Social Security paying dead people

By D'VERA COHN
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Social Security officials, citing projections they paid $100 million to dead people in 11 states, said Monday the total will reach "hundreds of millions of dollars" nationwide.

A computer match of 6.7 million death records from 11 states, New York City and the Veterans Administration against Social Security files found 6,757 cases in which one file showed a person was dead and another showed him alive, officials said.

So far, officials have investigated 1,625 cases involved in last October's computer search. They turned up Social Security payments totaling $6.4 million to 1,506 dead beneficiaries.

"When we get everything completed, we think it could yield close to $100 million just as a result of the pilot," said Social Security spokesman John Trollinger.

Social Security plans to expand the computer search to other states beginning in April. If the trend holds, the amount of erroneous checks could reach "several hundreds of millions of dollars," Trollinger said.

"We're really just scratching the surface and taking the easy stuff first," Trollinger said. Describing the figures so far as "the tip of the iceberg," he said officials now will delve into records of people no longer getting checks to determine if any died before the payments stopped.

One death under investigation dates back to January 1960 — a California recipient who apparently was sent checks totaling more than $50,000, Trollinger said.

More than half the deaths date back more than a year, with the average 15 to 20 months, he said. The average erroneous payment was about $5,600.

Social Security turned up more than 530 cases in which agency officials believe the dead person's checks were cashed by relatives. So far, Social Security has recovered more than $418,000 in uncashed checks and $37,000 in repayments, Trollinger said.

After a death has been confirmed, Social Security stops sending checks and seeks repayment from relatives or from grocery stores, banks or other agencies that cashed the checks. Social Security also sends cases to the Secret Service for criminal prosecution, but none have been referred from the pilot project yet, Trollinger said.

Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., a member of the National Commission on Social Security Reform, said he did not realize "there were quite so many instances" of dead people getting checks. He called for stiffer penalties against those who fraudulently cash the benefits.

"They ought to be prosecuted," he said. "It's nothing but embezzlement or larceny on the part of those people."

But Pepper also criticized the Social Security Administration, saying, "They must tighten up their enforcement procedures and they must become more efficient in the administration of this great program."

Trollinger said in the "large majority of these cases" Social Security was never told of the death. Social Security normally finds out when relatives report the death to a district office or checks are returned by post offices. The agency does not regularly check state death records.

The latest survey was prompted by matching Medicare death reports against Social Security records last year, when $30.4 million in erroneous checks turned up. The pilot project findings were "much, much higher," Trollinger said.

States surveyed were California, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Maine, Michigan, New Jersey, New Mexico, Ohio, Tennessee and Washington.

O'Neill rejects increasing age for retirement

By MARY BETH FRANKLIN
United Press International

WASHINGTON — House Speaker Thomas O'Neill Monday rejected raising the 65-year retirement age to finance the ailing Social Security system.

The stand by the powerful Massachusetts Democrat makes it unlikely that option could be approved in the House, but the retirement-age proposal has strong support in the Senate. Any differences between the two sides would have to be worked out in a joint conference committee.

A majority of the Republican-controlled National Commission on Social Security Reform recommended in a supplemental report that the retirement age be increased gradually to 66, after the turn of the century, to help solve the system's long-range financial problems.

The core of the commission's primary short-range-cure package called for $16 billion in payroll tax increases, a six-month freeze on benefits, new taxes on high-income pensioners, and including newly hired federal employees in the Social Security system.

Congressional leaders, who have endorsed the commission proposal, hope to send a bill to President Reagan by Easter. Reagan and O'Neill endorsed the commission's short-range changes, but did not take a stand on the long-term issues.

THOMAS O'NEILL Provides key opposition

But O'Neill told reporters: "We think basically it's wrong to increase the age. Of course, the Democrats haven't signed off on it. We would have a problem with that one, and I am personally opposed to it."

Instead of an increase in the retirement age, the five liberal Democrats on the 15-member national commission recommended a future

Lawmakers wade into drunken driving issue

By MARK SHENEFELT
United Press International

BOISE — Senate and House Judiciary committees Monday trudged into a forest of proposals to toughen Idaho's anti-drunken-driving laws.

Whether to crack down on intoxicated motorists is not an issue, the committee chairman said; lawmakers merely will decide how tough the new laws will be.

"Let it be known that these legislators know there is a problem, and let it be known that these legislators will act on the problem," said Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Roger Fairchild, R-Fruitland.

Fairchild applauded activist groups for their support for measures to help keep drunk drivers off the roads, but he warned them not to "pressure" legislators into enacting unconstitutional, unworkable or oppressive laws.

The committees had four bills before them, all imposing penalties and restrictions far more severe than the current drunken-driving laws, which do not have any provisions for mandatory minimum fines and jail sentences.

Rep. Larry Harris, R-Boise, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, said his committee probably will mold a new bill based on parts of the four bills already printed. He said the panel may begin drafting the combined version next week.

Patricia Marshall, chairman of the DUI Review Action Committee, advocated imposition of wording requiring the automatic conviction of someone caught with a blood-alcohol level of .10 percent or above.

"With this, what we are doing is setting a speed limit on drunken drivers," she said. "It is a reasonable level above which we don't want people to drive at all."

Unlike the three other proposals, the DUI committee bill does not call for a mandatory jail sentence upon a first-offense conviction, but it would impose mandatory minimum fines and license-revocation periods and mandatory minimum sentences for refusing to take a breath- or blood-alcohol test.

Kootenai County Prosecutor Glen Walker, representing the Idaho Prosecuting Attorneys Association, called his group's plan "probably the toughest of the four bills."

He said the plan assured "workability, constitutionality and practicality" of the drunken-driving laws. However, he warned that imposing mandatory minimum jail sentences for the first offense would "fill up the jails."

"Although two days might not be enough (punishment) — 10 days might be enough — we as a practical matter don't have anywhere to put them," he said, adding that a first-time drunken driver "should not be written off forever."

State Attorney General Jim Jones backed Walker's proposal and said the Legislature should approach the drunken-driving crackdown from two directions: deter

President criticizes Israelis for delay in Lebanon peace

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House reporter

WASHINGTON — President Reagan said Monday Israel is unnecessarily delaying withdrawal of its "occupying force" from Lebanon.

The Reagan government's failure to pull back its troops is stalling the quest for peace, he said.

In an interview with local Washington television news anchors, Reagan also said he would be willing to increase the multinational peacekeeping force in Lebanon if necessary.

"We're going to try to continue trying to bring this peace movement on," Reagan said of the overall Middle East situation, adding, "We don't believe that we can move to actual peace negotiations in the Middle East until — the — Lebanon situation is clearer."

Reagan was questioned about his relationship with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin in view of differences over building of settlements on the West Bank and tensions between Israeli and U.S. forces in Lebanon. He replied:

"I don't think that it is... as strained as some would have you believe. I think we've established quite a personal bond on his visits here."

"It's true, we disagree on this particular issue about getting out of Lebanon," Reagan said, explaining the pullout is necessary "to try and bring the Arab states around to the position that Egypt once took, so that they can make peace with Israel."

Reagan said "one of the big contentions" is the withdrawal of all foreign forces from Lebanon. "And Israel is delaying, we believe, unnecessarily in that."

"I think that there's a certain moral point that we think the Israelis are neglecting or not observing," he said.

"And that is the new government of Lebanon, after all these years of revolution and upheaval, has asked all foreign forces to leave."

McKeown says he's guilty

By BRUCE BOTKA
United Press International

BOISE — Ada County prosecutor's Monday allowed a 17-year-old youth to plead guilty to second-degree murder in the beating death last year of Christopher Peterman.

Deputy Prosecutor Jay Rosenthal said his office decided to allow Randall McKeown to plead guilty to a lesser offense than the first-degree murder charge which was originally filed.

The decision to accept McKeown's plea ended a heated dispute in which Rosenthal and defense lawyers traded accusations over defense conduct last Friday when details of the plea bargain were leaked to the media.

McKeown, his voice soft and his shoulders bent, admitted to Fourth District Judge Alan Schwartzman that he participated in the beating of Peterman, 17, Nampa.

Peterman was killed after he was jailed for failing to pay about $73 in traffic fines. Prosecutors alleged the youth was beaten, kicked and burned by other juvenile inmates during episodes of torture spanning about 14 hours in the cellblock and exercise yard.

Two youths still face first-degree murder charges, while another has pleaded guilty to assault.

Rosenthal and defense lawyers David Nevin and Klaus Webe exchanged heated words Monday, three days after prosecutors first offered and then withdrew a plea bargain agreement whereby McKeown would be allowed to plead guilty to second-degree murder and face a prison sentence of 30 years.

Rosenthal told Schwartzman he believed proving first-degree murder at trial would be impossible in light of all the attention given the offer of a reduced charge.

"As a taxpayer, as a member of this community, as a member of the Idaho bar, I don't think we have any choice," Rosenthal said. "We have to let this defendant enter a plea to second-degree murder."

Late news

Massacre report clears Begin
JERUSALEM (UPI) — The commission investigating the Beirut massacre reportedly cleared Prime Minister Menachem Begin of responsibility but blamed Defense Minister Ariel Sharon and five other top officials, Israel Radio said Tuesday.

The radio, quoting government sources, said the government "can live" with the conclusions of the three-man panel, which handed its findings to Begin Monday. They were being released officially later Tuesday.

The radio did not quote directly from the commission report on the 163 slayings of hundreds of residents of the Sabra and Chatila Palestinian refugee camps by Christian Phalangist militiamen, Israeli's allies.

"Of the nine men warned by the commission they could be harmed by its findings, the prime minister, the head of the Mossad intelligence agency and (Sharon aide) Avi Duda! were apparently not directly harmed," the radio said.

Idaho jobless funds short
BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John Evans said Monday it appears the state will have to begin borrowing money from the federal government to pay unemployment benefits some time in March or April.

Although half of the states in the nation are already borrowing from the federal government, Evans said this will be the first time Idaho has had to dip into federal funds to aid in the payment of benefits to 33,500 unemployed Idahoans.

Evans made the announcement when, along with governors from Virginia, Texas and Oregon, he detailed the findings of a study of the nation's Federal Unemployment Trust Fund which, Evans said, shows the system to be facing "financial calamity."

Evans said Idaho is in better shape than some states, including three whose borrowing now totals more than $6 billion. He said Idaho's need to borrow results from the state paying out one of every five tax dollars collected for unemployment benefits during 1982.

GM shows profit in 1982
DETROIT (UPI) — Despite an 8 percent drop in worldwide sales, General Motors Corp. announced Monday it made $92.7 million in 1982, nearly triple the $33.3 million profit earned in 1981.

The No. 1 automaker credited the profit to cost cutting efforts, plus increased income from its financing and insurance operations and federal tax credits.

The profit is GM's largest since 1979, when it earned $2.8 billion. It lost $762.5 million in 1980.

Chagra beats murder charge

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — With two witnesses and a 12-minute debate, a Las Vegas lawyer was acquitted of killing U.S. District Judge John Wood, leaving an $11-million government investigation in shambles.

A jury of 10 women and two men late Monday found Jamie "Jimmy" Chagra, innocent of masterminding the murder of the San Antonio, Texas, judge known as "Maximum John" for the long sentences he meted out to drug offenders.

Chagra was the principal target of an investigation the government said was the costliest since the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

The trigger man in the case, Charles V. Harrelson, was convicted of the murder in December. Chagra's brother, Joe, pleaded guilty to conspiring with him in the killing; his wife was convicted of conspiracy to murder.

Gestapo chief in French prison

LYON, France (UPI) — Six groups representing victims of Nazi atrocities filed suit Monday against former Gestapo chief Klaus Barbie and politicians called for restoration of the death penalty for "crimes against humanity."

Barbie, 70, expelled to France Saturday after living in Bolivia 12 years, spent his second day in prison under close surveillance by officials wary of a possible suicide attempt. Mouluc prison director Pierre Escribaud said.

Barbie, called "The Butcher of Jews" for his alleged hand in the deaths of thousands of Jews and resistance fighters during World War II, also was isolated to prevent assassination attempts.

Mitchell is interim prison head

BOISE (UPI) — The state Board of Corrections appointed former state Senator Mike Mitchell as interim director Monday in the wake of the resignation last week of C.W. "Bill" Crowl.

Mitchell, a Lewiston businessman who chaired the Idaho Prison Riot Review Committee organized in the wake of the 1980 penitentiary uprising, said he will impress on Idaho lawmakers the need for adequate funding to enable the department to meet its legal responsibilities.

Crowl resigned last Friday, citing "personal reasons." He had served as director for about five years.

Mitchell said he will not become a candidate for the permanent post of director, but said he will help board members develop guidelines and screen candidates for the position.

tax increase to offset the remaining third of the 7-year deficit not covered by the panel's other recommendations. One of them — Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., — hinted last week he may use his power as Rules Committee chairman to amend a bill not to his liking.

Meanwhile, the retirement-age change sparked a debate in the House Social Security subcommittee, which began its second week of hearings on commission recommendations.

A panel of senior citizen representatives, including Maggie Kuhn, fleshy spokesman for the Gray Panthers, vehemently opposed any of the killing.

duction in benefits, including raising the retirement age and freezing the annual cost-of-living-adjustment for six months.

But subcommittee Chairman J.J. Pickle, D-Texas, argued: "We simply have to, in Social Security, consider the years beyond. We must consider the young people coming up."

Senior citizens were not the only ones to criticize portions of the commission's package.

Kenneth Blaylock, president of the American Federation of Government Employees, told the panel federal workers are "justifiably paranoid," and said they feel they "have been used as scapegoats by the Congress and the administration. They have seen benefit after benefit cut... Now Congress is saying we want to use your retirement system to bail out Social Security."

The National Association of Retired Federal Employees held a news conference to protest the proposals to include newly-hired federal workers in the Social Security system, rather than the Civil Service Retirement fund, beginning next year.

"Just by fair... Don't pull the rug out from under us," said Lad Andolek, 72, president of the association that bills itself as the "guardian of independent federal retirement."

"Wrecking one (retirement system) is not going to save the other," he told a news conference.

"social" drinkers from driving while intoxicated and provide help and treatment for alcoholics who can't stop drinking and drinking.

The thing bill sponsored by the committee, said sponsor Rep. John Sessions, R-Driggs, is "designed to minimize jail time and concentrate on the other areas."

Sessions said that while his bill also contains tough mandatory minimum sentencing provisions, it is focused more toward driver's license suspension, fines and required public service by offenders.

Sen. William Floyd, R-Idaho Falls, said he liked Sessions' bill better than the others, but he questioned a section that would prohibit driving while intoxicated in incidents involving any motor vehicle — including a snowmobile — on private land.

"Would this mean we not allow people to just get smashed and run their snowmobile into their own backyard?" Floyd asked.

Sessions said he did not intend to write the bill to prevent a property owner from having "a good time out in the back field." He noted that law officers are prohibited from arresting people on their own property without probable cause.

Rep. Dan Kelly, R-Mountain Home, has introduced a bill to impose mandatory four-day jail sentences against first-time offenders and add sanctions similar to those included in the other measures, but he did not testify Monday because he had to attend a relative's funeral.

Mount St. Helens stages dome-building eruption, not dangerous

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — Mount St. Helens oozed lava out of a 250-foot wide hole in the dome inside its volcanic crater Monday, forcing evacuation of a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers crew.

Roads in the volcano area were closed as a precaution.

A six-man team of Army engineers, who had been pumping water out of nearby Spirit Lake, were evacuated, but a team of scientists remained in the crater making studies.

Lava was flowing out of the hole as part of a dome-building eruption that began about noon Monday, U.S. Geological Survey spokesman Steve Brantley said. The hole was thought to have been formed by a steam blast last week.

The oozing lava formed a new hole on the dome about 80-100 feet thick and was flowing down the side of the dome, Brantley said. The lava had not reached the crater floor, he said.

He estimated 500,000 to 5 million cubic feet of material was moving.

Television crews flying around the crater said a steam plume rose 1,000 feet above the peak and that they could feel heat from the volcano.

Scientists expect the eruption will probably continue for two or three days.

Last week, scientists predicted that the peak would erupt within two weeks and warned that it could be an explosive instead of a dome-building eruption.

"We're in a dome-building eruption," U.S. Forest Service spokesman Thom Corcoran said. "No ash, no mudflows, no explosion. Generally speaking, in past eruptions, when dome growth has started, the danger of an explosion is greatly reduced."

Quake rattles Yellowstone, worst disturbance in eight years

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo. (UPI) — A medium-sized earthquake rocked Yellowstone National Park "like the deck of a boat" and shut off a small geyser, but property damage from the quake was reportedly minimal.

The U.S. Geological Survey's Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., said the quake struck Yellowstone at about 1:25 p.m. Sunday and measured 5.0 on the Richter scale.

Park Geologist Rick Hutchinson said the quake was felt in the southern two-thirds of the park, an area of about 3,000 square kilometers, and lasted for about 10 seconds.

"One of the rangers compared it to standing on the deck of a boat. Fences were waving back and forth, small items were knocking off shelves and houseplants were shaking like crazy," Hutchinson said today. "It scared a few of the park visitors, but it didn't last long."

Hutchinson said the quake was strongest near Old Faithful, the park's most popular tourist attraction, but was also felt at the Canyon, Madison and Lake areas of the park.

Hutchinson said he had not yet been able to determine if the quake has affected the frequency of eruption at Old Faithful and the park's other large geysers. He said that would take several days to assess.

Arrests increase in truckers strike

United Press International

Truck drivers, wheeling their big rigs through snow storms in the East and bitter cold in the Midwest, Monday began a second week of dodging rocks and bullets with no end in sight for the independent truckers' strike.

Violence in the shutdown declined somewhat and police pressed campaigns against bushwhackers. Arrests jumped sharply.

Since the strike began there have been at least 570 shootings and 1,693 other incidents of violence and vandalism. A trucker was killed in North Carolina, 89 other people were injured and police made 119 arrests.

The strike by the Independent

Truckers Association to pressure Congress to roll back hikes in fuel taxes and road-use fees caused some fresh food shortages — and higher prices in metropolitan areas.

The Agriculture Department's Transportation Office said, however, that overall the strike had not hurt food distribution across the nation.

"There is an adequate supply of trucking capacity and minimum delays in transportation in perishables, including fluid milk, fresh meat, poultry, seafood, cut flowers, and fruits and vegetables," agency director Martin Fitzpatrick said.

The Agriculture Department reported an increase in rail deliveries of food by as much as 50 percent in some cities because of the strike.

O'Neill, Stockman to confer on jobs program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Speaker Thomas O'Neill said Monday he will discuss jobs legislation with budget director David Stockman in a meeting later this week, but the White House said Stockman will not offer any new programs.

O'Neill said the White House had arranged for Stockman to visit Capitol Hill for a private meeting, and he assumes this means a new jobs program "has been written by the White House and has the approval of the president."

The White House, however, immediately threw cold water on O'Neill's expectations. Deputy press secretary Peter Rousset said he was "not aware of" Stockman taking any new jobs program to Capitol Hill.

Rousset said President Reagan has authorized Stockman's Office of Management and Budget to look into accelerating job-producing projects already in the budget. "This is something that may be discussed," Rousset said.

Reagan made a point of telling

O'Neill during a White House meeting last week that the two were not far apart on jobs legislation, and that he would dispatch Stockman to discuss the matter.

Democratic leader Jim Wright of Texas, with O'Neill at the speaker's usual pre-session news conference, said he has no idea what the White House will propose, but so far he has only an indication that Reagan will agree to accelerate programs already proposed in his budget.

"To me, it's kind of a small gesture," Wright said.

O'Neill and House and Senate Democrats are discussing a jobs bill of $5 billion to $7 billion, possibly more, to repair public buildings, veterans hospitals and other public facilities. Assistant House Democratic leader Thomas Foley of Washington has been put in charge of compiling the program.

Senate Republicans also are discussing jobs-creating legislation, and House Republicans have formed a task force to consider such a bill.

Between the rocks of benefit cutbacks

On the one side, we are used to reading accounts of widespread abuse in America's welfare system, about people who get benefits to which they are not entitled and don't need.

Stories like that make folks' blood boil because each of us works hard for our living and no one wants to see our taxes frittered away and wasted.

On the other side, we all know people who are — to borrow a phrase — truly needy, in genuinely desperate straits.

Americans are a generous people who willingly extend help to people like that who need it.

Accounts of both types are often abstract, written in the dry language of bureaucracies and agencies. But not always.

Take the stories Monday in The Times-News by staff writer Stephanie Schorow on the Social Security disability insurance plan and on the plight of one Twin Falls family whose benefits have been taken away.

As with most stories of this kind, there are no rights or wrongs.

Obviously, we all have an interest in a government program which is free of abuse. In that process, periodic review of recipients seems a completely appropriate process. Indeed, a required one.

But the system of review sometimes denies benefits as well as approves them, and in the case of Twin Falls resident Fred Allen, the review process removed his benefits, leaving him and his family sliding deeply into debt.

What we have here is a classic no-win situation. It is fine for politicians to stand up and rail against the welfare state, blaming all our national ills on deadbeats and cheaters. That kind of rhetoric plays well to many, many taxpayers fed up with seeing their tax dollars going down the drain.

But what about real cases? Most don't fit the stereotypes at all. Instead, they are real families, like the Allens, whose financial difficulties are worsened by even the review process itself.

Solving the nation's financial ills means getting control of so-called "entitlement" programs, like Social Security disability insurance, and holding down their increasing costs in line. That means reviews and cutbacks.

It has to be the major goal, but in the process, we can't forget the genuinely needy who are not faceless, but who live among us.

The great art of government is not in bestowing benefits, but in taking them back fairly and kindly when the times get tough. That is something both liberals and conservatives need practice with.

Tragedy on highway

It is a tragedy when members of a working class in America die by violence on other members of their own group. America stands for freedom where people have the opportunity and right to work and provide for their families.

One group of truckers wants to quit work and protest increases. Another group obviously does not want to quit in spite of increases they have decided to keep working. They have homes, wives and children to care for, as do the rest of us Americans.

We people in every vocation have to keep working in the face of inflation and other price increases. If some truckers want to quit work, that's fine, it is their decision, let them be quitters. But they should not strike out with violence against other truckers, ambulances, citizens and innocent people who want to stay on their jobs.

Whatever happened to the saying "Keep on Trucking?"

An irresponsible tax

I feel that the new tax that Congress has imposed upon people who bank is very irresponsible, unreasonable, unwanted and unnecessary.

This new tax, the 10 percent withholding tax on savings interest and dividend incomes, was taxed on the general tax bill in August 1982 with no warning! The proposal has been repeatedly snuffed out by Congress, but, whoever worded it this time knew what they were doing. It was worded so that if the proposal were to be killed, so was the whole tax bill.

I urge all Idahoans to call or write Hansen, Craig, Symms and McCure and let them know how they feel. I am starting a petition so people can express their frustrations at Congress' stupidity.

Personally, I think that whoever the jerk was that proposed this tax ought to be tarred and feathered. It has caused innumerable problems for banks, financial institutions and their clients.

Please let your legislators know how you feel.

Another tea party

Does anyone in the U.S.A. really think Congress knows what is going on out here? Our forefathers had the Boston Tea Party. Then people in Cornwallis, England, on Feb. 13, 1781, and many other states followed with their version of Proposition 13, which Idaho lawmakers turned against us. I really don't think they did that though, they just screwed us out of it. We, the taxpayer voted in the last election again for property tax relief, and again we heard them tell us from Boise that we didn't know what we wanted. Only Gov. Evans was listening to our votes.

Now the truckers are having their version of the Boston Tea Party. We all must realize they are in the vanguard of our fight. They don't want excessive taxes, neither do we. They don't want taxes without representation neither do we, but that is what is coming out of Congress and every state capital in the land. I don't think these spending junkies in Congress will ever stop.

I for one will drink a cup of tea tonight and every night hereafter until I run out of tea bags, which I hope I do. That will mean the truckers are still fighting our fight. I will, however, dry my tea bags out, and mail one out each day to the old Tip O'Nellie and every spending junkie in Congress. Maybe they will get the word, but I won't bet on it. If they don't I hope the tea party gets bigger and bigger and bigger until it's a unchuckered right in their face.

Why don't we all send in our tea bags every day, we should fill the Potomac with tea till they really take notice.

Renting out the womb

BOSTON — Admittedly, the economy is in bad shape, but somehow I never expected to see a new breed of entrepreneurs arrive on the scene hanging out shingles that offer Wombs for Rent.

Remember when the real-estate moguls of the 1970s dealt in houses? It appears that their 1980s counterparts are dealing with uteri. While they aren't doing a land-office business yet, surrogate motherhood is an expanding market.

At the moment the star of the surrogates is Judy Stiver of Lansing, Mich., who was set up by a lawyer in her own cottage industry. According to Judy's testimony, surrogate motherhood, pregnancy and delivery were a little bit like taking in a boarder. She was promised $10,000 to give womb and board to a fetus for nine months and then deliver the baby to its reputed biological father, Alexander Malahoff of Queens, N.Y.

When asked why she decided to take this job, Judy explained that she and her husband wanted some money to take a vacation and maybe fix up the house a bit. . . that sort of thing.

Would I buy an egg from a lady like that? Frankly, I wouldn't even buy a pair of genes from her. But that was just the beginning, or the conception, of this tale. The baby was born last month with microcephaly, a head smaller than normal, which usually means he will be retarded. Suddenly, this most wanted child was a pariah. Baby Doe was put in a foster home. The Stivers claimed he wasn't theirs. Malahoff claimed he wasn't his.

Pretty soon there were blood tests and law suits all around. Hang onto your seats: Malahoff was not the father, Judy's husband Ray Stiver was. But the Stivers agreed to keep and rear the child.

But I don't want to dismiss the story as just another human sideshow. This one was a long time in the making. I don't know a soul who can't sympathize with the feelings and desires of an infertile couple. Over the past several years we have grown used to reading about dramatic help for couples. By now artificial insemination seems routine and in vitro fertilizations have been eased off the front page. We applaud their births as happy endings.

We have been, I think, numbed into regarding motherhood-for-hire as just another option. There are now at least eight and perhaps as many as 20 surrogate parenting services in the country.

Being a surrogate mother is not, as has been suggested, the "flip side" of artificial insemination. The infertile couple has contracted for more from a woman than an infusion of sperm. The pregnant woman has a stronger relationship with a fetus than a man has with a vial. The law governing this business, governing this web of parenting, is far murkier.

If the Stiver Story has a bizarre twist, there are other and equally mind-boggling risks. What if the biological mother decides, as at least two have, to keep the baby herself? Would a court of law hold that the contract was more sacred than the mother's rights?

What impact is there on a couple when the man seeks another woman to bear his child? "Where did I come from?" And what if the baby isn't perfect? "We've learned something about a business and an idea that encourages people to regard parents as customers rather than caretakers. We've learned something about people who look upon a motherhood as biological work on a reproduction line. We've learned to be wary of people who regard babies as another product for a vulnerable market."

Tune in to learn about some good news

WASHINGTON — Larry Speakes, as all presidential press secretaries seem to do when their boss is in trouble, took out after the press the other day. In a speech he complained about coverage of the bad economic news by the media, as opposed to the good news.

When inflation was at 13 percent, he complained, the media reported it. Now that it is 3 percent (that's Larry's figure, not mine) the press has ignored the fact that the Reagan administration kicked the country's number-one problem.

Speakes also questioned the public opinion polls that indicated the American people considered unemployment the present No. 1 problem.

"And why not?" he asked his audience.

"Every night we have seen the unemployed line up and march across the television screen, and I certainly would not make light of the people who are unemployed. . . But why is it that 10.8 percent is news, but 89.2 percent of Americans who are employed and enjoy the highest standard of living is not?"

Larry posed a good question. Why aren't the news programs covering the employed people instead of the unemployed? And how would they handle it, if they did?

"This is Tom Brokaw in New York. The big news tonight is that 89.2 percent of all Americans who want jobs have them. Irving R. Levine reports on the plight of one of these men in Scarsdale, N.Y."

"This is Irving R. Levine and I'm standing here with Frank Davis, broker for F.F. Hutton, who is one of the millions of people now employed in the United States. To the Reagan administration, Davis is just another statistic. But in human terms, he and his family tell the real story of what is going on in America today.

"Frank, this is a lovely house you have."

"Yup. It's worth $250,000. But since I'm working, I'm not about to sell it."

"How much do you make a year?"

"With bonuses about $100,000."

"Does being employed make you feel any different than being unemployed?"

"Very much so. It makes me feel good. I like to work, and I enjoy being paid for it, and I'm not mad at anybody."

"How does your wife feel about you being employed?"

"She thinks it's just great. She's very supportive, as are the children, that I'm making it during the recession. I don't know what I'd do without them."

"Then you're not angry at President Reagan because you have a job?"

"Why should I be made at Reagan? He's not to blame because I'm making a good living."

(Cut to Irving R. Levine standing beside the Davis swimming pool, alone.)

"Frank Davis is an example of one of the 89.2 percent of the American working class, blessed with all the things this country has to offer. Unlike the 10.8 percent who are added to foreign governments and an increase in defense spending, he may not represent all the employed people in this country, but his story is worth telling because it gives a true picture of what is really going on in the country today."

"Tomorrow we'll talk to another employed person, a golf pro in Palm Springs, Calif. This is Irving R. Levine in Scarsdale, N.Y."

Art Buchwald writes for the Los Angeles Times Syndicate.

Megatons without Mozart: Scientist less than whole

WASHINGTON — Sen. Pete Domenici of New Mexico introduced a bill in the Senate a week or so ago, and by sheer coincidence, out of the clear blue sky, Adm. Hyman Rickover happened to telephone me the next day.

Maybe the admiral had his wires working; he may have suspected that I was about to charge off at flank speed in support of the Domenici bill. Anyhow, his advice was to signal my engines: Slow.

Senator Domenici is concerned, as all of us ought to be concerned, at the parious state of math and science education in our country. The Reagan administration also is concerned. The president will propose an extensive program for funding about 7,000 new science and math teachers annually for the next several years.

Admiral Rickover's concerns go in a different direction. He calls himself a "technocrat." Much of his life has been spent in science and mathematics — specifically, in nuclear physics and marine engineering. The point of his telephone call was to warn against crash programs in science and math at the expense of the liberal arts.

"Give me a high school graduate with a well-rounded education," he said, "and the rest will come later."

Very well. The point is well-taken. The scientist who knows his megatons but knows not Mozart is less than a whole person. Intellectual breadth is more to be desired than narrow specialization.

Even so, when that has been said, there is much also to be said for the senator and the president. Domenici defined the problem on the Senate floor. Every standardized test for measuring science and math capabilities has shown a steadily declining level of achievement over the past 10 years. Our high school graduates, by and large, simply are not learning their elementary lessons: At community colleges, three out of four math courses are remedial in nature.

Most colleges and universities have reacted to this sorry situation by lowering their admission requirements for both math and science. The difficulty begins in the elementary grades. Domenici cited an international study with sobering findings: American 13-year-olds scored more poorly on a standardized test than their counterparts from England, Japan, Belgium, Australia, France, Scotland and the Netherlands.

The root of the problem, as Domenici and the White House perceive it, lies in the scarcity of qualified math and science teachers who will stay the course in the classrooms. This past September, he says, half of all newly employed teachers were not qualified; they were put to teaching math and science only because qualified instructors could not be found — or at least they could not be found at an average minimum starting salary of $11,758.

The Domenici bill would provide nearly 2,700 two-year scholarships, each valued at up to $2,500; for college students who would agree to teach in fields of math and science for at least three years after graduation. A separate program would provide Distinguished Teacher Awards annually for about a thousand teachers in elementary and secondary schools. A teacher who had been on the job for up to five years could be nominated for a $5,000 award; a teacher with at least 10 years' experience could receive $10,000.

The administration's slightly more expansive program of scholarships and awards would be supplemented by an effort to recruit prospective teachers from among unemployed college graduates, retired teachers and teachers in other disciplines. They would return to college at public expense for 12 months to 15 months of new training in science and math. The price tags would range from $24.5 million for Domenici's bill to well over $50 million for the White House plan. The money would be well spent.

"No senator worries more about the effects of large deficits than I do," said Domenici — and because he is chairman of the Senate Budget Committee it may well be so. But the problem is critical. Either our school system gears up to turn out better-trained scientists, or 20 years down the road the Japanese will beat our brains out. In many areas, said to say, they're doing that now.

James J. Kilpatrick writes his column, "A Conservative View," from Washington.

Satellite's reactor burns in re-entry

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The months-long saga of a derelict Soviet spy satellite came to a fiery finish Monday when its nuclear core and fuel vaporized in the atmosphere over a remote area of the South Atlantic, the Pentagon said.

The third and final chunk of satellite, weighing up to an estimated 1,000 pounds, was incinerated by the time it reached a point about 1,100 miles east of Brazil, officials said, relaying information from space trackers at the North American Aerospace Defense Command.

"We assume it has re-entered the atmosphere and burned harmlessly," a Pentagon spokesman said.

"NORAD confirms the remaining portion of Cosmos 1402 re-entered the atmosphere at approximately 6:10 a.m. EST today, 1,100 miles east of Brazil over the South Atlantic," the Pentagon announcement said.

The debris broke up at 19 degrees south latitude, 22 degrees west longitude, the announcement said.

In Moscow, Soviet officials declined any immediate comment on U.S. reports the reactor had burned up. "You will have to wait for any announcement," said a spokesman for the official Tass news agency.

Air Force WC-135 weather reconnaissance planes, converted Boeing 707 jetliners, will take samples of the atmosphere in the area for any signs of increased levels of radioactivity, a spokesman said.

The Defense Department declined to comment on where the planes are based or whether other Air Force aircraft conducting similar checks over the Indian Ocean, where a heavier piece of the satellite re-entered the atmosphere Jan. 23, had found anything.

Reagan fires official who wouldn't quit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan Monday fired a top official of the Environmental Protection Agency who, facing two congressional investigations, fought agency Administrator Anne Gorsuch's orders to resign.

The White House, in a brief statement issued late in the day, announced that the appointment of Rita

Lavelle as head of the agency's toxic waste cleanup unit "was terminated today at the direction of the president."

No further explanation was given. However, administration sources said the White House was informed by Ms. Lavelle's attorney that she would not resign.

Mrs. Gorsuch ordered a guard posted outside Ms. Lavelle's office Monday while her fate was determined. Then the locks on the doors were changed to secure critical files on toxic waste cases — many of which are being sought by Congress in a constitutional battle.

Two of Ms. Lavelle's top aides also were dismissed and sources said a third and possibly a fourth would be fired.

An EPA spokesman said Mrs. Gorsuch requested Ms. Lavelle's resignation late Friday "and it was supported by the White House." The spokesman said that "at that time, Ms. Lavelle agreed," although her White House allies include presidential counselor Edwin Meese.

Snow buries Northeast

BOSTON (UPI) — A major coastal storm blasted New England with up to 15 inches of wet snow Monday — the fifth anniversary of the region's worst blizzard — snarling ground and air transportation and giving thousands of school children a vacation.

The snow whipped by near gale force winds churned through southern New England early Monday and into northern New England.

Scores of fender-bender accidents were reported during the morning rush-hour but no major accidents or serious injuries were reported. Boston's Logan International Airport closed for several hours in the morning for plowing but reopened to handle traffic backlogged from other Eastern seaboard airports.

In Maine, a car slammed into a state police cruiser that was stopped at the scene of another accident. Maine state police urged drivers to stay off the roads.

Snowfall depths in southern New England ranged from an inch or two in coastal areas — where the snow changed to rain or sleet — to up to 15 inches in inland sections.

The latest storm was the second major snowstorm of the winter and provided a vivid reminder to New England's worst blizzard on record which dumped 3 to 4 feet of snow on the region Feb. 6-7, 1978.

The National Weather Service issued a winter storm warning for northern Vermont and Maine.

New Hampshire State Police described driving conditions as "terrible." Hundreds of minor accidents were reported but no one was seriously injured.

Clifford Edwards ties the leash with spouse, Spunky

His new wife's a real dog

MERRITT ISLAND, Fla. (UPI) — Newlywed Clifford Edwards was in the doghouse before he even got started.

Edwards, 32, was "married" Sunday. His spouse? A brown-eyed dog named Spunky.

With a lick on the cheek and shower of rice from about 100 well-wishers, Edwards and his tan-and-black mutt, Spunky, tied the knot in a ceremony at the handyman's Merritt Island home, Edwards, who claims to have been married "once legally and three times morally," said Spunky's best true while other women have come and gone.

Edwards and Spunky met in West Virginia. They've lived together for the past 13 years — that's 91 in dog years.

"She's a good-looking blond," said Edwards, "but her nose is bigger than mine."

Paul Pink, a friend of Edwards who officiated at the service, recited the slightly-altered wedding vows:

"Do you take this lady to be your lawless wedded wife... to love, honor, comfort and throw in an occasional can of Alpo?"

Edwards said "I do" and concluded the ceremony by tying a brand new, red bandanna around Spunky's neck.

Edwards and his friends enjoyed shrimp, mushrooms, beer and homemade wine at the reception that followed.

Spunky? She crawled under the bed to take a nap.

Composer Eubie Blake ill, misses 100th birthday

By H. D. Quigg
UPI Senior Editor

NEW YORK — Composer Eubie Blake rounded out a century of life Monday to a rousing ragtime-and-jazz happy birthday serenade from scores of musicians. But Eubie stayed home by the telephone.

The composer of "I'm Just Wild About Harry" and more than 1,000 other songs was recovering from pneumonia, and his doctor ordered him not to leave his Brooklyn home for private and public parties being given in Manhattan.

Friends arranged for a private telephone line to be rigged into his bedroom so he could spend part of his 100th birthday listening to musical and spoken tributes at a private party in the Shubert Theatre.

"Wancy and I," President Reagan told him in a telegram read from the stage, "welcome the opportunity to extend our warmest greetings and congratulations as your friends and admirers gather to honor your 100th birthday.

"You have played an extremely important role in bringing Jazz eager audiences both at home and abroad. You have always been generous with your talents, and your millions of fans thrill to your music.

"From the days of vaudeville to the present, you have made your priceless gifts a part of our musical heritage," Reagan concluded.

New York Gov. Mario Cuomo issued a salute saying Eubie had "given all of us a national treasure of songs to sing" and calling him "a living, breathing American institution."

Mayor Edward Koch awarded him the New York City Seal of Recognition.

Actor James Caspary also sent a telegram and a bouquet of red, white and blue flowers to Blake in care of Koch.

"Your wonderful accomplishments as a composer, musician, and performer have set the standard for all who follow," said Caspary, whose latest film role was in "Ragtime."

At St. Peter's Lutheran Church in the CitiCorp Center complex, musicians were holding a 24-hour marathon tribute, midnight Sunday to midnight Monday, as crowds drifted in from snowy, blustery weather.

The Rev. John Garcia Genzel, associate pastor of the church and the Lutheran official "Pastor to the Jazz Community," said the weather had been somewhat of a hamper to crowd size but that from midnight to 3 a.m. "we were fairly filled up."

At the Shubert, where 1,500 guests had been invited, musicians from the United States, Canada, and Europe played, sang, and danced. Many spoke tributes to Eubie.

Defense ends case in bigamy trial

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — The defense rested its case Monday in the fraud and bigamy trial of Giovanni Vigliotta and the prosecution began its rebuttal testimony.

Vigliotta is accused of defrauding Patricia Gardiner, 43, a Mesa, Ariz., real-estate agent, of $36,000 in cash and possessions and then ditching her two weeks after their Nov. 16, 1981 marriage. He testified last week that he married 105 women — including Ms. Gardiner — but did not divorce them.

Barring some unforeseen snag, the case is expected to go to the jury this week.

Prosecutor Dave Stoller called Carol Whitworth, executive director of Sunshine Acres, a home for deserted, abused or abandoned children in Mesa, to open state rebuttal testimony Monday by accounting for 23 boxes of possessions stored by Ms. Gardiner.

Ms. Gardiner testified earlier that she and her new husband planned to move to Hawaii and that she sold her house and gave many of her possessions to Sunshine Acres. She said that Vigliotta took her remaining possessions — except for furniture — when he allegedly abandoned her.

A defense witness, however, said Ms. Gardiner stored the boxes days after Vigliotta is supposed to have run off with the rest of her goods.

Chair pilot gets Bonehead award

DALLAS (UPI) — The Bonehead Club of Dallas Monday awarded its annual award to Larry Walters, whose 16,000-foot ascent in a lawn chair suspended from a cluster of balloons got mixed of local reception.

The North Hollywood, Calif., truck driver took off from the front yard of his girlfriend last July on a flight that was to take him across the Mojave Desert.

But mostly he went up, 16,000 feet up, until the cold got the better of him and he shot out the balloons with a pellet gun, descending through power lines into a residential neighborhood in Long Beach, which was blacked out for 20 minutes.

"His 16,000-foot, no frills flight of fancy has caught the attention of every Casper Milquetoast who has the dreams of a Walter Mitty," said Bonehead Club spokesman Brad Angers.

The Bonehead Club, made up of leading Dallasites who "search out the unusual and pay tribute to the hapless," each year presents an award to individuals or organizations that have illustrated their sense of the bizarre.

Actor O'Brien in hospital

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Actor Pat O'Brien, appearing with his wife and daughter in a stage production of "On Golden Pond," was in fair condition Monday at a hospital treating him for exhaustion and a viral infection.

Spokesman Tom Gore of Ochsner Foundation Hospital said the 63-year-old Irish-American performer was admitted late Saturday after the first act of a performance.

O'Brien was listed in fair condition but would be kept for observation at Ochsner for at least two weeks, Gore said.

Beverly Dimer, Theater Director Storor Boone said the remaining two weeks of "On Golden Pond" had been cancelled. He said the feisty O'Brien was overcome at the close of the opening act.

"He couldn't stand up, so they stopped the show," the director said. "He wanted to go on with the second act, and if they let him out of the hospital, he'd go on tomorrow."

Rockets fall near talks site

By United Press International

Two Soviet-made rockets launched from a rooftop in Beirut Monday splashed in the sea near the site of the 13th round of Lebanese-Israeli talks on troop withdrawals from Lebanon, police said.

Police said several unidentified people were arrested in connection with the attack on Khaldé, the second on the Lebanese site of the U.S.-led talks in two weeks. No progress was reported in the talks.

Israeli threats to use force restored a shaky cease-fire after a 2½ hour artillery duel between the Moslem village of Altat and the Christian village of Souk-el-Gharb, in the mountains seven miles east of Beirut.

Christians reported they had lost 20 dead, mostly civilians. But the Moslems said the total dead in fighting Sunday and Monday was only one dead and 10 wounded.

Security police said the fighting died down shortly after dark and 30 minutes after "the Israelis threatened to impose security and calm by force."

Maj. Gen. Amnon Lipkin, commander of the Israeli forces in the area, said his forces were determined to enforce the cease-fire agreement.

"If we find out about any violations of the agreement, we will apply force, if we must," he told reporters in Khaldé.

Bush calls for missile ban

ROME (UPI) — Vice President George Bush said Monday NATO allies firmly support Washington's negotiating stance at the Geneva arms talks and called on Moscow to "take a giant step for peace" by agreeing to ban all medium-range nuclear weapons in Europe.

Bush made the appeal after meetings with Pope John Paul II and Italian leaders as part of seven-nation European tour to gain support for President Reagan's disarmament strategy.

"President Reagan and the NATO leaders have asked the Soviet leadership to act boldly and responsibly by banishing once and forever from the face of the earth the land-based intermediate-range nuclear missiles. It has aimed at the heart of Europe in return for the cancellation of the missiles NATO will begin to deploy this year," Bush said.

"Simply stated, we are asking Secretary (Viri) Andropov to take a giant step for peace," he told a press conference.

The vice president, who arrived in Italy Saturday after stops in West Germany, the Netherlands, Belgium and Switzerland, said his tour of Europe to firm up support for Washington's negotiating stance so far had been completely successful.

Expelled advisers leave Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Three U.S. Army advisers relieved of their duties for violating rules prohibiting them from entering combat operations left El Salvador on a military flight Monday, the U.S. Embassy said.

The embassy said the advisers had flown in two helicopters Wednesday over a combat zone in eastern Usulután province. Both helicopters were hit by ground fire.

The three were accompanied out of El Salvador by Green Beret Sgt. Jay Stanley, who was shot in the thigh while in one of the choppers. He is leaving the country for medical treatment and was not suspended from duty.

The other three advisers were not identified. The embassy declined to say where the four men were headed.

U.S. regulations forbid the American advisers from entering combat areas or participating in military operations.

Army officials claimed Monday government troops killed 250 rebels and recaptured three key towns in Morazan province seized by guerrillas last fall.

Castleford superintendent refutes charges

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

CASTLEFORD — School Superintendent Ed Schenk responded during a Monday meeting with a written rebuttal to the Castleford school board's reasons for not renewing his 1983-84 contract.

The meeting took place in an atmosphere thick with emotion and displeasure by those in attendance, with the school board and the Times-News coverage of the incident.

About 40 persons attended the meeting, most in anticipation of Schenk's letter that answered the 16 allegations behind the board's Jan. 11 action, which appeared to some, including Schenk, to have come out of the blue.

Schenk board Chairman Mary Anne Blick disagreed, saying Schenk was told previously that there were some problems with his work.

Blick said there was really no "singular" issue to blame for the decision, but rather that it was a lot of problems. The allegations covered the areas of lack of budgeting foresight and teacher hiring and monitoring inadequacies.

In the letter, which audience members urged Blick to read aloud, Schenk rebutted all 16 reasons. The board cited for its actions in a letter sent to him Jan. 15.

Concerning a board allegation that teacher evaluation deadlines were set, extended, missed and still not completed by Schenk, the superintendent replied that the reports were complete. His job description set a Feb. 1 deadline to complete those actions.

To a charge that the implementation of school board policy was lax, Schenk stated in his letter of rebuttal that there was never any indication of concern in that from the board.

Former board member, John Ensusna, said the board's reasons did not constitute grounds for dismissing Schenk. The charges stated in the letter were typical of working relationships and the board should have worked with Schenk to rectify them, Ensusna said.

Another former board member, Reynold Houk blamed personality conflicts as being the cause for the superintendent's dismissal and accused some board members of being out "to get Schenk." He refused to elaborate.

Houk also said the board should reverse its motion not to renew Schenk's contract, but no action was taken on the suggestion. The superintendent said that he would not consider returning because of the "wedge" driven between himself and the board as a result of the incident.

Also, Schenk said, he was unhappy about the way the board handled the matter. He was not informed beforehand in executive session that there was a problem, as is the usual procedure. If he had known, he would have resigned, he said.

Many in the audience also took issue with the way the matter was handled.

Blick admitted the board did not act as "judiciously" as it could have and did not use "good judgment." But even if it was handled differently, the result would have been the same, she said.

Many of those present also claimed the Times-News coverage of the board's action was "in bad taste," "embarrassing" to the community, "sensational," caused humiliation to Schenk and "did us dirt."

Legislature stalls on funding for 'displaced'

BOISE (UPI) — The Legislature's budget-setting committee said Monday that it needs more information before acting on a request for appropriate $120,000 to operate the state's Displaced Homemaker program in Twin Falls and set up similar centers in other parts of Idaho.

Officials of the Idaho Division of Vocational Education sought the allocation to supplement the $45,000 in federal and state funds given to the program during the 1982 session to finance operations during the current fiscal year.

The $120,000 would come entirely from a $20 divorce fee adopted by lawmakers last year. It would not cost the state any money from its beleaguered general-fund account, said division Director Larry Selland.

He said program administrators need the funds to maintain the program set up in 1981 at the College of Southern Idaho, and to expand it to northern and eastern Idaho.

But members of the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee said they needed more specific information on plans for the program's future before deciding on whether or not to recommend the appropriation.

Selland said proposals have been received from North Idaho College in Coeur d'Alene, Lewis-Clark State College in Lewiston, Boise State University and a division office in Idaho Falls to institute the program. The program is aimed at retraining women who enter the job market after years at home.

He also said the first 18 months of the program's operation show it is a "great success."

"It worked for a lot of women, young and old, who found themselves displaced for a variety of reasons, mainly divorce or the death of a spouse," Selland said.

Committee members instructed Selland to provide specifics on how the $120,000 would be used, and said they take up the issue again Wednesday.

On other subjects, the committee also demanded more data on a request from the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare for authority to spend $207,000 which was mistakenly overpaid to nursing homes last year.

Department officials said an error resulted in the overpayment, which was returned to the agency by area homes for the elderly. DHW now needs new legislative approval to spend the money.

The committee did act, however, on several supplemental appropriation requests Monday — all of which involve funds from dedicated accounts. Those approved included:

- $150,000 to the Idaho Department of Law Enforcement to operate a statewide telecommunications system linking city and county police agencies. Funds come from fees paid by member organizations.
- $4,500 to the Idaho Board of Pharmacy to make up for monies lost when Gov. John Evans instituted several budget holdbacks earlier in the fiscal year. Funds come from fees on pharmaceuticals.
- $12,400 for the Department of Agriculture's inspection program.

Bob Jackson has invented an arrowhead that's to the point. The blades remain locked down during flight, then spring open once inside the animal.

Inventor hits the mark with better arrowhead

By TRUDI TARIO
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Like a cliché on inspiration, Bob Jackson's invention came to him in a dream, one painfully early morning.

"I shut off the alarm and went back to sleep. I dreamt I went elk hunting with a bow and all my arrows missed until the last one. It was like a fishing arrow, with barbs that open inside the fish."

"I pulled the arrow out and the elk dropped dead. I was so flabbergasted, it woke me up," says Jackson.

Two years and many prototypes later, Jackson has a product on the market which he says already is changing the ancient sport of bowhunting — the Viper Broadhead.

Designed to open with "knockdown power," the arrowhead remains locked in flight position until it has penetrated 1½ inches into the animal. Then its four cutting edges jut out, making a three-inch wound.

"The largest broadhead on the market only makes a one and a half-inch cut," claims Jackson.

And that's the point of the Viper. It kills quickly and mercifully.

A hunting trip in the South Hills two years ago almost made Jackson ready to turn his bow and arrows in. He hit four deer and they all got away, left to wander in pain.

• Jackson set out to find a better way to make an arrowhead.

He played with all kinds of blades until, "I turned a savora blade backward, and it popped open. There was my 'dream fishing arrow.'"

He developed the idea into a weapon that felled its first elk 35 feet after impact.

"Once you've hit something, you want to kill it as quickly and humanely as possible," says Jackson. "The sport is in the hunt, not the kill."

Since the average bow shot is taken at 20 yards, bowhunting demands extreme patience in stalking, and clever camouflage of scent as well as clothing, Jackson recalls a "successful hunt" in which he killed nothing, but attracted a flock of birds to settle on the small bush he was hiding in.

The Vipers' inside blade edges are sharpened at Sports Manufacturing Inc., Jackson's company on Highland Avenue. The arrowheads are made in Los Angeles, in the firm's screw machine shop.

The first "heads" were shipped last September. Business is good, says Jackson, and bowhunting is a growing sport, especially in the East.

"There are more bowhunters in one eastern state than in 11 western states," he says. "There are approximately 12,000 bowhunters in Idaho, as opposed to 300,000 in Pennsylvania."

"Because of the smaller spaces, hunting usually is confined to shotguns or bows. In some places, regulations will allow the bowhunter to take a deer a day for three months."

In Twin Falls, Vipers may be found at Carey Archery and Blue Lakes Sporting Goods.

The Viper Broadhead could be responsible for the preservation of wild turkey shoos. According to Jackson, the Wild Turkey Federation was considering asking states to eliminate turkey hunting, on the grounds that arrows only passed through the birds, condemning them to a slow, painful death. Now they are in the process of testing his arrowhead and he's awaiting their written endorsement. He already has their verbal recommendation.

The national turkey-calling champion, Ben Rogers Lee, has given Vipers his written endorsement. But perhaps the sweetest approval has come from the granddaddy of archery, 88-year-old Fred Bear, founder of the world's largest archery equipment manufacturer, Bear Archery Equipment.

Jackson's other product, the Mag-File arrow insert, helps stiffen the arrow shaft for better penetration. Like the Viper, the Mag-Files are his unique, patented contribution to archery.

Currently, he is working on a bowsting that the inventor modestly admits will "revolutionize" the quiet sport of bowhunting.

Faces six more charges

Rape suspect arrested in Elko

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

GOODING — Dan Lee Featherston, 37, of Jerome, was in the Elko County jail in Nevada Monday waiting return to Gooding to face six felony charges.

Gooding Sheriff Robert Aja confirmed the charges Monday, issuing a brief statement concerning the charges.

At the time of the Elko County arrest, Featherston was free on $25,000 bond in Jerome County where he is due to appear for a preliminary hearing next Monday on six felony charges, including one involving the alleged rape of a 27-year-old Jerome woman on March 21, 1982.

Sheriff Aja said Featherston was arrested in Elko on a Gooding County warrant charging him with first-degree burglary, attempted robbery, two counts of aggravated assault and one count of battery with intent to commit a serious felony.

Aja said Featherston was awaiting extradition on these charges Monday. Elko County sheriff's officers said Featherston is not charged with any offenses in Nevada.

Featherston was arrested for Gooding authorities when it was learned that he was named in a warrant from that county.

Bond was set at $50,000 in Elko. In Jerome County, a property bond was posted by Featherston's parents following his arrest there on Jan. 27.

In Jerome County he also faces charges of first-degree burglary, robbery, an infamous crime against nature, aggravated battery and aggravated assault.

Storm causes 38-car wreck

TWIN FALLS — icy highway conditions in the Magic Valley contributed to several accidents Monday, including one fatality and a 38-car pile-up near Buhl.

Idaho State police reported three vehicles slid into each other on the Clear Lakes Grade about 8:15 a.m. Before officers were able to clear the damaged vehicles from the highway, a total of 35 more drivers had joined the first three. Officers cleared the road to traffic within about an hour.

At about 8 a.m., a Riverdale, Utah, woman, LeRoy Rigley, 31, died when her car skidded on snow-covered U.S. 93 near Hollister. (See story on Page B2.)

Most of the snow fell north of the Snake River. Jerome reported about four inches of snow on the ground, as did Shoshone and Halley.

State police said nearly all highways were free of ice Monday night with the exception of a few icy spots.

Four persons were injured in a collision of two cars on State Highway 24 at the off-ramp off 184 at Rupert.

Treated at Minidoka Memorial Hospital were the drivers, Jeanne A. Frazier, 18, of Burley, and Laurie Russell, 19, of Rupert, and passengers in the Frazier vehicle, Tanya Fisher, 18, of Burley, and Angela Smith, 6, of Rupert. Frazier was cited for failure to yield at a stop sign.

Junior Miss tells Legislature youth optimistic

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — Idaho's youth are eager to attend colleges or universities and are confident in their ability to "make it" in today's world.

That was the optimistic message delivered Monday to state legislators and Gov. John Evans by a Kimberly High School senior.

Dori Whittaker, 17, gave the address to both the House and Senate in an annual honor given to Idaho's Junior Miss. Whittaker won the title on Nov. 6, 1982, in Moscow, after being chosen the Twin Falls Junior Miss two months earlier.

"I think the reason so many people my age are optimistic is that they're confident in themselves — that they can make it," said Whittaker, a strawberry-blond honor student who used her piano-playing talent to win the state title.

"We don't believe that things can stay bad forever," she said, acknowledging the recession. "But, yes, the biggest concern students have right now is for finding a job."

Whittaker conducted a survey of the about 50 seniors attending Kimberly High School this year, and offered those results to the lawmakers Monday.

"Most surprising, she said, is that 83 percent of the students surveyed reported that they planned to move on to some type of higher education before trying to enter the job market. About 60 percent of those surveyed said they already had settled on the career they would pursue.

Whittaker received offers of four-year scholarships from several universities around the nation because of her title, but she acknowledged that "many of my friends are struggling to find the money to go to college."

She said many of her classmates are aware of the state's financial problems and that measures like district consolidation may be necessary to conserve funds.

"Having lots of money isn't everything (for schools)," she said. "By attending a smaller school, I may have missed some of the extra classes offered elsewhere, but that was made up for by the extra opportunities to hold class offices and participate where there are fewer students," she said.

Whittaker also told legislators that Idaho's youth is confident in its ability to take on the state's future leadership positions. Her survey showed 76 percent of the seniors saying they were sure competent leaders would appear from their generation.

"Like I said, the biggest problem they're worrying about is just finding jobs."

Whittaker is one of five daughters raised by Bob and Mary Whittaker. Mr. Whittaker is the administrative officer for the Sawtooth National Forest. Dori is active in track, National Honor Society and cheerleading. She plans to pursue higher education in computer programming and music.

"We had a certain degree of confidence that she would place (in the state Junior Miss contest)," Bob Whittaker said of his daughter. "But I guess we were surprised, and very pleased, when she won the title."

DORI WHITTAKER
Main concern is job market

Woman dies in 1-car wreck

TWIN FALLS — A Riverside, Utah, woman died in a one-car accident on Interstate Highway 93 about six-miles south of Hollister Monday morning, according to Idaho State Police.

The victim was identified as Leloy R. Higley, 31.

Higley was driving north on Highway 93 when she apparently fell asleep at the wheel and began driving off the right side of the road. ISP dispatcher Gordon Myers said. She apparently overcorrected to the left-hand side of the road, then the small car hit a borrow pit and rolled over once. Higley and her passenger.

Vance J. Christensen, 25, of Ogden, Utah, was thrown from the car. The woman was dead at the scene, Myers said. Christensen was taken to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center where he was treated and released.

The state police were notified by the Hollister Port of Entry, which had apparently been alerted to the accident by an unidentified passing trucker, Myers said.

Because of the road conditions it took the patrolmen about 30 minutes to reach the scene of the accident, Myers said. There was approximately $9,000 damage to the vehicle.

Injuries are fatal to man

JEROME — One of three young Jerome men injured in a traffic accident here died Sunday, the Jerome County sheriff's office reported.

Michael Patrick, 24, driver of a vehicle, hit the poles of several lines early Friday morning north of Jerome, died in a Boise hospital Sunday afternoon. County Coroner Gerald Ostler said death resulted from massive head injuries.

Jerome County sheriff's officers said Patrick was driving a vehicle that left a county road four miles north of Jerome about 2:30 a.m. Friday. Officers said the vehicle failed to negotiate a curve, skidded several feet, then rolled over three times and then flipped end over end. The driver and one passenger were thrown from the vehicle.

Patrick and his passengers, David B. Schilling, 19, and Gary Westlake, 20, both of Jerome, were taken to St. Benedict's Hospital. Patrick was later transferred to St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise, where he died. His passengers were not injured seriously.

Officers said the vehicle, estimated to have been traveling about 65 miles per hour, was demolished.

Sewer project meeting set

JEROME — A meeting to discuss funding for the South Lincoln Street sewer project in Jerome will be held at 7 p.m. today in the Jerome County Courthouse.

The Jerome Chamber of Commerce arranged the meeting in an effort to bring all interested factions together to develop concrete plans to proceed with the project.

City and county officials are cooperating in urging that the present sewer line be extended from its current end point just south of Jerome to the freeway interchange.

If completed, the sewer would make it possible to develop land for commercial use along the highway leading into Jerome. County and city officials believe it would enhance Jerome's economy.

Property owners, city, county and Jerome Development Corp. officials, as well as representatives of the Region Four Development Association and all other interested persons have been urged to attend.

Legal issues delay state energy plan

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — A House committee agreed on Monday to postpone adoption of the State Energy Plan until several legal questions concerning the proposed policies can be settled.

The plan — drafted by a gubernatorial committee in 1981 — outlines the direction state agencies should take in encouraging energy development and conservation.

But a major setback appeared Monday as the Idaho Water Resources Board — the entity designated to govern the plan — sought legislative authority to implement the proposed policies.

"As I read the (state) constitution, the Water Resources Board only has dominion over water resources, and the Legislature cannot add energy to that role because we cannot freely change the constitution," said Rep. Walter Little, R-New Plymouth.

Little also questioned whether Gov. John Evans had the authority to transfer the old Office of Energy into the Department of Water Resources where it now exists as the Energy Bureau. The Energy Bureau administers federal funds slated for energy programs.

"Until I can get an (attorney general's) opinion on these two questions, I move that we should not adopt an energy plan at this time," he said.

Members of the House Resources and Conservation Committee unanimously supported Little's motion after almost a half hour of debate and one amended motion which later was withdrawn.

"Last week we took all of the guts out of the plan so what purpose is there in implementing it at all?" questioned Rep. Dean Haagenson.

R-Coeur d'Alene. "The private sector is going to develop energy the way they believe is economically feasible anyway, so let's leave the state out of it."

Last week the committee diluted all 18 of the policy statements in the energy plan to simple generalizations, such as: "Natural gas should be a component of Idaho's future energy mix." The committee now is considering methods of implementing state action on those policies.

He said that he believes Idaho would benefit from having a plan that outlines general energy goals for the future — including types of energy sources and methods of conservation.

Plan would increase state workers' checks

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — School teachers and many city, county and state employees working in the Magic Valley may find their monthly paychecks increased by 2 percent beginning in July.

At least that's the goal of proposed legislation — carried by Rep. Gordon Hollifield, R-Jerome — that passed the House Monday and was forwarded to the Senate.

The bill does not call for outright raises, however. Instead, it would defer the income-tax payment on employee earnings placed in the Idaho Public Employee Retirement Fund until after that money is withdrawn.

"Right now, a public employee never sees that money," said Hollifield. "It is paid straight into the retirement fund and the employee has to pay income tax on those earnings."

Under this legislation, the employee would still put in the exact same amount of money into the retirement fund, but he would not pay the income tax on it until after he retires or drops out of the system — and that would increase his net take-home pay by 2 percent," Hollifield said.

But by deferring income-tax payments on earnings placed in the state's retirement fund, the state could lose from $1 million to $2 million in annual revenue. It is a point that has prompted 18 House members to oppose the bill.

"If you pass this bill, you're putting an additional burden on employers and reducing state income," argued Rep. Mack Neibaur, R-Paul. "It's unfair in this type of year (of funding shortages) to strap $2 million in additional expense on to the taxpayers."

"It is a salary increase via tax reduction," criticized Rep. Rich Orme, R-St. Anthony, who termed the bill "narrow legislation to benefit state employees."

Orme said it is unnecessary to tamper with income-tax payments on retirement funds, since the federal Economic Recovery Act of 1981 will implement a 10-percent reduction in federal income taxes in July.

Referring to the state's estimated $69.2 million deficit this year, Rep. J.F. Chadband, R-Idaho Falls, said Hollifield's bill "will cost us money that we, as a state, can't afford at this time."

But Hollifield stressed that the tax deferral would pump over $10 million into Idaho's economy, thereby reducing the effect on state revenue to about a $1.15 million loss.

Dear Abby

Fake phone numbers troublesome

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: "Disgusted With Egomania" wrote to say that she always gave a phony name or telephone number to strange men who came on too strong.

Thanks, Abby, for saying, "What's wrong with looking them straight in the eye and saying, 'No, you may not have my name or phone number because I really don't care to see you again!'"

I wonder if it ever occurs to the person who gives a phony number that the "phony" number may actually be someone's REAL number?

I have had to change my phone number because apparently some woman had given it out as her own. For weeks I was pestered by the same man at all hours of the day and night. He even called me from another state — collect! I refused the call while he kept trying to convince the operator that I was the party he wanted. (This was at 6 a.m. on a Sunday!)

Changing numbers is an expensive procedure. It's also time-consuming and a nuisance. So, Miss Van Buren, please inform people who make up phony numbers that they may be giving someone the right to harass an innocent party.

— PESTERED IN L.A.
DEAR FOSTERED: Read on for another view:

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to "Disgusted With Egomania" was totally wrong. When a man is told that he may not have a woman's phone number because she doesn't care to see him again, it only adds to the challenge and heightens his interest. And since most of these contests take place in a drinking atmosphere, the scene can get ugly.

Before I grew up, in my tomcatting days, after one such joust with a woman, I finally talked her into giving me her number and felt that I had scored a victory.

When I tried to call her the next day, I got a recorded message informing me of the weekly bus schedule.

Do you think she was trying to tell me something?

— BENCHED IN FLAGSTAFF
DEAR BENCHED: Yes. "Hit the road, wise guy!"

DEAR ABBY: Every year at Christmas, my in-laws give my husband and me separate gifts of money.

My husband gets $150 and I get $25. During the holidays I try to forget about it, but after the celebrating is over, I feel very hurt and insulted.

I'm on very good terms with my in-laws, and they know that I manage money well, so I don't know why they do this.

I feel like telling them how much it upsets me, since the same feelings linger every year. What do you suggest?

— HURT
DEAR HURT: Your husband should suggest that his parents lump together their cash Christmas gifts and address a single gift to BOTH of you. That should avoid the "hurt" without mentioning it.

DEAR ABBY: "Ms. Living Alone" resented your suggestion to invite someone who's living alone over for leftovers. She said, "If they can't invite me over for the real thing, they can give their leftovers to the dog!"

Since when is good food not the "real thing"?

She should live in countries where they don't give leftovers to the dog. They eat the dog!

Dr. Lamb

Varicocele called common ailment

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Association

DEAR DR. LAMB — For the past six months I have had a thickness in my left testicle.

It has given me some minor pain and seems to make the left testicle hang lower than the right. The uncomfortable feeling is a slight heavy sensation, located at the top of the testicle but there is no lump.

My doctor has informed me that this is nothing to worry about and is quite common in men my age. I am 20, by the way. I have heard of something called a varicocele, a dilatation of blood vessels and wonder if this could be what I have, although the doctor says this thickness is the spermatic cord.

DEAR READER — You probably do have a varicocele. You are right that a varicocele is a dilated vein, somewhat like a varicose vein. It is the vein in the cord and can cause thickening. If you have thickening from an inflammation your doctor would have treated you for an inflammation.

The varicocele vein (varicocele) is most often in the left testicle but it can involve both testicles. And it is normal for the left testicle to hang lower than the right, even if you didn't have a varicocele.

Of course position can be markedly influenced by contraction or relaxation of the cremasteric muscles around the cord and testicle that raise and lower them for temperature control and other functions.

The ache you describe is common and is related to venous congestion of the testicle itself causing pressure on the sensitive testicles. It is made worse by standing.

This problem is very common, to the point of being the usual thing in young men. It tends to disappear by age 35. You might get some help from wearing a scrotal support. If it bothers you too much you can tie down and the dilated veins will tend to drain. Look at yourself in the morning before you get out of bed and you will probably note that the thickening has disappeared.

Varicocele in relation to fertility is discussed in The Health Letter 174: Male Reproductive Functions, which I am sending you. Others can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio-City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — While working strenuously on a hooked rag I noticed my shoulder was aching. One morning while lying flat on my back in bed something went SNAP at the front of my right shoulder. It caused much pain.

I went to a chiropractor who took X-rays and said it was not a broken bone or arthritis. He gave me 20 treatments on my spine and back of the arm.

After seven months I still have pain and cannot hook my bra in the back or swing my arm back as in bowling. If, as I now suspect, it was a torn ligament, will it heal? Or should I go to my doctor? Would he still be able to do something for me or is it too late?

DEAR READER — It depends on what you really have. I would certainly suggest that you visit your doctor. You may need an evaluation by a doctor skilled in physical medicine. If you have contracted muscles or a torn ligament, he may be able to improve your flexibility. If there are torn structures in the shoulder joint you may be a candidate for surgical repair. But see your doctor and find out what you have before trying to make any decisions.

Leaders honored

TWIN FALLS—The Ma Tre Val Camp Fire Council honored several adult leaders at the annual dinner meeting recently.

Kermit Leir and Jerrilyn Hillman, both of Twin Falls, received the national John Collier award, presented for outstanding contributions in business and finance. Leir sponsors a club, has served as council treasurer and solicited funds from outside sources. Hillman was honored for "doing an excellent job" as council treasurer the past two years.

Betty Wright of Mountain Home was presented the Charlotte-Joy Farnsworth award for contribution to club organization, program and chairmanship for club leaders.

Joan Leir of Twin Falls was presented the Hillman award for "extensive and innovative service to youth." She has been a club leader for seven years and active with the Area Service Team working on special programs for Twin Falls area clubs.

A new blue ribbon award was made to three leaders who have given many years of service to the council. They were Norman and Sue Johnson of Eden and Kaye Anne Edwards of Filer.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson have done extensive repair work at Camp Tawakani and Mrs. Johnson also headed the fair booth project for two years as well as working as camp cook. Both are members of the council board of directors.

Mrs. Edwards has organized and kept Camp Fire going in the Filer area, according to Mary Lou Keenan, spokesperson. This year she has been the sole leader for 30 young people in three different clubs and is a 15-year adult member of Camp Fire.

Gwen Teramoto of Twin Falls was presented the Shawnequa award for outstanding contributions by volunteer staff members. A club leader for three years, she has helped train other Blue Bird leaders, worked as site director for day camp and also as director of Camp Tawakani.

Officers were elected at the meeting with Dave Stanger of Jerome named president, Charles Orr of Hazelton, second vice president, Patricia Foster of Filer, secretary. Directors include Roger Davis of Shoshone, George Haney III, Kent Johnson, Larry Shertburne, all of Twin Falls, and Bill Mitchell of Jerome. Tenure awards were presented for three year membership to Ida Burton, Nancy Hemy, Dena Olson and Mary Munoz of Mountain Home; Karen Bolich, Mary Gilbert of Jerome, Norman Johnson of Eden, Gwen Teramoto, Gordon Welch and Remigia Williams of Twin Falls.

Five-year awards went to Karen Welch of Twin Falls, Mariene McCoy and Betty Wright of Mountain Home and Janet Stanger of Jerome. Other awards were presented to Jerrilyn Hillman of Twin Falls, 10 years; Kaye Edwards, 15, and Cara Brehm of Mountain Home, 20 years.

Warriors hold No. 1 spot in prep cage poll

Twin Falls drops to third

By United Press International

Meridian dropped its first game of the season last week, but the 49-39 loss to Caldwell did little in the minds of Idaho prep coaches to jar the Warriors from their top ranking in state A-1 boys basketball play.

Coaches, in a survey released Monday by UPI, placed Rigby at the head of the A-2 list, Fruittland above all other A-3 teams and Nespeerce in the premier A-4 slot.

Meridian's loss broke a string of 17 straight wins. But it was not enough to topple the Warriors from a No. 1 ranking which dates back to the pre-season.

Coeur d'Alene, now-144, moved past Twin Falls for the second spot in A-1, while the Bruins, 15-3, slid to third after two Gem State Conference losses last weekend. Mountain Home, 12-5, moved up a notch to fourth, and Pocatello entered the top-five on the strength of a 10-8 record.

Rigby's 17-1 season mark was enough to convince coaches the Trojans deserve the top A-2 ranking. Rigby was followed by undefeated St. Maries, 15-0; and Jerome, 14-3. Moscow, sealed No. 2 last week, dropped a game to lower its mark to 14-3 and land in the four for with Middleton, 14-4.

In A-3, Fruittland, 17-1, nabbed the top ranking ahead of Kimberly, 14-2.

Third was Parma, 14-3, followed by Prairie, also 14-3, and Lapwai, now 15-3.

Nespeerce, 14-3, was the favorite squad in A-4 play, edging Greenleaf Friends Academy — with a season record of 14-3. Mullan, 14-2, was third, followed by Murtaugh, 14-4, and Castleford, 12-3.

Tar Heels, Cavs keep top two slots

NEW YORK (UPI) — North Carolina and Virginia held on to the top two positions in the United Press International Board of Coaches college basketball ratings Monday, setting up a dramatic battle for No. 1 between the two Atlantic Coast Conference titans at Chapel Hill, N.C., Thursday night.

North Carolina, which won three games last week to stretch its winning streak to 17 games and boost its record to 20-3, remained in the No. 1 spot by receiving 26 first place votes and 583 points from the 41 members of the coaches board who participated in this year's ratings.

Virginia, which won its only two outings last week to raise its record to 19-2, received six first place votes and 550 points to retain the No. 2 spot ahead of unbeat Nevada-Las Vegas, 20-0, which held on to the No. 3 position. Nevada-Las Vegas received eight first place votes and 498 points.

North Carolina and Virginia will meet for the second time this season Thursday night. The Tar Heels won the first meeting, 101-85, at Charlottesville, Va., on Jan. 15. Indiana, 17-2, moved up two places to No. 4 after turning back two Big Ten Conference foes last week and UCLA, 16-2, advanced two places to No. 5 after downing two Pacific 10 Conference rivals.

Houston, 18-2, also moved up two spots to No. 6 after beating two Southwest Conference opponents. The Cougars received one first place vote.

St. John's, 19-2, split a pair of games during the week and dropped three places to No. 7, followed by Missouri, which advanced two spots to No. 8 after posting a pair of victories over Big Eight Conference opponents.

Arkansas, 18-1, held onto the No. 9 position but Memphis State, 17-2, fell five places to No. 10 after splitting a pair of games.

Louisville, 18-3, recovered from its humiliating loss to Virginia on Jan. 29 and won two games during the week to advance one place to No. 11. Kentucky, 14-5; Georgetown, 15-5; and Minnesota, 14-4, each advanced three places despite splitting a pair of games during the week. Kentucky moved to No. 15 to No. 12 following a loss to Tennessee and a victory over Alabama; Georgetown climbed from No. 16 to No. 13 following a loss to Villanova and a triumph over DePaul, and Minnesota advanced from No. 18 to No. 15 after beating Ohio State in double overtime and losing to Indiana.

Villanova, 14-4, also split a pair of games during the week, but the Wildcats didn't receive as much support from the coaches. The Lack of funds, local apathy provide opposition for Jerome boxing club

By CHRIS HART
Times-News writer

JEROME — The scene is a large, dimly lit gymnasium, wallpapered with placards promoting past duels such as "Graziano vs. Zale" and "Louis vs. Conn." From one corner comes the steady rattata-rattata of a boxer punishing a speed bag. Aromas of sweat and liniment choke the air. And everywhere wry, hungry-looking youths skip rope or joust with each other in one of several rings.

That's the popular, romantic perception of a typical boxing club. Then there's the club which operates in the 4-H building of the Jerome County Fairgrounds.

Upon entering the room, you're not sure whether or not you've come to the right place. The three heavy bags hanging limply like sides of beef are reassuring, but there's nary a ring in sight — only the iron skeletons of a portable ring. This is a boxing club, though, because gloves and headgear overflow from a trio of shiny blue chests while 15 boys of varying ages obediently do calisthenics at the behest of a powerfully built man.

The man is Lonny Meadows, a sergeant with the Jerome Police Department who runs the city's Police Athletic League (PAL) boxing program. It's a program which is hardly flourishing; Meadows' enrollment of 21 boys has remained fairly static since activity began last October, and given the relative anonymity of boxing as a participant's sport in the Magic Valley, it's doubtful that the number will grow much higher.

Nevertheless, Meadows loves to teach boxing. "It's kind of in my blood," explained the 38-year-old who won a bronze medal at the 1978 International Police Olympics in San Diego for his pugilism.

If anything ever throws a knockout punch at the PAL, it will be money. Turning the PAL into a lucrative venture isn't Meadows' objective — "I don't expect to make money on it," he said — but the skimpy amount of funds he has at his disposal makes it tough to purchase the necessary equipment and impossible to fund out-of-town trips for the Jerome group to fight other clubs.

"It's difficult financially. Money's tight. In every respect," Meadows said. "This is an expensive sport getting started — you're talking $200 for a set of gloves."
For the PAL to sustain itself, Meadows says, it would have to conduct several bouts annually. "If we could put on six bouts a year and make about $200 per bout, we'd be in good shape," he speculated. Of course, he added, hosting a bout costs between $200 and $400.

The lone bout the PAL attempted to stage late last year was ill-fated from the start. Meadows admits, for it coincided with a rodeo at the College of Southern Idaho. "We'll have to put another bout on to see if the area will be supportive," he said.

If local people are avoiding boxing because they regard it as a bloody and violent sport, Meadows will readily explain that it's a remarkably safe activity at the amateur level. The 10-ounce gloves used during official bouts (the boxers train with 16-ounce gloves) and mandatory headgear help keep it that way.

"A lot of people look at it from the outside and don't understand it; they're a little afraid of it. Then they get involved in it and see that it's not a brutal sport," said Meadows, who claims he witnessed just three injuries that required medical attention during 16 years of teaching boxing in Reno, Nev., where he trained 100 boxers annually. "I would constantly lose kids to other sports — football, soccer, and others — and they'd get broken bones, and I'd say, 'Stay in boxing — it's safe.' With amateurs, you don't have the knockouts and injuries associated with professional boxing."

Since the majority of Meadows' group is between 10 and 12 years of age, he concentrates on exposing them to "boxing's most basic ele-

Mickey to follow in Mays' footsteps

Mantle bound for Kuhn-forced banishment from baseball

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI sports editor

NEW YORK — They're in this together now, doing lock step, so to speak, and the greatest comfort Willie can offer Mickey is that it only hurts for a little while.

Back in October of 1979, Willie Mays was ordered to disassociate himself from baseball by Bowie Kuhn for signing a 10-year contract with Bally International, a gambling hotel casino in Atlantic City.

Mays had two years left at the time on another contract with the Mets, whom he served as a good-will ambassador and part-time coach. His new association automatically ended all that.

Mickey Mantle is doing much the same thing. They're having a gala news conference for him here today when it'll be announced he's officially joining the Claridge Hotel and Casino in Atlantic City as director of their sports promotions. What that means is he'll shake hands with their patrons and run their golf tournaments for them, which is similar to what Mays does for Bally, and what it also means is Kuhn will notfully Mantle he's all through with baseball.

Kuhn has no other choice, he has to be consistent here. If he ruled that Mays had to disassociate himself with the game, then he has to do the same with Mantle. In Mickey's case, it will mean he no longer can serve as an instructor with the Yankees in spring training as he has done for a number of years now. Mantle knows what to expect. Mays can tell him a little more from experience.

"Mickey and I are friends and have been for a long time," Willie says. "I can't really tell him whether he's doing right or wrong because it's hard for me to decide for other people. I know what's right for me, but I don't know what's right for him. I don't know Mickey's circumstances as far as finances are concerned."

Mays gets $100,000 a year from Bally. Mantle will make at least that much with Claridge.

"I don't think anybody should be able to tell someone else how to make a living," Willie goes on. "I'm not hurting baseball at what I do — spending time with kids, going to schools and making talks — and I'm sure Mickey isn't gonna do anything to hurt the game, either. We'll be working around the corner from each other. I think it'll be wrong to put him out of baseball, the same way I think it was wrong what they did to me."

Mays participated in the Bing Crosby national pro-am in Pebble Beach, Calif., last week. He's talking now from his home in Atherton, Calif. "I don't know how much it means for Mickey to go to spring training," Willie says. "I used to enjoy going there with the Mets. Maybe he was getting tired of it. I don't know. After the commissioner made his ruling on me, the first year was very difficult. I was very upset. I was afraid how the kids would take it. But they've been all right. The people at Bally also have protected me very well. They see to it that I have nothing whatsoever to do with gambling. They only have me do things that are good for kids or they have me play golf. But I'm not even near the gambling part."

"I don't know what the commissioner will do about Mickey, but I imagine he'll do the same thing he did to me. Then he'll be following the guideline he believes in. But sometimes you have to wonder if there isn't some kind of double standard. They wouldn't let this guy in Chicago buy the White Sox because he owns a race track, but now look at the questions being raised over the sale of the Pirates. Who are Warner Communications and what are these stories I've been reading about some of their executives being convicted? There are other cases, too. The commissioner was much easier on others like Fergie Jenkins and Denny McLain than he was on me. Fergie is a good friend of mine, but facts are facts."

"Baseball was my life. If still is, I never did anything to harm it. I've never been baseball all my life. Maybe too much. I turned down a lotta money I could've made if I wanted to endorse things like alcohol. I wouldn't do it because I felt it wasn't good for baseball. I made only one beer commercial. The only reason I did that was because the beer was one of the Mets' sponsors and I thought I was helping the ball club."

MICKEY MANTLE Joins Mays in Atlantic City

Mays says he was advised he should sue baseball after being forced to disassociate himself with it. He didn't want to, however.
"I could've sued," he says, "but I wouldn't do it. Some people say to me, 'Hey, why don't you sue the man?' I tell 'em I don't wanna do that. But I feel Mickey and I should be allowed to do both jobs. I don't see any conflict at all. Look, I know Mickey. He's a guy who's still a kid. A happy-go-lucky kid. He's never gonna harm baseball or anybody else. The only one he ever harmed is himself."

In a way, the same can be said about Willie.

The fact is Bowie Kuhn has a soft spot in his heart for both Mickey and Willie. Nonetheless, he's going to keep cutting em as he sees them for as long as he's commissioner even if the owners have voted to get a new one in six more months.

Whether you agree with Bowie Kuhn or not, he is to be lauded for standing there and facing the storm. There is no question he has the welfare of the game at heart.

"If watching that recent PBS documentary on professional football taught me anything, it taught me that Bowie Kuhn's greatest strength is the way he has preserved the integrity of the game," declares Ballard Smith, the San Diego Padres' President.

There has never been any hint of impropriety or scandal in baseball since he has been commissioner. Insofar as some of his decisions are concerned, I can't honestly see much wrong with them. Personally, I'd much rather err on the side of being too strict than being too lenient."

Gerulaitis case examined by Justice

VITAS GERULAITIS
Allegedly sought cocaine

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Justice Department Monday began a review of the government's narcotics case against world-ranked tennis ace Vitas Gerulaitis, officials said.

Gerulaitis' attorney, Thomas Puccio, who was the chief prosecutor in the Abscam political corruption probe, said he asked for the review in order to challenge the tennis player's possible indictment on charges he planned to invest $200,000 in synthetic cocaine during a major tournament last winter at Madison Square Garden.

U.S. Attorney John Martin was to argue his side of the case in Washington.

Judge Kevin Duffy of U.S. District Court in Manhattan also granted Puccio's request to unseal the minutes of the sentencing of Tony Goble, a top backgammon player who implicated Gerulaitis in the cocaine deal.

But in doing so, the judge had some harsh words for Puccio and for a prosecutor in Martin's office.

"I have absolutely no idea why Mr. Gerulaitis wants this material," Duffy said. "Nothing that was said was evidence or could be considered by anyone as evidence."

Puccio insisted he needed the material to put him on an equal footing with the government lawyers in determining whether or not the case should be brought.

A check of the sentencing transcript showed no reference to Gerulaitis.

"I would like to know what the government was trying to do in terms of getting Goble to testify against Gerulaitis," Puccio said. "I think I wouldn't be doing what I should be doing for my client if I didn't at least read what is in there in the light of what is in the press."

In unsealing the sentencing transcript, Duffy also criticized prosecutor Rhea Neugarten for attempting to obtain publicity by mentioning in great detail the supposed information gathered against Gerulaitis.

Puccio, the judge said, also sought wide publicity by going to the media and making the entire matter "front-page material for several days and apparently seeking to continue it."

At the hearing, officials said the review by the Justice Department began Monday.

A federal grand jury in Manhattan was expected to indict the world's fifth-ranked tennis player last week, but did not do so. Goble said Gerulaitis, 23, of Kings Point, L.I., sought to buy the illegal drugs during the Volvo Masters tournament in January 1982.

Borg may miss tournament

TORONTO (UPI) — Tennis star Bjorn Borg lay in a Rhode Island hospital with infections in both hands Monday, raising the prospect he might miss his final tournament appearance in North America, slated to open today in Toronto.

Borg's agent Bob Kain said the Swedish superstar, on a final swing of tournaments and exhibitions before his retirement, would still try to make the Toronto event but was not sure he could play his scheduled opening match against Vitas Gerulaitis tonight.

Both Kain and tournament organizer Andre Kepinski speculated that the infection was caused by the tape Borg uses on his hands while playing tennis.

The news of Borg's possible withdrawal was followed by the announcement that defending champion Ivan Lendl would not be able to participate due to a strained bicep. The Czechoslovakian ace will be replaced by eighth-ranked American Gene Mayer.

Rim Runners meet Thursday

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Rim Runners will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Magic Valley YFCA.

Dr. Jim Emery, a cardiologist, will be the guest speaker. All runners are invited to attend.

Hopson, Heywood honored

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho forward Phil Hopson and center Tom Heywood of Weber State have been named MVPs of the Big Sky Conference. Hopson scored 17 points and grabbed 10 rebounds last Tuesday night in Idaho's 87-70 win over Idaho State, and he had 22 points and six rebounds Saturday night in the Vandals 67-56 win over Boise State.

He also has six assists and four steals in the two games as defending Big Sky champion Idaho climbed into a tie with Weber State and Nevada-Reno for second place in the conference standings.

The 6-foot-10 Heywood scored a total of 31 points and grabbed 19 rebounds, playing in just part of Weber State's two games last week — an 85-59 victory last Monday night over Southwest Louisiana and a 95-65 win over Idaho State on Saturday night.

Malone tops for week

NEW YORK (UPI) — Philadelphia center Moses Malone, the league's sixth leading scorer with a 24.4 average, was named Monday NBA Player of the Week for the period ending Feb. 6.

During that stretch, the 6-10 pivotman acquired from Houston before the season averaged 27.3 points a game and 19.8 rebounds. He scored 30 points against Denver to start his week, collected 27 against Golden State, added 28 against Portland and netted 24 in the Seattle game.

NHL lauds Chicago's Savard

MONTREAL (UPI) — Chicago Black Hawks all-star center Denis Savard, who scored four goals and five assists in four Chicago victories, Monday was named the National Hockey League's player of the week.

Savard, who was voted to the Campbell Conference second all-star team behind Edmonton's Wayne Gretzky, was in Long Island where he was set to participate in the 35th NHL all-star game tonight at the Nassau County Coliseum, home of the New York Islanders.

Chisox ask LeFlore to camp

CHICAGO (UPI) — Outfielder Ron LeFlore has been invited to the Chicago White Sox spring training camp, manager Tony LaRussa said Monday.

LaRussa earlier had said he was polling his coaching staff to get their views on whether to invite LeFlore, and said the decision would be made on the basis of what would be best for the team. LeFlore has a contract for the 1983 season and the Sox would have to pay him whether or not he is allowed to play.

"I've had several conversations with Ron over the past weeks," LaRussa said, "and I am not minimizing the problems he will face at spring training."

"He will have to show the ability to win a spot on the club and earn back the confidence of his teammates, coaches and manager. The burden rests with Ron LeFlore."

Giants sign utilityman

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants filled out their 40-man spring roster Monday by signing free agent, Jack-of-all-trades Joel Youngblood to a three-year contract.

Youngblood has played every position in a seven-year major league career except first base, pitcher and catcher.

He split the 1982 season between the New York Mets and the Montreal Expos, gaining some notoriety when he delivered the game-winning pinch-hit for the Mets in Chicago on the afternoon of Aug. 4, then getting a pinch-hit off Steve Carlton of the Phillies for the Expos in a night contest.

With the Mets, Youngblood batted .257 in 90 games and with the Expos he batted .200 in 40 games.

Another of Bills wants out

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — All-Pro Buffalo Bills defensive lineman Fred Smerlas says he wants to be traded.

Smerlas, in a story in Monday's Buffalo News, said he intends to ask new Bills Coach Kay Stephenson to trade him.

"I don't want to waste my career with a loser and I don't see how Kay can win in Buffalo because his hands will be tied by management," Smerlas told the newspaper following Sunday's Pro Bowl in Honolulu.

Smerlas will be added to a growing list of Bills players who are either seeking to be traded or are free agents. Last week's players, including several starters, became free agents.

NCAA eases off USF, Irvine

MISSION, Kan. (UPI) — The NCAA said Monday it will not impose further penalties on the men's basketball programs at the University of San Francisco and the University of California-Irvine.

During last summer, USF, which had been slapped with NCAA probation twice in the previous three years, discovered new violations in its basketball program and dropped the program completely.

"The (NCAA) Committee on Infractions wishes to express its support of the prompt and decisive action by the University of San Francisco in this case," said Charles Alan Wright, the chairman of the committee. "It appears in this case, the misguided athletic interests of a few individuals created a situation in which the educational values and goals of the institution were being set aside."

"The committee believes that the actions taken by the university represented the only meaningful alternative to regain institutional control of the university's athletic program," Wright said in a release.

Also in the release, the NCAA said its committee reviewed three violations that occurred during the summer of 1979 in Cal-Irvine's basketball program. In that case, the Pacific Coast Athletic Association imposed a one-year monitoring period on the institution.

Jazz, Denver swap big men

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The Utah Jazz reacquired 7-foot center Rich Kelley Monday in a deal that sent second-year center Danny Schayes to the Denver Nuggets.

The Kelley-Schayes trade also involves "other considerations" for the Jazz. Utah coach-general manager Frank Layden declined to discuss what the Jazz will receive besides Kelley.

However, other team officials said the additional considerations will be up to Denver.

"We're happy to have Rich back with the Jazz," said Layden. "He gives us an experienced center, which will be good for our young players. He's always been a smart player who got the most out of his ability."

Kelley was drafted by the Jazz in 1975 when the club was still in New Orleans. He played with the team for four years and was about to become a free agent when he was traded to New Jersey.

The 8-year veteran was then traded to Phoenix and to Denver last summer. With the Nuggets, he has been used in a backup role, averaging just 4.6 points, 4.5 rebounds and 14 minutes of playing time per game.

Magic Mountain skiers capture memorial race

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Mountain junior ski racers took overall honors in the second annual Claude Jones Memorial ski race at Magic Mountain in competition with racers from Pomerelle, Park City, Utah, and North Star, Calif.

David Lierman, coach for the host team, said the Magic racers completed 28 points Sunday in a giant slalom event. Pomerelle, represented by only part of its team, completed 6 points and Park City, Utah, 9 points.

This gives the Magic Team the permanent memorial trophy for the second consecutive year and a total of 39 points in the racing season compared to 27 for Pomerelle.

A baby ski race on the rope tow slope attracted eight contestants ranging in age from one to five years of age. Although some had help from parents getting through the course, all were winners of giant-sized candy bars.

Special guests at the annual race included Phil Jones son of the late Claude Jones and his wife, Pam Jones; and long-time friends, William and Toni Lash of Sun Valley; Dr. Richard Voorhees and Shirley Voorhees of Seattle; Lou and Betty Lorenz of Salt Lake City, and Marty and Sherie Jacobs from North Star, Calif.

USFL team may acquire college stars

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Stars of the United States Football League have called a news conference for today, presumably to announce the signings of draft choices Kelvin Bryant and Irv Eatman.

Bryant, a tailback from North Carolina, was selected by the Stars in the league's territorial draft. Eatman, an offensive tackle from UCLA, was the team's first-round choice in the draft's regular phase.

Eatman reportedly already has agreed to a contract worth about $150,000 per year. One report said Bryant would sign a contract worth "in the neighborhood" of $300,000 per year but the figure could not be confirmed.

THE ACES[®] BOBBY WOLFF

"An honest politician is one who when he is caught will stay caught." - Simon Cameron.

East bought the Brooklyn Bridge with his efforts against today's vulnerable game. But don't put all the blame on East; take note that South made a strong and deceptive pitch.

East's diamond ace dropped South's king and East wondered what to lead at trick two. He tried the club king and declarer dropped a misleading jack. East started at the cards for a while, but he was afraid to lead spades. How could he lead away from his king when South had bid the suit?

East resigned himself to another club lead and South sprung the trap. He finessed, winning dummy's 10 and escaped with the loss of only one spade trick. After winning dummy's club 10, South cashed the diamond queen, ruffed a diamond and threw one of dummy's spades on the club ace. The defense got a spade lead trump, but it was all over. South was able to cross-ruff to score 10 tricks.

Should East have seen through South's diabolical plan? In retrospect, yes. West's club four could not possibly be an encouraging signal. However, some Wests have been known to miss signals in cases like this so South does deserve

Stocks climb; Dow flirts with all-time high

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
United Press International

NEW YORK — Stock prices rose sharply Monday on signs of economic improvement but some investors cashed in their chips when the Dow Jones industrial average flirted with its all-time high.

Trading was only moderately active because institutional investors with billions of dollars held back," according to Trade Latimer, Evans &

Co. vice president.

The Dow Jones average of 30 stocks, which climbed at midsession to within a fraction of its all-time high of 1,992.35, finished the day with a gain of 9.19 to 1,087.10. It had risen 13.25 points Friday.

The New York Stock Exchange Index gained 0.48 to 84.77 and the price of an average share increased 19 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock Index jumped 0.79 to a record 146.93. Advances topped declines 1,101-541 and retail sales have picked up.

Big Board volume totaled 86,000,000 shares, down from the 87,000,000 traded Friday, which indicated smaller investors were more active in the market than megabuck pension funds.

The National Association of Purchasing Management said its latest survey showed production and new orders scored their best gains in 18 months. Other recent reports showed unemployment has dropped highlighted concerns interest rates will remain high.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 99,466,300 shares compared with 102,169,470 traded Friday.

The American Stock Exchange Index rose 3.56 to 369.62 and the price of a share added 14 cents. Advances topped declines 423-229 among the 840 issues traded. Composite volume totaled 9,405,750 shares compared with 9,352,510 traded Friday.

The National Association of Securities Dealers NASDAQ index of OTC stocks gained 0.37 to an all-time high of 252.02.

On the trading floor, Mesa Offshore Trust was the most active NYSE-listed issue, up 1/4 to 2 1/4 following blocks of 500,000 shares at 1 1/2 and 700,000 shares at 2.

Restaurant to pay dividend

SALT LAKE CITY — Directors of JB's Restaurants, Inc., have declared a 4 cent per share cash dividend.

President Clark D. Jones said the dividend will be paid on Feb. 25 to stockholders of record on Feb. 11. The cash dividend is unchanged from that paid in the previous quarter.

Gem contracting still lags

NEW YORK CITY — December contracting in Idaho continued to trail levels of a year earlier.

Total construction contracts for that month were $44.26 million, 29 percent below the $62.34 million of December, 1981, according to the F. W. Dodge Division of McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co.

Non-residential building, at $21.91 million, was 23 percent below the $28.53 million of a year earlier. Residential contracts totaled $15.3 million, off 36 percent from $24 million a year earlier.

Non-building construction, at $7.05 million, was down 28 percent from $9.81 million in December, 1981.

For 1982, total construction contracting totaled $509.79 million, 29 percent below the $721.86 million recorded during 1981.

Non-residential contracts totaled $166.33 million, 5 per cent under the $175.09 million of 1981. Residential contracting, at $175.33 million, was 25 percent below the previous year's $233.24 million.

Non-building contracting, at $168.12 million, was off 46 percent from $313.52 million in 1981.

Utility purchasing power

SPOKANE (UPI) — The Washington Water Power Co., has struck a deal to purchase excess power from the Potlatch Corp. at Lewiston, Idaho, for $15 million per year.

WWP agreed to pay for 31 megawatts of electricity. Officials said in the long run, the contract will prove beneficial. But in the short term, it will result in higher bills for WWP customers.

Now the utility is trying to raise rates in Washington an Idaho to cover the costs of the Potlatch deal. In Washington, the utility is seeking a 5.2 per cent increase, while in Idaho it seeks 6.7 per cent.

Lumber firm obtains mills

COEUR D'ALENE — Louisiana-Pacific Corp. has purchased three sawmills in Wyoming and Colorado from the Edward Hines Lumber Co.

The mills are located in Kremmling and Walden, Colo., and Saratoga, Wyo. They will be operated as part of L-P's Intermountain Division, headquartered in Coeur d'Alene.

Value of the transaction was placed at about $6 million, said Sherman E. Kirchmeier, division general manager. The corporation's Intermountain Division operates 16 sawmills and a particleboard plant in Idaho and four other states.

Amfac board sets dividend

SAN FRANCISCO — Directors of Amfac, Inc., have declared a regular quarterly dividend on Series B cumulative convertible preferred stock.

The 25-cent dividend is payable April 1 to shareholders of record on March 1.

Foreign investment sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Concerned that existing sources of housing finance may be inadequate, the Federal National Mortgage Association Monday announced a proposal to channel more foreign investment into the U.S. mortgage market.

Chairman David Maxwell said Fannie Mae is seeking approval from the Treasury Department to launch an offshore financing program, "so that we can tap foreign investment at its source."

Once it receives Treasury approval, Maxwell said, the organization would start a major marketing campaign to make foreign investors aware of opportunities in the U.S. mortgage market and the advantages of using Fannie Mae as the conduit.

It also proposes to set up a "market watch" to follow international investment methods and trends in order to make products and services of the American housing industry remain attractive to offshore investors.

No interest repeal: O'Neill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Speaker Thomas O'Neill said Monday there is no chance that Congress will repeal the 10 percent withholding rate on interest and dividends.

The banking and savings and loan industries have launched a campaign to convince Congress to reverse its earlier decision to withhold a portion of such income for the first time, much as income tax is withheld from paychecks. The provision is scheduled to begin July 1.

O'Neill said he had conferred with House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., and the banking industry has no chance of passing repeal legislation.

The withholding provision was passed in an effort to recapture much income that now goes unreported and untaxed. There are estimates that as much as 15 percent of current interest and dividend income goes unreported.

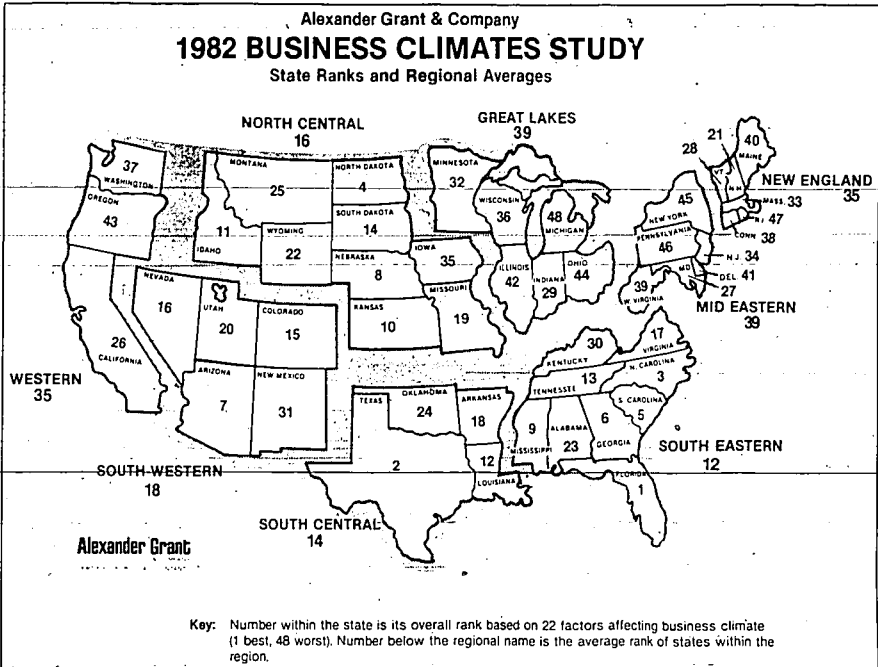

Steel contract talks start

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The United Steelworkers union and the depressed steel industry opened contract negotiations Monday in hopes of meeting a March 1 deadline for a new contract.

USW officials met with three of the eight major steelmakers that bargain as a unit to discuss issues unique to each company, such as grievance procedures and outside contracts.

"We're making good progress," said negotiations still are in the early stages, said USW Vice President Joseph Odrochick.

USW officials bargained Monday with representatives of U.S. Steel Corp. in Pittsburgh, Republic Steel Corp. in Middleburg Heights, Ohio, and Inland Steel Co. in Hammond, Ind.

Florida business climate best

CHICAGO (UPI) — Florida ranks No. 1 and the Southeast is the most favorable manufacturing region in the United States for 1982.

That is the result of a study of the business climate in the continental 48 states.

Florida retained its top ranking from 1981 in the study, which was released over the weekend. The rest of the states making up the top five for manufacturing climates last year were Texas, North Carolina, North Dakota and South Carolina.

North Carolina and South Carolina replaced Colorado and Kansas in the top five while the other three were repeaters from the 1981 rankings.

The fourth annual study was conducted by Alexander Grant & Co., a Chicago-based national accounting firm, with the cooperation of the Conference of State Manufacturers' Associations.

Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia made up the Southeast region for the purposes of the study.

The geographic areas ranked best for manufacturing in 1982 after the Southeast in descending order were:

•South Central: Arkansas.

Idaho rates 2nd in West

BOISE (UPI) — A national study shows Idaho last year had the second best overall business climate for general manufacturing compared to 11 other Western states.

The study by Alexander Grant & Co., a national accounting firm, ranked Idaho eleventh among 48 states, an improvement over the state's 1981 ranking as having the fourteenth best business climate in the nation. Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry President P. K. Harwood said.

He said Idaho ranked fourth in the nation when considering favorable business conditions controlled or influenced by state and local governments.

Idaho's ranking of fifth in 1981 in that category improved because the Legislature approved a number of corporate tax breaks last year as business incentives.

Harwood said. But the state's attractiveness to business may diminish as a result of a homeowner's property tax exemption passed last year, he said.

He said an initiative allowing an exemption of 50 percent on residential property would shift the burden on to business, creating a "negative impact."

"If the homestead exemption is allowed to stand as passed, it will greatly impede the economic recovery Idaho needs," Harwood said.

Louisiana, Oklahoma, Texas, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah, Washington.

•North Central: Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming.

•Southwest: Arizona, Colorado.

•New England: Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont.

•Mid Eastern: Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, West Virginia.

•Great Lakes: Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio, Wisconsin.

"Although there is a propensity to look at national rankings, in practice business tends to locate or relocate within a specific region," Selwin Price, the firm's partner in charge of the study, said.

"Consequently, competition and programs to attract or retain manufacturing operations generally occur among sister states in the same region."

The rankings stemmed from five categories — state and local government fiscal policies; state regulated employment costs; labor costs; availability and productivity of labor force; and other manufacturing related issues.

"Our study emphasizes the need for each business to make specific decisions based on its unique requirements, and conceivably no two organizations within an industry group or different industry groups have precisely the same requirements," Price said.

Oil exporters near accord on prices

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nigeria apparently has agreed to charge $3 a barrel for OPEC's best oil if Saudi Arabia lowers the cartel's base price by $4 to $30 a barrel, Petroleum Information International reported Monday.

The accord could resolve bitter differences between the 13 members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, which hit an impasse over pricing and production at its recent summit in Geneva.

The Houston-based newsletter said it understands Nigeria, which refused to give into demands from Saudi Arabia that it raise its $5.50-a-barrel price at the Geneva meeting, has agreed to accept a $3 differential over a new OPEC base price of $30 a barrel.

Saudi Arabia and other Persian Gulf members of OPEC — Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates and Qatar — have been pressing for a reduction in the cartel's benchmark crude to $30 a barrel, PII said.

Saudi Arabia, OPEC's principal producer, is under intense pressure from all company customers to trim its $34 price and the kingdom's output reportedly has sunk to less than 3.5 million barrels a day, the newsletter said. Saudi production averaged 10 million barrels a day only 19 months ago.

OPEC's high-quality oil from Nigeria, Libya and Algeria that is closer to Western markets than Persian Gulf crude has carried a price differential of $1.50 a barrel since August — less than the historical $3 premium. The Africans were forced to cut the differential because of competition in the weak world oil market.

PII said the Nigerian-Saudi agreement reportedly was hammered out last week in Saudi Arabia between Saudi Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani and Nigerian President Shehu Shagari.

Under the pact Saudi Arabia will extend loans to hard-pressed Nigeria if the African nation loses sales because of the higher price differential, the newsletter said.

OPEC deadlock in Geneva has triggered a sharp decline in prices for crude and petroleum products on the spot market, where oil is sold to the highest bidder.

Industrial gas use skids 14% during '82

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The troubled natural gas industry suffered a 14 percent drop in demand among industrial customers in 1982 from the previous year.

The American Gas Association, which represents gas distributors, released a study Monday showing the industry lost ground because of a variety of factors, including conservation, the severe recession and customers switching to other fuels.

Association President George Lawrence, however, said that despite a 1.1 percent annual decline in industrial gas use between 1978 and 1981, natural gas "actually increased its market share of fuel use in the industrial sector during that time because the overall demand for all energy dropped at a much sharper rate."

The group's study found that of the drop in industrial demand for gas between 1981 and 1982, 46 percent resulted directly from the decline in U.S. industrial output, 29 percent was lost to switching to residual fuel oil and other fuels, and 25 percent was lost to conservation.

The fuel-switching, Lawrence asserted, was "unnecessary and in fact more harmful to the U.S. economy" because it meant the use of more foreign oil.

He said the study also shows that "anticipated moderate growth in manufacturing during an expected economic recovery would generate additional demand" for gas.

Lawrence also argued that federal limitations on industrial use of natural gas, contained in the Natural Gas Policy Act and the Fuel Use Act, should be abolished.

"Currently, there is a 15 percent surplus of gas which could be brought to market" if the limitations were removed, he asserted.

"As industrial energy use grows during the country's economic recovery, the natural gas industry must have access to the industrial market without existing federal constraints."
