Reagan to moderate 'zero-option' demand

New proposal to be handed to Soviets today

By NORMAN D. SANDLER
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Reagan will recommend an interim plan to limit medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe today, administration officials said Monday.

Sources indicated the proposal will be spelled out at the Intermediate Nuclear Forces talks in Geneva by chief negotiator Paul Nitze. The current round of talks is scheduled to recess Tuesday.

For more than 16 months, Reagan has stood by his "zero option," calling for the Soviets to dismantle their medium-range missiles in Europe or face deployment of 572 U.S. missiles beginning in December.

Officials said the president would unveil the plan publicly Wednesday before leaving for California, instead of in a speech to the Los Angeles World Affairs Council on Thursday.

They stressed Reagan would not stake out a position in public that was not first placed before the Soviets in private.

"It's logical to assume that if there is a proposal, it'll be put before the Russians before it is before the public," said one official.

One official said the new proposal, developed in consultation with allies, will not mention specific numbers. Reagan himself has insisted that any such agreement be verifiable, provide for equal numbers of U.S. and Soviet missiles, not count French and British missiles and bar the Soviets from moving missiles from Europe to Asia.

Another official said Reagan hoped to propose specific ceilings on missile deployments, tied to the eventual goal of his zero option. The options under study in recent weeks included limiting both sides to some 100 missiles and 300 warheads.

Reagan, in a televised defense speech last week, said he would use the address in Los Angeles to "report ... my thoughts" on the INF negotiations. Aides said he received the first draft of the address late Saturday and worked on it Sunday and Monday.

Merger study targets local school districts

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — Twin Falls, Jerome, Gooding and Lincoln counties have been tagged as target areas for a study on consolidating public school administrations.

A report released Monday — done by a special committee appointed by House Speaker Tom Stivers, R-Twin Falls — strongly urges that Idaho's school administrations be reduced in number, and that a legislative committee develop specific plans for some consolidation by next year.

"The primary goal of consolidation is not cost-savings, but achieving better delivery of resources to the student," said committee chairman Rep. Dan Kelly, R-Mountain Home. "We strongly advocate fewer administrative districts, while leaving intact the neighborhood elementary schools.

"The second goal is the cost-savings, which we are convinced can be made by consolidating administrative duties," he said. "The money then can be funneled into the classroom."

"Idaho has 108 superintendents, and 740 other administrative people, not including principals," Kelly said. "If that could be reduced by half, through consolidating administrative services, then about $12 million could be saved each year to transfer into the classrooms."

Twin Falls County's eight school districts are a prime target of Stivers, who estimates that $250,000 a year can be saved if school administration in his home county is handled by one superintendent and one office.

"I'm not all that hot on consolidating districts or getting rid of local boards," Stivers says. "I probably would insist that any savings realized remain in that school district."

But "why duplicate all these administrative and purchasing duties in each of these small school districts?"

"We're not talking about saving money so we can spend it elsewhere," he says. "We're talking about better use of the money — putting it to solve problem areas like teacher salaries, books and supplies."

Water Resource budget cuts may shut down local office

By The Times-News
and United Press International

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley residents may have to travel to Boise or Idaho Falls next year to conduct routine business with the Idaho Water Resources Department.

Members of the Legislature's Joint Finance and Appropriations Committee voted 11-9 on Monday to recommend that the House and Senate approve a $4.75 million spending package for the department next year.

That would be in the neighborhood of $200,000 less in general-fund money than the department has said it needs to maintain existing programs at existing levels, said Norm Young, the administrator of the department's resource division.

Ken Dunn, the department's director, told the budget-setting panel the cutback probably will mean the closure of the Twin Falls regional office and the layoff of six employees.

The vote to trim the appropriation for the department came after an hour of debate, which saw lawmakers torn on the need to fund Idaho water programs at a time when state revenue sources are extremely limited.

The Twin Falls office, with six employees, is one of four regional offices.

Allen Merritt, a senior water resource analyst who works there, said Monday afternoon that he is not sure how the gap that would be created if the office is closed would be filled.

He said the purpose of the office traditionally has been to give southern Idaho residents a place to conduct routine business with the department. Such business includes applying for permits and recording and transferring water rights.

The office also retains a field staff that monitors irrigation and wastewater wells and conducts on-the-spot licensing examinations and a dam-safety program, he said.

Environmental groups support Ruckelshaus

But groups want some changes made in administration policies

By ROBERT SANGEORGE
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Nine major environmental groups backed William Ruckelshaus Monday to head the EPA and urged President Reagan to reverse the "chaos and damage" of many policies affecting health and natural resources.

The conservationists, urging Reagan to let Ruckelshaus become more than a "figurehead" administrator, issued a report scathingly critical of administration policies on issues ranging from protection of worker health to energy development in Antarctica.

At an unusual joint news conference, leaders of the conservation groups charged that the controversy engulfing the Environmental Protection Agency is just the "tip of the iceberg."

"Every other agency responsible for regulating private conduct in order to protect human health and the environment has suffered the same treatment," they argued.

"The appointment of Mr. Ruckelshaus is a good one, but it only throws a cloak of respectability over the enormous environmental chaos and damage caused by President Reagan's policies," said William Turnage, executive director of the Wilderness Society.

Louise Dunlap, president of the Environmental Policy Center, contended Ruckelshaus could be "a figurehead administrator" unless he is given significant policymaking authority and a major increase in the EPA budget.

Ruckelshaus, who served as the EPA's first administrator during the Nixon administration, is expected to win Senate confirmation and take over the troubled agency in about a month. He replaces Anne Burford, who resigned March 9 amid charges of mismanagement and political manipulation of EPA programs.

Federal court blocks leasing of off-shore oil exploration rights

BOSTON (UPI) — A federal judge Monday temporarily blocked Interior Secretary James Watt's planned sale of oil and gas drilling leases in one of the world's richest fishing grounds.

U.S. District Judge David Mazzone issued a preliminary injunction against Tuesday's scheduled sale in New York City of 2.8 million acres undersea divided into 48 tracts in the abundant Georges Bank area off the coast of New England.

"Proceeding hastily with oil exploration in this region presents an unnecessary risk of harm of potentially indefinite duration, for an unacceptably small benefit," Mazzone said.

He said the plaintiffs showed a likelihood of success in their claims that the Interior Department conducted the sale in an "arbitrary, capricious" and illegal manner. Mazzone said claims that the

Environmental Protection Agency suppressed a scientific report critical of the proposed sale also raised a "strong question."

An attorney for the Justice Department, representing the Interior, and a lawyer for nine oil companies that intervened in the suit said they had to study the 54-page decision that was released at 5:15 p.m. and would not comment on any plans for an appeal.

An Interior Department spokesman said the department will not seek an emergency appeal of the ruling, but "will, instead, vigorously pursue the issue through the normal court process."

The spokesman said the department is "confident that in the final analysis our stringent environmental and safety controls will withstand the scrutiny of the courts."

highways and made driving hazardous. Motorists in northeast New York were forced to negotiate slippery roads through dense fog that reduced visibilities to near zero. A number of school closings were reported.

The Fulton County sheriff's department reported hazardous driving conditions, especially on slushy, unplowed secondary roads.

Rain and snow drenched the Northeast Monday, blanketing New England with up to 15 inches of snow and breaking a March record for rainfall in New York City.

At least four deaths were blamed on snowfall from the storm, which raged over the Midwest during the weekend before moving east. Snow fell at a rate of 2 inches per hour on parts of Vermont and New Hampshire.

A downpour Monday broke the New York City record for March rainfall when more than an inch of rain raised the month's total to 10.53 inches by 5 p.m., the National Weather Service said. It was the most rain for the month since the weather service began keeping records in 1869.

It has rained 17 out of 28 days in New York City this month, a weather service spokesman said. Police said the downpour Monday flooded surrounding towns in the southern part of the state, but moderating temperatures kept the snow from freezing up and morning commuters faced nothing more than slushy roads.

The Green Mountains of Vermont and New Hampshire reported 5 to 7 inches of snow, and the Adirondacks were hit with a half-foot.

Sleet mixed with rain in interior southern New England while freezing drizzle glazed the central Pennsylvania mountains.

The snow changed to rain in southern New England and extended along the Mid-Atlantic coast. Over 1 inch of rain doused Portsmouth, N.H., and nearly 1 inch was reported at Portland, Me. Elsewhere, there were a few rain showers scattered over western Washington and the Oregon coast. Skies were clear to partly cloudy from Texas to the Southeastern states.

A quick thaw helped clear away the worst of up to 2 feet of snow that fell on Nebraska, and up to 18 inches that blanketed Iowa during the weekend.

Wildlife group says government squelched film

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Wildlife Federation accused the Interior Department Monday of suppressing a film that encourages hunters to use steel shot in their shotguns instead of lead shot that can poison waterfowl.

The 30-minute film, "Field Testing Steel Shot," was produced during the Carter administration. It was prompted by concern among both environmentalists and government experts that millions of lead shot pellets that fall to hit their targets eventually are eaten by waterfowl and kill them.

"The Interior Department is suppressing a taxpayer-financed film on a critical conservation issue," argued Jay Hair, the federation's executive vice president.

He said the federation, which has a copy of the film, will continue to show it despite the department's demands for its recall.

Alan Levitt, a spokesman for the department's Fish and Wildlife Service, said the $28,500 film was "poorly produced," is not a finished product and has not been released for public viewing.

"The position of the Fish and Wildlife Service is that it doesn't accurately portray the steel shot issue," said Levitt.

The use of steel shot generally requires greater accuracy by a hunter because the pellets do not spread out as widely as lead shot when the gun is fired.

The federation has discouraged the use of lead shot in certain environmental settings because of estimates that as many as 3 million ducks, geese and other water birds die each year from eating lead pellets.

"A single hunter would deposit hundreds of pellets into the environment in just one outing," said Alan Wentz, director of the federation's fisheries and wildlife division.

He said when a bird eats the pellets, the effect "is like a person eating lead paint — the lead is broken down and absorbed into the blood stream." In some cases, eating just one pellet can kill a bird, he said.

Steel pellets, however, are not broken down inside the bird and are passed through without harm, he said.

Jury convicts police officers

DALLAS (UPI) — A federal court jury Monday convicted three New Orleans policemen of conspiring to deprive citizens of rights and of violating the civil rights of a black man during an investigation of a slain officer. Four other white officers were exonerated.

The wives of John McKenzie, Dale Bonura and Stephen Farrar sobbed and clutched at their husbands after the verdicts were announced shortly after 2 p.m. MST.

All the defendants, including the four who were acquitted, looked shaken and grim. They would not speak with reporters after the verdict.

Defense attorneys said the convictions would be appealed. The officers will remain on active duty pending those appeals.

The all-white jury of seven women and five men began its deliberations last Thursday and indicated to U.S. District Judge Jerry Buchmeyer earlier Monday that it could not reach agreement. Buchmeyer urged jurors to redouble their efforts, and the verdicts came in three hours later.

McKenzie, 40, was the homicide sergeant in charge of the investigation of white patrolman Gregory Neupert's Nov. 8, 1980, gunshot slaying in the predominantly black neighborhood of Algiers.

Three blacks and one white man claimed they were beaten with fists, "bagged" by having plastic bags put over their heads until they almost suffocated and "booked" by being pounded on the head with a heavy hardbound city directory.

Michael Miller appears for arraignment Monday

Reagan lawyer's son charged with murder

By MARK BARABAK
United Press International

TORRANCE, Calif. — The 20-year-old son of President Reagan's personal attorney was charged Monday with the rape and first-degree murder of his mother, found beaten to death in the bedroom of the family home last week.

The charges against Michael David Miller, who allegedly confessed the slaying during a police interview the following day, also include a special circumstance that could result in the death penalty.

Following the filing of charges, Municipal Court Judge Benjamin Aranda granted a defense request to continue arraignment until April 11, when the suspect will enter a plea. He will remain in custody without bail until then.

The youth, who was handcuffed and appeared tired and disheveled, wore a rust-colored turtleneck shirt, grey sweatpants and white tennis shoes at the brief hearing. He spoke only once, mumbling "yes" when asked if he agreed to the time waiver.

His father, attorney Roy Miller, was not in court.

The judge also granted a defense request to impose a gag order preventing attorneys and police from discussing the case or the slaying.

Deputy District Attorney Robert De la Sota said the ruling was issued because of "the sensitive nature" of the proceedings and added, "We have no desire to try the case in the press."

Before the hearing, sheriff's investigator Jerome Beck said evidence at the death scene indicated Mrs. Miller had been raped before the killing, "but only through chemical analysis was that suspicion confirmed."

He said there was no indication of previous sexual involvement between Mrs. Miller and her son. De la Sota, who met earlier in the day with investigators and defense attorneys Stephen Miller and Tom Nolan, told reporters a decision on whether to seek the death penalty was still "down the line."

The nude body of the suspect's mother, Marguerite, 52, was found Thursday night when her husband came home and saw blood in the doorway of their ocean-view house in Palos Verdes Estates. He called police, who found the woman lying in a pool of blood in the bedroom.

The son, who had undergone psychiatric counseling since his mentally ill brother committed suicide with an overdose of aspirin in 1981, was arrested Friday-morning after he reportedly admitted the slaying to investigators during an interview. No motive has been disclosed.

Miller was held during the weekend in the hospital ward of Los Angeles County Jail, where he was kept under close watch to prevent a suicide attempt.

The slaying shocked friends of the Millers, considered "an all-American family" who sang together in the choir choir at a local Methodist church. The suspect was described as a kind and sensitive youth, a health food enthusiast and violinist, who appeared to have a good relationship with his parents.

Nicaragua asks summit with Honduras

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — A Nicaraguan Monday called for a summit meeting with Honduras in an attempt to end escalating violence between the two countries.

The Sandinista government also said American aid made possible an attack by firebrand-led rebels that killed five people and wounded 24 others, including seven children, Saturday.

In Tegucigalpa, Honduras, the government claimed it intercepted four Nicaraguans crossing southwestern Honduras Saturday en route to El Salvador to assist that country's guerrillas.

The Department of International Information said one of the four Nicaraguans died in a shootout with Honduran security forces near the town of Nacoame, 18 miles east of El Salvador and the others escaped.

"Nicaragua is violating Honduran territory by sending troops in small groups to El Salvador to reinforce and supply the guerrillas of that country," an official statement said.

At the United Nations, Nicaragua called for a summit meeting of Nicaraguan and Honduran leaders to discuss their differences in the presence of officials from Mexico and Venezuela.

Addressing the Security Council on the fourth day of a debate on a Nicaraguan complaint it was invaded by U.S.-trained insurgents from Honduras, Nicaraguan Foreign Minister Victor Tinoco said Honduras rejected all previous invitations for negotiations.

Tinoco said Nicaragua declined to submit a resolution to the council aimed at resolving the crisis because "we are sure the United States will veto it."

In a statement printed in the Sandinista's official Barricada newspaper, the Nicaraguan Foreign Ministry said, "It is the unconditional and unrestricted aid that the U.S. government gives to the Somocista counterrevolutionary forces that is the ultimate cause of the situation that endangers Nicaragua."

The Somocistas are supporters of late Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza who opposes the leftist regime in Managua.

Congressmen: Salvadorans are lying

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — In a blunt public debate Monday, three U.S. congressmen told El Salvador's defense minister they "don't believe" the army's version of a massacre report and that the human rights situation was "deteriorating."

Reps. Jim Oberstar, D-Minn., Jim Jeffords, R-Vt., and Bill Richardson, D-N.M., held a rare open discussion with Defense Minister Jose Guillermo Garcia at a news conference at his headquarters before a private meeting.

Garcia sharply told the visiting lawmakers that there "are two points of view on the matter" when they mentioned human rights.

Oberstar said he and his colleagues doubt the version given them Sunday by Col. Carlos Gonzalez Arango, that the army killed 74 peasants on a government land co-operation in Sonsonate Feb. 22 because they were actually leftist guerrillas.

"Frankly, we don't believe his story," Oberstar said.

Oberstar noted that Garcia, in his opening remarks, had reminded the legislators the situation in El

Rep. Oberstar confronts the Salvadoran defense minister

Salvador "is very difficult and complicated."

"But some things remain the same," Oberstar said. "Last year when we came here there was the massacre in San Antonio Abad. This year we came to investigate the massacre in Sonsonate."

Garcia jumped on Oberstar's reference to San Antonio Abad, where 23 youths were dragged from their homes in February of 1982 and shot to death.

"Remember that one year ago in San Antonio Abad...subversives tried to stop people from voting, Salvadorans will never forget it," Garcia said.

Horses didn't contract herpes from U.S. tour

VIENNA, Austria (UPI) — Officials said Monday the origin of an incurable herpes virus that killed 33 of the famed Lipizzaner horses and threatens more than half the remaining mares, still was a mystery. But they denied it was the result of a U.S. tour earlier this year.

Since the disease surfaced in mid-February at Austria's only stud farm for the majestic, white horses, six broodmares and 27 foals — more than half the number born this year — have died, the Ministry of Agriculture said.

Dr. Erwin Rothensteiner, a government veterinarian, said at least 26 of the remaining 40 broodmares were believed contaminated.

"But this does not mean that the Lipizzaner horses in Austria are about to become extinct," Rothensteiner said.

He said the Ministry planned to supplement its stock of broodmares when the epidemic was over by purchasing horses from Yugoslavia, Hungary and Czechoslovakia where they are also bred.

The officials said the disease was confined to the stud farm in Piber, southern Austria, and none of the high-stepping stallions at the Spanish Riding School in Vienna — one of Austria's top tourist attractions — was affected.

"We have no idea where this virus came from and as the incubation period can range from several days to several months, there is no way of saying with certainty exactly how many horses will be affected," said Dr. Kurt Arbeiter at a Ministry news conference.

"However, there is good reason to hope that we are over the peak, as the cases are less frequent now," Arbeiter said.

There are a total of 217 horses at the government-owned farm.

Veterinarian Dr. Walter Schlegel dispelled rumors that the Riding School stallions contracted the killer disease during their American tour.

"Not a single one of the animals that toured the United States has been to the stud farm since then," he said. "If the virus had been picked up there the disease would have broken out in Vienna and not at the stud farm."

Guerrillas promise to execute American today

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — One day before the deadline set by guerrillas for the execution of kidnapped American oil executive Kenneth Bishop, a company source said Monday that Texaco "is not negotiating" with his abductors.

"It is not the policy of the company to negotiate with kidnapers," the source told UPI.

Bishop, 57, and a father of five, was kidnapped March 7 by guerrillas of the People's Revolutionary Organization in an attack in which his two bodyguards were killed.

The guerrilla organization, known by the acronym ORP sent a picture of the oilman in captivity along with a brief communique to a Bogota newspaper and threatened to "execute" Bishop if Texaco did not meet certain undisclosed demands before March 29.

Since then, however, there has been no public statement by ORP. Authorities, family and the company claim ORP has not communicated with them either.

Police checked the getaway car for fingerprints. Interviewed eyewitnesses and set up roadblocks throughout the Colombian capital without turning up a solid clue to the whereabouts of the oilman.

"We're doing everything possible especially now at the end of the time period allotted by ORP," a police source said.

The kidnaping has been condemned by all three major leftist guerrilla groups.

Former pitcher tosses his cap in ring

Former major league pitching star Jim Bunning will run for governor in Kentucky. "I want Kentucky to be known for education as well as fast horses, beautiful women, basketball — and of course — baseball," the 51-year-old Bunning said Monday, becoming the first major Republican to announce his candidacy for the May 24 primary. Democratic candidates in the gubernatorial primary include Lt. Gov. Marsha Lays Collins and Louisville Mayor Harvey I. Sloan. Bunning pitched in the major leagues from 1957 until 1971, including a perfect game for the Phillies in 1964 against the New York Mets. He was elected to the state senate in 1980 and works as an investment broker, representing more than a dozen pro baseball players.

Nancy and Todd Tilton of Sea Cliff, N.Y., proudly showed off the first American test tube twins Monday. "This was really one of God's miracles. It is an incredible event in our lives," the infants' mother, a 31-year-old art teacher, told a news conference in Manhasset, N.Y. To which her 27-year-old husband, an accountant, added, "We're lucky to have twins, and we may want to do this again." Pediatrician Dr. Michael Gilbert said that blonde Todd Macdonald II and his dark-haired sister Heather Jane, born last Thursday, are "perfectly healthy and normal" and can be taken home on Wednesday.

A London auction house expected to get about $22,500 for a 65-year-old diary kept by King Faisal of Iraq. But the book brought a hefty $181,500 from an anonymous buyer at Sotheby Parke Bernet in London Monday. The diary, written in Arabic during the 1919 Paris peace conference, contains Faisal's proposals for setting up independent Arab states and records similar to his interpreter at the conference, T.E. Lawrence, also known as Lawrence of Arabia. Actually, Faisal was running Syria at the time, or trying to, but moved next door to become king of Iraq a couple of years later.

Poet Robert Frost would have been 109 years old Sunday, so scores of people turned up at Jones Library in Amherst, Mass., to view a 1950 NBC film of Frost reading several of his poems including "The Gift Outright." Frost, who died in 1963, taught at Amherst College off and on from 1917 to 1936. Amherst professor William H. Pritchard, who knew Frost and is writing his biography, said the poet rebelled against classrooms and lecture halls, choosing instead to hold readings in fraternity houses at what was then an all-male school. The Jones library's Frost collection includes gallery proofs, letters, photographs and original manuscripts.

Mrs. Shizuo Matsuki missed the party for her 100th birthday in Tokyo but 185 of her 357 family members turned out for the event at a Tokyo club — including quite a number of her nine children, 82 grandchildren, three great-grandchildren, their spouses and cousins. Mrs. Matsuki, whose husband was president of Taiwan Electric Power Co. and died in 1939, was unable to attend the Sunday party for health reasons, a family spokesman said.

Filipino zealots begin weird rites

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Millions of devout Filipino Catholics Monday began Holy Week observances with zealots whipping themselves and at least five planning to re-enact Christ's crucifixion by being nailed to crosses on Good Friday.

Church officials in the Philippines, Asia's only Roman Catholic country, have tried without much success to discourage the practice of the re-enactment, saying the zealots are often motivated by pride and vain glory. Contrary to the extreme display of Christ's sufferings by some people, most of the country's estimated 42 million Catholics began Holy Week by fasting and praying.

The flagellants, grim-faced and half naked, gathered in streets and church squares throughout the country, lashing their backs with bamboo whips and glass-studded bats in a gory ritual of penance introduced by Spanish friars 400 years ago.

Others carried heavy, 14-foot wooden crosses through the dusty streets as friends fogged them with 25-foot whips. While the practice of self-flagellation began in some rural areas, most practitioners wait until after mid-week to whip themselves, with Good Friday being the most popular day.

The flagellants, many of them small-time hoodlums and thugs, believe shedding their own blood will wash away sins and put their rich with God.

Others seek heavenly favors, such as miraculous cures, good crops or a profitable year in business.

Farmers in many rural areas believe shedding their blood will fertilize the earth and bring them a bountiful harvest. They often bury their whips and bloodied clothes in the middle of their rice paddies, to be dug up and used again the following year.

But at least five people, including the son of a former American soldier in the Philippines, have signalled their intention to be nailed to crosses in painful Good Friday re-enactments of Christ's crucifixion.

Donald Rexford Jr., 36-year-old son of a former American soldier, believes now lives in Pontiac, Mich., has told friends he will undergo the ritual in the Manila suburb of Mandaluyong for the fourth year.

Bigamist's sentence produces attack on judge

By PATRICIA WALSH
United Press International

PHOENIX, Ariz. — A Superior Court judge Monday sentenced Giovanni Vigliotto, who admitted he married more than 100 women, to 34 years in prison and fined him $338,000 for bigamy and fraud.

Before sentence was passed, the pudgy bigamist berated Judge Rufus Coulter in a 20-minute diatribe, calling the judge an inept alcoholic and swearing he would be vindicated of the fraud charge, which he said was unsubstantiated.

Vigliotto said he always admitted to the bigamy charge, but that "not one shred of evidence" was offered for the fraud charge.

The judge, who calmly listened to Vigliotto's statement, told the convict, "You must have listened to a different set of facts than I did."

Reading from a 14-page, hand printed speech on yellow legal paper, Vigliotto called Coulter a "grotesque caricature of a judge... a corrupt and grossly inept man... a corrupt and grossly inept man... before the trial 'stated under the influence of a bottle of Scotch' that he would punish Vigliotto the maximum.

Vigliotto called the trial "a sham and mockery... which you presided over... like a ringmaster in a second-rate circus."

He also accused the judge of being "in collusion with the prosecutor" and said the prosecutor had paid the judge's bar bills.

Coulter denied the allegations. Public Defender Richard Stelner later was asked why he let Vigliotto make such a speech. "I have no right to tell him not to read the statement," he said, adding Vigliotto already was aware of the probable sentence before it was read.

Vigliotto was charged with marrying Patricia Gardiner, 43, a Mesa, Ariz., real estate agent in 1981 and making off with her assets shortly after their wedding. The judge ordered $42,739 of Vigliotto's fine paid to Gardiner as restitution.

Outside the courtroom, Gardiner, who has filed for a marriage annulment from the bigamist, said she felt "great."

'Cat-alog' forecasts quakes

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — When geologist Jim Berkland peruses the Pets' Lost or Found section of the want ads, he's not looking for dogs and cats — he's looking for the clues.

Berkland, Santa Clara County's geologist, says cats display unusual behavior, such as running away from home, when an earthquake is imminent. So he bases his predictions on the number of pet owners looking for runaways and the number of citizens reporting strays found.

"I cut out the cat clippings and keep them in my catalog," Berkland said, using one of the puns that punctuate his public speeches.

He said an average of three cats are reported lost or found each day in the paper.

"I start getting interested" when a "threshold" of six lost cats are listed, he said.

The largest number of cats reported lost or found last year was 14 on Oct. 1, the same day a quake measuring 5.3 on the Richter scale occurred 220 miles south of San Jose.

Berkland claims that cats and other animals have a mineral called magnetite connected to their nervous systems. The substance, he says, is affected by "the magnetic field shift, which we know precedes earthquakes." Tom Heaton, a seismologist with the U.S. Geologic Survey, said "there may be something to" Berkland's stray cat theory, but "I would say the scientific community has not generally accepted his results."

Supreme Court

Justices will decide BPA rate dispute

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Monday stepped into a multibillion-dollar dispute in the Pacific Northwest over distributing hydroelectric power to consumer-owned utilities and private companies.

The justices will hear arguments next term by the Aluminum Co. of America, which is contesting a lower court ruling that the Bonneville Power Administration erred in allocating surplus power to industrial users.

The government also urged the high court to take the case because the ruling could cause a shortfall in the revenues of Bonneville, which supplies 50 percent of the region's power. The government would have to subsidize the loss by as much as $10 billion over a 20-year period.

The Bonneville Power Administration, with headquarters in Portland, Ore., had no immediate comment on the Supreme Court decision to take up the case.

A spokesman for the Direct Service Industries, to which ALCOA and most other aluminum companies in the Northwest belong, said the contested lower court ruling gives utilities more power than they need, enabling them to shut down facilities that make more expensive electricity, including coal, nuclear and new hydroelectric plants.

"We're extremely happy and optimistic" the Supreme Court is taking the case, said spokesman Brett Wilcox. "As new resources are developed, 25 percent of our power could disappear if preference customers were allowed to shut down resources."

Under the shadow of a "regional civil war" because of threatened electric energy shortages, Congress passed the Pacific Northwest Electric Power Planning and Conservation Act in 1980 to allow Bonneville to allocate power equitably.

Federal law gives public utilities preference over other users in allocating the power in order to keep the Northwest's electric rates among the lowest in the nation.

But the utilities say a new allocation scheme gave preference to industrial customers, many of which are aluminum companies.

A dozen public utility customers protested Bonneville's distribution of "non-firm power," which is unplanned power from excess snow and rain.

The 104 consumer-owned utilities in the Northwest won in court. The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals invalidated August 1981 contracts that gave industrial users first preference for surplus power.

The San Francisco appeals court said the 1937 Bonneville Project Act and the Northwest Regional act gave first preference to public entities and cooperatives selling power. The new contracts violate "the longstanding preference" set out in the act, the court concluded.

Powell won't rule on school prayer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Supreme Court Justice Lewis Powell Monday rejected an agnostic's request to have the Mobile, Ala., school board held in contempt for flaunting an order and allowing teacher-led prayer in classrooms.

Ismahel Jaffree had asked Powell to direct a lower court judge to decide whether the school board's actions were in contempt of court.

But Powell told Jaffree, who does not want his three children exposed to classroom prayer, to first take his request to an "appropriate lower court."

Jaffree's attorney, Ron Williams, said he does not consider the denial a setback.

But the lawyer said, "We had hoped he (Powell) would hear it himself. We felt that would have more effect on the schoolboard. They've been so defiant."

Williams said he did not know whether Jaffree would pursue the matter in a lower federal court as Powell had suggested. "Certainly if he wants to do that we'll follow through with it. The school board hasn't shown any indication of stopping what they've been doing."

Jaffree's Alabama suit to stop teachers from leading prayers caused a nationwide furor when U.S. District Judge Brevard Hand of Mobile ruled in January that the Supreme Court had erred in consistently finding school prayer unconstitutional.

Last month, Powell declared that Hand was wrong to ignore the Supreme Court's previous rulings "unless and until" the nation's highest court overturns them.

Case has broad implications for pension plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A lawyer asked the Supreme Court Monday to wipe out a widespread form of sex discrimination — the use by insurance companies of statistics showing men die sooner to justify paying women lower monthly pensions.

Amy Jo Gittler, attorney for Nathalie Norris, who challenged Arizona's pension plan, said her client's case is an example of how many workers across the nation may be affected.

"If Ms. Norris retires at 65 and lives another 20 years, she will receive $8,000 less than a man in the same situation," the lawyer said.

She argued that use of sex-based lifespan statistics to create this financial gender gap violates federal anti-discrimination law.

Although the case brought to the Supreme Court by Ms. Norris directly affects only four women who have retired as Arizona state employees, it has significant implications. Barring the use of traditional sex-based statistics would revolutionize the insurance industry, forcing widespread restructuring of retirement plans and cost the industry hundreds of thousands of dollars in additional benefits.

"The financial implications are staggering," argued John Endicott, lawyer for Arizona. He predicted equal treatment of men and women in the pension area could bankrupt many employer-funded plans.

Instructors challenge college's union rules

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Taking up a free speech case, the Supreme Court agreed Monday to test whether college instructors who refuse to join a faculty union can be excluded from key talks on school policy.

The justices will examine Minnesota's system of public employee unions next term to decide whether it illegally permits non-union workers to be closed out of "meet and confer" discussions with employers.

Twenty community college instructors who refused to join the faculty union challenged the system. They claimed they were being shut out of an important policy-making role illegally because only union members are allowed to elect and serve on the meet-and-confer committees.

By a 2-1 vote, a federal court ruled the non-union members rights to free speech and association were being violated.

Community college administrators and the faculty union appealed to the Supreme Court, accusing the lower court of creating "new and wide-ranging First Amendment rights for college faculty" that they do not believe exist.

In a separate action, the high court stifled a related controversy by affirming a ruling that upholds Minnesota's public employee bargaining law that gives unions exclusive power to negotiate a faculty's work contracts.

The justices also agreed Monday to take up another labor case. The Supreme Court will decide how freely an employee can complain to his boss about some work-related problems without being fired.

The National Labor Relations Board filed the appeal. The board said a Detroit garbage-hauling company should rehire a truck driver with back pay after firing him for refusing to drive a truck he felt was unsafe.

The NLRB is appealing a federal appeals court ruling that found the driver is not covered by a labor-law provision protecting "concerted" union activities because he was acting only for himself in complaining about the truck's safety.

Hospital board OKs surgical center project

By HARRIET GUTHERTZ
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Patients undergoing minor surgery at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center will not have to spend a night at the hospital after the facility completes its outpatient surgery center this summer.

The MVRMC board of directors Monday night approved plans to build a $309,000 same-day surgery unit, with construction scheduled to start in April. The center, which will have three operating rooms and four recovery rooms, will enable patients to have a tonsillectomy or even a hernia operation in the morning and to go home at night.

The 4,000-square-foot building will be located east of the radiology unit. Construction time is estimated at six months.

Out-patient surgery is one of the newest concepts in patient care, and MVRMC plans to get in on the action. Insurance companies used to require hospitalization for certain medical procedures, said Dr. Lyle Wonderlich, a physician who has been studying the concept for MVRMC. But in an effort to reduce costs, insurance companies now will pay for some minor surgeries only on an out-patient treatment, he said.

Because the surgery centers are popular with patients and financially lucrative, MVRMC does not have much choice in building a surgery center, said Wonderlich. If the hospital does not do it, someone else will, he said.

There is a surgical center in Idaho Falls and one is being planned for Boise. Wonderlich said. Thousands of similar centers are located around the country, he added.

The hospital will finance the center with the $314,000 left in the contingency fund used for its major construction project. With the main project nearing completion, board members are confident that any remaining revisions will be minor.

Included in the $309,000 cost of the surgical center will be $590,000 for the actual building, $241,000 for equipment and $50,000 for architectural fees.

Because the surgical center is designed to function as a stand-alone unit, separated from the main hospital, duplicate diagnostic and lab instruments will be purchased. The equipment budget is, therefore, expected to rise above the original $341,000, said Bill Burns, the hospital administrator.

Initially, the center will reduce patient volume in the main operating room by around 40 percent, Burns said. The patients handled in the hospital's operating room will be those with more complex cases, he said.

MVRMC already is performing eight to 10 out-patient surgeries each day on an improvised basis, Burns said. The patient arrives at 5 a.m., for surgery at 7 a.m., and then checks out in the evening without spending the night.

With the new building, the patient will not even have to step in the main building.

In another cost-conscious move taken Monday night, the board approved $3,800 to conduct a study on the feasibility of converting to geothermal heat.

Marvin Stroppe, a professor of earth science at the College of Southern Idaho who has worked with geothermal heating systems, has told hospital officials that there is a good possibility of hitting hot water on MVRMC property.

Stroppe estimates that it might cost up to $85,000 to drill a well.

Because natural gas, which currently is used to heat the hospital, probably will increase in price after it is deregulated later this year, geothermal heat would be a good investment, board members said.

And if the geothermal system is built, the hospital could apply for a matching federal grant, Burns said.

CSI program helps jobless

New computers allow training

By HAL BERNTON
Times-News writer

BOISE — The details of an innovative, new vocational-training program — developed by the College of Southern Idaho in cooperation with CPT, a Minneapolis-based computer firm — were unveiled Monday by Lt. Gov. David Leroy at a Boise press conference.

The 16-week pilot program, initiated by CSI vocational director Michael Glenn, will use $160,000 worth of loaned computer equipment to train 15 unemployed Magic Valley residents in the skills of word-processing. The students, once an initial six-week training program is completed, then will put their knowledge to work helping 15 area businesses develop word-processing systems on the CPT equipment.

Glenn says that the concept of using CPT's loaned computer equipment to retrain workers and link them with businesses in need of word-processing systems may be the first of its kind in the nation. At the end of the 16-week program, the businesses will have the option of buying the loaned systems or returning them to CPT.

"This type of program blend meets the needs of colleges with limited vocational budgets, which face increasing financial drains as they try to keep up with the development of new, high technology," Glenn says.

Attending the press conference along with Glenn was Jerry Evans, the state superintendent of public instruction; Larry Selland, the state director of vocational education; several CSI officials; and two Idaho CPT dealers.

Glenn says that the 16-week program will be divided into three phases. In the first phase, the 15 students will be selected from a pool of applicants referred to CSI by the Idaho Job Services Office. The applicants, Glenn says, must have sound "existing secretarial skills and have the personal goal of becoming a word-processor."

The students then will be put through an intensive six-week, eight-hour-a-day training program at an off-campus, store-front site in the Blue Lakes Mall. Anyone interested in the program will be invited to drop by and view the seminars in progress.

While the students are being trained, selected representatives of the 15 area businesses participating in the program will attend evening seminars to help them better understand the information management systems.

Businesses that will participate in the program include Idaho First National Bank, Tupperware and Acme Manufacturing, Glenn says. The Want businesses to help

Milner Bridge project backers ask for cash

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Backers of a new Milner Bridge will seek an estimated $50,000 to $60,000 from private interests to help pay for the project.

That word — announced Monday — means that the three counties involved in the project, would not contribute directly to the replacement bridge. And the two highway districts involved would construct approaches to the bridge as their share of the project cost.

Officials representing Twin Falls, Jerome and Cassia counties, and the Murtaugh and Hilldale highway districts agreed that proposal last week, citing strained county revenues. They're optimistic that businesses will support the venture because the bridge serves as an important farm-to-market link between Burley and Murtaugh.

"Based on the initial response we have had coming from some of the businesses, I don't think it's going to be much of a problem," says Gerald Martens, a Jerome engineer who is working with the officials.

Among the companies targeted for contributions are the Twin Falls and North Side canal companies, the J.R. Simplot Co., Ore-Ida Foods Inc. and the Amalgamated Sugar Co.

"All of the people contacted indicated a desire to see the project go forward," Martens says.

Martens says that some businesses already have made commitments toward the project, but he declined to elaborate.

Officials will approach businesses for pledges within the next four weeks. They will review their progress when they meet again in late April.

The county and highway officials involved want to replace the 70-year-old bridge, which links Twin Falls and Jerome counties across the Snake River, about a half-mile downstream from Milner Dam, and about a half-mile from the Cassia County line.

Deterioration of the one-lane, 240-foot-long bridge has led to a 10-ton load limit, forcing some traffic to take a 15-mile detour. The bridge also is inundated during high-water periods, and that causes further deterioration, not to mention making the bridge impassable during those times of the year.

Federal funds, which would pay for 80 percent of the bridge's estimated $430,000 replacement cost, are available. With the highway districts' work, county officials must raise $50,000 to $60,000 as their share of the project.

The reluctance of county officials to earmark money toward the project reflects the strained finances of many county governments.

"We're trying not to spend county revenues because we don't know what's going to happen with PILOT," the federal payment-in-lieu-of-taxes program, says Ann Cover, the chairman of the Twin Falls County commission and a member of the committee that is studying the bridge replacement. "We feel that we just can't afford it."

County officials are concerned about the future of the federal program, which provides them with revenues in lieu of property taxes on tax-exempt federal lands. All three counties are heavily dependent on that program.

Cover says that private businesses could contribute to the project in phases, over the course of three fiscal years.

The reluctance of county officials to provide scarce dollars for the project is not necessarily a setback for the project, Martens says. The pledge drive will not delay the project, which could begin construction within two years, he says.

"I don't think it's a setback at all. I think it's moving as fast as a project involving this many entities can possibly move," he says.

None of the county officials have rejected providing county funds outright at a later date, he says. But the officials want to pursue private funding first, and the businesses have been supportive.

YFCA files its annual report, organization is in sound shape

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Although less than a dozen persons were in attendance, Magic Valley YFCA leaders said at the annual membership meeting Monday evening that the organization is on solid ground.

The purpose of the meeting was to inform the general membership about the status of the Young Families Christian Association — and ask for any suggestions.

Jim Tarter, the YFCA board president, told members that the facility's standing is "very solid."

But it was not always so. About two years ago, the Twin Falls building closed because of financial troubles. After a fund-raising drive, the building re-opened last year. And the organization has grown from the ground up, its leaders say.

Dan Anderson, from the Y's finance committee, said that despite a $13,700 deficit last year, the organization's future is bright.

Under executive director John Eschenburg's guidance, the building is being used by other groups. Also, there is now an effective control of expenses, Anderson said.

"We are current on bills" and older debts are on their way to being paid, Anderson said. This year, the Y plans to "break even."

Overall, he said, the financial picture is sound.

Steven Hartgen, from the marketing committee, said that his group is checking into ways to take marketing advantage of the closing of the city pool at Harmon Park. The fact that the Y has a sizable pool could be used in promoting the organization.

Concerning membership, it was reported that there are now 608 members. That is the largest and most active number of members in the recent history of the Y, Tarter said.

The membership grew to the present figure from "zero" membership of a year ago, when the Y was closed, said Deck Waters, of the membership committee.

The committee's goal is to increase membership by 10 percent, he said.

Building and grounds committee chairman Mel Parker told the gathering that the building has come a long way from the disaster of two years ago. But there is still more to be done, such as adding gravel to the east parking lot and fixing light and shower fixtures.

He reported that $20,000 worth of equipment has been installed in the exercise room, and it is receiving "great usage." Also, a $9,000 Jacuzzi has been added near the pool area.

In the area of programs, board member Donna Stalley said that the present programs have gone from no participants to waiting lines. And the once-empty building is now filled, so much so that parking spaces are hard to find.

One of the proudest achievements, she said, is the gymnastics classes, with enrollment exceeding 170 young people.

The building is being used by a broad range of people, from businessmen to senior citizens, Tarter said. Previously, the main use came from youths.

As for the future, the new planning committee has proposed seeking endorsements for funding and creating five-year financial and building plans to guide the organization, Tarter said.

Deputies raise funds, aid wounded officer

By MARTY TRILLHAASE

TWIN FALLS — Sheriff's deputies have launched a fund drive to help the family of Bob Gauthier.

Gauthier was shot in the back last week while responding to a family dispute in Filer.

A Magic Valley Regional Medical Center spokesman said the 39-year-old Gauthier remained in fair condition at the hospital on Monday.

But the condition of 63-year-old Fred Miller of Filer, the alleged assailant, worsened. Miller was listed in serious condition Monday. He remained in the hospital's intensive-care unit.

"Anyone wanting to assist the Gauthier family in any way could donate in the name of Bob Gauthier to the Twin Falls Sheriff's Association, and that money would be going to the family to assist them in this time," Sheriff Jim Munn said Monday.

Gauthier and his wife, Barbara, are the parents of five children. They live in Buhl. Munn says that health insurance and workman's compensation will cover Gauthier's medical bills and expenses.

"But there are unforeseen expenses that the family has to go through at a time like this," Munn says. "This is to cover the extra expenses that they incur through this situation, to take care of extra things that they have to do — travel, extra care of the children, etc."

Munn says that some donations already have arrived, but he said the money has not been counted.

The shooting occurred Thursday when Gauthier responded to an apparent family dispute at the Miller home, located in a mobile-home park on the west edge of Filer.

A Filer police officer, Kevin Davis, returned the fire, wounding Miller.

No charges had been filed against Miller as of Monday. And the man responsible for the investigation into the shooting, Twin Falls police Chief Tim Qualls, said the timing of such charges depends on the medical condition of the two men.

"We'll look at it again the first of next week," Qualls said. "Charges are being considered at this time and most likely will be filed."

Qualls entered the case at the request of Filer police Commissioner Ron Stoksberry and Munn. The reliance on outside police agencies to conduct independent investigations into incidents involving police officers is a standard procedure.

Health Fair attendance slightly behind last year's mark

TWIN FALLS — The second annual Twin Falls Health Fair drew some 970 Magic Valley residents to the College of Southern Idaho gym last weekend.

The two-day attendance was "a little less" than the 1,000 people estimated to have attended last year's fair, said Karin Siplon, the director of CSI's nursing program.

Siplon said the most popular booths this year were the vision, pulmonary function, glaucoma and blood-pressure test sites, and the 21-hour diet analysis.

Waiting lines were shorter at this year's fair, Siplon said, due to better organization and more booths.

Rupert also staged a health fair on Saturday, which attracted more than 400 people, according to Mary Bell Anderson, the educational coordinator at Minidoka Hospital.

"It was a big success," Anderson said. "This was our first fair, and at least 400 people came through. We are quite excited."

Anderson says the blood chemistry, respiratory, diabetic and vision test sites were the most popular booths.

Meanwhile, three more health fairs still are scheduled for this spring in the Magic Valley area.

Two of these fairs will be held Saturday, April 9, in Burley and Glens Ferry. The Burley fair will be held at the Ponderosa Inn from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The Glens Ferry fair will be held at Glens Ferry High School from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The Glens Ferry fair will feature short courses in breast self-examination taught by nurse practitioners. An average of one in 11 women contract breast cancer, says Sheila Bungard, a registered nurse who will help conduct the courses. The best defense against breast cancer, she says, is early detection.

The final Magic Valley health fair this year will be held in Hooten on May 7, at the Mormon Church, across from the Blaine County Medical Center.

Bond sharply cut in restaurant case

TWIN FALLS — A district judge on Monday slashed the bonds of two men arrested in connection with the strange closing of a Kimberly restaurant, after prosecutors agreed to the move.

But the drop in bail — from $5,000 to $1,500 — was not enough to secure the release of 19-year-old Tim Carey and 29-year-old Anthony Ordez, both of whom have listed their addresses as 1837 Sigrid Ave. in Twin Falls. The defendants, charged with grand theft-embodiment by lessee, remained in the county jail on Monday.

They are awaiting arraignment on the felony charges in Fifth District Court.

The men allegedly were found in possession of two stolen rental trucks and were arrested in Elko County, Nev. The trucks reportedly contained equipment taken from Pagliacci's restaurant, 190 N. Main St. in Kimberly, earlier this month. That equipment later was turned over to the restaurant's creditors.

Police are continuing to seek the restaurant's owner, John Savage, who faces assorted theft charges in Twin Falls and a gaming violation charge in Jackpot.

No charges stemming from the restaurant incident have been filed.

"We still have it under investigation," Kimberly police Chief James Campbell said Monday. "There's a lot of questions that we need answers to, and as soon as we make contact with Mr. Savage, I'm sure the questions that we have will be answered."

Savage is believed to be in the southern California area.

"We're trying to verify that information," Campbell said. "As soon as we can, hopefully, we'll be able to make contact with him."

Deputy public defender Kathy Eppel sought the lower bond for the defendants. She cited the defendants' lack of serious prior criminal records and the fact that they have ties to the community.

Deputy prosecutor Kandace Kemp agreed to the move. "In view of the fact that both he and the co-defendant have been helpful with the police," she did not elaborate.

Suspect pleads guilty to vet clinic break-in

TWIN FALLS — An admitted narcotics addict pleaded guilty Monday to charges that he burglarized a Twin Falls veterinarian clinic for drugs.

Jim Modrell, 29, of 410 Fourth Ave. E. in Twin Falls, faces serving up to 15 years in prison for the Feb. 16 burglary of the Twin Falls Veterinary Hospital, 260 Second Ave. S. Taken were narcotics, some of which could be used by humans.

He remained in the county jail Monday in lieu of $2,000 bail. Judge Daniel Meehl ordered a presentence investigation.

The defense intends to ask for a conditional probation that would allow Modrell to seek treatment. Prosecutors have agreed to recommend such a sentence, as part of a plea-bargain agreement.

Modrell, who said at one point that he suffered four cases of overdose in eight days, said he "desperately" needs the chance for such treatment.

In an unrelated case heard Monday, Meehl ordered a 34-year-old Boise man, who was convicted of fraudulently obtaining cough syrup containing codeine, to spend 120 days at the North Idaho Correctional Institute at Cottonwood. Idaho law restricts persons from obtaining the cough syrup more than once every 48 hours.

Meehl said he hoped the taste of prison life would provide Michael Claude Mayer with enough incentive to conquer what the defendant described as a "tenacious drug habit."

Panel stops job credit repeal

By MARK SHNEFFELT
United Press International

BOISE — Five Republicans and two Democrats banded together in a Senate committee Monday to topple a major revenue-raising proposal that would repeal the income tax break corporations receive for hiring new workers.

The bill, meant by its House authors to generate up to $6 million to help balance the fiscal 1984 state general fund budget, was ordered held in the Senate Local Government and Taxation Committee on a 7-3 vote.

In shelving the measure, which passed the House 55-12 last Tuesday, the Senate panel brushed aside one Republican's assertion that corporate tax breaks must be curbed so there will be enough revenue to cover state spending targets for the upcoming year.

Democratic Sens. Gary Gould of Pocatello and Terry Reilly of Nampa sided with Republicans Dane Watkins of Idaho Falls, William Moore of Hayden Lake, William Ringert of Boise, Atwell Parry of Melba and Wes Tronson of Wendell in approving Moore's motion to hold the bill.

Sen. Veal Crystal, R-Idaho Falls — receiving backing from Democrats Gal Bray of Boise and Vernon Lannan of Pineshurst — said the law should be repealed so the additional revenue could be used to balance the fiscal 1984 budget.

The committee first voted down on a 6-4 ballot a motion by Reilly to refer the bill to the Senate floor for consideration of amendments proposed by Boise Chamber of Commerce lobbyist Pete Skamser.

Skamser said the state would save $4 million in fiscal 1984, instead of $6 million, if lawmakers accepted his lightening amendments rather than the repeal proposal.

"There are some legitimate criticisms of the jobs-credit law, but we feel outright repeal is a very bad signal to send," Skamser said.

The business lobbyist said his group has been advertising the jobs credits as part of its campaign to entice industries to expand into Idaho.

Crystal said the law should be repealed because the state needs to recover the estimated $6 million it stands to lose annually if the measure remains intact, and because there are "too many loopholes and possible abuse" under the current law. Mrs. Bray contended that the jobs credits favor new industries and that established firms are forced to "subsidize" the tax breaks by taking over the new firms' share of the tax burden.

But Moore and Reilly, noting the state enacted the jobs-credit law only one year ago, argued it would be unfair and inconsistent to take it off the books so soon. Under the law, a corporation can receive a credit of $900 over three years for each newly hired worker.

A few hours before the Senate committee killed the jobs-credit repeal, the House passed another in its series of measures to increase state tax income from corporations.

On a 52-14 vote, representatives approved a bill to limit the interest deductions on the state income tax that can be claimed by multistate corporations.

The bill would generate about $2.5 million in additional revenue for the state, sponsoring Rep. Harold Reid, D-Craigmont, said.

The House first shot down on a 25-39 vote a motion by Rep. Rachel Gilbert, R-Boise, to delay final consideration of the bill for three days. She wanted the postponement so the House Revenue and Taxation Committee could hold a full-scale hearing on the bill.

Peavey says Watkins delays bills

By STEVEN CHRISTENSEN
United Press International

BOISE — Senate Democrats struck with "going-home fever" as the 1983 session entered its 78th day, made an unsuccessful attempt Monday to bypass committee action on a revenue-raising bill on the ground, the panel's chairman has been dragging his feet.

Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, said Idaho Republicans Dane Watkins, chairman of the Senate Local Government and Taxation Committee, has failed to act on the majority of revenue bills adopted by the House and sent to his panel.

"If we're going to get out of here, we've got to get going on some of these things," Peavey said in urging fellow lawmakers to pull the bill out of Watkins' committee and place it on the floor.

Peavey's effort died on a 14-21 party-line vote which saw Republicans side with the committee chairman.

The Democrat said Watkins has already been "called to the

SEN. JOHN PEAVEY
Wants to go home

woodshed" by Senate leadership for his alleged slow action on bills.

"On Friday there wasn't a single bill on your agenda which dealt with the general fund," he said to Watkins. "Today you have one bill dealing with the general fund, and it's on the bottom of your agenda."

The bill prompting Peavey's criticism would limit loss-carrybacks by businesses on state tax forms. The measure, expected to earn $2.5 million for the state next year, cleared the House on March 15 and was assigned to Watkins' committee the next day.

"This is a going-home vote," Peavey said. "We are either going to have to pull that bill out of committee today, or two weeks from today."

But Watkins said his panel has worked diligently to examine revenue measures adopted in the House. He also said the committee wanted to see the bulk of those proposals before taking action.

"We're trying our best to handle the legislation," Watkins said in asking colleagues to "let the committee system work."

Senate President Pro Tem James Risch, R-Boise, said he understands "the frustration of both sides" in the dispute.

Prisons gain in budget battle

BOISE (UPI) — The acting director of the Idaho Corrections Department broke into a broad smile Monday when the Legislature's budget-setting committee decided to recommend the agency receive more funding in fiscal year 1984 than its officials had expected.

"I'm smiling for an obvious reason," Mike Mitchell said moments after the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee voted to recommend that Corrections receive $12,470,400 for the upcoming fiscal year.

"It's more than we requested to operate our basic programs," he said, adding, "The (House and Senate) judiciary committees are picking up on our legislation, and they seem to be more excited about these issues than ever before."

The department had hoped to win approval of an $11,332,000 budget for FY '84. That sum would have allowed the agency to meet its increased operating costs next year and add six workers at the Farm Dormitory Compound for inmates.

However, agency officials also listed as funding options $480,000 to establish a new work center for convicts and $103,800 to hire four additional staff employees in Probation and Parole. They also told the committee it would cost at least $600,000 to open the new women's incarceration facility at Orofino on schedule.

Usually fiscal committee members endorsed the work center and the extra Probation and Parole workers. They also approved $350,000 for the Orofino Institution — a move which Mitchell said would postpone the facility's opening, but would still allow it to come on line next year.

The extra projects would be financed by an $11,452,000 dip into the general account. Department officials had expected $10,368,200 in general funds. The remaining dollars come from receipts on inmate-produced goods and other dedicated monies.

The generosity of JFAC was prompted by Mitchell's appeal for funding support in light of overcrowding at the state prison and a lawsuit filed on behalf of female inmates currently held at an institution in Cottonwood.

He said an average of 75 inmates are arriving at the penitentiary south of Boise each month, but only 60 are being released from an institution which is already seriously overcrowded.

"There were 914 inmates at the prison this morning, in a facility built to hold 720," said Mitchell, a former Democratic state senator from Lewiston who is filling in as Corrections chief while the search continues for a permanent director.

Senate alters Medicaid bill

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate approved new amendments to a bill Monday in an effort to break a legislative stalemate on a measure requiring that relatives of Medicaid recipients in Idaho nursing homes pay part of the costs of providing care.

Under terms of the original proposal, relatives of nursing home patients receiving Medicaid would be obligated to contribute between $35 and $250 monthly to that care. The amount of the payment would be based on the relative's income.

Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, said the first amendment would limit a relative's obligation to no more than 25 percent of the monthly Medicaid expense incurred by the patient.

2. Malicious harassment (S.B. 1020) Would provide that property damage or threats of violence based on a philosophy of discrimination is a crime, subject to prosecution as a felony. House amendments to the bill passed the Senate on March 24, 28-5, with two absent, and sent to the governor.

3. Denturists (S.B. 1040) Would amend the denturists' initiative to make technical changes to be consistent with the Idaho code. Passed the Senate on March 24, 20-12, with three absent, and sent to the House.

4. Higher education (S.B. 1118) Would establish authority for the State Board of Education to prescribe courses and programs for Idaho's four-year colleges. Passed the Senate on March 21, 19-15, with one absent, and sent to the House.

5. Commodity dealers (H.B. 24) Would stiffen the laws that govern the operations of commodity dealers purchasing produce from farmers. Passed the Senate on March 23, 27-4, with four absent, and sent to the governor.

6. Abortion (H.B. 75) Would exclude insurance coverage for elective abortions from policies, except where specifically purchased as an addition by the insured party. Passed the Senate on March 22, 28-7, and sent to the governor.

Senators want Swan Falls bill changed

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — Two separate drives were launched Monday in the Senate to replace a House bill that is designed to resolve the complex Swan Falls water-right dispute.

Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, is proposing a new bill, even though he helped draft the original — House Bill 304 — which passed the House last week and has been forwarded to Noh's Resource and Environment Committee.

"The main reason I'm considering a new bill is that it's the easiest way to incorporate two compromises that Idaho Power has requested, and to correct a couple of technical errors in House Bill 304," Noh said.

Meanwhile, a second drive has been started by several legislators who agree with Idaho Power's stand that House Bill 304 should be split into two separate bills, so the major provisions can be voted on separately.

"It seems to me we ought to first clear up these people's water rights that have been placed in question," said Sen. Walter Yarbrough, R-Grand View, the chairman of the Senate State Affairs Committee. "Then, we can let legislators vote separately on the question of subordination as a second bill."

The debate comes in response to an Idaho Supreme Court decision four months ago. In the decision, the court said that Idaho Power's water right at Swan Falls Dam on the Snake River takes precedence over upstream development.

Since recent agricultural expansion apparently has depleted the flow of the Snake River below what the utility's water right grants it, the water rights of about 8,000 of the most recent water users in southern Idaho have been placed in jeopardy.

House Bill 304 would attempt a solution through two provisions:

- It would grant Idaho Power protection from any Idaho Public Utilities Commission action if the utility signs a contract in which it acknowledges the rights of all existing users of Snake River water.

• It would subordinate the utility's water right at Swan Falls and Bliss dams to future upstream development.

These two provisions then are linked legally by a clause that provides that if one provision is struck down by the courts, the other provision becomes void as well.

"We still believe the two provisions are separate issues," Logan Lanham, an Idaho Power vice president, said following negotiations Monday with Noh and other legislators.

"Let's first settle those 8,000 people's water rights," he said. "Do it now. Let's not tie it in with the question of subordination, and possibly tie up those water rights for a long time."

Idaho Power is prepared to file suit against the 8,000 water users late this week, Lanham warned.

Idaho Power supports Yarbrough's plan to make subordination a separrate bill — one that Yarbrough speculates may not pass on its own. However, Yarbrough says that his committee probably will print any Swan Falls bill brought to it, and then forward the measures to Noh's committee for study.

However, Noh argues that the state's independent control of Snake River users can only be maintained through subordination and contractual agreements with Idaho Power to protect existing water uses. Otherwise, future uses of the Snake River — and the economic growth of southern Idaho — will "fall into the hands of a single, public utility," he says.

But in an attempt to gain more votes — and aid Idaho Power — Noh is proposing several changes to House Bill 304.

First, he would withdraw the non-severability clause, which Idaho Power officials have opposed.

A second change would be to increase the minimum stream flow at Swan Falls for two years, from 3,300 cubic feet per second to 5,400.

House fails to eliminate any tax exemptions

BOISE (UPI) — A package of alternative proposals to eliminate some or all of an estimated $204 million in state sales-tax exemptions withered and died Monday in the House Revenue and Taxation Committee.

All five bills unveiled to the panel failed to win enough support for introduction, and only one or two of the ideas contained in the package were even given a chance of getting a second hearing later in revised form.

After the committee gunned down the first four measures, the representative who was sponsoring the package withdrew the final proposal — one which would remove the exemption on yard and occasional sales.

"I can't support only this one exemption, that we eliminate the bloody yard sales," Rep. Chris Hooper, R-Boise, told the committee.

"The headlines are going to be there, that the Legislature really gets tough on the exemptions and cracks down on yard sales."

Hooper, who headed a House subcommittee's study into the network of sales-tax exemptions, said deleting the yard-sales exemption while leaving all others intact would be unfair.

"We started out with $204 million and now we're down to $2 million (the revenue available from taxing yard sales)," Hooper said.

However, under the committee's direction, the yard-sales exemption proposal measure may return in altered form later, along with a rewritten version of a proposal which would remove the exemption on about $9 million in various out-of-state sales.

Governor's vetoes sustained

BOISE (UPI) — The Legislature Monday sustained vetoes of bills that would make it easier for fraternal organizations to obtain liquor licenses and give irrigation districts a better chance of being exempted from contributing to the state Unemployment Fund.

In the House, many members of the Republican majority found themselves in the unusual position of voting to sustain a veto by Democratic Gov. John Evans.

An attempt by the lower chamber to override the governor's nullification of the liquor bill died on a 20-50 ballot — 27 votes short of the necessary two-thirds majority.

Rep. Lyman Winchester, R-Kuna, and Ernest Hale, R-Burley — tireless critics of legislation aimed at loosening restrictions against the consumption of liquor — both sided with the governor on the veto question. Winchester, a sixth-term legislator, said Evans wrote him a letter of thanks on the only previous occasion on which he voted to sustain one of the chief executive's vetoes.

"I hope he writes me another one this time," Winchester said. In his veto message Monday, Evans said the provision aimed at allowing fraternal organizations to bypass standard population-based liquor-license limitations went "far beyond" a justifiable loosening of the law.

"The definitions of clubs which would qualify for new 'club' liquor licenses would extend far beyond what we traditionally think of as fraternal organizations," Evans said. "Because of the breadth of this definition, I fear this bill would invite an unacceptable proliferation of liquor licenses."

The House passed the liquor bill 42-18 on Feb. 9 and senators added their approval on a 23-12 vote on March 10.

Rep. Tom Cushman, R-Horseshoe Bend, urged the House to override the veto on the grounds that lawmakers in both legislative chambers were "sandbagged" on the bill by the state Law Enforcement Department.

Cushman claimed that agency attorneys persuaded the Senate to attach complex amendments to the bill only after Cushman attacked a different bill that was supported by the department.

In a party-line vote Monday, the Senate sustained Evans' veto of a bill which would have granted state unemployment fund exemptions to irrigation districts which supply water "primarily" for agricultural use.

Getting second opinion vital

DEAR ABBY: My doctor, who is also a surgeon, tells me I need an operation for gallstones. I've had gallbladder troubles off and on for many years, but I hate to have surgery at my age. (I am 71.)

You always say, "Get a second opinion," but I have had the same doctor for many years and don't know any other. So where do I go for a second opinion? I like my doctor and don't want to get him mad at me. Thanks for any help you can give me.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

DEAR NEEDING: Getting a second opinion is a common practice that most doctors encourage, so don't be afraid to tell your doctor you want one.

To find another specialist in your area, ask your doctor, or call the government's Second Surgical Opinion Hotline. The toll-free number is 1-800-638-6833. In Maryland, call 1-800-492-6603.

If you do decide to go ahead with the operation, you will be asked to sign a statement giving consent for the operation. It's important to discuss all your concerns about your condition and the operation with your surgeon before you sign anything. Don't hesitate to ask these questions:

1. What are the chances of survival WITHOUT the operation?

2. What are the chances of survival WITH the operation?

3. Are there other forms of treatment that could be tried before surgery?

4. How much will the operation cost? And will my insurance cover all the costs, including special tests?

5. How much experience has the surgeon had with this particular operation?

6. What percent of the operations were successful? "

7. How will the operation affect my health and lifestyle? Are there any activities I will not be able to do after surgery? Above all, be sure an operation is necessary and that the benefits outweigh the risks before you agree to undergo surgery.

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote to our local newspaper stating that she was jogging in the street and was almost hit by an automobile. Then she urged that DRIVERS watch out for joggers to avoid hitting them.

Why? People who are stupid enough to jog in the street surely know they are taking their lives in their hands. There are plenty of parks and side streets for joggers to run in without using the main roads and public streets. But in this town there are hundreds of these show-offs puffing alongside cars in heavy traffic, requiring the drivers to avoid hitting them.

In the past week I came close to hitting a couple of these health nuts at night on a main highway!

There ought to be a law!

FED UP IN MANSEFIELD, OHIO
DEAR FED: I agree. Address this matter to your city council. And while we're on the subject, how about the joggers who wear headsets? They wouldn't be able to hear an automobile until it sent them flying through the air. Most joggers are sufficiently intelligent to stay off the main roads and busy streets where they are forced to inhale carbon monoxide from passing vehicles.

Youth worried about father

DEAR DR. LAMB: My father has a big problem, although he won't admit it. He seems to have pains in his chest and abdomen. He has also been passing blood in his stools. He was a heavy drinker since age 16 but the only drinks beer now. He is 42, but he looks like he is 60.

He is also a chain smoker. He smokes two or three packs a day and he coughs all the time. He has gained a lot of weight.

I'm only 16 and not a doctor but I know something is wrong. He won't listen to my mother or me and I'm really worried about him. He reads your column so please lay it on the line. It may be his only chance.

DEAR READER: Your father should be impressed that you are sufficiently concerned to write for help. And if your description is accurate, he certainly needs plenty of it.

He may be having chest pains caused by heart disease. His heavy smoking and being overweight suggests a significant increase in the risk of either a heart attack or a stroke. Of course, cigarette smoking also causes lung disease, including chronic bronchitis, and that is the most likely cause of his cough. In time he may well develop cancer of the lungs.

The blood in the stools could be hemorrhoids, which are more likely in a person with liver disease that comes from too much alcohol. Anyone with blood in the stools needs an evaluation to check for possible cancer of the bowels.

A person such as your father can do a great deal to improve his health. By diet and exercise and not smoking, the risk factors related to both heart disease and cancer are greatly improved.

Ask your father to read The Health Letter 13-2, How to Measure Your Risk of Heart Disease, which I am sending you. It only covers part of his problems though. Others can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to be in the care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Your father probably has high cholesterol and high blood pressure if he is significantly overweight and overindulgent. It is important that he find out and do something about his status as soon as possible.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am a 55-year-old female and have hemochromatosis (too much iron in the blood). My doctor says the only treatment is drawing blood. I have given 17 pints of blood in 17 weeks and my blood builds back fast. I think this is too much too soon. Is there any other treatment?

DEAR READER: There are a few rare individuals who inherit the tendency to have increased absorption and storage of iron. In other in-

Vegetable 'cover up' brings spring early

By RICHARD DeLANO
Chicago Sun-Times

Spring can come at least a month early by using garden this year. Use a modern version of the cold frame. It's "The Great Vegetable Cover-Up," a portable, 2-by-16 foot greenhouse.

Here's how it works: Spade or work up the soil. Mark out the dimensions of the cover-up on the soil. Then sow your seed or set out started plants.

Next, push the bendable metal hoops in the soil. Drape the special plastic over the hoop and hold down the edges with soil or rocks.

The plastic has scientifically positioned slits for ventilation on each side of this miniature quonset greenhouse. While allowing ventilation, the slits are small enough also to allow heat retention on a frigid spring evening.

The structure is stored for fall use when the night temperature exceeds 70 degrees.

Other good plastic and hoop structures can be improvised, but the Great Vegetable Cover-Up works especially well because of the ventilator slits. The reusable unit sells for about $12.

These portable greenhouses allow you to have your cake and eat it too. You have the advantage of warm spring days, yet are protected from destructive frosts that always develop this early in the season.

As an experiment, I'm placing a few of these structures over my perennial beds. I hope they will encourage earlier blooming without risk of frost to the expanded tender shoots.

For something else different, start seed of broccoli and cabbage directly in the soil under the greenhouse. As they emerge, transplant them to a regular 12-inch spacing.

Endive can also be sown directly into the garden soil under the greenhouse. Other vegetables for sowing now are lettuce, onions from seeds or sets, parsley, peas, radishes, spinach and turnips.

Without benefit of the greenhouse, plant asparagus crowns or seeds and rhubarb roots. In fact, the season for growing these perennial vegetables is nearly an end.

All trees can be planted now. For the most pleasure, I recommend cherry trees. Sour cherry trees in dwarf sizes, such as Suda Hardy, North Star, and Meteor, do not need a male, as they are self-pollinating.

This is also a fine time to plan a new flower garden. A new book, "Theme Gardens," Barbara Damrosch, $10.95 paper, $19.95 hardcover, discusses how to develop 16 different themes, like an old rose garden or a Colonial garden. The 192-page book has 400 color illustrations.

Particularly helpful is an appendix giving sources of the plants described, additional references, and in some instances, specialist clubs dealing in detail with the theme.

New adoption cuts conventional fears

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — With barely a year of life behind her, Sarah is still getting to know the three most important people in her life — her birth mother and her adoptive parents.

Before Sarah was born, her mother, Gloria, knew she could not adequately provide for the child growing inside her. Adoption was the only answer, even though traditional procedures meant estrangement and a lifetime of painful curiosity.

But new adoption procedures developed by the Lutheran Social Service of Texas, now guarantee Sarah and Gloria will have a relationship.

"Sarah's adoptive parents could not be happier with the agency's new ways.

"She'll know who I am," Gloria said. "I couldn't take care of her and it's much easier to live with. I'll always know she's somewhere."

That somewhere will be with Nancy and Terry, an infertile San Antonio couple who took custody of Sarah when she was 10 days old. Gloria herself picked them.

"She (Gloria) is part of the extended family," said Nancy. "She is a member of Sarah's family."

Kathleen Silber of the Lutheran Social Service, which arranged the adoption, says the new, open concept is solving many of the problems and frustrations of traditional adoption procedures that end all contact between child and birth parents.

"In closed adoptions, there is a fear of the unknown, a fear that the birth mother is waiting in the shadows to grab the child," said Mrs. Silber. "It takes a load off their (adoptive parents) shoulders to hear that there will be no interference."

In the open program, Sarah not only will know who her real mother is, but why she was adopted. In later years, she will not be nagged with the questions: "Who do I look like? Why was I given up?"

Mrs. Silber said the secrecy of closed adoptions often leads to communication breakdowns between adoptive parents and their children, who mistake their parents' apprehension and fear for dark mysteries that do not exist.

She said the myths of adoption are the necessity of secrecy, the stigma of illegitimacy and infertility and the fear that the mother eventually will forget about her child.

"But they never forget," Mrs. Silber said, "and too many adopted children are in therapy."

Open adoption banishes the fear and anxiety by answering children's questions and providing varying degrees of contact between birth parents and the child they gave up.

The open concept allows different degrees of contact, ranging from a single letter from birth mother to adopted child to periodic visits and regular letter exchanges.

The process also gives more responsibility in the adoption process to the birth mother by allowing her to choose the adoptive family.

"Even if it's just one letter, they are better able to answer the child's questions," said Mrs. Silber. "The bottom line is good mental health for the kids."

Open adoption includes seminars that prospective adoptive parents must attend. Later, face to face meetings are arranged between the birth mother and the adoptive parents.

Their last names are not used.

"Both are scared," Mrs. Silber said. "The birth mother is scared of what they will think of her, but the parents are nervous, too. So far every single family has lost their fears. It's a beautiful experience to lose that fear."

At this writing, the Lutheran Social Service has used the open concept in placing 75 children in Texas. That number is expected to increase dramatically.

Nancy and Terry were so pleased that they decided to contact the mother of Drew, a child they had adopted earlier through the traditional closed system.

"We wrote three times. We felt that she wouldn't accept us and might want him back," Nancy said. "But she wrote back and we have complete peace. She saw from our pictures how happy he is. We've kept in correspondence and exchanged first names."

Robbie and Mike, another infertile San Antonio couple, adopted Haley through the open concept before the little girl was even born.

"We didn't know about the (open concept) option but it made a lot of sense," Robbie said. "We tried to put ourselves in the child's future. If we hadn't had the option, I think we would have sought out the information ourselves. We've met both (of Haley's birth) parents. It's important they keep in touch."

Mike and Robbie already are teaching Haley to say her prayers, which includes blessings for her birth parents.

"We've got to remember that when the time is right we'll educate her," Mike said. "It's a gradual process. The older and more mature, the more information (we'll give)."

Haley will know her parents, he said, because "it's her birthright."

It's colored legs this spring

By ALICIA ELLISON
Baltimore Evening Sun

BAITIMORE — The leg is stepping out this spring in colors from soft pastels to the bright hues of 1983 such as red, fuchsia, magenta, purple, bright blue and green.

Fashion agents back from the shows of new fall clothes in and around Paris—tell stories of the miniskirt making it big again, mostly with the young. A result is colorful hosiery, especially the carnival brights, to be worn with all skirt lengths.

New hosiery colors are already being seen. Baltimore area merchants agree that colored hosiery coordinated with another accessory, especially this season's highly important belt, can change the look and mood of a dress or suit.

Fashion people agree the new minis have been designed to attract the very young. But the intent of designers and manufacturers may not: in fact, quell the enthusiasm for short, short skirts.

Pat Toggart, of Hess Shoes, believes many women will wear colored hosiery, and it won't depend upon whether the skirt is long or short.

"The key to dressing in fashion colors," says Toggart, "is don't be afraid to move colors around this spring/summer so long as we don't attempt using six or eight colors at once. It's important to know how to use one color with another, especially since the fashion hosiery isn't just for special occasions anymore."

Toggart claims the idea of coordinating colors "is to enhance a look, to create a feeling of continuity and completeness, a finished look."

Brenda Tillman, vice president and fashion director of Kayser-Roth/Burlington in New York, says, "Women will be experimenting with color on the leg, some for the first time, the first step being a natural move to all the season neutrals. Those who have experienced this classification will be ready for the calypso and carnival brights. When we see brights utilized as an accent in ready-to-wear, it becomes natural to accent the leg with the same bright color. Watch the brights for the more forward fashion woman."

In view of the many individual ways of interpretation with color and design, Sara C. Maness, consumer relations specialist for Kayser-Roth Hosiery in Burlington, N.C., assures those who might be interested in experimenting with the new colors that manufacturers make all kinds of panty hose.

For example, there are all-nude pantyhose; reinforced panty and toe pantyhose; control tops; support, both firm and extremely sheer and fashion pantyhose.

Says Maness, "It's a good idea to have a pantyhose wardrobe—ultrasheers (in colors) for those really dress-up occasions and less sheer ones for work and other activities."

Tillman confirms that the way women are dressing they've outgrown a limit of eight to 10 fashion colors to choose from. This season her company alone is offering 28 colors in basic sheer hues, the type most women will select for dress.

Sutton collects $126,000 first prize at TPC

POINTE VEDRA, Fla. (UPI) — Hal Sutton figured he was wasting his time watching the leader board in the final round of the Tournament Players Championship because it was changing too fast to keep up with.

"When I looked at it at No. 9 and saw I was tied with three others and only a stroke ahead of another three, I told my caddy I was just going to worry about my own score and hope it would be good enough at the end."

It was, by day's end, Sutton had come out of the pack Monday to overtake John Cook and win the prestigious TPC and its four-record $126,000 prize.

"I really don't know what to say," Sutton commented. "People like Jack Nicklaus and Ray Floyd are my idols and it just felt good to know that one time in my life I was able to beat them. I don't know whether I'll ever do it again."

Sutton was just being modest. Although the former U.S. Amateur champion from Louisiana is in only his second season as a touring pro, he already has won more than $400,000.

Cook, who needed only a par at the final hole to force Sutton into a playoff, was downcast after taking a double bogey instead.

"There's not much to say," said Cook. "I hit one bad shot — and it cost me. I guess I lost my concentration. I was trying to hit a low fade into the center of the fairway, but I got a little quick with it and it went into the water."

"I really felt bad John hit into the water like that," Sutton said. "But, at the same time, I knew I had won the tournament."

Sutton, who will be 25 next month, started the rain-delayed final round of this $700,000 tournament tied for seventh, four strokes behind third-round leader Cook, and won by shooting a closing 3-under-par 69 for a four-round total of 5-under 283.

Sutton and Cook appeared headed for a sudden-death playoff when Sutton bogeyed the final hole, but Cook suffered a double bogey on a final hole to wind up with a 3-over-par 75 and the final of 3-under 285 that left him in a three-way tie for third.

"It's a dream come true," said Sutton, whose only other victory on the PGA Tour was when he won the Walt Disney World Golf Classic last fall by beating Bill Britton in a playoff. "It still hasn't hit me."

"I told myself before I went out today I was going to play aggressive, but I was going to be patient. I was going to let the chips fall where they may."

Cook, a U.S. Amateur winner himself, started the final round in the tournament, twice delayed by rain, with a one-stroke lead over Bobby Clampett and a two-stroke lead over Vance Heafner.

At the end Sutton had a one-stroke lead over runnerup Bob Eastwood, who shot a 69-284 to earn a whopping $75,000, and Cook shared third with John Mahaffey, who shot a closing 5-under-par 67 for the best round in the tournament, and Bruce Lietzke, who had a 71.

Lietzke, whose brother-in-law, Jerry Pate, won last year's TPC but had to withdraw from this one because of a neck injury, led at the end of the first round which had been delayed from Thursday to Friday by rain and Cook led the next two.

Sutton, an All-America golfer at Centenary College, came on the tour in January, 1982 after qualifying the previous fall. He had eight top 10 finishes last year and so far this year has made the cut in nine of 10 starts. The huge prize he won Monday raised his earnings for this year to $171,000, vaulting him to the top of the PGA money list.

Five strokes back when Cook birdied the first hole Monday, Sutton quickly caught up by running off three straight birdies as Cook hit into the water at No. 4 and suffered a double bogey.

At that point, Ben Crenshaw, who had gone 6-under for the tournament by getting an eagle on No. 2 and a birdie at No. 4, led Sutton and Cook by a stroke. But Crenshaw, who was to fade completely out of the battle for first place later in the round, dropped back with a double bogey at No. 5.

Everyone was having trouble with the front nine on the Tournament Players Club course, rated the toughest on the PGA tour, and Sutton and Cook shared the lead with Clampett and Crenshaw at the turn. Sutton and Cook both birdied the 10th hole and stayed neck to neck until Sutton took his first solo lead of the tournament with a birdie at the water-surrounded 71st hole.

He tried to play it safe on the final hole, but came up too short and then missed a 10-foot par putt. Cook gambled and got into even more trouble — hitting into the water and taking four strokes to reach the green on the par-4 hole.

Cook, Lietzke and Mahaffey all got $36,400 from the richest purse ever offered on the regular tour. Heafner had a closing 74 and wound up tied for sixth at 286 with Doug Tewell.

Fd Flori was tied with Sutton and Cook only two holes from the end after running off three birdies in four holes but wound up at 171-287 and tied with Curtis Strange after suffering double bogeys on each of the last two holes. Three-time champion Jack Nicklaus, only golfer to win the TPC more than once, was unable to repeat the 68 he scored in the third round and finish at 74-291.

NCAA tourney's four survivors get ready for Albuquerque

By United Press International

Ideally, when it comes down to a championship game, it's a spectator's delight when you have the top two teams competing.

And so it will be a natural when No. 1 Houston and No. 2 Louisville clash at Albuquerque, N.M., Saturday, in the NCAA Championships. Unfortunately, though, their showdown comes in the semifinal game rather than the final.

The other semifinal pairing was as predictable as Georgia and North Carolina State, with 19 losses between them, rode a series of upset victories to claim their berths.

The Wolfpack finished 14th in the final UPI rankings while Georgia was No. 15.

"I guess the 'Destiny Kids' are going to collide," Georgia Coach Hugh Durham said. "We (the coaches) already had tickets. We told the guys, 'We'd really like you to be going with us.'"

Houston, the regular season national champion currently sporting a 30-2 record, expects to be greeted with a full court press from Louisville, but this doesn't concern the Cougars. Villanova came out with a press to start the second half last Sunday and it promptly backfired as Houston quickly doubled its 10-point halftime lead.

"We haven't been bothered by the press all year," said Houston Coach Guy Lewis. "You press us and we'll get it down the court and stuff it on you. I told the guys that if they pressed us, we were going to take it to the basket."

One big problem for Louisville, 32-3, will be to forget about last Saturday's highly emotional 80-68 overtime victory over Kentucky in the first meeting between the schools in 24 years. But Cardinal Coach Denny Crum, saying he has no plans to change strategy, pointed out that his team will have almost a week to calm down and prepare for Houston.

"The pressure's on Houston," he said. "They were No. 1, ranked and they're supposed to win. When you're mentally ready and you've got the ability, you play well."

"It's going to come down to who plays our game. If it's not good enough we'll get beat — but that's nothing to be ashamed of. We just need to do well the game we do."

Houston, although appearing in the Final Four for the second year in a row, has only one senior in the starting lineup, 6-9 Larry Micheaux. The big man for the Cougars, if they are to succeed, is 7-footer Akeem Abdul Olajuwon.

"This is my last year and I try to pep up the guys," Micheaux said. "I always tell them they'll be back next year. I won't. This is it for me. I want to go out a winner. I guess they took my speech to heart against Villanova."

Micheaux scored a career-high 30 points against Villanova, combining with Olajuwon and guard Michael Young for 70 points — one less than the entire Villanova squad.

This will be North Carolina State's third appearance in the championship round, including a title-winning performance in 1974, and a carnival-like atmosphere has existed on the school's Raleigh campus since the Wolfpack won the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament.

NBA resumes talks with strike looming

NEW YORK (UPI) — Talks aimed at averting a scheduled Saturday night walkout by NBA players resume today with one league coach calling the idea of a strike "the height of stupidity."

Although the league would say only that negotiations will take place "this week," NBA Players Association general counsel Larry Fleisher said Monday the two sides would meet at an undisclosed New York location today.

The NBA announced that a three-hour session with the union was held Sunday. According to the league, Commissioner Larry O'Brien was part of the negotiating team. Others in attendance were executive vice president David Stern, general counsel Russ Granik, assistant-general counsel Gary Bettman, New York Knick president Jack Krumpal and New Jersey Net chairman Alan Cohen.

The NBAPA was represented by Fleisher, executive vice president Charles Granham and two members of the NBAPA Executive Committee — Bob Lanier and Junior Bridgeman of the Milwaukee Bucks.

Fleisher, who said the walkout would take place after the conclusion of Saturday night's eight-game schedule, refused to comment on the latest events other than to say, "It's positive if we talk."

The union has reportedly agreed to let management impose payroll caps on each team after next season if the owners are willing to establish a payroll minimum. Apparently the sticking point is the minimum amount to be paid out by each team for salaries.

Sunday's talks were the first since negotiations broke off last Thursday after only 20 minutes. Fleisher, angered by management's stance, maintained the league's bargaining stance was an attempt to eliminate free agency.

As the deadline nears, those around the league have begun preparing for a strike.

"I don't care what side you're on. If anyone just thinks of the consequences they'd realize in a second that a strike would be the height of stupidity," Boston Celtic Coach Bill Fitch said. "Nobody could possibly gain a blessed thing, even in the long run."

Fitch's boss, Celtic owner Harry Mangurian, is perplexed.

"I thought I understood (the players' position), but after all the owners flew into New York for this meeting (last Thursday) and Fleisher walked out, I liken it to a guy who kills the goose that's about to lay the golden egg."

Houston's Elvin Hayes, a 15-year NBA veteran, blames the owners.

"I didn't realize it would come to this," Hayes said. "Eventually we've always settled disputes in the past. We're not asking for any more. The owners have created this mess. They must unite and stop fighting because some teams can't compete. Some teams will survive, some will not."

Kansas City player rep Joe C. Meriwether believes the union would remain united if it strikes.

"I don't think they (management) will split us up," he said. "I think we will all be together. I don't think we should give back what we've worked for. Free agency is the main thing that will hurt a lot of guys."

Oscar Robertson, whose lawsuit gained freedom for the players in 1976, is hoping for a resolution of the problem.

Maybe Herschel Walker isn't so great

He is neither a tank like Earl Campbell nor a gazelle like Tony Dorsett.

By MICHAEL MADDEN
Boston Globe

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — This one is about reputation and reality — and the reputation of Herschel Walker. The reality that left out here Sunday in the rain of the New Jersey swamps proved the media can ride a falling star until it crashes at their feet — and still they wouldn't know what the pieces mean.

Analysis

Because so much of their hype is tripe, because so many of their empty, meaningless words foster empty, meaningless ideas, the media can type and videomac a reputation into posterity despite the reality. And no more so than in sports.

Herschel Walker is not that good a runner; a good runner, perhaps, a runner with the potential of a near-perfect body, of course, but he is not what you have been hearing and reading and seeing. Walker's reputation and reality are leap years apart and it will be some time, a long time, if ever, before he is a great runner.

Two plays. The Breakers had just tied the score at 21 with 4:51 left in the game and New Jersey took over for the drive that would test the character of the team and Herschel Walker. On the first play, Generals quarterback Bobby Scott dropped back and saw Walker cutting to the left sideline, no Breaker within 10 yards of him. Scott th...

Now forget the reputation; this is the reality. Walker had his back to the defense, so he didn't know the nearest Breaker was on the New Jersey Turnpike; all Walker could see was the ball maybe a foot or two in front of him. This had nothing to do with

The writer claims Herschel Walker falls too easily when hit

Walker being only 21 years old, nothing to do with Walker missing training camp, nothing to do with the Generals' offensive line. This was basic football — catch the damn ball. The ball came toward Walker and not only did Walker fall to step toward it, dive for it or reach for it, but he pulled his hands back just as the ball flew by him. He flinched, out-and-out flinched. He was expecting someone to hit him from behind and he didn't want to get hit. The pass fell incomplete. Herschel Walker pulled his hands back and flinched.

Two plays later, on a third-and-10, Scott handed off to Walker. ... play up the middle and he busts up the middle for nine yards before Terry Love, a defensive back, a 205-pound defensive back, hit Walker — but not hard — near Walker's hips

The ball flew forward into the arms of Boston's Joe Restic, the Breakers set up a winning field goal attempt and Tim Mazzetti calmly, and with character, knicked the 45-yarder good by 10 yards.

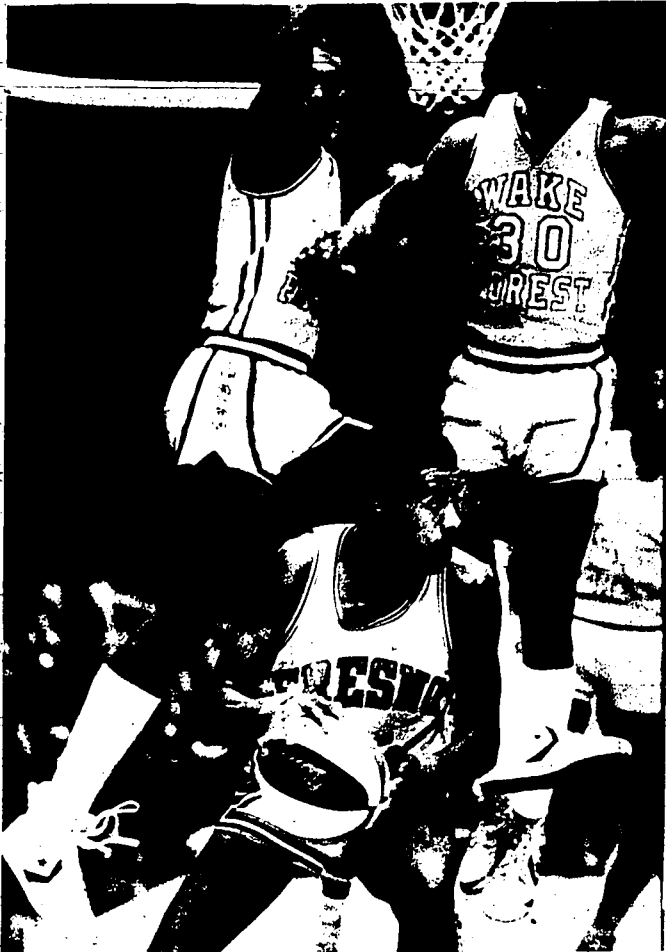

So you listened. You listened to the New York media point out Walker picked up 97 yards on 21 carries, how much better he looked than before, that this was his best game, and you listened to Walker say how he felt more comfortable. "I feel happy about the way I played," Walker said, "although it's a disappointment to me that I fumbled and we lost the game. But I felt more comfortable out there; I know 100 percent of the plays now."

You listened to Walker some more. You listened to Walker say he felt the Generals were coming together as a team, that he felt better, that "the holes were there before but I didn't know the blocking angles and I didn't know how to adjust out there. Now I feel more comfortable with the offensive line."

You heard that and you thought back to the sign New Jersey hangs from the mezzanine of Giants' Stadium. "Wanted," the message read. "Offensive Linemen Who Can Block for Herschel Dollars; It's A Maker of Life and Death." And you knew all of that was just the empty meaningless words of a reputation.

The reality is far different. Herschel Walker goes down easily — much too easily — when he's hit. Herschel Walker steps out of bounds rather than going for the extra two or three yards. Herschel Walker cannot avoid tacklers; every Breaker who could hit him did hit him — even in the open field — and never did they tackle all.

Worst of all, Herschel Walker does not like being hit and he takes little pitty-patty steps to avoid contact. He has the ideal big-and-tank runner's body, but he is neither a tank like Earl Campbell nor a gazelle like Tony Dorsett. That is reality.

Fresno State's Ron Anderson looks to maneuver as two Wake Forest players soar over him.

Fresno St. wins big Bulldogs walloped Wake Forest, 86-62; will confront DePaul in finals of NIT

NEW YORK (UPI) — The inside power game of Ron Anderson, who scored 24 points, and Bernard Thompson, who added 23, led Fresno State to an 86-62 rout of Wake Forest in a semifinal game of the National Invitation Tournament Monday night.

The Bulldogs, 24-10, will meet DePaul, 21-11, in the championship of the 46th NIT on Wednesday night. DePaul survived poor shooting and the loss of high scorer Tony Jackson to fouls with 7:23 remaining to post a 68-58 victory over Nebraska and move into the final.

With Thompson and Anderson scoring 10 points apiece, Fresno State moved to a 38-24 halftime lead. A 13-2 spurt midway through the second half gave the Bulldogs a 50-36 advantage and the Deacons never came within 10 points. Anderson scored 6 points and Thompson 4 in the run that put the game out of reach.

Barmore finished with 13 points and helped control the boards along with Anderson and Thompson.

Wake Forest, 20-12, got 16 points from Delaney Rudd and Anthony Teachey added 14.

In the second game, with Nebraska's David Hopper scoring all 15 of his points in the second half, the Cornhuskers came back from a 36-31 halftime deficit to tie the game 52-52 with 8:39 left.

Hopper scored 7 straight Nebraska points as the Cornhuskers outscored DePaul 7-2 in the game.

Jackson, who scored 16 of his 17 points in the first half, fouled out with 7:23 remaining and DePaul leading 55-52.

The Bulldogs never led on a scoring 9 of their final 12 points from the foul line, with Tyrone Corbin and Kenny Patterson each hitting 3 free throws.

Corbin, who scored 11 points in the second half, finished with 15 points and 14 rebounds and Bernard Randolph added 13 points for DePaul, which reached the NIT final for the third time and first since winning the title in 1945.

Jackson, a 6-foot-5 freshman, scored 9 points as DePaul scored 13 straight points to snap an 8-8 tie midway through the first half.

Nebraska outscored DePaul 10-3 to pull within 29-26 with 1:49 left in the half, but trailed by 5 at the half.

WAKE FOREST (UPI) — Rogers 23 1-3, Toms 23 3-4, Teachey 7 2-0, 14, Rudd 17 0-10, Young 19 2-4, Green 4 3-2 10, Gardner 1 2-10, Kopley 11 0-2, Davis 0 0-0, Warden 0 0-0, Karsenk 0 0-0. Total 87 20-42 12.

Caldwell man tops Jerome pro-am

JEROME — Caldwell amateur Gordy Crockett put together a four-under par 67 to lead all scorers Monday in the annual Jerome Country Club Pro-Am.

Crockett's closest competition came from Nampa professional Craig Palmer, who led the pro sweepstakes with a 69.

In team action, the Twin Falls Muni crew of professional Don Hamblin and amateurs Milo Pearson, Speck Leazer, Stan Detweiler and Ray Crumbliss successfully defended their title, although being tied by a Pocatello Country Club crew.

In the 12 and over handicap division, Milo Pearson, Twin Falls, was the green king at 7, two ahead of Bob Steele of Pocatello. Joe Aspitarte, Pocatello had an 82 and Twin Falls' John Leonetti posted an 85.

Troy Stone of Jackson was the net champ with a 61, followed by Jack Cox, Twin Falls, at 68, and Perc Petersen, Twin Falls, with a 69.

Palmer's 69 in the pro sweeps was followed by Bob Eames, Idaho Falls, 70; Roy Campbell, Boise, 71; John Peterson, Jerome, 72; and Bob Campbell, Twin Falls, 73.

At 122 were Boiseans Patrick Collins, Bill Thompson, Dennis Downer, Gus Schade and Craig Billings. Tied at 123 were the Elko team of professional Rick Lungnath and amateurs Bert Jones, Jack Hastings, Bert Elliott and Dan Urtarte, and the Twin Falls team of professional Bob Campbell and amateurs Doyle Dugger, Nick Hansen, Ace Hansen and Dan Webster.

Miller stands in 10th place Monday after one round of the PBA U.S. Open on the Pro Bowlers Tour.

In first place is Warren Nelson of Downey, Calif., who averaged 231 for 10th place and holds a 52-pin lead.

Another Idaho bowler, Jay Aono of Boise, is in 20th place with a total of 1,708 pins.

He led second-place Gary Skoldmore, Albuquerque, N.M., who totaled 1,706.

Completing the top five were: Sam Zurich, Huntington, N.Y., 1,797; Mark Baker, Garden Grove, Calif., 1,790, and all-time leading money winner Earl Anthony, Dublin, Calif., with 1,771.

A total of 56 games will be bowled this week to determine the five finalists for Saturday's nationally televised championship round. Top prize is $24,000.

Arizona woos Iowa cage boss

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — Iowa basketball Coach Lute Olson has been contacted by University of Arizona officials about the possibility of becoming their new coach, a Des Moines television station said Monday.

KCCI-TV said Olson was contacted immediately following Iowa's loss to Villanova Friday night in the NCAA Midwest Regional.

The station said Olson traveled to Tucson over the weekend to meet with Arizona's athletic director Cedric Dempsey. However, unofficial sources said the two sides were still working out the financial arrangements.

NBA honors Bullets' Ruland

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jeff Ruland of the Washington Bullets was named the National Basketball Association's Player of the Week Monday after leading his club to four victories.

Miller stands in 10th

OAK LAWN, Ill. (UPI) — Jerry Miller of Twin Falls stands in 10th place Monday after one round of the PBA U.S. Open on the Pro Bowlers Tour.

Miller totaled 1,744 pins for eight games, just 106 pins behind the leader.

Another Idaho bowler, Jay Aono of Boise, is in 20th place with a total of 1,708 pins.

In first place is Warren Nelson of Downey, Calif., who averaged 231 for 10th place and holds a 52-pin lead.

Nelson, a 25-year-old right-hander and two-time PBA champion, rolled games of 216, 223, 261, 222, 203, 267, 197 and 258 in his way to a round of 1,850.

He led second-place Gary Skoldmore, Albuquerque, N.M., who totaled 1,706.

Completing the top five were: Sam Zurich, Huntington, N.Y., 1,797; Mark Baker, Garden Grove, Calif., 1,790, and all-time leading money winner Earl Anthony, Dublin, Calif., with 1,771.

A total of 56 games will be bowled this week to determine the five finalists for Saturday's nationally televised championship round. Top prize is $24,000.

Denver tops Oakland in USFL game

DENVER (UPI) — Ken Johnson threw two touchdown passes and Harry Sydney scored from a yard out Monday night, leading the Denver Gold to a 22-15 U.S. Football League victory over the Oakland Invaders.

The Gold triumph came despite a furious Oakland air attack after the fourth quarter cleared in the third quarter.

The four-team Pacific Division is now led, with Arizona, Los Angeles, Oakland and Denver all showing 2-2 records.

The Denver pass rush stopped three Oakland drives in the first half.

Giants drop hurler Murakami

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (UPI) — Masanori Murakami, 38-year-old Japanese-born left hander, was told by San Francisco Giants general manager Tom Haller Monday that he had failed to make the club and was being given his outright release.

Murakami, who was one of the Giants' more dependable relievers during the 1964 and 1965 seasons, left them 16 years ago to pitch professionally in Japan and asked for and was given an opportunity to rejoin them this spring. That opportunity carried no guarantee he would be kept.

Garvey not only name performer to move
Star performers switch to new teams

NEW YORK (UPI) — It somehow doesn't look quite right. Steve Garvey in brown and gold?

It's kind of like Oleg Cassini wearing seersucker. After 12 years dressed in Dodger blue, Garvey is now clad in Padres brown...

Here's how Steve Garvey looks in his San Diego Padre garb

LeFlore returned to Chicago last week for a court hearing but the case was continued until April 4. He was arrested after police allegedly found in his apartment small amounts of controlled substances...

LeFlore also has played for the Montreal Expos, stealing 97 bases for them to lead the National League in 1980. He was Chicago's starting center fielder last year but lost the job to Rudy Law at midseason...

Boxing Pryor wants to hold title bout Saturday despite contract haggale

CINCINNATI (UPI) — World Boxing Association junior welterweight champion Aaron Pryor Monday urged an appeals court to permit his scheduled title defense Saturday, which is in jeopardy because of a contract dispute...

LeFlore also has played for the Montreal Expos, stealing 97 bases for them to lead the National League in 1980. He was Chicago's starting center fielder last year but lost the job to Rudy Law at midseason...

Pryor's attorney, Thomas Conlon, asked the Ohio First District Court of Appeals to reverse a ruling from a lower court that could halt Pryor's fight in Atlantic City against challenger Sang-Hyun Kim of Korea...

LeFlore returned to Chicago last week for a court hearing but the case was continued until April 4. He was arrested after police allegedly found in his apartment small amounts of controlled substances...

Jury selected for trial of top-ranked junior middleweight Ayala

PATERSON, N.J. (UPI) — A jury of nine women and seven men were selected Monday in the trial of top-ranked junior middleweight Tony Ayala, charged with raping and beating a 30-year-old woman whose apartment he allegedly broke into on New Year's Day...

Disintegrator designed to discourage garbage grubbers

By DAVID ZIZZO
United Press International

OKLAHOMA CITY — You may need a disintegrator without knowing it. Have you looked at your trash lately?

Chances are that a thief or an industrial spy or an investigator has. If you're in business or government, says Paul Nunn.

With reams of bank account information, computer data, medical records and other sensitive information going into the dumpster, a refuse snoper can cause considerable havoc, Nunn said.

"There are all kinds of people going through your trash all the time," he said. "You can't burn things anymore."

To foil the garbage grubbers, Nunn and partners Jim Curtis and dentist Jack McCallum have established Business Archives Inc., a record storage and disposal service.

For 10 cents a pound, BAI will feed documents and computer materials to its voracious disintegrator, which Nunn has dubbed the "Paper Pac Man."

"It just gobbles up everything," he explains.

Curtis said, "It's like one of those food processors, only on a bigger scale."

The monster muncher is superior to paper shredders, Nunn said.

"There's a yest difference. The disintegrator pulverizes the material much like the insulation you put in the top of your house," he said. "It makes it impossible to put back together."

Most major cities have similar disposal services, but Nunn said there are no "full-service" disposal firms in Oklahoma.

Local businesses keeping mounds of records for the mandatory five years must either destroy the documents themselves or haul them to disposal services, which may involve a trip of hundreds of miles, Curtis said.

BAI's storage facility already is in use, with the $150,000 disintegrator set to begin chomping documents this month. The machine can gobble about 2,500 pounds an hour, but Nunn expects to start it on a diet of about 4,000 pounds a day the first year.

About 40,000 square feet of the building will be used to store records for clients. One area will be temperature and humidity controlled for storage of computer materials.

Nunn said almost all businesses and government agencies would be prospective clients for the disintegrator.

"Banks, insurance companies, attorneys, maybe research people, aircraft people; any people who have records or documents they don't want any chance of anyone reproducing or reconstructing," he said.

Nunn said he surveyed businesses to determine the demand for such a service and "had a very good reception."

"I think most (businesses) tear up (old records) and put them in the waste basket. They're taking a chance," Nunn said. Many industrial spies sift garbage, he said.

"People go through trash cans looking for all kinds of information."

Nunn tells of one Oklahoma City bank that shredded its records, but left the notebook bindings intact. A thief apparently gleaned account numbers and names from the remnants of paper in the bindings and used them to cash forged checks.

A teller who knew the person whose name was being forged jotted down the thief's license number and he was caught, Nunn said.

The "Paper Pac Man" can digest bindings, paper clips, computer tapes and cartridges and all light metals.

BAI employees will quickly shuffle through documents to assure there are no combustible materials like cigarette lighters or any "horseshoes" that could give the pulverizer indigestion. Otherwise, documents will remain secret to the end.

"We don't care what it is," Nunn said.

Delaware becomes favorite location for some big banks

By STEPHEN J. MORGAN
United Press International

Delaware, long the litular headquarters for thousands of companies because of its liberal incorporation laws, also has become a favorite location for out-of-state banks.

On Feb. 18, 1981, Gov. Pierre S. D'Amore signed the Financial Center Development Act, which not only permitted out-of-state bank holding companies to set up banking and consumer credit operations in Delaware but made it attractive for them to do so.

It eliminated interest-rate and loan-fee ceilings on consumer loans and established a regressive tax structure.

With the FCDA, Delaware became the second state, after South Dakota, to open its borders to outside banks. In doing so it created more than 1,000 jobs, collected new tax dollars, diversified its economy and siphoned off business from nearby states.

In the past two years, 11 bank holding companies have taken advantage of the tiny state's financial hospitality, primarily for credit card operations but also for wholesale banking and cash management services. They include New York's five largest, four Maryland institutions and two Philadelphia concerns.

Two other out-of-state institutions have opened up shop via separate legislation. The F.F. Hutton & Co. brokers has set up a trust company, Girard Co., a Philadelphia bank holding company. In 1981 acquired Farmers Bank of the State of Delaware, now known as Girard Bank Delaware.

Lundberg sees gas price rise

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — For eight months gasoline prices have fallen nationwide, but oil industry analyst Dan Lundberg says the downward trend is tapering off and that is a strong indication of impending price increases.

Lundberg's latest nationwide survey of 17,000 stations showed that prices for all grades declined by less than a quarter of a cent in the last two weeks, compared to a penny a week since the beginning of the year.

"Lundberg said the slowdown of price cuts augurs higher prices as the oil industry tries to recoup revenues lost recent months."

"It's an indication an upward trend may be in the making," Lundberg said. "In the Rocky Mountain area, the retail price of gasoline has already climbed two-tenths of a cent."

Since last July, when retail gasoline prices began to fall because of stiff competition, the industry has lost $3.4 billion, Lundberg said. Since then the average price has fallen almost 15 cents a gallon.

Of that, a nickel was attributable to falling crude oil prices. The rest reflects a $2.3 billion sacrifice oil companies made in discounting prices for cash to alleviate the expense of credit-card processing, Lundberg said.

The overall loss to the industry has been partly reflected in 1982's fourth quarter earnings, he said, and further declines were recorded in the first quarter of 1983.

"A strong price increase may well be in the making," Lundberg said. "Because the price decline continued at a greatly accelerated rate January, February and March, the first quarter earnings this year are going to be far off."

"The oil industry will of necessity make a very strong turnaround from falling prices."

Aid plan starts

GREENWICH, Conn. (UPI) — The United Parcel Service has begun a program of granting awards to employees' children pursuing vocational or technical education careers.

The company will award scholarships of up to $2,000 a year to children planning to study accounting, auto repair, computer programming, physical therapy, or printing.

No one sees Delaware becoming the nation's financial center. Chase Manhattan spokesman Mark Frankel, for instance, doesn't believe Delaware "is predisposed to be the home for interstate banking or anything like that."

Still, Delaware is "right at the cutting edge of positioning the state as a haven for the financial industry," said Daniel Flimney, spokesman for the Maryland National Corp., the $3.1 billion Baltimore holding company that moved its credit-card operation to Newark, Del., last year.

Under the FCDA, an out-of-state bank must meet certain conditions in order to open a branch in Delaware. It must start with a minimum of $10 million in capital and boost it to $25 million within a year of operation; employ at least 100 people in Delaware within a year of operation; set up no more than one office open to the public and operate it in a low-key way, without advertising, so it won't attract customers to the "substantial detriment" of existing Delaware banks.

But the enticements offered out-of-state holding companies outweigh the restrictions.

The FCDA allows banks that have their credit card operations in the state to charge rates and fees set in Delaware to all U.S. customers despite usury laws elsewhere.

For Maryland National, which charges an $18 card fee to each of its 400,000 Visa and Master Card customers. This alone means $7.2 million each year. It also charges 18.9 percent on unpaid balances and other Delaware card operations charge up to 21 percent.

The FCDA also changed the tax rates on banking institutions so that the more money they make the lower their tax rate. The advantages are obvious for banks in high-tax states such as New York.

The advantages to Delaware also are clear. According to Bank Commissioner John Malarkey, the new out-of-state bank holding companies paid $2.5 million in taxes for 1982, compared with the $3.9 million paid by all Delaware banks and thrift institutions.

Some 1,300 new jobs have been created, a figure Malarkey predicts could rise to 3,000 by the end of this year.

Delaware officials have neither finished tinkering with their laws nor stopped looking for new business.

"We're looking at some other angles," said Malarkey. "There probably will be a bill introduced in March... to allow international banking facilities. We're (also) looking at some expanded powers for state banks."

And the state is touting its opportunities by mail to major banks around the country.

Steel works on block?

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Lloyd Steelworkers President Lloyd McBride says U.S. Steel Corp. is talking to the state-owned British Steel Corp. about selling an interest in U.S. Steel's Fairless Works.

A spokesman for the union said Monday the USW opposes the sale because it could lead to as many as 2,000 steelworkers being put out of work.

Under proposals being discussed, British Steel would supply steel for finishing at the Fairless mill, where about 12 percent of U.S. Steel's production capacity is located.

Union officials fear if U.S. Steel processes semifinished British steel at the Fairless plant, the firm may drop its raw-steel producing operation there, leading to layoffs.

A U.S. Steel spokesman said the firm had informed the union it was talking to the British company, but he specifically declined to confirm or deny whether the Fairless mill was being discussed.

Retread tire use increasing again

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — The use of retreaded tires is on the upswing again.

The Tire Retread Information Bureau said one out of every five passenger replacement tires and one of every three truck replacement tires currently are retreads.

Marilyn Krause, spokesman for the bureau, said at current prices and usage, a retread replacement tire can deliver 800 miles per dollar of its cost against 600 miles per dollar of cost for a new replacement tire.

Widow invites public to Clark funeral

By DUSTON HARVEY
United Press International

FEDERAL WAY, Wash. — The widow of Dr. Harold Clark has invited the public to attend the funeral today of the "common man" who made medical history by living for 112 days with an artificial heart.

Una Loy Clark tendered the invitation so that "family friends and acquaintances knew they were welcome," Mormon Church spokesman Brad Fey said.

The 62-year-old Clark died Wednesday night at the University of Utah Medical Center, where he received the first permanent artificial heart in an historic operation on Dec. 2, 1982.

His funeral — at 2 p.m. today in the Federal Way Stake Center of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints — will be covered by news media from all over the world and attended by members of the Utah medical team. Dr. Willem Kolff, the inventor of the artificial kidney and the impetus behind the Utah artificial organs program, will deliver one of the eulogies at Clark's funeral.

The Medical Center delegation also will include vice president Chase Peterson, surgeons William DeVries and Lyle Joyce, artificial heart developer Robert Jarvik, nursing director Helen Kee, surgical nurse Linda Gianelli and social worker Peg Miller.

Neal A. Maxwell, a member of the Mormon Church's ruling Council of the Twelve from Salt Lake City, also will speak at the services.

Clark, a native of Utah, lived most of his adult life in Des Moines, Wash., a suburb on Puget Sound south of Seattle, where he practiced dentistry, played golf and raised his family.

His health began failing about four years ago due to a debilitating heart disease and he was near death when Utah heart surgeons sewed a plastic and metal Jarvik-7 heart into his chest in Deember. During his 112 days in the university hospital, he suffered one setback after another, including three more operations, seizures and a colon infection that led to the circulatory system collapse and multiple organ failure that killed him.

But Mrs. Clark said during the weekend that despite all the pain and suffering her husband went through in his last 3½ months of life, he never regretted participating in the medical experiment.

"My husband was happy to do this," she said. "Although he suffered greatly, I'm sure if he were here today he would tell you he would do it again."

"We certainly hope research into the artificial heart program continues because there were many, many times my father was totally lucid, ambulatory, and without pain or discomfort and it was obvious the artificial heart was a totally valid concept," said his son, Stephen, a doctor in Bellevue, Wash.

Search, rescue satellite sent into orbit by U.S.

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — A satellite with new search-and-rescue capabilities to help find missing planes and ships anywhere on the globe was launched Monday from the Western Test Range.

The 3,775-pound Tiris satellite — designed in cooperation with the Soviet Union, Canada and France — was put into orbit aboard a reclaimed Atlas missile at 8:52 a.m. MST, NASA spokesman Walt Dundon said.

The satellite will scan the entire Earth's surface every six hours.

covering the United States in one pass, and pinpoint transmissions from downed aircraft or other emergency locators within a few miles.

The new satellite was set for a 470-nautical mile polar orbit, where it will join and assist a Soviet craft that has completed 22 successful search and rescue missions since it was sent into space last June.

The satellites currently pick up signals from existing emergency locators, but are designed to work in the future with more sophisticated transmitters.

Helicopter crash kills 6 Marines

SAN SIMON, Ariz. (UPI) — A Marine helicopter with seven people aboard crashed in eastern Arizona on a flight from New River, N.C., to Yuma Sunday. Six Marines reportedly were killed.

One person was thrown from the craft and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital at Tucson with severe burns, authorities said. The crash occurred 18 miles southeast of San Simon in a desert area about half a mile from the nearest road. The cause of the accident is under investigation.

Norma Stewart, public affairs officer at the Marine Corps Air Station at New River, said information about the condition of those on board was being withheld. The CH-53 Delta was one of two helicopters ferrying personnel to a Marine exercise at Twentynine Palms, Calif., and was to have stopped at Yuma Sunday night, she said.

Ed Barnes, a San Simon rancher flying a private plane, witnessed the 4:20 p.m. crash and explosion. Helicopter parts were blown 500 feet from the main wreckage and the fire melted metal, he said.

Barnes, who circled the crash site for an hour, radioed information to the Civil Air Patrol at Albuquerque, N.M.

New founts of lava flow at Kilauea

KILAUEA, Hawaii (UPI) — Kilauea Volcano began spewing lava again early Monday, for the first time since last week's short-lived display.

An aerial inspection of the remote east rift zone, 12 miles downhill from the summit, revealed the latest eruption occurred just within the boundaries of Hawaii Volcanoes National Park, close to Pu'u Kamoama. The mountain spewed a curtain of fire as high as 90 feet along a fissure about 250 feet long. A lava flow inching south from the vent was an eighth of a mile long. Another flow heading north was about 300 feet long.

U.S. Geological Survey spokesman Robert Decker said two small fountains also were seen about a mile away, at Pu'u Kahauale'a, site of the vigorous fountaining which pushed a lava flow 4½ miles into a sparsely populated rural homestead area several weeks ago. Two homes were buried on March 2.

Decker described Monday's output as "fairly voluminous," like the activity which sent the flow over the homes and adjacent lots.

He said sustained outpouring of lava could threaten more homes.

As the eruption stays in the Pu'u Kamoama area, Decker said, the lava flows probably will run their course within the national park boundaries and not threaten any homes.

Plane theft case closed

KALISPELL, Mont. (UPI) — Federal theft charges have been dropped in Canada against a Vancouver, British Columbia, pilot who survived a Montana plane crash that killed his girlfriend last year, Montana officials said Monday.

Jiroslaw "Jerry" Ambrozuk, 19, remains charged with negligent homicide in Montana. He is still at large.

Canadian officials had charged him with theft for flying to Montana on Aug. 22 in a Cessna 150 rented from Solar Air Aviation of Peniticon, British Columbia. Ambrozuk had filed a flight plan indicating Vancouver as his destination.

The plane crashed in Little Bitter Lake, west of Kalispell, killing Diana Babcock, 18, of Vancouver. Ambrozuk apparently swam to shore, and has since disappeared.

Front Range County Sheriff's spokeswoman Cheryl Derby said her office was informed of Canada's intent to drop charges in a letter from J.W. White, a Royal Canadian Mounted Police chief superintendent at Vancouver.

Church panel investigates weeping madonna

THORNTON, Calif. (UPI) — Thousands flock to the rural Roman Catholic Church of Mater Ecclesiae on the 13th of every month to view a delicate ceramic figurine they believe sheds miraculous tears.

The 4-foot-tall statue of Our Lady of Fatima, a Portuguese apparition of the Virgin Mary, stands in front of the church altar wearing a crown, her hands clasped together in prayer, a shawl over her head and her eyes looking down, toward the floor.

Believers say she cries, she tilts her head up, and on the 13th of the month, during the night, she often moves closer to the altar.

The first time she moved was on March 13, 1981, said Albert Amaro, a retired asparagus farmer who has become the Madonna's unofficial caretaker.

"We found her in front of the altar with her rosary wrapped around the crucifix, about 25 feet from where she was standing the night before," he said. "So we put her back."

Amaro said the figurine had tears in her eyes. "Ten days later we found her by the tabernacle," he said, and she was put back again.

Then, "on the morning of April 13, we found her by the altar again," he said. "She was moving on the 13th of every month."

The original Lady of Fatima first appeared in Portugal on May 13, 1917, before three children, then reappeared on the 13th of the following six months asking for prayers for the conversion of Russia.

Amaro said half a dozen people had keys to the church and they at first suspected each other. So they sealed the statue in the church covered with a flower arrangement.

"Three days later, here she was at the altar, and there wasn't a thing disturbed," he said. Then she was bolted down with a spring-loaded butterfly bolt. A few days later she was back at the altar.

The tears also continued. "Once," he reported, "she cried during a wedding, and most of the 350 people saw the tears. I've seen them five or six times."

Mary Viegas, a white-haired Portuguese matron who spends most of her waking hours in the church, said, "She's sad because people are living in sin. That's why she cries. There can be no other reason."

None of the church's officials has seen either the movement or the tears, but the Rev. Harmon Skillin, Mater Ecclesiae's pastor, said the people who have witnessed what they believe is a miracle are "reliable people. I think they're reporting things they've seen. My question is how did those things happen."

Last year Bishop Roger Mahony of the Stockton Diocese appointed a special commission of four priests to look into the strange occurrences, including reports from people who say they experienced miraculous recoveries from physical ailments after visiting the Weeping Madonna. The investigation is not yet completed, church officials said.

The reports are bringing pilgrims from across the country. On the 13th of every month a thousand or more people crowd in and around the church to light candles.

The Madonna was made in Lisbon and shipped to the San Francisco Bay area in 1968. Joe Lopes, a Portuguese grain farmer from nearby Ileson, bought it and donated it to the church in memory of his son-in-law.

Ticket policy on WSU ballot

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI) — The student body at Washington State University is concluding campus general elections today.

Included on the ballot is an advisory issue asking students if they should pay to attend athletic events at the school.

Currently, students are admitted to all athletic events by showing their student identification cards.

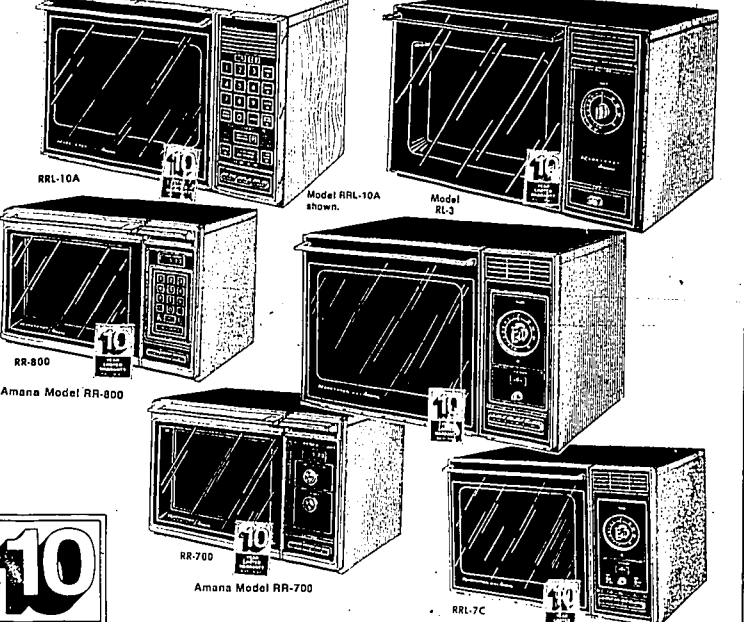

However, the ballot issue asks the voters to determine whether fees should be increased to help fund athletics.
