Fuel is down, food goes up

By DENIS G. GULINO
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Falling oil costs held inflation at the wholesale level to only 0.1 percent last month despite the biggest surge in food prices in nearly a year, the Labor Department said Friday.

At the same time, the government reported that Americans took home very little additional pay in February and cautiously kept their spending the same as in January.

Together the latest reports showed the spending power of the dollar was holding up better than at anytime in the past decade but the fledgling economic recovery is gaining very little altitude, analysts agreed.

Fuel prices in February dropped 2.9 percent overall, offsetting most of the 0.6 percent rise in the wholesale price of consumer goods and increases in a wide variety of other goods, from cars to industrial equipment. It was the biggest rebound in food prices since April.

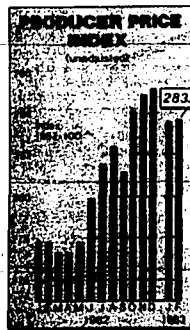

If energy and food had been excluded from the February producer price index it would have climbed a much stronger 0.7 percent.

With the moderating effect of cheaper oil the inflation rate for business is falling this year by every measure, heading for an even slower pace than last year's 3.5 percent increase.

The index fell a record 1 percent in January, which February's small increase did not begin to wipe out. The January and February rates, if sustained for the rest of 1983, would reduce inflation with an annual rate of deflation of 5.3 percent, department analysts said.

The producer price index in February was virtually unchanged at 283.7 before seasonal adjustment. That was equivalent to a price of $2.87 for goods that cost business $1,000 in 1967.

President Reagan called it "more excellent news on the economy because it raises the purchasing power of every American."

The separate Commerce Department report on income and spending Friday showed the broadest category of February's personal income was up only 0.1 percent, the smallest increase since August. After income taxes, income did not change at all from January.

Personal spending, vital for a sustained recovery, also did not change last month. But the spending level was slightly ahead of where it was late last year, giving administration officials reason to believe consumers are helping boost the economy this quarter in spite of their caution.

The 2.9 percent drop in the producer price index for finished energy goods was the third consecutive month of decline but was not as dramatic as January's 4.2 percent drop, mostly because natural gas prices bucked the trend by climbing again, by 3.2 percent.

Gasoline was down 5 percent and home heating fuel dropped 5.8 percent.

When measuring fuels the government's wholesale price index uses two-month-old data.

Reagan vows to veto any attempt to cancel tax cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Saying "I mean it," President Reagan vowed Friday to veto any attempt to cancel the third year of his tax cut plan or other tax credits.

Reagan made the remarks at a ceremony in the State Dining Room where he signed a 1982 "State of Small Business" report to Congress.

The president referred to moves by his critics to repeal the 10 percent tax cut that is due to take effect July 1 and to wipe out tax indexing, which paces income tax brackets to inflation.

"The tax reforms are critical to our recovery and we will not abide any tampering with them," Reagan said. "The third year of the tax cut ... and tax indexing will benefit small business people and the average working families the most," he declared.

"Their repeal would be a cruel blow, an unfair attempt to steal the just rewards of those Americans who carried us through the recession and the recovery," he said.

"And I mean it when I say it. I will veto any attempt to get rid of those two tax cuts," he added. A burst of applause followed his remark.

"This administration is dedicated to restoring and providing a free market economy," he said. "We can do this only in an economy free of inflation's scourge."

Reagan said recent surveys show strong optimism in the small business community.

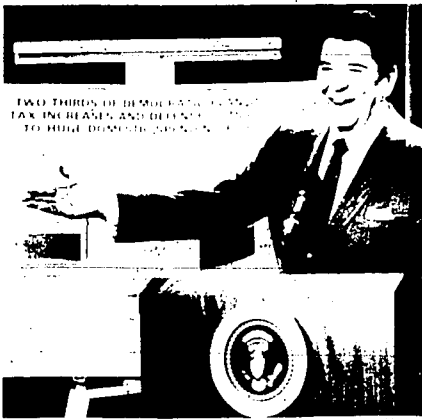

"Success for small business and America are one and the same," he said.

SBA administrator James Sanders said Reagan's message to Congress is being issued "at a time when the recession has definitely bottomed out ... and small business is the cutting edge of this recovery."

The report said: "Small businesses have weathered the recession better than big businesses and are in a better position today to hire more workers."

—From July 1981 through December 1982, finance, insurance and real estate dominated by small firms gained 65,000 jobs and the services sector gained 528,000 jobs.

—Ninety percent of the 2.7 million job loss in the period occurred in mining and manufacturing, while construction was the only small business-oriented industry to drop.

Reagan blasts Democratic budget during press conference

EPA search reaches an end

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan has picked a new permanent Environmental Protection Agency chief to replace Anne Burford, and William Ruckelshaus is the probable nominee, sources said Friday.

The sources said Ruckelshaus, a moderate Republican who launched the agency during the Nixon administration, is willing to take the job but the details of how he will handle his corporate board memberships and other business interests to prevent any possible conflict of interest are yet to be worked out.

The sources said Ruckelshaus was at the White House Thursday to talk to administration officials. Ruckelshaus, 50, vice president of the Westchester Co. in Tacoma, Wash., could not be reached for comment.

But he told the Tacoma News-Tribune Friday, "I'm just not really in a position to talk about it at this time. I'd like to talk about it, but once I start speculating, I would be saying more than I am in a position to say."

At the EPA, a source said staffers had heard Reagan had settled on his choice to replace Mrs. Burford. CBS News quoted senior White House aides as saying Ruckelshaus "has agreed in principle to come back providing everything can be worked out" and that Reagan plans to make the appointment next week.

It was also learned that Walter Barber, who was acting EPA chief before Mrs. Burford took office, was being considered for the No. 2 job at EPA. Barber, now employed by a New Mexico engineering firm, was in Washington on undisclosed business Friday.

Senators heed cry of victims of drunk drivers

By STEVEN CHRISTENSEN
UPI Press International

BOISE — A bill increasing jail terms and fines for drunken drivers and making a third conviction a felony gained unanimous approval Friday from state senators who said they had "heard the cries of anguish" from victims of intoxicated motorists.

All 35 of the upper chamber's lawmakers supported the measure, which was hammered out after six weeks of public hearings by both Senate and House committees. The bill now advances to the House.

Sen. Roger Fairchild, R-Fruiland, said the proposal is a "logical common-sense" compromise balancing reason with the emotional campaign of groups demanding a crackdown on people who drive under the influence of alcohol.

He said the bill respects the discretionary authority of sentencing judges, but sends a message to both judges and prosecutors that "we, the people, expect them to do a better job and be more consistent" in enforcing drunken-driving statutes.

Under terms of the legislation, judges could sentence a first offender to up to six months in jail and a $1,000 fine. A second conviction would carry a maximum penalty of $2,000 in fines and up to one year imprisonment — and a requirement that the violator serve at least 10 days.

On a third conviction, the offender could be prosecuted for a felony, facing up to five years in prison and fines not to exceed $5,000.

License suspensions are also tightened under the legislation, with first-time violators facing a possible six-month loss of driving privileges. The second conviction would result in loss of privileges for at least six months and up to a year. The third

Abortion bill wins majority support in Senate

BOISE (UPI) — Doctors would be required to give patients who seek abortions a pamphlet outlining the surgical risks and alternatives to terminating pregnancy under provisions of a bill which won overwhelming support Friday in the Idaho Senate.

Lawmakers voted 29-5 in favor of the measure sponsored by Senate President Pro Tem James Risch of Boise, advancing the legislation to the House.

Risch said the proposal, patterned after a Utah statute, "is not designed to prevent abortions" — though the Republican added he opposes the surgery.

"But it will allow for the protection of women who seek abortions" by informing them about ramifications of the operation and giving them at least 24 hours to consider that data before making a final decision, he said.

The bill would obligate doctors and hospitals to distribute a pamphlet prepared by the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare — to potential abortion patients, then certify to the state agency that the information was handed out.

Identities of abortion patients would not be disclosed, Risch said, and Health and Welfare would be precluded from making public the names of the doctor who performed the operation.

However, physicians found to be in violation of the law could be pursued by the state, or by its medical licensing board, he said.

"Proponents of abortion are unaware of the problems they are causing people who have abortions," the Boise Republican said, adding, "People who get into this predicament get there because they lack information" on human reproduction.

Big quake shakes New Guinea town

PORT MORESBY, Papua New Guinea (UPI) — An earthquake called the most powerful the world has seen in 18 months Friday rattled parts of Papua New Guinea.

Residents of Rabaul, on the eastern tip of the island of New Britain 500 miles east of the Papua New Guinea capital of Port Moresby, said their town shook for four or five minutes. In the quake, recorded by U.S. experts at a whopping 7.9 on the Richter scale.

Authorities on Papua New Guinea measured the quake at a lower level, between 6 and 7 on the scale. There were no immediate reports of casualties or major damage from the tremor.

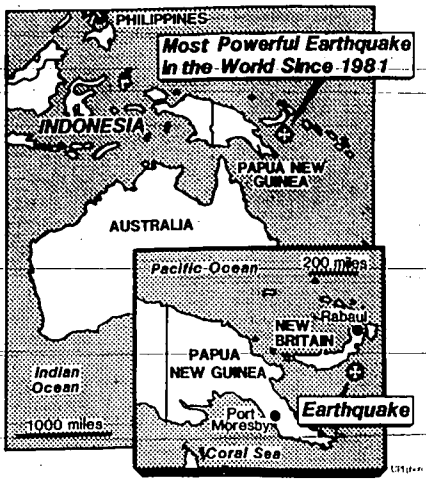

The officials said the quake was centered at the island of New Britain, a banana-shaped island that forms part of the Bismarck Archipelago and is situated east of New Guinea.

The Volcanological Observatory in Rabaul reported that the quake was centered to the east of New Britain in the Pacific and measured between 6 and 7 on the Richter scale. In Golden, Colo., the U.S. Geological Survey said the quake was centered about 225 miles northeast of Port Moresby.

"Today's earthquake is the largest earthquake in the world since a magnitude 7.9 event, which occurred September 1, 1981 in the Samoa Islands," about 2,500 miles east of Friday's quake, a Survey spokesman said.

The last time there was a larger earthquake was July 17, 1980, when an 8.0 quake occurred in the Santa Cruz Islands of the South Pacific. Friday's quake was the strongest in the New Britain area since another 7.9 quake July 14, 1971.

One woman contacted by telephone from Port Moresby said there was little damage in the town.

Mexico

Country has no plans to flood world market with oil in 1983

TULSA, Mexico (UPI) — Mexico's top oil official said Friday the "newly austere" nation will not flood the world market with oil to make up for the fall in oil prices and its severe economic problems.

Mario Ramon Beteta, director of the PEMEX state oil monopoly, said the recent problems with debt payments and falling oil prices have shaped a new nation, one that spends its time "working instead of imagining."

"It is a Mexico of real dimensions, less grandiose than those which prematurely made us a dream," Beteta said, recognizing the errors that led the nation to accumulate the world's second largest foreign debt of $82 billion.

Beteta spoke at a ceremony celebrating the 45th anniversary of the nationalization of Mexico's petroleum industry in the town of Tula, 35 miles north of Mexico City.

Thousands of petroleum workers, and held without the usual festive spirits that have characterized the ceremony in the past five years.

Mexico is the world's fourth largest petroleum producer and the largest foreign supplier to the United States.

Beteta said Mexico's "immediate plan of action" was to maintain a production ceiling of 2.7 million barrels per day of crude petroleum this year. He also said the ceiling for exports for 1983 was fixed at 1.5 million barrels daily.

Mexico agreed to the ceiling as part of an Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries plan to soak up the oil glut, although it is not a member of the cartel.

Beteta said that while "uncertainty is the only thing" that appears certain on the world petroleum market, Mexico will maintain its current levels of crude production.

Carter calls for an Israeli withdrawal

United Press International

Former President Jimmy Carter made a morale-boosting visit in Beirut Friday to U.S. Marines on alert as a result of four days of attacks against the multinational peace-keeping force. Two hand grenades were thrown at French troops in the latest assault.

Carter, on the latest stop of 17-day private Middle East tour, also met with Lebanese President Amin Gemayel and called for the immediate withdrawal of Israeli troops from Lebanon.

"It should be immediate," Carter said of an Israeli withdrawal of its 30,000 troops. "Certainly not in two or three years. I see no reason for a delay."

Speaking briefly to Marines before leaving Lebanon for Morocco, Carter praised the 1,200 U.S. servicemen in the multinational peace-keeping force in the war-torn area.

Marine officers hoped Carter's visit would help boost morale after some men said they were uneasy patrolling Beirut following the attacks in which five Marines were wounded in a hand-grenade ambush Wednesday.

Carter, referring to Israel's position that its presence is needed to prevent the return of Palestinian "terrorists" to Lebanon, told reporters:

"I am convinced that Lebanon, under the leadership of Amin Gemayel can indeed control events, can restore unity, restore complete freedom, complete independence, complete stability, with no threat to anyone who may live outside its borders."

Carter said it was his "understanding" after talking to officials in his Middle East tour that if Israel withdraws, Syrian and Palestine Liberation Organization forces would follow suit.

In the latest attack on the multinational force, two hand grenades were thrown by an unidentified gunman at French troops before dawn in Beirut's southeast suburbs, causing no injuries, a French military spokesman said.

"Our men opened fire but the gunman fled into the night," the French spokesman said.

Unknown assailants also wounded eight Italian soldiers in attacks Tuesday and Thursday.

Authorities did not say publicly who they believed was orchestrating the concentrated wave of attacks, the worst since the multinational force first arrived last August.

Murder warrant issued in drug death

TORONTO (UPI) — A murder warrant was issued Friday for Cathy Evelyn Smith, 35, a Hollywood groupie and backup rock singer indicted in the cocaine-heroin injection death of comedian John Belushi.

Canadian authorities took the action in response to a U.S. request for her extradition to stand trial in Los Angeles, where Belushi died March 5, 1982.

The warrant, citing one charge of murder and 13 counts of administering drugs, was presented to Miss Smith's defense attorney, Brian Greenspan.

Federal Department of Justice Attorney Ari Coomerswami said Miss Smith, a Canadian now living in Toronto, was expected to surrender voluntarily to authorities and appear before Judge James Trotter Monday.

Miss Smith told The Toronto Star that she would surrender voluntarily to authorities if an arrest warrant was issued.

"They're trying to find a scapegoat. It's no big deal. I'll just turn myself in," she said.

Staff Sgt. Ronald Dick of the police homicide squad said, "The only indictment we can extradite her on is murder."

Belushi, 33, died at the Chateau

Marmont Hotel on the Sunset Strip after a night of drug and alcohol consumption.

Police at first thought Belushi died of natural causes, but an autopsy report released days later showed the former "Saturday Night Live" star was killed by an overdose of heroin and cocaine.

Belushi, who went from fame on the TV comedy show to a lucrative film career, was found dead in the bedroom floor of his hotel bungalow.

An interview with Miss Smith published last June in the National Enquirer led the district attorney to reopen the case, which police had closed after concluding Belushi's overdose was self-administered, the indictment of Miss Smith resulted.

In the interview, Miss Smith said comedian Robin Williams and actor Robert De Niro had visited Belushi several hours before his death and snorted cocaine.

She told the tabloid that she had injected Belushi with the lethal "speedball" combination of narcotics.

"I didn't mean to do it, but I was responsible for his death," Miss Smith was quoted as saying.

'Mata Hari of Bern' probably not successful

BRN, Switzerland (UPI) — It is unlikely an American barmaid dubbed the "Mata Hari of Bern" obtained important information while allegedly spying for the Libyan government of Moammar Khadafy, a Swiss official said Friday.

Alexandra Lincoln, 33, an attractive blonde reportedly from New York, is to go on trial this summer on charges of political espionage on behalf of her Libyan diplomat boyfriend Mohammed Abdel Malek.

One leading member of Parliament said it was doubtful Miss Lincoln was able to collect important political information for the Libyans.

"The most dangerous part of it all was the possibility of people being blackmailed," said the deputy, who asked not to be named.

A firm trial date was to be set within the next few weeks, officials said. Malek himself was told to leave Switzerland and is no longer in the country, they said.

Miss Lincoln worked from the summer of 1980 to spring of 1981 at the Bellevue Palace hotel, next to the Swiss Parliament and a favorite after-business meeting place for deputies.

Malek, according to Swiss officials, gave her names of leading parliamentarians singled out for special favors when the bar closed.

The suspect, after being dismissed by the hotel, worked as a telephone operator for a Bern branch of the Credit Suisse bank and allegedly continued to pass information to Malek about calls between bank managers and major customers.

Swiss newspapers reported that Miss Lincoln, who was arrested in May last year, has made a confession. Government officials refused to comment but also said they were not denying the reports.

Miss Lincoln is allowed to remain free pending trial so she can care for her 4-year-old daughter, Cassandra.

Soviets set stage for news film censorship

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union has imposed without warning a requirement that television news film be screened before it is flown out of the country, U.S. network correspondents said Friday.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said the new customs procedure constituted pre-censorship and diplomatic action would be taken next week.

Stan Bernard, representing NBC in Moscow, said the new regulation was imposed Thursday when he tried to send video cassettes to Moscow's Shternmeteyev airport for a flight to New York via Frankfurt.

Customs officials told NBC the film could not leave the Soviet Union as air cargo on the scheduled flight.

"Then they told us for the very first time that there is a new policy that we have to have four hours before to permit screening of material for shipment," Bernard said. "We were stunned and surprised."

He said the procedure of shipping film by air freight or by courier on flights leaving the country had long been an accepted practice and was employed by the networks when they were handling sensitive subjects.

The only other way to send out news film is by satellite. The Soviets have long required advance booking for any film being transmitted out of the country by satellite relay.

Advance screening is not required but "they could pull the plug anytime," Bernard said of Soviet technicians.

The NBC reporter said the Foreign Ministry Press Department did not reply to his telex inquiry about the decision before closing for the weekend.

that is essentially a KGB operation." Other network reporters were awaiting guidance from their U.S. headquarters before trying to ship film or protesting the new requirement.

A spokesman for the Moscow office of the West German television company Westdeutscher Rundfunk said he airshipped film, but not video cassettes, on Thursday without being told of the new procedure.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said: "We strongly support the effort of journalists in the Soviet Union to carry out their legitimate" functions.

16-year-old gets 5-15 years

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — Sixteen-year-old Richard Jahnke, who said he was the victim of abuse since he was 7 years-old, was sentenced to 5 to 15 years in prison Friday for the ambush shooting of his father.

"It comes down to the proposition that no one should be permitted to act as prosecutor, judge, jury and executioner without being held accountable to society," District Judge Paul Llamas said in handing down the sentence.

Defense attorney James Barrett said the sentence would be appealed. Barrett had argued for probation for Jahnke, convicted of manslaughter Feb. 19 for the death of his father, Richard C. Jahnke, a 38-year-old Internal Revenue Service agent and avid gun collector.

As it became apparent Llamas would reject pleas for leniency, Jahnke bowed his head and his face became flushed. He regained his composure and stared at the judge as the sentence was delivered. The sentence was met by a loud wail and sobs from two dozen spectators. Jahnke hugged his mother as he exited the courtroom and members of the audience shouted, "Don't give up. We aren't through yet."

A group of local citizens had organized a letter writing campaign to convince Llamas to give Jahnke probation or a suspended sentence. Llamas said he had received "hundreds" of letters.

Former resort area is dioxin site

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Castlewood, a gambling resort during Prohibition and now a collection of renovated nightclubs, Friday was confirmed as the 27th site in Missouri that is poisoned by the chemical dioxin.

"Does this mean people will have to stop coming here?" said an employee at one of the two nightclubs that recently reopened with a country-and-western flavor.

The Environmental Protection

Agency said Sontag Road, which goes through the suburban Castlewood area, contains from 1 to 60 parts of dioxin per billion parts of soil. Health officials have said any amount above 1 part per billion might pose a health hazard.

The EPA warned against children playing in the roadway's ditches and asked motorists not to park on the road to avoid disturbing the soil.

Rowna Michaels, a spokeswoman at the agency's regional office in Kansas City, said plans for additional soil tests in the area would be completed within a few weeks. She said tests on six of eight soil samples taken from the area contained dioxin.

"We're not at all sure of anything," she said. "We just know that we've got dioxin there."

Castlewood, an unincorporated part of St. Louis County, was founded in the 1920s as a recreation spot.

Priest gets suspended in sex education clash

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — A priest suspended by his bishop for criticizing sex education courses in Catholic schools as "pornographic" said Friday he viewed the incident as a clash between ultra-liberalism and orthodoxy in the church.

The Rev. Paul Wickens, 52, associate pastor at St. Venantius Church in Orange and a priest for 28 years, was suspended by Newark Archbishop Peter Gerety for failing to cease "a series of obstructionist tactics and challenges to the church authority."

The priest said he will appeal the Thursday suspension, which bars him from celebrating mass, baptizing, hearing confessions, preaching and performing marriages.

Gerety cited the priest's refusal to comply with two reassignment orders last month as part of the reason for the action.

Wickens said he challenged those orders in an appeal to Rome. He said he now intended also to appeal his suspension, which he contended was invalid.

"This is really not a personal clash between me and Archbishop Gerety," Wickens said. "Personally I like the man. I love the man. It's a clash of ideologies. We have the ultra-liberalism ... versus orthodoxy in the church."

Wickens, who described himself as a moderate, said the classroom sex education was "really pornographic."

"I'm opposed to sex courses in the classroom. And that's what these are from kindergarten to high school—it's sexuality. It's specifically devoted to sex. Now on top of that, they are drawing from immoral and un-Catholic sources," he said.

He said sex class teachers were asked to read "The Joy of Sex," works by sex researchers Masters and Johnson, and material by Planned Parenthood, a pro-abortion group.

"For 2,000 years, young people have learned values and they've received sex education from their parents at home, and that's where it belongs," he said.

If the "liberals are so interested in the children learning" about sex, they should meet with parents to help them "exercise their parental responsibility a little better," he said. "If you ever saw any of this sex education, you'd be scandalized."

Wickens said he would abide by the suspension.

"The goal of the suspension is to rectify the past actions (of Wickens) and ultimately result in restoration," Gerety said in a statement.

"We feel a great loss, somewhat angered, (but) not very surprised, knowing the archbishop," said Barbara Stewart, a secretary at the school.

Face the Nation ends

WASHINGTON (UPI) — CBS will cancel its 29-year-old Sunday television interview program, "Face the Nation," and replace it with a different kind of broadcast, a network spokesman said Friday.

"Face the Nation" will be replaced with a new broadcast. I cannot tell you when this will happen, or what the format will be," CBS News spokeswoman Marcia Stein said.

"It has been under discussion for some time," Ms. Stein said. "With any of our broadcasts, we're always looking for ways to do it, make it better. The decision was that 'Face the Nation' has been on the air for a long time and we're looking for a different kind of broadcast."

George Herman, moderator of the 30-minute program since 1969, said, "I've been informed it will be taken off later this year." He said CBS White House correspondent Lesley Stahl will moderate the new program that will have a new name.

Ms. Stein said the decision "didn't have anything to do" with the success of ABC's top-rated "This Week" with David Brinkley, "a one-hour program with a more flexible format that competes with "Face the Nation." The Brinkley program started in November, replacing the more stodgy "Issues and Answers."

Herman said he did not think the "Face the Nation" format, which features a guest sitting behind a desk being quizzed by a panel of reporters, had fulfilled its usefulness. NBC uses a similar format for its "Meet the Press" Sunday program.

"I never thought the format fulfilled its usefulness, although I thought it was possible to pep-it up with minor changes," Herman said.

The Washington Post reported plans to cancel the program had been kept secret since the decision was made last month, but a CBS News technician overheard Ms. Stahl confide her new assignment to a friend and "the cat, as they say, was out of the bag."

Herman, a veteran of 39 years at CBS, has been working without a contract for several months and said in the last discussions with CBS about a new contract "they suggested another four or five years" without specifying a particular assignment."

Annual return of swallows expected to attract tourists

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (UPI) — Underltered by rain expected to last through the weekend, tourists began trickling into this old mission community Friday to await the annual return of the Capistrano swallows.

For 207 years, the swallows have returned to their nests in the towers of Mission San Juan Capistrano on St. Joseph's Day. The ornithological migration predates the mission's founding in 1776 by Father Junipero Serra.

The tourists have become a yearly phenomenon in their own right. They will start their stakeout at daybreak Saturday, scanning the sky for "scouts." The first few brave swallows that blaze a trail for the flock that follows.

Carolyn Johnston, a Chamber of Commerce spokeswoman, said a crowd of 7,000-10,000 was expected Saturday, despite the inclement weather.

"It's only happens once a year and they're not going to let the weather bother them," she said.

She said the swallow's nests are located under the mission's eaves and were spared damage from the series of winter storms that wreaked havoc elsewhere along the California coast.

After the birds' arrival, a mass at the mission is scheduled, followed by day-long music and festivities that include crowning the honorary king and queen of Spain. The day will be capped with the El Presidente Ball, a dance with a western theme.

The swallows' punctual departure and return inspired California songwriter Leon Rene to sit down in 1939 and pen "When The Swallows Come Back To Capistrano." The song turned a small-town event into a major tourist attraction that packs the seaside town, often with crowds of up to 200,000 people.

Sightseers arrive the night before the return, many spend the night huddled in sleeping bags or wrapped in blankets—eager for the first glimpse of the twittering birds.

The Franciscan fathers who built the mission have always denied there is any religious significance to the swallows' timely migration.

Senate votes to halt checks being given to illegal aliens

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted Friday to choke off Social Security checks to illegal aliens, up to $2.4 billion a year in benefits.

After an attempt to kill the amendment to the Social Security rescue bill failed, Sen. Social Finance Chairman Robert Dole reluctantly agreed to the proposal by Sen. Don Nickles, R-Okla. The Senate then acted on a voice vote.

Senate Republican leader Howard Baker said he hopes for final passage early next week of the $165 billion Social Security bill, which curbs benefits, hikes taxes and raises the retirement age to 66 in 2015.

"We're within striking distance of finishing on Monday," Baker said as the Senate ended its third day of debate on the solvency bill. "It is essential we get the bill to conference (with the House) as soon as possible."

Leaders want to send a bill to the White House by next Friday's Easter recess.

Baker predicted a close vote next week on Sen. Russell Long's controversial amendment to delay mandatory coverage of new federal workers. Two other leaders — Dole and Democratic leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., — said Long had the votes to win if the tally had been taken Friday.

Long said he "wouldn't be surprised." Nickles' amendment would require people to prove they are not illegal aliens when applying for benefits after December. It would bar Social Security payments after December 1984 for illegal aliens already collecting them.

Nickles said the General Accounting Office estimates 200,000 to 500,000 illegal aliens are collecting $300 million to $2.4 billion in Social Security benefits each year.

"Perhaps no other change we have contemplated has as much support as this one," Nickles said. He said Social Security Commissioner John Svahn backed his proposal.

But critics argued the matter should be taken up in an immigration bill, not a Social Security measure. Among them were Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., sponsor of wide-ranging legislation that includes limited amnesty.

Others said illegal aliens are entitled to something for the payroll taxes they have contributed to Social Security. If the amnesty proposal falls, "we would be denying benefits to a large number of people who have earned it," said Sen. Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y.

Challenger's launch date set

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — An April 4 launch date was set Friday for the maiden voyage of America's new space shuttle Challenger, grounded since January by a series of problems.

Lt. Gen. James Abrahamson, associate NASA administrator for space flight, said the launch date is "tight" with little contingency time. He said everything should go smoothly if the liftoff date is to be met.

Challenger is the second of four shuttles in NASA's fleet of rocketplanes. It is scheduled to blast off at 1:30 p.m. EST on April 4, the day after Easter, and will land at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., following a 5-day Earth-orbital mission.

The reusable spacechip will be flown by astronauts Paul Weitz, a veteran of the Skylab space station, and space rookies Karol Bobko, Donald Peterson and Story Musgrave. Their key job will be to launch a giant NASA tracking satellite.

Peterson and Musgrave also are scheduled to make a spacewalk.

NASA officials decided on the April 4 launch date after determining that contamination of the 2 1/2-ton tracking satellite was not as serious as initially believed. Sand, salt and silica particles were found on the satellite following a violent storm that swept the launch area Feb. 28.

Engineers at first were worried the grit and dust would affect the satellite's operations in orbit, including Earth and sun sensors, antenna deployment mechanisms, surface temperatures on some parts and hinges in the ship's electricity-producing solar panels.

Ed Smylie, NASA associate administrator for space tracking and data systems, said the satellite has been cleaned and will be reinstalled in Challenger's cargo bay Saturday.

"The satellite inspection revealed less contamination than first thought," Smylie said. "The satellite was cleaned and the shuttle bay was cleaned. With these actions, the spacecraft is flight worthy."

Challenger, a lighter twin to the veteran shuttle Columbia, originally was scheduled for launch on Jan. 20.

Lawsuit filed against Hinckley's psychiatrist

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House press secretary James Brady and two others wounded by John W. Hinckley Jr. in his attack on President Reagan filed a $14 million suit Friday against the psychiatrist who treated the troubled drifter before his arrest.

The civil suit, filed in U.S. District Court in Denver, charged Dr. John J. Hopper Jr. of Evergreen, Colo., negligently examined and diagnosed Hinckley's mental condition and failed to follow proper psychiatric treatment.

"Dr. Hopper knew or should have known that Hinckley posed a danger to himself and others and was capable of attempting a political assassination," Dr. Hopper negligently failed to warn law enforcement officials of such fact," the suit charged. "Hopper could not be reached for comment."

Brady, Secret Service Agent

Timothy McCarthy and District of Columbia police officer Thomas DeJahany were wounded March 30, 1981, when Hinckley fired a hail of bullets at the presidential party outside a Washington, D.C., hotel. Reagan, who was shot in the chest, did not join in the lawsuit.

Brady, who is still recuperating from a bullet wound in his head, was at the White House Friday but would not comment on the case.

The three men previously filed multimillion-dollar lawsuits against Hinckley, who was acquitted by reason of insanity last June and is confined to a Washington mental hospital.

Paul Kamenar, a lawyer with the Washington Legal Foundation who is representing McCarthy, said the suit contends Hopper failed to pursue signs that Hinckley would try to carry out a political assassination.

Bingo players face jail

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Yaqui Tribal Chief Anselmo Valenzuela has promised to make non-Indian bingo players "honorary Yaquis." If the state tries to close the tribe's high-stakes bingo hall.

Some players said they would even risk jail rather than give up the games.

A House-passed bill would provide a 90-day jail term for non-Indians who play bingo on reservations. The Yaqui bingo hall near Tucson has cut into revenues from lower-stakes bingo games sponsored by area churches and charities.

"If this weird law should pass, each and every night I will make each of you an honorary Yaqui," Valenzuela told players Thursday.

Valenzuela said any effort by Arizona to control tribal bingo would be fought in federal court.

"They're going to have to build a mighty big jail to fit all of us in it," bingo player Helen Molera said.

"I'm ready to go to jail," said Jane La Coster, another player. "I already told my husband to be ready to bring me cigarettes."

A spokesman for the Papago Reservation said the tribe will proceed with plans to build a bingo hall at San Xavier Industrial Park south of Tucson.

San Xavier District Chairman John Narcho said the hall would seat 1,300 players and offer cash prizes of up to $12,000 nightly.

Garner lawsuit dismissed

SALINAS, Calif. (UPI) — A jury rejected a $1.1 million civil suit filed against James Garner by a man who said the actor slugged him during the 1981 Bing Crosby Pro-Am Golf Tournament.

The Monterey County Superior Court jury Thursday ruled against William Stewart, 35, of Laguna Beach, who said he had suffered mental anguish and public ridicule as a result of the scuffle.

Testimony indicated Stewart had been heckling amateur player Garner and his pro partner, John Cook, when Garner went looking for Stewart, who challenged the actor to "pop" him.

Garner admitted hitting Stewart in an effort to "educate" him on golfing etiquette.

Witnesses told the jury that Stewart was infuriated and Stewart conceded he had gone to the tournament to have "a few beers and a good time."

Australian trip rough for royal entourage

LONDON (UPI) — Princess Diana and her two future English kings were heading for Australia Friday to introduce a toy-toting, "nipple-clad" 9-month-old prince to the rigors of a royal tour.

No matter that Alice Springs, the central Australian outback capital where they are due Sunday, is half under water from unprecedented floods.

No matter that the hotel where Diana and Prince Charles were to stay is cut off by flood waters and accessible only by helicopter.

The royal show must go on, and a Kensington Palace statement said the flash floods "will not cause any alterations to their program" — except that their Alice Springs base will now be a motel.

"Surely that's a royal first, staying in a motel," said a BBC commentator. A more important "first" also is involved. This long, grinding trip to Australia and New Zealand, which goes on until April 30, is the first time a baby has been included in a royal tour.

It is also rare for those first and second in line for the throne — Prince Charles first and Prince William his heir — to fly on the same plane.

Lee Iacocca suffers paltry pay raise

By United Press International

Alas, poor Lee Iacocca. The Chrysler Corp. chairman got less than a 4-percent pay raise in 1982. That leaves him well behind General Motors Chairman Roger Smith, Ford's Philip Caldwell, and probably even Paul Tippett of American Motors. Iacocca's salary went up by only $3,363 last year — to $365,676. Nevertheless, times are better than when Iacocca settled for a $1 a year salary during Chrysler's brush with bankruptcy a few years ago.

In speaking of Lee Iacocca, he took it on the chin Friday from Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., because Chrysler bought a Canadian-made plane as the firm's only corporate jet. In a letter to Iacocca, the senator said, "When the originator of the nation's most aggressive 'Buy American' campaign ignores his own words in making purchases, I have to wonder about hypocrisy at the core of our business establishment."

When Prince Rainier went out with Houston socialite Lynn Wyatt last week, it was with her husband's blessing. So says oil millionaire Oscar Wyatt Jr. Mrs. Wyatt, a friend of the late Princess Grace, was in New York for the first meeting of the Princess Grace Foundation. "Asked what he thought of it all, Wyatt said, "When my wife is in New York, I can't think of anyone I'd rather have her go out with than my friend Prince Rainier. If the opposite were true and the tables were reversed, I'd do the same for him." In fact, Princess Caroline will be in Houston Monday to spend time with the Wyatts in their mansion.

London's neophyte breakfast TV program, "Good Morning Britain," failed to snap, crackle and pop well enough to unseat the BBC's "Breakfast Time" in the ratings. Critics say a "boardroom coup" occurred Friday at TV-am, the station that airs the show. Peter Jay, former ambassador to the United States and son-in-law of Prime Minister James Callaghan, was ousted as chairman of TV-am, sparking a demonstration outside the studio by 20 staffers. Despite a bevy of such stars as David Frost, TV-am never has drawn more than 400,000 viewers, compared to 1.7 million who watch the BBC show.

Oscar-winning actor Richard Dreyfuss and television actress-producer Jeramie Rain will be married Sunday at the Beverly Hills home of a friend. "It will be a Jewish wedding," says the bride-to-be, who grew up in Charleston, W.Va., as Susan Davis and who says, "I'm converting." Dreyfuss and Miss Rain are planning for 100 guests at the wedding, "then 700 to 1,000 guests at the reception, which will be held on a sound stage at Columbia Studio." Her attendants will be Ronnie Blakely, who played Loreta Lynn in the movie, "Nashville," her sister, Pam Davis Haag, and the groom's sister, Cathy Dreyfuss.

Alligator suit bombs on Vatican City trip

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — State symbol or not, it was a case of "see you later alligator" when the Broward County Commission learned the county tourism director had been kicked out of Vatican City for wearing a gator costume.

Jerry Frockt resigned under pressure Thursday from his $42,168-a-year job, after shocked county officials learned he wore the scaly, yellow and green costume of Oligator during a promotional "blitz" co-sponsored by Trans World Airlines and the state department of tourism.

"It really is a funny story. It was really more of a funny 'ha-ha.' It was not anything serious," said Frockt, 35, County Commissioner. Nield Gossman, a former member of the Broward Tourist Development Council, had another interpretation of the Feb. 28 stunt.

"I am embarrassed on behalf of Broward County, the state of Florida and the United States of America," the commissioner said.

After a shouting match with County Administrator Floyd Johnson, Frockt offered his resignation and it was accepted.

Tommy Mercer, tourism director of the Fort Lauderdale-Broward County Chamber of Commerce, joined Frockt on the trip and did the translating.

Mercer said that Frockt "did nothing wrong" by donning the gator suit in the place of the employee who normally wears it and who was in another part of the city at the time.

Frockt said that after the group visited Vatican City to get a couple of good photographs of the state alligator.

Soviets making artificial heart

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet doctors have installed blood pumps on patients after open-heart surgery to allow the natural organ to rest, advancing towards their goal of producing an artificial heart, a specialist said Friday.

Igor Bagarad, senior researcher at the All-Union Scientific Center for Surgery, said the Soviets have not yet replaced an artificial heart in a patient, like the heart dentist Barney Clark received in Utah last year.

Bagarad said the Soviet blood pumps — known in medical language as left ventricle assist devices — have been used in four cases in the Soviet Union and approximately 200 cases in the West.

"All of them were successful, and the device works well," he said of the Soviet devices.

The machine is designed to take over the heart's blood-pumping functions for weeks but its longest use in the Soviet Union so far was 16 hours, he said. It is located outside the body, resting on a soft pad on the patient's chest, Bagarad said.

The device is becoming accepted in cases where a patient cannot be taken off a heart-lung bypass machine immediately after open-heart surgery, U.S. medical sources said. It is a temporary pump, designed to allow the heart itself to rest and regain its strength.

The left ventricle is a cavity at the bottom of the heart. It does most of the work in moving blood through the heart and into the arteries.

Academician Boris Petrovsky, director of the Institute, first told foreign journalists about the devices Thursday and said work was under way on an artificial heart.

Petrovsky said the Soviet medical profession believes perfecting an artificial heart could help eliminate the ethical dilemma of removing organs from brain-dead patients.

Clark still on respirator

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Artificial heart patient Barney Clark remained on a respirator Friday in his recovery from a bout of pneumonia that set back his hopes of leaving the hospital.

University of Utah Medical Center spokeswoman Anne Brillinger said the 62-year-old recipient of the first permanent artificial heart was still undergoing antibiotic therapy for the aspiration pneumonia he developed more than two weeks ago.

Clark became nauseated March 3 and inhaled some vomit which lodged in his lungs, causing the pneumonia.

The retired dentist's recovery has been delayed repeatedly by lung troubles. Clark has a severe case of emphysema, which requires him to rely periodically on a respirator after his Dec. 2 surgery to implant the plastic air-driven pump.

Zoo's pandas consummate long affair

By JAY H. HANDELMAN
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Ling Ling and Hsing Hsing mated Friday for the first time, ending a stormy, spasmodic, unproductive eight-year giant panda courtship.

National Zoo doctors delightedly announced Ling Ling (finally had succumbed to the charms of her clumsy but persistent male friend, Hsing Hsing's sorrowful annual springtime saga of unrequited love has captivated the capital.

But doctors said they will try to increase the odds of the first U.S. giant panda "blessed event" by using artificial insemination — even flying in panda semen from London this weekend.

The two 13-year-old pandas, gifts from the government of China to the Nixon administration in 1972 — Nixon gave the Chinese two musk oxen in return — had failed in all previous mating attempts since becoming sexually mature eight years ago.

National Zoo director and program manager, Washington can expect to boast the first U.S. panda cub birth within four to six months, said zoo spokesman Mike Morgan.

When Ling Ling began showing signs early Friday that she was in heat, Morgan said, she was put together for a springtime romp with Hsing Hsing.

"They got together and he seemed very interested, but they just couldn't get themselves oriented properly," Morgan said. "But then we put them together again later in the morning, and this time it was successful."

"They've never done this before in the eight years since they've been sexually mature," Morgan said.

Morgan said the pandas, who live side-by-side in separate compounds, will be put together again several times during the weekend to improve the chances of producing a panda cub naturally, but doctors also will artificially inseminate Ling Ling with semen from Hsing Hsing and Chia Chia, the giant panda in the London Zoo.

Ling Ling can conceive only on one of the days she is in heat and "they want to be sure she has semen in her for each of the next three or four days," Morgan said.

Chia Chia was flown to Washington two years ago in hopes he would mate with Ling Ling, but the first thing he did when they were put together was sock her.

Since then the zoo has tried artificial insemination, using sperm from both Hsing Hsing and Chia Chia. That did not work either.

Morgan said Chia Chia's sperm, more potent than Hsing Hsing's, will be flown frozen from London Saturday.

Morgan said the Chinese report a 25 percent success rate with artificial insemination, and a baby panda was born through the process in Madrid last year.

"But little is known about pandas' reproductive process, Morgan said. "We feel like she's only in heat conditions for about three days and only able to conceive for about 24 to 26 hours during that period."

But even if Ling Ling becomes pregnant, Morgan said, doctors are not sure when they'll know. He said they thought she was pregnant last year because of hormonal changes, but they were wrong.

"Since a panda cub weighs only about 4 ounces at birth, you can't tell from her appearance. We do know that female pandas usually build a nest before they give birth," he said. "So we'll look for that."

Power bill defeat not 'too serious'

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Small producers of hydroelectric power in the Magic Valley generally agree that the defeat of a cogeneration bill in a state House committee of the Legislature earlier this week will not affect the profitability of their projects.

But some think it is a shame that the bill was defeated, even if it means nothing more serious than that the process of applying for power-purchase contracts from Idaho Power Co. will proceed pretty much as in the past.

Vern Ravenscroft, chairman of the Independent Power Producers Council, said the cogeneration bill was designed to improve the "working relationship" between the small-power producers and the major utilities.

The council, a group of engineering firms, sawmill companies and developers, was the prime sponsor of the bill, which became known as "little-PURPA" for its similarity to the 1978 federal Public Utilities Regulatory Policy Act.

That legislation, part of former President Jimmy Carter's National Energy Policy, determined that utilities must buy power from independent producers.

Ravenscroft, a former gubernatorial candidate, has received a contract from Idaho Power to construct a small hydroelectric-generating facility on the Malad River near Tuttle.

He said Thursday that many states have found it necessary to pass legislation to clear up "the tensions, confusions, and indecisions" of the federal law.

"I don't think it (the Idaho bill) would have greatly changed the relationships (between the independent producers and the utilities)," he said.

But small-power producers would have reaped "a more favorable atmosphere" in which to obtain financing.

The bill would have accomplished that by delineating the authority of the Idaho Public Utilities Commission in arbitrating power-purchase contracts, he said.

Ravenscroft's comments were echoed by small-power producers in the Magic Valley Thursday.

"Right now I can't see how there would be any effect," said Doug Howard, an engineer for Edwards, Howard and Martens. Howard has been involved in an attempt to build a small hydroelectric-generating facility on Rock Creek. "Idaho Power has been signing contracts, and apparently they have been acceptable."

"If (the state bill) makes no difference, because we still come under the federal PURPA law," said Jim Coleman, a partner in Cogeneration Inc., a company involved in numerous projects in the area.

But while agreeing that contract negotiations with Idaho Power are proceeding even without the legislation, Aaron Witherspoon, of Idaho Pump Supply, said, "It's a pity the bill died. It was good legislation. It would have created a new industry in Idaho."

Witherspoon has sold equipment to two small operating hydro projects in the Magic Valley and is negotiating for a contract to sell power from a project of his own.

Idaho Power Co. and other major utilities in the state lobbied against the bill, even though parts of it were designed to benefit them, Ravenscroft said.

Larry Taylor, spokesman for Idaho Power, said "little PURPA" would have "led our hands to negotiate contracts, at the ratepayers' expense."

He said the bill encased in law contract provisions which should be negotiable. In the long run it would have worked against electricity ratepayers, and benefited only the power producers, "a special interest group," he said.

Furthermore, he said, the bill was not needed. "If we were refusing to sign contracts, that would be a different thing," he said.

Idaho Power had been sharply criticized by the PUC last year for the slow pace of its negotiations to purchase power from small-power producers.

The legislation also contained no provision allowing the power company to grant contracts. See Cogeneration on Page B2

Public favors aquifer plan

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

SEATTLE — Public comment has been running overwhelmingly in favor of a proposal to provide limited federal protection for the Snake River Plain Aquifer.

Wendy Marshall, a federal Environmental Protection Agency officer in Seattle, said Friday that 17 letters or postcards have been received in favor of a proposal to designate the aquifer as a "sole-source aquifer."

Only one letter has been received opposing the protective status, she said.

A citizens group, Hagerman Valley Citizens Alert, Inc., has been spearheading a drive to protect the huge underground southern Idaho water reservoir.

The group filed a petition requesting the protective designation from EPA last year. A public hearing was held on the proposal in Twin Falls in December.

Under federal regulations, the public has until April 12 to submit written testimony.

"Sole-source aquifer" status is designed to protect groundwater where it is deemed the only available supply for human consumption.

John McDaniel, president of the citizens group, says 200,000 Idahoans from St. Anthony to Hagerman rely on the aquifer for their drinking water.

The designation would give the EPA the power to veto any new construction that uses partial federal funding in the aquifer region or areas which have an impact on it.

That would give the EPA power over such projects as federally assisted highways, housing developments that use VHA or FHA loans and municipal projects that use revenue-sharing money.

The sole-source designation would not cover the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory (INEL), since it receives all its funding from the federal government.

Government officials explain that the Department of Energy, which runs the INEL, is responsible for policing itself.

The Hagerman group particularly is concerned with pollution of the Snake River Plain Aquifer which may be caused by injection wells. Such wells dispose of agricultural runoff water by pumping it back into the ground.

The group's concern that such water may contain toxic chemicals and bacteria was also the subject of many of the letters received by EPA so far, Marshall said.

Most of the letters come from the Hagerman area, although nine postcards have been received from Twin Falls. All appear to be part of an organized campaign, she said.

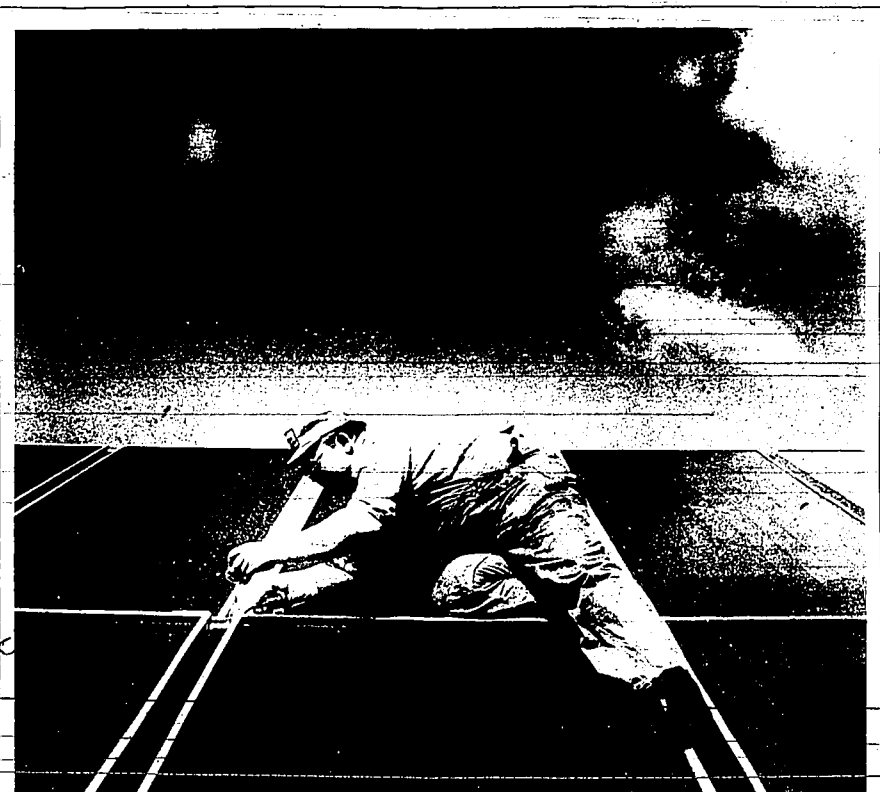

In general, the letter writers contend that there is no other source of water in the region, that contaminated water would have a "disastrous impact" on the health of persons using the aquifer for drinking water, and that cleaning the aquifer later would be much more expensive than protecting it now, she said.

Walter Klosterman of Paul wrote that his drinking-water wells already had been contaminated by fecal matter.

His view was echoed by C.F. Joseph and Mary Joseph of Hagerman, who wrote, "It is a matter of record that portions of our aquifer have already been contaminated."

The one letter opposing the sole-source designation was written by Chuck Collins, assistant manager of the Northside Canal Co.

Collins wrote that the limited protection provided by the sole-source designation "hardly warrants the designation." See AQUIFER on Page B2

Cloudy day for a solar task

Mike Bennett of Hansen solders copper fittings of pipe connecting several solar panels on top of the Club athletic facility. The panels may not get too much sunshine on them this weekend, as the forecast is for clouds and the possibility of rain.

Rape victim disputes lawyer

TWIN FALLS — An 83-year-old rape victim disputes a lawyer's statement that she knew the man accused of raping her last winter.

The victim contacted The Times-News Friday, refuting defense lawyer Mike Powers' contention that she knew 27-year-old Thomas Livingston of 206 Lois St., Twin Falls.

Livingston is charged with rape, first-degree burglary and grand theft in connection with the Dec. 16 incident. Police allege that he broke into the victim's home, raped her and then stole her money, jewelry and car.

The defendant allegedly possessed the woman's car and jewelry when he was arrested in Jackpot, Nev.

Powers made the disputed comment while arguing on behalf of a motion-filed with the Fifth District Court to dismiss the case. In asking for the dismissal, Powers contended that prosecutors had not presented evidence placing Livingston at the scene of the crime.

Judge Theron Ward of the Fifth District Court denied the motion.

Powers said the victim's inability to positively identify Livingston as her assailant was "even more strange in view of the fact that (the victim) knew Tom Livingston."

But the victim hotly denied that allegation Friday.

"I didn't know him. I wouldn't have known him if I had seen him on the street."

Education is business, says speaker

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — Arthur H. DeRosier Jr., president of the College of Idaho, reminded Jerome Chamber of Commerce members Thursday night that education is a business with a strong economic impact on a community.

Speaking to chamber members and guests at the annual chamber banquet in the Jerome Elks Lodge, DeRosier said that at the C of I, the impact of about 80 percent of the school's budget falls directly on the city of Caldwell. He noted that 70 percent of the college's annual expenditures are in the form of salaries.

The speaker said that not only means the college provides a cultural impact on the surrounding area, but an important economic asset.

"Maybe education hasn't told its story too appropriately," he said. "We ask the communities for more and more money, but we have not always used the money for reading, writing and arithmetic." He used it for athletic programs, student scholarship funds and better buildings.

"When we have to economize, we cut reading, writing and arithmetic. He said things are changing, however.

"If you combine a talented faculty with enthusiastic students, you get a kind of magic. This magic is called learning. Education is not plants and administration, it is a motivated student body."

— Arthur DeRosier

People are demanding quality education and the colleges and schools are obliging.

"Parents are asking what happened to studying and what chances their sons and daughters will have in the job market after they graduate. Colleges are getting better," he said. "But to continue to improve we need everyone pulling together.

"We have to have the support of the people," he said.

DeRosier said colleges are in a unique position. Alumni, faculty, the Legislature and even the courts tell colleges what to do and how to do it.

He told the audience that when he became president of the C of I, he discovered that he had inherited about a $4 million debt.

"We went to the people and appealed for help to get us out of the hole. We raised $3.1 million. The next year, when we had to cut 20 percent from our budget, we did it by firing administrators, maintenance crews and other non-education people," DeRosier said.

That summer, he added, the college hired students for summer maintenance jobs on campus. He said the students lived in the dorms for $1 a day and earned salaries to cover part of their education costs. The college president said there were some unusual maintenance projects on the campus, but the school got by and the students learned a lot.

Turning to the American dream as it pertains to education, DeRosier said that when the first settlers reached American shores they built temporary shelter, churches and then schools. The pattern continued as civilization moved across the country to the western territory. Education is still a prime factor in every community in the country, he said.

"If you combine a talented faculty with enthusiastic students, you get a kind of magic. This magic is called learning. Education is not plants and administration, it is a motivated student body," he said.

Con Paulos, the 1982 Jerome Chamber of Commerce president, turned his responsibilities over to Allice Waite during ceremonies following the dinner program. She is the first woman to serve as president of the Jerome chamber. Others taking office included: Dave Sherman, president-elect; Robert Campbell, vice president; and new directors Bob Topmiller, Dot Handy and Rick Bernsen.

Hold-over directors, in addition to the officers, are Paulos, Harold Morgan, John Forbes, and Kathy Harris. Retiring directors are Jeanne Vandiver, Dick Nelson and Reed Skinner. Eidel Nelson, the chamber manager, received a special vote of appreciation from the outgoing president and the chamber membership.

Jerome High School Choraliers, directed by Sharon Warner, provided music at the dinner meeting.

Commissioners will announce zoning decision

TWIN FALLS — Buhl residents should know Monday if commercial development will be allowed along a portion of U.S. 30, one mile west of Buhl.

Twin Falls County commissioners will announce their decision concerning the Cecil Lyon rezoning request at 10 a.m.

Lyon wants "low" areas zoned for commercial development — one about 925 feet back from the north side of U.S. 30, about 12.9 acres, and the other about 660 feet back from the south side of the highway, about 20 acres.

Supporters of the plan note the property is adjacent to land now zoned for commercial use. The zoning change would extend the commercial zoning by one-quarter mile, they say.

The rest of the area would be zoned residential-agricultural — with a minimum lot size of 2.5 acres. The proposed commercial zone has generated considerable opposition from residents of the area. Testifying at the public hearing, the residents objected to the placement of commercial enterprises in that area.

They say that additional commercial zoning in Buhl is not required. Commercial development on the Lyon property would create a traffic hazard along the highway, lower property values — and — contaminate groundwater and irrigation water supplies, they say.

The residents say they will support residential development in the area.

The county board also will issue a ruling Monday concerning a gravel-crushing operation in the Melon Valley.

Dan Skeem of Buhl has requested a conditional-use permit that will allow him to operate the facility on his property, located adjacent to Sun Trap Ranches.

At a public hearing before the county board last week, neighbors protested the operation, citing potential dust, traffic and noise problems.

2 theft suspects arraigned

TWIN FALLS — Two men arrested last week in connection with the mysterious closure of a Kimberly restaurant were arraigned in Twin Falls Thursday on grand theft charges.

Tim Carey, 19, and Tony Ordaz, 39, both of 1887 Sigrid Ave., Twin Falls, remained in the Twin Falls County jail following their arraignments in Fifth District Magistrate Court. Bond for each has been set at $5,000. Ordaz's bail has been set at $5,000.

Nevada authorities arrested both men, who were driving trucks allegedly loaded with equipment removed from Pagliacci's restaurant, 100 N. Main St., in Kimberly. The equipment has been returned to the restaurant's creditors.

Kimberly police say they believe the restaurant's owner, John Savage, also of 1887 Sigrid Ave., Twin Falls, emptied the restaurant on March 8. Savage's whereabouts are unknown and no charges have been filed against him in connection with the restaurant incident. However, Twin Falls police have issued warrants for Savage's arrest on charges that he fraudulently used a check to make purchases at a Twin Falls department store one day prior to the restaurant's closure.

Savage also faces charges in Nevada related to gaming violations. He had worked as a blackjack dealer in Jackpot.

Carey and Ordaz have been charged with grand theft-embellishment in the alleged taking of two rented trucks from Curt's Car Care Center—1811 Addison Ave. E. They allegedly gave false information about their addresses to Curtis Smith, owner of the truck rental company, on March 7.

A probable-cause statement filed with the magistrate court alleges that Smith became suspicious when he learned that Ordaz previously had abandoned another rental truck in southern California.

The public defender's office has been appointed to represent the defendants. Both men have requested a preliminary hearing into the charges.

Juvenile causes accident

TWIN FALLS — A 14-year-old Twin Falls girl has been held responsible for a traffic accident Thursday — clearing a 25-year-old woman who originally was cited for leaving the scene of the accident.

Twin Falls police said the original suspect — Deborah Lou Larson — was cleared of charges when they determined that the juvenile had used Larson's vehicle at the time of the accident.

The name of the juvenile, who was being held Friday on charges of leaving the scene of an accident and driving without a license, was not released.

Police said the driver left the scene of Thursday's accident after the vehicle allegedly jumped a curb, wiped out a street sign, crossed a lawn and then struck another vehicle.

Larson originally was cited when she came to the Twin Falls police station to claim her vehicle. Police said she had reported it stolen a few minutes earlier.

Further investigation verified the woman's story that she had not been driving the car, police said.

Whitewater plays for dance

TWIN FALLS — The Snake River Groundwater Alliance, a local anti-nuclear peace group, has planned two events this weekend.

Tonight in Buhl, the alliance will sponsor a dance featuring the music of Whitewater at the Jaycee Hall on Main Street. The dance will begin at 9 p.m. The cost is $5 a couple or $3 for singles.

On Sunday, the Twin Falls chapter of the alliance will hold its regular monthly meeting at the Renaissance Academy, 505 Second Ave. E., beginning at 2 p.m.

A film, "Thinking Twice About Nuclear War," will be shown, followed by a discussion period. The meeting is open to the public.

Smuggler is sentenced

BOISE (UPI) — A man convicted of smuggling five illegal aliens from Mexico to a farm near Burley in March 1982 has been sentenced to two years in federal prison.

Jose Margarito Salvador Ramos-Quintero, 34, of Idaho Falls, was sentenced Friday by U.S. District Judge Harold Ryan.

Court officials said Ramos-Quintero had been charged with five counts of smuggling illegal aliens into the United States and five counts of transporting the aliens.

Ryan sentenced the defendant to concurrent two-year prison terms on nine of the counts and imposed a three-year probationary term for the 10th charge.

The judge said Ramos-Quintero's probation would begin when his prison term ended.

U.S. attorneys said Ramos-Quintero was paid $180 by the "cicks" to bring them into the United States from Nogales, Mexico.

League meets Monday

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls chapter of the League of Women Voters will hold its annual meeting March 21 to elect officers, set a program and adopt a budget.

Sally Gilson, the energy chairman for the state chapter of the LWV, will present an update of the group's position on energy issues.

The meeting will be held at the Sandpiper restaurant on Blue Lakes Boulevard North. A social hour will start at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner and the business meeting.

For reservations call 734-7000.

No bid takers on lease land

RUPERT — The city of Rupert will have to decide a new course of action to entice local farmers to lease 611 acres of city land.

The land would be irrigated with treated water from the city sewage lagoons.

City Council called for bids to lease the land Tuesday, but there were no takers.

Mayor Bill Whitton said that he was surprised by that because the city was offering a good deal. There was a minimum bid of $75 an acre. The city would provide water, power and the irrigation system.

The water is sprayed on the land to reduce the amount in the lagoons, which are located nearby, Whitton says. The ponds are part of the city's sewage-treatment facility.

Whitton said that he will confer with the city's attorney, Don Quisholm, about a new course of action to use the land.

One alternative is for the city to raise hay on the land. The city would recover expenses by making the feed available at cost to the state Department of Fish and Game for wildlife. Whitton said. The main drawback to that plan, however, is that he doesn't want the city competing with local farmers.

The city attained the federal land at little cost as part of a lease-purchase agreement with the Bureau of Reclamation. Among the conditions placed on the city by the agreement was a provision to maintain part of the land for wildlife habitat.

The city also will have to purchase another irrigation system for the land so it can rotate the spraying with the single system already in place, Whitton said.

That will avoid overwatering and destroying the land, he said.

Plea changed to guilty

TWIN FALLS — A 39-year-old Twin Falls man has dropped his defense to charges that he sexually abused a 13-year-old girl.

Jerrie Ramo, Route 4, Twin Falls, pleaded guilty Friday to one count of lewd and lascivious conduct with a minor — a charge carrying a maximum penalty of life in prison. The offense occurred on Aug. 19, 1982.

In return for the guilty plea, prosecutors dismissed a second charge against Ramo. That charge alleged that he sexually abused the same 13-year-old girl on Aug. 10.

Prosecutors also agreed to delete from the remaining charge language accusing Ramo of engaging in sexual intercourse with the girl. That left language accusing Ramo only of engaging in oral sex with the girl.

Judge Theron Ward ordered a presentence investigation and continued Ramo's release on a $750 bond.

In an unrelated case, Ward placed a 20-year-old man, thief on a three-year-long probation.

The defendant, Leroy Edmund Foster, of 1427 Fourth Ave. E., Twin Falls, faced serving up to 14 years in prison.

Foster pleaded guilty to charges of first-degree burglary and grand theft in connection with two thefts of meat from the freezers of Twin Falls residents. The incidents occurred in early November.

A co-defendant in the case, 20-year-old Jerry Carl Leedom, of 1322 Washington St. N., was placed on a three-year probation last month.

Concerned About Your Hearing?

Twin Falls - Electronic hearing tests will be given at the Ballone Hearing Aid Service office Friday and Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Factory-trained Hearing Aid Specialists will be at our office at 239 Main Ave. W. to perform the tests.

Anyone who has trouble hearing is welcome to have a test using the latest electronic equipment to determine if his loss is one which may be helped. Some of the causes of hearing loss will be explained, and diagrams of how the ear works will be shown.

Everyone should have a hearing test at least once a year if there is any trouble at all hearing clearly. Even people now wearing hearing aids or those who have been told nothing could be done for them should have a hearing-test-and-find-out whether the latest methods of hearing correction can help them hear better.

The free hearing tests will be given Friday, March 19 from 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. at 239 Main Ave. W. If you can't get there on Friday or Saturday, call 733-0916 and arrange for an appointment at another time. In-home testing is also available.

Dry tree causes fire

HALLEY — A dry Christmas tree was the apparent cause of a fire Tuesday night at the Coppy Basin Restaurant and Bar in Halley.

An unidentified bartender first alerted the Halley Fire Department to the blaze at 6:30 p.m., according to Don McCoy, the Halley fire chief.

When firemen arrived they found the restaurant patrons standing outside and "a lot of smoke" coming out of the one-story building.

A dry Christmas tree that was standing on a shelf between the restaurant and bar areas probably was ignited by the decorative lights on its branches, McCoy said. The walls and ceiling near the tree were on fire.

It took the 20 firemen at the scene over an hour to control the blaze, he said.

That would have come as a discount in the rate at which Idaho Power bought power, not as a surcharge to be passed along to consumers, he said.

Reached later, Powers said that he was referring to the victim's testimony at Livingston's Dec. 30 preliminary hearing. Beyond that, Powers declined to comment, saying professional ethics prohibited him from commenting on the evidence.

"The (state) Department of Resources should be the regulatory agency responsible for the protection of the aquifer. Instead of adding more federal regulations to the already cumbersome pile, we need to look at making the present ones work," he wrote.

Marshall said she would be submitting a report on the petition to the EPA's headquarters in Washington, D.C., sometime toward the end of the year. That report would take the form of a recommendation, with supporting discussion of scientific data and public input.

"At present, she said, the EPA is working to compile information on the aquifer and the uses to which it is subject.

During the second week of April, she said the EPA will schedule informational meetings on the subject in Burley and Idaho Falls.

GOP leader asks ruling postponement

BOISE (UPI) — A House Republican leader who wants to challenge the "50-50" residential property-tax law to the Idaho Supreme Court said Friday he may ask senators to delay consideration of a bill amending the exemption statute.

Rep. Robert Geddes, R-Preston, assistant majority leader, said it might be wise to put off legislative amendments to the controversial tax-exemption law until the state's high court ruled on the constitutionality of the voter-erected initiative.

House leaders also introduced a resolution asking Attorney General Jim Jones to file the constitutional challenge with the Supreme Court. The House passed 46-24 Wednesday a bill sponsored by Rep. Rachel Gilbert, R-Boise, to reduce the anticipated tax shift under the "50-50" initiative from $19 million to $11.1 million.

granting an exemption from taxation of 50 percent or $5,000 of the market value of residential property. The Gilbert bill reduces the dollar-amount qualifier to $15,000 and restricts the exemption to owner-occupied and primary-residence properties.

Geddes said he was considering making a request to the Senate that it suspend consideration of the Gilbert bill in implementation of the initiative could proceed.

He said he would consult other House GOP leaders before making the decision.

Swan Falls water dispute bill drafted

By BRUCE HAMMOND Times-News writer

BOISE — On advice of a deputy attorney general, a new bill was drafted and introduced Friday addressing the complex Swan Falls water-rights dispute.

It is meant to replace earlier legislation that has not yet been voted on in the House, even though it has sent there with committee endorsement.

If passed, the proposed state law would render Idaho Power Co.'s power right at Swan Falls Dam open to any upstream development that could deplete the river flow.

The bill is meant to solve the question of future agricultural and industrial growth within the Snake River plain that allegedly has been placed in limbo by a recent state Supreme Court ruling.

That decision says the utility's water rights at Swan Falls are not subordinate to future upstream development. And in response, state officials have stopped issuing any water permits from Bliss to St. Anthony.

Including diversions on terraces and wells drilled into the aquifers.

Introduced by the House State Affairs Committee on request of Rep. Vard Chaburn, R-Albon, the latest bill is practically identical to the first draft, which has been held on the House floor pending an attorney general's opinion. Both bills have three major provisions:

- Upstream agricultural and drinking water development would take precedence over power-generating rights along the Snake River system.
- Removing the Idaho Public Utilities Commission from supervising utilities' water rights and the protection of those rights.

Both of the two provisions would be amended if one is successfully struck down by a future court ruling.

The subordination provision was sought by state leaders, including Gov. John Evans, while the PUC provision was requested by Idaho Power. The non-severability clause was inserted as a means of discouraging the utility from challenging subordination, since doing so would return PUC jurisdiction over power-generating water rights.

The initial drafting — HB276 — had been held on the House floor all this week awaiting an informal attorney general's opinion on the constitutionality of the proposed subordination. That affirmative opinion arrived Wednesday.

But Deputy Attorney General Robie Russell also advised legislators that HB276 should be redrafted so that all the provisions of the bill are channeled into the same section of the Idaho Code.

The original bill split the provisions into two sections — an act Russell warned could be struck down by some future court ruling, since bills normally address only one part of the code.

"We were told that HB276 probably could have held up OK, but if there was any doubt at all, it would be worth redrafting it, thereby leaving no room for chance," says Chaburn.

Consequently, HB276 was redrafted almost word for word into HB304.

Meanwhile, Idaho Power officials are continuing to consider filing suit against the state if the Legislature passes the measure.

According to Logan Lanham, the utility's vice president for public affairs, the constitutionality of the bill remains in question, regardless of the informal opinion authored by Russell.

But perhaps more importantly, Lanham questions whether the state can subordinate Idaho Power's water right without offering compensation for lost water. In his opinion, Russell agreed that some type of compensation may be owed Idaho Power if flows at Swan Falls are reduced by upstream development.

Chaburn, on the other hand, maintains that the proposed law clearly eliminates the need for compensation. Instead, he believes it would place Swan Falls Dam on the same level as Idaho Power's Hells Canyon dams, which have been subordinate to agriculture since construction.

Supremacists shot warning measure

BOISE (UPI) — State representatives shot a warning Friday to white supremacists in northern Idaho, passing a Senate bill that would create felony penalties for malicious acts of racial or religious harassment.

fears it could be used for "reverse harassment."

Both factions on the House floor Friday put a spotlight on the activities of white supremacists in northern Idaho. Groups mentioned included the Aryan Nations Church, Ku Klux Klan and Posse Comitatus.

The measure, approved 49-20 by the House after lengthy debate, must be returned to the Senate for concurrence in amendments written by the lower chamber.

Proponents said the bill would give authorities tools to stamp out terrorist acts — including cross burnings, threats and intimidation — committed against members of minority groups.

"Our citizens should not be fearful of the midnight knock on the door," said Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello.

But a significant number of House members decried the bill, saying existing laws are adequate for police agencies to address the problem. They also contended the measure would foster additional racial disharmony, not dissipate it.

Under the bill, prosecutors could file felony charges against those who caused injury, damaged property, or threatened to do so, out of religious or racial hatred.

Rep. Linden Bateman, R-Idaho Falls, complained about the widespread publicity while supremacy groups have garnered, partly due to the furor over the bill.

"Hitler came to power because of publicity," Bateman said.

No major increase, says Idaho Power

By ELLEN MARKS United Press International

BOISE — Idaho Power Co. has no plans to seek "major" rate increases during the next two or three years unless its Snake River water rights are devoted to purposes other than hydroelectric generation, utility Chief Executive James Bruce said Friday.

water to new agricultural developments would "force" the utility to seek power from coal-fired plants at an expense that would be passed on to ratepayers.

He said an abundant supply of water, a slowdown in energy demand and the company's financial health in general would mean no more than small hikes would be necessary, and those would be in line with the inflation rate.

"Unless something goes completely awry — maybe I'll lose the low-cost hydro — we don't anticipate any major rate increases for the next two or three years," Bruce said during taping of the KTVB-TV Viewpoint program.

He said the utility likely would file suit if the Legislature tinkers with its Swan Falls Dam water rights, which were affirmed in a recent state Supreme Court decision.

Failure to protect those rights could lead to ratepayer complaints the utility is not safeguarding its property — a charge made six years ago which eventually led to the controversial high court ruling, he said.

"If we... don't file a suit to uphold the decision granted to us by the Supreme Court of the state of Idaho, I would have a serious question in my mind that we might be subject to a number of suits... even a class-action suit by ratepayers or stockholders," he said. "It's a very grave problem. We have to consider it very carefully."

Although there is a current energy surplus in the region, Bruce said Idaho Power is willing to consider purchasing steam from a proposed military reactor if it is built in eastern Idaho because additional electricity might be needed in the future.

Medical expense issue gets stalled in House

By BRUCE HAMMOND Times-News writer

BOISE — Legislation requiring relatives to help pay the medical bills of nursing home patients became entangled in the House Friday.

The setback came only a day after the measure cleared the Senate with a 19-16 vote. But during the course of Senate review, the bill was significantly amended from the original House form, thereby requiring House members to concur with the changes.

The House passed the original version by a 34-33 vote Feb. 21. But Friday, the House voted 32-34 not to agree with the Senate changes.

"Fortunately, when people feel strongly enough about a bill like this, a conference committee made up of both representatives and senators can be called to work out the changes," said sponsor Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl.

terpart, Rep. Chris Hooper, R-Boise, plus Reps. Louis Horvath, D-Pinehurst, and Cornell Thomas, R-Pingree.

All Magic Valley delegates, except Rep. Lawrence Knigge, R-Filer, and Rep. Steve Antonio, R-Rupert, supported the Senate changes to the bill Friday. When the bill first passed the House last month, however, only Antonio voted against the measure.

The bill-in-question would require spouses, parents and children of nursing home patients to pay from $35 to $250 a month toward the care of relatives now covered by state and federal Medicaid support.

Under the proposed law, qualifying income levels would be set at three times the federal poverty level in an attempt to avoid placing any financial hardship on responsible relatives.

For example, a single person would have to make at least $14,040 before being required to contribute the minimum $35 a month. A married couple would have to earn $18,660 before they would become accountable for that minimum contribution.

In addition to deductions allowed under federal tax law — used to determine a person's net income — allowances also would be granted for other medical expenses, children's college tuition and any court-ordered payments like child support.

But Barker says more adjustments probably will be made to make the bill more palatable to legislators.

Panel suffers verbal assault

BOISE (UPI) — A man who claims he is the "legal" Idaho lieutenant governor shouted and whipped his arms at members of a legislative conference committee made up of both representatives and senators called to work out the changes.

House Speaker Tom Silvers, R-Twin Falls, appointed a three-member House committee to meet with Senate delegates in an attempt to compromise on the bill. Although unusual, a conference committee apparently has not been called in at least three years.

"We'll probably name our Senate committee members Monday, which will include myself, since I'm chairman of the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee," Barker said.

The three delegates appointed by Silvers include Barker's House counterpart, Rep. Chris Hooper, R-Boise, plus Reps. Louis Horvath, D-Pinehurst, and Cornell Thomas, R-Pingree.

they had no affiliation with groups advocating overthrow of the U.S. government.

At the same time it would wipe out the old oath, the bill would enact an oath in which officials "simply would swear or affirm that they would uphold the laws and constitutions of the state and federal governments."

Committee members held the bill until Monday.

Armageddon film to be presented

TWIN FALLS — "Years of the Beast," a new dramatic film about armageddon, will be shown in Twin Falls on April 1 at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium.

Michael Amber, the actor-singer who has a major part in the film, will be live on stage in concert April 2, also at CSI.

"Years of the Beast" is about a society dealing with the anti-Christ of Biblical prophecy, where money is worthless, food is scarce and oppression reigns. Yet, it also is the story of the Christian triumph among people living in that world.

The part of the anti-Christ in the movie is played Amber, a New York-based show-business veteran and Christian.

Amber, who has appeared in everything from Broadway musicals to soap operas, also had a role in "Jesus," a documentary-drama that played in Twin Falls in 1979. Amber was spokesman for the film.

In his Twin Falls concert, Amber will perform both popular inspirational music and Christian songs, including "The Impossible Dream," "Climb Every Mountain," "When the Saints Go Marching In" and others.

The film will be shown April 1, 7:30 p.m. Donations will be accepted.

Titled "A New Song," Amber's performance also begins at 7:30 p.m., April 2. Tickets are $3.50 and are available at Christian book stores and the Pennywise Drug Store in Twin Falls.

Proceeds will go to the Set Free Ministries in Twin Falls.

The two-night program is being promoted by two area residents, Geri Miller and Jack Muldoon, in cooperation with several Magic Valley churches and the Set Free Ministries.

Miller and Muldoon, along with other community residents, also have promoted other Christian films in the area, including "Jesus," "Jon!" and "Charlots of Fire."

For further information, contact Geri Miller at 733-3974 or Jack Muldoon, at 733-8931.

Methodist church sets musical, variety of religious workshops

TWIN FALLS — A free presentation of the Broadway musical based on the Biblical story of Joseph and his coat of many colors — and workshops ranging from spiritual healing to meditation — make up The Main Event, scheduled March 25-26 at the Twin Falls United Methodist Church.

The purpose of the annual event is for "fellowship and education" for church members within the church's southern Idaho district, said Barbara Bellus, U.U. associate pastor at the church. The public, however, also is invited to attend the activities, she says.

The event begins next Friday night at 6:30 p.m. with a no-host dinner at the Golden Griddle Restaurant, 2096 Kimberly Road.

The activities begin the following day with registration at 8:30 a.m. There is a $4 registration fee.

At 9:15 a.m., there will be a special musical prelude, followed by an opening worship service at 9:30 a.m. with Bishop Calvin McConnell speaking.

The first workshop session begins at 10:15 a.m. There will be three other one-hour workshop sessions running until 4 p.m., with a lunch and coffee break in between.

Persons can attend any four of the 13 workshops being offered during the event.

The subject of the workshops include music and poetry, which explores the spiritual dimensions of reading poetry and listening to music as an aid to meditation and growth. A peace-making workshop will deal with ways in which people can seek peace through justice.

There also will be workshops on marriage encounters, monasticism and prayer, journaling, prayer, the Scriptures, small-group formation, dance and motion and paraging for peace and justice.

A closing worship service follows the last session at 4 p.m.

Then at 7 p.m., the musical "Joseph and his Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" will be performed. The fully-costumed presentation features Michael Mann, of Twin Falls, in the title role.

Currently playing on Broadway, the musical was written by the same team that penned "Jesus Christ Superstar." Upp is the director of the program.

CSI offers course exploring themes of major religions

TWIN FALLS — "Eternal Themes of Religion" is the title of a new class offered through the College of Southern Idaho's adult enrichment program.

The six-session course is a follow-up series to "The World of Religion" offered earlier this year. The earlier course proved to be so popular that a second session was requested by the students.

"Eternal Themes" will focus on subjects such as life after death, an reincarnation, the origin of the universe, and the spiritual nature of man. It also will explore various prophetic traditions and delve into subjects as the resurrection, the trinity, and the Hindu-Buddhist concept of karma.

"What will make this series different from other courses on these subjects," says Harry Massoth, the instructor, "is that we'll utilize insights gleaned from all the great world religions as well as from science and history in order to shed a greater amount of light on each subject."

"For example, the subject of life after death will be looked at through the teachings at Christianity, Buddhism, Islam, and the Bahai faith, as well as through the eyes of modern scientists who are studying near-death experiences.

"In this way we should gain a much richer understanding of some of mankind's eternal and most intriguing issues," he said.

People interested in signing up for the class should call CSI's Continuing Education Division at 732-9554, ext. 24, by March 25. The class is scheduled from 7 to 9 p.m. in room 106 of the Shields Building for six consecutive Monday evenings beginning March 28. The cost is $17.

BAPTIST
GOODING — Bible study will begin at 10 a.m. Pastor Gilbert B. Moore will speak on "It's Springtime!" at the 11 a.m. communion and worship service.

The Evening Fellowship meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. April 1.

Church-news guidelines

The Times-News encourages any church in the Magic Valley area to submit information for our listing of church services, which appears each Saturday.

To ensure your information is useful, follow these guidelines:

- The deadline for church news is Thursday noon.
- Provide full information — complete names, times, locations, day and date, include the name of the community — we serve many — and a phone number to call if more information is needed.
- If you have questions about church news, call 733-9231, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., and ask for Glenda May or Kin McJannet.

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

"Dreaming permits each and every one of us to be quietly and safely insane every night of our lives." - Charles W. Demott.

When South saw today's dummy, he envisioned sweet dreams of success. He gave the slam an excellent try, unfortunately, West's reckless overall led him astray and the sweet dream became a nightmare.

The bidding was wildly aggressive, West's vulnerable bid jump overall on such a weak suit asked for trouble, but it was to prove the bid that would mislead South, North's cue bid in hearts was another wild overbid-and when he later cue bid the spades ace, who can blame South for reaching the slam?

For some reason West chose to lead a spade instead of a heart, dummy's ace winning. Since West had doubled, South knew the opponents could win only one trump trick. Obviously, the key to success lay in eliminating the side suits, forcing a heart lead for West after he won his singleton ace of clubs.

A spade was ruffed - at trick two and when three rounds of diamonds survived, a club to West's ace forced him to lead a heart or to offer a ruff, and discard. "A sweet dream come true!"

Out came the heart lead, and down went the slam. The dummy covered and West's heart jack was the setting trick. Should South have guessed right in hearts? My vote is an "ave." East's double of three hearts coupled

Virginia, UCLA move in at Boise

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

BOISE — Even the coaches and a few players on Washington State's and Utah's teams admit that the role of the underdog belongs to them.

Whether or not they fulfill that role will be determined today.

WSU (22-6) faces Virginia (27-4), ranked fourth nationally and No. 1 in the West region, in the NCAA sub-regional tournament at 12:15 p.m. in the Boise State University Pavilion. Approximately 30 minutes after that game ends, Utah (17-13) will confront UCLA (23-5), ranked seventh in the nation and seeded second in the region.

Both games will be televised on CBS (KBCI, Channel 2).

Virginia-Washington State While admitting that Virginia, based on its reputation, had to be favored over his Cougars, WSU Coach George Raveling didn't concede victory to the Cavaliers.

"True, said Raveling, the Cavaliers have 7-4 center Ralph Sampson, United Press International's Player of the Year for three consecutive seasons and a fixture on everybody's All-America teams. But Raveling noted that Sampson's effectiveness could heighten WSU's.

"A lot of times when you play against a player of Sampson's magnitude, you tend to play at your ability level or above it," Raveling said during a Friday afternoon press conference.

Forwards Steve Harriel and Aaron Haskins, two of the prime sources of the Cougars' inside dominance over Weber State Thursday night, echoed their coach.

"We won't be intimidated," insisted Harriel. "We'll just play our regular ballgame. Obviously he's 7-4, so we'll have to make a few adjustments. But we won't make any major changes."

"He (Sampson) may block a few shots, but he can't block all of them," Haskins said.

Sampson himself won't be surprised by anything WSU tries against him.

"You name it, they've tried it — box-and-one, box-and-two, different types of zones, full-court presses, whatever else," Sampson said. "I'm just going to have to adjust to different types of situations each time down the court."

Actually, Raveling isn't as apprehensive of Sampson as he is of Virginia's other players, who are quite capable in their own right.

"The guys that run paramount in my mind are (Othell) Wilson, (Craig) Robinson, (Jim) Miller," Raveling said. "And then they come off the bench with that little road runner, (Ricky) Stokes."

Raveling denied that the Cougars might employ a stall against Virginia.

"I heard this first from my grandmother: you always dance with the girl you brought to the dance. We didn't get here holding the ball, and we're not going to hold the ball," he said.

What the Cougars do best with the ball is rebound it, an ability which has caught Virginia Coach Terry Holland's attention.

"They're a tremendous rebounding team," Holland said of WSU. "People tend to think of them as a small team. But they have good overall height, and they use their height and jumping ability very well."

The Cavaliers aren't at full strength physically, and perhaps not psychologically. Regarding the first category, sophomore forward Tim Mullen suffered an injury in Virginia's semifinal round victory in the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament against Georgia Tech, thrusting sophomore Jim Miller into the starting lineup.

"It's a major adjustment, since he (Miller) was playing a lot for us," Holland said. "But it leaves us without the flexibility of moving our lineup around during the game."

As for the second category, the Cavaliers' most recent game was an 81-78 loss to North Carolina State last Sunday in the ACC finals.

"It's hardly entering the tourney with a full head of steam,

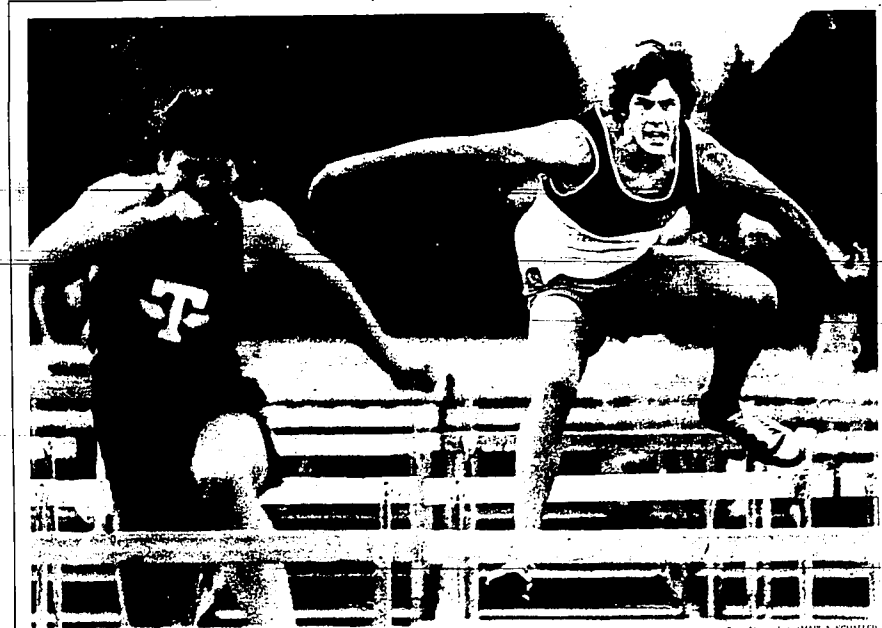

Holland nevertheless maintains a positive attitude. "If you can come in on a hot streak, that's obviously better," he said. "But we've always managed to regroup and play better basketball after that."

UCLA-Utah Regrouping won't be a problem for Utah, which came together for what observers considered an upset victory Thursday night over Illinois.

Finding himself once more on the lightly regarded side, Utah forward Pace Manion said he had grown accustomed to that status.

"I've felt like an underdog the whole season. I think," Manion said. "But we've been expected to lose most of the games we've played, and we've won 10 of our last 13."

Jerome's Kevin Rice springs in front of Twin Falls' Pete Ogden during a timed heat of the high hurdles in Friday's meet

Bruin boys gain victory in track opener; Butts, Miller pace girls to complete sweep

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls' boys presented Coach Jerry Kleinkopf with something he didn't really expect this spring — a team victory in a track meet.

The Twin Falls girls, however, did live up to the expectations of Coach Duane Stands and won their division behind triple winner Sally Butts and a double up by sophomore Mallin Miller.

The boys picked up 89 points, followed by Highland at 77, Jerome 63 and Skyline 37. The girls, after disqualifying out of first place in the mile relay and going without senior ace Macie Miller, amassed 85 points while Highland had 55, Jerome 52 and Skyline 46.

"I've just been sitting here trying to figure out where we got our points," said Kleinkopf after announcing the team results. "It sure wasn't in the relays (where the Bruins bombed out)."

Three individuals accounted for a lot of them, however, as senior Chris Williams won the 800 and came back with a career best 4:34 for second in the 1,600. Sophomore transfer Doug Zakalyk won the high hurdles and was second in the intermediates. Junior Andy Toolson, coming back to the sport after missing a year, won the high jump at 6-2 and senior Scot Scherer picked up another first in the pole vault at 13-6.

"It is a very pleasant surprise and it gives us a good starting point to make the moves and adjustments that are available," Kleinkopf said.

The boys' division produced another double winner in Jerome sprinter Paul Schwager, who took the 100 and 200. He also participated on Jerome's 800-meter relay team which set a state record last spring.

The quartet clicked it off in 1:33.2, very good for the first meet, but not good enough for senior Scot Kennedy.

"We wanted to start out by breaking the state record and getting better," he said.

Jerome had another double from junior Gary Hulsey, who was virtually uncontested in winning the weights at 52-7 in the shot and 133-0 in the discus.

In the girls' division, the major name was Butts. The Bruin senior, who has won the last two 100 and 200-meter state championships, was impressive in sweeping all three sprints, showing the strength that accompanies maturity.

She took the 100 in 12.4 but then raised some eyebrows by turning the 400 in 58.9 in her first attempt at that event.

"It felt really good," said the panting victor.

Stands wondered for a while about what that time might do to his sprint queen in the 200. But when she turned that in 25.5, he was all smiles.

"We felt that Sally had picked up a lot of strength this year," he said. "The ones who really do well in this sport are those who learn how to 'hold up' after they become tired. Sally has known how to do that for a long time. And now with the added strength she has this year..." he let it all talk.

With Highland building its track program well under the guidance of Rick Neil, Twin Falls felt this meet would be a good preview of what might be expected. There was some trepidation because Macie Miller was out of town, gone to participate in the state gymnastics tournament. Ostensibly, that cost Twin Falls a good chance at the long jump — where Macie is the defending state champion — and the high hurdles plus a couple of relays.

Spinks builds early edge, bests Braxton

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — As a March storm raged outside the Atlantic City Convention Hall, Michael Spinks held a typhoon at bay.

The undefeated Spinks, using his height and reach advantage to maximum efficiency, won the world light heavyweight championship Friday night, scoring a unanimous 15-round decision over Dwight Braxton in their title unification bout.

Spinks, the World Boxing Association champion, used a jackhammer left jab throughout the bout to keep the onrushing Braxton, the World Boxing Council titleholder, at a safe distance.

Spinks piled up a lead in the early going and allowed Braxton to get inside in the middle rounds, but he started taking control once more in the late going.

Spinks, who was dropped in the eighth round by a right to the body, continually looked to set up left hooks and right hands with the ever-present jab.

"Dwight was very tough," Braxton, who said he would fight Spinks again in a rematch, "I thought I was winning going into the 15th round, but you never know until it's over. I jabbed him for 15 rounds. I can't believe it."

"I knew I was hurting him; he didn't come past the jab."

Fred Putsch, Spinks' trainer, said Braxton's inability to get to the inside led to his defeat.

"He fought an excellent fight," Putsch said. "He followed instructions. He moved to his right to nullify Braxton's best shots. He fought enough to keep Braxton honest. He couldn't just walk in. When he did, he walked into a valley of shots."

Braxton insisted he did not lose the fight.

"He didn't win it. I was more aggressive and I was more effective," Braxton said. "It was like a truck, but I had to catch him. It was close, but I thought I won. He didn't beat me, but if I did get beat, I beat myself. I let him run and I didn't press him inside. I just didn't put out enough."

"He surprised me but I found out one thing — Michael Spinks has a lot of dog in him."

Braxton tried to get inside, but Spinks' jab met him time and time again. When Braxton did get inside, he landed crisp left hook-right hand combinations.

Judge Tony Perez had it 144-141, Judge Frank Cappuccino had it 144-141 and Judge Tony Castellano had it 142-141 for Spinks.

Spinks came out jabbing at the outset and followed with a right hand. Braxton was not ready to put full pressure on until late in the round when he connected with a left hook and had Spinks backing up. The jab again dominated the second round as Spinks was an elusive target.

Braxton halted Spinks into the ropes but the WBA champion spun his tormentor around and landed a hard right to the head. A lunging Braxton caught Spinks with a left hook but Spinks continued to move and keep Braxton away with the jab.

In the third, Spinks continued and the pace of the fight was set as Spinks moved, jabbed and looked for an opening with the right.

With Braxton trying to go to the body and Spinks jabbing, Spinks landed two right crosses on Braxton's face. The WBC champion, however, smiled — and continued — to pour on pressure.

Braxton changed his tactics in the fourth and fifth rounds, going side to side instead of coming straight at Spinks and firing his own jab, one of which snapped Spinks' head back. Braxton came on to win the round, scoring a solid left-right. Spinks landed two lefts and a right to open the sixth, but Braxton then avoided 12 straight punches, moving his head from side to side. For a while, Braxton was in control with a left hook, after which he stuck his tongue out at the WBA champion.

With his brother Leon, former heavyweight champion, shouting instructions, Spinks slipped early in the eighth and was down a second time — this time an official knockdown — when he absorbed a right to the body. He was up immediately and as he and Braxton exchanged blows in a neutral corner, he slipped again.

Braxton was warned for a low blow in the ninth as Spinks, instead of moving and jabbing, stood flatfooted and missed combination after combination before landing with a left hook to the jaw late in the round.

The two traded punches in the center of the ring in the 10th round as Spinks got the better of the exchange.

Braxton landed a hard right to the head and followed Spinks to the ropes, where the WBA champion covered, picking off most of the blows with his gloves, before tying him up. Braxton, who needed a knockout, chased Spinks in the 15th round and pressed the attack as Spinks continued to fire jab after jab.

Older, wiser Sampson now equipped to handle notoriety

Probably lies more in the maturity and confidence a student gains from the experience, rather than the scholastic wisdom acquired.

Ralph Sampson of the University of Virginia appears to be a good example of this.

Already a celebrity when he entered school in the fall of 1979, Sampson shrank from publicity; he rarely spoke to reporters; when he did, the process was painful, as the interview he gave on television after Virginia won the NIT in 1980 indicates.

But at a Friday afternoon press conference held at Mama's Italian Restaurant and Lounge, Sampson displayed skill in handling the media's questions (ones he has probably heard a million times). The must-achieved center was nearly as flamboyant as Muhammad Ali in his responses, but he was certainly more enlightening than Duane Thomas.

As might be expected of somebody who stands 7-4, Sampson seemed uncomfortable at times. During a public luncheon which preceded the press conference, his gaze remained mostly downward. When Virginia Coach Terry Holland introduced him, he barely year to lead the Cavaliers to the title. "I thought your year was every year," Sampson said. "It's my last year, and I'm not here to lose."

Another man asked Sampson what he thought of the triumph. "We want Ralph!" cried one of Washington State's fans Thursday night. He answered, "The first time I heard 'We want Ralph' was when I was recruited and I went to see Virginia." He paused for a split-second, enough time for a smug look to cross his face. "They got me."

The implication of course, was that Washington State now "has" Ralph. Good luck, Cougars.

Well, if the Cougars don't get by Sampson and Virginia today, maybe they can persuade Coach George Raveling to tell a few jokes on the way back to Pullman. The stand-up comedy routine Raveling performed for the Boise State boosters, media and general public at the luncheon would have made Rodney Dangerfield envious.

Elevating the microphone to suit his considerable height, Raveling's opening remark was, "You put the mike down so low, I think you must have been expecting small talk."

The stand-up comedy routine Raveling performed for the Boise State boosters, media and general public at the luncheon would have made Rodney Dangerfield envious.

Elevating the microphone to suit his considerable height, Raveling's opening remark was, "You put the mike down so low, I think you must have been expecting small talk."

Raveling happened to mention that CBS-TV analyst Billy Packer, who was in the audience, had been an All-America guard. "But that didn't mean a thing," explained the straight-faced Raveling, "because there weren't that many Americans back then."

More howls followed when Raveling, who is black, regaled the crowd with some self-deprecating racial humor. Expressing his admiration for J.A. Gov. David Lester's speech, which included facts about basketball's roots, Raveling confessed, "I always thought of Raveling as being like the Shep-A-Harden." game started in 1958.

Suddenly Utah's contingent of Coach Larry Farmer and guards Rod Foster and Michael Holton entered the room, clean-cut as Wall Street brokers but grinning sheepishly at their tardiness. Noticing the trio's entrance immediately, Raveling accused, "You just sit back and busing 20 years!"

Practically everybody who opened his mouth to speak made some sort of mention of Sampson, and Raveling was no exception. Faking fun at Sampson's height, Raveling joked, "I asked him, 'Ralph, when's your birthday?'" He said, "June 1, 2 and 3."

Raveling also claimed that CBS' Gary Bender asked him if he was scared of

Hayes, Rogers share open lead

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Mark Hayes chipped in a birdie on the final hole Friday to place him in a tie at 8-under-par 136 with Bill Rogers for the lead after two rounds of the $400,000 New Orleans Open.

Rogers, 31, took an early lead in the second day of play on the 7,089-yard, par-72 Lakewood Country Club course, but Hayes hit a hot streak and picked up five birdies for a 32-36-68 to pull even.

Hayes, 33, of Edmond, Okla., was tied for the lead with Jay Haas and rookie Kurt Byrum after the first round Thursday.

"I actually played more solid today than I did yesterday," Hayes said. "I had a pretty good feeling about today. I feel good about my putting. Most of the putts I've hit have gone where I wanted them to."

Rogers, the 1981 PGA Player of the Year, ended the first round in a seven-way tie for the second spot. He said he was very pleased with his performance.

"Overall, it was a good, solid round," he said. "It's been a while since I've played well. It's encouraging to be playing well. I feel like I'm on top of it pretty good."

Rookie Tze-Chung Chen of Taipei, Taiwan shot a 68 Friday to secure the No. 2 spot. His interpreter and caddy, David Chen, said if the rookie wins the New Orleans Open, he will participate in the Tournament Players Championship in Ponte Vedra, Fla.

"He feels excited about (second place)," Interpreter Chen said. "If he wins, we'll rearrange his whole schedule. Otherwise, he'll go home. We need the rest."

Grouped two strokes behind the leaders at 6-under-par 138 were Byrum, David Edwards, Haas and Roger Maltbie, who had the best round of the day, a 69.

The field was pared down to 74 players for the two final days of the tournament, which will yield the winner $72,000. The cut was made at even-par 144.

USFL and its fans wonder when favorite will emerge

By United Press International

Pro football fans are still waiting for an explosive burst by at least one United States Football League team to signal a clear-cut favorite in this fledgling circuit.

To date, the big blast has been Arizona's 30-29 victory over Chicago, which left the teams at 1-1 this season.

Arizona will need that firepower Saturday night to shoot down unbeaten Los Angeles, one of three teams with perfect USFL slates.

The other two unbeaten sets action on successive days. Tampa Bay faces winless New Jersey Sunday and Philadelphia takes on once-beaten Birmingham Monday night.

"The Express may well be the best team in the league and I'm not saying that just because we're playing them," says Arizona coach Doug Shively, who hopes to counter Los Angeles' offense with fullback Steve Howell, who gained 49 yards against Chicago.

Shively says his offense tested out fine against Chicago, "but we have plenty of room for improvement" on defense. "The numerous penalties were an embarrassment. It shows a lack of discipline and if we don't improve, we'll need more than 30 points from the offense to win."

Los Angeles' running back LaRue Harrison posted the league's best run from scrimmage with a 44 yard scamper in a 20-3 win over Washington. However, he managed only 10 yards in his other seven carries that day.

Oakland and Michigan, both 1-1, tangle in Saturday night's other game. The Michigan Panthers scored only 16 points in their two games and the lack of more end zone time can be traced to an inability to get the ball to All American wide receiver Anthony Carter.

"The offensive problems aren't anything that can't be corrected," says Michigan coach Jim Stanley, with a degree of optimism. "It wasn't a lack of effort (in a 19-7 loss to Tampa Bay). It was the lack of execution of one guy on one play and one guy on the next play. It was a continuous series of mistakes."

The weekend schedule is rounded out with Denver at Chicago and Washington at Boston Sunday.

Heisman Trophy winner and three-time All America Herschel Walker promoted a 50,000 ticket sale for the Generals in their game with Tampa Bay and the fans hope to get their money's worth.

TV blamed for mismatches

ATLANTIC CITY (UPI) — The nation's television networks may influence world boxing rankings and create potentially dangerous mismatches by overpublicizing certain fighters to boost TV ratings, a Montana congressman suggested Friday.

Rep. Pat Williams, D-Mont., told a House subcommittee studying the need for federal regulation of the boxing industry that the national network exposure can sometimes force a young fighter into a match for which he is unprepared.

"We have seen fighters move into the public notice and even into the rankings—in my judgment—simply because they've been highlighted by one of the networks in their weekend fights," he told the Subcommittee on Commerce, Transportation and Tourism. "I think that skill ought to be behind the rankings, not money."

Williams and several panel members pointed to a recent heavyweight title bout between World Boxing Council champion Larry Holmes and Randall "Tex" Cobb, which Cobb lost badly, as a prime example of the influence of " hype " in boxing.

The match, which was nationally televised by ABC-TV, was criticized by many observers who contended Cobb should never have been permitted to fight Holmes.

But network executives Friday denied any role in the creation of rankings.

"I want to say clearly and for the record that ABC Sports is not involved at all, in any way at all, with the rankings," said James R. Spence, Jr., senior vice president for the network's sports division.

The subcommittee, chaired by Rep. James Florio, D-N.J., was holding the second in a series of hearings on proposed legislation that would create an advisory committee to recommend minimum federal standards regulating the fight industry.

The panel began its hearings after the death of Korean boxer Duk Koo Kim in a fight with WBA lightweight champion Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini. Florio said the commission would recommend rules governing pre- and post-fight physical examinations, a national authority to maintain ring and medical records, and standards for promoters and managers.

"I think it is important to understand that the absence of uniform minimum standards and a central source of data on medical and ring records poses a continuing threat to the health and safety of boxers, and to the integrity of the prize fight industry," Florio said.

WBC president Jose Sulaiman, whose organization is one of two major groups sanctioning boxing events, said the WBC was willing to cooperate with federal efforts to improve ring safety.

"As president of the WBC, it is my recommendation to this subcommittee that a national medical advisory board with sufficient regulatory power be established," Sulaiman said. "If medical improvements are implemented in the United States, the incidence of ring accidents would be substantially reduced."

Flores stops Wigfall in sixth round

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Light heavyweight Jose Maria Flores, ranked fourth by the World Boxing Association, stopped Darrell Wigfall at 1:00 of the sixth round in a scheduled 10-round fight Friday night.

The bout was a preliminary to the Michael Spinks-Dwight Braxton world light-heavyweight title unification bout at the Atlantic City Convention Hall.

Flores battered Wigfall at will throughout the sixth and had him covering on the ropes when referee Paul Vent jumped in to stop the onslaught.

Flores, of Montevideo, Uruguay, won every round. After a slow first two rounds, Flores, 176 pounds, started putting combinations together and floored Wigfall, 164, with a right hand in the third round. Wigfall was up immediately and appeared unhurt.

In other bouts:

Ubaldo Saco of Argentina, the World Boxing Council's No. 1-ranked junior welterweight, ran his record to 48-1, with a 10-round unanimous decision over veteran Willie Rodriguez.

Sacco, who is looking for a title fight against WBC champion Leroy Haley, opened a deep gash over Rodriguez's right eye with a possible but in the first minute of the fight and then opened a cut alongside his left eye early in the seventh round.

Sacco scored well throughout with combinations and rocked Rodriguez with a flurry of punches to the head in the ninth round. Rodriguez had blood streaming down both sides of his face at the final bell.

Sacco took the first three rounds with his aggressive style and Rodriguez took the fourth, scoring well with counterpunches. But Sacco took to the offensive again in the seventh round and was in control the rest of the way.

Severely ranked John Davis, of Huntington, N.Y., stopped Jerry Martin of Philadelphia after nine rounds when the ring doctor halted the bout because of a cut deep inside Martin's ear.

Davis, 177 pounds, ranked No. 7 by the World Boxing Council, dominated the bout as Martin tried to bull his way to the inside. Davis, however, countered with crisp combinations.

Unbeaten Carlos Arroyo of Venezuela reeled off his 29th straight victory and 28th knockout, stopping Bruce Finch in the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round welterweight fight.

Diaz, frustrated by the speedy Finch during the first three rounds, decked him for a six-count in the fourth round and then put him away in the fifth with three straight hard left hooks to the head.

Finch was up at the count of eight but was wobbly and referee Paul Vent stopped the bout at 2:46 of the round.

Bucs give Stargell some work

BRADENTON, Fla. (UPI) — Willie Stargell, who last year ended 20 seasons as a player for the Pittsburgh Pirates, Friday was named to the new position of special assistant to the executive vice president.

The appointment was announced by Pirates executive vice president Harding Peterson.

Peterson said Stargell, 42, will concentrate much of his part-time work with the organization's minor league players, handle various duties at the major league level and do some work with the John W. Galbreath Co., the real estate development corporation owned by Pirates chairman John Galbreath and his son, Dan, who is Pirates president.

"I can't say how pleased we are to have Willie working with the organization," Peterson said. "I can envision him doing so many outstanding things for the Pirates. He is a class individual who will be a great addition to the staff."

"The one thing I wanted to do more than anything else was to remain in the Pirate organization," Stargell said. "I wanted the opportunity to give back some of the many things this organization gave me. This is an ideal situation for me and I look forward to working with Pete Peterson, Chuck Tanner and the other fine members of the Pirate family. It is very refreshing to know that I'm still going to be around and involved with this group of people."

Stargell finished his major league career with a .282 lifetime batting average, 475 home runs, 1,540 RBIs and 2,360 games.

Joe Sambito will undergo more surgery

HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston Astros relief pitcher Joe Sambito will have more surgery Saturday on the much-troubled left elbow that has kept him out of action since early last season, a club spokesman said.

Sambito, 30, had surgery in the same area of the same arm last July 7.

The surgery scheduled for noon Saturday at Indian River Memorial Hospital in Vero Beach, Fla., will be supervised by Dr. Frank Jobe. No details were released other than Sambito was suffering "irritation and numbness."

Jobe has been the lead physician on Sambito's arm troubles which date back to last year.

Last spring, Sambito suffered a rupture of the median collateral ligament along with a bone chip in the left elbow and, on July 7, underwent surgery to replace the damaged ligament a tendon taken from his right leg.

Sambito, a 1979 All-Star and one of the leading relief pitchers in the National League through the 1981 season, last pitched April 27, 1982 and was placed on the disabled list the following May.

Billie Jean and Austin notch wins

BOSTON (UPI) — Billie Jean King and tournament favorite Tracy Austin scored straight-set victories Friday night to advance to the semifinals of a $150,000 women's tennis tournament.

King defeated Kathy Horvath, 17, of Largo, Fla., 6-1, 6-3 by rushing the net on strong placements and forcing her opponent to try for winners. The victory ensures that King will play Saturday night at Boston Garden, where she will be honored in a special tribute.

"I didn't want to be there and not be playing. That would have been pretty anti-climactic," King said.

Austin beat Betsy Nagelsen, 26, of Capalua Bay, Hawaii 6-3, 6-3. The taller and stronger Nagelsen could not equal the groundstrokes of the 20-year-old from Redding Hills, Calif., whose topspin lobbs stymied Nagelsen's attempts at a serve-and-volley game.

Austin was seeded second in the tournament but became the favorite when top seed Andrea Jaeger withdrew due to injuries.

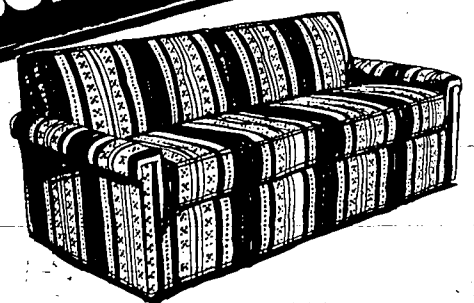

The first five days of the tournament were played at Boston University, but the competition moves to Boston Garden for the final two rounds beginning today. The semifinals pair King against fourth seed Sylvia Hanika and Austin against third seed Wendy Turnbull.

Hanika combined angle shots with opportune rushes to the net to beat Wendy White of Atlanta 6-3, 7-6 earlier in the day. Turnbull fought off Barbara Potter of Woodbury, Conn., 6-3, 2-6, 6-4.
