Democrats win vote; veto is upheld

By STEVEN CHRISTENSEN
United Press International

BOISE — Democratic Gov. John Evans' line-item vetoes of about $10 million in school and state agency spending cuts for the 1983 fiscal year were upheld Friday when Republican senators failed to amend the two-thirds margin needed to override the chief executive's red ink.

GOP House members — relying on their two-thirds majority in the lower chamber — had already voted to override the governor's four item vetoes.

The items included another 1.5 percent funding holdback for most state agencies, about $6 million in reduced general-account monies for public schools, and an additional $1.7 million in school funds from such sources as employee retirement, unemployment and insurance programs.

All 14 Democrats in the upper chamber stood together in four votes to sustain the vetoes, and the Senate's 21 Republicans balloted twice to override.

'Idaho already ranks 48th in the nation in terms of its per-capita support for education... 'We're headed for the bottom.'

—John Peavey

In the other two votes, one GOP lawmaker — Sen. Herb Carlson of Eagle — voted with the Democratic minority. Carlson later said he wanted to sustain the veto of the 1.5 percent funding holdbacks, but override the red ink on education cuts.

Analysts had expected the 1983 revenue shortfall to be about $69.2 million, but Idaho tax commissioners said Thursday a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling on taxing of corporations will probably cost the state another $11.6 million before the fiscal period expires on June 30.

Under terms of the bill which remained intact, Idaho will issue at least $32 million in tax-anticipation notes to pay off 1983 bills and will institute a one-cent hike in the sales tax beginning March 1 to pay off the debt.

Spending cuts and diversions of selected dedicated monies into the general fund were expected to raise the needed $69.2 million. Officials have not yet said how they plan to cover the extra $11 million lost from the court decision.

The fight to override was led by Senate President Pro Tem James Risch of Boise, who said the Republican drafted bill to alleviate the fiscal 1983 revenue shortfall constituted the Legislature's best effort at addressing the problem.

Sen. James Barker, a Buhl-Republican who heads the chamber's Health, Education and Welfare Committee, said public schools could handle the $7.7 million in appropriation cuts because the education system has earned about $9.8 million more than was expected when lawmakers made the initial $215 million allocation during the 1982 session.

Even with the cuts, schools will have about three-tenths of a percent more money this year than was anticipated, he said.

He also said legislators should require that public schools participate in easing the shortfall to "arrive at some equity" in light of cuts imposed on higher education and vocational training programs.

But opponents, led by Democratic Minority Leader Kermit Kiebert of Hope, said the state should not back up on its commitment to improve education.

Kiebert said the budget-balancing bill originally created the GOP-dominated Legislature only after "trials, tribulations, the wringing of hands and gnashing of teeth."

Six felony charges dropped

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — Six felony charges, including one for rape, filed against Dan Featherston, 37, of Jerome, were dismissed Thursday afternoon at the close of a six-day preliminary hearing.

Fifth District magistrate Judge Daniel Huribut granted the motion for dismissal — made by Eugene Fredericksen, the defense attorney — after the state had completed its preliminary presentation Thursday afternoon.

Fredericksen moved for dismissal on the grounds that the state had failed to present sufficient evidence to link the defendant to the charges.

A preliminary hearing is held to determine if a crime has been committed and if there is sufficient evidence against the defendant to justify ordering him to stand trial. Fredericksen's motion was granted before the defense called any witnesses or presented any evidence. The defendant did not take the stand, Fredericksen said Friday.

Jerome County Prosecutor Dennis Adamson expressed disappointment Friday in the outcome, but he said there is a possibility that the county will refile the charges.

The charges were brought against the Jerome businessman following a lengthy investigation of an incident that occurred March 21, 1982. At that time, a 27-year-old Jerome-area woman was beaten, robbed and raped.

Fredericksen said the evidence showed that a crime certainly had been committed, "and I hope that we will find the person who committed the crime, but it was not Danny (Featherston)."

"After some 60 days of being persecuted by rumor and gossip, it is good to know one can have his day in court and the charges be dismissed," the attorney said.

However, Featherston still faces charges in Gooding County for first-degree burglary, attempted robbery, two counts of aggravated assault and one count of battery with intent to commit a serious felony, rape.

Featherston is free on $25,000 bond, pending a preliminary hearing on those charges. That hearing will be held in the Fifth District Magistrate Court in Gooding, starting April 5.

The Jerome County preliminary hearing began Feb. 14 and continued for four days, it then was recessed until Wednesday and continued for another two days.

The hearing was closed to the press and public, on a motion made by defense attorney and approved by the judge. Clerks and others sitting through the hearing were warned not to discuss the case outside the courtroom.

Huribut could not be reached Friday to comment on his dismal of the charges.

Documents being reviewed for improper EPA conduct

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House said Friday contacts between presidential aides and Environmental Protection Agency officials are being reviewed for "improper activity," but insisted no formal investigation is under way.

Aides to President Reagan were asked 10 days ago to report any contacts with EPA officials to White House counsel Fred Fielding, deputy press secretary Larry Speakes disclosed.

"To date," Speakes said, "we have found nothing that would indicate any wrongdoing, any improper activity."

However, he said the review, part of "an internal assessment" by Fielding, is continuing.

Congressional investigators are looking into accusations of political manipulation in the EPA's handling of the $1.6 billion "Superfund" established to clean up hazardous waste sites around the country.

Two top-level EPA officials were fired this week. Reagan replaced them and made three other top EPA appointments Thursday, saying he still has confidence in Administrator Anne Burford and the only scandal at the EPA is the "one brewing in the media."

The Justice Department, meanwhile, turned 64 subpoenaed toxic waste documents to a House subcommittee. Rep. Robert Roe, D-N.J., said up to 20 percent of the material was censored, as allowed under an agreement allowing the panel eventual full access.

"A great deal of the material has been blacked out," said Roe. He said some documents, which pertain to six toxic waste dump cases, contained three or four blank pages.

Nigeria to meet with OPEC

By ROZ LISTON
United Press International

OPEC maverick Nigeria said it will join other members of the splintered 13-nation cartel at an emergency meeting next week on a unified oil price cut to stave off an all-out global price war.

Analysts said the Nigerian announcement Friday indicated the African oil producer would reconsider its decision last week to roll back prices by $5.50 to $30 a barrel to undercut non-OPEC competitors Britain and Norway.

The Nigerian move set the stage for an all-out global price war.

OPEC's powerful Persian Gulf producers retaliated by threatening to unilaterally slash their prices unless Nigeria and other cartel mavericks agreed to a unified reduction in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' $34-a-barrel benchmark price at next week's summit.

"The Nigerian oil price is very flexible and negotiable," said Alvin Silber, oil analyst at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc., New York.

"There are serious economic difficulties in Nigeria, which has little leverage for playing games and must maximize its oil revenue," he said.

Quoting official sources in Lagos, the state-run New Nigerian newspaper said Nigeria is willing to attend the OPEC meeting to work out a uniform and acceptable oil price.

Silber and other analysts were betting OPEC would decide to lower its base price by $4 to $30 a barrel, which would force Nigeria to raise its prices to about $2.50 for the cartel's best-quality crude.

OPEC and non-OPEC oil ministers continued to travel the globe in an unprecedented effort to shore up oil prices and to prevent massive defaults by poorer oil-producing nations. Arab sources said non-OPEC Britain, Norway and Mexico would send documents to OPEC's emergency summit.

The Iraqi news agency reported the OPEC meeting would be held in Geneva next Thursday. But OPEC headquarters in Vienna said no decision had been made yet on the site or date.

Inflation comes to near halt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Inflation stood nearly still in January, as cheaper fuel held the rise in consumer prices to 0.2 percent, the government reported Friday.

The rate would amount to an annual 2.1 percent if sustained for a year, the Labor Department said — well below last year's 10-year-low of 3.9 percent.

The department also measured spending power: Left after inflation, saying real earnings for January surged 1.6 percent, the most in 11 months.

Cheaper gasoline and oil wiped out most of the month's consumer price increases for housing, medical care, food and clothing. Lower oil costs, especially if oil-producing countries fail to contain price-cutting competition, promise to reinforce the trend of low inflation that began in October 1981.

Major banks moved Friday to cut their prime rate by half a point to its lowest in more than four years, to 10.5 percent. They had been encouraged to do so by Federal Reserve Board chairman Paul Volcker, who testified that commercial rates seemed to be "out of equilibrium" with the inflation rate.

The January Consumer Price Index was 233.1, which means if cost consumers $233.10 to purchase the same sample "market basket" of goods and services that cost $100 in 1967.

At the White House, deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said the report "is good news because, coupled with expected further energy price decreases, (it) makes the inflation picture for the rest of 1983 very favorable."

Martin Feldstein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, said the report makes him feel that "runaway inflation... is now safely behind us."

THE COST OF LIVING
Rate of Inflation
Gasoline DOWN 3.3%
New Gas UP

Economic recovery "seems to be moving along faster" than forecast in September and unemployment could drop under 10 percent by the end of the year, he said.

"The fall in the prime rate is consistent with the continued good news on the inflation front, although we're still concerned with long-term interest rates," economist William Dunkelberg said Friday, speaking for the National Federation of Independent Business.

The index in January underwent a restructuring by the department to remove long-credited distortions from mortgage interest costs and the fluctuation in house prices.

The department said its substitution of rents and what would be equivalent to rents for homeowners made the index 0.2 percent higher in January than the flat zero change the index would have shown under the old system.

In December the price index, under the previous way of calculating the number, moved down 0.3 percent. It showed no change in November.

Housing costs were up 0.5 percent, food prices were up 0.1 percent, clothing costs climbed 0.3 percent and medical care jumped 0.8 percent in the latest price report.

Because of the fuel price declines, the overall transportation index was the only one of the seven top categories to go down, by 0.6 percent.

Gasoline prices moved down 3.1 cents a gallon on average from December to January. Unleaded regular averaged $11.23 a gallon.

Dump truck and bus collide

The body of Bing Skiles lies in the roadway at the scene of an accident between a dump truck and a Hoopa High School bus. Skiles, the driver of the truck, was killed on impact. Also killed was one of the students. The accident occurred Thursday on Highway 96 just north of Willow Creek, Calif.

Shuttle engine leak found

CAPR CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Another possible hydrogen leak was found Friday in the No. 2 engine of the space shuttle Challenger, but officials did not believe it would further delay the maiden voyage of America's newest rocketship.

Hugh Harris, a Kennedy Space Center spokesman, said technicians discovered an apparent leak in a quarter-inch line that carries hydrogen to the ignition system of the second of three main engines.

Technicians for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will examine the engine again Saturday to determine if a leak did exist, said Harris. Even if a leak is confirmed, he doubted it would affect a tentative launch next month.

The Challenger was originally scheduled to lift off in late January but was delayed because a cracked manifold in one of the ship's engine allowed hydrogen to leak into the rear compartment.

A few weeks later, an oxygen leak was found in the replacement engine. Engineers determined the leak was caused by a faulty weld made in 1977.

Space agency officials decided to bring in a third engine, which will arrive at the space center Monday. The launch is tentatively set for March 19 or 20.

Harris said officials do not believe Friday's discovery was "a major leak."

"We really didn't, and still don't think, it's a major problem," Harris said. "We believe it's a leak in a weld. Right at this moment, we don't know. The whole gamut runs from flying it the way it is to sending it back to the factory."

Ford recalls 257,000 cars

DEARBORN, Mich. (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. said Friday it is recalling 257,000 1981 and 1982 Ford Escort and Mercury Lynx station wagons for installation of a roof reinforcement to secure shoulder belts.

Ford said it was taking the action partly because of a crash in Canada that injured a passenger. The car was built in the United States. The company said it was asked to investigate the problem by Transport Canada, the Canadian department of transportation.

As a result of the crash and further studies, Ford said it found some of the cars may not meet federal standards for shoulder belt anchoring strength.

In a severe crash, the shoulder belt can pull out of the ceiling, stretching the metal holding it in place and tearing the metal in the roof rail area above the door.

Ford will install the reinforcements at no cost to car owners. Parts and installation instructions will be at dealers in three to four weeks.

Of the cars involved in the recall, 239,500 are in the United States, 16,500 in Canada and 850 have been exported.

Environmentalist declares war on seal hunters

PORTLAND, Maine (UPI) — An environmentalist sailing a 200-foot ship to Newfoundland to fight the annual harp seal hunt vowed Friday to ram any vessel carrying hunters of the white pups.

"I've threatened to ram any vessel that comes out of the harbor," said Paul Watson, founder of the Sea Shepherd Society, which travels the globe fighting off fishermen and hunters who prey on endangered species.

"And they know we're not bluffing," Watson said.

The Sea Shepherd and her crew of 20 will set sail next week from Portland to renew its annual battle against baby harp seal hunters.

This year the Canadian government has approved the harvesting about 180,000 pelts. Small fishermen and land-based inuit have already started their hunt.

The major sealers said they would send only three ships this season and kill only adult seals. Last year, 10 ships made the trip.

Watson's strategy is to block Newfoundland harbor where most of the hunting ship are docked. If any try to pass, he will ram and try to sink the ships.

The "self-appointed enforcement body" has already sunk four ships either by ramming or timed explosives.

"Anything we've ever done, we've done without causing or sustaining any injury," Watson said. "But we're not hesitant to damage any ships or property involved in the killing of whales, dolphins or seals."

The Sea Shepherd Society was founded in 1977 and has an all-volunteer, privately funded crew whose list of activities include:

- Raiding a seal hunt off the Irish coast.
- Halting a Japanese dolphin hunt off Iki Island in the Pacific.
- Spying on the illegal whaling operation in Siberia to prove treaty violations.

This is the fifth year Watson has tried to stop Canadian and Norwegian hunters from killing baby seals.

In past years, Watson and his crew have sprayed dye on the pelts to make them valueless, but Canada has passed laws prohibiting unauthorized people from approaching within half a nautical mile of the seal hunting grounds.

Steel contract is questioned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, said Friday he wants to know why the Defense Department awarded four steel pipe contracts to a West German firm "when Geneva Steel needs these contracts to get Utahns back to work."

"The DOD had discretion to award these contracts to a U.S. firm under the Balance of Payments program, and I'm asking why they gave the jobs away," Hatch said.

He said he met with Defense Department representatives over the issue, but "there are still a lot of unanswered questions raised by domestic steel producers..."

Hatch said Northwest Pipe and Casing Co., of Clackamas, Ore., bid on the project, and he doesn't understand why the Oregon firm didn't get the subcontracting award.

He said if the Oregon company had gotten the contracts, it would have provided additional jobs for U.S. Steel's Geneva plant near Orem, Utah, because Geneva is the principle steel supplier for Northwest Pipe and Casing.

Geneva has laid off about 2,000 Utah workers during the past year because of a lack of demand for steel.

The contracts called for 400,000 tons of steel coil, and would have required 22,000 man hours and 126 temporary jobs, Hatch said. The senator added that the jobs went to Mannesman Rohm Werke, a West German firm.

Hatch said that by awarding the contracts to the West German firm, the DOD might be in violation of the Reagan Administration's sanctions against suppliers to the Soviet gas pipeline.

"The federal government must be more sensitive to the problems of American industry," Hatch said. "We are fighting a principle issue today. When the people of Utah need jobs, I want to know why we are giving them away to foreign countries."

Police, firemen go back to work

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Police officers and firefighters suffering from the "blue" and "red" flu were cured by the city's decision to grant $3.6 million in pay raises and the safety forces were up to full strength Friday, ending a two-day sickout.

The officers began returning to work Thursday night and officials reported normal operations Friday.

Mayor Tom Moody said all those involved in the sickout, which was called to protest lack of progress in contract talks, had been granted amnesty and no retaliatory action would be taken.

City council approved the new pay package by a 6-1 vote. The agreement, reached Thursday night, called for a 5 percent pay raise retroactive to Oct. 1, 1982, the date the old contract expired, and a 5 percent increase next year.

Top patrolman's pay will go from $21,988 to $23,088 a year and firefighters' pay from $21,882 to $22,984.

The city of 600,000 residents has about 1,200 police officers and 800 firefighters. About 750 police officers had called in sick since the strike began and 600 firefighters called in sick Thursday.

The lone dissenting member of council, David Cain, said he opposed the agreement because it had no pay increases for non-uniform employees and he was unsure if the city had enough money to pay for the raises.

The 200 firefighters on duty Thursday had worked for more than 60 consecutive hours, or since the strike began Wednesday.

A man died in a fire in his home Thursday, but officials were quick to say the sickout was not to blame for the fatality.

Heckler backs squeal rule, not on the side of abortion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Health Secretary-designate Margaret Heckler said at her confirmation hearing Friday she "cannot imagine coming down" on the side of abortion rights and would back the president on a teenage birth control rule.

Although the former Massachusetts congresswoman is certain to win approval as secretary of health and human services, she ran into tough questioning by the Senate Finance Committee on abortion and the federal regulation requiring parents to be notified when teen-agers seek birth control information.

Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., and Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., introduced the diminutive Mrs. Heckler, who sat on a pillow at the witness table, her two grown daughters behind her. A Republican, she was the dean of women serving in Congress until her defeat last fall.

Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., asked Mrs. Heckler whether she believes Congress ought to use legislation to reverse the 1973 Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion.

"I've always voted for the Hyde Amendment. I am pro-life. I sincerely believe in that position," she replied. The Hyde amendment prohibits use of federal funds for abortion.

"That's not what I mean," Packwood said. He said he was referring to measures to strip the high court of jurisdiction in cases involving abortion, school prayer, or other cases. "I want to know what you think personally."

"My personal view is not as significant as the president's view," she said.

When Packwood persisted, she repeated she was personally "very, very opposed" to abortion.

"Given my strong feelings about the right to life, I cannot imagine coming down on the other side of the issue," she said.

"What does that mean?" Packwood asked, provoking laughter from the audience.

"It means," she said, "that when faced with a major question on the issue, my own strong convictions on the right to life will, I think, dominate my own thinking."

Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, a former federal district judge, said the response "indicated that because of your deep feelings you can't imagine coming down on the other side. No end justifies any means."

"I will probe the issue very, very deeply," she said. "I will not allow my private feelings to stand in the way of what I consider to be my judgment."

Finance committee not given enough consideration, claim two Democrats

By ELLEN MARKS
United Press International

BOISE (UPI) — Republican legislative leaders are "doing a disservice" to the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee by intruding on its authority and causing the panel to set funding levels without considering the consequences, two Democratic members said Friday.

A Republican member also expressed concern about the committee's willingness to approve increased operating expenses for some state agencies while cutting the public school budget.

"There seems to be (little) consideration for what the results of our actions will be," said Sen. Norma Dobler, D-Moscow. "There's a willingness to sacrifice just to meet the bottom line."

Sen. Dobler's comments came after

Democratic committee members objected Friday to considering a lump sum for the Department of Education without time to study a breakdown of the agency's budget for fiscal year 1984, which begins in July.

A Democratic attempt to adjourn failed, but the committee agreed to wait until next week to consider the agency's budget.

Sen. Dobler accused legislative leaders of "using the system to their advantage."

House Speaker Tom Silvers, R-Twin Falls, has instructed the budget-setting committee to hold appropriations for 1984 to $413 million — about $7 million below current spending levels.

Some members have objected to those instructions, saying the committee should set budgets according to agency needs rather than leadership's directions.

Rep. Tim Tucker, D-Port Hill, said mandates to the panel from "other areas" of the Legislature "do a disservice to the committee."

Tucker disputed some Republicans' contention the committee must stay within projected revenue levels. He pointed to a state statute that he said directs JFAC members to set spending levels that cover "the requirements of the various departments, offices and institutions of the state."

"We sit here listening to the requests of all the state agencies; then we're supposed to be making decisions based on the needs of the state," Tucker said. "This committee should be able to do the job it is legislatively able to do, then present it to the whole body."

Rep. Lawrence Kugge, R-Filer, said his concern is that the committee's willingness to grant the standard request for a 4 percent hike in operating expenses would push the panel over the total $413 million spending level.

"We're giving some 3 and 4 percent increases in operating expenses and look at what we're doing to public schools," Kugge said. "If we don't cut out giving operating expenses to even the smallest agencies, we're going to run into trouble."

The committee on Thursday recommended a 1984 public school budget that is $20 million below current spending levels.

But Co-Chairwoman Kitty Gurnsey, R-Boise, said overall levels are being held down as the committee approves simultaneous cuts in other areas.

Pop tax bill killed by committee vote

BOISE (UPI) — Although some members seemed irritated by the sarcastic testimony of an industry lobbyist, the House Revenue and Taxation Committee agreed Friday to kill a new proposal to impose an excise tax on soft drinks.

The bill — extensively revised from a beverage-tax measure that was shelved by the committee a few weeks ago — died on a voice vote after a brief hearing.

Tim Brennan, president of the Idaho Retailers Association, blasted away at the latest proposal by Rep. Gordon Hollifield, R-Jerome, to enact a projected $15 million-per-year general fund tax on soft drinks.

Brennan warned the committee that the soft-drink industry would turn out in force to battle the new bill, demanding another hearing before the committee. If it were introduced, Brennan was the chief organizer of a vitriolic protest earlier in the legislative session against Hollifield's first bill.

Rep. Christopher Hooper, R-Boise, who at times needles witnesses who speak forwardly with the committee, asked Committee Chairman Steve Antone, R-Rupert, "Can he threaten us that way?"

Brennan also remarked that the soft-drink tax would affect nearly all liquids "except water — I hope you don't want to do that."

"This is a bad concept," Brennan said. "It's a punitive and discriminatory bill and would be very expensive to administer."

House wants foreclosure moratorium

BOISE (UPI) — Venting anger at past and present policies of the Farmers Home Administration, the House adopted a Senate-originated memorial Friday exhorting the government to declare a one-year moratorium on farm-loan foreclosures.

One legislator, Rep. Lyman Winchester, R-Kuna, invoked a rarely used House rule to extend himself from voting, saying he has a conflict of interest because he is defending himself in court against a foreclosure action by the FmHA.

With its 46-19 endorsement from the House, the memorial now goes in the mail to President Reagan, the FmHA and other top federal officials.

Memorial sponsor Rep. Dwight Horsch, D-Aberdeen, said a moratorium would give many embattled farmers a chance to recover from the ravaging effects of depressed crop prices and the economic depression.

Without a moratorium or some slackening of foreclosure activities by the federal agency, "Many young farmers may not be able to stay on the land and stay in business," Horsch said.

The eastern Idaho representative, who noted he got his start in agriculture because of a FmHA loan, emphasized he was not advocating loans be forgiven. He said the memorial called only for a moratorium.

Horsch said farmers are suffering through a "great depression" of low commodity prices and high operating costs.

Of 4,630 active FmHA loans in Idaho, 1,250 are in foreclosure, he added.

Several lawmakers who voted against the memorial said they agreed with the intent, but said it didn't go far enough. Led by House Speaker T.W. Silvers, R-Twin Falls, those critics said the FmHA needs a sweeping revision of overall policy.

Refraining his speaker's chair to debate on the House floor for only the second time this session, Silvers assailed what he said were the FmHA's fluctuating policies.

The memorial missed the point, Silvers said. The speaker said the FmHA is mostly to blame for the current high foreclosure rate because it granted too many, too large loans during the 1970s.

Instead of just calling for a moratorium, the Legislature should do something to spark an effort to "cause the FmHA to cease and desist on making these lavish loans," Silvers said. "These excessive loans should never have been made in the first place."

Flush with large appropriations from Congress during the previous decade, the FmHA granted "huge" loans "with little credence of the ability of the borrower to repay," Silvers said.

Other opponents took another tack, but also blasted the government agency.

Rep. Mack Nelbaur, R-Paul, said he hoped the FmHA would prepare for an economic recovery and require long-time holders of delinquent loans — some of them well-off — "to pay up or shut up when times are good."

Water proposal questioned

BOISE (UPI) — A legislative proposal designed to allocate water from the Snake River would jeopardize hydroelectric projects and cause increases in power bills, a spokesman for a citizen group says.

Al Fothergill of the Idaho Citizens Coalition said the proposal by the Water Resources Department would "eliminate water from the Snake River for power production in southern Idaho (and) would be a catastrophe for the people in the area."

The measure would overturn a recent state Supreme Court ruling which said Idaho Power Co.'s rights to generate power at Swan Falls Dam superseded irrigation rights.

Supporters say the measure would write into law an obscure constitutional provision that gives the state control of its waterways.

Water Resources Department Director Ken Dunn says the legislation would mean a return to the assumption the state could decide how water would be used.

"If passed, the legislation would open the gate to loss of relatively low-cost energy we have had from dams and add millions to our electric bills," Fothergill says.

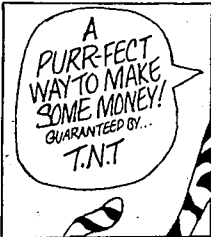

He said water diverted from power generators to surrounding farmland would cause the utility to seek higher-cost electricity as a replacement.

"It is intended by those pushing the legislation that the water be diverted to giant desertland irrigation projects which benefit very few and cost everyone else tremendous amounts of money in their power bills," Fothergill said.

He quoted a study by the state Public Utilities Commission which says diverting water to irrigate an additional 200,000 acres would mean the utility would have to raise $54 million through a rate increase.

"Without water to turn their generators, the dams that we have paid for have no value," he said. "They'll be monuments to folly and greed."

Crech re-sentencing delayed for two weeks

BOISE (UPI) — The state Supreme Court called off Friday plans by a Fourth District judge to re-sentence convicted mass-murderer Thomas Eugene Crech a day after the high court ruled the defendant had been improperly condemned to die.

Fourth District Judge Robert Newhouse ordered Crech to appear at a hearing Friday morning, but the proceeding was delayed for about two hours while public defenders conferred with Supreme Court justices.

The 32-year-old defendant remained at the courthouse under heavy security during the conference.

Officials later announced justices wanted the proceeding delayed because they agreed to consider several defense motions that asked the death sentence be overturned on the merits of the case and not on a technical point.

Newhouse then granted a motion that Crech be housed at the Ada County jail rather than the Idaho State Penitentiary, where he has been imprisoned.

The state Supreme Court ruled Thursday Newhouse improperly sentenced Crech to die for the beating-death of Idaho State Penitentiary Inmate David-Jensen because neither Crech nor his attorneys were present.

The high court gave Newhouse 14 days to issue another sentence.

Crech pleaded guilty Aug. 28 to beating Jensen to death with a battery-filled sock while the two were at state prison.

At the time of the killing, the defendant was serving three life terms at the prison for other murders. Crech — who has claimed he has killed more than three dozen people — was sentenced to life terms for murdering two people in 1974 near Cascade and for a slaying the same year of a Portland, Ore., man.

Newhouse agreed Friday to move Crech from the state penitentiary to the Ada County jail pending re-sentencing.

Justices ruled the new sentence for Crech must be imposed in open court in the presence of the defendant and his counsel.

The Supreme Court order to Newhouse said the handing down of a sentence in the absence of a defendant and his or her counsel is contrary to Idaho law. Newhouse imposed the penalty in a written document.

Tougher open meetings law to be put before the House

BOISE (UPI) — Legislation to toughen the Idaho Open Meetings Law was sent to the House floor Friday for possible amendments.

The House State Affairs Committee voted to submit the bill to the full body for consideration of a change to delete a clause that would make it more difficult for governing boards to legally hold special meetings without giving prior public notice.

The amendment was proposed by Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, who earlier this session forced an extensive rewrite of the bill. The first version, which was shot down by the House committee, would have allowed judges to impose fines of $100 against public officials found guilty of knowingly violating the law.

The new version does not call for any fines, but would allow assessment of court costs and legal fees against officials who lost lawsuits over alleged violations of the law.

The bill in addition declares null and void "any decision made" at a meeting held outside the provisions of the Open Meetings Law.

The Idaho Newspaper Association and Idaho Press Club back the bill, which is sponsored by Rep. Lyman Winchester, R-Kuna.

Budget cuts may cost school accreditation

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — The State School for the Deaf and Blind in Gooding would receive about $115,000 less in state support next year under a budget plan proposed Friday by the Legislature's budget-setting committee.

The worst scenario that could be drawn from this $2.8 million budget would include major staff and program changes, combined with the possible loss of accreditation, says Keith Tolzin, the superintendent of the school. "If our final appropriation is less next year, then it will change our programming," he said

Friday. "But it's premature to speculate on what exact changes may be required."

That's because Republican leaders in the Legislature have encouraged the Joint Finance and Appropriations Committee to issue proposed budgets based on a $413 million general-fund budget, so that the exact impacts of these budget reductions can be visualized. This year's budget originally was set at $465 million.

"I agree that some of the appropriations, especially schools, are too small," says Rep. Lawrence Knigge, R-Filer, a JFAC member. "But we need to get these budgets out so the public can see what they are."

Then, it would be possible for the Legislature to revise the budgets to higher levels. If additional revenue can be obtained.

One alternative to accomplish that would be a permanent sales-tax increase, which would allow JFAC to set larger budgets for state agencies, such as the Gooding school.

Meanwhile, Democrats have hinted that Gov. John Evans may veto agency and education appropriations if he believes they are too small.

"The impact on our school is exactly the same as with the public schools," Tolzin says. "But until we know exactly what the Legislature is going to appropriate to us, we can't say for sure how our programs are going to work out."

But staff or program reductions could result in a loss of accreditation because of increased class sizes, Tolzin warns.

Also hanging in limbo is whether the school will be allowed to complete its plan of increasing salaries to levels comparable to surrounding states. About 83 percent of the school's budget goes to staff salaries and health and retirement benefits.

"If the state freezes salaries, though, increases in our operating costs would be less," Tolzin says.

With a 7-3 vote on Friday, JFAC set a $2.8 million budget for the Gooding school for next year. That compares to this year's budget of slightly more than $2.9 million, Tolzin says.

Of the proposed budget, $2.6 million would come from the state's general account, while the balance would come from federal special-education programs and temporary, one-year programs.

The State Board of Education had recommended the Gooding school receive $3.2 million — $400,000 less than proposed by JFAC. Rep. Mack Nelbaur, R-Paul, offered the committee's motion that resulted in the $2.8 million appropriation. But he added that the school should be allowed to spend any additional money left over from its 1982 budget.

Residents get no city relief

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Residents of a Buena Vista Street neighborhood, who have complained about the storage of pesticides in a nearby warehouse, have been told the city cannot help them.

That recommendation came from the Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission during its regular meeting earlier this week. However, the commission was divided on the issue, with the decision passing by only one vote.

The residents had come to the commission several weeks ago, hoping that it would recommend a policy of action to Twin Falls City Council.

But in recommending that the residents seek help through other channels, commission member John Bonnett said, "This body is unable to take action on this problem."

Even if there was established evidence that fumus or other contamination from the warehouse were responsible for the chronic health ailments the residents claim to have suffered last summer, Bonnett said the commission only could recommend a zoning ordinance change to City Council. And in that case, the warehouse would be protected by a "grandfather" right.

Elaborating on the problem, LaMar Orton, the Twin Falls community development director, said the Warberg Warehouse, at 199 Canyon St., which is at the center of the controversy, is permitted in the manufacturing zone in which it is located.

Therefore, the city never required that it apply for a special-use permit. No distinction is made in the city's zoning ordinance between chemical storage and any other type of storage, he said.

But zoning Commissioner Bill Hillfield said that he believed the controversy had raised enough questions that the commission should look at some zoning changes now. He noted that there are a number of uses allowed in the city's manufacturing zone that might require more extensive buffering than is required currently.

The owner of the warehouse, Elmo Muir, spoke to the commission and the members of the neighborhood group at the meeting.

Muir responded to charges that his employees had mishandled thinnel and counter, two toxic pesticides, saying that his warehouses were open to inspection at any time.

"If I can improve on my operation, I will do it," he said.

Muir also said that if he believed that he was causing a health hazard, he would remedy it immediately.

But several state agencies have been unable to turn up any evidence, that his warehouses have been run improperly, and it was unrealistic to ask that he should move his business at great expense, he said.

Besides, Muir said, he had complied with all city zoning ordinances when he originally moved into his present location.

Former drug abuser attempts to help others

By HARRIET GUTHERTZ
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Rick McCrea, a 22-year-old drafting student at the College of Southern Idaho, had a previous life of drifting, drugs and alcohol.

But after he went "straight," he decided to help other students avoid similar pitfalls.

McCrea dropped out of school in Sacramento, Calif., moved to Yakima, Wash., and finally ended up in Twin Falls. Along the way, he got to know 12- and 13-year-old alcoholics and an 11th-grade heroin addict.

In 1980, McCrea completed requirements for his high-school diploma, and last year, he started studying at CSI.

After McCrea found that Keith Ferrell, his adviser, also was involved in the school's substance-awareness program, he became active, too.

McCrea helps out with weekly discussions on drug and alcohol abuse, and arranges films and speakers on the subject.

'One of the biggest problems the United States has is in separating drugs and alcohol. There is no difference.'

To find out about potential problems on campus and to publicize the substance-awareness program, Ferrell and McCrea decided to survey CSI students about their drug and alcohol usage.

Last fall, they distributed 400 surveys containing 33 questions to academic and vocational students, and to instructors.

McCrea found that more than 93 percent of the persons answering the questionnaire had used alcohol and 59 percent had tried marijuana at least once. These results didn't really surprise McCrea, given the availability of both substances.

But McCrea found more persons using cocaine or heroin than he expected.

A little more than 29 percent of the participants had tried cocaine, and about 15 percent used it more than 10 times. Three persons had used heroin more than 10 times.

On the flip side, 7 percent of the participants said they never used drugs or alcohol.

Alcohol is probably the biggest problem at CSI, McCrea says. It's readily available, and people don't consider it a

"One of the biggest problems the United States has is in separating drugs and alcohol. There is no difference," McCrea says.

Because the majority of persons first started drinking or taking drugs as teenagers, "grade school is the place to start education on substance abuse," he says.

"The No. 1 factor for early drug and alcohol use is peer pressure," McCrea says. Family problems are a closely related reason.

By the time people get to college, there is a 20 percent chance that they will have problems with alcohol abuse, Ferrell says. Experts estimate that 10 percent of the general population abuses alcohol, but that 20 percent of college students do, he says.

However, once people develop a problem, they find it hard to ask for help. Ferrell estimates that only one in 10 alcohol or drug abusers seek treatment.

Alcoholics don't come in for help because they are afraid their friends will find out, or because they don't want to admit that they have a problem, McCrea says.

McCrea urges any student with a drug or alcohol problem to check with the substance-abuse program at CSI, the Magic Valley Alcohol Rehabilitation Center in Twin Falls, the Walker Center in Gooding or Alcoholics Anonymous.

Ferrell and McCrea plan to repeat their survey in March.

Buhl residents get new emergency telephone number

By KAREN MAIN
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — The number 911 is the new telephone number that Buhl residents should use for any police, fire or medical emergencies.

All regular police and fire business will continue to be handled through the present phone numbers.

On Thursday, Mountain Bell installed the "universal" 911 phone number, which can be dialed by everyone with the telephone prefix 543.

Persons in pay phones also can dial the number without money, police Chief Dave Hartway says.

The 911 phone line will be staffed 24 hours a day by members of the Buhl police and fire departments, who will relay messages to the proper department.

Medical emergency calls will be dispatched simultaneously to the Buhl Quick Response Unit and to Twin Falls Emergency Medical Services, which will send an ambulance from Twin Falls to transport victims who have received basic life-support services from the quick-response unit.

Buhl police officers, who currently are being trained as emergency medical technicians, also will respond to accidents as a back-up for the quick-response unit.

Police matters will be handled by Buhl police or referred to the west-end Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies for cases outside the city limits.

All incoming 911 calls will be monitored and recorded, so if a person is unable to complete a conversation, the call can be traced, Hartway says.

The 911 number is "so marvelous that I can't say enough about it," the police chief says. "If it saves one life, it's well worth it."

Democrats Party trying to attract 16 to 35 age group

By KELLY EVERITT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Democratic Party Central Committee is preparing to recreate a Young Democrats organization, after a hiatus of over a decade.

"We have obtained help from the national committee to get a charter," which the state party central committee must approve first, says Marie Hanzel, the chairman of the state Democratic Party.

The state committee has set aside time during its annual meeting on March 19 in Boise to discuss re-activating the organization, designed to attract and organize Democratic Party supporters in the 16 to 35 age group.

"That's where the workers are," Hanzel says, indicating that she views the group as becoming a major force of action for the party at the grassroots level.

She also says that delegates from the organization probably would be granted voting rights on the state central committee.

"It's the Twin Falls people that are pushing this," she says, noting that she would have expected the first moves to organize such a group to come from the Pocatello or northern Idaho regions, where Democratic power is greater.

Twin Falls organizers have called a meeting for March 8 in Room 4 of the Twin Falls County Judicial Building, beginning at 7 p.m., to discuss plans to form a county chapter of the organization.

According to Joe Gulick, a spokesman for the organizational effort, officers will be elected, membership categories will be established and membership fees will be discussed, although, "we probably won't charge one." Representatives to the state meeting also may be chosen.

"We feel it is necessary that young people get involved in politics," Gulick says. "They'll be the leaders of tomorrow, and we don't want them to be Republican leaders."

Gulick says that there had been a Young Democrats organization in the state "a long time ago, but then it just sort of disappeared."

He says that he feels optimistic about the success of the group, because the demographic factors that

Committee endorses nuke weapons freeze

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Democratic Central Committee has gone on record as endorsing a bilateral freeze on the construction, deployment and testing of nuclear weapons.

In a "statement of responsibility," the county committee has called on President Ronald Reagan to "recognize the unacceptable cost in terms of economic, environmental and human resources" of an extended arms race, spearheaded by "the destructive power of nuclear arms."

The committee's policy statement said it took the action "recognizing that it is our responsibility as citizens to speak out on the issues."

Specifically, the statement calls for:

• The president and the leaders of the Soviet Union to "negotiate in good faith a verifiable bilateral freeze on the testing, production and deployment of nuclear arms, and a reduction of the current arsenals of both sides."

• Requests that the president "adopt a foreign policy which emphasizes our fairness and quiet strength; as opposed to the current policy of verbal hostility and military maneuvering, which only heighten global tensions and increase the possibility of nuclear confrontation."

• Asks that "federal and state senators and representatives, whose job it is to look out for the public good... work against, and voice their opposition to, the siting of the... new production reactor at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory."

The author of the resolution, Bill Chisholm of Buhl, the committee's legislative-affairs chairman, who represents District 24, said, "I believe it is the responsibility of political parties to address critical issues, and

Referring to God as 'lord' or 'father' is sexist, Methodist group says

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The use of such words as "lord" and "king" to refer to God in church liturgy is sexist, a United Methodist Church task force has concluded.

The task force on Language Guidelines, headed by Carolyn Henninger Oehler of Chicago, says, however, that Jesus was a man and can be referred to with masculine pronouns in historical reference but not the divine incarnation.

The task force said that the use of the term "lord" referring to God "carries on the assumption created by other male-gender words that God has male characteristics."

The group proposed that "newly written and spoken materials" should avoid the use of "lord" meaning God.

The task force also said the word "king" means a male ruler, and the word "ruler" should be substituted.

However, the task force said it had not made up its mind about the use of the word "father" when referring to God.

"The document will recognize that there are those for whom "father" in reference to God is no longer acceptable; it carries sexist connotations and practices of the language and the church," Oehler said.

"Other persons, while they acknowledge that 'father' is not an entirely suitable, question whether there is an adequate substitute, since such terms as 'creator' and 'redeemer,' they feel, carry the same personal connotation which 'father' holds," she said.

"Since Jesus of Nazareth was male, male nouns and pronouns can be used in referring to him," the task force report said.

"However, Jesus the Christ transcends for Christians any sexual identity, becoming messiah, savior and redeemer."

Writer Williams dies in New York

By BERNARD CUTLEN
United Press International

NEW YORK — Tennessee Williams, whose dramas of tortured human relationships in his beloved South made him the leading American playwright of his generation and won him two Pulitzer prizes, was found dead Friday. He was 71.

Williams died apparently of natural causes in his private suite at the Elysee Hotel, just off Fifth Avenue, officials said.

A half-empty wine bottle and unidentified pills were found near the body. Deputy Police Inspector Stephen Kelly said death could have been caused by an overdose or one of many ailments Williams suffered, including a heart condition.

Chief Medical Examiner Elliot Gross confirmed Williams was under treatment for heart disease. He said an autopsy set for Saturday was only a formality.

Williams, whose plays served as vehicles on both stage and screen for such actors as Marlon Brando, Elizabeth Taylor, Vivien Leigh, Richard Burton, Katharine Hepburn, Paul Newman and Natalie Wood, was found dressed in his night clothes on the floor near his bed by his secretary about 10:45 a.m.

The secretary, John Uecker, said he heard a noise from Williams' room about 11 p.m. Thursday, but did not check on the dramatist until Friday morning.

Williams, whose self-destructive lifestyle was plagued with drugs and alcohol, was pronounced dead at 11:10 a.m.

His brother, Dakin Williams, a Collinsville, Ill., attorney who had just finished a biography of Tennessee, said he believed the playwright had "gone back on drugs," a habit that put him in a hospital in 1969.

"I last talked to him on the phone

TENNESSEE WILLIAMS
Dead at 71

when he was still in Palm Beach to assure him the biography I have written was something he couldn't object to. He had been very angry that I had written it and wouldn't see me," Dakin Williams, who admitted his relationship to his brother had been "very strained" for years, said.

Brando, saying he was "ever grateful" to Williams for giving him his first leading role on Broadway.

Among Williams' best known plays, many of them subsequently made into films, were:

- "Battle of Angels," 1940; "The Glass Menagerie," 1944; "A Streetcar Named Desire," 1947; "Summer and Smoke," 1948; "The Rose Tattoo," 1950; "Camino Real," 1953; "Cat On a Hot Tin Roof," 1954; "Orpheus Descending," 1957; "Sweet Bird of Youth," 1959; "The Night of the Iguana," 1962; "Small Craft Warnings," 1973; "Vieux Carré," 1977; "Clothes for a Summer Hotel," 1980.

Author's work launched Brando career

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD — Marlon Brando was among scores of stars who revered playwright Tennessee Williams for the profoundly dramatic roles he crafted, such as Brando's Stanley Kowalski in "A Streetcar Named Desire."

Brando's electric Broadway performance in 1947 in the Williams' play established the young, creative actor as a giant in the American theater. He went on to star in "A Streetcar Named Desire" in the movies.

Others who enhanced their careers playing characters conceived by Williams were Paul Newman, who was nominated for an Oscar in 1958 for his role in "Cat On a Hot Tin Roof"; Burt Lancaster in "The Rose Tattoo"; Kirk Douglas in "The Glass Menagerie"; and Geraldine Page in "Summer and Smoke."

Although the enigmatic Brando was never a close friend of Williams, he held the playwright in high personal esteem and was an ardent admirer of his work.

"I always felt like Tennessee and I were compatriots," Brando said in an interview upon learning of Williams' death Friday.

"I was close to him in a bizarre way because he gave me my first opportunity in a leading role on Broadway. I was ever grateful to him for that."

Brando said he was haunted by Williams' difficult private life, which was fraught with frustration and frequent rejection.

"Tennessee was a man who lived with death all the time," Brando said. "He was delicately put together, a finely honed edge. He never lied or flunked. He told the truth as best he perceived it and never turned away from things that upset him or frightened him."

Brando did not mention Williams' frequent battles with alcohol and other dark sides to his life, but he made it clear the Pulitzer Prize-winning author suffered many demons.

"By the time death came he had been so close to it so many times psychologically, emotionally and physically that it was probably just a shave and a haircut to him."

"We are all diminished by his death. Lessened by his passing. If we had a culture that gave support and assistance to a man of his delicacy perhaps he would have survived.

"There is no real solace or cultural support for artists who find it difficult to find root in this culture which is so hard and fast and commercial."

Brando sighed deeply and concluded, "His was a wounded life."

Miss Arizona to bare all

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Miss Teenage Arizona has received court permission to appear nude in a movie starring Michael Caine.

Maricopa County Superior Court Commissioner Barry Silverman Thursday approved a contract that calls for Michelle Johnson, 17, to receive $33,000 for appearing in the movie, "Love Rio," that is scheduled to begin filming in Rio de Janeiro in March.

"Everything's going to be so professionally done that I won't feel any embarrassment whatsoever," Miss Johnson said of the script which casts her as a lover of her father's best friend, played by Caine.

Miss Johnson's mother, Faye, filed a court petition saying the law requires court approval for a minor to appear in a film's "nude and sex scenes." She said she had no objections to her daughter's appearance and would accompany her to Brazil.

Miss Johnson was crowned Miss Teenage Arizona last November. She said director Stanley Donen discovered her last year when he saw her picture in a magazine. She won the movie role in a screen test in Los Angeles in December.

Uncle Sam burns in effigy in Manila

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — About 1,500 Filipinos opposed to U.S. military bases in the Philippines burned effigies of Uncle Sam and Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos Friday in the biggest anti-government demonstration of the year.

No violence was reported and no arrests were made.

The demonstrators, mostly students, gathered late Friday in front of the U.S. embassy before marching through the gaudy Ermita Red Light district — a favorite haunt of foreign tourists — where they disbanded.

"Dismanle the U.S.—Marcos dictatorship," chanted the demonstrators.

"We are protesting the presence of American bases here," said one student. "They make us a target for nuclear weapons."

An estimated 150 policemen watched the demonstration, but there were no reports of any arrests. The students burned effigies of Uncle Sam and Marcos before setting off on their march.

Dozens of bar girls and their customers watched from the sidewalk as the demonstrators marched, chanting "the bases mean war" and "down with imperialism."

The United States operates two major military installations in the Philippines, the sprawling Subic Bay Naval base and Clark Air Base, both 60 miles from Manila.

The demonstration coincided with talks between Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger in Washington.

The Washington meeting was a prelude to scheduled negotiations set for April, when the Philippines is expected to boost considerably its price for allowing continued unimpeded use of the bases by the United States.

Under the 1979 amendments to the military bases agreement, the United States agreed to provide the Philippines $500 million in military and economic support assistance over five years.

North Korean jet pilot lands in South Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — A North Korean pilot flew his Chinese-built jet fighter to South Korea Friday in the first defection from the communist North in 12 years, Defense Ministry officials said.

South Korean fighters scrambled and air raid warning sirens blared as the plane piloted by Lee Ung-pyong, 28, a junior grade captain in the North Korean air force, approached Seoul, officials said.

The South Korean fighters escorted Lee's single-seat fighter to a base near Seoul. South Korean officials were elated. "He defected to freedom in the South," one said.

South Korean defense spokesman Park Jong-Shik said anti-aircraft positions were placed on full alert until Lee's plane had landed.

In capturing Lee flew his supersonic jet fighter south from Kaesju, a North Korean port and air base about 80 miles northwest of Seoul, toward the South Korean island of Yongpyongdo not far from the North Korean coast, Park said.

Lee was the first North Korean pilot to defect to South Korea since Army Maj. Park Soon-kuk, 33, flew south in a MIG-15 on Dec. 3, 1976.

It was the second Chinese-built MIG-19 to land in South Korea.

Israel destroys homes

VIENNA, Austria (UPI) — Israeli authorities have destroyed the homes of 33 Palestinian refugees living on the Gaza Strip recently because family members were being held for security reasons, U.N. relief officials said Friday.

Another family has been ordered by the Israeli Defense Forces to destroy its house or have it blown up by Israeli authorities, a statement from the U.N. Relief and Works Agency said.

"Since occupying the West Bank and Gaza Strip in 1967, Israeli authorities have destroyed refugee homes as a form of collective punishment on various occasions."

The agency said the latest incident involved 17 rooms housing 33 refugees. Tents provided by the International Red Cross have been erected on the sites of the demolished homes.

"Each of the families involved has a son who was detained for security reasons," the statement said.

UNRWA said the demolition of the refugee homes was contrary to international law and "a violation intended to be handed to Israeli authorities in Gaza."

Blizzard paralyzes Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Mountain villagers searching for 135 Syrian troops reported missing in Lebanon's record blizzard said Friday they had found a Syrian tank and its dead crewmen under 12 feet of snow. A second blizzard again paralyzed the country.

Residents of the Cedar mountains village of Yamoune, where Syrian survivors arrived Thursday, said that by the end of the day Thursday they had located only three of the missing men — all dead.

The villagers, who arrived in Beirut Friday, said they found a Syrian tank buried 12 feet beneath the surface of the snow, with the three-man crew dead.

Lebanese police said 18 Syrian soldiers also had died in the Dahr el Bajdar section of the main Beirut-Damascus highway. That windswept area was where most of the 64 dead were reported after the first storm last weekend.

The 135 Syrian soldiers were reported missing eight miles south of the town of Bcharre, 40 miles northeast of Beirut.

Official Damascus radio made no mention of any losses in the Lebanese storms.

Burley, Declo, Murtaugh in playoffs today

By The Times-News

The five Magic Valley teams that have qualified for the state boys basketball tournaments could be joined by three others today.

Burley, Declo and Murtaugh are competing in playoff games today and if they win, they'll swell the number of Magic Valley competitors in next week's state playoffs.

Twin Falls, Jerome, Kimberly, Castelford and Carey have already earned state-tourney berths.

Burley's Bobcats will be on the road early this morning for the five-hour excursion to Cascade where they'll meet Moscow at 4 p.m.

to determine an A-2 qualifier. In a pair of games at Glenns Ferry, Murtaugh takes on Cascade at 6:30 p.m. to decide an A-4 entrant while Declo meets Fruitland at 8:15 p.m. with the winner gaining the A-3 field.

In Fruitland, Declo will be facing a team with some strong outside shooting, much like the Hornets.

"Fruitland has three pretty good shooting guards," Declo assistant Coach Mike Matthews said after scouting Parma and Fruitland in Thursday's game. "They shot right over Parma's guards. Most coaches up there say Fruitland is the better team or was most of the season until a bad streak at the end."

Each of the 32 teams in the state tourney field will be decided by tonight.

The A-3 tourney will be held at Bonneville High in Idaho Falls while the A-1 and A-2 tournaments will be conducted at the Boise State Pavilion.

Carey learned its first-round opponent in A-4 when Mullax defeated Wesley 53-47 in nail down the First District championship Friday night. The winner of the Burley-Moscow playoff will open the A-2 tournament at 9 a.m. by meeting Soda Springs.

Castelford will conclude the opening night session in Twin Falls against Greenleaf Friends Academy, which knocked off Salmon River Friday night to claim the Third District crown. Salmon River will play the first game in the A-4 tournament against a fifth-sixth-district playoff winner while the Murtaugh-Cascade winner will go against the Second District champion.

Meanwhile, change in format in the Third District has left Twin Falls' opening round opponent up in the air. With Meridian beating Borah to clinch the No. 1 spot, that tournament has added a playoff between Borah and Boise at 8 p.m. today for second place. That extra game was necessitated from the Third District's view when Lewiston knocked off Coeur d'Alene Thursday night to send the first district tournament into sudden death.

(Under the state's point system, if Lewiston can upset Coeur d'Alene a second time in tonight's game, Lewiston will come as the First District champion and Coeur d'Alene will displace the third place team from the Boise area to become Twin Falls' first-round foe.

The A-2 field also remains up in the air as Kellogg and Bonners Ferry must play tonight to decide which will come to state as the First District runner-up. That team will meet Jerome.

Kimberly will face the winner of tonight's Pottlatch-Kamiah game in its first A-3 state game. Kamiah defeated Pottlatch 54-52 in overtime Friday night to force a second game.

Hightower, Lewis pace indoor track

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stephanie Hightower broke her own world record in the women's 60-yard hurdles and Carl Lewis became the first athlete in 38 years to become the national champion in both the 60-yard dash and the long jump Friday night at the U.S. Indoor Track and Field championships.

In early action, Diane Dixon matched the world record in the women's 440 and Lewis' sister, Carol, established an American mark in the long jump.

In winning the hurdles crown for the third time in four years, Hightower bettered her year-old world mark by 0.01 seconds to 7.36. She exploded out of the blocks and won in a rout, with Kim Turner second in 7.57 and former world record holder Candy Young third in 7.61.

"I had a bad start, but I've been saying that all year," Hightower said. "Candy and I have raced only one time this year and she beat me. She might be hurt and that's the reason she was not up with me. I've been working on my technique. I recently changed several things and my times have been good."

Carl Lewis had said he was going only for victories and not records, and he showed that when he won the long jump on his first leap at 27 feet, 4 1/4 inches, and then passed on his last five attempts. The closest anyone could come after that was Jason Grimes' 26-4/8. Lewis then blew away the competition in the 60 to win in 5.64.

The last man to become a double champion in those events was Barney Ewell in 1945 with a long jump of 23-11 and a dash of 6.2.

Lewis, who accomplished his feat despite suffering from a chest cold, said, "I felt pretty bad. I hoped to do well tonight, but everyone in the finals was tough. I just did the best I can."

Dixon, a freshman at Ohio State who is enjoying an outstanding season, won the first trial heat of the 440 yards in 53.52 seconds. The existing world mark for the event is a hand-timed 53.5 by Rosalyn Bryant in 1977.

Last Saturday, Dixon set an American record in the 300 meters at 77.50 in a meet at Eastern Illinois. She said, though, that she was not overconfident going into Friday night's final which she won in 53.78.

Gwen Gardner was second in 54.42 in the final.

Carol Lewis improved with each jump until her fifth, which measured 21 feet, 5 1/4 inches. That broke one of Former University of Georgia running back Herschel Walker leaves the office of Coach Vince Dooley after meeting with him for the final time before leaving for the New Jersey Generals' training camp at Orlando, Fla.

Schools place ban on USFL

League officials say Walker signing a 'unique situation'

By RICHARD ROSENBLATT
UPI sports writer

NEW YORK — Acting swiftly and decisively after the signing of Heisman Trophy winner Herschel Walker by the New Jersey Generals of the United States Football League, several colleges, including those in the Pacific 10 Conference, have announced a ban on providing information to the new league.

DON JAMES
Suggestion OK'd by Pac-10

On Wednesday, Walker, college football's premier player, officially signed a three-year, multi-million dollar contract with the Generals, thus giving up his senior year at Georgia and breaking a long-standing policy held by the National Football League of not signing undergraduates.

Since the signing, a campaign has been started to prevent the new league from signing other undergraduates.

The Pac-10, which includes national powerhouses, Southern California, UCLA, Washington and Arizona State, went along with Washington Coach Don James' suggestion that will prohibit USFL scouts from appearing on Pac-10 campuses. The ban will be in effect until the USFL guarantees that the Walker incident won't be repeated.

James said Thursday night the coaches in the Pac-10 had voted to bar the USFL, completely from scouting in the Pac-10 and that Commissioner Wiles Hallock already had approved the motion.

"Everybody I've gotten hold of — and that's eight of us so far — is in agreement," James said. "We will not make our films, our film rooms or our personnel available to USFL scouts or personnel. We will not cooperate in any way. This is basically a ban by every school."

"We aren't making it a lifetime thing. We're making this about what they do next to show us that it won't ever be repeated."

James also called on all college coaches to unite against pro teams trying to sign college undergrads, a practice that has been going on for years in baseball, basketball and hockey.

Other universities which have declared their schools off-limits to the USFL, include Georgia Tech and Southern Eastern Conference members Kentucky, Mississippi State and Vanderbilt.

However, several universities, including Syracuse and West Virginia, announced that no restrictions will be placed on the USFL.

Peter Hadhazy, director of operations for the USFL, said Friday the league was prepared for such action but hoped the colleges would realize the signing of Walker was a unique situation.

"I think it's been a normal reaction," Hadhazy said from his New York office. "We knew we would have to bite the bullet and mend some fences. It's only a matter of time until colleges know this was the exception, not the rule."

"No USFL official is going to go on campus and raid the colleges. There's no way. We are not prepared to take kids out of school. Herschel Walker was a can't miss guy. He's done everything he can do in college. He's ready to play pro ball. We're not going to take a guy with a 50 percent chance or even a 90 percent chance of making it as an undergraduate. Herschel may be the best player in the world, college or pro. That's why he's a unique situation."

"I just hope the colleges understand our position and through time they will change their stance."

Hadhazy added he would like the USFL to be given an opportunity to

All men are created equal — except in athletics

The road to perdition is paved with good intentions.

Thus the suggestion of the Flier School board that the "bench-arming" be outlawed in the Canyon Conference can be accepted here, as well-intentioned but well beyond the realm of reasonability.

It is the classic physical education and intra-murals syndrome. It bespeaks the favorite American line that "all men are created equal."

Well, maybe, esoterically but certainly not athletically. The principles remain the same in singing, oratory, etc. Of all the players that have come through Idaho high school athletics only a couple have had the opportunity to play professionally. Only a handful, by comparison to the total, played collegiately. Only a double handful could even play well enough to be remembered from one season to the next.

It must be assumed that at least a couple of the members making the "everyone play" suggestion are farmers. Therefore, if those members of the board will agree to plow for one hour each day behind a team of horses, then neither their sincerity nor their motivation will be doubted.

"Aha," you hear, the protest. "You are not talking economics. About the welfare of my family, my life, my future. I can't make money with 1800s farming methods."

Well, then, ask the coach sitting on the end of the bench how he feels about using intramural guidelines for governing interscholastic play.

He might say something like: "You are not talking economics, but about the welfare of my family, my life, my future."

But, it is assumed, you can reasonably ignore that type of protest since if he doesn't win, all you have to do is sue him and get another one, a better one.

Better get a wizard or sorcerer because unless he can work magic or miracles, he won't be better. He'll just be fired.

The people sitting in the stands who pay the bucks to keep it running, come to see ability and talent. If not, then why are the stands so conspicuously empty at city and church league games where no tickets are sold? It is competition for entertainment dollars.

To apply this practice to an entire conference may make a trifle sense but how do you work it? In a close game, suddenly you remember that your worst player hasn't been in yet. Down by two with 58 seconds left and the other team with the ball, your worst player replaces your best?

Let's make it a conference rule that in the final two minutes of every quarter — excluding the last period — the clock stops and both sides send their second teams into the fray, Workable.

OK, lets say, however, that now you're in a district tournament game or a non-conference game where the foe isn't encumbered with a similar rule. "Oh," you say, "we'll waive it for those occasions." Then you must remember that over a 28-game schedule, the other team's top players have had 160 more playing minutes — and that's five full games.

"Show me a team that uses 12 players in every game and at the end of the season I'll show you a team with 12 mediocre players!" Jerry Dellinger, Jerome, circa 1958.

The suggestion is three minutes per player per game. Don't think that can't be disastrous. Once witnessed then-Bureau High came from 11 points down with 1:07 left to play to eliminate Carey in a district tournament — without going into overtime. On another occasion, Twin Falls built up a 17-point lead over Idaho Falls in the first quarter, shovled in a second platoon in the second and trailed at halftime. Extreme cases, but not how much more volatile then is three minutes with a five-point lead against a kamikaze press — no ballhandlers on the court? Three minutes — as any coach can tell you, is a heckuva long time, especially in this day and age of offensive explosion. Sometimes 25 seconds is an eternity.

Coaches could agree before hand to start the second five, let them go three minutes and then get the real game underway with a wholesale replacement.

The reason to have 10 to 12 members on a team is (a) to have someone to scrimmage against and (b) provide some backup in case of injury or illness. Few high school teams can go beyond seven men before suffering a talent drop.

What such suggestions engender, therefore, is the exact opposite of the desired result.

Practically each year, Twin Falls Coach John Astorquia grades his candidates on a one-through 10 basis. The 11th man kept isn't always, in his estimation, the 11th best of the total crop. But he is the type of individual who will accept his lot — which is to sit and wait during scrimmages and games. Just in case someone can't be there.

He explains to that individual the reason he is there and that he is selected because he feels that player can accept the tradeoff of getting a varsity letter and team association for keeping his mouth shut and fulfilling his role.

If you encumber a coach with mass participation rules, the "mass" will shrink. In some sports, especially among youngsters, there are such participation rules. It is particularly crushing for a youngster to be told "Johnny, we've got a big game Thursday — so don't show up." That can kill a 10-year-old baseball player. How much more bitter, then, for a senior in high school find himself being cut from an eight-man varsity team because the coach didn't feel he could play him every game without career damage?

So as the original premise suggests, the ideas are well-intentioned. If Utopian, if Flier chooses to harness its own programs with the rule, the betting here is the Wildcats will get unanimous support from the other Canyon Conference members. Somehow, we don't see the others applying it to their own.

Now explain how that works in wrestling, golf, track, tennis, etc. Don't be guilty of discriminating only against basketball.

Golf

Allen Miller takes one-shot Doral lead

MIAMI (UPI) — Allen Miller, who hasn't won since 1974 and hasn't made a cut all year, smoked to a 7-under-par 65 Friday to take a one-shot lead at the midway point of the $300,000 Doral Open golf tournament.

Miller's blazing round gave him a 9-under-par 135 for 36 holes, one stroke better than four golfers tied for second. Locked at 8-under-par 136 were Tom Kite, who posted a 4-under 68 in the second round, first-round leader Mike Gove with a 71, ailing George Burns with a 67 and Gary Koch with a 67.

Lenny Watkins shot a 71 over the par-72 7,065-yard Doral "Blue Monster" course to remain in contention, tied at 137 with Tom Purtzer (68) and Clarence Rose (67).

Ed Flori, who had gone into the round tied for the lead with Gove, fell back into a tie for third with a 1-over-par 73 for 138.

Two-time Doral champion Jack Nicklaus bogeyed two of his last three holes for a 70 and finished the round at 4-under-par 140.

Raymond Floyd, another two-time winner here, was just three shots off the pace at 139 after shooting a 68 Friday. Andy Bean, who won his second Doral last year, carded a 71 to put him within range at 140.

Miller, a 34-year-old Pensacola, Fla., resident whose only tour win was the 1974 Tallahassee Open, said he "made some putts today and yesterday, and that's new for me. I made a lot of good shots and I was able to convert the putts."

Miller, who was married in 1981 to former LPGA tour pro Cindy Kessler, said he came close to quitting last year after 13 years on the tour, but played so well in the late tournaments he decided to stick around. But on the West Coast this winter, he didn't make a cut and decided to go home to Pensacola three weeks early and wait for the Florida tour to begin at Doral.

"I played good at the end of last year, but then went berserk and decided to get out of there. We went back to Pensacola and regrouped," he said.

He said his wife has been working on his putting with him and he is convinced it will eventually help. On Friday, he holed birdie putts of 25, 18 and 15 feet. His lone bogey came when he was short of the green on the 225-yard 4th hole and missed a 12-foot putt to card a bogey 4.

Kite had his second straight 68 of the tournament.

"It was another one of those fun days I've been having lately," he said. "I know it's going to change. It always does, but right now it seems so damn good easy."

Kite, the tour's third leading money winner this year and a winner at the Bing Crosby earlier this month, recorded five birdies to one bogey during his round.

Gove, who played himself briefly into contention at San Diego last week before falling back into a tie for 32nd, said he didn't expect the pressure of being near the lead to bother him.

"I'm just going to go out and play as well as I can," said the 25-year-old Seattle resident.

Early eagle helps Daniel to pace Tucson Open

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Beth Daniel sunk a 10-foot eagle putt Friday on her way to a 4-under-par 68, giving her a two-stroke lead after the first round of the LPGA Tucson Open.

Daniel overcame early leader Patty Hayes, whose game fell apart on the back-nine to fall two off the pace along with Sandra Haynie and Ann-Marie Palli.

"I guess I just gagged," Hayes said of her back-nine collapse. "It's been a long time since I've played well ... I was just trying to get in. It's been a nine-month dry spell for me for a good putter."

Daniel said the turning point for her came on the fourth hole when she dropped the 10-footer for the eagle.

"That got me going," Daniel said. "I went from one-under to three-under real quick and all of a sudden I'm shooting a good round instead of a mediocre one."

Daniel said after the fourth hole her whole game came together.

"From tee to green, I hit the ball really well. I had a lot of opportunities to make birdies and you never make all of them, but I made my share," Daniel said.

Tatsuko Ohsako, Patty Sheehan, Amy Alcott and Yuko Moriguchi were tied for third at one-under-par, three-strokes off the pace.

Alcott saw her chance for the lead fizzle on the 15th hole when she three-putted from five feet for a double bogey five.

Defending tournament champion Ayako Okamoto struggled through the opening round. She finished the day at 5-over-par 77 and is nine strokes off the pace.

Racing

Showers delay Richmond 400 qualifying

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Light showers rained out Friday's pole-position qualifying for Sunday's $203,000 Richmond 400 NASCAR Grand National stock car race and officials rescheduled time trials for this morning.

Qualifying was scheduled to begin at 1 p.m. MST Friday, but intermittent showers and a light drizzle kept drivers off the half-mile track.

Trucks dragging tires tried to dry out the asphalt track, but every time the track began to dry another sprinkle would drench it.

Officials finally postponed qualifying at 3 p.m. and rescheduled it for 6:30 a.m. today. Weather officials said the rain should stop today.

The Richmond 400 is scheduled to start at 11 a.m. Sunday.

The race will mark the 900th start for Richard Petty, a milestone he shrugs off, but a total that dwarfs the numbers of starts any other driver has ever compiled.

Second on the list is James Hylton with 576 starts. Bobby Allison and Buddy Baker each have 559 starts while David Pearson has 539.

For Petty, who ran his first race in 1958, records are no big deal.

Bowling

56 keglers competing for $1,000

TWIN FALLS — A field of 56 bowlers will participate in the Barton's Club 93 Masters Tournament today and Sunday at Miller's Magic Bowl.

Bowlers from Idaho, Utah, Montana and California will be competing for the $1,000 first prize.

Today's qualifying calls for two five-game blocks for each squad with the field being cut to the top 14 bowlers tonight. Head-to-head matches will be held Sunday with the payoff scaling down from $200 for the winner (and a trophy) to $20 for 14th place.

Barton's Club 93 has added $3,000 to the tourney and the bowlers have each paid $115 to enter, of which $83.15 goes towards the prize fund. A bowler who records a perfect game will receive $10,000. Mason's Floor Covering of Twin Falls is paying the insurance fee for the perfect game.

Entrants from Twin Falls include Jerry Miller, Mark Miller, Paul Miller, Terry Clark, Steve McLemore, Mike Clarke, Jim Anderson, Les Poe and LeRoy Fleener. Filer's Steve Wascko is entered as is Buhl's Larry Smith, Orin Woodbury of Rupert, Forest Ward of Heyburn and Marty Holland of Burley are also entered.

Wall Street digests record-breaking gains

By GAIL COLLINS
United Press International

NEW YORK — The stock market took a breather Friday from its record-breaking surge, closing mixed as some investors cashed in their profits.

"I'd like to think it's digestion, not indigestion," Ralph Acampora of Kidder Peabody said. "The market backed off in an orderly fashion. It was a normal pullback after yesterday's exciting move."

The Dow Jones industrial average closed down 0.87 at 1,120.94. On Thursday, the Dow jumped 24.87 points, finishing above the 1,100 barrier for the first time at a record 1,121.81.

The New York Stock Exchange index, which also set a new record Thursday, pushed up even higher, closing 0.10 at 86.35. The price of an average share gained 4 cents. Advances led declines 907-754 among the 2,000 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Standard and Poor's 500-stock index gained 0.14 to close at a new high of 149.74.

Big Board volume totaled 100,970,000, down from the 113,220,000 shares traded Thursday.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 117,715,300, down from 129,197,610.

The National Association of Securities Dealers NASDAQ index of OTC stocks rose 0.08 to 262.39, a new high.

"A lot of people are taking profits and a lot more people are coming into buy," said analyst Monte Gordon of Dreyfus Corp.

The American Stock Exchange index dropped 1.61 to 378.03 and the price of a share declined 6 cents. Composite volume totaled 10,149,185, down from 11,122,300. Declines led advances 346-320 among 841 issues traded.

Selling was particularly heavy in technology stocks, which have run up some of the biggest profits since the bull market began last August, analysts said.

Buyers were bargain hunting among oil stocks, which fell earlier in the week during the scare over an OPEC oil price war.

Gulf & Western was the most active issue.

up 1/4 at 24%. Published reports said investor Carl Icahn, involved in a number of recent takeover attempts, had acquired more than 1 million shares in the conglomerate.

Thursday's buying spree was spurred by good economic news. Investors received more of the same Friday, as major banks lowered their prime lending rate to 10 1/4 percent — the lowest level since November, 1978.

The government announced consumer prices were virtually flat in January, rising 0.2 percent. The average worker's adjusted wages for the month rose at the highest rate in nearly a year, the government reported.

On the NYSE trading floor, Exxon was the second most active issue, up 1/2 to 29 1/4.

Goodyear, Tire & Rubber was third, up 1/4 to 31 3/4. AT&T, the nation's most widely held stock, was down 1/4 to 69 3/4.

What one trader called "panicky selling" in the precious metal markets spread to the NYSE. Gold and silver concerns were among the biggest losers, with Homestake Mining, a gold producer, off 4% to 52 1/2 and ASA Ltd., a South African investment company, down 3% to 65 1/4. Hecla Mining, a silver producer, closed down 2 1/4 at 21 1/4.

On the Amex, Wang Laboratories B was the most active issue, down 1/4 to 35 1/4. Dome Petroleum was second, down 1/4 to 2 1/4. National Kinney was third, up 1/2 to 5 1/4.

Banks cut prime rate to 5-year low

By GARY KLOTZ
United Press International

NEW YORK — Several major banks Friday cut their prime lending rate a half-point to 10.5 percent, the lowest level in more than four years.

The rate reductions were announced just after a government report showing the Consumer Price Index rose at an annual rate of only 2.1 percent in January.

The rate-cutting actions also came on the heels of growing criticism that banks have been slow to lower their lending rates in response to a host of positive signs the economy is strengthening and inflation and short-term interest rates are easing with the help of tumbling oil prices.

Should a 10.5 percent prime rate be adopted industry-wide, it would be the lowest the base rate for business loans has been since the first week of November, 1978. The prime rate has been declining since its record high of 21.5 percent in December, 1981.

First National Bank of Chicago, the nation's 8th largest bank, and 15th-ranked Mellon Bank of Pittsburgh led the prime rate move to the 10.5 percent level. Citibank, the second clines in other short-term interest rates the bank pays for its own funds.

With the economy apparently rebounding, Moody predicted short-term rates will continue to fall and the "prime rate would be in single digits by late summer."

Historically, he explained, rates have dropped more during the first year of economic recovery with improving corporate cash flows than they have during the last year of a recession.

Many analysts expect the Federal Reserve will move to encourage even lower rates and cut its closely-watched discount rate charged member banks a half-point to 8 percent.

"The fall in the prime rate is consistent with the continued good news on the inflation front although we're still concerned with long-term interest rates," economist William Dunderberg of the National Federation of Independent Business said.

Bankers have been the target of growing criticism lately for not lowering their interest charges more quickly, particularly consumer loan rates.

Fed Chairman Paul Volcker, testify before a Senate panel the day before the latest prime rate cut, said banks are able to offer slightly lower interest rates but lack confidence they will not be burned by a rebound in the inflation rate.

While refusing to criticize banks directly for their interest rate policies, Volcker conceded consumer rates are high relative to inflation and other market rates. He also asserted a 10 percent benchmark prime rate would be a more normal relation to the market than the 11 percent prime which had prevailed since Jan. 11.

More about IRA, Keogh plans

Universal Press Syndicate

For 1982, for the first time, you can exclude up to $750 if single, or $1,500 if married filing jointly, of dividends received from and reinvested in stock of qualified public utility companies.

Until '82, if a corporation gave you, the stockholder, a choice between taking your dividends in cash or reinvesting them in more stock, then even if you chose to reinvest, you had to include the full dividend in income.

This is still the general rule. But for '82, an exception is made for qualified domestic public utility companies (such as electricity, gas, water and phone) that have a plan that allows you to elect to take your dividends in stock rather than cash. Under this arrangement, the dividend you elected to reinvest in stock of the qualified utilities in '82 are excluded from your '82 income up to the $750 or $1,500 limit.

Last in a series

This type of tax-qualified investment in qualified public utility stock is available through 1985. If you haven't taken advantage of this tax break, now may be your last chance to do so.

If you are a divorced spouse, heed with care how you may get a special Individual Retirement Account tax break. IRA rules also have been expanded to cover a divorced spouse whose former spouse set up a spousal IRA at least five years before the divorce — if the former spouse contributed to the spousal IRA at least three of the five years before the divorce.

If these requirements are met, then you, the divorced spouse, can contribute each year to the spousal IRA and deduct up to the lesser of $1,125 or the sum of the divorced spouse's compensation and alimony included in gross income.

The Keogh contribution level has been raised, too, for earnings over $50,000. For 1981, the top deduction limit for Keogh plans (tax-sheltered retirement plans for self-employed individuals) was 15 percent of self-employment earnings up to a $7,500 deduction.

For 1982, the limit is 15 percent, up to a $15,000 deduction. This means the limit is unchanged for earnings of $50,000 or less. But if you're covered by a Keogh and if your 1982 earnings are over $50,000, up to $100,000, the limit is raised.

To illustrate: If you're a self-employed person with earnings in 1981 and 1982 of $70,000 each, you could only put away in your Keogh and deduct $7,500 in 1981. For '82, you can put in and deduct $10,500.

This ends my 1983 series of 12 columns on how to cut your taxes to the legal minimum — and to avoid paying the Internal Revenue Service one penny more than you owe.

Some of the 1982 developments were unfavorable to taxpayers, but most were on the taxpayer's side. Two-earner couples, particularly, are benefited and in the kind of marriage is commonplace in our land today. If you pay for the care of children and other dependents in order to go out to work, you are entitled to significantly higher tax credits.

In these columns, you have found tips and strategies that must help you save on taxes. Good luck.
