A burning cross on a farm southwest of Jerome marked a gathering of white supremacists

White supremacists burn cross to renew their 'faith'

By MARTY TRILJHAASE
Times-News writer

JEROME -- Swearing allegiance to Jesus Christ and the white man, a band of about 20 white supremacists huddled Friday night in a Jerome-area farmer's field and ignited a 20-foot-tall cross.

"We light this cross to dispel the darkness, to light the world with the light of Jesus Christ," announced Richard Butler of Hayden Lake, the national leader of the Aryan Nations Church. Dressed in the uniform and hood of the Ku Klux Klan, Butler proclaimed the flaming cross of wood and fuel-soaked burlap as a "symbol of light, a symbol of hope and — a symbol — of gathering together."

Butler also acknowledged unseen critics, who contend such actions

"strike terror in the heart of the alien. Well that might be."

Members of the Aryan Nations, the KKK and the Posse Comitatus, as well as area residents, gathered at John Miller's property, located southwest of Jerome. In participate in the event.

As the cross burned brightly against a coal-black horizon, Aryan Nations members, one by one, pointed a ceremonial sword at the cross and swore allegiance to their race.

Dressed in various garb that included the uniform of the Aryan Nations, KKK garments and civilian clothes, members of the group joined in chants at "Hail Victory" and "White Power," many of them raising their right arms in a Nazi-style salute.

Such scenes are nothing new to the white-supremacist organization, which is based in northern Idaho. And the call had gone out as early as December for the Jerome cross-burning.

"This has been in the works for some time," Miller said, following the ceremony.

"The event was done in moral, if not technical, defiance of Idaho's new malicious harassment bill. In fact, members delayed the burning until the Legislature completed action on what Butler termed "that insane harassment bill."

The bill, which will take effect July 1, is aimed at such activities as cross-burnings. However, cross-burnings on private property apparently are not a violation of the law.

Nevertheless, the ceremony served to challenge the law and the establishment that enacted it.

Evans stamps veto on 50-50 amendment

Also rejects appropriations for junior colleges

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John Evans vetoed an amended version of the voter-passed "50-50" property-tax exemption Friday.

He also struck down funding measures for the state's two community colleges and the Department of Law Enforcement.

Evans said lawmakers had attempted to "steal back" 71 percent of the tax break approved by Idaho voters last November. The law allows an exemption from property taxes of 50 percent or $50,000 of the value of residential property, whichever is less.

Lawmakers also were criticized for attempting to cut $599,500 from the $1.4 million fiscal 1984 budget base for North Idaho College at Coeur d'Alene and the College of Southern Idaho at Twin Falls.

At a news conference in his Statehouse office, Evans said the "50-50" initiative should be "respected" by lawmakers because it carried the voters' stamp of approval.

The initiative received a 57 percent favorable rating last year, he said.

Evans said the Legislature's bill would have slashed the voter-approved tax break by providing tax exemptions of $15,000 or 50 percent of a home's value, whichever was less.

In both cases, owners would have been required to claim the lesser amount, but the exemption cap on the Legislature's bill was $35,000 lower than the initiative's figure.

"The Legislature has attempted to steal back 71 percent of the tax reduction that Idahoans had brought about for themselves," he said.

Evans said homeowners were merely trying to shift back some of the tax burden that had been thrust onto their shoulders during the past 15 to 20 years.

The property tax load borne by homeowners has shifted from 18 percent to 53 percent of the total receipts, Evans said.

He said the voter-passed measure would have only marginally reversed that trend by requiring owners of income-producing property, such as farms and businesses, to bear 55 percent of the overall property tax burden, an 8 percent increase over present levels.

"It is a very small part of the total shift," he said. "It is equitable; it is justified; and it was passed by the people of Idaho."

The Democratic governor also said the Republican-dominated Legislature was being "short-sighted" by slashing nearly $600,000 from the community college budget base.

"That is placing those community colleges in a very detrimental position in providing the necessary level of education," he said. "At a time when there is greater demand for our community colleges, that is not the time to cut back and appropriate such a low level of funding."

Legislative session longest ever; key issues still stalled

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Legislature tied its record for the longest session ever Friday as lawmakers struggled through their 80th day of meetings.

But despite the late date, legislators still were unsure of where and how to get enough revenue to balance the fiscal 1984 state budget.

When the gavels fall to open the House and Senate sessions this morning, records will be rewritten to designate the 1983 regular session as the longest in the Legislature's 93 years.

Lawmakers spent Friday trying to drive toward adjournment during the weekend and leaders said at the end of the day they still were striving toward that goal.

But little progress was made on the two main issues — whether taxes to raise to cover a budget of $150 million or more in fiscal 1984 and where to set specific "allocations" on such controversial programs as public schools and higher education.

Early in the day, House Republican leaders were hoping to have the lower chamber produce and pass a major tax increase, send it to the Senate and begin writing new budgets to fit the new budget target. The old goal of $440 million was abandoned Thursday.

However, the House Revenue and Taxation Committee refused to introduce a measure to impose an 8 percent surcharge on personal and corporate income taxes next year, a move which would raise about $24 million.

The panel instead sent to the House floor a bill to raise the Idaho sales tax to 1 1/2 cents per dollar — a half-cent boost that would bring in $27 million.

House Speaker T.W. Stivers, R-Twin Falls, who favors a surcharge over another sales-tax boost the sales tax went up on 3 cents to 4 cents in March, engineered another special meeting of the Revenue and Taxation committee later in the day.

The speaker's wish for a surcharge bill was granted, although in a bizarre way.

Committee members voted to introduce a bill to impose a surcharge, but they left the percentage of the assessment blank. Several committee members and legislative observers were shaking their heads in confusion as the meeting broke up.

"I guess we can let the governor fill it in," wisecracked Rep. Christopher Hooper, R-Boise.

Both the sales-tax and surcharge measures are on the House's amendment calendar, where one or both may be considered Saturday.

Stivers said he wanted a 4 1/2 percent income-tax surcharge, which he said would generate about $112 million. He said that action, plus favorable decisions on a long list of other, smaller revenue-raising measures elsewhere in the legislative pipeline, would raise enough for a budget of $451 million to $453 million.

He also wanted, "to be safe," for the tax commission to introduce a measure to raise the cigarette tax. But that proposal was quickly crushed.

At the start of the meeting, Stivers expressed confidence that final adjournment of the record-breaking session was just around the corner.

Disaster designations sought

South swamped by floodwaters

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Devastating flooding swamped Louisiana and Mississippi Friday, sending thousands of residents fleeing high water that "turned cities" into islands.

Thousands of highways and pushed property damage into the millions of dollars.

At least 11 people have died in the worst flooding in 25 years in the area. Columbia, Miss., was hit by nearly 13 inches of rain in a four-hour span, flooding 80 percent of downtown with up to 5 feet of water. A tornado temporarily knocked out the city's electricity.

The flooding spans from near St. Louis to the Gulf of Mexico.

In southern Mississippi, Gov. William Winter toured by helicopter, storm-ravaged cities where up to 7,000 people have been left homeless. He asked President Reagan to declare the state a disaster area.

Among the hardest hit were Hattiesburg and Columbia.

Authorities in Hattiesburg said 800 homes and 200 businesses were flooded. Another 1,400 structures were damaged and officials placed damage estimates at $108 million.

Baton Rouge, La., was flooded by the cresting Amite River, which was expected to remain high through Friday night. About 3,000 people were evacuated and unofficial damage to the entire parish was estimated at $50 million.

In West Alton, Mo., just north of St. Louis, a 300-foot levee on the Mississippi River broke Friday, prompting authorities to order evacuation of the town's 500 residents. No injuries were reported.

Louisiana Gov. Dave Treen, wearing thigh-high waders, toured Denham Springs, where water was a disaster area in 16 parishes.

"This is the most extensive flooding I've ever seen," said Treen. He said a federal team were expected in Louisiana Monday to assess the situation.

The plight of Don Jarreau of Port Vincent, was particularly pathetic. He said his new insurance on his flood-prone rented home was to become effective in five days.

"Why couldn't this have happened at the end of the month?" he asked. Telephone service was restored in New Orleans, which was cut off from rest of the world Thursday following the collapse of all communications facilities.

Mission termed highly successful

Challenger astronauts plan landing at desert 'spaceport'

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — The space shuttle astronauts, praised for the "greatest show on or off the Earth," completed final experiments and packed up Friday for Challenger's first landing today at the Mojave Desert spaceport.

Paul Weitz, Karol Bobko, Story Musgrave and Donald Peterson are coming home from a highly successful, five-day orbital mission that increases NASA's chances of being able to ready the nation's second space freighter for flight again in only two months.

Challenger is scheduled to touch down at 11:53 a.m. MST on a paved runway. The long, broad "dry lakebed" runway where Challenger originally was to have landed is under chocolate-colored water from recent heavy rains.

In their five days in space, the astronauts accomplished everything they set out to do. They proved Challenger is spaceworthy, they launched a vital tracking and radio relay satellite, and Musgrave and Peterson conducted a flawless, nearly four-hour spacewalk in Challenger's open cargo bay.

"I think the mission has accomplished the proof of the pudding, so to speak. In the second vehicle we have built," said flight director Gary Coen. "I'm amazed that we could, on a first flight like this, have only the few problems we have had."

The astronauts wrapped up their space experiments by taking some more lightning pictures and performing another "phantom" rendezvous maneuver in a rehearsal for the real thing when they go after a crippled satellite next year.

Weitz also had a recommendation for future flights. He said a better vacuum cleaner attachment is needed to clean lint and other debris clogging hard-to-reach filters. Vice President George Bush talked to the spacemen from mission control in Houston and told them their flight "brings out the best in the United States."

Controllers also were full of praise in a morning teleprinter status report to the ship.

"Thank you for the greatest show on or off the Earth yesterday," the message said. "Outstanding! You worked em."

The skies were cloudless at Edwards Friday and good conditions were predicted for the Challenger's first return from orbit. Mission control in Houston said scattered clouds were expected 5,000 feet high along with good visibility and 6 mph winds.

It all sounds pretty nice," said Weitz, the veteran commander of the $260-million mission.

Bush inadvertently may have revealed who was feeling ill Wednesday when Weitz asked for a private medical conference with a control center doctor. NASA refused to reveal the nature of the problem because officials said it did not threaten the mission plan.

"How is Bob feeling today?" Bush asked Roy Bridges, an astronaut working in the control center, using Bobko's nickname. "Bo seems to be doing fine today," Bridges said. "He's talked to us a couple of times and he seems very chipper today."

'Nessie' makes '83 appearance
 INVERNESS, Scotland (UPI) — Nessie, the elusive sea monster said to inhabit the loch, dark waters of Loch Ness, may have made her first public appearance of 1983 Friday.
 Herb MacDonald, production manager for the Inverness Courier newspaper, said he, his two sisters and two friends were driving on the road by the loch in Scotland when they spotted something unlike anything he'd ever seen before.
 "There was definitely something underneath the loch that had pushed up and this bump appeared and then disappeared again," he said.
 "I saw a line of little waves about two inches high and 20 or 30 feet long," he said in a telephone interview.
 "Then this bump appeared about a foot high and three feet long in this wave."
 For more than 120 years, scientists have been trying to figure out if there actually are any underwater, monsterlike creatures inhabiting the loch.
 In February-1982, scientists with the Loch-Ness Project said they had made a total of 40 sonar "contacts" that were consistent with the presence of large animals in the loch but said they had no proof the blip on the sonar screen was the fabled creature.

Ninety-one law officers killed
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ninety-one law enforcement officers were killed in the line of duty last year in the United States and its territories, with the largest number of deaths in the South, the FBI said Friday.
 The FBI said the number of law enforcement deaths remained the same for 1981 and 1982 — lower than for any annual period in the last decade.
 The largest number of law enforcement officers — 41 — were killed in the South, followed by 21 in the North Central states, 18 in the West, seven in the Northeast, three in Puerto Rico and one in the Marianas Islands.
 Fifty-seven of the victims were city policemen, 27 were county officers, five were employed by state law enforcement agencies and two were federal officers.
 The FBI said 14 officers were killed trying to thwart robberies; three were handling burglary calls and 19 were attempting other arrests.
 Seventeen officers were murdered while responding to disturbance calls, 13 while enforcing traffic laws and 10 investigating suspicious people or circumstances.
 Nine were ambushed, three were handling prisoners, two were dealing with mentally deranged people and one was slain during a civil disorder.

U.S. vows to pressure Israel
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department promised King Hussein Friday that if he joins the Middle East peace talks, the United States will crack down on the building of Israeli settlements in the occupied territories.
 Hussein, who is reported close to a decision about joining the talks, has sought action by the United States to back up its public disapproval of the Israeli settlements as a precondition to his participation.
 State Department spokesman John Hughes said the new U.S. position when reporters asked him about reports Israel is planning a campaign to persuade American Jews to buy property on the occupied West Bank.

The Israeli Embassy charged in a statement that the settlements issue "serves as an excuse for those from the Arab world who refuse to make peace with Israel. The real obstacle to peace remains Arab unwillingness to recognize the Jewish state."
More rioting flares in Brazil
 SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI) — Violence flared Friday for the fifth day in a riot in debt-ridden Brazil where major cities were under heavy police control in response to looting and rioting by mobs protesting inflation and unemployment.
 The riots erupted after a Sao Paulo demonstration against unemployment Monday, and the government sent 10,000-man riot police into the streets to halt looting and street fighting.
 The disturbances spread to Rio de Janeiro Wednesday, where between 100 and 200 shantytown residents stripped $700 worth of food and liquor from a supermarket.
 The protesters demanded government action to reduce unemployment unofficially estimated at around 15 percent, or 700,000, in the 12-million population Sao Paulo area.
 With monthly inflation for March soaring over 10 percent, the equivalent of 214 percent a year, and totaling 110 percent over the last 12 months, many demonstrators said that the disturbances were a genuine protest against hardship.

Eastern Airlines lays off 1,600
 MIAMI (UPI) — Eastern Airlines laid off 1,600 workers Friday, including 1,200 union workers, just hours after the carrier's largest union approved a new contract. The union said the layoffs were "an act of bad faith."
 The company said most of the 1,200 laid off were members of the International Association of Machinists. The remaining 400 are non-union and management personnel.
 The layoffs, to take place by May 1, represent 4 percent of the company's work force of 39,200.
 It was the first time since the late 1970s that Eastern had announced a major layoff.
 Charlie Bryan, head of the nearly 13,000-member IAM, called the layoffs "an act of bad faith" because they were announced so soon after the union's rank-and-file approved the latest contract offer from Eastern.
 "We intend to take the appropriate action to show them our disgust for their repressive management," Bryan said.
 Bryan said the union would recommend its employees refuse to work any overtime, and would engage in "continuing talks" with Eastern.

Playboy favored over Disney
 SHREVEPORT, La. (UPI) — The Playboy Channel apparently is favored over the family-oriented Disney Channel by cable television subscribers in at least one Bible-belt city.
 Cablevision of Shreveport recently began offering four new channels to subscribers: The Playboy Channel, which has begun airing programs, and the Disney Channel will start April 18. Showtime and Cinemax services also are being offered.

GOP boss defends Hansen

BOISE (UPI) — Dennis Olsen, chairman of the Idaho Republican Party central committee, said Friday that he is participating in an investigation of an alleged illicit pact by Rep. George Hansen.
 He said the Republican Idaho congressman was a victim of "selective prosecution."
 But Olsen would not describe the nature of the probe, who it involves or when it will be completed.
 Olsen said he called a news conference to defend Hansen to remind the public "an indictment does not mean a conviction."
 "We (the state party) will stand by the principle that until a man is convicted, he is presumed to be innocent," Olsen said.
 He said Hansen was stung out of prosecution under the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 because of "the things he has taken on, the causes he has espoused."

 A federal grand jury returned the four-count indictment Thursday, charging Hansen with failing to disclose personal loans from Texas billionaire Nelson Bunker Hunt and Olsen.
 Olsen said that he does not think Hansen is guilty of any crimes or misuse of funds, and said portions of the indictment improperly dealt with the financial dealings of Hansen's wife, Connie.
 Olsen said the congressman told the House Ethics Committee in 1978 that he and his wife planned to keep their financial affairs separate because Mrs. Hansen believed her privacy should be protected.

"There was no objection raised," Olsen said.
 He said the public should be aware "there were no allegations or indications there was misuse of funds... or funds channeled to the personal benefit improperly of the Congressman."
 Olsen said Hansen was singled out from among "hundreds of Congressmen" who failed to file any financial reports, but he said that he would not elaborate until "the appropriate time."
 He said actions Hansen has taken affecting some federal agencies could lead some people to try "to quiet his activities."
 Olsen said the indictment "should raise some questions in the minds of Idahoans and Americans. The question I have is why George Hansen is being prosecuted."
 He called the federal grand jury action "only the first chapter we will see unfold as this matter progresses."

Candidates 'fight' for office

KINGSTON (UPI) — The race for mayor of the small north Idaho town of Kingston has turned into what's commonly called a political battle — but this time it's the real thing.
 Harry Holand and Robert Pankonin will put on boxing gloves and solve their political differences in a ring behind a local bar Saturday afternoon.
 The champion will become the undisputed mayor of the tiny unincorporated community near Pinhurst.

For the past 15 years, Harry Holand has been the self-proclaimed chief executive of the town, although he had no duties, no offices and certainly no challengers.
 That is, until Robert Pankonin decided to enter the political arena.

Synopsis: Another storm system appears headed for Idaho, bringing rain and snow by Sunday.
 That storm, which will persist into Monday, also will produce cooler temperatures.
 On Friday, high pressure rebuilt over Idaho after passage of a dry frontal system. Precipitation was limited to showers over the central and southeastern mountains. Most stations reported less than .10 inch of precipitation.
 Afternoon temperatures under partly cloudy skies were in the 40s and 50s with the state's warmest reading 53 at Parma. Stanley's 9 above zero was the coldest morning low, though most minimums were in the 20s and 30s.
 In Twin Falls Friday, the pollen count was 32 per cubic meter of air.
 The agricultural outlook for southern Idaho calls for precipitation over the next five days to range from .10 to .30 inch, mostly falling Sunday Monday. Four inch mean soil temperatures, now ranging in the low 40s in southeastern Idaho to the upper 40s in the southwest, will show little change.
 Winds for spraying will be light today, increasing from 10 to 20 mph.
 The extended forecast for the Magic Valley calls for scattered showers on Monday and a chance of showers on Wednesday, but otherwise dry and cool. Highs will range from the low 40s to the low 50s in the east to mostly 50s in the west. Lows will be from 20 to 35.
 Elsewhere in the nation Friday, the warmest temperature reported was 87 degrees at Vero Beach, Fla., and the coldest was 3 at Laramie, Wyo.

Cross

 Prior to the ceremony, Aryan Nations member Elden Cutler of Athol told The Times-News, "Cross-lighting is basically a warning. We're going to have our redress of grievances one way or the other."
 That view was shared by Butler, who called the cross-burning a "symbol of things to come." He said that he hoped the act would stand as encouragement that "we can again stand as men."
 As the group drove away from the field, they were cheered by the fact that the glowing cross by now had attracted a steady stream of car-bound sightseers near the Miller property.
 One member commented that the drive all appeared to be teenagers. "That's OK," said another.

Vetoes

 Democrats had approved $136 million for North Idaho College and $1.85 million for the College of Southern Idaho.
 The governor also said Law Enforcement programs — particularly those dealing with narcotics enforcement — would be hamstringing by the Legislature's $2.9 million general fund budget.
 Evans said the law enforcement budget was too low partly because it was designed for an overall state budget of $1.3 billion: a figure long since scrapped.
 "The appropriation does fill two vacant narcotics investigator positions, but at the expense of two law enforcement officers," he said. And "adding two narcotics officers does not even begin to address the alarming expansion of illicit drug trafficking in this state."
 Meanwhile, the Senate upheld another gubernatorial veto Friday when it failed on a 18-16 vote to muster the two-thirds majority needed to erase the red ink from the $12.4 million Agriculture Research Extension Service budget.
 Evans vetoed the research-extension bill earlier this week, saying lawmakers had granted just a 2.1 percent increase over current levels.
 He struck down the bill, which included $8.4 million from the general fund, on the grounds that it "fails to provide adequate funds for maintaining the existing program."

EPA stalled over Superfund?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A senior Environmental Protection Agency official said Friday that former EPA Administrator Anne Burford urged him to go slow on cleaning up the nation's toxic waste dumps.

"I have the personal view there was an implicit policy to slow down the Superfund cleanup," William Hedeman, director of EPA's office of emergency response, told a Senate committee. "The progress of programs I have identified with may have been impeded for that purpose."

Hedeman made the statement in response to a question from Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine.

Mitchell asked a panel of EPA officials appearing before the Senate Environment Committee if they had ever been told to go slow on cleaning up toxic waste sites so the administration could argue the law need not be extended because all funds had not been used.

Hedeman said he tried to reach alternatives with states having trouble providing their required 10 percent share of the toxic waste cleanup costs under the $1.6 billion Superfund program.

"I was told essentially that a state should come up with 10 percent, but that ultimately we should not aggressively pursue alternatives," Hedeman said. "Who told you that?" Mitchell asked.

"The administrator," Hedeman said.

Anne Burford resigned last month as EPA administrator as congressional committees intensified investigations into wrongdoing at the agency. William Ruckelshaus has been nominated by President Reagan as her replacement.

The Superfund toxic waste cleanup program is due to expire in 1985 unless extended by Congress.

Sen. Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., said, "It is perfectly clear that the (former) administrators, all of whom now are in hiding, intended the Superfund law not to be extended."

Hedeman said Rita Lavelle, fired last February as EPA's Superfund chief, was concerned "about the growing number of toxic waste sites in our inventory."

"I was instructed by Ms. Lavelle to do an assessment of all the sites by the end of the year in order to verify her view that most of them were not a problem," Hedeman said.

Gene Luceo, the EPA's official charged with enforcing the Superfund law, said Ms. Lavelle changed definitions so frequently, "it was very difficult to get an action described as an emergency."

"If something is declared an emergency, there is no need to require the state share," Luceo said. He said Ms. Lavelle was "hesitant to believe things were as bad as she was told."

Administration says public influenced

Media blamed for defense fund defeat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan blames the news media's bombardment of negative thought for the defeat of his 1984 defense budget increase on Capitol Hill and will stick with the proposal, his spokesman said Friday.

Reagan "hasn't changed one iota" from his commitment to a 10 percent increase in the defense budget despite its overwhelming rejection by the Senate Budget Committee Thursday, the deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said.

The committee, controlled 12-10 by Republicans, voted 19-2 against Reagan's 10 percent defense budget increase and then voted 17-4 to allow only 5 percent growth.

Speakes said the senators who voted against Reagan were being "responsive to the public, who is responsive often to the domineering force of the media."

News coverage of the defense program showed "a knee-jerk reaction that there is a considerable amount of waste in the Defense Department," Speakes told reporters at the daily White House news briefing.

"The problem is doing what he thinks is right on national defense and will continue to try to educate the American people," Speakes said. "He thinks there is a steady drumbeat of negative thought, mainly in the view of you and your colleagues in the press corps."

The administration is "deeply disappointed" in the vote and remains "hopeful that the committee will see fit to reconsider the matter," he said.

On Capitol Hill, five liberal-Republican senators proposed an alternative to Reagan's 1984 budget that not only would hold the defense increase to 5 percent, but also would repeal the first year of the tax cut and tax indexing, which is scheduled to begin in 1985.

Reagan is vehemently opposed to tampering with the July 1 tax cut or indexing, which would prevent tax bracket creep due to inflation.

The five senators — John Chafee of Rhode Island, Mark Hatfield of Oregon, Charles Mathias of Maryland, Robert Stafford of Vermont and Lowell Weicker of Connecticut — said elimination of the tax measures is necessary to lower the budget deficit and keep the economic recovery going.

"I suspect he'll be much opposed to this," Weicker said of Reagan.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, meanwhile, rejected criticism by Senate Republicans that his refusal to compromise on the 10 percent increase in defense spending led to Thursday's defeat. Weinberger accused the committee of "indulging in hopes," not specifics.

Immediately after Thursday's vote, committee chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., rebuked Weinberger and the administration for refusing to scale back the 10 percent increase through specific cost-cutting proposals.

Weinberger, speaking on ABC's "Good Morning America" program, said it is "the easiest thing in the world to get a package of reductions approved. The problem is the reductions are not anything that is consistent with the national security."

Kennedy urges college students to actively battle nuclear arms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., commemorating the 20th anniversary of President Kennedy's historic address on disarmament, urged the campus generation Friday to enlist in the campaign against nuclear war.

Kennedy, speaking at the American University campus where his oldest brother announced new negotiations in Moscow toward a nuclear test ban treaty June 10, 1963, challenged the students to follow in the footsteps of their "older sisters and brothers" who were in the forefront for civil rights and against the Vietnam War.

"The conscience, the caring, the commitment that you and your generation bring to the nuclear issue can help to change the direction of our country and even the fate of the earth," Kennedy said.

"Others before you have faced a similar test: Now in the 1980s—a moment of history and a sense of hope call your generation to a work as great as any that has gone before, indeed the greatest work of our time and all time, the work of peace."

"The difference each of you can make, if all of you will try, may make the difference between peace and war, between a just society and a garrison state," Kennedy said.

The Massachusetts Democrat repeated his call for a bilateral, verifiable freeze on nuclear weapons and called on Congress to kill the MX missile program.

Kennedy charged President Reagan will not put the MX on the bargaining table "that he will never trade it away. So let us say now — it is time for Congress to take it away."

"It is time for the president of the United States to admit that the MX is a mistake — that is a missile without a mission; and a weapon without a home," Kennedy said. "It is time to make it clear that even by the administration's own logic, the MX in the Minuteman silos is a sitting duck, and to state clearly that, by any rational standard, the MX missile in any form is a dead duck."

Kennedy said the world was on the verge of the second Cold War and warned against a policy of "brinkmanship."

"And if those who advocated such mindless toughness prove to be mistaken — and their mistakes lead to a lost great war, they may be safe in a protected bunker inside a mountain and behind steel doors," he said. "But the rest of the earth will be dying and there will be few if any of us around to blame them for the most catastrophic error in all recorded history."

U.S. rushes arms stocks to Thailand

KHAO I DANG, Thailand (UPI) — Vietnamese gunners shot down a Thai Air Force jet Friday.

Concerned about Thailand's security, the United States rushed anti-aircraft missiles and long-range howitzers to Bangkok. The first delivery of Redeye ground-to-air missiles was expected Saturday.

Additionally, two giant C-5 transport planes will deliver 15mm long-range howitzers and ammunition to Thai forces on Monday, a State Department spokesman said in Washington, and more howitzers will arrive by sea April 19.

In the Thai border province of Surin, 225 miles northeast of Bangkok, a Royal Thai Air Force A-37 "dragonfly" jet fighter was hit by Vietnamese ground fire and crashed in a rice field, killing the pilot and a pilot, military sources in the area said.

The sources said the jet was struck as it flew low over the border along with another A-37 — the first reported downing of a Thai aircraft by Vietnamese forces since a spotter plane was shot down in 1980.

In the rebel center Khao I Dang, 180 miles east of Bangkok, guerrilla leader Son Sann told a crowd of 10,000 supporters that Vietnamese troops had slaughtered hundreds of men, women and children at O-Smach.

"Several hundreds of innocent civilians were victims of these barbarous acts," Son Sann said. "The mutilated survivors of this deliberate massacre can testify."

The O-Smach camp housed guerrillas and civilian supporters of former Cambodian leader Prince Norodom Sihanouk, now president of a guerrilla coalition fighting to oust 180,000 Vietnamese troops from Cambodia.

Son Sann, prime minister in the coalition, said Vietnamese soldiers attacking O-Smach herded hundreds of civilians into ditches, then threw hand grenades at them.

He said many women and children who survived the blasts were then stabbed to death with bayonets.

Vietnam, which invaded Cambodia in December 1978 and later installed the government of President Heng Samrin, opened a dry-season offensive against guerrillas along the border eight days ago, apparently scoring significant successes in their strikes against rebel strongholds.

Soviets oust two Britons in spy 'war'

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union Friday expelled a British military attaché and a journalist for spying, the latest move in the diplomatic tug-of-war between the Kremlin and the West.

"This Soviet action is clearly in retaliation for the expulsion of three Soviet officials in London last week," a spokesman for the British Embassy said.

Squadron Leader David Williams, 33, Britain's assistant air attaché in Moscow, and Anthony Robinson, 40, correspondent for the London-based "Financial Times," were "ordered" to leave the Soviet Union within a week, the spokesman said.

The move is the latest in a series of diplomatic ousters, the most notable being the expulsion Tuesday of 17 Soviet diplomats, officials and journalists — the largest such action since the British ordered out 105 Soviets in September 1971.

Counter-espionage experts in Paris said the expelled Soviets probably secured information on 30 to 40 percent of the progress made in French high-technology in the past decade.

U.S. officials file charges in Beans Inc. fire

By United Press International and The Times-News

SALT LAKE CITY — Federal officials have entered the Beans Inc. case, charging the former owners with fraud and conspiracy charges in the 1979 fire at the Filer bean warehouse.

Former Salinas, Calif., Mayor James Woods, the president and vice president of Commodity Marketing Corp., and his business associate, Martin Taylor of Madera, Calif., have been indicted by a federal grand jury in Salt Lake City on charges of mail fraud, conspiracy, and aiding and abetting in the $1 million fire at the Beans Inc. warehouse.

The indictment charges the men "devised and intended to devise a scheme . . . to defraud certain insurance companies and to obtain money and property by means of false and fraudulent pretenses."

It also says that Woods and Taylor set the blaze and claimed $97,163 in supplies and stock were lost in the fire, while the actual damage was "substantially less." The indictment also claims that the men sold more than $250,000 in equipment and 28,000 100-pound bags of beans were destroyed, but that the damages were not that high.

The warehouse fire led to a lengthy civil lawsuit in Twin Falls County. The lawsuit ended in 1982, with a $1.15 million settlement between the warehousing company and the nearly 150 farmers who had beans stored in the warehouse at the time of the fire.

Woods and Taylor originally were charged in Salt Lake County by the state of Utah with aggravated arson and insurance fraud in the fire. No criminal charges were filed in Idaho.

But shortly after Utah prosecutors entered the case, Harry Deftan, the Twin Falls County prosecutor, began his own investigation and later decided against filing charges.

However, Utah prosecutors ran into trouble late last year when Third District Judge Peter F. Leary dismissed the arson count because the fire occurred in Idaho.

Leary allowed the fraud charge to stand because the insurance claim was filed in Salt Lake City. That case was scheduled to go to trial on April 18. But deputy Salt Lake County attorney John T. Nielsen said Friday that the state's remaining charge will be dismissed next week because federal prosecution takes precedence.

The case was closed in November when deputy Salt Lake County attorney Michael Christensen was ordered to remove himself from the case because of an "appearance" of a conflict of interest.

The prosecutor and a county attorney's investigator had an interest in a private arson investigation firm that did business with several insurance adjusters and investigators involved in the Beans Inc. fire.

Individuals join forces to aid girl who needs transplant

By KELLY EVERETT Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Individuals, churches and community business leaders have begun rallying to the aid of a 15-month-old Twin Falls girl who needs a liver transplant, or she will die.

Pam Allen, the daughter of Fred and Carol Allen of Twin Falls, has been diagnosed as having a fatal liver disorder. The girl, and members of her family, must fly to Pittsburgh for tests needed prior to the complicated transplant, and then return later for the operation itself, once a donor is found.

Due to the enormous costs of such a medical procedure, a number of fund-raising events are being planned to help the family finance the trips back east.

Century Yamaha, of 261 W. Addison Ave., will donate $100 from the sale of every motorcycle or motorbike during its open house, today through next Saturday, April 16.

In addition, on April 17, the firm will auction off a bike, with all the proceeds going to the Allen family. The bike is being donated in part by the local distributor and in part by the national office of the Yamaha Corp.

Next Friday, April 15, the national Aid Association for Lutherans and the Church of Jesus Christ will sponsor a benefit dance at the Filer Lodge in Twin Falls from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m.

The cost will be $3 per person or $5 per couple. Tickets may be obtained by calling 734-9433 or 734-7481, or from the following businesses: The Christian Book Store, Judy's Book Store, James Bler's State Farm Insurance, Magic Valley Christian Doctors say Pam Allen, age 15 months, will die unless she receives a liver transplant.

Supply, the Music Center, Western Realty and Valley Schwinn Cycles. A cake auction will be held during intermission of the dance. Persons interested in donating a cake to the benefit should contact Geri Kvanvig at 734-6619 or 734-6666, or by calling Miller Auction Service at 423-5566.

The Allens will be selling tickets to the event this weekend at the West Addison Flea Market, at West Addison and Blake streets.

And next weekend, April 16 and 17, the flea market has several benefit activities planned.

All proceeds from the gate will be donated to the Allen family, and any person who sets up a table to dispose of merchandise and who will donate the proceeds from the sale of their items to the Allen family will be given free table rent.

In addition, the flea market has given table space to the Allen family, which will be selling "garage-sale" items. Persons who wish to contribute items from their attic, basement or garage to the Allen family should contact the flea market.

At the same time, the flea-market operators will be offering free popcorn for any donation to the Allen family and they will be selling hot dogs and soft drinks, donated at a reduced price by Falls Brand Independent Meats in Twin Falls, with all profits going to the family.

Area radio stations also have become heavily involved in the fund-raising efforts; and a trust fund for the Allen girl is being set up by Twin Falls lawyer Russ Kvanvig.

County OKs alcohol plant near Hansen

By MARTY TRILJAASE Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — With the key issue of a buffer zone already resolved, the Twin Falls County commissioners on Friday granted a zoning change sought by backers of a proposed alcohol-producing plant near Hansen.

The agreement -- reached earlier this week between Hansen residents and representatives of the plant backers, Western Resource Recovery -- calls for a four-acre strip to be designated as a buffer between the plant site's western edge and Hansen residential areas.

Under the agreement, plant backers cannot use the buffer area for any industrial purpose.

Western Resource Recovery had asked the county commissioners to rezone between 40 and 45 acres of land from agricultural to industrial status. The plant, which would produce 12 million gallons of pharmaceutical-grade alcohol each year, would be located east of the Hansen city limits, between the Union Pacific Railroad tracks and Overland Avenue.

Establishing a buffer zone was the major issue raised Monday at a public hearing on the rezoning request. At that time, the commissioners indicated their approval would be forthcoming if the plant backers could reach agreement with Hansen city officials and residents.

Although they agreed on the concept of a buffer zone, both sides were wide apart earlier this week on what dimensions the area should assume. Residents had called for a 500-foot-wide area, while Western Resource Recovery initially spoke in terms of a 100-foot-wide buffer.

What has emerged is a 330-foot-wide area, including a 30-foot-wide strip of trees along the western edge of the property. It was more than WRR felt was necessary, but company officials agreed to it as a way to settle the issue, according to project consultant Arthur Rathburn of Twin Falls.

"Why agree with it? Because you're going to be there with neighbors. It takes a compromise," Rathburn said. "I think Western Resource Recovery bent over backwards to be nice to these people, and I hope that they will continue to do so."

Rathburn expressed some frustration with the way that the county commissioners had established a buffer zone as a prerequisite to zoning approval. The commissioners' position made negotiations difficult, he said.

"All the citizens took that to mean, 'You've got to agree with these people, or your whole project is under some kind of pressure,'" Rathburn said. "They perceived they had an upper hand and, in my estimation, they had an upper hand."

But he couched those remarks in terms of nothing stronger than disappointment. Rathburn said company officials now will attempt to finalize their financing -- terms, construction, estimated to take 14 to 18 months, will begin in mid-June, he said Friday.

"We're not behind schedule. We are as far as we can be at this point and, in some cases, ahead of where we could be," he said.

An estimated 33 employees will work at the facility, and company officials already have received some unsolicited employment applications. But Rathburn said such applications probably will not be sought for some time.

"I would think early next summer (1984), we will let people know," he said. Although it was the major issue on the county commission's agenda Friday, the alcohol-plant question was only one of three zoning matters to be decided.

The commissioners agreed with the Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission on the following: The commissioners unanimously denied a request from L. Gordon Carter of Twin Falls to divide two acres for residential development from a 29-acre parcel of farmland located north of Hansen near Fort Harney, Critics of the request contended it would have led to residential encroachment in an agricultural area.

Lyle Abel's request to rezone approximately eight acres of residentially zoned land just west of Filer for commercial development won unanimous approval from the commissioners. The area is located at U.S. 30 and Stevens Street.

Jerome merchant will stand trial on felony charges

Three-day closed hearing concludes

By MARTY TRILJAASE Times-News writer

GOODING — Jerome businessman Dan Lee Featherston has been ordered to answer to three felony charges in connection with an alleged attack on a woman in Wendell last December.

Featherston was ordered bound over to Fifth District Court, following the close Thursday of a three-day preliminary hearing in Gooding.

When he appears next in district court, the 37-year-old Featherston will be required to plead either innocent or guilty to: battery with intent to commit a serious felony, first-degree burglary and attempted robbery.

Featherston remained free Friday on a $25,000 property bond. No date for his district court arraignment was set.

The charges stem from reports of an assault at a rural residence near Wendell. Not all of Gooding County Prosecutor John Arkoosh's case emerged unscathed from the hearing. Magistrate Judge Charles Brumback determined that the evidence supporting the additional twin counts of aggravated assault was not sufficient and dismissed the charges.

The hearing was closed to the press and public, at the request of defense lawyer Eugene Fredericksen of Jerome. In Idaho, a judge must close a preliminary hearing if the defendant or his attorney requests such an action.

Court officials indicated that as many as 15 witnesses were called during the marathon preliminary hearing, before it adjourned at 5:45 p.m. Thursday.

Three of the witnesses were called by the defense, an unusual move since most defense lawyers do not present evidence at a preliminary hearing. Beyond those details, little information emerged from the closed hearing. Court officials declined to identify the witnesses, and it was not known Friday whether the alleged victim told the witness stand.

Contacted Friday, Arkoosh said Fredericksen both declined comment on the case.

Earlier this year, Featherston was charged in Jerome County with a series of charges, including rape. But the charges were dropped at the preliminary hearing in February, when magistrate Judge Danji Hurlbut found that the evidence was insufficient to warrant trying the case.

Water, water. . .

For Salmon Tract farmers, it should be a good irrigation year

By BOB FREUND Times-News writer

HOLLISTER — Snow is plentiful in the hills, and once it melts, farmers in the Salmon Tract area south of Twin Falls will have close to their fill of water for the upcoming growing season.

"I can farm all my ground (this year), looks like I'll irrigate it this year," he says. Based on a district snow survey taken April 1, forecasters from the U.S. Soil Conservation Service expect the Salmon Falls Reservoir to accumulate 165,300 acre-feet of water during the next few months. That should be enough to deliver 1.143 acre-feet for each acre of sock-in-the-Salmon River canal, which runs the Salmon Tract irrigation system, says Eyle Frier, the Twin Falls Soil Conservation District supervisor.

On the average, farmers hold about

'I can farm all my ground this year. Looks like I'll irrigate it this year.'

—Farmer Sam Skinner

two shares for each acre they own, so they will have a little over 2.25 acre-feet of water for growing crops this year, Fuller says.

It will be the second good year in a row for irrigation in the area. Last year, farmers were able to withdraw the most allowed by the canal company, 1.167 acre-feet per share. This year's available water will be only slightly less, due to deep snow with high water content in the South Hills to the east of the reservoir and in the Brian's Bench-Elk Mountain areas to the southwest.

Melted snow from those two areas pours into Salmon Falls Creek and also into the long, deep reservoir located about 25 miles south of Twin Falls.

Soil district supervisors measure the snowpack using gauges set in various representative areas. By comparing historical records of run-off and stream volumes, the U.S. Soil Conservation Service can make fairly accurate forecasts, says Rich Yankey, the local SCS soil specialist.

The service has made one more refinement to its forecasting network by installing a gauge along Shoshone Creek this year. The gauge will make it easier to identify how much water is flowing from each side of the Salmon, Falls watershed, he says.

The predictions are vital to farmers relying on the canal system for irrigation. They must gear their plantings to the amount of water available.

Not all of the water in the reservoir actually courses through the 300-mile canal system during the growing season. There will be a little more than 165,300 acre-feet stored there, but only 77,000 actually will be available for delivery. About 8,350 went unused last year, and still belongs to individual Salmon Tract farmers. That leaves 68,850 acre-feet to be divided up for 1983.

The biggest single loss of water happens as the water moves through the 300 miles of canals to the farmers. Yankey says: Close to 51,300 acre-feet either evaporates or leaks out of the 1912-vintage canal system.

"What you've got is a lot of canal over shallow soils, running out through the desert a long way," he said.

The irrigation season will start soon. There are 62,300 acre-feet in the Salmon Reservoir now. The canal company normally shuts the reservoir gates early in September, Fuller says.

Skinner, who also is secretary-treasurer of the canal company, says the federal government's new payment-in-kind program for grain crops may put more water shares up for lease than usual. So, most farmers will be able to keep as many acres of land in production as last year, due to the healthy water allotment, he says.

Federal judge halts White's prison term

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — A federal judge gave Gloria White a last-minute reprieve from prison Friday, pending review of her motion for a new trial on charges she helped convict spy Christopher Boyce rob two banks and hid the fugitive at her north Idaho home.

"The key to the whole thing is that if the appellant is on bail, then someone has made the determination she is not a risk to other members of society or a risk of possible flight," 9th U.S. Circuit Judge Otto R. Skopfl told Charles Porter of Eugene, an attorney for Mrs. White, at a 10-minute hearing.

U.S. District Judge Harold Ryan in Boise had ordered that Mrs. White, who lives with her five children near Newport, Ore., and has a summer home near Bonners Ferry, Idaho, surrender to federal marshals in Portland by 4 p.m. Friday.

However, Skopfl told Porter that rules of the 9th Circuit provide that if appellants are on bail when a motion is filed, such as in this case, the bail remains in effect until the court's motions panel issues a ruling on the motion.

"I don't have to make a decision one way or another" on the merits of the motion appealing Ryan's denial of a new trial, Skopfl said.

He added that he will inform the U.S. attorney's office of his decision which, in effect, stays the order of imprisonment until the appeals court rules on the motion.

Senators reject Swan Falls subordination bill

BOISE (UPI) — Senators defeated by one vote Friday a proposal to subordinate Idaho Power Co.'s water rights at its Swan Falls Dam on the Snake River.

But it also passed a bill protecting upstream users who tapped the river without knowing they were infringing on the utility's right.

The upper chamber voted 17-18 against a measure which would have subordinated to future upstream use Idaho Power's right to 8,400 cubic feet per second of water over the dam.

Opponents said the bill would have drastically driven up utility rates as Idaho Power is forced to find costly alternative sources of electricity to replace hydro-energy lost through further depletion of the Snake River.

could be reached in as little as 10 years.

But supporters, led by Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, said the Legislature had a "compelling" need to act on subordination because "a single public utility controls the destiny of this state."

That control stems from a Nov. 19, 1982, Idaho Supreme Court ruling upholding the utility's right to 8,400 cfs of water at Swan Falls. Currently, stream flow at the river averages about 5,400 cfs during the driest summer months.

sources of generation such as coal-fired plants.

Last week the electric company filed suit against 7,500 upstream users seeking compensation for water taken from the river since 1977.

The other bill, passed by the Senate on a 33-0 vote and advanced to the House, would protect those upstream irrigators and other users from the lawsuit. In return, the state Public Utilities Commission would be barred from determining whether Idaho Power owed returns to customers as a result of abandoning water rights.

The governor is directed in the proposal to seek a contract with Idaho Power dismissing the upstream users as defendants in the suit and laying out other specific terms of the agreement.

Noh said the bill would solve the problem of past depletion of the river. But he said the other measure on subordination was necessary to protect future upstream users.

Without subordination, he said, the state Department of Water Resources will not be able to issue any new water permits, since flow in the river is already below the Idaho Power right.

If the rights were subordinated, he said, new upstream use would be allowed — although those users might be required to compensate the utility for the water they take from the river.

Noh said the history of Idaho water development shows a long tradition of subordinating the rights of utilities to such other needs as irrigation and ordinary water systems.

Noh also said the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission has supported subordination when considering licenses for other Idaho Power dams on the Snake River.

How they voted

BOISE (UPI) — Here is the rollcall on the Senate's rejection, 17-18, Friday of a proposal which would have subordinated to future upstream users Idaho Power Co.'s water rights at its Swan Falls Dam on the Snake River:

WPPSS officials say default deadline near

SEATTLE (UPI) — The Washington Public Power Supply System will be in default soon after April 18 if participants in two abandoned nuclear power projects don't begin paying their debt by that date, officials said Friday.

Carl Halvorson, chairman of the WPPSS executive board, scheduled a special meeting in Seattle April 19, to decide on the next steps the system must take in regard to the $7 billion debt left by the termination of WPPSS projects 1 and 5.

He didn't appear optimistic that non-paying utilities would respond favorably to the demand notices WPPSS sent out Thursday after a King County judge lifted a restraining order that prevented the system from suing to force payment.

The notices went out to 65 utilities in Washington state. Notices weren't sent to 16 Oregon and Idaho utilities who are prevented by court orders from making termination payments or to 7 Washington utilities who are paying into escrow accounts.

Halvorson said unless "substantial positive development occurs by April 18" the system would have no choice but to use the nuclear plant project's cash on hand to pay administrative costs and make payments toward the interest on the $2.25 billion in bonds sold before the two projects were terminated in January 1982.

"Taking this grave step, we recognize, would result in a default shortly thereafter," he said.

Bob DeLorenzo, termination manager for the two projects, said allocating the $31 million now in the project's account for administrative costs and interest payments would leave nothing to pay contractors and suppliers.

He said a default exists anytime

WPPSS is forced to admit it cannot pay other bills.

Attorneys for the supply system have said they are ready to take legal steps against project participants who don't pay the termination bills they received in January, February and March. The "cure notices" mailed Thursday gave the non-payers 10 days, or until April 18, to pay.

However, the validity of the WPPSS project contracts has been challenged in several lawsuits, clouding the picture for everyone involved.

Gov. John Spellman, utility executives, lawyers and officials of the Bonneville Power Administration have been meeting privately in a concerted effort to find a non-judicial solution.

As the WPPSS executive board met near the Seattle-Tacoma airport, Spellman told reporters in Olympia he believes the odds are better than 50-50 that a solution will be found in the next few days.

"I think any dispassionate observer knows that we simply cannot risk default, and that is why I think we will ultimately reach a conclusion," the governor said.

Spellman said a default would be a "disaster."

He said there was no question that

WPPSS bills will be paid. The only question, he said, was whether they would be paid in an orderly manner over a period of years or on an accelerated basis following default "at a great loss of not only dollars but credit to the economy of the state."

"I don't know any slight of hand that says you get out of paying your bills, and in government there is a such thing as a real bankruptcy," Spellman said. "There is no way of avoiding the obligation. The question is how do you make it manageable."

BPA offers low price for irrigation power

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Northwest irrigation farmers will be given a chance to take advantage of the same low-price surplus power recently made available to the region's large industries by the Bonneville Power Administration.

BPA officials announced Friday that surplus electricity will be made available to utilities at low cost for resale to certain irrigation farmers in the region this summer. The offer to the utilities has a deadline of May 15, with contracts to run until Oct. 31.

The agency said the offer to utilities is intended to stimulate the agricultural industry and encourage additional irrigation — much the same as last month's surplus power to direct-service industries, which prompted the startup of idled potlines at several aluminum smelters.

The exact price per kilowatt-hour for the low-cost power offered for agricultural use won't be determined until the BPA receives comments from the utilities and the public, officials said. Comments will be taken until April 15, when the agency will begin writing contracts with the utilities.

The agency is proposing charging utilities in one of two ways — at a seasonal rate of 1.12 cents per kilowatt-hour or at a rate of 9 cents when the hydroelectric system is spilling water and at 1.8 cents when no spill situation exists.

The recent offer of surplus power to industrial customers was at the 1.12-cent rate. The surplus power is available due to higher than normal streamflows and the region's troubled economy. A BPA official said the agency must sell the energy the water can generate or let the water "waste to the sea."

BPA Administrator Peter Johnson said the offer was prompted by a letter from the six U.S. senators from Oregon, Washington and Idaho, who asked the agency to stimulate economic recovery with cheap surplus power for agriculture and industry.

The electricity will be sold to Northwest utilities for resale to irrigators with what BPA officials termed a "small markup," which they proposed would not exceed 15 cents per kilowatt-hour.

WPPSS plants make plan

PORTLAND, Ore. — The Northwest Power Planning Council has agreed to reverse its earlier exclusion of two abandoned Washington nuclear power plants from its energy plan — a move that could lead to their resurrection.

The council's informal agreement Thursday lowers — but does not remove — one of the key hurdles to possible completion of Washington Public Power Supply System Plants No. 4 and 5.

Had the plants been excluded from the 20-year regional plan, there would be little chance the Bonneville Power Administration would purchase power from the reactors under any revitalization plan.

"This is one of a series of steps that would keep those two plants viable, and it means they could someday be completed down the road ... Without it, they would have been very difficult to finance," said Bob Reed, a BPA spokesman.

Under the revised proposal, if a new plant is needed, the council will consider a variety of factors along with cost, including the time needed to build the resource.

The 88 public utilities participating in the plants led the drive not to exclude them and asked the council to refigure its cost analysis of finishing the plants versus building coal-fired plants.

Eagles thump Ricks, Utah Tech in tourney

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — One game was messy while the other was neat, but the ease with which the College of Southern Idaho won two games in its own Invitational Tournament Friday was smooth.

In their first victory, the Eagles overcame an early defensive lapse to rout Ricks College. 14-1 CSI returned three hours later a changed team, playing errorless ball behind left-hander Steve Clemens in a 9-1 triumph over Utah Tech, which had won twice Thursday. Treasure Valley Community College stomped Ricks in the other game, 12-1.

The tourney concludes today at Frontier Field with Utah Tech facing Ricks at 11 a.m. and CSI meeting TVCC at approximately 1:30 p.m.

CSI 14, Ricks 4

CSI needed a measure of good luck to administer its thrashing in the first game, which was halted after five innings when the two-hour, 15-minute time limit expired.

Ricks had taken a 3-1 lead, parlaying three Eagle errors into three unearned second-inning runs, when CSI erupted for 12 runs in the third. The eruption was delayed, though, by three outs that weren't.

After Ernie Santamaria led off the third with a single, Scott Pugmire hit into what appeared to be a 3-4-3 double play. However, the umpires ruled that both shortstop Ray Atkinson and first baseman Talin Bingham had failed to touch their bases, rendering Santamaria and Pugmire safe.

"That guy (Atkinson) was never on the bag," CSI Coach Jim Walker said. "And he (Bingham) was way off."

One out later, Lynn VanFevry walked to load the bases. Rod Gust then lined the first of his two hits in the inning, driving home two runs and momentarily tying the score.

Gary Krumm flew out, but Tim Anderson walked, filling the bases again. Jeff Schow then lifted a pop fly to Bingham in foul ground. As the Vikings began to head off the field and fans advanced toward the tiny concession stand, Bingham dropped the ball, allowing Schow to remain at the plate.

Granted this reprieve, Schow bounced one slowly toward third baseman Randy Astin. Astin also dropped the ball, but had no chance to get anybody anyway. VanFevry scoring.

With the bases still loaded, Phil Braase rocketed a double to left field, chasing in three runs. Three more runs soon scored: Ernie Santamaria walked, and Pugmire stroked an opposite-field home run over the left-field fence, putting CSI on top 10-3.

The Eagles' lead ballooned as Mickey Lucero walked, went to second on a wild pitch and scored when Viking reliever Darren Watson collided VanFevry's grounder and threw wildly past first base. VanFevry went to second on the play and came across when Gust propelled a scorching double down the left-field line. Blake Jensen's base hit then scored Gust, ending the inning's carnage.

CSI opened the scoring in the second, when VanFevry sent a 3-2 pitch far over the left-field fence. But errors by VanFevry, Mike Duncan and Braase and Astin's bases-loaded single betrayed CSI starter Tracy Poulson and helped Ricks grab its short-lived lead.

"We weren't exactly sparkling," Walker sneered, recalling his team's defensive transgressions. "We were definitely 'puckering the cheeks.'"

McGinnis, Miller, Butts lead Bruin girls to track victory

By LARRY HOVY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls' dominating senior trio of Sally Butts, Nancy McGinnis and Macie Miller combined for seven firsts plus others in relays to give the Bruin girls a storming 83-43 decision over defending state champion Pocatello Friday.

But the Pocatello boys, taking three relays and dominating in the dashes and hurdles, beat the Bruin boys 72-31. Idaho Falls finished third on both counts.

Butts again tripled in the sprints, clicking off times of 11.9, 25.1 and 59.1, while McGinnis ran off surprisingly easily with the distances. Miller claimed the high hurdles and the long jump with a solid 18-1/2. All three have signed scholarship letters of intent with College of Southern Idaho.

Butts also anchored the winning mile relay while Miller participated in the winning of the 400 and 1600-meter baton events.

Jerome Wednesday and sent a partial contingent to the Boise Relays next Saturday.

Winning this event, however, didn't avenge the loss to the Indian girls in the state finals last spring. There were extenuating circumstances in that the Indians left their best hurdler home and three-time distance state champion Carol Bradley finished well back in both races because of bronchitis.

In the boys division, Pocatello simply had too many guns for the Bruins, particularly in the long sprints.

Matt Lammers ran off with the 100 and 200-meter victories and then followed teammate Paul Mullins across in the quarter.

"After I saw the open 400, I had a pretty good idea how the mile relay was going to turn out," said Bruin Coach Jerry Kleinkopf.

Hector Rodriguez claimed both hurdles for Pocatello.

Twin Falls got a big day from senior Chris Williams who claimed the half-mile in 1:59.5 and then led a three-way sweep in the mile in 4:41. Rod Urbe was second there and ran off with the 3200-meter run.

Twin Falls now heads for a long stint away from Basin Stadium, not returning until the Twin Falls Classic June 6. The Bruins will meet Jerome, Mountain Home and Minico at

Rain cancels Masters' second round

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Severe rain and thunderstorms washed out the second round of the Masters Friday, creating a strong possibility that the tournament will be carried over at least until Monday.

"I think we'll probably be playing on Tuesday," two-time Masters champion Tom Watson said while having a leisurely rainy day lunch in the clubhouse. "The weather looks terrible and it looks like it's going to last two days."

Weather permitting, the second round will be played Saturday, starting at 11 a.m. EST, and 36 holes on Sunday, which would mark a first for the tradition rich Masters.

If the rain persists — and forecasts call for it to continue overnight and into Sunday morning — it is also possible that a Masters champion will not be crowned this year.

"I kind of have a gut feeling we should not have a Masters champion on something less than 72 holes," said Ford Hardin, chairman of the Masters committee. "We'd still pay (the prize money), but I don't think we should name a champion under those circumstances."

At an evening news conference, with the rain still falling on Augusta National, inundated with water, Hardin said players would go off in groups of three from the first and 10th tees Saturday if conditions permit. It is hoped that play can begin at 11 a.m., and Hardin said they could wait as late as 12:30 p.m. to get the round started.

As soon as we can get started we'll just go ahead," Hardin said. "The forecast is for clearing by noon tomorrow. If they're as accurate as they were today, we will be all right."

"We're a pretty good risk now to get together with at least by Monday."

If the second round is completed

Rain water swirls over and throw Augusta National Course to give Masters field the day off

Saturday, the third round would be started at 7 a.m. Sunday, also with groups starting at the first and 10th tees, and the final round would start at noon.

If a complete round cannot be finished Saturday, it would almost certainly mean the final round would be held over until Monday.

This is the first time since 1973 that a complete round was called off at the Masters, but marks the third week in a row, and the fourth time this year, that rain caused postponement on the PGA Tour. In each of the last two weeks—the tournament wasn't concluded until Monday.

Following Thursday's first round, which was interrupted by rain for almost an hour, Ray Floyd, Gil Morgan and Jack Renner shared the lead at 5-under-par 67. There was a five-way tie at 68 including Arnold Palmer, Seve Ballesteros, J.C. Snead, Charles Coody and amateur Jim Hallett.

Defending champion Craig Stadler and Bruce Lietzke were another stroke farther back at 69.

Although it is common practice on the tour to declare a champion if weather conditions allow for only 54 holes, Hardin doesn't believe the Masters is ready for this.

"Never say never, but I don't think we'd want to do that," he said.

"We might decide in the worst possible case there wouldn't be a winner this year. For now, I want to keep those options open. I've thought and worried about it."

Watson, who was in a group of 11 players at 70, agrees with Hardin's thinking.

Pro QB in seclusion as bet probe goes on

COLOMBUS (UPI) — Baltimore Colts quarterback Art Schlichter, who rose from farmboy to All-America at Ohio State, was staying with friends in Columbus Friday evening as a central figure in an FBI gambling investigation.

The National Football League and Columbus lawyer Jack Chester, whom Schlichter hired to represent him, said the quarterback is involved in a federal investigation that resulted in the indictments of four Maryland gamblers.

Chester said Schlichter is not in protective custody, but rather was staying with friends in Ohio's Capital City. Asked if Schlichter was frightened, the attorney would say only that he is "cooperating fully with the FBI."

"I think that says it all," Chester said.

A spokesman for the police Organized Crime Bureau said Schlichter was not in protective custody, despite earlier reports to the contrary.

The FBI said it was cooperating in the federal probe and also was conducting its own investigation.

"An NFL representative recently met with Mr. Schlichter and the league will continue its investigation," a spokesman said. "We will have no further statement at this time due to the status of the federal investigation and our own investigation."

Chester, a prominent Ohio Republican who once served as former President Richard Nixon's personal attorney and who represents Scioto Downs Race Track in Columbus, issued a statement saying Schlichter is "a material witness" in the investigation.

"None of the charges involve any football game in which Schlichter, or any team of which he was a member, participated. Schlichter will make no further statement due to the status of the case pending in federal court," said Chester.

The four Maryland gamblers are scheduled for arraignment Thursday.

Schlichter, who evidenced a love for fast cars and fast horses during his collegiate career, was a familiar figure at Central Ohio race tracks while at Ohio State and apparently turned to the FBI when the bookies began pressuring him to pay his debts.

"Schlichter was a gambler but not a skilled gambler," said a person close to the Ohio racing scene. "He would drop $500 to $700 on a horse that didn't have a chance."

From the Schlichter family farm in Fayette County, the quarterback's father said he thought his son "just got pulled in by some big city boys."

"He's doing everything he can to make restitution," said Max Schlichter.

Federal documents did not mention Schlichter by name but said a "private citizen" lost about $380,000 gambling and was in debt for $159,000, most of which was bet recently on basketball games.

Jerome sweeps track meet; Hulsey sends discus mark up

JEROME — The Jerome boys let one track first get away plus a couple of others in the field but it hardly mattered as they smothered four other teams Friday afternoon.

The Tigers, with junior Gary Hulsey hoisting his personal best in the discus to 171 feet to highlight the effort, piled up 143 points, more than doubling runner-up Elko at 71.

It wasn't quite as pronounced in the girls division, although Jerome was the winner there, decisively Elko 82-70.

Hulsey hiked his discus best by two feet over a week ago but the victory was closer than expected. Hulsey got off just one fair throw in the preliminaries — 164 feet — but that was enough to get him into the finals where two scratches accompanied the 171-foot effort. He added another first in the shot put.

Paul Schwager picked up victories in all three sprints and the Tigers swept the four relay events.

Senior Scott Canney, usually a quarter miler, was tested in the half and he responded with victory.

"I had to be impressed with Hulsey's throw in the discus and with Canney in the half. Scott beat some pretty good kids when he got out," said Coach Tim Dunne of Jerome one-two-three-five domination of the 800. "And winning all four relays is a satisfying thing for us."

The one event that eluded Jerome came in the intermediates and that probably was due to the fact that Bob Stone didn't get his run, although he took the high hurdles as usual.

Jerome, both boys and girls, did some shuffling to take a look at possibilities for next week's Boise Relays.

One such switch in the girls long sprinter, Jani James, moved up to the 800, where she won in 2:39. She also grabbed the 200. Susie Cryder of Buhl took both distances and Patricia Correa of Burley won the weights to join James in the winners' circle twice.

Jerome will host Twin Falls, Minico and Mountain Home at 2 p.m. Wednesday.

Stocks gain with late rally

By FRANK W. SLOUSSER
United Press International

NEW YORK — The stock market wrapped up an otherwise dull week on an upbeat note Friday by scoring its second consecutive gain.

The advance was helped by a late rally in oil issues.

"There was some bargain hunting toward the end that indicated the market is not dead," said Tuesday's analyst Evans & Co. vice president.

But the relatively light trading showed megabuck institutional investors still were confused by mixed signals they were receiving about the economy.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which started out strong and then slumped after gaining 4.16 Thursday, wound up rising 7.06 to 1,124.71. But the closely watched average lost 5.32 for the week overall.

The New York Stock Exchange Index gained 0.55 to 87.87 and the price of an average share increased 22 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock Index jumped 1.07 to 153.85. Advances topped declines 912-602 among the 1,037 issues traded.

Big Board volume totaled 67,710,000 shares, down from the 69,480,000 traded Thursday.

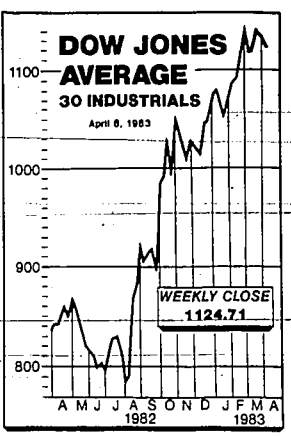

Published reports said consumers have been buying more than government figures showed. But several companies have revised downward their earnings projections for the first quarter.

Anthony Solomon, New York Federal Reserve chairman, said in Geneva there were indications "the real economy (stripped of inflation) grew at a 4 percent annual rate in the first quarter."

He said the recovery probably would not be vigorous but modest and more sustainable than previous rebounds.

The late Dow surge showed "the market is operating on its own dynamics and that looks like a reaffirmation of the upward trend," he said. Barry Bertin, Shearson-American Express vice president.

But Harry Laubscher, Paine Webber, Mitchell Branch vice president, doesn't believe the rally will last. "Investors are worried about earnings reports and a possible boost in short-term interest rates."

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 90,796,890 shares compared with 81,684,330 traded Thursday.

The American Stock Exchange index rose 3.13 to an all-time high of 389.14 and the price of a share added 12 cents. Advances topped declines 347-363 among the 800 issues traded. Composite volume totaled 6,175,120 shares compared with 5,863,800 traded Thursday.

The National Association of Securities Dealers

Automated Quotations Index of 1711 stocks gained 1.36 to 268.10.

On the trading floor, some oil stocks advanced amid signs Britain's recently proposed oil price cuts would be accepted.

Exxon was the second most active NYSE-listed issue, up 1/4 to 32 1/2. Atlantic Richfield followed, up 1 1/2 to 43 1/2.

Among the other oils, California Standard gained 1/4 to 38 1/2, Ohio Standard 1/4 to 44 1/2, Phillips 1/4 to 34 1/2, Indiana Standard 1/4 to 44, Mobil 1/4 to 28 1/2, and Union Oil of California 1/4 to 33 1/2.

Gulfstream Air was issued topped the NYSE active list, up 1/2 to 20 1/2.

Texas Instruments fell 2 to 161. The company plans to cut the price of its 69-44 home computer to about $100, effective June 1, according to published reports.

The Texas Instruments report dragged down some other high-technology stocks. Commodore International shed 3/4 to 71 1/2, Tandy Corp. 3/4 to 57 1/2, Warner Communications 1/4 to 77 1/2, Teledyne 1 1/2 to 145 1/2, Digital Equipment 1/4 to 116 and Honeywell 1 to 89 1/2.

Tronics Computer, ebbered earlier this week after forecasting lower results, dropped 1/4 to 32. Medtronic dropped 4 to 42 1/2. Morgan Stanley downgraded the stock, according to trading sources.

Shakelee, which skidded 4 1/2 Thursday, gained 3 1/2 to 54 1/2. The company said late Friday it expected second-quarter earnings to double those of a year ago.

Freewood Enterprises, which commenced a 1-million-share offering last 1/4 to 22 1/2.

First Chicago Corp. jumped 3/4 to 23 1/2 after the bank holding company posted first-quarter earnings of 96 cents a share vs. 83 cents a year ago.

On the Amex, Cyprus Corp. led the actives, off 1/4 to 2 1/2. Wang Laboratories class B followed, up 1 to 33 1/2. Petro-View, which denied reports of a cash squeeze, was third, up 1/4 to 9 1/2.

Geac Telescan, a 2-point winner Thursday, rose another 1 1/2 to 52. The company said it knew of no reason for the sharp increase in its stock.

MSI Data, which forecast lower fourth-quarter and fiscal year results, lost 1 1/2 to 17 1/2.

Nation's money supply declines

NEW YORK (UPI) — The measure of the nation's money supply known as M1 fell 500 million in the latest week, a favorable figure in light of predictions of an increase.

This week's decline was positive for the markets following the recent rise in short-term interest rates.

But analysts said participants will take a wait-and-see posture until next week's report on the first week of the second quarter, when money supply historically shows a huge rise.

"If money is up several billion next week, the Fed will find it difficult to shrug off concerns about interest rates," said one analyst.

The Federal Reserve has been attempting to "talk down" long-term interest rates through loans to the press and high pronouncements that the high federal funds rate of recent weeks is not significant.

The Fed reported that M1, the measure of money supply that the public has available for immediate spending — with the potential for reinflating inflation — was a seasonally adjusted average of $497.1 billion in the week ended March 30, compared with $497.2 billion the previous week.

In the latest 13 weeks, M1 averaged a 13.7 percent rate of gain.

Commercial and industrial loans at the nation's major banks fell $647 million in the week ended March 29 compared with a decline of $376 million the previous week.

Key interest rates fell in the banking week ended Wednesday. The federal funds rate averaged 9.43 percent, up from 8.88 percent the week earlier.

The Treasury has eased to 8.55 percent from 8.61 percent. The rate on three-month certificates of deposit averaged 9.04 percent, up from 8.99 percent the week before.

Erasable disc recorder offered by Matsushita

NEW YORK (UPI) — Matsushita Electric Industrial Co., Japan's leading electronic products manufacturer, announced development of a revolutionary video disc system capable of not only recording 15,000 color still pictures on a single disc but also erasing and reusing memory by employing laser technology.

Matsushita, maker of Panasonic products, is the first company to introduce the erasable and replaceable memory function in an optical disc recording system.

It said the eight-inch optical disc allows erasing and recording more than one million times.

Matsushita plans to start marketing the system — called Erasable Optical Memory Disc Recorder System — in the United States next year.

The company also announced it will put on the U.S. market in May an Optical Document File System capable of recording, storing, retrieving, printing and transmitting a large volume of documents electronically.

The system — consisting of a main unit for electronic filing, input and output unit with optical character reader and printer, and an operational keyboard unit — can record 10,000 letter-size documents in an eight-inch-diameter optical disc by using semiconductor laser technology.

It can also be hooked up to facsimile equipment for transmission of recorded information, Matsushita said.

The new erasable function will allow organizations who use such machines for cataloging and electronic filing to update information on the disc files.

At a news conference to introduce erasable memory system, Dr. Shigeru Hayakawa, Matsushita's senior manager director, said, "Conventional optical memory discs now available from other companies record the signals on a disc by making small holes, called pits, on a disc by evaporating the disc's recording material with the heat of a laser beam."

These pits make the information on the disc permanent and not erasable.

OPEC seeks accord, Venezuelan says

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries wants to establish a long-term agreement between OPEC and non-OPEC oil producers, Venezuelan Energy and Mines Minister Humberto Calderon said Friday.

The minister said OPEC's 13-member board of governors will meet in Vienna April 16 and two days later the cartel's market monitoring committee will convene in London.

The four-nation market monitoring committee will review OPEC's recent pricing and production agreement and the international oil market situation, Calderon said. Oil ministers from the United Arab Emirates, Algeria, Indonesia and Venezuela make up the committee.

The monitoring committee will study "the performance of non-OPEC producers, particularly North Sea producers, in recent weeks," the Venezuelan minister said. Britain and Norway have proposed a 30-cent-a-barrel cut in their North Sea crude that is compatible with OPEC's recent decision to lower its base oil price by $5 to $29 a barrel.

"We are seeking a long-term agreement between OPEC and non-OPEC producers, including the Soviet Union," he said.

Calderon said he would meet with British Energy Minister Nigel Lawson on recent negotiations between OPEC and non-OPEC producers.

In February the Soviet Union cut its oil prices, prompting Britain to offer a $3-a-barrel drop in its North Sea crude. Nigeria broke ranks with OPEC and unilaterally slashed its oil by $5.50 a barrel, setting the stage for an all-out price war.

Calderon said he would meet with OPEC and non-OPEC producing nations to gain support for averting a world-oil price collapse. Britain, Norway and Mexico have kept their oil in line with OPEC's new $29 base price.

The Venezuelan minister said OPEC's board of governors will deal mainly with "administrative issues" during their Vienna meeting, which resumes a 12-day meeting in London last month.

Calderon also said that Venezuela will reduce its oil production to 1.7 million barrels a day as of April 1 to comply with its output quota set by OPEC at the London conference.

New deadline on insurance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department Friday extended the deadline for farmers buying insurance from the Federal Crop Insurance Corp.

Faster deadlines have been set both for farmers applying for crop insurance and for filing for individual yield certification on their crops.

Agency manager Merritt Sprague said the extension was needed because the government's new crop reduction programs have generated a heavier workload in department offices and employees need more time to complete the certification process.

Farmers who normally would be required to apply for crop insurance by March 31 now have until April 15, and those who would have been required to apply by April 15 now have until April 30, the agency said.

Exchange earnings increase

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Stock Exchange said Friday it earned $8.8 million last year, up $2.5 million from 1981.

The results were announced in the exchange's annual report. Chairman William M. Batten and President John J. Pheasant said the stock market "gave America its most exciting news" in a year "when buoyancy and economic optimism were generally in short supply."

They said trading volume on the exchange for the year was up almost 39 percent to a record 16.4 billion shares and the NYSE composite stock index rose 14 percent to 91.03. Gross revenue of the exchange rose 10.1 percent to $164.2 million. Expenses rose only 7.4 percent and members' equity climbed to $117.6 million from $108.7 million.

Yields up for funds over week

NEW YORK (UPI) — Yields rose for the third consecutive week on both money market mutual funds and thrifts, reflecting the rise in other short-term rates.

Money fund assets fell for the 18th week.

The Bank Rate Monitor, based in Miami, said the average rate paid on money market deposit accounts at banks and thrift institutions was 8.38 percent up from 8.31 percent last week. The average rate on Super-NOW accounts rose to 7.18 percent from 7.14 percent the previous week.

Dougherty's Money Fund Report, Holliston, Mass., said average seven-day yields on money market funds rose to 8.04 percent from 7.84 percent, 30-day yields were up to 7.84 percent from 7.77 percent.

The Bank Rate Monitor said New York area institutions were offering the highest rates in the five large city areas it monitors.

The firm also released its first index on 2 1/2-year deregulated certificates which became available April 1. It said 45 of the 50 largest institutions in the country were offering the 2 1/2-year investment and the average rate paid was 9.74 percent.

Gail Liberman, editor of the publication, said "most of the activity in 2 1/2-year certificates was in Chicago, where many institutions were offering 10 percent or more and where there were lots of promotions."
