WPPSS halts more reactors

By MARTIN HEERWALD
United Press International

SEATTLE — The Washington Public Power Supply System's executive board Friday ordered the mothballing of its project No. 3, the fourth of its five nuclear power projects to be abandoned or delayed.

The board voted unanimously to call a three-year halt on work at the generating plant at Satsop, Wash. The plant is 75 percent complete and had been scheduled to begin generating power in 1986.

WPPSS, which is threatening to default on $2.25 billion in bonds issued to finance abandoned plants 4 and 5, was unable to go to the bond market for the $1 billion needed to complete project 3.

However, the board gave the supply system's managers 30 days to slow down work without formally beginning the mothballing procedures in hopes that alternative methods of financing the project could be found.

After deciding to mothball project 3, the board voted to junk the remains of the two abandoned plants at Satsop and Richland, Wash., later this summer.

It voted to notify everyone involved in WNP-4 and WNP-5 that WPPSS would move to the second phase of termination — by dropping efforts to raise the two plants' license at a cost of $10 million a year and selling off their parts.

Executive Board Chairman Carl Halvorsen said the action would be effective June 30 unless the board heard convincing arguments against it, which he did not expect. He said the 88 Northwestern utilities that own the abandoned plants have "sold the system to 'get rid of them.'"

The board did not discuss default on WPPSS 4 and 5 bonds, but was told the monthly interest payment would not be made next week. A Seattle judge this week barred bondholders and their trustees from beginning default proceedings until legal battles over bond pending court rulings on the utilities' obligations.

Four Northwestern private utilities, who own 30 percent of the plant and have invested more than $500 million in it, have voiced strong opposition to mothballing plant 3 and threatened to go to court to prevent it.

BPA administrator Peter Johnson recommended the three-year moratorium, saying the federal power marketing agency could not provide funds to continue work on the project and that conventional sources of borrowing had been closed off by the impending default on WPPSS 4 and 5 bonds. He warned against the risks of unconventional financial houses and Northwest banks reportedly have voiced strong reservations in private about lending money to WPPSS while a swarm of litigation is swirling around the termination of projects 4 and 5.

Ammonia spills, 20 homes evacuated

By HAL BERTON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — More than 100 gallons of toxic ammonia escaped from a ruptured hose at the Simplot fertilizer plant, off Eastland Drive in Twin Falls, late Friday morning, triggering a 45-minute evacuation of more than 20 nearby homes.

Nine persons, including two Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies and two ambulance attendants, were treated for ammonia inhalation at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center and released.

Twin Falls County Sheriff Jim

Munn said no one was overcome by the fumes, but several persons inhaled them and reported breathing difficulties.

The gas spread to the southwest, turning the white blooms of nearby apple trees brown, and forcing homeowners and outdoor workers to flee indoors to escape the fumes.

The Simplot plant compound, however, was not evacuated since the prevailing winds spared the buildings from major exposure to the anhydrous ammonia fumes.

Anhydrous ammonia is a commonly used nitrogen fertilizer that is refined from natural gas. Farmers normally inject it from pressurized tanks directly into the soil. Like any ammonia-based compound, it can be lethal in high enough doses.

"This was potentially a very dangerous spill that could have caused hundreds of injuries and possibly deaths if it had not been contained," said Dennis Hendrixson, the manager of Twin Falls Emergency Medical Services, the ambulance firm that serves the city.

"Anhydrous ammonia essentially burns the lungs and messes up the body metabolism. And it really doesn't take that much to do that."

The accident occurred at about 11:05 a.m., while a Pacific International Express truck was unloading a shipment of anhydrous ammonia fertilizer, brought from Pocatello.

Shortly after the truck driver began pumping the ammonia into a storage tank, a three-inch hose ruptured, with a loud noise, spilling the compressed liquid into the atmosphere, where it turned into gas.

The driver managed to find off the fumes long enough to turn off a valve that shut down the flow from the tank before he ran for cover.

Simplot employee Mike Twichell then began to hose the area down with water in an attempt to turn the gas back into liquid form.

Grain negotiations finally scheduled for U.S., Soviets

By LINDA WERFELMAN
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The United States and Soviet Union will begin long-awaited talks on a new long-term grain sales agreement next week, the Reagan administration announced Friday.

The talks will be added to routine, two-day consultations between representatives of the two countries beginning Wednesday in London.

U.S. Trade Representative William Brock said in a statement released by the Agriculture Department.

The consultations, which are likely to concern possible Soviet purchases during the current trade year, will be completed Wednesday.

Beginning Thursday, however, Deputy Trade Representative Robert Lighthizer will head the U.S. delegation into the preliminary grain talks with the Soviets in hopes of eventually developing a new long-term agreement.

In a printed statement released several hours before the administration's official announcement, Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., said he "welcomed indications that negotiations finally have been scheduled."

"It seems clear that both sides are ready for serious and thorough talks on agricultural trade relations," he said.

Officials have declined to say what sales levels they will propose or how many years they would like the new agreement to run.

Under the current agreement, Moscow is required to buy at least 6 million metric tons of American wheat and corn annually. If the Kremlin fails to buy more than 8 million tons, further approval from the U.S. government is needed.

Israel forces go on alert, Syrian troops move

By GERALD NADLER
United Press International

Israel placed its forces on alert Friday and sent warplanes on a speed-of-sound sortie over Beirut amid reports of large-scale Syrian troop maneuvers in eastern Lebanon and along the Israeli-annexed Golan Heights.

"We hope that Syria will not make a fatal mistake. We are taking the necessary measures," Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir said as he left Tel Aviv for a week's trip to Europe.

In Damascus, the state-run Syrian radio said the Israeli charges of a Syrian troop build-up were a "cover for Israel's aggressive intentions and preparations for war."

"Using the pretext of Syrian preparations in the (Lebanese) Bekaa Valley, Israel and the United States are now in close contact regarding the implementation stage of the aggression," the radio said.

The radio warned Israel that it was considering an aggressive adventure, it has to calculate a thousand times, because Syria will deal with it with strength and determination.

Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat Friday called a meeting of the revolutionary council of Fatah, the PLO's mainstream faction and Arafat's own power base, to discuss dissent among his officers.

PLO sources said Fatah's revolutionary council would meet Sunday for two days to discuss dissent which escalated last week when five officers rejected an order by Fatah's central committee placing them under Arafat's personal command.

The five officers have demanded removal of two officers Arafat appointed to senior commanding positions in the Bekaa.

STATSPUN Beirut said an estimated 150 Israeli tanks, troop carriers and other military vehicles were spotted near coastal Damour and on the outskirts of Sidon.

The broadcast did not say where the tanks were heading, but the rightist Voice of Lebanon radio said they were heading for the Shouf mountains to replace units already deployed there.

Beirut radio also reported that Israeli warplanes flying over Beirut and during at least one of the overnight flights, the jets broke the sound barrier.

Stage prepared for economic summit of industrial nations

Japanese leader says he's eager to talk

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON — Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone assured President Reagan today Japan will cooperate fully with the United States to make Williamsburg — site of the weekend economic summit of industrial nations — "a town of hope for the world."

Nakasone and Reagan, in departure statements following a birthday lunch for the Japanese leader at the White House, said they discussed a wide range of bilateral and global issues during their talks.

"We agreed that the summit will bear a very important role to restore hope and confidence to the world economy when some encouraging signs are beginning to appear in some parts of the major economies, including that of the United States," Nakasone said.

"I have assured the president that Japan will fully cooperate with the United States so that Williamsburg will be called 'a town of hope' for the world," he said.

Reagan said he and Nakasone agreed that cooperation between their two nations is essential. "There was complete harmony on essential issues, and on the need for industrial democracies to work together," he said.

Reagan, whose plans for harmonious talks with Nakasone might have been hurt by criticism contained in a State Department summit briefing book, left for Williamsburg after the meeting with the Japanese leader.

Nakasone, 65 today, appeared relaxed and not outwardly concerned about the State Department gifts.

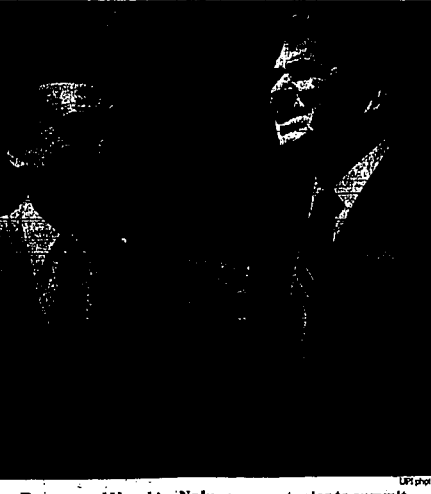

Reagan was expected to voice satisfaction with Japanese moves to open more Japanese markets to U.S. products during his Oval Office meeting and working lunch with Nakasone.

But Reagan also had the task of smoothing over criticism of Japan that the State Department originally included in a summit briefing book distributed to reporters. After the Japanese protested, the offending material was deleted.

State Department officials indicated their ambivalence of Japan and expressed regret Thursday when the Japanese protested the singling out of Japan for protectionist tariffs and informal restrictions that effectively exclude many foreign manufactured imports.

"It is not in the true spirit of Williamsburg," a top official said. The State Department official said

Western Europe expects little at meeting

By United Press International

France and West Germany said Friday they want attention paid to their economic problems at the Williamsburg summit but did not expect the seven-nation talks to present magical solutions.

"The Williamsburg summit should not be presented as a sort of boxing ring," said socialist French President Francois Mitterrand, who has called for the creation of a new world monetary system with fixed-currency exchange rates.

Referring to his support of a new monetary system, Mitterrand said in Paris he "knew full well that this cannot be created with the sweep of some magic wand. But we must start as soon as possible because it takes such a long time."

Mitterrand has strongly criticized U.S. economic policies, calling for a reduction in American interest rates to protect the weakened French franc from further decline.

Mitterrand warned against believing that seven leaders at the three-day summit which begins Saturday could solve the world's economic difficulties, but said "one may hope to arrive at enough specific objectives for the world's activity as a whole."

The economic conference will be attended by President Reagan, Mitterrand, Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone and Italian Prime Minister Amintore Fanfani. Gaston Thorn, President of the European Common Market will also be at the talks.

Enrico Colombo, Italy's spokesman said no rallies were expected from the talks but West Germany wanted agreement on measures to stimulate industrial growth and fight the nation's record unemployment.

"We must now see to it that the economic recovery holds steady and a decade of burgeoning inflation and growing unemployment is wiped out in favor of a period of stability and the gradual reduction of joblessness," spokesman Peter Boenisch said.

In Rome, Italian Foreign Minister Emilio Colombo said the summit needed to produce "solidarity among the Western powers for a solution of the economic problems."

Colombo also said the fact the summit conference was being under American chairmanship "has a particular significance in an international situation characterized by such delicate phases as the present one."

Briefly

Fireworks factory blows up.
 BENTON, Tenn. (UPI) — An illegal fireworks factory on a worm farm exploded Friday like "a direct hit" on the outskirts of Benton, leaving a huge mushroom cloud over the mountains of southeast Tennessee.
 "I haven't seen anything like this since Vietnam," said Polk County Sheriff Frank Payne. "You could equate what happened to a direct hit from a bomb."
 One victim — a woman — was blown through the roof of a house near the factory that exploded in a series of thunderous blasts that neighbors said lasted eight or nine minutes and produced a mushroom cloud that could be seen for two miles.
 Law enforcement and medical personnel who rushed to Webb's Bull Farm on the outskirts of Benton were situated at the devastation. Body parts rained down on trees and buildings up to 100 yards away.
 The final count on the number of dead was not determined until more than eight hours after the explosion.

Terrorist captured in shootout
 NEW YORK (UPI) — Fugitive Puerto Rican terrorist William Morales, sought in a four-year international manhunt, has been recaptured in a blazing shootout with Mexican police, authorities said Friday.
 Several people, including police officers, were wounded in the gun battle in the mountains 100 miles south of Mexico City, FBI and New York City police spokesmen said. Morales, 32, was not injured.

A leader of the terrorist FALN Puerto Rican independence group, Morales lost most of both hands and an eye in a July 1978 blast at a bomb factory in New York. He had been sentenced to up to 89 years by a state judge and 10 years by a federal judge after convictions on weapons and explosives charges.
 Despite his injuries, Morales escaped May 21, 1979 from a third-floor prison ward of Bellevue Hospital in New York.

Airline buy-out still blocked
 COEUR D'ALENE (UPI) — Western Frontiers President Gerald Jaeger said Friday the corporation's board chairman, Robert Templin, is the only director opposed to a plan to sell the firm for $7 million.
 Jaeger said the buy-out offer of businessman Duane Hagadone, which Jaeger termed "generous," actually came at the request of other Western Frontiers directors.
 It was reported earlier that Templin sent a letter to Western Frontiers shareholders urging them not to sell Hagadone stock in the motel and restaurant corporation without talking to him first.

Templin, who opened his first motel in 1949, charged that Hagadone had offered more money to corporation directors than to shareholders, which he said he didn't think was "morally right." He also criticized Hagadone for trying to monopolize the Coeur d'Alene waterfront.

Workers walk out across Italy
 ROME (UPI) — An estimated 15 million workers staged strikes and marched through major Italian cities Friday in a coordinated protest calculated to help the communist and socialist in the campaign for elections next month.
 The general strike, which lasted from 2 to 8 hours, was called by the communist-led federation of Italy's three main unions, the Communist CGIL, Socialist UIL and Catholic CGISL.
 The primary purpose was to press for new and better work contracts, some of which have not been renewed for 18 months.
 Prime movers in the strike action were the powerful metalworkers, who have been agitating for government action for months.

U.S. pilot arrested for spying
 LIMA, Peru (UPI) — Peruvian police arrested an American pilot for Eastern Airlines Friday and detained him for more than eight hours on charges he had photographed a military base from the window of the Lockheed jetliner he was about to fly to Chile.
 It was unclear whether Capt. Clifford Knauer of Miami, who claimed he takes pictures as a hobby and was unaware the military base was nearby, would have to return to Peru next week for further questioning.
 The 58-year-old pilot was questioned for eight hours by Peruvian security and investigative police after being seized from the cockpit of his TriStar jet on charges he had photographed the "Group Eight" military base alongside Lima's international airport.

Former bodyguard convicted
 PITTSFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — A former bodyguard to Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson has been convicted for the second time of the 1979 fatal shooting during an attempt to collect a gambling debt.
 Brian K. Matchett, 35, and an ex-Marine who had served in the 1960s as a presidential bodyguard, was convicted Thursday of manslaughter in his non-jury trial before Berkshire Superior Court Judge Lawrence B. Urbano.
 Urbano sentenced him to 12 to 20 years in Walpole State Prison.
 The 6-foot-4, 300-pound Matchett said the shooting was in self-defense.

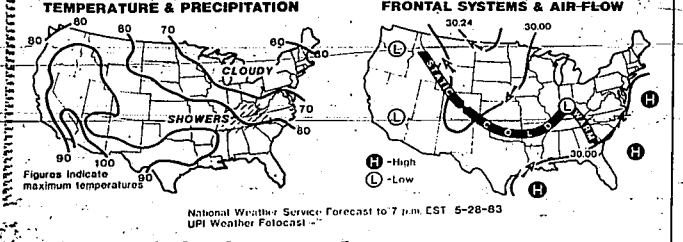

Train wreck kills at least six
 COLOGNE, West Germany (UPI) — An express train traveling at 85 mph smashed into a landside of mud Friday and derailed, killing six people and injuring 18 others.
 Authorities impounded railway records and other data to determine if negligence caused the crash.
 The investigation will establish whether carelessness by railway officials contributed to the crash, late Thursday at Grossknogsdorf, a Cologne suburb, a spokesman for the Cologne prosecutor said.

WPPSS

 2 and 3 were not underwritten by the BPA, represent a $2.25 billion debt for the 83 Northwest public utilities. Nearly all of them have refused to pay their shares of the debt since the projects never were completed.
 Johnson insisted BPA was committed to finishing the three WPPSS plants — Nos. 1, 2 and 3 — that it has contracted to buy power from. Project No. 2 is almost completed and scheduled to begin producing power next year. No. 1 was mothballed last year.
 Mazur said mothballing "doesn't mean drop the wrench and walk away" from project No. 3, which is under budget and ahead of schedule.
 "If we can't get financing, we become available in the next 30 days," he said. "We could then turn the situation around," Mazur said.
 The delay of completion until 1989 will add at least $50 million to the cost of the plant, WPPSS staff said Thursday. The plant would have cost $3.25 billion if finished on time.
 William Wall, director of Kansas Power and Light and an outside member of the executive board, stated that Northwest residents were going to pay for the WPPSS plants whether they produced power or not.
 "No one should think that someone is not going to pay for all these costs," he said. "This region could be in the situation where you are going to have higher rates for nuclear dry holes and poor credit — the worst of all worlds."
 BPA set the stage for the mothballing of No. 3 earlier this week when it reported the impending default on bond payments for WPPSS 4 and 5 made selling more bonds for the project impossible.
 There was still hope among WPPSS officials that new investors — possibly from overseas — might be brought in to keep the plant going.
 "I think we would need to find investors willing to take a substantial risk, including a total loss of investment," said Louis Winnard, an executive board member and former director of the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power.

While Winnard acknowledged that such investors could be attracted only if WPPSS paid a "ridiculous interest rate" for more construction money, he said that might be preferable to an indefinite delay in completion of the plant.
 Of the original five WPPSS nuclear power projects, two have been terminated due to a loss of financial backing and a third, project 1 at Hanford, Wash., has been put on hold indefinitely, both because of financing and the current power glut in the Pacific Northwest.
 Only project 2 at Hanford, now more than 90 percent complete, will be finished without the sale of additional bonds. Project 2 is slated to come "on line" and produce commercially saleable electricity early next year.

Today's weather

Fair with light winds, evening storms

Slight cooling may arrive early next week as the air flow off the Pacific Ocean shifts direction, but temperatures will remain above normal.
 The air over Idaho remains extremely dry, although it is enough moisture for isolated thundershowers to develop. As upper-level winds become more southerly today and Sunday, the hot temperatures and modest winds will generally more widely scattered thundershowers, particularly over the mountains.
 A few showers developed Friday afternoon along the southern border of the state but skies were sunny at all reporting stations. Afternoon temperatures were in the 90s and 90s with the hottest reading 93 degrees at Hagerman. The coldest morning low was 23 at Stanley but minimums ranged up to 57 at Boise.
 The abnormally warm temperatures are continuing the rapid melting of snow at higher elevations, causing most rivers in central and southern Idaho to run near or above flood stage.
 The agricultural outlook calls for total precipitation during the next five days of .10 inch or less with a chance of thundershowers each afternoon. Four-inch mean soil temperatures, now in the middle 60s to middle 70s, will show little change Saturday and Sunday, then cool 4 to 6 degrees Monday through Wednesday.
 Daily average evaporation rates will be down from 25 to 40 inch Saturday and Sunday, decreasing to between 30 and 35 inch Monday through Wednesday. Winds will be 4 to 8 mph today and Sunday, except for "near" thundershowers where they will be strong and gusty.
 Elsewhere in the nation Friday, the hottest temperature reported was 118 degrees at Gila Bend, Ariz., and the coldest was 26 at Bradford, Pa., and Marquette, Minn.

 But a modest breeze blew the fumes southwest of the plant and into residential and business blocks as far as a half-mile from the plant.
 Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies, Twin Falls city police and firefighters and Kimberly firefighters all responded to the accident.
 "Seventy-four-year old L.E. Hawkins was tinkering in his backyard, just south of the plant, when the accident occurred. He said he heard a sound kind of like a boom" and then caught a strong whiff of ammonia fumes.
 Gasping for breath, he dropped what he was doing, and made a bee-line for his house. Once inside, he quickly sealed the door and shut all the windows.
 "It was pretty rough for a few minutes," Hawkins said. "Then, the wind shifted and blew the fumes away."
 Shortly after he arrived in the house, Hawkins said a sheriff's deputy arrived and encouraged him to evacuate if the wind shifted and blew the fumes back in his direction.
 "He said I should either stay in the house or leave the land," Hawkins said.
 Hawkins' wife, Ellen, was in town shopping at the time and was caught for 45 minutes in a police roadblock that detained traffic away from the couple's neighborhood.
 "I never thought anything about the (Simplot) plant, and then something like this happens," said Mrs. Hawkins, as she gazed at four of her neighbors' fruit trees whose blossoms had turned brown from the gases.

 Nakasone's government has made significant progress in removing some protectionist laws from the books and reducing other kinds of barriers against foreign goods.
 The changes have the potential for increasing U.S. exports to Japan by $5 billion annually, the official said, but that the United States is still pressing for removal of remaining restrictions, including those on telecommunications equipment.
 Japan also has improved its image with the administration, according to the official, by increasing its defense budget by 6.5 percent, and its foreign assistance by 8.9 percent at a time when the rest of the Japanese budget is essentially flat.
 Japanese actions in the past four months, since Nakasone's last visit to the United States, "have met the expectations of the United States," the official said.
 Reagan, who met Italian Prime Minister Amintore Fanfani Thursday, also has scheduled talks in Williamsburg with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher after the 90-minute get-together with Reagan, Fanfani pledged his country will deploy U.S. cruise missiles next year as scheduled and said the meeting left him optimistic about arms control and economic recovery.

Polovchak ruling: Both sides pleased

By RICK PEARSON
United Press International

WALTER POLOVCHAK
Fate still unclear

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — The parents of 15-year-old Walter Polovchak must return to the United States if they want to regain custody of their son, who ran away rather than return home with them to the Soviet Union, the Illinois Supreme Court ruled Friday.

But the high court noted a federal order preventing Polovchak's forced removal from the country, saying Michael and Anna Polovchak could not take their son back to the Ukraine until a suit on the departure issue is resolved.

Attorneys for Polovchak and his parents both claimed victory, though the ruling technically was a defeat for the youth. Attorneys for the boy argued he should be placed in the custody of juvenile authorities until he reaches age 18. "We considered it a complete victory," said Henry Mark Hoizer, one of Polovchak's attorneys. "(Soviet Premier Yuri) Andropov will end up playing for the New York Mets before Walter will end up back in the Soviet Union."

Harvey Grossman, legal director for the American Civil Liberties Union, which represented the boy's parents, said the decision affirmed "the basic principles of law which are guaranteed to all persons, including aliens."

Grossman said the parents told him they planned to return to the United States to claim custody of their son. When attorneys for the parents said the same thing during oral arguments before the high court last March, Julian Kuehn, an attorney for the boy, retorted, "I'll believe that when I see it."

The legal battle over Polovchak began when, at age 12, he fled his parents after they decided to leave Chicago and return to the Ukraine. He reportedly told social workers he would kill himself rather than return to the Soviet Union.

Cook County Juvenile Court Judge Joseph C. Mooney made Polovchak a ward of the state until the custody battle was decided. A state appeals court overturned Mooney's ruling, saying he overstepped his authority, and the state Supreme Court upheld the appellate court ruling.

The federal government became involved when the Carter administration granted Polovchak political asylum. The Reagan administration later issued a departure control order preventing his removal from the country.

His parents are fighting those actions in a U.S. District Court suit.

Jury indicts ousted EPA official for contempt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former EPA official Rita Lavelle, whose firing triggered a major controversy at the agency, was indicted on a contempt of Congress charge Friday for refusing to testify about Superfund toxic waste cleanups.

Ms. Lavelle failed to appear before a House Energy and Commerce subcommittee that sought to question her March 21 about allegations she worked with White House aides to set up a political schedule for release of cleanups.

She became the first Environmental Protection Agency official to face criminal prosecution as a result of the recent stir that forced the departures of 21 political appointees from the agency.

If convicted, she faces up to a year in prison and a $100,000 fine for the single misdemeanor count. The indictment was issued by a federal grand jury at the U.S. courthouse in Washington just one week after the House voted 413-0 to cite her for contempt.

The grand jury still is investigating allegations of perjury and conflict of interest against Ms. Lavelle.

Federal law enforcement sources said prosecutors negotiated with Ms. Lavelle's attorney as late as Thursday evening on a plea-bargain agreement to avoid formal indictment, but she rejected the government, but she accepted the government's plea offer.

Ms. Lavelle's attorney, former Watergate defense lawyer James Bierbower, said following the indictment, "I always discuss cases with the prosecutors. That's just part of my method of operation."

Bierbower declined to say whether he was seeking to exchange a guilty or "no contest" plea in return for immunity from further prosecution.

Five banks closed; most since the Depression

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Five Tennessee banks were declared insolvent and closed Friday — the most to collapse on one day since the Great Depression — and federal regulators in Washington auctioned them off to the highest bidders.

The failure of the five banks were all tied to the crumbling Tennessee financial empire of brothers C.H. and Jake Butcher. The banks were purchased by three separate Tennessee financial institutions.

It was the second major banking collapse in Tennessee since Feb. 14 when Jake Butcher's United American Bank of Knoxville collapsed because of heavy loan losses, the third largest bank failure in U.S. history.

Tennessee Banking Commissioner Billy Adams took possession of the banks at 3 p.m. EDT Friday and named the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. as receiver.

FDIC Chairman William Isaac said there was "evidence of criminal activity" at some of the banks. He did not identify which ones, but he said the activity was discovered during the investigation into UAB of Knoxville.

Adams said the insolvent banks had combined assets of $718 million and deposits of $660 million. But they suffered losses in assets of $241 million in the first quarter and millions more had been withdrawn by customers in the past few weeks, records showed.

Adams closed C.H. Butcher Jr.'s City & County banks in Knoxville, Roane and Anderson counties, which are in the Knoxville area, and the United Southern Bank of Nashville and United American Bank of Chattanooga.

C.H. Butcher was once majority stockholder in the Nashville bank and Jake Butcher once controlled the Chattanooga bank.

Vietnam hero loses benefit; Reagan expresses concern

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan is concerned by the plight of a Vietnam War hero he honored two years ago, one of the "unfortunate victims" ordered off the Social Security disability rolls, a White House spokesman said Friday.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan is "personally concerned" about Roy Benavidez, a former Green Beret he presented with the Medal of Honor and an embrace in 1981.

Speakes blamed Congress for ordering a widespread crackdown in the disability program that hit Benavidez.

"The president was personally concerned when he read it in the paper," Speakes said. Benavidez' case was first reported Friday on the front page of The Washington Post.

"The White House is sympathetic to the plight of Benavidez and all the other unfortunate victims of the squeeze created by the law," Speakes said.

"It's not our fault," the spokesman added, pointing out that Congress passed the law requiring reviews of disability cases during the Carter administration.

Critics, however, have charged the Reagan administration with being too zealous in efforts to purge the disability rolls. Officials have repeatedly defended their actions.

"Hey, I fought for my country, and now I'm fighting for my rights," Benavidez told United Press International in a telephone interview from his home in Texas.

"My God, what do I have to do. Can you imagine how this looks to the future leaders of this country?"

The disability program pays $13 billion in benefits a year to 3.9 million American workers and dependents.

Between March 1981 and Feb. 25 of this year, Social Security officials have ordered benefits stopped for 345,000 people — 45 percent of those reviewed.

Rebels claim responsibility for killing

By MICHAEL DRUDGE
United Press International

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador—The rebel radio took responsibility Friday for the killing of the first American adviser killed in El Salvador and warned other U.S. personnel: "El Salvador will be your Yankee tomb."

The broadcast coincided with a solemn ceremony at San Salvador's Chapultepec air base where the body of Naval Lt. Cmdr. Albert Schaufelberger, 33, was loaded a Air Force C-130 transport for a flight to the Oceana Naval Air Station at Virginia Beach, Va.

"One of our metropolitan command units, the Clara Elizabeth Ramirez Commando, last May 25 assassinated the second in command of the North American advisers," said Radio Farabundo Martí, the official voice of the Popular Liberation Forces.

The broadcast reported the assassins "escaped without problems."

"We warn the other North American advisers... that El Salvador will be your Yankee tomb," the radio broadcast said.

An honor guard made up of officers from the Air Force, Navy, Marines and Army, accompanied the coffin, draped with an American flag, as it rolled across the rain-soaked tarmac to the camouflaged-painted four-engine transport plane.

U.S. Ambassador Deane Hinton and other diplomats walked along side the cortege.

A Salvadoran air force band played a funeral dirge as a newly deployed U.S.-trained Salvadoran air borne battalion stood by at attention.

After the body was loaded on the plane by the honor guard, the Salvadoran ground crewmen closed the tail door of the transport and Hinton gave a salute along with the other officers.

Earlier, there was a religious ceremony at which U.S. and Salvadoran officers paid final respects to Schaufelberger at a non-denominational Protestant Union Church of San Salvador.

Col. John D. Waghelein paid his last respects in Schaufelberger, who was the deputy commander of the U.S. Military Group.

Waghelein, his voice shaking, paraphrased a Jewish proverb that his father related when he lost a brother 12 years ago, saying, "A person's good name can last forever."

"Al Schaufelberger, your friends and family have to leave you at the gate, but your good name proceeds you. God speed, my friend," Waghelein said.

An honor guard of 12 U.S. Marines in full dress uniforms acted as pallbearers.

Gen. Carlos Eugenio Vides Casanova, Salvadoran defense minister, was at the church service, dressed in civilian clothes.

Hinton and his Salvadoran wife Patricia sat alone in the first pew of the church. The Rev. C. Edward Ward officiated the ceremony.

Latin American leaders to discuss peace plan

By FREDERICK KIEL
United Press International

MEXICO CITY—Four Latin American nations known as the Contadora group start three days of talks in Panama Saturday aimed at bringing peace to Central America and avoiding the intervention of the United States.

Foreign ministers from Mexico, Venezuela, Panama and Colombia met with their counterparts from five central American nations, Nicaragua, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Costa Rica.

The Contadora group takes its name from the Panamanian island where the four nations first met in January.

Foreign ministers from the group have visited each Central American country together and have held a series of negotiations on ways to end the civil war in El Salvador and the invasion of leftist Nicaragua by U.S.-backed rebels based in Honduras.

Members of the group were buoyed by the unanimous approval in the U.N. Security Council last week of their efforts, and some took it as a sign that the United States could no longer intervene at will in Latin America.

Mexican Ambassador to the United Nations, Porfirio Muñoz Ledo, said the U.N. decision meant that Latin America was no longer the "reserved dominion" of any power—a clear reference to the Monroe Doctrine of the United States.

"For the first time since its creation, the U.N. Security Council... took a decision in a conflict strictly in Latin America and in questions relative to this zone," Muñoz said in Mexico.

Venezuelan President Luis Herrera Campins said this week "the Contadora group's work thus far has been highly productive because it consists of a group of Latin Americans that are seeking solutions to Latin American problems which we must solve without undue interference or meddling by countries."

The Venezuelans believe that a success by the Contadora Group would be a major step forward for Latin Americans to solve other tough issues that might arise in the region, one official said.

Members of the group took up their task out of fear the explosion of a wider Central American war could spill over into Mexico in the north and Panama in the south.

Relics dealer admits forging Hitler diaries

HAMBURG, West Germany (UPI)—A small-time dealer in Nazi relics Konrad Kujau has confessed he forged the Hitler diaries in cahoots with a reporter who was given $3.79 million by his magazine to buy them. The public prosecutor announced Friday.

He confessed he had forged the Hitler diaries in cahoots with a reporter who was given $3.79 million by his magazine to buy them. The public prosecutor announced Friday.

A fanatical collector of Nazi mementos, Kujau was said to have signed his confession wryly. "Respectfully yours, Adolf Hitler, alias Konrad Kujau."

The confession of Kujau, 44, who was arrested May 14, led to the arrest Thursday night in his apartment of reporter Gert Heidemann on suspicion of fraud and of pocketing a part of the money Stern magazine gave him to buy the 60 diary volumes from Kujau.

Heidemann had maintained, Beck reported.

Heidemann's lawyer Egon Gels said Kujau also told the prosecutor Heidemann not only knew the diaries were fakes but supplied paper and bindings for the 60 volumes.

Gels rejected Kujau's accusations as "completely devious."

Evans leaves text to honor athletes

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Gov. John Evans departed from his prepared text to the Twin Falls High School graduates Friday night to congratulate some of the class' outstanding athletes, including track star Sally Butts and the 1983 football and basketball teams.

Evans said he had watched many of the state's high-school competitive events, including last week's state track meet, where Butts set state championship records. And he said he was impressed with the Bruin football team's victory over Borah High School last year.

"The Twin Falls class of '83," the governor said, "is one of the best in the school's history."

The governor called on the graduates to continue their quest for knowledge and technical skills for the rest of their lives.

"You are entering a world where there is a need for skills never required of any other graduating class," Evans said. "As you continue to expand your knowledge, more doors will be open to you.

"This is an agriculture area, one of the best in our state, and agriculture, too, is changing through vast strides in technological advancements."

However, he said that one of the failings of new technology is that there are not enough people trained to use it.

"It is my firm conviction that Idaho must provide the type of education that will enable you graduates to compete in a rapidly advancing world. It will benefit the individuals and ensure an economic stability for our state."

"We are now at the crossroads. We can decide to renew our commitment to high-quality education, a commitment that is greatly needed since Idaho is 49th in the nation in per-pupil educational investment," he said.

Without referring to his often bitter fight this year with the Legislature over the level of educational funding, the governor quoted the president's recent appeal for raising the standards of education in the nation. He said that to do so requires an investment in effort and dollars.

Evans called on the students to take an active interest and an active part in government at every level, and to debate the issues.

Superintendent James Sawin presented the top scholars of the class: valedictorians Denise Marie Gablica and Leslie Grefenson, and salutatorians Alice Adams, Pamela Marie Bartlett, Katie McRoberts and Theresa Snodgrass.

School board Chairman Robert Knighton, in brief comments before the awarding of the diplomas, thanked the class for its outstanding contribution to the school system.

"I have one suggestion: Take some time with your parents. Discuss the future and your plans. You will never be sorry that you did."

Gov. Evans praises graduates for outstanding work.

Rites, travel mark holiday

By KELLY EVERITT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A joint service will be held in Twin Falls on Monday to honor the nation's dead on Memorial Day.

The American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Disabled American Veterans, the Pearl Harbor Survivors Association and the auxiliary organizations of those groups will conduct a service at 11 a.m. at the flagpole at Sunset Memorial Park. The public is invited.

Mayor Chris Talkington, a veteran and member of the Idaho National Guard, has been invited to serve as the speaker. The ceremony will include the presentation of colors, the firing of a salute from a rifle squad and the playing of taps.

In Jerome, similar memorial ceremonies will be conducted by the VFW at 11 a.m. at the Jerome Cemetery.

Because of the cost, lack of manpower and vandalism, veterans groups in the area rarely decorate veterans' graves with flags any more. Red crepe-paper poppies are being sold this weekend by the American Legion Auxiliary. The poppies, a reminder of those who died in the nation's wars, are available for a contribution of any amount. Funds received from the sale of the poppies are used to aid needy veterans and their families in the community and at hospitals around the state.

As the nation honors its war dead this weekend, families also will be taking to the highways for the three-day weekend. Officials in Idaho are hoping to better last year's accident record, when no one was killed but more than 125 persons were injured in almost 150 accidents.

Idaho State Police officials are cautioning drivers against "overdriving it," which they say is the biggest problem they face during the holiday.

Apparently, drivers are more impatient during this particular holiday weekend and tend to drive longer distances without taking breaks.

"That's what causes the major part of our problem this holiday weekend," says ISM Sgt. Ed See. MEMORIAL on Page A4

Gas stations battle for holiday drivers

By HAL BERNSTON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley motorists will be benefiting from a fierce price war at the gas pumps as they fill up their tanks to take off for Memorial Day vacations.

In a series of steep price cuts that has service-station dealers shuddering, heads in disbelief, prices dropped at many gas pumps by more than a dime a gallon between Thursday and Friday evening.

One pace-setting station, the Circle-K store off North Washington Street, which was selling regular for more than $1.20 a gallon earlier this week, had dropped its regular price to $1.10 by Friday evening.

"All the service stations are fighting over who's going to have the customers for Memorial Day," said Circle-K manager Darlene Garrean. "The price started jumping down the day before yesterday (Wednesday), and we keep trying to meet the price. This morning everyone got mad — so they (prices) really dropped."

According to Garrean, similar price wars in the past have forced smaller independents who don't have big corporations backing them out of business.

"The price is so low that nobody" is making any money, Garrean said. "We're supposed to make six cents (profit per gallon), but I don't know where it is right now."

The price cuts have taken place despite a six-week series of wholesale price increases that service-station owners have been absorbing.

One area wholesaler said that since March 15, his company has had to pass on weekly price increases of more than 10 cents per gallon.

It was these wholesale increases that were the catalyst for last week's sudden price jumps at the retail level. According to this dealer, the current Magic Valley wholesale price is between $1.09 and $1.11 a gallon. Thus, a retailer who was offering $1.10-a-gallon gasoline Friday evening may have been selling at, or below, his actual cost.

Back in 1971, said the dealer, a service-station owner could buy gas at 19 cents a gallon and sell it at 29, for a full 33 percent markup. But those days, he says, are long gone.

Zone change approved for Filer sawmill plan

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Plans to expand a sawmill operation in Filer into a lumberyard will go forward.

The Twin Falls County commissioners on Friday approved a request that 3.3 acres of residential land, located at the southwest edge of Filer, be rezoned for commercial use.

That approval is conditional upon backers "relocating" the property's entrance as a way to control dust in the area.

Leiland Alexander of Filer sought the zoning change for his property, located off U.S. 30, between property owned by Ron Stokesberry and Paul Shetter.

Alexander leases the parcel to Gary Lyda, who operates the sawmill at that site under a year-old conditional-use permit.

Lyda plans to purchase two acres of the parcel and lease the rest.

Neighbors' complaints over dust from the operation proved to be a major roadblock to the project, which had won the endorsement of Filer city officials and the Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission.

Complaints about dust were raised most recently at Wednesday's public hearing on the issue before the county commission.

During that hearing, Lyda indicated a willingness to move the entrance to his business. The county commission has decided to hold him to that.

Within the next six months, Lyda will be required to move the entrance another 200 to 300 feet west of its current location.

By moving the entrance, the commissioners hope residents in the area will be insulated from traffic-caused dust.

The commissioners also have required Lyda to submit detailed plans for the expansion prior to beginning construction.

Wendell police chief gets heat for taking car

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News writer

WENDELL — Mayor Otto Lemke says he was "a little bit" because a police car was taken out of Wendell for two days this week without his permission.

After work Wednesday, police Chief Mike Tambini took a patrol car to Boise to use while attending a two-day officer training school.

On Thursday, the radio in the city's second patrol car leaving the Police Department without radio contact with its Gooding dispatch service.

At the Wendell City Council meeting Thursday, Lemke, who is also police commissioner, said he was angry that Tambini had taken the patrol car without permission and left the city without a backup car.

"I don't think it is necessary to furnish a police car for them (city policemen) to go to school," Lemke said. "I think that car belongs here."

In discussion, council agreed that expenses and mileage should be paid to Tambini, but that he should not have taken the car.

Councilman Dick Beck said it should be a policy that no municipal property should be used outside the city.

No action was taken, but Lemke indicated that he would reprimand Tambini when the chief returns.

In other business at the meeting:

- Newly increased dog impound fines will become effective June 2. According to city clerk June Holm, fines for dog owners will be $25 for the first offense, $50 for the second and $100 for the third and any thereafter.

- Fire Chief Keith Hosack was granted permission to purchase some fire equipment. The cost of which will be shared by the city and the rural fire district.

Hosack will buy six new pagers for $300 each, four portable used air tanks for $80 per unit and a $1,200 hose adapter to speed truck-hydrant hookups. Also, Hosack will install a water softener in the fire station to prevent water-spots on washed trucks. The cost for the softener will be $14 per month.

• City Superintendent Charlie Doty reported city crews have sprayed 14 gallons of weed killer in all alleys and along some streets.

Also, council granted Doty permission to hire another city worker to do road repair and maintenance for about two months.

Big Wood still above flood stage; some roads damaged

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Flood water from the Big Wood River continued to eat away at roads and small bridges and move closer to some residential areas Friday, although the level of the river was reported unchanged from Thursday.

Dick Oneida, of the Big Wood River Canal Co., said the river was still at 8.72 feet Friday, 2.5 feet above flood stage. However, reports at Hailey indicated the level at the Croy Bridge measuring station was 7 feet.

According to the Blaine County sheriff's office, debris washing along streams still was creating the major problem, and crews continued to patrol bridges and culverts.

Empty sandbags continued to be the best-selling item in Hailey for the coming holiday weekend. A shipment of 2,000 bags arrived Friday, the sheriff's office reported, and many residents were buying them by several gravel companies in the area for persons wanting to fill the bags.

Officials said they knew of no private property damage as of Friday, but they said there were not many persons optimistic enough to think that things may not get worse if near-record warm temperatures continue.

As of Friday, the sheriff's office said the Zinc Spur Road, about two to three miles north of Hailey, was badly flooded but no homes had been reached, although the water was continuing to spread.

The bridge over Glendale Road, near Bellevue, was still at water level, but was holding and passable. Officers continued to recommend that campers and fishermen stay in lower areas because of the high, swift water and the many flooded by snow-covered campgrounds in the northern region.

Allan Ashton, the superintendent of the Sawtooth National Recreation Area, said there was no flooding there, but he said the entire area is still under a lot of snow.

"I would advise that nobody, and I do mean nobody, try any of the side roads leading into the region. They will get into a lot of trouble. Roads are either under several feet of snow or they are awfully muddy," he warned.

The Hailey office of the Sawtooth National Forest reported the situation was "pretty much a mess" Friday afternoon. Numerous problems were reported in the Deer Creek area near Hailey, as water washed across the road in several places.

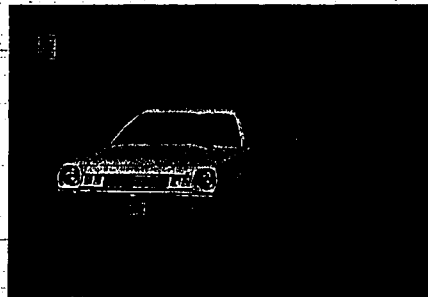

Greenhorn Gulch Road, north of Hailey, also was washed out and the North Fork Campgrounds, north of Ketchum, remained under water.

Forest officials said at one point, an outdoor toilet was floating about in the flooded campground.

A flooded small bridge on Warm Springs Road, above Ketchum, closed the road to a point about four miles from the town.

Bassett Gulch Road, west of Ketchum, was closed Friday, and officials of Cash Industries, a mill operation there, appealed for assistance because a large section of road had washed away just above the mill and they feared additional damage.

Most of the Forest Service staff was in the field checking the damage throughout Friday, and they were making reports back to the Hailey office.

Chain saw used

Robbery brings two arrests

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES Times-News Staff

JEROME — Two armed robbery suspects, who allegedly used a chain saw and a knife in an early Friday robbery of a rural Jerome County family, were in custody late in the day.

Members of the Robert W. Peterson family of Jerome told sheriff's deputies that two men "cut their way" into their mobile home, at the Holstein Jersey, southwest of Jerome, at 4 a.m. and demanded money.

According to Jerome County Sheriff Eliza Hall, the suspects also pulled the telephone from the wall, severing the lines. One of the victims, Wes Jettico, 44, an insurance salesman, was burned, he called the sheriff's office to report a robbery in progress. However, by the time officers arrived, the suspects had fled.

The ensuing investigation resulted in the arrest of Andre Charles Laurent, 31, and James Lewis Johansen, 20, both of Jerome. The suspects were in the Jerome County Jail on Friday night, in lieu of $30,000 bond each.

According to Hall, the two suspects went to the Peterson home, four miles south and two miles west of Jerome, around 4 a.m. While the Peterson family slept, they allegedly used a chain saw to cut through the front door.

The victims told officers that the two men threatened them with both the chain saw and a seven-inch knife. While in the home, the sheriff said the suspects cut legs from chairs and tables, cut a water bed and damaged the ceiling, back door and walls of the mobile home. He said the victims have estimated the damage at about $10,000.

The complaint against the suspects states that they allegedly threatened Dolly Peterson, the wife, with the chain saw, forcing her to turn over an undetermined amount of cash.

Hall said the money has not been recovered.

Five members of the Peterson family were home at the time of the incident. Officers arrested Johansen at about 5:30 a.m. at his home, in the 900 block of South Davis Street. Laurent was arrested at his place of employment, the Bean Growers Warehouse, southwest of Jerome, shortly after 8:30 a.m.

Hall said his officers recovered both the chain saw and knife allegedly used in the robbery.

Johansen and Laurent appeared in Fifth District Magistrate Court in Jerome later in the day and were ordered held for preliminary hearings. Judge Roger Burdick appointed the public defender to represent the two men at the hearings.

Both have been charged with three counts, including armed robbery, aggravated battery and destruction of property.

Rafting mishap kills Utah man

BLISS — A 42-year-old Utah man has been identified as the person who drowned Thursday in a boating accident on the Snake River.

Karl Parry of West Valley, Utah, was one of eight persons involved in the accident. All of the rest, including Parry's wife, Mary Jo, survived, according to Twin Falls County Sheriff James Munn.

The party was floating the river in a rubber raft, below the Lower Salmon Falls power plant, when it encountered rapids. The raft overturned, forcing Parry and six others into the water, Munn said.

Each of the group was wearing a life preserver.

Munn said the seven survivors remained with the capsized raft and eventually made their way to safety. Parry was last seen alive swimming toward an eddy near the river's west bank, Munn said.

The Utah man was pronounced dead at the scene. Munn said an autopsy has determined drowning as the cause of death.

Parry's identity remained confidential Thursday, pending notification of family members.

Gooding County sheriff's deputies received the initial report of a drowning at 6:45 p.m. Deputies from Gooding and Twin Falls counties recovered the body about an hour later.

The incident came just two weeks after a near-drowning near the Hansen Bridge. At the time, Munn warned persons against floating the river. Heavy spring run-off water has made not only the Snake River, but other streams, dangerous he said.

Correction

TWIN FALLS — In Thursday's "Fun Guide" section in The Times-News, the dates of the Twin Falls Western Days rodeo were reported incorrectly. The rodeo will be held June 3 and 4, not 4 and 5. Western Days activities will last from June 1-5.

Strickfaden. "A person can't be driving 20 hours straight before they start to have problems, and we seem to run into that on this weekend."

"Be careful," ISP Lt. Bob Wright adds. "We'd like to see everybody make it back home."

Wright notes that drivers also can help the ISP by reporting drunken drivers "or any other emergency, such as accidents," by calling 1-800-233-1212. "Any help we get that way would be appreciated, and would make everybody's vacation a lot safer."

Beefed-up patrols by the ISP and other law-enforcement agencies will be watching Magic Valley highways closely during the weekend. Traffic, already beginning to pick up by early Friday afternoon, was expected to reach a peak Monday evening.

Twin Falls County Sheriff James Munn urges drivers to be aware of the problems of drinking and driving.

But Munn also expresses concern for people enjoying water-related recreational activities this weekend. "Be wary of the hazards of water," he says. "The rivers are very high and treacherous right now. People floating the river should be particularly careful."

All non-emergency service city, county and federal offices will be closed on Memorial Day. Mail will not be delivered and all banks will be closed.

A surprisingly large number of stores will be open at least part of the day, however, throughout the county. A spot check of major stores showed that most supermarkets and many of the larger retail stores will be open, although for most of those retail stores, the hours that they will be open tend to be shorter than normal, often from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Advertisement in this weekend's Times-News can provide more details. Most smaller stores will be closed.

A spokesman for Parks and Sons, which collects trash in a number of Magic Valley communities, said that trash pickups for all communities north of the Snake River will be made as usual.

But in Twin Falls and the Heyburn-Cassia County area, only commercial trash collections will be made Monday. All residential collections will be delayed one day, with trash being picked up Tuesday through Saturday, instead of Monday through Friday.

There are only a few events planned for the Memorial Day weekend. Thunder Bluff Raceway will be holding a full slate of activities both today and Sunday, with several 50-lap events scheduled for Sunday.

The track, located 16 miles south of Twin Falls, off 23rd Lakes Boulevard, will begin racing at 7 each night.

A four-mile Fun Run will be held in Ketchum on Sunday; the Blue Lakes Country Club will be concluding its Men's Invitational golf meet this weekend; the Coors Women's Golf Tournament will be held today and Sunday at Twin Falls Municipal golf course; and the "Meet of Champions" will be held tonight at 5 at the Jerome High School track. The track meet will feature an all-star selection of the state's best high-school track champions.

In addition, the Coors Women's Slowpitch Softball Tournament will be held today and Sunday at Harpoon Park in Twin Falls. The championship game is scheduled to begin at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Church publication tells millions about faith's power

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI religion writer

Guideposts magazine, one of the largest circulations of religious or secular publications, is one of the best kept secrets in religious publishing, says its editor, Van Varner.

In March, Guideposts, a non-denominational magazine founded by the Rev. Norman Vincent Peale, achieved a record paid circulation of more than 4 million.

That, in Varner's estimation, is something of a "minor miracle" for a magazine that does not accept paid advertising and is not sold on the streets.

Magazines similar to Guideposts, in that they carry no advertising, include Consumer Reports with a circulation of 2.1 million, Billy Graham's Decision magazine with 2.6 million and Sesame Street magazine with 1.5 million.

The format is similar each month: a celebrity, an athlete, a businessman or a housewife is featured on the cover and inside, across three or four tightly written pages, is the person's story, usually a tale of overcoming adversity with faith, and always told in the first person.

"There is no story where we're not trying to help the reader," Varner said in an interview. "Out of everything, out of every story must come something that helps the reader."

"Because they are true, our readers can connect what happens in them to events in their own lives."

Founded in 1945 by Peale and his wife, Ruth Stafford Peale, as a four-page leaflet, the magazine has evolved into a 48-page, four-color, digest-sized magazine.

Its first cover story was by Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker. More recent cover stories have featured Gen. James L. Dozier, kidnapped by Red Brigade terrorists in Italy; actor Cliff Robertson; football star Herschel Walker; and actress Lillian Gish.

There are some things one doesn't find in Guideposts.

Politicians are one, and controversy is another.

Using politicians just opens up too much participation," Varner says. "We try to stay away from anything that suggests taking sides."

So, too, with political issues like abortion. "We won't carry anything about abortion. Nothing controversial. Nothing political."

"But we're not a religiously nifty magazine," he says. "We're up-to-date and topical," he adds, pointing to stories on teenage runaways, anorexia and agoraphobia, and the anniversary of the Brooklyn Bridge.

"I believe in variety, and topicality," Varner says.

More couples taking marriage courses

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI religion writer

Although statistics still indicate that nearly a half of all recent marriages will end in divorce, researchers at the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C., think they have some good news for the future of the beleaguered institution.

A new study — published by the school's National Center for Family Studies — shows sharp increases in the number of young couples participating in marriage preparation courses offered by Roman Catholic dioceses.

"Probably the most startling fact is that somewhere between 50 percent and 60 percent of people being married in the Catholic Church in America are today going through marriage preparation of some kind," says the Rev. Steven Preister, the director of the family-studies center.

"You look at the total number, and it's pretty startling because it represents at least 7 percent of everybody who got married in the United States in 1980-81," he says.

Involvement in a marriage preparation course does not end the possibility of divorce or a broken marriage, researchers agree, but it can lessen the risk by providing couples with ways and means of getting over rough spots.

Preister and co-researcher Andrew Thompson found that most marriage preparation courses carried out in Catholic dioceses were, in fact, aimed more at enriching married life than in stopping divorce.

"What we found was while there was a concern for divorce and the rising divorce rate, really the policies themselves were more concerned with an enrichment model," Preister says.

"The other thing that's interesting is that previous preparation in the Catholic Church was always done by the priest, and that's not the case any more," he says. "It's being done by the priest, plus couples who are married. It's a peer sort of thing, as opposed to a professional-clerical relationship."

Preister and Thompson, in their study, found the increase in the number of couples taking such courses, as well as the number of dioceses offering them, appears to be connected with a more general trend in American life: a focus on the family and the widespread belief that the family is in crisis.

"I think," Preister says, "that when people find something threatened that's important to them, they say, 'Well, what can we do to correct it?'"

Mirroring the individual concern has been that of the church —

In 1976, only 39 percent of the church's dioceses had marriage preparation courses, according to the study. Today, almost 80 percent of the 173 dioceses have such programs.

Most of the programs stress communication skills as a high priority, the survey found.

About 50 percent of the programs deal with communication," Thompson says. "The programs also deal with intimacy skills. They deal with personal identity, with what one's values are, with what one's expectations are. They deal with financial expectations, and they also deal with faith questions — what one's religious expectations are."

"I think a couple needs to know that it's not unusual to hit a crisis," Preister says. "They need to know it can be weathered and there are some positive things to come from it."

Lutherans emphasize need to study Marxism

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI religion writer

There are at least 10 million reasons why Marxism is an important topic for Lutherans, says Dan Mattix, director of the Lutheran Council in the U.S.A.'s news bureau.

Those 10 million reasons are the approximate number of Lutherans living in communist or socialist countries, especially East Germany, where there are 6.5 million Lutherans.

But most of the 8.5 million U.S. Lutherans, not to say most Americans in general, know little about the political and economic philosophy that carries his name.

Generally, as the recent strident attacks on the National and World Council of Churches have indicated, Marxism is an invective, a taunt to be hurled at political or theological opponents, rather than a system of thought or belief to be seriously investigated.

Lutheran World Ministries, the U.S. national committee of the Lutheran World Federation, recently sponsored a conference for some 70 Lutheran academics, national church staff members and parish pastors, aimed at deepening the U.S. church's understanding of Marxism and the movement's founder.

Marx, although an atheist, was the son of a Jewish rabbi who converted to Lutheranism.

The principal speaker at the conference, "The Challenge and Necessity of the Christian-Marxist Encounter," was Jan Milic Lochman, a native of Czechoslovakia and now professor of the University of Basel in Switzerland.

He told the conference that the Marxist critique of religion is "helpful in understanding the liberalizing view of the biblical faith."

Lochman told the conference that using Marxism as a tool for social analysis does not mean accepting Marxism, which is "fundamentally, the philosophy of human work."

Marxism, he says, makes "liberated work" the ultimate basis and hope of universal history and the "way of secular salvation."

On the other hand, he says, the God who set the Israelites free from slavery in Egypt and then let his son die on the cross to be resurrected is the God of freedom. "The liberation of human beings is his revealed concern."

Paul Woe, the Lutheran World Ministries general secretary, says that Marxism has its roots in the Judeo-Christian tradition, especially as that tradition concerns itself with social and economic justice.

But he says it is important to distinguish between the "legitimate expression of thought and those who have violated it," citing especially the case of the Lutheran Church in Marxist Ethiopia, where Lutheran leader Gudina Tumsa has been "missing" since 1979 and hundreds of churches have been closed and pastors imprisoned.

Evans' campaign chief to head H&W

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John Evans Friday named state Office on Aging chief Ross Bowman, his 1982 re-election campaign manager, to direct Idaho's Health and Welfare Department.

Mrs. Bowman will assume control of the largest state agency Wednesday, succeeding Thomas "Lee" Purce, who resigned April 12 to take a senior position with an electrical engineering firm at Huley.

Mrs. Bowman said she possesses adequate management skills to supervise Health and Welfare, which has more than 2,000 employees and often has run into controversy with the conservative-dominated Idaho Legislature.

"I think my experience in directing a small agency (the Office on Aging), where you're involved in every minute detail, has prepared me well for a large agency," she said.

Evans, who gave Mrs. Bowman a leave of absence from the Office on Aging to coordinate his successful campaign last year, against Republican Phil Batt, said he was confident she would capably direct Health and Welfare.

The governor said Mrs. Bowman, 46, "brings to the position seasoned management experience and a strong sensitivity to human service needs." He also called her "an excellent communicator and decision maker."

Two senior Republican legislators said Friday they were reserving judgment on Mrs. Bowman's appointment, but another said he was "concerned" about whether she has enough experience.

"I would have preferred a good, experienced departmental administrator," said Rep. Christopher Hooper, R-Boise, chairman of the House Health and Welfare Committee.

Senate President Pro Tem James

Risch, R-Boise, who likely will play a key role in Mrs. Bowman's Senate confirmation hearings, said the appointment will have been on the job for six months when lawmakers review the appointment next winter — giving them a record on which to base a decision on the nomination.

Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, chairman of the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee, said he hopes Mrs. Bowman has sufficient experience for the "tough" Health and Welfare director's job, which pays more than $50,000.

"I don't know whether she has enough experience," Barker said.

New Medicaid rules blasted for inviting abuse

BOISE (UPI) — A spokesman for the Idaho Health Care Association said Friday there will be "most assuredly be fraud, abuse and neglect" if state officials implement a proposed set of rules allowing some Medicaid recipients to leave nursing institutions in favor of home care.

Kelth Holloway said regulations being considered by the state Department of Health and Welfare were "obviously promulgated solely on financial considerations; without any concern shown for adequacy of care or safety."

Holloway testified Friday at a public hearing on rules the department is considering to implement 1980 legislation requiring that qualified Medicaid recipients be permitted to receive care in a residential setting rather than in nursing or convalescent homes.

Penny Bjornstad, chief of Health and Welfare's Bureau of Benefit Payments, said regulations must be in place by July 1. She said hearing officer David Vaughn would use the public input in determining whether the proposed rules should be revised before the program goes into effect.

Mrs. Bjornstad said the proposed rules demand that a Medicaid recipient meet the criteria for admittance to a nursing home before residential care is allowed.

State panel seeks comment on refunding prior cutbacks

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Board of Examiners has decided to conduct a series of hearings to determine effects on state agencies of the 1983 budget holdbacks ordered by Gov. John Evans.

Meeting Friday in Boise, the three-member panel that includes the Democratic governor voted to hold hearings beginning June 6 to listen to heads of agencies that suffered funding holdbacks early in the current fiscal year.

If money from recent tax earnings is now returned to the three targeted budgets, as Evans desires, those administrators could extend the money into next year's budgets since fiscal year 1983 ends June 30.

The board has the authority to reduce 1984 funding in the same amount restored in 1983 by the governor, but GOP members Attorney General Jim Jones and Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa said they have not decided whether to take that action.

The board will send several times in the weeks since Evans ordered the restoration of $4.2 million in fiscal 1983 funds to budget for higher education, vocational training and agriculture research.

Using his power as governor, Evans withheld those funds last year when it appeared the state was destined for a $70 million shortage. The Legislature then followed up that action by balancing the deficit with the issuance of tax anticipation notes during the past session.

The Republicans have said they want to gain a complete understanding of the state's current financial condition before reaching a decision.

In opposing the governor's accounting suggestion, Jones and Cenarrusa said the Legislature should decide the system the state will use.

Action slow in Creech case

BOISE (UPI) — Fourth District Judge Robert Newhouse, saying it would be a waste of taxpayer money, refused Friday to take immediate action on a request that he set aside the death penalty for convicted mass murderer Thomas Creech.

Newhouse said he did not think he should act on two defense motions until the state Supreme Court formally returns paperwork from the case to the lower court.

High court justices upheld Monday the 32-year-old convict's execution order, imposed by Newhouse after Creech pleaded guilty to the beating death of fellow Idaho State Penitentiary inmate Dale Jensen.

CSI's Schow, VanEvery win together

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. — Call them the Even Couple.

One is short, muscular and brunette, while the other possesses a lithe build, crowded by blinding blond hair. But the similarities transcend the physical differences. For years, Jeff Schow and Lynn VanEvery have been companions in athletics, friendship and success: a perfect match.

Their partnership most recently has benefited the College of Southern Idaho's baseball team. Schow, who is batting .417, and VanEvery, hitting .378, are two major reasons why the Golden Eagles own a 34-7 record and a berth in the National Junior College Athletic Association World Series, which begins here today.

"Between the two of them, they probably won 10 games for us — Lynn with his defense, and his bat in the last month of the season, and Jeff definitely with his bat," assistant Coach Jim Dawson said.

Eagles to face Triton

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

GRAND JUNCTION: Cold. — Simple history gives the Triton College Trojans an edge over the College of Southern Idaho in today's opener at the National Junior College Athletic Association World Series.

After all, the Trojans, 47-6, have qualified for the tournament in four of the last five years, finishing a lofty fourth in 1982.

"They've got tradition going for them; we've got six guys back from last year — that participated in the regional tourney," CSI coach Jim Walker said.

Walker maintains a relaxed attitude as the 11 a.m. contest approaches.

"Why dwell on somebody's record, average, what they did before they came here?" he asked rhetorically. "I'd just as soon not get psyched out or prejudged."

Along those lines, Walker believes the primary pitfall for the 34-7 Eagles to avoid is opening-game jitters — in his words, "First-inning hype."

"By that I mean being so hyper they can't get their job done," he explained. "None of these kids have been here before. Just being in this kind of tournament will scare them. We're little old Idaho boys that have done a hell of a job. If they just go in the game and play, we won't embarrass ourselves; win or lose."

The Trojans haven't embarrassed themselves too often this season. They own a team batting average of .348, virtually matching CSI's .348 figure.

The squad from River Grove, Ill., has seven regulars batting higher than .300, including center fielder Lance Johnson (.401), a Seattle Mariners' draftee, and right fielder David Boston (.375), a Cincinnati Reds' selection.

Steinbrenner, Yankees get in trouble with umpires, AL

By United Press International

Amidst the madness and melodrama of Yankee Stadium Friday night, Graig Nettles found time to do something as mundane as win a ball game.

Nettles' three-run homer in the seventh inning enabled the Yankees to snap a three-game losing streak with a 4-2 triumph over the Oakland A's — this after a first-inning bench-clearing brawl, a statement by George Steinbrenner denouncing the umpires and a promise by At-Home President Lee MacPhail to discipline the Yankee owner for his comments.

Nettles hit a 1-2 pitch off Mike Norris, 4-5, following a walk to Oscar Gamble and a single by Butch Wynegar.

Ron Guidry, 6-3, allowed five hits, walked three and struck out eight in 7 1-3 innings before being relieved by Rich Gossage. Gossage finished up to record his seventh save.

Baltimore 7, Kansas City 4

At Kansas City, Mo., Eddie Murray knocked in three runs with a double and his first homer since April 20 to help the Orioles snap a seven-game losing streak. Gary Roenicke added a solo shot, as Storm Davis scattered seven hits over the first six innings to improve to 3-1. Tippy Martinez picked up his fifth save.

Montreal 7, Philadelphia 4

The Philadelphia Phillies sent their ace to the mound Friday night but still couldn't manage to break their slump. Newly-acquired Mike Vail hit a two-run homer in the first inning Friday night and the Montreal Expos held on to hand the Phillies their sixth straight defeat.

Cincinnati 9, Pittsburgh 0

At Cincinnati, Eddie Milner and Kelly Paris each hit two-run doubles in the fifth inning to trigger a seven-run uprising that boosted the Reds behind the five-hit pitching of Mario Soto, 7-2.

Chicago 8, Atlanta 6

At Atlanta, Jody Davis ripped a tie-breaking homer in the sixth and added a solo blast in the eighth to power the Cubs. Rich Behenna, 3-3, took the loss, while reliever Warren Brusstar, 1-1, gained the win victory.

San Diego 4, New York 0

At San Diego, Alan Wiggins bounced a bases-loaded single through a drawn-in infield to drive in two runs and touch off a four-run seventh inning and help the Padres behind Eric Show's two-hit pitching. Show raised his record to 6-2.

St. Louis 3, Houston 1

Fabi has already won over hearts and minds of Indy

By DAVID CASSTEVENIS
Dallas Morning News

INDIANAPOLIS — Teo Fabi is the toast of this year's Indy 500. Although unaccustomed to driving on an oval track, the veteran road racer shocked the world of motorsports when he turned in a record-breaking qualifying run of 207.385 mph.

Except for cab drivers in Rome, no other Italian has ever reached such speed on four wheels.

By winning the pole for Sunday's race, the little man in the fastest car will have the jump on the rest of the field.

Veteran drivers dream about the success and notoriety Fabi has enjoyed during his first visit to Indianapolis. If a poll were taken, you suspect most, if not all, of them would gladly take Teo's place, given the chance.

But Teo Fabi isn't to be envied. If anything, one could feel sorry for him, considering what he has been through, and what is yet to come. Fabi feels strangely out of place here. The Indy 500 is like no other event in the world. While racing the European circuit, it is doubtful Teo encountered Miss Nude 500 or race fans wearing T-shirts that say, "Party 'Til Ya Puke."

Indy is a long way from Milan. Fabi admits he's lonely. He misses his friends and family. He's eager to return to the familiar surroundings of his homeland.

Even though Fabi has been in Indianapolis all month, his wristwatch is still set six hours ahead. Italy time. "This," he said, "is the longest month of my life."

Fabi, 28, has only one close friend here, an Italian journalist with whom he converses in his native tongue. Each evening, he stays in his motel room and watches TV. He eats steak every meal, because beefsteak is one American food with which he's familiar. He drinks water, and nothing else.

He appears slightly bewildered by the hordes of American newsmen who view him with curiosity. Fabi is something of a novelty. At 5-5, he's no bigger than a jockey. He's the first rookie to win the 500 pole in 33 years. Also, he's the first Italian driver (not counting Mario Andretti) to compete at Indy since Alberto Ascari drove a Ferrari in the 1952 race.

Newsmen don't interview him. They interrogate him. They machine-gun questions at him and then thrust a thicket of microphones in his face, awaiting his response.

A shy, private person, Teo is unfailingly polite, but his answers are brief. He never elaborates, perhaps because he is uncomfortable speaking English. Interviews are hard labor, for both parties.

Teo, are you worried about the start of the race? "No."

Teo, can you win? "I think 10 drivers can win."

Are you among them? "Yes, why not?"

Teo, what are your interests? Your hobbies? "I like games."

Teo, how about the traffic? How well prepared are you to drive an oval, with 32 other cars? "It should be no problem."

Hush your mouth

New York Yankees' Dave Winfield screams at Oakland catcher Mike Heath as he hits him in the face and knocks Heath to the ground during a first-inning altercation in Yankee Stadium Friday night. Winfield was angered by a close pitch from the A's Mike Norris, and attempted to charge the mound when Heath tried to stop him. He was ejected from the game. The Yankees went on to win the game 4-2.

Steinbrenner: Lay off Billy

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner, who four years ago fired Billy Martin after fighting a marshmallow salesman, has defended his manager in the aftermath of another barroom skirmish in California.

"I believe he's telling the truth," Steinbrenner said. "I just wish people would leave Billy alone. I've checked his story out and I stand behind him a hundred percent."

Steinbrenner insisted this latest brush was unlike the celebrated scuffle in Minneapolis in 1979 when Martin punched a marshmallow salesman.

"This time it was different," Steinbrenner said. "It happened the way I want it — communication. He called me right away as did his lawyer, Eddie Sapir."

A spokeswoman for the American League said Friday the incident is not under formal investigation and is "primarily a Yankee matter."

Martin, in his third term as Yankee manager, has been accused of dropping another salesman, this one in the real-estate market — 27-year-old Robin Wayne Olson. Martin has denied throwing a punch.

The incident occurred midnight Wednesday in the bar of the Anaheim Hyatt, adjacent to Anaheim Stadium, where the Yankees lost that night in extra innings to the California Angels.

Olson filed a police complaint, claiming Martin knocked him down with a punch to the head and used obscene language. Then, the complaint said, Yankee bullpen catcher Dom Scala grabbed Olson and bounced his head on the carpeting 10 to 15 times.

Officials said two hours before the confrontation with Martin Olson was escorted from the Stadium Club at Anaheim Stadium by security guards after an argument with patrons.

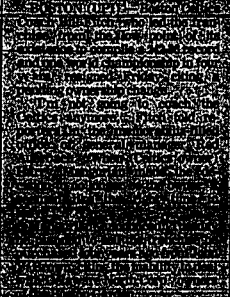

"He had a verbal argument with three other people, who called him a name," Angels general manager Buzzie Bavasi said. "He was asked to leave. All of them were asked to leave."

The Anaheim police officer who took Olson's complaint about Martin said the real estate salesman smelled from alcohol but did not appear drunk.

Connors, Evert win handily

PARIS (UPI) — One-time sweethearts Jimmy Connors and Chris Evert Lloyd, both chasing different ambitions, followed each other on center court Friday to clear their third round hurdles for a place in the last 16 of the $1.1 million French Open tennis championships.

Connors, now estranged from his wife Patti, outgamed Chilean Hans Gildemeister, 6-3, 6-1, 5-7, 6-1, in pursuit of the only grand slam title to have eluded him while Evert, married to British Davis Cupper John Lloyd, outclassed Australian Evonne Goolagong Cawley, 6-2, 6-2, in her bid to recapture the women's title she has won four times.

While the two Americans were entertaining the fans with their stroke play, French police were laying on security for the Swedes, including defending champion Mats Wilander, following kidnap threats from an Armenian terrorist group. Tournament Director Christian Duxin said the French interior ministry had been contacted regarding the threat and is taking care of it from now on.

All the Swedish contingent — players, coaches and trainers — are under police protection, Duxin said.

A spokesman at the Swedish embassy confirmed a player had received a telephone call saying one of the Swedes at Roland Garros would be kidnapped in an exchange for an Armenian terrorist being tried on drug charges in Stockholm.

Swedish Davis Cup coach Hans Olesen commented: "We called the police and contacted the Swedish embassy. It is in their hands."

On court, Gildemeister looked as if he was in need of protection as Connors raced through the first two sets of his third round match in devastating style.

The Wimbledon and U.S. Open champion, who made his first attempt at this unofficial world clay championship crown 10 years ago, started off like a man-in-a-hurry before losing concentration in the third set.

Bean tops Memorial field

DUBLIN, Ohio (UPI) — Andy Bean, crediting a borrowed putter and renewed confidence, fired a five-under-par 67 Friday to grab a two-shot lead over Ben Crenshaw after the second round of the $400,000 Memorial Tournament.

The Georgia native, whose last PGA tour win came in the 1982 Doral Open, had carded a 69 the opening day and was two shots behind co-leaders Crenshaw and Larry Wadkins.

But Bean scored a 32 with five birdies and one bogey on the front side Friday and he birdied the first two holes on the back nine enroute to a 35, finishing 96 holes at eight under par.

Crenshaw shot a 1-under 71 to go with his opening 67 and was alone at 6-under-par 138.

At 5-under-par, three off the pace, going into Saturday's third round were 1980 Memorial champion David Graham, who matched the day's best score of 67, Peter Jacobsen (69) and Wadkins (72).

Two other former Memorial champions also moved into contention with good second rounds. Tom Watson, the 1979 winner, stood at 4-under-par with a second day 67 and Ray Floyd, last year's winner, shot a 69 and was at 3 under par.

Bean said his caddy, Wayne Beck, gave him a putter last Sunday that has helped worked magic on the greens.

The 6-4, 210-pound Bean said the putter is "similar" to what he has always used except it is at least two inches shorter than his previous club.

"I hope Wayne knows he's not going to get it back," said Bean. "It's in my bag and it's going to stay there."

Bean said the notoriously fast greens at the 7,116-yard Muirfield Village Golf Club course are hardening and getting even more slick.

"When you get aggressive out here on these greens, that's when you get in trouble," he said. "They are drying out and I hate to think what they'll be like on Sunday."

Bean said he is confident of his game and believes the difficulty of the course will make it tough for competitors to catch him if he continues to play well.

"We've got two days left and if I can keep it under 70 I'll be happy," he said. "It's hard to shoot four good rounds here and that's all I want to do."

Crenshaw started the day with a bogey but promptly moved back to six under par with birdies on the second and third holes, both-par 4s, and he then recorded 15 straight pars.

"It was a dull round after No. 3," said Crenshaw, laughing. "I was as steady as Tom Kite."

At one point Wadkins had dropped to just two under par but he birdied four straight holes, beginning at No. 12, to move back near the lead.

Young takes over lead of Corning Classic

CORNING, N.Y. (UPI) — Kathy Young shook off several distractions Friday en route to shooting a 4-under-par 68 to grab the second round lead of the $150,000 LPGA Corning Classic being played at the Corning Country Club.

Young, who stands at 5-under-par 139 so far in this the fifth annual, 72-hole tournament, led the course record for the front nine by shooting a 5-under-par 31. On the back nine, she was 1-over-par 37.

"It was very thrilling," said the 28-year-old Portland, Ore., resident, who had seven birdies and three bogeys. "I had chills up and down my body at some times (during the round). I'm easily excitable and my heart speeds up."

After 12 holes, Young was 8-under-par for the tournament, but she then bogeyed the 13th, 14th and 15th holes, to come back to 5-under-par.

Young parred the last three holes to finish at 5-under-par for the tournament.

Young explained that when she started to hit her tee shot on the 13th hole, she was distracted by some spectator applause from another hole. She pushed the shot right, into the trees, and took a bogey.

On the 14th hole, Young hit a perfect tee shot, but didn't concentrate and pulled a 5-iron left into the trees, taking another bogey. On the 15th, she hit a sand bunker on her tee shot and bogeyed.

"I have to learn to slow down, but I like my position," added Young, whose best finish in her six-year career was a fifth place tie in last year's LPGA championship. "It feels good to be up there again."

All alone in second place at 4-under-par 140 is Patty Sheehan, who shot a 2-under-par 70, her second 70 in two days.

There's a two-way tie for third place between Cindy Hill and Valerie Skinner. Hill shot a 1-under-par 71 and stands at 3-under-par 141 for the tournament, while Skinner fired a 4-under-par 68 in the second round.

The third round is scheduled to tee off at 8:30 a.m. Saturday, with the final round slated for Sunday. First prize is $22,500.

Ballesteros paces British PGA finals

SANDWICH, England (UPI) — Spain's Severiano Ballesteros shot a one-under-par 69 for a share of the first round lead Friday in the $140,000 British PGA Championship.

Ballesteros, the U.S. Masters champion, shared the lead with Britain's Mark James, a Ryder Cup player, and David Thorp, a 30-year-old club professional.

South Africa's John Bland holed a 181-yard 3-iron for an eagle two at the 387 yard ninth to join a group of seven at 70. Also at 70 was American John Fields, a graduate of the University of New Mexico.

Spain's Manuel Piñero, who won this title in 1977, had three birdies in an outward 34 in his 70, and also at 70 were Britain's Bill Longmuir, Brian Barnes and Maurice Bembridge and Ireland's Des Smyth.

Ballesteros had three birdies in his first seven holes on the 6,629 yard Royal St. George's course. He holed putts of 30 feet and 20 feet at the first and seventh, and chipped in from 25 yards at the third.

Dow falls before Fed report

By FRANK W. SLUSSER

NEW YORK — Stock prices fell for the second consecutive session Friday in light trading.

Many investors left early for the three-day Memorial Day weekend.

Some uncertain traders cashed in on profits prior to the Federal Reserve report released after the market closed that showed the nation's money supply rose $1 billion in the latest statistical period.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which fluctuated in the early going, fell 7.35 to 1,216.14, ledging 5.52 Thursday after pushing close to its May 6 record high of 1,222.59.

Most of the closely watched average gained 25.12 for the week overall, thanks to rallies the first three sessions.

Big Board volume totaled 76,290,000 shares, down from the 94,960,000 traded Thursday.

Analysts said the Fed's post-market money-supply report was about in line with forecasts. But it was the third consecutive increase and could create some concern about interest rates next week.

"There was some consolidation from the gains of early in the week," said Hildegarde Zavorski of Prudential-Bache Securities. "But generally many investors left early for the holiday weekend and the market went into a drifting phase."

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 88,639,630 shares, down from the 110,967,600 traded Thursday.

The American Stock Exchange index eased 0.26 to 463.38 and the price of a share dipped one cent. Advances topped declines 361-299 among the 848 issues traded. Composite volume totaled 15,576,785 shares compared with 14,761,900 Thursday.

The National Association of Securities Dealers' index of OTC stocks gained 0.66 to an all-time high 312.05.

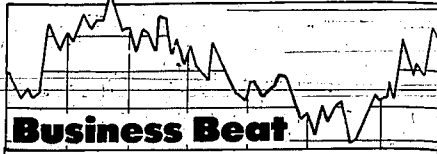

On the trading floor, Xerox (ex-dividend) was the most active NYSE-listed issue, off 1/4 to 45 1/2 following several large block trades.

Natomas, object of a $1.4 million takeover offer from Diamond Shamrock, was second on the active list, up 1/4 to 24. Natomas is seeking a financing arrangement to fight the bid. Diamond Shamrock, the third most active issue, added 1/4 to 23 1/2.

Maryland Cup spurred 5/8 to 44 1/2 in active trading. The company said it was involved in merger talks with another unidentified corporation. Maryland Cup gave no other details.

Superior Oil moved up 1/4 to 37 1/2. Dissident shareholders have won a battle to have the company study takeover offers.

On the Amex, Dunlop Holdings led the actives, up 3/4 to 1 1/4. Cyprus Corp. followed, off 1/2 to 3 1/2. Instrument Systems was third, unchanged at 5 1/4.

AMC hikes prices on Alliance

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (UPI) — American Motors Corp. is raising the price of selected models of its popular Renault Alliance by $100, the second price increase since the auto was introduced last fall.

The automaker said the price hike means the cost of the average equipped Renault Alliance would increase $95, or 1.2 percent.

AMC did not raise the price of its base model which was raised in the original round of price hikes. The no-trills Alliance will remain at $5,695. It had cost $5,595 when it was originally launched last fall.

AMC is raising the price of the Alliance two-door L model to $6,220. The DL 2-door goes up to $6,855. Among four-door models, the L goes up to $6,470, the DL to $7,105 and the Limited to $7,670.

Plant at Jerome healthy after 10 years of operation

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — The 10th anniversary of Moore Business Forms Inc. in Jerome finds the business healthy, having been able to resist the influence of the recession, said its plant manager.

C. L. "Cali" Jensen told the Jerome Chamber of Commerce membership this week the plant has nearly completed construction of its 58,000-square-foot addition to the local facility.

He said the addition is warehouse space, but plans for the future include installing another three presses at the plant.

"Our Jerome plant is one of 40 Moore Business Forms operates around the country," he said. "It is one of about 10 which are completely custom continuous manufacturing facilities."

This means, Jensen explained, that all of the forms produced in Jerome are designed and made to order for a specific use by a specific customer.

"Our operation here over the past 10 years has been somewhat unusual," the speaker said. "We didn't participate in the past recession. Our markets remained good and we continued to grow while in some other areas it was necessary to cut staff and reduce production.

"We have yet to have our first layoffs at the Jerome plant," Jensen added.

Jensen passed around samples of the forms that the Jerome plant has designed and is now producing.

He said in the past 10 years the firm has served about 80,000 customers. Other statistics he offered included the $15 million the plant has spent for paper purchases, $28.5 million it has spent in salaries and the $75,000 paid in property taxes in Jerome County.

Sixteen modern presses handle the printing of forms, most of which are used for computers, and 240 employees now have jobs in the five-day, three-shift operation in Jerome. One order the Jerome plant has filled recently called for 4.5 million forms for an air shipping firm and cost the customer $250,000, he said.

The plant has used about 100 million pounds of paper, but he said this is small compared to what the total Moore Business Forms operation handles.

Jensen said Moore's 40 plants do a $2.2 billion annual business, he said, and the firm still is the world's largest business form maker, with 25,000 employees.

of the total market.

"It's a highly competitive field, however. Thirty years ago, there were five major firms making business forms and today there are probably 50," Jensen said.

"We have been very satisfied with our plant in Jerome. The quality of the labor supply is all that we had anticipated it would be and the site is very good," he added.

Jensen said the workers at the Jerome plant average 25 to 26 years of age, compared to probably 35 to 40 in most plants.

"We are a young plant, and the years of our operation reflects in the average age of our workers. We usually hire high school graduates and teach them a trade. At our anniversary party recently—there were 27 of the 93 employees who started with us, when we opened in Jerome that are still working here. That's not a bad record," he added.

Jensen said that while the expansion program nearing completion will bring some 40 new jobs, the process of increasing employees will be gradual. He said the plant has no more than a 5 percent employee turnover.

Sale completed

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI) — Western Telephone Equipment Co. announced Friday it has completed sale of more than $1 million in convertible subordinated notes to private investors to finance expansion.

The company, which manufactures computer equipment for hotel telephone orders, has added $1.8 million in borrowings to its backlog during the past three months.

Robert L. Zaugh, president of the firm, said the firm has experienced a rapid increase in growth because of recent federal regulation changes, which permit hotels to earn a profit on telephone service to guests.

Tailored headlights given OK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government has told the auto industry it can begin tailoring headlight designs to meet the aerodynamic needs of each automobile.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, acting on a request filed by Ford Motor Co., said the new standard is effective July 1 and involves the use of a standardized replacement bulb in place of existing sealed-beam systems.

The change from systems of rectangular or round headlamp—specified dimensions returns auto lighting designs to a system not unlike the industry's earlier years when just the bulb could be replaced rather than the sealed unit that contains a bulb, reflector and lens.

Equipment agreement nears

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — The Port of Vancouver's executive director is "very optimistic" that an agreement will be reached over the disposal of Iranian equipment stored over four years.

Benson B. Murphy said it would be unlikely that the Port Commission will go ahead with a June 15 sale date to pay for storage charges on the modular construction camp and road building equipment valued at about $14.5 million.

The equipment has been at the port since late 1978 and Murphy spent 12 days this month in negotiation in The Hague, Netherlands, with representatives of Iran's Ministry of Roads and Transportation.
