Budget office offers sunny forecast

By ROBERT MACKAY
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The usually cautious Congressional Budget Office said Thursday "the recession is ending" and predicted the deficit will be $14 billion lower this year than President Reagan forecasts.

The office, which has been issuing more pessimistic forecasts than every administration since its creation in 1975, said in its annual economic report the economy will grow 4 percent in 1983 and 4.7 percent in 1984, and the budget deficit will be $19 billion this year.

In contrast, Reagan's 1984 budget estimates the economy will grow only 3.1 percent this year and 4 percent in 1984 and the budget deficit will be about $206 billion in 1983.

"We think the recession is ending and the economy will grow at a moderate rate this year," Alice Rivlin, director of the office, said at a news briefing.

"This is the first year in some time the CBO and the president's budget forecasts are close to the same," she said. "In general, we've been slightly less optimistic than the administration. This time we're slightly on the optimistic side of them, which is unusual."

The similarity of the two estimates should speed the budget process in Congress this year, she said, because legislators will not have to "fight about the forecasts."

Mrs. Rivlin said her office believes the economic recovery will be a "little bit stronger" and inflation will be slightly lower than the administration estimates.

But, she said, the modest growth rates are not sufficient to quickly bring the unemployment rate down.

"We expect unemployment to remain above 10 percent this year and dip below 10 percent to 9.8 percent next year," she said.

The report estimates unemployment, which reached 10.8 percent in December, will be 10.6 percent this year and then slowly decline to 7.3 percent by 1988. The Reagan budget predicts unemployment of 10.9 percent this year, 10 percent in 1984 and 6.6 percent by 1988.

The report also projects deficits of $197 billion in 1984, $214 billion in 1985, $231 billion in 1986, $250 billion in 1987 and $267 billion in 1988 if Congress enacts no new spending cuts or tax hikes.

The Reagan budget estimates the deficit would be $231 billion in 1984 and then increase to $300 billion in 1988 if no action is taken.

Even with a higher economic growth than the office predicts, the deficit in 1988 still would be around $183 billion.

"That's very worrisome," Ms. Rivlin said. "It's very likely to raise interest rates and crowd out investment. Getting the out-year deficits down are necessary to sustaining the recovery."

The report said, "It is now generally agreed that a balanced Federal budget is not an attainable goal for the near future."

The office predicts the three-month Treasury bill interest rate will be 6.8 percent this year, compared to the administration's 8 percent, and then fall gradually to 5.9 percent by 1988.

The gross national product would fall from 4.7 percent in 1984 to an average of 3.5 percent through 1988, the CBO report said. The administration estimates an average growth of 4.7 percent during that period.

Military to rule out missile test in Idaho

By KELLY EVERITT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — For technical and safety reasons, the Army has decided that it probably will not test launch any Pershing II intermediate-range nuclear missiles from Idaho this year.

The final phases of the 4683-firing program of the controversial artillery missile had been scheduled to take place in Idaho this spring.

As originally planned, the two-stage, 36-foot-long missile, which is designed to carry one nuclear warhead in time of war, would have been fired from a site at the Air Force's Saylorville Gunnery Range, southwest of Mountain Home, Air Force Base, to an impact point on the White Sands Missile Range in northern New Mexico, about 800 miles away.

"We may not shoot from Idaho during this test cycle," Major Jerry Henley, a public-affairs spokesman for the Department of the Defense in Washington, D.C., said in a telephone interview Thursday.

According to Henley, computer modeling of the data received in previous tests indicated that the second-stage motor of the missile "could have landed (slightly) outside the boundary area" of the test launch flight path and impact points.

Noting that "this was a range-safety problem at White Sands only," Henley said the problem of controlling the return of the second-stage motor to earth "has nothing to do with our wartime requirements, but we see no reason to pose any sort of hazard to civilian population areas in peacetime."

The Army had created some confusion earlier this month concerning what civilian population centers would be potentially affected by the test firing. One press release indicated it would fly over Gooding, and, according to Karen McCall of the Snake River Groundwater Alliance, a spokesman at White Sands had told her it would fly over Salt Lake City.

In fact, the flight path from the Idaho launch site, which would take the missile nearly 200 kilometers into space, was specifically designed to pass over the sparsely populated area of central Nevada.

But Henley said that after evaluation of previous launch data and performances, the Army has decided "that the best test schedule, prior to deployment of the missile this September (in Europe), is 10 straight shots from the Cape (the Cape Canaveral Atlantic Missile Testing Range)."

Errors in House budget bill delay debate on GOP plan

By MARK SHNEFFELT
United Press International

BOISE — A $69.2 million budget-balancing package was introduced in the House Thursday, but the Printing Committee voted to scuttle the 12-page bill after flaws were spotted.

The snag set back by at least one day the Republican leadership's plan to swiftly route an omnibus bill through the House and get it passed by the Senate so crucial enacting deadlines can be met to trigger the collection of sufficient revenue before June 30, the end of fiscal year 1983.

House Speaker T.W. Stivers, R-Twin Falls, presented the bill to the House State Affairs Committee Thursday morning and saw it win introduction on a 14-7 vote that pitted the GOP majority against solid Democratic opposition.

But after that vote, a series of typographical errors and drafting mistakes were found in the measure. Those developments, coupled with a complaint lodged by Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, caused the bill to be shot down in the Printing Committee during an afternoon session.

The measure was invalidated on a motion by Rep. James Stoltzoff, D-Sandpoint, who said a new bill incorporating the changes had to be drafted.

Because of a protest by Ms. McDermott, lawmakers decided that the state's Community Developmental Disability program be exempted from a 1.5 percent across-the-board funding cut.

That action, according to a legislative fiscal analyst, would reduce the budget-cutting package by some $65,000 — meaning the package would fall slightly short of covering the entire $69.2 million impending deficit.

A bill including the changes cited by the Printing Committee was expected to be taken before the State Affairs Committee Friday morning. That delays by at least one day Stivers' drive to obtain legislative approval of the package so tax increases, budget cuts and other steps can take force March 1.

The plan includes a one-cent state sales-tax increase to be rescinded in fiscal year 1984, once the boost generates enough revenue to cover a proposed $1 million state issuance of tax-anticipation notes.

Raising the sales tax would generate

Highway bushwackers pressed their attacks on non-striking truck drivers Thursday, shooting, stoning and burning rigs across the country.

By Thursday night, a UPI survey showed at least 314 shootings had been reported across the nation. 41 people had suffered injuries in strike-related violence and more than 600 violent incidents were reported. A trucker who died as a result of his wounds was buried Thursday.

To help the truckers, Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, said he and Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., would introduce legislation to reduce the tax increases passed by Congress in December.

"It is absurd to expect an industry as hard hit by the recession as the trucking industry to absorb a tax increase of over 700 percent," McClure said.

A spokesman for the Los Angeles-based Independent Truckers' Association "blamed" steel haulers "for the violence in Ohio."

"Steel haulers seem to be prone to violence," said JTA spokesman David Kolman. "It seems to be a bad area, exactly why I don't know," he said.

Officials at the federal Department of Transportation said truck deliveries were most seriously affected from New York to Chicago.

"The New York to Chicago area is impacted and truck traffic through the entire area is down," said spokesman Tom Blank. He said truckers who feared violence in Pennsylvania were taking other routes.

Blank said there was no mood in Congress to roll back on a 5 cents a gallon fuel tax hike and other road use tax increases passed in December. "I think there's a mood on Capitol Hill whereby the shutdown is counterproductive," he said.

"Congress is not going to do anything."

A shortage of fresh fruit and vegetables was threatened. Dealers fought back by ordering goods by plane and rail but said the immediate outlook was for higher prices — first on Valentine flowers and potatoes.

Violence hit Alabama, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, New Jersey, New York, Nevada, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Kolman Thursday estimated the strike was keeping 60,000 to 70,000 trucks off the road.

Blizzards and blowing snow also slowed non-striking drivers from Texas to Minnesota, forcing many off the highways.

The 100,000 independent drivers, who own their tractors and haul trailers for a fee, are outnumbered about 2 to 1 by Teamsters Union truckers who work for wages and have little sympathy for the strike, especially since Teamsters were bearing the brunt of the violence.

One Teamster, George I. Capps, who was fatally shot while in his rig Monday night, was buried in Clayton, N.C., Thursday.

"He loved to drive a truck," said the Rev. Kenneth Thompson, pastor of the Church of God of Prophecy at Clayton. "He loved to shift those gears, he loved to hear those wheels hum."

American shot in Salvador

By JOHN F. NEWHAGEN
United Press International

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Leftist guerrillas firing on a government helicopter wounded an American Green Beret sergeant, U.S. officials said Thursday.

A Salvadoran machine gunner also was wounded but the nature of his wounds was not disclosed.

Sgt. Jay T. Stanley, a U.S. Green Beret, was shot Wednesday while flying in a Salvadoran-piloted helicopter over the nation's most important bridge, U.S. Embassy Spokesman Donald Hamilton said.

Guerrillas opened fire on the helicopter as it swooped down over the Cuscatlan Bridge on the Pan American Highway 45 miles east of San Salvador, the only road link open between the capital and eastern El Salvador, Hamilton said.

Stanley was in "good condition" at the Military Hospital in San Salvador with a gunshot wound in his left leg, U.S. Army and Embassy spokesmen said. They said he was expected to be released in about two weeks.

Stanley refused to talk to reporters who visited his room in the officers ward, except to say he felt "pretty good."

"Frankly, I don't want to talk about it," said the ruddy-cheeked Stanley. It was the first time rebels wounded an American military adviser since U.S. "trainers" came to El Salvador two years ago to teach counterinsurgency tactics to Salvadoran troops.

Hamilton said Stanley was on a mission to check communications station that was having trouble and was shot after the problem was resolved and the helicopter was flying back to the capital.

"The Salvadoran pilot looked off to his left, up the highway on the Usulután (province) side and saw a roadblock or saw a large number of vehicles stopped," said an Army officer at the U.S. Embassy's military mission.

"He wasn't sure it was a roadblock, so he does one of these (making a swooping downward hand motion) to check it out and they were greeted with ground fire. He (Stanley) took a round through his leg.

"The pilot at this point decided this

St. Helens showing activity

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — Researchers entered the gaping crater of Mount St. Helens Thursday and examined the volcano's lava dome, where two explosions shot a plume of steam and ash aloft and sent a mudflow oozing down the snow-covered slopes.

The mountain emitted a stream of ash plume that reached an elevation of 23,000 feet during a pair of explosions late Wednesday and early Thursday, ending the volcano's longest quiet period since its deadly May 1980 eruption. A five layer of ash fell as far away as Shelton, 100 miles to the northwest.

U.S. Geological Survey officials said the latest outburst was similar to others that have occurred since the mountain roared to life in 1980 and did not indicate an imminent eruption.

USGS spokesman Steven Brantley said helicopters were not able to bring scientists to the crater floor until midday Thursday due to 50 mph winds whipping through the area.

Solar flare to affect radios

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Federal scientists said a major solar flare Thursday was expected to interfere with radio transmissions for the next few days.

James Gordon, solar forecaster with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, said the X-4 flare occurred at 2:30 a.m. EST Thursday. He said a magnetic storm resulting from the flare would begin about 7 a.m. EST Friday and continue through Saturday.

Gordon said the aurora borealis, or Northern Lights, might be visible in the extreme northern United States as a result of the flare. The flare was detected by instruments aboard an NOAA satellite orbiting 23,300 miles above the Earth.

Solar flares are classified according to the amount of X-radiation they emit. A major, M-class flare releases 10 to 100 times more X-radiation than a moderate, M-class flare and 100 times more than a common, C-class flare.

Jury pondering Hastings case

MIAMI (UPI) — A jury deliberating the fate of U.S. District Judge Alcee Hastings listened again Thursday to two FBI tape-recorded conversations that prosecutors claim entangle the judge in a bribery conspiracy.

One tape involved an Oct. 5, 1981, phone call Hastings made to Washington, D.C. lawyer William A. Borders Jr., his alleged co-conspirator.

The other was a Sept. 12, 1981 recording of a meeting between Borders and undercover FBI agent Paul Rico, posing as one of two racketeers convicted in Hastings' court. It was during this conversation, the prosecution claims, that arrangements for a $150,000 bribe were worked out.

One of 56 "witness" and five men began deliberations late Wednesday after 12 days of testimony from 66 witnesses. Nearly 100 pieces of evidence were put into the record in the trial before U.S. District Judge Edward Gignoux.

PCA official blasts politicians

BOISE (UPI) — A Production Credit Association official says politicians who are urging a moratorium on farm loan repayments are engaging in "demagogic and campaign rhetoric."

A.D. "Al" Fisher, president of the Western Idaho PCA, said this week a blanket moratorium on loan repayments would be irresponsible.

"A blanket moratorium called for by some politicians is not much more than demagoguery and campaign rhetoric and wouldn't work," Fisher said during a PCA members' meeting.

"What we need is cool thinking and flexibility as we review individual cases. To do otherwise would be to act irresponsibly," he said.

Two Idaho politicians — Gov. John Evans and Rep. George Hansen — recently called for at least a one-year moratorium on farm loan foreclosures, but not on repayment of loans.

Evans in a letter last week to U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block, said foreclosures unfairly penalize farmers for failures created by the federal government.

"Idaho's farmers are facing an unparalleled insolvency crisis resulting from a substantial deterioration of the financial condition of farm portfolios," Evans said.

Maggots at the starting line

PRITCHARD, Idaho (UPI) — The second annual World Champion Maggot Races are scheduled this weekend in this northern Idaho community.

The event is being held in connection with Shoshone County's annual Lumberjack Days celebration.

Maggot race organizer John Powers says racing maggots is "almost as fun as racing horses or anything else."

He says he and his fishing buddies began racing maggots 15 years ago after noticing they "became pretty lively after a day in a bait can."

British try to settle strike

LONDON (UPI) — Officials Thursday said they were prepared to offer extra productivity pay to break the deadlock in the 11-day-old strike by 23,000 water workers and "wired" test levels were reaching the danger point in some areas.

John Hill, chief negotiator for the employers, said they were willing to offer $8-$16 in extra productivity pay. The money would be in addition to the 7.3 percent pay hike offered before negotiations to end the strike broke down last week.

ate about $12 million before the end of the current fiscal year.

The plan also includes state agency cuts and diversions of certain state dedicated funds totaling $17.1 million. It also would raise $8.1 million in accelerated sales an income-tax payments from large corporations.

In the State Affairs Committee, Republicans showed praise for the efforts of Silvers and other leaders who drafted the omnibus proposal, although they said most of the budget-cutting and tax-boosting provisions were distasteful.

Democrats, led by Minority Leader Melvin Hammond, D-Rexburg, attacked the procedural route taken by Silvers.

Hammond said the proposal should have been presented in separate measures in the Revenue and Taxation, Appropriations and State Affairs committees, according to their relation to taxes, budgets and matters of general state interest.

"I hate to see us run a piece of legislation through that has been pork-barreled," Hammond said. "This is the last committee this should go through."

Hammond said the bill included "pork-barrel riders" similar to those attached to omnibus bills in the federal Congress.

Ms. McDermott objected to budget-cutting exemptions granted to agricultural research and home-extension programs, and corresponding cuts imposed on the Community Development Disability program.

"I'm just appalled by our priorities," she said. "We're cutting child-development programs so the state can give housewives advice on how to save."

Silvers stood firm on his decision to run the budget-balancing program as a package. "I have a great fear that we would have all kinds of problems" of provisions were considered separately, he said. "This package, really, in the final analysis, addresses itself to the 1983 budget shortfall period."

Missile

Final testing of the 18 missiles will be fired in the test phase of the Pershing II program will be made from McCGregor Air Force Base, on the Texas-New Mexico border, to an impact point on the White Sands range.

Some opposition to the testing program has surfaced in Idaho, but that apparently did not figure into the Army's decision not to fire from the Idaho launch site this year, because it was unaware that any opposition existed, according to Henley.

But according to McCall, the Snake River Groundwater Alliance, an Idaho environmentalist group, "as well as other peace and anti-nuclear groups in Idaho," are opposed to the launchings.

Although a press release issued by the Alliance earlier this week expressed "concern" over the safety of Idaho residents during the testing because of problems in its three previous test launches, McCall said the group's main concern "is the missile itself," and its impact on efforts to find peace.

"It's a first-strike weapon," she says. "It has incredible accuracy and range, which doesn't balance out what the Soviets have." By being deployed in Germany later this year, she says, "it poses the risk of Reagan's limited nuclear war concepts" and is a destabilizing element in arms-control talks.

"There's a lot of opposition throughout the world to the Pershing," McCall says, adding that her group will oppose any launchings from Idaho that may be made in subsequent test cycles.

Henley indicated Idaho may be used as a launch site for normal annual performance tests in 1984 or later years.

was not the place to be checking out roadblocks, turned around and headed back to (San) Salvador," the officer said.

The U.S.-supplied UH-1H "Huey" helicopter Stanley was aboard "look some hits," the officer said. The helicopter was armed with two M-60 machine guns mounted in the doors but it was not clear if they were fired at the rebels.

American officials stressed the Salvadoran pilot decided on his own to fly toward the guerrillas, who on Tuesday carried out a similar raid in the same vicinity and shutdown traffic for two hours.

Stanley, one of 37 U.S. advisers currently stationed in El Salvador, was wounded by a 7.62 mm bullet fired from either a West German-made G-3 or a Belgian FAL automatic rifle, Hamilton said.

Truckers

The reward leading to the conviction of Capps' killer has grown to $20,000.

Some truckers refused to drive at night. Others demanded -- and got -- "combat pay." They stuck close together and kept in touch with "Smoker Bears" on their CB's.

Others carried guns.

"I've got a shotgun in there and it's fully loaded," said Michael Bevel of Huntsville, Ala., at a truck stop in Columbus, Ohio.

"The strike is the only reason I'm carrying it and if worse comes to worse, believe me, I'll use it."

State troopers in North Carolina and Georgia were riding shotgun on convoys of 18-wheelers. In Oklahoma, members of the Fraternal Order of Police patrolled bridges and overpasses.

"We disagree with all the violence," he said. "We know that truckers have children and we have children. Truckers have a right to exercise their rights," said FOP President Charles Bishop.

Spot checks showed fresh produce deliveries suffering from the strike.

The number of trucks unloading at New York City's largest produce distribution center was down 17 percent Thursday, but officials said increased rail shipments were keeping supermarket shelves full.

Frank Bacalla, group director at FTD International in Southfield, Mich., said the strike could cause some shortages in the rose supply for Valentine's Day.

"It's an iffy thing," Bacalla said. "We don't know how extensive the strike is at this point."

Added Ohio wholesale florist Greg Ashton: "The trucker's strike will drive up prices because (some of the roses) will have to be shipped by air."

Weinberger, Riegle go head to head

By RICHARD C. GROSS
United Press International

WASHINGTON — A key Senate committee asked Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger Thursday for suggestions to reduce his budget by up to $10 billion, despite a plea from President Reagan that any new cuts would "damage national security."

"We're reaching a consensus here just from the questioning that there are going to be changes made in our budget," Sen. Bob Kasten, R-Wis., told Weinberger during a four-hour hearing of the Senate Budget Committee.

Weinberger, in his third congressional appearance in three days, came under a scathing attack from Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich., who accused him loudly of being "dangerous to our country" because of his "fanatical insistence" on more money for the Pentagon at a time of economic hardship.

"I think you're making our country weaker," Riegle told Weinberger as he said there are 750,000 unemployed in his home state, the nation's auto capital. "I think you're helping the Soviet Union."

Weinberger testifies to the budget committee

He later asked Weinberger why the Pentagon could not locate more bases in Michigan and why 75 percent of defense expenditures are concentrated in the South and West.

The soft-spoken Weinberger tried to shout down Riegle, accusing him of making "demagogic statements" without evidence to support them and of launching "extremely unfair personal attacks." He said further defense cuts would mean the loss of another 154,000 jobs in Michigan.

Committee Chairman Pate Domenici, R-N.M., sternly admonished Riegle and later apologized publicly to Weinberger on behalf of the committee.

As he has in earlier hearings, Weinberger steadfastly defended the $238.6 billion budget against attempts by Republicans and Democrats alike who want to pare the projected $189 billion federal deficit by finding ways to trim military spending.

"There is a bona fide disagreement among members about what we can afford," Domenici said.

Weinberger read a letter to the committee from Reagan urging members not to cut defense spending more than the $8 billion sliced from the original budget, because "any further cuts would do damage to our national security."

"The president is firmly opposed to further cuts and asks the committee's help," the Pentagon chief said.

Committee Republicans, Domenici among them, ignored Reagan's plea.

Court won't halt action on Gorsuch

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge, calling for "cooperation rather than confrontation," Thursday rejected a Reagan administration effort to derail a contempt-of-Congress prosecution of EPA Administrator Anne Gorsuch.

The ruling removed a legal roadblock thrown up by government lawyers to keep the citation from being presented to a grand jury. But officials at the office of the U.S. Attorney for the District of Columbia have indicated they will not pursue the charge while other efforts to resolve the dispute are under way.

The Justice Department, taking a cue from the judge, said it would try to work out a deal with lawmakers to avoid further legal wrangling. The move was received with some skepticism in Capitol Hill, where there were calls for the government to surrender the secret Environmental Protection Agency files that are at the heart of the dispute. "Compromise and cooperation, rather than confrontation, should be the aim of the parties," U.S. District Judge John Lewis Smith Jr. said in a seven-page explanation of his order dismissing the suit.

Smith ruled that the dispute between the legislative and executive branches over the material had not reached a point where the courts need to be involved.

Under orders from President Reagan, Mrs. Gorsuch, 40, claimed executive privilege in refusing to turn over the confidential documents involving companies suspected of illegally dumping hazardous wastes. The papers had been subpoenaed by a House subcommittee.

The House voted 259-105 to hold her in contempt of Congress. The Justice Department, just hours after the Dec. 16 vote, filed suit to keep the matter from going before a grand jury.

New jobless claims continue dropping

By DREW VON BERGEN
United Press International

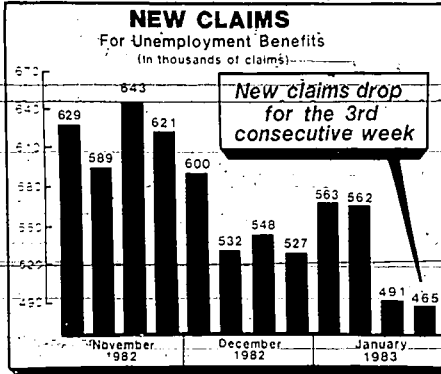

WASHINGTON — New claims for unemployment benefits declined for a third consecutive week, the Labor Department said Thursday, while congressional leaders struggled to develop jobs-creating legislation.

Congressional Democrats, looking at an administration forecast of an average 10.9 percent unemployment rate for 1983, said they will push for a $5 billion to $10 billion emergency jobs bill. "But Senate Republican leader Howard Baker told reporters GOP members and the administration are talking about their own proposal."

The White House said President Reagan is considering speeding up federal construction projects to ease unemployment, which deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said could be accomplished by advancing the projects in Reagan's proposed $248.5 billion 1984 budget.

House GOP leader Robert Michel appointed a special task force to make recommendations on a jobs bill in 30 days.

The Labor Department, which will announce January's unemployment rate Friday, reported 465,000 people applied for initial benefit checks during the week ended Jan. 22, a drop of 26,000 from the previous week's level and the lowest since the week of Sept. 12, 1981. The figures were adjusted for seasonal factors.

For the week ended Jan. 15, the department said a seasonally adjusted total of 3,942,000 persons received benefit checks, an increase of 12,000 from the previous week, which was the first time since last July it had fallen below the 4 million mark.

The total does not include 810,700 persons receiving special supplemental benefits under legislation passed last year by Congress:

343,200 on extended benefits beyond the initial 26-week period, nor 168,000 federal workers, railroad workers or newly discharged veterans.

Unemployment in December was 10.8 percent, the highest since the Great Depression, but Reagan's budget for fiscal year 1984 offers no proposals to create work.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics will release the January rate Friday. In addition to its traditional computation based on the 111.1 million-member civilian workforce, the bureau plans to initiate an alternative rate that will include 1.7 million members of the armed forces workers stationed in the United States.

Neither rate will take into account, however, the 1.6 million "discouraged workers" who have given up looking for a job, nor persons forced into accepting only part-time work because of the recession.

Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., in an appearance on NBC's "Today" program, said Reagan realizes Congress will provide some sort of a jobs program to help reduce unemployment.

"I think that's being recognized by the administration and certainly recognized on Capitol Hill," Kemp said, predicting the final budget will contain a jobs measure costing between $2 billion and $4 billion.

Reagan concerned with stalemate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan Thursday expressed "personal distress" about the stalemate in Lebanon to Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky, who has wide contacts with Arab leaders, a senior administration official said.

But Kreisky said Reagan is "quite optimistic" about an eventual withdrawal of Israeli, Syrian and Palestine Liberation Organization troops from Lebanon. The Austrian leader said he is less so. "I'm skeptical," Kreisky told a news conference. "Why are they there in the first place?"

Kreisky warned there is a danger the present momentum can be lost in the Middle East peace process and said the time left can be measured in months. Although "there is no deadline," he said, "we are in a hurry."

Austria will not contribute troops to an enlarged multinational peace-keeping force in Lebanon because it is militarily neutral under its constitution and can contribute troops only to groups under U.N. auspices, he said.

Kreisky said he carried no messages to Reagan and is taking none away but that he did give Reagan his impressions of the policies being followed by the PLO leadership.

Alabama schools skirt court prayer order

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Several Alabama schools permitted "silent meditation" Thursday despite a supreme court justice's ban on classroom prayer.

At four Mobile elementary schools contacted — Crichton, Brookley, Forest Hill and Mary Austin — officials said there were no vocal prayers Thursday morning, but meditation was permitted in some classes.

Eveleen Latham, principal of Davis Elementary — another Mobile school — said there were no devotional prayers Thursday. "That I'm aware of, I would like to see this resolved once and all so there isn't this constant upheaval."

Joe Tortore, principal of Green Acres Elementary in Birmingham, said the prayer issue was not paramount at his school. "We say the pledge of allegiance, take up lunch money, see who's got a bruised knee and get right to work," he said.

U.S. Supreme Court Justice Lewis Powell handed down an order Wednesday stopping Alabama teachers from leading prayers in classroom while a legal challenge to the practice is pending.

A lawsuit challenging Alabama's 1981 law allowing silent meditation in classrooms and 1982 law allowing teacher-led prayers was filed by agnostic Mobile attorney Ishmael Jaffree, who had three children in classes where prayers were said daily.

U.S. District Judge W. Brevard Hand dismissed Jaffree's suit last month, but Jaffree appealed to the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta, requesting that court to stay Hand's dismissal. When the appellate court refused the stay request, Jaffree successfully petitioned Powell.

New cross is 'pomato'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Kansas State University scientists have successfully crossed tomatoes with potatoes to produce "pomatoes." It was reported Thursday.

Plant physiologist James Shepard said the hybrid plant produces tubers underground and a small, yellow seedless fruit that smells like a tomato.

Shepard reported in Science magazine that the pomato was produced by fusing leaf-cell protoplasts — components of the cell without the cell wall — in order to transfer genes between plants that are sexually incompatible. He said scientists are probably 10 years away from being able to transfer genes themselves between commercially useful crop plants.

Shepard reported that four hybrid plants have been produced from protoplast fusions. The potato variety Russet Burbank was crossed with both Rutgers and Nova tomatoes.

The resulting plants grew like a potato vine with deep green leaves. White tubers ranged from three-quarters of an inch long to more than 4 inches.

REP. LES ASPIN barking at defense

WASHINGTON — Consider, for what it reveals about the Democrats' fitness to govern, their party's telecast "response" (a movie made before the President's message was written) to the State of the Union address. Consider especially what the Democrats saw fit to have Rep. Thomas Daschle of South Dakota say about the gravest issue, defense:

"The examples of waste are unbelievable. One, for instance, the Pentagon spent more than $3 million last year for shots and veterinary care for the pet dogs of generals."

Jeepers! That is $2,798.50 for every general's pet. When I called Daschle's office for substantiation, I was referred to remarks printed in the Congressional Record by Rep. Les Aspin (D-Wis.), who has made a career of hectoring the Defense Department. Daschle's statement turns out to have been an inaccurate gleam what Aspin said, and what Aspin said was wrong.

Aspin said, "The Pentagon is spending more than $3 million a year to subsidize veterinary care for dogs and cats owned by people in the services." Daschle said "generals" just to add a tinge of demagoguery to Aspin's cake of demagoguery. Eighty percent of personnel using veterinary services are of the rank sergeant or below.

Aspin connects the figure $3,228,531 as "the taxpayer bill for providing pet care" by erroneously estimating the amount of time military veterinarians spend dealing with privately owned animals; by missing the fact that such care is offered only on a "space available" basis, which means it is undertaken only when other duties are done; by not allowing for the fact that so little time is devoted to such care that eliminating it would not make possible reduction of the number of military veterinarians; by multiplying the number of veterinary services by the difference between what private-sector veterinarians charge and the lower fees charged by military vets.

Actually, the Pentagon makes money on pet care.

The principal duties of Army and Air Force vets (the Navy has none) are food inspection and care for animals (such as horses and guard dogs) used in military functions. Clearly, it is proper for military vets to provide services relating to disease prevention (registration, examination, immunization, quarantine, administering stray dog pounds, etc.), and emergency humanitarian service to prevent suffering among animals owned by persons living on military installations. Elective surgical procedures such as spaying and neutering are performed only when civilian services are not reasonably available.

Pet owners pay the full cost of supplies and drugs, plus an additional charge to help defray the general overhead of veterinary services. Yes, of course, there is a difference between fees charged by private sector vets and military vets. This difference that scandalizes Aspin and Daschle is explained by the fact (I'll say this slowly, fellows) that military vets are not allowing full play to the profit motive.

But the veterinary service for private pets is making a profit. In 1981 the Air Force made $647,000 on such services, and the money was used to support morale, welfare and recreational services. The American Veterinary Medical Association has concurred in this policy of prophylactic medicine.

Oh, yes — one more thing. Aspin's remarks filled about a page-and-a-half of the Congressional Record, costing taxpayers about $1,000.

This "generals' pets" canard, which figured in some Democrats' campaigns last autumn, suggests the depths of anti-defense bigotry in the Democratic Party, which selected the canard for prime-time television.

The virus of McGovernism is still in the party's system. And it was not just regarding defense that the Democrats' movie was well, relaxed about facts.

An AFI-CIO operative denounced as administration "proposals" ideas that were never proposed. Someone identified only as a "retired businessman" took a silly statement by a middle-level official concerning civil defense, distorted the statement, and falsely attributed it to "the head of Civil Defense."

"The message of the Democrats' movie was that the party will not let facts be a killing frost in its garden of fantasies."

George Will writes for the Washington Post.

So long, Republic; hello, competition

To skilled readers of the airline tea leaves, this week's announcement by Republic Airlines of its intent to pull out of Twin Falls and Boise comes as no surprise. The firm lost its federal subsidy to provide air service into Twin last fall, and without that, it claims it cannot now compete for business.

Apparently sensing the change, Sky West Airlines announced plans to serve the valley beginning in March. It joins Transwestern, already here and expanding its operation.

While we're sorry to see Republic go, we're not disappointed with the new competition for valley service.

Larger airlines are pulling out of smaller markets such as Twin Falls all across the country.

That change is a result of airline deregulation, which we think is ultimately a good thing. No one wants to see an old friend leave, but times change, and so do travel markets.

We welcome the new service and wish both Transwestern and Sky West well in their plans to serve the valley's air travelers.

Mormon articles continue to bring reader response

A Christian perspective

May I submit a few lines from a Christian perspective concerning the recent articles about the Mormon church. By Christian I mean I am a born-again, Bible-believing Christian.

I appreciate the pertinent comments submitted by Don and Ida Kemper and their desire for understanding.

It seems to me a starting point for understanding would have to be a determining of what books to accept as authority. To the Christian the Bible is literally God-breathed, and is the all-sufficient rule for faith and conduct. My LDS friends tell me of additional scripture and quote copiously from them. It does not take very much expertise in Exegesis and Hermeneutics to know the Mormon theology is violently opposed to Christian theology.

I am of the firm conviction that an understanding on theological matters cannot be attained until if and when we all come to accept God's word, the Holy Bible as the infallible word of God. However I am sure there are many areas of our lives where we can find understanding, a mutual respect for one another, whether at work or play.

I write this with a sincere desire to quell the fires of religious prejudice of our community. Only with a sincere spirit of love can this be attained.

Why we have Plymouth

Having recently moved to the Magic Valley from Kennewick, Wash., I found the Mormon series very interesting and informative. It takes an anti-nuclear article there to involve such response.

It occurs to me that the Mormon articles have been just the catalyst needed to stir the embers and motivate the lethargic and apathetic citizens of at least this small portion of the American population. It would take different subject matter to achieve the same effect in other areas of the nation. But perhaps suitable subjects should be found. Then when we are all sufficiently "fired up" we can address ourselves to the real problems that threaten to destroy our basic freedoms. After all, the lack of religious freedom was why Plymouth became a famous rock.

It's great to see the "Opinion" page of our newspaper full to overflowing. I wonder if the response in the Denver paper was so intense? Keep up the good work.

I enjoyed Bill Herber's satirical comments, Feb. 1, 1983. Thank God I'm a middle of the road WASP.

JOHN C. ERWIN

Quotes from its enemies

The articles you printed about the Mormon Church sound like they came from the "National Enquirer."

It is almost unbelievable that a supposedly responsible newspaper would pick out one religion and try to discredit it by slay insinuations, false accusations and quotes from its enemies.

I stopped reading these articles after Wednesday, Jan. 26, and put the rest in the garbage where they belonged, and spent the time reading the scriptures and Church publications.

In your editorial of Sunday, Jan. 30, you said you hoped the series would divide the people of Magic Valley.

It will certainly not divide me from my many dear non-LDS friends, but it certainly will divide me from The Times-News.

Faith articles enlightening

It was hopeful when the articles on Mormons was announced that it would be objective.

However, when I first read Mr. Farrell's one-sided opinion I was angered. As I read on it became so over-bearing biased that I became amused, knowing that any reasonable thinker could see through his demeaning adjectives.

Then I thought your readers might want to know just what we members really believe in to create such controversy. Let's turn to history for an answer.

In 1842 Mr. Easton was writing a history of New Hampshire and wanted concise accurate information on the new found church, The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. So he wrote to John Wentworth, the proprietor of the newspaper, The Chicago Democrat, who in turn wrote the founding Prophet of the LDS church, in Joseph Smith's reply, printed in its entirety, he included 13 points of faith.

The Articles of Faith, which are very profound and accurate and encompass nearly our entire faith in a nutshell.

And what kind of characteristics are found in the people who follow this doctrine? Well, if you look past our bad apples, you will find love. Most of all a great love for our Savior, Jesus Christ. We also love our families, our freedoms, our countries and our neighbors.

I thank you for letting me express this view that our community might have a better understanding of just what we Mormons believe.

THOMAS R. PETERS

In defense of Rev. Moore

I had not intended to add to the volume of mail concerning the Denver Post articles, but the letter this morning from Mr. Jack Godfrey made what I felt two false statements that I would like to see corrected.

First, he states that nowhere does the holy writ state that God is triune; only in their creed. He's wrong. The Bible clearly states the existence of the triune in Isaiah 48: 16 and Matthew 2:16-17. Jesus Himself clearly speaks of the "Father and the Son and the Holy Spirit" in Matthew 28: 19. Mr. Godfrey, perhaps you should check before you state what you claim is fact.

The comments on baptism and communion are from my experience also in error. The Baptists I know believe strongly in both baptism and communion. In fact, every Baptist church I've ever been to holds a regular communion service at least once a month.

Your final paragraph makes a strong accusation against Rev. Moore's practicing the teachings of the Bible. Where do you come by the authority to slam his opinions? Perhaps you, sir, should read and practice what you yourself state in the first sentence of your letter.

JOHN RUEF
Gooding

Now Farrell's done with us

You had a previous opportunity to footnote a letter saying the LDS Church didn't pay you to print this barrage. You now have the opportunity to tell your readers who paid for the series and that the Mormons, being of sound mind, in no way put a great deal of influence on you to publish this series you deem enlightening.

You have truly given us many new opportunities to turn the other cheek. Now Mr. Farrell's done with us, are you really going to have someone who knows the gospel as we believe it, write what we really believe about the Bible, our strong belief in Jesus Christ?

That staggers me when we are accused of not believing.

BRUCIA CREANE

Faith is one thing sacred

As one who has investigated Mormonism myself I cannot disagree with author Farrell. I think it is a well researched study, both "dispassionate and unbiased." The reason it offends LDS people so is because the grass roots members have been heretofore unaware of the Church's history because the "embarrassing doctrines and men-on-the-moon prophecies have been deleted from official church publications. The teachings that reach the street level LDS have been much edited and censored.

Nobody is disagreeing with the right of a person to be a Mormon, but shouldn't the membership have the right to know the full extent of the teachings spoken by their "Prophet, Seer and Revelator"?

If the leader is fallible and deceitful in matters regarding science, history and archeology which can be readily proven, should he be trusted with one's eternal destiny and relationship with God? The Mormon Apostle Orson Pratt said; (The Seer, pp. 15, 16) "... convince us of our errors of doctrine. If we have any, by reason, by logical arguments, or by the word of God, and we will be ever grateful for the information..." Also in the Bible, "Now the Berseans were of more noble character than the Thessalonians, for they received the message with great eagerness and examined the scriptures every day to see if what Paul said was true."

Don't rely on mere feelings, investigate for yourselves to see which is true. Thank you Times-News for having the courage to print such an accurate yet infamous article.

STEVE KOOPMAN
Hagerman

Can't disagree with articles

End this quarrel! I am writing this letter to all denominations of religion, because I am very much concerned about our young people.

I am a young person myself with a young family, trying ever so hard to raise my family properly. Yet, at the same time I find myself searching for peace and freedom in a world of people without shame.

I only wish to express that faith is one thing sacred in all our lives and the most important factor in our future. We must stop and consider who we are hurting the most.

Our young people today are living in a very evil world and are crying out for help. You tell me, are you listening to what your child is asking? Would you rather that he hide behind a box of booze or a foreign substance of drugs?

Each person in this world has a spirit, each spirit in this world has a reason to exist. That, to some, is not clear; to others, it seems simple.

Here in Magic Valley we rely mostly upon agriculture for our support. A farmer knows he must cultivate and work very hard in this land to make a living. Yet even with hard work and long days, it is all he can do to produce his crop. Without help from others he would be unable to get his crop to market.

Without all of us working together the human race would fall to exist. It will become a world where each man is for himself. As greed becomes stronger, our religious faith will become weaker and our children's children will be those who will pay for they will have no path to follow.

Whatever be your religious faith, preserve this faith in your heart. Do not persecute other's beliefs for you will only persecute your own.

MOFFETT L. HAMILTON JR.
Hazelton

Misconceptions created

I recognize that your intent in publishing the series on the Mormons was not to expose our doctrine. It is evident, however, that much misconception has been generated as to what is or is not the doctrine of the LDS Church.

I would ask that you publish the Articles of Faith of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. These Articles were written by Joseph Smith as a concise summary of our doctrine. Every member of the LDS Church is encouraged to memorize these Articles and live his or her life in accordance with them. Every LDS missionary has the Articles of Faith printed on his or her calling card.

We as a people are by no means perfect, but the Articles of Faith summarize our sacred beliefs and outline the perfection for which we are striving.

A government motto for the 80s: citizen, heal thyself

BOSTON — Somebody out there must have been listening to our grandparents. You know the line: "If you have your health, you have everything."

In any case, the Quaker Oats people have come up with a bold idea for the people who have everything. They have decided to reward them with even more. They are going to give bonuses to workers who have had the wisdom and foresight not to get sick.

Say, for example, you are a Quaker Oats worker and manage to avoid any illness worse than a cold for the entire year and never used your medical benefits. You could be rewarded with as much as $300. If you keep medical bills below the target, you can still get a dividend worth $100 or so.

What is so delicious about this plan is that, once again, the private sector has come up with shiny new innovations that would be just nifty for the public sector.

Unbeknownst to its executives, they have designed the perfect national health plan for the economically strapped Eighties, a plan more Reaganite than the White House economists could have devised.

Until now, while health costs are rising at three times the rate of the Consumer Price Index, the government has only offered a stick, or rather, a scissor. The new budget, for example, merely cuts health benefits for the aged and infirm. But under the new national health plan, the government could offer a Quaker Oats carrot, complete with a box top or two.

Instead of just tantalizing people who get sick, they could give them an economic incentive to stay away from disease: bonuses for the poor who don't use their Medicare or Medicaid at all.

At first glance, it might seem a bit peculiar to offer people money for staying healthy. But surely only a tattered group of knee-jerk liberals would object. The rest of us have learned our lesson. What did we get for helping sick people? Sick people.

But this is the Eighties and we no longer reward the needy. We reward the people who don't need us. Consider, for example, the current economic program. We don't like to put benefits in the pockets of the poor anymore. This merely encourages them.

Today, we prefer to give money to the people who are rich, as a sort of national incentive plan. The idea that being rich is better than being poor is supposed to slowly trickle down, even to the bedfuddled underclasses.

What we are talking about is mind over matter, an economy over a society. So it only makes sense to distribute sick benefits to the healthy.

I grant you that the Quaker Oats people were probably just trying to eliminate unnecessary trips to the doctor, the fender-benders of the health business. But since the national public health coffers is in such dire straits, the federal government needs a more radical plan.

The big spenders, those who come down with catastrophic illness, will have to be dealt with in a more creative way than by simply cutting funds as Reagan has done in the budget. To keep the healthy as wealthy and wise as before, we need a preventive medicine bonus to encourage good citizens not to develop cancer or heart disease.

We might also suggest a moderate stipend to those who do not need a liver transplant or a kidney dialysis, and perhaps an additional incentive for people who do not allow their children to have handicaps.

The beauty of this program is that it fits into the administration's penchant for rewarding people for not using things. At the moment for example, they have one plan to ply some farmers with produce if they don't plant their land.

They have another plan to award parents with vouchers or tax credits if they don't send their children to public schools. Surely we could credit people for not filling a hospital bed.

In the current ideal of Independence, the good private citizens of the 1980s are the ones who make no demands on public services.

They eat, sleep, employ, and transport themselves. The motto of this new national health plan would be a perfect match: Citizen, Heal Thyself.

Let you think this is just a fantasy. Imagine the public relations bonanza. The President ventures out of the White House again to deliver the first bonus checks. There, arm around the healthiest specimen, he tries once again to convince us that, yes, he is "getting America on the mend again."

Ellen Goodman writes for the Boston Globe.

Post series evokes Mormon, non-Mormon responses

Look out for Jim Jones

I am a convert to the Mormon Church. I guess I haven't been very perceptive, because I didn't realize until Mr. Farrell told me (with the help of The Times-News) how stupidly and really unreasonable these people are!

They not only hold, as Mr. Farrell tells us, high moral standards, a belief in chastity and the sanctity of marriage and the family, they also oppose abortion on demand, drugs, homosexuality, pornography, etc.

Not only do they hold these views, but most of them, along with their non-Mormon friends who share these beliefs, also have the temerity to try to live these principles. And more horrifying still, they even vote their convictions! It frightens me just to think of us! The trouble is, after living among these people and observing the many blessings which stem from their way of life, I'm hooked. It's sad, but Saints Alive will just have to try to get along without this Mormon.

ALICE JACKSON
Kimberly

No convert for Saints Alive

I have been following the series on Mormonism and the accompanying letters from infuriated Mormons with great interest. The articles examined the facts, some of them true and some of them probably not true about Joseph Smith. In my opinion none of the printed letters of response have addressed the real problem.

Either Joseph Smith was a real prophet or a false teacher. Any man being that actually took the time to read all the writings of Joseph Smith and still proclaim him to be "inspired by God" is in a real dilemma. Anyone who believes there are "beings" on the moon and that the Garden of Eden is in Missouri, is in even worse shape.

We all as adults knowing these facts to be false as well as many of the writings of Mr. Smith would only be kidding ourselves to think the man was without error. But the problem that Mormons have is this, if the "blew it" some of the time could he have also blown it most of the time?

And if it's your religious duty as a Mormon to accept all the writings of the Prophet and follow him with perfect loyalty, then look out Jim Jones and move over Guyana!

The reason the Mormons are so upset is because they really didn't know their leaders believe such things or else they are too embarrassed to admit it. One thing I can assure all Mormons, Christians, Jews and others, "truth" is not found in the writings of our leaders, churches, organizations or religion, for the "Truth is in Jesus!" Unfortunately, He is not the foundation of the Mormon Church that bears his name, their foundation is a mortal man with "special" and very "suspect" revelations. They have taken "Paul's Gospel" and distorted truth with about as much "accuracy" as an acute blow of a raging meat cleaver. Thus invoking upon who accept it the "curse" of God. They too join the ranks with all other "isms" of the world, Hinduism, Buddhism, etc., and are in fact no "losers" to God than they are. If the eternal destiny of me and my family were at stake, I would certainly consider alternatives. I believe the letter from Kay Coffman summed it up best — She said our eternal destiny lay in this — "That God is true and all men are liars." I believe Joseph Smith was a man!

DAVID SMITH
Bury

The Bible and nothing else

In response to a letter from Verla H. Adams, I suggest you read your Bible, the one and only authorized by God.

If you read this and study it you will see there is no need for the Book of Mormon or any other such books: God intended for us to live by the words of the Bible, and only the Bible, nothing else.

If your church really studied the Bible they would see there is no need for the Book of Mormon, and all the other things which they believe in and do. It would also scare them to think about the punishment they will receive when God returns to give us all our just rewards.

By anyone, God meant everyone! Not just some people, so anything written by so-called "prophets" is unscriptural and unnecessary! God also "loves everyone of you out there and hopes you can learn the whole truth and disregard the lies."

LAURA DEAN
Jerome

Film called "great fraud"

The articles concerning the Mormons in your paper have been disturbing to many of your readers. However, if we follow the words of wisdom from Mr. Phil Auth which were in your paper, we have nothing to worry about. I am an active member of the Mormon Church. I attended the anti-Mormon film which has been shown in the area, and I would like to make a few comments.

My first reactions were extreme hurt, anger and bitterness. Now that a few days have passed, these feelings have faded. I wrote another letter immediately after I saw the film. It is filled with scripture and I enumerated some of the deceptions and distortions both in the film and in the remarks made by Mr. Witham. I am not going to send it. If anyone cares to ask me any questions my name is listed in the Kimberly phone directory. I will visit with anyone who wants to talk in a spirit of love.

My lasting impression of the film is that a great fraud has been perpetrated against our non-Mormon friends and neighbors. They have been taught out-right lies, distortions and half-truths but they have also been cheated out of a lot of money.

These men come to an area claiming to be "missionaries to the Mormon people." Whom do they contact? Non-Mormons. Who go to see the film? Nearly all non-Mormons. After the movie is shown they take a collection asking for help for their missionary efforts to the Mormons.

If there are 500 people present and each average $1, that is $500. There were $10 and $20 bills in the cans which were passed. That's a good day's wage.

These people ask for help in converting the Mormons, but where is their effort to the Mormon people? The film is completely offensive to the Mormons, and the Mormon people recognize the lies; so very few would be influenced. Seeing the film only made my faith stronger. So how true is their claim to be "missionaries to the Mormons?"

To all our neighbors and friends: Don't believe everything you see and hear (especially a ludicrous cartoon), and please don't be misled into giving these men financial aid.

Spare us, Mr. Editor

Reference the recent Mormon marathon, Mr. Editor! Spare us! And what say you of any church group, truly? Was not the prophet's prophecy "not coming to pass" ever other than the revealing of false prophet?

Is not today's busy alteration of "the given word," more rather than less, a pull in the direction of man-doctrine? When was the hope of flesh and blood to exceed the hope of the grass? How is the drive for materialistic entanglement in the name of religion, the pile of estate, to escape being in the service of man-made?

Was not polygamy always error by way of the confusion of adultery? Sect and creed, the physical church, would take one meanly and one book and together delineate their peculiar image in gone astray. And was sect and creed ever not to boast special connection at the expense of sect and creed?

What is screaming for our attention, what really needs the emphasis, is... oops... That's it, for I see that I have run out of writing room.

Only complaints in articles

I imagine my husband and I have a fairly average family in Idaho these days, having both members and non-members of the Mormon faith. Some were born and raised in the church, some are converts, and some like my husband and I are of other faiths.

We were very eager for your series to begin after reading the initial publicized announcements of these articles with the thought of saving each one and then giving them to our family members who are non-Mormon in the hopes that they would receive a better understanding of the Mormon religion and we would all be taught a little more tolerance for each other.

However, such will not be the case. We feel these articles will only serve to further bewilder non-members and members alike with the bias and untruths displayed by the author John Aloysius Farrell, who obviously shows little knowledge of his subject. We also think that your paper showed very poor judgment in accepting these articles for publication and unbecoming journalistic taste in printing them.

We have nothing to share with our family but the complaints of those not affiliated with the church, very little history of the Mormons and other criticism that is not even concealed due to the use of poorly selected adjectives which definitely display this personal antagonism toward many of the Mormon beliefs and mode of operation.

We are really disappointed with The Times-News and are appalled that you have put your "stamp of approval" on such a series no matter whether they emanated from the illustrious Denver Post or Timbuctoo. You have wasted our time and yours and done much to further promote misunderstanding between all Idahoans. You have done us all a disservice including yourselves.

Accept Christ and Bible

Well, the last J.A. Farrell article has been printed. Most of us will go about our business and within a few weeks many of us will forget the articles and what they revealed.

But hopefully, some of us will remember that a large group of people is suffering from intense pain. Some of you heard for the first time that there is indeed no archeological proof for the Book of Mormon, some of you were surprised to learn that your leaders have and are suppressing much of your past to protect you. It hurts to hear your beloved church referred to as a non-Christian cult and your precious temple rituals as Masonic. Some of you didn't know that Smith and Young were anointed, as kings and some hadn't even heard of the Council of Fifty.

I found that even though I had never smoked, drank alcoholic beverages or coffee, and had lived faithfully, attended Church regularly and attended the temple when I could I was a sinner and God considered all my righteousness as filthy rags. I loved the Church and God with all my heart but Jer. 17:9 told me my heart was deceitful and desperately wicked. I had sinned and come short of the glory of God. I had tried so hard to be a faithful Mormon but James 2:10 told me that if I offend in one point I was guilty of all. For by all my works I could never be justified. It seemed so right — how could anything so good be so wrong? But Prov. 14:12 told me that this way that seemed so right would end in death.

It was then that I reached utter despair. I could not be good enough to meet the justice of God. So I confessed my sins and pleaded for His Mercy. Christ suffered for my sins. His justice paid for my injustice. He will bring me to God. He bore my sins on the tree so that I could live into righteousness: His stripes healed me.

I came to the foot of the cross of Calvary and accepted the free gift of Eternal Life with God the Father, the Son Jesus Christ, and the Holy Spirit. I was born Spiritually.

The Mormons aren't the only ones who are trying to meet the justice of God by obedience to the laws and ordinances of the Gospel. Perhaps you feel that God will weigh the good and the bad in your life and if the good outweighs the bad he'll let you in. But that's not good enough. Only the pure sinlessness of Jesus Christ is accepted by a Holy God and my Bible tells me that only His blood covering my sin will be accepted by God.

Leave out malicious deceptions

The Times-News has done it again. In reference to your supposed "unbiased" articles on the "Mormon" faith, I can only give the opinion that the articles would not have been printed by The Times-News had they been open and fair. The Times-News in the past has shown a slanted view against the LDS faith.

Prove you aren't biased. Print articles of the other faiths, emphasizing all the misjudgments and mistakes of the human race and blaming them on the church leadership. A recent scandal of a senior individual in the Catholic Church would be an example. Or some questionable securities of a Protestant faith another. Don't forget to concentrate on the discontented, the enemies, the excommunicated of each faith. And never ask those who know, the leadership of a faith, for verification. At best wait until you do all the damage you can, then point the leadership's viewpoints.

Be sure to leave in all the malicious, lingering deceptions people have told for years such as the deceit that the LDS faith doesn't use the Bible (grossly untrue). And leave out the American Indians' own legends that would give credence to any church literature you disapprove of (such as the Book of Mormon). Oh, and make sure you ignore archeological findings in Central America of apparent Egyptian and middle-Eastern origin and quote only authorities who may have reason to denounce a particular faith.

Be sure to accept as normal and proper the slaughter and terrorism in Ireland for the spread of hate and death by radical members of the Islamic faith. Accept dominance of entire governments in Europe and South and Central America by various churches. Yet point a finger at and condemn members of the LDS faith for electing representatives that have their own views (a situation accepted as a right by other religions) and call Utah a "Church state," using repetition to push your own slanted views.

Be sure to interview the apostates and the haters and make sure you emphasize all the Sonia Johnsons, while ignoring what she may have done. Can you say what led up to her excommunication? Or will you just stand by the one-sided publicity you printed at the time of her Church trial? If you were unbiased, you would look into her activities and find that she was spending thousands of dollars a month, received from unnamed sources, flying all over the country, denouncing all aspects of the LDS faith, and demanding that her audiences did the same until she got her way on the Equal Rights Amendment. Most religions would have been upset over her denunciations. This was the reason she was excommunicated, not the sob stories given in the paper. Some of her printed speeches are still around.

Oh, yes. Blandly say over and over that you aren't biased, that everything is fair and aboveboard. Perhaps you and yours believe it yourself. Hardly anyone else will. Oh, yes. Above all, be sure you don't print something like this letter that might give a view of the other side.

Stockman opens door to budget trimming

By ROBERT MACKAY
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Budget director David Stockman, in one of the most conciliatory statements so far, told Congress Thursday there are "no sacred cows" in President Reagan's budget that could not be cut.

Since the 1984 budget went to Congress Monday, both Democrats and Republicans have complained that the proposed $30 billion increase in defense spending is too high and must be cut.

budget "a sacred cow" exempt from spending cuts.

"Obviously, this budget indicates there are no sacred cows," Stockman replied.

But Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger was less yielding in an appearance in the Senate Budget Committee. He read the panel a letter pleading for its support against attempts to cut the $23.8 billion military budget, because "any further cuts would do damage to our national security."

Also in the Senate, Sen. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., proposed an alternative to Reagan's budget that would freeze all federal spending, including budget authority for defense, at this year's level for one year.

It also would raise tax revenue by imposing an oil import fee, cutting back this year's 10 percent tax cut to 5 percent and subjecting one-half of Social Security benefits to the personal income tax.

"I believe the president's budget does too little" to reduce huge projected deficits and stimulate the economy, said Gorton, a member of the budget committee, in a Senate speech.

The federal deficit would be slashed to $97 billion in 1984 and $19 billion in 1987 under the Gorton plan, he said, while Reagan's budget would leave deficits of $189 billion next year and more than $100 billion in 1987.

Gorton said Senate GOP leader Howard Baker and Budget Committee Chairman Pete

Domenici, R-N.M., "were delighted to have this as an alternative. I can't say they've endorsed it lock, stock and barrel."

The U.S. Conference of Mayors, meanwhile, found Reagan's budget "alarming" news for cities "because it does not address the 12 million unemployed Americans."

"The proposed federal budget would be damaging to cities and disastrous for the unemployed and poor people in them," said conference executive John Gunther.

At the House budget hearing, Stockman said the 1984 budget "was deliberately devised with the view of reducing friction" between Congress and the White House.

But Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., heatedly told Stockman his new cuts in social programs should not be sold to the public as a spending freeze.

"You're cutting programs, you're cutting people," Panetta said. "My God, don't tell the people you're not cutting them!"

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said retirement is one place where military spending could be cut. He said military retirees get full benefits after 20 years service, regardless of their age, while civil retirees have to wait until they are at least 55 for reduced benefits.

"That's the place where the retirement pay is really absurd," Aspin said. Stockman, implying he had made the same argument to Weinberger, replied: "If I hadn't made that same speech myself at one point, I'd find it easier to answer."

Reagan declares 'Year of Bible'

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- President Reagan proclaimed 1983 the "Year of the Bible" Thursday and told lawmakers and diplomats attending a National Prayer Breakfast that "America will not go forward" without faith in God.

The breakfast, an annual affair for three decades, was Reagan's second appearance this week before a religious audience, but he skirted the sensitive issues he had stressed in a speech Monday to conservative religious broadcasters.

Instead, he delivered a more ecumenical message to the several thousand VIPs, including members of Congress, diplomats and religious figures, Thursday. It underscored the importance of religion's role in America's heritage.

"Can we resolve to read, learn and try to heed the greatest message ever written -- God's word and the Holy Bible?" Reagan asked. "Inside its pages lie all the answers to all the problems that man has ever known."

Reagan said Americans have only to look to nations whose people "are imprisoned or tortured, harassed for even possessing a Bible" to appreciate their freedom to worship.

Recalling the words of Abraham Lincoln that Americans "have become too proud to pray to the God that made us," Reagan asked, "Isn't it time for us to say, 'We're not too proud to pray'?"

Falwell starts political committee

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- Moral Majority leader Jerry Falwell said Thursday his fundamentalist group will start a political action committee to raise millions of dollars for "pro-life and pro-family" political candidates.

"We have spent our first three years registering 5 million voters and educating them on the issues," Falwell said in a telephone interview. "Now we want to get them involved in the process."

"Abortion is the national sin," he said. "We must get men and women in Congress who will aggressively lead the fight" for anti-abortion legislation.

Moral Majority exists as a lobbying organization and an educational foundation. The new political action committee will be its third facet, Falwell said.

"This will be a third entity for us for the purpose of raising funds from our own constituency for candidates who support pro-life and pro-family issues," he said.

Falwell said the new committee will be legally formed within the next 30 days and begin fund raising shortly after.

Falwell first disclosed plans for the political action committee in an interview with freelance journalist Stephen Schwabach.

Blizzard cripples Midwest

By TIM CODER
United Press International

Winter's biggest storm shut down a broad stretch of the Midwest Thursday with a foot of snow, 50 mph winds, and Arctic temperatures that stayed below zero all day in northern Minnesota.

The death toll from a week of snowstorms in the Plains and Midwest, and tornadoes and rain in the South reached 32, including a 12-year-old boy struck by a plow while playing near a Wisconsin road. Six people died in Minnesota while removing snow.

Gale-force winds and heavy rains whipped the East, where the mercury soared to record highs. Snow spread from the mid-Mississippi Valley to the southern Appalachians.

On the West Coast, hurricane-force winds and drifting snow stranded hundreds of motorists in the mountains overnight, while drenching rains at lower elevations broke southern California's four-day respite from a chain of storms.

Snow fell across Arizona, New Mexico, west Texas and southeast Colorado, with 6 inches of new snow at Flagstaff, Ariz.

The Arizona National Guard began a helicopter airlift of food to hundreds of Navajos stranded in their homes all week by mudslides and snow.

Among the latest victims in a week of bad weather were two boys in the Chicago suburb of Berwyn who were killed by a commuter train they apparently failed to see as they walked in a blinding snowstorm.

Six deaths were reported in Kansas and Minnesota, four in Iowa, three each in Louisiana, Nebraska, Florida and Wisconsin, and two in Illinois. Michigan and Alabama each reported one death.

Some major roads remained closed in Kansas, where the sun was shining.

Heavy rains lashed the Northeast and flash-flood watches were issued for New York's lower Hudson Valley, the Catskill Mountains and much of southern New England. Winds gusted to 83 mph at Erie, Pa. Gale warnings were posted for New England and New Jersey.

Shades of spring prevailed as the mercury zoomed to a record 59 degrees in New York City, and 47 degrees in Portland, Maine.

More than 18 inches of snow driven into 5-foot drifts clogged highways in parts of South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa. Roads were littered with hundreds of abandoned vehicles as the storm defeated snow plows.

Erin Fleming ruled mentally ill

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) -- A psychiatrist examined Erin Fleming Thursday and determined that the ex-showgirl accused of killing Gruchko Marx out of $400,000 is mentally ill and cannot control her emotional courtroom outbursts.

The judge then said she may continue testifying in a lawsuit filed against her by Marx's estate, and scheduled her to return to the stand Monday. The hearing continued in the meantime with other witnesses.

Miss Fleming, who screamed and hit a bailiff in a tirade Wednesday, was examined for two hours Thursday afternoon by a court-appointed psychiatrist, who later discussed his findings with the judge and lawyers.

"He found out she is mentally ill and psychotic," Miss Fleming's attorney, David Sabih, said.

"He said she can still testify, but she cannot control her outbursts. It was obvious to the doctor after one-half hour that she's severely mentally ill, that's she's not in control of herself."

Sabih said the psychiatrist also determined that Miss Fleming is not faking her remarks and actions, which caused the judge to order the psychiatric examination.

"She's not acting out; her outbursts," he said. "Those are her true feelings."

As she walked out of the courthouse, reporters asked Miss Fleming if she thought she was mentally ill. She replied, "No."

Sixteen firemen charged with setting fires

SCRANTON, Pa. (UPI) -- Sixteen volunteer firemen who set scores of fires for "thrill and excitement" over a six-year period were arrested on arson and related charges Thursday, police said.

Suspects arrested by state and Dickson City police included the fire chief and two other officers of the Regle Volunteer Hose Co. No. 1, and eight juveniles, 15 to 17 years old, who were junior members of the fire department.

Investigators found evidence linking the suspects to "approximately 59 arson-type fires with damages in the hundreds and thousands of dollars" since January 1977, said state police Lt. Michael Jordan.

"The motive for the majority of the fires was thrill and excitement," he said.

Added Dickson City Patrolman James Szewczyk, "They enjoyed lighting them. That's about it."

Among the targets of the arson were a large mill near the Dickson City Industrial Park that sustained $300,000 in damage in July 1978, two warehouses and a wood products plant, police said.

NATO after missile balance

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — A balanced compromise with Moscow on medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe. West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher said Thursday.

But the Soviet Union so far has shown no flexibility and is still aiming at a missile monopoly, he said.

Genscher conferred separately with Paul Nitze and Yuri Kvintinsky, the chief U.S. and Soviet negotiators at the talks on limiting intermediate-range missiles in Europe. He also met with Edward Rowny, head of the U.S. delegation at the parallel big-power Strategic Arms Reduction Talks.

"I heard nothing at the meeting with the Soviet negotiator to show Soviet movement from its original position which would lead to a Soviet monopoly," Genscher said at a news conference.

"But I am still confident that Moscow will change its position and be more flexible after the West German elections on March 6," he said.

Earlier, Genscher told the 40-nation Geneva Disarmament Conference that NATO would like to see the elimination of all U.S. and Soviet medium-range missiles.

But NATO is also prepared to cut back its planned missile deployment if Moscow "substantially" reduces the missiles it already has in place, he said.

Bush proposes 'peace race'

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — Vice President George Bush, challenging Moscow to a "peace race," said Thursday he would bring to the Geneva arms talks the Reagan administration's message that the superpowers must reduce their nuclear weapons arsenals.

"We have an excellent chance of taking giant steps for peace in these negotiations," Bush told a news conference after meeting with NATO leaders.

"For too long, the Soviet Union has been challenging us to an arms race. We challenge them to a peace race," he said.

Bush, who Monday conveyed President Reagan's message that he was willing to meet with Soviet leader Yuri Andropov "wherever, whenever," said the aim in Geneva was to eliminate an entire class of land-based intermediate-range weapons.

Bush, on a 7-nation tour of western Europe, said the West wanted action, not just words, from the Soviets.

"We want action not only in Geneva, but we still care deeply about Poland, but we care about Afghanistan and we care about human rights."

Bush said his two days of talks with Belgian, European Common Market and NATO officials had been productive and conducted in a spirit of unity and confidence.

"I come out of here reinforced about the Alliance being together," Bush said after private talks with NATO Secretary General Joseph Lants and a two-hour session with ambassadors to the North Atlantic Council.

The North Atlantic Alliance, Bush said, will work together to meet the Soviet challenge and maintain security through prudent defense expenditures and "diligent efforts at arms negotiations."

The United States and the Common Market will also strive to maintain the freest possible trade and compromise in areas of difficulty, Bush said, adding his talks with Common Market president Gaston Thorn were very constructive.

The vice president said he planned to visit Geneva Friday to meet U.S. and Soviet negotiators.

China session positive

PEKING (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz and Chinese Foreign Minister Wu Xueqian tackled the toughest problems in Sino-U.S. relations Thursday and Shultz said he was "very pleased" with the way the talks went.

"The future bodes well for the United States-China relationship," Shultz said.

Shultz ended the first part of his four-day visit, holding more than eight hours of talks in a day and a half with Wu ranging from the Middle East to Sino-Soviet relations, Taiwan, trade and Chinese political defections in the United States.

It was a "fruitful" and "good back and forth" on a number of issues, a Shultz aide said.

"I am very pleased with the manner in which our talks with the Chinese are proceeding this week. They are serious, constructive and wide-ranging," Shultz told a luncheon for American businessmen in Peking.

Shultz also bluntly told the businessmen to stop complaining about U.S. policy towards China. He was particularly tough with businessmen who want the United States to relax restrictions on the level of high technology that their firms are allowed to sell to Peking, telling them to leave China if they didn't like U.S. policies.

Shultz accused businessmen of sometimes creating their own problems by signing contracts with China that fall outside U.S. guidelines on technology transfers.

"Buddy, that's your problem when you do that. Don't complain to the government," he said.

Asked why the Japanese and West European governments are quicker to approve technology transfers than the United States, Shultz snapped, "Maybe they're just better. Why don't you move to Japan or Western Europe?"

Shultz was also tough on the question of a U.S. ban on the sale of nuclear technology to China, which would like to bestow its biggest purchase so far — a $5 billion deal to outfit a new nuclear power plant — on the American firm Westinghouse.

Shultz accused his guests of a "cowardly" attitude towards nuclear non-proliferation and said, "You brush it off. I don't."

Shultz's tough talk prompted, William Clarke, a former Commerce

Poland expels UPI

VIPPNNA, Austria (UPI) — The Polish Foreign Ministry Thursday ordered the suspension of United Press International's operations in Poland and stripped its one remaining correspondent in Warsaw of his accreditation.

The ministry said UPI operations would be suspended until a new correspondent is accredited to replace expelled UPI reporter Ruth Gruber in Warsaw and the Polish news agency PAP in Washington resumes operation.

Miss Gruber was expelled from Poland for alleged "espionage activity." She had been detained by police for questioning for 23 hours Jan. 11 and ordered expelled the next day.

The U.S. State Department responded to Miss Gruber's forced departure by ordering the expulsion Jan. 18 of PAP's Washington-based correspondent, effectively closing down the one-man operation.

Polish-born UPI Warsaw correspondent Bogdan Turck, 46, was summoned to the Foreign Ministry Thursday morning to hear a prepared statement on the "temporary" detentions to withdraw his accreditation card and suspend UPI operations. He said officials were "very polite" and he was not detained.

The leadership of the Polish Foreign Ministry decided to suspend instantaneously the operation of (the) UPI office until the day when a successor to Miss Ruth Gruber is accredited and until the office of the Polish news agency in Washington resumes its operation. "Turck embassy the Ministry statement."

A spokesman said U.S. Embassy officials in Warsaw were called to the ministry shortly after Turck and informed of "the bad news."

Kimberly recall effort gets moving

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — Backers of a recall drive against Kimberly Mayor Rosalea Whitehead and three City Council members say they plan to present initial petitions to the city clerk today.

That would clear the way for a petition drive if Clerk Kaythe Widmer certifies the initial petition.

Widmer is authorized to certify the initial petition for proper format. She is also responsible for determining that the 20 original signers of the petition are registered voters.

Once Widmer certifies the petition, recall backers will have 60 days to gather enough signatures to force a special election.

"The petition with the first 20 signatures will be filed with the clerk first thing tomorrow (Friday)," said recall-effort spokeswoman Karen Mack. Recall supporters began circulating the petitions Thursday, she said.

In all, the backers of the drive will need to get the 127 signatures of registered voters — or 20 percent of the 633 voters who were registered during the 1981 municipal election — before a recall election is called.

Threats of recall against Whitehead and Councilmen Ted Wasco, Avis Allen and Sterling Crothers came quickly following a controversial City Council vote last week. That vote involved reappointing Bill Malone as the city's public-works director and the law firm of Langley and Greenwood of Twin Falls as the city's legal counsel.

Whitehead originally made those appointments earlier this year, but they were blocked when Councilman

Mike Langford voted against the move during a Jan. 11 council meeting. Allen and Wasco supported the appointments, but confirmation required the approval of three council members and Crothers was absent from the first meeting.

Whitehead decided not to submit new appointments to council. But when the four-member council met again on Jan. 24, Crothers joined the majority in both appointing and then confirming Malone and the law firm.

At the same time, Langford's supporters had submitted to council a petition, bearing the names of 115 persons opposed to the appointments.

The latest petition drive involves four separate documents — one for each of the targeted city officials.

The petition alleges that the city officials have "inefficiently and inadequately represented the citizens of Kimberly" by failing to seek and acknowledge "public input into the decision-making process."

The petitions also accuse the officials of conducting "meetings that the public is not aware of" and not "seeing that actions taken at such meetings are made known to the public."

If the recall supporters gather the required 127 signatures, city officials must call for the special election, which would be held 30 to 45 days later, Widmer said.

Widmer estimates the cost of a special election at $1,000 to $1,500. As of Monday, $46,192 remained in the city's administrative budget, which was set at $62,192 on Oct. 1.

"At this time, I don't know where I would find the funds to pay for it," she said. "Definitely, any unexpected expenditure can hurt the budgetary process. I think everyone realizes all the cities are in trouble financially."

Small hydro projects boom

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Without fanfare, another low-head hydro project began producing electricity in the Magic Valley this week.

Built and operated by Russell Biggs, it is located in Slaughterhouse Gulch, west of Twin Falls.

Biggs' project marks the most recent evidence of the boom in independent electric cogeneration in this area. Ranchers, engineers and entrepreneurs of all kinds have sensed the possibility for profit. And their contract applications are swelling the files of the Idaho Power Co.

The Biggs project is small compared to some that are planned. With a capacity of 73 kilowatts, it could supply roughly 32 homes. But its importance is magnified when it is considered in relation to the pool of energy that may soon be produced by numerous small generators throughout the state.

The Biggs project uses water that drains through the Twin Falls municipal golf course before dropping into Rock Creek. The water will be diverted about 500 feet, then fall 40 to 50 feet through a pipe to two turbines.

For eight months of the year, there should be enough water to run both turbines, Biggs says. But during low-water months, he expects only one to be in operation.

The site has produced electricity before when it used to belong to C.B. Jankes. Biggs says. Jankes owned the old Liberty Market and Jankes Meatpacking Co. He used some electricity at the factory, and sold the rest to the two power companies then operating in Twin Falls, Biggs says.

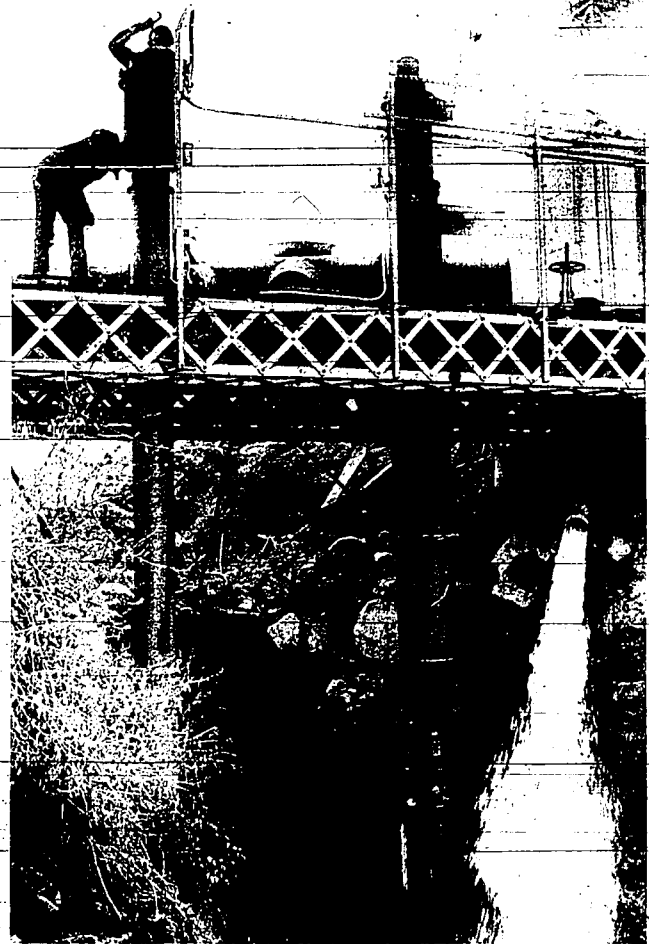

Biggs bought the land from Jankes' widow in 1947. At that time, the generator had been removed. But when the federal government began promoting small hydro power plants in 1973, Biggs planned to re-install a turbine.

Biggs' project makes use of regular irrigation pumps, installed in reverse. The pumps, which serve as turbines, are connected to a generator, which produces the electricity.

This has become the basic low-head hydro technology, says Aaron Witherspoon of Idaho Pump Supply in Twin Falls. Witherspoon helped Biggs design the project, and sold him the pumps.

The large variety of irrigation-pumping equipment available makes it possible to fit almost any small hydro site, basically "off the shelf," he says. And in small projects, irrigation pumps work as well as expensive, custom-designed turbines, he says.

"Two other low-head hydro plants are operating in the Magic Valley. And these two and Biggs' project are the only three cogeneration plants on line in Idaho, says Larry Taylor, a spokesman for Idaho Power.

Fine tuning on the Russell Biggs low-head hydro project got under way Thursday

But Idaho has seen only the tip of the cogeneration iceberg, according to figures supplied by Taylor. In addition to the three operating plants, Idaho Power has signed eight contracts for projects that have yet to be completed. And it also has received 62 applications, which it is studying.

The total capacity of these projects would be 94 megawatts, or 3.5 percent of Idaho Power's present total production.

Under state and federal law, Idaho Power must buy power from the small cogenerators. The rate paid for the electricity produced is based on Idaho Power's "avoided cost." This is what Idaho Power would have had to pay if it had built its own generating facilities.

Since it takes roughly 10 to 15 years to finance the initial investment in a small plant, a long-term contract with Idaho Power is essential, Witherspoon says. He presently is negotiating such a contract for a project of his own.

Biggs says he will receive 6 cents per kilowatt hour for his electricity. His contract with Idaho Power runs for 30 years. He received financing through Zion Leasing Corp.

Buhl school warned about overcrowding

By KAREN MAIN
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — As is the case with some other Magic Valley schools, Poppewell Elementary School in Buhl has been placed on "advised" status for accreditation because of overcrowding.

At Tuesday night's school board meeting, Superintendent Bob Pratt told board members that the state Department of Education found seven overcrowded classrooms at the school, which has an enrollment of close to 800 students.

According to the accreditation report, the facilities are inadequate to handle the present enrollment, and the school should hire another full-time administrator, Pratt said.

There is a principal at the school, but not an assistant principal or nurse, he said.

In addition, the state recommended that it is time for the school to conduct its five-year self-evaluation.

"The high school and middle school, which are reviewed by the Northwest Accreditation Association, with a report to the state, were approved," Pratt reported.

It was noted, however, that the middle school should have a full-time librarian, rather than the present situation of a part-time librarian who is also a teacher.

In other business at the meeting: The Poppewell Elementary School curriculum was explained by Principal Lawrence LaRue and several teachers.

Physical-education teacher Roxanne Storey brought 10 elementary students to demonstrate the eye-hand coordination exercises that are taught in grades one through three.

Herrett will retire from F&G panel

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Steve Herrett, a Twin Falls sportsman, will end his tenure on the Idaho Fish and Game Commission in late April or May.

Herrett, saying it is time to leave, has asked Gov. John Evans to consider new blood to represent the Magic Valley district on the fish and game management and policy-making board.

Herrett says the governor has asked him for two recommendations for possible consideration, and he has submitted the names of Dave Capps, the station manager for radio station KERP in Twin Falls, and Tim Crawford, a member of Ketchum City Council and a professional photographer known for his wildlife photography. Crawford also is president-elect of the Idaho Conservation League and would assume that position next year unless he becomes a commission member.

"Both of these men are well-qualified and are seeking the appointment for the right reasons... to work toward the development and perpetuation of Idaho's wildlife resources," Herrett said Thursday.

"There are too many who would want the appointment for the wrong reasons — having an act to grind or a prestige thing or an image thing."

"Both of them are younger and full of vinegar," Herrett says. "They have the drive and desire to make our commission policies work and improve on them. Either one would be an excellent commission member and would represent this district and the state's wildlife resources well."

Herrett says that he was amazed at the speed with which word of his resignation had covered the state.

"I told the governor and, in truth, (department director) Jerry Conley was in attendance when I told him," Herrett says, with a laugh. "That was at three o'clock one afternoon, and by the time I got back home the next day, everyone down here in the department knew about it, and I was getting phone calls from private individuals."

Herrett says that he purposely asked to remain for his full eight-year term, because "I have made some commitments to some people on certain things, and there are some loose ends on other projects that I've been associated with. I want to tie up those loose ends. In addition, the commission will be setting the big-game seasons in May, and I would like, at least in an advisory capacity, to sit in on that session for some suggestions that I believe would be beneficial."

Herrett says that he believes the position and policies of the department have been improved considerably during the eight years of his association with the commission.

"I won't quit working for Idaho's wildlife even though I'm off the board," he promises.

IFF employees express concerns over results of twice-held election

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A twice-held election and the widely different results of each vote — has sparked a controversy among employees at Idaho Frozen Foods.

IFF employees recently held an election to select the chairman of the Idaho plant's employees committee, an advisory group that brings employees' concerns to management's attention.

However, after the votes were tabulated, the outgoing committee chairman decided to hold the election again because of complaints voiced about the conduct of the winning candidate during the balloting.

In the second election, another candidate emerged as the victor, generating charges of tampering. The controversy has the underlines of a labor dispute. The first winning candidate is identified as a strong union supporter, while the second has been termed a "company man."

The IFF employees committee consists of 12 elected representatives, who meet with management officials to discuss employee complaints, concerns and opinions about the plant's operations.

Four persons from the three shifts are elected. Six representatives come from the hash-brown department, and six come from the french-fry department. A 13th member, the chairman, is elected separately.

IFF president Lee Odenwald says the plant's management takes no part in the committee's organization or elections.

On Thursday, Jan. 20, an election was held for the committee chairman, Shirley Elo — said by Odenwald and other IFF employees to be a strong union supporter — won by 48 votes. An IFF employee for five years, Elo has been on the employees committee for three years, has served as co-chairman and had run for the chairman's post before.

According to Ralph Hopkins, the outgoing committee chairman, the results were: Elo, 10; John Pohlmann, 112; Ken Knefel, 89; and Robert Van Ellis, 40.

Hopkins says that when he arrived at the plant about 5 a.m. Friday, he was approached by "10 to 15 ladies" with concerns that Elo had "told" them how to vote while the graveyard shift of the french-fry department was voting.

He says that he was told that Elo stayed in the employees' lunchroom, where the voting was taking place, and was "influencing" voters by telling people to be sure to vote for him.

Probe of Rupert incident ends No charges filed in bribe case

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

RUPERT — No criminal charges will be filed against the Indiana company that sent a Rupert municipal employee a $10 gift last month, after he ordered $234 worth of light bulbs for the city.

The Blinnick County prosecutor's office completed its investigation of the incident last week, and "we're not going to do anything," Charlie Creason, the deputy prosecutor, said Thursday.

Earlier, the prosecutor's office decided not to file charges against the unidentified city employee because no criminal intent was found.

But the prosecutor's office had continued to investigate B.I.C. Products, a Muncie distributing company.

However, during the probe, Creason says his office discovered some snags that stood in the way of any criminal prosecution.

For instance, a check with the Muncie police revealed the company to be a "reputable one," with "not a whole lot of control" over its salesmen, Creason says.

And although company officials admitted it was their policy to send Christmas gifts to customers, offering gifts to public employees was not "standard procedure," Creason says.

Concerning the salesman from Muncie who made the telephone solicitation to the Rupert employee, the most the prosecutor's office could have filed was a misdemeanor charge, because he was not a "high city official" involved in the transaction, Creason says.

And there can be no extradition to Idaho on misdemeanor charges, according to the prosecutor.

The investigation began when the city worker admitted to his supervisors that he gave his home address to the salesman after ordering 60 light bulbs for the city. The salesman told the employee he would send a gift. Later, the bulbs were delivered to the city, and a small barbecue grill was sent to the employee's residence, according to city officials.

The employee, a mechanic, was fired soon after, but for reasons unrelated to the incident, according to Rupert officials.

Rupert won't have to pay for the light bulbs because the order was not authorized, Creason says.

Pay raise backer to carry on fight

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. Ron Bellschaper, D-Grangeville, said Thursday he intends to pursue through the courts if necessary, his fight to reinstate higher expense pay for legislators on the grounds that Senate action on the issue did not conclude before a constitutional deadline.

through with this yet." The Idaho Constitution requires that any legislative action to cancel pay increases for lawmakers must clear both chambers before the 25th day of the session, which was Thursday.

Bellschaper contends his move for reconsideration, which did not come up for a vote until Thursday, effectively stymied efforts to quash the expense hikes.

But Deputy Idaho Attorney General Ken McClure said he is convinced the original Senate vote on the resolution Wednesday satisfied the constitutional time requirement.

McClure's interpretation of the law was supported by Senate President Pro Tem James Risch, a Republican lawyer from Boise.

Risch, paymaster for the Senate, said he intends to return pay scales to the old schedule — as required by the resolution.

After the 22-13 vote against reconsideration, the Democrat said he would continue his struggle through other avenues — including a possible court suit.

"I intend to do anything I have to to get my money," he said. "We're not giving up."

Hunter classes killed

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Senate rejected an effort Thursday to require that all hunters born after 1967 take a gun-safety course before they are issued a license and to outlaw hunting by anyone under 12 years of age.

Senators also turned down Thursday a proposal allowing judges to turn over weapons confiscated during felony arrests to hunter-safety instructors for classroom use.

The sponsor of both bills, Sen. Dane Watkins, R-Idaho Falls, said the measures would enhance the state's gun-safety programs. He said those programs are responsible for lowering the rate of Idaho hunting fatalities from 42 in 1971 to just 24 in 1981.

The first proposal would have required completion of a hunter-safety course by any license applicant born on or after Jan. 1, 1968. It would also have prohibited the issuance of a license to anyone under 12 years of age, and would have bumped the fee for gun-safety instruction from $1 to $2.

It was killed on an 11-23 vote.

Under current law, hunter-safety courses must only be completed by those under the age of 15 who wish a license, and anyone is eligible for a license regardless of age.

Watkins said tighter gun-safety programs are needed in light of a rapid increase in the number of people hunting each year in Idaho, from an estimated 160,000 in 1960 to 265,000 now.

Judge tosses out paraphernalia law

COEUR D'ALENE (UPI) — A newly appointed district court judge has ruled Idaho's drug paraphernalia law is unconstitutional because its vagueness forces store owners to second-guess their customers.

Charles and Hong Newman, who owns the Hong Import Store in Coeur d'Alene, were charged April 23, 1982 with selling alleged drug-use items at their store.

The couple's attorney, Eugene Marano, said Magnuson's "guilty" decision likely would stand any appeals brought by the state.

"They (the Newmans) are very happy with the decision and happy the judge decided they're not criminals for running a legitimate business," he said.

The state law, passed in November 1980, prohibits the manufacture, delivery or use of drug paraphernalia.

The delivery portion of the statute was first enforced when the Newmans were charged with selling alleged drug-use items at their store.

The couple pleaded not guilty last fall. In dismissing the charges, Magnuson said the statute requires store owners to speculate about their customers' intended use of the products.

Marano had argued the law is flawed because certain items that could be used for drugs also are commonly purchased for legal uses.

"Does Safeway have to make a decision before they stock an item on whether it can be used to ingest illegal drugs?" Marano said.

House says children can't go to school early

BOISE (UPI) — Visions of a "stampede" of parents who think their children are especially intelligent have caused a House committee to kill a proposal to allow youngsters to enter school one year ahead of the normal time if they first pass special tests.

"I can see every parent thinking their child is extra special," Rep. Ernest Hale, R-Burley, said in leading the House Education Committee to reject the bill. "It would be a nightmare for the school boards."

The bill would have granted school boards authority to give special competency tests to children who, under the current law, are barred from entering kindergarten unless they turn 5 years old before Oct. 16.

The same cut-off point applies at the 6-year-old level for children entering first grade.

Under the bill, a school board would be allowed to grant an exemption to a child born between Oct. 17 and Jan. 1 — but only if that child passed the competency tests, which would be formulated by school officials.

Rep. Robert Scates, R-Post Falls, offered the bill on behalf of former Rep. Gary Ingram, R-Coeur d'Alene.

Scates said Ingram "has some children he believes are fairly intelligent, but don't meet the (age) requirement."

Scates received support from Rep. Hilde Kellogg, D-Post Falls, who said her birthday was Oct. 17. What is happening to Ingram's children "happened to me," Mrs. Kellogg said.

"I know there are children who are ready to enter before that date," she said.

But Hale had more support than Scates.

Rep. George Johnson, D-Lewiston, said he had ample experience as a school board member with parents who say their children were born a day or two after the Oct. 16 deadline.

He said Scates' bill would only aggravate the problem.

"These parents would be raising unmitigated hell," Johnson said.

"You could have a stampede of mothers and fathers. You have to have a cutoff date."

Drinking age measure set for House debate

BOISE (UPI) — House members Thursday voted down a series of weakening amendments to a bill that would raise Idaho's minimum legal drinking age from 19 to 21, then approved two minor technical changes — setting up a final floor debate next week.

The Legislature's lower chamber dissolved into the Committee of the Whole to consider the amendments, most of which were offered by lawmakers who opposed the entire concept of raising the drinking age.

Forest favoring the overall proposal were successful in warding off repeated attempts to water down the bill before the measure was returned to the House calendar, where it will come up for a final reading by midweek.

The two changes approved without dissent by the 70 representatives were designed by Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, to help safeguard the right of 19- and 20-year-olds to keep their jobs in bars if the bill becomes law.

The House easily killed these proposed amendments.

By Rep. Carl Braun, D-Orofino, and Ms. McDermott, to provide for county elections for local-option approval of exemptions to the state-established drinking age.

By Rep. Dan Kelly, R-Mountain Home, to exempt military personnel and registered voters from the 21-year age limit.

By Rep. Dorothy McCann, D-Wallace, to exempt from the new standard the northern Idaho counties of Kootenai and Shoshone, plus Benewah County — the eastern Idaho area represented by Ms. McDermott, the bill's main opponent.

Marine describes meeting with Israeli tanks

By JACK REDDFIN
United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The U.S. Marine captain climbed onto the Israeli tank, grabbed the Israeli lieutenant colonel with his left hand and pointed his loaded pistol into the air.

"I told him to stop his damned tanks," Capt. Charles Johnson said quietly Thursday, discussing the confrontation Wednesday between Israeli troops and the U.S. forces on peacekeeping duty south of Beirut.

The Americans were invited into Lebanon to keep the peace. The Israelis are an invasion force that the Lebanese government is trying to get out. That difference in their roles is creating tensions unlike any previous U.S.-Israeli strains.

The latest confrontation began when a Marine observation post atop the library of the Lebanese University spotted unusual movements by the Israeli forces to the south.

All previous attempts by the Israelis to penetrate the lines of the U.S., Italian and French peacekeepers had involved smaller vehicles than the Centurion tanks that came grinding up the Sidon road.

They turned abruptly from the main road and started across the soggy fields toward the U.S. lines, smashing through a fence on the way.

Johnson decided to act alone. Leaving the rest of his men 200 yards behind, he moved in front of the approaching tanks.

"The tanks came through off the Sidon road and came into Marine lines and said they wanted to come through — that they would come through," the shy Marine said, his eyes glancing down.

"I told him if he came through, he'd have to kill me first."

The Israeli tank was now a foot from Johnson. The Israeli lieutenant colonel demanded the American move aside, and his three tanks revved their engines threateningly.

"I informed him that would not be possible and a very dangerous situation was developing," said the 30-year-old native of Neenah, Wis.

"I just took that step, locked and loaded my pistol in front of his tank and told him again that he could not come there."

"And that's when he moved back and laterally and tried to get his other two tanks to do what he was doing."

Johnson moved quickly to put an end to the maneuver, climbing up the side of the tank. "He was down in a turret," Johnson said. "I grabbed him with my left hand. I kept my pistol at the ready with my right hand."

The Marines emphasized that the gun was pointed in the air, not at the Israeli soldier. Johnson, asked what he would have done if the tank proceeded, replied, "All I can say is, it didn't happen."

Johnson, his picture now flashed on Lebanese television, has become a local hero; the man who single-handedly held off the Israeli army that crushed opposition last summer and now occupies almost half of Lebanon.

Sounding and acting in the image of the soft-spoken American, Johnson matter-of-factly says, "I simply stopped them — that's all."

Israel's officer says incident amused him

Wants to talk problems out

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — The commander of the Israeli tank unit that challenged a Marine in Beirut said Thursday "99 percent" of the incidents between Israeli and U.S. troops could be avoided if "we could talk it out."

Lt. Col. Amnon told a news conference he was "amused" by the encounter Wednesday with Marine Capt. Charles Johnson, who stopped a three-tank Israeli unit from approaching U.S. peacekeeping force lines in Beirut.

Amnon, who now has been involved in three of the six incidents between Marines and Israeli troops, said his tanks had no intention of penetrating Marine lines at the Lebanese University.

"I told him (Johnson) as far as I know the line is there, 700 yards west," he said. "I tried to check with my headquarters if they know about lines in the area, and since I couldn't reach them, I took my tanks' back to base."

Amnon said it was his first patrol in the area but that other Israeli patrols had passed through the same area.

"Everytime we meet an American officer he either does not want to talk to us or brings a superior officer. Ninety-nine percent of the problems could be solved if we could talk it out."

"They (the Marines) have strange orders not to talk to Israeli soldiers," Amnon said.

Military and government officials in Jerusalem said the uproar over the incident in Beirut was blown out of proportion.

The state-run television quoted some officials as demanding that U.S. Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger take back his remarks about the incident.

"I find it very disturbing and a continuation of a set of problems both unnecessary and damaging to the prospects of the president for seeking peace," Weinberger said of the incident Wednesday.

"I think the Marine captain behaved not only correctly but with extreme courage," Weinberger said.

The commander of the Israeli forces in Beirut said Israel may demand that the Lebanese and U.S. Marines vacate their positions on the northern edge of Beirut if friction between them and his troops is not eliminated.

Israel radio quoted the Israeli commander as saying he was told by the U.S. Marine commander his men were not authorized to detain armed men in Beirut.

"This is odd since the Marines appear to have an authorization to jump on Israeli tanks with side arms drawn in an attempt to stop them, while they are unable to prevent terrorist activity," the commander said.

Economy lowers cage attendance

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The weakened economy is having a heavy effect on the athletic budgets of all Magic Valley high school teams plus College of Southern Idaho.

Twin Falls Principal Frank Charlton noted that the Bruin football team, the first to advance to the state championship finals, held up fairly well. But when the school backed that heady fall showing with perhaps the winningest basketball team in Twin Falls history, the results haven't been the same.

"Last year (when Twin Falls was 15-1) we averaged just under $900 at the gate for each game," said Charlton. "This year it's been about $500."

Vice principal Norm Thomas, who first came to Twin Falls as football coach and hence keeps an interest in that area, noted, however, that "in the last 12 years our football income has been very consistent. I don't think there would be $200 per game difference from the low to the high."

That indicates that the football team, while drawing well, would have done much better in an up economy.

Duke Wiseman, athletic director for Twin Falls High, had the usual budgetary concerns about the drop in income and wondered if there had been some alienating influence between the school and the community. But once he attended a Gem State Conference meeting he felt a lot better about the latter part.

"(conference members) talked about it and it turned out we are attracting the best crowds in the league. So I guess it's just a matter of the people not having the money to spend for a night out," Wiseman said. College of Southern Idaho Coach and Athletic Director Dave Campbell said his Eagles similarly are well behind in gate receipts against the past several years.

"It's funny, too," Campbell said. "We sold more season tickets this fall than the school ever has. But our walk-in ticket sales have been off. We were quite disappointed in the crowds we had at the K and T Steel tournament."

Bill Koch, a co-sponsor of the K and T Steel Tournament, for the first time expressed a little concern about the lack of support for the two-night stand. In all other years, Koch has been at least satisfied and usually pleased. But he doubts it will affect K and T's sponsorship next year as he, too, is willing to accept the economy climate as the major reason behind lower attendance.

Campbell laid the blame on the economy, too, noting that a large percentage of the season tickets are sold to businesses.

"But we know that our fans still like to see good basketball," Campbell said. "When one of the good teams or a traditional rival comes in, our attendance picks up."

He noted the Eagles had a good crowd for Snow College, which swept the home-and-home series this year. Since CSI had lost the first meeting, fans generally felt it would be a close, well-played game.

Perhaps the best crowd of the season showed up last weekend for the North Idaho game. The Cardinals usually are strong and with the regional tournament overtones, the crowd again anticipated a good battle.

"I think it's just a matter of the people picking out the games they think will be the best and saving the money when they don't feel the opposition is as good," Campbell said.

"We expect good crowds this week. Dixie (Thursday) has beaten CSI a couple of times up here and knocked us off early in the season this year. They know Dixie always plays well and a pretty good rivalry has built up between the two schools. Then Saturday night Ricks comes in and they generally draw the best crowd of the season."

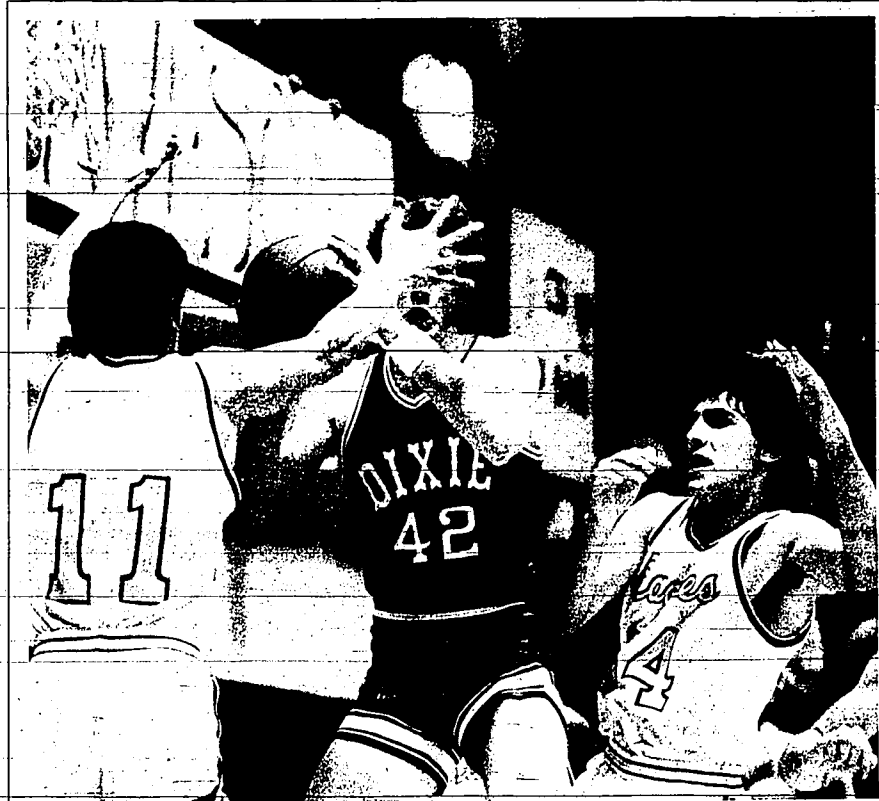

Despite those highs, however, Campbell said in several instances. •See FANS on Page B2

CSI dumps Dixie, 79-67

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Phil Rohr loves the second half of his sophomore year.

For the fifth straight game, the CSI forward scored in the 20s and aided by some good assist work by Dewey Haley, the Golden Eagles dropped the Dixie Rebels 79-67 Thursday night.

Rohr, who has averaged 26.4 in his last five games, crammed in 16 in the first half to give CSI the lead and then hit CSI's first six points in the second half to cancel Dixie's ideas of a comeback.

The victory, which evened the season at a game each for the two, raised the Eagles to 18-4. It also left them, as the crowd reminded with a chant late in the game, awaiting a Saturday night visit by Ricks Vikings, who overwhelmed Treasure Valley 91-48 in Ontario Thursday.

CSI's win didn't come all that easily. Robert Maxwell oiled up his long range jumper in the closing 15 minutes to consistently put Dixie in a challenging position. His fifth bucket of the half closed the gap to 59-54 with 8:12 remaining but the Albuquerque connection of Rohr and Ron Beach then picked up five points for CSI and the Eagles had at least eight the rest of the way.

Campbell said he kept his Eagles largely in man defense because "we couldn't get any momentum going." The Eagles tried a quick pace at the outset and the teams, Dixie getting key points from Dan Bell, battled through several ties until Eddie Farmer and Gerald Kennedy sent CSI ahead to stay. Kennedy's was a flashy 30-degree turn to wind up a fast break.

After Bell hit a Dixie free throw, Rohr, Beach and Farmer all picked up two points to extend the first major lead of the game to 27-18.

CSI inched that to 36-26 late in the half but couldn't get any farther away.

Dixie Coach Neil Roberts cited the shooting of Rohr as a big key. "It wasn't that he hit 16 points but that so many of his baskets came at key times. We'd get back within five or six and he'd hit a couple to get them going again," Roberts said.

Buckets by Bell and John Baucom pulled Dixie to within four in the first minute of the second half. For •See CSI on Page B2

Declo secures district crown

Shoshone forced to duel Parma

By MARV CLEMONS
Times-News sports editor

WENDELL — Just as history was about to grab Declo by the throat and Shoshone Indians were ready to gain the state tourney via the back door, the Hornets found success at the free throw line Thursday night.

Hornets Cindy Gillett, Holly Bortz and Lynn Barrington each made crucial free throws in the last 2:26 to give Declo a 45-40 win and the Fourth District A-3 Championship.

Declo will advance to next week's state tourney at College of Southern Idaho while Shoshone must defeat Parma at Gienns Ferry Saturday night to gain the elite eighth. Nampa Christian downed Parma 31-25 Thursday night to gain state and send the Panthers to the regional playoff.

Declo Coach Lynn Payne said, referring to last year's tourney that saw Declo lose twice to Valley to finish second in the regional chase.

Wednesday night Declo missed four one-and-one chances that, if made, could've sealed the district crown without going to the second game.

Gillett, Declo's point guard, was first to shake off free throw troubles. With Declo up just 38-34, she made the

With 58 seconds left Bortz made the first of a bonus for a 45-35 lead and with 25 seconds to play Barrington hit the most important ones, pushing Declo to a 44-39 lead after four free throws by Indian Clarin Osborn had pulled Shoshone within three.

Declo's free throws capped a less-than-good performance by both squads. Both Declo and Shoshone came out tight and never really did relax enough to play the brand of ball they're capable of. •See DECLO on Page B2

Bobcats face Moscow in playoff

Buhl drops Burley to gain state spot

By COLAN MULDOON
Times-News writer

BUHL — The Buhl Indians won a trip to the state tourney Thursday night by downing rival Burley 41-31 for the Fourth District A-2 championship.

It was Buhl's fourth victory in five meetings against the Bobcats this season and the Indians accomplished the victory in style by stifling the Burley offense with a tough zone defense which held the Bobcats scoreless until midway in the second quarter.

By coming through the hard way to this title, the Indians left Burley with a tough trip Saturday night. The Bobcats must travel to Cascade to meet second district champion Moscow at 4 p.m. The winner of that one advances to state in Pocatello next Thursday. Moscow, 19-1, is paced by 6-2 Andrea Lloyd, currently being recruited by Leovy school in the

Twin Falls holds a three-game lead over runner-up Pocatello in the Gem State standings and the Indians have a possibility of winning just 11 games.

Bruins can claim Gem State championship, tie win mark

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The district top seed is in hand and the Twin Falls Bruins stand on the threshold of clinching the Gem State Conference title plus at least a share of the all-time Bruin winning season.

The Bruins can lock up the latter two items at Skyline tonight and by hosting Idaho Falls Saturday.

Twin Falls holds a three-game lead over runner-up Pocatello in the Gem State standings and the Indians have a possibility of winning just 11 games. Twin Falls is 10-0 with four chances to pick up two more.

The best record by a Twin Falls team is 17-3, posted under Ollie Butler in 1959-60.

But Coach John Astorquia isn't thinking about those things in any particular way. He believes the key is to maintain the rate of improvement he's seeing in his club — and hope it carries into the tournament season.

"We're playing well right now in almost every aspect of the game. Our starters have become much more consistent and the entire bench has been performing well coming into the games. We're almost there, I think," the coach said.

"That does not lead him to believe his Bruins are invincible. "I think that Idaho Falls on paper is one of the three best teams in the conference. They have decent size, good talent and they are good shooters. Skyline, I just don't know about. It looks like they played their best two games against us and Minico a couple of weeks ago and they haven't won one since. But it's up there and anything can happen on the road."

Skyline took the Bruins into overtime before bowing 69-62.

Coach Jim Lewis complained of the officiating in that one but, Astorquia said, "he told me afterward that it probably was his team's best game of the season."

This time Skyline will have starting center Scott Schottfeld, 6-5, to try against Twin Falls. Injury held him out of the first meeting.

"Skyline plays hard, just like Minico," Astorquia said. "As a team they haven't shot well. They were hitting about 33 percent for the season but shot over 50 percent against us and Minico. Since then their scoring has dropped off again."

Idaho Falls continues to be the puzzle of the conference. The Tigers figured to be in the think of things but are lodged at 6-10.

"They've lost their last three games after building up substantial leads pretty late in the game but being unable to hold them. They had Pocatello by nine with three minutes to go and lost in overtime when Pocatello hit the next 22 points. They were up by nine over Minico in the second half and lost that and they had Bonneville down by 16 and lost. They beat Skyline by 15 the other night."

Here again, Twin Falls will see a different look as Idaho Falls has scrambled its lineup. Early last month Twin Falls had to scramble to beat the Tigers 47-43.

District wrestling

Spartans big favorite to retain A-1 crown

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Despite the appearance of Mountain Home for the first time, the host Minico Spartans are favored to win the Fourth District A-1 Wrestling Championship Saturday.

Mountain Home, traditionally a member of the third district, was moved into this area when Burley dropped into the A-2 classification last fall. The Tigers also will remain in the third district for basketball competition.

The tournament will begin at noon Saturday with each team allowed to enter two wrestlers per weight division. If they desire, Host Coach Jerry Enns said "we hope to run it straight through with the first session at noon, the second at 2 p.m. and the finals at 6 p.m."

Because of Mountain Home's entry, the tournament will include a "wrestle back" between the runner-up and the third-place finisher. That round will be fought after the champions have been decided.

Only the top two advance to the state tournament in Boise next week and since neither Twin Falls nor Minico had wrestled Mountain Home during the regular season, Enns said it was left to the wrestlers to make it more equitable and allow us to send the best to state.

Minico has eight first place seeds and doubles up with the top two in two divisions. Mountain Home has three first places and only Curtis Gambrel of Twin Falls was ranked No. 1 in his weight class.

Enns said he wasn't comfortable with the favorite's role because "we didn't wrestle Mountain Home during the season. We just went on individual records (for seed purposes) and we couldn't go much on common opponents. We just had Buhl Jerome as common opponents. So the seeding isn't going to tell everything."

Minico heavyweight David Pena, who was third in state last year, brings the best record into the tournament at 2-1. He lost a 6-4 decision to a Blackfoot wrestler in a weekend tournament and came back the next Tuesday to average it. His Tad Barrie, 167-pounder, has posted a 2-2 record for the Spartans and is seeking to improve just one notch from his state runner-up finish of 1982. Robert Kuzler drew the 105-pound nod because he was undefeated in that weight in eight matches. However, Kuzler did wrestle up on several occasions at 112 and came out of the season with an overall 19-5 mark.

Twin Falls didn't have a full team to begin with and has thinned down since then. The Bruins will fill two spots in just two weights from 98 to 138. But due to injuries, the Bruins will be without a 145-pounder and the 155-pound ranks were thinned when sophomore Mike Smith was injured. All three are out with shoulder problems.

In the upper weights, Jim Lutes and Gambrel are pencilled in at 185 pounds but both have been ill this week. Should one or the other not be able to go, D.W. Lindsay, 185 back from a foot injury, will drop from heavyweight to the 185-pound class.

Like Minico, Twin Falls knows little of Mountain Home although the Bruins saw the Tigers in an early-season tournament in Jerome. "They had good wrestlers," Enns said. "Twin Falls' Coach Ed Coak (2-4) and (Brent) Pease (1-5) appears to be an excellent one."

The top two seeds for each division include:

- 98 - 1. Scott Milroy, Mountain Home; 2. Gomer Hegala, Twin Falls.
- 105 - 1. Hubert Kuzler, Minico; 2. Scott Grimmel, Mountain Home.
- 112 - 1. Sam Crane, Minico; 2. Corey Thurston, Minico.
- 119 - 1. Fonz Garza, Mountain Home; 2. Ron Haag, Minico.
- 125 - 1. John Martinez, Minico; 2. Eric Love, Mountain Home.
- 132 - 1. Clint Cooper, Minico; 2. Greg Hicks, Mountain Home.
- 138 - 1. Stacy Kay, Minico; 2. Great Buck, Twin Falls.
- 145 - 1. Steve Son, Minico; 2. Erin Howell, Mountain Home.
- 155 - 1. Brett Pease, Mountain Home; 2. John Landon, Twin Falls.
- 170 - 1. Tad Barrie, Minico; 2. Clay Cooper, Minico.
- 185 - 1. Curtis Gambrel, Twin Falls; 2. Melbert Taylor, Minico.
- 197 - 1. David Pena, Minico; 2. Andrew Halley, Mountain Home.

Jerome battles Burley in clash for A-2 title

By MARY CLEMONS
Times-News sports editor

BUHLI — Jerome and Burley are expected to engage in a close battle for the team title entering the state wrestling championship. The two wrestlers have the chance of going to state with undefeated records when the Fourth District A-2 Wrestling Tournament is held Saturday.

Four teams — Jerome, Burley, Buhl and Wood River — will enter the meet that decides the district champion as well as which two wrestlers from each weight enter the state meet scheduled for next week at Boise State University.

The meet starts at 11 a.m. and will continue the rest of the afternoon with some short breaks between rounds. The finals are slated for a 5:30 p.m. start. Admission prices are $3 for adults and $2 for students.

It looks like Jerome and Burley will be close for first with a possible edge going to Jerome because of depth. Meet Director Jerry Jenking of Buhl will head the Thursday.

Defending champion Jerome has the edge in No. 1 seeds since five Tigers earned the honor at the seeding meeting. Burley has just two top seeds. Buhl has three No. 1 seeds and Wood River gained the other two.

Jerome's depth shows up in the No. 2 seeds. The Tigers have four who earned the second spot to give Jerome nine of its 12 wrestlers among the top two seeds.

Jerome won the title last year with 215 points while Buhl was second with 189 and Wood River scored 87 points. Burley competed on the A-1 level last season.

The two grapplers entering the meet undefeated are Wood River 185-pounder Don Davis (23-0) and Jerome's 126-pounder Troy Wall (21-0).

Wrestlers in the meet who won district championships last year include: Jerome's Dan Karr (1982 winner at 98 pounds) and Wall (126). Wood River's Robbie Miller (145) and Davis (167) and Buhl's John McDevitt (155).

This year's state meet will be held at the BSU Pavilion Feb. 10-12.

- The top two seeds for the district tournament, with season records, include:
- 98 - 1. Marvin Lopez, Burley; 2. Vance Peterson, Jerome; 15-10.
  - 105 - 1. Brad Baker, Burley; 1-2; 2. Robert Frasier, Jerome; 1-10.
  - 112 - 1. Dan Karr, Jerome; 23-1; 2. Tom Young, Wood River; 13-11.
  - 119 - 1. Sam Crane, Jerome; 10-0; 2. Casey Frasier, Buhl; 11-11.
  - 125 - 1. Troy Wall, Jerome; 21-0; 2. K.C. Jackman, Burley; 16-9.
  - 132 - 1. Keith Mackawa, Jerome; 10-4; 2. Scott Beck, Burley; 11-8.
  - 138 - 1. Kevin Chapman, Buhl; 25-1; 2. Ron Adams, Jerome; 3-6.
  - 145 - 1. Brett Hue, Jerome; 16-6; 2. John Hill, Buhl; 16-11.
  - 155 - 1. Robbie Miller, Wood River; 20-1; 2. Scott Newman, Burley; 17-10.
  - 170 - 1. John McDevitt, Buhl; 20-1; 2. Spencer Tolman, Jerome; 10-4.
  - 185 - 1. Don Davis, Wood River; 23-0; 2. Drew Hurl, Burley; 24-3.
  - 197 - 1. Lope Hamon, Buhl; 18-4; 2. Shawn Conder, Burley; 15-10.

Globetrotter player-coach arrested for cocaine, marijuana possession

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — A tip from federal narcotics agents at San Francisco led to the arrest of Nate Branch, player-coach of the Harlem Globetrotters' basketball team, authorities said Wednesday.

Arizona narcotics agents charged Branch, 33, with drug possession. Agents seized two grams of cocaine and two ounces of marijuana from his luggage after he arrived at Tucson International Airport Wednesday night.

Branch was allowed to play an exhibition game at Tucson Community Center and then was booked into jail.

The arrest was made about 90 minutes before the game. Just after Branch got off a flight from San Francisco.

A jail spokesman said Thursday morning that Branch "has been released from the facility." There was no immediate word on arrangements for a court appearance.

Kansas City hires Cowboys' assistant

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Kansas City Chiefs Thursday dipped into Tom Landry's staff with the Dallas Cowboys to claim quarterback coach John Mackovic as their new head coach.

Mackovic signed a five-year contract with the Chiefs to become the fifth head coach in the history of the franchise. He replaced Mary Levy, who was fired two days after the completion of the 1982 regular season following a 3-6 finish by the Chiefs.

Levy had coached Kansas City for five seasons without delivering a playoff berth. The Chiefs have now gone 11 consecutive seasons without making the playoffs — the longest drought of any AFC team and the second longest in the NFL, behind the New Orleans Saints, who have never played a post-season game in their 16-year existence.

"I was impressed with the total team organization," said Mackovic, who spoke to the press via a speaker phone from Hawaii where he and the Dallas staff were preparing the NFC team for Sunday's Pro Bowl Game.

"The Chiefs have had a great reputation, both in the old AFL and in the early years after the merger, as being one of the outstanding teams. Their overall history and tradition helped me to feel that it could be done again and it should be done again," he said.

Mackovic, 39, served the last two seasons as quarterback coach of the Cowboys following a three-year stint as the head coach at Wake Forest.

"We feel John is the most outstanding young coach in professional football," Chiefs President Jack Steadman said. "He has had head coaching experience as a college coach at Wake Forest, where he took a program that was floundering and produced the best record at the school since 1944."

"As the quarterback coach of the Dallas Cowboys, John has had the benefit of working for and learning from one of the NFL's most successful coaches and organizations."

Mackovic posted a 1-0 record in his first season at Wake Forest in 1979 but was named the Atlantic Coast Conference's Coach of the Year in 1979 when his Demon Deacons rode the passing of Jay Venuto to an 8-3 record and a Tangerine Bowl berth.

Venuto threw for 2,400 yards that season and Wake Forest had two of the nation's top 15 receivers in Wayne Baumgardner (55 catches, 1,000 yards) and Albert Kirby (48 catches). Venuto passed for 2,500 yards the following year and Kenny Duckett ranked among the national leaders in receiving with 50 catches but the Demon Deacons were able to manage only a 5-6 record.

Mackovic moved from there to Dallas in 1981 and the Cowboys went on to rank No. 2 in the NFC in passing behind the eventual Super Bowl champion San Francisco 49ers. The Cowboys slipped to No. 6 in the NFC in passing in 1982 but scored the most points of any team in the conference with the overwhelming majority of those — 16 touchdowns — coming through the air.

In two seasons under the direction of Mackovic, Dallas quarterback Danny White completed 59 percent of his passes for 5,177 yards and 38 touchdowns.

Lack of offense prompts Tampa Bay firings

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Tampa Bay's lack of a consistent offensive punch has led to the firing of two Buccaneer assistants — quarterback coach Bill Nelsen and offensive line coach Bill Johnson.

The Bucs confirmed Thursday rumors that had circulated for several weeks that Nelsen and Johnson were out.

There was no word on replacements, although head Coach John McKay said he was considering moving former Green Bay Packer star Boyd Dowler from wide receivers coach to quarterback coach.

The Bucs were 5-4 in the strike-shortened 1982 season and lost in the opening round of the playoffs to the Dallas Cowboys.

Most of the blame for the poor showing fell on the offense. In the first game after the strike ended, the Bucs had first down inside the Dallas 10-yard line five times but could not score a touchdown, settling for three field goals in a 14-9 loss.

For the season, Tampa averaged 17.5 points per game and was 19th in the NFL in rushing yardage, sixth in passing, 22nd in average yards gained per rush, and 11th in average yards gained per pass.

"We'll have to find out if it's what we're doing that's wrong or how we've been going about it," McKay said of the offense. "I suspect the latter."

One rumor had Nelsen remaining with the Bucs in a newly-created position of director of research and development, but McKay said Nelsen was leaving the staff by mutual agreement.

LaRussa still uncertain about LeFlore's return

RON LEFLORE
Still in doghouse?

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago White Sox Manager Tony LaRussa met with outfielder Ron LeFlore Thursday but said it may be another week before he decides whether to invite LeFlore to the Sox spring training camp.

LaRussa said if LeFlore is invited back, he would try LeFlore in leftfield rather than centerfield.

"I wasn't convinced that he could play centerfield the way we wanted," said LaRussa, who met with LeFlore in Florida. "I'd rather give him a shot at left and let him battle it out with Ron Kittle or Tom Paclorak."

LeFlore, who is in the final year of a four-year contract with Chicago, was arrested last year on drug charges.

He spent most of the 1982 season in LaRussa's doghouse, seeing limited playing time.

LeFlore reportedly earns around $700,000 a year.

Yugoslavians pushing to make '84 Olympics better than '80 event

By MORLEY MYERS
UPI sports writer

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia — If faith can move mountains, then willingsness and a little ingenuity can make them grow taller.

When the Sarajevo organizers of the 1984 Winter Olympic Games discovered the vertical drop on the men's downhill course at Bjelasnic was below the 800 meter minimum, they solved the problem by siting a four-story building on top of the mountain.

Now skiers start the event from the third floor terrace, right in the heart of the building, and 803 meters above the finish line.

There is no doubt the 450,000 inhabitants of this capital town of Bosnia Herzegovina are right behind the push to make next year's 14th Winter Olympics one to remember.

But whether Sarajevo can overcome the problems which sank the 1980 hosts, in Lake Placid, N.Y., is open to argument.

Critics say Sarajevo has the willingness, though not the know-how, but the town believes differently and will use the experience from holding 10 major pre-Olympic events to iron away the wrinkles for the real thing.

"We cannot perform miracles. We cannot control the weather, for instance," said Pavle Lukac, Sarajevo's Olympic press chief. "But whatever is humanly possible to achieve, we will do."

"Nema Problema" (no problem) is everyone's lips here.

It is a phrase learned in childhood right after mama and tata (mummy and daddy). It seems "ima problema" (there is a problem) does not exist in the Serbo-Croatian vocabulary.

But wishing it so does not necessarily mean it is so, and often "nema problema" means exactly the opposite.

Until recently, Sarajevo's major claim to fame has been the place where Archduke Ferdinand was assassinated, thus sparking off World War I.

after the disasters of Lake Placid. By early March, almost all the Olympic venues will have been tried and tested at an international level — 10 events in 59 days — more in the same space of time than for any previous Winter Games center.

The program started Dec. 14-19, 1982, with the world junior figure skating championships at the newly-built 8,500 capacity Zetra Olympic Hall complex.

The men's World Cup downhill ski race was held at Mount Bjelasnic last Friday, followed on the weekend by the European two-man bob championships at Trebevie, where the four-man event is scheduled Saturday and Sunday.

This weekend will also see the staging of the World Cup women's downhill and giant slalom on Mount Jahorina.

Come next Monday, it will be one year to the day before ice hockey launches the 1984 Winter Olympic Games.

Major work at all the venues has been completed, apart from some cosmetic surgery, which includes adjustments to the bob and luge track.

But, as Pavle Lukac is so fond of repeating, the Sarajevo Olympic Games Organizing Committee has no control over the weather and mother nature could play havoc with the Games.

Last week's men's downhill had to be postponed for 24 hours and the first two days of training for Saturday's women's downhill have been canceled.

Sarajevo's tiny airport has been made non-operative for most of the past week and although improvements in weather maintenance are planned, the night train route seems the safest bet for competitors and spectators alike.

However, if the weather is cooperative, you can forget all your troubles. "Nema Problema" is the password.

Inman fires 65 for 1-shot Crosby lead

By JOE SARGIS
UPI sports writer

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. -- Joe Inman, whose only victory in nine years on the PGA Tour was in the 1976 Kemper Open, blistered through Pebble Beach with a 7-under-par 65 Thursday to grab the first round lead in the $225,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am.

The 35-year-old Inman, who has played in all four previous events this year and won $13,483, made only one mistake in an otherwise perfect round to take the lead by a stroke over Ken Green and Fred Couples with U.S. Open champ Tom Watson and Gil Morgan, winners of the 1983 Tucson and Los Angeles Opens, another shot back.

When the forecast rain did not hit the Monterey Peninsula, it made play over the three seaside courses -- Pebble Beach, Cypress Point and Spyglass Hill -- used in the Crosby a lot more manageable.

Inman had eight birdies and one bogey on a card of 30-35 but minimized his fine play, saying it was due in large part to the fact players were allowed to pick up and clean their balls because of the extremely wet conditions.

"Putting your hand on the ball gives you a perfect lie every time," said Inman. "That had to influence the scores. Obviously, I made some putts but I might not have had we been forced to play the ball as she lies."

Couples played his first round at Cypress Point, as did Watson and Morgan, while Green opened at the tougher Spyglass. Watson might have shot better than his 67 had he not put his second shot on the final hole in a tree. He was forced to hit again when "I could barely see it, but there was another ball up there, too," said Watson, who seven months ago won the U.S. Open at Pebble Beach.

"Had I cleared the tree I might have been looking at 64," added Watson, who was honored Thursday as winner of the 1982 Pressure Proof Athlete of the Year. Calvin Peete, who finished fourth on the money list last year and is seeking to win a place on this year's Ryder Cup team, shot a 68 at Cypress, as did Bruce Lietzke and Keith Fergus, winner this year of the Bob Hope Desert Classic. Bob Shearer, Ron Commans, Lindy Miller and Donnie Hammond shot 68 at Pebble and John Fought had a 68 at Spyglass.

Hal Sutton, the 1982 Rookie of the Year, and Rex Caldwell, who lost out in playoffs at both the Hope and Phoenix Opens this year, were in a group tied at 69, while Ben Crenshaw was in a group tied at 70 and Jack Nicklaus and Craig Stadler, the 1982 leading money winner, were in a group deadlocked at 71.

Inman was close to the hole all day. He missed an eagle on the second hole when his wedge shot went directly into the hole and came back out to six inches.

"I don't think I could have played any better," said Inman. "The key was my putting. I felt I could make it every time."

Bob Gilder, who beat Caldwell for the Phoenix title last Sunday on the eighth extra hole of their dramatic playoff, shot an even-par 72 at Spyglass.

Rookie masters course, wind for LPGA lead

MIAMI (UPI) -- Rookie Lauri Peterson conquered the Turnberry 18-hole Country Club course and a flicking wind with a 69 Thursday to take a one-shot first round lead at the LPGA tour's second tournament of the year.

Tied one stroke back at 70-under-par 70 in the $150,000 tournament were Debbie Massey, Janet Coles and Anne-Marie Fat of France.

Eight golfers were tied for fifth at 71. They were Marty Dickerson, Lauren Howe, Vicki Ferguson, JoAnn Washam, Nancy Lopez, Alice Ritzman, Jeannette Kerr and Laura Hurlbut.

Defending champion JoAnne Carner finished at even-par 72 along with Pat Bradley, an easy winner at the tour's first tournament last week.

Ferguson joked after her round that "my goal this year is basically to find the fairway. It was an adventure, but it wasn't all that bad. I only hit seven or eight fairways out of 14."

She sank a 10-foot putt for a birdie on the par-5 2nd hole, and added birdie putts of 8 and 35 feet on the 5th and 6th holes before bogeying the 7th.

She hit the tee shot on the par-3, 142-yard test into a bunker, blasted to 25 feet and two-putted. She got the stroke back immediately by sinking a 10-foot putt for a birdie 4 on the 8th.

On the back nine she bogeyed on the 10th when she hooked her drive wide of the fairway and posted a three-putt bogey on No. 15. In between she sandwiched a birdie 4 on the 11th hole with a 5-foot putt, and a 3 on the par-4 14th with a 10-footer.

"The wind started really getting hectic there at the end," she said. "When you have a lead you start to be protective, but I hope to be aggressive. Still, I can't say I'm going to go out and shoot the lights out tomorrow."

Peterson tied for 39th last week at Deer Creek in her first event after winning her LPGA card last month. In three previous events as an amateur and a non-LPGA pro her best finish was a tie for ninth in last year's Sun City Open near her Phoenix home.

Carner said she was surprised to see a rookie in the lead on the extremely tough Turnberry on the Country Club Course, especially with the wind blowing as unpredictably as it was.

"Players who play well here are generally your top 10 money winners," said Carner, who led the money list last year. "You really don't expect a rookie to lead."

"When I got to the back side, the wind kept switching," Carner said. "I had a lot of trouble with the wind switching in the middle of my backswing."

Coles started with three birdies on her first five holes, but stumbled on the back nine with three bogeys, two of them on three putts. She rallied by sinking a 4-foot putt for birdie on the par 3 17th and then canned a 35-footer for a birdie 4 on the 18th.

Massey went into her final hole needing a par to tie Peterson. But she buried her second shot in a sand trap and had to settle for a bogey. Massey, like everyone else who played Thursday, talked about the difficulty of the course and the wind, but she said she didn't mind.

"This is a hard course but a course I really like so we get along really well together. It's a wonderful test, especially in the wind."

This is Palli's second try on the tour. She first qualified in 1979, but lost her card for poor play two years later. After being named player of the year on the mini-tour last year, she qualified again last month.

"I still feel like I'm a rookie. When I first qualified, I wasn't really ready," said the 27-year-old French citizen.

Bad weather slows skiers

By United Press International

Poor weather conditions in Yugoslavia and Austria caused more problems for World Cup ski racers Thursday.

At Sarajevo, Yugoslavia, high winds again cancelled a race for Saturday's women's World Ski Cup downhill race.

The wind velocity in the upper reaches of the 1,965-meter course at Mount Jahorina reached 37 miles an hour, making training impossible.

At St. Anton, Austria, heavy snowfalls and poor visibility forced organizers to cancel training for Saturday's men's World Cup downhill race and to consider a change of this weekend's alpine combined program.

"If the poor weather should prevail, we may stage the slalom on Saturday instead of Sunday and then postpone the downhill from Saturday to Sunday," said former world champion Karl Schranz, who is in charge of the races.

Under normal conditions, the racers would take off for two practice runs on Friday and then hold the downhill on Saturday.

Reports that slalom king Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden would take part in the downhill for the second time in his career are unfounded.

Tony Mannen rehearses with the Magic Valley Symphony for 'Peter and the Wolf'

Symphony slates 'Peter and the Wolf'

TWIN FALLS — A popular symphonic tale for children, "Peter and the Wolf," will be featured at the Magic Valley Symphony concert next Saturday, Feb. 12.

Carson Wong will be the guest conductor for the group's final concert of the season, which will begin at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of the Fine Arts Building at the College of Southern Idaho.

Tony Mannen, assistant professor of speech and drama at CSI, will narrate "Peter and the Wolf." The symphony also will play Dvorak's "Symphony No. 4" and "Night on a Bald Mountain" by Mussorgsky.

Mannen, who is in his eighth year at CSI, has directed 20 productions here. He is a graduate of the University of Northern Colorado and took undergraduate work at Eastern Kentucky University. He currently is directing "A Man for All Seasons," scheduled for March 3-5.

Wong, a native of Hong Kong, emigrated to the United States as a teenager. He earned his bachelor's degree from the University of California at Berkeley, and a master's degree in conducting from San Jose State University in California.

He taught music for 13 years in the Jerome public schools and for two years at Caldwell before joining the CSI music department three years ago as associate professor of vocal music. He has directed the Magic Valley Chorale since 1980.

Tickets, which are $2 for adults and $1 for children, will be available at the door on the night of the concert.

Utah festival unveils talent

Films without the usual hype

By ROGER EBERT
The Chicago Sun-Times

PARK CITY, Utah — Up here in the mountains above Salt Lake City, one of the best and nicest and most unusual film festivals in America is held every year. It takes place on the three screens of the mini-theater complex in the town's only shopping center, and in a downtown theater that used to be a mining-town music hall and is now a national historical landmark.

The emphasis is not on big names and major Hollywood movies, but on small, independently produced features, documentaries and video productions. There's a low-key atmosphere, with filmmakers, distributors and audience members hanging out in the Holiday Inn and at the "B.V.O." parties every night. It's not a festival for high rollers; some of the directors in this festival couldn't have afforded to attend the closing-night dinner if a local donor hadn't picked up the tab.

The U.S. Film and Video Festival held its fifth-annual screenings Jan. 17 through 23, and once again it provided a showcase for independent films that might be overlooked in the promotional hoopla of larger festivals. There were feature films made for $250,000 or less (sometimes very much less), and documentaries and video productions ranging from straight journalism to pure experimentation. The audiences trooped through the snow from one screening to another, and one tribute to the festival in this famous ski resort was that not as many people went skiing as you would have expected.

This is the festival that in past years has been a showcase for such independent films as "Heartland" and "Return of the Secaucus Seven" and such documentaries as "Gates of Heaven," "The Weavers" and "Soldier Girls." This year, the new documentaries made a stronger showing, as a group, than the new features, and there was such an obvious trend toward documentaries about the threat of nuclear war that a mushroom cloud almost seemed to hang above the ski slopes.

The grand-prize winner in the documentary category was "Dark Circle," an extraordinary film that combined new investigative journalism with absolutely remarkable footage obtained from the government under the Freedom of Information Act.

Some scenes in "Dark Circle" go inside the nuclear-bomb factory at Rocky Flats, Colo. to show plutonium warheads being made. Other scenes go inside the minds of people in Rocky Flats and elsewhere who believe they have contracted cancer through exposure to plutonium, the most carcinogenic substance known to science.

The chilling message of the movie is that one plutonium warhead contains enough of the substance to give cancer to everyone alive, that 50,000 of them are in existence, and that three more are being made every working day of the year. It is a possibility, this film argues, that America's nuclear-defense program will in the long run kill millions of Americans even if not a single bomb is ever dropped.

Among the film's extraordinary footage, retrieved from government archives, are shots of pigs being sewn up in aluminum overcoats for a bizarre nuclear test, and American soldiers being flown through a mushroom cloud, without their knowledge and permission, for a test that apparently gave many of them leukemia. The movie tries to cover too much ground (in addition to Rocky Flats, it also considers the Diablo Canyon nuclear-plant controversy, and follows up on the blast at Nagasaki, Japan), but there is not a moment of it that is not fascinating, and frightening, to watch.

The grand-prize winner in the feature category at Park City was "Purple Haze," a film that also played in the Chicago International Film Festival. It was directed by David Morris and written by Victoria Wozniak, who collaborated five years ago on a well-known independent feature named "Loose Ends." "Purple Haze" is a remarkably accurate re-creation of the late 1960s—it follows its hero, a law school dropout, through a period when he tries to avoid the draft, reassess his life and deal with pressures from his family and friends. The movie owes some of its atmosphere to a sound track heavy with late-1960s songs, but it goes even more to its very accurate memory of exactly what it was like to be of draft age in the late 1960s.

Other winners in the documentary category included two films about human prejudice: "Coming of Age," about a summer-camp program to allow teenagers to confront their racial and sexual stereotyping, and "Fire on the Water," about a confrontation between the lifestyles of Texas fishermen and Vietnamese refugees.

"Honorable mentions" went to two performance films: "Moses Pendleton on Moses Pendleton," a modern dancer's exploration of his own life and art, and "Say Amen, Somebody," a joyous film about gospel music, which I think is one of the best documentaries I've ever seen.

In the feature category, special jury prizes went to "Chan Is Missing," the exploration of San Francisco's Chinatown, and "The Ballad of Gregorio Cortez," an ambitious drama about a turn-of-the-century Mexican peasant who is made the victim of Anglo racism because of a simple mistake in translation.

"The message of the Park City festival is pretty clear. It suggests that there is a whole world of American film that exists outside the studio system — films made by people who

Morrison's book coming as a movie

Sun Valley resident's diverse background flows into his work

By WILLETTA WARBERG
Times-News arts critic

Coming this March, a marketing consultant, a financial consultant, a management analyst, a movie producer, a world traveler, a movie script and novel writer, a father of six children and a student of religious studies will be ordained priest of the Sun Valley Episcopal Church.

His name is Nick Morrison. He's 43 and he was born in Pleasantville, N.Y.

It seems incongruous that a world traveler and the author of the cloak-and-dagger book "Intercept," which is being made into a movie to be filmed in Switzerland this coming year, should move to a small ski town in the Rockies and become a priest.

But meeting with Morrison for no more than an hour reveals a brilliant and many-faceted mind and personality, equal to doing just about anything staggering he sets out to do.

"Intercept" is a rapidly moving factual story about snake-pit shenanigans of big-international business. It traces what happens to six middle-aged executives, well-trained and accustomed to a degree of financial security, when they find themselves without a job.

It's a vividly delicious book, full of international intrigue and suspense. The book is in third printing now and is available at most Magic Valley bookstores.

At present, Morrison is rewriting his second book "The Greek Sanctions," which is set in Athens in 1975 and carries a CIA theme. The rewrite is a result of a thievery in Morrison's kitchen three years ago. Nobody knows why the thief wanted his 400-page manuscript about the CIA in Athens, Or do they?

Morrison's third opus is about international terrorist activities and the threats made on Pope John Paul II's life. One-hundred pages have been completed to date.

Karen, the author's 24-year-old wife, is a yoga teacher in Ketchikan, where they reside. They are expecting their first child this fall. Karen is the second Mrs. Morrison.

McGuire follows traditions of Western art

By WILLETTA WARBERG
Times-News arts critic

"The West is dead!
You may lose a sweetheart,
But you won't forget her."

Charles M. Russell wrote that about 90 years ago.

Theodore Roosevelt, a few years before that, commended Frederic Remington for his important documentation of the Old West passing into limbo and an era gone, but not forgotten.

Remington and Russell are probably the best-known recorders of the "Western business," as Teddy Roosevelt referred to it. Both were self-taught writers and artists, and they sketched their chronicles of the Old West on the scene, in every medium. Imaginable — poetry, prose, pen-and-ink drawings, etchings, watercolors, oils and sculpting.

Both of these artists lived and worked as cowboys. Both were characterized as hard as nails and both gave sharp vignettes of human beings making history, amid rough Western surroundings.

Fantastic post-mortems of Remington and Russell can be viewed these days from such notable Northwest-oriented painters as John Clymer, Frank McCarthy, Ned Jacobs and James Barna, to name a few.

And then there is Mickey McGuire. Last week, at the Lone Trail Studios in Burley, McGuire displayed a sizable collection of oils and watercolors. McGuire was teaching his craft to many Magic Valley artist admirers during those five days in Burley.

McGuire was born over 50 years ago in Houston. He learned to paint as a child on his uncle's knees. His formal training was from Borland in Texas, Paulk in Louisiana and Williams in Florida.

After leaving Texas and moving to Colorado, McGuire became friends with Ben Tilsworth, a nephew of Charles M. Russell.

McGuire has won four awards in the Death Valley, Calif., national art competition. At the moment, he hangs in galleries in Louisiana, Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, California and Texas.

In Jackson Hole, Wyo., at a drugstore corner, throughout the summer months, McGuire can be seen painting everything from the wagons, mountain ranges, Indians, stage coaches and Western wildlife to portraits.

McGuire is a conceptualist painter. His paintings avoid any identification with any era. Instead, they entertain a jumbled sense of Old West fantasy.

The artist's dress, person and style are not rough and tumble as the artist he relates to — Charles M. Russell. And there is some artificiality in his painting, as well as a grotesqueness, especially in the heads of people and the animals. Perhaps this is because of his overzealous attempt to manufacture a dead truth.

Maybe McGuire should qualify his paintings as fantasy instead of "true-to-life" realism. It then might be easier to enjoy them. And they might better earn their separate space in Western painting history.

McGuire began learning his art as a child seldom tune in to see anything else, a manifestation generally involving intellectual shows — especially dramas such as "The Paper Chase."

But "Cheers" is not a cerebral show. Neither does it rely on physical comedy, slapstick or the sophomoric. It is sophisticated to a degree, eliciting laughs from impeccably drawn characters and their interrelationships.

A piquant romance exists between the two leading characters, Sam "Mayday" Malone, an ex-baseball relief pitcher who owns the bar, and Diane Chambers, an overeducated would-be poetess reduced to working as a barmaid.

They are a delightfully attractive couple played by Ted Danson and

Dear Abby

Two deaths pose delicate question

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I were close to my brother and his wife. We took many vacation trips together and were a very compatible foursome.

Two years ago my wife passed away and I have been very lonely since. Two weeks ago my brother died, very suddenly. During the few days I spent with the entire family, it occurred to me to speak to my bereaved sister-in-law about a possible future together, but I thought it would be much too premature and in poor taste, so I said nothing.

Naturally she will have a period of mourning, followed by a period of adjustment, but after that I think she and I could find companionship together in the years ahead.

My question: How long should I wait? I'm afraid if I wait too long some other man may step in ahead of me. She's a very attractive woman. I have a hunch she would favor me if she knew I was interested. How can

I handle this in good taste?
— AN EYE TO THE FUTURE
DEAR EYE: As a member of the family, you have an inside track, but don't crowd her. Be attentive, solicitous, sympathetic and available for hand-holding in a brotherly, non-aggressive manner.

Don't make any moves until she indicates that she has more than a platonic interest in you. Just be there with a soft shoulder to cry on, and if your hunch is right, when the time is right, she'll drop into your palm like a ripe peach.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a college student who has dated this young man (also a college student) for a year. We've become very close, see each other often and, of course, he has met my parents. (I live at home, and so does he.)

In all the time we've gone together I have never been in his home, nor have I met his parents. I have hinted that I would like to meet them, but he always says it's not convenient because we live so far apart. (45-minute drive). I have offered to drive over to his house, but he's never taken me up on it.

I really can't understand it. I'm not ugly or stupid, and I have good manners. I can't think of any reason why he should be ashamed of me. I've met the parents of other guys I haven't been nearly as close to.

What do you think is wrong here?
— PUT OFF AND PUZZLED

DEAR P. AND P.: I think he's ashamed of his parents, or his home. And possibly both.

DEAR ABBY: You often receive letters from young girls asking, "Should I or should I not go all the way before marriage?"

I was given a beautiful reason why I should not, and I never forgot it. There were no heavy warnings or confusing explanations. It was simply this: "Intimacy between man and woman is God's wedding gift to the newlyweds, and his gift is not to be opened early."

New armless turntable built by perfectionists

By RICH WARREN
The Chicago Sun-Times

The audio industry is re-arming. There's a war out there and it's going to straight-arm its way into your living room. No doubt you've seen the conventional tone arm, pivoted from the right-hand corner of your turntable, being replaced by the newfangled arm that rides a rail straight across the disc. It's called straight-line tracking and it's supposed to solve the problem of improper tracking angle caused by pivoting tone arms.

The concept isn't new. It was introduced more than a decade ago by Rabco and Bang and Olufsen. It didn't flourish until the Japanese had saturated the market with direct-drive turntables. Once everyone owned a direct-drive, manufacturers needed something new to sell. Thus, virtually every manufacturer boasts a straight-line-tracking turntable.

Revox, a company known for perfectionist tendencies, displays them on the B791 SLT direct-drive turntable. You never see the tone arm. It's hidden in a housing that swings out of the way to place a disc on the platter, then swings back over to play. Then you just push a button and the hidden arm is lowered to playing position.

Revox designed one of the most precise mechanisms in the industry to guide the tone arm across the record. Unlike pivoting arms, SLT's need sophisticated electronics to keep the arm centered in the groove, moving smoothly across the record. This is where many manufacturers skimp, though it's invisible to the eye. If the guidance electronics and mechanical system that carries the arm are poorly designed, tracking error is much worse than conventional arms.

Music

An advantage of the SLT is that it permits a tiny tone arm, yet most Japanese manufacturers still incorporate a rather massive arm in their SLT's. Revox, on the other hand, uses one of the tiniest, lowest-mass arms in the audio industry. (To see it, you'll have to remove the housing shell.) This is a boon for tracking warped records.

Although the Revox turntable suspension at first impact doesn't seem as shock absorbent as some turntables, it is specially tuned to ward off spurious vibrations. The only caveat is that unless you purchase the Revox with its pre-mounted, custom-modified Shure cartridge (similar to the V15, Type V) you'd best have your choice of cartridge installed by a patient, talented technician.

Re-arming with the B791 is an expensive $750, but there is a no-frills model for only $600.

Not-so-hot ratings plague 'Cheers'

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD — Almost everyone in the media and most folks in Hollywood agree that the best weekly TV comedy to come along in years is "Cheers," the Boston barroom sitcom.

But "Cheers" is in rating trouble, regularly mixed deep in the ratings, a fact that astounds many critics and reviewers.

Why would a quality comedy, sharply written and brightly played by an attractive cast, find itself without a solid audience?

Any TV diagnostician would look immediately at its opposition programs — "Simon & Simon" and "It Takes Two" — "Simon & Simon," a humorous detective show, is regularly in the top 15 or 20. "It Takes Two" does only slightly better than "Cheers."

Ergo, "Simon & Simon" is a definite factor.

What is "Cheers" lead in? "Gimme A Break," a mindless, lowly rated sitcom with slightly higher ratings than "Cheers."

And what show follows "Cheers"? The most acclaimed series on the air, "Hill Street Blues," which has a healthy rating in and around the top 20.

Another factor is that "Cheers" is on NBC, which runs fast in network ratings.

That "Cheers" is set in a tavern would not appear to be pertinent. The old "Duffy's Tavern" and "Archie Bunker's Place," apparently have not raised the ire of the blue nose crowd.

Why, then, especially in view of universal praise by critics, is "Cheers" not a big hit?

Producers Less and Glen Charles and producer-director James Burrows (all three formerly associated with "Taxi") are at a loss to understand why their series appeals to such a selective audience.

It is apparent that "Cheers" is watched by millions of viewers who need to make them, who feel a compulsion to tell a story or share a vision for reasons having little to do with box-office performance. I was asked at one point during the week if I saw any "trends" in the new independent productions, and I had to say that there are never any trends in independent productions, because each film begins with an individual inspiration.

Some of the films shown at Park City will get commercial distribution.

Some of them, like "Purple Haze" and "Say Amen, Somebody" may even become box-office successes. Other films may find a home on PBS or cable. The point at Park City, I think, is that although success and exposure are important, they are not everything. A more important thing is to make a film that you feel you must make, in the way you must make it. That leads to a certain heady idealism that, along with the clear mountain air, makes Park City one of the most encouraging film festivals I know about.

New books a notch above Garfield

By HENRY KISOR
The Chicago Sun-Times

Is there life after Garfield? Last year was as rough for publishers and booksellers as it was for everyone else. Sales softened as thinner wallets met rising prices. Some publishers disappeared and some merged into less ailing companies, becoming imprints in name only. Numbers of titles dropped. It seemed as if only those ubiquitous cartoon cap paperback kept the industry afloat.

And the spring publishing season, which begins for some imprints in February and lasts as long as August for others, offers little cheer. I've spent the last fortnight perusing trade catalogs, and they're the thinnest I can remember in 10 years as a book editor. Still, we can look forward to some interesting new books, and here's a selection of what's ahead:

Literary Fiction. Two from Olympian figures are "Chronicle of a Death Foretold," by Gabriel Garcia Marquez (Knopf, April), a short novel of scandal and murder, and the long-awaited "Ancient Evenings," by Norman Mailer (Little, Brown, April) — a tale-set-in-pharaohic Egypt.

Not far below are "Documents Relating to the Sentimental Agents in the Volney Empire," by Doris Lessing (Knopf, March), the fifth book in her "Canopus in Argos: Archives" science-fiction series, and "The Philosopher's Pupil," by Iris Murdoch (Viking, April), the story of a pupil-teacher relationship in an English spa. Postmodernist readers may enjoy "Blue Pastoral," by Gilbert Sorrentino (North Point Press, May), described as a musician's X-rated romp across America, and those in search of a giggle should look for "Slouching Toward Kaliamazo," by Peter De Vries (Little, Brown, July), in which an eighth-grader gets his teacher pregnant.

Thomas Berger will check in with his 12th novel, "The Feud," (Delacorte, May), about teen-agers and cops in a small town in the 1930s. D.M. Thomas could have another best seller in "Ararat" (Viking, April), in which a Russian poet leaps from Moscow and New York City to the legendary resting place of Noah's Ark.

Among our better younger writers, Susan Fromberg Schaeffer offers "The Madness of a Seduced Woman" (Dutton, April), about love, jealousy, murder and a failed suicide, and Barry Hannah has produced "The Tennis Handcuff" (Knopf, April), a comic novel set on the tennis circuit. Another tennis novel, "Sudden Death," by Rita Mae Brown (Bantam, May), will be the subject of considerable gossip, for it's a tale of lesbianism — and Brown is Marina Navratilova's former lover. Two important collections of short stories are likely to be "Things to Come and Go," by Bette Howland (Knopf, March) and "The London Embassy," by Paul Theroux (Houghton Mifflin, March).

Look for Ed McClanahan's "The Natural Man" (Farrar, Straus & Giroux, April), a Southern comic epic, to be both a critical success and a best seller.

Popular fiction. Likely to do well both in the reviews and at the bookstores is John Le Carr's "The Little Drummer Girl" (Knopf, March), a novel of terrorism and counterterrorism. Involving Palestinians and Israelis. Another bet for best sellerhood is Stephen King's "Christine," (Viking, May), in which the vehicle of horror is a demon-ridden '58 Plymouth Fury.

Two novels that mine the traditions of the Old West are "Killdeer Mountain," by Dee Brown (Holt, Rinehart & Winston, March), and "The Secret of Annie Oakley," an "Investigative novel" by Marcy Heidish (New American Library, April), who wrote "A Woman Called Moses."

The best-selling cop tales are likely to be "The Delta Star," by Joseph Wambaugh (Morrow, March), and "Ice," by Ed McBain (Delacorte, April). Mystery writer Dick Francis' publisher hopes "Banker" (Putnam's, March), a novel of high finance and racing, will be his "breakout book," and it is a Book-of-the-Month Club main selection.

General biography. Pickings are slim in this category. The biggest popular biography should be William Manchester's two-volume biography "The Last Lion: Winston Spencer Churchill, Visions of Glory 1874-1932" (Little, Brown, May). It's the first of two biographies.

Other promising biographies are "Roughneck: The Life and Times of Big Bill Haywood," by Peter Carlson (Norton, April), a life of the labor legend; the second volume of "JFK," Herbert Parmet's biography of John F. Kennedy (Dial, March), and "The Dark Side of Genius," by Donald Spiser (Little, Brown, March) a critical biography of film director Alfred Hitchcock.

Literary biography. A notable crop of lives of popular writers begins with "James Michener," by George J. Becker (Ungar, April), which contends that the blockbustermeister is "probably the most popular serious (!) novelist of our time." Similarly, Matthew J. Bruccoli's "James Gould Cozzens: A Life Apart" (Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, May) is billed as a biography of a major American writer, and "Hammett: A Life at the Edge," by William F. Nolan (St. Martin's, April) is pointedly declared by its publisher to be an unauthorized biography of mystery storyteller Dashiell Hammett.

Couple sleeps in cage

LA HONDA, Calif. (UPI) — Bob and Judy McGuire couldn't sleep nights knowing that the towering redwood trees surrounding their home could come crashing down on them.

The solution was a heavy-duty steel cage built around the couple's bed to protect them from falling trees.

"I obviously couldn't cut the forest down. But I just had to get some sleep," McGuire said Wednesday.

The McGuire home is near the entrance to Portola State Park between San Jose and the Pacific coast. Last month's heavy rainstorms and 90 mph winds sent the giant redwoods that surround them crashing to the ground.

One of them — a 200-foot tall fir — wiped out two sheds and a satellite dish antenna he had installed not 5 feet from his house.

McGuire, a former motorcycle and stock car driver, said he built the cage — a 2,000-pound box of 3x3 square steel tubing with a steel-plate roof.

"I built a really good one," he said. "It's awesome. It took 10 of my neighbors to put the top on it."

The cage completely encompasses the couple's queen-sized bed, which they get in and out of through foot openings in the sides.

"Before, I'd look out the window and shake. Now I can sleep at night. I crawl in that thing and I don't wake up until morning," he said.

Charles slides into a country album

By GEORGE KANZLER
Newhouse News Service

NEW YORK — Just two decades ago, Ray Charles rocked the record industry by hitting the top of the pop charts with "I Can't Stop Loving You," his soulful "cover" of a classic country song.

It was part of his landmark "Country & Western" album, the first true "crossover" putting a rhythm-'n-blues artist on top of not only the R'n'B and pop charts, but the C&W chart as well.

Since that time, Ray Charles has recorded other country songs, as well as show tunes and pop standards, always in his own unique gospel-tinged soul style, highlighted by his own band of back-up singers. But now, 21 years after "I Can't Stop Loving You," Charles has returned to country music to produce an album with a much purer country flavor, "Wish You Were Here Tonight" (Columbia Records).

Not since Bob Dylan's "Nashville Skyline" album has a non-country artist so steeped himself in a country music milieu. Charles abandons his regular band here to surround himself by some of Nashville's top session musicians. His only concessions to his soul sound are his own piano and what sometimes sounds like his backup singers, the Rackettes, although there are no singing credits in the album notes.

Music

This is not the glossy country-pop sound — with synthesizer, orchestral and rock flourishes — coming out of Nashville now either. It is a down-home, almost old-fashioned, country sound, redolent of back-country front porch pickin' and strummin'. Just so we get the point quickly, the album opens with a fiddle intro and a pedal steel guitar solo on "Three-Quarters Time."

Charles immerses himself in the country mood set by the musicians, abandoning his fervid soul mannerisms for a more laid-back country manner. For instance, he becomes stily "rough" on "Three-Quarters Time" in interpolating a "sorry" after the line about nobody getting out of this world alive.

There isn't a weak cut on this album — even the novelty song "String Bean" is done with ingenious charm — and Charles does get to bring gospel and R'n'B touches to some of these country songs, while "Shake Your Head," with its bluegrass briskness, recalls some of his earliest boogie-blues hits.

But it's on the slow, mournful ballads that Charles really lives up to his sobriquet of "The Genius" here. He manages to walk that thin line between bathos and unaffected passion on such sentimentally polished songs as "I Wish You Were Here Tonight," "You've Got the Longest Leaving Act in Town" and "Ain't Your Memory Got No Pride at All."

Best of all is his disarmingly tender, straightforwardly sentimental delivery of "Born to Love Me," a triumph of artless vocal charm over an almost maudlin arrangement featuring fiddle in full mourning. It ranks with Charles' greatest ballad moments on record, as this album, in its audacious simplicity of design, ranks with Charles' greatest production coups.

A production coup of a different sort is available on "For the First Time Anywhere," Buddy Holly (MCA Records). Featuring Holly's own austere rockabilly production on songs released much later with background instrumental and vocal overdubs, the album comes as a revelation at a time when neo-rockabilly, as in "The Stray Cats," is sweeping the country. A must for rockabilly and Buddy Holly fans.

Sheen is a busy man

By The Chicago Sun-Times

The busiest, most globe-trotting actor in Hollywood must be Ramon Estevez, otherwise known as Martin Sheen.

He plays an American reporter in "Gandhi" and is the only American actor, except for Candice Bergen, in the teeming cast of that British-Indian film.

He stars as an agent dropped behind the Iron Curtain in "The English," a French- and British-made spy thriller; he plays a principal role as one of the basketball players in Jason Miller's "That Championship Season."

And now he's gone on location in Canada to do a small role in "The Dead Zone," a film adaptation of Stephen King's novel.

Ford Coppola originally had in mind. "The old man (Coppola) told me he was going to recut it for TV and put back in all the stuff that was cut out," Sheen said. "He wanted to do it in two parts and show it over two nights. But I asked the fellow from ABC what they bought, and he told me it was the version released in the theaters."

Sheen says he was thrilled by the chance to appear in a "Gandhi" scene composed of Richard Fugard, the South African playwright. Fugard portrays Jan Smuts, the turn-of-the-century South African prime minister confronted by Gandhi over apartheid.

Sheen had played in Fugard's "Hello and Goodbye" with Colleen Dewhurst in New York under the direction of George C. Scott. But he had never met Fugard because the play was done in 1969 when Fugard was banned from traveling.

How come Sheen changed his name? "I never changed it," he said. "That's my real name."

Ballots out for annual Oscar competition

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Ballots have been mailed to the 3,500 members of the motion picture academy to vote on this year's Oscar nominees.

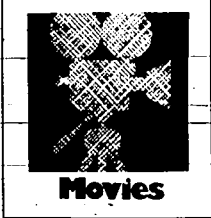

Here are some nominations — sure things — to paste in your hat:

Best Picture: "E.T. The Extra-Terrestrial" and "Gandhi."
Best Actress: Meryl Streep, "Sophie's Choice," and Jessica Lange, "Frances."
Best Actor: Ben Kingsley, "Gandhi," and Paul Newman, "The Verdict."

Here, moreover, are some other sure things — absolutely guaranteed NOT to be nominated:

Best Picture: "Inchon," and "Jekyll and Hyde... Together Again."
Best Actress: Mimi Moul, "The Swamp Thing," and Adrienne Barbeau, "The Swamp Thing."
Best Actor: John Casavetes, "The Incubus" and Willie Nelson, "Barbarosa."

As is its annual custom, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and

Movies

Sciences has mailed its members a booklet containing a reminder list of eligible movies.

This year's edition lists 179 feature films, two more than last year.

Voters are admonished not to be influenced by "advertisement, promotional gifts and other lobbying tactics, in an attempt to solicit your vote."

To qualify, a picture must be in English or with English subtitles.

regardless of country of origin, and must have been publicly exhibited in a Los Angeles area theater not less than a week prior to December 31, 1982.

This year's prospects include films from such exotic lands as Hungary, New Zealand, Peru, Turkey and the Soviet Union.

Of the major studios, 20th Century-Fox led the pack with 18 films, followed by Paramount, 16; MGM-UA and Universal, 15; Columbia, 14, and Warner Bros., 7.

Academy members were reminded that nominations will be announced Feb. 17. The awards themselves will be presented April 11 at the Los Angeles Music Center, at which time an accounting firm will produce the sealed envelopes.

Almost always, the top awards — best picture, actors and actresses, director, writer and score — involved a handful of pictures.

But the academy must include ALL movies that qualify, including 150 productions that stand no chance whatever of winning any sort of award, anywhere, any time.

For instance, who is going to vote for Japan's "Tora's Many Splintered Love" or "Edo Porn"?

Not all the hopeless movies are obscure little films dragged in from obscure or made in Hollywood on shoestring budgets. Many pictures with high expectations of box-office success and Academy consideration proved bitter disappointments.

A most outstanding example this year is Francis Coppola's $23 million "One From The Heart," which would seem to have little chance for any nominations.

The same may be said for the garish, over-produced "Annie," which gilded the Broadway lily.

Counterbalancing the disappointments were such surprise artistic and commercial hits as "Gandhi," "Victor-Victoria," "Poltergeist" and "Diner."

Hollywood, traditionally more concerned with profits than honors, long ago discovered the Oscar-winning picture reaps millions more from the box office in re-release.

But the vast majority of films are made with no thought in mind for artistic creativity. It would doubtless astound most filmmakers to find an Academy Award nomination coming their way.

Rare is the horror film, comedy or musical, no matter how well done, that merits serious consideration.

The makers of "Conan The Barbarian" could not have been thinking in Oscar terms when that epic was spawned, nor could Steve Martin have been looking in that direction when he made "Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid."

Certainly, the producers of "Porky's" would rather have collected the $100 million it earned than a thousand Oscars. And, if the truth were known, so would many another Hollywood producer.

But for every "Porky's" there are such dazzling losers as "The Last American Virgin," "Jekyll and Hyde... Together Again," "Humongus," "Penitentiary II," "They Call Me Bruce" and "Visiting Hours."

The winner of this year's worst picture award, almost by acclamation, was "Inchon," which surpassed Michael Cimino's "Heaven's Gate" last year as the most expensive bomb in movie history, costing some $40 million.

Brief Reviews

From Times-News wire services

THE AMATEUR: Despite one nifty plot twist and strong performances by some of the actors, "Amateur" remains just another formula spy film. If you like the formula, you'll like the movie. Starring John Savage, Marthe Keller and Christopher Plummer. Rated R. 2 stars.

48 HRS.: Eddie Murphy and Nick Nolte star as a con and a cop on the track of some cop-killers in a hip, vibrant action picture that is a rousing cross between "The Defiant Ones" and "The French Connection." Directed by the talented Walter Hill, who makes gunfire seem more lively than it has in recent years. R. 3 1/2 stars.

KISS ME GOODBYE: A mixed-up movie that wants to be both a screwball comedy and a sober treatise on grief. That's too much territory. Sally Field stars as a young widow who still has not gotten over the loss of her show business husband (James Caan, who reappears as a ghost) even as she is about to marry a shy archeologist (Jeff Bridges). PG. 2 stars.

SIX WEEKS: Mary Tyler Moore and Dudley Moore star in an effective tearjerker about a little girl with a fatal illness. What makes the film work beyond its maudlin angle is that Dudley Moore creates a charming, witty—and offbeat—character, who makes us smile before the sadness. PG. 3 stars.

TOOTSIE: More than the year's funniest film, "Tootsie" also is a celebration of the actor's life and a sly comment on sexual role-playing with Dustin Hoffman in a brilliant double role as an actor so desperate for work he takes a job as actress without anyone on the soap opera knowing he's a man. Of all of the holiday pictures, this is the one to see first. PG. 4 stars.

TRAIL OF THE PINK PANTHER: A "Clitzen Kane" type of biographical investigation is taken to the life of Inspector Clouseau in a pastiche of clips and outtakes from the late Peter Sellers' "Pink Panther" movies. Some high spots and some lows. A lampooning of Pac-Man fever in the title credits is one of the funnier bits. Your enjoyment of the film will vary directly with how much of a fan you were of the series in the first place. PG. 2 1/2 stars.

Consumer spending surge seen

Major retail chain stores post strong January sales

NEW YORK (UPI) — Major retail chains Thursday reported their best news in many months, issuing strong January sales reports that prompted many analysts to announce the long-awaited surge in consumer spending had begun.

"We've been waiting since last spring," Jeffrey Edelman of Dean Willer Reynolds said. "I think it's further confirmation the economy has in fact bottomed out in December."

Edelman cautioned that January is "not a significant month in terms of volume," when sales are about a fourth as large as those in December.

Crude oil prices tumbling

In Tokyo, oil industry sources said a large quantity of Kuwaiti crude was available for $38.50 a barrel on the spot market, where oil is sold to the highest bidder in transactions viewed as a barometer of future price trends.

Congress asked to act

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Saying there is a "desperate need" for rental housing for low- and moderate-income people, 15 national groups Thursday asked key lawmakers to enact legislation providing for multi-family rental housing production.

"There is a desperate need for rental housing for lower- and middle-income families," said the 15 groups, including the National Leased Housing Association, the Coalition for Home and Moderate-Income Housing, the Council of State Housing Agencies, the Mortgage Bankers Association of America, the National Housing Conference and others.

Declarer played the wrong suit in his search for hearts tricks. It was true that hearts offered the shortest route to quick tricks, but it was also true that hearts would lead to quick defeat.

Dummy's spade jack won the first trick and dummy's heart king went to East's ace. East returned the spade nine and it was over quickly. The defenders got the first five tricks for one down and declarer managed to score the rest.

Declarer would have made his game had he played the minor suits correctly instead of playing hearts. At trick two, he leads a low club to his nine and the club goes to dummy's king. With five club tricks assured, dummy's diamond queen comes next. If East covers, declarer wins and dummy's diamonds will produce an overtrick. If East refuses to cover, dummy's diamond queen wins while South throws his jack.

Another diamond finesse and a second club finesse now give South nine running tricks.

Why should declarer have known to play the minor suits instead of hearts? The play to trick one reveals that East had no spade honor. With a good spade suit and the heart ace, West most probably would have made an overall. The lack Vulnerable: None. Dealer: South. The bidding:

South West North East
 1♣ Pass 1NT All pass

Opening lead: Spade five of an overall virtually places the ace of hearts with East and South should have found his way.
