Just a spraying task

No, you're not looking at a strange being from another planet. It's Loren Rictor. He is dressed appropriately for the task at hand Tuesday as he busily sprayed ash trees on the CSI campus. It appeared that he was getting as much chemical on himself as on the trees.

Job bill clash stalls Senate

By IRA R. ALLEN
United Press International

WASHINGTON — A restraining Senate bedeviled by a clash of wills between two Republicans failed Tuesday night to pass a $5.1 billion jobs bill, setting the stage for a filibuster or a presidential veto of a bill almost everybody wants passed.

At issue was the insistence of first-term Sen. Robert Kasten, R-Wis., to attach an amendment repealing the July 1 tax withholding of interest and dividends, which would cause President Reagan to veto the bill.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., opposing repeal, offered Kasten another bill next month on which to offer his popular amendment, but Kasten refused, sparking angry words from the normally placid Republican leader, Howard Baker.

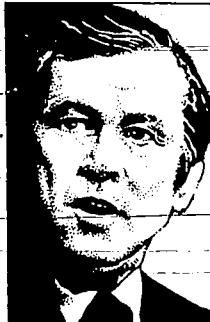

When the Senate convenes Wednesday it will vote on whether to shut off debate on the bill and then whether to shut off debate on Kasten's amendment.

If 60 senators approve the first motion, Kasten's amendment could be ruled out of order. If it loses and the second motion carries, Kasten could get the yes-or-no vote he demanded all along.

Kasten was demanding a vote on this or any other measure before March 25 so the banking industry would not have to start buying expensive computer equipment to keep track of depositors' withholding payments.

Baker, who originally tried to prevent the amendment from coming up and then recognized its inevitability, spoke sharply to Kasten.

"We've come a long, long way ... The only trouble is the target keeps receding. I keep finding other things I need to do" to accommodate Kasten.

Kasten replied: "The target has been and is (that) we sought a vote before the 25th. If we're going to deal with this, we ought to deal with this matter sooner rather than later."

Dole accused the banking industry's massive lobbying effort of holding up a jobs bill for unemployed Americans and relief for recession victims.

"There are not too many bankers in the unemployment lines. Not a single banker showed up in the cheese lines," he said.

Baker and Dole repeatedly asked House Democratic leaders to ease their dilemma by quickly providing a tax bill — required to originate in the House — for Kasten to amend. But

Soviets cut oil price

By SAJID RIZVI
United Press International

LONDON — The Soviet Union undercut OPEC's $29-a-barrel price for crude Tuesday, but Britain, whose reaction traders say will determine the global oil market's shape, gave no hint it would cut its oil prices.

In Britain's first official comment on the Organization of Oil Exporting Countries' decision Monday to cut its $34 a barrel base price by 15 percent, the Chancellor of the Exchequer said a moderate reduction was welcomed.

Sir Geoffrey Howe, in presenting Britain's 1983-84 budget, said that "though sharp swings in the oil prices are in no one's interest, moderate reductions mean lower inflation abroad, and lower prices here."

The fall in the general level of world oil prices is therefore to be welcomed," the chancellor told Parliament.

There was no hint in the speech, however, of how non-OPEC Britain's state-run National Oil Corporation intended to respond to the 13-nation cartel's first price cut in its 23-year history.

The Gulf-based Al Khaleej newspaper said the agreement "may have temporarily evaded the ghost of the price war but it has not destroyed the ghost."

Industry sources said the Soviet Union, which is the world's largest producer, selling about 1.1 million barrels a day to Western Europe, was offering its Urals crude at $27 a barrel from northern ports and $28 from Mediterranean terminals retroactive to March 1.

The new prices showed a $1.25 cut on the Mediterranean shipments and a $2.15 cut on the northern cargoes, the sources said.

The spot market in Rotterdam was mixed as prices for North Sea Brent rose 60 cents to $26.40 a barrel.

But market analysts said the spot market trend and the Soviet price cut were not good indicators of the outcome of the OPEC accord.

"It's still too early, and we wouldn't be heard commenting," said a Shell Oil source.

Leading traders speculated BNOOC's reaction would determine the shape of the market. OPEC members can backdate the cut to Feb. 1, as Britain has offered to its own customers.

A 50-cent cut would bring North Sea prices at par with those of comparable Nigerian crudes, but a $1 cut would invite price-cutting by OPEC.

But British oil industry sources said they did not expect the BNOOC to react in haste to the OPEC price cut.

BNOOC has about 18 days within which to notify its customers of a price change, industry sources said. Its $3 price cut last month to $30.50 has not been accepted by most customers who were awaiting OPEC's decision, the sources said.

Financially strapped Nigeria, which cut its price by $5.50 a barrel last month to compete with North Sea oil, was allowed to keep its price at $30 as a "temporary exception" under the OPEC agreement.

Wedded bliss on upswing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More Americans got married last year than ever before, and the number of divorces dropped for the first time in two decades, the government reported Tuesday.

Provisional 1982 data from the National Center for Health Statistics also showed infant mortality dropped to a record low last year, the overall death rate decreased slightly and births showed a small increase.

The statistics show nearly 2.5 million couples got married in 1982, a 2 percent increase over 1981 and 16 percent more than in 1975, the year before the latest increase began.

Except for 1974 and 1975, marriages have risen every year after 1958. Last year's number was a record. The marriage rate rose 2 percent over 1981, to 10.8 per 1,000 population. The rate is the highest since 1973, and the third highest in 32 years.

While marriages were rising, divorces were dropping. The statistics show 1.18 million couples divorced in 1982, 3 percent lower than the year before and the first decrease since 1962.

The divorce rate went down nearly 4 percent in 1982, to 5.1 divorces per 1,000 population.

Experts say the divorce figures do not necessarily indicate Americans are happier, but that many cannot afford to split up during these tough economic times. Divorce rates also dropped during the Great Depression.

The experts predict the divorce rate will rise again when the economy improves, but say the "divorce boom" of a decade ago is over.

The number of divorces almost tripled from 1962 to 1981. The rate soared during the late 1960s and early 1970s, rose steadily after that and peaked in 1979.

"What we're seeing is that both marriage and divorce rates have stabilized after a period of sharp change in the 1960s and 1970s," Johns Hopkins University sociologist Andrew Cherlin said in an interview. "It's a mistake to see the increase in marriage as portending any large-scale return to marriage, just as it's a mistake to see a small drop in divorce rates as portending a trend away from divorce," he said.

Forest acreage is singled out for auction block

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government Tuesday singled out 6 million acres of national forest land for study to determine whether they eventually should be sold.

The land is in 39 states, with the most acres — 872,054 — listed in Montana and 723,975 in California. In contrast, the amount listed in New Hampshire is 2,370 acres.

The controversial review is being conducted under President Reagan's "asset management program," which is intended to identify lands that are "inefficient to manage" or no longer needed by the agencies that control them, Forest Service officials said.

The agency's proposal sparked immediate criticism from environmentalists as "an unprecedented assault on the integrity of our national forests."

The 6 million acres involved in the study account for 3 percent of the Forest Service's 191 million acre holdings. Preliminary studies have ruled out sale of the remaining acres, the agency said.

In announcing its plans, the Forest Service said the tracts of land being studied are "isolated parcels, some lands in checkerboard ownership patterns, lands needed for community expansion and some lands now under special-use permit, which are used essentially for a single purpose and are unlikely to be needed for public purposes in the future."

Not all the land designated for review is intended to be sold, the Forest Service said, noting that the "intensive studies" will rule out sales of some tracts, and public reaction will be considered before final decisions are made.

The 6 million acres designated Tuesday for further review were chosen after an initial study of 140 million acres. Officials said they ruled out any chance of selling the remaining 134 million acres.

Gaylord Nelson, chairman of the Wilderness Society, characterized the administration's proposal as "the opening salvo in an unprecedented assault on the integrity of our national forests.

"This is clearly not asset management, but asset liquidation," the former Wisconsin senator said. Tim Mahoney, Washington representative of the Sierra Club, described the proposal as "one of the most dreadful ideas the Reagan administration has come up with. It's offensive to our members, and fortunately, it's offensive to most people around the country who know and care about Forest Service land."

Only fraction of Sawtooth considered for sale

By KELLY EVERITT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Officials of the Sawtooth National Forest have determined that only a small fraction of land under their jurisdiction should be given further consideration for possible sale to the public.

Less than 85 acres are in the Magic Valley, Wood River Valley and Camas County areas, and most of those already involve some form of private use.

Tuesday, Roland Stoleson, the supervisor of the Sawtooth National Forest, released the results of a year-long review of lands under his control that might qualify for sale under President Ronald Reagan's "asset management" initiative, which is designed to reduce the national debt by selling surplus federal land.

The list released Tuesday was the second in an ongoing review process involving all federal lands. In November, Forest Service officials determined that 919,076 acres of the 2.2 million-acre Sawtooth National Forest definitely should be retained by the government. A small parcel of land, 0.7 acres, five miles east of Oakley, should and could be sold under existing authority granted the Forest Service, it was determined at that time. No action to sell the land has taken place, however.

The remaining 1.18 million acres of the forest were set aside for further study, the results of which were released Tuesday.

According to Stoleson, after careful review of the criteria for determining if lands should be disposed, only 10,768 acres of the more than 1.18 million acres studied have been designated for more study. The remainder are recommended for retention by the Forest Service.

And of those acres designated for further study, 10,694 of them are located on the eastern end of the Sawtooths, Carcass, Raft, River Division. Most of that area is in Box Elder County, Utah, although small portions are in Idaho.

Climber agrees he broke law

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Hollywood stuntman who scaled the side of a 75-story downtown skyscraper Tuesday he would have been surprised if trespassing charges had been dropped because "I'm not above the law."

"Pardon the pun," quipped Ron Broyles, 29, who took almost 18 hours Monday to climb the smooth, granite-walled Texas Commerce Tower. "But let's face it, I broke the law. I was trespassing."

He had hoped to join the exclusive club of building climbers who succeeded in climbing buildings over 1,000 feet. However, Texas Commerce Tower stands 993 feet from the ground.

Bel Geddes has heart attack

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actress Barbara Bel Geddes, the patient matriarch of the fading Ewing clan on the popular "Dallas" TV series, suffered an apparent heart attack Tuesday and underwent "live-saving" multiple bypass surgery.

Miss Bel Geddes, 60, who won an Emmy for her portrayal of the long-suffering Miss Ewing in 1980, was admitted to the Cedars-Sinai Medical Center Saturday for observation after complaining of chest pains.

Papers filed against Synanon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department filed legal papers Tuesday detailing violence, sexual practices and money policies in opposing a tax exempt status for the Synanon Foundation.

Synanon, a drug rehabilitation organization that later described itself as a religion, received tax exempt status from the Internal Revenue Service in 1969. That status was revoked in May 1982 following a tax audit of the organization for 1977 and 1978.

Letter bomb explodes

LONDON (UPI) — A letter bomb exploded at the U.S. Navy European headquarters in central London Tuesday, slightly injuring one American. A second bomb mailed to "Prime Minister" Margaret Thatcher was detected and safely defused.

Scotland Yard said they believed the incidents were related, though no one claimed responsibility for either of the explosive devices.

Ship locked in ice

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — An Australian-chartered ship was locked in ice at the bottom of the world for a fifth day Tuesday. Its 54 passengers and crew waiting for a pair of Soviet icebreakers to attempt a rescue.

The captain of the Namok S, a Danish vessel, said in a radio broadcast that his supply ship was trapped in an Antarctic ice field 12 miles northwest of the Australian base of Davis and 1,800 miles south of Perth.

If the icebreakers cannot free his vessel, he said, most of those aboard will be evacuated by air, leaving a skeleton crew behind.

Reagan condemns Russia

JERUSALEM (UPI) — President Reagan condemned the Soviet Union Tuesday for denying Russian Jews the right to emigrate and called it an affront to all who cherish liberty.

Reagan's indictment of Soviet policy, read out at the Third World Conference on Soviet Jewry by U.S. ambassador to the U.N. Jeane Kirkpatrick, drew ear-shattering applause from the more than 1,000 delegates who jammed the conference hall.

"Such Soviet actions as denying Soviet Jews their freedom to emigrate are an affront to all of us who cherish liberty," Reagan said.

Matadors back in the ring

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Donning their red capes, Spain's matadors stepped back into the bullring Tuesday to open a season delayed by a strike by their assistants.

The season started as banderilleros and picadores, who stick darts and pikes into the bull's neck to soften him up before the matador kills the animal, settled a 10-day strike.

The assistants, who are paid directly by the matadors, struck for a 25 percent pay hike but agreed to an increase of 14 percent after heated negotiations with the bullfighters' association.

"One bullfighter said the strike 'created a lot of bad blood in the crews, and we have to be able to trust each other blindly in the ring.'"

In Twin Falls County, less than 54 acres have been designated for more study. Those areas involve 18 summer-home sites in the Rock Creek area of the South Hills, as well as camp sites operated by the Christian Church of Southern Idaho, the First Presbyterian Church and the Twin Falls Council of Campfire Girls.

In Cassia County, the Twin Falls Mormon West Stake's Pine Dell Lodge organization site in the South Hills made the "further study" list, along with 10 summer-home sites in the forest's Antelope Valley, south of Burley. Those total 24.6 acres.

In Camas County, 11 summer-home sites in the Big Smoky area, totaling 7.5 acres, will be considered in future disposal studies.

And in Blaine County, 1.2 acres containing four summer-home sites in the Warm Springs area and 0.02 acres along Warm Springs Creek made the list.

Stoleson said that with the release of Tuesday's inventory, "the process stops." None of the lands will be sold in the near future, he said, emphasizing that they merely have been placed in a holding pattern until their final status is determined.

"Existing authority to sell national forest lands is limited to very few specialized situations," he said, the previously identified 0.7 acre near Oakley is one of the few such cases where sale of land is possible, he said.

But, Stoleson said, without authorization or funding to do so from Congress, no further work will be done to finalize the status of the lands on Tuesday's list.

"Should Congress enact legislation expanding this authority, intensive studies will be made and public comment sought to determine which of the areas identified today should be disposed of and which should be retained. That authority does not exist at present."

Stoleson said that legislation is supposed to be introduced soon to give the Forest Service authority to sell land, but it has not been presented to Congress yet.

"I should stress that these lands are not definitely going up for sale (in the near future). They are only lands that have characteristics that would lead one to believe they should be studied further."

The status of persons currently using the lands placed on the list has not been determined. But, he said, when the time comes, "we won't make a move without giving them full opportunity to become involved in the process."

Although generally lacking the authority to sell lands, Stoleson said he does have the authority to initiate trades of private land for public land.

In the past, that power has been used to "clean up" tracts of forest land, creating large, solid blocks of public land that formerly had been intermingled with private land.

The major portion of the further-study land inventory, the 10,684 acres in the eastern end of the Sawtooth Forest's Rafter River Division, is a perfect example of such intermingled lands. The Forest Service owns 19 sections of land that are intermingled in checkerboard fashion with 34 sections of privately owned land.

But Stoleson said that if it is determined that those lands should be traded, rather than sold outright, an extensive review process involving "considerable" solicitation of public comment still would be required.

Stoleson's announcement Tuesday was part of a nationwide campaign to release the identities of up to 6 million acres of Forest Service land throughout the country identified for more study. A total of 134 million acres nationally have been designated for definite retention by the Forest Service. While it was a nationwide effort, lists were announced individually from each regional office.

Less than 1 percent of the 31 million acres of national forest lands administered by the Intermountain Region of the U.S. Forest Service were identified for more study for possible disposal.

Jobs

Speaker Thomas O'Neill and Ways and Means Committee chairman Daniel Rostenkowski refused, with O'Neill accusing the Republicans of "holding hostage" for the bankers of America a program that is designed to put people back to work."

The jobs bill is urgent not only for the aid it would provide to some of America's 11 million unemployed but because it is attached to a measure providing $5 billion to replenish the federal trust fund that provides money to states to pay their jobless benefit claims. The money runs out in 27 states Friday.

The overall bill would provide funds for public works and construction jobs, relief assistance for Americans hardest hit by the recession, loan money for states to continue unemployment benefits, and a host of smaller proposals added in the Senate as amendments.

Reagan has vowed to veto the bill if Kasten's amendment is attached, but a heavy lobbying effort by banks and savings institutions has won stable support in Congress. He also has indicated, through spokesman Larry Speakes, that the $5.5 billion price tag is too high and may prompt a veto.

The president wants the bottom line of the package to be near his original $1.3 billion proposal. The House-passed version would cost $4.9 billion and must be reconciled with the Senate bill.

Baker walked across the Capitol to O'Neill's office Tuesday to plead for help in breaking the logjam.

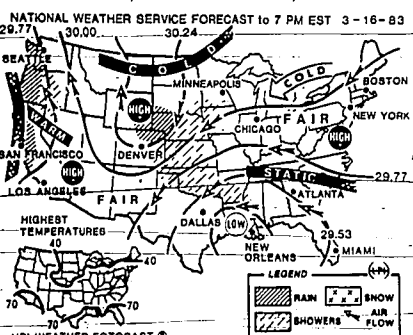

But at a news conference, O'Neill said the only "viable" he could give Baker would not come until May or June, apparently too late for Kasten, who wants a vote by early next month.

Kasten says there are about 70 votes in the Senate and more than 250 in the House favoring repeal.

Decision prompts heated clash

William Smith and Peter Rodino discuss Burford decision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Barney Frank angrily accused Attorney General Francis B. Burch of treating Congress like "chopped liver" and giving a "dishonest answer" about the criminal contempt case against Anne Burford.

The clash came when Smith, appearing before the House Judiciary Committee, defended a federal prosecutor's decision not to prosecute a criminal contempt citation against Mrs. Burford, the former Environmental Protection Agency head.

Frank, D-Mass., said the Justice Department's refusal to send the citation to a grand jury poses "a serious constitutional question." He asked Smith how such a crisis could be avoided in the future.

"In the future, who knows?" Smith replied.

"That's a dishonest answer," Frank snapped.

"It is not a dishonest answer," Smith said. "What do you want to fight about it for? You've got the documents. Why do you want to argue about it?"

President Reagan ordered Mrs. Burford to deny Congress the documents on grounds of executive privilege. After weeks of vigorous dispute, Reagan reversed himself Wednesday — just before the embattled EPA head resigned.

Frank said the Justice Department was wrong in not pressing the contempt citation, and by its action "claiming to be the United States, and we (Congress) are chopped liver."

"You apparently don't like the way it was handled," Smith said.

"I don't know of anyone who likes the way it was handled," Frank said. "If you find one, send him here and I'll be glad to listen to him."

"This issue has been resolved," Smith said.

"I think we have been left with a great constitutional dangle," Frank replied — then Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J., intervened to say his time had expired.

Smith said he was satisfied with a federal prosecutor's decision to ignore a congressional order to prosecute Mrs. Burford.

"What he did was his decision,"

Smith said. "We were satisfied with his determination as to the course of action he should follow."

But Rep. John Seiberling, D-Ohio, called it an "astounding statement" that U.S. Attorney Stanley Harris could make the decision on his own.

Smith noted prosecutors generally have discretion in deciding what charges to pursue, and reminded the lawmakers they eventually got the documents they wanted.

Congress voted to cite Mrs. Burford for criminal contempt in December for following Reagan's orders and refusing to turn over EPA documents to a House subcommittee investigating management of the $1.6 billion Superfund program.

November, and 26 new Democrats have so changed the House makeup that Reagan apparently privately has conceded the resolution will pass.

The administration is seeking to water it down with an amendment that would permit a freeze only after the United States is perceived to have caught up with the Soviet Union.

The amendment, proposed by Rep. William Broomfield, R-Mich., is one of several expected proposals to weaken the resolution. Reagan also supported the amendment last year.

New EPA director charged with wrongful intervention

By JOHN F. BARTON
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., said Tuesday his subcommittee will investigate charges that John Hernandez, now acting EPA administrator, allowed Dow Chemical Co. to alter a 1981 report blaming it for contaminating Michigan rivers.

Scheuer is chairman of a House Science and Technology subcommittee that is one of six congressional panels investigating the Environmental Protection Administration.

"There is evidence that Dr. Hernandez personally intervened at EPA to allow Dow Chemical Company of Midland, Mich., to alter a draft report and suppress all references to Dow's responsibility for dangerous levels of dioxin contamination in and around its Midland plant," he told a news conference.

"As a result of Dr. Hernandez's unprecedented intervention, Dow was able to remove all references to studies showing serious adverse health-effects of dioxin in the area," Scheuer said.

A Scheuer aide said Hernandez made the intervention in May 1981, when he was deputy administrator of the agency.

The lawmaker said his panel will begin hearings March 23 on "interference with the scientific review process at EPA" in the Midland incident.

He said the regional EPA administrator based in Chicago and others responsible for the reports "that have been altered to cover up information damaging to the interests of Dow Chemical" will be called as witnesses.

Hernandez also will be called later, he said.

Hernandez was named acting EPA administrator last week until a permanent replacement could be found for Anne Burford, who resigned under fire. He has been mentioned as one possible choice for the job.

Scheuer said a new draft report written by EPA scientists in Chicago indicates there still is harmful dioxin contamination from Dow's plant in the "Tittabawassee River, which flows into Lake Huron."

Scheuer said he is determined that the new report "will not be subject to the same business-as-usual treatment at EPA" as previous reports on Dow.

Cancer linked to radiation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cigarette smoke apparently collects radioactive particles from the air and deposits them in tiny, potentially cancer-causing hot spots in the lungs, a government-sponsored researcher reported Tuesday.

Edward A. Martell, a radiochemist at the National Center for Atmospheric Research in Boulder, Colo., said he believes most lung cancer among smokers is caused by such radiation.

Non-smokers who live or work around cigarette smoke also can develop such hot spots in their lungs, he said, but the radiation dose is smaller.

Lung cancer, which kills more than 300,000 Americans each year, is the leading cause of cancer death among men and the second-leading cause among women.

Reporting in the March issue of the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences, Martell said previous cancer studies looked separately at smoking and the effects of alpha radiation from indoor, airborne radon decay products.

Martell said his experiments, sponsored by the National Science Foundation and the Environmental Protection Agency, showed the two are linked.

Tar particles in cigarette smoke, he said, pick up alpha radiation from the highly radioactive decay products of radon gas, which also known as "radon progeny" or "radon daughters."

Those products — isotopes of polonium, bismuth and lead — are present in the air everywhere, but are particularly concentrated inside buildings. Everyone's lungs are exposed to small amounts of such radiation with each breath.

Martell said smoke, whether inhaled directly from a cigarette or from smoky air in a room, increases alpha radiation exposure because of the way smoke tar particles collect radon-decay products and deposit them in the lungs.

Freeze called 'breeze' vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Speaker Thomas O'Neill predicted Tuesday a resolution calling for a nuclear weapons freeze and eventual reduction in superpower arsenals will breeze through the House Wednesday by 50 votes.

"It's an easy vote," O'Neill said. "There's a frightened attitude of the people whenever they think of nuclear (war). They would like America to get to the peace table on this issue."

Supporters and opponents of the resolution — the latter group led by President Reagan — spent the day lobbying undecided House members. Reagan summoned about two dozen fence-sitters and anti-freeze congressmen to a White House meeting.

The measure, approved by the House Foreign Affairs Committee last week, calls for "a mutual and verifiable freeze on and reductions in nuclear weapons."

It passed the committee last year but was defeated by two votes on the House floor after Reagan's lobbying effort. But a number of states approved freeze referendums in

Mixup causes false death report

ROCKVILLE, Md. (UPI) — The family of a college youth, told by Pennsylvania state police he had died in an auto accident, had picked out a casket and scheduled a funeral before learning the report was a mistake; a family member said Tuesday.

"We thought he was dead. They told us he had died. It was horrible," said Mrs. Florence Milzman, the youth's grandmother.

Gelsinger Medical Center in Danville, Pa., said one of two victims of a weekend auto accident was misidentified because of a mixup at the hospital.

A hospital spokesman said Bruce Milzman, 20, Rockville, Md., did not die in the accident as first reported, but was in critical condition at the hospital.

"His father and mother went through the whole thing. They went to the Judean Memorial Gardens and picked a cemetery plot for Bruce. They picked out a casket and scheduled a funeral for 1:00 p.m. yesterday. They were all set," Mrs. Milzman said.

"We were so relieved when we found out. Susan (the mother) wanted to see Bruce one last time. And the funeral director said she could, but only partially because his body was so battered. The only thing exposed was his hands. She looked at them and said, 'That's not my Bruce.'"

The father, a dentist, examined the boy's mouth and determined the victim was not their son.

"What we went through," Mrs. Milzman said, "I feel so sorry for the other mother. I know what she's going through."

Shuttle 'go' still up in air

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Dust and grit found on a satellite to be launched from the shuttle Challenger appears less serious than feared and officials said Tuesday the ship may be cleared for blastoff the first week of April.

"Everybody feels a little better about it than they did this time last week," said spokesman David Garrett at NASA headquarters in Washington.

But he said a final "go" decision will await additional test results not expected until later this week.

Engineers at the TRW Inc. plant at Redondo Beach, Calif., are testing solar panel hinges similar to those on the satellite to see if contamination affects their operation.

The large tracking and data relay satellite was removed from the shuttle last weekend so technicians could check on the contamination.

Be cautious about Swan Falls water

They are often on the same side of issues, but the Idaho Power Co., on the one hand, and agricultural and irrigation interests, on the other, seem to be pulling in opposite directions on the question of what to do about water rights at Swan Falls Dam.

The issue has been building for months, since the Idaho Supreme Court ruled in November that the electric company holds the rights to 8,400 cubic feet of water per second at the Swan Falls generating site.

Now, irrigation and agricultural interests have asked the Legislature to set aside the company's water rights by subordinating them to future agricultural development.

Idaho Power has countered with a proposal of its own, effectively saying it will preserve water use to existing farms and for some non-irrigation uses like residential and industrial development. In return, it wants protection from customers who might claim the company shouldn't have given up the rights in the first place.

We think both sides have valid arguments, but on balance, we have serious doubts about a legislative proposal that would void the court's ruling and take away Idaho Power's water rights for agricultural development, which, to us, looks very expensive.

Furthermore, we doubt the constitutionality of a law that would take away the water rights without fair compensation, much less take them away retroactively.

The state attorney general's office is expected to issue an opinion on the legislation this week, but the power company is not waiting idly by. Idaho Power officials are getting around the valley this week, too, making sure their perspective on the Swan Falls question is understood.

In our view, the state should be careful here not to give too much ground (or should we say water) to either side.

But we think the company is correct to raise questions about a proposed law that would subordinate its water rights in a way that may well be unconstitutional. Go slowly, legislators.

Letters

Support for comments

The letters to the editor in March 13th Times-News hit the nail on the head without using a hammer. I commend the comments of Cecil Calhoun on the waste of school money for athletics and gyms; George Hansen on his stand against the tips tax for waitresses; the Rev. Gilbert Brown on the need for taxation of some church properties.

Did anyone else see Benson on TV on Friday (3-11-83)? That was a good example of no education and try to be an athlete without a future. Personally, I don't condone the money spent on bus trips for a few to go all over the state to ballgames. Have you seen the parking lot at the high school during class time? Those students could do a little more walking and they'd not need a gym for exercise.

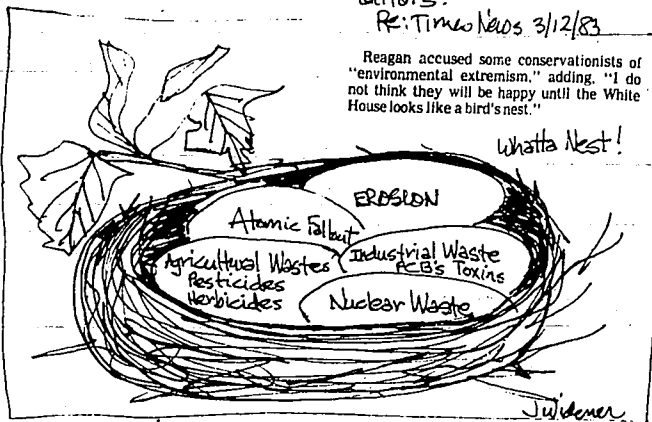

The city and its stupid waste of money on Dierkes Lake. I was out there once and I wouldn't take my dog there! They want the children to go there to swim! I live in the Harmon Park area and I'll surely miss the little swimmers with their towels on Locust Street, going to a decent place to play and swim, without an adult having to chaperone them. The city wants to make a cruising area for the teenagers, why not make it around Dierkes Lake and let our city sleep to wake up to clean parking lots and streets?

Now for George Hansen; for over fifteen years I worked as a waitress. Tips were never great on graywashed shirts locally. Some were gracious to leave a small gratuity, but most of the night party goers had spent their limit on their high life, would demand good service, yet never leave a dime tip. I'd always think, maybe, next time, but leeches are leeches and now the government comes on as another leech. I know many girls who are working as waitresses to support themselves, a child or more, live in low income housing. Now their employer deducts a percentage from their wages according to each one's sales receipts, whether they receive a tip or not. These girls tip their cashier, their husband, and do it from their tips. Now their rents will double as it is based on taxable income. Let the overpaid Senators and Representatives (who can, and do, vote themselves raises) think about living on less than $10,000 a year.

Yes, Rev. Brown, taxes should be paid on any property owned by churches that makes an income, be it a farm or a building. Just where do the churches get their properties? Put their extra money in a savings account — oh, well, now the government demands tax on savings accounts, too. I know this is a money-oriented society, but it is time that all these in the seals of government get the hot seat to bring them back to basics.

As I reread my notes, I see the basic theme is over-taxation — over-taxation that is spent on foreign aid. Keep the taxes at home, build the gyms and swimming pools, put people to work here. Like Scrooge, I say "Bah, humbug!"

yet. After all, the first daffodil hasn't even thought about sprouting yet, and everybody's grabbing their squirrel guns, gotta stop them rotten kids. They make too much noise. They leave a big mess. They "intimidate" people.

Okay, let's start with No. 3. I love it. As far as their "intimidation" goes, it's a little like someone being intimidated by a gnai. The only real way they could scare anybody is if they were to smile and wave. Proving to outsiders that despite the rumors, the cruisers are friendly. Moving on.

No. 2, a big mess. Yes, if I were a downtown businessman, I'd be irate, too. If I put out a trash can and some moron puts the trash beside it, not in it! Only one problem, though. How does one put trash in a non-existent trash can? This is either a question for a Zen Buddhist or the folks in charge of the infamous "cruisers welcome" cans — which, by the way, sit beside the city shop. Next...

Obviously, this leaves No. 1 — they makes noise! Nah, really? Come on, people. They're a bunch of kids out for fun (young or old) and, as any big-city psychologist will tell you, a quiet kid has a problem. So do we, it seems. Our kids are normal, rowdy, rambunctious, sometimes trouble-makers who like to have as much fun as possible the weekends as mom and dad do.

Granted, it's not fun to be a businessman and find your back parking lot partially destroyed the morning of your busiest day, and your hotel guests wondering if they spent the night under a freeway overpass. But, I feel our problem is as old and as inevitable as death and taxes. In other words, our "problem" is here to stay. As the Caterpillar ads used to say, "There are no easy answers, only intelligent solutions."

Let's hope that with the appointment of a new "cruise committee," and cooperation from the city council, last year was a step in the right direction. Hopefully, the city council will take it seriously. We can come up with the serious, intelligent solutions necessary to help ease the problem for all concerned.

Oh, joy! Oh, bliss! Spring is in the air, and so is all the flak about last year's big subject, "the cruise." I almost apologize for the "nice" letter last year.

Commoner underscores tie to Greens

Right after the West German election, political activist and environmentalist Barry Commoner sent a congratulatory telegram to Petra Kelly, leader of the German peace movement's political party, the Greens.

For the first time, the tiny Greens — a coalition of anti-nuclear campaigners and militant environmentalists — won representation in the German parliament and a base from which to carry on their effort to block deployment of U.S. cruise and Pershing missiles in West Germany.

"Your wonderful victory is an inspiration to Greens everywhere," Commoner said.

Commoner's congratulatory telegram underscores development of a new political strategy among progressives in the United States committed to both electoral and non-electoral political activism — a much closer association and identification with the European peace movement.

Commoner, the 1980 presidential candidate of the Citizens Party, won ballot status in some 30 states and gathered more than 250,000 votes on a platform stressing economic democracy, environmental issues and a mild anti-nuclearism.

Since the election, the party has struggled primarily to survive, although it mounted more than 80 local campaigns last fall and in the March 1, Burlington, Vt., city elections elected two new members to the city council, giving the party four council members.

But the fledgling party has yet to gain a coherent national image — one that will both attract media attention and win allegiance to electoral politics of the diffuse grassroots peace, environmental, civil rights and dissident labor movements it feels is its natural constituency.

Association with the European Greens, national party leaders feel, might change some of that.

The linkage began last year at the Citizens Party's national convention when Miss Kelly and a panel of Green leaders from other European peace movements addressed an enthusiastic standing-room-only crowd of delegates and observers.

In return, Commoner traveled to West Germany last month to appear at the Greens' "European Tribunal" in Nuremberg criticizing both U.S. and Soviet nuclear weapons policy.

Commoner is clear on inspiring the Greens as a "sister party" and he draws inspiration from their victory.

"I like the Green Party, we are just 4 years old, and like them we have achieved our first victories at the local level — electing 10 people to local office, including four members of the Burlington, Vt., city council."

"And we hope to emulate the Greens too by electing our first representative to Congress in 1983," he added.

Commoner, like the Greens, sees the first issue in the anti-nuclear campaign the quest for the forthcoming deployment of Pershing and cruise missiles.

"We in the Citizens Party, and we hope the United States peace movement as a whole, will work with the Greens to turn back President Reagan's effort to impose on the world this new escalation of the nuclear arms race," he said.

In a two-party political environment and one in which the peace movement is dominated by the essentially non-political freeze campaign, however, it is a long-shot strategy that will be difficult to pull off.

Keeping infrastructure in repair takes a lot of hard labor

WASHINGTON — Of all the words on the lips of today's politicians, the one most in favor is "infrastructure."

There are other trendy phrases, like "cyclical unemployment" and "structural unemployment." There are old standbys like "make-work bills" and "pork-barrel bills."

But infrastructure takes care of all kinds of unemployment, including cyclical and structural. Repairing the infrastructure is never make-work or pork barrel.

Repairing the infrastructure is so good it is beloved by Republican presidents and Democratic congressmen alike. It is what the jobs bill before Congress was all about before the bankers got hold of it.

The infrastructure is the basics. It is roads and bridges and tunnels. It is water mains and sewer systems and all of the things that government must provide if we are to live in the manner in which we would like to become accustomed. Keeping it in good repair is essential.

My office in Washington is three blocks from the Capitol. There was an infrastructure problem there recently, and I had a rare and precise opportunity to see the infrastructure being repaired. I kept notes.

When I served in local government, we called the problem a hole in the road, and the Highway Department fixed it. These are classier times. It is an infrastructure problem, requiring the efforts of the District of Columbia Department of Environmental Services.

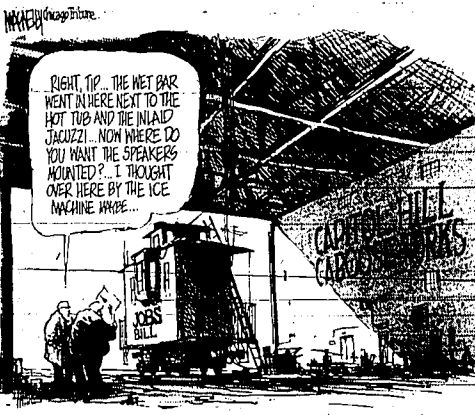

I summoned them before Christmas, when the infrastructure problem became large enough to swallow half a man, or take a car down to its bumper. No one had noticed. When I returned from a southern Christmas, a large metal plate had been placed over the decaying infrastructure.

Last week, work started. The first evidence was signs tied to trees, saying that for 11 days, there would be no parking allowed in front of the office.

- 8:30 a.m., March 7: Six men came in two trucks, placed orange cones around defective infrastructure.
- 9:15: Four more men arrived. No other action.
- 9:30: An 11th man in payloader-backhoe machine lifts metal plate from defect in infrastructure. It is a heavy plate, of size moved by two men with pinchbars and rollers back in days of Highway Department.
- 9:45: One man uses pneumatic drill to enlarge defect. Eight men watch. Two men lift 27 bricks from adjacent sidewalk.
- 9:55 to 11:27: Eleven men, seven wearing hardhats, inspect defect, yell, punch each other, laugh.
- 11:27: Backhoe starts digging, five-inch watch, one sign in truck reading newspaper, four disappear.
- 11:55: Man picks up shovel, and probes for and finds gas line. Backhoe continues digging.

others continue watching.

- 11:53 to 1 p.m.: 11 men.
- 2 p.m.: Backhoe reaches water, flowing at moderate rate, from defective infrastructure, causing more defective infrastructure.
- 2:45: One man gets in hole, puts patch on - water main, stops leak. Takes 15 minutes.
- 3 p.m.: Machine puts metal plate back over defective infrastructure, now larger — all get in trucks and sit.
- 3:30: All leave. End of day one.

Space does not permit full coverage of day two of repairing the infrastructure, which consisted of filling the hole and putting some concrete between loose bricks in an adjacent brick cistern in the road. Only seven men came, with three trucks towing one compressor and one trailer with hand tools. Of course, the backhoe-payloader came. It does the work.

There were moments when repairs were actually being made. The fastest was: One man did enter the cistern for 43 minutes and used two buckets of cement. Two men actually got on hands and knees for several minutes to replace bricks in sidewalk. There was a brief period around 11:27 when everyone was working.

The average moment during the day, however, consisted of two men working, three watching, and two in trucks in positions consistent with slumber. There was joking and arguing and horse play and wrestling and running down to the corner to follow the police car with the siren.

There were long periods of time when absolutely nothing was happening, including the first hour and last half hour of each day. The old Highway Department back home would have finished the job in one day with four men. At the end of day two the metal plate was still covering the defective infrastructure.

I asked a man why it had taken so long to get started. "We're very short-handed," said he. Thank heaven for that jobs bill!

Otis Pike, a former Congressman, writes for Newhouse News Service.

Philadelphia area rail unions strike

United Press International

Negotiators for the Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority and Transport Workers Union Local 234, representing Philadelphia's bus, trolley and subway workers, reached an agreement about an hour after their contract expired at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday.

The TWU's 5,200 members refused to honor the picket lines of the 12 commuter rail unions, whose members walked off the job after their midnight contract deadline.

"The only reason the TWU got their contract was because of us," said Frank Gavin, 36, a railworker walking a picket line.

Meteorite rock comes from the planet Mars

JOHNSON SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — A bowling ball size meteorite believed to be from Mars has provided scientists with their first close-up look at a rock from another planet, authorities said Tuesday.

Dr. Robert Peplin, a physics professor at the University of Minnesota, said he recently completed a series of tests which convince him the rock — found in Antarctica in 1979 — definitely is from Mars.

"The nitrogen in the Mars atmosphere which was measured by the Viking is different in composition than nitrogen anywhere else in the solar system," Peplin said.

The rock, about the size of a bowling ball, is grayish-white with dark spots on it. Peplin said the amount of nitrogen in the rock is similar to that found in the atmosphere of Mars.

Previous tests had determined the chemical analysis of the rock was much like other chemicals found on Mars.

"This is significant because if it is from Mars, it represents the first sample that we know came from another planet," Peplin said.

Scientists have long believed most meteorites, if not all, come from asteroids or burned out comets.

Peplin believes the rock may unlock countless mysteries about Mars and Earth.

Colorado snowbound for third time

By JAMES LAWRENCE
United Press International

DENVER — Colorado's third major storm of the winter punched into the Rockies Tuesday with 18 inches of snow, closings highways and schools, and state officials warned that livestock could be in danger.

Hundreds of schools along the Front Range were closed, several highways were blocked by jackknifed trucks, airline flights were delayed up to four hours and truckers parked their rigs at truck stops to wait out the storm.

Many farmers and ranchers were snowbound by the storm, but disaster-emergency centers said no lives were threatened.

A Pacific front, pulling moisture from the Gulf of Mexico, was expected to bring more than a foot of snow to eastern Colorado before it left Wednesday. Agriculture officials said the wet snow and expected cold temperatures could kill newborn calves and lambs.

The heaviest snow fell on the mountains along the Front Range west of Denver, with 18 inches reported at Cripple Creek, at the foot of Pikes Peak, and at the Hidden Valley ski area near Estes Park. Five inches of snow hit Stapleton International Airport at Denver, where three of the four runways were closed and flights were delayed more than one hour.

Frontier Airlines brought in 3,000 sandwiches, soft drinks, coffee, and even diapers and baby food to give to the passengers waiting for flights.

"There is a feeling of 'deja vu,'" airlines spokesman Bob Schulman said, referring to a Christmas Eve blizzard that closed Stapleton 33 hours for the first time in 30 years, stranding thousands of travelers. A March 5 storm that brought 18 inches of snow didn't close the airport, but resulted in long delays.

Vanda Howell, 21, of Denver, sat in the terminal waiting to catch a flight to Bismarck, N.D.

"It's just an act of Mother Nature," she said of the storm. "There's nothing you can do but sit and wait."

There's nothing you can do but sit and wait."

Dave Daldegan, 21, of Greeley, Colo., said his four-hour wait for his flight to Sacramento was made relatively painless by the accommodations of the airlines, which had learned from the earlier storms.

"I'm in no hurry to get out," he said, munching a sandwich supplied by the airline. "What the airlines are doing for us is great."

A Frontier employee-on-the-sandwich-line, Gordon Smith, said no one had been impatient yet. "As long as the flights are moving, people are not upset," he said. "When nothing moves, they get angry. We're just keeping the masses content."

About 30 people were stranded in their vehicles for a short time on U.S. 24 between Colorado Springs and Limon, but Filbert County Deputy Sheriff Dan Moorhead said three plows reached the vehicles and pulled them free.

Buzzards return to Hinckley as usual

HINCKLEY, Ohio (UPI) — Buzzards soared and glided in cloudy skies Tuesday before coming to roost in trees and on ledges in Hinckley, completing an annual spring rite first recorded in the early 1800s.

Early settlers recorded that the dark-feathered ugly birds returned to their northeastern Ohio roosts on the 16th of March.

Lt. Roger Lutz, a Cleveland Metroparks ranger who has been buzzard watching for 15 years, was on hand to welcome the birds this year.

"We spotted the first two at 8:21 a.m. and a half an hour later we saw seven more. Those seven went way up in the air. They were soaring so high you could barely see them," Lutz said.

About 100 buzzards, with a maximum wing span of up to six feet, roost in trees and on ledges in the park 30 miles south of Cleveland.

Naturalists said the buzzards go south for the winter, but were not sure where they stay.

"It's the biology of them and their surroundings that prompt their return this time of year," said Ken Gober, a Metroparks naturalist. "Their biological clock keeps track of everything."

The buzzards lay their eggs inside hollow trees, under dense shrubbery, or on the bare ground around abandoned buildings, rock ledges and caves, which are plentiful in the park, he noted.

Along with Gober's explanation for the buzzards' return, two legends attempt to tell why the birds come back.

One legend says a Wyandot Indian woman was hanged for witchcraft and the buzzards were drawn to the site by her-decaying body.

2 producing oil wells spread land-rush fever

LINDEN, Texas (UPI) — Oilmen suffering land-rush fever jammed "elbow to elbow" into a tiny county deed office Tuesday to check ownership maps and title claims for land near two impressive northeast Texas oil wells.

"Early yesterday we counted 33 and they were still coming in," said Cass County Clerk of Court Wilma O'Rand. "I've set up long tables in the halls so it would be more convenient for them to come and work."

"There is no more working space available in the deed room. It is just elbow to elbow and we still have people sitting on the floor."

Both wells reportedly were producing hundreds of barrels of oil daily, prompting companies to offer bonus lease payments of $500 to $1,500 per acre to landowners. That is up to 30 times the $50 an acre offered to landowners last year, Mrs. O'Rand said.

The land-rush fever has been building for about three weeks, and no one knows how long the saturation of oilmen will last.

"The way they (oilmen) talk to me, it could phase out in a week because they run out of money or there are no leases left," she said. "But if they bring in another well, it could go on several years like this."

Representatives of both major oil firms and small independents have crowded into the deed office, Mrs. O'Rand said. But the intense competition has been too much for some firms.

What's what

A personage by the name of Dee Light lives in Baltimore, Md. Of what she does for a living, I have no knowledge, unfortunately. Would like to nominate her for the Proper Job Club. If she were a dancer, she'd qualify to trip Dee Light fantastic. If she were a tunnel toll collector, she'd qualify as Dee Light at the end of the tunnel. But these suppositions may be too whimsical for her. They might not turn on Dee Light.

Q. Wasn't actress Coris Leachman a Miss America?
 A. A contestant—anyway. She was a Miss Chicago, though.

FOUL LANGUAGE

Public use of what the old folks called filthy language has become so popular among the young women of Great Britain that even some sociology scholars are wondering what's going on. The trend has been crescendoing worldwide for a score of years. True, but nowhere more so than in the British Isles, evidently. The finished English lady is distinguished by her exquisite delivery. It's accepted now with stark stinging syllables in rejection of the old gentility. This violation of the past gets attention, it does, like blood on silk.

Raymond, Peggy Porter embrace on dock alongside his ship

Couple's farewell wave may be last

ALAMEDA, Calif. (UPI) — When the Navy carrier Coral Sea departs on a six-month voyage this week, Peggy Porter will wave farewell to her sailor husband — perhaps for the last time. ... She has terminal cancer. ... The Porters were married 11 years ago in Virginia City, Nev., by a justice of the peace but Mrs. Porter said she wanted a church ceremony before she died. ... "When I found out he was going to be gone from April to October," she said, "I wanted to have a wedding like this. ... She said she and her husband discussed whether he should go back to sea but decided that volunteering to go back was the right thing. ... "His philosophy is Navy, Navy, Navy, the country and then me," she said. ... Mrs. Porter said she may be saying goodbye to her man but she is not about to give up on her fight with cancer. ... "The doctors told him I wouldn't be here last Christmas," she said. ... "I've made it this far ... and I hope to be there when the ship docks in Virginia six months from now."

Police sergeant claims right to bare his legs

SWEETWATER, Fla. (UPI) — City police Sgt. Ray Toledo claims he has the right to bare his legs. Toledo, a seven-year veteran of this suburban Miami police department, said Tuesday he plans to file a grievance with the Police Benevolent Association because Mayor Armando Penedo has ordered him to stop wearing running shorts during off-duty hours. He said he might even file suit against the mayor. Penedo said Sweetwater residents have complained to him about Toledo's brief attire. "A police officer is a police officer 24 hours a day," Penedo said after Toledo showed up at a City Council meeting sporting his gray shorts. "Everybody knows him, for heaven sakes." But Toledo said he hears only praise about his short shorts. "I personally have received great compliments while showing my great legs, from women and members of the City Council," he said. Toledo said he refuses to change his style just to suit the mayor. He said his constitutional rights are at stake.

West Virginia rejects Manson's transfer bid

MOUNDSVILLE, W.Va. (UPI) — It does not matter if Charles Manson, serving life in a California prison in the 1969 Tate-LaBianca murders, comes across like "Little Lord Fauntleroy," West Virginia Penitentiary Warden Donald Bordenkircher wants nothing to do with him. Manson wrote a letter to Bordenkircher last week asking to be accepted as a transfer from the Vacaville Medical Facility. A spokesman at the California corrections facility said he was unaware of Manson's transfer request. "My reaction was that I laughed, and I said, 'It will be a cold day in hell,'" Bordenkircher said. "He apparently grew up in the Benwood-McMeehan area, which is just a few miles from here. Some of his relatives did time in the facility here, and he said they helped build a lot of the roads in the area. He just wanted to carry on the family tradition, I guess." California law allows for transfer of prisoners to other states. But West Virginia authorities are not allowed to accept transfers, nor is Bordenkircher partial to the idea.

Doctors wean Clark from respirator

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Doctors Tuesday gradually weaned artificial heart recipient Barney Clark from the respirator he has had to use since developing pneumonia March 3. Clark was listed in "fair" condition at the University of Utah Medical Center during his 103th day on the Jarvik 7 heart. Medical center spokeswoman Anne Brillinger said the 62-year-old retired Des Moines, Wash., dentist was again taking mild soups and liquids-by-mouth. He was fed through a feeding tube inserted in his throat since he became sick to his stomach and accidentally inhaled pieces of food during the nausea-causing the aspiration pneumonia. The spokeswoman said doctors still were unsure what caused Clark's upset stomach March 3, but they believed he suffered a mild case of the flu.

Actor plans to wed Sunday

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Oscar-winning actor Richard Dreyfuss, star of "The Goodbye Girl," "Jaws" and "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," will be married Sunday, a spokesman said Tuesday. The marriage will be the first for Dreyfuss, 34, and second for Susan Davis, who works in New York under the stage name of Jeramie Rain. Miss Rain graduated from George Washington High School in Charleston, W.Va., in 1966. She has played small parts in daytime soap operas and is working as a writer-producer for CBS in New York. Dreyfuss won an Academy Award for his performance in "The Goodbye Girl," and recently starred in "Whose Life Is It Anyway?" The actor was hospitalized last October for three days in Los Angeles after he crashed his car into tree. Hospital personnel looking through his clothing during an inventory of his belongings found two wads containing a small amount of cocaine and 31 tablets of the pain-killin narcotic Percodan. Dreyfuss later said in an interview that cocaine was hurting his acting and had quit the drug. He was allowed to enter a drug diversion program rather than stand trial for possession of cocaine.

Salvador 'loses' aid money

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — The Defense Ministry confirmed Tuesday that two unidentified foreigners believed to be journalists traveling with leftist rebels were killed in a fight with soldiers.

And a report released by the American Embassy said $25 million in U.S. loans to El Salvador's land reform program could not be accounted for, recommending the funds be written off as a loss.

The report, prepared by researchers from the Washington-based Checchi & Co., said the money was lent on "an emergency basis in the first months of the reform. In 1980, and it is still unclear what some of the money was used for."

"Where there is no clear evidence that the money was received or used productively, write it off as uncollectable," the report recommended.

The report, not an official U.S. government document, did not state where researchers believed the money went, but opposition parties have charged the Agrarian Reform Institute was riddled with corruption.

The Defense Ministry statement broke more than 24 hours of official silence on the killing of two foreigners in a firefight Monday outside Suchitoto, 32 miles north of San Salvador, confirming a report heard over army radio.

"Two foreigners believed to be journalists were killed in the fighting around La Bermuda (a hamlet outside Suchitoto), one man and one woman," the ministry statement said.

"I said the fighting broke out when guerrillas attacked an army patrol. One soldier, the two foreigners and at least 18 rebels were killed, the ministry said.

Leftists seek closer ties with U.S.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — A top Sandinista leader called on Washington to improve relations with his country, but vowed Nicaragua would not become "a link in the empire" of the United States, the official government newspaper said Tuesday.

Speaking at a ceremony Monday to commemorate the 100th anniversary of Karl Marx's death, Victor Tirado, a member of the ruling nine-man Sandinista Junta, also said, "Socialism and communism are historically necessary."

He called on President Reagan to "abandon the old plans" and work toward improved relations with Nicaragua, the newspaper Barricada said.

"We want to change the relations with the United States," said Tirado. "We're not, and don't want to be, a step in the border or a link in the empire. We want to have normal relations with the United States based on equality."

"(Reagan) firmly believes his country maintains the vigor and supremacy of the Cold War years, when it dragged all its allies into adventures that it put in execution."

Tirado repeated the Sandinistas' frequent charge that the United States is funding Honduran-based rightists, who "continue murders on the northern border of Nicaragua."

"How can they ask us to let down our guard?" Tirado asked, referring to Washington's criticism of Nicaragua's heavy-military buildup since leftist guerrillas overthrew the regime of President Anastasio Somoza in July 1979.

The Reagan administration maintains the main roadblock to improved relations with Managua is that the Sandinistas have been allowing weapons shipments, for Salvadoran guerrillas to pass through Nicaragua.

Marines on maneuvers

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — Waves of U.S. and South Korean marines stormed ashore Tuesday along Korea's southeastern coast in war games denounced by communist North Korea.

The joint amphibious landing operation, the climax of military maneuvers known as Team Spirit 83, began near Pohang, 170 miles southeast of Seoul, in an area where fierce fighting raged in the Korean war 30 years ago.

The troops were supported by an armada of 34 U.S. ships from the 7th Fleet, including two battle groups led by the nuclear carrier Enterprise and the carrier USS Midway. They were joined by South Korean navy vessels in the maneuvers.

Storming the beach aboard hundreds of landing craft were more than 2,000 U.S. marines—and four battalions of South Korean marines, each estimated to have about 1,200 men.

U.S. may take bigger military role in Lebanon

By JIM ANDERSON United Press International

WASHINGTON — The United States has offered to play a larger military role in Lebanon to break the deadlock in negotiations on the withdrawal of Israeli troops from Lebanon, a senior U.S. official said Tuesday.

The official, backing up what Lebanese sources said earlier, suggested the U.S. role could involve an enhanced contingent for the U.N. international force in Lebanon or in the multinational peace-keeping force now in Beirut.

In addition, the official said, the United States could enlarge its training program to accelerate the combat readiness of a Lebanese armored combat division, which would take control of a 25-mile strip of southern Lebanon just north of Israel's border.

The United States also could participate in a joint military commission which would supervise the arrangements in the 25-mile zone, the official said.

Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir said Monday after meetings with Secretary of State George Shultz and President Reagan the Israeli government opposes an American role in the security arrangements in southern Lebanon.

But Shamir unexpectedly changed his schedule and conferred twice more with Shultz Tuesday as Assistant Secretary of State Nicholas Velotes and special Middle East envoys Philip Habib and Morris Draper explained the U.S. proposal to Lebanese Foreign Minister Fie Salem.

"Some new ideas have emerged and I am going home with these ideas and we will consider it at home," Shamir told reporters before his scheduled departure for Israel Tuesday night. "I am going home with the conviction that we are nearer for a solution."

"I hope we will overcome all the difficulties we are facing and we will reach an agreement for the sake of peace in the area and the wellbeing of Israel and Lebanon," he said.

Special Lebanese envoy Saeb Salam will deliver a message from Lebanese President Amin Gemayel to President Reagan Wednesday warning that time is running out for a solution and that the only strategic winner in a continued stalemate in the Middle East will be the Soviet Union, the sources said.

Lebanese and American sources agreed that Lebanon will not and cannot accept any continued Israeli presence in Lebanon because it would be inconsistent with Lebanese sovereignty and would isolate Lebanon in the Arab world.

Engineers and canal company officials inspect the water seepage damage at the Milner Dam site

Dam repairs under way

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

MILNER — A leak in Milner Dam, discovered as canal companies were just beginning to fill the reservoir above it, is now being fixed and should not cause a delay in beginning this year's irrigation season.

Warren Travis, the manager of the Twin Falls Canal Co., said Tuesday that the leak, which at one point had let 150 to 200 cubic feet of water per second seep through the dam, was discovered two hours after the dam's gates were closed Monday morning.

Travis said the leak was the result of "a muskrat hole or something," which allowed water to penetrate through the clay seal on the upstream side of the structure and into its core.

The water then caused a small section of the earth-and-rock dam to erode away, Travis said. But, he said, no portion of the dam ever was in any danger of being washed out.

The leak is located just to the right of the main flood gates.

Milner Dam provides water for three Magic Valley canal companies. Crews from the Twin Falls, North Side and Wood River canal companies were at the site Tuesday with trucks and heavy machinery, stripping away damaged portions of the dam in order to patch the leak.

Engineers from CH2M Hill of Boise were assisting in the repair. They had been drilling core samples of the dam when workers noticed the leak.

The core samples were needed for another project — an application by the North Side and Twin Falls canal companies to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission for a hydroelectric generating license, Travis said.

Irrigation water from the Snake River, which would have been stored behind Milner Dam in preparation for the opening of the irrigation season, is being held upstream at the American Falls and Mindoka dams by the Federal Bureau of Reclamation.

Don Tracy, the Mindoka Project superintendent, said Tuesday that the flow between Mindoka and Milner dams has been cut to 1,400 cubic feet per second, or roughly half of last week's flow.

Idaho Power Co. officials said that reduction would not affect power generation since the flow of the river downstream from Milner Dam is adequate this time of the year.

"We had a drop in the water yesterday, but it is about back to normal now, and there is water going over the spillway," said Jeff Brown, an employee at Idaho Power's Shoshone Falls power plant.

Milner Dam was constructed around 1908, Travis said. But, he said, the leak was not due to aging, so much as the configuration of the dam when it was constructed.

Chuck Collins, the assistant manager of the Northside Canal Co., who was also at the site Tuesday, agreed.

Senator is asking farmers to pressure BLM

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — A state senator from Carey is asking Idaho ranchers and farmers to pressure the federal Bureau of Land Management into extending its public comment period for the proposed sale of BLM lands.

The comment period is scheduled to end March 30 on the BLM's initial package of land that has been proposed for sale. The land has been identified under President Ronald Reagan's plan to raise money to help balance the national budget by selling unneeded federal land.

After the comment period closes, a formal draft of the multi-year BLM plan will be available for six weeks of comment, beginning

In May, before the proposed sales are finalized.

"I think the BLM is sensitive to public comment," Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, said Tuesday in Boise. "I think they may be willing to stop and take maybe one more year to look at this thing."

"The problem right now is that after two weeks, the draft plan will go to printing, and they aren't going to be wanting to change it much," he said. "We're already pretty far down the road at this point."

Peavey said that he does not oppose selling small, isolated tracts such as cabin sites, urban property or even grazing land that can better be used for farming.

"But in the counties of my area, they have identified sections that are key to grazing operations for many ranchers," he said. "Without them, they lose control of grazing access and routes."

To back his statements, Peavey showed a letter addressed to Reagan from a fellow Blaine County rancher, A. J. Donelson Morrow.

In that letter, Morrow wrote, "Two parcels of land currently managed by the BLM and used by our ranch for approximately 100 years are earmarked for public sale in 1984. ... Because of the intense demand for small parcels of land, I fear that we will not be able to afford to be the high bidders on these 160 acres," Morrow wrote.

Much of the Blaine County land earmarked for sale will be bought by speculators, Peavey believes. As an example, he cited 11 acres recently purchased for $20,000 near his sheep ranch, even though there was no access to power or telephone lines.

"These range lands produce less than $2 worth of grass a year, yet the government estimates the land will sell between $100 and $400 an acre," he said.

These prices — based on speculative residential values — are too high for ranchers to afford during this recessionary period, both Peavey and Morrow claim.

Yet, equally devastating results could occur if ranchers are allowed to purchase the lands they need for grazing at $5 or $10 an acre, Peavey warns.

"To buy the land, a rancher will have to go back to his banker to refinance loans we've all had to make, based on the value of our properties," he said. "If we have to refinance based on $5 or $10 an acre, the ensuing crash of land values would be devastating on the Western economy and financing base."

"The land's grazing value depends upon its being grazed as a whole unit," Peavey said. "When several pieces of the puzzle are removed, the grazing practices can be seriously disrupted."

"Landowners will have the opportunity to meet the high bid (at auction). But with the highly inflated land prices and severely depressed livestock prices, how competitive can ranchers be?"

"It is imperative that interested people request an additional comment period from their state and local BLM offices," he said.

Architects present proposal for new elementary school

By HARRIET GUTHERTZ
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Architects for the Twin Falls school board outlined the details of a proposed elementary school and high-school gym addition at a public meeting Tuesday night at the high school.

Clyde Weber of Design West, a Boise-based architectural firm, told the audience — which was composed primarily of citizens working to promote the passage of the school bond levy on April 19 — that they could buy two energy-efficient structures within the $4 million that will be raised if the bond levy is approved.

Weber and six associates worked out the plans at a three-day design workshop, held last Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at the high school.

The proposed 26-room elementary school would feature passive solar heating, earth-sheltered walls and a separate play area for kindergarten children.

"The school would be located on a lot east of Robert Stuart Junior High School, and it would feature hardtop playgrounds in front. The building would be set on the lot to maximize the southern exposure needed for solar heating."

Although the school would have a gas-fired heating system to back up the solar system, Weber expects the school to use only 40 percent to 50 percent as much energy as a conventional building.

Light shafts and windows would be located to maximize natural classroom lighting to further cut the school's utility bills, he said. Louvered window shades and a mechanical ventilation system would control the heat and make the building usable year-round.

Although the building site is suited to the use of geothermal energy for heating, Design West projections make the use of that system uneconomical in the short run, Weber said. The calculations show that a geothermal system would not pay for itself for 36 years. However, if Robert Stuart Junior High was retrofitted for geothermal, the "payoff" period could be shortened to seven years, he said.

In any case, the school will be built to facilitate future conversion to geothermal heat.

Weber stressed that this "high-tech" construction will not cost the district any more than a conventional building. The district will spend more on high-density masonry walls, but it will save on mechanical systems, he said. The school will not need as big a heating system as a conventionally constructed building.

Because the gym project would be an addition rather than new construction, it will not have as many modern construction features as the elementary school, but it still will be an energy-efficient and functional building, he said.

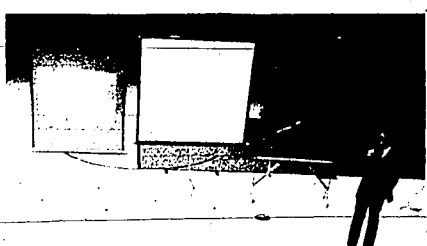

The approximately 15,000-square-foot gym would be about half the size of the current high-school gym, and it would be long enough for a basketball court, Weber said. The project also would include a special room for handicapped students to exercise in, a mat room for wrestling and tumbling, and a classroom space.

The present locker rooms also would be remodeled to include individual storage space for each student and an adequate number of showers.

Paul Ostyn, the chairman of the citizens' committee that first formulated the construction projects, followed the architects' presentation with an appeal to get out the "yes" voters on April 19. Because the bond levy must pass by a two-thirds majority, one "no" vote cancels two "yes" votes, he said.

There is nothing fancy in the buildings and both are necessary, he said.

A slide-tape presentation explaining the bond election in further detail is available from the school administration. School officials will hold another public meeting before the election.

Jackpot says yes to golf

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

JACKPOT — Jackpot residents went for golf in a big way Tuesday.

With 82 of 97 voters supporting a bond-levy proposal for an additional nine holes at the county golf course, the $600,000 project drew support beyond the hopes of county pro Bill Downs and Elko County Clerk Bob Kane.

"I was positive it was going to pass, but not by that great a majority," Kane said.

"We feel real good about this," Downs said. "We felt it would pass; we just didn't know how many it would pass by."

The general-obligation bonds will be offered for sale immediately, with Cactus Pete's casino and George Detweiler Jr. of Twin Falls having indicated that they will buy them, according to Downs. Bids for construction will be taken as soon as positions are filled.

The bonds will be paid back through a five-and-a-half-percent room tax, all of which must be raised in Jackpot.

"We already have $200,000 in reserve. That's after paying for the first nine and operating expenses," Downs said. "We'll sell $600,000 worth of bonds under this vote, but we already have $300,000 sitting in the bank."

Two things were expected to present problems in attaining the two-thirds majority required for passage of the bond levy.

The first was the fact that if the room-tax income is not sufficient, the shortage would have to be made up through property taxes. The second is the recent drive in Jackpot to locate a high school in the growing community. Currently, the town's high-school students are bused 60 miles to Wells and back each day.

"A lot of people thought if (the golf-course vote) came under the same heading as the high school, but

School consolidation is just talk, say officials

By HARRIET GUTHERTZ
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — Lincoln County residents who are supporting a petition drive for a consolidated school district in the county may provoke a lot of discussion, but school administrators do not think the proposal has much of a chance.

Consolidation might help Shoshone, but "we think we have a better school than they do," says Wayne Perron, the superintendent of the Dietrich district.

"Students in a small school get more individual attention and a better education than those in a larger school," says Jay Jones, the superintendent of the Richfield district.

Perron and Jones both think the proposal might look attractive to Shoshone residents, because that school district is facing tight finances and the loss of students, they say.

However, Jack Durham of Shoshone, one of the organizers of the petition drive, says that the one-to-five teacher-student ratio in the Dietrich schools is not an efficient use of tax dollars. If the three districts in the county were consolidated, the district could save on personnel costs, still retain reasonable size classes and offer students a wider variety of courses, he says.

Right now, all of the schools are teaching the basics, Durham says. If the districts were consolidated, the schools could teach the basics, plus a wider variety of electives, he says.

Shoshone Superintendent Kenneth Crothers said consolidation would mean better education, but he said Tuesday that he realizes that a petition drive is just the first step in a long process of implementing consolidation.

The idea of consolidating the county's three districts has been around for a long time, but it has never gotten to the voting stage, he says. Crothers, who has served as Shoshone superintendent for 18 years, says that a consolidation proposal was floated around in 1968.

A smaller school not only enables students to get more individual attention, but forces them to assume more

Senate snuffs out clean air measure

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee yesterday shot down a measure Tuesday that would outlaw smoking in certain public places.

The proposed Idaho Indoor Clean Air Act failed on a nearly unanimous vote after opponents charged it would force an undue burden upon restaurants and businesses affected by the bill.

Critics also said it could infringe upon the constitutional rights of some people.

The Idaho Lung Association and a specialist in pulmonary medicine unsuccessfully tried to have the committee push the bill out to the Senate floor.

Under the bill — which was nearly identical to a measure introduced during the 1981 legislative session — smoking would be banned on elevators and some other tightly confined public places.

In most restaurants and offices open to the public, managers would be required to set up partitioned areas for smokers and non-smokers and post signs declaring the segregated seating system.

Some businesses, such as bars and bowling alleys, would be exempt from the restrictions.

Ray Park, representing the Idaho Lung Association, said the state should work to preserve air quality in the Gem State — outdoors as well as indoors.

"The state should protect its citizens from the devastating effects of second-hand smoke," Park told the Senate panel.

Sen. Denton Darrington, R-Declo, asked Park if he thought that a case of an employer prohibiting his officer workers from smoking on the job would constitute a violation of the employees' civil rights.

"Not at all," Park said. "You're talking about public health matters. This small measure of restrictions on civil liberties is not too much of a cross to bear."

Kenneth Torrington, a Boise physician specializing in pulmonary medicine, said breathers of "second-hand" smoke — the group which would be primarily benefited by the legislation — often suffer health problems through inhaling others' cigarette smoke.

Tobacco and restaurant industry lobbyist William Roden said the bill was an example of the Legislature dabbling in matters it should leave alone.

"This is a health issue that is not suited for the Legislature to try to address," Roden said.

Roden and other tobacco-industry spokesmen said setting up smoking partitions would add a substantial cost to many business operations.

BOISE (UPI) — Senators failed Tuesday to override a veto by Gov. John Evans of a bill which would have allowed county clerks in southern Idaho's Mountain Time Zone to re-release election results on their local races while polls remain open in the north.

The upper chamber voted 22-13 to override, with Sen. Vern Lannen of Pinehurst the only Democrat to join the cohesive Republican majority. But lawmakers failed to amass the two-thirds majority necessary to reject the governor's red ink.

Senators originally approved the measure on a 33-1 tally.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, would have amended a state law prohibiting the release of any election returns in Idaho until all polls close in the northern Pacific Time Zone.

It would have allowed the release of results in the south if ballots on those

BOISE (UPI) — Major utilities, aided by a narrow majority of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee, have staved off a legislative drive by small-power producers to require the large corporations to purchase generated electricity.

The committee's decision Tuesday ended weeks of hearings and debate about whether Idaho Power, Utah Power & Light Co. and other major firms should be forced to buy electricity from owners of small power plants.

"We haven't lost anything, but we think everybody stood to gain by this bill," said Vern Ravenscroft, representative of the Idaho Independent Power Producers Council.

The legislative panel first voted 8-8 to kill a motion to hold the bill until the Idaho Supreme Court rules whether the state Public Utilities Commission already possesses authority to require utilities to deal with cogenerators.

BOISE (UPI) — Lobbyists have spent nearly $60,000 so far this legislative session to promote their causes, according to reports filed with the Secretary of State's office.

The documents show eight lobbyists and lobbying groups have spent more than $2,000 and 13 others have spent more than $1,000 on lawmakers and other state officials in January and February.

Spending the most money on lobbying during the two-month period was William Roden, a Boise attorney, who reported expenses of $7,769 for a dinner and reception for state officials.

Roden also has been working against a bill to raise the drinking age, he said spent $3,594 for a dinner at the Holiday Inn on Jan. 10 sponsored by the Idaho Innkeepers Association, the Idaho Restaurant Association and the Idaho Licensed Beverage Association.

Roden spent another $3,819 for a reception at the Red Lion Downtown on Jan. 19 sponsored by the Idaho Beer and Wine Distributors Association.

Second on the list of lobbyist spending was Paul Wise, who represents Blue Shield of Idaho, Idaho Cable TV Association and the Idaho Land Title Association.

Senator to pinpoint waste

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. Terry Reilly says waste in state government should be pointed out by legislators, and he intends to do just that Thursday with presentation of the first annual "Willed Shamrock Awards."

Reilly, a first-term Democrat from Nampa, said Tuesday his St. Patrick's Day news conference would feature details on three instances of waste and unnecessary spending in one branch of state government.

The senator dodged questions Tuesday on which of the three branches — legislative, executive or judicial — he would target.

Meanwhile, the Senate adopted bills Tuesday which:

- Allow the Idaho Board of Education to retain the $20 fee paid by teachers for new certificates or renewals when the application is denied. Under current law, teachers whose applications are turned down have their $20 fee refunded. Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, said the board still incurs expenses to investigate each application, whether it is granted or not. Certificates remain valid for five years.
- Raise from 90 cents to $1.10 the charge for vehicle license plates. Sen. Denton Darrington, R-Declo, said the state will lose $7,000 unless fees are raised to cover the higher cost of producing the plates at Prison Industries.

GOP can't find budget's bottom line

By MARK SHENEFELT
United Press International

BOISE — The Legislature's Republican majority inched closer Tuesday to a fiscal 1984 budget of $440 million, but leaders stopped short of fully embracing the number as jockeying continued over how to raise enough revenue to cover the spending target.

Many lawmakers, including Democrats and some Republicans, maintained, however, that even a budget of $440 million would not be sufficient to adequately fund public schools while avoiding severe reductions in other state programs.

"I think we're coming around to $440," House Majority Caucus Chairman Linden Bateman, R-Idaho Falls, said after a closed-door meeting of GOP representatives.

Bateman said a straw vote on the budget target was inconclusive because some members were absent and others didn't vote. He said the fact that some past critics of a budget above $400 million didn't vote showed their opposition may have softened.

In the Senate, the majority Republicans also were looking more favorably at a $440 million general fund appropriation, said Sen. Marsden Williams, R-Idaho Falls, caucus chairman.

But Williams said the upper-chamber Republicans were marking time while the House reached a consensus on some major revenue and budget measures.

"We're trying to find how to fund it (a $440 million budget)," Bateman said.

Legislative leaders continued to circulate a "shopping list" of potential tax increases for the fiscal year 1984, Bateman said. Much of the revenue would come from increases in corporate taxes, but lawmakers would attach a one-year "sunset" clause to any such hikes, he said.

In addition, House Speaker T.W. Stivers, R-Twin Falls, said GOP leaders now believed another $14 million may be available in sales tax revenue next year after the state pays off tax-anticipation II issues to balance the fiscal 1983 budget.

Until Tuesday, legislators had been citing an $8 million reservoir of revenue left over from the recently enacted one-cent increase in Idaho's sales tax. But Stivers and Bateman said lawmakers now were confident that a higher income rate would develop.

Despite Tuesday's actions, the Legislature's Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee remained in a holding pattern, with no escape in sight. Several legislators said something had to be done to boost revenues so the budget-setting process could begin.

"I'm ready to set budgets," said Rep. Lawrence Knigge, R-Filer. "We've got to get out of this place."

Unless lawmakers agree to set a budget above a $440 million, the Legislature will short-change higher education and other state programs if it keeps level-school funding at a break-even point, Knigge said.

Utilities' battle defeats power producers' bill

By MARK SHENEFELT

BOISE (UPI) — Major utilities, aided by a narrow majority of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee, have staved off a legislative drive by small-power producers to require the large corporations to purchase generated electricity.

The committee's decision Tuesday ended weeks of hearings and debate about whether Idaho Power, Utah Power & Light Co. and other major firms should be forced to buy electricity from owners of small power plants.

"We haven't lost anything, but we think everybody stood to gain by this bill," said Vern Ravenscroft, representative of the Idaho Independent Power Producers Council.

After that, the committee defeated

VERN RAVENSCROFT
"Wedn't lose"
9-7 a motion to send the bill out to the Idaho Power. Then, a voice vote was used to hold the measure in committee — effectively killing it.

Ravenscroft said he believed the bill failed "because of the overall turmoil in the energy-water situation."

A battle in the courts and the legislative chambers over whether Idaho Power's water rights should be subordinated to clear the way for irrigation development along the Snake River has clouded other energy-water issues, including cogeneration, Ravenscroft said.

The lobbyist said he would consult members of the Power Producers Council before deciding whether to re-introduce the legislation again next year.

Cogenerators sought the legislative mandate on small-power producers because they said the large utilities have attempted to stall and thwart electricity-purchase contracts.

Rep. Gary Montgomery, R-Boise, who recently represented a small producer in a PUC complaint against Idaho Power, told the committee a legislative mandate is needed to eliminate legal squabbles over cogeneration issues.

"We should clearly speak to this issue instead of leaving a fuzzy question for the courts to hash out," Montgomery said.

Idaho Power, which has appealed to the Supreme Court a PUC order that required the utility to enter into a long-term cogeneration contract with a producer in Aton, Wyo., battled fiercely against the small producers' bill.

Idaho Power lobbyist Greg Panter testified Tuesday that the utility was "not opposed to cogeneration outright." But he said the firm was concerned its ability to negotiate the best possible purchases for its stockholders and ratepayers would be impaired by the bill.

Major utilities contended the bill would force them into long-term contracts at inflated prices that would unfairly drive up energy costs for consumers.

During committee debate, Rep. Chris Hooper, R-Boise, said the measure would make better long-range planning possible.

Lobbyists report expenses

EPA says PCBs show up in Pocatello's wells

POCATELLO (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency said Tuesday water samples taken from two privately owned wells near a recycling plant where toxic PCBs leached into the soil show levels of the suspected cancer-causing chemical which are well above federal standards.

EPA spokesman Bob Jacobson said the laboratory tests prompted the agency to issue a "health alert" for the wells, and recommend that people find alternate sources of drinking water.

He said both wells serve residences and are located several hundred yards from the yard of Pacific Recycling — where EPA last week uncovered about 600 buried PCB-contaminated capacitors.

The Idaho Department of Health and Welfare late last week took water samples from seven wells in the area. Jacobson said all seven showed signs of contamination, but five of the samples contained only minute PCB levels.

EPA issues health advisories, he said, when water shows levels of PCB higher than one part per billion. The two wells where advisories were issued showed levels of two parts and 5.6 parts per billion, he said.

However, Jacobson emphasized the EPA standard is "very, very conservative" — based on the assumption that contamination of a drinking supply with one part of PCB per billion will cause one additional cancer death among every million residents who drink the water for 70 years.

"The risk is very, very small, but it's there," Jacobson said. "EPA feels compelled to tell people about it."

Jacobson also said health officials plan to rerun the entire battery of water-sample tests because one of two samples used as a control also showed signs of contamination.

That could mean the samples were inadvertently tainted during the laboratory analysis or during collection, he said.

Meanwhile, EPA has arranged to send the 600 capacitors — which are being held in sealed metal drums — to an incinerator at an agency facility in Eldorado, Ark. for destruction, Jacobson said.

He said local health officials have recommended that users of the two tainted wells hook up to the city water system to avoid any potential problems.

There is no proof that contamination of any of the wells stemmed from the problem at Pacific Recycling, Jacobson added.

Unless the wells flush out all PCB contamination, or the new sample-analysis shows the first findings were incorrect, the health advisories will remain in effect, he said.

"It may be overkill, but we want to play it safe," the EPA spokesman said.

Crews initially uncovered about 560 PCB-laden capacitors at the recycling plant, he said. Further digging turned up another 40.

It may be necessary to undertake a full-scale excavation at the site to ensure all the capacitors have been found, he added.

Harassment amendment shot down

BOISE (UPI) — Affirmative-action hiring guidelines — which a legislator said "constitute... discrimination against the white man" — were saved from an undercutting amendment on the House floor Tuesday.

But the Legislature's lower chamber did approve two other proposed changes to a bill outlawing malicious acts of racial or religious harassment.

Rep. Martin Trillhaase, R-Idaho Falls, asked the House to attach to the anti-harassment bill an amendment designed to eliminate "affirmative action and quota hiring."

"Affirmative action is, in effect, discrimination against the white man," Trillhaase told the House. "It's a vicious form of harassment."

He said the way to "get rid of the white supremacists" is to ensure "true equality" by abolishing procedures such as affirmative action.

Racial tensions would be reduced in the workplace if no such procedures existed and managers were "as color-blind as possible," Trillhaase said.

Rep. Robert Seates, R-Post Falls, supported Trillhaase's effort, complaining that whites and minorities have suffered "reverse discrimination" due to affirmative action laws.

"It is found that affirmative action and quota hiring are both a subtle intent to intimidate or harass an individual and is demoralizing to individuals in the work force," the amendment said.

However, the change was rejected by a vote of 19-10.

Rep. Chris Hooper, R-Boise, debated against the changes, saying federal affirmative-action rules would supercede the Trillhaase proposal in most instances.

The House approved amendments offered by a subcommittee to delete proposed civil sanctions against those who commit acts of racial or religious malicious harassment and to express legislative intent that the law not be construed as endorsing a controversial United Nations treaty on genocide.

The amendments will be the subject of a public hearing Thursday in the House State Affairs Committee.

If the House approves the amended bill, the measure must be returned to the Senate for consideration of the alterations. The amendments were attached because of complaints that the provisions could be used to file frivolous lawsuits against some people, including door-to-door preachers.

The Idaho Human Rights Commission proposed the bill as a state measure by the legislature that the state will not tolerate racial-religious terrorism by anyone, including members of the white supremacist Aryan Nations and Ku Klux Klan groups.

Crech to be re-sentenced

BOISE (UPI) — Fourth District Judge Robert Newhouse has scheduled re-sentencing of convicted mass-murderer Thomas Eugene Crech for Thursday after the prisoner lost an attempt to appeal the death penalty.

Newhouse plans to re-sentence Crech at 9 a.m. Thursday at the Ada County Courthouse — after the state Supreme court denied Crech's motions to overturn the death penalty.

The high court ordered the district judge to sentence the 32-year-old defendant in the presence of his attorneys no later than April 4 in connection with the hearing death of fellow Idaho State Penitentiary inmate David Jensen. Crech admitted bludgeoning Jensen to death with a battery-filled sock.

At the time of the killing, Crech was serving three life terms for other murders. The Supreme Court ruled Newhouse would have to re-sentence Crech because the handing down of a sentence in the absence of the defendant and his or her counsel is contrary to Idaho law.

Justices said Newhouse could re-impose the sentence, then later announced they wanted the proceeding delayed so they could consider several defense motions that asked the death sentence be overturned on the merits of the case and not on a technical point.

Newhouse then granted a defense motion allowing Crech to be housed at the Ada County jail rather than the Idaho State Penitentiary.

BYU's Arnold axed to appease players

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — A tearful Frank Arnold said Tuesday he can live with being fired as Brigham Young University's head basketball coach, but he'll find it harder to accept the claim that his players wanted him out.

"That's where the hurt is, if it's true," Arnold said after BYU accepted his resignation Tuesday. "I'm not willing to accept the reports that my players had such strong feelings against me. I love those boys."

Arnold was asked to resign after two days of meetings with Athletic Director Glen Tuckett, Clayne Jensen, dean of the College of Physical Education, and Rolfe Kerr, university executive vice president.

He said his resignation was a "forced" one. "Sure, I was surprised. I knew about some of the criticism, and we discussed the matter Monday. But this came as a real shock to me today," he said.

"It hurts to think I have offended any of my players," he said. "They're the ones I love so dearly."

Arnold reportedly was in trouble with the BYU administration after numerous complaints from fans and players concerning public statements he made. He often berated the players during post-game interviews with reporters.

At least four BYU players scheduled to return next fall reportedly said they would transfer to another university if Arnold was rehired for another year. All BYU coaches have one-year contracts.

"I'm very proud to have served at this university," Arnold said in a telephone interview. "There are great people here. It is the finest institution in the universe."

He said his eight years at the largest church-owned school in the United States were among his happiest and the experience was "wonderful."

FRANK ARNOLD 'I love those boys'

"I've had an opportunity to coach some of the finest young men on the face of the earth. And I'm a better man for it."

Arnold said he could not blame university officials for forcing his resignation under the circumstances.

"It was justifiable. It's just how everyone felt," he said.

BYU Sports Information Director Dave Schultness said the resignation was mutually agreed to by all parties.

"It was prompted by an accumulation of factors," Schultness said. He said Arnold's inability to get along with team members was one of the factors.

Tuckett said Arnold's contract will be honored to its completion Aug. 31. Arnold also was offered a one-year professional development leave after the contract runs out.

A chance to improve unimpressive basketball reputation

Boise welcomes NCAA sub-regional

By MARK SHENEFELT United Press International

BOISE — Almost everywhere else, Boise generally is regarded as one of those Western backwater places, and the description doesn't get any more favorable when people start talking about its reputation for college basketball.

But the City of Trees finally will get a first-hand taste of big-time sports when six teams arrive at Boise State University for a quartet of NCAA playoff games Thursday and Saturday.

"I would say it's the biggest sporting event that's ever happened in the city of Boise, to have this type of a field play here," said Ron Stephenson, commissioner of the Boise-headquartered Big Sky Conference.

Fans, businessmen and university officials are still beaming that Boise has landed highly ranked powers Virginia, featuring 7-foot-4 three-time All-American Ralph Sampson, and the legendary UCLA Bruins.

Those two big-name teams, plus regional entrants Washington State, Utah and Weber State, spell an economic shot in the arm and some national television exposure for the city and the university.

"I think it's the best sub-regional in the country," Stephenson said. "You've got two of the most prestigious teams, and you have three more teams which have to be considered locals."

About the only one of the six teams which has been pushed to the back of the stage, as far as the fans go, is Illinois of the Big Ten Conference. The Illinois (20-10) will be greeted by the Utah Utes (18-19), co-champions of the Western Athletic Conference, in Thursday night's second game.

The schedule will be opened by Washington State (22-6), runnerup to UCLA in the Pac-10 Conference, and Weber State (23-7), champion of the Big Sky.

The WSU-Weber winner will advance to play No. 4 Virginia (27-1), Saturday, while the Utah-Illinois winner will go up against seventh-ranked UCLA (23-5).

Boise State has a successful Division I-AA football program, but basketball fever never has consumed the campus. The Broncos have won the Big Sky basketball title only once, and its teams have finished far back in the pack for several years.

During the recent season — the first for the new 12,000-seat pavilion — the Broncos drew an average of less than 3,300 fans for each home game.

But tickets went fast for the NCAA games, especially after the pairings were announced Sunday.

"Everybody around here who ever even thought they liked basketball will be trying to get in here," Stephenson said.

This is Boise's first time as an NCAA basketball playoff host. In fact, only two such games have ever been played in Idaho, said Arnie Spaglio, Big Sky Information officer.

In 1977, at Pocatello in the Idaho State University Mindome, Idaho State defeated Long Beach State and UCLA beat Louisville to advance to the regional at Provo, Utah, where the Bengals stunned UCLA.

Boise Chamber of Commerce Director Paul Ralston said restaurants, hotels and other businesses expect to do a lot of extra work this week, reaping big dollar totals from incoming fans.

Long lines of people stretched outside the pavilion Monday — a rare sight at Boise State — as remaining tickets went on sale for the Thursday and Saturday contests.

The city also expects to get some rare national television exposure from network coverage of the games, Ralston said.

"I think some people will begin thinking more seriously about this place than they might have before," said John Keiser, president of Boise State University.

"I would say it's the biggest sporting event that's ever happened in the city of Boise, to have this type of a field play here."

Lundblad to contest school board's move

COEUR D'ALENE (UPI) — High School basketball Coach Dean Lundblad says he intends to fight a school board decision that he be fired over an incident in which his team forfeited a state tournament game when 10 players were caught drinking and breaking curfew.

Lundblad said Tuesday he was "stunned" by the board's decision to suspend him, and eventually fire him from the job he has held 15 years.

The board also accepted the resignation Monday of drill team adviser Carol Jones. Board members say five members of the Vikeskes squad also were involved in rule violations following the basketball team's semifinal loss March 4 to eventual A-1 champion Meridian.

However, one educator said Ms. Jones had planned to resign long before the drinking incident at the state tournament in Boise.

"Much of my life has been devoted to young people, especially in Coeur d'Alene and this school system," Lundblad said. "I have been commended for my actions and the program throughout Idaho and the Northwest."

Lundblad said a group of 25 of his supporters were told prior to Monday's school board meeting that no action would be taken.

The coach, who said his team has been in the state tournament 11 of the past 13 years, said he has received support from students, parents and administrators.

Called by one board member a "flawed role model," Lundblad was suspended on a unanimous vote during a meeting Tuesday.

ing a meeting attended by nearly 100 persons Monday. Board members said they are required to give Lundblad notice before firing him, and they directed Superintendent Barry Stelm to send the coach a letter informing him of the decision.

"There was a large cross-section of people who were told no action would be taken," Lundblad said. "Maybe this problem lies deeper than anything I did or did not do."

Lundblad did not admit responsibility for his players' actions, saying the issue was complex and his lawyer has advised him against admitting responsibility for any aspect of the trouble which led to the forfeit.

David Wold, the board member who initiated the motion for Lundblad's suspension, said the board decided it could not let the interests of one man jeopardize many other positive programs and activities in the district.

"In my opinion, Mr. Lundblad is in abdication of his general responsibilities," said board member Dean Smart. "He represents a flawed role model. ... I don't at all disagree with his ability as a coach."

Lundblad led the Vikings to a 19-7 record last season, including a first-round victory in the state tournament. After the loss to Meridian, Coeur d'Alene forfeited the game for third place to Bonneville.

The incident March 4 marked the third time Lundblad had been involved in an alcohol-related problem.

Last year, he was convicted in First District Court of driving while intoxicated, court officials said.

Easter Seals games feature top cagers

By the Times-News

Party of Magic Valley's top graduating seniors got together for their first practice for the annual Magic Valley Easter Seals All-Star Basketball games Tuesday.

The annual event will be held Monday at College of Southern Idaho gymnasium with the girls leading off at 7 p.m. and the boys taking the floor at about 8:30.

The event provides funds for the Easter Seals Society plus the Fourth District and Idaho High School Activities Associations.

Pat Hoke, who led Jerome to a 17-3 regular season record and eventually to third place in the A-2 state playoffs, is heading up a tall west boys team. The east, which appears to have less size but better quickness, is coached by Scott Tingey of Valley.

The girls coaches are Lynn Payne of Declo for the east girls and Janet Smutny of Buhl for the west. Both kept their teams to state tournaments earlier this spring.

Hoke, with six players running from 6-4 to 6-8, said he will anticipate some kind of pressure from the team out just one more time.

"With the game coming off Monday there isn't enough time to work on the one thing you need — defense," Hoke said with a smile. "We'll all be working on offense, though."

For some of the participants, the all-star game is a new experience because rules outlaw zone defense and require man-to-man — even for girls.

Girls — Laurie Waldron, Hannah; Clarin Osborn; Shaquane; Glenda Powers, Dietrich; Conie

Wolverton, Richfield; Holly Barta and Melody Fales, Declo; Fileen Wight and Vedame Bodily, East River; and Trent Matthews and Laetia Nelson, Burley.

West — Karri Keaton and Tracy Hulan, Buhl; Saele Vincent, Filer; Kelly Fawcett, Gooding; Kineth McFadden — Hagerman; Wendy Conza, Twin Falls; Lauri Paecon and Andie Morrow, Wood River; and Janet Bonney, Jerome.

East — Roy Nebeker, Murtaugh; Denny Smyer, Declo; Kim Duffin, Shoshone; Kevin Holcomb and Earl Molyneux, Kimberly; Art Henry, Valley; Randy Austin, Burley; and John Koepfer, Mark Brown and John Miller, All Milco.

West — Kevin Hulsey and Bob Stone, Jerome; Greg Snow and Bowen Call, Twin Falls; Lee Hilleau, Wood River; Ken Anderson and Leon Anderson, Burley; and Charles Carter and Mark Laling, Buhl.

It takes more to ruin a youth than one poor 'role model'

I've never been to Coeur d'Alene. I know nobody who lives there. I've never talked with Dean Lundblad, the town's high school basketball coach who appears destined to lose his job. I wasn't in Boise when the now-famous drinking incident involving the Viking basketball team occurred, so my knowledge concerning the matter is limited to what I have read.

Thus, I cannot legitimately propagate a strong opinion regarding the Coeur d'Alene School Board's decision to fire Lundblad. I simply don't know the facts.

But my distance from the controversy doesn't prevent me from becoming amused at the remarks of Dean Smart, a School Board member. Smart insisted that Lundblad "represents a flawed role model" for the basketball players and other Coeur d'Alene students who come in contact with Lundblad.

No, no. Had I modeled myself after all the coaches I learned from as a youth, I might be in jail, or perhaps a social outcast, or a frequent visitor at Alcoholics Anonymous meetings (though all three fates tend to befall journalists).

When I was in sixth grade, the man who ran the after-school touch football team I played on fired a "bullet" pass into my groin in the middle of a game.

During high school I fortunately didn't have any sporting goods catapulted into my delicate anatomy. But I did realize that coaches possessed other human weaknesses besides infantile anger. It was a revelation to discover that some were unfaithful to their wives, while others enjoyed drinking excessive amounts of alcohol on weekends.

So, as a highly impressionable young man, I should have grown up believing that (1) hurting other people for no reason at all is socially acceptable; (2) heterosexual relationships are made to be broken; and (3) the best way to relax is to spend plenty of time and money at the local tavern.

Oops, I forgot to mention something. I also played for coaches who commanded nothing less than my utmost respect every day throughout every practice and ballgame.

Additionally, in my adolescent and collegiate years, I encountered teachers and fellow students who inspired similar admiration.

Finally, for the first 18 years of my life I lived with and listened to a man and a woman who I usually refer to as my father and mother. They kind of had something to do with the person I have become.

Gosh, with so many different role models to pattern myself after, I should be pretty confused!

Actually, I don't think my youth was a terribly atypical one. If anything, I wish I had met an even greater variety of people. I'm sure many of the students at Coeur d'Alene, for example, will come in contact with quite an array of human beings. If they haven't already done so, some will impress them and influence their future behavior; some won't.

Dean Lundblad, says United Press International, has been connected with three alcohol-related problems. Certainly he's a negative influence on the students he teaches and coaches; if he indeed openly promotes and condones wanton alcohol use.

But Lundblad's mere presence in the halls of Coeur d'Alene High School and in the Viking gymnasium isn't suddenly going to make alcohol abusers out of everyone else nearby. Unless, of course, some poor young man or woman is pathologically attached to Lundblad. Like the pliable people in Guyana were to Jim Jones, and then only if Lundblad is really a tool of alcohol.

It's the job of the Coeur d'Alene School Board to determine what is best for their children. If banishing Dean Lundblad will help the Board attain its goal, so be it.

But if one of Lundblad's shortcomings is his failure to perform his tasks as a proper role model, then maybe the Board should examine the conduct of the remaining Coeur d'Alene faculty, the students' parents and guardians, and everybody routinely or intimately associated with the students of Coeur d'Alene High School.

As a doctor might say, eliminating one cancerous source doesn't guarantee the disease has vanished.

Golden Eagle nine drops another pair

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — College of Scottsdale's baseball team continued to receive one-sided beatings Tuesday during its Arizona road trip, falling to the Golden Eagle Conference College 14-7 and Scottsdale CC 14-6.

The most positive note for the Golden Eagles was their offensive attack, which produced 26 hits in the two games.

Particularly destructive were Mike Duncan, Jeff Schow and Dale Crouse. Duncan, who hit his third home-run of the year, a two-run shot against Cochise, went four-for-five in the first game and three-for-five in the second. Schow had three-for-five efforts in each game, and smacked a solo homer in the seventh inning against Scottsdale. Krause, meanwhile, contributed to Scottsdale's 16-hit outburst against Scottsdale with three hits in three trips to plate.

Coach Jim Walker stated that the Eagles simply don't have enough quality pitchers to have much success in a tightly concentrated stretch of games like this one against strong competition.

"I would like to see these teams (CSI's Arizona opponents) play seven games in five days and see how they do," Walker challenged. "I don't think any college team has enough pitching to do that."

The Eagles resume action today against Glendale CC.

Robert Morris collects 1st tourney win

By United Press International

Seven years ago, Robert Morris jumped from the Junior college ranks to the NCAA Division I level.

Tuesday night, the Pittsburg business school finally earned its first NCAA Tournament victory. The Colonials moved from the qualifying round into the first round of the NCAA Tournament with a 64-54 victory over Georgia Southern at Dayton, Ohio.

Forest Grant scored 17 points and Chipper Harris added 16 to send the Colonials, 2-7, into a game against Purdue Thursday night in Tampa, Fla.

In the second game at Dayton, Alcorn State reached the first round with a 75-61 triumph over Xavier (Ohio) and will meet Georgetown Friday night in Louisville, Ky.

And at Philadelphia, Gordon Eder scored 18 points and Robinson added 15 to pace Ivy League champion Princeton to a 53-41 victory over North

NCAA Tournament

Carolina A&T. Steve Black's 15 points paced five players in double figures in the second game, leading LaSalle over Boston University, 70-58.

LaSalle, 18-13, the East Coast Conference champions, will play Virginia Commonwealth in an NCAA first-round game Thursday night at Greensboro, N.C. Princeton, 19-9, will go against Oklahoma State in a first-round game Friday night at Corvallis, Ore.

Robert Morris made its first appearance in the NCAA tourney a year ago, but promptly lost by 32 points to Indiana.

But early in the second half Tuesday night, the Colonials had a 10-0 burst to take a 40-26 advantage, Georgia Southern, the Trans America Athletic conference champion, was plagued by sloppy ballhandling in its NCAA post-season debut.

In the nightcap, Alcorn State allowed a 17-point lead crumble to 3 points with a minute left, but held off a stubborn Xavier team with six free throws in the final 30 seconds to seal the game.

At Philadelphia, Princeton extended its winning streak to 10 games. Robinson scored 11 points in the first half to give the Tigers a 23-half-time lead. Princeton extended its advantage to 42-31, helped by Enderle's 14 second-half points, and the Aggies never got closer than seven points the rest of the way.

In the second game, LaSalle outscored the Terriers 14-4 in the first seven minutes of the second half to take a 47-32 lead with 12:56 to play. Boston University, 21-10, and champions of the ECAC-North Atlantic Conference, cut the deficit to 60-50 but was unable to get any closer.

Arizona cage coach Lindsey (4-24) gets fired

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — University of Arizona basketball coach Ben Lindsey was fired Tuesday night after compiling the worst record in the school's history, Athletic Director Dr. Cecile Dempsey announced.

Arizona finished the 1982-83 season with a 4-24 record, the worst mark in Arizona history, and the worst Pacific-10 Conference mark — 1-17. The team's only conference victory came against Stanford.

"After careful and extensive review I have recommended to the administration, and they have concurred, that in the best interest of the university and its basketball program, a change of leadership is required," Dempsey said at a news conference at McKale Center.

"In my best professional judgment, Coach Ben Lindsey will be unable to overcome the conditions surrounding the program and in fairness to all parties involved, we are making this Lindsey was not present at the announcement.

"It was notified shortly after 5 p.m. (Tuesday) that my contract will not be renewed," Lindsey said in a statement. "I was totally amazed and shocked to be hired and released prior to one full year and without any year of recruiting. I don't think any coach would accept a position without a commitment of more than one year. I had that from (former Athletic Director) Dave Strack and (U of A) former President (John) Schaefer.

"If I am a victim of anything, I am a victim of a change to a new athletic director and a new president."

Dempsey said Lindsey would be given an additional year's salary as severance pay provided through private funds from the university's foundation.

He said a nationwide search for a new coach would begin immediately.

"We will strive to locate a coach who will bring stability, long-ranged continuity and success to the University of Arizona basketball program," Dempsey said.

Lindsey, 42, joined the Wildcats last fall after he compiled a 317-137 record at Grand Canyon College in 16 years.

Cox's deft hands help Vanderbilt

PHIL COX's quick hands were the key to Vanderbilt's successful debut Tuesday night in the National Invitation Tournament.

Cox spearheaded a second-half rally with 15-of-his-25 points and several timely steals to lead the Commodores to a 73-74 victory over East Tennessee State in first-round NIT action at Nashville, Tenn.

In another first-round contest at Tampa, Fla., Charlie Bradley scored 34 points and added 10 rebounds to help South Florida overcome a 7-point halftime deficit and take a 81-69 triumph over Fordham.

Vanderbilt was down by 6 points at halftime but tied the Buccaneers 43-43

"BYU is grateful for the contributions of Coach Frank Arnold to the past eight years," Tucker said in a prepared statement.

He said a search for Arnold's successor will begin soon.

Pope: Big Sky MVP; Kellerman on again

BOISE (UPI) — Montana forward Derrick Pope was named Tuesday as the Big Sky Conference's most valuable player in the 1982-83 season, while Idaho guard Brian Kellerman became only the seventh player to be named three times to the league's all-star team.

DERRICK POPE
6-7 Montana senior forward

Pope and Kellerman joined Nevada-Reno forward Ken Green, Idaho center Kelvin Smith and UNR guard Billy Allen on the all-conference squad selected by Big Sky coaches.

Coaches also picked Stan Arnold of Idaho as the league's top newcomer. Doug Ellertson of conference-champion Weber State and Larry Krystkowiak of Montana were dubbed for top reserve honors.

The second all-conference team included guard Vince Hinchon of Boise State, guard Jackie Fleury of Idaho State, forward Phil Hopson of Idaho, forward Sam Mosley of Nevada-Reno and forward Royal Edwards of Weber State.

Pope averaged 17.9 points and 8.5 rebounds a game in leading Montana to its sixth straight appearance in the Big Sky post-season playoffs. The 6-foot-7 senior from Aurora, Colo., also made 59 percent of his field-goal attempts to win a place in the national standings.

Green averaged more than 21 points per game and was the Big Sky's leader in three-point goals, amassing 36 in 21 games. The 6-7 senior from Natchez, Miss., is the first league player to average more than 20 points a game since Idaho State's Lawrence Butler in 1979.

Smith, a 6-7 senior from Pasco, Wash., led the league with 72 blocked shots this year and was second in the Big Sky in rebounding, pulling down an average of 8.6 per game.

Allen is a 6-1 senior from Dallas who was among the national leaders with an 88-percent free-throw shooting average. He also had 228 assists this year for a 7.9 per-game average.

Kellerman, a 6-foot-5 senior who helped the Vandals win the National Invitational Tournament, averaged 17.8 points per game this season. The Richland, Wash., native also made nearly 80 percent of his free throws in pacing Idaho to its third straight year with at least 20 wins.

Houston named regular season's No. 1

NEW YORK (UPI) — The University of Houston was voted the No. 1 college team in the country for the regular season Tuesday and Coach Guy Lewis immediately said the honor will have no effect on the Cougars' performance in the NCAA Tournament.

The Cougars, who finished the season with a 27-2 record, were named No. 1 by 38 of the 41 members of the UPI Board of Coaches participating in the final rankings of the season.

Louisville, St. John's, Virginia, Indiana, Nevada-Las Vegas, Kentucky, North Carolina, Arkansas and UCLA rounded out the top 10.

Houston, which beat Texas Christian 62-59 Saturday to win the Southwest Conference championship, received 612 total points.

"I thought it was great when we were voted No. 1 three weeks ago and I think it's even better that we managed to stay up there for three weeks," said Lewis. "We had to win two road games since being voted No. 1 (Arkansas and Baylor) and we had to win the (SWC) tournament in Dallas.

"I really feel good about it. You get a lot more media attention, but as far as me and my players, it (No. 1 rating) never enters our minds. I don't think it will during the NCAA Tournament, either."

Houston is the top seed in the Midwest in the NCAA Tournament and will try to erase a bad memory from the last time the Cougars won the regular-season title. Fifteen years ago, the Cougars posted a 28-0 regular-season record that included a dramatic 71-69 victory over a Lew Aicindor-led UCLA team in a matchup billed the "Game of the Century."

UPI emphatically avenged that loss in the semifinals of the NCAA Tournament by crushing the Cougars 101-69. Only three times in the last eight years has the UPI regular-season champion managed to win the NCAA Tournament.

Louisville, 29-3, the top seed in the Midwest, received two first-place votes and 571 points while St. John's, 27-4, the East 6 No. 1 seed, was third with 488 points. Virginia, 27-4, top seed in the West, was named on the remaining first-place ballot and had 461 points.

The second 10 was composed of Villanova, 22-7, Missouri, 26-7, Boston College, 24-6, North Carolina State, 20-10, Georgia, 21-9, Tennessee-Chattanooga, Memphis State, Illinois State, Oklahoma State and Georgetown.

NEW YORK — The United Press International Board of Coaches final Top 20 college basketball ratings for 1983 (first-place votes and records through March 14 in parentheses):

Rumors say Virginia coach will handle Ralph's finances

As Sampson goes, so goes Holland?

By BILL TANTON
The Baltimore Evening Sun

The hottest rumor in basketball is that Terry Holland will quit at Virginia to go with Ralph Sampson.

What Holland will do, according to reports circulating through the coaching fraternity, is leave his job as the Cavaliers coach to become head of Ralph Sampson Enterprises.

Sampson, Holland's 7-4 center, will finally turn pro in May after spurning National Basketball Association offers since his freshman year at Charlottesville.

When the millions start to roll in — as they surely will for the much-admired Sampson — Holland, supposedly, will be there to direct Ralph's financial future.

Holland, therefore, would be more than Sampson's agent. He would be his partner in every facet of marketing college basketball's two-time Player of the Year.

At least one well-known Atlantic Coast Conference head coach says he believes this is all going to come about. Those who know the Sampson-Holland relationship hardly will be surprised if it does.

Holland and Sampson have been more like father and son than coach and player during Ralph's four years at Virginia.

For three of those years, Sampson lived at Holland's north of Charlottesville.

At Virginia, a few distinguished seniors are allowed to live in quarters on what is known as The Lawn — at the heart of the campus behind the historic Thomas Jefferson-designed Rotunda.

Sampson moved to The Lawn at the beginning of the year, but soon found he had no privacy.

Strangers were always peering in the windows for a glimpse of the most famous athlete in the university's history. Many brazenly rang the doorbell and invited themselves in.

So Sampson, a shy and reserved man, moved back to Holland's home.

The rumors about Holland leaving Virginia with Sampson were intensified when the coach recently relinquished an assignment with the U.S. Olympic Committee's basketball development program.

The job has since been handed over to George Blaney of Trinity Cross.

If Holland goes, it will not be out of disappointment because his team was upset by North Carolina State in the ACC tournament final. Sources say Holland had made up his mind before the tournament.

Though the earning power of ACC coaches is as high as any, there would be an opportunity to make even more with Sampson — without the angst that goes with coaching at college basketball's top level.

And Holland has plenty of critics. They complain he hasn't produced enough victories for a coach who has a Sampson on his team. The critics were renewed this week when the Cavaliers, for the fourth straight year, failed to win their conference tournament.

Socks fourth Grapefruit League homer

Rain doesn't dampen sizzling performance of Dodger rookie Marshall

By United Press International

While the rain fell all around him Tuesday, Mike Marshall continued to pour it on.

Five Grapefruit League games were called off due to rain showers. Marshall crushed his fourth homer of the spring and added two singles to lead the Los Angeles Dodgers to an 8-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates at Vero Beach. The Dodgers' rookie right fielder raised his average to .379 and also has a team-high 10 RBI.

Dusty Baker had his first homer of the spring. In the first inning against Jim Bibby, he led the Dodgers a 2-0 lead. Marshall's home run made it 4-0 off Don Robinson in the fifth and doubles by Bill Russell and Derrel Thomas set up another two-run inning against Lee Tunnel in the seventh. Dodger starter But Hooton went six innings, allowing only one hit and striking out three.

Games canceled because of rain — were the Philadelphia-Chicago White Sox matchup at Clearwater, Cincinnati-Houston at Cocoa, Detroit-St. Louis at St. Petersburg, Kansas City-New York Mets at Fort Myers and Minnesota-Boston at Orlando.

At Pompano Beach, Fla., Charlie Hough, Ron Musselman and Victor Cruz combined on a seven-inning and Larry Parrish drove in two runs to lead the Texas Rangers to an 8-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles. Parrish went 3-for-4 to highlight a 14-hit attack. Al Bumbry homered for the Orioles.

At West Palm Beach, Fla., Terry Harper hit a two-run single in the eighth inning to break a 3-3 tie and carry Atlanta to a 6-4 victory over Montreal. Bob Horner homered for the Braves and Montreal's Dan Schatzeder hurled four perfect innings to end the game.

At Tucson, Ariz., errors by Wayne Gross and Bill

Almon opened the door to five Cleveland runs in the first inning and rookie left-hander Neal Heaton faced only 12 batters in his four-inning stint to help the Indians to a 6-2 victory over Oakland.

At Scottsdale, Ariz., Chili Davis broke out of his 0-for-15 spring training slump by ripping a homer, two doubles and a single to lead the San Francisco Giants to a 7-2 triumph over the Seattle Mariners in the Cactus League.

At Mesa, Ariz., rookie Dick Schofield hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning to put the California Angels ahead but committed a throwing error in the bottom half to give the Chicago Cubs a 5-4 exhibition victory.

'82 Cy Young winner Vuckovich suffers torn rotator cuff

SUN CITY, Ariz. (UPI) — Cy Young Award winner Pete Vuckovich of the Milwaukee Brewers has a torn rotator cuff in the shoulder of his pitching arm, the team said Tuesday.

General Manager Harry Dalton, who made the announcement, said he did not know how long Vuckovich's hander will be out. He will begin a program of rest and medication and will be reexamined next week by the team doctor, Dalton said.

Dr. Lewis Vocum, who examined Vuckovich earlier Wednesday in Los Angeles, made the rotator cuff diagnosis.

Dalton said he is not sure when the injury occurred, but that Vuckovich may have pitched with the injury last season when the Brewers won the American League pennant.

He was 18-6 last year with a 3.34 ERA but did not win a game from late September through the playoffs and World Series. Vuckovich was hit hard in his only outing in spring training.

Dalton said it is too early to tell if surgery will be needed. The injury was to one of three large muscles in the shoulder.

Vuckovich came to Milwaukee from St. Louis in a big three-player trade in 1981 that also included ace reliever Rolfe Fingers and catcher Ted Simmons. He has led the Brewer staff in wins the past two seasons.

He has been in the majors full-time since 1977 and has a lifetime record of 83-53.

conditioning. It's going to boil down to who wants it the worst," Weldon told a Civic Center news conference.

"You're going to get to see the first time Marvin Hagler gets beat — right here in front of all his friends."

Weldon's comments drew a round of boos from local boxing fans, one of whom shouted: "Who are you kidding?"

Goody Petronelli, Hagler's trainer, said Hagler will be in top shape for the fight. "He always is," Petronelli said. "He doesn't take anybody lightly. I'm taking nothing away from Willford Scypion. He's a good fighter, he's proven that."

Promising junior lightweight Rafael Lopez of Pavvuctek will also be on the card in a 10-rounder, Arum said.

Hagler gives Scypion a shot at world middleweight title

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Marvin Hagler signed a $1.25 million contract Tuesday to defend his world middleweight title on May 13 against No. 1 ranked challenger Willford Scypion at the Providence Civic Center.

Promoter Bob Arum, president of Top Rank, Inc., said Hagler will get a $1.25 million purse in his seventh title defense and Scypion is guaranteed $325,000 for the 15-round fight, to be televised on cable by Home Box Office (HBO).

"The better my opponent is, the better I feel," Hagler said. "I'm giving him (Scypion) the biggest opportunity of his life — to take a shot at the Marvelous One and also to capture my championship belt."

Both boxers are hard-punchers.

Hagler, from nearby Brockton, Mass., is riding a 7-year unbeaten streak that totals 31 straight wins in the ring. He ran his record to 56-2 with a sixth-round TKO of Tony Sibson at Worcester, Mass. on Feb. 12. Hagler has knocked out all six previous title challengers.

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF. "There is nothing impossible in all the world except that the heart of man is wanting in resolution." Confucius

Does the atrocious trump stack mean that South has no hope to land today's heart slam? It all depends on how West and South play.

This hand was played at the AFB, Fall Championship, South stretched to the heart slam and West led the spade ace and continued a spade, forcing a shift to another suit.

Late rally puts spark in dull day

By GAIL COLLINS
United Press International

NEW YORK — Blue-chip buyers sent the Dow Jones industrial average jumping in a late rally Tuesday, but neither gold nor economic news on oil prices were enough to perk up the rest of the stock market.

"We're not doing anything, just wandering around with no conviction," said Michael Metz of Oppenheimer & Co.

The Dow Jones industrial average zipped up in late trading to close at 1,124.52, up 10.07.

The Dow, which fell 3.29 to 1,114.45 Monday, was nearly flat for most of the day.

Most analysts said the Dow's increase was due to a spate of bargain-hunting by traders in a narrow range of blue-chip stocks.

"I don't think you can take much heart from this," said Truick Latimer of Evans & Co. "I think it's just a technical reaction to so many days on the down side. The traders came in feeling today would be an up day. But the institutional investors are not showing the slightest inclination to join in."

Advances led declines 839-734 among the 1,980 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Big Board volume was 62,410,000 shares, up slightly from Monday's 61,890,000 — the highest session since the beginning of January. Composite volume of all NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 72,810,980, up from 72,249,700 Monday.

The New York Stock Exchange index was up 0.23 to 87.22. The price of an average share gained 9 cents Standard & Poor's 500-stock index was up 0.53 to 151.36.

The Federal Reserve Board had some good news about the economy Tuesday, reporting February's industrial production showed an increase for the third consecutive month.

The market's recent downturn began last Thursday with extremely disappointing figures on retail sales, and Metz claimed "the failure of retail demand to materialize" was still worrying economists and investors.

The market showed almost no reaction to the long-awaited OPEC price cut agreement.

"The market is very, very quiet, digesting the recent OPEC agreement," said Alfred Harris of Stifel Nicolaus & Co. in St. Louis. "I wonder how long that agreement is going to last."

The American Stock Exchange index was off 0.27 to 383.15. The price of an average share lost 2 cents. Declines led advances 127-277 among the 118 issues traded. Composite volume was 6,879,400, compared with 7,233,850 Monday.

The National Association of Securities Dealers NASDAQ index of over-the-counter stocks was down 0.16 to 264.18.

On the NYSE, Superior Oil was the most active issue, down 1/4 at 35. Mees Petroleum was second, up 1/2 to 12 1/2. Mesa said recently it had acquired 2 percent of Superior's stock and both firms have been topics of takeover rumors.

Petrolene Inc. was third, down 1/4 to 14. The company announced it had "substantially reduced" its earnings estimates for 1983 due to changes in the outlook for the energy industry.

Kmart was high on the active list, jumping 2 1/2 to 32 1/2. The company last week announced higher earnings in its most recent quarter.

G.D. Searle, which recently plummeted when the firm announced it expected lower profits in the first half of the year, climbed up 1/4 to 38 1/2.

On the American Stock Exchange, Wang Laboratories class B was the most active issue, down 1/4 at 32. Imperial Chemical was second, up 1/4 at 6 1/2. Texas Air was third, up 1/2 at 10 1/2.

'Pleasant surprise'

Auto industry keeps production increase alive during February

By DENIS G. GULINO
United Press International

WASHINGTON — An auto production surge lifted the nation's factory output 0.3 percent in February, the third month of improvement, despite sharp cutbacks in the unsettled oil industry, the Federal Reserve Board said Tuesday.

The month's gain was far weaker than January's revised 0.9 percent improvement yet kept alive the month-long string of improvements that began in December.

"It confirms the December end of the recession," a jubilant Commerce Department chief economist Robert Ortner said. "February is a pleasant surprise."

Administration officials had already prepared in advance explanations for what was expected to be a decline in the Fed's industrial production index, a crucial part of the foundation for every forecast.

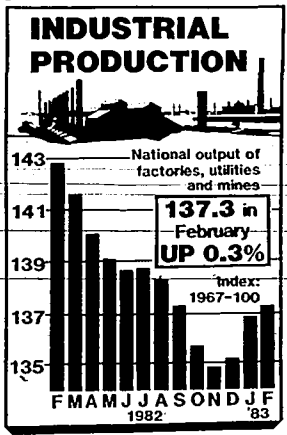

But the modest improvement allowed White House spokesmen to return to the reverse psychology being spread by the president's chief economist, Martin Feldstein, that economic euphoria is to be avoided despite good news.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said the administration viewed the latest figures "as a reasonably good sign." But he added, "It will take a number of months before we can get an accurate picture of the strength of the recovery."

Detroit's assembly lines were the major positive influence in February. "Autos were assembled at an annual rate of 6.3 million units, up substantially from the January rate," helping pull up steel production as well, the Fed said.

With auto production "somewhat above recent sales levels," however, some decrease in output is under way this month, the Fed said.

That view was confirmed in the auto industry's own report on sales Tuesday showing cars were being sold at about a 5.7 million unit rate early in March.

And reflecting continuing pessimism in the steel industry the chairman of the nation's second largest producer, Bethlehem Steel Corp., said Tuesday that "1983 will almost certainly not be a good year."

Bethlehem's Donald H. Trautlein told shareholders the steel industry usually takes six months or longer to revive after a recession ends and will run at only about 60 percent of capacity through 1983.

The chief economist of the National Association of Manufacturers, Jerry Jasinski, was not impressed with the 0.3 percent gain in February's production. A survey last week of business leaders showed, "Most manufacturers are not yet convinced that the recovery is for real," he said Tuesday.

"Manufacturers are not going to rapidly expand production until they see a substantial and sustained increase in sales."

February's auto production surge boosted the overall manufacturing category of "big ticket" durable goods production by a healthy 1.1 percent in February.

Consumer durables measured alone were up 2 percent while nondurables were unchanged.

But what the Fed called "particularly sharp decreases" totaling 4.1 percent in oil and gas extraction as well as coal mining limited the overall improvement.

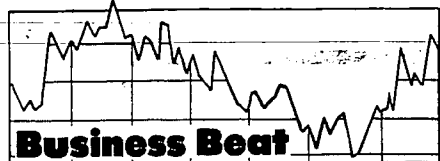

Domestic energy output has suffered because of the world oil glut that Monday forced the Organization of Oil Exporting Countries (OPEC) to make an unprecedented $5 cut in their price for a barrel of crude.

That action was quickly followed Tuesday by a similar price break by Mexico, not a member of OPEC, also to $29 a barrel.

Another non-OPEC producer, the Soviet Union, raised the possibility Tuesday that an unbribed price war could occur anyway when it undercut the new OPEC price by as much as $2 a barrel.

Despite the 2 percent improvement beginning in December the Fed said the nation's factories, oil and gas wells and mines were still about 11 percent under the production level when the recession began in the late summer of 1981 and that was only equivalent to industrial output in 1977.

Fan hazards bring recall

DEARBORN, Mich. (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. is recalling nearly 100,000 Ford Pinto, Mustang II and Mercury Bobcats built in the late 1970s because there is a possibility the engine cooling fans could crack or break apart.

The company said an estimated 99,863 Pinto and Bobcat models built from 1977 through 1979, and 1977 to 1978 Mustangs equipped with 2.8 liter engines and either air conditioners or a Rallye package are involved in the recall.

Ford said on some of the cars, the flexible steel five-blade engine cooling fans may be susceptible to cracking and possible separation of blade fragments.

Taiwan court upholds Apple

TAIPEI, Taiwan (UPI) — A high court Tuesday upheld a complaint by America's Apple Computer Inc., charging two Taiwanese companies had made and sold pirated copies of patented Apple software products.

The court ordered the Taipei district criminal court to review its dismissal Feb. 11 of Apple's charge that the Sunrise Computer Service Co., and the Golden Formosa Microcomputer pirated and sold copies of its software designs and instruction manuals, a court source said.

The district criminal court rejected Apple's complaint on grounds that the company, based at Cupertino, Calif., was not qualified to file criminal charges because it was not registered in Taiwan.

Fuji bank acquires houses

TOKYO (UPI) — Fuji Bank, Japan's second largest commercial bank, announced Tuesday a $425 million deal to acquire two Chicago-based financial houses in the largest direct investment in the United States by a Japanese firm.

A Fuji spokesman said Kou Uemura, the bank's managing director, signed an agreement with officials of Walter E. Heller International in Chicago Monday to purchase two of its non-banking subsidiaries for $425 million.

Under the agreement announced simultaneously in Chicago and Tokyo, Fuji will take over Walter E. Heller and Co., with total assets of $2.8 billion, and its overseas arm, Walter E. Heller Overseas Corp., with $700 million in assets.

Zilog charges infringement

CAMPBELL, Calif. (UPI) — Zilog Inc., a manufacturer of microcomputer systems and software, has filed a complaint against Nippon Electric Co. Ltd. for patent and copyright infringement, unfair competition, and trademark violation involving Zilog's 280 8-bit microprocessor integrated circuits.

The complaint also named two American subsidiaries, NEC Electronics U.S.A. and NEC Home Electronics Inc.

Zilog charges that NEC's PD780 and PD780-1 8-bit microprocessors announced in 1979 are copies of the 280 chip family and infringe on the firm's proprietary rights.

Small computer introduced

NEW YORK (UPI) — NCR Corp. Tuesday announced a mid-range mainframe computer that weighs only 50 pounds and can sit on a desk or be hung on a wall.

It uses only about one-tenth as much electric power as conventional mid-range mainframe computers.

NCR President Charles F. Xley Jr. said the new unit, called the NCR 9300, can be bought for $24,235 or leased for $950 a month in a typical configuration.

Sohio establishes price floor

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Standard Oil of Ohio Co. Tuesday set minimum gasoline prices at company-operated stations, resulting in price hikes of up to 4 cents a gallon at some stations.

Sohio spokesman Randy Wallenius said the minimums were established "to improve operating margins to more satisfactory levels."

U.S. car sales post March rebound

By MICHELE MAYNARD
United Press International

DETROIT — Domestic automakers snapped back Tuesday from a February sales decline, reporting sales for the first 10 days of March up 2.6 percent from last year's levels.

The five companies sold 160,617 cars in the March 1-10 period, up 2.6 percent from 156,505 last year. Big Three automakers alone reported a 2 percent sales increase in the first 10 days of March.

The daily selling rate of 17,846 was slightly better than last year's 17,389, but the second worst since 1975. The annual selling rate for the period is 6 million cars, up from last year's 5.8 million.

For the year, domestic automakers have sold 1,014,736 cars, up 3.4 percent from 981,585 to date in 1982. Big Three sales went up 1.3 percent.

In both years, the companies were offering incentives to lure car buyers — rates last year and 11.9 percent interest rates this year — providing a somewhat equal basis of comparison.

One analyst said the sales figures in the 10-day period last year were average for the year as a whole, meaning sales this year are bettering the 1982 rate.

So far in 1983, GM sales are up 2.5 percent to 608,846 from 593,685.

Ford Motor Co. posted an 8.8 percent increase for the first 10 days of the month. It sold 40,656 cars compared to 37,371 last year. So far this year, Ford has sold 234,766 autos compared to 237,109 in 1982, a decline of 1 percent.

Chrysler Corp. sold 9 percent more cars in the opening 10 days of March. Its sales were 21,139 compared to 19,449 in the period last year. Chrysler sales so far this year are up 4.2 percent to 125,289 from 120,245 last year.

Chrysler is offering buyers a choice between its financing program and rebates — Chrysler Vice President Thomas Pappert said the increased sales prove buyers "like the choices we're offering."

American Motors Corp. for the first time in several years reported its own 10-day sales figures. The automaker said it sold an estimated 4,500 cars in the opening March period, up 89.6 percent from 2,373 last year.

AMC sales for the year are up 111.2 percent to 33,269 from 15,747. The increases are due to the popularity of the Renault Alliance.

"Our dealers report that showroom traffic and interest in the Alliance has increased substantially," said Joseph Cappy, AMC vice president of marketing.

Volkswagen of America, whose long-term sales decline had been stemmed somewhat in recent months, reverted back to the dismal pattern in the first 10 days of March when sales dropped 41.7 percent to 1,495 from 2,563 last year.

Dealers charge AMC pushing unwanted cars

DETROIT (UPI) — American Motors Corp. dealers charge the company is capitalizing on the popularity of the Renault Alliance to force them to take other models they do not want.

Automotive News quoted dealers as saying the No. 4 automaker also is stiffing them on payments routinely made to cover operating expenses of dealerships.

The Renault Alliance has been a hot seller ever since its introduction last fall. Built in Kenosha, Wis., the car has caused AMC sales to nearly triple so far this year.

However, dealers say they are being forced to accept models made by Renault — in France — in exchange for Alliances.

"They've got a hot car and they're using it to advantage. Whether or not they jam cars down your throat depends on your fortitude," one unidentified Midwest dealer said.

"They're putting pressure on dealers to accept other cars," said the dealer, who added he feels pushed into accepting the Renault Fargo and 181.

An AMC spokesman said there is "no company-wide, region-wide or whatever plan to force any dealers to take any cars of any kind."

Dealers also complained about their inability to get so-called "floorplan assistance" and "holdback" payments made by the company to its franchise holders. These payments amount to nearly 5 percent of a dealer's dollar volume.

Need an accountant? Select one as you would a doctor

Universal Press Syndicate

This is the season of the year when my love-hate relationship with my accountant is heavily weighted on the side of hate.

With April 15 rushing toward me, my accountant has taken over my files, is searching through every receipt, canceled check, interest and dividend statement and the like I've accumulated for 1982 — all to help me put my financial house in IRS-protected order. As his search has progressed, my hate has moved to its annual peak and I'm wondering whether this invasion is 1) deliberately designed to irritate me; 2) worth a fraction of what he charges me; and 3) any "help" in any way at all.

Do you need an accountant? For tax purposes or for such other purposes as estate planning? Is your income whirling up and down on a dollars-and-cents carousel? Are you heading for marriage, divorce, an inheritance or a nasty fight over a relative's will?

Whatever your special reason, our tax laws have become so complex, been changed so often, both added and subtracted so many deductions that in most cases, an accountant can indeed save money for you as a client, says Stuart Becker of the Tax Division of the New York State Society of Certified Public Accountants.

You must choose an accountant

- with the same care that you choose a physician: The relationship is in its way as intimate; your accountant is in charge of your financial health as a doctor is in charge of your physical/emotional health.
- 1) Ask for names and advice from your lawyer, banker or insurance representative. In their professional lives, these people almost surely know and work with many accountants.
- 2) Assuming you're in business, speak with people in the same field as yours. They should be able to recommend an accountant who knows the industry. This applies to you if you have a paying job, too.
- 3) Check with professional organi-

- zations. In addition to societies of CPAs, or the State Board of Accountancy, your local Chamber of Commerce or Better Business Bureau may have a list of local accountants.
- 4) Your friends and co-workers also are sources.
- Once you have narrowed your own list to a few candidates, seek face-to-face interviews with each. You'll need to get a sense of the chemistry between you (and the firm) and an inkling of whether you can develop a good working relationship (despite love-hate intervals).
- 5) The fees you pay depend on the type of services you require with the kind of professional-voice work—work—work—Other factors: prevailing costs in your area; the accountant's level of experience; the complexity of your work. Some firms charge a flat-fee for preparing tax returns and bill for ongoing consultations; others charge by the hour; in still other cases, clients pay a retainer for a year's service, plus extra fees as indicated.

If you're not quoted a flat-rate, you will be billed at an hourly-rate. These fees, too, vary, just as lawyers' fees vary.

While that date — April 15 — and all the paperwork plus forms force thoughts of an accountant into your mind now, you can, of course, get this professional advice throughout the year. It is appropriate in your income tax bracket to take advantage of such measures as deferring income from one year to the next or accelerating expenses in a similar way? Total tax planning demands year-round planning and action with Dec. 31 as important a deadline — more important in some instances — as April 15. Also intelligent investing demands balancing of capital gains and losses before year-end, not in spring. This is just illustrative.

7) The kind of help you need will determine to a large extent whether you need a Certified Public Accountant or a Public Accountant.

The services of each overlap. But CPAs are experts in tax law, licensed by the state, can conduct audits and perform other special services. Set your own goals. Keep decent records, choose intelligently.

8) Finally, The Internal Revenue Service is a great resource for free, up-to-date tax information. It's a bit late, to use the IRS. Even getting a phone to ring instead of a busy signal can wear you down. But in off seasons, the IRS staff could be polite as well as helpful.

Bell asks for OK on plans

By JUDI HASSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON — In a legal brief as thick as a phone book, American Telephone & Telegraph Co. has asked a federal judge to put his final stamp of approval on a plan to break up the world's largest company.

AT&T said many of the objections to the reorganization plan voiced by states and public interest groups are "wholly irrelevant."

Ma Bell filed her comments in a 576-page document in response to objections from state regulators and consumer interest groups who argue the terms of the divestiture agreement would weaken local phone companies across the country and result in higher telephone bills.

The breakup of AT&T, the world's largest private company, was approved in August by U.S. District Judge Harold Greener. Under the plan, AT&T will spin off its 22 local operating companies and be allowed for the first time to enter the lucrative markets of computers and data processing.

"The clock is ticking away and this is why we are anxious to have these comments disposed of as quickly as possible," AT&T spokesman Pickard Wagner said.

Wagner said under the terms of the consent agreement, AT&T is planning to spin-off its local operating companies and reorganize by Jan. 1.

Just two weeks ago, the Supreme Court upheld the historic antitrust settlement under which AT&T agreed to divest itself of the companies that provide most of the nation's local telephone service.

In the latest filing, AT&T said it had amended the reorganization plan's treatment of trademarks and trade names.

Under the revision, the local operating companies will have the exclusive right to use the specified trademarks, including the Bell logo, only in their respective territory.

Treasury bill yields climb at auction

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury bill yields climbed for the second consecutive week Monday, reaching levels of mid-February.

The government sold $6.2 billion of three-month bills at an average discount of 8.256 percent, up from last week's 8.205 percent, equaling the rate on Feb. 14.

The government also sold $6.2 billion of six-month bills at an average discount of 8.264 percent, up from last week's 8.171 percent and also the highest since Feb. 14.

The three-month rate is used as the basis for the yield of a 91-day savings certificate available at banks and savings and loan associations in denominations of $2,500 or more. The rate is 8.255 percent up from last week's 8.205 percent.

The highest rate market certificates issued in denominations of $2,500 or more is the average of the past four weeks' six-month rate plus one-quarter point, 8.514 percent.

The ceiling rate for Thrift Institutions is the four-week average plus one-half point, or 8.764 percent.

The ceiling rate for 2 1/2-year small saver certificates with no minimum deposit, also set Monday, is 9.70 percent for Thrifts, 9.45 percent for banks.

Jobless offered discount at store

SPOKANE (UPI) — Big Red's gas and grocery stores in the Spokane area have begun giving 10 percent discounts on all goods to persons who are unemployed.

The idea was proposed to owners Jim and Chuck Redmon by their employees.

The plan went into effect March 1.

One of the store's managers, John Andrews, said the idea grew from the feeling that the discount would be a way to help out customers who have supported their stores when times were better.

☘ Sure 'n It's an Irish Feast ☘

Whether you observe St. Patrick's Day by simply "wearin' the green" or by going all out with a day of parades and parties, an Irish-style dinner shared with family and friends will make the celebration complete. All eyes will be smiling when the traditional corned beef or beef stew is selected to head the menu.

Flavorsome corned beef brisket is always a March 17th favorite, and will be especially enjoyed when crowned with a crispy sweet-sour topping. Traditional corned beef accompaniments of potatoes and cabbage are given untraditional, but delicious, treatment when combined in Paddy's Potato Cups.

"Pear"fection Cheesecake is a most appropriate dessert for the day, or for any other special meal. It features a crunchy nut crust and a fluffy no-bake filling that's easily made with unflavored gelatine. Chopped canned Bartlett pears add refreshing flavor to the smooth filling while crème de menthe pears form a festive shamrock to top it all off.

You don't have to be Irish to appreciate the outstanding qualities of Emerald Isle Beef Stew. Universally appealing is the colorful combination of tender beef strips, rutabaga, parsnips, onions and Brussels sprouts. The stew can start with a boneless beef chuck steak, or even more economically with beef for stew, cut into thin pieces.

In keeping with the spirit of the day serve Shamrock Pear Salads. Tasty canned Bartlett pear halves decorated with green pepper shamrocks are arranged over green salads and topped with a zesty Parsley Dressing.

Everyone will declare it their lucky day when the meal is climaxed with Irish Coffee Dessert. This cool and creamy concoction is conveniently made ahead in the blender with unflavored gelatine, then chilled for a sensational dessert-time appearance.

Corned Beef with Crispy Topping

| 1 peppercorn | 1-1/4 teaspoons cider vinegar |
| | 1-1/4 cups crushed crisp rice cereal |

Place corned beef brisket in Dutch oven; add water to cover, the onion, peppercorns and celery seed. Cover tightly and simmer 3 to 4 hours or until meat is tender. Heat apple jelly, 1 tablespoon water and vinegar in 2-quart saucepan until jelly is melted, stirring constantly. Stir in rice cereal. Remove brisket from cooking liquid; place fat side up, on rack in roasting pan. Spread cereal mixture over top of brisket. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 10 minutes. Carve diagonally across the grain into thin slices.

Microwave Directions: Place corned beef brisket in large cooking bag. Cut onion in half lengthwise. Add onion halves, 1/2 cup water, peppercorns and celery seed to bag. Microwave at 30 percent power (200 watts) 2 to 2-1/2 hours, depending upon size of brisket. Turn bag, and rotate dish 1/4 turn every 30 minutes. Let brisket stand 10 minutes in bag. Meanwhile, place apple jelly, 1 tablespoon water and vinegar in 1-quart glass measure and microwave at High 2 minutes, stirring every 30 seconds. Stir in cereal. Hearty old-fashioned stew combines old world flavor of Irish stew with preparation ease

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — As the saying goes, "Everybody's a little bit Irish on St. Patrick's Day."

On Thursday, why not carry on tradition and treat your family to hearty Irish Stew? This recipe for Irish-American Stew combines the best of both worlds. You'll taste the old world flavor of Irish Stew while enjoying the ease of preparation Americans have come to expect.

Best of all, you won't need the luck of the Irish to prepare this savory stew. All the work is done for you. A package of scalloped potatoes eliminates the tedious task of peeling potatoes, while the seasoning packet in the package takes the guesswork out of the gravy. This stew doesn't skimp on taste or heartiness. Each steaming bowl is chockful of beef and vegetables. And to give your meal a hint of green, try Emerald Salad Mold. Its fresh combination of lime gelatin and pineapple is accented with the crunch of green peppers and pecans. Whipped topping and mayonnaise furnish the creamy base while just a tablespoon of prepared yellow mustard brightens the flavor.

Serve Irish-American Stew and Emerald Salad Mold with oatmeal muffins, shamrock cookies, and a pot of hot tea for a gala family meal.

HERE'S $1.15 IN EXTRA SAVINGS TO START THE SHOW!

Fix a green meal Thursday

There's still time to get the fixing for a green meal tomorrow evening. That's the day we all should celebrate the Irish. And, why not do it by making a different colored dinner?

The meal doesn't have to be tasteless, and it doesn't have to be expensive. It doesn't have to be shocking either. Here's our Green Meal for Six People. Asterisks before the courses designate recipes included.

Green Meal For Six People Menu:

- Ice water with slices of lime in each glass
 - Creamed Green Bean Soup
 - Fettuccini Verdi with Clam Sauce
 - Tossed green salad with favorite dressing
 - Garlic bread
 - Parslaid Garlic Spread
 - Lemon Sherbet
 - Green Topping
- CREAMED GREEN BEAN SOUP
- 3 tablespoons margarine or butter
 - 2 stalks celery with leaves, chopped
 - 2 sprigs parsley
 - 1 very small head iceberg lettuce, shredded
 - 1 medium-sized yellow onion, peeled and grated
 - 2 cans, 8 oz. size, French-style green beans, pureed in blender
- 2½ cups chicken or beef broth
Small piece of bay leaf
Green food coloring
Toasted soup croutons
- In large non-raw metal pot, melt the margarine or butter. Add the chopped celery, parsley, shredded lettuce and grated onion; cook slowly, stirring, until tender and slightly browned. Add the pureed green beans, the ½ cups broth and bay leaf; simmer, covered 8 to 10 minutes. Cool slightly; puree with blender and then strain through a fine sieve or a double thickness of cheese cloth. Thicken the soup with a mixture of flour and water to the desired thickness. Tint soup greener with a few drops of food coloring, and season to taste with salt and white pepper. Serve hot, garnished with a sprig of fresh parsley or a slice of fresh green pepper and a few croutons.

FETTUCCINI VERDI

- 1 pound package spinach fettuccini
 - 1 cup sweet butter or margarine
- Cook the fettuccini in rapidly boiling, salted water for 8 minutes, or according to package directions, until just tender. Drain well and toss with butter or margarine. Serve with clam sauce and generous portions of grated Parmesan cheese.

MINCED CLAM SAUCE

- 4 tablespoons olive or vegetable oil

Willetta Warberg
On food

- 1 clove garlic, peeled and finely chopped
 - 1 medium-sized onion peeled and minced
 - 2 cans, 7 to 8 oz., minced clams, drain and reserve juice
 - ½ cup finely minced fresh parsley
- In a heavy saucepan, heat the oil; add the garlic and onion and cook over low heat until slightly browned and limp. Add drained clam juice; simmer, uncovered, for at least 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir in minced clams and chopped parsley; bring to a boil. Toss sauce with cooked fettuccini and serve topped with generous sprinklings of grated Parmesan cheese.

PARSLAID GARLIC SPREAD

- FOR FRENCH BREAD
- 1 stick sweet butter or margarine, softened
 - 2 cloves garlic, peeled and mashed
 - 4 tablespoons minced parsley
- In small crock, mix together with wooden spoon the softened butter, garlic and parsley. Slice bread and spread mixture on slices, keeping shape of bread. Wrap bread in foil; place in warm oven until ready to serve. If desired, sprinkle top with minced parsley just before serving.
- GREEN SHERBERT TOPPING

- FOR ICE CREAM
- 1 package, 10 oz. size, frozen melon balls
 - ¼ cup creme de menthe, green or white — green food coloring

In blender, puree melon balls, creme de menthe and a few drops of green food coloring to make a thick green topping for lemon sherbet. If possible decorate dessert with fresh mint sprigs.

Note: For a non-alcohol topping, creme de menthe may be substituted with ¼ cup water with a few lids of mint extract.

THIS WEEK'S BEST MARKET BUYS: California storms are playing games with fresh produce availabilities. Strawberries were getting here at good prices but now they are not. We'll just have to wait until the weather clears to pay decent prices. Lettuce has gone down in cost a few cents. Watch for round steak sales. Regarding the meat situation, prices vary according to the market. "extras" Irish potatoes and onions will be good buys this week.

Open-faced hot corned beef sandwiches have Irish appeal by using green pepper rings

Shamrock meal will be hit

ENGLEWOOD CLIFFS, N.J. — Whether you are Irish or not, St. Patrick's Day is a time for dressing in green, marching in parades and feeling festive.

And, what could be more fun than sitting down with your family to a traditional St. Patrick's Day meal, made easy for you with a special new recipe.

St. Pat's Shamrock Supper includes the traditional tastes of Ireland — corned beef and cabbage — but does not take hours to prepare. The start to this simple supper is delicious, new golden onion soup mix, used to season both the tangy coleslaw and the hearty hot corned beef sandwiches.

The open-faced sandwich is created by spreading a combination of golden onion soup mix, sour cream and mustard on rye bread, then layering with corned beef and Swiss cheese. To finish off the Irish appeal, green pepper rings, cut to resemble shamrocks, are placed on the cheese, then the sandwich is baked until the cheese is melted.

The coleslaw is an easy, but tasty blend of golden onion soup mix tossed with sour cream, shredded cabbage and carrots, chopped green pepper and vinegar.

Simple for the cook, special for the family — whether you're Irish or not, St. Pat's Shamrock Supper will surely be the hit of your parade.

ST. PAT'S SHAMROCK SUPPER

- 1 envelope Lipton gold onion soup mix with real chicken broth
 - 1 pint, 16 oz., sour cream
 - 2½ cups shredded carrots
 - ½ cup chopped green pepper
 - 2 tablespoons vinegar
 - 1 tablespoon sugar
 - 1 teaspoon prepared mustard
 - 8 slices rye bread
 - 1 pound sliced cooked corned beef
 - 8 slices Swiss cheese
 - 8 green pepper rings
- In medium bowl, blend golden onion soup mix with sour cream.
- To make coleslaw, in large bowl, combine cabbage, carrots, green pepper, vinegar, sugar and ¼ cup sour cream mixture; chill at least 2 hours.
- To make sandwiches, preheat oven to 350°. Blend remaining sour cream mixture with mustard and spread evenly on bread.
- Top each prepared slice with corned beef, 1 slice cheese and green pepper ring. Bake 15 minutes or until cheese is melted. Serve with coleslaw. Makes about 4 servings.

Bananas delicious and nutritious

By ROBERT W. STRUBE
Chicago Sun-Times

The United States is peeling 2.6 million tons of bananas each year. That is enough for everyone to eat 23.3 pounds of this delicious fruit each year. Not only is it delicious, it has many health benefits.

It's great as a breakfast fruit. And it's recommended for hypertension sufferers because it is low in sodium and high in potassium. The banana is easily digestible and 99.8 percent fat free with no cholesterol at all.

An average size banana contains only about 100 calories. The banana is recommended for pregnant women because it contains vitamin B-6 and some iron. Because the banana's carbohydrates are absorbed slowly, the blood sugar level rises slowly and stays at a higher level for a longer period of time.

There are many ways to eat bananas. The recipes are endless. One of the easiest is to just unpeel this delicious fruit and eat out of hand, but if you want something a little different try this.

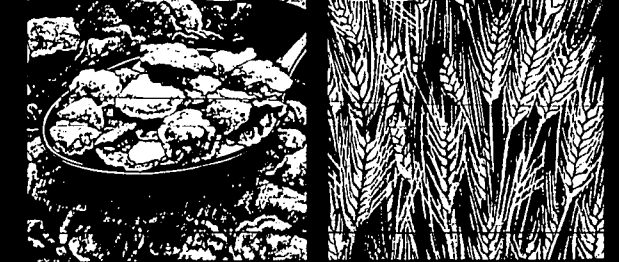

Banana Pound Cake

- 1 (18½-ounce) package yellow cake mix
- 4 eggs at room temperature
- one-third cup salad oil
- ½ cup water

- 1 and one-third cups mashed ripe bananas (4 medium bananas)
- 1 (3½-ounce) package instant vanilla pudding mix
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon nutmeg

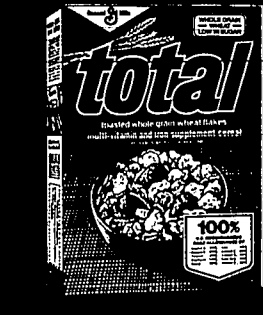

Confectioners' sugar (optional)
Combine all ingredients in a large bowl. Mix until blended, then beat at medium speed for 4 minutes. Turn batter into greased 8" by 10" by 10" inch pan. Bake at 350° for 1 hour or until cake tester inserted in cake comes out clean. Cool in pan 10 minutes. Then turn out onto rack and cool completely. If desired, dust with confectioners' sugar before serving. Makes about 16 servings.

Muffins require no talent

By KIM UPTON
Chicago Sun-Times

Muffins are homemade bread for the timid. They take little preparation, no talent and only a few minutes of baking time. They are perfect for those with more appetite than courage, more sense of adventure than money, more muffin tins than bread pans.

Muffins can be fun. Among famed muffins in history are blueberry muffins and bran muffins. Then there's a Little Miss Muffin and the well-known song, "I Got Plenty o' Muffin."

At the heart of the batter is a combination of dry ingredients, including flour and baking powder. Stirred into this is a blend of milk, butter and egg. Flavorings such as cheese, orange or bran change the character of the basic mix, making each type of muffin unique.

Muffins should be eaten hot and fresh from the oven, but if you don't have time or energy, they can be made in advance, frozen, wrapped in foil and reheated in a 400-degree oven.

When making muffins, mixing should be held to a minimum. Combine beaten liquid ingredients with dry ones in a few strokes. The dough should not be well-mixed. If beaten too long, the gluten in the flour will develop and make the dough tough. Then the muffin will develop air pockets called tunnels, much dreaded by muffinmakers as a sign of incompetence. But not to worry. Underbeating pretty much takes care of that. Pour lumpy muffin batter into muffin pans and muffins will undoubtedly be perfect.

Muffins are good served at breakfast with lots of butter. They also are good at dinner with soup, a snack with cheese and fruit and as a lunch with preserves or jam. Try some.

If you want to batter up, you can do so with a hot corn muffin made even better with chili peppers, blueberry muffins, banana oatmeal muffins, prune cinnamon muffins, cinnamon cranberry muffins or orange nut muffins. James Beard, a champion bread baker also is a muffinmaker, as his recipe for bran muffins proves.

Muffin ventured, muffin gained.

Cheese Muffins
Time: about 40 minutes
Cost: less than $2

Mix remaining cheese and lemon peel with flour. Beat egg untubby and mix with milk and butteroil. Stir liquid ingredients into dry mixture, mixing only until dry ingredients are moistened. Spoon into greased muffin pans, filling about two-thirds full. Sprinkle top of each muffin with reserved cheese. Bake in pre-heated, 425-degree oven for about 20 minutes, or until muffins test done. Makes 8 muffins.

Coupons aid Easter seal fund

By MARTIN SLOANE
United Feature Syndicate

Dear Martin: I want you to know how much I appreciate your support of the National Easter Seal Society. I can tell you from experience what a wonderful organization it is. My 3-year-old is severely brain damaged and she goes to the Easter Seals facility twice a week for therapy. They have done wonders for my little boy and they offer tremendous moral support for me. — Melinda Hinton, Denver, Colo.

Dear Melinda: Three years ago I wrote a column about a company that had distributed a cents-off coupon and offered to contribute an equal amount to a worthy cause for each coupon that shoppers redeemed. I felt that this was a "good deal" for everyone concerned because consumers benefitted from the value of the coupon; the matching contribution helped the fund-raising group; and the company's coupon had more impact and more of its products were sold as a result.

Soon after the column appeared I received a call from Charlene Waldman, who was then with the New York Easter Seal Society. She asked if she could reprint the column and I gladly said yes. During our conversation, I asked her whether Easter Seals had ever considered raising money using a national coupon promotion. "Could you help?" Charlene asked. A few weeks later I found myself on a plane to Chicago going to meet John Pannell, now Easter Seals director of development, to tell him of the idea.

Many months and many meetings later, the first Easter Seals Coupon Fund Raising Campaign became a reality using the savings of the Sunday paper to distribute millions of coupons. Easter Seals received more than $250,000 in contributions from the participating companies. Not a bad start.

During that first year, as I came in contact with some of the fine people who provided Easter Seal services, I was constantly amazed and thrilled at the incredible job they were doing.

Last year, Easter Seal Societies across the country helped nearly 750,000 children and adults with disabilities.

This year's Easter Seals Coupon Fund Raising Campaign promises to be the single biggest coupon distribution ever. It will include more than a billion coupons and it's only a few days away. Put together with the help of Bill Lembeck and the Marketing Corporation of America, this "Special Easter Seals Edition" 20-page color insert will appear in many best food day newspapers during the week of March 21 (in New York, Boston and Philadelphia, look for it in the Sunday paper on March 20).

Pat Boone, our Teleton host, will be on the cover of the insert along with coupons from Taster's Choice and Pepperidge Farm. Inside are coupons and refund offers from 35 other well-known brands that offer savings of more than $8. If you will help by clipping and redeeming these coupons by April 3, these fine companies have promised to contribute more than $1.5 million to Easter Seals!

Working for Easter Seals has added a warm and wonderful dimension to my coupon clipping, and while you're watching the Teleton (March 26-27) I hope you will call in and pledge some of your own coupon savings, and all the Easter Seals volunteer that "it's from a coupon clipper!"

(Martin Sloane will appear on the Easter Seals Teleton.)

Killarney Chocolate Pie or Shamrock Chocolate Cookies celebrate "great day for the Irish"

HERSHEY, Pa. — Legend has it that the wearing of the green for St. Patrick's Day brings good luck. Emerald green shamrocks, leprechauns and dining on traditional Irish dishes are symbols and customs honoring this gala event. To the millions of Irish descendants living in the United States, St. Patrick's Day is a day of celebration.

To highlight the occasion and add a little spark to your menus, why not serve an appropriate chocolate mint-green dessert? Featured here are some luscious recipes to celebrate this "great day for the Irish."

Killarney Chocolate Pie features the scrumptious creamy chocolate flavor of semi-sweet mini chips complemented by the light and fluffy green creme de menthe top layer. Prepare in either a pastry or crumb pie shell and crown with shaved chocolate or curls for extra eye appeal.

Surprise youngsters by baking Shamrock Chocolate Cookies — great for tucking into lunch boxes or to share with friends for an after school treat. They are easily made with unsweetened cocoa, so conveniently ready to measure and mix right from the can. Decorate these shamrocks with tinted green frosting or a satiny chocolate glaze.

For adult fare, serve either of these chocolate goodies for bridge club friends or neighborly get-togethers accompanied by Irish Hot Chocolate. Although traditionally Irish hot coffee is served, the flavor of chocolate will both surprise and delight your guests.

This year, top off your St. Patrick's Day by celebrating with a festive chocolate-mint green dessert.

- KILLARNEY CHOCOLATE PIE
- 1 baked 9-inch pastry shell or crumb crust
 - 1 cup semi-sweet chocolate mint chips
 - 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
 - ¼ cup sugar
 - 2 eggs, separated
 - 1½ cups milk
 - 1 teaspoon vanilla
 - 1 tablespoon creme de menthe or ½ teaspoon mint extract
 - ½ cup heavy cream
 - ¼ cup sugar
 - 3-4 drops green food color

Prepare the pie crust; set aside. Place mini chips in a medium mixing bowl; set aside. Combine the gelatine and ¼ cup sugar in a saucepan; add the slightly-beaten egg yolks and milk. Let stand for 5 minutes to soften the gelatin. Place over medium heat, stirring constantly, until the gelatin dissolves and mixture thickens slightly. Do not boil.

Remove from heat; add the vanilla and pour 1 cup of the mixture over the mini chips. Stir or whisk until melted. Add the creme de menthe to remaining mixture in saucepan. Chill both mixtures, stirring occasionally, until they mound slightly when dropped from a spoon. Beat the heavy cream until stiff peaks form; fold ½ the cream into chocolate mixture. Beat the egg whites with ¼ cup sugar until stiff peaks form. Fold ½ into chocolate mixture; pour into the pie shell. Chill. Fold the remaining whipped cream and stiffly beaten egg whites into mint mixture; add food color. Chill 10 minutes or until mixture begins to set; spoon onto chocolate layer. Chill. Before serving, garnish with chocolate shavings or curls. Makes 8 servings.

SHAMROCK CHOCOLATE COOKIES

- ½ cup butter or margarine
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- ½ cup unsweetened cocoa
- ½ teaspoon baking powder
- ½ teaspoon baking soda
- ¼ teaspoon salt

Shamrock Glaze (recipe below)
Satiny Chocolate Glaze (recipe below)

Cream the butter or margarine, sugar, egg and vanilla in a large mixer bowl until light and fluffy. Combine flour, cocoa, baking powder, baking soda and salt; add to creamed mixture, blending well. Chill about 1 hour or until firm enough to roll. Roll a small portion of dough at a time on a lightly floured board or between 2 pieces of wax paper to ¼-inch thickness. Cut with a shamrock-shaped cutter; place on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake at 325° F for 5 to 7 minutes or until no indentation remains when lightly touched. Cool the cookies on sheet 1 minute; remove to wire rack to cool thoroughly. Frost with Shamrock Glaze or Satiny Chocolate Glaze. Makes about 3 dozen.

Shamrock Glaze: Melt 3 tablespoons butter or margarine over low heat. Remove from heat; blend in 2 cups confectioner's sugar and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Add 2 to 3 tablespoons milk gradually; beat until proper consistency. Blend in 2 or 3 drops green food color. Makes about 1 cup glaze.

Satiny Chocolate Glaze: Melt 2 tablespoons butter in a small saucepan over low heat; add 3 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa and 2 tablespoons water, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Do not boil. Remove from heat; beat in 1 cup confectioner's sugar and ½ teaspoon vanilla until smooth. Add additional water, ½ teaspoon at a time, until of desired consistency. Makes about ¾ cup glaze.

IRISH HOT CHOCOLATE

- 3 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa
 - ¼ pint 2 tablespoons sugar
 - dash salt
 - ¼ cup hot water
 - 3 cups milk
 - 6 tablespoons Irish whiskey, optional
 - ½ cup heavy cream, whipped
- Combine the cocoa, sugar and salt in a medium saucepan; blend in the water. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly; boil and stir for 2 minutes. Add the milk; stir and heat to serving temperature. Do not boil. Remove from heat. Pour 1 tablespoon whiskey in each 6-ounce cup or goblet, if desired. Add hot cocoa; stir. Top with whipped cream. Makes 6 servings.

It's time to tear out brown grass

Now is an excellent time to renovate your lawn. The old brown grass will never turn green again.

New growth comes from the base of the plants and most of its originates below ground rhizomes (underground stems). If the dead grass and thatch are removed now, new growth will occur faster and your lawn will be greener sooner.

Hand raking will remove a lot of thatch, but it is not as effective as a power rake or verticle mower. These machines have verticle tines or blades which reach down and pull out the thatch and dead grass.

Many nurseries and tool rental companies have power rakes available for hourly rental. This time of year you may want to reserve one in advance. Special thatching blades can also be purchased to fit most rotary lawn mowers.

Another effective method is to lower an ordinary rotary lawnmower to a height of ½-inch and scalp the grass. If your lawn is particularly tall or thick, you may need to lower the mower in two stages and cut it twice.

Most effective is to power rake and then scalp mow. Don't be too concerned if you remove some of the new green blades. Although this treatment seems harsh, it stimulates new growth.

Allen Wilson
Intermountain gardening

The lawn should be fertilized soon after renovating. A complete-lawn fertilizer containing nitrogen, phosphate and potash is best. Most lawn fertilizers contain about 4 to 10 percent nitrogen and about 4 to 10 percent each of phosphate and potash.

The nitrogen stimulates new leaf growth and the other two help build a strong root system. Fertilizer will have a longer lasting effect if at least some of the nitrogen is of a slow release type. Look on the label for Nitroform. Agriform or water insoluble nitrogen.

In the intermountain area iron and sulfur are also desirable fertilizer ingredients. Both will help prevent the chlorosis or yellowing which often occurs in late spring. Early spring fertilization is important to help develop a strong, deep root system and thick turf which resists weed invasion. Deep rooted laws also require less frequent watering during the summer.

Wives also wait for doctors

DEAR ABBY: I am a busy business man writing in reference to "Tired of Waiting," who had a long wait at the doctor's office.

I had the same problem, and this is how I solved it. I had an appointment with a local physician who kept me waiting for a very long time. The next time I had an appointment it was for 11 a.m., so I phoned the doctor's office at 9 a.m. with this message: "This is (), and I have an appointment this morning for 11 o'clock. I need to know if the doctor is on schedule. You see, I, too, am a busy person and do not have time to sit in your waiting room doing nothing, so if the doctor is running behind, I prefer waiting in my office rather than his. If you will please call me when he's ready, I can be there in 20 minutes. I know he doesn't think 20 minutes is a long wait since I waited over an hour to see him for my last appointment."

Well, Abby, guess who was ready for me when I got there? I rarely have to wait more than 10 minutes for this doctor now.

—NO WAITING IN OKLAHOMA
DEAR NO WAITING: Beautiful. But let's hear from a doctor's secretary.

DEAR ABBY: I work for two pediatricians, and try as we do to keep to a schedule, it's nearly impossible, and this is why:

Joe Jones calls. He must have a physical exam to continue playing basketball with his high school team. He's lucky. We're able to find a spot for him within a couple of days. His appointment is at 3 p.m. right after school.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

He calls from school to tell us that his car won't start. A friend will bring him, but he can't get there until 3:30. Can he still have his checkup? Of course he can. We'll work it out somehow. But someone will have to wait.

Mrs. Smith called this morning. She needs an afternoon appointment because her child has an earache. She shows up with two children because in the meantime the other one has gotten sick. Will we see both children? Of course. But someone will probably have to wait.

Mrs. Anderson is bringing in her first baby. He's 6 months old, and she is nervous and has lots of questions for the doctor. Will he take the time to reassure her, to answer her questions and help her to deal more comfortably with the baby? Of course he will. But someone will probably have to wait.

—MARGARET IN GLENCOE, ILL.

DEAR MARGARET: Now, let's hear it from a doctor's wife.

DEAR ABBY: I can't believe you printed that tired old complaint from "Tired of Waiting," the woman who had to wait to see her doctor.

Hey, "Tired." Just calm down! Have you ever written to Dear Abby to say you got in to see the doctor on time?

Doctors' wives, let's unite and write to Dear Abby about the times we've waited and waited for our husbands who have been called back to the hospital to see "Tired of Waiting."

End day with homey supper at family hearth with cuppa

Casserole of canned corned beef will please. 'Cozy' in shape of cottage keeps tea hot

NEW YORK CITY — On St. Patrick's Day after the parading is over and the singing and shouting has died down. It's time to gather round the family hearth for a homey supper and a restoring cuppa.

(For the uninitiated a "cuppa" is a cup of tea — pronounced "lay" by the Irish and served hot and hearty enough to warm the proverbial "cockles of the heart.")

Traditional components of a St. Patrick's Day supper are potatoes, corned beef and cabbage. Today's menu features these basics in new guise. In place of ordinary boiled "spuds" there are baked stuffed potatoes flecked with green of chopped parsley and chives.

Instead of slices of slow-simmered corned beef, the Galway Bay Casserole is made with thick slices of the canned variety. The slices are set on a bed of sauerkraut (not Irish to be sure but a flavorful combination all the same) and the whole is baked until bubbling hot.

It's a meal to please all true sons and daughters of Erin and those who just borrow Irish ancestry for the day. A big pot of freshly brewed "lay" should be served throughout the meal, preferably with milk rather than lemon. Use good quality tea either in loose form or in teabags to ensure a brew that gives a gentle lift without a later let down.

Follow these simple rules endorsed by tea experts: Heat a teapot by filling it with hot water while you bring fresh cold water to a full rolling boil. Empty the teapot and measure one teaspoon of tea and one teabag per serving into the pot. Cover the pot and let stand for 3 to 5 minutes. Stir and strain before serving.

GALWAY BAY CASSEROLE

- 1 can, 16 oz. size, sauerkraut, drained
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper

- 1/2 cup Thousand Island salad dressing
 - 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
 - 1 cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
 - 1 can, 12 oz. size, corned beef, sliced
 - 1 tomato cut in wedges
 - 1 tablespoon flavored bread crumbs
- Spread sauerkraut over bottom of 1 1/2-quart casserole. Add water. Sprinkle with brown sugar and pepper. Combine salad dressing with dry mustard, drizzle over sauerkraut. Sprinkle with cheese. Cover with casserole lid or foil. Bake in 425° F. oven until heated through, about 20 minutes. Remove from oven and arrange corned beef slices over sauerkraut. Place tomato wedges along sides and sprinkle with bread crumbs. Bake in 375° F. oven until lightly browned, about 15 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

IRISH STUFFED POTATOES

- 4 large baking potatoes
 - shortening
 - 4 tablespoons butter or margarine
 - 1/2 cup hot milk
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon pepper
 - 4 tablespoons chopped parsley
 - 4 tablespoons chopped chives
- Scrub potatoes, dry and rub with shortening. Bake in 425° F. oven until done when pricked with a fork, about 1 hour. Cut off top third of each potato length-wise. Carefully scoop out potatoes leaving 1/2-inch shells. Mash pulp and beat in butter and milk. Add salt, pepper, parsley and chives. Continue beating until fluffy, then mound mixture in potato shells. Place on baking sheet and bake in 375° F. oven until lightly browned, about 10 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Hershey has chocolate fest

By MARY MAUSHARD
Baltimore Evening Sun

It was a dream come true. Out of the 26-inch snowfall that was turning rapidly to piles of frozen gray yuck, rose a four-foot solid chocolate heart over a table of mostly chocolate delicacies.

There was mouse-not in little custard cups, but in a salad-size bowl with a big spoon that let you have all your eyes thought your stomach could take; chocolate bread pudding; chocolate cream pie; chocolate charlotte russe; chocolate cake, and something simply delicious called Chocolate Sabayone Torte.

And that was just the beginning, the first dessert table of the first meal of a four-day chocolate spree. No need to wake up yet.

Forget the snow, the cold, the heating bills, the marooned car. Think instead of chocolate kisses on your pillow, almonds slivered into cold chocolate soup, chocolate chips tucked into breakfast rolls. Celebrate one of the great American passions. Come to the first Great American Chocolate Festival in Hershey, Pa., a town where even the air smells of cacao beans and the street lights look light chocolate kisses.

That was the invitation issued by the folks at Hershey Foods. And that was the invitation hungrily accepted by at least 500 people. Some dipped in for only a day or a dinner; others, the strong, stayed for the entire four-day extravaganza, finding new chocolate delights at every meal and often in between.

The invitation was so tempting that several people left warm climates just for the festival. At least three came from California, one of whom was stranded for a while at the Harrisburg airport.

"I thought it sounded like fun," said a Florida woman, who had not been to Hershey for 15 years. By the next morning this same woman was taking her fun quite seriously, however. "The chocolate waffles are a treat," she said, pointing to the half-eaten waffles on her plate. There were only a few chocolate bits cooked into the batter; she had expected all-chocolate waffles.

But she was not to be denied. "I asked the waitress to bring me chocolate syrup," she said, proudly, as she poured it from a silver pitcher over her waffles.

Festival-goers, including Hershey stockholders, food writers, cooking teachers and those just looking for a good time, came from up and down the East Coast. Some lived as close as the shadows of the chocolate plant. An elderly woman from Harrisburg had not been far from home in 11 years, but she chose the chocolate festival for her coming-out. Hotel Hershey accommodated her by sending its limousine to pick her up at home.

Participants were treated to non-edible delights, too: tours of Chocolate World; dessert demonstrations by Maida Heatter, the cook and cookbook author who has become a cult figure among chocolate lovers; a presentation of breakfast delights by the hotel's executive chef; chocolate sculpturing by Gunther Heiland, pastry chef at Philadelphia's Bellevue-Stratford Hotel and a showing of "Willie Wonka and the Chocolate Factory" complete with chocolate-topped popcorn. But it was clearly the food, the chocolate food, that occupied their minds and bodies.

SAN FRANCISCO — After endless heavy winter meals, main-dish salads provide a refreshing change of pace.

Fruits and vegetables served crisp and fresh, combined with meat or cheese and drizzled with a tangy dressing, are healthful, fresh-tasting treats at this time or any time of the year.

Here's a winter-to-spring version of a summer salad that will give you a head start on the taste of summer before the first green leaves and flower buds appear.

"Country Platter Salad" teams year-round standbys — poultry, lettuce and tomatoes — with summer's favorite fruit, grapes. A tarragon cream dressing, with added zest from mustard and blue cheese, marries the salad flavors beautifully.

How can summer grapes find their way into winter and spring menus? Conveniently, the seasons are reversed in the Southern Hemisphere so the ripe, juicy grapes appearing in good supply in markets right now are imported from the sunshiny vineyards of Chile, while produce some of the world's finest fruit.

Serve "Country Platter Salad" as an entree for lunch or dinner. It's a complete meal itself, but, a cup of soup and whole grain bread or muffins would be fitting accompaniments to this hearty salad.

Think summer — even if it's not — with other menu ideas featuring imported winter grapes. Add a cluster of grapes to your bacon and egg breakfast to perk up a winter morning. Serve grapes for dessert, tossed with honey-flavored yogurt. Combine grapes with oranges, apples and other winter fruits and top with shredded coconut for ambrosial fruit salads. Imported winter grapes are available from January through mid-May.

COUNTRY PLATTER SALAD

Tarragon Cream Dressing
 1½ quarts crisp romaine and butter lettuce
 1½ cups red and green Chilean grapes
 2 medium, firm-ripe tomatoes
 1½ cups cooked chicken or turkey strips
 4 strips crisp-cooked bacon
 sliced lemon for garnish
 Prepare Tarragon Cream Dressing. Cover and chill several hours to blend flavors. Tear greens into bite-size pieces, rinse grapes (seed red grapes), and cut tomatoes into small wedges. Cut chicken or turkey into strips and bacon into large pieces. Arrange greens on platter and top with grapes, tomato, chicken (or turkey) and bacon. Garnish with sliced lemon. Serve with Tarragon Cream Dressing. Makes 4 servings.

Tarragon Cream Dressing: Mix ½ teaspoon crushed tarragon with 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, ¼ cup each mayonnaise and dairy sour cream. Blend 1 tablespoon crumbled blue cheese with 2 tablespoons wine vinegar. Combine with mayonnaise mixture. Makes a generous 1 cup.

Great cola taste without caffeine.
