Longest session ends Last minute measures approved at frenzied pace

By MARK SHENEFEILT
United Press International

BOISE — State legislators concluded the longest lawmaking session in Idaho history Thursday, running through a half-cent sales-tax hike and topping off a $451.6 million general-account budget which Gov. John Evans says he will pick apart with a new round of vetoes.

As the House and Senate approached final adjournment of the 95-day 1983 session Thursday night, the Democratic chief executive said he probably would summon lawmakers back to Boise in about two weeks to reconsider budget and water-rights issues.

In return, Republican legislative leaders declared that a special session — to be pegged on proposals for new funding for public schools and higher education and more action on Idaho Power Co.'s Swan Falls water rights — could result in smaller, not larger, appropriations.

The turbulent first regular session of the 47th Legislature was gavelled to a close at 8:01 p.m. in the House by Speaker T.W. Stivers, and at 8:17 p.m. in the Senate by President Pro Tem James Risch — who was sitting in as the upper chamber's presiding officer in the absence of Lt. Gov. David Leroy.

Lawmakers worked at a frenzied pace throughout the day to set budgets and raise revenue to cover those spending figures.

The final turning point came when the Senate voted 18-17 to give final legislative approval for a bill boosting the sales tax to 4 1/2 cents, raising an estimated $27 million.

The measure passed only because Sen. Yearl Crystal, R-Idaho Falls, at the last moment changed his vote from "nay" to "aye."

Once the sales-tax hike was approved, legislators were free to wind up action on numerous appropriations bills — most of them pump-

The chief executive also indicated he was leaning toward vetoing revised appropriations of $13.4 million for vocational education and $4 million for the junior colleges at Twin Falls and Coeur d'Alene.

As they began packing their personal possessions for trips back home, the 105 lawmakers reflected on the longest legislative meeting in the state's 93 years. The 95-day session broke the old 1967 record by six days, and it was the first regular session to extend into April.

It took lawmakers until the last day to finish their central job of setting the fiscal 1984 state general fund budget. The $451.6 million package is $14 million below the amount originally appropriated for fiscal 1983, but some $11 million above the budget after a series of mid-year cuts.

This year, legislators pressed over the biggest round of tax increases in the state's history, a result of an

Extra session talk irks GOP

Governor Evans, lawmakers trade threats on budget issues

By MARK SHENEFEILT
United Press International

BOISE — Gov. John Evans said Thursday night he is prepared to "go to the mat" with the Legislature by calling a special session to continue his crusade to bolster education budgets.

Republican legislators issued equally tough pronouncements, saying they are unwilling to raise taxes one more penny or funnel more state dollars into programs covered by budgets set during the regular session, which ended Thursday night.

In a two-page letter signed by 69 Republican legislators, Evans was warned that the Legislature's majority is "firmly resolved" against additional tax hikes.

Furthermore, House Speaker T.W. Stivers, R-Twin Falls, threatened in a post-adjournment news conference that budgets might be slashed, instead of raised, if the governor orders a special session.

"There is no more money in the well," Stivers said. "The only way we can go is down, instead of up."

Senate President Pro Tem James Risch, R-Boise, also was insistent.

"If we come back here again, the exact same budgets are going to be passed again," Risch said. "It's the special session" would be a total waste of the taxpayers' money.

But in an interview in his office as lawmakers were driving toward adjournment of the 95-day session — the longest regular legislative gathering in Idaho history — Evans said he would not swerve from his effort to provide "adequate" funding for education.

"It is not proper for the Legislature to threaten the governor," The Democratic chief executive said. "I will go to the mat with them."

Evans said he would veto the last two major budget bills passed by the Legislature before it adjourned: $215 million for public schools in fiscal 1984 and $70 million for higher education.

Thus, the 105 lawmakers will get about a two-week "vacation" before they are commanded to return to the Statehouse to consider the budget issues, Evans said.

Evans also said he was considering vetoes of a $13.4 million appropriation for vocational education and $4 million for Idaho's junior colleges, at Twin Falls and Coeur d'Alene.

The Legislature's final overall appropriation of $451.6 million in state general funds for fiscal 1984 was $23 million less than originally requested by Evans, although it was only about $10 million to $15 million below "compromise" figures mentioned by the governor as the session wore on.

A new look at the dispute over Idaho Power Co.'s Swan Falls water rights also might be on the special-session call, the governor said.

Evans failed to persuade the Legislature in its regular session to pass a bill subordinating the utility's Swan Falls water rights in favor of other uses, such as for upstream irrigation and culinary water supplies.

Stivers said legislators looked on that item as well with displeasure.

Adelman confirmed as arms control chief

By ROBERT SHEPARD
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Senate, handing President Reagan a major victory, Thursday confirmed his controversial and hard-fought nomination of Kenneth Adelman as the nation's arms control chief.

The Senate voted to confirm Adelman 57-42, a wider margin than expected, following three months of controversy.

Reagan expressed hope the vote will usher in a "new bipartisan consensus on arms reduction." Both he and Adelman, 36, pledged full consultation with Congress.

But Senate Democrats, who fought the nomination were pessimistic.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, called Adelman's confirmation "a victory for the enemies of arms control within the Reagan administration."

Reagan chose Adelman to be director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency Jan.

12 and refused to abandon the nomination despite repeated attacks on his qualifications and commitment to arms control. Reagan and his top aides lobbied personally for Adelman in the days before the vote.

"It's my earnest hope that this positive step will mark the beginning of a new bipartisan consensus on the vital issue of nuclear arms reduction," Reagan said in a statement to reporters two hours after the vote.

"As we seek equitable and verifiable agreements with the Soviet Union to reduce the arsenals and the risks of war we will need the advice and support of the Congress. I'm confident that with the full consultation with Congress and the development of our arms reduction initiatives the United States can continue to be a force for genuine peace and progress in the world."

"And if we're met with reciprocal seriousness of purpose from the Soviet Union, 1983 can be a year of historic importance in securing a solid and stable peace through arms reductions."

Cyclops files suit against Harold Simmons

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

PITTSBURGH — The Pittsburgh-based Cyclops Corp. filed a lawsuit Thursday, charging Texas businessman Harold Simmons, and eight employee pension plans of companies that he controls, with illegally failing to disclose the use of pension-fund assets in recent purchases of Cyclops stock.

The Amalgamated Sugar Co. pension trust fund for union employees and the Amalgamated Sugar pension trust fund for non-union employees are two of the funds named in the suit.

The suit comes in reaction to what Cyclops Corp. — a diversified company with interests in steel, specialty steel, non-residential construction and specialty retailing — perceives as an attempt by Simmons to seize control of the company.

Simmons now has used money from employee trust funds of companies he controls, including Amalgamated Sugar, which has a plant in Twin Falls, to buy 5.29 percent of outstanding Cyclops stock, the suit charges.

That represents 182,500 shares of the stock, which is traded on the New York Stock Exchange, at a total worth of $4.1 million.

According to a Cyclops spokesman, $688,880 from the Amalgamated Sugar union pension trust fund "has been used to purchase 26,300 shares of Cyclops stock, and $488,339 has been used from Amalgamated's non-union pension trust fund to buy 37,600 shares, as of April 4."

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court in Pennsylvania, charges that Simmons has violated a section of the Securities Exchange Commission Act of 1934.

However, Simmons, in several interviews with The Times-News in the past two weeks, has denied that his financial dealings have violated the law in any way.

Among other things, it charges that he failed to state in his filing, under that act, that he violated provisions of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act.

Simmons' filing was, therefore, false and materially misleading, the complaint charges.

Federal labor law prohibits the investment of pension trust funds in ways that may directly benefit a trustee.

Cyclops is seeking preliminary and permanent injunctions against Simmons that would prohibit him from acquiring further Cyclops shares, or seeking to "influence" company policy in any way.

Cyclops also is seeking a divestiture of all Cyclops shares owned by the trust funds.

The Amalgamated Sugar plant in Twin Falls employs 250 area residents. The company employs 1,000 statewide.

Day of taxpayers reckoning is here

Federal and state returns both due today

By The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Taxpayers with unfinished income-tax returns have stalled the day of reckoning as long as they can.

It's April 15, the deadline for filing millions of checks and forms. The nation's tax collector, the Internal Revenue Service, levies a penalty on returns postmarked later than midnight tonight.

The government agency still was expecting another 25 million 1040s in the mail earlier this week. State income-tax returns also are due today. So, post-office lobbies are likely to be crowded today, and collection boxes undoubtedly will be crammed with IRS-bound envelopes.

One branch of the federal government, the U.S. Postal Service, will give last-minute matters in many areas a helping hand by making extra collections.

In Twin Falls, postal employees will add a midnight collection at boxes around the post office, says Steve Hurd, the town supervisor of mails. The boxes affected will be along Second Avenue West and Third Street West, immediately around the post office.

However, the last collections in other sections of the city will be at the normal times listed on the boxes, he said.

The post-office lobby will stay open until 10 p.m., but service windows will close at 5 p.m. as usual. People who need help weighing returns after the windows close can knock at the wooden door in the lobby, Hurd said.

While taxpayers rush to the post office to send in their taxes on time, three area peace groups will be expressing their concern about what Uncle Sam does with the tax money once it arrives.

As part of a national protest, the groups — the Magic Valley Fellowship of Reconciliation, the Snake-River Alliance, and the Groundwater Alliance of Blaine County — will hand out flyers at area post offices, urging lower U.S. defense spending and a halt to the arms race.

The Rev. Erv Huston, the fellowship coordinator and the pastor of the Church of the Brethren in Twin Falls, says the groups will distribute leaflets protesting President Ronald Reagan's $1.6 trillion defense budget over the next five years.

The advocates will be outside the post office.

In brief

Tax cut repeal loses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — By one vote, the Senate Budget Committee Thursday killed a Democratic move to repeal the third year of the Reagan tax cut, then recessed until next week when efforts to break a deadlock on tax cuts failed.

The panel was forced to recess at midday to seek a compromise on how much taxes to raise — the last key component of the 1984 budget plan the committee is drafting — but was unsuccessful during six hours of private talks.

Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., emerged to announce the committee would recess until Tuesday, when Senate Republican leaders had originally hoped to begin debate before the full Senate.

But Domenici and Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., the committee's ranking Democratic, spoke of a "genuine spirit" on both sides to reach an agreement.

Republicans, who hold a 12-10 edge on the committee, were sharply divided on the tax issue and bickered among themselves to the amusement of their Democratic colleagues.

Mexican bank seized

POCHUTLA, Mexico (UPI) — About 600 peasants seized a government bank in southeastern Oaxaca state for three hours and won a pledge for greater agricultural credits, a city official said Thursday.

Following the takeover, Mexico unveiled a 67 percent hike in 1983 agricultural credits, raising the total amount for the year to $1.25 billion, the government-owned newspaper El Nacional said.

Teamsters president resigns

CHICAGO (UPI) — Teamsters President Roy Williams will resign as head of the nation's largest labor union to stay out of prison while he appeals his bribery conviction, his attorney said in court Thursday.

Raymond G. Larroca, representing the federal union leader, said a federal judge Williams would sever from the appeal in return for his freedom on bail during the appeal of his conviction for trying to bribe a U.S. senator.

Larroca made the comments in an emergency hearing before U.S. District Judge Prentice H. Marshall, who presided at the trial of Williams and four others and sentenced Williams two weeks ago. Marshall at that time indicated he would consider allowing Williams to remain free on appeal bond if he bowed out of the union.

Folsom gang fight erupts

FOLSOM, Calif. (UPI) — A racially motivated gang fight erupted at Folsom State Prison Thursday and six convicts were stabbed, one seriously. Guards fired 14 warning shots to break up the fight, authorities said.

The melee broke out in a small exercise yard of the security housing unit. An isolated section considered the most secure section of the maximum security prison, said spokesman Gil Miller.

Miller said nine members of the Texas Syndicate, a Mexican-American gang, and nine members of the Aryan Brotherhood, a white gang, were in the yard when the fight erupted.

House comprises own list

BOISE (UPI) — Several House members, reacting against a ratings list of legislators compiled by some members of the Statehouse press corps, have released their own roster of the best and worst reporters covering the 1983 session.

Senators, meanwhile, say they also compiled a ratings list but have decided not to make the selection public.

Senate President Pro Tem James R. Rife, R-Boise, said leaders in the upper chamber decided against releasing their list, even though many lawmakers submitted nominations to his office.

"The House list, released by Rep. Donna Scott, R-Twin Falls, recognized Bruce Hammond of The Times-News as the outstanding reporter of lower-chamber activities and praised his coverage of Idaho water issues."

"I said Rod Gramer of The Idaho Statesman in Boise was the 'worst reporter,'" Marc Johnson of television station KATV in Boise was the "most biased" and Jim Fisher of The Lewiston Morning Tribune was the "most erroneous" journalist watching the House.

Hammond, Fisher, Johnson and Gramer were among 10 full-time legislative reporters who participated recently in a controversial rating of House and Senate members.

Others included: Steven Christensen and Mark Schmeffel of UPI, John Kennedy of AP and Charles Elinger of The Statesman. Two other members of the group did not want their names made public.

Scott said the list was compiled by about a dozen House members. She declined to release the identities of the other representatives, saying they had refused to sign the roster.

"I take full responsibility," she said.

Other reporters included on the list, and the categories as written by the House press corps, were:

- Best: William The Christian Science Monitor.
- Worst: editorialist; The Idaho Statesman.
- Most biased reporter runner-up: Diane Joseph, a columnist covering the session for several Idaho weeklies, who is named on the list as Mrs. John Passey. She is the wife of the Senate Democratic caucus chairman.
- Lack of objectivity in reporting: Quane Kenyon of The Associated Press.
- Anti-establishment reporting: Rick Ripley of The Statesman.
- Biggest: Windbag and Most Senile Reporter: Ben Franklin of the Idaho Falls Post-Register.
- Most consistent: Always 180 degrees off: Bill Hall of The Lewiston Morning Tribune.
- Most out of context: Charles Elinger of The Statesman.
- Special citation for New Deal reporting: John Corlett, retired political editor of The Statesman.
- Best TV cameraman: Bob Miller of KTVB-TV.
- Most courteous TV newsman: Eric Malone of KATV.
- Smartest reporter: the late Steve Ahrens, former political editor of The Statesman.
- Monkey see-monkey do: Statesman Times-News.
- Worst article exposing: papers in search of scandal: Reporter for The North Idaho Press.
- Superior: Superstar: Issue: state funding for education.
- Included with the list was a statement saying "The members of the House felt it was only fair (and a little bit fun) to share their opinions of the illustrious and eloquent press. The selections were made with full regard to political bias."
- "The votes were based on first inaccuracy, slanted reporting, misinterpretation, character assassination, issue saturation and questionable veracity."
- The list of legislators was initially published on the editorial page of The Lewiston Morning Tribune.
- Several lawmakers complained some of the selections were made in "poor taste."
- Categories included best and worst committee chairmen, best and worst freshmen lawmakers, rising and falling stars in the Legislature, and special categories for "windbags" and "whiners."

Legislators divide $30 million in funds

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Legislature completed its work late Thursday by racing through a pile of appropriations bills, dividing up nearly $30 million among the state's public schools, higher education institutions and agencies.

The extra funds, which brought the fiscal year 1983 total spending package to $451.6 million, came after hard-fought battles in the last days of the record-setting 96-day session to gain passage of a $27 million sales-tax hike and other measures expected to pump about $2.8 million into the general account.

Lawmakers searched for extra money after Democratic Gov. John Evans vetoed more than a dozen budget proposals on the grounds they were too low to properly fund the school system and state-agency operations.

Those allocations, approved during a marathon floor session in the GOP-controlled House and Senate Thursday, included spending increases for the following programs and departments. All figures reflect general-account (GA) support unless otherwise indicated:

- Agriculture Research: An additional $175,000 was given to the University of Idaho's agriculture extension and research program, bringing general-fund support to $8.5 million.
- Auditor: The Legislature pumped in an extra $75,000 after Auditor Joe Williams said his office could not perform its constitutional duties on the $1.7 million originally passed by the House and Senate.
- Colleges and Universities: Idaho's four institutions of higher learning would split an additional $2 million in GA support. The total general-fund appropriation was $70 million.
- Governor's Office: Lawmakers added $120,000 to the $4.5 million initially approved by both chambers.
- Historical Society: Lawmakers appropriated an extra $40,000 to bring support to $567,000.
- Insurance Department: $30,000 in support bolstered the agency's $719,000 initial GA appropriation.
- Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee: An extra $50,000 in general funds and $50,000 from interagency billings was added to the budget for the Legislature's spending committee. Officials said the funds would be used to hire two additional auditors for federal grants. Total general fund support of $3.2 million for the legislative branch.

- Junior Colleges: House and Senate members agreed to provide an extra $200,000 for Idaho's two institutions. The total GA allocation of $4 million would be split roughly equally between the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls and North Idaho College in Coeur d'Alene.
- Lands Department: This department received an extra $100,000, which Sen. David Little, R-Emmett, said should save four of the eight positions the agency expects to terminate next year. The total general-account spending was $4.8 million.
- Law Enforcement: An additional $200,000 will bring GA support to $3.2 million. The funding would go toward hiring of four new narcotics investigators and six Idaho State Police troopers.
- Public Broadcasting: Despite the protests of some Republicans, the state's three-station public television network was given $40,000 in addition to its prior $243,000 allotment. Senators said the funds would allow continued employment of a station manager at KUID in Moscow and replacement of some outdated equipment.

- Public Schools: Lawmakers agreed to raise their initial $212 million allocation by $3 million.
- School for the Deaf and Blind: Legislators gave an additional $100,000, bringing GA spending to $2.7 million.
- State Library: An extra $40,000 brought the system's GA support to $1 million.
- Vocational Education: These secondary and post-secondary training programs received $200,000 in additional support, for a total GA package of $13.3 million.
- Vocational Rehabilitation: Idaho's programs to train disabled workers received a $100,000 supplemental allotment. Total GA package of $1.6 million.
- Water Resources: The Legislature added $75,000 to the agency, bringing general-fund spending to $2.9 million.

'So-called' 50-50 bill finally approved

By STEVEN CHRISTENSEN
United Press International

BOISE — After weeks of haggling on the floor and in committee, lawmakers gave final legislative approval Thursday to a bill which modifies the so-called "50-50" property-tax initiative to restrict the proposal to owner-occupied homes.

Senators adopted the House-endorsed measure, 23-12, and sent it to Gov. John Evans.

The governor has said he would prefer that the initiative — supported by nearly 60 percent of the voters last November — remain in its pure form. But he has not indicated he would veto a measure excluding from tax relief summer homes and other residences occupied only on a part-time basis.

The bill would allow exemptions of $50,000 or 50 percent of a home's value, whichever is less, from property taxes. The break would only apply to houses which serve as the primary residence for a taxpayer.

Analysts said the initiative as written would shift about $24 million in residential taxes to other classes of property such as farms, industry and business.

In its amended form, officials expected the shift to total about $16 million.

Lawmakers initially approved a revision limiting the exemption to $15,000 or 50-percent of house value. But Evans vetoed the measure, claiming it went too far in restricting the will of the electorate.

During final Senate debate on the measure, Sen. Gary Gould, D-Pocatello, said the proposal amounted to "legislative fine-tuning" which strikes a "fair balance" between homeowners and businesses that will absorb the extra tax load.

Sen. Bill Moore, R-Hayden Lake, said he would have preferred the bill vetoed by Evans.

economic downturn which drastically reduced revenues under the old tax structure.

The majority Republicans, in their letter to Evans Thursday night declaring they would not raise any more taxes, put the total increase figure at $138.5 million — more than half of it coming in boosting the sales tax from 3 cents to 4 1/2 cents per dollar of retail purchases.

Legislators also raised the gasoline tax and the taxes which employers must pay into the unemployment insurance fund. They also raised a patchwork of corporate taxes by about $10 million overall.

"There will be no more taxes, period," Risch, R-Boise, said. "We will not raise any more budgets."

Stivers, R-Twin Falls, said GOP leaders hoped their letter would "maybe make an enlightenment" in Evans' mind that legislators are through with raising taxes and boosting budgets.

At mid-day Thursday, it appeared the Legislature was heading into another impasse. Senate Democrats went into an hourlong caucus to consider whether to attempt to attach revenue-increasing riders to the sales-tax bill.

But although most of them debated against the increase, saying they preferred corporate, tax boosts, the minority party members did not propose amendments, and the bill passed on Crystal's tie-breaking vote.

Before that action, the House and Senate deleted from the sales-tax bill an amendment proposed by Sen. Roger Fairchild, R-Fruittland, to exempt Payette and Washington counties. Those counties border Oregon, which does not have a sales tax.

The $215 million appropriation for public schools is $20 million more than the amount first proposed by the Legislature, but still about $3 million below the bottom total which Evans says he may support.

Although April 15 is the income-tax deadline, about 3 million Americans are expected to get official extensions to file late returns for 1982. Taxpayers can request a four-month extension by mailing IRS Form 4868 on time, says Kasey Weigt, of the Twin Falls office of H & R Block Income Tax Service. But, she emphasizes, the extension only pushes back the deadline for filing the form, not for paying any taxes that are due. An estimated tax payment must go in with the form, Weigt explains. Those wanting to delay the filing of Idaho tax returns must use state Form 51, she says.

Many married couples are making a potentially costly mistake this year, Weigt says. New tax laws allow a married couple to trim their tax bill if both spouses are working. They can take an added adjustment to their income by filing an IRS Schedule W. Hurd, at the Twin Falls post office, also warns that mailing a tax return without enough postage could put it back in their mailbox instead of in an IRS office.

Legislature needs replacement policy

The Legislature finally has called it quits for 1983, and unless Gov. John Evans calls a special session, this problem will not come up again this year. But we think there should be a better, set procedure for selecting a replacement for legislators who must abandon their seats in mid-session.

The issue was brought to the forefront this week, when a first-term representative from Wendell, Republican Wes Trounson, left Boise to take a trip to South Korea.

We're sure that Trounson did not want to leave the Legislature during the last critical week, when some of the most important decisions of the session were being made. And his reasons for leaving were valid: He had planned the trip well in advance and who could have foreseen months ago that this Legislature would set an "endurance" record.

To take his place during the last week, Trounson named his daughter, Mary Bubak, who is a physical-education teacher at Jerome High School.

In an interview earlier this week, Bubak said that her father selected her because she thinks like he thinks. Not bad reasoning.

But at the same time, Bubak said: "I don't know what's hot and what isn't. So, all I can do is listen to each side and vote according to what I hear and know."

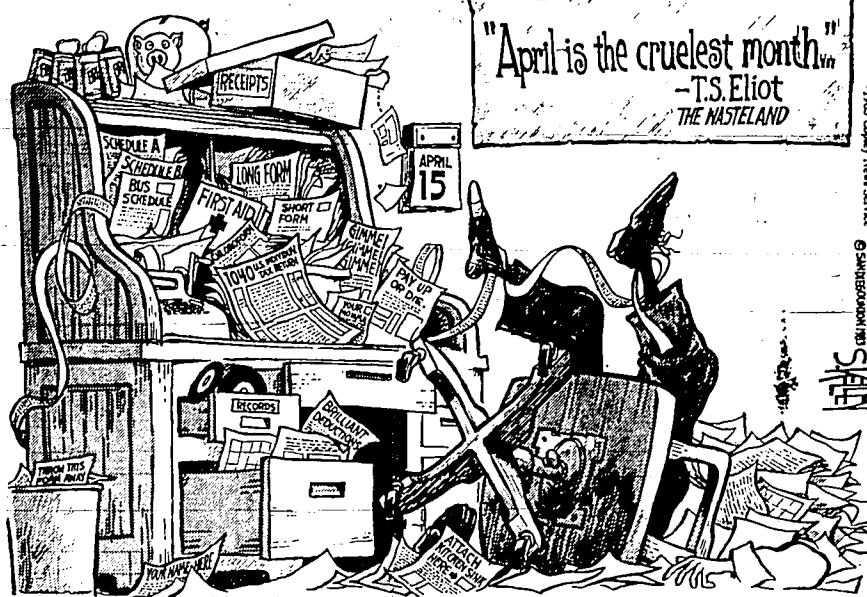

We do not mean to pick on Bubak; she might make a fine representative or senator — some day. But the point is, the residents of Trounson's district deserve better; they deserve to have the best representation possible.

The problem seems to be the system. There should be a set procedure for selecting replacements when legislators, for whatever reason — ill health, personal emergencies — have to leave their elected positions for a short or extended time during the session.

If the Trounson example were an isolated incident, it would be of no great concern. But this has happened several times in the past few years, and there should be some provision to deal with the situation.

Timing makes special elections out of the question. But perhaps the decision should be left to the central committee of the delegate's political party, with concurrence coming from other members of the same party in the affected chamber, House or Senate.

Decisions on important tax and funding legislation should not be left to someone who can "only listen to each side."

'Neighbors' votes needed

A neighbor on one side of the fence decided to vote "yes" on April 19.

The neighbor on the other side of the fence decided to vote "yes" on April 19.

April 19 came and both neighbors decided they were too busy to vote for the new school. Don't let the future of our children go down the drain. Our neighbors' vote only counts as one vote, not three. Just two extra "yes" votes could count.

Aryans should read the Bible

In reference to (some) recent articles and the event staged by the Aryan Nations Church, I would like to clear up some of Mr. Jones' misconceptions and apparent lack of knowing God's word.

In one of the articles he is quoted as saying: "The seat of Christianity is in the white race. I'm not saying other races can't be taught it, but they didn't come up with it."

First of all, the seat of Christianity is in Jesus Christ, not in any race. Second, God came up with it because we could not by the laws he gave Moses, and no race can take credit for establishing Christianity.

Mr. Jones also talks of God's laws. He says: "There is mercy in the laws, but they can't be changed. If you violate the laws, the punishment may be harsh."

This is quite interesting, since the Apostle Paul, in Galatians 3:11-13, says: "For the just shall live by faith. And the law is not of faith, but the man that doeth them shall live in them."

The other philosophy or belief that seems most important to the Aryan Nation is the urgent need for racial purity. If they believe in God, and his word, why don't they read it and follow it?

Mr. Jones is quoted as saying: "We don't hate blacks because they are black. They have their place, just like we do." And he claims all races are inferior to the white race, and that when the Aryan Nations hierarchy is established, non-whites would be required to leave the country.

This is totally contrary to God's will and directly opposed to his word as recorded in the Bible.

True Christianity can be summed up in what Jesus said, in Matthew 22:37-40: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it: Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets."

In closing, I suggest Mr. Jones and his associates read their Bibles and learn God's will.

Forty-seven percent is enough

I just read another bleeding-heart editorial in The Times-News, titled "Who Can Speak Now for Education Funds," on April 7. It seems like we are still in hot pursuit of the course endorsed by Franklin Roosevelt's Henry Hopkins, when he said:

"We shall spend and spend, tax and tax, and elect and elect. The American people are just too damn dumb to understand what is happening to them."

Back about 1973, the patriots threw the tea into the bay when the tax take was about 7 percent. Today, the tax grabbers — through one agency or another — get something like 47 percent of total gross national product, and the media tells us it isn't enough.

I haven't talked to Emmett Harrison or Earl Faulkner or Mark Hanzel, but I do talk to business people, workers, farmers and ranchers about every day. What I hear is we've had enough. When is it going to stop.

Seems to me like the school bond might be a good place to start.

ORVILLE KNIGHTON Twin Falls

Both facilities important

In Twin Falls, we have been lucky. In the past, the community has supported the future by passing bonds needed to support public education. I hope we are also planning on supporting the future.

The elementary school is needed to relieve the overcrowded classrooms, lunchrooms and playgrounds that are now in our community. There are many parts of a school building affected by overcrowding besides the classroom.

The physical-education facility is also needed to help relieve the overcrowded classrooms in our community. Physical education is a very important part of our curriculum. We can't allow our students to deteriorate physically any more than we could allow it mentally. Obviously, the state feels it is necessary because they have required, for the year 1985, an additional credit in physical education.

We would just like to express our strong support for the physical-education facilities and the elementary school. They are both important for the future of Twin Falls.

Noble homicide is not necessarily permissible homicide

WASHINGTON — It is said that hard cases make bad law. But bad law can be made by pretending that hard cases are not cases.

Consider the case of Hans Florian, who on March 18 shot to death the woman to whom he had been married for 33 years. His act was loving, brave, even noble. Nevertheless, it was not an act about which society should be indifferent or permissive, or about which the law should be agnostic. Yet, a Florida grand jury refused to indict him.

Alzheimer's disease began destroying his wife's mind in the late 1970s. There is no known cause or cure for the disease. It causes the brain to shrivel and fill with bubbles and granules.

Soon, his wife could not drive or write, and would panic when he stepped away from her. He and his son by an earlier marriage cared for her, forcing her mouth open for food, and bathing her and changing her clothes five or six times a day as she soiled them.

For most of the past two years, whenever she was not heavily drugged, she howled constantly, and screamed two words, "fire" and "pain," in her native German. Finally, she had to be put in a nursing home for her own safety.

George Will

Hans Florian is 17 years older than she was, and he did not want to die leaving her alone.

This case did not involve any of the multiplying dilemmas occasioned by the sophistication of modern medicine: the mechanical and pharmacological technologies that can prolong a painful process of dying, without altering the prognosis.

This also was not the sort of case for which hospice care is most suited. Such care is designed for the predictable, final period of a terminal disease, during which the patient can lead a tolerable life, enhanced by pain management. Alzheimer's disease can run on and on.

This was not a case where a person had sunk into a condition where, by some arguable definition, death could be said to have occurred. Mrs. Florian's mind was destroyed, but brain death had not happened.

Because Alzheimer's disease is terrifying, irreversible and protracted, Florian's case understandably has led to "There is no way entirely to exclude "quality-of-life" considerations from all controversies in biomedical ethics.

Many persons feel proper anxiety about casual, incoherent injections of "meaningful-life" rhetoric in the 1973 Supreme Court abortion ruling, and in rationalizations for infanticide, even against defects. There fore, many persons have tried to assert "sanctity-of-life" criteria that would enable all decision-making to proceed with consideration of the quality of life a subject can lead.

Quality-of-life assessments are fraught with difficulties and dangers. Current practices offer abundant examples of mistakes and abuses. However, when "heroic" medical measures are employed, or when there is a decision to intervene in a person's life to alter the course nature would take in "taking its course," this is true: You can not judge the morality of what is done without reference to the quality of life that has been extended by her medicine or ended by extreme action.

However, the law cannot quite countenance such extreme measures as Florian's, even when, as in this case, the situation is extreme. Obviously, Florian was in an unsettled frame of mind when carrying out his considered decision to shoot the woman he loved. But he did not try to diminish his responsibility for his action — over there was no ambiguity concerning competent consent: Florian obviously substituted his judgment for that of a person incapable of choosing.

It is, therefore, hard to see how the grand jury can have properly refused to indict. Surely there was probable cause for finding that a crime — homicide — had been committed. Grand juries require less to indict (a finding of probable cause to believe that a crime has been committed) than a trial jury requires to convict (proof of guilt beyond reasonable doubt).

The proper place for society to express compassionate understanding in cases such as Florian's is at the sentencing stage. There should be ample discretion there to enable society to avoid the practice of not indicting when a homicide undoubtedly has occurred. Such a practice would express the dangerous doctrine that certain homicides are matters of indifference to society.

Some cases are hard because this is true: A homicide case can be noble without properly being in the eyes of the law, completely permissible.

The great expectations of the young may be our asset

BOSTON — Diana Zuckerman doesn't look after her recent computer printout sheets with the entirely objective eye of a research psychologist. Something has emerged out of the Seven College Study she's directing at Radcliffe that is unexpected and intriguing.

The figures she lays out on her desk suggest that the women and men at these elite Eastern schools are beginning to express almost identical hopes, values, expectations and life plans.

The career plans of women look almost exactly like those of men. Law, medicine, business and communications attract the sexes equally. Only 10 of the 8,000 women studied at what used to be called the Seven Sister Colleges — Barnard, Bryn Mawr, Mt. Holyoke, Radcliffe, Smith, Vassar and Wellesley — chose homemaking as their future career.

The personal goals of men. In turn, look a great deal like those of the women. About a third of the 1,000 men at the two fully co-ed schools in this study — Harvard and Vassar — said they would prefer to stay home or work part time with their preschool children. The sexes ranked both "time to spend with spouse" and "career" as high priorities.

There in her figures, among the duly designated "best and brightest," are both men and women with great expectations. Men and women who plan to be tops in their field without sacrificing their personal, family lives. Men and women who expect to have it all.

In many ways, the goals they set reflect the women's movement ideal. Yet, looking at those life plans and thinking about the world as it is, Zuckerman can't help expressing a reservation: "Maybe they are unrealistic."

Such a thought is not unlike to this woman, or this study, or this Cambridge campus. Recently in Atlanta, a faculty member at Emory University talked to me about her women students. The younger generation doesn't foresee any special problem getting ahead because they are women, she said. Nor do they predict any trouble balancing family and career. They're certainly, their calm, seem to her, well, unrealistic.

In Florida last month, another woman satirized the expectations of a favorite niece from that generation: corporate officer by 29, full-time mother from 30 to 35, and back on the track to vice president. No problem, smiled this doubtful woman, whose own life was a testimony to the troubles of getting derailed. "They're so unrealistic," she sighed in frustration.

It is no coincidence that all of my reality-testers are in mid-life, people in their 30s and 40s who have done time in the real world. Their concerns for the young people they know are genuine, yet colored by their own experiences and compromises.

They worry whether men and women are going out into the world as unprepared for its pitfalls as preschoolers crossing a highway.

They worry whether they, as the older generation, are doing enough to point out the dangers — over there is sex discrimination, over there are inflexible working conditions, so the young won't get wiped out by the first truck.

On the other hand, some wonder whether this ignorance is an asset. Perhaps it's only the unrealistic young who accomplish great things, even great changes.

Zuckerman looks at her findings and asks and therefore, must be helped to be realistic? Or is being so sure of their goals going to give them the boost they need to make it happen?"

It's a series of questions that seem familiar to most of us. Surely parents ask it about their children. The young musicians, artists, reformers at home tell us of their dreams, and we are conflicted. We want to encourage and protect them.

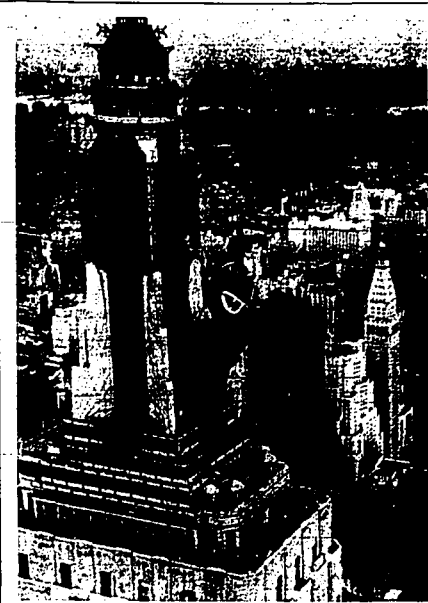

Should we tell them the odds against making a pro basketball team, warn them about the Annual Income of a ballerina, teach them about the struggle of a political life? Will we have made them safe or just killed their dreams? Are we wiser than the young or just wary?

There is probably some good reason why younger people reject the cautions of their elders.

Zuckerman, who is only 32, notes: "The younger women who are really sure of their goals say that what was true for me and my generation is not true for them. They are saying that we just don't know."

Maybe the great expectations of these young men and women will breed disappointment. But maybe they'll feel change. How many of us, after all, are leading lives that were once terribly, terribly unrealistic?

Ellen Goodman writes her column for The Boston Globe.

Kong, sitting atop Empire State Building, is traffic-stopper

New York goes ape for Kong

NEW YORK (UPI) — A giant model of the movie ape King Kong clung to the side of the Empire State Building Thursday, putting smiles on the faces of blase New Yorkers and causing traffic problems as drivers gawked at the beast.

"He's adorable," gushed Freida Faden of Queens while joining a group of lunchtime gawkers who "Kong-gregated" at a midtown street corner, their heads tilted back.

"Only in New York," she smiled. Ricardo Alvarado, who works on the 24th floor of the 102-story State Building, said the vinyl and nylon balloon had "Kong-gerated" late Wednesday spent part of his lunch hour leaning against a building, grinning at the latest addition to the city's skyline.

"It's all right," Alvarado conceded. "When you're around here you see a lot of things." The synthetic ape, who weighs 3,000 pounds inflated, was scheduled to remain in position for a week to 10 days in celebration of the 1933 movie classic, where Kong battled planes out of the sky and held a squirming Fay Wray on his palm.

Prisoners take two hostages

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Two inmates armed with pistols smuggled to them in a "botched" escape plot took a jail guard and a civilian employee hostage Thursday at the Western Penitentiary, a maximum-security state prison.

Slate police at first said the inmates threatened to kill their captives if authorities stormed the prison, but a prison official later said "there have been no overt statements" to that effect and both hostages were unharmed.

The inmates were identified as Richard Henkel, 45, of Pittsburgh, a convicted felon accused in bizarre murder and extortion cases, and Louis Coviello, 26, of Dunmore, Pa., a convicted murderer and robber.

Henkel is charged with plotting to extort money from prominent Pittsburgh residents, including Pittsburgh Steelers owner Art Rooney, by attaching bombs to them.

Officials said the two were in a basement identification center being readied for transfer to a pretrial hearing for Henkel when they overpowered guard Daniel Kohut, 39, and Kostas Mastros, 51, a data supervisor, at about 8:30 a.m.

At nightfall, after a day of telephone negotiations, the inmates still had made no demands except "a request for food," said Thomas Selverling, administrative assistant to prison warden George Felsock.

The warden was on his way to a Florida vacation Thursday and could not be reached by other authorities.

The sheriff's office said it was tipped Wednesday that Henkel and Coviello were planning an escape around the hearing. Prison officials said no weapons or contraband were found in a search of their cells.

Coviello was to testify on Henkel's behalf at the hearing, which stemmed from a 1979 murder case.

Selverling said the escape attempt was to occur "on the way to court or at court. This was definitely an escape attempt that was botched."

Blast stirs Las Vegas

YUCCA FLAT, Nev. (UPI) — A nuclear weapon buried 1,750 feet beneath the pock marked Nevada Test Site was detonated Thursday 80 miles from Las Vegas, where people in highrise buildings felt a rolling earth motion from the blast.

Two helicopters and a fixed wing plane equipped with sophisticated radiation monitoring equipment circled ground zero which bulged upward several feet. The nuclear thump sent a plume of dry desert dust into the sky.

Hanging lamps and objects suspended from the ceiling swayed when earth shock waves from ground zero reached Las Vegas 30 seconds after the blast traveling 10,000 feet per second. People in highrise hotels along the Las Vegas "strip" felt buildings sway as the earth motion was magnified in highrise structures.

The countdown was delayed three hours Thursday because of strong winds in the upper atmosphere which could have carried an accidental leak of radiation into populated areas. A Department of Energy spokesman said monitors detected no radiation leaks.

"It was a successful shot," said a spokesman for the DOE. "Turquoise," the code name for the experiment, had a yield of less than 150 kilotons, equivalent to 150,000 tons of TNT. Bombs dropped on Japan during World War II had yields of less than 20 kilotons.

Government officials confirmed only that the nuclear test was "weapons related". During recent years in the nuclear weapons program—stopped up by the Reagan administration, many detonations have been designed to determine effects of MX missile warheads.

Federal government scientists triggered the device at 11:04 a.m. PST at the bottom of a vertical shaft plugged with tons of cement and grout to contain radioactive gases. Following an underground nuclear explosion, the surface above the giant cavern caved out by the blast sometimes subsides, creating a pock marked Nevada Test Site landscape.

The Department of Energy warned Las Vegas workers in high rise buildings, such as construction-crews and window washers, to avoid precarious positions at blast-time because of anticipated earth motion.

The nuclear detonation was the fourth announced this calendar year. The previously announced detonation took place March 26 beneath the volcanic plateau of Pahute Mesa with a yield of 20 to 150 kilotons.

Artificial blood vessels can save crushed limbs

Artificial vessels to join Utah heart

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) -- Artificial blood vessels will soon join the man-made heart as another University of Utah contribution to replacing worn-out parts of the cardiovascular system.

The plastic veins and arteries, small enough for use in coronary bypass surgery or to help save an injured limb, are a revolutionary advance over the large Dacron implants used for nearly 20 years to patch up major vessels.

The Utah vessels use a new polyurethane-type material that has apparently solved the problem of blood clotting in small-diameter plastic vessels.

Dr. Donald J. Lyman, a professor of bioengineering, and Dr. Dominic Albo, an associate professor of surgery, have received permission from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to implant the vessels in humans.

Lyman and Albo developed the vessels for the university's Biomedical Engineering Center for Polymer Implants. The center is independent of the Division of Artificial Organs, which is responsible for the Utah artificial heart program.

Albo said artificial arteries would give heart surgeons an alternative to removing a vein from a patient's leg and using it as a bypass for blocked coronary arteries.

"Some patients do not have satisfactory veins for transplants," he said. "And even when the veins are good, this procedure significantly increases operating time."

Another major application would be surgery to save a badly damaged limb. Arms, legs, hands and fingers often must be amputated because crushed arteries cut off blood flow to the limbs. Existing plastic tubes are too big to help, but the Utah vessels could replace the small arteries needed to keep a limb alive.

Lyman's development of a new polymer molecule is the key to the Utah vessels, which can be made in tiny diameters. The researchers have successfully tested synthetic arteries as small as 4 millimeters (about one-sixth inch) in diameter.

"Since the 1960s surgeons have been using Dacron implants to replace large-diameter vessels," said Albo.

Investigators pick up bomber pieces

ST. GEORGE, Utah (UPI) -- Air Force investigators reached the crash scene and began picking up the pieces Thursday of a B-52 bomber that flew into a mountainside and "disintegrated," killing all seven crewmen.

A Strategic Air Command spokesman said there was no word on the cause of the accident which occurred during low-level combat training maneuvers on Monday.

"There has been no speculation as to cause of the crash," Col. Richard Kline, information officer at SAC headquarters in Omaha, Neb., said. "The accident investigation board is on the scene and will try to determine that."

The wreckage was discovered at the 7,000-foot level of a Southern Utah mountain four days after the crash 22 miles northwest of this high desert community. It lay strewn over a 10-mile radius sealed off by SAC investigators who arrived in a convoy of vehicles from Nellis Air Force Base, Nev., 80 miles away.

The B-52 based at Robins Air Force Base, Ga., was participating in war games on the Nellis Range when SAC radar trackers lost contact Monday at 4 p.m.

Col. Richard Purdum, unit commander of the SAC crew, said, "It's a very sad time for the 19th Bombardment Wing. It was a very unpleasant duty to inform the wives that the crash site had been spotted."

More than 20 fighter jets, cargo planes and helicopters searched a 2,000-square-mile area in the desert for two days until the debris was spotted.

"The plane disintegrated," an Air Force spokesman at Nellis said. "There is very little left -- nothing. The men who sighted the wreckage deserve a lot of credit. There was not much to see."

Civilians in St. George said a light rain was falling at the time of the crash and an employee at the local civilian airport said visibility was 2,000 feet, with a cloud cover over most of the mountain at the crash site.

"Visibility was poor. That is my understanding," Kline said.

The terrain was too rugged for a helicopter to land, so a chopper hovered over the area late Wednesday and lowered a man by rope to see if any of the victims were still alive, the spokesman said. He said the wreckage still was smoldering when it was spotted.

The crash was the fourth major B-52 accident since November. Twenty-one airmen died in the previous crashes.

The victims were identified as Capt. Donald Hebert, 28, the pilot, of Shirley, Mass.; 1st Lt. Thomas Lennep, Jr., 25, co-pilot, of Brownville, Texas; 1st Lt. Matthew W. Cervanek, 24, navigator, of Warner Robins, Ga.; Col. Carol D. Gunther, 45, an extra crew member and safety observer, Salina, Kan.; Capt. Johnathan Bishop, 27, radar navigator, Fairhope, Ala.; 1st Lt. Bernard Russell, electronic warfare officer, Anniston, Ala.; and Staff Sgt. Major Carter, 25, gunner, Savannah, Ga.

The fatal mission was to be the last one for pilot Hebert, who was scheduled to move to a desk job at the Pentagon.

Portly-protest

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) -- A pack of portly protesters picketed Metropolitan Life Insurance Company Wednesday, proudly proclaiming their extra pounds made them the picture of health.

"Two, four, six, eight: You can't dictate our height and weight," they shouted, complaining about insurance industry standards that use weight to determine insurance risk.

The members of "Life in the Fat Lane" argued there is no evidence to support claims that being overweight makes them greater life insurance risks.

House turns down memorial revival

BOISE (UPI) — A predominantly Republican majority of the Idaho House crushed a Democratic-led attempt Thursday aimed at reviving a Senate memorial calling on President Reagan to terminate the federal government's land-inventory program.

The chamber voted 47-22 to keep the memorial tied up in the House State Affairs Committee after one foe of the measure said the proposed request to the president was a product of "misguided emotionalism" by environmentalists.

Rep. Larry Echolfaw, D-Pocatello, leader of the abortive motion to pull the memorial to the House floor, said he was making the attempt because hundreds of people in his eastern Idaho district have signed petitions expressing fear about the potential effects of the government's land inventory.

"This whole thing is a political play ... of misguided emotionalism," Rep. Lyman Winchester, R-Kuna, said. "We've never said we want to sell the pretty green trees in the forests," Winchester added. "That's just what the environmentalists have said. They just want to keep this emotionalism going. They have no desire to get down to the real facts."

Rep. Walter Little, R-New Plymouth, also opposed Echolfaw's effort, saying the land inventory was needed and would not result in massive sales of public lands in the West.

"I don't think there's going to be a wholesale sale of public lands, in spite of what we've read in the news media," Little said.

He said the land inventory — initiated by Reagan with the appointment of a special presidential Property Review Board — was needed so the government could keep better track of its properties and improve management efficiency.

Environmental groups have accused the Reagan administration of planning to sell sweeping tracts of Western land to pump money into the deficit-ridden federal treasury.

The legislative memorial, which was adopted by the Senate 18-16 on Feb. 14, has been bottled up in the House State Affairs Committee, headed by Little.

Idahoans to pay more at the gasoline pumps

BOISE (UPI) — Idahoans should see a rise in gasoline prices Friday as the result of a decision by Gov. John Evans to sign into law a bill hiking the state tax on the fuel by two cents per gallon.

Evans gave final approval Thursday to the proposal, which Idaho Transportation Department officials said would raise about $5.8 million for counties, cities and highway districts, and another $3.1 million for the state agency.

Officials said the tax increase would also qualify Idaho for about $32 million in matching federal funds to repair the state's deteriorating highway and bridge systems.

The state increase in gas taxes — which raises the total Idaho levy to 14 1/2 cents — comes on top of a five-cent hike imposed by the federal government on April 1.

House members originally proposed a three-cent boost in gasoline taxes, but senators reduced the increase to two cents. That revision was then approved when it returned to the lower chamber.

During House debate on the reduction, Rep. John Sessions, R-Driggs, said the two-cent increase would not bring in enough money to qualify Idaho for the maximum funds available in federal matching dollars — $46.9 million.

But he said the higher tax would provide much-needed revenue as the state battles decaying bridges, roads and highways.

Public hearing is set

BOISE (UPI) — A public hearing has been scheduled in Boise April 19 to consider the request of several Idaho utilities to sell telephones to interested customers.

The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has received requests from General Telephone and Continental Telephone companies to set up sales plans providing for customer purchases.

The PUC already has approved a request by Mountain Bell to hold a similar sale.

The phone-sale requests came after the Federal Communications Commission encouraged phone companies to offer in-place leased telephone sets for sale to customers.

The federal agency also is considering a proposal that would mean phone companies eventually would not be allowed to include in their regulated rate base the telephones they now lease to residents and businesses.

All phone sale plans are expected to allow customers to continue leasing their phones, to buy them from the utilities or to replace them with phones from an independent supplier.

CSI slightly less state funding means significant cutbacks

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — State funding for the College of Southern Idaho next fiscal year will be only slightly less than present funding, the Legislature determined Thursday.

But that still will mean significant cutbacks because of rising fixed costs and previous budget cuts that continue without remedy, CSI officials say.

"We're still looking at eliminating two vocational programs," says Orval Bradley, CSI's vocational director.

Those programs will be plant maintenance and auto-parts-counter courses. In addition, 11 staff positions will be dropped, including five teachers, Bradley says.

Thursday, the Senate approved a $4 million appropriation for academic instruction at CSI and North Idaho College at Coeur d'Alene, the state's two junior colleges. Also passed was a $13.4 million appropriation for vocational education, statewide. The two appropriations will yield to CSI $1.9 million and $1.8 million, respectively.

The impact on CSI's vocational programs goes back to a 10.5 percent budget cut ordered by Gov. John Evans last year, when state revenues took an unexpected nose-dive.

Some vocational staff members at CSI were kept at that time only by transferring CSI's general funds into the program. However, Bradley says that offered only a temporary solution. So, those 11 positions will have to be scrapped for the next school year.

Meanwhile, staff salaries and departmental budgets will be frozen at CSI, says Jerry Meyerhoefer, the college's acting president.

He says the $1.9 million appropriated for academic instruction at CSI is still $100,000 less than this year's funding. That difference probably will be made up by increasing student tuition by $25 a semester next year, Meyerhoefer says.

"But that still means salaries will have to be frozen, and budgets tightened, to account for our increased fixed costs and inflation, compared to this current year," he says.

During Senate debate Thursday, little opposition was offered to either appropriation, primarily because the Legislature was hurrying to finish its work and adjourn the session.

Water-rights study ordered

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — A one-year study of the Swan Falls water-right dispute involving water users along the Snake River system has been ordered by the Legislature.

The House after the Senate took similar action a day earlier.

The Legislative Council now has been directed to appoint a study committee — of legislators and non-voting advisers from throughout the state — to address the question of future uses of the Snake River across southern Idaho.

But the legislation does not specify how much money can be spent on the study or what issues should be evaluated.

The study was proposed by Sens. John Peavey, D-Carey, and Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, as an alternative to two subordination bills that recently were defeated in the Senate, after first passing the House.

But the study also is meant to appease Gov. John Evans, who is considering calling a special session of the Legislature to again address subordinating Idaho Power's water right at Swan Falls Dam.

"From everything I can tell, the governor still wants subordination achieved before we go home," Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, who introduced the subordination legislation in the Senate, said Thursday.

All of the legislation stems from the controversy surrounding Idaho Power's water right at the dam, located south of Kuna. That dispute came to a head last year when the state Supreme Court ruled that the utility's water right takes precedence over upstream uses, whether for irrigation or industry.

But because less water flows over the dam than the utility has a right to, some 7,500 water users were sued by Idaho Power for allegedly depleting the river — and using its water.

In response, legislation has been passed to protect those existing water users. And a separate bill that would have subordinated the utility's right to upstream uses, as a means of ensuring future development, was considered twice, but defeated.

Pyramiding outlawed

BOISE (UPI) — A bill outlawing so-called "pyramid schemes" in Idaho was signed into law Thursday by Gov. John Evans.

The measure would prohibit investment projects which give their name because the people who initiate them are paid for everyone else they bring into the program. Those people, in turn, receive a payment for others they attract into the group.

People organizing or promoting "pyramid schemes" — which would include chain letters where cash is transacted — could be convicted of a felony.

In its initial form, the House bill would also have established misdemeanor penalties for anyone who participates in the programs. But that clause was struck by a Senate worried the provision would discourage people from reporting the schemes to authorities.

Supporters said only the people who get into "pyramid schemes" early make money. Those who join late usually lose their investment, they added.

Evans veto is sustained

BOISE (UPI) — House members overrode Thursday a gubernatorial veto of a bill which would allow local school districts to hold classes only four days a week, senators later sustained the chief executive's red ink.

The GOP-dominated House voted 48-20 to reject the veto of Democratic Gov. John Evans, on a bill giving districts the option to vary from the standard five-day school week as long as classes are held for the total number of hours each year prescribed by the state Board of Education.

Evans said he vetoed the measure early Thursday because experimentation with changes in school schedules should only take place under tightly controlled situations.

Evans says his major concern regarding the Swan Falls issue is "who would control the allocation of future water rights?"

"The people of Idaho, through their elected officials and the Idaho Water Resources Board, should determine the future water needs of our state," Evans says. "That responsibility should not be given to the power companies or other private water-right holders."

The governor believes that subordinating the Swan Falls power right — in the same fashion that the three Hells Canyon dams already are subordinated — would permit "a depletion of water flows as needed for upstream development in the public interest and compatible with the state water plan."

Without subordination, Evans believes southern Idaho will have extremely limited growth in the future, as dictated by Idaho Power's control of the price of water.

Although the legislation ordering the one-year study is not specific, three major questions probably will be addressed:

- Is subordination of Idaho Power's water right at Swan Falls Dam necessary for the state to maintain control over the Snake River?

- Should, or must, Idaho Power be compensated if its water right is reduced or subordinated?

- Can the Snake River and its aquifer stand more depletion, or should additional minimum stream flows be mandated?

Roth's death mystery

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

BUHL — Foul play was dropped Thursday from the list of possibilities facing investigators in the mysterious death of Tad Roth, the Republican who was considering running against Rep. George Hansen in 1984.

Roth's body was found Wednesday near his Buhl home. Details of the incident were not made known to the press until Thursday. According to Buhl police, Roth first was reported missing Tuesday night.

A 90-minute autopsy Thursday, conducted at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, showed no signs of trauma, said county Coroner Cloyce Edwards.

"We've ruled out any foul play at this time," Edwards said. But no determination concerning the cause of death emerged from the session.

"We can't tell until we run the blood tests and urine tests," he said. Obtaining results could take up to three days.

The 29-year-old businessman attracted attention late last year with the announcement that he was considering a race against Hansen, R-Idaho, in the 1984 GOP primary.

Neighbors found Roth's body about 100 yards west of the dead man's trailer, located in the Micklewell Mobile Park in Buhl. The victim lived with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Rogers of Buhl.

Police said the body, found face

TAD ROTH
Death being investigated up, was about six feet west of the mobile-home park's redwood fence.

Buhl police received the initial call at 4:26 p.m., said police Chief David Hartway.

"The party had been confirmed to be Tad Roth. A determination had not been made on the cause of death," Hartway said.

Roth was reported missing at 11:30 p.m. Tuesday, Hartway said. Initial accounts show that Roth was last seen at about 9:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. that night, he said.

"There's just a lot of things that we don't have a determination on right now," Hartway said.

A Twin Falls native, Roth returned to the Buhl area in 1982, following a seven-year stint in Washington, D.C., where he attended college and worked for several Republican Party causes.

Roth had said his decision on whether to challenge Hansen would hinge on his ability to obtain the $350,000 he believed necessary to finance a campaign. He acknowledged last week that he had not collected any funds.

Lid put on well drilling

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — State water officials have put a lid on well drilling in the Banbury Hot Springs area of the Melon Valley, west of Buhl.

The area has been termed a crisis area because of declining pressures in a series of hot-water wells and because of the negative effects that different wells reportedly are having on each other.

"The wells are losing pressure because water is escaping into dry zones when valves are closed, and they're losing temperature because the hot water is mixing with cold-water aquifers," says Ken Dunn, the director of the Idaho Department of Water Resources.

"Because of the leakage, the water withdrawals in the area are beginning to exceed the recharge (what is put back)," he says. "And as more wells came on line, they reduce the pressure in wells carrying earlier priority dates."

In response, Dunn has designated the area as the Banbury Groundwater Management Area, and will allow no new wells to be drilled.

"The next step will be going in and ordering people to repair their wells," he says. "It's going to be costly — thousands of dollars per well — but, it's all because they were incorrectly constructed in the first place."

Within the affected area, there are several recreational hot baths, fish farms, power-generation projects and private residences. As many as 70 wells may be affected by Dunn's order.

What has happened, according to Dunn, is that numerous hot-water wells have been drilled without sealing the shafts. This means that when valves are closed to stop the flow, the pressurized hot water simply escapes from the shaft into porous rock or into other water sources.

And since the hot-water reservoirs generally are beneath cold-water aquifers, the two are mixing and altering the temperatures in both water sources.

"This is very serious," Dunn says. "I'm not exaggerating when I say we're on the verge of destroying this resource forever."

Dunn estimates that between all existing wells and all filed applications, the potential withdrawal from the area is three times the water recharge.

"After we get these faulty wells sealed, then I'm sure we can start allowing more withdrawals, but how many, we don't know at this time," he says.

Dunn took the opportunity to be critical of the funding his department has been receiving from the Legislature.

"We have the problem because we have not received the funding for a staff capable of keeping an eye on these wells when they were constructed," Dunn says. "Now that we have the crisis, we'll do what we can, but it's going to cost folks a whole lot more this way than if we'd just funded some state monitoring in the first place."

"It would have been so dang much cheaper to drill them right the first time."

Law benefits Blaine County

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — A bill that should relieve the Blaine County School District's dependency on override levies has been signed into law by Gov. John Evans.

"Basically, this legislation will only add those school districts that are located in areas experiencing tremendous growth," says Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl.

The law — signed by Evans on Wednesday — will allow some districts to use the current year's property valuations, rather than the previous year's, in setting local tax levies.

Barker says that in areas of fast growth, enrollment and school costs far outstrip any growth in the previous year's taxable property value. The measure initially was conceived by Blaine County Superintendent Richard Jones, and then pushed in the Legislature by Barker and Rep. Steve Antone, R-Rupert, who represents Blaine County.

"It's certainly not a panacea for us because it won't bring in all the money we need, but it will be a tremendous help," Jones said Thursday.

Last month, Blaine County residents approved a $300,000 override levy. Jones says that if the new law had been in effect at that time, "it would have gleaned an additional $523,000 for us, so the override, while still necessary, would have been under $400,000."

Jones claims the new law does not necessarily mean that individual taxpayers will pay more, but that total taxes can be increased to accommodate new residences and businesses within the district.

"We've been hearing from taxpayers, both large and small, that something had to be done to get us off this override reliance," he says. "This bill helps."

Barker says that areas of fast growth — including Blaine County, McCall and the Post Falls school districts — cannot tax to adequate levels because of the 1 percent limitation. Instead, they wind up taxing at property-value levels one year behind the growth of school enrollment.

"It's also a fact that as market values in an area increase, the state education support decreases," Jones says.

The new law essentially grants districts the option to change "the calculation for the school-funding formula, so that it's based on a current year's valuations for assessment purposes, rather than the previous year's, to get to that final dollar amount," Barker says.

Also this year, the Legislature has passed a bill that addresses the reverse situation — areas of drastically declining property values, such as Shoshone County in northern Idaho, where the mining industry is severely depressed.

"That bill only helps areas where the drop in assessed valuation is 40 percent or more in one year," Barker says. "For example, if your total valuation within the school district was $1 million, it would have to drop to $600,000 for this bill to apply."

Qualifying school districts then would receive extra state funding to make up for the lack of local tax revenue. However, this emergency measure is only a one-year law, becoming void at the end of fiscal year 1984.

Plans to divert water from Deep Creek for power generation is meeting opposition from Melon Valley residents and Fish and Game officials

Deep Creek plan draws opposition

By HAL BERTON
Times-News writer

A Twin Falls Canal Co. plan to divert Deep Creek waters into the Salmon Falls Creek drainage area to generate electricity is running into stiff opposition from some Melon Valley residents.

And state Fish and Game Department officials have challenged the minimum flow rates, which the project backers propose to leave in Deep Creek, claiming they are not high enough to support the creek's fish and game population.

A maximum of 100 cubic feet of water per second, according to a permit application filed with the state Department of Water Resources, would be diverted on a year-round basis. It would be used to generate power at a hydroelectric plant proposed for the Salmon Falls drainage area.

Currently, the Twin Falls Canal Co. uses a portion of the Deep Creek channel to transport High Canal Irrigation waters to farmers in the Buhl area. The proposed hydro project would divert this water and some natural creek water into the Salmon Creek drainage.

At least 12 Melon Valley residents have written the state Department of Water Resources, asking the agency to turn down the canal company's permit request.

The Department of Water Resource letters include six protests, from downstream property owners, who fear that their water rights may be threatened by the proposed diversion. Other concerns center around the impacts the diversion might have on downstream fish and wildlife habitat.

"I remember one year that we had little or no money, and we caught trash fish out of Deep Creek and preserved them for our meat," wrote Linda McClintock. "Best darn fish you ever had."

"If the water was cut down any, the fish could not travel upstream from the river. Also, the current bushes would suffer from lack of enough water," she wrote.

Alf and Vera Jos, stockholders in the Twin Falls Canal Co., are worried about the regional precedent that might be set if the canal company is granted the right to divert a natural stream into another drainage.

"If Deep Creek is diverted for hydro, will other streams also be diverted, thus affecting

School officials to seek override

By KATE LOPEZ
Times-News correspondent

KIMBERLY — School district officials in Kimberly have decided to ask voters to approve a $60,000 override levy.

The election will be held May 17. The decision to ask the voters for the $60,000 was made at Wednesday night's school board meeting.

"This is the same amount they (residents of Kimberly) approved last year," said clerk Laros Crawford, "so there is no increase."

The exact budget for the 1983-84 school year has not been determined because officials are waiting for the Legislature to finish allocating funds for the state's public schools.

However, according to Superintendent George Powell, there is every indication that less state money will be received next year. Just how much less the school district will receive, if any, is not known, though.

"It's like trying to set your household budget without knowing how much money you're making each month," said board Chairman Keith Jensen.

The May 17 override election will be held at the same time as the annual school board election.

At Wednesday's meeting, the board appointed Ken Morris to replace Keith Fuller, who resigned from the board this month. Morris will represent Zone 5.

Morris will remain on the board as an appointee until May, when he will have to win in the election to retain his newly acquired seat.

EPA officials explain impacts of sole-source aquifer plan

By HAL BERTON
Times-News writer

TRILEY — Two Seattle-based officials explained the possible impacts of a proposal to designate the Snake River Aquifer as a "sole source" aquifer at a meeting Wednesday night in Burley.

The sole-source designation refers to use as a major source of drinking water.

If approved by the EPA's headquarters in Washington, D.C., the designation would give the federal agency the right to modify or veto any new federally funded projects that might harm the aquifer.

However, exempted from this rule, said EPA official Wendy Marshall, programs at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory or Bureau of Land Management projects.

It also would not affect any privately or state-funded projects.

But Marshall said farmers taking out federal Farmers Home Administration loans — if their actions might adversely affect the aquifer's water quality — possible could be subject to EPA scrutiny.

Marshall said it is unlikely that every FHA farm loan would be reviewed, but she indicated that EPA would pay special attention to farm projects that used drain wells to dispose of waste water.

"We might want to see maps of the drain water sites," Marshall said.

watermaster — Marshall and an EPA associate, Max Skeva, sought to explain the meaning of a sole-source-aquifer designation.

According to Skeva, the sole-source provision was authored by an unnamed Texas congressman who included it as a last-minute amendment to the 1976 federal Clean Water Act.

The congressman, Skeva said, was afraid that an aquifer in his district might be polluted by a large federal housing project, so he deftly inserted a brief amendment into the Clean Water Act.

The amendment gave the EPA the authority to modify or veto any federally funded project that might threaten the water quality of an aquifer that is determined by the agency to be the sole source of a region's drinking water.

To date, Marshall said, three Pacific

Northwest aquifers have been designated as sole-source: the Spokane aquifer, the Whidbey Island-Wash. aquifer and the Camano Island aquifer.

Marshall says she has scrutinized federal housing projects, airplane runway construction projects and waste-treatment projects in these areas to determine if they posed a threat to the aquifer.

She says her goal is not to block any projects, but to try and work with state and local officials to modify them to lessen their impact on the aquifer.

"We have the authority to veto a (federally funded) project, but have never done so," Marshall said. "We rarely are quite successful in getting applicants to modify their projects."

The Snake River Aquifer designation proposal, Marshall said, originally was put forth in a September petition submitted by the Hagerman Valley Citizens Alert group.

The petition has triggered an in-depth study of the water system by the U.S. Geological Survey.

Once the study is complete, the EPA will make a draft decision and then, probably by September, the agency's Seattle-based regional administrator will refer the petition request to Washington for a final decision.

Not everyone who attended the meeting favored the sole-source designation. One man voiced doubts about whether the EPA could handle the sheer volume of FHA loan applications it might end up reviewing if the aquifer was designated as sole-source.

And George Lemmon, a Hagerman watermaster, said he was worried that the sole-source designation might hamper efforts to use recharge wells to replenish the aquifer.

Lemmon said he is "just as concerned about pollution as anyone else around," noting that he operates a fish-farm operation that depends on clean water.

"But it might be ill-conceived to designate the aquifer as a sole source, because it might eliminate the possibility to recharge the aquifer to maintain our water flow," he said.

But his viewpoint was challenged by Doris Couch, representing the Magic Valley Snake River Alliance, who charged that recharge wells pump "garbage into the aquifer."

Couch and John McDankels, the president of Hagerman Valley Citizens Alert, urged that the aquifer be given the sole-source designation.

Hagerman sets voting date

HAGERMAN — School board elections in the Hagerman district will be held Tuesday, May 17, from noon until 8 p.m. in the school gym.

According to Superintendent Ken Black, the positions now held by Lou Koopman, from Zone 2, and Kitty Jones, from Zone 3, will be up for election.

To be on the ballot, residents from Zone 2 or Zone 3 must file a nominating petition with a minimum of five signatures before 3 p.m. on April 29.

In other school board business at this week's meeting, the board decided to hold a work session on April 25, to begin work on next year's budget.

"We hope the Legislature is done by then and has the (school) budgets out," Black said, explaining that school board action is being held up by the Legislature. "This is terrible. Usually, we've got our budget about done by now."

Richfield OKs senior trip

RICHFIELD — Ten Richfield high school seniors will visit Disneyland following graduation on May 17.

The school board gave permission this week to use the district's mini-bus to transport the students and their chaperones to southern California.

Superintendent A.J. Jones noted that permission for the trip was given "a couple of years ago," and the students have been working for four years to earn the money for the trip.

As in other school districts, school board elections will be held May 17, with two seats, zones 1 and 2, up for election in the Richfield district. The positions currently are held by Pete Appell and Maxine Stirling.

Jones said that nominating petitions are available at his office and must be filed by April 29.

Also on the ballot will be a request to renew the district's $10,000 plant-facilities levy for another five years.

According to Jones, the general override levy, which has been requested in each of the past three years, will not be asked for this year.

Valley chairman to retire

VALLEY — The Valley School Board Monday has set May 17 as the date for the annual school board elections.

At this week's meeting, it was announced that Roy Coulson, the school board chairman, who has represented Zone 5, will retire after 18 years on the board.

In other action at the meeting, the board approved the 1983-84 school calendar. School will start on Aug. 22 and end May 18, said Superintendent Arlyn Bodily. Christmas break is scheduled for Dec. 22 to Jan. 3.

The board also chose the Audio Clinic of Jerome to install a new sound system in the high-school gym. The project will cost about $5,200, Bodily said.

Cassia plans two levies

BURLEY — Cassia County voters will go to the polls May 17 to elect three school board members and decide two school levies.

Ann Woodhouse, representing Zone 1, and Ralph Rasmussen, of Zone 2, will be up for re-election, said Superintendent Norman Hurst. An unexpired two-year term, formerly held by Kendall Yost, also will be filled.

A $450,000 override levy and a $200,000 plant-facilities levy will also be on the ballot.

The override levy would be used for the operation and maintenance of existing buildings, Hurst said.

The plant-facilities levy would run for 10 years, and the money would be used to repair and remodel buildings, he added.

Both levies need a simple majority to pass.

In addition to setting the election date, the school board on Wednesday rehired most of the district's non-tenured teachers, Hurst said. The board did not take action on the contracts of three teachers who have been placed on probation this year, he said.

The district's budget will be set at the board's next meeting, May 11.

Hagerman offers reward

HAGERMAN — A reward of up to $100 is being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons stealing or damaging city property in Hagerman.

Since several stop signs and a double arrow sign were stolen recently, So. Hagerman City Council recently decided to offer a reward to get the signs back and prevent continued losses. Also, in recent years, city park restrooms have been vandalized.

According to city clerk Audrey Hoffman, signs announcing the reward offer will be posted in the park, at the post office and at several other places around the community.

Hansen to upgrade park

HANSEN — Ross Enterprises of Jerome has presented a low bid of $47,820 to Hansen officials for the development of the new city park.

Six bids, all from within the Magic Valley, were opened at the council meeting this week. J.K. Nurseries of Twin Falls was the highest bidder, at $64,536, and Ross Enterprises was the lowest.

The job, according to clerk Darlene Miller, includes graveling the parking lot for the almost-five-acre park, located in the north end of town. It also includes building a bike path and installing a fence on the north and south ends of the park.

Poles and cable at the east end, by the parking lot, also were included to ensure against any driving on the lawn, Miller says.

A sprinkling system, also a part of the bid, will have "pop-up" heads, Miller says, and they will pump water from surrounding canals.

The contract between Ross Enterprises and the city will be signed within two weeks, Miller says.

Kimberly adds sprinkler

KIMBERLY — Half of Kimberly's municipal park will be watered with a new automatic sprinkling system, which will be installed by Kimberly Nurseries of Twin Falls.

City officials decided on the sprinkling system at council's regular meeting this week.

The estimated cost for the system is $5,000, but according to Jack Wright, of Kimberly

Nurseries, the remaining half of the park should not be as expensive to irrigate. "We'll put in a timer big enough for the entire park," he said.

The park has been watered in past years by flooding from nearby irrigation ditches.

Defendant wins acquittal

TWIN FALLS — A 12-member jury on Wednesday acquitted a 31-year-old Twin Falls man of a 3-year-old cocaine trafficking charge.

The jury deliberated just under three hours before returning a not-guilty verdict in the case of Richard Lee Galley, of 423 Rose St. N.

Galley was accused of selling a quarter-ounce of cocaine to an undercover agent for $625. The alleged transaction occurred May 19, 1980.

During the course of the four-day Fifth District Court trial, defense lawyer Jeff Stoker argued that Galley was the victim of entrapment. The defense claimed that a woman, identified as Sandy Groves; whereabouts unknown, encouraged Galley to make the sale. Groves was acting as an agent for the police, Stoker said.

Lawyers in the case said they could not locate the woman in time for the trial.

Correction

TWIN FALLS — It was reported incorrectly in a Thursday Times-News story that Pam Allen of Twin Falls is 15 months old. The child, who is suffering from a serious liver defect and must receive a liver transplant to live, is 22 months old. Her parents are Carol and Fred Allen.

Protest

Furthermore, Preston says, "There is one very important difference that everyone has to understand. In the past, the Twin Falls Canal Co. has always diverted all the water down laterals 9 and 10. These rights take precedence over any minimum stream flow."

On March 23, according to Webb, the canal company closed off the downstream gates and diverted the entire creek into its lateral irrigation canals.

This left the downstream creek with water levels ranging from two to eight cubic feet per second, levels that Webb says were so low that they could have led to fish kills during the warm weather.

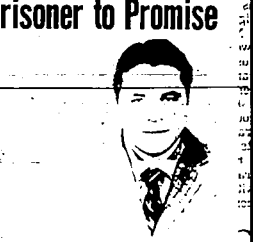

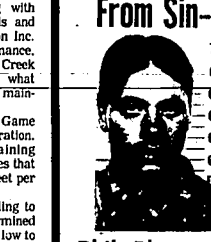

However, the downstream gates were opened again recently.

When questioned about the two-week shutoff, Warren Travis, the general manager of the canal company, said, "We've only done what we do every year at this time of year. Before our water from the Snake River comes in, we use all the water we have developed in Deep Creek from Lateral 10 up."

But Webb points to U.S. Geological Survey records that indicate that the downstream flow for the end of this March was considerably less than the 14.9 cubic-feet-per-second flow recorded by the agency's gauges for March 1981.

Police question Walesa's wife

By WALTER WISNIEWSKI
United Press International

WARSAW, Poland — Gdansk police Thursday interrogated former Solidarity leader Lech Walesa's wife about her husband's secret rendezvous with fugitive underground leaders, but she said she refused to answer any questions.

A bulletin issued by the Solidarity fugitives defiantly confirmed they had held talks with Walesa at the beginning of the week and called on Poles to show their opposition to "the apparatus of terror" in demonstrations May 1.

Walesa, who was taking a cautious line in his public statements following his own five-hour appearance before police interrogators Wednesday, had little to say about the bulletin, signed by the five-man committee in charge of the outlawed union's clandestine activities.

The 33-year-old Walesa apparently did not want to be linked to the call for May Day demonstrations, which would be illegal according to Poland's tough internal security laws.

Walesa's wife, Danuta, spent 2 1/2 hours at police headquarters, the mother-of-seven-children said, afterwards she refused to answer all the questions put to her.

The police repeated the same questions her husband had refused to answer a day earlier, the spokesman said. All were aimed at uncovering more details of Walesa's talks with the Solidarity underground.

Mrs. Walesa was summoned to the Gdansk police station at 1 p.m. by a formal warrant commanding her to appear as a witness in an unspecified case.

Walesa drove his wife to the police station and sat outside in his Volkswagen minibus waiting until 3:30 p.m., when she emerged.

Exhausted by more than 48 hours of hectic activity surrounding Walesa's talks with the underground and police interrogations, the couple then went into seclusion.

The two-part underground communique was made available to Western reporters late Thursday. It began with a one-sentence statement, identical to an earlier disclosure by Walesa, about the Solidarity summit talks last weekend at an undisclosed location.

Sikhs vow they'll die for cause

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Vowing they would die for their cause, more than 33,000 militant Sikhs Thursday joined a "sacrifice army" to press the battle for political autonomy in India's northern Punjab state, a Sikh leader said.

The volunteers, vowing to "dedicate my life for the religion," took an oath of allegiance at the Golden Temple of Amritsar, the Sikhs' holy city in Punjab along the border with Pakistan.

Harchand Singh Longowal, president of the Sikhs' militant Akali Dal party, administered the oath and said the 33,000 sworn in would be the vanguard of a planned 100,000-man strong Sikh army.

Longowal said the Akali Dal party would call on the newly formed "sacrifice army" to perform a "one-day action" on only two hours notice some time after May 12. He did not elaborate.

He said the Sikh force would be given "training for a peaceful fight for achievement of the Akali (party) demands."

However, he warned they had "greatly suffered repression by the government" and admitted he could not assure his control over Sikh youth.

The Sikh "army" was announced in the aftermath of an April 4 road blockade by the militants throughout Punjab in which 22 people were killed.

Jordan ends 5-year Egypt economic ban

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Jordan ended a five-year economic boycott of Egypt Thursday with the two countries signing a compact to regulate trade exchange between them.

The Middle East News Agency said the protocol was signed by Ahmed Wahaf, undersecretary at the Egyptian Ministry of Economy, and Mohsen Saleh Al-Hourani, undersecretary at the Jordanian Trade and Industry Ministry.

Egypt and Jordan also agreed to revive a joint economic commission as well as a $50 million trade protocol signed in March 1978.

National products exchanged by the two countries will be exempt from custom duties and transactions will be carried out in convertible, free currencies, the agency said.

Jordan and the majority of Arab countries broke off diplomatic and trade relations with Egypt to protest its 1979 peace treaty with Israel. Egyptian officials have said that trade relations were resumed quietly with all Arab states, with the exception of Syria and Libya.

Guerrillas explode bomb

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — A bomb planted by leftist guerrillas exploded in the Honduran embassy today, seriously injuring two embassy employees, police said.

The M-19 guerrilla group claimed responsibility for the bombing, saying it was planted in protest against Honduran attacks against Nicaragua, police said.

Embassy consul Feliper Paredes and his secretary Otella Velasco were both seriously injured and rushed to a Bogota hospital, police said.

The embassy has its offices on the second floor of a building in a commercial district on the outskirts of Bogota.

"It was terrible. The explosion shook the entire building and destroyed all the windows on the second floor. Some books and other objects were hurled into the street," said Luz Helena Arango, who runs a shop in the building.

Kidnappers free Texaco executive

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — Guerrillas Thursday freed Texaco executive Kenneth Bishop after 38 days captivity in exchange for $1 million ransom and he immediately left Colombia, saying his abductors treated him "ugly, real ugly."

Bishop, 57, and his Colombian wife, Bertha Cuellar Bishop, left El Dorado Airport aboard a private airplane at noon and arrived in Miami four hours later.

"I'm glad to be back," he said, adding that his captors treated him "ugly, real ugly." He would not discuss his abduction further.

He was whisked through U.S. Customs by five men who were waiting for him at the airport. He jumped into a car and quickly left.

Colombian national police officials said a $1 million ransom was paid to the People's Revolutionary Organization, a previously obscure guerrilla group, for his release.

Bruins' bats offset gloves against Rams

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — From a statistical standpoint it was an odd game but Twin Falls wound up with the right statistic as far as Coach Bill Ingram is concerned.

His Bruins, overcoming considerable adversity with some timely power hitting, toppled the Highland Rams 10-5 Thursday afternoon to run their Gem State Conference record to 5-1 and overall mark to 9-4.

Lefty Nathan Burke became the first Bruin to go the route but kept himself in trouble much of the time by delivering seven walks. His defense added to that misery with seven errors that should have been enough to seal the Bruins' doom.

But Highland replied with several walks and Corky Federico and Brock Miller picked up some timely RBI hits to offset it.

"This was the most errors we've ever made in a game," said Ingram.

"I don't know what it was. Lack of concentration. I guess. Both sides threw a lot of pitches today and that seems to take the edge off the field somewhat."

Burke ended the day by allowing six hits while Twin Falls managed just two more.

However, the Bruins took the early lead when, after a walk, Miller drilled a triple into the left field power alley to make it 1-0. The Bruins then wasted a run when they forgot to tag up on Dave Statten's long fly to centerfield seconds later.

Highland immediately took the lead in the second inning with a pair of tainted runs and two hits by Dennis Parton and Frank Lish.

The Bruins immediately regained the lead when Virgil Hurt led off with a walk and stole second to set up an RBI for Oscar Salinas' single. An infield hit and walk loaded the bases and Federico promptly unloaded then with a double.

Twin Falls pushed ahead 7-4 in the fourth when Shawn Hunsberger sent one run across with a sacrifice fly and Hurt plated a second with a single.

An inning later, Federico picked up his fourth RBI when he doubled after a walk and he flew in ahead of Statten, who followed with a triple. Hunsberger's squeeze bunt plated the final run.

Twin Falls remains in action Saturday, entertaining Idaho Falls in a double-header beginning at 1 p.m. at Jaycee Park.

Meanwhile, the Twin Falls sophomores ran their record to 11-3 overall and 5-0 in the league by drilling Highland 11-4.

Darren Stewart went the distance for the win, scattering three hits and fanning 11.

Kirk Slater and Chris Otero led the hitting with two safeties each. Slater picking up a pair of RBIs.

Highland: ... 5-3
Sweet, Newsum (4) and Mitchell, Burke and Salinas, Korman (7), W-Burke, 1-Newsum.

Jerome, Capital golfers win

JEROME — Jerome and Twin Falls were good enough to get into the championship playoffs of the 22-team Jerome Golf Invitational Thursday but only Jerome enjoyed the visit.

The Tigers, after finishing the regulation 18 holes tie with Madison at 223, picked up a birdie from freshman Cam Hurst and two more pars to win the sudden-death playoff by two strokes over Bobcats.

Twin Falls and Capital were tied at 319 going into the playoff and it appeared for a minute the Bruins had a huge break when Eagle Greg Piermon knocked his ball into an evergreen tree. He had to take an unplayable lie but still managed to get down in bogey and that was enough to win it by a stroke. Twin Falls had two pars and two bogies while Capital had only the penalty-caused bogey against it on the first hole.

Anthony Ostrowski of Highland claimed the Class A division medalist pin with a three-over par 75, one ahead of Caldwell's Toby Crockett. Larry Waldron led Twin Falls with a 77, losing the fourth-place medal to Capital's Greg Lowe in a playoff.

In the B division, Kenny Stephens of Middleton fired a one-over 73 to win by three strokes over runner-up Chet Davids of Marsh Valley. Hit and Burley's Shane Wall were tied for fifth at 79 along with Preston's Scott Krantz.

Bryant's rushing lead dwindling under Walker's pressure

By United Press International

If Kelvin Bryant is looking over his shoulder, he can see Herschel Walker gaining on him.

Bryant, Philadelphia's fine running back, leads the United States Football League rushers with 595 yards, a figure that helped the Stars scout to a 5-1 opening season record. Walker, the 1982 collegiate Heisman Trophy winner, finally is living up to the reputation that preceded him in the pros. He has 571 yards and is moving up fast on Bryant.

Philadelphia tackles Oakland in the weekly Saturday game, permitting Bryant to widen the rushing margin before Walker's New Jersey Generals see action against visiting Washington Sunday.

Other Sunday games find Denver at Birmingham; Boston at Arizona and Chicago at Michigan. Los Angeles is at Tampa Bay for the Monday night game. Oakland comes off a four-game road trip anxious to break away from the bunched up Pacific Division. All four teams — Los Angeles, Denver and Arizona are the others — have 3-3 records.

Arthur Whittington doesn't possess Bryant's stax, but the invader running back has enough versatility to give Philadelphia a problem. Whittington has 352 yards and four touchdowns rushing and 243 yards with one touchdown as a pass receiver.

Washington and New Jersey are in the Atlantic Division basement with 1-5 records. Oddsmakers rate the Generals a three-point favorite to leave the Federals as the lone cellar dweller.

The Feds are adding a former New York flavor to their lineup. Running back Billy Taylor and linebacker Dan Loy once played for the Giants and Lou Gianonna, an all-purpose back, was with the Jets.

Arizona edged Washington 22-21 last weekend with a USFL record scoring pass of 98 yards from quarterback Alan Risher to Jackie Flowers. Boston, this Sunday's Wrangler opponent, lost to Oakland 26-7 last week, winning three straight.

The Chicago Blitz has yet to lose against a Central Division opponent and this week's battle with Michigan should prove to be no exception. Chicago quarterback Greg Landry has been tearing up the opposition with his passing. His league-leading statistics include 105 completions in 171 attempts for 1,315 yards, with nine touchdowns and only one interception. His favorite receiver, Trumanina Johnson, leads the USFL with 36 catches for 531 yards and three touchdowns.

CSI tilts, Andrus meet highlight weekend slate

The fifth annual Monte Andrus Invitational track meet at Valley Falls is a pair of CSI double-headers head a full Friday- and Saturday- schedule for area teams.

The Monte Andrus will be run at 11 a.m. today at the Valley track with Deco, Kimberly-Filer, Aberdeen, Hansen and Murtaugh joining the Vikings.

The track meet is named for former Valley High coach and athletic director, Monte Andrus, who died of a heart attack four years ago.

Meanwhile, CSI Coach Jim Walker, with almost half of his schedule already weathered out, is hoping to get in a pair of double-headers against Utah competition: The Golden Eagles will host the Utah State club team at 1 p.m. today at Frontier Field and the BYU junior varsity at the same time Saturday.

"We've been promised good weather for these two days and we sure could use it because we need the games," said Walker, pointing out the school will be of session within three weeks. That leaves the Eagles little time to prepare for the regional playoffs and a possible trip to nationals.

Walker said the goal of the weekend will remain to get some game experience in his pitching staff.

"That's the one thing you really can't work on in practice. You can work on ground balls, base-running and hitting and all the things. But there's nothing like having your pitchers under the gun to sharpen them," he coach said.

Two other track meets will be run today with Burley and Sugar Salem visiting Wood River for a triangular while Jerome junior varsity, Wendell, Hagerman, Shoshone and Glens Ferry will collide in the Glenns Ferry Invitational.

On the golf scene, the Twin Falls Bruins and Minico Spartans will be going against Gem State Conference competition at Idaho Falls' Pinecrest Golf Course.

On Saturday, high school baseball bows into play with Twin Falls entertaining Idaho Falls in a twinbill at 1 p.m. at Jaycee Park while Minico travels to Skyline.

Twin Falls' tennis team will be at Nampa and Oxbow for a pair of duals Saturday. Twin Falls Coach Ciovis Johnson believes this could be one of the toughest tests of the year for his Bruins and is looking forward to seeing how his nine players have improved over the spring.

A large number of Magic Valley's tracksters will appear in the Boise Relays Sat. day afternoon and evening at Bronco Stadium.

CSI track Coach Karl Kleinkopf will take his men and women teams to Northwest Nazarene College for the last of the "little, regular" competitions of the year.

Starting next week, CSI will be participating in the Bob Glibb Invitational in Boise, which could boast as many as 10 NCAA division I teams.

Minico, now 3-3 in the Gem State Conference, travels to Skyline Saturday.

Trevino shares Heritage Classic lead

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (UPI) — Lee Trevino, vowing he will win again despite a drought of nearly two years, shot a 5-under-par 66 Thursday to share the first-round lead with Jodie Mudd and Mark McNulty in the Heritage Open Golf Classic.

Trevino, whose back problems nearly brought his golf career to an end, tied a course record with a 5-under-par 20 on the back side of the traditionally tough Harbour Town Golf Links to join McNulty and Mudd with a one-shot advantage over Bob Eastwood, Puzzy Zoeller, Larry Mize and Donnie Hammond.

"I will win again," said Trevino, who last won in the 1981 Tournament of Champions. "I'll win this year. There's no question in my mind and it might be a biggie. I might jump up and burn somebody."

Trevino, who has won 26 tournaments and trails only Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson on the career money list, turned it on down the back nine of the 6,650-yard Harbour Town layout he called his "favorite golf course" with five birdies for nine-hole scores of 36-30-66.

Declaring his back fully healed after surgery last year, he was strong with the irons, leaving him birdie putts of three, six and seven feet.

His longest was 20 feet on the 18th, and his birdie on the 10th came from 10 feet.

Trevino, who has a lucrative television contract as a golf commentator, said he decided to play this tournament because it is being played two weeks later than in past years, which has brought a vast improvement in weather conditions — a traditional obstacle when the pros visited this course in mid-March.

LEE TREVINO
Not quite ready for rocking chair yet

"I felt like the weather would be much better," said Trevino, 44. "It's always been too cold here for me. With mild temperatures and light breezes, the course yielded rounds of par or better to more than half the field. Clustered at three under, 68 were Ben Crenshaw, Scott Simpson, Mack O'Grady, Jim Nefford, Morris Hatalsky, Steve Hart, and first-year pro Dan Forsman.

While Trevino was overcoming his recent lack of success, Mudd overcame despair after shooting an 86 in the final round of the Masters that began with him two shots off the lead.

"I didn't want to play here," said Mudd. "I thought about it (the final round of the Masters) for a long time driving over here. I just went through a tragedy. I knew nothing else could be worse for my golfer career."

His '86 left Mudd with a tie for 42nd at Augusta, but in retrospect he said the experience may help him in the long run.

"I learned a heck of a lot," said Mudd. "I was really playing to win out there and after the way I started (two double bogeys) I had no rhythm. From there on I was just playing to get out of the way. I just went out there today and played my golf game."

While Trevino lit up the back nine, Mudd had a beyday on the front with five birdies for nine hole scores of 31-35-66.

McNulty, a South African trying to establish himself on the American tour, took a step in that direction with his 34-32-66. He said it was his best golf in a year and a half, in which he has been making a comeback from a disabling auto accident in late 1981.

"I appreciate the dangers on this golf course, but today I was hitting the ball very straight and this course rewards that," said McNulty, who birdied four of the last six holes. "The weather was good today. There was no wind, but there's still a long way to go."

Cardinals kill Mets in first inning

By United Press International.

Bob Forsch fired a four-hitter and St. Louis took advantage of sloppy New York fielding to score seven runs in the first inning and go on for a 7-1 victory over the New York Mets.

Forsch, 31, allowed four walks and was pitching a shutout until Hubie Brooks rapped a solo homer to left in the fifth inning.

St. Louis batted around in the first, but the inning might've ended at 3:31 if Mets shortstop Bob Bailor had not missed a potential double-play grounder.

Ozzie Smith drove in Lonnie Smith with a bloop single to left and then stole second on the next pitch. Darrell Porter doubled home Smith and loser Mike Torrez, 26, then walked George Hendrick. With one out, Ken Oberkief rapped a grounder to Bailor, who subbed the ball and barely had time to make the play to second.

On the next pitch, David Green tripled down the right-field line to force home Porter and Oberkief. Mike Ramsey then singled to center. Forsch doubled deep to left and Ramsey was safe at home. Bailor's throw home allowed Forsch to score.

The Cardinals' victory extended their winning streak to four and the Mets' losing streak to four games.

Padres 6, Giants 4
At San Diego, Terry Kennedy hit a two-run homer and Ruppert Jones added a three-run blast to lead the San Diego Padres to a 6-4 triumph over the San Francisco Giants.

Jones' homer, which snapped a 2-2 tie, came in the fourth inning off loser Andy McCalligan, 41, after Kennedy walked and Sixto Lezcano singled.

The Padres added a run in the fifth when Gene Richards tripled and Steve Garvey doubled.

Kennedy's homer came in the first inning after a walk to Juan Bonilla and staked the Padres to a 2-0 lead.

The Giants led the score 2-2 with single runs in the second and third innings. In the second, Jeff Leppard singled, stole second and scored on Matt May's single.

Expos 4, Cubs 3
At Montreal, Tim Lincecum broke a 2-2 tie with a two-run triple to the sixth inning to lead the Montreal Expos to a 4-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Warren Cromartie led off the sixth with a double off starter Chuck Riley, 42. One out later, winning pitcher Scott Sanderson, 29, singled and Raines followed with an opposite field triple to tie the game 2-2.

Chicago narrowed the lead to 4-3 in the eighth on a bases-loaded single by Keith Moreland. Bill Jeff Reardon relieved and pitched out of a bases-loaded jam by striking out Joey Davis and getting Larry Bowa on a fly to center to earn his first save.

The Cubs took a 1-0 lead in the third on a double by Bowa and a single by Ryne Sandberg, but the Expos tied the score in the bottom of the inning on a bunt single by Bryan Little, an error by Raines and a single by Al Oliver.

Davis' doubled home Moreland in the fourth, giving Chicago a 2-1 lead, but Montreal tied it 2-2 in the fifth when Andre Dawson belted a towering home run over the left field wall.

Yanks top Tigers for first home win

By United Press International.

Dave Winfield singled home Ken Griffey with the breaking run in a three-run fifth inning Thursday night to carry the New York Yankees to a 6-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Dave Righetti, 29, scattered seven hits before being relieved by George Frazier in the seventh inning as the Yankees broke a three-game losing streak and won their first home game of the season. Jack Morris, 12, pitched the first seven innings for the Tigers and allowed all of New York's runs.

With the score tied 2-2 in the fifth, Griffey led off with a double and scored on Winfield's hit. Winfield moved to third when Larry Herndon's throw to the plate was wild and scored on Steve Kemp's infield-out. The Yankees added another run on an infield out by Graig Nettles.

Roy Smalley's second homer of the year in the seventh accounted for the final Yankee run. New York scored an unearned run in the first on three walks and a fielding error by third baseman Tom Brookens.

White Sox 12, Orioles 11
At Chicago, Greg Luzinski's bases-loaded sacrifice fly with one out in the eighth inning snapped a 9-9 tie and the White Sox won their sixth RBI performance with a two-run single to give the Chicago White Sox a 12-11 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

The game, which took three hours and 56 minutes to complete, missed by 60 seconds of tying the American League record for the longest ninth inning game.

The White Sox, who blew a seven-run lead, began the eighth when Mike Squires drew a walk off Don Welch.

0-1, Tony Bernazard singled and Tom Paleyreck walked to lead the bases. After Harold Baines struck out, Luzinski greeted reliever Tim Stoddard with a sacrifice fly to center and Kittle, who had a three-run homer in a six-inning tie, added a two-run single.

Salome Barajas, 1-0, the fourth Chicago pitcher, gained the victory, but he was chased in the ninth when the Orioles scored two runs on RBI double by John Shelby and an RBI single by Dan Ford.

Brewers 5, Blue Jays 4
At Toronto, Jim Gantner homered with two out in the ninth inning to give the Milwaukee Brewers a 5-4 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Gantner connected off reliever Joey Mel Laughlin, 0-1, and helped reliever Jim Slaton, 1-0, to the victory.

Milwaukee tied the score with a pair of runs in the eighth. Robin Yount, who has hit safely in all seven Brewers' games, singled to lead off the inning and scored on Cecil Coper's triple that kayoed reliever Roy Lee Jackson. Ted Simmons followed with a single off reliever Dave Geisel to score Cooper with the tying run.

Texas, Indians rained out
At Cleveland, the game between the Texas Rangers and the Cleveland Indians was postponed because of rain after a delay of one hour and 55 minutes in the fourth inning.

The game was rescheduled as part of a double-header Aug. 7.

The Rangers were leading 4-1 at the time the game was called. Mike Richardson and Jim Sundberg of Texas had home runs washed out. Richardson hit a solo blast in the first inning and Sundberg hit a two-run shot in the fourth.

Carey and Challis cop eight-way track wins

CAREY — Todd Wesche dominated the sprints and continued to put a strong anchor on Carey's relay teams in leading the Panthers to victory in an eight-team track meet Friday afternoon.

Wesche won the 100 and 200 and anchored the Carey 800-meter relay team that hammered the school record down to 1:35. Carey also won the 400 relay.

The other double winner in the boys division was Bliss' Richie Graves who picked up the distances.

In the girls division, Glenda Fowers of Dietrich and Margie Lemons of Camas County accounted for nearly half of the first places among them. But the team title went to Challis with a 14-point edge over Camas County.

Lemons put together an unusual four-first day, winning the distances, the intermediate hurdles and the long jump. Fowers was tops in the high jump, shot put and discus.

Hedberg caps archery series

TWIN FALLS — Marvin Hedberg capped off the Magic Valley Bowmen's winter target series in championship style. Shooting for the Dr. Walker team, Hedberg posted a perfect 300 score, an in the bowhunter class. For the year, Hedberg and Bernie Voyles of Barger-Mattson shared the top average at 96. The archers now turn their attention to the outdoors, offering a 30-target silhouette shoot May 7 at Devils Corral. Registration will run from 7 to 9 a.m. at the tournament site with competition beginning at 9:30 a.m. Complete standings and individuals stats may be found in Scoreboard.

Past queens meet Saturday

BURLEY — The Cassia County Past Queen Association will conduct a clinic and swap and shop Saturday, beginning at 9:30 a.m. at the Grizzly Bear. Miss Rodeo Idaho Vicki Rutledge will attend the one-day affair. Lunch will be provided. Further information may be obtained by calling Tamara Rogers at 654-2638 and Pat Kowicz at 436-6066.

Crumbliss posts second ace

TWIN FALLS — Ray Crumbliss posted the second hole-in-one of the calendar year Thursday. Crumbliss used a five-iron for the ace on the par-three, 145-yard sixth hole at Twin Falls Municipal. Witnesses were Ron Shockey, Glenn Simmons and Irla Simmons.

Owner's son assumes reins

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Philadelphia Flyers owner Ed Snider Thursday named his 29-year-old son, Jay, as the new president of the National Hockey League team. The younger Snider replaces Robert J. Butera, who resigned earlier in the week. Snider had been executive vice president of the club since last October. Before that, he was founder and president of SpectaGuard, a firm that provides security guards for special events and is part of Spectator Inc., of which the Flyers also are a subsidiary. "Jay's leadership experience and his thorough knowledge of the sport of hockey in general, and the Flyers in particular, give him significant insight and ability so necessary to provide guidance for the team," the elder Snider said in a statement.

Cager drops Houston for Miss.

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — Two days after verbally committing to the University of Houston, 6-foot-10 center Sylvester Kincheon of Austin signed a basketball scholarship Thursday with the University of Mississippi. The Travis High School star averaged 22 points and 11 rebounds a game as a senior. Kincheon said he ruled out Houston because he never got a chance to speak with Cougar head coach Guy Lewis, and he believes he will be able to play as a freshman at Ole Miss. "The playing time and it being a better opportunity was the difference," he said. "If I went to Houston, I'd always be playing in somebody's shadow." Kincheon was also contacted by Baylor, New Mexico State and Southwestern Louisiana.

Sheehan opens title defense

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Patty Sheehan opens defense of her 1982 title Friday in the $150,000 Orlando Classic. But the scene she faces will not be a familiar one. After four years at the Rio Pinar Country Club, the Orlando Classic is moving to the Cypress Creek Country Club — a young but troublesome course. The 54-hole tournament runs through Sunday. First prize is worth $22,500. Sheehan pocketed the first-prize purse last year at Rio Pinar, winning a four-hole playoff with Kathy Taylor. Cypress Creek promises to create problems for everyone. The par 72 course is lined with trees and features water on 11 of 18 holes. Two drivers recently proved the difficulty of some of the water-lined holes. They spent two days working the numerous lakes and creeks and hauled up 11,000 golf balls. "It's certainly different from what we are used to," said Debbie Massey. "It's very narrow off the tee, which will require a lot of discipline this weekend."

Soviets target of rule change

DUESSELDORF, West Germany (UPI) — The Soviet Union has to defeat a formula designed to break its gold medal monopoly as well as see off the stiff challenge of Czechoslovakia, Canada and Sweden in the World Ice hockey championships starting in Duesseldorf and Dortmund this Saturday. Under the guidance of the wily Czechs, the International Hockey Federation (IHF) last summer designed a new tournament format for the eight teams. After a round robin stage, the teams are split in two groups, with the top four starting a round-robin playoff from scratch. Up to now, the Soviets usually started the title playoffs with a point cushion earned while railroading through the qualifying part. "The formula was designed to prevent matches like the one in Gothenburg (Sweden) last year," said IHF president Guenther Sabelzky, referring to a game between the Russians and Czechs in which both played to a scoreless tie to move Canada from second to third spot.

Baseball gate sets new mark

NEW YORK (UPI) — Major League baseball followed its record 44.58 million attendance total for the 1982 regular season with a 1983 spring training high attendance of 1,463,245. The exhibition crowds were 34,577 over 1982 despite the worst weather in 15 years at Florida training camps, according to a report issued Thursday by the Commissioner's office. "The New York Yankees led in spring attendance with 63,496 for an average of 6,107 fans at each game. Los Angeles was second at 65,782 and 5,001. A crowd of 62,877 watching the April 2 Los Angeles-California game is believed to be the largest crowd ever for a pre-season game.

Coach dies in airplane crash

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Dan McClimmon, the track coach of the University of Wisconsin-Madison, died late Thursday of burns suffered over 73 percent of his body in the crash of a light plane in foggy and windy weather near Middleton. The pilot, George Walker, 49, Plattville, Wis., was in stable but critical condition with second- and third-degree burns. "The coroner's office said McClimmon was in rough shape, and apparently never regained consciousness," Walker got out of the plane, which burst into flames after impact, and wandered to a farm house to summon help. The victims were returning from a recruiting trip to Cornell, Ill., near Chicago, when the crash occurred about 1 a.m. Thursday west of Money airport, a private landing field about a mile west of Middleton.

Swimmer claims vindication

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Walter Poesch, who swam from Cuba to the Florida Keys nearly five years ago, said Thursday he has won an out-of-court settlement from those who said he cheated. Poesch said he settled for $15,000 and letters of retraction from marathon swimmer Dan Nyad, 33, the International Swimming Hall of Fame and its publisher at the time, Dick Mullins. Attorneys for Nyad and the hall confirmed the settlement, but Philip Montague, who represented the Fort Lauderdale facility, said the letter did not constitute an apology.

Basketball players mutiny

Chicago Circle may cancel program

CHICAGO (UPI) — An open rebellion by the University of Illinois Chicago Circle basketball team was made public Thursday when school officials disclosed that there is a strong possibility the entire basketball program could be scrapped. At a hastily called news conference, UIC basketball coach Tom Meyer, the son of DePaul coach Ray Meyer, said, "My basketball players at a secret meeting last March 30 demanded that I resign or they would refuse to play for me." Meyer had left a meeting comprised of team players, Athletic Director Bill Rohitshelm and Vice Chancellor Richard Ward, where all parties were negotiating a settlement to what many of the players referred to as an "impossible situation."

Meyer, accompanied by attorney Ken Demzel, appeared at a near West Side restaurant, where he accused university officials "of bargaining in bad faith and breaking a promise that they would not discuss the problems with the news media."

"A secret meeting was held on March 30 instigated by a former player," said Meyer. "The players complained bitterly that they were not getting academic support from me and because of my failure to communicate with them were doing poorly in their studies."

Ward said, "The only reason we called the news media in was to explain the background of the issues."

after a story appeared in the student newspaper on Wednesday. "There is a strong possibility we could disband our basketball program but there is nothing that would make us fire Meyer, even though his current two-year contract is coming to an end." Rohitshelm noted, "We thought we were on our way to a possible solution earlier Thursday afternoon when Meyer suddenly got up from the table and announced he had a prior engagement." One of the three players who appeared at a university-called news conference following Meyer's news conference said, "It looks like we took a step backwards."

The player, who did not want to be identified, said "under no circumstances will we play for Coach Meyer next season and if the university drops basketball we will not feel short-changed because it is our feeling that Coach Meyer has refused to sit down and talk to us, has not supported us and has refused to treat us like student athletes."

University officials said no scholarship will be taken away from any player. Although Meyer said he would "not resign under any conditions," he revealed "has an alternative to try to settle the problems. I have been offered a one-year contract."

"I feel I not only have been treated shabbily, but feel the entire coaching profession and its integrity is at stake."

Twin Falls netters sweep by Wood River

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Bruins dominated in the singles and boys doubles Thursday to take an 8-4 dual tennis victory over Wood River's Wolverines.

The Bruins will travel to Nampa and Caldwell for a pair of duals Saturday. Twin Falls Coach Clovis Johnson said the trip into Treasure Valley will be a big test for his team, but more particularly undetested (in duals) Mike Rice. Rice will be pitted against the third-ranked junior player in the Intermountain ranges.

 2. Andrew Morrow and Alecia Lang (WR) def. Ryan McDermott and Tiffany Ketas 6-4, 2-6, 6-4.

If the players and the university officials are allowed to get away with this," he headed. While the players indicated they were extremely unhappy with their academic shortcomings, Ward said, "Very few of the players who have been in our basketball program the last six years while Meyer has been coach have graduated."

Brave starters earning reputation

ATLANTA (UPI) — The high-maligned Atlanta pitching rotation is showing signs of coming into the season that may not be the biggest obstacle to defeating the National League Western Division after all.

"We play as good as our pitching and our pitching has been superb," said manager Joe Torre in explaining the Braves' 7-1 record — "the best in the major leagues."

Torre insists he believed the starters, including rookies Craig McMurtry and Rick Bohema, "were capable of it, but you didn't know if they are going to put it together."

"Bohema and McMurtry — they are the surprises," admitted Torre. "Anytime they chip in with two victories that's a plus, that's the cherry on top."

After dropping the season opener at Cincinnati 5-4, Atlanta has yielded to seven straight victories — its longest streak since the record 13 wins to start last season.

The team's earned run average is an amazing 1.77 and, ironically, ace knuckleballer Phil Niekro (6.35) is the only one with an ERA over 2.57. The Braves have given up only one earned run in the last 28 innings.

"Everybody on the staff has contributed to a victory record Phil and you know he's going to chip in with his before it's all over," said Torre.

Pitcher-leader Pascual Perez, 24, has been the ace here for allowing only one run and 12 hits in two complete games.

"To me, he's the key," said Torre of his Dominican hurler.

Pascual's not some limited experience and he's not a young kid," said Torre. "But he's not an old guy either. I just feel we can count on him probably more than anybody else as having the combination of youth and experience."

Rick Camp, trying to bounce back from a disappointing 11-13 mark last year, is 1-0 with a 2.08 ERA and 10 strikeouts and McMurtry (2.57) is also 1-0. The 22-year-old Bohema is making the jump from Class AA Savannah where he was 13-10 last season, while McMurtry, 23, jumped from AAA Richmond where he was 17-9.

Atlanta's middle relievers — Pete Falcone and Rick Martner — have not given up a run in four appearances. Short relievers Gene Garber and Terry Forster also are unscored on in picking up a save each. The other short reliever, Steve Bedrosian, is 1-1 with one save and a 1.80 ERA.

JOE TORRE
Likes his pitching staff

"Nothing could be better for this team in this situation right now than to get the pitching we've been getting," said veteran first baseman Chris Chambliss, another key to the Braves' start with three home runs and a .346 batting average.

"There has been a lot of negative press about our starting pitchers and I'm glad to see them come through. Usually, it happens that way when the press or somebody puts someone down — usually they come out and start doing the opposite."

Second baseman Glenn Hubbard, off to a good start at .320, also defends the pitching staff.

Despite coach's protest, Kentucky might play Cards

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Despite the strong objections of coach Joe B. Hall, the University of Kentucky Athletics Association approved a resolution Thursday requiring negotiations with the University of Louisville for annual basketball games.

The association voted 12-6 to end UK's long-standing policy against playing other in-state schools in basketball and football.

The resolution, introduced by association members Tommy Bell, Dr. Jack Blanton and Dr. Charles Ellinger, directs Hall and Athletic Director Cliff Hagan to enter into negotiations with the University of Louisville only.

An annual game with Louisville would be the only exception to the policy, which generated attention when the Wildcats and Cardinals met in the NCAA tournament last month. It was the first meeting between the two basketball powers in 24 years and Louisville won 118-68 in overtime.

The UK Athletics Association was acting on a resolution adopted by the UK Board of Trustees last week which called for a closer look at the school's scheduling policy. Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. also lobbied strongly for a regular season meeting between the schools. The governor got his law degree from UK but had also attended UI.

Commenting on the action, UK Athletic Director Bill Olsen said, "We are already fully committed for next year's schedule and to be able to get Kentucky on our schedule it would be necessary to make some type of changes."

"Right now we don't know if that would be possible," he said. "It would be a process of contacting schools to see if contracts could be changed."

In looking at the vote, Olsen said there were still some questions to be answered such as where would the first game be played, what would be the length of the contract between the two schools, and is it strictly for basketball or would this also include football games?

It was not immediately clear whether the policy would also apply to football.

In other action, the Athletic Association voted Hall's contract through July 1, 1988. Hall, who coached the Wildcats to a 23-8 record and an NCAA tournament berth last season, had two years remaining on his current contract.

In his 11 seasons at UK, he has amassed 250 wins and coached the Wildcats to an NCAA national championship in 1978. Hall, who succeeded Adolph Rupp in 1972, also made the Final Four in 1975, finishing as national runners-up to UCLA.

Jerome tennis team shuts out Gooding

GOODING — The Jerome Tigers took control from the outset and went on to blank Gooding 12-0 in a dual tennis match Friday afternoon.

Despite the defeat, Gooding Coach Bruce Benedict said he felt somewhat encouraged because "we won a few more games than we did against them last time. Overall I think we're improving."

The Senators will travel to Hailey Tuesday to test the Wood River Wolverines.

Gridders susceptible to malady

CHICAGO (UPI) — High school football players run an increased risk of contracting aseptic meningitis, Centers for Disease Control researchers said Thursday.

Aseptic meningitis is a relatively mild form of meningitis, an inflammation of the brain or spinal cord caused by viruses attacking the gastro-intestinal tract.

Dr. Melinda Moore and colleagues at the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta said their study of seven outbreaks "collectively suggests that high school football players are at increased risk for aseptic meningitis."

"Non-football athletes were relatively spared," the researchers said, detailing their study in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The researchers investigated seven outbreaks of aseptic meningitis-like illness (AMI) — during 1979 and 1980 that occurred in young football players in four states.

In North Carolina, nine cases of aseptic meningitis occurred primarily among varsity football players at one high school — and seven cases among football players at another.

Twelve cases were reported from New York State high schools. Nine football players from two Missouri high schools were hospitalized and four from an Ohio high school were hospitalized.

Among the high school students, athletes (and in particular, have not previously been recognized as populations at increased risk for aseptic meningitis," the researchers said.

They were hospitalized in these seven outbreaks because of attack rates of 23.3 percent among football players from among other student athletes (tennis, close friends of football players or other students studied).

"The high attack rates of AMI in football players, indicating an unusually high case-infection ratio, support the concept that such players may be at a greater risk."

Moreover, the higher rate of hospitalization for AMI among football players also suggests their illness was more severe.

They may be involved in the spread of the virus of AMI among other high school players, the researchers said.

At the end of your football players season, let us set up for season protection from 1984 with the peak of the next football season.

Physical contact among football players probably was closer than among other students, increasing the opportunity for transmission of enterovirus.

"A hygiene sharing of team water bottles during practice."

Greater physical exertion may have predisposed the young football players to AMI instead of a milder enterovirus infection.

The researchers cautioned high school football teams to provide clean water for drinking and to encourage players avoid the sharing of water bottles into the team's water bottles.

Fowlers preserve a heritage

Gathering Indian artifacts

By WILLETTA WARBERG
Times-News arts critic

HAGERMAN — Today, much more than in the past, it is necessary for us to preserve the outstanding remnants of our past. The few we have left are disappearing fast.

Fortunately, because of the 1978 federal Archaeological Resource Protection Act, some American Indian artifacts now are being set aside and protected. Others are being protected by state or local regulations, and some are being saved by the concerted efforts of private persons, such as Jim Fowler Jr. of Hagerman.

Just recently, Fowler and his wife, Robyn, moved to Hagerman to put together a museum — "Period Gallery Northwest" — for the Indian artifacts they are planning to buy and sell.

"What we have so far, we've come by honestly," Fowler says. "and we haven't robbed any graves. We respect the federal laws forbidding such actions."

It seems quite natural that the Fowlers have decided to carry out this venture in an area that is in the midst of spectacular archaeological finds, such as the Hagerman Horse, that are beginning to light up museums across the country.

Fowler's entire life has been that of a collector. And his father and grandfather were collectors, too.

The first important artifact he found — which he has in his collection to this day — is a 2,000-year-old heavy, stone tomahawk used to crush buffalo skulls.

"When I was 6, living in Nashville, Tenn., where I was born, I cared more to hunt for Indian artifacts in the countryside than to go to school," he says.

Fowler, an aristocratic Southern drawl is quite heavy. The Western twang has not rubbed off even a little bit on his speech, even though he's been living in Scottsdale, Ariz., and Sun Valley for quite a few years.

"I'm settled here in Idaho because I like the people better than any place I've been so far," he says. "When I could move the Idaho people to Jackson Hole, (Wyo.), though."

In 1979, Fowler moved from Arizona to Sun Valley, where he set up his first self-owned museum, off Elkhorn Road. He consigned his artifacts to banks and a few large sporting-clothes stores there. This was the first exposure of his personal collection, one he started many years ago when he inherited a few things from his family.

"My first experience in my own business came when I bought and sold Western Indian jewelry on the East Coast. I lost my shirt."

Jim and Robyn Fowler are collecting Indian artifacts at Hagerman

Then, he became interested in old guns, and along with his father, he put together what he says is probably the finest collection of Winchester — "the guns that won the West" — in this country.

"Jimbo, as his wife refers to him, still enjoys collecting old guns and still gets excited when he talks about how he went with his father to gun shows throughout the country every weekend.

Fowler has expensive taste. "I always did. And when I would read the gun catalogs, I would order the prettiest guns for our collection without thinking about the costs. My father practically had a heart attack several times when the bills came in. He kept the guns, however."

Fowler and his Australian-born wife, whom he met in Sun Valley "on the slopes," are aware that what they've collected so far is quite special. Their Hopi kachinas dolls, Nez Perce beaded riding whip and Sioux knife sheath are extremely rare.

The medicine-man lariat, which hums mysterious tunes when it is circled through the air, probably healed many men hundreds of years ago.

And a classic Nez Perce dress, which dates to 1830, could be worn

'60 Minutes' fighting back

Crew miffed at 'cheap shots'

By KENNETH R. CLARK
UPI TV Reporter

NEW YORK — Don I Hewitt couldn't decide who irked him more — Henry Catto at the Pentagon or Lloyd Dobbins of the new NBC news magazine "Monitor." Each one had taken what Hewitt considered a cheap shot at "60 Minutes" and he was ready to fight.

Mike Wallace, who will celebrate his 65th birthday on May 9 and who has a new contract that will keep him at CBS until he is 70, said so-called "ambush journalism" no longer characterizes "60 Minutes," but that thanks to the print media, people stubbornly cling to the idea that it does.

Harry Reasoner said the show is as strong as ever. Morley Safer said that's because it shuns all the razzmatazz of computer graphics and Ed Bradley, the new kid on the block with only three years in harness, still was fine tuning the burden of fame.

For 15 years, "60 Minutes" has reined over the ratings like a multi-million-dollar tyrant king. But while it remains the darling of the Nielsen families, it has become the most thoroughly sued, threatened, feared, complained about and generally picked-upon news magazine in television history.

Hewitt's troubles were typical of the times. As executive producer, he lit erally invented "60 Minutes," and while even he scarcely can believe the extent of its continued success, he forgives neither slurs from competitors nor boycotts from bureaucrats and in one month he had gotten some of each.

Catto, President Reagan's assistant secretary of defense for public affairs, had declared "60 Minutes" persona non grata at the Pentagon because, according to Hewitt, of a CBS report accusing Gen. William B. Westmoreland of falsifying enemy troop strength in Vietnam.

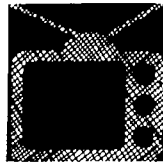

The report, for which Westmoreland is suing CBS, was not a "60 Minutes" piece, but Wallace anchored it and that apparently was enough for Catto.

NBC's Dobbins was with suit for the wound. In an earlier interview with UPI, he had called "60 Minutes" a run-with-the-camera-rolling "news western" and predicted he eventually would "b'da" it in the ratings with "Monitor."

Hewitt had harsh words for both antagonists.

"Lloyd Dobbins acts like he's a high school cheerleader on the eve of the big '60 Minutes' Monitor game," he growled. "That's not the business he's in. He's in the business of doing a broadcast whether we're here or not."

"Do a good broadcast and people will watch you. But this business of being a drum major and being a cheerleader and saying, 'We're gonna take these guys' — it's juvenile. If it weren't for '60 Minutes,' there wouldn't be a 'Monitor.' There wouldn't be a '20/20' (ABC's competing news magazine) or a 'Real People' or anything else.

"They've all come along in the wake of our success."

Ranked as he may have been by the competition, however, the big guns of Hewitt's anger were reserved for Catto and his colleagues at the Pentagon.

"A bunch of generals and admirals decided to circle their wagons around their friend Westmoreland," Hewitt said. "I can understand that, but when you point out to them that it wasn't on '60 Minutes,' they say, 'Well, it was Mike Wallace.'"

"Catto has put all sorts of caveats and injunctions on us ... I wrote a letter to David Gergen (director of communications) at the White House and I said if, as I read, one of the president's favorite broadcasts is '60 Minutes,' perhaps he wonders why he never sees anyone from the Pentagon on '60 Minutes.'"

"Someone ought to tell him his assistant secretary of defense for public affairs doesn't allow people to appear on this broadcast."

Hewitt acknowledged that part of the problem simply is the price of a success that consistently keeps "60 Minutes" in the Nielsen Top 10, but he said the quality that got it there is the quality that keeps it there now.

"60 Minutes" was honored by Mr. Peabody (George Foster Peabody Awards for Broadcast Journalism) long before it was honored by Mr. Nielsen," he said. "When we first went on ... we could do no wrong. We were CBS' television. We inherited the mantle from Edward R. Murrow. Then we got popular."

"Now the minute the American public began to appreciate class programming, it was obvious that NBC and ABC were going to say, 'Hey, why don't we do that?' They tried and it failed. ABC tried something. NBC had more magazines than it had had in its entire history, but they didn't make it."

"So what did they do? They turned around and started throwing mud at us. I began to see these words, 'ambush journalism' and 'confrontation journalism,' and they were coming response practically made the building shake loose from its grounding.

How Wilson can pluck the balalaika! His song "Window Pains" had the same exciting, monotonous raindrop beat as Frederic Chopin's "Raindrop Prelude." This number was performed splendidly.

The Spud Pups claim that this concert was its first before an audience sitting in an auditorium, and not at a bar. Their sounds are excellent. It is understandable that because of their bar experiences they have not developed a definite style of their own.

Rick Kuhn's bass, Steve Parks' violin and Chris Bolton's guitar obviously can do more than imitate the Sons of the Pioneers, Gene Autry and Bob Wills. These fellows are excellent musicians.

They might consider putting together more programs for the academy's stage. And maybe sooner than they think, they'll find their musical identity slot.

Reader's theater features varied works

TWIN FALLS — A variety of drama will be ready for "tasting" in the upcoming production of "Flavors" at the College of Southern Idaho.

The performances will be given next Thursday through Saturday, April 21-23, beginning at 8:15 p.m. in the CSI Fine Arts Center.

The three acts of this CSI Readers Theater production each have a different mood, one comical, another heartwarming and the third, more serious.

The first act provides a view of daily life through the eyes of children. The players will tell stories such as "The Homework Machine," "Peanut Butter Sandwich" and "How Not to Have to Dry the Dishes."

The second act is a story of a Brooklyn family during the Depression. "Hanna for Hope" is about a person who gives the family hope for the future in the face of overwhelming odds.

The last act is more solemn. It is a presentation of "The Scythe" by Ray Bradbury.

The main performers will be: Clifford Hall, Carole Millenberger, Karyn Walton and Randy Wentworth, all of Twin Falls; Dianne Alves of Jerome; Joe Galley and Bonny Wright, both of Kimberly; Edward Reagan of Fairfield; and Patty Smales of Elko, Nev.

Tickets, available in the CSI bookstore, are $2.50 for adults and $1 for students.

Performers are Karyn Walton, Cliff Hall, Randy Wentworth and Penny Mothershead

Swiss work reliable

By RICH WARREN
The Chicago Sun-Times

When you say "Swiss," most people think of cheese or watches, except for hedonists who think of chocolate. But one of the most important Swiss products is ultrareliable electronics. This is largely because of a man named Will Studer. The result of his proud, stubborn, perfectionist attitude can be found at specialty audio dealers under the name Revox. Studer's own name is a feature at sophisticated, expensively equipped recording studios and radio stations. I would not have believed the construction of a Revox product if I had not witnessed it. Although Revox is a Swiss company, much of its assembly is carried out in the Black Forest of West Germany, near the Swiss border. Workers who once assembled cuckoo clocks now apply the same diligence to complex tape drives and electronic assemblies.

Virtually every metal part of a Revox tape machine is fabricated by Revox. Although a great many massive machine tools are used in the process, they are controlled by human hands. Automation is minimal. Revox does use automated techniques in the production of electronic circuit boards with machines that insert all the parts (resistors, capacitors, transistors) at once, and then solders them all simultaneously.

Producing the capstan (the rotating shaft that contacts the rubber pinch roller and drives the tape past the heads) for the Revox B77 and B710 tape machines takes six months. It seems that with all the milling and machining, the metal must stabilize. Revox applies additional heating and cooling so that the internal stresses are reduced during the aging period. Thus, when you purchase the machine there is virtually no chance that the capstan can vary from tolerance. Revox machines have some of the lowest flutter and wow and greatest longevity of any machines on the market.

Every motor coil and transformer is wound by hand, with the use of simple machines. The motor housings are stamped from cold steel one at a time. Most companies buy coils and the like from other suppliers, but never at Revox. The company, of course, does purchase its basic electronic parts, such as resistors and transistors, from outside, as well as some plastic parts. Since the company uses little plastic in its designs, this does not amount to much.

Furthermore, not only does Revox make nearly all of its own metal parts, but it inspects and measures every one individually.

today because of its fine shape. Mrs. Fowler says that she wanted to wear it for her wedding, but it was too heavy.

Works of master American Western painters will be part of their museum collection. The public will be able to enjoy the original work of Remington, Russell and practically any of the other famous Western painters.

Fowler appears to have brilliant and astute taste. It can be seen in the many fantastic artifacts he already has gathered for his museum, which will open soon in Hogerman.

out of people trying to copy us." Hewitt said "60 Minutes" no longer runs after people with its cameras rolling "mostly because I don't want Mike Wallace to look like Gerald Rivera (of ABC's competing "20/20")."

"Every year I think, 'my God, will this be our last,' but it goes on and on," he said. "One interesting thing has happened. No one can look at an interview or be liberal or conservative. There's no ideological bent to '60 Minutes'."

"I think a lot of the liberals don't like the fact that they can't put '60 Minutes' in their back pocket and a lot of conservatives feel the same way. God save us from the extreme left and the extreme right. I don't want either one of them in our camp."

Wallace, for whom "60 Minutes" has built a gun-slinger's reputation over the years, denied that ambush and abrasive confrontation ever were the order of the day. He said it only seemed that way because "60 Minutes" was the first television magazine to do investigative journalism.

"Think back 15 years ago — how much investigating was there, and by investigating, I mean looking under the rug," he said.

"We had a few producers who were anxious to do that kind of work, researchers who were anxious to do that kind of work and I especially was drawn to it, and we found there was a thirst for it out there in the audience."

"Little by little, that helped to spawn the image of '60 Minutes' as a kind of ombudsman broadcast — a watchdog broadcast. That's where, I think, some of the talk about confrontation journalism and ambush journalism began — because maybe half a dozen times in a period of two or three years, we'd walk in with the cameras going."

Wallace said television critics writing for the print media have perpetuated the image despite policy changes that have made such confrontation rare now.

"Whether it's 'The Sheikh Goes to Miami,' or the gun control story, or a profile of Larry Olivier, or a story of the Amway Corporation, or homosexuality in the Army or the National Council of Churches, people in your industry are still relating to the show as if it was three or four years ago," he said.

"'60 Minutes' has backed away from ambush tactics, however, it still juggles a collection of lawsuits and threats of lawsuit, several of which have zeroed in on Wallace in recent years. He attributed the phenomenon less to journalistic aggression than to the contrariness of human nature."

"I think people are more litigious today," he said. "I also think we are a bigger, fatter target today. It's not just '60 Minutes.' A recent study by the Libel Defense Resource Center said there were 54 media libel trials over the past two years and in cases that went to the jury, the press lost nine out of every 10."

"What's had news. The good news is that 60 per cent of the cases lost to juries were turned around on appeal, but that's a mixed blessing at best because of the staggering cost of trying these cases in the first place. It's become an intolerable burden."

The burden has become more tolerable for "60 Minutes."

"Somebody added up how many times we've been sued," Wallace said. "It's been about 150 times over 15 years of broadcast. We've never lost one in court ... It turns out we settled out of court on one for $5,000 ... but for some reason they never collected the money."

Wallace said threat of lawsuit shields no one from "60 Minutes" if its producers conclude that they need investigating. Even corporate parent CBS has found itself pinned to the wall by Wallace's cameras.

"We once showed how the networks invited television critics and wined them and dined them," Wallace said, chuckling over the memory.

"I had Wynn Fanning from the Pittsburgh paper with a camera crew and he came to the desk with all his bills paid by CBS, and he opened the envelope that was given him with his instructions and two 10-dollar bills fell out of his cab fare in New York."

"CBS went up the wall when we put that on the air! Can you imagine? The promotion at Black Rock (CBS corporate headquarters in Manhattan) was furious!"

Hewitt and Wallace may see changes over the years in the way the "60 Minutes" stopwatch ticks, but two of their teammates do not.

"This broadcast, in my perception, is exactly the same in 1983 as it was in 1970," said Murray Safer. "I don't perceive any difference. The cast has changed a bit and we're more visible ... but this magazine we put out every Sunday hasn't changed."

Harry Reasoner agreed.

"Every once in a while well-meaning people say we're not as tough as we used to be," he said. "I don't see it. After Ed Murrow left, the news people used to say, 'well the news isn't as aggressive any more, but ... it was just that the things Murrow pioneered had become routine.'"

"I think that's the thing with '60 Minutes' ... I think it's as strong as ever but it's not as startling."

There are those who would disagree — among them corporate leaders who have been so startled in the course of past interviews in which they have come away bloodied that they now refuse any interview with "60 Minutes" unless their own people videotape it simultaneously.

Their oft-repeated claim has been that "creative editing" has left them out on a limb in the public eye by leaving key segments of the interview on the cutting room floor. The charge rankles Safer.

"A story is edited to enhance the clarity, the understanding and whatever the lead says," he said. "Editing is editing and film editing is pretty much the same as newspaper editing."

In fact, he said, the print reporter has it much easier.

"The rules we have are more stringent than yours," he said. "As a newspaper guy you can take some thing from the end to the beginning and something from the middle and put it near the end and vary it or bury it and it's no violation of news standards — but it is a violation of news standards if I do that."

"Sure we'll take a piece from here and join it to there but only if that piece is in response to the same question. We have to keep the actual sense of that interview."

"I remember that first group of publicity pictures I posed for when I replaced Rather," he said. "We were all standing there, posed, and Wallace looked over his shoulder and said, 'You know, if this show goes in the dumpster, they'll blame you.'"

GLENN & FORTUNE

Ginsberg: A charged reactor radiating ideas

By PETER COSTA
UPI Senior Editor

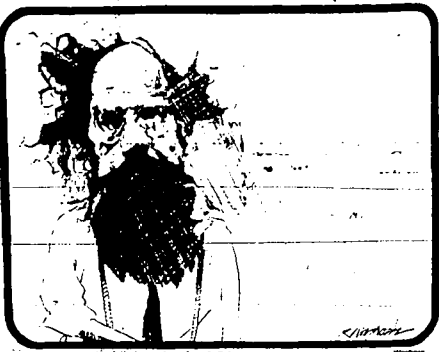

NEW YORK — Poet Allen Ginsberg — Bohemian, iconoclast, mystic, intellectual — looked more like a cantor at an orthodox synagogue than a singer of New Wave music.

Dressed in a navy blue blazer, button-down-collared shirt, regimental striped tie and gray slacks, he would have made his mother Naomi proud. Even his posture was good.

In fact, he sat almost too straight and like a bearded Buddha was lost in the intense serenity of one who has ascended the mountain and seen unseen dreams.

But at other times when he talked about his work, he seemed like a nuclear reactor with its control rods removed as he radiated ideas. He talked about theater as reality, nuclear madness, poetry as music, cowardice, homosexuality, metaphysics, Catullus, Dada, Kerouac, saxophone riffs, the Beatles, plutonium, funk, punk, blues and kindness.

He described his latest work as a singer — as the fusion of poetry and music. "Poetry and music have always gone together ever since Sappho, who played a five-string tortoise-shell lyre. Even Homer was chanted," he said.

Ginsberg, 56, is publicizing his record album, "First Blues," on which he is the featured singer and which is an eclectic assemblage of songs spanning the last 10 years.

Three selections on the album are of Ginsberg improvising with folk singer Bob Dylan in 1971. The others are more recent ballads, gospel singing, rhythm and blues, blue grass, new wave.

The songs are pure Ginsberg: "Vomil Express," "Going to San Diego," "CIA Dope Calypso," "Broken Bone Blues," "Stay Away From the White House" and others with titles that editors would not allow printed here.

Ginsberg's voice is deep — not so strong that it loses selsmographs but powerful enough to be that of a network broadcaster. He spoke evenly and laughed occasionally. He seemed to laugh most when he spoke about government and what he called "hyper-industrialism."

His eyes sparkled through his round, wire-rim bifocals when he discussed his own work.

He talked about the multi-media aspect of contemporary music and said rock star Mick Jagger was an "acrobatic dancer, singer-musician who actually resembles a classicalist like Aeschylus."

"I took piano and violin lessons at age 8 but I rebelled and hit my mother on the breast. All my friends said,

"Allen, that's terrible hitting your mother on the breast," but I got out of the lessons," he said.

Growing up in Paterson, N.J., he said, he used to listen to jazz performers on the radio. Later, with his longtime friend Jack Kerouac he met many jazz musicians — Don Cherry, Leontyne Price, Elvin Jones and others.

"In the 1960s, I sang at Charlie Mingus' wedding. I met the Beatles in London and when John Lennon got to America, he saw my songs," he said.

He spoke about the role of avant garde music in the 1980s.

"Punk and New Wave groups are the continuation of the old Bohemians. He quoted Kerouac: "Don't ignore the other parts of your mind." He talked about the fallacy of holding dear what he called "cornball dichotomies: feelings like hope and fear, positive and negative, optimistic and pessimistic."

"I think they are all irrelevant. I think that's the worst crap possible. He is quoted Kerouac: "Don't ignore the other parts of your mind." He talked about the fallacy of holding dear what he called "cornball dichotomies: feelings like hope and fear, positive and negative, optimistic and pessimistic."

and the death of the spirit. "Everyone is afraid these days to be put down by the boss, a lover or by Time Magazine. A truly first class mind knows the raw meat of his own neuroses and knows his own particular vulnerabilities," he said.

For Ginsberg the vulnerabilities are "cowardice and homosexuality."

"The reason I didn't like the Vietnam War is because I'd be scared to go there and get killed. Susceptibility to pain is our basic intelligence," he said. "We're not a 'ball of iron' that doesn't receive any messages from the phenomenological world."

He quoted Kerouac: "Don't ignore the other parts of your mind." He talked about the fallacy of holding dear what he called "cornball dichotomies: feelings like hope and fear, positive and negative, optimistic and pessimistic."

He talked about the fallacy of holding dear what he called "cornball dichotomies: feelings like hope and fear, positive and negative, optimistic and pessimistic."

He compared his homosexuality with what he called "elements of bisexuality" that he said infused the performances of rock stars David Bowie and Jagger: "It's theater."

Wainwright, McGarrigles are pop idiosyncracies

By GEORGE KANZLER
Newhouse News Service

NEW YORK — Loudon Wainwright III and the McGarrigles sisters, Kate and Anna, are two of the most idiosyncratic acts in pop music. Both can nominally be classified as folk acts, but there is little of the usual folk stance evident, and either act can resort to musical styles as far-flung as pop ballads, rock 'n' roll and traditional blues.

Though their music is singularly their own, Wainwright and the McGarrigles share a fondness for ironic ambiguities, and a humor grounded in literate intelligence — a rare commodity in today's pop music, no matter what the style.

On his new album, "Fame and Wealth" (Rounder Records), Loudon

Wainwright III continues to deal with the concerns of the middle class in the salient tones of a slightly skewed insider.

He is at his most deadpan on "Westchester County," a song couched in the familiar folk tradition of wistful nostalgia for a childhood of hard times. You know the kind of song, often set in the Great Depression and portraying a TV Walton-type family. — But Wainwright's nostalgia is for good times, not hard times — for "country day schools" and "country club pools." This song of affluence neatly plinions the hypocrisy of middle-class folkies.

Some of Wainwright's best songs are the result of Walter Mitty fantasies, daydreams spun into ballads or blues. "The Grammy Song" has him fantasizing about winning a Grammy presented by Debbie Harry, and then walking off with the award and Debbie — not to mention a whole collection of other women from Bo Derek to Joan Rivers.

Ginsberg said he became involved with music as a child — by force and by tradition.

"I took piano and violin lessons at age 8 but I rebelled and hit my mother on the breast. All my friends said, stroke of good luck." The other songs on the album range from the whimsical (a traditional blues with appropriate bottleneck guitar about TV cartoons, "Saturday Morning Fever") to the chillingly mordant "IDITTYWIM" ("I don't think that your wife likes me"). All are well worth hearing.

The title song of "Love Over and Over" (Polydor Records), Kate and Anna McGarrigle's new album, is about writing rock 'n' roll songs — while at the same time being a first rate rock 'n' roll singer itself. It's full of vocal harmonies that would send the Go-Gos back to an elementary chorus class.

Cartoons take whimsical view of the classics

"Hamlet, darling, don't be a silly bore!" says Gertrude to her son in "The Portable Hamlet," by George Haimsohn. "Get into the swing! Enjoy yourself!"

And here's Mephisto in Haimsohn's "The Bedside Faust," showing Faust a vision of an extravagantly beautiful blond. "Where do I sign?" Faust asks delightedly.

Who's sending up these classics.

some smart aleck of the '80s? Nope, these captioned "doodle books" were first published in 1951. They've been resuscitated for our era, in which books of cartoons outsell books of words. Both are $2.95 Perigee Madcap Classics, and a brand-new one, "Inside Romeo and Juliet" ($2.95), has sprung from the pen of Haimsohn — a New York City writer, actor and co-lyricist of the musical "Dames at Sea."

These doodle versions of Shakespeare and Goethe take no more than 10 minutes to read, but they're fun — and they give clues to what the classics they lampoon are all about.

They are for "everybody who has read the classics and would like a new twist," said Judy Linden, Perigee editor, "and for kids who were perhaps bored with classics."

Haimsohn started his doodling in college. "He used the same distinctive figure to make up little books for friends," Linden said. Some of them eventually got to Coward-McCann, the publisher that brought out "Hamlet" and "Faust" in 1951.

The British Broadcasting Co. began the resurrection of Haimsohn's books. Someone had seen them and considered basing an animated TV special on "Hamlet." When he discovered that Perigee publisher Sam Mitnick hunted up the books. When he found them, he thought they were as fresh as they were 30 years ago.

"Haimsohn was astonished that we found these things after so long," Linden said.

Residents of Idaho, Oregon and Utah have an I.O.U. coming (and going) from Pacific Trailways

For at least the next two months starting April 1, one way and round trip fares between states have been slashed to the bone. They are way under last Fall's bargain excursion fares between points on Pacific Trailways routes in Oregon, Idaho and Utah. Compare and you'll find our fare maximums are usually under other carrier minimums.

Pacific Trailways I.O.U. One Way and Round Trip Fares

Between Points on our Routes In:	Reduced Maximum Fares
Idaho — Oregon	ONE WAY $ 80.00
Oregon — Utah	ROUND TRIP 75.00 100.00
Utah — Idaho	35.00 60.00

Still three thru-buses daily between Portland-Bend-Biose-Salt Lake City and return. Additional reduced excursion fares available to all points in the United States. Pick these Interstate one-way and round trip fares and pick up an I.O.U. in cash savings from Pacific Trailways.

What's what

There are no hummingbirds in Europe.

Brown-eyed people usually have the better night vision.

That item most often shoplifted for resale is a carton of cigarettes.

A man's normal body temperature is slightly lower than a woman's normal body temperature.

Another amorous activist in this country contracts that most common of all venereal diseases, gonorrhea, every 15 seconds.

STRIPTease

Q. How long does a typical striptease performance on stage last?
 A. Eight minutes.

Q. Wasn't it Don Marquis who said, "A woman who loves to be at the window is like a bunch of grapes on the highway"?

A. No, sir. That's an old Anglo-Saxon proverb. Don Marquis said, "The females of all species are most dangerous when they appear to retreat."

Q. Any truth to the claim that bees won't sting you when you hold your breath because your pores close up?
 A. No, sir. But there's some truth to the notion that bees are less likely to sting you if you don't move, and you don't usually move when you're holding your breath.

QUERIES

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: There could be some unpleasant opposition by those who are unable to control their temper today. Keep in mind that a conciliatory attitude can prevent rows at this time.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get a good hold on your emotions today or they could lead you astray and cause trouble. Use caution in motion.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A friend is in a strange mood today and could prove most trying to you, but keep poised and this will pass. Relax tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Any public duties you have should be handled without delay. Don't neglect to pay your bills. Avoid a troublemaker.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You have new ideas on how to expand right now, but proceed with caution for best results. Be poised.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Attend to routine duties early in the day so you'll have time for more important things later. Make the evening a happy one.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sep. 22) An associate could be in a bad mood so control your temper and avoid an argument. Establish better relations later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be more alert to opportunities coming your way now. Take a more optimistic outlook on life. Show others you have wisdom.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Find new ways to put your creative talents to work. Strive to make life more satisfying. Take health treatments.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you control your temper at home today, harmony can be restored. Not a good time to engage in outside activities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't labor under any miscalculations or unpleasant results could follow. Obtain the data you need from the right place.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan to save more money instead of spending it foolishly. Take time for thinking and planning about the future.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You may want to have a showdown with one you think has done you an injustice, but wait for a better time when tempers cool.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY: He or she may have to struggle to get ahead in life. Teach to be independent and to be more willing to work for what is desired and to consider the feelings of others. Stress sportsmanship and honesty in your teachings.

Choral concert set

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho spring choral concert will be held this Sunday.

The concert will begin at 3 p.m. in the auditorium of the Fine Arts Building.

Carson Wong will direct the chamber choir and the jazz choir, which will be featured in the concert. A donation of $1 will be requested at the door. The money will be used for music scholarships for CSI students.

Silent theater group coming to CSI

TWIN FALLS — A touring troupe, the Theater of Silence from Montana State University, will present a two-act show this Monday at the College of Southern Idaho.

The performance, sponsored by the student senate, will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the CSI gym.

In "Revue '83" 12 MSU students strive to entertain both deaf and hearing audiences through mime, poetry, stories, signed song and interpretive dance. Included is the oral reading of the lines for those not familiar with sign language.

The group currently is performing in nine Western states, striving to spread deaf awareness among those with normal hearing.

Tickets for the performance will be available at the door. The cost will be $2 for adults, $1 for CSI students and 50 cents for children under 12.

Larsen, Miller featured in concert

FILER — Jeanne Berry Larsen of Buhl and Sue Coleman Miller of St. Louis and a former resident of Twin Falls, will present a two-piano recital at 6 p.m. next Friday, April 22, at the Mormon Stake Center in Filer.

Larsen and Miller both studied piano with the late Teala Bellini of Twin Falls. Larsen has a degree in piano teaching from Brigham Young University, and Miller earned a degree in piano performance from George Mason University in Fairfax, Va.

Larsen gives piano lessons in Buhl. She previously served as coach-accompanist for opera productions at Brigham Young University.

Miller has taught piano lessons in Virginia and has accompanied performers in military bands and the National Symphony in Washington, D.C.

The program will include "Sheep May Safely Graze" by J.S. Bach, "Sonata - 3 Movements" by Francis Poulenc, "Scaramouche" by Darius Milhaud, "Maurice L'Opere" by Maurice Ravel and "España Rhapsody" by Emmanuel Chabrier.

Larsen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B.F. Berry of Boise, and Miller is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Coleman of Twin Falls.

Plumber's story is a pipe dream

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the traveling man who spends five days a week on the road interested me.

He said he came home to discover a well-used pipe in the pocket of his bathrobe, and since neither he nor his wife smoked he was not only bewildered but a bit suspicious. Upon questioning his wife, she denied any knowledge of how said pipe came to be in his bathrobe pocket.

The following day when he went to get the pipe, it was nowhere to be found! He asked for your opinion of this puzzling incident, and you dismissed it with, "Too bad the evidence went up in smoke."

Well, Abby, this should clear up the mystery of MY missing pipe. Being a plumber, I was summoned to the home of an attractive woman to repair a faulty shower nozzle that was spraying water all over her bathroom. While waiting for my clothes to dry, I slipped into a robe hanging on a hook in the bathroom, and I must have thoughtlessly put my pipe into the pocket.

After searching for it high and low later, I suddenly remembered. When I went back to that house, the door was open and I could hear a loud argument coming from another room — so I sneaked in and quietly retrieved my pipe.

I hope this explains it for all hands.

— PETE McG.

P.S. Could you find out for me which five days that man is on the road?

DEAR PETE: Sorry, no help from this corner for a plumber who can't keep track of his pipes.

Pony Express to ride again

WELLS, Nev. — The Wells, Nev. Chamber of Commerce will hold the fifth annual Pony Express Race, Saturday-April 23.

The team relay will begin and end at the rodeo grounds south of Wells. Five riders on each team will complete a four-mile course. Bags are passed from member to member until all the riders have finished the race. Each hand-off takes place in the middle of the rodeo arena where the crowd can witness the action.

The modern-day pony express race is a remembrance of the riders of the mid-1950s who rode from station to station.

my money 50-50 with him.

My parents think I made the right decision, but my fiance feels differently. He thinks I am taking a very pessimistic view of our future in even considering that our marriage might end in divorce. I really don't feel that way. I'm just playing it safe.

It's funny because lately I've been thinking that the reason my fiance wants to marry me is because he knows I am coming into a lot of money.

I really do love him, Abby, but need to know if you think I made the right decision.

— PLAYING IT SAFE.

DEAR PLAYING: Yes. Every divorce started with a marriage.

And if you have even the slightest suspicion that your fiance is marrying you for your money, have a lawyer draw up a prenuptial agreement. Or, better yet, don't marry him at all.

Market smashing all records

By FRANK W. SLOUSSER
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK — The Dow Jones industrials and all other averages soared to record heights Thursday in a late burst of buying that demoralized Wall Street's conviction the economy is picking up steam.

Automobile stocks, transportation issues and IBM, which reported a sharp increase in first quarter earnings, were pacesetters as the market overcame early profit taking to register its sixth consecutive gain.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which climbed 11.32 Wednesday, jumped another 8.61 to a record 1,165.25 after overcoming a five-point loss at mid-session.

The Dow, which shattered Wednesday's previous record of 1,156.64, has climbed 51.76 points in the past six sessions and 367.73 since Aug. 12, when the unprecedented rally began.

The New York Stock Exchange index rose 0.80 to an all-time high of 98.84 and the price of an average share increased 31 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index jumped 1.34 to a record 158.11. Advances topped declines 1,070-561 among the 1,572 issues traded at 4 p.m. EST.

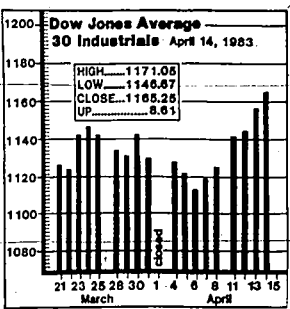

Big Board volume topped 90,160,000 shares, down from the 100,520,000 traded Wednesday.

Trendsetting IBM, a DJIA component, gained to a record 109 3/4 in heavy trading after the computer giant reported its first-quarter profits shot up to $1.03 a share from $1.33 a year ago.

"The results were a couple of pennies higher than expected," said Michael Metz, Oppenheimer & Co. vice president.

"Institutional investors laid back at the beginning of the session to see what would happen and when selling pressure didn't develop, they came charging back into action," said Monte Gordon, Dreyfus Corp. vice president.

Hugh Johnson, First Albany vice president, said the small increase in retail sales and the surge in early April automobile purchases "feeds the impression a consumer spending surge is about to begin."

He added the "incredible surge of money into individual retirement accounts definitely has played a part in the market's rally this week."

Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker's statement "he would like to see interest rates go lower has resulted in rallies both in the bond and stock markets," Gordon said.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 4 p.m. totaled 104,356,900 shares, down from 118,485,100 traded Wednesday.

The American Stock Exchange index rose 4.23 to an all-time high of 404.21 and the price of a share added 16 cents. Advances topped declines 409-211 among the 814 issues traded. Volume totaled 8,560,000 shares compared with 7,730,000 traded Wednesday.

The National Association of Securities Dealers

Automated Quotations Index of OTC stocks gained 2.85 to record 778.81.

On the trading floor, American Motors was the most active NYSE-listed issue, up 1/4 to 6 1/2. Ford Motor advanced 2 1/4 to 44 1/4. Chrysler was third, up 1/4 to 20 1/2. General Motors rose 2 1/2 to 64 1/4.

Burlington Northern, whose first-quarter net soared to $2 a share from 90 cents a year ago, tacked on 1 1/2 to 81 1/4. Kansas City Southern rose 1 1/2 to 52 1/2, even though its first-period net dropped to 65 cents a share from 91 cents.

Among the other rally, CSX added 1 1/4 to 63 1/4. Southern Pacific 2 1/2 to 53 and Union Pacific 1/4 to 52.

Albany International climbed 4 1/4 to 38 1/4. The company has agreed to merge with a corporation formed by several of its senior executives who will pay $40 a share for Albany.

Sanders Associates, which climbed 6 1/4 Wednesday, skidded 3 1/4 to 85. The company, recommended by many brokers, met with securities analysts this week.

American Express rose 1/2 to 67 1/4 after posting a first-quarter net of $1.20 a share vs. 90 cents a year ago. Merrill Lynch surged 5 1/4 to 87 1/4. Phillips-Salomon Brothers 2 to 76 1/4, E.F. Hutton 1/2 to 52 1/4 and Paine Webber 2 to 52.

Bank of New York advanced 3 1/4 to 58 1/4 after the company reported its first-quarter earnings rose to $2.80 a share from $2.30 a year ago.

Golden West Financial gained 3 1/4 to 23 1/4. The company posted a first-quarter profit of $20.69 million vs. a $13.48 million loss a year ago.

Gibraltar Financial, which rebounded with a first-quarter profit of $3.1 million from a $15.4 million loss a year ago, rose 1 1/4 to 14 1/4.

Defense issues attracted attention. Lockheed climbed 6 1/4 to 114 1/4, Watkins-Johnson 4 1/4 to 70 1/4. Loral 1 1/2 to 51 1/4 and Northrop 1 1/4 to 74 1/4.

McGraw-Hill jumped 2 1/4 to 94 1/4 after the company reported first-quarter earnings of 91 cents a share vs. 81 cents a year ago.

Easier tax forms get heavy use

By DENIS G. GUILINO
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Americans up against the Friday midnight tax deadline are leaning on a new, easier form more than expected, and many working couples are missing a new tax break, the Internal Revenue Service said Thursday.

At an IRS service center three blocks from the agency's headquarters in Washington, taxpayers lined up 16 deep Thursday to pick up forms and last-minute advice, a scene repeated at IRS offices around the country.

"I'm a procrastinator of the first order," said one gray-haired lady, ruffling through a box of forms.

IRS Commissioner Roscoe Egger, who said Wednesday his own return is among those filed just under the wire, said use of the new abbreviated 1040EZ forms (for single taxpayers) are running ahead of expectations.

"We've got that 12.5 million in. I fully expect that we'll go something over 13 million," Egger said, noting the tax-cutting agency in this week. The total number of returns will range as high as 97 million, including late filers.

IRS spokesman Larry Batorf said Thursday computer surveys show "a lot of people are overlooking" a new deduction for working couples to ease the "marriage penalty" — the higher total tax paid by two married workers, compared to those charged two single workers with an equal joint income.

Employed spouses filing a joint return may now exclude from taxable income 5 percent of the earnings of the lowest paid spouse.

The deduction can be claimed on both the 1040 brief form and the regular 1040 form and Batorf said couples who overlooked the special adjustment "should file form 1040X and amend their tax return immediately."

"Taxpayers who find they cannot make the tax filing deadline of midnight Friday can get an automatic four-month extension by filing Form 4868."

The 4868 was a popular item Thursday as the IRS offices in New Orleans, but officials said long lines of frenzied taxpayers had not materialized.

"It's like the sea. It ebbs and flows," one clerk said. "Mostly flows."
