth, I am a Catholic who prays she will die in her faith. Pope John Paul II has advised Catholics to support all theistic peoples. He, of course, has been threatened with death. The Mormons are theistic, i.e., they believe in one, true God. I hope they hang in there.

ELSA ULLMAN Twin Falls

Happy with Mormonism

I can't sit back any longer without giving my view of this "Mormonism" thing.

I was not at all surprised in your follow-up of the Denver publication. I knew what to expect when I heard over KMY television that we were to receive this. It's for this reason that I quit subscribing to your newspaper sometime ago. I enjoy life and try to do all I can to help others enjoy it too; therefore I do not have to subscribe to a newspaper that has so much negative outlook on life.

I am a Mormon and very proud to be one. I was born and raised in the beautiful state of Utah, spending many years in Salt Lake City, where I was not aware that Mormons were unfriendly. I'm proud to say that I had non-Mormon friends as well as Mormon.

We as Mormons believe in being honest and doing good to others. (Mormons, non-Mormons, apostates, white or colored). We in turn like to be treated the same. (Not as an eye-for-an-eye, a tooth-for-a-tooth.)

We believe the Bible to be the word of God as far as it is translated correctly. The difference between us and other religions (I mean religions and not cults, as the publication states.) is that we have the Book of Mormon, which is a volume of holy scriptures comparable to the Bible and goes hand in hand with the Bible.

In this publication it mentioned that we call each other "brothers and sisters." You bet we do. We feel a great love for one another.

Mormon or gentile (as your article stressed). I need a leaflet, that seems to go hand in hand with your publication, that was distributed by another church in Twin Falls. I will not mention the name of the church. This was published by "Saints Alive." Titled "Mormonism, can it stand investigation?"

You bet it can! We invite and want other people to investigate our religion. We have nothing to hide, but we must have something good and something no one else has to cause such a commotion in this valley.

I hold no remorse for the editor of this article, John Farrell, but only feel sorry for him to think that he spent so much time writing an article with so much untruths and exaggeration, when he could have gotten all truths had he gone to the right source. I suppose if you were trying to track down a lamb, you would trust a coyote to lead you there. The same goes for this article. Ask an enemy, an apostate, or an excommunicant and you know what the answers will be.

I'm surprised that Brother Farrell didn't take a little more time (1/4 months is not long for what he accomplished) when he was in Salt Lake City, to enjoy the beauty there and also get acquainted with our prophet, President Spencer Kimball. He is truly a prophet of God. Just to stand in his presence is convincing.

I'm happy with "Mormonism," and this publication is doing much to strengthen my testimony even more.

I pray for all of you that have been guided by Satan to be forgiven for this trespassing act. EDITH HUMPHRIES Kimberly

Republish as a pamphlet

Here's a suggestion: Why not publish, after copyright agreement from The Denver Post, in some kind of a pamphlet form, the articles on Mormonism? It seems to me that there should be a wide distribution of the articles. At a price of around 50 cents to a dollar, they should sell like hot cakes after some kind of advertisement of the same.

I am confident that hundreds of ministers and church members, including myself, will be ready to purchase several such pamphlets. Of course, the marketable value of the same would depend on your newspaper's advertisement of the same. However, I cannot say that I have a divine revelation that The Times-News will see its coffers vastly enriched by such a venture.

Every newspaper in this nation should secure the copyright from the Denver Post and publish those articles.

Much of what has been said in the articles I have had on hand, but much, much more has been said, and said with documentary and first and research.

You have published one letter of mine on the above subject, so no need to publish this one. I am not looking for publicity.

May I add, however, that the series of articles on Mormonism should serve as a dire warning relative to what a cult can do and get away with if under the cloak of freedom of religion. The articles clearly reveal the inherent danger of a church taking control of the state in the name of Christianity. History, church history and secular history, reveal the same. The church must never control the state nor the state the church.

REV. GILBERT B. MOORE First Baptist Church Gooding

Farrell was not objective

There's no doubt the publication of the Mormon series has achieved the highest level of controversy in this area since the Sierra Life crackdown.

Mr. Hartgen said his desire was to bring, about a public forum. That's good and healthy because it causes people to think. Mr. Hartgen's defense, though, for publishing the articles is questionable.

As a journalist, I was instructed to be reliable, factual and accurate. My editors constantly looked for treatment that was unbiased and fair. If one side received more attention, I was guilty of slanting. My sources of information contributed much to this perspective.

If only Mr. Farrell understood this. A responsible investigative reporter doesn't confine or weight his sources towards critics, liberals and fault-finders. He uses balance. He would have consulted church leaders and authorities. As a result, he rubbed any chance for true objectivity and credibility.

If we are to assume your managing editor wrote his editorial after having read the series, why he labeled it as "neutral and dispassionate" is beyond me.

In the long run, one must consider the real motive. Mormons bring about instant attention. And while the news dissemination industry has undergone change in recent years from a traditional role of informational reporting to that of entertainment, it's more understandable. That's what sells papers.

I'm proud to be a Mormon and as such love and respect everyone's right to his or her own beliefs. All that I ask is that we conduct this forum in good taste, after all.

The Times-News, you promised to be "neutral and dispassionate." GARY LEAVITT Twin Falls

God reveals more of gospel

I would like to address this to all those who think the doctrine of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has been changing over the years. The true gospel is unchangeable, but God reveals more of it as He sees the time is right. If there have been changes in the Book of Mormon, as Shane Dean says, why do we read in "The Teachings of Spencer W. Kimball" the following:

"It is the word of God. It is a powerful second witness of Christ. And, certainly all true believers who love the Redeemer will welcome additional evidence of His divinity."

"This inspiring book was never tampered with by unauthorized translators or biased theologians but comes to the world pure and directly from the historians and abridgers (Book of Mormon ancient prophets.)"

There have never been any changes in the Book of Mormon since it was published in the year 1830, except for some typographical errors. The first printer was a non-Mormon and he made a few mistakes in regards to punctuation, word deletions and maybe some spellings.

The Book of Mormon is a history and a scripture, the same as the Bible, some of it being written at the same time as the Bible (in part) was being written. It is by, and about, people living on this continent in ancient times. Those people were taught the true gospel by their prophets, and by Jesus Christ Himself, who visited them after his resurrection and ascension into heaven. Each time the greater part of them became wicked they received chastisements, scatterings and destructions.

Any changes in the Pearl of Great Price or Doctrine and Covenants are relocations and additions of new revelations, which do not change church doctrine. We love you out there and hope you can learn the whole truth and disregard lies about our church.

VERLAH ADAMS Oakley

Treasury isn't complaining

This letter is being written to thank you for your article series that tells the four sides of Mormonism, the Mormon church member side, the Mormon church leaders' side, the non-Mormon side and the former-Mormons' side of the story.

The series was well prepared and I have talked to members of the Mormon Church who are delighted by the series. In regards to the church members who are bothered by the series, Mormon church members who complain are like anybody else who complains, complainers aren't happy unless they have something to complain about.

"Religions in America" by Leo Rosten has a chapter on the churches in America. If you want to read about Mormons in this book, their chapter is written by Richard L. Evans, who has been a member of the Council of Twelve of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day saints.

If you want to read material critical of the different denominations, write to Christian Research Institute, 2672 Lambert St., Suite 615, El Toro, Calif. 92630, giving them the name of the denomination you want information and they will send it to you.

In closing I would like to quote a paragraph from the article from the Saturday, Jan. 29 Times-News Mormon series: "The church does own $41 million (less than

2 percent) of the stock of The Times-Mirror Co. which publishes The Denver Post. The stock was acquired in 1963 when the church swapped its partial ownership of an Oregon paper mill for 300,000 shares of Times-Mirror."

Mr. John A. Farrell who wrote the series is a Denver Post staff writer. The Denver Post is published by Times-Mirror Co. One of the stock holders in Times-Mirror Co. is the Mormon Church.

What does this mean? It means that when The Times-News purchased rights to print the series, and any other paper purchases the printing rights that the Mormon Church receives financial gain for the series.

Some church members may be complaining about the series, but logic tells me the Mormon Church treasury in Salt Lake City isn't complaining.

Remember, no matter what church we belong to God loves us all. DONALD L. ROBINSON Hazelton

Pressure on conservatives

As a non-Mormon I did not like John Farrell's articles. I will not read any more of this type. The Mormons have faults? So what. All Conservative hold-outs are being pressured to render them ineffective. I know liberals like Jim Bridger knew Indians.

Several years of reading have convinced me that word-smiths can project any picture a position needs. Farrell's articles remind me of the Dearborn (Mich.) Independent articles in 1927 on Jewish business operations. Later a cartoon appeared showing a Jewish man being run over by a car and the driver apologizing: "Sorry, I didn't know that was you."

The picture today is of a Mormon being run over; but there probably won't be any apology, as the Mormons are a smaller group and less able to defend themselves. RAY A. YOUNG Hazelton

Finds work of art in words

One hardly expects to find a work of art in a newspaper editorial as I did in Sunday's edition. To me writing is an art when it extends our understanding and our relations with our fellowmen beyond the bounds of our personal lot.

A writer of the 19th Century said, "our subtlest analysis of schools and sects must miss the essential truth, unless it be lit up by the love that sees in all forms of human thought and work, the life and death struggles of separate human beings."

WAYNE HOPES Jackpot, Nev.

If your car has "knock" or "run-on"...

NEW CHEVRON SUPREME UNLEADED is our new solution.

Many of today's cars, even though properly tuned, are having performance problems - "knocking" and "pinging," or "running on" after the engine has been turned off. New Chevron Supreme Unleaded is specially formulated from Chevron's high quality, extensively refined gasoline stocks to help reduce or eliminate these problems.

Is it right for you? Chevron Supreme Unleaded can help eliminate knock, ping and run-on in a great many of today's cars. However, if you've been using Regular grade or Unleaded gasoline without experiencing these performance problems, we do not recommend switching to Chevron Supreme Unleaded.

Knocking and pinging, usually most evident when you're accelerating or climbing a hill, are the result of uneven gasoline combustion in your car's engine. New Chevron Supreme Unleaded promotes smooth, even combustion - a quality which can eliminate knock and ping.

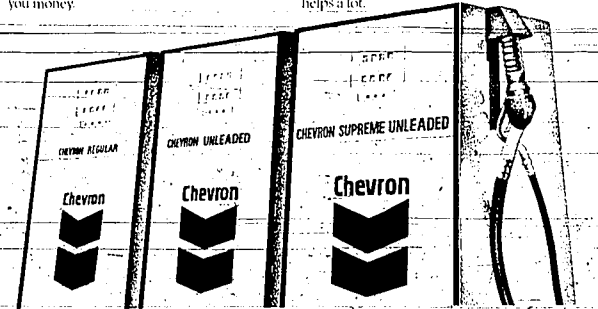

The introduction of Supreme Unleaded also means that most customers whose cars have been using Chevron Supreme Leaded gasoline can now enjoy all the benefits of using unleaded gasoline.

A second problem is the sputtering, clattering noise you sometimes hear after the engine's been shut off, known as "run-on." The properties of Supreme Unleaded work to eliminate this problem, too.

At Chevron, the choice is yours. With Chevron Regular, Chevron Unleaded - and now with Chevron Supreme Unleaded - your Chevron dealer has a full range of gasolines designed to meet the needs of virtually all of today's cars. Ask for the grade that is right for you and your car's needs.

Because Chevron Supreme Unleaded is lead-free, it helps prevent corrosive engine wear and extends the life of your car's spark-plugs, muffler and exhaust system. It can save you money.

With three grades of gasoline to choose from, your Chevron dealer can help you keep your car running efficiently and economically... from fuel choice to tire pressure to tune-ups. Every little contribution to conservation helps a lot.

GOP hammers out new budget plan

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — Republican legislators finalized their plan Tuesday for balancing the state's 1983 budget, including some revisions to appease Sen. John Evans.

But Democratic leaders say more compromise is necessary before they can support the package, and Evans, also a Democrat, says that education funding is the major stumbling block.

"Our plan is being drafted, and we should be getting it out to the House floor for vote soon," said House Speaker Tom Silvers, R-Twin Falls.

The package would account for $37.36 million of the state's estimated $93.2 million shortage. This would be done through a temporary 1-cent sales-tax increase, lasting through May; budget cuts; fund transfers and accelerated tax payments by large corporations.

The remaining $31.88 million would be made up by issuing tax-anticipation notes — a form of borrowing — which would be repaid by a designated 1-cent sales-tax increase, to begin in July and run until the loans are repaid.

Probably the most contested part of the plan is the Republicans' refusal to tie the 1984 budget problems into the 1983 plan.

Also at contention is the GOP's continued call for reducing public-school allocations by $7.7 million.

"My feeling is that there's no reason to tie the two budgets together," Silvers said. "If we need an extra one cent of sales tax to fund the 1984 budget, why can't you put out on with a separate bill, addressing the 1984 budget."

"Besides, it's taken us this long to get a plan for 1983," Silvers said. "We'd be here until June if we had to argue both 1983 and 1984 budgets at the same time."

GOP leaders claim that the reduction in school payments is not a true budget cut, because they say that school districts, statewide, have received up to $13 million in unexpected interest earnings, insurance dividends and Public School Endowment Fund payments.

Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, offered this defense to the governor Tuesday morning, but Evans continues to view the $7.7 million reduction as a budget cut.

"The problem is that this $7.7 million reduction will hurt some districts, while it's true that others won't be harmed," said Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, the caucus chairman for the Democrats.

"The point is that there is a terrible inequity in this plan," Peavey said. "That's because some school districts, such as the Shoshone School District, have had to spend all the money they have received to meet emergency building repairs and salaries. Other districts, such as the Buhl School District, have saved their "extra" money in anticipation of reduced state funding, according to area legislators.

"We're also not happy with the one-and-a-half percent budget cut to colleges and universities," Peavey said. "That cut applies to the entire year's appropriation, so it really amounts to a 6 percent cut in all activity during the last three months of the year."

But the Republicans' plan is not without compromise, Peavey acknowledged.

"Most significantly, GOP leaders did yield to veto threats by the governor if Medicaid and prisons weren't exempted from a 1 1/2 percent across-the-board cut to all state agencies.

Mills recall workers

BOISE (UPI) — Boise Cascade Corp. has called back to work about 170 sawmill employees in what the firm calls a move to "prepare for recovery of the long dormant timber and housing industries."

Sawmills at Council and Cascade were reopened Monday, and employees were added at a planing mill in Emmett, company spokesman Glen Youngblood said.

The BACONEER is exclusively sold at Red Steer Family Restaurants and ordered by more customers than any other menu item. 100% beef, crisp bacon, cheese, tomato slice, lettuce and special sauce on a toasted sesame bun make a delicious meal.

Bargaining rights for state workers get hearing

BOISE (UPI) — For the first time in several years, union officials have coaxed the Legislature into introducing a bill that would allow Idaho's public employees to bargain collectively.

But Sen. William Floyd, R-Idaho Falls, chairman of the committee that wrote the bill, says the action doesn't necessarily mean the measure has any more chance of passing this time.

The bill — which Floyd said will get a hearing in the Senate Commerce and Labor Committee sometime this session — would specifically give all public workers the right to organize and bargain collectively with their state or local employers.

Employers would be required to negotiate contracts with exclusive, elected representatives of unions on wages, hours, working conditions and other labor-management items.

Under current Idaho law, only firefighters and public school teachers possess collective-bargaining rights. While the law is silent on whether other public employees can bargain collectively, two attorney general's opinions in the past decade have determined collective-bargaining is unlawful in Idaho unless permitted by statute.

Although the state allows little collective bargaining among public employees, some local governments have laws that okay the practice.

Merger bill clears hurdle

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — A drive to consolidate Idaho's public school districts went a step further Tuesday.

A bill was introduced in the House to authorize a study of the issue.

"I just wish this was a bill mandating consolidation, rather than just a study, because I know it can work," said Rep. Ernest Hale, R-Burley.

"Our Cassia County School District was consolidated in the first go-round, and having a central administration for all our schools around the county has worked out well and saved us money," he said.

"But there are a lot of areas, like Twin Falls County, where there are five or more school districts operating close together, yet independently."

"Consolidation can save a lot of administrative expense," Hale said. "Saying that school-district consolidation may be the 'sleeper bill' of the session," Rep. Dan Kelly, R-Mountain Home, moved for the bill's introduction.

The measure would allocate $15,000 to establish a committee of volunteers to examine Idaho's 115 districts and suggest ways they might operate under joint administrations. That study would be presented to the Legislature during the next session. "I realize consolidation is a volatile subject, but it's time we look at our public-education system," said Rep. J.F. Chadband, R-Idaho Falls, the bill's sponsor. "I'm not saying where such a study might go, but it should be done."

Chadband cited a 1968 University of Idaho study that showed the state's 10 largest school districts spending only about $10 per student for administration, while the smallest districts had spend about $38 per student.

"I realize this study is old, but it may well be that this administrative cost difference is just as pronounced today," he said.

"By combining administrations, we may be able to come up with better education and better communication between educators," Chadband said.

He also noted that while Idaho has 115 school districts, Utah has just 44 and Nevada just 14.

"A study of this can't come from the grassroots, because, to be frank, consolidation could cost some people their jobs," Chadband said. "The state Legislature has to take the action."

It has been about 35 years since Idaho went through its first consolidation of school districts. At that time, the number of districts was reduced from about 1,000 to the present 115.

Active in that consolidation was John Barker, R-Buhl, the chairman of the Health, Education and Welfare Committee. Chadband first approached Barker to introduce the consolidation-study bill through his committee, but Barker said scheduling difficulties required that it be started in the House, instead.

Chadband's bill originally was proposed by the State Board of Education, which voted 8 to 1 to draft the legislation. The $15,000 designated in the bill would be used to pay the travel and lodging expenses for the volunteer members of the study committee.

But Hale warned that "studies don't seem to come up with the answers." The answer is for the Legislature to mandate consolidation, or else "nothing will happen."

Hale supported the bill, however, noting that a study ordered by the Legislature may force lawmakers to finally vote for or against consolidation.

Reagan visits Chrysler plant

By DONALD A. DAVIS
United Press International

ST. LOUIS — President Reagan said Tuesday he thinks "the recovery has begun," citing several factors to bolster the contention that his economic policies have put America on the road to prosperity.

Reagan exuded optimism during a daylong trip to St. Louis that was designed by the White House as a test of the "good news" Reagan has used in recent weeks to counter the pessimism of his critics.

Reagan cited improvements in the hard-pressed housing and auto industries and a recent rise in the government's leading economic indicators as evidence the recession has bottomed out.

Standing before recalled auto workers at a Chrysler Corp. plant in suburban Fenton, Reagan said recent improvements in the auto industry point the way for the rest of the nation.

But it was in an interview published in the St. Louis-Post Dispatch, conducted aboard Air Force One en route to St. Louis, that Reagan appeared to go further than he has to date in assessing the status of the economy.

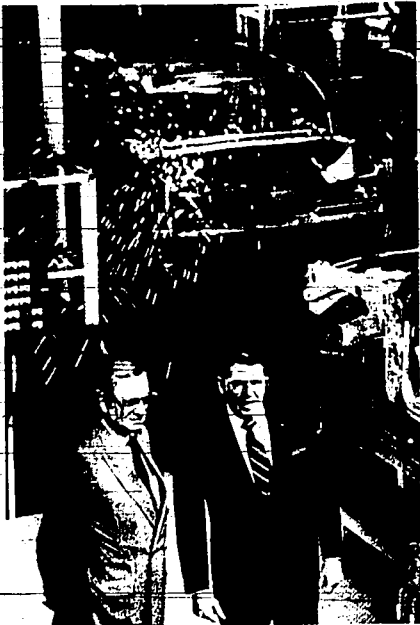

"I think the recovery has begun," he said. "And I have to put it that way. We have nine months now (for) which ... eight of those nine months all the economic indicators are up."

Administration economists have been cautious in claiming an end to the longest recession since World War II. Reagan himself hedged somewhat by saying, "The key still lies in further reduction of the interest rates."

Nevertheless, Reagan says he harbors hope of "a firmer recovery than is estimated."

Reagan returned to Washington in late afternoon. His helicopter set down on the White House South Lawn at 3 p.m. MST, and a smiling president waved to his wife Nancy, watching from a balcony, and signaled to reporters that he could not hear their questions.

In St. Louis, heavy rain had forced cancellation of a planned helicopter ride from the airport to the auto plant in Fenton, and a motorcade was hastily arranged — creating the spectacle of Chrysler Chairman Lee Iacocca riding with Reagan in a Lincoln Continental, a Ford Motor Co. auto used as a presidential limousine.

Reagan tours the plant with Lee Iacocca

Inside the cavernous auto plant, which was shut down in 1980 but now is undergoing a $96 million expansion and upgrading, Reagan and Iacocca transferred to a blue golf cart to ride past machines thumping out dull silver metal car parts.

Reagan donned clear safety glasses for a stop at a welding station where Dodge K-cars were being assembled by automated machinery. The robots grabbed the parts and welded them, throwing out fiery sparks, including some that flew over the president's shoulder.

Court hears Gorsuch case

ANNE GORSUCH
Caught in middle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A battle over EPA chief Anne Gorsuch's refusal to turn over secret files to Congress has undermined her ability to do her job, a government lawyer said Tuesday, urging a judge to save her from further legal action.

A lawyer for the House, which voted 259-105 to hold the Environmental Protection Agency administrator in contempt of Congress, asked U.S. District Judge John Lewis Smith to throw out the Reagan administration's "unprecedented" legal effort to block criminal prosecution of Mrs. Gorsuch.

The dispute pivots on the administration's reluctance to haul one of its top officials into court to face a possible one-year jail term or a $1,000 fine. It has evolved into a constitutional clash of major proportions since President Reagan ordered Mrs. Gorsuch to deny Congress on grounds of executive privilege.

Arguing for Mrs. Gorsuch and the administration, Assistant Attorney General J. Paul McGrath told the judge the case is the first time "in 200 years of American history" that an executive branch official has been held in contempt for asserting executive privilege.

McGrath, however, stated that if the courts order the contested documents be surrendered, "They will be turned over."

He told the judge the contempt action "has already critically impaired" Mrs. Gorsuch's functioning as EPA chief.

"There has been a finding of Congress that she acted criminally when obeying orders of the president," McGrath said. "Your honor, in the real world, that has to hurt."

Attorney Stanley Brand, pressing the case for the Congress, said that allowing the administration to derail the case would "open the floodgates to a torrent of lawsuits by chastened 'survivors' who might feel badly treated by lawmakers."

Brand maintained the suit runs counter to the Constitution's "speech or debate" clause, which protects the legislative branch from being sued by any action taken while in session.

Military spurs factory order rise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A surge in defense business pushed new orders for factory goods up 4.8 percent in December, the government reported Tuesday, the strongest gain in 2.5 years and a boost for administration claims, "The worst is over."

However the report's luster as an indicator of overall economic activity was tarnished somewhat by the fact that the gain came entirely from defense activities.

Without that, manufactured goods orders would have shown a slight 0.1 percent decline from November, the Commerce Department reported. A new order gain can provide much of the fuel for recovery of the economy's hard-hit industrial sector. But since defense orders led the way in December, the report did not necessarily mean the cautious mood of buyers was changing. Nor did it suggest the recession was already over in December, analysts said.

The strong $7.3 billion order increase came atop a particularly weak base, so it brought the month's total only to $157.6 billion. The value was higher than that as recently as July, at $158.6 billion. The rate of increase, at 4.8 percent, was the strongest pace since July 1980's 6.1 percent improvement.

The gain came too late in the year to prevent 1982's overall order level from finishing 6.4 percent below 1981's total, a striking illustration of lost business that cost the economy hundreds of thousands of jobs.

The total value of orders for manufactured goods for the year was $1,853 trillion, more than half the value of everything sold as part of the $3 trillion economy.

Survey says gasoline prices down

United Press International
Gasoline prices at the pump, now at their lowest level in three years, have slipped below $1 a gallon in some places, an informal UPI survey showed Tuesday. Experts say prices are likely to drop even more.

According to the latest official figures, leaded regular gasoline sold for an average $1.18 per gallon in December. The price of unleaded gasoline, which is burned in newer model cars, was $1.26, federal officials said. Prices have dropped about a nickel a gallon on average since December, officials said.

The UPI survey found gasoline selling for as little as 92 cents a gallon for leaded regular at a suburban Denver, Colo., service station.

The price at Don Plummer's Standard station included a 4-cent discount for paying cash. Other Denver-area stations have been selling gasoline for about 93 cents a gallon.

Pump prices vary nationwide in part because of differing state taxes. And gas prices will go up coast to coast April 1, when the federal excise tax increases by 5 cents per gallon to 9 cents.

"Gasoline prices are the lowest since February 1980," a spokesman for the Energy Information Administration said in Washington. At that time, "Leaded regular was selling for slightly below $1.16 and unleaded for about $1.20," he said.

Elizabeth Dole voted Senate confirmation

PUNXSUTAWNEY, PA. (UPI) — Groundhog Punxsutawney Phil, the animal kingdom's chief meteorologist, jokes his nose out of his burrow Wednesday to predict how much longer winter weather will chill the nation.

For the past 36 years, the furry forecaster has been leaving his snug burrow on Feb. 2, Groundhog Day, to make his prediction for his top-hatted followers — the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club — and dozens of reporters.

Tradition holds that if Phil sees his shadow, winter has another six weeks to run.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Tuesday unanimously confirmed the nomination of Elizabeth Dole as Transportation Department secretary, the first woman to serve as a member of President Reagan's cabinet.

Mrs. Dole, wife of Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., succeeds Drew Lewis, who left the Cabinet to take a high-paying post with Warner Communications Inc. Her most immediate problem will be the federal government's role in the nationwide strike by independent truckers, which has flared into escalating violence.

The Senate voted 97-0 to approve Mrs. Dole's nomination. Only Sens. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., spoke on the nomination before the vote. Thurmond said, "In this post, as in others, she will serve her country and her president with utmost distinction."

Mrs. Kassebaum took the moment to praise Washington Redskins running back John Riggins — the hero of the Super Bowl — a "native son" of Kansas, and Mrs. Dole, the "adopted daughter" of her state.

Several other senators, including Mrs. Dole's husband, gave perfunctory speeches on the nomination Monday.

The Doles become the highest-ranking couple in government, with Mrs. Dole making about $80,000 and her husband about $93,000.

Reagan's proposal rejected

By STEVEN R. REED
United Press International

MOSCOW — Soviet leader Yuri Andropov Tuesday rejected President Reagan's proposal for a summit meeting based on Washington's "patently unacceptable" zero-option disarmament proposal for Europe.

"Can one seriously speak about a proposal according to which the Soviet Union would have to scrap unilaterally all its medium-range missiles, while the United States and its NATO allies would retain all their nuclear weapons of this category?" Andropov asked in an interview with the Communist Party newspaper Pravda.

He said a message from Reagan to Western Europe delivered by Vice President George Bush was "nothing new," being only the zero-option proposal Moscow rejected earlier.

The Kremlin leader repeated an earlier Soviet warning that if the United States goes ahead with the deployment of 572 cruise and Pershing-2 missiles at the end of 1983, Moscow "will answer this appropriately."

"But this would not be our choice," he said, urging the United States to accept the "Soviet Union's disarmament proposal based on the principle of equality and equal security."

Bush, during a dinner in Berlin Monday, read Reagan's offer to meet Andropov "wherever and whenever" they could sign an agreement banning all U.S. and Soviet land-based, medium-range nuclear missiles.

"It was the first step on Bush's seven-point European initiative to counter the Soviet Union's attempt to portray its proposals as the only reasonable ones tabled in the Geneva arms talks, which resumed last Thursday."

Andropov, in the interview distributed in advance by the official Tass news agency, said a summit meeting "conditional on the Soviet Union's consent to the patently unacceptable" zero-option proposal "by no means testifies to the seriousness of the American leadership's approach to the whole of this issue."

Under the zero-option proposal, France and Britain would retain a total of 162 medium-range nuclear missiles, while the Soviet Union and the United States would pledge to destroy and cancel plans for all their medium-range missiles.

Soldiers die in train crash

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — An express train slammed into the rear of a stationary military train before dawn Tuesday, killing 19 passengers and injuring 77 others, many of them soldiers, police said.

The speeding train, also called the "press train" because it carries morning newspapers, was enroute from Cairo to the Mediterranean port of Alexandria.

Police sources said the train ran a stop signal and crashed into the rear of the military train that had stopped at the small town of Qallama, 11 miles north of Cairo.

But as the investigation of the accident progressed, the police sources questioned whether the red light had actually been turned on.

One source blamed the mishap on a breakdown of communication that caused the local control room to give contradictory permission to the "press train" to move and to the military train to stop on the same tracks at the same time.

A police spokesman said 18 army soldiers and one civilian were killed, and 74 soldiers and three civilians were injured. The dead civilians were probably the engineer of the moving train, a police source said.

The injured, including 25 in serious condition, were rushed to nearby hospitals.

The impact of the crash smashed the engine and first two cars of the moving train.

Forced flight kills sixteen

LAGOS, Nigeria (UPI) — At least 16 of the thousands of refugees streaming out of Nigeria have died during their forced exodus, 10 starving to death and six drowning in a stampede to board ships, West African sources said Tuesday.

"Hardly anyone has room to sit. People were standing shoulder to shoulder on every available inch of deck and every hatch cover," said BBC radio reporter Mike Woodridge, describing a frantic scene at Lagos' teeming docks as thousands of immigrants pushed their way aboard two ships that sailed Monday night for Ghana.

One million illegal immigrants from Ghana and one million others from Togo, Benin, Cameroon, Chad and other nations in the region were affected by Nigeria's order expelling unskilled immigrant workers.

Shultz issues stern response to Korea war alert

TOKYO (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz, urging Japan join Washington's effort to boost defenses, Tuesday pledged the United States to "deter aggression" throughout the world in the face of a North Korean war alert.

"The United States and its allies will start no wars," Shultz told a news conference on the third day of his four-day visit to Japan. He leaves for China Wednesday and then goes on to South Korea and Hong Kong.

"Our efforts to build up our defense forces are efforts to create the capacity to deter aggression," he said. "That is our objective." "It applies whether we are thinking with respect to the Soviet Union, North Korea, what is happening in Cambodia or throughout the world."

But North Korea, in a broadcast monitored in Tokyo, bitterly denounced annual U.S. and South Korean military exercises that began Monday, charging they were creating a situation where "war may break out any moment."

The communist nation said it was putting its forces on "semi-war" readiness, and linked the exercises to "moves of the U.S. imperialists, Japanese militarists and South Korean puppet clique to complete the system of a triangular military alliance."

Shultz said it was clear that "more needs to be done" to fulfill Japan's self-defined mission of "being responsible for the defense of the air space of Japan and for the seas around Japan."

But he said Washington was happy with the efforts to build Japan's defenses outlined by Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone, who became prime minister in November and is regarded as more militant than his predecessors.

South Korea, like Japan, is home to 40,000 U.S. military personnel. The "Team Spirit" military maneuvers involve 180,000 troops, the largest number ever.

North Korea, aided by Chinese troops, battled South Koreans and allies led by U.S. troops in a bloody 1950-53 war. Pyongyang, which has no diplomatic ties with Tokyo or Washington, gets aid from both China and the Soviet Union.

Sierra Life deal prompts lawsuit

Founder's widow sues purchasers

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The widow of the founder and owner of the Sierra Life Insurance Co. filed a lawsuit Tuesday, alleging that officials of two other insurance companies engineered a scheme to devalue her company stock.

Darlene Frazier is seeking about $2 million in the lawsuit, including $1 million in punitive damages.
Named as defendants in the Fifth District Court action are: the National Capital Life Insurance Co. of Oklahoma City, Okla., which entered into an agreement with Mrs. Frazier for the purchase of 150,000 shares of Sierra Life stock; the George Washington Life Insurance Co. of Jacksonville, Fla.; and National Corp. of Twin Falls, which formerly did business as Sierra Investment Corp.

The suit also names as defendants: John H. Wilbur, Dudley D. Allen and Arthur W. Milam, who were officers of both the National Capital and George Washington companies; and Jerry Ellerbee of Oklahoma and John Hadley of Twin Falls, who acted as officers of Sierra Life, a Twin Falls-based firm.

Following the death of her husband, Fred M. Frazier, Mrs. Frazier agreed two years ago to sell her stock for $700,000 to National Capital, the lawsuit claims. The Oklahoma-based insurance company agreed to a $300,000 down payment, with a series of four annual payments of $100,000 each to follow, the suit says.

The Sierra Life stock was held in trust by National Corp., and/or Hadley, according to the lawsuit.

The Oklahoma insurance company made one payment last year, but apparently it voided the contract by informing Mrs. Frazier that it will not make its 1983 payment, according to the lawsuit.

The suit indicates that the Oklahoma company may be unable to make that payment. Officials of the firm were unavailable for comment Tuesday.

Mrs. Frazier wants a court order foreclosing on the 150,000 shares of stock. But she also wants the George Washington Life Insurance Co. and its officials held liable for her damages, contending that the officials mismanaged Sierra's holdings, thereby seriously decreasing the stock's value.

"The situation of the defendant, National Capital Life Insurance Co., was engineered by the defendants Wilbur, Allen, Milam, Ellerbee, Hadley and George Washington Life Insurance Co. to defeat the plaintiffs High water on the Snake River has weakened the bridge below Milner Dam. Federal funds have been approved to pay the cost of its replacement.

From where will local money come?

Governments to mull bridge repair

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A meeting concerning possible replacement of the nearly 70-year-old Milner Bridge has produced plans to more fully review the proposal later this month. Representatives of the Jerome and Twin Falls county commissions and the Murtaugh and Hillsdale highway districts toured the bridge Tuesday. They tentatively set a Feb. 16 meeting after reviewing an announcement that federal funding would be awarded to cover about 80 percent of the cost of replacing the bridge.

The replacement costs are unknown at present, but they are anticipated to be about $350,000 to $400,000. As part of the local matching funds required for the grant, local governmental entities have the option of providing cash or an equal value in labor.

But coming up with the local matching money may be a challenge for county governments, which are facing the dual problem of rising operating costs and fixed revenues.

"It's going to cost the counties and the highway districts some money," said Ann Cover, the chairman of the Twin Falls County commission and a member of a committee that authorized the successful application for federal funding, through the Idaho Department of Transportation.

One issue that may be discussed at the next meeting is whether Cassia County officials would be willing to participate in the local funding. The bridge serves traffic coming to and from Burley.

That fact led officials to invite Cassia County representatives to Tuesday's session. But Cassia County commission Chairman J. Weldon Beck said scheduling conflicts prevented his attendance.

But Beck said that he plans to review the matter with his county board, as well as with the Burley Highway District. Cassia County's involvement would be optional. But participation from the other four entities would be required before work could begin.

The one-lane, 240-foot-long bridge, which was built in 1915, links Twin Falls and Jerome counties across the Snake River, about a half-mile downstream from Milner Dam and about a half-mile from the Cassia County Line.

Its structure consists of timber and on one side, a steel truss. Deterioration of the bridge has led to a 10-ton load limit, forcing some traffic to take a 15-mile detour. The bridge also is unpassable during high-water times of the year.

Yearly flooding also has contributed to the deterioration of the bridge and has forced officials to remove guardrails, because those structures would catch additional water and debris.

Twin Falls school board taps bond issue promoters

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls school board and administration continued its efforts to promote a proposed $4 million school bond issue by organizing a citizen support group Tuesday night.

Approximately 40 people gathered at O'Leary Junior High to start developing a strategy to mobilize community support for the building program.

Nine subcommittees will work with the school board to get the word out about a proposed elementary school and remodeled high school gym facilities.

The date for the bond issue will be set at a school board meeting next Tuesday.

The subcommittees and their leaders are: Martha Lange, school personnel; Grant and Sharon Starley, parents; Mike Quesnell, farmers; Gary Babbel, churches; Curtis E. Eaton, business; and Stephen Hartgen, media.

The senior citizen and student subcommittee leadership spots were not filled.

Sawin invited all interested persons to come forward and join in the effort.

All involved filed complaints

Four charged in shooting incident

TWIN FALLS — Four Twin Falls men were arraigned Tuesday on charges stemming from a shooting incident last week.

Twin Falls police had withheld information concerning the Jan. 25 incident until the arrests had been made.

One of the defendants, 41-year-old Tony Martinez, of 240 Sycamore St., has been charged with two counts of aggravated battery, a felony, in connection with the incident. He was freed without bond following an appearance in Fifth District Magistrate Court, according to court officials.

The three others — 25-year-old Benjamin D. Rust of 1539 Laurel Ave.,

24-year-old Joel Crider and 25-year-old Roy May, both of 1937 Fourth Ave. E., — have been charged with battery, a misdemeanor. All three pleaded innocent to the charges and will go on trial in magistrate court.

They also were released without bond.

According to the charges, the three younger men allegedly were involved in an altercation at Sycamore Avenue and Second Avenue East when Martinez drove up.

The three men are accused of turning on Martinez, who in turn is charged with striking May with a lead pipe and shooting a 12-gauge shotgun at Crider.

Police said Crider received a minor wound, and that he, as well as all of the participants, was treated at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center and released.

Police Chief Tim Qualls withheld information concerning the case until all of the defendants signed complaints against each other.

"At the time it happened, due to the drinking involved, I wasn't sure who would want to sign complaints or who would want to testify," Qualls said Tuesday. "We couldn't act on any of their complaints until we could get statements from them."

Backs tax hike — if necessary

New area IEA chief says educational funding is priority

By HARRIET GUTHERTZ
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Educational funding is the main priority for the new director of the Magic Valley branch of the Idaho Education Association.

Terry Gilbert, who succeeds Jim Shakerford in the Region IV professional position, says, "If you don't have funding, you don't have anything."

Educational funding must be increased even if it means higher taxes, he says.

Although Gilbert thinks of himself as a conservative, he says that the One Percent Initiative has been harmful to education — and a poor tax reform.

"Idaho legislators are 'very influential' in determining the quality of life in the state," Gilbert says. They have a responsibility to see that the state has a good educational system.

"Schools and teachers are not economic parasites on our local, state or national economy. On the contrary, education provides the intelligence and skills necessary to modern industry," he says. And a good school system is necessary to maintain democracy in this country, Gilbert says.

IEA members from the Magic Valley took their message to the Legislature last week. They also plan to hold an open hearing on educational funding at the College of Southern Idaho next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. All teachers, parents, school administrators and interested citizens are invited to attend, Gilbert says.

Gilbert, who moved to Twin Falls from a job with the North Dakota

Education Association, says he has identified with Idaho for a long time and is pleased to return. His one regret is that Idaho doesn't have a National Public Radio outlet.

The 37-year-old educator attended Northwest Nazarene College in Nampa and served as IEA president from 1977-78.

Gilbert found his three-and-a-half years as a North Dakota Education Association representative "a very growing experience."

Gilbert says that he is most pleased with his work in helping North Dakota teachers assemble accurate statistical information during contract negotiations. He also remembers his work in lobbying for an oil-extraction tax. Funds raised from the tax were used for education and conservation.

In addition to guarding the state coffers, Gilbert plans to push ahead with the rest of the IEA's political program. That includes re-introducing a bill that would require each school district to develop a discipline policy, and supporting a bill that would allow the IEA to use a professional negotiator during contract talks.

Gilbert hopes that his previous stints as a teacher in Marsing and Nampa, and his previous IEA involvement will help him win the trust of Magic Valley teachers.

"I know the Idaho teacher and respect the Idaho teacher," he says.

Gilbert also plans to cement that trust by visiting schools in all 20 Magic Valley school districts.

Gilbert is married and has two children in grade school.

Industrial park awaits only release of funds

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — An industrial park, aimed at luring new businesses to Twin Falls, is poised for the jump from the board to off-the-ground.

A preliminary lot plan has been completed for the 29-acre subdivision, which is being developed by the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce and the City of Twin Falls.

The city also has filed the necessary paperwork for the release of a federal grant to fund street, water and sewer improvements to the property.

As soon as the money is released, the city will accept bids for the work involved and the project officially will get under way, according to Mike Dolton, the director of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce.

"That (the federal funds) is all we're waiting on now," Dolton says. "We have the preliminary plan, and we're ready to go."

Dolton says that three future tenants have deposited "earnest" money on three of the subdivision's lots, and one has an option on a fourth lot. Dolton would not identify the tenants, saying that they had not given him permission to do so.

He describes one as an "anchor tenant," however, that would be used as a railroad spur that will be built as part of the subdivision project. Another tenant he describes as "smaller," involving a "brand-new concept."

A previously announced tenant, the Port of Twin Falls, has dropped plans to move into the park. John Campbell, the president of Campbell Companies of Idaho, which does business as the Port of Twin Falls, earlier had announced his intention to be the park's first tenant.

However, Dolton says that the chamber and Campbell "couldn't come to terms on sale of this land at this time."

Campbell says that the chamber "jumped the price too high. We could not afford it."

But Dolton says that the loss of the Port of Twin Falls will not affect the project seriously.

In November 1981, the chamber purchased farm land in the southeast corner of Twin Falls to develop an industrial park as an enticement to new businesses. The site has been divided into 15 lots, ranging from less than one acre to five acres in size, which then will be sold to prospective businesses.

Five lots will have access to the railroad spur that will be built in the area.

Last fall, the city sought and received an $835,000 federal community-development grant to improve the land. Over a three-year period, streets, curbs and gutters will be built at the site, a water and sewage system installed, and a booster well constructed.

LaMar Orton, the city's community development director, recently finished assessing the environmental impact of the project. The city subsequently published a notice saying that "no significant effect on the environment" was found.

According to the Feb. 8 notice, the city will ask the state to begin releasing funds for the project. Orton says that he is not sure when the funds will be forthcoming, but he speculated it may be in two weeks or more.

Once the funds are released, a bid package will be developed and construction will begin as soon as weather permits, Orton says. Potential logistical concerns have been cleared up with the completion of a preliminary plat for the project. An Planning and Zoning Commission last summer, but changes in the street design and the location of the railroad spur necessitated a revision.

A final plat will be completed after the release of the funds, Dolton says, adding that he hopes the three tenants will be operating from the industrial park by spring.

Dolton says that he does not foresee any difficulties in selling the rest of the lots. He says eight to 10 businesses have expressed interest in the site, and he hopes that a few of them will follow through.

"I don't think there's any problem at all. I really don't. The land's going to be priced reasonably," he says.

Lot prices will vary from $15,000 for a small parcel to $25,000 per acre in a larger lot.

The chamber is "trying to come in about even — to recoup our investment and little more, so we can buy more land and carry on with the program," Dolton says.

Burglars enter home, take cameras

JEROME — The theft of about $1,500 in cameras and other video equipment was reported to Jerome police Monday.
Sgt. Lonny Meadows said Cheryl Hymas, of 141 Rainier St. in Jerome, told police that the equipment disappeared between Jan. 12 and 19.
At first, she noticed a video camera, valued at $799, was missing, but she thought she might have misplaced it. But after further searching, she discovered several lenses, flash equipment and other items also were missing.

Classes will be held from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in a conference room on the hospital's second floor.

Man pleads guilty to robbery

TWIN FALLS — A 20-year-old Filer man has pleaded guilty to an attempted robbery of a Bull restaurant.
Donald Dean faces a sentence of up to 15 years in prison.
He remained in the Twin Falls County Jail on Tuesday, in lieu of $15,000 bail.
Dean entered his plea during a Fifth District Court hearing Monday. Judge Daniel Meehl ordered a presentence investigation.
Dean, along with co-defendant Cheryl McRoberts, 19, of Twin Falls, was arrested last month and charged with the Dec. 29 attempted robbery of the Lewis Robbins residence, southeast of Dubui. Prosecutors allege the couple aborted the robbery attempt when the victims offered resistance.
Testifying Monday, Dean admitted planning the robbery, but he said that he "backed out" at the last minute.
"I guess I'm the one who planned it, but at the last minute, I couldn't do it."
In another court matter Monday, Meehl re-instated 30-year-old

Barton Roy Sellers, 20, of Hazelton, also was placed on two-year probation, after completing 120 days at the North Idaho Correctional Institution at Cottonwood.
Sellers had pleaded innocent to four counts of first-degree burglary and two counts of grand theft. The court later dismissed all but three of the burglary charges, and Sellers changed his plea to guilty.

Seferino Cuellar's probation, following the man's six-month confinement under the supervision of state corrections officials.
Cuellar, of Twin Falls, admitted violating his probation last year and was ordered to serve four months at the North Idaho Correctional Institution at Cottonwood. Midway through that term, Cuellar was transferred to the department's community-work center in Boise. Cuellar agreed to a 90-day extension in his confinement in order to participate in the work-center program.

District court judge gives two probation

JEROME — Two men were placed on probation and another entered an innocent plea on Tuesday in Fifth District Court in Jerome.
James Buster, 41, of Jerome, was sentenced to five years in prison on a charge of grand theft, but the sentence was withheld, and Judge Theron W. Ward placed Buster on a two-year probation.
Buster had pleaded guilty to charges stemming from the theft of three rings from Gladys Allyn, of 309 E. Ave. N., in Jerome. Buster was employed by Allyn when the rings valued at $2,750, disappeared last summer.

Barton Roy Sellers, 20, of Hazelton, also was placed on two-year probation, after completing 120 days at the North Idaho Correctional Institution at Cottonwood.
Sellers had pleaded innocent to four counts of first-degree burglary and two counts of grand theft. The court later dismissed all but three of the burglary charges, and Sellers changed his plea to guilty.

The burglaries involved the Community Store in Hazelton, a truck in Hazelton owned by Jay Crumrine and a shed in Hazelton owned by Dick Rolce. All occurred in November 1981.
James Trowbridge, 35, of Jerome, pleaded innocent to two counts of having lewd and lascivious conduct with a minor. The incidents occurred in Jerome in June and October of last year. A trial date will be set later.

Car hits, damages home

TWIN FALLS — The home of Norman Rock of Twin Falls sustained about $1,000 in damage Monday afternoon, when a vehicle went out of control and drove through his yard.
Rock called the Twin Falls County sheriff's office about 1:15 p.m. to say there was a car "almost in his home," a deputy said.
According to the deputy, John Wood, 53, of 221 S. Idaho St., Twin Falls, was southbound on Blue Lake Boulevard South, when he apparently suffered a seizure while he was turning onto Park Avenue. His car then crashed through a fence into the Rock yard, hit another wooden fence near the house and struck an outdoor fireplace beside the home.
Wood was not injured in the accident.

Vandals damage cars

TWIN FALLS — Vandals have caused about $200 damage to vehicles parked in the 300 block of Polk Street in Twin Falls.

ranged from $20 to $40. Police said the incidents apparently occurred between 8 p.m. and midnight on Saturday.

'Tractoread' protest nixed

SHOSHONE (UPI) — The organizers of a planned "tractoread" from Meridian to the Statehouse to protest federal farm loan policies say they have cancelled the event because of anticipated bad weather and the risk of adverse publicity.
The convoy of tractors had been scheduled to make the trip Thursday. But Galen Guthrie of Shoshone, the president of the Magic Valley Farm Borrowers Association, said Tuesday that the plan has been scrapped.

"We voted to cancel the tractoread in part because of the weather and because the last one had such bad repercussions," Guthrie said.
He said a previous tractor-convoy caused public relations problems for growers because "you had farmers complaining about being broke who were driving new tractors in a protest."
"It didn't look too good," Guthrie said.
He said farmers worried about meeting federal loan obligations would find another way to get their message to the lawmakers.

Hornets, Pirates win, head for state

By SCOTT TUDHOPE
Times-News writer

JEROME — Oakley and Hagerman will be state-bound thanks to victories earned Tuesday night in Fourth District A-4 competition.

Oakley, the least experienced of the four clubs in the tournament, relied on sophomore Cheri Judd's 15 points to keep them from falling behind Richfield. As it turned out, Judd had help in the second half when usual leading-scorer Cherrilyn Severe pumped in 17 more to put Oakley out of range 41-46.

Part of Richfield's problems was Oakley's defense, which limited Corinne Wolverton, the Tiger's top scorer, to just two free throws before she fouled out. High for Richfield was Monica Ward, who found her spot from the left 15 feet out. She ended up with 22 points.

It was anyone's guess in the first half who'd win the state berth, as Oakley barely held on to a one-point lead. The third period proved the difference as Judd hit two 17-footers in a row, while Severe hit her first field goal of the night with four minutes left in the period.

Marylynn Critchfield, Oakley's big girl in the middle who shut down the inside threat, made a 40-second appearance in the fourth period before fouling out, offering Richfield a chance to attack a softening belly. They didn't, instead working on outside shots, and fell short by five.

Oakley, in only its third year of girls basketball, is going to state for the first time. And their coach, Robert Lee, has got news for his future opponents.

"Hey, I'll tell you, we're not a one-player team," he said. "We proved that tonight. If they team up on Severe, we have Bedke or Judd. Somebody's going to get to them."

Lee was particularly pleased with the performance he got from Judd.

"She played like this the first five games, then something happened. She kept hitting from the corner. In fact, I told her not to hit from there, but she disobeyed me. I'm glad she disobeyed me."

The second game of the double header wasn't as nearly as close, but just as important as Hagerman dominated Dietrich, beating the Blue Devils 35-20. It is Hagerman's second straight year in going to state.

"We knew Dietrich was going to take the ball inside on us," said Hagerman's Clark Muscat. "So we worked hard on stopping that."

And stop it they did as Hagerman completely blitzed Dietrich's inside game, forcing their opponents to the outside. Dietrich was cold there too, so it was just a matter of time before Hagerman ran up a 18-0 lead. With two minutes before the half, Dietrich's frustrated Glenda Powers nailed two free throws. At the half, wasn't quite as effective in the second half, but it didn't need to be, as Dietrich's scoring problems helped out. Powers earned some revenge in the middle and helped stall Hagerman's inside cripples, and the defensive struggle was on.

While turnovers because of fatigue ganged up on both clubs, aggressive defensive play definitely made the difference. On the Hagerman side, Janine Hulme and Andra Wagner helped guard Slacoe Pharis make important steals. For Dietrich, Bonnie Bingham and Carol Perron forced numerous Pirate giveaways.

High for Hagerman, as usual, was center Kristin McFadden, with 17.

The wins put Hagerman and Oakley in a league-deciding contest at 8:30 p.m. in the Jerome gym. The preliminary is more crucial for Dietrich-Richfield fans, as the winner travels to a regional tournament in Glens Ferry. The loser is out.

"We definitely would rather have Breyer go to Cascade," Smutny said with a laugh. "They have that G-2 girl who is a pleasure to watch. But it would be more pleasant to see her in the finals of the state tournament than a playoff in Cascade."

Buhl beat Breyer twice during the season, then bowed to the Bobcats in the tournament.

didn't shoot all that well (16 of 55)," Valley Coach Forrest Fennesbee said. "I think we might've been a little tired after fighting our way back (to the final three) and we didn't quite have the same intensity. Osborn played a good game and we had foul trouble."

Shoshone fell to Declo 55-38 Monday night and Sandy said he'll probably change a few tactics in tonight's game.

"We'll do a few different things," he said, trying not to be too specific. "What we want to do is force them out of their offense, not allowing Cindy Gillette to let them get their offense going."

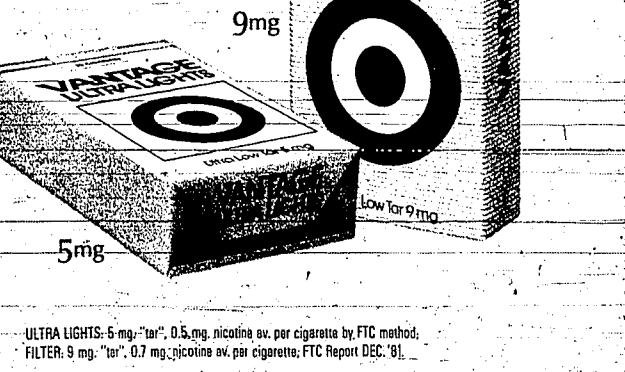

Whichever team finishes as the runner-up must go to Glens Ferry Saturday to face a team from the Treasure Valley in a playoff game for a state tourney berth.

Kimberly and Gooding won in the junior varsity action to earn their way to today's consolation title game.

Redskins' offensive coach takes Atlanta position

SUWANEE, Ga. (UPI) — Dan Henning, offensive coordinator for the Super Bowl champion Washington Redskins, Tuesday was named new head coach of the Atlanta Falcons, and he promised an aggressive brand of football.

Henning, 40, succeeded Leeman Bennett, who was fired last month after six years for being too conservative on offense.

Henning, who has spent eight years as an assistant NFL coach — with Houston (1972), the New York Jets (1976-78), Miami (1979-80) and Washington (1981-82), said he talked to "principals" of two other teams looking for a new coach. "But Atlanta was the only team to make an offer."

"I spent last month having my Bills promote assistant

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — Kay Stephenson, Buffalo Bills quarterback coach and a former Bills signal caller, Tuesday was named the eighth head coach of the NFL club and promised an aggressive brand of football.

"We're solid and we're going to do some things on the football field," Stephenson, 38, said shortly after he signed a multiyear contract. Terms of the pact were not disclosed.

Stephenson, a Bills assistant for the past five years whose only head coaching experience is at the high school level, emerged Monday as the leading candidate to replace Chuck Knox, Bills assistant head coach Tom Catlin, who met with Wilson last week and had the inside track for the job. He withdrew his name from consideration last weekend.

"Kay is a young man who I think is going to do an outstanding job for the team and the community," said Bills owner Ralph C. Wilson Jr. "I hope he's here for many, many years."

Stephenson returned the commitment, saying he was impressed by Wilson's "commitment to have an outstanding football team in Buffalo."

In 1968 Stephenson filled in for injured Bills quarterbacks Jack Kemp and Dan Darragh, and started three games before suffering a broken left collarbone. He spent time as a player with the Atlanta Falcons and Oakland Raiders in 1969 and 1970 before taking an assistant coaching position with Rice in 1971.

In 1972, he served as athletic director and head coach at Baker County (Fla.) High School, and spent 1974 as a player with the Jacksonville team in the now-defunct World Football League.

He joined the staff of the Los Angeles Rams, then coached by Knox. In 1977 and came to Buffalo with Knox in 1978 as the Bills quarterback coach, a position he has held until the 1982 season.

Stephenson said his first priority was to talk with the Bills players. His second priority will likely be assessing his staff of assistant coaches, many of whom are rumored to be headed for Seattle to join Knox.

National forest may be renamed in Bear's honor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted Tuesday to rename the Talladega National Forest in Alabama in honor of Paul "Bear" Bryant, the University of Alabama football coach who died last week.

A bill renaming the forest as the "Bear Bryant National Forest" was introduced by Sen. Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala., and passed without objection. It now goes to the House.

In introducing the measure, Denton said he was proud to have known Bryant and recalled that an uncle of his had given Bryant his first job — one paying "seven dollars a week."

Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., rising to support the bill, praised Denton for his "foresighted wisdom" in offering the measure.

Heflin said Bryant, who died of a heart attack less than a month after his retirement, would be remembered as "the number one coach" in college football.

Heflin also praised Bryant as "a leader in race relations" by taking the lead in selecting black players for his teams.

He suggested that naming the forest in Bryant's honor was appropriate because the "tall and sturdy trees... all reach for the sky, upwards to heaven," adding that Bryant, as a coach, had produced "strong and sturdy men."

"He was truly a great American," Heflin concluded.

name put in the paper about this job or another," said Henning. "Although I was unable to talk to people about those positions at that time, I did study those that were open and felt the one in Atlanta was the best available job."

Henning said he felt that way "because of the ownership, the management and the players."

"Also, I'm East Coast oriented and I liked the location."

Falcons executive vice president Eddie LeBaron said he interviewed Henning for the first time Monday the day after the Redskins won the NFL championship. "We talked for about two hours," said LeBaron. "Dan has a reputation for being bright and able and a doer. That's the way he impressed me. He wanted time to think about it so I got him to fly to Atlanta (from Los Angeles) with me on Monday night. We worked out a contract on the plane."

"It was not really settled until we were over Denver, or maybe Oklahoma City," Henning said his offensive philosophy is "Score! If you go into a stall, you're going to lose a lot of football games. My philosophy is to try to score as often as possible." Henning said his first order of business will be to build a staff. When Bennett was fired, all of the Falcons assistant coaches were told that while the new head coach might want to talk to some of them, they might want to look elsewhere for employment.

"I'm not in a position to talk about the Falcons players," said Henning. "It's been more than two years (since the 1980 Atlanta-Miami game) since I've had any dealings with this club and it will take me a while to become familiar with its personnel."

Far Heels complete climb to No. 1

NEW YORK (UPI) — In one of the more dramatic comebacks in the history of the United Press International's Board of Coaches college basketball ratings, North Carolina claimed the No. 1 spot Tuesday only seven weeks after dropping out of the top 20.

The Tar Heels, who have won 14 consecutive games since losing three of their first six contests, took advantage of losses by UCLA and Villanova to advance two places in this year's ratings. The defending NCAA champions received 22 first-place votes and 538 points from the 42 coaches.

Virginia, like North Carolina a member of the Atlantic Coast Conference, took over the No. 2 spot after losing to UCLA, which was No. 1, a week ago.

Indiana, ranked second last week, fell to No. 6 after losing to Iowa and dropping to No. 7 following a loss to unranked Alabama.

North Carolina, ranked No. 2 in the pre-season, got off to a 3-3 start and dropped out of the Top 20 for two consecutive weeks beginning last Dec. 21. However, North Carolina rebounded the ratings at No. 16 on Jan. 4 and has steadily improved each week — to No. 11, a tie for No. 3 and sole possession of No. 3 — before earning the top spot this week.

North Carolina is the fifth team to hold the No. 1 ranking over the past seven weeks. Virginia, Indiana, Memphis State and UCLA also have been ranked No. 1 briefly this season.

Six coaches from each of seven geographical areas of the nation comprise the UPI Board. Each week they vote on the top 15 teams and points are awarded on a 15-14-13, etc., basis for votes from first through 15th.

The United Press International Board of Coaches Top 20 college basketball ratings (first-place votes in parentheses), records through Jan. 31 and vote total:

Grid inductees announced

CANTON, Ohio (UPI) — The Pro Football Hall of Fame said Tuesday former Washington Redskins Bobby Mitchell and Sonny Jurgensen, ex-Kansas City Chiefs linebacker Bobby Bell, former Cleveland Browns receiver Paul Warfield and former San Diego Chargers Coach Sid Gillman will be inducted this year.

In 18 professional seasons, Jurgensen, a graduate of Duke University, completed 2,433 passes for 32,224 yards and 235 touchdowns. Jurgensen's first seven seasons were with the Philadelphia Eagles and the rest with the Redskins.

Mitchell, an 11-year pro, ranks behind Jim Brown and O.J. Simpson for total yardage passing and running with 14,078 yards. Mitchell of Illinois was teamed with Brown in the Browns backfield in the early part of his career before being traded to the Redskins in 1962.

After graduating from Ohio State University, Warfield joined the Browns in 1964 and became one of the most respected receivers in football. His career average of 20.1 yards per catch is the best in NFL history, and has 427 career catches for 8,555 yards and 67 TDs.

Mancini denies report he'd pray at grave

SAINT VINCENT, Italy (UPI) — A spokesman for American WBA lightweight boxing champion Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini denied Tuesday that Mancini told reporters he planned to go to South Korea to pray at the tomb of Korean boxer Duk Koo Kim.

"Mancini has spoken to me, one by one," said Irving Rudd, spokesman for the Top Rank promotional organization which is staging Mancini's non-title fight with British champion George Feeney in this Alpine resort Sunday.

"The quotes attributed to Mancini in the Italian sports press were never made," he said. "These people are unbelievable. They take the whole cloth and write what they want to write. It's disgusting."

Mancini's bout with Feeney is his first appearance in the ring since Duk Koo Kim died after a match with Mancini in Las Vegas in November.

Rudd said Italian reporters descended on Mancini's Saint Vincent hotel shortly after the news arrived Sunday night that the Korean boxer's mother had committed suicide.

pentagon plans for Olympics

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Pentagon has budgeted $50 million to provide security at the 1984 Olympics if local or state authorities should be unable to handle the job, a senior Pentagon official said Monday.

Lawrence J. Korb, assistant secretary of defense for manpower and logistics, told the Los Angeles Times that the funds would provide electronic sensors, communications gear, an airlift capability and an unspecified number of troops.

can boxer's handlers issued the following statement Monday morning:

"Ray Mancini, his manager David Wolf, his trainer Murphy Griffin and the members of his camp express deepest sympathy and profound sorrow to the family of the late Mrs. Kim.

"We wish to inform the media that there will be no further statements from Ray Mancini or anyone else associated with him regarding this sad news; nor will any questions on the subject be entertained."

Rudd said this was the only comment on Mrs. Kim's death made by Mancini or anyone in his camp. "He offered to talk on any subject except the death of Kim and his mother," he said.

Italy's two leading sports papers, La Gazzetta dello Sport and Corriere dello Sport, quoted Mancini as saying he was so saddened by the suicide of Mrs. Kim's mother that he prayed at length and shut himself up in his room.

Both newspapers also quoted him as saying he planned to go to Korea to pray at the tomb of Kim and his mother.

Switzer named in lawsuit

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — University of Oklahoma football coach Barry Switzer and 12 other people were named in a lawsuit filed Tuesday by the Securities Exchange Commission.

The suit was filed in federal court by Wayne Secore, SFC Fort Worth regional administrator. It charges Switzer, Oklahoma City oilman George Platt and 11 others with illegally buying stock in a company while in possession of certain inside information.

The suit alleges the defendants violated the Securities Act of 1933 when they bought common stock of Phoenix Resources Co. in June 1981. The defendants allegedly had inside information that the company was contemplating liquidation when they bought stock.

The SFC is seeking permanent injunctions against each defendant and the return of $708,000 in profits from trading of Phoenix stock.

Platt was chairman of the board of Texas International until that company bought Phoenix. In 1981, Platt served as a member of Phoenix board of directors as well as being chairman of TI, which was majority shareholder in Phoenix at the time.

The suit alleged that at that time, Platt failed to properly report the stock purchase to the SFC. The suit also claimed Platt informed his son, Stephen, and Switzer about Phoenix's liquidation plans.

According to the suit, Switzer and Stephen Platt shared the information with the other defendants. The suit said the defendants then purchased Phoenix stock with the knowledge the information came from a confidential source.

Secore's filing also claims two of the defendants split their profits with Switzer and Smith.

NBA vote shocks Thompson

SEATTLE (UPI) — "I was as shocked as you guys," said Seattle SuperSonics guard David Thompson, picked by the fans to play in the Western Conference's backcourt for the Feb. 13 NBA All-Star Game in Los Angeles.

In an election upset that would make even a veteran politician gasp, Thompson, who has seen his playing time and scoring wither with the Sonics' disastrous mid-winter slump, was elected Monday to the Western Conference starting line.

Thompson has played only 19 minutes a game coming off the Sonics' devastating road-trip, in which they dropped five of six and two to the lowly Cleveland Cavaliers. And he hasn't started in two of the Sonics' last three games.

"I didn't think I had a chance of making it," Thompson said. "I definitely didn't think I'd be a starter. There are a lot of guys having better seasons than me. I'm happy it happened even though I guess this is more or less a popularity contest."

HAPPY CHINESE NEW YEAR!

IT'S 4681 IN THE ZODIAC CALENDAR — CELEBRATE

Welcome the Year of the Boar

The Year of the Boar begins February 13. As the final Chinese sign of the Zodiac, the Boar symbolizes all the rewards man has built up over 12 years. He represents goodness and prosperity but also carries the sadness and failures of the 12-year cycle that his own year ends.

Sincere, peaceable, loving, yet strong willed, those born under the sign of the Boar, according to La Choy Oriental lore experts, also are intelligent and truthful.

People born in Boar years have tremendous inner strength. They never retreat once a goal has been set, but rarely seek help from others. They thrive in the arts and do well in industry.

For the rest of us, this is a good year to establish new friendships. Money and academic matters will be favored.

STEAMED MEAT-FILLED DUMPLINGS

(about 30 dumplings)

- 1 lb. ground beef or pork
- 1 can (8 oz.) La Choy Water Chestnuts, drained, chopped fine
- 1/4 cup chicken broth
- 1/4 cup cornstarch
- 1/4 cup parsley, chopped fine
- 1 green onion, chopped fine
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 tablespoon minced fresh or prepared ginger
- 1 tablespoon La Choy Soy Sauce
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon dry sherry
- 2 packages (1 lb. each) egg roll wrappers (available in freezer section of supermarkets)

Combine all ingredients except egg roll wrappers in large mixing bowl; blend well. Using sharp knife or kitchen scissors, trim corners from egg roll wrappers to make them round. Place 2 tablespoons meat mixture in center of each circle and gather up sides of egg roll wrapper about filling, twisting to seal. Flatten top slightly.

Arrange dumplings in steamer and steam over boiling water 25 to 30 minutes. Remove dumplings and place on serving platter. Serve hot. (Dumplings can be cooked ahead of time, refrigerated or frozen, and reheated over steam at serving time).

CHINESE BREADS WITH SPICED BEEF FILLING

(24 individual buns)

- 2 loaves (1 lb. each) frozen bread dough, thawed and allowed to rise once (or prepare basic yeast dough bread recipe)
- 1 tablespoon cooking oil
- 1 lb. lean ground beef
- 1 can (8 oz.) La Choy Bamboo Shoots, rinsed, drained, and diced
- 3 tablespoons tomato paste
- 2 teaspoons mild curry powder
- 1 tablespoon La Choy Soy Sauce
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 green onions, chopped fine
- 1 egg white, beaten
- 1 teaspoon water
- 1/4 teaspoon sugar

Heat oil in skillet over medium high heat. Add beef and bamboo shoots, cook, stirring constantly, until meat is browned, about 5 minutes. Drain off excess fat. Add tomato paste, curry powder, soy sauce, salt, blending well. Stir in green onion. Chill mixture thoroughly, covered.

Meanwhile, cut out 24 four-inch squares waxed paper. Divide yeast dough into 24 balls; pat each out into a 4-inch round—somewhat thicker at the center than at the edges. Place 2 tablespoons filling in center of each circle. Gather dough up around filling and twist to seal. Place each filled bread on a square of waxed paper placed on baking sheet (allow at least two inches between each bread). Allow breads to rise uncovered 45 minutes to 1 hour.

Combine egg white, water, and sugar; brush over each bread. Bake in preheated 375-degree oven for 20 to 25 minutes, or until breads are golden. Serve hot.

Festive Foods, Customs Mark Far East Holiday

February 13 is New Year's Day. It's true we've already celebrated one New Year, but Sunday, February 13 is Chinese New Year. It's the first day of the Boar in China.

The new year was surrounded by customs intended to clear the slate for new beginnings. People were obliged to pay all their debts before the holiday. Those who couldn't went into hiding to avoid their creditors. Family feuds were forgotten and houses cleaned thoroughly. Accomplishing all this brought good fortune in the new year.

The new year meant fun as well as obligations. Chinese New Year was—and still is—a time to visit friends, exchange gifts wrapped in red paper to bring luck and enjoy delicious foods. Why not join the festivities and welcome the Year of the Boar with your own celebration, centering it around a Chinese feast.

The featured entree, created by La Choy Oriental food experts, includes an assortment of dumplings in egg roll wrappers and Chinese breads filled with a tasty mixture of meat, vegetables and seasonings. Both can be prepared ahead, refrigerated or frozen and reheated at serving time. A variety of egg rolls, available frozen, and heated according to package directions complement the filled dumplings and breads. Accompany with soy sauce, Chinese hot mustard and sweet & sour sauce for dipping. An Oriental-flavored soup made with chicken broth, spiced with soy sauce and topped with pea pods get the meal off to a delicious start.

Chinese Orange Beef garnished with Chow Mein Noodles and a side dish of Spinach and Bamboo Shoots is another entree idea. For added variety, serve a salad that's colorful and tempting with Bean Sprouts (drained and rinsed), spinach leaves, bacon bits, cucumber, tomatoes, and hard cooked eggs. Top with your favorite dressing.

Celebrate Chinese New Year on February 13 with a festive dinner. Meal features Chinese Orange Beef in a flavorful sauce and a side dish of Spinach and Bamboo Shoots.

CHINESE ORANGE BEEF

(4 - 6 Servings)

- 1-1/2 lbs. lean beef, sliced into thin strips (slice partially frozen), or 1-1/2 lbs. lean pork, sliced thin
- 1 tablespoon dry sherry
- 1 egg white
- 1-1/2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 2 tablespoons cooking oil
- 1 can (8 oz.) La Choy Bamboo Shoots, rinsed and drained
- 2 green onions, cut into 1/2-inch lengths
- 3 tablespoons grated fresh orange peel
- 1 tablespoon minced fresh or prepared ginger
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 3 tablespoons water
- 2 tablespoons dry sherry
- 1/4 cup chicken broth
- 3 tablespoons La Choy Soy Sauce
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon sesame oil (optional) oil for deep frying
- La Choy Chow Mein Noodles; orange slices for garnish

Place sliced meat in bowl. In another bowl, combine next three ingredients and whip until foamy. Add 1-1/2 tablespoons cornstarch and 2 tablespoons cooking oil, mixing well. Pour over meat and stir thoroughly.

Combine bamboo shoots, green onions, orange peel and ginger in small bowl; set aside. In another small bowl, combine 2 tablespoons cornstarch, 3 tablespoons water, 2 tablespoons sherry, chicken broth, La Choy Soy Sauce, sugar, and sesame oil; set aside.

Over medium heat, heat oil for deep frying in wok or large skillet, add meat. Cook 3 minutes or until meat is lightly browned. Remove from pan with slotted spoon; drain on paper towels. Pour off all but 2 tablespoons oil from pan. When pan is again hot, add vegetable mixture; cook, stirring constantly, about 30 seconds. Return meat to pan; cook, stirring about 1 minute more. Add chicken broth mixture, cook and stir until thickened and meat is coated with sauce, about 15 seconds. Place meat and vegetables on serving platter; serve immediately.

Garnish with La Choy Chow Mein Noodles and Orange Slices. (Note: Chinese Orange Beef may be refrigerated; reheat at serving time.)

SPINACH AND BAMBOO SHOOTS

(4 Servings)

- 1 lb. fresh spinach
- 1/2 cup cooking oil
- 1 can (8 oz.) La Choy Bamboo Shoots, rinsed and drained
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons sugar

Wash spinach thoroughly in cold running water; drain well. Place oil in wok or skillet set over medium high heat. When oil is hot, add bamboo shoots; cook, stirring, 30 seconds. Add spinach; cook and stir one minute more. Add salt and sugar; continue to cook and stir 2 minutes more. Using slotted spoon, place spinach and bamboo shoots on serving dish; serve immediately.

An array of Chinese dumplings and meat-filled breads which can be prepared in advance, and egg rolls, available frozen, combine for a sumptuous way to welcome the Year of the Boar. La Choy home economists suggest a variety of prepared sauces for dipping and an Oriental-inspired soup topped with pea pods, also available frozen, to complement the feast.

Let store manager know if refund forms not available

By MARTIN SLOANE
United Features Syndicate

Dear Martin: Why is it that some supermarkets seem to have a lot of refund forms while others have none? Is it in the way that the pads of forms are given out to the stores? — Cindy T., Gulliver, Mich.

Dear Cindy: The manufacturers try to be impartial in distributing pads of refund forms to the stores that carry their products. Sometimes these pads come packed in the cases along with the products. Or, they may be part of a sales display that is shipped to the store.

Most often, it is the responsibility of the salesman to drop the pads of forms off at the store. Where possible, they will put them up on the shelves underneath their product. But many stores don't permit this, nor will they allow salesmen to put forms up on the store's bulletin board. So, the salesman tries to leave the forms with the store manager or another employee in the hope that with a little luck they may find their way into the hands of shoppers who can use them.

Whether or not you find refund forms at the store really depends on the store manager and the policy of the store. When I recently visited a Kroger supermarket in Detroit, I found a refund bulletin board at the entrance to the store and the manager stood — patiently, concerned, with keeping it filled with forms for his customers.

But if the manager isn't interested, the pads of refund forms often wind up in the trash or hidden away in some back room.

Dear Martin: Most refund forms have a limit which includes the words "one refund per name or address." I live in a small mobile home park and we use the same address for all of the homes. At last count there were three of us actively refunding. What can we do to prevent our refund requests from being rejected as duplicates? — Linda B., Hopewell, Va.

Dear Linda: Most mobile home parks assign each home a lot number. If you put this number immediately after the street address, the computers will not confuse your request with those of the other refunders in your park. This same advice applies to refunders who live in apartments. They should always use their apartment numbers when sending for their refunds.

Chinese New Year Feb. 13

SAN FRANCISCO — The Chinese New Year, an elaborate affirmation of the future and of the family, will be celebrated worldwide Feb. 13.

The Chinese will welcome the year 1981 as recorded by the Chinese calendar — the year of the boar. And food, ranging from simple to the ornate, plays a major role in the New Year celebration.

During the Chinese New Year, everything including the food is symbolic. The customs in China vary region by region with each family having its own variations that it observes during the New Year.

In contrast to the usual New Year festivities in the United States — a single evening of merriment followed the next day by football on television — the Chinese New Year celebration lasts for two weeks.

Preparations begin far in advance of New Year's eve. Special foods must be bought and cooked. Presents for family members and friends are wrapped. The house is cleaned to its sparkling best and decorated with colorful displays of red and gold flowers — the two lucky colors among the Chinese — along with lucky fruits of oranges and tangerines.

The family exchanges traditional greetings and gives food offerings to various deities and honorable ancestors. Children look for their lucky gifts. Money wrapped in red envelopes, "let-see," is a traditional good luck present. There is no loasting, embracing and singing that Americans associate with the arrival of the New Year.

The New Year festivities always feature a family feast with dishes such as whole chicken and whole fish to symbolize wholeness in life and togetherness of the family. Suckling roast pig may also be served. This multi-course meal also can include steaming shark fin or bird's nest soup, a special vegetable dish called "Jai," rice cakes, fried dumplings stuffed with meats and seafood, sweet crescents filled with coconut, sesame seeds and chopped peanuts. Many other sweet and savory treats are prepared weeks ahead.

On the following days of celebration, visits to family and friends commence. Gifts of oranges and lucky red envelopes are brought to their homes. Hot tea is accompanied by an array of candied ginger, coconut strips, wintermelon, kumquats and lotus nuts. Again, traditional dishes are served, including the crispy-fried spring roll, so-called because it was served during the Chinese New Year near the start of spring.

The egg roll is a descendant of the spring roll. Nobody is quite sure when people started dipping spring rolls in an egg batter and deep-frying them. In America, egg rolls are one of the most popular Oriental delicacies.

Even if you aren't Chinese, a themed dinner party can easily be staged this Feb. 13.

A Chinese New Year party could include these elements.

- A steamed, poached or baked whole fish garnished with fresh ginger, green onion and a Chinese parsley. Lightly drizzle the fish with soy sauce and hot sesame or vegetable oil to enhance flavor and give it a smooth texture. Whole steamed or roast chicken with garlic, ginger and green onion is also appropriate. Use soy sauce and hot Chinese mustard as a dip for the chicken.

- A colorful stir-fry vegetable dish of snow peas, sweet red pepper, mushrooms, bean sprouts, water chestnuts and bamboo shoots is an ideal accompaniment.

- Egg rolls, candied ginger and coconut as appetizers.

- Mandarin oranges, fortune cookies and a hot pot of jasmine tea top off the New Year celebration.

It may also be fun to research the Chinese zodiac. Years are named after one of 12 animals that Buddha is said to have summoned before him. The coming year, for example, is the year of the boar. People are assumed to have certain traits associated with the animal for which their birth year is named. Boar people are said to be chivalrous and gallant. They don't compromise or talk much.

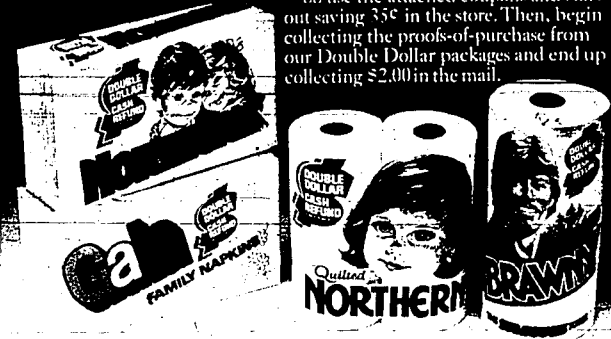

Above all, the Chinese New Year serves to bring the family together in time-honored ceremonies. Gee said, it is a time for rebirth and a fresh start.

Ring in the Chinese New Year with mini egg rolls filled with chopped cooked pork

Chinese egg rolls make hit

CHICAGO — Looking for a way to beat the winter doldrums? Why not have a New Year's celebration all over again!

But this time instead of ringing in 1983, welcome 481, the "Year of the Boar." This four-day Chinese observance, which this year begins on Feb. 13, is the perfect time to gather family and friends for good fun and good food. Sure to be the hit of the party are Chinese Egg Rolls. These homemade appetizer-size delicacies are so tasty you'll be apt to serve them at all your parties.

Since cooked pork is the star ingredient in the rolls, you'll want to coordinate their preparation with a roast pork dinner. Now is an excellent time to buy pork roasts for this fine meat is being sold at most attractive prices because of plentiful supplies. Buy a large enough roast to insure leftover meat for the egg rolls which also include a collection of other Chinese favorites — celery cabbage, bean sprouts and water chestnuts.

To facilitate a busy entertaining schedule, you may wish to prepare and fry the egg rolls in advance, then cover and refrigerate. To serve, simply heat, uncovered in a moderate oven, 375° F., for 15 minutes. Or if you prefer, prepare the egg rolls in advance, to the point of frying, cover and refrigerate. Then quickly fry just before serving.

- CHINESE EGG ROLLS
- 1/4 pound cooked pork, finely chopped
 - 1/4 cup soy sauce
 - 2 tablespoons dry sherry
 - 1 clove garlic, minced
 - 1 tablespoon cornstarch
 - 1 tablespoon brown sugar
 - 1 teaspoon ground ginger
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 2 tablespoons cooking oil
 - 4 green onions, finely chopped

- 1 1/2 cups shredded celery cabbage
 - 1/2 pound fresh or a 16 oz. can bean sprouts
 - 1 package, 16 oz. size, egg rolls wrappers (skins)
- Combine soy sauce, sherry, garlic, cornstarch, brown sugar, celery and salt. Stir-fry onions and celery cabbage in large frying pan or wok 2 to 3 minutes. Add pork, bean sprouts, water chestnuts and soy sauce mixture; cook 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Chill mixture.
- To assemble egg rolls, cut wrappers in half, cover with damp towel to prevent drying out. Place 1 tablespoon chilled filling in center of each wrapper; fold wrapper to enclose filling, fold in sides, completely rolling; moisten ends with water press to seal. Fry egg rolls in hot deep fat, 365° F., 3 minutes or until golden brown. (Makes approximately 36 to 40 appetizer egg rolls.)

Special recipes offered

Special to The Times-News

Most restaurants have at least one special recipe to make them popular. That's not so at The Cookery, on Main Avenue West in Twin Falls. Diane Snodgrass, owner and chief cook-and-bottle-washer of the establishment, works hard to make everything a specialty. In fact, there's probably nothing in her gourmet eatery that isn't an appetizing experience.

With citrus being such a good buy right now, we asked Diane to share a few of her delicious citrus-flavored sweets. Here are several, along with one of our own.

LUSCIOUS LEMON CAKE

- 2 1/2 cups of pastry flour
- 1 1/4 cups of sugar
- 1/2 cup of melted margarine
- 1/2 cup of real mayonnaise
- 3/4 cup of milk
- 3 eggs
- 2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 teaspoon lemon extract
- juice one fresh lemon

1/4 of the peel from one lemon, grated
 Preheat the oven to 375 degrees. In a mixing bowl, using an electric beater, mix all of the ingredients together. Pour the batter into a well-greased Kuglehep 10-inch mold. Bake for 25 minutes. Cool. Drizzle confectioner's sugar and lemon rind frosting over the cake.

CITRUS FILLING

- (For tortes, cakes, tarts or cookies.)
- 1 tablespoon grated orange peel
- 1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
- 2 tablespoons orange juice
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1/4 cup water

Recipes with mayonnaise requested

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Cake baking is an Old World art but American ingenuity has developed some unique recipes.

Salad dressing cake, for one. Some people make it with mayonnaise.

Sauerkraut cake is another. It is another eddy that tastes a lot better than it sounds. In fact, most people think the kraut crunch comes from coconut. The recipe was developed in the 1960s by a school foodservice nutritionist to use kraut in the school lunch program.

Tomato-soup cake, developed by The Campbell Soup Co., was first published in one of the company's recipe booklets in 1925. Versions of it have been showing up in other people's cookbooks ever since.

We were reminded of all these by a five-foot-tall salad dressing chocolate cake baked to mark the 50th anniversary of the "Introduction of Miracle Whip brand dressing. It is Kraft's commercial version of a boiled dressing that looks like mayonnaise but has a lower fat content.

We found a similar recipe in our cookbook collection. Mrs. Elmer Hagan's Salad Dressing Cocoa Cake uses cake flour instead of the all-purpose kind, and her measurements differ from the Kraft version. It's in a book compiled by The Christian Church Priscilla Ald, in Overton, Neb. in 1954.

Was this the first such recipe? So we asked a manufacturer. The Best Foods division of Corn Products International responded with a photocopy of a company house organ dated December 1937. There, with a picture of a mother and small daughter, was a recipe that may well have been the "mother" cake.

The story said it had been developed by the wife of Best Foods salesman Paul Price, of Eugene, Ore., who was using it to help her husband sell the product by getting all her friends to try the cake.

Best Foods is conducting a recipe contest, seeking original baking recipes for cakes, pies, cookies or bread in which mayonnaise is an ingredient.

The grand prize is an all new G.E. Kitchen of large and small appliances, plus $10,000 cash.

Each entry must be printed or typed on pieces of paper no larger than 8 1/2 by 11 inches, along with the contestant's name, address and zip code. Each recipe must use at least 1/4 cup of Hellman's or Best Foods mayonnaise and include one proof of purchase from a 32-ounce jar of either brand.

Multiple entries are allowed, but each must be different and mailed separately.

All entries must be received by April 30, 1983. The recipes will be judged for originality and creativity, visual and taste appeal, ease of preparation and effective use of familiar, seasonally available ingredients. The mailing address: Best Foods, a Unit of CPC North America, P.O. Box 800, Englewood Cliffs, N.J. 07632.

A thought for today

A thought for the day: Daniel Webster said, "When illages begins, other arts follow. The farmers therefore are the founders of human civilization."

Combine all ingredients in a small saucepan. Bring the mixture to a boil. Cook over medium heat, stirring until the sugar is dissolved. Reduce heat and cook two minutes longer. Cool and then it's ready to be used.

ORANGE TEA COOKIES

- 1 cup of real mayonnaise
- 1 cup of sugar
- 2 tablespoons of vanilla extract
- 2 1/4 cups of pastry flour
- 1 teaspoon of baking soda
- 1/4 teaspoon of salt

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. In mixing bowl, with a wooden spoon, combine the mayonnaise, sugar, orange juice and vanilla extract. Then, blend in the flour, soda and salt. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto a greased baking sheet, and flatten with a fork. Bake for 15 minutes. Cool and sprinkle with granulated sugar.

ORANGE BISCUITS

- 2 cups sifted, all-purpose flour
- 2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- grated rind from one small orange
- 1/2 cup shortening
- 3/4 cup milk

16 small sugar cubes
 juice from the orange
 Preheat the oven to 425 degrees. Into a mixing bowl, sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Stir into the flour the grated orange rind. With a pastry cutter or two knives, cut the shortening into the flour mixture. Gradually stir in the milk.

When the dough forms a ball, remove it from the mixing bowl onto a floured counter. Knead the dough lightly until it is smooth. Roll the dough to a half-inch thickness. Cut into biscuits with the floured-cutter and place them on a baking sheet. Dip the sugar cubes into the orange juice, and poke one soaked sugar cube into the center of each biscuit. Bake for about 14 minutes, or until the biscuits are golden brown. (Makes 16 biscuits.)

THIS WEEK'S BEST MARKET BUYS: Citrus makes good buys. Tomatoes are coming in with good color and flavor. The truck strike shouldn't bother the market's supplies, except possibly for oddball items that usually are handled in small amounts.

Inspired by Peking chefs, this stir-fry chicken dish is easily made in American kitchens

Chinese areas have individual cuisine

ENGLEWOOD CLIFFS, N.J. — China can be divided into four parts — north, south, inland and coast. Each region has its own traditional foods and preparation and in each the art of cooking has been preoccupation for thousands of years, with recipes handed down from generation to generation.

The first regional Chinese cuisine to become popular in America came from the south, near Canton, noted for its colorful stir-fry dishes and subtle flavors. It arrived here with the Chinese immigration of the mid-nineteenth century.

Through centuries of royal Chinese court life in Peking, the north is considered to have the most formal cuisine.

The finest fish dishes in China come, of course, from coastal regions near Fukien and Shanghai, Inland, in Szechuan and Yunnan provinces, where people sometimes had to live for long periods without fresh foods, heavily spiced, fiery dishes are traditional.

Throughout China there is reverence shown for food, expressed through elaborate presentation and honored names. In Canton, a dish we would call Chicken and Ham with Broccoli might be grandly presented as "Chicken, and Ham in Green Paradise," or "Phoenix Meeting Dragon." And its delicate blending of flavors and gentle stir-fry preparation would make it worthy of such a name.

IMPERIAL CHICKEN

- 1 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1/2 cup cold chicken bouillon or broth
- 1/4 cup light or dark corn syrup
- 1/4 cup soy sauce
- 2 tablespoons dry sherry
- 1/4-1/2 teaspoon ground red pepper
- 4 tablespoons corn oil, divided
- 1 cup walnut halves
- 1 pound boneless skinless chicken breasts, cut in 1-inch cubes
- 2 medium onions, cut in wedges (1 cup)
- 1 small green or sweet red pepper, cut in strips (1 cup)

In small bowl stir together cornstarch, bouillon, corn syrup, soy sauce, sherry and ground red pepper. In large skillet or wok heat 3 tablespoons of the corn oil over medium-high heat. Add walnuts; stir fry 2 minutes. Remove. Add chicken; stir fry 2 minutes or until chicken turns white. Remove. Heat remaining 1-tablespoon corn oil. Add onion and pepper strips; stir fry 1 minute. Return chicken to skillet. Restir cornstarch mixture; add to chicken mixture. Stirring constantly, bring to over medium heat and boil 1 minute. Stir in walnuts. (Makes 4 servings.)

Husbands become shoppers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The USDA's consumer advisor says married men are getting more involved in food shopping as their wives join the work force.

More than half of America's married women with children now hold outside jobs, says Isabel Wolf, and a recent survey by the Food Marketing Institute shows about one-third of supermarket shoppers are men.

She has some tips for them:

- Buy only amounts of food that can be used before spoiling.
- As you shop, keep in mind the preparation time needed and whether your schedule permits that time.
- Think how leftovers might be used.
- Mrs. Wolf says men who aren't used to buying for child and adult appetites tend to overbuy. Buying the right amounts for different age family members is especially important in the meat department, where the largest portion of the food budget is spent.

Dear Abby Patients tired of long waits

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Why do doctors schedule six patients for the same time, keeping a roomful of patients waiting?

"I had a doctor's appointment for 3 a.m. I arrived at 8:45 and was told that the doctor would be tied up "for a little while" and was asked if I would like to go to get a cup of coffee.

I went for coffee, returned at 9:15 and found four more people in the waiting room. They all had 9 o'clock appointments! They were also told to get a cup of coffee, and as they walked out the door, another 9 o'clock appointment, rushed in — apologizing because she was late!

Abby, I sat there until 11:20, then I heard one nurse say to the other, "He has four more procedures to do, then we can start calling them in." (He has four examination rooms.)

I flipped out and said, "Who is going to pay for my extra parking? I think I'll send this problem to Dear Abby." I was taken within three minutes. (They must have told the doctor I was starting a riot in this waiting room.)

If I go to a doctor who has a first-come, first-serve policy, I will wait patiently without complaining, but I resent having to wait for 2 1/2 hours when I have an appointment. Switching doctors doesn't help.

Does this happen everywhere? Or only in Pittsburgh?

— TIREDFOR WAITING

DEAR TIREDFOR: It happens almost everywhere. Doctors, what's the Rx for this epidemic?

DEAR ABBY: Please don't throw this away thinking it's only a gag, because I'm serious. I'm a middle-aged man who started dating a woman (my age) a few months ago. I like everything about her; but I can't bring myself to kiss her (beyond a peck) on the cheek or a quick one on the lips) because she smells of garlic.

"I've offered her breath mints, chewing gum and even kiddingly remarked, "Well, I can tell you've had something with garlic for lunch." She said she usually has a corned beef sandwich or a Caesar's salad because she likes garlic. Once she suggested that I eat garlic, too, so I wouldn't notice it on her. I told her I didn't care for it.

Now what do I do? I really could care for this woman, and I know she likes me. It's not just the garlic on her breath, the smell of garlic seems to come out of her pores. Any suggestions?

— TURNED OFF

DEAR TURNED OFF: Yes. Tell her that if she wants to see more of you she will have to "do something" about the garlic. And if she doesn't come up with a solution, she is giving you a message: "I've made my choice, and you're not it."

DEAR ABBY: You once had a little poem in your column about giving flowers to people while they can still smell them. Can you find it and print it again? So many people need to be reminded. Thank you.

— NEGLECTED IN PALM COAST, FLA.

DEAR NEGLECTED: Is this it? "I would rather have a little rose from the garden of a friend... Than flowers strewn around my casket when my days on earth must end... I would rather have a living smile from one I know is true... Than tears shed 'round my casket when this world I bid adieu... Bring me all the flowers today, whether pink or white or red... I would rather have one blossom now than a truckload when I am dead." (Author Unknown)
