Republicans say budget problem unplugged

By MARK SHENEFFELT
United Press International
BOISE — Republican legislative leaders jumped out of the starting blocks Thursday with a new fiscal 1984 budget plan they would give Idaho's school districts overall funding equal to current levels.

is cornerstoned by a $215 million appropriation from the state's general account. Other school money comes from a host of sources, including state dedicated accounts, property taxes and federal dollars. The overall total for the current year is an estimated $371.5 million, according to staff aides.

for fiscal 1984. However, House Speaker T.W. Silvers, R-Twin Falls, said the total likely would land between $430 million and $440 million if the school-based plan were carried out. Leaders said that by counting on the various miscellaneous school revenues to increase during fiscal 1984 — largely due to inflation — legislators would reduce the appropriation from the state's general account. The state support total may end up dropping to $208 million, leaders said, depending on what estimate is arrived at for income from the other funds. That estimate and the state appropriation levels were to be decided by the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee, which was to begin work again after a weeklong delay because of the caucus and leadership stalemate. Top Democrats, who have called for a state budget of $474 million, were not pleased by the new GOP plan. House Minority Leader Melvin Hammond, D-Rexburg, said keeping the overall school funding dollar amount would not be sufficient. He said program cuts would be necessary because costs will rise due to inflation and student population growth. Rep. Kathleen "Kitty" Gurnsey, R-Boise, head of the House Appropriations Committee, said she believed the advertisement by GOP leaders of the concept of keeping overall school funding at this year's level was meant as a tool to justify a cut in the state general-account appropriation. And she said even if that appropriation is cut to $208 million, corresponding appropriations for other areas of state government would drive the overall general-fund budget up to $450 million. To this point, the hard-core conservative majority of the Legislature has resisted that large of a budget. "When we get the public school appropriation out of the way, then most of the rest of the budgets will fall into place," Silvers told. —See BUDGET on Page A2

Reagan seeks Salvador aid

By DONALD A. DAVIS
United Press International
WASHINGTON — President Reagan, assailing U.S. security is at stake on the battlefields of Central America, called on a reluctant Congress Thursday to give El Salvador another $110 million in emergency military aid.

twice during the long speech. "It is not untrue that is at stake in the Caribbean and Central America. It is the United States' national security," the president said. Reagan said the new military funds he seeks for El Salvador would be part of a package of $208 million in military and economic aid for the region. Of the total, $163 million would be shifted from aid funds already appropriated elsewhere. Members of Congress predicted a tough battle, especially in the Democratic-controlled House. Sen. Dan Quayle, R-Ind., a member of the Senate Armed Forces Committee, said Reagan "will probably get most of what he asks for" but Congress might add conditions opposing U.S. combat troops, calling for improved respect for human rights and "maybe a certification requirement on how the aid is used." House Speaker Thomas O'Neill said

Like mother, like daughter
With their strollers in hand, Andrea Blake and her mother, Dana, were out taking advantage of Thursday's beautiful weather, as they wheeled their respective charges along Seventh Avenue North in Twin Falls. Today won't be quite as nice, with mostly cloudy skies and a chance of a few showers predicted. The temperature will be cooler, too, with highs expected to be in the 50s.

'The president has gone too far,' claims Speaker O'Neill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Speaker Thomas O'Neill Thursday predicted the House will reject President Reagan's request for $110 million in additional military aid to El Salvador. Supporters of the president said he is in for a tough fight. "They haven't justified getting the money they are asking for," O'Neill told reporters after meeting with Reagan briefly at the White House to discuss Social Security. The Massachusetts Democrat said there is a "strong feeling the president has gone too far."

chairman of the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on Inter-American affairs, said he opposes Reagan's plan to provide $60 million of the increased military aid by moving it from other programs because that procedure avoids a vote by Congress. Barnes said he will hold hearings next week on Reagan's aid request. "If I approve any of it we will approve it only subject to some very stringent conditions, including a willingness on the part of all the parties to enter into unconditional talks or negotiations to try to find a political settlement," he said. Sen. Dan Quayle, R-Ind., said although he "expected a fight" in the Democratic-controlled House, he would be surprised if the Republican Senate failed to back Reagan on foreign policy.

More arrests made in narcotics bust

By MARTY TRIFLHAASE
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — A network of local-state and federal law-enforcement officials arrested eight persons Thursday — including three Kimberly residents — in connection with what police say is the largest seizure of narcotics in Idaho history. By day's end, only the three Kimberly residents — 35-year-old David Imbler, who is a Twin Falls firefighter, and his 30-year-old wife, Barbara, and 32-year-old Joseph Shelton, of Route 1, Kimberly — remained in the Ada County Jail in Boise. U.S. Magistrate Harry Turner, acting in Twin Falls, set $500 at $100,000 for each of the men and $20,000 for the woman. Also arrested and subsequently freed were: Dan

Mooney, 33, of Ketchum; Jacquelyn Mason, 32, of Ketchum; John Henderson, 40, of Boise; and Jack Koster, 37, of Boise. U.S. Magistrate James Christensen set bond for those four defendants at $10,000 each. The status of the eighth person arrested — Mike Powers, age unknown, of Sausalito, Calif. — was unknown, according to assistant U.S. Attorney Ronald Howen of Boise. "I understand that they are making arrests in other jurisdictions, but I do not know the finalities of those kinds of things with any detail," Howen said. The defendants all entered no guilty pleas to the charges — conspiracy to distribute cocaine, a federal offense that carries a maximum penalty of 15 years in federal prison and up to a $25,000 fine. Howen said the defendants are scheduled to go on trial May 16 in federal district court in Boise. The trial could take three weeks, he said. The arrests were made in connection with a large-scale investigation involving the FBI, the federal Drug Enforcement Administration, the Idaho Department of Law Enforcement and local police departments in Boise and Twin Falls. Twin Falls police Chief Tim Qualls said law-enforcement teams coordinated in Twin Falls, Boise, Ketchum and California stationed their efforts in order to make all of the arrests at the pre-arranged time of 7 a.m. Qualls said Mrs. Imbler and Shelton were arrested at their residences. Mr. Imbler, was arrested at the Twin Falls Fire Department, where he is employed. Qualls said. —See COKE on Page A2

Anti-lottery senators bet in legislative pool

BOISE (UPI) — Four state senators who helped kill a measure to allow the people to decide whether Idaho should allow lotteries have placed bets in a pool of predictions on when the legislative session will end. A list of legislators, lobbyists and attaches participating in the 50-cent-a-game contest, bears the names of Republican Sen. Dore Watkins of Idaho Falls, Reed Budge of Soda Springs and William Moore of Hayden Lake, plus Carey Democratic Sen. John Peavy. All four lawmakers voted "no" when the Senate recently killed a resolution sponsored by Sen. Vernon Hansen, R-Boise, to amend the Idaho Constitution to allow lotteries. Had the measure passed, the people would have decided the question in the November 1984 general election. Also listed as placing an end to the session bet is Rep. Walter Little, R-New Plymouth, chairman of the House State Affairs Committee. Little has refused to allow his committee to consider lottery resolutions on the grounds that more study on the issue is needed. Asked whether he considered his participation in the legislative pool a flip-flop from his floor vote. Budge said, "I don't find it that contradictory. It's a little like betting on baseball." Budge said he does not believe the lottery issue and the pool are of the "same magnitude." "I think it is just a little hypocritical to vote one way and then enter a private lottery conducted within the Senate," said lottery sponsor, Little, whose name also appears on the pool roster. "Is the pool legal?" No, said Rep. Tom Cushman, R-Horseshoe Bend, a former Boise County prosecutor. Cushman termed the pool a "constitutional felony." He said it violates the Idaho Constitution's prohibition on gambling. The pool chart is being kept at the Legislative Information Center on the third floor of the Statehouse, between the main entrance to the Senate and House chambers. Although some bettors have predicted the legislative session will end as early as the 70th legislative day — 10 days from Thursday — most have put their money on dates between the 75th and 94th legislative days.

Time for EPA to 'get back to work'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Acting Environmental Protection Agency Administrator John Hernandez vowed Thursday to end the crisis atmosphere at the EPA, saying his primary goal is "to get this agency back to work." Hernandez made the pledge on his first full day running the troubled agency, following the resignation of Anne Burford, Wednesday evening. She resigned as EPA chief after months of controversy over investigations into the EPA's Superfund toxic waste cleanup program. "It should come as no surprise to anyone that my No. 1 priority is to get Anne Burford's resignation," Hernandez told a conference room jammed with reporters and EPA employees. "I intend to begin immediately the task of restoring the public's faith in what I have always maintained is an exceptional agency," he said. "I hope everyone will understand how strongly I feel about the compelling necessity to return this agency to its one and only job: And that is to do all we can to ensure all Americans of President Reagan named him acting EPA director while the White House seeks a permanent replacement for Mrs. Burford. Hernandez holds the No. 2 job at the agency, deputy EPA administrator. Hernandez, 53, was civil engineering professor at New Mexico State University since 1968, until he was appointed to the EPA in February 1981. He also has served as dean of the college of engineering, co-director of the New Mexico Environmental Institute and co-director of the Southwest Resource Center for science and engineering. Hernandez has a bachelor's degree in civil engineering from the University of New Mexico, a master's in sanitary engineering from Purdue University, and a doctorate in water resources from Howard University. President Reagan and his aides will move "as fast as we can" to find a replacement for Anne Burford at the Environmental Protection and curb the fallout from her resignation, a White House aide said Thursday.

As they sought to assess the political impact of Mrs. Burford's resignation as EPA administrator, White House aides went to lengths to avoid additional comment on the controversy. "We think it serves no useful purpose," said deputy press secretary Larry Speakes. Communications director David Gergen similarly declined to speculate on who might be recruited to take over the agency, which is under investigation by Congress and the Justice Department. Gergen said there is no timetable for announcing a successor, but added, "I think there's interest (at the White House) in moving as fast as we can on it." The talent search was being handled by Helene von Dam, director of presidential personnel, who said the number of candidates was "under 10," but indicated her staff was continuing to receive names of potential candidates. "We have a thoughtful process going on," she said.

JOHN HERNANDEZ
'I intend to begin... a safe and healthy environment,' he added. After making his brief remarks, Hernandez refused to answer any questions, walking quickly off a podium and out of the room.

Committee OKs rescue bill
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Finance Committee, heading toward approval of a Social Security rescue bill, Thursday night agreed to raise the retirement age to 66 and cut benefits for new retirees next century to eliminate the old age system's long-term deficit.
 Earlier, the panel voted to curb future benefits in an emergency to assure checks keep flowing to 36 million recipients.

In a decision on adds with a House-passed bill, the Finance Committee voted to raise the 65-year retirement age to 66 between the years 2000 and 2016, and to reduce the basic benefit for new retirees by a percent beginning in the year 2000.

Under the retirement age change, Americans born in 1949 or later would have to wait until they turn 66 to retire. The retirement age would be raised one month a year, from 2003 to 2016, but benefits would be reduced for early retirees — those claiming benefits at age 62 — beginning in 2000.

Men also may be DES victims
 CHICAGO (UPI) — Two young men whose mothers took DES during pregnancy have developed testicular cancer — the first documented cases in males exposed to the drug while in the womb.

DES — or diethylstilbestrol, a synthetic estrogen — was widely used in the United States from the early 1940s to 1971 to prevent spontaneous abortion and other pregnancy complications.

"As many as 4 (million) to 6 million mothers, daughters and sons were exposed to the drug," Dr. Gene R. Conley of Boston's Tufts-New England Medical Center said in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"Subsequent findings of an increased incidence of clear cell adenocarcinoma of the vagina in the daughters and reports of doubtful efficacy of DES for the prevention of pregnancy complications led to its discontinuation for that purpose in 1971."

Belushi grand jury deciding
 LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The grand jury investigating the drug overdose death of John Belushi will decide within the next few weeks whether to return a criminal indictment, authorities said Thursday.

"The District Attorney will decide whether the entire matter be dropped, whether to seek a criminal complaint or seek an indictment from the grand jury," Deputy District Attorney Richard Christie said.

Deputy District Attorney Michael Montagna said earlier in the week that he would ask the panel to return an indictment on narcotics charges against Cathy Evelyn Smith, and raised the possibility a murder charge could also be returned.

Flu reported in 41 states
 ATLANTA (UPI) — Influenza cases have been reported from 41 states across the nation, with deaths from flu and pneumonia continuing to rise for the eighth straight week, the National Centers for Disease Control reported Thursday.

The CDC said in its Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report that five states — Iowa, Kentucky, Nebraska, Ohio and Virginia — had widespread influenza activity.

Warmest temperatures of the year were reported at many Idaho localities Thursday.

Afternoon readings reached the middle 60s in the Treasure Valley, Magic Valley and at Salmon with the state's warmest temperature reported 73 degrees at Hagerman. Mountain stations were reporting readings of 45 to 55 degrees.

Winds were light, except in the panhandle. The warmer temperatures resulted from high pressure aloft over the Continental Divide and a southwesterly air flow over Idaho. A weak frontal system lay across Oregon on Thursday afternoon, and a disturbance off the California coast was traveling up that front toward Oregon and Idaho.

That combination also was expected to produce increasing clouds over western and northern Idaho on Thursday, with a chance of showers continuing into today. The coolest morning low Thursday was 24 degrees at Dixie.

In Twin Falls Thursday, the pollen count was 486 per cubic meter of air.

The extended forecast for the Magic Valley calls for Sunday through Tuesday to be mild with a slight chance of showers Sunday and Monday. Highs will be in the 50s to low 60s. Lows will be in the 30s or low 40s.

Elsewhere in the nation Thursday, the warmest temperature reported was 83 degrees at Yuma, Ariz., and the coldest was 4 degrees at both Bemidji, Minn., and Watertown S.D.

 For the week ended March 4, the CDC said there were 670 pneumonia and influenza deaths reported from 121 major U.S. cities.

Hawks want say, too
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — The hawkish House Armed Services Committee voted Thursday to seek control of a "reasonable" amount of time during debate in the House next week on a nuclear freeze resolution.

The panel, perturbed by the timing of the debate will be in the hands of the Foreign Affairs Committee, also voted to seek an "open rule" that would permit unlimited amendments to the freeze resolution.

The Foreign Affairs panel last week approved 27-9 a resolution calling for a "mutual and verifiable freeze and reductions in nuclear weapons."

The freeze resolution is strongly opposed by the Reagan administration, which argues it will undercut arms reduction talks in Geneva and lock the United States into an inferior military position. A similar resolution was approved by the committee last year, but failed by two votes to pass the House after a personal lobbying effort by President Reagan.

Flight likely to be delayed
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — An analysis found significant contamination from sand, silt, silica particles and paint chips on the satellite to be launched from the space shuttle Challenger, the space agency reported Thursday.

NASA officials delayed until at least Friday a decision on a new launch date for the Challenger's maiden flight, but an agency source said a new delay is likely.

It could be only a few days or could be longer than a month, depending on what project officials decide to do, he said.

The Challenger, the second of four shuttles in NASA's fleet of rocket planes, originally had been set for launch Jan. 20.

Man indicted in Faubus death
 HOUSTON (UPI) — A grand jury Thursday indicted a Florida fugitive in the bathtub slaying of former Arkansas Gov. Orval Faubus' estranged wife, who apparently thought her killer wanted to buy antique furniture.

The grand jury also charged another suspect in the second of three so-called bathtub slayings in Houston last week.

Homicide Detective J.C. Mosier said police arrested David Helfond, 25, of Miami, after learning he was wanted on charges of sexually assaulting a woman who was selling furniture at her home in Dade County, Fla., in October 1982.

Mosier said the accused killer followed Elizabeth Drake Faubus to her home to look at some antique furniture she had advertised for sale.

A Harris County grand jury Thursday indicted Helfond on a capital murder charge in the March 3 slaying of the 44-year-old Mrs. Faubus. Helfond remained jailed without bond.

Reagan stakes out 200-mile offshore mineral, oil rights

By JIM ANDERSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Reagan laid claim to a 200-nautical-mile "exclusive economic zone" Thursday off the shores of all U.S. territory and possessions, a region covering some 4 million square miles of ocean.

The proclamation stakes out U.S. rights to explore and mine all minerals in the zone, including oil and gas. It does not directly affect fishing rights, which vary according to the species involved, or territorial waters, which remain at three nautical miles off the U.S. coasts.

It declares the waters adjacent to the United States, Puerto Rico and all U.S. overseas territories, including the Pacific Trust territories, are an Exclusive Economic Zone. The proclamation took effect immediately upon being issued Thursday.

U.S. officials said the claim, extending about 230 statute miles, is consistent with the Law of Sea Convention, which the United States has refused to sign over objections concerning deep sea-bed mining in international waters. The State Department officials said the new U.S. claim also conforms with existing international law.

The chief impact of the proclamation will be to protect U.S. rights to the mining of minerals, such as manganese nodules and sulphide deposits, they said.

Although the supplies of such mineral deposits are believed to be extensive, commercial mining is not yet feasible. But Reagan said they "could be an important future source of strategic minerals."

Officials said the economic zone will not affect the rights of other nations to use the waters and airspace for navigation or for most kinds of fishing, but here was immediate movement on Capitol Hill to expand the protections.

Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, said he had introduced legislation to close the waters covered by the proclamation to all foreign fishing by 1987.

The legislation, he told reporters, would go beyond the existing Fishery Conservation Management Act in protecting American fishermen.

As for Japanese, Canadian and other foreign fishermen who now operate off U.S. coasts, Stevens said they could be taxed and eventually, "We could certainly tell them, 'We don't want you here at all.'"

Miners ban all foreign cars

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (UPI) — The national council of the Coal Miners Political Action Committee has passed a resolution banning foreign-made cars from parking lots owned by the United Mine Workers, spokesman Joe Corcoran said Thursday.

UMW President Richard Trumka had invoked the ban on foreign cars at the union's international headquarters in Washington, D.C. beginning next month. But the committee council Wednesday decided to extend that ban to all union lots.

The edict also would cut off car allowances and mileage payments to those union representatives who drive foreign cars on business matters.

"The message is that the UMW feels that Americans should buy American products," Corcoran said. "Our membership's jobs are dependent on the number of American cars sold."

The spokesman also said he did not know how many lots the union owns at its offices around the country, nor their size.

He did say, however, that some employees at the UMW International in Washington do not drive U.S.-made cars now.

"I think those who already own foreign cars have to make some decisions about finding another place to park or using public transportation," he said.

One union official, who confessed to driving a Honda but asked to remain anonymous, already uses Washington's subway system to get to work.

New claims lowest since '81

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New claims for unemployment benefits plunged to 460,000 in late February, the lowest total for any week in almost a year and a half, the Labor Department said Thursday.

The seasonally adjusted drop of 42,000 in the week ended Feb. 28 was the seventh decline in the first nine weeks of the year. It brought new applications for state jobless benefits to the lowest level since Sept. 12, 1981.

Less than half of the unemployed qualify for the state benefits, however, and weekly trends in applications are not always a reliable guide to the direction of total unemployment, which the department measures once a month.

The national unemployment rate for February remained at the January level of 10.4 percent despite drops in initial claims for jobless benefits.

Many analysts believe that some recalls of previously laid-off workers, particularly in the automobile and steel industries, are slowly moderating the nation's unemployment problem.

Most leading forecasters in and out of government foresee the unemployment rate dropping below 10 percent before the end of the year if the current economic recovery is not interrupted by higher interest rates.

The total number of people receiving both state and federal jobless benefits was 6,209,800 before seasonal adjustment for the earlier week ending Feb. 19, the department said Thursday. This was a decline of 287,300.

The number of people receiving 13 weeks of extended jobless benefits in 24 states and Puerto Rico was 529,700 for the week ended Feb. 26.

The number of people in every state receiving further special supplemental benefits under recent federal programs that ended payments another 16 weeks was 954,200, a decrease of 20,200, the department said.

The 10 states with the most unemployment among people covered by state benefits were West Virginia, 10.6 percent, Alaska 8.8 percent, Idaho, 8.1 percent, Oregon 7.9 percent, Pennsylvania 7.8 percent, Michigan 7.1 percent, Mississippi 7.1 percent, Kentucky 7 percent, Washington 7 percent and Arkansas 6.9 percent.

Sinkholes wipe out wells, cabin

SEBASTOPOLE, Calif. (UPI) — Huge sinkholes and earth splits up to 400 yards long scared residents in the Sonoma County hamlet of Sebastopol into hiring private geologists to tell them what to do about the still-moving earth.

The largest hole reported, about 60 feet deep and 25 yards across, dropped the foundation from beneath a cabin and destroyed two wells.

"It is a very unusual earth movement," Louis Peterka, director of the Sonoma County office of Emergency Services said Thursday. "It's not like a typical landslide that involves sliding on a clay surface. It's an unusual situation... and it's still moving."

Heavy rains over the past two years caused the splits, Peterka said.

Witnesses fail to help rape victim

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (UPI) — A coalition of women's groups plan a candlelight march to protest the rape of a 21-year-old woman on a pool table in a barroom where as many as 15 men stood by and cheered. It was announced Thursday.

Rose Amado, a member of the Coalition Against Sexist Violence, up to 300 people plan to march Monday night to City Hall to attend a hearing on the revocation of the license of Big Dan's Tavern.

The district attorney was preparing a case for the grand jury against four men accused of raping the woman Sunday night.

"There are charges right now of rape, unnatural acts upon a human being, and there could be civil rights violations, assault and battery, accessory charges, accessory to the fact," District Attorney Ronald Pina said.

"No human being — woman, man or child — should be violated and we want to have some say to make sure these people are prosecuted," Ms. Amado said, adding, "We don't want to create an atmosphere for a mistrial."

A bartender said no one went to the New Bedford woman's aid because one of the alleged attackers brandished a butter knife menacingly.

The sister of the tavern owners voluntarily relinquished the liquor license and permanently closed the bar Wednesday. Monday's hearing is a formality; no one having asked that the license be re-issued, Pina's spokeswoman said.

Victor Raposo, 23, and John Cordeiro, 26, both of New Bedford, have pleaded innocent to rape charges. Daniel C. Silva, 26, of New Bedford, and Joseph Vletra, 26, of Pomfret, Conn., have pleaded innocent to charges of rape and committing unnatural acts. All are free on $1,000 cash bail.

Outraged callers have flooded the New Bedford Women's Center switchboard and the home of the center's relations director, providing a spark to revive the coalition of women's groups which had been dormant for two years, she said.

"History proves to us all that too many times when a woman is assaulted what happens, in the due process of law is she has her whole life history opened up to ridicule," Ms. Amado said. "We need to be educated because if we were talking about a man it would be an entirely different story."

Police said the men pinned the unidentified woman to a pool table in the tavern and sexually assaulted her for two hours before she escaped half naked and flagged down a passing motorist.

Police described the barroom scene as a cheering frenzy.

"She cried for help, she asked for help, she begged for help, but nobody helped her," Police Sgt. Ronald Cabral said.

Pheasant population depends on habitat

Any Idahoan who has ever hunted in the Midwest and walked row upon row of cornfields in futile pursuit of non-existent pheasants has come home to marvel about the abundant bird populations in this state.

But as Fish and Game Department officials have been warning for years, those healthy bird populations don't just happen. They're the result of a number of favorable conditions, including, first and foremost, habitat or cover, predator control, favorable weather and an ongoing stocking program.

The "pheasant-fee" habitat improvement plan proposed in the Legislature by Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, was not a perfect one, but we think the basic idea was and remains sound.

The Senate was shortsighted in killing the proposal without offering habitat-development alternatives, and we think the senators underestimated the number of hunters who would gladly pay a modest fee of $5 to help ensure quality pheasant habitat.

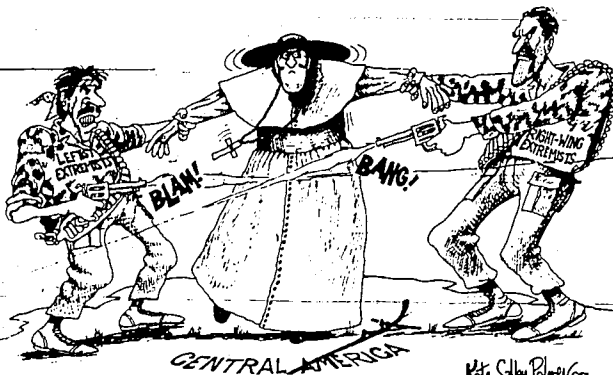

Is there need there? You bet. Pheasants thrive best where they have good cover from predators and the weather, as well as access to grain foods. They seem to do best in grain-growing areas, where farmers leave the marginal land to grow up with brush and weeds, where the ditch rows are left unburned, where standing or chopped corn is left in the field.

They did best, we remember, during the Depression when farm foreclosures left many fields abandoned, which, in time, went back to weeds and brush. The same effect could be one of the side benefits of the payment-in-kind set-aside program, now being proposed by the federal government.

Years of habitat neglect ruined the pheasant hunting in much of the Midwest, and the same could happen in Idaho. As more and more habitat is cut away, as sage borders and thickets are burned out, pheasant populations will decline.

That message is behind the proposed legislation the Senate killed this week. A disappointed Jerry Conley, the Fish and Game director, listened to the lengthy debate on what was wrong with the proposed bill, but he heard little on what could be done to boost bird populations.

The proposed bill had flaws, to be sure, but we hope Fish and Game officials will not give up on getting legislators to approve some kind of habitat-improvement program.

Look at students' real needs

Larger class sizes and increased teacher work load can be compared to a reporter's job. A reporter comes in and is told that she is doing such a good job that she will be given more responsibility, another beat to cover. Who notices that a few articles aren't covered? Why get another person to cover the beat just because the reporter doesn't like to proofread another two extra stories a day?

Sound unrealistic? Maybe there is more to reporting than just proofreading stories. I'm a teacher, what would I know about newspapers? Obviously I know as much about reporting as one reporter knows about teaching.

To imply that teachers want a new elementary school so that there are less papers to correct is ludicrous and insulting. (Sunday paper, March 6).

A teacher comes back at the end of the summer and is told that his class size has increased from 25 to 34. Who notices that this class doesn't get to do clay relief maps like last year's class? Who notices that there are no field trips? Who notices that there are seven kids rather than three who need special help after he is through instruction for the year? And who knows that when the teacher corrects those additional papers there are more students struggling to keep up with the average pupil?

We teachers are deeply concerned for our students, for the quality of education they receive. When we ask the public for a new elementary school and physical education facility we are asking on behalf of the students. Dig deeper than the number of papers that need to be corrected in large classes. Look at the real needs of our students. Then decide.

Keep Willetta. Let her write on politics too; she would probably equal or surpass the present writers. Here are some suggestions for her to work on:

1. Is the Democratic Party becoming a dull-man's club?
2. Why was Tip O'Neill so contented during the Carter presidency?
3. What should Ronald Regan have done that he didn't do?
4. As supply-side economics seem logical in theory what is the hitch in its going into practice?

Film dispute is over freedom of ideas

WASHINGTON -- In today's world, information and political ideas span continents and reach out to all of the international exchange of information, not only through radio, television and satellite. Trying to cut off the international exchange of information is not only fruitless, but contrary to our ideas of an open society.

That's why it is difficult to understand why President Reagan's Justice Department is attempting to restrict distribution of some Canadian films critical of acid rain pollution and the nuclear arms race.

The dispute over the three Canadian films goes back to 1917, when there was widespread concern that some German interests and Russian communists were using front organizations in the United States to propagandize against U.S. participation in World War I.

As a result, Congress passed the Foreign Agents Registration Act requiring that an agent of a foreign nation must be registered with the federal government, along with any propaganda materials the agent may be disseminating.

Certainly there is very little similarity between the Marine trenches of 1917 and the current environmental crises in Canada and the United States. But a few people in the Justice Department see a resemblance.

The three films, including one which has been nominated for an Academy Award, were made in Canada and distributed in this country through the

Jack Landau

Canadian Film Board, which is an agency of the Canadian government.

The board is registered as a foreign agent and under the law is required to inform the U.S. government of which films it plans to distribute here and to whom.

According to various accounts from Canada and from the Canadian Embassy in Washington, the Justice Department said that in order to be shown in the United States, the films must carry a disclaimer stating they are "political propaganda." The Canadian government protested the ruling, but said it would comply.

When Congress wrote the Foreign Agents Registration Act, it was quite conscious of trading in a delicate constitutional area of freedom of speech and press. It said a publication can be considered foreign propaganda only if it is intended to influence the U.S. public with respect to "relations of a government of a foreign nation" or a "foreign political party."

The law also contains several exemptions designed to protect free expression. One of these says the law doesn't apply if the publication is "not serving predominantly a foreign interest."

The Canadian government would like to have a treaty restricting acid rain, a form of sulfur dioxide pollution caused by factories burning coal with a high sulfur content. Such pollution, caused by U.S. factories, is believed to be carried in the atmosphere and then fall in Canada as acid rain. Thus, the U.S. government could technically argue that one of the films would influence U.S. citizens to adopt Canada's point of view on acid rain.

But the environmental movement in this country also favors restrictions on burning of high-sulfur coal, regardless of Canada's position. And opposition to nuclear proliferation is worldwide, especially among young people.

In all probability, the current flap between the United States and Canada will end with the Justice Department backing down.

What won't go away is the misconceived belief of President Reagan and his advisers that the international flow of information and ideas on social, political and scientific issues can be locked away from the public.

Jack Landau writes on the law for Newhouse News Service.

Holocaust memorial will confront nation with reality

WASHINGTON -- Americans have a habit of often considered a virtue, which is often -- of looking on the bright side of life. But, occasionally it is salutary to look at the dark side. In a few years, Americans will be able to do this in Washington, adjacent to the Mall, in two old buildings the government has allocated for a Holocaust museum.

This decision to locate a grand, disturbing display -- amidst the white marble and ornate celebratory symbols -- may cause controversy. But the decision is wise.

The Mall, one of the world's magnificent urban spaces, is a shrine to which Americans come as pilgrims. Its openness is an analogue of our society; its vistas open receptive minds to the symmetry and temperateness of our political arrangements.

But the Mall has no single motif. It is surrounded by museums and monuments, art galleries and government offices. The latest addition to the Mall, the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, is designed to remind visitors of some sobering experiences and stern values.

George Will

It occupies prime public land because the government decided that it is in the public interest for the public to contemplate these experiences and values.

Government performs many such pedagogic functions, from providing public schools to organizing patriotic observances government created the Holocaust Memorial Council, which will raise private funds for the museum. The council already has done much to add the annual Days of Remembrance (in mid-April), the anniversary of the liberation of the camps, to our liturgy of civic religion. But some persons will ask: What has the Holocaust to do with this nation? That is a fair question. The answer is that no other nation has broader, graver responsibilities in the world, so no other nation more needs citizens trained to look life in the face.

Leave aside the scandal of this nation and its allies -- the fact that they did not act on the knowledge that the Holocaust was occurring. They refused, for example, to bomb the rail lines and crematoria at Auschwitz when 10,000 were dying there daily. Never mind. The museum should be an institution of understanding, not accusation.

The theme of the Holocaust memorial in Jerusalem is: Remember. But remembrance without understanding is betrayal. It occurs when people try to democratize the Holocaust, making it something general, symbolic, abstract and other than a Jewish catastrophe.

Yes, before the killing of Jews became systematic, the killing of the mentally retarded was systematic in Germany. Yes, the Nazis killed 20 million and others. Yes, Mao and Stalin were much more prolific killers than Hitler. Yes, between 1975 and 1980 the Khmer Rouge did to Cambodia what the Black Death did to Europe in the 14th century.

But we hastily and trivialize the Holocaust when we bend it to our convenience, making it a symbol -- of general beastliness, or whatever. It was not a symbol; it was a fact. The flight into such generalities is a flinching from this fact: The Holocaust was directed murderously against particular victims: Jews. Their tragedy could not be appropriated by others as a useful metaphor.

However, a general god for the nation can flow from an unliking understanding of it. The two shattering events of modern politics were the First World War and the Holocaust. The war shattered governments and empires, and patterns of civility, clearing the ground for primitivism. The Holocaust -- the eruption of primitivism in the heart of our civilization -- overturned the idea that there are limits on evil.

It is like life when lived beyond a sense of limits? You could tell from the sort of persons consumed in the crematoria.

Newcomers to Auschwitz, who still had some fat on their bones, made black smoke. Persons who had been there for a while made white smoke. There, that is an emblematic fact of 20th century politics.

The Holocaust was the bureaucratic violation, almost the domestication, of the most volatile passion, hatred. The memory of the Holocaust is the black sun into which we cannot bear to stare. But we should stare, because this mentality soft Republic is threatened by the inability of its citizens to comprehend now radically the untamed world -- from the brutalized elite in the Kremlin to the pandemic savagery of El Salvador -- differs from their: mild experiences and assumptions.

The Holocaust museum, located at the epicenter of our collective life, can be a mind-opening reminder of the furies beyond our shores. The museum is needed because nothing in nature is more remarkable, or dangerous, than the recuperative power of innocence in a liberal society.

George Will writes for the Washington Post.

Despite ERA issue, the military plans draft for women

BOSTON -- Before you read any further, do the following facial exercise. Stick your tongue out a bit and press on it lightly with your tip and bottom teeth. This will enable you to quickly hit your tongue when you are tempted to blurt out: "I told you so!" Now for the news.

For the past many years, anti-ERA forces have gone about warning America that if we passed this constitutional amendment our daughters would be eligible for the draft. Any woman who wanted equal rights, they said darkly, was asking for war.

Well, Greetings from Uncle Sam. Months after the defeat of the ERA, the Department of Defense has a proposal that will make women eligible for the draft for the first time in American history.

The proposal, which has barely been noticed, is part of the plan to begin registering medical people again. Not medical men medical people. To put it plainly, the DOD would like to amend the old "Doctor's Draft" codes by, and I quote, "striking out 'miles' and inserting in place thereof 'persons.'" Among the "persons" are female doctors, nurses, physical therapists, pharmacists, podiatrists, veterinarians, and "any other ancillary or technical" health-care worker between the ages of 18 1/2 and 40 years old.

How did this happen, you ask. Without the ERA? Excuse me for a moment while I take another nine of medicine.

There never was any guarantee that women wouldn't be drafted. The recent Supreme Court decision gave constitutional approval to an all-male draft. But it didn't outlaw a coed draft. They left the whole business up to Congress.

The armed services, meanwhile, have been what might generously be called ambivalent towards women in their ranks. There are those like retired Gen. William Westmoreland, who feels "no man with gunpoint wants a woman to fight his battles." There are also those like Brig. Gen. Cecil Neely, who says that his men "think the women are pretty; they like to have them around."

Since the defeat of the ERA, the Pentagon has backed away at the rights of those women who actually want to be part of the military. They ordered 6500 women to be reduced to the number of female volunteers they'll accept, and made 23 more jobs of limited. That will add to more than 1,000 women a year in the next five years. These women will no longer be allowed to become carpenters, masons, electricians or engineers because, we are told, those jobs are "combat-related."

At the same time, they are now asking for the right to draft women who don't want to be part of the military. I. I. Col. Tom Schumann, the department director for health manpower, says frankly, "To us, it's just a need. When Management and Budget at the end of April and then submitted to the Congress as part of the defense legislative package. It would be ironic if the Reagan administration -- hostile to the F and the R and the A -- as the first to get a law passed that forced women to register for the draft. Who was it who said that women would get equal responsibilities before they got equal rights?"

Not me. And I've got the teeth marks on my tongue to prove it. General other folks at DOD made a special distinction: Nurses, they said, were not combat-related. They should tell this to the Army and Navy nurses of other wars, especially 100 nurses who were prisoners of war for three years during World War II or the female veterans of Vietnam.

This proposal for the medical draft was brought before professional organizations like the American Medical Association and the American Nursing Association in January. The nursing association is planning to take a stand some time next week.

If all goes according to plan, the medical draft will be submitted to the Office of Management and Budget at the end of April and then submitted to the Congress as part of the defense legislative package.

Who was it who said that women would get equal responsibilities before they got equal rights? Not me. And I've got the teeth marks on my tongue to prove it.

Ellen Goodman writes for the Boston Globe.

Soviet satellite docking is successful

BY KIRSTEN O. LUNDBERG
United Press International

MOSCOW — A Soviet satellite Thursday docked with the unmanned Salyut 7 space station in what could be a major step toward keeping men in space permanently.

The official Tass news agency said that Cosmos-143, launched March 2, was carrying equipment and cargo. Western space experts believe the satellite will function as an extra room, such as a laboratory, for the station. They also predicted that the Soviets will launch another crew shortly.

The Soviet space program has long been studying the effects on the human body of prolonged space living, and Soviet cosmonauts have repeatedly broken their own space endurance records. Cosmonauts Anatoly Berezovoy and Valentin Lebedev set the latest record of 211 days in space when they returned to Earth Dec. 10.

Anatoly Alexandrov, president of the Academy of Sciences, said at a press conference in January that scientists have found no long-term ill effects from space flight.

"Extension of the durability of man's stay in outer space up to seven months has not led, as compared with flights of lesser durability, to any qualitatively new functional changes in the cosmonauts' organism. This is a pointer to the maturity of space medicine," he said.

Deputy Flight Director Viktor Blagov noted after Lebedev and Berezovoy's return from Salyut 7 that long flights are not an aim in themselves.

What scientists want, he said, is to test the capabilities of the Salyut station, to try methods of dealing with weightlessness and to create an "extraterrestrial industry" based on chemicals and compounds grown in space.

The Salyut 7 was launched in April 1982 and three crews lived on it before the end of the year.

Pope ends 8-day pilgrimage

ROME (UPI) — Pope John Paul II returned Thursday from a grueling eight-day pilgrimage to Haiti and Central America where he appealed for an end to war, poverty, repression and injustice.

The pope was welcomed at Clamping airport by Polish Primate Cardinal Jozef Glemp and the two men were meeting in the evening to discuss details of John Paul's second trip as pontiff to his native Poland in June.

The Polish government announced Wednesday the pope would be visiting Poland from Feb. 16-22 and the Vatican spokesman, the Rev. Romeo Panfili, said that was "probably correct."

Bishop Luigi Poggi, the Vatican's special envoy for eastern Europe, flew to Poland Thursday for meetings with church and government officials. The pope arrived in Rome after a nine-hour flight from Port-Au-Prince, Haiti. He was driven to the papal retreat at Castel Gandolfo south of the capital immediately after his airport reception.

"It was a great experience for me," the pope told reporters traveling with him shortly before the plane landed.

"I think for you and for me Central America has become more of a reality, more close. I would say I would return with pleasure," he said.

The pope declined to answer specific questions about the trip saying only, "One must reflect and clear up some aspects."

John Paul, appearing in excellent condition despite the pace of the 18,000-mile journey that took him to eight countries in as many days, thanked reporters for being with him "on a trip that was not easy."

In Haiti, as in Nicaragua and El Salvador, the government leaders tried to use the pope's visit to their political advantage.

In his welcoming address to John

Paul Wednesday, Haiti's president-for-life, Jean-Claude Duvalier, described Haiti as a haven of justice and tranquility in a world of turmoil.

But at a mass shortly after arriving in the Caribbean nation, the pope appealed for an end to injustice, repression, poverty and illiteracy -- all of the excesses international rights groups have accused the Duvaliers of perpetuating.

In El Salvador Sunday, the Salvadoran president took the occasion of the pope's presence to announce elections in 1983.

In Nicaragua, the pope was subjected to two long and stinging anti-American speeches by Daniel Ortega, coordinator of the Marxist-dominated Sandinista junta.

The Sandinistas later stage-managed a papal mass in Managua by filling up areas of a square with chanting revolutionaries who continuously interrupted John Paul.

You are invited to see and hear the inspirational...

British spy dead at 69

MOSCOW (UPI) — Donald Maclean, the British spy who turned over to Russia some of the West's most valued atomic secrets, has died at the age of 69, Soviet sources said Thursday.

Maclean, who with Kim Philby and Guy Burgess formed one of the most famous spy rings in history, had been suffering from cancer and was hospitalized in December with possible pneumonia.

He died in his apartment sometime this week, the sources said, but they gave no other details.

Maclean was one of five major Russian spies recruited among the British upper middle class intelligentsia at Cambridge University before the war when the young privileged tended to regard communism as the wave of the future.

After helping the Soviets gain on the American lead in hydrogen weaponry, Maclean escaped to Russia on May 25, 1951, with Burgess, a Foreign Office colleague who was also a spy and, as it happened, also a homosexual.

They were joined there by master spy Philby, who brazened it out in Britain until 1963 as the counter-espionage net closed on him and he defected.

It was not until 1990 that "the fourth man" was unmasked and he turned out to be Anthony Blunt, one of the world's leading art experts and an adviser on art to Queen Elizabeth.

Blunt was not prosecuted because of information he had given western spy catchers. And "the fifth man," his identity never disclosed, is believed to have been granted asylum in the United States for the same reason.

Diplomat is accused spy

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union said Thursday KGB secret police agents had caught Richard Osborne, a U.S. Embassy staff member, "red-handed" using a spy radio and he had been ordered expelled from Russia.

The U.S. Embassy and the State Department in Washington refused to comment on the charges.

The KGB said Osborne was taken into custody briefly on Monday while he was working with a radio capable of relaying secret messages via U.S. antennas.

Osborne also had with him "handwritten notes" on "paper that dissolves quickly in water," the KGB said in a statement published by the government newspaper Izvestia and the official Tass news agency.

"Richard Osborne has been declared persona non grata for actions incompatible with diplomatic status," the Soviet report said.

Osborne was released after his arrest and was seen at the embassy all week.

The chief U.S. spokesman in Moscow confirmed that Osborne had been ordered to get out and said he was "in the process of making his plans to leave" with his wife and two daughters, aged 6 and 8. There was no word on how much time the Soviets were giving the Osbornes to leave.

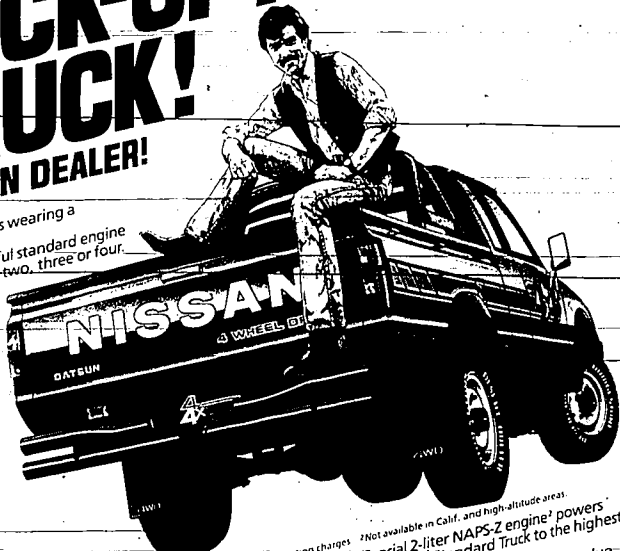

The State Department said only Osborne was to leave Moscow.

A soft-spoken man in his 30s, Osborne was listed on the embassy personnel roster as a first secretary in the economic department. He arrived in Moscow in August 1982.

Here they come. A whole new line of trucks wearing a whole new name: Nissan. Check 'em out. You'll find the most powerful standard engine in the class. You'll find new roominess to seat two, three or four. You'll find double-wall bed construction and brawny 5-speed overdrives. You'll find why more truckers drive Nissan-built compact pickups than any other. Right now you'll find 9.9 Annual Percentage Rate financing on every new Nissan Truck!

ONE HUNK-OF-AN ENGINE.
The most power of any standard engine in its class.
• New 2.4-liter NAPPS-Z hemi-head engine delivers more horsepower and torque than Toyota, Chevy S-10, Ford Ranger and everyone else.
• 5-speed overdrive manual transmission standard — on all models.

ONE HECK-OF-A CAB.
Seat 3 in a conventional cab, 4 in the King Cab.
• More hiproom than Chevy S-10 or Toyota.
• More headroom and legroom than in any Nissan-built truck ever.
• The original King Cab: up to 9 cubic feet of extra inner space for safe storage and jump seats.

ONE HECK-OF-A SAVER.
Nissan MPG Standard.
43 31 EPA EST MPG
$5,995
Use estimated mpg for comparison. With standard 5-speed manual transmission. Actual mileage may differ depending on speed, trip length and weather. Heavy mileage will probably be less.

ONE HUNK-OF-A BODY.
Double-wall construction
• Double steel walls (except MPG Standard). Not in Toyota.
• Heavy-Duty Long Bed hauls a one-ton payload... more than Toyota, Chevy S-10, Ford Ranger.

ONE HECK-OF-A-HUNK-OF-A 4X4.
• On-demand 4-wheel drive. Shift from 2WD to 4WD High at the flick of a stick w/out stopping. Missing from Toyota.
• Highest minimum ground clearance. Higher than any other compact pickup.
• Wide clearance independent front suspension for a smooth, level ride.

9.9% FINANCING ON NEW NISSAN TRUCKS.

Lowest factory sponsored truck financing. Ends March 31, 1983. Annual Percentage Rate Financing available to qualified buyers at participating dealers.

OPEC leaders less sure of agreement

LONDON (UPI) — OPEC failed again Thursday to reach an agreement on lowering its oil prices and limiting production despite earlier optimism that an accord to prevent a brutal pricing war was imminent.

"We will meet tomorrow," Venezuelan Oil Minister Humberto Calderon Berti said. Other ministers said they would try to bridge the remaining differences among OPEC's 13 member nations before a full cartel was set on the verge of approving a cut in its $34-a-barrel base oil price.

Asked if an accord was near, Yamani said: "I think we have one."

But on the eighth day of fierce bargaining, OPEC's 13 ministers were careful to avoid saying there was a full or formal agreement on a pricing and production package to prevent a world oil price crash.

"We had a general understanding on price, but we need to finalize the problem on (production) quotas," said Calderon Berti.

Sources close to the talks said the bitterly divided Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries appeared ready to drop its base price by $5 to $29 a barrel. Each $1-a-barrel decline in world oil prices theoretically translates into a savings of 2.3 cents a gallon for the motorist and home-heating oil user.

But Calderon refused to comment on the price pact reached Wednesday.

Sources said the OPEC ministers were discussing a compromise that would keep the cartel's 1983 production ceiling at 17.5 million barrels a day, but limit output to 16 million barrels daily in the second quarter to erase some of the global oil glut and defend the new price.

Calderon said the production ceiling would have to be set quarterly.

OPEC output has sunk to about 13.5 million barrels a day from a record 31 million barrels daily in 1979.

Carter's visit protested by angry Palestinians

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Former President Jimmy Carter, in a sharp rebuke of the Begin government, said Thursday President Reagan's Middle East peace plan is compatible with the Camp David accords.

For the second straight day, Palestinians in Israeli-occupied lands threw rocks and burned tires to protest Carter's visit. The former president earlier met in occupied Gaza with Rashad Shawaa, the deposed mayor of Gaza.

Carter, granted an honorary degree by Tel Aviv University for helping Israel and Egypt make peace under the Camp David framework, said a comprehensive peace demands justice for Palestinians.

"In my opinion, perhaps not shared by all of you, the recent initiative put forward by President Reagan is compatible with the principles and terms of U.N. Resolution 242 and the Camp David accords," Carter said.

The Reagan plan advocates a Palestinian entity linked with Jordan for the 1.2 million Palestinians in the occupied West Bank and Gaza strip. It also demands a freeze on Israeli settlements in occupied lands.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin rejected Reagan's proposal a day after they were unveiled last Sept. 1. He said the plan deviated sharply from the framework for peace developed at Camp David and represented a significant threat to Israeli security, if implemented.

Election before negotiations, say trustees

KATE LOPEZ
Times-News correspondent

KIMBERLY — The Kimberly school board upheld an earlier decision not to negotiate with the Kimberly Education Association until the organization holds an election.

The board wants the KEA — which has requested formal contract negotiations for the first time — to prove it is the only group that represents Kimberly teachers.

Board members made their decision at Wednesday night's school board meeting. In a letter written Jan. 12, the president of the KEA, Dale Stopperan, had requested that the board negotiate with the KEA.

The board discussed the request in an executive session and took it under advisement. Then at the board's February meeting, again in executive session, members decided to request verification of the KEA's claim to be the legal representative of the teachers, for the purpose of contract negotiations.

In a letter dated Feb. 11, the board told the teachers that before any negotiations take place, an election must be held.

"There will be a representative chosen from the school board and from the Kimberly Education Association, to establish a procedure for the conduct of the election, which will verify if, in fact, a local educational organization does or does not exist for the professional employees," the board wrote in its letter. "An election judge will be selected by both groups, and the form of the ballot will be approved by the KEA and the board."

In that letter, the board named George Naumann Jr. as its representative.

In response, Stopperan wrote an additional letter to Keith Jensen, the chairman of the board. In that letter, he said the KEA was the only organization that has requested negotiations with the Kimberly school board.

He also said that the KEA had collected authorization cards from 41 teachers in the district, which would allow the organization to negotiate in their behalf.

However, in accordance with its letter of Feb. 11, the board upheld Wednesday night its decision that an election be held.

Stopperan said Wednesday, "An election really doesn't bother me, except that we only have 10 weeks of school left and a procedural agreement and contracts to negotiate for next year."

Also at Wednesday's meeting, the board decided that students living outside of the school district will be charged tuition if they want to attend school in Kimberly.

These students will be admitted to the district based on:

- The approval of the superintendent.
- Maintenance of recommended class size.
- The availability of supplies and facilities.
- If the students pose no discipline problems.

The policy will not be retroactive. Tuition for out-of-district students currently enrolled will be waived.

The board set tuition at $46.55 per month for elementary students and $66.16 per month for secondary students.

Planners get head start on proposal

By HARRIET GUTHERTZ
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Tracing paper, triangles, colored markers and calculators were scattered around a Twin Falls High School classroom Thursday, as architects started work on a proposed elementary school and a gym expansion project.

Clyde Weber, a Boise-based architect, brought his Design West office to Twin Falls on Wednesday, to let people know what kind of buildings they will be buying if they approve a $4 million bond issue on April 19.

He also wanted residents to tell him what they wanted in a new school.

The Design West personnel set up their drafting boards Wednesday morning. They will be on hand until this afternoon. Approximately 30 people visited the room Wednesday, and 12 more had stopped in to chat by Thursday noon.

Michael Quesnell, a member of the citizens committee that is promoting the bond issue, suggested that the heating systems of both buildings be designed to allow easy conversion to geothermal energy.

He also wanted to know if the earth berming planned for the elementary school would necessitate a lot of digging if the building were to be expanded.

Weber took Quesnell through the plans, explaining that Design West would look into a geothermal heating system and that earth sheltering would not hinder remodeling.

Design West, which specializes in energy-efficient buildings, is planning a 26-room elementary school for a site near Robert Stuart Junior High School, at an approximate cost of $3 million. The school would include a passive-solar heating system to lower heating costs, Weber said.

Sawtooth Elementary and Cleary Junior High, the two newest schools in the Twin Falls system, were built with conventional construction techniques, and they are the least energy-efficient buildings in the district, Weber said.

The new elementary, which would be based on a school that is under construction in Tazan, Utah, would feature a long, narrow floor plan, with the longest sides facing north and south. That type of layout maximizes the southern exposure needed for effective solar heating, Weber said.

The gym project would involve building a gym at the high school and remodeling the present locker rooms. The new gym, which would be used for physical-education classes, would cost around $1 million and have half the floor space of the current gym.

All citizens, even those who are against the bond issue, are invited to have a look at the drawings and models, Weber says. The Design West crew will be working at the high school until 4 p.m. today.

Irrigators ask for legislation

They want Idaho Power's water rights to be subordinate

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

BURLEY — The executive vice president of the Idaho Irrigation Pumpers Association supports legislation that would subordinate Idaho Power's water rights to those of irrigators — even though it might result in higher electricity bills.

At the organization's annual meeting in Burley on Thursday, Sheriff Chapman called on members to lobby their state representatives for such legislation.

Chapman said a recent Idaho Supreme Court decision that grants Idaho Power the right to 8,400 cubic feet of water per second at Swan Falls Dam threatens to put between 100,000 and 200,000 acres of existing developed agricultural land out of business.

"This is an impact we cannot withstand," he said.

The court decision threatens every irrigator who taps into either the Snake River or the Snake-Plain Aquifer, he said.

And the irrigation association cannot wait two or three years for the outcome of a court challenge to Idaho Power's water right to be resolved, he said.

Irrigation pumpers must "put all our eggs in one basket," Chapman said.

An all-out effort must be made to pass a bill that is pending in the House of Representatives, he said. That bill would subordinate all of Idaho Power's rights to Snake River water above a minimum 3,300 cubic feet per second to irrigation, according to Chapman.

He said the Supreme Court ruling has "created havoc across southern Idaho."

In the past, he said, Idaho Power had agreed to subordinate its water rights to those of irrigators voluntarily.

But a suit brought by a group of Blaine County farmers tested that principle, and led to the current Supreme Court ruling, he said. The suit alleged that the power company was overcharging its customers because it had not protected its water rights.

This suit was "shortsighted," Chapman said, because it has resulted in a tremendous "windfall" for the power company at Swan Falls.

Two remain jailed in restaurant theft

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — Two days after the mysterious closing of a Kimberly restaurant, authorities reported Thursday they had recovered most, but not all, of the equipment that was taken from the establishment.

And two Twin Falls men were in the Elko County, Nev., jail, pending extradition to Twin Falls, on charges stemming from the incident.

Tim Carey, 19, and Anthony Ordez, 40, both of 1887 Sigrid Ave., were arrested in Nevada, where they allegedly were found in possession of two stolen rental trucks. Both have been charged with grand theft in Twin Falls. Those charges were filed by Curt's Car Care Center, 1811 Addison Ave. E., the owner of the trucks.

An Elko County sheriff's deputy said the defendants have agreed to waive extradition to Twin Falls.

The "two trucks" reportedly contained equipment taken from Paciglacci's restaurant, 190 N. Main St. in Kimberly, early Tuesday.

In a related development Thursday, one of the restaurant's creditors, Twin Falls Bank and Trust, obtained a court order, giving it possession of the restaurant's equipment.

The bank claims the restaurant's owner — John Savage of 1887 Sigrid Ave., Twin Falls — failed to make his monthly payment on a $15,000 loan. That fact, coupled with the disappearance of Savage and the equipment, convinced the bank that it was in an insecure position, according to documents filed Thursday with the Fifth District Court. The bank is seeking authority to sell the equipment to pay off the loan.

No criminal charges have been filed in connection with the removal of the equipment from the restaurant.

Police believe that Savage — a former blackjack dealer in Jackpot, where he has been charged with gaming violations — was responsible for the disappearance of the equipment. But Savage's whereabouts are unknown, they say.

"At this point, we still have it under investigation," said Kimberly police Chief Jim Campbell. "I have nothing definite at this point."

Savage had dissolved his partnership in the restaurant with Kimberly A. and Terrel Conway of Kimberly.

Mrs. Conway indicated Thursday that Savage had agreed to buy their share of the establishment.

Chamber of Commerce supports $4 million school bond issue

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce has voted to support the proposed $4 million school bond issue.

"The progress of a community reflects itself in the school system," Curtis Eaton Jr., a Chamber of Commerce director, said Thursday. Busnessmen look at a community's school system before locating here, and a good school system will help Twin Falls attract the businesses it wants, he said.

The bond election will be held April 19. If successful, the money raised would be used to build a new elementary school near Robert Stuart Junior High School and to remodel and expand the high school gym.

The chamber's board of directors voted to endorse the issue after a study of the Twin Falls school system, according to Mike Dolton, the chamber's executive director.

Alcoholic center takes on brand new name; it's now Port of Hope

TWIN FALLS — What's in a name? Plenty, especially if the name offers a clue to identity.

On April 1, Magic Valley Alcoholic Recovery Center will change the name of its facilities to Port of Hope.

Since many companies and agencies contain the words "Magic Valley" in their names, the alcoholism drug-treatment program was being confused with other entities, said Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, says Barry Meyers, the center director.

The non-profit corporation still will be called Magic Valley Alcoholic Recovery Center, but its individual facilities will switch to the name Port of Hope, Meyers says.

He reported in Twin Falls, the agency has residential treatment centers in Twin Falls and Caldwell.

And there are programs for outpatient treatment in Twin Falls, Hillyer, Burley, Mountain Home, Payette, Emmett, Nampa and Caldwell, Meyers says.

The Caldwell facility, located on the College of Idaho campus, already is using the new name.

The agency employs 39 persons, serves 15 counties and on any given day, treats 300 to 350 persons, Meyers says.

Next month, signs with the new name will begin appearing in Twin Falls and elsewhere. The stationery already has been changed.

"Magic Valley Port of Hope is a positive name."

In a way, the name is appropriate because the center's programs are a "port of hope" to those with alcohol and drug problems, he says.

A 'fair' change from cotton candy Valley residents get 'healthy' agenda

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Instead of cotton candy and scary rides, there will be health information, computer diet analysis, weight screenings and more, available at several Health Fairs scheduled this spring in the Magic Valley.

A national program, Health Fair, is a free screening clinic, designed to promote education in personal health and safety. In this area, the program is being sponsored by various health-related and civic groups.

Health Fair services are open to anyone 18 or older.

According to the coordinators, the events will provide an opportunity to determine how healthy our living habits are — and how to change those that aren't.

The Twin Falls Health Fair will be held Friday and Saturday, March 25 and 26, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the College of Southern Idaho gym.

Advance registration will begin this Monday through Friday, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., at the CSI Taylor Administration Building, at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, and at senior-citizen centers in Twin Falls, Kimberly, Buhl and Filer. Also, on next Friday, March 18, advance registration will be offered from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Blue Lakes Mall, the Bon Marche and the YFCA in Twin Falls.

Although not mandatory, advance registration will prevent delays at the door on the day of the event, according to coordinators.

A new service that will be offered this year at the Twin Falls fair and others will be computer diet analysis. A list of what you've eaten for the past 24 hours is necessary and should be brought along. The service will be located at the nutrition-learning center.

Anyone interested in taking a comprehensive blood test at the fair must fast for eight hours prior to the test. Blood will be screened for diabetes, kidney and liver disease, gout and cholesterol, among other things. Water, black coffee or black tea is allowed during the fast. There will be a $10 fee for the blood work.

Free screenings that test vision, blood pressure, glucoesa, body flexibility, feet, pulmonary function, hearing, anemia and other functions also will be available.

In addition, educational information on cancer, arthritis, substance abuse and other health problems will be found at the fair.

On March 25, sign-language interpreters will be on hand to assist hearing-impaired persons. Spanish-speaking interpreters will be on duty March 26.

CSI, the hospital and other civic groups are sponsoring the Twin Falls program.

Similar fairs will be held in other Magic Valley communities.

The Jerome County fair, sponsored by St. Benedict's Hospital, will be held next Saturday, March 19, in the merchants building at the Jerome County Fairgrounds from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

For more information on this fair, call Max Long at 324-4301, extension 250.

On March 26, a Health Fair will be held in Rupert, at the Civic Auditorium, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Advance registration is being held at Minidoka Memorial Hospital through next Friday, March 18, call Mary Bell Anderson at 436-0481 for further details.

On April 9, Health Fairs will be held in Burley and Glenns Ferry.

The Burley fair will be held in Ponderosa Inn. See HEALTH on Page A8

Burglary suspect in jail
 TWIN FALLS — A 26-year-old Buhl man remained in the Twin Falls County Jail on Thursday, following his arrest in connection with the burglary of a downtown Twin Falls drugstore.
 Gwendolyn Kevin Nevil, of Route 3, Buhl, was arraigned in Fifth District Magistrate Court in Twin Falls on first-degree burglary charges.
 Twin Falls police allege that he burglarized Sav-Mor Drugs, 127 Main Ave. W., on Wednesday. According to documents filed with the court, Nevil was arrested 10 minutes after police responded to the store's burglar alarm at 8:35 p.m.
 Police reported seeing two subjects leaving the store. Nevil, who was found three blocks away, matched the description of one of the subjects, police said.
 Bail has been set at $3,000, and the public defender has been appointed to represent Nevil, who has requested a preliminary hearing.
 Documents filed with the court indicate that Nevil was free on bond, following his arrest for a Buhl drugstore burglary last month.

Featherston hearing April 5
 GOODING — A preliminary hearing is scheduled for April 5 in Fifth District Magistrate Court in Gooding County for Dan Lee Featherston. He has been charged with battery with intent to commit a serious crime, first-degree burglary and two counts of aggravated assault, all felony charges.
 Featherston requested a preliminary hearing when he was arraigned in Gooding on Feb. 8 on the various charges. Sheriff's officers have said the charges stem from an incident in December that occurred southwest of Wendell.
 The defendant was arrested in Elko, Nev., on Feb. 6 and returned to Gooding. He is free on $25,000 bond.

Murder suspect still wanted
 BURLEY — A Burley man will be sentenced next month, following his admission that he was an accessory to the Feb. 19 fatal shooting of Erasmo Garcia Jr.
 Burley police, meanwhile, are seeking the man's brother on a first-degree murder warrant.
 The brother, Tjerina, 25, a Mexican national who was living in Burley at the time of the shooting, pleaded guilty last week to being an accessory to the crime, according to Al Barrus, the Cassia County Prosecutor. The charge means Tjerina was involved in the shooting "after the fact," he said.
 Tjerina, who turned himself in to police on Feb. 22, previously was charged with being a principal in the shooting. But as the facts became known, the charges were reduced, Barrus said.
 Currently out on $10,000 bond, Tjerina will return to Fifth District Court on April 1 for sentencing. The maximum sentence is two years in prison. Barrus said.
 Tjerina's brother, Leonel, no age available, is still at large and suspected of shooting Garcia, according to Burley police.

Murtaugh to take park bids
 MURTAUGH — Murtaugh officials will take bids on the maintenance of the municipal park.
 City clerk Janine Bennett said several individuals have expressed an interest in the job, which includes mowing, watering and cleaning the ditches.
 Bids will be accepted at City Hall.

Contract renewing postponed
 CASTLEFORD — The Castleford school board has postponed renewing teachers' contracts until a later date, according to Superintendent Edward Schenk.
 Under state law, school districts have until April 10 to send out letters of intent to their teachers, but a bill pending in the Legislature would extend that deadline by a month. The board thinks the bill will pass and is delaying the letters, Schenk said.
 At Tuesday night's monthly meeting, the board was scheduled to discuss the possibility of holding another bond-issue election. If raise funds for a new high school and vocational-agricultural building, but it tabled the matter.
 The bond issue failed in October, and board members prefer to wait until the economy improves before trying again. Schenk said. Next fall could be a possibility, he said.

Blaine school board to rehire
 HAILEY — The Blaine school board has voted to rehire all continuing-contract teachers, contingent on the successful passage of an override levy, according to Superintendent Richard Jones.
 All teachers with four or more years of service will be eligible to have their contracts renewed.

Mauldin named Hecht's aide
 JEROME — A former Jerome resident, Glen N. Mauldin, has been named administrative assistant to U.S. Sen. Clec Hight, R-New Mexico.
 Mauldin, 52, the son of Etta Mauldin of Jerome and the late Owen Mauldin, will direct operations in Hecht's Washington, D.C., and Nevada offices, and he will function as the senator's chief aide.
 Mauldin served as Hecht's treasurer and campaign coordinator during his election campaign last fall.
 Mauldin is a certified public accountant, a private pilot and a licensed real-estate broker. He also is an expert on Nevada gaming, having served on the Gaming Control Board.

Singles hold potluck dinner
 TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Christian Singles group will hold a potluck dinner and social hour at 7:30 p.m. this Saturday at 1700 Dora Drive in Twin Falls. The day of the meeting was listed incorrectly in Wednesday's Times-News.
 Individuals attending the dinner are to bring a covered dish. For more information call, 733-3299 or 734-9158.

Membership drive ongoing for the irrigation pumpers

By DAVID MOFFAT Times-News Writer

BURLEY — Members of the Idaho Irrigation Pumpers Association heard at their annual meeting Thursday that the organization is in the midst of a membership drive that may bring it out of debt.
 They also heard that electricity-rate increases have slowed for the moment, but irrigators must remain watchful if they are to avoid accelerated increases in the future.

Shel Mooreman, president of the association, told a sparse gathering of members that — with help from the Idaho Public Utilities Commission — he had managed to acquire a current list of irrigators served by the Idaho Power Co.
 Sheri Chapman, the association's executive vice president, said he had begun using the list in a drive to expand the rolls of the organization and reduce its estimated $40,000 debt.

And Randall Budge, an attorney for the association, reported that the Utah Power and Light Co. has filed for only an 8.5 percent rate increase this year, and that Idaho Power may not file one at all.
 But, he warned, the current trend in setting electricity rates is toward applying "cost-of-service" standards. If applied to irrigators, this could result in an immediate 25 percent to 50 percent increase over what is charged other classes of customers, Budge said.
 Mooreman said the Idaho Power list would allow the organization to reach every irrigator in the utility's service area. A similar list already has been acquired from Utah Power and Light, he said.

 Chapman said he had spent the past months narrowing the list down to the actual number of irrigators it represents. He then sent out a mailing, requesting payment to the organization on the basis of 30 cents per horsepower of pumping capacity.
 Chapman, who was hired as executive vice president in July, and who also is executive director of the Idaho Water Users Association, said it would take "a significant effort" to catch up with the organization's debt, however.

And he said additional money will be needed if the association wants to add to its efforts to intervene in rate cases, lobby the Legislature and testify for irrigators at government hearings.
 The organization incurs considerable legal and consulting fees each year, he reported.

Budge reported that the association had helped hold a Utah Power and Light increase for irrigation pumpers to 15.83 percent this year. That increase went into effect Oct. 1.
 This represented a considerable victory, he said. Pressure is currently being brought to bear on the Idaho PUC to raise rates to irrigators more than to other classes of user, he said.
 The pressure is based on cost-of-service calculations, Budge said. Numerous studies presented to the PUC have shown that irrigators are charged a lower rate than it actually costs to provide them with electricity.
 But the association was able to convince the commission to look at factors other than cost of service, he said.

One of these was the depressed state of the farm economy.
 The association also was able to hold an Idaho Power rate increase to pumpers to 15.83 percent, he said. That increase went into effect at the end of February.
 The average irrigator was 12.83 percent. So again, irrigators fared well, he said.
 "But most people feel this is a short-term solution," Budge said. Eventually, the PUC may choose to use a cost-of-service criteria, an establishing rate increases for various classes of users, he said.
 At that point, he noted, irrigators should have developed a cost-of-service study of their own to make the others.

Budge attributed the slowing of electric-rate increases to the recession in the economy.
 In another matter, he said, he doubted that the association would be able to win a concession from Idaho Power to provide special rates for irrigators who agree to allow some of their power to be interrupted during periods of peak demand.

Utah Power and Light provides pumpers with such a discount, he said. In some cases, it can amount to a 54 percent reduction in rates. Darrell Larsen, of the University of Idaho Extension Service, said the difference in generating base of the two utilities is the reason Idaho Power is reluctant to provide the discount.
 Utah Power is a coal-plant based utility, and so, it can not exceed a certain fixed-load capacity.

Power

And it also has opened the way for Idaho Power to claim an un-subordinated right to water at five other dams along the Snake River, he said.
 Only 5,400 to 7,100 cubic feet of water per second actually passes the Swan Falls Dam site, he said. Granting a right to water "that is physically not there" gives the Idaho Department of Water Resources the authority to take whatever water resources are necessary to meet that right from upstream development, he said.

resolve this issue, however, and irrigation pumpers cannot do that long with the issue unresolved, he said.
 Chapman said several groups have joined together to ask the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission to insert a subordination clause into Idaho Power's federal license for its generating facility at Swan Falls Dam.
 But this is "grasping at straws," he said, since the federal government cannot be relied upon to bend to the wishes of the state.
 The state legislation, House Bill No. 276, is the best alternative in the long run, he said. But it is being resisted by Idaho Power and conservation groups, Chapman said.

absorb, but I think it's worthwhile, he said.
 If the bill passes, it also will raise two constitutional issues, he said.
 One is whether the state can subordinate water rights retroactively. The other is whether the state can subordinate water rights retroactively without granting compensation.
 But these risks are worth taking to keep existing agricultural land in production and to provide expansion of agriculture in southern Idaho, Chapman said.

This would include water in the Snake Plain Aquifer that is retrieved by irrigators using pumps, as well as water that is drawn off from the Snake River through canals.
 A legal question remains to be resolved, however, Chapman said. This is whether Idaho Power has abandoned some of its rights by using discounted electric rates to encourage new irrigation-pumping projects.
 It may take two to three years to Chapman estimates that if the bill is passed, it would cause a 17 percent increase in Idaho Power's rates.

 This would happen because the power company would have to build new generating facilities to make up for its loss of water rights.
 "This is an impact we have to

Bad news on sales, OPEC sends stock prices tumbling

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bad news about retail sales and disappointment over OPEC sent stock prices tumbling in final hour several Thursday.

The Dow Jones Industrial average dropped 11.70 to 1,127.94, losing more than 11 points in the final hour of trading. The Dow, an index of blue chip stocks, rose 12.86 to 1,132.64 Wednesday.

The declines were not universal. Blue-chip over-the-counter stocks and American Stock Exchange issues hit new record highs.

Prices began the day up on the New York Stock Exchange, then fell back quickly as sellers tried to take advantage of the increase. Investors willing to see if the market would improve late in the day were disappointed, and prices began falling rapidly.

The NYSE index finished down 0.58 at 1,127.94. The price of an average share dropped 23 cents. Declines led average 85-734 among the 1,569 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Nation's borrowing up in January

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Monthly loan payments for Americans climbed in January as outstanding government credit expanded by $2.9 billion, the most in nearly two years. Federal Reserve System economists said Thursday.

The total was close to December's $2.7-billion increase, one sign that consumers were spending more during the recession. But the ingredients of the latest report showed a dramatic swing in loans from autos.

December auto credit grew by $1.5 billion, 66 percent of the total increase. January's growth in auto loans was only $233 million, just 8 percent of the total.

The figures, all adjusted to show changes beyond seasonal routines, supported — day after day — by the Commerce Department Thursday showing auto sales dropped a revised 3.9 percent in January. In February retail auto sales were down another 2.4 percent.

Instead of borrowing money for cars, consumers switched to a wide variety of personal loans, mainly at finance companies, making a miscellaneous category swell by a record $2.2 billion in January.

At the end of January a total of $342.2 billion in installment loans were outstanding.

The January increase in outstanding consumer installment credit of $2.9 billion was the most since March 1981's $2.97 billion, the Fed said.

The Fed included in the borrowing report for the first time a sampling of consumer interest rates up to now reported separately. The sampling shows the average 48-month auto loan available at commercial banks in February was at an interest rate of 14.8 percent. However the average rate for auto loans at finance companies and through auto dealers was 12.25 percent.

'Diversity bogs down state budget'

By ELLEN MARKS
United Press International

BOISE — One reason the legislative budget process has become bogged down this year is that key decisions are being made in party caucuses rather than among lawmakers as a whole, budget committee Co-

Chairwoman Kitty Gurnsey said Thursday.
Rep. Gurnsey, R-Boise, noted that this time last year the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee had completed its work on a new state budget, while the process this year has not begun yet.
She said Thursday differences of opinion have arisen on spending levels for the 1984 budget because lawmakers represent a diverse group of constituents with different ideas on how to handle the state's fiscal problems.

One breakthrough was reached Thursday when the House Republican caucus agreed to set public school funding from between $210 million and $215 million next year. The current school appropriation is $215 million.

But the GOP could not decide on an overall budget figure, leaving open the question of when JFAC would get back to work. Rep. Gurnsey said at an Idaho Press Club luncheon.

Immigration arrests 43 illegal aliens

BOISE (UPI) — The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service has arrested 43 illegal aliens and three others suspected of conducting a smuggling operation between Arizona and southern Idaho, investigator Harry Rhodes says.
Rhodes said officers from his agency, the Twin Falls Border Patrol office and the Idaho Falls Police Department seized two vehicles in connection with 40 arrests at Idaho Falls early Wednesday.

In a separate incident Wednesday, Rhodes said six alleged illegal aliens were arrested and another vehicle seized in Boise.
The three alleged smugglers, arrested at Idaho Falls, were accused of transporting illegal aliens to southern Idaho so they could seek jobs in agriculture or light industry, Rhodes said.
Meanwhile, the three suspected smugglers are in custody in Pocatello, where a federal judge set their trial Wednesday at $30,000 each.

Rhodes said most of the illegal aliens will be returned to Mexico, but as many as 10 might be held as witnesses in the smuggling case.
"This is the time of year that the influx of illegals comes in, and this is all a part of that," Rhodes said.
Rhodes identified the three alleged smugglers as Guadalupe Banda-Echevarria, Raul Quirino Hernandez and Gumerindo Quirino-Hernandez.

Kiddie porn legislation not just a deterrent

BOISE (UPI) — The House sponsor of a bill to outlaw "kiddie porn" says the Legislature is considering the proposal not a moment too soon.
Rep. Gary Paxman, R-Idaho Falls, said he originally believed the measure should be put on the books merely to serve as a deterrent to any future attempts to build a child-pornography racket in Idaho.

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," he said.
But he said during his House floor debate Thursday he recently learned that Boise-area authorities broke up a "kiddie-porn" ring — the first such occurrence of which he has heard in Idaho.

"Several people who were exploiting 16- and 17-year-old girls were arrested under existing statutes, but could not be specifically prosecuted for taking sexual advantage of the children," Paxman said.

The measure, which "breathed through the House 69-0 and now goes to the Senate, is aimed at those who produce and sell sexually oriented pictures and films of children.

The co-sponsor, Rep. Tom Cushman, R-Horseshoe Bend, said the bill was made possible by a 1982 U.S. Supreme Court decision that upheld controversial anti-child-pornography statutes in New York state.

He said the high court ruled that safeguarding children carries more weight under the Constitution than an adult's right to freedom of expression.
"The protection of children overrides any area of the First Amendment," Cushman said.

PCB laundry bill may be charged to state

BOISE (UPI) — The state might end up paying part of the bill for cleaning up a PCB dump in Pocatello, a U.S. Environmental Protection Agency official informed an Idaho Senate panel Thursday.

Lynn McKee, EPA chief in Boise, told the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee the state will have to contribute 10-percent of the money necessary if officials determine the federal "Superfund" must be additionally tapped to mop-up the suspected cancer-causing liquid.

McKee said it's not yet known to what degree the disposal of 500 electricity-capacitors containing PCB has contaminated the Pocatello site. He said the EPA's "Superfund" and state matching money might not be required if a current investigation determines the environmental damage is not widespread.
The EPA already has allocated

$50,000 for initial work at the dump, a gravel pit at Pacific Steel-Hides-Furs Recycling, and the state Environment Division plans to drill test wells to determine whether the toxic substance has seeped in the water supply.

McKee said it's possible the cleanup eventually could cost tens of thousands of dollars, which would require additional "Superfund" appropriations and matching 10-percent contributions from the state.

The EPA official and Lee Stokes, head of the state Environment Division, apologized for not disclosing full details about the PCB deposit, saying a criminal investigation is under way.

Sen. Claitor Wertheimer, D-Mountain Home, wondered why the EPA could not force the company to clean up the capacitors and the inundated soil in the gravel pit.

Bill to ease law for clubs

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho senators decided Thursday to make it easier for civic and fraternal organizations to sell liquor by the drink at their meeting places.
Sen. Walt Yarbrough, R-Grand View, said the measure would bolster the fund-raising capabilities of charitable groups and would allow those clubs to sell liquor without engaging in the usually intense competition for a commercial license.

According to the proposal, organizations such as Elks and Lions' clubs and the Fraternal Order of Eagles could obtain a special license to dispense liquor to members and guests if they qualify for inclusion under the statute.
To qualify, a group must be recognized in at least 36 states, have a minimum of 50 dues-paying members and have operated as a local chapter for at least 10 years.

Under current law, such groups must either have their affairs catered by a commercial license-holder, obtain a permit for a particular event or buy a license like those held by bars and lounges.

Yarbrough said state law restricts the issuance of commercial licenses to one for every 1,500 residents. Those permits can be sold for up to $80,000, he added, putting them out of reach for most civic groups.

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE OF EMERGENCY RULE-MAKING AND NOTICE OF INTENT TO REGULATE
In compliance with Sections 67-5203(b) and 67-5204(b)(2), Code, notice is hereby given that the Department of Health and Welfare, State of Idaho, is instituting emergency procedures for rule-making. The action under Code Number 1930-4301 involves the adoption, amendment, repeal, and renumbering of rules governing FOOD STAMPS. Title 3, Chapter 4 Rules and Regulations of the Department of Health and Welfare. The action has been taken under the authority granted in Section 67-5203(b) and 67-5204(b)(2), Code, and 39-1061(i) Idaho Code, for the purposes of implementing the provisions of Public Law 97-253, 273.1, 273.2, 273.3, 273.4, 273.5, 273.6, 273.7, 273.8, 273.9, 273.10, 273.11, and 273.13 under Public Law 97-253 and 97-253, effective February 1, 1983.

Emergency rule-making is necessary because the failure to implement the February 1983 federally mandated policy change would deprive eligible households and subjects and subject loss of food stamps for eligible households residing in Idaho. The emergency rules are mandated under the 1981 and 1982 food stamp amendments or Public Law 97-253 through federal register amendment numbers 211, 233, 224, 235, and 236 published in November and December 1982.

The rules, which were adopted by the Department of Health and Welfare on the 28th day of January, 1983, and filed by the undersigned on the 29th day of January, 1983, were effective on the 1st day of February, 1983, and will expire at the end of one hundred twenty (120) days on the 31st day of May, 1983.

Interested persons may submit written comment regarding the proposed rules, and any individual or individual or individuals affected by the proposed rules is encouraged to submit information concerning the proposed rules to the undersigned on or before March 17, 1983.

Provisions for public hearings are waived as allowed by Section 67-5203(a)(4), Idaho Code, since the Department has no discretion as to the substantive requirements of the proposed amendment which is designed solely to comply with the provisions of Public Laws 97-253 and 97-253, 273.1, 273.2, 273.3, 273.4, 273.5, 273.6, 273.7, 273.8, 273.9, 273.10, 273.11, and 273.13 to reflect the February 1, 1983, changes to the Food Stamp program.

DATED this 7th day of February, 1983.
PAT FAWCETT, Administrator, Department of Health and Welfare, 450 West State Street, Boise, Idaho 83720.
PUBLISH: Friday, February 25, March 4, and 11, 1983.

Proposed for adoption, amendment, repeal, and renumbering, the rules governing the provisions of the Food Stamp program relating to: Household composition; Elderly or disabled household members; The requirements for a Social Security number for all household members; Verification of separate household status; Expedited services; Processing standards for waived interviews; Processing standards for expedited verification; Verification of Social Security numbers; Changes in Social Security numbers; Determining good cause for not providing a Social Security number; Disqualification of household members for failure to provide a request for a Social Security number; Determining eligibility of students; Nonexempt resources; Exclusion from resources; Income deductions; Determining household eligibility and benefits; Program of special benefits; Certification periods; Treatment of income and resources of disqualified household members; Sponsorship of aliens; Deeming sponsor's income and resources to sponsored aliens; Sponsored aliens' responsibilities; Overissuance due to incorrect information; Collecting claims against sponsors; Collecting claims against immediate reduction or termination of benefits.

Within the time limits specified below, any person can review the proposed rules in the DHW Administrative Procedure section or any of regional administrative offices of the Department. Copies of the proposed rules will be made available upon written request specifying the docket number, below, and a fee of ten cents (10¢) per page. Checks must accompany the request and be payable to the Department of Health and Welfare for the amount of $5.00.

Interested persons may submit written comment regarding the proposed rules, and any individual or individual or individuals affected by the proposed rules is encouraged to submit information concerning the proposed rules to the undersigned on or before March 17, 1983.

Provisions for public hearings are waived as allowed by Section 67-5203(a)(4), Idaho Code, since the Department has no discretion as to the substantive requirements of the proposed amendment which is designed solely to comply with the provisions of Public Laws 97-253 and 97-253, 273.1, 273.2, 273.3, 273.4, 273.5, 273.6, 273.7, 273.8, 273.9, 273.10, 273.11, and 273.13 to reflect the February 1, 1983, changes to the Food Stamp program.

Why not 2 berths for the Big Sky?

By MARV CLEMONS
Times-News sports editor

RENO, Nev. — Does the Big Sky Conference runner-up deserve a berth in post-season tournament play along with the league champion?

Such a berth has never been awarded to a team in the league's history, nor has the No. 2 team warranted a bid from the NIT folks.

Calling their league "much maligned and stereotyped by the nation's basketball experts," the coaches of the four teams in this year's Big Sky playoffs all feel this could be the year for the unprecedented NCAA double berth or NIT bid.

Nevada-Reno's Sonny Allen, Idaho's Don Monson, Weber State's Nell McCarthy, and Montana's Mike Montgomery gathered at Thursday night's pre-tournament press conference and stated their case for the runner-up to advance instead of just the automatic championship berth.

"It may be wishful thinking, but this league's got the best chance it's ever had," Monson told some 30 media people at the El Dorado Hotel and Casino in downtown Reno.

Monson noted that it's possible the league runner-up will have at least 20 victories.

"Twenty wins is not a criteria for selection, but it seems to be some magical figure the supposed-experts who pick the field look at," Monson said.

Weber State and Montana, who play tonight's second game at 10:37 p.m. (MST) are both 21-7 this season. Fourth-ranked Idaho puts its 20-7 record against No. 1 and host Reno's 17-10 ledger in the 8:07 p.m. tipoff.

McCarthy echoed Monson's feelings.

"The Big Sky Conference is a much better league than the WAC (Western

Idaho's Smith injures toe

RENO, Nev. — Idaho's hopes for third straight Big Sky Conference tournament title and attending trip to the NCAA playoffs may rest on the big toe of senior Kelvin Smith.

Smith, who sustained an ankle injury three weeks ago, re-injured that joint in practice Sunday and since has come down with what Coach Don Monson called "hurt toe."

"We've taken off all the bandages and told him he's okay and it doesn't hurt," Monson said with a wan smile. "But he's not as quick as usual and not playing as well as he's capable of."

The Vandals will meet host Nevada-Reno at 8:07 p.m. (MST) today to open the meet. Those teams traded home court decisions during the season. Weber State and Montana square off at 10:37 p.m. in the nightcap. Weber State trimmed the Grizzlies twice in conference play.

Athletic Conference) this year," he said.

The coaches pointed out victories by league teams against other conference powerhouses this season. Montana and Idaho both defeated and a Southwest Louisiana team that finished the regular season at 21-5.

In addition, Reno had a closing chance to defeat Nevada-Las Vegas and lost by one to a Rebel team that was ranked first in the nation during the second week of February.

"Hick, we beat Southwest Louisiana by 25 points (85-59) and nobody could believe it," Weber's McCarthy said. "Sports Illustrated called me three times to make sure the score was right and I had three coaches call me up and ask if they (Southwest) had left half of their team home."

The 52-team NCAA field will be selected by a committee Sunday in a daylong meeting at Kansas City. A computer, which compares the nation's teams and their schedules, will be used by that committee.

Monson had to send a list of 16 top West teams to the NCAA for the meeting. He ranked three Big Sky teams on that list, but says that doesn't mean a thing.

"It's all up to those experts back there in Kansas City who split hair in Reno," he said.

McCarthy and Allen both noted that this season might have been a "down" year for the teams in the western part of the nation, but not for the Big Sky. "We're the victims of a stereotype plus we're dwarfed by the Pac-10 and the WAC," McCarthy said. "There are several good teams in the West this year, but the Big Sky is at its best in the 12 years that I've been here. When I got in the league 12 years ago, if you had just one or two good players, you could win the league every year. But that's not true anymore. It's a very balanced and good conference."

Monson guided the Big Sky and his Vandals to all-time heights last season when Idaho made the NCAA

Alston, Kell elected

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — George Kell and Walter Alston, a pair of quiet men who rose to baseball heights unaccompanied by much fanfare, received the ultimate tribute Thursday when they were elected to the Hall of Fame by the shrine's Committee on Veterans.

Kell, a former Detroit Tiger third baseman whose consistent play reminded experts of former Detroit "mechanical man" Charlie Gehringer, was elected in his first year of eligibility by this committee.

Alston, who managed the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers for 23 years on consecutive one-year contracts, made it after being disappointed two consecutive seasons. The quiet man from Dartmouth, Ohio, had been a front-runner in both the 1981 and 1982 considerations by the committee but came away disappointed.

Both men were elected when they received at least 75 percent of the votes from the Hall of Fame's 18-member Committee on Veterans, 17 of whom were present today.

Kell, reached in Detroit by phone, was emotionally shaken when he heard the news that he had been put into the Hall of Fame by the Veterans Committee after never having come close to election by the BBWAA.

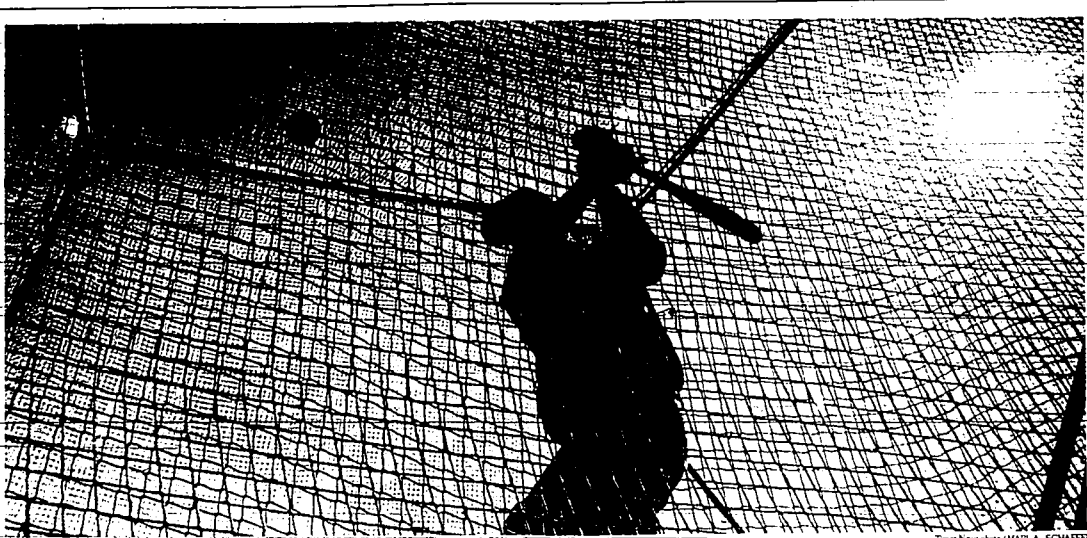

"This means so much to me," said Kell, fighting back the tears. "What does it mean, the special veterans committee got me elected? These are the players against whom I played. These are my peers, these are the sports writers who saw me play. It's as much an honor, if not more, than if I had gone in another way. I'm sure this will really be tomorrow."

"I guess this would be like winning four World Series in a row," said Alston, when contacted at Vero Beach, Fla. "I have many fond memories. Pennants and World Series stick out. To survive you have to tune in on good things and ignore the bad."

"Winning the Dodgers' first World Series in 1955 was so important and so were 1959 and 1963. This comes as a great surprise to me and I'm very grateful."

Kell played for the Tigers, Philadelphia Athletics, Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox from 1943 through 1957. He was an excellent defensive third baseman and had a .306 lifetime batting average.

Alston led the Dodgers to their only world championship in 1955 and a pennant in 1956 before the team moved to Los Angeles. In Los Angeles, he went on to lead them to world championships in 1959, 1963 and 1965. They also won pennants under Alston in 1966 and 1974.

Silhouetted against Thursday afternoon's brilliant sun, Twin Falls senior Brock Miller takes a swing in the Bruins' batting cage during baseball practice

Prep baseball season opens today

Pitchers key if Bruins are to continue success

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — During the 1981-82 scholastic sports season Twin Falls High School's football team slumped, the basketball team lost twice at the state tournament but the baseball team won the state consolation title.

Thus far, in '82-83, both the Bruins' football and basketball teams enjoyed remarkable campaigns, each finishing second in state. So does that mean it's the baseball team's turn to perform disappointingly?

The answer may not be discovered until district playoffs start in May. It certainly won't be ascertained today and Saturday, when the Bruins begin the season with four games in the Boise Valley Kickoff Tourney.

But, as is often the case, the people who provide the answer will likely be the pitchers.

"Finding kids who can throw isn't too tough, but finding pitchers who can throw strikes is another story," said Twin Falls Coach Bill Ingram, reciting a baseball truism.

The pitchers Ingram has found are largely unproven, at least on the varsity level. Victor Valdez started part-time last year and occasionally hurled well in relief. However, inconsistency accompanied most of his efforts.

Brock Miller has proven he has a strong arm through his performance in the outfield and at third base, but his pitching experience is limited primarily to American Legion ball.

Otherwise, Ingram and the Bruins have to hope that Nate Burke, Darrin Stuart and Scott Mallock can make smooth transitions from the junior varsity to the varsity level.

Should those five pitch adequately, Ingram believes the Bruins will be in good hands. "As few ballgames as we have in the spring, we should be able to get by with four or five kids," he said.

Offensively, Ingram feels the Bruins will eventually match their proficiency of last year, when their lineup included competent hitters like Todd Wiginton, Mike Federcio, Curt Thieman, Brett Semple and Lance Sellers, all of whom have graduated.

"Most of the juniors playing Legion ball last summer, and that's going to help us a lot," Ingram affirmed.

Minico, meanwhile, remains strong on mound

RUPPERT — A casual examination of this year's Minico baseball team might suggest that the Spartans might have fallen on hard times.

Last year's state A-1 champions lost several talented players to graduation, most notably catcher Cliff Hank's, second baseman Jeff Schow and shortstop Lynn VanEvery.

Additionally, Coach Rick Baumann, who had a lot to do with developing the Spartans' talent, left last fall to become baseball coach at Treasure Valley Community College in Ontario, Ore.

But new Coach Paul McCloy could have enough talent remaining to field one of the state's stronger teams, if only because Minico's pitching staff has been left practically intact. "It should be our bright spot," McCloy agreed. "For this early in the season, they're throwing pretty well."

With only Ed Beckstead gone from last year's contingent, Minico's starting mound trio will consist of left-hander Terence Smith, Miller, None owns tremendously overpowering stuff, but all pitch with guile not often seen in high schoolers.

From Peterman, Tom Vaughn and Gabriel Fuentes will be among Minico's corps of relief pitchers.

The Spartans' top position player is undoubtedly senior Dave Garro, who started last year at third base but will begin this season at shortstop. Joining Garro in Minico's infield are Rob Miller at third base, Greg Schow at second and Smith or Ferrin at first.

Johnny Miller will play left field whenever he's not pitching, with Joe Chavez in center. Right field, says McCloy, is still "up for grabs." Arlen Smith, a starting outfielder last year, will probably move to catcher, though it's likely that he'll return to the outfield periodically.

Minico's bench is stocked with the likes of Todd Winnill, Bernie Zamora, Todd Zimmerman, Greg Van Divier, Tim Vaughn and John Martinez.

Not all of a tournament's excitement is found on the floor

TWIN FALLS — You don't have to be sitting in on a tournament to get into the wilder side of it.

We refer to watching the state A-1 basketball playoffs last week while CSI was bowing out of the regional tournament locally.

We'd just finished watching twin rains with its seminal and called the Times-News to file the report. We were informed CSI had fallen ignominiously to Chemeketa. To say that CSI had lost to Ricks wouldn't have surprised us — team Chemeketa?

Later, after Meridian turned in its win, we learned that Ricks similarly had fallen prey to the ever-dangerous foes to the west.

Well, shame on CSI and Ricks and bully for Chemeketa and Lane. That's what athletics are all about.

But now is when the fun begins.

We were aware that interim president Jerry Meyerhoeffer was still in Boise, spending Wednesday through Friday working with the legislature concerning the "disconcerting budget problems."

On a chance, we tried and found Meyerhoeffer in his motel room and duly delivered the news. At that time, you must remember, it was thought that the team finishing highest in the regional, along with the money and inclination, would take the advancement step. In this case, the CSI-Ricks winner Saturday night, albeit as third place.

Meyerhoeffer wrestled with the incongruity of sending a third-place team on to (possibly) nationals where the tab is about $12,000. Finally, he said, it would be his recommendation to the board to allow it if things eventuated that way.

So, of course, it wasn't long before we could tell him that that only presented him with one more problem: the CSI and Ricks women were exactly in the same position in Albany, Ore., playing for third place behind two Oregon schools, which, logically, wouldn't send the women if they wouldn't allow the boys to go. The women's national playoffs are slated for Mississippi, so chalk up another $15,000 there.

"Oh, Lord, I've got to get home early tomorrow morning," said Meyerhoeffer, reaching for the telephone to call board member Dr. Thad Scholtes, who he knew would have been at the games.

And so, we left Meyerhoeffer in repose but hardly in the embrace of Morpheus.

Of course, all that was settled when the national body said, "Aln't no third-place teams going to show up here." (Some of them back there talk like that.)

It also left Chemeketa, which probably was as surprised by all of it as CSI and Ricks, to rue its decision of last spring to eschew post-regional competition. They fought that for several days before giving up the ghost.

Still, it's more than a healthy lesson for Ricks, CSI and the eastern brethren concerning any cavalier viewing of the western teams.

Along the way, we learned that Chemeketa funds its basketball program with coin games and machines on campus. This leads to the conclusion that the CSI season ticket sale is probably twice Chemeketa's total budget. That CSI's recruiting budget is probably 25 times as large as Chemeketa's. And the same is probably true of Ricks.

It's like the USS Nimitz being blasted out of the water by a PT boat. No, in actuality, it's the Nimitz being swallowed up by Pac-Man.

For the second — and unfortunately — last time we feel compelled to take a moment to discuss Elwood "Yogi" Behrens and his career. Behrens called it all off this week at Wendell High School and did it with style. He didn't throw any bricks or whippers or even a reason beyond "philosophical" differences between his and the new generation.

But there was a gap between Behrens and the fans of the Wendell community and it is known here that life hasn't been a pleasure for Yogi for a while now.

However, that's part of coaching. Inevitably, you're gone, voluntarily or helped out.

Still, we want it on the record that we feel over the years that Yogi has been consistently true to his beliefs, his school and, especially, his athletes.

He demanded much from his athletes but he worked himself harder. For 25 years we've seen Yogi "go to the wall" for his beliefs, for athletics in general and his athletes. We've seen him kicked in the face for it, too, and we've never seen him flinch.

But take this to the bank. If Yogi said he was going to do it, it got done.

One of his peers, one of the "new generation," summed it up well when he heard that Yogi was leaving it.

"I'm not going to comment on the coaching. Every coach has someone who feels he's doing it entirely wrong. But I loved going to Wendell for an athletic event. The gymnasium was always clean, the towels were in the locker room. In track, if he said it started at 1:30, it started there. He did all the little things — that's so many others don't do — very well. He ran a class program."

And now, so far as we are concerned, he's ended a class career.

Nicolette leads Bay Hill Classic

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Mike Nicolette rediscovered his putting game Thursday and carded a 5-under-par 66 to grab a two-stroke lead after the first round of the $350,000 Bay Hill Classic.

Nicolette, who has never won a PGA event during four years on the tour, played a near-flawless round. He birdied two of his first five holes and collected three more birdies on his second nine.

Nicolette recorded his round-leading score during the sunny, breezy morning session. Golfers who teed off in the afternoon weren't so fortunate as cold, blustery weather moved into central Florida and made par difficult.

Veteran Joe Innman, who also played in the morning, was second, two shots back at 68. Donnie Hammond, Pat McGowan and Mark McCumber were tied at 69. A handful of players, led by Seve Ballesteros and Bob Gilder, were bunched at 70.

Defending champion Tom Kite finished with a wind-blown 76. Jack Nicklaus, Tom Watson and host Arnold Palmer, who owns the Bay Hill course, all started well but lagged badly at the finish. Nicklaus checked in with a 1-over 72. Watson with a 73 and Palmer, who birdied his first hole, a 78.

Nicolette, 26, has survived only two qualifying cuts on the tour so far this season. He credited his putting with his stellar round Thursday.

"I putted very well," said Nicolette. "But I guess that would be normal for anyone shooting under par."

The average base salary in the league was $90,412.

The figures of the 1,630 players on the 28 NFL rosters were compiled by the NFL Players Association and obtained Wednesday by The Dallas Morning News.

The average Bronco had a base salary of $118,450. Second were the Los Angeles Rams, $110,470. Third were the Dallas Cowboys, $107,990.

The Colts, who have the worst record in the NFL over the past two seasons (2-2-1), averaged $92,465.

The union, as a result of the new collective bargaining agreement, is allowed to get involved in contract negotiations. It claims it can aid "the players" in evaluating your current salary and future offers from management.

The NFLPA figures are taken from contracts made available to them by the NFL office.

The figures are base salaries; they do not include signing or performance bonuses. They also do not reflect a strike-shortened nine-game season rather than the full 16-game season.

The average $90,412 base salary was up 14 percent from an NFLPA report of $79,592 in 1981. The league median salary was $75,000, which means half of the players made less than that amount.

Houston quarterback Archie Manning had the highest base salary,

Denver, Colts ride opposite ends of NFL salary scale

By GARY MYERS

By contrast, Herschel Walker of the United States Football League's New Jersey Generals is easily the top paid player in professional football. His contract included a $1.5 million signing bonus and $1 million in first-year salary, up from $1.3 million in 1981 and $1.6 million in 1982. He also has an interest in one of Generals owner J. Walter Duncan's oil wells.

Tony Dorsett, who last season became the first Dallas player to lead the National Football Conference in rushing, and Pittsburgh's Franco Harris tied for the highest salary among running backs: $350,000. The NFLPA report has Chicago's Walter Payton at $300,000, but with bonuses and incentives, he makes about $600,000.

Dallas' Randy White is the highest-paid defensive lineman in the league at $300,000. The No. 2 defensive lineman is the Jets' Joe Klecko, at $280,000. No. 3 is Ed Jones, also of the Cowboys, at $255,000.

The No. 2 money earner at quarterback was New Orleans' Ken Stabler at $450,000.

Dallas quarterback Danny White, who made $200,000, finished second in the NFC in passing and made the Pro Bowl. Ahead of him in salary were Joe Ferguson, Steve Bartkowski, Jim Plunkett, Ron Jaworski, Bert Jones, Craig Morton, Joe Montana, Jim Hart, Ken Anderson, Terry Bradshaw, Lynn Dickey, Vince Ferragamo, Richard Todd and Dan Fouts.

Cornerback Everson Walls, who led the NFL in interceptions his first two seasons — the only player in NFL history to accomplish that — was the lowest-paid Pro Bowl player. He earned $27,000, but turned down $80,000 in an attempt to renegotiate after his phenomenal rookie year. Denver's Louis Wright is the highest-paid cornerback at $230,000.

The average base salary of the 294 offensive linemen in 1982 was $89,704.

After Manning the top base salaries were Cleveland linebacker Tom Cousinios, at $500,000, and Stabler. The lowest-paid players were Atlanta rookie defensive back Mike Perko and Cincinnati linebacker Jeff Roberts, both at $22,000.

Following is a list of the salaries paid to 1982 National Football League first-round draft picks. The figures were compiled by the NFL Players Association and obtained by The Dallas Morning News.

1. Kenneth Sims, New England, $75,000
2. Johnnie Cooks, Baltimore, 110,000
3. Chip Banks, Cleveland, 140,000

Chicago claims fourth win in row

By United Press International

The Chicago White Sox hope they can get off to as quick a start in Chicago next month as they have in their spring home of Sarasota, Fla.

Rookie first baseman Greg Walker hit a two-run homer and Harold Baines was 3-for-4 with two doubles Thursday, lifting the White Sox to a 5-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds and improving their exhibition record to 4-0.

Starter Richard Dotson, who gave up one run in three innings of work, earned the win. Loner Mario Sojo yielded three runs in three innings, including Walker's third-inning home run.

Chicago took a 1-0 lead in the first on Baines' double, scoring Rudy Lu from second. The Reds tied the score in the second inning when Johnny Bench singled and scored on Paul Hasebe's 8th double.

Walker's home run made it 3-1 in the second. Chicago added two more runs in the seventh on RBI singles by Rusty Kuntz and Scott Fletcher.

Elsewhere:

- At West Palm Beach, Fla.: Andre Dawson hit two home runs while Gary Carter and Tim Lincecum had a homer apiece as the Montreal Expos routed the Atlanta Braves 14-7.
- At Dundenin, Fla.: The Toronto Blue Jays scored four runs in the bottom of the eighth inning off the wildness of pitcher Ron Darling to give them an 8-5 exhibition victory over the New York Mets. The Blue Jays, who trailed 5-4 going into the bottom of the eighth, had four walks, a hit batter, a single and a sacrifice fly off Darling, who pitched only the eighth-inning to lose the game.
- At Vero Beach, Fla.: veteran Steve Braun, a non-roster outfielder, stroked two doubles and knocked in three runs to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to an 8-6 exhibition victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.
- At Clearwater, Fla.: Jim Rice and Dwight Evans blasted home runs and four RBIs as the Red Sox routed Philadelphia to three hits to give the Red Sox a 3-1 victory over the Phillies.

spring training NOTES

who were playing their first exhibition game.

- At Lakeland Fla., non-roster infielder German Barranca hit two home runs and outfielder Larry Herndon drove in five runs as the Detroit Tigers won for the third time in four exhibition games, beating a split squad of New York Mets 13-6.
- At Yuma, Ariz.: Luis Salazar keyed a three-run first inning with a two-run single, helping the San Diego Padres open their exhibition season with a 4-1 victory over the San Francisco Giants. Eric Show, Andy Hawkins, Luis DeLeon and Gary Lucas limited the Giants to four hits.

- At Fort Myers, Fla.: The Kansas City Royals had their first exhibition game canceled by rain in 10 years. The Royals were scheduled to play the Pittsburgh Pirates; the game will not be rescheduled.
- In spring training news, second-year Boston Red Sox infielder Wade Boggs has reached a new one-year contract with the team, his attorney said Thursday. While refusing to disclose terms of the deal, attorney Tony Pennacchia said it was "the best contract given to anyone with one year's experience on the Red Sox."

Tarkanian named as west's best

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — An assistant basketball coach at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas told the story the other day that when the "Winds of War" was the talk of the country several weeks ago, head coach Jerry Tarkanian admitted he never heard of the television mini-series.

Of course, if either Al McGraw or Pat Bergin had a jump shot, Tarkanian would not have missed an episode.

Tarkanian was named the 1983 West Coast Coach of the Year Friday by UPI's panel of voters. Washington State's George Reveling, whose Cougars are battling UCLA for the Pac-10 crown, was a close second.

Tarkanian, completing his 10th year at the helm of the UNLV "Runnin' Rebels," is the winningest active major college coach on a percentage basis and the third-winningest of all time.

The short, sad-faced, 52-year-old Armentian, whose Long Beach State and UNLV teams have failed to win 20 games only once in 14 seasons, has never quite been able to get out from under the cloud that is his somewhat an "outlaw" coach.

The image was fostered in 1973 when he led Long Beach State to Las Vegas after compiling a 62-20 record over five-year span, a period when the 49ers never lost a home game. Shortly after he left Long Beach State, the California school was placed on probation by the NCAA.

Even before he had unpacked and dropped some of his wife Lois' china on the floor of his comfortable Las Vegas home, rumors began circulating that the NCAA had begun looking at UNLV with the aim of "getting" Tarkanian.

Whatever the truth of an NCAA vendetta, the Rebel basketball squad was slapped with a two-year probation after Tarkanian led UNLV to the NCAA final four in 1977.

In an unprecedented move, the NCAA ordered UNLV to fire Tarkanian, despite the fact most of the school's basketball major violations occurred during the coaching reign of Tarkanian's predecessor, John Bayer.

Tarkanian went to court and a Nevada District Court judge ordered UNLV to reinstate the successful coach.

All-Cross State cage choices

TWIN FALLS — Madison's 6-9 center Dan Conway was named Player of the Year, highlighting the boys All-Cross State basketball selections announced Thursday.

On the Cross-State first team were Kevin Hulse of Jerome, Randy Austin of Burley, Bob Dunn of Mountain Home, Trent Shippen of Rigby and Dan Spigman of Caldwell.

The second team included Gary Hulse of Jerome, Charlie Carter of Buhl, Greg Boyd of Burley, Todd Peterson of Rigby and Doug Lodge of Caldwell.

Honorable mention selections were Buhl's Mark Faling, Jerome's Bob Stone and Troy Prairie, Caldwell's Eric Wise, Madison's Bryce Rasmussen and Robert Jensen, Mountain Home's Mark Bingham and Rigby's Troy Shippen, Kay Hall and Mike Radford.

Elliot Anderson of Rigby was named Coach of the Year.

CSI to offer trapshooting

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho physical education department will offer a trapshooting class beginning March 21.

Instructor Lloyd Hardesty said the class will meet from 6 to 8 p.m. Monday and Wednesday at the Twin Falls Gun Club for six weeks. Hardesty said several experts at the Gun Club will assist with the class.

Cost of the course is $40. To pre-register call 733-9554, ext. 230.

Danielson stays with Lions

DETROIT (UPI) — Detroit Lions quarterback Gary Danielson signed a three-year contract with the club Thursday, agreeing to an offer matching one made to the NFL veteran by the USFL's Arizona Wranglers.

Details of the pact were not immediately available but it was reportedly worth between $200,000 to $275,000 per year for the seven-year Lions veteran.

Danielson has been the starting quarterback off and on since he joined the club. He lost the No. 1 job twice because of injuries, a knee injury in 1979 and a broken wrist in 1981. Eric Hipple usurped the job and started at quarterback for the last 10 games of 1981 and began the 1982 season as a starter.

Danielson's agent, Marvin... had been negotiating with the fledgling Wranglers and said Danielson was ready to leave the Lions, the quarterback said. "If the money's right."

Richard undergoes six hours of surgery

HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston Astros pitcher J.R. Richard underwent six hours of elective surgery Thursday to bypass a clogged artificial artery that leads to his left leg — his third major operation since suffering a stroke in 1980.

Dr. Williams S. Fields of the University of Texas medical school, Richard's chief physician, said the 33-year-old former All-Star right-hander came out of the operation in good shape.

"He's doing very well. There's good blood flow to the leg and very good pressure being observed in his foot," Fields said.

Richard, who is continuing a 2 1/2-year uphill climb to return to the major leagues, decided to undergo the latest surgery even though the doctors told him he would not need it except to pitch baseball again.

"He was never in any danger. Had it not been that he was a baseball pitcher, we wouldn't have done this at all," Fields said.

Fields said although the 4-inch dacron artery segment in Richard's lower left abdomen had clogged with blood clots, restricting primary blood flow into his left leg, the leg had developed adequate alternate blood flow.

Fields said the clotting that led to the operation Thursday had nothing to do with the clotting of a right shoulder artery which caused Richard's collapse July 30, 1980 during a practice at the Astrodome.

"The doctor said he did not know why the dacron graft, implanted by a University of California medical school team in San Francisco in October 1980, had clotted.

One of the two 4-inch dacron grafts placed by the California team remains in an artery going to his right leg and Fields said it was functioning perfectly.

"The California doctors took the two sections of natural artery — one from each leg artery — and used them together to bypass the damaged artery in Richard's right shoulder.

Fields said the surgery would sideline Richard for at least six weeks and would "detour" his hopes of pitching soon in a regular season game. Richard had been scheduled to pitch in pre-season games in Coalinga, Fla.

"The clumping of the dacron graft was not a signal that Richard faced added risk of future clots. Fields said Richard faced no greater risk of clotting than anyone else.

Observers have said this season may be Richard's last shot to return to the major leagues. His contract, which paid him $450,000 in 1982, runs out this year.

Richard suffered a major stroke July 30, 1980, that partially paralyzed his left side. Doctors performed emergency surgery in Houston to save his life. Richard then had the second operation in California to fix the shoulder artery.

Since then, Richard had spent two years averaging out of the playoffs and resultant weakening of muscles and last season pitched in some minor league games. But he has not come near his old form.

Sampson wins 3rd Naismith

ATLANTA (UPI) — For the third year in a row, the University of Virginia's Ralph Sampson has been named the winner of the Naismith trophy.

The Atlanta Tipoff Club gives the award to their choice of player of the year in college basketball. The award is named for Dr. James Naismith, the inventor of basketball.

John Steen, chairman of the club's committee for the Naismith awards, said Thursday Sampson "was so clearly the choice we had to make an announcement."

Steen said only one other player has won the award three times. Bill Walton of the UCLA won the award in 1972, 1973 and 1974, he said.

The award will be presented at a banquet April 7 at the Omni. Sampson, with a 19 point and 12 rebound per-game average, is the major reason Virginia has compiled a 25-3 record.

"It wasn't near to being close. He has proven time and time again this year, across the country, to everyone who has seen him play, that he is the top college player in the game," Steen said.

The Naismith trophy is the product of a season-long assessment by a 275-person panel that includes coaches and "at-large" members in addition to sports editors and sports writers.

Kea still termed critical

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Salt Lake Golden Eagles defenseman Ed Kea, a 10-year NHL veteran, remained in critical but stable condition Thursday after four hours of surgery to drain a dangerous buildup of blood and fluid from his brain.

Kea, who had been with the Eagles for only three weeks when he collided head-on with a Tulsa player, remained in a coma and was downgraded from serious to critical after the surgery, a Holy Cross Hospital spokesman said. However, his condition is stable.

Hagler to make defense

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — World Middleweight Champion Marvelous Marvin Hagler of Brockton, Mass., is expected to defend his title in a May 13 bout against Wilford Scypion at the Providence Civic Center, WEAN radio reported Thursday.

Barring last-minute complications, the bout will be announced Tuesday at the Civic Center, boxing promoter Bob Arum told WEAN. Tickets, ranging from $100 at ringside to $20, will go on sale next week.

Scypion recently defeated Frank "The Animal" Fletcher to become a top challenger to Hagler's undisputed title.

337 nominees for Preakness

BALTIMORE (UPI) — A near-record 337 three-year-olds, including surprise Florida Derby winner Croeso, runnerup Copelan and unbeaten Princess Rooney, have been nominated for the 108th running of the Preakness Stakes on May 21, Pimlico Race Course announced Thursday.

It marks the third consecutive year the Preakness nomination list exceeded 300 and this year's figure is one short of the record 338 nominated in 1981.

Copelan, owned by Fred W. Hooper, won five of six starts as a 2-year-old. In his 3-year-old debut, he won the faster division of the Fountain of Youth Stakes at Gulfstream before finishing second to 85-C Croeso in the Florida Derby on March 5.

Pomerelle sets media day

POMERELLE — Woody and Sandy Anderson, owners of Pomerelle ski resort, are saying a season's thanks to members of the media in Magic Valley Sunday.

The special day offers free skiing to anyone associated with newspapers, radio and television stations anywhere in Magic Valley and as far away as Pocatello and Halley.

Sandy Anderson said in addition to free day passes for anyone who works for the media, there will be a free lunch at noon furnished by Ore-Ida of Burley, and a fun race event in the afternoon for those who wish to compete.

Easy slalom and relay courses will be set up on Buttermilk, a short run that ends at the Easy Rider chairlift in front of the ski lodge.

"We aren't making anything difficult. You can snow plow through the courses you like," Sandy Anderson said.

Regular charges will be in effect for family members or for rentals, but for media members everything else is "on the house."

"We want everyone to come, even if they just come for lunch and watch their fellow workers whip down the slopes," she said.

Noah outlasts Van Patten

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — Frenchman Yannick Noah overcame match point Thursday to defeat American Vince Van Patten, 2-6, 6-4, 7-6, in the second round of the $315,000 Belgian Indoor Grand Prix tennis tournament.

Vitas Gerulaitis of the United States also moved into the quarterfinals after beating Dominique Bedel of France, 3-6, 6-1, 6-4.

A farewell to Tennessee Williams

Writer recalls a tormented, poetic genius

By WILLIAM A. RAIDY
Newhouse News Service

NEW YORK — I have been reluctant to say my farewell in print to Tennessee Williams, one of our century's finest playwrights. This poetic genius, often tragically tormented, was no stranger to my life.

I first came across his unusual name when I was a student in the early '40s searching for an out-of-print play at the old Gotham Book Mart, a legendary New York way station for bibliophiles and budding, as well as arrived, authors. Deep in the dusty stacks I came across a cardboard-covered, mimeographed script marked "Battle of Angels."

It was the only play script among all the books, and obviously it had arrived there by way of an out-of-work actor, stage manager or what-have-you. The price was 50 cents, the lowest item in the store, so I bought it out of curiosity.

I read it and was fascinated. Later I learned that "Battle of Angels," produced by the Theatre Guild, had tried out in Boston with Miriam Hopkins as its star and had failed miserably.

Boston city officials decided that this play, with its sexual frankness and "vulgar language," needed censoring. Theatre Guild subscribers protested to Lawrence Langner and Theresa Helburn, its leaders. In a letter to Boston's Guild subscribers, they wrote a truly prophetic letter saying:

"We chose to produce 'Battle of Angels' because we felt the young author has genuine poetic gifts and an interesting insight into a particular American scene. The treatment of the religious obsession of one of the characters, which sprang from frustration, did not justify, in our opinion, the censor's action."

"It was, we felt, a sincere and honest attempt to present a true psychological picture. . . . 'Battle of Angels' turned out badly, but who knows whether the next one by the same author may not prove successful?" Fifteen years later, a different version of the same play made it to Broadway as "Orpheus Descending."

Many years ago, I presented the old manuscript to its author, who was deeply touched. He told me, "My baby has come back to me."

There was, as usual, a sense of self-mockery about Tennessee Williams and I wasn't sure he was as moved as he seemed to be. . . . But I am getting ahead of my story. The next time I saw his name was in a theatrical advertisement in March of 1945 announcing the opening of "The Glass Menagerie" starring Laurette Taylor. I had never heard of this woman, but my mother, an avid theater-goer, explained that she had been a great star a generation earlier, playing the title role in "Peg of My Heart."

Alcohol and other problems had Laurette Taylor off to oblivion, and this obscure play was to be her comeback attempt. I bought a $1.10 ticket in the back balcony of the theater for the opening night, Tennessee Williams' debut on Broadway.

I have since attended thousands of Broadway premieres in my capacity as a theater critic, but this one remains to this day the most memorable of all. It was one of the few times I have heard an audience shout, "Author, author," after the final curtain went down — something that happens mostly in movies about the theater. A great playwright had been born.

In the summer of 1947 I was spending some time in Provincetown, Mass., then still an "artists' colony" on Cape Cod. Marlon Brando, whom I had known when he was studying theater with Irwin Piscator at the New School for Social Research, introduced me to Williams. The playwright, who was enjoying his newfound fortune and fame most enthusiastically, was friendly and often wickily amusing. At the time, I had no idea of the dark clouds gathering around Williams' psyche.

"A Streetcar Named Desire" opened on Broadway the following winter, and Tennessee Williams became our most heralded playwright.

For 35 years Williams and I encountered each other in many parts of the world. I remember him a few years ago buying at the moon in a garden along the Atlantic Coast. He told me what he called "a secret" that night. It was that the only thing he truly wished for in life was to live long enough to write one more great play and win the Nobel Prize for Literature. This was extraordinary, for prizes meant little to him and money even less.

And I remember a few years ago having a long lunch with him during the brief run of his off-Broadway play "Small Craft Warnings." While insisting he had sworn off alcohol, he

Hailey gallery plays host to fundraiser show

By WILLJETTA WARBERG
Times-News arts critic

HAILEY — The Tonerl Ward Gallery in Hailey presently has an admirable show that displays a most diverse collection of arts and crafts.

This show has a purpose, too. Area artists have put up their works to be sold through "silent" auction to raise money for the Idaho National Organization for Women's state conference. It will take place June 3, 4 and 5 in Hailey.

Watercolors from Don Bennett, Jim Davies, B. Morgan Mang, Marjolin Renfro, Kip Robertson and Lynn Tonerl-Ward can be seen at the gallery, off Main Street, and bought for the best price.

Other donations that have been made for the sale include: a block print by Jennifer Bellinger, an oil painting by Lynn Stallard, ceramics by Gordon Webster and Gayle Prunhuber, tapestry by Stefanie Dash Marvel and quilting by Sonya Tarney.

Also showing are photographs by Penny Brong, Donald, Doug DeJohn, Larry Hill, Carol Monverde, Carla Pritchett, Steve Snyder, Bob Ward and Jack Williams.

There also are a few pieces of blown glass, done by Craig Zweifel. And in connection with the fund-raising effort, a series of films by women artists will be shown Tuesday, March 15, at 8 p.m., at the Liberty Theater in Hailey, two films — "The Art of Bettye Saar" and "Helen Frankenthaler and the Spirit Catcher" — will be shown. Admission will be free, but donations to NOW will be solicited.

It seems fitting that 35-year-old Lynn Tonerl-Ward would contribute to such an exhibit. She has a style of water-coloring all her own.

Ward belongs to the newest generation of outdoor and wildlife watercolorists. She is a smart painter. Her best paintings depend on the subject matter, but they reflect a special, sometimes unrelated nuance and flash of intuition.

For instance, "Swan Lake," her latest watercolor, is a painting of three swans. And sticking its head out from behind one swan is a plain little duck.

Her painting of a Canada goose standing on one leg is well-known. Ward claims that the whimsy that overcomes her once in a while keeps "frivolous at a distance." "That's why I wore unmatched — checked — and striped stockings today," she says, pointing to her strikingly different legs.

This artist seems to enjoy playing with watered-down colors, and what she accomplishes with this technique is quite lovely, different, and ethereal-looking. She also seems indifferent to exact, picture-perfect rufes. Although her paintings are not abstract, they are not entirely realistic just because of her subtle whimsy and color-play.

Ward's gallery is small, but she has organized it well. In the back of the shop, she mats and frames her signed and numbered prints and paintings.

She claims to be making a good living, and does not regret giving up a promising commercial art career in 1971.

Since she graduated from the University of California at Berkeley, her watercolors have been exhibited at the National Ducks Unlimited Show in Kansas City — the Eastern and Salisbury Waterfowl Festival in Maryland, the Western Art Show and Auction in Spokane, Wash., and the Audubon Show in Anchorage, Alaska.

Ward spends several months each year with her husband, Bob, exploring new rivers, observing and sketching America's waterfowl firsthand. She likes canoeing and has floated on rivers ranging from Idaho's Salmon and Snake, to Wisconsin's Menominee, to the headwaters of the Mississippi.

Ward's generous donation of her time and gallery to the Wood River chapter of NOW is not unusual. She frequently donates her time — and art — to Ducks Unlimited and other conservation organizations.

Lynn Tonerl-Ward's goose painting is well-known

Trekkies plan gathering

TWIN FALLS — "Beam me up, Scotty" or "Go to warp speed, Mr. Sulu" are familiar phrases to fans of "Star Trek."

Friday, the crew of the Starship Enterprise will fly again. Two original episodes of the series will be shown as part of "Star Trek Night" at the Renaissance Academy of the Arts, 505 Second Ave. E. in Twin Falls.

One of the episodes will be "Space Seed," the basis for the second "Star Trek" movie, "The Wrath of Khan." The story deals with a group of superhumans plotting the takeover of the Enterprise and eventually, the universe.

The other episode will be "City on the Edge of Forever," a science-fiction Hugo Award winner, about Capt. Kirk and Mr. Spock's trip back to Earth during the 1920s.

The evening also will feature "Star Trek" trivia and costume contests. Participants may register for the contests at the door.

Prizes will include "Star Trek" T-shirt transfers and a science-fiction encyclopedia.

Carl Raids of radio station KLLX will be the host.

A $20 donation is requested for the event, which will begin at 7 p.m. The activity is being sponsored by the Magic Valley chapter of the National Organization for Women, to raise funds for a scholarship.

Williams

consumed three bottles of wine. I took him back to the Hotel Elyses, where he recently met his death, and he promised to get into bed and stay there.

A few hours later I was surprised to see the playwright on an evening television newscast. The TV announcer said: "We have a special guest here tonight, Tennessee Williams, who has volunteered to give us the weather forecast and mention his new play, 'Summer and Smoke'."

"He started to mumble incoherently and was immediately beeped off, the anchorman saying: 'Well, so much for the weather ... and so much for Tennessee Williams.'"

I also remember him a few years ago calling up very late at night to tell me that his mother, Edwina Dakin Williams, had died. He was very upset that when he called the obituary department of the New York Times to suggest that a small article about this extraordinary woman — from whom he drew Amanda Wingfield, the faded Southern belle, for "The Glass Menagerie" — might be written, he was told by a reporter that his mother's passing was not of general interest.

He asked me if I could do something about this, and I called an editor at his home-town newspaper. By then it was 2 in the morning. The man was most sympathetic and volunteered to call the playwright personally at that hour and take the necessary information.

Williams was especially pleased with the obituary and called to thank me the following day. In typical self-mockery, putting on his broadest Southern accent, he said: "Ah-hope when it comes man turn, you won't have as much trouble. And ah must tell you ah don't feel that occasion is that far away."

Recalling this I began to mull over some lines from his "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof":

"Time goes by so fast. Nothin' can outrun it. Death commences too early — almost before you're half-acquainted with life, you meet with the other. Oh, you know we just got to love each other and stay together, all of us, just as close as we can."

Williams loved irony almost as much as he did poetry. I recall visiting him in Key West, Fla., one winter and finding him highly agitated. Groups of local hoodlums would drive by his modest home and throw rocks at it, and dump garbage while shouting taunts about his homosexuality.

Key West today has a Tennessee Williams Cultural Center. And that night, which almost led to his selling his winter-home, turned up in one of his later plays as a group of surrealistic birds dive-bombing a tropical cottage.

And I remember Tennessee a few springtimes ago arriving in New York, elegantly attired in a great white seersucker suit and a giant panther-style Panama hat. He looked like the reincarnation of Big Daddy himself.

He wore that suit continually for the next few weeks. After I had seen him in it at least a half-dozen times at various theaters and dinner parties, I suggested it might be time for a change.

Harold Clurman, the late director and critic, always insisted this extraordinary genius had "a penchant for confession." He was tormented, Clurman said, by a puritan obsession with sin that was largely relieved by pity and a sense of the ridiculous.

Tennessee Williams knew success and failure very well — but, sadly, he knew loneliness even more.

When 30 Broadway theaters turned their lights off the other evening for a minute's tribute to the man who constantly reaffirmed the fact that playwrighting is a true art form, I said my goodbyes to that troubled pixie and genius, recalling the epigraph he chose as the theme for his "Summer and Smoke."

It was a line from the poet, Rainer Maria Rilke: "Who, if I were to cry out, would hear me among the angelic orders?" Somehow I feel the angelic orders are very close to this strange soul now at rest.

Matthiessen fair in examination of Wounded Knee fiasco

By DEE BROWN
Chicago Sun-Times

IN THE SPIRIT OF CRAZY HORSE, By Peter Matthiessen. Viking, $20.95.

(Dee Brown is the author of "Bury My Heart at Wounded Knee." His newest novel, "Killdeer Mountain," will be published March 21 by Holt, Rinehart & Winston.)

Because of the vast number of sources and the recency of events, it is much more difficult to write a history of America's late 20th century Indian Wars than those of earlier times. With remarkable proficiency, however, Peter Matthiessen has picked his way through a minefield of conflicting reports, trial proceedings, tape recordings and personal interviews to create the first solidly documented account of the U.S. government's renewed assault upon American Indians that began in the 1970s and still continues.

Although Matthiessen's sympathies are clearly with the beleaguered tribes, he presents the views of both sides. He could have managed a more balanced record were government officials less inclined to cloak their aims and actions under the guise of privileged information.

"In the Spirit of Crazy Horse" is concerned mainly with the struggles of "traditional" Indians to hold on to their land and way of life in the face of a concerted effort by what Matthiessen identifies as "energy conservationists" using the power of government to wrest these things from them.

In a brief historical survey, he tells how tribes were assigned reservations upon what were believed to be the nation's poorest lands, yet have since turned out to contain the richest deposits of uranium, coal and oil in the West, as well as vast aquifers for use in processing.

By tracing the rise and fall of the American Indian Movement of the 1970s, Matthiessen shows the ferocity with which federal agencies (the FBI in particular) fought to crush that spearhead of Indian opposition.

When a group of AIM members and sympathizers occupied a trading post and took amenable hostages at symbolic Wounded Knee in Feb. 1973, and demanded that the U.S. Senate hold hearings on unkept treaties, they were quickly surrounded by Bureau of Indian Affairs police, U.S. marshals and FBI agents.

Soon the force grew into an army that included uniformed military and local law enforcement officers in paramilitary units. Equipped with armored, personnel carriers, automatic weapons and 133,000 rounds of ammunition for M-16 rifles, the besiegers had enough firepower to kill every Indian in the Dakotas.

Miraculously, another Wounded Knee massacre similar to the one that occurred in 1890 did not result. While conducting this absurd two-month siege, the government spent $7.5 million.

During the next two years the Indian movement's leaders were constantly harassed. Some were arrested, some were beaten, several killed. Matthiessen does not attempt to conceal the inability of leaders to work together at crucial times, their weaknesses and errors of judgment.

Yet because of the way in which federal agencies infiltrated their ranks -- playing one leader against another, spreading false rumors, undermining the public image of AIM -- it is amazing that it held together at all. By 1975 the movement had splintered.

In June of that year one of these groups was camped near Oglala on Pine Ridge Reservation. When SWAT teams of FBI agents came there, ostensibly in search of a young Indian wanted for a petty crime, a fire fight began. Before the day ended, two FBI men and an Indian lay dead. The facts concerning this incident are extremely difficult to determine; the press was barred for two days, but Matthiessen has made some sense of the confusion.

Out of the violence was generated a massive manhunt, supported by paramilitary forces. The FBI soon fixed upon four suspects, three of whom were quickly rounded up, the fourth fleeing to Canada. The fugitive was Leonard Peltier, a Sioux-Ojibway now serving two consecutive life sentences. Matthiessen and others believe Peltier may be innocent, or at least deserves a new trial because of coerced and fabricated evidence.

Three themes are woven through Matthiessen's narrative of events. One is the story of Peltier, who is an archetype of many young Indians of today who find themselves trapped between traditional reservation life and modern urban technology.

Another is the brassy intrusion of the energy consortiums, hungry for those resources still held by the vulnerable native Americans.

Another is the mystical figure of the Big Man, a huge and hairy monster portending disaster, who has been seen by many Indians in many places over the last few years. The Big Man was heard splashing in a creek near Oglala the night before the fatal shootout with the FBI agents.

This book is much more than a historical account of the most recent Indian Wars. It is a warning of an increasing loss of faith in governmental institutions by more and more Americans who sense they have lost control to forces more powerful than enfranchised citizens. When government and its representatives cease to be protectors and become the enemy, as has happened here, then we are all in grave danger. When the rights of all Americans are violated, the rights of all Americans are threatened.

How Indians fared

Book explores 'Northwest' settlement

By United Press International

Gateway to Empire, by Allan W. Eckert (Little, Brown, $20)

"Gateway to Empire" is an absorbing account of relations between Indians and whites in the old Northwest Territory (comprising the modern states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin) between the years 1763 and 1912.

With painstaking detail, Allan W. Eckert tells the story of how the Americans gradually wrested control of this land -- through fair means and foul -- from the Indians and their British allies.

Much of Eckert's narrative concerns the founding and growth of a small American settlement in the wilderness of Lake Michigan's western shore -- at a place called Chicago. Early Chicago is the "gateway" of the title, the bridge between the settled East and the uncharted West. The story of pioneer Chicago reaches its tragic and bloody climax on Aug. 15, 1812, with the massacre of settlers and soldiers by Indians who earlier had promised them safety.

The book is a good example of how history can be made more interesting -- and even gripping -- by tracing the lives of real people rather than merely recounting dry facts. There are dozens of characters -- traders, settlers, soldiers, slaves and, of course, Indians (who have as much time on stage as the whites and who are depicted very fairly). Among the well-known personages who appear are the future president of the United States, William Henry Harrison; "Mad Anthony" Wayne, a Revolutionary War hero, and the charismatic Shawnee leader Tecumseh.

With his focus on the lives of individual people, and with a remarkable attention to detail, Eckert has succeeded in bringing the old Northwest to life.

Books geared to kids

By DEBORAH ABBOTT
Chicago Sun-Times

Just put some new paperbacks where kids can get their hands on them and you'll soon discover which will be the most popular. I did this recently and I wasn't surprised at the results. Just at the enthusiasm for the choices.

Two science books were favorites of the 9-to-13-year-olds. Packed with easy-to-do, tricky science investigations, "Bet You Can't Science Impossible Things to Fool You," illustrated by Martha Weston (a reprint of the 1980 hardcover edition) and "Bet You Can! Science Possibilities to Fool You," illustrated by Stellas Ormal (a paperback original) are both written by Vicki Cobb and Kathy Darling (Avon Camelot, $1.99 each).

It is hard to find such excellent collections of projects (old or new) inside such small books. The section on "body experiments" in "Bet You Can!" attracted a lot of interest. Kids hung spoons on their noses, wrote words on their arms without pens or pencils and tried to make me taste hot peppers on my arm.

Vicki Cobb, a talented author of many intriguing science books, knows the rules for success: stimulating problems, minimal equipment, and clear and concise directions and explanations. She gives children black and white drawings, slightly different in each volume, carry the theme with lots of pizzazz.

When word got out there were teen romances for the taking. I was swamped by seventh and eighth grade girls who couldn't wait to read the latest. One of those was "Too Close for Comfort," by Debra Spector (Bantam, $1.95), one of the "Sweet Dreams" series of which two new volumes hit the stands each month.

The plot centers on high school junior Drea (short for Andrea) and her long-time friend and next-door neighbor, Derek. When Drea loses her boyfriend, she goes home to stir up and eat a catch of brownies. Derek joins her and lets her cry on his shoulder. Before long Drea and Derek are an item. They have wonderful times together until Drea wants out of the relationship, deciding she prefers Derek as a pal rather than a boyfriend. He is crushed. He cries, she cries and Drea's mother cries; but life goes on. New boyfriends and girlfriends are waiting in the wings.

Girls 11 and up devour these fantasies, calling them "exciting," "fun to read," "not difficult" and "never boring." One bookstore in a large Chicago chain said they sell more of these romances than any other kind of juvenile book. But why?

They seem to describe typical middleclass adolescent behavior patterns, punctuated by mood swings and changing personal relationships. Perhaps for this reason they offer security and comfort to teen readers (another thing they offer is the chance to pretend what it will be like when one's turn comes.)

India flocking to Gandhi's lesson in history

By DEBORAH BURNS
United Press International

NEW DELHI, India — From fawning war veterans to school children, Indians are thronging in record numbers to the motion picture "Gandhi," encouraged by low ticket prices and eager for the history lesson.

Normally rowdy, audiences are rapt and attentive as they view English director Sir Richard Attenborough's film version of the life of Mohandas K. Gandhi, and the events leading up to Indian independence from Britain.

"We've been having three shows daily with capacity crowds, plus one in the morning for school children. Since it opened Jan. 28," said Rattan Sethi, manager of the Chanakya Theater.

"The way it's been going, the movie should play another eight weeks or so, a very long run for us."

Sethi said the film, which has a slew of Hollywood Oscar nominations including one for British actor Ben Kingsley as Gandhi, already has broken a decade-old attendance record.

The Indian government removed the usual 60 percent tax on tickets for "Gandhi," cutting the price of admission to 40 cents from 65 cents — expensive in a country where the average worker's daily wage is less than $1.

"Gandhi is known as the father of our nation," said R.K. Anand of the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting. "We would like our youngsters to get to know him — and many of the older generation have almost forgotten him."

"In Indian theaters we are fond of music and fights during movies. But during this film you could have heard a pin drop. The same was the case when Gandhi used to address the masses — he had the power to hypnotize."

The ministry set up a booth in the theater lobby to sell literature ranging from comic books on Gandhi's life to 86 volumes of his collected works. Sales are good, said salesman V.S. Rowal, indicating the words of "Gandhi" as he is affectionately called, are relevant today.

"Gandhi understood the people of India," Rowal said, "and they understood him."

India today is a different country than the one Gandhi knew. Advertisements for Western jeans and acrylic fabrics accompany showings of this film, which advocates wearing Indian homespun or "khadi" cloth and native dress.

Gandhi's message of non-violence puzzles some members of the younger generation.

When Indian demonstrators in the film set fire to a British police station, the audience reacts with laughter and a smattering of applause.

"If somebody's hitting you and you don't respond," said teacher Harish C. Sharma, 31, after the movie, "he's going to hit you again and again."

But an elderly man who remembered seeing Gandhi at prayer meetings in the 1930s and '40s disagreed.

"I was a follower of Gandhi and still am," he said. "If non-violence could remove the British empire, why shouldn't it work in other situations? But it's a very difficult way of life."

A.N. Sharma, an engineer, said he was from Amritsar, where in 1919 British troops fired on a banned meeting and killed 379 unarmed people.

"My parents lived through that event themselves," he said. "I couldn't believe how it was brought to life in the film."

India must be reminded of the "glory" of its history, Sharma said.

"Today's leaders don't have any principles," said 11th-grader Anu Radha. "Gandhi" followed his own principles, and then everyone else followed him."

S.Z. Hassan, 23, an electronics student and a Muslim, said he was very inspired by the movie.

"If our own country would make films like this we would learn much," he said.

"We mustn't just enjoy the movie," he added. "We have to take it into our own lives. We have to recognize the importance of unity, and not demolish the things Gandhi believed in."

Fifteen-year-old T.P. Karthik urged all Americans to see the film.

"It's the only way they'll realize what non-violence can do for the world," he said.

Betty White likes the men in her life

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD — If Sue Ann Nivens died and went to heaven, surely she would find herself in Betty White's job.

Betty, who played the love-starved Sue Ann on the defunct "Mary Tyler Moore Show," plays hostess on "Just Men," a daily game show involving seven macho males.

Most of the panelists on "Just Men" are celebrated actors and sports figures. Every week Betty works with a new panel. The opportunity to meet a variety of attractive, successful males is almost unlimited.

Sue Ann would have gone bananas," Betty said, a sparkle in her eyes. "And I love every minute of the show myself."

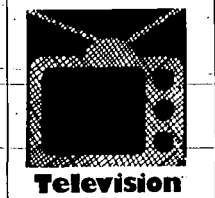

There is only a single thorn in Betty's garden of roses. Two female contestants are selected from the audience on each show. They question the males on a variety of half-baked issues, intimate and otherwise.

"I'm wracking my brain for ways to get rid of the women," Betty said.

As hostess, interlocutress and general female factotum, Betty referees, the guys keeping the conversational ball rolling, dropping occasional double entendres, which are pounced upon by the guys.

By her own account, Betty is the first and only woman emcee of a daily network game show, thanks to a subtle prejudice against females in a take-charge job.

"A woman emcee is not exactly my idea of heaven," she said. "My agents tried to sell me as a game show hostess 20 years ago and again 10 years ago without success."

The networks said women at home would talk to men, not females.

They also were convinced viewers would prefer hearing feminine voices, that they preferred the more authoritative male sounds.

"When they offered me 'Just Men,' I told them they should get someone young and gorgeous. But NBC wanted experience, a woman who could think on her feet. I resisted but now I'm glad I took the job. The show has given me an arena for having fun."

If NBC wanted experience, it could not have found a veteran with a broader background.

Betty's TV career began in 1949 when she was disc jockey Al Jarvis' girl Friday on "The Make Believe Ballroom," a Los Angeles music show.

"We were on the air six hours a day, six days a week," Betty recalled. "I talked a lot between records and read commercials."

In 1950 Betty graduated to sitcoms, starring in "Life With Elizabeth." Thereafter, she starred in "Date with the Angels" and in 1954 moved up to "The Betty White Show." It was followed by "The Pet Set."

Not until "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" did Betty find herself in an unqualified hit in the role of Sue Ann.

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFF

"Slogans are both exciting and comforting, but they are also powerful opiates for the conscience."
James B. Conant

The thoughtful player looks for the exception to even the most fundamental of bridge slogans. Look over today's layout to see what happens to that old faithful "third hand high."

West leads the heart six and it's time for East's decision — why not play third hand high?

If East plays the queen, South ducks and wins the continuation with a successful finesse. When West wins his diamond king, he has no more hearts to lead and South has time to establish the diamond suit. This gives South an easy game plus an overtrick.

Instead of an automatic third hand high, East should play his nine at trick one. This forces South to win his jack since a hold-up play will not work (if South ducks, the heart king will clear the suit).

After the far-sighted duck by East, West will be able to win the first diamond lead with his king to return a second heart to East's queen.

Against this defense, South cannot prevail and East's heart suit is ready to run before South can establish that vital diamond winner.

Most of us can recognize this type of play as declarer. It takes a bit more imagination
