Reagan vows to veto tax increase

Stands his ground on spending targets at press conference

President Reagan speaks Tuesday

By DONALD A. DAVIS
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Reagan promised Tuesday to "stand up for the people" and veto any effort by Congress to pick Americans' pockets by raising taxes or rekindle inflation by increased spending.

"The American people didn't send us to Washington to raise their taxes," he declared. "Standing firm against deviation from the basic 1984 budget he presented in January, the president criticized plans on Capitol Hill that would pare his military spending request and boost taxes to cut down the deficit.

Speaking to a national television audience in his first formal news conference in more than three months, Reagan agreed that controlling deficits — now looming toward $200 billion a year — is important.

But he said, "The real question is do we keep our hard-won economic recovery moving forward or do we halt it by reversing course" with higher taxes.

"It's time to draw the line and stand up for the people," he said.

In a wide-ranging session in the ornate East

Room of the White House, Reagan also:

- Applauded action by House and Senate appropriations panels to provide the $560 million down payment on the controversial new 10-warhead MX nuclear missile.
- Said he is "gratified" by what he described as a bipartisan agreement on arms control strategy that is emerging in Congress, linking plans for new weapons with renewed efforts to negotiate reductions.
- Vigorously defended his administration, and the U.S. Information Agency in particular, from charges of nepotism and conflict of interest.
- Told the Soviet Union it has no place in Middle East peace efforts, and said he expects Syria will keep its promise to pull its troops out of Lebanon in conjunction with the withdrawal of Israeli and other foreign forces.
- Complained that "a pretty good hatchet job has been done" on his civil rights record, and said he is confident blacks will support Republican candidates in 1984.
- Refused to repeat his earlier vow to veto a bill passed by the House Tuesday to repeal tax withholding on interest and dividends, saying he would not make a judgment until he sees the measure in final form.

Reagan, who has been under pressure to join in the hunt for a budget compromise, gave little sign of flexibility. He noted he backed a compromise plan drawn up by Republican Pete Domenici, chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, "to no avail."

That plan would have held the increase in defense spending to 6 percent after inflation and raised taxes by $9 billion next year and more in future years. Reagan has asked for only about $2.8 billion in new taxes and said he would settle for at least 7.5 percent more money for the Pentagon, although he originally asked for 10 percent.

Reagan noted Senate budget leaders began talks with Democrats Tuesday on a new bipartisan spending plan, but repeated his stand against taxes.

One tax boost the Senate is considering, Reagan said, would cost an average family $3,350 over five years — enough to buy groceries for nine months.

Saying he is opposed to any tax hike or repeal of the 10 percent personal income tax rate reduction due July 1, Reagan said firmly, "I will veto any bill that would do this."

Asked about his 1980 campaign pledge to balance the budget by 1984, Reagan said no one expected when he took office "the falling off the cliff" of the economy later that year. He said half the red ink is "due to the recession," and the problem would be resolved if the recovery is allowed to flourish.

Saying his latest budget would only freeze spending at last year's level, with an allowance for 4 percent inflation, Reagan said he would veto any spending bill that would rekindle the fires of inflation and high interest rates.

His goal, he said, is to "set us on the path of decreasing deficits so we can look down the road to balanced budgets."

On the MX, Reagan said he fully supports a plan to shift part of the nation's strategic arsenal to a smaller, single warhead missile — a move backed by the special commission he named to study the MX controversy.

Reagan said approval of the MX will "be one of the most important arms control votes of the 96th Congress," and following its approval "We will stand united and ready to negotiate in good faith (with the Soviets) on a mutual build-down of nuclear weapons."

School levies bat 4 out of 6

By HARRIET GUTHERTZ
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley voters said "yes" Tuesday to four of six special-property-tax levies for area schools.

Voters in the Camas, Cassia, and Kimberly school districts passed one-year maintenance and operation property-tax override levies. However, Shoshone voters said "no" to a $90,000 request. The levy lost by five votes.

Richfield voters passed a plant-facilities levy, but Cassia County voters turned down a similar levy.

Maintenance and operation levies last for one year and require a simple majority to pass. Plant-facilities levies can remain in effect from one to 10 years. They require a two-thirds majority to win.

School board results — B1

The Camas County School District passed a $44,054 maintenance and operation levy by a handy 109-43 vote. The 69.4 percent affirmative margin was well above the required simple majority.

Shoshone Superintendent Kenneth Crothers was disappointed Tuesday night, when his district's $90,000 override levy lost by five votes. The totals showed 174 voters against the levy, while 169 were in favor of it.

Crothers said he is not sure what the district will do now. The district will have to modify its budget to do without the money.

Crothers said he will consult with the district's attorney to determine the waiting period required before putting the levy on the ballot again.

A happy George Powell, the Kimberly superintendent, wanted to thank voters for their support of his district's $60,000 override.

"The measure passed with a 65.5 percent affirmative vote. The final count was 349 for the levy and 194 against it."

In Cassia County, Superintendent Norman Hurst reported a success in the $450,000 override election. However, a 10-year plant-facilities levy that would have brought in $200,000 a year was voted down.

Cassia County voters approved the one-year override levy for the 21st time in a row, he said, by a 58 percent margin. The levy received 699 "yes" votes and 692 "no" votes.

More than 56 percent of the voters favored the Last of Peterman attackers sentenced

By ELLEN MARKS
United Press International

BOISE — Andy Anderson was ordered Tuesday to serve up to 21 years in prison for the murder nearly a year ago of a 17-year-old cellmate at the Ada County Jail.

He was the last of the defendants sentenced in the case.

Fourth District Judge Alan Schwartzmann said the sentence took into account Anderson's minimal criminal record compared to that of co-defendant Randall McKown, who was ordered Monday to spend up to 35 years in prison.

Schwartzmann said he believed Anderson had a better chance of rehabilitation, but he accepted prosecutors' claims that the muscular youth committed "the most sadistic, the most savage" acts by bending back Peterman's fingers and shoving his elbow in the victim's eye.

"An attorney general's report on the incident said a 14-hour series of brutal beatings culminated in the Memorial Day death of Peterman, who had been jailed for failure to pay $75 in traffic fines.

Five youths initially were accused of first-degree murder in the incident, but only Sean Matthews was tried and convicted on that charge. The others pleaded guilty to lesser charges or were set free.

"In a nutshell, Mr. Anderson, Randy McKown hit him the most and you, Andy Anderson, hit him the hardest," Schwartzmann said during a two-hour sentencing hearing. "In addition, I think you delivered the cruelest blows of all."

But defense attorney John Lynn pleaded with the judge to understand the situation as "an amazing series of improbable events" that prompted the normally nonviolent youth to join the beatings.

"If you were in that jail cell, you would have probably sensed that most of us have a thin veneer of civility, and that there is an animal in all of us," Lynn told the judge. "It would be just easy as hell to say these boys were just touched by the hand of the devil... and that they were not part of the community."

Banking lobby wins withholding fight

By DON PHILLIPS
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The House voted Tuesday to repeal a law to withhold 10 percent of interest and dividends that was scheduled to begin July 1.

The vote was 322-41, 100 more than would be needed to override a presidential veto. Both of Idaho's representatives, Larry Craig and George Hansen, voted for repeal.

The repeal bill now goes to the Senate, which could accept the simple House repeal or vote to substitute it more complicated repeal bill and seek a compromise with the House.

The Senate voted to repeal withholding at least until 1987 — and possibly forever — but to tighten reporting and enforcement provisions for interest and dividend income.

President Reagan earlier promised to veto any repeal legislation, but has declined to repeat that vow in the past few weeks as his lieutenant at the Treasury Department try to work out a compromise along the lines of the Senate bill.

Asked at his news conference

Tuesday night if he would veto the repeal bill, Reagan said, "I'm not going to comment on that. I'm not going to say that there is some talk of a something or other of a compromise on it, and I am going to wait and see what they come up with on the Hill."

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill said Tuesday, however, that he assures Reagan will veto any repeal legislation and the Massachusetts Democrat said he would work with the president to sustain a veto despite the overwhelming House passage.

The House vote followed an acrimonious debate in which withholding advocates assailed the banking industry for deceiving the public that this was a new tax rather than the collection of taxes owed, while opponents insisted that the public was increased by the law itself.

O'Neill and other House and Senate leaders joined Reagan in strongly opposing repeal, but trade groups for banks, savings and loans and brokerage houses mounted a furious letter-writing campaign that swamped Congress with millions of

Accord suspends 35 years of hostilities

Demonstrators tangle with Lebanese soldiers Tuesday

By United Press International

Lebanon and Israel Tuesday signed a U.S.-mediated agreement to end their 35-year-old state of war and withdraw 30,000 Israeli troops occupying Lebanon since last June. The accord was immediately attacked by Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

"We must not allow the spoilers, the enemies of peace, to have their way," said chief Israeli negotiator David Kimche at the signing ceremony in Khalde outside Beirut.

The document, affirming Israel and Lebanon's right "to live in peace with each other," was the second between the Jewish state and an Arab nation. It was also signed two hours later at the Israeli border town of Kiryat Shmona.

Syria branded the agreement an "act of submission" by Lebanon and sealed off two roads in eastern Lebanon linking Damascus with Beirut, a Lebanese official said.

"The agreement threatens Arab security, the sovereignty and independence of Lebanon and is harming the Lebanese commitments to the Arabs and Palestinians," the PLO said in a communique from Damascus.

The pact provides for Israeli withdrawal on the condition that Syrian and Palestinian forces leave Lebanon also.

In Tel Aviv, Defense Minister Moshe Arens indicated Israel may partially pull back its troops — to the Awali River in south Lebanon — but warned Israel will "dictate the pace" of events if Syria tries to subvert the accord.

Lebanese President Amin Gemayel said the official National News Agency he hopes new talks would convince Syria to remove its troops.

Arms talks begin cordially

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — With smiles and handshakes, U.S. and Soviet negotiators Tuesday formally reopened talks on limiting medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe, then sat down behind closed doors to mull over the latest stalemate.

U.S. chief negotiator Paul Nitze and his Soviet counterpart Yuri Kvitinsky opened the 71st formal session of the negotiations since Nov. 30, 1981 with a two-hour meeting at Soviet delegation offices.

Before starting their conference, the two chief negotiators shook hands and smiled for photographers. They then stuck to the news blackout imposed at the outset.

The two men agreed to meet again Thursday at the U.S. delegation, following the pattern of twice-weekly sessions.

They made their only public statements allowed under agreed negotiating rules on their return to Geneva during the weekend and both men charged the other's capital with blocking progress.

Nitze said Moscow was "imposing unacceptable conditions" by demanding that British and French nuclear weapons be included in any agreement.

Kvitinsky in turn said his government would "never accept" President Reagan's offer to limit deployment of new U.S. missiles in Europe if Moscow reduces its existing missile arsenal.

Western officials said encouragement "could possibly" be derived from the Soviet offer to use nuclear warheads as well as the missiles that carry them as a unit of account in the negotiations.

They said this would automatically limit the number of Soviet triple-warhead SS20 missiles already aimed at Western Europe.

But the basic stalemate remains because of Soviet insistence on including British and French missiles and warheads in the talks, which NATO has flatly rejected since the outset, the officials said.

The NATO allies have always declared that weapons deployed by Britain and France are strategic deterrents intended for national and not West European defense.

Suspect testifies nuns were raped

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — A former national guardsman charged in the murders of three American nuns and a woman church worker has testified the victims were raped before they were shot to death, court documents obtained Tuesday revealed.

Carlos Joaquín Contreras Palacios, a former private who awaits trial for the 1980 killings along with four other former guardsmen, gave the first statement regarding the rape of the women in a deposition taken April 11.

The documents were given to UPI by a source who requested anonymity.

In his testimony, Contreras Palacios said "the women submitted voluntarily (without a fight) to sexual act; that out of fear they had submitted...

"After the sexual act they made no comment with respect to such sexual act. It was supposed they were afraid because they were alone and it was night," the signed deposition said.

The victims, Maryknoll sisters Ita Ford, of New York City, and Maura Clark, of Belle Harbor, N.Y., Sister Dorothy Kazel, of Cleveland, and layworker Jean Donovan, of Stamford, Conn., both of the Ursuline order, were murdered after their van was stopped on a road from the San Salvador airport.

"The defendant recalled that he opened one of the boxes (found in the women's van) and warned them they were carrying subversive propaganda," the deposition said.

The defendant testified the alleged literature urged unity, among leftist groups.

Contreras Palacios said all five men charged in the Dec. 2, 1980 killings participated in the rape. Under Salvadoran law, however, a defendant's testimony can be used only against himself.

His testimony was the first court deposition regarding rape, though reports that the women had been sexually abused surfaced after their bodies were discovered in a shallow grave near San Juan Nonualco, 28 miles southeast of San Salvador two days after their slayings.

Freak spring storm strikes high plains

By TIM CODER
United Press International

A freak mild-blizzard assaulted the central Rockies Tuesday with 80 mph winds, trouncing Colorado and Wyoming with up to 2 feet of snow and head-high drifts. Another 8 inches was expected overnight.

In late May, it's incredible to have one on the high plains like this," said Nolan Duke, forecaster for the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo.

The chill spread cross-country to the northern Appalachians, where overnight freeze-and-frost warnings were posted from Virginia through New England. Record lows were recorded from the Southwest to the East Coast.

Winter storm warnings were posted for the mountains and foothills of eastern Colorado and southeast Wyoming, where the National Weather Service predicted another 3 to 8 inches of new snow overnight, possibly reaching into Nebraska.

The freak western blizzard brought southeast Wyoming to a virtual standstill, closing all roads in and out of Cheyenne. The National Weather Service said 24 inches of snow fell in an area southwest of Wheatland. Chugwater had 14 inches of snow and Cheyenne had 7 inches.

Ferry Schuidt, an employee at the Little America truck stop in Cheyenne, said only a few stranded truckers and travelers were there—mainly because other travelers were stuck elsewhere.

"There's a few, but most of them couldn't come in," she said. "We're pretty much at a standstill, with nothing coming in and nothing going out."

These two Denver residents, donned unseasonal attire to greet the storm

Denver disappeared under head-high drifts that knocked out power, stalled travelers and cut voter turnout in the Denver mayoral election—where snow was a major campaign issue.

Visibility was near zero in some places by the time the polls opened for the city's municipal election Tuesday, diminishing voter turnout was low as Mayor William McNichols Jr. faced six challengers.

The city's inability to clear streets after a brutal Christmas Eve blizzard Fort Carson, near Colorado Springs, was a major issue.

Helm's tries to kill amnesty for illegal aliens

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate turned back a bill Tuesday to drop from the immigration reform bill a provision granting amnesty to millions of illegal aliens, but it put off final passage until late Wednesday.

On a vote of 78-21, the Senate turned back an attempt by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., to strip the bill of a provision that would legalize the status of millions of people who sneaked across the border.

The Senate adopted an amendment phasing in over three years new rules barring the importation of otherwise illegal aliens from Latin America to pick fruit and vegetables.

more years if the rules are found to harm growers of perishable commodities was handily defeated.

By a vote of 51-46, the Senate also dropped a special immigration preference for anyone promising to invest $250,000 in a new business and hire four Americans. And it defeated a Helms amendment that would allow states to deny free education to illegal aliens—contrary to a Supreme Court decision last year.

In debate on the amnesty provision, Helms compared the tide of illegal immigration, which he estimated at between 3 million and 15 million, to the nation's drug problem.

Hostage crisis makes school seek law change

BRENTWOOD, N.Y. (UPI) — A school board president said Tuesday New York State schools had no way to prevent the hiring of deranged people like Robert Wickes who held an entire junior high school class hostage in a bloody nine-hour standoff with police.

Board President Anthony Felicio said school officials were not aware of Wickes, a substitute teacher's aide, had a history of mental illness when he was hired last November. Felicio called for legislation to allow background checks on school system applicants.

Wickes, enraged because he was fired two weeks ago after a fight with an student, returned to the Brentwood East Junior High School with a rifle Monday, shot the youth and the principal and took the ninth grade social science class hostage.

The standoff ended when Wickes fatally shot himself in the head as the last student captive watched.

The school was closed Tuesday to allow students to get over the shock of the slage.

"Wickes said he had no prior physical or mental disability or history of mental illness," when he applied for the job, Felicio said.

Wickes, attorney Gerald Latta, said his client had twice been hospitalized for psychiatric problems and had been diagnosed as a "paranoid schizophrenic."

Wickes also was investigated last year for making death threats against U.S. Cabinet members but was not under treatment when he applied for the school job, Latta said.

Soviets will consider new grain deal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet leaders have accepted President Reagan's offer to negotiate a new long-term contract to buy grain from the United States. Agriculture Secretary John Block said Tuesday.

Block hailed the move as a sign the United States is "getting the pieces put back together again" following a slump in sales to Moscow.

No negotiation date was set for a new agreement, which would take effect after the current pact expires Sept. 30. But Deputy Secretary Richard Lyng told an Agriculture Department news conference the matter might be discussed in London next month during routine consultations under the current agreement.

As a symbol of U.S. disapproval of what he considered Soviet-inspired repression in Poland, Reagan refused last year to negotiate a new agreement with the Kremlin. But, with aides saying the sanction had "made its political point," he announced April 22 that he had told Soviet leaders two weeks earlier he was willing to negotiate a new grain sales agreement.

Word of Soviet acceptance came Monday evening in a telephone call from Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin to Secretary of State George Shultz.

Under the existing contract, the Soviets must buy at least 6 million metric tons of wheat and corn from the United States each year. They may buy up to 8 million tons without seeking special U.S. approval.

"We would appreciate an opportunity to have those figures increased but no decision has been made on that," Lyng said. "It's too soon now to speculate."

In past years, Moscow's purchases almost always have exceeded the minimum. But this year, purchases are expected to total only 7 million metric tons, despite Reagan's offer to make an additional 15 million tons available.

Ruckelshaus breezes through Senate scrutiny

WILLIAM RUCKELSHAUS
New EPA head

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate confirmed William Ruckelshaus as new head of the Environmental Protection Agency Tuesday, giving the veteran troubleshooter a unanimous mandate to clean up the scandal-scared EPA.

Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., said Ruckelshaus is "the right man at the right time for a very difficult job."

The vote was 97-0, with three senators absent.

Ruckelshaus, who has been serving as acting director, will be sworn in as EPA administrator — the same post he held for three years after Richard Nixon created the agency in 1970.

He will take office with a pledge he made at his confirmation hearing that "there will be no hit lists, there will be no 'Big P' political decisions, there will be no sweetheart deals" with corporate polluters.

The vote followed a five-minute summation by floor leaders. The Senate discussed the nomination for half an hour Monday, with no opposition voiced.

Sen. Robert Stafford, R-Vt., chairman of the Environment and Public Works Committee, said Ruckelshaus underwent the "most intensive grilling" given a nominee in his 12 years on the panel.

Following three days of questioning, Stafford said, the committee approved Ruckelshaus 16-0.

Randolph urged the entire Senate to make approval unanimous and predicted Ruckelshaus will do "a fine job in this very critical post."

President Reagan selected Ruckelshaus, who had returned to private life, after EPA administrator Anne Burford quit March 9 under heavy public and congressional attack.

Mrs. Burford and more than a dozen EPA political appointees have resigned this year. The EPA has been engulfed in controversy over charges of mismanagement, political manipulation of environmental programs and conflicts of interest.

Ruckelshaus has promised sweeping changes in its operation.

Reagan wins one more MX vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Appropriations Committee Tuesday handed President Reagan his third key victory in a week in his campaign to win congressional backing for the controversial MX missile.

The committee voted 30-26 to approve Reagan's plan to deploy 100 of the 10-warhead missiles in existing Minuteman sites in Wyoming and Nebraska.

The Senate Appropriations Committee approved an identical resolution Tuesday and both are expected to go to the full House and Senate next week.

The committee actions would re-allocate approximately $560 million for development of the basing mode recommended by a special presidential commission. Congress put a hold on the money last December until an acceptable plan was offered in place of Reagan's much-criticized "dense pack" proposal.

The House committee first rejected 29-26 a motion offered by MX critics to disapprove the administration's basing plan.

The vote in favor of the MX was largely the result of a presidential lobbying effort including written assurances from Reagan last week that he will seriously pursue an arms control agreement with the Soviet Union and follow the recommendations of his bipartisan Commission on Strategic Forces.

In advance of the committee meeting, Reagan invited a number of House members, most of them undecided on the MX issue, to the White House to hear him argue the missile is needed to strengthen the U.S. nuclear deterrent and advance the cause of arms control.

Rep. Jack Edwards, R-Ala., said Reagan appears to be "doing his best" to resolve the concerns of those skeptical of the MX and his arms policies.

Edwards, the ranking Republican member on the House Defense Appropriations Subcommittee, predicted before the vote that the full committee would approve the MX "by a small margin," but said, "It's too early to predict what will happen on the House floor."

Reagan won his first key victory when the House Defense Appropriations Subcommittee acted on the resolution Wednesday.

Pentagon asks billions for space weapons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department plans to seek more than $3 billion next year for developing anti-ballistic missile technology that includes beam weapons, the Pentagon's research chief said Tuesday.

Richard DeLauer, the undersecretary of defense for research and development, said the Pentagon has requested $2.6 billion for ABM technology in the fiscal year-1984 budget now before Congress, up from $2 billion authorized last year.

If Congress approves the $2.6 billion figure for the coming year, he said, some of that money will be redirected into research on beam weapons in line with President Reagan's announcement March 24 of a program to develop a missile shield for the United States and its allies by the turn of the century.

No additional money will be needed for the coming year for Reagan's "Star Wars" initiative, as the program has been dubbed. But DeLauer said the Pentagon will ask for another $500 million in the fiscal 1985 budget. That would bring the total for research into ABM technology to $3.1 billion.

"We're working on a five-year program," he told reporters at a breakfast meeting. Pentagon programs generally are planned in five-year phases.

The field of ABM technology encompasses everything from current testing by the Army of conventional missiles to intercept incoming warheads to directed energy weapons that include lasers, particle beams and power microwaves.

"It's the engineering problem that faces us, not the physics," DeLauer said of the difficulty in applying beam technology to weaponry. A major problem, he said, is developing an adequate power supply for beam weapons.

DeLauer was vague about plans for developing a small, single-warhead intercontinental missile by the 1990s and said it would require about 25,000 people to operate a mobile basing system for the weapon. One concept is to put the missiles aboard trucks designed to withstand a nuclear blast.

A crew of 10 people would be needed for each of 1,000 missiles, he said.

"You've got to keep them busy 24 hours a day," DeLauer said.

An alternative, he said, is to base the missiles in fixed sites that would be superhardened to absorb the shocks of nuclear explosions. It would take fewer people to operate such a system, he said.

Examiners mull fund shift

By BRUCE BOTKA
United Press International

BOISE — The state Board of Examiners will conduct a hearing Friday to study budget projections before deciding whether to overturn Gov. John Evans' decision to use 1983 funds to augment select education budgets next year.

Attorney General Jim Jones and Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa, the two Republican members of the panel, said Tuesday they wanted to study revenue and outlay projections before deciding whether any action is needed.

"I think it is our responsibility as a Board of Examiners to make sure that when we come to the end of the year... we have a budget that is in balance," Jones said.

Evans, the third member of the board, agreed to Jones' request to have officials from several agencies review the state's financial outlook for the 1983 and 1984 budgets.

Last week, the Democratic governor restored $4.2 million that had been withheld from higher education, vocational education and agriculture research budgets early in fiscal 1983.

He took the action after the Legislature refused during its special session last week to increase those funding levels for fiscal 1984.

Evans said the agencies would be able to use the restored funds for their 1984 budgets if they did not spend the money by the end of the fiscal year on June 30.

Although the chief executive has authority to restore funds he withheld earlier in the fiscal year, the Board of Examiners has power to reduce legislative appropriations for next year, Cenarrusa said.

The panel could, therefore, reduce allocations to the three programs by the same amount of funds restored by Evans, he said.

Jones said neither he nor Cenarrusa had decided whether the governor acted improperly when he restored the support — which was viewed by some GOP lawmakers as an attempt to short-circuit the Legislature's decision to hold education spending at current levels.

"I don't believe either of us came in with any preconceived notions," Jones said.

"We are seeking the best information we can get," Cenarrusa added.

At 9 a.m. Friday, the panel will hear revenue projections from the state Tax Commission, the Legislative Auditor's Office, the Division of Financial Management and the elected state auditor and treasurer.

In addition, the Legislative Budget Office is to present its analysis of fiscal 1983 appropriation levels, while the Division of Financial Management will profile the effects of budget holdbacks from the current budget year.

and the cogeneration program, which has sparked sharp debate between the PUC and the utility.

Along with the purchase limit, Idaho Power has asked the PUC to reduce the price it must pay to small plant owners.

The price — currently 7.2 cents per kilowatt hour — is based on "avoided cost," or the amount of money the utility would otherwise have to pay to obtain the power from a coal-burning plant.

Utility officials also have suggested seasonal rates be adopted and tied to the amount of electricity the facility produces, rather than its capacity.

Reading said he did not share utility fears the program would cause an excess of electricity.

Under federal law, utilities are required to purchase power from owners of small power plants, he said.

Idaho Power seeks purchase limit

By ELLEN MARKS
United Press International

BOISE — Idaho Power Co.'s plan to set an "arbitrary" limit on the amount of electricity it purchases from small generators might destroy the cogeneration program, a state Public Utilities Commission staff member said Tuesday.

PUC economist Don Reading urged commissioners during a hearing to reject the utility's proposal to purchase during the next two years 40 average-megawatts of electricity from small hydroelectric and coal-burning plants.

"The staff feels cogeneration and small power is, in the long run, in the best interests of ratepayers and the economy," Reading said during the second day of a weeklong hearing.

"An arbitrary limit has the potential of stifling that."

But Idaho Power Vice President Don Barclay said the utility must be careful about purchasing too much electricity during a time when there is declining demand and a regional energy surplus.

The utility's latest 20-year forecast calls for small-power purchases of up to 285 mw by the turn of the century.

Barclay said there currently is no need to buy any cogenerated power, although the utility has agreed to cooperate with the PUC-ordered program.

"At the present time, and through the next few years, we don't need cogeneration and small power resources at all," Barclay said. "We have said we would do so within limits. These are the limits."

Proceedings this week mark the second round of hearings on Idaho Power's overall construction plans and the cogeneration program, which has sparked sharp debate between the PUC and the utility.

Along with the purchase limit, Idaho Power has asked the PUC to reduce the price it must pay to small plant owners.

The price — currently 7.2 cents per kilowatt hour — is based on "avoided cost," or the amount of money the utility would otherwise have to pay to obtain the power from a coal-burning plant.

Utility officials also have suggested seasonal rates be adopted and tied to the amount of electricity the facility produces, rather than its capacity.

Reading said he did not share utility fears the program would cause an excess of electricity.

Under federal law, utilities are required to purchase power from owners of small power plants, he said.

State lumber industry shows improvement

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's wood-products industry is beginning to show solid signs of recovery from the recession, as evidenced by recent increases in the number of building permits sought by Treasure Valley contractors, officials say.

Glen Stephens, Ada County Building Department director, said Tuesday his agency issued 159 permits for new home construction between January and April of this year. That compared to just 49 permits during the same period in 1982, he said.

In Canyon County, Planning and Zoning Administrator George Ottens said requests for residential building permits have nearly doubled from a year ago. He said 16 permits were issued during the first three months of 1982, while 31 were handed out this year.

Randy Furniss, spokesman for the state Department of Employment, said improvements in the nation's demand for housing are strengthening Idaho's recession-struck wood-products industry.

"There is good news as far as lumber and wood-products are concerned," Furniss said Tuesday.

Campaign's target is student parties

By STEVEN CHRISTENSEN
United Press International

BOISE — Seven southwestern Idaho prosecutors, a citizens group and the state's liquor industry launched a cooperative campaign Tuesday to keep high-school students who drink at graduation parties off the highway.

Ada County Prosecutor Greg Bower said prosecutors have pledged to clamp down on drinking juveniles and adults who buy beer, wine or liquor for graduating students.

A spokesman for Remove-Intoxicated Drivers (RID) said her organization is distributing posters at area high schools warning pupils of the dangers of driving after consuming alcohol at post-commencement parties.

Members of the Idaho Licensed Beverage and the Idaho Beer and Wine Distributors associations will be on the alert for adults attempting to buy booze for parties and for minors trying to procure their own liquor, said Bill Roden, attorney for the two groups.

"We are going to hold accountable all those individuals we apprehend who procure or help to procure alcoholic beverages," Bower said. He said grownups buying liquor for minors are "liable under a variety of criminal and civil statutes" in most cases.

The exception, he noted, is if parents allow their children to drink at home. Although it is technically illegal for minors to consume alcohol at another's residence, Bower said "law officers obviously are not going to go into that home" to make arrests.

Kathy Livingston said RID does not condone any consumption of alcohol by minors. But if high-school seniors are going to drink at graduation parties, the group would prefer they hold the celebrations at a residence under the supervision of an adult.

Grand jury indicts alleged swindlers

By RALPH WAKLEY
Limited Press International

SALT LAKE CITY — A federal grand jury has indicted 21 persons in connection with one of the nation's largest investment swindles ever. U.S. Attorney for Utah Brent Ward said Tuesday.

The indictments culminate a 26-month investigation by the FBI, Justice Department and U.S. Postal Service, Ward said. He said the probe spanned 33 states and eight foreign countries.

"The investment fraud involved a clearing house operation that received more than $32 million from more than 3,800 victims during a 12-month period in 1980-81," the federal prosecutor said.

Ward said most of the victims — 1,754 — lived in Utah. He said 550 of the victims resided in California, followed by Texas, 537; Colorado, 172; Idaho 170; Kansas 162; Missouri, 143; New Mexico, 75; and Nevada, 67.

The indictment names Independent Clearinghouse, Universal Clearinghouse, Accounting Services Co., Business Consultants and Payable Accounting Corp., plus 21 individuals. The FBI said 18 of the suspects in the Ponzi-type scheme had been arrested by early Tuesday.

"From these five entities, the victims' money was channeled into numerous bank accounts," Ward said.

He said potential victims were promised high-yield investments of 8.4 percent per month on a minimum deposit of $1,000. But, he said, investment monies from new victims were used to pay interest to previous victims until the scheme eventually became too broad to control.

Independent Clearing House, based in Provo, filed for federal bankruptcy last year.

The grand jury handed out five separate indictments on May 11. The indictments were sealed until the FBI could round up most of the suspects, Ward said.

The federal violations included Racketeer-Influenced-and-Corrupt-Organization violations, wire and mail fraud, bankruptcy fraud, interstate transportation of funds obtained by fraud, perjury and credit extortion.

Best essay will win business

ARLINGTON, Wash. (UPI) — The Jordan General Store is still up for grabs for whoever pens the finest essay on why they would like to own the store nestled in the foothills of the Cascades.

The owner, Claudia Fricks, has had offers from people who want to buy her bustling business she feels is too much for one woman to manage, but she's sticking to her plan of giving the $200,000 store and its surrounding land out to the best writer.

The response to her contest, announced in January, has been tremendous. Nearly 3,000 people have paid a $10 entry fee and submitted essays. The original deadline for entries was May 31, but Ms. Fricks says she plans to extend the deadline to allow more entries.

"I could sell the store and property now, but I'd rather continue with the essay contest," she said. "Originally, I set the contest deadline as May 31, but I am going to extend it. I'll make up my mind by then how long to extend the contest."

The store is the last remaining structure of the once booming mining town of Jordan, which flourished 60 years ago on the north fork of the Snake River. The store rests on three acres of riverfront property, which includes a half-interest in a swinging bridge that leads to a state park used by boaters, canoe enthusiasts and fishermen.

Since her contest began, Ms. Fricks says she has received over 200 calls from people across the country who were interested in offering their property in a similar contest.

"There are at least three contests underway in the U.S. patterned after mine," she said.

Contestants for the Jordan General Store write an essay of 50 words or less on the subject, "Why I Would Like to Own a General Store," make two copies — one without their name — and send them to the Jordan Store Contest, 18729 Jordan Road, Arlington, WA 98223.

WPPSS levy called illegal

SPOKANE (UPI) — Washington Attorney General Ken Eikenberry doesn't think the beleaguered Washington Public Power Supply System has the power to levy taxes in the event of bankruptcy.

Eikenberry said Tuesday that a preliminary examination of existing state law suggests that no new taxing power is conveyed to an entity like the supply system.

But staffers of the Senate Energy Committee in Olympia feel a clause in state law may give a bankrupt municipality the right to levy property taxes to pay off its obligations.

"It's a question of whether or not the law providing for bankruptcy actually conveys the power to tax, or whether that state is intended to refer only to districts that already have the power to tax," Eikenberry said.

"There are some subsequent parts of the law that suggest, we think it does not convey a new power to tax," he said.

But the attorney general admitted the issue is not clearly defined in state law, making a quick assessment difficult.

"If it's any consolation," Eikenberry said, "even if this power to tax does exist, then in this process, WPPSS would become a junior taxing district rather than a prime taxing district and it would be subject to the 60 percent limitation."

What's what

Q. The British in July of 1912 gave their highest military honor, the Victoria Cross, to a carrier pigeon. What for?

A. Flying in a message of some sort. A war secret. Not to be revealed before 1992.

There are more classical guitarists in Japan than in Spain.

"In the fields of observation," said Louis Pasteur, "chance favors the readied mind." Not bad, not bad. But the Boy Scouts said it better: "Be prepared."

Left-handers smoke more, and drink more. Generally, generally.

LEGALLY BLIND

Q. Isn't actor Robert Young legally blind?

A. No, but he was for awhile there — before lens implants restored him to 20-20.

I was wrong when I said U.S. Postal Employees are authorized an hour and a half for lunch. Numerous carriers report they only get half an hour. This error makes suspect the other claim: that at any given moment 2,500 postal employees are pregnant. Will research this further.

VENEZUELA

Q. I know "Venezuela" is Spanish for "little Venice." But why would a South American nation on the edge of the Andes be named after an Italian lowland city of canals?

A. Indians along South America's northern coast lived in huts on pilings over shallow water. Spanish explorers thought that enough to name the connection.

The highway people list a statistic they call "the wet road fatality ratio." Of car travelers who get killed in rainy day accidents, rain falls heavily on Utah's roads only 1.5 percent of the time. But the proportion of deaths in the rain there is higher than in any other state.

High-flying Orioles sweep White Sox

By United Press International

The Baltimore Orioles are once again flying high above the AL East. Roy Halladay and Rick Dempsey hit back-to-back homers in the second inning and rookie Mike Boddicker pitched a five-hitter Tuesday night to lead the Orioles to a 5-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox for a sweep of their double-header at Baltimore.

Denny does it all as Philadelphia nips Giants

By United Press International

John Denny figured it nobody else would do it, he might as well do it himself. The opener, pinch hitter Gary Roenicke keyed a five-run seventh inning with a three-run homer to lead Baltimore to a 7-2 triumph. The sweep gave the Orioles six victories in their last seven games while Chicago has lost seven of its last eight.

The Orioles Boddicker all the runs he needed in the final inning. John Lutenstein led off with a double and with two out, Hernandez, who also homered in the first game, homered into the left-field stands off loser Dennis Lamp, 3-3. Dempsey followed two pitches later with a similar drive to lead the Orioles to a 5-0 triumph. Baltimore added two more runs in the third.

Yankees 7, Tigers 5 (11 innings)

At Detroit, Steve Kemp slammed a two-run homer with two out in the 11th and Dave Winfield added a pair of homers to lead the Yankees. Loner Aurelio Lopez had allowed just two hits in 2 2/3 innings; both singles by Rodriguez, before Kemp hit his fifth homer of the season.

Red Sox 4, Royals 1

At Boston, Gary Allenson doubled in two runs in his first at-bat since April 22 and Dave Stapleton added an RBI double to lead the Red Sox. The triumph was Boston's ninth in its last 13 games. John Tudor, 2-2, hurled 6 2/3 innings to get the victory, with Bob Stanley getting his ninth save.

Brewers 5, Jays 4

At Milwaukee, Jim Gantner rapped

two doubles and a single and Don Money homered and had three hits to pace a 15-hit Brewer attack. Mike Caldwell improved his record to 3-4 despite allowing Earl Harris, Tom Teilmann earned his second save. Toronto starter Jim Clancy, 3-2, took the loss.

A's 7, Twins 6

At Minneapolis, Jeff Burroughs cracked a three-run homer and Ed Kearney added a solo blast to lead the A's. Burroughs' blast, his third, came with two out in the first off loser Al Williams, 2-5. Kearney hit his fifth homer of the season in the sixth, to boost the A's lead to 7-3. Chris Codrill, 4-2, got the victory.

Met 6, Padres 4

At New York, rookie Darryl Strawberry belted a mammoth three-run homer and Hubie Brooks had three hits and scored twice to help the Mets. Tom Seaver, 3-2, pitched six innings and allowed seven hits for the triumph.

Cardinals 6, Astros 4

At St. Louis, Lonnie Smith's two-run double carried a five-run third inning that carried the Cardinals to their sixth straight victory. Steve Davis led the game open in the third by knocking 10 batters to the plate and sealing the ninth for the Giants' run. Cubs 4, Braves 3

At Chicago, Len Durham's two-run homer in the sixth inning snapped a 2-2 tie and lifted the Cubs. Durham's homer, his fifth, came on a 3-and-2 pitch off Pascual Perez, 5-1, whose nine-game winning streak over two seasons was stopped.

Reds 2, Pirates 1

At Pittsburgh — Gary Redus smashed a solo home run and an RBI single and Mario Solo pitched a three-hitter to lead the Reds. Redus sixth homer of the season, with one out in the eighth, came off starter John Candelaria, 3-4, and broke a 1-1 tie.

CONSUMERS SEEK VALUE AND NUTRITION

Meal planners today are predominantly concerned with nutrition and quality, according to a recent Gallup Study of food preparation habits. The trend is likely to continue, due to consumer awareness as well as necessity. Statistics in the survey indicate a strong relationship between these concerns and the preparation of food from scratch. Seventy one percent agreed that foods prepared from scratch are more nutritious and better than pre-packaged foods.

Homemade yeast breads were high on the list of foods prepared from scratch, the survey indicated. Bread's primary ingredients — yeast, flour, milk, margarine and sugar — make it a rich source of essential and natural B-vitamins and minerals. Whole grain flour adds fiber to the diet. What's more, homemade yeast breads are economical to bake. Consumers save 40-50% per loaf by making their own. Forty percent of all consumers bake with yeast. The majority of these bakers are employed outside the home — startling news in a day and age when time pressures are demanding. But today's stream-lined recipes and modern appliances make bread-baking enjoyable as well as delicious!

The preference for quality foods made from scratch sparks an interest in new, better food preparation appliances, the Gallup Study suggested: consumers are looking to produce a better finished product while saving on energy costs.

An appliance which satisfies both of these needs is the convection oven. Working on the principle of circulating hot air, a fan moves the heated air in the oven around all sides of the food simultaneously. The concept has been used in professional kitchens for years. Even cooking temperatures throughout the oven bake, roast and broil with good results. Bakers use convection ovens because breads bake and brown evenly.

The unique "three chamber" construction of the Convection Turbo-Oven keeps the top and sides of the oven touchable; the hot air stays in the convection oven not in your kitchen making it ideal for warm weather baking. In addition, the Convection Turbo-Oven uses up to one-third less electricity.

The accompanying yeast bread recipes contain instructions for both the convection and conventional ovens and indicate slight temperature and time adjustments. They also illustrate the versatility of bread dough to accommodate different flavors and shapes. Take these delicious, home-baked breads along in your picnic hamper this summer and enjoy the great out-of-doors!

- Makes 2 loaves
- 3-3/4 to 4-1/4 cups unbleached flour
 - 1/2 cup corn meal
 - 2 tablespoons sugar
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 2 packages Fleischmann's® Active Dry Yeast
 - 3/4 cup extra style corn
 - 1/2 cup water
 - 1/4 cup milk
 - 3 tablespoons margarine
 - 1/4 cup grated onion
 - 1 teaspoon chili powder
 - 3/4 cup shredded Cheddar cheese

Mexican Corn Bread

In a large mixing bowl thoroughly mix 1 cup flour, corn meal, sugar, salt and undissolved active dry yeast. Combine water, milk and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until very warm (120° F to 130° F). Gradually add dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add onion, chili powder and 1 cup flour. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in cheese and enough additional flour to make a stiff dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 6 to 8 minutes. Place in greased bowl turning to grease top. Cover with foil. Set bowl in Farberware® Convection Turbo-Oven with temperature control knob set midpoint between off and 150° F (air should be warm, not hot, about 85° F), until dough doubles in bulk, about 1 hour. Punch dough down, turn out onto a lightly floured board. Divide dough in half, roll each half out to an 8-inch circle. Place in 2 greased 8-inch round pans. Lightly grease tops. Let rise in convection oven until doubled, about 1 hour. Bake in convection oven at 300° F for 25 to 30 minutes, or until done. Remove from pans and cool on wire racks.

CONVENTIONAL OVEN DIRECTIONS
 When preparing dough for baking in a conventional oven, let dough rise in a warm, draft-free place, until doubled, about 1 hour each time. Bake in conventional oven at 375° F for 25 to 30 minutes, or until done. Remove from pans. Cool on wire racks.

- Makes 18 Rolls
- 4-1/2 to 4-3/4 cups unbleached white flour
 - 2 cups unbleached whole wheat flour
 - 1 cup 100% bran cereal
 - 2 tablespoons sugar
 - 1 tablespoon salt
 - 3 packages Fleischmann's® Active Dry Yeast
 - 1-3/4 cups water
 - 1/4 cup dark molasses
 - 1/3 cup margarine
 - 1 egg white, slightly beaten
 - 1 tablespoon cold water
 - Sesame seed

Whole Wheat Bran Rolls

Combine flours in a large bowl thoroughly mix 2 cups flour mixture, 100% bran cereal, sugar, salt and undissolved active dry yeast. Combine water, milk, molasses and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are very warm (120° F to 130° F). Margarine does not need to melt. Gradually add dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add 1 cup flour mixture. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 5 to 10 minutes (dough may be sticky). Place in greased bowl turning to grease top. Cover with foil. Set bowl in Farberware® Convection Turbo-Oven with temperature control knob set midpoint between off and 150° F (air should be warm, not hot, about 85° F), until dough doubles in bulk, about 45 minutes. Punch dough down, divide in half. On a lightly floured board, roll each half to 1/2-inch thickness. Cut into circles using a 4-inch cookie cutter. Roll scraps. Place on greased baking sheets. Lightly grease tops. Let rise in convection oven until doubled, about 35-45 minutes. Combine egg white and 1 tablespoon cold water; brush rolls gently with mixture. Sprinkle with sesame seed. Bake in convection oven at 300° F for 25 to 30 minutes, or until done. Remove from baking sheets and cool on wire racks.

CONVENTIONAL OVEN DIRECTIONS
 When preparing dough for baking in a conventional oven, let dough rise in a warm, draft-free place, until doubled, about 1 hour each time. Bake in conventional oven at 375° F for 20 to 25 minutes, or until done. Remove from sheets and cool on wire racks.

- Makes 2 Loaves
- 4 to 4-1/2 cups unbleached white flour
 - 2 cups unbleached rye flour
 - 2 packages Fleischmann's® Active Dry Yeast
 - 2 cups warm water (105° F to 115° F)
 - 1/3 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
 - 2 tablespoons margarine, softened
 - 1 tablespoon salt
 - 1 tablespoon caraway seed
 - 1 egg white
 - 1 tablespoon cold water

Crusty Rye Bread

Combine flours; set aside. In measuring cup dissolve yeast in 1/2 cup warm water (110° F to 115° F). In large bowl combine remaining water, brown sugar, margarine, salt and caraway seed. Stir in dissolved yeast. Gradually add 2 cups flour mixture and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add 1 cup flour mixture; beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board and knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover with foil. Place in Farberware® Convection Turbo-Oven with temperature control knob set to midpoint between off and 150° F (air should be warm, not hot, about 85° F), until dough doubles in bulk, about 45 minutes. Punch dough down, turn out onto lightly floured board (use white flour to flour board if rye flour mixture is completely used). Divide dough in half. Form each half into an oval. Place on greased baking sheets. Grease tops lightly. Place in convection oven until doubled in bulk, about 45 minutes. Slash the top of each oval with a sharp razor blade. Combine egg white and cold water; brush loaves. Bake in convection oven at 325° F for 25 to 30 minutes, or until done. Remove from sheets and cool on wire racks.

CONVENTIONAL OVEN DIRECTIONS
 When preparing dough for baking in a conventional oven, let dough rise in a warm, draft-free place, until doubled, about 1 hour each time. Bake in conventional oven at 400° F for 20 to 25 minutes, or until done. Remove from sheets and cool on wire racks.

Savory Onion Bread Sticks

- Makes 2 dozen sticks
- 3-1/2 to 4 cups unbleached flour
 - 1/4 cup sugar
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1 package Fleischmann's® Active Dry Yeast
 - 1-1/4 cups water
 - 1 tablespoon margarine
 - 2 tablespoons instant minced onion, lightly toasted
 - Peanut oil
 - Instant minced onion

In a large bowl thoroughly mix 1 cup flour, sugar, salt and undissolved active dry yeast. Combine water and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are very warm (120° F to 130° F). Margarine does not need to melt. Gradually add dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add 2 tablespoons lightly toasted minced onion and 3/4 cup flour. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover bowl with foil. Set in Farberware® Convection Turbo-Oven with temperature control knob set midpoint between off and 150° F (air should be warm, not hot, about 85° F), until dough doubles in bulk, about 1 hour. Remove dough from convection oven; punch down. Divide dough in half. Divide each half into 12 equal pieces. Roll out each piece to a 9-inch long rope. Place ropes on 3 greased baking sheets. Brush with peanut oil. Sprinkle with additional instant minced onion. Let rise in convection oven until doubled, about 1 hour. Bake two sheets that were shaped first in convection oven at 325° F for 18 to 20 minutes, or until done. Cover and set third sheet on counter while others are baking, then bake as directed. Remove from sheets. Cool on wire racks.

CONVENTIONAL OVEN DIRECTIONS
 When preparing dough for baking in a conventional oven, let dough rise in a warm, draft-free place, until doubled, about 1 hour each time. Bake in a conventional oven at 400° F for 16 to 20 minutes, or until golden brown. Remove from sheets and cool on wire racks.

Cherry Cheddar Bread, a colorful fruit bread, travels from breakfast to supper or picnics.

Fruit breads go anywhere

SEATTLE — Fruit breads have long enjoyed an important place in our cuisine because of their great versatility.

Here's a delightful new cherry quick bread, flavored with the taste of summer, that's a perfect example of this.

Colorful Cherry Cheddar Bread, bursting with luscious fresh sweet cherries and subtly-flavored with Cheddar cheese, is "as marvelous" for breakfast or brunch as it is as a summer salad or entree accompaniment.

Absolutely marvelous toasted, spread with butter or cream cheese, this moist and savory bread can also be tucked into picnic baskets, brown bags or knapsacks.

One of the nicest things about this wholesome bread is the fact that it can be put together quickly, requiring a minimum amount of time in the kitchen. Halved Northwest fresh sweet cherries and shredded Cheddar cheese are folded into a batter of flour, milk, sugar, egg and oil, then poured into a loaf pan and popped into the oven to bake. The bread keeps well when properly wrapped and sliced well too.

Fresh cherries from the Northwest, in season from mid-June through early August, can be savored in summer salads, appetizers, main dishes and desserts, as well as in home-bake breads and coffee cakes. It goes almost without saying that, as a refreshing out-of-hand snack or light dessert, fresh sweet cherries are a natural!

To prolong the season of this popular summertime fruit, purchase extra cherries and freeze, can or dry them for enjoyment later in the year.

Fresh cherries from the Northwest keep best if stored unwashed, in plastic bags in the refrigerator. Wash cherries just before they are used.

CHERRY CHEDDAR BREAD

- 2 1/2 cups flour
 - 1/2 cup each sugar and packed brown sugar
 - 3 teaspoons baking powder
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1 1/4 cups milk
 - 1 egg beaten
 - 3 tablespoons oil
 - 1 1/4 cups pitted and halved fresh sweet cherries*
 - 1 1/4 cups shredded Cheddar cheese
- Combine flour, sugars, baking powder and salt. Combine milk, egg and oil; pour over dry ingredients and stir just enough to dampen. Gently fold in cherries and cheese. Pour into greased 9 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 2 1/2-inch loaf pan. Bake at 350° F for 55 to 65 minutes or until a wooden pick inserted near the center comes out clean. Cool on rack 10 minutes; remove from pan. Cool completely before serving. Serve at room temperature or toasted. Makes 1 loaf.
- *Frozen, pitted sweet cherries, halved, can be substituted.

Wait til frost danger past

Many people ask me at this time of year, "When can I plant my tomatoes?" It seems that a few days of warm weather makes us forget the recent frosts.

Allen Wilson
Intermountain gardening

The average last-frost date for Twin Falls is May 13. That means there is a 50 percent chance of frost after that date. If you wait another 10 days, your chances of frost are down to 25 percent. Higher-elevation areas have later average last-frost dates.

My favorite frost protection is a blanket. Blankets are good insulators and often give five or six degrees of frost protection. They must be held down with rocks or something to keep them from blowing off. Wet plants are less susceptible to frost than dry ones.

My first year in Idaho, I planted tomatoes before the first of May and religiously protected them every night that frost was predicted. It seems like I covered them about half the time during May.

Then I planted some more tomatoes about the first of June. I discovered that the earlier planted tomatoes had made hardly any growth. They were waiting for the warm June weather to start growing.

I have a leaflet, "Vegetable Gardening Tips," that explains how to use plastic mulch to speed growth of warm-weather vegetables and other techniques for more productive gardening. If you would like a copy, send $1 and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Allen Wilson, in care of Lorayne O. Smith, lifestyle editor, Times-News, Box 548, Twin Falls, 83301.

In previous columns, I listed some vegetables and flowers that can tolerate temperatures down to the mid-20s. However, the tender vegetables and flowers should not be exposed to temperatures below 32 degrees unless they are given protection.

The tender vegetables that will not tolerate anything below 32 degrees are: tomato, pepper, eggplant, squash, cucumber, melon, pumpkin and bean. Sweet corn and celery usually can withstand 30 degrees. Although potato plants are quite tender, it usually takes them three weeks to come up, so they can be planted early.

Tender flowers include: ageratum, aster, begonia, celosia, coleus, cosmos, dahlia, geranium, impatiens, marigold, portulaca, salvia, verbena and zinnia. If you have planted any of these, be ready to protect them at the first warning of possible frost.

Everyone is familiar with hot caps. These wax paper or plastic hats are widely used to speed growth and protect tomatoes, peppers and other tender plants from frost. But many people are not aware that they give only two or three degrees of frost protection. The same is true for any clear plastic material.

Fine print tells story on coupon

By MARTIN SLOANE
United Feature Syndicate

"Dear Martin: I received a coupon for a free bar of Carosa soap with a maximum value of up to 79 cents. My supermarket had a Carosa two-bar pack on sale for 80 cents.

Supermarket Shopper

"When I tried to use my free coupon, the cashier said I would get one free, but would have to pay 40 cents for the second bar. This doesn't seem fair. I think she should have given me the 79-cent credit and just asked me to pay an additional penny for the second bar. What do you think? — Susan Garland, Flyria, Ohio.

"Dear Susan: Unfortunately, most free product coupons usually have fine print instructing the retailer to only redeem the coupon on the purchase of a single item. This means that the additional value over the cost of that single bar of soap can't be credited toward a second bar. Sorry about that!

"Even with refunding, redemption is sometimes hard to find. The experience of Pat Frappier of Kettering, Ohio, is an interesting example. "Our local 7-Up bottler had a contest with prizes printed on the bottle caps, each worth 25 cents cash. Using the list of the authorized redemption centers that was printed in the newspaper, I tried to redeem my four caps at several of these stores but was turned down at each. They just said they were no longer redeeming the caps!"

"Did Pat give up and chuck the caps in the 'circular file'?"

"Says she: 'I considered throwing the caps in the trash and forgetting the whole thing, but I had an urge to give the 7-Up bottler a call and try to get some satisfaction. Sure enough, I was told to put the caps in the mail and they would send me a check. A week later I received a check for $1.50, which included my postage, and I was surprised to also receive four coupons for free bottles of 7-Up. I think my experience shows that it does pay for consumers to speak up."

"Here's a tip from Susan Andrea of Huntington, N.Y.: "The boxes from 100-count tea bags are very handy for storing proofs-of-purchase. The dividers for the tea bags become dividers for box tops and labels. I then number and label the tea bag boxes and stack them neatly. They have made filling and finding my proofs a lot easier!"

SMART SHOPPING AWARD

"The Smart Shopping Award goes to Carole Platt of Sarsota, Fla. Carole was looking through the basket of reduced items in my supermarket and found two jars of Planters-Dry-Roasted Peanuts. They were reduced to $1.25 and I saw that the label on each bottle said 'Limited Edition Decoder.' When I compared them in the same jars on the shelf, priced at $2.29, I saw that the fancy glass top was missing. Imagine my surprise the following week when I found a Planters advertisement in the newspaper offering $3 in cash and 4 coupons for sending in the labels from these two bottles."

"Carole and other readers whose smart shopping experiences appear in this column receive a copy of my couponing and refunding magazine, The National Supermarket Shopper. Write to me in care of this newspaper.

Readers OK older women for youths

DEAR ABBY: This is regarding "Heartsick Mother," whose good-looking, intelligent, 18-year-old son admitted that he was having an affair with the mother of one of his friends. (She was 41 and divorced.)

You told the mother to point out the pitfalls of such an affair — or ask his older brothers to. What pitfalls? That arrangement can be the best thing that ever happened to her son.

I'm a happily married middle-aged man. I was a painfully shy 18-year-old boy when I went away to college. A buxom little widow in her 50s — the landlady in the rooming house where I stayed — helped me overcome my shyness. She also taught me how to be a lover and a gentleman.

I have no regrets. She filled my needs and I filled hers. Every 18-year-old boy should have the kind of deal I had.

—IT HAPPENED IN CAMBRIDGE
DEAR IT HAPPENED: The mail is running 10-to-1 in your favor. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: "Heartsick Mother" doesn't know when she's well off. That 41-year-old woman has probably taught her son a lot. But there's something every man should learn, and apparently her kid hasn't learned it yet: how to keep his mouth shut.

—TIGHT-LIPPED IN LOUISVILLE
DEAR ABBY: What's wrong with a 41-year-old woman keeping company with an 18-year-old?

Any single woman over 40 knows that most single men over 40 are eccentric, selfish, cheap and intimidated by a contemporary woman.

Eighteen-year-old men are delightful companions. They are open, honest, warm and unafraid. And they're wonderful lovers!

I am a 40-year-old widow, but you may sign me...

—JIMES 'EM YOUNG IN L.A.
Now I hear it's Pasadena.

DEAR ABBY: As a Frenchwoman, I belong to a culture where a love affair between a young man and an older woman doesn't shock anybody. In fact, it is the best way for a young man to learn about sex and life. It is also understood that such an affair is not intended to last forever.

The older woman is more mature, more sensitive and more realistic than a teen-age girl. Such an experience can be enriching without leading to one of those silly marriages between two inexperienced, immature teenagers. (Of course, there are exceptions.)

My advice to "Heartsick Mother" would be: Try not to identify with the woman your son is having the affair with, and examine your rather natural but ambiguous jealousy. Of course, that means facing real feelings instead of imposing only to puritanical ethics based upon society and cultural preconceptions.

I am 43 and do not especially wish to have an affair with an 18-year-old boy. But this is a matter of taste and circumstances.

—MADAME M. IN BERKELEY

CONFIDENTIAL TO INNOCENT AND MISJUDGED IN B.C.: Tell your "best friend" who carried the tale to you that destroyed the friendship between you and "Mary," the following: "I want to clear the air, so I hope you will give me permission to tell Mary that her assumption was wrong and I did not intentionally snub her. Because if you don't, I intend to do so without your permission."

P.S. A "best friend" who causes trouble qualifies as "no friend."
(Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby's Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)
